TEMPERANCE.

ADDRESS

Delivered by Captain Onlenan, R. N., at the opening of the Temperance Hall, on January 1, 1852.

Temperance Hall, on January 1, 1852.

Fellow Citiens;

When I look around and see the stately proportions of this noble room, I am reminded, that no misery of others has helped to raise the walls,—that no blood nor tears—no sighs nor groans, have gone to the completion of this structure. But here, in Charlottelowa, where gong drain-drinking has done so much harm,—where we have witnessed the degradation of some of our noblest families, the ruin of our best tradesmen, and the infamy and violent death of many of our prime workmen. Here, in Charlottelown, where of all trades and callings, grog-making, and grog-selling, seem the most sure road to wealth and distinction,—here has arisen a building dedicated to that cause of Temperance, which has been in no place smore commonly violated. It is a Tomple of Peace in the midst of a world of contention and strife, it is an offering of goodwill and kind intention to our fellow citizens, from those who deeply feel, that the right happiness and lasting prosperity of every one will be best insured by the adoption and prevalence of tectotal principles. Here we hope to see every domestic ie, and every social feeling, hallowed and respected; and the hearts of many, now desolute by drink, made glad by the precepts and practice of Temperance. Here, in accordance with our principles, no word should be said, and an active nomitted, otherwise than conducive to the best interests of this Town and Island; for if Love, Purity, and Fidelity be preserved unsulied by the Sons of Temperance, we shall oblige even our enemies to rise up and call us blessed.

At such a time, I have neither space nor will to put before our friends, who have not yet joined our Association, those arguments which have been so convincing to myself. To apeak arguments which have been so convincing to myself. To apeak arguments of the finds of Temperance, to mark this happy occasion of our first meeting, by increased zeal for the great cause of total abstinance. I have congratuated you upon the erection of this build ciple is truth, and our trust is, that it must sooner or later prevail.

Now, I am only concerned, that since our cause is so good, we should not create a prejudice against it by mismanagement or ill-regulated zeal. We have before been told that our great object is to influence public opinion, and this, I think, not by convineing arguments, so much as by awakening what has been well called the public conceince. This is the real avenue by which our principle is to gain the heart of the multitude, and to influence its moral condition. For it is the public conscience which we must arouse from her slumbers—it is site alone who can open to us the stronghold of public can speak so as to command attention,—she only when Christian principle is wanting, can restrain the wild surges of human passion, or the excesses of habitual and national sin. The sympathy of man with man is shown in nothing more strongly, than in the moral sentiments.

man win man is snown in nothing more strongly, that in the moral sentiments.

Look at the immense influence exercised over the public mind in Eagland, by the appearance of Kossuth, the victim of Austrian tyranny and oppression; it was not the power of his argument, the splendour of his eloquence, but it was the simple statement of his startling history—the unstudied tale of his country's wrong and wretchedness, that touched the chord of a nation's sympathy, and stirred to its depths the sensibilities of the entire people.

Look again at the great victory won over the abominable traffic in African Slaves, obtained by good men in Great Britain 30 years ago. The men who carried on that movement would have been weak indeed without this mighty ally. Yes, weak as to numerical strength; but strong in right principle, they directed their efforts to awaken the moral sense of the community, to the end, that it might pronounce a sentence of condemnation against the system, not as an inexpedient or defective political institution, but as a great public wrong.

an inexpenses of desective positions institution, but as a given people its wrong.

And in the cause of Temperance, look at the United States, how have those great results been worked out, so that whole States have become testotalers. Believe me, those effects have been less due to the force of argument—the convincing nature of the economical calculations, than to the spread of deep sympathy from heart to heart. This has been the great source of the power whose effects have been so extensive: it is the power of one conscience acting strongly, but kindly, and expressing its action to awaken another, until the moral sensibilities of a whole community vilvate in unison, and prunounce one mighty sentence of condemnation against the master sin of intemperance.

We have then to awaken, to cultivate, and concentrate this master sin at antemperance.

We have then to awaken, to cultivate, and concentrate this moral sense of the comunity. This is the great work to which we are called, and by which we are to undermine this great public

We have than to awaken, to cultivate, and concentrate this moral sense of the commity. This is the great work to which we are called, and by which we are to undermine this great public size.

In doing this, we must be very careful to avoid all which can interfere with this work. If, through the excess of our zeal, we use statements at viriance with the exact truth,—if we are dictatorial, violent or overbearing, we defeat our own aim. Let us then be very careful to avoid this error, and while it is impossible purhaps, to escape the hostility of some classes of our fellow men, let us be sure, at least, we do not deserve it by our conduct.

I know my friends, it is hard to like the man that tells us of our faults, and it is also difficult to avoid this time whose principles are a perpetual represent to us. Such is our nature, and as like begets like, we are apt, despite the blessed teaching of our common Christianity (embodied in our Rates), to meet hate with hate and some with score. By Brethren, these things should not be, and as our Order has adopted principles, that are to be found only in the Gospel, let us in kindly patience continue to draw our strength, and snamer of acting from the same blessed source.

I have said, and again repeat, that I have no fears respecting the ultimate triumph of this principle. The Truth most provail. I know many see obstacles like lious in the path, but let us advance without fear, they are chained by a power that is ever ready to faely on the feeble in the path of duty. We want to bring in upon the present corrupt state of society, the light of this truth, and we shall prevail, but not without opposition; for just as mon shrink from letting the morning Sun shine upon a scene of nightly dissipation, and find its pure golden rays unpleasing to eyes accustomed to the glare of artificial light, so the truth of tectutalism in its simple beauty seems strange, and uncongenial, when its beam first pierces through the atmosphere of wordliness and self-indulgance, by which we are surrou cape the drunkard's cap, and the drunkard's degradation. Surely to live only for self-gratification, and to drown thought and reflection in the bowl of wine and grog, is far below the purpose of our being. Be persuaded, there are objects more worthy of an immortal soul than wine or wassail. Lift up your hearts to nobler subjects. Are you coldiers and servants to man here? Lift up your hearts in faith to Him, who will make you His servants throughout Eternity.

tal soul than wine or wassail. Lift up your hearts to nobbler subjects. Are you soldiers and servants to man here? Lift up your hearts in faith to Him, who will make you His servants throughout Eternity.

I have found a degree of safety, happiness and economy in this pledged teetotalism, that makes me anxious that others should share in its advantages. Do you desire freedom and independence? Seek you for happiness? Although not found in the drankard's cup, or in the grog-shop, it may found here. Let a soldier or a sailor be but sober and industrious, and he cannot fail to get on, and as a means to that end, I poi it to this Order, as offering many aidvantages, and affording the great help of united co-opposition. If heretofore sober, we want you to be initiated into this principle, and if once a drunkard, we invite you to accept this refuge, and to take one pledge, for fouch not, taste not, handle not, is the only effectual cure.

I stand here also as a father, and can I see so many Parents and Children about me, without seeking to interest you all in this cause. How is domestic happiness marred by the inreads of intemperance? How are the noble made vile? Every one knows the evil, and there are many wilk myself, who secretly deplore its effects among relations and friends; but there are many who, whilst they deplore and admit the evil, doggedly refuse to give up their old habits; and whilst they can shew us no better path to walk in, still refuse to become teetotalers. I think they strangely err, and I am not without hope that before long they may think differently. Where they stand, we have stood. Let them see in us, that which I have always found to be more powerful than the strongest argument—let them see in us, consistent examples of teetotal principles.

Remember and mark this melancholy fact, that in England and in other countries, though precept—that no person is recognised as a leader in the cause, or allowed to speak for themselves, and carry conviction. In this, every one of us may do something; the h feel far higher sentiments of joy and thankfulness, when I see all the youth enlisted on our side, so that when we are laid low in the grave, others will rise up to take our places and carry on this cause.

You Fathers, let me urge you to seek this good thing for your children. You toil to add to their wealth, to make yourselves considerable and distinguished amongst men, that they may share in your increased consequence, and you would shadder to see them drunkards, be wise then and put away from them the temptation to drink, and the example of your own drinking habits.

I have also a word for the young. The present race of drunkards is fast passing away; all our efforts will save but few; the iron of their evil habit has entered the soul; they are often given over to a possession we cannot conquer; as Christians we pray for them and do what we can, but the God of this world hath blinded their eyes. We see come few reclaimed and standing with us, and we are thankful to the Almighty for this blessings upon our feeble efforts, but the greater part, where are they, or where will they be in a few years? We shudder for the mortality amongst drunkards is dreadful, and destroys more victims than the plague. But of the young we have hopes: disappoint us not, my young friends—boys and girls, be teetotalers; drinking has been the curse of our forefathers—the base of our laind's presperity. Let it be so no longer. Let us see the dawn of a brighter day. We must again marshal our Cadets of Temperance, and let us shew the world, that our movement is one, not of momentary excitement, but one of sober principle. We expect much from our Sunday Scholars, they have heard too much of the self-sacrifice and self-abandonment of the Saviour, not to feel some desire to should live as becomet one, who, like ourselves, what has not yet become a habit, and practice total abstinence from intexicating drinks.

And now, in conclusion, let me say emphatically, that our great object is to raise our fellow—man from the degradation and tyranny

FOR HASSARD'S GASSTER.

Mn. Editor;

Six—I perceive that the state of our Island schools is at present occupying a share of the public attention, and that the question of Free Education has been introduced as a topic into the columns of some of the Island periodicals, and is now open for general discussion. No subject more important could be pressed upon the public mind. Let narrow-minded men—whose contracted views are the result of imperfect judgment—say what they may, education is the ground-work of morality—the best basis for the social system—and the only foundation on which the fair superstructure of an enlightened policy can securely rest. I need not here stay to enquire, whether or not the system of education which now obtains in this Island is susceptible of improvement? Every person of common discernment must admit the fact in the affirmative; and this truth rightly recognized, is sufficient to awaken another inquiry: whether the old plodding system is to be continued, or give way to a more culightened science? I trust, Sir, that this question will be duly canvassed, and patiently investigated. It is a proposition in the discussion of which, every reasoning man ought to take a part, and which, casting party politics entirely in the shade, ought to become the grand rallying point, around which all parties may meet on a other local matters, or ascrificing one article of their particular politics of fish.

It may, perhaps, be useful here, to take a passing glance at the deßets, dulness and drudgery. Nothing is more obvious to common experience, that in order to obtain a good article a corresponding price is the necessary sipilation. This axiom holds good throughought all the ramifications of society. The merchant and mechanic alike admit the justice of the principle, and press its importance on the attention of their customers. But strange as it may seem, this fact has, with respect to most of our District Schools, been to a great extent overlooked. Cheap school houses, cheap furniture, cheap books, cheap teachers, and, indeed, cheaps everything which rolated to a majority of the schools, has been the motto by which our old system was regulated. No adequate prevision was made either for the salaries of competent teachers or for furnishing the necessary accommodations for convenience and comfort in the schools, and yet a full amount of benefit has been unwisely expected from them. The truth is, Mr. Editor, we have been "expecting to reap where we sowed not," and there is little room, on the whole, to wonder that to little has been gathered.

I am aware, Siv, that the inefficiency of many of our District Schools is stributed to the incompetence of the Teachers. They are to make the season of the SPEECH. Mr. President and Honorable Gentlemen of the Legislativ

Ar. Speaker and Gentlemen of the House of Assembly;

I have great satisfaction in again meeting the Legislature for the Despatch of Business, at a season of the year, which I trust, will be more convenient for you than the one I was necessarily obliged to summon you at the opening of the last Session. After its prerogation I visited mostly all the different locatities in this Island, It is almost needless for me, I hope, to express the grateful some I entertained of the kindness I every where met with; but I wish to embrace this opportunity of acknowledging that kindness, and to say, it was greatly enhanced to the Queen's Representative, by the expressions of loyalty and attachment to Her Majesty's Person and Throne, which all classes of Her subjects in this Colony seemed anxious to impress upon me. During my visit in the country, I ascertained with regret, that there is a lamentable want of Edseation, and wall lately, great spathy seems to have prevailed on this most important question; while in this Town, I am happy to find, many benevolent individuals taking a warm interest in the rising generation and the cause of Education. It becomes, therefore, the duty of the Legislature to put their shoulders to the wheel, and in addition the provisions they make for the Academy in Charlotteown and District Schoolmasters, to take care that he inestimable blessing of Education be extended to every corner of this Colony. The necessity for a more efficient system is a subject which has for some time occupied the anxious attention of the Government; and a measure will soon be submitted for your consideration, which I am one will meet with from you that impartial deliberation and favour, which its great importance demands.

Of the thirty-four Acts which you passed last Session, twenty-eight have been left to their operation; on the provisions of two of the remaining six, I have ascertained the views of Her Majesty's Government, to which I shall presently advart; but before doing so, I may acquaint you, that the loan of £10, Council; Mr. Speaker and Gentlemen of the House of Assembly; higher rate of Interest than 5 per cent, is now paid on any obligations which the Treasury has to discharge. In regard to the two Acts I have alluded to, I shall first notice the Civil List Bill of last Session: It seems there was an accidental emission in the Act, which required that the title of the Sovereign should continue in the land, and thereby render valid any legal proceedings that night arise in reference to Crown Lands; a similar clause, under similar circumstances, was introduced into the Nova Scotia Act, and I am confident you will take an early opportunity to remedy the omision, in order that the Bill may receive the Royal assent.

The other Act is the One-ninth Bill. This Act has not been confirmed, Her Majesty's Government requiring clearer proof of its necessity. My belief of its equity and justice was fortilisd by both branches of the Legislature, although several Honorable Gentlemen, Members of the Legislature, considered that unless some case arose to call for Legislative interference, it was unnecessary: such cases have arisen, and more may follow; and I cannot help thinking, that all inconvenience and difficulty, arising from uncertainty, might have been obviated, had the Legislature, on passing so important a Bill as one to regulate the Currency, also defined by Statute, the just and equitable provisions, so necessary on such an occasion, for all the existing contracts and obligations according to the established practice, custom and usage of the Colony; in other words, that "parties should in future pay and receive at the rate at which they had before paid and received," without subjecting their contracts and obligations to the interpretation of the Courts of Law. I shall be my duty to endeavour to afford proof to Ber Majesty's Government, of the necessity for legislation on the principle which I have just enunciated, and which induced me to give my assent to the Bill in question.

Mr. Speaker, and Gentlemen of the House of Assembly;

Mr. Speaker, and Gentlemen of the House of Assembly;
The state of the Revenue, notwithstanding that you made wise reductions of duties last Session on some articles of general consumption, you will, I think, have reason to be satisfied with. The amount for the year would have been larger, had it not been for the unusually early winter, which has frozen up and prevented several vessels from reaching the Island, laden with cargoes subject to revenue duties.

The Estimates will soon be laid before you, and I doubt not, you will readily vote the necessary Supplies for the Public Service. By a wholesome control over the expenditure, and keeping it always within the amount of the revenue, you will soon increase the credit of the Colony, enable its Government to carry on a better system of Finance than has hitherto prevailed, which cannot but prove to be acceptable and advantageous to be community at large.

Afr. Speaker and Gentlemen of the House of Assembly:

A Bill for the Recovery of Small Debts vail be submitted for your consideration.

I shall not further trespass on your time at present than by directing your attention to a question which has become of great importance to Prince Edward Island. In 1849, its Legislature passed an Act for reciprocal Free Trade with the United States, in certain enumerated articles. That Act has remained a dead letter, and we have no right to complain of the policy which may prompt the United States' Government to adopt such legislation as they may think most conductive the interests of the citizens of that great Republic, with whom, I trust, we shall always continue on terms of amity and friendship. But while concessions are sought for, advantageous to the United States, we have a right to expect, before they are granted, to be met in a corresponding spirit of reciprocal advantages. And I am induced to express that opinion, because I observe, during the same Session of 1845, the Legislature of this Colony agreed to a joint Address to Her Majesty, apparently unconditionally praying for the abrogation of the Treaty of 1818, which prohibits others than British Subjects from prosecuting the Fisheries at less distance from the Shore than three miles, the construction put upon that Treaty being, that the distance shall be computed from the head lands. The address to which I have alluded was very graciously received by Her Majesty, and was to meet from lifer Government with that carnest consideration, which so important a subject demanded. But no further correspondence seems to have taken place with my Predecessor. The importance of the Fisherry, and the magnitude of the United States fleet of Fishermen may be estimated when I inform you, that upwards of two hundred sail were at one time in one of our harbours in the autumn, and no fewer than seventy-two of their vessels were cast ashore, or were more or less damaged on the Shores of this Island.

I have, therefore, considered it to b

Several gentlemen addressed the Children, and much interesting information was given concerning the present labors and future prospects of the Parent Seciety, and we trust that the kind and liberal way in which the Juvenile Collectors have been received by the elder members of the Church, will encourage them to continue steadfast in this good work so anspiciously began.

On Sunday morning, a little before sunrise, a fire was discovered on the premises of the Hon. George Coles, in Kent Street, bursting from a building used as an Oat Kiln; the position of the building was such that had a strong wind been blowing from the North or Northwest, the whole of the extensive establishment must have been consumed—providentially there was a dead calm, and by the aid of the Engine together with a large Reservoir of water on the premises, the fire was confined to the building in which it originated; a and small stable adjoining the Kiln which was also burnt, together with a va'uable Race-Horse and two Durham Calves.

Supreme Court.— The last four days of the Term were occupied exclusively with the trial of an ejectment between The Trustees of the Earl of Selkirk and one Lauchlan Martin. The issue of the cause being the right of an Occupant to land gained from the Proprietor by possession without colour of title—a question upon which, a judicial decision has never been expressly given in this Colony—considerable interest was excited amongst the partizans of the defendant, as well as several other settlers similarly situated.

After proof of the Lesson of the Plaintiff's documentary title to the fee simple of the land—which was indeed to appear very clear—the defendant set up an adv rese presession in himself as to part, and in Mr. Alexander McLean, formerly a member of the Assembly for the district of Belfast, as to the renainder of the Locus in quo. Mr. McLean claimed possession in right of one Nicholson, to whom it was alleged Earl Selkirk's agent had about some years ago agreed to sell the land. Nomerous witnessee were examined on the question of possession, some of them asserting the possession, to have always continued in the Plaintiff his agents and Tennat; while others asserted it to have been during the same time in Nicolson and subsequently McLean. The learned Judge in expounding the law to the Jury directed them that the defendant could only hold so many acres of the Locus in quo as it clearly appeared in evidence he had callivated or held under fence for twenty versit sate past. Jury directed them that the defendant could only hold so many acres of the Locus in quo as it clearly appeared in evidence he had cultivated or held under fence for twenty years last past; and with respect to the residue of the locus in quo, the Plaintiff could not recover, if they were satisfied upon the whole evidence that he had been disposessed by Nichotson and McLean. The effect of adverse possession set up in defence by a person let in as a purchaser being matter of law, the learned Judge witheld it from the Jury leaving the fact of possession alone for their consideration. The question of law, he stated was a highly important one, and must be determined, he said, at a future stage of the case if a verdict was given in favour of the defendant. The Jury found their verdict for the defendant. We understand the question of law is to be argued upon a motion for a new trial to be made in Easter Term next.

MELANCHOLY ACCIDENT.—On Saturday, the 10th instant, a melancholy occurrence took place at the house of Mr. Alex Campbell, Pier Jacques. Lot 8. It appears Mr & Mrs. Campbell were absent from home for a very short time, and during their absence, three little girls of the respective ages of 7, 5 and 3 years, were left alone, who began to amuse themselves by running round in a circle until they became giddy, when they fell on the floor, near the fire, and the fire communicating with their clothes, immediately enveloped them all in flomes. When the mather returned home, the child five years of age was dead, the elder survived but two hours afterwards—sufficently long to sequaint her afflicted mother of the way in which the accident occurred. The youngest we understand lingered for a few days, when death terminated her sofferings.

LATEST NEWS FROM CALIFORNIA.

LATEST NEWS FROM CALIFORNIA.

Extracts from two letters from individuals who left Charlotte-town in the Brig Fanny, in the fall of 1849.

One of them writes, the natural resources of the soil is all a hum ug. For one acre of land fit for cultivation there are a thousand totally unfit; nor can it be cultivated in any shape, there being no soil to support vegetable life, especially in the mining district. The hills have the appearance of the subsoil of P. E. Island, six feet below the surface. I have been up the San Joaquin, which has a beautiful appearance. The trees are at regular distances, a p-roon would think they had been planted—about forty yards apart; but this is all flooded in the winter season. I have been up to San Jose, which is thought to be the pretitest place in all California; it is a dead level plain of some considerable extent between the mountains, and has a fine appearance, but is wanting in trees to make it beautiful. The grass when I was there, was about eight inches high; the land is rich, but must be watered in summer to raise a crop. Wages are coming down in the city, carpenters, $6 to $8 per day, labourers, from $4 to $6, or $50 to $60 per month, and found; but employment is hard to be got. This madness for a man to think he will realize in one year as much as will pay his passage here and home again, and have a little overplus; he will be miserably disappointed. I have no heaitation in saying, that a steady man, if he can content himself to remain here for a number of years, will make as good or a better living than in Prince Edward Island."

Another of them aays: "I am longing to get home once more, where I can enjoy good society. I must say, I feel a great desire to set my foot on the shore of P. E. Island; I can set the whole I shall got to the mines or not. This winter apparently will be much the same as the last; there has been no rain as yet to do any good to the mines, and to take the mining districts from North to South, the miners are averaging not more than three dollars a sa tes from two letters from individuals who left Charlotte-town in the Brig Fanny, in the fall of 1849.

Critic.

Here we have sure and practical rules laid down for adoption, which if followed accurately, wil tend to the comfort, if not to the bogevity of life. As a manual for general use, it is so prepared, as to avoid every thing that is offensive, whilst treating upon topics requisite/to be concidered."—Bell'a Weekly Messenger.

"The design of this cosmy is extremely landable, it being intended to promote a most useful and important study—the study of diet and marals which is at present too much neglected. There are, scattered through the work, several useful and important observations."—Weekly Times.

"A little work which appears to us to possess much nevit, and to be suited to the capacities of all who can read. On such a subject it is often difficult to avoid the use of Language which is offensive to delicate ears; but is the volume before us, the author has treated in the most familiar way, and yet without ever being led into the commission of an anguarded expression."—Blining Journal.

"A book writtee in the spirit of the sinceteouth century by a mins of the world, with a keen sys to all the "comforts and conveniences o this life," and on his guard against its material and discomforting issues. We have rules for eating, drinking, and sleeping; but it strikes us that a man must have at least £500 a syear, before he can practice them, for which class, we believe, the author intended his labors."—Tablet.

"The book absunts with admirable maxims for the precervation of health, as dependent upon the choice of food, abstinence from excess of all kinds, the controut of the passions, air, exercise, and other matters which form the usual staple of sanitary admonition."—Engrant.

LOVE IN HIS YACHT.

LOVE IN HIS YA

As sailing down life's sunny streams,
Young love was gaily sitting,
In pleasure's gondole of dreams,
And Joy was at the holm.
Mis coleans were the rainbow hues,
But far more flitting;
Ills canvass was supplied him
By the spider's film;
Ills raking masts, his bow and shaft—
The pennant was his hand united he cordage was of true-love knots;
The prow his wing obeys;
is sails were filled with victims' sighs,
Which wafted him along the tide;
thow he laughed to find them all Blow different ways.

For some into the wished-for port
Of Hymen fain would pilot him:
While those who 'd long been anchored there
Would once more tempt the sea;
Frudes, long who accorned his power and frowne
Most fondly now would smile at him,
And proud hearts once so boasted free
His slaves would be;
Some lips which long had lost all charm,
For aught but scandal's fluency,
Sent him a retuining kiss!

"Bat Love refused the fee.
Yet if fly smile, my own loved one,
By chance had caught the truant's eye,
He'd owned his cynesure was there,
And steered by thee.

THE TEMPTER.

When man was first in Paradise, And angels to him came, The tempter with his hollow words Brought blight upon his name; But came no more in serpent guise, Lest men should know his aim;—

The fruit that grew in Paradise, On that mysterious tree,
Was not for buman hands to take,
Nor fendish eyes to see;—
"Twas then the fruit—but now the cup—
Whose praise be doth proclaim;
Ah me! the Tempter changeth.—
The temptation is the same!

He comes, an angel bright,
And with him brings the cup;
And smiles to stand at the right hand
Of those so cup it up!
Bright visions dance before the eyes,—
The pleasure hides the shaue;—
Ah me! the Tempter changeth,—
The temptation is the same!

He goes, as goes a fiend of hate,
Whene'er his work is done,
And leaves behind the saddest sight
That's seen beneath the san:—
The wreck of many a noble heart—
Offeeling—genius—fame;—
Beware! the Tempter changeth,—
The temptation is the same.

Darieties.

BROKING IN 1851.—Among the articles of traffic which were most in demand during the Exhibition season, eigars have taken the lead. It would be dangerous to say how many millions have been asold. The run on real Havanas was so great, that they were called for much faster than they could be made. The smoking manis has now become a universal epidemic. Of all intolerable street suisances this is the greatest, and ought to be resisted by every true-born Briton who has a spark of patriotism or independence left. The very atmosphere is redolent of the odious weed. If you meet thirty men, they have, on the average, twenty eigars or pipes among them. From the peer and the heavy dragon, down to the batcher's boy, and the omnibus cad, there is scarcely an exception. A leading medical practitioner, at Brighton, has lately given a list of sixteen cases of paralysis, produced by smoking, which came under his own knowledge within the last six months. Then, the expense is ruinous. Many young men smoke eighteen eigars per dien, besides what they give to their friends. Not long ago, I heard an inveterate smoker, whose entire income could scarcely have amounted to three hundred a-year, declare, that his eigars alone cost him one hundred and fifty. He drew the long bow, of course; but, if fifty was the truth, it was bad enough. A curious phase in the disease is the taste for short, dirty pipes, black with age, use and ambition, which has crept in lately. Every third dandy you meet has one of these in his cheek. The entity and the eigar hold divided reign. Several speculators, during the last year, traversed freland, beying up sackloads of these indigenous productions, which they sold again in London at an sonormous premium. The peculiar aroma, so much coveted, is only to be met with in specimens of the dudeen, which have passed through many mouths in successive generations, and have become family relies. Even in Boston, in the United States, in the land where, according to some naturalists, chidren are born with lighted eigans in Religion of the Dog.—The following original anecdote of Burns, is in a work, entitled "The Philosophy of the Seasans," by Rev. Henry Danean:

"I well remember with what delight I listened to an interesting conversation which, while yet a schoolboy, I enjoyed an opportunity of hearing in my father's manes, between the poet Burns and another poet, my near relation, the amiable Blacklock. The subject was the fidelity of the dog. Burns took up the question with all the arder and hindly feeling with which the conversation of that extraordinary man was so remarkably imbued. It was a subject well suited to call forth his powers; and when handled by such a man, not less suited to interest the youthful fancy. The anecdotes by which it was illustrated have long escaped my memory; but there was one sentiment expressed by Burns with his characteristic enthusiasm which, as it threw a new light into my mind,I shall sever forget. "Man," said he, "is the God of the dog. He knows no other; he can understand no ether; and see how he worships him. With what reverence he crouches at his feet; with what towe he fawns upon him, with what dependence he looks up to him, and with what dependence he looks up to him, and with what dependence he looks up to him, and with what dependence he looks up to him, and with what dependence he looks up to him, and with what dependence he looks up to him, and with what thereful alacrity he obeys him. His whole soul is wrapped up in his God; and the powers and faculties of his nature are devoted to his service; and these powers and faculties are exalted by the intercourse, It ought just to be so with the Christian; but the dogs pat Christians to shame."

HEALTH WHERE 'TIS SOUGHT! HOLLOWAY'S PILLS

CURE OF A DISORDERED LIVER AND STOMACH, WHEN IN A MOST HOPELESS STATE.

Extract of a Letter from Mr. Matthew Harvey, of Chapel Hall-Airdrie, Scotland, dated the 18th January, 1850.

To Professor Holloway:
Sin., "Your valuable Fills have been the means, with God's blessing of restoring me to a state of perfect bealth, and at a time when I thought I was on the brisk of the grave. I had consulted several eminent Doctors, who, after doing what they considered my case as hapeless. I ought to say that I had been suffering from a Liver and Stomach complaint of long standing, which during the last two years got so much worse, that every one considered my condition as hopeless. I as a last resource got a Box of your Pills, which soon gave relief, and by persevering in their use for some weeks, together with rubbing night and morning your Ointment over my chest and atomach and right side, I have by their means alone got completely cured, and to the actonishment of myself and every body who knows me.

CURE OF A CASE OF WEAKNESS AND DEBILITY OF FOUR YEARS' STANDING.

Extract of a Letter from Mr. William Smith, of No. 5, Little Thomas Street, Gibson Street, Lambeth, dated December 12, 1849.

To Professor Holloway.

Sir,—I beg to inform you that for nearly 5 years I hardly knew what it was to have a day's health, suffering from extreme weakness and debility, with constant nervous headness, giddiness and sickness of the stomach, together with a great depression of spirits. I used to think that nothing could benefit me, as I had been to many medical men, notine of whom, after doing all that was in their power, informed me that they considered that I had some spinal complaint beyond the reach of care, together with a very disordered state of the stomach and hive, unking my case so complicated that nothing could be done for me. One day being unresulty ill mod in a dejected state, I saw your Fills intertified and resolved to give them a trial, more perhaps from cursoity than with a hope of being crued, however I soon found myself better by taking them—and so I went on persevering in their use for six months, when, I am happy to say they effected a perfect cure.

CURE OF ASTHMA OF TWENTY YEARS' STANDING.

Extract of a Letter from Mr. J. K. Heydon, TS King Street, Sydney, dated 10th November, 1849.

To Professor Hollowar.

Sta,—I have the pleasure to inform you that many extraordinary cures of Asthma have been effected here by means of your Fills. One is that of a lady residing near the "Razorlanch," who after having for Twenty years been unable to make the slightest exerction, suffering very fearfully from shortness of liveath coughing and a visiting, but is now. (to use her own expression) able to run up to the top of that mountain. Another case is that of Mr. Ca'on, Taitor. Hutchinson's buildings, Clarence-caretet, who was so dreatfully had that he was confined entirely to his bed-room or six months, prior to his commencing with your Fills, and attended regularly by his medical man, who pro
