CHAPTER XI.
LOVE'S SUBTLE SPELL.
"Jeffrey!" she murmured. "Ah, yes!"
"Yes," said Lord Neville. Now, I value his good-will quite as much as I do my uncle's, and I don't feel at all sure that I shall get it. You see, with all deference to you, sweetheart—
Sweetheart! She whispered the word to herself and glowed over it.
"I'm not, in all points, the very best kind of young man for a husband, and your guardian is very likely to remark it. What if he should refuse his consent?"
Her face grew faintly troubled.
Jeffrey refused? she said, almost to herself. "No—no. Not if—"
"Not if you wished for it very much?" he said, divining her meaning.
"I see! And I'm not surprised. I can't imagine any man so-to-shoulder enough to refuse you anything, even such an unwise thing as this! Look here, Doris, I'll go back home with you and see him."
"The trouble on her face grew more marked."
"I hate suspense and delay, and—well, I want to feel sure, quite sure, that you are my very own. You don't mind my going home with you and telling him straight out do you?"
She was silent a moment; then she looked at him hesitatingly.
"No, do not. I— She stopped. "I think I would rather see him first. I— I could tell him. Ah! do you not see how suddenly it would come upon him? How unprepared—"
He nodded.
"You haven't told him anything about me?"
The colour rose to her face.
"No," she said, and her eyes were downcast. "No, I have not told him; he would be so surprised and— I will see him first and tell him."
"All right," he said. "Then, to-morrow—"
"Yes, to-morrow," she said, with a little sigh of relief. "I wish I could tell you all he has been to me, how tender and loving—father, mother, brother! Ah! I have had no one else—" but him in the world, and he has devoted all his life to me!"

"I will never forget that," said Lord Neville, gravely, "and I will try and thank him to-morrow. Yes, I can understand how hard it will seem to him to have to lose you. But, Doris, he need not do that. He has stood in a father's place to you. I shall not oust him from it, or separate you from him. There is room in that big heart of yours for both of us, isn't there?"
She turned to him as if moved by an irresistible impulse, and held out her hands, and her eyes were full of tears.
"If I had not loved you until this moment, I should now," she said, in a low voice.
Of course he captured the little, quivering hands, and they sat in silence for a minute or two. Then suddenly she started.
"The time!" she exclaimed. "I had forgotten! There is a rehearsal!" and she sprang to her feet. "No, no, pressing her fingers on his shoulder. "You must not move away—not an inch of the way. I—I want to be alone to think—to think!"
She stopped, with a little, dazed air and smiled down at him.
"Oh, if you are tired of me—" he said, with a loving mockery. "To-morrow, Doris, in the morning?"
"Yes, to-morrow. Ah! what a long time!" she whimpered, almost inaudibly. "Let me think. If I cannot come—there may be a rehearsal—"
He looked disappointed—man-like.
"I shall be here," he said, "and I'll wait all day if you like."
She laughed softly, her eyes dwelling upon him lovingly.
"Without your lunch or your dinner? That would be too much. No, if you come and I am not here, leave some message for me," she looked round. "Write me a word, and put it under this big stone by the tree there."
"All right," he said. "But you will come, if not in the morning, in the afternoon—some time! Remember, I want to see your guardian to-morrow!"
"Yes," she said. "But do you remember, Lord Neville—that I belong to the public?"
"Indeed, Miss Marlowe?" he said, retorting the formality upon her. "I was under the impression that you belonged to me."
"Ah, yes," she murmured, with sweet surrender, as he held her in his arms. "We've forgotten one part of the ceremony," he said. "People, when they are engaged, give each other a ring. I wasn't conceited enough to think you'd listen to me, or I would have brought one."
"Have mine," she said. Then, suddenly, she disengaged her hand and held it up, and swiftly drew from her finger a quaint old silver ring. "See?" she said, the colour stealing into her face. "Will you have that?"
"Will I?" he said, taking it, hand and all.
"What a small hand you have," she said, laughing softly. "It is too large for your little finger. You had better give it back to me."
"It will be a bad day for me when I do," he said, grimly, "for I shall be limp and cold."
"Or faithless," she said, with a smile.
Then, before he could retort, she touched his lips with hers, murmured his name, and was gone.
He watched her until the slight, girlish figure had vanished, then went slowly to his horse, mounted, and rode slowly away.
A minute or so afterwards a lady and gentleman came out from among the trees. The gentleman was Spencer Churchill, the lady—Lady Grace.

He wore his usual bland, benevolent smile, intensified, if anything, as he looked after the disappearing horseman; but Lady Grace was white almost to pallor, and stood, biting her under-lip and breathing heavily.
"What a charming pastoral!" he said, with his smooth, oily laugh. "Adam and Eve or Edwin and Angelina in Goldsmith's poem—you know it dear Lady Grace?—were never more poetical or touching. Really, one cannot help feeling grateful to the happy chance which enabled me to be a witness of so moving and charming a scene."
"Chance!" she said, and her voice sounded thick and forced. "You know that they would be here when you asked me? And not having the inestimable privilege of knowing the lady—"
"She is an actress—the girl you saw last night!" she murmured, between her teeth. "An actress—painted—"
Was she painted? Yes, I dare say I am, alas! rather near-sighted," he said, smiling as he recalled the youthful bloom of Doris's sweet face. "Ah! yes, I daresay! But perhaps our dear Cecil is near-sighted, too. At any rate, he seems very—ah—very far gone, does he not?"
"He is mad!" she almost hissed.
"You think, then, that he—ah—means this quite seriously? You know so much more of the world than I, dear Lady—you think he would marry this interesting young creature?"
A light of hateful hope—such a light as shamed her womanhood—flashed for a moment in Lady Grace's eyes; then, as it died out, she said, moodily, scornfully.
"Oh, yes, he is mad enough for that! Oh, yes, he would—even marry her!"
"In-deed! Really? How charming! So romantic!" pursued Spencer Churchill. "The future Marchioness of Stoyle an actress, a provincial actress! Clever! oh, certainly; and beautiful!—ahem!—well, with her paint and powder, of course; but provincial, quite! And the future marchioness! Let me see, when was the marquise created?"
His smooth, suave speech almost frenzied her.
"Why do you exasperate me?" she exclaimed, between her teeth, and turning upon him. "Why have you brought me here? To laugh at me, to—" mock me with this—this scandalous scene? You know he will marry her, unless—"

"Unless?" he said, softly. "Unless an accident happens. And accidents do happen—alas!—so often in this unsatisfactory, disappointed world."
She watched his face eagerly, with a faint blimmer of hope on her face, which was still pale and eloquent of the fierce jealousy which racked and tore her.
"What do you mean?" she demanded, half-angry, half-pleadingly.
He smiled unctuously.
"Twist the cup and the lip." The old, old adage, dear Lady Grace. Those young people, in the full flush of their mutual passion—
She bit her lip till two red spots showed where the white, even teeth had pressed.
"Doubtless think that their path to happiness is quite plain and smooth. Alas! I fear they will find that the road is stony and difficult. It is a pity, a thousand pities! It is so sweet to see two hearts that beat as one—"
"Cease!" she said, as if she could endure his soft, mocking voice no longer. "What will you do? What can you do? He is mad and—headstrong. How can you prevent—"
She stopped suddenly and, stooping, picked up something from the grass.
"Ah!" he said. "Treasure-trove! What is it? A broken sixpence? No! A ring—the ring!"
She held it almost at arm's-length, as if it were some noxious reptile, then with a gesture of scorn and hate, she raised her hand as if to throw the ring from her; but instantly he seized her arm and his soft, fat hand slid down until it had reached and secured the ring.
"Dear me, dear me!" he murmured, as he held it up. "How sorry he will be! How— He stopped suddenly, ring; then, as he became aware of and his eyes seemed riveted to the Lady Grace's fixed gaze, the benevolent returned to his face. "Actually lost it a few minutes after she had given it to him! Now, some superstitious persons would call that a bad omen. Are you superstitious, dear Lady?"
"Give it to me. Let me throw it—"
She said, with malignant intensity.
He held it out of her reach, surveying her with smiling scrutiny.
"No, really, you must not. Poor Cecil—"
He stopped suddenly, and the expression of his face changed. His quick ears had caught the sound of a horse's hoofs.
Touching her arms, he signed to her to follow him, and slid back behind the trees. She followed him, and, looking over her shoulder, saw Lord Cecil galloping towards them.
He cleared the hedge, and, dropping from the horse, walked quickly to the spot where they had stood, and commenced to search in the grass with anxious eagerness. He went down on his knee and examined every inch of the spot where Doris and he had sat, groped along the bank where they had stood, and hurried every likely spot.
They could see his anxious face, hear his half-muttered ejaculations of disappointment, and Spencer Churchill, with the ring in his hand, smiled sweetly.

"I ADVISE EVERY SICK WOMAN
To Try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."
"I advise every suffering woman to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for it has done me so much good. I had female weakness, inflammation, pains in my sides and painful periods. I suffered for six years and tried many remedies without benefit. The doctor said I must have an operation. I read about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in the newspapers, and since taking it I am cured and have a nice baby four months old. I feel like a new woman, and have recommended your medicine to my friends. I would be glad to have everybody know what your medicine did for me, and if any write to me I will answer all letters."
Mrs. MARY CALIGURE, 317 South Main St., Herkimer, N.Y.
Every woman at some period or other in her life may suffer from just such disturbances as Mrs. Caligure, and if there is no interested friend to advise, let this be a reminder that this famous root and herb remedy has been overcoming these ailments of women for more than 40 years. London's Victory Parade.

A Most Brilliant Spectacle---Prince Praises Australians --- Daily Mail Pays 5000 Pounds---German Prisoners Heroic Conduct.

TRIUMPHAL VICTORY MARCH.

LONDON, July 19. Land, sea and air forces of the British Empire and her Allies marched today in the triumphal Victory parade to mark the return of peace. Several million persons watched the gorgeous spectacle, their enthusiasm growing as each new excitement stirred their emotions. When the British contingent came in sight the applause became a great roar. General Pershing, and the Americans and the other Allied National Representatives were also given a hearty reception. The tremendous cheering that greeted each national force was virtually continuous. London had not witnessed such a celebration since the late Queen Victoria's Diamond Jubilee in 1897. Buckingham Palace was decorated on its exterior for the first time in its history. Huge flags of the Allies floated from the upper windows and a wide streamer of purple and gold stretched across the facade. The Royal Pavilion erected close to the beautiful Victoria Monument added color to the striking scene. King George from his seat on the scarlet dais had a clear view through a colonnade of ornate white pylons, reaching for more than a half mile to the Admiralty. The troops marched past the viewing stand to the music of dozens of military bands. The Americans led the procession. It was twelve-thirty o'clock when they came marching with springy step and smart precision that would have gladdened the heart of a West Point commandant. As the Americans approached the stand, Queen Mary, the aged Queen Mother, Alexandra, and Princess Mary, rose. The King dressed in the uniform of a Field Marshal, took the salute. As soon as the last troops passed the stand, the great crowd made a rush for the pavilion, where there was a demonstration for the King and Queen while the massed Guards bands played "God Save the King." Once the parade was over the crowds gathered in the city ready to begin the street revels. Piccadilly Circus, Leicester Square and the Strand soon were filled with merry-makers who braved the showers to start the dancing. Groups of girls costumed in the national colours and young men in carnival attire led in the fun. The King and Queen entertaining the officers of the Allied contingents at luncheon at Buckingham Palace. The guests included also Premier Lloyd George, Winston Spencer Churchill, Secy. of War, ex-Premier Asquith, Field Marshal Haig and Admiral Beatty. The King gave the toast: "I drink to the health of the troops of our gallant Allies, whose representatives and leaders I am proud to welcome here today." The most touching and emotional scenes were those around the monument erected in Whitehall, to the memory of the dead, impressive by its severe simplicity and bearing the single inscription, "The Glorious Dead." Here the cheering was stilled as successfully Pershing, Haig and the other great war leaders threw in, faced the cenotaph and saluted. The great feature of the night celebrations were the singing and the fire works in Hyde Park. A trained choir of ten thousand sang the National Anthems of the Allies the Hallelujah Chorus and other songs. No less than 100,000 voices joined in the singing while the massed bands accompanied with enormous effect. Rain fell throughout the night, but did not interfere with the programme. There were illuminations, fireworks and searchlights all around London, and the whole population of the city seemed to have poured into the parks and streets. The singing and dancing was kept up till after midnight.

V. C. ACCUSED OF MURDER.

OTTAWA, July 20. Filip Konowal, a member of the Victoria Cross, who led the Ottawa peace parade Saturday night, is a prisoner in the Hull jail to-night held on a charge of murder. Konowal, who is a Russian and who saw service in France and later went to Siberia with the Canadian troops, is alleged to have killed a fellow countryman in a brawl in a road house in Hull shortly before six o'clock to-night.

TROUBLE IN GLACE BAY.

SYDNEY, July 20. One man Angus McDonald, a barber, sustained a bullet wound in the arm. Deputy Chief of Police Thomas, a crack behind the air with a bottle and patrolman Forester, blows in the face during a small sized riot in Glace Bay Saturday.

BOTH FEELING BETTER.

AMORENGEN, July 18. (By the A.P.)—The condition of former Emperor William who has been ill from ear trouble is greatly improved but he still remains in-doors. The former Empress Augusta Victoria who has been suffering from heart trouble was better to-day.

PRINCE OF WALES SPEAKS.

LONDON, July 20. Speaking at a dinner in honor of Wales referred in enthusiastic terms to the work of the Australian forces. He said he looked forward to the first opportunity he would get to visit Australia. The Prince said he realized the outstanding and important part the Australians had played in the great world struggle, now that peace was

BUILD YOUR HOUSE WITH BEAVER BOARD.

Seven Advantages of BEAVER BOARD.

1. It isn't so very expensive and is easily handled, saves labor.
2. It's not messy like lath and plaster, nor wasteful like P. & T. board.
3. It gives a neat appearance to your room and prevents draughts.
4. It eliminates the nuisance of having to paper your room every year.
5. It doesn't crack like plaster nor shrink like P. & T. board.
6. One carpenter can do as much work with it as 3 using P. & T. board.
7. Three rooms can be done with it while one is being done with lath and plaster.

signed there were difficult times ahead but he felt sure the great British spirit which had carried us triumphantly through the last five years would help solve the problems and that we should be able to maintain the British Empire as united and prosperous as it had ever been.

JUDGEMENT AGAINST DAILY MAIL.

LONDON, July 20. At a special July sitting of the court, Lord Chief Justice Reading presiding Lord Newton formerly in charge of the prisoners of war department at the Foreign Office was awarded £5,000 sterling against the Daily Mail, which accused him of sneering at the sufferings of British prisoners in Germany and being guilty of heartlessness and want of sympathy. The plaintiff's witnesses included Lord Robert Cecil, Justice Younger and the Archbishop of Canterbury.

A GALLANT ACTION.

LONDON, July 20. (Reuters' Ottawa Agency.)—A British airplane crashed ashore at a Wiltshire aerodrome where German prisoners of war were employed. The pilot was entrapped in the burning wreckage and was in imminent danger of being burned to death when a German prisoner named Bruckman went to the officer's assistance and effected his rescue at a great personal risk. It has been decided that Bruckman shall be forthwith released from captivity and granted free passage home and also to present him with a silver watch suitably inscribed in recognition of his gallant and chivalrous action.

Scott Originated Opal Myth.

Sir Walter Scott was the creator of the opal myth. In "Anne of Geierstein," one of his later novels, written in the early part of the nineteenth century, he introduced an opal which was supposed to be endowed with magic powers and which brought disaster and tragedy to all who came within its influence. The story of the master romance of his time was widely read and the superstition that all opals are unlucky was born. It traveled around the world and became firmly fixed in the popular imagination.

Candles From Trees.

The title of this article is not intended to set the enthusiastic allotment-holder searching for seeds whose usefulness has hitherto escaped his notice. As a matter of fact, there are three kinds of trees from which tallow candles can be made. One is a native of China, and is called by botanists Stillingia sebifera. The seeds in its fruit are covered by a wax-like substance used by the natives for making candles.

Fuel for Lamps.

Another tallow-tree grows in the Western Ghats of India, about 4,000 feet above sea-level. The height of the tree, which is an evergreen, is about 60ft. It is called the Vatica indica. Its seeds yield a pale yellowish fat, solid and concrete. By boiling the fruit the fat is easily procurable, and is then either made into candles or soap, or it may be burnt in lamps. A third tree from which tallow candles may be made is the African Butter-tree, or Shea-tree. Its fruit exudes a yellow, greasy juice, which is manipulated in a similar manner to those already described and with equally useful results.

Journalistic Genius.

The late Joseph Pulitzer, who purchased the New York World after it was regarded as a failure, and made a success of the paper, never forgot anything. Henry Waterson writes, in his reminiscences. "He was the offspring of a runaway match between a subaltern officer in the Austrian service and a Hungarian lady of noble birth. He got across the Atlantic somehow, and being unable to speak English, was spirited aboard a warship. He jumped into the sea, although it was winter, and swam ashore. Later he tramped to a German colony near St. Louis and worked, on a coal barge. He began sending little items to a German paper, the merit of which caused him to be accepted as a reporter. He studied English and was transferred to an American paper. At 25 he was quite a figure in newspaper work. "He had ability of various kinds and degrees, and was a genius for journalism."

The Congregational Pulpit.

On Sunday night the Rev. Dudley B. Ashford preached on "The Pathos of Ignorance." He took as his text three phrases from the story of Jesus and the woman by the well, as related in John 4. "If thou hadst known—thou wouldst have asked—He would have given." There is a deep pathos in these words. Here was a woman conscious of her need, anxious for a better life, yet all unconscious of Christ's ability to help her. Ignorance is a terrible handicap, a fearful curse. Socrates identified ignorance with evil, and virtue with knowledge. There is a saying "where ignorance is bliss, 'tis folly to be wise," and some cynic has given us an amended version, which runs, "Where ignorance is bliss, there's always some blighter to put you wise." But it isn't true. It is a false philosophy. Ignorance is a curse, and it is always better to know the facts. Knowledge, which comes of education and experience, is essential in every walk of life. Many a good man is tied down to some job in life, because his education was neglected. In the army, many of the bravest and best men were unable to fill the higher positions, merely because they had not the necessary education. And in religion too, knowledge is necessary. Without the knowledge of Christ we should probably still be a savage race, running about in skins. And Christian education is the basis of growth and stability. A critic of the Welsh Revival of 1904-5, has said that "its permanence was in inverse proportion to its enthusiasm." That was largely true, and why? Because it was largely emotionalism without an intellectual foundation. If only we had known, how different life would have been for some of us. We shouldn't have gone in for the trade we did. We shouldn't have gone in for that speculation in a wonderful mine, or a fortune-making patent. And just think of the things that we've missed, because we never knew. I know a poor fellow in New Zealand, who died in such poverty that his friends had to pay his funeral expenses; yet for some years previous a large fortune had been waiting for him. And some of us are missing the greatest of all fortunes, just because we do not know, what? "The gift of life, and who it is that saith unto thee" "God so loved the world that He gave His son" "The gift of God is eternal life." The two things are really one. To know Christ is God's precious gift, and man's greatest good fortune. And such knowledge is life eternal. "If thou hadst known thou wouldst have asked, He would have given." What a blessed assurance. He is waiting to give, if only we will ask. Let us but ask in a spirit of penitence and trust, and we shall receive pardon, peace and power.

Mount Carmel Requiem Mass.

The annual Requiem Mass at Mount Carmel Cemetery was celebrated yesterday morning by Rev. Dr. Kitchin, Pastor of St. Joseph's Parish. The congregation was the largest ever seen there and many had to remain outside, being unable to find accommodation in the church. A sermon, appropriate to the occasion, was delivered by Rev. Dr. Kitchin. The grounds presented a striking appearance, the graves being covered with floral tributes and the railings, and the whole surroundings put in excellent condition by loving hands. The collection was in excess of the previous years, amounting to $500.

Not too narrow and not too short describes the best cut skirts.

Appreciate Testimony

Editor Evening Telegram.
 Dear Sir:—By last week's train Mr. and Mrs. Frank Dove removed from this place to Springdale, where they intend to build a New Home. We very much regret to say that in losing Mr. and Mrs. Dove from our town, we have lost two in whom were centered the interest of the community and of the social life of the place.
 For many years Mr. Dove was the leader in all sports of the town, and was an active worker for the advancement and progress of the day school. Mrs. Dove, no one can gainsay, was a good neighbour, always willing to assist others, and a frequent visitor to the sick, never taking into consideration the nature of the disease. We wish to show our appreciation for their efforts when amongst us, and we deeply regret to lose people of this kind who after all are the only persons who make a place worth living in. We wish them every happiness in their New Home, and trust that prosperity will follow them.
 Thanking you for space Mr. Editor,
 Yours truly,
 SOCIABILITY.

Popular Guide Drowned.

Joe Jepp, the popular and well known guide of Bank Head, was drowned on Friday by falling into Fishell's Brook, about nine miles above tide water. The body was found at Redcliff and taken to Bank Head for interment.

Airmen Leave Country

On Saturday by the express Lieut. Col. E. W. Stedman, engineer of construction of the Handley-Page biplane at Handley-Page-on-the-Sea, Harbor Grace, left for Parrsboro, N.S., where the machine crashed and was badly wrecked. Col. Stedman stated that it would take from six weeks to two months to rebuild the aeroplane, some parts having to come from England. It will then continue the flight to New York and thence to Atlantic City. Four of the Handley-Page mechanics left by the Grampian to-day for England whence they will proceed to Greece, where another job awaits their attention. P. F. Raynham, pilot and Lieut. C. H. Biddiscombe, navigator, of the Martinsyde biplane, "Chimera," reminiscent of H-luck, which has itself been disassembled and packed for return, also left by the Grampian. Thus all concerned with the Transatlantic flight have now left the country and it will be another year before aviation takes such a big part in local papers.

SOME FORMS OF GENIUS.

RUTH CAMERON

When you stop to think of it isn't there something wonderful and impressive about the infinite number of motions, the infinitely patient repetition that goes into the creation of many of the finished products that we so easily take for granted?

I once assisted (slightly) at the building of a very little house. I have had a deeper respect for houses ever since. I don't wonder now why it takes so long to build them, but rather how anyone ever has the patience to keep tapping and sawing and sawing and tapping until the thing is done.

The Hammer Will Have Descended A Million Times.

They are building a house not far from here now (they are putting on the siding), and all day long I can hear the carpenter's hammer going thump thump thump thump, then a pause while he picks up a nail and then again, thump thump thump thump. (When I tried my hand at that job it took me from ten to fifteen thumps to send the nail home so I have a deep respect for the workman who can accomplish it in four.) It is not a large house they are working at—when it is done it will look like quite a simple affair—but to produce it the hammer will have descended at least a million times, and the saw will have swayed back and forth as many more.

Think of the Stitches in a Simple Gown!

It's the same with even a fairly simple gown if it has any hard work on it. One is appalled when one stops to think the number of times the needle has been pushed in and out, before the thing is completed. If one stopped to think of the stitches before one began to take them, surely one would be so appalled, that one would decide it wasn't worth while.

One of the Benefactors of the Race.

And did you ever pause—you who

WILLIAM MASON

MY ICELAND.

Oh, Iceland, fair Iceland, my dear old childhood home, I'd like to sail to you again, across the waste of foam. In dreams I see my happy home, my home of long ago, where all the farmers planted ice, and all they reaped was snow. I often wonder why I left the floe where I was reared, for lands that sizzle in the sun, where men are scorched and seared; and I would give my halibut to be upon your shore, to see the musk ox eating ice, and hear the walrus roar. I used to kick, forsooth, because the kitchen fire would freeze, and one must use a crosscut saw to slice the bread and cheese; and often, lacking proper pride, I'd wring my hands and weep, because I had to shovel paths through drifts six furlongs deep. But time has shown me what is what, and also which is which, and if I had those snowdrifts now I'd think that I was rich. Oh, Iceland, when my jaded back is sore with prickly heat, I'd like to tread your frozen shore, and revel in your sleet! Oh, Iceland, when my nose is pealed by solar glow and glare, I'd like to drive along your lanes, behind a polar bear! Oh, Iceland, is the fairest land that mortal ever saw; she has a snowstorm every day, and never has a thaw.

He Changed His Mind.

Amongst many good stories told by Sir Frederick Bridge in his recently published volume of reminiscences, is one concerning a little actor who was bald. Also he was noted for his fiery temper.

One day, while playing Faust, a super whose duty it was to whisk away the hero's stage wig and white beard, so that the young and joyous Faust, relieved of the trappings of old age, shall step forward into the limelight in the bloom and beauty of youth, overdid the thing, and dragged away the actor's own private wig along with the property one, to the huge amusement of the audience.

Later on (writes Sir Frederick) the actor, mad with rage, was searching all over the theatre for the offender, breathing out threatnings and slaughter.

Presently the super appeared—a huge man of brawn and muscle, in his shirt-sleeves and apron, just come from work.

"Hullo, sir," he cried, "do you want me?"

But at the sight, the actor's bellicose intentions vanished with the rapidity of his wig not many minutes before.

Looking his opponent up and down for a second, he gasped out, "Yes, sir! Confound you, sir!"—and ran.

White organdie frills are embroidered in pastel colorings.

The smart suit has sleeves and shoulders rather snugly fitted.

The new printed satins for wrap linings are very brilliant in color.

Even now some very chic dresses have fringed ends on their girdles.

VISIONS.

There are hills too steep for our feet to climb.

There are goals too far to gain.

And in every breast there's a glorious best

The dreamer shall never attain.

For the poet dies with his songs unsung.

And the artist at last grows faint.

And he sinks to sleep and the grave must keep

The pictures he'd planned to paint.

We never can finish the work of life.

Nor live to our fullest here.

We must carry away from its house of clay

The vision we've cherished dear.

We dream fair dreams for the years to be.

But merchant and toiler, too,

And the soldier brave, take into the grave

Some deeds they had hoped to do.

Perhaps they sing at their sweetest now.

Those poets of yesterday.

And have caught the themes of the golden dreams

Which came from the far away.

Perhaps the painters on canvas true.

Now see with a clearer eye

And paint the things of the visionings

That were theirs in the days gone by.

Oh, never we reach to our fullest height.

And never we do our all;

We must turn away, at the close of day

When the tools from our fingers fall.

But it isn't failure to hold a dream.

That never on earth comes true.

For the tasks of worth that we miss on earth

Are reserved for our souls to do.

This is to certify that fourteen years ago I got the cords of my left wrist nearly severed, and was for about nine months that I had no use of my hand, and tried other liniments, also doctors, and was receiving no benefit. By a persuasion from a friend I got MINARD'S LINIMENT and used one bottle which completely cured me, and have been using MINARD'S LINIMENT in my family ever since and find it the same as when I first used it, and would never be without it.

EDUCATIONAL CAMPAIGN.

Following the example of the promoters of the Methodist Educational Campaign, which in the short space of one week raised a quarter of a million dollars, by one of the best organized and swiftly carried out financial drives ever introduced into this dominion, the representatives of the Church of England are setting themselves to the task of outdoing the wonderful result mentioned, and during this week will begin a movement for the accumulation of three hundred and fifty thousand dollars, the whole to be devoted to the educational improvements, in buildings and system, of that denomination.

The Divisional teams under their respective captains, will open the campaign for funds on Thursday, 24th instant, and the drive will continue until the end of the month, the same to be conducted with that courteous aggressiveness, which produces results. Organization work and plans have about been brought to completion, and everybody connected with this movement for the uplift of education in Newfoundland, is highly optimistic.

The need for more modern and enlarged school buildings is too obvious to be mentioned. The necessity for a general improvement in the educational system is a crying one. The advantages which education offers, must be enlarged in order that no child may have to grow up minus the mental equipment with which to engage in life's battle. The realization that, as a country, Newfoundland has been too backward in her educational methods, is being brought home to us day after day, but the awakening has now come and the plain, clear duty of the hour is before us. The abilities of young Newfoundland are second to none, and those of our boys and girls who have gone abroad to finish their education—a finish by the way which could have been completed at home, had we been alive to our educational needs years ago, and made provision for them—have left their mark on the records of learning at every school, college and university at which they registered as students. In all branches of the arts and sciences they have been ever the equals, and in numerous instances the superiors of their classmates.

But there are hundreds,—if not thousands,—who are not in a position to go abroad, and it is for these mainly, that the new project of the Methodist and Anglican Educational campaigns have been inaugurated. The former has been brought to a brilliantly successful termination: the latter is about to begin. Well known writers are conducting the literary campaign, and their articles to the local press give full and ample information. They outline and explain the object of the coming drive, and they look to the whole body of the Anglican Communion in Newfoundland for support and the subscription of the required sum of money. The amount in the total looks huge, but it means nothing more than an individual contribution of slightly over four dollars per head of the denomination, and that not all at one time, but covering such a period of years as will hereafter be announced, thus making it quite easy for those who guarantee donations, and these we are quite sure will be every member of the Church of England in the city and outports who desires to see an all round improvement in present educational facilities.

Badly Injured in Runaway Accident.

As a result of the horse he was driving becoming excited and unmanageable yesterday afternoon, Mr. Chas. Cox of the United Coal Co., Water St., was rather seriously injured about the face and head. The cause of the runaway was the falling of the short tree against the horse's legs, which started the animal forward in a mad bolt. Dashing in Waterford Bridge Road, the horse swayed from one side of the road to the other, until, when opposite Littledale Academy, a telegraph pole checked his career and overturned the carriage. When found Mr. Cox was underneath the carriage in a semi-conscious state, a deep gash on his head and several cuts on the face pointing to serious injury. He was lifted into a motor car and conveyed to the surgery of Dr. Tait, where it was found that no bones had been broken.

Fish Hook Enters Eye.

A Pouch Cove fisherman named Noseworthy, had his right eye injured on the local fishing grounds one day last week, when a companion in the same boat, swung his line to throw the hook overboard. Mr. Noseworthy was hurriedly driven to town, where he entered Hospital. Mr. Noseworthy will probably lose the sight of his eye.

Personal.

The health of Rev. H. Uphill, late Rector of St. Mary's Parish, now on a visit to the city, is very much improved. Messrs. P. J. Grace, G. H. Halley, J. Dalton and E. J. Ring left to-day for Come-By-Chance where they will spend a while salmon fishing. Mr. H. D. Reid and Mrs. Reid left by the express yesterday in private car Quidi Vidi for Canada, and will be absent from the city for about two weeks. Hon. M. G. Winter, who had been spending a few days fishing on the West coast arrived by the express yesterday.

Rev. Capt. Nangle C. F., and Rev. P. Sheehan of St. Patrick's Parish, who had booked passage on the Grandplan, were unable to leave owing to the fact of Capt. Nangle's lecture having been arranged for to-night. Both rev. gentlemen will leave at the first opportunity.

Mr. J. W. N. Johnstone, formerly General Passenger Agent of the Reid Newfoundland Company, who has been abroad since last December, arrived in the city by yesterday's express.

As Used by the King.

Presumably the Housekeeper or the Head Steward or whoever orders the groceries for Buckingham Palace has got to make a study of what lines are the best or he gets "beans." Anyhow the California Fruit Grower's Exchange writes us that their London branch received an order some weeks ago for some cases of Sunkist Marmalade to be delivered at Buckingham Palace.

When one considers that excellent marmalade is made in Scotland it seems rather remarkable that the marmalade used for the King's breakfast should come all the way from California but it is evident that President Wilson must have tipped the King off as to the excellence of Sunkist Marmalades.

Sunkist Orange Marmalade, Sunkist Grapefruit Marmalade and Sunkist Orange Jelly are making just the same hit in St. John's as they are doing in the rest of the world where people know "what's what." Sunkist marmalade was the marmalade used at the St. Bon's Alumni breakfast a few mornings ago and was thought by everybody who attended to be a feature of the breakfast menu. The following firms sell and recommend Sunkist Orange Marmalade, Sunkist Grapefruit Marmalade and Sunkist Orange Jelly: Ayre & Sons Ltd., W. E. Bearn, Bishop Sons & Co. Ltd., Bowring Bros. Ltd., C. P. Eagan (Mr. Eagan has had his stock of Sunkist renewed three times in the last two weeks, so great is the demand) T. J. Edens, Ellis & Co. Ltd., E. J. Horwood, W. J. Murphy, Royal Stores Ltd., Soper & Moore, Steer Bros. New vendors of Sunkist Marmalades are: J. M. Brown, The Cross Roads, J. J. Whelan Colonial St. and J. Jardine & Sons, Bay Roberts. The trade supplied by P. E. Outerbridge, Sole Agent, Phone 1567.

Educational Sunday.

Yesterday was Educational Sunday in the Anglican Cathedral and churches of the city and the sermons of the various preachers were on the one subject which is now to the fore, viz that of the Church of England Educational Campaign. Rev. Canon Bolt was the "Educational" preacher at the Cathedral, while at St. Mary's he also took the subject of the Educational Drive. Our methods of education, he stated, must be changed to meet the demands of the day. The movement towards a higher education is to produce leaders and he hoped that the Anglican community would take its place in doing its share in this work. The proper training of teachers and the enlarging of the colleges and adequate staffing had been mentioned before but had been deferred until now. Now is the time to raise funds and give of the best men in town are giving their time and energies to the work.

Canon Bolt's address was a most interesting one, and it is safe to predict a splendid showing from the congregation of St. Mary's.

At St. Thomas's Church, last evening, Rev. Dr. Jones preached a most timely and forcible sermon on Education, and my sole regret is my inability to reproduce either the text matter or the force of delivery of the reverend preacher. Taking as his text the 35th verse of the 3rd chapter of Lamentations, the speaker pointed out that the right of a man being life and justice and these two things being directly dependent upon education, it was ungodly as well as unmanly that to any child anywhere, he portrayed the importance of this educational drive by the Church of England by showing how (1) education was the keystone towards unification. The years of war were quoted as developing the spread of nationalism, but that internationalism, more important even than nationalism could only come by and through education. Personally, the speaker did not see the force of denominationalism, but until the people were educated intelligently and morally there would be divisions of creeds. (2) Education would explain the differences, socially and economically. Education would make all men equal, comparatively speaking, and would result in a world-wide brotherhood of men. (3) Education was the food of ideals; every child was an idealist, and wanted to possess knowledge in some line or other. Education alone could give this desired knowledge. (4) Education made for self-efficiency. No person can reach the zenith of his powers by genius or aptitude alone. Training is always necessary to develop to the full the possibilities of the individual, and oft the inheritance is wasted because of the lack of education, the wherewithal to apply, to increase or maintain the heritage. The speaker then touched the status of our education when he pointed out the hotels that existed in this town to-day because the people are not properly educated, for educated people would not tolerate such dwellings. Education would better everything, even affecting our newspapers, and destroying the matter that oft appears now—unfit to read. Referring to the drive now about to start, he stated that the objective aimed at would be more than gained if we only realized our need. It was not optional, he declared, as to whether we would help or not. The parent cares for his child's body, and clothes it in good apparel, but he thinks naught of the mind; he mistakes the shadow for the substance. Education was an essential and called for the utmost consideration and generosity. In Newfoundland the small amount of money spent in education, as well as some of the methods of spending it, was a farce, and this drive for $350,000 should stir the people up and each and every one should do his utmost to help, in order that the best might be done for the children, and thus, education would become a force and would morally and socially enhance our island home.

May the preacher's words find vent in the hearers by generous action, and let us all, awake to our great educational needs, do all we possibly can to atone for our past neglect.—S.J.H.

WHERE PAYABLE:—Principal and Interest payable in Gold Coin at the option of the Bearer (or Registered Holder) at the Canadian Bank of Commerce, Halifax, or Montreal, or at the Agency of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, in the City of New York. Interest Coupons payable 1st June and 1st December.

REGISTRATION:—Notes may be registered as to principal, free of charge, at the Offices of The Eastern Trust Company, Halifax.

REDEMPTION:—The Company reserves the right to redeem the Notes on 1st June, 1920, or on any subsequent interest date before maturity, at 101 p.c. and accrued interest, upon sixty (60) days' notice.

TRUSTEE:—The Eastern Trust Company, Halifax.

LEGALITY:—Messrs. Covert, Pearson & McNutt, and Messrs. Hall & Jones, Barristers, Halifax, have passed upon the legality and correctness of the issue. The Board of Commissioners of Public Utilities for the Province of Nova Scotia have approved and authorized the issue.

Price:—Par and Accrued Interest, Yielding 7 per cent.

GENERAL INFORMATION

(Supplied by the President of the Company.)

OPERATIONS:—The Company owns and operates all the Street Railway, Electric Light, Power and Gas properties in Halifax. It acquired on its incorporation all the business assets and franchises of the Halifax Electric Tram Company, and the enterprise has been in continuous and successful operation for over 24 years. It also operates the Commercial Lighting and Power business of Dartmouth.

PURPOSE OF ISSUE:—To provide additional rolling stock, extensions and improvements in the present track layout, and an improved street car service, together with gas plant and gas main extensions and additional boiler capacity. All of these items of capital expenditure are rendered necessary by the rapid and continuous growth of Halifax.

SECURITY:—The present issue of Coupon Gold Notes is a direct obligation upon the Company, and ranks senior to the $2,078,800 6 p.c. Preferred Stock, and $2,510,000 Common Stock. No Mortgage Bonds or Debentures (except the First Mortgage Bonds) may be issued unless the Coupon Gold Notes are secured in the same manner as such new issue.

EARNINGS:—The growth of the Company's business for the past five years has been consistent, as will be seen from the following figures:—

Gross Earnings 1914	645,241.00
Gross Earnings 1915	718,840.00
Gross Earnings 1916	759,726.00
Gross Earnings 1917	859,667.00
Gross Earnings 1918	998,702.00
On basis of earnings ascertained to date, 1919	1,325,500.00

MANAGEMENT:—Has recently been entrusted to Messrs. Stone & Webster, of Boston, Mass. This firm is well and favorably known throughout the United States, where they manage and operate over forty companies doing a similar business. The Company is therefore assured of efficient management by men who have made a special study of similar organizations. Too much importance cannot be given to this feature of the Company's affairs.

NATURE OF ISSUE

Although comparatively new to this territory, coupon notes represent a form of short term financing in very general use and favor in the large financial centres. The public is thereby offered an opportunity to profit by the present high rate for capital, and thus obtain a more favorable interest yield than is usually available on an investment of this high character. On the other hand, the Company can arrange its permanent finances on better terms when normal times return.

AS AN INVESTMENT

In view of the nature and permanency of the Company's business, operating as a Public Utility in a City enjoying rapid though conservative growth, we consider that these Coupon Gold Notes form a most attractive short term investment.

We make this offering subject in all cases to previous sale and change in price. Mail the application form to us or orders may be wired at our expense and Coupon Gold Notes or Registered Interim Receipts will be delivered free of charge at any Bank or Trust Company.

The foregoing statements and figures are based upon information obtained from reliable sources, and which, while in no way guaranteed, are correct to the best of our knowledge, and furnish the basis upon which we have purchased the above issue.

C. of E. Educational Campaign.

II.

In the first part of my notes on the Church of England College Educational Campaign published Saturday, I was led to refer to the fine spirit of co-operation that is manifesting itself among the denominations, and I pointed out the most rapid and efficient way of doing it. I also laid stress on the fact that the campaign is for the cause of education in its widest sense, and that the attitude of the Church on the subject was broad and generous, free from petty sectarianism. I should like to give chapter and verse for this statement and refer the sceptical to the proceedings of the sessions of the Diocesan Synod held in 1916 and 1918.

What I have mainly in view in writing these notes is to tell of the College, its history, its work, its potentiality; but before I come to these particulars there is one more subject of general importance with which I should like to deal briefly in order that the more particular items may have their proper setting. It is the question: What is the ideal of national education? In dealing with the question, I do not think I can better express my thoughts on the subject than in the words of a recent writer, who writes in part:

"The course of the war has brought home to us our responsibilities in the matter of educational reconstruction. Clear vision of the goal, and that goal a worthy one, is the first essential of the reformer. Let me illustrate. In the early stage of the war many were naturally surprised by the efficiency of German organization of applied science in the service of national economy and war. Assuredly organization of knowledge and application of science are matters of importance, but they do not suffice for the aim of national education. Germany gave evidence of this; her education as guided by their aim was neither education nor efficient. It was not education, for it is contradictory to the very idea of education to enslave knowledge to national policy, thus reducing men to machinery, to means instead of ends in themselves (as Kant in former days had taught). It was not efficient, for the chief source of Germany's disaster was her ignorance of the personal human factor in the world's life; ignorance of her own national character and destiny and above all, of that of her antagonists."

Here is my point, education must rest upon the recognition of the worth of human personality. It must aim at producing, not machines, not even citizens merely (for that suggests subordination to the State), but men and women qualified in the familiar phrase, "for the service of God in Church and State." He continues: "Ash the workers of the nation what they desire, they will answer 'a better life' for themselves, and, above all for their children. Other claims for a minimum wage, and standard of comfort, for shorter hours, and more leisure, for better housing, are but means to this end. It is the same answer as the Greek philosopher gave of old, a better life not of indolence or pleasure, but of worthy action. For such an end, there is real knowledge, knowledge not for a privileged class, but for a people; directed, not to material efficiency, but to the enrichment of personality; not to professional success, but to worthy life. The Hebrew prophets and the Greek philosopher were right; the want of this knowledge—knowledge of self, the world, God—lies at the root of all strife and ingratitude among individuals, classes, nations."

There is here to-day, as there has been elsewhere a tendency to materialize educational effort. Oh, the crime of it!

In following notes I shall have little difficulty in showing that the influence of the Church of England College in education in Newfoundland has been on the side of that form of education that puts character in the foreground.

Over-Seas Club.

June 30th, 1919.

G. J. Keough, Esq.,
Box 53, St. John's, Nfld.

Dear Sir—I am here from the Old Country as the Special Commissioner of the Over-Seas Club and shall be visiting Newfoundland during the period from July 17th to 23rd. Arrangements are being made for me to speak in St. John's and other centres, and I trust it will be possible for us to meet.

We are doing important reconstruction work for the Empire, assisting to solve the problems of emigration from the Old Country and to secure that the best of our manhood is directed into the Overseas Dominions; also we are exerting considerable influence towards the development of British Trade within the Empire, and endeavoring in every possible manner to promote a good understanding between British people everywhere.

To carry out our aims and accomplish our mission, we need a vast increase of membership, and I shall be glad if you will use the enclosed forms to secure at least one new member while I am over here. I will gladly supply more forms, but if each member we have will help by getting only one friend to join us, our membership will be doubled.

Applications for membership may be handed to the Local H.C.S., sent direct to Headquarters, Over-Seas Club, General Buildings, Aldwych, London, W.C.2, England, or sent to me.

I feel sure I may count on your kind assistance.

Ever with kind regards,
Yours faithfully,
FRANCIS R. JONES,
Special Commissioner representing the Central Council of the Over-Seas Club and Patriotic League.

P.S.—My permanent address in Canada is the King Edward Hotel, Toronto.

The U-Boat Criminals at the Bar.

(From the New York Tribune.)

Among all the Germans marked out for individual punishment none will more richly deserve their fate than the commanders and officers of the submarines. The British Admiralty, it is stated, has a list of no less than seventy-one of these, and there are others down in the black books of the other Allied governments. The purpose to try them for crimes of which only pirates, and not always they, have hitherto been guilty is not likely to be foregone. For the scamen of other countries have long traditions of honor and chivalry at which the Germans mocked. German methods of making war were brutal enough; and, as the official book of war usages showed, the brutality was calculated. Civilians were spared neither in their property nor in their lives, because the proclaimed object was "to destroy the total intellectual and material resources" of the enemy. But though the outrages perpetrated in France and Belgium thrilled the world with horror, some precedent for them, of a sort, might be found in the darker pages of history. Nothing in all sea warfare paralleled the submarine atrocities. Thus it has come to pass that the German seamen must bear for many a year a burden of obloquy. There is nothing to show that these officers feel the slightest compunction or repentance for their crimes. They were the peculiar heroes of the German people, and it is not probable that they have dropped the heroic pose. If they are brought to trial we shall doubtless be edified by further revelations of the German conception of honor. Von Spross's defense of the sinking of the ships at Scapa Flow is one more proof of the truth of the saying that no one but a German can understand a German.

Some Weird Remedies.

Weird and wonderful are the remedies advised in different parts of the world for diseases which afflict suffering humanity. Sufferers from rheumatism will be pleased to hear that there is a sure cure for their malady. A split mackerel must be bound round the affected part, when relief will be at once obtained—or so many people in Wales say. The town of Lee, in England, still has on record the famous cure known as the "Lee Penny." This coin was brought from the Holy Land by a Crusader. On many occasions when the health of the people has been threatened this penny has been used. "Three dips and one swirl" in a bucket of water were supposed to endow the liquid with healing properties.

In many parts of Europe it is thought that the passing under the belly of an ass of a child suffering from whooping-cough will bring instant relief.

Almost everyone has heard of the curing of warts by touching them with a wedding-ring. This "cure" is perhaps not so well known: Make the sign of a cross on the wart, at the same time chanting, "What I see, that I wish; what I wish that disappears."

'Twas Ever Thus.

For the enjoyment of an after-dinner chat the assorted company that one meets in a commercial hotel were settling down in the smoke-room. A flippant-looking traveller was discoursing on the virtues of the married man by way of a beginning.

"Yes, it sounds all right," spoke up a quiet, elderly gentleman, sitting in the corner of the room. "But I'll give you a new silk hat to any gentleman in this company who can honestly declare he has not kissed a lady except his wife since their wedding!" Silence reigned for a while, and the flippant one looked slightly disconcerted. Then a shrill, small voice issued from a bashful young fellow.

"I think I can claim that hat," said the owner of the voice. "You see, I was only married this morning."

One of the party began to relate the story to his wife on his return home, when suddenly she exclaimed: "But why didn't you speak up, John?"

For a moment John was at his wit's end to know what to say; then:

"But think what a fool I look in a silk hat, dear—you always say so!" he stammered.

Why They Laughed.

The Bishop of London, who has announced his intention of parting with his town house in St. James's Square, told a good story recently concerning a colleague of his who was on his way back from visiting friends in New York.

He and his wife (said Dr. Ingram) were allotted a large double cabin. One night during a thunder storm the lady complained of the closeness of the air, and her spouse dutifully arose and opened a port-hole, whereupon a big wooden ball bobbed in and kept on bobbing.

The bishop knotted up its string and hung it on the wall of the cabin; but it bumped as the vessel rocked, and annoyed the lady further.

So the patient bishop let out the loops and put the ball under his pillow; after which, peace and slumber.

The next day at dinner the bishop recounted his adventures of the night, and bridled somewhat at the roars of laughter which greeted the story.

Eventually the captain recovered sufficiently to gasp: "Why man!—that is, my lord! That ball you slept on hangs at the end of the ship's lightning-conductor!"

A Memorable Voyage.

The safe return of the British Navy dirigible R-34 to England completes a memorable voyage. The R-34 made the homeward trip in 75 hours, about 33 hours less than the time taken on the eastward journey. The western voyage was not only quicker; it was notable as having been made completely over sea for a distance of over 2,800 miles. The R-34 had the benefit of favoring winds for the first 300 miles, but thereafter encountered strong head winds and considerable fog, so that her average speed was about the same as on the outward trip. The completion of the round trip between Britain and America is a great achievement in aerial navigation. The experience gained. Major Scott intimates, points to the construction of larger and faster airships "powerful enough to crawl through anything." When these come the vacation trip to Europe will be a much simpler affair.—Morning Chronicle.

The Immoral Right to Free Speech.

Invoking the sacred right of liberty of speech the Bolsheviks are busily engaged destroying Liberty itself, and the Federal and State authorities, to preserve the first, seem oblivious to the slow destruction of the other. A Methodist bishop, Richard J. Cooke, in calling attention to this anomalous state of public morals, quotes in support of his diagnosis the farewell remark of the Austrian Ambassador, Dumba, who was the first of our undesirable aliens helped out of the country. "Good-by," he said, "to the land where everybody does as he pleases." This characterization, points out the bishop, in Zion's Herald (Boston), "seems exactly to express the opinion which undesirable aliens and the motley element of propagandists, from university professors down to the dregs of anarchy, seem to have of this country, its institutions, and its laws." What amazes the bishop is the length to which the Federal and State authorities allow the enemies of social order to go before any attempt is made to curtail their seditious propaganda. He fears that here as in England, the "wide margin left for the play of political-social eccentricities" may be overstepped, "and when patience has done its perfect work" that the people will suddenly "accept the Bolshevik idea of this country themselves and play Bolshevik to the Bolshevik wit terrible results."

Dempsey Never Drank.

Interesting pen pictures of Willard and Dempsey are contributed to the New York Evening Journal by Miss Willie Bly, the American woman journalist. Of Willard, Miss Bly writes:

"Enormous! He reminded me of the big trees in California. Enormous, but splendidly proportioned. Every part of him fitted perfectly together. His head is not too big or too little for the rest of him. His hands are not misshapen or out of proportion. His feet are not too big and are well shaped. His shoulders are broad, but not too broad for the size of his body. He has good teeth and a smile that wins."

Willard spent his early life on a ranch and for years rode bronchos and herded cattle. He has also run a circus. "The idea of boxing," he told Miss Bly, "came all of a sudden. I had never boxed in my life; I had never even thought of it, until one day the idea popped into my head that I would become a boxer and win the championship. I went into a gymnasium in Oklahoma City and told a fellow there what I wanted to do. He said, all right, and that he would be my manager. One week after walking into that gymnasium I went into the ring. I didn't even know how to put up my hands."

"Since then I have fought forty-six times. I was never knocked down, never had a black eye and never a bloody nose. I have only had two decisions against me. One unjust and one fair; at least, people say so."

Miss Bly describes Dempsey as a very big, good-natured boy, with innocent, guileless eyes. He was born on a farm in Colorado, the eighth of a family of eleven. His father was Irish, and his mother was part Indian and part Scottish. Asked what he did for amusement, Dempsey said:

"I like friends around me, and I like them to dine with me. I like motor-car rides and good fishing and hunting, but I did not drink."

"Don't you drink anything?"

"Never! I never took a drink in my life. I never smoked either."

"Lots of people," Dempsey proceeded, "don't understand boxing as they should. They would have a different idea of it if they did. You see it is not drinking or putting in a good time. Everything is business, and it's got to be run like any other business. Everything goes by the clock. Everything is right on the dot, or it's a failure!"

The Pioneer of Ballooning.

The curiosity of an immense concourse of people was gratified on July 20, 1812, by the ascent, in a balloon, of a Mr. Sadler, from a yard adjoining St. George's Fields, in Manchester. Immense crowds began to flock in as early as ten o'clock in the morning, and before the time fixed for the exhibition, every piece of vacant ground was completely crowded. At about half-past one, a gun was fired, and a pilot balloon was despatched to ascertain the course to be taken. A few minutes afterwards a burst of loud and reiterated shouts announced the interesting and momentous crisis—the ascent of the majestic traverser of the upper regions, unaccompanied, firmly standing up with his hat in his hand, waving it and bowing most respectfully to the congregated multitude. In about a quarter of an hour from his departure he entered a cloud and became invisible for a few minutes; he again appeared for a short time, when he entered another cloud, and then totally vanished from sight. He descended at Oaks Woods, 6 miles eastward of Sheffield, at a quarter before three, having being 48 minutes in going about 51 miles. The place being a barren moor, he had great difficulty in fixing his grappling irons, and it was a considerable time before the balloon could be secured, owing to there being nothing to hold it but loose stones, which gave way, in consequence of the power the wind had on the balloon, and during which labor he received many bruises. The balloon was much torn, and the car greatly damaged. The marvellous advance since in aerial travelling is known to everybody, the present war having proved that it is quite a simple matter for machines to travel hundreds of miles by means of powerful engines. One invention investigates others, and amongst the latter must be mentioned the Hanks' Range-Finder, particulars of which we gave in Spare Moments on July 21, 1917, and by the use of which any enemy machine may be destroyed by a single shell from a gun. Unfortunately, Whitehall officials and vested interests has barred its adoption until now, with the result that thousands of our gallant men's lives are lost in battle, when by the use of this wonderful invention we could beat the enemy in a very short time by preventing him from making

Sun-lit Lighthouses.

(Pearson's Weekly.)

There has been a good deal of talk of late of the new sun-controlled lighthouse on the Panama Canal, which lights and extinguishes itself without any attention whatever from human hands.

As a matter of fact, the principle is not a very new one, and there are several similar lighthouses in existence, one at least on the Swedish coast, and several on the wild and stormy rocks of Alaska.

The inventor is a Swede, M. Gustaf Dalen, and the cruel thing is that he, who has helped others to see, has himself been blinded by an accident.

The principle of the invention is called the sun-valve. It is, in fact, a tap which, actuated by sun-power, turns the gas feeding the lamp on or off.

It consists of a glass cylinder containing four copper rods all of exactly the same diameter and size. The central rod is coated with lamp-black thus enabling it to absorb light or warmth while the other three are gold-polished so that they are not only non-conductive but highly reflective of the slightest ray of light.

As dawn breaks the increasing light acting on the blackened rod causes it to expand. It thus presses on the lever, and so gradually cuts off the gas. At night, as the rod begins slowly to cool, it contracts, and thereby releases the valve, so that once more the gas is able to pass to the burner, where it is lit by a pilot light. The latter, of course, never goes out.

The beauty of the invention is that the instrument automatically adapts itself to the season of the year, so that not a foot of gas is wasted. It has been found to be perfectly reliable, lasting for years without any attention. For another thing, it does not need direct sunlight to actuate it. Even when the sky is overcast, the mere light of day is sufficient to make the bar expand.

Bringing Wilhelm to Trial.

Although there is a brave show of bringing the Kaiser to trial for his manifold sins and iniquities, he is still in Holland, where he apparently has decided to remain as long as he can. As for trying him, it looks like a case of "first catch your hare." There has not been anything to justify the assumption that the Dutch Government will give him up.

Even if he is ultimately surrendered, the advantage of bringing him before an international tribunal is far more clear. There is considerable to be said in favor of hanging him, if such were the intention. But since the Allies have disclaimed the desire to take his life, what useful purpose can be served by finding him guilty of "a supreme offense against international morality and the sanctity of treaties?"

No doubt the accusation is quite true, but what law has he broken? The utmost punishment threatened against him in any event, is to exile him to some presumably undesirable place from which he can't get away, but where he could be supplied with enough to make him comfortable for the rest of his days. Is such an outcome really worth the trouble?

Many of the officers of the German army are in a different position. They have been guilty of direct personal violations of the laws of war. In other words, they have committed crimes against laws already existing and to which they knew perfectly well they might become amenable in case of defeat.—Vancouver Sun.

St. Bon's Association.

The annual meeting of the St. Bon's Alumni Association was held in the Aula Maxima yesterday morning, Sir Michael P. Cashin presiding. The reports for the last year were read, and showed that the Association was in a flourishing condition. Before the adoption of the report, the Hon. Vice-President, Mr. J. J. McGrath, B.L., in a few choice words on behalf of the Association, congratulated the President on having attained since last annual meeting the highest position in the gift of his native land, viz., Prime Minister of the Dominion. Upon being duly seconded, the resolution was put to the meeting and carried by acclamation with the greatest enthusiasm. After a general discussion on the rules and other matters, Mr. McGrath outlined a scheme for the establishing of a Memorial Scholarship, which was endorsed by the meeting, the details of which are to be finalized by the Council. The officers then vacated their seats and Rev. Bro. J. B. Ryan, Principal of the College and Hon. President of the Association, took the chair, and with his well-known tact and ability, conducted the election of officers for the coming year. The result of the ballot was as follows:

President—Hon. Sir Michael P. Cashin, K.B.E.

Vice-Presidents—Mr. W. J. Carroll and Mr. L. E. Emerson, B.L.

Treasurer—Mr. Walter A. O'D. Kelly.

Secretary—Mr. Cyril J. Fox.

The election of the Council for the ensuing year was also conducted, one or two changes being made. In congratulating the officers on their election, the Rev. Bro. Ryan took occasion to heartily and sincerely thank the Association, both individually and collectively, for their whole-souled and enthusiastic support during the year. Their hearty co-operation with the College authorities was a source of the greatest strength and encouragement to the Brothers in their work. Some members of the Association had been pupils of the School over half a century ago, but their enthusiasm and loyalty were an example to the pupils of the present day. The Memorial to be erected in the public entrance to the College, to those who died at the front, would be more potent in its teaching to future generations of students than any sermon. He congratulated the Association on the success of the last annual reunion, and pointed out that, excepting that of 1915, it had eclipsed all previous gatherings, in numbers, in its representative capacity, and in general success. He referred in complimentary terms to the Souvenir Committee, who had evolved such an artistic and appropriate souvenir. In this connection the thanks of the Association were later tendered to Rev. Bro. P. V. Strapp, one of the Professors of the College, who took infinite pains to make the "Roll of Honor" as complete as possible. He also thanked the Committee of Management, led by Mr. J. J. Barron, Chairman, and Mr. Stan McGrath, Secretary-Treasurer, who put such go and energy into the work, that the success of this year's gathering was beyond question. The refectory had been dressed very artistically by Rev. Bro. Perry, another of the Professors, and Mr. Philip Brown, a charter member of the Association, who is noted for his artistic skill, which he has displayed at the College on many occasions. After the learned and revered President had concluded his really eloquent speech, the officers resumed their seats at the table. Sir Michael, on behalf of himself and his colleagues, thanked the Association for the honor conferred on them, and guaranteed that on a year from to-day, they would give a good and faithful account of their stewardship. Mr. C. J. Fox, in an eloquent address, proposed that F. J. Doyle, Esq., in recognition of his services to the Association, generally, but particularly as presiding officer last year, be raised to the dignity of Hon. Vice-President. It was carried unanimously. The other Hon. Vice-Presidents are, Hon. F. J. Morris, K.C., O.B.E.; J. J. McGrath, Esq., B.L., and W. J. Carroll, Esq. After some other routine matters had been settled, one of the most successful meetings of this flourishing Association adjourned till future notice.

With careful investors, safety of income and principal is the first requirement.

For institutions, partnerships, business men and investors generally, investments should be readily marketable, and also readily acceptable as collateral.

One of the types of issues which best fulfills these requirements is usually the short term bond or note. Early maturity adds stability to its market course and the issue is paid at par, and in some instances at a premium, within a few years or less. Among business men and institutional investors who may desire to sell these investments at almost any time, there is a strong preference for short term issues. Let us furnish our proposals. We will do so on request.

FOR THE HOT DAYS: ROSS'S PALE DRY GINGER ALE

We have in stock some cases of Ross's Pale Dry Ginger Ale. Made in Belfast, Ireland, from the finest ingredients, Ross's Pale Dry Ginger Ale is, without exception, the best of the imported Ginger Ales.

Ross's Pale Dry Ginger Ale has all the sparkling brilliancy of Champagne and, in fact, in countries that have "gone dry" is used at dinners, receptions, dances, etc., in place of champagne. Thousands of cases have been sold in the United States since the "dry" legislation loomed in view.

True, Ross's Pale Dry Ginger Ale, costs more than the local article, but it is not intended to compete with local Ginger Ale (there being plenty of room for both). Ross's Pale Dry Ginger Ale is supplied exclusively for people who demand an imported Ginger Ale and who are willing to pay the price for the best in imported Ginger Ale.

We sell Ross's Pale Dry Ginger Ale to the trade in cases of 50 pints. It retails for 25c. per bottle.

Public Reception at Lower Island Cove.

On Friday July 19th, Mrs. Pickering and the young ladies of the Lower Island Cove Methodist church prepared a pleasant reception for the soldier boys, who had all gathered home for the first time since the war. Quite a number of relatives and friends met in the Orange Hall to receive them. The boys were treated to refreshments and candy and after those who had recently returned were greeted by their many friends they all filed in and took their places on the platform. There were twelve present—Sergeant A. M. Hudson, L.C. Harry Garland, Sapper Simeon Louis, Privates Stanley Garland, John Louis, Herbert Dursey, Charles Vail, Selby Morris, and Horatio Turner. Pte. Harry Morris was a visitor from St. John's, Privates Frank Cull and Douglas Wicks represented Caplin Cove and Burnt Point respectively. Rev. G. B. Pickering presided over the meeting, and as pastor of the church spoke appreciatively of the service our men rendered to the Empire and their native land, and conveyed to them the welcome home greeting that the many friends present wished them to receive. Mr. Eli Garland who had three sons doing active service in the war gave an appropriate address and referred to the valour and soldierly qualities of our men who took their places honorably by the side of British and Colonial troops. Mr. P. S. Cooper, speaking as a member of the Orange Order, conveyed to the soldiers present a message of welcome from the Island Home Orange Lodge. Mr. A. G. Hudson could not be present, but asked his son, Rev. L. G. Hudson, B.A., to speak for him. This address like that of previous speakers was brief and to the point. Particular reference was made to those who had died on the battlefields. Eight men born in this community paid the Supreme Sacrifice—Privates Kenneth Morris, Arthur Cummins, Kenneth Le Shane, Reuben Wheeler, Charles Reid, Gascar Garland, William Morris and Philip Louis R.N.R. and as their names were read all stood to do them honour and reverence their memory. After the remarks of the previous speakers the soldiers were given an opportunity to speak. Sergeant A. M. Hudson, Pte. Stanley Garland and Sapper Simeon Louis spoke for the company. Sergeant Hudson said that a soldier must endure hardship, but he does it willingly and cheerfully when it is for a cause that is just and true. As for those who had fallen they have died gloriously, and they would not have us mourn for them. The men present felt proud to be members of the Regiment that had won such distinction in the war, and by valour, loyalty and initiative had gained recognition for itself and honour for the country that it represented on the battlefields. Our men were game, they took their reverses cheerfully and died heroically. Absolutely nothing daunted them, and they never hesitated to volunteer for feats of daring even when these brought them face to face with death. On the other side the Newfoundland Regiment became well known for its gallantry. Our men have fought for an honourable name for the Dominion abroad, and to-day they will honour and support the men of what ever party who will sustain in their political administration the reputation won for the country by their loyalty and patriotism in time of war. New and higher ideals are set before us, and in this reconstruction period an effort must be made to realize them, and our youth are seeking able leadership and are willing to follow men who will cease to be petty and will show wider vision and broader minds, and will rival in their patriotism and unselfish service at home what the Newfoundland soldiers have done on parched sands of Egypt, the barren soil of Gallipoli and the bloodstained soil of France and Belgium. In the first address mention was made of the kind hearts of the Scottish people and a fitting tribute was paid to those who became mothers and fathers to Newfoundland boys across the sea. Their hospitality will never be forgotten by those whom they so freely received into their homes. The soldiers were delighted with the pleasant reception so thoughtfully prepared for them by Mrs. Pickering and the ladies at home. The meeting closed with a rousing cheer for the men of our Regiment, a gracious welcome to the wife of Pte. Wicks, Scottish bride, and God Save the King.

The Nova Scotia
Tramways New Issue.
Million Dollars of Seven Per Cent. Three Year Coupon Gold Notes.
Messrs. F. B. McCurdy & Co., Investment Bankers of Montreal, Halifax and this City, are to-day issuing to the public $1,000,000 of seven per cent. three year Coupon Gold Notes of the Nova Scotia Tramways & Power Company.
The price is par and accrued interest yielding the full seven per cent. Both principal and interest on the Notes are payable at Halifax or Montreal or in the City of New York at the holder's option. The latter provision is of substantial advantage to investors in view of the rate of premium ruling on New York funds, and the early maturity of the Notes. The Notes have been authorized, sanctioned and approved by the Board of Public Utilities Commissioners of the Province of Nova Scotia.

In view of the fact that the Company operates a service indispensable to the public, an unusually stable base is afforded to these securities. The Stone & Webster management of the Company is the guarantee that not only will the tramway services be made creditable to the City of Halifax, but also that monies spent in improvements will be made revenue producing.

Timely Protest.

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir,—I should be glad if you could find room in your esteemed paper for a protest against the careless way the public are treated in regard to the reporting of the Labrador boat, especially when coming south. On the last trip of the s.s. Sagona, there were several people here expecting to travel by this ship, and necessarily because this is the only ship on the coast making connections with Hr. Grace. When to and behold at four o'clock in the morning, she makes her appearance here on Wednesday the 16th, no word having been heard of her; presumably she dropped out of the clouds like R-34 dirigible, and consequently the would-be travellers got left. Now Sir, considering these steamers and other public offices are maintained by the taxes of the public, it is surely unfair to have these concerns run for partial interests only. I don't know who to blame; but it evidently shows there's more interest in getting the heavy taxes paid for these concerns, than to make them of use to the payer. One would not expect anything better in Robinson Cruso Island, but then they are not taxed 50 per cent. If steamers are not reported, where they do call they are of very doubtful use for travellers. Yours, etc., INDIGNANT.

King's Cove, July 17th, 1919.

New Relief For Constipation, "LES FRUITS"

Physicians agree that with the modern habits of living, constipation is likely to be always with us. They also agree that the constant use of any drug for the relief of constipation is exceedingly unwise—unwise for two reasons. First, a drug constantly used loses its effect and requires a constantly increased dose. Second, because the constant use of any drug is bad anyway.

So the cry is constantly going up from the constipated, "What can we do?" It will be interesting to a great many to know that an answer has been found in the re-discovery of a method which was used with great success by our Forefathers, and in Arabia far back in the twelfth century. The food is called "Les Fruits" because it is composed entirely of figs, dates, prunes, raisins and the leaves of each with the substitution of the Alexandria leaf for the raisin leaf. The taste is pleasant, if not to say delicious, and the effect is exceedingly satisfactory. Try it and be convinced.
