Dear General Currie.

I received your letter last week and am very much obliged to you for your advice.

I always value your advice because it is sound and wholesome.

It settled me on sending my boy to R. M. C.

However, I find on inquiry that he has not been accepted altho' he is on the waiting list.

²⁴
There may be a chance yet but I am not building on it.

I hope I will be able to get him into McGill.

It seems no preference is given to returned men's sons.

After all Horace can't be very dull, when we consider that, although he was kept
out of school a year,
yet, at the age of 17
he has passed his first year in art.

3

The sons of slackers and millionaires have just as good a chance in R.M.C. as the soldiers sons as far as I can see. However perhaps it's just as well.

I hope to see you next week end with my son.

Thanking you for your letter

Yours very sincerely

Dear Sir Arthur:-

I am taking the liberty of sending to you reprints from "The Canadian Field Naturalist," Vol. XXXIX, No. 5. pp 96-105, May-1925, and from "The Canadian Field Naturalist" Vol.No.6, pp. 131-137, September, 1925. These contain my articles re "Field Studies of Growth Forms of Some of the Native Trees of the Environment of Victoria, B.C."

The reprints from the May issue were sent to various botanical centres by the Natural History Society of B.C., and I have a number of reprints from the September issue, ready to send out. In this latter issue an error has crept in, viz: "diageotropism" in the third line of the second paragraph on page 136, should be "lateral geotropism."

I saw you in Paris when you inspected the "Leave Club," in 1917, though, of course, ^{you} did not see me, and I am sending these reprints to you because I believe that your interest in "returned men" will enable me to obtain, through you, the comments of the Botanical Dept, of McGill University.

I trust I am not unduly troubling you but should esteem it a great favour if you would bring this matter before the Botanical Authorities and ask them to favour me with their comments and remarks. I can send the original photographs if desired.

Yours sincerely,

Dear Lloyd.

My dear Sir Arthur:-

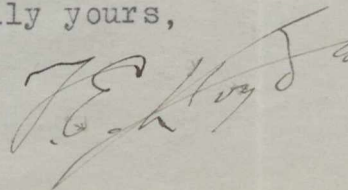

I have examined the article which you referred to me and which is returned herewith. The observations recorded are interesting but in some instances the deductions seem not to be wholly accurate. The various behaviors which the author describes are rather readily observable, so that in this regard he does not contribute to our knowledge. The apparent twining habit of individual fir trees is not without interest but I should want to look into the matter more closely before venturing an opinion as to the nature of this behavior, a very striking illustration of which appears in fig. 2 of his second paper. As a matter of fact, this field of thought is very difficult theoretically, and while general observations such as are supplied by Mr. Pemberton are always interesting, not very much is contributed to our knowledge thereby. In some cases, from the account, I am not even sure of the facts. I should not, however, on this account, wish to damp the ardor of one who has naturalist tendencies.

With the compliments of the

With further reference to your letter of November 26th I am enclosing here- with a copy of a communication received from Professor Lloyd, Macdonald Professor of Botany at this University. Mr. Lloyd assures me that he would be only too pleased to enter into further correspondence with you on this or any other matter which you would like to bring before him.

I remember you very well in Victoria and am sorry that I did not see you when there last October.

With further reference to your letter of January 13th, I am enclosing herewith a copy of one received today from Professor Lloyd, Macdonald Professor of Botany here.

I hope you will avail yourself of the invitation of Professor Lloyd that you write to him. I am sure you will find him interesting, and perhaps you may meet him some time as he often goes to British Columbia. He spent some weeks out there last year.

President of McGill University,

My dear Sir Arthur Currie:

I am very much obliged to you for placing the articles before your Botanical Department. I regret that your doing so has not elicited the information I sought. I am obliged to Professor Lloyd Macdonald for his criticism and the expression of opinion that there is nothing new in the phenomena I described, and I am glad to know that he will be pleased to enter into correspondence with me on this, or other matters.

It is interesting to find such diversity of opinion. Dr. Fuller, University of Chicago, and Professor R.B. Thomson, University of Toronto, to whom I had opportunity of showing the specimens here, thought that the fasciation of the stems and branches of the conifers, as well as the tropisms of oaks, were phases of plant biology about which little was known.

It is difficult for an amateur to study these natural features. I had a similar experience with the phenomenon of overgrowth of stumps of conifers. Professor Davidson, now of the University of British Columbia, thought that my idea that root graft with a standing tree was the cause of the overgrowth, was nonsense. Kew, on the other hand, published my photos and findings in answer to the contentions of the German, Sorauer. Sorauer's contention about remote stumps I find is answered by the fact that stumps pass food from one to another. Professor Sargent, when I met him in 1913, at the Arnold Arboretum, and showed him the photographs, thought that the root graft was the explanation. Mr. Sudworth, U.S. Forestry, who wrote to me on this matter, also was soon convinced that root graft was the only explanation. Apparently, many prominent botanists and plant biologists are still ignorant of this wonderful vital power, although it has from time to time been brought up and discussed and the root graft theory established. Overgrown stumps are so frequently met with in the West that the ability of conifers to pass food on for great distances by means of a series of root grafts, will soon be referred to in the text books. These differences of opinion are, however, puzzling to a layman.

I hesitated to seek an opportunity to speak to you when you were here, as I realized how valuable your time was.

Again thanking you and reciprocating your good wishes for the season,

Yours gratefully,

Lloyd

My dear Sir Arthur:-

If your correspondent, Mr. Pemberton, cares to discuss the matters contained in his letters to you, with me, I shall be very glad to be of any assistance to him possible.

With regard to the second paragraph of Mr. Pemberton's letter, he cites Fuller, of Chicago, and Thomson, of Toronto, both of whom I know very well, as saying that the fasciations and tropisms which he mentioned are phases of plant physiology about which little is known. I think if Mr. Pemberton will read my letter carefully, he will find that what I said does not contradict this fact, namely, that the phenomena in question are not understood; that is to say, we do not understand why fasciation should arise, but so far as objective examples of fasciation are concerned, there are millions of them in the universe. As to the specific tropisms of oak as stated by Mr. Pemberton, I doubt very much the correctness of his interpretation, Fuller and Thomson to the contrary notwithstanding.

Some Fines!!
A Regarding paragraph 3 - this deals with the remarkable fact that the British Columbia fir has the power to overgrow ~~and~~ cut stumps. I have been familiar with this fact since 1893, having been one of the earliest observers of the matter in Oregon. If Mr. Pemberton was the first one to suggest that the explanation of this power is the result of root graft and has published the evidence, he is doubtless credited with the discovery in the literature. If, however, I am wrong about this, and Mr. Pemberton will furnish me with the citations, I will gladly write a note about it to one of the scientific periodicals and draw attention to Mr. Pemberton's discovery. Incidentally, I may say that I noticed a number of cases on Vancouver Island during the past summer and would be inclined to ask why only B. C. fir has the ability to do this; so far as I am aware, this is the only one which does so. Californian Redwood, which has far greater vitality than British Columbia fir has not this power. I should be glad to know if other species than B. C. fir behave in this manner. Mr. Pemberton simply speaks of conifers. I believe that this phenomenon is only to be observed in the Pacific Coast regions.

Sir Arthur Currie

I am at a loss to understand what information Mr. Pemberton was seeking and which I failed to give. I can only repeat that I shall be very glad if he will write to me directly so that I may be more specific in my reply.

My dear Sir Arthur:

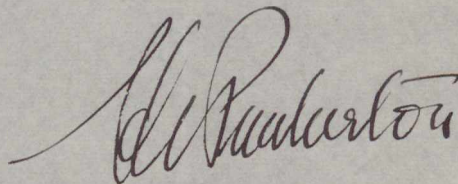

I am most grateful to you for your interest and help. I will gladly take advantage of the invitation of Professor Lloyd that I write to him. I was not sure that he thought these problems worth bothering about. It would be splendid if he came here and investigated them.

Many have been interested when I have written to them, but no one has attempted to follow the matter up. I am sure Professor Lloyd would be surprised at the number of instances and divers ways in which oaks attach themselves to, and spread over rock.

Re the stumps: When I found that the root graft theory was questioned, at the suggestion of the late Prof. Macoun, I had many dug up (in boom times!) In one instance only, I found the stumps passed the sap on to one another; I did not appreciate this at the time for it was before I had visited Kew and learned about the late Prof. Soraue's contentions. On my return, I found the farmer on whose land the stumps had been dug up, had filled the hole and buried most of the stumps again.

The only text-book I have seen refer to these stumps is Jepson's " Trees of California," I am preparing a letter to send to Professor Lloyd.

Yours gratefully,

P.S.

In all the stumps I dug up root-graft proved existent, The one case was where remote stumps were joined by secondary grafts,

Dear Sir:-

I beg to acknowledge receipt of your telegram of the 19th instant and also your letter of the 20th, in which you have again proposed to honour me by asking me to join in the Commencement Day ceremonies, on June 15th next.

Again it is my misfortune to have to deny myself the pleasure of being with you. You doubtless know of the Conference of the Universities of the British Empire in London the first week of July. As it is my intention to go and as they have arranged for a visit to the principal Universities of the Empire during the two weeks preceding the Conference, it will be necessary for me to leave Canada before June 15th.

Please accept once more my appreciation of your courtesy, and with all good wishes,

My dear Sir Arthur:

You doubtless received my telegram, expressing regret that before receiving your message of yesterday, arrangements had already been completed for our Washington's Birthday Celebration. It would have been a great pleasure to us to have had you with us. As soon as I received your letter, telling me of your inability to be with us on February 22d, I thought of you as the man, whom it would be a special pleasure and privilege to have with us on June 15th, as our Commencement Day speaker. Having been disappointed in my first efforts, may I hear from you to the effect that you will be with us in June. Your visit as the representative of Canada would have special significance and would be regarded as an occasion of no ordinary interest to all, who were so fortunate as to meet you and hear you.

With high regards, I am

Sincerely yours,

My dear Sir Arthur:

I received with great regret the telegram, informing me that owing to a previous engagement, it would not be possible for you to accept our invitation to be the speaker on our University Day. For more than a century the University of Pennsylvania has celebrated the birthday of George Washington, and for a number of years the occasion has been one of special importance, the speakers being chosen for the most part from men eminent in public life. We earnestly hoped that it would be our good fortune to add you to this distinguished list this year, in view of your notable record both personally and officially. We hope that the pleasure is simply deferred, and that on some future occasion, we may have the honor of your presence.

Josiah H. Penniman, Esq.,
Provost, University of Pennsylvania,
Philadelphia, Pa.

Dear Sir:-

This morning I am in receipt of your letter of January 11th, in which you confirm your telegram to me of a few days ago. I have to-day wired you as follows:

Have delayed acknowledging telegram asking me address University occasion annual celebration birthday George Washington in the hope that I might cancel engagements already made for that day. This I now find impossible to do, and so with every regret I have to inform you that I cannot accept your kind invitation. Please accept my most sincere thanks for the proffered distinction. Perhaps, some time in the future you will do me the honour of repeating the invitation."

I may say that ever since I received your telegram I have been particularly anxious to accept it, and for a few days considered what could be done to cancel engagements for the date of your Annual Celebration of Washington's birthday. Most regretfully I have been forced to conclude that I cannot be with you on the occasion mentioned. I would have appreciated very much, indeed, the privilege of speaking to the staff of the University and the student body, realizing that it was an occasion where one might say something which would have a good and far-reaching effect.

I am proud, indeed, that you should honor me by asking me to accept an honorary degree from the University of Pennsylvania. This distinction I would regard as a testimonial from you to Canada's War effort, and as an evidence of goodwill and esteem, not only to me personally, but to this University and to Canada.

Universities seek only the truth and it is our high and holy duty to disseminate that truth and to do everything that lies within our power to remove any causes there may be for misunderstanding, suspicion and jealousy between the Anglo-Saxon peoples.

As I said in my telegram, perhaps on some future occasion, the University may feel disposed to repeat the invitation. Once more assuring you of my very great regret at my inability to attend the ceremonies, I am

With all good wishes,

My dear Sir Arthur:

I had the pleasure of sending you a telegram to-day, inviting you to be the speaking guest at the University's Annual Ceremonies commemorative of George Washington, First President of the United States; and this despatch I am now writing to confirm, as follows:

"Will you honor us by addressing the University of Pennsylvania upon the occasion of its Annual Celebration of the birthday of George Washington on February 22nd next, here in Philadelphia as our guest and the recipient of honorary degree? Former speakers on this date have been such men as Presidents McKinley, Taft and Roosevelt and foreign Ambassadors. We would deeply appreciate privilege of receiving a message from Canada as representing the British Empire. May we ask that you wire us collect tentative reply. Letter follows."

In the event that you may be able to be with us on the date mentioned, there is no reason why you should confine your remarks to Washington himself, but any topic of an educational or statesmanlike nature would be held to be wholly appropriate to the occasion. No doubt, if you can accept our invitation, this will be a matter of further correspondence; and in the meanwhile

Dear Dr. Lingelbach:-

I acknowledge the receipt of your telegram.

It is a matter of sincere regret to me to have to inform you that I was compelled to wire the Provost to-day that it was utterly impossible for me to attend the ceremonies mentioned. I would like very much to be present, not only for the privilege it would give me of meeting the staff of the University of Pennsylvania and the student-body, but because it offers a medium for saying something which might help relations between the people of the United States and of the British Empire.

It goes without saying that the proffered degree would be one to which I would attach the highest value. I have intimated to the Provost that, perhaps, on a future occasion he will do me the honour of repeating the invitation.

Yours faithfully,

Principal.

DATED MARCH 30, 1916.

It is agreed between the sender of the message on the face of this form and this Company, that said Company shall not be liable for damages arising from failure to transmit or deliver, or for any error in the transmission or delivery of any unrepeatable telegram, whether happening from negligence of its servants or otherwise, or for delays from interruptions in the working of its lines, for errors in cypher or obscure messages, or for errors from illegible writing, beyond the amount received for sending the same.

To guard against errors, the Company will repeat back any telegram for an extra payment of one-half the regular rate, and in that case the Company shall be liable for damages, suffered by the sender to an extent not exceeding $200., due to the negligence of the Company in the transmission or delivery of the telegram.

Correctness in the transmission of messages can be insured by contract in writing, stating agreed amount of risk, and payment of premium thereon at the following rates, in addition to the usual charge for repeated messages, viz: one per cent. for any distance not exceeding 1,000 miles, and two per cent. for any greater distance.

This Company shall not be liable for the act or omission of any other Company, but will endeavor to forward the telegram by any other Telegraph Company necessary to reaching its destination, but only as the agent of the sender and without liability therefor. The Company shall not be responsible for messages until the same are presented and accepted at one of its transmitting offices; if a message is sent to such office by one of the Company's messengers he acts for that purpose as the sender's agent; if by telephone the person receiving the message acts therein as agent of the sender, being authorized to assent to these conditions for the sender. This Company shall not be liable in any case for damages, unless the same be claimed, in writing, within sixty days after receipt of the telegram for transmission.

No employee of the Company shall vary the foregoing.

DAY LETTERS.

This Company will receive DAY LETTERS, to be transmitted at rates lower than its standard telegram rates, as follows: one and one-half times the ten-word Day message rate shall be charged for the transmission of fifty (50) words or less, and one-fifth of the initial rate for such fifty words shall be charged for each additional ten (10) words or less.

DAY LETTERS may be forwarded by the Telegraph Company as a deferred service and the transmission and delivery of such DAY LETTERS are, in all respects, subordinate to the priority of transmission and delivery of full-rate messages.

DAY LETTERS shall be written in plain English, or in French. Code language is not permitted.

DAY LETTERS may be delivered by the Telegraph Company by telephoning the same to the addresses, and such deliveries shall be a complete discharge of the obligation of the Telegraph Company to deliver.

DAY LETTERS are received subject to the express understanding and agreement that the Company does not undertake that a DAY LETTER shall be delivered on the day of its date absolutely and at all events; but that the Company's obligation in this respect is subject to the condition that there shall remain sufficient time for the transmission and delivery of such DAY LETTER on the day of its date during regular office hours, subject to the priority of the transmission of full-rate messages under the conditions named above.

Dear Sir Arthur:-

I acknowledge receipt of your letter of January 10th, urging me to give the address on University Day, February 22nd.

I sincerely regret that I was compelled to wire the Provost to-day that it was utterly impossible for me to attend the ceremonies mentioned. I would like very much to be present, not only for the privilege it would give me of meeting the staff and student-body, but because it offers an opportunity of saying something which might help relations between the people of the United States and of the British Empire.

I would be highly honoured by an honorary degree from the University of Pennsylvania and would regard this distinction as a testimonial from that University to Canada and Canadians generally.

Yours faithfully,

Dear Sir Arthur:

The acting Provost has asked me if I think you would consent to give the address on University Day, February 22nd, and I have promised him I would write, urging you to accept the invitation.

This address on Washington's Birthday is the most important event of the University year, and it is customary for the orator of the day to take some aspect of Washington's life as a text from which to preach his own particular sermon.

I know that you have many and pressing engagements, but I cannot help feeling that this invitation is well worthy of serious consideration, in view of the slightly strained relations between the two countries owing to the Irish agitation.

I feel quite sure that the address you gave at the dinner in New York could serve as a basis of your remarks, with a proper introduction and and peroration.

I hope that we will see you and Lady Currie, if possible, on that occasion.

Sincerely yours,

R. Tait McKenzie

My dear Sir Arthur:

We are looking forward with the greatest pleasure to your visit to Philadelphia next week, when you will be the speaker on our University Day. Mr. Cadwalader, one of our most distinguished citizens and a member of the University Board of Trustees, will act as your host during your visit. He has, I understand, been in direct communication with you, as has also Mr. Merrick to whom I have entrusted the making of all arrangements for the exercises.

You would be gratified by the many expressions of pleasure and interest, which followed the announcement of your coming. We all regret that you and Lady Currie will not be able to make a longer stay in Philadelphia, but we hope that the relation with the University, which will be established in making you one of its honorary alumni, may be followed by still closer ties, not only between the University of Pennsylvania and the great University over which you preside, but also between our respective countries.

Dear Dr. Penniman:-

We arrived in Montreal on Friday morning and found the temperature at Zero, a very great change from that of Philadelphia the day before. The result is that my wife is spending the day in bed, having somewhere contracted rather a severe cold, though that does not detract in any way from the kindly and grateful thoughts we both entertain for Philadelphia and those whom it was our good fortune to meet there.

I know that we have never visited any city from which we have carried away more pleasant remembrances and we shall look forward to the hope that the future may permit us to see you all again and before a very long period of time elapses. Should you or any of your staff come to Montreal I hope they will give us the pleasure of reciprocating in some measure the kindness we received there.

Let me assure you again that I appreciate very much the honour of being enrolled as an Alumnus of Pennsylvania.

With all good wishes to the University and to yourself, I am,

Dear Sir:

Provost Penniman has informed me that you are to deliver the University Day address at the University of Pennsylvania on Washington's birthday. As Director of the University News Bureau, I am writing to ask for certain material to be used in the newspapers before and after your address. I should like to have either half a dozen unmounted photographs of yourself, preferably in uniform, or one picture from which I might be able to make copies. May I also have a copy of your address by February 8, or as near that date as possible. The Associated Press has asked me to obtain this. If it is in my hands at least ten days before delivery the Associated Press can send it by mail to all their subscribers in the United States and Canada, as well as in England. In order to obtain the proper publicity it is important that I have the address by this time, because it will require at least a week for the Associated Press to reach its farthest subscribing papers. It is a rule of the Associated Press not to send out the address by mail unless there is time to reach the entire circulation. Otherwise all that the A. P. can do will be to send a report by wire on the day of the Exercises.

Your kindness in co-operating with me will be very greatly appreciated.

Dear Sir Arthur Currie:

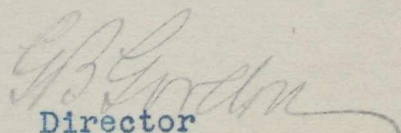

I have learned with pleasure that you are to be the guest of honour and principal speaker at the Exercises of the University of Pennsylvania in Philadelphia on February 22. I am well aware that your time during your visit to Philadelphia will be fully occupied; nevertheless, I venture to hope that I may have the pleasure of seeing something of you. I would particularly like to have an opportunity of showing you over the collections in this Museum which is affiliated with the University of Pennsylvania and which is widely used for purposes of instruction, both by the University and by the schools of this City and the general public.

With these thoughts in my mind I have been hoping that you might be staying over night in Philadelphia and that we might have an opportunity on the 23rd of seeing you at the Museum.

Since I last had the pleasure of seeing you in company with Lady Currie and your daughter at the Caledonian Hotel, Edinburgh, I had a very interesting journey to Constantinople and other parts of the Nearer East.

I thank you for your letter of the 27th in which you were good enough to ask me to join you in looking over the collections in the University Museum when I visited Philadelphia on the 22nd of February.

The only engagements I have are to speak at some Alumni function on the evening of the 21st and at the Exercises on the 22nd. Dr. Tait Mackenzie has also been kind enough to ask me to spend an hour or so with him. Another invitation has come to remain over another day and attend some sort of Dance and Reception to be given by the British Great War Veterans, but this will be impossible as I have made engagements in New York for the 23rd. I should think, therefore, that I would arrive on the 21st and leave as soon after the ceremonies as I could get away.

I know Lady Currie and I shall both be very glad to see you again and I assure you that I would much rather spend an hour or so in your Museum than to be the central figure at a Reception.

Dear Mr. Merrick:-

I beg to acknowledge receipt of your letter of January 24th enclosing a letter addressed to Dr. Penniman from the President of the British Great War Veterans, Mr. H.G. Milson.

Will you please convey to Mr. Milson my profound thanks for the proffered honour, but say to him that it will be impossible for me to participate in the suggested programme. I have already made a most important engagement in New York for February 23rd. If it were a personal engagement I could very easily cancel it, but it is one that has much to do with the affairs of the University over which I preside.

The time at my disposal will only permit me to reach Philadelphia during the 21st. I have an engagement that evening with some Alumni Association and I must return to New York as soon as the functions at the University are concluded.

We have written the President of the Veterans that we would transmit his letter to you and, after ascertaining your pleasure in the matter, would inform him as to your reply. Dear Sir:-

The members of the Philadelphia Command of the British Great War Veterans Association, together with a very large number of Canadians and admirers of the Canadian Forces in the late war, have been for some time extremely anxious to have the honor of giving a reception to General Sir Arthur Currie, and they feel that the most opportune time would be the day following his address at the Academy of Music, under the auspices of the University of Pennsylvania.

Their tentative plans are that at one of the largest available halls, a dance and reception will be held in the General's honor, preceded by his meeting the Mayor and officials at the City Hill, and a parade in which the members of British Regiments and men of the American Legion will participate.

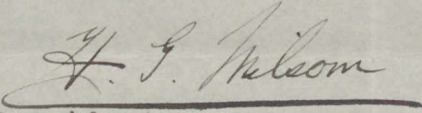

It has been requested that a charge be made for the dance, which will take place the evening of February 23rd, and that the proceeds be devoted to relief work amongst the widows and orphans of Philadelphians, who left to join the Canadian or British Forces, and having made the supreme sacrifice, did not return.

Colonel John Muckle, who entertains nearly all the notables from other countries while visiting Philadelphia, has kindly offered to place his Walnut Street home at the disposal of General Currie, and both Colonel and Mrs. Muckle co-operating with the members of the Canadian Club, will see to it that the General's visit will be most enjoyable to him.

We ask you, Sir, to do all in your power in lending us a hand, that our wishes in this matter may materialize.

Faithfully yours,

President.

Dear Sir Arthur:

Dr. Gordon has just told me that he had a reply from you concerning your engagements in Philadelphia on the 21st and 23rd.

We are looking forward to having you and Lady Currie in to tea after the luncheon which follows the convocation. If you are leaving the same evening you can go direct to the train from our house.

Dr. Gordon is anxious to have you see the most interesting educational experiment that they are trying out at the Museum. He is an exceptionally able man and I believe that you would find it not only interesting but that it might be of importance in the development of some such scheme at McGill.

We plan to arrange it so that you can drive from the luncheon to the Museum, and from the Museum back to our house on the 22nd. In any case we will see you on the night of the 21st and also at the public meeting.

We are particularly pleased that Lady Currie is to accompany you, and Mrs. McKenzie will write her to-day.

Yours sincerely,

My dear Sir:

In further reference to our invitation to dine with us on the night of Washington's Birthday, February twenty-second, at our annual Alumni Banquet, we have been advised that possibly there has been some confusion in the dates in your mind .

As we understand it, your thought is that the dinner is on the night of the twenty-first, and we are therefore writing to advise you that the dinner is on the twenty-second, and we are counting on your being able to honor us with your presence.

If any confusion or conflict of dates has occurred, due to our neglect, please accept our apologies, but we trust that such is not the case and that you will be with us on the Twenty-second.

J. Hartley Merrick, Esq.,
Assistant to Acting Provost,
University of Pennsylvania,

Dear Mr. Merrick:-

I think it would be wise to decide once for all as to what my programme will be when visiting the University of Pennsylvania.

I have decided to arrive late on the night of the 21st and shall go at once to the Ritz-Carlton Hotel, where Mr. Cadwalader informs me that apartments have been reserved for Lady Currie and myself. On the 22nd I shall, of course, attend the Convocation ceremonies in the morning; shall lunch with Mr. and Mrs. Cadwalader at their home; visit the Museum and my friend Dr. Gordon; in the afternoon, have tea with Dr. and Mrs. Tait McKenzie; and in the evening, attend the Alumni dinner.

I have received an invitation to attend, after the Alumni Dinner, a Reception to be given by the British Great War Veterans. This I am prepared to accept. I have also an invitation to take lunch with the British Officers' Club on February 23rd, which engagement I am pleased to make. I must leave Philadelphia during the early afternoon of the 23rd, in order to keep an important engagement already made in New York. I must leave New York at 7.45 on the evening of the 23rd, in order to keep engagements in Montreal on the 24th.

This makes a very full programme for the day of the 23rd and apparently, it does not leave me the time that I would like to spend with Dr. Penniman, but perhaps the afternoon of the 22nd or the morning of the 23rd may be convenient for him to show me something of the University.

I am arriving late on the evening of the 21st, because I have made an engagement with the McGill Alumni Society of New York to dine with them that evening.

If this programme does not, in your opinion, present any difficulties I think we had better adopt it and stick to it.

With all good wishes, I am,

Ever yours faithfully,

Principal.

APPROVED BY THE BOARD OF RAILWAY COMMISSIONERS FOR CANADA UNDER ORDER 162.
DATED MARCH 30, 1916.

It is agreed between the sender of the message on the face of this form and this Company, that said Company shall not be liable for damages arising from failure to transmit or deliver, or for any error in the transmission or delivery of any unrepeatable telegram, whether happening from negligence of its servants or otherwise, or for delays from interruptions in the working of its lines, for errors in cypher or obscure messages, or for errors from illegible writing, beyond the amount received for sending the same.

To guard against errors, the Company will repeat back any telegram for an extra payment of one-half the regular rate, and in that case the Company shall be liable for damages, suffered by the sender to an extent not exceeding $200., due to the negligence of the Company in the transmission or delivery of the telegram.

Correctness in the transmission of messages can be insured by contract in writing, stating agreed amount of risk, and payment of premium thereon at the following rates, in addition to the usual charge for repeated messages, viz: one per cent. for any distance not exceeding 1,000 miles, and two per cent. for any greater distance.

This Company shall not be liable for the act or omission of any other Company, but will endeavor to forward the telegram by any other Telegraph Company necessary to reaching its destination, but only as the agent of the sender and without liability therefor. The Company shall not be responsible for messages until the same are presented and accepted at one of its transmitting offices; if a message is sent to such office by one of the Company's messengers he acts for that purpose as the sender's agent; if by telephone the person receiving the message acts therein as agent of the sender, being authorized to assent to these conditions for the sender. This Company shall not be liable in any case for damages, unless the same be claimed, in writing, within sixty days after receipt of the telegram for transmission.

No employee of the Company shall vary the foregoing.

DAY LETTERS.

This Company will receive DAY LETTERS, to be transmitted at rates lower than its standard telegram rates, as follows: one and one-half times the ten-word Day message rate shall be charged for the transmission of fifty (50) words or less, and one-fifth of the initial rate for such fifty words shall be charged for each additional ten (10) words or less.

DAY LETTERS may be forwarded by the Telegraph Company as a deferred service and the transmission and delivery of such DAY LETTERS are, in all respects, subordinate to the priority of transmission and delivery of full-rate messages.

DAY LETTERS shall be written in plain English, or in French. Code language is not permitted.

DAY LETTERS may be delivered by the Telegraph Company by telephoning the same to the addresses, and such deliveries shall be a complete discharge of the obligation of the Telegraph Company to deliver.

DAY LETTERS are received subject to the express understanding and agreement that the Company does not undertake that a DAY LETTER shall be delivered on the day of its date absolutely and at all events; but that the Company's obligation in this respect is subject to the condition that there shall remain sufficient time for the transmission and delivery of such DAY LETTER on the day of its date during regular office hours, subject to the priority of the transmission of full-rate messages under the conditions named above.

EDITORS:- The following advance of the speech of General SIR ARTHUR CURRIE, Principal of McGill University, Montreal, is for RELEASE in the EVENING papers (not noon editions) of WEDNESDAY, Feb. 22, unless countermanded by wire.- Canadian Press.

RELEASE PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 22 (By Canadian Press) "There are EVENINGS problems still to be solved and in meeting them the Anglo-WEDNESDAY Saxon ideals of Washington must not be forgotten or ignored. FEB. 22. Let me tell you in all earnestness, in the words of a Canadian statesman who himself always advocated unity and tolerance and friendship, that in the solution of these problems we have a safe guide, an unfailing light, if we always remember that faith is better than doubt and love is better than hate."

This was a potent thought in the Washington's Birthday address at the University of Pennsylvania today, by General Sir Arthur Currie, principal of McGill University, Montreal, and commander of the Canadian forces in France and Belgium during the latter part of the Great War. Sir Arthur received the degree of Doctor of Laws from the seat of learning here this afternoon.

"It is indeed a privilege to speak to this assembly on a subject suggested by the life and work of the illustrious statesman whose birthday you commemorate", said Sir Arthur. It is particularly interesting to me to speak in this City of brotherhood, hallowed as it is by the memories of the immortal men and by the glorious incidents connected inseparably with your Nation's birth. It is an honour too not unfelt to appear as a successor to the many distinguished men who have spoken on a similar occasion in this place. This honour, I assure you, I deeply appreciate on behalf of myself, my University and my Country.

"Celebrations, such as these, of the birthdays of our former national leaders are hopeful tendencies of the present. In the rush of modern life, with its fever and its fret, its widespread selfishness and enervating idleness, its vulgar ostentation and its fruitless chasing after shadows, it is well to hark back, if only indeed for a brief period, to those who preached a purer gospel and lived and died for the higher things of life. We are sometimes told today that the age of ideals, like the old age of chivalry, is forever gone, that the present age is an age of expediency in church, in state and in society, and that on the whole we are today indifferent to ethical and moral standards. There are those of us who do not join in that despairing lamentation, and who still believe that the stars of faith are set high and eternal in the heavens, but in times of discouragement and of faltering feet even we need strength and stimulus for our belief. We find that necessary strength always in a backward glance at the ideals and sacrifices of those lives from whose effort our nations sprang. For national heroes are the best possessions of a people. Their example cannot die. Their spirits are forever by our side to guide, to lead and to inspire. "They were the leaders of men, these great ones", said Carlyle, "the modellers, patterns, and in a wide sense creators, of whatsoever the general mass of men continued to do or to attain; all things that we see standing accomplished in the world are properly the outer material result, the practical realization and embodiment of Thoughts that dwelt in the Great Men sent into the world; the soul of the whole world's history, it may justly be considered, were the history of these Great Men, taken up in any way, are profitable company. We cannot look, however imperfectly, upon a great man without gaining something from him. He is the living light-fountain, which it is good and pleasant to be near."

The light which enlightens, which has enlightened the darkness of the world; and this not as a kindled lamp only, but rather as a national luminary shining by the gift of Heaven: a flowing light-fountain, as I say, of native original insight, of manhood and heroic nobleness; - in whose radiance all souls feel that is well with them. On any terms whatsoever, you will not grudge to wander in such a neighborhood for a while." It is therefore but fitting that on this, the anniversary of his birth, we should pause if only for a brief period to consider a few thoughts suggested by the ideals of one of your great national heroes, and one of the great heroes of the world, - your immortal and revered George Washington.

"Strange and difficult indeed would be the task of him who would say to this audience anything distinctly new about George Washington. Even an attempt at such a task would be but folly. The details of his life, the earnestness of his struggle, the splendour of his achievements, the great powers of his constructive statesmanship are well known to you all. Even the myths connected with his career are the common knowledge of mankind. But at times in these later days his ideals are clouded, the motives which actuated his efforts are obscured or ignored, and the true relation of his doctrines and his theories to other countries than his own is not clearly understood. It is perhaps therefore natural and wise that we should look briefly at his ideals as they have affected your country and mine, or rather those kindred countries of a common ancestry.

"George Washington represents the best type of the English country gentleman of the 18th century. What he desired most was reform rather than revolution. He would solve the problems of his beloved land by peaceful measures, but if these measures were to fail because of the obstinacy or the stupidity of his opponents, as his kindred had done over a hundred years before him, he would gladly give up the joys of home and enter the tragic tournaments of death in his desire to serve his people. If the question at issue was "aught toward the general good, he would set honour in one eye and death in the other and -- look at both indifferently". He would pledge his person and his property to the cause of liberty. Not without anxiety and careful thought and sorrowful regrets did he take the final but inevitable step which he knew would mean the severing of the sacred tie of kindred and of nation. "Prudence", he well knew, "dictated that governments long established should not be changed for light and transient causes"; he knew too "that mankind are disposed to suffer, while evils are sufferable, rather than to right themselves by abolishing the forms to which they are accustomed". But he likewise knew, what the world today approves, that "when a long train of abuses and usurpations, pursuing invariably the same object, evinces a design to reduce them under absolute despotism, it is their right, it is their duty, to throw off such government, and to provide new guards for their future security". Washington's rhetoric was never the rhetoric of a rebel; it was the calm, judicious and earnest appeal of a man with clear and far vision who represented the best and noblest spirit of his age.

"In formulating his theories of justice and freedom, his doctrines of the inalienable rights of life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness, his principles of governments instituted among men and deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed, he was not alone in his generation nor was he the first and only of the prophets. He represented the ideals of the majority of the thinking men of Britain. His was but one clarion voice in the great chorus singing in his time the pean of freedom. Behind him were long traditions and the long advocacy of liberty echoing clearly through the unforgotten years. The Magna Charta and the Petition of Right were there. There too were the memories and the spirits of those immortal kindred who with no thought of self had defied the powers of an obnoxious autocracy or had challenged undismayed the tyranny of kings. Behind him was a goodly company, More and Tyndale, Milton and Hampden and Cromwell and others, all were there, and there too in that long line were the political liberators and the covenanting martyrs, their pale and famished faces contrasting strangely with their immortal and unbending spirits, which neither death nor torture could vanquish or subdue. The torch they lighted still burned in Washington's day, sometimes strongly, sometimes it is true with but a flickering flame; but its glow still lingered in the English sky; it never faded from the English cliffs; Washington had behind him traditions that inspired, traditions of protest against oppression and a faith in common men, not merely in the elevated few, but in that great mass of lonely uncounted souls who possess the treasures of the humble.

"And even in his own day when he uttered these memorable words which brought as if by magic a new nation into being Washington was not without friends and comrades in ideals in Britain. His ideals were those of Britain's best. The weight of power was against him, it is true, but we must not forget the courageous minority who sympathized with his views. Locke's political philosophy, expressed nearly a century before, had declared that all power was revocable at the will of the people. It had emphasized the rights of "life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness", - the very words used later in your Declaration of Independence. It had declared that no power should exist without the consent of the governed. Already that philosophy was coming into practice. The alarm bell of liberty had already been struck, although its pealing sounds were muffled but never silenced by those who usurped political power. It was in 1763 that the first criticism of the King's speech from the throne at the opening of parliament was made in No. 45 of the "North Britain" by Jack Wilkes, that stormy petrel whose name is immortalized in Wilkes-barre, your Pennsylvania town. The writer was expelled from parliament for his pains, but he was re-elected by his constituents. In Paris, to which he fled for refuge, he said when he was asked by Madame Pompadour how far could an Englishman go in criticising his sovereign, "that, Madame, is just what I am trying to find out". That was exactly what many Englishmen were trying to find out, but the answer to the momentous question was long delayed. Edmund Burke, the statesman who was too fond of the right to pursue the expedient, stood side by side with Washington in his advocacy of the rights of the Colonists. Robert Burns at a later date with his fiery Scottish spirit, refused to drink a toast to Pitt, but proposed instead a toast to George Washington, who, he said, was a better man. And Chatham protested against the attitude of England towards her Colonies and summed up the situation by saying "Three millions in America prefer poverty and liberty to gilded chains and sordid affluence and they will die in defence of their rights as free men. For myself, I must declare that in all my reading and observation --- for solidity of reasoning, force of sagacity and wisdom of conclusion under such a complication of difficult circumstances, no nation or body of men can stand in preference to the General Congress at Philadelphia!"

"The work of Washington was an extraordinary evidence of an ordinary and widespread aspiration, one phase of a general Anglo-Saxon movement on behalf of freedom, one milestone in the forward march of civilization. Washington gathered around him a group of illustrious advisors, Franklin, Hamilton, Jefferson, Madison, Knox, Greene and the Adamses, all stirred by the same ideals. It was Jefferson who said, "I am not one of those who fear the people. I know of no safe depository of the ultimate powers of society, but the people themselves", - an ideal voiced by his Anglo-Saxon kindred a hundred years before.

"In my own country the influence of Washington's ideals and of the revolution which these ideals brought about was far reaching. The disadvantages which arose from the severing of the National tie were offset in a measure by several advantages which accrued to Canada

When the crisis came there was a large influx to Canada of Americans who, while they believed in the principles of liberty, could not abandon the political system of their fathers. Not without deep regret did they move to another land. "The thoughts of being driven from our country," wrote Jacob Bailey of Philadelphia, "and from all those endearing connections we had been forming for so many years, and the expectation of landing on a strange and unknown shore depressed our spirits beyond measure." Jonathan Sewell, son of the Attorney General of Massachusetts, wrote from what he considered his exile "you know the Israelites hankered after the leeks and onions of Egypt, their native land. So do we after the nuts, cranberries and apples of America. Cannot you send me two or three barrels of Newton Pippins, large and sound, a few of our American walnuts commonly called Shagbarks and a few cranberries". And John Coffin, a Harvard man, wrote to a friend who had remained in New England "I would give more for one pork barrel made in Massachusetts than for all that have been made in New Brunswick since its settlement". Of those who moved to Canada, in the Maritime provinces alone at least two hundred were Harvard graduates, while an equal number came from other Universities. They brought to Canada an educational stimulus of great value. They had no hatred for the kindred or the land they had left. They differed merely on the question of a political system, but they did not believe in tyranny. Their attitude after the war is well expressed in the verse of Joseph Stansbury, also at one time a resident of Philadelphia:

"Now this war at length is o'er,
Let us think of it no more;
Every party lie or name
Banish as our mutual shame;
Bid each wound of faction close,
Blushing we were ever foes".

"The struggle for freedom and responsible government on this continent did not end with the American revolution. In my own country the problem of political justice was the vital problem of our ancestors in 1837. It involved a struggle against autocracy and a clique system of administration known as the Family Compact. But it was solved by our ancestors without bloodshed and without the cutting of the cords of kindred or of nation. The lessons of Washington were being learned throughout the world. It is interesting to recall that the grandson of one of the men who in my country in 1837 was denounced as a rebel, even as Washington was denounced, is today the Prime Minister of Canada. The unbeliefs of the past have become the beliefs of the present.

"One hundred and fifty years have gone since the troubled days of Washington. The world of 1922 is not the world of 1778. Elsewhere than in his own land the ideals of Washington have been assimilated. He believed like the greatest Anglo-Saxon thinkers of all time in the ultimate soundness of the people's judgment. He believed in the loss of self for the service of others. He would make the test of manhood not, "has he amassed deep learning or great wealth" but "has he labored for the general welfare". The only reward he asked was to see in the midst of his fellow citizens the benign influence of good laws under a free government; this he called the "ever favorite object of his heart."

"Next to liberty and freedom Washington believed in unity. He loved peace better than war and amity more than strife. He urged the States to "forget their local prejudices; to make those mutual concessions which are requisite to the general prosperity, and in some instances to sacrifice their individual advantages to the interest of the community". And what he urged upon States he would likewise urge upon nations. It was the inevitable working of poetic justice in human history that the greatest conference ever held in the interests of peace should meet nearly a century and a half after Washington's struggles and triumphs, in that stately city called in honour of his name. His ideals still live upon the earth. The men and boys who went out from your country and mine to die on foreign fields for their principles during the recent war of world tragedy were similar to him in spirit. They too, like another of your statesmen, would have liberty or death. And surely above their graves, with the Anglo-Saxon ideals of Washington to strengthen us, we shall remember in future only the common cause for which our race has always struggled. There have been at times misunderstandings. But there have been friends, like the British James Bryce, and your illustrious statesmen at the recent conference, who have always understood. "It is the authors of silly books, the editors of silly papers and the demagogues of silly parties that help to estrange us", wrote our immortal Haliburton, - "Sam Slick". "I wish", he said, "there was a gibbet high enough and strong enough to hang up all these enemies of mankind."

"Let us determine how best we can draw together in bonds of peace, friendship and prosperity the three great branches of the British family", said our Canadian Joseph Howe sixty years ago. "In the presence of this great theme", he said, all petty interests should stand rebuked - we are not dealing with the concerns of a city, a province or a state, but with the future of our race in all time to come. Why should not these three great branches of the family flourish, under different systems of government, it may be, but forming one grand whole, proud of a common origin and of their advanced civilization? The clover lifts its trefoil leaves to the evening dew, yet they draw their nourishment from a single stem. Thus distinct, and yet united, let us live and flourish. Why should we not? For nearly two thousand years we were one family. Our fathers fought side by side at Hastings and heard the curfew toll. They fought in the same ranks for the sepulchre of our Savior - in the earlier and later civil wars. We can wear our white and red roses without a blush, and glory in the principles these conflicts established. Our common ancestors won the Great Charter and the Bill of Rights - established Free Parliaments, the Habeas Corpus and Trial by Jury. Our jurisprudence comes down from Coke and Mansfield to Marshall and Story, rich in knowledge and experience which no man can divide. From Chaucer to Shakespeare our literature is a common inheritance; Tennyson and Longfellow write in one language which is enriched by the genius on either side of the Atlantic. In the great navigators from Cotterel to Hudson, and in all the moving accident by flood and field we have a common interest"

John Cadwalader, Esq.,
1519 Locust Street,
Philadelphia, Pa.

Dear Mr. Cadwalader:-

Lady Currie and I arrived home at 7.30 yesterday morning to find the family all well, but also to greet a temperature just below zero. We wished ourselves back in Philadelphia for a change from an agreeable 65 to zero is not welcome. Lady Currie has been laid up since, having caught a severe cold somewhere, but that takes nothing away from the pleasant recollections we have of your city and of the kindness with which we were overwhelmed while there.

Neither of us shall ever forget how kind the Cadwalader family were to us. Will you please convey to Mrs. Cadwalader and to your daughter my sincere regret at not being able to call upon them once more before taking the train on Thursday afternoon.

I hope that some time in the near future we may have the pleasure and the honour of welcoming you all to our home in Montreal.

I am,

With all good wishes, Sir,

Ever yours faithfully,

Dear Dr. McKenzie:-

My wife and I appreciate very much your kindness and courtesy in sending us photographs of some of your work.

These we shall value highly not only as an interesting souvenir of our visit to your studio, but also as an indication of the merit of the work of a graduate of McGill whom we are proud to number

Dear Dr. McKenzie:-

I feel annoyed at myself that I have not before this written to you and thanked you for all your kindness to me while I was in Philadelphia.

I did enjoy myself very much while there. I was very much impressed with the people whom I met - the Cadwaladers, the Peppers, Dr. Keen, Dr. Penniman, Mr. Merrick, and of course, I was glad to see Gordon again. I felt that my visit was altogether too short and I would have prolonged it had it not been necessary for me to be in Montreal on Friday the 24th.

Please remember me most kindly to Mrs. McKenzie. It was very sweet of her to arrange the Tea for us and to take my wife out on Thursday morning. The change from the warm weather of Philadelphia to the zero weather which we found in Montreal was altogether too much for Lady Currie. After being laid up for nearly a week with a cold she had the misfortune to contract chicken-pox and has been confined to the house ever since.

I hope that some time soon we may have the pleasure of welcoming you both in Montreal.

Ever yours faithfully,

Thank you very much for your letter of the 27th of March, in which you pay me the compliment of asking me to go to Philadelphia on April 4th to make some small contribution to the matters to be discussed at the banquet given in honour of the President-Elect of the American Medical Association.

This will indeed be a very interesting occasion and I am sure one would profit much by attending, but my engagements will not permit me to go.

April 3rd, 1923.

Dear Mr. Principal:

I am writing to let you know how gladly the University of Pennsylvania will welcome as her guests the delegates to the Second Biennial Intercollegiate Conference on Undergraduate Activities, set for the 26th, 27th and 28th of this month.

The helpful co-operation that has been given to the present University Administration so willingly and effectively by our own Undergraduate Council during this past year leads us to endorse emphatically the principles and purposes of the Intercollegiate Conference; and it gives us pleasure to advise you that this University will do all in its power officially to promote the vital interests represented by the Conference, with the end in view of developing and strengthening the cordial relations that must exist between the administration and the student body if our universities and colleges generally are to fulfill their functions as "training camps" for turning out young men with a spirit of co-operative service and a knowledge of the basic principles of self-government.

If you can be helpful in an advisory capacity in aiding in the selection of the delegates from your institution to the forthcoming sessions of the proposed Conference, I beg that you will do so, and thus contribute to the success of the occasion by approving the highest type of personnel.

Faithfully yours,

My dear Sir Arthur:

Your very courteous letter was awaiting me on my return to my office a few days ago. I was sorry to miss you and would have waited, but my train left in a few minutes and I was obliged to hurry on. I shall bear in mind your very gracious invitation on some future occasion. It will be a pleasure to see you and Mrs. Currie as my guests in Philadelphia, if you are ever in our neighborhood.

My presence in Montreal was due to the fact that I had just landed at Quebec from Europe and went to Montreal on my way to New York, arriving there quite late in the evening and leaving the next morning at ten. I had, therefore, very little time or I should certainly have arranged to see you.

With kindest regards, I am

Notes respecting E. Allison Peers

Succeeded the late James Fitzmaurice Kelly, well-known Cervantes scholar, at the University of Liverpool, and has shown himself a worthy successor.

Founder of the Modern Humanities Research Association. In his devotion to research he has made interesting contributions to modern criticism. Nothing seems to delight him more than to pore over old Spanish manuscripts in the libraries, convents and cathedrals of Spain, and these manuscripts sympathetically respond by revealing to him many of their secrets.

Editor of Bulletin of Spanish Studies, a critical review of great importance, and far the most important of its kind in the British Isles.

E. Allison Peers

Professor E. Allison Peers, who succeeded the great Cervantes scholar, James Fitzmaurice-Kelly, at the University of Liverpool in 1920, paid his first visit to the United States as Visiting Professor of Modern Comparative Literature in 1929 at Columbia University. In the summer of 1930 he was Visiting Professor of Spanish at the Universities of New Mexico and California at Los Angeles. He proposes to revisit this country in 1932 from about March 10th to April 25th and will be available for lecture engagements at not too great a distance from New York City.

Professor Peers is known to other than Spanish scholars as founder (1918) of the Modern Humanities Research Association, an international body of researchers in modern languages and literatures. He is also founder and editor of the Bulletin of Spanish Studies and founder and director of the University of Liverpool Summer School of Spanish, held yearly at Santander, and reorganized as a British-American School in 1930. He is an honorary member of the American Association of Teachers of Spanish and a full member of the Hispanic Society of America.

A number of books have been published by Professor Allison Peers, chiefly on Spanish Mysticism and Spanish Romanticism, but including also English and French literature and educational methods. He has written five books on travel in Spain (Spain, The Pyrenees, Royal Seville, Santander, and Granada) and is editor of the well-known volume: Spain, A Companion to Spanish Studies.

Professor Allison Peers has done much speaking and writing of religious subjects. He has read papers at the Anglican Church Congress, writes on devotional subjects for Roman Catholic and Non-Conformist periodicals and has lectured at the Quaker settlement at Woodbridge, Birmingham.

My dear Sir:

Please do not feel that this note is an impertinent intrusion upon your time and your energy. It is a poor attempt at an expression of appreciation on the part of one who was fortunate enough to be present yesterday at the University Exercises, and heard your excellent address on Washington.

Please accept my expression of appreciation, I wish that all the citizens of the United States of America would live up to the standards set by your address.

In 1910 a bitter hater of England, a Prussian of Prussian, said to me, "So England belongs the credit of establishing civil liberty."

All who live under the "Stars and Stripes" ought to keep that in mind and live in appreciation of that noble service to all mankind.

Very sincerely
A. Heist Rutt
