FIGURES DO LIE.

Prices are only Relative

REGAL ENGINES are the highest priced engines, yet they are the cheapest.

They are the highest priced engines because they cost more to build. They are the cheapest engines, because they will last twice as long as any other engine.

They are also the cheapest engines because they save your time, and "Time is money." If you shut your eyes to this real bargain in engines, you will be the sorriest fisherman who ever signed an order.

You will lose more money than you can afford to lose, and your oil bills will be twice as large. REGAL ENGINES use less oil, have more power, run with less trouble and give more genuine satisfaction than any other engine on the market.

We are, in the near future, going to ask all cash for REGAL ENGINES, so buy one before we make this change, as we intend to make them the "Hall Mark" engines of Newfoundland.

We ship REGAL ENGINES complete with full book of instructions, and when once installed in your boat, any child can run one. REGAL ENGINES are higher priced than other engines, but are the cheapest in the long run, because they run the longest.

BUSINESS AS USUAL

Gouveneur Morris—"Father of the Penny"

AMONG all the framers of the Constitution of the United States none were more adept at constructive statesmanship than the "father of the American decimal system" and originator of the copper cent. The finish, style and a refinement of the Constitution fairly belong to the brilliant and eloquent Morris. From his youth to the hour of his death he was a devoted and dauntless worker for American progress. His unrivaled ability as an orator was known throughout Europe, and his funeral orations on Washington, Clinton and Hamilton are treasured American classics. Gouveneur Morris was an indomitable supporter of the Louisiana Purchase. He it was who rescued Lafayette from prison walls and aided him from his private purse. Personally he was very handsome; his nature was impulsive, but his heart was warm and generous. He loved society, and his hospitality was famous. All his life he drank the creative brews of malt and hops, and who will dare say that it weakened his will power or detracted from his success, his fame, his glory and his might? It was upon the tenets of the Constitution of the U.S.A. that Anheuser-Busch 38 years ago founded their great institution. During these 5 years they have daily brewed from the finest barley and hops beers famous for being alive with natural force and nutriment. Their great brand BUDWEISER, because of its quality, purity, mildness and exquisite flavor, exceeds the sales of any other bottled beer by millions of bottles. BUDWEISER'S popularity grows daily, and 7500 people are daily employed to keep pace with the public demand.

CHAPTER XXXVII

"Better give in. Better surrender—we've help at hand; there are some more of us near. What's the use of killing me?" for Rath's hand was on his throat, and Rath's eyes were flashing angrily.

"Why do you attack me?" Do you want to rob me?" he demanded sternly.

At this question—which must have sounded extraordinary to his assailants—the man under him uttered an exclamation of amazement.

"Oh, come, mister, that won't do. Take your hand off my throat. What's the use of trying to get off? Better give in. There's been murder done—and we found you here, by the body."

Rath's face went white with rage and indignation, and he shook the man as a cat shakes a mouse.

"Do you dare to say that I killed her?" he said, sternly.

For answer, the man called to his mate:

"Come at him again, Fred. The fellow's choking me."

Rath released him and sprang to his feet to confront the others; but at this moment there came a rush of men from behind Rath, and he swung round to meet this new attack.

For a moment or two the silent woods resounded with the cries of angry and injured men, the trampling of feet, the fall of heavy bodies. Rath fought with the strength of ten men, the dogged courage of an Indian.

The lantern had been overturned in the struggle, and the swaying, rushing, and inextricably confused group looked like shadows in the semi-darkness.

Suddenly from above the tumult a voice cried:

"Get a light—get a light, someone!" and at the sound of the voice Rath started and uttered an exclamation.

"Edward!" he cried. "Edward!"

"My God! Rath is it you?" responded Edward. "Keep back, men! Stop! don't strike him! I know him! A light—a light!"

Rath cleared a circle by a sweep of his iron arm, and stood in the centre, waiting. One of the men recovered the lantern, and lighting it, held it above his head, and Edward and Rath gazed at each other with dumb astonishment.

Edward was the first to speak.

"Great Heaven, Rath, it is you! What are you doing here? Why are you fighting with these men?"

"Ask them," he replied, sternly. "I don't know."

The man who had first attacked him pushed his way through the edge of the circle.

"It's a lie; he knows well enough!" he said, wiping the blood from his face. "A murder has been committed. She—a woman has been killed. I found him standing over the body—caught him in the act—"

"Murder! Rath!" gasped Edward, looking in a bewildered fashion from Rath's firm face to the excited ones round him. "What—what—nonsense is this? I know this gentleman; he is a friend of mine—"

"I—I was going to marry her—we were to have been married," he said, hoarsely; then he broke out fiercely: "Why do you ask me questions? Why don't you take him and ask him why he was here?"

Edward instinctively turned to Rath, who stood with folded arms; his handsome face, bruised and bleeding, clearly seen in the light of the upheld lantern. Every eye was turned upon him. His gaze met Edward's calmly; and there was something in the pure dignity of the blood-stained face, the unconscious pose of the superb figure which, even at that moment, extorted an unwilling admiration from the men who had attacked him, even from those who had suffered pretty severely from his Herculean blows.

"Do you know her, Rath?—but that is impossible! What am I asking? Were you standing beside her—how did you find her?"

One of the gamekeepers, with that love of fair play which an Englishman displays, even when he has been battered and bruised by his opponent, broke in hesitatingly:

"Praps it ain't fair to ask him, Master Edward. There's evidence enough, I'm thinking, without any from his lips."

Rath did not understand the interruption in the least.

"I lost my way," he said, with quiet dignity. "I heard a cry, and made for the spot. The woman was lying on the ground, as you see her. She was quite dead."

Workley and one of the gamekeepers had gone to the body, and Workley cried out:

"Stabbed! Search him for the knife!"

The circle closed round him slowly, cautiously, but Rath held up his arms.

"Do not touch me! What is it you say?"

"The knife! The knife!" said Workley, coming forward with uncertain steps.

"The knife—my knife? You think I stabbed her?" exclaimed Rath, his face flushing with indignant scorn. "I kill a woman. You are mad! I will give you my knife."

He put his hand in the left pocket of his coat, then drew it out and searched in the other pockets, a look of surprise and annoyance growing on his face.

"I can't find it. I have lost it!" he said, almost to himself.

The group murmured ominously. "Secure him!" said Workley. "I—I charge him with her murder. I—"

His voice died away, and he put his hand to his throat as if he were choking.

The circle grew smaller; but Edward, who had gradually succeeded in freeing himself from the spell of horror which had well-nigh paralyzed him, broke through, and standing beside Rath, placed a hand upon his shoulder.

"Stand back! Let no man touch him! He is my friend; he is innocent; he is incapable of such a crime. Stand back! I will be responsible for him. He will go with me quietly;

he will answer any questions to the police. Rath, my poor fellow, there is some terrible mistake; you must come with me and explain it."

"Yes," responded Rath, simply, with a simplicity and gentleness which amazed the crowd. "But I have explained. I know no more than I have told you."

"Why didn't he give in—surrender? Why did he show fight and try to get away?" growled one of the men, resentfully and suspiciously.

"They struck me," said Rath to Edward, as if that were more than sufficient explanation. "What else could I do? If I hurt them, and does not their own fault."

"Yes, yes. He did not understand!" Edward tried to explain, but feeling how futile any attempt at explanation must be before these men, well acquainted with the law of arrest. "My friend is a stranger, and does not know that one should not attempt to defend one's self under such circumstances. His showing fight proves his innocence. And he is innocent, that I know, and he will be able to prove it. The poor woman has been stabbed by some other man; and we shall find him; he cannot escape. Is that the doctor?" he broke off, as a figure passed him with a quick nod.

It was the doctor, and some of the men followed him to the body. In a few minutes, almost immediately, he came back to Edward.

"She has been dead some time," he said, gravely, as he turned down his shirt-sleeves. "She has been stabbed—there are three cuts—an ordinary knife. Who is this?" he enquired, as his eye fell upon Rath.

"The man I found beside the body," said Workley.

The doctor took the lantern and held it close to Rath, his professional eye scanning the stern face, and running up and down the stalwart figure. Suddenly he laid his hand upon Rath's coat-sleeve. There was blood upon his face, but only the blood that comes from a cut lip or a skin scratch; the deep red patch on the sleeve was of a different character. The doctor's face grew impassive.

"Let the body be taken to the nearest house. I will go with it," he said.

"And I will go with my friend to the police station," said Edward. "He is innocent."

As the words left his lips, a man rushed into the group, crying agitatedly:

"The knife! the knife! I have found it!"

He held it up, and the doctor took it and flashed the lantern over it. Every one closed in and pressed round, gazing at the blood-stained knife with the fascination of horror.

"There are some initials on it," said the doctor. "Yes; 'H.R.'"

DOCTORS DID NOT HELP HER

But Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Restored Mrs. Bradley's Health—Her Own Statement.

Winnipeg, Canada.—"Eleven years ago I went to the Victoria Hospital, Montreal, suffering with a growth. The doctors said it was a tumor and could not be removed as it would cause instant death. They found that my organs were affected, and said I could not live more than six months in the condition I was in."

"After I came home I saw your advertisement in the paper, and commenced taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I took it constantly for two years, and still take it at times, and both my husband and myself claim that it was the means of saving my life. I highly recommend it to suffering women."

Mrs. ORILLA BRADLEY, 284 Johnson Ave., Winnipeg, Manitoba, Can. Why will women take chances on drugs outside, half-hearted existence, missing three-fourths of the joy of living, when they can find health in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound?

For thirty years it has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has restored the health of thousands of women who have been troubled with such ailments as displacements, inflammation, irregularities, etc.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman, and held in strict confidence.

H. M. S. Diadem,
Portsmouth, May 30, '15.
Dear Father and Mother,—On arriving here to-day I received three letters from home. One was dated the 16th, it followed me up pretty quick. I am on this ship for a rest. We don't hardly do anything here. I expect to go back to the trawlers again in two weeks. They are good to us here. They change us around to give everyone a change of the hard work. I was only here two days when Albert Horton came here, too. He was in the trawler section that I was in but not in the same boat. He was sent here to get a rest. You know after being out about two months in a small boat that you get tired. They told us that we did good work, so they would give us a holiday. Albert told me he didn't tell Maggie that he was in a trawler yet. He gets lots of letters from her. However it is, he and I are always meeting some where. I was drafted before him and I didn't see him till one morning out at sea. Then when I came here I met him again. You said you sent a parcel but I didn't get it. I will get it all right. Don't worry about me wanting anything. I have a bag full of clothes. Thanks for the parcel before I got it. I got a parcel from St. John's, I don't know who sent it. There was no name on it, a book of poetry and cigarettes, the best kind I suppose. It cost about $6. I have no idea who sent it. I was glad to get it but I would like to know who sent it. Italy is in the war with us. It will soon be over now. We lost a few ships this week. We must expect to lose some. We picked up a crew of a steamer about two weeks ago. They didn't mind it much. There is not much to fear from a submarine. I expect the war will be over by September. I am in no hurry to get it over as I am having a fine time, a little danger but no work. The hardest thing we do is to get our money. I must close now. I will write pretty soon again.

ALLAN.

Theological Lecture.

Rev. F. W. W. DesBarres, Professor of Theology at Mount Allison University, and at one time pastor of Cochrane St. Circuit, lectured to a large congregation at Conference Church, last evening. The subject was "The Intellectual Aspect of Paul's Conversion," which was dealt with in a masterly manner. His discussion of the life of the great Apostle of the Gentiles was divided into three parts—what St. Paul was before his conversion; what he was after the vision on the road to Damascus and the influence of that memorable miracle upon his marvellous life and works. The Rev. W. H. Dotchon presided, and at the close tendered a hearty vote of thanks proposed by Rev. Dr. Curtis, seconded by Rev. P. H. James and carried by acclamation.

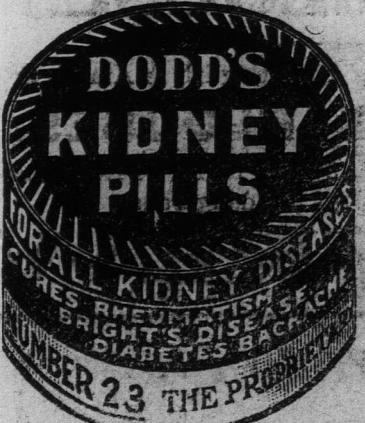

Conference Program.

TO-DAY—9.30 o'clock a.m., Annual Conference opens; Election of Officers, 11.30 a.m., Conference Prayer Meeting, 8 p.m., Open Session; Conversation on the State of the Work; Discussion of the Report of the "Social Service and Evangelism" Committee.

A Matter of Business.

At a concert a young fellow got into conversation with the man sitting next to him. Presently a very pretty girl came on to sing.
"I say, isn't she lovely?" exclaimed the impressionable youth. "And just look at her splendid teeth!"
"Yes, they are very nice," replied his neighbour. "And it gives me much pleasure to hear you praise them."
"That so? Is she your daughter, then?"
"No."
"Are you her brother?"
"No," was the answer; "but I'm glad you like her teeth."
"They're absolutely perfect. But—er—I should—er—what's it got to do with you?"
"I'm the dentist that made them. Perhaps I can do the same job for you?"

Amusements.

"OURS" IN THE WEST END.
There will be a complete change of programme at the popular little theatre to-night. The pictures are all well chosen and all patrons can depend on a good show, good music, two charming little singers and a clean little house in which to spend an enjoyable evening.
A VERY FINE PROGRAMME AT THE CRESCENT.
The management of the Crescent Picture Palace have arranged a very fine programme of six pictures for to-day and Crescent patrons are assured of a most enjoyable time, the favorite Maurice Costello appears in "The Mill of Life," and "The Loan Shark King" is a very fine single reel drama, featuring Norman Talmadge. "A Woman's Policy" and "The Way of His Father" are also good dramas; there are two extremely funny comedies: "Neighbourly Neighbours" and "Swamp Sam." The above picture programme with good music and good singing is certainly a big show for little money. Go to the Crescent to-day and see this great big show.
ROSSLEY STAR THEATRE.
Last contest of the season. Those who wish for a good seat on Friday night to witness the last contest of the season must buy their tickets before Friday as they are selling very quickly. Friday's contest will bring the contest season to a close and the very best has been kept for the last, and its going to be very interesting; many will be disappointed at the cutting out of the contests. But the Rossley's intend taking a well earned holiday, and as the new company can't leave England before July 15th, Mr. Rossley intends to cancel the engagement until September and only keep one theatre going, his own property in the West End. Mrs. Rossley needs a good rest after her hard work of the past season.
MILLION DOLLAR MYSTERY.
The attendance at the Nickle Theatre to-day promises to be large as the programme is specially attractive. First, the great Canadian baritone, Mr. Forbes Law Durand, will be heard in a new song. He won such popularity on Monday and Tuesday that friends are anxious to hear him again. Many citizens attended both evenings to hear him so charmed were they with the singing. There will be another episode of "The Million Dollar Mystery" to-day and other charming films.

Ever Ready Hot Water, Night and Day.
FOR THE NURSERY.
"The bath ready for baby, when baby is ready for the bath" should be an adage of every housewife—who should also keep in mind that any trouble saved to the nurse makes for a well-ordered, contented household. Gas Water-Heaters, whether of the Instantaneous or Circular type, offer the convenience of available hot water "upstairs, downstairs, and in my lady's chamber," without any labour at all—independently of the state of the kitchen fire.
The cost is reasonable.
FOR THE BATHROOM.
An uncertain supply of hot water in the bathroom is a frequent cause of annoyance.
Hot water can only be secured, usually, by getting the cook to act as stoker, but at what a cost!
Think of the coal that is wasted—the fatigue of coal carrying—the after labour of grate cleaning—and the discomfort of a hot kitchen in warm weather!
A Gas Water-Heater is economical, because it only heats the water actually required; and labour-saving, because there are no coals to carry, no fires to clean, no ashes or dirt to remove.
The master of the house has hot shaving water and a hot bath whenever he wishes without delay or trouble.
HOT WATER FOR THE HOUSEHOLD.
When "Spring cleaning days" engross the busy housewife then the convenience of an unlimited supply of hot water on the upper floors is brought home to her with special force.
But at all times—apart from convenience—a gas water-heater makes an irresistible appeal to the housewife from the point of view of dealing with the domestic problem.
Later-day domestics are difficult to keep unless due consideration is shown by saving them unnecessary drudgery—and in the category of unnecessary drudgery may be included the toil of carrying hot water or coal upstairs, the cleaning of grates and the removal of dirt and ashes.
The gas water-heater renders such labour superfluous.—may12,tf

Produce and Cattle Cargoes.

"God Bless the Prince of Wales."

Though the Prince of Wales attained his majority three years ago, to-day he reaches the age of twenty-one, the recognized age of majority for others. Appropriately enough he will not spend the day at home but at the front, where he is about the nation's business, just as hundreds of thousands of other young men of his age and spirit. It is a long time since a Prince of Wales took an active part on the battle fields, though in other ages and with more primitive usages of warfare, there have been Princes of Wales whose names live in history as pre-eminent on the battlefield. At Crecy a Prince of Wales distinguished himself and in after years whilst still the Black Prince was the victor of the field at Poitiers. Another Prince of Wales distinguished himself in battle against Owen Glendower, and afterwards as Henry V. was the hero of Agincourt near Crecy and not far from the lines where the Prince of Wales is at present serving. What commands itself in this connection is his desire to do his "bit" as other young men are doing it, and his modesty in serving in a most subordinate post just as thousands of young officers of his age are doing. This spirit of subordination to official superiors, who are seniors to him in knowledge, in experience and in ability, this modest service in a place he is held by those above him as most fitted for is the height of patriotism and serves as an example to his fellow countrymen.

Rev. Charles Howse New Meth. President.

We extend congratulations to Rev. Charles Howse, pastor of Bonavista, who was to-day elected President of the Methodist Conference for the ensuing year. The Rev. Charles Howse was Secretary of the Conference last year. For upwards of thirty years he has been laboring in the cause of Methodism in his native land, and during his ministry he has erected several beautiful churches, notably the splendid structure at Collins Cove, Burin, on which mission he was stationed some four years ago. The Rev. Mr. Howse is a man of much organizing ability and has left lasting monuments of his energy and zeal at the different stations that have been favored by the fruits of his ministerial labors.

FOOTBALL RECEIPTS.—The proceeds of last evening's football match amounted to only $12, the smallest this season.

R.C. Citizens Meet.

At a meeting of the R. C. Citizens Committee, held at the T. A. Armoury last night, and presided over by Hon. John Harris, arrangements were made for the parade which is to take place on Tuesday night next in honor of the Consecration of Archbishop-Elect Roche. The line of parade will be from the Cathedral down Military Road to Rawlins Cross, Queen's Road, Theater Hill, New Dover Street, Junction Street to Patrick St., Down Patrick to Water St., and on to Queen St. and New Gower and Duckworth Streets to Ordnance Street, Water Street to Cochran St. and Military Road to Starting point. The address from the Lady to the Archbishop will be read by Hon. Mr. Harris and the purse presented by the Treasurer, Mr. W. J. Ellis.

After the transaction of other important business the meeting adjourned at 10 p.m. until Friday night next.

Boy Almost Blinded by Powder Explosion.

Yesterday a little boy named Keats Osborne, aged 13, employed at Courtney's barber saloon, Water Street, procured a cartridge and went out at the back of the store with it. After abstracting the shot from the cartridge he put the powder into tin cans and then added a lighted match. There was an explosion and a mass of flame burst into the boy's face, which was badly burnt. The boy has been almost blind ever since and attended by a doctor.

Lance-Corporal French

Mr. Robert French, of Harbor Grace, brother of Mr. J. J. French, of the Telegram staff, is in receipt of a field post card from his son, Sandy, who is with the 5th Royal Highlanders of Canada, on the firing line in France. The card is dated June 2nd, and bears the postmark of June 4th. All the cards received previous to this one were signed Private French, whereas the one referred to is signed Lance-Corporal A. French. Sandy took part in a recent big battle on the Western front, and came through unscathed. Evidently he must have in some way brought himself under the notice of his officers which would account for his promotion. We congratulate Sandy on his promotion and wish him a continuance of success upon the "ladder of stripes."

GOVERNMENT HOUSE.

The Governor and Lady Davidson will have the pleasure of receiving at Government House on Saturday, June 26th, from 4 to 6.30, the Clerical and Lay Members of the Methodist Conference.

All friends of the Methodist Church who are interested in the work of the Conference or have entered their names in the Visitors' Book are welcome on this occasion.

His Excellency will inspect the Boy Scouts on the same afternoon, and supporters of that movement are also invited. June 23, 1915.

HOLIDAY NOT DESIRABLE.

At last night's meeting of the R. C. citizens' committee, it was decided that the Importers' Association will not be asked to grant a whole holiday on Tuesday next. The committee have had the matter under consideration for some time past but have come to the conclusion that the granting of a whole holiday on the 29th would only interfere with previous arrangements.

SUGGESTS RELINQUISHMENT OF SALARIES.

LONDON, To-day.

The voluntary relinquishment of their salaries by members of the Commonwealth for the period of the war was suggested to-day by Sir Arthur B. Markham, Liberal, Premier Asquith promised to consider the question, although he said he thought it was a matter for the House itself to decide. Markham's plea is based on the necessity of economy and retrenchment in all branches of the public service, but he said that he was willing that members with private incomes less than $2,000 should continue to draw the emolument of $2,000 paid to members of the House.

TURKS ASSUME OFFENSIVE.

LONDON, To-day.

On the evening of June 19, says an official communication from the headquarters of the Mediterranean Expeditionary Force, the Turks expended some 450 high explosive shells on our left centre trenches and were seen massing for attack. The enemy's hand failed them. The attack degenerated into fire action. At seventy-three one of our brigades attacked the Turkish trench but were unsuccessful. The Turks counter-attacks effected a lodgment of their lines at an awkward salient captured by us on the fourth. As the brigade was unable to recover the lost trench, fifty of the Royal Scots assisted by a company of the Worcester Regiment, planned to retake it. This attack was ably organized and brilliantly carried out to a successful issue. Prisoners state the Turks expected this bombardment. High explosives were used which cleared us out altogether and were much disappointed at so little impression being made, though the trenches were much damaged. The Turkish dead are estimated at three hundred at the front of one brigade alone. A thousand in all parts is a low estimate.

THE MAIL QUESTION.

WASHINGTON, To-day.

The cabinet session to-day was less than an hour. Neither the Mexican nor European situations were touched. Postmaster General Burleson announced he would thoroughly investigate the charge that the mail between the States and Sweden had been opened in England. Burleson said he would also investigate the right of belligerents to open mail passing between neutrals.

CREW SAFE.

FRASERBURGH, Scotland, To-day.

All the crew of the British steamer Carisbrook, sunk yesterday by a German submarine, were landed here.

BLOCKADING GERMANY.

LONDON, To-day.

The Foreign Office delivered to Ambassador Page for transmission to Washington a memorandum explanatory of efforts being made by the British Government to mitigate the hardships suffered by neutral traders on account of Order in Council and other war measures, affecting their interests. The memorandum although not a reply to the American contraband Note gives a summary of the measures adopted by Britain with the purpose of enforcing with as little friction as possible the policy of shutting off Germany from the rest of the world. The Foreign Office sets forth the methods whereby neutrals may trade without coming into conflict with these regulations. The text of the Note will not be published here until it is given out at Washington.

THE LONDON BUDGET.

LONDON, To-day.

The French gains in the west and the battle for Lemberg are the only subjects which can be isolated as distinctive during the present stage of the warfare. Many unconfirmed reports reached London that Lemberg has already fallen to the Austro-Germans. Despatches from Petrograd indicate the evacuation of the Galician

WANT MORE MEN.

O'LEARY DECORATED BY KING.

LONDON, To-day.

Sergeant Michael O'Leary, Irish Guards, went to Buckingham Palace yesterday and received the personal congratulations of King George, who pinned on the Victoria Cross on the soldier's breast. O'Leary won this most coveted British military decoration during the winter campaign in France. According to the official account, O'Leary formed one of a storming party at Culchny, O'Leary rushed to the front and killed five Germans who were holding the first barricade, which he captured, after killing three more Germans and taking two others prisoner. The official report added O'Leary virtually captured the German position by himself and prevented the remainder of the attacking party from being fired on.

HAD TO JETTISON FOOD STUFFS.

NEWCASTLE, To-day.

The Norwegian mail steamer, Venus, arrived here to-day minus her cargo which was thrown overboard. The Captain asserted under a threat of the German submarine commander that otherwise the Venus would be sunk. The Captain Venus was hailed by a submarine and given the alternative of jettisoning all foodstuffs on board or being sent to the bottom.

A DUTCH STORY.

HAGUE, To-day.

Handelsblad in an edition to-day asserts Japan has been prevented from sending 300,000 troops to Europe as a result of an unofficial hint to Britain from Washington that such an expedition would be undesirable.

WASHINGTON OFFICIALS SILENT.

WASHINGTON, To-day.

Government officials to-night heard without comment of the article, published in Handelsblad, asserting an unofficial hint from Washington to London blocked the plans of Japan for sending an expedition of 300,000 men to participate in the European war. Neither confirmation nor denial of the story was to be had. It is known there were exchanges between the American and the British Governments, while recent Japanese-Chinese negotiations in progress, but their nature was kept secret at the time. All reports from Tokyo indicated that Japan had not been called upon for a European expedition and has not considered sending one.

SPEEDING UP MUNITIONS.

Preparations for the supply of munitions are making good progress. The National Advisory Committee representing over fifty trades unions, interested in making munitions, submitted a plan which has been accepted by the Ministry of Munitions, under which all skilled labor already engaged in munitions will be enrolled for six months for employment wherever they are required in making

THE MOONSHINERS.

Are to be seen at the British Theatre this evening, but they will not be arrested, as their illicit still exists only in the splendid photographic—yet true to life portrait as given by the famous Kalem Company. This wonderful two-reel story caused a furore in the larger American cities and in New England it will do likewise here. The thrilling drama of the desert is one of the most beautiful and for the most part authentic photo-plays ever seen. The scene where the two men are estranged whilst searching for water on the burning sands being most realistic. A traitor to his "Country" is a powerful American. Philippine war episode which holds the audience in a grip of excitement. The "Queer Quarantine" comedy is "peculiar" and much above the average. Arthur Priestman Cameron and "popular" music to suit the "popular" taste, complete a most inviting programme.

Personal.

Mr. J. J. Tobin left last evening's express for Humbermouth where he will join the s.s. Meigle for Battle Harbor en route to Cape Charles.

Away From You!

"I really feel that it is hardly possible to say too much in favor of Grape-Nuts as a health food," a Chicago lady.

"For 9 or 10 years I had suffered from indigestion and chronic pain, caused by the continued use of coffee and rich, heavy food. I had my life so full of ailments made me try anything that held out a promise of help. It is now I happened to buy a piece of Grape-Nuts food last spring. "That ended my experience in Grape-Nuts I found exactly what I wanted and needed. From that began to use it I noticed an improvement and in a very few days my health was being perfectly and chronic constipation was entirely relieved. I have bought it weight materially, and in very pleasant time to me as I use Grape-Nuts once or twice a day. I have found by experiment that leave it off for a few days I suffer."

LONDON, June 22. The Governor, Newfoundland, reports further progress towards the south-east, with all gains retained. In Arbonne, the Germans attacked, using asphyxiating projectiles, and advanced. The French line gave way at some points, but by a counter-attack recovered almost the whole position. Important progress has been made in Lorraine and Alsace. The village of Metzeral was carried after a very hot fight.

RESUME THE OFFENSIVE ON THE WEST FRONT.

LONDON, June 22. The Official Press Bureau issues the following narrative to the staff of Field Marshal French under date June 15th: On June 15th we resumed offensive action in co-operation with the French, who were applying pressure about Arras. The scene of action was west of Labasse. After bombardment, our infantry attacked, taking a few prisoners. They penetrated well behind in some places, fighting their way latterly along the trenches of the second line with hand grenades. In the neighborhood of Ypres our infantry charged the German line over a front of a thousand yards, penetrating in places through the second and third lines, at some points reaching Bollaewaune Lake. On the left we held about 250 yards of the second line, but near Mooge no progress was made. The Germans launched a heavy counter-attack but their advancing infantry was caught in the cross-fire of our field guns and driven back, leaving large numbers of dead on the ground. Nevertheless we were unable to maintain ourselves on the whole of the ground gained.

BATTLE OF SOUCHEZ.

BERLIN, June 22. A news agency says the soldiers write that from Arras to Souchez, about eight miles, the field is covered with corpses, and that the odor is unbearable. Reports from neutral sources declare that the battle raging near Arras may decide the fate of France. Both sides are fighting with unheard of courage and heroism. The French are very strong, and the Germans are continuously receiving reinforcements. The loss on both sides is fearful.

LIEUT. WARNEFORD BURIED.

LONDON, June 22. The body of Warneford, the young Lieutenant of the Aviation Corps, who was killed on June 17th during a flight in France, was buried to-day at Brompton cemetery with full naval honors. Between forty and fifty thousand gathered at the cemetery. The Royal Naval Division furnished an escort and firing party which gave the last salute at the grave.

THE RUSSIAN RETREAT.

PETROGRAD, June 22. With the Russians opposing their Austro-German antagonists on a line six miles from Lemberg, according to most recent information reaching Petrograd, it is officially considered here that the evacuation of the Galician capital cannot now be avoided without the sacrifice of men out of proportion to the strategic importance of the place. The evacuation of Lemberg, as a base, has already been accomplished in good order, and hospitals and government institutions have been removed. The Russian positions before the city, consisting of a system of trenches and entanglements, are well calculated to make victory for the German allies costly. The positions are not regarded by the Russian military observers as impregnable on account of the absence of any elevations commanding the district, from which it would be possible to employ artillery effectively. To the north the Austro-Germans are reaching positions evacuated by them in September on the road to the Rakva, Russka and Tomaszow. Seemingly they are intent on capturing Tarnow, the railway junction which controls communications between Lemberg and Russia. The Russians, according to reports reaching Petrograd, are holding the Austro-Germans along the Dniester River.

ARRIVED IN BERLIN.

BERLIN, June 22. The German Minister at Sofia, has arrived in Berlin to-day for a conference at the Foreign Office, and will return soon to his post.

SUSPEND PUBLICATION.

BERLIN, June 22. The German authorities to-day informed the administration of the Berlin Tages Zeitung that it would have to suspend publication for an indefinite period of time, on account of a recent article published by the paper on the subject of German-American relations from the pen of Count von Reventlow. The article in question followed the well known lines of that writer, who asserted that international law must be disregarded in the conduct of submarine warfare, declaring that these laws were made before submarines were invented.

NEW YORK, June 22. J. P. Morgan & Co. have announced that arrangements have been made by them and Rothschilds of Paris, for the flotation in this country of a new French loan, the amount of which it was impossible to state at present. It will be secured by high-grade railway bonds. From an unofficial source it is learned that the amount will probably be under 50 millions. Interest will be about 5%.

Youthful Vandals.

While he went to witness the football match last evening, Mr. John Tobin left his automobile standing outside the fence of St. George's Field. During his absence of about five minutes some youths, who have a fondness for stone throwing and a mania for doing damage, got a short distance away and made a target out of the glass wind shield of the motor car. The first shot was an "inner," but the second fetched a "bully," and the glass was broken in smithereens. Mr. Tobin has secured the name of the lad who did the damage.

Antiquated coins Etc., Unearthed.

During the operations of the Municipal Council employees, who are extending the entire water system throughout the city, quite a collection of old coins and antiquated implements of various kinds have been found by the men engaged excavating for the laying of the water pipes. We happened to see some of the things that were unearthed on King's Road. Notably was a cooper's adze and spokeshave and a shovel. These articles were found in the exact spot where a cooper shop stood a century and a half ago. A considerable number of coins, chiefly copper, were discovered. Some of them bore dates of 1700 and a few farther back than that.

St. Bon's And Casuals Play to a Draw.

Before a small gathering of spectators and under adverse weather conditions, the St. Bon's and Casual football teams played to a draw on St. George's Field last evening, no goals having been scored by either side. The exhibition was very poor. There was an over-indulgence for skying the ball and there was an entire absence of combination play. On the whole both teams had an equal share of play in their favor. In the early part of the game the St. Bon's played around their opponents and their non-success at scoring was attributed to erratic shooting. Later on the Casuals got the tired feeling and seemed indifferent. The Casuals then got in some excellent work but nothing of any consequence happened. During the game both goal tenders saved some difficult shots. Mr. J. Condon refereed. The players were: Casuals.—Goal, Peters; backs, Hartery, Thistle; halves, Marshall, Woods; forwards, Pearcey, Lush, Reid, Chaney, Smith. St. Bon's.—Goal, Knight; backs, Ryan, Power; halves, Rawlins, Higgins, McGrath; forwards, W. Callahan, Smith, Devine, Wait, Callahan, Furneaux.

Two Ways of Saving.

By RUTH CAMERON.

RUTH CAMERON

Some people are extravagant about little things and saving about big things. Others are saving in small ways, but willing to spend for large things.

On the other hand, I have known people who found it easy to be generous in the little ways but always trimmed their sails as close as possible in the bigger giving.

Each Type Criticising the Other. Each type is inclined to criticise the other, which is, of course, very foolish. One of the two ways seems the better to me just because it is my way, but I know very well that I am no more right than the people who feel differently, and that I have no more reason to criticise them than they me.

There is one class of generous givers, however, who do deserve criticism. And that is the people who are generous in their charities but always try to grind down those who work for them to the very last penny.

Stinting the Washerwoman To Give To Charity.

I know a woman whose name often appears with comfortable donations on subscription lists. I should think her a model of generosity if I did not happen to know one or two things.

One is that she always tries to keep her dressmaker an extra half hour or so and drives her so hard that she is utterly exhausted. Another is that she pays her washerwoman less per hour than anyone else in the neighborhood.

Charity without justice is like an elaborate house without any foundation. When we stint labor of its due with one hand and give to charity with the other, we are not giving our own. We are stealing from Peter to give to Paul. And that is meant both for the woman who underpays her seamstress and heads the subscription list and for the man who keeps his workmen on a death in life wage and gives millions to charities.

occasionally spent money for something worth while like a diamond necklace, but she never threw away money on little things, while the husband said that of course he paid fifty cents for his cigars as a gentleman should, but he was very economical about such things as automobiles and race horses.

In the same way some people give generously in little ways but seldom give large gifts, and others who are almost stingy about little things will astonish every one by giving lavishly on state occasions.

I know a girl who was very exact about dividing all small expenses. When she went to the theatre or when she dropped in for a college ice with a group of girls, she always wanted to Dutch treat. She never, by any chance, paid anyone's carfare, she was ready to pay her share of the box of candy but never to stand treat. In short she was just but not generous about little things. And, yet, when it came to wedding or birthday presents she was the most generous girl you can imagine. She gave not just something to cover the occasion and pay her entrance fee to the wedding, but something really beautiful and desirable, spending lavishly of time, taste and money.

Fortunes in Lost Registers.

Romantic Stories of Big Rewards for Missing Marriage "Lines."

A reward of one thousand pounds has recently been offered for the recovery of the register of marriage in the parish of Cawdor, in the county of Nairn, for the years 1779 to 1783. A thousand pounds is a small fortune, yet probably it is quite an insignificant sum when compared with the amount involved in this particular case. No details are given, but it is understood that the registers, are wanted in connection with the settlement of a very large estate.

This is only one case out of many similar. Over and over again, when direct succession fails, there may be a score or more claimants to an estate or fortune. These descend from younger sons or daughters of past holders of the estate, and all depend upon their being able to trace their descent, definitely, by means of marriage and birth certificates.

Some five or six years ago English newspapers contained an offer of fifty pounds from a resident of Melbourne for a certified copy of a certain marriage, supposed to have taken place in the county of Durham.

Wedded in Her Pet Name. An old resident of Rookhope, in that county, found the entry and claimed the reward. Some twelve months later this gentleman was pleasantly surprised by receiving a draft on an Australian bank for a thousand pounds. With this was a letter explaining that the cheque was intended as an acknowledgment for the trouble he had taken in finding the entry.

The story was a romantic one. Among the emigrants who left Wear-dale for Australia, during the great gold rush in the middle of the last century, was a young woman who had married a man who afterwards became very wealthy. But she had been married under her pet name, and this fact led to trouble, when in after years the question of succession arose among her children. It was to prove that the pet name was not her real name that the inquiries were instituted.

Very large sums have been known to hinge on the discovery of a marriage certificate. In the year 1906 there died in Manchester a Welshman named Pritchard. He was a bachelor who had lived very quietly, and everyone was surprised when it was found that he had left £78,000.

An heir came forward in the person of a very pretty girl, who claimed to be the daughter of the dead man's brother. But when it came to the point no proof could be discovered that this was really the case. Her father, she said, had died when she was five, and her mother was also dead. She herself had been making a living as nursery governess, and naturally had no money to press her claim.

A Ceremony at Sea. She had no notion whatever as to where her parents had been married, and there was no record at Somerset House.

Some account of the case appeared in a Manchester paper, but then nothing more was heard, and it seemed certain that the fortune would revert to the Crown, when Miss Pritchard received from the ex-captain of a ship called the Pentland a letter, in which he said that he had married her father and mother at sea. This proved to be the case, and the young lady was able to prove her claim.

Parish registers were not taken over by the Registrar-General until the year 1837. At that date it came to light that, out of the eleven thousand parishes in England, there were fewer than eight hundred which possessed registers carrying back to the year 1538—the year when Thomas Cromwell ordered the keeping of parish registers under the system now in vogue.

Ten years ago two ladies began the tremendous task of making an index of all baptisms, marriages, and burials contained in the registers prior to 1837. In three years they had indexed only 550 registers, and had already obtained more than two million entries.

The number of entries in some of these registers is incredible. For instance, in those of St. Anne's, Soho, in the fifty-seven years between 1780 and 1837 there are over 95,000 entries.

By the way, the ordinary fee for a certified copy of an entry from a parish register is three-and-sixpence, and for searching one shilling for the first year and sixpence for each subsequent year.—Answers.

Greenspond Notes.

The cable uniting us to the telegraph line has been interrupted for some weeks. We have been expecting some person along to repair it, but the latest rumor is the Government is waiting until the ice melts or drifts away. If this rumor is true, we may have to wait until late in the summer before we are again in a position to connect with the outside world.

A few days ago some of our men visited Westville and they were astonished to see a new wharf being built at Westville, and the old one and the new one are to be a bridge. Our Government, what here is dropping down and no money can be got to keep it in repair, but not so at Westville. A grant to repair or build a wharf at the eye of an election is not going to soan us over any more. The Tories made their boat during the canvass for last election that this was one of the strongest tlements in the Bay. Is not this a poor way to try and increase their influence for another year? They may try that this year, for not voting for them, but the day is coming when the boat will be put on the other foot.

The ice has all cleared off except a few large pans which are aground on the shoals or are in the coves and tangles. There is a little sign of fish here with the jigger, but no traps have been set up to date.

The majority of our schooners are now nearly ready for the fishery. One or two others have still to come from St. John's.

Some have also struck in. One man at Newport to-day got 15 fine fish. Greenspond, June 18th, 1915.

Why Snow Heats the Hands.

The Brain Calls to the Blood to Help the Chilled Skin.

It is very wonderful that our hands should become warm after playing with snow, for it must be perfectly certain that cold snow takes heat away very quickly from our warm hands.

The warmth of our hands is derived entirely from the blood, except at times, when something hot is actually shining upon them. Therefore, for some reason or other, a very much larger amount of blood than usual must be flowing through our hands.

The blood is no warmer in itself, or the whole of the body would at once notice it, but what really happens is that the hands are getting richer and quicker supply of it. The effect is just the same, really, as the delightful glow that we feel after a cold bath. The brain has the duty of taking care of the skin, as of every other part of the body. Now, when the skin has been chilled its life has been heavily taxed, and it will suffer unless it is compensated. So the brain orders the small blood vessels in the skin, wherever it has been chilled, to relax and widen so that the warm blood is able to circulate quickly, through them.—"The Child's Book of Knowledge."

QUEEN MARY'S BIRTHDAY.

Queen Mary's birthday on May 21st was a very quiet affair indeed, but being in accordance with the wishes of herself and the King. The customary firing of a salute by the Royal Horse Artillery in St. James' Park, a ceremony which usually attracts considerable crowds of people, was dispensed with. There appears to have been some misunderstanding at this point among the military authorities, for the Life Guards were ordered to keep the ground. This, however, did not arrive, and an officer then remembered the recent order that during the war this form of celebration was cancelled. One of the primary reasons which induced the King in making this order was thoughtful consideration for the wounded soldiers lying in the hospitals in the vicinity of the park. The nearest of these is Lord Rollo's house in Carlton House Terrace, only a hundred yards away from the firing point, where a considerable number of officers are being treated. His Majesty gave a luncheon party in celebration of Queen Mary's birthday among those present being Queen Alexandra and Princess Victoria. Other members of the Royal Family, called at the Palace personally to offer congratulations. This is the first time for many years that the Prince of Wales has been absent on his mother's birthday, but His Royal Highness sent a long and affectionate letter to the Queen from the front. Prince Albert was on the high seas and he sent a marconigram to his mother. Her Majesty was the recipient of many beautiful presents from her royal relatives.

THE KING'S TOUR.

King George's tour of the leading manufacturing of war munitions in Scotland and in the North of England has left an ineffaceable impression upon the mind of His Majesty, who in conversation since his return has only expressed his strong approval of the efforts being made to organize the work, but his deep concern for the men. This consideration was frequently manifested by many questions about the working conditions and the effect of the strain of continuous duty. A gentleman who was one of the party with the King at one of the works, informs me that the friendliness and total lack of formality which the King displayed towards the men themselves impressed them as much as anything. In many instances it was directed that the foreman of the shop should be present, and then the King asked him questions. The royal visitors appeared to be more interested in the explanations in simple, straightforward language of these men, than in the technical terms of the expert. Several of the foremen he left with an exhortation: "Well, get along with it; we want all you can turn out. The stimulus of the King's visit

ITALY'S COMMANDER-IN-CHIEF.
 Not very much is known in this country of General Caneva, who is to take command of Italy's main army in the field. Those who have met him during the annual manoeuvres of the Italian Army, however, have been much impressed by his erect military bearing, despite the fact that he is now seventy years of age, and his deep knowledge he shows of the art of modern warfare. He has visited London once or twice, and has displayed a great admiration for our methods of military training and organization. It is rather curious that he should have been born under Austrian rule, being a native of Tarcento, in Venetia. He had command of important operations in Africa five years ago, and is regarded as one of the finest cavalry leaders in Europe, though it was his mastery handling of a large force of all arms during the Italian manoeuvres that gained for him the position of Commander-in-Chief in Tripoli. Since then he has devoted almost all his time to the reorganization and improved training of the Italian Army, which owes to him not a little of its present efficient condition. Though it is understood that King Victor Emmanuel is prepared to take the field in person with his troops, he has no intention of leading his army personally, being content to leave the active command to General Caneva. He, therefore, will, for the time at all events, adopt a role similar to that of King George and the Czar, and act as a kind of inspecting and inspiring officer of the troops in the field.
ITALY'S "TIPPERARY"
 The popular martial song of Italy that is likely to be the favorite of the Italian soldier, is "E Bersagliere," which is described as a "canto patriottico." The words are those of a girl singing about her lover, whom she calls "Tore," the diminutive for "Salvatore." He has said good-bye to her, has joined the Bersagliere, and has started for the frontier. It is an old song, and the melody was sung years ago at the Empire in London to French words. It is a song of the Triple Alliance, and the frontier meant the French frontier, for "E Bersagliere" was printed at Leipzig as well as in Italy. On the cover tier is the name of the "deposito" for Germany and Austria-Hungary. It will be strange for the Germans and the Austrians to hear the Italians singing it now as they fight by the side of the French, and advance over the Austrian frontier. The chorus of the song is:—
 The Bersagliere wear feathers in their hats
 Oh! what a lot of poultry we shall have to pluck!

A Remedy For All Pain

"The efficiency of any drug" says Dr. C.P. Robbins, "is known to us by the results we obtain from its use. If we are able to control pain and disease by means of any preparation, we certainly are warranted in its use. One of the principal symptoms of all diseases is pain, and this is what the patient most often applies to us for, i.e. something to relieve his pain. If we can arrest this promptly, the patient is most liable to trust in us for the other remedies which will effect a permanent cure. One remedy which I have used largely in my practice is Antiseptic Tablets. Many varied are their uses. I have put them to the test on many occasions, and have never been disappointed. I found them especially valuable for headaches of malarial origin, where quinine was being taken. They appear to prevent the bad after-effects of the quinine. Antiseptic Tablets are also excellent for the headaches of a neuritic origin, and especially for women subject to pains at certain times. Antiseptic Tablets give prompt relief, and in a short time the patient is able to go about as usual. These tablets may be obtained at all druggists. Ask for A-K Tablets. They are also successful for headaches, neuralgia and all pains.

collections," remarking that "so it might have been, but that was in 1863, and I am still alive and well." Lord Robert Bruce died many years ago. There is a description of Lady Cardigan in Henry Kingsley's book "Ravenshoe." An old Londoner whom I asked about her, said that he had only one impression of her, and that was of her "sitting at the opera, perfectly unspoken to, blazing with jewels." She used to drive about in the Park in an enormous old-fashioned carriage with a huge coat-of-arms on the panel. Until a few years ago she went to the Pytchley Hunt, and had her horses to meet her, but she did not ride. A strange, solitary old lady of indomitable spirit who never lost her zest in life.

FREEMASONRY AND THE WAR.

Much imagination has been aroused among Freemasons here by the irregular and unauthorized publication in a sensational journal of a high-colored account of certain proceedings in regard to German-born members of English Lodges, which are said to be impending at the next meeting of the United Grand Lodge of England on June 2nd. There appears to be no foundation for the statement that such proceedings are entitled to take place, but it can be understood that in order to prevent the peace and harmony of the brotherhood being disturbed, its more authoritative members will ask Grand Lodge to require all the brethren of alien enemy birth to abstain from attendance at any Masonic meeting under the English jurisdiction during the continuance of the war.

OLD VICTORIAN LADY PASSES.

Lady Cardigan, whose "recollections," published in 1909, revived a form of scandalous chronicle almost unknown since early Victorian days, died last week. This lady belonged, indeed, to the most colored and curious side of that society. She accepted the protection of Earl Cardigan (the leader of the Charge of the Light Brigade at Balaclava in the Crimean War) before becoming his wife. Her second husband was Count de Lancastré. She had almost dropped out of London knowledge when her book burst like a bomb among old-fashioned people, raking up old scandals and forgotten pasts, all related with a malicious relish and vigor that was amazing in an old lady of eighty. It emptied a general reconsideration of Victorian society, and the modern girl (with litchkey and without chaps) reading the book was shocked at the revelations of the sly darlings of that age, that had so long been pointed out to her as models of womanly propriety. Also coming, as it did, at the time of the great Budget discussions, when the landed classes were indignantly on their defence, this book by an aristocratic lady on aristocratic society was used by demagogues as "King's evidence" against them. On the day of Lord Cardigan's funeral the will was read, and it was found that he had left all his money to her and afterwards to a cousin, Lord Robert Bruce. Someone said: "This will be a fine thing for Robert." She tells this in her "re-

THE IDLE RICH.
 I'm fond of coin, but I don't like it, but I don't like it, he among the idle rich, who have long green to burn! Their wealth I could not well employ, for I could never much enjoy the bone I did not earn. Oh, every coin of mine is wet with honest, rich, transparent sweat, until it has been dried; it represents no sinner's bequest, no buried miser's treasure chest, no "multi's" pomp and pride. I grind my anthem mill at home, and every time I make a pome, I take in fifty cents; I get more pleasure blowing in this hard-earned, sweat stained slice of tin, than do the wealthy gents. Their coin comes easy as the rain, it represents no stress or strain, no toll in shop or den; they use their wealth to buy and sell, like taking water from a well; a hole fills up again. We do not value much the thing which, like an everlasting spring, wells up, year after year; if you'd appreciate a bone, you have to earn it with a groan, and soak it with a tear. I'd rather have the rusty dime for which I labored overtime, and sprained a wing or a leg, than have the large and dishing buck that Fortune handed me, or Luck; get wise, rich had, to that.

FIGURES DO LIE.

Prices are only Relative

REGAL ENGINES are the highest priced engines, yet they are the cheapest est.

They are the highest priced engines because they cost more to build.
They are the cheapest engines, because they will last twice as long as any other engine.

They are also the cheapest engines because they save your time, and
"Time is money."

If you shut your eyes to their advantage in engines, you will be the sorriest fisherman who ever signed an order.

You will lose more money than you can afford to lose, and your outfit will be twice as large.

REGAL ENGINES use less oil than more power, run with less trouble, and give more genuine satisfaction than any other engine on the market.

We are, in the near future, going to ask all cash for REGAL ENGINES.
So buy one before we make this change, as we intend to make the "Hall Mark" engines of Newfoundland.

We ship REGAL ENGINES complete with full book of instructions, and when once installed in your boat, any child can run one.

REGAL ENGINES are higher priced than other engines, but are the best in the long run, because they run the longest.
