

It's Rich, Pure Milk WITH SUGAR

Buy six or a dozen tins at a time. Purity keeps indefinitely, and with plenty on hand you will not risk running short. Wherever both milk and sugar are required—in cooking, for coffee or cocoa—Purity is ideal. Its high quality never varies.

CHAPTER XXX.

"Two shawls, a waterproof, goloshes, and an umbrella," observed Miss Lawson, quietly. Inwardly she felt a thrill of satisfaction; Margery seemed brighter, more natural, more her old self to-day.

"Then good-by, dear," Margery put her lips to the elder woman's cheek. "Give my love to Mrs. Fothergill and the doctor."

Miss Lawson nodded and walked away.

"I am an old fool," she declared, savagely, to herself, as she felt a ear roll down her cheek, "and I only hope I shall keep out of the way for some good!"

Left alone, Margery stood for a while at the window, gazing at the rough, angry sea; then she asked Pauline for her cloak and hat.

"Will Miladi that I go with her?" asked the maid, in her broken English.

Margery shook her head.

"I shall not go far; and this wind does you no good, Pauline."

"Miladi is so kind if she will permit, I think that hat will not be wise. See this capuchon—so warm! It will be best."

Margery agreed, and tied the comfortable hood round her delicate, lovely face, looking sweetly fair with her halo of red-gold curls and her deep, lustrous blue eyes. She turned toward the shore; the roaring and dashing of the sea exhilarated her; the strong, soft wind seemed to blow away the clouds of doubt and pain that hung over her. Her sorrow was lost in the pleasurable excitement that thrilled her as she stood, wind-blown and rain-drenched, and watched the great waves come rolling in, with their thunderous voices and mountain-ains of spray. The tempest seemed to suit her humor; she revelled in the freedom and wildness of the elements as in the birth of a new life—a life with hope springing glorious within.

She moved on as quickly as the wind would allow, stopping every now and then to gather her cloak closer around her. The gale had blown her curls in rough fashion all over her head; there was a light in her eyes, a glow of color on her fair cheeks; for the moment she looked the Margery of old, not the sad girl-widow of present days.

Few of the fisher-folk were about; but in the distance she could see some children running to and fro on the shore, and the wind now and then wafted their voices to her ears. Tired at last, her breath almost spent, she turned inland in a cross direction, determining to rest at one of the cottages before going home. The wind blew her along at times, almost taking her off her feet; and she had to drop upon the wet beach more than once to gather strength. At last she sighted the cottages, and struggled to the first one. The women knew her well; she was a great favorite, and they were never tired of dwelling on her youth, beauty, and history, and goodness and generosity.

She knocked at the rough door, and it was opened immediately.

"May I come in and rest, Mrs. David?" she asked, leaning back against the doorpost, almost breathless.

"Lor' bless me, my lady, in course! Come in at once!" exclaimed the box-oman fisherman. "It is a sight too wild for you to be out. It is rough here, too, my lady. The chair is hard, but—"

"It is most acceptable," sighed Margery, sinking, with a sigh of fatigue, into the great wooden chair. "I have been walking along the shore. How rough the sea is to-day! And how have you been, Mrs. David? You look sad—are you in trouble? Oh—" catching sight of a small form cowering with blankets lying in a warm corner by the fire—"your child is ill?"

Mrs. David put her apron to her eyes.

"He is better now, my lady," she replied, with a sob in her voice; "but he was all but gone this morning. Oh, dear me, it fair broke my heart to see him—him, my only one, my lady!"

"What happened?" asked Margery, quickly, her heart full of sympathy.

She knew the child well—a beautiful, rosy-cheeked boy, the very light and joy of his parents' life. "Is he very ill?"

"He went out the morning, your ladyship. My mind misgave me as I saw him go; but he loves the sea. My man is away over to the town to-day; and Jim he begged to go out and watch the waves; and he went too near, my lady, and got drawn in by the tide, and would have been washed away if a strange gentleman—Heaven bless him!—hadn't tore off his coat and plunged in. I thought my Jim was dead when I see him carried in white and all dripping; but the gentleman he rubbed him, and rolled him in blankets. And now he's sleeping like a lamb, you see, my lady. But, ah, I nearly died!"

"It was dreadful!" said Margery, gently, rising and putting her soft, white hand on the rough, tanned arm of the mother. "But don't cry, Mrs. David. Jim is all right now, poor little fellow. You are nervous and upset. Can you send up to my house this evening? I will have some nice things put together for him that will soon make him well."

"Heaven bless you for your goodness, my lady!" returned Mrs. David. "I ain't one to give way to tears often; but you can understand—"

"Yes, I understand," whispered Margery, standing and looking down at the sleeping child, while Mrs. David went on with her account of the accident.

"It were just the merest chance the gentleman were on the spot," she said. "He'd come from the town, and was walking to Wavemouth, along the shore, when he saw little Jim washed off his feet, and he was in the water in an instant!"

"He was brave!" Margery interjected, quietly.

"Ay, that he was; and it'll never be forgotten by us, though we live to hundreds! But won't you sit down, my lady? I expect the gentleman here every minute to inquire after Jim."

LORD MORDEN'S DAUGHTER

— OR —

THE TRAGEDY OF THE CEDARS.

CHAPTER I.

"Help yourself, if you want anything," he said, shortly, and walked out of the room.

Locksley needed no second invitation, but hastily swallowed a draught of rich, warm cognac, for he was literally shivering in his wet clothes.

Then he drew his chair near to the fire, and waited, regretfully, for the old seaman's return, and wondered vaguely why he could not be permitted to remain in the cottage until morning.

At last his head nodded forward, and he passed into dreamland. A smile fitted over his face, and he sighed:

"Dora, Dora! how beautiful you are!"

CHAPTER II.

Edmund Locksley awoke with a strange confusion of sounds in his ears, followed by the shriek of a woman and the rumbling of distant thunder. He rubbed his eyes and believed that he was still dreaming, until he heard a horse's shrill neigh of terror, as the blackness without was made lurid with lightning flashes.

At the same moment the door was thrown open, and the old seaman's granddaughter burst into the room crying:

"Oh, sir, my grandfather is hurt! The pony has thrown him out of the carriage, and we cannot find our man anywhere."

Locksley sprang to his feet and followed Dora outside. The rain was falling heavily again, and a flash of lightning revealed the figure of a tall, hard featured woman of middle age, endeavoring to soothe a rearing pony, which now and again indulged in frantic efforts to free itself from an overturned carriage. A few yards away was the unconscious figure of the master of the house.

"This is all your work," cried the woman, fixing her angry eyes upon Locksley. "Help Miss Dora to carry Captain Deene to a sofa, and then assist me to put this harness to rights. I must drive into Deal for a doctor.

Sure the master must have forgotten that Reuben is away for the day."

Locksley made no reply, but in a moment had straightened out the form of the injured man. Then he pressed one hand to his heart and smiled reassuringly into the face of the girl, who was watching every movement in an agony of suspense.

"There is not much the matter, Miss—Miss Deene," he said. "Lead the way, please, to your grandfather's room."

As she half-hesitated and glanced questioningly toward the housekeeper, Locksley added:

"You need not fear to trust me; I am a surgeon."

A fluttering little sigh of relief escaped the girl's half-parted lips, and she flitted away, the young man following with his unconscious burden.

When he had put the old seaman to bed, he made a rapid examination of his injuries, and was shocked to find that there was a broken leg and a scrap wound sufficient to cause concussion of the brain.

"Miss Deene," he said, at length, "your grandfather is hurt, and I can do nothing without my instruments. Some one must drive me to Deal, where I can obtain all that is necessary. In the meantime the old gentleman is neither in danger nor pain. I bitterly regret following him to the house," he added. "And yet, what was I to do? Why should he seek to send me away as though I were a dog?"

At that moment the housekeeper came in, and burst into a torrent of fearful invective when she saw the motionless form and deathly pallor of her master's face.

"He said that you would bring a curse, and he was right, my poor, dear master!" she cried. "Now you will please go, for I must drive to Deal for a doctor. Oh, Miss Dora, this is a cruel night's work. Your grandfather is dying! Send the man away, so that I can go, and lock the door after me. I will not be long, dear. I will not be long."

"My good woman," interrupted Locksley, sternly, "at present Captain Deene is in my care, and is in no immediate danger. I have explained to your mistress that I must provide myself with certain necessary instruments and medicine at once, also I am a surgeon, with a diploma from Guy's. Under the circumstances I refuse to relinquish my charge to any local bungler. You must drive me to the nearest town, and that without delay."

His tones were authoritative—nay, they were commanding, and when Miss Dora added: "Esther, you will do as the gentleman desires," the housekeeper felt half ashamed of her previous conduct, though she eyed the stranger with no friendly glances.

In five minutes Esther was ready, and Locksley took a seat beside her in the carriage.

Fortunately the vehicle had suffered no damage by being upset, and now that the lightning was at an end, the pony looked very subdued and dejected.

Wedding Bells

FIFIELD-GUY.

At Brooklyn, N.Y., on Dec. 13, 1924, a very pretty wedding ceremony was solemnized in 8th St., 6th Avenue Methodist Church.

The contrasting parties were Adolphus, second son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Fifield, English Hr. T. B. and Minetta, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Guy, of Twillingate. The bride was neatly dressed in white georgette and wore a long bridal veil and carried a handsome bouquet of lilies of the valley and maiden hair fern.

The matron of honor was Mrs. Samuel Faitham, sister of the bride, who wore a peach color canton crepe dress with hat to match, and carried a bouquet of beautiful flowers. Mrs. Bennett Guy acted as lady in waiting. The bride was given away by her brother, Mr. Bennett Guy. The groom was attended by his cousin, Mr. Arthur Fifield. After the ceremony at the church had been concluded, the bridal party and invited guests went to the home of the bride's brother, where an elaborate reception was given. The newly married couple were recipients of many valuable gifts which testified to the esteem with which both were regarded.

In still higher regions the temperature of air increases again, the temperature at 36,000 meters height having been found to be 55 degrees below zero. Balloons of two to three meters diameter carried the recorders up the height of 32,000 meters, more than had ever been obtained before.

Exploration of the upper air made in Java, where the meteorologic conditions are very favorable for this purpose, were described recently in a lecture by the distinguished Dutch Professor van Barlemon, made before the "Gesellschaft für Erdkunde" at Berlin. Recording balloons were employed and in the clear air the bursting of these balloons could be observed through the telescope at heights of 22,000 meters, whereas the "recording" instruments came down unharmed attached to the parachute. The temperature of air sank to 55 degrees below zero, Centigrade

VANCOUVER HOTELS AND BEER.
VANCOUVER, March 22. There were scenes of bustle in the 17 hotels which began the sale of beer here on Saturday. The bustle was incident upon the necessity of getting both licenses and beer so that portions could be opened at the scheduled time, 10 o'clock.

RUM RUNNER CAPTURED.
NEW LONDON, March 22. Word was received here by radio late yesterday that the Canadian esch-Fannie Powell, carrying sixty cases of alleged liquor, had been captured by the coastguard destroyer Junett.
It was reported the Fannie Powell was loading alleged liquor from a ship in rum row.

IS KILLED WHEN TRAINS COLLIDE.
NEW ORLEANS, La., March 22. Thirteen persons were killed in a wreck early to-day when two fast mail trains of the Southern Pacific Railroad collided during a fog at Ricochoe, La., between Franklin and Patterson. Four of the dead were white men, the others negroes. Five were seriously injured.

ONTARIO HAS ANOTHER CIVIL SERVICE SCANDAL.
TORONTO, March 21. The Toronto Globe publishes the following on its front page this morning: "Information received at Queen's Park yesterday, would indicate that the Province is on the eve of disclosure of a Civil Service scandal with ramifications hitherto unthought of.
In addition to the Provincial Secretary's Department in which arrests were made this week, audits in the Provincial Architectural Department have resulted in two additional suspensions.

FIVE DEATHS IN FIRE.
NEW YORK, March 22. Five persons, including two women and two children, lost their lives early to-day in a fire that destroyed an East 47th St. tenement house, occupied by 11 families. Fire officials said the blaze was started by a pyromaniac who set fire to a baby carriage in the ground hallway. Four persons were injured in the fire.

BIG LIQUOR CARGO SEIZED.
NEW YORK, March 22. The steamship Robert C. Clowry, with a cargo of liquor valued at $150, 000, and a crew of 16 men, was seized
Saturday night in Ambrose Channel by coastguards, it was learned to-day, when the vessel was brought to the battery. The prisoners, including Captain Daniel O'Connor, of New York, were locked up in the police station.

THE NEW RACER.
HALIFAX, N.S., March 21. Official announcement was made today that the "Haligonian," the new schoon, designed to prosecute the bank fisheries for the Chebucto Fishing Co., Ltd., of Halifax, and incidentally as a possible representative of Canada in the international schooner races to be sailed off Gloucester next fall, will be launched from the yards of the Shel-bourne Shipbuilding Company, Shel-bourne, N.S., next Wednesday.

"Sanitas"
In pre-war days "Sanitas Disinfectant" was well and favourably known in Newfoundland and enjoyed ready sale amongst well informed people.
It is again for sale at your Drugists.
Sanitas is unique amongst disinfectants, because whilst being good for all the usual purposes of a disinfectant, it is recommended for use as a gargle, as a mouth and tooth wash and for offensive breath.
"Sanitas" is positively non-poisonous; for this reason alone, many people prefer it for household use, particularly where there are children or aged persons. Sanitas is a safe disinfectant.
The odour of Sanitas is pleasantly fragrant. Sanitas may be used without announcing the fact that there's sickness in your home. Sanitas is made by The "Sanitas" Co., of London. Disinfectant Manufacturers to His Majesty the King.
A bottle of "Sanitas" costs 35 cents.
"Sanitas" is indispensable where personal cleanliness is desired.—Jan5,m.1f

World's Largest Observatory
TO COST $400,000 AND TO HAVE WORLD'S LARGEST TELESCOPE.

GENEVA.—The construction of what is claimed will be the world's largest observatory has been started on the crest of Mount Saleve, near Geneva.
The building, which will be 4,000 feet above sea-level, will contain a meteorological observatory, a seismological (earthquake recording observatory), and a research laboratory. A powerful wireless station, permitting communication with practically all parts of the world, will also be constructed.
One of the telescopes will have a lens larger than that of the Mount Wilson (California) reflector telescope, which is 100in. in diameter and is the largest telescope to-day. This instrument, it is stated, will render possible the computation of the size of certain remote stars.
It is estimated that the observatory which will take four years to build, will cost $400,000.

A slim gown of white satin is raised to the unusual by use of strands of crystal and green pearl beads on the skirt and at the neckline.

With the Sealers

ALL STEAMERS ON NORTHERN FRONT NOW WORKING SEALS. The seeling news received from the fleet on the Northern Front over the week-end is very cheering indeed, and the ice has struck together for another few days, all the ships will undoubtedly have having trips of fat, if not full loads.

Oil Burning Vessels

In an article which appeared in this column some time ago reference was made to the rapidity with which oil burning ships were replacing vessels propelled by steam, and it was pointed out that before long it would be necessary to take precautions in the ports of Newfoundland to guard against contamination of our waters by the accumulation on the surface of oil which escapes.

At the outbreak of the war the number of Diesel propelled sea going ships was 297. By the end of 1924 that number had increased to 1950. Lloyd's Register shows that the tonnage of motor ships of over 100 gross tons had increased from 750,000 gross tons in 1919 to nearly 2,000,000 five years later.

That contamination of the waters occurs by this means and that marine life is liable to be injuriously affected by a sum of oil on the surface are shown by a scientific correspondent writing in a recent issue of the Manchester Guardian.

"In the last few weeks public attention has again been drawn to the contamination of the surface of the sea by films of oil, which not only endanger the life of sea-fowl, fish, and the smaller sea animals on which the latter feed, but have even become a source of fire risk owing to the absorption of the oil by the wooden substructures of the vessels.

"This spreading is not primarily due to the force of gravity, since it occurs also on solid surfaces which are not horizontal, but is caused by chemical forces of attraction between the ultimate particles, or 'molecules,' of the oil and those of the substance on which it rests. These forces strive to bring every molecule of oil into intimate contact with the water below, so that as a rule oil will spread till it forms a layer, only one molecule thick. Such a film will be only about a ten-thousandth of an inch in depth, and a drop of oil no bigger than a pin's head will cover three or four square yards.

"The Veteran"

The March copy of "The Veteran", which has just been issued, apart from interesting features, is deserving of a place in every home and in every literary circle, because of the splendid full page illustrations of the War Memorial from different viewpoints, the portrait of Field Marshal Earl Haig, and the numerous smaller pictures, which record incidents connected with last summer's historic celebrations. It is replete with stories by local and other writers, and articles covering the activities of the Great War Veterans' Association. The management is to be heartily congratulated on the whole make up of the Magazine, which will undoubtedly be in demand by the reading public.

Supreme Court

In the Estate of William Brall, Deceased. This is an application on the part of Olive Christian, Gladys O'Leary and J. Fergus Donnelly for leave to appeal from the judgment of the Court on March 5th, where the estate of William Brall, deceased, was administered. Mr. J. G. Higgins is heard against the application. Leave is granted to the appellants on the usual conditions. W. E. Wood for the administrator, J. A. W. W. McNeilly for Olive Christian and Gladys O'Leary, Brian Dunfield for J. F. Donnelly, J. G. Higgins for Margaret Brall.

Radiology

(By Dr. Ham.) Keep the electrolyte in your storage battery just above the level of the plates. Water should be used to make up for loss of evaporation. The proper time to add water is just before the cell is fully charged. If water is put in the battery while it is discharged it is likely to run out of the vents when the battery reaches full charge. The inauguration exercises and address of the United States President on March 5th, were broadcasted by Radio from Montreal. The transfer was done by wire from Washington to Springfield, Mass., where station WREB put it on the air at a long wave length. Montreal picked it up and re-broadcasted on their own wave length. Despite a slight condition, the operation proved a great success.

Adventist Church

ELDER MANUEL TALKS ON SECOND COMING OF CHRIST. He will speak next Sunday night on "The signs of Christ's coming and the signs of the world." A splendid service was manifest last evening at the Adventist Church as Evangelist Manuel spoke on the return of Christ. Taking as his text 2:13, he said in part: The second coming of Christ is a doctrine that is taught both in the Old Testament and in the New. It has been the hope of the church in all ages. In recent years, however, the doctrine has been brought into disrepute by time setting. Seventh-day Adventists, while believing that it is near, have never set the time. But the contrary have always taught that those who set time will be disappointed just as often as they set it. Christ declares "No man knoweth the day or the hour." We are not so sure as we think we are in such a hazy way as to think of the Son of Man coming. But while we may not know the day or the hour, we are told that "unto them that look for Him shall He appear the second time without sin unto salvation." Heb. 9: 28. By bringing in the doctrine of "immortality of the soul" into the church, Satan has succeeded to a large extent in diverting the doctrine of "Our Lord's return."

Magistrate's Court

A man charged with a breach of the Alcoholic Liquors Act gave bonds to appear on Thursday next. Two men taken in for safekeeping were discharged. A man summoned for being drunk while in charge of a horse was ordered to pay costs.

FOOT SHOCK REGISTERED. OTTAWA, Ont., March 23. A severe earthquake shock was recorded at the Dominion Observatory Sunday morning, March 22nd. The first preliminary tremors arrived at 4:02:14 a.m. Eastern Standard Time, and the distance to the epicentre was 3,550 kilometres or 5,310 miles. The time of day was 2:52:24 a.m. Eastern Standard Time. The record continued for over four hours. A local shock centring about Quebec City on Tuesday morning at 10:22:04 a.m. This shock lasted about two and one-half minutes. PRESIDENTIAL ELECTION IN GERMANY. BERLIN, March 13. The campaign in the balloting for President of the Reich on Sunday, the first popular Presidential Election since the establishment of the Republic, it is being fought out along strictly party lines, and although both the German Nationalist and the Peoples' Parties have united on Dr. Karl Jarrett, five other candidates, who are not named for a place on the official ballot, are running purely as partisan agents. The Nationalist Party, headed by Dr. Jarrett, who is the candidate of the National Boarding Bloc and Otto Braun, the Socialists standard bearer, drew off secondarily, respectively, in next Sunday's poll.

overhead, Mussolini wearing the Black Shirt and showing none of the effects of his illness appeared on the balcony. Jutting out significantly in the Premier's short talk was the phrase "What I want to say to you is that it is spring now, and now the fun begins." After the first ovation and ceased, Mussolini said, "I cannot resist the desire of letting you hear my voice on this occasion. I do not know whether it will please you (cries of approval). My infirmity has not taken away my voice. My appearance on this balcony destroys the paper castle of falsehood and ridiculous rumors. My appearance here marks for me and for you an integral and total resumption of fascist action against everybody. Will you follow me?"

Bible Society Annual Meeting

At the Bible Society meeting Sunday evening many missed the Methodist College Hall and its sweet voiced organ. But Synod Hall is a dignified beautiful room and its finely paneled windows are always a delight to all it was full and the audience was a representative and worshipful one.

"O worship the King All glorious above." The proceedings. What a pleasure for thanksgiving the Empire of the King's representative, His Excellency the Governor, was present and presiding.

At the Right Reverend the Bishop of Newfoundland asked the Divine Blessing. In his address, the Governor expressed the regret of all at the absence of the President of the Society, Canon Holt, owing to ill health, and with hope that he may return to his native land re-invigorated and recuperated in health.

The British and Foreign Bible Society held its 120th Annual Meeting at Queen's Hall, London last year, and at St. H. the Duke of Connaught, presided. The first resolution passed at the meeting was that ought in my opinion to be read at every meeting of the Society throughout the world. It briefly and succinctly sums up the aims and objects of the Society, and is as follows:—

"Resolved: That this meeting recognize before God that substantial progress has been reported in the Society's high task of providing for the translation of the Holy Scriptures in the increasing number of languages and both written and printed, and that it urge all Christian people to pray that every hindrance to the spread of God's Word may be removed, and to support the Committee in making a forward movement wherever the call of need and opportunity is heard."

"Doubtless many who are here this evening have had the opportunity of perusing the report. But for the benefit of those who have not, I may say that the Society has now translated the Scriptures in no less than 568 languages, and that during the last twelve months eight of these versions have been added to the list, the complete Bibles now number 137 and New Testaments 138 more. The Bible, or some part of it, has been translated into 16 languages spoken by our fellow-subjects. Of the eight New Testaments in different languages added last year, one was for Florida Island, one of the Solomonas, and another for the Island of Tanna in the New Hebrides. These two extensive archipelagoes, containing together a population of over 1,000,000, came under my jurisdiction when I was Acting Governor of Fiji and Acting High Commissioner for the Western Pacific rather more than twenty years ago. The Solomon Islands were formerly the most cruel and the most ferocious of all head-hunters, and even to-day the practice is not entirely stamped out. I once landed on the Island of Tanna, and it was much impressed by the effect of its active volcano to the moonlight. There was very little to choose in barbarity between these natives and those in the Solomons although their islands lay hundreds of miles apart. To digress for a moment. When I was the Magistrate of the Island of Kandavu in Fiji, a native of Tanna who had been exiled as a plantation labourer several years previously left his employment and took to the bush, and became a wild man. Eventually he had to be caught on account of a murder committed. I turned out several hundred natives to search for him but failed to secure him. Shortly afterwards, however, certain Wesleyan missionaries caught him rather cleverly, and the story is too long to be recounted this evening. These references to the Pacific remind me that it was only last week that I received a letter from the ex-Chairman of the Methodist Mission there who forwarded me a little magazine in Fijian which he is the Editor, called, 'Al Vakaitaki Vakaitaki' i.e., Missionary News, and glancing through it I found that three Native Teachers and their wives had volunteered for service in New Guinea; that they had been given a 'send-off' and had left for the scene of their new duties. His Excellency read extracts from the magazine in the Fijian language and interpreted them as he read. We may well ask, 'What caused them to do this? Why did they sell their native land where they were in ease and comfort in order to proceed to distant New Guinea, a foreign land, of foreign people, talking a foreign tongue, and there undergo all the trials, climatic and otherwise, which are necessarily associated with that land the greater portion of which is stepped in heathendom?'

The answer doubtless is, 'The Holy Spirit through the medium of the Bible.' Had the Bible not been translated into Fijian it is extremely unlikely that any Fijian would have volunteered to convey the Glad Tidings to the people of New Guinea. I observe also in the Report for the year that the complete Bible was available in Rongia, a language of Portuguese East Africa. When a Missionary showed the first Bible at a meeting of native Christians one local preacher said, 'I know that in my body I am a very little man, but to-day as I see the whole Bible in the Rongia language I feel as big as a mountain.' I do not hesitate to say that the same feeling of confidence and strength has been the rock and consolation of millions.

"Before sitting down I ought perhaps to mention that there are still some countries where Missionaries are not permitted to penetrate and establish stations, including Arabia, Afghanistan, Nepal, and Tibet. Then too there is the large Soviet Republic stretching from Petrograd to Vladivostok which is closed to the Society. The attitude of the Soviet Republic on this question alone must necessarily give cause for grave concern to all Christian nations. Notwithstanding the materialism which prompts such action many Russian refugees are known to eagerly buy copies of the Scriptures. We can only hope that in time the present restrictions will be withdrawn.

"During the last hundred years the Society has distributed 55,000,000 copies of the Scriptures rendered not only into the literary languages but into 26 vernaculars. This constitutes a wonderful record, and when I explain that the Society's prices are fixed not in accordance with the cost of production but with what the people can afford to pay, and that in some places payment is frequently made in kind—in India for instance, an axe is often given for a Gospel—one realizes the wonderful work that is being performed by the Bible Society.

Mill Man Meets With Painful Accident

On Saturday afternoon Mr. Philip Saunders, of the firm of Saunders & Howell, Carbonara, met with a painful accident, through being hit by a planing knife which, in some unaccountable manner, became detached. The knife, which hit Mr. Saunders on the face, laying the cheek open from the upper eyelid to the chin, was hurled with such force that it knocked him unconscious. Dr. Stentford was called in attendance and the injured man was conveyed to his home, 118 Rock Hill, where he remained unconscious until midnight. 13 stitches were inserted to close the wound and it is possible Mr. Saunders will have to come to the city for treatment at the General Hospital.

As will be seen from the ad on another page the popular Star Movie has for to-night a most up to the minute show. Pola Negri, the greatest emotional actress on the screen to-day is seen in a story of life in the underworld of Paris. All other Negri pictures will be forgotten when you see Shadows of Paris. It is a big melodrama of fashionable Paris with Pola as an Apache Queen. It is a picture worth going miles to see, and having done so you will not regret it.

Those who saw Kid Robertson in the Leather Pushers St. Patrick's afternoon and night are most enthusiastic over it. To-night will see the second round which will prove more exciting than the first. A striking feature of the pleasure and amusement afforded patrons of Star is the high class musical program which is nightly rendered by the orchestra. Misses Ryan, Morris and Mr. J. Cronon. As many have remarked this in itself is a treat, and well worth the admission price. For to-night this talented trio have a new line of entertaining selections which cannot but go to make up a most pleasant night for those who attend.

April Rod and Gun

Facts and fiction for the sportsman, interesting and of a wide variety, are offered in the April issue of Rod and Gun in Canada. The initial story, The Shanty Up by the Gens-de-Terre, by Alden Griffin Meredith, is a tale of silver prospecting warranted to hold the attention of all who read it. In The Motoring Legions Are Coming, Wm. G. Irwin heralds the influx of summer tourists into Canada. Bonny discourses interestingly on wild bird life and P. V. Williams and Martin Hunter add their quota of good reading. The Guns and Ammunition is up to its usual standard of excellency and include articles on the Varmint and the Early Remington rifles. In Fishing Notes, Robert Page Lincoln takes up the question of different lures to be used for fishing, and the other departments, stories and sketches, all deal with some reasonable subject interesting to the sportsman. ST. PAUL

Estimates of Short Interest Range from 75,000 to 150,000 Shares. NEW YORK, Mar. 13.—The short position in all St. Paul securities is very large. Many bond brokers say it is the largest since they have known such a large short position open in bonds as there is to-day in St. Paul's. So far as the common and preferred are concerned estimates of short position range from 75,000 to 150,000 shares. Position of many traders is constantly shifting and there is apparently little actual buying other than by shorts. One trader who has made considerable money on bear trades says both St. Paul issues will now remain in more or less stationary position until further news is forthcoming. On the other hand there are quite a few willing to buy St. Paul bonds at these prices. There are a number of scale buyers to buy bonds if a break occurs and these buying orders are not shorts. Much interest is evinced in the Street over April coupon of St. Paul general refunding 4 1/2% of which there are $4,089,000. Payment would total $969,512 and in view of the gossip, the Street would be interested in knowing that cash for these bonds is banked for meeting of coupon.

Our Dumb Animals

There is tumbled in each one of us a love for dumb animals. We may have our favourites—a dog, a cat or a horse but there is nobody who does not believe that all animals should be properly cared for. It is possible—and it has been proven on many cases that stray dogs and cats are responsible for a great many of the ills which affect us human beings, and every day it is becoming more widely known that it is extremely necessary to keep our pets in good condition and feed them well, or, if we cannot do these things, let us not keep any. Mothers have no desire to keep their children from romping with other children in the streets. It is unfair to expect them to interfere with the pleasures of childhood—and yet if they only knew where that little black stray dog, which their children are so lovingly fondling, had been, they would have cause to fear. So we realize the importance of keeping our pets clean, and it is with this realization that the Society for the Protection of Animals performs its duty of confining unhealthy animals, of attending to sick pets, and stopping the cruelty of which we cannot deny there is some presence.

Business Slower—Profits Depend On Volume, Costs Being Below Sale Prices.

BOSTON, March 13.—Earnings of Central Leather Company this quarter will not be up to the $316,869 before interest shown for three months ended December 31, 1924, owing to present dullness in the industry. In addition interest will have to be charged on the old 5 per cent. bonds at the $15,000,000 new issue, since the former mature April 1, while the latter are dated January 1. This will probably mean a deduction from income of $400,000 or more. Net loss in quarter ended March 31, 1924, was $369,618.

From standpoint of potential earnings the company is in excellent position. The 25 per cent. to 30 per cent. advance in price of leather from lows of last year makes operations advantageous on a cost basis; profits depend largely on volume of business. This is why President Brown recently said the Company hopes to earn preferred dividends this year if volume is up to the average of the past two years. Sales were $41,483,732 last year and $38,826,919 in 1923.

Refunding adjustments made necessary by discount and expiring of the new bonds and by the $3,638,650 excess of the old 5 per cent. bonds outstanding December 31 over the $1,000,000 new issue have been taken care of. The $6,821,400 cash held at start of this year was sufficient for this purpose, and the company is work bank debt, having an ample cash balance to cover operating needs.

Recent weakness in the hide market caused a drop in quality of hides in winter, especially in March, may force some write-off this quarter on the cost-of-market method of the new bonds and by the $3,638,650 excess of the old 5 per cent. bonds outstanding December 31 over the $1,000,000 new issue have been taken care of. The $6,821,400 cash held at start of this year was sufficient for this purpose, and the company is work bank debt, having an ample cash balance to cover operating needs.

Such a quarter as this naturally removes further the consideration of any refunding of the old bonds. It may be necessary to eliminate the $13,122,158 profit and loss deficit and open the way for resumption of preferred dividends. Central Leather will wait upon definite indications of earnings power under normal conditions before any such action.

Estimates of Short Interest Range from 75,000 to 150,000 Shares. NEW YORK, Mar. 13.—The short position in all St. Paul securities is very large. Many bond brokers say it is the largest since they have known such a large short position open in bonds as there is to-day in St. Paul's. So far as the common and preferred are concerned estimates of short position range from 75,000 to 150,000 shares. Position of many traders is constantly shifting and there is apparently little actual buying other than by shorts. One trader who has made considerable money on bear trades says both St. Paul issues will now remain in more or less stationary position until further news is forthcoming. CAN YOU TELL GOOD LUCK FROM BAD?

How often you hear people admit that the things which seemed misfortunes to them at the time they happened have turned out to be good fortune in the end.

"The best thing that ever happened to me was when I was fired from the job I had been in ten years," a successful business man said to me the other day.

"But you didn't think so at the time?" I questioned.

The End Of The World To Him.

"I should say not. It was like the end of the world to me. I thought I was going to be there to the end of my days, and when they abolished the department and we all got fired I felt as if the solid earth had dropped from under my feet. I went through a mighty had time I can tell you; but if I hadn't been fired I wouldn't have been driven to go into business for myself. I'd probably be a department head to-day, with at least $5,000 a year."

When one door closes another often opens.

A friend of mine who has made considerable success as an author recently met a man who was the editor of one of the smaller magazines when the author was first trying to sell his work.

The author now gets twenty times as much for a story as that magazine could pay him.

He'd Have Jumped At It.

Said the ex-editor to the ex-beginner: "You remember when you were sending us stories 13 years ago and we bought a couple and how pleased you were. Well, we liked your work and we needed an extra hack writer in the office just then; and we had almost decided to offer you the job at $3,000 a year when you sent us in a story we didn't like so well and we offered the chance to another writer instead. Would you have taken it if we had offered it?"

"Would I?" said the author. "I'd have jumped at it. Three thousand a year would have looked like a fortune to me then. It's lucky I didn't know I had the chance. I'd have been bowled over by coming so close to it and losing it."

"Yet it's almost as lucky a thing as ever happened to you that you didn't get it," said the editor. "Look where you are now because you had to go ahead and make good as a freelance, and the man we gave the job to ground out hack work until the magazine failed and then he went back to newspaper work."

An Escape, Not A Lost Opportunity.

"Yes," said the author, "I should have called it a lost opportunity and it turned out to be an escape. Queer, isn't it? I wonder how often our What We Think Is Our Bad Luck is Good Luck after all."

"We might try," said the editor, "to think about that the next time we have some bad luck."

"Fat chance," said the author.

C. E. W. A. at Jamestown

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir—Please allow me space in your valuable paper to record the progress of the C. E. W. A. in this little town. Although only a few in number, we are still plodding along year after year, and all praise is due to the kind friends who come forward and make our Sales and Teas a success. We held our annual Tea, Sale of Work and Christmas Tree on December 21st and although it was a very frosty night a large crowd came along and a very pleasant night was spent realizing the sum of $43.77. We wish through this column to thank the ladies who gave us cakes and pies, etc., to help us along.

On March 11th we held our annual meeting electing the following officers:

President—Miss Marion Haines.
Vice-President—Mrs. W. Ricketts.
Secretary—Mrs. Robert Taylor.
Treasurer—Mrs. Simon Wells.
Asst. Treasurer—Mrs. R. J. Haines.
Cutter—Mrs. Robert Taylor.

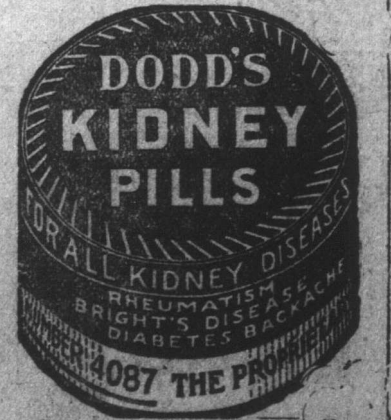

We are now busy preparing for a Sale of Work and a Pie Social in Easter week.

Thanking you for space, Mr. Editor, and wishing your paper success.

SECRETARY.

INCLINATION.

My inclination is to rise when ever men a r o gathered, a r d talk of poetry and pies until my lungs are lathered. Some rude forefather in the past was doubtless fond of spitting, he turned out language in a blast, and set the welkin reeling. Perhaps he was a man inspired, perhaps he'd little merit; but here's the truth, which makes me tired—his weakness I inherit. And every time I see a crowd I feel a mighty yearning to rise and show I am endowed with thoughts and language burning. I crum the mighty logging down, no frenzied words are spoken; and so I've gained a wide renown for sanity unbroken. I have a glutton's appetite; when I approach the table, I'd eat up everything in sight, as mules do in the stable. My inclination is to eat until the divers dishes have been demanded of the meat, the pies and loaves and fishes. But I have learned that people look disdainfully on sages who eat until the worried cook has struck for higher wages. The world's contempt I can't afford, so morsels small I swallow, and when I leave the groaning

Harbor Grace News

The 3-act Comedy Drama "Casey" was staged in the Harbor Grace Hall on Tuesday, St. Patrick's Day, under the distinguished patronage of his Lordship Bishop March and each one present spent a most enjoyable time. In a very realistic manner the performers impersonated different roles, and appeared very ly at home in them. Candy was a brilliant success, and the fine $254 was realized as proceeds.

Following is the cast of characters: "Patrick Casey," a retired contractor—W. O. Kennedy. "Mary Ann, his wife—Miss M. Brien. "Michael, his son—James G. Goral. "Kathleen and Maggie, his daughters—Misses M. Lee and D. Meany. "George Drake, a friend of the family—J. J. O'Brien. "Eileen, the maid—Miss M. Brown. "Humpty" Steele, the Janitor—Fallon. "Jim Dougherty, of the U. S. Navy Dept.—J. M. Kennedy. "Madame Anna Bairaki, a Bohemian—Miss Joy. "Armand Francois Boni Almon Lovier, a Modiste—A. J. Jones.

An aged and esteemed lady, the person of Mrs. Charles L. Kennedy (Sr.), passed within the vale of life last, at the good old age of 87 years. She will be greatly missed in the home circle, where loving ministrations to her needs until her end came, and a life that had been cheered others had gone on to the fuller life beyond. She will be missed by a host of friends near and far, with whom she was held in esteem for her many qualities and worthy tribute to this true character lady has already appeared in the columns of the Telegram from the pen of H. F. Shortis. She leaves behind the passing of a fond and loving mother, four sons, Charles, William H., and Ronald K. Kennedy of this town, and Michael J. Kennedy, of Quincy, Mass.; and her daughters, Miss Elizabeth Kennedy (Betty), Mrs. Thomas Keefe, (Penny) Mrs. Harry Strapp, of Boston. Two sisters, Misses Ellen and Agnes Kelly, also survive her. Her funeral was held on Sunday to the C. Cathedral, and was very largely attended. At the close of the service at the church "Nearer My God to Thee" was very touchingly sung, the cortege wended its way to the Cemetery on the hill, where she is laid to rest. To the sorrowing friends we extend deepest sympathy. R.I.P.

The death of William Butt, a resident of the West End, occurred at home early Saturday morning, though he had not been enjoying good health for some time, and unable to get down town, the end came unexpectedly. He was a respected citizen and was held in esteem by his friends, who were saddened and will regret that his earthly sojourn has ceased. The funeral, which was largely attended, was held on Monday last to St. Paul's Church where the service was conducted by Rev. Mr. Higgitt, and at the grave side by Rev. Mr. Clench of Spaniard Bay. In the funeral procession there was a representative of the C.R.S. Society, of which deceased was a member. Interment was made in the C.R.S. Cemetery. To his son, C. Charles Butt, with whom he resided, and all other relatives and friends we extend sincere sympathy in their bereavement.

Mr. R. T. Parsons, Sergeant-at-Arms of the House of Assembly, spent last week-end here with his family and friends and returned to St. John's on Monday for the re-opening of the House.

Mrs. Fred Brown, accompanied by her little daughter, Margaret, arrived here recently from Newport, Hants, N.S., on a visit to her mother, Mrs. Naomi Martin, who has been ill for some time. It is eleven years since Mrs. Brown has been in the best town, and her friends are pleased to see her again.

Rev. W. E. R. Crucknell, of the South Side, visited Bay Roberts on Sunday and conducted services at St. Matthew's Church, the Rector, Rev. E. M. Bishop, being on a visit to his home in England.

Miss Mabel Young, of Spaniard Bay, who has been visiting town, the guest of Miss Florence Archibald, Bannerman House, returned again by Thursday morning's train.

A number of men have gone to Bell Island during the week to take up work, among them being Messrs. Allan and Robert Davis, Andrew Braswell, Lawrence and Arthur Haydon.

Miss Lizzie Griffin spent last week-end and St. Patrick's Day at her home, Conception Harbor, and returned again on Wednesday last.

From such a hotel as a centre, traffic would go out in the various directions where the high roads would reach. At the same time work should be started on the West Coast and for the same reason the sportsmen and others visiting that region will be greatly increased in numbers if good roads are provided. No doubt there are sections of the island which will feel that they ought to have a share of this outlay at the start, but I think it would be a mistake to attempt too much at the beginning.

ed was about 150 miles, to which, if we add the connecting roads from White Bay and Green Bay, 80 miles; 50 miles on the north side of Bonavista and 20 miles from Fermeuse to Trepassy. All told this would mean about 270 miles of road which could be built, leaving out the bridges, for 200 million dollars and the bridges could be built for a quarter of a million. Those who have talked about six millions have given no particulars as to cost or mileage. When I put $5,000 as the mileage cost to build roads out of the rough, my authority is the Government Engineer. This work was not for pauper relief, but the amount for which contracts can be made. Reconditioning roads which at present are not in a state to be used would cost 1,000 dollars a mile up, dependent upon the present conditions. After building all the roads I have proposed there would be sufficient money left to put these other roads in good motorable condition. Most roads would be 22 feet wide, with 14 feet gravel sufficient to allow two cars to pass. Boulder's need not be built. He had travelled a thousand miles of road good for motoring that wouldn't cost as much as those proposed. The work would not be done along old-fashioned lines but would be largely done by machinery. Now in outlining the various roads necessary to make it possible by 1927 to ride from Port aux Basques to White Bay, I said that was a programme of my own, made possible by contemplated extensions from Bonne Bay to White Bay and White Bay to Hall Bay. There are two other pieces of road forty miles each, one from the crossing of the Humber to White Bay, and the other connecting the bottom of Green Bay with Grand Falls, which in my opinion would be a splendid development, not merely for motor traffic, but for their own intrinsic local value. One could not imagine anything better than to provide these sections of our people who heretofore have almost starved in winter, free access to Corbett Brook and Grand Falls. Traffic over them would be large and from a plague spot in winter these people would have a chance to feel they were citizens of this country. At the same time there would be no better road for game fishing and a perfect tourist road. Now roads need not be built over mountains. One honourable member would lead one to believe that we would have to cross the top of Blomidon. That is not the intention at all. A fairly level road could be made. Not one such as the Badger Road which cost $20,000 per mile until the Government Engineer took it over. That was organized pauper relief. Hon. Mr. Morine could not see how honourable gentlemen identified with those who built the Badger and Bonne Bay Roads could attack the suggestion that other roads should be built extending them. HON. MR. ANDERSON supported the second reading of the Bill and stated that at the last session of the British House of Commons 50,000,000 pounds was voted for the construction of roads, a Commission being appointed to see that the expenditure was placed in proper hands. He stated that the construction of roads not only round the mountains, but over them made the highlands of Scotland what they were to-day. The great attraction in Switzerland was also its roads. Whether this undertaking in Newfoundland were speculative was another matter. Two million dollars was a large amount. On motion further debate on the second reading was postponed until to-morrow. FRIDAY, March 20. The Council met at 3.30 p.m. pursuant to adjournment. HON. SIR M. G. WINTER said he wished to make reference to a very offensive attack made on him in a weekly paper called the "Searchlight" (Continued on page 8).

Proceedings at the Legislative Council

(Continued from page 7). For the reason he had had the authority to criticize the Government in regard to the removal of the duty on pork and beef without some notice to the trade. He had intended to treat the article with contempt, but on hearing that this paper was subsidized by the Government, its editor and proprietor under Government pay and further a reporter in the House, he thought he was doing the right thing in calling the members' attention to it. Feeling confident that few if any of Hon. Members had read it the Hon. Gentleman proceeded to read this article, which was headed the "Whining Knight" so that the members could judge it as to the truth or otherwise. He thought that the members should have some protection against attacks of this kind, particularly coming from a paid servant of this House. If this paper was issued for the purpose of stifling criticism of the Government, then he thought this chamber should be made aware of it.

HON. MR. MORINE—In view of the Government's association referred to he wished to say emphatically and specifically that to the best of his knowledge and belief the Government did not subsidize the "Searchlight" directly or indirectly. He had not read the copy referred to or any other copy, and furthermore did not know the name of the editor but neither he or any other editor was in the pay of the Government. The name of the person had been suggested to him privately, and if that be the person, he (Hon. Mr. Morine) had no knowledge of his being in the pay of the Government. If he be a reporter of this House, it is a matter for this House and should be a question of privilege if the Hon. Gentleman wished to deal with it. It would be offensive for a reporter of this House to be associated with any attack of that kind. Furthermore I repudiate and deplore it. It has been most regrettable and unseemly, and I cannot think of the Government being associated with it in any way whatever. Furthermore, the Hon. Sir Marmaduke in all his comments on the duty matter, spoke properly, fairly and strongly, and his remarks were founded on reason and right in the interest of the trade. The attack was unfair and tactless and he assured him that he didn't believe the Government had the slightest connection with this matter.

HON. SIR M. G. WINTER said he quite believed Hon. Mr. Morine knew nothing about it, but as far as the Government was concerned he was informed that this paper was subsidized by the Government. At any rate it was well covered by Government advertisements, and only for this wouldn't exist. This was not curtailing expenses but a waste of money to advertise in this, a paper that nobody sees or hears about. As regards the person to whom he alluded he knew that he was in the pay of the Government and received a salary as a censor of moving pictures. Also a good man had been dismissed to give him the job. The worst feature of it all was that he was a reporter in this House. Whoever wrote it was apparently familiar with the business of the Premier for he refers to his private purchases made in the market. He thought the matter should receive the fullest consideration and that when members criticize the Government they should receive fair treatment at least.

HON. MR. MORINE said he endorsed all the remarks of Hon. Sir Marmaduke. As regards the worthless advertisements of this kind, the Government has passed orders against this, but it is easy enough to give orders but difficult to have them carried out. Newspapers have been known to publish these advertisements and ask permission afterwards. The writer may be censor of pictures but he is not censor of speeches. However he believed the Government was not responsible, and he would take care that this matter be brought to the notice of the Government.

The Women's Franchise Bill on motion of Hon. Dr. Robinson was re-committed. Hon. Mr. Ellis in the chair.

HON. DR. ROBINSON said the reason for the recommitting of this bill was, with the permission of the members, to re-insert the phrase concerning the "domicile" qualification which had been requisite heretofore, but had been now omitted. Thus Section 3 of Section 49 would have the words "is actually domiciled in the Colony at the time of nomination" inserted before the words "and has never been convicted in due course of law of any infamous offence." This meant that any man or woman nominated for a candidate must be actually domiciled here at the time of nomination. He moved that these words be inserted.

HON. MR. MORINE said that this would make the law just as it was before. It would make the qualifications of the voter and candidate precisely as they were.

HON. MR. BISHOP asked if this bill had not been re-committed could any not domiciled here have been nominated. He wished to know the purpose of the Amendment.

HON. MR. MORINE explained that

William Fox presents ST. ELMO with JOHN GILBERT BARBARA LeMARR BESSIE LOVE

FAMOUS STORY LOVED AND READ BY THREE GENERATIONS.

ST. ELMO was ardent in Love, Bitter in Hate. Kipling's "Vampire" aptly described St. Elmo's Story "A Fool There Was." She was a girl who bartered her truth to another to satisfy her consuming lust for his faithless friend.

A STIRRING DRAMA OF A MAN'S FAITH RENEWED—HIS LOVE REBORN.

attention had been drawn to this when the Bill went through the committee stage, and it had since been referred to the Government. The matter had been gone into and it was thought proper to restore the words domiciled in the country. In the Act of 1919 different words had been used to express the same thing. Mr. Fox who had drafted the Bill had in consultation agreed that the meaning was precisely the same as before, but in case of there being any doubt about the matter, he thought it wise to put in the words "domiciled in the country" as well. The words resident and domiciled are interchangeable.

HON. DR. ROBINSON—said if that were so then time was being wasted. None the less did he regard the reinsertion of the omitted phrase as essential. It has stood the test of many years and he failed to understand why it was now removed.

HON. MR. MORINE said that he did not object to it and that he was personally willing to add other words of similar meaning, if necessary.

HON. SIR P. T. McGRATH stated that it might be well to bear in mind the fact that the law was a peculiar thing, for it had transpired in the Supreme Court in the case of Sir Edgar Bowring, that a man may be resident in two places at the same time.

HON. MR. MORINE, in speaking on the Second Reading of the High Roads Bill, and in answer to the Hon. Members who had discussed the Bill. Hon. Mr. Gibbs having gone so far as to give it a six months' hold, pointed out that the debate had taken such a wide range as to obscure the real question before the House. A misunderstanding has been the result. He stated that the Bill as it stood before them did not involve the expenditure of a single cent, nor did it propose to add anything to the amount already voted. That had been disposed of in the past when the money was allocated for that purpose. It was merely now a matter of whether or not we should create a Commission to take over the expenditure of this money which otherwise would be in the hands of the Department of Public Works.

In referring to the remarks of Hon. Dr. Mosdell that the Government Engineer, assisted by local men, was not the proper person to take over the work, but that a board of experts was necessary. Hon. Mr. Morine said that the route of the roads and the kind of roads which were proposed to be built could be as well done under the present Government Engineer as under experts. It was not the intention to build macadam roads or tar-topped roads, at $40,000 a mile, to require experts, but it was proposed to build gravel roads, about 22 feet wide, with about 14 to 15 feet of gravel.

The Hon. member considered the Government Engineer laden down with work already and consequently he would be unable to give his time to this. Such was a mistake for now that the Railway had been acquired by the Government he had not the care of it and on the contrary would be glad of more work.

The Commission could be appointed out of material in the country, men who would be familiar with conditions here. If the help of experts were needed later, they could be employed by the Commission and given salaries for the special work required of them. Advertising in its fullest meaning would be necessary to promote the scheme, etc. but such a man as would be needed for this could not be put in charge. He could be hired for this special work, when we had something to offer, when the roads were made and the hotels built and the machinery working. Several lines of steamers would also be interested and would work in conjunction with the proposed plan. This would follow, not precede, the road building. There must be something to invite the tourists to, before embarking on invitation. On reflection it had been found that both Hon. Dr. Mosdell and Hon. Mr. Gibbs had been opposed to the Bill, but for diametrically opposite reasons. Dr. Mosdell showed himself in his speech, to be a booster of tourist traffic while the Hon. Mr. Gibbs would hear nothing of it and considered that the money spent in this way would be wasted. One was in favor of developing the Avalon Peninsula; the other was depressed over the trouble involved in the dismantling and assembling of the motor cars. Hon. Mr. Gibbs says that Agriculture is degraded; the farmers are leaving, there is no need of building roads for those that are built and abandoned. If all our farmers were leaving why have we had those well intentioned efforts of Hon. Dr. Campbell along Agricultural lines, and why had he spent so much money on his policy. He would leave this part of Hon. Mr. Gibbs' speech to be answered by Hon. Dr. Campbell.

With regard to the Avalon Peninsula and the West Coast, Dr. Morine said if a choice between these had to be considered, he would lift up both hands for the West Coast. But as the plant was a beginning could be made at both places. If the choice were left to him, he would suggest beginning at Port aux Basques and continuing to Botwood for the reason that for every one which might come to the Avalon Peninsula, there would be nine from Sydney. It would be cheaper for tourists coming to St. John's to hire cars than to bring their own. From New York the freight on a car is $60 that would mean $120 return, which is a fairly high rate, so that a great deal of traffic in this direction is not to be expected. However, competition may reduce the rates. On the other hand the traffic on the West Coast would be much more readily captured if a number of bungalows were built. The people who come do not want luxury, so experience had shown but just comfort, which such bungalows would provide.

He believed that in a very short time we could build up a profitable tourist traffic on the Peninsula of Avalon. It would not be a motor car traffic because in all likelihood our own motor car drivers would be engaged. It would result in trade to drivers, motor car repairers, hotel proprietors and generally the tourists would have to pay for their conveniences, the others mentioned would have to spend and a general benefit to the revenue would follow. On the other side, the West Coast, motor car traffic would be more likely to prevail. If we had something to offer, and we have, there is no reason why the tourist could not step aboard the Gulf steamer with his car at North Sydney at night and arrive at Port aux Basques next morning, paying about $10.00 for the car's freight. The Hon. gentleman on the right had referred to the bad roads in and about North Sydney and the spoken of tourist traffic would not come here. If any one was alarmed over the conditions of the roads at North Sydney stopping the intended tourist from coming to Newfoundland, he was at liberty to be alarmed, so far as he was concerned. He knew from experience that the roads around Cape Breton had been repaired and rebuilt in recent years, and one can now travel from Yarmouth to North Sydney in absolute comfort. The idea of a canny Scotsman leaving the roads in bad repair if profitable motor traffic was likely did not appeal to him. It was merely a futile and fantastical suggestion. Cape Breton would certainly look after her roads if traffic was at all assured. He hoped that it was understood he was talking about his own policy and answering the debates of other honorable members. His idea of travel was that people who leave here from abroad with money enough to pay their way would motor over that beautiful country from Port aux Basques to Middle Brook, the Log Cabin and other places. The proprietor of the Log Cabin, he understood, was willing to put up and equip tourist bungalows as rapidly as required, and traffic would warrant it. If people of means come along with their families to engage at shooting and fishing they would have to pay guides and incur other expenses as well as paying hotel fares which would add very much to the revenues of the country. In the U.S.A. there were 20,000,000 motor cars, but they were not all owned by country boys, as inferred by the Hon. gentleman on his right, who went out on Saturday nights on joy rides. Outside of the cars owned by the rich, taxi companies and other concerns, a great number are owned by those in small cities and country places, where a lot of traffic comes from. His Hon. friend spoke of these as trippers across the Canadian border. This might be so, but many of them remain weeks and even months. This was one of the reasons Ontario was spending millions on its roads and highways and inviting these visitors to come across. Hon. Mr. Morine quoted again from the Saturday Night article in reference to the fact that motorists were going further afield in search of the unusual. This, he continued, was an expert who was talking and one who knew what he was talking about. The worth while tourist was going abroad in search of the unusual, the unknown, the search for new camping and shooting and the sport that they have not had. Newfoundland can offer the sport looked for, it was here to be had. The lure of Newfoundland was in itself an attraction, and if we could give him a road to the North Pole it would be to the North Pole he would want to go.

HON. DR. CAMPBELL—Is that on your programme?
HON. MR. MORINE—No, but we are not going to build roads like the Badger to Springdale Road, which started nowhere and ended nowhere and cost $20,000 a mile.
HON. DR. CAMPBELL—You are going to use it now, and people are going over it every day.
HON. MR. MORINE—Yes, we are going to make some of the useless roads of the late Government useful. Roads to the North Pole would not be any worse project than the purchases of salt and fish and other things done by the late government which squandered about $20,000,000 in five years.

"St. Elmo" To-Night
AT THE MAJESTIC.
Lovers of screen will have an opportunity to-night, Tuesday and Wednesday, to see what is probably termed the greatest love story ever written and screened, when, at the Majestic Theatre, "St. Elmo" will be the feature. The following is the cast: St. Elmo Thornton . . . John Gilbert Agnes Hunt . . . Barbara La Marr Edna Earle . . . Bessie Love Murray Hammond . . . Warner Baxter Alan Hammond . . . Nigel De Brulier Mrs. Thornton . . . Lydia Knott
The story in a nutshell:— Just before the bitter blow that made a reckless drama of his life, St. Elmo (played by John Gilbert) presents the plans of the new church he is going to build for his life-long friend, Murray Hammond (played by Warner Baxter). Young Hammond's father is enraptured with love and gratitude for St. Elmo and impulsively shakes hand. Agnes Hunt (played by Barbara La Marr) gazes lovingly at her fiancé.
Yet only a few minutes later, Agnes and Murray forget their love and friendship of St. Elmo. He finds them in each other's arms. In bitter renunciation of those he held dear, he turns into a restless wanderer, on the face of the globe. Until . . . and in that "until" is secreted the charming romance that makes the William Fox screen version of Augusta J. Evans' popular novel.
"St. Elmo" is a stirring romantic novel.

The Will
There comes a time in the life of every man when he must leave his worldly possessions to the care of another. In anticipation of this, therefore, the first obligation resting on an individual who is possessed of property is the making of a will, and this should be done before the capacities become impaired by time or the ravages of disease.

An Improved Neutrodyne Receiver

(PART VI)
EDITED BY JOHN M. CLAYTON.

There are a number of troubles which are common to all types of tube receivers. The following are particularly applicable to the Improved Neutrodyne we have been describing.

One of the most common sources of "noise" in a receiver is noise due to defective coils in the B battery. The B battery should be tested first of all when noise appears. Any 2 1/2-volt cell which measures less than 1 7/8 volts should be thrown out. The A battery is also a source of noise sometimes. If the electrolyte from the battery is allowed to accumulate on top of the case, it will collect dirt and eventually will cause a partial short. Always keep the top of the A battery wiped clean of any acid.

The contact springs of a socket may be bent down so far that they do not make proper contact with the pins of the tube. The contact may be so tight that the least amount of jarring will open the circuit intermittently thus causing more noise. The slider arm of the rheostat may be weak and not make firm contact with the resistance wire, or the wire may have grease on it, or the resistance wire may have come loose so that when the slider arm makes contact it shorts several turns of the wire. Telephone jacks sometimes trouble which is hard to run down, if too much soldering paste or resin was used when connecting the wires, some of the paste may have flown in between the jack springs causing a high resistance between the jacks and a current to flow.

Condensers which do not have a pig-tail between the rotary plates and the terminal connected to these plates may become noisy due to poor frictional contact between the rotary plate and its bearing. Any condenser which relies on a bearing as a contact is very likely to develop noise unless there are some special means to provide a strong frictional contact at the point of the bearing. The condenser plates may become shorted. This would be due to either the actual warping of the rotary plates or to some mechanical blow which bent them out of line. It is simple to take a thin edge knife and bend the spring plate back into position.

If too much soldering flux is allowed to flow when soldering the fixed condensers, the flux is quite likely to flow between the terminals of the condenser, or due to high voltage being continually connected across them, they may actually "break down" and become shorted. The remedy for any of the above troubles is obvious, and the troubles are common to all receivers.

As Uncle Lucky hopped along, with his bunny nephew by his side, they came to a lonely place covered with evergreen trees. All of a sudden a wheezy, cracked call came from the branches.

"What's that?" asked the little bunny.

"Don't be afraid," answered wise old Uncle Lucky. "It's only a yellow-eyed bird trying to sing."

"It sounds like the creaking of the kind Farmer's old wheelbarrow," laughed the bunny boy.

"There's your singer," the next minute exclaimed the keen-eyed old bunny uncle, pointing to an evergreen tree, in which crouched a bird about a foot long, in a purple-black coat. "His name is Purple Grackle. He is a corn thief. But worse than that, he destroys nests and young birds. I have no use for him."

The next moment out of his hiding place flew Purple Grackle and over to the field, his glossy plumage shining almost like a rainbow under Mr. Happy Sun's bright rays.

"He has beautiful feathers," said the little rabbit.

"Only when the sun glistens on him," answered the wise old gentleman rabbit. "These Grackles are among our earliest bird arrivals. I imagine he is busy building a flimsy nest of mud and coarse grasses, lined with finer grass. He takes good care to place it high above the ground."

Just then Professor Jim Crow came by with his Wisdom Book under his wing. "Hello, little rabbits," he cawed, settling on a branch overhead. "Don't mistake Purple Grackle for a Crow, although sometimes he is called the Crow Blackbird."

"I'll remember," answered the little bunny.

"Learn a little every day. Store it in your head away. Tell to Mother every night. What you've learned by ear and sight."

added the wise old crow as he flew away. And in the next story you shall hear what happened after that.

Woman Badly Scalded
A woman named English met with a severe scalding accident at her home on Moore Street, yesterday morning, and due to the extent of injuries received, she is now confined to Hospital undergoing treatment. The unfortunate woman was preparing dinner, when she took a weak turn, and fell on the kitchen stove, upsetting some utensils containing boiling water which went over her body. Dr. Carnell was hurriedly called to her aid, and after the wounds had been dressed she was sent to hospital for treatment.

Obituary

MICHAEL J. LARKIN.
A bright life was brought to an early close this morning, when Michael, the eldest son of Mr. John W. Larkin, of the Municipal Council of St. John's, passed away.

Michael, although only in his early manhood, had made much of his short life and had crowded into it many acts which made for him many friends and earned the respect of all with whom he came in contact. He was a pupil of St. Patrick's Hall School, and after leaving there served his apprenticeship with W. P. Shortall, Tailor. When the war broke out he heard the call of King and Country, and before he had reached the age required for military service, he had joined the colors, serving two years overseas. After returning he went to Bermuda, where he spent some months; but his experiences overseas had made inroads on his health and his condition was not improved by the trip south. After returning home, his health grew worse and he entered the Sanatorium for a while, fighting a losing battle, but never giving up hope. His friends and schoolfellows will regret to hear of his demise, and to his father, brother and sister, sympathy will be extended. The funeral takes place from his late residence, Queen's Road, tomorrow afternoon.

Keep People Happy
"We have no right to do anything which will diminish the cheerfulness and sociability of the world," said Lord Dawson during a recent debate in the British House of Lords. As Lord Dawson is one of King George's principal medical advisers, he speaks with authority, and his words have a wide significance.

It is generally recognized, for example, that smoking adds to the cheerfulness and sociability of mankind. Tobacco, from this point of view, is a beneficial and useful influence in the promotion of happiness.

Old Colony Club

Last Saturday afternoon—with Mrs. Alan Fraser in the chair—the members of the Old Colony Club enjoyed an unusually interesting address, given by F. R. Emerson, Esq., who spoke on "Some Modern French Writers."

Mr. Emerson is an omniverous reader, with a fine literary discrimination, and this, combined with a good delivery, went far towards interpreting the charm of those writers chosen as his theme. Maurice Barres, Romaine Rolland, and Paul Claudel, were discussed at some length, and their influence on various younger writers in France pointed out. Mr. Emerson also described the novels of women writers, such as Madame Marcelle Linayre, and Lucie Delarue-Metiviers, and the poetry of the Countess of Noailles. Some of the books that have aroused most interest and discussion were analysed and described in detail; such as "Eve's Garden," by Laton. Particular reference was made to those writers such as Charles Peguy and Ernest Pecharat, who made the supreme sacrifice in the early days of the war.

Mr. Emerson closed his delightful address, after which a hearty vote of thanks was proposed by Miss Morris, seconded by Miss Southcott, and enthusiastically accorded by all present. Tea was then served, kindly provided by Mrs. Charles Hutchings and Miss Hayward.

COKE

— IS —
AN EXCELLENT SUBSTITUTE FOR HARD COAL.

Our COKE is much superior to the imported article because it is produced from the highest grade of Pennsylvania Coal, AND DOES NOT CLINKER. Our many customers demonstrate these facts. It is a smokeless fuel, and is admirable for either Domestic or Industrial use.

Our price is $9.00 per half ton delivered at your residence or place of business.
All Orders will receive Prompt Attention.

TO YOUNG MEN!

This is specially addressed to the young men who are following the trend of style especially as regards trousers. If you want the bell bottom trousers, with or without cuff, here is the place to get them; we are making and have made recently some splendid examples of this style. This also applies to the straight hanging English trousers hanging free from the hips to the cuff; with plenty of room at knees and bottom.
