BLACK DRESS GOODS

Thin Materials for Evening Wear

Black, always correct and in good taste for almost any occasion, now steps into first place, and with the forecast of fashions for the coming season to hand, dresses made of these now will come in for summer wear as well; less worry than the selecting of a color. Decide on a black and your dress is here.

Black Silk and Wool Crepe de Chine, $1, $1.50 and $2 Yard

These drape very softly and make up very rich where the shiny finish is not desired. While they have not that glossy surface, yet they show the silk in its richness, woven on the surface with the wool threads; a richness which is preferred by many. They are 44 inches wide; at, per yard ...... $1, $1.50 and $2 Pretty Polka Dot Crepe de Chine; 44

$1, $1.10 to $1.50 Yard These are a closer weave and not transparent; a pure silk and wool fabric and very serviceable; will wear and keep good color; an all round, serviceable dress fabric; 44 inches wide; for, per yard ......

...... $1, $1.10, $1.25 and $1.50 Priestley's Black Resilda, $1.25 and $1.50 Yard

Bright and silky; this fabric is woven with just enough mohair mixed in the wool to give it the appearance of silk, which also prevents it from creasing. The greatest wear and dust-resister, we think, that has yet been produced in a lightweight fabric, particularly in the blacks; 44 inches wide; at, per yard ..... $1.25 and $1.50

These are shown in stripes as well as DIES IN ENGLAND in the plain, which are also very handsome, in the different width stripes; per yard ...

Priestley's Silk Warp Henrietta, $1, $1.25, $1.50 and $2 Yard

For certain new style gowns such as the Empire or Directoire these are much favored. While not heavy, they have the weight and softness desired for these styles; 44 inches wide; at, per yard .....

Black Silk and Wool Poplin de Soie, $1, $1.10 and $1.25 Yard

Sheer and serviceable materials are these and very silky in appearance, soft and clinging, which is the desired effect now; 44 inches wide; at, per yard ......

.... $1, $1.10 and $1.25 Black Silk and Woo! Ottoman, $1.50 Yard

A smooth finish, bright and distinct cord, new and pretty for dressy wear; looks like a satin cord. Ask to see this; 44 inches wide; for, per yard ........$1.50

Black Silk Voile, $1.35 Yard

This weave is similar to the ironframe grenadine, which is better known to most people, and makes up very handsome over silk, plain weave; 44 inches wide; at, per yard ...... $1.35

Black Wool Voile, Priestley's Plain $1 and $1.25 Yard

Fine, sheer, firmly-woven voiles, made from specially-prepared, hard-twisted threads, very evenly woven. The popularity of black voile is rather on the increase than otherwise, and a strong demand is predicted for the coming season, particularly for the fine and medium size weaves, while the coarse or etamine weaves will have a good following for the coat suits with braid, in silk and mohair for trimming; 44 inche wide; at, per yard ..... $1 and $1.25

Other qualities at, per vard ..... ..... 50¢, 75¢ and 85¢ The fine weaves are also shown in beautiful bordered designs, which will be very popular the coming spring and summer. These are 52 inches wide; at, per vard .... $1.75

Embroidered Black Voiles

A few handsome styles in popular embroidered, small designs; also small pin-dot pattern; 46 inches wide. These are priced ..... $1, $1.25, $1.50 and $2

The Montreal Gazette explains that this may be partly due to Year. its length, as compared with some of the combined water and rail routes, and partly, no doubt, to the fact, sometimes forgotten, that much of the western-grown grain movement is for the supply of domestic wants, and never touches an export point. It will also be noted that the Grand Trunk lake port routes, with terminii at Midland and Tiffin, and at Depot Harbor, ada abroad. play a large part in the trade, having received close on nine million bushels of the fall-moved grain. Much of the future growth of the trade will no doubt be in connection with these and other Georgian Bay ports, to which other roads are also reaching out.

MOVEMENT OF BRITISH CAPITAL

Some interesting comments have been drawn from prominent London to everybody. London ought to keep banking and businessmen by the publication recently of a statement to the effect that in November last, while only $15,000,000 of British capital was invested in the United Kingdom, no less than $60,000,000 was exported for investment in the colonies and foreign countries. The income derived by British investors from transoceanic sources has risen from $220,000,000 in 1886 to $395,000,000 in 1907, showing that the total amount invested in other countries must be colossal.

Much of the British capital sent abroad during the last thirty-five years of the last century found its way to got into the house?" asked a lady of her Australia and South Africa; now Canada is getting a large share, while some of it goes to China, Japan and own way in this house yet." South America. No part of the world is proving more inviting to the British capitalist at the present time than the Canadian West. Extensive railway construction in South America, particularly in Brazil and Argentina has caused a demand for money. The naval aspirations of the same countries are also prompting them to lock abroad for money. Japan has also borrowed heavily in England, and is likely to borrow more, while the demands of gation: China will be extensive as soon as her internal development is fairly begun. years the income annually drawn by British capitalists from bonds issued by Asiatic Governments has grown from less than $4,000,000 to about $13,000,000.

In the opinion of an eminent London financier it is not so much the actual return in dividends that tempts Brit-Ish capital to invest in foreign railways as the prospect of future increased returns. This authority can see no hope of such improvement in the net receipts of British lines, which from 1897 to 1906 showed scarcely any Great Britain. he says is a "sucked orange" As a Held for investment she is "too old too tired, too full." There are no new territories in the United Kingdom to sary railways are built, and all the Thus it is also the foremost Jewish city MALONE ACCUSED BY WILKINS! great industries are concentrated in the hands of old-established firms or syndicates. At the same time the amount of money that the people of the right little, tight little Island, have to spare for other countries, is amazing, and a proof of the continued vitality of the British nation.

Milkman's Puzzle.

There are practical problems in all trades, so it is safe to say that no one is an adept at his business unless he has picked up a few wrinkles which pertain to his calling. Honest John says tha twhat he "don't know about milk is scarcely worth mentioning," but he was nearly flabbergasted once when he had nearly nothing but two ten-gallon cans full of milk, and two customers with a five and a four quart measure wanted two quarts put into each measure. It is a juggling trick, pure and simple, devoid of trick or device, but it calls for much cleverness to get two exact quarts of milk into those measures, employing no receptacles of any kind except the two measures and the two full cans. You can try the problem with the fullest assurance that it is a legitimate proposition, and not a silly catch.

Solution to Mother's Jam Puzzle Printed on Tuesday. The solution to Mother Hubbard's Jam Puzzle may be arrived at as Supposing the Hubbard family during the first twelve days of the jam season consumes the 12 small jars from the two lower shelves, leaving two large jars on the second shelf and four medium jars on the third. Since each of the shelves contained the same quantity and six small jars are removed from each, it is clear that the two remaining jars on the second shelf are equal to the four medium jars left upon the third. Therefore, one large jar contains the same quantity of jam as two medium jars.

It is now a simple matter to determine how many of the smallest jars are contained in a medium by comparing the first and second shelves. If we remove the large jar and two medium jars from the top shelf and two large from the second, we have left one medium and three small on the top shelf, containing the same quantity as six small on the second. Thus we see that one medium jar contains three small jars.

Having the relative capacity of the three sizes we can now prove that all the jam in the cupboard could be contained in 54 of the smallest jars, and since the Hubbards consume one small jar per day, the winter's supply will last 54 days.

According to the conditions of the bet, Krohn, who is better known as "Colonial Jack," must push a wheelbarrow en route, and cover the distance in the time named. He has already walked 4,660 miles, an average of 26 miles a day. To complete the walk on schedule time he must walk fraction over 22 miles a day, and in spite of eleven days lost on account of illness, he is far ahead of the requirements.

The "Sphynx," the wheelbarrow which the pedestrian trundles on his long walk, is covered with the postmarks of 635 postoffices. It also has a speedometer attached to register the number of miles covered. The wager on the outcome of the walk is $1,000 against 2,000 copies of the book which Krohn will write on the completion of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy in South Africa.

South Africa within the last few year has gained more prominence, perhaps, than in all its past history. Its rich dia-mond mines have won for it an enviable reputation. Its native aprisings excit sympathy everywhere, while the Boer war, the effect of which will be felt for a long time to come, was looked upon with mixed emotions, the world cheering or mixed emotions, the world cheering or mourning according to the interests involved. During these critical times, its commerce was crippled, supplies were scarce, and only staple articles were shipped there. Among these were classed Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It was sent there in large quantities, as its reputation for usefulness and reliability had already been establisheid. Mr. S. Schneider, of Koffeyfontein, Orange River Colony, shows by the following letter that this medicine is still held in high esteem. He says: "I thank you for your good Cough Remedy. I used it for myself and three children when we had bad coughs, and it helped us. Every family should keep it at hand."

Money released from productive employment was a drug on the market, and denied employment in trade and industry, it turned to the securities markets for employment. Unquestionably the strength manifested by securities from the middle of February onward was an important element in bringing about the revival later shown in trade and industry, and the expression "the ticker tells the story" found frequent employment among that large class of sanguine people who believed, as it turned out justly that the growing strength in American securities foreshadowed a considerable amount of recuperation and repair. This same ease of money too, made it possible for the railroads to borrow funds at less exorbitant rates, thus facilitating improvements and repairs, and investors proved more willing to take municipal and other bond issues that proved almost unsalable in 1907. Finally, higher court reviews of and decisions against hostile legislation To the Editor of The Advertiser: and extortionate lower court penalties were helpful in restoring confidence to the business world generally, and even proved sedatives to national and state officials, who found it less popular than heretofore to indulge in corporation baiting. Later on the apparently foregone result of the presidential election removed hesitancy, induced the placing of orders freely, and, perhaps, led to a greater growth of optimism than was justified by the improvement in actual trade, striking as it was. The rush upward of security and commodity prices in the fall, a reflection of this optimism, had a slightly cooling effect upon those who believed that prosperity had returned in full tide, and the talk of tariff revision in the closing months undoubtedly made for closing months undoubtedly made for a reawakening of conservatism as to we have, as it does not lower either put on in case of fire. # THE LONDON WATERWORKS

TO THE CITIZENS OF LONDON:

In presenting the waterworks extension bylaw, the commissioners desire to call attention to the following information concerning same:

(1) The additional water will be entirely from springs. The advantages of a supply of spring water, which London has enjoyed for many years, will be contin-

(2) The amount of water which will be obtained will be 30 per cent. of the present supply. This will meet the increased needs of the citizens for many years. It is confident that the visible supply to be added under this bylaw will be materially increased by process of developing the springs to be purchased.

(3) An auxiliary pumping station will be provided. This will be located at the north end of the city, that will furnish a guarantee against possible disaster, such as would result in the event of an accident to the present main from Springbank.

(4) This north end pumping station will be equipped with machinery capable of giving immediately, at any time, a fire pressure of one hundred pounds. The pressure will be under direct control of the engineers of the department, and may be increased to a pressure for fighting fires or reduced for ordinary domestic and other uses.

(5) The springs and pumping station at the north end will be of sufficient capacity to supply the city, by means of storage reservoirs, for any considerable period, during which repairs to the Springbank system might be necessary. All the advantages of a duplicate system are obtained.

(6) The bylaw does much more than add to the supply of water. It provides for material strengthening of the system of distribution. However great the amount of water obtainable for fire or other purposes, it is impossible to give an adequate pressure at all points, owing to the size of the present mains. To overcome this difficulty the bylaw proposes that a twenty-inch main shall run from the reservoirs on the north side, along Richmond and Clarence streets to Horton, with large, new mains feeding from this main into the present system, on Central from Richmond to Adelaide; on Queen's from Park to Adelaide; on Horton from Ridout to Adelaide; on Nelson from William to Rectory; on King from William to Queen's Park; on William from Central to Nelson; on Ridout from Carling to Elmwood; on Queen's and Carling from Ridout to Park; on Oxford from Talbot to Richmond; on Ann from Richmond to Carling Brewing and Malting Company's; on Pall Mall from Richmond to Waterloo.

(7) The new mains will be in direct connection with the north end pumping station, forming circulating belts, and connected at the street intersection with the present mains, thus insuring an adequate and uniform pressure at all points.

(8) Sinc: 1890 the Water Commissioners have handed to the city $400,000 surplus revenue, over and above operating expenses, interest and sinking fund on all debentures is sued for waterworks purposes. The net surplus revenue of the past year was over $27,000. The revenue that was formerly received from the Grand Trunk Railway Company, street watering and lawn services, amounting to over $12,000, will again be available. The natural increase of the revenue from domestic services should amount to over $3,000. Therefore, the additional cost of operating expenses, interest and sinking fund on the proposed additional debenture issue may be paid for with the surplus revenue received from water rates, without increasing the charges to present water takers. WILLIAM JONES.

VOTE AGAINST WATERWORKS BYLAW AND RIVER WATER

In view of the apparent success of the test-well, which has been sunk by the Hon. Adam Beck on the city property at the foot of Horton street, and the efficiency of the artesian wells elsewhere, a meeting was hurriedly called by telephone to lay the facts, so far as ascertained, before a number of large ratepayers. After careful consideration this meeting came unanimously to the conclusion that, having regard to the probable success of the artesian well scheme, it would be most unwise to pass the bylaw for the expenditure of $441,000 at present before the

The ultimate object of the bylaw appears to be to prepare for the USE OF RIVER WATER FOR DOMESTIC PURPOSES. This is shown by the provision of pumps of 9,000,000 gallons capacity in the north end of the city, while the engineer estimates that not more than 800,000 gallons of spring water is apparently available on the north branch. No attempt is made to satisfy the underwriters. The undersigned, therefore, without desiring to have the appearance of dictating to their fellow citizens as to the course they should pursue, would respectfully urge them to defeat the bylaw.

A SMALL MEETING IN EAST END HALL

Water Issues Were Discussed at Length by Two Speakers.

SMALL CROWD OF ELECTORS

Judging by the Meeting the People Are Not Very Greatly Interested

Only about 75 persons were present the East End Hall last night when the water bylaw which is to be voted on next week, was discussed.

The speakers were Mr. J. M. Parsons, candidate for the mayoralty, and Commissioner Fred. J. Darch. Both dwelt exclusively with the water bylaw and some interesting information was given out. Mr. George Burdick was in the chair and called upon Mr. Parsons to speak first. "I am sorry," said Mr. Parsons, "that Londoners are so indifferent to the important matters at stake We are, as it were, all members of a joint stock company. We are all interested and it is our duty to take an interest in our city. It is to be regretted that politics has been allowed to play such a large part in our city affairs. I am particularly interested in the waterworks bylaw. There have been two schemes voted on by the ratepayers and they both went down. The present bylaw is the old one that was voted on last summer with the filtration cut out. You did not want to take it then. I think the commissioners are too anxious and are spending too much money in trying to get you to take it now. The commissioners have overdone this

Not Large Enough. "The water scheme as presented is not large enough for London at the rate she is progressing. If the present scheme is adopted it will only serve for a short time and then will have to be done over. In Toronto where they have the lake at their doors their reservoir ran short even in the winter. That shows you that no matter how large your supply may be water is wasted. There is only one cure for waste—that is to measure or vote the water bylaw down." neter it. # LONDON TOWNSHIP ELECTORS MEET and Others Address the Gathering.

At the meeting of London . Town ship electors, held last evening in the Branton was chairman. The affairs of the township were discussed at considerable length.

Reeve Kimball spoke first, dealing with the financial policy of the past council. He pointed out that the exing, owing to the increase in school expenditure. About $45 were collected off each 100 acres, of which about $38 went for school rates. He spoke of the expenditure for St. Lawrence Ward, and thought that considerable money could have been saved there. He dealt with the Scanlon drain, and characterized that drain as a failure, not doing the work it was expected to do. He had not intended being a candidate this year, but many friends of his has interviewed him, and in deference to their wishes he had consented to again be a candidate.

Mr. S. Frank Glass followed, and spoke at some length. He dealt with the expenditure of St. Lawrence Ward; of which he had been commissioner. There was no doubt a large amount of money had been expended, but a. large portion of it was commuted statute labor, and consequently did not come out of the funds of the township at all. The ward had grown by leaps and bounds, and had now the largest assessment of any ward in the township. The growing suburbs should be looked after. They paid their taxes, a considerable amount each year, and they were entitled to some consideration. Mr. Glass declared that he had introduced business principles in the operations in the ward.

Mr. R. W. Jackson, candidate for first deputy reeve, also spoke. He declared that at the request of a large them before, and was prepared to give his best services to the people. didate for second deputy reeve, and
