Beer boys' shootout nears

Alberta's beer guzzlers may soon be heading home empty-handed and heavy-handed after repeated threats of a brewery management walkout.

Union reps learned yesterday that the disgruntled managers of the province's big three sudsmakers were outraged when they found out they are now being paid less than even the lowliest bottle-capper.

"Erp! I really don't hold much hope for a settlement," management rep, Bill Brewer, told the Sun over some chilled suds in the Carling O'Keefe executive offices.

"If those drunken sots don't succumb to our demands, we'll put them out on the streets in a matter of weeks," he said.

But union bosses claim they won't let management take away their livelihood. They say if management walks out, workers will walk right in and take over the breweries.

"We also have the expertise to take month-long holidays in Hawaii, blow hundred buck-a-week expense accounts, and suck up to university fraternities — just like management," one union rep told the Sun over a frosty brew at union headquarters.

"In fact, we've even asked for a government negotiator to intervene if the managers do strike," the union said. "We hope that'll prolong the strike indefinitely."

Both sides are embattled in a war of words, so the fourth annual beer strike is imminent. Once again, long-suffering beer drinkers won't be able to quaff any of that yeasty summer brew.

Even if a quick settlement is reached, management's work-to-rule campaign has slashed production drastically. Our source in the suds factory estimates it will take a full five days to produce replacement stocks for such class brews as Old Vienna and Canadian.

Meanwhile, Sun publisher Olio Spaghetini has been arrested for hijacking a semi-trailer in Saskatoon and using it in a robbery of a liquor store.

"My boys, they'sa gettin'a desperate," says Spaghetini.

FIRST STRIKE!

A proposed Alberta Provincial Police Force would have "first strike" capability for use in disputes with other provinces or the federal government, NDP leader Grant Notliked charged yesterday.

But Solicitor-General Graham Crackers, who wants the new force to replace the RCMP in Alberta, said in the legislature that it would have only a "defensive" capability.

Crackers insisted, though, that Alberta needs its own police force by next year so that "the federal presence" of 1,900 RCMP personnel can be ended.

"The RCMP represents a foreign presence, and it compromises our ability to bargain effectively with the federal government. We want to replace it with people we know we can count on," he said.

The proposed APP would have about 30,000 members, as well as a full complement of tanks, armored personnel carriers and artillery. Crackers denied that his department has been negotiating with the U.S. government for Cruise missiles or theater nuclear weapons.

"Why would we want nuclear weapons in a movie theater?" he asked.

Burnt kids, hubbyburger

Hilda Berserker of 8506 - 137 Ave. is in police custody today after setting fire to her children, chopping her husband into hamburger with a chain saw, shooting 16 passers-by and sending a "Nearly Fallen" true confession story to the Edmonton Journal which violated the contest's rule about discretion and sent Andy Snadbun to hospital with a cerebral thrombosis.

"It was a birthday present for Cake Lardbutt," Ms. Berserker allegedly told Police Chief Lummo, who personally questioned her.

Another happy winner! Sun publisher Olio Spaghetini presents new subscriber Pamela Drudge with a commemorative plaque and a friendly twist of the arm. Spaghetini has promised to pay a personal visit to anyone who subscribes (and to send the boys around to visit anyone who doesn't).

SHOOTING STUNS S.U.

President Phil Soper felt nothing Tuesday afternoon before an exploding .38 caliber slug tore into his massive chest.

Soper is now in hiding, pending the discovery of a suspect. His condition is described by aides as "guarded," though there is little information on his actual physical state.

As for the assassin, according to a Campus Security officer, "the sucker knew what he was doing, the mother never had a chance."

Questioned about the lack of security for the President, Campus Security men claimed to have seen nothing.

"We haven't installed gunports under the desks yet," said one stunned Security Officer. One courageous officer, emerging from his hiding place, reported he saw a huge figure racing from the scene.

In the aftermath of the shooting, there was great confusion as Presidential hopeful Bob Kirk appeared on

CJSR radio claiming that "he was in control now."

With voice quavering and hand unsteady, Kirk explained that the natural line of succession was from president to almost-president. "It's the most natural thing in the world," reported the nervous Kirk.

Terror has gripped the executive offices with the news that no suspect has been found. SU researcher Stuart Mackay has purchased a supply of machine guns and hand grenades. "I don't want to be like James Brady," said the nervous Mackay through the steel grate which now bars his office.

The passion for weaponry has spread to other members of the exec. Sporting bandoliers of ammunition and a Kalashnikov rifle, vp finance Elise Gaudet held a short press conference in her office. Speaking from behind her new bodyguard, Bruno, Gaudet reported that it would be business as usual after things calm down.

In the meantime the political prisoners seized in the aftermath of the shooting will be held indefinitely. "We are holding about fifty Students' Union hacks in protective custody pending a solution to the problem," said the dazed Gaudet.

The barbed wire which surrounds the Students' Union Building is also "a temporary measure," claimed Gaudet.

Meanwhile, controversy surrounds the decision by self-proclaimed acting president Kirk to lower all university flags to half-mast only 15 minutes after the assassination attempt. Kirk claimed the gesture was meant as a sign of respect for a slain leader, but Soper was reported to be "royally pissed off" at the move.

In other news on the assassination beat, Campus Security announced a massive two-man, $150 search for the attempted assassin. As well, the faculty of Commerce announced a Phil Soper Almost Memorial Scholarship, to be awarded annually to the Commerce student with the glossiest shoes.

LAW AND ORDER IN THE BUFF!

Edmonton top cop Bob Lunney announced his own daughter was arrested and strip-searched Sunday night.

But the Lunney lassie vehemently denies her treatment was in any way improper or degrading.

Elizabeth Lunney, SU vp academic, was arrested while standing in line outside of SUB Theatre.

She was taken to the downtown police station and given a total body examination.

"It was a completely understandable misunderstanding," said Liz Lunney. "After all, I was dressed rather... trashy."

Witnesses said Lunney was wearing a skirt "scarcely below her knee" with open-toe sandals.

"The officers at the police station were very apologetic but said procedures had to be followed. And they were right. After all, I could have been someone else surgically altered to look like the police chief's daughter with phoney ID identifying her as me who was trying to smuggle dangerous reefers into prison."

Lunney said the matrons treated her gently and one called her a "pretty piece of intelligent, self-actualized human being."

Chief Lunney said the incident was unfortunate but that the whole affair justified Edmonton City police strip-search procedures.

He said it was "just a fluke" morality squad officers had chosen SUB for a snap inspection and they had no way of knowing his daughter was the one wearing the bright green coat with a rose in the lapel.

WES MONT-MONKEY

Gag-retch

Woke up this morning and threw up over the dog. That's funny, I thought, as I surveyed the canine diced carrots, I don't remember eating that last night. Mind you I can't hold a candle to Wilkie when it comes to throwing up.

What a day I had yesterday. Whew! Got up, had a shit and tried to remember my daughters' names before they left for school. Luckily there was a local schools' fourth division reserve squad hockey playoffs on TV, so I watched that until 12, then whatdyaknow on comes an NBA game, a recording of Dallas vs. Portland in a preseason-1978 game.

The Legend called round with 35 cases of beer which we drank before the PGA golf tournament came on at 3. This ended at 5 when the Legend and I just looked at each other in bewilderment.

"What do we do now, Jackie?"

"I dunno."

"Guess we could talk...."

"Whaddabout?"

"Dunno."

We were save by Rimmer, who came in at that moment with a video of that 1943 World Marbles championship from Antwerp, Belgium.

Rimmer keeps giving me lectures about my drinking. But as most of you will know, I keep my consumption down to strict limits. No more than five highballs at breakfast, only 95 beers throughout the day and absolutely no more than three bottles of bourbon a night. Why last week I even walked home from the Point After, albeit on all fours.

One night when we got thrown out of another curling club, I decided to get home early because my wife had given me an ultimatum. So I bought a bottle of scotch and caught the bus, staggered to the back and collapsed on the seat, just before remembering that I had put the bottle in the back pocket of my pants. I felt a sharp pain in the nether regions as a combination of glass and alcohol seeped through my skin.

Fortunately the wife was in bed when I got home, so I tiptoed to the dresser, found some bandages and standing in front of the mirror, placed them carefully on my damaged anus. Now, I thought, she'll never know. Next morning she yells at Me: "Wes, you were pissed again last night!"

"No, I wasn't," I lied.

"Yes, you bloody well were."

"No, I wasn't, and anyway, how would you know, you were asleep when I got in."

"Ok," she glares, "Then how do you explain these bandages stuck on our mirror?"

Edmonton's finest showed up outside our offices yesterday when a meltdown was reported in our new nuclear-powered presses. Actually, what had happened was that Editor Lardbutt had phoned out to a deli asking them to "send a BIG malt down here." As punishment, Lardbutt has been made editor of the Gateway.

Crush yankee left!

SAN SALVADOR (UPIG) -The Government of El Salvador announced today it is sending 200 political consultants to the United States to help restore order in that strife-torn North American country.

The moderate regime of President Ronald Reagan must be shored up to protect it from "left-wing pinko democrats," said Salvadoran President Jose Napoleon Tuarture.

The United States is in chaos in the wake of an assassination attempt on Reagan two weeks ago. U.S. government sources have blamed the shooting on a general weakening of respect for authority in the country, encouraged by the activities of Democratic insurgents.

Internal security advisors are calling for a crackdown on the extremist forces to restore order to the country.

Zeppo Kennedy, the mysterious fifth Kennedy brother and spiritual leader of the insurgents, said Sunday from his Hyannisport, Mass., bunker that oppressive conditions for the bulk of the country's people have "forced the people to take action."

Across the country, workers are taking 40-minute coffee breaks to protest economic conditions.

"The people now realize that while they are scraping out a living making pre-fab condos, guys like Lee Iacocca "are getting a free ride on their backs," Kennedy said.

Meanwhile, militant dockworkers on El Salvador's west coast are refusing to load propaganda leaflet onto ships destined for the U.S.A., saying El Salvador should keep out of the internal affairs of the United States.

PAUL BUMSTEAD

Bumstead's been arrested for performing unnatural acts with a cowboy boot, but if drunkenness is a defence we're sure he'll be back soon.

Guns, stogies and wimps

Editor's Note: Look people, the Swine Trek phoned this one in. We don't know what it means either.

In a couple years, when Hank Illesic realizes he is a dope for playing his size 14 footies in the children's department of football, when Peter Puck realizes that nobody in their right mind wants to watch 22 smelly foreigners kick a soccer ball, when Wayne Gretzky realizes he isn't fit to tie Bobby Orr's knee brace, Edmonton sports fans will realize where the real sports excitement is in Edmonton — at the Gateway ping-pong tourney.

The Gateway is the effete newspaper at the U of A. No murder, Sunshine girls, rape or fag-bashing. Their paper isn't much to read but they sure know how to hold a ping-pong tourney.

First of all there's none of that anti-smoking bylaw socialist, strike down the working man's right to enjoy a stogie crap. First thing I did was light a White Owl; it gives you something to blow in your neighbor's face if they crowd your seat.

And they're way ahead of our namby-pamby, head-up-their- ass-city council when it comes to beer at sporting events. None of this lo-cal, low-al beer in paper cups; they had real beer in bottles to throw at the ref. They even had liquor, so I fixed me a triple boilemaker.

As my contribution to the event, I brought Danny Hooper, of Danny Hooper's Pigsty to sing the national anthem. Danny is going to be the next big thing in country music if he can ever remember the words. But that's that damn Pierre Effeminate Trudeau's fault; screwing up our national anthem just so some frog in the Montreal forum doesn't have to hit any high notes.

Over another round of triple boilemakers I had a conversation with Keith Krause, editor of the Gateway. We editors have a lot in common. When you see as much of the world as a journalist does, you begin to realize what's wrong with the world. Like gun control. Reagan had been carrying a piece he could of got that sucker. If they let Warren Moon carry a gun he would never get sacked.

Krause, the little turd, is going to work for the Big Green Bore this summer. I know all about it from the craven sniveling wimps that have left the Sun just because the Journal pays more, so I gave Krause some good advice: Don't stand too near to J&B O'Callaghan; the green dye runs off his suits and you can't wash it off. I also told him to stay away from Video Display Terminals: they make your brain turn to goo and run out your ear.

The ping-pong tourney? It was great — good beer, good smoke, good people. It shows that the city of Edmonton is joining the big leagues of North America. The young journalists of this city and the Sun have the same ideals, the same goals.... oh shit, it's only a rough draft, I'll finish this tomorrow.

Campus SUNrise

Good morning, U of A! We're your light, bright new morning alternative on campus (even though we come out in the afternoon). We know you've been waiting for a long time for something different from the old fat-cat on campus, the Gateway.

Well now you're going to get exactly what you deserve. Yes folks, T and A journalism has arrived on campus (and if you don't know what T and A stands for maybe you'd better take a closer look at our Sunshine Beast).

We're just filled with the kind of features we know all you hard-working, slow-thinking, intellectual-type students just love. Like our version of the early-morning caffeine fix - the Sunshine Beast. That should bring out the animal in you, har har! (That's sophisticated Sun-style humor, dontcha know.)

And once you've calmed down after looking at that, we've got more columnists. And more columnists. And more columnists. (And more italics.)

Take Cake Larbutt - please. And then, for all those jocks out there majoring in philosophy, there's our very own hole-in-the-brain boy Wes Montmonkey. (We tried to sign Wilkie but he said he was too busy being washed up.)

And then there's our political columnists. We know students are too busy to read up on all sorts of complex issues, so we restrict our pundits to the really meaty stuff - like what color underwear Herr Trudeau wears, how you can tell people of different classes apart by their smell, and why General Haig is soft on Communism.

Of course, before you get too bogged down in such weighty matters, the Uni-Sun's very own Don Rickles of the Weight Watchers set is there to brighten up your morning coffee every day at 2 p.m. Yes, it's Stuffed Grouse time! Mr. Ate the Page can always be counted on to cheer you up with his witty repartee ("Good morning"), dry wit ("I'm on the wagon again") and hilarious photos ("Here's another stiff who paid me $5).

We could go on and on, but we know from our reader surveys how limited your attention span is.

So let's just finish with that bright new saying that we hope will soon replace "Have a nice day": Remember - the future of the Sun is in your hands!

DO YOU REALLY THINK WE GIVE A DAMN ABOUT NEW SAREPTA?

RANTINGS FROM THE RABBLE

WELL, GEEZ, it's finally happened. That there red-tape dictator guy Comred Trudeau has finally gone too far. First it was yer metricification there, what with all them Ottawa burocraps expectin' us to turn our cereal boxes sideways jest so we could read how many keelograms o' %&?S*%#&?% they're feedin' us. Then you's got yer bilinguism what's gonna make us all polley-voo francay when we're harvestin' the wheat or milkin' ol' Bessie (the cow, not the wife).

And then he tried to ehange yer Arsey Empey to your Johndarmes de Police with all that "maintain le riot" nonsense.

But that weren't all. Then he gone and went and rearranged yer pricin' policy of all your natural oils and peetrolum products and caused us all a massive exyodus of money and rig-workin' folk.

And goin' on around all this time is his constant galivantin' sorties down to New York where he flirts around with them young painted hussies. And this is the fellow that's supposed to be the leader of our nation?

Well he doesn't deserve no such thing. I think the best thing that feller deserves is to be hung upside down from the Parliament tower by his stinky little froggy toes.

Jethro Barleybrain

(It's so nice to hear from the moderates once in a while.)

I'M A very boring, shallow person who leads an empty vacuuous existence. As a consequence of this I would like to write a dull letter on a subject that no one cares about. I do this every year at this time.

Why can't somebody do something about all the debris left on our streets? They are very messy. There is so much dust and dirt floating around that I often sneeze when I go outside.

And also, I would like to say something about potholes. There are a lot of them. And although I don't drive, they are very ugly and not very nice nonetheless. Thank you for giving me the opportunity to express my opinion.

Elwood P. Derbler

(A fascinating letter - thanks ever so much for writing.)

AREN'T THE Oilers just fantastic? And how about that Wayne Gretzky? I think he's just wonderful. He's so cute, and such a good player too.

Does anyone know if there is such a thing as a Wayne Gretzky fan club? I would really like to join if there is one.

I collect pictures and stories of Wayne. I think I've got just about everything ever printed about Wayne. I have several pictures and posters of him in my bedroom. I look at them before I go to sleep at night.

I think Wayne is just fantastic, and I would gladly donate a lot of my time worshipping him as I think he is so wonderful, really.

The Media Everywhere

(Oh, golly, gosh, gee whillickers, we couldn't agree more if Wayne Gretzky paid us!)

LETTER OF THE DAZED

I WOULD like to share a story with you that illustrates how ridiculous our mandatory helmet laws are.

Just last week - when the weather was nicer - a friend of mine was riding around downtown Edmonton when he had an unfortunate accident, made even more unfortunate due to the fact that he was wearing a helmet.

He was riding along Jasper Avenue when a truck unexpectedly pulled out from an alley directly in front of his path, causing him to swerve sharply. His bike went into a spin and he was sent flying end over end right into the middle of an outdoor cafe. He wasn't injured, but he landed in such a way that his helmet bent and closed over his head, making it impossible to remove.

Well, after this, he was a little shaken and asked the waiter for a cold drink. But the waiter, an old-fashioned type, just shook his head and told him that he couldn't be served until he was a gentleman and removed his hat.

Well, my friend couldn't get his helmet off, and he really wanted something to drink. Aren't those helmet laws ridiculous?

Evil Bolweevil Satan's Choice, in your town

Communist homosexual conspiracy

I realize full well that the teeming hordes of less-than-white racial immigrants residing within this great dominion owe the white founding nations a profound debt of gratitude for simply allowing them to exist. Nevertheless, the horrid fact remains that the chief threat to our future, our livelihood, our very Rightness, is indeed coming from within our own lily-white ranks.

In some respects the western democracies should never have fought World War Two. Because while those of us who are Real Men and actually derive a very-nearly sexual pleasure from seductively squeezing a trigger and sending some godless heathen to his maker were out fighting the Good Fight, we were inadvertently clearing the way for a conspiracy made more deadly by the fact that its skin color isn't different.

I am referring, of course, to the godless, sociopathic, socialist-armed, communist-inspired, homosexual hairdresser-teacher conspiracy. These violet, limp-wristed, simpering anarchists have been directed by the Kremlin to undertake the twin tasks of undermining what used to be a perfectly functional autocracy and corrupting the male youth upon which that autocracy depends.

Their success in the first task is proven by the election to successive terms as Prime Minister of that godless, socialist, non-English upstart, Pierre Trudeau. In his sleazy, continuous campaign to replace our Queen with a godless constitution, we have ample evidence that Trudeau is a part of this conspiracy.

Did he not spend the War riding around Quebec on a motorcycle, in a Nazi helmet, spouting leftist rhetoric? In what foul perversions was he indulging at the time?

Is it no wonder his marriage failed? Sympathy for Margaret might be in order, but for this: If Trudeau is a member of the conspiracy, where did the three Trudeau brats come from? Do I detect a slight resemblance to Mick Jagger?

The really dangerous aspect of the conspiracy lies in the second task, the undermining of our nation's youth. By posing as teachers, instructors, pedagoques, and university professors (and finding positions available when the Real Men are out at war and having a wonderful time), these faggot-fascists gained access to our unspoiled male children. What they have done with them is a horror to speak of, much less behold.

Where is the simple love of back-breaking labour (usually performed by someone else)? Where is the love of the martial life (as a member of the officer corps, of course)? Where is the selfless love of country that enables the better part of a generation to place itself in front of the sights and spasm gloriously as it is blown to perdition?

Where? I'll tell you where!

It has been literally swallowed up as a generation of tender youths is engulfed by the horrid, tacky, sticky legions of communist homosexuals! They're after your children! I know they're after me! They know that I know, you see, and I know that they know that they have to stop me if their foul pestilential outrage is to succeed! They've even tracked me to my little retreat in Bile-by-the-lake! They're in the house! Now they're crawling up my leg! AAAARRRRGGGHH!

Left-lib press conspiracy

I want to tell you a story. As at least some of you may remember, last winter the western media were full of news concerning a tragic earthquake in Italy — an earthquake in which hundreds lost their lives, and, more importantly, millions of dollars worth of property was destroyed. The western papers went to town covering the relief operation, accusing Italy's democratically-selected government of everything from gross incompetence to out-and-out fraud.

What the western papers 'conveniently' missed, of course, was the real story — the earthquake was caused by the communist Red Brigades on order from Moscow. Proof of Moscow's culpability lies in several tons of captured documents in the possession of the CIA, which have been (no surprise) ignored by the western press.

Kitchen Zink in his column today outlines the communist conspiracies involved in the Raygun assassination and the Safeway cashiers story, but these are only two of many areas in which the Soviet Union is attempting to undermine our daily lives. (Such horrors as fluoridation, civil liberties and earwax also come to mind.)

The common thread running through this warped and twisted fabric is the total seduction of the western media by the left-lib sympathizers who now control most of what we hear or read. When the truth is so obviously laid out for everyone to see, it amazes me that fewer questions are asked of these deceivers and incompetents. Are the masses indeed as stupid as my friends tell me?

The truth is now apparent to me; why haven't you people caught on yet? The number of occasions in which we have been hosed by a collective burying of heads in the sand on the part of western newspapers is legion, and I'd give copious details but for the fact that most of my notes disappeared when the RCMP raided my orifice a

As a rule of thumb, though, feel free to disbelieve anything published in the Globe and Mail, the Star, or any of the other competing papers here in Toronto. (Strike that - ed.) (Better yet, change it around to look like he's writing here — Lardbutt.) TV and radio you can ignore completely: as everyone knows, they simply scalp their material from papers others than ours.

To put it simply, you won't be safe until you accept no other source of information but the Sun. In fact, some of our own reporters can't be trusted, and columnists like Midget and Swillingate are only here because no Real Man would write about something as namby-pamby as art or civil liberties, and I guess even we have to have something for the women and the homosexuals to read.

When you come right down to it, what I'm saying is that if you want to feel really safe and secure in the knowledge that what you're reading is Right, pay attention to me. After all, doesn't this paper subscribe to the same wire services as all those other guys? And what's more, we butcher the copy something fierce, so that all you mental midgets might have a hope of understanding it.

So let's move beyond the Sun. Listen only to me. You are getting drowsy. Your eyelids feel heavy. You want to sleep. You want to work for the CIA.....

KITCHEN ZINK

Red conspiracy

Last month's assassination attempt on the greatest president this world has even seen was so obviously a Soviet conspiracy that it deserves little attention.

Who else but the Godless, back-stabbing bolsheviks would devise such a dirty, underhanded scheme to gun down the leader of the free world?

It's as plain as the hammer and sickle on Comrade Trudeau's underwear. That young Hinckley was a card-carrying Kay Gee Bee commie if there ever was one.

Of course, the dupes and fellow travellers in the left-lib press are fooled because Hinckley was once a member of a neo-Nazi party. But that just shows how sneaky those bastard Russkies are.

Who would think that the son of a wealthy oil executive would have communist affiliations? God, those reds are clever. I hope they paid that young fellow well, because he's going to rot in commie hell.

But there's a much more dangerous and less obvious communist conspiracy running rampant in this mighty land that deserves greater attention.

Safeway cashiers.

That's right, those cute little rosy-cheeked pixies who smile and take your money every week.

Phase one of the Russkies' scheme is the complete domination of Central America through free Soviet arms. Phase two is the infiltration of North America by Soviet agents disguised as grocery store cashiers.

I'm sure of it.

Just last week I was in the check-out line at Safeway buying an apple pie. I got to the front of the line. The cashier smiled and said, 'Hello.' Christ, she was smooth. Her nametag said 'Suzie,' but after she was through with me I knew in my heart that her real name was probably 'Olga.'

She finished ringing up the pie. I looked at the cash register, and then at the price tag on the pie. I couldn't believe it.

That subversive little commie bitch had overcharged me by three cents!

Then I gazed at her. Jesus! They must have made her practice for years to pull that face! She looked completely innocent, cheerful even, trying to bluff her way through.

Not wanting to tip her off that her cover had been blown, I played along with her little game, knowing full well that after work she would take my three cents — along with all the other money she had collected short-changing God fearing Christians — and send it off to the Motherland to help the sick economy.

So I paid her, left the store, and threw away the pie, since she probably poisoned it when I wasn't looking.

We must act now to stop this cancerous evil from spreading. Write your MP! Write Joe Clark! Bomb an NDP meeting!

This insidious evil is a grave threat to the moral well-being of all Canadians, their children, and their grandchildren; but I feel better already, knowing that people have listened to me.

Height handicapped stepped on

The provincial government has always been woefully insensitive to the needs of the disadvantaged and the disenfranchised of this province. Premier Lougheed, social services minister Bob Bogle and the rest of the Progressive Conservative cabinet and government have shown no initiative or foresight when it comes to guaranteeing equality under the law or decent necessary services to such diverse groups as working mothers, our native population, the physically and mentally handicapped, and university engineering students.

But certainly the most inexcusable ignorance of a group in Alberta by the provincial government is their steadfast refusal to deal with or even recognize the problems of less-than-tall people.

I am less-than-tall and proud of it. My father was less-than-tall and so was his father before him. In fact my grandfather gave his life for his country in the great war when he was unable to climb out of a particularly deep trench.

Thus my less-than-tall family and most less-than-tall families in Alberta should be able to walk proud and hold their heads up high if it were not for the arrogance of the Lougheed team. Composed mainly of ex-jocks and businessmen — two areas which have always discriminated against the less-than-tall — the conservatives show no interest in even giving us the teenyest-tiniest bit of justice.

Less-than-tall people have every right to use public services, yet handrails on buses, drinking fountains, upper shelves in libraries and a host of other essential services remain out of reach of most less-than-tall people.

The obvious solution is to use the Heritage Trust Fund to balance out these inequities — after all it is growing and we are not. A truly democratic society does not restrict basic human rights on the grounds of race, creed, or excessive height.

Cec cooks up a storm

MRS GROUSE

Cec Purves is a self-proclaimed big project addict. "And once you've tasted my convention center stew," says the Edmonton mayor, "there is absolutely no comparison to Ed Ewasiuk's small-time potatoes." Purves, 40ish, was always "into" big monuments to civic glory. When he was working as alderman a few years back, he was the sous-chef on the Edmonton entry into the culinary Olympics, perfecting such specialties as Coliseum a la mode, Commonwealth Games au gratin, and roast council circus.

Three years ago, he became mayor... and his appetite has been growing ever since.

"The neat thing is," he says, "that you can take one basic pro-business recipe and turn it into any project you want."

Cec loves to experiment. Some of his favorites include Task Force soup, plebiscite salad, and fried commissioners. He says he still can't find the right ingredients for a good old-fashioned MacKinnon freeway pie.

"The bad thing about my stew," says Cec, "is that there are no preservatives in it, so you must continually watch it so it doesn't go all gooey and slide off the plate."

Purves admits his stew is so chunky the voters may find it a bit hard to swallow. But he says, "If you find your credibility is being stretched a little thin, you can always supplement it with a little greenback salad."

CEC'S CONVENTION CENTER STEW

- 12 aldermen
- 4 cost-overruns
- 2 plebiscites
- 1 gross civic pride
- 1 50-lb sack voter uproar (well-seasoned)
- 6 false starts

One of Cec's assistants shows how to toss a greenback salad, but Cec is obviously going to need more salad than this to make his stew palatable.

4 tons pro-business sentiment
$36 million, or was it $46 million, or was it $82 million, or was it....?

Mix the above ingredients in a $20 million hole in the ground, shake well, stir, simmer for 19 years and then look for more money. When the project looks suitably overbaked, fill in the hole, look for a recipe that costs more, and start over.

Cec says it serves 500,000, but we're not so sure.

DAVE SWILLINGATE

It's like the old line, "An audience in stitches saves the critic nine." Hours of thinking that is.

Which brings us to the current production of The Hollow Playwright, now on at the Citadel main stage. The audience reaction to this astounding play ranged from ambivalent to confusion, but notwithstanding a certain understandable puzzlement, inevitable and unavoidable in any avant-garde performance of this sort, one could only conclude that the play deserved better.

What could have caused this reaction?

Obviously some sort of misconception must have existed in the minds of the audience to cause them to construe this play as something other than the dazzling play I saw. Of course one must perhaps retain some reservations about a conclusion as disconcerting as this one, especially considering the subjectivity of the reviewer, which can be influenced by as little thing as a spat with one's wife, or the weather, or a glass of wine, or a tab of LSD in the coffee.

But as I was saying, these INFLUENCES.... I'm sure you know what I mean. It's so easy to lose these chains of thought when one gets tangled in them.

But how could anyone tell? I mean if these twits can't even figure a piece of the old turkey like The Hollow Playwright, they sure as hell couldn't tell I'm stoned. I'm a craftier little bugger than a lot of people suspect.

So we just play it cool. Like real cooooooooooooooooooooool. Like REAL COOL! Like thes basic bastinados what puts on all thees preeeeeeententius turkeys on the stage an COOKs the peple fr money money money money. And nver blink or smile while their putting it over. ARTISTS!

And all the abslute?????? intuitions, perceptions, fluid grace, gritty determination, passion and emotional range, staright off the notpad without a speling error and stream o conshusmelt. Well I cn still right evn if this funy iffice.

ARCHAEOLOGY IN ITALY

There are still a few places open in Classics 475 (Summer Session) Practical Methods in Classical Archaeology *6. This course is taught at a field school near Ruoti in Southern Italy, at the University's excavation of a Roman villa at San Giovanni. Students taking the course will be trained in (a) distinguishing and excavating archaeological strata; (b) recording the structures and materials found; (c) elementary on-site draftsmanship; (d) classifying and cataloguing artifacts, especially pottery, in the excavation laboratory; (e) techniques of recovering animal and plant remains; (f) archaeological survey of the surrounding countryside. This course will be taught by several members of the excavation staff. Weekends will be free for excursions to nearby points of interest. Those interested may obtain further information from the Department of Classics.

HABS FOUND OUT

Yes, it's true folks. Your intrepid reporter has learned that Les Canadiens put gold ahead of silver in their recent post-season confrontations with Edmonton's own Kiddie Korps a.k.a. the Oilers.

Fans will be horrified when they find out that Lord Stanley's big silver beer mug is going to be somewhat tainted come the final May showdown.

Certain Montreal players, no names are known but Richard Sevigny would be a likely candidate, are alleged to have lined their pockets with some unearned cash in return for less than spectacular play on the NHL's frozen ponds.

According to big league boss John Ziegler, ever since the Habs became the Kiddies Korps he has been suspicious of something rotten in La Balle province.

"Gosh, gee whiz," says he. "How could a bunch of potential Pampers' commercial stars humiliate my.... I mean our.... I mean Canada's beloved red, white and blue?"

In speaking from his room at the New York YMCA Ziegler also divulged his suspicions about heavy gambling losses (and wins) by numerous members of the hockey echelon across the continent.

Rumors floating around have the Wunderkid's bankroll behind the whole shenanigans. Peter Pocklington, the Great Gretzky's guardian against poverty, reportedly liquidated a few assets and sold tons of extra weiners lately to round up moola for a big payola.

Oilers, once dubbed the Gang Who Couldn't Shoot Straight (with Murdoch in the lineup it was the Gang Who Couldn't Play Straight), recent exploits (?) against Montreal were made almost believable after

In tennis: Top seeded John McEnroe won the Eastern Westchester - North tennis tournament with a final 6-4, 7-6, 6-3 victory over some other sweaty bozo. The match was marred by McEnroe's poor sportsmanship: In a heated argument about a call, McEnroe bit off the linesman's nose. A $500 fine will be deducted from the $500,000 first prize.

In basketball: It's been rumored that the NBA playoffs are still going on. At this point in time, however, there is no information as to which teams may have made the playoffs and which, if any, may have been eliminated. The league office will be unavailable for comment until somebody is able to discover its location.

In minor hockey: 12-year old sensation, Bobby Skeet says he is giving up the game. The little dynamo, who scored 4,098 goals in 30 games while playing with the Peterborough Petes of the OMJHA, says the pressure on him was just too great. He says he would rather grow up to be an Air Traffic Controller.

In weightlifting: Boris Lavoris of the Soviet Union set a new world record in the superheavyweight class. He now weighs 568 lbs.

In franchise buying: Nelson Skalbania has offered to buy the Soviet Red Army Hockey team. Possible partners in the deal could include Peter Pocklington, Dr. Jerry Buss, George Steinbrenner and Alexander Haig.

In football: The Edmonton Eskimos have signed Bubba Jackson out of Idaho State. The 6'9", 305 lb. star of the Enormous Eleven conference is expected to try out as a blocking sled.

In golf: Middle-aged men in day-glow plaid polyester slacks used $600 sets of specially weighted sticks to hit little plastic balls into 18 randomly spaced holes. One of the men did this better than the others and was given an ill-fitting, pistachio green blazer.

In boxing: Ex-heavyweight champion Muhammed Ali has signed for a bout against actor Robert DeNiro who portrayed boxer Jake LaMotta in the recent movie, Raging Bull. The winner will be the first man to gain 50 lbs.

Fox on the run

By SCOTT HASBEEN

Norm Kimball has done it again!

The Eskimo's version of hockey's wheelin' and dealin' whiz, Sammy Pollock, scooped the football world with his surprise announcement yesterday that the local Green and Gold have signed Terry Fox.

For any who may not remember, or have been out of the country the past year, Terry Fox is a one-legged cancer victim who — while outfitted with an artificial limb — attempted to hop, skip and jump his way across Canada to raise bucks for cancer research. Starting on the east coast, Fox made it as far as Thunder Bay before the cancer bug forced him to pack it in.

Why, you ask, does Kimball think a fellow like Fox could help out the numero uno gridiron squad in Canada? A team that wins Grey Cups with the same regularity as the Montreal Canadiens win.... oops used to win Stanley Cups?

Kimball says, "I've got this buddy who lives just down the street from the hospital where Fox is being treated in Vancouver. One day he sees Fox go out behind the cancer wing and start punting the old pigskin. Tells me that sucker was going 70 - 80 yards easy. Hughie (coach Campbell) and I flew down on the weekend to watch him perform and offered him a contract on the spot."

Apparently Fox also placekicks and is accurate up to 60 yards.

"He gets that metal leg wound up and really lets her rip," says Campbell. "And," says the Eskie mentor, "there is less human error."

Kimball says, "Fox will report to our summer training camp and go against (Hank) Illesic and (Dave) Cutler for the kicking jobs. But if he performs as well as we think he will we can unload those two bozos. Plus we'll save some money on salaries. Fox signed a small one-year deal that will mean more bucks for me and Hughie. In the future when Fox proves his worth, and with more seats in Commonwealth Stadium, we'll be able to afford an arm and a leg if he asks for it."

When contacted, Illesic and Cutler both had this to say, "No comment."

Defensive back Larry Highbaugh said, "Hey, man, like that's cool. Whatever old Norm baby does is okay with this cat."

Kimball added that there should also be an additional benefit in television revenues. "We're really going to have a lock on the hospital patient audience. I know a lot of teams have no patient fans," he says. He cited the Toronto Argonauts as an example.

Wonder Kid bites it

Special to the Sun

Wayne Gretzky, Edmonton Oiler hockey star of unequalled fame and fortune, met violent death in Orillia, Quebec, yesterday.

Gretzky, who was taking time out from the Stanley Cup playoffs to make T.V. commercials for GWG and 7-Up, fell off his ego and smashed his skull on Montreal Canadiens forward Rejean Houle's closed fist.

The Montreal media are said to have ignored the incident.

Pope throws in towel

VATICAN CITY (APEY) - In a surprise move today Pope John Paul II dissolved the Catholic Church and called on Catholics and Christians around the world to renounce their beliefs.

The pope's actions came after scientific examination of the Shroud of Turin revealed a perfectly dried and preserved white blood cell with a normal chromosome count of 46.

"The chromosome count conclusively proves that Jesus had two human parents who each supplied him, through normal genetic channels, with 23 chromosomes, just like normal humans," said the pope. "In short, there is no evidence that Jesus was anything more than your average homo sapien."

The pope revealed, however, that support for the idea of dismantling the church had been growing in the church organization for some time.

"We tore our hair out trying to resolve the two accounts of creation in Genesis, and trying to figure out why John 1:18 would state that no man has seen God, when Exodus 24:9-11 states that Moses and a whole bunch of elders saw him, and a slew of other biblical mysteries.

"When the news of the chromosomes came in, we were already on the verge of throwing the Bible out as a hopeless tangle of hearsay evidence. You could say it was the Shroud that broke the camel's back."

The implications of the dissolution will probably be widespread. The number of clergy added to the unemployment rolls, especially in Italy, will add immensely to many countries' economic problems, although the Pope has said that putting them in productive jobs will be beneficial in the long run.

Much of the church's worldly holdings will be distributed to various charities, but, because the amount is apparently too large to be given away at once, a trust fund has been established.

A Vatican spokesman said that the church's gold alone, released carefully onto the market, will depress gold prices to the point where poor people can once again afford to cap their teeth.

Elsewhere, reaction was mixed. In Northern Ireland the Reverend Ian Paisley called the dissolution "a papist plot which probably was helped along by atheists and communists."

Pravda hailed the announcement as a triumph of dialectical materialism, but warned its readers that the movement may be offset by defections to decadent bourgeois organizations like the "Moonies" and Kiwanis.

Spokesmen for other major world religions have largely avoided comment on the momentous decision but many admit they are doing a brisk trade in converts.

Astronauts see Red

CAPE CANAVERAL Fla. (APEY) — Space centre officials here were left blushing when the Soviet news agency Tass revealed that John Young and Robert Crippen of the space shuttle Columbia defected to the Soviet Union Tuesday.

The two aging astronauts were last heard from as they flew over the Soviet republic of Khazakstan. Suddenly one of the Mission Control technicians reported the craft was losing altitude dramatically.

Mission Control ordered the astronauts to take corrective measures, but their only response was "beautiful." Language experts at Cape Canaveral say the two were actually speaking Russian, saying "coming in, comrades."

Sources in Washington have speculated that the defection was actually part of a top-secret trade. In return for the shuttle and the two astronauts, the Americans will receive three ballerinas, a dissident poet, and one free chance at hijacking the planned Soviet space station.

LEAVING THE COUNTRY?

Most airports use X-ray equipment to examine handbags, luggage, etc. in their security loading checks. Canada is a world leader in recognizing that this X-ray examination can adversely affect any photographic film you are carrying with you, and in many airports advises travellers of this danger. However, other countries may be lax in this regard and consequently your vacation film could be ruined quite easily. Kodak ships all its film with a warning on its shipping cartons advising air handlers not to place the carton near radioactive materials or to X-ray inspect them.

We advise storing your film in

Rip-off...? Nonsense!

Peter Lougheed, Chairman, Alberta Government Limited.

“The allegation of a voter rip-off will not stand up to an impartial inquiry. In fact, strong competition among loyal PCs has helped keep patronage prices low.

Alberta Government Limited is certain that it has not broken trust with the oil companies or in any sense been involved with other governments to set oil prices.

Millions of Albertans are confident that we can continue to fool enough of the people enough of the time. We will not betray that confidence.”

Winner a SEXY surprise!

Here's the one that was too controversial to run in Stuffed Gro use's column! This sleek black Harvey Woods original clings to every contour. Our photographer could barely control himself. Top this one, Bo!

Eyes have it!

Can you count the number of times you've casually said as you left the house, "See ya later, eh?"

For 13-year-old Katherine Dedyna, Friday will be the first time she can say that after she undergoes surgery to cure her rare disease-induced blindness.

Young Katherine's father, a slumlord who owns the Algonquin apartments in North Garneau, could never have afforded the extra-billing for the surgery required. But financial relief was in sight for the unseeing youth, by way of Ontario philanthropist and wonderful human being Peter Worthless.

"I took one look at her soft brown eyes and (sigh) I just melted away," Worthless said, after seeing the blind Kathy covering a CNIB convention in Toronto for an Edmonton-based blind juvenile's newspaper, The Journal.

Journal publisher G.O.D. O'Callahan says he's green with envy for Kathy's luck.

"I do hope she'll still come to be exploited... er, to work for us. It'll give our CNIB coverage a totally new perspective, a New Look," O'Callahan says.

Needless to say, young Kathy is overjoyed too, but foresight is not her only problem.

"Getting my sight back will be a big thrill," says the articulate 13 year old. "But I worry a lot about the operation."

HOTflashes

Poor kid scrapes knee

"Why did he have to do it in my neighborhood?" asks City alderman Olivia Booty.

"I was in my home admiring the nice empty ravine when this icky little poor person maliciously tore his knee on my superior quality sidewalk," she says.

The victim, Michael Maniwanee, 6, is in good health and back in his foster home near the Boyle Street area.

He says, "I was just cruising on my tricycle when this lady screams at me. I lost control and slammed into the guard rail surrounding her yard."

Biz as usual in China

PEKING(People's Baloney Service) Early today an earthquake registered 7.5 on the Richter scale in the mountainous region of China.

"Luckily it is one of our less populated areas and killed only one million people," says a Chinese official.

Intercourse linked with cancer

A recent study links leukemia and other forms of cancer to sexual intercourse.

The study, funded by Hanover Association for Homosexual Acceptance, claims that mixing male and female hormonal secretions creates a carcinogen "100 times more dangerous than cigarette smoke" that affects the entire body.

Ink-a-dink-adiieu!

Toxicologists at the University of Alberta have made a critical discovery about the effects of exposure to different colors of newspaper ink.

Their findings show that green ink is definitely linked to cancer, while red ink is both a more powerful aphrodisiac and a more effective alternative to vitamin E.

Haig kills red Mom

WASHINGTON (UPI) — U.S. State Secretary Alexander Haig shot his own blindfolded mother to death today in front of a group of Republican Senators after announcing that "tendencywise, her leanings are in the Communist directionality."

Haig said he realized his family was in danger of "political contamination" when, in a routine mail check the FBI discovered a copy of Redbook addressed to his mother. FBI officials immediately notified Haig, as they do in all such cases.

But rather than subject his mother to the usual witchhunt procedures, he decided to make her an example of how America should deal with internal subversives, he said.

Immediately after the execution, Haig set down his Uzi submachinegun and dictated a letter to his surviving family members announcing, "There'll be no more communist sympathizing. I'm in control now."

The Senators, led by mentor Jerry Foulwell, then set fire to the body in ritualistic fashion

Body parts in city water?

The Department of Health and Welfare has confirmed earlier statements that "it is entirely possible" that dehydrated human body parts have been finely mulched and sifted into the Edmonton water supply.

Suspicion ran rampant after several thousand people reported calcium poisoning. City Police suspect foul play.

"It's bizarre, but the high natural calcium levels in the water main, for example, could only have been caused by huge amounts of crystallized human bones," translating into hundreds of human bodies, according to chief of police Bob Looney.

"We suspect foul play," the chief said.

Police suspect there are three sources of the bodies: one is unnatural death but Looney says it would be impossible to trace Edmonton's thousands of homicides and missing persons per month, mostly children; the second is natural death - with mortuaries supplying the raw material; the third is grave-theft.

Police are combing Edmonton cemeteries for illegally dug graves, and large mortuaries are being similarly investigated.

The city's three largest morticians have accused Edmonton's host of small, independent crematoriums of the calcium poisoning, charging they did it to subvert the Big Three's lucrative business.

Meanwhile, Edmonton hospitals are overflowing with victims of calcification which causes bone stiffness, premature baldness and worsens even the mildest arthritis.

So now Edmontonians have an even better reason not to drink the water!

SUNrise again

Uni-Sun circulation manager Joe Fudgett announces another BIG rise in SUN readership.

Our new system of tabulation shows that 25,847 people read the Uni-Sun.

Of that total 4,985 buy it at a newstand., 7,620 read it over other people's shoulders on the bus, 220 read crumpled, day-old copies left in the sauna and 13,022 peek at the Sunshine as they pass by a drugstore.
