COAL

RAY,

M. CONNOLLY.

A Child of Sorrow.

CHAPTER XXIV.

"Just the thing," he said. "Short and easy to remember. Now, old chap, I've been looking up the shipping list, and I find there's a vessel sails the day after to-morrow. You can get an outfit—oh, well, you could buy it in a couple of hours, come to that; but perhaps it's too soon—want to say, 'Good-bye, sweetheart, good-bye,' and all that."

Heroncourt colored and looked down: the man's light words went through his heart like a knife.

"No, it's not too soon," he said. "I can manage it very well."

Dartford made out a list of things Heroncourt would require, and Heroncourt went straight to the outfitter's—not his own, he was sure. He did not reach his rooms until the evening, and as he opened the door he remembered Baxter: it gave him pause. He would have to confide in him, at any rate; but he knew that he was quite safe in doing so. He could rely on Baxter as on himself.

"Look here, Baxter," he said, as Baxter came in with his slippers and smoking-coat. "I find I have to go abroad suddenly."

"Yes, my lord," responded Baxter, suddenly looking thoughtful as he began to mentally run over the things his master would require.

"Yes; in fact, I am going the day after to-morrow. It's sharp work, and I'm going off on the quiet."

"I understand, my lord," said Baxter, as promptly as before.

"Yes," said Heroncourt. "Things have been going crookedly with me lately, and I'm going abroad to try and get 'em straight. It's Australia. No one knows I'm going, and you will have to keep your mouth shut." Baxter made no reply: none was necessary.

"I've got the things," Heroncourt went on, "and the proper trunks to pack 'em in. You get 'em all ready and send them down to the docks to-morrow night."

"Yes, my lord," said Baxter, as calmly and stolidly as if Heroncourt had given him directions to pack up for a visit to a country house.

Heroncourt went to his bureau and took out some notes: Dartford had made him a liberal advance.

"Here's some money, Baxter. You'll find a hundred pounds over and above your wages. I wish I could give you more—by George! you deserve it. No man had a better servant, a more faithful friend. And look here, Baxter: I'll send you over some more as soon as I get it, and you shall buy that little public-house which I know you've had in your mind's eye."

"Thank you, my lord," said Baxter, a little huskily, but bolt upright. "But I don't quite understand: don't I accompany your lordship?"

"No, I'm afraid not," said Heroncourt. "I'm going out to a wild place, going to drop the title—my name's Owen Tudor from to-day—and I'm going to rough it, and it wouldn't be fair to you, Baxter, to ask you to take a hand in it."

Baxter opened his lips, but shut them again in soldierly fashion, took up Heroncourt's dress-coat and shoes and left the room.

Heroncourt saw very little of him the next day, but at night Baxter came and told him that his boxes had gone down to the docks.

Heroncourt thanked him warmly. "You're a good fellow, Baxter," he said. "I've never known you go wrong since we've been together."

"Thank you, my lord," said Baxter, his hand going up to the salute.

Late that night Heroncourt went down to Coleridge Street and looked up at the window of the room which held his heart's treasure. He paced the streets fighting with his grief until an early hour of the morning.

Baxter had breakfast ready for him, explained the arrangements he had made regarding the rooms and other matters, and accompanied Heroncourt to the docks and the ship, saw that his state-room was a comfortable one, and put on his clothes. Then he came on deck and saluted. Heroncourt held out his hand: both master and man were pale and had that peculiar look in their eyes which Englishmen wear when they are endeavoring to repress any sign of emotion.

"Good-bye, Baxter," said Heroncourt. "I'll write to you—you shall have that money—get a nice pub, and I'll come and drink your health when I return."

Baxter took his master's hand, shook it respectfully, and disappeared in the crowd and bustle. Heroncourt looked for him on the quay, but failed to see him. The vessel started, and half an hour afterwards Baxter approached him and said, quietly: "Breakfast is nearly ready, my lord—I beg pardon—sir. I've got you a seat at the table."

Heroncourt stared at the man with amazement, with anger and affectionate gratitude fighting for the mastery.

"Baxter! Why, what the devil!—Don't you know that we've satled? What are you doing here? Where are you going?"

"To Australia, my lord—sir," replied Baxter, stolidly, but with a suspicious moisture in his eyes. "I don't know the name of the place; but no doubt your lordship will tell me presently."

Heroncourt turned away, unable to speak.

CHAPTER XXV.

Heroncourt's disappearance was not noticed for some days. He had always been somewhat erratic in his movements, and his friends and acquaintances thought that he had returned to the Court; even Lady Glassbury was of this opinion; but when a fortnight passed and they had not heard from him, she sent Lord Glassbury to call at Bernard Place.

He came back to her dissatisfied and mystified.

"Caretaker says that Byrne has left England. The rooms are closed and there is a notice on the door that all letters are to be sent to Cox's. I can't make it out. I suppose he's gone off shooting somewhere; to the Tyrol, perhaps. I'm not surprised, for it's the best thing he could have done. But why didn't he come round to us or write? But there! when a man's as much in love as Byrne he's practically insane."

Lady Glassbury ordered the carriage and at once drove round to Cox's, who, in conformance with their invariable rule, positively and respectfully declined to furnish her ladyship with their client's address. She tried all her arts upon them, but in vain. They would be most happy to forward any letters to Lord Heroncourt, but that was all they could do.

She went home and wrote a long letter of reproach and remonstrance; then she drove round to Coleridge Street: and was informed by Sarah that "the young ladies were out." She drove away feeling as if she had been hurling herself against a brick wall. But her luck turned that evening, for she saw Maida at a big reception.

To Lady Glassbury the girl looked paler and thinner than ever, and she was full of impatience and anger at the cruel fate which had befallen one so beautiful and so lovable. She left the crowded room and waited in the hall for Maida to come out.

At sight of her the color rose to Maida's face and Carrie uttered an exclamation of pleasure, which she checked instantly. Lady Glassbury almost seized upon her and kissed her!

"You are a wicked, cold-hearted girl!" she said. "And, oh, how I wish I did not love you! How could you cut me as you have done? But you are not going to throw me off to fight; you will come straight home with me, if I have to carry you."

"I am too big for that," said Maida, in her low, sweet voice.

"Besides there's me," said Carrie. "We'll come quietly, Lady Glassbury; please don't call the police."

In the carriage, Lady Glassbury put her arms round Maida and drew her towards her; but there was not much talking till they were in Lady Glassbury's boudoir. She put Maida in an easy-chair before the fire and loosened her cloak.

"My dear child, how thin you have got, and how pale!" she said, reproachfully.

"Oh, didn't you know that Maida is in training for the living skeleton?" said Carrie. "She doesn't eat enough to keep a sparrow alive, and she works like a nigger. Of course, she'll break down presently. But it's of no use talking to her. Maida always was and always will be a fine example of the two-legged mule."

"She is talking nonsense, Lady Glassbury," said Maida. "I am quite well and quite strong."

"You look it," said Lady Glassbury, with compassionate sarcasm. "And now, tell me all the news. Has anything been heard of that absurd man Purley, who has caused all this trouble?"

Maida shook her head. "Nothing," she replied, sadly.

"I'm not surprised. Nothing ever will be heard of him. I shouldn't wonder if he committed suicide from sheer remorse for the unhappiness he has brought about."

Maida shook her head. "He will come back; they will find him some day."

"And, meanwhile, you still persist in this quixotic course of yours?" Maida looked at her pleadingly.

"Yes; but do not let us talk of it. Tell me about yourself and Lord Glassbury, and all that you have been doing."

"You mean about Byrne?" said Lady Glassbury, in a low voice. "I—I have some news for you, dear. It's bad news—at least—"

Maida looked up with a swift glance of alarm.

"There, I didn't mean to frighten you," said Lady Glassbury, penitently. "But he has disappeared, left England, gone abroad—after big game, Glassbury says; but I don't know."

"That is good news," said Maida, very quietly, and meeting Lady Glassbury's eyes bravely. "I am glad he has gone. The change will do him good; why should he not go?"

"Oh, that's all very well; but why has he gone off in this mysterious manner? Why has he not left his address? Why did he not come and say good-bye? Oh, Maida, if you would only listen to reason! Carrie, can you not make her?"

Carrie laughed a trifle bitterly. "The man or woman isn't born who could make Maida do or say anything she hasn't a mind to; and I shouldn't think of wasting my energies in trying. Besides, she is right, Lady Glassbury. That's the worst of it. If you could only put Maida in the wrong, there would be some hope for everything and everybody; but she's one of those exasperating persons who are always right."

Great Skin Cure Stirs Country.

A new scientific discovery for skin diseases is attracting the attention of all doctors in Newfoundland and Canada. This discovery gives instant relief to the most aggravated cases of Eczema and allied diseases and brings about permanent cures in a fortnight. It is called the D. D. D. Prescription for Eczema.

Apparently no case of eczema can stand against this simple remedy, D. D. D. Prescription. As soon as the first few drops of this cleansing, soothing liquid are applied, the itch is gone.

D. D. D. cures because it penetrates the skin and washes away impurities, unlike greasy salves which merely clog the pores and aggravate disease. D. D. D. penetrates to the disease germs, kills them and then soothes and heals the skin.

D. D. D. is being used with great success for all forms of Eczema, Bad Leg, Pimples, Psoriasis, Salt Rheum, Ulcers, Barber's Itch and in fact all skin diseases.

Test this great cure; don't delay. Get a bottle of D. D. D. Prescription to-day. Sold Everywhere. Recommended by T. McMurdo & Co., A. W. Kennedy, M. Connors, Peter O'Mara.

NEW CHANCELLOR'S SPEECH.

COPENHAGEN, July 20.

Dr. Michaelis, the new German Chancellor, in his address to the Reichstag yesterday, declared his adhesion to Germany's submarine campaign, asserting it to be a lawful measure, justifiable and adapted to shorten the war. Dr. Michaelis opened his speech with a hearty tribute to the retiring Imperial Chancellor, whose work, he said, history would appreciate. The new Chancellor declared that war was forced upon an unwilling Germany by the Russian mobilization and that the submarine war was also forced upon Germany by Britain's illegal blockade or starvation warfare. The faint hope that America, at the head of the neutrals would check Great Britain's illegality was vain. Germany's final attempt to avoid the extremity by a peace offer failed, and the submarine campaign was adopted. In regard to peace, the Chancellor said: "The burning question to our hearts, however, is how much longer the war is to last. With this I come to a matter which stands in the center of all our interests and all our proceedings to-day. Germany did not desire the war in order to make violent conquests, and, therefore, will not continue the war a day longer merely for the sake of such conquests, if it could obtain an honorable peace. The Germans, he said, wish to conclude peace as combatants who have successfully accomplished their purpose and proved themselves invincible. A first condition of peace is the inviolability of Germany's territory. No parity was possible with the enemy demanding the cession of German soil. We must have means of understanding, and in a spirit of give and take guarantee conditions of existence of the German Empire upon the Continent and overseas continued the Chancellor. [Dr. Michaelis' words on this point require a careful reading and are capable of various interpretations other than a surface one. His German indicates a willingness to make peace only as victors, and in his use of the words "understanding" and "give and take" the German words are "Verständigung" and "Auegleich." He revives the Bismarckian ideas of the readjustment of the frontiers and colonial possessions by bargaining rather than the restoration of the status quo.] Peace, continued the Chancellor, must offer the foundation of a lasting reconciliation of the nations. Regarding food conditions, the Chancellor remarked the most severe we have experienced, the month of July, has been the worst. Drought has delayed the harvest, and want exists in many cases; but I can declare with glad confidence, and the population can then be supplied more adequately. Nothing can yet be said about the harvest, but the fact is already established that the harvest of potatoes will be better than is believed. Straw is indeed short, but the development of the kernels is excellent, and we shall, as in 1915 reckon on an average harvest. In the wide regions of the Empire rain has fallen, and everywhere in time enough to bring potatoes. We hope for a good potato crop, and if we utilize the increase from Roumania and other occupied territories carefully, the shortage of fodder with which we should otherwise be confronted will be overcome. It has been proved these three years of war even in case of a bad harvest as in 1915, that Germany cannot be starved out at all. With right appropriation, limited rationing, and an adequate supply it gives us an advantage over England. A painful experience in wide areas has shown that on account of weather conditions the relations between the town and country populations have become a source of trouble. Enlightenment here is an absolute necessity. The successful exploiting of transferring hundreds of thousands of city children to the country may perhaps build thrift, but we must take pains in every way to see that this conflict of views is moderate. Chancellor Michaelis declined, owing to his shortness in office, to state exhaustively his position on internal questions, accepted the Imperial manifesto of July 7th upon the Prussian franchise, and brought in closer relations of the government with the big parties in parliament. He said he was willing to call men possessing confidence in Parliament to Executive posts, but "not in any way to surrender control of the Government."

hassadors had interrupted leave of absence to be present. Various princely personages were in the royal box, among them Prince Max of Baden and the Prince of Braunschweig. The members of the Bundesrat, State secretaries and all the Prussian ministers and many high officials of the Government also were present.

GERMAN ATTACKS FAIL.

Paris, July 20. The Germans made a general attack last night on the whole sector of the Aisne front between Craonne and Vauculery, with large bodies of troops. The war office announced that the French withstood their furious assaults and maintained their positions everywhere. The ground throughout the French positions was strewn with German dead.

ANXIOUS TO HEAR THE CHANCELLOR.

LONDON, July 20. A despatch received by wireless press says: The speech of Chancellor Michaelis was awaited with greatest excitement. The parliament building was surrounded by a crowd as early as the noon hour. The House was filled to overflowing, while in the diplomatic boxes appeared the Ambassadors of Austria and Turkey, and the representatives of Bulgaria and all other nations having diplomatic officials in Berlin. Some of the anxious to hear the Chancellor's speech.

rehearsed in the part he had to play. The German trenches and works were smashed to pieces by the bombardment and there was practically nothing to stop the French who passed their objective, which was their old trench line on the crest without pause, establishing themselves 300 yards down the northern slope on ground which was German before the 28th of June.

SUCCESSFUL RAIDS.

LONDON, July 20. We made successful raids and captured several prisoners last night opposite Gavrelle and north of Ypres, says to-day's official announcement. The enemy's artillery was more active than usual northwest of St. Quentin and southwest of Lens.

FRENCH SHIPPING LOSSES.

PARIS, July 20. Three French merchant vessels of more than 1,600 tons and two of less than that tonnage are announced as sunk during last week as a result of the enemy's submarine attacks. Four French merchantmen were unsuccessfully attacked. No fishing boats fell victims to the submarines.

CANADIANS NEARING LENS.

LONDON, July 20. Early this morning the Canadians holding the front between Avion and Lens in the flooded district established a post well north of any hitherto occupied. There was little retaliation from the Germans. The new post is only 1,500 yards from the heart of Lens.

ATTEMPT AT ASSASSINATION.

PETROGRAD, July 20. An attempt to assassinate Minister of War Kerensky was made to-day at Plotisk. A shot was fired at the minister but missed him.

COMMENT ON CHANCELLOR'S SPEECH.

LONDON, July 20. Commenting on the speech of the German Chancellor Michaelis, Lord Cecil said to-day: "In the first place it is a definite rejection of the formula of no annexations or indemnities. Secondly, the speech is a complete victory for the junkers and a complete defeat for the democratic parties. To me it seems the Chancellor was astonishingly frank. He makes it clear as crystal that the Germans intend to carry on the war with the same old objects and the same old methods. It is well for us of the Entente that we should know how the facts actually stand, though the speech undoubtedly will be of service. It is perhaps better dealt with by a frank man like the new Chancellor than like Hollweg who always cast a veil of hypocrisy around what military Prussia really intended doing."

Our Volunteers.

The following recruits signed the roll yesterday: FOR THE ARMY. Ralph Hann, Trout River, West Coast. Taylor Parsons, Trout River, West Coast. William Carson, Bonny Bay. FOR THE FORESTRY. J. R. Goodyear, Grand Falls. J. J. O'Driscoll, Clargaville. The Volunteers and Forestry will hold their usual Church parade tomorrow morning.

Clareville Welcomes Reservists.

On Tuesday, the 19th ult., the town of Clareville was en fête, the occasion being to extend a hearty welcome to Royal Naval Reservists B. Seward and J. Guy after an absence of over two years doing patrol duty on the expansive waters of the Atlantic. In order to show their appreciation of what the Boys in Blue are doing to help out the cause of freedom, the local branch of the W. P. A., under the able presidency of Mrs. Geo. Gulliford and her energetic officers, decided to prepare a reception for our returned sailors. At 8 p.m. on Friday, June 29th, the doors of the new school were opened to the public, who were invited to feast on the delicacies which the ladies had so lavishly prepared. After the inner man was supplied, music became the next order of the evening when Misses Rogers and Jones, our popular P. T. officials, each in turn played such patriotic airs as "We'll never let the old flag fall," "Keep the home fires burning" and numerous other patriotic songs, after which games were indulged in until a late hour. The singing of the National Anthem ended an enjoyable evening.

REPORTS MUST BE OFFICIAL.

LONDON, July 20. An Order-in-Council issued to-day prohibits either by publication or by speech the giving of any report of the proceedings of the coming Irish Convention, except such as has been officially authorized. Offenders are liable to punishment under the Defence of the Realm Act.

FRENCH NEWSPAPER COMMENT.

PARIS, July 20. The French newspapers do not find anything in the speech of the Imperial Chancellor Michaelis, upon which to build the prospects of an early surrender by Germany. The debut of the new Chancellor justifies completely, says the Journal des Debats, those who have been thinking for some time that nothing appreciably novel could be expected from the German crisis. Michaelis has said all that he was able to say, and it is the same that Bethmann Hollweg uttered without cessation. The paper considers the speech as at least having the merit of facilitating the task of the Allied Governments. They learn again the spirit of the German Government Michaelis would establish. He pretends a world peace based upon durable reconciliation, says the Temps. What hypocrisy, when he utters at the same time the classic formula of the Pan-Germans that the frontiers of the empire shall be guaranteed forever. This guarantee is as far as the Somme. The war continues, Germany wishes it.

Association Football.

The St. Andrew's and Stars played last evening, the latter winning by three goals to one, though the exhibition was good value for a draw. The players were: STARS—Goal, Walsh; backs, Hartley, Kavanagh; halves, W. Hart, Bell, Duggan; forwards, Evans, Jackman, Williams, McGrath, B. Hart. SAINTS—Goal, Ewing; backs, Chaney, Ellis; halves, Heath, Foster, Elliott; forwar's, Coultas, Quick, Ewing, Jeliffe, Kendrick. The high wind prevailing made it difficult to control the ball and play became ridiculous at times on account of some players being over anxious to sky the ball. During the first half the Saints played the best combination and scored the first goal. The stars put on steam in the next period and scored three goals. Mr. M. Churchill refereed the game.

The Prohibition Act.

We ask our readers' patience and forbearance if we return once more to the attack upon the "intensive legislation" which the Government is attempting to carry out. We have before us a specimen of it which is a good answer to the observations of the Daily News yesterday. We refer to the Act amending the Prohibition Act, not that part of it which alone has attracted attention, the appointment of a Control Board, but the more important section which defines what liquors are prohibited. The law now reads as follows: "The term 'Intoxicating Liquors' shall be construed to signify all ales, wines, malt brewed or spirituous liquors containing two per cent. or upward of alcohol by volume and each medicinal, toilet and other preparations containing two per cent. or upward of alcohol by volume as may from time to time be directed by the Governor in Council, but not wines for sacramental purposes." The plain meaning of which is that everything that answers to the description of a "spirituous liquor" containing two per cent. or upward of alcohol by volume is prohibited from sale. There need no longer be any doubts as to the sale of beef, iron and wine, bay rum, methylated spirits and a host of other commodities: they all come equally under the ban. The old Act was faulty enough, but it was not as bad as this. In that case, after the word "volume" the word "except" followed, so that the Council had at least the power to exempt from the operation of the Act such liquors as clearly should not be included in it. They have not even that power now. They are merely allowed to proclaim certain liquors specifically which must already be prohibited under the general designation. Under the old law, a druggist who sold wood alcohol was liable to prosecution. The Council could have legalised the sale by a simple proclamation. They cannot do so now, and he sells it at his peril with no possibility of redress. Could absurdity go further?

This, be it noted, is an amendment passed in answer to widespread objections and as the result of a ridiculous prosecution. Not a member of the entire House seems to have noticed the obvious effect of it. We note that it has been sent to the Upper House for approval. We hope it is not yet too late to amend it again. But there is another aspect of it which deserves attention. In contrast with the old Act, "toilet preparations" are specifically mentioned. Even the incorrect wording of the new clause did not require this, and its insertion suggests very plainly that such preparations are likely to be the peculiar care of the Council. If this means that such things as bay rum and Florida water are going to be forbidden to the ordinary individual, merely because a few, a very few, depraved wretches craze themselves with drinking it, we think it is time to enter a vigorous protest. There is need of more commonsense and less fanaticism in this matter of prohibition. The main purpose of the measure, which was the abolition of saloons, the drink traffic and intemperance, has been most satisfactorily achieved. There may remain some small abuse in the direction of medical prescriptions, and that should be removed by the vigilance of the Control Board. There the matter might well be allowed to rest. There are dozens of intoxicating (and more or less poisonous) liquors with which a dipsomaniac can kill himself by degrees if he wishes; that is no reason why the rest of the public should be forbidden the benefit of their use. We have to search far back to find another instance where the objects and scope of an Act have been so clear and simple, and where so much unnecessary difficulty has been created, through sheer carelessness and ineptitude, in defining them.

The Wrecked Liner.

With much of the cargo removed, the prospects of refloating the stranded liner Kristianafjord near Mistaken Point, under existing favorable sea conditions, are bright. The divers have closed the holes in the hull from the outside to allow the water to be pumped out of the holds, thus greatly facilitating the work of refloating the ship. No water has gained access to the engine room or cabins.

Thirty-two members of the crew have reached the city, including a dozen female waitresses, and are staying at the Seamen's Institute. One of the men, suffering from a heavy attack of pneumonia, was conveyed to the Hospital this morning in the ambulance.

Three of the surviving passengers are kept behind, including a woman and child with measles and a Norwegian named Christensen, suffering from acute heart trouble. His condition to-day was critical and he is not expected to hold out much longer.

Horse Bolted.

Cabman Ryan, of the West End stand had a narrow escape from being seriously injured about 10.15 a.m. to-day, when his horse, which was standing in front of the Post Office, took fright and bolted. It happened that Mr. Ryan was standing near his cab when the animal started to dash west on Water Street. Jumping into the cab he attempted to get on the front seat when the vehicle sheered and toppled over, throwing the driver and horse to the ground. Fortunately for the former he landed on his hands and feet, and clear of a few slight cuts escaped serious injury. The horse, however, immediately regained its legs, broke from the cab and dashed at high speed up the street, but was captured at the railway station. Considerable damage was done the cab.

Pte. Barron Writes Again From Germany.

Private Peter Barron, of "Our's," a prisoner of war in Giessen, Germany, for the past twelve months, again writes to his wife, stating that he has not heard from her for a considerable while, although Mrs. Barron has written several letters within the past four months. The delay cannot be exactly accounted for, but is believed to be caused in enemy territory, though perhaps not intentional. Pte. Barron says he is in the best of health and that lovely weather prevails in the country where he is.

Pinhole in Water Pipe Soon Proves Costly.

Information recently circulated by the water department of a small municipality where meters are used, shows the importance of discovering and mending leaks that may occur in a piping system. Under a pressure of 40 lb. it is estimated that, in 24 hours, 170 gal. of water will pass through a hole a shade larger than the period at the end of this sentence. An orifice slightly bigger than the head of a pin will permit 3,600 gal. to escape in a similar length of time. Thus, ever so slight a hole may cause the wastage of a great volume of water if it fails to receive immediate attention. It is easy to test a plumbing system and ascertain its condition. This may be done by closing all cocks and then reading the meter. If, after a half hour or more, the meter reads the same as originally, the pipes are free from leaks. German Officers Are Hungry.

A despatch from Geneva, Switzerland, says that Swiss officers on leave who have just returned there after nine months' service on the Swiss-Alsace frontier, say that even the German officers in Alsace and Lorraine are suffering from hunger, and when they arrive at the Swiss outpost villages are now glad to obtain a good meal, paying any price. Until a few months ago the German officers, unlike the men on the frontier who are always hungry, pretended they had plenty of food, but their pale faces belied the statement. Now they admit that their food is lacking and their Swiss officer comrades, though neutral, are doing their best for the Germans, although the Swiss military authorities prohibit any intercourse.

If this is the case with officers the condition of the German soldiers may be imagined on the frontier where the kindly Swiss are sharing their rations. One German deserter said:

"My whole company would desert and enter Switzerland, but we are told by our officers that we would be returned to Germany and then shot."

PLAY TIED GAME MONDAY.
Through the courtesy of Messrs. Chaplin, Higgins and St. John, of the Football League, the tied game between the Cubs and B.I.S. in the preliminary game for the Reid Cup to be contested for at Mount Cashel the day of the Garden Party, will be played on Monday night. The game will start promptly at 7 o'clock, and the lineups will likely be the same as before. Odds among the fans are about fifty-fifty, so that an exciting clash may be expected. The players' names will be published on Monday.

ADVICE FOR ROOKIES.
It is no longer good form to permit the ball to be caught sunburned in your hands before throwing to retire a runner.

A good change of pace doesn't mean ability to run from the outfield to home plate with the ball in an attempt to prevent a home run.

INTERNATIONAL BASEBALL.
By English papers just received we note an account of a baseball game played at Paris on July 4th between the American R.A.M.C. and the Canadian soldiers, the latter winning by a score of 2 to 1. The attendance was over 7,000, and 10,000 francs were realized for the French Red Cross Fund. In the lineup was Lieut. Herb Power, of "Ours," who guarded the keystone for the winners, and who batted in one of the 2 runs. Lieut. Power (who was spending a brief furlough in the French capital after coming out of hospital), will be remembered as the plucky backstop of the Shamrocks when they won the pennant in 1914.

BRITISH-AMERICAN FEDERATION.
NEW YORK, To-Day.
A joint British and American recruiting meeting in Madison Square Garden to-night was characterized by Lord Northcliffe, one of the speakers, as a "fresh stepping stone towards realising a federation of the peoples of the American Republic and the people of the British Empire," an idea he declared, "hitherto declared a dream." He said that if anyone had foretold three years ago that British troops would be cheered in American cities he would have been laughed at. Here to-night, he added, for the first time in history appeal was being made to men of American and British birth to stand forth and enlist in the armies of their two countries.

RESIGNS SEAT.
LONDON, To-Day.
Almeric Hugh Paget has resigned his seat in Parliament to provide a seat for Sir Eric Geddes, the First Lord of the Admiralty. Paget has sat for Cambridge constituency since 1913.

VARIOUS INTERPRETATIONS.
COPENHAGEN, To-Day.
The Berliner Tagblatt interprets the Chancellor's speech as indicating that he is absolutely opposed to the annexationists. The Vossische Zeitung says that Michaelis lacks diplomatic ability and seems not yet to have found a way from the old office to the new. The Tagliche Rundschau, while pessimistic concerning the speech, admits that the position of Michaelis is more difficult than that of any of his predecessors.

1.30 P.M.
NO HOPE OF EARLY PEACE.
LONDON, To-Day.
The speech of the Imperial Chancellor Michaelis is regarded as a war, not a peace, speech by all the morning newspapers in their editorials. The Morning Post says the speech confirms the impression that the new Chancellor was appointed not to make peace, but to continue the war. The Daily Mail considers that no such clear and confident utterance has emanated from Germany since Bismarck's day and that all hopes of an early peace are knocked flatly and finally on the head. The Daily Chronicle, taking the same view, attributes the Chancellor's complacent view of the military situation to the temporary paralysis of Russia. It says that his language suggests that the German autocracy, at first shaken by the storm of the Russian revolution, is again rearing its proud head and with consciousness of renewed strength is challenging the whole democratic movement. The Daily News only finds a slender hope in the fact that the language of Michaelis is less offensive than that of his predecessors.

UNDISCIPLINED ARMY.
LONDON, To-Day.
A despatch from the correspondent of the Times at the headquarters of the eighth Russian army dated July 19th says that the system of Military Committees has failed and that the future success of the Russian army depends upon the restoration of a proper spirit of subordination among the soldiers.

SELECTIVE CONSCRIPTION UNDER WAY.
WASHINGTON, To-Day.
Selective conscription was put into effect yesterday when the National Lottery fixed the order of military liability for the 10,000,000 young Americans registered for service. To accomplish the result 1,050,000 numbers had to be drawn one at a time and lasted far into the night. As a result of the drawing every registered man is given a definite place in the liability for service list. Already 6,870,000 have been ordered to the colors to fill to the war strength the regular army and National Guard and to constitute the first increment of the National Army. To secure the total 1,374,000 men will be called for examination within a few weeks, the officials estimating that two registrants must be called for every soldier accepted. These 1,374,000 will be taken from the head of the liability list, every local district furnishing a fixed quotation.

KERENSKY BECOMES RUSSIAN PREMIER.
PETROGRAD, To-Day.
The Bourse Gazette announces that Premier Lvoff has resigned and that Alexander F. Kerensky has been appointed Premier but will temporarily retain his portfolio of Ministry of War. M. Tseretoli has been appointed to the post of Minister of the Interior which was held by M. Lvoff, but will retain his portfolio of Ministry of Posts and Telegraphs. M. Nekrasoff has been named provisionally as Minister of Justice in place of M. Perevelzoff, who resigned on Thursday.

Returned Soldier Dead—Bride Dying.
A Terrible Tragedy at Annprior, Quebec—Disappointed Lover Kills Woman Who Rejected Him.
Annprior, Ont., July 17.—Bruce M. Letich, aged 25, a returned soldier of Montreal, is dead, his bride of a week is dying at a hotel in Sand Point and William Bennett, aged 25, of 375 Notre Dame Street, Montreal, is dying in a Renfrew hospital. Letich, who was on leave from a Toronto convalescent home, was spending his honeymoon with his bride at Sand Point, near here. Bennett, who had been rejected by the girl, who was a Miss Gertrude Lillian Stranding, of Montreal, learned of their whereabouts and arriving in Annprior yesterday waylaid them on a lonely road and killed Letich in cold blood, then shot Mrs. Letich through the right lung and face, and himself through the head. The three were found lying in the roadway by a hotel keeper of Sand Point, at whose place Mr. and Mrs. Letich had been staying.

Hollweg Said Germany Could Not Win.
London, July 16.—A despatch to the Chronicle from Zurich says the Catholic Bayerische Jurist publishes a sensational report concerning the letter alleged to have been written by Professor Adolf von Harnack. Harnack states that shortly before the crisis he had a conversation with the Chancellor, who stated he was prepared for the coming crisis and that his views approximated those of Scheidmann and Hoeneke, but that he could not entirely free himself from Conservative influence. The crisis was necessary to secure a free hand. The greatest dangers to Germany were those who still believed in German victory. At best the war would be a draw.

No Peace Without Fighting.
Chicago Tribune: We who look at war as an unmitigated evil, an irruption of the brute upon civilization, who like to think of a world society in which law will govern, and the warfare of the lawyer therefore take the place of the bloody debate of battle, find it very hard to accept the harsh and simple logic of force. Yet we put it away at our peril and our cost. If Germany wins in France the question of whether there is a British garrison in Berlin or a French in Istanbul or an Italian at Avlona will count for little compared to the cost of gaining it, now or maintaining it. The terms of peace are going to be made not by international lawyers about the council table at The Hague but on the central battlefield where the main armies are in their death grapple. It is to be hoped this is coming home to the Allied Governments and to our own, and that the result will be an end of futile diplomatic war making, of costly imperial adventures and the most intense and exclusive concentration upon the essentials of victory.

Should He Marry Her

By RUTH CAMERON.

RUTH CAMERON

"But be our experience in particular what it may, no man ever forgot the visitations of that power to his heart and brain which created all things new; when a single tone of one voice could make the heart beat, and the most trivial circumstances associated with one form was put in the amber of memory: when we became all eye when one was present and all memory when one was gone."—Emerson.

I thought of that passage the other day when a little letter came to me with the most touchingly unconscious description of love in it. Despite obvious differences the spirit of the two was strikingly alike.

This is the letter: "Dear Instructor,—Why is it that a boy can go with girls a number of years, but at last some girl will come along and he does not feel just at ease unless he is in her presence. The other girls he only enjoyed being with for the time being but this last girl is always on his mind and heart.

"Is this the girl he should marry?" Can you answer that question, reader? I'm afraid I can't.

Nature Wants Him To. I can tell him one thing. It's the girl nature is pushing him towards. Whether, for his best ultimate happiness, he should marry her or not, that's quite another question.

Coming out on the trolley the other day I stood near a boy and girl evidently in the courting stage. She was saying complacently: "I always get a seat, some people mind I crowd but I don't at all. I just push in and get my seat. I use my elbows."

I looked at the boy to see how this affected him. Evidently it did not occur to him to question whether this would be the kind of person he would like to live with, whether she might not use her elbows too much in married life to make it entirely comfortable for the other party. Her nose was rather nicely tipped and her eyes, though dangerously small and close set, were bright. These were evidently the things he saw.

A "Stop Look and Listen" Sign. Maybe the writer of the letter will think all this irrelevant. It really isn't as irrelevant as it seems.

It's meant for a suggestion. Perhaps he is too far gone to heed it. And perhaps after all his chances are about as good if he lets the little blind boy select for him as if he tries to use that very limited very fallible (especially in such matters) instrument, the human judgment.

I fell from a building and received what the doctor called a very bad sprained ankle, and told me I must not walk on it for three weeks. I got MINARD'S LINIMENT and in six days I was out to work again. I think it the best Liniment made.

FATHER.

Father is a title applied to a man who has lived long enough to acquire some property in his own name along with a glittering relay of children. Some fathers never acquire anything but children with rich, stall-fed appetites, and are thus obliged to gaze mournfully every morning into the face of a celluloid cylinder which has to be washed with a sponge.

Fathers are permitted to encumber the earth for the sole purpose of paying charge accounts contracted by somebody else. When a father has eight or ten restless children who are not earning anything but the esteem of the community, his monthly bills will make the interest on the Panama Canal debt look like the proceeds of a cemetery social. It is a trying moment in a proud father's life when he steps into a drugstore to collect a bill and is confronted by a charge account for chocolate, cherries and nut-sundaes reaching from the prescription case to the front window.

Not allowed to come in the front way without taking off their rubbers. Father is usually well thought of in his home, and is allowed to eat with the hired girl and the rest of the family. In some homes he is also allowed to do considerable plain housework, such as bringing in coal, slipping dishes and tending the baby. Nature never intended man to do this work, but the average father prefers peace to the

The Gas Range!

The Gas Range means comfort for the housewife; shorter kitchen hours for her, and a cleaner kitchen. It is a great mistake to think that cooking with gas is expensive.

Whenever a woman becomes used to gas for cooking, thoughts of a coal or wood stove fill her with gloom. A Gas Range is so much easier to operate, so efficient for all kinds of cooking, and so much cleaner, that the idea of going back to the old style methods is decidedly unpleasant. Yet in winter many housewives think they must use a coal or wood stove, because there is no other way of heating the kitchen. THERE IS ANOTHER WAY AND IT IS FAR BETTER THAN THE OLD. THE CLOW GAS STEAM RADIATOR WAY. MAY 23, 14

Although fathers usually pay for the house and furniture with their own money, they are not allowed to smoke in the front parlor or come in the front way without taking off their rubbers. This shows the extent to which a small, eagle-eyed woman can tyrannize over 200 pounds of bone and muscle disguised as a man. It is no wonder that so many fathers wear a humble, suppliant look and court-pleaser over-bow eyes, while their wives go around in perfect health.

RE-ENLISTED WITH FORESTERS.—Sergeant J. R. Goodyear, of Grand Falls, has received his discharge from the 1st Nfld. Regiment and yesterday enlisted with the Forestry Company. While the regiment will miss his services his experience as a woodsman will be of greater value to the Empire in the present crisis. The Goodyears, one and all, have shown their metal within the past three years.

Fads and Fashions.

Rose patterned foulard is combined with black crepe de chine. Evening gowns for women are dignified rather than extreme.

The chemise frock is as fashionable as when it first appeared.

High collars and long sleeves will be favored for all street garments. A hat may have a brim of black satin and a crown of white plique. Scarfs and collarettes of tulle in all colors are worn with thin frocks. Garden smocks are most practical when they button on the shoulder. Leaves of colored beads make a charming decoration for the hair.

Yellow is one of the favorite colors for brides' maid's dresses.

Heliotrope embroidery is charmingly used with lemon-colored crepe.

Crow-blue satin with gold embroidery makes a dress of great richness. Black satin coats, long and loose, are made to wear over dainty fete dresses.

SOME men never get more than one chance at these woodland beaties in a whole season's shoot. How supremely important, then, is the choice of your rifle and ammunition. Remember this—that Remington U.M.C. tremendous popularity and prestige is not due to a few crack shots' records, but to the high average, splendid year-in-year-out performance of Remington U.M.C. in the hands of the rank and file of sportsmen the world over.

For a rifle—a Remington U.M.C. Repeater, solid breech, hammerless, safe. For ammunition—Remington U.M.C. metallics—made in every calibre, for every arm. Over 100 years' experience guarantee you results. We live only by your success.

REMINGTON U.M.C. OF CANADA, LIMITED
WINDSOR, ONT.

LONDON GOSSIP.

LONDON, June 25th, 1917.
"TINO" IN LONDON.
Ex-King "Tino" was no stranger to London and he paid a visit to the Metropolis as Duke of Sparta for the 1897 Jubilee. During his stay he was "shown the Elephant"—i.e., taken to Billingsgate fish market and Covent Garden (London's principal fruit, flower and vegetable market) in the small hours. He and his party breakfasted at 4 a.m. off kidneys and bacon at a famous public house in Russell Street, Covent Garden, washing the meal down with "a ha'porth of coffee," the price of which was sixpence, for the coffee contained a goodly drop of rum. The landlord always declared that "Tino" had a good "follow" of sausages and eggs and bacon.

THE MAN WITH THE EGGS.
A curious little incident of the recent air raid reaches me. A man returning from the country, where he had got a present of a dozen eggs, was in the train that was bombed in a London station. He heard the first bomb dropped as the train came in, got out hurriedly, and from a distance along the platform he saw a bomb strike the carriage he had been in. Several people were killed in it. He left the station, and was about to enter an Underground Tube station when another bomb burst, and he had another narrow escape. He was rushed into the Tube by the crowd, and ultimately reached home. When he opened his basket he found all his eggs safe.

ALL IN THE DAY'S WORK.
A woman from one of the overseas Dominions who is now doing war work in London, and whose office building—itsel slightly damaged—is in the heart of the district where most casualties occurred, tells me that she was immediately impressed by the courage the City girls displayed. They had shared an experience which had almost unnerved her. They knew that girls had been killed in adjacent buildings, but when they came into the tea room just outside the police cordon within an hour of the raid it was difficult to realise what they had gone through. They greeted the waitresses whom they knew with inquiries, and said something about what had happened, but without any appearance of excitement. One girl, whose conversation showed that her own office had been bombed, was concerned to know whether any of the apricot pudding had survived, because if so she wanted some. The others talked together about the raid, but they also talked of things quite remote, and my informant said she noticed that their voices were never raised or excited.

GROWING WAR EXPENDITURE.
Seldom has surprises been more instantly and emphatically expressed in the House of Commons than when the Chancellor of the Exchequer recently announced the very great and generally unexpected leap upwards in Britain's daily war expenditure. More fight is being sought on this very difficult subject, and Bonar Law will be invited to state what proportion the following groups of expenditure bear to the total daily expenditure of nearly £8,000,000 ($40,000,000): Pay, pensions, and allowances paid to the Army and Navy; salaries, pay, pensions, and allowances to all other Government employees, including civil servants; and expenditure on all supplies and material actually occasioned by war, distinguishing between our expenditure within the country and outside. To those who know the circumstances it is obvious that even if the sum of these important items were stated it would not reach any a number of Australian patients, and to each found something interesting and to the point to say about their homeland. "And where do you come from?" inquired Her Majesty of yet another lad. "From the Solomon Islands," was the reply. For a moment the Queen faltered—for the Solomon Islands are very large, and, in short, possibly she did not know exactly where the Solomon Islands are. "And how do you like England?" asked the Queen—and the situation was saved.

A ROSE DUCHES.
The Duchess of Portland, smiling and radiant in her black dress and rose-wreathed straw hat, was on Wednesday a charming addition to Queen Alexandra's Rose Day procession. Her Grace is usually in attendance on this very special occasion. When I saw her she was chatting gaily with Miss Charlotte Knollys, who was seated beside the Duchess, with another of Queen Alexandra's lifelong friends, Sir Dighton Probyn, opposite. The Queen Mother looked radiantly pleased with her reception from ladies in carriages at Hyde Park Corner and humbler folk who rose from their garden seats to greet her as she passed on her way to the City. Her Majesty wore a more summy toilette than usual, the corsage in black and white faced with touches of mauve matching the sweet rose bouquets among the Alexandra roses. Princess Victoria had brightened her black dress by touches of white and a corsage bouquet of Alexandra roses.

McMurdo's Store News
SATURDAY, July 21, 1917.
A prominent gentleman who was a long time discovering the shaving soap that really suited "down to the ground" found it at last in Erasmic Shaving Soap, and ordered a quarter dozen from us the other day so that he should not run out of it. There is plenty more in store. Why not give Erasmic a chance with your beard next time. Price 30c. a stick.

All these Saline preparations so popular on both sides of the water have shown an upward price tendency during the last three years. McMurdo's Saline, though most people who have some knowledge of these things would pronounce it one of the three best, is still sold at the comparatively modest price of 65c. a bottle.

Continuous Firing Feature of a New American Gun.
Announcement has been made of the development of an American machine gun capable of continuous firing, says the August Popular Mechanics Magazine. Ammunition is carried to its feed block by an endless belt kept filled by an automatic reloading mechanism. Supply hoppers contain from 2,500 to 10,000 cartridges and are replenished or replaced without interfering with operation. Most machine guns fire about 500 shots a minute and are supplied with ammunition by belts holding approximately 250 cartridges. Thus they are able to fire uninterruptedly for only 30 seconds, while the new instrument spits thousands of missiles without pausing and thereby does the work of two ordinary pieces.

For specific purposes the gun is built integral with some vehicle, such as a motor-cycle, aeroplane, or motor-boat. Instead of being manually operated, its mechanism is motor-driven. The machine that rushes it into action, also mounts and operates it. No time is consumed in assembling or dismantling the piece when seconds are precious. An aeroplane pilot can be his own gunner, for by touching a button with a finger or foot, the instrument is put into action. For trench use, a special mounting with creeper wheels is provided and an electric-cable control used. This arrangement allows the operator to remain in a protected position and dispatch the gun across "No Man's Land" on its deadly mission. The direction and speed of its movements, as well as its angle and rate of fire, are regulated with buttons. An illustration, showing the new weapon in use, accompanies the article.

JAPAN EXPLAINS GOLD MOVEMENTS.
I learn that the American Government have expressed satisfaction with the explanation received from Japan respecting its object in withdrawing gold from the United States at the annual rate of £40,000,000 ($200,000,000). Japan has explained that the war has made her a great creditor nation; that her exports greatly exceed her imports, and that the movement of gold has been made imperative by abnormal commercial conditions. Gold exports from the United States to Japan within the last three or four weeks have been £2,000,000 and £3,000,000 ($10,000,000 and $15,000,000), and since the opening of the year they have totalled £7,000,000 ($35,000,000). In the last eight months they have reached an aggregate of about £10,000,000 ($50,000,000) and there is said to be every indication that the large shipments will continue for several months, and even increasingly.

Your Boys and Girls.
The proper care of babies and children is much of a start and a life work as any business that a man has ever undertaken. And yet, to-day the majority of girls are wholly unprepared for the duties of motherhood. The richer classes depend upon their trained nurses more or less, but the thousands of mothers of the middle class are left to experiment for themselves, usually at a cost of the health of their domestic happiness, and at the risk of their little ones lives.

QUEEN MARY NONPLUSSED.
I have heard an interesting little story of how the Queen was, for once, rather at a loss at one of the hospitals the other day. Her Majesty is so well posted that it gives an attractive human touch to know that she is not in the least that awful personage, the too well-informed woman. She and the King were going the rounds amongst

Coalition Government

WILL HOLD FIRST SATURDAY SESSION UNDER SUSPENDED RULES. WOOLLEN MILLS CONTRACT MODIFIED.

The House of Assembly met at 3.35, but business did not commence for 20 minutes, the arrival of the Premier, who was late, being eagerly awaited. Mr. Parsons, member for Harbor Grace, drew the attention of the House to statements made in the Daily Star concerning an invalided soldier named Brown, who was suffering from shell shock and was at present in the Lunatic Asylum. He took exception to what appeared in that newspaper and then went on to show how he had interested himself in the soldier's case. He said that the best attention was being given the soldier and that the reason he was not removed home was because the lad's father abided by the decision of Dr. Duncan, who considered it best to have the lad remain where he was until he became conscious of his surroundings and then he could be taken home.

Mr. Bennett confirmed the remarks of the previous speaker and explained that too many baseless charges were given publicity regarding soldiers.

The Bills respecting the establishment of a Department of Militia and Defence; the Control of Trading in the necessities of life, and to extend the term of the present, Assembly were read a first time.

On motion of the Premier the rules of the House were suspended in relation to all matters now before the House.

The Bill amending the Prohibition Act was read a Third time and sent to the Upper House for concurrence, as were also the Municipal Bill and an Act to incorporate the Placentia Water Co.

The amendments of the Legislative Council to the Bill relating to the Wills and Estates of Soldiers and Sailors were confirmed.

The Resolutions relative to the Confirmation of an Agreement with the Riverview Woollen Mills, Ltd., and Newfoundland Knitting Mills, Ltd. were brought in in modified form by the Colonial Secretary, who explained the different sections. Five per cent is guaranteed upon the capital up to $100,000 and there is admitted duty free for 20 years from January 1st, 1917, all construction material and machinery for the original installation and the further extension of the Composites factories and plant, but not for replacement or substitution of new for old, flannelette, cotton, seecy cottons, facings, threads, fine yarns, buttons, tapes, labels, soda ash, bleaching and dyeing materials, wool oil and wrapping materials. The Government's guarantee of a protective duty for 20 years, as appeared in the original contract, has been removed. Although no provision for a bonus on wool is made in the present contract, the Companies receive the bonus under the General Act of 1910. Bills giving effect to the Resolutions were introduced and read a first time.

Other matters on the Order Paper were deferred until this afternoon when the first week-end sitting of the Legislature since the winter of 1914 will be held. Quite a lot of important business has to be discussed, including the annual Budget, which is slated for Monday next.

Milady's Boudoir.

THE ART OF RESTING.

Even weak women who are not robust enough to take the daily bath will find an alcohol sponge bath strengthening and helpful. Taken just before the daily nap, it tends to give light and refreshing slumber. If one cannot take it at midday, to take it at night before retiring will cause one to sleep well, even if the bedroom is not any too cool.

To take down and brush the hair lightly, to rub the tired feet lightly with a little alcohol and water or diluted lemon juice, afterward wiping this off and applying powder, these things will also make the nap more comfortable. But more important is the habit of being able to let go of all the work and worries of the day, when one would sleep.

Physical relaxation is taught by many nowadays, but mental relaxation is not often heard of. So I counsel my readers who find it hard to sleep when they wish to, and especially in the day time, to learn how to shut out of mind, as by a door, all the puzzling, fretting, worrying thoughts, the burdensome, grinding work thoughts, and retain only in the consciousness the thought of peace and rest.

Let the mind fill itself with images of something pleasant, whether it is some of childhood's recollections, of a flower or a bird, or a pleasant scene of a memory of trickling water or of flowering tree or herb. Think and dwell upon this pleasant, restful image and watch carefully that this work thought does not slip back once more into the foreground. If the mind is taught how to relax and to let go in this way sleep may be successfully attained.

Another aid to the hot weather siesta is the rather small thin hair pillow to use as a substitute for the feather cushion. The head should never be too high, that is, for the normal and healthy woman. To stretch out flat upon the back is found by many to be soothing and restful. Many like to lie upon the floor in Summer finding there some little draught of air.

Children's frocks have small animals in cross-stitch on pockets, cuffs and collars.

Board of Trade Report

From T. O'Brien (Pt. Amour to Red Bay).—The traps average 100 quintals and the boats from 35 to 40. The former are doing a little but not much is being done by trawls the last few days. Ten traps and 50 dorics and skiffs are fishing. The catch to date is 3,000 qts. and for last week 800.

From W. Hogan, (Crapaud to Broad Cove).—Prospects are good for trawls. Caplin is plentiful and on some days there is also a sign of squid. The fish has slackened off from the shore this week and strong tides interfered with trapping making the catch smaller than for the previous week. Sixty-eight traps, 83 dorics and skiffs and four boats are fishing. The catch is 12,100 qts. with 1,200 for last week.

From A. Keats, (Placentia to Long Pt.).—The small boats in this vicinity have done very little the last three weeks but the Cape St. Mary's boats are bringing in fine trips and the fishery as a whole is well above the average. Squid has not yet appeared but dogfish is numerous. Prospects are fair. Seven traps, 25 dorics and skiffs and 25 boats are fishing. The total catch is about 5,950 qts. and for last week 2,075.

From R. Furneaux, (Rose Blanche to Hr. LeCun).—The catch is 13,860 qts. with 429 for last week. All the traps have been taken ashore but 26 dorics and skiffs are fishing. All the traps did very poorly, the highest having about 70 qts. and the others from 65 to 35. Prospects are fairly good and there is plenty squid but no other bait.

From F. Curnew, (Bellocram to Rencontre).—Codfish is scarce with traps but there is an improvement in the net fishing. Caplin is plentiful and there is also a sign of squid. The catch is 13,310 qts. and for last week 480. Ten traps are fishing.

From C. Renouf, (Bank Head to St. John's).—There is very good fishing with trawls and hand lines but the trap fishery is pretty well off. Squid and herring is used for bait the former being very plentiful. Prospects are very good. The catch is 4,514 qts. with 800 for last week. Fifty dorics and skiffs and 47 traps are fishing.

From J. Butt, (Blanc Sablon to Forteau).—Twenty-nine traps, 80 dorics and skiffs and 29 boats are fishing. Prospects are good and there is plenty caplin. If the weather holds for another week the people in this section will have saving voyages. The catch is 19,000 qts. and for last week 4,600.

DISCUSS EIGHT HOUR DAY.

The recently formed organization known as the Newfoundland Industrial Workers Association has set a record for this country as regards its rapid growth. A little over two months ago this organization was called into being, and we might state without fear of contradiction that the influx of members to its ranks in such large numbers has surpassed all expectations. A number of resolutions have been forwarded to the Government touching on matters of the greatest importance. The coal question has been overcome by its members by arranging to import their own. We also learn that within a reasonable time the Association may be conducting business on its own account.

At last night's meeting the eight hour work day was again discussed. Those speaking on the subject were Messrs. P. G. Butler, W. Smith, G. F. Grimes, M.H.A., H. McDonald and J. Giles. Some very able arguments in favour of the system were advanced and enthusiastically received. A vote of thanks to the speakers proposed by Mr. H. Shaw and seconded by Mr. J. Nichols was carried by acclamation.

Since last meeting a new member signed the roll bringing the total strength to 763.

Sanitary Employees on Strike.

Resumes Work on Advice of Mayor.
All the employees of the Sanitary Department came out on strike yesterday for two reasons: first out of sympathy with a fellow workman. This man had been laid off by the Supervisor for being late in reporting for duty. This action was resented by other members of the staff and soon all hands quit work.

The second reason of the Sanitary men for this attitude was the fact that they were not yet in receipt of the long promised increase of wages. The strikers held an indignation meeting yesterday afternoon, Mayor Gosling, on invitation, being present. Having heard their complaint, the Mayor addressed the men pointing out that the Council were not unmindful of the demands of the men for several months past and had been constantly endeavoring, though without success, up to the present time, to get sufficient money to give the raise of wages. In this connection he further intimated that several meetings had been held by the Council recently with a view to being able to pay the promised increase. He assured the men that if they went back to work they would be treated equitably and fairly, and promised to have their demands acceded to as soon as possible, probably within a week. The men accepted the sincerity of the Mayor's promise and returned to work this morning. The increase they are looking for is not less than 15 per cent, because of the high cost of food stuffs, etc., though no definite pronouncement was made by the Mayor as to how much they were going to get.

As to Reprisals.

On Saturday a fleet of German aeroplanes, coming from the north—the direction opposite from that which was expected to bring them, and in their approach flying at a great height—swooped down upon London, dropped bombs in the heart of the city, and killed many people. To-day the sentiment in London is divided, as the result of this latest raid, between blame of the military administration for permitting the squadron to steal a march on the capital and a demand for reprisals against German cities. Both sentiments are natural enough. It is certain that the German aeroplanes circumented the British air defence by a simple manoeuvre, the success of which promises farther and perhaps more dreadful raids on non-combatants in the streets, on women and children, on hospitals, schools, churches and so on. The British anti-air defence surely appears in an unfavorable light. Concerning the demand for air reprisals against German cities, there may, indeed, be two opinions. The natural impulse of every humane person of those races who believes in fair play, and in many warfare if war must be fought, is to reprehend any attempt to retaliate with barbarity against barbarity. The disposition of all such humane people is to say, "Vengeance is mine, saith the Lord; I will repay." Let us leave the Germans to the punishment of the world's eternal scorn. Some day peace will come, and then, for a hundred years, the German nation will pay for these nefarious proceedings by bearing the burden of the world's bitter hatred. For a long century to come, no German will offer his wares to the world without the necessity of lifting off his customer's mind the weight of the Lusitania's dead babies, the burden of Belgium's girl slaves, the memory of schools and orphan asylums wantonly and cruelly bombed for no military purpose. That natural and righteous resentment of the whole world, with its consequences of moral and material penance by the German race, will be reprisal enough. No bomb raid on Berlin or Cologne could match the bitterness of that penance. We say that it is the disposition of Englishmen, as it is of Americans, to leave the matter here. But other considerations are arising in the official as well as the popular mind. The war is to be fought and must be brought to an end as soon as possible. If by means of such extra, military outrages as those London raids, and also on account of the fact that the British make no air raids except for distinctly military reasons, the German psychology is such that it would be restrained by relentless retaliation from similar proceedings in the future, then reprisal upon the Prussian cities of the Rhine valley, upon the industrial centres of Westphalia, or upon Berlin itself if that be possible, might well be justified. The German people are themselves constantly deceived by the Berlin official statements that a "fort" at London is being bombed by victorious German aeroplanes. The idea is perpetually planted and replanted in their brains that the German aircraft are inimitable, that all England lies in terror of them, and that England is being swiftly beaten by such means. In so far as retaliatory raids might tend to discourage this notion, and to reveal to the German nation that bomb destruction is a game that two can play at, highly destructive raids against German cities might well be justified. They would probably tend to break down the German psychology, which is undoubtedly deeper and

Summer School Notes.

Friday, July 20th. Morning Session 9-12.30, St. Bon's College. The lecturers during the four periods of this session were Dr. Brunt and Mr. Morehouse. They explained how the subjects: History, English, Arithmetic, Reading and Spelling should be studied in accordance with the Science of Education.
Afternoon Session, 2.15-4.15. During the first period of the afternoon session the lectures on Arithmetic and Reading were continued.
From 3 to 3.30 was spent in Physical Culture, after which all the teachers were lined up in front of the main entrance to the College and Dr. Blackall announced that Sir Edgar Bowring had invited all those attending the Summer School to an outing to Bowring Park on Saturday week. The announcement of this generous action was well received and cheers were given for Sir Edgar.
From 3.30 to 4.15 the teachers were given instruction in Nature Study and Art by Miss Kelly and Mr. Murdock.
Evening Session, Synod Building, 7.30-9.00. The following special subjects were taken: Geometry and Algebra by Rev. W. H. Thomas and Mr. Goodman; Geometry by Miss Collins; and French by Miss Stirling and Miss Carmichael.
On Saturday morning five lectures will be given, but there will be no afternoon or evening session.
CORRESPONDENT.

always has been subject to the sentiment of terror which it seeks to impose upon others. The bully is best answered by an application of his own methods. And at this particular time, when the resistance of the German people seems on the verge of breaking down from internal causes, it might indeed help to bring the war to an end to carry destruction and terror to Cologne, to Coblenz, to Westphalia, to Essen, to Bremen and other cities which undoubtedly are to be reached as easily by Allied aeroplanes as London is to the Germans. We should not be surprised, therefore, if the warfare of the air became considerably more relentless in the near future, on the Allies' side, than it has been. The Allies undoubtedly now possess superiority in air-craft and the whole Rhine valley lies open to them. Essen, the seat of the Krupp cannon works, has been visited by a French aeroplane. It should be visited by many more, both French and British. In good time it may be visited by Americans. Challenged as we are by this hideous warfare of the Germans, in England as well as in Belgium and France, upon the women and children of our Allies, there is absolutely no reason why American wealth, American ingenuity, American industry should not participate with its utmost energy in supplying the material and the men to end the war by the early and effective use of the weapons of the air.—Boston Transcript.

Want 1,000 Men

To Leave World and Make New Weapon.

New York, July 13.—A special to the New York World from Pittsburgh says the Westinghouse interests here are seeking 1,000 men who are willing to sign an agreement to enter a new plant to be built for the manufacture of war munitions by a secret process, and remain imprisoned for ten months, all communication with the outside world to be shut off. Men who have been approached were told that the plant will manufacture a powerful implement of war, and the secret must be guarded until the Government sees fit to make the details public. Only those workmen and officials who will be engaged in the production of the new weapon will know its character and the details of manufacture.

Recreation and entertainment of every possible sort will be furnished the isolated employees. Pay double that they now get is guaranteed, and bonuses will be paid for high production. Only picked men, whose Americanism is unquestioned and whose skill in their respective vocations is of the highest, will be employed. Officials of the Westinghouse interests to-day refused to talk. An artisan of high standing, who was approached by the Government, agents, said he had received an intimation that the new plant would turn out, in large quantities, one of the latest inventions of Thomas A. Edison.

Significant Hint.
Interest in the work Thomas A. Edison is doing for the Government, was again stirred to-day by the statement of Wm. Maxwell, general manager of the Edison Company, that the famous inventor "may soon become the most important figure in the nation."
"That is all I can say now," Mr. Maxwell declared.

Harry Lauder Among "The Boys."

Sing-Song With Shell Accompaniment (From an Edinburgh Paper.)

After a week's visit among the Scottish troops on the Western front, Mr. J. M. Hogge, M.P., Mr. Harry Lauder, and the Rev. George Adam, of Romford, a native of Falkirk, have just returned to London. Mr. Lauder sang and his two colleagues spoke to numerous audiences of Scots in the trenches, in shell-torn villages, in mine craters, in huts, and in open fields, and everywhere the singer and the speakers had an enthusiastic reception. On one occasion an entertainment had just commenced when the Germans began to throw shells into the neighborhood, and for three-quarters of an hour the party was under fire. Nothing untoward happened, however, and the "sing-song" went forward as soon as the enemy ceased his unwelcome accompaniment. "The Wee Hoose Among the Heather" was easily the most popular of Mr. Lauder's many songs.

A Soldier's Appreciation.
A soldier in the Black Watch, writing to his home in Edinburgh, refers to Mr. Lauder's visit. He says: "The concert was held at our billet in a field in front of the chateau, and I never enjoyed anything like it. He was great, telling us to keep up heart, that all the people at home were always thinking of us. He asked for three cheers for various things when he was finished, but he crowned it when he asked for three cheers for our mothers. It was awful. He was on the point of breaking down when he told us he would tell them at home how the boys cheered at that. He sang from 8.30 till dark, about 11 o'clock. He said he had broken an engagement for £700 a week to come out, and that he was only too pleased to do it for the boys."

An Edinburgh Minister's Appreciation
The Rev. David Paterson, Rectorial U. F. Church, who is acting as superintendent of one of the Scottish churches' hits in France, writing home, says: Up in our camp, just behind the line, a camp located among our trenches of some weeks ago, there was a "certain liveliness" and excitement, both among officers and men, when it was whispered that "Harry Lauder is coming to-day." When the hero of entertainment arrived, an enormous crowd gathered under a leaden sky around the platform provided by the Scottish Churches' Tent. Five minutes past the hour word went round, "He's held up on the line which the Germans are shelling heavily." Ten minutes later, however, he arrived safe and sound, accompanied by Mr. J. M. Hogge, M.P., for East Edinburgh, and the Rev. John Adam, of Romford, just about to proceed to Canada on war service. Harry Lauder began his entertainment in a very characteristic way. "I have come, but I was nearly not coming," he said. Then, taking a fair-sized bit of shrapnel from an envelope, he added: "I'm taking that home as a souvenir. It was given me by an officer up the line, who told me it fell within eight yards of me when I was singing."

The Real Lauder.
I had heard Harry Lauder on the gramophone, but it was Harry Lauder without the inimitable personality, so pawky and so Scottish. He opened with singing "Roamin' in the Gloomin'." "I Love to be a Sailor," "There's Wee Hoose Among the Heather," and "The Boys that Fought and Won." And by his every word and action he came very near to the hearts of the Scottish lads and to the hearts of many not Scottish. As he lilted over the chorus of "There's a Wee Hoose Among the Heather" there was a lump in many a throat, and tears were not far away. At least I know it was so with me. It was in very deed bringing the home-land in among the trenches. Harry's presence did the boys good. There was laughter and something akin to tears, but it was clean laughter and holy tears. While dealing with the elemental facts of life he dealt with them in a way that left no "amudge."

An Exchange of Greetings.
That is what our men need. One characteristic incident: There was an immense crowd; our aeroplanes were circling overhead, watching. As one passed over a little lower than the others Harry waved his bonnet, and the observer waved back. It was fine that salute between the watcher and the watched. Harry Lauder is not only a great comedian; he is also a great patriot. I chance to be billeted with the Padre that buried his son, Lieut.-Colonel Reid. As we spoke to him after, it was the father and patriot that appeared, and as father and patriot he is a great man.

Germany's Last Card.

(F. Sefton Delmer in the London Times.)

Then came the hope in the submarines and the ruthless U-boat warfare. The Pan-German and the official classes really believed in the effectiveness of this instrument for bringing Great Britain to its knees, and they converted the whole of Germany to their way of thinking. But when the new ruthless U-boat policy was frankly declared and greeted by the press with such acclaim and relief, one man there was at least who no longer believed in it, and this man was Von Tirpitz, now living in his Berlin Patmos. On February 2 he, in conversation with two members of the Centre party, declared: "This comes a year too late!" And his words, although it took months, were gradually being heard in Berlin, and the cocksureness of the newspapers began to be a little discounted. "It is true, as some say, that England has large food supplies stored up, dann sind wir verloren!" then we're done for. School-masters openly declared to their classes in March, 1917, that the new U-boat war was Germany's last card ("unsere letzte Karte"). The signs on the wall now show that this last card was frankly played in vain, and the German authorities are no doubt already getting their wits to work to discover some new popular cry in the hope of keeping the confidence of the nation alive. What the new panacea will be no one can tell. It is only an interim comfort for them when the Kaiser says that it is England that is making the last desperate effort. In the back of their minds they know that it is Germany that is in this plight. But what do the German military authorities now really hope for? I ask myself, "I can only think that they have turned into military Micawbers, and are trusting to hold out until "something turns up." Not in their own offensive strength do they put now their trust, but in some miracle of folly on the part of their enemies.
