CITIZENS DISCUSS COUNCILS HYDRO DEVELOPMENT POLICY

Meeting Unanimously Asks for Postponement of Vote On Hydro Matter Until More Information
Laid Before Citizens.

A meeting of citizens was held at the Campbellton Hotel Monday afternoon to discuss hydro matters. Mr. A. A. Adams was chosen chairman.

Mr. H. H. Moore said that the meeting had been called to discuss hydro matters. For the past two or three years the citizens had been taking the interest in town affairs that they should. It was not the time to take action. The most important matter today was the hydro proposition which was asked to vote upon on Friday. He did not favor the town going into the development of hydro on the Upsalquitch. If only $500 could be developed he did not think it should be undertaken. He asked Council Moore, who was present, to give the meeting some information.

Coun. Moore said that he was pleased to see the citizens taking a little interest in civic matters. As for the hydro proposition, he was surprised to find that the town was in favor of developing the Upsalquitch. He said that he could not get out from Grand Falls. The Council had engaged a competent engineering firm to make a complete survey of every available stream and after investigating the Kogewick, Upsalquitch, and other rivers and streams, the only proposition that appeared to the Council was the Upsalquitch. At the present time it was costing Campbellton $40,000 to run the present plant and the revenue was $30,000. The engineers estimated that $200 could be developed on the Upsalquitch at the southward end. At an expenditure of $10,000 per H. P., Grand Falls had quoted at $20,000 per H. P. In conversation with Premier Vautour the Council was assured that the government would have the cost of $2,000 per H. P. paid for the first 100 H. P. of the plant. The Council plan was not to proceed with the development of the Upsalquitch if the Grand Falls proposition was not accepted. It was decided that the Council should postpone the vote on the hydro proposition until more information was laid before the citizens.

The estimated cost of the work was placed at $40,000. If the present plant was replaced by a new one, it would cost $100,000. The Council plan was not to proceed with the development of the Upsalquitch if the Grand Falls proposition was not accepted. It was decided that the Council should postpone the vote on the hydro proposition until more information was laid before the citizens.

Judge McLatchey said he could not see how the citizens could be asked to vote on a hydro proposition until they had been given the opportunity to hear the arguments of both sides. He thought the Council was wasting the people's money.

Mr. A. A. Adams said that he thought that it was necessary to have an act of the legislature to hold such a plebiscite.

PLEBISCITE IS OFF

But Refuses to Postpone Taking Plebiscite on Hydro Development of Upsalquitch

A meeting of the Town Council was held Monday evening. His Worship Mayor McKay presiding. There were present Couns. Belle Isle, St. Onge, Moore, McDonald, Duncan, Graham and Gorham.

The reading of minutes of the previous meeting was dispensed with. The Water and Sewerage accounts were reported upon and ordered paid.

The annual reports of the Town Engineer, on Water and Sewerage work, The Chief of Police, Fire Protection and Public Property and Streets were submitted and adopted. These were ordered printed in the blue book.

Coun. Belle Isle submitted a report on the proposed Upsalquitch development. A report of the delegation which met Premier Vautour last week.

Reports were received and placed on file.

The Mayor asked Deputy Mayor Graham to take the chair.

His Worship explained that the town held in its sinking fund $10,000 in 1923 and $10,000 in 1924. These were tax exempt and were quoted 107 and 105. The town could buy 1924 Victory bonds for 102. These were not tax exempt, but that would not effect the town. He recommended that the former be sold and the latter bought, and the town would make $750 in the transaction.

Necessary authority was given the Mayor, Treasurer and Town Clerk to complete the transaction.

The Mayor resumed the chair.

He said that he felt that the matter of the plebiscite on hydro development should be reconsidered and postponed.

Coun. Moore moved that the delegation of citizens be heard—Carried.

Mr. W. H. Miller as chairman of the delegation said that while it was admitted that some arrangements had been made for the development of the hydro power, yet it was surely not necessary to take this plebiscite without giving the electors time to study the information about the project. He made for additional electric power, yet it was surely not necessary to take this plebiscite without giving the electors time to study the information about the project. He made for additional electric power, yet it was surely not necessary to take this plebiscite without giving the electors time to study the information about the project.

Judge McLatchey appealed for fair play and a square deal. He and every citizen would like to be developed at the present rate of revenue, and the estimated cost of the development, the entire plant would be free of debt in thirty years. Our revenue from 600 H. P. would be $50,000. From 800 H. P. it would be at least three times as much.

Coun. Belle Isle saw no reason why the plebiscite could not be held Friday. The information would be in the ratepayers' hands Wednesday, and that information was short and to the point, and could be understood by citizens of ordinary intelligence in 10 minutes.

Several other speakers addressed the meeting, and Mr. W. H. Miller thanked the council for its courtesy in hearing them.

Coun. Moore moved that the motion passed at the last meeting calling for a plebiscite on Friday Jan. 11th be reconsidered.

This motion was voted down upon the following vote:

Yeas—Moore, McDonald, St. Onge.

Nays—Belle Isle, Duncan, Graham, Gorham.

The following resolutions were appointed for the plebiscite on Friday and the Civic elections on Tuesday, Jan. 22nd.

Ward I—Harry Eagles.

Ward II—D. F. Graham.

Ward III—Thos. McDevitt.

These officials were authorized to appoint their own poll clerks and constables.

His Worship reported that the offers for the towns 5 per cent bonds were 92.5 while they were asked that at 8 1/2 per cent par could be obtained.

On motion the overdraft on account of water extension was increased from $60,000 to $70,000. This would only be until such time as the bonds were sold.

Coun. Belle Isle brought up the matter of the amount due to the J. and D. A. Harquail Co. and Salves Lumber Co. for school taxes. The matter of the collection of these taxes had been handed to the Town Solicitor nearly a year ago but no action had yet been taken. The Town Solicitor was the solicitor for one of these companies. If the Town Solicitor would not proceed to collect these taxes we should hand the account over to a solicitor who would collect them.

Coun. Belle Isle moved that the Town Treasurer be instructed to hand these tax bills over to another lawyer if the Town Solicitor refuses to collect same.

Coun. St. Onge said this was an old story. The J. and D. A. Harquail Co's contract period was up shortly, and the Salves Co., pay $500 yearly. After the fire in 1910 the council did what they thought best, and we agreed.

Coun. Duncan said this was a hard question. Councils had come and councils had gone, and many queer things had been done. He thought this matter had been left off too long. Should have collected this two or three years ago. He felt that we should carry out the wishes of the former council.

The motion carried, Couns. Belle Isle, Graham, Gorham and Duncan voting yes and Couns. Moore, McDonald and St. Onge voting nay.

The council then adjourned.

YOU AT HOSPITAL STAFF

December 7th—Was

Leaves Wife and Five Children.

A mysterious disappearance on the night of December 7th following a two days' treatment at the Hotel Dieu Hospital here seems to complete the last chapter in the life of Joseph Albert, a resident of Paquetville, Gloucester County.

Weather Albert, in a despondent mood left the hospital and sought a watery grave in the cold waters of the Restigouche, wandered off in the neighboring woods and perished in the cold or left to parts unknown there to begin life independently has not yet been concluded by the several persons who have been investigating his strange case. Although a month and two days has now elapsed since his mysterious disappearance.

Few Cues
Little is so far known to the general public regarding this extraordinary occurrence and few clues of any value in establishing a possible solution seem to be at hand. It was at first thought that Albert may have gone to some lumber camp on the North Shore but this idea seems to have been abandoned. The local police were not notified until nearly three weeks after the man's disappearance so were naturally handicapped in their efforts. The Chief declared this morning that they had no leads of any value to work on and has so far secured no information which promised any solution to the mystery.

Came Here on Dec. 5th.
Joseph Albert came here on December 5th last and entered the Hotel Dieu Hospital on the evening of that date to receive medical treatment for an injury which he had sustained a few days previous while working in the woods near his home. As a result of this injury he was unable to work and his condition had developed to such an extent that he was confined to his bed in the ward but was permitted to slip out most any time he desired. He was not considered a serious patient as evidence by the fact that he was confined to his bed in the ward but was permitted to slip out most any time he desired. Coun. Belle Isle brought up the matter of the amount due to the J. and D. A. Harquail Co. and Salves Lumber Co. for school taxes. The matter of the collection of these taxes had been handed to the Town Solicitor nearly a year ago but no action had yet been taken. The Town Solicitor was the solicitor for one of these companies. If the Town Solicitor would not proceed to collect these taxes we should hand the account over to a solicitor who would collect them.

Coun. Belle Isle moved that the Town Treasurer be instructed to hand these tax bills over to another lawyer if the Town Solicitor refuses to collect same.

A DOCTOR IN A TIN BOX!

Sounds strange, does it not? Yet that is how Mr. J. Carter says Zam-Buk is regarded by his family. Mr. Carter, who is a member of the family of the late Sir George Carter, is Justice of the Peace and Assistant Clerk of the Circuit Court, Montreal. He first discovered the wonderful power of Zam-Buk by using it for eczema, which he completely cured. Since then his family is never without it.

"Allow me to express my gratitude," he writes, "for the benefit I have derived from the use of Zam-Buk. I have proved that it is, without doubt, the finest remedy for eczema. Its general healing and curative powers are immense. We call it 'Our Family Doctor' and are never without it."

Mothers should see that Zam-Buk is always handy, for not only does it end pain, draw out inflammation and prevent blood poisoning, but it heals skin diseases and injuries in the shortest time possible. All dealers, etc. box.

AN EXAMPLE OF REAL RAILROADING

Assistant Dist. Supt. Keeps Things Moving and Passengers are Pleased.

(Chatham Gazette, Dec. 26)
Passengers on the branch train from Newcastle to Nelson, Chatham and Loggieville on Friday afternoon are loud in their expression of praise for Mr. McNutt, the assistant superintendent of the C. N. R. for this division. On that day the Limited was about two hours late on its way to Montreal. Ordinarily the branch train waits until the Limited changes its mail, passengers, baggage express and steamers away and then it comes humbly into place from some where down the yard and gets its load, being lucky if it gets away at times within half an hour after the arrival of the Limited.

On Friday, Mr. McNutt happened to be at Newcastle and he put real railroading tactics at work. He ordered the branch train on the siding next to the main line, a siding which was built years ago so that two trains could be handled at once. He saw that the baggage and express for the branch line were unloaded on the left side while the Newcastle goods came off on the right hand platform as usual. In this way with out delaying the Limited in the least the branch train was able to get away before the through train finished its regular routine and was well on its way to Chatham before the Limited resumed its journey towards Montreal. Patrons of the C. N. R. wish there were McNutt at every junction point and satisfaction would be very general with the train service.

IN DARK PLACES by John Russell. The Macmillan Co., Ltd., Toronto.

The market for detective stories is probably more steady than that for any other kind of book, which is not to be wondered at, when we consider that such diverse personalities as Amy Lowell, Woodrow Wilson, and the Average Man all profess their devotion to this sort of reading matter. "No. 13 TORONTO" by Julius Regis, is very fair entertainment for the multitudes who crave vicarious thrills and deep bewilderment over problems which they comfortably know will, in the course of the evening, be solved for them.

The plot is sufficiently ingenious along conventional lines. The usual dilettante detective and his devoted monomaniac friend are present, the people are rubber stamped, but few readers hope for characterization in this sort of book. We do wish, however, that some one would invent a brand new kind of detective. A world of detective-story readers waits an opportunity to rise up and call an inspired blast. Any one who can write mystery stories containing real people with some glimmerings of humor in them—people who behave like human beings, in short—has a gold mine on his own premises, as Conan Doyle and Mrs. Rinehart can testify.

No. 13 TORONTO. By Julius Regis. 307 pages. New York: Henry Holt & Co. $1.75.

Ever since Sir Arthur Conan Doyle introduced us to Sherlock Holmes, that master detective, whose name has become a household word all over the civilized world, authors have been endeavoring to invent new types of detectives. We have met, it would seem, almost every conceivable variety; but not quite. For Mr. Chesterton has found a fresh one in his "Man Who Knew Too Much."

Home "Fisher" was one of those people who are born knowing the "Pine Mitten" and have an intimate acquaintance with the private peccadilloes of the Office, and all the other powers that be, official and unofficial. Because he was so much at home behind the scenes, social and political, many things looked very differently to him from the way they appeared to most well-informed persons. And because he could see so much to which others were blind, he was able to see the truth. But the circumstances were peculiar, has been peculiar from the moment when Squire

A Review of Some Popular Books by Prominent Authors

In John Russell slated to take King's place as the writer of short last every man on that boat was dead, and Sir Walter Vane, with his sword drawn, was leaning up against the tree trunk, as stiff as the tree. The trees were planted, and as they grew so did the sinister influences in which Squire Vane refused to believe. But what happened to him, and to those strange trees, the reader must discover for himself. If he is a healthy minded reader who enjoys being mystified he can be sure of spending some very agreeable hours in the company of "The Man Who Knew Too Much."

THE MAN WHO KNEW TOO MUCH. By Gilbert K. Chesterton. With frontispiece. New York: Harper & Bros. $2.

If you already know "our square" and some of the people in it, you will probably be glad of the opportunity to return to that favored spot, west of Washington Square, "across the Alps of Broadway," and meet again with the old Dominie, the Bonnie Lassie, Cyra the Gaunt, the Little Red Doctor, and all the other friends who reappear in "From a Bench in Our Square." But the eight tales in this new volume by Mr. Adams are not principally concerned with persons we already know; they tell us instead of various new-comers. Some of these new-comers seemed, at first, altogether alien to Our Square. There was Roberta Holland, for instance, who belonged to the idle rich, and whom we sometimes had left with "a dangerous and destructive appetite for doing good to people." Our Square is not particularly fond of being done good to, and the existence of Roberta, of actual affection before ever she became "A Patroness of Art," and after various amusing misadventures, found the true romance.

But not all the tales belong to the dream-like true fantasy. Even Our Square has its tragedies, and there is a good deal of real pathos to the story of "The Guardian of God's Arcady," which is a real crime, which might have sent him to jail, and by so doing won the ability to sleep at night. Hints too of the existence of the "want and wretchedness" in Our Square, the Mr. Adams has refrained from relating any of those stories; for if "Floors of Our Square," whose courtship is so amusingly and sympathetically described, had his period of misery and trouble-trouble his wife somewhat more than shared in the end their fortune was made in the most wonderful way in the world—a way familiar to every reader of romances. No touch of the sickly-sentimental mars the tale; Mr. Adams's sense of humor, as well as his good taste, saves his stories from any such taint; his rose-color is of an honest, healthy shade. They are agreeable, well-written tales which he has collected in this volume, moving from the farce of the new dweller to the mingled pain and victory of "Triumph," tales which make one feel strongly inclined to emigrate for a time at least to "Our Square."

FROM A BENCH IN OUR SQUARE. By Samuel Hopkins Adams. Boston: Houghton Mifflin Co. $2.

We are all familiar with the scientific detective who brings a truck load of complicated apparatus to the scene of the crime, starts the wheels buzzing, and in a few moments is ready to tell how, when, where, and by whom the crime was committed. In "The Painted Tower" Vance Thompson has given us a master of the science of crime detection of quite another type—one who uses his brains. As Mr. Guelph is the retired director of the Technical Police Laboratory of Lyons, it is to be presumed that he has been inventing all the devices that have been invented to aid in the detection of crime. If he does not use them in running down the murderer of the Count de Granique, it must be because they would not help him to solve the mystery. For which the reader should be very thankful to Mr. Guelph and to Vance Thompson.

To declare that the Count was murdered and to find the murderer are two quite different things. There are not many clues to go by. Some rude ideographs scratched on the wall of an automobile tire in the mud at the side of a road, the print of a foot on a floor, a piece of paper, a woman's, on a rug—these are the witnesses who can talk and, therefore, tell the truth.

But the American wife and that they had quarreled and had been living apart for some time previous to his death. The murder was committed on the night of the murder. Some count is lent to this theory by the presence of her former sweetheart in Paris. He has come as the attorney for her father's estate, with a view of settling her tangled financial affairs, but that explanation does not satisfy the authorities.

SOMETHING NEW AND DEADLY

Simple Ray of Light Directed on Swift Moving Aeroplane Destroys It

By ERNEST BRENNER
Paris. Near the great German airbase at Furst, four miles from the city of Nuremberg, there are fields covered with networks of metal wire. Recently fourteen French airplanes, flying from Strasbourg towards Furst, have been forced to land in the vicinity of these fields, which extend directly across the main air line between Paris and Vienna. The planes have been instantly complicated by the German authorities and the pilots have been arrested before they had had an opportunity of ascertaining the cause of the forced landings. One pilot, however, was able to discover that an insuperable hole several inches wide had been burned in his aluminum oil tank, and that the lead solder of the gasoline feed pipe had been melted in some manner which he could not understand. Forced landings of this nature are still occurring in the vicinity of Furst every few days, and the same regularity of these mishaps, all in the same locality, is causing great anxiety among the officials of the Franco-Bavarian Air Service Corporation. It is rumored that French Secret Service agents are quietly investigating the circumstances of the accidents, for the probability of ordinary engine trouble cannot explain these alarming mishaps.

Are the Germans using a secret ray to disable foreign aircraft? used with a ray be so powerful as still deadlier effect in different ways?

Many scientists who have given their attention to these questions within the past few weeks seem inclined to answer them in the affirmative.

For years experiments have been conducted, not only in Germany but in England and America as well, to discover some way of transmitting powerful currents, other than weak signals requiring amplification, by wireless. The inventor who discovered a way of sending a beam of electrical energy in any desired direction and of any desired intensity, as a beam of light is thrown by a searchlight, will undoubtedly inaugurate a new epoch in warfare, science and industry.

This is what the German technicians at Furst seem to have accomplished in the case of the French airplanes, and their extraordinary success will perhaps not surprise those who have followed the recent news regarding the experiments with directional radio conducted at the great transatlantic station at Nauen.

Not long ago a number of motor cars were brought to a dead stop on lonely roads in the night by a beam of light. Conflicting explanations of the incident have come from various official and non-official sources. It is the opinion of many experts, however, that all the circumstances of the affair point to the probability that the cars were put out of commission by a powerful wireless ray, whose exact nature was unknown.

Additional interest is lent to the possibility that the wire network in the fields near Furst may be sending out destructive rays by the fact that the last year Professor L. G. V. Root, a distinguished Italian scientist, described experiments he was conducting with telluric currents, which emanate from the earth and with which the famous Lord Kelvin had occupied himself before he became one of the great scientists of the world. Root's experiments were conducted with a view to the possibility that a new and powerful ray of marvellous possibilities has been invented. While expressing the view that the claims now advanced for the Germans sound rather far fetched, he has pointed out that, for a long time, scientists have been working along the lines of discovering a new force which can be projected through the air with the object of disabling aircraft.

A British air expert who bombed a great deal during the war has been studying the whole problem, and has made the following statement:

"I was making tests at Brooklands with wireless rays to bring down aircraft. I was very successful. I made an airplane crash. I think there is a possibility of a new method of conquering the air."

TEETH OF MALAY BRIDE FILED BEFORE MARRIAGE

The Malays pay for marriage before they celebrate it. To eat a wedding cake or wear a wedding robe as yet unpaid for would be an irreparable disgrace, according to the Malay code.

All the wedding expenses are paid for by the bridegroom and the sum which covers them is sent by him to the father-in-law on the day previous to that on which the groomman claims and receives his wife. On the day before her marriage the girl's teeth are filed. Fainting and much interpersed elaborate ornaments, and if the maiden means her means are drowned in a flood of music.

Three days before the ceremony she has her hair cut short, upon her brow to a thin, straight fringe and the nails of both hands and feet are deeply stained with henna. A Malay bride, except for her conventional marriage ornaments and her many flower chains, wears the ordinary dress of a lady of rank.

ing certain rays on specific metals in the machine, put into operation by the system of wire network, but possibly also with reflecting mirrors, because most of these forced descents in Germany have been made on fine, bright days.

"To avoid such rays, if they are being used, the best method is to fly very low, even as low as 100 feet from the ground, because the machine is then only within range for a very limited time. At a great height a limited time. At a great height a machine is obviously within range for miles of its flight. The effective seems to be bringing down a machine by stopping the supply of oil to its engine, which is accomplished by melting the oil tank or the copper tubing which carries the oil to the engine. Any plane must descend within a quarter of an hour if this is effected. The rays I suspect would have an almost certain effect on a machine flying high. I have been wounded at a 2,000-foot altitude, but I have often flown over many trenches at 500 feet without being touched. It is the same with rays as with bullets."

What is causing concern to Allied military experts at the present moment, however, is not merely the fact that a few commercial airplanes have been forced to the ground in Germany and lost, but the far more startling probability that those who possess a ray capable of destroying aerial machinery at considerable distances will eventually be able, if they should so desire, to destroy any kind of machinery, and at any distance. The mysterious new ray, if it really exists, may prove to be a destructive weapon of almost unlimited possibilities. On the other hand, if it is turned to useful and peaceful purposes it may solve the great problem of the transmission of power by radio.

A British air expert who bombed a great deal during the war has been studying the whole problem, and has made the following statement:

"I was making tests at Brooklands with wireless rays to bring down aircraft. I was very successful. I made an airplane crash. I think there is a possibility of a new method of conquering the air."

WRITER SAYS NOTHING BUT TALK SO FAR IN BRIDGE PROJECT

A Real Necessity Which Could Be Procured if All Worked With a Will and With One Thought

The Graphic, Campbellton, N. B.

And the Bridge?
Another year has now elapsed and that Campbellton-Cross Point inter-provincial bridge—a long and badly needed connection line between the Gaspe coast settlers and their part of salvation—is yet a mere possibility, not even as things stand, of slightly probable fulfillment.

Everybody has been talking about it more so than ever for the last two months, but the bad crossing has come between them; the Campbellton merchants have complained of the draw back in their trade; the Gaspe coast settlers kept home by the lack of proper communication have deflected the matter over and over again by the friends and the thing has not gone beyond the mouth of the Restigouche River. Not a definite move, as yet, has been made to rush the interested Governments to work. Meanwhile, the children at Cross Point stay home waiting for the ice to go back to school; the traders whose business calls on both shores keep going back and forth in a rebowt working as they do to pull the husky thing across just as poor Gallians in the time of slavery; the ladies who have simply got to do their shopping across the bay carry on climbing the ladders of the wharves giving to the crowd of men with eyes riveted on their free big show increasing in interest in as much as the skirts are decreasing in length; the doctors and hospitals are far from quite unwillingly, cling on to their stock; everything is paralyzed and a crisis is created that will last till the time when snow and frost will have melted over the waters north of our bridges.

All this time, however, the Gaspe coast people pay taxes to their Provincial Government for bridges across the rivers on Provincial highways and in the vicinity of the town, the Campbellton district people pay taxes for some other bridges in some other parts of their province; money would have been literally thrown in the bay for nothing and people left in the same predicament.

That we may hurry on and bring this bridge into existence is the main and constant call of the town and of the coast. And what better opportunity should we desire than to-day's if this political affair? Both Restigouche and Bonaventure Counties have elected liberal members to sit in with Provincial and Federal Governments. Politicians, however careless they be, would not fail to grasp at once the emergency of our call. Facts are so probing! no matter how much of his body and soul he is in a bad condition in the work, it is beyond his capacity to change or overcome the weather. For the past years, the ferryman while losing money, has done the utmost to try to give some kind of a service at this season, but elements are against him and each fall we look at the same performance now the less disastrous for its bits of hilarity. Horses drown and sleighs lost are of common occurrence and it is more per chance than per safety that people do not reach the bottom with them. That is against what we stand in wanting a bridge and in presence of that situation politicians should stand by us.

Then, shall we at last make a real move of some kind or shall we stay as we stand, wanting a bridge badly, but lacking enough energy to get it, wishing in our mind for a MacKenzie King bridge, but waiting as it is for King Frost's own?

RADIO BROADCASTS TO MOVING TRAINS

Canadian National Railways To Add Novel Feature To Service

According to an announcement made by Mr. W. D. Robb, Vice-President of the Canadian National Railways, radio will prove an important part in the service of the National System during the coming year. By making use of existing broadcasting stations and by the erection of others, progress of entertainment and news will be broadcasted from the end of the Dominion to the other.

Another important item will be the equipping of all transcontinental trains of the Canadian National Railway with radio receiving sets and placing them in charge of skilled operators, so that news items and current events may be broadcast to trains en route across Canada. Very successful experiments along this line were carried out during the past summer by the National System, when all special trains were equipped with radio receiving sets and concerts and news picked up by train while the train was travelling. A radio receiving set installed in the car used by Mr. Lloyd George was the means of bringing to him word wide news of the greatest importance and of causing him to characterize as "invaluable" this special feature of the Canadian National Service. The official statement of Mr. Robb, follows:

Realizing the intense interest in Radio reception in Canada, there are now being over 100,000 radio users. It may be amiss for me to state briefly the radio plans now in process of fulfillment on the part of the Canadian National Railways.

We have now under erection a very powerful broadcasting station in Ottawa, located on the roof of the Jackson building—this station will be tied in with the Northern Electric National Railways equipped with receiving sets, handled by skilled operators, for the pleasure and benefit of the travellers, and you will also soon find in our various hotels the most complete sets possible to install.

We are doing this because we believe in the tremendous value of radio to the people of Canada at large and because we feel it will be of great benefit and pleasure to the large travelling public whom we are called upon to serve and to our army employees.

DECREASE IN FIRE LOSSES IN MOST OF PRINCIPAL CENTRES OF PROVINCE

N. B. Fire Prevention Board Issues Advice To Property Owners

Hugh H. McLellan, provincial fire marshal, has prepared interesting statistics regarding fire losses in New Brunswick, a brief reference to which was recently made in The Evening Times. The figures presented at that time showed that there had been a marked decrease in losses in 1923 from those of 1922.

The following statement shows the losses in the following centres:

	1922	1923
Moncton City	$226,326	$117,104
Fredericton	100,531	30,952
Woodstock	68,331	16,885
Campbellton	47,602	23,214
St. Stephen	66,574	23,321
Sussex	149,030	217,979
Bathurst	147,880	68,000
St. John City	346,000	160,000

The New Brunswick Fire Prevention Board has issued the following advice:

Building chimneys with bricks laid on edge seems to be a popular practice in many parts of the country and it is one of the main reasons for defective chimney fires, in rural property. Sooner or later, where this custom prevails, the mortar between the bricks will crack and apertures will develop through which sparks easily can escape. If safety is to be assured, bricks always must be laid flat with fire clay. Further than this, chimneys should be built solidly from the ground up and never supported on beams or brackets, since the inevitable settling of the walls and floor in time will open cracks through which sparks may be released into floor spaces and attics, rendering fire a virtual certainty. Flue holes which are not in use will be a continuing fire menace unless they are closed, and for this purpose fitting metal covers are best. Such openings should not be pasted over with paper, for this introduces dangerous conditions when winter stoves are set up. Defective chimneys and flues, as a fire cause, are wholly eliminable.

ing every structure with fire-retardant material.

When wooden shingles are used their fire hazard should be clearly recognized and every precaution taken to render them as safe as possible. Manifestly, a newly shingled roof, or one kept in good repair and painted, offers higher protection from fire than an old one, because the shingles lie closer together and present a smooth, hard surface upon which sparks or embers are less likely to cling.

Altogether, it is a safe prediction to make that where a flaw in a chimney exists in combination with a wooden shingle roof an outbreak of fire is merely a question of time; there are few more fruitful ways of courting disaster.

Matches and Smoking
So often are the results of this type of carelessness brought home to everyone through the medium of the newspapers and by personal observation, and so easily correctable is it by the exercise of plain common sense, that there is not the smallest excuse for matches and smoking taking the toll that they do. Adults have been cautioned to keep matches out of the reach of children, yet the warning, oft repeated, still goes largely unheeded, and every so often someone pays.

Matches should not be permitted around farm property. There is danger, when matches are struck, of flying heads lighting in hay or straw. Dropped matches may be stepped on or ignited by a score of other accidental contacts, so that there should be no departure from the rule that matches shall be kept in safe, definite and convenient places and not carried in pockets. Ordinary intelligence should inform anyone, too, that smoking in or about barns where burnable crops or other material are stored, is dangerous; still the loss from matches and smoking continues to ascend year after year. One recent report from the central west tells of a $15,000 loss, totally uninsured, occasioned by a fire from a cigarette dropped by a farm hand who was quartered in a barn.

Early Seeding Increases Yields and Profits

A very important factor which increases the yield of crops is early seeding. With no additional labour or seed, the yield on land planted early in the spring is very much larger than on land seeded later. It is obvious that the increased yield is reflected in larger returns and greater profits. While this point is already known by the majority of farmers, the magnitude of it cannot be realized without reference to figures.

The following table gives the yields of wheat, oats and peas when seeded at six different times in the spring. The first seeding was made as soon as the land was ready to sow and five successive seedings were made at one-week intervals. The experiments were undertaken at Ottawa, commencing in 1908, and continuing ten years with the wheat, oats and barley and five years with peas.

Influence of Date of Seeding on Yields at Ottawa, Ontario.

First sowing, Oats bush, 51.3; Barley bush, 33.4; Spring Wheat, bush, 17.9; Peas bush, 50.4.

Second sowing, Oats bush, 59.5; Barley bush, 44.2; Spring Wheat, bush, 20.4; Peas bush, 55.9.

Third sowing, Oats bush, 60.7; Barley bush, 33.6; Spring Wheat, bush, 24.1; Peas bush, 52.5.

Fourth sowing, Oats bush, 45.9; Barley bush, 31.6; Spring Wheat, bush, 12.9; Peas bush, 23.9.

Fifth sowing, Oats bush, 40.2; Barley bush, 26.1; Spring Wheat, bush, 10.3; Peas bush, 26.3.

Sixth sowing, Oats bush, 31.9; Barley bush, 23.7; Spring Wheat, bush, 8.6; Peas bush, 22.5.

The advantage of seeding wheat, oats and barley early in the spring is very outstanding at Ottawa, while the second date of seeding, that is, seven days after the land was ready to seed, gave the highest yields in every instance, it must be remembered that this land was drained; perhaps, with many farmers and especially in fields containing wet patches or watercourses, their first seeding would more nearly correspond with the second seeding at the Experimental Farm. Inasmuch as the land and the seed were uniform the decrease in yield was due solely to the late seeding.

These heavy losses show the urgent need of seeding the crop, as soon as possible, if the largest yield and profits are to be secured. They show that to make the most of the few days of time during seeding the grains should be seeded in the following order: wheat first, then barley, oats and finally peas.

To Obtain Eggs In Winter

It is quite a simple matter for even a novice at poultry-keeping to obtain eggs in the summer, but in the winter it is a very different matter. Yet it is vastly more important for the poultry-keeper to have eggs when the eggs are scarce and expensive to buy. Therefore, everyone who keeps fowls should try his hardest to secure the greatest number of eggs from his hens in the winter. If he sells eggs it is even more important for it is in the winter that he can make a profit of his eggs, and also, his customers will very naturally want him to supply them with eggs, and also, months of the year as well as in the hot and if he can sell eggs when other people are without, he very naturally and properly deserves to obtain a good supply of winter eggs. The following points must be observed:—The houses must be well constructed and thoroughly waterproof. 2. The birds must be of a good laying breed bred from winter layers if possible. 3. The pullets must be prepared with regard to the special winter needs of the fowls.

It is impossible to over-emphasize the value of good, reasonable food for fowls, or the part that proper nourishing food plays in helping supply winter eggs. Hens cannot lay if they are unsuitably fed. The birds, while being well fed, must not in any case be overfed with too many fat-forming foods. The most important fact to remember is that the birds must have plenty of exercise in cold weather to keep them well and fit. Therefore, it is well to provide plenty of fresh, green aerating litter in which grain may be buried.

SAYS CANADA HAS THE ADVANTAGE

Wall Street Journal Contrasts The Conditions of Wheat Growers

(Wall Street Journal)

In November Canada exported 64,000 bushels of wheat at an average price of $1.10 a bushel. In October our exports were 9,238,634 bushels at a seaboard price of $1.10. In November we did not ship even as much. Balancing the Canadian grain over a year ago against our decrease it is evident that the world demand for November-December deliveries of North American wheat was greater than a year ago.

Why has not the American farmer participated in the marketing, at least to the extent he did before the war? He has in fact secured the most powerful banking system in the world to fall back on—the reserve system. He has the War Finance Corporation, the land banks, the new federal joint stock banks, the intermediate credit banks, and, if he wants them, the re-discount corporations. Besides all these facilities, he has his normal credit armament, the national and state banks.

In addition to all these special advantages, naturally secured to him by the government, he has a normal credit armament, the national and state banks.

TAGGED FISH IS

Up to date the records of the capture of 123 tagged fish has been received by the bureau of fisheries. Considering the vast area of the fishing grounds off the New England and Canadian coasts, these returns are thought to be quite satisfactory.

Since the last week in October 15 tagged fish have been taken off the New Jersey coast, indicating that the codfish are migrating toward the South. It is expected that a comparatively large number of tagged fish will be caught in the vicinity of New Jersey during the winter and spring, and practically all pleasure fishing boats frequenting this locality have been notified to watch for them.

Potato Seed Inspection The Use of Concentrates in Fattening Beef Cattle

(Experimental Farms Note)

Creditable progress has been made this year in the production of certified seed potatoes, according to George Partridge of the Botanical Division Central Experimental Farm. The standard of qualification during the past season was considerably higher than formerly applied. Added to this was a somewhat adverse climatic condition prevailing in many of the greatest potato producing areas. "In such localities," states Mr. Partridge, "the most vigorous and disease-free strains of potatoes were put to severe tests, but in most instances were able to withstand the unfavourable growing conditions and to produce good seed when such a feed as alfalfa hay which balances up its own deficiencies."

It is strong heavy feed and some care must be exercised in feeding it if the cattle are not to be gotten off feed. The amount to feed will depend largely on the relative price of concentrates and roughages and the spread between cattle carrying a moderate amount of flesh and those that have a high finish.

Hulled barley contains more woody fiber than corn and for that reason is not worth quite so much. When purchased by the pound its value is usually about 90-95 per cent of that of corn. It has more muscle and bone building materials than corn and is not quite as strong in fat building materials and the vitamins. The amount of bone and muscle building material present is not enough to supply all that the cattle need.

Hull-less barley grown in Montana is a very heavy feed and experienced feeders say that it must be handled with more care than corn and that it is at least equally valuable. It has about the same properties as the hulled barley except that it contains more fat building materials.

Wheat

The use of wheat for fattening cattle has usually been restricted to times of very low prices or stuff that is badly off grade. It is high in fat building materials but low in muscle and bone building materials.

It is not particularly palatable to cattle and due to its heavy nature is best fed mixed with some other grain such as oats this is more palatable and not so heavy. When properly fed its fattening powers should give it a feeding value to that of corn.

Montana oats are considerably heavier than the oats of the corn belt and contain about one-third more muscle building material. Their use with other grain in many rations in Montana should lessen the need for a supplement such as cotton seed meal in districts where plenty of legumes may be used to advantage.

They are not used extensively for fattening except for mixing with other grains when starting cattle on feed due to their high price and tendency to produce growth rather than fat.

At the Montana experiment station oats have been mixed with other grains and the mixture was successfully throughout the entire fattening period.

Brain

The bulkiness of bran, together with a lack of palatability, makes it a poor feed for fattening cattle. It is fair in muscle building materials but lacking in the most essential bone building materials and vitamins. It is seldom mentioned in a discussion of fattening feeds but due to the fact that at times it is considerably lower in price than grain it may be used to some extent as a source of muscle building materials in districts where legume hay is scarce. Its lack of lime, together with the probable lack of this material in other parts of the ration in such districts would suggest considerable caution in its use or the supplying of lime in some other ways. Some times its bulk is desirable to lighten the grain ration particularly with hull-less barley.

Cottonseed and Linseed Oil Meals

These two meals have about the same feeding value. They are extremely high in muscle building materials and for this reason are widely used in the corn belt in rations that are low in this sort of material. They are also high in bone building materials but little is known about their vitamin content but as they are mostly used with rations containing a considerable amount of silage this requirement is usually met.

They are valuable feeds not only because they are excellent sources of muscle building materials but also because when added to a ration low in muscle building materials they make the other food more digestible, increase the rate of gain and greatly assist in producing a higher finish.

There has been many unofficial wire reports concerning the whereabouts of Pherto Carrillo, governor of Yucatan. The latest is that he is a refugee in Havana. It is reported his two brothers were killed by revolutionaries and Carrillo fearing the same fate, fled. This has not been confirmed.

CLEVER CORNELIUS

Elth. Root tells of a case which in cleverness compares favorably with the famous judgment of Solomon and the remarkable decisions of those old Oriental casis. A farmer in Mr. Root's native Clinton died, leaving seventeen live turkeys to be divided among his three sons as follows: To the eldest son, one-half; to the second one-third; to the third, one-ninth. This would figure out 8 1/2, 5 2/3 and 1 8/9, respectively. The outbreak for some of those turkeys was decidedly sanguinary; but before an ax was raised a local lawyer, Cornelius Husk, was asked to try his hand at the problem. He settled it neatly and without bloodshed. Driving one of his own turkeys into the yard with the seventeen, he called out the brothers and bade the eldest take his half, which he did, taking nine; the second for his third took six, and the remaining brother for his ninth took two. Thus each son apparently got more than he expected, and the lawyer drove his own turkey home again.

It Works From Both Ends

A local merchant upon whom we called recently gave us a first class talk upon "buying at home." We certainly agreed with him in all he said, and more too. The Graphic has always preached this doctrine, and lived up to it.

But what of our local merchants? A genial solicitor for wrapping paper, paper bags, etc., had induced him to order his counter check-books from him, "just to make up a good sized freight shipment."

Our local merchant clean forgot that our local printers could supply these counter check-books at the same price. He sent out of town for them.

But its a poor rule that won't work both ways.

BUY-AT-HOME

The merchants of the smaller cities and towns are learning that in waging their fight for existence, they must perform adopt new methods in fighting the mail-order houses and in doing the people to buy-at-home, they must adopt the same methods and fight fire with fire, as the western settler does with prairie and forest fires. The great mail-order houses are the consuming flames which threaten to wipe out many small retail merchants, unless these, realizing their danger, take steps to remove the menace. The merchants are beginning to realize that they must fight fire with fire, and that to save themselves, they must build a "back-fire."

Advertising is the weapon with which the mail-order houses conduct their warfare on the retail merchants of the small cities and towns. They do their advertising through their own catalogues and other advertising media. They spend thousands of dollars for advertising and judging from the financial reports of the big mail-order houses, advertising must be a pretty paying proposition, from their point of view at least.

The local merchants of Campbellton are endeavoring to make it well worth your while to purchase locally, and special inducements are being offered in the various stores, many of which advertise in the columns of the Graphic.

There is no longer to be found the man who does not believe in advertising. Many of the merchants hesitate to do so, fearing the original outlay, and overlooking the all-important fact, that advertising is the life of the trade.

"When you make your purchase from the merchants of your own town and of your own country, your money remains in circulation in your district, and you benefit thereby directly, but when you buy from outside points your money leaves to the detriment of your locality."

Buy-at-Home and help in the legitimate growth of your town. Your town gives you your living, and you owe it to yourself and yours to work for the growth and advancement of the town you call your home, by Buy-ing-at-Home.

In this issue will be found a full page adv., one of a series which will appear throughout the year. This advertising has been made possible by the co-operation of a number of our most progressive merchants. We ask our readers to read these advs. carefully, impress the names of the merchants behind this movement upon their minds and then make their purchases from these business men who show they have the best interests of our town at heart.

TREAT HEAD COLDS WITH VICKS

"Never Had Anything Better," Says Ontario Man.

At the first sign of a cold in the head, melt a little Vicks VapoRub in a spoon. Inhale the vapors. Then insert some in nostrils, snuffing it well back. You will be delighted to see how quickly it helps to break up a cold.

Another way is to heat a tin cup, put in a teaspoonful of Vicks and inhale the vapors that way. As fast as the vapors lose their strength, throw out the melted Vicks and add fresh.

Vicks VapoRub, the discovery of a Southern druggist, is a combination in salve form of Camphor, Menthol, Eucalyptus, Thyme, Turpentine, etc. It is the modern, direct treatment for all cold troubles, the successor to goose grease, camphorated oil, liniments, poultices and plasters.

Mr. Thomas Bakewell of 83 Lincoln street, Welland Ont., says: "I tried Vicks VapoRub and found it satisfactory in every way. As a remedy for a cold in the head I have a powerful and inhaled it and got immediate relief and was able to go to my work the following morning. I always recommend it to anyone I know who is suffering from a cold, the way I did."

Vicks is the ideal treatment for colds—both for grown-ups and for children—because it avoids so much internal dosing. Just as good, too, for cuts, burns, bruises, sores stings and skin itching.

At all drug stores, or by mail. The Great Vicks Company, 111 Broadway, Montreal, P. Q.

Though Vicks is new in Canada, it has a remarkable sale in the States. Over 17 million jars used yearly.

FISHING PROPERTY CHANGES HANDS

Famous Pritchard's Lake Goes to St. John Men—Big Price Paid

The famous Pritchard's Lake known throughout Canada and the United States because of its splendid trout-fishing has been sold to Mr. H. H. McAllister of St. John for a number of provincial men. The price we understand is $25,000.

During last summer Mr. McLellan paid a number of visits to the property and took an option thereon, and this option has been taken up, and the transfer has been made.

We understand that the new owners will erect a number of club houses on the property, and that next summer the new owners will be here in force. Mr. Harry Pritchard and his mother will reside at the Lake for some time as Harry will act as caretaker. Besides the lake there is a large block of wood land.

With the transfer of this lake goes another, and one of the last trout lakes available to local enthusiasts of that class of sport.

QUEBEC GOVERNMENT SAVES THE SITUATION

Financing of Merged Banks of Hochelaga and Banque Nationale

Ottawa, Jan. 5.—The taking over of the Banque Nationale by the Hochelaga Bank, and the financing of the combination by the Quebec Government is the end of a somewhat checkered financial career for the Banque Nationale. It has been in deep water more or less for several years, and contacted one of the largest of its kind debts some years ago when it financed a munition plant at Chicoutimi, and is understood to have sustained heavy losses over almost all its concerns, including La Machine Agricole, an implement concern at Montargy, and the first of Legare, a manufacturer and distributor of Quebec city. A year or so ago an effort was made to strengthen the affairs of the Banque Nationale security for a charge of some $150,000 of the former institution, an obligation which has now to be met. Now the Quebec Government has come to the rescue with a guarantee of $150,000 for the combination. The action of the Quebec Government is apparently directed by a desire to save the financial and commercial credit of the province, as well as to protect the shareholders and depositors of both institutions.

THE GRAND FALLS REPORT FOR HOUSE

Premier Veniot Says it Will Be Read Before the Legislature Meets

Fredericton, Jan. 4.—"The report of the hydro electric expert engaged by the government upon the feasibility of the proposed development of the Grand Falls on the St. John river will be made before the Legislature meets," Premier Veniot said this afternoon.

"We have sent for H. G. Acres, who has been engaged on the matter to come to New Brunswick from his home in Toronto, but we have not yet heard when he will be here," the Premier added. "I cannot say when the report will be made, but I must have it before the House meets, as our policy will be framed for presentation to the Legislature after we have Mr. Acres' report."

The Premier said that the date for the opening of the session of the Legislature will not be finally fixed until the next meeting of the Government. Thursday, March 6th, is the probable date.

EDITOR'S MAIL

Campbellton, N. B. Jan. 3rd, 1924

Editor Graphic:
In view of the fact that the contract for filling the C. N. R. ice house at Campbellton has been awarded to W. J. Price & Sons, there are a few things I would like to have explained.

In the first place I would like to know why the above-mentioned contract should be awarded to the Price people at a figure 61 cents per ton higher than the lowest tender submitted. As can be readily seen this difference amounts to a considerable sum of money and it would be interesting to have the buyer explain the reason for such a peculiar business deal.

The notices of tenders for ice at Campbellton called for 9000 tons and the C. N. R. ice houses here is by no means large. Surely any competent business man would endeavor to exercise a little more economy in transacting business. If Mr. Kinneer was buying this ice for himself it is hardly likely he would be willing to pay so much for it.

The ice tender called for ice delivered at the C. N. R. ice houses at Campbellton, all freight and further charges prepaid and subject to the approval of the station master. According to the contract awarded Mr. Price the ice is to be delivered on cars at Tide Head for $1.10 per ton and the C. N. R. is to stand the expense of transportation from that point to the ice houses here. For this transportation Mr. Price paid 80c per ton last year. I have made enquiries regarding freight rates and the cost of delivery from the C. N. R. ice house at Campbellton. It would indeed be interesting to have an explanation why this tender was accepted when a tender for ice at $1.25 per ton was submitted.

Thanking you for space in your paper, I am, Sir, very truly yours,
THOS. ELLSWORTH

$4,000,000 FERT CUT

Returns forwarded to Chief Justice A. T. Mordue of the Department of Lands and Mines show that from November 15th to December 15th the cut of lumber on Crown Lands in New Brunswick totalled $4,000,000.

The estimate of the season's cut on Crown Lands was $200,000,000 and there is little doubt that it will be reached. Last year the cut totalled $25,000,000 including railway ties.

In the count for the present season the are not included. Conditions for logging were good between the dates mentioned except that the lack of snow in December hindered logging and hauling. Falls of snow have retarded that and the snow which left the camps for Christmas have returned to work.

HORSE FALLS 35 FEET AND LIVES

Runaway From Chale Topple Over Railway Trestle At New Mills

The railway trestle at New Mills which spans the London River and is situated just above the salmon hatchery was the scene of a most unusual accident on Saturday night when a horse, owned by Mr. Thomas Sheppard of Chale, fell from the top of that structure to the river below, a distance of some thirty-five feet, without sustaining any serious injuries.

The accident was the result of and the climax to a runaway. Mr. Sheppard was visiting a neighbor, Mr. MacPherson, at the time. He had tied his horse to a "new horse" in the yard. Evidently the animal became frightened in some way and broke loose. Taking to the railway track the runaway continued its mad gallop all the way to the railway bridge at New Mills. When about half way across the trestle, one of the horses shoes caught in the ties and, stumbling, the animal toppled over to the river beneath. This occurred about 9:30 o'clock Saturday night and the horse was not seen until the following morning when Mr. John McNeill, a local section-man who makes the Sunday inspection trip over this district, discovered the plight of the unfortunate creature.

On examination it was discovered with surprise that the animal, which weighed about thirteen hundred, had not broken a single bone in his fall. Although black, the helpless horse when found was pure white with frost. The animal had bled from the nose considerably but whether or not internal injuries were sustained the lucky creature is doing well and gives promise of surviving his rather unusual experience.

West Through Ice.

Two other accidents in which horses also take the leading roles occurred on the newly made ice of the Bay Chaleur between New Mills and Heron Island this week. The first occurred on Monday when Mr. Robert MacMillan, a resident of the island, narrowly escaped the loss of his horse when the animal broke through the ice about half way across from the mainland. Fortunately a stoutly sufficient he was at hand and the animal was rescued. The second accident occurred on Tuesday when a horse owned by Duncan McCormack of Black Landing through the ice while engaged in hauling out small fishing scuttles. The animal was saved after a hard struggle.

EVERY LIMB OF AN AVIATOR BROKEN

Toulon, Jan. 7.—The medical examination of the body of Léon Gramadan, commander of the dirigible Dikimode, has shown that the officer received a violent shock, that all his limbs were broken, and that he was dead before he fell into the sea. These facts, the experts believe, show beyond doubt that the dirigible exploded and that her cars dashed downward with terrific speed, the bodies of the crew being hurled against the sides of the cars when the Dikimode struck the water. All the cars, according to regulations, were used except that of the commander.

HOTEL DIEU HOSPITAL REPORT

Short Summary of Work Done During the Past Year — Many Improvements

More and more people are realizing the importance of service to the sick, by the installation of a Hospital in the development and well being of a community like Campbellton and they will be glad to know that the Hotel-Dieu Hospital during the past year kept pace with the general progress of the town.

During the year Miss Bertha Fitzgerald and Miss Mabel Walsh graduated from the Training School, besides these the Hotel-Dieu has 12 young ladies who are following in the steps of Florence Nightingale, and will soon be able to take their places with other graduate nurses to protect the health of the community.

The Hospital has also tried to improve its standard of service to the sick, by the installation of an automatic Otis Fenson passenger elevator at a cost of $6782.54. The Woodman System of Forced Hot Water Heating was installed to replace the Gravity System and a Fire Escape to meet temporary requirements. A large Refrigerator and Diet Kitchen off the central kitchen for the preparation of special diets, a closet Blanket Warmer in connection with the operating room were also completed. "PHANTOM MAJOR," SUSPECTED OF MURDER, AND "THE LAUGHTER" BAFFLE SCOTLAND YARD

BY MILTON BRONNER

London, Jan. 9.—Scotland Yard—soured by Sherlock Holmes, the perfect detective, and evaded by Raffles, the master thief, through thousands of pages of fiction—yet considered by the Old World, at least, as the most famous and efficient crime detecting agency—is baffled.

Two men are the reason. Both are wanted for murder. One is in a cell—the other is at large.

Major Norman Bailey, was found, whose wife was found murdered, has been reported seen at Marnagata, a fashionable English seaside resort, in several London hotels, in Manchester, on a train bound for Paris, in the French capital, at Bordeaux and in Brussels—he has been sought even in the United States. But he has not been apprehended.

THE "PHANTOM MAJOR"

The "Phantom Major," as he is known for his seeming ability to outwit his much-sought being, is this air, constantly writes Scotland Yard, stating he is sorry he is for the murder of his wife, whose body was found in bed in their apartment, with a bullet hole through her head, and a five-inch knife blade thrust through her breast.

Placed to her right garments was this note: "I have parted with my dear possession. I intend to do it. She knew nothing. I did not do it for jealousy nor covetousness—love. Look for me by the sea."

It was thought that he might have drowned himself until his letters began to pour into the office of the London police. He also wrote his wife's parents and mailed a servant's pay to her.

But, only 25, is an expert in disguise—an amateur actor who sometimes has taken female parts. It is possible that he had not left London, but is enjoying temporary safety in disguise and hiding.

Motive for the crime is just as baffling as the "phantom major's" whereabouts, for there is neither another man or woman in the case, the police believe.

(TOP) NORMAN BAILEY, "THE PHANTOM MAJOR," AND HIS WIFE, WHO WAS MURDERED. (LOWER LEFT) GERTRUDE YATES WHO WAS ALSO KILLED, AND RONALD TRUE, "THE LAUGHING MURDERER."

Then there is Ronald True, laughing murderer of Gertrude Yates. Condemned to death, his mad-man chuckle has laughed him out of hanging. He is now confined to an insane ward.

He laughed when he was locked up by the police, he laughed when the trial judge sentenced him to be hung by neck until dead; he laughed when he was in the cell of the condemned.

"I TOLD YOU SO"

When he was relieved and sent to Broadmoor Asylum he laughed once more and merely said:

"I told you so."

At Broadmoor he had been the life of the party. He has taken part in amateur theatricals and composed words and music for rollicking songs, joshing the prison, the keepers and the government.

Gertrude Yates, a beautiful girl who lived alone in an apartment, was found brutally beaten to death. She had been robbed. True was proven to be one of her closest friends. He had her stolen jewelry—and was promptly convicted.

He, too, had been an officer in the army.

There is a clear definition in Britain that a person should not be executed when he is not in a position to make his peace with God and not in a mental condition to put forward any reasons why he should not be hung.

Some day the medical officers may certify to the government that True is once more sane—as they believe he was when he committed the crime—and liable to hanging.

The question that will then confront the officers is, whether after True has lived in an asylum for years shall he be taken out and hung or have his sentence commuted to life imprisonment?

In the meantime, True continues to laugh.

Bailey, the "phantom major," is poor, while True, the "laughing murderer," is well connected.

Are their strange plights a result of the war in which they both served?

5,000 TO COMPLETE IN OLYMPIC GAMES

Track and Field Events in Paris New Dates Not Changed

Paris—All roads will lead to Paris next Spring and Summer. At least all roads travelled by the amateur athletes from every part of the world. It is expected that nearly 5,000 competitors will be listed for the Olympic Games, which will open with the skating and winter sports events at Chamonix on Jan. 22.

But the main section, the track and field events will not take place until next summer in the newly constructed Colombes Stadium just outside of Paris. All of Paris is already interested in the event, which will bring thousands of visitors to the city. The athletes, grouped according to the nation that they represent, are to be housed in a little Olympic city close to the stadium. The Paris hotel keepers have given their word that they will not take advantage of the host of guests which will descend on them. So Paris next summer will be more crowded than ever, and henceforth more lively.

Officials of three steamship companies believe that there will be a 10 per cent increase over the customary summer rush to Europe, due to the olympics, and an increase in travel from Great Britain and Continental Europe will probably be even greater.

COMMITTEE ALTERS PROGRAM

The organization of the 1924 Olympic games has been carried on for more than two years by the French Olympic Committee, presided over by Count Clary. It was this committee which has recently made changes in the programme, revising the schedule of events so as to avoid as much conflict as possible. In spite of the American request for a postponement of the rowing races until early August so that the United States could be represented by four crews, the committee did not see fit to make any change in the dates. The races will be rowed, as originally scheduled, from July 13 to July 17.

The French Committee has ruled for uniformity in the single sculls, and a French boat builder has been commissioned with the preparation of the shells. These are to be built from identical designs and will be of equal weight. They will be drawn by lot eight days before the races, in order that the competitors will have a short time to become accustomed to their craft. This arrangement probably will not be received satisfactorily in American circles, as Walter Hoover of Duluth, the Olympic champion, uses a shell rigged unusually high.

It has been decided however, to sail the yachts from the Seine at Meulan near Paris, instead of at Havre on the Channel. The eight-meter yachts and the six-meter yachts will have a struggle in the narrow confines of the Seine.

The six-meter class representatives of America and England sailed for the British-American Cup on the choppy waters of the Solent Summer, and as the American boats sail in the Sound regularly, their skippers will probably find the Seine a quiet stretch of water in comparison.

Stadium Opens July 5.
The formal opening of the Colombes Stadium is scheduled for the afternoon of July 5. The ceremonial opening of the Olympic Games will be preceded by a festival commemorating the thirtieth anniversary of the establishment of the Olympic Games on June 23. This is divided into two parts, one to be held in the Notre Dame Cathedral in the morning and the other at the Sorbonne in the evening. On July 8 the delegates of the world's International Sporting Federations will be received by the President of the French Republic at the Elysee.

A large number of congresses will meet during the period of the Olympic Games. Among these are the Congress of the International Federation of Lawn Tennis set for March 21, the Congress of the Peruvian Amateur Athletic Association Congress, July 4-14-15; the International Federation of American Boxing Congress July 14-21; the International Amateur Wrestling Association Congress, July 14-21; the International Halterophile Federation Congress, July 26; the International Gymnastic Federation Congress July 27; the Olympic Committees and Congress, July 28-30, and finally the International Cyclists' Union Congress on Aug. 1.

The programme as it now stands follows:
Winter sports, Chamonix, Jan. 25 to Feb. 5.
Rugby football at Colombes and at various stadiums near Paris, May 2-19.
Association football at Colombes and at Paris stadiums, May 15 to June 9.
Folds at St. Cloud and Bagatelle, June 12 to July 4.
Rifle shooting at Colombes-sur-Marne, over 600 meter range, June 21-29.
Marksmanship with sporting arms at Versailles (running deer), and La Ferte-Macloire (clay pigeons), June 21-29.
Swimming at Colombes, June 28 to July 8.
Field Meet in July.
Track and field athletics at Colombes, July 1-19.
Gymnastics, wrestling at the Cirque de Paris, July 6-8.
