TYPHOID A CONTROLLABLE DISEASE.

One day last summer the Secretary of the Indiana board of health casually remarked that "five hundred men and women in Indiana, now well, will be dead from typhoid fever before January 1." He based his prediction on the mortality records of the State, on the indifference of the people in the matter of proper precautions against typhoid, and on the lack of means furnished the board of health to enable it to take in this matter. The prediction was more than verified. Before Christmas day there were in the office of the board the names of 822 persons who had died in the State from typhoid between July 1 and the later date, and there were yet to be added to the list the returns for December. "It is a long and dreadful list," comments the Secretary, "and I cannot help repeating that it is to a large extent an unnecessary list of fatalities. Typhoid can be controlled if the health authorities had funds with which to circulate educational literature on the subject, and to keep up a constant agitation of the necessity for purity of water supply and for cleansing of house premises. If we knew that a cyclone would begin to threaten and slay daily in the new year, we would not delay in seeking safety from it. We know that typhoid will find at least three victims daily, unless we take preventive measures."

THE BRITISH CABINET NOT A LEGALLY RECOGNIZED BODY.

It will doubtless surprise a good many people to learn that the British Cabinet is not a legal body, says the London Chronicle. Its existence has never been sanctioned by law. It is not once mentioned in the country's statutes. It could have no locus standi in any English court. The election or dismissal of its members is never officially announced to the public. Its proceedings are unrecorded and unreported. Its very name was originally an epithet, a term of reproach. Add to this the fact that its present supreme position in the scheme of government arose from a pure accident, and you have a series of facts sufficiently remarkable when it is remembered that they concern the administration of the most powerful empire in the world.

The Salisbury Cabinet, which has just secured a new lease of power from the electorate, consists of twenty members. This is the largest number on record, and is almost double the minimum allowed by the unwritten law of precedent. According to established custom, the Cabinet must always consist of at least eleven members, who shall comprise the First Lord of the Treasury, the Lord Chancellor, the Lord President of the Council, the five Secretaries of State, the Chancellor of the Exchequer, and the First Lord of the Admiralty. From earliest times there has always been one Minister or prime favorite on whom the King leaned or relied above his fellows. But the position of control and influence over his colleagues which the Prime Minister now possesses began about the time of Queen Anne. The office presents one or two quaint features, not the least of which is that theoretically it does not exist. It is a maxim of the constitution that no one Privy Councillor has priority over his colleagues; consequently, like the Cabinet which he rules, the Prime Minister is legally unknown. To bring himself into legitimate being the Prime Minister must always hold one or other of the recognized offices under the crown. Since 1606, and until Lord Salisbury broke through the tradition by appointing himself Foreign Secretary, the position was always held in conjunction with that of First Lord of the Treasury. In more ancient times the Prime Minister was frequently held in conjunction with the Lord Chancellorship; but that was a long time ago, the last who filled this dual role being the Earl of Clarendon in the reign of Charles I. It is interesting to note that this year Lord Salisbury reverts to a former custom by associating his office with the appointment of Lord Privy Seal, which has for some sixteen years past been an unpaid position.

CENSUS FIGURES.

The British census, to be taken on April 1st, is expected to show a population of 40,000,000 people for the islands, an increase of 2,500,000 in ten years. The first one of England was taken a hundred years ago, and showed a population of nearly nine millions, which was doubled in fifty years, and in 1891 the population of England was 29,000,000. Scotland had 1,600,000 people at the beginning of the century, double this figure in seventy years, and had 4,280,000 people in 1891. Ireland's population was estimated at 5,210,000, and in 1821, when the first census was taken, it was 6,802,000. This increased to 8,198,000 in 1841, when a decline began and in 1891 the population was less than 5,000,000. Of course in densely peopled countries we do not expect as rapid an increase as in countries like the United States.

ARE YOU PLUMP

or thin? red cheeks or sallow life in your step or feel your weight? are you comfortable or hoping to be so next spring or summer or fall?

One is health; the other is not-quite health.

This condition of not-quite health can be turned into health with Scott's emulsion of cod-liver oil.

It is a pity to get in the habit of thinking of health as a thing to be hoped for; why not go for it now!

There is only one way to make strength: by food. You want appetite first, then food. The emulsion will give you food-rest, to master your food with.

We'll send you a little to try, if you like. SCOTT & BOWNE, Toronto, Canada.

Even there it is found that the country fills up the rate of increase declines. In 1880 a statistician found that the population had been doubling itself every 25 years and drew from that a calculation that there would be 800,000,000 in the country in the year 2000. But it took thirty years, from 1870 to 1900 for the doubling to take place; and it will probably be forty or fifty years before the present population is doubled. At all events the estimate of 800,000,000 for the year 2000 seems now to be very wide of the mark, and we have recently seen an estimate of over 400,000,000, which was regarded as somewhat sanguine. We start the century with just about the same population as the United States of 1800, and guesses for 2000 would probably be about 50,000,000. But most of these predictions are useful chiefly to show how egregiously figures do lie!

There were few occurrences in the late war, so far as Canada is concerned, which were so pathetic as that of Mrs. Sutton, the bride of a year, meeting her husband's dead body at Halifax, after she had twice crossed the Atlantic in the hope of greeting him.

SAVED BY ABSTINENCE.

Galt Refractor.

Total abstinence pays. At least it did in the case of Alex. McLean, just returned from South Africa. As has been said, he was wounded in three places, so seriously that his life was despaired of. He recovered, a miracle, his doctor told him, due entirely to the fact that he had never used either alcohol or tobacco.

WANT MORE GOOD HORSES.

London Free Press.

Chicago, the greatest horse market in the world for the better class of horses, received 99,010 horses last year, which is about twelve thousand less than in 1899, which shows great scarcity of good horses, says the Live Stock Journal. The horse buyers have made greater efforts to hunt up the horses suitable for the market demands, but it is difficult to find the big, heavy draft and high class coach horses, such as the exporters and the eastern buyers want. With the New Year the great industrial prosperity must have more good horses and exporters are again coming to the front for more horses of the export class. Farmers and horsemen facing the greatest demand ever known should breed more good draft horses and mature them as fast as possible, for the whole world is eager for more good horses.

instrumental selections by the great composers; melodious, not too difficult, and including popular and operatic melodies, dances, funeral marches, nocturnes, adagios, military pieces and classic and romantic piano music. The best old and new songs, duets, trios, quartets and choruses upon every subject: Upon friendship, admiration, love and home; upon absence, sorrow, reminiscence, and merriment; upon humor, patriotism, nature and morality; no hymns, however. 400 portraits and illustrations, over 500 biographies of musicians, and more than 100 new and copyrighted selections by eminent musicians. The work is planned for cultured homes and sympathetic performers.

Every Home in which there is a Piano

Should possess this Musical Library. The Music that pleases mother, father, young and old is here. The collection is crowded with the best selection for every occasion. When friends are invited or drop in unexpectedly, how often does it happen that there can be little or no music because the favorite pieces of the players are not at hand? With this collection of music in the house, no one will be excused from playing or singing because "I have no music with me." And thus such an evening passes delightfully, which, without such a collection might have been a musical, if not a social, failure.

CHATHAM GRAIN MARKET.

Planet Office—Tuesday evening January 14.

THIS BABY BORN WITHOUT LIMBS.

Legs and Arms Missing on a Health-Boy in Carlyle, Indiana.

Carlyle, Ill., Jan. 17.—An amplegless baby was born at Irishtown.
The parents of the monstrosity are Mr. and Mrs. Edward Cole. The infant, a boy, arrived Wednesday, and at the time of birth weighed about four pounds. It is physically perfect excepting the limbs. In the place of the arms are two little stubs one inch long. The legs are missing entirely, not even a mark being visible where the hips are usually joined to the body.
The infant is growing strong and there is every indication that it will live.
There are two other children in the Cole family and neither is deformed in any manner.

YOUNG LADY MAKES A STRONG PLEA.

Believes Humane Officer Dag-neau Is Entitled To All The Grant Asked.

To The Planet.—In last night's paper we read with admiration Mr. Quinn's magnanimous and deeply sensible remarks upon Humane Officer Dagneau's proposed salary.

He admits the time and energy spent in the good work, but probably forgot to add, expense, though we know for a fact that Mr. Dagneau spent not a little in hiring every rig to drive around the country tracking delinquents. Mr. Quinn speaks of his police force being able to do the work. If it be their duty why have they not done it in the past? They were well paid, but it was left for Mr. Dagneau, with no remuneration whatever, to rescue poor suffering animals.

Mr. McCoig sees fit to object to the small sum of two hundred and fifty dollars.
He wonders how much Mr. McCoig would demand were he capable of filling the position?
We should consider an offer of less to Mr. Dagneau a downright insult.

After reading Mr. Quinn's offering of justice, we have no doubt whatever, that his love of justice and money to such a cause, and the fact of incurring the animosity of the class of people they must necessarily come in contact with, would have no weight whatever in the mind of these charitable gentlemen. They have proven that by expecting so much of Mr. Dagneau.

All lovers of dumb animals should probably do feel under a personal obligation to Mr. Dagneau for his untiring services in the past year and trust it will be shown in something more substantial than mere words.

Are just right. They are as carefully selected and as carefully put up as "Kent" Tomatoes. That's a guarantee for quality. Then the flavor is the fine home baked kind. Those who have tried them say they are not going to bake any more Beans. It's not worth while "Why I can get a can of "Kent" baked Beans, and they are ready to use in fifteen or twenty minutes, and they are just as nice as I can bake." This has been said to us several times. We were sure they were good, still we like to be told so. Have you tried them? too a can.

DISCUSSING LAW REFORM.

The Kent Association Will Give The Government Its Advice

in the Matter of Procedure—Annual Election of Officers.

The largely attended annual meeting of the Kent Law Association was held in Harrison Hall yesterday afternoon, C. R. Atkinson, Q. C., presiding. In addition to the professional gentlemen both county judges were present and took an active part in the proceedings.

After routine business the following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

President—Matthew Wilson, Q. C.
Vice-President—Jno. A. Walker, Q. C.
Vice-President—Edwin Bell, LL. B.
Treasurer—Thos. Scullard.

The officers, in conjunction with five elected members, constitute the board of management or trustees. The five elected members were: Judge Bell, Wm. Douglas, Q. C., Judge Houston, O. L. Lewis and R. L. Gosnell.

Among the various matters discussed perhaps the most important was the proposed legislation to be introduced by Attorney-General Gibson at the meeting of the Legislature next month in regard to the jurisdiction and procedure of the various courts. The attorney-general on different occasions introduced the bills at Toronto and then withdrew them for further consideration relating to the reform of the procedure and jurisdiction of Ontario courts, and, as a preliminary to the bill which he intends to introduce at the coming session, he sent out a number of proposals to various judges and law associations throughout Ontario and asked these parties to give him the benefit of their experience and advice.

Along with these suggestions from the Attorney-General the Association had before it the replies of Judge Hughes, of St. Thomas, and Judge Hughes, of Lindsay, and the Essex Bar Association, of Windsor. The various matters of the proposed reform were discussed fully and the whole subject was then referred to a committee, consisting of Messrs. Wilson, Douglas and Walker, to consider the question and report to an adjourned meeting of the Association one week hence.

Other business, relating to the finances and the library, was transacted ere the meeting adjourned.

The great amount of design work done at the Victoria Avenue Green House is sufficient proof of the excellence of the work. Nothing but the best at the lowest prices. Telephone No. 181.

CHATHAM HAS CAPTURED THE BINDER TWINE FACTORY.

Project Outlined at Public Meeting Yesterday—Stock Sheets Circulated and Provincial Directors Elected With Instructions to go Ahead.

A man is known by the company he keeps and a prosperous city is recognized by its walls. Toronto was the first city to recognize this salient fact and before the other cities and towns of Ontario had time to think about it, the Queen City had induced a large number of factories to change their place of residence and locate in the provincial capital. The residents of Chatham perceived the cause of Toronto's increasing prosperity and the Maple City too sought to induce new factories and new industries to locate here. After repeated efforts and repeated failures it now looks as if the continued efforts of the council would be crowned with success and a new and profitable industry started in our midst.

Messrs. Henderson and Cummings have successfully organized a joint stock company for the manufacture of binder twine in Walkerton, decided that the city of Chatham would be a good place for a similar factory. They looked over the three counties of which Chatham is the centre and saw a splendid field for the sale of the product of a twine factory.

THE PUBLIC MEETING.

They told Mayor Sulman of their project and at once received his warm-hearted support. Other citizens were interested in the head of the new council called a public meeting to discuss the proposal to form a joint stock company and build a binder twine factory here. The meeting took place yesterday afternoon, was well attended and was also decidedly representative of the city. Among those present were: John Houston, Harwich; Henry Lindley, Cedar Springs; Fred Stone, Spencer Stone, Mayor Sulman; W. W. Scott, Jas. Waugh, Chas. Austin, E. A. Mounter, A. Kelly, D. A. Hutchison, J. M. Pike, Sam Bullis, T. C. Smith, Squire Marx, E. E. Parrott, Alister McKay, Henry Robinson, Ald. Fleming, Chatham; E. H. Toll, M. J. Wilson, and Thos. Maynard, Harwich; James Longmore, Raleigh; James Chinnick, Chatham; T. P. William Stephenson, Dover; John Henderson, Dover; E. M. Smith, Harwich; Mr. Carter, Dover; John Catton, Chatham; T. P. Ald. Pritchard, George Pritchard, Robt. Riddell, W. E. Hamilton and Sam McCormick, Chatham; N. H. Shepley, Raleigh; W. W. Scott, Harwich; James Carroll, and Geo. Paulucci, Dover; W. J. Fleming, Raleigh and many others.

Mayor Sulman was unanimously chosen chairman of the meeting.

THE PROSPECTUS.

He read the following prospectus of the company, the capital being $125,000, 125,000 shares, par value $10 per share:

This company is being formed for the purpose of securing a share in the highly remunerative trade in binder twine.

It is a well known fact that enormous profits have been made by existing companies in this business, and the demand is steadily increasing.

Fully sixty per cent of the binder twine used in Canada is imported from the United States, the product of one of the strongest combines in existence. Now, there is no reason why Canadian farmers should import over half their binder twine and send huge profits across the line to fatten a combine, when they can share in the profits by becoming stockholders in a factory owned and controlled by themselves.

But the American combines do not adversely affect profits of Canadian factories is proven by the fact that the Farmers' Binder Twine Co., of Brantford, in 1898 paid a 60 per cent dividend, in 1899, 100 per cent dividend, and in 1900, a dividend of 90 per cent. This proves also the increasing demand for binder twine, and the corresponding profits.

It is believed there is more binder twine used in the counties of Kent, Lambton and Essex than any similar area in Canada and it is only reasonable to expect that an immediate market can be found at our doors for the output of the factory.

The chairman then introduced Mr. Henderson, one of the promoters of the company.

Mr. Henderson said that should a binder twine twine factory be established here, the counties of Essex, Kent and Lambton would easily use the entire product of a three-ton plant. The Brantford factory had declared an annual dividend of 10 per cent for the first five years it had been established. In 1898 it had paid 60 per cent, in 1899, 100 per cent, and in 1900, 90 per cent. If it were possible to get the farmers to take hold, there would be no difficulty in establishing a binder twine factory in Chatham. Then the men who owned the factory were the men who used the twine, and every stockholder would be an advertising agent for the factory. Mr. Henderson and his partner, Mr. Cummings undertook to circulate the stock books among the farmers. As soon as $50,000 worth of the stock had been subscribed, a charter would be secured. The matter before the meeting was the election of a good board of provisional directors.

COST OF PRODUCTION.

It cost 3 1/2 of a cent per lb. to manufacture the twine. This year the best manilla raw material had cost 31-2 cents a pound and the farmers had paid 15 cents a pound for twine that had cost 4-1/4 cents when manufactured. If 5,000 farmers took stock in the factory, the twine they themselves used would keep the factory running and money it pay without having any farmers not stockholders using the twine.

The shares had been put at $10 each so as to give everybody a chance to take stock. The only opposition to the factory so far encountered was manifested on the part of those who made a profit out of binder twine. All Mr. Henderson asked was of a board of directors in whom the farmers had confidence, and he agreed to get the stock subscribed.

VOICE OF THE MEETING.

The farmers present were then asked for an expression of their opinion in regard to the project. The first voice was that of James Chinnick, Chatham township, thought the factory would be a good thing for both the farmers and the city of Chatham.

E. B. Toll, Harwich, said that the factory seemed to afford a profitable investment and he didn't see why this section of the county shouldn't have a factory. The only difficulty was the securing of the proper class of men to run the business judiciously.

M. J. Wilson, Harwich, said the project was a new one, but he believed it was a step in the right direction and it ought to prove a benefit to the farmers. He thought the use of the corn binder nearly as much twine was used in the fall as was used in the summer. As far as personally he was concerned he intended taking stock in the company.

Mr. Stephenson, Dover, said that the Dominion Government had made twine at a cost of 25 cents per ton, and yet the farmers couldn't get binder twine for even 14 cents a pound. He thought the proposed company all right.

Mr. Carter, Dover, said his intention of taking stock in the company. John Henderson, of Dover, thought the venture would prove profitable. If the projected factories were built he would be a stockholder.

G. M. Smith, Harwich, was another who intended to own stock.

Mr. Carter, of Dover, favored the factory but spoke against the farmers contract for twine six months before the harvest.

John Catton was of the opinion that a binder twine factory would be a success and the farmers would derive great benefit from it.

D. A. Hutchison made an extended address in support of the factory. He favored joint stock companies. The best man in Chatham was in Chatham were run in this way. He concluded that care should be taken in the election of the officers of the company and that men of good and tried business capacity should be chosen.

Mr. Parrott considered that no better place for a factory could be found than in Chatham. He was a member of the committee of the Grand Lodge of Patrons of Industry who had brought the Brantford factory across the line to fatten a combine. He was prepared to take stock.

CHATHAM WANTS INDUSTRIES.

Ald. Pritchard wasn't a farmer but Chatham wanted industries and he was going to do everything in reason to assist in securing them. All the time he was in the water and exemption from taxation and, as far as he was concerned, they could have it.

Ald. Mounter was closely allied in business interests with the farmers and he thought the project was a good thing.

Ald. Fleming was in favor of the factory. In reply to Mr. Fleming's question as to the cost of the factory, promoter Henderson said that $10,000 would erect a sufficient sized plant to run the factory.

Capitalists were not wanted in the company. It was necessary for its success that the farmers should hold the controlling interest. One competent man who was sufficient to operate the factory. About 50 hands would be employed, all unskilled laborers, and the majority boys and girls. Whether jobs should be allowed to handle the product of the factory or not would be a question for directors to decide.

W. E. Hamilton, editor of the Market Guide, speaking as a newspaper man favored the building of the factory. He had been thinking of the factory, but it was essential the stock company should be limited. Mr. Kelly had had some experience with a stock company that he hadn't relished.

Samuel Bullis considered that the building of the factory would be a move in the right direction.

ADVANTAGES OF LOCATING HERE

P. H. Cumming, Warden of Bruce County who is interested in the formation of the company, also addressed the meeting. He was glad of an opportunity to explain the operations of the factory to such a representative meeting. Binder twine was unlike other manufactured goods. There was always a sale for it, as the twine could only be used once. He had been through the district to be supplied by the factory, and there wasn't a better location in Canada than here.

The three railroads gave good freight competition. Mr. Cumming and his associate weren't in Chatham for the purpose of establishing a factory, but they were promoting it for the purpose of making money. Other places wanted the factory, and there was no use waiting time here if the farmers of Kent didn't desire to take hold of the matter. The factory in Walkerton had cost $60,000, but profiting by the experience of the company in that town, the factory could be built and equipped here for $40,000. The factory building would be of brick, one story high, 200 feet long, by 45 feet wide.

On motion of D. A. Hutchison, seconded by M. J. Wilson, the opinion of the meeting was asked as to whether the establishment of a binder twine factory should be undertaken or not.

SCROFULA THE CAUSE.

Scrofula, catarrh, hip disease, white-swelling, and even consumption have their origin in scrofulous conditions. With the slightest taint of scrofula in the blood, there is no safety. The remedy for this disease in all its forms is Hood's Sarsaparilla, which goes to the root of the trouble and expels all impurities and disease germs from the blood.

The best family cathartic is Hood's Pills.

Scrofula is simply a continuation of the same symptoms until the trouble becomes chronic and grows gradually worse from year to year.

Stuart's Catarrh Tablets are composed of hyaline, eucaalyptol, guaiacol, and similar antiseptics and are seen that no secret is made of the ingredients, and also that no mineral poisons are used, as is the case with many well known catarrh medicines.

The Mystery of Agatha Webb.

BY ANNA KATHARINE GREEN.

"Then, gentlemen," continued Frederick, still without looking at Amabel, whose smile had acquired a mockery that drew the eyes of the jury toward her more than once during the following recital, "you know, and the public generally now know, that Mrs. Webb has left me the greater portion of the money of which she died possessed. I have never before acknowledged to any one, not even to the good man who awaits this jury's verdict on the other side of that door, that she had reasons for this, good reasons, reasons which up to the very evening of her death I was myself ignorant of, as I was ignorant of her intentions in my regard or that I was the special object of her attention, or that we were under any mutual obligations in any way. Why, then, I should have thought of going to her in the great strait in which I found myself on that day I can hardly say. I knew she had money in her house. This I had unhappily been made acquainted with in an accidental way, and I knew she was of kindly disposition and quite capable of doing a very unselfish act. Still this would not seem to be reason enough for me to intrude upon her late at night with a plea for a large loan of money had I not been in a desperate condition of mind, which made any attempt seem reasonable that promised relief from the unendurable burden of a pressing and disreputable debt.

"I was obliged to have money—a great deal of money—and I had to have it at once, and, while I know this will not serve to lighten the suspicion I have brought upon myself by my late admissions, it is the only explanation I can give you for leaving the hall at my father's house and hurrying down secretly and alone into town to the little cottage where, as I had been told early in the evening, a small entertainment was being given which would insure its being open even at so late an hour as midnight. Miss Page, who will, I am sure, pardon the introduction of her name into this narrative, has taken pains to declare to you that in the expedition she herself made into town that evening she followed some person's steps down hill. This is very likely true, and those steps were probably mine, for after leaving the house by the garden door I came directly down the main road to the corner of the lane running past Mrs. Webb's cottage. Having already seen from the hillside the light burning in her upper windows, I felt encouraged to proceed and so hastened on till I came to the gate on High street. Here I had a moment of hesitation, and thoughts bitter enough for me to recall them at this moment came into my mind, making that instant perhaps the very worst in my life. But they passed, thank God, and with nothing more desperate in mind than a sudden intention of having my own way about this money I lifted the latch of the front door and stepped in.

"I had expected to find a jovial group of friends in her little ground parlor or at least hear the sound of merry voices and laughter in the rooms above, but no sounds of any sort awaited me. Indeed the house seemed strangely silent for one so fully lighted and astonished at this, I pushed the door ajar at my left and looked in. An unexpected and pitiful sight awaited me. Seated at a table set with abundance of un-tasted food, I saw the master of the house, with his head sunk forward on his arms, asleep. The expected guests had failed to arrive, and he, tired out with waiting, had fallen into a doze at the board.

"This was a condition of things for which I was not prepared. Mrs. Webb, whom I wished to see, was probably up stairs, and while I might summon her by a sturdy rap on the door, beside which I stood, I had so little desire to wake her husband, of whose mental condition I was well aware, that I could not bring myself to make any loud noise within his hearing. Yet I had not the courage to retreat. All my hope of relief from the many difficulties that menaced me lay in the generosity of this great hearted woman, and if out of pusillanimity I let this hour go by without making my appeal, nothing but shame and disaster awaited me. Yet how could I hope to lure her down stairs without noise? I could not, and so yielding to the impulse of

"If you want my life, I will give it to you with my own hand."

here swear, of the effect which my unexpected presence would have on the noble woman overhead, I slipped up the narrow staircase and, catching at that moment the sound of her voice calling out to Betsy, I stepped up to the door I saw standing open before me and confronted her before she could move from the table before which she was sitting, counting over a large roll of money.

"My look (and it was doubtless not a common look, for the sight of a mass of money at that moment, when money was everything to me, roused every lurking demon in my breast) seemed to appall, if it did not frighten, her, for the rose, and meeting my eyes with a gaze in which shock and some strange and poignant agony totally incomprehensible to me were strangely blended, she cried out:

"No, no, Frederick! You don't know what you are doing. If you want my money, take it; if you want my life, I will give it to you with my own hand.
Don't stain yours—don't!"

"I did not understand her. I did not know until I thought it over afterward that my hand was thrust convulsively into my breast in a way which, taken with my wild mien, made me look as if I had come to murder her for the money over which she was hovering.
I was blind, deaf to everything but that money, and, bending madly forward in a state of mental intoxication awful enough for me to remember now, I answered her frenzied words by some such broken exclamations as these:

"Give, then! I want hundreds—thousands—now, now, to save myself! Disgrace, shame, prison await me if I don't have them. Give, give!" And my hand went out toward it, not toward her; but she mistook the action, mistook my purpose, and, with a heartbroken cry, to save me, me, from crime, the worst crime of which humanity is capable, she caught up a dagger lying only too near her hand in the open drawer against which she leaned, and in a moment of fathomless anguish, which we who can never know more than the outward seeming of her life can hardly measure, plunged against it and—I can tell you no more. Her blood and Betsy's shriek from the adjoining room swam through my consciousness, and then she fell, as I supposed, dead upon the floor, and I, in scarcely better case, fell also.

"This, as God lives, is the truth concerning the wound found in the breast of this never to be forgotten woman."

The feeling, the pathos, the anguish even, to be found in his tones made this story, strange and incredible as it seemed, appear for the moment plausible.

"And Betsy?" asked the coroner.

"Must have fallen when we did, for I never heard her voice after the first scream. But I shall speak of her again.
What I must now explain is how the money in Mrs. Webb's drawer came into my possession and how the dagger she had planted in her breast came to be found on the lawn outside. When I came to myself, and that must have been very soon, I found that the blow I had been such a horrified witness to had not yet proved fatal. The eyes I had seen close, as I had supposed, forever, were now open, and she was looking at me with a smile that has never left my memory and never will.

"There is no blood on you," she murmured. "You did not strike the blow.
Was it money only that you wanted, Frederick? If so, you could have had it without crime. There are $1,000 on that table and half as much again in the closet over yonder. Take them and let them pass your way to a better life. My death will help you to remember." Do these words, this action of hers, seem incredible to you, sir? Alas, alas! they will not when I tell you"— and here he cast one anxious, deeply anxious, glance at the room in which Mr. Sutherland was hidden—"that, unknown to me, unknown to any one living but herself, unknown to that good man from whom it can no longer be kept hidden, Agatha Webb was my mother. I am Philemon's son and not the offspring of Charles and Marietta Sutherland!"

CHAPTER XXII.

HOW HE WAS FOILED.
Impossible! Incredible!
Like a wave suddenly lifted the whole assemblage rose in surprise if not in protest. But there was no outburst. The very depth of the feelings evoked made all ebullition impossible, and as one sees the billow pause ere it breaks and gradually subside, so this crowd yielded to the awe within them and one by one sank back into their seats till quiet was again restored and only a circle of listening faces confronted the man who had just stirred a whole roomful to its depths. Seeing this and realizing his opportunity, Frederick at once entered into the explanations for which each heart there panted.

"This will be overwhelming news to him who has cared for me since infancy. You have heard him call me son. With what words shall I overthrow his confidence in the truth and rectitude of his long buried wife and make him know in his old age that he has wasted years of patience upon one who was not of his blood or lineage?
The wonder, the incredulity, you manifest and my best excuse for my long delay in revealing the secret entrusted to me by this dying woman."

An awed silence greeted these words.
Never was the interest of a crowd more intense or its passions held in greater restraint. Yet Agnes' tears flowed freely, and Amabel's smiles—well, their expression had changed, and to Sweetwater, who alone had eyes for her now, they were surcharged with a tragic meaning strange to see in one of her callous nature.

Frederick's voice broke as he proceeded in his self imposed task:

"The astounding fact which I have just communicated to you was made known to me by my mother, with the dagger still plunged in her breast. She would not let me draw it out. She knew that death would follow that act, and she prized every moment remaining to her because of the bliss she enjoyed of seeing and having near her her only living child. The love, the passion, the boundless devotion, she showed in those last few minutes transformed me in an instant from a selfish brute into a deeply repentant man. I knelt before her in anguish. I made her feel that, wicked as I had been, I was not the conscienceless wretch she had imagined and that she was mistaken as to the motives which led me into her presence. And when I saw by her clearing brow and peaceful look that I had fully persuaded her of

REMEMBERED
THE NURSES.

How Santa Claus Paid Them a Flying Visit

Which Has Been Commemorated in Verse by a Local Poet.

Hospital life, like all other, has its lights and shadows, and its joys are often in connection with the little kindly acts of every day. On Saturday evening as many of the nurses as could gathered together in the kitchen, which being in the top of the building, would of course make the chimney journey of Santa Claus as short as possible. Here they received most mysterious-looking packages of all shapes and sizes, which seemed to promise almost anything by way of contents, and the interesting process of determining just what they did contain caused a good deal of merriment. An old friend of the institution read the following ode, composed for the occasion.

In Friendship's name we gather here To wish each one a bright New Year. To free our hearts from every strife, To speed us on to happy life.

The year is gone, but we recall The kindly deeds of one and all; Mistakes we've made, no doubt, but yet, All but our own we will forget.

'Tis sweet to live, then let's live sweet, With loving hands and loving feet; Do what we can to help along The weary hearts with Heaven's song.

Let's help each other in His name, Who helps us all who ever came To seek His help in life's rough way, Oh, may we never from Him stray.

Of each we'll think the very best And leave to God above the rest; We'll look upon the side that's bright, And ever strive to do the right.

No doubt you think it's time I'd done, But let me say to every one, Your neighbor's hand quite friendly take And give it now a friendly shake.

But they had not done with Santa Claus yet. It seems he had hinted to some of his Chatham friends that something of the kind might possibly happen and knowing that the Old Boys is always better than his worst they made their preparation to do what they could to help, in the way of cake and ice cream.

FEWER FAIRS,
BUT BETTER.

The Suggestion of the Dominion Live Stock Commissioner to Pres. Chinnick.

An interesting letter submitted to the Annual Meeting of the Agricultural Society.

At the recent annual meeting of the West Kent Agricultural Society, President Chinnick read the following communication which he had received from the Dominion Live Stock Commissioner, and which furnishes much material for consideration locally:—

Dominion of Canada, Department of Agriculture, Commissioner 22nd, 1900.

My Dear Sir:—At the urgent request of several prominent gentlemen, I carefully prepared an article entitled, "Results Obtained in the Province of Ontario by Organized Effort." This article was published in several papers, each having a large circulation among farmers. By this mail I send you a copy of the "Rising World," in which this article also appeared. Please see pages 48 to 51 inclusive. I wish to especially call your attention to page 51. You will kindly read the article published under the sub-heading, "Ontario has made Mistakes." After you have read it please write me your views on this subject.

For several years I have given great deal of attention to this question and have come to the conclusion that much of the money and time spent in maintaining and attending many of the local fairs is worse than wasted. There is a growing feeling throughout the country that the Ontario Agricultural and Arts Act should be thoroughly revised, and that our present fair system should be reorganized, I am not in favor of doing away with our local agricultural associations, but of putting them on a better and more useful footing. Fewer fairs and better fairs should be the order of the day. Many of the local agricultural societies can do more useful work in some other direction.

The system of buying and owning, or hiring, pure bred sires by societies, as is largely done in Europe is very advantageous. By this plan every farmer in the district may have the use of a very desirable sire of any of the pure breeds of horses, cattle, sheep or swine, by simply paying to his local society a small annual fee. In some places all membership fees are pooled and used by the executive officers in maintaining the animals owned at convenient centres. After stock sales are once bought they can usually be sold for enough to buy others when they have been the property of the association long enough, or an exchange can be made with some other neighborhood. In some sections males are not purchased outright, but hired for the season for the use of members of the association. Not only will the members be greatly benefited by either of these plans, but it will open up a large home market for much of the best breeding stock which is now either sold to American competitors, or sacrificed to

Any Boys?

If there are boys in the house, or girls either, then croup, coughs, catarrh, bronchitis, and sore throat are sure to be there, too, sooner or later. Don't crowd their stomachs with medicine, just have them breathe-in the vapor of Vapo-Cresoline; they'll like it, and it will give immediate relief. In this way you put the medicine right on the place that needs it. For whooping-cough it's the perfect cure.

Vapo-Cresoline is sold by druggists everywhere. The Vapo-Cresoline Lamp, which should last a lifetime, and a bottle of Cresoline complete, $1.50; extra supply of Cresoline, 25 cents and 50 cents. the butcher, and thus in either case lost to the country.

I have just received a letter from Mr. R. F. Seymour, Essex, Ont., in which he says:—

"The township fair has been discontinued, and stock animals are kept in place of an exhibition, which meets with the approval of the ratepayers and creates quite an interest. We have some 13 pure bred Shorthorn bulls in different parts of the township of Mississauga and Rochester. I believe seven out of ten thinking men believe that Ontario's Agricultural Societies should be reorganized, but we are all too busy or too modest to bring our views before the public. If we desire the government of the day to take these matters up, we must make public opinion, or rather we must ask our neighbors to express their opinion. Do not write you in my official capacity, but simply as a citizen of Ontario, and as one who desires to see Canada and Canadian institutions in advance of all others. I believe that this is a public question worthy of your best thought. May I not have the honor of hearing from you at an early date.

Yours very truly,
W. H. HOLDSON,
Live Stock Commissioner.

WHY HE OBJECTED TO SIGN.

To The Planet.—I noticed an item in your issue of Jan. 9th, which said that the township of Raleigh recently passed an account of Dr. Bell's, amounting to $5, for attending an indigent colored woman. The reeve refused to sign the order and the township entered suit. The suit was settled by the township paying the doctor and the court costs. This account was not for attending an indigent person. She was a respectable, well-to-do person. When she died she left plenty of property to pay her liabilities, but the doctor never applied to them for his pay, hence the reeve refused to sign the order. The reeve was right, and although the township settled and paid the court costs, the township neither shed tears nor made an apology.

Runaway New York Preacher and Nurse Proved Themselves Such.

Furried All Kinds of Amusement to People on the Ship on Which They Flew.

New York, Jan. 17.—The vanishment of Rev. James Le Baron Johnston and Miss Mary Hoffman from this city a few weeks ago, at which time it was feared that the clergyman's mind had become unbalanced, seems to be cleared up by this tale from Halifax, N. S.

"Officers of the Allen line steamship Tunisian have identified photographs of Rev. James Le Baron Johnston, former fire chaplain of New York City, and Miss Mary Hoffman, a former nurse at Bellevue hospital, as those of the couple who sailed on the previous trip of their ship from Halifax to Liverpool under the description of 'Mr. and Mrs. L. F. Montgomery, of Louisville, Ky.'"

"News that Johnston and Miss Hoffman had suddenly left New York was announced early in December. 'Mr. and Mrs. Montgomery' reached Liverpool Dec. 22.

"According to the Tunisian's officers, 'the Montgomerys' aroused much interest on board the vessel. They were not referred to as 'Mr. and Mrs. Montgomery,' but as 'the bride and groom,' and the passengers, who took particular delight in watching the couple.

"The passengers were amused more than once, for 'the Montgomerys' furnished a delectable topic of conversation, so thoroughly was their sweet honeymoon.

"There are only two bridal suites of rooms on the Tunisian; and 'Mr. and Mrs. Montgomery' had one of them. They paid for the luxury of occupying this bridal suite $160, and this was but a part of their expenditure.

"During the first afternoon at sea 'Montgomery' sent for the officer of the ship whose duty it was to see to the comfort of the saloon passengers. He told this officer that he was not pleased with the sleeping accommodations in his suite. There were single beds in both rooms.

"What 'Montgomery' wanted was a double bed. He asked if this could not be arranged. It was an unusual request to make on shipboard. One of the pursers said it was unprecedented, so far as his experience on the Atlantic went, but the officers were disposed to do everything they could for the couple. They promised to construct a bed for two.

"The way they did it was to bring in settees and cushions from unoccupied staterooms, and with these they constructed what the sailors who had the room in hand, called a "four-legged bedstead."

"This bedstead crowded one of the staterooms, so that the door connecting with the corridor could not be opened. To reach the stateroom the couple had to pass through the bathroom. That four-legged bedstead caused great merriment among the officers and passengers.

"One Sunday was passed at sea, and the passengers wanted a religious service. Some felt that prayers on shipboard would be an experience that afterward they would recollect with pleasure. Accordingly they asked the Capt. Vincent, if he would hold service.

"Mr. Montgomery did not officiate. He took a prominent seat in the congregation, though. A Junior Purser King read the service of the Church of England."

Powley's Liquefied Ozone The Most Remarkable Preparation known to Science

Ever since the remarkable cures of Mr. W. G. McCarthy and Mr. Francis, attention has been drawn to Powley's Liquefied Ozone. The marvelous nature of the recovery of both these gentlemen stamped Ozone as being a treatment which was fairly marvelous in its health giving power. Hundreds of testimonials have been received since then; each testimonial can be verified. Read what R. E. Fleming says.

"Some fifteen months ago a friend spoke to me about Ozone and I have truly thanked him ever since. I have suffered all my life from indigestion, weak stomach, bilious headaches, and poor, thin, watery blood. Some years ago, in fact when a young boy, I had bilious headaches and twice a week, and later on in life always had two severe attacks twice a month. I despaired of ever getting any relief or permanent cure. Fifteen months ago I had a severe attack of Kidney Trouble, suffering with pains in my back, my blood being in a miserable condition. I was weak, had a poor appetite, could eat little or nothing, and my blood was solid flesh and muscles rapidly. I take the liberty of presenting to you, my testimonial, that others may see and profit thereby if suffering as I was. Believe me, very truly yours, Signed,

R. E. FLEMING, 227 George St., Toronto
