SAY THESE REINDEER ARE VERY SLOW FOOTED

Dr. Wilfred Genfills Experience With His
Told in an Interesting Article

Just how true are those old school stories of the Laplander flying across the snowy slopes of Lapland behind his speedy reindeer is a question which would seem to require an answer after anyone reads what Dr. Wilfred T. Grenfell writes on the subject of the first journey in Newfoundland, of the reindeer which are to be used in the Labrador mission. Dr. Grenfell has been experimenting on the importation of these animals into Newfoundland, and the Grenfell Association brought over a small ship-load not many months ago. The famous physician of the Labrador coast gives a very interesting and possibly an enlightening account of the first efforts to use these animals for purposes of locomotion. This first attempt amounted to somewhat of a pilgrimage, in which three reindeer—fleet-footed and all that—took the interesting role of impelling the party.

Started out With the Deer.
The doctor writes as follows: "The new herd of reindeer from Lapland had now been with us nearly three weeks. Under ordinary circumstances we should have expected them to be in good condition by this time. Unfortunately, a heavy fall of freezing rain had made a bad glitter, or ice crust, over the ground and had largely hidden the whereabouts of the moss. We told the Lapps to have three stags ready for a certain morning at our camp, that we would drive out with our luggage with our dogs and so possibly cover sixty miles in the one day, as we had been told that the deer had done that distance before. On the day set there was a storm blowing, and it was impossible to face it, on the real dog path, so we decided to travel along the foot of the hills and follow a lead of lakes and brooks, covering a northwest till we should strike the cut path. According to the Lapp, it was necessary for him to walk ahead of the deer, and guide them, as there was no road. Consequently as it was too cold to sit in the pulka, we all decided to walk ahead and break a path.

Floundered Painfully Along.
"Things went very well for three or four miles. When however, we had for a mile or more been travelling along a small brook through thick trees we lost all signs of the deer for so long that we walked back to find them. We found them floundering along somewhat painfully. The little brook bore us on our snowshoes very successfully, but the snow bridges which kept it from freezing below would every now and again give way beneath the deer, and they were advancing in jumps and occasionally lying down for a spell whenever they fell through. Their pathetic faces when only their heads were above the snow made us pity them. It was with no little joy that we at length emerged once again on a barren land with lakes, which led us to a high ridge overlooking the direction in which we wished to go. We should soon, we thought, be on the hard road, sitting behind our deer, galloping on our way. But alas! there was many a slip 'twixt cup and lip! The distance was all rolling land, covered with low trees and bushes known as truckamores. The snow was over their tops but the crust would bear neither man nor beast.

Went like a Funeral Procession.
"At length, however, by careful piloting, we reached a sudden drop into a nook, and found a fair chance of getting out. Having now a hard road to travel, with fresh light snow over it, we expected to sit on and gallop, like Santa Claus in the pictures. But, alas! for mere human expectation! Nothing would induce the deer to exceed the original walking pace. "After proceeding about two hundred yards, like a funeral procession, we decided it must be due to the exhaustion consequent on our long previous exertions. So once more we walked on away ahead."

The writer then tells how a settlement was finally reached, where the animals were tethered for the night, and the men found food and rest. "In the morning the party set out again. After the deer had been well fed," continues the writer, "we each took a deer and a pulka, leaving the Lapp to follow with the third in any way he liked. The last we saw of him he was still walking ahead of his deer, while we were alternately sitting on and running with ours."

Men, Deer, Baggage Piled Up.
"We waited for him, however, on the last hill; but we had learned many things by that time. "First, it was obvious that the deer must either go faster and understand better or be of no use except as draught beasts, for log hauling, etc."

More Terrible Than War!

More terrible than war, famine or pestilence is that awful destroyer, that headlong monster, Consumption, that annually sweeps away more of earth's inhabitants than any other single disease known to the human race.

"It is only a cold, a trifling cough," say the careless, as the irritation upon the delicate mucous membrane causes them to hack away with an irritating tickling of the throat. When the irritation settles on the mucous surface of the throat, a cough is the result. To prevent Bronchitis or Consumption of the Lungs, do not neglect a cough however slight as the irritation spreading throughout the delicate lining of the sensitive air passages soon leads to fatal results. If on the first appearance of a cough or cold you would take a few doses of you would save yourself a great deal of unnecessary suffering. Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup contains all the life-giving properties of the pine trees of Norway, and for Asthma, Croup, Whooping Cough and all Throat and Lung affections it is a specific. Be sure when you ask for Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup to get it. Don't be humbugged into taking something else.

Price 25c.

Miss Lena Johnston, Toledo, Ont., writes: "I have used Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup for throat troubles after taking numerous other remedies, and I must say that nothing can take the place of it. I would not be without a bottle of it in the house."

NEW WAY TO BE WELL

Healthfulness of Oranges.

The one lesson which most people never seem to learn is, how to guard their health.

We have been eating oranges since time immemorial, yet how many of us know that orange juice contains a medicinal principle which has a marked action on the stomach, bowels, kidneys and skin. Some physicians go so far as to say that they can cure the average case of indigestion, constipation, biliousness and dry skin with orange juice and proper diet. This can be easily proved to the satisfaction of any sufferer. Take the juice of one or two oranges every morning before breakfast, take one or two "Fruit-a-tives" every night at bedtime, exercise a reasonable care in diet, and the proof will be found in health.

The cure will be greatly assisted and hastened by taking "Fruit-a-tives" in conjunction with the orange juice. "Fruit-a-tives" are fruit juices in which the medicinal principle of oranges, apples, figs and prunes are many times increased by the special way in which they are combined. Then tonics are added and the whole made into tablets. "Fruit-a-tives" may be obtained at all dealers, or will be sent postpaid on receipt of price—50c a box—6 for $2.50. ### CIVIL SERVICE REFORM.

Examinations as a medium of admission to the civil service are good—far better than placing in office political puppets to lay up patronage pay. Entrance by examination is not always ideal. Those deciding who are not successful candidates should be given an elastic jurisdiction. It is not always the boy scoring full marks for his algebra papers who knows best when the bag is opened. Men who have failed to satisfy the whims of pedants have made great business successes.

The present government has an unique opportunity to create a precedent. With courage to reorganize the entire system, throwing party favor to the winds, the world will look here for an example. It sounds Utopian, and it may be. But there you have it, ideal, a goal, an ambition, of all appointments, those to the civil service should be governed by merit. If a country makes its offices from Junior clerk to minister worth while, the class of men always needed and seldom obtained will be available. The service will become efficient automatically. There are few attractions for the young men to enter the service. He must often become, on a meagre pittance, one of the black cat, brigading looking as John Burns once said, like a duke on the wages of a dustman. Just where the brain of a country needs is just where no price is offered for them. Not everything in our civil service is bad, far from it. But enough there is to make it better. Only insular party organs will make political capital out of the report. The evils of the Canadian civil service are neither of Liberal origin, nor of Conservative origin, they are national. If drastic reform is effected, the powers that be may well claim the honor for cutting away a detestable trait in a nation's character—Bismarck Times.

There is a suit before the Paris courts to recover $120,000 advanced to finance a prince in his plans for marrying an American heiress. There are in Europe people with money as simple almost as they consider American millionaires to be.

Complaint is made in Toronto that on municipal works Italians are preferred to Anglo-Saxons. This is not what was to have been expected. In an imperialist war like Ontario's capital. There must have crowded into its population some who think more of the profits of a job than of pride of race.

There will be a hundred town sites put on the market in the West this year, it is announced. The chances are that if they will be sold it will be by Westerners to Westerners. Other industries that suffered from last year's collapse will have to recover a good deal before Easterners are hungry for prairie villa lots again.

Quebec newspaper publishers are generally before the courts in the character of defendants in libel suits arising out of the animated kinds of politics they have in the Ancient Capital. Now one is to appear to plead to charges of contempt of court. If the legal profession does not prosper in the city it is not the fault of the press—Gazette.

He further states that he considers the iron deposits in Gloucester county among the best in Canada. He intends visiting Bathurst in the near future and will then be able to learn just what they intend doing in regard to smelting, etc.

Some three or four years ago a company was formed and a charter obtained permitting them to build a railroad from here to the Twin Tree mine. So called from a freak of nature where two fine pine trees hang but one top stand directly behind the camp. Steps are now being taken to have some alterations made in the charter after which the company will proceed to carry out the plan for which it was organized.

BURGLAR HELPS TO FIGHT FIRE

Night Raiders Capture a Young Wife on Wedding Day

KEEP HER PRISONER

DUBLIN, Tuesday.—Mrs. Robert Flynn, a three weeks bride, is being kept a prisoner in her father's house at Ballinagare, County Antrim, after she had been kidnapped on her wedding day by a band of Irish night riders, because Flynn refused to marry the girl the village of Ballinagare thought he should wed.

Mrs. Flynn has seen her husband only twice since her wedding, and then the interview took place under surveillance. The young woman will be detained in her prison until Easter Sunday, when she will be allowed to go to her husband's home.

To prevent her escape, her father's house is guarded night and day by the villagers, who add to the bride's misery by blowing horns throughout the evening to prevent her sleeping.

The fire of the village against the couple was aroused because Flynn jilted another girl. The night riders abducted Mrs. Flynn immediately after the marriage and commanded her father to take her in. The girl's father dared not disobey for fear of violence.

LONDON, Tuesday.—George Cook, 23 years of age, a laborer was charged on his own confession at Stratford police court with being concerned in breaking and entering the St. Margaret's mission hall, and stealing chairs, carpets and other articles to the value of $14.75, the property of the Rev. Charles Ridsdale. He was also charged on his own confession with maliciously setting fire to the hall.

Subdivisional Inspector Parker said Cook volunteered a statement in which he explained that he and another man broke into the mission hall between 12.30 and 1 o'clock on Tuesday morning, March 2.

Subsequently he set fire to a clothes basket, on the top of which when it was well alight, he placed some chairs. The prisoner proceeded: "We then took some chairs, a big carpet, a pair of boxing gloves and a belt and put them on my job's pony barrow. I said to him: 'I shall go back and see that it burns to the ground.' He then drove away. I went back to the mission hall and pulled all the curtains down, and then in the middle of the hall and set fire to them. When I saw it was all right I tried to get out by the front door, but I found it locked. I had to run past the fire to get out."

I stopped till I saw the fire coming through the roof, and then went to Leytonstone station and rang the fire alarm. I told the firemen there was a fire at St. Margaret's church. I helped to push the fire escape back to the church, and had my head banged up in it by the firemen. They asked me my name and I got 25 shillings for giving the alarm."

Asked whether he objected to a remand, the prisoner said, "I don't care what you do with me." He was remanded.

BRITAIN'S FORMER BELOVED PREMIER HAS PASSED AWAY

A Long and Honored Career Brought to a Close—Has Been in Public Life for Nearly Forty Years—A Brief History of His Eventful Life

(Special to the Morning Graphic.)
LONDON, Wednesday.—Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman, former British Premier, died at 9.15 o'clock this morning, at his official residence in Downing street. The end was peaceful.

The cause of Sir Henry's death is officially given as heart failure. Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman resigned the office of Prime Minister on April 5th, suggesting in his letter to King Edward, who was sojourning at Biarritz, Herbert H. Asquith, Chancellor of the Exchequer, and then acting Premier, as his successor. Mr. Asquith was summoned at once by the King and received the appointment a few days later.

Sir Henry was born September 7th 1836, being the youngest son of the late Sir James Campbell, of Strathcathro, Forfarshire, once Lord Provost of Glasgow. He assumed the additional name under the will of his maternal uncle, the late Henry Bannerman, of Hutton Court, Kent, who bequeathed to him a large estate. He attended Glasgow University and Trinity College, Cambridge. In 1860 he married Charlotte, daughter of Major General Sir Charles Druce. She died in 1906 and since then Sir Henry's decline in health may be dated. For nearly forty years he sat for the same seat, the Stirling Burghs, and his record of office goes back to 1871, when he was Financial Secretary to the War Office, which post he held a second time from 1880 to 1882.

MANY DOWN WITH PLEURISY.
Doctors say this country is full of it. First comes a chill, then cold develops—the inflammation grows—you can't draw a long breath—lungs and sides get sore, and pleurisy sets in. A good home-cure consists in taking twenty drops of Nervine, and when warmth and circulation are established, put a Nervine Plaster over the aching spot. Nervine treatment is always successful in colds, neuralgia and pleurisy. Try it yourself.

Ross conferred yesterday, stated he was still hopeful of a settlement. He said he did not think that the idea of a settlement without a further legal fight had been given up.

There are hundreds of poker games running night and day in New York, where patrimony is weakened and family plate being hurried to pawnshops. ## MANY KILLED IN TRAIN WRECK

Forty Two Dead Bodies Recovered From Railway Wreck

OTHERS MISSING

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.—Forty-four bodies have been taken out of the wreckage caused by the railroad collision at Braybrook Junction, near Melbourne, April 18. It is believed that several others are still buried beneath the debris. The number of persons injured is placed at eighty-eight. Many of the victims in the train from Halarat were just settling in their seats when the crash came. The conductor had just signalled to the engineer to start and was in the act of stepping into the car when he saw the approaching Bendigo train. He sprang aside in time to save himself. The station was in darkness and a scene of indescribable horror followed the collision. Three of the cars took fire and many of the victims were burned beyond recognition. A member of the first brigade found the bodies of his two sisters buried in the wreckage.

An eye witness to the disaster says that some resembled that of a battle field. Several of the victims died as they were being lifted from the wreckage.

The driver of the Bendigo train says that he saw signals and when the brakes refused to work he reversed the engine, but was unable to check the train.

NEW YORK WOMEN GAMBLING CRAZED.

Thousands of Them said to Have Come Addicted to Poker Play Night and Day.

NEW YORK, Monday.—The World says: Thousands of the women of New York are gambling crazed. The World or several weeks past, has conducted a quiet but thorough investigation, and the most astonishing facts were unearthed about the extent of the epidemic of gambling that now rages among women in this city. It is growing every day. There seems to be no check to its disastrous progress.

There are hundreds of poker games running night and day in New York, where patrimony is weakened and family plate being hurried to pawnshops. No count can be taken of the calamity to domestic life which is attributed to the disposition of women to gamble with cards. Poker games and bridge whist parties are formed weeks in advance.

In many of the Broadway hotels there are organized each day companies of men and women who indulge in draw poker and bridge with a view to helping out household expenses from a visitation of Dame Fortune.

There are scores of women living on the profits of this passion in New York today. These same are the heads of establishments in apartment or brown stone front houses in quiet neighborhoods. Their percentage of the profits of the game enables them to live luxuriously.

SHOULD BE REMEDIED

The Sackville Post in its report of the Board of Trade meeting held recently says:

Dr. Andrews reporting for the committee on Forestry and Farming spoke of the great need of marsh improvement and in this connection stated that farmers in this part of the country should if possible be induced to sell less hay and produce more beef. The lands would be enriched and made capable of producing larger crops.

Dr. Andrews declared that $600,000 worth of feed is brought into the lower provinces every year because the farmers of these provinces are unable to supply the demand. The speaker also thought this was a very serious reflection upon the farmers of the lower provinces. Such a condition of things should be remedied as speedily as possible. This report was discussed briefly by B. M. Plawett, Ashley George and others.

ROMANCE OF A MARITIME MAN

Quarrelled With Friends and Took New Name in the West

STRUCK IT RICH

Not frequently the story of the lad who ran away from home and made his fortune has been utilized in the drama as the framework of romance and tragedy. In this province, when people are wont to regard such achievements almost wholly as the time worn fragments of the playwright's creative interest to justify the old adage that truth is stronger than fiction.

Just such a case in life is that of Thomas McManus, a multi-millionaire of the Western States, uncle of Mr. E. McManus, Ottawa, who will return to his old home in St. John, N. B., from which he ran away after a quarrel with his father some fifty years ago.

As a young man, Thomas McManus taught school on Loch Lomond road, near St. John. In a fit of rage he left his home and worked his way west until he reached the gold fields of Colorado.

Fortune smiled not upon him immediately but he ultimately fell in with a millionaire named McGinnis who took a decided fancy to the young man and adopted him as a son, the name McManus being changed to that of his benefactor. For years he has lived in luxury in the west the owner of mines and all wells.

Two years ago a strange longing for his old home seized the wanderer and he wrote the postmaster in St. John concerning his relatives. With the gratuity of the postmaster the secret became public. The relatives sent a nephew to the address from which the letter was sent and he was received with open arms. He was given a large sum of money to keep society and departed. Another nephew was sent on the same quest and he too, fared well.

But when nephew No. 3 arrived on the scene, the old gentleman, evidently fearing a migration of the entire family, soured on the nephew scheme and sent the young man on his homeward journey empty handed.

Two brothers residing in the west have known the identity of their brother for some time and a reconciliation has been effected. The brothers still reside in Montanacook, N. B., and Terence is located at Duluth, Minn.
