Dec. 13th. 1920.

Dear Sir:-

Owing to the unfavourable market conditions during the past eight months at which time we commenced production, and the cancellation of our orders, we are obliged to delay the payment of our preferred dividend which falls due on the 15th. inst.

We are pleased to advise that we have recently received an order from the Government for which there was the keenest competition on the part of every truck manufacturer in Canada, and we are now working on some large orders which we expect to close in the very near future.

You may not be aware that most of the automotive plants have either closed down or have curtailed production to a minimum so that under these conditions we are in a very favourable position to take advantage of the market when it opens up.

We have completed arrangements for distribution of our trucks from coast to coast in the face of these adverse conditions as stated above, and have received most gratifying reports from buyers of our product.

Yours very truly

December 15th, 1921.

Dear Sir:-

Owing to the continued depression throughout the country which has existed during the past year, we are unable to pay the preferred dividend on the due date namely December 15th.

We are pleased to advise however that the business secured during the past year has exceeded that of last year by over 100%.

Our product has met with continual success, and letters we have received from consumers have been most gratifying.

We have recently developed a double deck motor bus similar to that used on 5th., Ave. New York, the first of these having been purchased by the Toronto Transportation Commission for use in Toronto. This we expect will be followed by more orders, and from inquiries already received the installation of motor buses is receiving the serious consideration of a great many street railway companies in Canada. We are the only Canadian manufacturer who is constructing a bus of this type, and should be in the enviable position of securing most of the business from this source.

Yours very truly,

Dear Professor Edgar,

Thank you very much for your note of the 11th. All the other members of the family have been to see Death Takes a Holiday, and speak very well of the play and the actors. I am sorry that it will not be possible for me to see it. Since returning to the University I have been overwhelmed with work and engagements which keep me busy not only all day but every evening. Because of this accumulated work, it will not be possible for me to attend the meeting of the Royal Society at Toronto, to be "presented". That is an experience that must wait for another year. I wish I were going, for I would like to see all of you again and to play another game of golf with you and your very delightful assistant.

I cannot tell you how sorry I have been to hear that Sir Robert has felt he must resign. I cordially agree with George Vincent, formerly of the Rockefeller Foundation, who says that every university president is a slave.

Ever yours faithfully,

Principal

Dear Sir Arthur:

You have heard much from the west in a tone of grievance and complaint; perhaps even some wild talk of secession.

Tomorrow and on each of ten successive days you will receive from Edmonton messages of quite another character. These will be clippings of a series of articles in the Edmonton
Journal, attempting a constructive analysis of Canada's present position and opportunities and appealing for the "Canada Forward Policy" which such analysis, if correct, abundantly justifies.

In the interests of Canadian unity and progress I humbly request a thoughtful and sympathetic consideration of the proposals made.

Yours sincerely,

Sir Arthur Currie,

Dear Sir:

Some time ago I read in "The Telegraph-Journal" an account of an address delivered by you - I think to a Rotary Club, or else a school - which was a distinct challenge to the school-teachers of Canada. I intended to save the clipping, but evidently neglected to do so, as I cannot find it anywhere. I have looked through the files of the paper for the past two months, and cannot locate it, nor can the members of the staff of the paper, although they have searched diligently.

As I particularly wish to publish this in the September number of "The Educational Review" I am venturing to ask you for a copy of it. I feel that it will be of particular value to teachers at the beginning of the school year.

With apologies for troubling you about the matter,

Respectfully yours,

Dear Miss Lawson,

Let me acknowledge your letter of July 17th in which you ask for an address I made recently on Education. I am sending you herewith copy of my Chancellor's Address, delivered at Union College, Schenectady, N.Y., on Commencement Day, June 16th, last, but if this is not what you refer to, please write me again.

Yours faithfully,

Principal.

Dear Sir:

The address which I received from you this week is the one which I had in mind. Thank you for sending it to me. I assume that you are permitting me to publish it in its entirety, and I am therefore very glad that I was unable to find the brief account of it which appeared in our papers.

I am especially pleased to have this address for our September number, for several reasons. Although "The Educational Review" is not a new publication - it will this fall begin its 46th year - this is my first year as its Editor, and I am therefore particularly anxious that my first number should be an outstanding one.

Also, this article is especially timely, because in this province an Education Commission has recently been appointed to investigate our whole system; and our New Brunswick Medical Society has just passed a Resolution condemning our schools as injurious to the health of the children, by reason of long hours, too much home study, and too early attendance at school, six being in their opinion too young for a child to start school. Consequently the general public, as well as those immediately concerned in education, are discussing the subject, and therefore in a receptive attitude.

Finally, your address strikes the high note I wanted for teachers at "the commencement" of the school year. I thought of using as the title - "The Present World Crisis A Challenge to Educators" - if you approve.

Might I trouble you about two sections of the text? On page one there is a word which I have underlined which seems to me to be an error in typing, but I am not quite sure enough to venture to correct it. Also, at the foot of page 22 something has been omitted, as will be seen by referring to the following page. I am returning these pages to you. Perhaps you would just make the necessary corrections and additions, and return them to me.

Very gratefully and respectfully yours,

Jessie J. Lawson

Dear Madam,

In reply to your letter of July 23rd, I am returning the three pages of Sir Arthur Currie's address, with the necessary corrections, and thank you for calling attention to the mistakes. Evidently the copy sent you had not been corrected.

Sir Arthur asks me to say that the title he had given the address was "The Present World Crisis and Education", but if you prefer to use the one you suggest "The Present World Crisis - A Challenge to Educators", it will doubtless serve as well as the other.

Yours faithfully,

Secretary to the Principal.

My dear Sir:

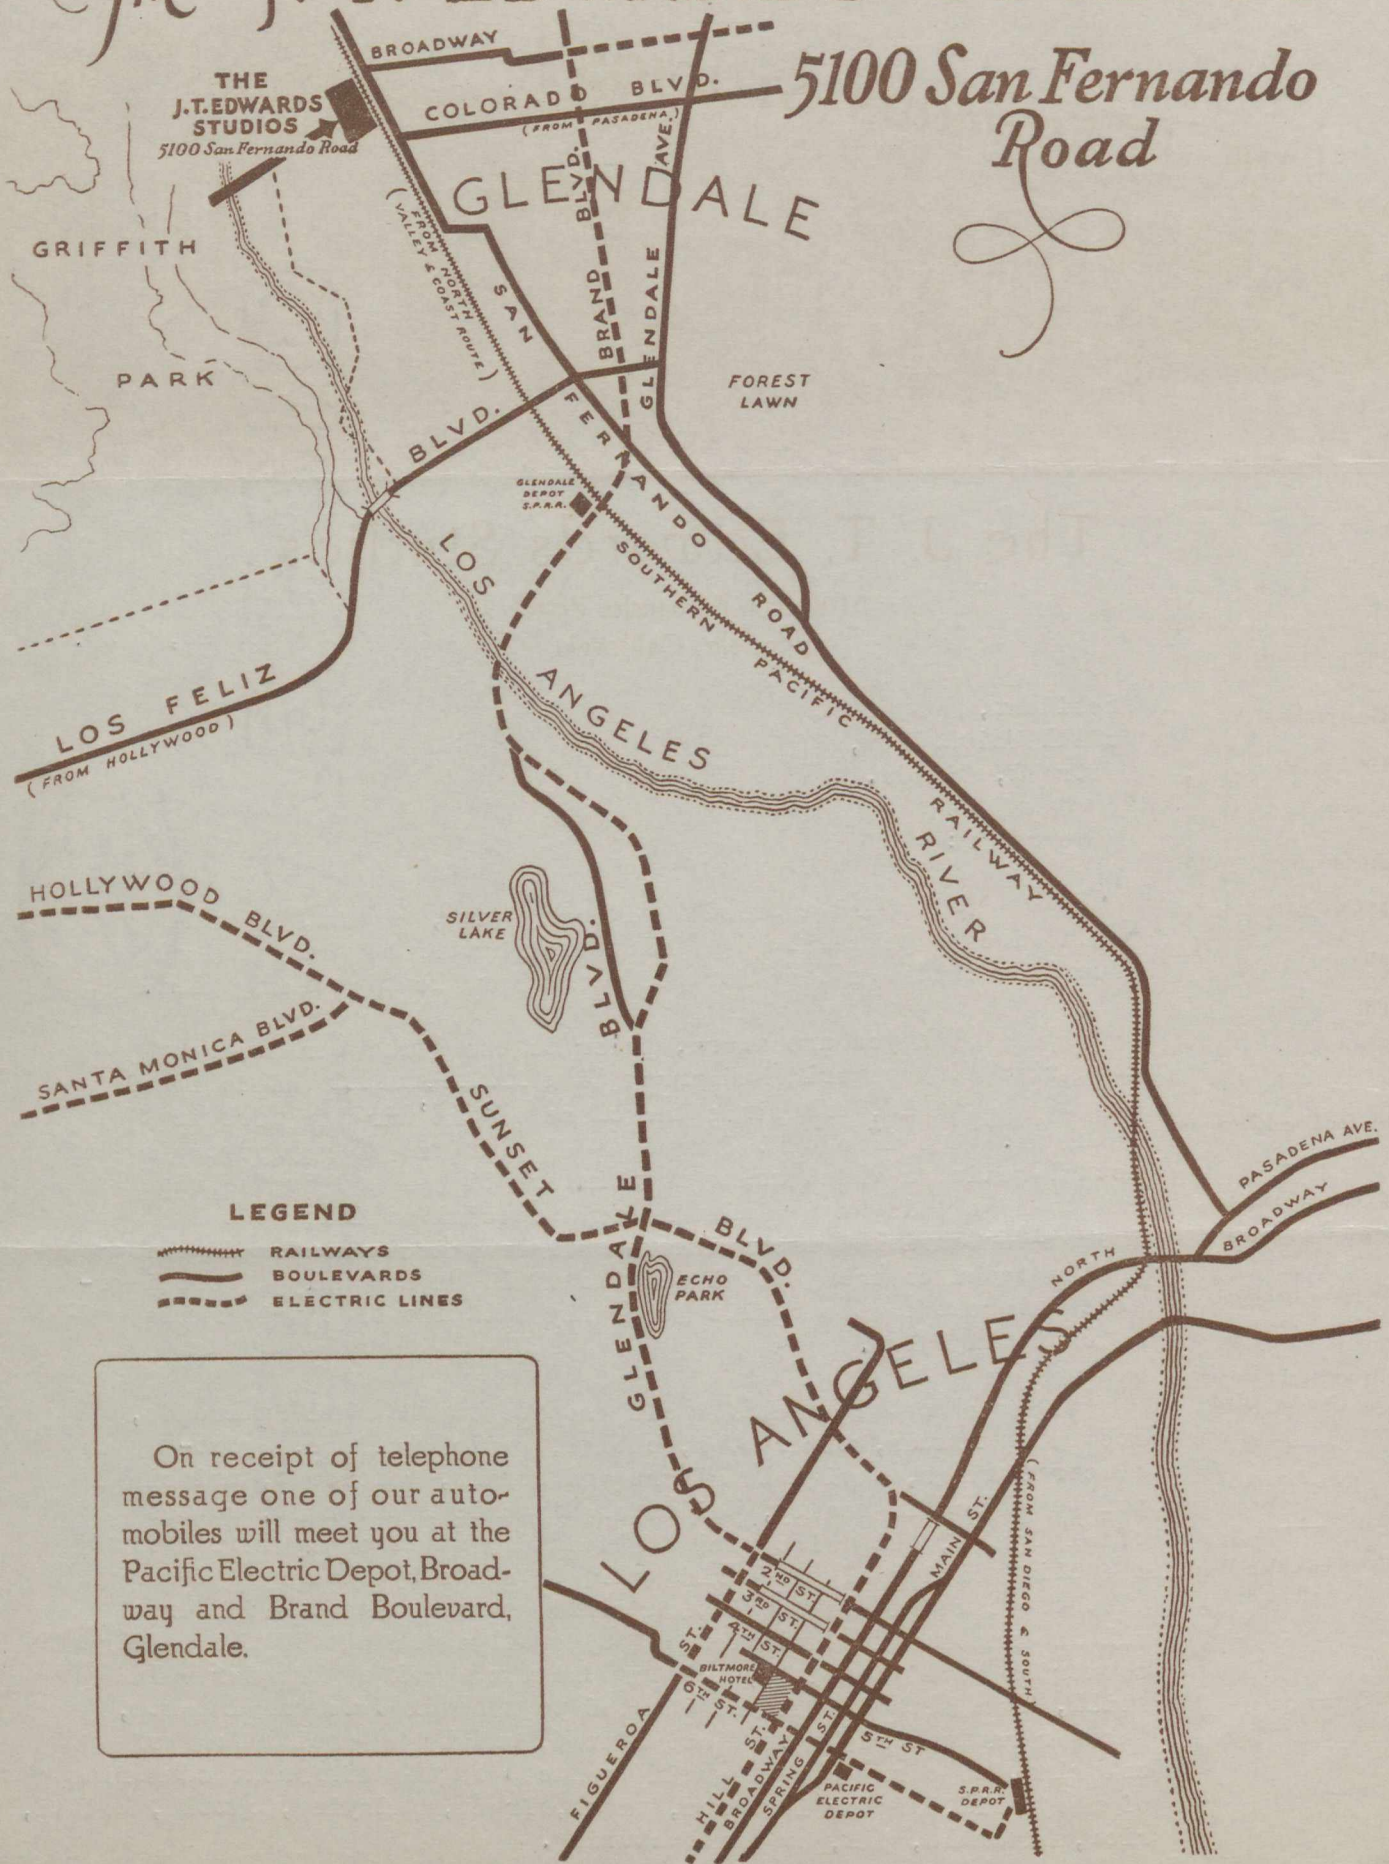

I would appreciate it very much, indeed, if you would give me your valued opinion on a matter of geographical education that has been for some considerable time in my mind.

As you are aware, prior to the World War the many countries of the world had arranged a $\frac{1}{1,000,000}$ educational map of the world, and since the close of the war the work is going on. The idea that I have had in mind is to reproduce in actual relief a model using that international map as the base and to have this huge miniature as a special exhibit at the Sesqui-Centennial Celebration in Philadelphia in 1926. I believe that a model covering vital details would be not only of considerable interest to the public generally but also of considerable educational value.

On the model I would propose to show all railroads, steamship routes, air routes, cables, radio stations, hydro-electric lines, navigable rivers and canals, volcanoes, principal points of scenic beauty, points of historical interest, routes of explorers, with discoveries and dates; and the population of the chief cities of the world would be shown by some symbol so that the comparative population could be recognized. Of course all international boundaries and type of government of the different countries would be shown, and to make the model of greater value still, some method would be adopted to show exports and imports, whether raw materials or manufactured, and by a special form of coloring, to carry out the main products of the different countries of the world, as for instance, wheat, fruit, dairying, cattle, cotton, rice, minerals, oil, or manufacturing.

I estimate that the model would be about 142 feet long, and by a special form of attractive illumination could be made very spectacular.

Naturally, before launching out upon a work of this description, one would like to have an expression of opinion from men like yourself, who are naturally interested in anything that will be of value in connection with education. Personally, I believe that this work could be of great educational value, and would to some extent help in forming the mind ready for the great task now awaiting humanity: - World order and international understanding, cooperation instead of conflict - and while I appreciate the fact that you are very busy and undoubtedly have numbers of applications made to you, I would appreciate it very much if you would extend to me your opinion or any suggestions that might strike you that would make this work better.

Yours sincerely,

Dear Sir Arthur

I write to bring to your attention Mr. Leif Egeland, a South African of Norwegian extraction, who took a first in law at Oxford in 1927 and has been a fellow of Brasenose College for three years, teaching there.

In planning to return to South Africa to enter law and politics Mr. Egeland is visiting Canada and the United States. He lands by a Duchess steamer in Quebec on July 19 and reaches Montreal about July 20. My son, who was also a Rhodes scholar, knows Mr. Egeland well. I met him at my son's wedding in Oxford a year ago. I have ventured to fix him a card to yours. I know you will be able to counsel him wisely in Montreal.

With best wishes for you & lady Currie
Very sincerely yours

I handed this letter to Colonel Bovey who was to see Mr. Egeland, but Colonel Bovey was not here when he called on Monday and so Dr. Nicholson talked with him, and devoted quite a lot of time to showing him over the buildings.

I hope all goes well with you and that you have settled down again after the wedding.

Sir Arthur Currie,

Dear Sir Arthur,

During a Congress of Egyptologists held recently in Brussels, Belgium, my share of the work was to report on the progress of Egyptology in the United States and Canada. There was a good deal to say on this subject bearing on the United States, but very little on the Canadian side of the subject. Here in the University of Toronto, the subject is represented not only in the teaching department, but in a very good collection at the Royal Ontario Museum.

of England

I have been wondering whether you have in mind the possibility of anything along this line at McGill. Recently the University of Chicago appointed as honorary professor, the famous Egyptologist, Allan H. Gardner. It has occurred to me that if you are not in a financial position to appoint a regular representative of Egyptology in your university, you might consider an honorary professor, who would live abroad and come to you from time to time, if you needed him to deliver some lectures. If you thought you could do this, I have in mind an excellent person to recommend as honorary professor, who is connected with the department of Archaeology in the Egyptian Government at Cairo. He is Dr. Ludwig Keimer, one of the greatest of the young living Egyptologists. He could furnish you with full details of himself of what he has so far done.

I leave here for Egypt about Christmas time and should be glad to serve as an agent for you in bringing this matter before Dr. Keimer, if you so wished.

I beg to remain

Sincerely yours,

Dear Professor Mercer,

I am glad that you call my attention to the need for studies in Egyptology in this country. I agree that it is important that more should be done. At the present time, however, we in McGill are quite unable to undertake any financial responsibilities in this direction.

Thanking you for your letter and kind offer, and wishing you a pleasant sojourn in Egypt,

Dear Sir, Arthur;

Please do not think that I unduly wish to "butt in" or fear it may become a habit

The enclosed article from a recent number of the "Atlantic Monthly" seems opportune and very much to the point.

The idea I take it, is worthy of very careful consideration by the faculty of Applied Science, if indeed the same idea has not already received their thoughtful attention

I simply send it along as a matter of interest if you have not already read it.

Yours faithfully

Chas. Elliott

P.S. What is the matter with Brig. Gen. R. Critchley? I have just written to Sir J. Willison condemning Critchley's amazing scheme to bring Canadians to certain loss and misery as farmers in Mexico - article in Empire Aug 7th

My dear Ellacott:-

I am this morning in receipt of your letter of the 1st instant and thank you for the article clipped from a recent number of the Atlantic Monthly.

I note your P.S. with reference to some scheme of Brigadier-General R. Critchley. I am not surprised at your feeling constrained to write an article condemning Critchley's scheme. I should consider very carefully before joining him in any venture.

You will be glad to know that the campaign to raise funds for McGill has gone very well, indeed. The graduates in many places have done splendidly.

With all good wishes, I am,

Ever yours faithfully,

Principal.

Ottawa, April 10th. 1926.

My Dear Sir Arthur:-

Your kind letter is to hand and as I assure you much appreciated. While there is no doubt about it that the tactics of our opponents helped us in the campaign, nevertheless the assistance and encouragement received from our friends both inside and outside of the riding was really wonderful. No man could fail to do exceedingly well with the people at his back whom I had supporting me.

I doubt if the members of any household outside of my own family were more profoundly pleased than the members of your family at the old home.

I regret that so much time, energy and money is being expended at Ottawa now in an endeavour to prevent rather than to assist the carrying on of the country's business. The tax payers are looking for and I think are entitled to something better. I sincerely hope that we may be able before long to give some real service.

There are a number of matters which I would like to have the opportunity of discussing with you when you are next in Ottawa and I trust it may be before long.

I trust that long before this your boy has recovered from the Scarlet Fever which he had when I saw you here some weeks ago.

Again thanking you for your exceedingly kind letter, I remain,

Yours faithfully,

Sir Arthur Currie,
President, McGill University,
Montreal, Canada.
