Cesarevitch. He gave the alarm. A dozen searchlights flashed out and the sight paralyzed the Russians, according to the dispatches sent to St. Petersburg. Half a dozen torpedo boats were making their way toward the moored warships.

Before any move could be made a torpedo was launched from one of the Japanese boats at the Cesarevitch and striking her, exploded, tearing her apart. At almost the same moment another torpedo was fired at and hit the Retvizan, the most modern ship in the Russian navy, and made a wreck of her. The deadly missile struck the Retvizan just forward of her forward turret on the port side and hardly any attempt was made to repet the attack being made.

By this time several Russian torpedo boats had got into the fight, and the Japanese, finding affairs becoming rather complicated and more critical than they cared to meet, withdrew as they came.

Attempts were made from the shore to fire the mines in the entrance to the harbor. Some of them did explode but not while any torpedo boat was near, while others failed utterly to answer the clerk

JAPANESE REPORTED TO HAVE SCORED ANOTHER VICTORY

Her Warships Attacked Those of Russia at Port Arthur and Chemulpo and Destroyed Two at the Latter Port.

Tokio, February 9.—It is reported here that the Japanese fleet engaged and defeated two Russian warships, whose names have not yet been jearned, at Chemulpo, to-day. It is said the engagement began at 11 a. m. and continued until 3 p. m.

The smaller Russian vessel is reported to have been sunk, and the larger one fired and hopelessly disabled. A part of the crew is reported to have escaped to the shore and to have been captured. The Japanese ships are reported to be slightly damaged. Official confirmation of the report is unobtainable.

London, February 10.—In a despatch from Tien Tsin, dated February 9, a correspondent of the Daily Mail says it is reported there that the Russian cruisers Variag and Koretz hauled down their flags without firing a shot and that 8,000 Japanese immediately landed at Chemulpo and the march to Scoul commenced.

MAP OF THE SCENE OF EASTERN STRIFE

The accompanying map will enable readers to see at a glance that portion of the world which is the seat of the great war. To the south is Manchuria, of which so much has been lately heard, and which Russian aggression has made the cause of alarm to diplomatists, both in the eastern and western hemispheres,

WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 10. JUGGLING WITH BYE-ELEC.

"A democrat up to the hilt" writes The Ottawa Citizen, arguing that the present method of holding byeelections, revives on a small scale ses which prevailed long ago in general elections. "The system which prevailed 35 or 40 years ago was liable to abuses. "The government, having in its hands the whole election machinery, manipulated it to suit its own purpose—to contribute to the success of ministers and their upporters. The election campaign, from dissolution to the return of the writs, usually extended from 70 to 100 days. This, of itself, with the excitement and turmoil consequent therein was far from being a mendable feature. On receipt of the writ the returning officer fixed the duties of nomination, polling and de-claration within the limits prescribed by the statute. The interregnum between dissolution and polling was practically subdivided into three perlods. In the first period only writs were issued and rushed for the strongholds, the safe constituencies of government candidates. Many of these went by acclamation, or by overwhelming majorities. These successes added eclat and prestige to the final triumph of the government. In the second period doubtful constituencies were attacked. One by one was government influence conce. crated upon them; and too frequently the result bore testimony to the methods pursued. It not in requently happened that the government mergsolute majority of the representatives as avowed supporters. In the third eriod, with the increased prestige and eclat which the presumption gives, the government went into the strong holds of the opposition, sometimes capturing seats considered almost

It has been distinctly stated that

Great Britain has made it unmistakably plain to Japan that under no circumstances will she interfere unless in the contingency contemplated in the treaty, and that France made a similar intimation to Russia. That Britiin and France have been unitedly striving for peace is certain, and there is no reason to doubt that a mutual understanding prevails between them as regards their future conduct. It would be futile to deny that a Japanese victory means much for British interests in the East, both direct and in direct. That was a significant remark of the British envoy to Japan when in a recent speech he quoted the legend graven on the historic sword—on one side, "Be slow to draw me," and on the other, "Nor sheather me save with honor." #### ICE-BATH CURE Patients Plunged Into a Hole Chopped in the Frozen Rivers of Russia.

Ice-cold baths for the purpose of curing disease are the rage just now among a certain class of Russian physicians. This does not mean simply cold water as it runs from the faucet, or is pumped from the well or cistern. It means to go to the lake or river, frozen over several inches thick, and after chopping eral inches thick, and after chopping a hole in the ice, the patient is plunged into the water up to his meck, the temperature being 32 degrees Fahrenheit. Marvellous virtues are attributed to this heroic treatment, but it is obvious that a person must be of a robust constitution to be able to react after the fearful shock of the bath. However, it is said that when rolled up in blankets, and perhaps stimulated with a little brandy, very pleasant after effects are experienced, and the vigorous efforts made by the body to recover from the paralyzing effects of the icy water are said to be sufficient to banish any more or less imaginary disease.

The ice-bath cure is similar to the Rusing snow-cure. At the little The ice-bath cure is similar to the Kneipp snow-cure. At the little village of Worshofen, near Munich, thousands of suffering people are said to have been cured by means of cold water. Pure air and icy cold water bring about a proper circulation of the blood. The patients not only take baths of every kind, but walk bare-footed on the snow and rub themselves all over with it. They drink water from morning to They drink water from morning to night, wear cotton as coarse as sacks next the skin, and eat very rich nitrogenous foods, such as meat, cheese, fish, milk, peas, beans and lentils.

The remainder of his waking hours is spent according to a madi-cal authority, in taking medicines, so that the microbes are constantly on the defensive and cease to worry on the defensive and cease to worry the patient.

The most remarkable point in connection with cures is that a most every remedy has its contrary. Directly apposed to Fr. Kneipp's water cure is Dr. Schroth's dry cure—an ordeal which no disease ought to survive. In this method the food is freed from all moisture, and the patient has nothing to drink exceed one interest has nothing to drink exceed one. tient has nothing to drink except one small glass of hot wine morning and small glass $\textit{ell}$ flot wine morning and night. Dinner consists of boiled regetables thoroughly dried, with pepper and salt. For all other meals the patients eats only dry bread. brane, the periosteum.

Every year some new cure is added to the long list. Quite 50 different kinds of baths are used, including blood baths, slime baths, peat, sand, glue, wine, alcohol, milk, bran, and acid baths. Some people pin their faith to breathing compressed air, others to rarefied air, or hot air, others to rarefied air, or hot air, or cold air. There is the exygen cure and the bozone cure, the milk, the whey, and the koumiss cure, the whey, and the koumiss cure, the shaking cure, the sun cure, the darksnaking cure, the sun cure, the dark-ness cure, electricity, music, needles, percussors—and in spite of all one might get the rounds of the medical profession and fail to get cured of an ordinary little cold in the head.

holding a potlatch at Fishing River. Inspired by whiskey supplied by a trader, the Indians held a sun dance. This did not content some, who wanted a potlatch, in which knives are freely used to test the courage of the Indian braves.

One got his companions to cut the tendons of his back to insert sticks, after the custom of the ancient dances, but could not bear the pain when one tendon had been cut. Another put pine needles in his arms and then applied a fight to them, severely burning himself, but his bravery was established when he bore the pain without a murmur.

Others slashed themselves with knives, inflicting bad flesh wounds, and then retired from the dance, to be attended by medicine men. The dance continued for three nights, more than a hundred Indians taking part in the performance on the snow, with the temperature 30 below zero.

AN ENGLISHWOMAN'S JOURNEY BY MULE BACK TO VATUNG.

People Whese Religious Rites Are Mixture of Pagan, Buddhist and Christian-Power of the Priest Governors-Prayer Wheels, Curious Invention of Bevotien, Seen on All Sides.

An English lady, one of the few white women who have ever penetrated Thibet, recently returned from a rough journey to Vatung, the trading town where Thibetans meet the rest, of the world. In 1888 the grand lama of Thibet gave permission to his subjects to admit "foreign devils" as far into his domain as a certain point specified, eight miles within the Thibetan border. At that point the village of Vatung was built, a mere hamlet of little wooden houses. One or two foreign commissioners of trade live there. The commissioner for the Chinese Government is an Englishman, and it was on the invitation of mah, and it was on the invitation of him and his wife to visit them that the adventurous English lady set out with two friends and a troop of pack mules with Thibetan drivers and g iides.

The road leads uphill all the way

To reach Thibet the party passed northward through the Province of Sikkim, crossing a mountain pass nearly three miles above sea level. This is Jelap pass, and from it one can look down into the forbidden land. At the top of the pass a rough stone wall marks the boun-dary between Sikkim and Thibet, and every traveler who crosses the boundary must add one stone to that wall. It is a curious custom, but ob-served by all. In addition to the stone, pious Thibetan Buddhists push often into some crevice a stick to which is tied a rag or paper having a prayer inscribed upon it. The peo-ple in Thibet are tremendous on prayers, so zealous that they cannot say them fast enough or often enough Once at Vatung, every traveles of course is wild to go farther on, to pengtrate to Lassa itself. But a wall penctrate to Lassa itself. But a wall is built behind Vatung. Beyond that no white man may go. The wall is guarded by Thibetan soldiers, very dirty and somewhat dangerous looking. Up the hill above Vatung is a hama monastery, which the travelers visited—that is to say, they visited the outside of it. They begged to be sllowed to enter, but the lama priests drew their, forefingers across their own throats. That indicated the fate awaiting them if they let the travelers in.

above the belt, making it form a sort of bag or pouch, and in that receptacle they carry often food enough to last them for days—a very convenient arrangement. The Thibetan salaam is a very odd ftem of orientals, bowing his head low and spieading his hands apart. Then after the bow is over and his head is raised again he sticks out his tongue at the person he is bowing to. He means it as a compliment.

The women's dress is nearly the same as the men's, except that on great occasions the female adorn their heads with a fantastic silver hoop, having turquoises—studded around it. They pile their hair around this hoop. One queer thing about both Thibetan men and women is that they rarely either cut or comb their hair from birth till death. To make up for that, however, both men and women wear many turquoises. Of these gems the English lady says, "One sees stones hanging from a dirty car that would cause pangs of envy in the breast of many a London helle."

of envy is the breast of many a London belle."

Thibstan women are handsome, many of them, and decidedly better looking than the men. All wear long boots to enable them to wade through the snow. At the lama monastery which the lady was not allowed to go into there was a great row of hideous looking masks, or false faces, put out upon the fence to air. These masks are worn by the priests in religious festivals. The object is to familiarize the people with the looks of devils, so they, the good Thibetans, will not be scared at the evil spirits when they see them in the other world.

story that is much more ancient than that familiar to western people. The key of the latter story is the slipper, but not so theirs. Peach Blossom, the Korean Cinderella's name, was the family drudge. One day as the mother was starting off with the favorite daughter to a picnic she said to Peacl Blossom, "You must not leave until you have hulled a bagful of rice and filled the broken crock with water."
While sitting there bemoaning her hard lot she heard a twittering and a fluttering of wings. Looking up, she saw a flock of sparrows pecking the hulls off the rice. Before recovering from her surprise a little imp jumped out of the fireplace and so skillfully repaired the crock that but a few min utes of work was required to fill it with water. Then she went to the picnic and had a royal time.

On another occasion the mother said,

CHANGING ONE'S NAME. The Method Is a Rather Costly One

Many people change their names without asking permission from any one or paying any fees whatever. This is certainly the simplest way of getting rid of a name you do not appreclate, but it is apt to prove expensive For instance, such a course is strictly illegal, and the government could step in at any time and demand the payment of a heavy fine; and, further more, if the individual who changed his name without consulting anybody happened to come in for a large sum would decline to recognize his claim if he had failed to pay the fees due to the heralds' college for assuming a name not given in baptism. There are two ways of changing your name, and they are both rather costly. One method is to have a private act of parliament passed for your benefit. This course is generally followed only by peers and people to whom money is no object, for it costs £750. This nearly all goes in fees to minor officials for bringing your case milnor officials for bringing your case before the legislature, inasmuch as the actual passing of the bill costs prac-tically nothing. And the enly advan-tage you will gain from this expensive way of going to work is that inquiries will not be made into your past history, which by the other alternative are un-

of money unexpectedly the authorities avoidable The usual method adopted for lega!!y changing the name is somewhat te very substantial reasons for so doing or your claim will not be allowed. If, for instance, you inherit property which makes it conditional that you change your name you can do so on payment of about 550 in fees.

In the first place you must com-municate with the home secretary, who, if he considers your claim valid, will refer you to the heralds' college and the king of arms. These officials will make full inquiries into your history and satisfy themselves beyond question that your reason for wishing to make the change is in every way legitimate. This done, they will again communicate with the home secretary, who will lay your claim before the king, for he alone has power to authorize the change being made. Even tually, after some months of waiting, you will be informed by the heralds' college that his majesty has approved of your claim and the change of name is published in a remote corner of the London Gazette. Finally it is worthy of mention that no one can hold a public appointment under government who has changed his name without the consent of the king, however brilliant may have been his services to the country. The reason for this is rather curious. The name for this is rather curious. The name given you at your baptism is in theory ratified by the sovereign as head of the church, and by assuming another on your own responsibility you are deliberately breaking a law of the land.—Loudon Tit-Bits.

So many articles of food, especially breakfast foods, have been put up in packages, that it is getting to be a perplexing matter to know what to choose. Outside of this is the fact that packages of necessity increases the prices of the foods. The old way of getting breakfast foods in barrels is just as clean, and just as convenient for the user as getting it in packages. #### BAD FIRE NEAR DUART.

The residence of John McK'm, w well known farmer near Duart, was totally destroyed by fire in the early hours of Friday morning. Mr. Mc-Kim and family retired at the usual hour on Thursday night, leaving, as was the custom, a fire in the dining room heater. About four o'clock they were awakened by the bursting out of the flames and their no so and roar as they made rapid headway fanned by the wind. All the members of the family fortunately escaped from the burning house in their night clothes, and made their way through the deep snowdrifts to the barn, where they found shelter. The daughters saved their jewelry, watches and a couple of fur jackets. All the other contents, valued at $1,800, were totally destroyed. $1,800, were totally destroyed. Suffering from the severe cold of what was perhaps the most disagreeable night of the winter, the family was forced to remain in the barn until daylight, when the son managed to hitch up a rig and driving to lMr. Sinclair's, notified him. That gentleman hitched his team to a bobsleigh filled with straw, and taking with him blankets and clothing, went after the remaining members of the family and took them to his home. The loss is a severe one to Mr. Mc-Kim, as the contents were inserted for only $300, and the house, valued at least $1,000, was insured for only $300. The present condition of the weather and the mountains of snow make it impossible to do much towards rebuilding, and the chances here that it will be some months before a new home is in readiness. Mr. McKim has the sympathy of all in his misfortune.

The insurance was in the Howard Farmers', and as usual a prompt settlement was made. The fire was on Friday, and by Tuesday noon the chount of insurance stood to Mr. McKim's credit in a Ridgetown bank.—Ridgetown Dominion.

FATHER LOISELLE

he Pastor of Big Point Left for a New Field of Laboron Thursday - Receives Many Tributes

It is greatly regretted by all the people of Big Point, that their pastor, R.v. Father Loiselle, is to be removed from their midst. The sad news was received on the last day of January, and he will leave on Thursday, a petition was at once sent by the parish oners to His Lordship Bishop McEvay, praying him to let their dearly beloved pastor remain with them; but it was in vain; it was already too late.

When this response was announced the people wished to show their appreciation in some other way, and on Suaday an address was read on behalf of the congregation by Mr. Zephire Cheff, accompanied by a well-filled purse. Sorrow was plainly evident in the faces of all at the thought of separation from their priest, who filled purse. Sorrow was plainly evident in the faces of all at the thought of separation from their priest, who had been their faithful friend and holy adviser for more than n'na years. Fr. Loiselle was deeply touched by the beautiful sent ments expressed in the address but was too overcome to reply at any length. He said that this was the saddest day of his life, but that having a superior he must obey the divina call. He thanked them for the helping hand they had always given him, and although he hoped they would not forget him, he asked them to love, respect and help his successor. Fr. Pradhomme. He gave a full account of his financial administration during his stay among them, which was perfectly satisfactory to everyone.

When he went to the Separate school No. 9, to bid the children farewell he was presented with another address on bihalf of the pupils, which was supplemented by a beautiful marble and gold clock. He thanked them for their love and thoughtfulness, saying that he had never found more pleasure than with the children He advised them to study hard, although he would be far from them, he would follow them in their studies and would know who gained the medals which he had presented to them this year. He said he wanted them to grow up perfect men and women and to be an honor to the country.

Father Loiselle goes to take charge of the parish of St. Joseph, Huron County.

Slowly and almost unconsciously Madeleine had put on her wraps, which

Doan's Kidney Pills.

Mr. Benjamin Brooks, a well-knows farmer of West Cape, P.E.I., tells of how his son was cured of Kidney Disease, and how he was cured of Backache.

The First Sign of Kidney Trouble.

He says: "Our little boy was troubled with kidney disease. We had tried many kinds of kidney pills but they only helped for a tims. We got Doan's Kidney Pills and one box effected a perfect cure. About six weeks after this I caught a very bad cold that settled in my kidneys. My back was so sore I could hardly walk. I went to the drug store and got a box, took them according to directions and the result was that my back was completely cured. I believe they are the best kidney pill on the market to-day."

nal in composition, scientifically compounded, absolutely pure, unchangeable in any climate, always ready, and agreable to the most delicate, they present to those suffering from Eczema the most successful curative of modern times. We know that this will be considered strong language by those acquainted with the character and obstinacy of the disease under consideration, but it is justified by innumerable successes where all the remedies and methods in vogue have failed to cure, and, in many cases, to relieve, even.

The first step in the treatment of the chronic forms is to remove the scales and crusts and soften the skin, by warm baths with Cuticura Soap. The scalp, ears, elbows, hands, ankles and feet will require frequently a thorough soaking in order to penetrate the thickened skin and crusts with which these parts are often covered. Dry carefully, and apply Cuticura Ointment, lightly at first, and where advisable spread it on pleces of soft cloth and bind in place. Take the Resolvent, pills or liquid, in medium doses. "Jules-Rene-Henri de Lagors, last of his name, died at St. Remy on the 20th of December, 1848, in a condition bordering on poverty. He at one time was possessed of a moderate fortune, but invested it in a silkworm nutsery and lost it all. "He had no son, but left two daughters, one of whom is a teacher at Aix, and the other married a retail merchant at Orgon. His widow is supported entirely by one of her relatives, the wife of a rich banker in Paria. No person of the name of Lagors lives in the district of Arlea.

"That is all," said M. Verduret. "Don" you think it enough?" "Really, monsieur, I don't know whether I am awake or dreaming."

"Now I wish to remark one thing. Some people may assert that the Wid-ow Lagors had a child born after her husband's death, not acknowledged, husband's death, not acknowledged, but-bearing the father's name. "But," said Prosper thoughtfully. 'who is Raoul?"

"I don't know. I confess it is easier to find out who he is than to know who he is not. There is one man who could give us all the information we seek, but he will take good care to keep his mouth shut." "M. de Clameran?"

"I have always felt the most inexplicable aversion toward him. Ah, if we could only get his record in addition to what you already have!"
"I have been furnished with a few notes concerning the Clameran family his information:

"Louis de Clameran was born at the Chateau de Clameran, near Tarascon. He had an elder brother named Gaston. In 1842, in consequence of an affray in which he had the misfortune to kill one man and badly wound another, he was compelled to fly the country. Gaston was an honest, noble youth, universally beloved. Louis, on the contrary, was a wicked, despicable fellow, detested by all who knew him.

"Upon the death of his father Louis came to Paris and in less than two years had squandered not only his own patrimony, but also the share of his exiled brother.

"Ruíned, harassed by debt, Louis entered the army, but behaved so disgracefully that he was dismissed from the service.

"After leaving the army we lost sight of him, All we know is that he went to England and thence to a German gambling resort, where he was mixed up in a scandalous affair.

"In 1865 we find him again in Paris. He was in great poverty, and his associates were depraved. "But he suddenly heard of the return of his brother Gaston to France. Gaston had made a fortune in Mexico; but, being still a young man and accustomed to a very active life, he purchased an iron mill near Oloron, intending to spend the remainder of his life in working it. Six months ago he died in the arms of his brother Louis. His death gave our De Clameran an imin remainder of his life in working it.

"Then," he said, "from all this I judge that M. de Clameran was very poor when I met him for the first tim at M. Fauvel's."

"Evidently." "And about that time Lagors arrived from the country?"
"Exactly."

"And about a month after his appearance Madeleine suddenly banishe "Well," exclaimed M. Verduret, "I am glad you are beginning to understand the state of affairs." He was interrupted by the entrance of a stranger. The newcomer was a spruce looking coachman, with ele-gant black whiskers, shining boots with fancy tops, buff breeches and a yellow waistcoat with red and black tripes. After cautiously looking around the room he walked straight up to the table where M. Verduret sat.

"Well, Master Joseph Dubois?" said the stout man eagerly.
"Don't speak of it," answered the servant. "Things are getting warm."

Prosper concentrated all his attention upon this superb domestic. He though he recognized his face. He had certainly somewhere seen that retreating forehead and those little restless black forehead and those little restless black eyes, but where and under what circumstances he could not remember. Meanwhile Master Joseph had taken a seat at a table adjoining the one occupied by M. Verduret and, having called for some absinth, was preparing it by holding the water aloft and slowly dropping it in the glass. "Speak," said M. Verduret.

MANITOBA LEGISLATURE PRO-ROGUED.

Winnipeg, Man., Feb. 8.—The Local Legislature was prorogued this aftermoon at half-past three, when His Honor the Licutenant-Governor gave his asseart to the bills out of the 113 which came before the Local House this session. The ceremony of closing was very similar to that fof the opening; the clerk read the bills, which had been passed, and after the speech from the throne the boom of guns announced that the eleventh Legislature had finished its first session.

TENDENCY OF THE TIMES.

The tendency of medical science is toward preventive measures. The best thought of the world is being given to the subject. It is easier and better to prevent than to cure. It has been fully demonstrated that pneumonia, one of the most dangerous diseases that medical men have to contend with, can be prevented by the use of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. Pneumonia always results from a cold or from an attack of influenza (grip), and it has been observed that this remedy counteracts any tendency of these diseases toward pneumonia. This has been fully proven in many thousands of cases in which this remedy has been used during the great prevalence of colds and grip in recent years, and can be relied upon with implicit confidence. Pneumonia often results from a slight cold when ne danger is apprehended until it is suddenly discovered that there is fever and difficulty in breathing and pains in the chest, then it is announced that the patient has pneumonia. Be on the safe side and take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy as soon as the cold is contracted. It always cures. The tendency of medical science is Cough Remedy as soon as the cold is contracted. The scientist in question is Samuel P. Verner, anthropologist, professor in Stillman Institute of the University of South Carolina, Fellow of Yale University, missionary, discoverer of the strange tribe of Batwa Pigmies, and author of the recently-published "Pioneering in Central Africa." The professor sailed for the Congo Free State, from Antwerp, with the Belgian Governor of that territory, which he will make his headquarters, and penetrate from thence into the interior for the study of the primitive races of mankind there to be met with. There is to be a great congress of scientists at St. Louis, U.S.A., next year, and to add to the information of the Anthropological section Prof. Verner has, aided by the United States Government, now completed all his plans for his special exploration.

As already stated, Professor Verner special exploration.

As already stated, Professor Verner found the curious tribe of Batwa Pigmies on the Lunda Plateau at the headwaters of the Zambesi in 1897. Much scientific discussion resulted from the discovery of these remarkable little people, and some theorists contended that they were indeed Darwin's long-sought. Missing Links, Lloyd's Weekly Newspaper's representative, who found the modest professor in his London hotel recently, was favored with some particulars of his intentions, and during the conversation asked the savant whether he was really going to solve the mystery of the Missing Link at last. "I am going to make that question part of my study," was the reply, "and though I do not expect that I shall establish whether the Missing Link actually existed or not, you can at least expect, on my return next July. a solution of the problem Link actually existed or not, you can at least expect, on my return next July. a solution of the problem whether these pigmies can be the beings demanded by one evolutionary hypothesis. The pigmics, being accessible, present the most concrete object of study I can get hold of. I do not think the pigmies are the Missing Links because although they possess all the organs and powers of ordinary human beings they are the only ones that approximate in size to apes. The relation of the Pigmies to the human race is a most interesting probables. to the human race is a most interesting problem. It appears to be a fact that the Pigmies were the Aborigines of Africa when the higher races came down from Asia, and now the great question at issue is, "Have the Pigmies degenerated from these higher races, or, are they, according to Darwin, the result of evolution from apes?"

races, or, are they, according to Darwin, the result of evolution from apes?"

Turning from the subject of Missing Links, Professor Verner proceeded to relate some of the prospects of what he considers the more important objects of his mission, in the acquisition of knowledge of the barbarous and primitive African races for the purpose of comparing them with civilized humanity. The president of the American Anthropological Association, in saying farewell to Professor Verner, said that if he succeeded he would have effected one of the greatest scientific achievements of recent years. The district he intends traversing on the great Congo Divide is about the least known part of Africa, and he expects to visit a few towns where white men have never been before. 'In general terms,' he said, 'I wish to bring away specimens of everything that these primitive peoples make—their houses, their manufactures in pottery, iron, copper, their wheat cultivation, textile fabrics, weapons, etc. Then I will group together the produce upon which the people live, with a particular reference to the many herbs and vegetables they use for medicines and vegetables they use for m celonization of Africa, signs of which he indicates in the efforts now being made to cultivate cotton in Central Africa and the like. It is not yet settled among scientists whether white men can live in Central Africa. Professor Verner's opinion is that the elevated regions are all capable of white colonization. "It is a curfous fact," he adds with a smile, "that all those elevated regions are under the dominion of the British Empire."

So long as his coat hung fairly well from the shoulders the deceased premier cared little, but he pever went the length of Mr. Gladstone, whose clothes were often so shabby that only an eminent person would wear them. Lord Salisbury's hats were enormous affairs, quite equaling Mr. Gladstone's in size and snuch more respectable. Indeed Mr. Gladstone's headgear was generally in the "shocking bad hat category. While in attendance in the Commons Mr. Glacstone dressed fairly well, but outside the house he paid little attention to his garments. The successors in office of the great departed are, on the other hand, care ful dressers, especially Lord Rosebery, who designed a collar for himself with the turnover peaks rounded for greater comfort and durability. Birth-marks which mark and mar the outside of the body are a grief to every mother whose children may bear them. But for every child who bears a birth-mark on the skin there bears a birth-mark on the skin there are many who bear an indelible birth-mark on the mind. Nervous mothers have nervous children and many a man and woman owe an irritable and despondent temperament to those days of dread when the mother waited the hour of her maternity. The use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription strengthens the mother for her trial. With strength comes a buoyancy of spirits and quietness of mind, which is one of the happiest gifts a mother can bestow on her offspring. By giving vigor and elasticity to the delicate womanly organs "Favorite Prescription" practically does away with the pain of maternity and makes the baby's advent as natural and as simple as the blossoming of a flower. There is no opium, cocaine or other narcotic contained in "Favorite Prescription."

AN OLD SUNDAY SCHOOL.

AN OLD SUNDAY SCHOOL.

One of the Many Links With the Past
Which Makes Old Lender Se Interesting to Mederns.

London's oldest Sunday school owed its inception and formation to the efforts of a Hoxton shoemaker, by name James Kemp. The work started by him (at first single-handed) so far back as 1784—later in connection with Hoxton Academy Chapel—has its quarters now in associations with the Old street New Tabernacle. In tracing the history of the school over a hundred and twenty years one is forcibly reminded of Emerson's saying that every institution is only the prolonged shadow of a man.

about Sabbath instruction for the peer and creating sympathy for the enterprise, James Kemp Sunday after Sunday in his little home had gathered Hoxton waifs and strays around him, teaching them to read from the Bible. Fellow Dissenters, chiefly of the lowly order, helped the simple-hearted shoemaker, and the work grew. Raikes' labers were noised abroad in religious circles, and James Kemp, full of enthusiasm, actually walked from Hoxton to Gloucestershire to confer with the man new universally recognized as the founder of Sunday schools. The friendly counsel of Raikes stimulated Kemp, if possible, to more persistent effort in his godly work.

The Hoxton shoemaker also found sympathy and edcouragement from a half-forgotten Christian worthy, William Fox, the founder of the Sunday School Society, started in September, 1785. Fox, a presperous Cheapside Mercer and draper, put himself is touch with Raikes, who gave him valuable aid in forming the association. Among others who gave practical sympathy were Jonas Hanway, Cowper the poet, William Wilberforce, Granville Sharp, Henry Thornton, of Clapham, and Samuel Hoare, of Hampstead, James Kemp attended their cenferences in the Poultry, and also in Cateaton street, and his labors were cited and adduced to show what an individual might do in carrying through the work they all had at heart.

But Kemp's labors were to find fresh and larger developments. In 1783 a college was opened at Mileend for giving a liberal education to Congregational ministers. It was afterwards removed to Hoxton and was known as Hoxton Academy, Asmall chapel in connection was erected in 1796, the opening sermen being proached by the celebrated William proached by the celebrated William proached by the celebrated William proached by the celebrated William was known as Hoxton Academy. A small chapel in connection was erected in 1796, the opening sermen being preached by the celebrated William Jay, of Bath. The cause prospered, and a more commodicus place of worship was opened in 1800. At the enlargement in 1804 and again at that of 1806 James Kemp was still to the fore with a single plea. "Don't forget the children." Still engaged in his old work—simple, plous, persistent—he kept this object ever before the attention of the members, and in 1814 the schools of Hoxton Academy Chapel were opened. It was thus that the father of London Sunday schools saw the object of his life completed.

Coilingwood Bright's Disease Cure Brings to Light Others Equally Wonderful.

Mrs. Fred Philip, of Eglinton, Tells of Her Kemarkable Experience.

Discharged From Two Toronto Hos-pitals-Dodd's K'dney Pills Brought Back Her Health.

At the Park street Methodist lecture hall last evening, Mr. Moorehouse addressed a fair sized and appreciative audience on "The Old Man and His Furnture." He took for his text Romans 6, 6, where the old man is mentioned as being crucified with Christ. This old man, he explained, does not refer, as is sometimes believed to be the devil, but to our fallen nature or our original sin.

The picture which was shown as representing the subject, represented Toronto, Feb. 8.—(Special).—The report from Collingwood of the wonderful cure of Mrs. Thomas Adams of Bright's Disease by Dodd's Kidney Pills has aroused great interest here and the discussion of it has brought out the fact that Mrs. Adams' case is not an isolated one, that right in Toronto there are people who, suffering from the most dreaded and fatal of Kidney Diseases, have found a positive and permanent cure in Dodd's Kidney Pills.

One of the most striking cases that has been brought to light is that of Mrs. Fred. Philip, now residing on Broadway avenue, Eglinton, one of the northern suburbs of the city. That Mrs. Philip was suffering from Bright's Disease and was in a most dangerous state, there is not the shadow of a doubt. She was in two city hospitals, Grace and the General, and left both places without a hope for the future.

In THE HOSPITALS.

In Grace Hospital the doctors wished to operate on her but she others. The picture which was shown as representing the subject, represented the old man with all his furniture or his deeds, as boing kicked out of the house or soul of man. This old man said Mr. Moorehouse, is the root of all our sins and must be put down. We cannot put the sins down one by one as they come, but must destroy the cause. Thus we must be victorious over the old man. For, unless we can conquer him we can not be freed

In Grace Hospital the doctors wished to operate on her but she objected, and leaving the hospital called in another doctor. He told her at once that she had Bright's Disease and had her removed to the General Hospital. The doctors here demurred to an operation on account of the danger.

On being discharged a second time without benefit Mrs. Philip stopped the doctors and started to take Dodd's Kidney Pills. The result is that to-day all the terrible swelling liender, on Monday, was one of the is gone, she is able to do all her own dies were present:—Mesdames Steg-mann, Scane, Stevens, Ferguson, Ball, Laird, Fleming, Tyhurst, Scott, Mc-Lean, Smith, Sheldon and Miss Ryan.

In an interview Mrs. Philip spoke freely of her terrible trouble and gave unstinted praise to Dodd's Kidney Pills.

"I was sick for six months;" she said, "before taking Dodd's Kidney Pills. During that time I was six weeks in Grace Hospital and two months in the General Hospital. #### AN OLD SUBSCRIBER

A. W. Crow, of Louisville, paid for his Weekly Planet this week, and when he loid down his money he said it was the fiftieth dollar he had paid into the office for his subscription, Having subscribed forty-eight years ago. This case came on for trial this when the Crown Attorney stated to the Police Magistrate that he had carefully investigated the evidence that Mr. Payne had acted in good faith and in reliance upon the spector. Dr. Kime was in court and corroborated the statement made by O. L. Lewis, counsel for the defence, that he had expressed his opinion that that he had expressed his opinion that the animal in question was sound and fit for food and for slaughter, and that, after he had expressed his opinion, Mr. Payne, relying upon it, purchased the animal and slaughtered it. The lod ng vet Thiry authorities were produced and read to the court, showing that the present conceasus of opinion was that local lump-jaw does not render the animal unfit for human food, and that it is not a contagious disease or passed from the

The offence, therefore, in the case of Mr. Payne was purely a technical one, as he had taken the precaution to get the opinion of an experienced veterinary, who, in open court, declared this morning that he had examined the beef and found it sound and fit for human food, and that he would have no hesitation in eating it. It was also stated in court that three

On Friday even ng. Jan. 29th a number of local hockey enthusiasts visited Thamesville and played a friendly game with the team of that place. Last week the Thamesville Herald and the Dr. sd n Standard both published reports of the game, and we could not but remark on the difference in the two reports. The Herald softle in writing up the game described the Dresden boys as "gentlemen both on the ice and off," and in a true sportsmanlike spirit gave them credit for playing a much better game than would be interred from the onessided score. It is to be reported. on the part of Mr. Payne,
