In cases where an old piano is taken in part payment for a new one, invariably the liberal allowance the purchaser thought he was getting for his old piano is offset by the dealer having raised the price of the new instrument. We have our pianos marked as iow as good instruments can possibly be sold for. For good value we challenge any house in Canada—This $285 instrument sold on terms without interest is a sample of what we give. Why do not other pianos come right out and state prices?

"Back to the Land" Movement Has Reached This Province Market Gardening Proves Itself to be a Fortune Maker for the City Man Who Starts Work on Scientific Basis.

There are so many "movements" on foot that the twentieth century may be termed the day of movements. Movements political, religious and so-cial are on every hand. Some are built on foundations of "hay and stubble" but others are grounded on more firm materials and will grow and endure. All are started for the good of man, but to the sorrow of com-mon humanity, some of the move-ments are for the classes and not the masses. Money is against labor. The finan-cier starts movements to increase his dividends while artisans form clubs to force employers to pay a living wage.

Canadians Are a Lucky People Good Clothing at Very Reasonable Prices

THE TORONTO SUNDAY WORLD

As international tailors we often wonder if the people of the Dominion of Canada realize what good clothes they get and at such reasonable prices? Compare your lot to that of your cousins in the great Republic to the south of you.

Do you know that the United States produces only two ounces of wool per annum for every man and woman in the country and that the duty on imported wool is actually prohibitive? Do you know that the Government of the United States demands a duty of from eightyfive to two hundred per cent. on all cloth containing wool, Imported into the United States?

The duty on cloth made from wool and brought into Canada is sufficiently small to allow the Scotland Woolen Mills Company to import from the Old Country the very finest of material and make it into suits and overcoats and sell them at fifteen dollars, no more, no less.

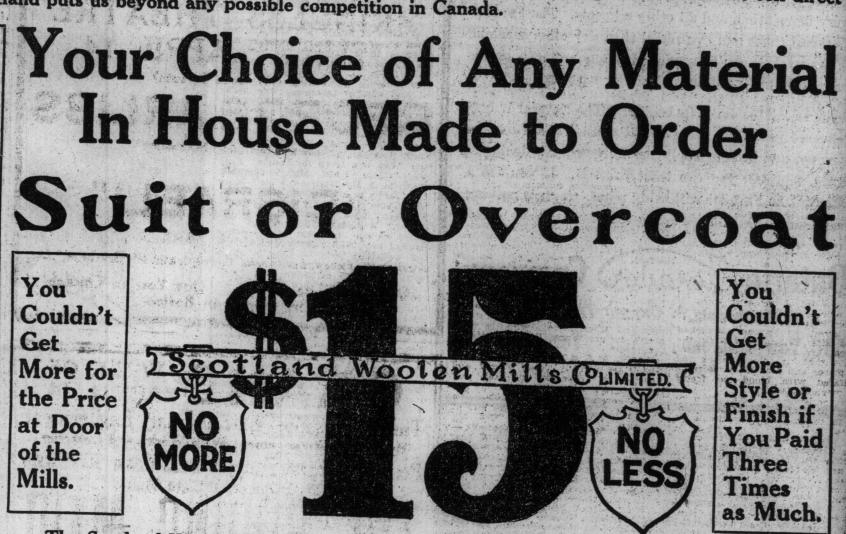

We can prove to you that the suit or overcoat you buy from us cannot be duplicated in New York at any price less than forty-five or fifty dollars.

We can likewise prove to you that the suit or overcoat we sell you in Canada cannot be obtained here for twice the price we ask for it. Our large facilities for tailoring and the fact that we bring all the cloth we sell direct from the mills in Scotland puts us beyond any possible competition in Canada.

SPECIAL NOTICE

They tell me that it is considered very bad policy in business to notice, in your advertisements, any competition that may be trading somewhat on your style of advertising or on the little attractive features of your publicity methods, but for the sake of our customers, and indeed at the urgent re-quest of some few of them, I again want to point out that The Scotland Woolen Wills Company is not Mills Company is not connected in any way with any other tailoring firm doing business in Canada, or the United States.

As President of this concern I can assure you that this company was the origin-al Mill - to - Man tailoring house and from the first day orted direct from Scotland the cloths sold in its many branches: Likewise did we first introduce the absolutely one-price feature which has helped to make us famous. As in the beginning so it is today-One price for any cloth in the house made to your measure, either as a suit or overcoat -That one price is Fifteen Dollars, no more, no less. If you desire to know just what enormous value clothes can be secured for fifteen dollars, you must pass all other stores and visit our Branch, 139 Yonge Street, Toronto. G. MILLER. The Scotland Woolen Mill concedes to the United States a superiority in the matter of fashionably designed clothes and indeed we use American trained cutters in our big workrooms. We believe that clothes designed by the New York artists are the very best in the world. These suits and overcoats have a crispness of outline that make the American individually

The tastes of every man from conservative to progressive can be satisfied in the many new styles which our cutters have on their programme. If you desire an entirely novel English cut we can satisfy you, though personally, as we say, we have as our favorite the fashions originated in New York.

Special attention is called to the unusually fine lines of blue and black serge now being shown for summer suitings. We guarantee these goods as being the finest quality and made from Botany Bay yarn, dyed in the wool---No better goods on earth for a summer suit.

But prices seem to be stiffening all along the line. Especially is this so in house properties. There are not half the houses for sale at the moment half the houses for sale at the moment that there were last year at this time, and the new houses going up on the outskirts are to some extent inacces-sible because of the muddy condition of the suburbs. There is no especial scarcity of any kind of house. All prices present a rather restricted choice. Muddy roads were responsible for a slowing up of the suburban lot selling during the week. In the spring with some agents it is the custom to sell the enquirer from the plan and then take him out to the property before closing. There are only a few sections favored just now with passable roads. A few days of windy weather like Saturday will dry up the suburbs, and lots will at once become a big feature of the market. There is plenty of buying power apparent, altho inclined to be discriminatory. Building construction continues acc.

Building construction continues ac-tive, and is enlarging its field every day. This is a magnificent year for everyone in the trade, and those who have the labor situation in hand ex-pect that nothing will be done to cause a setback, and that those departments of the building trade where labor is not relatively well paid will be brought mearer the general standard. That wise counsel will prevail seems to be

In the list is 10,-000 cherge of Ender. 100 000 pheres of 000 shares of Braden, 100,000 shares of Greene Cananea, 7,000 shares of Nip-issing and 281,628 shares of Golden Reward. While it was always known that Mr. Harriman practically owned the Golden Reward property, yet his ownership in the other concerns comes as a surprise. Another interesting feature of the table is that in the long list of stocks held, 34 securities are classified as of no value. Of these seven are railroad and steamship stocks; three are rall-road and steamship bonds; one is a bond in a sugar company, and the re-maining 23 are of miscellaneous indusrial companies.

Mr. Harriman held stocks in eight mining companies, four of which are valueless, and the other four are noted valueues, and the other four are noted above. That Mr. Harriman knew the good from the bad is evidenced from the extent of his holdings in the sound corporations as compared to the fact that only 2,125 shares were in unsuccessful mining enterprises.

NEW YORK, April 5.—Eugene Smith, active in Tammany politics and widely known on the east side, was shot and killed on Park Row early today by four men, believed to be gangsters. The gangsters, who were seen only by one witness, escaped. A brother of the slain man said that Smith had been mistaken by them for someone else, but the police were told that Smith had recently become in-volved in a gang fued and had moved to Brooyin because of threats against his life. The stock market finished the week dull and reactionary, the rumored fall of Scutari and the unfavorable politi-cal situation inducing general realiz-ing. A decline of three-sixteenths in consols was hastened by the non-suc-cess of the $20,000,000 South African loan, which was practically left in the hands of the underwriters. American securities opened uncer-tain, with values from 1-8 above to 7-8 below parity. Later Canadian Pa-cific declined and the rest of the list moved irregularly. The closing was easy, with prices 1-8 to 1 1-4 lower than yesterday's New York closing.

Manager Hugh Jennings declares he will book not over five exhibition games on the road home from the training camp next year, but will keep his men in camp until a few days before the season opens, playing games with the New Orleans and Mobile teams, which will be close to Gulfport.

The above chart shows in graphic detail the price movement of 20 active rails and 12 active industrials in the New York Stock Market, from 1897 to date. The computation is based on the average prices, and the high and low for each month is indicated by the wave-like lines. As a general fule the rails and industrials follow about the same course, altho it will be noted that the boom in the railway issues in 1902 was by no means shared the industrials, which, however, shared the full extent of the subsequent decline. At the present time, the trend seems to be toward lower levels than were touched in 1910 or 1911, the best rules of chart reading revealing that fact. As the advance since the turn of the market in 1907 did not than were touched in 1910 or 1911, the best rules of chart reading revealing that fact. As the advance since the turn of the market in 1907 did not reach the level of the previous high of 1906, so the decline theoretically would be less severe, according to the most approved method of reading the brice movement and the one which has stood the test of experience best.

Joe Lally Appears at D. L. U. Meeting Representing New Westminster After Jones Had Been Appointed to Act For Them-Bucks Commission Idea Without Consideration of the N. L. U.

MONTREAL, April 5.- (Can. Press)-The meeting of the magnates of the Dominion Lacrosse Union here today struck a snag in the very first thing they attempted to do, and that was to form a commission which should have charge of the national summer sport in the east and west. It was thought that as Con Jones, Lionel Yorke and James Hewitt, representing the British Columbia League, were willing to enter into an arrangement with this end in view, the commission idea would be speedily adopted.

However, Joe Lally of Cornwall, a second or two after the negotiations began, announced that he had been intsructed by New Westminster by telegraph to refuse to accept any commis-sion scheme in which the National Lacrosse Union was not recognized.

The delegates representing the D.L.U. point blank refused to consider the N.L.U. claims to representation on the commis-sion, and suggested that the coast officials and the N.L.U. people make a separate arrangement.

This not proving acceptable to Mr. Lally, it was decided that no commission could be formed today, tho it might be possible for the D.L.U. and coast delegates to get together this evening and agree upon some scheme to allot players and limit salaries to be paid.

The greater part of the afternoon was taken up with a discussion of the application of the Capitals for admission to the league. All the delegates seemed to favor the application, but it was pointed out that it would not be advisable to admit one club, the if two clubs applied for a franchise they might be admitted.

Ultimately it was decided not to admit the Capitals for one year at least.

Percy Quinn of Toronto was re-elected president, and Mr. E. St. Pere, Montreal, secretary.

The report of the meeting of the Dominion Lacrosse Union moguls Saturday, in Montreal, which states that Joe Lally of Cornwall, representing New Westminster, opposed the formation of a lacrosse commission unless the N.L.U. were taken into the fold, comes as a surprise to local lacrosse men, not that Lally is opposed to a commission, but that he is acting for New Westminster, as it is known that Secretary Fred Lynch of the New Westminster Club intended coming east with Con Jones, the Vancouver magnate, and Lionel Yorke, the delegate from Victoria, but at the last hour, when he found it impossible to get away. Jones was requested to act for New Westminster as well as for his own club. As a matter of fact, there is little or nothing left of the N.L. Infusion of New Blood.

Morgan's men are all seasoned-as a rule between forty and fifty years old-who have fought their way up outside, except for members of his own family and his old partner's boys, who worked up inside his New York house. At the end of ten or fifteen years these partners have gone out tired men, all broken and he has renewed the

"Why has Morgan been so successful?"

E late J. Pierpont Morgan, the most out standing figure in the financial world, had the faculty of drawing to him men of prominence and every decade his firm experienced a shake-up-new blood coming in and old men retiring multi-millionaires. George Kibbe Turner, in McClure's Magazine for April traces the history of the Morgan firm, discusses its personnel from time to time and answers the question TORONTO SUNDAY MORNING APRIL 6 1913

tion of industry is daily forcing on his firm. And, besides this, much of his success in a business way-as his portraits do not show -is due to his abil-Ity to make acquaintances, to a personal and friendly interest in men. Of all the partners, Davison is probably closest to young Morgan. Their summer places on Long Island lie near together, and their desks are together in the Morgan office. The second of the new and active partners is Thomas The Sunday World artist has given us a rather grotesque cartoon on the prevailing tendency to crect immense cloud-piercing buildings on narrow areas. One is supposed to be looking down on Toronto from above and the perspective, from where we now stand, is therefore somewhat distorted. We would really have to go up and look down to see if the artist has the lines right. The real estate editor remarked that the drawing was far-fetched and that the buying public would not like it. He knows.

W. Lamont, a man of training and ability and breadth of view not unlike his long-time friend, Davison. He was a Harvard man; gained the broadening education in human affair in newspaper work, serving as reporter and editor on The New York Tribune for several years; and showed his enterprize in establishing and building up a successful wholesale business house, from which-because of his general business acumen and sound sense-he was called by Davison to become secretary and treasurer of the Bankers' Trust Company at its founding. From there he followed Davison, thru a vice-presidency of the First National Bank, to a partnership in Morgan's.

Lamont is a few years younger than Davison-a man in his early forties. Like him, he is not only a keen business man, but an individual with a wide and constantly growing acquaintance with the men of importance in the business life of the country. His experience in business makes him especially valuable in the field of industrial enterprises, in which his predecessor, Perkins, was active.

The third of the new working partners, William H. Porter, is a little older-a man now in his early fiftles. He is a sound, hard-working, practical banker, who carries much of the burden of the daily business of the office. He is a man of extraordinary memory and knowledge of securities and commercial paper.

Of the older partners, Mr. Steele-now somewhat worn in health-besides being a director in many of the great enterprizes of the country, is a clear-headed, cool business adviser. Temple Bowdoin, the son of the earlier partner, works out many of the details of the business, such as all the arrangements for its underwriting syndicates. William P. Hamilton, Mr. Morgan's son-in-law, and a greatgrandson of Alexander Hamilton, has charge of the general management of the office and its hundred and fifty employes.

HEN the first skyscraper was being built in Toronto it became of great personal interest to the average citizen. It attracted his eyes with a curious fascination. He could not pass it without looking up at the huge cratelike frame. There were few who did not regard it with a fascinated interest and curiosity, as a man looks at the flight of an aeroplane for the first time.

The great girded cage, before it was sheeted with its shell of masonry, had a romantic appeal too, and stirred the imaginations of men. It was very picturesque, but the things that stir the imagination most strongly are the sinister things. The gigantic iron cobweb had a sinister suggestion.

Later, when it was finished, it was seen to have a new kind of beauty, geometrical beauty, the simple beauty of lines. Many men could not see this, they said that such buildings were ugly, and offensive to artistic taste. But the bigger and more imaginative people felt that these men who said that skyscrapers were without beauty and destroyed the beauty of a city were wrong. Big things are never ugly. It is the commonplace things that are ugly. There is nothing commonplace about a building that has a population of 1500 people during business hours, and is over two hundred feet high. Now Toronto will soon have a mortared mountain range of these many-windowed buildings, a chain of masoned sierras with cliff-like walls standing up in their rectilinear beauty to show that Toronto is no mean city. Each will be a remarkable example of clever engineering and each will possess some architectural merit. The walls are not employed to carry the weight of the building. The skeleton of steel does this and the walls are merely protections against the heat and the cold.

Most skyscrapers are great simple cubes and rectangu-lar blocks. Exacting or unimaginative people who can see in them no beauty will admit that they are admirable for the dignified solidity of their architecture.

Within a short time, a few years, the serviced ribs and girders of skyscrapers will be rising in Toronto on every side. In the course of time and events Toronto will probably seize the commercial leadership of Canada, and has now definitely started to prepare for this by growing up into the air.

It has been said that these buildings standardize citles, making them all look alike. It is said that each reproduces its neighbor, as if they had all been stamped by one huge die. But modern business buildings of the lower type do not take away from modern cities their character but add to it. Some say that the skyscraper takes away a city's picturesqueness. Those who say this have probably never seen the American cities with their mighty commercial towers. The great buildings seem to attract the mind to the romance of business, as a huge steam. ship attracts the mind to the romance of transportation.

If there is truth in any of the theories that big strong things influence and mould the smaller and weaker things near them, skyscrapers should stir and influence men and women and make them bigger and broader and inspire them to noble ideas. The full bass chord of virulent modern life is struck by these tremendous buildings, and if a city bylaw had made their construction an offense, it would have not long have accomplished its object. These temples of commercialism stand above the law, as there stand above most of the works of men. No mere bylaw will prevent the ultimate growth of the .ity. Such a law might have retarded this growth for some time, but before long the march of events would have pushed it aside.

Influence of Forests on Climate and Floods

Among the causes given for the abnormal floods that have brought wreck and ruin in their path, one of the most commonly accepted is deforestation. It has become very much a matter of popular belief that forests influence climate, act in effect as natural water reservoirs by holding back rainfall and storing winter snow. Yet scientific observation has not altogether sanctioned that conclusion and the proofs adduced are by no means conclusive. That at least is the burden of a highly interesting article on "The Influence of Forests Upon Climate," by Professor Robert DeC. Ward, which occupies the place of honor in the current issue of The Popular Science Monthly. Discussion on the subject is far from new-indeed as Prof. Ward says, the literature is extended and bewildering and runs back at least five hundred years. Some have, however, held that controversy only began in really acute form at the time of the French Revolution, when private timberlands were largely de-stroyed. Not only has the problem been complicated by well or ill-informed discussion but it is no less complex from its very nature and presents a bewildering variety of aspects. And the historical method which inferred that a real or supposed change of climate apparently following upon the disappearance of forests was attributable to that deforestation ignores the possibility that the change was of more general origin and may have been the cause, not the effect of the change in forest cover. Professor Ward briefly analyses a few examples of the historical argument and concludes it to be unsafe.

That forests may have a special climate of their own, within their own limits and under or above the trees is probable enough but as Professor Ward observes, it is quite another thing for a forest to affect the climate of the surrounding country or of distant regions. The latter effect, he adds, is natur-ally the one in which the real interest centres and it is also the one which is by far the most difficult to study. The most obvious effect is that of the barrier or windbreak which operates beneficially by affording protection against the sweep of strong hot or cold winds and in diminishing evaporation, but on the other hand where there is less air movement frost is more likely to occur. Observation has shown also that a forest climate has a slightly smaller range of temperature than the open, the extremes being most moderated in summer. As regards the in-fluence of forests on rainfall Professor Ward holds satisfactory or conclusive evidence that they have a significant effect to be meantime lacking. This, however, has been observable that forests do collect moisture from clouds and fog and in this way may increase the amount of water precipitation. But the conditions favoring this particular forest influence are found only locally, and especially on forested mountain slopes or tops and in any event the increase in the fall of rain is limited to the area covered by the forest itself and is therefore not upon soil used for agriculture. Such tests as have been made, however, only give uncertain results.

On the greater question of the relation of forests to the conservation of the water supply, to erosion and to floods, all of which are non-climatic or at any rate only indirectly climatic We have all known men and women of eneffects Prof. Ward quotes from the final report of the National Highways Commission made to the second session of last year's United States Congress. Whatever influence forests may exert upon precipitation, run-off and erosion, it says, is evidently greatest in the mountainous regions where the rainfall is heavier, slopes steepest and run-off more rapid. Its extent varies greatly, according to circumstances. Under one set of conditions forests may benefit stream flow and mitigate floods, while, under other conditions they may have the opposite effect. In no case can they be relied upon to prevent either floods or lowwater conditions. There is, says the report, substantial agreement on this point. Nor, it proceeds; is their influence extensive enough to warrant their use as the only means of securing the uniformity of stream-flow which is desirable for navigation or the development of water power. For this purpose storage reservoirs would be much more effective. The commission regarded the prevention of erosion as undoubtedly outweighing all other benefits of forestation, but the influence of forests upon stream flow and erosion is not sufficient to warrant their retention, except where the land is unsuited for other purposes. If these judgments are correct a remedy for floods such as happened in Ohio and elsewhere must be sought by artificial means, such as the impounding of excess water and its later liberation, when a greater flow of water is required.

Woman Suffrage in Finland

Writing in The Englishwoman of London, England, the Baroness Aletta, Korff; who is the daughter of Rear-Admiral Van Reypen of Washington, D.C., replies to the charge recently made that woman suffrage has been a failure in Finland. As she has lived for seven years in that country, a period dating from 1906, when universal suffrage for both men and women came into effect, the baroness may be taken as speaking with more authority than a visitor dependent largely on the views and opinions expressed by those who may happen to be met. In answer to the statement that the standard of merit among Finnish members of parliament has not been raised by the introduction of woman suffrage, but has even been lowered, Baroness Korff makes the perfectly fair retort that the grant of universal suffrage to both men and women, occurred at the same moment and replaced a system under which the lower working classes had no vote at all. Even had the extension been conferred to men alone it would necessarily be marked by a lowering of the standard existing when the electorate was lim- jects. ited to a small body of the more educated and intelligent in the community.

Between 1906 and 1911, out of the 1197 bills passed by the Finnish Diet, 167 were initiated by women. Of these a number dealt with social questions and the list given by Baroness Korff may be taken as an instructive illustration of the measures that women are likely to favor. They included-laws raising the marriage age for women from fifteen to seventeen; granting state aid to societies working for the reclamation of fallen wo men; granting women the same rights as men in regard to legal assistance; protecting children from cruelty and neglect and from wrongful employment; inflicting severe punishment for cruelty to animals and providing subventions for kindergartens, anti-tuberculosis campaign, local historical research and lib raries. In the experience of Finland it is found that a small group of representative women have become active working members of the political field.

cyclopedic knowledge who were utterly unpractical members of society. Men of profound knowledge often make dangerous cranks, and end in hopeless failure. The bane and curse of the educational system in use in the English speaking world is its utter inadequacy and unfitness for training and fashioning youth for skilled work.

Ninety-nine per cent. of the youth of the world are destined for physical or mechanical work. One per cent. may find professional employment, but the so-called education in vogue in Canada bends its efforts to train up all the youth as if destined to be lawyers, or surgeons, or politicians, or preachers. The primary schools are hothouses where halfbaked teachers endeavor to stuff the minds of children with crude ideas and ill-digested and erroneous knowledge to the great injury of the mind and of the health of the child.

In better and more enlightened days boys often at eleven and twelve could recite piece after piece of the best lyric and dramatic poetry. They could write letters in the purest English and arithmetic, Euclid and geometry were the tests of their proficiency in learning their joy or their despair. This elementary mathematical training was of absolutely priceless value for mental discipline as well as for any occupation the boy or girl might turn to in after life.

But all that is passed and gone. Neither English nor elementary mathematics are thoroly taught any more in the primary schools of Canada or of the United States, but instead the children of this continent are subjected to a system of instruction in utterly useless sub-

The child unconsciously copies the manners, mode of speaking and even the eccentricities of the teacher and absorbs the teacher's ideas and thoughts. Those that did not "jump" would trot, and quite a few of them could trot. "right smart," as they say in the south, several of them taking re-cords, better than 2.15. This, however, is a matter of history now, and is only given to serve as an introduction. Nutwood was one of the noted $1000, he became greatly interested. is the greatest of all improvements. Riding on the Indian is like riding on air, so smooth is its running. There's no strain on the nervous system and no unneces-sary jarring of the machine and fittings. The "life" of the motorcycle is greatly increased by the new spring system.

Equipment of footboards in addition to pedals on our 4 h.p. and 7 h.p. "regular" models is another new feature. You have the choice of two comfortable riding positions with the double brake control in each. You may use the pedals merely for starting the motor if you wish. Improved luggage carrier will commend itself to tourists and traveling men especially.

$12.50, and Make a Profit, too

Learn why. Your local tailor buys goods in ringle suit lengths. Four profits come out of the cloth before it reaches his hands. You pay these four profits when you buy from him.

You save these profits when you buy from us, because we buy all our su'tings direct from the mill, and give you the benefit of our tremendous buying power.

Here's a fair offer: Send us your name and address, and we will mail you, abso-lutely free, 72 pattern pieces of the fin-est English suitings you ever saw. With the patterns will come a booklet telling all about the successful Catesby "made-to-measure" tailoring system.

Read it. You'll understand why hun-dreds of shrewd, well-dressed Canadians buy their clothes direct from us in Lon-don, and save half of what they would otherwise have to pay their local tailor.

This condition of af-fairs, however, would only last until Mr. Bonar Law had learnt the rops, as it were, and then Lord Lansdowne, who is devoid of personal ambition, would retire in his behald. Still, there is a difficulty about the leader-ship of the Liberal party in the house of lords. It is not only possible, but probable, that at the end of this parliament, if not before, Mr. As-quith will be "elevated." There is a rumor that Mr. Balfour will also go to the house of lords. Strange Experience of Couple While Enjoying a Holiday in Fontainebleau.

The husband put on speed, while the lion quietly watched the car. The wind revived the lady, who collapsed again when a panther strolled across the road.

The car rushed on at full speed un til the occupants saw a band of men in white robes, armed with picks and avelins and wearing the armor of classical times. These people stood in front of the car and stopped it. One of them explained: "We are employed by a cinematograph company. A lion and panther have been liberatd in the forest after being drugged with morphia. We have to represent soldiers capturing ferocious beasts in-tended to devore early Christians."

Cos Lettuce Should Be Blanched.

Cos, or celery lettuce, is a type that does not form a compact head, but has long, upright leaves. It is not very good for use as it grows, but should be bleached. To do this the leaves are gathered up over the heart and tied at the tips. In a week or ten days the heart will be nicely bleached, ready for use. It is then tender and excellent for salads. Cos lettuce does not receive much attention in the gardens of this coun-try, tho in Europe it is one of the common salad plants. Perhaps the necessity for bleaching is the reason it is not more often grown, the that really requires little labor.

You will not consider the purchase of any other automobile if you will study the engineering achievements that have been embodied in the latest HUDSON car—a "Siz." Note when you ride in the car the things that are distinctly in advance of other 6-cylinder cars of its day.

Note how it throttles down with traffic on every side to 3 miles an hour on high speed, how smoothly, sweetly it picks up to 58 miles an hour from a standing start in 30 seconds without a jerk. Note that, instead of the jerky motion that some 6 and 4-cylinder cars have, it gives the sense of flying rather than being propelled by machinery. Any "54" HUDSON you select is capable of 65 miles an houre.

You can have confidence with such an automobile as this for the reason that it is built by 48 expert engineers working together. They worked under the direction of Howard E. Coffin, acknowledged America's fore-most designer, who, himself, had built six famous cars and never yet created a failure. These engineers have had a combined experience that will express itself to you when we tell you that they had a hand in building over 200.000 cars of 97 well-known makes and they were gathered from every automobile building nation-England, France, America, Austria, Belgium, Germany and Hungary.

handsome artistic lines. The delight-ful sweep of the rear of the car and the artistic manner with which it blends with the flush-sided body and at the front combines with the sloping cowl running from the windshield to the hood, evidences the touch of the master body designer. The tonneau is roomier than in most cars. Its 12-inch upholstery gives it the easy riding qualities that are expressed in the fact that touring 300 miles a day without fatigue, is possible.

These days, that are cold and uncomfortable between are yet Spring days. You know it 'cause last night, when you stepped out-a-doors for a little minute, you sniffed the Spring in the air. You did it unconsciously-you who are shut inside four walls and compassed by the streets of the city.

And so it is with the heart of many a man who is cooped up in the city these days. "The old Spring fret" has him in its grip, and he thinks of times before he left the country in his search for fame and wealth. He thinks of one. Spring day when he rode on the old cart along country lanes-and the little maid beside him who was more treasure than he has ever been able to win in his battle with the world. They talked of many things they intend-far away," for the little piper piped to him tales of the plan of his seeking in the city for wealth-and the plan that he was to come back to the country for her.

This never was more than a plan, 'cause he knew the country blossom would fade in the town-and then there were so many town blossoms-hothouse plants compared with his love in the country-and so he never did go back for her.

When these days come and bring the Spring so that many a man wishes he could once more

The theory upon which the government of the neighboring republic has lately been conducted, is that the only men qualified to con-duct the government are those who have the biggest financial stake in the commercial and industrial enterprises of the country. For he says: "Suppose you go to Washington and try to get at your government. You will always find that, while try to get You will al you are politely listened to, the men really consulted are the men who have the biggest stake—the big bank-ers, the big manufacturers, the big masters of commerce, the heads of railroad corporations and of steam-ship corporations." Now, to come down, for a moment, to the munici-pal politics of our towns and cities, we often hear a cry for a "business men's council," and, if we find that such a council has been elected, and has not proven an overwhelming suc-cess, we may glimpse the cause in the quoted paragraph now given:

"The theory that the men of the biggest affairs, whose field of operation is the widest, are the proper men to advise the government is, I am willing to admit, rather a plausthe theory. If my business covers the United States not only, but covers the world, it is to be presumed that I have a pretty wide scope in my vision of business. But a flaw is that it is my own business that I have a vision of and not the business of the men who lie outside of the scope of the plans I have made for a profit out of the particular transactions I am connected with. And you can't by putting together a large number of men who understand their own business, no matter how large it is, make up a body of men who will under-

How did I first become inter-ested?" she repeated, when interrogat-ed on the, subject. "I don't know when I was, not interested. I was always fond of history. And I liked to teach it. You know, I taught a long time, and for 23 years I was teacher in the high school at Niag-ara. Then, by and by, I thought of forming an historical society in the town, and the other things followed." "Was the Niagara Society the first in Ontario?" received the reply: "Oh, no; the York Pioneers came first. They are still in existence, and num-ber about 1000 members. Then the Society of Lundy's Lane came next. Canon Bull, too, had a good deal to do with the making of the Ontario Historical, and his influence inspirceived funds for her historical build-ing comes very near the heroic. Her first venture was with Mr. Ross, then minister of education. One can im-agine the little, bright-cheeked lady entering the busy office of the busy magnate in school affairs, making what at the time seemed probably a very chimerical proposition, namely, a request for financial aid in erecting a building for historical purposes. Even now, after some years of educa-tive suggestion from various bodies similarly interested, governments are very often far from open minded as to the necessity or even the desirability for funds for the preservation of the country's history; so we should not have been surprised if Miss Carnochan had been dismissed with a gentle but pitying smile for her credulity. However, this did not happen. Mr. Ross promised that if she could bring him proof that others were interested

There is a beautiful tribute published There is a beautiful tribute published sometime since and written by an old history. Tablets to the pioneers of the district is another work undertaken by the Niagara society and its indefat-igable president. Libraries have a special fascination all their own for some, and of the one across the lake, Miss Carnochan has been styled by someone "the unpaid official,"

Yet all this is but a very brief and imperfect record of much that is re-ally great, and the value of which will ally great, and the value of which will increase immeasurably as the years are added to the cycles. Ontario, so far, has been too busy in attending to that which concerns the immediate present to value treasure-trove for future generations. Still Miss Carn-ochan has the admiration and appre-clation of hundreds of personal friends, and as the years pass the laurel leaves will shower more and more upon the now silvered hair that crowns the capable brow, and forms a setting for the honest blue eyes and bright cheeks of Niagara's distinguish-ed citizen, Janet Carnochan.
