HARTWICK APPEARED IN COURT CHARGED WITH AWFUL MURDER

The Prisoner Now Appears To Be Sane, But Witnesses Swear They Believe He Was Not Responsible When He Killed His Wife.

THE SON ENGAGES A LAWYER TO DEFEND FATHER

Terrible Story of the Committing of the Crime and the Finding of the Body Is Again Repeated By Witnesses-Fight Will Be Made To Prove the Prisoner Insane.

The Hartwick murder hearing, which was to have begun at 11 o'clock this morning, opened at 12:30 instead, owing to the witnesses being detained

The prisoner, James Hartwick, gave the constables no trouble when he was brought into court, and appeared for the first time since his arrest to

He apparently took much interest in the proceedings. Mr. Fisher, of Meredith, Fisher & McDonald, appeared for the prisoner, and Crown Attorney McKillop conducted the examination of witnesses for THE FIRST WITNESS.

The first witness to be called was Dr. Ford, of Thorndale, who conducted the post-mortem on the body of the murdered woman, Jane Ann Hart-Death was caused, he stated, by shock and loss of blood, due to injuries to the body. The injuries had been caused solely by a human hand. Death must have resulted within an hour after the infliction of the wounds. The fatal portion of the injuries, the witness thought, had been all inflicted at

WITNESS CROSS-EXAMINED.

Mr. Fisher, in cross-examination, asked the witness how long he had known the prisoner, whether he had not been his family physician, and whether Hartwick ever, in his opinion, exhibited signs of insanity.

Dr. Ford stated that he had known Hartwick for several years, had been his physician, and that the prisoner, when intoxicated, had appeared insane at times.

PRISONER WAS IRRATIONAL.

"Do you think Hartwick was insane when he committed the deed with which he is charged?" asked Mr. Fisher.

"I consider that he was irrational at the time, and under the influence of liquor," was the reply. "He was not in a responsible condition, and did not realize what he was doing. I have frequently seen the man in a very excitable condition myself."

An adjournment was then taken until 1:45. (Continued on Page Eight.)

Will the defense in the Hartwick murder trial be based on the grounds of insanity?

Aged James Hartwick in Court

A few days ago James Hartwick appeared to be a raving maniac. Today, when brought up for a hearing he acted as sanely as any man could act.

Previously he had been visited by his son and Captain Thomas Robson, who had played with Hartwick as a boy, and the prisoner not only recognized his visitors, but conversed readily with them.

When the time came for Hartwick to be brought up to the main courtroom, where the hearing is being held, he walked upstairs firmly, and gave no trouble whatsoever. Once in the prisoners' box the aged prisoner was the center of all eyes, but appeared perfectly at ease. The courtroom was crowded to the doors with curious spectators, and occasionally Hartwick would turn around in the box and look into the crowd, as if seeking a friendly face. The spectacle of this gray-haired old man facing the most serious of all charges, murder, was a most touching one, and despite the fact that the crime with which he is charged was most brutal, there were many present who favored him with sympathetic looks, evidently believing him insane.

Mr. Fisher, who is defending the prisoner, has intimated what his line of defense will be, by attempting to gain statements from the witnesses so far examined that they considered Hartwick insane when drinking, and at the time of the murder.

PARKIN'S LIFE OF SIR JOHN MACDONALD.

The biography of Sir John Macdonald, written by Dr. Parkin, for the lished by Messrs. Morang & Co. Necessarily, any life of Sir John invites comparison with the work of Pope. The latter was the official biographer of the great leader of the Conservative party, and performed his years in confidential touch with Sir John, as his private secretary, and had access to his correspondence, and all the records bearing upon his long public career. The result was a dian history, but Mr. Pope was under obligations of friendship and party to be an apologist for Sir John, and to

of the dubious chapters of his life. Dr. Parkin has been under no such restriction. He was one of Sir John's followers; his attitude toward the subject of his biography is frankly sympathetic, and he obtrudes some opinions with which Liberals will not agree; but he has not tried to gloze moral shortcomings. The chapter of Canascandal, he says, is not a pleasant one for Canadians to read or for a biographer of Macdonald to write. He condemns the gerrymander of 1882 as an unjustifiable manipulation of constituencies, "which illustrates the maneuvers to which Sir John Macdespite his intellectual brealdth, could on occasion descend.' He confesses that Sir John's famous lloyalty manifesto on the eve of the elections of 1891 was "overstrainel."

To quote: "Like many another nation-builder, he must be considered lacking in that delicate scrupulousness which shrinks from using unworthy men and unworthy means for the accomplishment often of great purwho conscientiously believed that considering the ada in his time, the methods which employed were the only ones such a price is a point upon which prise. opinions will differ. The attitude of the Russian foreign spired press, is that the agreement, which is regarded as already violated in spirit by the Austrian foreign office. as a private bargain should be abrogated. Russia is now left a free hand to work our her own end of inducing Austria to withdraw her railroad scheme, but no hope of their success is held out on either side.

The principal efforts at present are being devoted to arranging a new grouping of the powers, it being thought here that Russia and Great Britain might enter into an agreement for joint action in Macedonia, and that these two powers would be supported by France and perhaps by Italy.

The defection of such an important power as Austria in the efforts to settle the Macedonia problem renders the outlook dark.

Since the seriousness of the Russian opposition to Austria's plans has become evident, hints have been thrown from Vienna that Russia and Italy, as the powers most directly interested. would be allowed in the way of compensation to construct railroad lines. Italy one through Albania and Russia a line from the Danube to the Adriatic Sea. Both powers, however, decline to accept this proposal.

Despite official assurance that harmony has been re-established between Austria and Russia, the situation arising from the question of railway concessions in the Balkans has not lost Its tension. Neither the foreign office nor the Russian embassy is concealing the fact that the action of the Austrian foreign minister has caused a deep concern in St. Petersburg.

Even should the Russian plans for a railroad from the Danube to the Adriatic be carried out with the consent of Austria, it is considered here that the work of Macedonia reform has come to a standstill. The Government is growing sensitive under the aggressive attacks of the French and Russian press, and adverse criticism in Great Britain, and will not admit that the Russian-Austro entente has become ineffective. The concensus of independent opinion, however, is that the Muerezstig scheme has practically disappeared.

Take another illustration: Our Lord said to Peter respecting a great truth which he had confessed, "On this rock will I build my church, and the gates of hell (hades) shall not prevail against it." The thought here is that the Lord will gather his church out of the world on the basis of the truth which Peter declared; and although death would prevail against the Lord's people century after century, and one after another they would go down into the great prison-house of death, and the strong bars of oblivion would close over them; nevertheless eventually, in the Lord's due time, there divine power should bring forth the while dead.

Popular Secretary of Champion Londons

Much of the credit due the local O. H. A. team for its brilliant showing this season must be given to the genial little secretary of the club, whose progressiveness and get-there methods, have caused the affairs of the team to be conducted on a businesslike basis, with the result that instead of a deficiency, as has been the rule, this season there will be a comfortable margin after expenses are

Mr. Powell first began playing hockey about ten years ago, at the age of 14 years, and he has been at it ever since, until after several games had been played, he retired in favor of Davy Bole, who carries more weight.

George began playing with the Hortons, and has performed on three of the club's junior O. H. A. teams, besides having been connected with the Seventh Regiment team, upon which, however, he had little chance to distinguish himself. As secretary of the club, Powell has proved himself to be equally as good businessman as he was a hockey player, and that is saying much. Always there with an encouraging word, and out with an eye to the best interests of the team, the little secretary has made himself one of the most popular hockey men in thecity, and it is certain that so long as he desires to retain the position, the secretaryship will be his, for a better man could not be secured for the place. Hats off to the secretary of the best hockey team London has had in nearly a decade!

THE LATE FRANK DREWE

Suffered From Epilepsy and Became Despondent.

The following particulars regarding the death of Mr. Frank Drewe, of Winnipeg, are contained in a dispatch from that tiful and accomplished young of this city. He was of engaging manners, an expert at his line of business (fire insurance), For the past two years he was under the care of Dr. Jamieson, and Drs. Brown and McDonald, as consulting physicians. He suffered from epilepsy or some sickness of an epileptic nature, from which apparently he could get no permanent reief, and it was from despondency that he decided to end his life. He lived for nine hours with the bullet (a small one) imbedded in his brain, not losing consciousness, and he was later to take affectionate leave of his relatives.

The young man's prospects for a happy and prosperous life were very bright, and it was all the more a shocking and saddening event to his relatives and friends. The funeral last Saturday was very largely attended.
