Detroit, Aug. 8.—The residence of John Holtz, an old and prosperous farmer, who lives half a mile north of Redford Center, was blown up by dynamite at 9 o'clock Thursday night. Frank Holtz, his 20-year-old son, is under arrest, on suspicion of being the ous injury, but were painfully bruised. The dynamite was placed under the center of the house, and when it exploded the shock caused the struc-ture to collapse. Holtz and wife were in their bedroom, and were knocked down by the explosion. The four children, who are small, and occupied a bedroom upstairs, were found in the ruins, bruised and crying, but not seriously hurt.

The neighbors say that if young Holtz is guilty of the outrage, it is the culmination of a feud, which has existed between father and son for several years. A later report from Bedford states that one of the children was seriously injured

COOPER BEHIND BALD.

Buffalo, N. Y., Aug. 8.-There was no great improvement in the attendance at the second day's meet of the Buffalo Cycling Asociation, but there was some sensational racing, and Canada made a better showing. The event of the day was Bald's sensational win in the mile open, professional, in which he lowered the record from 2:07 to 2:01 4-5, beating Cooper, Butler and other cracks.

The one mile open, professional, was the event of the day. For the first heat Jenny, Bald, Zeigler, Stone and Callahan brothers, Newhouse and Mosher lined up, four to live. They finished as follows: Bald, L. A. Callahan, Jenny, C. H. Callahan. Time, 2:09 2-5. The second heat had F. W. Young, Tom Cooper, Con Baker, Tom Butler, Ray McDonald and F. H. Al-len. Cooper, Butler, Young and Baker finished in a loafing race in the order named. Time, 2:14 4-5.

Now came the great race, in which a record went to pieces. Mosher and Newhouse did the pacing. Bald had the pole and kept the place until the Then Cooper shot to the front, and Butler also passed Bald. It looked like a defeat for the Buffalo boy, hands down as the time for the three lans was phenomenal, but Bald showed that his title of "Cannon Ball" had been fairly earned. Cooper, Butler and Bald were well together in order at the eighth, when, like a shot, Bald brushed away to the front, winning in a killing finish in 2:01 4-5, Bald, Cooper and L. A. Callahan coming in in the order named, Cooper a full length and track was heavy from the rains, and a half behind Bald. The performance

Time, :58 4-5. SIMCOE'S BACE MEET. One of the important racing events of the season will be the 25-mile amateur championship meet to be given by the Simcoe Bicycle Club on their track at Riverview Park on Aug. 21. In addition to this championship there will be four other amateur and three professional events. London, Aug. 8 .- Outside of the defeat of the Government in the House of Lords, when amendments were made to the Irish Land Bill, in spite of Ministerial opposition, and the possible consequences of this further demonstration of the inability of the Administration to carry out its parliamentary programme, Li Hung Chang has been the center of interest during the week. The Jameson trial has developed what has been growing more apparent with each succeeding month, namely, the marked change which has taken place in the court manner of the Lord Chief Justice, Baron Russell, of Killowen. when he decides he will not listen. As one of the chief Justice's ushers put it during the trial, "Bless you, sir, we don't know where we are with his Lordship." Instead of the old fiery, lucid statement of a case that he used to pour out as counsel, Lord Russell has come down to the more slipshod ways of the bench. In sentencing Col. R. Grey, Capt. Henry F. Coventry and Major White to five months' imprisonment, his Lordship added "with hard labor," which was instantly corrected by Sir E Clark to "without hard labor." Lordship repeated the sentence with the correction, whereat the three prisoners concerned smiled. Lord Russell goes at once to the United States, now that the "long vacation" has begun, and he will doubtless express imself there in private on the Maybrick case, in which he still takes considerable interest.

Thrilling Experience of Young Ladles at Port Stanley.

Lost Their Footing on the Heights-One Picked Up Unconscious_Both Painfully Bruised.

Two young ladies, Miss Annie Tulett, of Elias street, and Miss Maggie Boston of South London, had a thrilling experience at Port Stanley yesterday, which no one would care to go through oftener than once.

They started, in merriment, to descend the Heights just east of the incline railway. ### Skill in Shunning Creditors.

Detroit Free Press. The schemes that debtors sometimes evolve to rid themselves of annoying collectors are always amusing-to everybody but the debtors. The very funniest character that Dickens ever conceived-in the mind of men-is Micawber, he with the flat purse and plethoric speech. Who that has ever read it can forget the inexpressibly funny incident of Micawber, upon his departure for Australia, giving poor Traddles his "note-of-hand" for what he owed him, assuring him that that obligation, at least, was settled? And how Traddles, while looking upon the transaction in a somewhat different light, meekly submitted to Micawber's peculiar logic and allowed him to walk away while he was recovering from the shock. Some of the tactics resorted to by these haunted debtors show ingenuity worthy of a better cause. On one occasion a man who had the constables on his track was about to take a stroll from his house. He was standing on the doorstep talking to his wife, when he saw two suspicious-looking men coming hurriedly toward him. Quickly with the small watch which taking his notebook from his pocket, the jeweler had lent him while his he waited until the men were in hearhe waited until the men were in hear-

"Did you say your husband was out?" asked one of the newcomers. "Yes," replied the wife; "this gentleman was just inquiring for him.' The three turned and went down the steps together. "We've got little chance of getting anything there," the debtor said. "I suppose you are after the man, too? Come and have a drink." After that he was continually meet-

A CRITICAL SITUATION. Athens Aug. 8 .- A condition of affairs amounting almost to anarchy reigns at Heraklion. The Turks are committing many excesses against the Christians, not even hesitating at murder. Several Christians have been killed and a number wounded. The report that the Russian vice-consul had been maltreated was confirmed, and it is learned that a Greek named Sarras has also been insulted and roughly handled. That the situation is critical is evinced by the fact that the French cruiser Lineras and a British cruiser, which have started for the place, are under or-ders to proceed there with all possible speed. Old men and women and children have been massacred in Heraklion, and several churches have been polluted by the mob. ### MEMORIES OF BRAEMAR.

The Famous Gathering of the Clans-The Picturesque Scenes of 1715.

The approaching completion of the restoration of Braemar Castle will naturally suggest to most people the picturesque scenes of 1715-the great assemblage of Jacobite lords and lairds under pretense of hunting the red deer, and the ill-omened raising of the standard of "James III. and VIII." One requires to be on one's guard, however, when such romantic associations are in question, and it is just as well to have the words of Mr. Hill Burton to remind us that "the gaunt, turreted building called Braemar Castle," about a mile from the spot where the standard was raised, had no connection with the events of the "Fifteen." Twenty-six years earlier the old fortalice of Braemar had been burned by Mackay a few days before his defeat by Claverhouse at Killiecrankie, and the present castle, though apparently of an older style of architecture, was really erected by the Government after Mar's rebellion had been put down All the same, it from the romantic scene of 'the standard on the braes of Mar.' Few incidents in Jacobite annals are more superficially attractive than the gathering of loyal gentlemen on those August days, ostensibly for the "tinchel" which had not been superseded by anything so patry as grouse shootrg, but really for the overthrow of the usurper, and the restoration of the ancient and rightful dynasty. Walter Scott, with his artist's eye,saw the literary value of it. and so the Braemar gatherings by a lawful license, appears in "Waverley," transported and adapted from the "Fif-teen" to the "Forty-five," and loval, ized at Fergus McIvor's Castle of Glennaquoich. To give the last touch of romance, too, the assemblage was favored with hints of adverse fate; and we can almost pardon the superstitious Highlanders for discerning "freit" in the fall of the gilded bal at the top of the flagstaff; when it is remembered that the same accident had occurred at the similar ceremony at Nottingham at the outbreak of the great civil war. A Highland rising would not have been complete without its omen, although, of course, the worst omens in 1715 were the death of Louis XIV, and the character of the Pretender himself.-Glasgow Herald.

Forty Years Ago-London's First Directory.

The first directory for the "City of London, Canada West," was issued 40 years ago by a worthy resident of that day, "George Railton, Notary Public." Mr. Railton, who is still alive, a resident of Bothwell, was a stirring citizen, and came to the conclusion that a directory was needed to complete the dignity of the then city of 16,000 inhabitants. In his preface, however, Mr. Railton naively complains that, among the difficulties of publishing his book, he did not anticipate "that any business men would withhold their advertising support." But then (as now in the matter of newspaper advertising) there were those who fulfilled their duty of generously supporting the publisher by advertising; but ask another class of business people to support a publishing undertakingwhich is for the convenience and benefit of the public at large-"and then;" worthy George Railton, "the physiognomist has a picture awfully of extreme parsimony, which not even the half-souled smile can disguise, nor the blandishments of duplicity wipe away."

Forty years ago Queen Victoria was reigning, as now. Lord Palmerston was Premier, with Granvilles, Argyles Grevs and Lansdownes in his Cabinet Edmund Head was Governor-Canada. Hon. John was Attorney-Genseat of Government of Upper and Lower Canada: Hon. G. J. Goodhu was member of the Legislative Council for London. The Legislative Council was then the elective equivalent of our now Dominion Senate. Among memof the Legislative Council, 40 years ago, were the following: London (town), John-Wilson, afterwards Judge Wilson; Middlesex (east riding), Wil-Middlesex (west riding), John Scatcherd; Lambton, George Brown: Kingston (city), John A. Mac-Elgin (west riding), George Glengarry, John Sandffeld Macdonald: Hamilton, Sir Allan Macnab; Sherbrooke, A. T. Galt; Toronto, John Hillyard Cameron and J. G. to occupy it.

Canada in Great Britain.

One of London's shrewd business men Mr. J. R. Shuttleworth, has just returned from a brief business trip to England, doing up the round trip in 21 days from the day of departure.

No. 5-Daniel Lester 53 cents on the dollar is the chief issue of a presidential campaign. This, Mr. Shuttleworth feels assured, will divert a good deal of English money to Canada.

The hum of prosperity in Great Britain strikes the observant business man the moment he sets foot on the other side of the briny deep. The comin the United States are equally apparent, whether due to protection gone to seed, the agitation for unsound money, or whatever cause. It is to be hoped that Great Britain's prosperity may continue, and that the business depression among our United States neighbors may soon disappear.

Mr. Shuttleworth says that not only Canadian bonds, but Canadian natural products, are likely to grow steadily in British favor. But he inpractice, no sending of inferior products, no putting of the big apples at the top of the barrel, if Canada is to keep her already splendid name in the ruling market of the world. Asked about apples, Mr. Shuttleworth said Great Britain would this year take all the apples Canada could send her, and at a fair, medium price. Altogether, Mr. Shuttleworth's is that the joint situation growing out of things as at present in Great Britain, and things as at present in the United states, is calculated on the whole to help Canada.

Coming to Canada

In the month of July there was a considerable increase in the immigrants leaving Great Britain for Canada. If the newcomers are farmers, ready to go on new lands, and make homes for themselves, or men of means, bent on opening up and developing our splendid mineral resources, they are heartily welcome. Of all other classes we have plenty. Our immigration managers in future must steadily keep this fact in mind.

This accounts for the fast growing popularity of Fibre Chamois as an interlining which makes outdoor work possi ble in any weather. The first man who realized its wind and rain proof warmth quickly told his friends, so that they, too, might enjoy this inexpensive comfort. It might seem impossible that this fabric, so light in weight, and without bulk, should furnish so much healthful warmth; but when you realize that its merit lies in being a complete non-conductor of heat or cold, you understand why a layer of it through your clothing gives such warmth-it not only keeps out all cold, but keeps in the natural heat of the body.

Thirteen Cars on the Special-The Train Decorated.

The builders have been building on having a good time today at Port Stanley, and unless some calamity intervenes they are going to have it. Judging by the immense crowd that went to Port Stanley today, the builders' picnic ranks second only to the great national picnics. The regular train, leaving at 9:30, was crowded. but the mass of picnickers went down on the special, leaving shortly after 10 a.m. There were thirteen full coaches. Gay streamers adorned several of the cars, and the locomotive was also prettily decorated by the enthusiastic committeemen. Nearly everyone wore a yellow badge. The builders could not have chosen a better day to take their wives, children and sweethearts to the lakeside, where they will escape the intense heat of the city. ### M'ARTHUR'S EXPERIENCE.

A Cattle Shipper From the III-Fated Concordia Returns Home to Ailsa Craig From Newfoundland.

Kenneth McArthur, of Ailsa Craig, brother of Dr. James McArthur, of this city, who embarked on the steamship Concordia, from New York, for Glasgow, with a consignment of his stock for the European markets, on (chairman), J. T. Marks, C. E. Keene, her last trip, has returned home to difference to him in applying justice ilsa Craig, and gives a thrilling account of what it feels like to be shipwrecked at sea. He says the steamer struck a huge iceberg about 160 miles off the coast of Newfoundland, and stove a hole in her bow, large enough to let a load of hay pass through. Many of the passengers said what they believed to be their last prayer in their great fright.

The captain had the cargo moved from the fore back aft, to keep the vessel aftoat. Her bow stuck many feet out of the brine. The 400 head of cattle on board were not injured. Nothing was thrown overboard ighten the ship, as the captain had full confidence in his ability to bring her to St. Johns, Newfoundland, and save the cargo, which he did, but the trip occupied from 11 o'clock on the Sunday night until the afternoon of the following Wednesday. Mr. McArthur returned with Mr. Campbell, of Mosa, who was also a' shipper of stock on this boat. They think the vessel will in all probability sink.

Mr. McArthur says he would sooner see ice in the butter cooler at his home on the farm than see it floating

AUSTRALIA'S CREAT HEAT.

The Highest Temperature Ever Known in That Country.

In many of the inland townships in New South Wales the inhabitants have become panic stricken at the great heat, says the Sydney Herald. Eye witnesses describe the alarm as taking a superstitious form. some stations the remarkable sight was witnessed of the Australian magpies-wildest of birds-taking shelter among the domestic fowls of the yard in their endeavors to escape from the ferce heat. Their behavior was that of dazed and stupefied creatures. They are perfectly indifferent to the presence of human beings. Peihaps the most striking effect of the unexampled heat was furnished from a place named Nyngan, from whence came the brief and pointed message, "Mosquitoes are being killed by the heat." A thermometer hung in the shade at the coolest point of the River Darling -the largest stream in New South Wales-registered 107 degrees as the Wales—registered 107 degrees as the lowest at the coolest hour of the night and 129 degrees as the highest during the heat of the day for these twenty when I told you?" the heat of the day for these twentysix days. Matter About Which Passengers Cannot Be Too Careful.

There are two ways of getting off a street car in motion, a right way and a wrong way. The right way -that is, of course, for those who desire to alight without danger to life or limb-is, first of all to insist upon the motorman slowl g up, and then to step carefully from the platform nearest the ground, in the direction in which the car is moving. The wrong way-still assuming that one wishes to avoid injury-is to choose a time when the car is moving along at full speed, then to jump off in the opposite direction, so that the passenger may measure her or his length on the ground. The importance of stepping off in the same direction as the car is going may perhaps be understood from the following explanation: There is a force known in mechanics as inertia. This is not really a force in the ordinary sense of the term, porter, probably, within the next five which implies activity of some kind; it is rather a property which all bodies possess, and in virtue of which their tendency is to remain at rest until set in motion, and when set in motion to continue in motion. The passenger on the street car, having been set in motion by the car, jumps off in the direction of the rear of the car. The feet and lower portion of his body having received impetus more than sufficient to counteract the opposite leave the car. The head and upper portions, however, retain more of the motion imparted by the moving car and follow the latter, the result being that the person falls on her or his face or back.

PLUNCED INTO THE THAMES.

Unpleasant Experience of a Young Couple at Springbank. ... PLUNGED INTO THAMES ...

Miss Jean Shillington, of 255 Oxford street, had an unpleasant experience last evening at Springbank.

She was stepping from the gangway of the steamer Thames into a rowboat, when the little craft capsized, and Miss Shillington was thrown into the water. A gentleman in the rowboat was also tossed out. Fireman Fortner and Mate Macdonald were on deck, and immediately went to their assistance. Both of the young people were drawn safely on board and escaped with nothing more serious than a thorough soaking.

The river at Springbank was very deep, and the speedy rescue was fortunate.

SADLY AFFLICTED.

A Whole Family in the Hospital With Typhoid Fever.

Mr. George H. Flannigan, the wellknown butcher of Masonville, is a sadly afflicted man these days. A few weeks ago typhoid fever in a virulent form, entered his household, and soon he, his wife and his two children were prostrated. To secure proper treatment they were removed to the General Hospital here.

Mrs. Flannigan's case was particularly severe, and she died on Wedn'esiday last at the hospital, at the early age of 38 years. She was buried on Thursday in Webster's burying Thursday in Webster's burying grounds, while her suffering husband and children lay prostrate in the fever ward, powerless to pay the last sad tributes to a dutiful wife and loving mother.

Mr. Flannigan and his children are reported to be improving today.

Could Not Recover From His Self-Inflicted Wounds.

25c Per Pound Took No Nourishment - May Be ar

The injuries that James Hayes inflicted upon himself resulted fatally at 3 o'clock this morning at the city hospital.

The unfortunate man was unable to take any nourishment since going to the hospital yesterday morning, and did not speak a word. Last night he groaned a great deal, but never rallied sufficiently to leave any mes-sage or explanation of his rash act. It is learned that Hayes was suspended from the Laborers' Union about eight weeks ago, partly because he did not pay a fine of about $7, but chiefly, it is claimed, because he worked with non-union men at less than the union scale of wages. becoming ignited. Fireman Smart gave the alarm, and the chemical engines were used to extinguish the blaze. The close proximity of the fire hall, in all probability, prevented a very serious fire, as the shed abuts the factory of the London Furniture Company. SATURDAY'S MARKET.

The market this morning was of the usual Saturday size, the majority of the farmers offering only greenstuff. Butter and eggs came forward in large quantites. There seems to be little or no fluctuation in the price of eggs, but the price of butter seems to be govern-ed by the position the seller got on the market. In the shade butter was worth 18 to 19 cents for rolls, and 17 cents for crocks. Away on the other side of the square, where the poor housewife had to sit in the sun with her ware exposed to the blaze, crock butter could be bought from many for 14 to 15 cents. Apples were all prices, from 10 cents per peck to 15 cents per bag and 50 cents per barrel. Tomatoes made a good show, and sold for 25 to 40 cents per basket, and 20 cents per peck. Ducks were offered freely at 65 to 80 cents per pair. Hay is a little scarce, and the price is going up, $8 being asked for it. Young pigs were exposed for sale at $5 a pair.

MUNIFICENT GIFTS TO A HOSPI-TAL. Montreal, Aug. 8.—Lord Mount-stephen and Sir Donald A. Smith have handed to the trustees of Royal Victoria Hospital securities to the par value of $800,000, which it is estimated will yield an income of at least $40,000 a year. Of the original donation of $1,000,000 there remains, after the erection and equipment of the building, $200,000 to be added to the above trust.

WON'T BOLSTER UP THE SULTAN London, Aug. 8.-The refusal of Lord Salisbury to take part in the proposed blockade of Crete has met with unani-mous approval. The man in charge of his herders had or-ders to appear at the falls with a torch whenever there was danger in the outer world, so the Prophet expected this. But he was not prepared to see the light of half a dozen torches and as many torch-bearers behind the falls. As was his habit, he uncovered and stood behind the glowing illuminated curtain of water, till the torch-bearers one by one came

How the Bicycle Has affected Other Business Interests,

Demoralization in Some, but Lasting Disadvantages Not Likely to Ensue,

In the current number of the Forum some interesting data have been collected by Mr. J. B. Bishop to show the economic and social influence of the bicycle. He estimates that since the passion for wheeling got under full headway, less than five years ago, at least $100,000,000 have been spent in the purchase of bicycles in the United States alone. The output for the presto 1,000,000 machines, at an average retail price of $80 each. Obviously, 1,-000,000 people cannot buy bicycles at the average price named and continue to supr 7 themselves with as many ngs as they would otherwise ight. What are the other kinds of business which have been most seriously affected by the remarkable development of the new branch of manufacturing?

The makers of watches and jewelry are said to have been the first to feel the effects of the diversion of money to bicycles. It seems that formerly on Christmas Day or a birthday the favorite present to the male members of family was a watch; now it is a bicycle. The young girls on their part were accustomed to save their pin-money for the purpose of buying earrings or a breastpin; no they heard it for a bicycle. e grown-up-daughters who us look forward to the purchase of a piano, now con-cludes that she will wait no longer and gets a bicycle instead. It is reported that the piano trade for the current year has fallen off 50 per cent. According to the furniture dealers, young women, when allowed by their parents to choose between a new set of parlor furniture and a bicycle, always choose the latter. Undoubtedly, however, the worst sufferers are the forse and carriage trades and the ancillary lines of business. Saddle horses are a drug in the market; the livery stable business has been cut down from a half to two-thirds; for new carriages the demand has been so much reduced that several leading manufacturers have gone to the wall. The saddle and harness makers have been forced to turn their attention to the making of bicycle saddles. Rid-ing academies have been turned into bicycle schools. So far, only the direct econoconsequences of the bicycle Shoemakers complain that they suffer ma-Two weeks ago Thursday Mr. James terially because persons who former-wright Haight, one of the best known and most respected citizens of Yarmouth, fell from a load of barley which he was helping to unload, and on Thursday he died from the effects of hatters say they are injured because hatters say they are injured because bicyclists wear cheap caps. The tailors aver that their business has been damaged at least 25 per cent, because their customers do not wear out their clothes as rapidly as formerly, spending much of their time in cheap ready-made bicycle suits. Dealers in dry goods say that the pre-dilection of young women for the wheel has reduced their sales of dress goods and expensive crecumes from 25 to 50 per cent because so many girls prefer an evening ride in bicycle garb to sitting at home in more elaborate apparel. Finally, the booksellers declare that much riding prevents much reading, and that their trade suffers. One great news agency in New York city, which deals in novels and periodicals, assert that its loss this year in bicycle competition does not fall short of a million denars.

Some of the economical effects of the widely extended use of the bicycle will no doubt be lasting, but others are certain to be transitory. As Mr. Bishop remarks, people are not going to get on permanently without planos or watches because they ride upon bicycles. As soon as a given community becomes stocked with bicycles and the changes and improvements become so unimportant as no longer to require the purchase of new machine; every year, money will be-gin to flow back into some of its form-er channels.

s Given to Toronto Industrial Ex hibition Association in Prizes.

Toronto, Aug. 7 .- Few people have any idea of the real magnitude of Toronto's great exhibition. It will therefore interest many to know that while the total prize list amounts to nearly $40,000, upwards of $20,000 is given to live stock, not including poultry, as follows: Horses, $10,197, including $3.-715 for trotting and running, of which $2,000 is comprised in the Trotting Breeders' Association stakes; cattle, $5,756, not including prizes given by special breed societies; sheep, $2,465, and pigs, $1,855. A score or more of silver medals are also given for the best of the different breeds in each department. For poultry, the prize list amounts to $1,591. The exact total for live stock, entries for which on Saturday, Aug. 8, at offices of the Toronto Industrial Exhibition Association, 82 King street east, Toronto, is $21,864. Entries also close on the 8th inst., for dairy products, fine arts, ladies'work, honey and all classes of manufacture, but supplementary entries will be received on almost any day next week. Single fares for the round trip have been arranged for the whole time of the exhibition from all points in Canada.

A Real Summer Resort.

Kill two birds with one stone. Spend a pleasant summer holiday at Oakville and get rid of the liquor or morphine habit once and for all at the same time. It will cost you a little more than if you go to an ordinary summer resort, but probably not half as much as you would spend on liquor in half the time. "Lakehurst," with its fine house, shady grounds, water front and excellent board, is preferable to most hotels, and you can leave your liquor curse behind you forever when your holiday is over. Mr. Greenlees' motion was lost, he and the chairman alone dissenting. Mr. Sanders moved to substitute the mame of Miss Henderson for that of Miss Hicks as director of Lorne avenue kindergarten. He did not approve of Miss Hicks, and thought others just as good as she.

Mr. Greenlees-Miss Hicks (notwithstanding the very great ability of my friend at the end of the table, Mr. Sanders, to judge of the ability of the teaching qualifications of several of the teachers) has been spoken of by the inspector as a very able young fady. ## The Business Outlook

As Indicated by the Agencies.

New York, Aug. 8. - Bradstreets' weekly review says: In nearly all lines trade is unchanged, and in some departments lifeless. Merchants in all directions continue to buy for needs only. At several centers bank-ers have preferred not to loan as freely as heretofore. Merchants, not wishing to be refused, have accordingly curtailed their requests for ac-commodation. Mercantile collections are slow, and, in some instances, more difficult to make. New scrutiny of credits has had an effect in restricting the same. Business failures throughout the United States this week number, 269-a decrease, compared with one week ago, when the total was 294. As compared with one year ago, this week's "total" shows an increase sensational collapse of speculators in Chicago, with the consequent closing of the Chicago Stock Exchange for a period yet indefinite, though followed by remarkably few failures, brings a sudden change in monetary conditions thoughout the country. The collapse has increased the caution of bankers and other lenders regarding loans on securities of a similar character. The movement of wheat is again large, Atlantic exports being 1;761,023 bushels for the week, flour included, against 753,330 last year, and since July 1,858,704 bushels, against 4,728,919 last year. Conflicting crop reports are as numerous and noisy as ever, but the more reliable mark up winter wheat to 300,000,000 bushels. Corn is also moving rapidly, with western receipts of 4,873,091 bushels, against 1,661,074 last year. Sales of wool for the week were 2,746,400 pounds, against 6,259,300 last year, and 9,271,700 in 1892. Pailures for the week have been 240 in the United States, against 225 last year.

R. G. Dun & Co.'s review says: The

Stories of Barnum.

Gossip About the Showman and His Show by One of His Associates.

"I was traveling with P. T. Barnum once." said Mr. Stow, "long before the railroad shows were in existence. We traveled by wagons from town to town in those days, halling on the outskirts of the town to enable the circus people to put on their show clothes and prepare for the parade. We were to show in a small town in Pennsylvania, and I had noticed that a bridge over which the wagons were to pass was weak. I sent word to Mr. Barnum to put the rhinoceros wagon at the rear, but he did not do so, and as it was in advance it broke the bridge. The show did not reach the town in time to make much of a parade.

"That night Mr. Barnum was seated in the village hotel when an angry him and told him that he was a fraud. " 'How so?' said Barnum.

Well,' replied the spokesman for the crowd, 'you advertised two miles of parade and there was only one. 'Yes,' replied Barnum, 'there was one mile of parade and another mile of blanked fools following it. That makes two miles, don't it?' '

A rhinoceros is the most expensive animal in a circus. A well bred and well developed rhinoceros costs $5,000. The Barnum show recently lost a rhinoceros and was compelled to cable to Hagenbeck at Hamburg to send on another at once. Hagenbeck is the largest animal supply agent on earth. He furnishes the Zoological Gardens of London and similar gardens in the capitals of Europe. Elephants are quite common these days, and half a dozen of them could be bought for the price of one rhinoceros.

The elephant is the meanest animal that the show people have to deal with. Everybody is afraid of him, for at once telegraphed to Cincinnati for a new tent, for which the dimensions were given, and in three days it was made and erected by the show. All the sailmakers in Cincinnati were employed in making the new canwas.

A new canvas is made every year, and the one used the previous year is carried along with the show for example of the corresponding to the companion of the corresponding to the corresponding emergency. On the occasion alluded to the old canvas was left behind and the show exhibited three days in a tent without a top. Fortunately the weather was fair.

An idea of the magnitude of a big show can be gained from the fact that 1,200 persons are employed in the Barnum & Bailey show. The system observed in putting up the big canvas, taking it down and packing it in the cars, and in putting all the rest of the stuff in the cars, each night is somestuff in the cars each night is something wonderful. There are, perhaps, twenty or thirty foremen who run the whole business. Without these men it would take green hands a week to put up a big tent and another week to take it down.

When P. T. Barnum was in London fifteen years or so ago he sent tickets of admission to all the clergy and to the Bishop of London and his family. Barnum's reputation as a philanthro-pist had gone before him, and it became necessary to establish, a regular picket guard around him to protect him from annoyance in his hotel. The applicants for chafitable donations would frequently get through the line and apply for donations ranging from $100 to $10,000. After the Bishop of London and his family had seen the show the bishop called upon Barnum and chatted with him for some time. Barnum impressed him, as he did everybody, as being a big-hearted, amiable and brainy man. The bishop on leaving took his hand and said: 'Mr. Barnum, you are not such a bad man after all. I hope to meet you in heaven, sir." "Well, you will if you are there," replied Barnum. The answer was even too much for the bishop, and those who heard it shouted with laughter.

IN THE NILE VALLEY.

The Debatable Region Where No One Dares Live. Wady Halfa Correspondence.

From Ambigol two short marches along the Nile bank brought us to Akasheh. On May 25, having sent our baggage camels on before us, we rode to the post of Tanjur. Before leaving Ambigol we saw a large convoy set out; but we were permitted to travel independently, as there was but very little risk of our encountering dervishes. On our journeys to and from Akasheh we carefully avoided the convoys; for it is far pleasanter to canter on alone than to travel at a slow walk enveloped by the suffocating clouds of dust raised by the camels This portion of the Nile Valley is very picturesque. The river itself often broadens in lake-like ex-panses studded with islets. I was asparched country. Long grass, affording good pasture, covered the soil left by the shrinking Nile, and close to the water it was beautifully green. Here and there grew date palms, and we rode through groves of trees, cam-Bank clearings at Halifax, Winnipeg, elthorn and acacias, some of considerable size. But it was all wild growth; culti-

But though no men now occupy the rand, the vegetation sustains numbers of wild creatures. Gazelles, goats and sand grouse abound here, while all the trees are full of singing birds. Though versing an uninhabited country, the road was far from lonely; we met frequent return convoys, cavalry patrols, and now and then overtook a small party of travelers, for example a couple of Greeks marching up to Akasheh, driving before them donkeys laden with tobacco and other luxuries to be retailed at a good profit to the soldiery. We, of course, occasionally passed dead camels on our way, but the loss of those beasts has been remarkably small considering how many thousands of them are engaged in the transport of supplies. We pased the night within the zariba at Tanjur, at which post half of the Fourth battalion were stationed. Just before reaching camp we saw lying high and dry on the sand by the water's edge the hull of a wrecked steamer. This was the Gizeh, which ran on a rock and foundered at the commencement of the last Nile ex-

Paine's Celery Compound.

We must sympathize with, and pity the poor, weary and jaded, sufferer whose life is made miserable and almost unbearable in the hot weather. The healthiest of us have all we can do to withstand the enervating effects of scorching days and sweltering hights. The sick mortals—heaven help them-must suffer increased agony during these hot days.

The troubles that new bring low the majority of the people at this season are nervous prostration nervous debility, dyspepsia, indigestion, headache, and a host of trials that result from impure and poisoned blood.
The above troubles attack men and women because their supply of nerve force is almost exhausted. Loss of this nerve force and feebleness is at the root of nearly every case of sick-

A true nerve medicine is what is needed if health is to be restored, and the dark grave avoided. Paine's Celery Compound is a perfect and un-failing restorer of nerve force and power to the weakened and debilitated system. It quickly cures prostration, sleeplessness, headache, dyspepsia indigestion; it cleanses the poisoned blood and gives new life and permanent vitality and strength.

Paine's Celery Compound combine the most efficient alteratives, laxatives and diuretics, and soon restores the sick one to complete health. Today it is earth's most reliable medicine it is made for your special case, poor sufferer, and its use will implant that state of health you are so earnestly As there are vile liquid imitations sold in many places, insist upon your dealer giving you "Paine's," the kind

At the next meeting of the Trades and Labor Council the drawing for positions of the different unions in the Labor Day parade will take place. With their return to work, the shoe-makers are once again in good humor. Several who left the city have secured positions elsewhere, but with the revival of trade they may return. The American Federation of Labor wants the Trades and Labor Council to appoint an organizer for this city. The matter will come up at next meeting, when the request of the Federation will no doubt be approved and the appointment made.

The Building Laborers' Union has a committee making arrangements for the Labor Day parade. Seventeen years ago the State of Georgia leased its convict labor for a period of twenty years. Although the rate at that time was regarded as ridiculously low, the lessees are now heartily sick of their contract, as they are able to procure free labor cheaper.

An linquiry made into the condition Barnet, of needle women in Paris shows that a working woman cannot count on earning more than 1.350 francs, or about $220, a year. The designers and cutters out of patterns and the fitters receive in some cases salaries of $3 .-000 to $4,000.

The strike of the molders at the Gale Works in Albion has been practically won by the union. The company attempted to reduce the wages of the non-union men who had taken the places of the strikers, when the former struck and have been taken into the union. Strikes are threatened on a number of buildings in New York on account of the war between the board of walking delegates and several expelled unions. Among the latter the largest is the Amalgamated Association of Plumbers and Casfitters, which has a membership of about 2,000, and which is to be expelled from the Central Labor Union.

It says that Mr. Fisher "is the owner of the Alva stock farm (comprising some four hundred fertile acres, near Knowlton, P. The farm ranks among the most beautiful and best managed of that thrifty agricultural district, and its dairy and other products, as well as its live stock, attest the practical skill and enterprise of its owner.

Remarkable Speech for a Lord.

A Glasgow journal prints a full report of a speech delivered by Lord Rosebery on July 21, in the Scotch city of Dumfries, at the centenary commemoration of the death of the plowman bard, Robert Burns. His lordship's praise of the Ayrshire song writer was as high as his command clared that there is no parallel in all the world to Burns' genius and fame; that Burns' worship grows with the generations; that Burns reigns over a dominion vaster than any empire in history; that Burns celebrations are more universal than those in honor of word of a nation, but as majestic as lieve that there ever was any parallel of "A man's a man for a' that!" lordlings of his time, we must be convinced that Lord Rosebery does not hold any malice against him because of his freedom of thought. His lordship, moreover, is an admirer of the leveling politics of Burns, and does not object even to the soft words for Auld Nickie. Here are some sentences from Lord Rosebery's speech: "Burns is the champion of the democracy, their patron saint. He bears aloft the banner of the essential equality of man. From his sympathy with his own class, from his indignation against nobles like the Duke of that cost him so dearly, it might be easy to infer his political opinions. The Queen of Roumania while sending us here a romantic poem in his honor, writes that she has not a copy of Burns with her, but that she knows his songs by heart. I say that in the politics of Burns there was imagination; was heroism; there was the free spirit of life, and there was the natural voice of universal democracy. Lord Rosebery's exuberance of fancy upon this commemorative occasion, at the scene of Robert Burns' death in Dumfries, was made manifest in this remarkable speech for a lord.

Prof. Beyer's Explorations in the Louisiana Mounds.

Evidence of the Existence of a Prehistoric Race - They Were Big Men, Their Skeletons Measuring More Than Six Feet. But Apparently Not Warlike.

A New Orleans despatch says: Prof. George E. Beyer, curator of the Tulane museum and professor of natural history in that institution, has returned from his investigations of the and modestly described himself as Indian mounds of Catahoula, which he 'only a farmer.' He was first elected has been conducting under the joint auspices of the university and the for a state labor league, and will prob- at the general election of 1882, and Louisiana Historical Society. The excavations as far as they have gone, have been eminently successful. Prof. Beyer secured a large number of valuable archaeological specimens for the museum, and brought out some interesting facts about the Louisiana aborigines; but the work is by no means complete, and Prof. Beyer will soon go back to Catahoula to continue his explorations, which, it is hoped, will solve some of the important points concerning the mound builders not heretofore known.

The mounds explored are four in number, recently discovered in Lake Larto, in the swamp country of Catahoula. The mounds were thoroughly examined, but not content with this, Prof. Beyer explored the surrounding country and discovered scores of mounds throughout the swamp region of Catahoula and the neighboring parishes. The town of Troyville is built over a score of these mounds, "The new Premier, in casting about and a large number of the houses in for a representative of agriculture in that section are erected on mounds which render them safe against overand attainments alike seem to have those in Ohio and the Central West-pre-eminently fitted him. They were fishermen, rather than hunters, and used nets to catch their fish. They must have lived on these islands for centuries, for the soil and layers of ashes and fish bones prove this. When they died or how they died is not known; nor was there any tradition among the Indians concerning the swampers when the French came to Louisiana two centuries ago.

Whether the further explorations to be made will reveal the identity and story of the aborigines remains to seen. It will only then be possible to determine whether these swamp dwellers were the original inhabitants of the country, driven out by the In-Queensberry, and from those toasts dians, or whether they came in later, What light these excavations will shed on archaeology and aboriginal history

Christian Unity.

By Frances E. Willard, in the New Age, London, England. I never see the words "Christian Unity" without being grateful to God that it was put into the hearts of intelligent and earnest leaders to forward a cause that means one Lord, one faith, one baptism, one God and Father of all, blessed for ever. From my youth my heart has evermore leaped up with joy in considering the time when all these jarring notes of controversy should fade away and the heavenly harmonies take their place-when the heavenly harmonies of love to God and love to man should drown them out forever. That this time will come I cannot doubt.

That its coming is hindered rather by hierarchies than by the masses of the faithful is perfectly well known The great world of the laity would flow together as the lakes and rivers into the sea but for the fact that high dignities, huge investments splendid prospects, and "valuable livings" stand between.

I do not say this in a critical spirit, nor do I discount the sincerity of mighty men who oppose church dig-The views they hold are a part of their ultimate fibers, and they cannot change. They are "built that way," to use the pithy western phrase Church unity will not come till death has closed and opened many eyes. But I believe whoever works for it is doing the work of God. Whoever minimizes the differences among sects (there are 142 in my own country), is helping forward the better time. Who emphasizes these differences is working, like sand in the eye, which plays the part of friction rather than the more welcome part of momentum In the delicate machine. Let us "hold the light up higher and higher." It is "only a beam in darkness." It shall become a torch in the gloom It shall grow to be a beacon light of the nations. An linquiry made into the condition of needle women in Paris shows that a working woman cannot count on earning more than 1 350 frames or about $220, a year. The designers and cutters out of patterns and the fitters receive in some cases salaries of $3,-000 to $4,000.

The strike of the molders at the Gale Works in Albion has been practically won by the union. The company attempted to reduce the wages of the non-union men who had taken the places of the strikers, when the former struck and have been taken into the union.

Strikes are threatened on a number of buildings in New York on account of the war between the board of walking delegates and several expelled unions. Among the latter the largest the Amalgamated Association of Plumbers and Casfitters, which has a membership of about 2,000, and which is to be expelled from the Central Labor Union.

For years, up to one month, ago, the boss and journeymen barbers of Cincinnati belonged to one organization. They then separated, but are now anxious to return to the old plan, and although unions containing employers are barred from affiliation with the American Federation of Labor, the sentiment is so strong that the amalgamation is pretty certain to take place. The journeymen find they cannot go it alone.

There They Come From.

Every young reader has heard pussy called Tabby, but all do not know that tabby cat was named after Atab, a famous street in the old city of Bagdad. On this street the merchants sold a beautiful watered silk called atabl. In modern days this silk has been styled taffeta. The wavy marking of the silk was thought to resemble pussy's coat of fur.

It says that Mr. Fisher "is the owner of the Alva stock farm (comprising some four hundred fertile acres, near Knowlton, P. The farm ranks among the most beautiful and best managed of that thrifty agricultural district, and its dairy and other products, as well as its live stock, attest the practical skill and enterprise of its owner.

"Hon. Mr. Fisher was a son of Dr. Arthur Fisher, of Montreal, whose grandfather came to Canada from Dunkeld, Scotland. He was born on June 12, 1850, so that he is in the very heyday of a vigorous manhood. Educated in the high school and McGill University, he graduated in Trinity College, Cambridge University; hence. his attainments in that respect are of the very highest order. ### Remarkable Speech for a Lord.

A Glasgow journal prints a full report of a speech delivered by Lord Rosebery on July 21, in the Scotch city of Dumfries, at the centenary commemoration of the death of the plowman bard, Robert Burns. His lordship's praise of the Ayrshire song writer was as high as his command of language could make it. He declared that there is no parallel in all the world to Burns' genius and fame; that Burns' worship grows with the generations; that Burns reigns over a dominion vaster than any empire in history; that Burns celebrations are more universal than those in honor of ably in the lake—they are now upon ably in the lake—they are now upon any other human being; and that the its very border, and it has sensibly lordlings of his time, we must be con-

"Burns is the champion of the democracy, their patron saint. He bears aloft the banner of the essential equality of man. From his sympathy with his own class, from his indignation against nobles like the Duke of Queensberry, and from those toasts that cost him so dearly, it might be easy to infer his political opinions. Had he lived he might have become a great Liberal press man, if it were not true that a poet is so fortunate as never to be a politician. 'A man's a man' is not a political declaration; it is an assertion of the rights of humanity in the widest sense. Burns loved all mankind, except the cruel and the base. He had a sort of sympathy with the great French revolution when it was setting all Europ to rights; yet he was prepared to lay down his life to prevent it from set-ting this island to rights. He had a sympathy which most of us have felt for the hapless house of Stuart without the least wish to be governed by the Stuarts. He was at once a Jaco bin and a Jacobite! The Queen of Roumania. while sending us here a romantic poem in his honor, writes that she has not a copy of Burns with her, but that she knows his songs by heart. I say that in the politics of Burns there was imagination; was heroism;

Prof. Beyer's Explorations in Louisiana Mounds.

Evidence of the Existence of a Prehistoric Race - They Were Big Men, Their Skeletons Measuring More Than Six Feet. But Apparently Not Warlike.

A New Orleans despatch says: Prof. a business the principles of which George E. Beyer, curator of the Tumen must observe if they would suc- lane museum and professor of natural history in that institution, has reness or profession, he once bluntly turned from his investigations of the and modestly described himself as Indian mounds of Catahoula, which he 'only a farmer.' He was first elected has been conducting under the joint auspices of the university and the Prof. Beyer secured a large number of valuable archaeological specimens for the museum, and brought out some interesting facts about the Louisiana aborigines; but the work is by no means complete, and Prof. Beyer will soon go back to Catahoula to continue his explorations, which, it is hoped, will solve some of the important points concerning the mound builders not heretofore known.

The mounds explored are four in number, recently discovered in Lake Larto, in the swamp country of Catahoula. The mounds were thoroughly examined, but not content with this, Prof. Beyer explored the surrounding country and discovered scores of mounds throughout the swamp region of Catahoula and the neighboring parishes. The town of Troyville is built over a score of these mounds, and a large number of the houses in that section are erected on mounds which render them safe against overflow. The mounds are not high, like those in Ohio and the Central Western States and the reason why but little has been hitherto known concerning them is because the people living in the swamps were not aware that they were erected by human hands, but believed them to be natural high places in the swamp created by drift, etc. The Lake Larto mounds, perfect circles with connecting causeways between them, were so clearly artificial as to attract the noin the agricultural progress of his tice of the people living in the neigh-Province, especially in the matter of borhood. When not a lake, the country was a swamp, which an enemy would have found it difficult to penetrate. The mound-dwellers were large in size, many of the skeletons being over six feet high, and were evidently a powerful race, for the number of arrow-heads and tomahawks show them to have been well supplied with arms. The arrow-heads, of a peculiar white tint, came from some far distant place, probably from Western Texas or New Mexico. All the indications are that these people were a semicivilized tribe, more advanced than the Indian tribes of the eastern United States. They had moved east from Mexico, and had finally been forced to seek refuge in the Louisiana swamps from the more savage and warlike Indians around them. mounds recalls the city of Mexico as them it is impossible to say, for there are no relics save of ashes. The life When we think of the songs and of the people is easily told from their sayings of the Scotch poet about the utensils. They were fishermen, rather than hunters, and used nets to catch vinced that Lord Rosebery does not their fish. They must have lived on these islands for centuries, for the soil and layers of ashes and fish bones prove this. When they died or how they died is not known; nor was there any tradition among the Indians concerning the swampers when the French came to Louisiana two centuries ago.

Whether the further explorations to be made will reveal the identity and story of the aborigines remains to be seen. It will only then be possible to determine whether these swamp dwellers were the original inhabitants of the country, driven out by the Indians, or whether they came in later. What light these excavations will shed on archaeology and aboriginal history remains yet to be seen.

Christian Unity.

By Frances E. Willard, in the New Age, London, England. I never see the words "Christian Unity" without being grateful to God that it was put into the hearts of intelligent and earnest leaders to forward a cause that means one Lord,

Father of all, blessed for ever. From my youth my heart has evermore leaped up with joy in considering the time when all these jarring notes of controversy should fade away and the heavenly harmonies take their place-when the heavenly harmonies of love to God and love to man should drown them out forever. That this time will come I cannot doubt. That its coming is hindered rather by hierarchies than by the masses of the faithful is perfectly well known. The great world of the laity would together as the lakes and splendid prospects, and "valuable livings" stand between. I do not say this in a critical spirit, nor do I discount the sincerity of mighty men who oppose church dignity. The views they hold are a part of their ultimate fibers, and they cannot change. They are "built way," to use the pithy western phrase. Church unity will not come till death has closed and opened many eyes. But I believe whoever works for it is doing the work of God. Whoever minimizes the differences among sects (there are 142 in my own country), is helping forward the better time. Whoever emphasizes these differences is working, like sand in the eye, which plays the part of friction rather than he more welcome part of momentum in the delicate machine. Let us "hold the light up higher and higher." It is "only a beam in darkness." It shall become a torch in the gloom. It shall grow to be a beacon light of the nations. It shall climb to the enith, like another sun. It is God's light, not ours. In this faith, believe me yours, a

Not Far Away.

She was a dear little girl only 3 years old. She had got tired playing around her mother's kitchen, and so she wandered out of doors and was not missed for some time. Then how frightened her mother was! She told all the neighbors, and searching parties were made up, the surrounding woods thoroughly hunted over, men got into wagons and drove about the roads, stopping at every house to inquire for a little fair-haired girl, with doll, who had gone away from home. When all the people had scattered, and the houses about were quite deserted, in came the little girl with her hands full of flowers. She had been in a neighbor's yard two doors away. What kind is it?" "It's no koind at all, mum," said Bridget; "it's a mixter." "How do you mix it?" "I make it one quarter Mocha and one-quarter Java and one-quarter Rio," "But that's only three-quarters. What do you put in for the other quarter?" "I put in no other quarter at all, mum. ### The Young Man's Enemy.

The young man who is always thinking of and caring for his small personal wants, who is forever yielding to the small solicitation of pleasureless dissipation, cannot be either pure or good. Show me the youth who, between his meals and at all times, wants nips and pick-me-ups to stimulate his jaded senses and flabby enervation; show me the young man who wastes over his cigars and cigarettes enough every week to support a poor family; show me the young man who selfishly burdens others with the small, miserable debts of his con-had a number of persuasives along, and finally they consented. The young men equipped themselves with a gunnysack and a pointed stick about five feet long. A half-mile from the house, in the wire grass of the rolling pine land, they found the hole of the gopher. They covered the entrance of his tunnel with a sack and planted the stick over the tunnel. Then all of the men lay down about twenty feet away and one of them

In a half hour the sack was seen to move slightly, whereupon one of the young men jumped up quickly and ran to the stick, which he pressed deep into the ground, cutting off the gopher's retreat. The other reached his hand into the hole and brought out a big gopher, which was made into a delicious stew for their dinner. Mr. Gilbert, discoursing on the incident, says:

"I have since learned that the Mexicans, who are very fond of gophers, pursue this method, except that they do not sing. The singing is entirely superfluous. Curiosity is what kills the gopher, as it has killed the his-toric cat. The animal evidently is curious to learn what it is that has darkened the threshold of his abode, and comes forth to see. The stick does the rest. I have tried the same plan myself, and very successfully."-Florida Times-Union.

Curious Frogs. Appleton's Monthly.

One of the most interesting species that have been described is the one discovered by Mr. Wallace in Borneo a number of years ago. It has been prperly called the "flying frog," from the fact that it has toes of great and thus this little aerial patrachian reaches terra firma in safety. Among the most curious types are the tree of taking one in my hand.

I first noticed it in the ga leaves and branches of trees. They are small, elegant and exceedingly attract its attention, so I began to active creatures, the males possessing loud voices, of which they make ter with it. It bent its head upon copious use during the breeding seas- one side, eyed me sharply, then flew Frogs have, from remote times, been regarded as weather prophets, and at approached, taking care not to alarm (Hyla arboreo) is used as a barometer. A few of them are placed in a tall bottle provided with miniature ladders, the steps of which they ascend during fine weather, seeking the bottom again at the approach of rain. Anatomical structures of a variety of kinds are characteristic of different species of frogs, having to do with the voice organs. So it is that many croak, some chirp, and some almost bellow. Many emit noises most disagreeable to all ears, while others give vent to sounds that under some circumstances are quite enjoyable.

His Fish Climbed Up a Tree.

"Did I ever tell you of the fishing couple of years ago?" asked W. L. Roberts, formerly of Santa Rosa, a San Francisco Call man.

"There were several of us camping there, and all were expert flycasters. One of the party returned to camp with his fishing tackle all out of kilter, and said that a mile or so up the stream he had dropped his line into a deep pool and hooked the largest trout he had ever fastened on to. He tried to play his prize, but the rascal tore the tackle all to pieces. The next day another cast for the monarch of the pool, and met with no better success, he, too, returning minus some of his outfit. For several that are dazzling to behold, and defy description. The smallest of birds, stay there all year. "I rigged my tackle and cautiously approached the hole. The pool is about 20 feet across, and it narrowed down to three feet where the creek passed under a fallen tree to a riffle beyond. The water was about eight feet deep near the bank where I stood, and trees and underbrush surrounded the water hole. With great care, so as not to make any noise, I advanced as to drop my fly close to the ledge of rocks where the big fish made his home. I had hardly done so when there was a 'swish,' and the water broke, revealing a beautiful trout, but not the one I was after. In a second my reel was spinning, for the fellow had been well hooked. Here and there he darted, and I was kept pretty busy for a minute playing him away from the dangerous root that extended into the pool. In my excitement my foot slipped; before I could recover about 30 feet of my line had been run off the reel, and the gamey little fellow was down the stream, having darted under the body of the fallen tree. He had gained the riffle below. Then came a splash and a jerk on the line that I could not account for, as I could not see beyond the tree for the brush, followed by a steady, hard

"I kept my line taut, but it was of no use. Foot by foot the line was taken from me—fifty, sixty, seventy-five feet—still I could not stop it. When the end was reached I was amazed, for the strain was terrific but I held on until the line snapped or, rather, the knot slipped from the reel. Away went the line down the stream. I dropped the rod and ran around the pool, hoping to catch up with the fish somewhere down the creek. Fifty feet below the log I was Lyman Sons & Co., Montreal, fairly paralyzed to see my line ting across the path and up the hillside. I wondered if that fish had legs and was escaping over the hills, for I heard the underbrush crackling mer, fisherman, scientist, hunter and some distance ahead. Seizing the line capitalist, is a great fancier of gopher I followed, pulling as I scrambled through the brush. Suddenly the strain ceased, and I worked my way along to the foot of a small sycamore Some time ago he learned that there tree. ### Many Animals Play Possum.

The habit of feigning death for the sake of protection can be observed among many of the lower animalswhich differ widely in family, genus and species. Indeed, this habit is to be observed in creatures microscopic in size and of exceedingly low organization, as well as those as high in the scale of animal life as man himself; for even man does not hesitate on occasion to avail himself of this natural subterfuge, when he thinks it will aid in the preservation of his life.

With the aid of the microscope one can observe and study the natural history of the minute animal world, which otherwise would remain closed and unread volume. instrument has shown me, beyond cavil, that creatures as low in the scale as actinophryans, very minute microscopic animalcules, practice death-feigning when surprised by an enemy from which they cannot otherwise escape. Thus I have repeatedly seen actinophryans fold their delicate of water) when approached by a water louse, which preys upon them. They remain to all appearances absolutely without life until the water louse swims away, when they unfold their cilia and go back to their feeding grounds-a bit of water weed or moss, or decayed wood.

Taming a Humming Bird.

Several cases are on record of attempts to tame humming birds, but when placed in a cage they do no thrive, and soon die. The orange groves of Southern California abound in these attractive creatures, and length, and these are fully webbed to several can often be seen about the the tips. If the animal wishes to descend from the top of a high tree it has only to make the leap, and by chasing each other in play. ### A Flower Mission Incident. (From the Union Signal.)

The following incident was related by one of the participants, president of a flourishing union in central Pennsylvania. I give it in her own words:

'Very careful preparation had been made for this, our first jail visitation on Flower Mission Day. Committees were appointed, not only for the jail, but the hospital, the sick in homes, and the county poor farm. I, with a friend, was detailed for the last-named place. I never could have gone without the flowers Had words faild, the sweet blossoms would have borne their own message, and, with the appropriate Scripture text on cards tied with white ribbon, would have been an open sesame to the hearts of the sick and suffering.

Our first service was with the convalescents, who were profuse in grateful thanks, many being melted to tears at their remembrance. We visited those confined to their bed, and its side and proceeded to prove, at aged woman, nearly a hundred years he would not go so far as to explain old very feeble, and almost an im- what kind of an animal it was that stood beside her hed, and placed the flowers in her hands. 'Is it worth while to pray?' asked my friend. 'Oh, yes,' I replied, 'we must not omit prayer. If she cannot understand, God can, and will add his blessing.' "As we rose from our knees we noticed a change in the woman's face. There was a look of intelligence in the eyes like that on the countenance of a little child just awakening from a sleep. Very tenderly we bent over the bed, listening as she said in low, audible voice, 'I know a pray-'Do you?' I asked. 'Yes,' she re-'Will you repeat it for us?' Yes.' And with clasped hands and closed eyes she prayed, 'God bless father and mother and make me a good little girl.' The simple act of devotion had resurrected the sleeping memories of years, bridged the chasm of a century and carried the feeble mind back to her childhood, back to taught the simple petitiondoubtless the only one she ever voic-

The Viewy Folk.

Fortnightly Review. Like Japanese fireworks which break out into all manner of shapes, these viewy folk adopt and make their own every subject under the sun. They have their views on education, which they think should be conducted so and so-counter to the general plan. Perhaps the father and grandfather of this section was the elder Montaigne. who had his little son taught to speak in colloquial Latin long before he knew a word of his native French, and other than by the soft strains of gentle point with pride to the infant prodigy who knows the letters he cannot promounce and the words he can read only in vocal hieroglyphics. Another lets his child run agate till he is 8 or 9, and when most little lads are in their Cicero he is teaching his the alphabet. A third keeps his son at home, tied to the apron strings of women-educated women-his playmates, girls-his dolls-his amusement, worsted work, till, at 14, he is emphatically no more a boy in essential manliness than are his sisters. A fourth has his girls educated by a tutor, and taught all the boyish pastimes and pursuits from the

All these have views, which they translate into action for the problematic benefit of their unfortunate offspring. And again, that poor, dear. nishandled common sense gets overlaid and smothered, and society counts one more bundle of failures, because sundry parents were of the number of the viewy folk of the world. Some parents will not send their sons to school, and some will not keep their daughters at Some believe in moral suasion and abandon authority as a bugaboo of the past, and others put the shade omon on the back, and hold to das the best schoolmaster there me make education of more acthe rod as the best schoolmaster there as. Some make education of more account than health or development, and

The Prune Cure.

The "Keeley Cure" has no doubt done wonders in reforming men addicted to the drink habit, and cannot be too highly recommended to our esteemed contemporaries throughout the country. But the "cure" that is adapted to all classes, ages, sexes, and | ing the attention of mother or nurse. conditions is evidently the "prune cure," if we may rely upon the following statement lately made by a wellknown physician of Chicago. Hear

"I have made the prune a subject of special study, and have conducted a series of experiments with a view o proving its efficacy as a preventive of crime. I was once connected with a large reformatory institution. It was there that I first saw the possibilities in the prune. Victous youths would come under my care who would rebel against every restraint and resist every influence intended for their good. If they persisted in their defiance of the rules I would prescribe prunes as a diet. Well, one week's treatment invariably brought them around peaceable as lambs. After that there was no trouble in controlling them. All that was necessary was to feed them once a day on prunes, and we had no exhibition of unruliness. There is a certain medicinal property in the prune which acts directly upon the nervous system, and that is where the evil passions have their seat. I believe that if the prune were made a compulsory portion of the diet of the lower classes, there would be less crime. Some day I shall publish a treatise embodying my views on the subject, which will earn the evertasting thanks of the public."-Correspondent California Fruit Grow-

They Didn't Know What to Make of It,

Once upon a __ there was an island in the Pacific Ocean inhabited by a people that had no acquaintance with matters outside their own domain. On a certain day there was a terrific storm at sea, and among the things thrown upon the shores of the island was a ladder.

When the islanders saw the ladder they marveled much as to what it was and for what purpose created.

Some thought one thing, and some another. Finally there were but two opinions, and behind each was ranged half of the people, the other half being behind the other opinion.

One panty held that the rungs of the ladder were intended to hold the sides together, while the other party as stoutly maintained that their purpose was to keep the sides apart. However, the people might agree or differ as to what the ladder was intended for, upon the rung question they stood unalterably divided, one side hollding to the keep-apart theory, while the other side clung to the theory of hold-together.

If an islander set the ladder upon encouragement least to his own satisfaction, that it everywhere. Our last call was on an | was the section of a fence (although as so large that he could not get through the palings and yet so sluggish that he could not top so low wall), it was only for a moment that he received attention; for it was only a question of time how soon the old contention asserted itself, and the people began again the old question as to the object for which the rungs were created and put in place.

The same result was sure to follow when some other theorist placed the ladder flat upon the ground and sought to show that it was the skeleton of a rafit, or possibly a well-ventilated palanquin. The keep-apart and holdtogether controversy was sure to rekindle.

There is no knowing how long this condition of things might have gone on had not a sailor from some far-off country been washed ashore. He was shown the ladder, and was asked in signs what it was for. He replied by standing it on end against a tree and mounting into the latter's branches. The islanders were astonished, but their minds, as usual, revented to the old puzzle-were the rungs designed to keep the sides apart or to hold them together? The sailor explained that both parties were equally in the wrong; the rungs were there neither to keep the sides apart nor to hold them together.

But the sides were there to hold the rungs in place. Very much depends upon Moral: the point of view; and, ten chances to one, notwithstanding you think you know it all, there may be a few things not included in your mental stock-in-

According to a Paris journal, a French scientist is trying to compel bees to make medicated honey for the cure of various diseases. He keeps the bees under glass, and furnishes only such bowers as possess the de-sired properties. By the different kinds of honey thus produced, influenza, coughs and colds, indigestion, asthma and many other ills are said to be readily reached. These medicines ought to be decidedly palatable. An enterprising religious newspaper in London recently gave prizes for re-ports concerning the length of sermons preached on a given Sabbath. Nearly 300 responses were sent in. The longest ermons reported were by a Presbyterian minister in the far north of Scotland and a Methodist preacher in Each of these discourses England. occupied an hour and 28 minutes. ### Unconscious Imposers.

(From the Outlook.) In every community there are excellent people who impose outrageously on their neighbors. They mean well, but their ways are slovenly and their methods lax: they must be constanty on the minds of their more efficient fellows and prodded out of forgetfulness. As a rule, every organization is actively sustained by a few peoole; the ballance of the membership is inert, sluggish, and must be urged into line. The working few, not only do what is allotted them, but they also do a very large share of the work allotted to others; they pull the wagon and the others look on and criticise. The inert member always expects to be reminded of his duty; he never undertakes to keep it in mind. If he is put on a committee, he must be constantly and specially notified; if he receives a notice which requires some kind of response, he invariably mislays it; if he is asked with great emphasis to attend an important meeting, he must be called for. Under all circumstances somebody must keep him in mind and look after him. Such men and women abound in every organization and community, and the best that can be said of them is that they contribute to the development of character in their associates by the discipline they impose upon all who them a trial, feeling confident that are not willing to use selfish methods and follow selfish ends; it is equally true that the inefficient, the inert, their own burdens to shoulders which are already overloaded. Tortured With Rheumatism for Nearly Twenty Years-Spent Large Sums in a Vain Search for Renewed Health-How He at Last Found It.

From the Delhi Reporter. There are very few troubles more wide-spread and none more difficult to eradicate from the system than rheumatism. The sufferer is racked with pains that seem unbearable, and frequently feels that even death itself would be a relief. Among those who have found much of their lives made miserable by this dread trouble is Mr. Michael Schott, of Delhi, and having ound a means of relief from its agonies, he is anxious that other sufferers should profit by his experience. Mr. Schott is in the employ of Messrs. Quance Bros., millers, and has a repuation for sterling integrity am should put the Believers in Bands and Mr. Schott gave the facts of his illstaff of the Reporter interviewed him, ness and recovery as follows: had been a sufferer from rheumatism since about eighteen years of age. At times he was confined to bed, but obtained no rest day nor night from I am, dear Billy, your affectionate the excruciating pains he was under-Friend and Brother, J. Wesley. Begoing. Again he was able to go about and follow his employment, but even then frequently walked about in an almost doubled up condition. Then again he would have another relapse and would be forced to take to his bed. During all these years he was almost continually doctoring, but never obtained anything more than temporary relief for the large sums he expended in this way. Having failed to obtain relief alt home he went to Simcoe for treatment, but received no permanent benefit and soon after coming home was as bad as ever. It will be readily understood that he was seriously discouraged, and had come to look upon his case as hopeless. Fin ally he was urged to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and after hesitating at spending any more money, in what he now considered a vain pursuit of health, he at last consented to give them a trial. By the time he had used a half dozen boxes there was no longer any doubt in his mind that he was steadily improving, and the treatment was then gladly continued. When he had taken a dozen boxes he found himself entirely recovered, entirely free from pain and from all stiffness of joints, and he is now able
