THE NEWS BOY'S ADDRESS,

PRESENTED TO THE PATRONS OF THE

"MARITIME FARMER."

Another year has fled again—Here, Patrons, here, we are again. With our customary ditty—Which we fain would hope will fit ye: Old Eighty-Two now gone to bier—Was on the whole a stirring year. Elections went to lively tune—In the leafy month of June: Now, Fraser's fall we do not grieve—Since he has been made a judge: Then we had that wandering "Chile"—The great athlete, "ye" O'Connell. With hair and costume fit to kill ye—(He's spoons upon the "Jersey Lily"). And also our Professor Foster—Spouting from the Temperance rostr: And the Scott vote, which four thinking—Hasn't stopped the vice of drinking: Then we've opened two new banks—And taken up the rotten plank: (The asphalt pavement looks quite smart)—The Water Works have got a start: Gibson, who can foot any bill—Is going to start a paper mill: Hoegs another store's put on—So he can can beef and mutton: And they do say for a "Variety"—Lemont will start a "Gas Society". Here's—"may we have a real good time"—A toast in which you all will chime: May every business take to rushing—And many enterprises pushing: And all be healthy, rich and free—In Eighteen Hundred Eighty Three.

"O for a Muse of fire that would," but, hold, The fashion of the invocation's old: The inspiration and the poet's rage: Are scorned by this too keen, prosaic age: It values not the old poetic lore: Feigned loves and hates are equally a bore: For lattle, murder, treachery and distress: It seeks the columns of the daily press: There fore its real tragedies unfold: There the mixed tale of human life is told.

Life is an Epic, in heroic cast, Its scope unknown, its field of action vast: Alone the "maker" knows the deep design: We mortals read but here and there a line: The volumes swell with each succeeding age: And every year doth furnish for a page: The last is written to the closing strain: Is turned, and never can be turned again: Only all scenes the shadow of a few.

Year after year events alike befall: Not, therefore, does the melodramatist call: Fresh actors rush upon the stirring stage: Renew with hope the toils of baffled age: A differing sameness runs throughout this life: The passing year is like the year before: In ev'ry mimicry in the living throng: The same old shapes in different guise are shown: Each year that turns, like kaleidoscopic views: The same old shapes in different guise are shown.

As from the branches fall the leaves when sever: So fell the grey-haired men of yore when sever: In ev'ry mimicry in the living throng: The same old shapes in different guise are shown: Each year that turns, like kaleidoscopic views: The same old shapes in different guise are shown.

Few of their generation still survive: The hands of Gladstone with the complex coil: Of great affairs still vigorously strive: But touched by his half century's glow: He fain would fly the fall of hot debate: The weary strife with bitter party hate: But could he brook to sit in lettered ease: Or nursing rank beneath his stately trees: While force was left and power was left: And perilous issues rose to vex the land: Rest is but torture to the shaping mind: Fresh outpour of his energies will find: The Laureate sickening of his lyric bays: Arthurian idylls, and your love lays: In his famed age forsakes his own demesne: But not like Shakespeare's self, he shakes the scene.

Though Gladstone fall and Bright seek honored rest: For counsel true shall England make vain quest: Shall better difference their party rest: Old Whig with redoubled Liberal content: And Hamilton from Chamberlain divide: To find he has no force the state to guide: Even with sagacious Derby by his side: Shall then with genial Northcote help be found: And haughty Salisbury chafing to be bound: To prudent course, leading to make disorder: With restless Churchill there to make disorder!

Never to England's need have statesmen failed: Nor shows she yet the signs of waning power: Though brooding seers by truer thoughts assailed: See revolution's shadow o'er her lower: And count the time, till ruin to savage mood: Her patient millions weep their wrongs in blood: Not without glory have her statesmen striven: With leagued obstruction by bring Erin cheer: Only, perchance, to sternest measures driven: When violence dared its bloody career to rear: Causings by foil-st and most treacherous blow: The slowly healing wound afresh to flow: That worst of days—among so many dark—When Cavendish and Burke were butchered in the Park

When, on the troubled land shall peace descend? Would but the Power of Good an influence send: Or good St. Patrick, with fresh power, once more: To banish the evil spirits from her shore: Then would the murderous midnight raidings cease—Lauds and tenants, live in mutual peace: And freed from faction's miserable toil: Blessed industry would flourish on her soil: Punitive would be her weeping western coasts: And misery with her emigrating hosts: And with the sense of local power in hand: Freeman would drive repealers from the land: Then might our statesmen say with honest pride: "The thorn is drawn from good old England's side."

Weeks past; impenetrable grow from day to day: To hear of Seymour in Aboukir Bay: And wonder at the dilatory war: That left Arabi quiet at Katfeh Dwar: But Wolsey had the field of action gained: Nor heeded he the talk of chab and press: Resolved to fight as he had closely planned: Nor cared he what his losses might be: Ismailia was his aim: and from that base: The pottering war assumed another phase: And named Arabi taken in the war: Compelled to leave his chosen ground in fear.

The sinking march in the hot sweating air: The dazzle of the arid desert's glare: The wild charge of the heavy mounted band: As the moon shone ghastly through the shrouding sand: The silent march beneath the starry sky: Scarce broken by a toiler's laboring sigh: A sabbat rattle of a horse's neigh: His neck the road sweep in a cavity: The sudden storm of musketry and shell: The word to charge, the Highland thrilling yell: The load hurrah, the wild electric rattle: The foe driven out before the bayonet push: Then shot the head stems of the rising sun: On close of war, with Tel-el-Kebir won.

Dr. I. S. Johnson & Co., of Bangor, Me., will send by mail, postage paid, a quarter of a pound sample pack of the "Kidney-Wort" and cattle powders on receipt of 25 cents. These powders are worth their weight in gold to make hens lay, and will prevent all manner of diseases common to low, hogs and horses, including hog cholera.

"No eye like the master's eye." Had "Bop" lived in our day he might well have added, "No popular remedy like Kidney-Wort." All eyes are beginning to turn to it for relief from diseases of the liver, bowels and kidneys. Kidney-Wort is nature's remedy for them all. Those that cannot prepare the drug can now procure it in liquid form of finey drugist.

Adams's British is now prepared in St. Stephens, and is for sale by Ganong Brothers, at about one dollar per dozen less than former prices. New York city consumes $18,000,000 worth of eggs every year. FARMER only $1.00 a year.

BOARD OF AGRICULTURE.

Third Annual Session.

THE CLOSING DAY.

By our own Reporter.

Dec. 22

The Board met at 10 A. M. to-day, the President in the chair.

After routine, Mr. Inghes, the Secretary, introduced the question of the proposed Exhibition, and offered the following remarks:

I think, Mr. President, you will allow me to make a suggestion. As you and I have both been members of the Board, and have both been members of the Board, I do not make a practice of interfering with the action of member, but endeavor to give effect to the decisions expressed in the resolutions and orders adopted.

I am also in sympathy with the Board in the difficulty that has occurred, a mere trifling omission that the Board has made in the past, and until it was magnified and misinterpreted for other, and certainly not friendly intentions. The Board has been charged with mutilating the committees appointed by the citizens, selecting some and rejecting others, which is quite contrary to truth. I am aware the Board intended to approve, and was under the impression that the Board had approved the name that was on the finance committee. A resolution was also adopted accepting and confirming all other committees appointed by the citizens. This clearly shows the intention of the Board, and should have protected it from the malicious charges brought against it. At the same time it cannot be denied that the information laid before the Board was defective and has caused much trouble, while the Board was under the impression that all the gentlemen named on the finance committee were accepted by the Board. It is true that the Board has not attempted to control the Board in any way. It has been said that the Board represented the Government, which was quite untrue. The Board represented the 200,000 agriculturists of the Province, who were deeply interested in the success of the Exhibition. Regarding the alleged dictation of the President of the Board, he wished to state that there was no such dictation. In all his experience he had never seen a fairer or more impartial presiding officer, who had never intruded his opinions on the Board or any individual member of it.

Mr. Fairweather wished to understand that the amounts to be given by St. John and Portland were first suggested by the St. John Committee, and did not originate with the Board.

Mr. Anderson's resolution was then put to the Board and carried unanimously.

Mr. Anderson, from the Committee on Accounts, reported that the societies have given more attention in preparing their returns and statistics; have confined their expenditures to more legitimate objects, and have generally complied with the law. But while all this was true, it must not be inferred that all the societies had become so general, especially as the attention of the societies has been particularly directed by the former reports of the Audit Committee, as well as by circular from the Secretary. The report was signed by Messrs. Anderson, Fairweather and Swin, committee, and was adopted.

Mr. Brown, from the committee appointed to investigate all matters connected with the Sunbury County Agricultural Society, reported that they were unable, from the information they could get up to the present, to throw any light on its affairs, and would desire further time for an investigation.

Mr. Anderson feared that the acceptance of such a report would be to kill the Society.

The Secretary said there were fifteen societies that had not sent in returns, and would desire to know if he should this Society as others on its returns being submitted. He had heard that a large influence on the part of the Society had been held, entirely changing the resolutions of former meetings.

The report was then adopted.

Mr. Fairweather then moved that the Secretary be requested to visit the Upland, Hammond, and any other Society that he might think required it. Seconded by Mr. Anderson and carried unanimously.

The committee on new societies recommended that the Loch Lomond Society be recognized and receive the usual grant. Also, that the subscription list of the Sunbury County Society being satisfactory, it also be recognized, and that a vacancy.

Mr. Brown moved that the committee's report on the different accounts be read before the Board.

Mr. Anderson moved that when returns of delinquent Societies are returned to the Secretary of the Board, that they be audited, and that those Societies that are found to have correct accounts receive the annual grants, less five per cent. Mr. Brown seconded the motion, which was carried without division.

On motion of Mr. Brown, seconded by Mr. Swin, it was resolved that the Secretary be authorized to make arrangements for getting the proceedings of the Board printed in French on the same terms as he did last year.

Mr. Fairweather, seconded by Mr. Brown, moved that the term of office of the committee appointed by the Board to co-operate with the Citizens' Committee, in St. John, in preparing the Exhibition Building be expired.

Resolved, That the Board, as a whole, constitute such committee, and that if any special meeting should be required that the President be requested to hold it in Fredericton.

Moved by Mr. Swin, that the date of opening the Exhibition be left blank for a time in the advertisement.

The Secretary thought if there were no opportunity of fixing the date, that it would be better to fix it now.

Mr. Fairweather said the feeling at their St. John meeting was unanimous in favor of the date fixed, viz., Oct. 2nd, and it appeared to him to be better to have the time definite, and as agreed.

The vote on being taken was a tie, and the President decided that the date remain unchanged.

Moved by Mr. Anderson, seconded by Mr. Fairweather, that as the time is approaching to provide for an Agricultural College, the Secretary obtain such statistics and information in regard to such institutions as might be of use in the organization of one here. Carried.

Mr. Brown moved a vote of thanks to the Secretary for his indefatigable labors since the Board had an existence, and paid a warm compliment to his abilities.

Mr. Swin had been a member of both the old and new Boards for eight years, and could cordially endorse Mr. Brown's remarks. He doubted if the Government could have possibly selected a more suitable gentleman for the position. He was very glad to have the opportunity of seconding Mr. Brown's resolution. Mr. Anderson supported the resolution, and wished to state, that although he had more than once moved for a change in the manner of appointing the Secretary, he never had the slightest idea of changing the occupant of that office. He had always regarded Mr. Inghes as an able and efficient officer, and testified willingly to his geniality and diligence.

Mr. Fairweather had taken a similar course to Mr. Anderson, regarding the manner of appointment, but he had on every occasion stated, that a desire to remove Mr. Inghes from the office was farthest from his mind. He could cordially and fully endorse all that had been said of Mr. Inghes' ability and conscientiousness, and hoped he would be long spared to fill the position as ably as he now does.

Messrs. Fairweather, Campbell and Graham followed with like sentiments and the motion carried unanimously. The vote of the Board was then gracefully tendered by the Honorable President to the Secretary.

Mr. Inghes said he had reason to be most thankful for the cordial testimonials of regard from men practically acquainted with the science of agriculture. He prided himself in thinking that the Board was mainly formed upon his own advice, from the beginning; but he was prouder still in hearing from those who wanted the privilege of appointing the Secretary, that they desired that the office should be placed in no other hands than his own.

Mr. Anderson then moved that the Vice-President (Mr. Brown) take the chair.

Which done Mr. Anderson again arose, and proceeded to say that after the most agreeable associations that the Board had with the present President, who was one of their own occupation, he could not allow this session of the Board to close without moving a vote of thanks to Mr. Colter.

Mr. Swin, the second of the motion, and Mr. Fairweather spoke in great praise of the President, feeling rejoiced to have the right man in the right place.

Mr. Brown, in tendering the vote of thanks to the President, complimented him most highly on the exceptional terms of regard in which he was colonized by the members, and desired to add his own tribute in performing the pleasing duty of conveying such an evidence of appreciation.

Mr. Colter said it was an old adage that silence is golden, but he could not remain silent on such a happy occasion, and with good reason. His untired office, and such testimonials of the good fellowship that existed between himself and all the members of the Board, it gratified him to observe the mainly spirit of industry once that characterized the gentlemen of whom the Board was composed. While he had the pleasure of holding the office, he would do everything to preserve the friendly relations existing between himself and every member.

The Board then adjourned sine die.

A World of Good.

One of the most popular medicines now before the American people, is Hays' Kidney-Wort. You see it everywhere. People take it with good effect. It builds them up. It is not as pleasant to the taste as some other Bitters, as it is not a whiskey drink. It is a large, pleasant, and most beneficial medicine, that builds up a world of good. If you don't feel just right, try Hays' Kidney-Wort.

An American farmer writes to the American Agriculturist, concerning the use of the term "Polled Angus" in Ireland. He says:—"Your people are going all wrong calling the cattle 'Polled Angus.' In the whole district of Angus there are not 500 polled cattle. In Aberdeenshire there are nearly 5,000. Besides, if they could call the hard bodied cattle that were there and that have always been called 'Polled Aberdeen' or 'Angus,' it seems a small matter but for the greater number of the breed, and has made no name of Aberdeenshire beef farmers. I think it is a mistake to call the cattle 'Polled Angus,' as it is not correct. There is a wide difference between them and Gallopy's, and I think the name of people are better. Goodwinked with these. Goodwinked can be bought at less than one-third the price."

F. W. KINGSLEY, Esq., Dear Sir: With pleasure we order ten gross Adams's British Cough Balm, showing conclusively that meat has won the day, and that your Balm is taking the lead over the many bottles of trash that now flood the market. From Smith, Dobbie & Smith, Drugists, Boston.

The old Hungarian work which appears on some pocket-books and is done by the peasants, who collect the flowers, and then put them into a bowl, and mix them with oil and flowers, making the veins and stems with lead beads. When mounted on satin or leather, this style of ornament looks very well.

FARM REGISTER

THIS BOARD OF AGRICULTURE having directed the Secretary to keep a Register of Farms and other Real Estate in the Province of which the owners may be known, and to cause the same to be printed and sold, Parties wishing to avail themselves of this privilege are requested to address the Secretary, at Fredericton, giving the following particulars:
