LARKIN CARRIES CROSS OVER INTO ENGLAND

(Canadian Press Despatch) NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—A cable to The Tribune from London says: James Larkin has carried out his threat to bring his "fiery cross" to England. He crossed the Irish Channel last night, and is now in Liverpool. He opens his campaign, which has for its object a general strike of British trade unionists in support of the Dublin strikers, at Manchester to-morrow, when he will address a meeting in Free Trade Hall.

dragged into a costly and futile struggle. Danger, nevertheless, lies in the influence of the malcontents among the rank and file. Before leaving Dublin, Larkin issued another series of threats declaring he intended to isolate the city and bring about a strike of Irish railwaymen on all the lines serving Dublin. In the meantime, the government has intervened in the struggle. Dublin Castle was busy yesterday conferring with employers representing the various interests involved. Lord Aberdeen and Sir James Dougherty, under secretary for Ireland, took part in these consultations.

OWEN SOUND MOURNS HER LOST SAILOR BOYS

Some Tragic Incidents in Connection With the Lake Wrecks--Lediard Family Sorely Stricken.

OWEN SOUND, Nov. 15.—Sadness and gloom have entered a number of Owen Sound homes as the result of the sinking of so many lake vessels, with the accompanying loss of life. The intelligence, the loss of the Wexford with all hands, came to Mrs. Richard Loughheed, wife of the second engineer of the ill-fated craft, in the form of a telegram from the offices of the Western Steamship Company, Toronto. The recipient of the message was prostrated.

High McInnis of Johnston P.O. went to Sarnia yesterday to get the body of his son, Wilson McInnis, who was on the steamer Charles Price. First Mate Wesley Adams, of the Regina, was one of the best known of Owen Sound's mariners. A brother resides on Fourth Ave. east, and with him Wesley Adams made his home.

The Consider Also Stricken To console with her came Mrs. William Buckley, Fourth Avenue, East. The morning following came the intelligence of the loss of the steamer James Carruthers, with all her crew, including second engineer William Buckley, and sorrow and mourning entered the Buckley home, where the steamer's mother and one little girl, a three-year-old boy, were waiting in hope for the return of the husband and father. All Mrs. Buckley's relatives reside in Glasgow, Scotland. Buckley, lives at Leith, where a brother also resides.

McArthur From Owen Sound If the steel carrier Isaac M. Scott of the Acme Transportation Company of Cleveland is lost, then it means the death of another Owen Sound mariner, Capt. Archie McArthur, who has been in charge of this vessel all the season. Until to-day relatives here hoped that the worst had not happened the staunch carrier. Capt. McArthur, who was a prominent Mason, about a year and a half ago went to Ashland, Ohio, to reside in a house he bought with the law respecting residence. He came of a family of sailors and from a portion of Sydenham township that has given to the great lakes some of their best sailors, the vicinity of Johnston. His wife, nee Elizabeth McGregor, of Sydenham, is living in Ashland. Of the three sons, Alex., Donald and John, the first two are sailing on the L. C. Hanna and the Jupiter respectively. A daughter, Mrs. Beattie, resides at Carlyle, Sask. Two brothers, Arthur and John, live in Sydenham township.

Three Deaths in One Year In the family of William Lediard first mate on the Carruthers, there have been three deaths this year, including the mother and a sister. Another sister is just convalescing after a serious operation at the General and Marine Hospital.

Three Want Hangman's Job THREE applications have been received by Sheriff Ross for the job of hangman for the execution of James Taylor on January 23. All the applications are from local men, who express not only willingness, but anxiety, to be allowed to perform. In all likelihood the Sheriff will depend upon securing the services of Ellis, the Canadian official. If Ellis is not available, then a local man will be appointed.

WARNING IS ISSUED AGAINST PILFERING

Souvenir Fiends to be Treated as Thieves—Sand Covering Bodies.

GODERICH, Nov. 15.—Yesterday Wreck Receiver Babb issued a warning respecting the pilfering and stealing of wreckage on the shores north of Goderich. Hector Hayes, Customs Officer at the port, criticized the notice, stating there was no stealing of wreckage, except by the souvenir fiends who gathered pieces of oars and any little things that might appeal to their morbid curiosity in years to come. The souvenir fiend, however, is to be treated as a real thief.

Another rumor which received some credence amongst some, and which was promptly denied by others, was that the waves had drifted sand to such an extent in some parts that bodies were being covered. Those bodies recovered at Turnbull's farm were half buried in sand. It is expected that identification of bodies will be much more rapid during the next few days. All the friends of the men apparently lost are hurrying to the lake ports. Every train yesterday brought a score of people on their sad mission. Mr. S. Bailey, the well-known marine man of Collingwood, is here and knows 75 per cent of the Canadian sailors, so he is expected to identify many of the bodies of the Carruthers' crew. The bodies of Scott, Brooms and Dodson of the steamer Wexford have been sent to Collingwood, and that of young Gordon will follow. Sailors yesterday had little hope of recovering the body of Bruce Cameron, the young captain of the Wexford. "He would stick to it and probably go down without a life-preserver," said a friend of Cameron.

Crown Attorney Charles Seager conducted the inquest held yesterday, and the jury were: J. W. Salkeld, foreman, W. T. Jennings, Isaac Salkeld, Harry Salkeld, Robt. Andrews, George Andrews, Robt. McLwain and Christopher Johnston, all of Goderich township.

FIRE HAMMERS AT COURT JUDGE

Suffragettes Create Pandemonium in British Court Room To-day

(Canadian Press Despatch) LONDON, Nov. 15.—Women hurled hammers at the judge of the London sessions court at the Old Bailey to-day when he sentenced Miss Rachel Peace, a militant suffragette, to 18 months' imprisonment after she had been found guilty by the jury of setting fire to and badly damaging a mansion at Hampton-on-Thames, near London, on October 4. A crowd of women had gathered in the court-room and frequently interrupted the proceedings. On the pronouncement of the sentence they not only threw hammers at the judge, but smashed a number of windows and glass doors. Four of the disturbers were arrested after a hard struggle with the police.

HE WILL REMAIN. MONTREAL, Nov. 15.—The Rev. Dr. Symonds has definitely decided to continue his connection with Christ Church Cathedral in this city, and has written the Western University at London declining the offer of the position as principal of that institution made him some time ago by the board of governors.

WOMEN STORM PARDON BOARD TO SAVE HER FROM GALLOWES

Aroused as they never have before, Connecticut women of every walk in life are shouldering the burden of preventing the State from inflicting the death punishment upon Mrs. Bessie J. Wakefield, convicted several days ago as an accomplice in the murder of her husband. From every conceivable point wives and daughters of prominent men, suffragists and women opposed to their sex exercising the right of franchise are attacking as disgraceful and unwarranted the carrying out of the court edict that Mrs. Wakefield shall be hanged.

If Mrs. Wakefield dies for the murder of her husband, in the actual commission of which she was not accused of having taken a hand, she will be the first woman put to death in the State since 1780.

IDENTITY OF "MYSTERY SHIP" MAY NEVER BE DIVULGED

Is Fast Sinking and By To-day Will Have Probably Disappeared Beyond the Surface—Boat Has Been Sustained By Air in the Holds, and Not By Another Vessel as Was at First Supposed.

(Canadian Press Despatch) SARNIA, Nov. 15.—Canadian and American marine men were present on a trip taken yesterday afternoon on the Reid Wrecking Company's tug Fischer to the famous mystery ship for the purpose of identifying the overturned craft. At 3 o'clock the Fischer pulled out from the wharf, having on board representatives of the Merchants Mutual Line, Toronto, owners of the Regina, of Hanna and Co., owners of the Price, and of the insurance interests in Cleveland and Buffalo, as well as several local wrecking company men, and two newspaper representatives. As the big tug passed the lightship two and a half miles from the river mouth all eyes were strained for the "mystery ship." Steering northward by the compass, the shores and lightship faded, the rollers increased in height and soon a reddish streak on the waters showed the reef which has defied the ingenuity of men and governments for a week past. The first discovery was that the boat had developed a tendency to sink since Thursday's visit. Within 24 hours she had settled nine feet and yesterday the inverted Arabic numeral 7 was only visible in the ebb of the waves, when yesterday a fair view of the mark could be had. This sudden tendency to sink sets at naught the theories of the best men who have visited the wreck and caused great excitement on the tug. If the boat is sustained by air in the hold and if the subsidence of the past 24 hours keeps up, the last trace of the boat will be below the surface to-day. The realization that the visit was probably the last chance to solve the mystery stimulated every effort for action, but the continued surge made a descent by a diver absolutely impossible. Instead the visible evidence was carefully noted, and may be summarized as follows: After making allowance for differences of opinion, a cast of the lead ten yards from the bow showed ten fathoms, another cast ten yards from the starboard showed the same. Again on the port quarter, ten fathoms, and a cast 600 feet astern the same. Finally the tug was manoeuvred directly over the submerged hull, and a quick census was taken of the estimated damage from the crew at the instant that the lead was cast. The estimates vary from 250 to 400 feet, and almost at the same instant the heavy lead struck below at seven fathoms (42 feet), and the tug slid across into less dangerous waters. Again Capt. Thomas Reid brought the tug around to the bow, and the marine men made diagrams of the construction of the plates. When the tug was 15 yards from the wave washed and rusty black belly several things were noted. On what would have been the starboard side, just where the freeboard curves into the flatness of the bottom, are two large dents, about 4 feet apart, five or six inches deep, and slightly at an angle to the starboard quarter. Is Foreign Built. Far more important than this was the character of the construction. There is a difference of method prevalent in America and Great Britain in matching the body of the boat to the stem or prow, the bottom plates in the one case being continued in a letter Y shaped upward toward the prow, and in the other style, the stem being carried down and projecting. Those familiar with this detail gave their opinion that the craft was foreign.

FEWER TRADE DISPUTES IN MONTH OF OCTOBER

OTTAWA, Nov. 15.—The Department of Labour reports that the industrial situation from the standpoint of the number of trade disputes in existence, was better in October than any time during the year, 1913. The loss of time to employees through trade disputes actually commencing during that month was small, and in all there were only eight disputes in existence, this number including those already in existence at the beginning of the month and those which commenced during October. On no occasion during the present year has the number been so small as this; the next best record being in September, when eleven disputes were reported. About 3,687 employees were directly and indirectly involved in the disputes of the month. About 70,000 working days were lost through strikes and lock-outs during October, as compared with 83,280 during September, and 98,000 in October, 1912. As in the previous months the most important dispute was that of coal miners on Vancouver Island. It is difficult to estimate the loss of time through this dispute, as it is probable that the strikers obtain work from time to time in other localities, and that other men are taken on by the operators concerned. An estimate would show about 2,000 men out of work directly as a result of this dispute during October.

JUAREZ HAS FALLEN INTO REBEL HANDS

Bold Strategy This Morning Put Most Important Northern Fort in Hands of Constitutionalists -- A Fight on Race Track

(Canadian Press Despatch) EL PASO, Tex., Nov. 13.—Ciudad Juarez, the most important northern port of entry in Mexico, was captured by constitutionalists under General Pancho Villa and General MacLevin Herrera, early this morning with small loss on either side. The occupation of Juarez by rebels began at 1:30 o'clock after the men under Villa and Herrera had reached the town in trains thought to be carrying federal soldiers to the garrison. The rebels detained undiscovered, placed their artillery, and soon had everything in readiness to fight. At the first volley the astounded government troops were assembled and returned the fire, and thus began the battle which lasted two hours. Bullets fell thick in El Paso and all the residents here awakened by the sound of heavy artillery firing. Americans were kept from the danger by the detachment of United States cavalry on patrol duty under Major Mitchell. The formal surrender of the city to the constitutionalists was at 5 o'clock when the federal commander threw himself and his soldiers on the mercy of victorious rebels. At once bands began playing on the streets and the town rang with "vivas" for the conquerors. It was after one of the cleverest strategies in the history of Mexico that Juarez was taken. General Villa, through General Herrera was attacking the town. Federal troops were rushed to the reinforcement of the Chihuahua garrison, but Villa never really rushed his attack there. By pre-arrangement trains were ready to convey his army to Juarez last night while all federal officers in northern Mexico believed him to be exerting every energy to take Chihuahua. Officials are confident that Huerta now realizes that not only is the United States in earnest to assist and may accomplish his elimination by lifting the embargo on arms, but also Great Britain as well as other foreign powers have assumed more than a passive attitude of acquiescence in the American policy. The fact that Sir Lionel Carden, British Minister to Mexico, is communicating to Huerta intimations of Continued on Page Three

MESSAGE RECEIVED OF SHIP AFIRE AT SEA

Cunard Liner Pannonia said to have Taken All Passengers off a Spanish Boat--Mey Be Freak Message

(Canadian Press Despatch) MONTREAL, Nov. 15.—A message purporting to come from the Cunard Liner Pannonia, received by the Marconi Company's operator at Cape Race, Newfoundland, intimates that the Spanish steamer Balmes is on fire at sea, and that her passengers have been transferred to the Pannonia. The operator, in forwarding the message to the local offices of the Marconi Company, states that the communication must be considered as a freak, as the Pannonia is nearly a thousand miles away from Cape Race. He also stated that on this account he had not been able to secure confirmation of the information from the Pannonia. The message from Cape Race follows: "The Pannonia reports that she is conveying the Steamer Balmes, which is on fire, to Bermuda. Her passengers have been transferred to the Pannonia and are all safe. The information could not be confirmed. The message, which is really regarded as a freak, is completely out of the ordinary wireless range of the Cape Race station, gives no positions." The Balmes is a steamer of 3,704 tons register, and was built in Dunbarton, Scotland, in 1898. She is owned in Cadiz, Spain. The Pannonia, front which the wireless is supposed to have come, belongs to the New York-Mediterranean service of the Cunard Company.

Cost of Living Went Up Some in October

OTTAWA, Nov. 15.—The Department of Labour index number of wholesale prices stood at 136.8 for October, 1913, as compared with 136.0 in September, and 135.0 for October last year. Corn, Ontario barley, hay and bran were higher, but wheat, flaxseed, western oats, and barley were lower. Cattle and beef were higher, but hogs and hog products continued to decline. All dairy products were higher except cheese. Fresh Canadian fruits and potatoes advanced, but imported fruits, beans, onions and canned vegetables were lower. Record prices for lute and the highest price for cotton since 1911 raised the level of textiles. Copper, brass and lead were up, but steel, tin, quicksilver, and silver were lower. Brooms were steeply up. Rope and raw rubber declined in retail prices. Meats, eggs, milk and butter were higher, but there was a general decline in potatoes as the crop came on the market. Beans, flour, rolled oats and sugar showed weaker tendencies, the general effect of the month's changes was to send the level distinctly higher.

WENT OUT HUNTING IN CARPET SLIPPERS

Became Lost in Woods and Was Exposed to Weather for Days.

PARRY SOUND, Nov. 15.—Last Friday, an unusually warm day, Frank Kleibitz, of Mount Vernon, New York, who was employed by the Sloan Hunt Club of Toronto, at the hunting camp, in Burton Township, north of here, followed the hunters into the woods, being clad in his ordinary house clothes and carpet slippers. On his failure to return search was made in every direction. Other hunters and settlers and Provincial Constable Maricle joined in a systematic search but without avail until Wednesday, when the lost man was found near Bolger Lake, some miles from his starting point. Notwithstanding the severe frost and heavy snow the man was found alive, but he only lived about three hours after being found. He is said to be married, and has a family. MANILA, Nov. 15.—An anti-slavery law was passed to-day by the Philippine National Assembly after a heated debate.

DEAD CAT THROWN AT THE IRISH SECRETARY

Militants Start Uproar at Hon. Mr. Burrell's Meeting at Bristol.

LONDON, Nov. 15.—Lord High Chancellor Haldane, speaking at Edinburgh and Augustine Birrell, chief secretary for Ireland, addressing an audience at Bristol, were subjected to suffragette disturbances last night. A dead cat thrown at Mr. Birrell set the meeting in an uproar, and when offenders were ejected a general fight ensued. In his speech Mr. Birrell said that it was hoped a settlement of the strike in Dublin would be speedily arranged. He said the government was placing all legitimate pressure on the employers with that object in view.

MISS HELEN DINSMORE HUNTINGTON

The above photograph of Miss Huntington, Mr. Astor's fiancée, was posed for on the sun parlor of her home at Staatsburg, N. Y., and is the first photograph taken in recent months.

She is a tall and slender girl, with healthy red cheeks and yellow hair—a typical American girl. ## Reception By Judge And Mrs. Hardy Judge and Mrs. Hardy held a delightful reception at the Conservatory of Music Thursday, when the latter, looking handsome in a satin frock embroidered with jet, and wearing a cameo necklet, had a kind word of welcome for the many guests who came from "town" and city to the At Home. It was indeed an interesting event, when their charming daughter, Miss Doris Hardy made her debut looking very pretty and graceful in a white charmose, with shadow lace overdress and carried an armful of pink and crimson roses, that were sent by friends for the occasion. What a spacious room for a reception. A cosy corner banked with crimson and pink roses. In the centre of the room a huge stand of golden mums, over which hung softly shaded pink lights. To be sure this is "a garden of the gods" with such nice people from everywhere, with whom it was a pleasure to enjoy news and views. Many friends were happy to welcome Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Hardy of Brockville to homeland again, who came to be present at the coming-out of their niece. In the further end of the room a long table was prettily arrayed with a large basket of ferns and the tea and coffee hostesses were kept very busy supplying the cup that cheers to the numerous guests. Those in charge of the table were: Mesdames E. L. Gould, A. J. Wilkes, R. H. Reville, H. McKenzie Wilson, H. Yates, F. D. Reville with the following bevy of pretty girls as assistants: Misses Marjorie Wilkes, Gretchen Dunstan, Nora Wallace, Dorothy Wilkes, Adelaide Montzambert, Evelyn and Kathleen Buck, Marion Watts, Little Minkie and Deutschen VanWestrum and Gwen Wilkes.

From a struggling mission it is now a flourishing one, with many energetic members working in its behalf. Tea will be served and a pleasant social evening will no doubt be enjoyed at the 57th anniversary of the flourishing mission.

A very pleasant event took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Peddie, Mohawk Road, Thursday last in honor of Mr. John Spence, foreman of the Mohawk Institute, who is leaving shortly for Scotland and England. About 40 of his friends gave him a surprise; music and games and gramophone selections were enjoyed by all, when suddenly "Jack" Mitchell read a very suitable address and Mr. Peddie presented him with a suit case. Mr. Spence, although taken by surprise, responded in a neat speech. Lunch was then served which brought a very enjoyable evening to a close, all thanking Mr and Mrs Peddie for their kind hospitality.

Tuesday, Brant Avenue was bright with many callers, who were much in evidence. The first touch of winter in its snowy coat, brought out fair femininity in furs and furbelows. She was assisted by Mrs. James Sutherland. The polished mahogany table with its lace centre, and large bunch of golden mums, was in charge of Mrs. John Wallace and Mrs. Geo. Was Missing For 24 Years Skeletons of British Crew Found in Far Away Patagonia (Canadian Press Despatch.) SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 15.—Another mystery of the sea is thought to have been solved in a story brought to this port to-day of the discovery of the British ship Marlborough, which has been missing for 24 years. The ship aground on the rocks and the skeletons of her crew of thirty men have been found in a cove near Punta Arenas, Patagonia. Evidence pointed to a fight with natives, who, after murdering the crew, despoiled the vessel of its cargo. The human bones, scattered classes and disordered decks told the story of the massacre. The ship's log was not decipherable.

With the City Police Magistrate Livingston showed leniency this morning at the court when dealing with Archie McCoy, a non-descript, who was described by Chief Sleiman as a menace to the community. He had not worked for some time, and was charged with being a "vag." It was shown that he had had several chances previously, but had not made good. On this occasion he spun a yarn about getting a steady job on a local lady's farm, and when it was verified over the phone he just escaped six months on the prison farm. The case was adjourned for a week to see if McCoy showed a tendency to mend his ways.

A Smash-Up On Colborne Street Yesterday. THE PAY OF MEMBERS

At a conference of Unionists in the Old Land it was decided, among other things, to favor the abolition of $2000 a year salary to members of Parliament, and herein this paper considers that they made a mistake.

Many months of each year have to be spent at Westminster if a representative attends to his duties, and this formerly meant that very largely the House was barred to men except those of means.

There are many—yes, very many—calls upon the purse of anyone elected to Parliament, contributions to societies, fairs and other events, levies for the general party fund, and so on, and then there is the living expense during sessions, added, as a rule, to the upkeep of a local household and the financial loss during absence from business.

In Canada the members of the Dominion House receive $2500 per annum and those of the Ontario House $1400. In neither case are they given one cent too much.

THE PANAMA CANAL

A London cable says that the near approach of the completion of the Panama Canal is responsible for considerable activity in the ship building trade both in Great Britain and elsewhere.

North American seaports are preparing for the opening of that waterway at the beginning of 1915. From inquiries made by the Wall Street Journal, it is concluded that not less than $100,000,000 is represented in the commitments already made and under consideration, including Federal appropriations.

Public harbor improvements at Boston under the State Harbor Commission of which General Hugh Hancock is the head, has at its disposal $3,000,000 for improving terminal facilities; $3,000,000 worth of bonds have already been sold and another $3,000,000 is to be marketed in the near future.

At New York the port improvements with the canal in view are likewise part of the general policy under which the board of estimate has set aside $15,000,000 for the department of docks and ferries, of bonds representing self-sustaining dock properties.

Canada is not making extensive preparations. The general tendency in this country seems to be one of caution, probably with a view to waiting for actual results of the operation of the canal.

CANADIAN FIRE LOSSES.

Attention has more than once been called in these columns to the abnormal fire loss in Canada.

Conservation, the organ of the Dominion Commission of Conservation, for October, gives a list of comparative fire losses of different countries in 1912. The table following was made from information gathered in cities of over 20,000 population and shows the losses by fire per head of their population:

Table with 2 columns: Country, Loss per head of population. Includes England, France, Germany, Ireland, Scotland, Italy, Russia, Austria.

Around the City Hall

It has been pointed out that a practice has grown up amongst builders and contractors throughout the city of cutting down the values put down on the permits taken out and that as a result the city's total building permit values at the end of the year are but a poor indication of the real building growth of the city.

Price of Geese. Two geese were offered on the market this morning for a dollar apiece. A purchaser hove in sight and purchased one. A look of disgust came on the farmer's face as he tried to prevail on the purchaser to take both geese.

Identity of "Mystery Ship". The consensus of opinion was that the boat was about 44 feet wide, and canal style or longer. The names Price, Regina and Caruthers passed in course of the investigation, but when all was concluded there was only one opinion.

NOTES AND COMMENTS

Borden Club. If you want to have your adipose tissues in good shape you'd better join the same.

The boy stood on the burning deck, Whence all but he had fled. He said: "My only hope of joy, Is join the Borden Club instead."

The Toronto Globe, during the course of some editorial comment, says: "It is the typical Conservative view of constructive statesmanship; and the race will never die out. You bet your life it won't, sonny. Just come and have a look at the progressive four Brants."

At a meeting in the Old Land a man who sympathizes with the militant suffragettes hit Mr. Birrell, Chief Secretary for Ireland, with a defunct cat. That was better, anyway, than getting an over-ripe egg laid by a venerable hen.

Morticians

Long ago, when man departed, from this earth to face his Maker, then his loved ones, broken hearted, called the village undertaker; now when man's in that condition, dead as Death can ever make him, people summon the mortician to embalm and undertake him.

A Fine Concert. The Ladies Aid of Wellington St. Church held a concert in the church last evening at which a very large number were present.

A Physical Wreck. Suffered Tortures from Nervousness. Miss Marguerite Lees, 91 Robert St., Hamilton, Ont., writes: "I was a wreck, reduced in body and despondent. I suffered tortures from nervousness, and was totally unfit for work. A friend recommended Hood's Sarsaparilla. I commenced taking it and by the time the second bottle was consumed I knew that I was mending. Gradually I grew well. I have used Hood's since. I would not be without it on any account, and do most enthusiastically endorse every word in its favor."

Health Of The City Has Been Very Good

Report of Medical Health Officer Pearson Last Night—Other Reports Read.

Reports were received last night at the annual meeting of the Board of Health from Medical Health Officer Pearson, Sanitary Inspector Gloer and Dr. Cutcliffe, Dairy Inspector. In the reports many things were commended and many improvements suggested. The Mayor was the only member not present.

Dr. Pearson's Report.

During the year 109 children under one year passed away. Out of this group 46 cases were due to cholera infantum and infantile digestive diseases. Particularly during the hot summer months was this in evidence, bringing up the subject of food and feeding. The doctor says: "No doubt if the proper conditions with regard to these matters were observed, a great many of these cases could have been saved. This is an important matter and one which deserves earnest attention, and again convinces me that a municipal depot where properly sterilized milk could be obtained, under the care of a special nurse, who could instruct mothers, etc., would have a decided effect in reducing this mortality."

During the year 370 deaths have occurred.

During the year there have been two cases of smallpox, both having been contracted from outside sources. The doctor drew attention to the inadequate means for caring for the disease. He urged for a suitably located and adequately equipped building, in which patients can be given proper treatment. He points out that no time should be lost in again urging upon the Council the necessity of a building.

Obituary

Many friends will learn with sincere regret of the death of Mr. Kelly, 123 Winnett St., who passed away early this morning, following a week's illness with pneumonia. The deceased was 72 years of age and had resided in Brantford for 13 years, during most of which time he was an employee of the Massey-Harris Company. Besides a widow, he leaves six sons and three daughters to survive, Edward, Woodstock, John J. of the East End Fire Hall, William, Michael, city, Lawrence of Manly, Ia., Frank, Hamilton, Mrs. William Mullaney, city and Maggie and Alice at home. ### Funeral of Mr. Stratford

—Resolution Passed by Hospital Board.

The funeral of the late Mr. Jos. Stratford takes place this afternoon from the house to Grace church and thence to Greenwood cemetery. Ven. Archdeacon Mackenzie will be the officiating minister. The Masons, Doric Lodge, will have charge.

The pallbearers are: Graham Harold, Joe. George and Arthur Stratford and R. G. O. Thomson of Toronto, son-in-law.

Mr. J. Kerr Osborne, of Toronto, a brother-in-law, is among the chief mourners. The main floral tributes include tokens from Doric Lodge, the Hospital Governors, the Superintendent of that institution and Nurses, the Farmers' Binder Twine Co., and tokens from many individual friends.

Resolution of Governors.

At a special meeting of the board of hospital governors this afternoon, the following resolution was passed: That the governors of the Brantford General Hospital desire to place upon record their deep sense of the loss occasioned to the Board by the demise of the late Mr. Joseph Stratford.

Health Of The City

Has Been Very Good

They can testify to the fact that for over a score of years he as President, in succession to the late Mr. John H. Stratford, who first generously made a gift to the city of the institution, performed many laborious and self-sacrificing services on behalf of the sick and the afflicted, and his many benefactions were not only numerous but continual.

They also wish to place upon record their appreciation of the magnanimity with which, in view of larger needs, he voluntarily consented to an alteration of the deed of trust in order to transform the enterprise into a body of governors representative of various institutions in this City and County.

They further desire to place upon record their deep appreciation of his constant and assiduous care with regard to what he deemed to be a sacred trust and to reaffirm, which all with whom he came contact, realized that he held very dear to his heart, and practised, all that he deemed to be the advantage of this very great benefaction.

Resolved—That as a mark of tribute and heart-felt respect the members of this Board attend the funeral in a body.

Mystery Is Cleared Up

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

PORT HURON, Mich., Nov. 15.—The overturned vessel which has been lying in Lake Huron, a few miles northeast of here, since Sunday's great storm, was to-day positively identified as the Charles S. Price. A diver is said to have learned the news.

Local News

Division Court

Division Court will be held on Monday at the Court House before His Honor Judge Hardy. The usual number of cases are on the list.

Are in the City

Messrs. Cohen and Wright, of Wright, Hazzard and Cohen, the contractors for the raising of Lorne bridge, are guests at the Bodega.

Handsome Residence.

In this week's issue of the Toronto Saturday Night, under an article on "City and Country Homes," is given a description of Col. M. F. Muir's home, "Gaywood," illustrated by three photographs, one of the house, one showing a view of the river from the house and another of "The Glen," which is on the Colonel's property.

Basketball Game.

Last evening at the Y. M. C. A. in an exciting game of basketball, Woolman's team defeated Welch's team. Score 4 to 0. Myer's defeated Adams' score was 16 to 6. Two games of baseball will be played to-night. First game at 8 o'clock between Woodley and Danby's teams. At 8.30 Adams and Myers teams will play. Following the baseball, two basketball games will be played between teams captained by Walsh and McGraw, and Woodley and Adams.

The Royal Templars

There was a large turnout of the Royal Templars on Thursday evening last. The night of the evening's entertainment was the mock trial for breach of promise. The play was charmingly enacted, and was certainly enjoyed by the members and their friends. At the conclusion refreshments were served. Bro. Shepperson acted as judge, and gave his decisions impartially. Needless to state all the members in the act performed splendidly, but special mention must be made of the magnificent manner in which Bro. Brown took off the part as counsel for the defence. He certainly took his part fine, as also did the charming plaintiff, although she was non-suited the jury bringing in their verdict in favor of the defendant with costs. Bro. Jarvis, as counsel for the plaintiff, asked leave to appeal, which was granted, and no doubt the case will be re-tried soon.

ENJOYABLE DANCE GIVEN

MURPHY SAID TO BE RETIRING

Chicago Owner Has Got to be Very Unpopular With Fans.

We understand Chicago fans are predicting that the name of Charles W. Murphy will be erased off major league baseball within another year, more or less, writes Jack West in the Philadelphia Times. The owner of the Chicago Cubs has sailed from New York for a sojourn through Europe and has said that the followers of the national pastime are not regretting the loss of Murphy in the least. Because the Cubs failed to finish the 1913 baseball season better than 1912, Cholly is enabled to go about his business without creating any too much excitement. We are all so put hep to the fact that Windy City newspapers have refused to publish Murphy's home-made press notices, while some critics are positive in their assertions that Murphy will sell out his stock of the Bearlets either before or after the 1914 campaign. Murphy was anxious to have a pennant winning ball club last year, and although Johnny Evers made a good showing with his team as could be expected, Charles W. was not any too much satisfied with the final standing of the aggregation representing Old Chi in the National League. It seems as if Murphy has made quite a little money out of baseball, and now that the Chicago press is "panning" him he can afford to sell out and not get any the worse of it.

In a certain Ohio city a liberal minded preacher ran for the office of mayor at the recent election on a platform that advocated Sunday baseball. He had two opponents and his vote was considerably more than the two combined.

A Hot Time

Labor Leaders Play Suffragette Pranks in B. C.

VANCOUVER, B. C., Nov. 15.—Scenes of wild excitement took place last night at a meeting addressed by Attorney-General Bowser, before the local Conservative Association. There was a large sprinkling of the United Mine Workers of America present and during the course of Bowser's speech they commenced to sing "Red Flag." Questions were hurled at the speaker and he was forced several times to take his seat. Eventually he answered his interrogators and the singing and disorder were resumed. Eventually the police were sent for and a posse of detectives and uniformed officers put in an appearance at the hall where the meeting was being held. The meeting ended amidst scenes of disorder. At New Westminster, Hon. Price Eliso, Minister of Finance in the Provincial Legislature who addressing a meeting of Conservatives was also howled down, it is presumed, by a band of labor men who were scattered through the hall.

REDMOND ATTACKED BY A SUFFRAGETTE

Women Entered Train Compartment and Slapped Him in Face.

NEWCASTLE, England, Nov. 15.—John Redmond, the Irish leader, and his wife, were attacked by a suffragette yesterday while on board a train at Durham. The suffragette entered the compartment where Mr. and Mrs. Redmond were seated, and after declaring that the Irish leader had not done enough for women, struck him on the head and Mrs. Redmond on the back. She then scattered the contents of a bag of flour over Mr. and Mrs. Redmond. A train attendant forcibly ejected the woman from the train and handed her over to the police.
Mr. Redmond in a speech delivered in the Town Hall here last evening said that there was no demand, however extravagant or unreasonable, that might be put forth on behalf of the Ulster Unionists which the Nationalists would not be ready to consider so long as it was consistent with the principal of national self-government for Ireland. If the opponents to Home Rule remained obdurate and would agree to no reasonable settlement, Mr. Redmond besought the country not to slam the doors in the face of Ireland "because of fear of fanatics or the bludgeons of bullets."

HORSE IS KING AT THE BIG SHOW

The World's Best Equines Are Gathered At New York.

[Canadian Press Despatch]
NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—The best of the world's horses were quartered at Madison Square Garden to-day for the 20th annual exhibition of the National Horse Show Association. The show opened this afternoon with 1,750 entries, and a record-breaking number of exhibitors. Only a few years back the novelty of the automobile detracted from this annual exhibition; but this year the horse returned to favor.

Six foreign countries, England, France, Belgium, Russia, Norway and Canada, have sent their best military riders to contest with the cavalry officers of the United States. It was the Russians first appearance at an American horse show. Last June at the London show they carried away first prize. The military officers are especially keen to capture the Canadian Challenge Cup, now held by Captain Mervyn Cradshaw of the Fifth Dragoon Guards, England. Other trophies offered for the army riders are the American Cup, valued at $500, for jumping over the course by teams of three officers of the same nationality in uniform, and the Beresford Challenge Cup presented by Col. Robert Decies, and open to officers of the United States army only.
The interior of the garden has been transformed to represent a Roman temple, the centre on the steps of which the victors will stand in the glare of calciums. The Italian effect was heightened by spreading pale blue veiling under the glass of the roof.

Modern Beacon Fires

THE old beacon fires were the great advertising mediums of their age.

Though they could not advertise merchandise, they advertised the things of most vital interest to the people.

Placed on the summits of high hills, bearing a message to thousands of "readers," they were prototypes of those modern fires of Twentieth Century commerce—the "beacon" fires of Newspaper Advertising.

The advertisements appearing in the newspapers to-day are shining lights in the world of commerce, flashing out news and information to a waiting world.

When the modern manufacturer lights the Beacon Fires of Newspaper Advertising he places his message before the people in a way that will impart knowledge, beget appreciation and win preference for his goods.

Who can fail to see any day the gleaming messages of "Magic Baking Powder," "Standard Ideal Ware," "Sunlight Soap," "Gillette Safety Razors," "Penman's Underwear," "Infants' Delight Soap," and many others?

To the Manufacturers of Canada
Each day sees more articles given publicity in the newspapers. Are your products and your brand still in the valley of obscurity, or are they blazoned forth by the beacon fires of advertising on the high hills of public favor?

If you are doing a local business talk over your advertising problems with the Advertising Department of this newspaper.
If you are doing a provincial or national business it would be well for you to have the counsel and assistance of a good advertising agency. A list of these will be furnished, without cost or obligation, by the Secretary of Canadian Press Association, Room 503, Lansdowne Building, Toronto.

On Your Way

Get ready for a trip to the great Panama Canal. It isn't a boat trip, nor is it a trip by train.

Why, nothing less than a step into the front door of a Panama, on through the Isthmus by easy stages and out into the Pacific Ocean without even wetting the sole of a shoe.
How's it all done?

The Courier gives you the opportunity through a beautiful big illustrated book called "Panama and the Canal in Picture and Prose." This book tells you of the strange natives of the Canal zone, their characteristics and customs; also their costumes, which are designed to show more of their anatomy than is shown even in polite circles of modern society; it portrays the beauties of the jungle, the floating islands, the flowers and trees of this wonderful tropical country.

This volume becomes a source of education to every one who possesses it. Everybody should know of the wonders of the great canal and its surrounding territory. The entire story is told in this magnificent book.
The Courier has arranged to present these volumes to readers as explained in the Panama certificate which will be printed daily in these columns. Six of these certificates are required, together with a small expense amount to cover the mere items of the cost of distribution.

Collegiate Board

Congratulates the Rugby
Team—Trustees Meet
Last Night.

At a meeting of the Collegiate Board last night it was decided to purchase some French literature and French pictures to be used in the modern language department.

A motion was passed by the board recognizing the splendid showing which was made by the Rugby football team in winning the district championship.

The school management committee reported that they had engaged the services of C. H. Kirby, who has about the same university qualifications as Mr. W. H. Martin, and who was assistant lecturer at the University of Toronto, to fill the vacancy caused by Mr. Martin's return to the faculty of education for another year.

The Department of Education has only granted a permit to Mr. Kirby until December 31st, 1913, and requested the board to advertise for a specialist. It was stated that the advertisement had been running now for about two weeks, but up to the present time no qualified specialist has applied.

Accounts amounting to $502.65
were passed and ordered to be paid.
The cost of maintenance for the night classes during the month of October amounted to $147.50.

The buildings and grounds committee were instructed to take up the question of light and power contracts with the Hydro Electric Commission.

Mr. Ryerson reported that the recent rainstorm had caused considerable damage to one of the terraces at the rear of the school. It is not likely that anything will be done to the said grounds until next Spring.

The Rugby Football team will hold a banquet in the near future.

All pupils from the Mohawk Institute will in future pay the same rate as other county pupils, namely $30.

STILL BUSY DOING M'GRAW'S TRADING

Dopists Fire All But One or Two of the N. Y. Giants.

NEW YORK, N.Y., Nov. 15.—This is the time of year when every member of a vanquished championship team—with one or two exceptions—is either traded or sold to a rival outfit. Already no less than three Giants have been mentioned as probable absentees from McGraw's line-up for next season.

Red John Murray, he of the iron arm, is said to be headed for the base ball guillotine. Jawh has saved many games for the Giants by his headstrong and accurate pegging, but he has failed in the pinches, and McGraw insists upon a player who can produce in a tight situation.

Claudius Cooper is about ready for major league service. He has been in the McGraw school for two years now, and has absorbed a platform of base ball knowledge from the bench, with McGraw as his tutor.

Also Thorpe's base running must be improved. Jim possesses the natural speed, but he has yet to get the knack of leaping the ground between the baselines.

knack of leaping the ground between the baselines. From all indications, big Ed Konetchy of the Cardinals will covet around first base for the Giants during the 1914 pennant chase.

SOME GRANTLAND RICE OBSERVATIONS. Copiskey has one of the greatest young left-handers ever uncovered in Tex' Russell. But working a young pitcher overtime from April to October, and then having him peg the pill around the world through fall and winter isn't our idea of the best way to conserve talent.

Just as McGraw's pitchers concluded their rebuttal against Collins and Baker they started weeding and bumped into Speaker and Crawford. But before bemoaning their wretched lot they should cheer up.

Griffith, Unlike Most Managers, Is Not Claiming Flag for 1914

Washington Leader Says He Believes That His Club, Philadelphia, Boston and Cleveland Will Make the Running Next Season.

WASHINGTON, D.C., Nov. 14.—Clark Griffith, contrary to reports flying about the country, has not claimed the 1914 pennant in the American League.

"Nor is he considering it for a minute. Two second place finishes have shown him that he must strengthen his team, if he would beat out the Philadelphia Athletics, and so far, attempts at strengthening his team have failed, except in the box.

"In the first place, kindly fix me right with the country," chirps the scrappy leader of the Climbers. "I have not claimed the pennant in 1914, nor do I intend to do so. But I have set a task for myself which may bring the flag to Washington, that of breaking even with the Philadelphia Athletics.

"Therefore next year I shall point my team for the Athletics first, last and all the time, confident that if I can break even with them I shall have a chance for the pennant. But this will be a tough job, if the last two campaigns' count for anything. The Mackmen seem to have it on us whenever they meet us.

Both Are Great, All Will Admit, But Which Is Greater of the Two

Herman Wecke Furnishes Some Interesting Dope on Lajoie and Wagner, But It Does Not Answer the Question He Asks.

Napoleon Lajoie of the Naps or Hans Wagner of the Pirates. Who is the greater player of the two? There is nothing to it, but this pair is just about the greatest that ever graced the national pastime.

For years and years this pair has been belting the opposition's pitchers for .300 averages. And they did it in 1913. During the course of the season both were out of the game owing to injuries.

MORRIS TO MEET JESS IN GOTHAM

Big Heavyweights Agree to Box December 2- Present White Hopes.

When Carl Morris was asked if he would box Jess Willard at Madison Square Garden the night of Dec. 2, the huge Oklahoma fighter went into a spasm of joy.

"Will I fight him?" he repeated. "Do I want to do anything else but fight? Take the match, Billy, and let me have him."

Billy Newman, who is managing Morris' affairs, smiled sympathetically.

"We have been waiting on Jim Bunckley long enough he said, "and it's very plain to see that he doesn't want to send Gumbo Smith against Morris again. Willard is just the man we need in our business. Smith couldn't do any better than get a doubtful decision over Jess on the coast, and if Morris puts him away in a hurry, I guess that will show some of these folks just where we stand."

There was a little airy persiflage indulged in on both sides, and finally the match was arranged. Standing by listening to the argument, was gaunt old Bob Fitzsimmons, hero of many a hard fought tussle between the ropes. When the confab was over, the writer took old Bob by the arm.

"What do you think of the bout, Bob?" he asked.

The veteran spat, disgustedly. "What do you think of it?" he responded. "Say, I've seen the day when I'd take one or the other of this big fat, overgrown slob and topple each one for the count inside of a round. Fighters! Gawd blime, I never see such a lot of goms!"

I Don't Get You

"I don't quite get you," queried the scribe. "Did you say goms? What may those be?"

"Back in 'th' old days," said Fitz, "when I worked in the Cornwall mines, there was a bunch of freshies who oster come down quite gallus 'fore they got used to the close atmosphere. Presently they'd fall over, knocked out and 'ad to be carried to the outside air. Goms was what we called 'em, an' it seemed to me that 'wot suits the present generation of 'eavyweights."

So long as Fitz had his punch in working order none of the big heavyweights had a chance with him. One can fancy how Morris, Willard and the rest would have toppled over before the terrific right jolts of the blacksmith from New Zealand, when the latter was in his prime. Take Ed Dunkhorst, for instance. Dunkhorst was known as the "Human Freight Car." In condition he weighed about 300 pounds, a veritable Colossus of Gath. Peter Maher had failed to stop him. Gus Rublin had proved equally unsuccessful. Joe Choyanski had tried his science and hitting power in vain. Tommy Ryan thought he had found another Jeffries. Dunkhorst looked like a sure work beater. So they matched Dunkhorst with Fitz.

Bob walked up to the giant, feinted him out, and slammed that famous right right to the jaw. Dunkhorst fell with a crash that shook the building and didn't come to for twenty minutes.

Fitzsimmons was born on the 4th of June, 1862, at Elston, Cornwall, England, and in that locality his boyhood days were passed. At nine years of age he went in company with his parents to Lyttleton, New Zealand, where the life of the prize ring hero really began. Schooling was distasteful to young Bob. He did have, however, an inclination to excel in athletic sports, such as running and walking. Boxing had not as yet been included among his accomplishments, but he had learned that in the rough and tumble game, which was the usual windup of a schoolboy's sports, he was well able to take care of himself.

His first fight was with a burly blacksmith, and Fitz got out of the maiden class by scoring a complete knockout. Talk of his achievement soon spread, and it was mooted abroad that he would be just the man to represent Timaru in the boxing tourney which Jim Mace, England's famous champion, who was then touring the colonies had decided to arrange. Fitzsimmons weighed then about 150 pounds and was very deceptive in appearance, being big and loose jointed. Mace sized him up for a heavyweight and commented sarcastically on his nerve in entering a tournament where slashing big heavyweights were entered for the trophy.

Fitz only grinned and said he couldn't do any worse than get licked. So it was with the expectation of seeing the Timaru youngster get whipped in a hurry that England's champion accepted his entry and permitted him to box.

Mace Liked Bob

Mace was quite taken with Fitzsimmons when he saw him stripped. He felt those big sinewy muscles, and told the now grateful youth that if he could box at all he ought to win at least one of the four bouts that he was scheduled to take part in. But Mace didn't really appreciate Fitz's fistic quality until he saw him stand up before that quartette of fighters and bowl them over one after the other, smiling placidly as each one trotted up to take his medicine. The entire four were knocked out completely, and for the first time Timaru realized that it would one day figure in pugilistic history.

Just a year later Mace came around with his aggregation of fistic stars, which included Herbert Slade, the Maori half-breed. Fitz was on deck at once and offered to put the gloves on with anyone in the company. They let Bob have a chance at Slade, and the red top was pounded the line out of Mace's champion, when the latter stopped the bout to save his man from a clean knockout. A fight between Mace and Fitzsimmons followed, and Bob offered to take on the champion himself. They donned the mitts, but before a blow was struck the spectators hissed Mace so vigorously for taking advantage of a novice that the British champion walked to his corner and declined to go any further.

We all know what happened to Slade when Mace brought the half-breed to this country and pitted him against John L. Sullivan. The latter finished the job that Fitz began and nothing more was heard of the Maori.

From then on Fitz became a notorious ring hero. We can afford to pass over his fights with Jim Hall, in which the speckled athlete took the count, for he proved later at New Orleans that he was Hall's master. Until old Father Time put a crimp in his muscles there was none to compare with him. And you can just imagine the slow, greasy chuckle he indulged in the other day as he harked to big Carl Morris agreeing to fight that other large animal.

How soft either man would have been for him in the days when he was really Bob Fitzsimmons, the speckled terror of the prize ring!

Both Are Great

He faced Jimmy Callahan's moundmen 58 times and rapped out 26 hits for a .448 mark. And the pitchers of the Sox were not all in down and outers, either. They owned such stars as 'Red Russell, Jimmy Scott, Eddie Crotte and others, but they could not fool Lajoie. He hit them all and hard at that.

He had the next greatest success against the Red Sox. Collins, Bedient, Wood & Co. were pelted for a .431 mark. Against the Brownie pitchers he battled .369, while he swatted for a .328 notch against the moundmen of the champion Athletics.

Eddie Plank of the Mackinacs was one of Nap's easy marks. He swatted the southpaw of the world's champions, who won the big title for the Athletics by trimming the Giants in the final game for nine safeties in 21 tries. Eight hits out of 14 tries of Eddie Crotte was the best done by Lajoie.

During the run of the season, only four pitchers in the American league were able to keep the Nap star from hitting safe. He faced Tom Hughes of the Naps six times without making a safety, while Joe Wood and Ed Walsh fooled him four times. Charley Hall of the Red Sox held him hitless three times he faced him.

Wagner Bunched His Hits

It was somewhat different with Wagner, though. He hit over .300 against the slabmen of only three clubs in the National League during the 1913 season. They were the Cardinals, Giants and Braves.

The Pirate shortstop, who was out of the running at the start of the season with a bad knee and pronounced by any to be "through" as far as baseball was concerned, came through with the best exhibition with the big war club against the Cardinals. Huggins' pitchers were batted for a .301 average. Wagner making nine bingles in 23 tries off the slabmen of the Britton clan.

But the hurlers for the Cardinals were not the only ones he prospered against. John McGraw's pitchers, the ones that won the National League pennant for him and then failed in their attempt to stop the batters of the Athletics, came in for their share of the hitting. In fact, Wagner made more base hits off the Giants' pitchers than any set in the Tom Lynch circuit.

And Mathewson was the easiest of the bunch. Hans made 34 bingles off the Giant boxmen in 90 tries for a .378 average and nine of these were made off the Old Master in 23 attempts. Demaree was pelted for 23 times, while in 20 attempts against Testar the Pirate short fielder made seven safeties. Rubie Marquard, who held Hans to three bingles in 13 tries did by far the best work.

The Braves' boxmen, the only other set Wagner was able to bat .300 against handed him 21 bingles in 64 tries for a .328 mark.

Wagner experienced his toughest job against the hurlers of the Reds: Joe Tinker, who once stopped the Pirate slugger with 12 hits in 58 attempts for an average of .207. Against the other clubs he batted as follows: Philadelphia .278, Chicago .270, and Brooklyn .270.

Just like Lajoie, only four pitchers were able to stop him without a bingle. Jack Quinn, who once hurled for the Yankees and was turned over to the International League, only to be recruited by the Boston Braves, stopped him without a base hit in four tries he faced him. Lavender and Stack of the Cubs and Harter of Cincinnati were the others to keep him from polling safely.

Baseball, As Played Around the Hot Stove Circuit

John McGraw is telling some interesting stories of his experiences on the present world tour of the Giants and White Sox. One of the funniest he thinks, is the appearance at every stopping point of some rustic who believes he is a Mathewson or a Johnson in the making and only wants McGraw to give him a chance to prove it. "We have not played a town where some fellow has not braided me and thought that he was a big leaguer and ready to take his place with the Giants next year so as to help with the world's championship," says McGraw. "Most of them carry their batting averages and a scrapbook with the press comments on their showings for my inspection. We give all these boys a tryout, because a fellow never knows when he is going to uncover a real diamond."

"A pitcher came out to the park at Muskogee with a basketful of clip-pings from the local paper boasting himself. These notes said he was a Mathewson and a Walter Johnson combined. I asked him to step into the box and throw a few balls for batting practice."

"Don't put everything you've got on the ball at first, but warm up slowly," I directed him.

"I did not surprise me when the hitters plastered his delivery all over the lot at the beginning, because I thought he was taking it easy. At last, after he had had a good warm-up and I thought he should be thoroughly worked out, I went to him and said:

"Now give it everything you've got."

"I have been," he said.

"Come out of there," was all I had to say.

"They gave us a little party after the game and I got to talking to some of the local baseball promoters."

"How does it come that this bird we had out there pitching this afternoon got such good notices in the paper?" I asked one of them. "He didn't have a thing but his glove."

"He runs the paper," answered the promoter promptly. "He has been writing his own press notices."

"The secret of successful second-sacking is ability to throw accurately underhanded," said Lee Magee. "Watch Johnny Evers and Miller Huggins closely. They throw underhanded better than any men in the business. A second sacker who has to straighten up to make the throw to first loses a fraction of a second. That narrow margin will lose many ball games. Huggins has an ideal way of jerking the ball to first on plays to his right. He also shoots the ball underhanded on about half of the double plays he figures in. Evers is the same. Evers shines at taking throws with one hand and slapping the ball on the base runners. That's the big percentage to a second sacker."

When Manager George Stallings let Nap Myers get to Rochester, the lanky first-base man set up a great "holler," claiming that he was being punished for his activity in behalf of the Players' Fraternity. A story told, however, indicates that the beginning of the split between Stallings and Myers, which became so wide there was no chance for them to get along, came from a trivial incident prompted by Stallings' superstition. One day Myers appeared, wearing a yellow necktie. Stallings got the notion it was a hoodoo. He grabbed the tie and burned it up in the club house. A quarrel resulted that grew until it prompted the manager to dispose of his first baseman, though, of course, he might have been released anyway.

Steve Evans and Arnold Hanser had been on a fishing and hunting trip in the Ozarks. The ball players floated down the Niagara River and located a camp at Ha Ha Tonka.

While buying supplies for the party at a little town on the Gasconade River Steve Evans met a native who inquired:

"What are you all doin' down here, feller?"

"Surest thing, you know," replied Evans.

"How'dju find the timber?" continued the mountaineer.

"Full of tiny holes," declared Steve, who is a natural born comedian.

"Woodpeckers must have been busier than bees 'all summer," replied the home guard, with a knowing wink. "Whatju pay for your nails?"

That question simply stumped Evans and Hanser. As diplomatically as they could they sidestepped the Ozarkian and beat it back to camp.

"If you name that Dutch blazen Bismarck, I'll beat a soft ball into his bean," announced the first office boy.

"I asked young Herriman hopefully, I lick this Bismarck kid, do I not?"

"I have been," he said.

"Come out of there," was all I had to say.

"They gave us a little party after the game and I got to talking to some of the local baseball promoters."

"The tradition of the office," said one of Herriman's old friends, "was that the boy should always be nicknamed Bismarck." So that the first boy was so known in the shop. When the second boy came along the shop intellects were strained almost to the breaking point. Obviously there could not be two Bismarcks. Also there were interecnic troubles to be feared.

DOINGS IN THE WORLD OF LABOR

GLEANED FROM THE EXCHANGES AND OTHER SOURCES

The New York State Federation of Labor at the recent convention adopted a resolution asking for a law to provide for a minimum wage scale of $13 per week.

The United Mine Workers are winning in their contest with the coal barons in southern Colorado. Up to October 11th, 20 independent operators had signed up agreements and recognized the union.

New York Upholsters have practically won their strike, declared 12 weeks ago. 43 out of 46 firms having now signed up. Out of 1,000 strikers all but 150 have returned to work, and only three firms are now opposing the union's demands. These firms are practically closed and are expected now that the break has come to fall in line.

The Pacific Coast Maritime Builders' Federation has voted to affiliate with the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners and the necessary articles of affiliation are now being drawn up. The Federation has a membership of over four thousand contained in 22 local unions, and claims jurisdiction over the construction of all water craft where it holds a footing.

All trades in the photograph-making industry in New York City, including operators, darkroom employees, retouchers, printers, finishers, and miscellaneous workers, have formed a strong organization, and have applied to the A. F. of M. for a charter. The workers in these crafts work exceedingly long hours and are paid an inadequate rate of wages. They will make a demand for a shorter workday and a higher standard of remuneration.

Found guilty in the Court of Special Sessions Brooklyn, N. Y., of selling rotten frankfurters, the firm of Swift and Co. was fined $500 by Judges O'Keefe, Collins and Moss, following a severe criticism of the company by the court. On July

DON'T DISSIPATE THEIR WEALTH

Astor and Harriman Are Hard-Headed Men of Millions.

NEW YORK, Nov.—Broadway is full of rich men's sons after dark each evening. That is why Broadway keeps the lamps lit. That is also why a sensational pulpiter said the other day:

"God save New York from this plague of rich men's sons."

But if all the rich men's sons were like the heirs of two of America's greatest fortunes, Broadway would have the balliffs in a month. The Astor money and the Harriman money is never heard of on Broadway—and there is nothing sadder than the young man spending his first million. Pink lampshades and a waiter in black and white over the left shoulder and a French chauffeur out in front do not interest William Vincent Astor or William Averill Harriman. They are not dustily serious all the time, of course. No youngster of 22 is. If he is, it's a signal to call on the old family physician. And they not only have gumption and industry, but a very practical interest in the great civic problems of the day.

"They are as alike," said a warm friend of the pair, "as two hatchets in some respects. And in other ways they are absolutely dissimilar."

They're of the same age to a day. On November the 15 next each will celebrate his twenty-second birthday. Astor is now in unhampered possession of the most solid fortune in America. Other men have more than the seventy million with which he is credited—but real estate rarely increases materially in value. The $100,000,000 fortune of Edward H. Harriman was left, unreservedly, to his widow. She can dispose of every cent as she sees fit. But it is well understood that the bulk is to go to Averill Harriman. Astor works several hours each day in the office of the Astor estate. Harriman is a clerk in the Union Pacific offices. It is his ambition to some day head the great system his father built. Harriman was graduated from Yale, Astor was obliged to leave Harvard at the time of his father's death in the Titanic disaster.

Interested in Sports

Both are interested in sports. Harriman was head coach of the Yale rowing crew at one time. He likes to drive and knows a good horse. Astor could make a good living as a mechanic. Now and then he gets into a canvas suit and takes down a few motors and put them together again, and is perfectly happy for hours. It is his interest in mechanics that has led him into various experiments with flying boats and sea sleds and fast motor cars. Also he likes to ride very fast. Astor is an inch more than six feet tall, with dark hair and blue eyes, and is very slender. Harriman is tall and broad shouldered and robust. Astor likes yachting and Harriman boats. They are good friends but not close comrades.

"It's odd, too," said a friend, "for they think alike on most public matters. There's an Honest Ballot association in this city. When it was first formed the cash box was absolutely empty. An enthusiast explained the

Typos Vote to Work Five Days a Week to Give Unemployed a Chance.

The spirit of trades unionism was amply demonstrated recently when the Vancouver, B.C., Typographical Union by a practically unanimous vote decided to enact a five day per week by-law. It was pointed out that many members were out of work and action looking to their relief was imperatively necessary.

It is obligatory in such a case to have, at least a two-thirds vote recorded, but the printers went better than that and made it just about a nearly unanimous as possible. The rules were suspended for a period of four weeks or until the following winter, when if the necessity still exists the time may be extended for another four weeks, and right through the winter if the members so vote, and employment continues to be scarce.

This will mean, that the printing fraternity, or at least that branch of it pertaining to the typists, have voluntarily deprived themselves of one day's wages per week to help their less fortunate brethren who will be benefited to that extent and it will mean that every craftsman will have an opportunity to earn enough to carry him over a slack season. This is an object lesson that the opponents of organized labor might well take to heart, but it is only in line with the spirit of the movement, which is always stretching out a helping hand to the unfortunate and the distressed and recognizes that an injury to one is an injury to all. At the same time it was reported that the sum of two hundred dollars had been raised by subscription for the widow of a deceased brother. Another hundred dollars was voted to the Federated fund to buy the women and children of the striking printers on Vancouver Island a suitable Christmas present. These generous acts are in line with hundreds of others that are constantly being enacted by the workers of the labor movement, and of which the public seldom hears. To the old Biblical question of "Am I my brother's keeper?" trades unionism answers, "Yes."

Zam-Buk took out all the fire, and quickly gave him ease. Within three weeks of commencing with Zam-Buk treatment, every sore had been cured."

This is but one of the many letters we are constantly receiving from people who have proved the healing powers of Zam-Buk. For eczema, piles, sores, burns, cuts and all skin troubles there is nothing like this wonderful balm. No skin disease should be considered incurable until Zam-Buk has been tried.

ECZEMA

situation to Astor. Astor likes to sit on his shoulder blades while the other man is explaining the situation. Between times he puffs at a big black cigar. His eyes never leave those of his caller. He may end the interview very courteously, but very decidedly. If he is interested, he asks questions.

"He has a gift for asking questions," said one man who knew. "All his life he has been on the defensive against men who want a part of his money. And he can get the kernel of truth out of the nut of answer."

So that Astor gave a fat check. It happened that the next man the solicitor called on was Averill Harriman. He listened in his own way, which is quite unlike that of Astor's. Harriman sits straight with chin up and shoulders swung well back. He hardly asks a question until the man has said all that he can say. Then Harriman goes to the weak point in the story with his probe. On this occasion he gave a check that matched that of Astor. The pair of 2-year-old youngsters are the principal backers of the Honest Ballot association.

One day Vincent Astor strolled into fusion headquarters.

"I want to know what is being done," he said, simply. "I am interested."

So that he sat down in various deep easy chairs and smoked and thoughtfully regarded various persons who told him what was being done and what was needed. By and by he said that he would give a check.

"But anyone can write a check," he added. "I want to do some real work if it is only to put down balls." That made him treasurer of the committee. Critics will say that rich men are always regarded as highly eligible as treasurers of political committees. They are supposed to pay the shot when the fun is over. But Astor isn't that sort of a treasurer. He could pay the whole cost of the fusion campaign and at the end not be able to find the scratch in his bank balance. But he has collected money. And his advice about the spending of money has been worth taking.

"Both go frequently to the theaters," said a mutual friend. "They run strongly to musical comedies of quality. Astor has figured in one press agent romance."

"I have seen the young woman several times and liked her," he said at last. "But there is no truth in all this mushy talk. We've never been in love."

Neither man could properly be called a deep student of civic affairs. Each prefers a good novel to a thick book full of dry facts. But each keeps abreast of modern thought on public problems. It is likely that each has read at least a digest of every important publication along these lines in late years. Harriman has read very widely along the railroad groove. For very obvious reasons Astor has become something of a lawyer. His millions are not speculative or shifting, but a fairly close knowledge of many laws is required in their administration.

Harriman has entered into only a portion of his inheritance. He is becoming a keen, careful business man, somewhat slow of decision, and showing a disposition toward independent judgment. It is reported, but not upon wholly responsible authority, that he regards government ownership of railroads as a possibility of the future, to be averted by the administration of the great systems as though they were only held in trust for the common good.

Astor's first order was to clean out of all the Astor-owned buildings tenants of doubtful character. His hope is to be of real public service. But he is no half-baked young rich man, whose soft pocketbook may be tapped by every needy grafter in the name of philanthropy. No man in America gets more begging letters or answers fewer. Now and then he gives money because he is sure that a good cause will be helped by it—though he is also sure that some of it will be diverted on the way.

His farm at Rhinebeck is an index to his character. He is trying to find out just what crops are genuinely profitable, and how profitable they should be. One of these days he will give that information to the world.

Accounts are kept with as great accuracy as though it were a bank. "If a rich man can run a farm and make it pay," Astor said on one occasion, "a poor man should be able to do so." Which is something of a cynicism itself.

HOW EVELYN THAW DANCES, AS SEEN BY A TORONTO CRITIC

A dramatic writer in this week's Saturday Night, expresses the following on Evelyn Nesbit Thaw: "Vainly people who out of unholy curiosity went to the Royal Alexandra this week to see Evelyn Nesbit Thaw have been thoroughly punished. They have been punished two dollars a seat—or whatever it was they paid for them. They have also been mugged the time they wasted and the mental agony they endured seeing a number of vaudeville performers who are not good enough to get on the regular vaudeville circuit. As for Evelyn herself—the most talked of woman in the world," according to the posters—we have no desire to be unkind. And heaven knows we are not censorious! But no amount of notoriety, however unsavory, could disguise her homeliness or her utter lack of intelligence and skill—on the stage at least. In the witness box, I am prepared to admit she may—but on the stage, no! Of course we did not go to see her of our own accord. Nothing but the oath of obedience we took when we became a newspaperman—durs not to reason why, ours but to go and be—forced up to be present. We begged the managing-editor to remember our tender youth and our spiritual leanings. But he merely made a coarse and unfeeling remark to the effect that we probably meant spiritual and that the leanings had reference to a brass rail. So, disguising ourself as a member of the Vice Committee by assuming a keen and agonized expression, we hurried in, hoping no one would recognize us. But it was all right. All our friends were there, and no one can point the finger of scorn. We were all investigating together. The first part of the programme was vaudeville. We say this without prejudice to vaudeville, which is really quite a worthy form of entertainment—at times. First a gentleman of the name of Fouchere did a number of things on bicycles, which are possibly quite hard to do. But we have seen lots of acrobats do described as "modern ballroom dancing," meaning that they wore evening-dresses. It would perhaps be more correct to say that Mr. Clifford danced, unmaking use of Mrs Thaw in the various figures. For Evelyn cannot dance in any sense beyond that of the mechanical performance of a few simple steps. Jack Clifford does all the rest, and he could really give an excellent exhibition if he had a partner and an opportunity. But after all people didn't go to see Evelyn dance or act—her acting is even poorer than her dancing. They merely went to see her, and they were given every opportunity. Frankness seems to be the keynote of Evelyn's character. She whirled and kicked with all the energy of which she is capable, but frankly it was a very pale exhibition. For Evelyn's figure is really a very, very ordinary "finger" indeed—the kind they put on the back rows of large choruses. She hasn't even a pretty face, though her smile is ingenuous and at times attractive.

THREE CENT THEATRES

Cleveland Exhibitors Who Charge That Price Will Be Barred from the League. An attempt on the part of a few exhibitors in Cleveland to inaugurate a three-cent admission price has been taken in hand by the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League, and the latter body has determined to bar such exhibitors from membership in the League. This class of theatres is giving three reels for the three-cent admission, and so far as is known Cleveland is the only city in the country attempting to show pictures at such a low price.

President Noy of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League, recently paid a brief visit to Boston, and declared that he found conditions very discouraging from the exhibitor's point of view. "The Boston exhibitors are struggling," he said, "against the adverse condition of running eight to ten pictures, and in a few houses six acts of vaudeville and eight pictures are run for the ten cents." It is an effort to improve conditions in Massachusetts, George F. Washburn of the Unique Theatre, Boston, has taken charge of an active campaign for new members for the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League.

KITTY GORDON COLAPSES

And Therefore Her Engagement at Los Angeles Is Cancelled. Kitty Gordon collapsed on the stage of the Majestic Theatre, Los Angeles, night of Oct. 30, while playing her role in The Enchantress. The audience was dismissed and the engagement for the week cancelled. Miss Gordon remained in a state of unconsciousness for several hours. Her condition was such that she was unable to care for herself, and she was taken to a hospital. It is expected that she will be able to return to her work in a few days.

It appears that worries caused by financial difficulties were at the bottom of Miss Gordon's collapse. The company has been confronting disruption because of business reverses. Miss Gordon is arranging for one more performance in Los Angeles to obtain funds to return her stranded company back to New York. Tom Wise as P. T. Barnum.

Acting on the announced policy of the late P. T. Barnum that the public likes to be fooled, Thomas Wise is shortly to make the people believe that he is the famous show man, Harrison Rhodes, who wrote "A Gentleman from Mississippi" for Mr. Wise, has completed arrangements with Charles Frohman to collaborate with Mr. Wise on a comedy called "The Prince of Showmen." It is said that the inspiration for the piece came through a resemblance between the great circus king and the genial comedian. The piece is already under way and is scheduled for production in March. Mr. Wise was last under Frohman management in "HooK of Holland."

Maxims of the Stage

We must accept the premises of the dramatist or else avoid challenging his conclusions—James Huncker. Plucky Faversham Pittsburg Gazette-Times: William Faversham, according to The Dramatic Mirror, has declared his allegiance to the British crown, and in Canada made some speeches which depicted Canada's dependence upon the United States for its dramatic entertainment. Quite a lucky thing for an American actor to do.

University of Character

Comprehends some slight touch at least of vulgarity.—George Bernard Shaw. When a comedy of mine is performed, it is nothing to me that the spectators laugh—any fool can make an audience laugh. I want to see how many of them, laughing or grave, have tears in their eyes.—George Bernard Shaw.

REVIEW OF REVIEWS

By A Passerby. Comment on Current Events of the Past Week As Seen By a Courier Representative.

The Queen of Suffragettes, Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst is at present on a visit to this side of the Atlantic. She is said to have come to form an opinion of the great question of Women's Suffrage as it is here. Others say her visit is a practical effort to augment the funds of the society. If we combine the two, she will make a fair voyage. Here she is looked upon in many lights. Some regard her as a brave woman and others denounce her as a lawbreaker. Across in England, however, outside of her circle, she is looked upon as a woman not fit to be at large. A storm of indignation was aroused against Mr. McKenna, the Home Secretary for his lenient treatment of the sect, if any of Mrs. Pankhurst followers had died in prison, as the result of the starvation crusade, the British people would have regarded it as a suicide. The State were afraid of it being murder.

The English employer, his manager and his workmen, alike condemn the methods of the militants. The Englishman is a fair minded man and opinion differs on the question of Women's Suffrage, but all are unanimous with regard to Mrs. Pankhurst, her methods and her followers. There are not many towns in the British Isles where the militants have established headquarters, but the anti-militants have a far reaching circle and are established in almost every town of any importance. The anti-militants are just as eager for women's suffrage as are the militants and they use sane methods. Mrs. Pankhurst's school are retarding the very movement which they intend to advance. Much better work for the cause is effected by the non-militants who work in a womanly way and therefore succeed. Even though accomplishing much, the gentler workers and their progress greatly hampered by the impression which the militants have cast upon the mind of the working woman. These wives of working men, who found the two societies, men, who judged against the enfranchisement of women on account of the notorious character of the leaders of the movement, whom they naturally associate with any Suffrage organization.

British women do not sympathize with the Militant League. It is true that Mrs. Pankhurst is fighting for a great object, the vote for women. But what does the over-grown woman care for the vote. The vast majority of British women do not care a straw for it, and would rather be content with their lot. The enlightened few would not materially affect the constitution of Parliament until they had awakened the working man's wife to the importance of the ballot. If she was asked about it, she would say that she had enough to do without going into politics. Therefore her vote would go to the party her husband favors. There is another side to the question. It is not likely to cause strife between man and wife when they favor opposite parties. Much slier things than party politics have been the ruin of a home. And one can have decided party convictions.

Then again, if a romantic young woman of hazy political views had a vote and, of two Parliamentary candidates, one is young and handsome, but lacks experience, and the other is grey and sixty and overflowing with knowledge; who is going to get that vote? Not the man who merits it. Is he? Woman's mind is said to work on many wheels and therefore many a woman might get to the voting booth before she has decided as to her choice and then if a grain of superstition is in her nature it is likely that she will close her eyes and trust to providence to guide her pencil to the right man. Here the question at present stands, a little study in politics would not do hurt at the fair ones of the poll; and then why not give them a trial. This would settle the whole business at once, and why not?

The nude in art has rendered holy the beauty of woman. Moral as regards the body as obscene. It hides it with drapery. There is an infinite difference between the nude and the naked. The nude is pure. The great artist holds the mirror up to nature. Little souls are ashamed of nature.—Robert Ingersoll.

introduced the two gentlemen, quietly withdrew before I had a solitary concession."

"There is to be no rebate," declared Keitel. "Why should there be a rebate? You have to ship over our roads...

"That is exactly what I don't like about it. You haven't set your rate high enough for a good margin of profit from the small shippers."

"The margin of profit on all shipments is to be exactly the same," replied Rollins. "Just disburse your mind, Mr. Hepperdon, of the idea that there is to be a concession of any sort..."

"I mean it absolutely," Hepperdon studied him in silence for awhile. There was no doubt that Rollins meant precisely what he said...

"More than any one aggregation of business interests in the United States," declared Hepperdon. "I own exclusively a cabinet office, five United States senators, more than a dozen United States representatives and half a dozen governors and minor officials..."

"That tallies very well with our estimate," said Breed. "We may want to borrow this influence of yours a little later on, Hepperdon. In the meantime suppose you just go ahead and pay the flat rate of Rollins and say nothing. Leave it to me."

"Sure," said Hepperdon. "I knew there must be a nigger in the wood pile some place. You're looking very well indeed, Breed."

"The next day brought Raymer, ray-bone and wooden featured, but fairly oily in his snarling, and the head of the beef trust, and Valentine, little and screechy and marked with countless black freckles, and the head of the woolen combine. In unison and garbled with many rugged epithets, Mr. Raymer and Mr. Valentine declared to Mr. Rollins that they would invoke special legislation which would put his railway monopoly out of the business, dissolve it and separate it into healthy competition, scattered into easily handled fragments..."

"The ensuing two weeks were taken up by a succession of such incidents as these, and at the conclusion of that time Representative Oswald introduced into the house a bill providing that no railroad should own stock in another one; that no man should vote as proxy or ownership, in more than one of two or more competing roads and that no railroad official should hold either office or stock in another line of rails which reached between any two same shipping points. This was the strap, or rather, the rule of thumb, which snapped Rollins already highly strung nervous tension. He came to Breed and Keitel in much distress. Really, it was not so much a surprise to Keitel and Breed as it might have been, for it was they who had instructed Hepperdon as to the psychological moment in which to have Oswald introduce his bill."

"I expected nothing else," said Breed, glancing at the marconigram and handing it to Keitel. "You know, we told you in the first place that it might be necessary to make certain concessions."

"I expected nothing else," said Breed, glancing at the marconigram and handing it to Keitel. "You know, we told you in the first place that it might be necessary to make certain concessions."

"I will resign from my management before I make a solitary concession," declared Rollins. "Would you pay $2,000 for a building or if you knew that you could immediately sell it for $10,000?" demanded Keitel.

"Certainly," replied Rollins. "But I don't see where the illustration applies."

"In just this way," explained Keitel. "With concessions by legislators from enough of these men to secure legislative control, and so after the manner of this great flat rate, pretty wide scope, Rollins, and it proceeds as until we can control our own legislation. We have, Mr. Breed and myself, as you must have appreciated by now, certain large ideas of reform. There never was a more just and equitable contrivance than your flat freight rate, but you can see at once what powerful interests are arrayed against it. We must conclude those with you, Hepperdon, and Raymer's interests until we can buy them or supplant them with some of our own."

"It is a very simple proposition, Rollins," argued Breed. "You are already granting these concessions in order to be able later on to refuse them."

"Doing evil that good may come," laughed Rollins a little uneasily. "Put it that way if you like," responded Breed dryly. "But when you are president of the United States with the house of representatives and the senate in thorough sympathy with you?"

"President!" exclaimed Rollins. "Yes, president," returned Breed. "I don't mind telling you our state now. Our program includes this coming campaign running Keitel for president and yourself for vice president. Mr. Keitel wants but four years as president. At the expiration of his term of office we intend to put you up for president."

"And we'll elect you!" supplemented Keitel confidently. "President!" repeated Rollins in a daze. "They had touched the right cord. To be president?"

"The plans are under way," stated Breed. "We have had them secretly at work for a year. Today we could almost do without Hepperdon and Raymer and the others, but not quite. What do you suppose became of all the so-called railroad senators? Did you ever wonder why they bothered you so little? Well, I took care of them—added them to my group. Mr. Rollins, I am an old man."

"I have done some evil in my life, I suppose, but all this time I have been acquiring power, more power than any man in the world has ever possessed, and I intend to use the power for good. I intend to upset the very conditions by which I gained this power, for it is the fault of our economic system that I have so wonderfully succeeded. This fault is to be remedied. For the rest of my life I want to exert this great power for nothing but good, to exert it in making a readjustment of our living conditions so that neither great wealth nor great poverty shall be possible. The Lord hath set the time for this great day, and mine is the appointed hand!"

CHAPTER XV. BOTH men looked at Breed curiously. He was not now addressing them, but gazing intently into the fireplace. Dr. Zephan came hurriedly over and put his hand upon Breed. The door opened, and Lillian came in. She had been about to ask some trivial question, but seeing that look in her grandfather's face, she, too, hurried over to him and put her hand upon his other shoulder. At Zephan's touch Breed had given no sign, but the touch of Lillian he responded instantly. The rigidity of his features relaxed. He shook his head as one shakes off drowsiness and then looked up at Keitel with a resumption of his old shrewd twinkling eye.

"So that's the program," he said in quiet a natural tone of voice. "Next year we'll run the ticket of Keitel and Rollins."

"Rollins caught his breath with a sharp little intake. "It is a high honor," he said. Keitel laughed lightly. "No honor could be too high for my greed of power," he said in a half jesting tone. "I am still of the opinion that I should like to be emperor."

was very awkward of me. As it happens, this is only Mr. Keitel's paper knife, which I accidentally brushed off the corner of my desk. But after all, it is a dagger, too, and rather an unlucky one to drop at the feet of a man who declares his desire to be emperor of the United States."

"The incident was passed over as of no moment, and Rollins laughed in amusement. "Your man Blagg is as good as a vandeville," he observed. "At first I was inclined to take him rather seriously, but he's too melodramatic to mean anything. I happened to see that paper knife incident out of the corner of my eye. Blagg deliberately pushed it off the desk to fall at your feet."

Keitel joined in the laugh. "He's absolutely harmless," he said, "but he's an excellent wireless operator." Shortly afterward the paper knife disappeared from Keitel's desk, but no one noticed its absence. He had but one possible result—Hepperdon and Raymer got their concessions, as did a few others. Raymer had originally appeared as representing the entire packers' combine, but when the matter was put squarely up to him he promptly disappeared. Alton Sears & Co. and the rest of them out in the cold, took a comfortable rebate for his own shipments and let them pay the full freight. Valentine was left out, pointing out that Breed himself had done all but one of the men whom Valentine claimed as his own. The Oswald bill was killed in committee.

Valentine was one of the loudest objectors. His business was ruined, and our program included this coming campaign running Keitel for president and yourself for vice president. Mr. Keitel wants but four years as president. At the expiration of his term of office we intend to put you up for president."

"And we'll elect you!" supplemented Keitel confidently. "President!" repeated Rollins in a daze. "They had touched the right cord. To be president?"

"The plans are under way," stated Breed. "We have had them secretly at work for a year. Today we could almost do without Hepperdon and Raymer and the others, but not quite. What do you suppose became of all the so-called railroad senators? Did you ever wonder why they bothered you so little? Well, I took care of them—added them to my group. The Lord hath set the time for this great day, and mine is the appointed hand!"

"I expected nothing else," said Breed, glancing at the marconigram and handing it to Keitel. "You know, we told you in the first place that it might be necessary to make certain concessions."

"I expected nothing else," said Breed, glancing at the marconigram and handing it to Keitel. "You know, we told you in the first place that it might be necessary to make certain concessions."

"Sincerely," returned Keitel, with a smile, "since we ourselves are the law-making body, so long as we keep the pulpit from clanking too much to their servants in Washington, I've just purchased stock in the government—former assets of Hepperdon and Raymer and their fellow landlards—to give you control."

"Rollins looked troubled. "I don't like it," he said. "Nonsense," declared Keitel. "We're using it to a good end. You can establish your flat rate now as you planned in the first place. We're going to begin the battle of the trusts in earnest."

"The battle of the trusts," repeated Rollins musingly. "It sounds interesting at best."

"It won't be, though," replied Keitel with contempt. "There will be no battle whatever. I'm merely going to chloroform them on the eve of the presidential nomination. About the most popular idea that was ever put before the vast unsuccessful majority of the voting public is the grade property tax. Well, I'm going to turn the tax into a corporation tax and then have Mr. Breed's carefully framed legislation frame that suggestion into a law and pass it into a law. The wealthier corporations the more it will be taxed per rate until toward the top the tax will become prohibitive. The law is already as good as passed, and I imagine that it will be quite a shock to your old friends Hepperdon and Valentine and Blagg and Sears, Alton Sears & Co. and a few others. Eh, Mr. Breed?"

But Henry Breed did not hear Philip. He had just taken from the drawer of his desk a handful of photographs, a piece of red wax, a hammer, and some tools and was starting for the rear study. As he passed Philip caught a glimpse of the top photograph. It was a portrait of Hepperdon.

A cleanly dressed fellow, a big man with a thick neck and broad shoulders and arms that hung crooked at the elbows, alighted at a little wilderness station on the Long Island railroad behind Keitel and Sam. A farmer-like native approached the more prosperous appearing Philip.

"You, Mr. Keitel?" he demanded. "The same," replied Keitel. "This is Mr. Purser, I believe?" "I reckon so," admitted the other. "Old Hayseed Purser."

"AND WE'LL ELECT YOU!" SUPPLEMENTED KEITEL CONFIDENTLY. "President!" repeated Rollins in a daze. "They had touched the right cord. To be president?"

"The plans are under way," stated Breed. "We have had them secretly at work for a year. Today we could almost do without Hepperdon and Raymer and the others, but not quite. ONE MORE ADDED TO THE LONG LIST

Of Women Who Owe Their Health to Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Mrs. John Cabot. Recommends Dodd's Kidney Pills to All Who Suffer from Backache, Headache and Nervousness.

WHITE HEAD PERCE, Que., Nov. 10.—(Special)—As a remedy for women Dodd's Kidney Pills hold an enviable place in the estimation of the people of Quebec, and Mrs. John Cabot, a highly-respected lady living here, adds her name to the long list of those who stand ready to tell of the good work they are doing.

"My trouble," Mrs. Cabot states, "started from a cold, and I suffered for six years. I was already tired and nervous. I was greatly troubled with my back, and at the same time with neuralgia, rheumatism and Bright's disease added to my pains. I had dark circles under my eyes; I perspired freely with the slightest exertion, and my perspiration had an unpleasant odor."

"I could find nothing to relieve me till I started to use Dodd's Kidney Pills. I can heartily recommend Dodd's Kidney Pills to all who suffer from headache, and nervousness. Nearly all women's troubles are caused by diseased or disordered kidneys. Dodd's Kidney Pills bring back youth to women by curing their kidneys."

WHAT IT REALLY IS. "I thought he said he was making $10,000 a year?" "That was before the income tax went into effect. Now he admits he's only getting $1,800."

introduced the two gentlemen, quietly withdrew before I had a solitary concession."

"There is to be no rebate," declared Keitel. "Why should there be a rebate? You have to ship over our roads...

"That is exactly what I don't like about it. You haven't set your rate high enough for a good margin of profit from the small shippers."

"The margin of profit on all shipments is to be exactly the same," replied Rollins. "Just disburse your mind, Mr. Hepperdon, of the idea that there is to be a concession of any sort..."

"I mean it absolutely," Hepperdon studied him in silence for awhile. There was no doubt that Rollins meant precisely what he said...

"More than any one aggregation of business interests in the United States," declared Hepperdon. "I own exclusively a cabinet office, five United States senators, more than a dozen United States representatives and half a dozen governors and minor officials..."

"That tallies very well with our estimate," said Breed. "We may want to borrow this influence of yours a little later on, Hepperdon. In the meantime suppose you just go ahead and pay the flat rate of Rollins and say nothing. Leave it to me."

"Sure," said Hepperdon. "I knew there must be a nigger in the wood pile some place. You're looking very well indeed, Breed."

"The next day brought Raymer, ray-bone and wooden featured, but fairly oily in his snarling, and the head of the beef trust, and Valentine, little and screechy and marked with countless black freckles, and the head of the woolen combine. In unison and garbled with many rugged epithets, Mr. Raymer and Mr. Valentine declared to Mr. Rollins that they would invoke special legislation which would put his railway monopoly out of the business, dissolve it and separate it into healthy competition, scattered into easily handled fragments..."

"The ensuing two weeks were taken up by a succession of such incidents as these, and at the conclusion of that time Representative Oswald introduced into the house a bill providing that no railroad should own stock in another one; that no man should vote as proxy or ownership, in more than one of two or more competing roads and that no railroad official should hold either office or stock in another line of rails which reached between any two same shipping points. This was the strap, or rather, the rule of thumb, which snapped Rollins already highly strung nervous tension. He came to Breed and Keitel in much distress. Really, it was not so much a surprise to Keitel and Breed as it might have been, for it was they who had instructed Hepperdon as to the psychological moment in which to have Oswald introduce his bill."

"I expected nothing else," said Breed, glancing at the marconigram and handing it to Keitel. "You know, we told you in the first place that it might be necessary to make certain concessions."

To The Editor

"THE GLEBE PROPERTY"

To the Editor Courier.

Sir,—In answer to a letter of Josiah Hill, Secretary S. N. C., in a recent issue of The Courier, permit me to ask a few questions:

1. When the article re Glebe property was first seen in the Expositor why was it not responded in the same paper?

2. Why is Mr. Brewster drawn into the vortex when he is not a member of the Federal House which deals with Indian affairs?

3. What untrue representations did Mr. Cockshut make in connection with this property?

4. How does the writer know of these representations?

5. Has the writer a wireless connection with Mr. Cockshut?

6. Was the whole Glebe property, which was said to be under the control of two hundred acres or thereabouts, to be residential property for the missionary?

7. Has the writer any proof, other than saga, to support his assertion that only chiefs of the Anglican Church, signed the deed of surrender?

8. What was the stolen march perpetrated upon the Six Nations by the Church of England members? Was it the surrender of part of the Mohawk Indian property to the Cockshut people or some other of the many such deals about which the writer and his friends find so much fault?

9. Did the writer of this letter, who ostensibly does not belong to the Church of England, not receive his share of the loaf of old time when he received his education from the hands of the New England Co?

10. Was the writer's letter by order of the Six Nations Council? Was it presented to the Council for its approval? Or was it a midnight contention?

11. Whose brain composed the letter presumably written by Joseph Hill?

WINNING CHRIST LOSING ALL ELSE

The Prize of All Eternity God is Now Offering.

FROM THE BIBLE STANDPOINT

What Winning Christ Means—It Signifies More Than a Reformation of Life and a Pursuit of Righteousness. More Than Merely Believing In Jesus as Our Saviour — It Is Preceded by a Devotion, or Consecration, of Our All to God—And God's Acceptance of Our Consecration—Then the Race Begins—Its Outcome Will Determine Whether or Not We Win Christ—St. Paul an Exemplar—Sentiments From Every Nation and Denomination Will Be Winners — Their Reward.

Brooklyn, N.Y., Nov. 9.—Pastor Russell's two addresses here today. We report the one from the text, "Yes, doubtless, I count all things but loss for the excellency of the knowledge of Christ Jesus my Lord, for whom I have sacrificed all things." (Philippians 3:8)

PASTOR RUSSELL

Christians seem to be perfectly grasping the plain teachings of the New Testament respecting membership in the Body of Christ. Some assume that it is to be had on some basis of favoritism and that they will be of the Elect. Others think that the Apostle is using figures of speech to an extreme fashion, and vaguely hope that they belong to the right Church and will attain what others get as in the success of a party in which all the victors share the spoils.

No doubt the errors of the Dark Ages absorbed in childhood have been more or less responsible for these vagaries and for our general neglect of proper Bible study. It seems hard for the people of God to realize that the wisdom from Above is the noblest science and the best instruction; and that it needs intelligent and systematic study as much as do earthly sciences. But we are learning, and thank God! progress is being made in these things.

What is ordinarily termed conversion is not what St. Paul refers to in the text as "winning Christ." The word conversion signifies "to turn about." It implies that a wrong course has been pursued, that the error of the way has been detected, and that the right to the proper one has been made. The wrong course is the sinful course, which brings injury and injustice on others. We never had a right to the things we got; to some extent we are excusable for we were born with downward tendencies, an inherited predisposition to sin.

We inherited these depraved appetites and tendencies from our forefathers under the general laws of heredity. A realization that sin always brings sorrow is a sufficient reason for a course of conversion. One, therefore, is merely the operation of a sane mind in turning about from things recognized to be injurious. Every sensible person should be converted from sin to righteousness.

Conversion may have Christ connected with it, or it may not. Many are converted without any real knowledge of the Gospel of Christ. They merely knew that they were going in a wrong direction, and turned about to take the proper course. But this act can successfully pursue a right course, and strong characters are in the minority. Whether strong or weak in character, great aid will surely be experienced by those who, at the time of their conversion, have a knowledge of Christ and an appreciation of His work and His teachings.

Nothing else gives such fortitude as the hope set before us in the Gospel, and the realization that there is a future life provided through Christ for all mankind, and that our course in the present life will have much to do with the stripes, or punishments, we shall receive here or in the future life—necessary to fit us for Divine favor and everlasting life.

One might reform his life, and have a knowledge of Jesus and of the life to come secured through His death, and of the fact that "whatsoever a man sows that shall he also reap"; and yet, with all that correct belief and reformation of life, he might not be a Christian at all, in the Bible sense of that term. We would not, therefore, discuss those steps already outlined. We would, on the contrary, encourage them so far as they are necessary, but we would not pass anything further can expect to be attained.

As already stated, reformation and righteous living commend themselves to all intelligent minds, and it is an advantage to the individual to the world of mankind. Let us discuss Christianity, not from the ordinary standpoint, which classes every civilized person as a Christian, but from the Bible standpoint, which assures us that if any man is a Christian he is a New Creature—"old things have passed away; all things have become new."

This does not mean that a Christian is living a reformed life merely; nor that he has attained the condition of absolute perfection, which he is useless in thought, word and act; it merely means that a Christian has entered a new life, has a new high time that we allow God's Word to be heard, and that we take His Word at its full value.

I well know the objection that many give us, saying, "I don't believe in the Bible Election God does the electing, and each nominated person either makes his calling and election sure, or fails to do so. The responsibility lies with the individual favored and experienced pronounced relief very which knowledge constitutes a call. Furthermore, the Bible Election works no injury to the non-elect. Quite the contrary. The Election of the Kingdom class, along the lines of character-development, obedience to God and self-sacrifice, is for the very purpose of qualifying these elect ones for the great work to which they are called. The elect seed of Abraham is fit for the Divine service, God revealed that He would send a special Messenger of the Covenant; and that through Him, as Prophet, Priest and King, to take the Divine purpose, established; and later on it would be given the glory and honor, the rule of the world.

When Jesus at His First Advent began the work of selecting this Kingdom class. First of all, He laid the broad foundation by dying for the sins of the whole world. Then, from among the redeemed ones He began to select the members of the Kingdom. And this has been the work of this entire Gospel Age. Everything else on earth has been secondary to this Divine purpose.

Soon the selective, or elective, work will be finished. Soon it will be determined who will be of the Kingdom class. God's determination will be based upon the fact that the co-workers will be all sharers in the First or Chief Resurrection, to be priests unto God and unto Christ and to reign with Him on the earth.—Revelation 20:4, 6.

All who will be of that select Kingdom class will be members of the foretold seed of Abraham, Jesus was of Abraham's stock through His miraculous birth, and after He had laid down His life sacrificially and was raised from the dead by the glory of the Father, no more a man, but a New Creature of the Divine nature, even after having been begotten of the spirit plane. His Church, called to be of the Kingdom class, are to be Abraham's Seed on the same spirit plane. We are not ignoring the fact that Abraham has an earthly seed as well, and that it to belong certain earthly promises. We are merely pointing out that the Scriptures clearly teach that the earthly seed cannot have its share in the work of blessing others, that the Heavenly Seed, the Spiritual Seed of Abraham, shall have been re-created in the First Resurrection.

The Scriptures declare that the Kingdom of the Father will be given to the Kingdom of the Son. One of these classes the Scriptures liken to the sow who returns to her wallowing in the mire. We are not ignoring the fact that the Spirit of the Truth, and abiding in their consecration together. (2 Peter 2:22) These will die the Second Death. Whether their number is large or small is not for us to judge. We may reasonably hope that the unfaithful characters do not predominate.

There comes another class that the Scriptures declare will go to the Kingdom prize. Although members of the Body of Christ now in the present life, they will not be amongst the "those that conquer" who will be members of the Body, but amongst the "great company." How great their number is, in proportion to the number who win Christ, the Scriptures do not tell; therefore we must withhold judgment in the matter. The Scriptures tell us that while these love the Truth, appreciate their Christ, they do not yet fall to complete the sacrifice they had agreed to make; and the hindrance is their lack of sufficient love for the Lord and His work. Their lack of zeal leads them to hold back from sacrifice, although they do not draw back to willful sin, as do the other class. They hold back through fear of death, writes the Apostle: "Who through fear of death were not able to complete the sacrifice they had agreed to make; and the hindrance is their lack of sufficient love for the Lord and His work. Their lack of zeal leads them to hold back from sacrifice, although they do not draw back to willful sin, as do the other class. A GREAT BELIEVER IN "FRUIT-A-TIVES"

Well Known Ontario Merchant Has Faith Because "Fruit-a-tives" Cured Him

BRONTE, ONT., MARCH 1st, 1912. "Fruit-a-tives has made a complete cure in my case of Rheumatism, that had at least five years standing before I commenced the treatment. The trouble was principally in my right hip and shoulder, the pain from it was almost unendurable. Not being able to sleep on that side, if I chanced to turn on my right side while asleep, the pain would immediately awaken me. This kept up until I started taking "Fruit-a-tives". I started by taking one or two tablets with a large glass of water, in the morning before breakfast and experienced pronounced relief very shortly. After a continued treatment for about six months, I was cured and am now in first-class health. This, I attribute to my persistent use of "Fruit-a-tives" and I heartily recommend your remedy to any Rheumatic sufferer.

TOPICS OF TO-DAY.

Though at one time in the early history of the country an average of 6,000 maple trees were destroyed in clearing the ordinary New York or Pennsylvania farm, maple is today, according to the Department of Agriculture, one of the most widely used and valuable native hardwoods. Wood block paving, tried and discarded in many cities of the United States thirty years ago, is now coming back into marked favor, due to improved methods of treating and handling the blocks.

FRUGALITY.

The daughter of a southern Congressman had recently been a bridesmaid at the marriage of a college chum. On her return home she was telling the family, including the old colored mammy, of the ceremony. "And just think, Aunt Comfort," she finished, "the bride wore the lace veil that had belonged to her great grandmother!"

True Tales of Adventure and MYSTERY of VANISHED HEIRS TO FORTUNES

(Copyright, 1913, by the New York Herald Co. All rights reserved.) WHEN the news, subsequently denied, came over the cable recently that Lord de Freyne had died at his country seat in County Roscommon, Ireland, the story of his eldest son, heir to the title and estates, the Honorable Arthur Reginald French, who ran away from home in 1905 and became Private French of the United States Army, was recalled by many persons.

This is one of the many romantic stories in regard to heirs to titles or estates who come to this country, sometimes avowedly to better their fortunes, sometimes for a taste of adventure. Others, for one reason or another, not only drop their titles but sink their identity while sojourning here.

The Honorable Arthur Reginald French apparently came over to see the country on this side of the water, intending to stay as long as he liked it. As many a young man starting out to see the world has done, he got his experiences rapidly, paying quite a high price for them, and being of a proud spirit, preferred to pay the penalty and to recoup his fortunes rather than to appeal to his family for help.

For the first few days after he went aboard the steamship Umbria he held himself aloof from his fellow passengers. The purser later said that he had noticed several men whose appearance he did not like trying to ingratiate themselves in the young man's favor. As he knew who Mr. French was he warned him against the men, but the youth laughingly replied that a man who had been an officer in the British army could take care of himself on a shipboard. The purser was especially anxious as he knew that Mr. French had a draft for £200 in addition to considerable cash that he carried with him.

When Lieutenant French left the Umbria to go to the St. Denis Hotel two of the men accompanied him and the draft for £200 was later cashed by one of them. The older men offered to show the younger the sights of New York. First they went to the Bowers, but the stranger passed through its allurements without serious harm. Next he was introduced to the Tenderloin district, and there he learned what gay life in New York really costs. He started by spending freely and taking no change from a five dollar bill when paying for a drink. Within a few days he had lost every cent that he had, did not return to his hotel and completely disappeared. For almost a month nothing was known of him. Meanwhile his uncle, who had a ranch in New Mexico, had telegraphed to know why he did not keep his appointment to meet him in the West. He even sent a draft, but it was not paid. In response to requests from Baron de Freyne, the young man's father, the British Consul in New York employed detectives and notified the head of the Police Department, but every effort was made to keep the news of the disappearance secret. It was only when all other means failed that publicity was resorted to, and very soon thereafter the missing heir was located.

He had been seen in the vicinity of Forty-second street and Sixth avenue with an Englishman who had been his fellow passenger on the Umbria and with a New York man who was in business in that locality. When he found himself destitute he told this man that he did not want to return to the hotel when he had nothing with which to pay his bill, and he asked his advice about enlisting in the United States army. With his assistance he found a recruiting station where his American acquaintance vouched for him. A visit to the headquarters of the recruiting department confirmed this report, and the Hon. Arthur Reginald French was found doing duty as a private at Fort Slocum. He did not long remain a private, however, as within a few days after he had arrived his well set by appearance, his carriage and his expert drill tactics caught the eye of his superior officers and he was forthwith promoted to be acting first sergeant of recruits attached to the Eighth Infantry.

How Lieutenant French ever managed to escape detection when he was lost on Broadway was one of the mysteries of the case, for it is safe to say that there was not another man dressed in anything like his fashion in the entire city of New York. He was the typical British dandy of the stage. He wore tan

Many Americans Seek Fortunes in Precious Stones in Ceylon

Ceylon has long been famed for its precious stones, and probably more people in the world know of it for its beautiful gems than for any other product. Every year thousands of American tourists go to Ceylon to find small fortunes, or at least to pick up bargains in precious stones, and many of them fall victims to the wily native merchant, whom they not infrequently consider ignorant of the true value of his goods.

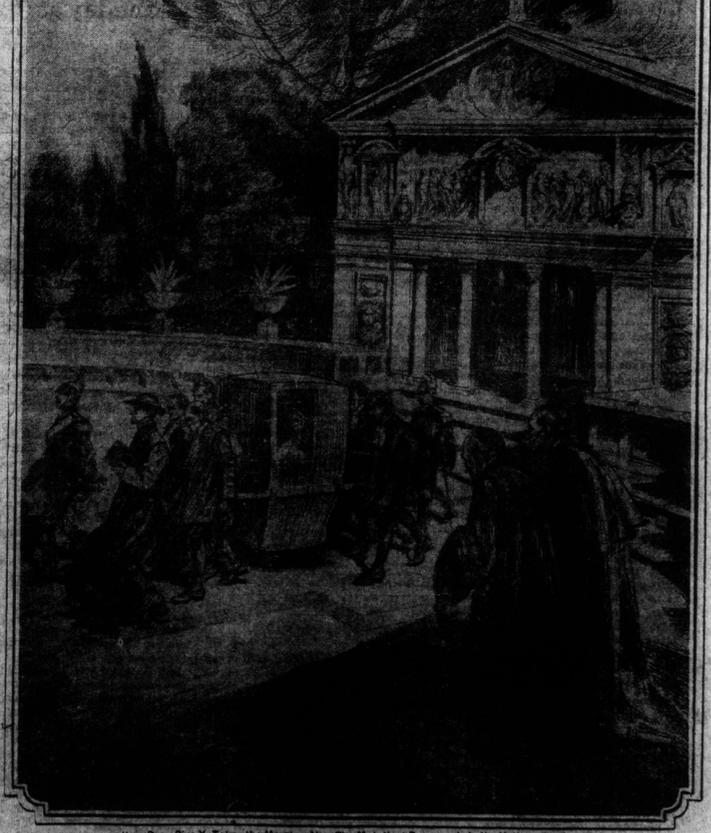

The precious stones found in Ceylon are rubies, blue, yellow, white and pink sapphires; asterisks, or star stones; alexandrites, beryls, emeralds, cat's-eyes, amethysts, jaspers, garnets, moonstones, stevens (jargons and hyacinths), spinels, aquamarines, tourmalines, peridots, and olivines; in short, nearly every gem known to the lapidary except topazites, diamonds, opals and emeralds.

The gem fields begin at Avissawella, some thirty miles from Colombo, and extend to about the eighty-fifth mile on the Rakwana road and from there due south to Matara, nearly the whole of the productive area lying in the district of Ratnapura and Kegalle of Sabaragamuwa Province, and in the Southern Province. The Central Province about Mattala. Various attempts have been made by European companies to exploit the gem mining lands, but always unsuccessfully. In December last the first-time company here, but quantities of abrasive corundum have been discovered. Some London capitalists organized a company and secured options on the lands of native chiefs in the Ratna-

Not all of the claimants to titles and estates live in the West. They are scattered all over the country. In Brookton the Grimshams of Esk, a very old family of Scottish nobility, have lived in modest circumstances for years, the Baronet and all of his sons having married American wives. A car repairer in Bangor, Me., recently received a letter from a Scottish soldier that led him to believe that he and his brother were relatives of the Earl of Arllie, and the brother has now gone to Scotland to investigate the information that they received.

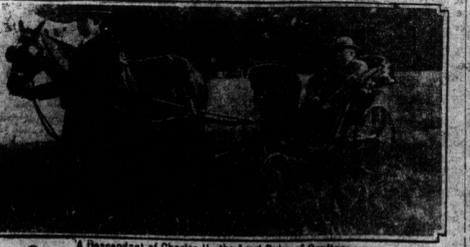

There is the well known American born Lord Fairfax, who proved his claim to his title and sit in the House of Lords, and then turned to his American business again. The United States is invitingly full with opportunities enough, both for profit and entertainment, to take care of any number of younger sons until they are ready to come into their inheritance.

A Descendant of Charles II.

A Descendant of Charles II., the Aged Duke of Grafton.

LAST year the Duke of Grafton fractured his thigh and since then has been unable to indolge in any very active form of exercise. Although he is ninety-two years old he still likes to get about his estate and finds the easiest mode of conveyance a pony chair. His Grace was Equerry to Queen Victoria, King Edward VII. and King very popular with his mates, became an object of much curiosity, but he protested against his being treated differently by them because they had discovered his rank. He had thought of going to Canada and joining the mounted police, he explained, but when he heard how cold the climate was there he decided to accept his uncle's invitation to join him on his ranch instead. He had sent a telegram to him inquiring about routes, but failing to get an answer, he decided to go to a recruiting station and put on the uniform of Uncle Sam.

"I left my luggage at the St. Denis," he explained. "I owe them a few dollars, and thought my traps would cover it. I am sorry there should be so much ado about my movements, but I suppose it is my own fault. I should have written to my people to tell them where I am. I have just written to the British Consul asking him to take no further steps to ascertain my whereabouts, as I like the service and am content to stay where I am."

It was thought that the heir to the barony might have been kidnapped, or come to some harm, as his father had been rated as a strict landlord and had incurred the enmity of the Irish Parliamentary party through the insistence of the exact payment of land rates. A few years before he had charged W. J. O'Brien, John Redmond, John Dillon and other prominent members of the Parlimentary party with conspiracy, saying that forty of his holdings were tenantless because of the conspiring of these men and the "Pay No Rent" cry, and he demanded damages. It was suggested that his son might have been dealt with in a reprisal.

The Honorable Arthur Reginald French is the only son by the fourth Baron's first marriage, with Lady Laura Olivia Dundas, daughter of the Marquis of Zetland. He was born in 1870 and in 1902 married Anabel, daughter of William A. Bick.

If he had really disappeared the barony would not have fallen to the luck of an heir, as the fourth Baron de Freyne had eleven children by his second marriage. The estate that the new lord inherits is known as Frenchpark and is located in County Roscommon, Ireland.

Not often is a titled Englishman a naturalized citizen of the United States. This is the case, however, of Sir James Stuart-Menteth, the third Baronet, who succeeded his uncle, Sir James Stuart-Menteth, in 1870 and who married an American wife and lives in Canada.

Sometimes the Englishman in America appears so miserly that, even in the case of his bedridden heir to an estate, it is difficult to locate him. A few months ago an effort was being made to find Mr. William Clark Davis, who had left Liverpool for New York on the steamship Scovia in 1902. Thereafter his whereabouts was unknown to his family, and the recent death of his father, Edward Major Davis, of Official House, in the parish of St. Martin in Vale, Lincolnshire, had caused a search to be made for him that his inheritance might be handed over to him.

The difficulties of finding stray Englishmen are sometimes increased because of the change of name. Years ago James Douglas, Bishop of Exeter, left his home in Malborough, England, and went to California, where because of family differences he took the name of Douglas S. Davis. Under that name he prospered and married Miss Mary Keith. A little more than a year ago a relative died and left $100,000 to James Douglas Bishop. He was not found, for Douglas S. P. Davis gave no sign that he was the man. When his father died, however, not long ago, leaving a very large estate, the missing heir decided to assert himself for the sake of his infant son. To make his position quite legal, a second marriage was performed under his original name, his little son being one of the wedding guests. There he went to England to claim his rights, and was met by Lieutenant Frederick Fernan-Hesketh, son of Sir Thomas George and Lady Sturton, disappeared two years ago and is supposed to have come to the United States. Another lost claim of nobility is the Hon. Francis Patrick Clements, who left the navy in 1911.

Aside from the methods employed by this company, all gem mining is done on the old native system. The gem miner selects his land in likely territory and arranges terms for its exploitation. He then employs a number of natives more or less skilled in detecting rough stones. They dig pits, usually ten to fifty feet deep, in the gravel, called "slum," in which the stones are found and wash over the gravel carefully. This is practically all there is of the business. Sometimes large and fine stones are found, but the industry is generally precarious for the individual.

No trustworthy statistics are obtainable of the quantity of precious stones exported annually from the island. Local dealers estimate that gems of the value of $1,000,000 are sent every year to London and Paris, chiefly rubies, sapphires of all shades and star stones.
