The Lost Will;

OR, LOVE TRIUMPHS AT LAST!

CHAPTER VII.

"No, sir," said Green. "We signed one and went downstairs."

"To tell the other servants?" said Mr. Horton, with a faint smile.

"Well, we did mention it, sir," admitted Green, with an apologetic cough.

"Quite so. And when did you sign the other?"

The two men looked at each other, as if challenging their memories.

"Well, it might have been a quarter of an hour afterwards, or perhaps not so long, or a little longer, sir," replied Thomson gravely. "Did you happen to notice the time, James?"

"No, I didn't," replied James. "But it was about that time."

"What hour was it?" asked Mr. Horton.

"It must have been somewhere about ten; just before," said Thomson. "I know because I heard Mr. Forbes come in; and he's never much later than ten—if so late."

"I see," said Mr. Horton. There was a pause; the two servants stood exactly as they had stood when they entered the room; Jack had risen and gone to the window. Mr. Horton took up a sheet of blue foolscap paper and said, smoothly:

"What was the paper like, the first one? Was it anything like this—in size, I mean?"

"Yes, sir," said Thomson. "about that size, I think; leastways, it might have been. We didn't properly see it, because it was folded over, except just the bit where we signed."

"Yes, it would be," said Mr. Horton. "And the second one?"

"Just the same size, sir; it was folded over like the other," replied Thomson. "They were both the same colour, I remember."

"Quite so," said Mr. Horton. "What did Mr. Chalfont say to you when he asked you to sign?"

"He said, 'This is my will,'" replied Thomson, with intense gravity and importance; "that is, he said them words the first time, but the second time he just said, 'Oh, I want you to witness another paper for me; there was a mistake in the first.'"

"A horror!" put in James.

"No, no—a mistake," repeated Thomson, severely. "I remember the word distinctly—a mistake in the other."

"Was that all Mr. Chalfont said?" asked Mr. Horton, still smoothly.

"That was all, sir, except 'Thank you,'" said Thomson. "Mr. Chalfont, sir," he added, with a little catch in his voice, "was always civil-spoken and pleasant to my servants. A hot-tempered gentleman when anything went wrong; but it didn't last long—"

"Thank you," said Mr. Horton, and, with a nod, he dismissed them.

There was silence for a full minute after they had gone. Mr. Horton's face was like a mask; his eyes were bent on the table. Jack still stood at the window, looking vacantly at Jim, who was chasing a cat across the lawn. He had been half listening only to the colloquy between Horton and the men; that there was something wrong, something gone askew, he was conscious; but the matter did not interest him very much at the moment. He was thinking of the dead man. The footman's reference to Chalfont's pleasant and kindly manner towards his servants had touched Jack, had struck a more significant note in the examination of the two men than anything else had done. Chalfont's manner to his equals and superiors had always been rather brusque and self-assertive; but to his inferiors, the servants of the house, the chauffeur, the porter at the office, he had always been pleasant-spoken and kindly. Jack was roused from his sad reverie by Mr. Horton.

"This is a strange business, Chalfont," said the lawyer, swinging round in his chair and eyeing Jack frowningly. "Of course, you see what it means; Mr. Chalfont signed two wills last night."

"Two wills!" echoed Jack, trying to fix his mind on the matter.

"Yes," said Mr. Horton shrewdly. "They were both wills; for, if the first or the second had been mere business documents, transfers of shares, and such-like, he would have waited until he got to the office—have signed them there in the usual way. They were both wills; if they were merely business papers, Mr. Chalfont would not have folded over the papers so that the witnesses should not see the contents. Now the question is—which will was signed last?"

"Yes," assented Jack, but with so little interest that Horton coloured as if he were nettled.

"My dear Chalfont, don't you see," he said, struggling with his momentary irritation, "that last night Mr. Chalfont signed the draft I had drawn up with him—it was an ordinary foolscap paper, such as this—and that he must have signed another will, probably drawn up by himself."

"Well," said Jack. "I don't see quite what you're driving at. I know that he meant to sign a will in my favour."

"Yes, yes; but where is it?" demanded Mr. Horton, with a frown.

"I don't know," said Jack, rather stupidly. "Isn't it in the safe?"

"No, it isn't," said Horton, very emphatically. "I have been over the papers there twice—three times. The will—or wills—were signed in this room; the reasonable presumption is that he placed both, or one of them, in that safe. Why not? Natural thing to do. All his other papers—leases, estate deeds, and so on—are there right enough, properly folded and endorsed in his methodical way. Do you think it's probable that he may have taken it up to his room? I say 'it,' because, of course, he must have destroyed the first will, the one he wanted to be inoperative; he was a business man."

"I don't know," said Jack again.

"Let us go upstairs," said Horton.

"Oh, hang it!" cried Jack. "I can't worry about a will; I can't go into his room and search—"

"His voice broke."

"I will go," said Horton.

He took the keys from the safe and left the room. Jack opened the window and called to Jim, who came swiftly and joyfully at the summons and jumped up at his master and licked his hands. Jack patted the dog with a spasmodic grief; for the dead man had been fond of Jim, who, when Jack was absent, had accompanied Chalfont on his walks about the estate. Horton returned, the frown deepened on his brow, an irritated and annoyed twist to his thin lips.

"There is no place there where anything could be hidden," he said. "Besides, why should he want to hide it? He must have drawn up the will after some consideration—short consideration, if you like; but it was evident that he had considered the matter, had taken care that the second will should be properly witnessed—My dear Chalfont, you really must pull yourself together and give me your attention. This is a most serious matter. If I cannot find a will, Mr. Chalfont, in the eyes of the law, will have died intestate."

"Yes?" said Jack, quieting Jim, and giving Mr. Horton the attention which he demanded. "And that means—"

"Means that instead of being Mr. Chalfont's heir, and an extremely wealthy man, you are—I beg your pardon, Chalfont, but I must speak plainly, the matter is serious, very serious indeed. Don't you see that, if we cannot find the will which bequeathed everything to you, or if Mr. Chalfont made a second will disposing of his property in another way, you are, in fact—"

"I'm out of it, penniless," said Jack.

"Yes, I see. It's a bit confusing, but I see, of course. The question is: Where are the wills—or the will?"

"Just so," said Mr. Horton, his annoyance now plainly expressed. "I confess I am nonplussed. The late Mr. Chalfont was the last man in the world to play tricks with any document, especially so important a document as his will. Having changed his mind—and it seems that he must have changed his mind; or he may have made a mistake in his own signature, or these two men may have witnessed the will improperly—he would not take the trouble of drawing up another will, and signing it and getting it witnessed, and not take the ordinary precautions for its safety. You see, he had only to unlock the safe just behind him here and throw the will in. Why didn't he do so?"

SPEAKING FROM EXPERIENCE

"I don't know," said Jack, rather wearily; "I can't guess."

"Nor I," said Mr. Horton. He paused a moment, biting his lip. "Of course, there are all sorts of hypotheses. In fact—he smiled scornfully—"it would be possible for Mr. Chalfont to have died with the will lying here—he struck the table—and someone to enter and steal the will. But—he laughed shortly—"these things don't occur in actual life. No, no; he must have put the will somewhere."

"Jack had been looking at the floor thoughtfully; he had been recalling the strange incident of last night. The madman and his daughter—could it be possible that they were connected in any way with this matter of the missing will? He put the vague suggestion from him with contempt.

"It may be at the office," he said.

Mr. Horton made an impatient gesture. "My dear Chalfont," he said, reproachfully, "Mr. Chalfont did not go to the office; the will—the wills—were signed here last night, in this room, and he died soon afterwards."

"Sorry; beg pardon," said Jack.

"The fact is, I can't bring my mind to the subject. You must worry it out yourself." He opened the French window and went out followed by Jim. He had not gone many yards when he heard Mr. Horton calling him, and he went back to the window. The lawyer had got the wastepaper basket on the table and there were some pieces of torn paper in his hand.

"Come in and shut the window, Chalfont," he said, very gravely. "I have found something. I happened to glance at the wastepaper basket, and caught sight of this piece of paper with your name written on it. It is evidently a portion of a letter which has been torn up. Let us find the remainder."

He went over the wastepaper basket carefully, found the other portions of the note, and placed them, together with the first, in order on the blotting-pad.

"You had better read it," he said; and Jack bent over and read:

"My Dear Jack,—I am writing in great trouble, on your account more than my own, though something has happened which has just spoiled my life for me. You know what I intended to do for you; I still want to do it, but I can't. To-night a great debt has been brought home to me, and I have got to pay it; got to, you understand, though it will take every penny I possess. I am more sorry than I can say; but it can't be helped, as you'd understand if you knew the whole business. While I live I hope we shall keep together; but, my dear Jack, when I go every penny will go away from you. I can't write any more, I'm knocked over, and the worst of it is you and I can't talk about it. It's a private affair connected with my past life, my old life, and no talking about it will help us. The only thing that consoles me is that you've got too much grit to be downed by my news. I've known all along that you weren't after me for my money, and I thank you, Jack. Though I can't make you my heir, I must try to help you to make your own way in the world."

The high cost of shoes makes it imperative to use every means to make them last as long as possible. Moisture is their worst enemy. It dries and cracks the leather, ruins their shape and shortens their life of wear.

WAR REVIEW.

With the welding of the armies of the Entente into a compact whole under command of the inter-Allied war council, guided by the master strategy of Marshal Foch, apparently has come the first break in the United front of the Central Powers. Bulgaria, the smallest of the Teutonic allies seems to have struck her colors. Premier Malinoff has asked for an armistice to consider terms of peace. Whether he is acting upon his own responsibility as the representative of a revolutionary party or with the approval of King Ferdinand and the Government, remains in doubt. In either case, however, there is little doubt that Bulgaria has ceased to be a military factor in the war. Her armies are in full retreat and her soil has been invaded. Secession of the Balkan state from the thralldom of Germany will be almost as severe a blow to the Teutonic Allies as was the collapse of Russia to the Allies. If Bulgaria lays down her arms, Turkey, her armies shattered by the coup of General Allenby in Palestine, will be cut off from her Allies, and her line of communication will be severed, except across the Black Sea through Roumania or over the mountain peaks of Transcaucasia into Russia where the grip of the German controlled Bolsheviks is becoming steadily weaker. With her supplies of German-made munitions and raw materials, military observers believe the Ottoman Empire will have no course but to follow the example of her Balkan neighbor. But it makes little difference to the Entente whether the Turk abandons Germany and Austria. If Bulgaria quits he cannot longer be a menace to their plans. The back doors of Austria will stand ajar before the victorious British, French, Serb, Greek and Italian armies plunging ahead through the mountains of liberated Serbia. Only 20 miles ahead of their advance guards is Belgrade. Across the Danube from the plains of Hungary they already have pressed forward a quarter of this distance since the great Macedonian offensive began on Sept. 14. Once over the river they would be passing through territory occupied by the oppressed nationalities of Austria who have little love for the Dual Empire, and there would be no great natural obstacle between them and Budapest. The early winter in the Balkans, with the limited means of communications available, would present the most serious difficulty and one which could not be overcome before spring. With the defection of Bulgaria it would be necessary for hard pressed Austria to throw an army across her southern frontier, thus making another serious inroad upon her waning man power. The bulk of her forces is being the eager Italian army along the Piave and mountain region. Emperor William has already called upon Emperor Charles for help on the Western front, and Austro-Hungarian divisions are fighting beside the Germans against the steadily advancing British, French and Americans. Italy still has large reserves of men and any weakening of the Austrian front to send forces to the other fronts of the empire probably would be the signal for a general attack to recover not only the invaded Italian territory but the lost provinces as well. With Bulgaria evidently fallen by the wayside, with Turkey staggering and with Austria a welter of internal discord and discontent, the shaken armies of Emperor William are grudgingly falling back upon their own frontiers before the irresistible hosts of Marshal Foch's British, French and American troops. The French and Americans plunged forward again between Rheims and Verdun while the British attacked on a wide front in Cambria sector. Between them they already have taken more than 20,000 prisoners and many guns of all calibers. While the tide of victory was running so strongly for the gallant armies of the Entente President Wilson was again voicing the determination of the United States to battle until German militarism and autocracy is forever crushed. Speaking in New York upon the eve of the opening of the greatest popular loan ever offered by any Government, he laid down the five cardinal principles upon which Americans will stand to the last man and the last dollar. The price of peace will be impartial justice to all nations, he declared. The world does not want terms, it wishes the final triumph of justice and fair dealing.

WAR REVIEW.

With the wedding of the armies of the Entente into a compact whole under command of the inter-Allied war council, guided by the master strategy of Marshal Foch, apparently has come the first break in the United front of the Central Powers. With her supplies of German made munitions and raw materials jangling by such slender threads, military observers believe the Ottoman Empire will have no course but to follow the example of her Balkan neighbor. But it makes little difference to the Entente whether the Turk abandons Germany and Austria. If Bulgaria quits he cannot longer be a menace to their plans. The back doors of Austria will stand ajar before the victorious British, French, Serb, Greek and Italian armies plunging ahead through the mountains of liberated Serbia. Only 230 miles ahead of their advance guards is Belgrade. Across the Danube to the plains of Hungary a quarrier of this distance since the great Macedonian offensive began on Sept. 14. Once over the river they would be passing through territory occupied by the oppressed nationalities of Austria who have little love for the Dual Empire, and there would be no great natural obstacle between them and Budapest. The early winter in the Balkans, with the limited means of communications available, would present the most serious difficulty and one which could not be overcome before spring. With the defection of Bulgaria it would be necessary for hard pressed Austria to throw an army across her southern frontier, thus making another serious inroad upon her waning man power. The bulk of her forces is facing the eager Italian army along the Piave and mountain region. Emperor William has already called upon Emperor Charles for help on the Western front, and Austro-Hungarian divisions are fighting beside the Germans against the steadily advancing British, French and Americans. Italy still has large reserves of men and any weakening of the Austrian front to send forces to the other fronts of the empire probably would be the signal for a general attack to recover not only the invaded Italian territory but the lost provinces as well. PREMIER OFFERS ARMISTICE.

LONDON, Sept. 27. Premier Malinoff, of Bulgaria, has made an offer of an armistice to the Allies according to a Berlin message transmitted by the Exchange Telegraph correspondent at Copenhagen. The message states that the Premier's offer was made without the support of other members of the Cabinet or of King Ferdinand. The Berlin message says that Malinoff's offer has created great dissatisfaction in Bulgaria, and that strong military measures have been taken to support the Bulgarian front. According to statements from Sofia by way of Jassy, it is added, a counter movement against the action of the Premier has already been set on foot. This would seem to indicate that a revolution is in progress in Bulgaria. The Berlin message to Copenhagen gives the first indication of any move made by Bulgaria to approach her enemies with conciliatory proposals. The message in its bare outlines would seem to indicate that the Premier had taken matters in his own hands, and attempted to initiate a peace move for Bulgaria independent of the dynasty. A move so made might ordinarily be considered in a broad way to amount to a revolutionary act and possibly points to the execution of a coup d'etat in Sofia. The indications in the news from Bulgaria recently have been that the country was in a somewhat disorganized state with a widespread discontent manifest over the prolongation of the war in the further prosecution of which the Bulgarian people were able to see little advantage to them. There can be no doubt that the successful offensive of the Allies now in progress in Macedonia has accentuated this tendency.

MUST ADMIT THEIR GUILT.

PARIS, Sept. 27. The hope that there will be no question of peace with the Central Powers until they have been brought to admit their guilt was expressed by Nikola Pachitch, the Serbian premier, in a statement given out by him here yesterday. He voiced this hope, after having pointed out that the Allied successes on all the battle fronts had opened up a prospect of the end of a struggle that had been imposed upon the world by the German powers. Premier Pachitch said that he was glad that the great allied powers had proclaimed their sympathy with the liberation of the Czech-Slovaks and the Poles, and the formation by those nationalities of independent states, and he hoped that the Allies also would recognize the rights of liberated Serbia and all her sons (the Jugo Slavs) to be united in independent national existence. A declaration to this effect, the premier urged, would be timely now as it would paralyze all the intrigues inferred by Austria-Hungary against the Serbian national union and at the same time against the general policy of the Allies.

THE NEW ATTACK IN CHAMPAGNE.

PARIS, Sept. 27. The army of General Gouraud has just taken by storm in the sector between the Sulppe and the Argonne, not only his old positions, but all of the German first positions, says an official review of the Franco-American operations issued to-day. A large portion of the old front here had been stabilized since 1915 with the barrier behind which the enemy thought his army was absolutely safe, the statement adds has been shattered and captured. On July 15 General Gouraud's army achieved a magnificent defensive victory. By abandoning a narrow strip of its advanced positions it broke the German drive and made possible all the successes obtained on all fronts since that day. The front of General Gouraud's attack ran from north of Marazee and Vienne Les Chateaux, straddling the Aisne at Meisicourt, bordering the Torb river north of Ville Sur Torbe through the centre of the main De Maisteges, the edge of the Butte Des Mesnil, then north to Lemessell-le-Hurlus, Perthes-l'Est, Hurlus and Souvain, thence along the Roman road to St. Piere Le Grande to the west of Prosenes and through the No Man's Land and Prunay. The famous positions of Mesnil, Souain and the Navarin farm were captured during the early hours of the attack straddling according with the schedule stipulated.

WITHIN THREE MILES OF CAMBRAI.

LONDON, Sept. 27. British troops to-day advanced to a point within three miles of Cambrai. They took between 5,000 and 6,000 prisoners, some German guns including a complete battery were captured by Field Marshal Haig's men.

HARD FIGHTING IN PROGRESS.

LONDON, Sept. 27. Very hard fighting was in progress to-day along the Franco-American front in Champagne and north west of Verdun. The Germans were still holding out at Montfaucou at two o'clock this afternoon, but in all probability that stronghold has since fallen.

WILL CONSULT WITH ALLIES.

PARIS, Sept. 27. It is understood no instructions regarding the Bulgarian application for an armistice will be given the military commanders in Macedonia until there is an opportunity for consultation with France, Great Britain, the United States, Italy and other Allies and that in the meantime the military operations will continue.

AMERICANS GREAT HAUL.

WITH THE AMERICAN FORCES NORTHWEST OF VERDUN, Sept. 27. General Pershing's troops in their drive between the Meuse and the Argonne forest made a great haul of German artillery in the region of Dannevoix. The Americans capture included four big 210 millimetre guns and eight 150 millimetre pieces and 15 trench mortars, 10 field guns and 34 machine guns. West of Dannevoix the Americans captured 277 which are, now being used against the Germans. A large amount of ammunition also has been captured. General Pershing's forces this morning continued their drive against the German positions between the Argonne forest and the river Meuse. The Americans increased their toll of prisoners. They also captured guns and other war material, but these have not yet been enumerated. The prisoners belonged to various units and included a number of officers. Certain divisions opposing the Americans were identified. They include the famous Guards unit which the Americans fought at Belleau Wood last June and another equally famous Saxon division.

BRITISH PROGRESSING.

BRITISH HEADQUARTERS IN FRANCE, Sept. 27.—Field Marshal Haig's forces at dawn this morning delivered an attack over a wide front. A heavy rain falling during the early hours made the work of assembly most difficult, but some fine positions, the rain had ceased and had been replaced by a thick haze which assisted in bewildering the enemy. About nine German divisions are understood to be opposing Haig's men. So far the battle seems to be going well for the British. With the coming of the sun the morning broadened to clear open weather, and the British airmen were able to report the progress of the Canadian troops, who pushed forward on the northern flank of the attack. By 9.30 o'clock this morning the British appeared to have crossed the Canal du Nord defenses on a front of more than three miles and to have advanced to a maximum depth of approximately a mile and a quarter. As early as 8.25 o'clock one or more of the British tanks were reported by an airplane to have been seen near Fiesqueres. Shortly before that the reports were that some of the British were approaching Bourlon spur. The Canadians who drove forward across the Canal du Nord about the Woeuvres were reported at 8.30 o'clock as having been seen about a mile west of Bourlon Wood, which formed the chief obstacle to Cambrai for General Byng in his attack last fall.

BRITISH LINES ADVANCED.

LONDON, Sept. 27. The British lines were advanced slightly north of the Sensee in a local operation during the past night, and there were successful local attacks in Flanders.

PRISONERS AND GUNS CAPTURED.

PARIS, Sept. 26. The Allied troops in Macedonia have captured more than 10,000 prisoners, says a statement from the French war office to-night. More than 200 guns also have been taken. Report at this hour from the battle-front in the Champagne between the Sulppe and the Meuse Rivers indicate that the attack of the French and American forces is progressing under the most favorable conditions. General Gouraud's fourth army in the Champagne resumed its attack this morning from the positions captured from the Germans yesterday. The assault is progressing satisfactorily. The French have attained all objectives. The prisoners captured by the French to-day have not yet been counted.

ASKS FOR ARMISTICE.

LONDON, Sept. 27. The British Government to-day received from an official authoritative source an application from Bulgaria for an armistice.

THINKS HE CAN HOLD OUT.

VLADIVOSTOCK, Sept. 24. (By the A.P.)—If given the support of three divisions of Allied troops, General Gaid, commander of the Czech-Slovak forces said to-day, that he could hold the Bolshevik armies on approximately the present line until the Russians in Siberia can organize an efficient army whose discipline need not be questioned. General Gaid made this statement while talking to correspondents at the Czech-Slovak headquarters.

COULDN'T HIT HIM.

GENEVA, Sept. 26. Emperor William, Field Marshal Duke Albrecht of Wurtemberg and Prince Stephen of Schaumburg Lippe were in Mannheim last week when the British airmen raided the city. The royal party, according to the Democrat of Geneva, was staying in the Royal Palace, and the Emperor and his staff promptly took refuge in the cellar remaining there twenty minutes. The Palace was not hit as it was during a previous raid, but bombs fell in the vicinity.

OFFENSIVE CONTINUES.

PARIS, Sept. 26. The Allied offensive in Macedonia continues successfully, says a French war office statement to-night, and the Allied troops are pushing their way over the mountain ranges.

THE EFFECT OF BULGARIAN PEACE.

PARIS, Sept. 27. Unofficial comment dwells upon the important effect Bulgarian secession from the Central Powers would have in severing the lines of communication between Germany and Austria in the north and Turkey in the south. It would tend to isolate the Turkish Empire and put an end to the German dream of a route from Berlin to Baghdad. It is foreseen for these reasons that the inevitable consequences of Bulgaria abandoning the conflict would be to compel Turkey to take the same course.

ADMITS LOSSES CONSIDERABLE.

LONDON, Sept. 27. The Frankfort Zeitung, in a review of the military situation in Macedonia and Palestine admits that in both these theatres the enemies of the Central Powers succeeded by means of well-planned campaigns, in surprising and inflicting serious damage on the fronts of Germany's allies. Even if we maintain our conviction that the eastern battles do not essentially affect the main strategic decision, nevertheless the purely military effect of the enemy's successful operations is very considerable from the point of view of prisoners and material losses, the newspaper declares.

FRENCH NET 10,000 PRISONERS.

PARIS, Sept. 27. The French troops in the battle line east of Rheims made further advances to-day, and in the two days' battle have taken more than 10,000 prisoners and considerable war material, according to the official communication to-night. The total advance of the French has been about five miles at certain places.

AMERICANS NET 8,000 HUNS.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY NORTHWEST OF VERDUN, Sept. 27.—The number of prisoners thus far captured by the Americans in their offensive is now placed at 8,000, of whom 125 are officers. The captured material includes more than 100 guns, 25 of which are of heavy calibre, and many trench mortars and hundreds of machine guns.

ALLIES USING BIG FORCES.

BERLIN, via London, Sept. 27. Between the roads from Arras and Peronne towards Cambrai, and against the Stiefried front to the west of Le Catelet, there have been begun powerful British and American attacks with large forces.

NEWS OF ARMISTICE OFFICIAL.

LONDON, Sept. 27. The news of the Bulgarian developments including the offer of an armistice the Copenhagen correspondent states was from German official sources.

ALL OBJECTIVES GAINED.

LONDON, Sept. 27. Americans co-operating on the extreme right of the British, this morning captured a series of trenches and fortified farms, forcing the outer defenses of the Hindenburg system southwest of Le Catelet, north of St. Quentin, according to the official report from Field Marshal Haig to-night. The text of the report follows: Portions of our First and Third Armies under the command respectively of General Sir Henry Horne and Sir Julian Byng, attacked this morning before dawn on a wide front in the direction of Cambrai. Notwithstanding the great strength of the enemy's positions, especially in the northern sector of the attack, where the Canal Du Nord and open ground sloping towards the enemy rendered our advance most difficult, all our objectives have been reached.

REFUSED TO SUSPEND OPERATIONS.

PARIS, Sept. 27. The French commander in chief in Macedonia officially reports that the Bulgarians have asked for a meeting to arrange the conditions of an armistice and eventual peace. The French commander replied, refusing to suspend operations, but saying he would receive duly qualified delegates of the Bulgarian Government.

HAVE ADVANCED 55 MILES.

LONDON, Sept. 27. The Serbian official statement announces that Serbian cavalry have reached a point 55 miles as the crow flies, north of the line from which operations started.

PRUSSIAN WAR MINISTER RESIGNS.

LONDON, Sept. 27. Lieut. General Von Stein, the Prussian war minister, is reported to have resigned, according to advices to the Exchange Telegraph Co. from Copenhagen.

GERMAN POSITIONS BRILLIANTLY CARRIED.

PARIS, Sept. 27. Successful developments of the French offensive began yesterday in the Champagne is reported to-day by the War Office. Over the entire field of attack by the French between the river Sulppe and the Argonne forest the formidable German positions to a depth of more than three miles were brilliantly carried.

CAPTURED ISHTIB.

LONDON, Sept. 27. In the successful continuance of their drive northward the Serbians have entered Ishtib and captured other important points says the Serbian official statement of Thursday. A great number of additional Bulgarians and Germans have been captured by the Serbians, who also have taken enormous quantities of war material. The Serbians now are west of the Ishtib-Veles road and have captured the height of Bogoslovica south of the road north of Demirkapu in the direction of the Bulgarian border. The Serbians have captured the ridge of Belikamen. Serbian cavalry has entered Kochana, twenty miles north east of Ishtib and fourteen miles from the Bulgarian border southwest of the important railway head of Kustendil.

7,000 PRISONERS AND NUMBER OF VILLAGES CAPTURED.

PARIS, Sept. 27. The French have captured the Butte Dumesnil, the Butte Du Souait, the Butte Du Tabure, and the villages of Tabure, Ripont, Rouveroy Cernayes, Demois and Servon Mosicourt. More than 7,000 prisoners were taken by the French. The French forces resumed their attack this morning.

Save the Gasolene.

On every letter mailed and received at the Post Offices in this city there is stamped the legend "Food will win the war. Don't waste it." The advice is sound and the method adopted to impress it upon the people, should have the effect of bringing about the needed result. But there are other things, upon the saving of which the winning of the war depends. Up to the present time the most pessimistic can scarcely say that Newfoundland has in any great measure suffered from the war as suffering is known in Europe. True we have had to pay and expect to pay high prices for everything we eat and wear, but we have not been deprived of their well stocked shelves and warehouses will prove that. On the other side of the water there is a curtailment of everything, and sacrifice is consequently much better understood, and economy much more practised than over here. Therefore it is our duty, situated so fortunately as we are, to perform some acts of a sacrificial nature, in order that, in so doing, we may help the good cause which looks so promising at the present moment. One of the things, upon which, next to the saving of food, the success of our arms depends is GASOLENE, which is used by the armies in the field in immense quantities daily. The huge motor trucks which carry the men forth and back, to and from the firing line and the trenches are driven by gasolene. The big guns which deluge the enemy's lines and areas with shell and high explosive are moved from place to place by tractor motors to which gasolene gives the power. The tanks, those wonderful mobile weapons of assault which have done so splendidly during the past two months of Foch's offensive, depend upon gasolene for their motive power. The aerial squadrons would be absolutely helpless and useless without a sufficient supply of gasolene and with no "eyes of the Army" at their command, the generals would not be in a position to ascertain the movements of the enemy and make dispositions to checkmate him. The motor ambulances of the Medical Corps and Red Cross Associations need gasolene to carry them to and fro on their work of relief and mercy, and there are many other departments of the armies in the field, in the work of which gasolene plays an important part. We must win the war. The future safety and well being of civilisation demands it. Never before has man had before him an attainment fraught with such importance. In comparison with it all other problems sink into insignificance, and it must follow that not for a moment should the pursuit of pleasure be permitted to interfere with that which we all desire and for which our men are fighting and dying by thousands. The saving of gasolene has thus become a real issue and one no less important than the saving of food. Are the owners of automobiles in this city going to shirk their duty in the premises, or are they going to be as patriotic in economizing gasolene as they have been in their economizing of food. If the motorists of this city will only give up the Sunday use of their cars it will help, because any individual who saves a little of this fluid is doing his bit for his country and the world, and it is a much easier bit than facing the brutal Hun in the trenches, or nursing the wounded in hospitals bombed by a savage and implacable foe. No motorist would like to be told that through his extravagant use of gasolene the final victory was lost, and yet the want of one barrel of oil by gun, tank or aeroplane may give the enemy a decision. Not one motor owner can afford to say "the little I use can't make any difference." Everyone could use the same argument and continue using in the aggregate many hundreds of gallons. The United States and Canada have inaugurated "gasless" Sundays. Will not Newfoundland follow the example set? Can we do less than our share? Sacrifice the Sunday joy rides, the runs in the country, the drives around the Bay, the going to church in autos, and place them all upon the altar of the common good. Such a sacrifice will be a worthy one, and one worthy of those who make it. Opportunity is now knocking at our door but it is double knocking at the door of the man who has won enough of this world's wealth to enjoy the possession of an auto car, and it says to him "if you will not use gasolene for pleasure riding on Sundays, there will be enough conserved to make sure of the Army being fully supplied. Your boy or your neighbor's boy may go hungry or may be killed for lack of the extra motive power even one gallon of gasolene could provide. Your boy or somebody else's boy is doing a lot for you. Now you have a chance to do something for him. It is but a little thing for you; it may mean a big thing to him. Your saved gallon of gasolene and the gallons of your fellow car owners will release enough for the Army service, and will ensure that he be kept fed and safe. Would the Sunday ride repay you if the worst happened him for want of gasolene?" Think it over, motorists and drivers of all pleasure vehicles dependent upon gasolene. Help save the boys over there by saving gasolene. Try staying at home on Sundays and make Sunday, October the 8th, the day to begin helping win the war by saving gasolene.

Drunk Causes Trouble.

While on his way up New Gower St. last evening, a man who was partially drunk, stumbled against a box on the sidewalk, and picking it up, took it home. Meanwhile the man who owned the box, followed him, and entering his house demanded his property. This the drunk refused, and the owner reported to the police station and got two policemen who, on going to the drunk's house, took the box which contained clothing and returned it to the owner.

About 11.30 last night, when coming down a short road extending from the South Side road to Sime's bridge, an automobile crashed down the bank into the fence, which it broke down, the posts cracking off close to the ground. Fortunately the driver and his friends got the car on the road again, no damage beyond a twisted mud guard having been done.

Porter on Train

RENDERED FIRST AID.
The passengers who were on the wrecked train on Tuesday last and who have since returned to the city speak very highly of the splendid first aid rendered by Mr. Samuel Worthing, porter on the train. Mr. Worthing, who studied as a druggist and holds a first aid certificate, always makes it a rule to carry with him when travelling a good supply of bandages, etc. Immediately after the train was wrecked Mr. Worthing started to work being assisted by a nurse who was travelling on the train, and by the time the relief train with Doctor Fisher and nurses arrived he had practically attended to all the injured passengers. Mr. Worthing, who belongs to New Jersey, U.S.A., leaves shortly to report for duty in the American Army, as he has a longing to go "over there."

IDA J. MURPHY—(FLYNN).

"But there is a loss—and Death and the grave have their sting and victory and a dear loved one passes away for ever."

To her the subject of this poor obituary offering, the writer places these words immortal—

"Death loves a shining mark," and Death, too, loves the beautiful, and the fair, and the good.

For the last several months, Ida Murphy, the dear departed wife of Mr. Edward Flynn, of this city, had been confined to her room by the dread scourge of consumption, but though knowing that the end was imminent, a splendid resignation, and calm, marked the tardy interim until death came to the sufferer on Thursday last.

They are innumerable, those who knew and loved Mrs. Flynn, and her's was a character worthy indeed of every bit of that general estimation in which she was held.

Her personality was "beautiful," marked by the traits of "retirement" and yet social dignity.

IDA J. MURPHY.—(FLYNN.)

"But there is a loss—sad Death and the grave have their sting and victory, and a dear loved one passes away for ever."

To her the subject of this poor obituary offering, the writer places these words immortal—

"Death leaves a shining mark" and Death, too, loves the beautiful, and the fair, and the good.

For the last several months, Ida Murphy, the dear departed wife of Mr. Edward Flynn, of this city, had been confined to her room by the dread scourge of consumption, but though knowing that the end was imminent, a splendid resignation, and calm, marked the tardy interim until death came to the sufferer on Thursday last.

They are innumerable, those who knew and loved Mrs. Flynn, and her's was a character worthy indeed of every bit of that general estimation in which she was held.

Her personality was "beautiful," marked by the traits of "retirement" and yet social dignity.

In the various admired points of the dear departed, was a total quintessence of all womanly loveliness, for there, fully developed, were kindness, nobility, loyalty and that honest devotion of Christianity—"truth to home and to God," and affection and trust to her heart's friends.

During the long, weary months of suffering (for youth incorporated hopelessly—must suffer) the poor girl uttered nothing against a harsh fate, and her husband and friends who were continually in attendance, marvel much at the almost Divine submission and resignation that was shown through it all.

The writer had the pleasure of knowing the deceased, and her death though not unexpected, was a sad item of news to hear, for though it is the lot of all of us to lose a friend, the passing of one whom we have admired for qualities both estimable and loving, makes a void that others may not fill or know the place of.

Poor Ida was so young too, only 21 years of age, but commencing a life that promised to be so full of happiness and of peace—when the end came.

To her husband Mr. Edward Flynn, (a life-long friend of mine), I wish to offer sincere condolence on this severe loss that has come into his life, and there are hundreds of friends who knowing him and his dear departed wife, will, too, echo my genuine wish that "God will be good to him, and that Time will heal the wound of sorrow now so manifest." May the soul of poor Ida Murphy, too, find everlasting peace in God's happy care.—P.J.K.

N. I. W. A.

Last evening's meeting of the N. I. W. A. with President Bennett in the chair, was fairly well attended, and a number of communications were received. Chief of these was a letter requesting information as to the formation of a telegraphers' branch of the association. Matter giving the desired information will be forwarded. A letter from Mr. F. Morison, Secretary of the American Federation of Labor was also read. The letter outlined the measures being taken by the labouring men of America in connection with Pres. Wilson's stand on peace, and to meet conditions after the war. The late Chairman of the Co-operative Committee, Mr. E. J. Whitty, reported that he had been appointed General Manager of the new store, to be opened on October 12, in the premises formerly used by McPherson's Bakery, corner of General Street. Several members who had been alluded to in the editorial of the last issue of the Industrial Worker, took occasion to deny the charges made therein. A report of the matter of putting the Union Label on the Association's paper was submitted. Some twenty-five new numbers were admitted. It was decided to pay the usual mortality amount due the family of the late Jos. Hanlon.

Bombing Berlin.

There is a growing feeling in England that the bombing of Berlin is scheduled for this month of September. Throughout air circles there is the belief that aerial warfare during the fall will be very strenuous, and that while Germany will make many attacks on London, Britain has up her aeronautic sleeves a scheme which will make Potsdam sit up and take very acute notice.—Moose Jaw News.

What About These Coal Shares?

The opportunity is a good one. $25,000.00 worth of stock has been placed on the market, and to the purchaser of each one of these shares three extra shares are given free of cost. This makes the purchaser of each one dollar share the owner of four fully paid up shares in the company. The company also guarantees that none of the above shares will be subject to any further call. The opportunity to invest is open to everybody. Get busy before it is too late; no bonus shares will be given after the present allotment is disposed of. You can't lose. Invest to-day. For every single dollar you invest in this proposition you get four dollars shares in return. THE ST. GEORGE'S COAL FIELDS, LTD., Cabot Bldgs., 262 Water St. sept17,18

AMERICANS GAINED ALL OBJECTIVES.

PARIS, Sept. 27. American troops in their attack northwest of Verdun appear to have attained all and more than they attempted. The Americans were confronted by the German fifth army. This force has been diluted which explains the relatively small number of prisoners taken. The American advance over most difficult ground amidst woods is looked upon here as a feat of arms.

Money Making Hints For Merchants.

HOW MANY DOLLARS ARE THERE IN AN HOUR? You don't want to waste time doing work that a machine will do for you. A complete new Model NATIONAL Cash Register will give you more time to make money.

It will keep your accounts straight to the cent. You can tell it at any minute the number and amount of sales for the day, who made them, whether goods were sold for cash or charged. It will enable you to KNOW, you will no longer have to GUESS.

NO MORE BOOK-KEEPING! Handing accounts in the old-fashioned way means either overtime work for the merchant or employing a bookkeeper. It either adds to the merchant's troubles and labour, or adds to his overhead expense.

The new National Credit Account File takes care of all detail work AT ONE WRITING. No day-books, no ledger, no monthly statement. It protects your charge records against mistakes and losses, and will SAVE YOU MONEY.

DO YOU USE COUNTER CHECK BOOKS? Let us quote you on your next order. We specialize in this work and can supply you with a superior book with the new carbonized back—does not soil fingers—no carbon sheet. Write for sample and prices.

We carry National Cash Registers in stock for immediate sale, freight and duty paid, on easy monthly payments without interest, or allow a liberal discount for cash. Call or write to-day for full particulars.

The Women's Christian Temperance Union held their first meeting for the season on Thursday afternoon past. Owing to unforeseen circumstances, and after a notice of intended meeting had appeared in the press, it was found that the Congregational Church class room would not be available. However, Mrs. Diamond having placed her rooms at the Union's disposal, a very good gathering of active members was the result. President Mrs. Hunter was in the chair. The meeting opened with the singing of hymns. "All Hail the Power of Jesus' Name," Evangelist Superintendent Mrs. Martin reading a Scripture passage and Mrs. Diamond suggesting a prayer. Many reports were presented and preparations made for the work in store. The monthly services at the Pentecost Club were carried on regularly throughout the summer, being both interesting and varied. At last Sunday's service Rev. Mr. Atkinson, president, gave a very touching address, Miss Martin contributing a solo with much acceptance. Miss Jones, a lady visitor, kindly presided at the organ. It has no doubt been freely observed by a reading public, the great amount of sympathy, especially among girls, who exist in the city at the present time, and the frequent cases being dealt with in court, cause one to ask how anybody care about them. Yes, W. C. T. U. knows and cares, and is doing, and a goodness which nobody

How Glorious Needs of Valor.

LONDON, Sept. 27. (By Reuter's Ottawa Agency.)—The London Gazette announces the award of nine new Victoria Crosses to seven Canadians, one Australian and one New Zealander. Four of the recipients are dead. The names and achievements of the Canadian recipients follow:—First. James Edward Tait, R.C., late of a Manitoba Regiment, for conspicuous bravery and initiative in attack and advance. Having been checked by intense machine gun fire, Tait rallied his company and led it forward with consummate skill and dashed under a hail of bullets. A concealed machine gun, however, continued to cause many casualties. Taking a rifle and bayonet, Tait dashed forward alone and killed the enemy gunner. Inspired by his example, his men rushed the position and captured twelve machine guns and twenty prisoners. His valorous action cleared the way for his battalion to advance. Later when the enemy counter attacked, under an intense bombardment, this gallant officer displayed outstanding courage and leadership, and though mortally wounded by shell fire continued to direct and aid his men until death overtook him. Lieut. John Brillant, M.C., late of a Quebec Regiment, for conspicuous bravery and outstanding devotion to duty, when in charge of his company, which he led in an attack during two days with absolute fearlessness and extraordinary ability and initiative, the extent of the advance being twelve miles on the first day of the operation. Shortly after the attack had begun the left flank of his company was held up by an enemy machine gun. Brillant rushed and captured the machine gun, killing the two of the crew. He was wounded whilst doing this but refused to leave his command. Later on in the same way his company was held up by heavy machine gun fire and subsequently this gallant officer detected a field gun firing over open sights. He immediately ordered and led a rushing party towards the gun, but after progressing about 600 yards he was mortally wounded. Nevertheless he continued and advanced about 200 yards more before he fell unconscious from exhaustion and loss of blood. Brilliant's wonderful example throughout the day inspired the men with enthusiasm and dash, and contributed largely to the success of the operation. Sergt. Raphael Lewis Zengels, M.M., of a Saskatchewan Regiment, for most conspicuous bravery and devotion to duty when protecting his battalion's right flank he was leading his platoon gallantly to the attack, when he realized a gap had occurred on his flank, and that an enemy machine gun was firing at close quarters into the advancing line, grasping the situation he rushed forward, some 200 yards ahead of his platoon, and tackled the machine gun emplacement, killing the officer and operator of the gun, and dispersing the crew by this prompt action he undoubtedly saved the lives of many of his comrades. Later when the battalion was held up by heavy machine gun fire, he displayed most conspicuous skill and directed his fire with destructive results. Shortly afterwards he was rendered unconscious for a moment by an enemy shell, but on recovering consciousness immediately commenced to direct a harassing fire on the enemy. Zengels' gallant and heroic actions were excellent. His utter disregard of personal safety and confidence in himself inspired all ranks, and he greatly assisted in bringing the attack to a successful end. Corporal Herman Jones Good, of a Quebec Regiment, for the most conspicuous bravery and leadership in attack, directing his companions which were held up by a heavy fire from machine guns, which seriously delayed the advance. Realizing the gravity of the situation, Good dashed forward alone, killing several of the garrison and capturing the remainder. Later, Good while alone, encountered a battery of five point nine's which were in action, collecting three men of his section, he charged the battery under point blank fire and captured the entire crews of three guns, and despite his wounds this gallant non-commissioned officer continued with his platoon to the final objective, and only left the line when it had been made secure, and he had been ordered to do so. Pte. Alexander Brereton, of a Manitoba Regiment, for the most conspicuous bravery during an attack when a line of hostile machine guns opened fire suddenly on his platoon, which was in a exposed position with no cover available; this private appreciated his critical situation, and realized that unless something was done at once his platoon would be annihilated. On his own initiative, without a moment's delay and alone, he sprang forward, reached one hostile machine gun, shot the operator and bayoneted another who attempted to take his place, nine others then surrendered to him. His actions was a splendid example of resourcefulness and bravery, and not only undoubtedly saved the lives of many comrades, but also inspired his platoon to charge and capture the five remaining positions.

BRITISH CROSS HINDENBURG LINE.
BRITISH HEADQUARTERS IN FRANCE, Sept. 27. (Via Reuter's Ottawa Agency.)—The enemy resistance is strong in some places, particularly east of Havrincourt, where there appears to be a considerable concentration of Germans. While the enemy seems to have withdrawn his guns in some places, he is firing with great intensity in both the Havrincourt area, and from behind Bourlon Wood. Some of the nine enemy divisions, that apparently are opposing the British, are made up of composite elements, but several of them are comparatively fresh in the line, and are undoubtedly large forces in close reserves. The British are also in a big stretch of the Hindenburg support line, and are already across the line in places. It is too early as yet, to talk of the probable result of the war, but several reports already have come back, announcing considerable batches, and there seems reason to anticipate a satisfactory total.

THOMAS CONDEMSN STRIKERS.

LONDON, To-day. J. H. Thomas, M.P., who yesterday tendered his resignation as a member of the National Executive of the National Union of Railway men, on account of differences with it over the railway strike, stated today that he made his decision because it was imperative to a believer in constitutional government in trade unionism. The people responsible for the recent and dangerous strike, he said, must be fought, otherwise the country would soon be in a state like Russia. His resignation meant a challenge to such methods.

TREW OUT HOSTILE RESOLUTION.

LONDON, To-day. The National Liberal Federation, which has just opened a convention in Manchester, adopted a resolution opposing the proposition of the war until a just and lasting peace was assured, and urging the establishment of a League of Nations. The motion of the Liberal party favors the exploitation of the possibilities of peace, and should sympathetically consider any suggestions offered, by the enemy desisted by an overwhelming majority, and its mover was constantly interrupted. The National Liberal Federation also unanimously passed a resolution supporting such constitutional reforms in India, as would secure the gradual development of self-governing communities, with view to the progressive realization of responsible government in India, as an integral part of the British Empire. It also supported measures to enable Dominions and India to exercise their share in the control of the foreign policy of the Empire, and other matters of common concern to the whole British Commonwealth. Ex-Premier Asquith expressed strong disapproval of the Liberal party's action, but offered as a real clean peace effort. He opined the time had come when the best heads among the Allies, who could be spared from combatant and administration work, might assemble in conference to attack the practical sides of the problem of a League of Nations.

INTERMENT MUST CONTINUE.

LONDON, To-day. A despatch from Melbourne, Australia, says that the result of the judicial enquiry in the cases of seven Irishmen, arrested and interned on June 19th last, suspected of treason against the British Government, has decided that the interment must continue.

WILL NOT RETURN COLONIES.

LONDON, To-day. Speaking at a dinner to the Dominion Journalists, Rt. Hon. Walter Long, Colonial Secretary, said we did not enter the war for any other reason but I am here to-night to say that if her colonies are returned to Germany, all the sacrifices of our heroes will have been in vain. Mr. Long continued, that the Germans would regard their late Pacific Islands and bases for airplanes, submarines and wireless plants. We want, he stated, after the war to make Germany understand that she must be peacefully progressive, before she can have any of her possessions back. Mr. Long also deprecated returning to a non-progressive Germany, her African colonies, from which as well as those in the Pacific she would be able to threaten the Empire trade routes. If Recommended For M. M.

By the last English mail Mr. Geo. B. Turner, Deputy Minister of Agriculture and Mines, received an interesting letter from his son, Pte. Geo. Turner, of the Signal Section, 44th Canadian Battalion, conveying the pleasing intelligence that he was recommended for the Military Medal. Signaller Turner, who is one of four brothers to be on active service, has since the past two years been in the thick of the fight only having ten days' furlough in that time. He was with the Canadians at Vimy Ridge, Messines, Passendale and the last big drive. Speaking of the recent fighting he says, "I would not have missed it for anything, as it was sure some sight to see, and a thing a fellow may never have a chance of witnessing again for quite a while." He is the second son of the family to win distinction on the battlefield, his brother, Capt. Jack Turner, having been awarded the M. C.

The Street Confusion.

We ask those of our readers who will be on Water Street to-night to take notice of the confusion that exists there when the street is crowded with people, and we also ask them to endeavour to imagine what would be the good result were a proper system enforced. All that is needed is for the Inspector General to give instructions to the policemen to direct people to keep either to the right or left of the sidewalk and then all the confusion will be eliminated and orderliness reign.

Forty Years in the Public Service—The Evening Telegram

"An Autumn chill is in the air,
The Winter cold will soon be here,
And whilst the burning question's Coal,
Still must you have warm Underwear."

Men's Winter

Underwear

is a specialty of ours and we advertise it a lot, as there is always, somehow or other, a lot of winter around Newfoundland. And sometimes people say, "Are you agents for Stanfield Underwear?" And we say, "We are sorry we aren't." We suppose the reason we are asked this is because we are always advertising that

Stanfield's Underwear

Real Good Underwear.

Perhaps we stock more Stanfield's Underwear than any other Underwear, but we also carry a large stock of Men's New Knit Underwear.

The "New Knit" is made by St. John's labor, and many lines are good value, and that is what we are always endeavouring to get for our customers as well as rendering them the best service possible in those strenuous times.

Our Prices

for these two makes of

Underwear in Winter Weights are as

Low as Obtainable Anywhere,

Perhaps even lower, and we carry a full range of the various qualities and sizes, so that you can always be certain of our being able to take care of your requirements. If you require

Boys' Winter Wool Underwear

we stock it in

Stanfield Makes,

and we have also CHILDREN'S STANFIELD COMBINATION SUITS and SLEEPERS in stock at the moment.
