Death of James Harris.

James Harris, a prominent citizen of Glencoe for many years, passed away on Monday in Victoria Hospital, London, where he had gone a week before for treatment. But few of his friends knew that Mr. Harris was in ill health, and intimation of his death was much of a surprise.

Mr. Harris had but a few days ago entered upon his 72nd year. He came to Glencoe upwards of fifty years ago and in company with his three brothers carried on a wagon-making and blacksmith business. He took an active interest in public matters, serving for several terms in the municipal council and on the school boards, and was a member of the municipal council at the time of his death. He was prominent also as a Mason and an Odd-fellow, having recently been made an honorary member of Lorne Lodge, A. F. & A. M., and held a veteran's sword presented by the Oddfellows. He was also an elder in the Presbyterian church.

Mr. Harris is survived by his wife and two sons and three daughters. The sons are Dr. Wm. Harris of Buffalo, and the daughters are Mrs. Colquhoun of Keewatin and Misses Lizzie and Phyllis at home. One brother and three sisters also survive—Samuel Harris of Hamilton, Mrs. Hillman of Chatham, Mrs. Spenceley of Winnipeg and Mrs. Kemp of Oshawa.

The funeral was from the family residence to Oakland cemetery Wednesday afternoon and was in charge of the Masonic fraternity.

British Red Cross.

The following additional contributions to the British Red Cross fund are acknowledged by A. E. Sutherland, local treasurer:

High School Notes.

The meeting of the G. H. S. Literary Society was called to order by the president on Thursday afternoon, November 16th. The secretary's report was read and adopted, after which the following program was given:—Debate, "Resolved that women should have votes." Affirmative—Earl McDonald, Ernest McKellar; negative—Winnifred McVicar, Marion Dean.

Instrumental duet, Miss Baird and Miss McNaughton. The judges gave their decision in favor of the affirmative. The reading of the G. H. S. paper, "The Oracle." Critic's report by Harry Moss. The meeting closed with the National Anthem.

Bazaar and Cooking Sale.

The ladies of the Presbyterian church will hold a bazaar and cooking sale in Mr. Barker's store on Saturday, Dec. 2nd, from 3 to 6 o'clock. Kitchen and tea and various other articles suitable for Christmas gifts will be on sale, also homemade candy and all kinds of baking.

Cake and cup of tea served for ten cents.

Those contributing articles to the bazaar are asked to send their contributions to Mr. Barker's store before 3 o'clock on above date.

EXFRID STATION.

District and General.

The Western Fair had a surplus of $7,000.

Next Thursday is Thanksgiving Day in the United States.

A foot of snow has fallen in Wingham and the sleighing is good.
Pe-To-Geesic, a Walpole Island Indian, died last week aged 115 years.
Wm. McLennan, a West Lorne soldier, is reported wounded in the right leg.

Rowland Heath, a Wardsville soldier, is recovering from wounds received in battle.
Hon. James S. Duff, Ontario Minister of Agriculture, died suddenly at Alliston on Friday.

A Bothwell landlord got rid of an undesirable tenant by removing the sash from the windows.

The British House of Commons will be asked to prohibit the manufacture of liquor in the old land.

Ten thousand parcels containing Christmas gifts for soldiers were mailed at London in ten days.

Farmers in the vicinity of Tillsonburg are watching their barns at night with loaded gun in hand.

The temperature has been as low as 18 degrees below zero already this season in some parts of Alberta.

Miss Lizzie McCallum of Wallace, Ont., is totally blind, knitted a pair of socks for the soldiers in a day.

The Arkona cheese factory sold their output a few days ago for 23 cents per lb., the highest price in the factory's history.

John Schwartz, a farmer near Clinton, has sold 1,000 bushels of beans for which he received $5,500, and has still a large quantity left.

Lillian May Ormerod and Arthur Morcom of Alvington were united in marriage at the manse in that place on Wednesday of last week.

Fred Schultz, a Wabash brakeman from St. Thomas, had an arm and leg taken off when he fell under a car at Stony Point. He has since died.

Municipal matters are very quiet in Dunwich this year. The old council is believed to seek re-election and will in all probability be elected by acclamation.

Horatio Parker, Colchester South, was given $50 by the council to cover damages sustained by his threshing outfit which broke through a bridge in the township.

George Grainger of St. Thomas, a Wabash conductor, was fined $1 and $3 costs at Thamesville for obstructing a public road crossing with his train for more than five minutes.

William Tolmie, farmer, receiver of Aldborough township, was nominated by the Liberals of West Elgin for the Federal seat, Dr. C. C. Lumley, dentist, St. Thomas, for the Provincial.

West Lorne Sun.—F. McLarty threshed for Dan Grey 85 bushels of yellow eye beans which were grown on three and a half acres. This is a record crop for this or any other year.

Dr. J. B. Martin, M. P. of Alvington, has disposed of his practice to Dr. Brandon, who formerly practiced at Watford, and for the past fourteen months has been with the army medical corps in the base hospital in France.

Boots and shoes will retail at $20 to $30 a pair in the near future, according to predictions of the leading leather and shoe manufacturers and retailers of Boston. High leather shoes will soon pass and cloth tops will soon be all the rage, they say.

Mr. and Mrs. George Lewis of Metcalfe were pleasantly surprised when a large number of their friends and neighbors gathered to spend a social hour at their home in Strathroy. An address was read and the esteemed couple were presented with a beautiful mahogany chimes clock.

Two men were injured, one perhaps fatally, as the result of a rear-end collision between two Grand Trunk freight trains near Kingscourt on Sunday morning. The most seriously injured was a workman from Hamilton named Joseph Levinsky, who was struck on the head by a locomotive smokestack which broke as it was being hoisted by a steam derrick.

While D. J. McEachern was sawing logs of timber in his mill at Alvington he suddenly threw the machine into reverse, causing the fly wheel on the engine to break into several pieces. One piece crashed through Mr. Shaw's house across the road and another went through the roof of the mill and dropped into Mr. Nicholson's store. Fortunately no one was injured.

The Petrolia Advertiser says:—Some seventy-five farmers in Ennisville, Sarnia and Brooke townships have signed agreements with the Lambton Flax Co. to accept fifty per cent. of the value of their flax, same to be payable now, the balance to be paid at a later date. One farmer refused to sign. This, so far as the growers themselves are concerned, settles the matter.

The International Limited train on the Grand Trunk, running two hours behind time on Wednesday night of last week, struck an auto party at a street crossing in Thamesville, killing Nellie Allcock, aged 15 years, a ward of the Stratford orphanage, adopted by George R. Fish seven years ago; Allan Harris, driver of the car, and Erna Jean Harris, 12 years old, of Camden township. John and Gladys Harris were hurt but are recovering.

The Harris boys and their sisters had driven their teacher to her home in Thamesville after practice for a Christmas entertainment and were returning home when the accident occurred. The driver of the car evidently had become confused when about to cross the track.

Seeking Oil in Mosa.

Mr. Carman of Los Angeles has been leasing lands in Mosa township for oil purposes, and after testing the rock in several localities by shallow borings, has placed a deep well apparatus on the farm of Lachlan McLean, north half 8, con. 5, and will begin drilling in a few days. Mr. Carman is one of the old-time oil men and was one of the first to operate in the Bothwell oil fields. He has had both experience and success, more recently in California, basing his prospects for oil on geological readings.

Thresher's Terrible Death.

John Lodge of Dutton met with a terrible death Monday night when his body was almost cut in two by cogwheels or gears on the top of a threshing engine, about two miles from Dutton on the farm of Neil McKellar. Mr. Lodge had just drawn his outfit into Mr. McKellar's place, and was setting it up ready for an early start in the morning. He was going to uncouple the separator from the tractor while the engine was running, when it occurred to him that the brakes of his engine needed some adjusting. He mounted one of the wheels, and when leaning over his coat became caught in the cogwheels and he was drawn through a set of gears, being almost cut in two at the centre of his body. He lived for about 45 minutes.

Mr. Lodge was about 38 years of age, and the best-known thresher in the townships of Dunwich, Aldborough and Southwold, having operated the machinery of his father for upwards of twenty years.

Two Dry Months.

The whisky bar has been out of business in this province for two months, and it is out to stay. There is no argument on the matter: the results of prohibition speak for themselves. Men who were strongly opposed to the measure and refused to support it in any way, are converts today. Women and children are clothed and fed today, who once were cold and hungry before the coming of the dry law. Prohibition is humanity; the whisky bar is the devil's own curse. —St. Thomas Journal.

Bazaar and Chicken Supper

The ladies of St. John's church will hold their annual bazaar and chicken supper in the schoolroom on Friday afternoon, November 24th.

There will be a stall of useful articles, also a homemade candy booth. A fine branpie will be ready for the little folks at 10c a draw.

Bazaar opens at 3 o'clock. Chicken Supper from 6 to 8, price 35c. 38-3

Anniversary Services.

Rev. Professor Wright, M. A., of Huron College, will preach next Sunday at the anniversary services in both St. John's and St. Alban's (Appin) churches. Professor Wright is well known to Glencoe and we trust will receive a hearty welcome. Special music at both morning and evening services.

Clearing sale of fall and winter millinery, beginning Saturday, Nov. 25, at W. Bayne's, Newbury.

Sidelights on Fall Fairs.

The following letter, timely and much to the point, is from the Farmer's Advocate:

To the Editor:—Now that the Fall Fairs are over and directors are being appointed for another year it may not be out of place to make some suggestions.

In a part of Western Ontario horse-racing has become one of the chief features of Fall Fairs. Indeed I think that the tendency is in this direction in many parts of Ontario. I speak however with reference to one fair I have attended for a number of years. It is a centre for a very large district and draws a large crowd. Here horse-racing is made the main feature of the day. The track is made fairly large in order to be suitable for speeding. They have each year two races with three heats in each. Of the horses taking part few, if any of them, are bred in the district for the district is given over to the raising of heavy horses almost entirely. This means that the horse racing is not in any real sense a display of farm products for the district. The people can have very little interest in it except that all have more or less liking for a contest in endurance.

Now for my part I think that a Fall Fair to be really beneficial should be a display of the products of the community. The idea of a Fall Fair is not merely to amuse the people. One great benefit of it is that it lets one man know what the other is doing and horse racing under these conditions does not do this. Hence it does not involve competition in the raising of home products. Another great benefit of the fair is that it brings country and town people together, letting the town people see what the country people are doing. Horse racing as a hobby does not do this. It ought also to educate.

It does not do these things because where there is horse racing there is little else in view. A fair that runs for this one does, from about 1.30 p. m. to 3.30 p. m., and runs off six heats three times around the track in that time does not leave room for much else, especially when it takes about five minutes to get to the judges' stand. The track is engaged almost all the time, either racing horses or warming them up for the race. The result is that the large display of heavy and light horses and judges' stands in the centre of the large ring, scarcely ever making an appearance on the outside ring. The crowd are not likely to look past a racing horse to see a fine Clydesdale class judged, or to see that they would get more real benefit if they did. The trouble is that the obstruction should not be there.

Away off in a corner of the yard are two or three large pens where drove of cattle are herded together and judged without ever being led into a ring and sometimes without even being separated from the herd. I have seldom if ever seen twenty men watching the judging at one time. Sheep and hogs are judged in much the same indifferent fashion.

Now I am not writing to condemn horse racing but under these conditions I do condemn it. The six horses that won money in those two races carried off a large percentage of the money given for prizes and they were an ill lot to look at. They held the attention of the crowd, which might have got a good education in stock judging and an inspiration to go home and do better things. The people went home without getting any real benefit from their afternoon off.

If we must have racing with regular harness and race harness put it by itself on a separate day. At least let the Fall Fair an appearance of being a Farmer's Fair or better still a Community Fair, including the products of the village. In this day of ours when we seem to need so much amusement we are apt to forget that we need education as well.

I was driven to write this because I see too many districts in which horse racing but under these conditions I do condemn it. ## About the House

Useful Hints and General Information for the Busy Housewife

Meat Dishes.

Little "Turkeys."—Split pork tenderloins lengthwise, but do not quite separate them. Fill them with a good bread dressing, seasoned to taste; fasten the sides together with sharp toothpicks, then bake the "turkeys" for twenty-five minutes in a pan in which there is enough water to cover the bottom. Serve them with a gravy made from the liquor left in the pan.

Smothered Sausages.—You may use either fresh or cured sausages. If you use the cured ones, remember to prick them where you place them in the pan. If you use fresh sausage meat, mould it into small, flat cakes and place these in the bottom of a greased, baking pan. Add a layer of seasoned mashed potatoes. Then cover all with two well-beaten eggs, dust with fine bread or cracker crumbs, and bake the dish in a moderate oven for half an hour.

Jugged Rabbit.—Wash and disembowel the rabbit, then wipe each piece dry. Into a stone baking dish slice one large onion, and add half a teaspoonful of salt, a sprinkling of black pepper and a little Cayenne. Put the rabbit into the dish, add two tablespoonsful of cider vinegar, and cover the meat with small pieces of bacon. Now pour over it enough hot water to cover it well, cover the dish, and let it remain in a slow oven. When you are ready to serve the rabbit, pile it in the centre of a deep platter, thicken the gravy and pour it round the meat.

Beef Roast.—Cut a thin slice of round steak into six strips, lay each piece on the meat board and cover it with a strip of thinly sliced bacon. Add a seasoning of salt, pepper and sweet herbs or onion juice. Roll up each strip and tie it securely; then dredge it in flour. Put a teaspoonful of butter in the frying pan and when it is very hot lay the rolls in it. Fry them until they are brown, then add three quarters of a glass of hot water. Cover the pan and cook the meat slowly until the beef is very tender. Serve the strips hot with the gravy poured over them.

Baked Calves' Hearts.—Wash the hearts thoroughly inside and out, then fill the cavities with a dressing made of stale bread crumbs, melted butter and hot water, seasoned with salt and pepper. When you have filled the cavities fasten the openings with thread. Dust the hearts with salt and pepper, and arrange them in a baking dish, in which there is a cupful of hot water. Sprinkle over the surface of the water one cupful of minced celery and green pepper. Cover the hearts and bake them slowly, basting them frequently with the water. The flavor added by the celery and green pepper is delicious.

Capon of Pork.—Have a prime leg of young pork boned. Fill the cavity with equal parts of finely chopped apple and celery, then sew it up and tie it carefully. Plunge it into well-salted boiling water. Add the outer stalks and leaves of a head of celery, two bay leaves, and one cupful of cider vinegar. Let the meat boil gradually until the skin begins to crack, then remove it from the water, peel off the skin and press into the fat two dozen whole peppercorns. Cover all the fat and lean part of the meat with a paste made by mixing together one cupful of flour, two thirds of a cupful of brown sugar, four tablespoonsful of evaporated horseradish, and sufficient cider vinegar to make the mixture stiff. Then place the meat in a rather slow oven, fat side up, and bake it until paste and fat are browned through. Serve it either hot or cold.

Unusual Potato Recipes.

You may feel altogether like having potatoes at two meals out of three during these days of sharpened appetite, but, of course, you don't want them served in the same way. No, not even the homely changes of boiled, baked, mashed or fried are sufficient if you eat potatoes often enough. There is no reason why you should not have the wholesome, substantial tuber regularly and frequently. When ordinary serving of potatoes begins to pall, try some of these recipes:

Cheese Potatoes.—Scrub the potatoes and cut them in half. Spread each half with a little butter, sprinkle with pepper and salt and place a slice of cheese on top. Put on a slightly greased pan and bake in a hot oven until soft and nicely browned.

Stuffed Cream Potatoes.—Make a potato case by peeling and slightly hollowing out some potatoes of even size. Boil them in salted water until tender, when they can be drained and filled. Fill either with hot butter, cream, as desired. Then pour over a dressing consisting of hot cream seasoned with salt, pepper and a dash of paprika.

Potato Dressing.—One cupful of tomatoes, one-half cupful of shredded pimientos, one-half cupful of mushrooms, two tablespoonsful of chopped onions, two tablespoonsful of flour, two tablespoonsful of butter, salt, pepper, paprika. Boil tomatoes, mushrooms, pimiento and onion together, then add seasoning and thicken with the flour and butter rubbed to a cream. Stir until smooth.

Sweet Potato Soup.—Two cupfuls of milk, two cupfuls of stock, one-mashed sweet potato, one tablespoonful of flour, one-half tablespoonful of butter, one-half teaspoonful of onion juice, one-half teaspoonful of salt, one-half teaspoonful of pepper, one small stick of cinnamon. Mix butter and flour in double boiler, add milk, stock and seasoning and stir over fire until it thickens. Then add sweet potato. Strain into soup dishes and serve with a sprinkling of parsley and a dash of nutmeg.

Household Hints.

Cakes without butter require a quick oven.

Medicine stains can be removed from linen with strong ammonia.

Never move a cake in the oven until the centre is thoroughly set.

Gringer cookies are improved if mixed with coffee instead of water.

French-fried potatoes dipped in cornmeal before frying are excellent.

To make perfect tea, remember—good tea, boiling water and a hot teapot.

When mixing a cake, never beat the butter, sugar or eggs in a tin-basin.

A bit of vaseline will remove milk-dew or stains from any kind of leather.

Toothbrushes should be dried in the open air and the sun should shine on them.

A pinch of salt in the whites of eggs will make them beat much more quickly.

The important point about making good coffee is to use the water at the first boil.

Milk will not boil over if the sauce pan is battered on the upper part and edge.

Cane chairs can be cleaned by sponging them until soaked with soap and hot water.

White paint is best cleaned with a cloth squeezed out in hot water and dipped in a little bran.

Iron garments which have buttons by laying them face down on a thickly folded sheet or Turkish towel.

To make a faded dress white, boil it in two gallons of water in which a half-cupful of tartar is dissolved.

Apples, cored and filled with chopped dates or figs, then baked, make an excellent breakfast dish.

When washing real lace, let the final rinsing be in skim milk, if you would give it a soft, creamy tone.

Always butter the saucepan macaroni is to be cooked in. This will prevent its sticking and burning.

Do not use the best cuts of meat for stews and hashes. Shin of beef and neck of mutton are the best for these.

It helps greatly on ironing day to have two or three sizes of irons, including a tiny one to get into the gathers.

When making tea the quality of the tea will be improved if the tea pot is rinsed with hot water just before using.

When using stale bread for stuffings or puddings, always soak it in cold water, not hot, and squeeze it dry as possible.

McDONALD IS NOW MAJOR "FOGHORN"

CANADIAN PRIVATE AT 53 WINS PROMOTION.

One of the Big Human Personalities of War Turns Up In London.

"Foghorn" McDonald admits he's as "Scotch as oatmeal," but what he doesn't have to admit is that he is beyond doubt the best known man in the wonderful army Canada has sent over to fight for the mother country, writes an Associated Press correspondent from London. The rawest rookie in the rearmost ranks of the Dominion forces proclaims it on the fighting line and looks up to this world wandering scion of the clan McDonald as a shining example of what a lowly "buck" can do in trying times like these.

For "Foghorn" came over as a private himself just two short years ago. Some of his home folks told him he was a "darned old fool" to enlist at 53, but "Foghorn" had been a miner all his days. He had hit the Western trail from sun-baked Batopilas in the wilds of Mexico to the snow-shrouded valleys of the Yukon, and he knew what perseverance and pluck and courage and sacrifice could do.

He knew he would "make the grade," and so did a great crowd of his friends who gathered a day or two ago to "wet" that new third stripe and crown on the cuffs of his khaki army jacket. He was back from the front to receive this latest promotion, and he was toasted a major of his Majesty's forces.

Voice Is a Low Rumble.

"Foghorn" was born Neil Roderick McDonald, but there are comparatively few who know him by that distinguished name. It's just plain "Foghorn" nowadays from one end of the trenches to the other, and one careful of that low rumbling, window-shattering, rock-shivering voice explores all the possible doubt, as to the derivation of the nickname.

There are plenty of Germans who know "Foghorn," too. In the days of the deadlock, when trenches crept closer and closer together, he was one of those who burrowed beneath the earth and set off great mines under the enemy. He had not been a mining engineer in vain. Often his voice would go booming across "No Man's Land" hurling picturesque invectives at the Germans.

"Not to know 'Foghorn' McDonald is to miss one of the big human personalities of this war. It is not difficult to realize what a tower of encouragement and strength he is to the soldiers at the front.

"He is the sort of officer whose men would follow him to the gates of hell itself and walk in laughing," declared Major "Eddie" Holland, a long-time friend and a "V.C." of the South African war.

"And speaking of hell," he added, "there may or may not be something in the fact that Foghorn belongs to the Black Devils."

That is the name the Germans have given the Eighth Battalion, Canadian Infantry, and the battalion has adopted as its insignia a small black imp dancing in glee. They were delighted with the appellation and are living up to it according to all reports from the Somme.

He's Not Afraid of Any Man.

It has been said of Foghorn that he's not afraid of any man—and very few women. His home is in the great American West. He has lived much in the United States and almost every province in Canada can claim him as her own. His heart is as big as the world in which he has lived, and he has a way of calling a superior officer "Bill" or "Jim" or "George" and referring to a corporal as a "brother officer" that is quite baffling to the Englishman's idea of discipline. Some one spoke to "Fog" about it.

"Well, sir," he explained, "it's a man's war, sir, and I respect every mother's son who's out there doing his bit. I was a full-fledged 'buck' myself once, and I know what they have to go through."

"Foghorn" has been serving for some time as transport officer of the "Black Devils" and has been riding about the front lines on what he describes himself as "a mighty fine hoss." Where he got the horse he will not tell you. "It wouldn't be passed by the censor," he says.

A good transport officer tries to keep his losses at a minimum and to make the deficiencies good as quickly as he can. "Foghorn" had his men in the Black Devils trained to the minute in that respect.

"One night," he said, "we were taking some loads of ammunition away up in front. It was blacker than the ace of spades and if you struck a match you'd get your eye shot out. But in the midst of this blackness and the shelling we were getting I heard one of my men say to his partner: 'Keep your eye out for a good hoss, Bill; this ought to be a good night to get one.'"

Served in Spanish War.

"Foghorn" served for a time as an officer in the United States army—the Third Volunteer Cavalry of the Spanish war.

"I think the officer commanding our regiment had fifteen or twenty million dollars," said "Foghorn"; "I had $1.35 myself."

A day or two ago a staff Colonel, fresh from Canada, walked into the Savoy "Club."

"Hello, Foghorn," he called out; "I heard you a couple of blocks down the street and came in to see you. Do you remember me?"

"Remember you?" repeated "Fog," "why bless your brass-hatted old soul, I'd know your hide in a tan yard."

A "brass hat" is the army name for all staff officers, and it comes, of course, from the abundance of gold braid they wear on their caps.

Some one asked how things were going at the front.

"Going?" said "Fog," "why the boys are getting so gay out there one of our battalions came parading up to the front line trenches the other day with a brass band playing for all it was worth. They were right where you could get killed any minute, too, and even my old hoss thought they were crazy."

"Guess I'll be getting back to the front soon myself," he concluded with a sigh; "this quiet life of London is getting on my nerves."

THE FASHIONS

It is especially true this autumn that variety is one of the greatest charms of the styles. Although those who have been looking for revolutionary changes in the fashions have, no doubt, been disappointed, they will certainly admit that the diversity in the present styles more than makes up for the absence of anything that might be called radically different. Fresh interest is always being aroused by the clever variations of the present straight, full silhouette that meets the eye at every turn.

Although the general rule is full, straight-hanging skirts, there are dozens and dozens of skirts of this type which differ widely one from the other. One of the most noticeable features which accounts for some of the differences is the uneven hem advocated by many of the Parisian houses. In some skirts the effect is obtained by a gradual lengthening at the back. In others, panels at the front and back or at the sides hang several inches below the hem of the skirt. When fur is used to edge skirts of this type, it may be placed at the edges of the panels or the sides of the skirt, but not all around; and this is another means of varying the placing of fur banding of skirts. Some of the French designers who lay particular stress on the uneven hem are Callot, Balloz, Agnes and Beer.

Not only skirts but coats, too, are marked by the uneven hem. Not a few drop at the sides, while the front and back are even, and some coats with full, rippling pleurals are a good deal longer in the back than in the front.

Another theme which has had no end of variations is that of the pocket. Through the long life of the pocket, it has been truly amazing to watch the resources of the designers, who have never lacked in bringing out something novel in this direction. And, still, bone buttons and very large gathered pockets. Few women will be satisfied without one of these practical coats, which may be used in all kinds of weather.

KRUPP'S NEW SCHEME.

Plan to Make Germany the First Shipping Power.

Mr. C. W. Brett, managing director of Barimar, Ltd., scientific welding engineers, writes as follows in the London Chronicle:

Germany's intention to obtain an initial advantage in the fight for the world's trade is plainly seen in the social and economic reconstruction that has been proceeding throughout the Fatherland side by side with the country's gigantic efforts on all the war fronts. In nothing is this idea of Germany more plainly seen than in the latest scheme announced, by which the great armoring firm of Krupp, with its scores of thousands of mechanics, is to be linked up with the North German Lloyd Steamship lines. The Essen firm has now purchased an interest in the steamship company, and one of its directors is to have a seat on the board.

This adroit move is not a mere private commercial transaction. It has a much wider significance of which we, in this country, should take due note. While Teuton submarines have been busily engaged sending to the bottom as many British ships as possible, existing German craft have been safely interned in home or neutral ports. Meanwhile German shipbuilders have been steadily building new vessels for the mercantile marine, some of them of 20,000 tonnage.

It is Germany's ambition to emerge from the war, even if beaten, as the first shipping power in the world, and the new link forged between Essen works and Bremen ships is another move in a well-matured plan to realize this aim.

Getting Their Coat.

The useful but pernicious goat could be bought in Germany before the war for a sum varying between 20 and 25 marks ($4.75 and $5.95). Now would-be purchasers have to part with 200 marks ($41.60) before they can obtain their favorite article of diet. In this connection a Berlin newspaper cites the case of a person who advertised that he had a goat for sale on war terms. The next day he received 46 postal orders for 200 marks, but when the "lamb" called at his house they found neither goat nor vendor.

A loss of dollars sometimes brings the spendthrift to his senses.

A Heavy Coat For All Kinds of Weather

Children's Fashions
Children are not neglected, by any means, by those who set the models. A great deal of attention is given to their clothes, which to a certain degree follow the fashions of their elders.

The Russian blouse style is frequently employed for youngsters, both for school and afternoon frocks. Both plump and slender girls can wear this style becomingly.

To vary the long coat, which is always an essential item of the girl's wardrobe, smart little coat suits are now being worn as well. For dressy wear these are of velvet, wool velours and duvety, and for general use they are of serge, gabardine, checks and mixtures.

Embroidery in colored silks, wools and beads is as popular for young girls as for women. They also have as wide a choice in dress materials and colors. Green, dark brown, deep red, and blues, of all shades, are used for their coats and frocks.

These patterns may be obtained from your Local McCall Dealer or from the McCall Company 70 Bond Street, Toronto, Ontario, "Dept. W."

Afternoon Dress of Satin with Draped Skirt

new treatments are seen every day, for large and small pockets are still the vogue on garments of every kind and for every occasion, from the simple, tailored waists and skirts to the most dressy frocks and suits.

In afternoon frocks, a most charming effect is the soft side drapery on skirts, falling like a cascade. This style is exceedingly graceful in soft satins, silks, chiffon velvets and even in the pliant serges and other soft woollens. The dress shown here illustrates this pretty mode. It is fashioned of soft satin with a collar of fur cloth and a banding of fur around the edge of the skirt. The waist is in jumper effect outlined with

OLD BRITISH ARMY SOLDIERS

MANY OF THEM STILL IN THE SERVICE.

They Did Not Disappear, Worn Out, As It Was Generally Supposed.

What has happened to the old British army which fought at Mons? The general public thinks of it as a force now greatly multiplied but still fighting out battles on the line from the Yser to the Somme. As a matter of fact the old army, as an army, disappeared long ago. They did not disappear, a worn-out, decimated remnant utterly exhausted by the retreat and the subsequent thrust of the Marne, and Aisne, as those at home seem to think. Instead, they have gradually been swallowed up by death and the new armies.

Because of the individuals making up the heroic little band of French's command have slipped out of the newspapers and the public eye it does not mean that they are all dead or out of the service. The casualties suffered by the original British expeditionary force was singularly light as one counts casualties to-day. When trench warfare began a large number of men from Mons were still in line. The greater part of those veterans who have laid their arms aside because of death, sickness, or wounds have done so since the deadlock came.

What They Are Doing.

Taken on the whole a surprisingly large percentage of old army officers and men are still in harness. Where are they? Some are drilling recruits in England. The majority of the rest have finished fighting and are working at the base and in railway stations, supply centres, ammunition depots, repair shops, offices, canteens, and similar places.

The officers, with the exception of a few who still lead men into battle, have left the trenches and, rising to big things, occupy the high positions to which their superior experience, knowledge, and training entitle them. Those who have remained with the combatant troops have been promoted to ranks of which they never dreamed in days of peace.

The men do odd jobs around the base. They help the railway transport officers—veterans these—in their work. They superintend the handling of ammunition, guns, rifles, wagons, clothing, and all the countless equipment of an army in the field. They do orderly-room work. And a few of them act as servants to the officers with whom they did duty before the war.

Leading New Armies.

Sometimes the masters and the servants speak of old times together, but very seldom. As the officer dresses a regiment goes by the window of his billet. With his servant he watches them until the last man has passed and the wail of the life has died in the distance.

"Well, what do you think of them, Jones?" the officer asks.

"Them?" Jones says. "Oh, they're all right, sir. But," impressively, "they're not the boys as we used to meet on Salisbury Plain!"

"No, they are not."

And then they change the subject, lest it should conjure up sad thoughts.

Those who led the old army are leading the new armies to-day. They have seen their battalions swell to brigades and their brigades to divisions. They have taken the raw youth of the British Islands and watched them gradually change from ignorant civilians to hard, rough troops very nearly the equal of the men they used to command.

OXYGEN ODDLY APPLIED.

Replaces Bandages in London Military Hospital.

Many wonderful examples of new and approved appliances and methods of treatment are to be seen at the military hospitals. In an interesting article a London correspondent thus describes some of them:

At Queen Alexandra's Military Hospital I saw several patients undergoing a new healing treatment. Two of these men were most severely wounded in September of last year, and for ten months had been treated in the customary way without any sign of healing. On August 2 they were brought to Millwall, the bandages were flung away, the wounds were subjected to repeated applications of a stream of ozone, being lightly covered with a loose layer of lint in the intervals, and in four days healing was in rapid progress.

This treatment is simplicity itself. Oxygen passes from a reservoir into an electrical machine which converts it into ozone; the ozone flows out through a fine metal tube. The machine is wheeled close to the patient's bed, the wound uncovered, and a stream of the microbe-killing ozone flows into the deepest recesses. No painful dragging off of bandages, no rebandaging of the limb to hurt and exhaust the patient. I saw here a soldier who had lost his right foot, with a stump covered with skin so healthy and hard that he could walk upon it, a surgical marvel.

YOUNG FOLKS

Old Frosty.

For a long time Katherine did not like old Frosty, the goat. She and Spider, the little fox terrier, were the best of "chums," but who could be "chummy" with a goat that has long horns and that looks as if he might have a bad temper? To be sure, old Frosty had never harmed Katherine or anyone else, but sometimes he shook his head as if he had half a mind to be cross, and once he had actually butted little Spider. Katherine could not forgive that, for Spider was not really a platoon leader—only barking at him in a friendly way.

Every day they tied old Frosty to a stake somewhere in the orchard or in the garden or in the field near the barn, and there he cropped the soft grass until he felt like having a nap. He was fat and well content with life as he found it, except that he never missed a chance to hunt for something new to eat. And who can blame a wise old goat for not wanting to "grub" along on grass all the time? It was old Frosty's appetite for strange foods that finally made Katherine like him better, until at last they became such good friends that even faithful little Spider thought that he had reason to scold Katherine for neglecting him.

The friendship came about in a curious way.

One day at school the teacher said to Katherine, "You really must do your number exercises more neatly." The paper that you handed in to-day was a sight!

The teacher spoke sharply. Perhaps she was tired, for even teachers can get tired, you know. Katherine knew very well that she deserved what the teacher said, but nevertheless it made her sulk, and while she was still feeling sulky she drew just as horrible a picture of the teacher as she could possibly draw. She drew it on a blank page in her reader, and she meant to show it to the other pupils after school. She knew that they would laugh at it. When school let out, however, she was thinking of something else, and so put the book into her bag with her other books without stopping to pass it round.

When Katherine reached home that afternoon the first thing she did was to have a good frolic with Spider, who as usual was eagerly waiting for her. She scarcely gave a glance at old Frosty, who was feeding in the grass near by, and she did not notice that she had thrown down her bag of books within the circle that the goat's rope allowed him to travel.

A moment later she stopped her frolic with a sharp cry. "O Frosty, Frosty, you horrible old beast, what are you doing?" she called, and she ran as near the goat as she really dared to go.

Old Frosty had poked the books out of her bag with his nose, and had begun to chew the pages of one of them. It looked like her reader. Katherine glanced round. No one was in sight—except Spider. She looked at old Frosty and thought hard. Should she be sorry or glad that he was eating one of her books? Should she let him eat it, or should she try to get it away from him?

Suddenly old Frosty solved the problem for her by dropping the book to the ground, although it was plain that he had torn out one of the leaves in doing so. Perhaps the book did not taste so good as he had hoped. Katherine edged a little nearer and then a little nearer. Old Frosty looked at her with mild interest, and all at once Katherine knew that he was a friendly old goat and that he would not harm her. So she stepped quickly forward and picked up the book that he had dropped at his feet—and what do you think she saw?

The leaf that old Frosty had torn from the reader and chewed into small pieces was the blank leaf on which she had drawn the picture of the teacher! Katherine made the discovery with a little gasp. How wise old Frosty looked!

"Oh, I believe old Frosty knew!" exclaimed Katherine. "Of course he did not have drawn that horrible picture, and old Frosty has saved me from trouble by tearing it out before anyone saw it. Perhaps he wants to be friends, after all. And really the reader isn't hurt a bit."

Then she walked straight up to old Frosty and put her arms round his neck and hugged him, and old Frosty acted just as if they had been friends all their lives.

And from that day to this they have kept to themselves the secret of that missing blank leaf, for little Spider never really understood what was going on. And Katherine has drawn no more pictures of her teacher, and has passed in exercises so neatly done that her teacher takes special pains to praise her for them.

TURK AND BOCHE COMPARED.

Former is Brave and Fights Fair, Says Australian Soldier.

Anzacs who have been "through it" in Gallipoli tell me that they have a great respect for the Turk as a fighter, says a writer in the London Morning Post. "Johnny Turk," said a young Australian, "in comparison with the Boche is a gentleman. He fights fair and is a brave man. The German is a swine, who shoots at wounded and helpless men. I've seen him do it. The Turk will fight like the very devil at close quarters. Did you ever hear of the Germans risking their skins in a hand-to-hand encounter with the bayonet? But you can't prove it. Why the moment they see us coming at them with the bayonet they flop down on their knees and squeal like rats. Johnny Turk will stand up to you with the bayonet and fight like a good old tough. All our chaps know that. And Johnny Turk won't give in till you've outed him. If he should prove to be a better or a cleverer man than you at bayonet work—well, you're done in—that's all.

What We Give, We Get

In 1915 and 1916 Ontario contributed more to the Canadian Patriotic Fund than she drew from it, the surplus going to assist those western provinces whose contributions, although exceedingly liberal, did not equal the heavy demands caused by the large enlistment from those provinces. For 1917 the situation will change. The demands from this province on the Fund are estimated to reach six million dollars, and the committee has decided to ask Ontario to raise that amount—in other words, to make provision only for its own people.

The total represents about one million dollars above the contributions for 1916, and therefore there can be no weariness in well-doing on the part of Ontario's patriotic people so far as the Fund is concerned.

FELL FROM LOFT; HURT; THEN WELL

How a Man Who Landed on Wood Pile and Was Sore From Head to Foot Found Quick Relief.

Once upon a time Edwin Putnam, who lives in the quiet, pretty hamlet of Wendell Depot, Mass., climbed up into a loft to get some building material just as many another man living in the country must often do. Suddenly he slipped and fell. Ten feet below was a pile of wood, knotted and charred. It was a nasty tumble, and Mr. Putnam was injured painfully in the back, he was covered with bruises, and was sore from head to foot.

The next day he bought a bottle of Sloan's Liniment which had been recommended to him. Within a very few hours the soreness had vanished and the lameness had disappeared. He was an active man once more.

Sloan's Liniment can be obtained at all drug stores, 25c, 50c, and $1.00.

GERMANY LOST CHANCE TO WIN

Could Have Ravaged British Shipping at Start of War.

Admiral Lord Charles Beresford asserts in a letter to Colonel Robert M. Thompson, president of the Navy League, Washington, that if Germany had taken advantage of her opportunity at the outbreak of the European war, they could have entered Paris and reached St. Petersburg in a short time. "We would have been brought to our knees in a couple of months," says the British admiral.

"We escaped a most appalling danger, for if the Germans had attacked us first without a declaration of war, and sent what they could have sent—140 cruisers and armed merchant ships—on to our unprotected trade routes we would have been brought to our knees in a couple of months. They could have put down a thousand ships in the first week.

"If the Germans had carried out that plan they could have gotten into Paris, compelled peace with France, and then been in St. Petersburg in a short time, and become the dominant Power of Europe and the world possibly for a century."

A TALK ON RHEUMATISM

Telling How to Actually Cure This Common and Painful Malady.

This article is for the man or woman who suffers from rheumatism who wants to be cured, not merely relieved—but actually cured. The most the rheumatic sufferer can hope for in rubbing something on the tender, aching joint, is a little relief. No lotion or liniment ever did or can make a cure. The rheumatic poison is rooted in the blood. Therefore rheumatism can only be cured when this poisonous acid is driven out of the blood. Any doctor will tell you this is true. If you want something that will go right to the root of the trouble in the blood take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. They make new, rich blood which drives out the poisonous acid and cures rheumatism to stay cured. The truth of these statements has been proved in thousands of cases throughout Canada, and the following cure is a striking instance. Mr. Henry Smith, St. Jerome, Que., says: "For upwards of a year I was a victim of rheumatism in a most painful form. The trouble was located in my legs and for a long time I was so bad that I could not walk. The suffering which I endured can only be imagined by those who have been similarly afflicted. Doctors' treatment did not help me and then I began trying other remedies, but with no better results. Finally I was advised to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and although I had begun to lose faith in medicine, I finally decided to give the pills a trial. I am very grateful now that I did so, for after taking eight boxes of the pills the trouble completely disappeared. I was free from pain and could walk as well as ever I did in my life. I have since taken the pills occasionally as a precautionary measure, and I cannot speak too highly in their favor."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills cure all the troubles due to weak, watery blood or broken down nerves. You can get these pills through any dealer in medicine, or by mail postpaid, at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

ARMY DISOBEYING ORDERS.

All French Soldiers Have Become Pipe Smokers.

The startling discovery has just been made that France's famous armies are, almost to the last man, in a state of open rebellion and breach of discipline.

To be more exact, it has just been officially ascertained that there is hardly a "poule" in the whole 5,000,000 men whom France has under arms at the present moment who is not smoking a pipe.

Pipe smoking is one of the severest breaches of discipline in the French army. They were officially tabooed largely on account of the fact that a soldier smoking a pipe cannot possibly salute an officer whom he may chance to meet with the dignity the occasion requires.

The failure of the French officers to note that their men were smoking pipes until the practice had become practically universal is generally attributed to the fact that all have been so busy fighting that the breach of discipline escaped notice.

Now the practice is so universal and so firmly implanted in the ranks of the "poules" that the question of rooting it out presents a serious problem. The men say they were driven to smoking pipes because the tobacco furnished them by the Government doesn't lend itself to cigarette rolling.

Prayers for Soldiers.

Many British towns have just started the practice of having the church bells ring at a certain hour every day to remind the people to pray for the soldiers fighting at the front.

Indirectly.

"Do you ever wake yourself up snoring?"
"It amounts to that. I frequently wake up the baby."

TO END CATARRHAL DEAFNESS AND HEAD NOISES

If you have Catarrhal Deafness or head noises go to your drug-gist and get 1 ounce of Farinon (double strength), and add to it 1 pint of hot water and 4 ounces of granulated sugar. Take 1 tablespoonful four times a day.
This will often bring quick relief from the distressing head noises. Clogged nostrils should be opened, breathing become easy and the mucus stop dripping into the throat. It is easy to prepare, costs little and is pleasant to take. Any one who has Catarrhal Deafness or head noises should give this prescription a trial.

RUSSIA A HIVE OF ACTIVITY.

A Remarkable New Shell Is Being Manufactured.

Under the caption, "The Spirit of the New Russia," the Russian American Journal of Commerce calls attention editorially to what it terms "the feverish activity to be observed throughout the length and breadth of the Russian Empire." All travellers coming out of Russia, it is stated, bear testimony to the wonderful reawakening everywhere noticeable in the empire.

"Americans in particular," the Journal says, "seem most deeply impressed with the changed conditions in Russia and are most sanguine as to the future of that country. They say that there is something akin to the old call of the West in the fast-opening opportunities and the wide-reaching resources of Russia which sends an anxious tinge through the veins of every American business man or prospector who has delved into Russian conditions as they exist to-day and is far-sighted enough to see the prosperity that is in store for the Russian people."

"Factories in Russia are running day and night, turning out munitions of war, clothing, and the varied necessities of the empire's multitudes. Americans have said they were surprised at the large number of factories, especially between Petrograd and Moscow. Other factories are going up with feverish haste, and everywhere it seems to the traveller, railroads are under construction. Many of the lines are new, while others are being double-tracked. Men and women are working side by side on the railroads, the women handling picks and shovels with even greater strength and effect than many of the men."

"The returning Russian travellers bring many and varied stories of the military resources of the empire. One of these is to the effect that not less than 8,000,000 men have been recently sent to the front and that another 9,000,000 are in training. All are imbued with the absolute assurance that the weight of Russian men and material must be the deciding factor in the war. There has been told, too, the story of a new explosive shell being manufactured in Russia after a French formula, but not yet used on the western front—a shell which in exploding spreads over a radius of 300 yards a heat of 3,000 degrees—a withering blast calculated to incinerate all within its fiery reach."

Wars and Seasons.

No great war of our time has ended during the winter months, nor, with the exception of the Russo-Japanese War, has any begun then. For a century all wars have begun in the spring, summer or early autumn and ended between March and August.

Jones (to his grocer)—You seem angry, Mr. Brown.
Brown—I am. The inspector of weights and measures has just been in.
Jones—Ha! ha! He caught you giving fifteen ounces to the pound, did he?
Brown—Worse than that. He said I'd been giving seventeen.

The Lover's Request.

It was to be his last call. They stood on the porch in the moonlight. "You are determined?" he said, finally.

"Yes, George, I think it is for the best that we do not see each other again."

"Do you love another?"

"I do, George. I have promised my heart to Harold Updyke."

There was a moment's silence. George stepped back and drew from his pocket a revolver, which glinted in the pale light.

"George, George," shrieked the girl. "What do you intend to do?" She took hold of his hand.

"Not a great deal," replied George calmly. "I have been calling on you for the last six months, Evelyn, and I have only exterminated about half the dogs in this neighborhood. I want you to take this gun and give it to Updyke. He may want to finish the rest of them."

Dyspeptics Should Avoid Drugs And Medicines

Try a Little Magnesia Instead. Some people instinctively shut their eyes to danger, and it may be that instinct, or custom or habit causes dyspeptics to take drugs, patent foods and medicines, artificial digestants, etc.

But, closing the eyes does not banish the danger, and it is certain that neither drugs nor medicines possess the power to destroy the harmful excessive acid in the stomach, which is the underlying cause of most forms of indigestion and dyspepsia. They may give temporary relief, but ever increasing quantities must be taken, and all the time the acid remains in the stomach as dangerous as ever.

Physicians know this and that is why their advice so often to sufferers from digestive and stomach trouble is "Just eat about an ounce of pure disodium magnesium from your druggist and take a powerful little water immediately after every meal. This will instantly neutralize all the harmful acid in the stomach and stop all food fermentation, thus enabling you to enjoy the hearty meals without experiencing the heart pain or uneasiness afterward."

THE ORIGINAL ST. SOPHIA.

Saloniki Church 100 Years Older Than Constantinople Mosque.

One of the most interesting of Saloniki's famous 22 churches is St. Sophia. Like its greater homonym of Constantinople, it is a doomed basilica, and it was long considered to be a provincial copy of that great original. As a matter of fact the Saloniki church is the original, having been built 100 years or more the earlier, at the end of the fourth or the beginning of the fifth century.

The church has suffered disastrously by fire, earthquake and restoration, but the original lines of the structure remain, as well as the pillars and beautiful capitals of wind-blown acanthus and two fine fragments of mosaic. The principal mosaic, an Ascension, with decorative green trees between the standing figures, lines the great dome. It is supposed to date from 645, though the figure of Christ in the centre is older still.

CHILDREN OF ALL AGES

When sick the newborn babe or the growing child will find prompt relief through the use of Baby's Own Tablets. They are absolutely safe for all children and never fail to banish any of the minor ills from which little ones suffer. Concerning them Mrs. Arthur Sheasly, Adanac, Sask., writes: "I have used Baby's Own Tablets and think they are splendid for children of all ages." The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

All Agreed.

"Did you speak to father about me, Arthur?" asked the girl.

"Yes, I did, dear, and he agreed with me heartily," replied her wooer.

"Then he said I might marry you?"

HOW I CURED MY CATARRH

TOLD IN A SIMPLE WAY

Without Apparatus, Inhalers, Salves, Lotions, Harmful Drugs, Snuffs or Electricity.

Heals Day and Night

It is a new way. It is something absolutely different. No lotions, sprays or sticky smelling salves or creams. No inhalers, or any apparatus of any kind. Nothing to smoke or inhale. No steaming or rubbing or injections. No electricity or vibration or massage. No powder, no plasters, no keeping in the house. Nothing of that kind at all.

Something new and different, something delightful and healthful, something instantly successful. You do not have to wait, and linger and pay out a lot of money. You can stop it overnight—and I will gladly tell you how—PILES. I am not a doctor and this is not a so-called doctor's prescription—but I am cured and my friends are cured, and you can be cured. Your suffering will stop at once like magic.

I Am Free—You Can Be Free

My catarrh was filthy and loathsome. It made me ill. It killed my mind. It undermined my health and was weakening my will. The lawless, coupling, eating made me obstinate to all, and my foul breath and disgusting breath made even my wife and children shun me. My delight in life was killed and my faculties lowered. I knew that in time it would bring me to an untimely grave, because every moment of the day and night it was slowly but surely eating my vitality.

But I found a cure, and I am ready to tell you about it. Write me promptly.

RISK JUST ONE CENT

Is the War Making You Richer or Poorer?

Said a clergyman in a pulpit in one of the eastern townships of Quebec, a year ago: "The Canadian who comes out of this war richer than he went in to it, will have cause to be ashamed of himself."

The speaker had more in his mind than army contractors and their profits. He was thinking of the sacrifices—financial as well as personal—that are inevitably imposed in time of war on every good citizen.

In the time of such a world cataclysm to the real patriot nothing can be normal. He must view every act as if it will help or hinder the winning of the war, and he is bound to spare no effort, to save no money, if thereby the cause is advanced. When nearly four hundred thousand Canadians are so impressed by the gravity of the call that comes to them that they have offered to risk the loss of limbs, of health, of life itself, what good citizen can hesitate to meet all righteous demands made in the same cause on his pocket-book? Let us confess that these demands are heavy; yet if Canadians were to give only their surplus earnings over and above what they were earning in, say, 1913, these demands would be more than satisfied.

Of all these calls, none is more important than that of the Canadian Patriotic Fund. This is the Fund that guarantees to the mothers, wives, and children of our soldiers freedom from all danger of privation while their breadwinner is away. To make this provision for the dependents of Ontario's soldiers in 1917 will cost at least six million dollars, of which four millions must be raised by personal contributions of patriotic citizens. Let every man whose profits or income have been increased since August 4, 1914, consider well if he will not have reason to be ashamed of himself if this great Fund is unable to fulfil its mission, and he at the same time is able to count himself the richer for the war?

Three hundred students and ex-students of the Ontario Agricultural College have enlisted, and thirty-three of them have been killed or missing for some length of time.

Do not refer to people by their initials. Do not write mysterious paragraphs that only yourself and a few others will understand. Do not abbreviate words. Do not refer to young people's courtship. Do not say 'yesterday' and 'tomorrow,' give the day and date of everything. Try to do good. You may never have as good a chance again. Build people up; don't pull them down."

A GREAT FEAT.

Connaught Tunnel Goes Through Five Miles of Solid Rock.

To pierce a great mountain, starting from both ends and driving a tunnel through miles of solid rock so exactly that the two bores meet six thousand feet below the surface as one dime might cover another, is no mean engineering feat. That is what happened in the case of the new "Connaught Tunnel" which the C. P. R. engineers have been engaged upon since the summer of 1913. The construction of Connaught Tunnel was begun at the east end, in September, 1913. Work upon the west end was begun the following May. Nineteen months later the main headings met, thus establishing a new world's record for tunneling.

The speed with which this work has progressed was possible owing to the methods of construction which were adopted. Instead of attempting to cut through the mountain head-on, working at the tunnel from only the two ends, small pioneer tunnels, a little to the side of the location of the tunnel proper, were first constructed. These pioneer tunnels were only large enough for the movement of mule cars, but, by means of shafts cut from their sides, they made it possible to carry on excavation in the main tunnel at numerous places at once. As they approached the centre of the mountain the pioneer tunnels were deflected into the route of the main tunnel, their purpose having been accomplished.

The first bore of the main tunnel was a shaft about eight by twelve feet. As this was completed it permitted the laying of rails for mule trains, the introduction of compressed air pipes for ventilation, and the installation of machinery (all operated by compressed air), telephone communication, and drainage facilities. With this equipment it was possible to proceed with the enlargement of the shaft to its completed size. No serious difficulty was encountered with bad rock formation or excessive water.

Where the rock formation was hard and solid it was allowed to remain as the permanent wall of the tunnel. Where it was soft, with a tendency to crumble or slide, it was arched with concrete.

A feature of importance is the ventilating system, which will ensure rapid changes of air throughout the entire tunnel.

Trap Otter and Beaver.

An "open season" for otter and beaver from November 1st next to March 31st, has been decided on by the Provincial Government, under certain conditions. It is the first open season in Ontario for these fur-bearing animals for about twenty years. The reason for granting the open season is owing to reports being received at the Fish and Game Department pointing out that beaver has been over-running several districts, causing in many cases serious damage to property.

The order-in-Council providing for the open season has just been issued, and according to it, a royalty of 1 cent per skin is placed on otter and one dollar per skin on beaver. The only people allowed to take the animals are resident licensed trappers and farmers, who receive a permit from the department to trap upon their own land. Either is allowed to buy ten fifty-cent royalty coupons in one year, the limit being placed to avoid abuse of the open season. It is also provided that trappers can sell only to licensed dealers.

Combined Action.

Hon. J. D. Hazen says that the Canadian naval service department is in constant communication with the British admiralty, the submarine menace of the Atlantic coast. "Steps have been taken," said the Minister of Marine and Fisheries, "to remove the danger. Everything possible is being done to utilize the resources at the disposal of the British and Canadian Governments."

In unofficial circles it is believed that this is purely a sporadic effort and will soon be checked. The only hope of escape of the German submarine is lax enforcement of the American neutrality laws, which would enable them to take refuge temporarily within the three-mile limit.

Recruits for the Navy Wanted.

Co-operation between military and naval authorities is being arranged in connection with the enlistment of recruits in Canada for the British navy. Five thousand is the number sought. Recruiting offices are being opened at Halifax, St. John, Quebec, Montreal, Toronto, Winnipeg, Vancouver, and Victoria, while every military divisional recruiting depot will also receive applications. Commander White, an old Royal Navy officer, is in charge of the recruiting organization. Two thousand men by New Year's are expected to be enrolled.

Wishes to Serve Troops.

Word has reached Canada that Rev. C. D. Donald of the Presbyterian Mission in India has applied to be relieved of his duty until after the war, as he has received an appointment to serve with the Indian troops in Egypt. Lieut. Alex. Donald, formerly of this city and now serving with the 92nd Highlanders in France, is a brother, and Colonel Duncan Donald of Toronto is an uncle. Rev. Mr. Donald will make the fourth member of his family to tender his services to his country.

THE SPREAD OF WEEDS.

New Farmers Are Forgetting Old Quarantine Methods.

Mr. R. V. Griffiths of Grey county, writing in Farm and Dairy, says that for twenty-five years a pest of mustard was confined to two farms in his neighborhood. These farms had become infested in the early days. They were owned by men who did not live in the neighborhood, and for years were the only rented farms within several miles. For these reasons they had become very badly contaminated, and at a certain season of the year was a yellow flower garden. But these farms were under an unusual quarantine. The tenants had to wait for the threshing machines until the end of the season, and after the threshing was done the machines were always run empty for an hour so that all the seeds would be shaken out. The local miller would not chop grain from those farms for fear of losing the custom of good farmers. As long as the precautions were taken the mustard never spread beyond the line fences of the contaminated farms.

"Of late years no such care has been exercised, with the result that the mustard has now spread largely throughout the neighborhood. It broke through the line about fifteen years ago when the farmers started moving away and selling their farms. The new owners were not so careful of the land as the men and the sons of the men who cleared it. They would take the threshing machine whenever they could get it, with the result that the mustard soon got a start and is now found on half the farms of the neighborhood. Not only that, but other weeds equally bad have gained a foothold, and with the scarcity of labor and the rush of work have been neglected. Once the farmers got accustomed to the sight of weeds in the field they seemed to become careless whether they spread or not. The result is that they are spreading and spreading fast."

"If you were to ask me what is the root cause of the spread of weeds in this neighborhood I would say that it is far deeper than our good friends, the agricultural advisers, seem to think. It is the policy adopted in this country years ago of building up city industries at the expense of agriculture, as a result of which farming became less attractive as other and less important industries there is every reason to believe that most of the farms would now be in the possession of the descendants of the old pioneers, and that these men would be taking as much pride in keeping them clean as their fathers and grandfathers did."

GROWTH IN THE WEST.

Urban Increases Have Given Way Before War Conditions.

A preliminary return of the results of the quinquennial census of the Prairie Provinces taken last June, gives the population of cities, towns, and villages in the three Provinces. In all but a few cases increases are shown, although the growth of urban population has not been nearly so great as was the case during the boom times of the two previous five-year periods. In the list given out recently Swift Current, for which the count is not yet completed, is omitted, and all figures are subject to final revision. The total gain in population of the thirty cities and towns enumerated is approximately ninety thousand, as compared with a gain of over 150,000 between 1906 and 1911.

Winnipeg, the largest city in the middle west, increased its population from 136,035 in 1911 to 162,999 in 1916, a gain of 26,964, or nearly 20 per cent, in five years. For the ten years 1906 to 1916 Winnipeg shows a increase of 72,852, or more than 80 per cent.

In Saskatchewan, Regina leads with 26,112, although a decrease of 4,108 has taken place. Both Saskatoon and Moose Jaw show material gains since 1911.

In Alberta, Calgary still stands first with a population of 56,353, followed by Edmonton with 53,792. Of the population of the latter 12,420 represents that of the former city of Strathcona, now municipally part of the Provincial capital. In 1911 Strathcona had a population of 5,579, and in 1906 one of 1,500.

Canadian Officers to Visit Front.

Arrangement are being made by Sir Sam Hughes whereby a number of the higher officers on service in Canada, in connection with the administrative work at headquarters and also in the various military divisions, will be permitted to visit England and the front. The group will include, it is understood, such men as General Wilson, of Montreal, and General Logie, of Toronto. The proposed visit will give these officers an insight into conditions in England and on the firing line, which will be of great use to them in connection with the organization work in Canada.

May Enlarge Buildings.

Accommodation at the Ontario Parliament Buildings is unable to adequately meet the growing demands of recent years, and when the war is over it is within the realm of probability that an extension to the buildings will be made. At present the room is all taken up, and about 4,000 feet of the McLean building on University avenue has been rented to cope with present and future exigencies.

A GREAT LOSS AND A GREATER GAIN

This business has rounded out 22 months of existence by distributing to owners more than one hundred thousand cars.

Price-concessions on this car are rarely asked, and never given with Dodge Brothers' consent or to their knowledge.

You can therefore figure accurately the amount invested by the public in Dodge Brothers cars by multiplying the output by the retail selling price.

One hundred thousand cars at $755 per car means a sales-total in less than two years' time of $75,500,000—or, with freight cost added, considerably more than $80,000,000.

There have been no bursts of speed in the up-building of this great business.

At no time has there been even an attempt at stimulation of sales or of production.

Never for a single day has production been speeded up for the sake of attaining a total.

On the contrary, it has been held down every day within the limits of close, careful, conscientious manufacturing.

Both production and sales have been stable, steady and spontaneous—scrupulous care in the one, producing huge volume in the other.

At this moment, as at every other period, although producing a large volume every day, Dodge Brothers are "losing business" by their policy of keeping production within the bounds of continuous betterment.

In that sense they have doubtless suffered a great loss in the past and will endure a great loss in the future.

But over against this great loss is an infinitely greater gain.

The people of Canada have implicit faith in the integrity of Dodge Brothers' manufacturing methods.

One hundred thousand owners—or rather, one hundred thousand families—are practically of one mind concerning the car and the men who make it.

This business and its product are blessed with a friendship probably without parallel in the history of American manufacturing.

Fresh from the factory, or sold at second hand, from one end of the nation to the other, the car has special value and a special reputation because of the name it bears.

Because of the name it bears, you may be sure that the principle behind the car will never be changed a hair's breadth.

Dodge Brothers have only one idea in the upbuilding of their business.

That idea is to build so soundly and so well that the good will which they have won will grow and endure forever.

The gasoline consumption is unusually low.

The tire mileage is unusually high.

The censor ought to put a ban on published reports that eggs will go to a dollar a dozen, and similar predictions intended to scare housewives into a panic. The object of such talk is to make the public more willing to accept increases that fall far short of the extravagant levels mentioned.

The Wyoming Enterprise has the advertisement of a conscience-stricken man who wants information of the present location of a boon companion in a drinking spree some thirty-six years ago, whom he then relieved of a roll of bank bills. The advertiser is anxious to restore the amount taken.

Before Police Magistrate D. C. McKenzie on Tuesday Andrew Shields was fined $10 for assault on his brother, John Shields. A number of witnesses were examined in the case, which occupied some three hours. County Crown Attorney McKillop appeared for the Crown and Mr. Fitzgerald of Walford for the accused.

Correspondence to a daily paper tells about two countesses who were carried down stream from a cemetery a year ago last summer during a flood. Last week one was found floating near Buffalo by some fishermen, who, seeing the maker's name on the box, reported the find. The letter stated the fishermen viewed the strange craft with suspicion during this age of submarines.

At a teachers' convention in Hamilton last week, a lecturer spoke disparagingly of the colored newspaper supplements. "I have seen parents buy papers on purpose to give the supplements to their children. Then, when the children do innocent tricks, just as ludicrous as those pictured in the newspapers, they are punished. Parents forget, I suppose, or else do not know, how susceptible children are to suggestion."

CANADIAN TAKES IMPORTANT POST.

In the shape of a number of appointments and recommendations for commissions further recognition has been awarded during the past few days to the University of Toronto training company for officers. Foremost among the appointments of recent date is that of Private H. J. Johnson, who dropped a post with the Carnegie Institute in Washington, D.C., where he was engaged in making a magnetic map of the earth, to train at the University. He has been appointed assistant to the Superintendent of Compasses and Compass Adjustment for the Admiralty with the rank of Lieutenant. Since his graduation in mathematics and physics from the University of Toronto in 1910 Pte. Johnson has spent some time in Uruguay and Paraguay with a scientific expedition.

Toronto's Auto Toll.

The death of Mrs. Sarah Horne by a motor accident recently makes the total number killed in Toronto this year by automobiles nineteen. As a result of this fatality police officials are stronger than ever in favor of some examination of motor drivers. While the number of deaths is startlingly high, it must be remembered that the number of accidents not resulting in death is many times greater.

CHAMPION HEN DEAD.

She Came Within Four Eggs of World's Laying Record.

Within four eggs of the world's year-laying record for all breeds of hens, a Barred Rock hen bred and raised by the Poultry Staff of the Ontario Department of Agriculture, has given up the ghost. The hen, which has been laying eggs at a phenomenal rate for a year past, had broken the record for Barred Rocks and with on days more to complete the forty year had laid 316 eggs. According to officials of the Department of Agriculture this is the largest number ever laid by a representative of the Barred Rock breed in the world. The world's record for any breed is 314, and since the O. A. C. champion before her death was laying an egg a day as regularly as clockwork, that record would have been broken, too, had she lived out the year.

While the loss of the hen is regretted because of the lost opportunity to establish a new record by an Ontario bird, it is not otherwise serious since the O. A. C. poultry staff have a fair number of progeny left by the champion. For years the Poultry Department at the O. A. C. has been making a specialty of Barred Rocks as a utility breed good both for egg laying and for table. This work has given splendid results, and this year the O. A. C. has a larger number than ever of hens giving a yearly average of 200 eggs or over and among them the daughters of the champion were the highest producers.

Three years ago the record for Canada was 282 eggs and for the Province was a whole the average backyard hen contributes only 80 eggs a year.

The Department is encouraging the raising of Barred Rocks by farmers and poultry raisers. This fall eight thousand settings of eggs of this breed were distributed to children through the rural school fairs.

Aviation School for Canada.

Canada is to go in for the manufacture of aeroplanes. The Government has for some time had under consideration the establishment in Canada of an aviation school with a view to the development of what has become so important a branch of warfare on land and sea. The matter has been further considered during the past week, and a decision has been reached to establish a school and also to have built and equipped in Canada a factory which will turn out complete aeroplanes, that is to say, complete with the motors, which heretofore have not been built in this country.

The aviation school will be under the direction of the Imperial authorities, who have agreed to provide a staff of experts for the purpose. The factory will be established under the direction of the Imperial Munitions Board, the Imperial Government having assured orders which will take care of the output of the factory while the war lasts. No information is available at present as to the probable location of either the school or the factory.

Letters Not Forwarded.

A London writer says that letters still come by the bushel from Canada and elsewhere to the Canadian Red Cross and similar institutions, the writers asking if they may correspond with some lonely soldier. Such letters are not now allowed to be forwarded to any soldiers. Further, the Red Cross and like institutions are forbidden to put soldiers into communication with unknown correspondents. One letter received in Lady Drummond's office recently from Canada stipulated that it should be sent to some soldier who "must be good looking."

It has been incorrectly stated that Canadian soldiers are not allowed to draw pay in English hospitals. The regulations are precisely the same on this point as in Canada, soldiers being allowed to draw up to two pounds monthly, in addition to sending money to friends.

THROUGH THE DARK SHADOWS

Or The Sunlight of Love

CHAPTER XIII.

The morning following the disastrous steeplechase, Mr. Jasper Vermont ordered his car, and then sat down to write to Adrienne. He told him that he regretted having to leave the Castle so suddenly, but urgent business required his presence in London, and that he would return to Barmister as soon as possible.

On the appearance of the motor, he took his departure, travelling direct to Jermyn Court, where he stayed to lodge, waited on by the attentive Norgate as though he had been Adrienne himself. Then, having filled his cigar-case with his friend's choicest Cabañas, he strolled through the fashionable parts of the park.

The loungers and idle men of fashion who usually frequented it at that time of the day knew him well, and nodded with forced smiles of friendship—it was clearly to their interest to be on good, if possible, cordial terms with a man who always had the entrée to the innermost circles, and who had won the confidence of a popular favorite like Adrienne Leroy.

Those who had not been personally introduced to Jasper, had still heard reports of his position, and looked after him with that half-jealous air which says so plainly:

"There goes the kind of prosperous, wealthy man I myself should like to be."

Mr. Vermont strolled along, his face wreathed in a perpetual smirk of recognition, his hat off half a dozen times a minute, acknowledging the smiling glances accorded to him.

When he had nearly come to Hyde Park Gate, he was confronted by one of the loungers—an old acquaintance of his—whose woe-begone countenance seemed expressive of acute mental distress.

Jasper Vermont recognized him in spite of his altered appearance—usually a very gay one—and stopped him.

"What, Beau?" he exclaimed, with seemingly effusive warmth; "you here; whatever have you been doing—committing murder? Or have you married in haste, to repent of it at leisure?"

"Neither, my dear boy," answered the well-groomed young man—a captain in the "Household" Guards—one of the fastest and most generally-liked fellows in town. "Neither, Vermont; but I have just come from the city."

"City of the Tombs?" drawled Jasper facetiously.

Captain Beaumont laughed, but rather mournfully.

"Yes," he said, "all my hopes are buried in that beastly place. Really, the County Council ought to put a notice over the west side of Temple Bar monument instead of that heraldic beast: 'Abandon hope all ye who enter here.'"

Mr. Vermont laughed, in his usual quiet way.

"How's that? The city is good enough in its way. What have they been doing to you; won't they lend you any more money?"

"Worse even than that," said the young spendthrift; "they actually want me to repay all that I owe them already, on short notice, with the usual threats if I fail to comply within their time."

"Oh!" remarked Mr. Vermont simply; but his "oh" was full of meaning and apparent sympathy for the misfortunes of his friend.

"Yes, that hard-hearted old skinflint, Harker—that mean brute he is! I should like to bury him, and would attend his funeral gladly to be certain I had seen the last of him. He holds a pretty little tot-up in the way of bills of mine; and I expected, naturally enough, when I called on the firm, that they would renew them at the usual Shylock rates, and I could try elsewhere for something to go on with."

"Yes," said Mr. Vermont, "of course, that's the way you have done for years."

Captain Beaumont nodded.

"Yes, that's so; but Harker only shook that long head of his, and refused me; and nothing I could say would change the old skinflint's mind either. You know that cock-and-bull story he always tells, about his not being the principal, but only the servant? Well, he says his principal has instructed him to call in my bills, and it is impossible for him to renew them; and that the usual steps will be taken if I am not able to meet them."

Jasper laughed, with gentle sarcasm. "Of course, that's always the moneylender's excuse. I'm afraid he will sell you up, Beau."

Captain Beaumont whistled.

"My dear Vermont, it will be an awful shock for the governor. He can only give us younger sons a small allowance, and he certainly won't be able to settle this matter; it would be altogether beyond him."

"What is the amount?" inquired Jasper. He was as well aware as was the young captain himself, of Lord Dunford's financial difficulties.

"Well, not much," replied Captain Beaumont. "Only seven thousand; but it's no good my going to the governor for a penny piece, and how to clear it up is more than I can tell. But why do you ask?" he added, though with but faint eagerness. "Do you think you could find anyone able to help me out of this beastly hole?"

"Well, I might," said Jasper, eyeing him meditatively, as if seeking from its fumes some inspiration as to a method of aiding his friend.

"I only know one way to prevent Harker taking extreme measures," went on the troubled debtor; "that is if I could get someone to back new bills. Now if, say, Adrienne Leroy, were to back some bills for me, Harker certainly would not refuse; but I am hardly in a position to ask Leroy."

"But I am," said Vermont, smiling with the consciousness of power; "and I will do it for you, for old friendship's sake."

"You will!" exclaimed the Captain gratefully. "Jasper, you're a brick! I feel sure, somehow, he will do it for you. I should stand no chance. You are a good fellow to come to my rescue in this fashion."

"Ah," said Mr. Vermont, with a smile; "but can we be sure that Harker will accept Leroy's name on the bills?"

"Why, of course, Harker or anybody—wouldn't?" asked the Guardsman, as the cloud dispelled last, looking round furtively—for he was ever cautious—he dived into one of the small entrances in Lawrence Lane, and mounting two flights of stairs, entered the front room. This was the home, or rather, perhaps, refuge from the conventions of society, that Mr. Vermont possessed. Here he could find shelter at any time of the night, for he possessed a private key; and by his orders the bed was kept constantly aired and ready by the housekeeper, who had her own room on the floor above. It was no unusual thing for her to leave the rooms tenantless late in the evening, and find them occupied when she rose in the morning, Jasper having arrived during the dead of night, silently as was his invariable custom.

The second morning after his sudden return to town, Mr. Vermont was in his sitting-room, which was very plainly furnished indeed, partaking of a breakfast so simple that his fashionable friends would scarcely have believed the evidence of their own eyes. When he had finished, and the table had been cleared, he went over to the roll-top desk which stood in an angle by the window, and opened it, disclosing piles of letters, sheets of closely-written foolscap and slips of memorandum forms. On the corner of the desk stood a telephone which communicated with Harker's private room, downstairs in the office; they were dignified by the name of Harker's "Bank," and were of course, those of the money-lending business which was carried on by Vermont in that name. Taking up the receiver now, he asked Harker to come up to him as soon as possible.

Within the next few minutes, George Harker was standing before the master's study, and he looked very much as if he were a man who had been very ill, with a thin, lined face, from which all light and hope seemed to have fled. His whole being appeared wrapped up in attendance on Jasper Vermont. He watched him eagerly now, not speaking until he was spoken to, but simply waiting patiently, doggedly, till his master was ready to attend to him.

Vermont drew the heap of various papers toward him—with keen eyes and quick brain grasped the multitude of facts they set forth, checked the long column of figures, struck the balances; and, with a nod of satisfaction, looked up at the man before him.

"All right, Harker, as far as I can see—and, as you know, that's all the way and a little beyond. But we must do better than that. Where's the private account?"

"Here, sir," said Harker, in a dry, rasping voice, somewhat like the creaking of an old, rusty-hinged door.

"Where?—oh yes, I see. Oh, Pax-horn has come to us, has he? Writing poetry is not a paying game, eh? Or is it the fine, grand company that runs away with the golden counters? Well, all fish—or idiots—that come to our net are welcomed, no matter what wind drives them. Thirty per cent. from Paxhorn. No more?"

"I could not get any more, sir," said Harker earnestly. "I tried—I tried indeed I did, I assure you. I would not give in until he threatened to go to another office."

"Hem, well I suppose it's the truth; though, of course, all moneylenders are rogues—and you're only a money-lender, you know." He looked up for a moment to look at the logical joke.

"Who backs his paper?" Lord Standish. "Oh, my lord is pretty keen in our books already, isn't he? Where are his statistics?"

"Here, sir," said Harker, taking one of the papers from the heap. Jasper Vermont glanced at it, and laid it down again with an evil smile on his face.

"Oh, he's good for more than that Harker; but be cautious. We'll lend him another ten thousand; but put on five per cent. Lords must pay, to set the fashion to commoner folk. By the way, Captain Beaumont—"

"Whose bills you instructed me to call in, sir."

USE AFRICAN LABOR.

2,000 South African Natives to Work in France.

With regard to the scheme for sending South African natives to France, 2,000 Cape boys, or half-caste natives, are being forwarded in advance of the 10,000 for which arrangements were originally made. The majority of the selected natives have previously had experience of work in the mines of the Transvaal and life in the compounds under a quasi-military discipline. They will be placed in charge of officers of good standing in South Africa, who know how to treat them wisely. Some of the officers have served previously as magistrates in the districts reserved for natives.

Neither Cape boys nor natives proper will be permitted to offer for service at the front; they are to be employed exclusively at the seaports in the south of France, and kept strictly within the compounds. They have volunteered for the work, being satisfied with the wages offered and other conditions, and they will be sent back to South Africa as soon as their help ceases to be required.

The Farm

Keep the Furrow Straight.

Really good plowing is so uncommon to-day that a fairly well-plowed field attracts the attention of the passer-by. Judging from appearances of the average plowed field, plowmen take very little pride in their work. To get the field blackened is the principal aim. In this age of rush and scarcity of help there may be some excuse for hurrying over the work as quickly as possible, but, what effect has the slipshod method of plowing on the man who does the work, and on the future crops? Decreased yields of crops are, in some cases, directly traceable to poor plowing. The cut-and-cover system, which some follow, cannot possibly leave the soil in as good condition for the next season's crop as cutting the furrow clean and properly turning it. The old system of setting the furrow on edge has largely given place to turning it flat, and no appreciable difference in crop production is noticed. Poor plowing is responsible for some noxious weeds gaining in number. If the roots of even a few plants are allowed to slip around the plow-shape they may grow and propagate, thus becoming the means of seeding down a considerable area. Wild grass is another enemy of the crops that requires turning completely under if it is to be killed. This necessitates the use of a jointer or skimmer on the plow in order to turn the edge of the furrow under. If this were more generally used there would be less danger of grass getting a start. True, its use would increase the draft on the horses, but more satisfactory work would be done. When plowing down long grass, clover or weeds it is a good plan to attach a chain to the plow in such a way as to pull all growth into the furrow.

Avoid Leaving Holes.

Only recently a young farmer was seen plowing a field on which was a luxuriant growth of weeds. Neither skimmer nor chain was being used, and, consequently, from a distance, the field looked more like a meadow than plowed ground. When questioned regarding the advisability of leaving the field that way, he remarked: "I know I should use a chain on the plow but I haven't one handy; maybe I will get one from my brother to-night." One-and-a-half acres of poor plowing in a field is an eyesore and possibly a seed-bed of noxious weeds, from which seeds will be carried to other parts of the farm. An endeavor should be made to turn under all growth and avoid, as far as possible, leaving holes in the field. If the field is stony this is no easy task, especially for a young man just learning to plow. There is some excuse for a beginner doing rather poor work, but there is no excuse for the man who has been plowing for several years. From the very commencement there should be gradual improvement. If the plow strikes a stone it should be pulled back and a fresh start made. The writer well remembers the first field he plowed. Not being heavy enough to pull the plow back, the horses were turned around and an endeavor made to leave as few holes as possible. True, this takes time, but it is worth it. If a man does not try to do good work when commencing to plow, the habit of carelessness gradually grows on him, and he never becomes a good plowman. When striking out a field it is well to first turn a furrow out each way and then turn it back. This gets over the difficulty of having a high centre and the ground is all cut. Too often the centre of the ridges are not cut, and little else but grass and weeds grow up the following season.

The Plowing Match.

On the majority of farms, plowing is the young man's job. To some the work gets very monotonous, while others take a delight in following the plow day after day and ever trying to improve on the straightness and neatness of the furrow. Plowing a straight furrow gives as much satisfaction to some men as painting a picture does to the artist, but it is feared that too many tillers of the soil do not look upon their labors as a work of art.

Within the past year or two plowing matches have been revived. Evidently the need was felt for training better plowmen, and results so far have been gratifying. A splendid feature about them are the classes for boys and young men. They have an opportunity of showing to spectators the kind of work they can do. The work that is done in competition must of necessity be duplicated at home, for no man can become an expert plowman in one day. It would be a good thing if more of the young men made themselves eligible to enter these competitions. The only way to do it is to practice at home. Straight, neat work can be done with the double plow, as well as with the single-furrow plow. It is a matter of handling the horses carefully and properly adjusting the plow. Better plowing, we believe, would have a tendency to improve the crops. It should also be borne in mind that the way the plowing is done is an indication of how all other work undertaken will be done. There should be scores of young men in competition at every plowing match. To compete favorably, the home field must be the training ground.—The Farmer's Advocate.

Attacks Will Be Made Whenever Weather Permits, Says Major-General F. B. Maurice, Director of Operations.

"Our success over the Ancer," said Gen. Maurice, "means that we are not going to give the enemy much rest this winter. It means that whenever weather conditions permit we are going to attack and subvert the enemy in the rear. It means that in the coming months so as to prevent as far as possible the Germans from establishing a permanent front line, the enemy was able to direct the thrust of his artillery masses in the direction of the front line, and to adapt them through sticky, white chalk and a network of defences. They gained the ridge and forced the enemy back across the valley to the line A. As a result of this situation, we are in this territory, and are consolidating the positions for further activities."

A despatch from the British Armies in France says: A British chaplain while searching the battlefield of the Ancre for wounded hidden in the shell craters during the British advance, accompanied by a few soldiers, came upon a group of German soldiers, nearly 400 Germans, who promptly surrendered. The chaplain ordered the men to file out upon the open ground preparatory to passing them back with an escort when the German officer, seeing the small size of the force to which he was surrendering, tried to rally his men and overpowered it. He was about to kill the chaplain when a British infantryman shot him dead, he hoped for the other German soldiers to follow his example and held up their hands and shouted their eagerness to be made prisoners.

A despatch from London says:—The Entente armies operating in Macedonia have made additional progress. The capture by the British of the Town of Barakli, on the eastern end of the Macedonian front, is announced officially. Barakli is 1½ miles southeast of Barakli-Juma, which the British captured recently in renewing the offensive along the front. This part of the Macedonian campaign is being fought in north-eastern Greece, over the ground which the Bulgarians occupied several months ago, taking over Greek forts and establishing themselves well to the east of the allies' right flank. After several abortive attempts, the British forced a passage of the Struma and have now occupied a number of towns and villages, some 100 miles beyond the river at some points. The Franco-Serbian offensive also continues with full success.

A despatch from Paris says: Friday night's War Office statement chronicles a remarkable feat by a French aviator. The statement says: "The aviator, Capt. DeBeauchamp, started Friday morning 6 o'clock in the direction of Munich, where he arrived at noon. He dropped several bombs on the station in retaliation for the bombing of the open city of Amiens a few days ago. Capt. DeBeauchamp then landed at Santa Dona di Piave, in Italy, 20 kilometers north of Venice, after flying over the Alps. The aviator then covered a distance of 900 kilometers (approximately 435 miles)." At Least 1,500.00 Casualties in
The Somme Battle

It is Mr. Palmer's opinion that the allied offensive against the Germans on the French front will end only when the war itself ends, that it will be continued for two, perhaps three years. He was told by the staff of the allies that they had no expectation of breaking the German line this year.

"There is only one historical comparison for the Somme battle—Verdun," said Mr. Palmer. "It has long since passed Verdun in the intensity

The Transcript.

THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 23, 1916

Appin

Rev. C. W. Bristol preached in Watford on Sunday.

Appin Literary Society meets next Tuesday evening.

Mr. Miers conducted the services in the Presbyterian church, Bothwell, on Sunday.

D. L. McIntyre shipped a carload of cattle and F. J. Pole a carload of sheep on Monday.

Rev. C. Johnson of Eddie's Mills preached in the Methodist church Sunday evening.

Rev. C. Dodson of Owen Sound preached in the Presbyterian church Sunday morning.

Mr. Campbell of Bad Axe, Michigan, is visiting his uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. D. L. McIntyre.

W. R. Stephenson is getting the foundation ready for a new house on the corner of James Macfie's property.

We are sorry to hear that Mrs. W. R. Stephenson is seriously ill with pneumonia, but hope for a speedy recovery.

A letter received last week from Pte. Rand Devlin, who was wounded some time ago, said he had fully recovered and had gone back to join his battalion at the front.

Newspapers are still wanted for the Red Cross, and may be left at Peter Ferguson's, in the village. The institute want enough paper to fill a car, so please save all waste paper.

A letter received from Pte. George Moore, now in France, in a stretcher-bearer corps, says he is well, and finds plenty of hard work. One thing he especially spoke of was the bravery and fortitude of the wounded. He said: "You can learn a great lesson from our brave boys."

Word has been received by Mrs. Wm. Hughes, that her brother, Pte. Alex. Humphries, who was wounded in France some time ago, has been ordered home to Canada, and expects to be here to spend Christmas. Pte. Humphries was buried by a bursting shell and seriously hurt.

The Women's Institute will meet at Mrs. Jones' the last Thursday of this month, Nov. 30th. All members and those interested in Red Cross work are asked to be present, and sewing and knitting will be given out for that purpose. The delegates will give a report of the third annual convention held in London Nov. 8th and 9th. The roll call will be answered by samples and suggestions for inexpensive Christmas gifts.—J. Macraut, secretary.

Miss Jeanette Rankin, of Missoula, Mont., who has just been elected congressman on the Republican ticket, the first woman to sit in the Congress of the United States, is a niece of Hugh Rankin of Appin. She is a daughter of his eldest brother, the late John Rankin, millionaire. She is described as the red-haired woman who has danced her way into Congress, by reason of the fact that often after speaking at meetings she danced with members of her audience, ranchers and miners mostly. Although Montana is wet, one of the chief planks in her platform is prohibition.

Beginning Saturday, 25th inst., there will be real bargains at the millinery clearance sale at Bayne's, Newbury.

Newbury

Carson Mann of the Merchants Bank, Windsor, is holidaying here.

Rev. J. Malcolm preached in the Presbyterian church, Glencoe, on Sunday evening.

Mrs. R. B. Smith spent last week visiting London friends and attended the Women's Institute convention.

Mrs. J. W. Hammett, district president, attended a meeting of the Kerwood Women's Institute last week.

Mrs. J. Escott returned from Detroit on Saturday and will remain for some time with her mother, Mrs. Crim.

Pte. Chas. H. Bradshaw of Nelson, B. C., a grandson of R. Winship, is reported seriously wounded in the right shoulder. He is in No. 6 British Red Cross Hospital, Etaples, France. Pte. Bradshaw often visited here, and is well known to many of our readers, all of whom will wish him a speedy and complete recovery.

Awful asthma attacks. Is there a member of your family who is in the power of this distressing trouble? No service you can render him will equal the bringing to his attention of Dr. J. D. It has a truly wonderful record, covering years and years of success in almost every part of this continent, and even beyond the seas.

OAKDALE.

Mrs. Elizabeth Muir, who has been visiting her mother, Mrs. Margaret Leitch, for the past six months, has left to visit relatives at Ingersoll.

Cairo.

Harvey Thompson returned during the week, having spent some months in the Northwest.

Duncan McLean is under medical treatment at present. We hope to learn of Mr. McLean's speedy recovery.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Allen left on Friday for Sarnia, where Mr. Allen has purchased property and will reside in future.

An effort is being made by her friends to have the widow of the late Wm. McCabe cared for, as she is virtually an invalid.

Mrs. Fred Sullivan returned Wednesday after spending a week with her daughter, Mrs. Stuart Smith, and other friends in Detroit.

The trustees of S. S. No. 10 have secured the services of Miss M. Carter, a former teacher in that section, as Miss Morris was obliged, through continued illness, to resign her position as teacher.

Jas. H. Miers of Appin conducted the service in the Presbyterian church, and those present enjoyed a real gospel feast. Mr. Miers is but a layman, but one possessed with gifts and powers not usually found in the ordinary man. He will be present again on the 25th inst.

WE ALL HAVE MISSIONS IN THE WORLD.—There is a work to do for every man on earth, there is a function to perform for everything on earth animate and inanimate. Everything has a mission, and the mission of Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil is to heal burns and wounds of every description and cure coughs, colds, croup and all affections of the respiratory organs.

Obituary.

The death of Miss Etta, Craig occurred on the 12th inst., at the residence of her brother John, after one week's intense suffering from pneumonia. She was a daughter of the late John Craig of Moosa and was born on the Battle Hill farm on the Longwoods road, Miss Craig was a great sufferer for over 22 years from rheumatism. She will be greatly missed in her home, being a most patient sufferer. Revs. Ford and Irwin conducted the funeral services, and a large concourse of friends followed the remains to the cemetery.

Marriage licenses issued D. by H. McRae, Strathburn.

How TO CLEANSE THE SYSTEM.—Purges the Vegetable Pills are the result of scientific study of the effects of extracts of certain roots and herbs upon the digestive organs. Their use has demonstrated in many instances that they regulate the action of the liver and the kidneys, purify the blood and carry off morbid accumulation from the system. They are easy to take, and their action is mild and beneficial.

CO-OPERATIVE SELLING

IT IS NOW USED IN FIVE PROVINCES BY WOOL MEN.

Prince Edward Island Made a Start Last Year With the Marketing of Wool by Fifty Farmers.—In Nova Scotia the System is Confined to Two Counties.—In Quebec Great Strides Have Been Made.—Other Combined Selling.

In five of the Provinces of Canada the co-operative plan of marketing wool has been put into operation. Three of the five—

Prince Edward Island, Nova Scotia, and Quebec—are in the east; two—Alberta and Saskatchewan—are in the west.

The beginning in this line, so far as Prince Edward is concerned, was made last year, when 5,500 pounds of wool were marketed in a co-operative way by fifty farmers of the Island Province. This year 269 farmers in the same Province sold co-operatively 28,302 pounds of wool, and received nearly $11,000 for the same. The price per pound ranged from forty-three cents for medium clothing to ten cents for "tags," says Amik in The Toronto Globe.

In Nova Scotia—the co-operative system of wool selling has so far been confined to two counties, and farmers in these two counties sold 17,388 pounds this season in the co-operative way. The average price was forty-one and one-eighth cents per pound, including black fleeces, tags, and a few reject fleeces. The expense in connection with the sale, insurance, packing, and loading was slightly over one-half cent per pound. This included 100 wool sacks which were bought outright, and which may be had by members next year for bringing in their wool.

In Quebec 1,617 farmers are organized in wool growers' and sheep breeders' associations, and through their organization 169,840 pounds of wool were sold this season. The average weight of fleeces sold was 7.59 pounds; the average cash returns per fleece, $3.18; the average price per pound for wool sold, 41.8 cents. Local prices for ungraded wool throughout the Province ranged between thirty-one and thirty-five cents a pound, so that grading and co-operative sale netted members a gain of seven to twelve cents a pound, or twenty to forty per cent advance.

The membership fees in the Quebec associations are based on the amount of business each member does, and four cents a fleece covers all expenses of carrying on the business.

In these eastern Provinces officials of the Departments of Agriculture have assisted the work of co-operation by advice and by aid in grading, etc. In Saskatchewan the Provincial Department of Agriculture has gone still further. It has acted as a selling agency for Saskatchewan's wool producers. Saskatchewan's wool growers to the number of 487 have accepted the assistance offered, and this year disposed of 180,000 pounds of wool through the department. Eighty-five per cent of the wool was placed in the straight domestic grades, and for this an average price of thirty-three and a half cents per pound was realized. Seven and one-half per cent, graded rejects, and was sold for twenty-four cents. The cost of handling will work out in the neighborhood of a cent per pound.

The Alberta Sheep Breeders' Association has 325 members, and the association this season disposed of 42,489 fleeces, representing 280,515 lbs. of wool, for $33,867. The price ranged from 12c for "tags" and 15c for "dead wool," to 33 1/2c for first fine medium combing. The general average was just under 30c per lb.

In Prince Edward Island and Quebec, at all events, the co-operative work is not confined to the selling of wool. It extends to the breeding and selling of sheep and lambs as well. Last year the Quebec organizations held four local sheep sales, at which 98 head of breeding stock were sold.

In Saskatchewan Provincial assistance in co-operative marketing is not confined to the selling of wool. It extends to poultry as well. This department was inaugurated last season and is being continued this year. Stations are maintained by the department, at which live birds are received from growers and official experts supervise the killing, packing, and grading. When the birds are received, the Co-operative Organization Branch of the Department of Agriculture will forward producers an advance payment on the graded prices, consistent with the quality of the birds. The poultry will either be sold immediately or, should the market be low, placed in storage until a satisfactory price can be obtained, and when all of the birds have been disposed of, final payment will be made which will return to the producer every cent realized from the sale of his birds, less the cost of transportation, killing, boxes, and storage.

In Quebec the Provincial Department of Agriculture has taken steps to promote the development of a co-operative bacon industry. With this end in view an expert was four years ago brought in from Denmark, in which country seventy-five per cent of the bacon produced is handled co-operatively. An effort was made to induce farmers of St. Valier to undertake the establishment of a co-operative bacon factory, but as they seemed indisposed to move the department itself built one, which now has a capacity of fifty or sixty pigs a week. Last year, when hogs were ruling much lower than of late, the prices paid for slaughtering ranged between 11 and 12 1/2 cents per pound, and the price for bacon was on an average 19 cents.

In the parish of Princeville, Arthabaska county, the farmers themselves have taken hold of the matter. They subscribed $30,000 last year for the erection of a plant, and the first operations of this plant have proved encouraging.
