'Margaret,' The GIRL ARTIST, OR, The Countess of Ferrers Court.

CHAPTER XV.

"Yes," she said, in a low voice, which she appeared to keep steady by a palpable effort. "You are—Mrs. Stanley?"

The color grew a little deeper in Margaret's cheeks, and her lids fell a little; but she said quietly:

"Yes, I am Mrs. Stanley."

Thereupon the visitor raised her veil, and Margaret saw a face that was pretty, and would have been girlish, but for its palor and the lines which had impressed upon it either sorrow or sickness.

When she raised her veil she let her hands drop into her lap, and clasped them tightly and nervously, and her lips quivered.

Margaret remained standing, but the visitor sank into the seat from which she had risen, as if unable to stand.

"You—you will wonder—my wife will be surprised at my—my presence," she began, then she broke off and clutched at her dress nervously. "Oh, how can I go on? Bear with me, I beseech you! Be patient with me, I implore!"

Margaret looked down at her with surprise, that slowly melted to pity. "I am afraid you are in some trouble," she said, gently, and Margaret's voice, when it was gentle, was compounded of the music which is said to disarm savage beasts.

It seemed to move the pale-faced girl strangely. She caught her breath and appeared to wince. "I am in great trouble," she said. "You cannot tell, you will never know what it has cost me to come to you. But—but it is my only chance!"

She paused to gain breath, and Margaret sank into a chair, and wondered how much she might venture to offer her. She had all the money she had given her for her pictures, and some savings besides. Of course it was pecuniary trouble.

"I am very, very sorry," she said, "and if I can help you—"

"You can, and you only!" said the girl.

"Will you tell me—" murmured Margaret.

"Yes, yes, I will!" she broke in; "but give me a minute, give me time, Mrs. Stanley. I will tell you my story. If it should fall to touch your heart—but it will not; I see by your face that you have a kind heart, that, though it might be led astray, would not do a fellow-creature, a helpless woman like yourself, a deadly wrong!"

Margaret stared at her, then turned pale. That the woman was mad she had now not a shadow of a doubt:

Gin Pills FOR THE KIDNEYS How They Cure

PLESSVILLE, QUE.
"I suffered from Kidney Trouble for several years, and tried numerous remedies and doctors' prescriptions without permanent relief, my case being chronic. After seeing about Gin Pills, and as it is a well known fact that Juniper, without alcohol, is excellent for the Kidneys, I decided to try Gin Pills. One single pill gave me great relief. I have now taken four boxes of Gin Pills and find myself completely cured. No more bad humor—no increase in weight—clear eyes—fresh color—more strength and vigor. This is what Gin Pills have done for me."

moody, and he went away again all next day. Soon he stayed away for days, then weeks, and at last he left me altogether."

Margaret uttered an inarticulate cry of pity and sympathy and indignation.

"No, no, do not blame him," said the girl. "It was not altogether his fault. He was light-hearted and—fickle by nature, and it was her fault, as much as his."

"Hers?" said Margaret.

"The girl looked at her with a vague wonder."

"Yes. Have you not guessed? The other woman?"

Margaret's face flushed.

"No!" she said.

"Yes, there was another woman. I discovered it by accident. I saw them together, and knew in an instant why he had left me. She was beautiful, more beautiful than I, and looked like a lady, which I never was. And—and it was not wonderful that he should leave me—a poor, simple girl—"

"It was wicked, cruelly wicked!" exclaimed Margaret, hotly.

"The girl sobbed."

"I did not know who she was! She looked good—and yet it was her fault. I went home—after seeing them—and waited for him to come that I might tax him with it! But he never came back! He sent me money, but I would not touch it! I—I had my savings, and I lived on them—"

"That was right!—that was right!" murmured Margaret, her womanly heart aglow.

"And—and I thought that I could learn to let him go, and live without him! But—but it was too hard a lesson! I could not! You see, I loved him so!"

"Poor girl, poor girl! Oh, he was a villain! You should have—"

"What should I have done? Gone to him and reproached him? Oh, you do not know him! It would have made him hate me, and parted us forever and ever!"

"The law—there is justice," said Margaret.

The girl shook her head in dull misery.

"No, my pride was too great for that. Besides, I did not want my friends to know how I was treated. There was only one thing to do"—she paused, and her dark, restless eyes fixed themselves covertly on Margaret's face as if she were waiting for a cue.

"What was that?" breathed Margaret, bending forward.

"To go to the girl he had deserted me for, to go to her and pray her to let him come back to me. He was deceiving her, leading her astray, and she might turn on me and laugh at me. But she looked good, and perhaps, who knew, she might listen to my prayer! She could not love him better than I do, and if she did, she might not be so lost to all shame as to keep him from his wife!"

"No, no! you were right!" said Margaret. "Why do you not go to her?"

"I have come to her!" panted the girl. "Oh, Mrs. Stanley!—" But she stopped perforce, for Margaret's open-eyed bewilderment showed that the words were lost upon her.

"You have come?" she said. "Come where—to whom?"

"I have come here, to you!" exclaimed the girl, stretching out her hands. "Oh, dear lady, you are beautiful, ten times more beautiful than I am; but you look good and kind. Have mercy on me, and give me back my husband!"

"You have never seen me with your husband!—never! never! Let go my dress!"

"Yes, you!" sobbed the girl. "Do you think I should mistake when all my life hung upon it? I have tried not to mention my husband's name, but you force me to do it. He may have tried to hide it from you—it is possible—but you may know it!"

"Yes, tell me," said Margaret, soothingly, feeling that it would be well to humor her, "tell me; but let go my dress—you frighten me—"

"His name is Blair! He is 'Lord Leyton!' sobbed the girl.

Margaret uttered no cry. For a second she seemed as if she had not heard. The room spun round; the blue sky outside the window turned red, and the sofa opposite her seemed to heave as if shaken by an earthquake. Then she laughed.

"You are a wicked woman!" she said, in slow tones of cold anger and contempt—"a very wicked woman! Why have you come here with this story? Do you want money?"

"The girl looked up at her with a strange look. Had she expected her victim to take the blow differently?"

"You—you don't believe me!" she wailed at last.

YOUNG WOMEN MAY AVOID PAIN

Need Only Trust to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, says Mrs. Kurtzweg.

Buffalo, N.Y.—"My daughter, whose picture is herewith, was much troubled with pains in her back and sides every month and they would sometimes be so bad that it would seem like acute inflammation of some organ. She read your advertisement in the newspapers and tried Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

She praises it highly as she has been relieved of all these pains by its use. All mothers should know of this remedy, and all young girls who suffer should try it."—Mrs. MATILDA KURTZWEG, 529 High St., Buffalo, N. Y.

Young women who are troubled with painful or irregular periods, headache, dragging-down sensations, fainting spells or indigestion, should take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Thousands have been restored to health by this root and herb remedy.

If you know of any young woman who is sick and needs help, please write to the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass. Only women will receive her letter, and it will be held in strictest confidence.

Margaret shrank back, paling a little, but once again convinced that she was in the presence of a mad woman.

Yes, that was the key to the whole scene. The woman was one of those monomaniacs who are possessed by the shadow of an imagined wrong, and had pitched upon her as the person who had injured her! She looked toward the door and half rose, but before she could rise from her chair, the girl threw herself on her knees before her, and caught at her dress.

"You do not believe me! You would spurn me! Oh, my dear lady, in Heaven's name, listen to me! Do not turn from me! Think of my great wrong, my broken heart. You think you love him, but remember me! I am his wife—his wife; while you—ah, you have no claim on him! Besides, he has wronged you as cruelly almost as she has wronged me! Do not hesitate, dear, dear lady; have pity on me, and let him come back to me!" she cried, sobbing now bitterly.

Margaret tried to jerk her dress from the clinging hands, but they held too tightly.

"You—you are mad!" she got out at last, in a horrified voice, which she tried to keep steady. "I do not know you—I never saw you before! I know nothing of your husband! It's a mistake, all a mistake. Let me go, please, or I shall call some one—"

"No, no! Listen to me! Be patient with me!" pleaded the girl. "You do not know me, but I know you, though I only saw you and him together once. It was up the river. Oh, I should never, never forget you. Oh, be good to me! Let him come back to me! I am his wife—his wife! You will not you cannot divide husband and wife!"

"Yes, you are mad!" said Margaret, with conviction. "You have never seen me with your husband!—never! never! Let go my dress!"

"Yes, you!" sobbed the girl. "Do you think I should mistake when all my life hung upon it? I have tried not to mention my husband's name, but you force me to do it. He may have tried to hide it from you—it is possible—but you may know it!"

"Yes, tell me," said Margaret, soothingly, feeling that it would be well to humor her, "tell me; but let go my dress—you frighten me—"

SEIZURE OF CARGOES CAUSING SURPRISE.

LONDON, April 9. The record number of seizures of cargoes from the United States by British authorities during the past fortnight, is causing some surprise here in view of the fact that the new plan under which American shippers might have been given a form of license certifying the innocence of consignments was put into operation two weeks ago. Many ships detained have been subsequently released, but a larger number than usual has been ordered to put at least a portion of their cargoes into the Prize Courts. Among the seizures have been a number of cargoes consigned to the Netherlands Overseas Trust.

PEACE MEETING BROKEN UP.

LONDON, April 9. An attempt to hold a non-conscripted and peace meeting in Trafalgar square to-day was unceremoniously broken up, by thousands of persons who charged and dispersed the procession and tore up the banners and flags. Various peace societies organized the demonstration. Sylvia Pankhurst, the militant suffragette, was prominent. After the procession had been dispersed the leaders of the movement mounted the plinth of the Nelson column and endeavored to make speeches, but the crowd pelted them with flour, and red and yellow ochre. The speakers faced the ordeal for five minutes and then beat a hasty retreat.

ENEMY ATTACK CHECKED.

PARIS, April 9. The French curtain of fire has checked the enemy attack, and the Germans are compelled to remain in the trenches at Champagne. Artillery was very active in Flanders but no gains of importance are reported.

FRENCH VICTORY ANNOUNCED.

PARIS, April 9. A French victory was announced at Veurne. The War Office reports that the troops have captured 150 metres of German trenches at Donaumont village, north of Ypres. German hand-grenade attacks were repulsed.

ACTIVITY ABOUT FLANDERS.

LONDON, April 9. (Official.) Last night and to-day there has been some minor activity about Houthulst and southeast of Roubaert. There has been artillery activity to-day on both sides of the Pefcoux-Souches-Lorette, Ring and about St. Eloi and south of Ypres the enemy shelled our trenches heavily this afternoon. We retaliated.

BERLIN OFFICIAL.

BERLIN, April 9. There has been no change in the situation in any of the theaters of war, according to to-day's official statement issued by the German army headquarters.

FRENCH EVACUATE BETHUN-COURT SALETTE.

PARIS, April 9. The French evacuated Bethun-court Salette on Saturday night. The Germans to-day attacked with great violence their new line from Avocourt to Comieres but were repulsed with sanguinary losses. Only at one point northeast of Avocourt did the Germans succeed in entering the French trenches. From this position they were ejected through a counter attack.

Prospero Brings News of Bank Fishery.

The S. S. Prospero, Capt. J. Kean, returned from Western ports at midnight, bringing a full freight including a shipment of fresh frozen codfish and halibut. The following passengers came in saloon:—Capt. W. Hollett, H. Rowsell, J. B. Batten, T. Tupp, P. Parsons, Mrs. G. Camp, Messrs. H. Quann and J. Ashford and 20 second class.

There has been a marked improvement in the fishery on the Western banking grounds since last report. Though a few were not fortunate, the greater number of bankers did remarkably well within the past fortnight. The catches of some of the high liners up to a week ago were:—Capt. John Thornhill, from Grand Bank, 1300 qts.; Capt. Tom Hollett, from 1200; Capt. V. Cluett, Belleoram, 1200 qts.; Capt. Thornhill, Grand Bank, 900 and 800 quintals; Captain Hollett, (2) Barin, 800 and 900 quintals; Captain Fudge, Belleoram, 700 and 800 qts.; Inkpen's schooner (Grand Bank), 900 qts.; Captain John Lewis who was late getting on the grounds in his schooner Metamora for 500 qts. for a few weeks fishing.

Johnston had strolled away from the others, going down on the wharf, and somehow tumbled over the side. Those with him saw him fall forward and by the time they reached the place where he was standing, no trace of Johnston could be seen. He evidently struck his head on the wharf as he fell forward, and did not rise to the surface. His body has not been recovered.—Halifax Herald, April 6th.

Your Boys and Girls.

The baby's nose should be cleaned thoroughly several times a day. Long before baby's first teeth appear it is well also to wash out the mouth carefully. You can use a soft handkerchief or swab out the mouth with a piece of cotton.

If you want baby to keep well keep him out of doors as much as possible. If you are busy and still wish him to have fresh air, put on his hat and coat and let him rest on the bed with the windows wide open.

This does not mean that baby should be kept out in the heat of the day this coming summer. When it is very hot take him out early in the morning and then keep him in doors until late in the afternoon. From that time on keep the room as cool as you can. If you have a balcony or large porch turn that into a sleeping porch for baby.

The Municipal Bill

THE IRREMOVABLES.

We have already drawn attention to the extraordinary provision made in the Bill in regard to the tenure of office of the Secretary-Treasurer, the City Engineer, the Solicitor and the Sanitary Supervisor. They are to be removable only by a two-thirds vote of the whole Council and for good cause. The object of this in the case of the Secretary-Treasurer is to give him an irremovable standing in the collection of taxes. To our mind the position of the Secretary-Treasurer is strong enough for this purpose without this provision. If the object is to prevent interference with this duty by the Council or any Councillor, such interference is guarded against by Section 57 of the Bill, under which the Mayor, or the Council, or a Committee, or a Councillor is forbidden to intervene to postpone or prevent the collection of any tax, rate, assessment, rent, or license fee, and every one who contravenes this provision is liable to a penalty of not less than twenty-five dollars nor more than one hundred dollars, to be received by any person who may sue for the same in the Magistrate's Court. It should be remembered it is proposed that the Secretary-Treasurer shall be obliged to institute proceedings to recover amounts due for taxes, etc., immediately the six months is past for which the taxes are due. He will have no option as to delay and any delay will be a breach of duty. This in itself is a very stringent provision both as regards the debtor and the Secretary-Treasurer, and gives point to our contention that there is no need to buttress his position by making the holding of the office irremovable. Nor do we see sufficient ground for the provision which gives him the power at his option to issue warrants of distress and sell the goods and chattels seized.

On the City Engineer is imposed the duty by himself, or through his assistants, to engage and discharge all casual labour required in such departments. Apparently because of this duty and may be for less obvious reasons, the incumbent of this office cannot be removed from his office, except for good cause, and on a two-thirds vote of the whole Council. This provision is superogatory to our mind, as the Mayor, Councillors, the Council, or its Committee are forbidden to interfere, directly or indirectly in the employment or discharge of laborers, under a penalty of from $25 to $100. We hold a similar opinion in regard to the office of Sanitary Supervisor. We see no sound reason also for giving a similar tenure of office to the City Solicitor or City Medical Officer.

H. Company At Ayr.

The draft or balance of H Company which left here a short time ago, have reached the United Kingdom all well, and have proceeded to Ayr to join the Second Battalion. Everybody throughout the country will rejoice to hear that our last contingent of young men that left here have reached their destination safely.

Hope From the Ocean.

SCHR. THOMAS TURNS UP.

The schr. Thomas which made history in mercantile marine circles last winter, put into this port last evening. She came latterly from Fayal, Azores, and made the run in 27 days, but correctly speaking she was five months on the voyage to this port from Santa Pola where she originally left with a cargo of salt last fall. She had a terrible experience. Storm after storm and hurricane after hurricane was encountered coming on this coast. The little fore-and-aft was tossed about like a cork and was fearfully buffeted having everything carried away on deck and practically all her canvas torn to pieces. However, the wonder is that she survived at all and many times the crew thought their doom was sealed. A desperate effort was made to try and make the land but without success, as heavy gales were continuous with huge seas burying the little ninety tonner repeatedly. Eventually she was driven off and after being over 90 days out from Santa Pola reached Fayal in a battered condition. Repairs occupied a month there and the Thomas left again in the early part of March for St. John's. The cargo of salt is consigned to Harvey & Co., Ltd., who, we understand, has purchased the vessel to use her in the foreign fish carrying trade.

Overland Cars.

The popularity of the Overland car and the ever-increasing demand for it is remarkable, even in these days when motor cars are beginning to be considered more of a necessity than a luxury.

Mr. John N. Willys, the head of the Willys-Overland Co., assumed control eight years ago and the plant is now fourteen times its original size. The manufacturing facilities have been so organized that it is possible to build 1,000 cars every twenty-four hours.

Last year was reached the high-water mark in Overland production and attained a record never before equalled by any other manufacturer of medium or high-priced cars. This year that record will be left far behind—the actual shipments for the month of January amounted to 12,293 cars while the steadily increasing demand for Overlands is starting to show to those in close touch with the situation.

The keynote of Overland production has been to provide the motoring public with a car, fully equipped in every respect, easy to handle and thoroughly reliable, a car that will meet all the ordinary demands of daily use at the lowest price at which it is possible for any manufacturer to produce. It is evident that that policy has met with universal approval for Overland cars are now used and sold the world over.

LARGE PROCESSION AND IMPOSING SCENE.

All that was mortal of the late Richard Dohoney was laid to rest yesterday afternoon. The funeral took place from the residence of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. Dohoney, Prospect Street, and was one of the largest and most representative witnessed in the city for some time. Deceased, though only fourteen years of age, was a prominent figure in Brigade and Society circles and a bright pupil of the Christian Brothers, St. Patrick's Hall School. The procession consisted of the full strength of the C. C. C. Battalion, C. C. C. Band, squads from the Newfoundland Highlanders and C. L. B. Officers of the Holy Name and T. A. Juvenile Societies, members of the T. A. Juvenile Band, Revs. Bros. Ryan and Kennedy and a representative gathering of their pupils and a large concourse of citizens. The corpse was enclosed in a handsome coffin prepared by Uhlertaker Myrick, covered with beautiful floral tributes, containing the brigade uniform of the deceased and enfolded with the Union Jack. Along the route the C. C. C. Band rendered the "Dead March in Saul" touchingly, adding to the solemnity of the occasion. At the Cathedral Rev. Dr. Greene officiated, after which the sad cortege wended its way to Mount Carmel Cemetery where the remains were committed to mother earth, after the Last Post had been sounded by Bugler Madden.

Newfoundland's First Theatrical Co.

The Rossleys and their talented troupe are certainly making a big sensation in each place they appear, as pantomime is an unknown entertainment. They are booked for return engagements at every place they have appeared, and are doing a big business. In New Glasgow they broke the house records. While at Charlottetown the girls went to church and the Bishop of Charlottetown sent word to invite the girls to go and talk to him. They did so and the Bishop gave them his blessing and said he hoped they would do good business. He then took all the girls to the hospital where they visited a dying priest, who also blessed them. Then they went to the Convent, visited the nuns who gave them refresh-

Learning From the War.

The historian will not refer wholly to the terms the European peace congress will make to find out who won the war. Much less will the economist. Take England, for example. No matter what the outcome of the appeal to arms, what England has won from Germany is more valuable than territory or trade, and that is a lesson in economic efficiency. The before-the-war England suffered an enormous drain on its national life. The after-the-war England will confront the task of reconstruction with those evils, in part, eliminated. Perhaps a million Englishmen will have died, that England might learn that "Prussian militarism" was not her only foe, and that others as menacing, domesticated in her own social and industrial institutions, were attacking her life from within. The top coat is a great convenience when it is too cool to go without a coat yet too warm for a heavy wrap. While many hats are trimmed with high bows of ribbon, an equal number are fashionable with flat trimming.

Here and There.

ENGLISH BOATS DUE.—The Furness Liners Rappahannock, from London, and Graciana, from Glasgow are low due. Both have dry goods cargoes and English mails.

DR. HAL TAIT.—We hear that Dr. Harold Tait has been selected to take charge of the Officers' Convalescent Home at Bragmasia, Malta, a position of trust and responsibility.

FREEDOM OF CLUB TO RETURNED SOLDIERS.—The B. I. S. L. & A. held a meeting in their rooms yesterday. It was decided to offer the freedom of the Club Rooms to all invalided soldiers and soldiers on furlough, returning from active service. We cannot say too much for our brave boys. The B. I. S. L. & A. have headed the list and we feel sure the other clubs will follow.

CHEATING.

By RUTH CAMERON.

There are certain quotations that I find it an excellent thing to cite to myself about once in so often. One is that familiar line of Canon Farrar, which I have so frequently quoted to you. "The only real failure possible is not to have been true to the best one knows."

Another is the equally familiar warning from Stevenson, "There is an idea abroad among moral people that they should make their neighbors good. One person I have to make good—myself. But my duty to my neighbour is much more nearly expressed by saying that I have to make him happy—if I may."

And another, and this is the one that started me off to-day—is Kipling's "Something great and wise and good, Done by merely wishing we could." "Congratulating Myself When I Don't Deserve It."

New Orleans.

By GEORGE FITCH.

Author of "At Good Old Swash." New Orleans is a foreign city which was left behind when the French and Spanish evacuated America and which remained in a petrified and most attractive state until the wave of modern progress rolled over it, a few years ago.

New Orleans is the metropolis of the South and has been owned by five nations since it was founded something over two hundred years ago. The French and Spanish fought for it, the English captured it and the Confederate States gave it up to the United States fifty-four years ago. Of late the city has been absorbing Americanism rapidly, having adopted skyscrapers, ward politics, baseball and department stores with great enthusiasm.

New Orleans lies on the broad flat Louisiana lowlands, a few feet below the Mississippi River, which flows past its front door and has to be kept out of the city by means of levees which are so tall that no one who is not a good climber can fall into the river. Its low situation has complicated life in New Orleans and has caused the elevated cisterns and tombs for which the city is famous. It is possible to tell the wealth of a New Orleans citizen by the number of cisterns he has piled one above the other in his back yard, and a man with a four story cistern is regarded with awe. New Orleans citizens are not extravagant while living, but are rather ostentatious when dead. A New Orleans man will live contentedly for seventy years in an unpainted frame dwelling in order to save up money for a magnificent two-story tomb in Metairie Cemetery.

New Orleans is the centre of southern wealth, fashion, industry and commerce and has its own individual steamship lines to Europe and South America. It is a substantially built city whose old streets are a forest of green ironwork porches, and whose street cars will not only take a man out to the suburbs, but will retrieve him for the same nickel. It is divided into To-day and Yesterday by Canal Street, which is so wide that four car tracks and an automobile race on either side are accommodated. On one side of Canal street English is spoken fluently, while on the other side the inhabitants still talk with their shoulders and eyebrows, and the scattered remnants of an eighteenth century French aristocracy still maintain a French opera house and a little cemetery so exclusive that the only way to get into it is to edge in between the bones of a great-grandparent.

The climate of New Orleans is fine in March. The city has more than 350,000 people. It is tired of history, and tourists, and wants to dabble in corner lots and building records for a change.

Somebody's Mother.

The woman was old and ragged and gray, And bent with the chill of a winter's day; The streets were white with a recent snow, And the woman's feet with age were slow.

At the crowded crossing she waited long, Jostled aside by the careless throng Of human beings who passed her by, Unheeding the glance of her anxious eye.

Down the street with laughter and shout, Glad in the freedom of "school let out," Came happy boys, like a flock of sheep, Hailing the snow piled white and deep.

Passed the woman so old and gray, Hastened the children on their way. None offered a helping hand to her, So weak and timid, afraid to stir, Lest the carriage wheels or the horses' feet Should trample her down in the slippery street.

At last came out of the merry troop The gayest boy of all the group; He paused beside her and whispered low, "I'll help you across, if you wish to go."

Her aged hand on his strong young arm She placed, and so without hurt or harm He guided the trembling feet along, Proud that his own were young and strong; The back again to his friends he went, His young heart happy and well content.

"She's somebody's mother, boys, you know, For all she's poor and aged and slow; And someone, sometime, may lend a hand To help my mother—you understand? If ever she's old and poor and gray, And her own dear boy so far away."

"Somebody's mother" bowed low her head in her house that night, and the prayer she said Was: "God be kind to that noble boy, Who is somebody's son and pride and joy."

Regains Memory After Two Years. St. Thomas, Ont., March 23.—After being missing for two years, and during which time he had been under a complete lapse of memory, Malcolm P. Johnson, of the shoe firm of Johnson and McCormick, and one of the city's best known business men, returned to the city to-day.

Johnson disappeared suddenly and mysteriously two years ago and for some time foul play was suspected. He was finally located in the State of Oklahoma, where he had been working at odd jobs. He has now fully recovered his memory and will resume his former business.

LIGHT, HEAT, COMFORT!

The proprietor of one of the best known multiple shopping systems is credited with saying, "Give me any old shop, in any old street, and I'll guarantee to make it in twelve months the most widely known and best frequented shop in the district." He was asked to explain. Holding up three fingers he said, "I believe in the trinity of LIGHT, WARMTH, COMFORT. I should dazzle the moths until the candle drew them, I should bring them into a warm, comfortable shop, fitted with a soft, pleasing radiance, and the rest is—well, mere child's play."

Mixed metaphors, perhaps, but expressive. Now we can more than imagine the kind of shop this well-known individual would open, for we pass it in almost every town—always a landmark to the street. No one fails to notice it. There is an indefinable air of welcome and invitation as one stands for a moment on the pathway and lets one's gaze travel inside it. The subdued, restful lighting effect that so charms because of its very unobtrusiveness, the absence of dark corners, the intangible feeling that if one would step inside one would be sure of experiencing a delicious sense of warmth and comfort and cheerfulness—all these are part of its appeal. Truly a shop with an individuality.

We cordially invite all progressive business men to visit our showroom and see our latest Lighting and Heating Appliances, by the adoption of which the ideal outline in the above extract from a London paper may be easily secured. Our new RADIO X. Lamp and GASTEAM Radiators fill all light and heat requirements.

Rev. Canon Smart, R.D.

Inducted by The Lord Bishop of Newfoundland.

Yesterday at the C. of E. Cathedral the Rev. Frank Smart, Rural Dean of Trinity Bay South, was inducted as Canon of the Cathedral of St. John the Baptist and elevated to the Stall of St. Boniface recently vacated by the retirement of Rev. Canon Noel.

The ceremony was performed by His Lordship Bishop Jones assisted by Canons Bolt and White together with Canon Noel and Rev. J. Brinton of the Cathedral staff.

After the commencement of the service and the reading of the Psalms Canons Bolt and White proceeded to the Vestry as is customary and conducted the Rev. Mr. Smart to the Chancel steps where he was met by the clergy and presented to the Lord Bishop, the installant, who was seated at the Chancel steps. The mandate appointing the new Canon was then read after which the service of induction was continued. The preacher on the occasion was the newly installed Canon who preached a very able and eloquent sermon which was listened to with deep interest by the large congregation present.

We extend congratulation and trust that Canon Smart may live long to occupy this high position and dignity in the Church in Newfoundland.

DIES AT GENERAL HOSPITAL.—FUNERAL THIS AFTERNOON.
There passed his eternal rest at the General Hospital on Saturday, Dr. Walter Russell Thomas, who for the past few months practised in Valleyfield, Bonavista Bay, where his health failed him, and becoming so weak, he was ordered on here to enter the hospital, by Drs. Bowden and Jameson. Through the kindness of Messrs. Bowring Bros., Ltd., the S.S. Eagle, Capt. Bishop, on her return from the icefields called at Valleyfield and the big-hearted sealing captain and crew did everything possible for the doctor's comfort, enroute to this city, where he reached March 30th. The ambulance being in attendance he was removed to the General Hospital. The dreaded bright disease had done its work, and from the beginning recovery was impossible. Dr. Thomas was an Englishman, and a Major in the British Army, and would have been on active service but for his physical unfitness. He had been a great traveller in Africa, China, India and America, and in consideration was most interesting and instructive to listen to. He was M.D., C.M., of McGill University, 1889; L.S.A., London, 1891; and M.C.P. and S. of Quebec, 1898. The doctor has one son now in the Canadian Army. Through the invitation of the F. P. U. Dr. Thomas took up his work in Valleyfield. Although a stranger in our midst he was fast making friends, who thought highly of him. The funeral will take place from the Mortuary at the General Hospital at 3.45 this afternoon to the Church of England Cemetery, where the mortal remains will be confined to mother earth.

Miss L. Ward, daughter of W. Ward, Esq., J.P., left on Thursday for St. John's where she will enter the General Hospital to train for a nurse.

We regret to hear that our popular townsman, John Casey, Esq., J.P., is very sick at present from an attack of pleurisy. Mrs. Casey, who had been at St. John's to see her daughter, who is at the Hospital, returned last night owing to her husband's illness. ## The Raising of Barred Rocks for Profit.

(By A. J. Campbell.)
Emerson said that every man is a consumer and therefore ought to be a producer. The clergy of Canada are not generally included among our producers of industrial wealth, but this rule if it really be one has, like other rules, its exceptions. A few years ago the Rev. W. B. Crowell, of Arcadia, Yarmouth County, Nova Scotia, was presented by one of his parishioners with seven Barred Plymouth Rock hens. In the fourth year of his operations one of his fowls secured the world's record for egg production. His flock now numbers fifty and included among them is Lady Morley, with a sworn to record of 292 eggs, and Lady Morta, with an egg record of 283.

The flock is housed in a very cheaply built structure 20 x 15, facing south—7 feet high in front and 5 feet high in the rear. An opening 2 feet wide extends along the front and is covered with one inch chicken wire. Beneath the opening a sloping platform covered with waterproof roofing material carried off all storm water. The space below the platform is occupied by windows. An open space is left between the plate and the rafters so that the moisture from the roosts following the incline of the roof, freely escapes. The roosts and dropping boards are at the rear, and under the dropping boards are the trap nests. At first a certain was used to protect the hens during cold nights, but before the first winter was passed this was taken away and so far there has been no illness among the birds.

The floor of the house is covered deeply with oat straw. Over a ton of straw is used yearly in this way, and the straw is renewed twice a year, in spring and fall. Into this straw the grain, whether whole or cracked, is scattered and all day long, especially throughout the winter, the birds are busily scratching for food.

April Chickens Lay in October.
The chicks are hatched out before the first of May and they begin to lay about the middle of October. During the past four years his largest egg yield has occurred in December and January. This is due in part, no doubt, to the exercise that the fowls obtain by hunting for their food. He feeds the hens twice a day on oats and wheat until a month before he expects them to lay. Then for three weeks he feeds more heavily, using some corn and a little green bone. During the last week if they are quite fat he semi-starves them and, as soon as they begin to lay, again feeds liberally. He has dry mash in hoppers always before them and during the winter he feeds them green bone four times a week. Turnips and mangels are nailed up for the fowls to peck at and he finds that sprouted oats will stimulate a flagging egg flow. His Plymouth Rocks consume, besides bone and vegetables, an average of one-quarter pound of grain a day.

Mr. Crowell, of course, fully realizes the supreme importance of a proper diet in successful poultry raising. "I am frequently consulted," he said, "in regard to the proper feed for fowls, and I should like to say that fowls if compelled to subsist on one type of food do best on a ration of grain, whole or cracked. The grains most widely relished by them are corn, wheat, oats, barley, buckwheat and peas. At the same time birds do not do well if fed all winter entirely on grain. There is where so many amateur poultry raisers make a big mistake. A grain ration without any vegetable or animal ingredients is not only wastefully expensive but actually injurious to the fowls."

"The winter feed of fowls should approximate that of summer conditions. Butcher scrap, table waste and vegetable foods should all be utilized."

HANDY HUSBAND.

Know How to Get Part of the Breakfast.

"I know one dish I can prepare for breakfast as well as any cook on earth," said my husband one morning when the cook was ill and he had volunteered to help get breakfast. He appeared with his dish and I discovered it was Grape-Nuts which, of course, was easy to prepare for it was perfectly cooked at the factory, but it was a good illustration of the convenience of having Grape-Nuts. "We took up Grape-Nuts immediately after returning from a five years' sojourn in a hot country. Our stomachs were in bad condition and we were in poor health generally. "In a day or two we liked Grape-Nuts better than any other kind of food on the table. We both gained steadily in health and strength, and this was caused by Grape-Nuts and Postum."

"A friend of ours had a similar experience. She was seriously ill with indigestion and could find nothing to eat that would give her heartburn and palpitation, especially at night. "She found that a small dish of Grape-Nuts with cream made her a satisfactory supper and gave her a comfortable night's rest. In a short time she gained several pounds in weight."

"There's a Reason." Name given by Canadian Postum Co., Windsor, Ont. Ever read the above letter? They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

Moreover, laying hens require, of course, a supply of mineral matter, not only for bone building but for egg structure as well. Oyster shells will supply this nutriment, and I can recommend dry wheat bran. As to vegetables feeds, beets, mangels, turnips, and cabbage are all good. A supply of good sharp grit is essential to active digestion, and the water supply should be continuous and abundant.

Systems of Feeding.

"Almost innumerable systems have been evolved for the feeding of poultry. Nearly all of them are combinations, more or less ingenious of all hopper feeding, dry feeding of all grains, through feeding of wet mash and dry feeding in litter of grains. The ordinary flock belonging to a farm should get a fair proportion of its food from free range. My own experience during the winter season leads me to say that the feeding of the dry mash in hoppers and all the cracked grains in litter is entirely satisfactory. Table waste, mixed with boiled vegetables and bran, and fed three times weekly gives excellent results. On other days the fowls should be given a feed of raw vegetables. As to the quantity to feed, that must be governed by the appetite of the flock. It is not safe to feed by measure. Fowls at different seasons require different treatment. The generous feeding they need at moulting time would induce over-fatness during the laying season. A very good rule is to feed only what the birds will clean up in short order. If any grain is left over from a previous feeding, the quantity given should be immediately reduced.

To all beginners in poultry raising, I would say: "Consult only reliable sources of information." The method adopted by one man in a single successful year does not make his method a sure recipe for success. The outcome might have occurred through incidental conditions. Do not draw conclusions from isolated cases. I often wonder why all poultry raisers, and for that matter all our farmers, do not consult our Government agricultural authorities more freely. I cannot speak too highly of the agricultural reports and bulletins issued by Mr. Cumming, the secretary for agriculture for Nova Scotia. They have been especially helpful to me.

Milk is Important.

"My experience has convinced me that skimmed or sour milk is a very important factor in obtaining a heavy flow of eggs. I attribute my success largely to the fact that my fowls are given milk every day of the year, and during the winter it is practically the only drink the hens have. I notice that when the supply of milk is lessened, the egg yield falls off. I consider that skimmed milk has a commercial value to me of at least two cents a quart. To my mind there is no doubt that farmers can get a greater money return by feeding milk to poultry than they now get by feeding it to swine."

"I must add that people cannot raise poultry for profit in a permanent yard, small in extent, and bare of vegetation. I use two yards for my flock and sow one yard in grain or clover while the fowls are in the other. Every six weeks the hens are transferred. This method, together with an open front building, deep straw litter, green bone, sprouted oats and skimmed milk, will enable any pullet of a good egg-laying strain to reach nearly to the three-hundred egg mark."—Farmers' Magazine."

ERADICATING WRINKLES.

You can eradicate wrinkles by systematic massage. It should not be hard for a woman to remove all traces of them, but the treatments must be very regular or they will return again.

Every night apply hot cloths to your face until the pores are well opened. Then cover the skin with a good cold cream and you are ready to begin. First massage the muscles of the cheek just in front of the upper lip and the side of the nose. This is a hard line to efface but with patient massage and the use of a wrinkle plaster at night, even a deep line will be softened in time.

Militarist Megalomania Of Germany.

(New York Evening Post)

Had not the hundred million inhabitants of the United States occupied themselves with such feverish ardor in despatching masses of death-dealing warships to Liverpool and Havre, the stock of war munitions would have been exhausted by now and peace would have been possible.—Rheinisch Westphalische Zeitung."

We doubt this exceedingly; but supposing it true, what then? Why did not the German war-lords take this into account before they started the war? Did they expect to grab Belgium, and in consequence get possession of a large part of industrial France, and yet that the Allies would make no use of their command of the seas to compensate in a measure for these advantages seized by Germany? "Fair is foul and foul is fair," in this witches' dance into which militarist megalomania has led the German mind.

Who Represents Ireland.

(New York Herald.)

Mr. T. P. O'Connor presided over the St. Patrick's Day celebration of Irish nationalists at Liverpool. Resolutions were unanimously adopted to give support to the Entente Allies "in their defence of the cause of freedom democracy and the small nations and the civilization of the world." Mr. O'Connor announced that 250,000 tons of re-land are fighting under the flag of Great Britain for the cause of freedom. Who represents Ireland—these 250,000 of her gallant sons or the little handful of Irish Kaiserettes in this country who are doing their little best to stab in the back their brothers fighting so valiantly against the enemies of that freedom which all Irishmen profess to love so dearly?

Germany Heads List.

Six Hundred of Her Ships are Sunk, Captured or Interned During the War.

Washington, March 26.—The European war has taken from the seas more than 2,000 merchant vessels of nearly 4,000,000 tonnage, according to figures published to-day by the Department of Commerce. Germany with 600 vessels sunk, captured or detained, heads the list of losses.

Two hundred and twenty-five of the 500 British vessels lost were sunk by submarines. Great Britain's allies lost 157 ships. Austria lost 89, and Turkey 124. The total of neutral losses is put at 736, but most of these were released after being reported captured.

Ninety-two neutral vessels have been submarined, and 94 sunk by mines.

Twenty-three have been damaged by submarines and mines.

Last in the Trenches.

A description of the last hours of the evacuation of Gallipoli, which appeared in the London Daily Express from the pen of a correspondent who took part in the operations, states that the last men left in the trenches were Lieuts. Freyburg Asquith (son of the Prime Minister), and Kelly. They remained at the telephone station at the top of the communication trench while the rest of the troops embarked, and afterwards got away safely. The last named officer is Lieut. F. S. Kelly, R.N.V.R., the famous Oxford sculler and sculler, who three times won the Diamond Sculls.

Japanese Opinion.

(The "Mainichi" Japan.)

We think the war will be a long one unless peace comes most unexpectedly owing to the internal collapse of the Central Powers. True, peace will never be secured unless all the powers concerned realize that war is the most foolish undertaking in which men can engage and resolve to avert its recurrence for all time. We cannot tolerate the thought that we should ever welcome the victory of Prussian militarism, which knows no mercy even to innocent babes and women.

Extract From Dr. Grenfell's Letter.

OF MARCH 10th, 1916.

"I am writing to you probably for the last time from France from the headquarters of the (army) (army) (army). I was given the opportunity to make a complete tour of the armies 1, 2 and 3 for certain reasons which I will not mention now. I have been all round 1 and 2. It is most extraordinary to begin with to find so many unexpected people, especially army folk, who know of us and our work, and it has been most helpful. The sights I have seen and the intimate knowledge I have gained of the working of an army, especially the medical side of the battlefield, will be as vivid as long as life lasts. From the Surgeon General at G. H. O. I've been shown courtesy and help little enough expected or deserved. It has been a wonderful experience. As I lay awake last night in bed, you can imagine one's emotions, as one watched the sky lit up by the star rockets of the fighting hosts, especially the Germans, which are far the brightest and heard the roar of guns and the rattle of shells and then the endless darkness and silence—no lights. I have been permitted to go into the first line of trenches only 30 yards from the Boches, and looked through the periscope to watch them and then poke up my head now and again for a second. Jack Johnson's shrieking over head and shrapnel barking in the air, and no one taking the least notice. Then to watch the air guns firing at the aeroplanes and the British right wings tackling the Germans. Never do I expect to see such sights again. I enjoyed every second of it. Only once, when there were seven Taubes directly overhead, did I feel there might be danger then I felt like staying to see the bombs fizzle through the air. The chance of anyone hitting you never seems to enter the mind, and yet one visits the various shambles, dressing stations, aid stations, field ambulances, casualty clearing stations, etc. The battle with sickness and wounds is as difficult and important as the battle with guns almost, and every poor beggar brought in has a different tale to tell, if only you had time to listen to it. My brain is in a muddle naturally just for the moment, only my endless notes can ever straighten them out, even the Generals, Colonels and other names fade as one dashes from one place to another in a motor, and each one is as kindly and hospitable as the last. I was in the Canadian trenches with Colonel Foster, but have neither seen or heard of the Newfoundlanders.

I've resigned from the Harvard Unit, and shall be in Newfoundland again soon and out of it all, though the Surgeon General offers me a commission as a Labrador till winter anyhow, when I can still get a commission if I am needed for next winter. But I tell you it is hard to get out now."

THE HARVARD SURGICAL UNIT.

All the leading Medical Officers of the British expeditionary force in France recently entertained the "Harvard Surgical Unit" on the occasion of its moving back into canvas for summer quarters.

Speeches were made by Colonel Sir Bertrand Dawson, medical consultant to the forces; Colonel Sir Almoth Wright, the world-famous pathologist; General Sawyer, Director General of the medical services; Colonel Fullerton, surgical consultant to the forces, and others.

From personal and constant experience of the professional work done by the Unit, they wished to put on record the high value they were bound to attach to its presence with the British forces in the fearful war, but they especially wished to emphasize the further appreciation felt by one and all of the fact that America, in service such as that of the Harvard and Chicago Surgical Units, is expressing her real feelings toward the Empire, and the principles for which the Allies are staking everything on earth that they hold dear.

Colonel David Cheaver of Harvard, in charge of the Unit, replying, said that any sacrifice the officers had made in leaving their homes and "practice," was amply repaid by the spirit in which they had been received, and the further appreciation felt by one and all of the fact that America, in service such as that of the Harvard and Chicago Surgical Units, is expressing her real feelings toward the Empire, and the principles for which the Allies are staking everything on earth that they hold dear.

Crew of Ves Submarine

Abandoned by Austrians in Su Boats—Adrift a Week—Landed Africa, Attacked by Arabs.

London, March 30.—A stirring story of the experiences of the crew of a British submarine which was sunk by another submarine on the coast of Africa, is told by Captain Arthur C. B. Groom, late of the Great Coquet.

"About 10.45 a.m., Jan. 4, 1916," says Capt. Groom, "I was writing in a saloon when I heard a gun fired, reaching the bridge, the third told me it was fired across the bow. Then another was fired across the bow, one over the bridge and one under the stern from a submarine in the port quarter. At the same time one or two people told me that another submarine on the coast of Africa had been sighted. I stopped the engines and ordered that I had done so by flag signals."

"The firing stopped and the submarine was close to us with its flag flying 'Abandon ship!' Immediately I took the chronometer, set a chart in the starboard boat and left the ship. The other boat left little before us. We had no good gear of the ship than the submarine started firing at her. Eight shots were fired.

"One of them broke the starboard ladders on the bridge. They were firing then and coming close to the boats, ordered us alongside. It was a dangerous proceeding as the submarine's deck was just above us, there was a big swell. I was ordered aboard the submarine and the Austrians, armed with revolvers, cutlasses were sent in our boats. The two boats returned to the Coquet.

Austrians Looted Ship.

"All hands were given 15 minutes to get what they wanted on the ship. At the same time the Austrians looted whatever they could get the time given. They lowered on the small boats to take them and to loot back to the submarine."

"When they had all their loot they ordered the two lifeboats to turn to the submarine, that they two-time-fuse bombs under the abreast of numbers one and two, and left the ship themselves. Six afterwards there were two explosions and the ship settled down by the bow. Four or five minutes after the explosion the Coquet lifted her stern in the air. Something hit the wharfyard and, with a pitiful screech the Coquet disappeared."

"While all this was happening the commander of the submarine gave me many questions. The lifeboats were near the submarines a mine and balling was in full progress each boat with two or three men. I pointed this out to the commander of the submarine, and the fact both of the bilge planks of the ship had most likely been sprung, and a side his wash deck. I told him

That He Could Depend on Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

Living eighteen miles from a store Mr. Carr found it necessary to keep in the house some means to regulate the action of liver, kidneys and bowels.

To the habit of keeping these important organs active by the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, he required, he attributes the good health of his large family.

Here, surely, is evidence of the value of these pills as a family medicine to protect the members of a family who use it from the complications so many of which arise from constipation of the bowels and rapid condition of the liver and kidneys.

Mr. James Carr, May 1915, writes: "About 19 years ago I received an envelope containing two of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. I was doctoring at the time with doctors, and as they did me no good, I used the Pills, and by the time

Crew of Vessel Submarined Had Terrible Trials.

Abandoned by Austrians in Small Boats—Adrift a Week—Landed in Africa, Attacked by Arabs.

London, March 30.—A stirring story of the experiences of the crew of a British steamer which was sunk by a submarine is told by Captain Arnold C. B. Groom, late of the steamer Coquet.

"About 10.45 a.m., Jan. 4, 1916," said Capt. Groom, "I was writing in the saloon when I heard a gun fired. On reaching the bridge, the third mate told me it was fired across our bow. Then another was fired across our bow, one over the bridge and one under the stern from a submarine on the port quarter. At the same time a second or two people told me there was another submarine on the port bow. I stopped the engines and indicated that I had done so by flag signals.

"The firing stopped and the submarine was close to us with signals flying 'Abandon ship' immediately I took the chronometer, sextant and chart in the starboard boat and we left the ship. The other boat left a little before us. We had no sooner got clear of the ship than the submarine started firing at her. Eight shots were fired.

"One of them broke the signal halliards on the bridge. They stopped firing then and, coming close to the boats, ordered us alongside. This was a dangerous proceeding, as the submarine's deck was just awash and there was a big swell. I was ordered aboard the submarine and then some Austrians, armed with revolvers and cutlasses were sent in our boats and the two boats returned to the Coquet.

Austrians Looted Ship. "All hands were given twenty minutes to get what they wanted from the ship. At the same time the Austrians looted whatever they could in the time given. They lowered one of the small boats to take them and their loot back to the submarine.

"When they had all they wanted, they ordered the two lifeboats to return to the submarine, then they set two time-fuse bombs under water abreast of numbers one and two holds and left the ship themselves. Shortly afterwards there were two explosions, and the ship settled down by the head. Four or five minutes after the explosions the Coquet lifted her stern high in the air. Something hit the whistle lanyard and, with a pitiful scream, the Coquet disappeared.

"While all this was happening the commander of the submarine asked me many questions. The two lifeboats were near the submarines again now, and balling was in full progress in each boat with two or three buckets. I pointed this out to the commander of the submarine, and the fact that both of the bilge planks of the boats had most likely been sprung alongside his awash deck. I told him it was nothing short of murder to send thirty men away like that in the middle of winter, too, so far from land. He laughed, and said he would save the next ship and send her to look for us.

"The boats were alongside by this time and the Austrians searched them for anything valuable, taking sextants and charts, and also every scrap of paper they could find. They would not let me keep even the account of the wages of the crew or any of my bills, although I asked them specially for these later, and pointed out to them what they were, and that they were of no earthly use to them. They ordered me back into my boat and then left us."

Six Days in Boat. Captain Groom then described the attempt of the two boats to get into the track of steamers between Port Said, Alexandria, and Malta.

"With a heavy sea running," he said, "we were very soon all wet through, and remained so for the next six days. All the time we were in the boats all the able-bodied men had to take turns at bailing, two at a time. The steward, who was old and ill, I exempted from this work, also four boys I had who were very young, also seafish and somewhat frightened. The boat was overloaded with seventeen men in it, and was ankle deep with water, in spite of the vigorous bailing with two buckets."

him to the nearest town afoot," said the captain. "This I could not do, as I was utterly done up with six or seven hours of walking that day after being cramped up in the boat, but eventually I sent two Greek fishermen with him."

After a night in the cave dwellings the rest of the party, fifteen in number next morning, were attacked by Arabs with rifles. Captain Groom himself was wounded and lost consciousness.

"When I awoke," he said, "everything was quiet, except for the grunting of the carpenter, who was rolling between me and the edge of water about six feet away. I found he was horribly mutilated but still alive. He asked me to drag him away from the sea. I tried, but he was a big man, and my wound was very painful."

"A little way out in the water the steamer was floating face downward. Whether he was shot or drowned, or both, I do not know. Further up, the little Italian messroom boy was lying dead. I could see nothing of anybody else, and was afraid to go out of the trench, thinking that if the Arabs saw me alive they would come back and finish me off."

"Soon after a small Italian steamer with the commander of Fort Marsa Sasa aboard, entered the bay. A sailor named Lord was found lying in the sand, wounded by both bullet and bayonet. He said the other ten of them had been carried off by Bedouins. He thought they left him because they believed him to be dying."

"The commander of Fort Marsa Sasa then took us aboard the little steamer, also the bodies of our steward and the messroom boy, and our wounds were washed and bandaged. The carpenter died just as we were starting to wash his wounds."

After relating the kind treatment extended to him by the Italians, Captain Groom said: "The submarine had no mark or number on her, but I concluded she was an Austrian, as the officers on her had the Austrian Crown on the badges of their caps."

Now, Mr. Pape's Diapepsin digests everything, leaving nothing to sour and upset you. There never was anything so safely quick, so certainly effective. No difference how badly your stomach is disordered. It will give you relief in five minutes, but what pleases you most is that it strengthens and regulates your stomach so you can eat your favorite foods without fear.

Most remedies give you relief sometimes—they are slow, but not sure. "Pape's Diapepsin" is quick, positive and puts your stomach in a healthy condition so the misery won't come back.

You feel different as soon as "Pape's Diapepsin" comes in contact with the stomach—distress just vanishes—your stomach gets sweet, no gases, no belching, no eructations of undigested food, your head clears and you feel fine.

Go now, make the best investment you ever made, by getting a large fifty-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin from any drug store. You realize in five minutes how needless it is to suffer from indigestion, dyspepsia or any stomach disorder.

THE POOR LISTENER. I sit in the grocery store, discoursing of current events, each evening when my labors are over, with other industrious men. We talk of the scrap-plum in France, discuss the high prices of hay; and each gives the others a chance to say what they suffer to say.

When Johnson unlimbers his jaws, we listen politely to him; when Jimson stands up for his cause, we cheer his remarks with a vim. There's peace in that grocery store, each orator feels at his best, till Kicksaw, the champion bore, comes in to take part in the fest. This man, with his head full of wheels, too off in our presence has sinned; he wants to make all of the speils, to furnish the bulls of the wind. That's why we old fellows arose, last night, at the grocery store, and lifted that chump with our toes, and hoisted him clear through the door. Free speech is a blessing to men, without it no race can advance; but talkers should pause how and then, and give other fellows a chance.

Big Demand For Copper In New York.

New York, April 1.—The demand for red metal at present is the greatest in the history of the copper industry of the United States. Sales of immense aggregate volume have been made in the domestic market in the last few days, with domestic and foreign consumers vying with each other in the purchasing. Delivery on contracts closed is anywhere from July to the end of the year. Prices are 27½¢ a pound for June, 27¢ for July, August and September, and 26½¢ to 26¢ for fourth quarter delivery.

It can be officially stated that sales for this week total more than 150,000,000 pounds of copper, deliveries to be made between July and the end of the year.

It can be stated further that there were in this market yesterday inquiries for more than 100,000,000 pounds additional of the red metal.

Increasing signs of improvement are to be seen in the market from all angles. In addition to the large amount of business already taken, the inquiries in the market assure further enormous bookings by the leading interests.

Quotations have not been changed, the leading producers and sellers asking 27½¢ a pound for June and 27¢ for July, August and September, with 26½¢ to 26¢ being named on fourth quarter delivery. Second hand and smaller interests are quoting futures at from 26½¢ to 27¢ a pound.

Important trade authorities assert that the outlook at present is better than it has been at any previous time heretofore, and some interests believe that advances in prices will be made shortly especially if the business now in sight is played with the sellers.

Domestic buyers have been in the market in the last few days in large numbers, and include brass makers and wire manufacturers. On some of this business early deliveries have been requested and this has had a tendency to delay the closing of contracts because the dealers have not been able to supply the nearby needs, as their books show sales for some time ahead.

That the foreign demand has by no means been satisfied by the large orders placed in this country since the first of the year is indicated by the large additional inquiries now in the market.

A Frightful Death! Suffocated in Asthma Attack. Every sufferer from asthma knows the terror, the subject fear that overcomes them when struggling for breath. The old fashioned remedies may relieve, but never cure. Best results come from Catarrhazone, which cures asthma after hope is abandoned. It's because Catarrhazone kills the asthma germ that it cures. Choking spells and labored breathing are relieved, suffocating sensations and loss of breath are cured. Every trace of asthma is driven from the system, and even old chronics experience immediate relief and lasting cure. Equally good for bronchitis, throat trouble and catarrh. The large one dollar outfit includes the inhaler and lasts two months, sold by all dealers or from the Catarrhazone Co., Kingston, Canada.

Alcohol And Soldiers. (New York Sun.) Chief Surgeon Mans, of the Eastern Department of the United States Army, reports that alcohol is the greatest factor making for inefficiency in the army, and estimates that its interdiction would reduce the sick rate 15 per cent. He adds that alcohol is responsible for practically all the crimes committed by soldiers; it diminishes capacity for work, marching endurance and accuracy in rifle practice, and impairs the ability of officers to command troops.

Owing to so much being used in the manufacture of Explosives and to the resultant restrictions on its export, and to the scarcity of tonnage, it is nearly impossible to secure any of this commodity for Spring shipment.

By looking ahead we were fortunate in getting a shipment per Red Cross Line steamer for late May or early June shipment.

We are now booking orders to arrive at lowest prices, subject to safe arrival, and would strongly recommend our customers to engage their requirements without delay, as we only have a limited quantity to offer, and further lots may be unobtainable later in the season.

The Eastern Trust Company.

A few reasons why an estate can be better administered by the Eastern Trust Company than by a personal executor or administrator:—

1. The Company affords the estate absolute security; it has a paid-up capital of $931,000.00, and a reserve fund of $225,300.00.
2. It has a long experience in the work of administering estates; it is incorporated for this business of acting as a trustee, and, unlike many other trust companies, it does no other.
3. Its existence is perpetual. Your estate, in the event of the death of a personal executor or administrator, must look around for a substitute, and the work of administration is impeded during that time, and the new executor is unfamiliar with the policy of his predecessor, and confusion results. This company's existence is perpetual, and there is a continuity of policy in its administration that the death of its officers does not break.
4. It possesses the confidence of governments, universities and prominent charities and administers their funds.
5. A number of other advantages which will appear in due course.
