The Mystery of Rutledge Hall OR "The Cloud With a Silver Lining"

CHAPTER XL

"To Sidney Arnold," he answered gravely.

"And—and you are happy?" she had raised herself from the pillows in her eagerness, and the little thin hands had grasped his arm for support; but she did not wait for the answer. "Yes, his arm for support; but she did not wait for the answer. "Yes, you are happy," she went on. "She is so good—but—does she love you as I loved you? Would she have stinned as I stinned to win your love? She is too cold, too pure for that!"

A little laugh broke from her as she fell back—a laugh horrible in its mockery to hear from those pale lips. Stephen Daunt drew back slightly, his eyes were wandering.

"You did not know that I loved you, she went on. "You cared only for her, while I—ah, Heaven, did ever any woman hate another as I hated her because she stood between me and your love?"

In utter silence Stephen looked at her as she lay panting and gasping, her blue eyes almost bright again in their hatred of the young wife he so dearly loved.

"I saw that you loved her," she went on breathlessly, "and it maddened me. I loved you—not your wealth, not your position—you; and I saw that she stood between us, and that she—she loved you too, although she did not know it herself, and I let her think—I made her think that you loved me, and she engaged herself to Frank Greville in a moment of misery, thinking you were engaged to me. I knew it all; he told me that—in his madness—he swore to kill—the man to whom I was engaged, and she believed it was you, and she won him over by a promise to become his wife!"

Her weakness overcome her; she sank back, a gray ashen shade creeping over her face. Stephen sat motionless, almost dazed by the sudden light her words shed over the past. Was she right? Was it possible that Sidney had loved him all the time? In the sudden passionate joy which flooded his heart all else was forgotten—his mission there, and Frank's peril.

"It pleases you to think that," she said faintly. "Have you never found it out? And yet she is your wife, sheltered by your love from every ill, cherished and beloved, while I—while I am dying here!"

She threw up her hands with a little broken cry, which made the nurse, who had withdrawn to an inner room, hasten to the bedside; but she muttered feebly in French that she wanted nothing; and the old woman, with a pitying glance at her face and a deprecating look at Stephen, left the room.

"I hated her," she moaned—"hated her as I, who know how to hate, can hate. There was nothing I would not have done to make her suffer as I had suffered; and she was wretched. She loved you, but she had promised to become his wife; and then she took him from her; and but for you I would have died with him just to inflict upon her one pang—ah, you think you think it horrible! But is there anything I would not have done to break her heart?"

"Hush, hush!" the young man broke in passionately. "It is indeed horrible—such unwomanly hatred cherished even now!"

"Even now that I am dying!" she said bitterly. "Ah, do you think that one alters then, that one gives up in a moment all the hatred of years? And yet—and yet I am going to atone, since you are here. Stephen, do not take away your hand. I—I—Oh, it is terrible," she added, her voice dying away to the feeblest whisper; "to be so weak and to have so much to say! I cannot die—until—raise me give me air—ah, Heaven!"

He raised her on his arm, and for a few moments she lay against his shoulder, panting and breathless, as if the end were near; and then, when the paroxysm was over, her head fell heavily against him in utter exhaustion, and the ghastly face might have been the face of a dead woman for all the life it showed.

"Do not call," she whispered. "I shall not die until—"

There was the sound of footsteps on the stairs without, and the old Frenchwoman passed through the room and went out, closing the door behind her.

"They are here!" Sibyl said, raising her head. "I told—Louise to send for them when you came. Stephen, for Heaven's sake do not look at me so sternly! If I have stinned, I have suffered."

"I can see that, poor soul!" he answered, huskily. "But others have suffered too, and cruelly. Sibyl, if you know anything of your husband's death, for Heaven's sake divulge it, for in the jail at Ashford Frank Greville is awaiting his trial for the murder."

The words seemed to galvanize her into new life; she sat upright, withdrawing herself from his support, and staring at him with wild frightened eyes.

"In prison for the murder!" she exclaimed, in a voice of horror. "I thought he was free! He is innocent—he is innocent!"

As her words fell her lips she felt back rigid upon the pillows in a dead faint, just as the old woman opened the door, seeing her condition, the nurse ran forward, while Stephen, staggering slightly and passing his hand over his dazed eyes and burning brow, went from the room out on to the landing.

Three men were standing there. Two of them were strangers to Stephen; the third was Lloyd Milner, who, on seeing Stephen, moved hastily forward, and, throwing open a window, admitted a keen blast of wind, which dissipated the sticky faintness which the long journey and fasting and subsequent agitation had caused. When he turned from the window, which overlooked the quiet street, Stephen had recovered his wonted composure, and was able to understand Lloyd's hasty explanation and to acknowledge the informal introduction to the two strangers, one of whom was an English doctor who had visited Sibyl, the other an English government official, who was prepared to take down any deposition the dying woman might wish to make.

"Mr. Milner has given us an outline of the matter," said the taller, a handsome young man who wore a light overcoat over his evening dress. "I sincerely hope that the poor creature may be able to clear your friend of such a charge. Every day," he added, with a slight laugh which jarred on Stephen after the painful scene from which he had come, "I am becoming more and more convinced of the smallness of the world. Frank Greville and I were at John's together and left Cambridge at the same time. We have not met since then, but I hope now that we shall do so before long."

A silence succeeded his little speech. Stephen had turned again to the window, thinking sadly of the broken life ebbing away in the inner room, and of the young wife he had left behind in anxiety and suspense, and his heart throbbed fast as he thought of Sibyl's assertion that Sidney had always loved him. Could it be true? Was it possible that the dark cloud which had overshadowed them for so long was passing away, and that the golden lining would remain? Could it be that out of a dying woman's confession, a confession of sin and guilt and misery and despair, happiness would come to him and to Sidney? Even now he thought he saw it come smilingly toward him; and yet no—it was not possible! Had Sidney ever loved him, she would not have believed him guilty of murder.

Almost half an hour slipped by in silence; then the old woman came out of the room where Sibyl was, and motioned to Stephen to go in.

"She has not long to live," she said, wiping her kind eyes, from which tears poured plentifully; and a flush rose to Lloyd Milner's cheek.

"Ah, pray Heaven she may live to make her confession!" he thought sadly. She had recovered entire consciousness when Stephen entered the room; but it seemed to him that her weakness was greater even than it had been before. There was a hectic spot on either cheek now, standing out so vividly on the ghastly pallor of her face that it had almost the effect of rouge. The window had been opened to give her as much air as possible, and she was wrapped in an old red shawl as she sat up among her pillows, looking eagerly toward the door.

"I am ready," she whispered hoarsely, holding out her trembling hands to Stephen—"but you must help me—I am so weak. Tell them to come in."

Grave enough now were the faces of the two men as they entered the room; and, as they passed in, the wild blue eyes caught sight of Lloyd waiting outside.

"There is some one else," she said in sudden terror. "Who is there?"

"Lloyd Milner, a friend," Stephen answered hastily, seeing her fear. "He is going to marry Dolly."

"To marry Dolly?" she repeated faintly. "Let him come in too. It does not matter, since you will hear it, who hears it."

Once more she seemed on the point of fainting; but she rallied, looking up at Stephen with piteous eyes.

"Oh, help me!" she moaned. "I am so weak, and I cannot die until I have spoken. Can you not give me something?" she asked, turning her eyes upon the grave compassionate face of the doctor.

In silence he gave her some restorative, glancing significantly over at Stephen as he held it to her lips. The glance was understood; it meant that whatever was to be done must be done quickly, or it would be too late. Thinking of the innocent man in the jail at Ashford, it was small wonder that Stephen's voice was somewhat unsteady as he spoke, bending toward Sibyl, as she rested among her pillows.

"Can you tell us, Sibyl?" Stephen said, bending toward her.

"What?" she asked vaguely, as if she had already forgotten; the dim blue eyes raised vacantly to his face.

"The circumstances of your husband's death?" he said gravely. "I told you that Frank Greville had been arrested on a charge of the murder."

"But he is innocent," she cried feebly, "because—I killed him!"

No Croup Tonight

No need to fear spasmodic croup. Rub baby's chest with Vicks at bed time. All night long medicated vapors arise and are inhaled. Croup can hardly develop. It does away with dosing and is equally effective for other cold troubles of young or old.

Ghostly Rider is Terror of Shires

Nightly Appearance of Mounted Spectre Scares the Natives
LONDON, Nov. 14.—The village of Warnaby, near Melton Mowbray, a favorite hunting ground of the Prince of Wales, where he has spent some time since his return from the Argentine, has been startled by the almost nightly appearance of a ghost on horseback.

The villagers dread the dusk, when they lock their homes, afraid to venture out, lest they should be molested by the mysterious rider.

The strange figure, wrapped in a white veil, usually appears about 10 p.m., and those who have seen it state that it is always seated on the "illuminated shadow of a horse."

The starting-post of this nightly ride is a field close to the village churchyard.

"The 'O' always appears to be silently given about the same time," said a farm laborer, who declares he has seen the rider several times. "Then away the horse gallops over the field, jumps a hedge, and disappears."

Mr. Hill, a lay reader who lives at Warnaby, is apparently the first person to have seen the white figure. One night when returning home he heard a mysterious rustling, and on looking round was terrified to see a ghost on horseback moving towards him. He was startled almost out of the senses.

The white rider seemed to pass through him on the country lane. Then it began to gallop, and, like a trained chaser, took a gate and other obstacles, and raced away over a field until out of sight.

A man living in the village, when driving home one night with his wife, saw the ghost, he asserts, on horseback emerging from behind a hedge. It halted for a few moments in the roadway. He pulled up, and waited until the "jockey ghost" moved away on his galloping steed.

Children's Colds

Are quickly, pleasantly relieved by Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine

If children's colds are got rid of promptly there will be less tendency to pneumonia and consumption in later life. It is the neglected, hanging-on cold that weakens the lungs and develops into serious trouble.

No treatment for coughs and colds was ever so popular with the children as Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine. It is so pleasant to the taste, so delightfully soothing and healing and affords relief so quickly that children soon turn to it instinctively when choked up with a cold or annoyed by coughing.

It is mother's favorite treatment for croup and bronchitis, for she knows it will bring relief when the midnight coughing spasms set in. It is wise to always have a bottle at hand for prompt use in emergency.

WORKERS AND TALKERS.

I engaged Jas. Dinger Thomas to whack up a cord of wood; he was free with hopeful promise, but at work he was no good. When he showed up in the morning he made caustic ribe and fins, all my fine equipment scragging, finding fault with everything. He incensed me with his twaddle; "By the sacred chewing gum, this fierce saw's an ancient model, and the sawbuck's out of plumb! And these axes have no edges, that a thumb of mine can feel, and I find old wooden wedges, where I'm used to ones of steel! All the wood is knotted, twisted, and my wrath—I cannot mask; oh, I wotted not or wisted I had drawn so punk a task! Such a job as this enrages me who likes a decent break," and he struck for higher wages ere he'd saved a single stake. So I chased him down the alley, bidding him come back no more, and engaged Charles Randolph Rally, who was looking for a chore. Charles attacked the woodpile gaily, singing ballads as he wrought, crying out no willy-wally, and his air was not distraught. Charles, who's diligent and willing, earns each day three bucks or two; James is always sadly drilling, looking for some work to do. Charles goes shopping in his silver, buying oysters by the pound; James is glad to have some liver when the dinner whistles sound.

BRITISH COAL OPERATORS STUDY U.S. MINES.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30. Five prominent operators of British collieries have come to the United States and are now making a first hand study of mining machinery and methods employed in this country. The real object of the visit is said to be to prevent nationalization of the British mines, which can only be done, it is said, through a reduction in operating costs and the enabling of British coal more readily to compete in foreign markets.

The New Street Cars

Editor Evening Telegram. Dear Sir.—Your Editorial of yesterday re Street Cars I certainly read with interest. We certainly mean to have all cars so as to open the doors towards the curb. When all tracks are laid and curves fixed, I think that even New York will envy our service here. The car is of the most modern type,—in fact it is the only one of its kind operating on this continent, having the treader system on a double end car. People here are gradually taking in new ideas, but seem to think that the new cars are rather unsafe, having to be handled with inexperienced men, but no matter what he does the car is fool proof and can be stopped at any place in its own car length. I find the operators very adaptable to their duties. In other cities it has taken much longer to organize and educate the men to run cars. With two weeks actual training, I think we have done wonders (of course we are all very British). Once the public get used to the new system I think we will be able to get a 10 minutes service all over the line.

The cars are equipped with two 25 h.p. motors, compressor with supplies of air for all controls and brakes, which automatically cut in and out at desired pressures and the overload is taken care of through a circuit breaker which cuts out at 250 volts. This insures no motor trouble. The doors are operated by air engines, supplied by the National Pneumatic Company of New Jersey. The heating, lighting and ventilation are features that have been well considered and the cars are all thoroughly disinfected, so that travelling public may have no fear of any contagion. These cars are so equipped that in case of the operator being incapacitated suddenly, the car power is shut off automatically. The brakes go on, sand goes on the rail and all doors are free to be opened by hand, so that passengers can get out of the car. It is a safety car, and if all the people would preach safety and act up to it, accidents would be eliminated and the best possible service given.

IF I WERE A BOOK CLERK.

I have told you many times in this column about the jobs I should love to try out sometime and how I would go about it. And as surely as Christmas comes around, the only thing that restrains me from applying for one of these positions is the rush of Christmas work and writing.

HELL TO THE UNBELIEVER.

My Christmas job would be that of sales clerk in the children's book department of some big store. It's a department that has always held me captive. I linger and pore over the lovely volumes and my only regret is that they are so expensive. But if you want to give a book to a child, save on something else and get him one of these beautifully illustrated childhood classics. It will be a worthwhile gift.

HELL TO THE UNBELIEVER.

My heart warmed to her. There under our eyes lay beautiful editions of Treasure Island, Robin Hood, Twenty Thousand Leagues Under the Sea, Pinocchio (the Italian child classic), The Children's Homer, King Arthur and the Knights of the Round Table, The Golden Pheasant—all with illustrations in exquisite color to set a boy to dreaming and living over those immortal tales which have charmed the children of so many ages. And the clerk (that feckless clerk!) after vaguely remarking that they were all good, suggested "something informing," and finally sold the woman an ornate boy's history of scientific investigation, or something of the sort.

HELL TO THE UNBELIEVER.

Oh, but wouldn't I love to be a clerk at that counter for a week or two around Christmas time! I'd sell a lovely illustrated edition of Aesop's Fables to that uncle who is wondering what to get for his four-year-old nephew, and I'd call his attention to the beautiful colored drawings and the clear text and try to make him want to share that boy's pleasure in the lovely pictures (here's such a world of enjoyment to be had in discovering for the children the beauties created by the moderns in picturing "these old tales"). And I'd sell a copy of Heidi, on her Swiss mountains, or Sara Crew in her attic, or Little Women (one of the new editions illustrated in color) to that mother who is wondering what would be a nice book for Mary. And I'd sell a slender volume of The Child's Garden of Verse—one that I know of with delicate pastel drawings—to that aunt who is wondering what would be a good book for Virginia who loves rhymes.

HELL TO THE UNBELIEVER.

And that man who wants a book about animals for a boy, I'd give him the Jungle book and I'd urge him to learn for himself the joy of taking young Bobby on his lap and reading to him that altogether satisfactory bit about the elephant who was always getting spanked by all his relatives. For his "astute curiosity" and who, as a result of those spankings, always felt "very warm but not at all surprised." And I'd ask that woman with the lovely melodious lilt to her voice if she sang, and when she modestly admitted that she used to a little before she was married, I would sell her a book of beautiful songs for children, and bid her sing them to her babies.

HELL TO THE UNBELIEVER.

These books will cost you good money, to be sure. But it is so surprising to find that folks who would never hesitate at paying the very highest prices for meat and eggs and milk and fruit to nourish little bodies will be satisfied with the cheapest when it comes to buying food to nourish children's minds.

HELL TO THE UNBELIEVER.

And if it's just the choice of what book to buy that's bothering you, I would remind you that the large publishing concerns nowadays, get out beautiful catalogues of books for boys and girls, full of illustrations and descriptions. They will gladly give them to you for the asking at any book department and you will find them not only helpful but interesting reading.

HELL TO THE UNBELIEVER.

An evening spent in the perusal of such a catalogue is one solution of the "what-to-buy" problem for children.

Revision of Assessment

Editor Evening Telegram. Dear Sir.—As Municipal affairs are causing a good deal of public interest at the present time, it might not be amiss to call attention to the Public Notice appearing in the daily press announcing that a Court of Revision will be held on every lawful day during the month of December from 2:30 to 4 p.m. each day.

How the two gentlemen who constitute this Court hope to settle the complaints and objections which will undoubtedly come before them in the time at their disposal is a mystery to me.

There are 28 lawful days in December and the time allotted is 1 1/2 hours each day, or a grand total of 42 hours. Allowing on an average 15 minutes for every taxpayer, who has a grievance to state their case and receive judgment, the Court can only handle 170 cases. The balance of taxpayers who don't feel satisfied with their appraisal and who in all probability spend 1 1/2 hours on one or more days in an endeavour to gain an audience, but without success, have to abide by the decision of the appraiser for the next two years, without the hope of an adjustment.

Christmas Fair

AT ST. MICHAEL'S CHURCH LECTURE ROOM.

The annual Christmas Fair, in aid of the Parish of St. Michael and All Angels, opens this evening in the lecture room of St. Michael's Church. Large stocks of fancy work, home cookery, handkerchiefs, etc., have been prepared and the ladies in charge of the stalls hope to be kept busy during the evening. Afternoon and meat teas will be served. The sale will be continued to-morrow, closing with a concert, beginning at 8 o'clock.

A Little Personal Stuff

"BLOWING ONE'S OWN HORN"

During the past few days I have been asked several times what the outgoing Council has accomplished during its term of power. At the beginning of the campaign I thought seriously of publishing a statement of the work accomplished other than the ordinary routine and detail work, but refrained for two reasons: one, because I did not want the erroneous impression abroad that I was forming a party of the present Council to contest the election; and, two, because I did not want to usurp, personally, all the credit for such work as has been accomplished by the outgoing Council.

Before going any further, I therefore make this statement, subject, of course, to my being returned: I AM PREPARED TO WORK AMICABLY WITH ANY FIVE OTHERS WITHOUT EXCEPTION RETURNED FROM THOSE NOMINATED ON SATURDAY. BE THEY NEW OR OLD CANDIDATES. I shall naturally reserve my right to vote on any matter of City interest in any way I see fit and to advocate anything I may think to be for the betterment of the town.

The Council of which I have had the honour of being a member during the past four years has accomplished the following, without increasing the taxation:—

1. The reduction of the City arrears by fifty thousand dollars the first year it was in office. The arrears accumulated during the past four years amount to only a few hundred dollars, about seventy-five per cent. of which is collectable and is being collected every day. (The large bulk of arrears carried on the City's books is years old—some of it dating back thirty-eight years—and should be written off.)
2. The building of new Sanitary Stables at a cost of $16,000.00. This is an accomplishment that many previous City Councils "fumbled". The old stables were falling down, were unsanitary and were a menace to the health and welfare of the residents of Hayward Avenue, the Council employees and the Council live stock.
3. The taking over and maintaining of Bowring Park since January 1924 at an annual cost of $10,000.
4. The rebuilding of Gull Pond Dam at a cost of $2,000, thereby safeguarding the City's water supply.
5. The widening of LeMarchant Road and the removing of dilapidated houses there at a cost of $2,000. The widening of Watford Bridge Road at the Cross Roads.
6. The purchase of the North Side of Quidi Vidi Lake at a cost of $1,100, thereby preserving the use of same for citizens for all time.

"I PERSONALLY."

(Last week I got criticised by at least one member of the present Council and a very good friend of mine, the head of one of the Council's departments, for using the expression "I personally" in one of my advertisements. I admit that one member of the Council can do nothing "personally" unless he receives the support of the majority of the members of the Council. All the same, a single member of the Council can advocate improvements and can carry them through if he goes the right way about it.) Therefore:—

- (1) "I personally" was a party to each and every one of the improvements noted above being put through.
- (2) "I personally" as a member of the Lighting Committee (with Councilor Ryan) was responsible for over three hundred new lights being placed in the city.
- (3) "I personally" got a plank walk placed on the lower Southside, where goodness knows it was badly needed. (This, by the way, was one of my original planks.)
- (4) "I personally" kept the East End taxmen and cabmen on Water Street when certain "powers that be" had it all planned to shift them to Duckworth Street. I made a strenuous fight to keep the Central taxmen on Water Street in the place where the war tank now is (shifting the tank to Bannerman Park) but lost out on this through opposition from outside the Council.

(5) "I personally" was responsible for the Children's Playgrounds being located in Bannerman and Victoria Parks. Anyone who has read the Playground Director's Report recently published (a copy of which I should be glad to send anyone interested) will agree that this Playground movement started by the Rotarians and carried out by the Playground and Recreation Association is one of the finest things that has ever been done in this city.

(6) "I personally" have always voted in favor of any request, without exception, made by the Child Welfare Association.

(7) "I personally" have always given careful consideration and support to any legitimate request of any employee of the Council for increased pay or better conditions. Ask them.

(8) "I personally" am the individual to whom a member for St. John's

East said last year. "For the Lord's sake stop harping on the City's share of the Road Grants!" I'm still harping!

P. E. OUTERBRIDGE.

Mr. Dowden Writes on Municipal Matters

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir,—In view of the close proximity of the Municipal election, I feel you will agree with me that the public should expect some pronouncement from the Board as to what has happened during the last four years. When it was first known that the present councilors intended seeking re-election I suggested to one of my conferees that we appeal to citizens as a body, but as he did not think kindly of the idea, I bring the matter further. Later, when Mr. Outerbridge mooted a public meeting of all the candidates, I immediately accepted his invitation, and was sorry to learn as appeared by advertisement in your paper, that I was the only one, beside himself, willing to face the voters. Perhaps, it was modesty on the part of the other ladies and gentlemen, and I do not wish to suggest for a moment that because they preferred not to address a public meeting in one of our large halls, they would not be capable members of the Municipal Council, still, I think you will again agree with me that if they have something good to offer the proper course would be to let the public know it.

Personally, and I must crave your pardon for being personal in my correspondence, not that I wish to place myself in the limelight or desire to impress anyone that I have done more than my duty during my term of office, but I have no authority to speak for my brother councilors, not that I would not gladly do so if any thing I could say or do would be of service to them. Let me continue, then, personally, I am sorry that meeting did not materialize, for I intended to give an account of my stewardship, and I confidently believe that had the public the opportunity of knowing what has been accomplished under the regime of Mayor Cook, many would change their opinions.

But, before I go further may I through your columns tender my congratulations to His Honor the Mayor of his reelection today without opposition. It must be complimentary to him to feel that the public are satisfied with his work at least, and in a small sense perhaps those of us who are his associates may consider it a compliment as well.

Had I the pleasure of addressing that meeting I would, as I have said given an account of my stewardship, but I am almost certain that I would have made no rash promises. Four years ago, during the campaign I studiously avoided making promises, and to-day I am not sorry for it. At that time I was just fresh from newspaper work and for twenty years followed the actions of our city councilors and the Commission in the interests of the paper that I was identified with, and I felt that if I made promises that I knew could not be fulfilled then I would regret it. As I say I "covered," to use a newspaper expression, the work of ex-Mayors Ellis, Gosling and others. I sat and listened to such great men as the late Messrs. J. W. Withers, C. Muir, E. M. Jackman, J. J. Mullaly, as well as our present, Mr. I. C. Morris, Hon. F. McNamara, Mr. Frank Bradshaw and others, all leaders in their business and professions, debate civic questions, and I saw as they saw and realized the almost utter impossibility of accomplishing what they desired, and learning from their experience I dispensed with the idea of a Platform.

When elected I immediately determined that I would take as deep a concern in civic matters as my ability permitted, that I would permit no question to go by the board without full consideration, and I have endeavored to do that. And I do not wish to convey the idea here that the other councilors did not feel the same. So keenly interested in civic matters have I been, that if you could turn up the minutes of our meetings, you would find I think, that since taking office at the beginning of 1921 I have not missed a meeting. That is a record of which I think one may be proud. I do not wish you to think that the "Loving Cup" has been passed around at each session, for there have been differences of opinion, but all discussions have been carried on in a gentlemanly manner, the one thought of all being the welfare of the city.

On assuming office four years ago, the first thing that confronted me was a deficit of $50,000.00 on current account. I firmly believe that our predecessors got value for it but the fact remained, sir, that this debt was there, and it was our duty to pay it. The financial statement being prepared the Board got busy, and I think it is only right to say at this juncture, that the officials worked like Trojans to get us out of the hole, with the result that at the end of our first year, we found the money and balanced even.

This could only be done by everyone putting forth a special effort but that it was accomplished, I think we can justly feel proud of. Hard times prevailed everywhere, labor was scarce, but we got after the old accounts and in twelve months succeeded in raising the money from arrears. We have continued to lessen the amount of arrears yearly, and the sum owed to-day on current account amounts to very little.

I know, Mr. Editor, from my newspaper days that space in your paper is at a premium and consequently I will stop here, but as I subsequently I will stop here, but as I during our term of office, may I ask you to be good enough to grant me a column or so during the few succeeding days to try and give the public some little idea of what we have done, I feel you will do it if for no other reason than the sake of old acquaintance. Again thanking you, I remain, Very sincerely yours, REG BOWDEN, St. John's, Nov. 28th, 1925.

Keep Parlour Plants Fit

Why do most parlour plants—the ferns, or palms or what not that adorn your table and window—look so sick and sorry for themselves? Because they are harmed, by the way, don't get enough light and fresh air. Not a bit of it. Their trouble, the times out of ten, is that you fuss over them too much.

How often do you water your plants? Probably every day; and you give them cold water straight from the tap, no doubt. Actually, at this time of the year and through the winter they want watering—even the hardiest of them, like aspidistras and maidenhair ferns—no more than once in eight or ten days. The water must have the chill taken out of it, too; it should be roughly of the same temperature as that of the room.

You can always tell when a plant needs water by tapping the pot and listening to the sound. A "soggy" note means that the soil is moist enough; a hollow ringing sound means that another little drink wouldn't do any harm!

Don't give the drink by means of a kitchen jug. Immerse the pot early to its rim in a bucket and let stay there for about a quarter of an hour, or until bubbles cease to rise.

Most parlour plants can do with a good now and again, and the best one for them is soft-water, made by soaking a muslin bag filled with pebbles in a pail of water for two days. Plant fertilisers, as sold by florists, dissolved in water at the rate of a teaspoonful to the gallon, are also good.

Never feel anything but a plant performing with good health. A sick plant can never be made well simply by manuring it.

If a parlour plant is unwell, that is losing its leaves, developing brown spots on its foliage or the leaves are going brown at the tips, here is what you should do:

Slip your hand over the top of the pot, with the plant's stem through your fingers, invert the pot, give it a tap on the edge of the table and draw out the plant, soil and all, that you can have a look at the roots. Probably the "bell" of soil will be wet and pasty and some of the roots decayed.

Pick out most of the bad soil, cut away the obviously dead roots, swirl the remainder in a bath of very weak permanganate of potash. Wash the pot in the same bath and then use fresh soil that has been free of leaf mould and silver sand.

Two heads are better than one. On vote for FANNIE McLELLIN and MAY KENNEDY.

Keep Smiling

F. AVELING, M.C., Ph.D., D.Sc.

Great psychologist of the past has astonished his pupils with his because long forgotten.

"Sense," he taught, "says that fortune, are sorry and that a bear, are frightened and we are insulted by a rival, and strike. The rational statement is that we are sorry because we cry, angry because we strike, afraid because we smile."

He can imagine the pupils saying, "Must be right, but it sounds all wrong"; for, at first sight, it certainly is paradoxical. To be frightened because we are running away from it.

There is truth in the doctrine, the less, since the state of our mind undoubtedly has an influence on our feelings. You wake up in the morning to a dull, expressed and miserable outlook. The day is all grey. The sun is not shining for everyone you meet is ugly; everything in the universe against you.

Only brace up! Fill your mind with your muscles! Look passers-by in the eyes! Smile! The exhilarating thrill of the tingling blood and taut muscles and lungs surges up in your mind wraps you about, till—presto!—the gloomy mood vanishes! The world no longer so drab and unfriendly! The sun is shining, and beauty is to be found in the most unlikely places! Laugh, and the world laughs with you. Weep, and you weep alone. If you weep, not seldom the world weeps at you. The world is full of tears.

There is much truth in the seemingly topsy-turvy view of the psychologists. But its practical application is not merely a counsel of perfection for the melancholic nor an appeal to selfishness all round. Not you, but the world at large, will be the better for more smiles and more the merrier.

Keep smiling! Often it is difficult, but the results are worth it.—Daily

A Duty

The Daily News this morning makes an appeal on behalf of the Permanent Marine Disasters Fund which it is certain, will strike a responsive chord in the heart of every Newfoundlander who reads it.

Seafarers, Newfoundlanders are by nature; seafarers, they will continue to be just as long as the waves of ocean thunder against our shores.

Those of us who sleep safely at home, while the storm with which the fisherman is fighting for his very existence is raging outside, are no less dependent upon the success of his efforts for our comfort than he for the pittance it brings him.

Newfoundland has mercifully been spared any disaster of an overwhelming nature during the fishing season which has just closed.

conclude that the concurrence of all is only a matter of time. The following message was flashed around the world this morning announcing that the feelings of mistrust and suspicion among the European powers had given way to a mutual understanding and an earnest desire to live at peace.

Treaty of Locarno, made between the leading powers of Europe and binding their Governments to maintain the territorial frontiers established by the Treaty of Versailles ever to the extent of war, was signed here to-day. The plenipotentiaries of Great Britain, France, Germany, Belgium and Italy affixed their signatures to the document. Four subsidiary pacts pledging the use of arbitration in the event of boundary disputes between Germany and each of her neighbors, France, Belgium, Poland and Czechoslovakia, were signed at the same time.

Come, Newfoundlanders, whenever the call on behalf of the widow and orphan is heard, rally to their aid! Generous though your response has been in the many appeals made recently, let not the Christmas season dawn before your aid has been lent to this worthy object.

The Agreement Signed The event which occurred in the British Foreign Office this morning, when the plenipotentiaries of various European States penned their signatures to the Locarno Pact and the other arbitration agreements, marks an epoch of world import, and gives promise of a period of peace such as has never before been known.

Record Attendance at the Circus

The G.W.V.A. Circus has proved a great success. This event, all for the modest sum of twenty-five cents, is delighting the many patrons of the show. Many who have seen it are "making repeated returns visits, and last night's attendance reached the high point thus far. The performers apply improvements in their stunts nightly.

YOTING CONTEST

In connection with the popularity contest, all interested are asked to note the fact that this will be closed at 11 p.m., after the close of Thursday's show, at the Rink. Checkers have been employed, and at 9 a.m. Friday they will begin. Hourly bulletins will be posted at the Maritime Drug Store. It is planned to complete checking by Saturday noon, when the final figures will be announced.

TO-DAY'S MESSAGES

WAR THREATENS OVER MOSUL DISPATCH LONDON, Dec. 1.—The Westminster Gazette says an exceedingly grave situation has arisen regarding the dispute between Great Britain and Turkey over the Mosul frontier, and that there is a serious danger of war.

NEGRO WORKMEN, TRAPPED IN A BUNK HOUSE, PERISH. TAMPA, Fla., Dec. 1.—Ten to twelve negro workmen were killed and more than a score injured early to-day in a storm that swept Tampa and other points along the west coast. The workmen were asleep in a bunk house when the gale caused it to collapse.

NINE PERSONS KILLED AT A LEVEL CROSSING. BLITHEVILLE, Pa., Dec. 1.—Nine persons were killed and one injured, probably fatally, when the St. Louis and San Francisco passenger train struck an automobile, in which ten persons were riding, at a crossing near here yesterday.

Magistrate's Court A seaman named Williams, who joined the S.S. Hitherwood in Montreal on her last sailing was fined $10 or 30 days imprisonment for assaulting and wounding a ship mate named Martin. The latter stated that he gave Williams no cause for the assault.

Magistrate's Court A boarding mistress of the west end of the city, who yesterday had her husband bound over to keep the peace appeared before His Honor again to-day and complained that her better half had not mended his ways and had tried to evict her boarders. Hubby, who has been the star boarder, was ordered to leave the home and sign a bond of $100 as surety that he will not give his wife any more trouble.

Magistrate's Court A twenty-five-year-old laborer of Plank Road, named Fender, whom the Judge dubbed a "property damage" man, was given six months imprisonment for a string of larcenies and charges of doing damage to property. Included in the charges were that of destroying the fence valued $20.00 on the property of James Beck, on Saturday night last; stealing a barrel of pork from the store of Jas. Wiseman, Carter's Hill on Wednesday night last, and on the same date breaking a pane of glass in the residence of David Donnelly, McParlane Street, also taking on the same night a barrel supposed to contain beer from the store of Fred Best, Brasill's Square; on Thursday night last whilst making a purchase at the store of Mrs. Mary Murphy, Water Street, of stealing a cash box and its contents; a number of the charges for doing property damage dated back to Nov. 21st and are as follows:—Damage to school, Mundy Pond; smashing a gallery belonging to Joseph Butler, Pierce Avenue; breaking gates owned by M. Whelan and John Connors and a fence owned by Wm. Ebbary, all residents of Pierce Avenue. The prisoner pleaded guilty.

Magistrate's Court A 25-year-old laborer named Dewling, resident of Hayward Avenue, pleaded guilty to a charge of obtaining money under false pretences and was remanded for eight days. The prisoner is charged with obtaining by means of a cheque on the Royal Bank of Canada the sum of $5 from Alexander Housley, an employee at Clouston's. He it appears, had no funds in the bank. It is alleged that the accused has issued other worthless cheques and postponement of the case was asked in order that the police may collect them.

Magistrate's Court The proprietors of the Premier Sporting Times appealed against a conviction by the Ipswich justices and a fine for running a football betting business. The question was whether a newspaper publishing a coupon and offering money prizes to readers who successfully forecast the results of a specified day match be convicted of an offence against the Betting Money Football Betting Act, 1924.

Magistrate's Court The appellants' obligation began at the time the first purchaser paid his 50 and sent him a coupon and they took the 25k and were betting on the chance of the sales reaching the amount of the prize money.

British Envoy Claims Europe on Mend

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 28.—(A.P.)—"Great Britain and the United States are working together to set China on her feet and to free her by friendly assistance from the Communist domination under which at one time a considerable part of her population seemed anxious to fall." Sir Esmé Howard, the British Ambassador said at a dinner of the Knife and Fork Club and the St. Andrew's Society. The Ambassador urged that the atmosphere of distrust such as marked pre-war days in Europe be not allowed to grow up between English-speaking nations who he said, saw the difficulties arising out of the state of civil war in China, and would like to see them removed so that Chinese aspirations might be fulfilled.

"If England and the Dominions on one side," he said, and this great Republic on the other can continue to stand shoulder to shoulder to promote peace and prosperity in the Far East by fair play and justice, and open and frank dealing with the two great for Eastern nations, China and Japan, we shall accomplish there what I sincerely hope France and Germany and the other signatories of the Locarno treaties will at last accomplish in Europe, just and enduring peace.

"I can quite understand the feelings that prompted the majority of the American people in making that decision," he said, "and I feel sure that feeling as they did, it was better that the United States did not enter the League, for had they done so, it is more than probable that, disgusted with the aftermath of war and what appeared to be the hopeless tangle of European animosities, they would have retired from the League and that might have been a death blow to it."

Although coming as a shock, he continued, the decision compelled the peoples of Europe to try to work out their own salvation, contending against an atmosphere of distrust which he likened to the "nightmare" stage of European history.

"But I would like to tell you this, gentlemen," he added, "Affairs in Europe are on the mend. I believe that the signature of the Locarno security treaties, which seem to me by far the most important thing in the history of the world for generations past, provided they are ratified and kept, is the result of this changed feeling."

These treaties were not merely the instruments negotiated by statesmen and diplomats, he asserted, but reflected a general and popular desire for peace.

Let T. E. Collett show you what a young man can do on the Council Board.—decl.16

London's Houses of Parliament Are in a Bad Way

Towers and Cupolas Now Shapeless Blobs—Loose Stone a Menace. LONDON, Nov. 28.—(Canadian Press Cable)—The towers, cupolas and gables which have adorned the Houses of Parliament in the past have degenerated to almost shapeless blobs of masonry constituting an eyesore to certain angles. But a more serious aspect is the disintegration of the buildings mentioned by the noted architect, Sir Frank Baines, to a committee of the House of Commons. Sir Frank said that members of Parliament were beset with great dangers as they walked on the terraces. There was no fear of the building collapsing, he assured them; it was too well built for that, but owing to the combined effects of London's smoky atmosphere and the crystallization of the stonework the building was in a state of extreme mutilation.

P. E. OUTERBRIDGE. Just as predicted, "North of 36" super special, which was shown at the Majestic Theatre last night, was all that was said about it and every one of the large audience who witnessed it is loud in praise of the excellence of this stupendous production. It is generally conceded that this extraordinary film is greater and better than "The Covered Wagon." The spectacular stampede, the Indian locations and the other outstanding scenes which helped to make the picture what it is were, to say the least, marvellous. As said before, an all star cast is featured, the most outstanding being Lois Wilson, Jack Holt, Noah Beery and Ernest Torrence. To-night the picture will be repeated, also tomorrow afternoon, when popular prices will prevail. Apart from the fact of inducing the public, in the ordinary course of events, we do certainly suggest that every screen lover should make a special point of "North of 36," not alone because of the many spectacular scenes and the wholesome story that is bodied in the same, but because picture is really one that will from an educational standpoint, is a typical lay-out of the days on the Texas border.

the Voters in the Forthcoming Election

Every candidate offering himself for election has for his platform a cleaner and better city but we say where they will get the credit for making the city better. Now I say Ladies and Gentlemen during this week I will tell you my reasons. I will tell you how money can be saved without adding to the citizens' burden. My scheme is an insurance company organized by the St. John's Municipal Council, which would be a great profit to the company. Judging from the losses now being suffered by insurance companies operating in St. John's, I believe I can suggest a company to help better our city. This is what I would suggest, on the Market bonds for the amount of say two hundred thousand dollars paying an interest of 6% and running in 40 years. I am sure every Newfoundlander would place his money in such a company and I am sure that every insurance agent will co-operate with this scheme. The insurance company and its policies when they know it will pay St. John's and keep 600 thousand dollars in Newfoundland which now being paid into foreign countries. Just think another five hundred thousand dollars kept in Newfoundland and spent in Newfoundland. This scheme is worth trying. It is one of my four ways to get money for city improvements. I am sure you will find it a better insurance. Agents will co-operate with a local insurance company. If you see you will. So if you want a valuable company organized, write to T. E. COLLETT, The Young Candidate.

A Progressive Firm

During the past few years many changes have taken place in the commercial life of our city, and the passing of many old landmarks has been the occasion of keen regret; but it must be admitted by even the most casual observer that the more progressive firms are creating improvements that are a source of pleasure and gratification, not alone to the owners but to the general public as well, for all these improvements reflect upon the beauty and value of our city as a whole. In this respect we might mention The Broadway House of Fashion as one of the outstanding features in local affairs. This store, although comparatively young, being just on the eve of its fourth anniversary, has beautifully a locality that was formerly much behind the times. The newest development of the Broadway is the creation of an up-to-date bargain basement, such as every large American city has boasted of. This basement has just been completed; it covers an area of 35 x 48 feet, is brilliantly illuminated by electricity equal to 5,000 candles, whilst an atmosphere of cleanliness prevails which the most fastidious person could not fail to appreciate. Mr. A. Cohen, the general proprietor, is now here on a visit from New York, and the new development is due in no small measure to his progressive policy and gift of organization. His nephew, Mr. Harry Cohen, is general manager, whilst Miss A. Sparkes as head of the ladies' department and Mr. C. W. Rabbits as sales manager, together with a large and efficient staff of assistants, will continue to serve the public with the same friendly courtesy as heretofore.—11

"Cappy Ricks" Season's Best Play

Peter B. Kyne's Famous Characters Appear in Spirited Play by Balfour Company. The characters made famous in the "Cappy Ricks" stories were bound to find their way on to the stage, and hence the Balfour Stock Co.'s presentation at the Casino last night. As Matt Peasley, a sailorman from New England, who drifts into San Francisco and gets up against the redoubtable Ricks, Charles D. Higer lends his fine physique and personality to the impersonation of a red-blooded young chap who is fifty-fifty on brains and brawn, and knows how to win a true woman as well as enforce his orders when he becomes the captain of a ship. Loreta Nicholson makes Florence Ricks a real girl, her mannerisms and charm greatly enhance the beauty of the role. J. E. Balfour is admirable as "Cappy Ricks." The strong-willed, quick tempered-but-kind hearted old ship owner as presented by Mr. Balfour is a perfect character. Billy Phillips throws his usual bit of wholesome and original comedy into his role. Marie Fischer is particularly good as confidential clerk to "Cappy Ricks." W. W. Hankins as Skinner Hight is all at home in the character which she so faithfully portrays. The remainder of the cast do excellent work. The story has plenty of clever twists and turns, and the dramatic scenes are frequently offset by a good breed of humor. The settings used in this bill are magnificent and the play is true to life in atmosphere and color. Last night's vaudeville can easily be described as the best yet. Billy Phillips in monologue nearly brought down the house, as also did W. W. Hankins in his song and recitation: Jack McKenna's solos were well received. Valmore Balfour did a number entitled "So This is Venice" and received a big ovation. The above entertainment will be repeated to-night and to-morrow afternoon as a matinee and at night. Book reservations now. The final bill will be "Is Marsden a Failure?" Watch for this play on Thursday. Stafford's Phoratone for coughs and colds, nov15,17

More Fun Than "Charley's Aunt"

SYD CHAPLIN HAS NEW COMEDY HIT IN "MAN ON THE BOX." The Nickel Theatre will feature a Warner Bros. Classic of the Screen when "The Man on the Box," starring Syd Chaplin, begins an engagement next week with one of the most remarkable casts of the season. The picture is said to be even funnier than "Charley's Aunt," Syd's last production and one of the biggest box-office hits ever screened. In one sequence Syd impersonates a flirtatious maid, and with his handsome features disguised with wig and make-up, was quite an attractive figure on the Warner lot during the making of the picture. It is said that Bill Montana, seeing this young lady from the distance, asked for an introduction to Syd Chaplin. At any rate, the photoplay is claimed by reviewers in other cities to be a complete "knockout." "The Man on the Box" is an adaptation of the celebrated novel and play from the pen of Harold McGrath. On the stage, Chaplin's role was played by Henry B. Dixey. The story concerns the romantically amusing adventures of "Bob" Warburton, young, wealthy and charming, who hires out as a coachman. Charles "Chuck" Reiser not only directed the production but appears in the supporting cast that includes David Butler, Alice and Kathleen Calhoun.

Progress and Cost of National Housing

From July 8 to September 9 about 30,000 houses for the working-classes have been authorised under the existing Acts; 14,000 under the 1923 Act, and 16,000 under the Act of 1924. The October issue of Garden Cities and Town Planning, from which these figures are taken, reports a grand total of houses completed under all categories of 441,978. The issue also shows complete tables given from the beginning of the housing drive and fall of the cost of the parlour and non-parlour houses. The year 1919 beginning with about £660 for the non-parlour house, the cost rose during the next year to nearly £900. A steady descent took place until the end of 1922, when the figure of £331 was the cost of the non-parlour house. Since then, as the tables show, the cost has slowly risen to the figure now reported as for August, £496.

NASH-DOBBIN. A quiet but very pretty wedding was solemnized at the Sacred Heart Church, St. Bride's, on November 22nd, when Miss Bridget, Nash, of Branch was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Mr. Michael Dobbin of Regina. The Very Rev. Francis J. D. Ryan, P.P., officiated. The young bride looked pretty in a suit of pale blue satin with hat to match and carried a prayer book. She was attended by her sister, Miss Lena, and Miss Mary Quigley, cousin of the groom, both of whom looked charming in suits of blue silk crepe de chaux with hats to match. The groom was ably supported by his brother Stan, and John, brother of the bride. After the ceremony the party was entertained at Mrs. Jas. E. Conway's, where a dainty luncheon was served, after which they wended their way to Branch, where a sumptuous repast was partaken of and where some seventy guests were entertained at the home of the bride's parents. On Monday they took their departure for Regina, their future home, where a supper was held at the home of the groom's parents and dancing was indulged in till the wee sma' hours. The many and valuable presents of which they were the recipients proved the esteem in which the young couple are held.

MEADUS-SEAWARD

A very pretty wedding took place at St. Michael's Church on Nov. 28th when Albert Meadus was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Rosamond Seaward, the Rev. Nicholas officiating. The bride looked charming in a navy blue costume, with hat to match, while Miss Laura Meadus, sister of the groom, acted as bridesmaid; she was attired in blue-silk with hat to match and carried a bunch of orange blossoms. After the ceremony the happy couple motored to the home of the groom. Southside, where a wedding supper was served and the usual toasts duly honored. The bride looked very beautiful and costly presents, including a cheque from her father and a white-gold wrist watch from the groom. We wish Mr. and Mrs. Meadus many years of wedded bliss. A GUEST.

British Dyestuffs

PURCHASE OF THE STATE SHAREHOLDING.

A circular to be sent to the shareholders of the British Dyestuffs Corporation recommending the purchase by the corporation of the Government's holding of shares.

It is understood that the ratification by the shareholders of the terms of purchase is urged as a means of removing the company from the veto of the Government and enabling it to pursue henceforth an independent course which will enable it to cover a much wider field than has hitherto been possible.

There is no reference in the circular, it is further understood, to a renewal of negotiations with the German dyestuff industry. No negotiations have taken place since the Government vetoed the agreement proposed in 1923 by which the British Dyestuffs Corporation was to have the benefit of Germany's technical knowledge in exchange for part of its profits.

The corporation will, however, now be ready to consider whether, in view of the fact that Germany cannot retain her former monopoly, there are certain directions in which it would be politic, from a trade point of view, to co-operate with her.

GERMAN HOPES. It is hoped here that the report from London that the British Government has resolved to give up its shares in the British Dyestuffs Corporation is true.

The great concern of Germany which before the war supplied the world with aniline dyes are now united in a single corporation, which wants nothing better than to combine with the British company in order to place German dyes on the markets of the British Empire. A scheme which has more than once been under discussion is for co-operation of such an intimate character that the purchaser would not know whether the colors he bought were of British or of German manufacture. Certain German secrets of manufacture would be revealed, and there would be a plan for manufacturing some dyes in England and others in Germany.

Justice Halts "Reds" Lawyer

REFUSES TO HEAR CONTEMPT ALLEGATION AGAINST HOME SECRETARY.

London, Nov. 24. (G.P.)—At the continuation to-day of the trial of the 12 Communists, charged with seditious conspiracy and violation of the Incitement to mutiny Act of 1917, one of the counsel for the accused W. Pringle, asserted that the Home Secretary, Sir William Joynson-Hicks, in a speech at Isleworth last night was guilty of contempt of court.

Justice Swift, the presiding judge, said: "If the Home Secretary is guilty of contempt of court you must prove it in the ordinary way, before the proper tribunal."

The counsel showed a disposition to pursue the matter further and remarked: "I felt it my duty—"

The judge interrupted him before the sentence was finished and intimated that the matter was ended. "Let me hear no more of it," he said.

Later the judge again took Pringle up sharply when, in arguing in justification of the Communists' speeches and published literature, the counsel attempted to read a speech said to have been made at one time by Lord Carson. The speech in question was not read.

The Home Secretary's speech referred to in court by Pringle was in reply to Socialists who were interrupting a meeting. Sir William Joynson-Hicks was quoted as saying: "Some of you might be a little better for a touch of Mussolini's rule," and adding: "I have restrained myself recently and have made no speeches about the Communists, but when the trial is over those of you who are Communists will be ashamed of yourselves."

How Science Brings to Industry

"COURAGE WHICH COMES OF KNOWLEDGE."

"As dull as a Blue Book" is a saying that is getting less true as the years go by. The report of the Privy Council Committee on Scientific and Industrial Research has just been issued, and is signed by Earl Balfour on behalf of the Committee. It makes good reading, as is proved by the following:

"Two generations passed before Faraday's prophecy that his electromagnetic experiments might interest a Chancellor of the Exchequer began to be fulfilled, and although the lag tends to diminish as applied science is consciously and systematically cultivated, it must always be considerable in new investigations of a complex kind and of large industrial significance," boasts the report after the paragraphs quoted above.

A Long Business at the Best.
"Twenty years' hard work were necessary to place artificial indigo on the market after its synthesis in the laboratory. The Department itself has been studying the low temperature carbonisation of coal as a 'works' scale for seven years since Sir George Bellamy first put the problem on a sound scientific basis, and commercial success has not yet been achieved. The application of science to industry, if new things rather than improvements in old things are to be achieved, is a long business at the best—and expensive both in money and brains.

"The experimental work necessary for the commercial production of synthetic indigo is said to have cost over a million sterling. The cost of the Fuel Research Station up to the present has been over £400,000 in capital and maintenance. Yet though the production of smokeless fuel, fuel oil, light spirit, lubricants and gas cannot yet be shown to be commercially possible by low results have been obtained in other directions that have brought profit and savings to industry and the nation exceeding the total expenditure on fuel research by the Government.

"The new method of gas regulation by means of the 'therm' and the work on 'steaming in vertical retorts,' to mention only two pieces of work done, have sufficed to produce these results. Neither of these successes were foreseen when we appointed the Fuel Research Board and decided to establish the station.

"It is obvious, we believe, that science alone cannot save industry from its present troubles, if only because it takes too long to bring about big changes. But it can help by making many smaller and quicker improvements in existing practice, and above all by giving industry that 'resilience' of which the Prime Minister spoke, the Daily Telegraph, commenting on knowledge."

Eggs, Beef, and Apple Puzzles.

"The field is wide. The comprehensive view of the Committee ranges from the pit-head to the laundry, from the railway bridge to Jerusalem artichoke and the frozen egg," says the Daily Telegraph, commenting on the Committee's report.

"They hope to assist even in a matter which seems to offer so little scope for scientific research as the building of cheap houses.

"A better knowledge of the properties of materials, an investigation of the possibilities of slag and clinker might be worth while, they remark, at a time when we are putting up small houses at the cost of £40,000-000 a year.

"The trade is continually asking the Committee for advice on the keeping and handling of foodstuffs. Science has not yet discovered how to freeze beef to the satisfaction of the consumer, and the egg does not take to cold storage as kindly as could be wished.

"The fact revealed in this report that under the influence of cold the yolk passes permanently into a curdled, stiff, pasty condition' will be of interest to many sufferers. The apple is also sensitive to cold, and very elaborate investigations are being made to ensure that the fruit from Australian orchards comes to us at its best.

Intrinsic and Varied Problems.
There are problems of high temperature as well as of low, problems of what different metals will do under great heat. Metals, like men, become tired, and the fatigue strength of different kinds of steel and the means of increasing its endurance must be studied.

Aeroplane must be silenced for the benefit of the passenger and the miserably inhabitants of the earth beneath. It would be pleasant to have standard tests for motor tyres. The action of micro-organisms on fabrics may not seem of the first importance to the man in the street, but it interests the textile industry. How the unwanted fish may be made to yield a reliable glue is as well worth study as what should be used to fill a tooth and what to make artificial teeth.

"The Committee hope for synthetic products of a permanent colour which will resemble so far as possible that of the human guise. So important are the results of an inquiry into the vibration of bridges that it is expected ed the design not only of bridges, but of locomotives, will be affected.

All the Activities of Man.

"An investigation of the means of producing power alcohol has led to the rejection of the beet and the mango in favour of the Jerusalem artichoke, which yields cellulose from its stalk in addition to alcohol from its tuber.

"But such a catalogue as this does no more than suggest the work of the Committee. It leaves out, for example, the thousand and one problems of wireless under inquiry. It ignores half the departments of a complex and elaborate organisation. "For we have come to a time in which applied science takes all the activities of man for its province, and to the simplest as well as to the most sophisticated can point an easier and a better way."—Public Opinion.

The King of Siam Dead PASSES AWAY ONE MONTH AFTER DIVORCING HIS WIFE.

BANGKOK, Siam, Nov. 26.—Rama VI, the King of Siam for 14 years, died today, about a month after he had divorced his Queen and taken another wife in the hope of having an heir to the throne. His hopes were not realized and his younger brother, Prince Praja Dhupok, succeeds to the throne. A daughter was born yesterday to the new queen.

Rama VI, who was 45 years of age, recently underwent an operation for an abdominal abscess, from which he did not recover. Prior to the operation he had suffered from acute gastritis.

Educated at Oxford, Rama on his marriage in 1922 to Princess Lakshmi Lavan, abandoned polygamy and abolished the harem which his father had maintained.

In 1910, it was decided that until King Rama had male issue the succession should be through the Queen Mother's son.

Last month Rama deposed his queen on the ground that she had not carried out her duties toward king and country "in a satisfactory manner."

The daughter born yesterday to the king and the new queen, was the first child to be born to a king of Siam for thirty-two years.

When King Rama last month raised Lady Suradana to the rank of royal consort in place of the childless Queen Lakshmi, the following proclamation was issued:

"The king has observed that the new queen has served him with faithfulness and love, and it is fitting therefore that she should be raised to high estate in order to support the rank of the child she will bear His Majesty in the near future."

The Biggest Picture in a Long While

"THE MAN WITHOUT A CONSCIENCE" AT THE NICKEL.

"The Man Without a Conscience" which opened at the Nickel Theatre last evening, is one of the biggest pictures of the season, and one that merits a deal of commendation from all angles—story, acting, direction and dramatic intensity.

To begin with, the story is a powerful tale of a strong, ruthless man who overrules every obstacle that stands between him and his selfish desires. He carves his path with the cruel sword of inconsideration and unscrupulous greed, until an entire city is threatened by a deadly disease because of his criminal negligence. He scoffs at love and sneers at ideals, until conscience stays his hand and the law pronounces its verdict.

Then, the acting is nothing less than superb, beginning with Willard Louis, who does his finest work as "The Man Without a Conscience," and continuing with Irene Rich, June Marlowe, John Patrick, Robert Agnew—each giving a well high perfect performance.

The high tension of drama that carries the picture along holds the audience enthralled while the direction is another feather in James Flood's cap, because the story moves swiftly and clearly, unafraid and accusing until the final moments, when the tide inevitably turns for the better.

"The Man Without a Conscience" is a Warner Classic of the Screen, having been adapted by Hope Loring and Louis Lighton from the story by Max Kreter.

Heroes and Historic Landmarks of the Oldest Colony.

Address Delivered by Mr. H. F. Shortis in 1915.

The following address, delivered before the Star of the Sea Association by Mr. H. F. Shortis just at the time when in 1915 the N.M. Regiment was receiving its baptism at Gallipoli, will be found of great interest, now that attention has been directed to our historic associations.

"A wise nation preserves its records, gathers up its mementoes, decorates the graves of its illustrious dead, repairs the great public structures, and fosters national pride, and love of country by perpetual reference to the sacrifices and glories of the past."

(Hon. Joseph Howe.)

As a rule a lecturer standing on the platform prefaces his discourse with the somewhat stereotyped and cryptic remark, "I feel somewhat timid in coming before such a large, intelligent and discriminating audience." Now I do not feel that way at all. The larger the audience I see before me, the greater I am pleased that more of our people will hear for themselves the stories of our country and her heroes. The more intelligent the better, because I shall have no difficulty in having my words understood, and the more discriminating they are, the greater is the hope that my little errors or omissions will be passed over with kindness and consideration, or that I will be "let down easy."

You must not think that I am going to treat you to a tornado of eloquence, or an archipelago of figures. I propose to address you in the good old Anglo-Saxon tongue, and tell you the stories of our countrymen as handed down to me, and, in part, witnessed by myself.

The real history of this country has yet to be written. It is true that we have some histories, which are of valuable importance, but they are chiefly taken from documentary evidence, and refer to the Church, Courts of Justice, Politicians, etc., etc., but very little reference is given to the people of this country, who after all made it what it is to-day. To write a History of a country, we must write the history of its people, and to do this we must go in amongst the people themselves and make them talk. It is at the family fireside we shall hear the traditions of our country, and is not tradition the very backbone of history? These traditions are handed down from generation to generation, and the people of the outposts particularly, owing to their environments, and most retentive memories are full of tradition, handed down by those who were perhaps participants in the events themselves, or received an account of them from their ancestors, who took an active part in them. These traditions if collected and handed down in print, would not only fill many large volumes, but very interesting ones also. And this is not to be wondered at. Look at Ireland and Scotland particularly, as well as England! May it not be said that they are surrounded by a halo of tradition. Documentary information is good enough sometimes to the historian, but it often happens that it is not reliable. Those who peruse the documents took good care to be too charitable in their remarks to those in a less prosperous condition in life, and at the same time left to means intended to minimize their own faults and glorify themselves; but the people are the judges, and time separates the good from the bad. If we wish to hear of the dangers, hardships, adventures and patriotism of our people, we must go amongst them. In the present crisis, to their credit be it said, several of our business people have gone amongst our people at considerable expense and inconvenience to themselves, and explained the true condition of affairs, and the great reason there is for them to rally to the standard in defence of King and Country and Empire. Many of these poor people have never seen a soldier, and know very little about armies, still I maintain that a spirit of patriotism remains smouldering in the people of the outposts. It needs only to be fanned into flame by our leading speakers going amongst them, and telling them the true conditions of affairs during this terrible war, and convincing them that their very liberty, their homes and families, and their country, are, even the life of the Empire itself is at stake before the march of the Teutonic barbarians, despots and vile murderers.

Here in St. John's and many of the outposts, ere the sound of the first cannon had died away on the fields of Belgium, the crust of our selfishness and indifference was broken, and a flame of duty, loyalty, and patriotism leaped forth never before witnessed in British's Oldest Colony. Delegates were sent to the chief outposts and harangued our countrymen to rally to the Union Jack, even as the Athenian orators of old harangued their countrymen from the hillsides, which look down upon the blue waters in the Bay of Salamis. And they met with a ready response, and yet there is much to be done. Britain and her King calls her sons to rally to the standard, both on sea and land. Will Newfoundlanders prove recreant to their duty?

Patriotism next to religion is the noblest sentiment planted in the human breast. Ancient Rome attained the meridian of her glory through the patriotism of her sons, and Greece, which in turn with Rome, attained the proud title of Mistress of the World, climbed to that envied distinction by the inborn love of country, which was the bright light of her people. If we go down the vast corridors of the ages, we shall find this was the stimulating agency, the fulcrum upon which rested the lever that raised the nations of the earth into prominence, and gave to the world its refinement and civilization. It was the same spirit of patriotism that enabled the heroes who commanded, and those who fought under them, to withstand and capture the supposed invincible Armada of the proud Spaniard, and gave to Britain the undisputed title of "Mistress of the Seas."

It was the same spirit that hurled back the legions of Napoleon at Waterloo, and consigned him to the Island of St. Helena, and it was the same spirit of patriotism that was to be found in Russia, Afghanistan, South Africa and elsewhere in more modern times, and which culminated in the formation of the greatest Empire the world has ever seen, of which Newfoundland forms an important part, and of which we are all so proud to-day. Newfoundlanders are ever ready to give practical proof of their loyalty and patriotism. The fires of liberty and equal rights, taken from the temples of our Motherland by our ancestors, shine out as brightly and as steadily in the Colonies of the Empire to-day, as they did in England, Ireland and Scotland in the past, and in no country more brilliantly and more steadily than in British's Oldest Colony, Newfoundland, whose sons were ever ready to support Britain's King and Britain's flag. We are proud of our ancestors of English, Irish and Scotch stock, and when the emblems of their nationality, the Rose, Shamrock and Thistle are united for any one grand object, as they are to-day, as never before, they can snap their fingers at all competitors, and uphold the honour of King, country and Union Jack, whether it be amongst the roar and smoke from cannon upon land or sea, or in the peaceful pursuits of Commerce or Science.

England's stalwarts bore it afar. Scots have raised it high. Galib's warriors side by side. With Erin's went to die.

They built the Empire far and wide, Where Liberty had no lack. Where Freedom and Truth may safely reside.

In the shade of the Union Jack.

In giving this lecture about our heroes, I find that there is material for half a dozen lectures. We have had so many heroes that I find it necessary to confine myself to a very few words about each, and keep as close as I can about our Military and Naval heroes. I could name scores of heroes among our old Sealing Captains, who risked their lives for their men, who by their pluck and ingenuity turned impending disaster into success.

We have had Governors here who reckoned not for their own promotion, but pointed out to the British Government in spite of their instructions that the desire of Newfoundlanders was the right policy to follow. Such Governors we will always remember as our heroes. Governor Max, who was here in 1881, was one of the immortal Six Hundred. Governor Duckworth was the great hero of the Barbadoes. Governor Greaves was another mighty hero of Great Britain. We have had many heroes among our Merchants, Politicians and Ministers. Men who have fought as only heroes can for the good of their country, and gained the estimable boon of Responsible Government. Men who rid this country of that incubus, the French Shore Question, and the exaggerated claims of United States Treaty rights. Heroes who fought for the Bait Act. Our village Hampden, who dared the British Commander to tear down a Lobster Factory. Although these men stood almost alone at the moment, their courage and heroism will never be forgotten by an appreciative people. But let us start from the beginning. What a hero John Cabot was to come out here in search of unknown lands? What a hero Sir Humphrey Gilbert was, well and truly called the Father of the British Empire beyond the seas. We recognize his heroic feelings when in danger he refused to be separated from his brave comrades on that little Ten (10) ton pinnace in which he was crossing the Atlantic.

Here is another hero, Capt. Richard Whitbourne, who spent the best part of his life in Newfoundland, and who tells us that he had been here so often that the country was as familiar to him as the English Channel. We know he was here in 1580, as master of a ship. In 1583 he was an eye-witness at St. John's when Sir Humphrey Gilbert took possession of the country in the name of Queen Elizabeth. In the year 1588 he served under the Lord Admiral as Captain of his own ship, fitted out at his own expense against the Spanish Armada. He was too modest to mention his own exploits on that renowned occasion, but there can be no doubt that he did render valuable services to His Queen and country, for he tells us a record of them was made in the Book of the Whitehall Court, and we do know that a recompense was made to him by the Privy Council for expenses incurred on his own ship, also two other ships and a pinnace, so that the charge of victuals and the wages of the men employed should not be burdensome to him. That is a hero we should all be proud of, and emulate in every way. His only reward is the imperishable glory of being recorded as one of the saviours of England.

During the year or two after the Spanish Armada, about 800 Spanish and Dutch vessels, were destroyed or captured by the English. What a time of fighting it must have been for these old sailors frequenting our coast. They were just as anxious for a fight with the Spanish Dons as they were for their dinner.

Sir Walter Raleigh tells us in his records that in the year 1594 the Spanish Government sent three men-of-war here to capture the Newfoundland fleet, which was then one hundred fishing vessels. Raleigh wrote the Premier of England, Lord Cecil, that if this danger befell the Newfoundland fleet, it would be the greatest calamity that could befall England. It shows what an important factor our Newfoundland trade was at that time; and the Spaniards recognized the vital point to hit England's ascendancy. In 1601 the Spaniards made another attempt to intercept the Newfoundland fleet. In 1603 the French made their first attempt to destroy our Newfoundland shipping, and did damage to the extent of £249. We can readily see that Newfoundland was the cock-pit for fighting between these nationalities for many years before and after the launching of the Invincible Armada.

In 1610 John Guy and his heroic band of settlers came to Newfoundland in his spirit in denouncing and even-land, and a new era started in the tidally driven Peter Easton and his practical crews from Newfoundland waters.

In 1620 we hear of a combat between the English and Portuguese at Petty Harbor.

In 1625, 27 Newfoundland ships and 200 persons were captured by Turkish pirates. This wasn't as bad as Peter Easton, who took 300 men in one year from Conception Bay, but you can imagine what fighting there must have been, and how many heroes laid down their lives.

In 1628 Lord Baltimore writes to the British Government from Ferryland, that on August 25th, a French Admiral with three ships and 400 well armed men captured two of his ships then fishing at Cape Broyle, where the fishermen were surprised. Lord Baltimore then sent two of his ships from Ferryland, being all the force he could make at the moment. The French Admiral took flight, slipped his cables and went off to sea, leaving 67 of his crew on shore, who were quickly taken prisoners. Lord Baltimore followed the chase as long as there was any possibility of coming up with that French Admiral, but they escaped, having much faster vessels. It shows what a feeling of terror those old Newfoundland heroes must have instilled into the French in many a hard fought fight.

In 1638 Sir David Kirk took up his residence at Ferryland, having taken over the Baltimore grant of that district. We have descendants of his family living in Newfoundland to-day.

His spirited sister, Lady Hopkins, took an active part in those troublesome times, and she may well be called the heroine of Newfoundland History. I cannot pass over Sir David Kirk without giving some particulars about this remarkable hero of that age. He gallantly assisted Sir William Alexander to capture the strongholds of the French in Nova Scotia, but the following year he beat all records by the gallant capture of Quebec, and the destruction of the French power in Canada. It was the most brilliant naval exploit in Colonial history. This worthy old hero was the son of a Scotchman, but born in France, and had some means of his own. He got a commission from King Charles I. to fight the French in Canada. He fitted out three dreadnoughts of his own, the largest of which was 22 tons, which he commanded, the others were in charge of his two brothers, Lewis and Thomas. King Charles I. promised him a fleet of 20 men-of-war to help him, but after waiting in Newfoundland until he was tired, he sailed for the Gulf of St. Lawrence. His first encounter was near Gaspe, with the French Admiral de Roquemont, who had a fleet of eighteen vessels. It didn't take Capt. Kirk (as he was then) very long to put in a broadside, and throw his grappling irons on the Admiral's ship. The fight was short but stubborn, and the whole fleet surrendered to these three ships. The prizes were so numerous that Kirk's very success placed him in difficulties. He burnt ten of the smaller and sent the rest with the most valuable stores to Newfoundland. Kirk then went to the assistance of Sir William Alexander at Halifax, and they took possession of Port Royal (now Annapolis), the principal French station. He now was so embarrassed with prisoners, that he didn't know what to do and therefore returned to England. When the news reached France, the King and Council were in a great fury, and demanded revenge on Captain David Kirk and his three brothers, who were declared public enemies, and were condemned to be burnt in effigy. On the same day, amidst the tolling of the bells, David, Lewis and Thomas Kirk were carried in procession through the streets of Paris, and then burnt to ashes amidst the yells of an excited populace. Nothing daunted Capt. Kirk fitted out his three dreadnoughts again at the expense of himself and family, and of Sir William Alexander. He had been so successful in the spoils of his late adventure, that he was able to equip his vessels much better than the previous year. He set sail for Ferryland and after revivifying his ships, he sailed up the St. Lawrence with orders to compel the surrender of Quebec, Champlain, the worthy founder of that city, put up a spirited defence from his almost impregnable position. Kirk quickly bombarded, and Champlain was forced to surrender, and the British flag was hoisted on the Citadel. Kirk placed his brother in charge, and returned to England with the good tidings. Quebec remained a British possession for several years, but was handed back to France during the infamous reign of Charles II.

"Printing Isn't Expensive
If You Pay Enough
For It"

The task which business stationery has to perform is to convey a message. That is its primary purpose. But it has another. It should convey an atmosphere—a personality—which identifies the business it represents, and it should convey that atmosphere or personality so convincingly, so pleasingly, so substantially, that it makes the same kind of favourable impression that a good salesman or a fine office does.

Business stationery which falls in this particular is too expensive to use, because it is not doing the whole job. That's why printing isn't expensive if you pay enough for it.

We have lately installed an embossing machine which produces beautiful glossy or dull relief work on plain type printing that defies actual die or plate embossing in appearance.

A trial order will convince you of its excellence.

INTER-CLUB BILLIARDS.

MASONIC LEAD IN SECOND ROUND.

The second round of the Inter Club Billiard tournament was begun at the Masonic Club rooms last night in the presence of a large gathering, including Hon. J. R. Bennett, who is donating the cup for the present tournament, and His Honor Mayor Cook, who donated the cup for the last year.

Mr. W. J. Martin, President of the Masonic Club, opened the second round with a short but appropriate speech, in which he welcomed all who were present to see the game. He then asked Hon. J. R. Bennett to break the balls and declare the series officially open.

Mr. W. J. O'Neill, Chairman of the B.I.S. & A. Committee, on behalf of the B.I.S., thanked Mr. Martin and the members of the Masonic Club for the cordial welcome extended to them and he hoped, too, that the good fellowship would continue. Mr. Bennett then broke the balls and sent the second round on its way.

The first game of this round was played by J. Edwards, (Masonic), and C. I. Merner, (B.I.S.), and was won by the former by a margin of 98 points. These players opened the series at the B.I.S. rooms and played a game that will long be remembered by those who saw it, and although last night's game was not so closely contested, it was a splendid exhibition, every moment of which was of the deepest interest. Both players were in good form and some difficult shots were played. Edwards took the lead early and continued to hold it right through the game. At 228 he was 100 ahead but after this Merner began to cut down the lead. It was only for a short time, however, as towards the end the Masonic player again went ahead and finished with a majority of 98 points. The breaks were as follows:—

J. Edwards (Masonic)—400—41, 38, 27, 24, 46, 35, 12, 15, 10, 14—262.
C. I. Merner (B.I.S.)—392—15, 11, 30, 12, 21, 12, 12, 26, 27, 20, 12, 10, 12—224.

English "SPARROW" A WILLING MIXER.

"Fair Play" Says Ernie Jarvis Is Turning Out To Be Another Jimmie Wilde.

(By PAIR PLAY.)
NEW YORK, Nov. 29.—Watch this little English sparrow, Ernie Jarvis. He is the willingest two-handed mixer that England has sent to these shores in a long time.

He got out of a sick bed to lambast Wee Willie Woods on Wednesday night last. Probably he thought the bout would make him well. He likes to fight. Whether it made him well or not it is a good gamble that Woods was as sick after the bout as Jarvis was before it.

Jarvis, when he came here, did not claim to be a second Jimmy Wilde, but it looks, by heck, as though he was setting out to be.

He has now got by four hard battles in this country and every one involved a boy who was a real test.

First they pitchedforked him against Black Bill, the Cuban. Bill is nobody's fool when it comes to string and taking and he had to run up a string of 14 victories before he met Jarvis.

The wise guys were all telling Ernie when he made the match that he had better save enough money for a return trip to Merry England, but, nothing daunted, he went about his work in a masterly manner. Black Bill's weird style and his manner of coming in from any angle did not bother the Englishman a bit, and he won hands down.

A rather unexpected trait of Jarvis was his willingness to go into close quarters. Englishmen, as a rule, are notably weak when it comes to infighting, but Ernie was right at home in there. Then he beat Johnny Breslin, a tough little wallop, and then young Denico, who boasted a great record around Baltimore. A pleasing, busy little workman is Mr. Ernie Jarvis of the British Isles.

FIGHTS.

Number Of Rounds Won Will Decide Winner Instead Of Total Points Scored.

NEW YORK, Nov. 24.—A change in the system of judging boxing bouts under which the number of rounds won and lost will determine the result rather than the total point score of each contestant at the end was decided upon by the State Athletic Commission to-day in a new move to obtain uniformly satisfactory decisions.

The new plan which is expected to have a far-reaching effect in pugilism as given the early rounds of a complete revolution at rule 3 of the Board's regulations, which had previously provided "that the contestants who scored the greatest number of effective points regardless of the number of rounds won or lost" should be declared the victor. The amendment to the rule requires that points shall be scored as each round progresses and that at the end of the bout "the contestant who has to his credit the greater amount of the rounds fought is the winner."

To put this change into effect, the Commission has ordered referees and judges to appear next Tuesday for advice and instruction.

GORMAN'S RECORD RECOGNIZED BY SKATING UNION.

St. John Escer's Mark Of 36 4-5 Sec. For 440 Yards To Stand—Other Records.

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 24.—Two world and three national indoor skating records were approved to-day at the closing session of the International Skating Union here. Both the world records were for 440 yards and were made by Charles Gorman, St. John, N.B., and Miss Virginia Young, Pittsburgh. Gorman's time of 36 4-5 sec. was made at St. John, February 27, 1925, and Miss Gorman's record of 45 4-5 sec. for women, was made March 6, 1925, during the International indoor championships at Pittsburgh. The three national records also made at the indoor championships were:—

880 yards for women, Miss Lella Brooks, Toronto, 1 minute 21 seconds; one mile, for women, Miss Elsie Muller, New York, 3 minutes, 19 3-5 seconds; two miles, for men, Joe Moore, New York, 5 minutes 53 2-5 seconds.

Joseph A. Savage and William A. Taylor, New York, and William G. Bratton, Pittsburgh, were selected as referees for the coming championships.

EDGEHILL GIRLS.
Windsor Ground Hockey Team Makes Fine Record This Season.

The Edgehill girls' ground hockey team made a fine record this season. They met Dalhousie a fortnight ago and they defeated them 4 to 1. F. Harris scoring three goals and F. Firth one.

A week ago Saturday Edgehill journeyed to Halifax and defeated the Halifax Ladies' College team 1-0, on the Garrison Grounds. Neither team was able to score in the first half, while in the second period both teams played a strenuous one goal.

On Saturday the return game was played at Windsor, when Edgehill won, 5 to 0, thus retaining the trophy. The championship Edgehill team consists of: Forwards, F. Firth, M. Wyllie, F. Harris, P. Harris, B. Duncan; half backs, M. Rhetuss, W. Woolaver, H. Olesso; full backs, M. Mylde, H. Laxer; goal, P. Erikson; subs, M. Chirgwin, R. Carson, M. McClean.

WALKER RETAINS TITLE.
NEWARK, N.J., Nov. 26.—Mickey Walker (141-12), of Elizabeth, N.J., retains his title as welterweight champion of the world, after a successful defence last night against Sailor Friedman (143), in a 12-round bout.

Although New Jersey prohibits decisions, Walker won the verdict of newspapersmen, outpointing the challenger in nearly every round.

The first round amounted to little more than a warming up, but action was rapid in the second, with Walker pressing the challenger hard after a furious onslaught by Friedman. Friedman attacked again in the third, but was promptly knocked to the ropes. The fourth round was Walker's and in the sixth the challenger had dropped into a purely defensive role.

Deciding Mentality
by Weight

A Washington doctor who specializes in mental disorders claims to have found a means of weighing the brains of the living, and he maintains that this rough test may fairly be applied to decide whether or not they are sane. To prove the truth of his theory he suggests that he be first allowed to weigh the brains of the inmates of the Washington Asylum, and then those of the members of the two Houses of Congress. That those among the latter who are found by the balance to be gravely wanting should immediately be sent to join the former or he does not at present suggest; but his offer is meeting with no enthusiastic response from Congressmen. Yet Congress may safely pluck up courage. The weight test at most is a rough one, and apt to be misleading. In earlier times, when opportunities for examining the brains of eminent men were more frequent, because of the common habit of disemboweling them when they became unpopular, some curious surprises in the matter of bulk were apt to occur. Cromwell's brain, for instance, was generally said to be quite a small affair—so minute, indeed, that if he had fallen into Dr. Macdonald's hands he would no doubt have been put safely under restraint. And when last year the Professor of Anatomy at Tours

(From Our Own Correspondent)

THE APPLE SHOW A BIG SUCCESS.

The first apple show held at the Windsor Hall of the Windsor Hotel, on November 4, 5 and 6th, by the Quebec Pomological Society, was a great success. Some 200,000 apples of different varieties were on exhibition, and hundreds of people visited the Hall to see some fine samples of Fameuse, McIntosh, Red, Golden Russets, and other popular varieties. According to G. E. McIntosh, Dominion Fruit Commissioner, in a paper read before the Quebec Pomological Society, the Province of Quebec is only producing sixty per cent of the normal consumption in Montreal. The estimated crop of Quebec this year was given as 70,000 barrels, but a very small percentage came into the Montreal market, only 23 carloads out of the 1,004 carloads required to meet the demand of Montreal consumers.

Mr. McIntosh urged his hearers to increase their area of trees, to properly pick and pack their fruit and put it conveniently in packages, either half boxes or cartons, so that the average householder would be enticed to purchase more apples than he does at present. President Georges Mabeux regretted the fact that out of 500 orchard owners in the Province, only 100 were members of the Society. He recommended a special officer for the Society so as to get other members for the Society.

Prof. W. T. Macoun, Dominion Horticulturist, in the course of a brief review of the recent Boston Apple Show declared that the McIntosh was being very largely produced in the New England states and that the Quebec growers would have to look after their product if they wanted to retain their home market and increase it. While the New England McIntosh was somewhat larger than that in Quebec, Prof. Macoun did not think the Quebec McIntosh was of the quality of the more nor the keeping qualities of it quite so good. The Exhibits at the Montreal show were exceptionally fine, and he was glad to see that the prize awards were well distributed over the Province, which proved that the soil of Quebec was the best for apple growers of popular varieties.

The second show will be held next year, but about ten days later than this year, so as to allow the growers to get in their stock before making their selection for exhibition.

THROUGH THE GLOOM THE LIGHT SHINES.

In spite of all the tales of woe, misery and failure predicted for Canada by political undertakers and Apostles of Doom, Gloom and Pain, E. W. Beatty, K.C., President of the Canadian Pacific Railway, sees a great future for Canada. On the fortieth anniversary of the driving of the last spike which marked the completion of the road from the Atlantic to the Pacific, E. W. Beatty said:—"If anybody in this country or elsewhere is worrying about Canada's future, immediate or ultimate, they have only to look back at what Canada was forty years ago and reflect upon the progress that has been made in that short time. That is the best answer I know of to those who talk in pessimistic tones of what we may expect for Canada during the next few years."

"Forty years ago Canada had about 5,000,000 people against to-day's possible 9,500,000. A more or less constant stream of immigrants have been attracted to her shores and in this work the Canadian Pacific has largely contributed, having spent over $70,000,000 of its own money in that direction. It is our earnest hope that this work will, as a result of the recently announced agreement with the Government be carried on with a greater measure of success than ever."

"On November 7, 1885, Donald A. Smith, later Lord Strathcona, drove the last spike that completed the single line across the continent and since then the company's mileage in Canada has grown to over 15,000 miles. We have organized our ocean fleets and have raised our employment list to a number that varies in different seasons between eighty and a hundred thousand people, and a hundred thousand people, and the company has become by far Canada's largest individual contributor in taxes to the country's exchequer. This we have done, as Canadians believing in Canada and her future, and our vision is to-day no less clear than that which animated the men who first set out to build the road."

The famous spike still exists. It was not a gold one as was once generally believed. Money was too scarce with the men who built the road for any such waste, and the steel spike is now a treasured relic in the office of the President.

OH, FOR THAT LOST OPPORTUNITY.

Quebec's opportunity was lost when Hon. E. L. Patenaude and his followers were not elected to Parliament. Even if as his followers had expected, a bare 15 had been elected, it would have completely changed the political situation and the Conservatives would have been able to form a Government with a majority of at least 20 over the Liberals, Progressives, Labor and Independents. But to think of only 4 seats won, and two million dollars

NEVER TOO LATE TO DO GOOD.

Collier's Weekly in an editorial under the caption of "The Fountain of Youth" says: John Franklin Browne was graduated from Salem College in West Virginia a few weeks ago. No, he isn't a great football player; he can't throw the discus, nor make a great high jump. He doesn't even pitch for the baseball team. And, in fact, we doubt whether he even belonged to a fraternity. But he's interesting, nevertheless.

He happens to be 75 years old—the "most mature" college graduate in the whole country. He has set a fine example for all of us.

THANKSGIVING AND ARMISTICE DAY CELEBRATED.

Monday, Nov. 9th, was celebrated by Thanksgiving and Armistice Day in a religious, loyal and patriotic manner. On Sunday evening special Thanksgiving services were held in the churches. On Monday morning at 11 o'clock two minutes' silence was kept by special proclamation from His Worship Mayor Duquette. Then the ceremonies around the Cenotaph erected on Dominion Square, began consisting of prayers, speeches and the singing of hymns. Banquets were held in the evening in the leading hotels.

JUDGE SENTENCES DRUG ADDICTS

Acting Recorder Morrison meted out heavy sentences to three prisoners who appeared before him charged with being drug addicts. One was a woman who when arrested tried to swallow a dose of twelve grains of heroin, which would have meant certain death. When asked why she did it she said, "I would rather die than go to jail and be deprived of drugs." The detectives had a terrible time with her ladyship when she swallowed the ten grains of heroin enough to kill ten men let alone one woman. The two detectives jumped forward, seized her by the throat and made her disgorge the heroin. A crowd of nearly one thousand people had collected during the scene and the detectives rushed their prisoner to the station in a taxi. Even in the taxi she fought like a wild cat, but was finally overcome, and her life was saved. The woman appeared for trial the next day. She was poorly dressed, but quite young and good looking. Behind her brief appearance was a tragedy. It was her first appearance in Court. She stood listlessly in the dock as the charge was read. "You will go to jail for six months. And you will also pay a fine of $200 or spend another 15 days in jail," said the Recorder.

The two men, who had criminal records, and as they were both peddlers and addicts were sentenced to one year each in jail.

LESSONS FROM EVERY DAY AFFAIRS.
Dear Readers.—There are many things happening around us each day. Some of them call for condemnation and some for praise. Life is made up of contrasts; we grow in the shadow of adversity and we expand, we are told, in the sun of prosperity. Life is a school to which there is no end—lessons are taught in every day affairs if we but look and read them. But do we always do this? How we let our opportunities pass by. We become careless and callous in later years. The later life is called maturity, for maturity means full perfection. Don't forget to take advantage of the opportunities that come your way. You'll be the better for doing your best for the obedient man shall speak of victory.

LESSONS FROM EVERY DAY AFFAIRS.

"I know, as my life grows older And my eyes have clearer sight, That under each rank wrong somewhere There lies the root of right; That each sorrow has its purpose, By the sorrowing oft unguessed; That, as sure as the sun brings morning, Whatever is, is best. I know that each sinful action, As sure as the night brings shade, Is somewhere sometime punished, Though the hour be long delayed, I know that the soul is aided, Sometimes by the hearts unrest, And to grow means oft to suffer; But whatever is, is best. I know that there are no errors In the great eternal plan, And that all things work together For the final good of man, And I know when my soul speeds onward In its grand eternal quest, I shall say, as I look back earthward, Whatever is, is best. R. J. LOUIS CUDDIHY.

Excavations Uphold the Bible

Finds in Syria Tend to Confirm Many Incidents.

PHILADELPHIA — Old Testament scenes and life, portrayed in the books of Samuel and Chronicles, in which King Saul figures in combat with the ancient Philistines, are revealed in a new light by recent excavations in Palestine by the Pennsylvania University Museum's expedition to Beisan.

The excavations carried out since 1921 have reached a point where it is possible to appraise the value of the finds. Beisan, the Biblical Beth-Shan at the eastern end of the Valley of Jezrael, was the chief city of the famous Decapolis, or league of ten cities, all, with the exception of Scythopolis, on the east side of the River Jordan.

The high wall, or mound, now being excavated consists of a series of super-imposed cities beneath which part of a large Hellenistic temple, as well as the brick walls of a great Egyptian fort, have been revealed.

This season's work has cleared the whole of the temple, which is roughly 37 1/4 meters in length by 25 meters over all, and is similar in plan to the Roman Temple of Bacchus at Baalbek, Syria.

The fort doubtless was built by King Seti I. It was held by the Pharaohs until the time of Rameses III of the Twentieth Dynasty, who reigned from 1183-1167 B.C. A little after 1186 B.C., when the latter monarch came to Beth-Shan, and erected there a statue of himself, which was found during last season's excavations, a number of races of peoples from Crete and the south coast of Anatolia—generally known as the Philistines—who had entered Palestine, occupied the fort until they were driven out by King David, about 1000 B.C.

Some twenty years before the latter date the Philistine who defeated King Saul of Israel upon the neighboring Mount Gilboa hung his body to the walls of Beth-Shan and placed his armor in the House of the Goddess Ashtoreth. This very house of Ashtoreth has been found this season.

In a room of this house and from beneath its floor, which was made of baked clay, came a most important monument of basalt, dedicated by an Egyptian named Hesi-Nekht, who lived under the Nineteenth Dynasty.

This depicts a figure of the Goddess Ashtoreth, or Anit (Anatis). In front of her is Hesi-Nekht and an altar stand with a lily over it. Above her is written, "Anatis, lady of heaven, mistress of all the gods," and against the man, "May the King give an offering. Anatis, may she give all life, strength, and health to the double of Hesi-Nekht."

There is every evidence, the excavators say, that this house is the original house of Ashtoreth mentioned in I Samuel X, within which was hung the armor of King Saul after his death. It also is believed completely established that the temple can be ascribed to the Nineteenth Dynasty.

Another temple, possibly one erected by King Thotmes III of the Eighteenth dynasty, 1501-1447 B.C., was found beneath the Nineteenth Dynasty temple.

Only the northern end of this temple has been excavated. Among the significant things found are a sarcophagus of King Thotmes III and an altar, the latter in a small room which was colored a bright blue. In this room also was a life-size stone hawk of brilliant coloring wearing the double crown of Upper and Lower Egypt.

The temples are the only bronze-age buildings of their kind found in Palestine and were originally roofed in.

Fox and Dog Show in C.L.B. Armoury

The fox and dog section of the 14th Annual Dog Show, opening on Wednesday, promises to be a very interesting exhibit. Twenty-two pure bred foxes will be arranged in twenty-two specially made coops.

Amongst the fox breeders exhibiting and competing for the Silver Cup Championship are Messrs. Dr. Alex. Campbell, Mr. Brandon Tilley, of Clarendville, Mr. G. Way, of Grand Falls, and Newfoundland Foxes, Ltd. These will be under the special care of Doctor Bishop, Veterinary Surgeon, and will be on show in the gymnasium. The competitor gaining the Silver Cup will win by reason of having the largest number of points.

In the Newfoundland Dog section about twenty pure bred dogs and pups will be benched in specially constructed stalls. Each dog will wear a collar and owners will provide a chain to fasten each animal in its appointed place.

The dogs will likely be given a prominent place on the Monday stage. Amongst the dog breeders showing are Dr. Bishop, V.S., Willis Reid, Dr. Alex. Campbell, S. Butler, E.A. Downing, and many others.

The Pupillary Association are doing all they possibly can to encourage fox and dog breeders in breeding good animals. No doubt in time the fox and dog owners may form an association of their own when their numbers increase.

His Worship Mayor Cook will formally declare the show open Wednesday evening, at 8 o'clock, and the Mayoress Mrs. Tasker Cook will kindly distribute the prizes Friday night at 9 o'clock.

As the little rabbit hopped along the narrow path that skirted the Old Duck Pond, he counted 15 muskrat houses. All along the edge of the marshy land and close to the water, rose the mud tops of the muskrats' homes.

"I wonder why they are so high this year," said the bunny boy, half aloud, not thinking that any one might hear him.

"Because we expect much water, having had it low all summer and fall," answered a voice, all of a sudden, just like that. Right there in full sight stood Terry Muskrat, a lily reed in his mouth.

"Hello," cried the bunny boy, with a friendly smile. "I've made sure to be comfortable this winter," went on Terry Muskrat. "My underwater entrance leads up to a nice, dry room. I don't care how thick the ice forms. The top of my mud house will be frozen stiff, but my front door below in the water will never be closed. No, sire, it's too far down for the ice to form. I can go and come as I please. Nor shall I ever be hungry during the long winter months, for I have a big supply of lily roots and sweet flag stored away on the bottom of the pond."

"Goodness me, you must have worked hard to build such a nice house," "way down deep in the water and 'way high up in the air," cried the little rabbit, admiringly.

"It took a lot of time and hard work to tear out the marsh roots and sods and build them into a house," explained Terry Muskrat. "Do you see all these little paths, here and there and everywhere across the marshland?"

"Indeed I do," answered the bunny boy. "Well, I helped to make them," went on Terry Muskrat. "Many a heavy load I carried over them. I thought at one time I'd never get my house finished. But I did, and now Old Mr. North Wind can blow all he wants to. I don't care if there is a thick coating of ice over the Old Duck Pond. My little house is safe and warm."

"Tell me more," begged the bunny boy.

approved of and published by the Minister of Agriculture for the purposes of the Newfoundland Live Stock Register as established by law at the last session of the Legislature.

Spencer Club ladies have again consented to run a tea room for the convenience of the visitors and the Association members attending the show afternoon and night. They will also cater to the annual dinner of the Association, Tuesday evening, when the fox, dog and poultry judging will be done at 7 p.m. in the Armoury.

President Arch C. Tait, M.D., Secretary Stewart Dewling and Contractor James Wilson are making strenuous efforts to make the 1925 show a bigger success than ever.

Enjoy your tea served by the ladies of the College Aid Society, from 6 to 8 o'clock, in the Safety Hall, Wednesday and Thursday evenings.—nov30,31

That every day I learn something new—something worth while, you see. These when evening comes I tell Mother what I've heard, I talk while she sews. Sometimes I hardly hear the little Cuckoo Bird sing from the porch of her tiny Clock House on the kitchen wall.

"Time for bed, You Sleepy Head."

"Yes, you're a good little talker and a mighty fine little hopper," laughed Terry Muskrat. "But I must be going," and into the water he dived down deep to find the door-way to his mud house.

Right there in full sight stood Terry Muskrat.

thought the little rabbit, as a cold wind ruffled his fur collar. The sky of a sudden seemed gray and chill, and the pond water had lost its sparkle. It looked almost purple with the ogle, and from the woods the chilly wind scattered a handful of withered leaves.

"It soon will snow, it soon will snow, And Mr. North Wind loudly blow."

cawed Professor Jim Crow in the distance. And in the next story you shall hear whether the little rabbit reached home safely.
