WHEN LOVE Came Too Late.

CHAPTER XXXIII.
A Gypsy's Evidence.

Bartley Bradstone put on his hat and walked out of the room, telling the cabman to wait while he walked towards the bank. There he changed a check.

The cashier did not, as usual, scoop out the money with a respectful smile, but took the check, apparently, into the manager's room. He came out after a minute or two and changed the check.

"We have not had your passbook for some weeks, sir," he said, as he passed the money over.

Bartley Bradstone scarcely noticed him, but went out into the street again. He turned into a refreshment bar and got a glass of sherry. Half an hour, perhaps, passed, then he made his way back to Ethelred Chambers. Just as he was within sight of them, a gentleman ran up against him, and was making the usual apology, when he broke off with:

"Hallo, Bradstone! Is that you? I say, my dear fellow, what a deuce of a mess we're in!"

"What do you mean?" said Bradstone.

"Well! Good heavens, man, I mean this infernal bank."

"The South Indian?" said Bartley Bradstone, quite easily.

The gentleman stared at him.

"Well, you take it pretty coolly, Bradstone," he said. "But I suppose to a man with your pile a facer like this does not matter, though I had an impression that you were in it more deeply than any of us. Why, it was one of your pet schemes, was it not?" and he smiled and winked.

Bartley Bradstone nodded curtly.

"Yes, I was in it pretty deeply," he said. "But I sold out a week ago."

The other man stared at him.

"Why, man, your name is still in the list of shareholders published to-day. Look here," and he drew the city paper from his pocket, rapidly found the paragraph, and thrust it into Bradstone's hands.

Bartley Bradstone looked at it, then turned white.

"There is some mistake," he said. "I tell you I sold out a week ago—every share."

The man looked at him with something like pity.

"By the Lord!" he muttered, under his breath, "the blow has sent him off his head!" But pity is too expensive a commodity in the city. It requires too much time. With a "Well, good-by, old fellow," the gentleman hurried on and left Bartley Bradstone standing with the paper in his hand, looking like a man completely dazed.

The crowd of passers-by jostled him and pushed him all unheeded; but at last he seemed to awake, and hurrying onward, ran up the steps and into Mr. Mowle's office.

Mr. Mowle was not there. He had gone, and so had the Gladstone bag! The office, too, was in greater disorder than before; and Bartley Bradstone, sinking into a chair before the table, saw a letter addressed to him lying on the desk. He tore it open with shaking fingers.

"Am detained. Shall be back in an hour."

Suspicious and bewildered, Bartley Bradstone paced up and down the office, then he went to a safe which stood in the corner of the room. Unlocking it, he began to examine its contents. Then he uttered a cry of mingled rage and despair.

Like a flash of lightning the truth burst upon him. Ezekiel Mowle, the tool whom he had held under his thumb—the worm upon whom he had trodden so often—had turned at last. Scrip, securities, mortgages had all gone. The South Indian Bank shares had not been sold.

He remembered now the cashier's manner when he presented the check, and he knew, as well as if Mowle had confessed, that he had embezzled every penny of the vast sum which Bartley Bradstone had, with contemptuous confidence, left at his disposal.

Quite faint, sick, feeling more driven and helpless than he had ever felt before, he struggled to the table and drank a glass of water. What should he do? Throughout all the terrible time of peril he felt that at least he had one thing to help him—his immense wealth. Now that that had gone, what should he do?

He leaned his head upon his hand, and forced himself to think.

With the exception of the sum which he had obtained at the bank, he had no ready money whatever.

Mr. Mowle could not make away with The Maples, and probably only that remained. That could not be realized without time. Then he remembered his jewelry. At all costs he must get that. It would sell for something—would bring enough, perhaps, to enable him to leave England. He must go back to Hawkwood.

Pulling himself together, he went downstairs. On the way, the desire to punish the man who had betrayed him took full possession of him; but he knew that the longing for vengeance could not be satisfied. Any attempt to punish Mowle would reveal to the whole world the connection between them, and would brand him with infamy and disgrace. He got into the cab, and told the man to drive to Waterloo.

Seth, in his cab, followed at a discreet distance.

Luck favored Bartley Bradstone. The West of England train was leaving in a few minutes. Weary, tortured by anxiety, he threw himself into the corner of a carriage and closed his eyes.

It was nearly midnight when the train reached Wainford station, and a true Devonshire drizzle had set in. With the exception of a solitary porter, there was no life about the station.

Exhausted as he was, he must walk to The Maples. Perhaps it was as well; he could secure his jewels, and, by good luck, leave the house without being seen.

Slowly he dragged himself along the muddy roads, reached the lodge, and had got his key in a side door which he sometimes used, when he heard a voice close behind him.

With a hoarse cry he turned and staggered back. The night was dark, and he could distinguish nothing for a moment or two. Then he saw a man standing at the bottom of the steps, with his hands thrust in his pockets, and an expression of sullen impatience on his face.

"Who are you, and what do you want?" demanded Bartley Bradstone.

Seth came up the steps and looked at him.

"I want to know how much longer this is a-goin' on, Mister Bradstone," he said. "This 'ere game's a-gettin' too thin. If you ain't tired, I am. I suppose you thought you could give me the slip, but you reckoned without your man, Mister Bradstone."

Bartley Bradstone leaned against the door and stared at him breathlessly.

"I do not know you," he said. "You are making a mistake. You know my name. What do you want with me?"

Seth laughed shortly.

"Let's go inside," he said.

Bartley Bradstone took the key out of the door and put it in his pocket.

"Say what you have to say here," he said. "I never saw you before. I do not know what you want with me; if you have come to extort money on any pretext, you've come to the wrong man."

"Oh, no, I haven't," sneered Seth. "I've come to the right man. You don't know me; but I know you and I know Bella Lee."

Bartley Bradstone drew a short breath and put his hand to his heart.

"You knew Bella Lee?" he said.

"What has that to do with me?" Seth laughed unpleasantly.

"A good deal, I should think, seeing you was 'er 'usband."

Bartley Bradstone's face went livid and he looked from side to side, like the hunted man he was.

"How do you know that?" he demanded. "Who told you?"

"I saw you married," replied Seth coolly. "Come, Mister Bradstone, don't put my back up. I'm rather tired of this game o' cheyvin' you up to London and back again, and I want to come to business. I know more about you and Bella than you think for."

"Go on," said Bartley Bradstone. "Tell me what you know or think you know."

"I will," said Seth. "I know more than the judge and jury as 'ull tell Mr. Faradeane, and, by God, I'll tell them, if you don't make it worth my while to hold my tongue."

Bartley Bradstone stood with his eyes upon the ground, his lips tightly compressed. He seemed to feel the meshes of a huge, wide-spreading net closing round him. Whichever way he turned, he was met by some obstacle to his escape.

And this man who had, unseen, tracked him step by step throughout the day, what did he know? And how much? At all costs he must learn this.

He opened the door. "Come inside," he said; and leading the way to the library and turning up the gas, looked keenly at Seth's dark face and slouching figure. "You say, my man, that you know something about this murder. Do you know who did it?"

"I do," said Seth, seating himself on a corner of the costly inlaid table and kicking his leg to and fro in an insolent fashion.

"You do!" said Bartley Bradstone, with a long breath. "I was just going to offer a hundred pounds reward for such information as would lead to the discovery of the man who committed the crime. I will give you that hundred pounds now if you will tell me what you know."

Seth stared at him, then smacked his leg and laughed.

"A hundred pounds! I should think so! If you was to ask me, I should consider it cheap at a thousand, and that's the figure I mean to ask for it. And if yer takes my advice, the advice of a man as don't wish you no particular harm, you'll hand over that thousand pounds, and say no more about it. You can rely on me. I can keep my mouth shut. I'm sick o' England, and I'm ready to go wherever you like and keep there."

Bartley Bradstone remained silent for a moment or two, then he said, huskily:

"Supposing your information were worth the money; my man, I could not give it to you."

Seth stared and laughed incredulously.

Bartley Bradstone bit his lip.

"What I tell you is true. I can no more give you a thousand pounds than you can give it to me."

"Now, guv'nor, come, no gammon," said Seth, impatiently. "If you've got any sense, any gratitude, you'd fork out the money and say 'thank you.' What's a thousand pounds when a man's life's at stake?"

"I tell you, I can't do it," he said.

Seth looked round at the handsomely furnished room, at the costly hangings, the rows on rows of elegantly bound books and silver knick-knacks on the tables, the carved oak and beveled mirrors, and laughed again.

"It won't do, guv'nor," he said. "Look 'ee here," and he leaned forward and shook his fist in Bartley Bradstone's face. "I'm not to be trifled with. Give me the money I asks yer for, or I'll go and give the police the information I have offered you. They'll pay for it, and be only too glad."

Surprisingly Good Cough Syrup Made at Home

Costs Very Little and Easily Made, but is Remarkably Effective.

You'll never really know what a fine cough syrup you can make until you prepare this famous home-made remedy. You not only save $2 as compared with the ready-made kind, but you will also have a more effective and dependable remedy in every way. It overcomes the usual coughs, throat or chest colds in 24 hours—relieves even whooping cough quickly.

Get 2½ ounces of Pinex (50 cents worth) from any good drug store, pour it into a 16-oz. bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup. Here you have 16 ounces—a family supply—of the most effective cough syrup that money can buy—at a cost of only 54 cents or less. It never spoils.

The prompt and positive results given by this pleasant tasting cough syrup have caused it to be used in more homes than any other remedy. It quickly loosens a dry, hoarse or tight cough, seals the inflamed membranes that line the throat and bronchial tubes, and relief comes almost immediately. Splendid for throat tickle, hoarseness, bronchitis, croup and bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, combined with gauliac and has been used for generations for throat and chest ailments.

Patriotic Addresses Given by Lieut. Hicks

At Seldom Come By and Joe Batt's Arm.

Pogo district has been especially favored during the past fortnight in having had Lieut. G. Hicks who has been giving a recruiting tour through the district. Having addressed meetings at Carmanville, Ladle Cove, and Musgrave Harbour, he arrived here at Seldom Come By on Monday, Sept. 18th. Flags were hoisted in honour of his visit and at night the Orange Hall was crowded to hear him give a Patriotic Address.

I had the honour to be Chairman at that meeting. The relatives of those boys who are in the Army and Navy were invited to the platform. The speaker was then introduced. After paying a tribute to the boys who had responded to the call of duty he gave his very interesting account, lasting three hours, of the doings of Our Regiment since leaving Newfoundland until the first of July, on which date he was wounded in the attack on Beaumont Hamel.

He also sketched the work of our great Navy, Red Cross Work in France and Hospital life. He spoke of the grand work done by the W. P. A. and concluded his address by making an appeal to the able-bodied young men to enlist, stating we were fighting for our lives to-day.

At the conclusion of his address a vote of thanks was tendered him, a collection amounting to $112.22 was taken up in aid of the Red Cross Fund. The National Anthem was then sung bringing to an end the most pleasant evening that Seldom has had for some time.

On Tuesday night he lectured at Seldom; Wednesday night at Change Islands; Thursday night at Indian Islands, the following Monday night again at Carmanville. At each of those places he was right royally received and Patriotic enthusiasm was at its highest pitch.

On Saturday he again arrived here to take the Prospero for St. John's, and discovering she was late, decided to take a run across the island to Joe Batt's Arm. Being a stranger to that part of the district I accompanied him in carriage; although having only telegraphed the Patriotic Committee just as we were leaving Seldom, we were grateful to find that all arrangements were made for the meeting, and the people duly notified. On arrival flags were flying and the people were even more enthusiastic than anywhere else in the district.

When we reached the Fishermen's new Hall at 8 o'clock we found it crowded. The Rev. H. Scott took the chair and in a few well chosen words introduced the speaker. As at Seldom and other places the relatives of the boys with the Regiment and in the Navy were invited to the platform. On rising to address the audience the greatest enthusiasm prevailed. For three hours Lieut. Hicks kept his audience spell bound. At the conclusion a vote of thanks was tendered him. This was ably proposed by Mr. Levi Perry, who in eloquent language commented upon the address, and made an appeal to all able-bodied young men to enlist. This was seconded by me. When the audience showed their appreciation, so enthusiastic were they that the Chairman had great difficulty in bringing the meeting to a close, which was eventually done by singing the National Anthem. The real true spirit of the meeting was expressed in Joe

Batt's Arm, and everything points to great numbers of recruits coming forward in the near future. While at Joe Batt's Arm, Lieut. Hicks was the guest of Mr. Levi Perry, who was mainly responsible for the success of the meeting; the director of the Committee being out of town during the afternoon.

After returning to Seldom Come By, Lieut. Hicks embarked on the Prospero for St. John's.

We wish him bon voyage and hope when the war is over we shall have him back with us again. Meanwhile we congratulate ourselves on being the first district in the Island to have received first hand information from the front from one of our own boys.

MORE MEN AND MORE MUNITION.

LONDON, Oct. 4. General Sir William Robertson, Chief of the Imperial Staff at Army Headquarters, Lincolnshire. While the Allies are winning slowly, but surely, he wished to impress on his hearers the necessity of procuring more men for the Army and munition factories. In this connection, he said, he had a serious word of warning to give. We are not justified in expecting to win the war, he said, unless the service of every man and woman in the country be utilized to the fullest extent. We must be under no delusion, he continued, as to the end or probable duration of the great struggle. We must be prepared to continue it for a time which cannot at present be estimated. In fact we must prepare for the worst, while we hope for the best. We have adopted in theory the principle of national service. We must see that we put it into practice, because we want more men and we want them now, and eventually we want all who can be spared.

Britain is in urgent need of men for the armies, and also for the munition factories. A statement to this effect was given out to-day by the Man Power Distribution Board, recently appointed to comb out eligible men for the army of the United Kingdom, who have not yet enrolled. The Board report that they had examined the Admiralty, War Office, Ministry of Munitions and other departments and that there was urgent need for fresh supplies of men for the armies and munition factories, in order to maintain our forces in the field, at the numbers already fixed for them, and at the same time to maintain the supply of munitions essential for equipment and proper utilization. The Board directed that no exemption be granted to certain classes heretofore exempt, and that there be a more general dilution of skilled labor on munitions with women and other workers, heretofore untrained. It suggested that conferences of employers and employees be held, with a view of freeing skilled labor now engaged in private works for employment on munitions plants. It is essential, the report says, that a large part of the labor now engaged in private work shall be diverted to the Government's orders, or released for the Army. The Board has under consideration the extended use of women and men over military age, and the release of men of military age now employed in Government offices. This is the only means, the Board says, considered open to their arguments. The indictment covers almost everything in the Chancellor's conduct of Foreign affairs before and during the war. Attacks are made in particular on his attempts to reach an agreement with England, his first attitude toward Belgian neutrality, and naturally his policy in the submarine issue. Another factor is the truce proclaimed at the outset of the war which had been made by the Saxons. Socialists. This faction has determined to run a candidate for the seat in the Reichstag vacated by the death of the Conservative, Erhard Eduard Gans. This determination violates the general agreement between the political parties that vacant seats shall be resigned without contest to the party holding them at the outset of the war. Meanwhile the Chancellor and the Reichstag leaders continue to discuss the points at issue behind closed doors. The discussion is being conducted on even a more confidential basis than before. It is no longer held before the full committee on ways and means to which all members of the Reichstag are admitted as auditors, but in a smaller select committee of party leaders who are specially bound to secrecy. Such scraps as leak out say that while the antagonism between the Chancellor and his opponents has not disappeared, the discussion is now being conducted on the basis of reason and not of passion. It is believed that there is a good prospect that an agreement will be reached which will avoid the open discussion of issue before the Reichstag.

THE NEXT PREMIER.

TOKIO, Oct. 4. In well informed circles it is believed that Lieut. General Count Seiki Terauchi is the most likely choice for Premier.

"He Did His Bit."

By the Sagona, which sailed for the Labrador Tuesday afternoon, there left for his home at Cartwright, Wilfred Swaffield. This young man arrived here about a year ago to enlist with the Nrd. Regiment. Having passed his medical examination he entered upon his duties. During the winter he contracted a heavy cold which developed into pleuro-pneumonia. After treatment by an Army doctor he pulled through a very serious illness which left him in a weak state for some time and subsequently was given three months' leave to visit his home, whereby it was thought he would regain his health and that he would report fit for service. On again reporting to Headquarters he failed to pass, and he therefore asked for his discharge, which was granted. Mr. Swaffield is greatly disappointed in not being able to serve his King and Country and it was with great reluctance that he substituted the civilian clothes for the khaki. His case is another fine example of patriotism.

You're Bilious! Let "Cascarets" Liven Liver and Bowels

Don't stay headachy, constipated, sick, with bad breath and stomach sour.

Get a 10-cent box now. You men and women who can't get feeling right—who have headache, coated tongue, bad taste and foul breath, dizziness, can't sleep, are bilious, nervous and upset, bothered with a sick, gassy, disordered stomach, or have a bad cold. Are you keeping your bowels clean with Cascarets, or merely forcing a passage every few days with salts, cathartic pills or castor oil? Cascarets work while you sleep; cleanse the stomach, remove the sour, undigested, fermenting food and foul gases; take the excess bile from the liver and carry out of the system all the constipated waste matter and poison in the bowels. A Cascaret to-night will straighten you out by morning—a 10-cent box from any drug store will keep your stomach, sweet, liver and bowels regular, and head clear for months. Don't forget the children. They love Cascarets because they taste good—never gripe or sicken.

Fishery Reports.

The latest fishery reports to the Board of Trade from various centres are:—
Sept. 30th.—From F. W. Power, (Odein).—The total catch is 2475 qts. and for last week 75. Five boats and 15 dories and skiffs are fishing. Practically nothing is being done by the shrimpers of Cape boats, owing to rough weather and scarcity of bait. Prospects are very poor.
Sept. 30th. From J. F. Williams, (Bay Bulls South Head to Long Pt.).—Sixteen dories and skiffs and 31 motor boats are fishing and the catch to date is 10,635 qts. with 100 for last week. Prospects are fairly good and there is enough squid for bait.
Sept. 30th. From R. Scott, (Hare Bay to Wild Cove Point).—About 150 dories and skiffs are fishing but bait is not plentiful and prospects are very poor. The total catch is 5,095 qts. and for last week 300.
Certain members of the house-party were describing the accidents that had happened to them during their respective careers. Adventures by flood, fire, and field had all been well recalled, and Mr. Brown, eager for fame, thought it was his turn. "D'you know," he said, "I had a very painful experience once. I ran a confounded splinter quite half an inch long right under my finger-nail, don't you know?" "Really, Mr. Brown," said a maiden of the party; "how did you do it?" "Well," he said, "it happened like this. As he spoke he unconsciously raised his hand and scratched his forehead. "Oh, I see," she interrupted, sweetly; "how very careless of you!"—Tit-Bits.

Why People feel Depressed In the Cold Weather

Why is tiredness and languor so prevalent just now? A physician explained that the cold of winter drives blood from the surface of the body to the liver. Normally one-fourth of the whole blood supply is in the liver, and when more blood is accumulated in that organ everything goes wrong. No better remedy exists than Dr. Hamilton's Pills which are composed of such vegetable extracts as Mandrake and Butternut, and possess wonderful liver stimulating powers. It's a marvel the way Hamilton's Pills clear the blood of the poisonous humors. They put new life into worn out bodies, build up the appetite, bring back a reserve of nerve energy, tide folks over the cold days of winter and the depressing days of spring. For your health and body comfort get a 25c. box of Dr. Hamilton's Pills to-day.

Hoodwinking A Nation.

In England, we are constantly reminded, they have ceased to be concerned as to the duration of the war, being now quite confident of its issue. Forseeing already the end, they do not care overmuch when it may come, so it be a thorough and satisfactory one. But it is plain that the causes that will effect it must also determine its time, and among them is one, to which we have before alluded, that is now manifesting itself more clearly and may be expected to grow in strength and importance. This is the mental attitude of the German people, their gradual awakening to the truth.

For the German people do not know the truth. She is not allowed to show her face to them; she cannot pass the Censor. How sedulously and with what care this is provided by German officialdom outsiders have probably not the slightest idea. It may be guessed at a priori through knowledge of German methods; it can be gathered a little from the frank amazement of German prisoners who see the English Houses of Parliament still erect and stately and London not quite the heap of ashes they had imagined her. We are beginning to learn, with wonder and scorn, of such devices as the exact copying of the "Daily Mail," with concocted columns of imaginary defeats and disasters, circulated among a dejected public who have no opportunity of realizing the deception. Even the official bulletins, almost models of accuracy when Germany was winning, have become utterly unreliable, being either deliberate falsehoods or studied half-truths worse than lies.

"Quem deus vult perdere prius dementit." And this practice of the German rulers is sheer madness. Its consequences will recoil upon them more terribly than if they now admitted frankly the whole truth. We can imagine that the process of Germany's awakening, possibly as great an instrument to peace as the most overwhelming defeat in the field, will be something like this. Already the confusion of victory rings hollow; there can be no victory because there is no fruit. Soon, very soon, defeat will take its place in their minds, of which the fruits will be unmistakable and present. Thereupon will arise the storm of which we see the beginning in the campaign against the Chancellor. A culprit must be found, a veal for the popular rage. This agitation will be the child, not of conscience, but of discontent. But it will lead, as it inevitably does among defeated nations, to an inquiry into a host of things which could be accepted on faith in the hour of victory. The German people will see that in many things they have been tricked; how far, they will ask themselves, has the trickery gone? How about all the things we have been told?

This revolution of feeling in Germany, this assertion of individual judgment, we believe to be inevitable, and its consequences cannot be far. For it will lead to the realization, that will burst like a great light upon Germany, that not alone the events but the causes of the war were far other than they had allowed themselves to believe. If this realization could reach it now, most of the suffering that is yet to come might be averted, but it is not possible. The Allies cannot reach the German people to tell them the simple truth, to let them know merely how unprepared they were for the conflict and how consequently absurd is the contention that they provoked it. Their only arguments at present are their big guns, and they are beginning to prove convincing. When they have done their work and made a breach through which knowledge of the truth can penetrate to the homes and hamlets of Germany, the world may witness in Germany itself an eruption beside which the horrors of the French Revolution would appear like a pleasant idyll.

In Macedonia

The war news is distinctly good. For long every consideration has pointed to the probability of a great effort by the enemy in the East, so that it is encouraging to note general progress by the Allies there. The fighting in Macedonia seems to be assuming at least serious proportions. The Serbians continue to score successes in a region notoriously difficult to attacking movements. By pushing along to Lake Prespa and taking the Kenali railway station they are getting command of the approaches to Monastir. If it be true that the British have taken Jenikoi, they must have made fine progress, for it is but a short distance south of Strumitza. But even if the news is premature it is certain to be realized soon, for it can only be the very difficult country that is enabling the Bulgarians thus far to hold off the extended attack. The report may well be true that the Grand Duke has been assigned to the army that is to advance from Dobruja, and that it is a large and well equipped force that he will command. The news might also deserve to be styled "the most alarming" that has reached Berlin, where the Grand Duke's aggressive abilities are well known and wholesomely respected. The great drama of the Balkans has begun, and for some time even the momentous events that may be looked for on the Somme will not distract the eyes of the world from this theatre of war.

HARBOUR THIEVES AGAIN AT WORK.—Fishermen arriving daily in their small schooners, bringing fish and getting their winter supply, complain that they are continually annoyed by a gang of boys who hang around the wharves and sneak off with their row boats, often not returning with the same. Several days ago Mr. Thomas Barron, of Freshwater Bay, had a fine fishing boat containing valuable fishing tackle stolen from the South Side and as yet has discovered no clue leading to the identification of the thieves.

A V. C Hero

Twenty brave soldiers have just been awarded Victoria Crosses—eight, alas! are dead. This is their type: "Private James Miller, late of the Royal Lancaster Regiment, outbraves in the stupifying magnitude of his deed all the inventions of romance and the legends of history. "He was ordered to take an important message across a fire-strewn stretch of open ground. Even as he left the trench he was shot through the body, but he compressed the deadly wound with his hand and fulfilled his errand. Then, staggering back with the answer, he fell dying at the feet of his officer. "This is the sheer heroism of supreme devotion to duty in the face of the knowledge of certain death," says the Manchester Guardian.

Brutal Assault.

"Jack" McGrath, who has a notorious record in police circles, was arrested last night for committing a cowardly and brutal assault. He was butting his way along Water Street, as he was well primed from alcohol, and when near the Seaman's Institute he grabbed a school boy named Gillis by the shoulders and violently struck him in the face. The boy bled profusely and cried and Constables Woodford and Whelan were quickly on the scene. McGrath tried to mix matters with the officers but was soon put hors de combat and with the aid of a pair of bracelets he was safely landed in durance vile. To-day he was fined $5 or 14 days by Judge Morris. Being a transient boarder of the lakeside hostelry he did not pay the fine.

Ship Torpedoed

Was Well Known Here. The Norwegian steamer Ada reported by Lloyds, according to a despatch from London which appears in another column, to have been sunk was well known here. She was engaged in the pit prop trade last year and twice, while on her way from the Old Country to Newfoundland ports to load, put in here. She was here for orders last August and again in October. She is supposed to have been torpedoed and the crew taken off. The Ada was 1,111 tons gross.

Patient Horses, Placid Cows, etc.

By RUTH CAMERON.

The other evening at dusk, as we strolled down a country road, we passed a stable. From within came the thud of a horse's hoof as he changed his position. "What a picture that little sound gives you of the whole stable," I said. "You can just see the patient horses standing there."

How instinctively we associate "Patient" with "Horse." "Patient horses!" echoed my companion, "isn't it queer how instinctively we associate that adjective with the horse? I wonder if it's the same way with other animals."

"What's the adjective for cow?" I questioned, and then answered myself in the same breath, and in unison with companion, "Placid."

Can you imagine describing a cow with any other adjective, unless you made a deliberate effort to select an unusual one?

The dog came under consideration next and we were unanimous in calling it—can you guess?—"faithful."

The Cat Has No Universal Adjective. On the cat we differed. There does not seem to be any quality universally attributed to cats. I think this is because the cat is the least understood of all the domestic animals. She is with us but not of us. She does not come at call like the dog—unless she thinks there is something in the way of food to be offered her. I have seen my own cat sit perfectly unmoved under the stove while all the family tried to summon her. She was in full view of her dish, and thus being able to perceive that it was not for the sake of feeding her that she was called, she paid no attention. "Aloud" is the adjective I should apply to cats, but it does not seem to have the sanction of universal usage.

Are Sheep Really Stupid? Sheep, we both stigmatized as "stupid." This time the adjective was supplied by usage, as neither of us had any personal acquaintance with sheep. Perhaps some reader friend can tell us if they really are stupid.

The pig seems to have two adjectives, that are equally indigenous to him. I'll leave you to guess what they are.

The mule and the bee are two examples of creatures whose adjectives are almost a part of their names. Sometimes when you lack a topic, get a group to talking on this subject. Supply them with the noun and see how often they pick the same adjective. It would be an interesting experiment, I think.

Pulling Power of Advertising.

Some time ago the Chevrolet Motor Co., published a double-page spread announcing the production of a new automobile. One paper only was used, and that paper had only a little over 100,000 circulation. The value of the automobiles sold through this one advertisement during the six days following its appearance, according to Norman L. DeVaux, President of the Company, was $1,200,000. A Committee of the San Francisco Merchants who investigated the records of the Chevrolet Motor Co., found that of the 3,000 cars sold, the week following the appearance of the advertisement, more than 2,000 sales were directly due to the advertisement. So far as we know, this record has not been surpassed in the history of Advertising.

AT THE CRESCENT.

The great Lubin leading lady, June Daye, is featured in "Her Wayward Sister" at the Crescent Picture Palace to-day. This great melo-drama is produced in three reels by the Lubin Company. "Two News Items" is a strong drama of the underworld; and one of the best Vitagraph Comedies is "Hughie, The Process Server" with all the Vitagraph Comedy Stars including Hughie Mack, Kate Price and Flora Finch. Mr. Same Rose sings the fine ballad: "My Own Iona." Professor McCarthy presides at the piano playing the newest and best music. To-morrow a great variety week-end programme.

VACATING BARRACKS.—The present recruiting headquarters are now being dismantled and the volunteers are being moved into billets. Henceforth they will drill at the C. L. B. Armoury.

OLD ENGLISH.

When Chaucer lived there were some other birds, with inspiration loaded to the guards. And there were high-brows in that distant age, who looked with scorn upon great Geoffrey's page, and said, "Gadzooks, they writeth midding hair, for one whose soul is afflatus bare; as crossroads jingler he may cut some grass, but who'll recall him when ten years shall pass? If you'd read verse of great, majestic power, you must peruse the gorgeous works of Gower." Now, it is true that in G. Chaucer's time, the critics joshed him for his paltry rhyme, and held that Langland, "Piers Plowman" dope, had moderns skinned beyond all hint of hope. How vain the judgment of the critics clan! They heap their laurels on some ten cent man, and say his harp will never be unstrung, while there are men to read his native tongue. Their petted poet crosses the divide, and is forgotten ere he's fairly died, while some unknown, who smarted "neath their jeers, lives in men's hearts through all the rolling years.

Curse of Mongoose on Island.

Jamaica is among the countries which have learned that man cannot with impunity interfere with the balance of nature. To keep down the rats, which did so much mischief in the sugar cane fields, the mongoose was imported in 1872.

He thrived and did what was expected of him with regard to the rats. But he then passed on to the snakes, lizards, small birds, turtle eggs, domestic poultry, and their eggs, and ground provisions, until it became at least doubtful whether he had not done more harm than good. And the scale in favor of harm was decidedly tipped by the portentous increase in ticks, which had previously been kept within bounds by some of the creatures which the mongoose set himself to slay.

Your Boys and Girls.

There is much of imagination in the life of every child and this should be fostered and guided for use in later life. If it is possible to give up one room, an alcove or a corner, so that it can be transformed into an attractive and educative spot for the child. It is not so much a question of size as it is of a distinctive place. If possible it should contain a cabinet for toys. A box into which the child at the end of its play dumps all of its toys. Fosters only a semblance of order.

Here are some "don'ts" for children that should be heeded by all mothers: Don't allow the children to read in a dim light. Don't let them read with the sunlight glaring on the book. Don't allow them to read at night facing the light. Don't allow them to read while lying down. Don't allow them to read for too long a period at a time.

Two Kitchener Stories.

Lord Kitchener's rule in India was marked by one of his most salient characteristics—the habit of committing as little as possible to paper. To give an order by word of mouth he would wire to a general to travel a two days' journey to see him. When he arrived, ten minutes' conversation, a curt farewell, and the dreaded interview was over. Thus did he successfully circumvent the constant spying around him.

The famous soldier did not encourage autograph seekers. He is said to have made the following reply to one request for his signature: "Young man, make your own autograph worth something; mine's worth nothing."

PIT PROP STEAMER IN FOR SUPPLIES.—The S. S. Halesbury entered this port last night to fill-up her bunkers and get other supplies. She is deeply laden with pit props and is bound to Garston, England, having left Indian Bay a few days ago. The ship is coaling at A. Harvey and Co.'s premises and Mr. Tasker Cook is attending to her requirements. She will resume the voyage this afternoon.

The Great Somme Film

FACTS ABOUT THE MEN WHO TOOK IT.

The most amazing film of modern times is undoubtedly "The Battle of the Somme," which is attracting enormous crowds to the picture theatres at which it is shown. After you have seen this remarkable picture, vividly portraying the everyday life of our "Tommy's" under fire, invariably you remark, "Who took it?"

Realizing that the brave operator was constantly under heavy shell-fire, openly exposed to the bullets of the Hun, his life might at any minute have been wrested from him.

As a matter of fact, the picture as it is now shown was taken by two operators, Mr. J. B. McDowell, managing director of the British and Colonial Kinematograph Company, and Mr. G. H. Malins, an operator in the service of the Gaumont Company.

These two men have been appointed by the British Topical Committee, representing the Kinematograph Companies, who pay them at the rate of £1 a day, the cost of travelling, transport, and billets being defrayed by the War Office, and they work under the direct supervision of Captain Fauntleroy, Military Director of Kinematograph Operations on the Western Front.

The young Gaumont operator, Mr. Malins, who has filmed over a third of the Somme pictures, has been at the Front for over a year. He has taken pictures on practically every part of the Western Front, including the French lines near Vosges.

One of his most audacious acts was to film the whole of the Belgian and British lines from an aeroplane at an altitude of nearly 13,000 feet. Parts of the pictures have been shown publicly, but the Headquarters Staff have reserved most of it for their own use.

It must be remembered that although Mr. Malins has "entered for the public" by filming "The Battle of the Somme" and other pictures, most of his time is taken up in making pictures of the German lines for the General Headquarters Staff, who have a private cinema for the special purpose of viewing these films.

Just before the great offensive this intrepid young man had an alarming experience. After having taken a picture in a trench, he was unfixing his camera when two bullets passed through his service cap. Probably thanking his "lucky stars" for such a miraculous escape, he made his way back to a village where he had left his car. The Germans were dropping "tear" shells at the time, and he found both his chauffeur and car so "unnerved" by the effects of this Hun "rightfulness" that the car had fallen into a ditch, and he had to carry his camera many miles along a shell-swept road, in order to reach his destination.

Although Mr. McDowell, who is well known in the kinematograph world, has not been at the Front so long as his young colleague, having arrived out there last June, he has taken many stirring pictures while shrapnel was bursting over his head, and often so exposed himself to danger that he had to be called away.

So great has been the demand for "The Battle of the Somme" that it is now booked for over 1,000 picture theatres in the United Kingdom, and American agents are particularly keen to have it shown in the United States, as our neutral friends are anxious to see how the big "scrap" is being fought across "the duck-pond."

MINARD'S LINIMENT CURES DIPHTHERIA.

The Trenches.

A foot of mud twelve inches deep,
A little hole through which you peep,
A short Lee-Enfield which you keep
To pile the fuzes up in a heap,
If from their trenches they should creep,
And charge us like a flock of sheep,
You'd see us from our dug-outs leap—
Say, did you think we were asleep?

When death flies swift on wave or field,
Be Thou a sure defence and shield!
Console and succour those who fall,
And help and hearten each and all,
And those who weak and broken lie
In weariness and agony,
Great Healer, to their beds of pain
Come, touch and make them whole again!

For these to whom the Call shall come
We pray Thy tender welcome home;
The toil, the hilliness all past,
We trust them to Thy love at last,
Renew their hearts with Christ-like faith,
And guard them from disease and death,
And in Thine own good time, Lord, send Thy peace on earth, till time shall end.

St. John's Boy Makes Good.

Newfoundland is always proud to hear of the success of her sons and especially are we pleased to note that Edwin Haddon, youngest son of the late John Haddon (H. M. C.), and well known in St. John's, has won rapid promotion since he went to the West. He was recently appointed cashier for the Canadian Life Insurance Co.'s branch at Vancouver, B.C., and commands a substantial salary. His many friends here wish him continued success and good luck in the land of the Maple Leaf.

Left For Ireland to Enter Priesthood.

Mr. Charles McGrath, a brilliant pupil of St. Bonaventure's and a general favourite amongst his associates, took passage by the Red Cross Liner Stephano last night en route to All Hallows College, Ireland, to study for the priesthood. He is the youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. T. McGrath, of the East End and a brother of Rev. Dr. McGrath, of St. Patrick's Parish, Riverhead. He has a sister, Mary, a Red Cross nurse and a brother, Whitford, of the First Newfoundland Regiment, who saw active service on Gallipoli and in France, where he is now attached to the Royal Army Medical Corps. We wish the young novice bon voyage.

Sealing Fleet for 1917.

The Norwegian steamers Njord and Jacobson, now engaged in the coal trade, will prosecute the seal-fishery again next spring and will sail from here. Last spring they cleared from North Sydney. We understand also that they will take local sealing captains, but it is yet undecided whether they will go to the Gulf or on the Front to hunt. The 1917 local sealing fleet will be the smallest on record and will not exceed a dozen vessels. The S. S. Ranger, which is being re-built and re-classed, will again take part. When finished the ship will be practically new.

A USEFUL RAID.
AMSTERDAM, To-day. The newspaper Lee Nouvelles says that in the air raids on Mannheim in Germany on September 27, a Zeppelin, 750 feet in length was destroyed. Much damage was done; 26 workmen were killed and 40 wounded. A French official statement of Sept. 23 reported that French aviators dropped bombs on Mannheim.

their advance, says to-day's war office statement regarding the operations in Macedonia. During Tuesday night they attacked the Petelina line on western slope of Katmakoslan. In the loop of Cerna on the Kenali-Nejehina line their left wing holds Plosdari at the foot of Mount Cecebo. In the Valley of the Struna the British repulsed a violent attack at Jelkoi, Yenkeni.

ANOTHER GREEK CABINET.
LONDON, To-day. King Constantine has accepted the resignation of the Greek Cabinet, says a Reuter despatch from Athens. It is believed in Athens, the despatch adds, that Nicholas Dimitraopoulos, former Minister of Justice, will form a new cabinet, which will include three members of the Venizelos party.

SERBIANS RETAKING THEIR TERRITORY.
PARIS, To-day. The Serbians have crossed the Togherna River and defeated their adversary on Nize Mountain. The Serbians also captured the Kessal railroad station, according to advices received here. The Serbian territory recaptured now embraces 230 square kilometers, including seven towns. The French and Russians continue their victorious forward movement.

ROMANIAN SUCCESS IN DOBRUDJA.
BUCHAREST, To-day. On the southern-fronts in Dobrudja, despite stubborn resistance by the enemy and violent fire of the artillery, our attack continues to make progress. In the centre and on our left wing we conquered the position of Amasca, where we took 7 guns and more than 1,000 prisoners with much war material.

DUTCH FISH FOR UNITED STATES.
THE HAGUE, To-day. Since the recent agreement arrived at between Britain and the Dutch fishermen regarding the shipment of herring over two thousand tons of Dutch salted herring have been shipped to the States.

COMPULSION IN IRELAND.
LONDON, To-day. When Parliament reassembles next week the Government will be confronted with new and embarrassing proposals for the application of conscription to Ireland. The Times and other papers have recently been conducting a strong campaign with this object in view. The decisions announced to-day by the Man Power Distribution Board and by General Sir Wm. Robertson, Chief of the Imperial Staff, that more men are urgently needed, will, it is believed, strengthen the hand of the agitators who have been joined by Sir Edward Carson. Sir Edward asserts that the situation is such that without conscription in Ireland it will be impossible even to maintain the Irish regiments at the front at their present strength. He contends that Ireland could provide another half million men of military age. He asks what the colonies, which have made such sacrifices for the Empire, still think of shirking Ireland, while the most responsible politicians are agreed that it would be inexpedient to attempt to apply conscription to Ireland while Home Rule is withheld from it. Undoubtedly in the present phase of the war, those who are demanding conscription, hold strong hands and the Government may find it difficult to resist their demand. The Nationalists in reply to Sir Edward points out that the colonies are already self-governing and hence there is no analogy with the position of Ireland. They assert that Ireland will be found a united nation in resistance to conscription. The Liberal newspapers consider the agitation another attempt to unsettle Asquith and contend that while conscription in Ireland would provide a few men, it would provoke another first class Irish crisis and throw Ireland into the hands of the Sinn Feiners.

LONDON BUDGET.
LONDON, To-day. With rain still keeping the operations of the Entente and the Germans on the western front in France mainly to artillery duels, interest in the world war has been transferred to the Russian, Roumanian and Macedonian fronts, on all of which heavy fighting is in progress. A fierce battle which has been raging for several days west of Lutsk in Volhynia is still without a decisive result for either side, while the Gallia along the Zietz-Lips river, where the Russians are trying to push through to Lemberg, the Austro-German forces are still holding back the Russians. Berlin in its official account of the fighting near Lutsk says the Russian dead number thousands, and Bucharest is still silent with regard to the operations of the Roumanian troops which crossed the Danube River between Rustchuk and Turtukai and invaded Bulgarian territory, but Berlin says these men have been hastily withdrawn for fear of being encircled by the forces of Field Marshal Von Mackensen. Fresh gains by the troops of Roumania against the centre and left wing of the Teutonic Allies operating in Dobrudja are chronicled by Bucharest at Amasca. A position of the Teutons was captured and with it more than 1,000 men, seven guns and much war material. In Transylvania from Orsova on the Danube near the Hungarian-Roumanian frontier to the Bukovina border numerous engagements have been fought. Bucharest claims successes for the Roumanian arms in the region of Odorikim between Fegaras and Sighisara and in a mountain west of the River Alk. It is admitted that Roumanian troops were withdrawn from the Jui Valley, but before falling back the coal mines of Petreseny were destroyed by them. The Berlin War Office admits the retirement of the Teutonic Allies before the Serbians to prepared positions near Lake Presba on the western end of the Macedonia front, and also at Nize Hill north of the Katmakoslan heights on the Serbo-Greco front. The British are maintaining the positions they have captured along the Struna River north of Lake Tahnino. In this latter region the British have added to their front the town of Jenkon. An unofficial despatch from Paris says the Serbians in addition to defeating the Bulgars at Nize Hill have captured the Kessal railroad station. The Serbian territory recaptured by the Entente Allies, says the despatch, now aggregates 230 square kilometers. Italian troops have recaptured from the Austrians the northern slopes of the Col. Di Ericon and further advanced their position in this region, according to Rome.

BELIEVES RAIDS WILL CONTINUE.
LONDON, To-day. London will still continue to be visited by Zeppelins, despite their recent losses and the great improvement in the capacity of the air defence. This opinion was expressed to the Associated Press to-day by Earl Derby, who said that the raids will continue for their effect upon the German people, who have been taught that Zeppelins and submarines could bring England to her knees. Hence the ridiculous communiques and newspaper articles in Germany representing England as terrorized. The western campaign, which he declared only needed good weather to show substantial progress.

THE GREEK GOVERNMENT RESIGNS.
ATHENS, To-day. The following official regarding the cabinet situation was issued to-day: "The Government, not having succeeded in getting in touch with the representatives of the Entente Powers, and considering that the situation hinders the progress of national questions, has begged King Constantine to accept its resignation. The King has

Don't Neglect Your Cough.
A little cold may not seem a dangerous thing—you may feel inclined to let it go on hoping that to-morrow it will be better—but can you afford to take chances? Just as the little insignificant acorn grows if let alone, to the mighty giant oak, that cough if not stopped may grow to a very serious illness. When a Cough starts there's no telling where it will end. You know no doubt, of cases right among people you have known, where serious complications and fatal illness have had their start from a neglected cough or cold. "Don't neglect your cough." PROTEST FROM THE JEWS.
NEW YORK, To-day. A cablegram protesting against the reported attempt in the British Commons to vote a Russian law to represent 500,000 workers. The cablegram sent to Samuels, reads: "The Jews are victimized practically in all countries. The traditional land of freedom and democracy should join the forces opposing the Jews."

AFTER THE CHANCELLOR.
LONDON, To-day. Circulars are being issued in Berlin, according to the Berlin Tageblatt, says the Rotterdam correspondent of the Daily News, calling for every means to be used to secure the downfall of the Chancellor with the suggestion that Admiral Von Tirpitz should succeed him.

SHORTAGE OF PAPER.
AMSTERDAM, To-day. The Frankfurter Zeitung says that an order has been published reducing by one-half her quantity of paper supplied to German newspapers.

AMERICANS SCRAP WITH PANAMA.
PANAMA, To-day. In a fight last night between American soldiers and Panamanians, one of the Panamanians was killed. The fight occurred in the same district where similar disorders have taken place. Three Americans are under arrest in the Panama jail for alleged participation in the disorders.

A SENSATIONAL STORY.
NEW YORK, To-day. The New York Herald this morning published the following special cable from London, dated Oct. 3: Although the fact is not generally known in England and it is not mentioned by the newspapers, the Germans last week sent all available submarines to the English Channel. The object was, of course, to close the Channel for once in accordance with the German boast, but the British Navy was quick to deal with this new menace, although the Channel may have been closed to passenger traffic for a few days. The Germans since have learned that they cannot send submarines into English waters with any impunity that they can send Zeppelins to London. The Bremen is not the only submarine whose whereabouts is causing anxiety in Berlin. This is regarded in naval circles as only one symptom of an intention on the part of Germany to resume her submarine campaign on a serious scale. It is openly asserted by shipping men that Germany's intention in this is as much to reduce her disadvantage in mercantile tonnage after the war as to inflict direct injury on Great Britain in the war. Because of this, shipping men are declaring that Great Britain's only recourse will be to announce a ton for a ton indemnity clause as one of her stipulations in the peace treaty, unless Germany desists.

GRAND DUKE FOR DOBRUDJA.
LONDON, To-day. The most alarming of all the news recently published in Germany is the report received through Stockholm that the Grand Duke Nicholas had left Trebizond for Odessa, to proceed to Kief and then to go to the Dobrudja to take command of the army driving south through Bulgaria toward Constantinople. The reports from many quarters affirm that these armies have been organized on a very powerful scale, and the German reading public is being prepared for coming events by the announcement that in this campaign for the conquest of Roumania and the rolling up of the Russian left Field Marshals Von Hindenburg and Von Mackensen, will probably have to manoeuvre extensively on account of the peculiar terrain of the Dobrudja.

Miss Jean Strang will sing to-night at the Patriotic Concert in aid of the Cot Fund at the Royal Theatre, Star Hall. Reserved Seats 50 and 30c. Parquette 20c.—oct.5.11

McMurdo's Store News

THURSDAY, Oct. 5, 1916.
Indigestion, especially when it is associated with more or less obstinate and habitual constipation, is nearly always capable of being relieved, and may often be cured by the judicious use of the proper remedies. One of the most successful mixtures of this class is that known as Gault's Digestive Syrup. Gault's Syrup owes its virtues largely to its quality of keeping the bowels regular, and if taken persistently will very probably correct the constipation which is the root cause of much dyspepsia. Of course careful dieting is necessary to help effecting a cure, but no matter how long standing the case is, there is hope of relief by the faithful use of Gault's Digestive Syrup. Price 50c. a bottle.

STEER BROTHERS.

S. S. Kite Back From the North.
After an absence of nearly three months, the s.s. Kite, Capt. Parsons, returned to port this morning. The ship left here in July last with a load of supplies for an expedition party at Baffin's Land, but was unsuccessful in reaching that place, owing to heavy ice, though she got to within seven miles of it. Approaching Baffin's Land an impenetrable ice barrier was met and it was useless for the Kite to try to negotiate it. The little steamer made several attempts, though ineffectual, to butt through the foe. The captain then decided to return to St. John's. The run back occupied 34 days. The ship is consigned to Mr. R. R. Prowse, the owner.

ATTENDED TO EXPLOSIVES.
Head Constable Dave, who was doing special duty in the Harbor looking after the handling and transferring of dynamite from vessels, resumed his regular duty in the city to-day. The explosives were brought here by the little French steamer Tremblay, which was storm tossed in the big hurricane of Sept. 24th, and were for Port au Port to be used in the quarry there.

Train Notes.
Tuesday's outgoing express reached Port aux Basques at 4.20 a.m. to-day. The incoming express due at St. John's at 5 p.m.
The local from Carbonear arrived in the city shortly after noon to-day. The Trepasie train reached the city at 2.30 a.m.

"WHEELS OF JUSTICE" ATTRACTS CROWDS.

The clever Vitagraph feature film "The Wheels of Justice" was shown at the Nickel Theatre yesterday afternoon and last evening to crowded audiences, and patrons were delighted with it. Dorothy Kelly and James Morrison are in the chief characters and they are ably supported by other well known artists. The Essanay players presented a very pretty social drama in three acts entitled "The House of Revelation." There was an interesting travelogue of Chicago, and George Ovey was the life of the comedy "Dr. Jerry." The programme will be repeated to-day and all should attend.

That's the kind of roof you get by using EVER-LAS-TIC READY ROOFING, $2.70 per roll. EVER-LAS-TIC—because it lasts; there's no rubber in it. Rubber rots, you know that.
READY—because each roll contains enough nails and cement to finish the job.
ROOFING—because it's made to withstand sun, rain and wind.

PARTICULARS:
Each roll contains 108 square feet; one roll will cover 10 square yards. Multiply the length of your roof by its width, divide by 100 and the answer will be the number of rolls required to cover your roof.
