Poetry To a Forget-Me Not.

BY PEARL MERE DITH. Tell him I love him yet. As in that happy time Tell him I could not forget,

Though memory were a crime. Tell him that when the light Fades upon earth and sea, I dream of him; but, oh,

He must not dream of me. Tell him to go where Fame Smiles brightly on the brave And win a glorious name

By deeds on land or wave. Green, green upon his brow The victory-wreath shall be Although his laurels now

Must not be shared by me. Tell him to smile again In Pleasure's brilliant throng; To love another's name,

To praise another's song. Before the loveliest there I'd have him bend the knee, And breathe to her the words

He used to breathe to me. Tell him that day by day, Life looks to me more dim, And words refuse to come

And tell him when I die To come to our favorite tree; I shall not hear, so then Let him sigh, if he must, for me. PASSING AWAY.

When I would pray for him.

'Twill pass away, how strange to say-That something else will come, Our trifling fears, our daity cares, While something else will come. That something more, there is in store; We naturally suppose; We're dreaming of, a land of Where quiet ever flows:

that many were not killed. It was a rear end collision, and it occured at Goose Creek station on the Rockaway division of the railway. A locomotive attached to two cars of a special train on which was a bridal party ran into the rear car of a regular train as the latter was leaving the station bound for New York last night at 10.50. The special locomotive and the rear car of the regular train was wrecked and the first and second car of the regular train elescoped each other.

A Child's Love,

I do not think we should expect of children the sort of love of which we ourselves are capable. The child's love for the parent and the parent's love for the child are essentially different and we may only arouse a sort of antagonism in the young by insisting upon our right to a self-sacrificing affection. Let us be content with the sweet dependence, the demonstrative fondness that is nature's respone to our nature prompted bestowal of ourselves apon our children. A degree of sturdy selfishnes, however, is the prerogative of healthy childhood. and cannot be regarded as altogether blameworthy. An Atlanta married man says: "I do not like my wife to stay to closely at home. When she stays in the house for several days at a time the table chat drifts to the servants's faults, the spots on the wall paper, and the general wear and tear of the house. When she goer out she always has something bright and interesting to tell me when I come home. Home is a very good thing, but a woman can have too much of it."

Poor Hatches. Not for many years past have there een so many complaints in the poultry papers and from poultrymen in general about unfertile eggs and poor success. They all attribute it to the very severe winter and the cold, backward spring. Eggs from United States and Canada gave very poor hatches this spring, so it is well not to be fault-finding when such things are unavoidable by the poultry-

On Trial For Murder.

FREDERICTON, June 21.—Alfred Gover was arraigned in the Circuit Court shortly after 10 c'clock this morning to plead to an incictment charging him with murdering William McLean at Greenhill, parish of Stanley, on May 19th last. The court room was crowded when the prisoner was brought in by Deputy Sherical Parish of Stanley and the prisoner was brought in by Deputy Sherical Parish was also believed. was arraigned in the Circuit Court shortiff Hawthorn and placed in the dock, and all eyes were turned upon him. He was attired in a black diagonal suit, with cutaway coat buttoned across his chest, and carried a soft black felt hat. His imprisonment since the preliminary examinaiion has produced no change in his facial appearance, and there was no evidence of the metal strain which would ordinarily be supposed to be on one so situated. In fact, his expression and deportment throughout this morning's proceedings were ineicative rather of indifference than

Upon his being called to plead, his counsel, Mr. Gregory, called the attention of the court to the fact that the prisoner was very deaf and unable to hear from the dock. ### HIS SACRIFICE.

By the window of the drawing-room of the corner house in a dingy London square stood Honor Wyllie and Archie Douglas-a tall, dark-complexioned girl; and a slight, fair young man, somewhat above the middle height.

Honor's slender fingers were mechanically untwisting the cords of the tassel large grey eyes were directed at the little lieved that a simple 'No' from her would troduce you. Archer, this is Miss Wyllie, could not easily be found, for the steamenclosure of smoky-looking trees, upon which the smut-laden rain was falling, but she saw neither trees nor rain.

"I never for an instant thought of this," she said, without moving. "Believe me, never, or I should have been more careful."

Her companion made no reply; yet his figure expressed attention. "All the time I have been under the It has been no secret. I thought every-

Still no answer. The young man's bent head dropped lower on his breast. "Do speak to me," she said, pleadingly, after a pause. "Be angry with meanything rather than this silence! I am so sorry—so ashamed——"

"Angry!" and Douglas checked a groan that had all but made itself heard.

He approached a step nearer to her, to look earnestly at her profile, then started as a drop of water suddenly fell upon the back of her hand.

"Crying, Honor! There, I will go. Thank you for-everything. I hope HE is worthy your love, Honor. Heaven bless you! May you be very happy!

"And I am forgiven!" she contrived to ask, in a choked voice.

"Forgiven! For what? For being too kind and sweet? Yes, I forgive you that, Miss Wyllie! Good bye."

He moved slowly and unwillingly to the door.

Prunes.

The wholesomeness of prunes is generally acknowledged, and for those appetites which soon weary of stewed prunes. here is a baked puding which is delicious: Cook until very tender and mash through a colander one quart of prunes. Add a pinch of salt and one tablespoon of granulated sugar, and set aside until cold. Beat to a froth with one-half cup powdered sugar, the whites of six eggs, mix with the fruit, and bake in a buttered dish for fifteen or twenty minutes. The secret of the delicacy of this pudding lies in the baking—in having the oven just right and in so timing it that it will be done only the mement before of serving. It wili not be so nice if it stands after it is the first week change gradually to cracked done. Whipped cream is the best sauce wheat: for this dessert.
