In an action to restrain the violation of a covenant, and for damages, the plaintiff was advised, after action commenced, that there was something in her title which might act as a personal bar to her obtaining relief. An amendment by making another person a co-plaintiff who was also entitled to the benefit of the same covenant was allowed, the real question being the effect of the covenant: Ayscough v. Bullar, 41 Ch. D. 341. Where a new plaintiff is thus added, the action, as regards him, is to be deemed to have been commenced, only from the date of his being added: Id. See also Walcott v. Lyons, 29 Ch. D. 584.

After judgment finding defendants liable for a collision, the substitution of the owner of the cargo as plaintiff instead of the then plaintiff, his agent, was allowed so as to enable the owner's damages to be assessed. It was held that judgment finding the liability and leaving the damages to be assessed was not final, and therefore there was a power to act under this Rule: The Duke of Buccleuch, 1892, P. 201. The addition of a plaintiff was refused where the effect would be to constitute a new action which the plaintiff in the action commenced could not maintain: Tinning v. Bingham, 16 P. R. 110; Johnston v. Consumers' Gas Co., 17 P. R. 297; Durham v. Robertson, supra; Hathaway v. Duig, 6 Ont. App. 264. So where the plaintiff in misconception of his rights had sued the defendants in their official capacity as servants of the Crown, he was not allowed to amend by suing them as private individuals: Ratcliff v. Gascher, 1898, 1 Ch. 73; 77 L. T. 429.

An addition of a plaintiff ought not to be allowed where it would prejudice defendant's right to set up the Statute of Limitations as against the added party: see Hudson v. Fernyough, 61 L. T. 722; 88 L. T. Jour. 253. Rules 314-316.

For other cases in which the Rule had been acted upon, see Val de Travers Asphalt Co. (Limited) v. London Tramway Co. (Limited), 48 L. J. C. P. 312; 40 L. T. 133; W. N. 1879, 46, and Mercantile River Plate Co. v. Isaac, W. N. 1876, 104; 2 Charl. Ch. Ca. 23; Blackburn Union v. Brooks, 26 W. R. 57; Cupples v. Strahan, 20 L. R. Ir. 120; Long v. Crossley, 13 Ch. D. 388; Carswell v. Hyland, 3 Times. 708; Lynce v. Suarh, 1899, 1 Q. B. 489; 80 L. T. 122.

The bona fide mistake, which must be shown, may be one of law: Duckett v. Gover, 6 Ch. D. 82; Mason v. Harris, 11 Ch. D. 97.

Terms and Costs.—See Ayscough v. Bullar, 41 Ch. D. 341.

This Rule is expressly made subject to clause (3) of Rule 206, so that a plaintiff will not be added or substituted unless he consents: Turquand v. Fearon, 4 Q. B. D. 280, though the terms may otherwise be "such as may seem just": Tryon v. National Prov. Ins., 16 Q. B. D. 678; and see Rule 206; nor under this Rule unless the original plaintiff consents: Emden v. Carte, 17 Ch. D. 169.

An order will not be made on an ex parte application: Tildesley v. Harper, 3 Ch. D. 277.

Where the present Rule is not applicable, plaintiffs may nevertheless sometimes be added under Rule 206; see notes to that Rule, and Emden v. Carte, and Smith v. Haseltine, W. N. 1875, 250.

314. Where an amendment is directed or allowed at the trial, it shall not be necessary to issue an order therefor. The amendment, unless otherwise directed, shall be at once made on the record. Amendment at trial. Con. Rule 446. Rules of 1 Jan., 1896, 1445.

Where a plaintiff is allowed to amend at the trial by setting up a new case, the defendant is ex debito justitiæ, also entitled to put in a defence thereto: Elmsley v. Harrison, 17 P. R. 325.

315. Where an amendment of any record of the Court or document filed, other than a pleading, is directed, no physical alteration of the record or document shall be made, but a note shall be made in the margin or other convenient place, of the amendment directed. New. No physical alteration of records.

This Rule adopts the practice laid down in Fox v. Bearblock, 45 L. T. 469; 46 L. T. 145.

3. PAPER, NOTICES AND WRITTEN PROCEEDINGS

GENERALLY.

316. Unless otherwise directed by the Court or a Judge, no notice required by these Rules or the practice of the Court shall be given orally. Notices to be written or printed. Con. Rule 447, amended.

A verbal notice to produce is insufficient: Provincial Ins. Co. v. Shaw, 19 P. C. Q. B. 537.

Rules
317-320.

Regulations as to printing proceedings.

317. Proceedings, if printed, shall be printed with pica type leaded, on good paper, of foolscap size. Con. Rule 448.

The Eng. (1883) R. 1005, is more particular in its directions.

See Chy. G. O. 66, and Cossey v. Ducklow, 2 Chy. Ch. 227, where service of a bill not printed, etc., in conformity with the Gen. Orders was set aside.

Paragraphs.

318. Every petition, issue, special case, affidavit and other proceeding of a like nature, shall be divided into numbered paragraphs, and shall state concisely such matters and facts as may be necessary to truly inform the Court. Con. Rule 449.

Width and
paper, etc.

319. All rolls and records shall be upon parchment or paper of such width and length as shall be prescribed by the officer having the control and superintendence of the Central Office by written notice, to be put up in some conspicuous place in the Central Office and in the several local offices, and no officer shall be bound to receive any roll or record not made up in conformity to such notice, and such rolls and records shall not exceed, when folded, 14 inches in length and 4 inches in breadth, written upon at least a sheet of paper and folded accordingly. Con. Rule 450. Rules of 1 Jan., 1896, 1446.

See as to printing pleadings, Rule 265; as to mode of printing, Rule 317.

The Clerk of the Crown and Pleas pursuant to this Rule has prescribed that all Judgments and Records, written or printed (either by typewriter or otherwise) shall be of the length and width of a half sheet of foolscap paper, and shall be folded in half, lengthwise; and it is recommended that all records for trial shall be enclosed or covered by a full sheet of foolscap, or other covering of the same size.

of cause.

320. In all proceedings in a cause or matter, except pleadings, petitions in the nature of pleadings, judgments and decretal orders, the following short style of cause shall be sufficient:

“Between John Smith and others,—Plaintiffs, Richard Roe and others.—Defendants.”

(2) In case of proceedings which it has been the practice to entitle more shortly thus: "Smith v. Roe," such practice shall continue. Cor. Rule 451. Rules 321, 322

Taken from Chy. O. 597.

In all pleadings, petitions in the nature of pleadings, judgments, and decretal orders, the full style of the action or matter is to be set out; in other proceedings, including affidavits, interlocutory orders, notices of trial, to produce, to admit, notices of motion, and of appeal, the shortened style first given in the Rule may be used.

The shorter title, e.g., Smith v. Roe, is usually confined to appointments for settling minutes of judgments or orders, Master's warrants, notices of taxation, or other notices and appointments not already mentioned, which are required to be taken out or served in the progress of a cause. There is, however, no authority for styling affidavits in this way.

Where an action is dismissed as against one of several defendants, it would seem that it is not irregular thereafter to leave that defendant's name out of the title of the action; see Prince Albert v. Strange, 2 D. C. & Sm. at p. 709.

321. A folio shall be one hundred words. Con. Rule A folio is

4. COPIES OF PAPERS.

322. Where service of affidavits and other proceedings, other than judgments or orders of which office copies are by the practice of the Court required to be served, is required, true copies, instead of office copies, are to be served. Con. Rule 453. Service of office copies of affidavits and other proceedings disposed with in certain cases.

An "office copy" of a document is a copy authenticated by the proper officer, usually the one in whose custody the original record of the proceedings is deposited. Under Rule 323, office copies of judgments and orders are to be certified by the officer in whose office the same are entered. Office copies of other proceedings should be certified by the officer in whose office they are filed. Office copies of judgments are expressly required to be served in certain cases; see Rules 203 and 659; and where according to the former practice an office copy of a decree, or order, was required to be served, in like cases an office copy of the judgment, or order, would seem to be necessary under the present practice, except where a different practice is expressly provided.

Under the former Chancery practice, the first proceeding in the cause served upon a defendant was usually required to be an office copy; e.g., bills, or decrees, or orders served on parties added in the Master's office, and orders of revivor. But under the present practice, it would seem sufficient to serve a plain copy of an order, adding parties upon a change of interest, instead of an office copy as formerly; see Rule 397.

As to what is "a true copy," see Walker v. Nibbs, 18 Gr. 213; Sharp v. McHenry, 38 Ch. D. 427.

Rules323-325.

Habeas Corpus.—A writ of habeas corpus ad subjungendum can only be properly served by delivering the original writ to the person to whom it is addressed; Reg. v. Koor, 71 L. T. 558. It must be signed by the Judge who grants it, and notice must also be served giving the person to whom the writ is addressed, notice of the consequences of failure to obey it; Re Hulbeck, 30 C. L. J. 751. S. 15 C. L. T. 9.

Orders.—Where an order directs the doing of an act within a limited time, the order should be served on the person required to obey it before the limited time has expired, and in time to give him a reasonable opportunity to comply with its terms. Where an order was not so served a motion to commit for disobedience was refused; Berry v. Donovan, 21 Ont. App. 14. Where the limited time expires without service, it will be necessary to apply for an order limiting a further time, before the order can be enforced.

323. Office copies of orders and judgments to be served shall be certified by the officer in whose office the same are entered. Rules of 1 Jan., 1896, 1417, amended.

This Rule makes a change. The former Rule 454, taken from Chy. O. 547, enabled Deputy Clerks of the Crown, Deputy and Local Registrars, at the place where a reference is being presented, as well as the proper officer where the judgment or order is entered, to authenticate copies.

An office copy is made by comparing it with the original or with the entry thereof in the judgment book, marking it "examined," (appending the signature of the officer), and stamping it with the seal of the Court or of the officer who certifies it.

Copies of documents
to be
in writing.

324. A party requiring a copy of any pleading, affidavit, exhibit, or document not directed to be served, shall make a written application for the same to the solicitor of the party by whom it has been filed, or on whose behalf it is to be used; and where the party has no solicitor, then to the party himself. Con. Rule 455.

Taken from Chy. O. 548.

Pleadings are required to be served on the opposite party without a demand; Rule 461.

An irregularity in the indorsement of a pleading was formerly waived by demanding a copy of it, and was ordered to be amended without costs; Bennett v. O'Meara, 2 Chy. Ch. 167.

Where
document demanded, it is to be furnished
hours.

325. Where an application is made for a copy of any pleading, affidavit, exhibit or document, it shall be delivered within 48 hours from the time of the demand; and any further time which may elapse before the delivery is not to be computed against the party demanding the same. Con. Rule 456.

Taken from Chy. O. 549.

This Rule is imperative, and the Court will enforce compliance Rules with it: Totten v. MacIntyre, 2 Chy. Ch. 80; Barrow v. Houghton, 2 Chy. Ch. 180. Formerly the costs of furnishing copies were part of the costs of the cause, or application, and payment of the costs of the copies could not be required as a condition of furnishing them. Whether the Rules are intended to make any change in this respect is not very clear: see Rule 326.

326. A party entitled under the Rules or a special order to, and requiring copies of or extracts from, any document in possession of another party, shall pay to the party producing the document for such copy or extract as he may by writing, require, at the rate of 10 cents per folio; and if the solicitor of the party producing the document refuses or neglects to supply the copy or extract, the party requiring the same shall be at liberty to make it, and the party producing shall not be entitled to any fee in respect thereof. Con. Rule 457.

The Eng. (1883) R. 1002, r. 18, gives fourpence per folio; with that exception, the two Rules are the same in substance.

In practice, the costs of furnishing copies of affidavits on a motion have been regarded as part of the costs of the motion; and it has not been usual to demand payment for copies so demanded as a condition of furnishing them.

But a solicitor desiring copies of documents produced for inspection by the opposite party, was held to be entitled to make the copies himself, without first giving the opposite solicitor an opportunity to make them: Ormerod v. St. George's Iron Works, 1865, 1 Ch. 505, 118 L. T. Jour. 432.

Statute, that copies of documents may by leave of the Court be taken by photography: Lewis v. Laidlaw, 1895, 2 Q. B. 191; 63 L. T. 353.

5. SERVICE OF PAPERS.

327. Unless otherwise provided by Statute or Rule of Court, pleadings and notices required to be served in any action, whether in the Supreme Court of Judicature or County Courts, may be served in any part of Ontario. Con. Rule 459.

Taken from R. S. O. 1877, c. 50, s. 59.

328. Admissions and acceptances of the service of an order, notice of motion or other paper, upon the opposite solicitor, need not be verified by affidavit. Con. Rule 460.

Taken from Chy. O. 48.

See Rules 145, 574, as to acceptance of service of writs of summons.

Rule 329.

Under Rule 574, acceptances of service of writs of summons, and undertakings to appear, are required to be verified by affidavit in order to be used for signing a judgment by default; but all other acceptances and admissions of service may under this Rule be received and acted on, without verification.

Agent
served.

329. All writs, pleadings, notices, orders, appointments, warrants, and other documents, and written communications, which do not require personal service upon the party to be affected thereby, shall be served upon his solicitor when residing in Toronto, or if his solicitor does not reside in Toronto, then either upon his solicitor, or, if such solicitor does not reside in the county where such proceedings are conducted, or resides in some part of such county other than the county town, and has not an office in the county town, then upon the agent, if any, named in the "Solicitors' and Agents' Book," provided for by Rule 92, or upon the Toronto agent of such solicitor named in the "Solicitors' and Agents' Book," provided for by Rule 90, unless the Court, or a Judge, or a Master, before whom any such proceeding is had, shall give any direction as to the solicitor upon whom any such notice, appointment, warrant, or other document or written communication is to be served. Where any solicitor has not caused such entry to be made in either of the "Solicitors' and Agents' Books," provided for by Rules 90 and 92, then the posting up of a copy of any such notice, appointment, warrant, or other document, or written communication, for such solicitor in the office in which the proceedings are being conducted, is to be deemed sufficient service, unless the Court, or Judge, or Master, as the case may be, directs otherwise. Con. Rule 461. Rules of 1 Jan., 1896, 1448.

Taken from Chy. O. 42, 43; R. S. O. 1877, c. 50, s. 57; Rules T. T. 1856, 136, 137; 58 Vict. c. 13, s. 36.

By Rule 90, it is imperative upon every solicitor to appoint an agent in Toronto, and have his name entered as such agent in the book kept at Osgoode Hall; but under Rule 92 it is entirely at the solicitor's option to have, or not have, a booked agent in any county town. If a solicitor does enter an agent's name in the books kept in a county town, then service can be effected on such solicitor, but if he does not, then service can be effected only by serving the solicitor himself, or his Toronto agent. Service can only be effected by posting up copies, when there is no entry of an agent in the books at either place: Essex v. G. T. Ry. Co., 13 P. R. 221.

Service of papers on a solicitor as agent for another solicitor is not good, unless the solicitor served is the booked agent of the other, even though he has acted as agent in the same suit: Robinson v. Robinson, 13 P. R. 51.

This Rule only applies to the service of documents, which do not Rule 330. require personal service: see Rule 146.

A solicitor cannot, as agent for one principal, serve himself as agent for another principal: Horseman v. Coulson, 6 P. R. 263; Ontario Bank v. Fisher, 4 P. R. 22.

Service on the clerk of a solicitor elsewhere than at the office of the solicitor, is good only from the time it reaches the solicitor: Hermann v. Mandarin, etc., 18 P. R. 34.

Where parties have solicitors, papers and documents must in the absence of special arrangement be served by the party's solicitor: Yeatman v. Snow, 28 W. R. 574, and served either upon the solicitors, or their agents under this Rule: Omnium Securities v. Ellis, 18 C. L. J. 143; 2 C. L. T. 216; see Kettlewell v. Watson, 52 L. J. Chy. 818, where a notice served by a new solicitor before an order changing the solicitor had been obtained was held good, no one being misled.

Special arrangement is sometimes made between solicitors for service of papers upon one another through the post office, and in such case a question may arise as to whether service is to count from the date of mailing, or the date of receipt. This will be determined, according to the agreement, if any, between them, or if there be no special agreement on this point the date of receipt will be the date of service as it is the general practice to admit service as of the day of receipt: McDonough v. Alison, 9 P. R. 4.

Until an order has been made and served, changing the solicitor of any party to an action, or authorizing such party to sue, or defend, in person, service on the solicitor originally named is sufficient, even though such solicitor have ceased to act for such party: see Rule 335; Davidson v. Leslie, 9 Beav. 104; Wright v. King, 9 Beav. 161; and see Newton v. Thompson, 16 Jur. 1008; De la Pole v. Dick, 29 Ch. D. 351; 52 L. T. 457; Muir v. Guimanc, 9 O. L. R. 324; but not after the proceedings for which the solicitor had originally authority to act have come to an end, so that in law his authority has ceased: Reg. v. JJ. of Oxfordshire, 1893, 2 Q. B. 149; 69 L. T. 368; James v. Ricknell, 20 Q. B. D. 164; Re Grey, Grange v. Coles, 65 L. T. 743. Where a solicitor has absconded, a notice of motion left at his unoccupied place of business was held properly served: Newton v. Thompson, 22 L. J. Chy. 10; and see Re Templeman, 20 Beav. 574; Re Wiscicold, 16 Beav. 357; Re Catlin, 18 Beav. 508; Re Dufaur, 16 Beav. 1; Re Thompson, 20 Beav. 545; Wilson v. Emmett, 19 Beav. 232; Ex parte Belton, 25 Beav. 368; Re Walton, 4 K. & J. 78.

For the proceedings on the death of a solicitor to compel the appointment of another, see Dean v. Lethbridge, 26 Beav. 397.

330. Where a party sues or defends in person and no address for service of such party is written or printed pursuant to the directions of Rules 134, 135 and 136, or where a party has ceased to have a solicitor, [or where a defendant served with a writ of summons or notice in lieu thereof, has not appeared thereto], all writs, notices, orders, appointments, warrants and other documents, proceedings and written communications, not requiring personal service upon the party to be affected thereby, shall unless the Court otherwise directs, be deemed to be sufficiently served upon the party, by posting up a copy in the office in which the proceedings are being conducted. But if an address for service is written or printed as afore-said, then all such writs, notices, orders, warrants and other documents, proceedings and written communications, shall be deemed sufficiently served upon such party if left for him at such address for service. Rules 23 June, 1894, 1330.

Based upon Chy. O. 45, and original J. A. Rule 131, which was inadvertently omitted from the Con. Rules 1888, but is in effect re-introduced by the passage in brackets. The corresponding Eng. Rule of 1883, is R. 1015.

Defendant who has not Appeared.—A defendant who does not appear is not entitled to notice of further proceedings, unless specially so provided by any Rule, or by any special order of the Court or a Judge: see Rule 573, and notes. In the cases where it is by Rule or order so provided that such a defendant is to be served with notice, or in any case where the plaintiff desires to serve such a defendant, service may be effected by posting up under this Rule, unless personal service is made necessary by any Rule or order; but proof of service of the writ of summons must be first filed: Appleby v. Turner, 19 P. R. 145; Rule 574.

A notice of motion for judgment is a document which may be delivered by posting under this Rule: Dynand v. Croft, 3 Ch. D. 512; Morton v. Miller, ib. 516; Parsons v. Harris, 6 Ch. D. 604; Burritt v. Murdock, 9 P. R. 191; Williams v. Cardwell, 25 W. R. 646, nor following Cook v. Day, W. N. 1876, 122; so a notice of assessment of damages under Rule 337; O'Connor v. Hogan, 10 L. R. 41, 262; a writ of summons after amendment; Re Hartley, 1891, 2 Ch. 121; 14 L. T. 786; an order to continue proceedings under Rule 394; Jackson v. Kilham, W. N. 1891, 171; a notice of motion for an attachment; Re Morris, 44 Ch. 14, 151; Re Evans, 1893, 1 Ch. 272; but semble, only where personal service cannot be effected; Re Bassett, 1894, 3 Ch. 179, because proceedings whereby the liberty of the person is intended to be affected; e.g., proceedings upon which to found an application for an attachment, are usually required to be personally served on the party, even though he have appeared, or sued, by a solicitor. Applications to commit for non-production of documents are, however, an exception to this rule; see Rule 474.

The Rule applies where a person not originally a party is made a defendant to a counter-claim and fails to appear: Verney v. Thomas, 58 L. T. 20.

The omission of a defendant's address, or address for service when necessary, in an appearance by a defendant in person, is expressly provided for by Rule 170.

Where several parties are served with a document under this Rule, a copy must be posted up for each. The posting of one copy only of a statement of claim and notice of motion for judgment for two defendants was held not to be service on either: Hauke v. Ward, 17 P. R. 520.

The Rule only applies to proceedings before judgment, proceedings Rules after judgment requiring to be served on a non-appearing defendant 331, 332. cannot be served in the manner described by this Rule. Thus a notice of motion for a receiver by way of equitable execution cannot be served in the manner mentioned in this Rule, but must be served personally or, by leave, substitutionally: Tilling v. Blythe, 1899. 1 Q. B. 557.

As to service of proceedings in the Master's Office, upon a non-appearing defendant, see Rule 658.

331. Where at the time of attendance to serve any paper or document, the office of the solicitor for the party upon whom the service is sought to be made is closed or no one is in attendance therein for receiving papers or documents served, service of the paper or document may be effected by mailing the same, at any time during the same day, addressed to the solicitor, at his office, by registered letter, postage prepaid, and the service shall be deemed to have been effected at the time of the attendance for that purpose at the office of the solicitor. New.

This Rule was passed to meet the case of Raphael v. Davis (before Mr. Cartwright, M.C., 15th January, 1897).

It is presumed that service may be effected in the manner mentioned in this Rule, after an attendance to serve after 2 p.m. on Saturday, or after 4 p.m. on other days, but, as the service will only count as of the next day, it will be better to serve at the office on the next day: see Rule 349.

332. In any action by a mortgagee or other person having a charge on real property, for foreclosure or sale, and to which action any judgment creditor of the mortgagor, or of the person liable to the charge, is a defendant, personal service on such defendant shall not be necessary, and it shall be sufficient to serve his solicitor in the action in which the judgment has been recovered, with the process of the Court, whether the same be an office copy of the judgment or decretal order, or any other order or notice which by order of Court may be directed, and whether the same be issued by the Court or by any officer thereof. Con. Rule 465.

It is a matter of some doubt how far a solicitor's retainer continues after judgment has been recovered: see 79 L. T. Jour. 208; De la Pole v. Dick, 20 Ch. D. 351; 52 L. T. 457; James v. Ricknell, 20 Q. B. D. 164; 58 L. T. 278; and Reg. v. J.J. of Oxfordshire, 1893. 2 Q. B. 149.

The question has recently received consideration in Millar v. Kennedy, 5 O. L. R. 412, 418, where it was held that the retainer of a solicitor to bring or defend an action does not terminate on the giving of a judgment so long as anything remains to be done by the solicitor for the client's protection, e.g., taxation of the opposite party's costs, and preparing any bill of his client's costs to be set off under the judgment.

Whether the retainer continues or not, this Rule makes the service of the solicitor sufficient service on the client for whom he acted.

Taken from Rules T. T. 1856, 134.

The former Con. Rule 466 was confined to the service of an order.

Unless it is demanded, it is not necessary that the original order to examine a judgment debtor should be shown to him when serving him with a copy of it, in order to found an application for a ca. m., in the event of his disobeying it: Imperial Bank v. Dickey, 8 P. R. 246.

It is not a ground for setting aside an execution that the order on which it issued had not been previously served: Cranston v. Blair, 15 P. R. 167; and see Hopton v. Robertson, 23 Q. B. D. 126.

334 Where it appears, upon the hearing of any matter, that by reason of absence, or for any other sufficient cause, the service of notice of the application or of the appointment, cannot be made, or ought to be dispensed with, such service may be dispensed with, or any substituted service, or notice, by advertisement, or otherwise, may be ordered. Con. Rule 467.

Taken from Chy. O. 199.

Where the notice of motion required to be served is the first proceeding, or personal service is necessary on a party who has appeared but cannot be found, then this Rule would seem to apply and to authorize the allowance of substitutional service, or dispensing with service altogether. For cases in which applications of this kind have been made, see supra, pp. 281, 299.

Where it was not shewn that defendant could not be served, the Court refused under this Rule to dispense with service of notice of motion for judgment for default of defence: Dominion Bank v. Dobbidge, 12 P. R. 655. The fact that defendant had been personally served with the writ, and had not appeared, was held not to be "sufficient cause" within this Rule: Ib. In the circumstances of that case it would now be sufficient to serve by posting under Rule 330: see Burritt v. Murdock, 9 P. R. 191; but no service at all would seem to be necessary in view of Rule 573. The course would be to set down the case on motion for judgment under Rule 533.

See Re Buckhouse v. Bright, 13 P. R. 117.

If an order for substituted service of a notice of motion to com- Rule 335.
mit can be made at all, it should not be made except in a case where no doubt exists as to the notice coming to the knowledge of the person against whom the motion is to be made: Re Chatham v.
Campbell 12 P. R. 686.

By analogy to this Rule (see Rule 3) service of a warrant and all subsequent proceedings in the Master's Office upon certain absent defendants was dispensed with, other defendants in the same interest being represented: Smith v. Houston, 15 P. R. 18; but it would seem that a Master, qua Master, has no jurisdiction under the Rule to order substitutional service of proceedings in his Office; though possibly the Master in Ordinary may so order under his jurisdiction in Chambers under Rule 698: see Re Hyman; Hodgins v.
Andrews, 19 P. R. 217.

335. A party suing or defending by a solicitor shall ^{Change of} not be at liberty to change his solicitor in any action or ^{solicitor.} matter without an order, which may be obtained on præcipe; and until such order is obtained and served, the former solicitor shall be considered the solicitor of the party. Con.
Rule 463, amended.

Taken from Chy. O. 49, and Rule T. T. 1856, 4.

The former Con. Rule 463 provided that in addition to service on the opposite party notice of the order should be given to the officer with whom the pleadings are filed. Such notice is not required by the present Rule.

Order to Change Solicitor.—An order to change the solicitor is ^{Order to} necessary, not only where the client desires to discharge his solicitor ^{change} in an action, but also where the solicitor discharges himself: see ^{solicitor} Griffiths v. Griffiths, 2 Hare, 587; 7 Jur. 573. But no order is neces- ^{when} sary to enable the client to appoint a new solicitor, in place of one ^{necessary.}
deceased: Whalley v. Whalley, 22 L. J. Chy. 632; Alchin v. Buffalo & L. H. Ry. Co., 2 Chy. Ch. 45. In the latter case, however, notice should be given of the appointment of the new solicitor to the opposite party: Rule 335; Hunt v. Finckburg, 22 Q. B. D. 259; Braith. Pr., 564, 565; Bank of Montreal v. Harrison, 4 P. R. 331.

Until an order to change the solicitor is obtained and served, service on the solicitor on the record or his agent, is good, even though the former has ceased to act, and though a new one has been appointed: Davidson v. Lestic, 9 Beav. 104; Wright v. King, ib., 161; Brown v. Bugar, 2 Chy. Ch. 446; De la Pole v. Dick, 29 Ch. D.
351; 52 L. T. 357; but see Reg. v. JJ. of Oxfordshire, in note to Rule 329.

Under the former practice at law, the attorney could not be ^{Payment of} changed by the client, unless his costs were first paid: Witt v. Ames, ^{costs not} 11 W. R. 751; but in Chancery the rule was otherwise: Meyers v. ^{a condition} Robertson, 1 Gr. 439. This is one of those matters in which the ^{precedent.} rules of Equity and the rules of the Common Law differed, and therefore under the Jud. Act, s. 58, s.-s. 13, the rule of Equity is now to prevail, and orders to change solicitor will now be granted without any provision as to the payment of costs: Grant v. Holland, 3 C. P. D. 180.

Rule 335. Where there is a joint retainer, an order to change the solicitor on the application of some or one of the clients only, is irregular: Re Norwich and Norfolk Building Society, 22 W. R. 856; Wedderburn v. Wedderburn, 17 Beav. 158.

Material facts must be disclosed. All material facts must be disclosed on the application for an order of course, or an ex parte order, otherwise it will be irregular and may be set aside: e.g., the existence of a special retainer for a term of years unexpired: Richards v. Scarborough Market Co., 17 Beav. 83; or the fact of the solicitor being mortgagee of the client's share in the fund in question: Jenkins v. Bryant, 3 Drew. 70. Where, however, a solicitor in applying for an order to change a solicitor, relying on his client's statement that she was unmarried, so represented her, which statement turned out to be untrue, the Court, though setting aside the order, refused to direct the solicitor to pay the costs, emphatically declaring that the Court never had "made a man pay costs for believing the word of a woman": Thomas v. Tinslayson, 19 W. R. 255.

Where special circumstances are disclosed in the præcipe for an order of course, the officer may refuse to issue the order, and may require a special application to be made.

Setting aside order. After an order of course to change the solicitor has been issued, if the latter objects to the order, he should not apply on præcipe for an order to re-appoint himself, but should move on petition to set aside the order: Topping v. Searson, 2 H. & M. 205.

Solicitor dying. Where the solicitor dies and his client neglects to name a new solicitor, he may be served with notice of motion to appoint a new solicitor: see Danl's Forms, 3rd ed., No. 2129; Braith, Pr. 264; Gillson v. Ingo, 2 Phil. 402; Smith Pr., 7th ed., 126.

Application by one of several plaintiffs. Where one of several plaintiffs desires to make an application in the action separately from his co-plaintiffs, he must obtain an order of course, giving him leave to appoint a solicitor for that express purpose: Danl. Pr., 5th ed., 1724.

Party acting in person desiring to appoint a solicitor. Where a party sues or defends by a solicitor, and afterwards desires to sue or defend in person, an order giving him leave to do so must be obtained: Danl. Pr., 5th ed., 1724. But when a party sues or defends in person and afterwards appoints a solicitor, no order is necessary. Ib. 1725, and see Rule 330; but notice should be given to the opposite party.

Proceedings taken by a new solicitor without an order, when one is necessary, or by a suitor in person when he has a solicitor on the record, are irregular and will be set aside: Rathburn v. Hughes, 3 Ch. Ch. 160; Yeatman v. Snow, 42 L. T. 502; Arch. Pr., 13th ed., p. 110; 12th ed., p. 9.

If a solicitor retained in an ordinary Common Law action refuses, pending the action, to continue to act without some reasonable cause, and upon reasonable notice he has no right of action for his costs: Underwood v. Lewis, 1894, 2 Q. B. 306; but the rule appears to be otherwise in actions for equitable relief, in which the proceedings might be of a very long and complicated character, and be divided into several stages: Ib., and In re Hall, 9 Ch. D. 538.

Where a defendant, in consideration of an indemnity against costs, has agreed that his defence shall be conducted by a co-defendant, to whose solicitor he gives a retainer, he will be restrained from afterwards withdrawing the retainer or interfering with the prosecution of an appeal: Montforts v. Marsden, 1895, 1 Ch. 11.

An order to change solicitor is prima facie a discharge of the Rule 335. former solicitor by the client: Webster v. Le Hunt, 9 W. R. 804. But it is not a discharge of the solicitor by the client, where it is taken out in consequence of the prior refusal of the solicitor to act; and a solicitor will be considered to have discharged himself, on the bankruptcy of himself, or the firm of which he is a partner: Re Moss, L. R. 2 Eq. 345; or by being arrested or detained in custody: Re Williams, 3 D. F. & J. 104; 28 Benv. 465; Scott v. Fleming, 9 Jur. 1085; but not merely by being in embarrassed circumstances: Re Smith, 9 W. R. 396. So also a firm of solicitors will be deemed to have discharged the client, where the firm is dissolved; and no arrangement can be made by the solicitors for the transfer of the client's business to one of their number without his consent amounting to a new retainer: Cholmondeley v. Clinton, 19 Ves. 261; Griffiths v. Griffiths, 2 Hare, 587; Slater v. Stoddard, 6 P. R. 200; Alchin v. Buffalo & L. H. Ry. Co., 2 Chy. Ch. 45.

Where any new party is brought into an action by order to continue proceedings, by reason of the death of, or transfer of interest in, any of the parties, such new party is not obliged to employ the solicitor by whom the deceased person, or transferor, was represented, but he may, without order, employ a new solicitor, but notice of such new solicitor being so employed must be given to the officer with whom the pleadings are filed, and also to the opposite party: Haul. Pr., 5th ed., 1725; Simmonds v. Great Eastern Ry. Co., L. R. 3 Chy. 797; but the assignee of the plaintiff in a creditor's suit cannot appoint a new solicitor except on special application: Topping v. Seamon, 2 H. & M. 205.

Although a solicitor may for sufficient cause, by notice to his client, terminate the connection between them, the Court will not make an order for that purpose on the ex parte application of the solicitor: Bricker v. Ansell, 1 Chy. Ch. 367.

Where the solicitor is changed by the client, the original solicitor is still entitled to a lien on any fund afterwards recovered in the cause, and is entitled to be paid his costs, next after the costs of the solicitor by whom the suit is concluded: Clark v. Eccles, 3 Chy. Ch. 324; Re Wadsworth, Rhodes v. Sudgen, 34 Ch. D. 155; Re Knight v. Gardiner, L. T. 646; and the solicitor, if any, next in order, is entitled to a lien next in priority, and so on in inverse order to the solicitor first appointed: Ib.; but the first solicitor may be entitled to be paid first out of a fund created by his exertions, e.g., by his having obtained an order for its payment into Court before his discharge: Ford v. Mason, 15 P. R. 392.

When a solicitor is retained by the acting partner of a firm as solicitor for the firm in an action, the retirement of a dormant partner from the firm, without notice to the solicitor, pending the action, will not relieve the retiring partner from liability to the solicitor for his costs subsequently incurred: Court v. Berlin, 1897, 2 Q. B. 396; 77 L. T. 293.

Where a solicitor is discharged by the dissolution of a firm of which he is a member, he is not at liberty to act for the opposite party: Cholmondeley v. Clinton, 19 Ves. 261; but when he is discharged by his client he cannot be restrained from acting for the opposite party, nor the latter from employing him: Little v. Kingswood & Parkfield Colliery Co., 20 Ch. D. 733; 47 L. T. 323; 52 L. J. Chy. 66; but the solicitor may be restrained by injunction from divulging the secrets of his former client to the opposite party, either in the same transaction, or in any other flowing thereout, or connected therewith:

Rule 335. Ib.; and see Davies v. Clough, 8 Sim. 262, 267; Griessell v. Peto, 4 Blug. 1; Johnson v. Marriott, 2 Cr. & M. 183.

An agreement between solicitors acting for different parties, to share profit costs in consideration of being introduced into the litigation, was held to be misconduct: Re Four Solicitors, 1901, 1 K. B. 187.

How far the solicitor's retainer continues after judgment is recovered in the action in which he is retained to sue or defend, seems doubtful: see 79 L. T. Jour. 208; Miller v. Kanady, supra. In note to Rule 332. Service of notice of appeal from the judgment made on the respondent's solicitor on the record, was held good: De la Puh v. Dick, 29 Ch. D. 351; 52 L. T. 457; but a retainer of a solicitor to collect a debt was held not to authorize him after judgment recovered, to enter upon interpleader proceedings without further instructions: James v. Ricknell, 20 Q. B. D. 164; 58 L. T. 278. See also Reg. v. JJ. of Oxfordshire, 1893, 2 Q. B. 149.

Where an order had been made dismissing an action for failure to give security for costs, the retainer of the defendant's solicitor was held to continue, so as to enable the plaintiff to serve him as the solicitor on the record with proceedings by way of appeal from, or under Rule 358, to rescind, the order: Muir v. Guinane, 9 O. L. R. 324.

papers.

Lien of Solicitor on Books and Papers.—A solicitor has a lien on the books and papers of his client, which have come to him in the course of business in his professional capacity. This lien, however, is a mere right to retain the documents until his costs are paid, and cannot be actively enforced: Bozon v. Bolland, 4 My. & Cr. 354. In the absence of any agreement to the contrary, the lien is general, and attaches for all costs due from the client, and is not confined to the costs incurred in the particular business in which the documents came into the solicitor's hands: Re Faithful, L. R. 6 Eq. 325; Bozon v. Bolland, supra; Richards v. Platel, Cr. & Ph. 82; Worrall v. Johnson, 2 Jac. & W. 214; Ex parte Sterling, 16 Ves. 277; Friswell v. King, 15 Sim. 191; Colmer v. Ede, 19 W. R. 313; Le Messanger, 3 Ch. D. 317. While it exists the client is not entitled to inspect or take copies of papers subject to the lien: Re Biggs, 102 L. T. Jour. 364.

A solicitor is entitled to a lien on a deceased client's books and papers for moneys due by the client's executor, or administrator, in his individual capacity: see Re Foster, 116 L. T. Jour. 388.

The solicitor cannot acquire any greater right of detainer, than the client had himself, and the lien is therefore subject to the rights and equities of those claiming by title paramount to that of the client: Francis v. Francis, 5 D. M. & G. 108; Stedman v. Webb, 4 My. & Cr. 346; Clutton v. Pardon, T. & R. 304; Moleworth v. Rabbits, 2 J. & Lat. 358; Polly v. Wathen, 1 D. M. & G. 16; 7 Ha. 351; Biunden v. Desart, 2 Dr. & W. 405; Bell v. Taylor, 8 Sim. 216; Baker v. Henderson, 4 Sim. 27; Warburton v. Edge, 9 Sim. 508; Re Mosely, 15 W. R. 975; Young v. English, 7 Beav. 10; Stennett v. Arup, 2 Chy. Ch. 218; Re Union Cement and Brick Co., Ex parte Pullbrook, L. R. 4 Chy. 627; and where the client would be bound to produce the documents in evidence on the demand of third parties, the solicitor cannot refuse to produce them on the ground of his lien: Hope v. Liddell, 7 D. M. & G. 331; 20 Beav. 438; Fowler v. Fowler, 44 L. T. 799; 50 L. J. Ch. 686; Re Lawrence, Barker v. Austin, 1894 1 Ch. 556; 70 L. T. 91; Re Llewellyn, 1891, 3 Ch. 145;

But third parties whose rights are acquired under the client subsequent to the creation of the lien, have no greater rights than the client himself had at the time they acquired title: Gill v. Gumble, 13 Gr. 169; 2 Chy. Ch. 135. The solicitor, however, cannot claim a lien against such third parties, for costs incurred by him subsequently to their acquiring their rights: Blunden v. Desart, 2 Dr. & W. 405.

A solicitor cannot acquire a lien on the documents of a joint stock company which by statute, or the articles of association, are required to be kept in the office of the company: Re The Anglo-Maltese Co., 52 L. T. 841; but he may acquire a lien on the books and documents of a company which are not so required to be kept in the office of the company, ib., but not for business which was ultra vires of the company: Re Howard & Dollman, 1 H. & M. 433.

A solicitor who is employed by a mortgagor and mortgagee to prepare a mortgage, after completion of the mortgage holds the title deeds for the mortgagor, and cannot as against him claim any lien thereon for a debt due by the mortgagor: Ex parte Quinn, 49 L. T. 811.

A solicitor is not entitled to a lien on his client's papers, for the costs of proceedings instituted against the solicitor on behalf of the client: Re Hanbury, 75 L. T. 449.

Seemle, an agent of a solicitor is entitled to a lien on the documents which come to his hands in the course of his agency, for the costs of the proceedings to which the documents relate both as against his principal and the latter's client: see Re Jones, W. N. 1905, 57; 118 L. T. Jour. 478 (Joyce, J.).

The lien is superseded by the solicitor's taking security for his costs: Correll v. Shapson, 16 Ves. 275; Re Taylor, 1891, 1 Ch. 590; see Brownlow v. Keatinge, 2 Ir. Eq. 243; Kennin v. Macdonald, 22 Ont. 484; Bissell v. Bradford, & P. T. Co., 94 L. T. Jour. 285; Re Douglas, 1898, 1 Ch. 199; 77 L. T. 552; but only to the extent of the security: Watson v. Lyon, 7 D. M. & G. 288; and ceases altogether on payment, and the solicitor cannot then retain documents on the ground that a third party claims an interest in them: Re Emma Mine, Ex parte Turner, 24 W. R. 54. The lien may also be lost by the solicitor's assigning his bill of costs to a third party: Reesor v. Ella, 7 P. R. 371; and also by parting with possession of the documents; but where on the dissolution of a firm of solicitors, one of the partners took possession of documents on which the firm had a lien, without the permission or consent of his late partners, it was held that the lien of the firm was not thereby lost: Re Carter, Carter v. Carter, 53 L. T. 630.

Where a firm is changed by the introduction of a new partner, there is no lien on papers delivered to the new firm, for costs due the old firm: Re Forshaw, 16 Sim. 121.

Toronto agents, as against their principals, have a general lien for their agency bills on papers placed in their hands by their principals; and the lien is not lost even though the relationship of principal and agent is dissolved by the agent: Re Attorney, 7 P. R. 311; Re A. B. & C., 14 C. L. J. 142; Re Cross, 4 Chy. Ch. 11.

There is an important difference in the right of lien, of a solicitor in an action who discharges himself, and one who is discharged by his client.

Rule 335.

Difference between right of lien of solicitor who is discharged, and one who discharges himself.

Where the solicitor discharges himself, he is bound to deliver up the papers in the action to the new solicitor, upon the latter undertaking to hold them subject to his lien for what, if anything, shall be found due on taxation of his bill; and to proceed with the cause with due diligence, and to re-deliver the papers within ten days after he shall cease to have occasion for them, if the lien be not sooner satisfied: Volgrave v. Mantey, T. & R. 400; Healop v. Metcalf, 3 My. & Cr. 183; Wilson v. Emmet, 10 Beav. 213; Cauc v. Mactia, 2 Beav. 584; Robins v. Goldingham, L. R. 13 Eq. 440; Ley v. Brown, 1 Chy. Ch. 170; Merrewether v. McIlhish, 13 Ves. 101; Mayne v. Hawkey, 3 Sw. 93; Webster v. Le Hunt, 9 W. R. 804; Conacher v. Poputon, 1 Sw. 1. The solicitor cannot in such a case require the client to undertake to proceed to a taxation of his bills: Mole v. Hudie, 1 S. & S. 282. And if he refuses to deliver up the papers to the new solicitor, on his undertaking as above mentioned, he may be ordered to pay the costs of an application to compel him to do so: Robins v. Goldingham, supra. A solicitor who declines to proceed with an action until his costs are paid, in effect discharges himself: Id., and see Re Lewis, 72 L. T. Jour. 387; but see Underwood v. Lewis, and In re Hall, supra, p. 540. And so the dissolution of the firm of solicitors engaged by the client, or the arrest or detention in custody, or bankruptcy of the solicitor, works a discharge of the client by the solicitor: vide supra. But where the client dies, or his interest is transferred by assignment or otherwise, and an order is made to continue the proceedings in the name of some new party who names a new solicitor, in such cases the solicitor is deemed to be discharged by the client: see Re Moss, L. R. 2 Eq. 345.

by client.

Where the solicitor is discharged by the client he cannot generally be ordered to deliver up the papers, until his lien has been satisfied: Re Faithful, L. R. 6 Eq. 325; Griffiths v. Griffiths, 2 Hare. 587; Bozon v. Bolland, 4 My. & Cr. 354, unless it appears that there is strong ground for believing that there is nothing due the solicitor: Re Breao & Whitting, 33 Beav. 439. Nor is the solicitor in such a case bound even to produce the papers for the purpose of the cause, until his bill is paid: Lord v. Woratcighton, Jac. 580; Redfern v. Sowerby, 1 Sw. 84; Robins v. Goldingham, L. R. 13 Eq. 440; but see Simmonds v. G. E. Ry. Co., L. R. 3 Chy. 797; Clifford v. Turrill, 2 D. & S. 1; Webster v. Le Hunt, 9 W. R. 804; Re Leah, 6 Jur. N. S. 387; nor permit his client to inspect or take copies of the documents: Re Biggs, 102 L. T. Jour. 364, but see Lockett v. Carey, 10 Jur. N. S. 144. But where the discharged solicitor neglects to deliver his bill of costs within the proper time, he may be ordered to deliver up the papers subject to his lien thereon: Cooper v. Hewson, 2 Y. & C. C. C. 515; and, where the papers are urgently needed, he may be ordered to deliver them up on the amount claimed for costs being paid into Court, together with a sum to meet the costs of taxation: Re Galsland, 31 Ch. D. 296; 53 L. T. 921; Re South Essex Investment Co., 46 L. T. 280.

Where the action is one for administration in which the rights of third parties are concerned, the solicitor, though discharged by his client, may be compelled to deliver up the papers necessary for the prosecution of the action on the usual terms: Re Boughton, Boughton v. Boughton, 48 L. T. 413; Belaney v. Ffrench, L. R. 8 Chy. 918; 29 L. T. 706; and it is immaterial that the papers came to the hands of the solicitor before the action was commenced: Re Hawkes, 1898, 2 Ch. 1; 78 L. T. 336; and so also in a partition action: Boaden v. Hensby, 1892, 1 Ch. 101; 65 L. T. 744. (see Re Hawke, supra, at p. 11); Pullistee v. Medd, 33 C. L. J. 465; and see Re Capital Fidec Insurance Assn., 24 Ch. D. 408; 49 L. T. 697.

Hutchinson v. Norwood, 54 L. T. 842. But costs incurred by an administrator in administration proceedings are a charge upon the estate, and upon his death, the administrator de bonis non takes the estate subject to the charge, and cannot compel the delivery up of papers in the hands of the solicitor until his costs are paid; Re Watson, 50 L. T. 205.

A lien on books and papers may continue in respect of a bill barred by the Statute of Limitations; see Curwin v. Milburn, 42 L. T. 278; Re Carter, Carter v. Carter, 53 L. T. 630; and under an order for taxation containing a submission on the part of the client to pay what is found due on taxation, payment of statute-barred costs will be enforced; Re Margetts, 1896, 2 Ch. 263.

A solicitor is bound to deliver up documents on which he has a lien on tender of the amount of his claim, though not in settlement; Re Hanbury, 75 L. T. 449.

As to the principles and extent of a solicitor's lien, generally, and the remedies against a solicitor to enforce production or delivery notwithstanding his lien, see Re Hawke, 1898, 2 Ch. 1, 15; 78 L. T. 336.

Lien on Fund.—A solicitor has not only a general lien on his client's papers for all costs due to him, but he has also a particular lien for the costs of proceedings to recover a fund, upon the fund recovered, or ordered to be paid; Lann v. Church, 4 Mad 391; and if the fund actually reaches the solicitor's hand he is only entitled to retain it until his costs of the action in which the fund is recovered are paid; he has not a general lien thereon for all costs; Mackenzie v. Macintosh, 64 L. T. 318, 706; and his lien attaches upon the sum to which his client becomes entitled, in priority to the claims of other parties to whom his client is personally ordered to pay costs; Wright v. Bell, 24 S. C. R. 656; and the taxing officer, or Master, unless specially authorized so to do, has no power to set off costs payable to a party out of a fund in Court against costs payable by such party personally to other parties in the action, so as to deprive his solicitor of his lien on the fund; Ib.; Davidson v. Douglas, 15 Gr. 354; Hull v. Laver, 1 Hare. 571; and his lien only extends to what is due to him in his character of a solicitor; Re Galland, 31 Ch. D. 206; 53 L. T. 921.

Where the compromise of an action is sanctioned by the Court on behalf of infant parties, and a fund is directed to be paid to them, without reserving the rights of their solicitor, the latter is not thereby deprived of his common law lien for costs on the fund so recovered or preserved through his instrumentality; Re Wright's Trusts, 1901 1 Ch. 317; 83 L. T. 515.

The solicitor's lien on the amount payable under a verdict is entitled to priority over the claim of a creditor of his client who has obtained an attaching order; Bernski v. Tourangeau, 18 P. R. 263.

The solicitor may give notice to the opposite party not to pay the money until his costs are satisfied; Cowell v. Simpson, 16 Ves. 275; and see Simpson v. Prothero, 5 W. R. 814; notice to his solicitor is sufficient; Sandridge v. Ireland, 14 P. R. 29. And this lien is not lost by the discharge of the solicitor by the client, or by the act of God, pending the suit; thus where the plaintiff assigned his interest in the suit, and the assignee named a new solicitor, the first solicitor was held entitled to a lien on the fund ultimately recovered.

Rule 235.

and to payment of his costs thereout, next after those of the solicitor by whom the suit was concluded: Clark v. Eccles, 3 Chy. Ch. 324; and see Kellett v. Kelly, 3 Ir. Eq. R. 34; Boson v. Holland, 4 My. & Cr. 354; Cormack v. Beisly, 3 D. & J. 157; Re Wadsworth, Rhodes v. Sugden, 34 Ch. D. 155; 55 L. T. 500. But after the fund has been paid to the client, with the solicitor's acquiescence, or without notice by the payer of the solicitor's claim, his lien is gone, and he must look to his client alone for payment of his costs; see 86 L. T. Jour. 440.

If payment be made to the client, notwithstanding notice given by the solicitor not to pay till his costs are satisfied, the solicitor, to the extent of his lien, is entitled to recover the amount paid against the party paying: Ross v. Buxton, 42 Ch. D. 190.

Solicitor
refusing to act.
Comprom-mise.

Where the solicitor declines to act he has no lien upon a fund in Court: Cresswell v. Byron, 14 Ves. 271.

Where a compromise has been made, the plaintiff's solicitor may be entitled to money payable under it to his client as the fruits of litigation: see Walker v. Gurney, 18 P. R. 274, 471; Re Wright's Trusts, 1901, 1 Ch. 317.

Lien may be actively enforced.

The lien on a fund may be actively enforced: Boson v. Holland, 4 My. & Cr. 354. The solicitor may obtain a stop order: Hobson v. Shearwood, 8 Beav. 486; or an order for payment of his costs out of any money in Court payable to his client, or applicable to the payment of the costs: Wardell v. Trenouth, 8 P. R. 142; or a charge for his costs on a fund recovered or preserved through his instrumentality: see Rule 1129. But a solicitor can have no higher claim against a fund by virtue of his lien than that of his client; and if the client would not be entitled to payment of his costs out of the fund neither will his solicitor; although it may have been recovered by means of proceedings taken by him: Francis v. Francis, 5 D. M. & G. 108; Re Harrold, Wilde v. Walford, 51 L. T. 441.

Where several solicitors in succession have acted, the general rule is that the solicitor who concludes the action to a successful termination is entitled to be paid first, and so, in inverse order, up to the solicitor first employed: Ford v. Mason, 15 P. R. 302; Re Knight, Knight v. Cardiner, 1892, 2 Ch. 368; 66 L. T. 646; see also Clark v. Eccles, 3 Chy. Ch. 324; but the first solicitor may be entitled to be paid first out of a fund created by his exertions, e.g., by his having obtained an order for its payment into Court before his discharge: Ford v. Mason, supra.

Client can-
lien.

The client cannot assign a fund in Court so as to defeat his solicitor's lien, even to a purchaser for value, without express notice: Haynes v. Cooper, 33 L. J. Chy. 488; Yemen v. Johnston, 11 P. R. 231. Neither can the client release the adverse party from the payment of costs ordered to be paid, so as to defeat his solicitor's lien: Ex parte Bryant, 1 Mad. 49. But the lien may be defeated by a bona fide compromise by the parties to the action: The Hope, 8 P. D. 144; 49 L. T. 158; Bellamy v. Connolly, 15 P. R. 87; Brunston v. Allard, 1859, 2 El. & El. 19; Walker v. Gurney, supra; but a collusive compromise will not have that effect: Beames Costs, 312, 313; Langle v. Fetterly, 5 U. C. Q. B. 628; Griggs v. Meyers, 6 U. C. Q. B. 532; Connors v. Squires, 2 P. R. 149; and see Plant v. Stone, 9 U. C. Q. B. 458; Ex parte Morrison, L. R. 4 Q. B. 153; Ex parte Games, 3 H. & C. 294; Brown v. Conant, 2 P. R. 208; Smith v. Thompson, 5 P. R. 166; Morgan v. Holland, 7 P. R. 74; Barrett v.

Barrett, 42 Ch. D. 100; 18 C. L. J. 50; Hall v. Griffith, 5 Onl. 478; Rule 335.
Friedrich v. Friedrich, 10 P. R. 308, 549; Ross v. Buxton, 60 L. T. 620; Re Margetson, 1897, 2 Ch. 314; 76 L. T. 805.

But collusion must be shewn, or the act complained of must have been done after notice from the solicitor complaining: Saunders v. Ireland, 14 P. R. 29; see Re Elliott v. McGuire, 27 C. L. J. 23.

Where a compromise is effected for the purpose of depriving a plaintiff's solicitor of his costs, he may be authorized to carry on the action for the purpose of realizing them out of the defendant: Dunthorne v. Bunbury, 24 L. R. 1r. 6; but unless collusion to deprive the solicitor of his costs is clearly shewn, the defendant will not be ordered to pay the plaintiff's solicitor's costs: Bellamy v. Connolly, 15 P. R. 87. But where, in a suit for foreclosure, the plaintiff and defendant compromised the suit, the plaintiff paying the defendant $200 in consideration of his releasing his equity of redemption, the defendant's solicitor was held to have no lien on the $200; Brownson v. Tully, re Fairbairn, 3 Chy. Ch. 71.

An agent of a solicitor has a lien on a fund recovered: Re Ryan, 11 P. R. 127, and payment by the client to the agent in order to obtain his papers, is a good payment as against the principal solicitor: Re Cross, 4 Chy. Ch. 11; but the lien of the agent is no greater than that of the principal solicitor, and if the latter has no claim upon the fund as against his client, the agent may be compelled to pay it over upon a summary application on behalf of the client: Re Edwards, 45 L. T. 578. Where the fund was in Court an order was made for payment to the agent of the amount of his lien thereon: Re Ryan, 11 P. R. 127.

Where money is standing to the separate account of a party to a cause, he may apply for payment out by a new solicitor, without an order changing the solicitor: Waddilove v. Taylor, 17 L. J. Chy. 384. But where the new solicitor delivers the cheque to the client before the lien of the former solicitor was satisfied, he was ordered to pay him the amount of his lien: McPhatter v. Blue, 15 C. L. J. 162.

A lien may continue though the claim on the bill of costs may be barred by the Statute of Limitations: Curcio v. Milburn, 42 Ch. D. 424; 62 L. T. 278.

Effect of Lien on Right of Set-off between Parties.—See Effect of further, notes to Rule 1165. No set-off of damages or costs between the parties is to be allowed to the prejudice of the solicitor's lien for costs in the particular action in which the set-off is sought; but costs of interlocutory proceedings in the same action may be set-off: see Rule 1165 note. But that Rule is held to apply only to the set-off of damages and costs in separate actions: see notes to Rule 1165; where that is sought, the set-off is not to be allowed to the prejudice of the solicitor's lien: Webb v. McArthur, 4 Chy. Ch. 63; Edwards v. Hope, 14 Q. B. D. 922; 53 L. T. 63; Cuthbert v. Commercial Travellers Assoc., 7 P. R. 255; and see Ross v. McLan, 7 P. R. 97; Wardell v. Trenouth, 8 P. R. 142; Barker v. Hemming, 5 Q. B. 14, 60; Re Harrold, Wilde v. Walford, 48 L. T. 352; 51 L. T. 441; but see Wilson v. Seitzer, 1 Chy. Ch. 75, 160. But a set-off of damages and costs payable in the same action, will ordinarily be allowed without regard to the solicitor's lien: Pringle v. Gloag, 10 Ch. D. 676; 40 L. T. 512; Cameron v. Campbell, 12 F. C. Q. R. 159; Young v. Hobson, 8 P. R. 253; Brigham v. Smith, 17 Gr. 512; and the set-off of a claim and counter-claim arising out of the same transactions cannot be defeated by the claim of a solicitor to a lien: Brown v. Nelson, 11 P. R. 121 (per Osler, J.A.); Westcott v. Brown, 1891, 1

Rules 336, 337. Q. B. 774; 65 L. T. 263; but see Flett v. Way, 14 P. R. 312 (where the plaintiff being awarded costs against one defendant, and being ordered to pay the costs of other defendants, all the defendants being represented by the same solicitor, a set-off to the prejudice of the lien of the plaintiff's solicitor, was refused), and Canadian Pacific R. v. Grant, 11 P. R. 208 (where the claim and counter-claim were regarded as separate actions); and notes to Rule 1165.

Where a special lien was given by one of the parties to his solicitor, the right of set-off to the extent of the special lien thus created was held to be defeated: Ross v. McLay, 7 P. R. 97.

Lien on Estate Recovered.—Until the passing of Rule 1129, a solicitor in Ontario could not become entitled to any lien on an estate recovered through his instrumentality: Shaw v. Neale, 6 H. L. C. 581; Tremear v. Lawrence, 20 Ont. 137; but see Morgan v. Holland, 7 P. R. 74. Since Rule 1129, however, a charge may be declared and enforced: see notes to that Rule.

Where party has acted in person and notice given by solicitor that he is authorized to act, subsequent proceedings to be served on solicitor.

336. Where a plaintiff has issued a writ, or a defendant has appeared, in person, and either party by a solicitor gives notice in writing to the opposite party, or the solicitor or agent of such party, of the solicitor being authorized to act as solicitor for the party on whose behalf the notice is given, all pleadings, notices, orders and other proceedings, which according to the practice of the Court are to be delivered to, or served upon, the party on whose behalf such notice is given, shall thereafter be delivered to, or served upon such solicitor. Con. Rule 464.

Taken from Rule T. T. 1856, 139.

Notwithstanding this Rule, notice of motion to attach a defendant must usually be served personally, unless some sufficient reason is shown for dispensing with personal service: Mann v. Perry, 50 L. J. Chy. 251; followed by Prondfoot, J., in Smith v. Harrin, September 29th, 1884; and see Nelson v. Worsum, W. N. 1890, 216; Re Dancer, W. N. 1895, 127. But notice of motion to commit for non-production of documents, or for not bringing accounts into a Master's office, may be served on the solicitor: see Rules 474, 475.

7. TRANSMISSION OF PAPERS.

On receiving notice local officers to transmit record, etc., to Toronto.

337. Every Deputy Clerk of the Crown, Deputy or Local Registrar, shall at the request of any party and upon receiving a præcipe for the purpose and payment of the necessary postage or express charges, transmit to the Central Office, Toronto, the record in any action together with all exhibits put in at the trial. Con. Rule 168; Rules 1 Jan., 1896, 1449, amended.

The following are clauses of Regulations of the Judges, promulgated Rule 338, on 17th Dec., 1904:—

6. When the Judge at a trial reserves judgment in any case, elsewhere than at Toronto, the Clerk of the Court shall forthwith forward the Record and Exhibits to the Central Office.

7. All Local Officers of the Court when sending papers or Exhibits to the Central Office shall indorse on the wrapper enclosing such papers or Exhibits, the short style of cause, the title of the Officer sending them, and the purpose for which they are sent.—e.g., "Jones v. Smith. From Local Registrar at Brantford, for Appeal to Divisional Court." or "For Mr. Justice Magee"—or as may be.

338. Where pleadings or other documents filed with an officer of the Court, are required by or for use before any other officer, the officer with whom the pleadings or other documents are filed, shall, upon the production of a request signed by the officer requiring the pleadings or other documents, that the same are required for some proceedings before him, transmit the pleadings or other documents upon payment of the postage or express charges required for their transmission and return. Con. Rule 469.

Based upon Chy. O. 542, 544.

This Rule is general in its terms, and appears to apply to all documents, whether filed with an officer in the action, in which their production is required, or in some other action.

Formerly where the documents in some other cause were required to be produced, an order was considered necessary. Where a party in his affidavit on production referred to documents produced by him and in the custody of a Deputy Registrar in another suit, an order was made ex parte for their production: Gainer v. Doyle, 2 Chy. Ch. 279; but see Hamelyn v. White, 6 P. R. 143. On a motion to produce documents in another cause at the trial, it was necessary to show that the original documents were required, and that the production of office copies would not be sufficient: Chudwick v. Thompson, 2 Chy. Ch. 389; Jarvis v. White, 8 Ves. 313; Attorney-General v. Ray, 6 Beav. 335; Anon., 13 Beav. 420; and see Gaynor v. Salt, 24 U. C. Q. B. 180; and ordinarily an application for the order was required to be on notice: Lamb v. Danby, 9 W. R. 765. But under this Rule it is not necessary to obtain any order.

Where documents filed in the office of a Registrar of the H. C. J. or Clerk of the County Court, Registrar of Deeds, Registrar of the Surrogate Court, or Clerk of the Peace, are produced in evidence under a subpoena, the original documents are not to be left with the Court, but copies, if necessary, are to be put in: R. S. O. c. 73, s. 48; except where the genuineness of the document produced is in question: Id., sec. 49.

By regulation of the Court dated 16th February, 1905, directions are given to the officers of the Court that subject to Rule 338, original documents on file or of record are not to be taken away from the Court by any officer under a subpoena unless authorized by a Judge's order: see note to Rule 479.

Transmission of documents from one officer to another.

Production of documents in other causes may be ordered.

Proof required that production of originals is necessary.

Rules

339-342. As to the way in which papers are to be transmitted to the Central Office by local officers, see note to Rule 337.

Documents
how transmitted

339. Documents shall be transmitted by post or express, and not otherwise, and with the documents shall be transmitted the necessary postage or express charges for the return of the same, unless they are to be delivered by one officer to another in the same town, when they shall be transmitted by delivering the same to the officer requiring them, or his clerk. Con. Rule 470.

Taken from Chy. O. 543, 544: Rule T. T. 1856, 148.

Documents
to be returned.

340. As soon as the purpose for which any such documents are required is completed, the officer to whom they have been sent shall re-transmit them to the office from which they were sent. Con. Rule 471.

Taken from Chy. O. 545.

Papers used in Weekly Courts.

341 On the conclusion of any motion or proceeding before the Weekly Court holden at Ottawa and London, all papers in relation thereto shall be transmitted by the officer having the charge thereof to the proper office, where the proceedings in the action or matter were commenced, to be deposited with the other papers in the action or matter. Rules 1 Jan., 1896, 1412. as amended by Rule 1231. 11th Feb., 1900.

See note to Rule 337.

8. TIME.Months shall mean
months.

342. Where by these Rules, or by any judgment or order, time for doing any act or taking any proceeding is limited by months, not expressed to be lunar months, such time shall be computed by calendar months. Con. Rule 472.

Identical with the Eng. R. 1875, O. 57, r. 1. That of 1883, R. 961, is a little more full, providing for the same construction of the word "month" in any document which is part of any legal procedure under the Rules.

Where a month's notice of passing a by-law was required, notice given on 28th March for 28th April was held insufficient: Re Laplante v. Peterborough, 3 Ont. 634; Re Ostrom & Sidney, 15 Ont. App. 372.

By R. S. O. c. 1, s. 8 (15), "month," and "year," in Ontario statutes, mean calendar month, and year, and this provision also applies to the Rules: Rule 5. In contracts and legal documents where nothing to the contrary is expressed, and in matters not affected Rule 343. by this Rule and the above statutory provision, "month" means a lunar month: Hutton v. Brown, 29 W. R. 928. There is no general exception making it mean a calendar month in commercial documents: Bruner v. Moore, 1904, 1 Ch. 305.

By R. S. O. c. 144, s. 2, standard time is adopted as regards any time mentioned in any Act of the Ontario Legislature, by-law, Rule of Court, deed, or legal instrument, unless otherwise stated. As regards that part of the Province which lies east of the meridian, 87° west longitude, standard time is reckoned as 5 hours behind Greenwich time; and as regards that part of the Province lying west of the said meridian, standard time is reckoned as 6 hours behind Greenwich time.

343. Where a period of less than six days from or after any date or event is appointed or allowed for doing any act or taking any proceeding, [holidays, as defined by The Interpretation Act], shall not be reckoned in the computation of such period. Con. Rule 473. Period of less than 6 days.

The words in brackets do not correspond with the Eng. (1883) R. 902. Holidays are defined by the Interpretation Act (R. S. O. c. 1, s. 8, s.-s. 16), as amended by 2 Edw. vii. c. 12, s. 1, as follows:—

"16. The word "holiday" shall include Sundays, New Year's Day, Good Friday, Easter Monday, Christmas Day, the birthday, or the day fixed by proclamation for the celebration of the birthday of the reigning Sovereign, Victoria Day, Dominion Day, Labour Day, and any day appointed by proclamation of the Governor-General or the Lieutenant-Governor as a public holiday or for a General Fast or Thanksgiving."

This Rule does not apply to Division Courts: Re McKay v. Talbot, 3 O. L. R. 258.

The only day on which no judicial act can be done is Sunday. Other statutory holidays are not dies non juridici in that sense: Foster v. Toronto Railway Co., 31 Ont. 1.

This Rule applies to the period for entering cases under Rule 538 (d): Parr v. Lough, 3 C. L. T. 312; to short notice of trial under Rule 538 (b): O'Donnell v. O'Donnell, 10 P. R. 264; and to the computation of the 48 hours' notice of the examination of a party required to be given under Rule 446: Lovelace v. Harrington, 10 P. R. 157.

Where the limited period is not less than six days, holidays are counted: Ex parte Viney, 4 Ch. D. 794; Cornish v. Manning, 18 C. L. J. 143, except when the last day is a holiday, when, by Rule 345, it is not to be reckoned: Taylor v. Jones, 45 L. J. C. P. 110.

As to how far the Court regards a fraction of a day, see Broderick v. Broatch, 12 P. R. 561; Clarke v. Bradlough, 8 Q. B. D. 63; 46 L. T. 49.

Where a statute limits a time for making an application, serving notice of motion within the prescribed time is sufficient, and it is not absolutely necessary that the application should be brought on to be heard within that time: Re Sweetman & Gasfield, 13 P. R. 203; Re Shaw & St. Thomas, 18 P. R. 454; Re Gallon v. Central Queensland Co., 25 Q. B. D. 230; 62 L. T. 834.

344, 345.

computed.

344. (1) Where a number of days not expressed to be clear days, is prescribed by the Rules or practice of the Court, the same shall be reckoned exclusively of the first day, and inclusively of the last day. Con. Rule 474.

Even in a statute where the time within which an act is to be done is to run from a certain date, or event, the day of the date, or event, must be excluded in the computation of the time: Goldsmiths Co. v. W. Metropolitan Ry. Co., 1904, 1 K. B. 1.

Clear days.

(2) Where the days are expressed to be clear days, or where the term "at least" is added, both days shall be excluded. Con. Rule 475.

Clause (1) is the same as English Rule No. 174, of Hilary Term, 1853, and is to the same effect as Eng. (1883) Rule 972. Clause (2) is taken from App. O, 60; and there is no corresponding Eng. Rule.

When the expression "clear days" is not used, days are "clear" when expressed to be "at least" a certain number of days; see clause (2); and Reg. v. Shropshire Justices, 3 A. & E. 173; Fisher Digest, p. 8323; Wickster v. Leys, 3 C. L. T. 504; Rumohr v. Maier, 18 C. L. J. 444, 19 C. L. J. 10; 3 C. L. T. 31.

The Rule applies to the construction of orders made in actions limiting the time for doing any act: Bank of B. N. A. v. Hughes, 30 C. L. J. 138.

Where last day is Sunday.

345. Where the time for doing any act or taking any proceeding expires on a Sunday, or other day on which the offices are closed (a), the act or proceeding, so far as regards the time of doing or taking the same may be duly done or taken, on the next juridical day. Con. Rule 476. Rules of 1 Jan., 1896, 1450.

More general than Eng. (1883) R. 963, by omitting at (a) the following words: "and by reason thereof such act or proceeding cannot be done or taken on that day."

This Rule does not apply to extend the time for registration of a chattel mortgage under the statute, R. S. O. c. 148: McLean v. Pinkerton, 7 Ont. App. 490; nor to extend the time fixed by a Statute of Limitations, and therefore, in an action on a promissory note, where the limit of time under such a statute expired on Sunday, and the writ was not issued till Monday, the bar of the statute was held to apply: Morris v. Richards, 45 L. T. 210; see also Flower v. Bright, 2 J. & H. 598.

But it is considered by the officers of the High Court at Toronto that where the 3 years within which a writ of execution is to be renewed under Rule 872 expires on a Sunday, the writ may be renewed on the following day, as the limit of 3 years is one imposed by the Rules (Rule 872), and not by a statute.

When the time for appealing from Chambers expires on a holiday, the motion may be made the next day: Taylor v. Jones, 45 L. J. C. P. 110.

As to a notice of motion given for a dies non, see Rules 316 and 348.

346. The day on which an order that [a party] do give security for costs is served, and the time until and including the day on which the security is [allowed], shall not be reckoned in the computation of time allowed for [taking any proceeding in the action]. Con. Rule 477, amended.

Rules
346-348.
Computation of period of stay of proceedings.

Based on Chy. O. 400.

The words in brackets represent amendments to Rule 477, which only dealt with security given by a plaintiff, did not exclude the time up to allowance of the security, and applied only to the time for defendant to appear or deliver defence.

Eng. (1883) R. 966, still only excludes the time up to the day on which security is given.

Where the plaintiff has paid money into Court as security for costs, and has given notice of payment in, the defendant is entitled to at least one day to ascertain if such payment in has really been made and to file his defence, before the plaintiff can note the pleadings as closed, or take further proceedings: The Northern Elevator Co. v. The North-West Transportation Co., 6 O. L. R. 23.

347. The time for delivering, amending or filing any pleading, answer or other document may be enlarged by consent, without application to the Court or a Judge. Con. Rule 478, as amended by Rule 1234, 28 Nov., 1903.

Enlargement of time by consent.

348. Unless the Court or a Judge gives leave to the contrary, there shall be at least 2 clear days between the service of a notice of motion or petition and the day for hearing; and in the computation of such 2 clear days, Sundays, and days on which the offices are closed, shall not be reckoned. Con. Rule 479.

Two clear days' notice.

The first sentence is the same as Eng. (1883) R. 700. The remainder is taken from Chy. O. 264.

"At least," see Rule 344.

For the days on which the offices are closed, see Rules 9 and 10.

Motions for judgment are held to be within this Rule: Parsons v. Harris, 6 Ch. D. 694; Pearce v. Spickett, W. N. 1876, 109; Martins v. Birney, 10 P. R. 368, and note to Rule 600.

A notice of motion need not state under what Rule the party proposes to move: Re Barker's Estate, 10 Ch. D. 165-6.

Where a motion is made by leave of the Court or a Judge, the notice should so state, otherwise it is irregular: Hill v. Rimell, 8 Sim. 632. The Court should also be informed of the fact on the return of the motion; but the Court has a discretion to disregard the irregularity: Dawson v. Beeson, 22 Ch. D. 504. Under Rule 310 affidavits were allowed to be read, though not served until after the notice of motion: Re Wiggleson Hospital, 78 L. T. Jour. 282. So, where, without leave, a motion is made returnable on a day on which Rule 348. the Court does not sit: Armstrong v. Cayley, 13 Gr. 358; or in vacation: Maulin v. Rogers, 34 W. R. 502; 55 L. T. 121; 55 L. J. Q. B. 377; or the notice is too short: Daubney v. Shuttleworth, 1 Ex. D. 53; Drykin v. Coleman, 25 W. R. 294, it is irregular; but the Court may disregard the irregularity: see Williams v. De Boinville, 17 Q. B. D. 180; Forrest v. Davies, 26 W. R. 534, and Re Coulton, 34 Ch. D. 22.

Objection to a notice of appeal, as being short, was considered waived by appenring on the appeal: Re McKee, Forster v. Davies, 25 Ch. D. 19; and by obtaining an enlargement of a motion, and demanding affidavits: Re Farlinger & Morrisburg, 9 C. L. T. 109.

But appearance on a motion to commit, in order to take an objection that the service is irregular, is not a waiver of the irregularity: Mander v. Falcke, 1891, 3 Ch. 488; 65 L. T. 454.

Where notice of motion has not been given in sufficient time owing to a bona fide mistake, the Court may, in its discretion, allow the party in default to show the reason of the mistake by affidavit, and allow the motion to be made on a later day: Smith v. Smackmen Ins. Co., 32 W. R. 184.

As to the case of a motion against a defendant who has failed to appear in the action, see note to Rule 330.

Costs.

Where the party who has given notice of motion fails to appear, the party served and appearing is entitled to an order for his costs: Berry v. Exchange Trading Co., 1 Q. B. D. 77; Reg. v. Armstrong, 13 P. R. 306; Denison v. Devlin, 11 Gr. 84; in the case of motions to a Divisional Court (Rule 790); and of appeals to the Court of Appeal (Rule 821), special provision for such an event is made. Costs of affidavits prepared, but not filed at the date of the abandonment, were allowed in Harrison v. Leutner, 16 Ch. D. 559.

If the notice of motion is invalid, the party served not being bound to appear, is not entitled to costs if he does appear: Daubney v. Shuttleworth, 1 Ex. D. 53. In Re Coulton, Hamling v. Elliott, 34 Ch. D. 22, it was held that notice for a day not in the sittings is not bad, perhaps because the parties appeared on the motion; and see Fisken v. Smith, 3 Chy. Ch. 74.

In Williams v. De Boinville, 17 Q. B. D. 180, notice for a day not in the sittings was amended by inserting the proper day, the case apparently having been entered by the Clerk in the list of opposed motions for the first day of the sittings. The notice was held bad, but the amendment was allowed, the amount in question being large. In Maulin v. Rogers, supra, the Court thought it best for the parties not to permit an amendment, the amount being small; see 34 W. R. 702.

As to when costs will be given, where the Court decides that it has no jurisdiction, see Cote v. Halliday, 33 C. L. J. 159; Brown v. Shaw, 1 Ex. D. 425; Great Northern Co. v. Inett, 2 Q. B. D. 284; Powley v. Whitehead, 16 C. C. Q. B. 589.

As to the costs of a person who appears, though unnecessarily served, and merely to ask costs, and if one who appears quia timet an order would be made against him, see Lucas v. Fraser, 9 P. R. 319.

Affidavit of service.

Under The Judicature Act, where an order is made in default of appearance on a motion, the former practice is still in force, and it is still necessary to produce an affidavit of service to the Registrar before the rising of the Court: it is not sufficient if it be produced Rules in time to draw up the order: Seear v. Webb 25 Ch. D. 84; Jones v. 348a, 349. Bartholomew, W. N. 1883, 205; Re Rosier, 40 L. T. 442.

Formal parties may, with a notice of motion, or petition, be Tender of tendered $5 for costs, and if they appear unnecessarily they will get $5 costs to no more costs: Rule 1153; Re Sutton, 46 L. T. 740; where several formal respondents appear by the same solicitor, the tender of one sum of $5 is sufficient: Re Mitchell, 17 Ch. D. 515; 45 L. T. 60.

348a. Unless the Court or a Judge gives leave to the contrary, there shall be at least six (6) clear days, computed as Six clear days notice of motion for declaration of lunacy mentioned in Rule 348, between the service of a notice of an application for a declaration of lunacy and the day for hearing. Rule 1261 of 28th Nov., 1903.

The 6 days must be clear days, and Sundays and days on which the offices are closed are not to be reckoned: see Rule 348.

349. Service of pleadings, notices, orders, and other proceedings, shall, unless otherwise ordered, be effected Time for service of pleadings, etc. on Saturday before 2 o'clock in the afternoon, and on other days before the hour of four o'clock in the afternoon. Service effected after four o'clock on any week day except Saturday, shall be deemed to have been effected on the following day. Service effected after two o'clock on Saturday shall be deemed to have been effected on the following Monday. Con. Rule 480.

The original J. A. Rule 459 was identical with the English Rule, and named six o'clock as the last hour for service, instead of four o'clock.

Where service was admitted by a solicitor a few minutes after the hour per incuriam, and was repudiated by him as soon as he discovered the nature of the paper served upon him, it was held not to bind: McTavish v. Simpson, 7 P. R. 145; Wright v. Way, 8 P. R. 328.

Service of a paper effected within proper hours but by leaving the paper in the office of the solicitor, after he and his clerks had left for the day, is good service only from the time when the paper comes to the knowledge of the solicitor: Davis v. Hubbard, 20 C. L. J. 32; following McCallum v. Prov. Ins. Co., 6 P. R. 101; but proceedings may also be taken under Rule 331 so as to have the service count from the time of attendance to serve.

A specially indorsed writ is not a pleading within this Rule, and may be served at any hour of the day: Murray v. Stephenson, 9 Q. B. D. 60; see also Veale v. Automatic Boiler, etc., Co., 18 Q. B. D. 631; see also in the case of a notice of motion to quash a by-law, Re Davis & York, 10 C. L. T. 8.

See Lland v. Ward, in note to Rule 263.

Rules This Rule was held not to apply to appeals from a Surrogate 350-352. Court: and vacation is not excluded from the 15 days allowed by R. S. O. c. 50, s. 36, for bringing such appeals: Re Eastman, Divisional Court, 17th November, 1898.

Half an hour's attendance
 on a summons, or appointment is sufficient.

350. An attendance on a motion in Chambers, or on an appointment before a Master, Registrar, or other officer, for half an hour next immediately following the return thereof, shall be deemed a sufficient attendance. Con. Rule 481.

Taken from Rule T. T. 1856, 124.

Pleading in vacation.

351. Pleadings shall not be amended or delivered in the Long Vacation, [except by consent or] unless directed by the Court or a Judge. Con. Rule 483.

The words in brackets are not in Eng. (1883) R. 964.

In the former Common Law Courts no pleadings could be delivered during the Long vacation: R. S. O. 1877, c. 50, s. 95. Under this Rule it can be done by order, or by consent, but not otherwise, so as to be regular.

A pleading may be delivered without consent or order in the Christmas vacation: Thompson v. Howson, 16 P. R. 378; but the opposite party cannot, without order, be compelled to deliver a pleading in answer during Christmas vacation: see Id. and Rule 352.

Vacation
 time of, when not
 reckoned.

352. Unless otherwise directed by the Court or a Judge, the time of the Long Vacation, or the Christmas Vacation, shall not be reckoned in the computation of the times appointed or allowed by these Rules for filing, amending, or delivering any pleading, or in the times allowed for the following purposes:

- (a) Appeals to a Judge in Chambers;
- (b) Reports becoming absolute;
- (c) Moving to discharge an order under Rules 398 to 402;
- (d) Moving to add to, vary, or set aside a judgment by a party served therewith;
- (e) Doing an act or taking a proceeding in appealing to the Court of Appeal, or to a Divisional Court, except in County Court appeals. Rules 23 June, 1894, 1331. Rules of 1 Jan., 1896, 1451.

Based on Chy. O. 408, and App. O. 57.

As to the proceedings which may or may not be taken during Rule 353, vacation, see further Rule 3 and notes.

The Christmas vacation was under Chy. O. 408 not to be reckoned in the computation of the time allowed for taking certain steps: see Blake v. Building & Loan Association, 10 P. R. 153; under the former Con. Rule 484 it was not excluded, but the present Rule now expressly provides that it is to be excluded.

As to delivery of pleadings in vacation, see Rule 351.

A notice of trial given in vacation is regular: Thompson v. Houston, 16 P. R. 378.

Appeals to a Judge in Chambers.—Although the time of the Christmas or Long vacation is not to be included in the time limited for appealing to a Judge in Chambers, yet when any judgment, order or decision so appealable is made or given in vacation, any party affected may appeal therefrom, if he pleases, during vacation to the vacation Judge: Rule 767 (6).

Masters' Reports.—In order to confirm a Master's report, it must be filed as directed in Rule 693, fourteen days; see Rule 769, reports. No part of this period must fall in vacation. As to the procedure in appeals from a Master's report, see notes to Rules 769-772, when confirmed.

Drainage Appeals.—The Rules apply as far as possible to appeals from reports of the Drainage Referee under R. S. O. c. 226, and Christmas Vacation is excluded in the computation of the time limited by s. 110, for appealing: Re Raleigh and Harwich, 18 P. R. 73.

Moving to Discharge Order Under Rules 398-402.—Where an order of revivor was formerly issued, the practice is now to issue an order to continue the proceedings. Fourteen days from service are allowed for moving against an order to continue proceedings: Rule 398. discharge orders to continue proceedings; Time for.

Moving to add to, or vary, or set aside a Judgment.—This Rule applies to motions to add to, or vary, judgments, by parties served therewith, by direction of the Master, whether on being added as parties to an action under Rules 659 or 746, or merely for the purpose of binding them by, and enabling them to attend the proceedings in the action under Rule 203. The time allowed for moving against a judgment by any party so served is fourteen days from the day of service: see Rules 203 (3), 661, 747. Motions to add to, or vary, judgments.

Appeals to the Court of Appeal.—The time of the vacations is not to be reckoned, under clause (c), in any time fixed by statute (as well as in any time fixed by Rule), for "doing an act or taking a proceeding" in appealing (except in County Court appeals): Hespeler v. Campbell, 14 P. R. 18; Re Elliott, Elliott v. Russell, before MacLennan, J.A., 30 Sept., 1890. Appeals to C. A.

353. The Court or a Judge may enlarge or abridge the time appointed by these Rules, or any Rule relating to time, or fixed by any order (a), for doing any act or taking any proceeding, upon such terms as may seem just: Enlarge-ment or abridge-ment of time.

Rule 363. and such enlargement may be ordered although the application for the same is not made until after the expiration of the time appointed or allowed. Con. Rule 485; Rules 23 June, 1894, 1332.

The Eng. (1883) R. 967, has it (a) "enlarging time": It is otherwise the same.

An application under this Rule should be on notice to the parties affected if they have appeared.

A motion to extend the time for making a motion may be made at the same time as a motion which is objected to as out of time: Bradshaw v. Warlow, 32 Ch. D. 403.

Scope of
Rule.

Scope of Rule.—The Rule only applies where a limited time is fixed for something to be done, and not where the Rules direct some act to be done before another: Re Pitcher, 11 Ch. D. 905.

The Court cannot, under this Rule, extend the time for renewing a writ where in the absence of such renewal the claim would be barred by the Statute of Limitations: Doyle v. Kaufman, 3 Q. B. D. 340; and see Magee v. Hastings, 28 L. R. Ir. 288; but the time for issuing a concurrent writ may be extended, the original having been kept renewed so that it could be acted upon within the jurisdiction: Smallpage v. Yonge, 55 L. T. 44, distinguishing Doyle v. Kaufman. See also note to Rule 238; St. Louis v. O'Callaghan, 13 P. R. 322.

An extension of the time limited by Rule 1044 for delivery of a statement of claim may be extended, though the liberty of the subject is involved: Winch v. Traviass, 18 P. R. 102.

There is no power to extend (McLean v. Pinkerton, Ont. App. 495; Re Oliver and Scott, 43 Ch. D. 310; 61 L. T. 552; McCarroll v. Metropolitan Life Ins. Co., 35 C. L. J. 421), or to shorten (Re Sweetman & Gosfield, 13 P. R. 293), the time fixed by a statute, and not by the Rules. The time for moving against an award was extended in Re Oliver & Scott, supra, because the time for moving was fixed by Rules passed by lawful authority altering the statute, 9 & 10 W. 3, c. 15, s. 2. See also Flower v. Bright, 2 J. & H. 590.

The time allowed by Rule 424 for taking money out of Court, which has been paid in with a defence, cannot be extended under this Rule after the plaintiff has proceeded to trial: Magnum v. Ferguson, 18 P. R. 201.

This Rule does not empower the Court to allow an application as to costs, which by Rule 1130, if made to a Judge, must be made at the trial, to be made at any later period: Baker v. Oakes, 2 Q. B. D. 171; but see Fritz v. Hobson, 14 Ch. D. 542.

Extending time for appealing.

Extending Time for Appealing.—In appeals to the Court of Appeal the application for an extension of time must, under Rule 799, be to the Court of Appeal, or a Judge thereof. It was at one time held that in giving leave, or extending time, there was a difference between applications before, and after, judgment. In the former case, leave was readily granted, unless the opposite party was injured in some respect, for which payment of costs could not compensate him; but in the latter case after the action had been once tried and judgment given, the party in whose favour the judgment is, was held to have a vested right in it of which he is not to be deprived, except under special circumstances; see Collins v. Vestry of Paddington, 5 Q. B. D. 308; Miller v. Brown, 9 P. R. 342; Shupe v. Shupe, 4 C. L. T. 129; Craig v. Phillips, 7 Ch. D. 210; McAndrew v. Backer, 7 Ch. D. 701; see Re Ambrose Lake Tin and Copper Co., Taylor's Case, 8 Ch. D. 643; Re Sceptre Licensed Victuallers Fire Insurance Co., Ex parte Hore, W. N. 1879, 6; but these cases have been gradually departed from, and it is now held that no such distinction exists, but that each case depends upon its own circumstances, and discretion is to be exercised, accordingly, in either case, so as to do what justice may require in the particular case; Cusack v. L. & N. W. Railway, 1891, 1 Q. B. 347; Abell v. Morrison, 14 P. R. 210; see also Re Gabourie, Casey v. Gabourie, 12 P. R. 252; Re Clayton Mills Manufg. Co., 37 Ch. D. 28; Edsall v. Pappas, 40 Ch. D. 520; Ross v. Robertson, 7 O. L. R. 404; Rap v. Port Arthur, 7 O. L. R. 737, and notes to Rule 799.

No precise rules can be laid down as to what constitute circumstances sufficient to call for the exercise of the discretion of the Court; see Carter v. Stubbs, 6 Q. B. D. 116; Re Manchester Economic B. S., 24 Ch. D. 488; Wilby v. Standard, etc., 10 P. R. 34. Even in the case of the time for taking a step being allowed to expire by mistake, there is no hard and fast rule that an extension will not be given unless there has been conduct on the part of the opposite party conducing to the mistake; Illingworth v. Melbourne, 18 Times, 775.

As a general rule after delay and expiry of the regular time, there must be shewn a bond fide intention to appeal held while the right to appeal existed, and a suspension of further proceedings by reason of some special circumstances; Smith v. Hunt, 5 O. L. R. 97. The applicant must also shew prima facie error in the judgment; Union Bank v. Rideau Lumber Co., 19 P. R. 106; Ross v. Robertson, Rap v. Port Arthur, supra, and see notes to Rule 799.

Where there has been delay on both sides, but an appeal is ready, though too late to be set down in due course, consent should ordinarily be given to its being entered; see McLaughlin v. Mayhew, 5 O. L. R. 114.

Thus, though, generally speaking, an extension will be granted where justice requires it: Re Gabourie, Casey v. Gabourie, 12 P. R. 252; and cases supra; two particular lines of cases have been noticed in which leave may be given, 1st, where there is unavoidable accident, where a party is unable to bring on his appeal; and 2nd, where some equity is raised on behalf of the appellant from the conduct of the other side: Langtry v. Dismoulin, 4 C. L. T. 351; Re Mansel, Rhodes v. Jenkins, 7 Ch. D. 711; Re Blyth & Young, 13 Ch. D. 416. Mistake on the appellant's part with which the respondent has nothing to do may be a ground, and it is not essential to shew misconduct by the respondent. (though there are expressions in the cases to the contrary); see Re Mansel, Rhodes v. Jenkins, supra; McAndrew v. Barker, 7 Ch. D. 701; Curtis v. Sheffield, 21 Ch. D. 5; Rumohr v. Marx, 19 C. L. J. 10; Bertram v. Barringham, 7 Ch. D. 24; but there must be an equity shewn in the applicant's favour either from conduct of the other party, or from something else recognized as a ground of equity: Re New Callao, etc., 22 Ch. D. 484; Re Manchester Economic B. S., 24 Ch. D. 488; Peckett v. Short, 32 W. R. 123; Wilby v. Standard, etc., 10 P. R. 34; Lewis v. Talbot Road Co., 19 P. R. 15; Sieveright v. Leys, 9 P. R. 200; Langdon v. Robertson, Rule 363. 12 P. R. 139; Re Gabourie, 12 P. R. 252; Esdaile v. Payne, 40 Ch. D. 520; McNair v. Andenshaw Paint Co., [1891], 2 Q. B. 502; and the onus of shewing such equity is on the applicant: Shupe v. Shupe, 4 C. L. T. 129.

In Dayer v. Robertson, 9 P. R. 78, time for appealing from an Official Referee in Chambers under Rule 767, was extended where the time had expired through a misapprehension of the practice: see Croft v. Samuel, 2 C. P. D. 21; and in H'ery v. The World, 17 P. R. 543, where, though a sittings of the Court had been lost, substantial steps towards bringing on the appeal had been taken, and security had been given for a large part of the debt and costs.

granted

An extension was granted where the applicants had been, without their default, in ignorance of the order appealed from, and applied as soon as they heard of it: Re Padstone, Total Loss, etc., [1881], W. N. 1882, 1; 51 L. J. Chy. 344; where notice of appeal was withdrawn by mistake, and immediately renewed: Re Labrone, etc., Tanaka's Case, 8 Ch. D. 643; where the delay was attributable to the Court: McCrae v. White, 9 P. R. 288; under peculiar special circumstances: Re Lake Superior Native Copper Co., 11 P. R. 36; where some of the parties affected by the judgment lived at a great distance, and out of the jurisdiction: Re Jacques, 30 W. R. 394; but not where due diligence in communicating with them was not shown: Miller v. Broten, 9 P. R. 542; and where the order appealed from, viz., for the winding up of a company, was founded upon a void resolution of which the appellant had obtained the order, was not aware, and therefore had not disclosed to the Court: Re Manchester Economic B. S., supra; where the case was important, and the facts were conflicting decisions below: Powell v. Peck, 12 P. R. 34; where leave was necessary, and had not been applied for, but proceedings to appeal had been taken in proper time, and a fairly arguable point of law was presented: Langdon v. Robertson, 12 P. R. 139, approving of the rule expressed in Sieveright v. Leys, 9 P. R. 200; and see Re Gabourie, 12 P. R. 252, and Foley v. Canada P. L. & S. Co., 18 C. L. J. 444.

Leave was granted where the proposed appeal was from an order refusing to set aside a judgment obtained by default in an action for recovery of land, where the omission to file defence was due to a mere slip of the solicitor, the application for relief being made promptly, and the action having been directed to be brought, on the staying, by a previous action, of proceedings under a power of sale in a mortgage, presumably because the plaintiff's right to exercise the power was not clear: Bourne v. O'Donohoe, 17 P. R. 274.

refused.

An extension was refused where the object of the appeal was to fix executors with interest on money which they had invested, and on which a loss had occurred: Coates v. McGlashan, 2 Chy. Ch. 218; where the delay was owing to the applicant's ignorance of the practice: Wilby v. Standard, etc., 10 P. R. 34; or to the party having inexcusably proceeded under the old and repealed practice: Broten v. Dorset, 34 W. R. 776; Re Crosley, 34 Ch. D. 664; or to the inadvertence of his solicitor: Winnett v. Renuick, 6 P. R. 233; (but see Walton v. Jarvis, 18 U. C. Q. B. 620; Weldon v. De Bath, 3 Times, 445); or the misconstruction of a Rule: International Financial Society v. City of Moscow Gas Co., 7 Ch. D. 241. A contrary subsequent decision by a Court of Appeal does not form a special circumstance: Craig v. Phillips, 7 Ch. D. 249; Allan v. McTavish, 3 C. L. T. 196; see contra, Re Normantown, 50 L. J. Chy. 223; nor does the fact of a statute having been passed altering the law, even though it be retrospective: Eyre v. Wynn MacKenzie (No. 2), 1896, 1 Ch. 135; 73 L. T. 571.

See also Baddie v. Sutherland, 20 C. L. J. 146; 4 C. L. T. 205; Rule 353. and Hamilton Prov. Loan Co. v. Dumble, 20 C. L. J. 147; 4 C. L. T. 205.

In Curtis v. Sheffield, 21 Ch. D. 1. (see also 20 Ch. D. 308), leave to appeal from a decree 45 years old, which declared future rights, was asked by a person who applied promptly after the happening of the event which entitled him to a fund if the decree should be reversed. Leave was refused, the fact that future rights were declared being held to be no sufficient reason for giving leave in a case where all parties, who could in any event be interested, were before the Court when the declaration was made.

The order extending the time granting leave to appeal should provide for the contingency of the appeal being abandoned; and where the costs of the motion are not provided for in the appellate Court, the Court in which the order extending the time was made is the proper tribunal to correct the omission: Hilson v. Carter, 1883, A. C. 638.

See also an article on the subject, 28 C. L. J. 99.

Unless otherwise expressly provided, there is no appeal from an order refusing leave to appeal: Ex p. Stevenson, 1892, 1 Q. B. 600; Lane v. Esdaile, 1891, A. C. 210; see, however, Moore v. Peachey, 8 Times, 406; nor from an order granting leave: Re Central Bank, 17 P. R. 395; Re Sarnia Oil Co., 15 P. R. 347; Kay v. Briggs, 22 Q. B. D. 343; or extending time for appealing: Moore v. Peachey, 8 Times, 406.

Other Cases.—In Wilkins v. Helford, 35 L. T. 622, Bacon, V.C., refused to extend time for delivering a counter-claim. It had not been delivered, through the gross neglect of the defendant's solicitor, and the application was made six months after a decree had been obtained, but immediately after the defendant discovered his solicitor's neglect.

In Hastings v. Hurley, 16 Ch. D. 734, the time for indorsement of the date of service under Rule 150 was extended.

Where, within four days from a decision of a Master in Chambers, an appeal summons was taken out, and made returnable at a date after the expiration of the four days, but on the first day when a Judge would sit at Chambers, it was held that the time might be enlarged under this Rule: Gibbons v. London Financial Association, 4 C. P. D. 263.

By a Master's order an action was ordered to be dismissed, unless notice of trial should be given by a certain day. Through mistake of a solicitor's clerk, notice of trial was not so delivered. A Judge in his discretion refused to extend the time, and the Court of Appeal refused to interfere: Gilder v. Morrison, 30 W. R. 815.

Under this Rule the Court may order a plaintiff to deliver his statement of claim within a shorter time than that allowed by Rule 243; but such an order should not direct a dismissal of the action in case of default; in case of default a substantive application for dismissal may be made under Rule 432, which expressly provides that an application for dismissal is not to be made till after the expiration of the time within which the plaintiff is bound to deliver his statement of claim: Armstrong v. Toronto & Richmond Hill Ry. Co., 15 P. R. 449.

Where a third party notice was served too late, the Court in the circumstances refused to extend the time: Parent v. Cook, 2 O. L. R. 709; 3 O. L. R. 350.

Where an order was made under Rule 432, dismissing an action for want of prosecution, unless a statement of claim should be delivered within a week, and no statement was delivered in the week so limited, it was held that the action was at an end, and that there was no jurisdiction to make an order subsequently extending the time for delivery of the statement of claim: Whistler v. Hancock, 3 Q. B. 10, 83; and see Dunn v. McLean, 6 P. R. 156; Hollender v. Ffoulkes, 16 P. R. 225; The Crown Corundum & Mica Co. v. Logan, 3 O. L. R. 434.

An order was made on the 6th of May dismissing an action for want of prosecution if the statement of claim was not delivered within fourteen days, and on the 19th of May, the plaintiff took out a summons returnable the next day, the last of the fourteen days, for further time to deliver the statement of claim. The summons was, on the 20th, adjourned, by the consent of the parties in writing indorsed thereon, till the 21st, and on the 21st a Master made an order giving seven days more for delivery of the statement of claim. The Court rescinded the order on the ground that there was no jurisdiction to make it, the action being at an end on the 20th of May: King v. Davenport, 4 Q. B. D. 402.

On the 25th of March a Master made an order dismissing an action for want of prosecution, unless an affidavit in answer to interrogatories was filed on the 31st. The affidavit was not filed on that day; but on the day following a summons was taken out for further time to answer the interrogatories; it was held that it was still competent to the Court or a Judge to enlarge the time for moving to set aside or vary the order of the 25th of March: Burke v. Rowan, 4 C. P. D. 226.

The Court of Appeal has decided that a Judge has jurisdiction under this Rule to enlarge the time for appealing against an order dismissing the action for want of prosecution, even after the order has taken effect, and the action has therefore become dismissed; and that he has also jurisdiction, when he has so enlarged the time for appealing, to vary or amend the order dismissing the action, and in the exercise of such jurisdiction his discretion is not limited by fixed or arbitrary rules: Carter v. Stubbs, 6 Q. B. D. 116; see also Welch v. Buhl, 3 Q. B. D. 80, 253, and note to Rule 432.

In the above cases, Whistler v. Hancock is recognized as correctly decided. In that case there was no jurisdiction to make the order asked, because the motion was to take some step in the cause, and was not directed to modifying the order for dismissal. There had been no order or application within the week to set aside or vary the order of dismissal, or to enlarge the time for appealing against the order of dismissal, and that order existing and having taken effect, the cause was dead.

The last five above-mentioned English cases were considered and approved in Hollender v. Ffoulkes, 16 P. R. 225; and in Newcombe v. McLuhan, 11 P. R. 461, were not considered to stand in the way of a motion to vacate a judgment (signed on default of delivery of a statement of claim on a day previously fixed by order for its delivery), and to extend the time for delivering statement of claim: see also Bank of Minnesota v. Page, 14 Ont. App. 347; The Crown Corundum Co. v. Logan, 3 O. L. R. 434, and Muir v. Guinam, 6 O. W. R. 64.

Where an order for taxation of costs between solicitor and client ^{Rules} limited a time within which it was to be acted on, and provided that ^{354, 355.} in default it was to be of no effect: it was nevertheless held that the time for acting under the order might be extended: Re McIntosh, 1903, 2 Ch. 394; 88 L. T. 820.

354. The Vacations of the High Court and the Court of Appeal, shall be: ^{Time for vacations in the High Court of Justice, and Court of Appeal.}

(a) The Long Vacation to consist of the months of July and August.

(b) The Christmas Vacation to consist of the period from the 24th day of December to the 6th day of the following January, both days inclusive. Con. Rule 486.

Unless under any Rule (such as 9, 351, 352 or 439), proceedings are prohibited during vacation they may lawfully be taken, e.g., taxation: Consinean v. City of London F. Ins. Co., 13 P. R. 36; proceedings before an Official Referee: Marples v. Rosebrugh, 17 P. R. 104; service of notice of trial: Thompson v. Howson, 16 P. R. 378. See notes to Rule 9.

By sec. 63 of the Jud. Act, power is given to the Lieutenant-Governor in Council to revoke or modify Rules relating to Vacations.

9. MOTIONS AND OTHER APPLICATIONS.

(i) Generally.

355. Where an application is authorized to be made ^{Application to Court or Judge to be by motion.} to the Court or a Judge in an action or proceeding, such application shall be made by motion. Con. Rule 525.

By the Eng. (1883) R. 696, it is only to a Divisional Court, or to a Judge sitting in Court, that the application is by motion. When made to a Judge in Chambers, a summons, or rule, or order, to show cause, continues in England to be the course.

A notice of motion for attachment stating that the Court would be moved at the Royal Courts of Justice was held sufficient: Petty v. Daniel, 34 Ch. D. 172.

Where a motion has been made and refused, it cannot be renewed as a general thing without leave: Regina v. Richardson, 13 P. R. 303; Reg v. Mayor of Bodmin, 8 Times, 553; but see Payne v. Newberry, 13 P. R. 392, where the motion when first made was held to be technically irregular: formerly a motion for a habeas corpus was an exception; but see now Re Hall, 8 Ont. App. 135; but where an interlocutory motion is refused on a ground which is subsequently removed by an amendment of the proceedings, a second motion for the same purpose may be made, and the doctrine of res judicata will not apply: see Bombey & Son v. Playfair, 1897, 1 Q. B. 368; 75 L. T. 676.

The Court may, under Rule 334 or 357, dispense with service of a notice of motion.

Rule 356. | Rule 1240 provides that Rule 355 shall not extend or apply to proceedings for, or in relation to, the quashing of convictions or orders.

In most cases where a suitor is prosecuting proceedings in person he is entitled to be heard in person in support of, or opposition to, any motion in the course of such proceedings; there are, however, some motions which the Court will not entertain unless made by counsel; e.g., a motion for a prerogative mandamus: Ex p. Wallace, 1902, 2 K. B. 488, where Re Lewis, 1884, 14 Q. B. D. 474, was held to be no authority for a contrary practice; so also in the case of complaints against a barrister, or solicitor, for alleged misconduct: see Re Solicitor, 1903, 1 K. B. 877; and Re Solicitor, 1903, 2 K. B. 205, where the complaint had been investigated by a committee of the Law Society, and the solicitor acquitted.

No rule or order nisi.

356. No summons, rule or order to shew cause shall be granted in any cause [or matter]; but when any person other than the applicant is entitled to be heard on a motion, he shall be served with a notice thereof. Con. Rule 526.

The Eng. R. 1875, O. 53, r. 2, had not the words "or matter," and instead of the last clause, like original J. A. Rule 405, concluded as follows: "except in the cases in which an application for such rule or order is expressly authorized by these Rules." The Eng. (1883) R. 697, is different. For want of the omitted words "or matter," there was a difference in England between rules or orders made in actions and those made in "matters."

Rule 1240 provides that the above Rule 356 shall not extend or apply to proceedings for, or in relation to, the quashing of convictions or orders.

An order calling upon a solicitor to answer affidavits under Rule 89 appears to be an exception to this Rule.

As to motions to set aside awards, see Rule 363.

This Rule forbids the granting of a rule to shew cause where an application is made in the County Court against the judgment of a County Court Judge who tried the case without a jury: Williams v. Crow, 10 Ont. App. 301.

In Re City of Toronto, Leader Lane Arbitration, 13 P. R. 106, it was held that a motion, on which, before the Rules, no one but the applicant was entitled to be heard, may, under this Rule, be made ex parte.

The rights of an applicant cannot be prejudiced by anything done after the notice of motion has been served, but his rights are to be determined as they existed at the date of its service: see Preston v. Tunbridge Wells, 1903, 2 Ch. 323; 88 L. T. 53.

Motions to quash By-laws.—A motion to quash a municipal by-law should be made to a Judge in the Weekly Court, and from his decision either granting or refusing the motion, an appeal lies to the Divisional Court: see Jud. Act, s. 74 (1) as amended.

Under The Municipal Act, 3 Ed. vii, c. 19, s. 378, a notice of motion to quash a by-law must be served 7 clear days before the day on which the motion is to be made: s. 378 (2). See formerly, H. & L. Jud. Act, 2nd ed., p. 539.

The Court has no power under Rule 353 to shorten this period Rule 357 of 7 clear days, as it is fixed by the Statute, and the powers given by Rule 353 only extend to periods of time fixed by the Rules: Re Sweetman & Gosfield, 13 P. R. 293. By analogy to the case of a writ of summons it would seem that Rule 349, providing for the hours for effecting certain services does not apply to the service of the notice of motion, it being the first proceeding in the matter.

Where an applicant collusively discontinues his application to quash a municipal by-law, other parties interested may be authorized to intervene and continue the proceedings in the applicant's name on giving him proper indemnity as to costs: Re Ritz & New Hamburg, 4 O. L. R. 639.

Evidence on Motions.—See Rules 489, et seq.

Affidavits to be read in support of a notice of motion must be filed before the notice is served: Rule 524. Affidavits in answer to a motion must be filed before they can be read, but not necessarily filed the day before, as was formerly the practice in Chancery.

Where a party obtained an enlargement, on terms, to file affidavits, but did not comply with the terms, he was not allowed to read the affidavits: Campbell v. Martin, 11 P. R. 509.

A party to a motion may read in support of his own case, the affidavits filed by his opponent: Re Margetson, 1897, 2 Ch. 314: 76 L. T. 803.

As to proof of service where the opposite party does not appear, see Sugar v. Webb, 25 Ch. D. 84, and note to Rule 524.

Renewal of Motion after Dismissal.—See note to Rule 353.

Motion by Person not a Party.—A notice of motion, other than a notice which originates proceedings, can ordinarily only be given by a party: Re Knight, 32 Sol. Jour. 166; but see the special provisions of Rules 358 and 920. An application by a person not a party should ordinarily be made by petition.

Length of Notice.—See notes to Rules 348 and 310.

357. If satisfied that the delay caused by proceeding by notice of motion might entail serious mischief, the Court or a Judge may make any order ex parte, upon such terms as may seem just. Con. Rule 527.

Notice of motion.

When orders ex parte can be made.

As to what motions are ex parte, see Dan. Pr. 5th ed., 1441, 1909.

Where the opposite party though not served with a notice of motion nevertheless appears upon the motion, he is entitled to be heard, and the motion should not, in that case, be entertained ex parte: McLeod v. Noble, 24 Ont. App. 439.

No order of any moment should be made ex parte except in a case of emergency: Thomas v. Storey, 11 P. R. 417. An ex parte order is always taken at the peril of the party, and is liable to be moved against, if improperly made, or if material facts are suppressed on the hearing of it: Sturgeon v. Hooker, 1 De G. & S. 484; Re Gedye, 15 Beav. 254; Cartwright v. Hinds, 3 Ont. 384; Hynes v. Fisher, 4

Ont. 60; Rep. of Peru v. Dreyfus, 55 L. T. 802; Schmitt v. Foulke, W. N. 1893, 64; Re McCarthy, Pepler & Co., 15 P. R. 261; Re Collyer, etc., Co., 81 L. T. 110.

A party moving ex parte must make a frank disclosure of all material facts; his omission to do so may entitle the opposite party to have any order made on his application set aside with costs: see Collins v. North British, 1894, 3 Ch. 228; Republic of Peru v. Dreyfus, 55 L. T. 802; In re Burland, 41 Ch. D. 542; Atkinson v. Plimpton, 6 O. L. R. 566; Mair v. Cameron, 18 P. R. 484.

Motions for leave to appeal from a report: Hamilton v. Tweed, 9 P. R. 448; to stay execution: Grand Trunk Ry. Co. v. Ont. & Quebec Ry. Co., 9 P. R. 420; to dismiss an abandoned appeal: Ormerod v. Bleasdale, 54 L. T. 343; or under Rule 425; Hoocy v. Gilbert, 12 P. R. 114, 118, should not be made ex parte.

A motion for leave to effect substituted service of a notice of motion is ex parte: Hamilton v. Davies, W. N. 1880, 82.

An ex parte order for the examination of a witness dangerously ill was upheld as being in accordance with the former Chancery practice: Baker v. Jackson, 10 P. R. 624.

Where the party moving does not appear, the motion is called an abandoned motion. As to costs in such case, see notes to Rule 348.

As to moving against ex parte orders, see Rule 358 and notes.

Service of Ex Parte Orders.—Ex parte orders should be served as soon as possible: Church v. Marsh, 2 Ha. 652; Dan. Pr., 5th ed., 1436. An order made on a motion on which a party affected appeared, does not necessarily require to be served on such party: Farden v. Richter, 23 Q. B. D. 124; see also Hopton v. Robertson, 23 Q. B. D. 126 (n); and Cranston v. Blair, 15 P. R. 167; except orders setting aside proceedings which, though made on notice, must be served promptly, or they will be deemed to have been abandoned: Molsons Bank v. Dillabough, 13 P. R. 312; but see Kelly v. Wade, 11 P. R. 66; and orders sought to be enforced by attachment must also be served.

Costs.—Ordinary costs should not be awarded on an ex parte motion: McLean v. Allen, 14 P. R. 84.

Ex parte orders may be moved against.

358. A party affected by an ex parte order, [or any party who has failed to appear on an application through accident, or mistake, or insufficient notice of the application], may move to rescind or vary the order before the Judge or officer who made the same, or any Judge or officer having jurisdiction, within four days from the time when the order comes to his notice, or within such further time as the Court or a Judge may allow, and whether the order has been acted upon by the party issuing it or not. Con. Rule 536. Rules of 1 Jan., 1896, 1454.

This Rule was passed in 1888 to meet the objections and difficulties raised in Ryan v. Canada Southern Ry. Co., 10 P. R. 535; McNabb v. Oppenheimer, 11 P. R. 214, and Taylor v. Sisters of Charity, ib. 496; see Hughes v. Field, 9 P. R. 127.

See also Boyle v. Sacker, 39 Ch. D. 249.

The passage in brackets is the amendment made by former Rule ~~358~~ Rule 1474. It expresses the decision in Flett v. Way, 14 P. R. 123, on the point.

All ex parte orders are periculo petentis: Re McCarthy, Pepler & Co., 15 P. R. 261. See also notes to Rule 357.

In Reid v. Trimmer, 9 C. L. T. 391, it was held that where an order was made after an enlargement had been refused, and the opposing party had no material in answer to the motion, the order was not an ex parte one, and a motion against it should be by way of appeal.

This Rule does not apply to ex parte orders for arrest in respect to which special provision is made by Rule 1047: Jury v. Jury, 16 P. R. 375.

An application to rescind an ex parte order made by a Local Judge was entertained by the Master in Chambers: Williams v. Harrison, 40 C. L. J. 80.

"Party affected."—Where a garnishee does not, pursuant to Rule 920, bring to the notice of the Court the claim of a third party, such third party is a "party affected," within this Rule: Parker v. McHearn, 16 P. R. 555; 17 P. R. 84.

An execution creditor, prejudiced by an amendment of a judgment and writs of execution issued in an action to which he was not a party, may, on application, have the order rescinded; but quære, whether this Rule applies to limit the time for making the application to rescind: see Glass v. Cameron, 9 Ont. 712; it must at any rate be made promptly: In re Deakin, 1900, 2 Q. B. 889.

The general administrator of a deceased defendant was held to be a party affected by an ex parte order appointing a judgment creditor to be receiver of defendant's interest in an estate and another person to be administrator ad litem, although the grant of general administration was subsequent: McLean v. Allen, 18 P. R. 255.

Procedure on Motion.—On an application under this Rule a Judge or the Master in Chambers has power to reconsider a matter which has been brought before him ex parte, and to receive additional evidence both for and against the order impeached: Flett v. Way, 14 P. R. 123; and an ex parte order so brought up for reconsideration will not stand or fall upon the sufficiency of the affidavits on which it was made: Cairns v. Airth, 16 P. R. 100.

The motion to rescind or vary may be supported or opposed by matter not before the Judge or officer when the order was made. The motion is not an appeal, but is a substantive motion, and the question is not alone whether the order should have been made, but whether, having been made, it should, in view of any change in the state of affairs or position of the parties, be rescinded: Hawland v. Dominion Bank, 15 P. R. 63; Cairns v. Airth, and Cousins v. Cronk, supra; Allison v. Breen, 19 P. R. 119, 143.

But the right of the party supporting the order to go into further evidence, will not prevent the order from being set aside if it should appear that there was not a fair disclosure of all material facts at the time the order was obtained.

Rules359-361.

Orders made from time to time ex parte, renewing a writ of summons (thus preventing the application of the Statute of Limitations) were rescinded, where the plaintiff knew, but did not disclose, that he knew where the defendant could be served: Hair v. Cameron, 18 P. R. 484. But an application to rescind an order renewing a writ of summons was refused where it appeared that nothing had been withheld from the officer who made the order, and that he had been satisfied with the efforts shown to have been made to effect service, though it appeared that the defendant had not changed his address, and that it might have been ascertained from a directory: Canadian Bank of Commerce v. Tennant, 3 O. L. R. 524.

Where costs were awarded against a non-appearing defendant by a Divisional Court, under the impression that he was represented on an appeal, a subsequent application by such defendant to vary the order of the Divisional Court, by striking out the order for payment of costs, was entertained and allowed: Cousins v. Cronk, 17 P. R. 348.

Costs of the application may be refused though it is successful: Jackson v. Gardiner, 19 P. R. 137.

When guardian to be notified.

359. Where an infant is concerned, no order dispensing with payment of money into Court is to be made without notice to his guardian ad litem. Con. Rule 528.

All proper parties not served.

360. If on the hearing of a motion or other application, it appears that any person to whom notice has not been given ought to have had notice, the Court or Judge may either dismiss the motion or application, or adjourn the hearing thereof in order that notice may be given, upon such terms as may seem just. Con. Rule 529.

Same as Eng. (1883) R. 701.

Service with writ or before
pearance.

361. The plaintiff may [without leave], serve a notice of motion for an injunction, and may, by leave of the Court or a Judge to be obtained ex parte, serve any [other] notice of motion upon any defendant with the writ, or at any time after service of the writ and before the time limited for appearance of such defendant; [and any notice of motion may be served on the plaintiff by any other party at any time after service of the writ upon such other party]. Con. Rules 533 and 1134 and Rules 23 June, 1894, 1368.

Eng. (1883) R. 704. has not the words in brackets.

The last clause in brackets is from former Con. Rule 1134 (similar to Eng. (1883) R. 662), which, however, provided that notice of motion by a defendant may be served at any time after appearance by the defendant.

The above Rule 361 makes a distinction between notices of motion for an injunction, and other notices of motion, authorizing the former to be served before appearance, without leave, but requiring leave for such service in the case of other notices of motion. The Rule 362. English Rule requires previous leave, in all cases in which notice is served before the time limited for appearance, but the corresponding Irish Rule was held in French v. Colles, 17 L. R. Ir. 238. not to apply to injunction motions.

Where an affidavit was sworn before the issue of the writ, an injunction was granted ex parte on the undertaking of counsel to have the affidavit re-sworn and filed: Green v. Prior, W. N. 1886, 50.

Under the Eng. (1883) R. 704, it was intimated that leave to serve notice of motion with the writ could not be given where the defendant was out of the jurisdiction until an appearance had been entered: Manitoba & N. W. Land Co. Corporation v. Allan, 1893, 3 Ch. 432; sed quare in Ont., and see Hersey v. Young, W. N. 1894, 18. where leave was given, without prejudice to what might arise thereafter.

Where leave is given, that fact should be stated in the notice of motion: Dawson v. Beeson, 22 Ch. D. 504; and see notes to Rule 210. An objection that leave to serve short notice should not have been given cannot be successfully urged as a preliminary objection: Mander v. Falcke, 1891, 3 Ch. 408; 65 L. T. 454.

362. A notice of motion to set aside a proceeding for irregularity must specify clearly the irregularity complained of and the several objections intended to be insisted on. Con. Rule 534.

Taken from Chy. O. 277. and Rules T. T. 1856, 107.

This Rule is to the same effect as Eng. (1883) R. 1039. and is in accordance with the former Chy. Practice: see Poole v. Poole, 2 Chy. Ch. 379; Donnelly v. Jones, 4 Chy. Ch. 48; O'Reilly v. Moore, 1 C. L. T. 565.

It may be sufficient if the notice refers to grounds of irregularity appearing in the affidavits. Where an irregularity complained of was not thus specified, the motion was dismissed, though the irregularity was proved: Dominion S. & I. Co. v. Kilroy, 12 P. R. 19; see also Blain v. Blain, 9 P. R. 269; and Petty v. Daniel, 34 Ch. D. 172; Wright v. Wright, 13 P. R. 268; and Vansickle v. Boyd, 14 P. R. 469. in the note to Rule 516, where an irregularity in an affidavit was held to be waived, objection not having been taken as required by this Rule.

A party moving against an irregularity must himself be regular, and is not entitled to any indulgence: Scott v. Burnham, 3 Chy. Ch. 399; Waterous v. Farran, 6 P. R. 31; Poole v. Poole, 2 Chy. Ch. 379; Donnelly v. Jones, 4 Chy. Ch. 48; he must move promptly: Müller v. Müller, 9 C. L. J. 132; and before taking a fresh step in the action: Manning v. Birely, 2 C. L. J. 331; Larkin v. Armstrong, 1 Chy. Ch. 31; Mulkern v. Doerks, 51 L. T. 429; Fry v. Moore, 23 Q. B. D. 395; or making any demand respecting the alleged irregular proceedings which would put the opposite party to expense: Carpenter v. Hamilton, 2 Chy. Ch. 282; Bennett v. O'Meara, 2 Chy. Ch. 167; Re Farlinger and Morrisburg, 9 C. L. T. 109; or he may be held to have waived the irregularity: but see Hunt v. Worsfield, 1896, 2 Ch. 224; 74 L. T. 456. where North, J., refused to follow Mulkern v. Doerks.

Rules

363-366. Proceedings that are merely irregular are valid until set aside, but a nullity has no effect whatever: Fuller v. McLean, 8 P. R. 549. See also notes to Rule 310.

An amendment of the notice of motion for the purpose of setting up an irregularity, will not be allowed after the time for remedying the irregularity has elapsed: see Dunlop v. Actien-Gesellschaft, &c., 1902, 1 K. B. 342.

Motion against award.

363. Every notice of motion by way of appeal from or to set aside an award shall specify the grounds intended to be insisted on. Con. Rule 535.

See Rule of T. T. 1856, 535.

Setting
down
motions.

364. Motions and other matters to be heard in Court, except ex parte applications, shall be set down for argument in the Registrar's office, on principe, at latest on the day before the day of argument, unless the Court otherwise orders. A list of the cases so set down shall be posted up in a convenient place not later than the day before the day for which the same are so set down, and a copy shall be furnished to the Registrar or other officer who is to attend the sittings of the Court. Con. Rule 537, 541. Rules 23 June, 1894, 1338. Rules of 1 Jan., 1896, 1455.

Special case,
down.

365. A special case shall be set down to be heard, and notice thereof given to the opposite party six clear days before the day on which it is to be heard; and a copy of the special case shall be left, at the time of the setting down, for the use of the Judge. Rules 23 June, 1894, 1341; Rules of 1 Jan., 1896, 1456.

See Eng. (1883) R. 391.

(ii) Applications at Chambers.

The matters which may be disposed of in Chambers are too numerous to specify in detail. Some of them are enumerated in the notes to Rule 366. Those applications which may be entertained by the Master in Chambers, and Local Judges and Masters, are specified in Rules 42, 45, and 49.

A Judge has jurisdiction to make any order which can be made in Chambers, when sitting in his private room: Hartmont v. Foster, 8 Q. B. D. 82.

Business to be transacted in Chambers.

366. The following applications shall be disposed of in Chambers:

1. For the sale of the estates of infants, under chapter 137 the Revised Statutes of Ontario, 1887.

Now chapter 168.

2. As to the guardianship, maintenance, and advancement Rule 366 of infants;
3. For the administration of estates upon motion, without action;
4. Relating to the conduct of actions or matters;
5. As to matters connected with the management of property;
6. For the payment into Court of moneys by a party desiring to make such payment;
7. To vacate certificates of lis pendens under 53 Victoria, c. 33.

Now R. S. O. c. 51, ss. 97-100.

8. Such other matters as the Court thinks may be more conveniently disposed of in Chambers than in Court. Con. Rule 542.

Additional Cases to which Jurisdiction in Chambers extends:—The jurisdiction in Chambers extends to other matters, in addition to the business enumerated in Rule 366, e.g.:—

1. Summary applications to set aside fraudulent conveyances by execution debtors: Rule 1015; or for sale of equitable interests of execution debtors in lands: Rule 1016. Applications of this kind could formerly only be made to a Judge: Queen v. Smith, 7 P. R. 429; but now the Master in Chambers, Local Judges, and Local Masters, appear to have jurisdiction. Formerly, in such cases the application was made for an order nisi: Wark v. Moulton, 7 P. R. 144, but now the proper mode of procedure is to serve a notice of motion: Rules 356, 348. Substituted service of the notice on an absconding execution debtor may be allowed: Dobson v. Marshall, 9 P. R. 1. The debtor may be ordered to pay the costs of an application for sale: Watts v. Hobson, 7 P. R. 334.
2. Motions for judgment in ordinary mortgage actions, for sale, or foreclosure, or for redemption, where infants are concerned; see Rule 595. The Master in Chambers, Official Referees when sitting for him, and Local Judges, and in the cases mentioned in Rule 49 the Local Masters, have jurisdiction to entertain such applications.
3. Motions for judgment by adult parties, in partition proceedings, under Rules 956, 957; motions of this kind cannot be entertained by the Master in Chambers: Re Arnott, Chatterton v. Chatterton, 8 P. R. 39; but are in certain cases within the jurisdiction of the Local Masters, but not of the County Court Judges (except under Rule 47), unless they be also Local Masters: see Rule 47, which in effect limits the jurisdiction of the County Court Judges, who are not Masters, to that exercised by the Master in Chambers.

4. Motions for judgment on summary applications for administration, may also be made in certain cases, if unopposed, to Local Masters, under Rule 947, and also to the Master in Chambers, and Rule 366. County Judges who are not Local Masters: Rules 42, 45, 141, but if opposed, their jurisdiction is excluded under Rules 42 and 147 (2).

As to procedure on motions for administration, see Rule 144, et seq., and notes.

For judgment under Rule 603.

5. Motions for judgment after appearance to a specially endorsed writ, under Rule 603; and motions for judgment under Rule 616, see notes to those Rules.

To convey free from dower.

6. Applications to enable the owner of land to convey free from the dower of his wife, under R. S. O. c. 104, ss. 9, 10, and 11; Re Eagles, 7 P. R. 241; Re Campbell, 25 Gr. 187, 480; but it seems probable that applications of this kind can only be entertained by a Judge as a persona designata.

To appoint or dispense with appointment of representative of estate.

7. Applications to appoint, or to dispense with the appointment of, a person to represent the estate of a deceased person under Rule 194; but not to appoint an administrator ad litem under Rule 195. The Master in Chambers, Official Referee sitting for him, and County Court Judges, and Local Masters when acting under Rule 49, have jurisdiction to entertain such applications under Rule 194; Colless v. Sicayic, 8 P. R. 42.

Habeas corpus.

8. Applications for writs of habeas corpus in a civil or criminal proceeding may be made to a Judge in Chambers: 29-30 V. c. 45; R. S. O. 1897, c. 83; Re Paton, 4 Gr. 147. As to whether a Judge can in Chambers rescind his own order for a writ of habeas corpus, or quash the writ itself on the ground that it issued improvidently, see Re Ross, 3 P. R. 301. The Master in Chambers, and Local Masters, cannot entertain applications of this kind: Rules 42, 49; nor Local Judges, unless Rule 47 applies: see Rules 45, 47.

A person confined or restrained of his liberty is limited to one writ of habeas corpus to be granted by any Judge of the High Court returnable before himself or another Judge in Chambers, or before a Divisional Court, with a right of appeal to the Court of Appeal from the judgment given on the return of the writ. The judgment of the Court of Appeal is final, and, where no such appeal is taken, the order which might have been appealed against becomes final, and no other writ of habeas corpus can issue in the matter; and such order is a good answer to an action in which the same question is raised: Taylor v. Scott, 30 Ont. 475. This was a civil proceeding, but the decision would seem also to be applicable where a habeas corpus is required in a criminal matter, because in Ontario an appeal lies to the Court of Appeal from a refusal to release: see 29-30 V. c. 45, s. 6; R. S. O. 1897, c. 83, and Cox v. Hakes, 15 App. Cas. 596.

For declaration of lunacy.

9. Applications to declare a person a lunatic under R. S. O. c. 65, s. 8; Re Paton, 1 Chy. Ch. 192; Re Fleming, 13 C. L. J. 197; Re Kelly, 6 P. R. 220, or for a commission de lunatico: Re Stuart, 4 Gr. 44.

Applications of this kind can only be made before a Judge: see Rule 42 (5); but where an order has been made declaring the lunacy, the Master in Chambers has jurisdiction to entertain applications respecting the property of the lunatic, under R. S. O. c. 65, s. 11, et seq.

The supposed lunatic is entitled to notice of the application: Re Miller, 1 Chy. Ch. 215, unless the Court, on proper evidence of its being dangerous, or useless, to serve him, dispenses with service: Re Newman, 2 Chy. Ch. 390; Re Mein, Ib., 420.

The custody of the lunatic need not be interfered with, unless it is Rule 366. shown that, in the interest of the lunatic, it should be: Re Clark, 14 P. R. 370. Where the custody of the lunatic was the only object of a motion for a declaration of lunacy, and it was not thought proper to alter the existing custody, a declaration was refused, though there was no doubt about the lunacy: Ib.

A husband of a married woman lunatic has no absolute right to be appointed the committee of her person either solely or jointly: Re Duen, 1892, 3 Ch. 38.

The rights of creditors against the property of a lunatic will not be interfered with by the Court until an order has been made shewing that the Court has taken control of the lunatic's estate: Re Clarke, 1898, 1 Ch. 336; Re Brown, Llewellyn v. Brown, 1900, 1 Ch. 480. After the estate has so become subject to the control of the Court, it cannot be seized under an execution; but the execution creditor is entitled upon application to be paid out of it, subject to the maintenance of the lunatic, but not of the lunatic's wife: Re Winkle, 1894, 2 Ch. 519. The maintenance of the lunatic is a first claim both on the capital and income of his estate under the control of the Court: Re Plenderleith, 1893, 3 Ch. 332; but, subject to this, the Court will not restrain a creditor from exercising his legal rights: Dilischheim v. London & Westminster Bank, 1900, 2 Ch. 15.

Applications in Chambers to whom to be made:—

Applications proper to be made in Chambers, but which are excluded from the jurisdiction of the Master in Chambers, Official Referees, Local Masters, and County Court Judges, acting under Rule 45, may be made before a Judge of the High Court in Chambers, and under Rule 47 to a County Court Judge. A Judge sits in Chambers on Tuesday and Friday, at Toronto, in each week (except in vacation, when special arrangements are made). See Rule 99.

When Master in Chambers has no jurisdiction, matters may be brought before a Judge.

Applications which can be made in Chambers should be made there, and not in Court: Moffatt v. Roddle, 4 Gr. 44; Anon., Ib., 61; or the costs may be refused: Moracy v. Courtney, 10 Gr. 72; or allowed only as of a motion in Chambers: King v. Connor, 10 Gr. 364.

As to the adjournment of motions from Chambers to Court, and vice versa, see Rule 367.

The Master in Chambers, County Court Judges, or Local Masters, may refer matters proper for the decision of a Judge of the High Court to a Judge of the High Court: see Rules 44 and 45 (2).

Matters coming before any officer of the Court having jurisdiction in Chambers, should not be referred to a Judge because the parties desire it, but only when the officer can certify that it is a proper case to be heard before a Judge; and matters improperly referred to a Judge will not be entertained: Hughes v. Rees, 9 P. R. 86.

Matters not to be unnecessarily brought before a Judge.

Sale of Infants' Estates.—As to the mode of proceeding for sale of infants' estates, see R. S. O. c. 168, ss. 3, 4, and Rule 962, et seq., and notes.

Guardianship, and Maintenance, etc., of Infants.—As to the mode of proceeding for appointment of guardians, see Rule 964.

Guardianship of infants.

Opposed applications respecting the guardianship of the person, or property, of infants, are excluded from the jurisdiction of the Master

Rule 367. In Chambers: see Rule 42 (10), and also from that of the Local Judges: Rule 45; and Local Masters: Rule 49. The authority of the High Court is not excluded by R. S. O. c. 108, ss. 11-33; Re Standard, 1 Chy. Ch. 15.

Applications respecting the custody of infants under R. S. O. c. 108, s. 1, may be made to a Judge in Chambers: see Re Deen, 3 Chy. Ch. 277; Re Keith, 7 P. R. 138; Re Eves, 15 Gr. 580; Re Murdoch, 9 P. R. 132; Re Smith, 8 P. R. 23; Re Scott, Ib., 58; Re Ferguson, Ib., 550; but not to the Master in Chambers: see Rule 42 (11); nor (subject to Rule 47) to the Local Judges: Rule 45, nor to the Local Masters: Rule 49.

Winding-up order. Winding-up Order.—An order for winding-up a company upon a petition under the Winding-up Act (R. S. C. c. 120), may be made by a Judge in Chambers. The Toronto Brass Company, 18 P. R. 248.

Injunctions, and Receivers.—See notes to Jud. Act, sec. 58 (9).

Appeals. Appeals from the Master in Chambers, Local Masters, County Court Judges, or Official Referees, when exercising the jurisdiction of the Master in Chambers: Rule 767; and also appeals from the taxation of costs: Rule 774, may now be brought before a Judge in Chambers.

Motions to commit. Motions to Commit.—Motions to commit for contempt, by reason of disobedience of an order in Chambers, or a præcipe order, may be made in Chambers, but where the disobedience is of a Court order, the motions should be made in Court: Verral v. Hardy, 4 L. T. 310, following Klein v. Union Fire Ins. Co., 3 C. L. T. 601.

And so also it should be made in Court, where the object is to commit a stranger to the action for contempt in interfering with the due course of justice: Southwick v. Hare, 15 P. R. 331. Such a matter is to be dealt with as a criminal matter, not affected by the practice and procedure under the Con. Rules: Ib.; and see Seward v. Paterson, 1897, 1 Ch. 545; 76 L. T. 215; and notes to the Jud. Act, sec. 58, pp. 95, 96.

Matters may be adjourned from Court to Chambers, and vice versa. 367. The Court may adjourn for consideration in Chambers any motion or matter brought before it [which should have been brought on in Chambers or] which, though properly brought on in Court, may, in the opinion of the Court, be disposed of more conveniently in Chambers; and any motion or matter brought on in Chambers may similarly be adjourned into Court from Chambers by the Judge or officer before whom the same is brought on; and any such adjournment shall be subject to such order as to costs or otherwise as may seem just. Con. Rule 548, amended.

Taken from Chy. O. 203. The words in brackets are new, and extend the original Rule to all motions which are not brought before the proper tribunal. Quære, whether a Judge in Chambers can refer matters properly before him to a Divisional Court: see Hood-Barron v. Cathcart, 72 L. T. 184; and see Jud. Act, s. 65 (2).

368. A Judge sitting in Chambers may exercise the ^{Rules} same power and jurisdiction, in respect of the business ^{368 370.} brought before him, as is exercised by the Court; all orders made by a Judge in Chambers shall have the force and effect of orders of the Court; and all or any of the powers, authorities, and jurisdictions, given to a Master by any Act now in force, or by any Rule of Court, may be exercised by a Judge in Chambers. Con. Rules 549 and 547.

For the general powers conferred on Masters by these Rules, see Rules 659-669.

As regards the conducting of sales, settling conveyances, and investigating titles, see Rules 716-742.

As regards the appointment of receivers and committees of lunatics, and passing their accounts, see Rules 759-766; and as regards actions for foreclosure, sale, and redemption, see Rules 744-758.

Accounts are now rarely taken in Chambers, except in infancy matters: a reference to the Master being usually directed.

As regards proceedings to commit for non-production, etc., see Rule 454 and notes.

369. Unless otherwise directed by the Judge presiding in Chambers, ex parte and unopposed motions shall be heard before contested motions and appeals. New.

10. INTERIM ALIMONY.

370. (1) In an alimony action, the defendant may, at any time before the statement of defence is due, give notice in writing that he submits to pay the interim alimony, and costs, as demanded by the plaintiff in the indorsement on the writ: and in that case no order shall be taken out until there has been a default in payment; and in case of default, affidavits being filed verifying the indorsement and notice and the default, an order for payment of the sum demanded shall be issued on procipe. Con. Rule 738.

(2) The defendant may give notice in writing that he submits to pay a less sum as he may deem proper and may name the sum.

(3) When a notice has been so served and the plaintiff accepts the amount therein mentioned as sufficient, the defendant shall pay thereafter the sum so offered as interim alimony, and no order for interim alimony shall be made until there has been default in payment.

Rule 371. (4) Where a notice has been so served, the plaintiff's interim disbursements may be taxed without order.

(5) Where the plaintiff does not accept the amount offered and upon motion for interim alimony it is found that the sum so offered is reasonable, and the defendant pays to the plaintiff the sum so offered, no order for interim alimony shall be made until there has been default in payment. Rules of 1st Jan., 1896, 1477.

When the order is authorized to be issued on præcipe, the officer in whose office the action was commenced may issue it: Rule 37.

See notes to Rule 371.

Interim
alimony.

371. An application for interim alimony shall not be made until the time for delivering the defence has expired. Con. Rule 530.

Interim Alimony.—For form of indorsement, on the writ, of a claim for interim alimony: see Form 9 (k) (H. & L. Forms, No. 64). If the indorsement is omitted, an application for interim alimony may be made, but in such case it will only run from the date of the order; and no costs of the motion will be allowed: Peterson v. Peterson, 6 P. R. 150.

For provisions for fixing the amount so as to avoid a motion, see Rule 370.

The application may be made at any time after the statement of defence has been filed: Gorman v. Gorman, before Prondfoot, V.C., 20th September, 1875; or after the time for delivering it has expired: Peck v. Peck, 9 P. R. 290; unless the defendant has given notice under Rule 370, and has not made default in payment of an amount accepted by the plaintiff as sufficient.

The allowance of alimony pendente lite depends on the marital relationship between the parties existing de facto, and the Court exercises a discretion in granting or withholding alimony pendente lite, which is regulated by the circumstances of each case: Walker v. Walker, 10 P. R. 633; Atwood v. Atwood, 15 P. R. 425; 16 P. R. 50.

Interim
alimony,

It is allowed, when necessary, for the maintenance of the plaintiff: Soules v. Soules, 3 Gr. 113; Thompson v. Thompson, L. R. 1 P. & D. 553, but not as of course: the relative incomes of the husband and wife may be considered and discretion exercised in the whole circumstances of the case, and it may be refused if the plaintiff is shewn not to be in need of support: Bradley v. Bradley, 3 Chy. Ch. 329; Smith v. Smith, 6 P. R. 51; Knapp v. Knapp, 12 P. R. 105; Falvey v. Falvey, 2 O. W. R. 476, 832; and see Allen v. Allen, 1894, P. 134; and Lovell v. Lovell, 5 O. W. R. 401, 640; or if it is not shewn that the defendant has means to comply with an order if made: Pherrill v. Pherrill, 6 O. L. R. 642.

Alimony was refused where it was shewn that plaintiff and defendant had executed a separation deed, and the wife had bound herself not to sue for alimony: Atwood v. Atwood, 15 P. R. 425; and in appeal, 16 P. R. 50, where the Divisional Court of the Ch. Div. was equally divided; but where a similar separation deed was disputed by the plaintiff, interim alimony was ordered, following Henderson v. Henderson, 19 Gr. 464; Lafrance v. Lafrance, 18 P. R. 62.

On an application for interim alimony, cross-examination of the plaintiff on her affidavit in support of the motion was allowed, but limited to the question as to her own means: Cook v. Cook, 23 C. L. J. 95; 12 C. L. T. 73.

Interim alimony is payable from the date of the service of the writ, if there has been no delay in making the application: Howe v. Howe, 3 Chy. Ch. 494; Thompson v. Thompson, 9 P. R. 526; 19 C. L. J. 252; and the claim for interim alimony is indorsed on the writ: Peterson v. Peterson, 6 P. R. 150; in other cases from the date of the order. Where the plaintiff was living in the defendant's house and brought the action for alimony on the ground of alleged desertion, without alleging cruelty, and the husband by his defence and affidavit offered to resume co-habitation, interim alimony was refused: Snider v. Snider, 11 P. R. 140; but where it was proved that the plaintiff, though living in the defendant's homestead, was in need, it was allowed: Lalonde v. Lalonde, 11 P. R. 143.

On a motion for interim alimony, it is sufficient if a de facto marriage he proved: Taylor v. Taylor, 1 Chy. Ch. 234; Foden v. Foden, 1894, P. 307; 71 L. T. 279; its validity cannot be inquired into: Bradley v. Bradley, supra; Nolan v. Nolan, 1 Chy. Ch. 368; Carr v. Carr, 2 Chy. Ch. 71; Walker v. Walker, 10 P. R. 363; no can any question affecting the merits of the action; thus, alleged adultery by plaintiff cannot be raised on such an application: Campbell v. Campbell, 6 P. R. 128; nor the question whether the plaintiff is justified in leaving the defendant: Wilson v. Wilson, Id., 129; Keith v. Keith, 7 P. R. 41; Lovell v. Lovell, 5 O. W. R. 401, 640.

The plaintiff is usually required to undertake to proceed to a trial of the action at the next sittings; but where the defendant neglected to pay the alimony, and the plaintiff was left without means of taking the case to trial, the undertaking was extended: Bowdlaugh v. Bowdlaugh, 6 P. R. 200; and where the cause had been entered for trial, it was ordered to stand over, until a sum sufficient to pay plaintiff's witnesses was paid by defendant: Haffey v. Haffey, 7 P. R. 137.

It would seem that the plaintiff's solicitor has no lien for his costs on moneys paid to him for interim alimony: Cross v. Cross, 43 L. T. 533; and see Re Robinson, 77 L. T. Jour. 237; Lectt v. Lectt, 40 L. T. 788.

Where interim alimony had not been applied for, the Court refused to order the permanent alimony to run from a date prior to the decree: Soules v. Soules, 3 Gr. 113. But where the husband had agreed to a separation, and to pay the plaintiff an allowance, the Court awarded permanent alimony at the rate agreed to be paid by defendant, and directed payment from the date of the writ, though no application had been made for interim alimony: Mallory v. Mallory, before Boyd, C., at Cobourg, 2nd April, 1883; and permanent alimony has been granted from the service of the writ, where no Evidence required on motion for interim alimony.

Plaintiff must undertake to proceed to trial at next sittings.

Where interim alimony not applied for, permanent alimony ordered only from date of service of writ. Exception to rule.

Rule 371. application for interim alimony was made, and judgment was obtained on motion in default of defence (the notice of motion for judgment, stating that it would be so asked): Hagarty v. Hagarty, before Boyd, C., 11th February, 1885.

An order cannot be made in Chambers, even on consent, for payment of permanent alimony, as that is equivalent to a judgment in the action: see Craig v. Craig, 1 Chy. Ch. 41; but probably judgment might now be pronounced in Chambers in such a case under Rule 416.

Motion to set aside order.

Where, after an order for interim alimony, the wife returned to her husband's house, and resided there for some time, but was afterwards compelled to leave, by reason of cruelty, a motion to set aside the order for interim alimony, on the ground of condonation, was refused: Marvell v. Marvell, 1 Chy. Ch. 27.

The payment of interim alimony has been stayed until the plaintiff produced on oath, books and papers which she had taken from her husband, and which deprived him of the means of paying it: Old v. Old, 9 P. R. 552.

Amount to be allowed for interim alimony.

Amount to be Allowed.—There is no fixed rule as to the amount to be allowed for interim alimony. In England, the rule is usually to allow about one-fifth of the annual income of the husband, but it is in the discretion of the Court, and may vary according to the circumstances of the case. But in this Province a percentage on the income is not always the measure for the allowance, and the value of the defendant's labour may also be taken into account: McCulloch v. McCulloch, 10 Gr. 320. The allowance is usually less than would be allowed as permanent alimony, the wife being pendente lite to live in retirement and seclusion: Coote Eccl. Pl. 338; Rees v. Rees, 3 Phill. 389; Hawkes v. Hawkes, 1 Hagg. 526; Good v. Otway, 2 Phill. 108. As to the effect of The Married Women's Property Act, on the right to alimony, see Wilson v. Wilson, 2 Hagg. 204; Milne v. Milne, L. R. 2 P. & M. 202; 23 L. T. 877; Magurn v. Magurn, 10 P. R. 570.

Where the defendant had agreed to pay the plaintiff an allowance for her separate maintenance, and subsequently a suit was brought for alimony, and for specific performance of the agreement, and the plaintiff obtained an order for interim alimony, and subsequently a decree for specific performance, it was held that the plaintiff was bound to credit the sums received as interim alimony, on account of the sums payable under the agreement: Marvell v. Marvell, 7 P. R. 43.

Where a plaintiff in an alimony suit improperly registered a lis pendens the certificate was vacated, and the costs of the motion were ordered to be deducted from the interim alimony: Crandell v. Crandell, 20 C. L. J. 329. See White v. White, 6 P. R. 208, and notes to Rule 137.

Costs de die in diem.

Costs.—In addition to interim alimony, the plaintiff is also entitled to an order for payment de die in diem of the cash disbursements, properly made by her solicitor: Rule 1144.

These disbursements do not include fees to agents for solicitor's services, but fees to counsel, except where the solicitor or his partner is the counsel, may be included: see notes to Rule 1144. But where an order for interim alimony was granted (the defendant not appearing on the motion), for the amount indorsed on the bill, and the defendant subsequently moved to reduce the amount as excessive, a Rule 372. reference was granted, on payment of full costs of the application: Hooper v. Hooper, 3 Chy. Ch. 114.

Where, before trial, an alimony suit is compromised by the parties, the plaintiff returning to co-habitation with the defendant, the solicitor of the plaintiff is not entitled to his costs from the defendant as between solicitor and client, but only to cash disbursements: Ringrove v. Ringrove, 10 P. R. 299, 596, overruling Leonard v. Leonard, 10 P. R. 450; Moore v. Moore, 10 P. R. 284; and see Thompson v. Thompson, 57 L. T. 374; but see Rule 1130; Ferris v. Ferris, 7 Ont. 496; Re Friedburg, 10 P. D. 112.

Registration of Order. — An order for payment of interim alimony and disbursements may be registered: see the Jud. Act, sec. 101, order. 35, supra, p. 30; Miller v. Miller, 8 C. L. T. 120.

11. SPECIAL CASES.

372.—(1) The parties may after the writ of summons has been issued in any action, or in any pending matter not commenced by writ, or in any proceeding incidental to an action, concur in stating the questions of law arising in the action, matter or proceeding in the form of a special case for the opinion of the Court: Parties may concur in stating special case.

(2) The parties to a special case may agree in writing, that, on the judgment of the Court being given in the affirmative or negative of the question or questions of law raised (a), certain specific relief may be awarded, and the Court may award judgment for such relief accordingly, with or without costs as the parties may agree.

(3) Upon the argument of the case the whole contents of the documents referred to therein may be read, and the Court may draw from the facts and documents any inference, whether of fact or law, as at a trial. Con. Rules 554, 558. amended.

Compare Eng. (1883) R. 389.

Clause (2) is not the Eng. Rule. What follows (a) is an amendment of the former Con. Rule 554, which there had language, from which it seemed that only an award of the payment of money was contemplated by the Rule. The amendment provides that any specific relief contemplated by the special case may be awarded.

The Rule provides not only for the stating of a special case in an action commenced by writ of summons, but also in any pending matter not commenced by writ, or in any proceeding incidental to an action.—Where the case is stated in a proceeding not commenced by writ, R. S. O. c. 324, s. 16, protects persons acting under any judgment made on the special case, in like manner as if the judgment

Rule 372. had been pronounced in an action commenced by writ. A special case, on its being filed, may be registered as a lis pendens, whether stated in an action commenced by writ or not: Ibid., s. 17.

The Rule does not appear to contemplate that proceedings may be commenced by filing a special case; but that the stating of a special case shall be ancillary to an action, or some other proceeding already commenced.

By consent it would seem that a special case may be brought on for the opinion of a Divisional Court: see Rule 117.

Stating Case.—The case is to be stated concisely and in numbered paragraphs: Rule 318; Bulkeley v. Hope, 8 D. M. & G. 36; and must be signed by the parties or their solicitors, and filed by the plaintiff: Rule 374.

As to stating special cases where infants, or other persons not ad jura, are interested, see Jud. Act, s. 37, and notes, supra, p. 32, and Rule 375.

The Rules authorize the stating of a special case before statement of claim: Metropolitan Board of Works v. New River Co., 1 Q. B. D. 727; 2 Q. B. D. 67.

Where pleadings are delivered and are admitted to state the facts, the case may come on as a motion for judgment under Rules 600 and 615; see Till v. Till, 15 Ont. 133.

A special case must be upon a real state of facts, not a hypothetical one: Republic of Bolivia v. Bolivian Navigation Co., 24 W. R. 361; Bright v. Tisdall, 4 Ch. D. 189; Pryse v. Pryse, 1 L. R. 15 (K. 86); Swilk v. Gibson, 25 L. T. 559; 20 W. R. 88; Savage v. Tynes, 20 W. R. 817; Bardwell v. Sheffield Water Works Co., L. R. 11 (K. 517); and where stated in an action, only such questions of law can properly be raised as must necessarily arise in the action; Republic of Bolivia v. National Bolivian Navigation Co., 24 W. R. 361. The Court should not be asked, upon a case stated without pleadings, to answer questions which could not be raised upon proper pleadings: Taylor v. Campbell, Postmaster-General, 33 U. C. Q. B. 264. The Court will not entertain a case in an action in which the Court has no jurisdiction: Attorney-General v. Cameron, 26 Ont. App. 103.

Examples.

The following are examples of special cases under The Judicature Act:—Lysaght v. Edwards, 2 Ch. D. 499 (a question arising in an action for specific performance); Gen. Finiace Co. v. Liberator, B. N., 10 Ch. D. 15 (a question of title, in an action for recovery of land); Wilson v. Dundas, W. N. 1875, 232 (a question as to the liability of a garnishee); Marshall v. Aiglewood, W. N. 1881, 3 (a question as to the construction of the power of appointment in a will); Ashburg v. Watson, 51 L. T. 766 (a question under the Companies Act); Rosker v. Rosker, 26 Ch. D. 801; 51 L. T. 785 (a question as to the validity of a condition annexed to a devise in fact).

A defence in the nature of a demurrer may be set up to a special case: Johnston v. Consumers' Gas Co., 23 Ont. App. 566.

Amending special case.

Except by consent, a special case, after having been finally agreed to, cannot be reopened: Hamilton v. Staley, 28 Sol. Jour. 478, and see Johnston v. Consumers' Gas Co., 23 Ont. App. 566. Affidavits cannot be received to alter or modify a special case stated by consent. The only relief open to the party complaining that a case has been mis-stated, is to apply to amend or vacate it, and quære whether it can be amended after judgment except by consent: Coastal v. City of London F. Ins. Co., 15 Ont. 229; Johnston v. Consumers' Gas Co., 17 P. R. 297.

semble, in case of error, the Court may at the hearing order a Rule 372 special case to be amended: The Immacolata Concezione, 9 P. D. 37; and a special case was amended by leave, at the hearing, by adding a party in existence before the case was filed, but accidentally omitted, and the case, as amended, was ordered to be set down against the added defendant: Barnaby v. Tassell, L. R. 11 Eq. 363. Where new parties come into existence after a special case is set down they should be made parties to the proceeding: Palmer v. Flower, 18 W. R. 887; Atty. v. Etough, L. R. 13 Eq. 462; Savage v. Snell, L. R. 11 Eq. 264. See Peter v. Peter, W. N. 1884, 45, 60; 32 W. R. 409, and 515, in note to Rule 396.

Amendment after judgment on a special case was refused in Re Taylor, Tomlin v. Underhay, 22 Ch. D. 495; Johnston v. Consumers' Gas Co., 17 P. R. 297. But where a special case is stated in an action, and a decision given upon it, under a mistake of fact, the Court is not bound by the decision, unless it has been adopted by subsequent orders, but may disregard it and direct the action to go on to trial: Re Taylor, supra, and East v. O'Connor, 19 P. R. 301.

Setting Down and Notice.—The case must be set down, and notice given 6 clear days before the day for argument: Rule 365.

A copy for the use of the Judge is to be left with the officer who sets it down: Rule 365. Where the case is to be heard before a Divisional Court, a copy for each Judge will be necessary.

As to leave necessary to set the case down, in the case of persons under disability, see Rule 375.

Upon the argument of a special case stated in replevin, the plaintiff has the right to begin: Figar v. Dudman, 24 L. T. 734.

Judgment.—The Court is not bound to answer every question the parties may think fit to put: Viscount Barrington v. Liddell, 2 DeG. M. & G. 480, 506; Seton 34. It will not in general declare future rights: Savage v. Thers, 20 W. R. 817; Lady Langdale v. Briggs, 8 DeG. M. & G. 426, 427, 428; Earl of Tyrone v. Waterford, 6 Jur. N. S. 587; Greenwood v. Sutherland, 10 Ha. App. 12; Gurlick v. Larron, Id., 15; but has occasionally done so: Bogg v. Midland, L. R. 4 Eq. 310; Byam v. Byam, 19 Beav. 58; nor will the Court make any order where the facts stated do not enable it to determine the rights of the parties: Bulkeley v. Hope, 8 DeG. M. & G. 36.

In a special case stated in an action only such questions will be answered as must necessarily arise in the action: Toronto v. Toronto Ry. Co., 9 O. L. R. 333.

A very special order having, by consent, been made for the purpose of obtaining the judgment of the Court under Eng. R. 1875, Q. 40, r. 8 (corresponding to Rule 614), the Master of the Rolls discharged the order, as the effect of it would be to make the Judge an arbitrator between the parties, who would thus, contrary to their intention, be deprived of the right of appeal: Republic of Bolivia v. National Bolivian Navigation Co., W. N. 1876, 77; 24 W. R. 361.

Where the answers to the special case dispose of the action, the proper course is, to take the decision as a judgment making declarations to the same effect; and the answers ought to be followed by the words: "and the Court doth declare accordingly." In such a Rule 373. case the Registrar was directed to draw up the judgment as answering the special case, on motion for judgment: Harrison v. Cornwall Minerals Railway Co., 16 Ch. D. 60.

Appeal.—An appeal lies from the judgment on a special case: Re Taylor's Estate, 22 Ch. D. 495; see Allan v. Dickinson, 9 Q. B. D. 632, and Jud. Act, s. 76.

Where a special case is calculated to raise for decision questions of fact only, the proceedings are extra cursum curiæ; the judgment is in the nature of an arbitrator's award, and an appeal cannot be entertained, if objected to, (except, perhaps, where it could be had from the award of an arbitrator): Burgess v. Morton, 1861, A. C. 136; 73 L. T. 713.

Preliminary question of law.

373. If it appears from the pleadings or otherwise, that there is in an action or matter a question of law which it would be convenient to have decided before any evidence is given or any question or issue of fact is tried, or before any reference is directed, the Court or a Judge of the High Court may make an order accordingly (a); and may, if necessary, direct the mode in which such question shall be raised; and may stay such further proceedings as the decision of such question of law may render unnecessary. Con. Rule 555.

After (a) the language is different from that of former Con. Rule 555, which read, "may direct such question of law to be raised either by a special case or in such other manner as the Court or Judge may deem expedient." The new Rule seems to be wider than the former one. It leaves the mode of raising the question quite at large, and in the discretion of the Court or Judge. A special case is one mode which may be directed.

Rule 372 enables the parties to state a case by consent; the present Rule enables a Judge to require a question of law to be stated by special case or otherwise, without reference to consent, and to direct that question to be decided before the issues of fact are decided: Metropolitan Board v. New River Co., 1 Q. B. D. 727; affirmed 2 Q. B. D. 67.

Rule 531 enables a Judge to direct the trial of one or more questions of fact before others, and by analogy to that Rule the Court will, at the trial of an action involving questions both of law and of fact, decide the question of law first, if it appears that the decision of such question may render it unnecessary to try the question of fact: Poolen v. Driver, 5 Ch. D. 460.

This Rule is not limited to cases in which the point of law is raised by the pleadings. The Court may look at the circumstances whether brought to its knowledge by pleadings, affidavit, or otherwise: Metropolitan Board v. New River Co., 1 Q. B. D. 727; affirmed 2 Q. B. D. 67. Hence, an order may be made after writ, and before statement of claim: Ib. The Court of Appeal will not interfere with the discretion of the Court below in such a matter, except in a very strong case: Ib.

After appearance the plaintiffs, on an affidavit (uncontradicted by Rules the defendant), that the sole question between the parties was, 374, 375. whether the defendants were bound to supply water by meter for road use, obtained an order under the above Rule, and it was held that the order was rightly made. The writ of summons was indorsed, "the plaintiffs claim damages from the defendants for refusing to supply them with water by meter, under sec. 4A of the New River Act, 1852": Id.

The Court directed a special case to be set down for hearing on the application of an executrix, the first tenant for life and the trustees being defendants, the persons interested in remainder, who were absent in New Zealand, being omitted as parties: Bagley v. Miles, 21 L. T. 784.

See also cases referred to under Rule 531.

Where defendants contended that, assuming questions of fact to be found against them, they were as a matter of law liable for a small sum, which they would pay into Court rather than go to the expense of evidence, an order was made under this Rule for determination of the questions of law first: Tattersall v. National Steamship Co., W. N. 1884, 32.

On the other hand in Scott v. Mercantile Accident Insurance Co., 8 Times, 431, an order for trial of a point of law first was refused, where issues of fact might be found at the trial which would render the question of law immaterial: see also Grosvenor v. White, 38 W. R. 201.

In Preston v. Fulwood, 2 Times, 60, a question of law, which could not clearly be separated from the other questions in the action, was directed to be tried first at the trial upon admissions or evidence.

374. A special case shall be signed by the parties or their solicitors, and shall be filed by the plaintiff. Con. Rule 556. ^{Preparing case.}

Signature by counsel is not necessary: Hare v. Hare, W. N. 1876, 44.

375. (1) A special case to which a married woman is a party otherwise than in respect of her separate property, or of any separate right of action by or against her, or to which an infant, or person of unsound mind not so found by inquisition or judicial declaration, is a party, shall not be set down for argument without leave of a Judge of the High Court, the application for which must be supported by sufficient evidence that the statements contained in such special case, so far as the same affect the interest of such married woman, infant, or person of unsound mind, are true. Con. Rule 557. ^{Persons under disability.}

(2) Where such leave has been given, the order, or an office copy thereof, shall be produced when the special case is set down. Rules 23 June, 1894, 1341.

Substantially the same as the Eng. (1883) Rs. 392, 393.

Rules

The statement of counsel that the statements were true was considered sufficient evidence, in Ehces v. Ehces, 20 W. R. 480.

See also sec. 37 of the Act and notes thereto.

12. ISSUES.

Settlement of issues.

376. Where it appears to a Judge of the High Court that the pleadings do not sufficiently define the issues of fact, he may direct the parties to prepare issues, and such issues shall, if the parties differ, be settled by the Judge. Con. Rule 420.

To the same effect as Eng. (1883) R. 380.

Issues were directed to be framed under this Rule for trying preliminary questions, under Rule 472, in Wood v. Anglo-Italian Banking Co., Limited, 34 L. T. 255.

be filed.

377. Where an issue is directed to be tried it shall, as soon as settled, be filed with the proper officer of the county in which it is directed to be tried, and thereafter, unless otherwise ordered, the proceedings in the issue shall be carried on in the same manner as the proceedings in an action commenced in such county. Con. Rule 280. Rule of 1 Jan., 1896, 1442.

The "proper officer" will be the officer who issues writs for the commencement of actions in the county, if there is only one such officer (see Rule 122), but if there are two such officers (see Rule 122), the proper officer would seem to be that one of them with whom the affidavit or document commencing the proceedings was filed (see Rule 14), if it was filed in that county, otherwise that one of them who is to attend at the trial under Rule 38 (2). In Toronto the proper place for filing the issue will be the Central Office: see also Rules 14 and 15.

The officer to issue a præcipe order for production under Rule 134, and to enter the judgment under Rule 655, will be the "proper officer," as defined by the present Rule 377.

13. MORTGAGE ACTIONS.

When demand of payment or notice of intention to exercise power of sale given, other proceedings not to be taken

By R. S. O. c. 121, s. 31, it is provided that where, pursuant to any condition or proviso in a mortgage, a demand or notice has been given requiring payment or declaring an intention to proceed to exercise the power of sale contained in the mortgage, no further proceeding shall be taken, and no action shall be brought to enforce the mortgage until after the lapse of the time at or after which, according to the demand or notice, payment is to be made, or the power of sale is to be exercised or proceeded under, except by leave of a Judge of the High Court or a Judge of a County Court.

Where after an action to enforce payment under the covenant in a mortgage had been commenced, the plaintiff served notice of intention to exercise the power of sale unless payment of the mortgage moneys was made within 30 days, this notice, though subsequently abandoned by notice to that effect, was held to have the effect of giving the defendant 30 days during which no further proceedings Rule 378.

 in the action could be taken without leave: Lyon v. Roperon, 17 P.
 R. 510.

The publication of an advertisement for sale is a "proceeding" within the above Act: Smith v. Brown, 20 Ont. 105. See also Neil v. Almond, 29 Ont. 63; In re Woodall, 8 O. L. R. 288; and 6 Ed. vii. c. 13, s. 10.

The Act does not apply where the power of sale is exercisable without any notice: Canada Permanent v. Tector, 19 Ont. 156.

A mortgagee who has given the mortgagor notice to pay off the principal money and interest, is not at liberty to withdraw it without the consent of the mortgagor. Santley v. Wilde, 47 W. R. 297.

Where a mortgagee, on default of payment of an instalment of interest, brings a foreclosure action and claims payment of the amount secured by the mortgage, any party to the action, by the original writ, or added in the Master's office, or by subsequent order, is entitled to hold the plaintiff to his election and to pay his claim; but this right must be taken advantage of in the foreclosure action, and does not entitle to the benefit of a person, not a party to the action, who ignores the foreclosure proceedings, and brings a redemption action after making an independent tender to the mortgagee: Gibson v. Nelson, 2 O. L. R. 500.

After a foreclosure action has been commenced it is improper for the plaintiff to bring a second action for a subsequently accruing instalment of principal or interest so long as the first action is pending: see Poulett v. Hill, 68 L. T. 476; 1893, 1 Ch. 277.

378. A mortgagee may claim foreclosure of the equity of redemption or a sale of the mortgaged premises, and in either case the payment of the mortgage debt by any party personally liable therefor. New. (See Con. Rule 347).

Mortgagee may have sale or foreclosure and also personal remedy.

See Chy. O. 426.

The relief mentioned in Rule 378, may be claimed by indorsement under the writ. A mortgagee, however, is only entitled to an order for the payment of any deficiency after a sale, where there is an express or implied contract by the defendant, with the plaintiff, by covenant, or otherwise, to pay the mortgage debt. If there be no such contract the mortgagee is entitled to no personal remedy against the defendant: see Christie v. Docker, 10 U. C. L. J. 161; Turbull v. Symmonds, 6 Gr. 617; Forbes v. Adamson, 1 Cley. Ch. 117; Clarkson v. Scott, 25 Gr. 373; Norris v. Meadows, 28 Gr. 334; 7 Ont. App. 237; Pierce v. Cawran, Id. 356; Mathers v. Hilliwell, 10 Gr. 175; Aldous v. Hicks, 21 Ont. 95; Frontenac v. Hyslop, Id. 577; Re Errington, 1894, 1 Q. B. 11; Re Jones, 1893, 2 Ch. 461; where, however, the mortgage deed contains no express covenant to pay, the law will imply a contract by the mortgagor to pay: see Sutton v. Sutton, 22 Ch. D. 511; 48 L. T. 97; Barnes v. Glendon, 79 L. T. 94; provided there be evidence that the mortgage was made to secure a debt or loan: Hall v. Morley, 8 U. C. Q. B. 584; Pearman v. Hyland, 22 U. C. Q. B. 202; Jackson v. Yeomans, 19 C. P. 394; 28 U. C. Q. B. 307; 39 U. C. Q. B. 280. The mere acknowledgment of the receipt of the mortgage money, is not sufficient to raise any presumption of a loan, or an implied promise of repayment: London Loan Co. v. Smyth, 32 C. P. 530.

Liability, when implied.

Rule 378.

A covenant for payment is implied by persons who convey, and are expressed to convey, as beneficial owners in a conveyance by way of mortgage: R. S. O. c. 121, s. 5.

A mortgagor may by his covenant restrict his liability as to amount, or as to the terms on which it may be enforced: Wilson v. Fleming, 24 Ont. 388.

Order for immediate payment, when made.

Where there is a covenant for the payment of the mortgage debt, judgment may now be obtained, if claimed by the writ, for the full amount due with costs, for which execution may issue at once, without waiting for a sale of the mortgaged property.

A mortgagee should seek all the remedies he is entitled to, in one action, and if after commencing an action for foreclosure, and while it is pending, he brings another action on the covenant, the proceedings in such second action will be stayed: Williams v. Hunt, 187, 1 K. B. 512; 92 L. T. 193.

Where a reference to the Master to inquire as to incumbrances is necessary, and relief is also sought on the covenant, the judge usually refers it to the Master to take the account, and directs payment of the amount which he finds due, forthwith after the making of his report: see H. & L. Forms, No. 865, and North of Scotland v. Beard, 19 C. L. J. 252, though Form 173 in the App. to the Cons. Rules contemplates a computation by the officer entering the judgment, of the amount for which the plaintiff is entitled to a personal order. A judgment in the latter form will only provide for the immediate payment of the costs up to the date of the judgment, and will not entitle the plaintiff to a personal order for payment of the costs of the reference; these will be simply added to the mortgage debt and be payable as part of the price of redemption, although no execution can issue therefor.

Although the claim of a mortgagee against his mortgagor personally may be barred by the Statute of Limitations, the mortgagee may, nevertheless, be entitled to proceed for the foreclosure of the equity of redemption, or for the sale of the mortgaged property: Barrow v. Glendon, 1899, 1 Q. B. 887; 80 L. T. 606 (a mortgage of land); London & Midland Bank v. Mitchell, 1899, 2 Ch. 161; 81 L. T. 263 (a mortgage of chattels).

Covenant of
not enforceable against

The burden of a covenant to pay mortgage money does not run with the mortgaged lands. Though the purchaser of an equity of redemption covenants with the mortgagor to pay the mortgage money, there is no privity of contract between him and the mortgagee, or any implied obligation thereby created which will enable the mortgagee to sue the purchaser: Re Frontenac Loan & Investment Society v. Hyslop, 21 Ont. 577; Canada Landed and Nat. Investment Co. v. Skater, 22 Ont. App. 377; and the mortgagee cannot by way of equitable execution against the mortgagor obtain an order for a receiver to enforce payment by the purchaser upon his covenant with the mortgagor: Palmer v. McKnight, 31 Ont. 306; and where a deceased mortgagor's estate is insolvent, the mortgagee cannot compel his personal representative to seek indemnity from a purchaser of the equity of redemption: Higgins v. Trust Corporation, 30 Ont. 684; neither has the mortgagee any direct remedy against such purchaser on his contract with the mortgagor, in the absence of an assignment of the contract: Palmer v. McKnight, supra; but the legal or equitable obligation of the purchaser to pay off the mortgage may be assigned by the vendor to the mortgagee, who may then sue the purchaser for the mortgage moneys: Campbell v. Morrison, 24 Ont. App. 224.

The relations which exist among mortgagee, mortgagor and assignee, who has agreed to pay the mortgage moneys, are not those which exist among creditor, surety and principal debtor: Forster v. Ivey, 32 Ont. 175. Rule 378.

A mortgagor who has assigned his equity of redemption on the terms that the assignee is to pay off the mortgage cannot, as between himself and the mortgagee, claim to stand in the position of a surety: Abbott v. Hicks, 21 Ont. 95.

So long as the covenant to pay endures, the mortgagor, notwithstanding he has assigned his equity of redemption, is liable to pay when sued by the mortgagee; his equitable right is upon payment to get the land back, and to have unimpaired his remedies against his assignee; and if those rights can be exercised by him at the time he is sued, it is immaterial that, at some previous time, there was such dealing between his assignee and the mortgagee as would then have interfered with such rights: Forster v. Ivey, 32 Ont. 175. The mortgagor is therefore liable on his covenant notwithstanding a previous extension of time granted by the mortgagee to the purchaser, if, when the liability is enforced, the right of the mortgagee to redeem is not affected: Ibid., 2 O. L. R. 480; but a mortgagee, who has notice that the mortgagor is entitled to indemnity from his assignee, cannot deal with the latter to the prejudice of the mortgagor, without discharging him from liability: Mathers v. Hellmell, 10 Gr. 172; Mattiberg v. Taylor, 22 Ont. 312.

Where the action is against the personal representative of a deceased mortgagor, and the plaintiff claims relief on the covenant for payment made by the deceased mortgagor, on default of defence the defendant should only be ordered to pay personally the additional costs occasioned by that claim: Hibbs v. Brown, 15 P. R. 375.

Where there is a surety for the payment of the mortgage debt, in default of payment thereof by the mortgagor, it is always desirable to join the surety as a defendant in any action by the mortgagee to enforce the security (see Rule 180), because, as soon as judgment is recovered against the principal, the right of action on the covenant is merged in the judgment, and subsequent accruing interest may not be otherwise recoverable against the surety: Faber v. Latham, 77 L. T. 168.

A surety against whom a judgment has been recovered, which by agreement is to stand as security for the payment of the deficiency, is entitled to have the security realized before he can be called on to pay anything: Tetter v. St. John, 10 Gr. 85. An assignee of the equity of redemption who covenants with the mortgagee to pay off the mortgage debt, becomes a principal debtor, and if time be given him by the mortgagee, the mortgagor may be discharged: Mathers v. Hellmell, 10 Gr. 172.

Where a mortgagee on assigning a mortgage had covenanted that the mortgagor would pay the mortgage moneys, a release of part of the mortgaged lands, on payment of part of the debt, without the consent of the covenantor, was held to have discharged him, whether the amount paid was the full value of the lands released or not: Farmers' Loan & S. Co. v. Patchett, 6 O. L. R. 255.

A mortgagee is now usually entitled to a sale, or foreclosure, at his option: Harris v. Harrison, 1 Gr. 449. But a subsequent mortgagee cannot, as plaintiff, have a sale against a prior mortgagee without the latter's consent: McDonnell v. Campbell, 6 S. C. R. 502; although entitled to sale or foreclosure.

Rule 378. he may as a defendant, under Rule 382. Where infants are concerned, and the mortgagee claims foreclosure, the judgment usually directs a sale, or foreclosure, as the Master may find most beneficial for the infants.

Mortgagee of chattels, right of, to foreclosure. A mortgagee of chattels: Cook v. Flood, 5 Gr. 463; a municipal corporation: Oxford v. Bailey, 12 Gr. 276; and a chartered bank: Bank of Upper Canada v. Scott, 6 Gr. 451; are each entitled to foreclosure. But a mere pledgee of chattels is said to be only entitled to a sale: Carter v. Hake, 4 Ch. D. 605.

Mortgagee by deposit when not entitled to a sale. A mortgagee of lands by deposit is said not to be entitled to a sale, but only to a foreclosure: Pryce v. Burp, L. R. 10 Eq. 153; James v. James, ib. 154; Backhouse v. Charlton, 8 Ch. D. 414; but where the deposit is accompanied by an agreement to execute a legal mortgage, the mortgagee is entitled to either sale, or foreclosure: York Union Banking Co. v. Artley, 11 Ch. D. 208; although an equitable mortgagee by deposit cannot insist on a sale, yet if a subsequent incumbrancer, or the mortgagor himself, desires a sale, it may be granted as in any other case: Kerr v. Berke, 12 Gr. 204.

Crown cannot be foreclosed. The Crown cannot be foreclosed: the only judgment that can be awarded where the equity of redemption is in the Crown, is one authorizing the mortgagee in default of payment to take possession until the Crown shall think proper to redeem: Recre v. Attorney-General, 2 Atk. 223; Dunn v. Attorney-General, 10 Gr. 482; or until the debt shall be satisfied: Hodge v. Attorney-General, 3 Y. & C. 342; or, if the Crown consent, or do not object, a sale may be ordered: Seton, 4th ed., 1041; Perseott v. Tyder, 1 Jur. 479; 2 Jur. 870; Rogers v. Maule, 1 Y. & C. C. 4; Hancock v. Attorney-General, 12 W. R. 563; Burlett v. Ross, L. R. 12 Eq. 395.

Mortgagee of railway entitled to sale, or foreclosure. A mortgagee of a railway is entitled to enforce payment of his mortgage, by either sale, or foreclosure of the railway as a going concern: Toronto General Trusts Corp. v. Central Ont. Ry., 6 O. L. R. 1; 8 O. L. R. 342; and see 3 Ed. vil. c. 58, s. 210. He is also entitled to have a receiver, or manager, of the undertaking appointed: Galt v. Erie and Niagara Ry. Co., 14 Gr. 439; Peto v. Welland Ry. Co., 9 Gr. 455; Furness v. Catherham Ry. Co., 25 Beav. 614. A vendor of a right of way to a railway company is entitled to enforce a lien for unpaid purchase money, by sale, or possession of the contract: Walker v. Ware H. & B. Ry. Co., L. R. 1 Eq. 195; Metcalf v. London, Chatham & Dover Ry. Co., 12 Jur. N. S. 775; but see The Bishop of Winchester v. Mid-Hants Ry. Co., L. R. 5 Eq. 17; Pell v. Northampton & B. J. Ry. Co., L. R. 2 Chy. 100, where the lien was enforced by the appointment of a receiver. And see notes to Roh 754.

As to foreclosure in a debenture holder's action, see Re Continental Oxygen Co., 1897, 1 Ch. 511; re Wolverhampton, etc., Brewery Co., 1899, W. N. 229; and Wallace v. Evershed, 1899, 1 Ch. 891.

Right to sale, or foreclosure when lost by sale of part of property. The right of a mortgagee to either a sale, or foreclosure, may be lost by his having sold, or parted with, part of the mortgaged property, without the concurrence of a person to whom the equity of redemption in the remainder has been conveyed. But this rule does not apply where the sale has been made under a power contained in the mortgage, or where the mortgage is of chattels which the mortgagee has a right to sell without any express power. But it applies to a sale under a decree in a suit to which the owner of the unsold portion was no party: Gowland v. Garbutt, 13 Gr. 578, and see Crawford v. Anson ib. 579; Unwin v. Hauss, 22 Gr. 279.

Where the mortgaged lands are out of the jurisdiction, although Rule 379, the Court may grant judgment for foreclosure; Paget v. Ede, 1 L. R. 18 Eq. 118; it will not grant a judgment for sale; Steuage v. Radford, 15 Ont. 145; nor for redemption, even in a case where the right to redeem exists according to our law; nor other decree, even though in personam, respecting foreign lands which can have no specific operation without the intervention of a foreign Court; Henderson v. Bank of Hamilton, 23 Ont. 327; 20 Ont. App. 616; 23 S. C. R. 716; Gunn v. Harper, 2 O. L. R. 611; but see Mackay v. The Colonial Investment & L. Co., 38 C. L. J. 723; 4 O. L. R. 574.

In Trey v. Manitoba & N. W. Ry., 31 C. L. J. 321, a judgment for sale of a mortgaged railway, part of which extended beyond the limits of Manitoba, was granted by the Manitoba Court.

Where the writ, or statement of claim, does not claim any personal relief remedy against the defendant, the judgment is erroneous. If it should contain any personal order for payment of the mortgage debt, directed at such a defect was amended after the lapse of four years; not claimed Cockburn v. Hullock, 12 Gr. 138.

Where the judgment directs foreclosure, on default in payment, where a final order may be made in Chambers, directing a sale in lieu of foreclosure, without appealing from the judgment; Lowlett v. Cliff, 2 Sm. & G. 278; Fisk v. Carmyle, D. B. 4, fo. 151; D. B. 5 fo. 211; Thompson v. Badgley, O. B. 25; but usually the sale will not be ordered until after the mortgagor has had the usual time to redeem; Trust and Loan Co. v. Republica, 2 Chy. Ch. 41; where the application is made by a defendant he will be required to deposit $80 to meet the expense of the sale, and this deposit will not be dispensed with, although the security be ample; Thompson v. Macaulay, 3 Chy. Ch. 111. But if the plaintiff prefer it, the defendant may be required to conduct the sale in lieu of making the deposit. Formerly the Court would not, after a decree for sale, direct a foreclosure without rehearing the cause; McClellan v. Jacob, 9 Gr. 50; except where the sale had been attempted, and proved abortive; Goodall v. Burrows, 7 Gr. 440; Odell v. Doty, 1 Chy. Ch. 207; Girdlestone v. Gunn, Id. 212. In such a case, an order for foreclosure is granted in Chambers on motion. The mortgagor was usually allowed three months further time to redeem; Id.; but the time has been held to be subject to the discretion of the Court in view of all the circumstances of the case; Scarlett v. Birney, 15 P. R. 281. In Goodall v. Burrows, supra; and Henry v. Kerr, 10 C. L. T. 60, only one month was allowed, and perhaps that will now always be the time fixed, by analogy to Rule 393.

After a judgment of foreclosure, an order for sale may be obtained by a subsequent incumbrancer, under Rule 382.

A plaintiff who has been declared a trustee with a lien for advances is not entitled to foreclosure after an abortive sale, but may be allowed by the Court to become the purchaser of the land; Hutton v. Justin, 2 O. L. R. 713.

A derivative or sub-mortgagee may foreclose his derivative mortgage without making the original mortgagor or his assigns a party; Silverthorn v. Glazbrook, 30 Ont. 408. (N.B.—The head note of this case is incorrect.)

379. (1) The Court may direct a sale of the property, instead of a foreclosure of the equity of redemption, on such terms as may seem just; and without previously determining sale may be ordered instead of foreclosure.

Rule 380

the priorities of incumbrancers, or giving the usual or any time to redeem. Con. Rule 348.

Taken from Chy. O. 428.

(2) This Rule shall apply although judgment of foreclosure may have been entered. New.

Ordinary time for redemption,
shortened.

Some special ground must be shown in order to deprive the mortgagor of the ordinary six months' time to redeem: Rigby v. Fisher, 4 Gr. 198; Swift v. Minter, 27 Gr. 217; Newman v. Selfe, 33 B. & F. 522; and even where an application for sale was made in a foreclosure suit, by subsequent incumbrancers, after the time allowed them for redemption had expired, it was held that the mortgagor was entitled to an opportunity to redeem, before a final order for sale could be made: Trust and Loan Co. v. Reynolds, 2 Chy. Ch. 41.

Defendants
when entitled to a sale in

Where the writ claims foreclosure, the defendant is entitled to have the judgment drawn up for sale, on paying into Court $80; and where a judgment has been entered for foreclosure, a subsequent incumbrancer may also, on being made a party, at any time before the report is settled, on making a like payment, obtain on procipe an order for sale in lieu of foreclosure: see Rule 382. The $80 is intended as security for the costs of the sale: see Rule 381 and notes.

On the Court being satisfied by evidence that the value of the mortgaged property was not sufficient to pay the amount due to the plaintiff, and that it was for the benefit of infant defendants, an account was dispensed with, and a judgment for immediate foreclosure was granted on the consent of the infant's solicitor: Wolcott, Hampton & Staffordshire Banking Co. v. George, 24 Ch. D. 707.

Judgment
for immediate sale, how awarded.

A judgment for an immediate sale, without appointing any day for redemption, can only be granted on motion for judgment: it cannot be awarded on procipe. The motion may be made in Chambers, where infants are concerned: see Rule 395; Copley v. Collett, 2 Chy. Ch. 431; but in other cases the motion must be to the Court. An immediate sale has been granted on the consent of the mortgagor, and without the consent of the subsequent incumbrancers: Township of Hamilton v. Stephenson, 27 Gr. 198; but Blake, V.C., repeatedly refused to make such a decree without the consent of the subsequent incumbrancers, on the ground that the equity of redemption might be worthless, and the mortgagor might have ready no interest in the mortgaged property.

Where a decree for sale was pronounced in Court, the Referee in Chambers refused to entertain a motion for a final order for sale, before the time for redemption had expired: Buell v. Fisher, 6 P. R. 51.

Plaintiff cannot abandon judgment and exercise power.

Where a judgment for sale, or foreclosure, has been pronounced it is not competent for the mortgagee to abandon the judgment, and proceed to sell under a power of sale in his mortgage: Stevens v. Theatres, 1903, 1 Ch. 877; 88 L. T. 458.

Where sale is asked by the mortgagor or incumbrancer, deposit to be made.

380. Where a request for a sale is made by a subsequent incumbrancer or by the mortgagor, or by any person claiming under them respectively, the party making the request is to deposit in Court the sum of $80 for the purpose of covering expenses unless otherwise ordered by the Court or a Judge. Rule 381.

Con. Rule 349.

Chy. O. 429, from which this Rule is adapted, required the deposit of "a reasonable sum." The usual amount required was $80, but on special application before the sale, it was sometimes increased: London & C. L. & A. Co. v. Morrison, 7 P. R. 450; 15 C. L. J. 57. But an application after the sale had taken place to increase the deposit would not be entertained, even though the sale had failed to realize the amount of the plaintiff's claim: London & C. L. & A. Co. v. Palford, 7 P. R. 432; 15 C. L. J. 55.

By the form of indorsement on the writ in mortgage actions, the amount of the deposit to be made by a defendant served with the writ, in order to secure a sale, is $80: see Form 9 (c), (H. & L. Forms, No. 58). When the sale is applied for by an original defendant to the action, an application to increase the amount of the deposit cannot be entertained, even though the costs of the sale will exceed $80: Cruso v. Close, 8 P. R. 33; and it would seem that the same rule will apply to subsequent incumbrancers obtaining a sale under this Rule; but the plaintiff may notify the defendant desiring the sale, to take the conduct of it: see Rule 383.

The deposit will not be dispensed with, even though the security cannot be ample: Thompson v. Macanlay, 3 Chy. Ch. 111; or the applicant dispensed with: Machell v. Campbell, 5 U. C. L. J. 117; and a defendant cannot claim a sale against the consent of the mortgagee without making the deposit: Taylor v. Walker, 8 Gr. 506; except in the case of infant defendants, who are entitled to a sale, without the usual deposit: Bank of Upper Canada v. Scott, 6 Gr. 471; Laurason v. Fitzgerald, 9 Gr. 371; but see Western Canada Loan & S. Co. v. Dunn, 9 P. R. 587. Where the sale is abortive, the deposit is applicable to the payment of the plaintiff's costs thereof: Correllis v. Patman, L. R. 4 Eq. 156; and where the deposit was paid in by the mortgagor, and the sale realized enough to pay the claim of the plaintiff, but not all the subsequent incumbrances, the mortgagor was held not to be entitled to get back the deposit, but it was directed to be applied in payment of the claim of a subsequent incumbrancer: Gzowski v. Beaty, 8 P. R. 146.

This and the following Rules will not, even where infants are concerned, be extended to an action by a mortgagee for possession merely: Western Can., etc., v. Dunn, 19 C. L. J. 211.

381. Where a defendant by writ in an action for foreclosure desires a sale, but does not otherwise desire to defend the action, he shall, within the time allowed for appearance, file a memorandum, entitled in the action, to the following effect:

"I desire a sale of the mortgaged premises instead of foreclosure."

And he shall attach thereto a certificate of the Accountant to the effect that he has deposited in Court to the credit of the action, the sum of $80 to meet the expenses of the sale.
Rule of 1 Jan., 1896. 1441. amended.

382, 383.

Incumbrancer made a party to a foreclosure suit, in the M. O., may apply for a sale.

382. An incumbrancer made a party in the Master's office, and desiring a sale of the mortgaged premises, shall make the necessary deposit therefor before the Master's report is settled, whereupon an order may be issued on præcipe directing a sale of the mortgaged premises instead of a foreclosure, and thereupon the Master shall compute subsequent interest, and appoint a time and place for payment; and all subsequent proceedings shall be had and taken as if the judgment had been in the first instance for sale. Con. Rule 350.

The powers conferred by Chy. Order 456, from which this Rule is taken, were not extended under the former practice to the Deputy Registrars. The present Rule and Rule 37 together enable the officer out of whose office the writ was issued to issue the præcipe order.

Præcipe for sale, form of.

The præcipe should show on whose behalf the application is made, and should also state that the applicant is an incumbrancer, made a party in the Master's office, who has proved a claim; and that the Master's report has not been settled; and should be accompanied by the certificate of the Accountant of the payment into Court of the requisite deposit of $80.

Application to increase deposit.

An application, after the sale has taken place, to increase the amount of the deposit is too late: London & Canadian Loan & Agency Co. v. Palford, 7 P. R. 432. Such an application should be made before the order for sale has been acted on: London & Canadian Loan & Agency Co. v. Morrison, 7 P. R. 450.

If the plaintiff deems the deposit inadequate he may require the incumbrancer obtaining the order for sale to conduct the sale: see Rule 383.

Deposit, how applied.

Where the sale realizes sufficient to pay the plaintiff's claim, but not the claims of subsequent incumbrancers, the deposit will be ordered to be applied on account of the claims of the latter, according to their priorities: Gzowski v. Beatty, 8 P. R. 146. And where the sale proved abortive, except as to one parcel, which did not realize sufficient to pay the plaintiff's claim, the deposit was applied on account of plaintiff's costs of sale: Corsellis v. Patman, L. R. 4 Eq. 156. Where the sale realizes sufficient to pay the claims prior to the incumbrancer who paid in the deposit to secure a sale, the latter is entitled to obtain an order to refund it.

Although a mortgagee by deposit is not entitled to a sale: see Rule 378, note; yet a subsequent legal mortgagee made a party to the suit by the equitable mortgagee, is entitled to apply for a sale under this Rule: Kerr v. Beebe, 12 Gr. 204.

Plaintiff may require defendant asking sale to conduct it.

383. If before or upon the deposit being made, the plaintiff prefers that the sale be conducted by the defendant desiring the sale, he may so elect; and he shall thereupon notify the defendant of such election. The notice may be according to Form No. 76. Con. Rule 351.

Plaintiff may have reserved bid fixed.

Where the defendant claims a sale contrary to the wish of the plaintiff, the latter may protect himself against the mortgaged property being sold for less than his claim by getting a reserved bid fixed, and in the event of the sale proving abortive, he may obtain Rules a final order for foreclosure: see note to Rule 378. 384, 385.

As to when the plaintiff may apply to increase the deposit, see note to Rule 380.

384. Upon the plaintiff's filing in the office in which the proceedings were commenced a note of such election, and proof of service of such notice, the defendant making the deposit shall be entitled to a return thereof. Con. Rule 352.

Taken from Chy. O. 431.

Before the money can be obtained proof will have to be given to the Accountant of the due filing of the notice of election. The production of an office copy, with a certificate of its being filed, would seem to be the proper proof.

385. In default of payment according to the report in a foreclosure or redemption action, a final order of foreclosure may be granted against the party making default on an ex parte application. Con. Rule 353.

Taken from Chy. O. 451.

Judgments in mortgage actions in the usual form, are to be read as if this Rule was incorporated therein: see Rule 619. By the terms of this Rule it is confined to foreclosure and redemption actions, but it was always the practice under the Chy. Order 451, which was in similar terms, where the judgment was for sale in default of redemption, in like manner to obtain a final order for sale; and see Rules 387, and 754.

A final order is, generally speaking, necessary in all cases where a judgment directs anything to be done, upon the default of a party in doing a given act by a future day: the final order being the judicial determination that the default has in fact taken place.

Application for Final Order.—The application may be made to the Master in Chambers, or to any local officer having like jurisdiction. Application for, how made.

In order to obtain a final order for default of redemption in a mortgage action, it is necessary to produce an office copy of the judgment, an office copy of the report, if any, the affidavit of the party to be redeemed of non-payment, and non-receipt of rents, and negating his being in possession; Scott v. McDonnell, 1 Chy. Ch. 193; Burford v. Lyimburner, Id. 275; Pross v. Coke, L. R. 6 Chy. 645, or, in case any sum has been paid since the account was taken, and before the day appointed for redemption, showing that notice has been given pursuant to Rule 387, or, in case the party is in possession, showing no receipts, beyond those for which credit has been given in the account. For forms of affidavits, see H. & L. Forms, Nos. 598-600.

There must also be produced a certificate of the cashier, or other Certificate like officer: Campbell v. Garrett, 1 Chy. Ch. 255, of the bank, where the money is appointed to be paid, of non-payment of the money, on the date of the judgment, or since, duly verified by affidavit: see H. & L. Forms, Nos. 596, 597.

Rule 385.

Affidavit of non-payment, by whom to be made.

Affidavit of Non-payment.—Where there are several parties entitled to the money directed to be paid, the affidavit of non-payment should be made by all; Annis v. Wilson, 1 Chy. Ch. 217; Kinnaird v. Yorke, 60 L. T. 380; but where one of the parties is out of the jurisdiction, his affidavit may be dispensed with; Lunn v. Kirkpatrick, 2 Gr. 823; Counter v. Wylde, 1 Gr. 538; and see Frith v. Cooke, 5 L. T. 798, where the affidavit of the plaintiff's solicitor was accepted; Kinnaird v. Yorke, supra; where a sole plaintiff resides out of the jurisdiction, the affidavit of his agent will be accepted, and in such case the affidavit should show where the custody of the mortgage has been; Rac v. Shaw, 1 Chy. Ch. 209; and where, in such a case, the affidavit is made by the solicitor of the plaintiff, it should show that the plaintiff has no other agent within the jurisdiction authorized to receive the money; Taylor v. Cathbert, 1 Chy. Ch. 240; but see Moody v. Tyrrell, 6 P. R. 513; Gillen v. Roman Catholic Episcopal Corporation, 7 Ont. 146; McHullen v. Polp, 12 Ont. 702; 13 Ont. 209. An agent should state that he is authorized to receive the money; Powers v. Merriman, 1 Chy. Ch. 227; but it is not, however, necessary to produce the agent's authority; Rudolph v. Duffy, 1 Chy. Ch. 302; and where the party to receive the money is a corporation aggregate, the affidavit of an officer of the company must show that he is the proper officer to receive the mortgage money; Western Assurance Co. v. Capree, 1 Chy. Ch. 227.

When to be made.

The affidavit of non-payment must be made after the day appointed for redemption; Bloug v. Kennedy, 2 Chy. Ch. 453.

Notice of motion when necessary.

When Notice Necessary.—The motion for a final order is usually ex parte; Henderson v. Cowan, 1 Chy. Ch. 297; Rule 385. But where two years had elapsed since the default, before the motion was made, notice was required to be served; Kirkhoffer v. Stafford, 2 Chy. Ch. 52; Ardagh v. Orchard, 2 C. L. J. 303; and where it appeared by the report, that the defendant had not received notice of the proceedings in the Master's office, in a case in which he was entitled to notice, notice of the motion was required to be served; McCormick v. McCormick, 6 P. R. 208; and where the account has been changed even after the day appointed for redemption, notice should be served; Portman v. Smith, 2 C. L. J. 167; Foresters v. Pegg, 19 P. R. 254.

Final order when refused, where account changed.

On What Grounds Final Order Refused.—The order may be refused where the account is changed by the receipt of money before the day fixed for redemption; Prees v. Coke, L. R. 6 Chy. 345; Garlick v. Jackson, 4 Beav. 154.

Where the mortgagee is in occupation, or receipt of rents, he should be charged with rents up to the day fixed for redemption, or a new account must be taken and a new day appointed for payment; Pipe v. Shafer, 1 Chy. Ch. 251; and it was held that this must be done even where the plaintiff swore he was in occupation merely as a caretaker; Cummer v. Tomlinson, 1 Chy. Ch. 235; or where a receiver had been appointed; Jenner-Fust v. Needham, 31 Ch. D. 500; 54 L. T. 420, affirmed by C. A. 32 Ch. D. 582; Piat v. Nicholson, 80 L. T. Jour. 374; but see Rule 750, note; Hoare v. Stephens, 32 Ch. D. 194; 54 L. T. 230; Holt v. Beagle, 55 L. T. 502; Ingham v. Sutherland, 63 L. T. 614.

But the plaintiff's going into possession and receiving rents, after the day appointed for payment, does not affect his right to a final order; Portman v. Smith, 2 C. L. J. 167; Greenshield v. Blackwood, 1 Chy. Ch. 60; Constable v. Horick, 5 Jur. N. S. 331; National Perm. B. S. v. Raper, 65 L. T. 668.

Where before the day appointed for payment, the office of the Rule 385 bank, at which the money is made payable, is closed, a new day must be appointed: King v. Connor, 1 Chy. Ch. 274. So where a ^{Refused} Sunday was appointed for payment, the final order was refused: ^{where bank closed.} Holcomb v. Leach, 3 Gr. 449.

Where it appeared that the decree was erroneous, a final order was ^{Or} refused: Commercial Bank v. Graham, 4 Gr. 419; and see Mitchell ^{Judgment erroneous.} v. Strathy, 28 Gr. 80.

Where a sole mortgagee, or one of several joint mortgagees, dies ^{Death of} before the day appointed for payment, unless the judgment provides ^{mortgagee,} in the latter case for payment to the survivors, a new account must ^{effect of,} be taken, and a new day appointed: Blackburn v. Caine, 22 Beav. 614; Kingsford v. Poile, 8 W. R. 110.

Where the Crown is entitled to the equity of redemption, a final ^{Crown can-} order of foreclosure cannot be obtained, but merely an order author- ^{not be} izing the mortgagee to take possession until the Crown may see fit ^{foreclosed.} to redeem: Dunn v. Attorney-General, 10 Gr. 482, or the security be satisfied: Hodge v. Attorney-General, 3 Y. & C. 342; Seton, 1044. A sale may be ordered where the Crown is interested: Bartlett v. Rees, L. R. 12 Eq. 396.

The final order may be refused where an extension of time for redemption is asked, and reasonable grounds therefor are shown; and the same relief may be granted in a redemption action, where the judgment provides for the dismissal of the action in default of payment, so long as the final order of dismissal has not been granted: Collinson v. Jeffery, 1896, 1 Ch. 644; 74 L. T. 78.

Effect of Final Order.—The final order for foreclosure, so long ^{Effect of} as it remains in force, is an absolute bar to the parties foreclosed ^{final order.} from claiming the right to redeem. But it is no bar to the mortgagee, as long as he is in a position to restore the mortgaged property, from ^{A bar to re-} seeking to enforce payment of the mortgage debt: Lockhart v. Hardy, ^{demption.} 9 Beav. 349; Munsen v. Hauss, 22 Gr. 279. But if, after a final order for foreclosure, he takes proceedings to enforce payment of the debt, that ipso facto operates as an opening of the foreclosure, and entitles the mortgagor to a reconveyance on payment of the money: ^{Unless} Palmer v. Heudric, 27 Beav. 349; 28 Beav. 341. If, however, the ^{mortgagee} mortgagee, by his own act, unauthorized by the mortgagor, has made ^{enforces} it impossible to restore the mortgaged property, proceedings to en- ^{payment of} ^{mortgage} ^{debt.} force payment of the debt will be stayed on the application of the mortgagor: Ib.; The British and Canadian Loan & Investment Co. v. Williams, 15 Ont. 366; and see Re Thuresson, 3 O. L. R. 271.

A final order of foreclosure obtained against an assignee of the equity of redemption for the benefit of creditors, is no estoppel to a subsequent action by him on behalf of the creditors of the mortgagor, under R. S. O. c. 147, s. 9 (2), to set aside the mortgage for fraud, where no such issue was raised in the action for foreclosure: Glass v. Grant, 16 Ont. 233.

Opening of Foreclosure at the Instance of the Mortgagor. ^{Opening} —Even after a final order has been obtained, the mortgagor may ^{foreclosure} apply to set aside the order, and to be let in to redeem; and this ^{at the} relief was granted even as against a purchaser from the mortgagee ^{instance} after the final order of foreclosure: Campbell v. Holyland, 7 Ch. D. ^{mortgagor.} 166; 26 W. R. 160; Johnston v. Johnston, 9 P. R. 259; Foresters v. Pegg, 19 P. R. 274; and a purchaser who has purchased pending foreclosure proceedings, and whose rights are expressly subject to the termination of the proceedings by a final order in favour of the mortgagor, stands in a different position from one who comes in for the first time after the final order has been made, and is much more readily made subject to the discretion of the Court to open the foreclosure. But it has been said that this relief can only be granted where the final order has been obtained by actual, positive fraud, or under circumstances of oppression: Patch v. Ward, L. R. 3 Ch. 203, 212; and in Trinity College v. Hill, 2 Ont. 348; 18 C. L. J. 387, the relief was refused as against a purchaser from the mortgagor after the final order, there being no such circumstances; but this case was subsequently reversed in appeal on the ground of irregularity in the proceedings; the sale having taken place under a decree nisi, which had not been made absolute before the final order was obtained: S. C., 10 Ont. App. 99. When the rights of third parties do not intervene, and the plaintiff can be replaced in the same position he occupied before the default, and recompensed for any damages he may have suffered, and there is a reasonable prospect of payment shewn, the foreclosure may be opened, and the time for payment extended: Waddell v. McColl, 2 Chy. Ch. 62; but some reasonable excuse must be shewn for not redeeming at the time appointed, and the fact that the property is of much greater value than the amount due should be established: Johnson v. Ashbridge, 2 Chy. Ch. 251. The fact that the property has increased in value, is not alone a sufficient ground for opening the foreclosure: Miles v. Cameron, 9 P. R. 502; 19 C. L. J. 235; 3 C. L. T. 361. In Platt v. Ashbridge, 12 Gr. 105, the foreclosure was opened after a lapse of eighteen months, the mortgagor being illiterate, and having no solicitor, and not understanding the proceedings, and the property appearing to be worth three times the amount of the incumbrance.

The Court refused to open a foreclosure merely because a receiver, by mistake, neglected to account for all the rents he had received before the final order was granted: Ingham v. Sutherland, 153 L. T. 614.

Where, after a final order of foreclosure against subsequent incumbrancers, the mortgagor redeems; that has the effect of opening the foreclosure as against the subsequent incumbrancers: Read v. Smith, 14 Gr. 250; S. C., 16 Gr. 52; Box v. Bridgman, 6 P. R. 234; Utter v. Lord Vaux, 2 K. & J. 650; 6 D. M. & G. 638; and see Ledbrook v. Passman, 59 L. T. 306; Re Howard, 29 L. R. Ir. 266. In Hillbird v. Campbell, 7 Gr. 96, a final order of foreclosure was set aside at the instance of a purchaser of the equity of redemption pendente lite, but without notice of it, but in Robson v. Argue, 25 Gr. 497, such relief was refused.

Terms on which Foreclosure Opened at the Instance of the Mortgagor.—The terms on which a foreclosure is opened are in the discretion of the Court. Where the security is not ample, the mortgagor may be required to pay the interest and costs by an early day, and six months may be allowed for the payment of the principal: Fisher on Mortgages, 5th ed., 926; Robbins on Mortgages, 1047. But where the security is ample, the costs of the action, and of the application, may be ordered to be paid forthwith, and the time extended for payment of the principal and interest, the defendant being charged with interest on the gross amount of the principal and interest, for the period of the extension: see Trinity College v. Hill, 8 Ont. 286; 20 C. L. J. 359, 385; Holford v. Yate, 1 K. & J. 677; Whitfield v. Roberts, 7 Jur. N. S. 1268; Thornhill v. Manning, 1 Sim. N. S. 451; and see Howard v. Macara, 1 Chy. Ch. 27, and other cases cited in note to Rule 750.

Opening Foreclosure at the Instance of a Subsequent Rule 386.
Incumbrancers:—See Scottish American Investment Co. v. Brewer, 2 O. L. R. 369, where the circumstances were, such that the mortgagor might have successfully applied, and the incumbrancers, his creditors, even though they had not proved their claim, were held entitled to the same relief as the mortgagor.

Opening of the Foreclosure by the Mortgagee.—So long as the mortgagee is in a position to restore the mortgaged property, he may at any time open the foreclosure by enforcing payment of the debt. But if, after he has obtained a final order, he has parted with the mortgage estate, or any part of it, (otherwise than under power of sale; see Pegg v. Hobson, infra), so that he is not in a position to re-convey, he will be restrained from recovering the debt: Lockhart v. Hardy, 9 Beav. 340; Gowland v. Garbutt, 13 Gr. 383; Burnham v. Galt, 16 Gr. 417; Chotfield v. Cunningham, 23 Ont. 153; but see Bald v. Thompson, 10 Gr. 177; but the making of a mortgage by the mortgagee on the mortgaged estate, will not prevent him from opening the foreclosure by suing for the mortgage debt, if at the time of his bringing the action, he has paid off the mortgage, and is in a position to re-convey: Hansen v. Hauss, 22 Gr. 279.

Where the mortgagee had incapacitated himself from restoring the mortgaged property intact, he will be disabled from enforcing payment: Re Thursson, 2 O. L. R. 271; but this principle does not apply where the property is not intact merely owing to the removal or destruction of a building on it, unless, scilicet, the building is of such a character that compensation in money (which the mortgagor is, in such an event, entitled to) would not be an adequate indemnity: Mendels v. Gibson, 9 O. L. R. 44; and where the property was not intact by reason of the mortgagee having granted a right of way across part of it, he was given an opportunity to remove this difficulty: Re Thursson, supra.

A mortgagee who has exercised his power of sale, where there is a personal liability to pay the mortgage debt, is entitled to sue for the deficiency: the fact that the mortgagee has acquired the land since the sale, is no objection to his right to recover: Pegg v. Hobson, 14 Ont. 272. In the absence of any objection to the sale under the power, the acquisition of the estate by the mortgagee would not give the mortgagor any new right of redemption.

386. If the purchase money is insufficient to pay what has been found due to the plaintiff for principal, interest, and costs, subsequent interest, and subsequent costs in an action for sale, the plaintiff (where the mortgagor or person liable to pay the debt is a defendant, and such relief is claimed) shall be entitled, on an ex parte application to the Court or a Judge, to an order for the payment of the deficiency. Con. Rule 354.

Taken from Chy. O. 455.

Where a personal order for payment is claimed by indorsement on the writ, that relief may now be awarded by the judgment in the first instance, without waiting for the ascertainment of the deficiency: on principle, see Forms 153, 154 (H. & L. Forms, Nos. 864, 865).

Rule 387.

Enforcing
judgment on covenant after foreclosure.

Where the judgment is for foreclosure, accompanied by a personal remedy for payment of the mortgage debt, if the mortgagee, after obtaining a final order of foreclosure, enforces the judgment for payment, by issuing execution, or otherwise, he thereby opens the foreclosure. If he has in such a case, parted with the mortgaged property after obtaining the final order, (otherwise than under a power of sale), any further proceedings to enforce the payment of the debt will be restrained on motion: see Rule 385, note.

Order for payment of deficiency, only granted when there is a personal liability.

The order for payment of deficiency can only be granted where there is a personal liability to pay. See cases cited in note to Rule 378.

A mortgagee, who has exercised his power of sale, is entitled to sue for any deficiency which may remain due after deducting the proceeds of the sale, and the fact that the mortgagee has again acquired the land is no objection to his right to recover: Pegg v. Hobson, 14 Ont. 272.

Where a mortgagor, who has parted with his equity of redemption, is sued on his covenant to pay the mortgage debt, he is entitled, as against the assignee of the equity of redemption, to a lien on the mortgaged land, if still in the hands of the mortgagee, subject to redemption, for any sum so paid, if the assignee of the equity of redemption has agreed to assume the mortgage: Hamilton Provident L. & L. Co. v. Smith, 17 Ont. 1.

Where account changed after being ascertained, new account may be taken.

387. (1) Where the state of the account ascertained by a judgment, order or report, is changed by payment of money, receipt of rents and profits, occupation rent or otherwise, before the final order for foreclosure or sale is obtained, the plaintiff or other party to whom the mortgage money is payable may (either before or after the day appointed for payment) apply ex parte to the Court or a Judge to fix, by reference to a Master or otherwise, the amount to be paid in lieu of the amount previously ascertained, or (where the day appointed for payment has not arrived) may give notice to the party by whom the money is payable that he gives him credit for a sum certain to be named in the notice, and that he claims that there remains due in respect of such mortgage money a sum certain to be also named in the notice. See Con. Rules 357, 355.

of credit given.

New day.

(2) Where the application is made after the day appointed for payment, and in other cases if the Court or Judge so directs, a new day for payment shall be appointed. New.

Final order
may be granted if notice of credit given, or party may have new account taken.

(3) Where notice of credit has been given, if the sums named therein appear proper to be allowed and paid, the final order may be granted without further notice: but the party to whom the notice of credit is given may apply to the Court or a Judge to fix, by reference to a Master or otherwise, the amounts proper to be allowed and paid instead of the amounts Rule 358. mentioned in the notice. See Con. Rules 356, 358.

This Rule states what was in effect the practice under former Con. Rules 355 to 358. Those Rules were taken from Chy. O. 457-460.

A notice of credit must be given before the day for payment. Notice of arrival: see also Knottinger v. Barber, 1 Chy. Ch. 258. Notice of credit must be served credit of payments, or rents, which have been received after the day fixed for redemption, need not be given: see Rule 385, note. Such of payment. payments do not affect the plaintiff's right to a final order, unless indeed they amount to a total extinguishment of the debt: National Perm. Mutl. B. B. Socy. v. Raper, 65 L. T. 668.

A new day was appointed where accounts had been altered by a new arrangement between the plaintiff and defendant as to payments: McCullum v. Caston, 1 O. L. R. 240.

The procedure prescribed by this Rule must be followed, and it is not enough to entitle a plaintiff to a final order, after the account has been changed, to state on affidavit that the outgoings have exceeded the receipts since the date of the report: Forsters v. Pegg, 19 P. R. 254.

When notice has been given under this Rule, or the payment on account has been made after the day fixed for redemption, the final order may be obtained notwithstanding the alteration in the state of the account, without appointing any new day: Ib.

388. In an action for foreclosure or sale, or for recovery of possession of any mortgaged property for default in payment of interest, or of an instalment of the principal, the defendant may, before judgment, move to dismiss the action upon paying into Court the amount then due for principal, interest and costs. Con. Rule 359.

The Rule in terms is confined to actions for foreclosure, or sale, and for recovery of possession of mortgaged property for default in payment of principal or interest; but it has been held that a mortgagee bringing an action for redemption is within the equity of this Rule: Moore v. Mcveritt, 6 Gr. 550; Dornyn v. Fralick, 21 Gr. 194; see contra, Tylce v. Hinton, 3 Ont. App. 53; but a plaintiff in an action for redemption claiming the benefit of this Rule is not entitled to six months for payment of the instalment in default: Dornyn v. Fralick, supra. The Rule is held not to apply where the mortgagee is seeking to enforce a power of sale: Robertson v. Hetherington, 8 C. L. T. 141; nor where he is suing solely on the covenant for payment, even though the principal has become due by virtue of an acceleration clause in the mortgage: Wilson v. Campbell, 15 P. R. 254.

Formerly when the principal money due under a mortgage was not paid off at the date at which it was covenanted to be paid, the mortgagee was entitled to six months' notice of payment, or six months' interest: Latslow v. Davis, Blake, V.C., 7th June, 1877; and see Re Houston, 2 Ont. 84; Trust & Loan Co. v. Kirk, 8 P. R. 263; Archbold v. Building & Loan Association, 15 Ont. 237; Smith v. Smith, 1891, 3 Ch. 550; 65 L. T. 234; notice was not necessary Action may be dismissed before judgment in payment of arrears and costs.

Rule 388 applies to actions for redemption

Mortgagee bringing action cannot claim six months' notice, or six months' interest.

Rule 388.

where the six months' interest was paid: Johnson v. Evans, 61 L. T. 18; but a mortgagee bringing an action for sale, or foreclosure, or taking steps to enforce payment, could not insist on getting six months' notice of payment, or in default thereof, six months' interest: Letts v. Hutchins, L. R. 13 Eq. 170; Re Alcock, Prescott v. Phipps, 23 Ch. D. 372; 49 L. T. 240; Bovill v. Endle, 1891, 1 Ch. 648; nor could a mortgagee who entered into possession; Bovill v. Endle, supra; or who proved his claim in a partition action: Re Houston, 2 Ont. 84; and see In re Moss, 31 Ch. D. 90; 54 L. T. 49; nor an equitable mortgagee by deposit of title deeds: Fitzgerald's Trustee v. Millersh, 1892, 1 Ch. 385; 66 L. T. 178. This right to six months' notice, or six months' interest, does not exist in the case of a mortgage made after 1st July, 1888, unless there is an express stipulation therein to that effect: see R. S. O. c. 121, s. 17; see R. S. C. c. 127, s. 7.

Although, after action for foreclosure brought, a mortgagor may, at any time before judgment, tender the amount due with interest to the date of tender, and the plaintiff is bound to accept it, yet after judgment, it has been held, in England, that a defendant cannot waive the six months allowed for redemption without the consent of the plaintiff: Hill v. Rowlands, 1897, 2 Ch. 361, int quare, how far the statutes above referred to would enable a defendant to do so in Ontario.

In default of payment of instalment whole amount secured becomes due

Upon default in payment of any instalment of principal, or interest, the mortgagee has a right, without any express stipulation to that effect, to call in the whole amount secured by the mortgage: Cameron v. McKee, 3 Gr. 311; but this right may be qualified by the express stipulation of the parties, as, for instance, where there was an express proviso that in default of payment of any instalment of interest for six months, the whole principal money should become payable, it was held that a suit for foreclosure would not lie until the lapse of the six months: Parker v. The Vine Growers' Association, 23 Gr. 179. Where there was a proviso accelerating payment of principal and interest in the event of the mortgagor mortgaging, or otherwise incumbering the property, or suffering it to become liable to sale for taxes, it was held that a voluntary assignment in insolvency was not within the proviso: McKay v. McFarlane, 19 Gr. 347. Under a clause accelerating payment of mortgage money in the event of default, a mortgagee, who neglects to call in the mortgage money pursuant to the proviso, cannot in a redemption action treat the sums, of which the payment is accelerated, as overdue, and claim interest thereon: McLaren v. Miller, 20 Gr. 637.

How far Court can relieve from express proviso for accelerating payment in event of default, quære.

It was held by Spragge, C., that even though there be an express stipulation in the mortgage, that in default of payment of any instalment the whole mortgage money shall become payable, the mortgagor may, nevertheless, after default, claim the benefit of this Rule: General v. Burn, 7 P. R. 381; and see Knappe v. Cameron, 6 Gr. 550; but in Tulee v. Hinton, 3 Ont. App. 53, Moss, C.J.A., expressed a doubt whether the Court had any power to relieve against such a stipulation, either under this Rule, or under its inherent jurisdiction to relieve against penalties, and forfeitures; and see General Credit & Discount Co. v. Glegg, 48 L. T. 182. It cannot, therefore, be said to be clear that the Rule applies to cases where there is an express proviso accelerating the payment of the mortgage debt in the event of default.

Where a defendant moves to stay proceedings under this Rule, he may obtain the stay, on payment of the interest calculated up to the last gale day, and is not obliged to pay it, up to the time of making the application: Stratton v. Murney, 6 Gr. 378; but, if the defendant desires to pay off the whole amount of the mortgage debt, the mortgagee cannot refuse to accept it: Cruso v. Bond, 9 P. R. 111; 1 Ont. 384 (overruling Green v. Adams, 2 Chy. Ch. 134); Ex p. Wickens, 1898, 1 Q. B. 543; 78 L. T. 213; Re Ellis, 1898, 2 Q. B. 79; 78 L. T. 733; although in a redemption suit he might not be bound to accept more than the instalments in arrear; see Gibson v. Nelson, 2 O. L. R. 500. Rules 389, 390. Not do

Interest to be paid up to last gale day

An application may be made, after judgment has been obtained, to stay proceedings on payment of the arrears; see Rule 389.

The making of a motion to stay proceedings on payment of principal and interest is not equivalent to a tender: Kincaid v. Todd, 42 Ch. D. 610.

389. In an action for the purpose and under the circumstances specified in Rule 388, the defendant may move to stay the proceedings in the action, after judgment, but before sale or final foreclosure, or recovery of possession of the mortgaged property, upon paying into Court the amount then due for principal, interest and costs. Con. Rule 360. After judgment proceedings may be stayed on payment of arrears and costs.

See notes to Rule 388.

This and the preceding Rule in terms extend only to cases of foreclosure, or sale, or recovery of possession of the mortgaged premises; the relief provided for by them, therefore, cannot be given in an action on the covenant though it be for the whole of the mortgage money due under an acceleration clause: Wilson v. Campbell, 17 P. R. 254.

This Rule does not apply where, after judgment, the parties agree to an extension of the time for payment by instalments. In the event of the mortgagor making default he has no right on payment of instalments in arrear under the agreement, to have the proceedings stayed; see Keen v. Biscoe, 8 Ch. D. 201; McCollum v. Costan, 1 O. L. R. 240.

After payment has been made, under this Rule, of the instalments in arrear, it is irregular for the plaintiff to take any further proceedings in the action, until another instalment falls due: Carroll v. Hopkins, 4 Gr. 431; and see Rule 390.

390. Where an application is made to stay the proceedings under Rule 389, the judgment may afterward be enforced, by order of the Court, upon subsequent default in the payment of a further instalment of the principal, or of the interest. Con. Rule 361. On subsequent default judgment may be enforced.

Taken from Chy. O. 463.

Where, after a judgment of foreclosure, the proceedings are stayed under Rule 389, on a subsequent default being made, on the plaintiff's application to enforce the judgment, and the defendant asking for a further stay on payment of the arrears, an order may be made directing payment of the whole sum in six months, and in default of order.

Rules foreclosure, with liberty to the defendant to pay the arrears forth-391, 392. with, and in that event staying the proceedings: Strachan v. Deelin, 1 Ch. Ch. 8.

Order on default.

391. In a redemption action, on default of payment being made according to the report, the defendant shall be entitled, on an ex parte application to the Court or a Judge, to a final order of foreclosure against the plaintiff, or to an order dismissing the action with costs to be paid by the plaintiff to the defendant, forthwith after taxation thereof. Con. Rule 362.

See Rules 385, 392, and notes.

As to the evidence of non-payment: see Docksey v. Elac, 64 L. T. 256.

The Court may in a proper case extend the time for redemption at any time before a final order of dismissal, or foreclosure: Collinson v. Jeffery, 1896, 1 Ch. 644; 74 L. T. 78.

Directions
 where plaintiff in redemption
 foreclosed.

392. In a redemption action where the plaintiff is declared foreclosed, directions may be given either by the final order foreclosing the plaintiff, or by subsequent orders, that all necessary inquiries be made, accounts taken and proceedings had for redemption or foreclosure, or redemption or sale, as against any subsequent incumbrancers, or for the adjustment of the relative rights and liabilities of the original defendants as among themselves, and such order shall have the same force and effect as a judgment obtained by the original defendant. Con. Rule 363.

The provisions of this Rule seem to be based on Chy. O. 466.

Dismissal of action for redemption operates as a foreclosure.

The dismissal of an action for redemption by a mortgagor usually operates as a foreclosure: and where a bill did not pray redemption, but a decree for redemption was granted, it would seem a subsequent dismissal operated as a foreclosure: Cornwall v. Henriod, 12 Gr. 338; but this is not the case where the mortgage is by deposit of title deeds, because in such a case a judgment of foreclosure would provide for the execution of a legal mortgage, but the mere dismissal of an action to redeem cannot have that effect, though it may preclude the mortgagor from bringing another action to redeem: Macshull v. Shrewsbury, L. R. 10 Ch. 250; it would seem, however, that the defendant, on obtaining the dismissal, may also obtain an order for the absolute conveyance of the property: see note supra, p. 355.

Subsequent
 proceedings.

Where an action for redemption is brought by a second mortgagee and he is foreclosed, the mortgagor, as well as the first mortgagee, has a right to have a day appointed for the redemption of the first mortgage by the mortgagor: McKinnon v. Anderson, 18 Gr. 684. The defendant who is sought to be redeemed, need not, unless he pleases, proceed under this Rule, and he cannot be deprived of costs of any subsequent action for foreclosure, or redemption, for not having done so: Id.

Where a second mortgagee is entitled to redeem a prior mortgage and to foreclose the debt on the default of redemption, the action may be dismissed as against both the prior mortgagee, and the mortgagor, with costs: Hobbs v. Barry, 31 Ch. D. 312; 54 L. T. 12. Rules 393, 394.

393. In mortgage actions where it becomes necessary to fix a date for redemption after the lapse of the first period of six months, the further time allowed shall be one month. Redemption after six months.
 Rules 23 June, 1894. 1316.

Before this Rule the practice was to allow each person, or set of persons, successively entitled to redeem, three months from the taking of the subsequent accounts respectively. Incumbrancers having a specific lien by mortgage were successively allowed each a separate day in order of their priorities, but since The Creditors' Relief Act (11. 8. O. c. 78), execution creditors have been together given one day for redemption, their order of priority confidently being that of the first execution creditor: see note to Rule 750.

The terms of this Rule are probably wide enough to be applicable to the time to be given to a mortgagor, where foreclosure is ordered after an abortive sale: see note to Rule 378.

14. TRANSMISSION OF INTEREST pendente lite.

394. An action shall not become abated by reason of the marriage, death, or bankruptcy of any of the parties, if the cause of action survives or continues, and shall not become defective by the assignment, creation, or devolution of any estate or title pendente lite. And whether the cause of action survives or not, there shall be no abatement by reason of the death of either party between the verdict or finding of the issues of fact and the judgment, but judgment may in such case be entered notwithstanding the death. Con. Rule 620. Action not to abate by reason of marriage, etc., or death between verdict and judgment.

Same as Eng. (1883) R. 178, except that the Eng. Rule is made to apply to "a cause or matter" instead of "an action" only.

The former Eng. R. of 1875, O. 50, r. 1, which was like this Rule in applying only to an "action," was held to apply to a petition, Re Atkins, 1 Ch. D. 82; Re Dwyer, W. N. 1878, 199; but not to a charging order: Finney v. Hinde, 4 Q. B. D. 102. See the definition of "action" in sec. 2 of the Jud. Act, and Rule 610.

Where after argument before the Court, and before the delivering of judgment, a party dies, it would seem that no order to continue proceedings is necessary to enable the Court to give judgment; but the party in whose favour the judgment is, or his personal representative, if he be dead, is entitled to have judgment pronounced and entered as of the date on which the argument took place: Ecroyd v. Gaultard, 1897, 2 Ch. 554, and see 2 Williams' Saund., part II., pages 720, 721; Evans v. Rees, 12 A. & E. 175; Miles v. Bough, 3 B. & L. 107; Miles v. Williams, 9 Q. B. 47; Cumber v. Wane, 1 Str. 126; Collinson v. Lister, 20 Beav. 355; Freeman v. Traub, 12 C.

Rule 394. B. 406; Moor v. Roberts, 3 C. B. N. S. 844; Belsham v. Percival, 8 Ha. 157; and see Couture v. Bouchard, 21 S. C. R. 281.

Where in ignorance of the death of the plaintiff, after the argument, a certificate of the Court of Appeal was issued dated as of the day of pronouncing judgment, the certificate was, on the ex parte application of defendant, amended so as to bear date as of the day of the argument and was ordered to be entered as of that date: Gunn v. Harper, 3 O. L. R. 633.

A special direction should be got from the Court to date and enter the judgment when delivered as of the date of the argument, otherwise it has to bear date as of the day it is pronounced (see Rule 629), which will make it apparently defective on its face. In Huntington v. Attrill, before the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council, 5th Aug., 1892, where the respondent died after argument of an appeal, but before judgment, the Committee directed the action to be revived before the Order in Council embodying the judgment was issued, and an order of revivor was made by the Committee accordingly [see rel. D. W. Saunders, of counsel for appellants]. An action for tort cannot be revived in the name of an assignee who obtains an assignment of the claim before judgment, though after a verdict: Blair v. Ascheltine, 15 P. R. 211.

issued.

Where a party dies after judgment, but before it has been drawn up and entered, the judgment must be drawn up and issued before the order to continue proceedings is issued: see Beamish v. Ponerton, 1 Ch. Ch. 32; Galbraith v. Armstrong, 1b., 33.

Where before the confirmation of the Master's report appointing a committee of a lunatic and propounding a scheme for maintenance, the lunatic died, notwithstanding his death, an order was made, the executors of the deceased consenting, for the confirmation of the Master's report, the discharge of the committee, and the surrender of his bond: Re Garner, 1 O. L. R. 405.

If the death or change of interest takes place before the writ is served, the action cannot be revived or continued: Watson v. Hunt, 1 Ch. Ch. 295; and see Foster v. Ward, 9 L. R. Ir. 447.

The Rule applies where both parties die pending an action: Sellars v. Goole, 30 L. R. Ir. 298.

For the practice where a party dies pending an appeal: see note to Rule 396, p. 612.

Rule does not affect the law as to the survival of causes of

There is nothing in the Rules on this subject to alter the existing law as to what causes of action do, and what do not, survive; thus where the cause of action, or the interest of the party is terminated by death, etc., the action is at an end: Tiepeross v. Grant, 4 C. P. D. 40; Kirk v. Todd, 21 Ch. D. 484; Ashley v. Taylor, 10 Ch. D. 738; 27 W. R. 228; Barker v. Evans, 15 Q. B. D. 565; 53 L. T. 801. See notes to Rule 396. Nor is there anything to preserve to any person a right of action, which, by the ordinary rules of law, has passed from him. Thus, on the bankruptcy of a plaintiff, where the right of action is one which passes to the trustee, the action cannot be carried on by the bankrupt, but only by the trustee: Jackson v. North-Eastern Ry. Co., 5 Ch. D. 844; Ward v. Saunders, 10 Q. B. D. 114; see also Emden v. Carter, 17 Ch. D. 169; Selig v. Lion, 1891, 1 Q. B. 513. If, in such a case, there are two trustees, and one refuses to go on, the other may do so, and make his co-trustee a defendant: Jackson v. North-Eastern Ry. Co., supra.

Upon the death, before judgment, of the sole beneficiary on whose behalf an action is brought under The Fatal Accidents' Act (R. S. O. 1897, c. 166) the action comes to an end. It cannot be continued for the benefit of the beneficiary's estate, nor can a new action be brought by the beneficiary's personal representative: McHugh v. G. T. Railway, 2 O. L. R. 600. Rule 394.

The present Rule applies to enable the action to be proceeded with in case of marriage, death, or bankruptcy, without further order or notice, only where the cause of action survives to, or continues in, some person who is before the Court: Eldridge v. Burgess, 7 Ch. D. 411; see Allechin v. Buffalo, etc., 2 Chy. Ch. 45. Thus where five defendants were jointly and severally liable, two of whom became bankrupt, Fry, J., offered to allow the trial to stand, that the other three might serve notice on the trustees of the bankrupts if they wished to do so; as they declined, the suit was held not to be defective and the trial was ordered to proceed: Lloyd v. Dimmack, 7 Ch. D. 398; see also Walker v. Blackmore, W. N. 1876, 112. When act on may proceed without order.

Where partners have recovered a judgment, and one of them dies, the action survives, so that the surviving partner may issue execution: Davies v. Andrews, 28 Sol. Jour. 411; W. N. 1884, 94.

In an action for damages for misrepresentations against several defendants, one defendant died after issue joined. It was held that the action could be proceeded with against the survivors: Beatty v. Nelson, 9 Ont. 385.

Where, however, the cause of action does not survive to, or continue in, some person who is before the Court: Re Shepherd, 43 Ch. D. 136; 62 L. T. 337; Norburn v. Norburn, 1894, 1 Q. B. 448; 70 L. T. 511; e.g., where a sole plaintiff or defendant dies or becomes bankrupt, the action abates or becomes defective: Eldridge v. Burgess, 7 Ch. D. 411; Jackson v. N. E. Ry. Co., 5 Ch. D. 844; Barter v. Dubouz, 7 Q. B. D. 413; Emden v. Carter, 17 Ch. D. 169; Chorlton v. Dickie, 13 Ch. D. 160; Wardle v. Saunders, 10 Q. B. D. 114, and an order to continue it must be obtained under the subsequent Rules, by the proper parties: Walker v. Blackmore, supra; Stanhope v. Stanhope, 11 P. D. 106; see Rules 395, 396. When order necessary.

Where an action becomes defective by the death of a necessary party, or the dissolution of a corporation which is a necessary party, it is the duty of the solicitor who has acted for such party to notify the opposite party of the defect; and he may make himself personally liable to be ordered to pay costs lost in consequence of the proceedings being carried on after such defect has arisen, if he continues to act as solicitor, or fails to notify the opposite party of the defect: Sutton v. New Beeston Co., 1900, 1 Ch. 43; 81 L. T. 457.

On the bankruptcy of plaintiff, the defendant, wishing to have the action dismissed for want of prosecution, was required to give notice to the trustee: Wright v. Swindon Ry. Co., 4 Ch. D. 164; see also Re Atkins, 1 Ch. D. 82; Cameron v. Eager, 5 P. R. 117.

In an action by the indorser of a bill of exchange against the drawer who had become bankrupt, and suffered judgment by default, the trustee applied for leave to defend, complaining that judgment had been snapped. Quain, J., said, "It is only a question of terms. I will order the judgment to be set aside on payment of costs, and that the trustee be at liberty to defend in the name of the debtor"; Goldard v. Poole, W. N. 1875, 230; 1 Chanc. Ch. Cas. 126.

Rule 395.Assignment pendente lite.

395. In case of an assignment, creation or devolution of any estate or title pendente lite, the action may be continued by or against the person to or upon whom such estate or title has come or devolved. Con. Rule 621.

Identical with the Eng. (1883) R. 180.

An order under Rule 396 is necessary to obtain the benefit of this Rule.

Where an action is carried on by a plaintiff after he has parted with his interest, it must be dismissed; Roper v. Hopkins, 20 Dan. 580; the action can only be properly carried on by the transferee first obtaining an order under this Rule making himself plaintiff.

Incum-
pendente lite.

Incumbrancers, or purchasers, becoming such after writ sued out, and a lis pendens registered, will be bound by the judgment, and need not be made parties whether the plaintiff have notice of them or not; Dan. Pr., 5th ed., 242; 6th ed., 290, 296; Robson v. Argue, 25 Gr. 407; see Wallbridge v. Martin, 2 Ch. Ch. 275; Secar v. Lawson, 15 Ch. D. 426; 16 Ch. D. 121; Pooley's Trustees v. Whetham, 28 Ch. 19, 38; Kiao v. Rudkin, 6 Ch. D. 160. But in cases where there has been a change in ownership of the legal estate, and a conveyance is required, it may be necessary to add parties; Dan. Pr. 243; and notes to Rule 659.

And a person who, after the institution of a foreclosure action, acquires an interest in, or a claim against, the mortgaged premises, may, on his own application, be added as a party defendant; Gibson v. Nelson, 2 O. L. R. 500.

Additional parties may be, in such cases, added by the plaintiff by a præcipe order; Matthews v. Meacs, 21 Gr. 99; see Low v. Watson, 1 Sm. & Giff. 123; but not parties who acquired their interest before action; McKearie v. McDonaell, 15 Gr. 442.

Assignment
action.

Whether an agreement respecting the assignment of the subject of an action made with persons not parties, pendente lite, renders the action defective, depends upon the nature of the agreement, and whether, according to its legal effect, the Court can give the relief claimed without the addition of the other persons; Scott v. Broadbent, 9 C. L. T. 181.

for the benefit of creditors.

An assignment under R. S. O. c. 147, for the benefit of creditors, has not the effect of transferring to the assignee an existing cause of action, to which the assignor was entitled, to set aside a transaction as being in fraud of creditors; Gage v. Douglas, 14 P. R. 126.

Quære, whether an assignment of a verdict in an action for tort, before judgment, if made as provided by Jud. Act, s. 58 (5), will now entitle the assignee to obtain an order to carry on proceedings in his own name. See under sec. 58 (5) of the Jud. Act, as it was before the amendment by 10 V. c. 15, s. 5, Blair v. Axelstien, 15 P. R. 211, and notes to sec. 58 (5), supra, p. 67 and 20 Law Quarterly Rev., 16, 113.

Rule 200 has been also applied to add parties, for example, in Kiao v. Rudkin, 6 Ch. D. 160, to add a person at his own request to whom an assignment pendente lite had been made by defendant; and in Secar v. Lawson, 16 Ch. D. 121, on defendant's motion to add a person to whom the plaintiff had assigned his interest. In such a case as the last, the action may be stayed till security is given, or the suit continued in the name of the assignee; Secar v. Idavis, 7 P. R. 147; see also Ashby v. Taylor, 10 Ch. D. 768.

Where an assignee for creditors had made a compromise of an Rule 396. action commenced by him, and was subsequently removed, and a new assignee appointed in his place, it was held that such new assignee might obtain an order making himself plaintiff in the action, and continue it in his own name, leaving the defendant to move to stay it, or plead the compromise in bar; and that this course was preferable to directing an issue as to the validity of the compromise: Davidson v. Merrittton, 18 P. R. 139.

This Rule in terms applies only to devolutions or assignments ^{Assignment} pendente lite, and it has been held not to apply to assignments or devo- ^{after judg-} lutions of interest after final judgment: Atty.-Gen. v. Birmingham, 15 Ch. D. 423; where the action is at an end: Arnison v. Smith, 40 Ch. D. 570; but see Phillips v. Fox, 8 P. R. 51; but in a foreclosure action, where a party had assigned his interest after judgment, the assignee was made a party, after order for foreclosure absolute: Campbell v. Holyland, 7 Ch. D. 165; and see Brigham v. Smith, 2 Chy. Ch. 257; Foresters v. Pegg, 19 P. R. 254; where the assignment takes place pendente lite the order must be obtained before judgment: Abell v. Parr, 9 P. R. 564, where it was held that persons to whom defendants had assigned pendente lite, could not be added after judgment and declared bound by it, where they claimed to be entitled independently of the assignment; and see Arnison v. Smith, supra.

An order adding a trustee in bankruptcy under this Rule as a defendant for discovery only, was set aside as improper: Symonds v. City Bank, 79 L. T. Jour. 175.

Where a trustee in bankruptcy, suing as such, is removed, and a new trustee appointed, the latter must obtain an order to continue ^{grounds for setting} the action: Poolcy's Trustee v. Whetham, 28 Ch. D. 38. ^{aside order.}

Where a person issuing an order to continue proceedings is barred by the Statute of Limitations, the order will be set aside on motion: Jay v. Johnstone, 1893, 1 Q. B. 25.

Where a person claiming to be assignee of the plaintiff, obtains an order under this Rule, the original plaintiff, if he disputes the assignment, may move to set the order aside: Fisken v. Ince, 8 P. R. 147.

As to persons interested in the subject matter of the litigation ^{Persons} who come into being after the commencement of an action, see Peter v. Thomas Peter, 26 Ch. D. 181; Re Gould, 51 L. T. 417; and see ^{coming into} being pen- pendente lite, Rules 201 (2), 396.

396. Where by reason of marriage, death or bankruptcy, ^{Order to} or any other event occurring after the commencement of an ^{add parties} action and causing a change or transmission of interest or ^{on change} liability, or by reason of any person interested coming into ^{of interest,} existence after the commencement of the action, it becomes ^{how ob-} necessary or desirable that any person not already a party ^{tained.} should be made a party, or that any person already a party should be made a party in another capacity, an order that the proceedings shall be carried on between the continuing parties and such new party, may be obtained on praeripe, (a) upon an allegation of such change, or transmission of interest or liability or of such person interested having come into existence. Con. Rule 622.

Rule 396. (a) The Eng. (1883) R. 181, has the words "ex parte," instead of the words "on præcipe"; it is otherwise the same.

"Necessary or Desirable."—It has been said that it may in rare cases be "necessary and desirable" under this Rule, to add or substitute a person as plaintiff, without his consent as required by Rule 206 (3), on the application of the opposite party, but he should not be exposed without further action on his part, or adoption by him of the position into which he is forced, to liability for damages or costs: Murray v. Wartle, 19 P. R. 286.

But it may be open to doubt whether in any case a person can properly be added as a plaintiff without his consent; and it is submitted that the proper procedure, where the transferee of a plaintiff pendente lite neglects to take out an order under this Rule authorizing him to continue the proceedings, is for the defendant to move to limit a time for the transferee to take out such order, or in default that the action be dismissed, or that all proceedings be stayed: see Rule 403; Daniel Fr., 5th ed., 717; Cameron v. Eager, 4 P. R. 117; Watson v. Watson, 6 P. R. 229; Chorick v. Dimes, 3 Beav. 290; Wright v. Swindon, 4 Ch. D. 164; Motion v. King, 2 O. W. R. 73.

Rule applies only if cause of action survives.

This Rule applies where the cause of action survives or continues to some person not already a party. Where the cause of action has not survive, the action cannot be continued under this Rule: see cases in note to Rule 391, and Love v. Watson, 1 Sm. & Gill. 123; Dendy v. Dendy, 5 W. R. 221; Greenhough v. Rumney, 5 W. R. 453; Williams v. Williams, 9 W. R. 296.

The Rule only applies to devolutions of interest taking place before final judgment: Atty.-Gen. v. Birmingham, 15 Ch. D. 423; unless after the final judgment, it is necessary to take any proceedings in the action (other than execution, which is provided for by Rule 864), e.g., where the plaintiff dies after final judgment by default, and defendant wishes to apply to set aside the judgment and to be let in to defend: Chambers v. Kitchen, 16 P. R. 219; 17 P. R. 3; see also Arnison v. Smith, 40 Ch. D. 579; Brigham v. Smith, 2 Chy. Ch. 25; Campbell v. Holyland, 7 Ch. D. 166; Norburn v. Norburn, 1894, 1 Q. B. 448; 70 L. T. 411.

When actions survive.

All actions survive which do not fall within the maxim, "actio personalis moritur cum persona," as modified by statute: see Tynges v. Grant, 4 C. P. D. 40. That maxim has no application to any breaches of covenant, except those which constitute a mere personal wrong, and, with that exception, all rights of action for breaches of contract pass to the executors: Formby v. Barker, 1903, 2 Ch. 539, per Vaughan Williams, L.J., at p. 550.

The rule of the Common Law as to the survival of causes of action was summed up in the maxim actio personalis moritur cum persona. This was first modified by 4 Ed. iii. c. 7, and in 1886, this maxim was to a large extent abrogated. The statute then passed with some slight amendment, is now R. S. O. 1897, c. 129, ss. 10, 11 and 12, and when the Imperial statutes in force in Ontario were revised the statute was deemed to have superseded 3 Ed. iii. c. 7, which was accordingly repealed: see 2 Ed. viii. c. 1, Sch.

Under R. S. O. c. 129, "all torts or injuries to the person or to the real or personal estate of the deceased, except in cases of libel and slander," survive to the personal representatives of the deceased who have the same rights and remedies in respect thereof as the deceased could have had, and the damages recovered form part of his estate: and in like manner the personal representatives of a Rule 396. deceased person are liable for torts committed by the deceased to any other person "in respect of his person, or of his real or personal property," except libel or slander: but actions by or against the personal representatives in respect of any such torts must be commenced within a year of the death of the person by or against whose representatives the action is brought: And an order to continue an action already commenced must be obtained within that period in cases where the action survives only by virtue of the provisions of R. S. O. c. 129.

This statute is to some extent founded on the Imp. Stat. 3 & 4 Wm. iv. c. 42, s. 2, but goes very much beyond the provisions of that Act, which limits the survival of actions in respect of torts, to those committed by, or against, the deceased, within six calendar months prior to his decease. Many causes of action, therefore, which would not survive under the English Act, would survive under the Ontario Statute.

Notwithstanding R. S. O. c. 129, s. 10, the benefit of an action under The Fatal Accidents Act (R. S. O. 1897, c. 166), to which the beneficiaries named therein are entitled, does not survive in favour of their representatives: McHugh v. Grand Trunk Ry., 2 O. L. R. 600.

Under the statute, a right of action for seduction now survives against the seducer's personal representative: Lince v. Faircloth, 14 P. R. 273; before the Act, see Edy v. Stewart, 10 Ont. 591; and if an action for any tort, which survives, has been commenced by the deceased, it may be continued by his representatives: Mason v. Peterborough, 20 Ont. App. 683.

Prior to R. S. O. 1897, c. 129, ss. 10, 11, under 4 Ed. iii. c. 7, certain personal actions survived: e.g., actions of tort where the injury had been done to the estate of the deceased: Tyngcross v. Grant, 4 C. P. D. 40; Hatchard v. Mege, 18 Q. B. D. 771 (a case of slander of title); James v. Simce, 43 Ch. D. 607; 62 L. T. 497; Jenks v. Clifden, 1897, 1 Ch. 694; 76 L. T. 382 (a case of obstruction of light); or where the deceased's estate had benefited by the tort: Hambly v. Trott, 1 Cowp. 374; Ashley v. Taylor, 10 Ch. D. 768; Oakey v. Dalton, 35 Ch. D. 700; 57 L. T. 18; but where the deceased wrongdoer had merely derived a negative benefit by his tort, by saving himself an expense which he would otherwise have been put to, the right of action did not survive under 4 Ed. iii. c. 7, against his personal representatives either at law: Phillips v. Homfray, 24 Ch. D. 439; 49 L. T. 5; or in equity: see Hamilton Provident & L. Socy. v. Cornell, 4 Ont. 623; and see Re Duncan, 1899, 1 Ch. 387; 80 L. T. 322.

It has been laid down that the maxim actio personalis moritur cum persona "never extended to personal actions founded upon any obligation, contract debt, covenant, or any other duty to be performed, for there the action survived": 1 Wms. Saund. p. 240, and that the maxim did not extend to actions for tort arising out of breach of contract: see Davis v. Hood, 88 L. T. 19, (a case of negligence by a solicitor); but an action for breach of promise of marriage, though in form an action for breach of contract, is within the maxim and was not maintainable against the representatives of the deceased promisor: Fislay v. Chirney, 20 Q. B. D. 494; 58 L. T. 664; Chamberlain v. Wilson, 2 M. & S. 468; but under R. S. O. c. 129, such a cause of action would now seem to survive.

Rule 396. Cases of tort arising from breach of contract, which were an exception to the Common Law rule, probably still survive in Ontario as at Common Law, and are not subject to the limitations of R. S. O. c. 129, as to bringing an action therefor.

Practice.

Practice.—An order to add parties under this Rule is an order on præcipe: Oshawa Cabinet Co. v. Note, 18 C. L. J. 30; application in Court is not necessary: Crane v. Loftus, 24 W. R. 93; Roffey v. Müller, Id. 103; Dyer v. Painter, W. N. 1881, 105.

A form of the order is given in the App. Form 97; H. & L. Forms No. 485. It continues proceedings in the plight and condition in which they were at the transmission of interest: see also Chadton v. Dickie, 13 Ch. D. 160.

Title of cause after revivor.

After an order under this Rule, the practice is, as formerly, that in the subsequent proceedings the title of the revived action shall be added to the original style: Miller v. Huddleston, W. N. 1881, 171; Secar v. Lawson, 16 Ch. D. 121.

Who may obtain order

Who may Apply.—Where an action becomes defective, by the death or transmission of interest of any of the parties, whether before or after judgment, the plaintiff, or in the case of the death of a sole plaintiff, then his representatives; or in the case of the death of one of several plaintiffs, then the surviving plaintiff, or in the case of an assignment or transmission of the plaintiff's interest inter vivos, then his assignee, are the proper parties to apply for an order to continue the action; because the carriage of the action rests with them. If the plaintiff, or his representative, or a surviving plaintiff, or assignee, does not take out an order to continue the proceedings in due course, it is open to the opposite party to move to limit a time for him to do so, and, in default of his so doing, either to dismiss the action for want of prosecution, or, if after judgment, to stay all farther proceedings; see supra, p. 608; for there does not appear to be any authority enabling a defendant to take out such an order, except in a case where he is entitled to assume the carriage of the action as plaintiff; or where he seeks to continue the action for the purpose of recovering costs: Rule 404.

Where a sole plaintiff in an administration action died, an order to continue the action was granted to a person who had been served with notice of the judgment, and had obtained liberty to attend the proceedings, he being held to be in the same position as a party to the action: Burstell v. Fearon, 24 Ch. D. 126. The personal representative of the plaintiff might obtain an order to continue the proceedings: Dyer v. Painter, W. N. 1881, 105. But a person who has not obtained such liberty to attend proceeding cannot obtain an order under this Rule, as he is not a party: Delaney v. Delaney, 27 Sol. Jour. 418. See quære, whether in either case such a person becomes party to the proceedings: see notes to Rule 293, p. 372. It has been held that in a case of transmission of interest of a party served with notice of judgment, an order under this Rule is not proper; and that the successor should be served with notice of the judgment: Re Wicks, W. N. 1888, 9.

Where two of several plaintiffs having separate causes of action died before trial, but, in ignorance of their death, the trial proceeded and the action was dismissed, an application by the executors of the deceased plaintiffs to continue the action was refused: Arnison v. Smith, 40 Ch. D. 507; and see Salton v. New Beeston Co., supra, p. 605.

An executor continuing an action becomes, as formerly, when he obtained an order of revivor under the old practice, liable for costs. Baynton v. Baynton, 5 Ch. D. 250; 4 App. Cas. 733. So does an official liquidator continuing an action commenced by the company. Re London Drapery Stores, 1898, 2 Ch. 684. Rule 396
Liability for costs

An order of revivor is in force from its service, and notice of trial served within 14 days after such service, for a day after the expiration of the 14 days, was held good: New York Piano Co. v. Stevenson, 10 P. R. 270.

Where on the death of the sole defendant after notice of trial, persons in whom his interest vested were added as defendants, it was held that new notice of trial to them was necessary: Johnston v. English, 55 L. T. 55; 35 W. R. 29; W. N. 1886, 131.

On the death of an accounting party the Court may, on an ex parte motion, order the action to continue between continuing parties and the executor of deceased, notwithstanding that the executor is resident out of the jurisdiction: Jamieson v. Marshall, 46 L. T. 480; and see Rule 102 (4), 401, and Rule 3; but see Morrice v. Smart, 73 L. T. Jour. 338.

If an action becomes defective by the birth, since its commencement, of an infant who is a necessary party thereto, and proceedings, since its birth, have been taken in the action, the common order under this Rule will not render such proceedings binding on the infant. A special form of order to meet this case will be found in Seton, 4th ed., 1527, Form 3, 5th ed., 102, and Peter v. Peter, 26 Ch. D. 181. See also Re Gould, 51 L. T. 417.

Where a party becomes a lunatic pending action, as to continuance of the action by his committee, see Re Green, 41 L. T. 30; 48 L. J. Chy. 1881.

After the death of a judgment debtor, an order for a receiver of his estate cannot be made without representation of the deceased's estate: Re Shepherd, 43 Ch. D. 131; Norburn v. Norburn, 1894, 1 Q. B. 448; 70 L. T. 411.

In Wallis v. Smith, 16 L. T. 473; 51 L. J. Chy. 577, a judgment creditor who had obtained an order attaching a judgment debt, was held entitled to be added under this Rule as co-plaintiff with his debtor, in the action in which the debtor had obtained the judgment, and to have notice of all proceedings taken in that suit to recover the debt. This decision proceeded to a great extent upon the terms of Eng. Ord. 50, R. 2 (1883, R. 159), which applied to the case of the devolution of estate by operation of law, and has not been adopted in the Ontario Act, or Rules; but see Rule 3.

This Rule is not inapplicable to the case where there is a transmission of interest by reason of a subsequent incumbrancer having redeemed the plaintiff in a foreclosure suit. In such case, a new account may probably be taken under Rule 753 without order.

Where the plaintiff died after judgment, and the defendant desired to move to set aside the judgment, an order obtained by the defendant to continue the proceedings in the name of the executor of the deceased plaintiff, was upheld: Chambers v. Kitchin, 16 P. R. 219; 17 P. R. 3; and quere, see Rule 403; Faraham v. Mallward, 1895, 2 Ch. 730; Watson v. Watson, 6 P. R. 229; Cameron v. Eager, 6 P. R. 117; Chowick v. Dixon, 3 Rev. 204. The only case in which a defendant would seem entitled to obtain such an order after Rule 394. Judgment is where he has an interest in enforcing the judgment. In such a case, if he obtains the order, he should make himself plaintiff and the representatives of the deceased plaintiff defendants. See Burstell v. Foulon, 24 Ch. D. 126; but see Danl. Pr., 6th ed., 289.

Appeal.

Where an appeal to the Court of Appeal becomes defective by death, transmission of interest, or other cause, proceedings to continue the appeal by or against the proper parties should be taken under this Rule, and in the Court of first instance: Grasett v. Carter, 6 Ont. 384. The appeal is a step in the cause or matter. Re 798, and the present Rule being applicable, the express provision of the same effect made by R. S. O. 1877, c. 138, s. 40, was omitted as unnecessary in the Revision of the Statutes and Rules in 1888. See also Ranson v. Patten, 17 Ch. D. 767; Re Knight, Knight v. Gower, 84 L. T. Jour. 205; 32 Sol. Jour. 160.

Costs of Order.—The costs of an order to continue proceedings are recoverable as part of the costs of the cause: Girardot v. Webster, 10 P. R. 201.

The costs of an order under this Rule were allowed in Mitchell v. Barrett, 3 C. L. T. 265.

Delay.—There is no time limited for reviving. If, therefore, a defendant does not move under Rule 403, prima facie, an order to continue is regular. Ardagh v. York, 17 P. R. 194. It would seem, however, that there is not an unlimited right to revive proceedings, and if undue delay takes place in obtaining the order it may be set aside: see Lemercier v. Macaulay, 20 Ont. App. 421; Jay v. Johnston, 1 Q. B. 25; see also Curtis v. Sheffield, 20 Ch. D. 338; 21 Ch. D. 1; Mickelthwait v. Vachonour, W. N. 1893, 61; Fussell v. Donding, 27 Ch. D. 237; Re Leslie, 23 Ont. 143; and where there is undue delay in taking out the order to continue the proceedings, the defendant may move to limit the time for so doing, and if default to dismiss, or stay the action: see supra, p. 408, and Rule 401.

Dismissal of Action on Failure to Revive.—See Rule 403 and note.

Actions Against Partnership, Firms.—Where a partner dies between service of the writ of summons and judgment, the action may continue without an order, but judgment can only be enforced against his surviving partners, and the partnership assets: Ellis v. Wadson, 1899, 1 Q. B. 714, 719.

Counter-claims, petitions, etc.

Counter-claims, etc.—A counter-claim may be revived, in the same way as an original action, by the representatives of the deceased counter-claiming defendant: Andrew v. Aitkin, 21 Ch. D. 175; see also Lumsden v. Winter, 8 Q. B. D. 650.

As to the case of consolidated actions: see Re Wortley, 4 Ch. D. 180.

The Rules on this subject apply to petitions as well as actions: Re Atkins, 1 Ch. D. 82; Re Dwyer, W. N. 1878, 199.

Execution.

Execution.—Where, after judgment, it is merely desired to issue execution, and rights or liabilities have become changed by death or otherwise, the person seeking to issue execution may proceed under Rule 501; but where it is sought to appoint a receiver by way of equitable execution, the representatives of the deceased debtor must be brought before the Court, by order to continue proceedings and this Rule, before the motion for a receiver can be entertained: Re Rule 397.

 70 L. T. 411.

Where the solicitor of a deceased plaintiff issued execution without reviving, it was held that a motion might be made by defendant to set it aside without first reviving the action: Chambers v. Kitchen, 16 P. 210; 17 P. R. 3.

Where it becomes necessary to enforce a judgment against persons who have subsequently acquired a title, an action must be brought for the purpose: Atty.-Gen. v. Cor. of Birmingham, 15 Ch. D. 423.

Examples.—Where the plaintiff died within fourteen days from Examples.
 trial, the Court made an order, on the application of his executors, continuing proceedings, the executors undertaking to apply forthwith for probate, and to produce the same at the trial of the action if obtained: Hughes v. West, 13 L. R. 1r. 224.

Two sons were under their father's will appointed trustees on attaining twenty-one, and an administration action was commenced on the elder attaining that age, in which the infant son was a plaintiff, and the other a defendant as trustee. Upon the infant attaining twenty-one and becoming a trustee and thus changing his interest and liability, an order was made ex parte making the infant son a co-defendant: Re Gould, Gould v. Gould, 51 L. T. 417; W. N. 1881, 183.

In an action on a promissory note, where the defendant became bankrupt, it was held that the trustee should not be added, as the judgment would not be for recovery, but would only amount to a declaration of a right to prove, which ought to be made in the bankruptcy proceedings: Butler v. Deben, 7 Q. B. D. 413.

Where a petitioner had died after an order directing inquiries, it was ordered that the petition be carried on by the executors: Re Ullin's Estate, 1 Ch. D. 82. See note to sec. 2 of the Act.

Costs.—The person by, or against whom, the action is continued, Costs.
 becomes liable to be ordered to pay the whole costs, both those incurred before, as well as those incurred after, the order: Beggs v. Beanton, 9 Ch. D. 250; 4 App. Cas. 733; Watson v. Holliday, 20 Ch. D. 780; Vint v. Hudspeth, 30 Ch. D. 24; Bornemann v. Wilson, 28 Ch. D. 73; School Board, etc. v. Wall, 35 Sol. Jour. 527; Re London Drapery Stores, 1898, 2 Ch. 684.

Where the action on the death of one of several plaintiffs survives to the others, they are liable for the whole costs to the defendant, without regard to the estate of the deceased: Asplen v. Seddon, W. N. 1877, 207.

397. An order so obtained shall, unless the Court or a Judge otherwise directs, be served upon the continuing parties, or their solicitors, and upon the new party, and the order shall from the time of such service, subject nevertheless to the next five following Rules, be binding on the person served therewith. Con. Rule 623.

The Eng. 1883, R. 182 names two instead of five following Rules, those two being the Rules corresponding with 398 and 400 infra; the other three here following Rules are not taken from the English Rules.

Rules398-400.

The English Rule has the following additional words at the end of the Rule: "and every person served therewith who is not already a party to the cause or matter shall be bound to enter an appearance thereto within the same time and in the same manner as if he had been served with a writ of summons." The Ontario Rules do not require an appearance to be entered by the person served.

Application to discharge
order.

398. A person served with such order who is under no disability, or under no disability other than coverture, or who being under any disability other than coverture, has a guardian ad litem, may apply to the Court or a Judge to discharge or vary the order at any time within 14 days from the service thereof. Con. Rule 624.

Same as the Eng. 11883 R. 181, except that the time there limited is 12 days.

This Rule is very similar in its terms to Chy. O. 239, under which it was held to be not sufficient to give notice of the motion to discharge within the time allowed, but the motion had to be made returnable within that time; Harris v. Myers, 16 Gr. 117; Jackson v. Gardiner, 2 Chy. Ch. 387; 15 Gr. 425; Mellroy v. Hawk, 3 Chy. Ch. 44; see Per v. Wallis, 2 C. P. D. 15. The time may be extended, see Smith v. Ginn, 2 Chy. Ch. 230, and Rule 353. The motion was formerly made to the Court and set down for the proper day, but quære whether it may not under the present Rule be made in Chambers.

A notice of trial served before the 14 days had expired, for a trial commencing after the 14 days was held good, no motion against the order having been made; New York Paving Co. v. Stevenson, 10 P. R. 273.

Previous delay in the prosecution of the action is no ground for discharging the order, the defendant not having moved to dismiss; Adolph v. York, 17 P. R. 184; but if the Statute of Limitations has barred the claim, the order may be discharged; see Lemercure v. Macdonald; and Jay v. Johnston, in note to Rule 396.

Indorse-
order.

399. Upon every copy of such order served there shall be indorsed a memorandum according to Form 51. Con. Rule 625.

No form is given in the Eng. Rule.

For Form 51, see H. & L. Forms, No. 456.

Application to discharge order by persons under disability.

400. A person served with such order, who is under any disability other than coverture, and has not a guardian ad litem, may apply to the Court or a Judge to discharge or vary the order, at any time within 14 days from the appointment of a guardian ad litem, and until such period of 14 days has expired the order shall have no force or effect as against him. Con. Rule 626.

Same as the Eng. 11883 R. 184. See Rules 401, 402.

As to the grounds for discharging an order, see Dan. Pr., 6th ed., Rules 301; Rule 308 and note; Hurstall v. Pearson, 24 Ch. D. 128; Jay v. Johnston, 1893, 1 Q. B. 25. 401-403.*

401. [The time allowed to a party served out of Ontario to apply to discharge the order shall be that limited by the order allowing the service to be effected. Rule of 25 June, 1898.]

Applies
then to discharge order then served out of Ontario.

Not taken from any English Rule.

The Rule of 25th June, 1898, repeals Rule 401 and substitutes the above Rule. See Ont. Gazette, 23 July, 1898, p. 743.

402. Where service by publication is ordered, the Court or Judge shall appoint a time for applying to discharge the order. Con. Rule 628.

Applies
then to case of order allowing service by publication.

Not taken from any Eng. Rule.

403. Where an action would but for these Rules have abated by reason of death, and proceedings may be continued under these Rules, the defendant or person against whom the action may be so continued, may apply on notice to compel the plaintiff or person entitled to proceed with the action, to proceed according to the provisions of these Rules within such time as the Court or a Judge may order, or in default for an order dismissing the action or for payment of the costs thereof or for such order as may seem just. Con. Rule 629.

Right of defendant
in action
to which may be so continued.

Taken from R. S. O. 1877, c. 50, ss. 241, 242; c. 38, s. 10.

See Eng. (1884) R. 187, and Duke v. Davis, 1891, 2 Q. B. 290.

The procedure pointed out by this Rule appears to be the proper course for a defendant or his representative to take, and not (as was suggested in Murray v. Wutch, 19 P. R. 288), himself to issue an order to continue proceedings; unless he is entitled to assume the position of plaintiff and take the carriage of the action; see supra, Rule 300, and note; or is seeking to recover costs; see Rule 404.

In Wignanc v. Thompson, 11 Ch. D. 419, the Court acting under 15 & 16 Vict. c. 56, s. 44 (see Rule 1944), appointed a person to represent the estate of a deceased plaintiff, who died insolvent and intestate, so that the defendant might have somebody against whom to move to have the action dismissed for want of prosecution.

See Oshawa Cabinet Co. v. Note, in note to Rule 248.

Under the former Chancery Practice if the representatives of a deceased sole plaintiff did not revive when served with an order limiting a time for doing so, the action was dismissed without costs; Pugh v. Pitt, 3 W. R. 100; Hill v. Gaud, 9 W. R. 68. Under Rule 403 an order may be made for payment of costs. If the defendant moving intends to press for a dismissal with costs his proper course would seem to be to include a claim to that effect in his notice of motion to compel the plaintiff to revive.

Rules

404-406. Where a sole plaintiff died after judgment, and defendant desired to move to set aside the judgment, see Chambers v. Küchen, 16 P. R. 219; 17 P. R. 3.

Costs.

404. Where a judgment or order has been made for payment of costs and the action or matter would, but for these Rules, have abated, any person interested under the judgment or order may continue the proceedings and thereupon enforce the judgment or order. Con. Rule 630.

Taken from R. S. O. 1877, c. 40, s. 102. Formerly in Equity a suit could not be revived for costs payable by the deceased party personally, unless the costs had been taxed before the abatement of the suit, or unless in addition to the costs a duty was decreed which remained unexecuted: Sm. Pr., 6th ed., 728.

Sequible, where a defendant, under this Rule, seeks to continue proceedings for the purpose of recovering costs due by a deceased plaintiff, he should make himself plaintiff, and the representatives of the deceased plaintiff defendants, by the order to continue the proceedings; he cannot properly bring the latter into the action as plaintiffs, because that would be imposing on them a personal liability for past costs: see note to Rule 396.

In Gunn v. Harper, 3 O. L. R. 693, where the plaintiff died after argument of an appeal, but before the giving of judgment; on the appeal being dismissed with costs, it was held that the defendants were entitled to the appointment of an administrator ad litem to represent the plaintiff's estate, in order that the costs of the action and of the appeal might be recovered, the deceased plaintiff having no assets in the Province, but having given a bond, securing the costs of the appeal.

15. PAYMENT INTO AND OUT OF COURT, GENERALLY.

Mode of payment into Court.

405. Subject to Rule 429, money required to be paid into Court shall be paid into the Canadian Bank of Commerce at Toronto, or in some branch of said bank, or into any chartered Bank being its agent in this Province, and in no other way. Rules 23 June, 1894, 1294. Con. Rules 164, 165.

The Accountant is the only proper person to receive payment into Court: Leroux v. Lanthier, 2 C. L. T. 481; except in the cases provided for by Rule 429.

Where payment into Court was ordered, payment to the solicitor of the party entitled to the money was held not to be a ground for dispensing with its payment into Court: Blackburn v. Sheriff, 1 Chy. Ch. 208.

Directions to pay in.

406. (1) The person paying money into Court shall obtain from the Accountant, Local Registrar, Deputy Registrar, or Deputy Clerk of the Crown, a direction to the Bank to receive the money. Con. Rule 166.

(2) When money is required to be paid into Court to the credit of the Assurance Fund, established under the Land Titles Act, the direction to receive the money, if the same is payable into a bank in Toronto, shall be obtained from the Master of Titles, and if payable into a bank outside of Toronto the direction shall be obtained from the proper Local Master of Titles. Rule 1254.

407-410.

407. (1) The person applying for the direction shall leave a praecipe therefor according to Form No. 42, or Form 43, and the judgment or order under which the money is payable, together with a copy thereof and of the report where necessary, which is to be on good paper of foolscap size folded together lengthwise, and is to be verified by an officer in the Accountant's office, and to be retained by the Accountant. In case the direction is obtained elsewhere than in Toronto, these papers with the necessary postage for their re-transmission are to be sent to the Accountant.

obtain

(2) The copy so verified shall be marked with a number corresponding with that of the account, and shall be bound and kept for reference in a book to be called the "Order Book." Rule 1274. See Ont. Gaz., 31 Dec. 1904.

For Forms 42 and 43, see H. & L. Forms, Nos. 390, 391.

408. Where the direction is issued elsewhere than in Toronto, the officer issuing the same shall, on the same day, transmit to the Accountant by post the praecipe for such direction together with the papers left on the application therefor. Con. Rule 168; Rules 23 June, 1894, 1296.

Dates of
infants in orders.

Payment
out of Court.

411. An order for payment of money into Court on behalf of, or as the property of, an infant shall, unless otherwise directed, state the date of the birth of the infant. New.

See Rule 418.

412. Money shall be paid out of Court upon the cheque of the Accountant, countersigned by the Registrar of the Court of Appeal, or in the case of his absence, the Junior Registrar of the High Court of Justice, this Rule to take effect forthwith without being published in The Gazette, Rule 1229.

The Committee of Judges charged with the supervision of the financial affairs of the Court has given the following directions (dated 18th Sept., 1890), to the officers of the Court:—

1. As a general rule all orders affecting money in Court, ought to be entitled in the cause or matter to the credit of which the said money is standing in Court where there is any such cause or matter; and in cases where money has been, by mistake, paid into Court to the credit of some non-existing cause or matter, the order correcting the mistake should be entitled in the cause or matter to the credit of which the money was intended to be paid into Court, and should rectify the mistake; and—

2. All orders affecting the moneys in Court of infants or other persons under disability, ought to be made on the application of such persons, by their guardians, next friends, or committees, as the case may be; or, if made on the application of any other person, it should appear by the order that the person under disability whose money is sought to be affected, had due notice of, and, if so, was properly represented on the application.

Vacation.

413. Cheques shall not be issued during the Long Vacation unless the præcipe therefor is lodged in the Accountant's office on or before the 20th day of July, unless otherwise ordered by a Judge. Rule 1251 of 28 Nov., 1903.

Approval
by a Judge.

414. (1) Where an order for payment of money out of Court is made otherwise than by a Judge of the Supreme Court sitting either in Court or in Chambers, the Accountant before acting thereon shall apply to a Judge of the High Court for his approval, which he may manifest by signing his initials to the order with or without any other words; and, before approving, the High Court Judge, if he sees occasion, may call for any of the papers in the cause, or if necessary require the solicitor who obtained the order, or his agent, to attend before him to give any explanation or information he may think necessary. Rules 1 Jan., 1896, 1422.

(2) An order dispensing with the payment of money into Court unless it is made by a Judge of the Supreme Court shall not be acted on unless or until a Judge of the High Court has manifested his approval thereof in manner provided by sub-section 1. Rule 1349 of 23 June, 1903.

415, 416.

415. Every cheque shall be initialed by the Chief Clerk in the Accountant's office before the same is presented for the signature of the Accountant or other officer. Con. Rule 175.

Cheques to be initialed by Chief Clerk.

416. The person entitled to a cheque shall produce and leave with the Accountant the orders and reports entitling such person to the money, and shall file a proteipce according to Form No. 43. Con. Rule 176. Rules 24 March and June, 1894, 1301.

On application for payment out, orders and reports produced

For Form 43, see H. & L. Forms, No. 391.

Moneys in Court are considered to be in custodia legis: see Alistair v. Goetner, 31 Ont. 495; and if improperly paid out may, on a summary application, be ordered to be refunded: Id. Where the mistake has not been induced by any fraud or improper dealing by the payee or his solicitor or agent, interest will not be charged: Id.; but where he obtains an order for payment without any colour of right, he may be ordered to refund the amount with interest at the rate allowed by the Court: see Hogbourne v. Receiver-General, 28 S. C. R. 192.

Where one member of a firm or partners was cognizant of a fraudulent application to the Court, whereby money was improperly paid out to a party not entitled, it was held that each member of the firm was liable to refund it, including those who were ignorant of the fraud: Brydges v. Braffill, 12 Sim. 389; and see Atkinson v. Mackintosh, L. R. 2 Eq. 570; St. Aubyn v. Smart, L. R. 3 Chy. 646; Dun-Donald v. Mastecaana, L. R. 7 Eq. 594; Plummer v. Geogogan, L. R. 18 Eq. 621; Cleather v. Tivendale, 24 Ch. D. 731; 40 L. T. 633; 28 Ch. D. 340; 52 L. T. 330; Rhodes v. Moules, 1895, 1 Ch. 236; 71 L. T. 599; Marsh v. Joseph, 1897, 1 Ch. 213; 74 L. T. 412; 75 L. T. 558; Thompson v. Robinson, 15 Ont. 662; 16 Ont. App. 175; Bath v. Bath, 1904, 1 Ch. 460; 84 L. T. 107; but see Re McCaughey & Walsh, 3 Ont. 425.

improperly receiving money to
on Court.

Where a solicitor allowed his name to be used in an application for payment by a third person, who by forged affidavits and powers of attorney succeeded in getting the fund into his hands, out of which he paid the solicitor a portion, and absconded with the balance, the solicitor was held liable for the whole fund, both what he actually received and what he did not, though ignorant of the fraud: Slater v. Shore, 1897, 1 Ch. 222, note; 78 L. T. 149; and see Re Spence, 21 L. T. 808; and Marsh v. Joseph, supra.

Where money is improperly ordered to be paid out of Court to parties not entitled, without fraud, but through the negligence of a solicitor, he is liable to the parties injured thereby for the consequences: Re Douglass, 60 L. T. 491; 41 Ch. D. 178.

Rules417, 418.Refunding of money paid out by mistake.

Where money has been ordered to be paid out of Court upon a mistake of facts: Fisken v. Wride, 13 Gr. 419, or to persons having no title: Hogaboom v. Receiver-General, 28 S. C. R. 192; it will upon summary application be ordered to be refunded, and the Statutes of Limitations do not apply in such a case: Allstadt v. Gortner, 31 Ont. 495; and where a solicitor was directed to refund money which he had obtained out of Court, under an order which was subsequently rescinded, he was held to be liable to attachment for contempt in disobeying the order: Pritchard v. Pritchard, 18 Ont. 173.

Where an order for payment out of money in Court has been made inadvertently in error, the Court has inherent jurisdiction on the fact being brought to its notice, to rescind such order, and to order repayment into Court of the money so paid out: Hogaboom v. Receiver-General, supra; see per Gwynne, J., 28 S. C. R., at p. 205; and see per Burton, C.J., in Re Central Bank, 24 Ont. App. at p. 473; affirmed in Sup. Ct., 28 S. C. R. 192.

Where a sum of money was paid out of Court under an erroneous order, and was subsequently recovered, but without interest, it was held that a proportion of the amount recovered should, as between the tenant for life and remainderman, be treated as income: Re Cleveland Estate, 1895, 2 Cb. 542.

Where money paid into Court with a defence, which was misleading in its terms, was bona fide taken out of Court by the solicitor, and, with his client's consent, applied partly in payment of his costs, and the residue paid to the client, it was held that the solicitor was not personally liable to refund it: Davys v. Richardson, 21 Q. B. D. 202.

Consent of purchaser to payment out.

Purchase money is not paid out except either on proof being given to the Accountant of the purchaser having received a conveyance or vesting order, or upon the production of the written consent of the purchaser, or his solicitor: Rule 743; and see Daniel Pr., 6th ed., 1100.

A party declared by a foreign Court to be a prodigal, and for whom a council has been appointed, cannot be prevented by such council from obtaining money in Court to which he is entitled: Re Schot, 1902, 1 Cb. 488.

Orders dispensing with payment
into Court.

417. Orders dispensing with payment of money into Court, or certified copies thereof, shall be left with the Accountant forthwith after entry thereof. Rules 23 June, 1894, 1302.

Dates of birth of infants to be stated in reports and orders.

418. Unless otherwise directed by the Court or a Judge, money shall not be paid out of Court to a party or person named as an infant in the proceedings in the cause or matter, nor to any person on behalf of an infant, unless the date of the birth of such infant is stated in the Master's report, or the order for payment into Court as required by Rules 411 and 696. New.

See Rules 411 and 696.

Ordinarily, money of an infant will not be ordered to be paid out Rule 419. to the infant personally until he has attained his majority, but when a female infant was married and domiciled in a foreign country, and was 19 years of age, and by the law of the foreign country a female infant on marriage was entitled to receive moneys due to her, an order was made for payment to her of a fund in Court to which she was entitled, notwithstanding her infancy: Karanagh v. Lennon, 16 P. R. 229.

Applications for payment out of the money of an infant for support or maintenance should be made in the name of the infant, and not of the guardian to whom the money is to be paid: see note to Rule 412.

16. PAYMENT INTO COURT WITH A PLEADING, IN SATISFACTION.

419. A defendant may, either before (a) or at the time of delivering his defence, or afterwards by leave of the Court or a Judge, pay into Court a sum of money in satisfaction of the cause or a part of the cause of action, or one or more of the causes of action for which the plaintiff sues, and the money when so paid in shall remain in Court subject to further order, unless the plaintiff elects to take it out as provided in Rule 423. Con. Rule 632.

When defendant may pay in.

For the practice before this Rule was passed: see Wheeler v. United Telephone Co., 13 Q. B. D. 603; Rogers v. Loos, 11 P. R. 118; Bell v. Fraser, 12 Ont. App. 1.

(a) See Lomer v. Waters, 1898, 2 Q. B. 326.

This Rule is in many respects different from the English practice under Eng. (1883) Rs. 255-265:

(Comparison of practice in Eng. and Ont.)

(1) It is not confined to any particular kind of action. It therefore will at any rate apply in any "action to recover a debt or damages," which was the language of the original J. A. Rule 215 (as also of the present Eng. Rule 255), which extended the right theretofore existing at Law: see MacLennan Jnd. Act, 2nd ed., 349. The former Rule was held not to apply in an action where an account was claimed: Nichols v. Evans, 22 Ch. D. 611; this Rule is not confined to any particular class of actions, but whether it applies to a claim which is not for recovery of money has not been decided. The English Rule has been held not to apply so as (1) to compel a plaintiff who accepts money paid in "in respect of the causes of action complained of," to accept it in satisfaction, not only of damages incurred, but also of his claim to establish his right to an injunction; or (2) to enable a plaintiff who accepts the money paid in, to do so not only as a satisfaction of his own claim but also as in effect discharging him from liability on a counter-claim by the defendant, who has paid the money in: Cootte v. Ford, 1899, 2 Ch. 93; 80 L. T. 697.

(2) It enables the defendant to deny the plaintiff's causes of action, and, at the same time, pay into Court: see Rule 420; Berdan v. Greenwood, 3 Ex. D. 251; Hawkeley v. Bradshaw, 5 Q. B. D. 22, 302; Harper v. Davis, 19 Q. B. D. 170; even in actions for libel or slander: Hawkeley v. Bradshaw, supra, which are expressly excepted Rule 419. by the Eng. Rule; or to plead tender before action; Davis v. National Ass. Co., 16 P. R. 116. Quare, whether this is so in all cases, such as actions to try a right, or to establish a character which is assailed, or where fraud is charged; Berdan v. Greenwood, supra.

The principle is, that the Court ought not "to preclude defendants in actions from saying and doing that which, as practical men, before the action they might reasonably say and do, viz., say that they entirely deny a person's right to sue them, yet pay, or offer to pay, a sum of money as the price of peace, and for the prevention of further litigation"; Berdan v. Greenwood, 3 Ex. D. 259. In Spurr v. Hall, 2 Q. B. D. 615, an action for nuisance, the defendant was not allowed to plead payment into Court together with a denial of the right of action; but the subsequent cases make the propriety of that decision at least doubtful, and under this Rule the defendant's right so to do seems plain. See also Potter v. Home and Colonial Insurance Co., cited 2 Q. B. D. 622.

(3) The payment into Court is not to be an admission of liability; Rule 420. Under the Eng. Rule payment in satisfaction is an admission of liability of the cause of action in respect of which the money is paid into Court; but with his defence a defendant may (except in action for libel or slander; Fleming v. Dollar, 23 Q. B. D. 388) pay in money, and deny liability; Wheeler v. United Telephone Co., 13 Q. B. D. 507. See Henrich v. Davies, 1893, 1 Q. B. 367, 68 L. T. 220, where money was paid in generally, without specifying the cause of action. Under this Rule there is no exception of actions for libel or slander.

(4) Payment may be made in satisfaction of part of a cause of action, or of any one or more of several causes of action as well as of the whole action.

(5) The plaintiff may not take the money out, unless he accepts it in satisfaction of the cause of action in respect to which it was paid in; Rule 423.

Practice in Ct.

The result will be that notwithstanding any defence denying liability, the acceptance will satisfy the cause of action, and the costs, except as to costs, will come to an end, if the payment is in satisfaction of the whole cause of action; see Re Earl of Stamford, 33 W. R. 909, where plaintiff, after taking the money proceeded with the action, and was required to stop proceedings, or pay the money in again; see also Kane v. Mitchell, 13 P. R. 118.

Formerly the payment enabled the plaintiff to take the money out, not accepting it in full, and proceed with the action; and he might keep the money in the end, though his action failed; see Maclellan Ind. Act, 2nd ed., 37a. The money will, under the present Rule, remain in Court as the defendant's money, if not accepted by the plaintiff in satisfaction, to be dealt with by the Court in the judgment, or by other order in the action; see Maple v. Earl of Shrewsbury, 19 Q. B. D. 463; 35 W. R. 819. It will not be paid out on motion by the plaintiff, he not accepting it in full; Kane v. Mitchell, supra; and if the plaintiff fail to recover judgment for as much as the amount paid in, the defendant will be entitled to the surplus; Veale v. Reid, 117 L. T. Jour. 202.

It would seem also that it should be treated, while in Court, as the defendant's money, where it is paid in with a denial of liability, and plaintiff does not accept it, but proceeds to trial and recovers less; Gillmour v. Cowan, cited in Davis v. National Ass., 16 P. R. 119.

Gray v. Bartholemew, 1895, 1 Q. B. 209; 71 L. T. 867 (Islanders), and Rule 419 see under the dissimilar English Rules, Dunn v. Decon, 70 L. T. 223; 1895, 1 Q. B. 211 (n), (lbel).

Where the plaintiff did not elect to take the money out within the time limited by Rule 424, and judgment was given in favour of the defendant upon the cause of action in respect of which the money was paid in, but the judgment did not dispose of the money in Court, it was held that it remained in Court subject to the final order of the Court after the determination of the action, and must be disposed of in accordance with such determination. Plaintiff was held to be not entitled, after such judgment, to an order extending the time limited by Rule 424 by an order nunc pro tunc under Rule 453; Mugger v. Ferguson, 18 P. R. 201.

Even where liability is not denied the money must remain to be dealt with by the Court, if plaintiff does not elect to take it out under Rules 423 and 424; and, by reason of the plaintiff's not accepting at the proper time, the defendant may afterwards contend that the amount payable by him is less than the amount paid into Court; Jackson v. Woods, 17 P. R. 549; see Veale v. Reid, supra.

Where the money is not accepted in full, and the plaintiff does not succeed in obtaining more, it would seem that the defendant has established a defence to the whole action, entitling him to the general costs of it: see Wheeler v. United Telephone Co., 13 Q. B. D. 597; Gentard v. Carr, 13 Q. B. D. 598 n; Wood v. Leatham, 61 L. J. Q. B. 215; James v. Whitaker, 57 L. T. 219; and Kane v. Mitchell, supra; but he may nevertheless be liable to pay the costs of issues on which he fails: Hubbark v. British N. Borneo Co., 1901, 2 K. B. 473.

But see Buckton v. Higgs, 4 Ex. D. 174; Gretton v. Mees, 7 Ch. Costs. 1, 839; Best v. Osborn, 12 Times, 419, where the plaintiff was given costs up to the time of payment into Court, and defendant costs subsequent thereto. The Judge at the trial doubtless has a discretion under Rule 1130 to give defendant the whole costs of the action: see also Trickes v. For, 91 L. T. Jour. 30. In Small v. Lyon, 10 P. R. 222, where judgment was given for defendant with costs, it was held that the Taxing Officer had no alternative but to tax the defendant all his costs.

Where two defendants are entitled to put in separate defences, and one has paid money into Court exceeding the amount ultimately recovered in the action, the other defendant cannot avail himself of the payment into Court by his co-defendant as a satisfaction of the cause of action against himself, and, on failure of his defence, plaintiff is entitled to have judgment entered against him for costs: Penny v. Wimbledon Urban District, 1892, 2 Q. B. 72.

Where an order for summary judgment under Rule 603 is refused, and defendant is allowed to defend, on payment of money into Court as part security for the plaintiff's claim, the defendant cannot set up in his pleading that such payment into Court is in satisfaction of the plaintiff's claim: Mendels v. Gibson, 7 O. L. R. 411.

In an action against a husband and wife for a tort of the wife (n lbel) it was held that the husband and wife could not put in inconsistent defences, and therefore the husband paying money into Court, the wife could not plead denying liability: Beaumont v. Kane, 1901, 1 K. B. 292; but that was because in England a payment into Court is an admission of liability, which is not the case under Ont. Rules; see Rule 421.

Payment by by one of two defendants.

Rules. Where a defendant in an action of libel or slander pays money into Court by way of amends with his defence under R. S. O. c. 68, s. 7, he cannot in the event of his failing in his defence under s. 6 of the Act, treat the payment as made under Rule 419; Orlop v. Wilkes, 1808, 2 Q. B. 56.

As to payment into Court in actions for libel, see R. S. O. c. 68, s. 7; and in actions against Justices: R. S. O. c. 88, s. 17; and in proceedings between landlord and tenant: R. S. O. c. 170, s. 25. As to payment in by a third party, see Rates v. Burchell, W. N. 1886, 108.

As to the effect of payment into Court on the question of costs, see notes to Rule 1252.

Payment
not to be an admission.

420. Payment of money into Court shall not be deemed an admission of the cause of action in respect of which it is paid. Con. Rule 632.

The Eng. (1883) R. 255 provides that the defendant by payment into Court shall be taken to admit the claim or cause of action in respect of which the payment is made, unless he denies liability, in which case Rule 260, which is somewhat similar to the Ont. Rules 419, 423, and 424, applies. See Cooke v. Ford, 1890, 2 Ch. 363 in note to Rule 419, p. 621.

To be signed in defence.

421. Payment into Court shall be pleaded, and in the pleading the cause of action or part thereof, in respect of which the payment is made, shall be specified. Con. Rule 634.

Taken from Eng. (1883) R. 254.

A payment into Court in satisfaction of the whole or part of the plaintiff's claim may be made before, or after, the delivery of a defence: see Rules 419, 422.

In the case of a payment in before defence, if a defence is subsequently delivered, the payment in must be set up in the defence. Where the payment in is made after the delivery of the defence, the order granting leave should provide for the delivery of a supplementary defence, in order to set up the payment in as required by this Rule.

Where there are several causes of action or different heads of claim, money should not be paid in generally, without specifying the amounts applicable to the different causes of action or heads of the claim, where it can be done; otherwise particulars may be ordered. Thus, where plaintiff claimed (1) mesne profits, and (2) damages for dilapidation and non-repair of premises leased, the defendant paying in generally was ordered to give particulars apportioning the money paid in to the different heads of claim; Rare v. Kelly, 59 L. T. 139; W. N. 1888, 141. The Eng. Rule 263, corresponding to Rule 260 respecting particulars, was referred to.

In Parvire v. Eidl, 49 L. J. C. P. 481; 13 L. T. 427 (discussed in Rare v. Kelly), where plaintiff claimed for distinct services as defendant's architect, viz.: in preparing plans, acting as arbitrator, and making surveys, it was held that payment into Court generally was sufficient in point of pleading, but the question whether particulars should be ordered was not passed upon: see Bank of London v. Guarantee Co., 12 P. R. 490; Ocean Marine SS. Co. v. Ocean Marine Insurance Co., 2 Times 125.

422. A defendant paying money into Court before delivering his defence shall serve upon the plaintiff a notice stating that he has paid in the money, and specifying the claim or cause of action in respect of which the payment has been made. The notice may be according to Form No. 52. Con. Rule 634.

422-424.

Or by notice.

For Form No. 52, see H. & L. Forms, No. 397.

A defence delivered subsequently and simply denying liability was held not embarrassing: Anon., 31 Sol. Jour., 136, 139; but under Rule 420, the payment must be pleaded.

Where a motion for judgment is pending when the payment is made, the defendant is liable for the costs thereof: Re Lomer v. Waters, 1898, 2 Q. B. 526; 79 L. T. 81.

423 —(1) A plaintiff taking the money out of Court shall make it in satisfaction of the very cause of action, or part thereof, in respect of which it was paid in, and shall upon applying therefor file and serve a memorandum according to Form No. 53, which shall be equivalent to a satisfaction piece. Con. Rule 635.

How
plaintiff may take
of Court.

(2) In order to obtain the money out of Court the plaintiff shall file the said memorandum with the proper officer in the office where the pleadings in the action are filed, and where the pleadings are filed elsewhere than in Toronto the officer shall transmit to the Accountant the pleadings and memorandum with return postage. The pleadings and memorandum shall be returned by the Accountant to the officer from whom they were received. New.

The memorandum referred to in this Rule should be entered of record: see Rule 644.

424. The plaintiff shall make his election to take the money out of Court within four days after the day on which he receives notice of payment in, if the payment is made before defence, and if the money is paid in with the defence, he shall elect, either before replying or before the expiration of the time for replying, whichever first happens. Con. Rule 636.

Election.

Where the plaintiff does not elect, within the time provided by this Rule, to accept the money, the defendant may contend that it is Rule 425. more than the plaintiff is entitled to recover; see Denison v. Woods, n. note to Rule 419.

A plaintiff, who by mistake had accepted money paid in with a defence, was allowed to withdraw his acceptance: Chevalier v. Ross, 3 O. L. R. 219; and see Emery v. Webster, 9 Ex. 249, infra, Rule 425, p. 627-8. If the plaintiff elects not to accept the money paid in, and falls at the trial to recover judgment for as much as was paid in, the defendant paying it in is entitled to the surplus: Veale v. Reid, 117 L. T. Jour. 292; Gillmor v. Cowan, cited in Dura v. National Ass. Co., 10 P. R. p. 119; Maguire v. Ferguson, 18 P. R. 201. The money in Court is subject to the order of the Court, and must be dealt with as the rights of the parties ultimately appear: Id.; Rule 419.

Taxing
costs.

425. When the plaintiff takes out money in satisfaction of all the causes of action he may tax his costs of the action and sign judgment therefor, unless the defendant pays them within forty-eight hours after taxation. Con. Rule 637.

Instead of "all causes of action" the former Con. Rule 637 had "the entire cause of action."

The alteration is to make it clear that the satisfaction is to be such as to end the action; see Moon v. Dickinson, infra, and Barnes v. Jefferson, 11 Times, 435. Under the former Con. Law Practice, where payment into Court was pleaded as to part only, the plaintiff could not proceed at once to tax costs as to that cause of action: Cauty v. Gyll, 5 Sc. N. R. 819.

Whether this Rule gives the plaintiff an absolute right to the costs according to the scale of the Court in which the action is brought, irrespective of the amount brought into Court and accepted in satisfaction of the claim, and without any set-off of costs by the defendant, is the subject of a conflict of opinion: in the affirmative, see Babeock v. Standish, 19 P. R. 195, (a decision of a Divisional Court), followed by Britton, J., in McKelvey v. Chilman, 5 O. L. R. 263; and in the negative, see Chick v. Toronto Electric Light Co., 12 P. R. 58, (Rose, J., not referred to in Babeock v. Standish; and see Rule 1133; and Soloman v. Mulliner, 1901, 1 K. B. 76.

The weight of authority appears to be against the view that the costs ought to be taxed in accordance with the provisions of Rule 1133, where the money accepted in satisfaction might have been recovered in an inferior Court.

Where money is paid into Court in satisfaction of one of several claims, with a denial of liability, and the plaintiff proceeds with the action, but ultimately accepts the money paid in in satisfaction of all claims sued for, he is entitled to the costs of the claim in respect of which the money was paid into Court up to the time of payment, but must pay the defendant's costs of all other claims, and of all subsequent proceedings after payment in: Smith v. Northbach, 1902, 1 Ch. 197; and where in a case the plaintiff proceeds to trial and succeeds on some issues he is entitled to the costs of those issues though the amount recovered be less than the amount paid in: Wagstaffe v. Bentley, 1902, 1 K. B. 124; 85 L. T. 744; and see Ridout v. Green, 87 L. T. 679.

In an action for an injunction to restrain a nuisance, and for damages, the defendants denied liability and paid money into Court in satisfaction of the claim for damages. The plaintiff accepting the Rule 425 money in satisfaction of the claim for damages, was held not entitled to tax his costs, as the entire cause of action was not satisfied: Moore v. Dickinson, 38 W. R. 278; 63 L. T. 371; Cootte v. Ford, 1890, 2 Ch. 93; 80 L. T. 667.

The Eng. (1883) R. 261 provides for costs in a similar way, but adds "unless the Court or a Judge shall otherwise order."

It has been held that though only sixpence is paid into Court the plaintiff, if he takes it in satisfaction, is entitled to his costs: Mes. Sheffrey v. Lanagan, 20 L. R. Ir. 528; and if he accepts the money within the time allowed, he cannot be made liable for defendant's costs incurred between the dates of payment in and acceptance: Lomer v. Waters, 1898, 2 Q. B. 326.

See Suckling v. Gibbs, in note to Rule 430, p. 623.

If the plaintiff does not accept the money in satisfaction, he may become liable to pay the whole costs: see Bank of London v. Guarantee Co., 12 P. R. 499.

The costs may be taxed under this Rule without any judgment or order unless it becomes necessary to enforce payment, in which case the plaintiff may sign judgment after the expiration of 48 hours from the granting of the certificate of taxation.

But if the plaintiff accepts the money in full satisfaction of his claim, he will be treated as having discontinued the action as to the causes to which the money does not relate (though he should properly give notice of withdrawal of them), and may tax his costs of so much of the action as relates to the causes for which the money is paid: Melleraith v. Green, 14 Q. B. D. 766; 52 L. T. 81; but it would seem that defendant would be entitled to the costs of the causes abandoned by plaintiff, as upon a discontinuance: Smith v. North-leach, etc., 1902, 1 Ch. 197.

The plaintiff is not entitled to costs under this Rule where the money is paid in with a plea of tender and the plaintiff accepts it; but he must pay the defendant's costs: see Griffiths v. Ystradgynolun, 24 Q. B. D. 307; American Aristotype Co. v. Eakins, 7 O. L. R. 127.

If the plaintiff does not elect within the time given by Rule 424, probably his right to do so, and to tax costs, is gone: see Spencer v. Watts, 23 Q. B. D. 350; 67 L. T. 711. It was, however, held under original J. A. Rule 218, which gave the plaintiff 4 days after receipt of notice of payment within which to accept the money in satisfaction, that he might still apply under Rule 1130 for costs: Grevco v. Fleming, 4 Q. B. D. 226; see also Broadhurst v. Willey, W. N. 1876, 21; but quære, whether that will be so under the present Rules, by which the plaintiff has no right to the money by the mere payment of it into Court, but only in the event of his making an election under Rule 424; and see Babcock v. Standish, 19 P. R. 195.

For form of judgment for costs, see App. Form 151 (H. & L. Forms, No. 819).

If the plaintiff recovers less than the amount paid in, the defendant is entitled to the excess: Gillmor v. Cowan, cited in Davis v. National Ass., 10 P. R. 119; and where the plaintiff recovered only 20c. more than had been paid in in satisfaction, he was held entitled to full costs: Henderson v. Bank of Hamilton, 25 Ont. 641.

Where the plaintiff's solicitor, by mistake, accepted money paid in, and signed judgment for costs, the judgment, on application of the

Rules

426-428. plaintiff, was set aside, upon payment of costs, and the plaintiff was allowed to proceed with his action: Emery v. Webster, 9 Ex. 242; Chevalier v. Ross, 3 O. L. R. 219.

Consolidated actions.

426. Where money is paid into Court in two or more actions which are consolidated, [and the plaintiff proceeds to the trial of one, and fails.] the money paid in and the costs in all the actions shall be dealt with in the same manner as in the action tried. Con. Rule 638, amended.

Same as Eng. (1883) R. 262, except the words in brackets, which are now.

When plaintiff may pay in.

427. A plaintiff may, in answer to a counter-claim, pay money into Court in satisfaction thereof, subject to the like conditions as to costs and otherwise as upon payment into Court by a defendant. Con. Rule 639.

Same as Eng. (1883) R. 263; and see Hutchinson v. Barber, 7 L. T. 624.

Tender.

428. With a defence setting up a tender before action the sum of money alleged to have been tendered shall be brought into Court. Con. Rule 640.

Same as Eng. (1883) R. 257.

This Rule is similar to the former Common Law practice: see Chapman v. Hicks, 2 C. & M. 631, where it was held that if the sum tendered was not paid in, the plaintiff might sign judgment for the sum as to which tender was pleaded.

A defence may be set up denying liability as well as pleading tender: Davis v. National Assur. Co., 16 P. R. 116.

The Rule would seem to apply in a foreclosure suit, as well as in any other kind of action: see Kinnaird v. Trollope, 42 Ch. D. 610.

Payment into Court with a plea of tender before action is not an admission of the right of the plaintiff to bring the action: American Aristotype Co. v. Eukins, 7 O. L. R. 127.

As to tender and payment into Court in actions against Justices, see R. S. O. c. 88, s. 17.

Where a defence sets up a tender, it is not essential that the tender should be alleged to have been made before action, if the fact may be inferred from the other statements of the defence: Griffiths v. Ystradgynaf, 24 Q. B. D. 397.

The plaintiff cannot take the money out in satisfaction, and pay his costs as of course; the plea of tender raises an issue, which remains unsettled on the record, and in respect of it the defendants are entitled to go to trial: Id. If the plaintiff elects to take the money, he must take it in full of his claim, and the defendant thereupon becomes entitled to his costs: American Aristotype Co. v. Eukins, 7 O. L. R. 127.

Where under 3 Edw. vii. c. 19. ss. 469, 470, a municipal corporation ^{Rules} tenders amends or compensation for damages to the plaintiff or his ^{429, 430.} solicitor. It is expressly provided that, where the action is proceeded with, if no greater amount is recovered, the defendants shall be awarded costs of suit, to be set off against any amount awarded to the plaintiff.

In an action for wrongful dismissal where the defendant tendered one month's salary, pleading that the plaintiff was only entitled to that, or in the alternative to three months', and salary for three months was paid into Court, and the plaintiff was found entitled to one month's salary, it was held that, the action being for unliquidated damages, the Rule did not apply (see now, however, Rule 419), and defendant was entitled to a return of part of the money: Dacys v. Richardson, 20 Q. B. D. 722; but could not recover it from the plaintiff's solicitor, who had bonâ fide taken out the money and paid it over to the plaintiff: S. C. in appeal, 21 Q. B. D. 202.

Tender to a solicitor of a cheque, is not a good legal tender: Blumberg v. Life Interests Corp., 1897, 1 Ch. 171; 1898, 1 Ch. 27.

429. Money paid into Court with a defence at L'Original, ^{Payment with defence in certain towns} Bracebridge or Gore Bay, may, until a branch or agency of the Canadian Bank of Commerce is established at those places, be paid to the proper officer of the Court, who, for receiving the same, may exact a sum not exceeding one per cent. on the sum so paid in, and shall sign a receipt for the amount in the margin of the pleading, for signing which receipt he shall be entitled to twenty cents, and the sum so paid in may be paid out to the plaintiff, or to his solicitor upon a written authority from the plaintiff. Con. Rule 171; Rules 23 June, 1894, 1297.

(2) The officer receiving such money shall forthwith pay the same into Court as mentioned in Rule 405. New.

The fee payable to the officer under clause (1) of this Rule probably includes the amount necessary for stamp on payment in by the officer under clause (2).

17. DISCONTINUANCE.

430.—(1) [Subject to any special statutory provisions,] ^{Discontinuance.} the plaintiff may, at any time before receipt of the statement of defence of any defendant, or after the receipt thereof, before taking any other proceeding in the action (save an interlocutory application) by notice in writing, [filed and served,] wholly discontinue his action against such defendant or withdraw any part thereof; and the defendant shall be entitled to the costs of the action, if wholly discontinued against him.

Rule 430. or if not wholly discontinued, to the costs occasioned by the part withdrawn. [A plaintiff may discontinue as to one or more of several defendants.]

(2) Such costs may be taxed [upon production of the notice served without any order], and if not paid within four days from taxation the defendant may, without any order, sign judgment therefor.

(3) Such discontinuance or withdrawal, as the case may be, shall not be a defence to any subsequent action.

(4) Save as in these Rules otherwise provided, it shall not be competent for the plaintiff to discontinue the action without leave of the Court or a Judge, but the Court or a Judge may, before or at, or after the hearing or trial, upon such terms as to costs, and as to any other action against all or any of the defendants, and otherwise, (x) order the action to be discontinued, or any part of the alleged cause of complaint to be withdrawn. Con. Rule 641.

Substantially the same as the first three clauses of the Eng. (1883) Rs. 290 and 292, except the words in brackets, which are not in the Eng. Rules.

(x) Some such words as "as may be just," seem necessary to be supplied here: see Armstrong v. Armstrong, 9 O. L. R. 19, 20. The words "as may seem fit" were in Rule 641, from which this Rule is derived.

"Subject to any Special Statutory Provisions."—The reference is to such provisions as those contained in R. S. O. c. 86, ss. 17, 21.

The last clause in brackets in clause (1) is new: see Fox v. Hamilton Prov., 9 C. L. T. 197.

In clause (2) the passage in brackets was introduced to make clear the procedure which was not quite plain under the original J. A. Rule: see Bolton v. Bolton, 3 Ch. D. 276.

For form of judgment, see App. Form 152 (H. & L. Forms, No. 820).

present
Rule.

Scope of Present Rule.—The present Rule besides allowing the plaintiff, as formerly, to discontinue the whole action, authorizes the withdrawal of a part of his cause of complaint, or a discontinuance of the action against one or more of several defendants; formerly, at Law, the discontinuance could only be of the whole action: Benton v. Polkinghorne, 16 M. & W. 8. In Equity a partial discontinuance could be effected by amendment.

The power to withdraw part is, however, only where the part is severable from the rest of the claim: Bank of London v. Guarantee Co., 12 P. R. 499.

It was formerly held that a plaintiff could not serve notice of Rule 430, discontinuance against one of several defendants; and that his proper course was to obtain an order for leave to discontinue against such defendant: Fox v. Hamilton Prov. & L. Soc., 9 C. L. T. 197. The last sentence of clause (1) of Rule 430, makes a change in this respect.

Where a co-defendant, as against whom interlocutory judgment had been signed, is sued jointly for a libel, he is entitled to notice of the motion, and an order obtained without notice to him is irregular: Jennings v. Scripps, Divl. Court (14 Nov., 1903).

The words "before taking any other proceeding in the action" mean "before taking any proceeding with an intention of continuing the action," and do not include a step such as taking money out of Court, or bringing in money in satisfaction of a counter-claim: Spicer v. Watts, 23 Q. B. D. 350; and see Musman v. Boret, 40 W. R. 352; 66 L. T. 171.

The plaintiff cannot serve notice under this Rule on an infant until a guardian is appointed, and so escape the costs of the action: Ruth v. Taylor, 79 L. T. Jour. 211.

On a motion to set aside a discontinuance as irregular, leave was granted to discontinue on proper terms on a cross-motion of the plaintiff: Spiller v. Coghlan, 20 L. R. Ir. 32.

An action ought to be disposed of against all the parties to it. If, therefore, the defendant has become an unnecessary party owing to circumstances arising subsequent to the issue of the writ, the action should be dismissed, or discontinued, as against him: McLaughlin v. Stewart, 1 O. L. R. 295.

After judgment for the benefit of the plaintiff and other members of a class for which he sues, an action cannot ordinarily be dismissed even by consent of parties: see Arndery v. Thornton, 6 P. R. 190; but even in such an action the plaintiff remains dominus litis after judgment, and where there are no other unsatisfied members of the class, he may, on his own claim being satisfied, consent to an order staying all further proceedings: Re Alpha Co., Ward v. Alpha Co., 1903, 1 Ch. 203; 87 L. T. 646.

At any Time, etc.—The Rule permits a discontinuance before appearance: Moore v. S. Counties, etc., Bank, W. N. 1889, 156; but see in the case of an infant, Ruth v. Taylor, supra. It does not permit the plaintiff to discontinue his action after it has been entered for trial: Matthews v. Antrobus, 49 L. J. Chy. 80; and he has no right to demand to be non-suited at the trial. If he wishes to discontinue his action, at that stage, leave must be obtained under clause (4), or Rule 543; see Fox v. The Star, 1898, 1 Q. B. 636; 78 L. T. 311; 1900, A. C. 19; 81 L. T. 562.

The discontinuance is only of right, either before defence put in, or, if defence is put in, before taking any step, other than an interlocutory application.

If the statement of defence sets up matters arising after the issue of the writ, the truth of which the plaintiff cannot deny, and which afford a good answer in law, the plaintiff's proper course will be, not to discontinue, but to enter a confession of the defence under Rule 295.

Form.—The form of discontinuance will be found in the Appendix Form No. 56 (H. & L. Forms, No. 561). Form of notice.

Rule 430. Under the English Rule (which does not contain the words as to the notice being filed and served), it was held that a written notice by the plaintiff's solicitor as follows: "We are instructed to proceed no further in the action," was a sufficient notice: The Pommerania, 4 P. D. 195; but a letter saying "We shall discontinue this action, and take out of Court the amount paid in, and tax our costs. We will send formal notice to-morrow," is not a notice of discontinuance within the Eng. R. and a fortiori not within this Rule: Moon v. Dickinson, 38 W. R. 278; 63 L. T. 371; see also Brooking v. Mandalay, 55 L.T. 343.

It is not necessary for the plaintiff to ascertain the amount of defendant's costs and pay them in order to make the notice of discontinuance effectual: Barry v. Hartley, 15 P. R. 376.

Effect of discontinuance.

Effect of Discontinuance.—The Rule is express (clause 3), that by a discontinuance there is no res judicata; see also The Kronprinz, 12 App. Cas. 256, (where the same action was revived); United Telephone Co. v. Tasker, 59 L. T. 852.

A discontinuance filed by a plaintiff has been held not to have the effect of discontinuing a counter-claim set up in the action: Mellorau v. Middleton, 11 Q. B. D. 464, (overruling Favasseur v. Krupp, 15 Ch. D. 474); but a counter-claim which the defendant could only assert by virtue of the plaintiff's submitting to the jurisdiction and suing the defendant, will be put an end to by the plaintiff's discontinuance: Dominion Burglary Guarantee Co. v. Wood, 3 O. L. R. 365; and a discontinuance in a vendor's action for specific performance puts an end to defendant's right, if any, to move for judgment for specific performance on admissions: Lye v. McConnell, 5 O. W. R. 326.

An appeal by the plaintiff will be thereby discontinued: Combeare v. Lewis, 13 Ch. D. 469. Where, however, a plaintiff, who had given an undertaking as to damages, discontinued his action, it was held that the Court would nevertheless direct a reference as to damages: Newcomen v. Coulson, 7 Ch. D. 764.

The discontinuance of the action is no bar to a motion by a plaintiff, whose name has been used without authority, to have his name strack out of the proceedings; and to compel the solicitor acting without authority to pay the costs: Gold Reefs of W. Australia v. Dawson, 1897, 1 Ch. 115.

Costs.

Costs.—The defendant has an absolute right to all costs of the action, and they are not in the discretion of the Judge under Rule 1130; see The St. Olaf, 2 P. D. 113; The J. H. Henkes, 12 P. D. 106. The costs will include costs made costs in the cause on an application on which the plaintiff succeeded: The St. Olaf, supra.

Leave to discontinue is only granted on payment of the costs: The J. H. Henkes, 12 P. D. 106.

The defendant is entitled to costs though the plaintiff discontinues before appearance: Moore v. N. Counties, etc., Bank, W. N. 1889, 156.

Costs of work in preparing, briefing, or otherwise relating to affidavits, etc., properly and not prematurely done, down to the time of discontinuance, are taxable: Harrison v. Leutner, 16 Ch. D. 559.

It was formerly held that as this Rule only applies to an "action" it could not be made use of in an interpleader issue: Hogaboom v. Gillies, 16 P. R. 402. See now Rule 6 (c).

A reasonable time will be given to defendant within which to apply Rule 430. for an appointment to tax his costs, before an appointment will be granted to the plaintiff to tax interlocutory costs to which he may be entitled: Barry v. Hartley, 15 P. R. 376.

Where a plaintiff gives notice of discontinuance, and the defendant's costs are taxed, judgment must be signed therefor, in case of non-payment, before execution to enforce payment can be issued: see clause (2). The English practice is different: see Bolton v. Bolton, 3 Ch. D. 276.

An order of a Master which stayed an action on payment of costs, was varied by substituting the word "discontinued" for "stayed," to prevent the possibility of the action being again proceeded with: Anon., W. N. 1876, 40; 2 Charl. C. Ca. 38.

Where, on a motion under the Eng. Rule corresponding to Rule 603, the defendant was ordered to pay money into Court as to part of the claim, and was given leave to defend as to the remainder, and the plaintiff afterwards discontinued, the costs were held to be not governed by this Rule, but were in the discretion of the Court under Rule 1130, and plaintiff was given costs up to the time of payment into Court: Suckling v. Gabb, 36 W. R. 175.

The rule whereby the plaintiff in a creditor's administration action is precluded from discontinuing his action after judgment does not apply to a debenture holder's action, the reason being that in a creditor's action the Court, by directing in the judgment that the estate shall be applied in due course of administration, takes upon itself the duty of administering the assets, whereas no such direction is contained in the usual judgment in a debenture holder's action: Re Alpha Co., 1903, 1 Ch. 203; and see Re Rit. & New Hamburg, 4 O. L. R. 639, supra, p. 344.

Discontinuance by Leave.—In a test action, the plaintiff asked for a postponement of the trial, or that an order for discontinuance might be made; the Court held that it could not regard the rights of the plaintiffs in the other actions, but must act as if the plaintiff had not appeared at the trial, and dismissed the action: Robinson v. Chadwick, 7 Ch. D. 878.

Where a case had been referred to arbitration, and the arbitrator found in favour of defendant as to all but a small part, leave to discontinue was refused: Stahlschmidt v. Walford, 4 Q. B. D. 217; see also Mattheus v. Antrobus, 40 L. J. Chy. 80.

On a motion for leave to discontinue, the Court has no jurisdiction to give the plaintiff any costs where the defence, if undisputed, or if it were established, would disentitle the plaintiff to maintain the action: Lambton v. Parkinson, 35 W. R. 545; see also Dicks v. Yates, 18 Ch. D. 76.

It has been held that, on the application of a plaintiff admitting the defence, a Judge, under this Rule, has jurisdiction to order a stay of all proceedings, and to dispose of the costs: Musman v. Borst, 66 L. T. 171; 40 W. R. 352; Armstrong v. Armstrong, 9 O. L. R. 14.

Where the action is against two defendants jointly, each defendant is entitled to notice of a motion to discontinue against either of them even though interlocutory judgment may have been signed against one of them: Jennings v. Cripps (Divisional Court, 14 Nov., 1904).

Rules
431, 432.
Withdrawal of defence.

431. A defendant may, with the leave of the Court or a Judge (x), withdraw his defence or counter-claim, or any part thereof, upon such terms as may seem just. Con. Rule 642.

Same in effect as Eng. (1883) R. 290, last clause.

(x) Here the former Con. Rule 642 had "but not otherwise." The omission does not alter the effect of the Rule.

One of the defendants, in an action for the recovery of land, was allowed to withdraw his defence after the action had been in the paper for trial, but had been postponed till another action relating to the same property should be ready for trial, upon the terms of giving to the plaintiffs all the relief to which they could be entitled at the trial, and paying the costs occasioned by the defence, and the costs of a summons for leave to withdraw: Real & Personal Advance Co. v. McCarthy, 14 Ch. D. 188. The costs only which were occasioned exclusively by the defence were allowed: Ib.

A defence put in fraudulently, and without authority, was allowed to be withdrawn: Williams v. Preston, 20 Ch. D. 672.

As to withdrawal of defence of infants, see Fitzwater v. Waterhouse, 52 L. J. Chy. 83; Gardner v. Tapling, 33 W. R. 473.

18. DISMISSAL OF ACTION FOR WANT OF PROSECUTION.

On failure to deliver statement of claim.

432. If the plaintiff, being bound to deliver a statement of claim, does not deliver the same within the time allowed for that purpose, the defendant may, at the expiration of such time, apply to the Court or a Judge to dismiss the action with costs, for want of prosecution; and on the hearing of such application the Court or a Judge may order the action to be dismissed accordingly, or may make such other order as may seem just. Con. Rule 646.

Same as the Eng. (1883). R. 294.

Rule 243 regulates the time within which the plaintiff is bound to deliver his statement of claim, viz., three months after appearance, unless the defendant has dispensed with its delivery, as he may do under Rule 171. The time by the English Rule is six weeks.

"The expiration of such time": see Armstrong v. Toronto, etc., Ry., 15 P. R. 449, in note to Rules 243 and 353.

The application to dismiss for want of prosecution is made in Chambers. The application may be supported by an affidavit that a statement of claim has not been dispensed with, and has not been delivered, and a certificate of the officer in whose office the action is, that an appearance has been entered by the applicant, with the date of entry.

Where the plaintiff made default in delivering his claim, and had become bankrupt, it was held that notice of motion to dismiss under this Rule must be served upon the trustee in bankruptcy: Wright v. Swindon Ry. Co., 4 Ch. D. 164. In Higginbottom v. Appaley, 3 Ch. D. 288, on a motion to dismiss under this Rule, Hall, V.C., gave a week's time to take further proceedings, observing that each case Rule 432 must depend upon its own merits. The plaintiff was ordered to pay the costs of the motion. Probably the plaintiff will in general be given a short further time upon payment of costs.

Some only of the defendants cannot have the action dismissed, if, for sufficient reasons, proceedings against other defendants have been delayed, and the applicant ought probably to apply to the plaintiff's solicitor for information as to the state of the cause against the other defendants: Foley v. Lee, 12 P. R. 371; see Ambrose v. Evelyn, 11 Ch. D. 759.

A defendant can only have the action dismissed as against himself: Ward v. Ward, 11 Beav. 159.

It has been said that, if a plaintiff desires to avoid the cost of the hearing of the motion, he should tender to the defendant the costs of the notice, and give the usual undertaking to go on: Evelyn v. Evelyn, 13 Ch. D. 138; Ferguson v. Lee, 26 W. R. 138; but this is not the practice in Ontario, even where the motion to dismiss is merely for a default under this Rule; see note to Rule 433. The filing of a statement of claim is no answer to a motion to dismiss: Napanee Tamworth, etc., Ry. Co. v. McDonnell, 10 P. R. 525. The filing would be irregular without leave: see Rule 243.

Where, before statement of claim, an action was stayed until the plaintiff should give security for costs, and the time for delivery of a statement of claim expired without security having been given, it was held that the stay did not prevent the action from being dismissed under this Rule: La Grange v. McAndrew, 4 Q. B. D. 210.

A plaintiff was allowed to file a statement of claim after nine years' delay, it being shewn that the delay was owing to the defendant being financially worthless: Finkle v. Lutz, 14 P. R. 446.

Where the plaintiff set up a compromise, as a ground for not proceeding, and the defendant disputed it, the question of settlement was ordered to be tried: Rees v. Carruthers, 17 P. R. 51.

Where, after the time for delivering a statement of claim had elapsed, an order had been made dismissing an action unless a statement of claim should be delivered within a week, and this was not done, it was held that the action was at an end, the order having neither been complied with, nor appealed against, and an order could not afterwards be made extending the time for delivering the statement: Whistler v. Hancock, 3 Q. B. D. 83; see also King v. Davenport, 4 Q. B. D. 402; and Hollender v. Foulkes, 16 P. R. 225. But if an order to dismiss is made, further time may be given for appealing against that order: Burke v. Rooney, 4 C. P. D. 226; Carter v. Stubbs, 6 Q. B. D. 116; or if the time has not expired, so that the action is not gone, there is jurisdiction to vary or rescind the order for dismissal on proper grounds: Wolpely v. Buhl, 3 Q. B. D. 80, 253; Carter v. Stubbs, supra. In Newcombe v. McLuhan, 11 P. R. 461, the above cases were considered, and it was held that after the action stood dismissed for failure to file a statement of claim by the time named, and judgment was signed dismissing the action, an order could be made under Rule 353 to vacate the judgment, and further extend the time for delivering the statement of claim. See also notes to Rule 353, and Bank of Minnesota v. Page, 14 Ont. App. 347.

Where an order is made dismissing an action unless a statement of claim be delivered within a time named, it has been the practice

Rule 432. In Ontario to obtain a further order ex parte dismissing the action, showing that the previous order has not been complied with: see Burns v. Chisholm, 2 Chy. Ch. 88; but doubt has been cast upon the propriety, or at any rate the necessity, of that course: Hollender v. Foulkes, 16 P. R. 225.

It would seem that an order dismissing an action does not take effect until it is drawn up and served; and that the action under the English practice is not dead until that is done: Metcalf v. British Tea Association, 46 L. T. 31; but see Script Phonography v. Gregg, 59 L. J. Ch. 406.

As to the effect of a peremptory order requiring plaintiff to proceed within a named time, see Huddcraft v. Larned, 27 Sol. Jour. 296; Falck v. Arthelun, 24 Q. B. D. 174; Cox v. Holman, 25 L. J. N. C. 115.

Where an order was made dismissing an action in the event of the plaintiff not complying with an undertaking, it was held that on default the order was absolute, and no further order was necessary: Crown Corundum Co. v. Logan, 3 O. L. R. 434 (but the Divisional Court, though affirming the order, declined to deal with that point); ib., and it would probably in such a case be safe to obtain a final order.

The plaintiff sued the indorser of a bill of exchange. The debt was afterwards paid by the acceptor, and the indorser applied to dismiss the action for want of prosecution. Lindley, J., said, "I shall certainly not let the action go on simply to determine who is to pay the costs. All further proceedings in the action to be stayed, the defendant to pay the costs of the writ"; Anon., W. N. 1873, 37; see also Elliott v. Gardner, 8 P. R. 409; Wallace v. Ford, 1 Chy. Ch. 282.

Though no motion to dismiss is made, the plaintiff cannot regularly proceed without leave: see note to Rule 243; but the former practice requiring a Term's notice to be given, where a year has elapsed without a proceeding having been taken, is not continued under The Judicature Act: Beaver v. Boardman, 9 P. R. 239. For a similar restriction upon moving for judgment: see Rule 612.

In England a formal judgment for defendant's costs is signed upon the order for dismissal: Chitty Forms, 189; but in this Province the costs may be recovered under the Judge's order: see Rule 825 (a).

Effect of Dismissal.—The dismissal of an action for want of prosecution is not necessarily a bar to a subsequent action in respect of the same matter: Re Orrell Colliery & Firebrick Co., 12 Ch. D. 681; Byrne v. Freere, 2 Moll. 180; Roberts v. Lucas, 11 P. R. 3; though made on consent, unless the order is made upon a compromise of the cause of action: Magnus v. National Bank of Scotland, 36 W. R. 603; 58 L. T. 617; but the plaintiff is liable to be called on for security for costs in the second action, if the costs of the first are not paid: see Rule 1198.

The Court may examine the pleadings, evidence and proceedings at the trial of a former action, and the reports of the reasons given for the judgment, to ascertain what was decided. The dismissal of an action, on the ground that it was prematurely brought, is no bar to another action when time has removed the objection: Barber v. McCuaig (2), 31 Ont. 593.

See Sutton v. Huggins, W. N. 1875, 235.

433. Except in the cases provided for by Rule 434, if the pleadings are closed six weeks before the commencement of any sittings of the High Court for which the plaintiff might give notice of trial, and he does not give notice of trial therefor, [or if the plaintiff has given notice of trial but does not proceed to trial pursuant to such notice], the action may be dismissed for want of prosecution. Rules 23 June, 1894. 1348.

no failure to give notice of
trial.

Not the same as Eng. (1883) R. 36. This is somewhat analogous to the mode of proceeding under section 216 of the C. L. P. Act (R. S. O. 1877, c. 50), but simpler, and corresponds substantially with the former Chancery practice.

The exception referring to Rule 434 is made because this Rule cannot be applied in the case of default in going to trial at the Toronto non-jury sittings: Rule 434 applies in that case.

The words in brackets were inserted by Rule 1348. Prior thereto, where the plaintiff gave notice of trial but neglected to enter the action, the action could not be dismissed; the defendant's remedy was to enter the action himself under Rule 538 (c): McDougald v. Thomson, 13 P. R. 256; Simpson v. Murray, 13 P. R. 418.

The six weeks is not a time limited for "doing any act" within Rule 353. It, therefore, cannot be abridged under that Rule, and the lapse of this period is an absolute condition precedent to the right of the defendant to give notice of trial: Saunders v. Pawley, 14 Q. B. D. 234.

There is a continuing duty on the plaintiff's part to give notice of trial until the case is tried: hence, although he has given a notice, but the trial, for some reason, is postponed, the defendant may move to dismiss under this Rule if the plaintiff makes default in giving notice of trial for any subsequent Assizes: Chapman v. Smith, 32 C. P. 555; Hibernian Bank v. Hughes, 10 L. R. 1r. 15.

Where a case is made a remand, a further notice of trial must be Remand given under Rule 544, except in non-jury actions to be tried in Toronto. A case was held to be a remand where, by verbal order at the trial, it was "postponed till the Autumn Assizes": Donovan v. Boulton, 10 P. R. 52.

Where a new trial has been ordered, and the plaintiff does not give notice of trial pursuant to this Rule, a motion in Chambers to dismiss is the course for defendant to pursue; the Court which ordered the new trial has no jurisdiction in the matter: Roberts v. French, 14 R. 210; 72 L. T. 147; 43 W. R. 258.

Where a case is to be tried without a jury, and two Spring or Autumn Sittings are appointed at the place of trial, one for jury, and the other for non-jury cases, the plaintiff may give notice of trial for either Sittings, but is not in default under this Rule by reason of his not giving notice of trial for the earlier Sittings, if it is not the non-jury Sittings: Leyburn v. Kuoke; Leyburn v. Herbert, 17 P. R. 410.

Where one of several defendants in an action has delivered his defence, and the time for the plaintiff to deliver his reply to such defence has expired, but the plaintiff has, without the knowledge of Rule 433. that defendant, agreed in writing with the other defendants to extend the time for delivering their defences, that defendant cannot move to dismiss the action as against him for want of prosecution, the pleadings not yet being "closed"; and it was said that a defendant's proper course is to write to the plaintiff's solicitor, and inquire how the action stands as regards the other defendants: Ambrose v. Evelyn, 11 Ch. D. 759.

On a motion to dismiss, or that the plaintiff give security for costs, an order was made for the plaintiff to give security for costs, and staying proceedings in the meantime: Wilmott v. Frechold, etc., 23 Sol. Jour. 385; 33 W. R. 554; 52 L. T. 743; and the order was upheld in the special circumstances of that case, but it is not a form of motion which can ordinarily be made.

dismiss.

On motion to dismiss, some excuse must be given for the default, the sufficiency of which will depend upon the circumstances of each case. Chy. Gen. Order 276 was held to be applicable to such motions: Bucke v. Murray, 9 P. R. 495; and though that Order is not expressly continued in the Rules the practice originated under it and acted upon under the original Rules will probably be held to apply. That Gen. Order was as follows:

Chy. Order

"276. Where a defendant is entitled to give notice to dismiss, it is not to be sufficient answer to the motion for the plaintiff, after being served with the notice, to take out and serve an order for amending the bill or to file a replication, or undertake to speed the cause; but it shall be necessary for the plaintiff to shew that he has prosecuted the suit with diligence, or that under all the circumstances the bill should not be dismissed."

Though an undertaking to speed the cause is therefore not a sufficient answer to a motion to dismiss for want of prosecution (though it is otherwise in England: Evelyn v. Evelyn, 13 Ch. D. 138; Frasen v. Loc, 26 W. R. 138), it is still discretionary with the Judge to say whether, under all the circumstances, the action should be dismissed: Bucke v. Murray, supra. See also Napance, Tameorth, etc., Ry. v. McDonnell, 10 P. R. 525; Carter v. Barker, 11 P. R. 1.

The former decisions under the Chancery practice will therefore probably serve as authorities as to what is a sufficient excuse: see cases in Robinson & Joseph's Digest, pp. 2922, et seq.; Finnegan v. Keenan, 7 P. R. 385; and as to what amounts to waiver of objection to the delay: Cotton v. Rodgers, 7 P. R. 423; see also Miles v. Roe, 20 C. L. J. 113; 10 P. R. 218.

Where an action was ordered to be dismissed unless notice of trial was given by a specified time, and by mistake of the solicitor's clerk notice was not given, a Judge refused to extend the time, and the Divisional Court refused to interfere: Gilder v. Morrison, 30 W. R. 815.

Where the action was brought on a ground for which no action lay, the plaintiff being in default under this Rule, indulgence was refused and the action dismissed: Clarke v. Creighton, 13 P. R. 113.

An order that the action be dismissed unless notice of trial be given, and action entered for trial within a certain time, was made in Sierier v. Spearman, 74 L. T. 132.

In cases where equitable relief is granted upon a condition which the plaintiff fails to comply with, the action may be dismissed, even after judgment: Hapex v. Elmley, 30 C. L. J. 574.

434. In actions in the county of York, to be tried without a jury, if the plaintiff does not set down the action for trial within six weeks after the pleadings are closed, and proceed to trial as provided in Rule 542, the action may be dismissed for want of prosecution. New.

434, 435.

In non-jury cases, York

See notes to Rule 433.

Default must be made both in setting down, and proceeding to trial under Rule 542, before a motion to dismiss can be made: Toronto Type Foundry Co. v. Tuckett, 17 P. R. 538.

19. CONSOLIDATION OF ACTIONS.

435. Actions may be consolidated by order of the Court or a Judge in the manner in use in the Superior Courts of Common Law, prior to The Ontario Judicature Act, 1881. Con. Rule 652; Rules of 1 January, 1896, 1462.

Consolidation of actions.

See Eng. (1883), R. 656.

Consolidation of actions may take place in several ways, and the term is used in different senses.

(1) Actions by same Plaintiff against same Defendant.—If a plaintiff brings two actions against the same defendant, for matters which might properly be combined in one action, and the double proceeding is shewn to be vexatious, a Court of Law, in the exercise of its ordinary power to prevent any abuse of its own process, might consolidate the actions; that is to say, stay proceedings absolutely in one action, and require the plaintiff to include the whole of his claims in the other; and this has been done with costs against the plaintiff: see Cecil v. Briggs, 2 T. R. 639; Anon., 1 Chitty's Rep. 709 (n); Beardsall v. Cheetham, E. B. & E. 243; 2 Chitty's Archbold, p. 1085 13th ed., et seq.; Dan. Pr., 6th ed., 1888; Dan. Forms, 3rd ed., 816; Seton, 5th ed., 700; and may be done under this Rule upon the application of either party: Martin v. Martin, 1897, 1 Q. B. 420; 76 L. T. 44.

Several actions by the same plaintiff against same defendant.

Where an action is commenced that covers the same ground as one already existing, together with some further relief, it will be stayed as to the first part: Morton v. Quick, 26 W. R. 441; and see Hamilton v. Hamilton Street Ry. Co., 5 O. W. R. 151.

An application to consolidate two actions by the same plaintiff, one for malicious prosecution and the other for salary as a manager, was dismissed by Quain, J., with costs: 1 Chari. Ch. Ca. 127; 60 L. T. Jour. 86.

Where plaintiffs brought an action for the same cause of action as was set up by them in a counter-claim in an action in another Division, it was held that though the case was not strictly within this Rule because the plaintiffs had not brought two actions, yet there is inherent jurisdiction in the Court to prevent undue use of its process, and the plaintiffs' action was stayed till their counter-claim should be disposed of: Taylor v. Bradford, 9 P. R. 350.

Where the plaintiffs in a prior pending action, claimed $200,000, balance due upon a construction contract, and in another action, begun some time afterwards, claimed $3,000 for goods sold and delivered,

Rule 435. and the cause of action arose before the commencement of the first action, it was held that the two claims should have been made in one action, and it was a proper exercise of discretion to refuse judgment, and leave the question till the determination of the first action, in which a large set-off was claimed, since, in the result of both actions, nothing might be due to the plaintiffs: Connec v. C. P. R., No. 2, 11 P. R. 222.

Several
actions by same plaintiff against different

(2) Actions by same Plaintiff against different Defendants.—But the term consolidation is more frequently used in a different sense. Where actions are brought by the same plaintiff against different defendants, but the questions in dispute in all are substantially the same, the Court, if the defendants apply, will stay proceedings in all the actions except one, until that one action has been determined, upon the terms that the various defendants agree to be bound by the event of the action which proceeds. This practice has been applied to the case of actions against several underwriters upon policies of insurance: Hollingsworth v. Broderick, 4 A. & E. 646 (see the form of order in that case, Chitty Forms, 9th ed., p. 788); actions against guarantors of separate parts of a debt by separate instruments: Sharp v. Lethbridge, 1 M. & G. 37; or against joint and several obligors of a bond conditioned for the good behaviour of another person: Anderson v. Towgood, 1 Q. B. 245; Essex v. Wright, 13 P. R. 474; or against principal and sureties on a reprieve bond: Bartlett v. Bartlett, 4 Scott, N. B. 779; or against the several members liable upon a mutual insurance policy: Lewis v. Barker, 4 C. B. N. S. 330; to several actions against different defendants for trespass in refusing to pay tolls, where the main issue, as to the right to tolls, was common to all the actions: Vaughan Road Co. v. Fisher, 14 P. R. 340; and to several actions in respect to the publishing of the same libel in different newspapers: Colledge v. Pike, 36 L. T. 124; in which last case the plaintiff was given liberty, if dissatisfied with the verdict, to select another action for trial.

In Eddison v. Dalziel, 9 Times, 334, three such actions for libel by the same plaintiff were consolidated, though two defendants pleaded justification, and the third an apology, and payment into Court. So, where a number of actions against different defendants may be reduced to classes, those of each class raising the same questions, the Court may allow one action of each class to proceed, and stay the rest: Spers v. Pickersgill, 27 L. J. Ex. 5.

This course of staying all but one of several actions, will only be allowed where the questions in dispute are substantially the same. Where questions, raised by defendants of fraud and misrepresentation would necessarily be different, and depend on different evidence, a stay was refused: Niagara Grape Co. v. Nelles, 13 P. R. 179, 278, and see Williams v. Raleigh, 14 P. R. 50.

Libel under
68, s. 14.

Under R. S. C. C. 68, s. 11, actions for the same libel may be consolidated so that they shall be tried together. If the plaintiff recovers damages, the same are to be assessed in one sum, and apportioned by the jury against the different defendants: Ibid. 5 (2). See Imp. Act. 51-2 Vict. c. 64.

Such a motion to consolidate should not be made until statements of claim have been delivered from which it may be seen whether the actions are for the same libel: Crosley v. Ferguson, 33 C. L. J. 461; but it has been made before the delivery of the defences: Stone v. Press Assoc., 497, 2 Q. B. 159; 77 L. T. 41.

The order, when made on the application of the defendant, does not require the plaintiff's consent: Hollingsworth v. Brodrick, 4 A. & E. 516. It binds the defendants in the actions which are stayed to abide the event of the one which proceeds; but it has been held not to bind the plaintiff to do so; and that, if the result of the first action is against him, he may proceed with another: Dople v. Anderson, 1 A. & E. 125; Dople v. Douglas, 4 B. & Ad. 514. But see Amos v. Chadwick, 9 Ch. D. 450; and Bennett v. Lord Burg., 5 C. P. D. 330. A consolidation order may be obtained at any time after each action has become a lis pendens, i. e., when the writ has been served: The Helenslea, 30 W. R. 616; see Hollingsworth v. Brodrick, supra; Ray v. Sherwood, 1 Curt. 173, 193; 1 Moo. P. C. 353; but in the case of several actions for the same ill, see Crossley v. Ferguson, supra.

The Court may re-open the consolidation order, and allow a second action to be defended, notwithstanding that the plaintiff has succeeded in the first action. But it will require a very strong case to induce it to do so. Probably a case must be shown at least as strong as would be required to procure a new trial; see Foster v. Alcock, 3 Bing. N. C. 896; Cohen v. Bullock, 5 Taunt. 175.

Re-opening consolidation.

(3) Actions by Several Plaintiffs against the same Defendant.—Although consolidation, properly so called, is obtained at the instance of several defendants, where several defendants are sued by the same plaintiffs, a somewhat analogous proceeding has been adopted in the converse case, of several plaintiffs bringing several actions against the same defendant, to recover similar relief in reference to the same transactions. Mallus, V.C., at the instance of the plaintiffs, enlarged the time for taking any further steps in all the actions but one, until that one should be tried; Amos v. Chadwick, 4 Ch. D. 830; and his judgment was affirmed on appeal; 9 Ch. D. 450; see also Hodson v. Richardson, 3 Hurr. 1478. A like course was taken in Bennett v. Lord Burg., 5 C. P. D. 330, where thirty-eight actions had been brought, and, on the plaintiff's application, the proceedings in thirty-seven were stayed until the trial of the thirty-eighth as a test action, though it was said that the incidents would or might vary in each case, and there would be differences of proof in each, but the gist of the charge was the same in all. See also Fulmer v. Hulse, 5 O. W. R. 589, 591, 572.

Where the issues in several actions are not the same, there cannot be a consolidation of them. Where, therefore, several actions had been brought against a municipal corporation for damages arising from the negligent construction of drains; consolidation was refused, as each plaintiff would have to prove that the negligence resulted in injury to his own particular land; Williams v. Rutley, 14 P. R. 50; and it was doubted whether a common defendant could obtain a consolidation order against the will of the several plaintiffs; Id.; but where husband and wife brought separate actions against the same defendant for damages arising out of the same act of alleged negligence, they were ordered to be consolidated; Napex v. Young, 16 P. R. 254.

Where an action is ordered to be tried and the others are directed to abide the result, the judgment in the test action will not bind the parties in the other actions, unless the action has been tried out on its merits, upon evidence; Amos v. Chadwick, 9 Ch. D. 450. Where, therefore, the plaintiffs in the test action, when it came on for trial, declined to proceed, and judgment was then given for defendants, it was held that, notwithstanding the Rule corresponding to Ord. Rule

Rule 435. 779, the Judge had jurisdiction to substitute another of the actions as a test action: Ib. In the absence of agreement, the plaintiff, in an action thus constituted a test action, has no right to be indemnified against costs by the other plaintiffs: Ib.

Where, on a test action coming on for trial, the plaintiff was not prepared to proceed, and applied for a postponement, to which, under the circumstances so far as his own interest was concerned, he was not entitled; it was held that the Court could not regard the rights of the plaintiffs in the other actions, and must dismiss the action with costs: Robinson v. Chudwick, 7 Ch. D. 578. See notes to Rules 450, and 546.

A judgment on the merits in the test action will not preclude an appeal in any of the other actions, unless there is an agreement that the decision in one is to be final in all: Coutts v. Dodds, 16 P. R. 273.

Cross
actions.

(4) Cross Actions.—A fourth kind of consolidation is where there are cross actions between the same parties, arising out of the same matter, and the Court stays one, directing the plaintiff in it to bring forward his case by way of defence, set-off or counter-claim in the other action. In such case the party on whom the onus of proof lies is given the conduct of the proceedings, by being directed to proceed with his action: Thomson v. S. E. Ry. Co., 9 Q. B. D. 320; see also The Never Despair, 9 P. D. 34; Girvin v. Burke, 13 P. R. 216.

An action for breach of an agreement and fraud in the Ex. D., and a cross action for specific performance in the Ch. D., were ordered to be consolidated in the latter action: Holmes v. Hervey, 25 W. R. 80.

Where the plaintiff brought an action for an account in one Division, and the defendant brought an action for a balance due on such accounts in another, the latter action was stayed on the defendant's application: Betholl v. United Stock Ex., W. N. 1886, 10.

Separate Actions between Different Parties.—In Smith v. Whichcord, 24 W. R. 400; separate actions between different parties relating to the same subject were consolidated; but in Ryan v. Cameron, 16 P. R. 235, an application to consolidate was refused.

Though consolidation is refused, a trial of the actions at the same time may sometimes be had, where that course will be convenient, and a saving of expense: Ib.

Conduct of consoli-

Conduct of Consolidated Actions.—Where two actions commenced on the same day were consolidated, and a difference of opinion arose between the plaintiffs as to the conduct of the action, the plaintiffs who took the first steps towards severance were made defendants, and the conduct of the cause was given to the other plaintiffs, though their claim was the smaller in amount: Holden v. Silkstone & Dods-worth Coal & Iron Co., 30 W. R. 98.

There is no fixed rule that the action last begun is to be stayed: Thomson v. S. E. Ry. Co., 30 W. R. 537; 46 L. T. 513; Miller v. Confederation Life, etc., 11 P. R. 211; Seton, 706.

The plaintiff in the first action will not be given the conduct if his action is defective: Re McRae, 25 Ch. D. 16.

In determining who is to have the conduct of a consolidation of two cross actions, the main indicia to be regarded are, which action was first begun, upon whom does the chief burden of proof lie, and which action is the more comprehensive in its scope: Girvin v. Burke, 13 P. R. 216. Rule 436.

As to the conduct of several administration actions after their consolidation: see notes to Rules 203, 948, 951.

In Master's Office.—The Master in Ordinary has no jurisdiction to consolidate actions in which judgments are entered, and under which separate references are pending in his office: Boswell v. Grant, 11 P. R. 376.

Practice.—The application is to be made usually in Chambers: see Smith v. Whichcord, 24 W. R. 900; Chitty's Arch., 13th ed., 1087; but occasion for consolidation may arise in Court, e.g., on motion for an injunction.

"Court or Judge." These words confer jurisdiction on the Master in Chambers, or other officer having like jurisdiction: see Rule 6 (a).

An application to consolidate several actions for libel, against different newspapers, was granted before the delivery of defences: Stone v. Press Assoc., 1897, 2 Q. B. 159; 77 L. T. 41; but semble, it should not be made until statements of claim are delivered: see Crossley v. Ferguson, and other cases, supra, p. 640.

Place of Trial.—Where cross-actions with different places of trial named are consolidated, the place of trial will be ordered as the balance of convenience requires: Gonce v. Leitch, 11 P. R. 255.

20. COMPOUNDING PENAL ACTIONS.

436. Leave to compound a penal action may be given, but in cases where part of the penalty goes to the Crown notice shall first be given to the proper officer. Con. Rule 643. See R. S. O. c. 90. Leave to compound penal actions.

Taken from Rule T. T., 1856, 95.

By 18 Eliz., c. 5, s. 3 (now R. S. O. 1897, c. 324, s. 29), no penal action by a common informer can be compromised without the leave of the Court.

The words "proper officer," in this Rule, do not refer to an officer of the Court, but to the proper officer of the Crown, viz.: the Attorney-General.

Where the Crown is concerned, the consent of the Attorney-General must be procured: Howard v. Sowerby, 1 Taunt. 103. Leave is not necessary in actions by the party aggrieved: Kirkham v. Wheeley, 1 Salk. 30. It is entirely in the discretion of the Court to grant it, or not: Maughan v. Walker, 5 T. R. 98; Sheldon v. Mumford, 5 Taunt. 268. Where the sum offered is so small as to indicate collusion, leave will be refused: Wood v. Cassin, 2 W. Bl. 1157. Leave will not be granted until after the statement of defence: Rex v. Collier, 2 Dowl. 481; and see Rex v. Crisp, 1 B. & Al. 282.

Leave was given to compromise a penal action brought under 32 Hen. viii., c. 8, for buying pretended titles, on paying the Crown's share into Court: May v. t. v. Pettrick, 5 O. S. 77.

Rules

437, 438. A promise founded on the compromise of a penal action without the leave of the Court is void: Hart v. Meyers, 7 U. C. Q. B. 416 and see Bell v. Riddell, 10 Ont. App. 544.

action by informer will lie.

An action for a penalty imposed by a statute cannot be brought by a common informer, unless the statute imposing the penalty so provides, either expressly, or by implication: Bradlaugh v. Clarke, 8 A. C. Cas. 637; 48 L. T. 681; 52 L. J. Q. B. 505.

Where the statute does not authorize an action by a common informer, the penalty can only be recovered in a proceeding at the instance of the Crown: Ib.; but see Shrigley v. Taylor, 4 Ont. 396.

An action to recover a penalty cannot be brought by an infant or his next friend; it must be brought by the informer in person, or by his solicitor: Garrett v. Roberts, 10 Ont. App. 650.

The Court refused to set aside a judgment of non pros. regularly signed, in a penal action: McChaugue v. McLeod, 8 U. C. L. J. 233; 3 P. R. 33.

Remission of penalties.

The Court or a Judge, and the Lieutenant-Governor in Council, have now power to remit penalties imposed by any Act of the Province of Ontario, either wholly, or in part: see R. S. O. c. 108, ss. 1, 3. They have, however, no power to remit costs incurred up to the time of the remission: Ib., s. 4.

Order for compounding fine.

437. The order for compounding shall express therein that the defendant thereby undertakes to pay the sum for which the Court has given him leave to compound such action. Con. Rule 644.

Taken from Rule T. T. 1856, 96.

The payment of such sum might formerly be enforced by attachment: Regina v. Clifton, 5 T. R. 257; but see now R. S. O. c. 80, ss. 5, 7.

Queen's proportion of composition.

438. Where leave is given to compound, the proportion of the Crown of the composition shall, unless otherwise ordered, be paid into the Accountant's Office, for the use of [His] Majesty. Con. Rule 645.

Taken from Rule T. T. 1856, 97.

See Brown v. Bailey, 4 Burr. 1929. Presumably the money should be paid into the Accountant's office in the same manner as other moneys are paid into Court: see Rules 107, et seq. By the order authorizing the action to be compounded, or by some subsequent order, provision should be made for payment out of the money to the Provincial Treasurer, or other public officer entitled to receive the same.

CHAPTER VII.

DISCOVERY.

1. EXAMINATION FOR DISCOVERY, 439-462.
2. PRODUCTION AND INSPECTION OF DOCUMENTS, 463-474.
3. MISCELLANEOUS, 475-477.

1. EXAMINATION FOR DISCOVERY.

An action for discovery may still be brought, where necessary, but it can rarely now be necessary. Its aid in an action in Ontario will not be necessary, as discovery may under the Rules be obtained in such action; an action for discovery in aid of proceedings in a foreign Court will not lie: Dreyfus v. Peruvian, etc., 41 Ch. D. 151.

The following are instances of actions for discovery: Maswath v. Starkie, W. N. 1876, 8; Reiner v. Salisbury, 2 Ch. D. 378; Orr v. Diaper, 4 Ch. D. 92. In an action by the Attorney-General at the suit of a relator, the Crown, represented by the Attorney-General, has the same right of discovery as a subject has in an ordinary action: Atty.-Gen. v. Newcastle, 1897, 2 Q. B. 384; but the Crown is not bound to give discovery: Id. See note to Rules 238 and 929.

In general, discovery is obtained by interlocutory proceedings, as ancillary to the main object of an action, but an action for discovery may, in a proper case, still be brought: Orr v. Diaper, 4 Ch. D. 92; Anderson v. Bank of British Columbia, 2 Ch. D. 644. For the grounds of objection to such an action: see Maddock's Chy. Pr., 3rd ed., 268.

The methods prescribed by the Rules for obtaining discovery are: ^{Discovery} ^{General} ^{Rules.} Firstly, by examination of the adverse party, and, in the case of corporation, of their officers or servants: Rules 439-461; Secondly, by the production under oath for inspection of the documents in the possession of the adverse party: Rules 463-477; Thirdly, in actions to recover damages for personal injury, by an examination by a duly qualified medical practitioner of the injured person: Rule 462; and Fourthly, by the inspection by the party and his witnesses of any real or personal property, the inspection of which may be material to the proper determination of the question in dispute: Rule 571.

The Judicature Act has made no alteration in the right of the parties to discovery by examination: see Atty.-Gen. v. Gaskill, 20 Ch. D. 719; also Hunnings v. Williamson, 10 Q. B. D. 459; see also Jones v. Jones, 22 Q. B. D. 425; Martin v. Treacher, 16 Q. B. D. 507; Malcolm v. Race, 16 P. R. 330; Whitely v. Barley, 56 L. J. Q. B. 312; Derbyshire v. Mayor of Derby, 1896, 2 Q. B. 53, 297; 74 L. T. 747; 77 L. T. 107; Johnston v. London and Paris Exchange, 6 O. L. R. 49.

Therefore there is no right to examine a defendant for discovery in an action touching an alleged champertous agreement: Wellbourne v. discovery. ^{Where no right to} Rule 439a. C. P. Ry. Co., 16 P. R. 343; nor in an action for criminal conversation with the plaintiff's wife: Mulholland v. Misener, 17 P. R. 132; Taylor v. Neil, Id. 134; Fleury v. Campbell, 18 P. R. 110; (though an examination was allowed on a claim for damages for alienation of the affections and loss of the society of the wife in Taylor v. Neil, supra); but see Lellis v. Lambert, 24 Ont. App. p. 664, and Fleury v. Campbell, supra; nor in an action against a tenant for double value under R. S. O. c. 342, s. 20: Hobbs v. Hudson, 25 Q. B. D. 232; 62 L. T. 764; 63 L. T. 215; nor in an action based on a forfeiture or an alleged forfeiture: Mazborough v. Whitcomb, etc., 1897, 2 Q. B. 111; 76 L. T. 765, overruling Seaward v. Dennington, 44 W. R. 696; nor in an action under the Imp. Trade Mark Act, 1883 (46 & 47 Vict. c. 57), s. 58, which imposes the forfeiture of a sum not exceeding £50, to the registered proprietor for each offence, to be recovered as a simple contract debt: Saunders v. Wiel, 1892, 2 Q. B. 18, 321; or generally in an action for penalties: Huntings v. Williamson, and other cases, supra; Rose v. Croden, 3 O. L. R. 384; nor in an action for double tolls under R. S. O. c. 194, s. 44, which is an action for penalties: Pickrel, etc., Co. v. Moore, 17 P. R. 287; see also Pickrel R. Imp. Co. v. C. Beck, & Co., 5 O. W. R. 184; but in an action to recover a penalty for violation of The Alien Labour Act, 60-61 V. c. 11 (D.), The Canada Evidence Act, 56 V. c. 31, s. 2, was held (Rose, J., dissenting), to authorize examination for discovery: Reg. v. Fox, 18 P. R. 343. Neither can discovery be had in an action to recover damages, on the ground that the defendant had been guilty of maintenance: Hopkins v. Smith, 1 O. L. R. 659. See also Johnston v. London & Paris Exchange in note to Rule 463.

But an action for the amount payable under the Copyright Act, 1842, for each representation of a copyright musical publication was held not to be an action for penalties (such amounts being fixed by way of compensation to the plaintiff), and therefore discovery was allowed: Adams v. Batley, 18 Q. B. D. 625. Discovery may also be had in an action for an injunction, though the defendant may incur a liability for a penalty, in the event of disobedience of the injunction: The Derbyshire County Council v. Derby, 1896, A. C. 315; 74 L. T. 747.

Examination for discovery.

439. A party to an action or issue, whether plaintiff or defendant, may, without order, be orally examined before the trial touching the matters in question by any party adverse in interest, and may be compelled to attend and testify in the same manner, upon the same terms and subject to the same rules of examination [of] a witness except as hereinafter provided. Rule 1250 of 20 June, 1903.

The word "of" in brackets should probably be read "as": see next Rule.

Where discovery from a corporation is sought.

439a. (1) In the case of a corporation any officer or servant of such corporation may, without order, be orally examined before the trial touching the matters in question by any party adverse in interest to the corporation, and may be compelled to attend and testify in the same manner and upon the same terms and subject to the same rules of examination as Rule 439a.

a witness except as hereinafter provided; but such examination shall not be used as evidence at the trial.

(2) After the examination of an officer or servant of a corporation a party shall not be at liberty to examine any other officer or servant without an order of the Court or a Judge.
Rule 1250 of 20 June, 1903.

Based upon Chy. O. 138, and R. S. O. 1877, c. 50, s. 150.

Since Rule 439a a past officer (formerly examinable), cannot be examined: Cantin v. The News, 8 O. L. R. 531, and besides an "officer" (alone, formerly examinable), a "servant" may now be examined: see formerly Morrison v. G. T. Ry. Co., 5 O. L. R. 38.

The former authorities (see Holmsted and Langton Jud. Act, 2nd ed., pp. 611, et seq.), upon the question as to whether a person is an officer and so examinable, or is merely a servant, would not seem to be any longer of moment.

Scope of Rule.—The right to examine under this Rule is subject to the exception above mentioned, of actions in which there is no right to discovery: see note to preceding Rule 439.

An action for recovery of land is not one of the exceptions. The defendant in such an action is liable to be examined by the plaintiff for discovery: Lucell v. Kennedy, 8 App. Cas. 217; 48 L. T. 585; reversing S. C., 20 Ch. D. 484; 46 L. T. 752; and see under the dissimilar Eng. Rule, Phillips v. Phillips, 40 L. T. 821; and the fact that a defendant pleads that he is a "purchaser for value without notice" affords no ground for resisting discovery: Ind v. Emmerson, 56 L. T. 778; although this was formerly a good plea to a bill for discovery. An examination for discovery may be had in an action for breach of promise of marriage: McLaughlin v. Carroll, 4 C. L. T. 498; and see R. S. O. c. 73, s. 6; and in an interpleader issue: Canada Perm. B. S. v. Forest, 6 P. R. 254; and see White v. Watts, 31 L. J. C. P. 381, and Rule 463, note.

"Action or Issue."—A petition authorized under the Rules would appear to be an "action": see Jud. Act, s. 2, and Re Credit Co., 11 Ch. D. 256; Re Haddon's Patent, 51 L. T. 190; also interpleader proceedings: Rule 6 (c).

"Before the Trial."—These words do not prevent the examination of a party after a trial which proves abortive, by reason of disagreement of the jury, and before a second trial, if the party has not already been examined. Such a trial is not a trial within the meaning of this Rule: Clarke v. Rutherford, 1 O. L. R. 275.

Parties Adverse in Interest.—Under the Eng. (1882) R. 343, Who may providing for the examination of the "opposite party or parties," it has been held that a party added by the defendant in a counter-claim, is not an opposite party as regards the plaintiff: Wolloy v. Kilby, 15 Ch. D. 162; but see Bradley v. Clark, 9 P. R. 410; 19 C. L. J. 194. But a third party, who has been noticed by the defendant under Rule 204, and has appeared and obtained leave to defend, is entitled to examine the plaintiff in the same manner as an original defendant: McIlkster v. Bishop of Rochester, 5 C. P. D. 194; Eden Rule 439a. v. Weardale Iron Co., 34 Ch. D. 223; and the plaintiff is entitled to examine him: Bradley v. Clark, 9 P. R. 410; 19 C. L. J. 193.

An official liquidator, as an officer of the Court, cannot be called upon to make discovery, unless he is representatively in the position of an adverse litigant to the party requiring discovery: Henderson v. Blain, 14 P. R. 308; Re Barnes's Banking Co., L. R. 2 Chy. 350; Re Contract Corporation, L. R. 7 Chy. 207; Re Mutual Soc., 22 Ch. D. 714; Re Alexandra Palace Co., 16 Ch. D. 58.

A defendant who has not appeared, and to whom a statement of claim has not been delivered, is examinable by the plaintiff: Bulst v. Currie, 33 C. L. J. 622; 17 C. L. T. 335; but he is not entitled to examine the plaintiff: see Ashley v. Brenton, 13 P. R. 98.

If the issues between co-defendants are material to the case of the plaintiff, or to the character of the relief he seeks, he may examine a defendant upon them, though there is no issue between that defendant and himself: Alexander v. Diamond, 9 P. R. 274. A defendant whose interest is identical with that of the plaintiff is a party adverse in point of interest to his co-defendant, and may be examined by such co-defendant; and where the plaintiff's solicitor is present at such examination the depositions may be read against the plaintiff: Moore v. Boyd, 8 P. R. 413. A disclaiming defendant charged with complicity in a fraud was held to be properly questioned as to the fraud: McFarland v. McFarland, 9 P. R. 73.

A necessary party to an action may be examined for discovery, though no relief is asked against him: Spokes v. The Grosvenor & W. E. R. T. Hotel, 1897, 2 Q. B. 124; 76 L. T. 679.

Infants.—As a general rule an infant suing by next friend may in the absence of special incapacity, be examined for discovery before trial in the same way as an adult: Arnold v. Playter, 14 P. R. 399; distinguishing Mayor v. Collins, 24 Q. B. D. 361; approved in Flett v. Coulter, 4 O. L. R. 714; see also Curtis v. Mundy, 1892, 2 Q. B. 178.

An order for the examination of an infant for discovery should not give the examiner discretion to determine the capacity of the infant. The proper mode of raising the question as to the infant's capacity is by motion to set aside the appointment, or if there is not time for that, then upon a motion to commit for non-attendance, so that the question may be considered by the Court itself: Flett v. Coulter, 4 O. L. R. 714.

Officers, etc., of Corporations.—Under the present Ont. Rule 439, one present officer, or servant, of a company party may be examined without special order. If on his examination it turns out that he does not possess the necessary information, leave to examine others may be applied for; and it is altogether within the discretion of the Court whether another officer, or servant, should be examined: see clause (2); Dawson v. London St. Rn., 18 P. R. 223.

It is reasonable and convenient that the corporation should suggest for examination the officer or servant best qualified to give the desired information, who should prepare himself for obtaining knowledge of all relevant facts: Clarkson v. Bank of Hamilton, 9 O. L. R. 317.

Where the plaintiff sued "The Tanners' Association," a syndicate, not incorporated, made up of a number of trading partnerships and incorporated companies, and one of the companies appeared and defended in its own name, "sued as the Tanners' Association," it was held that the agent of the syndicate could not be examined as an officer of the Association, because it was not a corporation, nor of Rule 439a, the Company defending, because he was not its officer: Ahrens v. Tanners' Association, 6 O. L. R. 63.

An auditor may, or may not, be an officer of a company. Prima facie he is not: Re Western Cos., etc., Co., 45 W. R. 418.

The Medical Health Officer of a municipality has been held not to be an officer examinable: Coleman v. Toronto, 15 P. R. 27, 125; Forsyth v. Cuniff, 20 Ont. 478 (except when the corporation is being sued in respect of anything done by such officer: Coleman v. Toronto, supra; Odell v. Ottawa, 12 P. R. 446); nor surveyors usually employed by a municipality, but not formally appointed officers thereof: Meek v. Yarmouth, 9 C. L. T. 373.

In the case of a society which consisted of a head office, called the "Head Camp," and a number of local branches, called "subordinate camps," the clerk of a subordinate camp was held to be an officer of the society and examinable: Headhead v. Woodmen of the World, 9 O. L. R. 321.

Under the former practice an order was made to examine an architect of defendants in an action for price of work and materials in erecting a building, where defendants themselves could give no information: Smith v. Clarke, 12 P. R. 217; and a local agent of an insurance company who procured the application for the insurance in question in the action: Hartnell v. Canada Mutual Aid Co., 12 P. R. 401; Garing v. London Mutual Fire Ins. Co., 10 P. R. 642.

An officer of a company called as a witness at the first trial of an action may, pending a second trial, be examined under this Rule: see Leitch v. Grand Trunk Ry. Co., 12 P. R. 571.

An objection that the person sought to be examined is not an officer, should be taken at the outset when it is sought to examine him, and cannot be taken on taxation only: Township of Logan v. Kirk, 14 P. R. 130.

Where a corporation tenders one of its officers who is a solicitor, to make discovery on its behalf, the privilege of a solicitor cannot be claimed, scilicet, where the opposite party selects such person for examination: Siransan v. Quirk, 5 C. P. D. 106; Salford v. Leroy, 24 Q. B. D. 695.

As to the time for making the examination: see Rule 424.

An order for the examination of an officer residing in a foreign country of a foreign corporation which had assumed to the jurisdiction, was refused in Perrin v. Algoma, 8 O. L. R. 634.

How Attendance Procured.—See Rules 443, to 447.

Ordinarily an appointment is obtained from the Examiner: Rule 443, and a copy served with a subpoena; and the party must be paid proper witness fees: McMurray v. G. T. Ry., 3 Chy. Ch. 130; Fardon v. Fardon, 7 P. R. 439. A subpoena dated prior to the time when the party issuing it was entitled to examine the party served therewith, is irregular: McMurray v. G. T. Ry. supra. The solicitor of the party to be examined should also be served with a copy of the examiner's appointment: Faucher v. Boulton, 12 Gr. 437.

The solicitor of the party to be examined is entitled to forty-eight hours' notice of the examination: Rule 446, but the party himself, where he has a solicitor, is only entitled to reasonable notice according to circumstances: Wilson v. Cairn, 19 C. L. J. 140; 3 C. L. T.

Attendance for examination how obtained

Rule 439a. 216; Bolkow v. Foster, 7 P. R. 388; see Re N. Wheel Ermouth Mining Co., 31 Beav. 628; and Lanackey v. Can. Pacific Ry. Co., 4 C. L. T. 93; but where a party who has no solicitor is required to attend, he should have forty-eight hours' notice: Watson v. Ham, 1 Chy. Ch. 293.

Where the party to be examined is a resident out of the jurisdiction, see infra, and Rule 477.

Where a party is subpoenaed, with others, for examination at the same hour, he is bound to wait until he can be examined, and if he depart before examination he may be ordered to attend again at his own expense: Campbell v. Scott, 5 O. L. R. 233. Where a party attends voluntarily for examination and submits to be sworn, he cannot refuse to answer proper questions because he has not been subpoenaed: Cooke v. Wilson, 3 O. L. R. 299.

Service may also be effected, as provided by Rule 447, on the solicitor of the party to be examined: see that Rule.

Service on the solicitor of a corporation is not sufficient service on the officer sought to be examined; and an order will not be made for substitutional service upon an officer of a litigant corporation, of the subpoena and appointment: Mills v. Mercer Co., 15 P. R. 274.

Abandonment of order.

A party taking out an order to examine and failing to appear on an appointment thereunder, loses the benefit of the order, and must obtain a new one: Ferguson v. Elliott, 7 P. R. 7. When an examination is adjourned sine die, re-service of an appointment and payment of conduct money is necessary in order to compel attendance: Whitchead v. Harte (Mr. Dalton, 22nd June, 1882), Globe.

Adjournment of examination.

So where an examination is adjourned for further production of documents disclosed on the examination, the party to be examined is entitled to further witness fees for attendance on a subsequent day: Chamberlain v. Thicotte, 11 C. L. T. 53; and he is compellable to re-attend upon being paid his proper fees, although he has signed the depositions, and does not consent to the adjournment: Re Metropolitan Brush Co., 51 L. T. 816; 54 L. J. Chy. 253.

Parties out of Ontario.

Party Out of Ontario.—Where a party to be examined is resident out of Ontario, even though temporarily within Ontario, he can only be examined pursuant to a special order made under Rule 477: Connolly v. Dowd, 18 P. R. 38; Cox v. Prior, 18 P. R. 492; he cannot be compelled to attend by being served under Rules 439 and 443, or 447, without such an order: Id. The former cases of Bolkow v. Foster, 7 P. R. 388; Smith v. Greay, 11 P. R. 345; Comstock v. Harris, 12 P. R. 17; Parker v. Meridon, 7 C. L. T. 112; are now inapplicable owing to changes in the Rules.

Where a party resides in Quebec a subpoena requiring his attendance for examination in Ontario might formerly be ordered to issue under Con. Stat. Can., c. 79, s. 4: Moffat v. Prentice, 6 P. R. 33; Bank of British North America v. Eddy, 19 C. L. J. 192; and see Morell v. Morrison, 6 P. R. 219; but such an order was not granted ex parte: Moffat v. Prentice, supra; and see Dowalt v. Hughitt, 7 P. R. 323. Where considered necessary, an order for a subpoena may probably still be made, or contained in an order made under Rule 477, or a commission may be directed: see Stratford v. G. W. Ry. Co., 6 P. R. 91.

Ordinarily, it is probable that it will be sufficient if the order directs attendance, upon service of a copy of the order and of the appointment of the Examiner upon the solicitor of the party: see Rule 477.

The party may doubtless, as formerly, when a subpoena was granted, be compelled to attend at such place as in the opinion of the Court is most convenient, and not necessarily the nearest to his place of abode: Smith v. Babcock, 9 P. R. 97; Bank of B. N. A. v. Eddy, 9 P. R. 396. Rule 439a.

A Special Examiner must, by the order, be appointed to take the examination, or a commission may be issued: Banque Franco-Egyptienne v. Lutscher, W. N. 1879, 183; 41 L. T. 468; 28 W. R. 133; see also Nadin v. Bassett, 25 Ch. D. 21; but there is no authority to proceed without an order, and by subpoena only: see Bank of B. N. A. v. Eddy, 9 P. R. p. 390; Connolly v. Dowd, 18 P. R. 38.

Where such an order has been made, attendance will be compelled in such manner as may be directed by the order. If a commission is issued, attendance may be compelled as in the case of a commission for examination of a witness.

See also Rule 477, and notes.

Vacation.—Before the passing of clause (3) of Rule 439 (now Rule 439 b), it was held that a party was bound to attend for examination in vacation: Hogaboam v. Cox, 15 P. R. 23, 127, and notes to Rule 9. Examination in vacation.

Where a motion for an injunction is pending in vacation the Master in Chambers has no jurisdiction to authorize an examination of witnesses in support of the motion to be taken in vacation, the motion and all pertaining to it being within the jurisdiction of the Court: Saskatchewan L. & H. Co. v. Leadley, (before Meredith, C.J., C. P., 11th September, 1903), but semble, the Master in Chambers would have jurisdiction to order an examination for discovery in vacation.

Place of Examination.—The Examination must usually be had before a Local Registrar, Local Master, or Deputy Clerk of the Crown, or Special Examiner, in the county where the party to be examined resides: Rule 443; but for special reasons, to be shown on an application in Chambers, he may be ordered to attend elsewhere: Rule 444; Gallagher v. Gairdner, 2 Chy. Ch. 480; McDermid v. McDermid, 1b, 371; Campbell v. Tucker, 7 P. R. 135; Kahn v. Redford, 3 Chy. Ch. 55; and note as to this case Cooper's Digest, 1873, p. 111. Place of examination.

The Examination.—The Examiner's office is not a public Court, and he has a discretion which may be reviewed by the Court, as to the admission or exclusion of persons who desire to be present at an examination: Re Western of Canada O. L. & W. Co., 6 Ch. D. 166; Merchants Bank v. Ketchum, 16 P. R. 356; Wright v. Wilkin, 6 W. R. 643; see also Re Cambrian Co., 51 L. J. Chy. 221; Re Grey's Brewery Co., 25 Ch. D. 400. The Examiner in his discretion may exclude the clerk of the counsel conducting the examination, if his presence is objected to, and even the examinant's own solicitor if his presence interferes, in the Examiner's opinion, with the due taking of the examination: Hands v. F. C. Furniture Co., 12 P. R. 292. Examiner's office not a public Court.

A defendant, who had allowed judgment to go by default, was held entitled to be represented by counsel on the examination of his bookkeeper for discovery at the instance of a co-defendant under Rule 481: Dominion Bank v. Bell, 13 P. R. 471.

Where several parties attend for examination, the Examiner may exclude those in the same interest, while the others are under examination: Culbreth v. Bligny, 10 P. R. 555; Sircwright v. Sirc- Exclusion of parties.

Rule 440. wright, 8 P. R. 81; Sadlier v. Smith, 14 C. L. J. 30; but one of them should be permitted to remain for the purpose of instructing counsel subject to his being first examined; Sivewright v. Sivewright, 8 P. R. 81; and the Examiner has a discretion as to the order of their examination, where several are in attendance for examination; Stuart v. Balkis, 32 W. R. 676; 53 L. J. Chy. 791.

A refusal to comply with the Examiner's ruling is a contempt of Court; Sadlier v. Smith, 14 C. L. J. 30.

Producing of documents on examination.

The party examined may be required to produce books and papers. Rules 448, 452, but books in constant use need not be produced until it is decided that they are necessary, when the Examiner may adjourn the examination until they are produced; Comstock v. Hecris, 12 P. R. 17.

Ordinarily, any question as to whether documents are subject to production on the examination should be raised before the Examiner; Alexander v. Trondah, 18 P. R. 20; but in a proper case, such as a subpoena for the production of an enormous number of papers, amounting to an abuse of the process of the Court, a motion may be made to set aside the subpoena; Steele v. Saroy, W. N. 1891, 195; 35 Sed. Jour. 92; 8 Times, 94.

Disclosure on examination.

As to the scope of the examination, see notes to Rule 455.

The issuing of a subpoena duces tecum as a substitute for an order for production is not to be encouraged; per Boyd, C., Larrop v. Wolfe, 10 P. R. 488; 20 C. L. J. 410.

If documents are produced, the examining party is entitled to have them marked as exhibits; Hanks v. U. C. Furniture Co., 12 P. R. 292.

If the examination is unnecessary, or vexatious, or of unnecessary length, the party taking it may have to pay, or at all events be disallowed, the costs of it; Dobson v. Dobson, 7 P. R. 256; Ernos v. Jaffray, 3 C. L. R. 327; and see Rule 443b.

An examination for discovery in support of a defence which is bad in law will not be allowed; Rogers v. Lambert, 21 Q. B. D. 573; 62 L. T. 694.

Fees.

Where the examination is taken before a Local Registrar, or other officer paid by salary, the fees are payable in stamps; Denmark v. McConaghy, 8 P. R. 436; Ind. Act, s. 147 (1); but Deputy Clerks are entitled to fees in money for their own use, for such examinations; Ibid., s. 144 (1).

Disclosure on Examination.—Privilege, etc.—As to what must be disclosed, privilege, etc.; see notes to Rule 455.

On Reference to an Official Referee.—As to Discovery on proceedings before a Referee, see note to Rule 448.

Examinations in long vacation.

439b. An examination shall not take place during the long vacation without an order of the Court or a Judge. Rule 1250 of 20 June, 1903.

Party benefited

440. A person for whose immediate benefit an action is prosecuted or defended shall be regarded as a party for the purpose of examination. Con. Rule 488.

Taken from Chy. Order E23, which applied also to production of Rule 440. documents, as to which see now Rule 466. There appears to be no similar English Rule.

A person to be examined, etc., must be directly interested; Heazler v. Toronto & Ottawa, Globe, 1st October, 1881. An order was made, where it appeared, on affidavit, that the plaintiff was agent for his wife as to part of the subject matter of the suit; Rowson v. Sutherland, Globe, 19th September, 1881.

In Johnson v. McIntosh, 3 C. L. T. 313, J. L. was trustee for the E. estate for twenty years when the plaintiff was appointed in his place. The action involved the consideration of matters during the trusteeship of J. L., and as to which the plaintiff was ignorant, and the E. estate was indebted to J. L., so that if the plaintiffs succeeded J. L. would be benefited. An order was made under this Rule for examination of J. L.

In an action by creditors of a firm to establish the liability of defendant as a partner, the assignee of the firm for the benefit of creditors, though having no direct beneficial interest in the result, was regarded as a quasi plaintiff, and the defendant was held entitled to production from him, and to examine him for the purposes of production; Frithingham v. Ishister, 14 P. R. 112.

See also Brudby v. Clarke, in note to Rule 465.

An order under this Rule for the examination of the plaintiff's daughter, in an action of seduction, was refused, but under special circumstances was granted under the former Con. Rule 543 (now 185); Turner v. Kylo, 18 C. L. J. 402; 2 C. L. T. 598; see also Hollister v. Innakke, 14 P. R. 11; Baxter v. Campbell, 9 C. L. T. 5; but see now as to the scope of that Rule, notes to Rule 485.

Where, in an action for infringement of a patent, the defendant set up that he had acquired the right to use the invention from C. & Co., but it did not appear that C. & Co. had done anything in reference to the action before or after it was brought, it was held that C. & Co. were not persons for whose benefit the action was defendable; Maffatt v. Leonard, 8 O. L. R. 519.

The examination of a debtor, who had effected insurance and assigned the policy for the benefit of his creditors, was ordered, in an action by one creditor and the trustee for the benefit of other creditors; Macdonald v. Norwich Union; Clarkson v. F. Ins. Assn., 10 P. R. 162; so also of a debtor, in an action against his assignee for the benefit of creditors, to establish the right of the plaintiff to rank upon the insolvent estate; Garland v. Clarkson, 9 O. L. R. 281.

See Minkler v. M. McMillan, 10 P. R. 506, where proof of the interest of the party sought to be examined was unsatisfactory, but the order was made with the qualification that it was only to be used for the purpose of discovery.

In Leach v. Dodds (Mr. Dalton, 8th May, 1881), the action was to establish an alleged will, suspected by the defendant to have been a forgery of the plaintiff's husband, who was not a party; the plaintiff having been examined had no knowledge of it, but the circumstances under which it had come into his hands were suspicious, and an order was made, under this Rule, on defendant's application, for examination of the plaintiff's husband for discovery as a person for whose benefit the action was brought.

441, 442.

Assignor of chose in action, examinable for discovery.

441. Where an action is brought by an assignee of a chose in action, the assignor may without order be examined for discovery. Rules 23 June, 1894, 1334.

An officer of a corporation, the assignors of a chose in action, can not under this Rule or otherwise be examined for discovery: Bank of Toronto v. Quebec F. Ins. Co., 15 P. R. 41.

Time when examination may be held.

442. The examination on the part of a plaintiff may take place at any time after the statement of defence of the party to be examined has been delivered or after the time for delivering the same has expired; and the examination on the part of a defendant may take place at any time after such defendant has delivered his statement of defence; and the examination of a party to an issue, at any time after the issue has been filed. Con. Rule 489.

Based on Chy. O. 140.

Party may be examined as a witness.

A party may be examined as a witness in support of a motion although the time for examining him under this Rule may not have arrived: McClennaghan v. Buchanan, 7 Gr. 92.

Time for examination by plaintiff.

Under this Rule it will be noticed that the right of the plaintiff to examine only arises after the statement of defence, or after the time for delivering the same has expired; see Davis v. Wickson, 9 P. R. 219. He is not obliged to wait until all of several defendants have filed their statements of defence.

But where a plaintiff is ordered to give particulars of his statement of claim, he has, by special order, been allowed to have discovery by examination of the defendant, and production of documents, before delivering such particulars, where the Court thought it just: Hapner Co. v. Radford, 1896, 1 Ch. 29; 73 L. T. 624; but not as to matters which ought to be within the plaintiff's own knowledge: Zierenberg v. Labouchere, 1893, 2 Q. B. 183; 69 L. T. 172.

A plaintiff may examine a defendant who has made default in delivering a defence; see Bacon v. Campbell, 6 P. R. 275; and Dominion Bank v. Bell, 13 P. R. 471; or has not appeared: Bulst v. Currie, 33 C. L. J. 622; 17 C. L. T. 335; and see Spoken v. The Grosvenor & W. E. R. T. Hotel, 1897, 2 Q. B. 124; 76 L. T. 679.

Time for examin-
defendant

The right of a defendant to examine the plaintiff under this Rule only arises after he has filed his statement of defence; a defendant, therefore, who suffers the time for delivering a defence to elapse without delivering one, has no right to examine the plaintiff for discovery: Ashley v. Brenton, 13 P. R. 98.

Co-defendants need not be notified of examination of plaintiff.

A defendant is entitled to examine the plaintiff as soon as his own statement of defence is filed; he is not obliged to wait until those of his co-defendants, if any, are filed: Fowler v. Boulton, 12 Gr. 437. He need not notify his co-defendants of the examination: Ib.

The examination may be had, though the case has been entered for trial: Clarke v. Hawke, 1 Chy. Ch. 349.

Second Examination for Discovery:—

Rule 443.

The examination under this Rule may be had as of course within the time prescribed, but it is possible that there is inherent jurisdiction to order, where justice so requires, an examination of a party for discovery at an earlier period, or after an examination under this Rule has taken place; see Waynes Co. v. Radford, supra, and Thomson v. Gye, 13 P. R. 273. There does not now, however, seem to be any express Rule on the subject, unless it be Rule 444, and that seems merely to deal with the case of an examination required to be held before an examiner other than one of the regular officers, or out of the county, where the examination could otherwise be had without order. It has been held under the former practice that a second examination of the same party will not be allowed except under the most special circumstances; Thorburn v. Brown, 8 P. R. 114; see also Campbell v. Scott, 14 P. R. 203; and upon a special motion made on notice: Laird v. Stanley, 6 P. R. 322. But assuming that there is authority to make an order for examination for discovery at an earlier period than that mentioned in this Rule, it ought not to be made except under special circumstances; Thomson v. Gye, 13 P. R. 273, and such an order if obtained ex parte would be irregular; Hooley v. Gilbert, 12 P. R. 114.

Where the pleadings have been amended raising matters not before suggested, after examination for discovery, an order may, in a proper case, be made for further examinations limited to the matter raised by the amendment; Standard Trading Co. v. Seybold, 7 O. L. R. 39.

443. Where a party is entitled to examine another party [or person] he may procure an appointment therefor from the Local Registrar, Local Master, Deputy Clerk of the Crown, or a special examiner, in the County where the party [or person] to be examined resides, and such party [or person], upon being served with a copy of the appointment and a subpoena, and upon payment of the proper fees, shall attend thereon and submit to examination. Con. Rule 490.

Subpoena
and appointment.

The words in brackets are new, and include an officer or servant examinable under Rule 433.

"Where the party or person to be examined resides": see Machan v. James Bay Ry. Co., 5 O. W. R. 440.

The fact that a witness could only speak Welsh, was held not to be a reason for having the examination before some person other than the Court Examiner, as he can have an interpreter; Marquess of Bute v. James, 33 Ch. D. 157.

For special reasons, the examination may be specially ordered to be taken before some other person, and elsewhere than provided by this Rule; Rule 444; Gallagher v. Guirner, 2 Chy. Ch. 480; McDonaid v. McDermid, Id., 372; Campbell v. Tucker, 7 P. R. 135; Kahn v. Redford, 3 Chy. Ch. 55; Coop. Dig., 1873, p. 111; and see Standard Trading Co. v. Seybold, 7 O. L. R. 39.

The solicitor of the party to be examined is entitled to 48 hours' notice: Rule 446.

Where a motion is made to compel attendance of a party who has not attended, or has attended and refused to be sworn, it must be proved that he was duly served with a copy of the appointment and subpoena, and was paid proper fees; Melchett v. Bruce, 12 P. R. 602. Scamblé, that the Examiner's certificate on these points would not be sufficient: Id.

Attendance and submitting to be sworn precludes objection that no subpoena had been served: Cooke v. Wilson, 3 O. L. R. 290.

An order for substitutional service of the appointment and subpoena for the examination of a person not a party to the action can not be made: Mills v. The Mercer Co., 15 P. R. 276.

A party or person is entitled to be served a reasonable time, but not necessarily 48 hours, before the time appointed: Re North Wheel Co., Co., 31 Beav. 628; 8 Jur. N. S. 1168; Bolkow v. Foster, 7 P. R. 388; Wilson v. Cowan, 19 C. L. J. 140; 3 C. L. T. 216; Egoshke v. C. P. Ry. Co., 4 C. L. T. 93; unless he has no solicitor, in which case he is entitled to 48 hours' notice: Watson v. Hunt, 1 Chy. 19, 203.

Where the defendant's solicitor was served under Rule 446, but defendant himself was not, but the appointment was twice enlarged, and defendant was served for the enlarged date, and the solicitor notified of the enlargement, the defendant, not attending, was held to be in default: Reid v. Walters, 19 P. R. 310.

Where a party resident out of Ontario comes temporarily within Ontario, his attendance for examination for discovery can only be obtained by order under Rule 477: Cog v. Prior, 18 P. R. 492.

See also notes to Rule 492.

Order to examine.

444. Upon application to the Court or a Judge an order may be made for the examination of any party or person liable to be examined as aforesaid before any other person or in any other County than those before mentioned. Con. Rule 492.

See notes to Rule 412.

An order for the examination of an officer residing in a foreign country of a foreign corporation which had attained to the jurisdiction was refused, in Perrins v. Algoma, 8 O. L. R. 634.

445. In High Court cases an examination for discovery on which fees may be payable otherwise than in law stamps, shall not be taken before the Judge of the County Court, or Local Judge of the High Court, or Local Master, being also a Judge of the County Court, by whom the order or appointment for such reference or examination has been made. Con. Rule 1192, part.

Service of appointment on solicitor.

446. The party examining shall serve a copy of the appointment upon the solicitor of the party to be examined, if he has a solicitor in the cause, at least forty-eight hours before the examination. Con. Rule 491.

Sundays and other holidays are excluded in the computation of Rules the 48 hours: see Rules 343, and 344 (2), and Lovell v. Harrington, 10 P. R. 157. Service on Saturday at 9.30 p.m. for Tuesday at 2 p.m. is insufficient: Senn v. Hewett, 8 P. R. 70. Where the person to be examined is not a party, he must be personally served; the Court will not, in such a case, authorize substitutional service: Mills v. The Mercer Co., 15 P. R. 276. 447-449.

447.—(1) In lieu of personal service of a subpoena on a party for his examination, service of an appointment upon his solicitor shall be sufficient, if made seven days before the day appointed for the examination; and the conduct money may be paid or tendered to the solicitor. Service on solicitor for client

(2) The solicitor shall forthwith communicate the appointment to the party required to attend, and shall not apply the money to any debt due to the solicitor or any other person, or pay the same otherwise than to such party for his conduct money, and the same shall not be liable to be attached.

(3) Notwithstanding anything in this Rule, the party to be examined may be served personally with a subpoena, as in the preceding Rules provided, in case the party desiring the examination so chooses. Rules of 1 Jan., 1896, 1452.

This Rule only applies in the case of the examination of a party who has a solicitor. It cannot be employed for service of an officer of a corporate party.

448. The party or person to be examined shall, if so required by notice, produce on the examination all books, papers and documents which he would be bound to produce at the trial under a subpoena duces tecum. Con. Rule 493. Production of papers.

The proper mode of compelling production on an examination for discovery, where the witness neglects or refuses to produce, is for the Examiner to direct what documents are to be produced and to adjourn the examination. Process by subpoena duces tecum to get production of particular documents is not to be encouraged by treating non-production thereunder, for discovery, as contempt: Lovely v. Wolfe, 10 P. R. 488; but see Alexander v. Irondale, etc., 18 P. R. 20. See note to Rule 452.

See Russell v. Macdonald, 12 P. R. 458.

449. Anyone so examined, may be further examined on his own behalf, or on behalf of the body corporate of which he is [or has been] an officer, in relation to any matter respecting which he has been examined in chief; and when one of several plaintiffs or defendants has been examined, any other Parties and others may be examined on their own behalf.

plaintiff or defendant united in interest may be examined on his own behalf or on behalf of those united with him in interest, to the same extent as the party examined. Con. Rule 494.

The words in brackets are now of no effect. They are a relic of the practice abolished by Rule 439a.

When explanatory examination to take place.

450 Such explanatory examination shall, unless by leave of the Court or a Judge, be proceeded with immediately after the examination in chief, and not at any future period. Con. Rule 495, amended.

The explanatory examination may be proceeded with, notwithstanding that the counsel for the opposite party has withdrawn: Connolly v. Murrell, 14 P. R. 187.

Mode of conducting examination.

451. Any one examined orally under these Rules shall be subject to cross-examination and re-examination; and the examination, cross-examination and re-examination shall be conducted as nearly as may be as at a trial. Con. Rule 496.

Taken from R. S. O. 1877, c. 50, s. 161.

A party admitting the possession of document may be ordered to produce there.

452. Anyone (a) who admits, upon his examination, that he has in his custody or power any deed, paper, writing, or document relating to the matters in question in the cause, not privileged or protected from production, shall produce the same for the inspection of the party examining him upon the order of the Court or a Judge, or upon the direction of the officer before whom he is examined, and for that purpose a reasonable time is to be allowed. Con. Rule 497.

Taken from Chy. O. 147.

(a) The words in Con. Rule 497 were "a party to the action."

Where Master may order production.

The power of the Master, or Special Examiner, to order production of documents under Rule 452, is therefore not, as formerly, confined to cases where parties to the action admit the possession of such documents. Where the admission is made by an officer of a corporation, the Master, and Examiner, has now power to make the order, and an application in Chambers is not necessary: see Rule 464. In the case of an officer of a corporation it would seem that an order for production of documents can only be made of such as he admits are in his custody or power, and not of any which are in the custody or power of some other officer. Production may be obtained under an order of course, as provided by Rule 464. The provisions of Rule 452 are intended to meet the case of any one examinable under Rules 430-441, who on his examination admits that he has material documents which he has not produced; the examination may be adjourned for the purpose of enabling the examinant to comply with the Master's, or Examiner's, order for production: Comstock v. Harris, 12 P. R. 17.

A person examined under Rule 485 may also be ordered by the Rules Examiner to produce documents by virtue of this Rule: Orpen v. Kerr, 11 P. R. 128. 453, 454.

The question as to the liability of any person being examined to produce any documents referred to in a subpoena duces tecum should ordinarily, be raised before the Examiner, and not by motion to set aside the subpoena: Alexander v. Irondale, etc., Ry., 18 P. R. 20; or by motion to commit for contempt in disobeying the subpoena: see note to Rule 488; Stickle v. Surry, W. N. 1891, 197, is only to be followed in exceptional cases: Alexander v. Irondale, supra.

453. The direction of the officer shall be subject to appeal; and he shall upon request certify under his hand the question raised and the direction made thereon. Con. Rule 498. Master's and Examiner's order for production appealable.

Taken from Chy. O. 148.

There is no Rule specially regulating appeals from Special Examiners, but the convenient mode of appeal would be by analogy to Rule 767.

As to documents privileged from production, see notes to Rule 467.

454 Anyone refusing or neglecting to attend at the time and place appointed for his examination, or refusing to be sworn or to answer any lawful question put to him by the examiner or by any party entitled so to do, or his counsel, solicitor or solicitor's clerk, shall be deemed guilty of a contempt of Court and proceedings may be forthwith had by attachment. He shall also be liable, if a plaintiff, to have his action dismissed; and if a defendant, to have his defence, if any, struck out, and to be placed in the same position as if he had not defended; and the party examining may apply to the Court or a Judge for an order to that effect, and an order may be made accordingly. Con. Rules 499, 518. Penalty on witness refusing to attend or answer, etc.

Based on R. S. O. 1877, c. 50, s. 162; Chy. O. 144.

This Rule is confined to three classes of cases (1) refusal or neglect to attend for examination, (2) refusal to be sworn, (3) refusal to answer lawful questions, and it renders a wilfully disobedient defendant liable to have his defence struck out: Haigh v. Haigh, 31 Ch. D. 478; and a disobedient plaintiff to have his action dismissed: Republic of Liberia v. Imperial Bank, L. R. 9 Chy. 509; S. C. as Republic of Liberia v. Royal, 1 App. Cas. 439; Dunn v. McLean, 6 P. R. 156; Dauvillier v. Myers, W. N. 1883, 78.

By Rule 473 a party failing to comply with an order for production, or inspection of documents, is liable to similar penalties.

This Rule does not apply to cases of disobedience of a notice to produce for inspection under Rule 469; see MERCHANTS BANK v. PIERSON, 8 P. R. 123; an order under Rule 471 must first be obtained.

Rule 454.

The party or person must have been regularly subpoenaed; Murray v. G. T. Ry. Co., 3 Chy. Ch. 130, and paid his witness fees; Belknap v. Foster, 7 P. R. 388, or no order can be made against him; McLean v. Bruce, 12 P. R. 602.

A party subpoenaed for examination and paid his conduct money, having been excluded while others were being examined, is bound to wait for examination and is not justified in leaving without communicating with the examiner; Campbell v. Scott, 5 O. L. R. 231.

A motion to strike out the defence, or to dismiss the action, is the proper course, where default has been made by an officer of a company or corporation in attending for examination. The remedy is to commit the defaulting officer; Badgerow v. G. T. Ry. Co., 13 P. R. 132; Central Press Association v. American Press Association, 13 P. R. 353.

Commitment for contempt.

Motion to Commit for Contempt.—It has been held that proceedings to attach must be taken before the Court, and not before a Judge in Chambers; Merchants Bank v. Pierson, 8 P. R. 423; but this decision does not seem in practice to have been adhered to in cases under this Rule. (In other cases of contempt, see Southwick v. Hare, 15 P. R. 331.) The motion is made to a Judge in Chambers in a case of non-compliance with a præcipe order, or an order in Chambers; and an application to the Court is necessary in case of breach of an order of the Court; see Klein v. Union Ins. Co., 3 O. L. T. 501, and note to Rule 306.

The Master in Chambers cannot entertain applications to commit for non-production; Rule 42; Keele v. Ward, 9 P. R. 220; 18 O. L. J. 129; 2 C. L. T. 260; neither can a Local Judge under Rule 47; or a Local Master; Rule 49; but semble, a Local Judge may do so when acting under Rule 47.

It is not necessary to serve, with a notice of motion to commit, copies of the affidavit upon which it is based; Hannum v. McKee, 18 P. R. 185.

The defaulting party is entitled to notice of motion to strike out the defence, or to dismiss the action, and the defaulting party or person to notice of motion to commit; Rule 855; and it would seem that a notice to commit should be personally served; Manu v. Perry, 44 L. T. 248; 50 L. J. Chy. 251; Weir v. Matheson, 1 Chy. Ch. 244; Nelson v. Worssam, W. N. 1890, 216; Mander v. Faich, 1891, 3 Ch. 488; 64 L. T. 791; except where every reasonable effort to effect personal service has failed, in which case an order for substituted service may be made; Ib., and S. C. 65 L. T. 454; and see Rule 474, in the case of default in production pursuant to an order to produce and in certain other cases. Two days' notice would seem to be sufficient in all cases; Rule 348.

Where an order was made for examination in Ontario of a defendant who resided out of Ontario, but was temporarily in Ontario attending the House of Commons, of which he was a member, it was held that the order could not be enforced by attachment against the defendant while the House was in session, but it might be enforced under Rule 454 by striking out his defence; Cox v. Prior, 18 P. R. 492.

In Re Evans, 1893, 1 Ch. 272; 68 L. T. 271, the Court refused to set aside an order for attachment founded on a notice of motion which had not been personally served, holding that the irregularity may be condoned if the Court sees fit; but in Taylor v. Roe, 3 R. 259; 68 L. T. 223, Kekewich, J., held that an irregularity will not be condoned on motions affecting the liberty of the subject, where the opposite party appears and takes the objection.

A person committed for default in attending to be examined is not Rule 454. entitled to a habeas corpus; Re Anderson v. Vanstone, 16 P. R. 243.

See further as to motions to attach, notes to Rules 854, 855.

As to motions to commit for unsatisfactory answers, see Smith v. Grey, 4 C. L. T. 589.

An objection to answer incriminating questions should be taken by the witness, but the privilege may be claimed on a motion to commit, though not claimed before the Examiner; Hall v. Gowanlock, 12 P. R. 104. The penal provisions of R. S. O. c. 334, ss. 2, 4, do not afford any ground for refusing to answer questions put regarding a fraudulent transaction; Dunsford v. Carlisle, 10 P. R. 441.

Dismissal of Action or Striking out of Defence.—In general another opportunity to obey will be given on terms, but where the action is unmeritorious the plaintiff may be refused this indulgence and the action may be dismissed; Deahm v. Gough, 13 P. R. 344.

Where the plaintiffs were husband and wife, and the wife complied with an order for production, but the husband absconded without complying, Hall, V.C., refused to dismiss the action; Hartley v. Owen, W. N. 1870, 193; 34 L. T. 752.

For other cases in which the power has been exercised, see Egan v. Hughes, 25 W. R. 528; and Rep. of Liberia v. Rep., 1 App. Cas. 139. In the last case it was held that where any step ought to be taken in a cause which, in the judgment of the Court, was necessary to facilitate the decision of the cause, and default had been made, the former Court of Chancery had power, if the party in default was the plaintiff, to dismiss the bill; see also Fraser v. Burrows, 2 Q. B. 15, 624.

Compliance was held excused by illness; Lord Cardwell v. Tomlinson, 33 W. R. 814; 52 L. T. 746.

Other Remedies.—On a motion to commit for non-production of books, etc., pursuant to a subpoena duces tecum on an examination for discovery, it was held that the proper course was to get the examiner to direct what should be produced, and to adjourn the examination for procuring the documents; Lavery v. Walje, 10 P. R. 488; Constock v. Harris, 12 P. R. 17.

Where the defendant did not appear, nor deliver any statement of defence, after being served with a statement of claim, and a summons for him to attend to be examined touching the matters in question (delivering up to plaintiff of books and documents in his possession) was likewise disregarded, it was held, that, notwithstanding that he was a party to the action, he must be considered as being summoned as a witness, and must be dealt with accordingly, and that his disobedience was not disobedience of an order of Court. An order was therefore made under Eng. Rule of 1883, No. 495 (not adopted in Ontario), for his attendance for examination at his own expense, for disobedience of which an attachment might issue; Powell v. Brett, 55 L. T. 728.

The question whether or not the person or party alleged to be in default is really so may be tested by moving to compel him to attend again at his own expense, and submit to examination, or in default that the action be dismissed, or defence struck out. Where such an order has been obtained and disobeyed, the motion to dismiss, or strike out defence, may perhaps be made ex parte; Dunn v. McLean, 6 P. R. 156; but see Hallender v. Foulkes, 16 P. R. 225.

Rule 455.

Upon failure of a plaintiff to attend for examination, the action may be stayed for a definite time, to enable him to attend, but not indefinitely: Comstock v. Harris, 12 P. R. 17.

A party who has been ordered to attend for further examination, after a refusal to answer questions, is in contempt if he does not so attend, but that is not a bar to his appealing from the order: McGregor v. McDonald, 11 P. R. 518.

Restoring action dismissed for non-production.

Restoring Action, etc.—Where an action has been dismissed it will not be restored, unless, perhaps, where the claim would otherwise be barred by the dismissal, e.g., by the Statute of Limitations: Dunn v. McLenn, 6 P. R. 156; and see Hodgson v. Paxton, 2 Chy. Ch. 398; Bank of Montreal v. Wilson, 2 Chy. Ch. 117; Dary v. Dary, 2 Chy. Ch. 26; nor where the defence has been struck out, and judgment signed, will the judgment be set aside: Huigh v. Huigh, 31 Ch. D. 478.

Miscellaneous.—It is not imperative on the Court to act under this Rule: Kennedy v. Lyell, W. N. 1882, 137. It was said in one case that the Rule is a penal one, and only to be acted on in the last resort: Laish, J., in Twyeross v. Grant, W. N. 1875, 201, 229; 1 Charl. Ch. Ch. 115; see Fisher v. Hughes, 25 W. R. 528; Pike v. Keene, 24 W. R. 322; 35 L. T. 341.

Objection to questions

455. If any one under examination objects to any question put to him, the question and the (a) objection of the witness thereto shall be taken down by the Examiner and transmitted by him to the office of the Court where the pleadings are filed, to be there filed; and the validity of such objection shall be decided by the Court or a Judge; and the costs of and occasioned by such objection shall be in the discretion of the Court or Judge. Con. Rule 500.

Compare Eng. (1883) R. 496, which is to the same effect.

The former Con. Rule 500 had at (a) the words "demurrer or," following in that respect R. S. O. 1877, c. 50, s. 163. Any former practice by which a demurrer by the witness was authorized, (see Dan. Pr., 6th ed., 659), is now abolished.

Scope of
tion.

Disclosure on Examination.—A party has the right to examine for discovery, not only for the purpose of obtaining information from the opposite party as to material facts which are not within his own knowledge, and are within the knowledge of the opposite party, but also for the purpose of obtaining from the opposite party admissions which will make it unnecessary for him to enter into evidence of the facts admitted: Atty.-Gen. v. Gaskill, 20 Ch. D. 519; Heller v. Ellis, W. N. 1884, 9; see Cotter v. McPherson, 12 P. R. 630; Humphries v. Taylor Drug Co., 33 Ch. D. 693; Macdonald v. Sheppard Pub. Co., 19 P. R. 282.

The examination must not extend to matters wholly irrelevant to the pleadings: Bentley v. Murphy, 2 O. L. R. 665; Cole v. Canadian Pacific Ry., 19 P. R. 164; and it will be as far as possible, confined to matters relevant to what is raised by the pleadings: Atty.-Gen. v. N. Metropolitan Tramways, 1892, 3 Ch. 70; 67 L. T. 283; Dickson v. Covert, 2 Chy. Ch. 242; Nicholl v. Elliott, 3 Gr. 536; Proctor v.

Grant, 9 Gr. 31; though a fair amount of latitude must be allowed: Rule 455. Mack v. Dobie, 14 P. R. 465, and matters germane to what is strictly raised by the pleadings may be inquired into in view of the right to amend, information for which purpose is one of the objects of examination for discovery: see McGillivray v. McConkey, 6 P. R. 56. Relevancy to the mere allegations in the pleadings may not be sufficient to justify a particular line of discovery, if parts of the pleadings are not relevant to the action: Bentley v. Murphy, 2 O. L. R. 665.

Discovery is relevant or material, not only if it is directed to the facts directly in issue, but also if it is directed to the damages: Blumenstiel v. Edwards, 5 O. W. R. 341.

Examination for discovery in support of a defence which was bad in law, was not allowed in Rogers v. Lunbert, 24 Q. B. 11, 573; 62 L. T. 1394.

It is improper to examine generally as upon a cross-examination of a witness: see Kennedy v. Dodson, 1895, 1 Ch. 334.

The plaintiff is entitled to discovery of what will help him to prove any issue to be determined at the trial; but where discovery is sought in aid of something which is not part of what the plaintiff must prove at the trial, but is merely consequential to it, the right is not absolute, but discretionary, until the plaintiff has established his fundamental right at the trial: see per Street, J., in Graham v. I. v. Temperance, &c., 16 P. R. at p. 533; but where the plaintiff sued on an agreement, which defendant denied, but also set up that if established it had been performed, the defendant was required to answer questions directed to the alleged breach of the agreement, without the agreement itself having been first established: Sheppard v. Harkins, 8 O. L. R. 622.

Questions which only go to impeach the credit of the party examined are not admissible: Mack v. Dobie, 14 P. R. 465.

Where a party's right to an account depends on his establishing a fiduciary relationship which is denied, the opposite party may refuse to make discovery of matters of account until the question of relationship has been judicially determined: Bedell v. Ryckman, 5 O. L. R. 670; and a defendant may refuse to answer questions as to facts, which would become material only in the event of the plaintiff establishing his right to recover damages: Evans v. Jaffray, 3 O. L. R. 327.

A defendant pleading privilege was allowed to be examined as to his reasons for believing in the truth, and as to the means taken by him to ascertain the truth, of the alleged slander in respect of which the action was brought: Ellitt v. Garrett, 1902, 1 K. B. 170; 86 L. T. 441; but see Cargill v. Daily Mail, 90 L. T. 307.

A plaintiff was held entitled to examine a married woman as to the estate possessed by her at the time of the contract, that being, as the law then stood, a matter which the plaintiff must prove: Kennedy v. Bowers, 11 C. L. T. 281; Smith v. Berg, 36 L. T. 471; and see Bursill v. Tanner, 16 Q. B. D. 1.

An executor pleading plene administravit was held bound to disclose particulars of the real and personal estate: St. George v. St. George, 19 L. R. 1r. 225.

Disclosure by Officers of a Corporation.—The person examined, whether a party or officer of the company, is bound to seek the necessary information which is in his own possession, or in possession of the servants or agents of the company, in order to give the dis-

Rule 455. discovery to which the party examining is entitled: Harris v. Toronto Electric Light Co., 18 P. R. 285; Clarkson v. Bank of Hamilton, 9 O. L. R. 317; but it would seem that he is not bound to answer as to his own knowledge, not acquired in the course of his employment by the company, or to make inquiries of the other officers or agents as to their knowledge not acquired in the same way, but acquired accidentally, or in some other capacity than as such officers or agents: Wylsbach Incandescent, etc., v. New Sunlight Incandescent, etc., 1900, 2 Ch. 1; 83 L. T. 58; see also Sydney Cheese & Butter Factory Association v. Brooker, 19 P. R. 152, where a special agreement was set up by the defendant binding him not to divulge the matters, disclosure of which was sought.

Action to
land.

There is no distinction, as regards the right to discovery, between actions for recovery of land, and other actions; and a plaintiff is therefore entitled to discovery as to all matters relevant to his own, and not exclusively to the defendant's case; Lyell v. Kennedy, 8 App. Cas. 217; Daniel v. Ford, W. N. 1883, 27, 32. This is not a new right, however; the right to discovery is unaffected by The Judicature Act, 1875, and Humming v. Williamson, 10 Q. B. D. 459, 462.

Defamation.

In an action for libel of the plaintiffs in the way of their trade, where no special damage is alleged, but only general diminution of profits, discovery as to the amount of diminution, and how it was made out, was held to be relevant; Blutcher v. Green, 14 P. R. 424.

In an action against a newspaper for libel, a defendant cannot be required to disclose the source of his information; Parnell v. Walter, 24 Q. B. D. 441; 62 L. T. 75; Blane v. Burrows, 12 Times, 521; and see Ridgway v. Smith, 4 Times, 275; Hope v. Brash, 1897, 2 Q. B. 188; nor can a well established newspaper, sued for libel, be required to disclose the number of its circulation; Whittaker v. Scarborough Post, 1896, 2 Q. B. 148; 74 L. T. 753, overruling Parnell v. Walter, supra, on that point. Questions as to the inquiries made as to the truth of the matters complained of before publishing them are proper; White v. Credit Reform, &c., 1905, 1 K. B. 653; but not the names of persons to whom the publication had been shown: Id.

In an action for slander the defendant may be asked whether he spoke the words complained of, "or words to that effect," and in whose presence he spoke them; Dalglish v. Lowther, 1899, 2 Q. B. 500; 81 L. T. 161; and what information he had and what inquiries he made as to the truth of the words; Saunderson v. Von Rudeck, 119 L. T. Jour, 331.

cases.

In an action for infringement of a patent, the plaintiff was held to be bound to answer questions as to matters which tended to show that the patent was not a good one, having become forfeited; Parramore v. Boston Manufacturing Co., 4 O. L. R. 627.

In an action for infringement of patent where defendants were ordered to account for profits, it was held that they must disclose the names and addresses of their customers; Saccharin Corporation v. Chemicals and Drugs Co., 1900, 2 Ch. 556.

As to the extent to which plaintiff may examine defendant for discovery in an action for infringement of a patent, where the defendant claims to use a secret process, see Ashworth v. Roberts, 45 Ch. D. 623.

Disclosure of evidence and names of witnesses.

As to objections to answer questions tending to disclose evidence, see Eade v. Jacobs, 3 Ex. D. 335; Atty.-Gen. v. Gaskill, 20 Ch. D. 539; Benbow v. Low, 18 Ch. D. 93; Bray on Discovery, 445; Coyne v. Coyne, 19 P. R. 97.

A party, on examination for discovery, need not disclose the names Rule 455. of his witnesses; see McCalla v. Jones, 4 Times, 12; Marriott v. Chamberlain, 17 Q. B. D. 154; 54 L. T. 714; nor the evidence he intends to give; Cople v. Cople, 19 P. R. 37; though he cannot object to disclose a material fact only for the reason that names of witnesses will thereby necessarily be disclosed; Ib.; Johns v. James, 13 Ch. D. 370; Humphries & Co. v. The Taylor Drug, etc., Co., 39 Ch. D. 483; Birch v. Mather, 22 Ch. D. 629; Hall v. Luardet, W. N. 1883, 175; Marshall v. Metropolitan, 7 Times, 49; Williamson v. Merrill, 4 O. W. R. 528; and see 5 O. W. R. 64; Sungster v. Vickerhead, 5 O. W. R. 438, 495; or their reputation injured; Macdonald v. Sheppard Pub. Co., 19 P. R. 282.

Where a solicitor's objection to questions is overruled by the Examiner, he cannot put an end to the examination by withdrawing, and the examination if proceeded with will be regular, and will not be struck out, though taken after he has withdrawn; Connolly v. Murrell, 14 P. R. 187, 270.

Privilege on Examination.—The general rules as to privilege in evidence apply in examinations for discovery, and in the production and inspection of documents; see notes to Rules 175, and 467.

The plaintiff is entitled to examine in order to ascertain what title the defendant is setting up against him. This does not come within the ground of privilege; Copley v. Sandcroft, 33 W. R. 577.

A husband or wife may under R. S. O. c. 73, s. 8, refuse to disclose communications made by one to the other of them during marriage; Connolly v. Murrell, 14 P. R. 187, 270; but each must disclose communications made by a third person to either of them; Williamson v. Merrill, 5 O. W. R. 64.

As to objections to answers as tending to criminate, see note to Rule 455.

As to objections on the ground of disclosing the names of witnesses, see supra.

Where interrogatories, under the English practice, were administered to the guardian ad litem of a lunatic defendant, it was held that he need not answer them, as he was not a party, and not called upon to make admissions against defendant's interest; Jugan v. Little, W. N. 1883, 121.

Where knowledge, which might have been obtained by inquiry, is contained in reports which are privileged, the information so obtained is privileged; London, Tilbury & Southend Ry. Co. v. Kirk, 51 L. T. 599.

As to the circumstances under which police officers can be compelled to disclose the source of information under which they have done an act for which the action is brought, see Humphrey v. Archibald, 21 Ont. 553; 29 Ont. App. 267.

Criminating Questions.—A person under examination for discovery may object to answer questions tending to criminate such person, or the husband, or wife, of such person; Fisher v. Owen, 8 Ch. D. 647; Alhosen v. Labouchere, 3 Q. B. D. 654; Malister v. Hucness, 70 L. T. 375; Mitchell v. Little, 10 P. R. 265; Jones v. Gallon, 9 P. R. 296. The objection must be made on oath; Webb v. East, 5 Ex. D. 23; Power v. Ellis, 6 S. C. R. 2; Redfern v. Redfern, 35 W. R. 212; D'Erny v. World, 17 P. R. 387; but if not claimed before the Examiner the privilege, it seems, may still be claimed on a motion to

criminate.

Rule 456. commit: Hall v. Gouranlock, 12 P. R. 204. It is sufficient if the person swears that the answer to the question 'might' tend to criminate him: Lamb v. Munster, 10 Q. B. D. 110; but see 1 Ed. vil. c. 36 (D.). That another person may be exposed to an action, is not a ground for refusing to answer: Tetley v. Easton, 25 L. J. C. P. 293; but an officer of a corporation may claim the privilege on the ground that the corporation may be exposed to a criminal prosecution: D'Irry v. World, 17 P. R. 387.

See also R. S. O. c. 43, s. 5, and the notes to Rule 467, infra, p. 670.

The protection is against answering not only a question that has a direct tendency to criminate the person or corporation, but also one that forms a step towards doing so; the person, however, or in the case of a corporation, an officer, must pledge his oath to his belief that such would, or might, be the effect of the answer; and to entitle him to the privilege of silence, the Court must see from the circumstances of the case, and the nature of the evidence which the witness is called to give, that his belief is likely to be well founded: D'Irry v. World, 17 P. R. 387.

Where in an action on promissory notes defendants pleaded that plaintiff and others had conspired to harass defendants, and lessen trade competition, contrary to 52 V. c. 41 (D.), s. 1 (e), and had procured holders of notes to transfer them to the plaintiff, who was suing as trustee, plaintiff was held not entitled to refuse to answer as to the names of his custis que trustee, on the ground that the answer would tend to criminate him: Hills v. Mercer, 15 P. R. 276.

As to actions for breach of promise of marriage and proceedings in consequence of adultery, see R. S. O. c. 53, ss. 6, and 7, and notes preceding Rule 439, supra, pp. 608-9.

It was at first thought that answers given under such circumstances are not, under The Canada Evidence Act, 1893, 56 V. c. 31 (D.), admissible against the person examined, in any criminal proceedings, except a prosecution for perjury in giving such evidence, and the old rule exonerating a party from giving such evidence was therefore thought to be in effect abrogated; see Weiser v. Heintzman, 15 P. R. 258; but on appeal (S. C., 15 P. R. 407), it was held that the Dominion Act had not altered the practice in civil proceedings; but see 1 Ed. vil. c. 36 (D.), and see The Queen v. Fox, 18 P. R. 346; sed quare, as to this case.

In an action to recover damages for maintenance (which is an indictable offence), as no discovery could be had which would not involve the defendant in matters leading up to the offence, no examination for discovery can take place at all: Hopkins v. Smith, 1 O. L. R. 659.

Depositions how to be taken down.

456.—(1) Subject to Rules 457 and 458, the depositions on an oral examination as aforesaid shall be taken down in writing by the examiner in the form of a narrative, expressed in the first person; and when completed shall be read over to the person examined, and shall be signed by him in the presence of the parties, or such of them as may think fit to attend.

Signing depositions.

(2) Where any one examined refuses or is unable to sign the depositions, then the examiner shall sign the same.

(3) The examiner may upon every examination state any special matter to the Court if he thinks fit. He may in his discretion take down any particular question or answer, and he shall upon request note upon the depositions any question objected to and his ruling thereon. Con. Rule 501.

Clauses (1) and (2) of this Rule merely apply where the examination is taken in long hand; where it is taken in short hand, see Rules 457, 458.

457. Where an examination (a) before or otherwise than at the trial, if the examining party desires to have such examination taken in shorthand, he shall, unless otherwise ordered by the Court or a Judge, be entitled to have it so taken at the place of examination [by the examiner or by a shorthand writer approved and duly sworn by him]. Rules 23 June, 1894, 1335.

The words in brackets were new in the Rule, 335 of 1894. For the previous practice, see Bradt v. Bradt, 13 P. R. 271.

(a) The words "is had or taken," or some equivalent words, seem wanting here.

458.—(1) Where in shorthand, the examination may be taken down by question and answer; and unless otherwise ordered it shall not be necessary for the depositions to be read over to, or signed by, the person examined, unless the Judge so directs where the examination is taken before a Judge, or in other cases unless any of the parties so desires.

(2) A copy of the depositions so taken, certified by the person taking the same as correct, and if such person be not the examiner, also signed by the examiner, shall for all purposes have the same effect as the original depositions in ordinary cases. Rules 23 June, 1894, 1336.

459. The depositions taken by the examiner shall, at the request of any party interested and upon payment of his fees, be returned to and kept in the office of the Court in which the proceedings are carried on; and office copies of such depositions may be given out, and the examinations and depositions certified under the hand of the Judge or other officer or person taking the same, or a copy thereof certified under the hand of the proper officer, shall, without proof of the signature, be received and read in evidence, saving all just exceptions. Con. Rule 504.

Taken from R. S. O. 1877, c. 50, s. 165.

"Saving all just exceptions."—This Rule does not make the depositions of a party, or of an officer of a corporation, admissible in evidence, otherwise than as provided in Rule 461.

Examiners may make a special report to the Court.

460. The person taking an examination may, and if need be shall, make a special report to the Court in which proceedings are pending, touching such examination and the conduct or absence of any person; and the Court may institute such proceedings and make such order upon such report as justice may require, and as may be instituted and made in any case of contempt of the Court. Con. Rule 505.

Taken from R. S. O. 1877, c. 50, s. 166.

Depositions,
how may be evidence.

461.—(1) Any party may, at the trial of an action or issue, use in evidence any part of the examination of the opposite party; but the Judge may look at the whole of the examination, and if he is of opinion that any other part is so connected with the part to be so used that the last mentioned part ought not to be used without such other part, he may direct such other part to be put in evidence. Con. Rule 506.

Compare Eng. (1883) R. 306, which is in substance the same.

In the Court of Chancery of this Province, and in the Common Law Courts of both England and Ontario, a party could use no part of the examination of his opponent without using the whole. The consequence was that one of the great uses of an examination of a party, viz., the saving of expense by proving, by admission, the facts not really in dispute, was prevented, as such admissions in the examination often stood side by side with other statements which the examining party could not safely make part of his case.

Two additional clauses (2) and (3) of this Rule, added in the Consolidation of 1897, provided that the depositions of an officer of a corporation taken for discovery might, subject to specified restrictions, be used as evidence. These provisions were not found to be generally acceptable or just, and they have therefore been abolished by the repeal of the clauses (2) and (3) by Con. Rule 1254, of 20 June, 1907.

The Rule only authorizes the examination for discovery to be used as evidence where it is that of "the opposite party." It does not authorize the use of the examination of any other person who is not a party, as evidence at the trial; e.g., the evidence of an assignor of a chose in action taken under Rule 441 will not be usable against the assignee, nor will the examination of a person for whose benefit "an action is brought or defended, taken under Rule 440, be usable against the actual parties to the action. In such cases the examination is Rule 462. confined to the purposes of discovery simply, and if the evidence is required at the trial, the person must be called and examined in the same way as any other witness.

See Lyle v. Kennedy, 50 L. T. at p. 734, in which under the corresponding English Rule it was said that when an admission is read, everything ought to be read which is fairly connected with that admission.

Where the plaintiff, without objection, put in the defendant's depositions and referred to certain parts, and the Judge in charging the jury referred to other parts, it was held that he could properly do so, as the whole depositions had been put in evidence: Dougall v. Stapleton, 12 Ont. 206.

Where the examination of a witness has been taken by a stenographer it is admissible in evidence, even though incomplete, and though in consequence of the death of the witness he could not be cross-examined: Randall v. Atkinson, 30 Ont. 242, 620; semble, the same rule would apply to an examination for discovery.

462. In any action brought to recover damages or other compensation for or in respect of bodily injury sustained by any person, the Court or a Judge or any person who by consent of parties, or otherwise, has power to fix the amount of such damages or compensation, may order that the person in respect of whose injury damages or compensation is sought shall submit to be examined by a duly qualified medical practitioner who is not a witness on either side, and may make such order respecting such examination and the costs thereof as he may think fit. The medical practitioner named in such order shall be selected by the Court or Judge making the order, and may afterwards be a witness on the trial unless the Judge before whom the action is tried otherwise directs. Rules of 1st Jan., 1896, 1453.

Medical examination in action in respect of bodily injury.

Taken from 54 V. r. 11 (O.).

Formerly, the examination of the person of a litigant could not be ordered for the purpose of discovery: Reilly v. City of London, 14 P. R. 171.

This Rule does not authorize the putting of questions by the medical practitioner to the person examined, who therefore refuse to answer questions, but must allow him to be physically examined: Chase v. Coleman, 16 P. R. 406, 54.

An examination under this Rule, before trial and verdict for plaintiff, for the purpose of shewing that the plaintiff had recovered his health, and that the verdict was excessive, was refused, it being held that examination under the Rule is only intended for discovery before trial: Fraser v. London Street Ry. Co., 18 P. R. 370.

Rule 463.

2. PRODUCTION AND INSPECTION OF DOCUMENTS.

Discovery
before and after close of pleadings.

463. The Court or a Judge at any time pending any action or proceeding, may order the production by any party thereto, upon oath, of such of the documents in his possession or power relating to any matter in question in such action or proceeding, as the Court or Judge thinks right; and the Court may deal with such documents, when produced, in such manner as appears just. Con. Rule 507.

The same as the Eng. (1883) R. 356. It enables the Court or Judge to order production at any time during the pendency of the action or proceeding. The next Rule 464, enables either party, after the defence is delivered, or, when the application is on behalf of a plaintiff, after the time for delivering the defence has expired, to obtain an order of course for this purpose upon principle.

The right to discovery of documents is not enlarged by The Judicature Act, and where a bill of discovery would not formerly lie, discovery of documents cannot now be had, e.g., in an action to recover statutory penalties: see Hanning v. Williamson, and other cases in the note preceding Rule 439.

Where, in any such case, an order has been issued, the defendant is not bound to file an affidavit, and claim privilege, but may have the order set aside: Johnston v. London & Paris Exchange, 6 O. L. R. 49.

The present Rule will only be applicable, where the ordinary procedure for obtaining production under Rule 464 will not meet the justice of the case.

Evidence will not be entered into on a motion under this Rule, but the Court will form its conclusions upon the pleadings, if any, or upon any proceedings already taken: Downing v. Falmouth, 37 Ch. D. 234.

As a general rule, production should not be ordered in favour of a party before he pleads, unless the Court or Judge is satisfied that discovery of documents is necessary to enable him to frame his pleading: Arthur v. Rumbians, 18 P. R. 207.

Under the present Rule production by defendant was ordered, before defence, where the plaintiff had been awarded an injunction restraining the sale of chattels, and had been put on terms to go down to trial at such a time that it was probable that the case would be tried before production could be obtained in the ordinary way: Coots v. Coots, 3 C. L. T. 314. So production of a document was ordered to enable defendant to frame his defence: Henderson v. Underwriting & Agency Association, 1891, 1 Q. B. 557; so also before statement of claim, to enable it to be framed: Machon v. Barber, etc., 13 P. R. 500. So, under a similar Irish Rule, where discovery was required by defendants to ascertain what damages the plaintiff had sustained, with a view to payment of money into Court: McGuire v. McBurnid, 10 L. R. Ir. 373. See also Jourdain v. Palmer, L. R. 1 Ex. 192; Re Satchell, 50 L. J. Chy. 574; 29 W. R. 732; 17 C. L. J. 357; White v. Threns, 25 Ch. D. 717.

Documents taken out of the plaintiff's possession by the defendant, Rule 464, on leaving the plaintiff's employment, and to recover which the action was brought, were, on an interlocutory application, ordered to be delivered up to the plaintiff: Whitcham v. Moss, 73 L. T. 57.

"Documents."—Under this term "photographs" are included: Fox v. Steeman, 17 P. R. 492.

Copies.—The right of inspection includes the right to have or take copies; see Pratt v. Pratt, 30 W. R. 837; 47 L. T. 249; Matter v. Eastern, 38 Ch. D. 92; and the Court has jurisdiction to order that the opposite party be at liberty to take copies by means of photographs of the documents, proper safeguards being adopted to secure the preservation of the originals from injury or loss: Lewis v. Loundsbrough, 1893, 2 Q. B. 191; 69 L. T. 353.

464. Any party may, after the defence is delivered, or a plaintiff may, after the time for delivering the defence has expired, (a) and any party to an issue may, after the issue has been filed, obtain an order of course upon præcipe, directing the adverse party within 10 days after the service thereof, to make discovery on oath of the documents which are or have been in his possession or power, relating to any matters in question in the action; and to produce and deposit the same with the proper officer for the usual purposes, and such party shall make discovery and produce and deposit the documents accordingly, without further notice. Con. Rule 568.

Order for production of documents.

Rule 464 varies from the Eng. (1883) R. 374, and from the practice under the Common Law Procedure Act, but agrees substantially with the practice in Chancery under Chy. O. 134. The English Rule is not limited as this Rule is, with respect to the time of obtaining the order; and the English decisions thereon, such as Union Bank of London v. Mauby, 13 Ch. D. 239, etc., will therefore not apply here. Nor does the English Rule permit the order to be obtained on præcipe, but requires an application, though not necessarily on affidavit, which, however, the Judge may require, if he sees fit: Johnson v. Smith, 36 L. T. 741.

The order for production can only be properly issued under this Rule, where the party issuing it is entitled to discovery. If the action is of such a nature as disentitles the plaintiff to such relief, the order is irregular, and will be set aside: Johnston v. London & Paris Exchange, 4 O. L. R. 49, (an action to recover penalties).

On a special application, production may be obtained under Rule 463 from "any party" and at any stage; see notes to that Rule.

In a petition of right, the Crown is entitled to discovery of documents from the suppliant: Tomlin v. The Queen, 4 Ex. D. 252; and in an action by the Crown, the Crown has the same right of discovery against the defendant as one subject has against another: Att.-Gen. v. Newcastle, 1897, 2 Q. B. 384; 77 L. T. 293. The defendant has not the same right against the Crown, though as a rule the Crown gives full discovery, unless the public interest requires that this should not be done: Id.

Rule 464. Time for Production.—The words at (a) mean that as each defendant puts in his defence, or the time for doing so expires, that defendant becomes liable to give, and entitled to obtain, production.

Issue.—Where production is required upon an issue, the officer with whom the issue is filed is the officer to issue the order: see Rule 377.

From whom production may be compelled.

"Adverse Party."—The Eng. (1883) R. 343, not adopted by the Ontario Act, provides for the examination of the "opposite party or parties" by interrogatories; and it has been held that a person whom defendant, by his counter-claim, had made a defendant, was not "an opposite party" as between him and the plaintiff, so as to entitle him to examine the plaintiff under that Rule: Molloy v. Kilby, 15 Ch. D. 162; but see The Alcop & Gandia Ry. v. Greenhill, 74 L. T. 345; and there is no jurisdiction under the English Rules to make an order for discovery, except as between opposite parties: Brown v. Watkins, 16 Q. B. D. 125; see Shaw v. Smith, 18 Q. B. D. 193; third parties may become in the position of defendants and thus be within the Rule: Eden v. Weardale, 35 Ch. D. 287. The Ontario Rule 464 entitles any party to production from "the adverse party"; and Rule 439 enables a party to examine for discovery "any party adverse in interest," and it is probable that production may be obtained under this Rule from any party who might so be examined: see notes to Rule 439, supra; and Hamilton v. Nott, L. R. 16 Eq. 112; Kennedy v. Wakefield, 39 L. J. Chy. 827; 22 L. T. 645; 18 W. R. 884; and Brigham v. Bronson, 3 C. L. T. 311, where a defendant obtained production from a co-defendant adverse in interest.

A defendant, who is a necessary party to the action, is liable to make discovery to the plaintiff, though no relief is asked against him: Spokes v. The Grosvenor & W. E. Ry. T. Hotel, 1897, 2 Q. B. 124; 76 L. T. 679.

Under an order obtained by one defendant, other defendants cannot compel production: Scymour v. Longworth, 3 Chy. Ch. 112.

Third Party.—As to compelling production by, and against, a third party, see Rule 465 and notes.

By whom affidavit to be made.

Affidavit.—Under an order for production by the plaintiff, the plaintiff on the record is the person to make the affidavit, and an affidavit from some beneficial plaintiff is not a compliance with the order: Wilson v. Ruffalovich, 7 Q. B. D. 553.

Infant and
plaintiffs.

Where a plaintiff of unsound mind sues by a next friend, the defendant is entitled to an affidavit of documents made by the next friend, or by some one acquainted with the facts: Traviss v. Bell, 8 P. R. 550; and in the case of an infant, see Arnold v. Playter, 14 P. R. 390; Flett v. Coulter, 4 O. L. R. 714. In England, Higginson v. Hall, 10 Ch. D. 235, to the same effect was disapproved of in Dyke v. Stephens, 30 Ch. D. 189; see also Mayor v. Collins, 24 Q. B. D. 361. A motion by the defendant was granted, that the next friend of an infant plaintiff might be ordered to make an affidavit in reference to documents in his possession in Crouce v. Bank of Ireland, 5 Ir. R. Eq. 578; but see Ingram v. Little, 11 Q. B. D. 251; Re Corsellis, Lawton v. Ellice, 48 L. T. 425; W. N. 1883, 60; 52 L. J. Chy. 399; Dyke v. Stephens, 30 Ch. D. 189; Redfern v. Redfern, 1891, P. 139; and Curtis v. Mundy, 1892, 2 Q. B. 178; Scott v. Consolidated Bank, W. N. 1893, 57; 94 L. T. Jour. 508; decided under the English Rule of 1875, O. 31, r. 12 (1883, R. 354), not adopted Rule 464 here, but which provides that any 'party' may apply to a Judge for an order directing any other 'party' to the action to make discovery on oath of the documents which are or have been in his possession, etc., relating to any matter in question in the action.

Where it is sought to remove a next friend of an infant, he cannot be compelled to give discovery under this Rule for that purpose: Re Corsellis, Lawton v. Elwes, 31 W. R. 414. (For the conclusion of that matter see 50 L. T. 703).

The next friend of a married woman is not bound to make the affidavit: Brown v. Capron, 6 P. R. 203; Dan. Pr., 5th ed., 1682.

In an action by a husband and wife, the wife suing in respect of her separate property and without a next friend, they must make affidavits as to what documents they, and each of them, have, an affidavit as to what they have jointly not being sufficient: Fendall v. O'Connell, 29 Ch. D. 899.

In other cases, where a plaintiff cannot make an affidavit, some proper person must do so for the plaintiff, and proceedings will be stayed meanwhile: Republic of Liberia v. Royce, 1 App. Cas. 139; see Pringle v. U. S. America, L. R. 2 Eq. 659; U. S. America v. Wagner, L. R. 2 Chy. 582; Princess of Wales v. Earl of Liverpool, 1 Sw. 114; see also notes to Rules 463, 468. But it has been held that proceedings could not be stayed by a defendant, in an action on a marine policy, until the plaintiff had obtained an affidavit of documents from his assignor, who was not a party to the suit, nor under the plaintiff's control, within the jurisdiction: Fraser v. Burrows, 2 Q. B. D. 624; but see Willis v. Baddeley, 1892, 2 Q. B. 324; 67 L. T. 60 206.

As to production of documents by an official liquidator, see Re Mutual Society, 22 Ch. D. 714. official liquidators.

See Rule 467 as to the form of the affidavit to be made in pursuance of the order to produce. Affidavit.

As to what documents a party is bound to produce, see notes to Rule 467.

An affidavit must be made, though the party has no documents to produce. It should not be made before the order to produce is issued: Kennedy v. Royal Ins. Co., 3 Chy. Ch. 489; see Dobson v. Dobson, 7 P. R. 258; and it should not in such case refer to schedules containing no documents: see Rogers v. Crookshank, 4 C. L. J. 45. Affidavit where no documents produced.

"Possession or Power."—The party's solicitor, who has in his books and papers entries relating to the party's affairs, cannot be compelled to produce them, nor can the party be required to get and produce copies: O'Shea v. Wood, 1891, P. 237 (reversed, on another point, in appeal, Ib., 286).

Documents admitted by a defendant, sued as administratrix, to be in her hands individually, but not in her representative capacity, were order to be produced: Fox v. Sleeman, 17 P. R. 492.

"The Usual Purposes" mentioned in this Rule include the inspection, and taking of copies by the opposite party: but where documents were mentioned as being in the hands of a third person, who refused to give them up until paid certain charges, it was held that the Usual purposes.

Rule 465. opposite party must content himself with inspecting them, and taking copies, unless he would agree to indemnify his opponent against the costs of obtaining the documents: Hagaboom v. Cox, 15 P. R. 23.

Deposit of documents. Documents produced may be ordered to be deposited, ordinarily, in the office in which the proceedings are being taken, (and the form of order (Form 96) issued directs them to be deposited with the affidavit on production), but not in the case of books in daily use: Macdonnell v. McKay, 2 Chy. Ch. 141; though inspection of these must be allowed at reasonable times: Hamelyn v. Whyte, 6 P. R. 143. In practice it is not the custom to deposit the documents, unless specially required by the opposite party; and upon an undertaking being given to allow inspection, when required, of books in constant use, the deposit of them may be dispensed with: Re Ross, 5 Ont. App. 82. Where necessary, any convenient place for inspection may be named by special order: see Hamelyn v. Whyte, supra; Gabbett v. Cavendish, 3 Sw. 267 (n), in the case of books in daily use; Prestney v. Colchester, 24 Ch. D. 376, old records and books: Wagner v. Mason, 6 P. R. 188, documents in which other persons were interested.

Production before Referees or Masters.

Probably, orders on præcipe to produce under this Rule, as under Chy. O. 134, are for the purposes of a trial only, and can not be used for the purposes of a reference, but the Master to whom the reference is directed may be applied to for a direction for production: Hulderbroom v. McDonald, 8 P. R. 389. See also Shelley v. Hussey, 8 P. R. 250.

See further as to production before Masters, and Referees, notes to Rules 669 and 648; and Cochrane v. Morrison, 10 P. R. 606.

In an action on a marine policy, an order that the plaintiffs and all other persons interested produce the ship's papers in accordance with the practice in that behalf before The Judicature Act, was held not superseded by it, and therefore proper: China Trans-Pacific S. S. Co. v. Commercial Union, 8 Q. B. D. 142.

As to restoring to parties documents left for inspection in the office of a Master, see Darling v. Darling, 10 P. R. 1.

Postponement of Discovery pending Decision on Point of Law.—Under Rule 259 the Court may order any point of law which is raised to be argued, and may postpone inspection of documents until such point has been determined: DeCarteret v. Land Security Co., 42 W. R. 104; 70 L. T. 323; 7 R. 16.

Position of a third party served by a defendant.

465. A party or person who has been served by a defendant with a third party notice and has entered an appearance, shall, for all purposes of and incident to the production of documents and examination, be, as between him and the defendant serving the third party notice, in the same situation as a defendant, and the defendant serving him shall, for the same purposes, be in the same situation as a plaintiff: the time for taking out an order for production or for examination shall be after the party or person so served has entered a defence, or where the application is on behalf of the defendant so serving such third party notice, the time shall be after the time for delivering a defence has expired. Con. Rules Rule 509; Rules 29th Dec., 1894, 1387, amended. 466, 467.

The object of this Rule is to place a third party who has been served by a defendant, and has appeared, in the same situation as a defendant, for the purposes of Rule 464, as between him and the defendant who served him. There is no corresponding Rule in England. A third party so served, and appearing, is not on that ground entitled to an order for production as against the plaintiff under this Rule. But if directions are obtained under Rule 213, allowing him to defend as against the plaintiff, he is then in the same situation, with respect to the plaintiff, as any other defendant, and may obtain discovery from, and be compelled to give it to, the plaintiff: McAllister v. The Bishop of Rochester, 5 C. P. D. 194; Eden v. Wear-Jale, 34 Ch. D. 223; see also Bradley v. Clarke, 9 P. R. 410, where, though there was no direct issue between the plaintiff and a third party, yet as the latter had all the rights of a defendant, and virtually took his place, the plaintiff was allowed to examine him under Rule 440.

Scmble, a third party, made a defendant by counter-claim, may not be entitled to an order of course for production against the original plaintiff, but on special application he may obtain an order, where the circumstances warrant it: see The Aleoy & Gandia Ry. v. Greenhill, 74 L. T. 345.

466. A person for whose immediate benefit an action is prosecuted or defended is to be regarded as a party for the purpose of production of documents. Con. Rule 510.

Person benefited a party for certain purposes

This Rule and Rule 440 are in pari materia: Garland v. Clarkson, 9 O. L. R. 281.

See notes to Rule 440, and Bradley v. Clarke, in note to Rule 465.

The Court may stay proceedings in an action brought for the benefit of a person, not a party, until discovery of documents shall have been made by such person: Willis v. Baddeley, 1892, 2 Q. B. 324; 67 L. T. 60, 206.

By Rule 441 where an action is brought by an assignee of a chose in action, the assignor is examinable for discovery, but there is no Rule requiring the assignor to make an affidavit of documents.

467. The affidavit to be made by a party against whom an order for production has been made, shall specify which, if any, of the documents therein mentioned he objects to produce, and may be according to Form No. 19. Con. Rule 513.

Discovery and Production of Documents Generally.—What Courts of Equity have always compelled the production of documents, must be. The Common Law Courts did so to a very limited extent, but the practice was extended by statute: R. S. O. 1877, c. 54, ss. 169, 170; 41 Vict. c. 8, s. 9. And now under The Judicature Act, the right is Rule 467. regulated by the rules previously existing in the Court of Chancery: Anderson v. Bank of British Columbia, 2 Ch. D. 644, 658; and the Common Law rules are entirely at an end: Cotton, L.J., in Eade v. Jacobs, 3 Ex. D. 337, explained in Bidder v. Bridges, 20 Ch. D. 29, in which it was decided that the defendant has no larger right to discovery than the plaintiff. Production is a matter of right (subject to any right of privilege or protection), and is not a matter in the discretion of the Court: Bustros v. White, 1 Q. B. D. 423; Atherley v. Harvey, 36 L. T. 551; except where sought under Rule 463, when the Court would appear to have a discretion as to the documents to be produced.

be produced

A plea of purchase for value without notice was formerly available as a bar in Chancery, in a suit for discovery in aid of proceedings at law, but was not available against either discovery, or relief, in cases in which the Court of Chancery had concurrent jurisdiction. Sec. 57 (6) of the Act, therefore, does not protect defendants who set up such a defence from giving discovery, as the High Court does not now exercise the former auxiliary jurisdiction of the Court of Chancery, but has complete jurisdiction over the whole action: Emmerson v. Ind, 12 App. Cas. 300; 56 L. T. 778.

All material documents unless some ground of

Every material document (see Bowie v. Graham, 7 Q. B. D. at p. 411), must be produced, unless it is shewn to be privileged; though where the materiality depends upon the determination of a question in dispute, and the discovery sought is calculated to cause considerable trouble, or to prove oppressive and vexatious to the party from whom it is sought, the Court may act upon Rule 472, and postpone the discovery until the question has been determined: Wood v. Anglo-Italian Bank, 34 L. T. 255; Evans v. Jaffray, 3 O. L. R. 327. See also notes to Rule 472.

It is the duty of a party, who, after filing an affidavit, discovers a document of which his opponent has a right to have production, but which is not disclosed in the schedule, to inform his opponent of the discovery, either by a supplementary affidavit (the proper course), or at least by notice: Mitchell v. Darley Main Colliery Co., 1 Cab. & Ell. 215.

The general law applicable to discovery governs in patent cases. The defendant must disclose the particular lines of attack on the plaintiff's patent which are contemplated, but need not so individualize persons alleged to be prior users, as to enable the plaintiff to know the defendant's witnesses: Smith v. Greig, 10 P. R. 482.

Everything which will throw light upon the case: Hutchinson v. Glover, 1 Q. B. D. 138; or which may help the case: Dinn v. Brandon, 79 L. T. Jour. 196; Cameron v. Cameron, 10 P. R. 522; Compagnie Financière, etc., v. Peruvian Guano Co., 11 Q. B. D. at p. 63, is prima facie subject to production and inspection.

Letters written, though not mailed, must be produced; the mere fact that they were not forwarded is no ground of exemption: Cameron v. Cameron, 10 P. R. 522.

Photographs are "documents": Fox v. Sleeman, 17 P. R. 492.

Discovery of documents clearly immaterial to the question at the trial will not be compelled before trial: see note, p. 682.

Materiality.

As a rule only those documents material to the issue to be tried can be required to be produced; documents which may be material on a reference, if the relief claimed is granted, are not "material" before trial: see Diakerson v. Radcliffe, 17 P. R. 586; and notes infra, p. 682.

The Court, however, does not in general distinguish nicely between Rule 467, the materiality of the discovery to the matter to be tried at the hearing, and by way of consequential relief; still if the discovery is such as might be used to the prejudice of the party, irrespective of the suit, the Court will look narrowly to the question, whether there is reasonable prospect of its being of material service at the hearing: Carver v. Pinto Leite, L. R. 7 Chy. 90; Heugh v. Garrett, 44 L. J. Chy. 305; 32 L. T. 45; Republic of Costa Rica v. Erlanger, L. R. 19 Eq. 33; Graham, q. t. v. Temperance & G. L. A. Co., 16 P. R. 536; and where the plaintiff's right to judgment was conceded, discovery was ordered before decree as to matters which would be referred to a Master: McDonald v. McArthur, 7 C. L. T. 28, following Elmer v. Creasy, L. R. 9 Chy. 69.

Where, in an action for libel, defendant has pleaded justification, and has pleaded or delivered particulars in support of the plea, the issues to be tried are limited to the particulars, and discovery is also limited to those matters: Yorkshire Provident, etc., v. Gilbert & Rivington, 1895, 2 Q. B. 148. Where publication is admitted and an apology and payment into Court pleaded, production of the original MS. of the libellous contribution was not ordered: Hope v. Brash, 1897, 2 Q. B. 188; see also Parnell v. Walter, 24 Q. B. D. 441; Blanc v. Burrows, 12 Times, 521, where in an action against a newspaper for libel, the editor was responsible for the publication, it was held not relevant to inquire from whom he got his information, or the means taken to test its truth; see also note to Rule 455, supra, p. 664.

Where a question, in an action on an insurance policy, was whether the plaintiff's answer to the question, whether he had been subject to asthma, was material under 55 Vict. c. 39, s. 33 (2), (R. S. O. c. 203, s. 144 (2)), which provides that no untrue statement shall vitiate the contract unless material, it was held that the materiality was a question for the jury, and defendants were ordered to produce all other applications and medical examinations in which the answer as to asthma had been in the affirmative, with a view to the plaintiff's showing that in such cases the company had treated the answer as immaterial: Ferguson v. Provident Institution, 15 P. R. 366.

A defendant is entitled to inspect documents evidencing the contract sued on, though he does not admit their genuineness: Benjamin v. Sauter, 6 Ir. R. C. L. 16; and documents bearing upon the amount of damage though there is no question of liability to be tried, but assessment of damages only: Pape v. Lister, L. R. 6 Q. B. 242.

After judgment for the plaintiff in an action for the infringement of a patent, he is entitled to inspection of defendant's books, and to an account, although an appeal may be pending from the judgment: Sarby v. Easterbrook, L. R. 7 Ex. 207.

Discovery of the documents must be given, though the party may not be bound to produce them for inspection: Rumbold v. Fortcath, 3 K. & J. 44; Lazarus v. Mozley, 5 Jur. N. S. 1119; Manby v. Bevicke, 8 D. M. & G. 476; Kain v. Farrer, W. N. 1877, 266; New British Investment Co. v. Pead, 3 C. P. D. 196; and see Owen v. Wynn, 9 Ch. D. 29; Re Pickering, 25 Ch. D. 247.

The party making an affidavit on production must, if necessary, seek the necessary information from his present or former agents: Earl of Glengall v. Feazer, 2 Hare, 99; McIntosh v. G. W. Railway, 4 DeG. & S. 544; Anderson v. Bank of British Columbia, 2 Ch. D. 644; see Rashotham v. Shropshire, etc., 24 Ch. D. 110; Southwark v. Quick, 2 Q. B. D. 321; Bolelow v. Fisher, 10 Q. B. D. 161; see

Information to be sought by party producing.

Rule 467. also Harris v. Toronto Electric Light Co., 18 P. R. 285; Foakes v. Webb, 28 Ch. D. 287. In an action on a policy of marine insurance, the defendants obtained an order that the action should be stayed until the plaintiffs satisfied the Court that they had done all in their power to obtain production of the ship's papers: West of England Bunk v. Canton Co., 2 Ex. D. 472; but where the person in whose control the documents were, was not within the jurisdiction, and it was difficult if not impossible to obtain the discovery, the Court refused to stay proceedings: Fraser v. Burrows, 2 Q. B. D. 624; and where executors were sued for trust funds alleged to have been received by their testator, it was held that they were not bound to make inquiry of the testator's bankers to enable them to say whether or not the fund had been paid to the bankers at a period 20 years prior to the testator's death, and that inquiry into transactions of so remote a date was no part of their duty: Millett v. Smith, 1895, 2 Ch. 111.

Difficulty in obtaining production.

Mere difficulty or inconvenience in giving discovery, is no reason for not giving it. Thus a railway company were required to give discovery of the contents of books in the possession of themselves or their agents extending over a series of years, to shew the receipt of goods specifically delivered to them for carriage: Hall v. L. & N. W. Ry. Co., 35 L. T. 848. See also Mertens v. Haigh, 11 W. R. 792.

Documents
not in party's possession.

If documents not in the possession of a party are required to be produced, or information respecting them given, the party is entitled to be indemnified against the cost of obtaining the documents, or the information: Hamelyn v. White, 6 P. R. 143; Bethell v. Casson, 12 W. R. 200; Hogaboom v. Cox, 15 P. R. 23.

Secondary
evidence.

Though documents are privileged from production, the opposite party may nevertheless give secondary evidence of them: Calcraft v. Guest, 1898, 1 Q. B. 759; 78 L. T. 283.

Copies.

A party who has a right to have documents produced for his inspection has also a right to take copies of them: Pratt v. Pratt, 30 W. R. 837; 51 L. J. Chy. 838; 47 L. T. 240; W. N. 1882, 117; and such copies may, under proper safeguards, be allowed to be taken by photography: Lewis v. Lamesborough, 1893, 2 Q. B. 191.

As to obtaining copies, see Rules 324-326.

Privileged
documents.

Privilege and Protection from Production:

The general rules as to privilege in evidence, are applicable in regard to protection from discovery: Wulcer v. E. Indian Co., 2 Jur. N. S. 407; Clegg v. Edmonson, 22 Beav. 125. See Greenough v. Gaskell, 1 M. & K. 100.

The following are some of the principal classes of cases in which documents need not be produced:

On ground of public policy.

1. State Documents and the Like, the Production of which is not in the Public Interest, and is against Public Policy:

—Kain v. Farrer, W. N. 1877, 293; 37 L. T. 469; H. M. S. Bellocophon, 31 L. T. 756; 23 W. R. 248; 44 L. J. Adm. 5; Hennessey v. Wright, 21 Q. B. D. 509; Wright v. Mills, 62 L. T. 558; Ford v. Blest, 6 Times, 295. But it must be stated in the affidavit how these are privileged: Kain v. Farrer, supra; and in such case it is for the head of the department, having the custody of such documents, not for the Judge, to determine whether the production will be injurious to the public service; Bradley v. McIntosh, 5 Ont. 227; Hennessey v. Wright, 21 Q. B. D. 509; Hughes v. Vargus, 9 R. 661; 9 Times, 551; see Re Joseph Hargreaves, Limited, 1900, 1 Ch. 347.

As to privilege by reason of a disclosure being injurious to the administration of justice: see Humphrey v. Archibald, 21 Ont. 353; 20 Ont. App. 267.

2. Documents the Production of which would Tend to Involve the Party in a Criminal Charge, or to Subject Him to a Penalty.—Webb v. East, 5 Ex. D. 23; Fisher v. Owen, 8 Ch. D. 645; Allhusen v. Labouchere, 3 Q. B. D. 654; Hill v. Campbell, L. R. 10 C. P. 222; Boyle v. Wiseman, 10 Ex. 647. see Waters v. Earl of Shaftesbury, 14 W. R. 250; Pickard v. Moore, 17 P. R. 287; or forfeiture: Maxborough v. Whitwood, 1897, 2 Q. B. 111; Atty.-Gen. v. Toronto Junction Recreation Club, 7 O. L. R. 248; but the objection must be made upon oath: Webb v. East, supra, Brookley v. Graham, 11 P. R. 451; Powder v. Ellis, 6 S. C. R. 1; and must be made in an affidavit pursuant to an order for production, the objection is no ground for refusing an order: Spokes v. Grosvenor, 1897, 2 Q. B. 124; 76 L. T. 677; and the penalty and forfeiture clauses of the 13 Eliz. c. 5, and 27 Eliz. c. 4, (see now R. S. O. c. 334, ss. 2, 6), cannot be used to prevent production by parties to deeds which it is sought to impeach under those statutes: Bunn v. Bunn, 4 DeG. J. & S. 316; see Society of Apothecaries v. Nottingham, W. N. 1875, 259.

An action for pound breach, claiming treble damages, is a penal action, and the plaintiff is not entitled to an affidavit of documents: Jones v. Jones, 22 Q. B. D. 425; Hobbs v. Hudson, 25 Q. B. D. 232; but where the action is for a sum imposed by statute by way of compensation, the plaintiff is entitled to an affidavit: Adams v. Batley, 18 Q. B. D. 625; and see Saunders v. Wiel, 1892, 2 Q. B. 321.

The mere fact that a party disobeying the order of the Court granting the plaintiff the relief claimed would be liable to a penalty, is no ground for refusing discovery: Re Derbyshire v. Derby, 1896, 2 Q. B. 297; 1897, A. C. 550; 74 L. T. 747; 77 L. T. 107.

See also note to Rule 455, p. 665.

Generally, when fraud is charged, no privilege can be claimed for documents relating to the alleged fraud: Ferner v. Williams, 11 Jur. N. S. 902; Phillips v. Holmer, 25 W. R. 578; Charlton v. Coombes, 4 Giff 372; Mornington v. Mornington, 2 J. & H. 697; Williams v. Quebrada Ry., 1895, 2 Ch. 751; 73 L. T. 397; Smith v. Hunt, 1 O. L. R. 334; but see Griffin v. Fackes, 17 P. R. 540; Bullivant v. A.-G. Victoria, 1901, A. C. 196.

3. Documents Relating Exclusively to the Party's Own Title, or Case, or to the Evidence by Which it is to be Established.—Owen v. Wynn, 9 Ch. D. 29; Dow v. Eley, 2 H. & M. 725; Inglby v. Shafto, 33 Beav. 31; Commissioner of Stamps v. Glaspe, L. R. 15 Eq. 302; Storey v. Coles, 4 Chy. Ch. 9; Green v. Amey, 2 Chy. Ch. 138. In such case his opponent is not entitled to his deeds, etc., in order to "pick holes" in them: Owen v. Wynn, 9 Ch. D. 29; but it must appear that they do not relate also to the title of the opposite party: Clegg v. Edmondson, 22 Beav. 125; Lind v. Isle of Wight Ferry Company, 8 W. R. 540; Bishop of Winchester v. Bowker, 29 Beav. 479; Felkin v. Lord Herbert, 9 W. R. 756; Bolton v. Corporation of Liverpool, 1 Myl. & K. 88; Jenkyn v. Bushby, 14 W. R. 531; Southwark & Vauxhall Water Company v. Quick, 3 Q. B. D. 315, and it must appear on oath positively, and not on information and belief only, that the documents are exclusively matter of evidence in support of, and not impeaching, the party's own case, and do not support that of the opposite party: Diamond Match Co. v. Hanchesbury Lumber Co., 1 O. L. R. 577.

Rule 467.

It was held by the Court of Appeal in Budden v. Wilkinson, 1893, 2 Q. B. 432, that this rule is not confined to documents relating to the title to land, overruling Macleay v. Jones, 66 L. T. 653; and see Frankenstein v. Garins H. C. C. Co., 1897, 2 Q. B. 62; 76 L. T. 747.

The denial of the making of, or an allegation that, a document relating exclusively to the opposite party's own case, is forged, gives no right to call for its production; Griffin v. Fawkes, 17 P. R. 540.

Letters between co-defendants were held not capable of being put in evidence, and therefore, as not supporting the defendant's case, are not privileged; Hep v. De la Hep, W. N. 1886, 101.

Interrogatories seeking discovery in support of a substantive case set up by the defendant were required to be answered by the plaintiff; Ridder v. Bridges, 20 Ch. D. 29; but a party is not entitled to discovery of the manner in which, and the evidence by which, his opponent intends to establish exclusively his case; Id.

Production cannot be refused merely on the ground that if the plaintiff's claim is unfounded, he has no interest in the documents; Greedy v. Housley, 2 K. & J. 288.

Production was ordered when, from the circumstances of the case as stated, the Court thought that the cases of the plaintiff and defendant were so interwoven that nothing could relate to the one without relating to the other; Hamilton v. Street, 1 Gr. 327.

For what was held a sufficient description of the documents, and entitling them to protection on this ground, see Bewicke v. Graham, 7 Q. B. D. 400; Roberts v. Oppenheim, 26 Ch. D. 724; Budden v. Wilkinson, 1893, 2 Q. B. 432; Milbank v. Milbank, 1900, 1 Ch. 376; 82 L. T. 63; Diamond Match Co. v. Hawkesbury Lumber Co., 1 O. L. R. 577.

In Budden v. Wilkinson, supra, it was held that the omission of a statement that the documents did not contain anything impeaching the case or title of the plaintiff was immaterial.

The following statements have been held to sufficiently disclose some ground of privilege: "The said documents relate solely to the case of the defendants, and not to the case of the plaintiff, nor do they tend to support it, and they do not to the best of our knowledge, information and belief, contain anything impeaching the case of the said defendants, wherefore, we object to produce the same and say they are privileged from production"; Bewicke v. Graham, 7 Q. B. D. 400; see a discussion of that case, 16 L. J. 263; see also Roberts v. Oppenheim, 26 Ch. D. 724; and Bulman v. Dixon, 49 L. T. 736.

Moniments of party's title.

4. (Properly speaking only a branch of the third head.) A Party's Moniments of Title, which he Swears Relate Solely to his Own Case and do not Contain Anything (in the case of a Plaintiff) Impeaching his Case, or (in the case of Either a Plaintiff or Defendant), Supporting, or Material to, the Case of the Opposite Party:—11th Gen. v. Newenham upon Teme, 1893, 2 Q. B. 478; Minet v. Morgan, L. R. 8 Chy. 301; Morris v. Edwards, 23 Q. B. D. 287; 15 App. Cas. 309; Horton v. Roth, 26 L. J. Ex. 267; New British Invest. Co. v. Ford, 3 C. P. 11, 190; Frankenstein v. Garins Co., 1897, 2 Q. B. 62; Griffin v. Fawkes, 17 P. R. 540; but not documents which tend to support the title of the opposite party; Lpell v. Kennedy, 8 App. Cas. 217, 223, 224; see Small v. Eccles, 3 P. R. 180; Egremont Burial Board v. Egremont Rule 467; Iron Ore Co., 14 Ch. D. 158; Webster v. Wherrell, 15 Ch. D. 120. It was held in the last case, that it was sufficient to swear to the best of the deponent's knowledge, information and belief. The contrary has been held in Manby v. Benicke, 8 D. M. & G. 476.

It is insufficient to swear generally that the documents are privileged. The affidavit must state the facts upon which the objection is grounded: Gardner v. Irvin, 4 Ex. D. 49; see also Webb v. East, 5 Ex. D. 23; Clergue v. McKay, 3 O. L. R. 478.

An affidavit to protect maps is more readily accepted than in the case of deeds: March v. Bailey, 78 L. T. Jour. 263; see also article on production of documents of title in 78 L. T. Jour. 278.

In an action for the recovery of land, and delivery of deeds relating thereto, in the defendant's possession, the defence of purchaser for valuable consideration without notice does not enable the defendant to resist discovery of such deeds and documents: Emmerson v. Ind., 55 L. T. 422; 34 W. R. 778, but only if he sets that defence up simply (in which case the discovery would not be material to the issue to be tried), not if he also disputes, or does not admit, the plaintiff's title: Id.; 33 Ch. D. 323; 12 App. Cas. 300.

The defendants, before putting in their statement of defence, moved for the production by the plaintiffs of the conveyance under which they held their land, in order to ascertain whether it contained a reservation of minerals, the defendants alleging that, if it did not, they would submit to a decree of ouster. It was held that the land having been conveyed to the plaintiffs in fee simple, they were prima facie entitled to the land down to the centre of the earth, and unless the defendants could show that the plaintiffs were not so entitled, the latter could not be compelled to produce their title deeds: Egremont Burial Co. v. Egremont Iron Ore Co., 14 Ch. D. 158; see Webster v. Wherrell, 15 Ch. D. 120.

The following is a form of statement of objection on this ground, Form. in the affidavit on production:

"I object to produce the documents set forth in the second part of the first schedule, on the ground that they are the muniments of my title to the . . . and do not to the best of my knowledge, information and belief, contain anything [in the case of a plaintiff, tending to impeach my case or] material to the case of the . . . and tending to support it."

In the case of the defendant it is not necessary that the affidavit should state that the document does not contain anything tending to impeach his own case: Attorney-General v. Newcastle-on-Tyne, 1899, 2 Q. B. 478; Johnson v. Whitaker, 90 L. T. 535.

5. (Also properly speaking a branch of the third class above mentioned.) Title Deeds of Land of Which a Party Defendant is in Possession, in an Action to Recover Possession of the Land by an Adverse Title:—Phillips v. Phillips, 4 Q. B. D. 127; 27 W. R. 939; but the defendant must make an affidavit disclosing what they are: Rumbold v. Fortreath, (No. 1), 3 K. & J. 44; New British Co. v. Peed, 3 C. P. D. 196; Wrentmore v. Hagley, 40 L. T. 741; see Owen v. Wynn, 9 Ch. D. 29; Lyall v. Kennedy, 8 App. Cas. 217; Daniel v. Ford, W. N. 1883, 52. This rule depends on the circumstance that where claims to the same land in fee simple are made by two different persons, they must be based on inconsistent titles: it cannot therefore be applied to a case where the title of the Title deeds of defendant in possession.

Rule 467. Plaintiff and defendant are not absolutely adverse, but may to some extent be proved by the same evidence; Ponsonby v. Hartley, W. N. 1881, 13; 74 L. T. Jour. 208; affirmed an appeal though on a different ground, W. N. 1883, 44. In that case the right to possession was not disputed, but the right to minerals was claimed, and the plaintiff relied on a reservation of them, and the plaintiff was allowed to inspect the title deeds, to see if they supported his case.

Form of stating objection.

The following is a form of statement of objection on this ground:—

"I object to produce the documents, etc., on the ground that they relate to the evidence of my right to the possession of the subject matter of this action to which the plaintiff (or defendant) claims an independent title."

Mortgagees'
deeds.

6. Mortgage Deeds are privileged until the mortgage is paid what is due; Chichester v. Donagall, L. R. 5 Chy. 497; Patch v. Ward, L. R. 1 Eq. 426; Jones v. Jones, Kay, App. vi.; Bridgewater v. Dellington, 12 W. R. 40; Harvard v. Robinson, 4 Drew. at p. 525; Weeks v. Stourton, 13 W. R. 489; Freeman v. Butler, 33 Beav. 289; Smith v. Barnes, L. R. 1 Eq. 65; Aaron, 2 Charl. Ch. Ca. 61; W. N. 1876, 23; Fisher on Mortgages, 4th ed., 302; unless the right to redeem is denied; Patch v. Ward, and Jones v. Jones, supra; Bell v. Chamberlen, 3 Chy. Ch. 429; and where the proceedings are being taken by the mortgagee upon the mortgage deed, inspection of it may be ordered, as of any other document sued on; Emmens v. Moldeswain, 8 P. R. 320.

Irrelevant
question at the trial.

7. Documents Having no Bearing on the Question to be Tried.—These need not be produced before trial; Merchants Bank v. Tisdale, 6 P. R. 51; Bryce v. McIntyre, 7 P. R. 134; Parker v. Wells, 18 Ch. D. 477; Parnell v. Walter, 24 Q. B. D. 441; 62 L. T. 75; 38 W. R. 270; Whittaker v. Scarborough Post, 1890, 2 Q. B. 148; 74 L. T. 753; Evans v. Jeffery, 3 O. L. R. 327; such as papers relating to details of a trust account until the right to account has been established; Feenecsey v. Clark, 37 Ch. D. 181; McGregor v. McDonagh, 11 P. R. 386; Hurst v. Barber, 12 P. R. 467; Bedell v. Ryckman, 5 O. L. R. 670; but see Sydney Chose, &c., Co. v. Brover, 19 P. R. 152; or relating to sales in an action for infringement of trade-mark until the right to damages is established; Waters v. Earl of Shaftesbury, 1 W. R. 259, and see Graham v. Temperance & G. L. I. Co., 16 P. R. 536; Rule 472. The Court does not distinguish too nicely, however, between documents relating to the question at the hearing and consequential relief (see note p. 677), especially in cases where further inquiries consequent on the establishment of the plaintiff's right may not be directed at the trial, but judgment at the trial may be given as to the matters depending upon the right; Re Morgan, Owen v. Morgan, 39 Ch. D. 316; Sheppard Publishing Co. v. Harkins, 8 O. L. R. 632.

The rule is thus expressed in Graham v. Temperance, etc., 16 P. R. 536, per Street, J., "Wherever discovery is sought in aid of an issue which must be determined at the hearing, the plaintiff is entitled to it to help him prove the issue; but where it is sought in aid of something which does not form part of what he must prove at the hearing, but is merely consequential to it, the right is not absolute, but discretionary, until the plaintiff has established his fundamental right at the hearing." See also Sheppard Publishing Co. v. Harkins, supra.

The plaintiff sued the defendant, who had acted as his stock-broker, for an account and damages, making general allegations of fraud, and then interrogated with a view to establish the fraud. The defendant refused to answer on the ground that the plaintiff was not entitled Rule 467. to the information till after decree. It was held that the plaintiff was entitled to the discovery to establish his alleged charges of fraud at the trial: Leitch v. Abbott, 31 Ch. D. 374.

A party's case for the purposes of discovery consists of everything which it is reasonable to suppose will directly, or indirectly, enable him either to advance his own case, or damage, or repel, his adversary's: Compagnie Financière du Pacifique v. Peruvian Guano Co., 11 Q. B. D. 55; English v. Tottie, 1 Q. B. D. 141; Hatchinson v. Glover, 1 Q. B. D. 138; Western of Can. Oil Co. v. Walker, 6 P. R. 191; Lawlor v. Murchison, 3 Gr. 533; Ferguson v. Provincial Provident Institution, 15 P. R. 390; and the test of materiality is to assume the party's pleading to be true: Grosvenor v. Mouslop, 2 K. & J. 288; White v. Alrcna, 32 W. R. 311, affirmed in appeal, 26 Ch. D. 717, where it was held that the party was entitled to discovery before giving particulars of fraud under Eng. 1883, R. 262 (see also Leitch v. Abbott, 31 Ch. D. 374; Miller v. Harper, 38 Ch. D. 110; Harbord v. Monk, 6 Ch. D. 616); but a document relating exclusively to the case of the party making discovery is not material: see Wigram on Discovery, 15, 261; Bray on Discovery, 481; Mint v. Morgan, 1 R. 8 Chy. 361; Atty-Gen. v. Emerson, 10 Q. B. D. 191; 52 L. J. Q. B. 67, and per Brett, L.J., 74; Pelle on Discovery, 42.

Irrelevant documents, if disclosed, need not be produced for inspection: Wilson v. Thornbury, L. R. 12 Eq. 517; Central News (Limited) v. Eastern Tel. Co., 28 Sol. Jour., 300; 33 L. J. Q. B. 236.

Where there was a bond fide contest as to the right to sell a certain drug alleged to be the subject of a patent of the plaintiff's, it was held that the defendants should not, before trial of the question of right, be compelled to afford discovery of the details and particulars of their buying and selling, so as to disclose their own and their customers' private business transactions: Dickerson v. Radcliffe, 17 P. R. 586.

In an action for libel, where a defendant has delivered particulars libel of a defence of justification, he is not entitled to discovery of documents relating to matters not covered by such particulars: The Yorkshire P. L. Ass. Co. v. Gilbert, 1895, 2 Q. B. 148; 72 L. T. 445.

In an action against a newspaper for libel, the plaintiff is not entitled to the production of the original MS. containing the alleged libel: Hope v. Brash, 1897, 2 Ch. 188; 76 L. T. 823; nor to discovery of the name of the writer, nor of the price paid for the MS., nor of the means taken by defendant to test its truth: Parnell v. Walter, 24 Q. B. D. 441; nor (where there is no question as to the defendant's solvency) to discovery of the circulation of the newspaper containing the libel: Whittaker v. Scarborough Post, 1896, 2 Q. B. 148; 74 L. T. 753. See also notes qq. 634 and 677.

In Star Kidney Pad Co. v. Greenwood, 3 Ont. 280, an action on Trade secrets. a promissory note given for kidney pads, one defence was that the pads were useless, and possessed no healing properties. Discovery of the recipe or ingredients was refused, the plaintiff resisting the discovery, on the grounds that no representation was made as to the ingredients, which constituted a trade secret, and the disclosure of the same would damage the plaintiff's business. See also Badische Anilin, etc. v. Lohmstein, 24 Ch. D. 176; Howe v. McKernan, 30 Beav. 574; Ishworth v. Roberts, 45 Ch. D. 623; but it is in the discretion of the Court to order inspection of documents which might disclose a trade secret: Mistorski v. Mandichura, 6 Times, 267.

Rule 467.Books of
account.

Where books of account are produced which contain entries not relating to the matters in question in the action, the party producing them is entitled to seal, or cover up, during inspection by the opposite party, all parts not affecting or relating to the matters in question, but an affidavit should be made showing that the parts sealed, or covered up, do not in any way relate to, or affect, the matters in question: see Graham v. Sutton, 1897, 1 Ch. 761; 76 L. T. 369; and Sydney Cheese, etc., Co. v. Brauer, 19 P. R. 152.

Where a defendant in an action for infringement of a patent is required to produce his books for the purpose of a reference as to profits made by him, he cannot refuse to disclose the names of his customers to whom he has sold goods infringing the plaintiff's patent: Saccharin Corp. v. Chemical & Drugs Co., 1900, 2 Ch. 556; 83 L. T. 206.

Documents
held in a

8. Documents held by a Party in a Different Character from that in which he is Sued:—Pindar v. Smith, 6 Madd. 38; Haguer v. Mason, 6 P. R. 187.

Where a defendant claimed that he held documents only as solicitor for a co-defendant also a party, but who had not been called on for particulars, it was held that he should not have been called on to produce these documents without the co-defendant being called on to show cause: McGregor v. McDonald, 11 P. R. 386.

Documents
in which a third person is interested

9. Documents in which a Third Person, not a Party to the Action, is Interested—are not for that reason alone protected from production: Kettlewell v. Barstow, L. R. 7 Chy. 680; Hutchinson v. Glover, 1 Q. B. D. 138; but when such documents are in the joint legal (not corporal) see Reid v. Langlois, 1 Mac. & G. 627; and B. A. Ins. Co. v. Wilkinson, 6 P. R. 268, possession of the third person, and the party from whom production is sought, the latter cannot be required to produce them: see cases supra, Murray v. Walter, Cr. & Ph. 114; Kearsley v. Phillips, 10 Q. B. D. 36, 465 (where all the cases are reviewed), unless there is no interest which can be affected by their production other than the interest of the parties to the action: London & Yorkshire Bank v. Cooper, 15 Q. B. D. 7 and 473. Production will not be required from a party having the sole legal possession, if a third person who is not a party and who has the beneficial interest objects, unless the suit is of such a nature that the Court can say that the party having the legal custody sufficiently represents in the suit the other person interested: Fraser v. Home Ins. Co., 6 P. R. 47; but where production will not be ordered, the party must give all the information in his power respecting the documents in his affidavit, and also on any examination: Fraser v. Home Ins. Co., supra; Nicholl v. Elliott, 3 Gr. 545; Clinch v. Financial Corporation, L. R. 2 Eq. 251; Upse v. Foster, L. R. 13 Eq. 602; Hadley v. McDougal, L. R. 7 Chy. 312; Evans v. Jaffray, 3 O. L. R. 327.

Possession by a party's agent, is of course the possession of the party: Murray v. Walter, Cr. & Ph. 114.

A defendant sued as administratrix was held bound to produce material documents admitted to be in her possession, but which she claimed to be entitled to individually, and not in her representative capacity: Fax v. Sleeman, 17 P. R. 492; but a personal representative cannot be compelled to produce documents containing entries relating to the affairs of the deceased, when such documents are the private property of the solicitor who acted for the deceased in his lifetime: O'Shea v. Wood, 1891, P. 286; 65 L. T. 30.

As to documents in the joint custody of husband and wife: see Rule 467.
Findall v. O'Connell, 29 Ch. D. 899.

A solicitor cannot set up a lien acquired in the cause against the right of other parties to production; and the fact that a lien which may be set up exists, is not a sufficient reason for not ordering production, as the party may be able to free the documents from the lien: Fale v. Oppert, L. R. 10 Ch. 340; Rodick v. Gandell, 12 Beav. 325; 1 De G. M. & G. 763; Leicis v. Powell, 1897, 1 Ch. 678; 76 L. T. 282; Pratt v. Pratt, W. N. 1882, 117; but see Bainbridge v. Blair, 1 Jur. 256.

A lien of a solicitor on papers does not confer any greater right to refuse production of the documents subject thereto than his client would have; where therefore the client would have to produce the documents, an order may be made requiring the solicitor to produce them subject to his lien, in an action to which the client is a party, if production is necessary in order to do justice to parties other than the client: Re Hawkes, 1898, 2 Ch. 1; 46 W. R. 445.

The Court refused to compel defendants to produce documents which were in their possession solely as directors of a company to which the documents belonged: Williams v. Ingram, 16 Times, 451.

Production was not ordered in an action of trespass against a defendant, who was committee of a lunatic, of documents relating to the lunatic's estate, the documents not being in the custody of the party, but in the custody of the Court having jurisdiction in lunacy: Curran v. Little, 11 Q. B. D. 370.

The following is a form of statement of objection in the affidavit on Form this ground:

"I object to produce the documents, etc., . . . on the ground of their being in my possession or power jointly with A. B. [stating the nature of the joint possession]."

For a description held not sufficient to protect on the ground of joint interest, see Fraser v. Home Ins. Co., 6 P. R. 45.

10. Documents which are Privileged, as being Communications Passing between the Party and his Confidential Professional Adviser, or Agents:—

Of this kind are all communications between a party and his solicitor or other legal adviser, whether made ante or post litem motam. It is enough if they are communications of a confidential character: Smith v. Daniell, L. R. 18 Eq. 649; Original Harthpool Collieries Co. v. Moon, 30 L. T. 585; (not an open communication: Foakes v. Webb, 28 Ch. D. 287; Raeburn v. Preston, 30 Ch. D. 116); made by, or to, the legal adviser in a professional character: Mint v. Morgan, L. R. 8 Ch. 367; Corporation of Hastings v. Ivall, & Co., 1017; Macfarlane v. Rolt, L. R. 14 Eq. 580; Hamelyn v. Whyte, 6 P. R. 143; Hoffman v. Crecar, 17 P. R. 404; Mostyn v. West Mostyn, 34 L. T. 531; Wilson v. Northampton, L. R. 14 Eq. 477; Endie v. Addison, 47 L. T. 543; Mayor, & Co., of Bristol v. Cox, 26 Ch. D. 678; Proctor v. Smiles, 55 L. J. Q. B. 527; Lowden v. Blakey, 23 Q. B. D. 332; Bullivant v. A.-G. Victoria, 1901, A. C. 196; see Lynch v. Kennedy, 9 App. Cas. 81; including communications with a former solicitor: Thomas v. Sec. of State for India, 18 W. R. 312; Marriott v. Anchor, & Co., 3 Giff. 304; Wilson v. Brunsell, 2 Ch. Ch. 147; and the predecessors in title of the party: Mint v. Morgan, and Mostyn v. W. Mostyn, supra.

Communications between solicitor and client

Rule 467.

The privilege may be claimed in respect to communications to a solicitor, who besides being the solicitor of a corporation, is also an officer of the corporation, and examinable as such: Salford v. Lever, 24 Q. B. D. 695.

It was held insufficient to state that the documents were privileged, as communications between deponent and her solicitor. It is necessary to state that they are professional communications of a confidential character: O'Shea v. Wood, 1891, P. 237, 286; Clergue v. McKay, 3 O. L. R. 478; Ainsworth v. Widding, 1900, 2 Ch. 315.

Communications by a clerk of the defendant company to the company, containing references to advice given by the company's solicitor, whom the clerk had consulted, are privileged, being held to be the same as if written by the solicitors: Boughton v. Citizens Insurance Co., 11 P. R. 110.

Where a document is privileged, the production of it as an exhibit to a witness in another action is not a waiver of the privilege for all purposes, even as to a person entitled to inspection of the deposition in which it was referred to: Goldstone v. Williams, 1890, 1 Ch. 47; 79 L. T. 373.

The privilege is not lost by the death of the client: Bullivant v. Attorney-General of Victoria, 1901, A. C. 196.

Extent of this ground of privilege.

The privilege extends to a person who, unknown to the client, had ceased to practise as a solicitor when the communications were made: Calley v. Richards, 19 Beav. 401; see also L. R. 18 Eq. 654; and to communications with reference to actual or impending litigation coming from any third person employed by the solicitor, or at his instance, such as his town agent: Cutt v. Tourle, 23 L. T. 485; 19 W. R. 56, or clerk, accountant, or other skilled person: see Lawrence v. Campbell, 4 Dr. 485; Steel v. Stewart, 1 Ph. 471; Churton v. Preuen, 2 Dr. & S. 390; Hooper v. Gumm, 10 W. R. 644; or in any other way procured by the solicitor, or by the client or his agent, at the instance of the solicitor: Bustros v. Whyte, 1 Q. B. D. 423; Anderson v. Bank of British Columbia, 2 Ch. D. 644; Taylor v. Batten, 4 Q. B. D. 85; and to documents prepared with a bona fide intention of being laid before a solicitor in a contemplated action: Southwick v. Quick, 3 Q. B. D. 315; Wheeler v. Le Marchant, 17 Ch. D. 675; (see that case explained and upheld in Calcraft v. Guest, 1898, 1 Q. B. 759); Kennedy v. Lyell, 23 Ch. D. 387; see 9 App. Cas. 81; Macdonald v. Norwich Union, etc., 10 P. R. 501; Lowden v. Blakey, 23 Q. B. D. 332; even though they answer the purpose of giving information to other people as well: Hunter v. G. T. Ry. Co., 16 P. R. 385; letters from a third person in answer to inquiries by a party's solicitor with a view to anticipated litigation: McCorquodale v. Bell, 1 C. P. D. 471; Anderson v. Bank of British Columbia, 2 Ch. D. 644; or in answer to similar inquiries of the party himself at the suggestion of his solicitor: Donahue v. Johnston, 14 P. R. 476; or in reasonable contemplation of litigation: Collins v. London General Omnibus Co., 5 R. 353; 68 L. T. 831; anonymous letters to solicitors about the case: Young v. Holloway, 12 P. D. 167; documents material to the party's case procured by his solicitors of their own motion for the purposes of the action: The Palermo, 9 P. D. 6; Guelph C. Co. v. Whitehead, 9 P. R. 509, (and indicating also names of witnesses: Elwesley v. Miller, 5 O. W. R. 651, 717); documents relating only to the conduct of the suit: Lugilby v. Shafter, 33 Beav. 31; Gundee v. Stansfield, 4 DeG. & J. 1; Turner v. Burkenshaw, 11 W. R. 851; papers relating to a former action and privileged therein: Bullock v. Corp., 3 Q. B. D. 350; Bacon v. Bacon, W. N. 1876, 96;

Nordon v. Defries, 8 Q. B. D. 508; Branford v. Branford, 4 P. D. 72; Rule 467.
Pearce v. Foster, 15 Q. B. D. 114; Canadian Pacific Ry. v. Commr., 11 P. R. 297; Calcraft v. Guest, 1898, 1 Q. B. 759; 78 L. T. 283; but not otherwise; Hutchinson v. Glover, 1 Q. B. D. 138; Re Worswick, 38 Ch. D. 370; a doctor's report of an examination at the instance of a party's solicitor: Friend v. London, Chatham and Dover Ry. Co. 2 Ex. D. 437; and reports of surveyors as to the condition of a cargo, made solely for the use of one of the parties or for the opinion of his legal adviser: The Theodore Korner, 3 P. D. 162; see Cozy v. Lon- don, Brighton, etc., Ry. Co., L. R. 5 C. P. 146; and a report of an accident made in similar circumstances: Collins v. London General Omnibus Co., 68 L. T. 831; 3 R. 355; Hunter v. G. T. Ry. Co., 16 P.
 R. 385.

All statements made at joint consultations between parties and their respective solicitors or counsel, even though made by one party to the solicitor or counsel of the other are privileged; so also is a statement made by one party to the solicitor of the other at an interview between them alone, held at the request of the other party:
Rochevoucauld v. Boustead, W. N. 1896, 74; 74 L. T. 783; 65 L. J.
 Ch. 794.

In a probate action an order for production of documents, the private property of plaintiff's solicitor, containing entries by the solicitor as to the deceased's affairs, was refused: O'Shea v. Wood, 1891, P. 237, 286.

Although copies of documents, which are publici juris, are themselves, unprivileged, a collection of entries in public records, and registers, and of photographs of tombstones, and houses, will be protected from production, when it has been made or directed by the solicitors of a party for his defence, and is the result of the professional knowledge, skill and research of those solicitors: Lynch v.
Kennedy, 27 Ch. D. 1; 53 L. J. Chy. 937.

Transcript of shorthand notes of proceedings in open Court are not privileged: Re Worswick, Robson v. Worswick, 38 Ch. D. 370; Leary v. Halifax Banking Co., 1893, 1 Ch. 686; 68 L. T. 158; and see North Australia Co. v. Goldborough, 1893, 2 Ch. 381; Goldstone
v. Williams, Deacon & Co., 1899, 1 Ch. 47; 79 L. T. 383.

The giving of an extract or copy of an opinion of counsel procured by the solicitor for his client, on the subject matter of a suit, to the solicitor on the other side, does not prevent the opinion from being privileged: Carey v. Cuthbert, 6 L. R. Ir. Eq. 599; but as to making use of the copy so given, see Calcraft v. Guest, 1898, 1 Q.
 B. 759.

Protection cannot be claimed on this ground for communications made to a solicitor, but not in his character of solicitor: Greenough v. Gaskill, 1 M. & K. 98; Rudd v. Frank, 9 C. L. T. 387; Thomas v. Rawlings, 27 Beav. 140; as where he was not simply advising as solicitor, but negotiating actively much of the transaction impeached in the action:
Pearson v. Merchants Bank, 11 P. R. 21; and see Bullivant v. Attorney-General, 1901, A. C. 190; or was plaintiff's patent or other agent, as well as his solicitor; and the communication was in the former capacity:
Moseley v. Victoria Rubber Co., 55 L. T. 482; Clergue v. McKay, 1901, 3 O. L. R. 63; nor for letters to a party's solicitor, not induced by inquiries: McCorquodale v. Bell, supra; nor for documents not obtained by direction of the party's solicitor, but by way of precaution and by possibility to be laid before him for the purpose of defence to an action, if any should be brought: Cook v. N. Metropolitan Tramway Co., 6 Times, 22; and see Rau-

Communications not in profes-
 character.

Rule 467. stone v. Preston, 30 Ch. D. 116; nor for statements made voluntarily, or at the party's request for his own information, by his unprofessional agents: Bustros v. White; Anderson v. Bank of British Columbia, supra; though made in confidence, and so marked: Hopkinson v. Lord Burghley, L. R. 2 Chy. 447; see Wiman v. Bradstreet, 2 Chy. Ch. 77; nor where fraud is charged: see infra.

Where documents are produced in such cases an undertaking may be required from the opposite party not to use the documents for any collateral purpose: Hopkinson v. Lord Burghley, supra; Richardson v. Hastings, 7 Beav. 354.

Notes on a bill of costs of proceedings in Chambers recorded by the solicitor are not privileged: Ainsworth v. Widding, 1900, 2 Ch. 315, following Greenough v. Gaskell, 1 M. & K. at pp. 102-104; and Re Worswick, 38 Ch. D. at page 373.

information.

Protection also cannot be claimed for information derived from collateral sources, and not directly from the client: Marsh v. Keith, 1 Dr. & Sm. 342; Ford v. Tennant, 32 Beav. 162; Deaborough v. Rawlins, 3 M. & Cr. 515; Re Land Credit Society, 15 W. R. 703; nor for mere collateral facts, such as the client's residence, unless communicated confidentially; e.g., as his client's hiding place: Heath v. Crealock, L. R. 15 Eq. 257; Re Arnott, Ex parte, Chief Official Receiver, 37 W. R. 223; 60 L. T. 109; or address: see Bursill v. Tanner, 55 L. J. Q. B. 53; (see also the distinction between confidential communications, and those of facts patent to the senses: Kennedy v. Lyell, 48 L. T. 455; 23 Ch. D. 387); nor for documents passing between the party's solicitor and third persons to enable the solicitor to advise his client, unless they were for the purpose of obtaining information, evidence, or legal advice with reference to litigation existing or contemplated between the parties to the action: Wheeler v. Le Marchant, 17 Ch. D. 675; (see that case explained and upheld in Calcraft v. Guest, 1898, 1 Q. B. 759); Pavitt v. Metropolitan Tramways Co., W. N. 1883, 100; Original Hartlepool Collieries Co. v. Moon, 30 L. T. 193, 585; Betts v. G. T. Ry., 12 P. R. 86, 634; Comtee v. C. P. Ry. Co., 9 C. L. T. 36; Leacroft v. Halifax Jt. Stk. Banking Co., 1893, 1 Ch. 686; N. Australia, etc., Co. v. Goldborough, 1893, 2 Ch. 381; (see Westinghouse v. Midland, etc., 48 L. T. 98, 462, as to what constitutes lis mota); nor for professional opinions given partly for the benefit of the party requiring production: Reynolds v. Godlee, 4 K. & J. 88; Talbot v. Marshfield, 13 W. R. 885; Wynne v. Humberston, 27 Beav. 421; nor in respect of communications passing between a solicitor and his client, who was the predecessor in title of the plaintiff and defendant, in respect to property in dispute: Platt v. Buck, 4 O. L. R. 421.

solicitor and a third person.

Professional communications are excepted from protection in partnership actions and actions between beneficiaries and trustees, where such communications had been obtained for the sake of, and paid for out of, the partnership or trust estate: Gauraud v. Edison Goods Bell Tel. Co., 59 L. T. 813; 57 L. J. Chy. 498.

No privilege can be claimed by a trustee as against his cotui qui trust for letters passing between the trustee and the solicitor, relating to the trust before action brought: Re Mason, Mason v. Cattley, 22 Ch. D. 609; Talbot v. Marshfield, supra; Re Postlethwaite, Postlethwaite v. Rickman, 35 Ch. D. 722.

Fraud.

Where fraud is charged, communications between solicitor and client as to the subject matter of an alleged fraud are not privileged in an action: Williams v. Quebrada Ry. Co., 1895, 2 Ch. 751; 73 L. T. 397; Smith v. Hunt, 1 O. L. R. 331; Mornington v. Mornington,

2 J. & H. 697; Charlton v. Coombes, 4 Giff. 372, 382; Reynell v. Rule 467. Sprye, 10 Beav. 51; 11 Beav. 618; see also as to the effect of a charge of fraud, Re Postlethwaite, 35 Ch. D. 722; Reg. v. Cox, 14 Q. B. D. 153; Reg. v. Bullivant, 1900, 2 Q. B. 163; 82 L. T. 493, subsequently reversed in the House of Lords, because in that case no fraud was charged; see 1901, A. C. 196.

The privilege where it exists only prevents the production of the document, or the disclosure by the solicitor of its contents; secondary evidence of its contents may be given: Calcraft v. Guest, 1898, 1 Q. B. 759.

Form of Claim of Privileged Communications.—It is not enough Form. to state that the documents were privileged as communications between the deponent and his solicitor. It is necessary to state that the professional communications are of a confidential character: O'Shea v. Wood, 1891, P. 286; Clergue v. McKay, 3 O. L. R. 478; and, in the case of a correspondence in respect of which privilege is claimed, it must be set forth in the affidavit on production, without any ambiguity, in order that there may be no doubt as to its being privileged. That letters were "in reference to the matters which are now in question in this action," was held to be too indefinite a description: Clergue v. McKay, 3 O. L. R. 478.

The following are forms of statement of objection to produce communications between solicitor and client on the ground of privilege:

"I object to produce the documents set forth in the second part of the said first schedule, on the ground that they are communications passing between me (or A. B., acting on my behalf), and my solicitor, with reference to matters which are now in question in this cause; and that the same are confidential communications between solicitor and client."

Or, "are communications written at the instance, and for the use, of my solicitor for the purpose of the proceedings in this action, and of giving advice to me with reference to the same."

Or, "are communications between A. B. and myself, for the purpose of being laid before my solicitor for obtaining his advice, and with a view to this litigation."

Or, "are communications written and sent by A. B. for the confidential and private information of my solicitor, with a view to the institution of legal proceedings against . . ."

"I object to produce the documents set forth in the second part of the first schedule, on the ground that being communications between solicitor and client they are privileged": Hamelyn v. White, 6 P. R. 143; followed, though with doubt, in Hoffman v. Crerar, 17 P. R. 404; see also Macfarlane v. Rolt, L. R. 14 Eq. 580.

11. Communications with an Unprofessional Agent in Communication with unprofessional agent anticipation of litigation, and with a view to the prosecution of, or defence to, a claim to the matter in dispute, were held to be privileged in Ross v. Gibbs, L. R. 8 Eq. 522; Connave v. C. P. Ry. Co., 11 P. R. 297; the later cases, however, seem to show that such communications are not privileged, even where made during, and for the express purpose of litigation; see Bustros v. White, 1 Q. B. D. 423; Anderson v. Bank of British Columbia, 2 Ch. D. 644, 658; Shute v. Tucker, 14 Ch. D. 824; Martin v. Butchard, 36 L. T. 732; see also Reid v. Langlois, 1 Mac. & G. 638; Hamilton v. Nott, L. R. 16 Eq. 112.

Rule 467. See also Armstrong v. Toronto Street Railway Co., 15 P. R. 208, where, in an action for damages for personal injuries received in a tramway accident, a report made to defendants by the conductor of the car was held not privileged as a whole, while the portion of the report containing the names of eye-witnesses was held to be protected.

Instances of communications not privileged.

Further Examples of Non-privileged Communications.—

The following are further instances of communications not privileged:—Copies of letters between defendants and third persons procured for the purpose of defence by the solicitors of the defendants from such third persons, the defendants not having kept copies of the correspondence: Chadwick v. Bowman, 16 Q. B. D. 561.

A transcript of shorthand notes of evidence in an action instituted by a party, with a view to ulterior proceedings not then contemplated, and for the purpose of submitting the same to counsel in such ulterior proceedings if taken: Rainstone v. Preston, 30 Ch. D. 1; Cook v. N. Metropolitan Tramway Co., 6 Times, 22.

Opinions of Engineers, etc.

Opinions of engineers as to the validity of a patent, obtained with a view to being forearmed, in case litigation should arise: Toronto Gravel Road Co. v. Taylor, 6 P. R. 227; reports made to an insurance company by their medical officer, and by friends of the assured, to whom the company was referred, as to his health and habits: Mahony v. National Widow's Life Ass. Fund, L. R. 6 C. P. 252; reports of persons employed to survey a tug, for the purposes of an action for damages for improperly constructing the tug: Martin v. Butchard, 36 L. T. 732; correspondence between a vendor and a vendee relative to the subject matter of the action by a subvendee but which could not be said to be confidential communications with a view to litigation: English v. Tottie, 1 Q. B. D. 141; letters from a party's unprofessional agent to defendant, relative to the subject matter of an action, not sent in order to be laid before the party's solicitor: Anderson v. Bank of British Columbia, 2 Ch. D. 644; an agreement of compromise between the defendant and a third person relative to the subject matter of an action: Hutchinson v. Glover, 1 Q. B. D. 138; Richards v. Morgan, 4 B. & S. 641; papers obtained from experts, by arbitrators for their guidance: Pousford v. Scaime, 1 J. & H. 433; statements made to a reporter in the employment of the proprietor of a newspaper: Davis v. Shepatone, 55 L. T. 1.

Bankers' Books.

Banker's books are not privileged from production, whether the bank be a party, or whether by a subpoena duces tecum production is sought from the bank as a witness: Hannum v. McRae, 18 P. R. 185. Customers' accounts are not privileged at Common Law, nor under our Banking Acts: Id.

Correspondence after suit.

Correspondence between co-defendants after suit, is not as a general rule privileged: Hamilton v. Nott, L. R. 16 Eq. 112; see also Sankey v. Alexander, 8 L. R. Ir. 241; Hey v. De la Hay, W. N. 1886, 101.

Where a diary that would not have been protected from production has been lost, extracts made from it since the commencement, and for the purposes of the litigation, are not protected: Land Corporation of Canada v. Pulcston, W. N. 1884, 1; see The Paterno, 9 P. D. 6.

Form of affidavit claiming protection from production.

Form of Affidavit.—The Forms 19 and 20, given in the Appendix (H. & L. Forms, Nos. 504, 505), should be followed. "The statutory form is the right form, and is intended to be the common form. The affidavit of documents is intended now to be exhaustive, and the form given in the Act is so"; per Lindley, J., W. N. 1876, 39.

For form of affidavit where two plaintiffs have different interests, Rule 467.
see Fendall v. O'Connell, 52 L. T. 553, in note to Rule 464.

The affidavit must give such description of the documents which the party objects to produce as will sufficiently identify them: Taylor v. Batten, 4 Q. B. D. 85; Bewicke v. Graham, 7 Q. B. D. 400; Taylor v. Oliver, 45 L. J. Chy. 774; Mayor of Bristol v. Cox, 26 Ch. D. 678. A list may be given setting them out in the same way as the documents which the party does not object to produce: see Hamelyn v. Whyte, 6 P. R. 143; Hoffman v. Czerar, 17 P. R. 404; Fraser v. Home Ins. Co., 6 P. R. 45.

It is obvious that a minute specification of the documents in the affidavit might often defeat the claim of privilege.

The following descriptions have therefore been held sufficient: "A correspondence between the plaintiff and his predecessors in title on the one hand, and their respective solicitors from time to time on the other": Minet v. Morgan, L. R. 8 Chy. 361. "Certain documents, letters and correspondence which have passed between my legal advisers and myself, and certain instructions to, and opinions of counsel, which are numbered 50-76 inclusive and are tied up in a bundle marked with the letter A and initialed by me": Taylor v. Batten, supra; Morris v. Edwards, 15 App. Cas. 309; Budden v. Wilkinson, 1893, 2 Q. B. 432; 69 L. T. 427. "Bundles of letters" is not a sufficient description of correspondence: Hamilton v. Nott, L. R. 16 Eq. 112; but letters may be so described with sufficient description to identify them: Walker v. Poole, 51 L. J. Chy. 840. Too prolix and voluminous an affidavit may be ordered to be taken off the files: Ib., W. N. 1882, 136; or the party filing it may be ordered to pay the costs of it: Hill v. Hart-Davis, 26 Ch. D. 470.

It is not sufficient to mention bundles containing a large number of documents, among which the deponent thinks one or two may be material; an affidavit so framed may be ordered to be taken off the files: Bolton v. Natal Land & Col. Co., 83 L. T. Jour. 203; W. N. 1887, 143.

Reference generally to letters, etc., as filed in Court on certain specified applications, was held sufficient, without scheduling the particulars: Lyon v. McKay, 10 P. R. 557.

The affidavit must also (see clause 3) assign a reason for objecting to produce the documents, and verify the facts upon which the claim to protection is based: Bromley v. Graham, 11 P. R. 451; Gardner v. Irvin, 4 Ex. D. 49; Weble v. East, 5 Ex. D. 108; Roberts v. Oppenheim, 26 Ch. D. 724. It has been held sufficient to swear to the best of the defendant's knowledge and belief: Minet v. Morgan, supra, but see Manby v. Berwick, 8 DeG. M. & G. 476. It is insufficient to swear generally that the documents are privileged: Gardner v. Irvin, 4 Ex. D. 49.

Where an affidavit of documents had been filed, setting out the number and the dates, but not the parties, to title deeds, it was held that as the deeds were privileged, the Court would not order the names of the parties to the deeds to be set out: Taylor v. Oliver, 45 L. J. Chy. 774; 34 L. T. 902.

Where one document only was mentioned as "a certain document," and possession of others was negatived, the statements (1) "I object to produce the said document; (2) the naming or production of the said document might tend to criminate me, or would tend to bring a criminal prosecution against me for a crime of which I am in fact innocent, but for which I might be criminally prosecuted," were held

Rule 467. to be sufficient to "specify" the document within Rule 467, and to state a claim of privilege, though no information was given as to the date, nature, or contents, of the document: Vausickh v. Leon, 17 P. R. 335.

Portions of books produced, containing entries not relevant to the matters in question, may be allowed to be sealed up: Re Pickering, 25 Ch. D. 247; Hugh v. Garrett, W. N. 1874, 229; 1875, 26; Jones v. Adames, 57 L. T. 843; 58 L. T. 601; or where books are in use the portions not relevant need not be actually sealed up, but may be temporarily covered up during inspection, and, where required, any necessary affidavit may be ordered to be made so as to protect the opposite party by oath against the possibility of a relevant portion being covered up: Graham v. Sutton, 1897, 1 Ch. 761; 76 L. T. 324.

As to the conclusiveness of the affidavit, see infra.

Further and better
affidavit.

Motion for better Affidavit. — Where a claim to protection from production is not sufficiently made out by the affidavit on production, or where, by admissions of the party who made the affidavit, it is made out that other documents than those produced are in the possession or power of the party, the course is to require a further and better affidavit to be made. If on the motion it appears that the claim to protection is not authorized, or sufficiently made out, or that there are such other documents, an order will be made directing the filing of a better affidavit making the further production which may be proper.

It is irregular to go into the merits of the action on a motion for a better affidavit: Morris v. Edwards, 23 Q. B. D. 287; Hoffman v. Czerar, 17 P. R. 404.

A second application for a better affidavit on production is improper where no objection is made on the first application to the non-production of the documents in question, the second motion not being made upon any material which did not exist at the time of the first motion: Boughton v. Citizens Insurance Co., 11 P. R. 110.

Affidavit
in proper form

Affidavit on Production, when Conclusive. — Where the documents are properly identified and described, and the ground of protection sufficiently stated, if it is a valid ground, the affidavit is prima facie conclusive as to the relevancy of documents, and privilege claimed: Bewicke v. Graham, 7 Q. B. D. 400; Welsh Steam, etc., Co. v. Gaskell, 36 L. T. 352; Bulman v. Young, 31 W. R. 766; 49 L. T. 735; and it cannot be contradicted by counter affidavits: Jones v. Monte Video Gas Co., 5 Q. B. D. 556; Lyon v. McKay, 10 P. R. 757; see also Hall v. Truman Hanbury Co., 29 Ch. D. 307; Nicholl v. Wheeler, 17 Q. B. D. 101; McGregor v. McDonald, 12 P. R. 81; Morris v. Edwards, 23 Q. B. D. 287; 15 App. Cas. 309; Hoffman v. Czerar, 17 P. R. 404; but the Master or Judge may see from the nature of the case, that the party has misconceived the effect of the documents, and may therefore disregard, or refuse to act upon his affidavit: Attorney-General v. Emerson, 10 Q. B. D. 19; Ponsonby v. Hartley, W. N. 1883, 13, 44; Lyell v. Kennedy, 31 W. R. 618; Fraser v. Home Ins. Co., 6 P. R. 45; Re Pickering, 25 Ch. D. 247; Morley v. Canada Atlantic Ry. Co., 11 P. R. 39; Frankenstein v. Gavins, H. C. C. Co., 1897, 2 Q. B. 62 (but see Leslie v. Cave, 35 W. R. 515; 56 L. T. 332, where it was held that one document being shown not to be privileged as claimed, by relating only to the party's own case, another document is not on that ground to be ordered to be inspected); or if from the affidavit itself: Jones v. Monte Video Gas Co., supra; Wagstaffe v. Anderson, 39 L. T. 332; (where the words "never have had" were omitted), or from the documents referred to, Rule 467, or an admission in the pleading of the party: Hastings v. Hall, L. R. 8 Ch. 1017; Imp. Land Co. of Morseilles v. Masterman, 22 W. R. 68; 20 L. T. 559; Jones v. Monte Video Gas Co., supra; Smedley v. B. America Ass. Co., 18 P. R. 92; or other documents affording reasonable suspicion that the affidavit is not sufficient: see Lyell v. Kennedy, 27 Ch. D. 1 (such as evidence given at a former trial of the case: Moxley v. Canada Atlantic Ry. Co., 11 P. R. 39), or in his examination in the cause: see Dobson v. Dobson, 7 P. R. 256; or the admission of his solicitor: Campbell v. McArthur, 7 P. R. 46; or of any officer of a company: Pawson v. Merchants Bank, 11 P. R. 18, the Master or Judge is of opinion that the affidavit is insufficient a further affidavit may be ordered. See also Ross v. Dublin United Tramways Co., 8 L. R. Ir. 213; Compagnie Financière v. Pecurian Ginno Co., 11 Q. B. 11, 55; Central News (Limited) v. Eastern Telegraph Co., 28 Sol. Jour. 380; Robinson v. Budgett, W. N. 1884, 94; 28 Sol. Jour. 411; Parnell v. Wood, 1892, P. 137; but when the affidavit is positive that all the relevant documents have been set out in the schedule to the affidavit, a further affidavit will not be ordered: Hull v. Brewer, 17 C. L. T. (Occ. N.) 132.

Cross-Examination on Affidavit.—In England cross-examination upon the affidavit was not allowed in Chancery, nor is it under the Jud. Act: see Manby v. Berricke, 8 DeG. M. & G. 470; Hall v. Geo.
Truman, 20 Ch. D. 313; Nicholls v. Wheeler, 17 Q. B. D. 101; it was allowed under the Chancery practice in Ontario: see Dobson v.
Dobson, 7 P. R. 256; but in Frith v. Ryan, 10 P. R. 235, it was held that the Chy. practice was not continued under the Jud. Act; Con.
Rule 512 was therefore passed in 1888 to continue the Chancery practice, but it was rescinded in September, 1894, by Rule 1337 to prevent a double examination of a party, one upon the affidavit, and another for discovery. The prohibition is continued in Rule 490. It would, however, seem that now, upon the usual examination for discovery, examination may take place in respect to the correctness of the affidavit of the party on production of documents just as in regard to any other relevant matters: see Lavery v. Wolfe, 10 P. R.
488; Dobson v. Dobson, 7 P. R. 256; Dryden v. Smith, 17 P. R. at pp. 504, 505; and admissions so obtained impeaching the correctness of the affidavit may, it would seem, be used as the foundation of a motion for a better affidavit; and see Smedley v. B. Am. Assur. Co., 18 P. R. 92. It is not permissible, however, to the opposite party to obtain a cross-examination of the deponent, by the indirect means of examining him as a witness under Rule 491, for the purpose of using his evidence upon a motion for a better affidavit on production:
Dryden v. Smith, 17 P. R. 500; nor on an examination for discovery to cross-examine on the affidavit on production of documents:
Standard v. Seybold, Divl. Ct., 6 Oct., 1902; and see 39 C. L. J. 772.

Inspection by a Judge of Documents claimed to be Privileged.—It seems, in England, to have been a not uncommon practice, on applications respecting discovery, to shew the documents upon which a question of privilege arises to the Judge; and where by consent, the documents are so shewn to the Judge, and his decision thereupon taken, no appeal lies from his order: Bustros v. White, 1
Q. B. D. 427; see also Macdonald v. Norwich Union, 10 P. R. 505; but whether this course is right was doubted: see Re Holloray, 12 P.
D. 167, 169; it is now, however, authorized by an express English Rule, O. 31, r. 19 a (2). Under the Ontario practice this course would not seem to be authorized.

Rules 468, 469. Inspection by the Party.—As soon as documents are produced, the opposite party, at whose instance the production is ordered, is entitled to inspect them: see Rule 404; but where there is some preliminary question of law or fact to be determined, on special application, the right of inspection may be postponed until after the determination of such question: see Rules 250, 472; De Carteret v. Land Security Co., 70 L. T. 323; 42 W. R. 104; 7 R. 16.

Costs. Costs.—As to the costs of several successive affidavits on production by the same party, see Baldwin v. Quinn, 16 P. R. 248, where only the first affidavit, and the extra folios of subsequent affidavits, were allowed.

Affidavit on production by a corporation.

468. Where the party required to produce documents is a corporation the affidavit shall be made by one of its officers, and may be according to Form No. 20. Con. Rule 511, amended.

There is no similar English Rule, but the Rule is in conformity with what was the practice in Chancery: see Dan. Prac., 5th ed., p. 1677, and cases there cited.

A form of affidavit by an officer is given in the Appendix, No. 20 (H. & L. Forms, No. 505). This affidavit must be made by the proper officer of the company, in compliance with an order in the usual form.

Where a bill was filed by a Republican government, the defendant, having put in a sufficient answer, was held entitled to the usual affidavit of documents, to be made by one or more of the Ministers, or officers, of the government: Republic of Liberia v. Imperial Bank, L. R. 16 Eq. 179.

It was held unreasonable to require a defendant company to answer interrogatories through a former director who was interested in the plaintiff company, the Court intimating at the same time, that such person might be made a defendant, and discovery thus obtained: Manchester Val de Traversa Paving Co. v. Slagg, W. N. 1882, 127.

Notice to produce documents referred to in pleadings or affidavit.

469.—(1) A party shall be entitled to obtain the production, for inspection, of any documents referred to in the pleadings or affidavits of the opposite party, by giving a notice (according to Form No. 60) to the solicitor of such opposite party, and shall be entitled to take copies of such documents when so produced for inspection.

(2) Any party not producing any document in compliance with such notice, shall not afterwards be at liberty to use the documents in evidence, in the cause, matter or proceeding, unless he satisfies the Court or Judge, as the case may be, that he had some sufficient cause for not complying with the notice (a). See Con. Rules 514, 515.

Clause (1) is a slightly abbreviated form of former Con. Rule 514, and clause (2) of Con. Rule 515, which two Rules corresponded substantially with Eng. (1883) R. 357, and 358, except that the Eng. Rule 400. Rule 357 has at (a) the words following, which seem to be implied in the present Rule 400: "In which case the Court or Judge may allow the same to be put in evidence on such terms as to costs and otherwise as the Court or Judge shall think fit."

See notes to Rules 404, and 407.

In Webster v. Whehall, 15 Ch. D. 121, remarks were made by Denman, J., to the effect that "sufficient cause" for not complying with a notice by defendant under this Rule would be, that the defence had not yet been delivered. This dictum was not approved in Quilter v. Heatty, 23 Ch. D. 42, where it was held that a defendant was, prima facie, entitled at once to inspect a document referred to in the pleadings, and the burden of shewing cause is on the party from whom inspection is demanded: also that the Rule applies not only between the plaintiff and a defendant, but also between co-defendants. There Lindley, L.J., said: "There is a material distinction between ordinary discovery, and discovery of documents referred to in the pleadings or affidavits." And Jessel, M.R., said: "The defendant may say, 'Your case depends partly on a set of documents which you have set out incorrectly. I wish to see them. It may be that I have made admissions which will put me out of Court. I wish to see the documents to know whether I have made such admissions, and it is important for me to see them before I put in my defence.' It is reason enough why the defendant should be allowed to see them that the plaintiff has made them part of his statement of claim;" and see Diamond Match Co. v. Hawkesbury L. Co., 1 O. L. R. 577.

Where a document is referred to in an affidavit, of which a copy is served to be read in answer to a motion, the opposite party is entitled to call for the production of the document, even though the affidavit is not filed: Re Fenner, 1897, 1 Q. B. 667; 76 L. T. 376.

The documents need not be particularly identified, or referred to; but if more compendiously described by general words, they fall within this Rule, and inspection may be ordered: Smith v. Harris, 48 L. T. 860. A letter referred to in particulars of plaintiff's claim is a document within the Rule: Cass v. Fitzgerald, W. N. 1884, 18.

The reference in a pleading, etc., to a document in respect of which privilege might otherwise be claimed does not render it liable to inspection under this Rule, but if production is refused it cannot be used in evidence: Roberts v. Oppenheim, 26 Ch. D. 724; see also Mayor of Bristol v. Cox, 26 Ch. D. 678; Leslie v. Carr, 30 Sol. Jour. 76, and Green v. Auen, 2 Chy. Ch. 138.

Inspection of a foreign judgment was refused, in an action on a judgment brought under the old procedure: Matthias v. Deleacho, 1 Charl. Ca. (Court) 123. Inspection of a mortgage deed was refused to a defendant, who wished to find from it the amount in order to redeem, the plaintiff undertaking to give in a week a statement of principal, interest, and amount of costs, and of the particulars of all other subsequent incumbrances: Anon., 2 Charl. Ch. Ca. 61; W. N. 1876, 23; but see contra Emmens v. Middlemiss, 8 P. R. 320. In Lake v. Pooley, W. N. 1876, 54, an action for breach of covenant in a lease, the defendant had made an assignment of one undivided moiety of leasehold property, consisting of land, brewery and fixtures: the plaintiff having applied for an order for inspection of documents, and the defendant having objected that the documents related solely to his own title, Archibald, J., made the order, because it was a case of an undivided moiety, the interest in which could only be realized by the usufruct of the whole property.

Rule 470. As to inspection of a company's books by a shareholder, see Re Credit Co., 11 Ch. D. 250.

Form of Notice.—The form of notice need only be in language substantially according to Form 60 (H. & L. Forms, No. 527); Rule 1221, but the procedure must be according to Rule 463 in order to entitle to inspection of the documents; a notice to inspect on the following morning, was held to be not authorized, and did not confer any right to inspect: Re Credit Co., 11 Ch. D. 250.

Notice to Produce at the Trial.—The form of the usual notice to produce documents at the trial is No. 62 in the Appendix (H. & L. Forms, No. 580).

As to the effect of not giving a proper notice to produce at the trial, see Sugg v. Bray, 51 L. T. 194; 54 L. J. Chy. 132; where parol evidence was not allowed to be given of a document in respect of which a proper notice to produce had not been given.

Copies.—In a proper case the Court may authorize a party to make photographs of the documents produced by the opposite party, due precautions being taken to provide for the safety of the documents: Lewis v. Loundesborough, 1893, 2 Q. B. 101; 69 L. T. 353.

Exhibits.—Irrespective of any question as to discovery, property, or privilege, if a document is made an exhibit to an affidavit, any person who has the right to inspect and take copies of the affidavit has a similar right as to the exhibit: Re Hönchcliffe, 1895, 1 Ch. 117.

Privilege.—The same rules that govern the right to production of documents, are generally applicable where inspection is sought: see Clegg v. Edmondson, 22 Beav. 125, and notes to Rule 464; and so (except in the case of exhibits), there is no right to inspection of documents as to which there is no right to discovery: Central News (Limited) v. Eastern Tel. Co., 28 Sol. Jour. 390; see 53 L. J. Q. B. 236; but where a document is referred to in a party's pleading it is subject to production by him: Quilter v. Heutley, 23 Ch. D. 49, 50; Diamond Match Co. v. Hunkesbury Lumber Co., 1 O. L. R. 577.

inspect.

470. The party to whom such notice is given, shall within two days from the receipt thereof, deliver to the party giving the same, a notice (according to Form No. 61), stating a time within three days from the delivery thereof, at which the documents may be inspected at the office of his solicitor, and stating which, if any, of the documents he objects to produce, and on what ground. See Con. Rule 516.

Compare Eng. (1883) R. 359.

The former Con. Rule contained (following in that respect the Eng. R. 359) special provision making the notice applicable to documents mentioned in an affidavit on production, and the Eng. R. has a special provision relating to the inspection of bankers' books, and books of account, etc., in constant use at their usual place of custody. The present Con. Rules 463 and 470, only apply in the case of documents mentioned in pleadings, or affidavits other than affidavits on production.

The course to obtain inspection of documents produced under an affidavit on production will be found in the notes to Rule 464, p. 674.

471. If the party served with such notice to give notice to give such inspection, or to give such inspection, the party desiring to give such inspection, may apply to a Judge of the High Court for an order or may apply to the Master in Chambers. See Con. Rule 517.

This Rule is substituted for former Con. Rules 517, 518. These Rules, following Eng. (1883) R. 360, applied to documents referred to in an affidavit on production, as well as to those referred to in other affidavits and in pleadings, and also made provisions respecting motions to inspect generally. The present Rules 460-471 only provide machinery for obtaining speedy inspection of documents referred to in pleadings, or affidavits being used on motions or proceedings: see notes to Rules 470, and 467.

Judge of the High Court.—The Master in Chambers, Local Judges acting under Rule 45, and Local Masters under Rule 49, will not have jurisdiction to entertain the motion: see Rule 6 (a).

Motion for Inspection.—Where an application is made under this Rule, the Court may order inspection of the document indicated in the affidavit, notwithstanding that the other party may have made an affidavit on production omitting to disclose this document, and concluding with the usual general averment as to having no other documents: Wiedeman v. Wulpole, 24 Q. B. D. 537; but see S. C., in appeal, ib. 626.

Inspection may be ordered at any convenient place: see Prestney v. Colchester, 48 L. T. 353; W. N. 1883, 114, and note supra, p. 674.

In an action for breach of promise, judgment went by default, and the question of damages was referred to the Master. The plaintiff claimed a right to inspect and take copies of his letters to the defendant, as being material to the question of damages. It was held that the matter was one for the discretionary jurisdiction of the Court or a Judge, and inspection was refused on the ground that it would increase the costs. The Court of Appeal declined to review the decision: Ladd v. Waltham, 32 W. R. 1000.

A party has the right to inspect documents the common property of both parties: Brace v. Liell, 16 Q. B. D. 229.

472. If the party from whom discovery of any kind or inspection is sought objects to the same, or any part thereof, the Court or a Judge, if satisfied that the right to the discovery or inspection sought depends on the determination of any issue or question in dispute in the action, or that for any other reason it is desirable that any issue or question in dispute should be determined before deciding upon the right to the discovery or inspection, may order that such issue or question be determined first, and reserve the question as to the discovery or inspection. Con. Rule 519.

Same as Eng. (1883) R. 362.

The right to the discovery or inspection of documents may depend, for example, on a disputed allegation of partnership: Lyon v. Tweedell.

When inspection objected to.

Rule 472.

Inspection of documents.

13 Ch. D. 375; or on whether an alteration in a will, upon which the rights of the parties depend, was validly made: Hurst v. Barber, 12 P. R. 467; or on the validity of a patent: Dickerson v. Radcliffe, 17 P. R. 586; or whether the defendant was acting as a trustee: Bedell v. Ryckman, 5 O. L. R. 670; and, in such case, the Court, or a Judge, may order that question to be determined first, reserving the question as to discovery or inspection.

A plaintiff partner is entitled to inspect the partnership books by his agent, where there is no reasonable objection to the agent so appointed, and the agent undertakes not to use any information so obtained except for the purpose of confidentially advising his principal: Bevan v. Webb, 1901, 2 Ch. 50.

In an action for an account of profits made by the defendants as the plaintiffs' agents, the defendants denying the agency, the Court declined, until after that question should be tried, to order production of the invoices of goods sold by third persons to the defendants, and re-sold by the defendants to the plaintiffs, the defendants having sworn that those invoices had nothing to do with the point at issue, and that the disclosure would be injurious to the defendants if the plaintiffs failed: Vermineck v. Edwards, 29 W. R. 180.

It was held under this Rule, that where a question on examination is substantially answered, a further answer ought not to be required when discovery would be oppressive: McGregor v. McDonald, 11 P. R. 386.

In Re Leigh, Rowcliffe v. Leigh, 6 Ch. D. 256, where an executrix disputed a horse dealer's account, and the dispute was whether or not certain horses were sold on commission, the Court refused to order the horse dealer to disclose the prices, as being immaterial until it had been decided that the horses were sold on commission. The question of liability must be one which is severable from the question of damages: see Elkin v. Clarke, 21 W. R. 447.

In a suit by an alleged next of kin to an intestate, against the solicitor to the Treasury, to whom administration had been granted, it was held that the defendant was not bound to make an affidavit of documents relating to the estate, until a prima facie case had been made by the plaintiff that he was next of kin: Lane v. Gray, L. R. 16 Eq. 552.

A person who had acted as the foreman of a manufacturer's business, filed a bill against the manufacturer, alleging that the plaintiff was to have a weekly salary, and one-sixth of the profits of the business, and praying an account, and payment of one-sixth of the profits of the business to him accordingly. The defendant by his answer admitted a right to a weekly salary, and to one-twelfth of the profits of the business, coupled, however, with an agreement on the part of the plaintiff, that the latter should take the statements of the defendant as to the profits to be true, and should not ask for an account or question the business transactions, or be entitled to examine or investigate the business books; it was held that he was not compellable to produce them before the hearing, their production not being relevant to the issue whether or not the plaintiff was entitled to a decree for an account: Turney v. Bayley, 4 DeG. J. & S. 332.

See also Parker v. Wells, 18 Ch. D. 447; Wood v. Italian Bank, 34 L. T. 255; and other cases in notes to Rule 467, p. 643; also Johns v. James, 13 Ch. D. 370; English v. Tottie, 1 Q. B. D. 141; De Carteret v. Land Security Co., 70 L. T. 323; 42 W. R. 104; 7 R. 16.

473. If a party fails to comply with any order for production or inspection of documents, he shall be liable to attachment. He shall also be liable, if a plaintiff, to have his action dismissed, and if a defendant, to have his defence, if any, struck out, and to be placed in the same position as if he had not defended; and the party who obtained the order for production or inspection may apply to the Court or a Judge for an order to that effect, and an order may be made accordingly. Con. Rules 520, 648.

473, 474.

Consequences of disobeying an order for discovery.

Taken from Chy. O. 144, and 41 V. c. 8, s. 9.

Compare Eng. (1883) R. 363, which is to the same effect, except that it also refers to answering interrogatories.

See Rule 454, and notes.

This provision does not seem to apply in case of disobedience of a notice to produce given under Rule 448: see Merchants Bank v. Pier-son, 8 P. R. 123.

An order for production need not now be indorsed with the warning to the party, sometimes employed under the former Chancery Practice: Thomas v. Palin, 21 Ch. D. 360; Wallace v. Graham, 11 L. R. Ir. 360.

It is otherwise in England under Eng. (1883) R. 573, even in case of an order for production which may be served on the solicitor: see Hampden v. Wallis, 26 Ch. D. 746.

An order for production or inspection need not be personally served in order to make a party disobeying it liable to attachment: it is sufficient to serve it on his solicitor: Rule 475.

474. Where the application for such last mentioned order is made by reason of default in production of books and papers in the Master's office, or pursuant to an order to produce, or in carrying in accounts, service of the notice of motion upon the solicitor of the party required to obey the same, is to be sufficient service. Con. Rule 521.

Service of notice on solicitor,
when sufficient.

Taken from Chy. O. 296.

The application referred to in this Rule is one for an order absolute to commit for non-production of documents in the Master's office, or pursuant to an order to produce, or for not bringing in accounts. Service of a notice of motion to commit is generally required to be personal: see supra, pp. 622, 623; Mann v. Perry, 50 L. J. Chy. 251; Re Dance, W. N. 1895, 127; and see Gilbert's Chy. Pr. 198-9, but this Rule makes an exception to the general rule, in the cases mentioned: Re Harnden, Harnden v. Harnden, 11 P. R. 35; 21 C. L. J. 238.

Motion to commit;
service of notice of motion.

Formerly, the notice of motion to commit for breach of an order of course was required to be a clear four days' notice: Gray v. Hatch, 2 Chy. Ch. 12; and see Exchange Bank v. Newell, 19 C. L. J. 253; but two clear days' notice seems now sufficient: Rule 348.

Motions to commit for breach of any order of course, or order made by a Judge in Chambers, or judicial officer, may be made in Chambers, but motions to commit for breach of any judgment or order made in Court should be made to a Judge in Court: see Southwick.

Rule 475. v. Hare, 15 P. R. 239, 331; Roberts v. Donovan, 21 Ont. 535; Berry v. Donovan, 21 Ont. App. 14; and notes to Rule 454.

A motion to commit, when made in Chambers, must be made before a Judge; the Master in Chambers, or Local Master, has no jurisdiction to entertain it: Keefe v. Ward, 18 C. L. J. 166; see Rules 42 (11, 49); but a Local Judge would appear to have jurisdiction where Rule 47 (a) applies. See also notes to Rule 454.

Default;
how established.

On motions to commit for non-production, or for not bringing accounts into the Master's office, the Master is to determine whether the party has been sufficiently notified. The Master's certificate of default is the only evidence of default which is necessary, or can be used: Parson v. Dryden, 6 P. R. 83; Wilson v. Wilson, 7 P. R. 57; but on motions to commit for non-production in the proper office under Rule 467, it is necessary to prove the due service of the order, and also to produce the certificate of the proper officer that it has not been complied with: Id.

It is not necessary to serve with the notice of motion copies of the affidavits intended to be used in support of it: Hannum v. McRae, 18 P. R. 185.

The certificate of default should bear the latest possible date: Somerville v. Joyce, 1 Chy. Ch. 202. Such a certificate may be read, though no notice of reading it be given: Mullock v. Plunkett, 1 Chy. Ch. 381. See notes to Rule 855.

Where the order has been complied with, after notice of motion served, the motion will be refused, but the applicant will be entitled to his costs: Mullock v. Plunkett, supra; Berrie v. Moore, 1 Chy. Ch. 107.

Discharge
from custody, on subsequent obedience.

And even after committal for not bringing in accounts, the party is entitled to be discharged on production of the Master's certificate that the accounts have been brought in, and the sufficiency of the accounts will not be inquired into on the application for discharge, nor will the payment of costs be made a condition precedent of the discharge: Clark v. Clark, 3 Chy. Ch. 67. Where a party obstinately refuses obedience, see Rule 861.

Sufficiency of compliance; how determined.

Where the party has complied with the order, but it is contended that his compliance is insufficient, the question of sufficiency must be determined, in cases pending in the Master's office, by the Master upon a warrant to bring in a better affidavit, or accounts, as the case may be: Merkley v. Casselman, 1 Chy. Ch. 202; and see Wilson v. Wilson, 7 P. R. 57.

But where there is an alleged insufficient compliance with an order issued from the Central Office, or by a Deputy Clerk of the Crown, or Deputy or Local Registrar, the question of sufficiency must be determined on motion in Chambers to compel the party to bring in a better affidavit, or in default that he be committed: Ross v. Robertson, 2 Chy. Ch. 66.

3. MISCELLANEOUS.

Service of order on solicitor,
when sufficient.

475. Service of an order for production or inspection on the solicitor of a party shall be sufficient service to found an application for an attachment for disobedience to the order. But the party against whom the application is made may shew in answer that he has had no notice or knowledge of the order. Con. Rule 522.

To the same effect as Eng. (1883) R. 364, except that the latter includes an order for interrogatories. Chy. O. 136, was to the same effect. Rules 476, 477.

This Rule was held to apply where, after judgment in an action for specific performance, an order was obtained requiring defendant within four days to produce the abstract and all deeds and writings, etc., for the inspection of the plaintiff, and this order was served on the defendant's solicitor: Joy v. Hudley, 22 Ch. D. 571.

476. A solicitor upon whom an order against any party for production or inspection is served under Rule 475, who neglects without reasonable excuse to give notice thereof to his client shall be liable to an attachment. Con. Rule 523.

To the same effect as Eng. (1883) R. 367.

477. The preceding Rules as to preliminary examination of parties for discovery, and as to production and inspection of documents, shall, so far as practicable, apply to parties residing out of Ontario, and in such cases the Court or Judge may, on application on notice to the opposite party, order the examination of the parties to be taken at such place and in such manner as may seem just and convenient, and service of the order for examination, production or inspection, and of all other papers necessary to obtain the benefit of the provisions of the said Rules, shall be sufficient if made on the solicitor of the party, in the same manner as other papers in the action are served on the solicitor; unless the Court or Judge makes other order to the contrary; and if there is no such solicitor, or he cannot for any reason be served, the Court or Judge may order the service in any other manner to be mentioned in the order in that behalf. Con. Rule 524.

See notes to Rule 439, et seq. p. 670.

This Rule is in terms restricted to the examination of the parties. It does not extend to the examination of officers of corporations: Perrins v. Albion Tube Works (Limited), 8 O. L. R. 634; but it applies to the case of a party temporarily absent: Mayleau v. James' Bay Ry. Co., 5 O. W. R. 440, 495; and an order may be made for the examination of such a party at the place abroad where he may happen to be: Id., 495.

Where a defendant resides out of Ontario, and is only in it for a temporary purpose, his attendance to be examined for discovery can only be obtained under this Rule, and not by appointment under Rule 445: Cox v. Prior, 18 P. R. 492. An order may, where convenient, be made for the examination in Ontario where the party happens to be, and such an order was made where the defendant resided in British Columbia and was temporarily in Ontario attending the House of Commons, of which he was a member: Id.

The Court, or Judge, may take judicial notice of the geographical situation of places where examinations can be held with reference to the residence of the party to be examined, in order to fix a place which may be just and convenient: Lick v. Rogers, 1 D. L. R. 37. A local Judge of the county where the solicitors for both parties reside, has jurisdiction to make an order under this Rule: Id.

1. SUBPOENAS, ETC.

Subpoena

478. A writ of subpoena shall bear date upon the day when the same [is] issued. Con. Rule 559.

Taken from R. S. O. 1877, c. 62, s. 15.

Where a person required as a witness is undergoing imprisonment for a crime in the Province, it is necessary to move for an order to the governor of the prison to produce the prisoner in Court at the trial; see form of order, Seton, 5th ed., 89. Such an order, however, will not be issued when the time for trial is uncertain, until the case is on the paper for trial; Jenks v. Ditton, 76 L. T. 591, and see Rule 495.

Subpoena
to produce original record not to issue
order.

479. A subpoena for the production of an original record, or of an original memorial from any registry office, shall not be issued, unless the order of the Court or a Judge is produced to and filed with the officer issuing the same; and the writ shall conform to the description of the document in the order. Con. Rule 560.

Taken from Rule T. T. 1856, 31.

The application for the order may be made to the Master in Chambers, or other officer exercising the like jurisdiction in Chambers. The application should be supported by an affidavit showing the necessity for producing the original, and that the production of a certified copy will not be sufficient.

The Rule applies to records of the Court, and memorials in the offices of Registrars of Deeds; an assignment of a squatter's right filed in the Crown Lands Department was held not to be a record within the meaning of the Rule; McGuire v. Sneath, 2 U. C. L. J. 184.

Original papers filed in Court should not be sent away to be used in evidence at a trial, unless it is shown that the production of the originals is essential; and the party applying to have them transmitted has some right in them, or the interests of public justice require their transmission. Quinn v. Scott 21 F. C. Q. B. 180; and see also Scott v. The Queen, 14 Fed. Rep. 190; directions are given to officers of the Court that, "subject to Rule 335, in case originals Rule 479. are required instead of examined or certified copies of affidavits, papers, and documents on file or of record in the Court, such originals shall not be taken away from the Court by any officer under a subpoena, unless authorized so to do by a Judge's order in that behalf."

Where original documents are produced in evidence under a subpoena by any public officer, the originals are not to be left in Court, but copies thereof, or of so much as may be necessary, certified by the officer, are to be put in: see R. S. O. c. 73, s. 48; except where the genuineness of the document produced is in question: Ib., sec. 49.

In an action for malicious arrest, the production of an examined copy of the affidavit on which the arrest was made, and shown to have been used in the cause, is sufficient prima facie proof of such affidavit, and that it was made by the defendant: Spafford v. Buchanan, 3 O. S. 391; Wilson v. Thorpe, 18 U. C. Q. B. 443. But in an action for malicious prosecution, the production of the original indictment indorsed "no bill" is not sufficient proof of its termination; a record must be drawn up, and an examined copy produced: Hewitt v. Cane, 26 Ont. 133; Reg. v. Ivy, 24 C. P. 78; McCaun v. Preneveau, 10 Ont. 573; and see Gunn v. Cox, 3 S.C. R. 296; Henry v. Little, 11 U. C. Q. B. 296; Aston v. Wright, 13 P. R. 14; but see O'Hara v. Dougherty, 25 Ont. 347. A conviction returned to the Sessions and filed by the Clerk of the Peace becomes a record, and may be proved by a certified copy: Graham v. McArthur, 25 U. C. Q. B. 478.

So also the books, indictments and records of the Court of General Sessions of the Peace, in the hands of the Clerk of the Peace are public documents, and any person affected by them is entitled to a copy of a record of acquittal without the fiat of the Attorney-General: Ree v. Scully, 2 O. L. R. 315; 4 O. L. R. 394; R. S. O. c. 324, s. 11.

Any public document filed in a public office of the government may be proved by a certified copy: McLean v. McDowell, 1 U. C. Q. B. 73; R. S. O. c. 73, ss. 26, 28, but see Langtry v. Dumoulin, 7 Ont. 499. As to proof of orders of the Lieutenant-Governor in Council, see R. S. O. c. 73, s. 23, and orders of the Governor-General in Council, Ib., s. 22; registered instruments may be proved by certified copies: R. S. O. c. 73, ss. 45-49. Certified copies of registered memorials are sufficient evidence of such memorials: Lynch v. O'Hara, 6 C. P. 259; but a memorial is not always sufficient proof of the deed to which it relates: Gough v. McBride, 10 C. P. 166; Ausley v. Broo, 14 C. P. 371; for the cases in which the memorial proves the deed, see R. S. O. c. 134, ss. 2 (2), and 3; Re Higgins, 17 Gr. 303.

As to proof of wills, see R. S. O. c. 73, ss. 41-44; where the probate wills is admissible as evidence under this statute, it is evidence of the testator's death, as well as of the will: Davis v. Van Norman, 30 U. C. Q. B. 437.

A Crown patent must be proved by the production of the original. Patents or an exemplification thereof: Reid v. Banks, 10 C. P. 202; McCollum v. Darw, 8 U. C. Q. B. 159; a certified copy is not sufficient: Prince v. McLean, 17 U. C. Q. B. 463. Under The Quieting Titles Act, certified copies of patents are, however, received.

As to municipal by-laws, see 3 Ed. vii. c. 19, s. 323; Robinson v. By-laws Category, 1905, 1 K. B. 521.

Rules

480-482.

Any number of names may be included in one subpoena.

480. Any number of names may be included in one subpoena, and no more than one subpoena shall be allowed on taxation of costs, unless a sufficient reason be established to the satisfaction of the taxing officer for issuing more than one. Con. Rule 561.

Taken from Rule T. T. 1856. 163.

Although several names are included in one subpoena, it is not necessary that the copies served should contain the names of any other witness than the one on whom the copy is served.

Calling opposite party.

481. Wherever a party desires to call the opposite party as a witness at the hearing or trial, he shall either subpoena such party, or, in case such party is within the jurisdiction, give him or his solicitor at least eight days' notice of the intention to examine him as a witness in the cause, paying at the same time the amount proper for conduct money; and if such party does not attend on such notice or subpoena, such non-attendance shall be taken as an admission pro confesso against him in any such action, unless otherwise ordered by the Court or Judge in which or before whom such examination is pending, and a general finding or judgment may be had against the party thereon, or the plaintiff may be nonsuited, or the proceedings in the action may be postponed by the Court or Judge, on such terms as the Court or Judge sees fit to impose. Con. Rule 562; Rules of 1 Jan., 1896, 1458.

Taken from R. S. O. 1877, c. 62, s. 18.

"At least 8 days" means 8 clear days: Rule 344 (2); Sundays will probably be included; see Rule 343.

It is to be observed that this Rule does not say that the notice is to be given eight clear days before the commencement of the sittings. It, perhaps, therefore, may be sufficient if eight clear days elapse before the case comes on; but see Sierichs v. Woodcock, 13 P. R. 250; Girvan v. Molens, 12 C. L. T. 357.

It was held that the statute from which this Rule is taken only applied to a party resident within the jurisdiction, and that where a litigant was residing abroad the opposite party could not compel him to attend as a witness on notice, but must take his evidence by commission. Patchin v. Parris, 10 F. C. Q. B. 630; Tyre v. Wilkes, 18 F. C. Q. B. 46; Sefton v. Lundy, 4 Chy. Ch. 33. The effect of these cases is now expressed in the Rule.

The provision for payment of witness fees was introduced in 1890 to express what was already the construction of the Rule; see Haw v. Lasher, 24 F. C. Q. B. 357.

Bench warrants

482.—(1) Upon proof, to the satisfaction of the Judge presiding at the sittings of any Court, of the service of a subpoena upon any witness who fails to attend or to remain Rule 483. in attendance in accordance with the requirements of the subpoena, and that a sufficient sum for his fees as a witness had been duly paid or tendered to him, and that the presence of such witness is material to the ends of justice, the said Judge may, by his warrant, directed to any sheriff or other officer of the Court, or to any constable, cause such witness to be apprehended, and forthwith brought before him or any other Judge who may thereafter preside at such sittings, to give evidence, and in order to secure his presence as a witness, such witness may be taken on such warrant before the presiding Judge and detained in the custody of the person to whom the warrant is directed, or otherwise, as the presiding Judge may order, until his presence, as such witness, is required, or, in the discretion of the said Judge, he may be released on a recognizance (with or without sureties) conditioned for his appearance to give evidence.

(2) The warrant may be according to Form No. 93, and may be executed in any part of Ontario. Con. Rule 363.

Taken from 44 V. c. 5, ss. 83, 84.

For Form No. 93, see H. & L. Forms, No. 708.

3. EVIDENCE AT TRIALS AND ON REFERENCES.

483. In the absence of an agreement between the parties, and subject to these Rules, the witnesses at the trial ^{Evidence on trial to be first made.} of an action or at an assessment of damages shall be examined viva voce and in open Court, but the Court or a Judge of the High Court may at any time, for sufficient reason, order that any particular fact or facts may be proved by affidavit, or that the affidavit of any witness may be read at the trial, on such conditions as may seem just, or that any witness whose attendance ought for some sufficient cause to be dispensed with, be examined before an examiner; but where the other party bond fide desires the production of a witness for cross-examination, and such witness can be produced, an order shall not be made authorizing his evidence to be given by affidavit. Con. Rules 364, 367.

The Eng. (1883) R. 483, provides for the examining by interrogatories, or otherwise, of a witness whose attendance is dispensed with. The Rules are otherwise the same. The use of affidavits at a trial Rule 483. was not permissible in the Common Law Courts; but in Chancery exhibits might formerly be proved at the hearing in that way.

Evidence at trials, etc.

The present Rule 483 consolidates former Con. Rules 564, and 567. In its language the new Rule follows former Con. Rule 564, which seems to have been considered to be wide enough to include what was provided by former Con. Rule 567. The latter Rule was taken from Chy. O. 176, and there were under that Chy. O. many decisions as to the matters which might, and might not, be proved by affidavit; see Dan. Pr., 5th ed., 777, 1236; Devey v. Thornton, 9 Hu. 233; Fowler v. Reynal, 15 Jur. 1019; Delevante v. Child, 6 Jur. N. S. 118; Rush v. Watkins, 14 Beav. 33; Hoghton v. Hoghton, 15 Beav. 278; Bear v. Smith, 5 D. & S. 92; Fallock v. Dillon, 2 W. R. 507; Bateman v. Margerison, 2 W. R. 607; Howard v. Chaffers, 11 W. R. 585; Evans v. Lewis, 2 L. T. 559; Fleming v. East, Kay, App. lit.; Macdonald v. Antelme, W. N. 1884, 72.

Affidavits as to trustees' conduct, between judgment and further directions, may be read by the original plaintiff on the question of costs; but not affidavits as to their conduct before judgment; but it would seem that persons added as defendants in the Master's office, or who are served with the judgment under Rule 265 (3), may read affidavits as to the trustees' conduct before, or after judgment, on the question of costs: Re Revill, 55 L. T. 542.

In an administration action, the Court may, under this Rule, if it thinks fit, receive fresh affidavit evidence on further consideration: May v. Newton, 34 Ch. D. 347; see, however, Howey v. Raaf, 6 P. R. 89, as to the usual material which may be used on further directions.

Certain facts are expressly authenticated to be proved by affidavits: e.g., service of notice to produce documents; see Rule 487; the absence from Ontario of a witness or party whose evidence has been taken by commission; see Rule 512.

The Court has no power on a motion for judgment by default of pleading to receive evidence by affidavit to prove the allegations of the statement of claim against infants, or parties non compotes mentis, or in any other case, except where Rule 416 is applicable; see Ellis v. Robbins, 50 L. T. 512; 17 C. L. J. 342; and Re Fitzwater, 52 L. J. Chy. 83.

The Judge should, in every case of fairly contested or disputed facts coming on to be tried, take the evidence orally unless some good reason to the contrary is shown: Atty.-Gen. v. Metropolitan District Ry. Co., 5 Ex. D. 218; see also Nagle-Gillman v. Christopher, 4 Ch. D. 173; Blackburn v. Brooks, 7 Ch. D. 68; Warner v. Monack, 16 Ch. D. 101.

In the absence of agreement, evidence must be taken viva voce at the trial, and affidavits used on a motion cannot be used at the hearing; Perkins v. Slater, 45 L. J. Chy. 224; but where an interlocutory motion had been ordered to stand over till the hearing, and a deponent had died in the meantime, the Court allowed his affidavit to be read at a trial, with evidence viva voce, although the deponent had not been cross-examined: Elias v. Griffith, 46 L. J. Chy. 806.

Where none of the parties cited had appeared in an action to prove a will in solemn form, Hannen, P., refused to allow the execution and attestation of the will to be proved by affidavit: Cook v. Tindleson, 24 W. R. 871. In Gornall v. Mason, 12 P. D. 142, an action for revocation of probate, an affidavit made by the witness eight years previously to obtain probate was allowed to be read as evidence in support of the will.

In Druitt v. Druitt, 58 L. T. 684, an affidavit used as a method in the cause, made by a witness who was unable to attend at the trial, was allowed to be put in as evidence. This was not allowed in Blackburn Union v. Brooks, 7 Ch. D. 68, where cross-examination of the witness was desired. Rules 484, 485.

The depositions of a defendant taken on his own behalf in shorthand upon a reference, were held to be admissible in evidence, notwithstanding that he had died before the examination was concluded and before cross-examination: Rawlall v. Atkinson, 30 Q. B. 212, 620.

The Judge, at any period in a case, may allow further evidence to be called by either party for his own satisfaction, though it be doubtful whether it would be admissible, on the request of either party, as of right: Bald v. Dawson, 20 W. R. 192.

At the trial the Judge may call and examine a witness not called by the parties: the right of the parties to cross-examine such a witness is in the discretion of the Judge, who should as a rule allow cross-examination by any party adversely affected by the answers of the witness, but not a general cross-examination: Coulson v. Duxborough, 1894, 2 Q. B. 316; 50 L. T. 617.

As to proof of registered instruments, see Barber v. McKay, 17 Ont. 592.

484. All witnesses in any matter pending before a Master, or Referee, shall give their testimony viva voce, before the Master or Referee, unless it is otherwise ordered by the Master or Referee, or by the Court or a Judge, on special grounds, or unless with the consent of the parties. Con. Rule 565. Exhibits before a Master or Referee

A subpoena may properly be issued to compel the attendance of a witness before a Master: Hummel v. McRae, 17 P. R. 567; 18 P. R. 185.

485.—(1) The Court or a Judge may, in any cause or matter where it appears necessary for the purpose of justice, make an order for the examination upon oath before an officer of the Court, or any other person and at any place, of any person, and may order any deposition so taken to be filed in the Court, and may empower any party to the cause or matter to give such deposition in evidence therein, on such terms as may seem just. Con. Rule 566. Depositions

(2) Such examination shall, unless otherwise ordered, be conducted in accordance with the practice upon examinations for discovery in so far as the same is applicable. Rules 23 June, 1894, 1344.

The first clause is the same as Eng. (1883) R. 487.

Rule 485

tion of Rule.

Scope of Rule.—This Rule applies only where there is pending litigation between contesting parties: Re Hewitt, 15 Q. B. D. 159, 161; and for the taking of evidence for the purposes of the trial, or upon a hearing upon a reference: Beaton v. Globe, 16 P. R. at pp. 285, 286; and for that purpose may be applied wherever a case of justice is made out: see Warner v. Mosses, 16 Ch. D. 100; Nadin v. Bassett, 25 Ch. D. 21. It cannot be used merely for the purpose of obtaining discovery: Beaton v. Globe, supra, and see infra.

It is not necessary to apply under this Rule for an order to examine witnesses on a reference after judgment; the former practice of subpoenaing without leave is not abolished: Raymond v. Tapson, 22 Ch. D. 430; Hannum v. McRae, 17 P. R. 507; 18 P. R. 185.

Order for examination of a witness in lieu of a commission.

In Lieu of a Commission.—In consequence of the provision of original J. A. Rule 289, requiring consent to enable the evidence under a commission to be taken viva voce, and of original J. A. Rule 290, staying the trial until the return of a commission, the examination of witnesses out of the jurisdiction orally, or without a stay, used sometimes to be ordered under this Rule. Though those reasons no longer exist, this Rule may still be invoked if necessary to obtain the evidence of a witness for use at the trial, without the issue of a commission, whether the witness be without, or within the jurisdiction, wherever it may be necessary and just: see notes to Rules 489, et seq.; see also Croft v. Middleton, 9 Ha. App. xviii.; London Bank of Mexico v. Hart, L. R. 6 Eq. 467; (where a form of order is given); Banque Franco-Egyptienne v. Lutschner, 41 L. T. 108; 28 W. R. 133.

Examination abroad under this Rule will be ordered upon the same principles and under the same circumstances as a commission would be ordered, as to which see Rule 489, and notes, and Delap v. Charbon, 15 P. R. 142.

There is a difference between a party seeking to have his own examination abroad and a mere witness. In both cases it is a matter of judicial discretion, but the discretion will be exercised in a stricter manner in the case of a party: Cock v. Allcock, 2 Q. B. D. 178, 181.

An order for examination of a plaintiff, otherwise than before the Court and jury, was considered not proper, where the issue was forgery of the plaintiff's name, or a personation of the plaintiff: Thomas v. Storey, 11 P. R. 417.

In applying under this Rule to examine witnesses before trial, it is not sufficient to shew that the examination will materially benefit the applicant, some special reason must be given why the witness should be examined, out of the regular course, and not at the trial for the first time: Hendrie v. Neelon, 19 C. L. J. 18; 2 C. L. T. 599.

bene esse.

Examination de bene esse.—Under this Rule orders may be made for examination of a witness de bene esse, for use at the trial, or on a reference in the Master's office: Re Dunsford, 9 P. R. 172.

Examination of a witness de bene esse is allowed where there is danger of losing testimony from death, or absence, at the time of the trial. An order will therefore be made where a necessary witness is going abroad, or is from illness, age, or other infirmity, likely to be unable to attend the trial: Warner v. Mosses, 16 Ch. D. 100; and generally speaking wherever justice requires it, though, as a rule, only where the evidence is to be used for some definite judicial proceeding pending: Whitehead v. Buffalo & L. R. Ry., 5 V. C. L. J. 232, where an order was made in contemplation of a reference to a Master not yet directed.

If the ground is that the witness is over 70 years, or dangerously ill, or going immediately abroad, the application may be made ex parte: Dan. Pr., 5th ed., 817; 6th ed., 655; Oliver v. Dickey, 2 Chy. Ch. 87; Crippen v. Ogilvey, Ib., 304; Bidder v. Bridges, 26 Ch. D. 1; Baker v. Jackson, 10 P. R. 624; Crammond v. Thompson, 11 Times, 572; but the Court in its discretion refused to apply this rule to the extraordinary case of thirty witnesses over 70 years, in Bidder v. Bridges, supra.

In other cases notice should be served: see Anderson v. Anderson, 1 Chy. Ch. 291; Spears v. Waddell, 7 P. R. 290; Hoey v. Gilbert, 12 P. R. 114.

If the only ground is that the witness is the only witness as to some fact this should be clearly shewn: Hope v. Hope, 3 Beav. 317; Jamieson v. Jones, 3 Chy. Ch. 98; but the order may provide that the examination is not to be used at the trial unless the attendance of the witness cannot be procured: Elliott v. C. P. Ry. Co., 12 P. R. 593.

That the witness is going abroad is a sufficient ground. He need not be going permanently, or be the only witness: Spears v. Waddell, 7 P. R. 290; and where witnesses residing out of Ontario come within the jurisdiction, and are about to return, an order for their examination here before their departure may be made: Delup v. Charlebois, 15 P. R. 142.

Such orders are discretionary, and if witnesses have been examined, will not be reversed unless plainly erroneous: Ib.; and see Beaton v. The Globe, 16 P. R. 281.

As to what must be shown at the trial before the deposition when taken can be used as evidence, see Dan. Pr., 6th ed., 654-7; 7th ed., 558-9, and Rule 486.

For form of order for examination de bene esse, see Seton, 5th ed., 89; and see Burton v. Staffordshire Ry. Co., 35 W. R. 536; 56 L. T. 601; Solicitor of the Treasury v. White, 55 L. J. Pro. 79; W. N. 1886, 144.

Any party to the action, whose interest may be affected by the examination of witnesses under this Rule, is entitled to have counsel present on such examination to protect his interests: Dominion Bank v. Bell, 13 P. R. 471.

Where evidence had been taken in shorthand of a party on his own behalf, and he had died before the examination was concluded, and before he could be cross-examined, the evidence was held to be admissible: Randall v. Atkinson, 30 Ont. 242, 620.

Costs.—In Carty v. London, 10 C. L. T. 3, the costs of an examination were allowed though the evidence was rejected at the trial as inadmissible; so also in Roudot v. Monetary Times, 18 P. R. 141, where it became unnecessary to use the depositions, in consequence of admissions made in evidence by the opposite party.

Cases in which Rule not Applicable.—By a series of decisions prior to 1894, this Rule was applied to authorize examinations for the purpose of discovery not only of parties, before the time for doing so in the ordinary course: Ficken v. Chamberlain, 9 P. R. 283; Boulton v. Blaker, 11 P. R. 106; Tate v. Globe, 11 P. R. 253; Hallis v. Newton, 7 C. L. T. 138; Orpen v. Kerr, 11 P. R. 128; Thomson v. Gue, 13 P. R. 273; Campbell v. Scott, 11 P. R. 203; Bruton v. Examination cannot be had for discovery.

Rule 436. Globe, 15 P. R. 473; but also of persons not parties: Turner v. Kyle, 18 C. L. J. 402; Hendrie v. Neelon, 2 C. L. T. 490; McNally v. McDonald, 9 C. L. T. 54; Boulton v. Blake, 11 P. R. 196; Murray v. Warner, 11 P. R. 440; Gordon v. Phillips, ib. 540; Carnegie v. Cox, ib. 311; Smith v. Clarke, 12 P. R. 217; McMaster v. Mason, 12 P. R. 278; Brown v. Pears, 12 P. R. 396; see also Carnegie v. Federal Bank, 10 P. R. 69; Rosenheim v. Silliman, 11 P. R. 7; Hooy v. Gilbert, 12 P. R. 114; Henderson v. Blain, 14 P. R. 308. All the decisions countenancing such examinations were disapproved of and overruled by the Court of Appeal, in Beaton v. Globe Printing Co., 16 P. R. 281, in which it was held that this Rule does not apply to examinations for discovery. Ordinarily, such examinations must be had in the manner and at the times provided by Rules 439-477. There may be inherent jurisdiction in the Court or a Judge to make a special order for examination for discovery before the time for obtaining it in the ordinary way arrives, but there seems to be no express Rule on the subject: see note to Rule 442.

The Rule was formerly held to apply to the examination of a witness on a pending motion who has not made an affidavit: Mouughan v. Dobbin, 18 C. L. J. 180; 2 C. L. T. 260; and a witness from whom it is desired to obtain information, in order to serve a defendant with the writ: Seager v. Barber, 27 Aug., 1881, Mr. Dalton.

It would seem that either this Rule, or Rule 491, may be applied where it is desired to examine a witness upon a pending ex parte motion: see McMillan v. Wausborough, 10 P. R. 377, and notes to Rule 491.

Arbitration.—Scumble an arbitration pending before an arbitrator named under The Municipal Act, 3 Ed. vii. c. 19, s. 448, is not a "matter" within this Rule: Re Macpherson and Toronto, 16 P. R. 230.

Using Depositions in Another Action.—The Court has no power to make an order authorizing the use in a future action of evidence taken in a pending action: Erdman v. Walkerton, 14 P. R. 467.

The depositions of a deceased person taken as a witness in a former suit were allowed to be read, the parties being in effect the same, the adverse party having had the opportunity to cross-examine, and the two actions substantially involving the same questions: Erdman v. Walkerton, 22 Ont. 693; 20 Ont. App. 444; 23 S. C. R. 252.

As to using depositions taken in the same action, see Monro v. Toronto Ry. Co., 9 O. L. R. 299.

Copies of depositions certified by person taking the same admissible in evidence.

486. Where an examination of a party or witness has been taken before a Judge of the High Court, or of a County Court, or before another officer or person appointed to take the same, copies of such examinations and depositions certified under the hand of the Judge, officer or other person taking the same shall, without proof of his signature, be received and read in evidence, saving all just exceptions. Con. Rule 574.

Taken from 42 Viet. c. 15, s. 3.

487. Service of a notice to produce may be proved by an affidavit of the solicitor in the cause, or his clerk. Con. Rule 575. Rules 487-489.
Evidence of service of notice
to produce.

A simplified form of R. S. O. 1847, c. 50, s. 173, under which it was held that an affidavit was not admissible unless made in the manner mentioned in the section, Patterson v. Morrison, 17 U. C. Q. B. 130.

488. In actions for libel or slander, in which the defendant does not by his defence assert the truth of the statement complained of, he shall not be entitled on the trial to give evidence in chief, with a view to mitigation of damages, as to the circumstances under which the libel or slander was published, or as to the character of the plaintiff, without the leave of the Judge, unless seven days at least before the trial he furnishes particulars in writing to the plaintiff of the matters as to which he intends to give evidence. Con. Rule 573. Libel or slander, particulars
of evidence in mitigation.

Same as Eng. (1883) R. 461.

No demand for these particulars is necessary. They must be furnished as a condition precedent to giving of evidence of the matters mentioned.

Notwithstanding this Rule the facts relied on in mitigation of damages in an action for libel or slander must be set out in the defence: Beaton v. Intelligencer P. Co., 22 Ont. App. 97; Vanayele v. Parish, 1 O. L. R. 13; McKenzie v. McLaughlin, 38 C. L. J. 131; but see Fulford v. Wallace, 1 O. L. R. 278.

Where the defence does assert the truth of the statement complained of, it has been held that evidence as to the plaintiff's character with a view to mitigation of damages, is not admissible unless the facts relied on are pleaded: Scott v. Sampson, 8 Q. B. D. 491, so that the effect of the Rule and this decision is that whether the truth of the alleged libel or slander be pleaded or not, the evidence referred to in this Rule cannot be given, unless the particulars are furnished as therein mentioned.

3. EVIDENCE ON MOTIONS.

489. Evidence upon a motion or petition may be given by affidavit. Con. Rule 576. Evidence on motion or petition.

An applicant who has failed to make out his case on his own affidavits, may read the affidavits of his opponent if they supply what is lacking: Re Margetson, 1897, 2 Ch. 314; 76 L. T. 805, and see notes to Rule 524.

It was held that a Judge could not, on an interlocutory motion, properly decide the matter in controversy by a personal inspection of the subject matter in dispute, in lieu of taking evidence orally, or by affidavit: London General Omnibus Co. v. Lavell, 1901, 1 Ch. 137; 83 L. T. 453. See notes to Rule 572.

Rule 490. It has been held in England, that affidavits in reply may bring forward additional evidence in support of the original case, and are not restricted by this Rule, to the points raised by the defendant's evidence: Peacock v. Harper, 7 Ch. D. 648; see also Adair v. Young, W. N. 1879, 8; Roe v. Davies, 2 Ch. D. 731; but see Re Ferris & Eyre, 18 Ont. 397, and Gilbert v. Comedy Opera Co., infra.

Affidavits filed by a plaintiff in reply will not, upon an interlocutory motion, be ordered to be taken off the files, upon an allegation by the defendant that they are not confined to matters strictly in reply, though at the argument, if it should turn out to be so, the Court will not regard them, or may give leave to the defendant to answer them: Gilbert v. Comedy Opera Company, 29 W. R. 169; 43 L. T. 665.

Cross-examination on affidavit.

490. A person who has made an affidavit to be used in any action or proceeding, other than on production of documents, may be cross-examined thereon. Rules 23 June, 1894. 1345.

Based upon Chy. O. 268.

As to the excepted case of an affidavit on production, see note to Rule 467, p. 693. A party cannot be cross-examined on an affidavit on production in support of a motion for a better affidavit on production: Dryden v. Smith, 17 P. R. 500.

The affidavit of justification of a surety in an appeal bond filed, was held to be an affidavit used in a proceeding within Chy. O. 268: Hughes v. Hughes, 17 C. L. J. 110; 1 C. L. T. 189.

When the proceeding for which the affidavit has been filed has been disposed of, the right of cross-examination is gone: Catholic Printing Co. v. Wiman, 11 W. R. 399; Felan v. McGill, 3 Chy. Ch. 56; Clendinning v. Tarcoe, 7 P. R. 61.

Deponents making affidavits in reply, are liable to cross-examination: Re Foster, 6 P. R. 95; 9 C. L. J. 313.

As to the extent to which the affiant may be cross-examined, see Wilson v. Fleming, 19 P. R. 203.

The opposite party may cross-examine witnesses who have made affidavits though they are not read: Re Ottaway, W. N. 1882, 9; 30 W. R. 282; Re Quartz Hill, etc., Co., 21 Ch. D. 642; but see Massam v. Thorley's Food Co., W. N. 1879, 181.

A party cannot withdraw an affidavit which he has given notice of reading, so as to avoid a cross-examination of the deponent: Clarke v. Law, 2 K. & J. 28; Pike v. Dickinson, 21 W. R. 862; W. N. 1873, 178; Re Quartz Mining Co., 47 L. T. 644; 21 Ch. D. 642. The party cross-examined cannot insist on the passage in his affidavit being read, or shown, to him, before he answers: Gwynne v. Watney, 31 L. T. O. S. 231.

Cross-examination on affidavits filed in answer to a motion not properly made may be refused: Canadian Bank of Commerce v. Bricker, 1 C. L. T. 729.

As to the mode of compelling attendance for cross-examination, see Rule 492.

The right to re-examine necessarily follows upon cross-examination: Rex v. Noel, 6 O. L. R. 385; even as to matter elicited during cross-examination, which is inadmissible or volunteered, unless the cross-examiner submits to such matter being expunged.

This Rule does not apply where an affidavit has been made in pro-^{Rules}ceeding before a Master; in such case the cross-examination, if any, ^{491, 492.} must be by the direction of the Master, and before him; Plenderleith v. Parsons, 6 O. W. R. 145; or as he may direct: see Rule 168.

491. A party to any action or proceeding may require the attendance of a witness to be examined, before any officer having jurisdiction in the County where the witness resides, for the purpose of using his evidence upon any motion, petition, or other proceeding before the Court, or any Judge or judicial officer in Chambers. Con. Rule 578.

Based upon Chy. O. 266.

A motion must be pending to enable a party to proceed under this Motion Rule: Traders' Bank v. Kean, 13 P. R. 60. Depositions taken when must be no motion or other proceeding is pending, are irregular and cannot pending. be read: Stovel v. Cole, 3 Chy. Ch. 362.

An ex parte motion is a "motion . . . before the Court" within the Rule: Dunlop v. Dunlop, 9 O. L. R. 372.

Where the evidence of a person who refuses to make an affidavit subpoena, is sought in support of an ex parte motion, the motion must be date of. mentioned, and an adjournment obtained for the purpose of procuring the desired evidence under this Rule; or else an order for the examination of the witness must be obtained under Rule 485.

A subpoena for the examination of a witness, dated prior to the time at which the party issuing the same was entitled to examine the witness, was held . . . irregular: McMurray v. Grand Trunk Ry. Co., 3 Chy. Ch. 130.

A party as well as a stranger may be examined as a witness under this Rule, and the consequence of default in attendance is to put him in contempt: Clark v. Campbell, 15 P. R. 338; and where the evidence of the party in default is required in support of a motion to set aside, or vary, an order obtained by such party, the operation of such order may in the meantime be suspended: Ib.

Evidence may be taken under this Rule in support of a motion for a new trial: Rushton v. G. T. Ry. Co., 6 O. L. R. 425.

The Rule does not apply to criminal proceedings, e.g., motions to quash convictions: Reg. v. Haywood, 32 C. L. J. 30; or to a summary proceeding under R. S. O. 1897, c. 147, s. 8 (1), to remove an assignee, which is not a proceeding in an action: Re Wilson, 6 O. L. R. 564.

The witness, though not a party to the action, may move to set aside the subpoena and appointment served on him: Dunlop v. Dunlop, 5 O. W. R. 258, 305; and see London & Globe v. Kaufman, 48 W. R. 458; 1899, W. N. 240.

492. The person to be examined under Rules 490 and 491 may be required to attend in the same manner as, and his examination shall be subject to the same rules as apply to the examination of, a party for discovery. Con. Rules 578 (a); Rules 23 June, 1894, 1345.

Rule 493. The subpoena must be served personally, otherwise an attachment for non-attendance cannot be obtained: Barber v. Adams, 16 P. R. 156.

Witness fees to be paid.

As to the mode of service of the person to be examined in order to compel his attendance, see Rule 443 and notes.

A witness, whether a party, or a stranger to the cause, who is required to attend for examination, is entitled to be paid ordinary witness fees, and may refuse to attend, or, if attending, may refuse to be sworn, until paid: Rules 443, 492; Brocas v. Lloyd, 23 Beav. 129; Wiltshire v. Marshall, W. N. 1866, 80; Davey v. Durrant, 24 Beav. 493; and see Robins v. Carson, 2 Chy. Ch. 343; Bolkow v. Foster, 7 P. R. 388; Smith v. Greay, 11 P. R. 345.

Examination of party out of jurisdiction.

Where the witness, or party, required to be examined in support of a motion is out of the jurisdiction, an order for a commission may be obtained as soon as the notice of motion is served: Farrell v. Cruickshank, 1 Chy. Ch. 12; or if a resident in Quebec a subpoena may be ordered to issue under C. S. C. c. 70, s. 4 (see R. S. O. p. 876); Hoffatt v. Prentice, 6 P. R. 33; McKerchie v. Montgomery, 1 Chy. Ch. 225.

Default of witness, how punished.

Default of Witness.—The certificate of default should show that the witness had been duly subpoenaed; a statement in the certificate, that evidence of the service had been produced, is insufficient: Waddle v. McGinty, 2 Chy. Ch. 442; and see Sutherland v. Rogers, Ib. 191; and Barber v. Adams, supra.

A witness failing to attend is liable to be committed for default. A witness who attends, but refuses to answer proper questions, may, on motion, be ordered to attend again and submit to answer the questions at his own expense, or in default be committed: see Hannum v. McKee, per Moss, J.A., 18 P. R. at p. 200.

A motion to commit a witness for refusing to answer questions is a civil process, and not a criminal proceeding. The privilege of Parliament may therefore be claimed by the witness: Re Armstrong, 1892, 1 Q. B. 327.

A motion to commit must be made before a Judge: Keefe v. Ward, 18 C. L. J. 166; 2 C. L. T. 260.

A witness attending for examination, is not bound to wait more than half an hour, unless notified that his examination is to be proceeded with: Perks v. Stottart, 1 N. R. 563; but see Campbell v. Scott, supra, p. 660.

See Clark v. Campbell, in note to Rule 491.

493. For the purposes of a motion, the Court or Judge may, upon such terms as may seem just, order documents to be produced and witnesses to appear and be examined viva voce before such Court or Judge, or before a Judge of any County Court, or before any other person and at any place. Con. Rules 579, 580.

Production can only be ordered for the purposes of a pending motion, and the Court has no power under this Rule to order a person, not a party to the action, to produce documents in his possession merely for the purpose of enabling a party to the action to inspect the same before trial: see Straker v. Reynolds, 22 Q. B. D. Rules 262; 60 L. T. 107; Central News Co. v. Eastern News Telegraph Co., 494-497. 53 L. J. Q. B. 236; Elder v. Carter, 25 Q. B. D. 194.

A person called on to produce documents under this Rule is entitled to take the same objection to produce them as he would on being served with a subpoena duces tecum: Re Smith, 1891, 1 Ch. 323; 64 L. T. 253.

A witness who objects to produce a document is not entitled to be heard by counsel: Doc d. Rowcliffe v. Egremont, 2 Moo. & Rob. 386; Carson v. Davidge, 34 C. L. J. 429.

Where a number of documents are produced by a witness who is not a party, the proper course is to obtain an adjournment to ascertain which of them are material. They should not be put in en bloc, and the witness questioned as to them seriatim: Re Martin Sands, 71 L. T. 56, 594.

494. Such examination shall, unless otherwise ordered, be conducted in accordance with the practice upon examinations for discovery, as far as the same is applicable. New.

The examination referred to in this Rule would appear to be that authorized by Rule 493. As to examinations for discovery, see note to Rule 439, supra, pp. 647-652.

495. The Court or a Judge may order the sheriff, gaoler, or other officer having the custody of any prisoner, to produce him for any examination authorized by these Rules. How prisoners may be brought to give evidence. Con. Rule 582.

See note to Rule 478.

496. Wherever a party wishes to produce to the Court or a Judge, the writ, or any pleading or other proceeding filed in any office of the Court, he may demand and on payment of the lawful fees receive from the officer in whose custody the writ, pleading or other proceeding is, a copy of the same certified by the officer to be a true copy of the original, and such copy shall be admissible in evidence to the same extent as the original would be admissible. Con. Rule 583. Certified copies of proceedings may be obtained from the office where filed.

Seem this Rule does not apply to criminal proceedings or records: see Hewitt v. Canc. 26 Ont. 133; but see R. S. O. c. 324, s. 11; Rea v. Scully, 4 O. L. R. 394.

The transmission of the original documents is provided for in certain cases, by Rules 337-341, supra.

497. Where money is directed to be paid into a Bank, the certificate of the cashier, manager, agent, or like Bank officer of the Bank, at the place where the money is made pay- Default in payment, how to be proved.

Rule 498. able; of default in making such payment, shall be sufficient evidence of such default. Con. Rule 584.

Taken from Chy. O. 257.

Certificate of non-payment, how to be signed.

The certificate should be signed by the cashier, manager, or agent, or like officer. The certificate of an accountant in the bank is not sufficient: Campbell v. Garrett, 1 Chy. Ch. 255. A certificate of default, according to the present practice, should state that the money was not paid on the date of the taking of the account or since; see formerly: Farrell v. Stokes, 1 Chy. Ch. 201. The certificate does not prove itself, but must be verified by an affidavit.

The affidavit of the plaintiff of non-payment is usually required on the motion for a final order for sale or foreclosure, in addition to the certificate of the bank: see Rule 385 note.

given to receive further evidence in all appeals, etc.

498.—(1) In all appeals, either to the Court of Appeal or to the High Court or a Judge, or hearings in the nature of appeals, and on all motions to set aside a verdict or finding of a jury, and to set aside or vary a judgment, the Court or Judge appealed to shall have all the powers and duties as to amendment and otherwise of the Court, Judge or officer appealed from, and full discretionary power to receive further evidence upon questions of fact; such evidence to be either by oral examination before the Court or Judge appealed to, or as may be directed.

See Murray v. C.C.R.
7 AR 268

Semble, that this Rule does not apply to newly discovered evidence after the trial: Bank of B. N. A. v. Western Assurance Co., 11 P. R. 434. It is confined to cases where the evidence is sought to be introduced for the purposes of the appeal: Ducker Watch Case Mfg. Co. v. Taggart, 19 P. R. 233; but the Court may entertain an application to admit new evidence on, and for the purposes of, a County Court appeal, notwithstanding R. S. O. 1897, c. 55, s. 51 (3); and this although the time for applying for a new trial has expired: Butler v. Mellicken, 32 Ont. 422.

New evidence was admitted, in Leach v. G. T. Ry., 13 P. R. 467; Burfoot v. DuMoulin, 21 Ont. 583; Dean v. Ont. Cotton Mills, 14 Ont. 119; Dolen v. Metropolitan L. A. Co., 26 Ont. 67; Warren v. Van Norman, 29 Ont. 84, 508; see also notes to Rule 549.

(2) Such further evidence may be given without special leave (a) as to matters which have occurred after the date of the judgment or order or decision from which the appeal is brought.

(a) The former Con. Rule 585 had here "upon interlocutory applications or in any case." The effect of the omission of these words is that interlocutory appeals will stand in the same position as other appeals, and further evidence will only be admitted by leave, except as to the matters mentioned in this clause.

It would seem that a special motion for leave is not necessary, except in the cases mentioned in clause (3). In other cases leave may be obtained on the argument of the appeal. It will in general Rule 499. be advisable however to notify the opposite party of the intention to ask leave to give the further evidence.

See Sanders v. Sanders, 45 L. T. 637; 51 L. J. Chy. 276; 18 C. L. J. 236; Re Compton, Norton v. Compton, 27 Ch. D. 302; Robinson v. Bradshaw, 32 W. R. 95; Leach v. G. T. Ry., supra; Wood v. Reesor, 22 Ont. App. 57.

(3) Upon appeals from a judgment order or decision given upon the merits at the trial or hearing of any cause or matter, such further evidence (save as aforesaid) shall be admitted on special grounds only, and not without the special leave of the Court. Con. Rule 585.

Taken from 41 Vict. c. 8, s. 7; R. S. O. 1877, c. 38, s. 22.

See also notes to Rule 767, and Re Rouse, 59 L. T. 887.

The Supreme Court of Canada does not allow fresh evidence to be used on an appeal: Montreal v. Hogan, 31 S. C. R. 1.

For remarks as to the caution to be observed in giving leave to adduce further evidence in appellate Courts, see Merchants Bank v. Lucas, 12 P. R. 526; Arison v. Smith, 41 Ch. D. 98; and Shoe Machinery Co. v. Cutlan, 1896, 1 Ch. 108; and the remarks of Cotton, L.J., against allowing fresh evidence to meet defects in the case seen after trial; Re Leonard & Ellis Trade Mark, 26 Ch. D. 289. Where evidence is allowed to be adduced, the opposite party has the right to cross-examine thereon: Spencer v. Ancoats F. R. Co., 84 L. T. Jour. 440.

Leave to adduce further evidence on an appeal, with a view to the reduction of damages or a new trial, was refused, where the Court appealed from had reduced the damages if the plaintiff would consent (which he had done), but the defendants were still dissatisfied: Fraser v. London Street Ry. Co., 18 P. R. 370; but semble, where the Court finds the damages excessive it must order a new trial, it cannot reduce the damages except by consent of both parties: Watt v. Watt, 1905, A. C. 115.

Where an assignment of a policy was lost, but it was doubtful whether sufficient evidence of the loss had been given to warrant the admission of secondary evidence, at the trial, further evidence by affidavit was allowed by the Divisional Court to be given on a motion against the judgment: Dolen v. Metropolitan Life Ins. Co., 26 Ont. 67; and see Warren v. Van Norman, 29 Ont. 508.

Pending an appeal to the Supreme Court the appellant applied for leave to give evidence that a copy of a document put in as an exhibit was not a true copy, but it not appearing that such evidence would necessarily affect the judgment of the Court, the application was refused: Deuber Watch Co. v. McTaggart, 19 P. R. 233; and see Buck v. Birch, 1902, P. 130.

4. COMMISSIONS.

499.—(1) Where the testimony of a person who is residing without the limits of Ontario is required, the Court or a Judge may order the issue of a commission for the examination of such person. Con. Rules 586, 588.

Persons out of Ontario.

Rule 499.

(2) Where the commission appears to be necessary in proceedings before a Master, [or Referee] it may be issued on the order of the Master [or Referee]. Con. Rule 590.

The words in brackets are new, embodying the decision in Brooks v. Georgian Bay, etc., Co., 16 P. R. 511.

The Rules consolidated in this Rule were taken from R. S. O. 1877, c. 62, ss. 10, 21.

Those Rules provided separately for the cases of "an opposite party resident out of Ontario," and "any aged or infirm persons resident within Ontario, or of any person who is about to withdraw therefrom, or who is residing without the limits thereof."

The present Rule provides for the issue of a commission only in the case of a "person who is residing without the limits of Ontario," which will include any party, as well as a stranger to the action.

In the case of the examination de bene esse of aged or infirm persons resident within Ontario, or of persons about to withdraw therefrom, Rule 485 will now be applicable. Under it an order will be all that is necessary, without the issue of any commission.

The former Con. Rule 586 provided that the commission should be issued "in case the Court or Judge is satisfied that such commission is applied for in good faith and not for purposes of delay." These words have doubtless been omitted as unnecessary and the Court or Judge will still require to be satisfied, as formerly, of the propriety of granting the order: see Berdan v. Greenwood, 20 Ch. D. 764 n; 46 L. T. 524; Re Boyse, Ib.; Langen v. Tate, 24 Ch. D. 528.

Discretion.

Discretion of Court as to Granting Commissions to take Evidence.—There is no hard and fast rule as to granting or refusing a foreign commission. It is not granted as of course: Price v. Bailey, 6 P. R. 256; Virian v. Mitchell, 13 C. L. J. 198; Berdan v. Greenwood; Re Boyse, Crofton v. Crofton, supra; Coch v. Allcock, 21 Q. B. D. 1, 178 (overruling Kemp v. Tennant, 2 Times, 3041). It is a matter of judicial discretion: Mills v. Mills, 12 P. R. 473; Coch v. Allcock, 21 Q. B. D. 1, 178; see also Re Imperial Land Co. of Marselles, W. N. 1877, 236; 37 L. T. 588; Kidd v. Perry, 14 P. R. 364; an order was refused where it would cause delay, and the applicant had been dilatory in trying to obtain it: Stewart v. Gladstone, 7 Ch. D. 394; Temperance Colonization Socy. v. Evans, 7 C. L. T. 46. So, where the Court was not satisfied on the materials adduced, that the evidence was material: Langen v. Tate, 24 Ch. D. 522; Smith v. Greay, 10 P. R. 531; Morrow v. McDougald, 10 P. R. 129; Toronto Industrial Exhibition etc., v. Houston, 5 O. W. R. 303; and where there was another action pending in the foreign country for the same cause: Mair v. Anderson, 11 U. C. Q. B. 160; and it was refused in a case where the evidence sought, though material, would be only corroborative: Ehrmann v. Ehrmann, 1896, 2 Ch. 611.

In Grant v. Banque Franco-Egyptienne, referred to in 27 W. R. p. 226, Brett, L.J., said: "I apprehend that the granting of a commission is a matter of discretion, and that the grounds upon which a commission is granted or refused is always a matter of comparison, namely, whether it is more convenient that the commission should go, than that witnesses should be examined before the tribunal here, and the exercise of that discretion depends upon the circumstances of each particular case." See the remarks of the same Judge in Coch v. Allcock, 21 Q. B. D. 181; see also Robins v. The Empire, 14 P. R. 488.

The order may be reconsidered on appeal where circumstances ^{Rule 499} render it just to do so: Emanuel v. Soltykoff, 8 Times, 331, but the discretion of the Court or Judge will not readily be interfered with: Butterfield v. Financial News, 5 Times, 279; Hunt v. Roberts, 9 Times, 92.

In Re Boyse, Crofton v. Crofton, 20 Ch. D. 760, it was held that upon an application for a commission to take evidence abroad, the Court ought to be satisfied that the application is made bona fide. Where the Court thought the witness should be subjected to a strict cross-examination on part of a claim in which he was interested, and the French practice was to have the examination take place through the Judge only, a commission was refused: see also Berdan v. Greenwood, 40 L. T. 524; 20 Ch. D. 764 (note), where the case turned on the fact that the person to be examined was the plaintiff himself, and the Court was not satisfied that he could not attend so as to be cross-examined virâ voce, but on the contrary, was keeping out of the way: see Langen v. Tate, 21 Ch. D. 522; Spiller v. Paris Skating Rink Co., W. N. 1878, 228; 27 W. R. 225; Grant v. Banque Franco-Egyptienne, supra; Kidd v. Perry, 11 P. R. 361, and Thomas v. Storey, and Lawsen v. Vacuum Brake Co., 27 Ch. D. 137, as explained in Coch v. Allcock, 21 Q. B. D. 1, 178.

In the absence of special circumstances making it desirable that the plaintiff should face the Court or jury in person, there is no reason why his evidence should not be taken by commission where he is residing abroad: Armour v. Walker, 25 Ch. D. 673; Banque Franco-Egyptienne v. Lutschner, 28 W. R. 133; 41 L. T. 468; W. N. 1879, 183; Coch v. Allcock, 21 Q. B. D. 1, 178; see Price v. Bailey, 6 P. R. 256.

Where, however, the person to be examined abroad is the party ^{Commission} himself who asks for the commission, the Court will be more circumspect as to making an order than in the case of an ordinary ^{for examination of the party moving} witness: Mills v. Mills, 12 P. R. 173; Light v. Anticosti, 58 L. T. 25; Price v. Bailey, 6 P. R. 256; Kidd v. Perry, supra.

A plaintiff's application to take his own evidence by commission in an action for libel, was refused, it being considered that the plaintiff's evidence ought to be given before the jury, the main question being one of damages depending upon the plaintiff's testimony: Kley v. Wakley, 9 Times, 571.

There is however a difference between the case of a foreign plaintiff and a foreign defendant asking to be examined on commission in his own country, the Court will not regard a defendant's case with the same strictness as the case of a plaintiff who has chosen his own forum: Ross v. Woodford, 1894, 1 Ch. 38; 70 L. T. 22; Hortmont v. Daly, 12 Times, 170; Emanuel v. Soltykoff, 8 Times, 331. Prima facie a defendant resident abroad is entitled to the commission: New v. Burns, 43 W. R. 182; 71 L. T. 681; 11 Times, 53, but a defendant's application was refused where the matters in question were complicated accounts arising out of transactions between plaintiff and defendant, when both were residing in Ontario, and the expense of executing a commission would exceed the costs of a defendant's coming from England, and his only reason for not coming was engagements in England, and want of time and money: Porter v. Boulton, 15 P. R. 318.

The plaintiff, where there was a counter-claim, was viewed as a defendant so far as the counter-claim was concerned, and a commission to take his evidence on the counter-claim was granted: Levi v. Edwards, 5 O. W. R. 83.

Rule 499. A commission to examine as a witness a person who has absconded from the Province, will not be refused on the ground that he is alleged not to be a credible witness, and that his cross-examination in open Court is desired: Nordheimer v. McKillop, 10 P. R. 216. The proper course in order to impeach his veracity is to call witnesses at the trial for that purpose: Id.

Evidence of a witness whose credibility is impeached

The fact that the witness was a co-defendant with the party applying was considered no obstacle to the granting of a commission: Wilson v. McDonald, 13 P. R. 6.

Expert
evidence

In The M. Mosham, 1 P. D. 115, a commission to take evidence in Spain as to the law of Spain, was refused, as it was not shown that competent Spanish advocates could not attend the trial without difficulty, and in the opinion of the Judge it would, under the circumstances, be more satisfactory to have the witnesses examined in Court. See also Russell v. G. W. R. Co., 3 U. C. L. J. 116, and Atty.-Gen. v. Gooderham, 10 P. R. 259, where the object was merely to obtain scientific, or expert testimony: but see The Edison Co. v. Hough, 98 L. T. Jour. 374.

When motion to be made.

Motion.—A motion for a commission is usually to be made after issue joined: Smith v. Greay, 10 P. R. 531; but it is not essential that the action be technically at issue. The motion may be made whenever it can be shown that some issue is raised on the pleadings which must be tried in the action: Smith v. Greay, 11 P. R. 38.

The form of order is given in the App. No. 120, and the form of a commission, No. 94. See II. & L. Forms, Nos. 737, and 739.

thereon.

Evidence on Motion.—In case of an application for a commission, before issue joined, the nature of the evidence expected from the witness must be shewn, that the Court may see whether it is likely to be material and necessary: Morrow v. McDougald, 16 P. R. 129, explaining Smith v. Greay, 10 P. R. 531.

The affidavit on which the application is based, even after issue joined, should state that the witnesses proposed to be examined are material and necessary: Kidd v. Perry, 14 P. R. 364. An affidavit of the plaintiff stating that the witnesses to be examined were necessary for the plaintiff on the trial, and that he was advised and verily believed that he could not safely proceed to trial without their evidence, was held to be prima facie sufficient: Robins v. Empire Printing Co., 14 P. R. 488.

The personal affidavit of the party applying may not be essential in support of the motion for a commission, but cogent reasons must be given, by some one who can speak with knowledge, why an applicant who seeks to have his own evidence taken in that way cannot attend in person: Kidd v. Perry, 14 P. R. 364.

Under the English practice it is a recognized though not an absolutely rigid rule, to give in the affidavit the name of at least one of the witnesses proposed to be examined, and the excuse for not doing so, that the witness might be spirited away, was held untenable: Howard v. Dulun & Co., 11 Times, 451.

Where defendants contended that the evidence expected from the witnesses was unnecessary by reason of implied admissions in the pleadings, it was held that it was for the defendants to make the evidence unquestionably unnecessary either by amending their pleadings so as to expressly make the admission, or by undertaking to do so at the trial: Robins v. Empire, supra.

In Ehrmann v. Ehrmann, 1890, 2 Ch. 411, it was said that a commission or letters of request for the examination of a witness abroad ought not to be issued, unless the evidence which it is proposed to obtain is evidence directly material to an issue in the cause, and not merely evidence which may be incidentally useful in corroboration of other evidence.

Where the application is to examine a witness who is travelling, it should be shown that he will remain at the place to which the commission is directed, a sufficient time to allow of its due execution: Singer v. Williams Manufacturing Co., 8 P. R. 181.

Order.—A commission issues only pursuant to the order. Where, therefore, an order provided for examination of one witness M., voir dire, and others upon interrogatories, it was held that the commission could not issue to examine M. only, without amending the order: Smith v. Babcock, 8 P. R. 175.

An objection to a witness affirming instead of taking an oath, on a commission, ought to be taken at the time of his appearing before the commissioner: Rickards v. Hough, 30 W. R. 670; 51 L. J. Q. B. 391.

In the discretion of the Court or Judge, terms may be imposed on granting an order for a commission, e.g., that the plaintiff give security for defendant's costs of the execution of the commission, and undertake to speed the proceedings and not delay the trial: Rokins v. Engrave, 14 P. R. 188; Coleman v. Bank of Montreal, 16 P. R. 150; Sheppard v. Dalby, 80 L. T. Jour. 29; 30 Sol. Jour. 16; that no greater costs be taxable than if the witness had been subpoenaed within the jurisdiction: Watt v. Mackay, 5 O. W. R. 463, 170; or that the expense of the commission be borne by the applicant, and that the examination be upon interrogatories: Toronto Industrial, etc., v. Houston, 5 O. W. R. 349.

Terms as to reading the depositions at the trial were imposed, where the plaintiff applied to examine himself by commission: Nadin v. Bassett, 25 Ch. D. 21.

Commissions may provide for the examination of unnamed persons at a particular place: Nadin v. Bassett, 25 Ch. D. 21; Arnoux v. Walker, 25 Ch. D. 676.

Books and documents produced in an action may be sent out of the jurisdiction, for the purpose of examining witnesses on a foreign commission; but documents produced in another action which is sub judice will not be sent away: Clarke v. Union (Chabot's Case), 10 P. R. 413; Chaplin v. Puttick, in note to Rule 1000.

An order may be made that the subject matter of the action shall be sent out of the jurisdiction for the purpose of identification by the witnesses: Chaplin v. Puttick, 1898, 2 Q. B. 160; 78 L. T. 410; not approving of Leader v. Smythe, 8 Times, 612, in which the Court refused to order a brooch to be sent abroad for identification.

Where a witness previously examined by commission stated that he had further evidence to give, to explain or correct his former evidence, a re-examination was allowed under a new commission. The witness in such a case should be considered the witness of the party applying to re-examine him: Rogers v. Munning, 8 P. R. 2.

Letters Rogatory.—In aid of a commission, where the assistance of a foreign Court is necessary in order to compel the attendance of Rule 500. a party for examination for discovery, or of a witness before the commissioner, letters rogatory may be ordered to issue: see R. S. C. c. 140; and Re Kirchoffer v. Imperial Loan & Investment Co., 7 O. L. R. 295; and see Imp. Stat. 48 & 49 Vict. c. 74; in Doan. Stat. 1896; Ex p. Smith, 2 Cart. 330; Re Wetherell, 3 Cart. 315; R. S. O. c. 73, s. 52. Orders of this kind however are not granted unless absolutely necessary for the purposes of justice: Ehrmann v. Ehrmann, 1896, 2 Ch. 611; 75 L. T. 37.

As to taking evidence in Ontario for use in a foreign Court. see Re Wetherell, 4 Ont. 713, and statutes above referred to.

Interrogatories.—The applicant frames his interrogatories at the risk of the evidence taken being rejected in whole or in part: the Master in Chambers cannot consider or interfere with them on motion for that purpose: Toronto Industrial, etc., v. Houston, 5 O. W. R. 493. 9 O. L. R. 517

Return of Commission.—Where the time for the return of a commission was extended to a certain day, and on that day the witnesses were examined, it was held, that, having been executed within the time, the necessary delay occasioned by its transmission did not render it irregular: Darling v. Darling, 9 P. R. 560.

See Darling v. Darling, 8 P. R. 391, for irregularities which were held not to invalidate the proceedings under a commission.

Opening Commission.—See Rule 515.

Commissions on a Reference.—Clause (2) of Rule 499, is an extension of Chy. O. 221

The Master, or Referee, may direct witnesses to be examined before any other Master, or Examiner, of the Court, without the consent of the parties: Re Casey, Biddell v. Casey, 1 Chy. Ch. 198.

The Master, or Referee cannot grant an order for a commission ex parte. McLennan v. Helps, 3 Chy. Ch. 193; except where the reference is ex parte.

Where an application is made to the Master, or Referee, for a commission to cross-examine a plaintiff resident abroad, on an affidavit filed by him in support of his account, the Master, or Referee, cannot properly refuse it, so long as the plaintiff relies on the affidavit in support of his claim: Townend v. Hunter, 3 C. L. T. 310.

An order of a Master, or Referee, for a commission should, mutatis mutandis, follow, as nearly as may be, the form of order as given in the Appendix. See Form No. 120, H. & L. Forms, No. 737.

Costs.—As to the costs of commission, see Dominion, etc., v. Stinson, 9 P. R. 177; Rondot v. Monetary Times, 18 P. R. 141, in note to Rule 1175.

to attend.

500. If a party for whose examination a commission has so issued under Rule 499, refuses to attend before the Commissioner, a verdict or judgment may pass against him or he may be non-suited. Con. Rule 587.

Taken from R. S. O. 1877, c. 62, s. 20.

Rule 499 enables a commission to be issued by either party to take the evidence of himself or of the opposite party, or of a stranger: Rules 501-503.
Rule 500 is applicable where a party whose evidence is desired by his opponent does not attend for examination.

501. The notice of a motion for a commission to take evidence shall state the name and address of the commissioner proposed by the applicant; and if the opposite party desires to name a commissioner, he shall, on the return of the motion, give notice to the applicant of the name and address of such commissioner; and the order may direct the issue of the commission directed to the persons so named, or to such person as may seem proper. Con. Rules 591, 592. Notice of motion.

502. Unless otherwise directed by the order, the examination of witnesses shall be upon oral questions, and notice of the execution of the commission shall be given to the opposite party, if, before the expiry of the time limited for mailing the commission or within such time as may be provided by the order, he gives the name and the address of a person resident within two miles of the place where the commission is to be executed, on whom such notice may be served. Con. Rules 593, 596. Particulars to be stated in order.

Under original J. A. Rule 289, there was no jurisdiction to order the examination to be wholly oral unless all parties consented. That Rule was amended so as to enable the order to provide whatever might be proper on the subject. Under the present Rule, prima facie, the examination is to be wholly oral, but the order may still provide otherwise as may be just; see under the old practice, Watson v. McDonald, 8 P. R. 354; Taylor Ev. 451.

503. Where the examination is to take place upon written interrogatories, the interrogatories in chief shall be delivered to the opposite party (unless otherwise ordered) at least 8 days before the issue of the commission; and the cross-interrogatories shall be delivered to the opposite party (unless otherwise ordered) within 4 days after the receipt of the interrogatories in chief; and in default of cross-interrogatories being so delivered, the opposite party may send the commission without cross-interrogatories. Con. Rule 595. Examination on written interrogatories.

The rules of evidence as to leading questions at a trial cannot be strictly applied to interrogatories administered under a foreign commission in the Master's office: Lockwood v. Bew, 10 P. R. 655.

It is not proper to apply to strike out interrogatories for impertinence, the proper course is for the witness to demur to the impertinent questions: Williams v. Carby, 8 P. R. 83; see Lockwood v. Bew, 10 P. R. 655, and Sirahy v. Dorey, 55 L. J. Chy. 621.

504-510.

Notice of execution of commission.

504. Where notice of the execution of the commission is required to be served, 48 hours' notice shall be sufficient; such notice shall be in writing, stating the time and place of the intended examination, and shall be addressed to the person named for that purpose before the expiry of the time limited for mailing the commission or as provided in the order; and service upon him, or upon a grown up person, at the address given shall be sufficient. If the name or address given proves to be illusory or fictitious, or if the party so notified fails to attend, pursuant to the notice, the commission may be executed ex parte. Con. Rules 589, 596, 597. Rules 29 Dec., 1894. 1388.

witness.

505. The witnesses shall be examined on oath, affirmation, or otherwise in accordance with their religion, by or before the commissioner. Con. Rule 599.

Mode of examination.

506. The oral questions and answers shall be reduced into writing and returned with the commission. Con. Rule 594.

Interpreter

507. Where a witness does not understand the English language the commission shall be executed with the aid of an interpreter nominated by the commission, and sworn by or before him to interpret truly the questions to be put to the witness, and his answers thereto, and the examination shall be taken in English. See Con. Rule 600.

Copies as evidence.

508. If a witness produces a book, document, letter, paper or writing, and refuses for good cause, to be stated in his deposition, to part with the original, then a copy or extract, certified by the commissioners to be a true and correct copy or extract, shall be annexed to the deposition of the witness. Con. Rule 598.

Depositions may be taken in shorthand.

509. The depositions may be taken in shorthand if so provided by the order or the parties so agree. (New.)

By commissioner or sworn shorthand writer.

510. If the examination is to be taken in shorthand, the commissioner may take the same in shorthand or employ a shorthand writer, to be duly sworn. Rules 23 June, 1894. 1346, part.

511.—(1) Unless the examination is taken in shorthand, the depositions shall be subscribed by the witness and by the commissioner.

Rules
511-513.

Depositions, how to be signed.

(2) Where taken in shorthand it shall not be necessary that the depositions be read over or signed by the person examined unless any of the parties so desire.

(3) A copy of the depositions if taken in shorthand by the commissioner and certified by him, or, if taken in shorthand by a shorthand writer employed for the purpose as aforesaid, certified by him and signed by the commissioner, shall for all purposes have the same effect as original depositions. Con. Rule 601. Rules 23 June, 1894. 1346.

Where only one of two commissioners signed the return, this was held not to vitiate it: Milville Mutual, etc., v. Driscoll, 11 S. C. R. 183.

512. The interrogatories, cross-interrogatories, and depositions and any documents and certified copies thereof or extracts therefrom, referred to therein, shall be sent to the proper officer, on or before such day as may be ordered in that behalf, enclosed in a cover under the seal of the commissioner; and the same or office copies thereof may be given in evidence by and on behalf of the parties respectively, saving all just exceptions, without any other proof of the absence from Ontario of the witness therein named than an affidavit of the solicitor or agent of the party as to his belief of such absence. Con. Rule 602.

Return of commission and use thereof
as evidence.

513.—(1) Where, upon the application for a commission to take evidence, the opposite party desires to join in the commission and examine witnesses on his own behalf thereunder, or names a commissioner, each party shall pay the costs of the commission consequent upon the examination of his witnesses and the appointment of his commissioner, without prejudice to the question by whom such costs are ultimately to be borne. Con. Rule 603. part.

Parties joining in commission to share costs.

(2) If for any reason the commissioner named by either party refuses to act upon receiving 48 hours' notice in writing from the other commissioner so to do, the commission may be executed by the commissioner giving such notice. Con. Rule 603. part.

When commissioner
of one party may act alone.

Rules
514-516.

Order for commission to be read as including above particulars.

Opening commission.

514. Every order for a commission shall be read as if it contained the above particulars, and shall not set forth the same, but may contain any variations therefrom, and any other directions, which the Court or Judge sees fit to make. Con. Rule 604.

515. A commission when returned shall be opened at the trial or before trial at the instance of any party (without order) by the officer to whom it is returned, on two clear days' notice to the parties interested. New.

The Court in permitting a foreign commission to be opened before the trial, will not impose restrictions as to the use to be made of the knowledge of the evidence which would be acquired by the solicitors by such opening: Smith v. Greey, 11 P. R. 238.

D. AFFIDAVITS.

Form of
affidavits.

516. An affidavit shall be drawn up in the first person, stating the name of the deponent in full, and his description and true place of abode, and shall be signed by him. Con. Rule 605.

Taken partly from Cby. O. 258; Rules T. T. 1856, 109.

See Eng. (1883) Rs. 527, 528.

Style of cause in affidavits.

An affidavit should be entitled in the cause or matter in which it is to be used. The shortened style of "A. B. and others, plaintiffs, and C. D. and others, defendants," may be used: Rule 320; Dickey v. Heron, 2 Chy. Cb. 490; but not "Brown v. Jones."

The Court may receive an affidavit, notwithstanding formal defects in it: R. S. O. c. 73, s. 39.

Erroneously entitled,
may be re-sworn.

Affidavits erroneously entitled have been allowed to be taken off the files, and re-sworn without a fresh stamp: Pearson v. Wilcox, 10 Ha. App. xxxv.; Hawes v. Bamford, 9 Sim. 653.

Affidavits
by parties to the cause.

In affidavits made by parties to the cause it was sufficient in Equity to describe the deponent as the above-mentioned plaintiff, or defendant, without specifying any residence, or other addition: Crockett v. Bickton, 2 Madd. 446; Rogers v. Crookshank, 4 C. L. J. 45. And the same rule prevailed at Common Law: Poole v. Pembrey, 1 Dowl. P. C. 693; Brooks v. Farlar, 5 Dowl. P. C. 361; Lyman v. Brethron, 2 C. L. Ch. 108; Ewing v. Lockhart, 3 U. C. Q. B. 248. But affidavits in which the plaintiff in a divorce proceeding gave no address, or an illusory one, were rejected by the Court, and the case was disposed of on the defendant's affidavits: Hyde v. Hyde, 59 L. T. 523. An affidavit as to the fitness of a proposed trustee in which the deponent was described as a "gentleman," was held insufficient: as the position in life or occupation of the deponent is in such case material in order to give effect to the affidavit: Re Ord, 24 Ch. D. 271; Re Horwood, 55 L. T. 373; but in other circumstances such a description is not necessarily insufficient so as to prevent the affidavit from being filed or used: Re Dodsworth, Spence v. Dodsworth, 1891, 1 Ch. 657; 64 L. T. 282.

An affidavit by a person who was a stockbroker was held not to state his description and true place of abode, by describing him as a "stock exchange stock broker": Re Levy, Levin v. Levin, 60 L. T. 317; 37 W. R. 398.

The Court has sometimes received affidavits sworn abroad, although drawn in the third person: Re Husband, 12 L. T. 303; and see Dryden v. Frost, 8 Sim. 380; and not entitled in the cause: Salvidge v. Tutton, 20 L. T. 300; Blaney v. Blaney, 113 L. T. Jour. 265. And an affidavit without the signature of the deponent was received: Re Howard, L. R. 9 C. P. 347; but see contra, Anderson v. Stather, 9 Jur. 1085.

Where the initial only of the deponent's second Christian name was given, the affidavit was held to be regular: De Forrest v. Bunnell, 15 L. C. Q. B. 370.

An affidavit to obtain an order to arrest which began "I, Albertu Jane Boyd, the above named plaintiff," her name being Alberta Jane Vansickle, and was signed Berta Jane Vansickle, was held to be not a nullity, but an irregularity merely, which under the circumstances was waived: Vansickle v. Boyd, 14 P. R. 469.

An affidavit omitting the words "make oath" will be rejected: Allen v. Taylor, 10 Ex. 52; Phillips v. Prentice, 2 Ha. 542; Re Newton, 2 D. F. & J. 3.

Affidavits may be sworn in Ontario before commissioners appointed under R. S. O. c. 74, or before a notary public of Ontario: see R. S. O. c. 175, ss. 3, 5. As to affirmations, see R. S. O. c. 73, s. 15.

The notary need not affix his seal to the affidavit: R. S. O. c. 175, s. 8, which overrules the decision in Boyd v. Spriggins, 17 P. R. 331.

Affidavits sworn out of Ontario may be sworn before any of the persons enumerated in R. S. O. c. 73, s. 37. Affidavits sworn before any other person than those mentioned in that statute cannot be read: McErcan v. Boulton, 3 Chy. Ch. 63.

Affidavits sworn before the solicitor, or partner, or managing clerk, or agent, of the party in whose behalf the affidavit is filed, cannot be read: Dunn v. McLean, 9 C. L. J. 212; 6 P. R. 95; Duke of Northumberland v. Todd, 7 Ch. D. 777; and see Rule 522. But this rule does not apply to the partner of a counsel engaged in the cause, but not otherwise connected therewith: Wilde v. Crow, 10 C. P. 406; nor to affidavits to obtain an order for arrest: Rule 522.

A commissioner ought not to take affidavits not made in any cause, nor authorized by statute to be taken by him. Such oaths are voluntary: Jackson v. Kassel, 26 U. C. Q. B. 341; Mellroy v. Hall, 25 U. C. Q. B. 303; and see R. S. C. c. 141.

The officer taking the affidavit should add after his signature the name of his office. The words "A Commissioner, etc." or "A Commissioner," or "A Comr." have been held sufficient: Henderson v. Harper, 2 U. C. Q. B. 97; Brown v. Parr, 2 U. C. Q. B. 98; Murphy v. Boulton, 3 U. C. Q. B. 177; Pawson v. Hall, 1 P. R. 294; Brett v. Smith, ib., 309; Canada Perm. L. & S. Co. v. Todd, 22 Ont. App. 515. But the signature alone has been held insufficient: Babcock v. Bedford, 8 C. P. 527. "Sworn before, etc." omitting "me," was held sufficient: Martin v. McCharles, 25 U. C. Q. B. 279; and see De Forrest v. Bunnell, 15 U. C. Q. B. 370; and Eddowes v. Argentina L. & M. A. Co., 62 L. T. 514; 38 W. R. 629.

As to the mode of administering oaths, see per Kay, J., in Bourke v. Davis, 88 L. T. Jour. 103.

Rule 517.

The addition of a deponent is only descriptive and not an allegation of fact: Hood v. Cronkite, 4 P. R. 279. The usual form of oath, "you swear that the contents of this affidavit are true," however, would seem to pledge the deponent to the truth of the addition, as well as of the matters formally deposed to.

Fisher v. Green.

In drawing affidavits, the following observations of Wilson, J., in Fisher v. Green, 2 C. L. J. 16, may be useful to the student: "I regret to find, in several instances lately, that superlative words are used in stating facts in affidavits. There can be no stronger expression of the very truth than that it is stated on oath. If less certainty is intended, the statement should be qualified. The terms to which I object are, 'I most positively swear,' etc. I can only show my disapproval of such language, by refusing to allow costs to be taxed for affidavits drawn in this style, when costs are in my discretion. In one of the affidavits before me I observe the expression, that the statement made by another person in another affidavit was 'false.' I suppose the affidavit was drawn by a young man of little experience, for the one had detailed a transaction in one light, and the other had stated the same transaction in another light, but the term 'false,' as applied by one to the other, could in no way verify the statement of him who used the offensive expression."—and see Davidson v. Grange, 5 P. R. 258.

Superlative and needlessly offensive expressions not to be used in affidavits.

A solicitor introducing impertinent and irrelevant matter into his affidavit may be ordered to pay the costs of the application in which it is used: Anon., 4 P. R. 242; and see Corby v. Robbin, 5 U. C. L. J. 225.

Where affidavits were badly written, scarcely legible, and difficult to decipher, the Court refused all costs connected with their preparation, although costs of the suit were given: Burnham v. Garvey, 27 Gr. 80.

Affidavits made by two or more deponents.

517.—(1) In an affidavit made by two or more deponents the names of the persons making the affidavit shall be inserted in the jurat, but if the affidavit of all the deponents is taken at one time by the same officer, it shall be sufficient to state that it was sworn by both (or all) of the "above-named" deponents. Con. Rule 606.

Same as Eng. (1883) R. 529.

Jurat.

(2) The jurat may be according to Form No. 16. Con. Rule 607.

Taken from Chy. O. 258.

An affidavit which omitted "before me" was (under Eng. O. 38, R. 14, which enables the Court to accept affidavits notwithstanding defects in form, see R. S. O. c. 73, s. 39), received, where from what appeared in the affidavit, such as signature of the Consul and his initials affixed to alterations, the reasonable inference was that the affidavit was sworn before him: Eddowes v. Argentine, etc., Co., 62 L. T. 514; 38 W. R. 629, and other cases in note to Rule 516.

See note to Rule 516.

For Form 16, see H. & L. Forms, No. 744.

518. Affidavits shall be confined to the statement of ^{Rules} facts within the knowledge of the deponent, but on inter- ^{518, 519.} locutory motions, statements as to his belief, with the grounds ^{affidavits} thereof, may be admitted. ^{how framed.} Con. Rule 609.

To the same effect as Eng. (1883) R. 523.

Under Chy. O. 259, each statement in an affidavit to be used as evidence on any proceeding before the Court was required to show the deponent's means of knowledge. This provision is, however, not embodied in these Rules.

Under this Rule the grounds of statements made on "belief" are required to be stated, but not the means of knowledge for positive allegations: see Bidder v. Bridges, 26 Ch. D. 1; Quartz, etc., v. Brull, 29 Ch. D. 501; Edwards v. Davis, W. N. 1888, 59.

An affidavit on information and belief founded on statements made to the deponent by an informant who declined to repeat them on affidavit, unless subpoenaed, was not admitted on an interlocutory motion in a case where the informant might have been but was not, subpoenaed, and no irremediable injury could result from the exclusion of the evidence: Re Anthony; Doig v. Anthony, 1899, 2 Ch. 59; 80 L. T. 188.

Affidavits on information and belief which fail to disclose the grounds thereof, are not evidence, whether on an interlocutory or a final application, and need not be answered: see 104 L. T. Jour. 285; and Re J. L. Young Manufacturing Co., 1900, 2 Ch. 753; 83 L. T. 418; and in England a solicitor may be refused costs of such affidavits: Id.

An affidavit in which the deponent stated that he was credibly informed and believed certain facts, without stating the name of his informant, or the ground of his belief, was held not to comply with this Rule, and was insufficient proof of the facts deposed to: Gilbert v. Stiles, 13 P. R. 121.

Evidence on information and belief, though generally admissible on interlocutory applications, is not admissible on a proceeding which, though interlocutory in form, finally decides the rights of parties; and the party against whom it is adduced, is not bound to contradict it; but if, in the Court below, he deals with the evidence as admissible, he may be precluded from objecting to it before the Court of Appeal: Gilbert v. Endran, 9 Ch. D. 259.

Costs of setting out the contents of written documents were disallowed, in Hirst v. Procter, W. N. 1882, 12.

Affidavits may be ordered to be taken off the files, if scandalous or irrelevant: Sudler v. Smith, 7 P. R. 409; 15 C. L. J. 52; Osmaston v. Association of Land Financiers, W. N. 1878, 101; Kernick v. Kernick, 12 W. R. 335; Goldard v. Parr, 3 W. R. 633; or the scandalous matter may be expunged: Warner v. Mosses, W. N. 1881, 69; Re Fitch, 2 Chy. Ch. 288; and see Rule 290, and note.

Costs of scandalous affidavits will be disallowed: Vanstaden v. Vanstaden, 10 P. R. 428.

519. In an action or proceeding to which a corporation is a party, any affidavit required by these Rules to be made by a party may be made by any officer, servant, or agent of ^{affidavits} ^{by officers} ^{for cor-} ^{poration}

520-522.

the corporation having knowledge of the facts required to be deposed to, and he shall state therein that he has such knowledge. Con. Rule 610.

Alterations in affidavits.

520. An affidavit having in the jurat or body thereof any interlineation, alteration, or erasure shall not be used without leave (a) unless the interlineation, alteration or erasure is authenticated by the initials of the officer taking the affidavit. Con. Rule 611. Rules 23 June, 1894, 1347.

See Chy. O. 131; Rule T. T. 1856, 111.

Compare Eng. (1883) R. 532.

(a) The former Rules 611 and 1347 provided expressly that the leave is to be that of "the Court or a Judge or officer before whom the affidavit is to be used." The present Rule by implication has the same meaning.

A line drawn through words though leaving them legible is an erasure: Williams v. Clough, 1 A. & E. 376.

Where an interlineation was uninitialed by the Commissioner, it was held that under this Rule the affidavit could not be read, but leave was given to refile it properly sworn: Boyd v. McNutt, 9 P. R. 493; see Re Cloake, 65 L. T. 455; 61 L. J. Chy. 69.

No alteration can properly be made in an affidavit after it has been sworn: see W. N. 1882, Part 2, 81.

Affidavits
by illiterate persons.

521. Where an affidavit is sworn by a person who appears to be illiterate, the officer shall certify in the jurat that the affidavit was read in his presence to the deponent, who seemed perfectly to understand it, and signed it in his presence: otherwise such affidavit shall not be used without leave. Con. Rule 612.

See Rule T. T. 1856, 113.

Identical with the Eng. 1883, R. 533.

For the form of jurat under this Rule, see Form 16, H. & L. Forms, No. 744.

Where an affidavit of an illiterate person did not appear to have been read over in the presence of the Commissioner, it was taken off the files: Blenkharn v. Longstaffe, 52 L. T. 681; 54 L. J. Chy. 516.

No affidavit to be sworn before solicitor of party.

522. An affidavit sworn before the solicitor of the party on whose behalf it is made, or before the clerk, or partner of such solicitor, shall not be used; but this Rule shall not extend to an affidavit to obtain an order for arrest. Con. Rule 613.

Taken from Rule T. T. 1856, 114.

See Eng. (1883) Rs. 536, 537.

See notes to Rule 516.

Query, whether the Rule prevents the agent of the solicitor from Rules taking an affidavit: Re Lennox Provincial Election, 4 O. L. R. 523, 524, 541.

This Rule only applies to affidavits made in actions or proceedings in Court: Canada Perm. L. & S. Co. v. Told, 22 Ont. App. 515.

The corresponding Eng. Rule was held to apply to the affidavit of execution of a bill of sale under the Bills of Sale Act, 1882: Baker v. Ambrose, 1886, 2 Q. B. 372; and see Archibald v. Hubley, 18 S. C. R. 116; but the reasons for the decision would not seem to apply in Ontario.

523. Affidavits and other papers required to be filed shall be filed before being used. Con. Rule 614. Stamps on affidavits.

See Chy. O. 260.

Compare Eng. (1883) R. 535.

It is the imperative duty of the solicitor of any party to proceedings to cause to be filed every affidavit sworn and used by such party in the course of the proceedings: Taylor v. Gates, 72 L. T. 436.

Former Cou. Rule 608 required a note to be appended to, or indorsed on, every affidavit, to shew the party on whose behalf it was filed. This is no longer necessary, the former Rule 608 having been abrogated.

The proper office for filing affidavits is (subject to Rules 102, 106, 525), the office in which the proceeding was commenced: Rules 14, 15.

Where the affidavit is the commencement of the proceeding it may, in counties other than the County of York, be filed with any officer in the county who is authorized to issue writs of summons, and his office thereby becomes the proper office for filing all subsequent papers: Rules 14, 15, 341.

In the County of York, papers for motions in Court are to be filed in the Registrars' office: Rule 102; and for motions in Chambers are to be filed with the Clerk in Chambers: Rule 525; papers so filed are ultimately transmitted to the Central Office: Rules 341, 525.

As to affidavits to be used before the Weekly Court at Ottawa, and London, see Rule 107.

524. Affidavits upon which a notice of motion, or petition is founded, shall be filed before the service of the notice of motion or petition. Con. Rule 616. Affidavits in chief, when to be filed.

Taken from Chy. Order 261, which also provided that affidavits in answer must be filed not later than the day before that appointed for the hearing of the motion, or petition. This provision, however, is not embodied in these Rules, and no time whatever is prescribed for filing affidavits in answer, or reply.

The affidavits and papers intended to be used in support of a motion, must be mentioned in the notice of motion: Farish v. Martyn, 1 Gr. 300; and when the motion is intended to be supported by affidavits filed previous to the date of the notice of motion, the date of the filing of such affidavits should be stated in the notice: Fraser Affidavits in support to be mentioned in notice of motion.

v. Fraser, 13 Gr. 181; McMartin v. Dartnell, 2 Chy. Ch. 322; MacKenzie v. Carter, 12 P. R. 544; documents referred to in the affidavits filed in support of a motion may be read without special reference to them in the notice: Johnson v. Ashbridge, 2 Chy. Ch. 251. If a party gives notice of reading an affidavit in support of a motion, but declines to read it, the opposite party may, nevertheless, do so: Clark v. Law, 2 K. & J. 28; County v. Houlditch, 14 Sim. 75, and may cross-examine the deponent though the party filing it offers to withdraw it: Pike v. Robinson, W. N. 1873, 178. So a respondent's affidavits may be read in support of a motion, though no case is made out by the applicant's own affidavits: Re Margetson & Jones, 1897, 2 Ch. 314; 70 L. T. 805.

Affidavits of service must be filed at latest before the rising of the Court on the day on which the application is made: Mitova v. Stuart, 8 Sim. 34; but see contra, Necar v. Webb, 25 Ch. D. 81; 40 L. T. 94, where it was held that they were filed in time, if filed at any time before the order was drawn up; but see Re Rosier, Jones v. Bartholomew, 40 L. T. 442.

See also notes to Rule 480.

Affidavits,
where filed.

525. Affidavits to be used on a motion in Chambers at Toronto shall be filed with the Clerk in Chambers, who shall transmit them to the Central Office when the motion is disposed of. Rules of 1 Jan., 1896, 1460.

Exhibits.

526. Where properly marked exhibits are referred to in an affidavit filed, and are not annexed thereto, such exhibits need not be filed, and shall be handed out on the disposal of the motion unless otherwise ordered. Rules of 1 Jan., 1896, 1461.

Exhibits to an affidavit are part of the affidavit, and inspection thereof cannot be withheld from the person against whom the affidavit is to be used: Re Hinchcliffe, 1895, 1 Ch. 117; 71 L. T. 532.

G. ADMISSIONS.

Notice to admit documents.

527. A party may be called upon by any other party to admit any document, saving all just exceptions, by a notice to admit, which may be according to Form No. 63. Con. Rules 617, 618.

To the same effect as the first clause of Eng. (1883) R. 372, and R. 373.

For Form No. 36, see H. & L. Forms No. 687.

This Rule extends to all documents which a party proposes to adduce in evidence, and not merely those in his custody or control: Rutter v. Chapman, 8 M. & W. 388.

Among the "just exceptions" are the admissibility of the documents as evidence: Phillips v. Harris, Car. & M. 492, and their legal effect: Hills v. London Gas Light Co., 1 F. & F. 346; but not an objection to their reception on the ground of interlineation: Freeman Rule 528.

v. Steggall, 14 Q. B. 202.

Admissions between defendants cannot be used as evidence against the plaintiff: Dodds v. Tuke, 25 Ch. D. 617.

A notice to admit must be given a reasonable time before trial: Tynn v. Billingsley, 3 Dowl. 810; Uary v. Cumberland, 1 P. R. 140, and holds good upon a subsequent trial: Day, C. L. P. Act, 3rd ed., 103; Wilson v. Baird, 19 C. P. 98.

A notice to admit may be given, in respect of a document not in the possession or under the control of the party: Rutler v. Chapman, 8 M. & W. 388; Conger v. McKeehan, 1 C. L. Cham. 220; or a foreign judgment: Smith v. Bird, 3 Dowl. 641; or documents, the validity of which is directly in issue: Spencer v. Burrough, 9 M. & W. 425.

For notices which may be given to enable secondary evidence to be given of wills, registered instruments, telegraphic messages, letters, etc., see R. S. O. c. 73, ss. 41, to 51.

Sec. 63 of R. S. O. c. 136, does not enable a party to use as evidence a certified copy of a registered probate: Barber v. McKay, 17 Ont. 562; 19 Ont. 50.

528. It shall be sufficient if written admissions are signed by the solicitor of the party by whom, or on whose behalf, they purport to be made. Con. Rule 619.

Admissions sufficiently signed by solicitor.

Not similar to the Eng. R. 1875, O. 32, r. 4, which was the same as The C. L. P. Act (R. S. O. 1877, c. 50), sec. 173. The Eng. (1883) R. 374, 377, extend to admissions of facts, and require an affidavit of the solicitor or his clerk as to the signature to the admissions. The Chancery Practice in Ontario was to dispense with an affidavit, and the present Rule adopts that practice.

The mere fact that documents are admitted in admissions signed by the solicitor, will not make them evidence unless put in at the trial: Watson v. Rodwell, 11 Ch. D. 150; and the admission of a copy does not entitle the plaintiff to put in the copy, without first accounting for the original: Sharpe v. Lamb, 11 A. & E. 805. The admission when made is conclusive: Langley v. E. of Oxford, 1 M. & W. 508.

TRIAL.

1. GENERAL RULES, 520-560.

3. VEXATIOUS DEFENCES IN ACTIONS TO RECOVER LAND, 567-569.

2. HIGH COURT CASES IN COUNTY COURTS, 561-563.

4. INSPECTION OF PROPERTY AND VIEWS BY JURIES, 570-572.

1. GENERAL RULES.

Place of trial.

529.—(1) Subject to any special statutory provisions the place of trial of an action shall be regulated as follows.

(a) The plaintiff shall, in his statement of claim, name the county town at which he proposes that the action shall be tried.

(b) Where the cause of action arose and the parties reside in the same county the place so to be named shall be the county town of that county.

This clause applies to County Court cases, and the venue may be changed and the action transferred to the Court of the County in which the cause of action arose and the parties reside; Leach v. Bruce, 9 O. L. R. 380; Cornell v. Irwin, 2 O. W. R. 466, and see Rule 1219.

"Cause of Action."—Means the whole cause of action. Where part of the cause of action arises in the county in which the parties reside, and part in another county, the Rule does not apply, and the question of venue must be determined by the consideration of convenience; Conner v. Dempster, 6 O. L. R. 354.

"Parties Reside."—The residence of the plaintiff at the time of the delivery of his statement of claim, and not at the time of the issue of the writ, is the time referred to in this clause; Edsall v. Wray, 19 P. R. 245.

This clause will govern a case in which the cause of action has arisen in a county in which all the parties to it, other than those who are out of the jurisdiction, reside; Saskatchewan Land, etc., Co. v. Leadley, 5 O. W. R. 449. The county town of that county should therefore be named in the statement of claim as the place of trial. Id.

(c) Where the action is for, or includes a claim for, the recovery of land, the place to be so named shall be the county town of the county in which the land is situate.

(d) The action shall be tried at the place so named unless Rule 629 otherwise ordered by the Court or a Judge upon the application of either party.

(2) Any such order of the Court or a Judge shall be subject to appeal in the same manner as other orders of the Court or a Judge. See 58 V. c. 12, s. 115. Rules of 1 Jan., 1896, 1463.

The Eng. (1883) R. 425 is different.

The Ont. J. A. Rule 254 and Con. Rule 653 of 1888 began: "There shall be no local venue for the trial of any actions (except an action of ejectment)." "Local venue" having thus been abolished those words are not continued in the present Rule. Under the Eng. R. similar to the former Con. Rule 653, it was held that no new jurisdiction was conferred, and that therefore actions for damages for trespass to lands out of the jurisdiction could not be maintained: British S. African v. Companhia Mocambique, 1893, A. C. 602; and see Bretton v. Canadian Pacific Ry. Co., 20 Ont. L.R. 107.

An action to cancel a lease of a mining location, and to recover possession of the location, and to restrain the defendant from entering thereon, was held not to be an "action of ejectment" within the former Con. Rule: Kendell v. Ernst, 16 P. R. 167.

"Subject to any special Statutory Provisions." — The exception is new, and preserves the provisions under particular statutes by which certain kinds of action are directed to be tried in some particular place. Previously it was held that the effect of the Jud. Act and original J. A. Rule 254 was to abolish all local venues as well those made so by any Provincial Statute, or by Common Law, except in actions of ejectment: Legacy v. Pitcher, 10 Ont. 620; but venues fixed by Dominion Acts were not considered to be affected: see Goldsmith v. Walton, 9 P. R. 10; Aitchison v. Mann, ib., 253, 473.

The exception contained in the present Rule operates in favour of local venues created by Dominion Acts, and Provincial Acts contained in the Revised Statutes, 1897, or Provincial Acts passed subsequently thereto; but see 60 V. c. 3, s. 9. See also Buckley v. Hull Docks, 1893, 2 Q. B. 93; 69 L. T. 347; Howard v. Herrington, 20 Ont. App. 175.

The following are instances of actions governed by Dominion Statutes which fix the venue:—actions for infringements of patents under R. S. C. c. 61, s. 30; see Goldsmith v. Walton, 9 P. R. 10; Aitchison v. Mann, ib., 253, 473; actions under The Customs Act (R. S. C. c. 32), s. 147; actions for anything done in the administration of the criminal law: see R. S. C. c. 151, s. 24; c. 185, s. 1.

The following are instances of actions governed by Provincial Statutes fixing the venue:—actions against Justices of the Peace for not returning convictions: R. S. O. c. 93, s. 4; or against Justices of the Peace, or other public officers, for anything done in performance of their duty: R. S. O. c. 88, s. 15, see also s. 16; actions of replevin under R. S. O. c. 66, s. 7; Howard v. Herrington, 20 Ont. App. 175; actions against newspapers for libel: R. S. O. c. 68, s. 11; actions by a person confined as a lunatic, R. S. O. c. 318, s. 89; actions against the Inspector of Prisons and Public Charities, and others, under R. S. O. c. 321, s. 28.

Rule 529.County
Court cases.

Under The County Court Act (R. S. O. c. 55), s. 36, actions for recovery of, or for trespass or injury to, land, brought under sec. 23 (8), are to be brought and tried in the county where the land is; partnership actions under sec. 23 (9) in the county where the partnership had or has its principal place of business; and actions by legatees under sec. 23 (10) in the county where letters probate or of administration have issued, or where the decedent resided at the time of his death, unless by consent of the parties, or unless the place of trial is changed.

Where no special statutory provision as to the place of trial applies, this Rule prescribes a particular place: (1) In actions for or including a claim for recovery of land: clause (c). (2) In actions where the cause of action arose and the parties reside in the same county: clause (b). In other cases the plaintiff makes choice of such place as he thinks fit, though it must not be vexatiously chosen.

It is the duty of the plaintiff's solicitor to conform to clause (b), and name the place of trial as there indicated. If it be not the most convenient place for the trial, the plaintiff may apply to change it to a more convenient place: Brown v. Hazell, 2 O. W. R. 784.

Actions for recovery of land.

In actions for recovery of land the trial must prima facie take place in the county where the land lies, but the writ may issue from the proper office in any county: Canada Permanent L. & S. Co. v. Foley, 9 P. R. 273; so also an action for assignment of dower, which is an action for the recovery of land: McCulloch v. McCulloch, 1 C. L. T. 252.

An action by a mortgagee for foreclosure, payment, and possession, is not an action for recovery of land within this Rule, and the venue therefore need not be in the county where the lands lie: Scymour v. De Marsh, 11 P. R. 472; and see Kendall v. Ernst, 16 P. R. 197.

Contract as to place of trial.

Place of Trial Fixed by Contract.—The parties may agree that in case of litigation the action is to be carried on, or tried in a Court having jurisdiction in a particular locality; see The Niagara Co. v. Cox, 6 O. L. R. 637; or that the trial shall be at a particular place: Dulmage v. White, 4 O. L. R. 121; and the Court will give effect to such a condition: Ib.

In the case of contracts for conditional sales of chattels, the right to contract as to the place of trial of any actions arising out of the contract of sale is restricted by 3 Ed. vii. c. 13, s. 1. Where that Act is not complied with, any term contained in the contract as to place of trial is void, and the place of trial may be changed as in any other case: Goodison, &c., v. Wood, 5 O. W. R. 717. As to the mode of compliance with the Act, see Ib., and S. C. in appeal, 6 O. W. R. 19.

practice.

Changing Place of Trial.—In Chancery no actions were local, all were transitory. At Common Law some actions were local, and some transitory. In a local action the venue had to be laid in the county in which the cause of action arose, though the trial might be ordered to take place elsewhere. In a transitory action the plaintiff might lay his venue where he pleased, subject to the power of the Court or a Judge to order it to be changed. The practice as to changing the venue was, that either party might apply for an order for that purpose. The plaintiff, if the application was his, had to show reasonable ground for the change, and if the application was the defendant's, the defendant had to show distinctly a preponderance of convenience in favour of trying where he proposed, instead of where the venue was laid: Church v. Barnett, L. R. 6 C. P. 196.

Now, the Court or a Judge may change the place of trial on Rule 529. motion for that purpose [clause (d)], in all cases not governed by special statute, including actions for recovery of land: see C. P. Rg. Change of place of trial v. Manion, 11 P. R. 247, and including actions within clause (b).

Under the present Rule, on a motion to change the place of trial, while the matter is largely in the discretion of the Court, or Judge, and one question is where can the action most conveniently be tried (see Givvy v. Siddall, 12 P. R. 557; Taylor v. Grant, 9 C. L. T. 140), it is now settled by two decisions of Divisional Courts that the discretion is to be exercised subject to two restrictions, viz.:—

(1) The plaintiff, where clause (b) does not apply, has a right to select the place of trial, a right which is not lightly to be interfered with, where the place has not been vexatiously chosen; and

(2) The onus is upon the applicant to show that the preponderance of convenience is against the place named in the statement of claim: Standard Drain Pipe Co. v. Fort William, 16 P. R. 404; Halliday v. Stanley, Id., 433; see also Noad v. Noad, 6 P. R. 48; Plum v. Norwinton, W. N. 1876, 105; Wood v. Kay, W. N. 1879, 206; Schwader v. Myers, 34 W. R. 261; Greco v. Bennett, 32 W. R. 848; 50 L. T. 706; Bridout v. Duncan, 7 Times, 514; Waltan v. Widmann, 10 P. R. 228; Russ v. C. P. Ry. Co., 12 P. R. 220; Nicholson v. Linton, Id., 221; Madigan v. Ferland, 17 P. R. 124. This was in effect the practice in Chancery formerly: Noad v. Noad, 6 P. R. 48; Bridout v. Duncan, 7 Times, 514; and has now been held by the C. A. to be the settled practice: Campbell v. Doherty, 18 P. R. 243.

There has not been unanimity amongst the Judges in this Province as to the weight to be given to the place where the cause of action arose, in determining the place which is most convenient. This had formerly little weight in Chancery: Noad v. Noad, supra; but was an important element at Common Law: Harper v. Smith, 6 P. R. 9; Gilmour v. Strickland, 6 P. R. 274; Phippen v. McKeel, 7 P. R. 377. The reported cases, and the opinions of the majority of the Judges, are in favour of adopting the former Chancery practice, and of determining the convenience by a consideration of the expense, and the witnesses' facilities of travelling: see cases supra, and Daris v. Murray, 9 P. R. 222; Robertson v. Dugan, 3 C. L. T. 236; Waltan v. Widmann, 10 P. R. 228; Slater v. Purvis, 10 P. R. 604; Russ v. C. P. Ry. Co., Nicholson v. Linton, supra; Taylor v. Grant, 9 C. L. T. 140; Odell v. Mulholland, 14 P. R. 180; Berlin Pinn Co. v. Trautisch, 15 P. R. 68; Brethour v. Braake, 15 P. R. 205.

"The facts in each case must be considered, but it is a safe general rule that the venue will not be changed unless the defendant shows that some serious injury and injustice to his cause will arise by trying it where the plaintiff proposes to have it tried": per Boyd, C., in Daris v. Parthe, 15 P. R. 314.

The fact that a view by the jury might be necessary is a circumstance to be considered: Odell v. Mulholland, 14 P. R. 180; see also Jenkins v. Rushby, 1891, 1 Ch. 481; see 1891, 2 Ch. 551.

The Court, or Judge, will not enter into an inquiry as to the personal inconvenience of witnesses: Standard, etc., v. Fort William, 16 P. R. 404; and it is impossible, as a general rule, to enter into the investigation whether one class of witnesses will be more injured than another, by absence from home: Noad v. Noad, and Daris v. Murray, supra; Berlin Pinn Co. v. Trautisch, 15 P. R. 68; except in the case of a public officer: Fiskin v. Smith, 2 Chy. Ch. 49; Fogg v. Fogg, 12 P. R. 249.

Rule 529.

Change of place of trial.

As to witnesses who are out of the jurisdiction, the place of trial may be of comparatively little importance: Saskatchewan Land, etc., Co., v. Leadley, 5 O. W. R. 449, 9 O.R. 551.

The preponderance of convenience to be shewn by the defendant must be considerable. A change will not be made on account of a trifling difference in expense: see Peer v. N. W. Transportation Co., 14 P. R. 381; Stewart v. Johnstone, 4 U. C. L. J. 21; Mooney v. Mooney, 6 P. R. 267; and Walton v. Wideman, and other cases supra, even though the cause of action arose at the place to which the change is asked to be made: McDonald v. Dawson, 8 O. L. R. 72; Campbell v. Doherty, supra; especially if the plaintiff undertakes to pay the difference in expense: see Brigham v. McKenzie, 10 P. R. 406.

An undertaking by defendant to pay the difference in expense to the plaintiff if the place of trial is changed is not a ground for making a change: McDonald v. Dawson, supra.

But difference of expense is of more importance in an alimony action, as the defendant has to bear in any event all the disbursements: Fogg v. Fogg, 12 P. R. 249.

Where the parties reside in the county in which the cause of action arose and the venue is laid, a very strong case will have to be made out to obtain a change: see Pollard v. Wright, 16 P. R. 505; Servos v. Servos, 11 P. R. 135.

The fact that a change will delay the trial considerably is a circumstance to be considered: Servos v. Servos, supra.

A direction to the parties to disclose the names and evidence of the witnesses, in order to consider whether the witnesses are material, is not proper: Arpin v. Guinane, 12 P. R. 364.

Where the plaintiffs resided at Montreal, and the defendants' officers at Picton, and the plaintiffs had some witnesses resident at Toronto, the place of trial was changed from Ottawa to Toronto: Cooper v. Central Ontario Ry. Co., 4 Ont. 280.

Where owing to conflicting affidavits it is impossible to decide which would be the most convenient place of trial, the Court may decline to interfere, leaving it to the trial Judge to apportion the costs as may be proper if it shall appear that the wrong place has been selected: McArthur v. Michigan Central, 15 P. R. 77, as explained in Brethour v. Brooke, 15 P. R. 205; and see Roberts v. Jones, 1894, 2 Q. B. 194.

Delay in applying may, apart from all other considerations, be sufficient to justify the dismissal of a motion to change the venue; as where the action is just about to be tried, and application might sooner have been made: Philips v. Beall, 26 Ch. D. 621; 32 W. R. 667.

The affidavits on such motions should be made by the parties themselves, and not by their solicitors: Hood v. Konkrite, 4 P. R. 270; Baker v. Waldon, 2 O. W. R. p. 434; Leach v. Bruce, 9 O. L. R. 380.

An application is not necessarily premature because issue is not joined, if the issues can be determined from the pleadings: Powell v. Cobb, 29 Ch. D. 488-9.

Seemingly, this Rule does not give a Judge a right to interfere with the procedure in the action (e.g., to change the venue of his own motion), except at the instance of a party: Bull v. North British, etc.

Co., 11 P. R. 83. Such motions should not be made at the Assizes; Rule 529, it is too late then to consider the balance of convenience, as the parties have to be prepared for trial: Sornia Agricultural Implement Co. v. P. & Co., 11 P. R. 224.

The plaintiff having named a place of trial in the special indorsement on a writ, cannot name a new one in the statement of claim; Negsworth v. McKinnon, 19 P. R. 178; nor having named one in his statement of claim, can he change his mind and name a new one by amendment of the statement of claim under Rule 300; Bull v. North British, etc., Co., 10 P. R. 622. As to whether the omission to name a place of trial in the statement of claim can be supplied by amendment, see note to Rule 300, p. 512.

The place of trial may be changed in actions to recover land, as well as in other cases: clause (d), see C. P. Ry. Co. v. Manion, 11 P. R. 247.

In the cases mentioned in clauses (b) and (c) of the Rule, viz., actions where the cause of action arose, and the parties reside in the same county, and actions for recovery of land, the plaintiff is obliged to name a particular place, whether the most convenient or not. In such case the plaintiff may nevertheless move, like the defendant, to have the place changed; the onus will be upon the applicant of shewing a preponderance of convenience in favour of the change proposed.

In the cases where the plaintiff has the right of selection, he cannot have the place selected by him changed, if the defendant objects, except upon shewing some cogent reason. If the place chosen by him is manifestly an improper one, he may be ordered to pay the costs of the motion to change: Martin v. Ross, 6 P. R. 264. If, however, the plaintiff is obliged by Rule 529, clause (b), or (c), to name a place which is not the most convenient, he cannot be said to have named an improper place, and where he applies for a change, the circumstance that he has named a place should not weigh against him. The plaintiff may probably, however, as formerly, obtain a change to hasten the trial, where he is in danger of losing his debt, particularly if by some unforeseen circumstance he has been prevented from going to trial at the place originally named by him: see Lucas v. Taylor, 4 P. R. 99; Mercer v. Vogt, 3 P. R. 94; Jones v. Jones, 3 Ch. Ch. 58; McDonnell v. Pror. Ins. Co., 5 U. C. L. J. 186 (where the Judge appointed to take the Assizes refused to try the case, being interested in the defendant company).

On other extraordinary grounds the place of trial may be changed. For instance, the existence of circumstances which may render it impossible to have a fair trial, such as political excitement: Roche v. Patrick, 5 P. R. 210; the interests of the locality being involved: Municipal Council of Ontario v. Chamberland, 3 U. C. L. J. 11; or its prejudices or sympathies enlisted on one side so as to render a fair trial impossible: McDonagh v. Pror. Ins. Co., 2 U. C. L. J. 104; Blackburn v. Cameron, 5 P. R. 341; see also Davis v. Macray, 9 P. R. 229; Shafte v. Bolekour, 35 W. R. 686; 57 L. T. 17; Crossham v. Leach, 32 L. T. 665; Shroder v. Myers, 34 W. R. 261; Queen v. Appley, 13 C. L. T. 375; Upper v. Beavan, 14 P. R. 294. But the mere fact that one of the parties is personally widely known or popular in any county, is not a reason for having the trial elsewhere: Lockelle v. Andrew, 2 O. W. R. 608; Brown v. Hazell, ib. 504.

Quere, whether the pendency of other similar suits, and the fact that a large number of persons are interested in the county in the matters involved, and that in the opinion of a number of residents a Rule 529. fair trial cannot be had, will be sufficient; see Mell v. Leadley, 1461 v. Kirk, 2 C. L. T. 555, 557; see also Moor v. Boyd, 3 P. R. 374; Unger v. Brennan, 14 P. R. 291. See also where the Sheriff is a party; Braunen v. Jarvis, 8 P. R. 321; or the County Judge, Good, 4 P. R. 310.

The place of trial was changed in a collision suit in the Master's Court, on the sole ground that the local Judge would be in a better position to try the case from his practical or easily obtained knowledge of the locality in which the collision occurred; The Waverley Belle, 2 C. L. T. 360.

Criminal Cases.—As to change of venue in a criminal case under the Criminal Code, s. 651, see Reg. v. Pontua, 18 P. R. 210, 429.

Appeals.—The discretion of the Court or Judge, exercised in a motion to change the place of trial, is an appealable discretion; Philips v. Beall, 26 Ch. D. 621; 32 W. R. 665; and though a Judge in Chambers may, perhaps, freely review the decision of a subordinate judicial officer in Chambers, the discretion of a Judge in Chambers, unless a clearly mistaken view has been taken by him, will not be interfered with by a Divisional Court, even though the Court think the discretion might have been exercised differently; see Morrell v. C.J., in Standard, etc., v. Fort William, 16 P. R. at p. 406-7, citing The Assyria, 4 Times, 634; see also Bengoa v. Lurda, 6 T. S. 146; Sulby v. Lye, 12 Times 191.

An order in Chambers affirmed by a Judge and the Divisional Court will not be interfered with, though the Court of Appeal should not be satisfied that there is a preponderance of convenience in trying the case at the place named in the order; Pear v. N. W. Transportation Co., 14 P. R. 381.

Changing
place of reference.

Changing Place of Reference under a Judgment. A reference to a Master is prima facie to the Master at the place where the proceedings were instituted; Maceira v. Gygane, 3 Gr. 310; McNah v. McInnis, 4 Chy. Ch. 53; but the place is subject to be changed, upon motion, applying the same principles as in the case of the place of trial; see Jackson v. Harriman, 9 C. L. J. 29; McNah v. McInnis, supra. The policy of The Judicature Act in decentralizing business introduces a further element, and, as far as possible, local matters are to be sent to the local Masters; a reference was therefore changed and sent to the Master of the county in which a partnership business in question was carried on; Litkea v. Wilson, 9 P. R. 75.

A reference was also changed where it became necessary to add as a party the Master before whom the matter was pending; Webster v. Thompson, 1 Chy. Ch. 360; and where the Master's illness obliged him from attending to business; Re Kirkpatrick, 18 C. L. J. 121; 2 C. L. T. 204.

In administration matters, however, the reference should prima facie be to the place where the person whose estate is to be administered resided; Rule 547 is in such matters applicable, not Maceira v. Gygane, 3 Gr. 310; Thompson v. Fairbairn, 10 P. R. 533. See also notes preceding Rule 654.

Cross Actions.—Where cross actions, with different places of trial named, are consolidated, the place of trial will be ordered as the balance of convenience requires; Good v. Leitch, 13 P. R. 257.

530. After the close of the pleadings either party may give notice of trial. Can. Rule 654. Rule 530.
trial.

The Eng. (1883) Rs. 435, and 436, permit the plaintiff to give notice of trial with his reply though it does not close the pleadings: Asquith v. Molincaux, 49 L. J. Q. B. 800; but he may not enter the case till the pleadings are closed: Metropolitan Toner Circle Ry. v. Metropolitan Ry. Co., 5 Ex. D. 123; and they do not permit the defendant to give notice of trial, until the plaintiff has failed to do so for six weeks after the close of the pleadings, or such extended time as the Court or Judge may allow. The Ontario Rule, supra, is in accordance with the former Chancery practice under Chy. O. 161.

As to when the pleadings are closed, see Hare v. Carthage, 11 P. R. 374; McLachlan v. Ruse, 16 P. R. 330; and notes to Rule 262, 263. Notice of trial given before the pleadings are closed, within the meaning of Rule 262, as against all the defendants, is irregular: Long v. Long, 7 O. L. R. 536; Schneider v. Proctor, 9 P. R. 11; Robinson v. Caldwell, 1893, 1 Q. B. 519; 68 L. T. 218; and a defendant against whom the pleadings are closed may take the objection, and have the notice of trial set aside, though the other defendants are content to accept it: Long v. Long, supra.

Where an overdue defence was filed on the last day for giving notice of trial, and a joinder of issue and jury notice were filed on the same day, but after the filing of the defence, the service of notice of trial with the joinder of issue and jury notice on the same day, but before the filing of the defence, was held to be regular: Broderick v. Brantch, 12 P. R. 561; but service of notice of trial and jury notice before the filing or delivery of defence on the last day, defendant being in no default, is irregular: Mellroy v. Mellroy, 14 P. R. 264; followed in Hermann v. Mandarin, etc., Co., 18 P. R. 34, in preference to Broderick v. Brantch, supra, and the issuing of an order to produce at the time defence was delivered was held not to waive irregularity in the notice of trial: Id.

Where no reply is delivered the plaintiff cannot give notice of trial until the lapse of 21 days from the delivery of the defence: Robinson v. Caldwell, supra. Where the reply is something more than a joinder of issue, the notice of trial cannot be given until after the expiration of 4 days (see Rule 258), and a notice served on the 4th day after 11 p.m. is premature: Piper v. Benjamin, 17 P. R. 267.

Where after notice of trial has been given, a third party notice is given and directions made thereon allowing the third party to put in a defence, and directing the issues between the defendant and third party to be tried at the trial of the action, that has the effect of reopening the pleadings, and they are not re-closed until after the expiration of the time for delivering a reply to the third party's defence; and a new record must then be prepared including the third party proceedings, and the case must be again entered for trial, and a new notice of trial given to the defendant, and third party: Confederation Life v. Lohatt, 18 P. R. 238.

Notice of trial given prematurely is a voidable proceeding, and where a motion to set aside such a notice was adjourned till the trial, and was dismissed by the Judge at the trial, who proceeded with the trial in the absence of the defendant, it was held that a motion by way of appeal against the decision of the Judge on the motion, and Rule 530. also to set aside the judgment, might properly be made to the Divisional Court: Campau v. Randall, 17 P. R. 525; Qnu v. Canadian Order of Woodmen, 5 O. L. R. 51.

Assessment of Damages.—Where a plaintiff indorsed his writ for a liquidated demand, and signed interlocutory judgment for default of appearance, and thereafter filed a statement of claim varying the claim for relief asked by the writ, and, without closing the pleadings on the statement of claim, set the cause down for assessment of damages on the relief claimed by the statement of claim, it was held that the proceedings were irregular and the assessment of damages could not be made: Alexander v. Alexander, 1 O. L. R. 639.

Notice of Trial.—Forms of the notice are given in the App. Forms Nos. 65, 66, (H. & L. Forms, Nos. 789, and 790), see Rules 538, 542.

Where notice of trial did not state the place where the trial was to take place, a motion to set aside the notice was refused, in the absence of an affidavit stating that the party moving was thereby misled: O'Brien v. Wells, 20 C. L. J. 369. See also Walker v. Torrey, 7 P. R. 340; Bank of Montreal v. Cameron, 7 P. R. 188.

The notice may be given, in non-jury cases, for either the jury, or non-jury, sittings, at the place named for trial; see Rule 538 (c), except in Toronto cases, as to which see Rule 542.

"Either Party."—Any one of the parties plaintiffs, or defendants, may give notice of trial: Tinning v. G. T. Ry., 11 P. R. 38; and if one of several defendants does so he should serve his co-defendants as well as the plaintiff: McLean v. Thompson, 9 P. R. 553. If some of the defendants have not appeared, and it is necessary, or desired, to give them notice of motion for judgment, such notice should be for the same time and place as the notice of trial: McGill v. McDonnell, 14 P. R. 483; but see now Rules 573, 586.

Where the plaintiff served an insufficient notice of trial on defendants, and third parties, and it was set aside on defendant's motion, it was held that it was the plaintiff's and not the defendant's duty to notify the third parties that the trial could not proceed on the notice, and third parties appearing at the trial were held entitled to costs of the day from plaintiff: Knight v. Ridgetown, 14 P. R. 81.

Where the defendant exercises the power conferred by this Rule, and gives a regular notice for the sittings next approaching, the plaintiff cannot interfere with defendant's right, by giving notice for more distant sittings: Shaw v. Crasford, 13 P. R. 219; McGill v. McDonnell, 14 P. R. 483; see also Hogaboom v. Lunt, 14 P. R. 480.

Failure to give Notice of Trial.—The plaintiff (in actions other than non-jury actions in the County of York) is liable to have his action dismissed for want of prosecution if he fails to give notice of trial, where the pleadings have been closed six weeks before the commencement of any sittings for which he might give notice: Rule 433.

As to non-jury actions in the County of York, see Rule 434.

Where a case is to be tried without a jury, the plaintiff (notwithstanding Rule 538 c) will not be in default under Rule 433, by reason of his not giving notice for a sittings for which he might have given notice, if it is not the non-jury sittings: Leyburn v. Knake, 17 P. R. 419.

531. Subject to the provisions of The Judicature Act, Rule 531.
 1895, and of these Rules, the Court or a Judge may order that different questions of fact be tried by different modes, or that one or more questions of fact be tried before the others, and may appoint the place or places for trial. Con.
 Rule 655.

Trial of different questions in different modes.

Same substantially as the Eng. (1883) R. 432.

Rule 373 enables the Court to direct a preliminary point of law, to be decided, which may prevent the necessity for trial of issues of fact.

Rule 259 contains provision of a similar kind for enabling a point of law to be raised in the pleadings and to be decided at the same time as issues of fact, or at a different time.

The present Rule enables the Court to direct one or more issues of fact, which may decide the case, to be tried before the others: see Sims v. New Brunswick, etc., Co., 5 Times, 148; but it is to be read in connection with sec. 57 (12) of the Act, which provides that multiplicity of proceedings is to be avoided: Village of Fort Erie v. Fort Erie Ferry Co., 13 P. R. 444.

An order for the trial of a point of law first, was made in Corporation of Preston v. Fulwood, 80 L. T. Jour. 41. See also Irvine v. Sperry, 11 P. R. 229; Smith v. Hargrove, 16 Q. B. D. 183; Temperance Colonization Society v. Evans, 12 P. R. 48, 380; Elmore v. Pirrie, 57 L. T. 333; London C. & D. v. St. E. Ry., 53 L. T. 109. See also Graham v. Temperance, etc., Ass'n Co. of N. A., 16 P. R. 526, in note to Rule 467.

Where a preliminary point of law is ordered to be tried first, the trial of the issues of fact will not take place until after the final determination of the preliminary point: Owners, etc., Maori King v. Hughes, 73 L. T. 141. See, however, notes to Rule 259.

A separation of the issues may be made at the trial, and one issue may be left to the jury and another disposed of by the Judge: Haist v. G. T. Ry., 22 Ont. App. 504; Johnson v. G. T. R., 25 Ont. 64; 21 Ont. App. 408; and his discretion will not be interfered with on appeal, unless he acted on a mistaken view of the law: Ib., and see Re Martin, Hunt v. Chambers, 20 Ch. D. 365.

In The Emma Silver Mining Co. v. Grant, 11 Ch. D. 918, Jessel, M.R., said (p. 930), that a "case is to be brought within this Rule ought to be one of simple issues. I do not think it is convenient to travel through a long record, and to get a number of complicated issues, and except them, so to say, from the pleadings." He explained in what cases the Rule had theretofore been acted upon. All had been cases in which the application was by the defendant.

In the subsequent case of Piercy v. Young, 15 Ch. D. 474, the learned Judge stated that the Rule was intended to be applied in exceptional cases only; that the object of the Judicature Act was to try all disputes together, and that, it was considered, was a beneficial object. "Separate trials of separate issues are nearly as expensive as separate actions, and ought certainly not to be encouraged, and they should only be granted on special grounds." It was there held that a defendant in a partnership action, who had set up by counterclaim, an agreement by the plaintiff for sale of his interest in the partnership to the defendant, at a stated price, was not entitled to have this issue tried before the plaintiff's issues in the action.

Rules

532, 533. Where discovery of accounts and dealings is sought, but the plaintiff's right to the account is disputed, a preliminary trial of that question may be ordered: Guthrie v. Tompkinson and Co., Ld., etc., 16 P. R. 536.

In Tasmanian Railway Company v. Clark, W. N. 1870, 106; 27 W. R. 677, the Court refused leave to try the liability of a surety, before that of the principal; and the Court of Appeal declined to interfere with their discretion.

Where a reference would be ordered by the Judge as to a question of account, it is proper that the question of liability should be tried separately from the question to be so referred: Liverpool, Brazil, etc., Navigation v. London & St. Katherine, etc., Co., W. N. 1875, 203; 1 Ch. Ch. 121.

In Milnesich v. Lloyds, W. N. 1875, 200, an action for libel, an application by the defendant to have the question of libel tried before the question of damages was refused by Lush J., who said: "I do not think that I could in this case separate the question of damages from the question of fact without injury to the plaintiff." In Deat v. Sovereign Life Assurance Co., 27 W. R. 379; W. N. 1870, 33, the validity of a life policy being the matter in dispute, an application by the plaintiff that the issue, whether the deceased was a man of temperate, or intemperate, habits, should be tried first, was refused by V.-C. Bacon, who said that "this particular issue could not be severed from the rest of the case as to admit of its being heard separately by a jury."

Where the plaintiff, who had been injured in a railway accident, signed a receipt for a sum of money paid to him in full satisfaction of all claims, but, having subsequently become totally blind, he brought an action for damages, the question of law whether, owing to his conduct, the action was not maintainable, was directed to be tried first by a Judge alone before the trial of the issues of fact: Ellen v. Great Northern Ry. Co., 49 W. R. 396.

The Rule applies not merely to questions of fact, but to mixed questions of law and fact: Tasmanian Ry. Co. v. Clark, supra; Simson v. New Brunswick, etc., Co., 5 Times 148.

See also Tattersall v. National Steamship Co., in note to Rule 373, and Paolyn v. Driver, 5 Ch. D. 478.

Trial by jury

532. The trial of questions or issues of fact by a jury shall be held before one Judge, unless otherwise ordered. Con. Rule 656.

Substantially the same as Eng. (1883) R. 432.

See sec. 65 of the Jud. Act. For trials at bar, see Rules 533-536.

As to the cases in which a jury may be had, see notes to sec. 102 of supra of the Act.

Trials at the bar on the part of suitors

533. A party may [within thirty days] after issue joined, apply to the Divisional Court for a trial at bar, and the Court may, in its discretion, upon hearing the parties, grant or refuse the same. Con. Rule 657. R. S. O. 1857, c. 39, s. 33.

 sittings next after issue joined."

Semble, notice of the application is necessary: Anderson v. Gurrin, 10 Times, 383.

Presumably a trial at bar must take place before a Court of three Judges; possibly, by implication from this Rule, a Divisional Court, but it may be observed that in the matters assigned to Divisional Courts, by ss. 67, 74, trials at bar are not specifically mentioned.

534. Where the Crown is actually or immediately inter-^{in the}

See notes to Rule 573.

The notice may be served by posting up as mentioned in Rule 330.

538. Except in the cases provided for by Rule 542,

(a) Notice of trial shall be given before entering an action for trial, and may be according to Form No. 65. Con. Rule 660.

Compare Eng. 1883, R. 437.

For Form No. 65, see H. & L. Forms No. 789.

Except under Rule 542.

Rule 539.

10 days' notice.
Short notice 5 days.

(b) Ten days' notice of trial shall be given, and shall be sufficient in all cases, unless otherwise ordered by the Court or a Judge. Short notice of trial shall be 5 days' notice. Con. Rule 661.

Compare Eng. (1883) R. 438.

It was held under the C. L. P. Act, that the commission day of the assizes might be included in computing the days for notice of trial; Morell v. Wilmot, 20 C. P. 378; and the computation of the ten days will be so made under Rule 344. See Harper v. Morn, 3 C. L. T. 309.

A defendant cannot (unless he be asking an indulgence) be required to accept less than ten days' notice of trial; Laskier v. Tekewin, 67 L. T. 121; but where a special order is being made as to going down to trial, there is jurisdiction to give special directions as to notice of trial; Barter v. Holdsworth, 1899, 1 Q. B. 266; 79 L. T. 434; 15 Times 84, where an order was made providing for ten days' notice of trial expiring on the day on which the trial was to take place.

Entry for trial.

(c) After notice of trial is given, either party may enter the action for trial. If both parties enter the action for trial at the same sitting, it shall be tried in the order of the plaintiff's entry. Con. Rules, 663, 667.

Time of entry for trial.

(d) Actions shall be entered for trial not later than the third day next before the first day of the sittings; but the Judge at the trial may permit any action to be entered after the time above limited. Con. Rule 665.

Non-jury actions

(e) An action which is to be tried without a jury, may be entered for trial at any sittings appointed for the place named for the trial of such action. Con. Rule 666.

See Grant v. Middleton, 10 P. R. 585.

This Rule does not apply to non-jury actions to be tried at Toronto; Rule 542 applies to such cases.

Notice of trial was amended nunc pro tunc where given for trial at Belleville, naming the day fixed for the Assizes at Picton, the Belleville Assizes being over, and the party served not having been misled; Walker v. Terry, 7 P. R. 340; so where "September" was inserted instead of "October," as the mistake could not mislead; Bank of Montreal v. Cameron, 7 P. R. 188; see also O'Brien v. Wells, 20 C. L. J. 369; and McBride v. Carroll, 14 P. R. 70.

Where, after notice of trial given by plaintiff, the defendant obtained an order postponing the trial on payment of costs, this was held to be a conditional order not staying the plaintiff's proceedings, and one which the defendant was at liberty to abandon without being liable to pay other than the costs of the application; Allen v. Mathers, 9 P. R. 477.

As to both parties giving notice of trial, see notes to Rule 539.

The ten days are computed in the usual way, exclusively of the first day and inclusively of the last, under Rule 344.

A defendant is entitled to the full ten days' notice, and there is Rule 538, no power to compel him to take less, unless he has consented to take short notice, or unless short notice can be imposed as a term of granting an indulgence to the defendant: Hamilton Prov. & L. Soc. v. McKim, 13 P. R. 125; Whitney v. Stark, ib., 129. See also Laakier v. Tekirian, 67 L. T. 121; Qua v. Woodmen of the World, 5 O. L. R. 51; but where a special order as to trial is being made it may provide for a notice of trial shorter than the usual 10 days: see Barter v. Holdacorth, 1890, 1 Q. B. 266; 70 L. T. 434.

Where, by arrangement, papers were served by mail, notice of trial posted in time, but received one day short of the ten, was set aside: McDonough v. Alison, 9 P. R. 4. But, except by consent, service cannot be effected by mailing; a notice sent by mistake to defendants' solicitors, the envelope of the letter being addressed to them instead of to the plaintiffs' solicitors' agents for service, and returned by mail on seeing that the letter was not intended for them, was held not to be good service: Newsome v. Mutual Life Insurance Co., 3 O. L. R. 253.

On motion to set aside a notice of trial served a few minutes late, service having been admitted, but immediately afterwards repudiated, it was held that unless service of a good notice was negatived, the notice should not be set aside: Wright v. May, 8 O. R. 218.

Actions to be tried by jury must be entered not later than six clear days next before the first day of the sittings: 2 Ed. vii, c. 14, s. 3 (3).

provides that no notice of trial shall be countermanded, except by consent, or leave of the Court, or a Judge. This Rule has not been adopted in the Ontario Rules. By the former Common Law practice countermand was permitted, but not by the Chancery practice. Since The Indicture Act, notice of trial cannot be countermanded, by either party: Friendly v. Carter, 9 P. R. 43.

Remanet.—In the case of a remanet, no notice of trial was formerly necessary: Donovan v. Boulthce, 10 P. R. 52; but must now be given under Rule 544, except in the case of non-jury actions at Toronto. A case postponed by order at the trial, on defendants' application, is a remanet: Donovan v. Boulthce, supra.

Entry of Action for Trial.—The present Rule abolished both the former Com. Law and Chy. practice (see R. S. O. 1877, c. 59, s. 248, and Chy. Order 163), and requires the entry to be made not later than the third day next before the first day of the sittings, unless with the Judge's permission. It may be made on any earlier day, after notice of trial is given: clauses (a), and (d).

Sunday is, under Rule 343, to be excluded in computing "the third day": Parr v. Lough, 3 C. L. T. 312.

The entry is made on præcipe (H. & L. Forms, No. 281) in the proper office, in Toronto in the Registrars' office, Rules 21 (b), 40, 541, and 542, and in other places the Local Registrar, or, where there

A defendant cannot (unless he be asking an indulgence) be required to accept less than ten days' notice of trial: Luskier v. Tekelo, 67 L. entered for trial at any sittings appointed for the place named for the trial of such action. Con. Rule 666.

See Grant v. Middleton, 10 P. R. 585.

This Rule does not apply to non-jury actions to be tried at Toronto: Rule 542 applies to such cases.

Notice of trial was amended nunc pro tunc where given for trial at Belleville, naming the day fixed for the Assizes at Picton, the Belleville Assizes being over, and the party served not having been misled: Walker v. Terry, 7 P. R. 340; so where "September" was inserted instead of "October," as the mistake could not mislead: Bank of Montreal v. Cameron, 7 P. R. 188; see also O'Brien v. Wells, 20 C. L. Where, after notice of trial given by plaintiff, the defendant obtained an order postponing the trial on payment of costs, this was held to be a conditional order not staying the plaintiff's proceedings, and one which the defendant was at liberty to abandon without being liable to pay other than the costs of the application: Allen v. Mathers, 9 P. R. 477.

As to both parties giving notice of trial, see notes to Rule 539.

The ten days are computed in the usual way, exclusively of the first day and inclusively of the last, under Rule 344.

A defendant is entitled to the full ten days' notice, and there is Rule 338, no power to compel him to take less, unless he has consented to take short notice, or unless short notice can be imposed as a term of granting an indulgence to the defendant: Hamilton Prov. & L. Soc. v. McCham, 13 P. R. 123; Whitney v. Stark, Id., 120. See also Laskier v. Tekjian, 67 L. T. 121; Qua v. Woodmen of the World, 5 O. L. R. 51; but where a special order as to trial is being made it may provide for a notice of trial shorter than the usual 10 days: see Baxter v. Holdsworth, 1800, 1 Q. B. 206; 70 L. T. 434.

Where, by arrangement, papers were served by mail, notice of trial posted in time, but received one day short of the ten, was set aside: McDonough v. Allison, 9 P. R. 4. But, except by consent, service cannot be effected by mailing; a notice sent by mistake to defendants' solicitors, the envelope of the letter being addressed to them instead of to the plaintiffs' solicitors' agents for service, and returned by mail on seeing that the letter was not intended for them, was held not to be good service: Newsome v. Mutual Life Insurance Co., 3 O. L. R. 253.

On motion to set aside a notice of trial served a few minutes late, service having been admitted, but immediately afterwards repudiated, it was held that unless service of a good notice was negatived, the service should not be set aside: Wright v. Hay, 8 P. R. 238.

Where notice of trial is set aside on the application of one of several defendants, the plaintiff should notify the others that it has been set aside, or he may have to pay their costs of the day: Knight v. Ridgeway, 14 P. R. 81.

Where, after notice of trial has been served, the pleadings are re-opened and new issues are to be tried, the notice of trials falls, and a new record must be prepared, and a new notice of trial given: see Confederation Life v. Labatt, 18 P. R. 238.

Countermand of Notice not Allowed.—Eng. (1883) R. 443 provides that no notice of trial shall be countermanded, except by consent, or leave of the Court, or a Judge. This Rule has not been adopted in the Ontario Rules. By the former Common Law practice countermand was permitted, but not by the Chancery practice. Since The Judicature Act, notice of trial cannot be countermanded, by either party: Friendly v. Carter, 9 P. R. 41.

Remanet.—In the case of a remanet, no notice of trial was formerly necessary: Donovan v. Boulthée, 10 P. R. 52; but must now be given under Rule 544, except in the case of non-jury actions at Toronto. A case postponed by order at the trial, on defendants' application, is a remanet: Donovan v. Boulthée, supra.

Entry of Action for Trial.—The present Rule abolished both the former Com. Law and Chy. practice (see R. S. O. 1877, c. 70, s. 248, and Chy. Order 163), and requires the entry to be made not later than the third day next before the first day of the sittings, unless with the Judge's permission. It may be made on any earlier day, after notice of trial is given: clauses (a), and (d).

Sunday is, under Rule 343, to be excluded in computing "the third day": Parr v. Lough, 3 C. L. T. 312.

The entry is made on præcipe (H. & L. Forms, No. 381) to the proper officer, in Toronto in the Registrars' office, Rules 23 (b), 40, 541, and 542, and in other places the Local Registrar, or, where there Rule 539. is to Local Registrar, the Deputy Clerk of the Crown in jury cases, and to Deputy Registrar in non-jury cases; Rule 38 (2).

The effect of clauses (c) and (d) of this Rule is to supersede the former Common Law practice, by which the defendant could obtain a side-bar rule for costs of the day where the plaintiff gave notice of trial but did not enter the case. The defendant can enter the action, or if the plaintiff fails to do so, the defendant may apply to the Judge under clause (d). No officer has now power to issue a rule for costs, and the Master in Chambers has no jurisdiction to entertain an application for them; Hopkins v. Smith, 9 P. R. 287, see Tonstey v. Hepper, 57 L. T. 481, under the English practice.

Action not entered.

Where, after the plaintiff has given notice of trial, neither party enters the case, the defendant may, under Rule 433, move to dismiss the action for want of prosecution; see also Crick v. Heckett, 27 Ch. D. 374; Sierier v. Spearman, 70 L. T. 132 (decided upon the terms of Rules 433, and 440, of the Eng. Rules of 1883).

Record.

539. The party entering an action for trial shall, at the time of entry (or, in the cases to which Rule 542 applies, at or before the time when the notice of trial is to be filed), deliver to the proper officer one copy of the whole of the pleadings in the action for the use of the Judge at the trial, and such copy shall be certified as a true copy by the officer having charge of the pleadings filed, and shall be called the Record. Con. Rule 664. Rules of 1 Jan., 1896, 1405, amended.

Comp. Eng. (1883) R. 454.

The following regulation has been made by the President, and Chief Justices, of the High Court of Justice, dated October 28th, 1891:—

"Whereas, it is necessary for the due administration of justice, and avoidance of delays and unnecessary expense, that records entered for trial should show the state of the action against all the defendants, including those who have not appeared, or as against whom the pleadings have been noted closed, or any interlocutory, or final, judgment has been signed;

Therefore, from and after the first day of January next (1900), all officers passing records are hereby directed, and required, to see that they contain, in addition to a certified copy of the pleading, a note or memorandum stating the state of the action as against every defendant or defendants who has, or have, put in no defence, or as against whom the action has been discontinued.

No extra charge is to be made for such note or memorandum.

All officers and clerks when entering causes for trial, or for hearing on motion for judgment, are required to see that the same are in a proper state for trial, or hearing, and are not otherwise to enter the same; and for that purpose may require either the production of the record, or a certificate of the state of the action, when the necessary information cannot be obtained from their own books of office."

Where the record is lost a new one may be made up: see White v. Hutchinson, Tay. 307; if the pleadings are opened after the record has been entered for trial a new record must be made up and entered: see Confederation Life v. Lubatt, 18 P. R. 238, supra, p. 741. Rules 540-542.

540. The party entering an action for trial shall indorse on the copy of the record, whether the matter for trial is an assessment of damages, or an undefended issue, or a defended issue; and the officer with whom the action is entered shall make two lists, and enter each action in one of the said lists, in the order in which the actions are entered for trial with him; and in the first list he shall enter all the assessments and undefended issues, and in the second list all defended issues. Con. Rule 669. Separate lists of defended and undefended issues.

Taken from R. S. O. 1877, c. 50, s. 249.

541. In actions entered for trial at Toronto the Registrar to whom is assigned the superintendence of the business of setting down such actions shall receive and account for the fees payable under The Jurors' Act or otherwise, on entering the action for trial, whether the same are payable in money or stamps. New. Fees on entering for trial.

For the fees payable, see Tariff B, item 37.

542—(1) Actions to be tried at Toronto without a jury, may be set down for trial by either party immediately after the close of the pleadings. Setting down and notice of trial in non-jury
cases, York.

(2) Notice of trial (which may be according to Form No. 66) shall be given, by the party setting down the action for trial, within 2 days thereafter, and he shall within 4 days after so setting down the action, file the notice of trial and proof of the service thereof, with the officer by whom the action was set down.

For Form 66, see H. & L. Forms, No. 790.

(3) Where default is made in filing the notice of trial as aforesaid, any party who has been served therewith may within 4 days after such default, file in like manner the notice of trial served on him and proof of the service thereof.

(4) Where a notice of trial is filed, as aforesaid, the action shall be placed by the proper officer upon the list of cases

Rules 543, 544. for trial upon the expiration of three weeks from the date of the setting down.

(5) If more parties than one have caused the action to be placed on the list of cases for trial, it shall be tried in the order of the first entry. New.

Where the pleadings are re-opened after service of a notice of trial, see Confederation Life v. Labatt, 18 P. R. 238, supra, p. 741.

Withdrawal of record by consent.

543. An action may be withdrawn from trial by either party, upon producing a consent in writing, signed by the other, but not otherwise except by order. Con. Rule 610.

Same as Eng. (1883) R. 291, which was framed to obviate the necessity of applying to the sitting Judge for leave.

As to discontinuance of the action after it has been entered for trial, see notes to Rule 430.

At Common Law, a plaintiff who had entered a cause for trial might withdraw the record at any time before the jury were sworn. This was often a hardship, where the defendant was ready with his witnesses and counsel. Under the present clause, leave is necessary for the withdrawal of a record, unless all parties consent, and in Learmouth v. Croll, 1 Charl. Ca. (Court) 100, Huddleston, B., refused an application to postpone the trial fixed for a few days thereafter, though counsel for the plaintiff was not sufficiently instructed in the case; and he referred the plaintiff to the Judge who was to sit on the day appointed for trial, for leave to withdraw the record.

Any order made at the trial for withdrawal or postponement, and requiring to be issued, should be signed by the officer who acts as Registrar at the trial: Waghorn v. Hawkins, 12 P. R. 145.

Orders at the trial for amendment of pleadings do not require to be issued: the amendment is made on the record: Rule 314, and orders respecting postponements, not containing any special terms, may not require to be issued.

For the effect of withdrawal of a juror, see Thomas v. Exeter Flying Post, 18 Q. B. D. 822.

Actions
not tried.

544. Actions not tried or disposed of after being once entered for trial shall remain for trial, and shall not, except in the case of actions entered for trial without a jury at Toronto, be heard at any subsequent sittings, unless and until a fresh notice of trial is given. Rule of 15 December, 1888, amended.

The object of the present Rule is to make it necessary (except in non-jury actions in the County of York) to give a new notice of trial whenever a case becomes a remnant: see "Remnant" in note to Rule 538.

For the previous practice, see 11, & L. Jud. Act, 2nd ed., p. 707.

The effect of the Rule seems to be, that actions not reached at Rules the Assizes may not be entered for trial at the non-jury sittings (and 545, 546. vice versa) without consent or leave: see Ward v. Jackson, 12 P. R. 225, and that, if withdrawn, a further fee for entering at another sittings must be paid.

It has been held that where a Judge has no time to try a case, owing to his having to go to another circuit town, though he may make the case a remand, he should not direct it to be tried at another place: Fairbairn v. Household, 73 L. T. 513. This case seems to have turned on the circumstance that the Judge had not power to change the venue, which power he would have in Ont.; see secs. 45 and 46, of the Act, supra, pp. 38, 39.

545. If, when an action is called on for trial, the plaintiff appears, and the defendant does not, the plaintiff may prove his claim as far as the burden of proof lies upon him. Non-ap- Con. Rule 672. pearance of defendant.

Same as Eng. (1883) R. 455.

Before the Jud. Act, 1881, in actions of ejectment, if the defendant did not appear at the trial, the plaintiff was entitled to a verdict without any proof: R. S. O. c. 51, s. 32. Now, ejectment suits are on the same footing in that respect as other suits: see Guillet v. Clark, referred to and discussed in 72 L. T. Jour. 398.

In the cases dealt with by this Rule, it has been held in England that the plaintiff need not prove service of the notice of trial: Chorlton v. Dickie, 13 Ch. D. 160; Dacres v. Footc, W. N. 1890, 70; 88 L. T. Jour. 397; Baird v. E. R., etc., Racecourse, W. N. 1891, 144. See, however, The Avenir, 9 P. D. 84. This is in accordance with the former practice at Law. There had been a previous decision by Fry, J., the other way: Cockshott v. London General Cab Co., 26 W. R. 31; W. N. 1877, 214. See note to next Rule. But, in the absence of any decision to the contrary, it would seem proper that, where judgment has been pronounced in the absence of a defendant, the officer with whom the judgment is entered should require due proof of service of notice of trial, or of motion for judgment, to be filed with him before entering the judgment, unless the proof has been given at the trial: see Glasgow v. Glasgow, 9 Ont., 511 (n).

The plaintiff's proof of his claim is of course limited to the allegations of his statement of claim: Barker v. Farloag, 1891, 2 Ch. 179, and he is entitled to the relief claimed, and such other relief as is consistent therewith: see Stone v. Smith, 37 Ch. D. 188; Kingdon v. Wick, 37 Ch. D. 141.

If the defendant has a counter-claim and does not appear at the trial, the plaintiff is entitled to have judgment on his claim on proving it, and to have the counter-claim dismissed with costs: Lundey v. Beokes, 41 Ch. D. 323.

546. If, when an action is called on for trial, the defendant appears, and the plaintiff does not, the defendant, Non-ap- if he has no counter-claim, shall be entitled to judgment dis- pearance of plaintiff.

Rule 547. missing the action, but if he has a counter-claim he may prove such claim as far as the burden of proof lies upon him. Con. Rule 613.

Same as the Eng. (1883) R. 456.

In such case the defendant is entitled to judgment dismissing the action with costs; Facrell v. Wale, 30 L. T. 95, and cases infra, without going into evidence though the onus of proof may be on him; Armauer v. Bate, 1891, 2 Q. B. 233; 65 L. T. 437; it has been held in England that the defendant need not prove the service of notice of trial on him; James v. Crow, 7 Ch. D. 410; and Re Paterson, Skipper v. Skipper, 32 W. R. 83; 40 L. T. 553; following Ex parte Lucas, 7 Ch. D. 160; not following Cockle v. Japer, 7 Ch. D. 56, and see note to Rule 545. But where notice of trial had been given by the plaintiff, and he filed a liquidation petition, under which a trustee had been appointed, and no one appeared at the trial for the plaintiff or trustee, proof of service of notice on the trustee was held to be necessary; Eldridge v. Burgess, 7 Ch. D. 411.

On application a judgment dismissing an action may be set aside, and the action restored to the list, upon proper terms; see Rickes v. Williams, 24 W. R. 700; Breed v. Jackson, 10 Times, 142, and notes to Rules 630 and 778. As to restoring cases struck out on account of the absence of counsel, see Harey v. Rango, 12 Jur. 445; and as to costs so occasioned, Gadsdon v. Hall, 7 Cl. & Fin. 549.

A judgment dismissing the action under this Rule is equivalent to a judgment on the merits, and is a bar to another action for the same cause; Armauer v. Bate, 1891, 2 Q. B. 233.

The practice in England, where the plaintiff does not appear, is not to swear the jury, and any costs which the defendant may incur, by having the jury sworn in such case, the defendant may not be entitled to get taxed; Lane v. Ecc, W. N. 1876, 86.

Where a test action came on for trial, and the plaintiff was not prepared to proceed and applied for a postponement, to which order the circumstances, so far as his own interest was concerned, he was not entitled, it was held that the Court could not regard the rights of the plaintiffs in the other actions, and must dismiss the action with costs; Robinson v. Chadwick, 7 Ch. D. 878. See note supra, p. 612.

Exclusion
of witnesses.

547. The Judge at the trial shall, at the request of either party, order a witness to be excluded from the Court until he is called to give evidence, and also, if the Judge deems it expedient, a party intending to give evidence; or he may require such party to be examined before the other witnesses on his behalf. Any such witness or party who does not conform to such order shall be liable to be punished as to the Judge may seem just, and the Judge may, in his discretion, exclude the testimony of any witness or party who does not conform to such order. Con. Rule 674.

Taken from R. S. O. 1877, c. 50, s. 260, but redrawn so as better to carry out the intention of that section.

See Sievwright v. Sievwright, S P. R. 81. and note supra, p. 615. Rule 548.

A plaintiff calling defendant as a witness is not entitled as of right to re-examine in the nature of cross-examination. The Judge has a discretion to refuse to allow such cross-examination: Price v. Manning, 42 Ch. D. 372; 61 L. T. 537.

A party calling a witness is not thereby debarred from calling another witness to contradict him: Stanley Piano Co. v. Thomson, 32 Ont. 341.

In England, parties as well as witnesses may be excluded from Court during the examination of other witnesses: Outram v. Outram, W. N. 1877, 75, but a witness will not be excluded during the reading of affidavit evidence: Penniman v. Hill, 24 W. R. 245. See also W. N. 1876, 297. In Ontario the exclusion of parties is in the discretion of the Judge under this Rule.

A hearing in camera may be allowed in a proper case: Mellor v. Thompson, 31 Ch. D. 55, and 25 C. L. J. 597; 82 L. T. Jour. 297; 88 L. T. Jour. 40; and per Lord Fitzgerald, in Macdougall v. Knight, 14 App. Cas. 206-7.

548.—(1) At the trial, the addresses to the jury shall be regulated as follows:—

Addresses of Counsel at trial.

(a) At the conclusion of the case of the party who begins, if the opposite party states his intention to be not to adduce evidence, and he has not adduced evidence, the party who begins shall have the right to address the jury a second time at the close of his case for the purpose of summing up the evidence, and the opposite party shall have the right to reply.

(b) If the opposite party does not state his intention to be not to adduce evidence, or if he has adduced evidence, he shall have the right to open his case, and (after the conclusion of such opening), to adduce such evidence as he thinks fit, and where all the evidence is concluded, to sum up the evidence, and the party who begins shall have the right to reply.

(2) Where a defendant claims a remedy over against a co-defendant, he shall have the right to address the jury after the co-defendant.

(3) Where a party is represented by counsel, the right conferred by this Rule shall be exercised by his counsel. New. See Con. Rule 675.

Compare Eng. (1883) R. 460.

This Rule is a statement in slightly altered form, for clearness' sake, of the effect of the former Con. Rule 675, which was taken from R. S. O. 1877, c. 50, s. 261.

Rule 548.

See also Crim. Code, 1892, sec. 661, and Reg. v. Gardner, 1890, 1 Q. B. 170.

The right of defendant's counsel to sum up the evidence, is not a Common Law right, and cannot be insisted on in a Court (e.g., a County Court in England), where it is not customary; see Dymock v. Watkins, 10 Q. B. D. 451.

Custom in England has established a distribution of the work on opening, examining of witnesses, and summing up, among the counsel engaged, which is not followed in Ontario; see Kino v. Rudkin, 6 C. B. D. 100; Metzler v. Wood, 26 W. R. 125.

In Ontario usually the course of proceeding at a trial is as follows. The counsel having the right to begin opens the case by an address to the Court and jury, in which he states the facts of the case and the nature of the issue to be tried, and the evidence by which he proposes to prove his case. He then produces the evidence. If at the conclusion of his case, the opposite party desires to produce evidence, he is entitled to address the Court and jury, stating the nature of his case and the evidence he proposes to produce in support of it; this right, however, is not generally exercised, but without any preliminary address, he adduces his evidence. Evidence in reply may be then adduced by the party who began, and at the conclusion of the evidence, the counsel who did not begin addresses the Court and jury on the whole case, and the counsel who began then replies. If, however, the party who did not begin adduces no evidence, then the counsel who began addresses the Court and jury on the whole case at the conclusion of the evidence, and the opposite party replies. In trials before a jury, therefore, there are usually but three addresses, viz.: the opening speech before any evidence is adduced, and the two addresses at the conclusion of the evidence. Where defendants are represented by different counsel, each defendant is entitled to be heard by his own counsel.

Where a trial takes place before a Judge without a jury, the opening speech is frequently dispensed with, the reading of the pleadings being considered a sufficient statement of the case.

The right to begin is not altered by this Rule. The party upon whom the burthen of proof lies is the party entitled to begin; Harr. C. L. P. Act, 2nd ed., 291. Generally the burthen of proof lies on the party who asserts the affirmative on the record, i.e., the affirmative in substance, and not merely in form. If there is a presumption of law in favour of the pleading of either party the onus probandi is cast upon his adversary, though he may thereby be called on to prove a negative. Where there are conflicting presumptions, the onus probandi lies on the party having in his favour the weaker presumption of the two. But where the case of a party rests on the proof of some particular fact, of the truth or falsehood of which, he must from its very nature be peculiarly cognizant, the onus of proving the fact lies on him, even though there be a presumption of law in favour of his pleading; and where the plaintiff sues for damages and it is necessary for the plaintiff to show the amount of damages sustained, he is entitled to begin, even though the affirmative of the issue be on the defendant, but if the affirmative of the issue is on the defendant, and plaintiff's counsel will not undertake to offer proof of substantial damage, the defendant is entitled to begin; Id., 292, 293; Best on Right to Begin, 3, 5, 12, 21, 23.

An incorrect ruling as to the right to begin is no ground for a new trial unless the ruling "did clear and manifest wrong"; Harr. C. L. P. Act, 2nd ed., 293.

The right to begin is important, as it also involves, as we have seen, in some measure the right to reply. The right of reply, as far as the Attorney-General is concerned when appearing for the Crown, or any counsel appearing for the Crown having written authority from the Attorney-General for that purpose, is unaffected by this Rule, as he has always the right to reply, no matter who may have begun: see Rule 238.

As to the reason for giving the right of reply, see per Lord Esher, in Fletcher v. L. & N. W. Ry. Co., 1892, 1 Q. B. 122.

The effect of clause (2) is to confirm the decision in Stillman v. Toronto, 20 Ont. 98, as to the time when counsel for a third party defending the action shall address the jury. The object is to give the plaintiff a reply against both the original defendant, and the third party.

As to when a third party, who has obtained liberty to contest the plaintiff's claim, is entitled to be heard on an appeal by the plaintiff from a judgment dismissing the action, see Ewing v. Toronto, 18 P. R. 137.

549. Where, through accident or mistake or other cause, a party omits or fails to prove some fact material to his case, the Judge may proceed with the trial, subject to such fact being afterwards proved at such time and subject to such terms and conditions as to costs and otherwise, as the Judge shall direct; and if the case is being tried by a jury, the Judge may direct the jury to find a verdict as if such fact had been proved, and the verdict shall take effect on such fact being afterward proved as directed; and if not so proved, judgment shall be entered for the opposite party unless the Judge otherwise directs. This Rule shall not apply to an action for libel. Con. Rule 676.

Evidence omitted by accident or mistake, how supplied.

No corresponding Eng. R.

This Rule merely enables a party to supply proof of some fact omitted before the trial is concluded, the verdict of the jury, if any, being taken on the assumption that it will be proved before judgment is given.

As to the power of a Judge or a Divisional Court, or the Court of Appeal, to receive new evidence on an appeal, see Rule 498 and notes.

As to obtaining a new trial on the ground of the discovery of fresh evidence, see notes to Rule 785.

As to motions to reverse or vary judgments on discovery of new matter, etc., see Rule 642 and notes.

The abstaining by a party from proof, under an idea that his adversary had no real intention of putting him to such proof, and being thereby taken by surprise, is no ground for a new trial: Andrews v. Stuart, 1 C. L. T. 724. See also Henth v. Pugh, 6 Q. B. 13, 357.

Rule 550.

At the close of defendant's case plaintiff was not allowed to call a defendant whom he had expected to be called on his own behalf, the plaintiff's counsel admitting that he had not been misled by any misrepresentation, that this defendant would be called on his own behalf: Barker v. Furlong, 1891, 2 Ch. 172.

Where a party is taken by surprise by a point made against him at the hearing, the Judge may, if he thinks right, at any stage of the trial allow him to produce rebutting evidence; and if such permission is refused, the appellate Court will, in a proper case, permit the fresh evidence to be adduced on the appeal: Bigsby v. Dickinson, 4 Ch. D. 24, and Rules 498, 585.

In a suit for an injunction to restrain a nuisance caused by a chemical manufacturer, the plaintiff's counsel applied at the close of his speech for liberty to adduce evidence to explain (as the plaintiff's witnesses had had no opportunity of doing) certain evidence of the defendant's witnesses as to various vapours arising from a material (asphalt) stated to be used in the manufacture of varnish used by the plaintiff, and to show that the word asphalt had a double meaning; it was held that the evidence should be admitted: Bigsby v. Dickinson, supra.

* A Judge may, at any period in a case, allow further evidence to be called, for his own satisfaction, by either party, even though it is doubtful whether the party is entitled to put in such evidence at all: Budd v. Davison, 29 W. R. 192.

The Court on argument of a motion by the plaintiff for a retrial, allowed the plaintiff to give in evidence the proclamation bearing into force the Ontario Factory Act: Dean v. Ontario Cotton Mills Co., 14 Ont. 119; and see Burford v. DuMoulin, 21 Ont. 584; so in Cooke v. McMillan, 5 O. W. R. 507, an affidavit proving the dates of the deaths of two persons was allowed to be filed on an appeal, formal proof not having been given at the trial, though the dates were made known to the Judge.

In an action for false arrest and malicious prosecution, arising out of a false information laid by defendant, a certified copy of the information being objected to, leave was given to put in afterwards the original, and an exemplification of the judgment of acquittal: Hamilton v. Broatch, 17 Ont. 679.

issues.

550. Where equitable issues are raised by the pleadings, they shall be heard and tried, and the damages, if any, incidental thereto, assessed by the Judge without the intervention of a jury; but he may order such issues to be tried or damages assessed by a jury. Con. Rule 677, amended.

Taken from R. S. O. 1877, c. 50, s. 257.

Where equitable issues alone are raised, a jury is not of right, but of grace, under this Rule; see Adamson v. Adamson, 12 P. R. 160. In such cases a jury notice would be irregular, and might be struck out.

Where both legal and equitable issues are raised, it was held under the former Con. Rule 677 (at a time when separate non-jury sittings were held by the Judges of the Chancery Division), that there was no right to a jury, and a jury notice if given was irregular and might be struck out: Baldwin v. McGivie, 15 P. R. 305; Adamson v. Adamson, supra; but when the Judges of the Chancery Division (under Rule 1277 (at 4th January, 1894), held both jury and non-jury sittings, Rules 551, 552. it was decided that a jury notice could not be regarded as irregular: Tooood v. Hindmarsh, 17 P. R. 446; see also Bristol, etc., v. Taylor, 15 P. R. 310; Fox v. Fox, 17 P. R. 161. It has now been made clear by Rule 551 (which amends the former Con. Rule 678) that a jury notice may be given, and, if given, the action must be entered at the jury sittings, when the legal issues will be tried by a jury (unless the Judge otherwise directs under the Jud. Act, sec. 110), but the equitable issues must be tried without a jury, pursuant to Rule 550, unless the Judge otherwise directs.

Where there are both legal and equitable issues, it is within the power of the Judge to direct the equitable as well as the legal issues to be tried by the jury: Rae v. McDonald, 13 Ont. 364; see also Wright v. Sun Mutual, 20 C. P. 236.

It would now seem not to be in the power of a Judge in Chambers, or the Master in Chambers, or other like judicial officer, before trial, to make an order for the trial of equitable issues by a jury. The former Con. Rule 677 provided that the Court or a Judge upon application for the purpose might so order, but the present Rule is different, and the alteration seems to have the effect of leaving the mode of trial entirely in the discretion of the Judge at the trial.

As to striking out a jury notice, and the discretion of the Judge at the trial, see further sec. 110 of the Act and notes.

R. S. O. 1877, c. 50, s. 257, was formerly held to apply to an action of ejectment where equitable issues were raised: Bryan v. Mitchell, 5 P. R. 302. Under the Jud. Act and Rules the rule will of course be the same in an action for recovery of land as in other actions.

551. Where both legal and equitable issues are raised, Where both legal and equitable issues. and notice for a jury has been given, or the action is one to which section 109 of The Judicature Act, 1895 (a), applies, the action or proceeding shall (unless the Court or a Judge otherwise orders, in cases to which said section 109 does not apply) be entered for trial at the proper jury sittings, and (subject to Rule 550 and sections 111 (b) and 114 (c) of the said Act), such issues shall be tried at the same time, unless the Judge presiding at the trial otherwise directs. Con. Rule 678, amended.

See notes to Rule 550.

(a) Now R. S. O. c. 51, s. 102. (b) Now ss. 105 and 106. (c) Now s. 110.

552. Damages in respect of any continuing cause of Assessment of damages action shall be assessed down to the time of the assessment. Con. Rule 680.

Taken from Eng. (1883) R. 482.

See Fritz v. Hobson, 14 Ch. D. 542.

Rule 553. A continuing cause of action is a cause of action arising from repetition or continuance of acts or omissions similar to those in respect of which the action is brought; for example, pollution of a stream: Hole v. Chard Union, 1894, 1 Ch. 203; 7 R. 84; 70 L. T. 52; see also Ratté v. Booth, 10 P. R. 619; 14 Ont. App. 419; 17 A. C. 188; obstruction to light: Jenks v. Clifden, 1897, 1 Ch. 601; 76 L. T. 382.

This Rule is merely declaratory of what was the practice in Equity prior to the Judicature Act: Stalker v. Dunwich, 15 Ont. 342; Lacour v. Burns, 24 Ont. 28; Hole v. Chard Union, supra.

Where damage is caused to land, causing subsidence, there is a fresh cause of action on every fresh subsidence, and the recovery of damages for one subsidence is no bar to another action for damages occasioned by a subsequent subsidence: Darby Main Colliery Co. v. Mitchell, 11 App. Cas. 127; 54 L. T. 82; Crambie v. Wallend, 1891, 1 Q. B. 503.

Adjournment of trial.

553. The Judge may postpone or adjourn the trial. Con. Rule 681.

The Eng. (1883) R. 458 (which is like the former Con. Rule 681), is fuller, providing expressly that the adjournment may be granted if "expedient for the interests of justice," and may be on terms. These provisions are implied in the present Rule. Where the hearing of an action was adjourned to allow the plaintiffs to add parties, the plaintiffs were ordered to pay all the costs incurred by the action having been in the paper for hearing, and not merely a fixed sum for costs of the day: Lydall v. Martinson, 7 Ch. D. 780; Smith v. Bond, 18 P. R. 76, and see 18 P. R. 296.

Where a plaintiff seeks relief in respect of matters not covered by his statement of claim, an amendment is necessary, which, in general, will only be granted on the terms of adjourning the trial to give the defendant time to consider the fresh claim, and the plaintiff paying all costs thrown away, including the costs of the day: Cobb v. Stringer, 100 L. T. Jour. 181; Karunaratne v. Ferdinandus, 1902, A. C. 405.

The trial of an action to recover damages for personal injuries was ordered to be postponed at the instance of the defendants, on the ground that sufficient time had not elapsed to enable the damages to be properly estimated: Speers v. Great Western Ry., 6 P. R. 170.

Motions to postpone the trial may, of course, be made before the trial, and should be so made, where practicable, in Chambers, before expense in preparing for trial is incurred.

For terms imposed where defendant obtained an order for postponement on payment of costs, and then notified plaintiff's solicitor that defendant would not pay the costs and that the trial must go on, upon which plaintiff applied to postpone, see Allen v. Mathers, 13 C. L. J. 79.

The Master in Chambers, on a motion to postpone the trial, has under this Rule, power to impose terms, e.g., giving security for the amount sued for: Bank of Hamilton v. Stark, 13 P. R. 13.

The costs of postponing a trial, on account of the absence of a material witness, will be costs in the cause, where diligent efforts have been made to secure attendance: Brown v. Porter, 11 P. R. 250;

but where the application is not made promptly, the applicant may Rule 554.
be ordered to pay the costs of the application and adjournment: Mc- William v. McDonald, 22 Gr. 362.

As to costs of the day on a postponement of the trial, see Out- water v. Mullett, 13 P. R. 509.

See Faichurn v. Household, etc., 53 L. T. 513, in note to Rule 544.

554. The Judge may, at or after the trial, direct that judgment be entered, or may adjourn the case for further consideration. Con. Rule 682.

Judge may direct entry of judgment; or reserve
judgment.

Substantially the same as Eng. (1881) R. 401.

See notes to sec. 67 of the Act, and Rule 610.

The Judge at the trial cannot against the will of the plaintiff's counsel, non-suit the plaintiff on the opening address, without hearing the evidence; Fletcher v. L. & V. W. Ry., 1892, 1 Q. B. 122; but where there is some evidence adduced by the plaintiff, but it is not of such a nature as would warrant the jury in finding a verdict in his favour, the Judge may direct a non-suit; Hiddle v. National F. & H. Ins. Co., 1896, A. C. 372; 74 L. T. 291.

Where at the trial it appears, at the close of a plaintiff's case, that there is no evidence against one of the defendants, it is within the discretion of the Judge whether he will then direct a verdict in such defendant's favour, or wait till the whole evidence in the cause closes; Parrell v. Great Western Railway Company, 34 L. T. 129; see 1 Q.
B. D. 636.

In such a case, the action being for negligence, one of the defendants called witnesses, the effect of whose evidence was to throw the blame on his co-defendant, and they were cross-examined by the latter's counsel, a verdict being found against this defendant and in favour of the other; it was held that these circumstances did not entitle the unsuccessful defendant to object to the verdict; Id.

Where there are several distinct issues to be tried, the Judge may, without the consent of the parties, accept the verdict of the jury upon those issues on which they agree, and discharge them upon the others, leaving the parties, if they think fit, to take down the undecided issues to a new trial; and the Court will give judgment on the decided issues, and has power to send down the undecided issues to a new trial; Marsh v. Isaacs, 45 L. J. C. P. 505.

Where a Judge, after trying a case without a jury, reserves judgment and dies without having given it, the case must go down to trial again; Clarke v. Trask, 1 O. L. R. 207.

Where the jury, in answer to questions, gave answers which were disagree not consistent with one another, they were sent back for reconsideration of ation of the inconsistent answers; Peuchen v. Imp. Bank, 20 Ont.
325.

This Rule repealed in effect R. S. O. 1877, c. 51, s. 34, under which judgment in ejectment, unless the Judge at the trial otherwise directed, could not be entered before the 5th day of the term following. Under the present Rules judgment in actions to recover land, as in all others (see Rule 630), may be entered at once unless the Judge otherwise directs; see Rudd v. Frank, 17 Ont. 558.

Rule 554

After a judgment by consent has been passed and entered, it can not afterwards be varied on the ground of mistake, except for reasons sufficient to set aside an agreement: Attorney-General v. Tatham, 7 Ch. D. 388; such a judgment creates an estoppel between the parties: Re South American Co., 1895, 1 Ch. 37; 71 L. T. 594. As to appeals in such cases, see s. 72 of the Act and notes.

Where the Judge does not at the trial direct judgment to be entered, this Rule enables him, as formerly under R. S. O. 1877, s. 50, s. 292, to indorse on the record at any time subsequent thereto a direction for judgment, upon which judgment may be entered as though the indorsement had been made at the trial; or he may, after the facts have been found by the jury, or by the Judge at or after the trial, indorse the finding, and leave the parties to move for judgment before him.

Where, at a trial by jury, a motion for a non-suit is made at the close of the plaintiff's case, and again at the close of the whole evidence, and the Judge adopts the course of taking a verdict, and of considering the motion afterwards, he may, if he considers that there was no evidence to go to the jury, dismiss the action: Macdonald v. Mail Printing Co., 32 Ont. 163; 2 O. L. 11, 278; no power to direct judgment to be entered for defendant on the ground that there was no evidence to go to the jury, was assumed in De v. Felix, 4 Ex. D. 33; see also Rocke v. McKerrow, 24 Q. B. 41, 463; 62 L. T. 556; though there the Judge on consideration could not say that there was no evidence to go to the jury. See also s. 65 of the Act, and Dunn v. Simpinis, 48 L. T. 543, and Hanilton v. Johnson, 5 Q. B. D. 263; but where the jury have found for the plaintiff and there is evidence to support the finding, it cannot be disregarded, and a judgment contrary to it cannot be entered: Kelly v. Davidson, 32 Ont. 8; 27 Ont. App. 487; Perkins v. Dauphin, 37 L. T. 535; Conn. Mutual v. Moore, 6 App. Cas. 644; McDonald v. Mail Printing Co., supra; Burns v. Clark, 37 C. L. J. 32, a case the finding is on an immaterial issue, and the Judge is of opinion that, on the undisputed facts, the defendant is entitled to judgment: Hargrove v. Dominion Council of Templars, 2 O. L. R. 79, 80.

Where the jury answers questions purely in favour of each party, so that no judgment can be entered for either party, the Judge may decline to enter any judgment, and the case then stands as upon a disagreement of the jury, and may be brought on again for trial as if the findings did not exist: Rule 781. If either party thinks that the findings justify a judgment in his favour, his course will be to move for judgment upon them at or after the trial; if the Judge declines to enter any judgment the motion will be dismissed, and an appeal may be had from the decision or order on the motion for judgment: see notes to Rule 781.

Under the corresponding Eng. R. judgment was in Peters v. Perry, 10 Times, 266, entered for the defendant, where the jury had disagreed. By the express terms of Rule 780, if the jury disagree and find no verdict, the Judge at or after the trial may dismiss the action; and see Bank of B. N. A. v. Eddy, Patterson, J.A., November, 1883. In that case the action was upon promissory notes; the defence relied on was the insolvency of the defendant, and his discharge under a deed of composition and discharge duly confirmed. In reply the plaintiffs attacked the discharge on the grounds of fraud and fraudulent preference. Objections were taken to the validity of the discharge upon facts which were undisputed, and as to certain other matters of fact which were disputed, evidence was gone into, to show that the discharge had been obtained by fraudulent preference of a creditor, and by giving to that creditor a valuable security. Rule 556. At the trial the defendant objected that there was no evidence to go to the jury. Without deciding whether there was, or was not evidence, the question was left to the jury by the Judge, and this and all other questions were reserved for discussion on motion for judgment. The jury disagreed and therefore left the question unanswered. Nevertheless, both parties moved for judgment, the plaintiffs contending that on the undisputed facts, objections fatal to the discharge were established; the defendant contending that the discharge was good as against such objections, and that there was no evidence proper to go to the jury on the issue of fraud, or fraudulent preference. Both motions were refused though apparently considered proper in point of form, the Judge being of the opinion that the issue as to the validity of the discharge could not properly have been withdrawn from the jury, and that the undisputed facts were not, without the matters left to the jury for consideration, sufficient to decide the question as to the validity of the discharge.

As to the effect of the withdrawal of a juror, see Thomas v. Exeter, etc., Con. 18 Q. B. D. 822.

Unanimity of the jury is no longer necessary, the verdict of 10 out of 12 is sufficient; R. S. O. c. 51, s. 108 (1). If any juror is discovered to have an interest in the result, or to be a relative of any of the parties, he may be discharged and the trial may proceed before the remaining 11, of whom the verdict of 10 is sufficient; Id., s. 109.

The judgment of the Court should not go beyond the relief claimed by the pleadings. In Karunaratne v. Ferdinandus, 1902, A. C. 405, the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council annuadverted on the Court below having awarded relief not covered by the issues raised on the pleadings. There the question raised on the pleadings was whether a will was good or bad in toto, and the judgment found it was good as to personality.

Staying Entry of Judgment, or Execution.—Unless the Judge at the trial stays the entry of the judgment, it may be entered forthwith; see Rule 630.

An application to stay the entry of judgment, or the issue of execution, is best made at the trial when all the facts are known to the Judge. If not made till later it may be necessary to show on affidavit circumstances making a stay just; see Tuck v. Southern Counties, etc., Bank, 61 L. T. 159.

Where a stay of execution has been refused by the Judge at the trial, an application to the Court must be supported by special circumstances, and allegations that the verdict or judgment was against the weight of evidence, or that there was no evidence to support the verdict or judgment, or that there was misdirection, are not special circumstances; Monk v. Bartram, 1891, 1 Q. B. 346.

As to stay of execution and other proceedings in the action in the event of an appeal to the Court of Appeal, or a Divisional Court, see Rules 827, 829.

555. Exhibits put in at the trial shall be numbered, and marked according to Form No. 208. Con. Rule 683. Rules of 1 January, 1896, 1468.

List of exhibits.

556. The officer attending the trial shall, at the conclusion thereof, make a list of the exhibits put in, stating the number thereof and giving a description of each exhibit, and stating by whom the same were respectively put in. The exhibits of each party shall be classified separately in such list. Such list may be according to Form No. 209. New.

For Form No. 209, see H. & L. Forms, No. 794.

Exhibits.

557. Where exhibits are put in at the trial they shall remain in Court until judgment is given and during any stay of proceedings, and thereafter shall be delivered out, without order, to the parties respectively, upon the application of either party upon notice to the other side, unless a motion is made to the Divisional Court or an appeal is taken to the Court of Appeal, in which case the exhibits shall, unless otherwise ordered, be retained until such motion or appeal is disposed of. Rules of 1 Jan., 1896, 1470.

Chy. O. 179 modified.

A regulation of the Judges passed on 17th December, 1904, provides as follows:

"6. When the Judge at a trial reserves judgment in any case, elsewhere than at Toronto, the Clerk of the Court shall forthwith forward the record and exhibits to the Central Office.

"7. All local officers of the Court when sending papers or exhibits to the Central Office shall indorse on the wrapper enclosing such papers or exhibits, the short style of cause, the title of the officer sending them, and the purpose for which they are sent.—e.g., 'James v. Smith. From Local Registrar at Brantford, for Appeal to Divisional Court' or 'For Mr. Justice Magee'—or as may be."

By whom entries of findings to be made.

558. The officer attending the trial shall enter all such findings of fact as the Judge may at the trial direct to be entered, and the directions, if any, of the Judge as to judgment, in a book to be kept for the purpose, and the findings shall also be indorsed on the Record. Con. Rule 687.

See Eng. (1883) R. 465.

The practice under the English Rule is substantially the same as that which this Rule provides, except that the certificate is not required to be indorsed on the copy of the pleadings.

As to the effect of a judgment pronounced but not signed, see note to Rule 629.

Certificate of Judge or officer.

559. The indorsement or a certificate of the said officer according to Form 207, shall be sufficient authority to the proper officer to sign judgment accordingly. Con. Rule 688.

The Eng. (1883) R. 465, is the same in substance.

For Form 207, see H. & L. Forms No. 795.

560. Except in cases provided for by clause (4) of Rule 40 after judgment has been delivered, or verdict entered, the record and exhibits and the list thereof shall be retained by, or forwarded to, the officer whose duty it is to settle the judgment, and the parties shall be at liberty to inspect the same: after judgment has been settled the record and exhibits and list thereof shall be retained by, or forwarded to, the officer whose duty it is to enter the judgment, and shall be retained by him, subject, however, to the provisions of Rules 337 and 557. Rules 1 Jan., 1896, 1471.

Record, etc., to be retained in Court.

In the County of York records and exhibits are forwarded by the Clerk of Assize to the Central Office, from which when required before the Registrar settling the judgment, they can be obtained on his requisition: see Rules 40 (4), 338. The judgment, when settled, is entered in the office where the action was commenced: Rule 628.

In other counties, where judgment is given at the trial, the record and exhibits are retained by the officer who attends as Registrar at the trial, if he is the officer in whose office the proceedings were commenced, as in that case he is the proper officer to enter judgment: Rule 628; or when the judgment is settled by him (Rule 628), they are forwarded by him to the officer in whose office the proceedings were commenced, and where the judgment is to be entered: Rule 628.

Other counties.

Where judgment is reserved at the trial, the record and exhibits must be forwarded to the Central Office: see Regulation of 17th December, 1904, in note to Rule 557; and after judgment is given should be transmitted to the officer who is to settle the judgment.

When the record and exhibits are required on a motion before the Divisional Court, they may be forwarded to the Central Office, under Rule 337.

2. TRIAL OF HIGH COURT CASES IN COUNTY COURT AND Vice Versa.

561. In any of the cases in sections 90 and 91 of The Judicature Act, 1895, (a) the notice of trial or assessment of damages shall state that the cause will be tried, or the damages assessed at the Sittings of the High Court or County Court, according to the fact. Con. Rule 690.

562. A motion to be made, in respect to the trial, judgment, verdict or assessment of damages in a High Court case tried or assessed at the Sittings of any County Court, shall be made in the High Court or the Court of Appeal, according to the alternative right given in other cases. Con. Rule 693.

Motion

verdict, etc., in County Court cases tried at High Court
Sittings.

563. A motion in respect to the trial, judgment, verdict or assessment of damages in any County Court case tried at a Sittings of the High Court, shall unless otherwise ordered, be made at the sittings of the Divisional Court at which a motion would be required to be made if the action were in a High Court, and according to the practice of the High Court; and any order made in that Court shall be final and shall not be subject to appeal. Con. Rule 694. Rules of 1 Jan., 1896, 1473.

Taken from R. S. O. 1877, c. 49, s. 37.

See Edmunds v. Hoey, 35 U. C. Q. B. 495.

In a County Court case directed to be tried in the High Court, the case is only in the High Court for trial. For other purposes, it remains in the County Court, so that a motion to set aside notice of trial must be made in the County Court; Clark v. Clifford, 7 P. D. 329. So also motions to postpone the trial are to be made in the County Court; this was expressly provided by former Rule 694, now omitted as unnecessary.

Powers of Judge as to County Court cases tried before him.

564. In any action in a County Court entered for trial at any Sittings of the High Court, the Judge presiding at the Sittings shall have the same powers as to amendment of the pleadings and proceedings, putting off the trial, reference, making the cause a remanet, and otherwise dealing with the cause and proceedings therein, as if the action had been commenced in the High Court. Con. Rule 695.

Taken from R. S. O. 1877, c. 49, s. 38.

The Judge of a County Court may allow amendments in High Court cases coming on before him for trial; King v. Glassford, 11 C. P. 490; semble, including an amendment setting up a claim for unliquidated damages; Spencer v. Forster, 1905, 1 K. B. 434.

When Judge marks record as a remanet, etc., it may be tried at sitting or Assizes

565. Wherever the Judge indorses on the record in any such action the word "Remanet," and adds any words to the effect following: "And the within cause may be entered and tried at any County Court, or sittings of the High Court." such cause may without payment of any further fee for entering the case be entered at any subsequent Sittings of the County Court, or Sittings of the High Court, for which notice of trial may be given, and the case may be tried and disposed of in the same way as any other case entered at such Sittings. Con. Rule 696.

Taken from R. S. O. 1877, c. 49, s. 39.

566. On the application of any party, the County Court Clerk shall at the cost of the party, forward to the Central Office, a certified copy of the evidence, and the record and exhibits. Con. Rule 697. Rules 1 Jan., 1896, 1474.

3. VENATIONOUS DEFENCES IN ACTIONS TO RECOVER LAND.

567. It being desirable, in actions to recover land brought against persons who are merely intruders, not to prevent plaintiffs from recovering land to which they have just claim on account of some want of technical form in their title, or some imperfection not affecting the merits of the case, and of which mere strangers to the title, having no claim or colour of legal claim to the possession, should not be permitted to take advantage; the plaintiff or his solicitor may serve a notice upon the defendant or his solicitor in words or to the effect following:

Vexatious
merits.

"Take notice that I claim the premises for which this action is brought as the bona fide purchaser thereof, from A. B. (or as the case may be), and that you will be required to show upon the trial of this cause what legal right you have to the possession of the premises."

(Con. Rule 698.

See Doc d. Lyons v. Crawford, 6 O. S. 344; Armstrong v. Little, 20 U. C. Q. B. 425; Davis v. Van Norman, 30 U. C. Q. B. 437; Thompson v. Hall, 31 U. C. Q. B. 367; Booth v. Girdwood, 32 U. C. Q. B. 23; Thompson v. Bennett, 22 C. P. 393; Barnier v. Barnier, 24 O. S. 280.

568. If, upon the trial, the evidence of title given by the plaintiff satisfies the Court (and the jury, if the case is tried by jury) that he is entitled in justice to be regarded as the proprietor of the land or is entitled to the immediate possession thereof for any term of years, but that he cannot show a perfect title by reason of some want of form in, or to the defective registration of some instrument produced, or from any cause not within the power of the plaintiff to remedy by using due diligence, the Court, or the jury under the direction of the Court, may find a verdict for the plaintiff, unless the defendant or his counsel upon being required by the other party so to do, give such evidence of title as shows that he is the person entitled, or

Taken from R. S. O. 1877, c. 51, s. 27.

Verdict to be indorsed as rendered under Rules

569. Where a verdict or judgment is rendered or given under the authority of Rule 568, it shall be indorsed as rendered or given under Rules 568 and 569, and it shall be stated in the judgment to have been so given, and in any action thereafter brought for mesne profits, such judgment shall not be evidence to entitle the plaintiff to recover. Con. Rule 700.

Taken from R. S. O. 1877, c. 51, s. 28.

4. INSPECTION OF PROPERTY AND VIEWS BY JURIES.

Judge may inspect.

570. The Judge, by whom any cause or matter is tried with or without a jury, or before whom any cause or matter is brought by way of appeal, may inspect any property or thing concerning which any question arises therein. Con. Rule 701.

Where a Judge takes a view of premises or property in dispute, semble, he should do so in presence of the parties, so as to avoid any mistake as to the property viewed being that in dispute.

Inspection of real or personal property by jury, parties or witnesses.

571. A party in a cause or matter may apply to the Court or a Judge for an order for the inspection by the jury or by himself or by his witnesses, of any real or personal property, the inspection of which may be material to the proper determination of the question in dispute, and the Court or a Judge may make such order upon such terms as to costs and otherwise, as the Court or Judge may think fit. Con. Rule 702. Rules of 1 Jan., 1896, 1475.

Taken from R. S. O. 1877, c. 50, s. 168. See Eng. R. (1883) 671.

Rule 571 is confined to cases in which the property of which inspection is sought is in the possession, custody or control of the party against whom the order is desired: Hills v. Union Loan, etc., Co., 10 P. R. 1.

This Rule is intended apparently to apply to inspection for the purposes of a trial; further provision is made by Rule 1096 for obtaining inspection in other cases.

A Judge on the trial of an action of deceit can take a view of the property, or matter, in litigation, in lieu of taking the evidence of witnesses, e.g., on a question of colourable imitation: London

General Omnibus Co. v. Lavell, 1901, 1 Ch. 135; 83 L. T. 453; but Rule 572. In an action to restrain the passing off of goods of the defendant as those of the plaintiff, it is said that the Judge looking at the exhibits before him, and also paying due attention to the evidence adduced, must not surrender his own independent judgment to any witness: per Lord Macnaghten, Payton v. Saelling, 1901, A. C. 311; and see Civil Service v. Dun, 1879, 13 Ch. D. 512; North Cheshire & M. B. Co. v. Manchester B. Co., 1899, A. C. 83; Hecla F. Co. v. Walker, 14 App. Cas. 555; Houldsworth v. McCrea, 1867, L. R. 2 H. L. 380; Bonnie v. Swan, 1903, 1 Ch. 211. Sed quare, if there is any distinction between the two classes of action, and whether the function of the Judge is not the same in both, viz., to determine whether, in view of a comparison, there is any evidence.

Liberty was given under the similar Irish Rule to inspect a ship lying in harbour on which it was alleged that certain timber, part of the subject matter of the action, had been placed by defendant for removal: Morris v. Howell, 22 L. R. Ir. 77.

Under Eng. (1883) R. 654, property has been ordered to be sent out of the jurisdiction for inspection by witnesses who are to be examined by commission: see notes to Rule 499, supra, p. 721.

There is no power to order the Sheriff of one county to bring a jury of that county to view lands in question in another county: Stoke v. Robinson, 6 Times, 31.

572. Upon any application for a view by a jury, there shall be an affidavit stating the place at which the view is to be made, and the distance thereof from the Sheriff's office. Unless the Court or Judge otherwise orders, the party obtaining the order for the view shall deposit with the Sheriff the sum of $25 in case of a common jury, and $34 in case of a special jury if such distance does not exceed 5 miles; and $31 in case of a common jury, and $43 in case of a special jury, if the distance be above 5 miles; and if such sum shall be more than sufficient to pay the expenses of the view, the surplus shall forthwith be returned to the party who obtained the view, or his solicitor, and if such sum shall not be sufficient to pay such expenses, the deficiency shall forthwith be paid by such party or his solicitor to the Sheriff. Con. Rule 703.

1. DEFAULT OF APPEARANCE.

(i) Generally.

Effect of not appearing

573. Except where otherwise provided by these Rules or where otherwise ordered by the Court or a Judge, a defendant who fails to appear shall not be entitled to notice of any subsequent proceedings in the action. New.

A similar provision is made in the case of a defendant not delivering a statement of defence, and against whom the pleadings are noted as closed: see Rule 584.

As to notice of assessment of damages, see Rule 537.

As to re-service of amended writ on a defendant who has not appeared, see notes p. 526.

Where a reference is directed, notice is to be given of the first proceeding before the Master to every party affected, unless expressly dispensed with by the Master: see Rule 658.

Proceedings in default of appearance.

574. Where a defendant fails to appear, the plaintiff before taking proceedings upon default of appearance shall file an affidavit of service of the writ or the notice in lieu thereof. [for the undertaking of the defendant's solicitor accepting service and agreeing to enter an appearance, Rule 575. with an affidavit verifying the undertaking filed], as the case may be. Con. Rule 704.

This Rule corresponds with the Eng. (1883) R. 102, except that the clause in brackets is not in the latter. Rule 145 provides for a solicitor's acceptance of service, and undertaking to appear. Rule 645 prescribes the procedure in case of default of appearance to a writ indorsed under Rule 140, with a claim for an account; and see Rule 575, as to specially indorsed writs.

A defendant who had not appeared is nevertheless entitled to notice of an application to appoint a receiver by way of equitable execution: Tilling v. Blythe, 1899, 1 Q. B. 557; 80 L. T. 44; and so also of an application to discontinue against a co-defendant sued as a joint tortfeasor: Jennings v. Scripps (Div'l Court, 14th Nov., 1904). But notice of filing a report need not be served on a defendant who has not appeared, or taken any part in the reference: Toronto General Trusts Corp. v. Craig, 2 O. L. R. 238.

The substitution of notice in lieu of service of the writ, is authorized in cases where the Court sees fit to allow that mode of service, whenever the plaintiff is unable to effect prompt personal service: Rule 146.

Notice of the writ, and not the writ itself, is required to be served where the defendant is served out of the jurisdiction and is not a British subject: see Rule 165.

Where a notice was served in lieu of a writ, an affidavit stating that defendant had been served with "a notice in writing, a true copy of which is hereto annexed," was held sufficient: Bustros v. Bustros, 14 Ch. D. 849. In cases, however, to which Rule 150 applies, the affidavit of service should state the day on which the indorsement of the time of service was made.

The writ should be annexed to the affidavit of service in accordance with the former practice: The Eppos, 32 W. R. 154; 49 L. T. 604.

This Rule must be complied with, and an affidavit of service of the writ filed, before a statement of claim can be served on default of appearance: Appleby v. Turner, 19 P. R. 145, 175, and see Lovell v. Taylor, 5 O. W. R. 525.

As this Rule requires an affidavit it has been held that the Court will not accept a certificate, though British consuls; in the country to which the defendant belonged, had instructions not to administer oaths to subjects of that country: Ford v. Miescke, 16 Q. B. D. 57.

575. Where the writ is specially indorsed for a debt or liquidated demand in money under Rule 138, and any defendant fails to appear, the plaintiff, notwithstanding that the writ may be indorsed with any other claim, may, as against such defendant, sign final judgment for any sum not exceeding the amount for which the writ is so specially indorsed, together with interest as claimed to the date of the judgment, and for his costs, without prejudice to his right to proceed with the action against any Where writ is specially indorsed for a debt or liquidated demand.

Rule 575. other defendants, and as to any other claims indorsed. See Con. Rules 705, 706, 711.

See Eng. (1883) R. 103, which, however, does not admit of a judgment being signed where there is any other claim indorsed on the writ besides the special indorsement.

Under the Rules, claims properly the subject of a special indorsement may be combined with others which are not, and, in default of appearance, final judgment may be signed for the former, and the action may be proceeded with as to the other claims.

The present Rules therefore override a number of decisions settling the former practice: see Hollender v. Foulkes, 16 P. R. 175; Salmes v. Stafford, ib., 264; McVicar v. McLaughlin, ib., 450, and cases there referred to. The Rule was applied in Huyck v. Wilson, 18 P. R. 44.

"Specially Indorsed."—See notes to Rules 138 and 603.

Where judgment is signed purporting to be under this Rule, but the writ is not specially indorsed, the judgment is a nullity: Hoffman v. Crecer, 18 P. R. 473, 19 P. R. 15; Appleby v. Turner, 19 P. R. 145, 175; Star Life v. Southgate, 18 P. R. 151.

Where several defendants.

Where there are several defendants jointly liable, some of whom appear, and some of whom do not, judgment may be signed under this Rule against the latter without prejudice to the plaintiff's claim against the others: and see Montgomery v. Ferris, 20 L. R. Ir. 282; Rice v. Dillon, 28 L. R. Ir. 376; and Dueber Watch Case Mfg. Co. v. Taggart, infra, p. 781. But if the plaintiff sues and recovers judgment against one of two joint debtors, without making up other a party, the latter is discharged: Hammond v. Schofield, 1891, 1 Q. B. 453; Toronto Dental Mfg. Co. v. McLaren, 14 P. R. 89; such a judgment will not be vacated on the plaintiff's application in order to join the co-debtor, even with the defendant's consent: Hammond v. Schofield, supra, and see Hoffman v. Crecer, 18 P. R. 473; 19 P. R. 15.

See also note to Rule 228, p. 424, and to Rule 605, p. 807.

If a plaintiff alleges a joint liability against two defendants and signs judgment against one, and at the trial only proves a sole liability against the other defendant, he cannot recover against him: so also where defendants are sued as alternatively liable, if the plaintiff enters final judgment against one of them, he cannot thereafter proceed against the other: Morrell v. Westmoreland, 1903, 1 K. B. 64; 1904, A. C. 11; 89 L. T. 702 (a case of husband and wife); Cross v. McHeus, 117 L. T. Jour. 220 (a case of principal and agent).

But where a judgment entered against a person erroneously assumed to be liable, was void under a statute, and was set aside by consent, it was held to be no bar to a subsequent action against other persons liable for the debt: Keating v. Graham, 26 Ont. 361.

In an action on a promissory note, the plaintiff may sign judgment on default of appearance to a specially indorsed writ, without production of the note: Oliver v. Fryer, 7 P. R. 325.

Where an action is commenced in a local office, a judgment by default should be entered in the local office: Chamberlain v. Armstrong, 18 C. L. J. 99, and see Rules 15, and 628.

Where the copy of writ served was not an accurate copy, the date being 1880 instead of 1882, this was held not to be a fatal error, and a motion to set aside a judgment signed was refused: Wesson v. Stalker, 47 L. T. 444.

in addition

Judgment can only be signed for the amount due at the time the writ was issued, not for claims which had not then matured: Park v. Patton, 3 C. L. T. 264; but see Hughes v. Justin, infra.

In an action for foreclosure, and on the covenant for payment, judgment was signed on a claim on the covenant under this Rule: Bisect v. Jones, 32 Ch. D. 635; but the practice in Ontario is not to sign a separate judgment on the covenant, but to sign one judgment which awards relief on the covenant, and also provides for redemption or sale, or foreclosure.

Judgment may be signed by default of appearance against a married woman, when the writ is specially indorsed, and, in the case of contracts entered into before 13th April, 1897, the special indorsement should allege that she had, when she made the contract, and still has, separate estate: Nesbitt v. Armstrong, 14 P. R. 366; and see Felley v. Griffith, 36 W. R. 96; 37 L. T. 873; but that allegation is not necessary in the case of contracts made after 13th April, 1897; see R. S. O. c. 163, ss. 3 and 4, and notes to Rule 199, p. 336.

Forms of judgment will be found in the App. Nos. 139 and 140; H. & L. Forms, Nos. 802, 803.

Where the judgment is against a married woman it must follow the usual form in such cases, see notes to Rule 199, supra, p. 352.

Execution.—Execution may in all cases be issued forthwith, unless otherwise ordered: see Rule 843. This was not the case under original J. A. Rule 72, and R. S. O. 1877, c. 50, s. 64. Cornish v. Janning, 18 C. L. J. 143; 2 C. L. T. 105, and Macdonald v. Crombie, 2 Ont. 241, decided under the former practice, are no longer applicable.

Setting aside Judgment by Default.—See also Rule 633.

Under R. S. O. 1877, c. 50, s. 64, it was provided that an application to set aside a judgment must be based upon affidavits "accounting for the non-appearance, and disclosing a defence upon the merits." Under the present Rules the matter is left at large to the discretion of the Court or Judge; but, no doubt, in practice, the non-appearance will have to be explained, and a defence shown. The terms commonly imposed have been the payment by the defendant of the costs of the application, pleading without delay, and sometimes bringing money into Court; see Harrison C. L. P. Act (R. S. O. 1877, c. 50, s. 64; Arch. Pr., 13th ed., 790, and 800; and Smith v. Dobbin, 3 Ex. D. 349. In Hillyard v. Swan, 12 P. R. 223, the judgment and execution were directed to stand as security. See also Ontario Bank v. Burk, 10 P. R. 561, 565.

aside
judgment.

Where the defendant paid the claim sued on, after the writ issued, a judgment subsequently entered for non-appearance, for the amount of the claim and costs, was set aside as irregular: Hughes v. Justin, 1894, 1 Q. B. 667; 70 L. T. 365.

Substituted service, when regularly effected, is, for all purposes, equivalent to personal service, and, even though it has in reality never come to the knowledge of the defendant, he will not be let in to defend as of right: Watt v. Barnett, 3 Q. B. D. 183, 303. Lapse of time is no bar to an application to set aside a judgment obtained by default, where no irreparable mischief will be done to the plaintiff, and the injury caused by the delay may be compensated for by payment of costs: Atwood v. Chichester, 3 Q. B. D. 722; see also Barrie v. Ballenden, W. N. 1882, 12; 46 L. T. 797, and notes to Rules 1224, and 778; but, especially after delay in moving, a judgment regularly signed, will only be set aside on proper terms; see McVicar v. McLaughlin, 16 P. R. 454.

Rule 575.

Where an appearance was duly filed, but the appearance was mislaid by the officer and not entered in his book, and in consequence a judgment for default was signed, the judgment was set aside as irregular: Moore v. Simmons, 1 C. L. J. 183; and see Bank of Montreal v. Harrison, 4 P. R. 331.

The application will not be granted to give the defendant the advantage of a technical defence: Forbes v. Middleton, 2 Str. 1242.

The following have been considered meritorious defences. The Statute of Limitations: Maddocks v. Holmes, 1 B. & P. 228; McIntyre v. The Canada Co., 18 Gr. 307; Scaton v. Fenwick, 7 P. R. 146; Usury: Trust & Loan Company of Canada v. Boulton, 18 Gr. 234; Infancy: Delafield v. Tanner, 5 Taunt. 856; Cavallier v. Michael, 17 L. T. 290; that the claim is not one that can be specially indorsed: Rogers v. Hunt, 10 Ex. 474; want of jurisdiction: Hamplyn v. White, 6 P. R. 129. As to want of stamps: see Caughill v. Clark, 9 P. R. 471.

A judgment signed for default was set aside after the lapse of two years, on the ground that the covenant sued on, which was contained in a mortgage settled by an officer of the Court, was inserted per incuriam: Brown v. Grady, 31 Ont. 73.

Where writ for a debt or liquidated demand but not specially indorsed.

576. Where the writ is not specially indorsed, but as indorsed includes a claim for a debt or liquidated demand, and any defendant fails to appear, a statement of claim including such claim need not be delivered to such defendant, but the plaintiff may file an affidavit of service of the writ or notice in lieu thereof, and file and serve a statement of the particulars of the claim stated in the indorsement upon the writ, and may, after the expiration of 8 days, sign final judgment against such defendant for the amount, not exceeding the amount indorsed upon the writ, and for his costs, without prejudice to his right to proceed with the action against any other defendants, and as to any other claims indorsed. See Con. Rule 707.

The former Rule 707 was the same as Eng. Rule, 1875, O. 13, r. 5, but this Rule is modified so as to make it conform to the other Rules, which enable other claims than those specified in Rule 138 to be indorsed on a specially indorsed writ. This Rule is evidently only intended to enable the plaintiff to obtain judgment, in the manner provided for such part of his claim as might under Rule 138 be specially indorsed.

Where, however, the indorsement on the writ includes claims not the subject of special indorsement under Rule 138, a statement of claim as to such claims must be delivered.

A claim for a specified sum for work, labour and attendance as a medical man, has been held to be a liquidated demand and capable of being made the subject of a special indorsement, or, though the writ be not specially indorsed, to entitle the plaintiff to obtain final judgment under the present Rule: Kilgurriff v. McFarlane, 8 L. R. Ir. 354.

Forms of judgment will be found in the App. Nos. 139, 140; H. & Rules L. Forms, Nos. 802, 803. As to married women defendants, see note 577, 578. (c) Rule 575, p. 771.

It is provided by Rule 1134 that the plaintiff is not to be entitled to the costs of the statement of particulars of his claim, unless the taxing officer is satisfied that there was good reason for not specially indorsing the writ, so as to render unnecessary the filing and serving such statement.

577. Where the writ is specially indorsed with a claim for the recovery of chattels under Rule 138, and any defendant fails to appear, the plaintiff, notwithstanding that the writ may be indorsed with any other claim, may, as against such defendant, sign final judgment for the recovery of the chattels and his costs, without prejudice to his right to proceed with the action against any other defendant and as to any other claims indorsed. New.

Where specially indorsed for recovery of chattels.

This is a new provision introduced in consequence of the addition of claims for the recovery of chattels to those which may now be specially indorsed; see Rule 138 (g).

It may be a question how far a plaintiff would be entitled to issue execution for the recovery of chattels in the joint possession of several defendants, some of whom appear, and some of whom do not, until he has recovered judgment against all. See Rules 584, 3.

578. Where the writ is not specially indorsed but as indorsed includes a claim for the detention of goods and pecuniary damages, or either of them, and any defendant fails to appear, a statement of claim including any such claim, need not be delivered to such defendant, but interlocutory judgment may be signed against such defendant, without prejudice to the right of the plaintiff to proceed against any other defendants, and as to any other claims indorsed; and the value of the goods and the damages, or either of them, as the case may be, in respect of the causes of action stated in the indorsement on the writ, may, unless otherwise ordered by the Court or a Judge, be assessed, as against such defendant, at a sittings of the High Court, and either before or at the same time as the trial of the action, or issue therein, against the other defendants, if any, or at the County Court of the county in which the action is brought. See Con. Rules 708, 709.

Where claim is not specially indorsed.

This Rule in effect embodies the provisions of Eng. (1883) Rs. 105, and 106, except that under the Eng. Rules interlocutory judgment cannot be signed for the value of the goods or damages, where the writ is indorsed for other claims, such as for example an injunction:

Rule 579.

see Part v. Griffiths, 28 Sol. Jour. 339; the same was the case under former Con. Rule 708; McCallum v. McCallum, 11 P. R. 16.

Under the present Rule the plaintiff may sign interlocutory judgment, and proceed with the action as to the claim for an injunction and to assess damages.

Interlocutory judgment may be entered immediately upon default of appearance; and the indorsement on the writ will govern the inquiry as to damages without any pleading.

The old learning on the subject of "conversion" need not be reported into the system introduced by The Judicature Act, which provides for redress in case the plaintiff's goods are wrongfully detained, or in case he is wrongfully deprived of them; Stacey v. Block, 11 Ont. 103.

A form of interlocutory judgment will be found in the Appendix Form No. 145, (H. & L. Forms, No. 810), and of judgment in default of appearance after assessment of damages, No. 147 (H. & L. Forms, No. 811).

A claim indorsed "for damages for slander" is for pecuniary damages within this Rule, there being nothing to show that the action is brought under section 5 of the Act respecting Libel and Slander, R. S. O. 1897, c. 68; Stanley v. Litt, 19 P. R. 161; but whether the Rule would apply to an action for libel or slander brought under that section, quære; Id.

It would seem that, under this Rule, where the action is brought for the specific recovery of chattels, the plaintiff may, upon default of appearance, have judgment for the delivery of the chattels, and may then enforce that judgment under Rule 572; Leary v. Church, 10 W. N. 1875, 249; per Quain, J., at Chambers.

Where a final, instead of an interlocutory, judgment was set aside, and was therefore set aside, it was held under the former practice, that the plaintiff was not forthwith entitled to take out and file the order, and sign an interlocutory judgment. The final judgment was held to be not set aside without an entry on the roll, and the defendant without laches could not be deprived of the carriage of the order; Caranagh v. Hastings Mutual, 7 P. R. 111.

Where the plaintiff claims equitable relief, e.g., specific performance of a contract, an interlocutory judgment cannot be signed in default of appearance; Stuart v. McVicar, 18 P. R. 250. In such cases, in default of appearance a statement of claim must be filed, and in default of defence a motion for judgment should be made; Id.

Mode of Assessment of Damages.—See the last clause of the Rule, and Rule 579.

An inquiry was directed before a Master on affidavit evidence in Maddonald v. Antelme, W. N. 1884, 72; and it would seem that, under Rule 579, the Court or a Judge might so order.

Assessment
of damages.

579. The Court or a Judge may order that instead of a trial or assessment the value of the goods and amount of damages, or either of them, shall be ascertained in any way which the Court or Judge may direct. Con. Rule 710.

See note to Rule 578, "Mode of Assessment of Damages."

580. Notwithstanding anything in the Rules contained, the provisions of the Act of the Parliament of Great Britain passed in the Session held in the eighth and ninth year of the reign of King William the Third, entitled An Act for the better preventing frivolous and vexatious suits, as to the assignment or suggestion of breaches, and as to judgment, shall continue in force in Ontario. Con. Rule 712.

Provisions of the Imperial Act 9 & 10
W. III. c.
11, to remain in force.

Taken from R. S. O. 1877, c. 50, s. 151

The 8th section of 8 & 9 Wm. III. c. 11 (now R. S. O. 1897, c. 324, s. 4), provides that in actions in any Court upon a bond for non-performance of any covenants or agreement in any indenture, deed or writing, the plaintiff may assign as many breaches as he thinks fit, and damages may be assessed upon any of such breaches that may be proved to have been broken, and judgment may be entered and execution issued; that execution may be stayed upon payment of the amounts; that the judgment shall stand as security to the plaintiff and his personal representatives for further breaches; that the plaintiff, upon the happening of further breaches, may apply for leave to issue execution on the judgment against the defendant, his heirs, executors, etc., and may summon him or them to shew cause why execution should not be awarded upon the judgment, upon which the Court shall make such order as may be just, and so toties quoties.

This statute was held to be confined to actions of debt, as in covenant and assumpsit there was no penalty that could stand as continuing security for future breaches: 1 Williams' Saunders, 58, b. c. & d; Lance v. Peers, 4 Burr. 2225. A bond conditioned for payment of a sum certain is not within the statute: Murray v. Lord Stair, 2 B. & C. 40; nor is a bail bond: Moody v. Pheasant, 2 B. & P. 446; McAumey v. Reilly, 13 U. C. Q. B. 197; nor a bond conditioned not to trespass: Strickland v. Williams, 1890, 1 Q. B. 382; 80 L. T. 4, the penalty in such a case being liquidated damages. A replevin bond was not formerly: Bletcher v. Burn, 24 U. C. Q. B. 259, but now is, (Rule 1073) within the statute; and an appeal bond is within the statute: Appleby v. Turner, 19 P. R. 145, 175.

In all respects, other than the matters mentioned in this Rule, the practice and proceedings in an action on a bond which is subject to 8 & 9 Wm. III. c. 11, are the same as in an ordinary action: Star Life, etc. v. Southgate, 18 P. R. 151; Appleby v. Turner, 19 P. R. 145, 175. Where the action is brought on a bond, which is within the statute of 8 & 9 Wm. III. c. 11, the indorsement of the writ should claim the full amount of the penalty, and allege the breach or breaches, and claim execution for the amount due in respect thereof. In the event of default of appearance a statement of claim appears to be necessary, which should set out the condition and specify the breaches, and in default of defence, judgment, it would seem, must be obtained under Rule 593 (not under Rule 589): Star Life v. Southgate, supra, and will be for the full amount of the penalty, but should conclude with an allegation of the condition, and of the alleged breach, and a direction to assess the damages in respect thereof in such way as may be thought proper under Rules 578, 579; Id. When the action comes on for assessment of damages, the damages in respect of the breaches for which execution is to be issued will be assessed:

Rules
581-583.

1b. Upon the damages being assessed, the judgment should be entered reciting the assessment and directing execution to issue for the amount thereof and costs.

For forms of judgment, see H. & L. Forms, Nos. 844-847.

(ii) Dower.

Action for dower.
Judgment of seisin.
Execution.
Costs.

581.—(1) Where a defendant fails to appear in an action for dower, the plaintiff may sign judgment of seisin forthwith, and sue out a writ of assignment of dower, but she shall not, unless otherwise ordered by the Court or a Judge, be entitled to costs.

On motion for judgment on the pleadings where detention and demand were denied, and defendants alleged that they always had been and were ready to assign dower, judgment of seisin was granted, but no damages (or, apparently, costs): Malone v. Malone, 17 Ont. 101.

(2) Where the plaintiff claims arrears of dower or damages for detention of her dower, neither the entry of a judgment of seisin nor the taking of proceedings for the assignment of her dower thereunder, shall prevent her from proceeding with the action for the recovery of such arrears or damages. Con. Rule 713.

See notes to Rule 177.

(iii) Recovery of Land.

Action for land.

582. Where an action is for or includes a claim for the recovery of land, other than for dower, and any defendant fails to appear, or if an appearance is entered but the defence is limited to part only, the plaintiff, notwithstanding that the writ may be indorsed with any other claim, may sign judgment against such defendant, for possession of the land, or of the part thereof to which the defence does not apply. Con. Rule 714.

This corresponds with the Eng. R. (1883) R. 108, and is in substance the same as the former practice. A form of judgment which may be adapted to meet such cases will be found in the Appendix, No. 140, (H. & L. Forms, No. 803).

This judgment does not carry costs, without an affidavit being filed to the effect mentioned in Rule 585, or an order obtained under Rule 585.

Assessment of damages in action
for land.

583. Where an action is for or includes a claim for the recovery of land, other than dower, and any defendant fails to appear, and the writ is indorsed with a claim for mesne profits, arrears of rent, or double value in respect of the premises claimed or any part of them, or damages for breach of contract, or wrong or injury to the premises claimed, the plaintiff may sign judgment against such defendant for possession as in Rule 582 mentioned; and may proceed as mentioned in the Rules 575 or 578 as the case may require as to the other claims. Con. Rule 715.

Rules
584-586.

Corresponding with Eng. (1883) R. 100. The former practice confined this right to the suit of a landlord against a tenant.

A form of judgment which may be adapted to meet such cases will be found in the Appendix, Form No. 142 (H. & L. Forms, No. 805).

Actions to recover dower are specially provided for by Rule 581.

584. Where judgment is not signed against all the defendants a writ of possession shall not be issued, unless directed by the judgment against the defendants who appear or by the order of the Court or a Judge. New.

Execution not to issue until judgment given as to all defendants.

This Rule, although in general terms, appears to be intended to be limited to actions for the recovery of land: see Form No. 174 (H. & L. Forms, No. 1081), a similar provision seems necessary in actions for the recovery of chattels in the joint possession of several defendants.

585. Where any defendant fails to appear in an action for recovery of land, other than dower, the plaintiff may sign judgment for his costs as well as for possession of the land, on filing an affidavit showing that such defendant was at the time of the issue of the writ in actual adverse possession of the land, or instead of such affidavit an order of the Court or a Judge allowing him to sign judgment as well for his costs as for possession of the land. Con. Rule 716.

Costs where adverse possession.

2. DEFAULT OF PLEADING.

586. Except where otherwise provided in these Rules or where otherwise ordered by the Court or a Judge, a defendant who fails to deliver a statement of defence and against whom the pleadings have been noted as closed, shall be deemed to admit all the statements of fact set forth in the statement of claim (or in the indorsement on the writ, where the defendant has stated in his appearance that he does not require the delivery of a statement of claim) and shall not be entitled to notice of any subsequent proceedings in the action. New.

Effect of default.

Rule 586.

This Rule in effect introduces the former Chancery practice, which entitled a plaintiff to have his bill of complaint heard pro confesso as against a defendant who put in no defence.

Under this Rule service of notice of motion for judgment on a defendant who puts in no defence will no longer be necessary. Notice of any assessment of damages must, however, be given: Rule 537. In the case of a sole defendant, if judgment cannot be entered, as of course, or a motion made therefor in Chambers under Rule 595, a motion for judgment must be made to a Judge in the Weekly Court: see Rule 606; the motion must be brought on within a year from the time when the right to move accrued, otherwise leave to move is necessary: see Rule 612; where there are other defendants who defend, the motion for judgment against a defendant who does not defend may be made at the trial of the action, or upon motion for judgment against such other defendants: see Rule 593. Where the relief sought against a defendant in default, is separable and distinct from that claimed against other defendants who defend, the motion for judgment against the party in default may properly be made without waiting until the action is ready for trial, or motion for judgment, as against the other defendants. But such a course would not be proper where the relief claimed against the party in default is bound up with that against the other parties who defend, as for example in an action to set aside an alleged fraudulent conveyance by a debtor, a motion for judgment against the debtor who made no defence would be premature, if made before the action was also ripe for hearing as against his grantee, otherwise two inconsistent judgments might be pronounced in the same action, one against the debtor declaring the conveyance impeached to be fraudulent, and another against his grantee in effect declaring it to be valid.

The difficulty in some cases about making a final order at a hearing of the action as against some defendants only, and in the absence of others, is also referred to in Cooke v. Gilbert, 40 W. R. 682; W. N. 1892, 111; MacMillan v. Australasian, etc., 176 L. T. 182.

As to noting pleadings closed for default of defence: see Rule 263. Notwithstanding that a defendant allows the pleadings to be noted as closed, the action may nevertheless be dismissed as to him, if on the trial of the action against a co-defendant the plaintiff fails to establish his case, whenever the cause of action against the two defendants is inseparable: see McDermott v. McDermott, 3 Chy. Ch. 38; and Tucker v. Gayer, before MacMahon, J., 29 April, 1898; Challoner v. Lobo, 1 O. L. R. 292.

Where a defendant, with his appearance, filed a notice to the following effect: "The defendant admits only $103, but otherwise disputes the plaintiff's claim in this action," this was held to be in effect a defence, and a judgment signed for default of defence was held to be void: Voight v. Orth, 5 O. L. R. 443.

Where a defence has been filed but mislaid by the officer and not entered in his procedure book, a judgment signed for default of defence is irregular: see Moore v. Simmons, 1 C. L. J. 183; Bank of Montreal v. Harrison, 4 P. R. 331; and where a defence is filed by defendant after the pleadings are noted as closed under Rule 263, though it is irregular, it is not a nullity, and the defendant should be notified of any motion for judgment: Jackson v. Gardiner, 19 P. R. 137.

Where after a defendant has appeared it becomes unnecessary to continue the action against him, the action should be either formally discontinued: see Rule 430; or the action should be formally dismissed against him, and it is irregular to proceed with the action without taking that course: see McLaughlin v. Stewart, 1 O. L. R. 295. Rule 587.

As to the right of a defendant in default, to notice of proceedings upon a reference to a Master, see Rule 658; or for the appointment of a receiver by way of equitable execution, Tilling v. Blythe, 1899, 1 Q. B. 557; 80 L. T. 44.

587. Where the plaintiff's claim is for or includes a claim for a debt or liquidated demand, and any defendant does not, within the time allowed for that purpose, deliver a defence, the plaintiff may, at the expiration of such time, sign final judgment against such defendant for the debt or liquidated demand claimed, with interest and costs, without prejudice to his right to proceed against any other defendant and as to any other claims. Con. Rules 719, 720, 723.

Judgment on defendant's default in claim for debt.

The original Rule 719 was identical with the Eng. R. (1883 R. 295), and in accordance with the C. L. P. Act (R. S. O. 1877, c. 50), s. 150.

The present Rule varies from the Eng. Rule inasmuch as it applies to cases where the plaintiff is suing for other claims besides a debt or liquidated demand, the Eng. Rule being confined to cases where a debt, or liquidated demand, alone is the subject of the action.

Under this Rule the plaintiff may obtain a final judgment for default of defence for a liquidated demand, and may continue the action against the same defendant for any other claim, and against co-defendants, if any, who have defended. So that it will be possible for a plaintiff to recover several final judgments in the same action for different parts of the relief claimed.

Judgment can be properly signed under this Rule only in respect of claims which can be and are specially indorsed on the writ of summons: Star Life v. Southgate, 18 P. R. 151.

Where the plaintiff's claim is in the alternative against either one of two defendants, judgment cannot be signed against both, and the signing of judgment against one is an indication of election not to proceed against the other: Morcl v. Westmoreland, 1904, A. C. 11, 14. See also Adkins.

A defendant to whom a statement of claim is delivered must deliver his defence or counter-claim "within eight days from the delivery of the statement of claim, or from the time limited for appearance, which ever shall be last, unless such time is extended by the Court or a Judge": Rule 246.

As to the case where a defendant dispenses with the delivery of a statement of claim, and none is delivered to him, see note to Rule 247.

As to the effect of delivering a defence after the time for doing so has elapsed, see notes to Rule 246.

It is held in England that in an action on a replevin bond, if the plaintiff, instead of claiming damages, claims the amount for which the bond was given, and becomes entitled to judgment by default.

Rule 587. his proper course is to enter final judgment under this Rule, and not interlocutory judgment under Rule 589: Dix v. Groom, 5 Ex. 1, 91. and see Rule 1073.

In an action for replevin, where damages are claimed as well as recovery of the chattels, Rule 1079 provides that "Where the plaintiff is entitled to sign judgment by default, he may sign final judgment for five dollars and costs, but shall not be entitled to recover a larger sum, except upon an assessment before a Judge or jury, or upon filing the written consent of the defendant or his solicitor, and an affidavit verifying the signature to such consent."

Where a defence has been struck out, e.g., for disobedience to an order for discovery, judgment may be signed under this Rule; see Fisher v. Hughes, 25 W. R. 528.

An informal defence cannot be treated as a nullity: see Voight v. Orth, supra, p. 778.

Formerly if the defendant did not appear the plaintiff could not enlarge, in the statement of claim, his claim indorsed on the writ: Law v. Philby, 35 W. R. 450; 56 L. T. 522; Gee v. Bell, 35 Ch. D. 160; Stone v. Smith, 35 Ch. D. 188; but he may do so now under Rule 244: see that Rule and notes; but where a material addition is thus made by the statement of claim, it would seem proper to require the defendant to be served therewith.

Where the plaintiff claimed interest at seven per cent., showing no ground for more than six, it was held to be the duty of the officer signing judgment to allow only six per cent.: Bank of Hamilton v. Harvey, 11 P. R. 145.

Where a defendant dispenses with a statement of claim, and does not, within 8 days after appearance, deliver a defence under Rule 247, judgment may be signed against him as in other cases where there is default of defence: Grimshaw, etc., v. McDowell, 66 L. T. Jour. 277. See Harrison v. Surrey Masonic Hall Company, cited in Chitty's Forms 116.

Counter-claim.—Although a counter-claim is regarded for some purposes as a separate action, yet in the event of a plaintiff's not putting in a defence to it, judgment cannot, even where the counter-claim is for a liquidated demand, be entered under this Rule, but the defendant will have to move for judgment: Jones v. Macaulay, 1891, 1 Q. B. 221; 64 L. T. 621; and see Rule 593.

Where Several Defendants.—In Rihel v. Livingstone, 4 C. L. T. 135, an action on a promissory note against K. & L., two joint makers, final judgment was signed under this Rule against L., and costs of the action up to judgment taxed. The plaintiff afterwards at the trial recovered judgment against K., and in taxing costs against K. the Taxing Officer held that by taxing the general costs against L., the plaintiff had waived the right to recover these costs from K. To remedy this an order was made in Chambers ex parte setting aside the judgment as to costs against L., upon shewing that he was worthless and that no steps had been taken to enforce the judgment against him.

In Wilkinson v. Garrett, 7 C. L. T. 22, judgment was obtained against defendants at different stages; against defendant R. by default of appearance, and afterwards against G. who had defended. The whole costs were ordered to be taxed against G., including the costs of judgment against R.; costs up to and including judgment Rules against R. to be also taxed against him, and, if recovered from either, 586, 589. to be credited on the judgment against both.

Joint Debtors.—A judgment recovered under this Rule against one or more partners or joint debtors does not prevent the plaintiff from proceeding in the same action to judgment against the other defendants: Dueber Watch Case Mfg. Co. v. Taggart, 28 Ont. App. 295; 30 S. C. R. 373; and other cases, supra, pp. 424 and 770.

See also Jenkins v. Davies, 1 Cb. D. 696.

588. Where the plaintiff's claim is for or includes a claim for the recovery of chattels and any defendant does not within the time allowed for that purpose deliver a defence, the plaintiff may at the expiration of such time sign final judgment for the recovery of the chattels without prejudice to his right to proceed against any other defendants or as to any other claims. New.

Or in claim for recovery of chattels.

This Rule is new, and was introduced in consequence of claims for the recovery of chattels being now included among the claims which may be specially indorsed: see Rule 138.

No provision is made similar to that in Rule 584, as to the right to issue execution where the goods are in the joint possession of several defendants, some of whom defend: see, however, Rule 3.

589. Where the plaintiff's claim is for or includes a claim for detention of goods and pecuniary damages, or either of them, and any defendant makes default as mentioned in Rule 587, the plaintiff may sign interlocutory judgment against such defendant, without prejudice to the right of the plaintiff to proceed with the action against any other defendant and as to any other claims; and the value of the goods, and the damages, or either of them, as the case may be, shall be assessed or ascertained as provided by Rules 578 and 579. Con. Rules 721, 722.

Interlocutory judgment on default in claim for damages.

The provision of this Rule, by which it applies where there are other claims besides those for detention of goods or damages, is new. In other respects it is substantially the same as the Eng. (1883) Rs. 297, 298, except that the latter provided for a writ of inquiry issuing to assess the value of the goods.

Where the claim sued for is pecuniary damages, but is not properly the subject of a special indorsement, interlocutory judgment for default of defence should be signed under this Rule, and not under Rule 587; and the damages must then be assessed before final judgment can be ordered.

Where the plaintiff's claim is for equitable relief, and damages are also claimed, interlocutory judgment cannot be properly signed under this Rule, but the action, in default of defence, must be set down to be heard on motion for judgment on the statement of claim: Stuart v. McVicar, 18 P. R. 250.

Rules

590, 591. In Ivory v. Cruickshank, W. N. 1875, 249, the action was for rent, and for the return of certain chattels: the defendant had failed to appear: it was held that the plaintiff was entitled to have judgment for the rent, and for the return of the goods.

See Dix v. Groom, in note to Rule 587.

In the case of an action on a bond which is subject to 8 & 9 Wm. III., c. 11, see notes to Rule 580.

Default by defendant
in action
for land.

590. Where an action is for or includes a claim for the recovery of land, if any defendant makes default as mentioned in Rule 587, the plaintiff may sign judgment against such defendant for possession of the land, and his costs. Con. Rule 724.

Substantially the same as Eng. (1883) R. 300.

A judgment for recovery of land (unlike the former judgment in ejectment) has the same finality as any other judgment: see Bull v. Cathcart, 16 Ont. 525; Cochrane v. Hamilton Prov., 15 Ont. 128.

Where claim for land and damages.

591. Where the plaintiff with a claim for the recovery of land also claims mesne profits, arrears of rent, or double value in respect of the premises claimed, or any part of them, or damages for breach of contract, or wrong or injury to the premises claimed, if any defendant makes default as mentioned in Rule 587, the plaintiff may sign judgment against such defendant for possession and costs as in Rule 590 mentioned, and may proceed as mentioned in Rules 587 to 589 as to the other claims. Con. Rule 725.

Substantially the same as Eng. (1883) R. 301.

The judgment where it is for a liquidated sum for arrears of rent, may, it would seem, be final in the first instance, and not interlocutory as under Rule 589.

Where mesne profits were claimed on a specially indorsed writ in an action for the recovery of land, on a motion for judgment under Rule 603 the mesne profits were ordered to be calculated up to the date when the plaintiff should recover possession: Southport Tramways Co. v. Gandy, 1897, 2 Q. B. 65; but whether judgment could be entered as of course for mesne profits accruing subsequent to the date of the judgment seems doubtful, although there appears to be authority for saying that whenever a judgment is authorized to be entered without motion, it may properly embody all such provisions as would be included in the judgment if pronounced by the Court on a hearing pro confesso: see Kirkpatrick v. Howell, 22 Gr. 94. A judgment for mesne profits up to the date of recovery of possession would seem to necessitate its being framed so as to direct a reference to ascertain the amount, inasmuch as the amount to be recovered could not be ascertained until the writ of possession to be issued under the judgment should be executed.

592. Where a judgment is not entered against all the defendants a writ of possession shall not be issued unless directed by the judgment against the defendants who defend, or by the order of the Court or a Judge. New.

Rules
592, 593.
Execution not to issue till judgment against all defendants

This Rule, although new, seems nevertheless merely to be declaratory of what was formerly the practice.

It applies obviously to actions for the recovery of land, and prevents a plaintiff from issuing execution to recover possession of the land in question against some defendants, so long as there are others on the record, as against whom he is not entitled to judgment, without first obtaining leave; which leave will ordinarily not be granted, so long as the plaintiff's right to possession is in dispute.

593.—(1) In all cases other than those provided for in Rules 587 to 592, if any defendant in the action or by counter-claim makes default in delivering a defence in the action or to the counter-claim, as the case may be, the plaintiff in the action or by counter-claim may, after causing the pleadings to be noted as closed as to the party in default, move for judgment as against such defendant either before or at the time judgment is applied for against the other defendants, and such judgment shall be given, upon the statement of claim or counter-claim respectively, as the Court may consider the plaintiff in the action or by counter-claim respectively to be entitled to. Con. Rules 727, 728. Rules 23 June, 1894, 1350. amended.

actions.

(2) Where a judgment is obtained under this Rule against any defendant after a judgment has been signed against such defendant under any of the preceding Rules, the costs of the signing of one judgment only shall be taxed unless otherwise ordered. New.

The first clause of this Rule contains the provisions contained in the former Rules 727, 728, and in addition provides explicitly for obtaining judgment on a counter-claim to which no defence is delivered. The construction placed upon Eng. Rules (1883) 304, 305 (on which the former Rules 727, 728, were based), was that the term plaintiff in the Rules included a plaintiff by counter-claim; Jones v. Macaulay, 1891, 1 Q. B. 221.

Before a case is set down on motion for judgment under this Rule the officer with whom cases are set down is required to see that all preliminary proceedings are regular, so that the action is in a condition to be set down as asked; see note to Rule 609, p. 765.

Defendants who have filed no defence are not entitled to notice of motion for judgment, unless the Court or Judge otherwise orders it, see Rule 586.

Where the plaintiff by his statement of claim has materially varied his claim as indorsed on the writ, it would seem to be proper that,

Rule 593. unless the defendant has been served with the statement of claim, he should be notified of the motion; and as only the statement of claim will be before the Court on a motion for judgment, it should be the duty of the plaintiff to inform the Court of such variation; it being a well understood rule that on all ex parte applications the utmost candour must be observed.

On a motion for judgment in default of defence, a plaintiff will be confined to the relief asked by his statement of claim; thus, where by his statement of claim the plaintiff asked for specific performance and ancillary relief, but not for any declaration of lien, upon motion for judgment as in default of defence, it was held that the plaintiff could not have a declaration of lien: Tacon v. National Standard Land Co., 50 L. T. 165; nor a rescission of the contract: Stone v. Smith, 35 Ch. D. 188; 56 L. J. Ch. 871.

Where by the statement of claim, in an action for specific performance, the plaintiff craved leave to refer to the agreement, and the property did not appear except by reference to the agreement, it was held that the allegations were insufficient, as nothing beyond the statement of claim could be looked at: Smith v. Buchan, 36 W. R. 631; 58 L. T. 710; Faithfull v. Woodley, 43 Ch. D. 287.

If a statement of claim against a married woman on a contract, made before 13th April, 1897, does not allege the possession of separate estate, no judgment can be given: Tetley v. Griffith, 36 W. R. 96; 57 L. T. 673; see notes to Rule 190.

Where plaintiff's claim was dismissed by interlocutory order, defendant was held to be entitled to proceed under this Rule for judgment on his counter-claim: Higgins v. Scott, 21 Q. B. D. 10; Roberts v. Booth, 1893, 1 Ch. 52.

Where no defence is put in to a counter-claim, it is only by motion that judgment can be obtained, even though the counter-claim be in respect of a debt or liquidated demand: Jones v. Macaulay, 1891, 1 Q. B. 221; 64 L. T. 621.

Where a part of the plaintiff's claim is for a debt or liquidated demand, and the balance is an unliquidated demand, and a motion for judgment is made, under Rule 593, in default of defence, the Court may, in its discretion, refer the action to one of its officers to take an account of the amount due, and is not obliged to give final judgment for the amount of the liquidated demand: Charles v. Shepherd, 1892, 2 Q. B. 622; or the Court may on proof of the claim by affidavit, give final judgment for the amount claimed, without a reference: Roberts v. Booth, supra. In Ontario, however, it is open to a plaintiff to sign judgment under Rule 587 in default of defence for that part of the claim which is a debt or liquidated demand: see Rule 587.

Where a defence is struck out for non-compliance with Rules as to examination, or with an order to produce, under Rules 454, 473, the defendant is in default under this Rule: Fisher v. Hughes, 25 W. R. 528.

Proof by affidavit of the allegations contained in the statement of claim is unnecessary: see Rule 586; and see Williams v. Brisco, 29 W. R. 713; 17 C. L. J. 478; Ripley v. Sawyer, 31 Ch. D. 434; Jones v. Harris, 55 L. T. 884; Wilmott v. Young, 44 L. T. 331; Montague v. The Land Corporation of England, 58 L. T. 730; De Jongh v. Newman, 56 L. T. 180; Webster v. Vincent, 77 L. T. 167; Bagley v. Searle, 35 W. R. 404; 56 L. T. 306; and Gray v. Roberts.

32 Sol. Jour. 322. But under the corresponding Irish Rule, it has been held that where the plaintiff's title depends on documents, he must produce and prove them; Crisford v. Dodd, 15 L. R. Ir. 83; but see Smith v. Buchan, and Faithfull v. Woodley, supra, p. 784.

Seem, it would be open to a defendant in default of defence to appear on the motion, and contend that the statement of claim was bad in law: see Greig v. Green, 6 Gr. 240; Seane v. Hartrick, 7 Gr. 161.

As to judgment in an action on a bond which is subject to R. S. O. 1897, c. 324, s. 4, see notes to Rule 580.

The Rule was applied in Re Smith, Bridson v. Smith, W. N. 1876, 103, where one defendant made default, and the others admitted the plaintiff's claim by their defence.

In National Provincial Bank v. Evans, 51 L. J. Chy. 97; 30 W. R. 177, the defaulting defendant was an infant, and the action was set down under Eng. R. 1875, O. 19, r. 17 (not adopted in Ontario), for trial as against him, and on motion for judgment against other defendants. The practice in Ontario is, without express provision, the same. See also Re Fitzwater, 52 L. J. Chy. 83; Gardner v. Tapling, 33 W. R. 473.

Where a defence is put in before a motion under this Rule is made, see notes to Rules 243, 246, and 256.

Under the English Rules a motion cannot be made against one of several defendants alone unless the cause of action be severable, and it would seem that this Rule must be understood to be subject to that limitation: see Verney v. Thomas, 36 W. R. 398; 58 L. T. 20; Mac-Millan v. Australian Territories, 76 L. T. 182, and note to Rule 586.

In a case where several persons joined as plaintiffs to restrain the infringement of rights of pasture to which they were severally entitled, the defendant counter-claimed against the plaintiffs and seven third parties, to restrain the erection of fences on the land in question, judgment by default of appearance against the seven third parties was refused before trial, because, assuming them to have been properly made parties, the cause of action against them was not severable from that against the plaintiffs: Verney v. Thomas, 36 W. R. 398; 58 L. T. 20.

Under the former Chancery Practice, where a bill was filed against a patentee, and his vendee, impeaching the patent, and the vendee allowed the bill to be taken pro confesso, the plaintiff falling to establish his case against the patentee who defended, the bill was dismissed as against both defendants, though without costs as to the vendee: McDermott v. McDermott, 3 Chy. Ch. 38; and see Tucker v. Gayer, referred to in note to Rule 586.

Costs.—Upon the motion for judgment the costs are, subject to Rule 1120, in the discretion of the Court: Young v. Thomas, 1892, 2 Ch. 134; 60 L. T. 575.

Clause (2) of the above Rule provides for the case of judgment having been signed by default as to some claims, a motion for judgment being necessary as to others. The costs of signing a judgment by default in such case will probably not be allowed unless the urgency of the case justifies the plaintiff in not delaying until a motion for judgment can be made.

594. Where issues arise other than between plaintiff and defendant, if any party to any such issue makes default in delivering any pleading, the Court may, on motion of the opposite party, give such judgment, as upon the pleadings may seem just. Con. Rule 729.

See Eng. (1883) R. 307.

The Eng. Rule enables the plaintiff in a counter-claim to obtain judgment against any defendant thereto who makes default: Street v. Crump, 25 Ch. D. 68; see, in Ontario, Rule 593.

3. JUDGMENT ON PRECISE IN MORTGAGE ACTIONS.

Judgment
for redemption,
foreclosure
or sale, where infants are defendants may be made in Chambers.

595. In an ordinary action for redemption, foreclosure or sale where the defendants, or some of the defendants, are infants and no defence is set up, the action shall not be set down to be heard in Court; but after the statements of defence are filed, or after the time for filing the same has expired, the plaintiff, upon filing affidavits of the due execution of the mortgage, and of such other facts and circumstances as entitle him to judgment, may move for judgment in Chambers, upon notice to the guardian ad litem of the infants and the other defendants' solicitor, if any. Con. Rule 717.

Taken from Chy. O. 434, 645, 646.

This Rule enables judgment to be pronounced in Chambers, as against infants and adult defendants who are sui juris, but where any of the adult defendants is a lunatic or person of unsound mind not so found, it is necessary that the motion for judgment should be made in Court: Warnock v. Prieur, 12 P. R. 264.

When anything beyond the ordinary relief is required, as for example an injunction, it would seem that the motion for judgment should be made in Court: see King v. Freeman, 1 Chy. Ch. 350.

In judgments for foreclosure against infants, a day to shew cause must still be inserted: Mellor v. Porter, 25 Ch. D. 158; Gray v. Bell, 46 L. T. 521; London & C. L. & A. Co. v. Everitt, 8 P. R. 489; Muir v. Kerr, 2 Gr. 223; and the final order must also reserve a day to shew cause. The formal words usually inserted in Ontario are "and this judgment [or order] is to be binding upon [name of infants] unless being served with a copy thereof on attaining the age of twenty-one years, they do, within six months after such service, shew unto this Court good cause to the contrary": see Seton, 5th ed., 827.

necessary.

No day to shew cause is reserved in judgments for sale; nor in judgments against infant trustees of real estate: Foster v. Parker, 8 Ch. D. 223, and see Wolverhampton v. George, 24 Ch. D. 707. Thus, in a redemption suit against an infant for redemption of land conveyed to the infant's ancestor by deed absolute in form, it was held that no day to shew cause should be reserved in the decree directing a re-conveyance: Lake v. McIntosh, 7 Gr. 532. As to defences open to an infant shewing cause: see Seton, 5th ed., 828, 830.

Where a decree for foreclosure was made against the ancestor, who died before a final order was obtained, it was unnecessary to reserve a day to shew cause in favour of infant heirs of the mortgagor, as to whom the proceedings were revived: Sutherland v. Dickson, 2 Chy. Ch. 25; Younge v. Cocker, 76 L. T. Jour. 247; and infant parties under such circumstances could not set up a defence which their ancestor had not set up, unless he had been prevented, by fraud, or mistake, from pleading it: Burke v. Pyne, 2 Chy. Ch. 193; but now under such circumstances the estate of the mortgagor descends to his personal representative: R. S. O. c. 127, s. 4.

Formerly where infants were defendants in an action for foreclosure before judgment, the Court would direct a reference to the Master, as of course, to inquire whether a sale, or foreclosure, would be the more beneficial for the infants, and direct a sale, or foreclosure, accordingly, or it would determine the question, on the motion for judgment, if affidavits were produced or the Guardian ad litem consented to dispense with the reference on that point: Dudley v. Berczy, 13 Gr. 141; but see Graham v. Davis, 2 Chy. Ch. 24; and if a sale was directed on the application of infant defendants, no deposit was required from the infants: Bank of Upper Canada v. Scott, 6 Gr. 451; Laurason v. Fitzgerald, 9 Gr. 371; but see Western Canada Loan Co. v. Dunn, 9 P. R. 587. Whether a personal representative of a deceased mortgagor would be entitled to this relief, where infants are beneficially interested in the equity of redemption, has not been thus far determined.

Where the judgment directs an inquiry whether a sale or foreclosure would be more beneficial to infant defendants, if the Master omits to report on that point, no final order can be granted: Edwards v. Burling, 2 Chy. Ch. 48.

596.—(1) Where the writ has been indorsed, as provided by Rule 141, and the defendant fails to appear, or by his statement of defence admits the execution of the mortgage and other facts, if any, entitling the plaintiff to a judgment, or where the defendant disclaims any interest in the mortgaged premises, or where no statement of defence is delivered, [or where notice is filed and served disputing the amount of the plaintiff's claim only, or where in his appearance the defendant states that he disputes the amount of the plaintiff's claim only], the plaintiff may sign judgment, in which may be included, where claimed, any relief for which a claim may be indorsed upon the writ under Rule 141.

Judgment, when to be granted on precipue.

(2) The reference in such cases, when required, shall be to the Master in Ordinary, or a Local Master.

(3) Where the indorsement on the writ claims foreclosure, and the defendant files a notice requiring a sale and a certificate of the deposit of the sum of $80 as required

Rule 296. by Rule 381, the judgment shall be for sale, together with such other relief, if any, as the plaintiff is entitled to, upon the indorsement.

(4) Where in the defendant's appearance or otherwise a notice disputing the amount of the plaintiff's claim only is filed, the defendant filing the same shall be entitled to four days' notice of the taking of the account. Where no reference as to incumbrances is desired, such account may be taken by the officer signing judgment; and where a reference as to incumbrances is desired, then by the Master to whom the action is referred. The finding of the officer taking the account as to the amount due on signing judgment shall be subject to appeal to a Judge in Chambers in the manner prescribed by Rule 767, and such officer shall have power to direct a stay of proceedings until the time for appealing has expired.

(5) Where a reference as to incumbrances is directed, in a case where a notice disputing the amount of the plaintiff's claim has been filed, the judgment shall direct that the defendant filing such notice shall have four days' notice of the taking of the account.

(6) A judgment may be signed under this Rule, whether the defendant has been served personally or otherwise; but where the writ has not been personally served, the claim of the plaintiff shall be duly verified by affidavit, which shall be filed with the officer taking the account. Con. Rule 726. Rules 23rd June, 1894. 1349. Rules 1 Jan., 1896, 1476.

Founded on Chy. O. 435, 646, 648.

This Rule as now framed (see the words in brackets and clauses 4 and 5) removes the difficulties which occasioned the decisions in Mahony v. Horkins, 14 P. R. 117, and Rice v. Kinghorn, 17 P. R. 1; and substantially restores the former Chancery practice, as to which see Trust & Loan v. McCarthy, 19 C. L. J. 188; 3 C. L. T. 266; Peel v. White, 11 P. R. 177.

A motion for judgment was held to be necessary, where costs of proceeding under the power of sale and moneys expended for repairs were claimed; Hannaford v. Neeley, 9 C. L. T. 48; or immediate foreclosure; Gibson v. McCrimmon, 9 C. L. T. 40.

It will be seen that this Rule covers five classes of cases.

(a) Where defendant does not appear;

(b) Where the defendant by his defence admits the mortgage and other facts entitling the plaintiff to judgment;

(c) Where the defendant disclaims any interest in the premises: see supra Chapter Rule 696.

(d) Where no defence is filed:

(e) Or where only a notice disputing the amount claimed is filed:

It is not necessary that all the defendants should be in the same position, in order to entitle the plaintiff to judgment under this Rule, it is sufficient if they all come within one or other of the two classes of cases above mentioned: and the judgment should be entered against all of the defendants and not against some only: see McLaughlin v. Stewart, 1 O. L. R. 295.

Where the writ is issued from a local office, the judgment should be entered in that local office: Chamberlain v. Armstrong, 9 P. R. 212; and see Rules 15, 128.

Where any of the defendants are infants, or lunatics, or persons of unsound mind not so found, judgment cannot be obtained under this Rule, but in the case of infants it may be obtained on motion in Chambers: see Rule 545, and in the case of lunatics, etc., a motion in Court is necessary: Warrack v. Prieur, 12 P. R. 264.

For forms of judgment, see Appendix, Forms Nos. 153, 154, 155. These forms require modification according to the nature of the relief claimed in the writ. See H. & L. Forms, Nos. 864, 865, and 875.

Where the writ has not been sufficiently indorsed with a statement of the relief claimed, according to the form prescribed by Rule 141, it would seem that the officer may properly refuse to enter judgment on præcipe: Pherill v. Forbes, 8 P. R. 408.

In a foreclosure action, where the mortgagee applies for judgment in default of appearance, or defence, not only for foreclosure, but also for a personal order for payment, the indorsement on the writ, or the statement of claim, ought to contain an express statement of the covenant upon which the order is claimed: Law v. Philby, 56 L. T. 230; 35 W. R. 401; and see Form No. 9 (c), (H. & L. Forms, Nos. 57, 58).

As to the form of judgment, when immediate payment under the covenant for payment is desired, as well as the usual judgment for foreclosure, see notes to Rule 378, supra, p. 586.

Under Chy. O. 435, on which this Rule is mainly founded, it was præcipe held that the Registrar was bound to issue on præcipe the decree ^{judgment} which the Court would itself make upon a hearing of the cause ^{form of} pro confesso: Kirkpatrick v. Howell, 22 Gr. 94; Buell v. Towns, Ib., 95; but extraordinary relief cannot be granted by judgment on præcipe; thus, an immediate sale, or foreclosure, without appointing a day for redemption, cannot be granted, even though the relief be claimed by the writ, or statement of claim: Patey v. Flint, 48 L. J. ^{Extraor-} ^{dinary} ^{relief not} Chy. 636. To obtain such relief, a motion for judgment in Court ^{granted,} under Rule 600 is necessary. On such a motion, however, special grounds for immediate foreclosure, or other special relief, must be shewn though the defendant has not appeared, otherwise only the usual judgment will be given: Meredith v. McCabe, 19th January, 1881, Boyd, C.; see also North of Scotland, etc., v. Beard, 9 P. R. 546.

Formerly, where no appearance had been entered the plaintiff could not, unless he served the statement of claim on the defendant, enlarge by it the scope of the claim indorsed on the writ: and on motion for judgment according to the terms of relief claimed in the state-

Rule 596. ment of claim, in default of appearance, the usual foreclosure judgment only was given when that was the only relief claimed by the writ, notwithstanding that by the statement of claim additional relief was claimed: Law v. Philby, 58 L. T. 522; 35 W. R. 450; see also Gice v. Bell, 35 Ch. D. 160; but see now Rule 244, and note to Rule 593.

Interlocutory injunction cannot be continued by

Where the defendant is a married woman, and the writ is indorsed with a claim for execution against her separate estate, where the action is founded on a contract made before 13th April, 1897, the indorsement should allege that she had when she made the contract sued on, and still has, separate estate, and when the writ is properly indorsed judgment may be signed under this Rule: Nesbitt v. Armstrong, 14 P. R. 366; R. S. O. c. 163, s. 3 (3). This allegation is not necessary in the case of contracts made by a married woman since 13th April, 1897: see R. S. O. c. 163, s. 4.

Where the plaintiff had obtained an interlocutory injunction, it was held that it could not be continued by a præcipe decree: King v. Freeman, 1 Chy. Ch. 350, the power to issue decrees on præcipe being confined to simple cases, where the ordinary decree for foreclosure, or sale, with order for payment and delivery of possession, was all that was required. Thus, where the defendant answered admitting the mortgage, but denying an alleged agreement to pay an increased rate of interest, and set up a tender, and claimed costs, it was held that a decree could not be granted on præcipe. Nor could a decree issued on præcipe in such a case be amended in Chambers, by inserting a direction to the Master to inquire as to the alleged tender: Ross v. Vader, 3 Chy. Ch. 236.

Reference as to Incumbrances.—The plaintiff must determine for himself whether he takes a judgment with a reference to the Master as to incumbrancers. If he takes a reference, unnecessarily, he will not be entitled to the costs of it: Hamilton v. Howard, 4 Gr. 581; Purdy v. Parks, 9 P. R. 424. If he omits to take a reference where one is necessary, his proceedings will be defective: see Willgress v. Crauford, 12 P. R. 658.

Where a plaintiff had taken judgment without a reference, and after the mortgagor was foreclosed, discovered there was an incumbrancer, on an interlocutory application the judgment was amended by directing the usual reference as to incumbrancers: Willgress v. Crauford, 12 P. R. 658.

Varying Præcipe Judgment.—A decree pronounced pro confesso or on præcipe, might be varied, or set aside, on motion in Chambers, without rehearing the cause: see Kline v. Kline, 3 Chy. Ch. 79; Nelles v. Vandyke, 17 Gr. 14; and the same rule applies to judgments on præcipe under this Rule: Trust & Loan Co. v. McCarthy, 19 C. L. J. 188; 3 C. L. T. 266.

Statute of Limitations.—It has been decided that a defendant filing a disputing note in a mortgage suit may on the taking of the accounts shew that the Statute of Limitations applies so as to prevent the recovery of more than six years' arrears of interest: Wright v. Morgan, 1 Ont. App. 613, overruling the decision reported, 24 Gr. 457. But the statute must be pleaded if the defendant wishes to set it up as a bar to the suit: Cattanach v. Urquhart, 6 P. R. 28, explained, 1 Ont. App. 616; see also notes to Rule 402.

Discovery.—It was held also under the former Chancery practice that a disputing note was not an answer, and therefore Gen. Order 134 (see Rule 464) allowing a defendant after answer to obtain on præcipe an order for production, did not apply: Richardson v. Beaupré, 2 Chy. Ch. 34. Rules 597-599.

4. CONFESSION OF ACTION OR JUDGMENT.

597.—(1) In actions for the recovery of land a defendant may, at any stage of the action, confess the action, in whole or in part, by giving notice to that effect according to Form 55, whereupon judgment may be signed for possession accordingly, as to such defendant, with the costs occasioned by his being made a defendant, and as against the other defendants, if any, the action may proceed in the usual way. New. See Con. Rules 730-732. Defendants may confess action to recover land as to the whole or part of the property.

(2) Where the confession is not by all the defendants a writ of possession shall not be issued unless directed by the judgment against the defendants who have not confessed, or by order of the Court or a Judge. New.

598. Final judgment upon a cognovit actionem or warrant of attorney to confess judgment given or executed before the signing out of any process, may be entered, and where the amount does not exceed $600 the judgment may be entered in any County Court, unless some particular office or some particular County Court for that purpose is expressly stated in the cognovit or warrant. Con. Rule 733 amended. As to judgment on cognovits.

With the exception that the amount named was formerly $400, the differences between this and the former Rule 733 are merely verbal.

599. Leave to enter judgment upon any cognovit or warrant of attorney more than one and less than ten years old, shall be obtained by order of a Judge, made ex parte, and if ten years old or more, by motion upon notice. Con. Rule 734. Leave to enter judgment on cognovit, when to be obtained.

Taken from Rule T. T. 1856, 27.

See note to Rule 601; and see Rules 348, 355-360.

A motion under this Rule would seem to be properly made in Chambers: Handley v. Roberts, 17 Jur. 440. Leave to enter judgment was granted where the witness to the cognovit had left the Province: King v. Robins, Tay. 299; Chal v. Latham, 1 U. C. Q. B. 412; and also in a case where the cognovit was seven years old, upon affidavit of the plaintiff, that the whole amount was still due, and that having received a letter from the defendant he believed him to Rules be still alive, though the affidavit failed to state that the defendant 600, 601. either wrote or signed the letter: Oliphant v. McGinn, 4 U. C. Q. B. 170; but it was refused where the cognovit was fifteen years old, and it appeared that the plaintiff had once accepted property from the defendant, and discharged the action, though the property proved unproductive: Grant v. McIntosh, 4 O. S. 184.

Confessions and cognovits
 to be registered.

600. No confession of judgment or cognovit actionem shall be valid or effectual to support any judgment or writ of execution, unless within one month after the same has been given, the same, or a sworn copy thereof, is filed of record in the proper office of the Court in the county in which the person giving such confession of judgment or cognovit actionem resides; and a book shall be kept in every such office, to be called the Cognovit Book, in which shall be entered the names of the plaintiff and defendant in every such confession or cognovit, the amount of the true debt or arrangement secured thereby, the time when judgment may be entered and execution issued thereon, and the day when such confession or cognovit, or copy thereof, is filed in the said office; and such book shall be open to inspection by any person during office hours, on the payment of a fee of 20 cents. Con. Rule 735.

Taken from R. S. O. 1877, c. 50, s. 297.

When judgment has been signed on the cognovit before the time limited by this Rule for filing it has elapsed, it need not be filed, or entered in the cognovit book, as required by this Rule: Commercial Bank v. Fletcher, 8 C. P. 181; Armour v. Carruthers, 2 P. R. 217; McLean v. Stuart, 2 P. R. 367.

Immaterial discrepancies between the copy filed and the original, do not invalidate the cognovit: Irwin v. Ham, 9 U. C. L. J. 80; and see Sharp v. McHenry, 38 Ch. D. 427.

Cognovit to be executed in presence of solicitor

601. No warrant of attorney to confess judgment in any action, or cognovit actionem, given by any person, shall be of any force, unless there is present some solicitor on behalf of such person expressly named by him, and attending at his request, to inform him of the nature and effect of such warrant or cognovit, before the same is executed, which solicitor shall subscribe his name as a witness to the due execution thereof, and thereby declare himself to be solicitor for the person executing the same, and state that he subscribes as such solicitor, and in the affidavit of execution, the attendance of such solicitor, and the fact of his being a subscribing witness, shall be plainly stated, which affidavit and the warrant of attorney or cognovit, shall be filed at the time of entering judgment thereon. Con. Rule 736 amended.

Taken from Rule T. T. 1856, 26.

The differences between this and the former Rule 736 are merely verbal.

A partner cannot give a cognovit so as to bind his firm without special authority: Holme v. Allan, Tay. 148; Huff v. Cameron, 1 P. R. 255; Joyce v. Murray, M. T. 6 Vict.; but when there is evidence of assent on the part of the other partners, the cognovit will bind the firm: Brown v. Cinqmars, 2 P. R. 205.

One of several executors cannot, without express authority, give a cognovit binding his co-executor; and a judgment entered on such a confession will be set aside as to all: Commercial Bank v. Woodroffe, 21 U. C. Q. B. 602; and see Astbury v. Astbury, 1898, 2 Ch. 111.

A relicta verificatione was not within the Rule of T. T. 1856, 26, and did not require to be verified by affidavit: Eakins v. Fraser, 6 P. R. 297.

A cognovit may be executed by the solicitor of the party giving it. Richmond v. Proctor, 3 U. C. L. J. 202.

An uncertificated solicitor may attest: Holgate v. Slight, 2 L. M. & P. 662; but not a solicitor's clerk: Barnes v. Ward, 14 M. & W. 42; Paul v. Cleaver, 2 Taunt. 360, nor a person not actually a solicitor, though believed to be one: Wallace v. Brockley, 5 Dowl. 695; but where the defendant wrongfully misrepresented a person to be a solicitor, the Court refused to set aside the judgment: Cox v. Cannon, 6 Dowl. P. C. 625; Joyce v. Booth, 1 B. & P. 97; the plaintiff's solicitor cannot properly act for the defendant: Mason v. Kiddle, 5 M. & W. 513; Rice v. Linstead, 7 Dowl. P. C. 153; Ducrant v. Burton, 9 Dowl. P. C. 1015; even though the latter consent: Hutson v. Hutson, 7 T. R. 7; Pryor v. Suaine, 2 D. & L. 37; Jarl v. Dieker, 5 D. & L. 1; Mason v. Kiddle, 8 Dowl. P. C. 205; Cooper v. Grant, 2 L. J. C. P. 197; Hirst v. Hannah, 17 Q. B. 383. The solicitor must, in general, attend at the request of the defendant: Gripper v. Bristow, 6 M. & W. 807; Rice v. Linstead, 7 Dowl. P. C. 153, but the adoption by the defendant of a solicitor present, not being the plaintiff's solicitor, no matter how procured, is sufficient: Taylor v. Nicholls, 6 M. & W. 91; Walton v. Chandler, 2 D. & L. 802; Oliver v. Woodroffe, 4 M. & W. 650; Case v. Benson, 3 U. C. L. J. 132; Levinson v. Sper, 2 L. M. & P. 557; and see Meriden v. Lee, 2 Ont. 451.

It is not necessary that the cognovit should be read over to the defendant: it is sufficient if its nature and effect be explained to him: Oliver v. Woodroffe, 4 M. & W. 650; but the neglect of a solicitor chosen by the defendant to explain the instrument, will not vitiate it: Haigh v. Frost, 5 Dowl. P. C. 743; Case v. Benson, 3 U. C. L. J. 132, unless there be fraud or collusion: Taylor v. Nicholls, 6 M. & W. 91; and see Gorrie v. Beard, 5 U. C. Q. B. 624.

It is advisable to state in the attestation clause that the requirements of the Rule have been complied with, but the attestation has been held sufficient, though omitting to state that the solicitor was appointed by the defendant: Oliver v. Woodroffe, 4 M. & W. 650, or was named by him, or attended at his request: Gay v. Hall, 5 Dowl. & L. 422, and did not declare him to subscribe as defendant's solicitor: Knight v. Hasty, 12 L. J. Q. B. 297; Hall v. Kershaw, 5 D. & L. 419; Phillips v. Gibbs, 16 M. & W. 208; but see Reed v. Poppleton, 5 Q. B. 181; Hilbert v. Barton, 2 Dowl. N. S. 434. The Rules 602, 603. following form of attestation has been held sufficient: "Signed by the above named A. B. in my presence, and I declare myself to be solicitor for the said A. B., and I subscribe my name as such his solicitor": see Gay v. Hall, 18 L. J. Q. B. 12; Ledyard v. Thompson, 11 M. & W. 40. The provision respecting attestation is for the benefit of the defendant; a third party cannot object to a judgment on the ground that the cognovit on which it is entered was not formally executed: Chipp v. Harris, 5 M. & W. 430; Cox v. Edwards, 2 Dowl. N. S. 55; nor to the want of an affidavit of execution: Potter v. Pickle, 2 P. R. 391.

Cognovit may be given though no process issued.

A cognovit may be given in an action though no process has issued: Walton v. Hayward, 2 O. S. 408; Rule 598.

The practice of taking cognovits is not now very often resorted to since R. S. O. c. 147, s. 1, which avoids judgments recovered on cognovits given by insolvents, for the purpose of giving a preference, or to defeat or delay creditors; see Meriden v. Lee, 2 Ont. 451; Martin v. McAlpine, 8 Ont. App. 675. The same result, however, is arrived at, by a defendant appearing and delivering a defence and then consenting to an immediate judgment: Turner v. Lucas, 1 Ont. 623, affirmed in appeal, 10th September, 1884.

Leave to enter judgment may be obtained

The application for leave to enter judgment would seem to be properly made in Chambers: Handley v. Roberts, 17 Jur. 440. The motion can now be made to the Master in Chambers, or other officer having like jurisdiction. It is irregular to enter judgment without leave, when leave is necessary: Jones v. Jones, 1 D. & R. 558. When the cognovit is ten years old, notice to defendant of the motion cannot be dispensed with: Nicholas v. Merit, 9 Dowl. P. C. 101; Fletcher v. Everard, 13 L. J. Q. B. 44; but see Croft v. Lord Egmont, 8 Dowl. P. C. 95; Wortham v. Tuck, 9 Dowl. P. C. 335.

Defeasance to which any instrument is subject to be written on same paper

602. The person who prepares any cognovit or warrant of attorney to confess judgment, which is to be subject to any defeasance, shall cause such defeasance to be written on the same paper or parchment on which the cognovit or warrant is written, or cause a memorandum in writing to be made on such cognovit or warrant containing the substance or effect of such defeasance. Con. Rule 137.

Taken from Rule T. T. 1856, 28.

Omission of solicitor to comply with Rule 602, effect of.

The omission of a solicitor to comply with Rule 602 does not invalidate the instrument, but subjects the solicitor to punishment, on application to the Court: see Shaw v. Evans, 14 East, 576; Partridge v. Fraser, 7 Taunt. 307; Sansom v. Goode, 2 B. & Al. 568; Barber v. Barber, 3 Taunt. 465; Burdick v. Potter, 1 Dowl. N. S. 134.

3. MOTION FOR JUDGMENT.

(i) On Summary Application.

Leave to sign final judgment.

603—(1) Where the defendant appears to a writ specially endorsed, under Rule 138, (a) and the plaintiff is not entitled to a judgment or order under the preceding Rules], he may, on an affidavit made by himself, [(b) or by Rule 603. any other person who can swear positively to the debt or cause of action], verifying the cause of action and stating that in his belief there is no defence, move before the Court or Judge for final judgment for the claim so indorsed, with interest, if any, and costs. (c) A copy of the affidavit shall accompany the notice of motion. The Court or Judge, unless satisfied by affidavit or otherwise, (d) that the defendant has a good defence to the action on the merits, or has disclosed such facts as may be deemed sufficient to entitle him to defend the action, may award judgment. Con. Rule 739.

(2) Such motion may be made in respect of a cause of action specially indorsed under Rule 138, though the writ may also be indorsed with any other claim, and such order may be made in respect of the cause of action so specially indorsed as might be made if no other claim were indorsed on the writ of summons. New.

(3) On any such motion any amendment of the writ which might be ordered on a substantive motion may be directed, and judgment may be awarded in accordance with the writ as amended. New.

Comp. Eng. (1883) Rs. 115, 116.

(a) These words in brackets are not in the English Rule. (b) The words in brackets here are not in the English Rule. (c) The English Rule 116 provides for this, and that the application is to be by summons. The Rules are otherwise to the same effect, except as regards the provisions of sub-sections (2) and (3), which are new and peculiar to Ontario, and very much extend the operation of the former part of the Rule, and supersede many cases decided under the Rule before the introduction of these sub-sections.

The Rule as revised has made a slight change in the procedure. Formerly the motion authorized was for an order to sign judgment; under that procedure it was necessary first to obtain an order, and then sign a judgment thereunder. Under the present Rule the motion is to be one for judgment, and where the judgment is granted it will be drawn up and issued in Chambers and will have then to be entered in the proper office as in the case of other judgments.

(c) As to this provision: see Litchfield v. Jones, 25 Ch. D. 64.

(d) By reason of the words "or otherwise," it was held that the reasoning in Bank of Montreal v. Cameron, 2 Q. B. 10, 536, did not apply, and that therefore a plaintiff may apply for judgment under this Rule where the defendant is a corporation: Shelford v. Louth & Co., 11 R. G. 4 Ex. D. 317.

Rule 603.

When Rule applies.

It has been said that the power given by this Rule is intended to be exercised where it is shewn from an acknowledgment by the defendant of the debt, or from other circumstances, that the defence is only for time: Lloyd's Banking Co. v. Ogle, 1 Ex. D. 262; Thompson v. Marshall, 28 W. R. 220; see also Munro v. Orr, 17 P. R. 53; and again, when there can be no reasonable doubt that the plaintiff is entitled to judgment, and when, therefore, it is inexpedient to allow defendant to defend for the mere purpose of delay: Jones v. Stone, 1894, A. C. 124; see also Bank of Minnesota v. Page, 14 Ont. App. 347; Stephenson v. Dallas, 13 P. R. 450.

Formerly where the nature of the claim involved the taking of accounts between the parties, the Rule was not applicable: Wallingford v. Mutual Society, 5 App. Cas. 685; but see now Rule 607.

The right to direct a reference to take accounts is now expressly given by Rule 607, but even before that Rule, in the case of an action on a solicitor's bill, where it was clear that something was due to the plaintiff, the usual order for taxation was made, combined with a judgment under this Rule for payment of the amount which, as the result of the taxation should be payable: Smith v. Edwards, 22 Q. B. D. 10.

Where writ specially indorsed under Rule 138.

An application under this Rule can only be made where the writ has been specially indorsed under Rule 138, i.e., where the claim is in respect of the causes of action therein specified, or any one or more of them; see Rule 138. Where, therefore, the claim was upon a covenant in a chattel mortgage given as a continuing security for future advances, and the writ was indorsed for the amount mentioned in the mortgage, and not for the various advances, and the Master in Chambers had directed judgment to be signed for a sum less than $2,500, which upon affidavits and the depositions of defendant, appeared to him to be due, it was held on appeal that the plaintiff's claim was not a debt, or liquidated demand: Barber v. Russell, 9 P. R. 432, 442.

Where equitable relief was claimed in addition to a liquidated demand, that was formerly a bar to a motion under this Rule; see McCollum v. McCollum, 11 P. R. 16; Yeatman v. Snow, 42 L. T. 502, and, unless the claims are distinct and properly severable, it may still be a reason for refusing an application under this Rule in such cases.

The addition of any claim in the writ which was not capable of being specially indorsed under Rule 138 formerly vitiated the whole indorsement, even as regarded claims which were properly the subject of a "special indorsement," and prevented any motion for judgment under this Rule, even in respect of the demand which might, if it had stood alone, have been specially indorsed: Wicks v. Wood, 1892, 1 Q. B. 684; Sheba Gold Mining Co. v. Truittshere, and Roby v. Master, 1892, 1 Q. B. 674; Casselman v. Barrie, 14 P. R. 507; Selmes v. Stafford, 16 P. R. 78, 204; Hollender v. Eftulkes, 16 P. R. 177; Clarkson v. Dean, 17 P. R. 206. But all of these cases are in effect overruled by the change made in the framing of the present revised Rule 602.

A writ may now be "specially indorsed" for claims coming within Rule 138, and other claims may also be added in the indorsement, and judgment may now be obtained as to the claims specially indorsed under Rule 138, and the action may be proceeded with thereafter as to any other claims.

A judgment may be obtained against one or more of several part-^{Rule 603.}ners or other joint debtors without preventing the plaintiff from proceeding in the same action to judgment in the ordinary way against the other defendants: Ducher Watch Case Mfg. Co. v. Taggart, 26 Ont. App. 295; see also supra, p. 424, and infra, pp. 781 and 807.

As to a claim for recovery of land with other claims, see Spears v. Fleming, 19 P. R. 127.

For instances of indorsements sufficient and insufficient under Rule 138, see notes to that Rule.

In actions where the writ is indorsed, not under Rule 138, but under Rule 141, for foreclosure, and immediate payment of the amount due under a covenant in a mortgage, this Rule was formerly held not to apply: Canadian Bank of Commerce v. Bricker, 1 C. L. T. 729; Hill v. Sidebottom, 47 L. T. 224; Imbert-Terry v. Carver, 34 Ch. D. 500; Clarke v. Berger, 36 W. R. 809; and it does not apply to a claim for immediate possession under Rule 141: Foresters v. Pegg, 19 P. R. 80.

Where plaintiff was entitled to costs payable by defendant, between solicitor and client, he was held not entitled to the costs of a motion made under this Rule and refused because the indorsement on the writ was not a good special indorsement: Baldwin v. Quinn, 16 P. R. 248.

In order to entitle a plaintiff to judgment under this Rule the indorsement on the writ must be complete in itself, and shew a cause of action, which is properly the subject of a special indorsement under Rule 138. A defect in the indorsement cannot be supplemented by the affidavits on the motion: Davidson v. Gurd, 15 P. R. 31; Fruhauf v. Grosvenor, 67 L. T. 350; Munro v. Pike, 15 P. R. 164; unless an amendment can be made under clause (3) of the Rule; see, however, Nesbitt v. Armstrong, 14 P. R. 366.

But, in an action to recover land, where the writ was indorsed to recover £80 for mesne profits, explanation was allowed to be given by the affidavit that the £80 was claimed as double value for 6 months in consequence of a refusal to deliver up possession, and an order was made for judgment: Southport v. Gandy, 45 W. R. 681.

A formal error in the indorsement of the writ, such as the misplacing of a date, is no answer to an application under this Rule: Anon., W. N. 1876, 53; 2 Charl. Ch. Ca. 20. Neither is a mistake in the teste in the copy of the writ served: Wesson v. Stalker, 47 L. T. 444, where the year was given in the copy as "eighty" instead of "eighty two"; see also Re Johnson, 25 Ch. D. 112.

In Ontario, since 47 V. c. 19 (now R. S. O. c. 163), it has been held that the Rule may be applied, and judgment entered in a plain case against a married woman, with execution against her separate estate not subject to restraint on anticipation: Nesbitt v. Armstrong, 14 P. R. 366; Kinnear v. Blue, 10 P. R. 465; Quebec Bank v. Radford, 10 P. R. 619; Cameron v. Rutherford, 10 P. R. 620; see contra, Cameron v. Heigh, 14 P. R. 56; and the later English cases seem to have established the same right in England: see Bursill v. Tauner, 13 Q. B. D. 491, and other cases referred to in the notes to Rule 139.

In an action against a married woman on a contract made prior to Married 15th April, 1897 (see R. S. O. c. 163, s. 41, the plaintiff must show ^{woman} that the married woman was capable of contracting, by shewing the Rule 603. possession of separate estate at the date of the contract: see notes to Rule 199, p. 350, and Canadian Bank of Commerce v. Woodcock, 13 P. R. 242. Where this did not appear by the writ, but was shown by the affidavits on the motion, an amendment of the writ was allowed: Nesbitt v. Armstrong, 14 P. R. 396; and see Sicetland v. Neville, 21 Ont. 412; but an amendment to uphold a summary judgment was not, before the present Rule (see clause 3), encouraged: Davidson v. Gurd, and other cases supra.

In actions founded on contracts made by a married woman since 13th April, 1897, it is no longer necessary to allege or prove the possession of separate estate at the date of the contract: see R. S. O. c. 103, s. 4.

For the form of judgment against a married woman: see notes to Rule 199, p. 352.

Indians.

Judgment may be obtained against an Indian, as, since the repeal of C. S. C. c. 9, an Indian may sue and be sued, though by the Indian Act of 1880, s. 77 (d), the judgment will not bind any property of the Indian except that described in sec. 75: Bybee, etc., Salt, 11 P. R. 112.

Actions to recover land.

As to actions to recover land, to which the present Rule has now been made applicable, see notes to Rule 138, supra, p. 273.

Judgment cannot be given under this Rule in an action for possession of land where the right to possession is disputed for some bona fide reason: see Jours v. Stoue, 1894, A. C. 124; 70 L. T. 174.

In an action for the recovery of land where other questions are raised by counter-claim, judgment for the recovery of the land should not be granted, where the Judge at the trial might be thereby hampered in dealing with the other questions: Spears v. Fleming, 14 P. R. 127.

Where the action is for recovery of land and mesne profits, and the plaintiff obtains judgment under this Rule, the mesne profits may be ordered to be calculated up to the date of the plaintiff's obtaining possession so as to avoid the necessity of bringing another action: Southport Tramways Co. v. Gandy, 1897, 2 Q. B. 96.

The effect of the J. A. Rules is to abolish the non-finality which a judgment in ejectment formerly had. A former judgment on the same question will now sustain a defence of res judicata: Bull v. Cathcart, 16 Ont. 525; Cochrane v. Hamilton Prov. L. S., 15 Ont. 128.

Security for costs.

Where the plaintiff is liable to give security for costs, and an order for that purpose has been obtained, but the plaintiff has a case for setting it aside, it was held under the original Rules that he might move uno facto, and upon the same materials, to vacate the order for security, and to sign judgment: Anglo-American Casings Co. v. Reaction, 10 P. R. 394. This course cannot be taken now; but it is open to a plaintiff, under Rule 120 (1), to pay $50 into Court as a partial compliance with the order for security, and proceed with the motion for judgment: Payne v. Neiberry, 13 P. R. 354.

The Master in Chambers, and the Local Judges under Rules 42, 47, and 49, have jurisdiction to entertain applications under the present Rule.

No time is limited within which an application may be made, and Rule 603. it has therefore been held to be regular after statement of claim delivered: Hope v. Neill, 12th Sept., 1881 (Mr. Dalton); and see Hannay v. Flight, 30 L. T. 279. It is held in Ireland under a similar Rule that, after issue joined on a statement of defence, a plaintiff cannot resort to this summary procedure, as he has adopted the defendant's mode of procedure: Hac v. Lalor, 12 L. R. Ir. 43; also that where the plaintiff, after appearance, takes any deliberate step to have the action tried by a jury by serving a statement of claim, he cannot move under this Rule: Stewartstown Loan Co. v. Dalp, 12 L. R. Ir. 418.

In Ontario the rule is that motions after a statement of claim is delivered, are not to be encouraged, though in cases of necessity, allowable: Woodruff v. McLennan, 11 P. R. 22; but see McLardy v. Slatcum, 24 Q. B. D. 394.

If the time for delivering a defence is running pending the motion, the Judge or Master will by his order give further time if necessary: Hobson v. Monk, W. N. 1884, 8.

Under the practice in Ireland where a motion was refused, because second affidavit was filed at the time of service of the summons, the motion Court refused to entertain a renewal of the motion: Trench v. Mulcahy, 8 L. R. Ir. 146; but in England the dismissal of the motion on the ground of a technical defect in the writ, has been held to be no bar to a fresh application on fresh materials after the defect has been cured: Wagstaff v. Jacobowitz, W. N. 1884, 17; Domkey & Son v. Playfair, 1897, 1 Q. B. 398; 75 L. T. 676; and the doctrine of res judicata has no application to such renewal of the motion: Id. A dismissal for not complying with the provisions of Rule 1281 (1), is no bar to a subsequent motion when the provisions of that Rule have been complied with: Payne v. Nicholls, 13 P. R. 392.

For a form of affidavit, see H. & L. Forms, No. 419.

The plaintiff's affidavit should not only verify the cause of action, but also pledge the deponent's belief that there is no answer to the plaintiff's demand: Kirby v. Musson, 6 L. R. Ir. 445. An affidavit of plaintiff which stated that he was "advised and believed defendant had no defence on the merits to the action" was held sufficient: Manning v. Moriarty, 12 L. R. Ir. 372.

An affidavit by the plaintiff's solicitor not stating his means of knowledge is not sufficient: Edwards v. Davis, W. N. 1888, 59.

The affidavit in support of the application must verify the claim as indorsed: if it fails to do so, or shows that the real claim of the plaintiff is different from that indorsed, the motion for judgment cannot succeed: Clarkson v. Dwan, 17 P. R. 92, 206; unless an amendment be allowed under Rule 603 (3), supra.

In Fell v. Williams, 3 C. L. T. 358, it was held that the plaintiff's case must appear to a demonstration, and where the defendant set up matter which might possibly afford a defence, the Court refused to criticize or enter into the probabilities of the defence; see also Thompson v. Marshall, 28 W. R. 220, and Lowden v. Martin, 12 P. R. 496.

Where the action is brought on a cheque, the fact that notice of dishonour was given to the drawer must appear in the indorsement on the writ: Feuhauf v. Grosvenor, 67 L. T. 350; but an affidavit not specifically stating the fact, but stating in general terms that the Rule 603. defendant was justly and truly indebted to the plaintiff, was held to be sufficient verification of the claim in the absence of an affidavit of merits from defendant: May v. Chidley, 1894, 1 Q. B. 451.

"The defendant is indebted to the plaintiff in the sum of £24 10s. Od. as per particulars specially indorsed on the writ of summons," was held to be a sufficient verification of the special indorsement to entitle the plaintiff to judgment: Murphy v. Nolan, 18 L. R. 1r. 468.

The defendant is ex debito justitiæ entitled to cross-examine the plaintiff on his affidavit: Kingsley v. Dunn, 13 P. R. 300.

Opposition to the motion.

The application may be adjourned, if necessary, for better particulars of the plaintiff's claim: Aston v. Hurwitz, W. N. 1879, 104.

The affidavit in answer to the motion should ordinarily be made by the defendant himself, where he is a person who can make an affidavit: Huirhead v. Direct U. S. Cable Co., 27 W. R. 708; Shelford v. Louth, etc., Ry. Co., 4 Ex. D. 317; and if a corporation, the affidavit in answer must be made by its proper officer disclosing the defence of the defendant corporation: Id. The affidavit will not be insufficient merely because it contains only hearsay evidence: Harri-son v. Bottenheim, 26 W. R. 362.

That defendant was served in New York, and had not time to instruct his solicitors, was considered sufficient reason for refusing an order: Anon., 60 L. T. Jour. 213; 2 Charl. Ch. Ca. 18.

Affidavit
on defendant's part.

In answer to the motion a simple affidavit of merits is not sufficient: the affidavit must disclose a good defence, i.e., shew its nature, and give some reason for thinking that it exists in fact: Collins v. Hickok, 11 Ont. App. 620; Pascal v. Stone, 9th Sept., 1881 (Mr. Dalton); Bank of Toronto v. Kelly, 17 P. R. 250; see also Anon., 1 Charl. Ch. Ca. 48; W. N. 1875, 249, 250. In the words of Lord Blackburn in Wallingford v. Mutual Soc., 5 App. Cas. 704: "It is not enough for defendant to swear 'I say I owe the man nothing.' Doubtless if it were true that you owed the man nothing, as you swear, that would be a good defence; but that is not enough. You must satisfy the Judge that there is reasonable ground for saying so. So again if you swear there was a fraud, that will not do. It is difficult to define it, but you must give such an extent of definite facts pointing to the fraud as to satisfy the Judge that there are facts which make it reasonable that you should be allowed to raise that defence. And in like manner as to illegality, and every other defence that might be mentioned." A mere statement that he has a good defence is not sufficient: per Quain, J., Anon., 1 Charl. Ch. Cas. 48; W. N. 1875, 249, 250.

In London & Canadian, etc., v. Morris, 11 C. L. T. 20, a defence alleging that an Act legalizing debentures, and relied on by the plaintiff, was obtained by fraud, was held to be no defence.

Where the action was on a foreign judgment, and the defendant set up that it was obtained by fraud, but the only fraud alleged was the perjury of a witness, and it was not shewn that the plaintiff was in any way party to any fraud, or knew that the evidence was false, leave to sign judgment was granted: Dohn v. Gillespie, 33 C. L. J. 394.

Leave was granted to sign judgment against a firm on a specially indorsed writ, notwithstanding that one of the partners was shown to be an infant: Harris v. Beauchamp, 1883, 2 Q. B. 534; 130 L. T. 373; but in such a case the judgment should not be against the firm generally, but "against the firm other than the infant" see Rule 603.

Lowell v. Beauchamp, 1804, A. C. 607.

A judgment obtained against a partner under this Rule cannot be pleaded in bar to the action by any other partner who obtains leave to defend: Weall v. James, 68 L. T. 515; and see note to Rule 228, p. 424.

In an action against a limited company incorporated under R. S. O. c. 199, for goods sold and delivered, the company set up that their indebtedness when the goods were purchased exceeded the limit prescribed by ss. 11, 40 of that Act, and that the directors of the company were personally liable—and a motion for judgment against the company under this Rule was dismissed: Canadian General Elec. Co. v. Tagana Water Co., 6 O. L. R. 641.

On such a motion the only question to be determined is whether the Judge is satisfied that there is a good defence on the merits: per Jessel, M.R., Ex p. Marshall, 5 Ch. D. 877.

What must be shown to entitle the defendant to defend has been variously expressed: see H. & L. Jud. Act, 2nd ed., pp. 750-7 et seq. What defendant must show

The various decisions are probably summarized in the judgments in the House of Lords in Jacob v. Booth's Distillery, 1901, 50 W. R. 41; 85 L. T. 262, and Canadian Gen. Electric v. Tagana Water & Light Co., 6 O. L. R. 641, in which it was held that the merits of the case are not to be tried (though they must of course to some extent appear and be discussed), and a defence is not to be shut out where on the disclosed facts a triable issue arises; and the plaintiff is to be awarded judgment only where it appears that, assuming all the facts set up by the defendant to be true, they nevertheless do not amount to a defence in law: see also Nisbet v. Hill, 5 O. W. R. 155; Wells v. Allcott, 1904, 2 K. B. 842.

A question of law in dispute may perhaps be decided on the motion, but where it is a question of foreign law it was held to be impossible to decide this upon affidavits: Western Nat. Bank of N. Y. v. Perez, 6 Times, 396.

The fact that there is a valid counter-claim is not necessarily sufficient, as the admission of a counter-claim is not of right but in the discretion of the Judge: Anglo-Italian Bank v. Wells, W. N. 1877, 263; 1878, 10; 38 L. T. 197; Fowler v. Lee, W. N. 1876, 86; Rotherham v. Priest, 49 L. J. C. P. 104; Anon., 1 Charl. Ch. Ca. 45; Bank of Ottawa v. Johnston, 9 C. L. T. 251.

Where a counter-claim is, however, proper, the defendant will generally be allowed to set it up: Anon., 60 L. T. Jour. 85; 1 Charl. Ch. Ca. 45; Morin v. Calcock, 26 Oct., 1881 (Mr. Dalton in Chambers); and, if sufficiently connected with the same transaction as that which is the subject of the plaintiff's claim, the counter-claim may be sufficient to entitle the defendant to defend, even where set up as a defence to a liquidated claim, as on a bill of exchange: per L. J. Thesiger in Anglo-Italian Bank v. Wells, 38 L. T. 197. So where the defendant has a valid set-off greater than the plaintiff's claim: Groom v. Rathbone, 41 L. T. 591; and see Bayne v. Parson, 6 Q. B. D. 540; Government Co. v. Thompson, 50 L. J. Q. B. 199.

In Shepherd v. Wilkinson, 6 Times, 13, judgment was granted for an amount admitted to be due to plaintiff, but execution was stayed till after the trial of the counter-claim: similar orders have been made in Ontario. See also Rule 255.

Rule 603.

Claim for indemnity not a defence.

Affidavit
in reply

A claim for indemnity against a third party will not suffice: Thorne v. Steel, W. N. 1878, 215; German Bank v. Schmidt, W. N. 1876, 10; 1 Charl. Ch. Ca. 53; nor a promise to give time without consideration: Woolston v. Baines, W. N. 1876, 74; 2 Charl. Ch. Ca. 21.

The Judge may, in his discretion, allow the plaintiff to file affidavits in reply to the defendant's affidavit: Davis v. Spence, 1 C. P. D. 719; this case was disapproved of in North Central Waggon Co. v. The N. Wales Waggon Co., 39 L. T. 628, but has been followed in Girvin v. Grepe, 13 Ch. D. 174. The filing of an affidavit in reply, under this Rule, is however not a matter of right: Rotherham v. Priest, 49 L. J. C. P. 104; W. N. 1879, 190.

The orders which may be made upon the application are:—

judgment.

(1) Final Judgment.—This order ought not to be made save where the case is free from doubt: Ray v. Barker, 48 L. J. Ex. 569; 4 Ex. D. 279; Thompson v. Marshall, 28 W. R. 220; Bank of Minnesota v. Page, 14 Ont. App. 347; Stephenson v. Dallas, 13 P. R. 450; Jones v. Stone, 1894, A. C. 124; Munro v. Orr, 17 P. R. 53. It will be made if defendant does not appear, or files no affidavit; W. N. 1876, 12; or only an affidavit stating that there is a good defence, without stating what it is: Wallingford v. Mutual Society, 5 App. Cas. 704; though an opportunity of filing a better affidavit may be given: Pascal v. Stone, p. 800, supra; or if no fairly arguable defence be shewn: Anglo-Italian Bank v. Wells, 38 L. T. 197; Thorne v. Steel, W. N. 1878, 215; Anon., W. N. 1876, 23; 2 Charl. Ch. Ca. 18; East Assam, etc., v. Roche, W. N. 1875, 238; 1 Charl. Ch. Ca. 46; Bank of Toronto v. Keilty, 17 P. R. 250; Jacobs v. Booth's Distillery, 50 W. R. 49; 85 L. T. 262; Jones v. Mason, 18 P. R. 442; Imp. Bank v. Tuckett, 6 O. W. R. 121, 161. Judgment was ordered to be signed where the only defence was that the defendant had commenced proceedings in bankruptcy: Anon., W. N. 1875, 220; W. N. 1876, 23; Clifford v. Budds, W. N. 1884, 40. So where in an action against two defendants, one admitted the debt and let judgment go by default, and the other only deposed that he was willing to pay his share, and that his co-defendant was acting in collusion with the plaintiff: East Assam Company v. Roche, W. N. 1875, 238.

Execution was stayed to enable defendant to appeal, in Anglo-Italian Bank v. Wells, 38 L. T. 197. An order directing payment by a day named, otherwise judgment to be signed, need not be served before signing judgment on default of payment: Hopton v. Robertson, 23 Q. B. D. 126; W. N. 1884, 77; 28 Sol. Jour. 375; and see Cranston v. Blair, 15 P. R. 167.

Where the action was on an untaxed bill of costs delivered within a year, the order made was for taxation and judgment for the amount certified: Larkin & Co. v. McInerney, 16 L. R. Ir. 240; see also Smith v. Edwards, 22 Q. B. D. 10.

Judgment was ordered to be signed where it was stated that the defendant was at sea on his way to join his regiment, and that he had been served with the writ the day before leaving England: Anon., W. N. 1875, 260; 1 Charl. Ch. Ca. 49.

Leave to defend unconditionally.

(2) Leave to Defend Unconditionally. This will be the order where the affidavit shews what the defence is, and the Court is of opinion that a triable issue arises: Jacobs v. Booth Distillery, 50 W. R. 49; 85 L. T. 262; Canadian Gen. Electric v. Tagana, etc., 6 O. L. R. 641; Remond's v. Mesquita, 1 Q. B. D. 116. Where the defendant was a surety, and had not acknowledged his indebtedness, and there Rule 603. was nothing to shew that the defence was merely for delay, he was held entitled to put the plaintiff to proof of his claim, and was admitted to defend: Lloyd's Banking Co. v. Ogle, 1 Ex. D. 262.

So also where a set-off was shewn exceeding the plaintiff's claim: Groom v. Rathbone, 41 L. T. 591; Connec v. C. P. R., No. 2, 11 P. R. 222, but see Branchite's Case, 40 L. T. 632, where the action was on a covenant for payment in a mortgage, and defendant swore that the mortgage was signed on the express understanding that he was not to be personally liable, and there were circumstances to corroborate this statement: Munro v. Orr, 17 P. R. 53. Where in an action on a promissory note the defendant swears to facts affecting the note with fraud, he is entitled to defend unconditionally, as the onus of proof is on the plaintiff that he is a bonâ fide holder for value: Fuller v. Alexander, 47 L. T. 443; 52 L. J. Q. B. 103; Millard v. Baddeley, W. N. 1884, 96; 28 Sol. Jour. 412, 427; 76 L. T. Jour. 408; Farmer v. Ellis, 2 O. L. R. 544. In the case, however, of a note not alleged to have been obtained by fraud, but only to have been made for the accommodation of another, the presumption of value is not removed, and the onus is on the defendant; leave to defend in such a case was refused, except on the terms of paying money into Court: Merchants Nat. Bank v. Ontario Coal Co., 16 P. R. 87.

Where the action was on a note, and defendants swore that it was given on conditions which had not been fulfilled by the payees, and the defendants also swore that they were informed and believed (without indicating the source of information), that the plaintiffs (who were indorsees) were suing for the benefit of the payees and were not holders for value, or took the note after maturity, and the plaintiffs denied that they had any notice of any condition, it was held that no valid defence was shewn: Jones v. Mason, 18 P. R. 442, distinguishing Munro v. Orr, 17 P. R. 53, and following Bank of Toronto v. Kelly, 17 P. R. 250.

A defendant setting up that the note sued on was made without consideration, and that the plaintiff was suing on behalf of the payee who had notice, was allowed to defend unconditionally: Farmers' Bank v. Sargent, 17 P. R. 67; also where the defendant set up that the note sued on was void under The Bills of Exchange Act, s. 30 (4), because to the knowledge of the plaintiff, it was given for a patent right, which fact did not appear on its face as the Act requires: Darcy v. Sadler, 1 O. L. R. 626.

Indorsers who denied receipt of notice of dishonour, although the protest was produced, were held entitled to have the matter tried: Ontario Bank v. Burk, 10 P. R. 561; see also Hughson v. Gordon, 10 P. R. 565.

Leave to defend unconditionally will be granted where a bonâ fide defence is set up, even though novel in its character: Jones v. Stone, 1894, A. C. 124, wherever there is a bonâ fide contest on a question which is a fair subject for litigation: Wilkes v. Kennedy, 16 P. R. 204; Munro v. Orr, 17 P. R. 53; Dueber v. Taggart, Ch. D. Ont. 23 Dec., 1895; Clark v. Lee, 5 O. W. R. 631; Rill v. Eden, Ib. 620, 719; McGavin v. Campbell, 6 O. W. R. 94; Imp. Bank v. Tuckett, 6 O. W. R. 161.

So also where the only defence set up is to the jurisdiction of the Court under Rule 162 (1), (4), having regard to the special nature of that jurisdiction: Campbell v. Randall, 17 P. R. 242.

Rule 603. In an action on a covenant in a mortgage where there is a bond fide dispute as to the amount due, leave to defend will be given: Lynde v. Waithman, 1895, 2 Q. B. 180; but quere, in such a case in Ontario whether a reference might not be directed under Rule 607.

Where a plaintiff, pending an action on a covenant in a mortgage, without the leave of the Court, gives notice of sale under a power of sale contained in the mortgage, that, ipse facto, operates as an extension of the time for payment, and the plaintiff cannot without the defendant's consent, withdraw the notice or move for judgment under this Rule until the time for payment under the notice has expired: Lyon v. Rycerson, 17 P. R. 516.

In Anon., 60 L. T. Jour. 176; 1 Charl. Ch. Ca. 52, on an appeal from a Master who had ordered money into Court, a fresh affidavit not used before the Master being read, leave to defend unconditionally was given.

On terms.

(3) Leave to Defend on Payment of Money into Court within a Reasonable Time, or on Other Terms.—Where it was not clear that there was a defence, but the defendant shewed such a state of facts as led to the inference that at the trial he might be able to establish a good defence, leave was given to defend on payment of the amount claimed into Court: Ray v. Barker, 4 Ex. D. 279; sed vide, Leslie v. Poulton, 15 P. R. 332; Merchants National Bank v. Ontario Coal Co., 16 P. R. 87 (where the defence urged was not founded on any known facts, but was merely a suggestion of what might be disclosed if the case went to trial); see also Dunnct v. Harris, 14 P. R. 437, where the defence set up was negatived by the plaintiff's affidavits.

In Anon., 60 L. T. Jour. 85; 1 Charl. Ch. Ca. 45, Quain, J., gave leave to defend where a proper counter-claim was the defence, but confined the defence to the counter-claim: but see Shepherd v. Wilkinson, 6 Times, 13.

Where the defendant shews what his defence is, and his reasons for thinking it substantial, and it appears to be fairly in dispute, he ought not to be ordered to bring money into Court: Runnacles v. Mesquita, 1 Q. B. D. 416; Dobie v. Lemon, 12 P. R. 64; even though the plaintiff's case appears to be supported by documents: Ward v. Plumley, 6 Times, 198; Boices v. Caustic Soda, etc.; Ford v. Harvey, 9 Times, 328; and it would seem from the later cases that, as a general rule, whenever the Court is of opinion that the defendant should be allowed to defend at all, no terms should be imposed: Munro v. Orr, 17 P. R. 53; Ducher v. Taggart, Ch. D. Ont. 23 Dec., 1895.

Where in a claim for payment of sums of money, the defence set up is a denial and contradiction of the accounts on which the claim is founded, it is erroneous to make an order under this Rule refusing leave to defend, except upon the condition of the defendant paying into Court a definite sum within a certain time, and that, unless he does so, judgment shall be signed against him. This is especially the case where the plaintiffs are mortgagees, and have been in possession as mortgagees: Wallingford v. Mutual Society, 5 App. Cas. 685.

In Roberts v. Guest, W. N. 1876, 10; 1 Charl. Ch. Ca. 53, judgment was ordered to be signed, unless the defendant paid the money into Court, where the defence was a counter-claim for costs in a suit in Chancery, in which an order for costs had not been obtained. See also German Bank v. Schmidt, W. N. 1876, 10, and as to the amount to be paid, Oriental Bank v. Fitzgerald, W. N. 1880, 119.

Where the defence to an action by the holder of a bill of exchange⁴ Rule 603. was sworn to be that the acceptance was obtained by fraud, to which the plaintiff replied that he took the bill for value without notice of any fraud, it was held reasonable to give defendant leave to defend upon payment into Court of the amount of the bill: Brooks v. Aylmer, 73 L. T. Jour. 80.

In an action by a company on a call, a clerk of the company swore that notice of allotment was duly posted to the defendant, but though the defendant swore that the letter was never received, it was held that this constituted no defence: see Houshold Fire Insurance Company v. Grant, 4 Ex. D. 216; but it was held that the defendant was entitled to cross examine the clerk who swore to the posting, and leave was therefore given to defend on payment into Court: Carta Para Gold Mining Company v. Fastnedg, 30 W. R. 80.

Where a prima facie case was made out on notes signed by a married woman in the course of a business carried on by her, and the Judge not being satisfied that there was ground for a defence that the business was her husband's, and that she only acted as his agent, and the defendant declining to pay money into Court, leave to sign judgment was granted: Nelson v. Thorner, 11 Ont. App. 616.

A defendant is not entitled as of right to defend upon paying money into Court, without an affidavit of merits: Crump v. Curendish, 5 Ex. D. 211.

The money paid in, is paid in as security to abide the event, and therefore where the plaintiff succeeds he is entitled to have the money paid out to him: Bird v. Barstow, 1892, 1 Q. B. 94; and his right is not affected by the subsequent insolvency of the defendant: Re Ford, 1900, 2 Q. B. 211; and a defendant who has paid money into Court has been held entitled to have it paid out to him if successful in the action, notwithstanding that a notice of payment has been given: Yorkshire Banking Co. v. Beaton, 4 C. P. D. 100, but see in Ont. Rule 798, and notes to Rule 827.

(4) Judgment for Part, and Leave to Defend as to the Residue Unconditionally.—Where the defendant's affidavit admits⁵ Judgment for part. part of the claim to be due, and discloses a defence upon the merits as to the residue, there is no power to grant leave to defend as to part of the claim only, on condition of payment of the amount as to which there is no defence. The plaintiff is entitled to have judgment for the amount admitted; the defendant being at liberty to defend as to the residue: Dennis v. Seymour, 4 Ex. D. 80, and see Rule 604.

Where a good defence is not shewn to the whole of the plaintiff's claim, judgment may be obtained under this Rule for so much of the claim as is not answered: see Rule 604; Anon., W. N. 1876, 53; 2 Charl. Ch. Ca. 22; Hammer v. Flight, 35 L. T. 127; W. N. 1876, 54; 2 Charl. Ch. Ca. 23. (On appeal, however, in the last case, 36 L. T. 279, it was considered that the facts set out in the pleadings did not support the claim in respect of which the plaintiff sought to sign judgment, and the order was therefore refused. See also Dennis v. Seymour, 1 Ex. D. 80.)

It has been held in England that where leave is given to defend upon giving security to the satisfaction of a Master in Chambers, there is no appeal from the decision of the Master in regard to the sufficiency of the security tendered: Hoare & Co. v. Morshead, 1903, 2 K. B. 359; 89 L. T. 225; but in Ontario probably the Master's decision is not necessarily final merely because the subject of it, or some matter decided forming part of it, is more or less in his discretion.

Rule 604.Effect of
of motion.

(5) Dismissal of the Motion. — The simple dismissal of the plaintiff's motion will be equivalent to leave to defend: Margate Pier, etc., Co. v. Perry, W. N. 1876, 52; 2 Charl. Ch. Ca. 19; and where the motion is dismissed the plaintiff must proceed with the action in the usual way, by delivering a statement of claim, or notice under Rule 245.

Amendment.

Formerly where at the time of the motion the indorsement on the writ was defective, the motion was refused, and the defect could not be cured by amendment pending the motion: Gurney v. Small, 1891, 2 Q. L. 584; 65 L. T. 754; but after the amendment of the indorsement a new motion for leave to sign judgment might be made: Paxton v. Baird, 1893, 1 Q. B. 139; 67 L. T. 623; Satchwell v. Clark, 66 L. T. 641; Clarkson v. Dwan, 17 P. R. 92, 206; but see Nesbitt v. Armstrong, 14 P. R. 366, and Casselman v. Barrie, 14 P. R. 507; Roberts v. Plant, 1895, 1 Q. B. 597.

Under Rule 603 (3) a substantive motion to amend is not necessary, but in a proper case, an amendment may be granted on the motion for leave to sign judgment; but it is to be presumed that an amendment under that clause will not be granted, if a defendant will be unfairly prejudiced thereby.

Where a motion under Rule 603 is dismissed, there is no jurisdiction to treat the application as a motion for judgment under Rule 616: Solmes v. Stafford, 16 P. R. 264.

Forms of
judgment, orders, etc.

For form of judgment, see App. Form 159 (H. & L. Forms, No. 424).

For forms of orders under this Rule: see App. Forms, 109, 110, 111 (H. & L. Forms, Nos. 421, 422, 423). For forms of judgment after order and default in complying with the conditions imposed, see App. Forms Nos. 148, 149 (H. & L. Forms, Nos. 816, 817).

Appeal.

An appeal lies to a Judge in Chambers, and from him to a Divisional Court, from an order granted by a judicial officer or local Judge under Rule 603, notwithstanding that it is interlocutory: see Ind. Act, sec. 73, and Bank of Toronto v. Kellty, 17 P. R. 250; but where leave to defend has been given, an appeal against the discretion thus exercised will hardly ever be entertained: Papayanni v. Coutpas, W. N. 1880, 109.

Where the costs of a motion under this Rule are disposed of by an order made on the motion, the mode of disposing of them is not reviewable by the Judge at the trial: Koszen v. Rose, 76 L. T. 145; 45 W. R. 337.

Defence as to part.

604. Where the defence applies only to a part of the plaintiff's claim, or any part of his claim is admitted to be due, the plaintiff shall have judgment forthwith for such part of his claim as the defence does not apply to, or as is admitted to be due, subject to such terms, if any, as to suspending execution, or the payment of any amount levied or any part thereof into Court by the sheriff, the taxation of costs, or otherwise as to the Court or Judge may seem just, and the defendant may be allowed to defend as to the residue of the plaintiff's claim, or the Court or Judge may direct a reference in regard thereto in the cases provided for by Rule ^{Rules} 606 608.

607. Con. Rule 741.

See the Eng. (1883) R. 118. See the Rule applied in Hammer v. Flight, 24 W. R. 346; 36 L. T. 279.

See notes to Rule 603.

605. Judgment may be awarded and execution issued against any defendant without prejudice to the plaintiff's right to proceed against any other defendant. Con. Rule 742 amended. ^{Judgment not to prejudice proceeding against other defendants.}

Cf. Eng. R. (1883) 119 (O. 14, s. 5), which, though not in the same words, is to the same effect.

This Rule does not apply where the right of action can only be in the alternative against one or other of two defendants. In such case judgment signed against one defendant is conclusive evidence of election not to proceed against the other: Morel, etc. v. Westmoreland, 1904, A. C. 11, 14. ~~see French v. Harris 1908 2 K. B. 580~~

See note to Rule 603.

Where one of two partners submits to judgment, and the other obtains leave to defend, the latter cannot set up the judgment so recovered against his partner as a bar to the recovery of judgment against himself: Weatt v. James, 68 L. T. 54, 515; see also Ducher Watch Case Manufg. Co. v. Taggart, 26 Ont. App. 295. Secus, if the judgment is obtained by consent: McLeod v. Power, 79 L. T. 67.

606. On any such motion, an order may be made giving the defendant leave to defend unconditionally, or subject to such terms as to time and mode of trial, giving security, or other conditions, as may seem just. Con. Rule 743, amended. ^{Leave to defend may be absolute or conditional.}

Compare Eng. (1883) R. 120.

See notes to Rule 603.

607. Where on any motion under Rule 603 it appears that the defence disclosed is substantially only as to the amount recoverable, the Court or Judge may pronounce a judgment or order directing a reference to a Master or Official Referee, and may either pronounce such judgment as may be proper, to take effect on the confirmation of the report, or may reserve further directions and questions of costs for the consideration of the Court or a Judge after the report is made. New. ^{Reference, when may be ordered.}

No corresponding English Rule.

608.—(1) At any time after the writ has issued the plaintiff may, by leave of the Court or a Judge, serve notice of motion for judgment. Such leave may be given ex parte ^{Motion for judgment by leave after service of writ}

Rule 608. and subject to such directions, as to the service of the notice of motion and filing of the affidavits and otherwise, as may seem just, and may be indorsed upon the notice of motion or embodied in an order, if an order is deemed necessary.

Chy. G. O. 271 was to the same effect. There is no corresponding English Rule.

The Master, or a Judge in Chambers, may grant leave under this clause to make the motion, but under the next clause the motion itself must be made in Court; Morrison v. Taylor, 46 U. C. Q. B. 492. The report of Lucas v. Fraser, 9 P. R. 319, is erroneous; the motion was before Osler, J., in Court.

Where an order was erroneously made in Chambers instead of in Court, it was held that advantage of the irregularity must be taken by a summary motion to set aside the judgment, and that its invalidity could not be set up in an action founded upon it; Martin v. Evans, 6 Ont. 238; in this case the Judge of a County Court pronounced the judgment in question in a County Court action, and the judicial personality was the same in Court and Chambers.

(2) Upon hearing the motion the Court may grant the application on such terms and conditions as may be thought proper, or may refuse the same; or instead of either granting or refusing the same, may give such directions for the examination of either parties or witnesses, or for the making of further inquiries, or with respect to the further prosecution of the suit, as the circumstances of the case may require, and upon such terms as to costs as the Court thinks right. Con. Rule 744. Rules of 1st Jan., 1896, 1478.

The Chy. O. 272 was to the same effect.

In Federal Bank v. Hope, 4 Ont. 200, the Court refused to decide on a motion under this Rule whether a defence set up was a valid one, it not being clearly bad.

An execution issued upon a judgment obtained under this Rule is, of course, subject to the provisions of The Creditors' Relief Act.

The plaintiff must make out as clear a case for judgment as on a motion under Rule 603; Leslie v. Poulton, 35 P. R. 332; Copeland Breering Co. v. Brooks, 35 C. L. J. 419; and in addition special circumstances necessitating a hearing out of the ordinary course must be shown; Francis v. Francis, 9 P. R. 209; Leslie v. Poulton, supra; that some injury or injustice is likely to happen to him if he is not awarded immediate relief; Greene v. Wright, 12 P. L. 426. Something beyond the plaintiff's desire to get a speedy judgment is necessary; Kinloch v. Morton, 9 P. R. 38; Lucas v. Fraser, 9 P. R. 319; Leslie v. Poulton, supra.

Judgment will not be granted where a substantial defence is indicated in the affidavits for the defendant; Molson Bank v. Cooper, 16 P. R. 195.

Where the affidavits filed for and against the motion were conflicting, the action was ordered to be entered for trial; Francis v.

Francis, 9 P. R. 209; Greene v. Wright, 12 P. R. 426; and even Rule 609 though the Court is unable to say that a clear legal defence is shewn, yet if, on the facts presented, it is of opinion that there is a question to be tried, the motion will not be granted; Leslie v. Boulton, supra. The fact that the sheriff had sold the goods of the defendant in another action, and that the plaintiff desired to obtain a share in the distribution of the proceeds under The Creditors' Relief Act, was held not to be of itself a sufficient reason for granting judgment under this Rule; Molsons Bank v. Cooper, 16 P. R. 195. In Lake of the Woods Milling Co. v. Apps, 17 P. R. 96, the motion was refused though unopposed, and the defendant was sworn to have fraudulently assigned his property: see vide Kinloch v. Morton, supra.

(ii.) Motion for Judgment Generally.

609. Unless it is otherwise provided, the judgment of the Court may be obtained by motion for judgment. How judgment obtained Con. Rule 748.

See Eng. (1883) R. 559.

The "Court" in this Rule means the "High Court of Justice," Wellbar v. Conger, 12 P. R. 354; usually the motion will be made before a single Judge: see sec. 65 of the Act, and Davenport v. Ward, 47 L. J. 348.

Rules 575 et seq. provide for the plaintiff's signing final judgment by default of appearance, and Rules 587 et seq. for the like judgment upon default of pleading without any motion.

Rules 595, 596. provide for a judgment in default of appearance, or defence, or where the plaintiff's case is admitted in cases of foreclosure, sale, or redemption.

Rules 558 and 559 provide for judgment on a trial, without a motion for judgment afterwards.

Rules 597, 598, 599. provide for judgments on cognitions.

Rule 603 provides for obtaining judgment in Chambers on specially indorsed writs.

Rule 608 provides for the recovery of judgments on special motions, by leave, at any time after the writ has issued.

Rule 631 provides for a like judgment where, under the Act or these Rules, or otherwise, it is provided that judgment may be entered or signed upon the filing of an affidavit, or production of a document.

Rules 944, 950, 956. provide for obtaining judgments in Chambers for administration or partition.

Rules 938 et seq. provide for obtaining an adjudication in a summary way upon matters such as are enumerated in Rule 938.

Motions for judgment may be necessary in other cases to obtain the proper relief in case of defendant's default in appearing or pleading: see Rule 593; e.g., where a claim is indorsed for specific performance or other equitable relief, in which case if defendant does not appear the plaintiff must deliver a statement of claim, and cannot sign any judgment, or move for judgment by reason of the default in appearance: Stuart v. McEwen, 18 P. R. 250; or where Rule 610. the Judge at the trial of the action has not ordered a judgment to be entered: see Rule 554, and Wellbinks v. Conger, 12 P. R. 354; or different issues or questions have been determined in different ways, and at different times, where a motion for judgment on the result may thus become necessary: see Rules 504, 613: see also Rules 602, 645.

As to motions for judgment by default of defence to a counter-claim: see Rule 303.

Before setting a case down on motion for judgment, the plaintiff must in general have delivered a statement of claim, or the notice authorized in lieu thereof: see Minton v. Metcalf, 46 L. J. Chy. 384; W. N. 1877, 142; and Rule 369; Hunter v. Wilcockson, 9 P. R. 305, and notes to Rule 212, p. 431.

Two clear days' notice under Rule 348 is sufficient: Martens v. Birney, 10 P. R. 328; see Roupell v. Parsons, W. N. 1876, 61.

By direction of the Judges, the officer with whom cases are set down is required to see that all preliminary proceedings are regular, before setting a cause down. Solicitors will therefore require, in settling down cases for judgment for default of defence (1) to file with the officer with whom the case is set down the writ of summons, affidavit of service of writ, and statement of claim, affidavit of non-appearance or no defence, and the order authorizing the service of the writ, when that is necessary under Rule 162; (2) a certificate of state of cause, where the action is pending in an outer county.

No motion for judgment is necessary in an action in the High Court, after a trial or assessment in a County Court: Scutt v. Freeman, 2 Q. B. D. 177.

It seems that in England, as a matter of form, further directions cannot be reserved; but the same object is accomplished by declaring that the further consideration of the action is adjourned: Bennett v. Moore, 1 Ch. D. 692; Gilbert v. Smith, 2 Ch. D. 686; Brassington v. Cussons, 24 W. R. 881. This difficulty would seem not to exist in practice here.

No judgment on true pleadings merely.

610. A party shall not be entitled to judgment at the trial or on motion on the ground of his pleading being true, if the facts proved are not sufficient in point of law to entitle him to judgment. Con. Rule 749.

Taken from 44 Vict. c. 5, s. 44. There is no corresponding Eng. Rule.

Gray v. Stait, 11 Q. B. D. 668, illustrates this Rule. That was an action for wrongful distress by seizure of goods off the premises, after the expiration of the tenancy, and the tenant had given up possession. The defence set up was proved, viz.: that they had been fraudulently removed to prevent distress for rent; but nevertheless judgment was directed to be entered for the plaintiff for 1s.

In McGee v. Kane, 14 Ont. 220, this Rule was held not to be applicable. In that case the statement of claim had been held to be sufficient upon a demurrer, and the plaintiff having at the trial proved the material allegations in it, it was held that an objection that the facts proved were not sufficient in law to entitle the plaintiff to judgment, could not be entertained, and that the decision on the de- Rules murrer should be followed at the trial. See also Weir v. Mathieson, 611-613.

 11 Gr. 390.

611. In case the title of the plaintiff in an action to recover land, as alleged in the writ, existed at the time of service thereof, but had expired before the trial, the plaintiff shall, unless otherwise ordered, be entitled to judgment that he was entitled at the time of service, and to his costs. Con. Rule 750.

Taken from R. S. O. 1877, c. 51, s. 31. There is no corresponding Eng. Rule.

In England a writ of possession will be allowed to issue although the plaintiff's estate terminated after action commenced, and before trial, unless it will be unjust and futile to issue the writ, and it is for the defendant to shew affirmatively that such will be the result of issuing the writ; Knight v. Clark, 15 Q. B. D. 234; but where a judgment is in the terms provided in this Rule it would seem that a writ of possession could not be issued thereon.

612. Except by leave of the Court or a Judge, an action shall not be set down on motion for judgment after the expiration of one year from the time when the party seeking to set down the same first became entitled so to do. Con. Rule 752.

See Eng. (1883) R. 507, which is to the same effect.

613. Where issues or questions of fact are ordered to be tried or determined in any manner, [and there is no direction for the entry of judgment] the plaintiff may set down the action on motion for judgment as soon as such issues or questions have been determined. If he does not so set it down, and give notice thereof to the other parties, within 14 days after his right so to do has arisen, then after the expiration of such 14 days, any defendant may set down the action on motion for judgment, and give notice thereof to the other parties. Con. Rule 753.

The words in brackets are not in the Eng. (1883) R. 505, and it names 10 days instead of 14, otherwise it is to the same effect. The introduction of the words in brackets appears to make no difference in the construction of the above Rule; they are implied, though not expressed in the English Rule.

This Rule has been held to apply where a reference had been ordered to the Master to inquire whether a partition alleged in the pleadings was binding upon the parties thereto. The Master found in the affirmative. A motion for judgment under this Rule was held to be proper, and judgment was directed to be entered according to the report; Consolidated Bank v. Wallbridge, 18 C. L. J. 205. See also Larkin v. Lloyd, 64 L. T. 507.

Rules
614, 615.

After trial of some only of the issues
of fact.

614. Where issues have been ordered to be tried, or issues or questions of fact to be determined, in any manner, and some only of such issues or questions of fact have been tried or determined, any party who considers that the result of such trial or determination renders the trial or determination of the others of them unnecessary, or renders it desirable that the trial or determination thereof should be postponed, may apply to the Court or a Judge for leave to set down the action on motion for judgment, without waiting for such trial or determination. And the Court or Judge may, if satisfied of the expediency thereof, give such leave, upon such terms, if any, as appear just, and may give any directions which may appear desirable as to postponing the trial of the other questions of fact. Con. Rule 751.

Identical with the Eng. (1883) R. 500.

Where an order was taken, by the consent of the parties, to determine certain issues of fact in a manner which the Judge afterwards held to be beyond the powers of the Court, Jessel, M.R., refused to proceed with the trial, on the ground that any decision founded upon this consent order would not be binding upon the parties: Republic of Bolivia v. National Bol. Sur. Co., 24 W. R. 301.

On motion

judgment
may be given by

Sheppard-Press

615. Upon a motion for judgment, or for a new trial, the Court may, (a) if satisfied that it has before it all the materials necessary for finally determining the questions in dispute, or any of them, or for awarding any relief sought, give judgment accordingly; or may, if it is of opinion that it has not sufficient materials before it to enable it to give judgment, direct the motion to stand over for further consideration, and direct such issues or questions to be tried or determined, and such accounts and inquiries to be taken and made as it may think fit. Con. Rule 755.

Identical with Eng. R. 1875, O. 40, r. 10. The Eng. (1883) R. 508 introduced at (a), "draw all inferences of fact not inconsistent with the finding of the jury." Under this language in the Eng. R. it was held that when the Court is satisfied that the verdict is against the weight of evidence, and considers that all the facts are before it, it may enter judgment accordingly instead of ordering a new trial: Miller v. Foytwin, 17 Q. B. D. 603; 12 App. Cas. 746; Attcock v. Hall, 1891, 1 Q. B. 444; Bryant v. N. M. Tramways Co., 6 Times, 306.

Similar power (including, as in the Eng. Rule, power to draw inferences of fact not inconsistent with the finding of the jury) is conferred upon the Court of Appeal by Rule 817.

The motion for judgment referred to probably means, not the ordinary motion to the Judge who tried the cause, for judgment after the findings upon the facts, but such a motion as is contemplated by

Rule 708, where a judgment has already been directed to be entered. Rule 615 and a Divisional Court is moved for a new trial, or to enter another judgment; but see Bobbett v. S. E. Ry. Co., 9 Q. B. D. 430.

Where the case is one proper for the decision of a jury, the powers conferred on the Court by this Rule may not affect the decision in Moore v. Connecticut Mutual, 6 App. Cas. 614, that a Court has power to enter a verdict in accordance with what they deem to be the true construction of the findings, coupled with other facts, either admitted, or so clearly proved, that there could be no controversy about them, but have no power to enter a verdict in direct opposition to the finding of the jury upon a material issue, upon which there was evidence to go to the jury; see also Perkins v. Dangerfield, 51 L. T. 757, W. N. 1879, 172; Jones v. Hough, 5 Ex. D. 122; and Mollisich v. Lloyd, 40 L. J. C. P. 491; W. N. 1877, 30; Scovell v. B. C. Towing Co., 20 C. L. J. 170; 1 C. L. T. 844; 9 S. C. R. 527; Macdonald v. Mail Pub. Co., 32 Ont. 155.

This Rule, however, seems to confer upon a Divisional Court the power to enter a verdict not in accordance with the finding of the jury, where the Court considers that the most convenient course is not to send the case for the opinion of another jury, but to enter a judgment in accordance with their own views, upon the whole case, if they consider that they have the proper materials before them upon which to decide; see Hamilton v. Johnson, 5 Q. B. D. 263, 266; Lancey v. Burke, 10 Ont. 428; James v. Clement, 13 Ont. 115; Palmer v. Miller, 11, 576; Campbell v. Cole, 7 Ont. 127; St. Denis v. Buxter, 15 Ont. App. 387; Sabbald v. Grand Trunk Ry., 18 Ont. App. at p. 197 (see, however, per Burton, J.A., at p. 207); Clayton v. Patterson, 32 Ont. 435; Jackson v. Grand Trunk Ry., 2 O. L. R. 680; 32 S. C. R. 245; or to finally determine all questions in dispute though the jury may not have found upon them all; Scovell v. British Columbia Towing Co., supra.

Where, therefore, the case is one in which no additional facts remain to be proved, and in which, upon the facts proved, no jury would be justified in finding a verdict adverse to the party in whose favour the Court thinks that judgment should be given, the Court has before it all the materials necessary for finally determining the questions in dispute, and will act under this Rule; Yorkshire Banking Company v. Beaton, 5 C. P. D. 109, 127; Bobbett v. S. E. Ry. Co., 9 Q. B. D. 430; Stewart v. Rounds, 7 Ont. App. 515, 519; McCaull v. Wilkins, 13 Ont. App. 438; Sheppard Pub. Co. v. Press Publishing Co., 5 O. W. R. 775; and this was done where the parties did not object, in a case where the Court was of opinion that the Judge at the trial had improperly usurped the functions of the jury on a question of fact which should have been left to them; Peacey v. Lansdowne, 62 L. T. 316; and see Watt v. Watt, 1935, A. C. 115; 118 L. T. Jour. 524, as to the Court usurping the functions of the jury unless both parties consent.

But where some of the findings of the jury are set aside, but others are left undisturbed, this Rule does not empower the Court to direct a judgment to be entered upon its own view of the facts, where such view is irreconcilable with the unquestioned findings of the jury; Ogilvie v. West Australian M. & L. Corp., 1896, A. C. 257; 74 L. T. 201.

The power must be most sparingly and cautiously exercised (per Wilson, C.J., in Stewart v. Rounds, supra); and Clayton v. Patterson, 32 Ont. 435; and will not be exercised where there is evidence which ought properly to go to a jury; Brewster v. Durand, W. N.

Rule 616. 1880, 27; or where, if a new trial were ordered, further evidence might be adduced: Clark v. Molyneux, 3 Q. B. D. 237, 245; see Baker v. G. T. Ry. Co., 11 Ont. App. 72; Hardman v. Putnam, 18 S. C. R. 714.

In Milissich v. Lloyds, 46 L. J. C. P. 404; W. N. 1877, 36, an action for libel, the Court held that whether the report of a trial in question was a fair one or not, was a question for the jury, which the Court would not withdraw from them under this Rule; but in McGuire v. Western Morning News, 1903, 2 K. B. 100; 88 L. T. 737; which was an action for libel contained in a criticism of a play, the Court held that if the alleged libel only amounted to fair comment it was the duty of the Judge at the trial to withdraw the case from the jury.

If the appellate Court finds that the damages awarded by a jury are excessive, it must grant a new trial. it has no power unless both parties consent, to reduce the damages to a sum which it thinks proper: Watt v. Watt, supra.

Where there was a conflict of evidence, and the Judge who tried the cause without a jury, attributed greater weight to the evidence of some witnesses than others, but, in the opinion of the Court, took a wrong view of the law, the Court refused to give judgment on the evidence, and sent the case for a new trial: Canada Landed Credit Co. v. Thompson, 8 Ont. App. 696.

See also for applications of this Rule: Mercier v. Williams, 9 Q. B. D. 337, 10 App. Cas. 1, where judgment was entered for defendant upon a motion for a new trial in an interpleader issue: Daun v. Simmings, 40 L. T. 556; 41 L. T. 783; 28 W. R. 129; W. N. 1879, 178, where a non-suit was entered, after a verdict for plaintiff, and though the rule only asked for a new trial, the Court being of opinion that there was really no evidence in support of the findings: also Batty v. Clever, 71 L. T. Jour. 43; and Waddell v. Blockley, 10 Ch. D. 416; Eastland v. Burehell, 3 Q. B. D. 432; 38 L. T. 563; Rosenberger v. Grand Trunk Ry. Co., 32 C. P. 349, 365; 8 Ont. App. 482; 9 S. C. R. 311; Standard Bank v. Dunham, 14 Ont. 67; Heath v. Pugh, 6 Q. B. D. 355.

The Court declined to act under this Rule in Garland v. Thompson, 9 Ont. 376; see also Hislop v. McGillivray, 7 C. L. T. 37.

The Rule is applicable on a motion for a new trial to a County Court in term: Donaldson v. Wherry, 29 Ont. 552; but the contrary has been held in England: Pryor v. City Offices Co., 10 Q. B. D. 504; see notes, supra, pp. 192-195.

The Rule was held to enable the Divisional Court to pronounce the proper judgment on the findings of the jury in a case where the Judge who tried the action considered the findings insufficient to warrant a judgment for either party: Stevens v. Grout, 16 P. R. 210; but where judgment cannot be obtained in that way, see Rule 781.

Summary relief on motion upon admissions in pleadings,
etc.

616.—(1) A party may, at any stage of an action, apply to the Court or a Judge for such order as he may, upon any admissions of fact in the pleadings, [(a) or in the examination of any other party] be entitled to; [(b) and it shall not be necessary to wait] for the determination of any other question between the parties (c); [(d) or he may so apply where the only evidence consists of documents and such affidavits as are necessary to prove their execution or identity without the necessity of any cross-examination; or he may so apply where infants are concerned, and evidence is necessary so far only as they are concerned, for the purpose of proving facts which are not disputed. Rule 616.

(2) The foregoing Rules shall not apply to such applications, and any such application may be made by motion as soon as the right of the party applying to the relief claimed has appeared from the pleadings.

No corresponding clause in the Eng. (1883) R. 376.

(3) The Court or a Judge may, on such application, give such relief, subject to such terms, if any, as such Court or Judge may think fit. Con. Rule 156.

See Chy. O. 270, and Eng. (1883) R. 376.

(a) The words here in brackets are not in the Eng. (1883) R. 376, which here has "or otherwise," and those words were held to include admissions contained in an affidavit filed on a previous interlocutory application made in an action in which no pleadings had been delivered, and the writ not specially indorsed: Landerghau v. Feast, 34 W. R. 469, 691; 54 L. T. 369. This was reversed on appeal: 55 L. T. 42; 55 L. J. Chy. 505; on the ground that the admission was not definite enough, and it was held that there must be a clear admission in the action in which the admission is made. The English Rule has also been held to include verbal admissions alleged to have been made before action and not denied by the defendant: Re Beeny, Ffrench v. Sproston, 1894, 1 Ch. 490; 70 L. T. 160. Under this Rule the admission on which the motion is founded must be in the pleadings or examination of the party, but even the English Rule has been held not to authorize the Court to order money to be paid into Court upon an interlocutory application, except upon a clear admission that the party required to pay has it in hand: Neville v. Mattheuman, 1894, 3 Ch. 345; an admission that the party is responsible therefor is not enough: Nutter v. Holland, 1894, 3 Ch. 408; Crompton v. E. Union Bank, 1895, 2 Ch. 711; 73 L. T. 181; but see Re Benson, 1899, 1 Ch. 39; 79 L. T. 590.

(b) Instead of the words in brackets here, the English Rule has the words "without waiting."

(c) Where the claim of the plaintiff against the defendants is severable, and one defendant does not appear, or does not deliver a defence, and another delivers a defence on which the plaintiff's right to relief is admitted, the plaintiff may proceed against the latter under this Rule, and against the former by default: Re Smith's Estate, Bridson v. Smith, 24 W. R. 392; Parsons v. Harris, 6 Ch. D. 654; see, however, Warner v. Davies, 79 L. T. Jour. 136. See also Jenkins v. Davies, 1 Ch. D. 636, where a statement of defence, purporting to be the defence of a husband and wife, raised no defence as regarded the husband, and the plaintiff was held entitled under the English rules of pleading (though it would be otherwise here under Rule 616. Rule 403 to judgment against the husband as admitting the plaintiff's claim, without waiting for the determination of the case against the wife. Where the plaintiff's claim against several defendants is not severable, the action should be brought to a trial or hearing against all of them at the same time: see notes to Rule 586, supra, p. 778.

(d) The words here in brackets are not in the English Rule and are taken from the Chy. O. 270.

Scope of Rule.—The object of this Rule is to enable a plaintiff or defendant to get rid of so much of the action as there is no controversy respecting. If the whole issue is not in controversy, either party may be entitled to move on the admission of the other: Thorpe v. Holdsworth, 3 Ch. D. at p. 640.

There cannot be an admission under this Rule until pleadings, i.e., both claim and defence (Jurmer v. Davis, 23 Sol. Jour. 462), have been delivered: McLeod v. Seasmith, 12 P. R. 606; and the indorsement on a writ was held to be not a pleading within the Rule: Wallis v. Jackson, 23 Ch. D. 204, followed by Boyd, C., in Fell v. Williams, though not mentioned in the report: 3 C. L. T. 358; see also Gillott v. Ker, 24 W. R. 428; and the reference to pleadings in clause (1) of the Rule; and Landergan v. Feast, supra.

Where admissions were made not in pleadings or in any document filed, but in a statement of facts agreed to by both parties, the plaintiff was held to be at liberty to abandon the admissions without any motion to be relieved from them, and to proceed with the action by statement of claim in the usual way, countermanding a notice of motion given by him for judgment on the statement of facts: East v. O'Connor, 19 P. R. 301.

A defendant admitting that she held in her hands funds of an infant, but claiming a discretionary trust therein, which was held not to be the fact, was ordered to bring the fund into Court: Whitewood v. Whitewood, 19 P. R. 183.

As to allowing an admission to be withdrawn, see Hollis v. Burton, 1892, 3 Ch. 226.

The Rule is applicable at any stage of the action, after pleadings: McLeod v. Seasmith, supra, and therefore it was held that the plaintiff was entitled to judgment on an admission under this Rule, though he had delivered a reply, and the action was set down for trial: Brown v. Pearson, 21 Ch. D. 716; and the Rule may be acted on at the trial: Tildesley v. Harper, 7 Ch. D. 403. After a judgment obtained without pleadings, the Rule was held to be applicable on a motion under Rule 228 for leave to issue execution against a person who had been served as a partner under a judgment against the firm, the necessary admissions appearing in an examination of the person upon an affidavit made by him on the motion: Tennant v. Manhard, 12 P. R. 619; but there is no power under this Rule to determine summarily the liability of an alleged partner who was not served with the writ, and who disputes his liability: Standard Bank v. Frind, 14 P. R. 355; and see S. C. in appeal, 15 P. R. 438.

The entering of a dispute note under Rule 176, limiting the defence to a part of the sum claimed and admitting the remainder, was held to be an admission under this Rule: Crawford v. Gemmell, 7 C. L. T. 117, but see now Rule 176.

It is in the discretion of the Judge whether to give relief on the Rule 616, motion or not, and the Court of Appeal will not review his discretion: Mellor v. Sidebottom, 5 Ch. D. 342.

On a plaintiff's motion for judgment where all the facts are before the Court, and the conclusion is against the plaintiff, the action, and not merely the motion, may be dismissed: Hill v. Hill, 2 O. L. R. 289, 541; 3 O. L. R. 202.

The Court acting under this Rule has decided, on the pleadings, the question whether the facts set up by the defence constituted a legal defence: Ontario Bank v. Young, 2 O. L. R. 761, but it has since been held that the Rule does not apply to the case of the alleged insufficiency in law of the statements of fact pleaded in the defence: and that in such case the procedure provided by Rules 259, or 261 should be followed: Edwards v. Cole, 8 O. L. R. 140.

A defendant may move upon an admission entitling him to the "relief" of having the action dismissed: Pascoe v. Richards, 50 L. J. Chy. 337; 44 L. T. 87; The Naples, 35 W. R. 59; Coyle v. Coyle, 19 P. R. 97; Hermann v. Wilson, 32 Ont. 60.

The provisions of this Rule, which are not contained in the English Rule, are taken from the former Chancery practice regulating hearings on motion for decree (see Chy. O. 270), and on bill and answer.

Both those methods of hearing a case were formerly employed in cases involving the consideration of important questions of law. Suits for the construction of wills are familiar examples: see for instance Fuller v. Macklen, 25 Gr. 455; Robson v. Argue, 25 Gr. 467; Patton v. Hickson, 25 Gr. 102; Clarkson v. Scott, 25 Gr. 373. In such cases this Rule is no doubt applicable, and the motion will be properly made in Court: Rogers v. Wilson, 12 Ont. 322. In simpler cases similar to those in which the English Rule was intended to apply, the application may be made in Chambers: see Gough v. Heatley, W. N. 1884, 14; 32 W. R. 385; 49 L. T. 772; Cook v. Heynes, ib. 75; London, etc., v. Digby, 36 W. R. 497; 58 L. T. 724; 57 L. J. Chy. 505; Allen v. Oakley, 2 L. T. 724. Applications under this Rule have frequently been entertained by the Master in Chambers: see Trust and Loan Co. v. Hill, 9 P. R. 8; Cook v. Lemieux, 10 P. R. 577; Taylor v. Cook, 11 P. R. 60; Henebery v. Turner, 2 Ont. 284; and see Ladies Tailoring Assoc. v. Clarkson, 27 C. L. J. 501.

All the plaintiffs on the record must join in, or be parties to, the motion under this Rule: Re Wright, Kirke v. North, 1895, 2 Ch. 747; 73 L. T. 396.

Even in England an application may be made where the judgment asked for is in the nature of a final judgment and not merely interlocutory: Gilbert v. Smith, 2 Ch. D. 686; Jenkins v. Davies, 1 Ch. D. 696; Re Barker's Estate, 10 Ch. D. 162, 165; but it has been held that the party moving must have a clear case, and if he claims a right which does not exist at law, the fact that it is not denied in the other party's pleadings will not entitle him to judgment: Chilton v. London, 7 Ch. D. 735; see Rule 610.

Formerly in Chancery on a motion for decree the examination of a defendant might be read, with his answer, against him: Proctor v. Grant, 9 Gr. 31; Mathers v. Short, 14 Gr. 255; see also Powell v. Lea, 20 Gr. 621; and Rogers v. Wilson, 12 P. R. 322, 545; and Rule 616. on a motion for judgment under this Rule the defendant's examination for discovery may be read: Coyle v. Coyle, 19 P. R. 97. Affidavits proving exhibits might formerly be read on motion for decree under Chy. O. 270, or on a hearing on bill and answer: see Killaly v. Graham, 2 Gr. 281; Chalk v. Raine, 13 Jnr. 381. But quære how far this is the case now: Cook v. Lemieux, 10 P. R. 577. It may be found that upon the documents which may be referred to the questions raised in the action cannot satisfactorily be disposed of, in which case the action may be directed to be brought on for trial in the usual way: Gardner v. Brown (before Galt, C.J., 28th October, 1889).

Counter-claim as an answer to a motion.

Where the plaintiff's claim is admitted, but the defendant set up a counter-claim for damages for a larger amount, the plaintiff is not necessarily entitled to judgment upon the admission of his claim. The proceeding upon the plaintiff's claim may be stayed on proper terms pending the disposition of the counter-claim: Rule 255. Semble, if the counter-claim is apparently frivolous or unsubstantial, the plaintiff would be entitled to have the amount of his claim brought into Court to await the result: Mercy Steamship Co. v. Shuttleworth, 10 Q. B. D. 468; affirmed on appeal, 11 Q. B. D. 531. A judgment for the plaintiff was made, where the counter-claim was in fact an independent claim for damages as to the quality of other goods than those for the price of which the plaintiff was suing; but execution was directed to be stayed till after the trial, if the defendant should pay the amount of the judgment into Court: Showell v. Bouillon, W. N. 1883, 50; 31 W. R. 550; 48 L. T. 613; 52 L. J. Q. B. 284; Sheppard v. Wilkinson, 6 Times, 13; Court v. Sheen, 7 Times, 556.

In an action on a foreign judgment where the only defence was a denial of the judgment, it was held that the plaintiff was not entitled to judgment, under this Rule, upon the pleadings and an exemplification of the judgment, as it was necessary for the plaintiff to give evidence to connect the defendant with it, and support its genuineness, the defendant having put the judgment distinctly in issue: Henberg v. Turner, 2 Out. 284.

In reply the plaintiff admitted that a collision was not due to default of the defendant, or those on board, and submitted to a decree that it was due to inevitable accident. On motion by the defendant on the admission, the action was dismissed with costs: The Naples, 35 W. R. 59.

In an action by the payee against the maker of a note the defendant, on examination, said that the note had been made and delivered to a trading company for a purpose other than that for which the company had deposited it with the plaintiffs, but did not allege notice to the plaintiff. Judgment for the plaintiff was granted: Ontario Bank v. Young, 2 O. L. R. 761.

Where the plaintiff's case is not conclusively made out, the motion will be refused: Cook v. Lemieux, 10 P. R. 577, where it was held that much care must be taken in cases under this Rule not to take away the right of trial on voir dire evidence: see also Gardner v. Brown, supra, and Barnum v. Henry, 9 O. L. R. 319.

The whole of an admission in a pleading must be looked at, and the sense, and not merely the grammatical construction or the form thereof, is to be regarded as the criterion of the extent and scope of the admission: Dorey v. Irwin, 4 Out. 8; and it must be clear and distinct: Landergan v. Frost, 34 W. R. 694; 55 L. T. 42.

In an action for infringement of a patent, the defendant admitted Rule 616 the infringement in ten instances, but denied any other infringement. On a motion for judgment on the pleadings the plaintiff was held bound to take the denial as well as the admissions, and was entitled to an inquiry as to damages limited to the ten instances admitted: United Telephone Co. v. Donohoe, 31 Ch. D. 399.

An admission by defence must be taken just as it is pleaded: Demarest v. Midland, 10 P. R. 640. Thus in an action on a policy of insurance for £1,000, a defence that on an apportionment of the loss under a certain condition in the policy, the defendants were liable for £62 only, was set up. The plaintiffs were not allowed to have judgment for this, and proceed for more; the defendants' contention being that the admission was, that £62 was due as the result of an entire defence shewing that no more was due: Andrews v. Patriot Assurance Co., 18 L. R. Ir. 115.

The statement of one partner on his examination (in a suit against the firm), as to transactions which occurred during the partnership, binds all the partners, unless they seek by examination of some of themselves to contradict or qualify the statements of the partner whose evidence they object to: Taylor v. Cook & Co., 11 P. R. 60.

In a foreclosure action, the statement of defence craved leave to refer to deeds mentioned in the statement of claim, and, save as by such deeds when produced should appear, the defence did not admit that they were to the effect mentioned in the statement of claim. Upon motion for judgment under this Rule, the deeds being produced, it was held that there was a sufficient admission of the execution of the deeds, as they appeared to be of the dates, and made between the parties, mentioned in the statement of claim: Barnard v. Wicland, W. N. 1882, 103; 30 W. R. 947.

Judgment for possession was given against a mortgagor who admitted the mortgage and default simply: Trust & Loan Co. v. Hill, 9 P. R. 8; so where he admitted that his mortgage was in default and plaintiff was mortgagee, merely saying, in addition, that some one else was in possession: Padgett v. Binns, W. N. 1884, 10; see also Croft v. Collingwood, ib., 33.

In Coddington v. Jacksonville, Pensacola and Mobile Railway Co., 39 L. T. 12, the plaintiff claimed a charge upon certain bonds of a foreign state which were deposited in the bank to the credit of the cause. The defendants, in their answer, admitted the plaintiff's title, and an order was made, before the hearing, for the sale of the bonds as perishable goods within the meaning of Rule 1007.

Under this Rule in a partition action, an inquiry was directed as to the persons interested in the property: Gilbert v. Smith, 2 Ch. D. 686; an order for sale was made: Burnell v. Burnell, 11 Ch. D. 213; an order was made for taking the accounts of partnership dealings: Turgand v. Wilson, 1 Ch. D. 85; the agent of the trustees of a will was ordered to deliver up all securities relating to the testator's estate, and to account for all sums received on behalf of the estate: Rumsey v. Reade, 1 Ch. D. 643; and an order was made for a dissolution of a partnership: Thorp v. Holdsworth, 3 Ch. D. 637; see also Reynolds v. Moore, 1 Ch. D. 632; Martin v. Gale, 4 Ch. D. 428. Probably also the common application for payment into Court by an accounting party of a sum admitted to be in his hands may now, at any time before judgment, be made in Chambers under this Rule, though formerly made in Court: Re Curry, 8 P. R. 340. As to what is a sufficient admission for this purpose, see Re Curry, supra; Re

Rule 617.

Babcock, 8 Gr. 409; Collins v. Orme, 3 Chy. Ch. 70; London Syndicate v. Lord, 8 Ch. D. 84; Fremman v. Cox, ib., 148; Symonds v. Jenkins, 34 L. T. 277; Re Becup, French v. Sproston, 1894, 1 Ch. 499; Hollis v. Burton, 1892, 3 Ch. 229; Nutter v. Holland 1894, 3 Ch. 408; Crompton & F. Union Bank v. Burton, 1895, 2 Ch. 711; 73 L. T. 181; Neville v. Matthewman, 1894, 3 Ch. 345; Re Benson, 1899, 1 Ch. 39; 79 L. T. 390.

• Admissions in letters written by a trustee before, and after, action brought, that he has received trust funds, and the recital of that fact in the settlement, the execution of which by the trustee has been proved, are under the English Rule sufficient admissions to support an order for payment into Court, although there is no formal admission in the pleadings: Hampden v. Wallis, 27 Ch. D. 251; see also Porrett v. White, 31 Ch. D. 52; sed quare, if they would be sufficient under this Rule, which requires the admission to be in the pleadings or examination of the party.

The Court can, on an interlocutory application, when it has before it the parties to an account, look at all the facts of the case, and use its discretion as to disallowing charges to which the party making them is clearly not entitled, and may order payment into Court of the sum which it thus decides to be plainly due to the other party: Wanklyn v. Wilson, 35 Ch. D. 180.

A foreclosure decree was refused where the defence did not admit the mortgage deed: Davies v. Smith, 29 Sol. Jour. 115, [or Smith v. Davies, 29 Sol. Jour. 132]; see W. N. 1884, 242; 52 L. T. 10.

Where a solicitor put in a fraudulent defence for his client, without the knowledge of the client, making admissions on which judgment was obtained against the client, the judgment was set aside and the client allowed to withdraw the defence and put in a fresh one: Williams v. Preston, 20 Ch. D. 672.

Practice on Motion.—Notice of motion need only be served upon the defendant who makes the admission, at any rate where the cause of action is severable: Macmillan v. Australasian, 76 L. T. 182.

It seems that in England, as a matter of form, further directions cannot be reserved; but the same object is accomplished by declaring that the further consideration of the action is adjourned: Bennett v. Moore, 1 Ch. D. 692; Gilbert v. Smith, 2 Ch. D. 686; Brassington v. Cussons, 24 W. R. 881. No difficulty of that kind would seem to arise here (see Rule 618), and where the motion is made in Chambers the motion on further directions should also be made in Chambers: McGillicuddy v. McCarthy, 7 C. L. T. 165.

Where the plaintiff makes no case the action, and not merely the motion, should be dismissed: Hill v. Hill, 2 O. L. R. 541; 3 O. L. R. 202; Herman v. Wilson, 32 Ont. 60.

Pending application turned into motion for judgment, or hearing of cause.

617. Where it is made to appear on the hearing of any application that it will be conducive to the ends of justice to permit it, the Court may direct the application to be turned into a motion for judgment, or a hearing of the cause or matter; and may make such order as to the time and manner of giving the evidence in the cause or matter, and with respect to the further prosecution thereof, as the circumstances of the case may require; and upon the hearing it shall be discretionary with the Court to either pronounce a judgment or make such order as may seem just. Con. Rule 757.

Same in effect as Chy. O. 614. There is no corresponding English Rule.

The Court may direct a motion for an interim receiver or injunction to be turned into a motion for judgment where it is satisfied that there is no other question to be tried; and the consent of parties is not necessary: Merritt v. Nissen, Divl. Court, 12 Dec., 1900; King v. Toronto, per Britton, J., 29 Dec., 1902.

See this Rule applied in Byrne v. Box, 2 C. L. T. 47; but in Selmer v. Stafford, 16 P. R. 264 (reversing S. C., 16 P. R. 78), it was held by the Court of Appeal that this Rule could not be applied to turn an appeal from the Master in Chambers refusing a motion under Rule 603, into a motion for judgment under this Rule.

618. Where further directions have been reserved until after the making of a report, if the party having the conduct of the action does not set the same down by way of motion for judgment on further directions, and serve notice thereof within 14 days after the confirmation of the report, any other party affected by the report may set the same down, and serve notice of the motion. Con. Rule 758.

If cause not set down on F. D. within 14 days after confirmation of report, any party interested may set down and give notice.

Evidence taken in the Master's office cannot be read on a hearing on further directions: Gould v. Burritt, 11 Gr. 234; Curling v. Austin, 2 Dr. & Sm. 120; McMill v. Courtier, 17 Gr. 271. But on the question of costs reserved, the Court will look at an order made on appeal from the report, and also at the pleadings, and other orders made in the cause: Downey v. Roof, 6 P. R. 89.

The Court may, on a hearing of the cause on further directions, refuse to act upon a report, although it be confirmed, if it appears to be improper, or unsatisfactory: Taylor v. Craven, 10 Gr. 488; Baldwin v. Crawford, 1 Gr. 202; Harrison v. McSheehan, 80 L. T. Jour. 79; and it may also refuse to carry out the original judgment pronounced in the action, if it appears to have been improvidently granted: see Commercial Bank v. Graham, 4 Gr. 419; Mitchell v. Strathg., 28 Gr. 80. Where the original judgment is defective, the Court may as far as possible supply the defects: Robertson v. Meyers, 1 Gr. 560.

Court on F. D. may refuse to act on report, or to carry out an erroneous judgment.

A judgment pronounced by a single Judge on a hearing on further directions, was formerly not appealable to a Divisional Court: Wansley v. Smallwood, 10 P. R. 233; Re Wilson, 16 P. R. 150; but now an appeal lies under the Jud. Act. sec. 74 (1).

6. FORM OF JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS, ETC.

619. Judgments for foreclosure or sale of mortgaged property where a reference is required, shall after the proper recital: hitherto in use, direct, in general terms, that all necessary inquiries be made, accounts taken, costs taxed, and General form of judgment for foreclosure or sale.

Rule 619. proceedings had for redemption or foreclosure, (or for redemption or sale as the case may be) and that for these purposes the cause is referred to (naming the Master); and a judgment so expressed shall be read and construed as if the same set forth the particulars contained in Rules 744 to 755 and Rule 385. Con. Rule 776.

Taken from Chy. O. 441.

A declaration that plaintiff is entitled to a charge is a proper preface to a judgment on mortgage debentures: Parkinson v. Wainwright, 43 W. R. 429, but not after a windlag-up order has been made, unless with the consent of the liquidator: Warwick v. Thurlow, Ib., 493.

Judgments under Judicature Act for foreclosure or sale, effect of.

Judgments for foreclosure, or sale, since The Judicature Act have been authorized to be drawn in a similar form to that prescribed by Chy. Ord. 441, from which this Rule is taken: see App. Forms, Nos. 153, 154, (H. & L. Forms, Nos. 864 and 865). The Rules prior to 1888 did not expressly state that judgments so worded were to have the effect which Chy. O. 441 stated they should have, but in McDougall v. Lindsay, 10 P. R. 248, it was held that such was the effect of judgments so drawn.

In special cases.

Where the circumstances of the case are special, a judgment in the ordinary form prescribed by this Rule would not be appropriate. Thus, where a tender was pleaded, a special inquiry was directed on this point, and further directions and costs were reserved: Peters v. Allen, 19 Gr. 98. So also where the defendant pleaded payment in full, costs were reserved: Gooderham v. DeGrassi, 2 Gr. 137. In such cases, this must still be done, or the judgment must provide for the dismissal of the action in case the Master shall find in the defendant's favour. So also, where the defendants were rival claimants to the equity of redemption, special directions were inserted in the decree: Ramsay v. Thomson, 8 Gr. 372.

Day to shew cause.

When infants are defendants, a judgment of foreclosure must also, ordinarily, reserve a day to shew cause: see notes to Rule 595.

Reference to take account, when unnecessary.

It is for the plaintiff himself to determine whether or not a reference is required. This will depend upon whether or not there are any subsequent incumbrances: of this he must satisfy himself by getting the proper certificates from the proper officers: see Rule 745. Where there are no subsequent incumbrancers, the account should be taken on entering the judgment: if the plaintiff takes a reference to the Master unnecessarily, he cannot recover the extra costs so occasioned: Hamilton v. Howard, 4 Gr. 581; Purdy v. Parks, 9 P. R. 424.

Where the plaintiff took a judgment without a reference, and, after obtaining a final order of foreclosure, discovered that there were subsequent incumbrances, the Court refused to make a supplemental judgment directing the usual accounts and inquiries against the incumbrancers, but amended the judgment by inserting the usual reference as to incumbrancers, which had the effect of nullifying the previous proceedings: Wilgress v. Crawford, 12 P. R. 658; and so also where after a final order, it was discovered that a parcel of land had by mistake been omitted from the indorsement on the writ of summons, an amendment was granted but only on the terms of vacating the judgment and final order: Clarke v. Cooper, 15 P. R. 54.

The reference, if directed, should be made to a Master in the county where the writ issued: Macara v. Gwynne, 3 Gr. 310. But the reference may afterwards be changed on motion, for sufficient cause: see notes to Rule 529, p. 740.

A judgment to enforce an equitable mortgage of shares by deposit, should be in substantially the same form as a judgment to enforce an equitable mortgage by depositing title deeds: Harrold v. Plenty, 85 L. T. 43.

620. Judgments and orders shall be divided into convenient paragraphs, and such paragraphs are to be numbered consecutively: and where accounts are directed to be taken, or inquiries to be made, the direction in that behalf may be according to Form No. 157. Con. Rule 117.

Actions against Executors and Administrators.—Pleading. Pleading. —In an action against a personal representative for a debt of the deceased, if the defendant has not administered the estate and has no defence, he should not allow judgment to go against him if the estate is not solvent, but should ask by counter-claim for judgment for administration and for payment of the debt in due course of administration. Judgment in that form is the proper judgment in all actions in the High Court (and in the County Court, where it has jurisdiction to order administration under R. S. O. c. 55, s. 23, clause 131, against executors, etc., when there is a recovery of money, and assets are not admitted: see McKibbin v. Feegan, 21 Ont. App. 95.

If he has duly administered he should plead plene administravit or plene administravit prater, viz.: "That he has fully administered all the estate and effects of A. B., the deceased, which have come to the hands of the defendant as executor (or administrator) to be administered [except, etc.], and the defendant had not at the commencement of this action, nor has he since, any estate or effects of A. B. in the hands of the defendant as executor (or administrator), [except as aforesaid]." And scilicet, a personal representative may plead plene administravit, where he has paid his own debt out of the assets, without notice of any other claims, if that has exhausted the assets: see Re Fludger, 1898, 2 Ch. 562; 79 L. T. 298.

If the executor thus pleads plene administravit, he cannot, if he establishes his defence, be made personally liable; but if he does not so plead, he is taken to admit assets, and may become personally liable for the claim and the costs, if they cannot be levied on property of deceased.

If the defendant does not so plead, or if he pleads and fails to establish his defence, or disputes the right to recover, or pleads any defence which is false to his knowledge, such as a denial that he is executor, etc., and the plaintiff succeeds, the plaintiff is entitled to judgment for costs de bonis et terris testatoris, si, etc., et si non de propriis: Huyck v. Proctor, 10 P. R. 25; Lince v. Faircloth, 11 P. R. 253; Miles v. Brown, 15 P. R. 375; but scilicet, not for the debt, de propriis: see Wms. Exors., 9th ed., 1859-60.

If the defendant proves his plea of plene administravit he will usually be given the general costs of the cause, as having succeeded on a plea in bar, although other issues may be found against him:

Rules see McKibbin v. Feegan, 21 Ont. App. at p. 94. To prove his plea 621, 622. he must probably shew due notice to creditors and distribution of the estate thus far come to his hands pursuant to R. S. O. c. 129, s. 38, or in administration proceedings in Court.

If the plaintiff takes issue on a plea of plene administravit, and proves some assets unadministered, he may obtain judgment to the extent of the assets proved, and of future assets quando acciderint for the residue, if any, of his debt: 2 Wms. Exors., 9th ed., 1800, and in such a case the defendant may be ordered personally to pay the costs: 2 Wms. Exors., 9th ed., 1859. Where a judgment has been recovered in this form against a personal representative, it would seem that it would be open to the plaintiff, where the facts justified that course, to present a petition under Rule 612, alleging a devastavit by defendant and praying judgment against him personally to the extent thereof, so far as necessary to satisfy the judgment.

Judgment
if plaintiff admits plea of plene administravit

The plaintiff upon the plea of plene administravit being pleaded, may apply for judgment (for his debt and costs) of future assets quando, etc.: 2 Wms. Exors., 9th ed., 1862; Chitty's Forms, 12th ed., 540. He may do this at once, or after having obtained discovery: see Chitty's Forms, 12th ed., 290, 291.

Such a judgment may, after assets have come to the hands of the executor, and demand has been made upon him for payment, be enforced by applying under Rule 804 for leave to issue execution, or by action upon the judgment: 2 Wms. Exors., 9th ed., 1863.

Before The Judicature Act if a plaintiff took issue on a plea of plene administravit and failed, he was not entitled to judgment of assets quando, etc.; but this is no longer the case, and such judgment may be awarded if desired, even though the plea be established: McKibbin v. Feegan, supra.

Sums to be stated in dollars and cents.

621. In all judgments and orders, sums shall be stated in dollars and cents. Con. Rule 778.

Taken from Chy. O. 441.

The Court has no jurisdiction to award payment in anything but Canadian currency: Manners v. Pearson, 1898, 1 Ch. 581; 78 L. T. 432; and in taking the account of money payable under a contract in a foreign currency, conversion into Canadian currency is to be made at the rate of exchange current at the time when the amount is ascertained: Ib.

Liberty to apply, need not be reserved.

622. It shall not be necessary in any judgment or order to reserve liberty to apply, but any party may apply to the Court from time to time as he may be advised. Con. Rule 771.

Taken from Chy. O. 186.

It is said that all orders of the Court carry with them in gremio liberty to apply to the Court, per Fry, J., Fritz v. Hobson, 14 Ch. D. 542; 42 L. T. 225; see also Re Roper, Taylor v. Ward, 39 W. R. 101, and Hew v. Winterton, 91 L. T. 763, 765. But this liberty was held in England not to be implied in orders of a final nature: Penrice v. Williams, 23 Ch. D. 353; 48 L. T. 808; nor, in favour of defendant.

in an order dismissing an action, except for the purpose of enforcing Rules the terms of the order: Huntley v. Link, 26 Sol. Jour. 59. 623, 624

Where costs of an interlocutory motion were reserved "until the hearing or other final disposition of the cause," and an order was subsequently made allowing a demurrer to the plaintiff's bill for want of equity, but the costs of the interlocutory motion were not then asked for, it was held that a subsequent application might be made to the Court to amend the order by directing the allowance of the costs reserved: St. Michael's College v. Merrick, 26 Gr. 216; 18 C. L. J. 130; Viney v. Chaplin, 3 De G. & J. 281; Fritz v. Hobson, 14 Ch. D. 542; Blakey v. Hall, 56 L. T. 400; and see Gosnell v. Bishop, 38 Ch. D. 385; Hoe v. Winterton, 91 L. T. 763, 765.

Liberty to apply is said only to extend to applications for further relief consequent on the order or judgment pronounced, and not to an application for additional relief which is not consequential on that already given: see Poisson v. Robertson, 86 L. T. 392.

623. Every judgment or order shall shew on its face the day of the week and month on which it was given or made, and (except judgments signed by default or upon an order for leave to sign judgment and orders of course) shall shew the name or names of the Judge or Judges who gave or made the same. Con. Rule 179. Form of judgments and orders.

The date of a judgment or order is the date of pronouncing it; from that date it takes effect: Rule 629.

Judgments and orders should be dated on the day on which they are finally made, and should not be ante-dated, nor contain recitals of affidavits sworn after the date of the order: Ashley v. Taylor, 10 Ch. D. 768; nor upon an application by a defendant against the plaintiff, should the order be drawn up stating that a co-defendant appeared who in fact did appear, but who had not been served with the notice: Evelyn v. Evelyn, 28 W. R. 531.

Where an order is expressed to last until a particular day "or until further order," the words "further order" mean an order made on an earlier day than the day specified: Bolton v. London School Board, 7 Ch. D. 766.

As to the manner in which the name of the Judge or officer is to be stated in the margin of judgments or orders, see Appendix, Forms Nos. 102 (Divisional Court), 103 (Single Judge), 104 (Order in Chambers), (H. & L. Forms, Nos. 910, 908 and 902).

7. SETTLEMENT OF JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS.

624. Judgments in cases tried at Toronto shall be settled by the Registrar to whom is assigned the duty of settling judgments. Rules 23 June, 1894, 1351; Rules of 1 Jan., 1896, 1479. By Registrar.

The Registrar here referred to is the Senior Registrar of the High Court: see Rule 28.

Rule 624. When a judgment is pronounced, or an order made, by the Court, a note is taken by the Registrar or other officer attending the Court for the purpose, and a similar note is indorsed by counsel on their briefs; and from these notes the draft or minute of the judgment, or order, is prepared.

Judgments pronounced on circuit, are, when necessary, to be settled by the Deputy Registrar, Deputy Clerk, or Local Registrar, or by the Senior Registrar; see Rule 625.

This Rule only refers to judgments pronounced after a trial at Toronto; judgments pronounced on motions in the Weekly Court are settled by the Clerk of that Court, or other officer acting as Clerk thereof; see Rule 34.

The party on whose motion a judgment or order is made, if he obtains any relief or benefit thereby, is prima facie entitled to the carriage of it.

Appointment to settle.

The party desiring to enter a judgment, or issue an order, the minutes of which require to be first settled, usually in practice prepares a draft, and attends the Registrar, or other officer authorized to settle the minutes of the judgment or order, for an appointment to settle it. The Registrar or other officer will, however, if required, himself prepare the draft of the judgment or order, and when it is ready will issue the appointment to settle it, if he deems one necessary; see Rule 626.

On the return of the appointment, the parties notified attend and make any objections they may have to the draft, which are disposed of by the Registrar, or the officer settling the minutes, who then marks the draft settled, and adds his initials. The minutes having been settled, the judgment, or order, is then engrossed, and having been compared with the draft and passed, it is then signed by the Registrar, or other officer, who has settled the minutes, for entry.

Appointment to pass

Where the Registrar or other officer thinks it necessary, he may give an appointment to pass; e.g., when any blanks have been left in the draft; or the terms of the order, or judgment, are complicated, and there is any danger of error in transcribing the draft. The passing of the judgment, or order, is merely the act of comparing the engrossment with the draft and seeing that it agrees with it, and signing and marking it for entry.

Registrar
may make alterations.

The Registrar or other officer in settling any judgment or order, may introduce such alterations as from his experience he believes the Court will sanction; and these alterations are binding on the parties; see Davenport v. Stafford, 8 Beav. 503; Hargrave v. Hargrave, 3 Mac. & G. 318; Seton, 5th ed., 164; McKindney v. Armstrong, 11 P. R. 200. It is also his duty to bring to the attention of the Judge any defects he may find to exist in the proceedings. Thus, when, after judgment pronounced, it appeared before the Registrar that one of the defendants had not been duly served with process, on his bringing the point to the attention of the Judge the judgment was ordered not to be drawn up; Re Howard, 10 Ch. D. 550.

Where the Registrar finds that the judgment or order has been pronounced without due notice to a non-appearing party, entitled to notice, before drawing up the order or judgment he should obtain the direction of the Court; see Tilling v. Blythe, 100 L. T. Jour. 367; 1899, 1 Q. B. 557.

Where questions of difficulty arise, the Registrar may require the matter to be mentioned to the Court.

Motion to vary Minutes.—After the draft or minutes have been settled by the Registrar, or other officer, but not before, any party dissatisfied may move to vary the minutes; and the Registrar, or other officer, should be previously informed of the application; Prince v. Howard, 14 Beav. 208; Hood v. Cooper, 24 Beav. 373; Tennant v. Trenchard, L. R. 4 Chy. 517, 545; British Dynamite Co. v. Krebs, 25 W. R. 840; and such application may be made at any time before the judgment, or order, is passed and entered; 1 Turn. & Ven. 319; Daal. Pr. 875; Seton, 5th ed. 164. The notice of motion should be served on all parties interested, and state the alteration desired.

Varying minutes.

The Court may refuse to permit any question to be argued on a motion to vary the minutes, except what was the actual order made, and whether the intention of the Court has been correctly expressed; South Wales Min. Co. v. Davies, 31 Sol. Jour. 110; unless both parties consent to an addition being made, or when it cannot be ascertained what order was pronounced; in which cases the Court may allow the case to be re-argued; see Seton, 5th ed. 165; Hendrie v. Beatty, 20 Gr. 423. The Court has, however, on a motion to vary minutes, varied the decree; Johnson v. School Trustees, 23 Gr. 204; and until a judgment has been actually entered a Judge may recall, or alter the judgment; Gilgore v. Gbagore, 9 Ont. 511, note; Canadian L. & E. Co. v. Dymart, Ib.; Re Suffield & Watts, 20 Q. B. D. at p. 987; Re Adam Eyton, 36 Ch. D. 200, and other cases in notes to Rule 640.

As the Registrar or other officer settling minutes has no jurisdiction to stay the entry of an order or judgment indefinitely, any motion to vary the minutes should be made promptly, after the settlement of the minutes; it should be made returnable at the next sittings of the Court at which the order or judgment was pronounced. Such motions are usually heard before the Judge by whom the order or judgment in question was made, and if he be not then sitting, the motion will usually be adjourned to be heard by him.

Costs of motion.

Any variation made on a motion to vary the minutes is embodied in the draft, and except where the costs of the motion are ordered to be paid, no further order need be drawn up by any party.

If there is fair ground for the application, and there has been no improper opposition, the costs are usually made costs in the cause, and the judgment, or order, may be post-dated so as to include the costs of the day; see Seton, 5th ed. 165.

Where an order has been made in Chambers, it cannot be drawn up as a Court order, even though the case be one which might have properly been argued in Court, unless both the parties and the Court consent; Re Henning, 11 P. R. 272.

Where the minutes have been settled by a Local Officer they may be varied either on application to the Senior Registrar, or on motion to "the Judge," presumably the Judge who pronounced the judgment; Rule 625.

Where, after judgment was pronounced, a mistake was discovered in the statement of claim, on a subsequent application to amend the statement of claim, the judgment was directed to be post-dated as of a day subsequent to the amendment; Winkley v. Winkley, 44 L. P. 572.

Under the former practice, if the suit abated after decree pronounced, or between hearing and judgment, the decree might be passed and entered notwithstanding the abatement of the suit; Seton, 5th ed. 165; Braynish v. Pomeroy, 1 Chy. Ch. 32.

Abaten ent.

Rule 624.

A party not producing his briefs when required, was ordered to do so within a limited time, and in default the order was to be drawn up without them: Yeatman v. Read, 14 W. R. 123.

A solicitor who has been discharged by his client before the passing and entry of an order, will not be allowed to withhold papers on which he claims to have a lien, so as to prevent the drawing up, or entry of the order: Simmonds v. G. E. Ry. Co., L. R. 3 Ch. 797; Clifford v. Turrill, 2 D. & S. 1.

An appointment to settle minutes, served one day and returnable the next, was sufficient under the former practice: Re Christmas, 19 Beav. 519. No time is prescribed by the Rules within which a judgment or order is to be bespoken, and issued; under the former practice a time was limited by Chy. Orders 10, 11: see Holmsted's Rules & Orders, 8; and after the lapse of the prescribed time the judgment or order was not to be issued without leave; but this practice was not very strictly followed. After the lapse of four years, notice of the application to issue an order was required to be given to all parties: Re Forrester, Messmer v. Forrester, 1 Chy. Ch. 29.

Entry of Judgments and Orders.—Before an order requiring entry can be enforced by attachment for disobedience, it must be entered, and such entry should have been made before the expiry of the time limited by the order for doing the act thereby ordered to be done: Ballard v. Tomlinson, 48 L. T. 515.

Proceedings under a judgment, or order, requiring entry, before it has been entered, are irregular and voidable: Tolson v. Jervis, 8 Beav. 366; Drummond v. Anderson, 3 Gr. 150; although in the case of injunctions and restraining orders, parties are bound by notice of the restraining order, however received, from the time when it is pronounced: see Seton, 5th ed., 456.

Time for entry.

By English Gen. Ord. of 4th December, 1691, all orders pronounced in Michaelmas or Hilary Terms, or the vacations following, were to be entered before the first day of the ensuing Michaelmas Term; and all orders pronounced in Easter or Trinity Terms, or the following vacations, were to be entered before the first day of the ensuing Term. This order is considered to be still in force in England: see Seton, 1547. Whether it is binding here seems doubtful: Rule 3; see, however, Jud. Act, ss. 27, 61.

Entry nunc pro tunc.

Orders may be made to enter judgments, or orders, nunc pro tunc: Donne v. Lewis, 11 Ves. 601; Laurence v. Richmond, 1 J. & W. 241; Re Jones, Bullis v. Jones, 91 L. T. Jour. 127; 39 W. R. 619. But where a defendant would be prejudiced by such an order it will be refused: Drummond v. Anderson, 3 Gr. 150.

Varying judgment.

A judgment, though by consent, is a solemn judgment of the Court, and cannot be altered by consent of the parties without the sanction of the Court: The Belcairn, 34 W. R. 55; Blake v. Harvey, 29 Ch. D. 827; 53 L. T. 541.

After a judgment, or order, has been passed, and entered, it can, as a general rule, only be varied on appeal: see Pepper v. Pepper, W. N. 1868, 104; Re Robinson, W. N. 1873, 28; Andrews v. Bohannon, W. N. 1869, 80; Teil v. Barlow, 3 D. J. & S. 426; Mason v. Seney, 2 Chy. Ch. 30; Moffatt v. Hyde, 6 U. C. L. J. 94; Simmers v. Erb, 21 Gr. 289; Fawkes v. Swauzie, 31 Ont. 256; but where the applicant has neglected to move to vary the minutes in the usual way, the amendment will only be granted on payment by the applicant of all costs: Re Swire, Mellor v. Swire, 30 Ch. D. 239; 53 L. T. 625, 626. 205. In cases of clerical mistakes, or errors, arising from any accidental slip or omission, a judgment or order may be corrected on motion, without appeal: Rule 640. So also a judgment may be amended on motion where it has been obtained by default: see Kline v. Kline, 3 Chy. Ch. 79; or on præcipe: Nelles v. Vandyke, 17 Gr. 14. After the judgment or order has actually issued, such mistakes cannot properly be corrected, as of course, by the officer who has drawn up the judgment or order: it can only be done on motion: see Re Beard, 60 L. T. 259.

An appeal is not proper from the decision of the Judge on a motion to vary the minutes of his judgment or order. The appeal must be from the judgment or order in its entered form: James v. Jones, 67 L. T. 584.

625.—(1) Judgments in cases tried elsewhere than at Toronto, shall be settled by the Deputy Clerk of the Crown, Deputy or Local Registrar, at the place of trial, unless any party affected applies to the Registrar to whom is assigned the duty of settling judgments, to settle the same, or to reconsider the settlement of the same by the local officer. Rules 23 June, 1894, 1352; Rules 29th Dec., 1894, 1389; Rules of 1 January, 1896, 1480.

(2) When settled the minutes may be varied by the Judge on the application of either party. (Ib.).

As to varying minutes, see notes to Rule 624.

In County Court cases there is no appeal to the High Court from an order dismissing a motion to vary the minutes of a judgment or order: Taggart v. Bennett, 6 O. L. R. 71.

626. Notice of settling minutes, or passing a judgment or order, shall not be given unless by direction of the officer by whom the judgment or order is to be settled, nor until the proposed minutes of the judgment or order have been prepared by, or delivered to the officer by whom the same are to be settled; the notice shall be by an appointment signed by him, a copy whereof shall be served. The proposed minutes shall remain in his office for inspection until settled or passed, and any party may take a copy thereof. Con. Rule 762.

The Registrar, or other officer, may dispense with notice of settling or passing if he thinks fit: but except where the order or judgment is simple, notice is usually required to be given; the minutes must be first prepared, and left with the Registrar, or other officer (see Rule 625), and an appointment obtained from him: see Rule 624, note.

An appointment served one day for the next is sufficient: R. Christmas, 19 Beav. 519.

By local officers.

Appointments to settle minutes or pass orders how to be issued.

Rules
627-629.

Procedure where party makes default

627. Where a notice is given to settle minutes, or to pass a judgment or order, and the party served attends thereon, but the party giving the notice does not attend or is not prepared to proceed, the officer settling the judgment or order may proceed ex parte to settle the minutes or pass the judgment or order, or may in his discretion order the party giving the notice to pay to the other party the costs of his attendance; or if a party served asks for delay, the officer may grant the delay on such terms as he thinks reasonable as to payment of costs or otherwise. Con. Rule 763.

Taken from Chy. O. 13.

Where either party does not attend, it would seem that the officer is not justified in proceeding ex parte until the lapse of half an hour from the time appointed: Rule 350.

8. SIGNING AND ENTRY OF JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS.

Office where judgments
to be signed.

628. Every judgment and order pronounced by the Court or entered by default shall be signed by or under the direction of the officer in whose office the action was commenced. Con. Rule 764; Rules of 1 Jan., 1896, 1401, 1481.

Date of judgments
and orders.

629.—(1) Every judgment and order pronounced by the Court or a Judge shall be dated as of the day on which such judgment or order is pronounced, and shall take effect from that date, unless otherwise directed; and every judgment shall also bear upon its face the date upon which it is signed.

(2) Every judgment by default shall be dated on the day on which it is signed. Con. Rules 33 and 765.

See Eng. R. 1875, O. 41, r. 2. The Eng. (1883) R. 571, introduces a provision for ante-dating or post-dating a judgment by leave.

It has been held by a Divisional Court in an unreported case, that where a judgment is handed to the Registrar and not delivered in open Court, it is not to be deemed to be pronounced or delivered until the parties are notified of it; and see Fourkes v. Swayzie, 31 Ont. 261; Wallace v. Bath, 7 O. L. R. 742; but the well settled practice of the Court is, in such cases, to date the judgment or order as of the date on which the decision was handed to the Registrar, notice of its delivery being usually placed on the notice board of the Court on the same day; and see Atty.-Gen. v. Dunlop, 36 C. L. J. 607.

See Rule 869, and Winkley v. Winkley, 44 L. T. 572.

The day of the week and month are required to be shown in the date of a judgment or order: Rule 623.

The signing of the judgment referred to in this Rule is the marking of it as entered, with the date of entry, and the name of the officer in whose office it is entered, and not merely the signing of it by the Rules officer who settles it, where he is not the officer with whom it is entered. 630, 631.

A plaintiff who has obtained an order giving him leave to sign judgment, but has not actually signed judgment, is not a judgment creditor: Re Gurney, 1896, 2 Ch. 864; but where a judgment has been actually pronounced it becomes an effective judgment from that time, so that it may be attached, though the judgment is not formally entered: Holtby v. Hodgson, 24 Q. B. D. 103; Davidson v. Taylor, 14 P. R. 78; and see Moody v. Canadian Bank of Commerce, Ltd., 258. The formal signature is only the record that it has been pronounced: Kelly v. Wade, 14 P. R. 66.

Where a judgment pronounced in 1880 gave plaintiff an order for an account if he desired it, the judgment not having been issued, 12 years afterwards, leave to issue it was refused, in view of the altered position of the parties and other circumstances: Eaton v. Dorland, 15 P. R. 138; and see Re Leslie, 23 Ont. 143; and Finkle v. Lutz, 14 P. R. 446.

This Rule was held not to apply when the judgment itself regulates the entry: McLaren v. Canada Central, 10 P. R. 328, where the judgment was, "I direct judgment to be entered after the 5th day of Hilary Sittings for $100,000"; but see Talbot v. Canadian Coloured Cotton Co., 17 C. L. T. 336.

Where a judgment is varied by a Divisional Court the judgment should be entered as of the date on which the Divisional Court pronounced judgment: Beckett v. G. T. Ry. Co., 12 P. R. 377.

Orders in Chambers should be dated on the day on which they are finally made: Ashley v. Taylor, 27 W. R. 228; so also the finding of a Master: Wallace v. Bath, 7 O. L. R. 542.

Where a party dies after argument and while the cause is standing for judgment, the direction of the Court should be obtained to date and enter the judgment when delivered, as of the date of the argument, otherwise it would appear to be defective on its face: see Rule 294, and notes.

Where an application is made and refused, and on appeal the order is reversed and the application granted, the order made on the appeal relates back to the date of the order reversed so far as any intervening proceedings are concerned: In re Donisthorpe & The Manchester S. & L. Ry. Co., 1897, 1 Q. B. 671; the litigant is not to be prejudiced by the delay, or the mistake, of the Court.

See also - as to effect of appeal -

630. In all cases the judgment pronounced by the Court may be signed forthwith, unless otherwise ordered. Con. Rule 767. Immediate judgment.

631. Where judgment may be signed upon the filing of any affidavit or production of any document, the officer shall examine the affidavit or document produced, and if the same be regular and contain all that is by law required, he shall enter judgment accordingly. Con. Rule 768. Entry on affidavit, etc.

The Eng. (1883) R. 575 is to the same effect.

Rules
632-635.

Entry on order or certificate.

632. Where judgment may be signed pursuant to any order or certificate, or return to any writ, the production of such order or certificate, or of such return, shall be a sufficient authority to the officer to sign judgment accordingly. Con. Rule 769; Rules of 1 Jan., 1896, 1482.

The Eug. (1883) R. 573 is to the same effect.

Form of
order.

633. An order shall be marked with the name of the Judge or officer by whom it is made. Con. Rule 543.

The name of the Judge or officer pronouncing the judgment or order is according to the Forms to be placed at the commencement of the judgment or order in the left hand margin. This is usual, although the Judge or officer pronouncing the judgment or order also signs it. Where an officer pronounces the judgment or order, his name of office appears to be sufficient: e.g., "The Master in Chambers"; see the Forms 124, et seq.; H. & L. Forms, Nos. 902, et seq. See notes to Rule 412 as to orders relating to money in Court.

Signing of
orders.

634.—(1) Every order pronounced by the Court shall be signed by the Registrar, Local Registrar, Deputy Registrar, Deputy Clerk of the Crown, or the Clerk of the Weekly Court attending the Court at which the same is pronounced, provided that the Judge pronouncing such order may himself sign the same. Rules 23 June, 1894, 1353.

Orders in Judge's Chambers.

(2) Orders made by a Judge of the High Court in Chambers in Toronto shall be signed by the Clerk in Chambers (or in his absence by the Assistant Clerk), but the Judge pronouncing such order may himself sign the same. Con. Rules 544, 1265. Rules 23 June 1894, 1342.

By officers in Chambers.

(3) Orders made by an officer sitting in Chambers shall be signed by him. New.

The signing of orders in accordance with the requirements of the Rules is sometimes most important, and especially where the liberty of the subject is concerned; thus, where the former Rule required all orders to be signed by the Clerk, the signature of a Judge alone to an order for arrest was held insufficient, and the order was held to be a nullity: St. Croix v. McLachlin, 13 P. R. 438.

An order of a Local Judge sitting in Chambers must be signed by the Local Judge, not by the Local Registrar: see clause (3) and Lorrell v. Taylor, 5 O. W. R. 525.

Entry of judgments
and orders

635.—(1) Every judgment, whether pronounced in Court or Chambers, or entered by default, and every order pronounced in Court, shall be entered at full length in a book to be kept for that purpose by the officer issuing the same. Rules 23 June, 1894, 1354.

(2) Judgment in causes and matters commenced in the ^{Rule 635.} Central Office, and all orders made in Court in Toronto, shall be entered in the Central Office. Orders made in Chambers in Toronto shall be entered in Chambers as heretofore. See Con. Rule 20, and Rules 1 Jan., 1896, 1400.

(3) All such judgments, and subject to the preceding clause, all such orders, as require to be entered in a cause or matter commenced in a local office, shall be entered in the office in which the cause or matter was commenced. See Con. Rule 20, and Rules 1 Jan., 1896, 1400.

The date of entry, and the book, and folio, in which the entry is made, must be stated in the margin of the order, or judgment, issued: Rule 637.

Place of Entry.—All orders made in Court, or in Chambers, in Toronto, requiring entry, are to be entered in Toronto. Orders made elsewhere, e.g., on circuit, or at the Weekly Courts at London, or Ottawa, or in Chambers, should, under this Rule, sub-sec. (3), be entered at the place where the action or matter was commenced.

Except in the case of judgments in an issue (as to which see Rule 377), all judgments no matter where pronounced, are to be entered in the office where the proceedings were commenced: see clause (3), Rule 15; e.g., where the proceedings have been commenced elsewhere than in Toronto, the judgment must be entered in the office of the Local Registrar, Deputy Registrar, or Deputy Clerk of the Crown in whose office the proceedings were commenced; and where the judgment is pronounced in a proceeding not commenced by writ, then the office of the Deputy Clerk of the Crown, or Deputy, or Local Registrar, in which the first document is required to be filed, is to be deemed the office in which the cause or matter is commenced: see Rule 14.

Execution may be issued under sec. 85 of the Winding-up Act, (R. S. C. c. 120), upon the order of a Court of another Province, upon the mere production to the proper officer of the High Court of a properly certified copy of the order: but entry of the order must be made in the proper judgment or order book of the High Court: Re Dominion Cold Storage Co., Lowrey's Case, 18 P. R. 68.

Where an order, which had not been entered, was lost, it was directed to be redrawn: Ex parte Dean of St. Paul's, 18 W. R. 724. No proceedings can properly be taken upon a judgment or order required to be entered, until it has been entered: see Ballard v. Tomlinson, 48 L. T. 515. But where an administration judgment had been issued before being entered, and was subsequently entered after proceedings had been taken under it, such proceedings were upheld: Re Morphy, Morphy v. Niven, 51 P. R. 321; but where a plaintiff in a redemption action obtained judgment, but neglected to issue it for twelve years, he was held to have disentitled himself by the delay, to issue or prosecute it: Eaton v. Dorland, 15 P. R. 138; and see Re Leslie, 23 Ont. 143; but see Finkle v. Lutz, 14 P. R. 446.

Rules
636-638.

Orders required to be entered in full and otherwise.

636. Orders of course, ex parte orders, and orders made in Chambers, shall not be entered in full, except:

Orders declaring persons Lunatics;

“ for the Sale of Infants' Estates;

“ for Payment of Money into or out of Court, or out of an estate or fund;

“ for Foreclosure or Sale;

“ for continuing proceedings upon death or transmission of interest; and such other orders as may from time to time be directed to be entered. Con. Rules 546, 773, 774, amended.

“ for the confirmation of the report of a Master or Referee;

Vesting Orders;

This Rule is strictly confined to orders, and does not include judgments. All judgments pronounced in Chambers are covered by Rule 635 (1), and must be entered in full. They must be entered not in Chambers, but in the office for entering judgments.

The orders enumerated in this Rule are, in Toronto, entered by the Entering Clerk in Chambers.

The practice in Toronto heretofore has been to make a brief note of the purport of all orders not requiring entry in full, and this practice seems to be continued by Rule 635. It is desirable that a similar practice should be observed in the local offices, but there appears to be no express Rule requiring it to be done.

By the words, “orders for foreclosure or sale,” final orders are meant.

See notes to Rule 412.

Entering.

637. The Entering Clerk shall note in the margin of the judgment or order book the day of entering a judgment or order, and shall at the foot of the judgment or order note the same date, and the book in which the entry has been made and the pages of such book. Con. Rule 775.

The absence of such a note of entry on the face of the order is irregular: see Lovell v. Taylor, 5 O. W. R. 525.

9. ORDERS OBTAINED ON A CONDITION.

Orders obtained on condition deemed to be abandoned so far as benefit.

638. Where a judgment or order is obtained upon a condition, and the condition is not complied with, the judgment or order shall be deemed to have been waived or abandoned as far as the same is beneficial to the person obtaining the same, and any person interested in the matter on the breach or non-performance of the condition, may either take such proceedings as the judgment or order in such a case may warrant, or such proceedings as might have been taken if the judgment or order had not been made. Con. Rules 770, 794.

Rule 638.
 Trial to party obtaining unless condition performed

Taken from Chy. O. 196; compare Eng. (1883) R. 580.

Under former Rule 794, where a new trial was granted to a party on condition of payment of costs or other condition, an application was properly made, on default in performance of the condition, for an order defining the rights of the opposite party: see Carroll v. Booth, 11 C. L. T. 84. Under the present Rule no such order will be necessary.

Even before this Rule where an order was made granting a new trial on payment into Court of $500 within a limited time, and in default dismissing the motion with costs, it was held that no further order was necessary: Stor, v. McKay, before Div'l Court, Chy. D., 6 Sept., 1888.

Where a plaintiff gave notice of trial for 2nd October, and on 22nd September the defendant obtained an order postponing the trial on payment of costs, it was held to be a conditional order not staying plaintiff's proceedings, and one which the defendant was at liberty to abandon without paying any costs except those of the application: Allen v. Mathers, 9 P. R. 477; Pugh v. Kern, 5 M. & W. 104; Brega v. Hodgson, 4 P. R. 47; Horton v. Westminster Commissioners, 7 Ex. 911.

Where a plaintiff in an action of tort recovered a verdict, and on motion of the defendant a new trial was granted in June, 1889, and the plaintiff died in the Spring of 1890, it was held on an application in December, 1890, by the defendant, to issue the order, that the delay afforded no evidence of an intention to abandon it: Kelly v. Wade, 14 P. R. 66.

Where a new trial is granted on payment of costs, it is the duty of the party obtaining the indulgence to get the costs taxed and paid, so as to enable the case to be tried at the next opportunity: Johnson v. Sparrow, 1 U. C. Q. B. 306; Grantham v. Powell, 1 P. R. 256; but see Van Every v. Drake, 3 P. R. 84; Stacey v. McIntyre, 5 P. R. 205; Pacaud v. McEwan, 6 P. R. 20; Lyman v. Snarr, 3 P. R. 86; but where the solicitor of the party to pay the costs promptly applied to the solicitor of the opposite party begging to know what the costs were that he might pay them, of which communication no notice was taken, a rule subsequently obtained ex parte discharging the rule for a new trial, and the judgment entered thereon, were set aside without costs: Doc d. Arnold v. Auldjo, 6 U. C. Q. B. 21. The party to receive costs cannot insist on their being taxed: Stock v. Shewan, 18 C. P. 185. Where the costs were tendered, but refused because there was not sufficient time to give proper notice of trial for the next Assizes, which, however, the defendant offered to waive, it was held that the plaintiff was not entitled to have the rule for a new trial rescinded: Rabidon v. Harkin, 2 P. R. 129; and see Thompson v. Sewell, 4 O. S. 16. The costs must be paid before notice of trial can properly be given: Stock v. Shewan, 18 C. P. 185.

Where an order for a new trial is not taken out, the original judgment stands, and proceedings to enforce it, before the order for the new trial has been issued, will not be stayed: Kelly v. Wade, 14 P. R. 13; and see S. C. Ib. 66.

Rule 639.

10. SETTING ASIDE JUDGMENTS OBTAINED BY DEFAULT.

Judgment
by default may be set aside on terms

639. Any judgment by default may be set aside by the Court or a Judge, upon such terms as to costs or otherwise as the Court or Judge may think fit. Con. Rule 796.

Same in effect as the Eng. (1883) R. 308.

Notwithstanding this Rule, an action to set aside a judgment by default on the ground of fraud, will lie: Wyatt v. Palmer, 1899, 2 Q. B. 100; 80 L. T. 639.

A judgment for default of appearance, or defence, signed after an appearance or defence has been filed, but which has been mislaid by the officer and not entered in his procedure book, is irregular: Moore v. Simons, 1 C. L. J. 183; Bank of Montreal v. Harrison, 4 P. R. 381.

Where a judgment has been obtained irregularly, the party against whom it has been obtained is entitled ex debito justitiæ to have it set aside: Lalaby v. Pretorius, 20 Q. B. D. 764; Voight v. Orth, 5 O. L. R. 443. The Court has only power to impose terms as a condition of giving him costs: Id. This Rule applies, rather in cases where a regular judgment is sought to be set aside as an indulgence.

To set aside a regular judgment, an affidavit of merits will be necessary: Farden v. Richter, 23 Q. B. D. 124; but where merits are shewn, it is only a question of proper terms: see Wright v. Mills, 40 L. T. 887; Moore v. Kennedy, 18 C. L. T. 204 (Man.); and though the judgment be set aside, the Court may refuse costs of the application: Jackson v. Gardiner, 19 P. R. 137.

A judgment obtained by default in compliance with the terms on which leave was given, under Rule 603, given to defend, is a judgment by default within this Rule: Budman's case, Re Portuguese, etc., Mines, 62 L. T. 180.

Mere delay is not in itself a reason for refusing to set aside a judgment by default. Some irreparable injury must be shewn to result to the plaintiff: see Attwood v. Chichester, 3 Q. B. D. 722; Watt v. Barnett, 3 Q. B. D. 183, 303, and notes to Rule 575; but lapse of time, and acquiescence, may be an answer to the motion: McLean v. Smith, 10 P. R. 145.

Where a judgment obtained on default of appearance at the trial was set aside, the defaulting party was ordered to pay the costs of the day, and of the application to set it aside and to restore the case to the list: Cockle v. Joyce, 26 W. R. 59.

A plaintiff not being ready to proceed with the trial of his action when it came on unexpectedly, applied for a postponement, and upon his being refused let judgment go by default: a Divisional Court refused to set aside the judgment; but the Court of Appeal, upon fresh evidence offering a reasonable explanation of the plaintiff's un-readiness, set aside the judgment, and ordered the action to be restored to the list on his paying the costs of the day, including all costs thrown away, and the costs of the applications both to the Divisional Court, and to the Court of Appeal: King v. Sandeman, 38 L. T. 461; 26 W. R. 539; see also Williams v. Brisco, 26 W. R. 713, (where a judgment was set aside and leave given to defend upon payment of all costs of the action subsequent to the delivery of the statement of claim); and Ryan v. Fish, 5 P. R. 458, (where judgment of seisin signed in an action of dower, under a misapprehension of plaintiff's solicitor as to its effect, was vacated). Rules 639, 640.

A judgment by default, in an action against a lessee for recovery of land on a forfeiture, was set aside under this Rule on the application of equitable mortgagees, although not parties to the action: Jacques v. Harrison, 12 Q. B. P. 136; but on appeal it was held that the order was technically wrong, as the applicants ought to have obtained the leave of the defendant to move in his name, or to have applied for leave to defend on terms of indemnifying defendant, and the order made was amended so as to allow the mortgagees to defend in defendant's name: 8 C. 12 Q. B. D. 165. The Rule is designed to enable judgments by default to be set aside by those who have, or who can acquire a locus standi, and does not give a locus standi to those who have none: Id.

Where the action had been improperly brought against the defendant, and the plaintiff was aware of the impropriety, and had suffered no irreparable mischief, it was held that the lapse of time was no bar to the application to set aside judgment by default: King v. Sandeman, supra.

Where the defence had been struck out for wilful refusal to produce, and judgment by default obtained, the Court refused to set it aside on any terms: Haigh v. Tuigh, 31 Ch. D. 478; and see Dunn v. Melton, 6 P. R. 156.

The Court will not set aside a final judgment regularly signed by default, unless the defendant shows at least some prima facie ground of defence such as would be necessary on a motion for judgment under Rule 603. The Court will not on such an application try the defence; but the defendant may be cross-examined on his affidavit, and his alleged defence may be shown by documents under his own hand, not explained or answered, to be non-existent: Bourne v. O'Donoghue, 17 P. R. 522.

A stranger to the proceedings cannot apply to set aside a judgment on the ground of irregularity: Balfour v. Ellison, 8 L. C. L. J. 330; Tait v. Harrison, 17 Gr. 458; but where it has been obtained by fraud to the prejudice of a stranger it may be successfully attacked by him: Id.; but semble, in such a case an action should be brought.

An appeal does not lie to the Supreme Court from a judgment of the Court of Appeal granting or refusing a motion to set aside a judgment obtained by default: O'Donoghue v. Bourne, 27 S. C. R. 654.

See also notes to Rules 575 and 778.

11. VARIATION OF JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS.

(1) Before being Drawn up and Entered.

A Judge can always reconsider his decision until the judgment or order is drawn up: Re St. Nazaire Co., 12 Ch. D. p. 91; Miller's creation by the Judge; Case, 3 Ch. D. 661; Atty-Gen. v. Tomlin, 7 Ch. D. 388; Canada Land, etc., Co. v. Dpsact, 5 Ont. 511; Glasgow v. Glasgow, Id.; Re Safeld and Watts, 20 Q. B. D. at p. 697; Re Adam Epton, 35 Ch. D. 290; Re Cwara Bank, 44 Ch. D. 634; 62 L. T. 823; Keith v. Butcher, 25 Ch. D. 759. So also can a Divisional Court: see Cameron v. Walker, 19 Ont. 217.

Rule 640. After an order made declaring that children took per stirpes, it was discovered that this was contrary to authorities, and by arrangement the matter was mentioned to the Court again, and an order altering the order so as to declare that they took per capita was made: Re Blackwell, Bridgman v. Blackwell, W. N. 1886, 97; sed vide Preston Banking Co. v. Allsup, 1895, 1 Ch. 144.

As to motions to vary the minutes of judgments and orders, see note to Rule 624.

(2) After having been Drawn up and Entered.

A judgment or order, when passed and entered, can only be amended as provided by the Rules of Court: Blake v. Harvey, 29 Ch. D. 827; Re Beard, 69 L. T. 259. It is irregular for the officer who issued it to take upon himself to vary it, even though it be defective or erroneous: Ib.; Succelland v. Turkish Cigarette Co., 47 W. R. 511; 80 L. T. 472.

After a judgment has been passed and entered, even where taken by consent and under a mistake, the Court cannot set it aside otherwise than in a fresh action brought for the purpose, unless:

(1) There has been a clerical mistake or error arising from an accidental slip or omission within Rule 640, or,

(2) The judgment does not, as drawn up, correctly state what the Court actually decided or intended to decide, in either of which cases, an application may be made by a motion in the action to correct the error: Ainsworth v. Wilding, 1896, 1 Ch. 673.

Semble, different considerations apply to interlocutory orders: Ib.

Even if a judgment has not been passed or entered, the Court will not always interfere, e.g., where from the nature of the ground on which the application is based, conflicting evidence would have to be gone into: Ib.

Clerical Mistakes.—See notes to Rule 640.

Varying judgment to carry out intention of the Court.

Judgment not Correctly Stating the Decision of the Court.—In Laurie v. Lees, 7 App. Cas. at p. 34, Lord Pearce said: "I cannot doubt that under the original powers of the Court, quite independent of any order that is made under the Judicature Act, every Court has the power to vary its own orders which are drawn up mechanically in the registry, or in the office of the Court, to vary them in such a way as to carry out its own meaning, and, where language has been used which is doubtful, to make it plain"; see also Balfour v. Drummond, 4 Man. 467; Tucker v. New Brunswick Trading Co., 44 Ch. D. 249; Shipwright v. Clements, 38 W. R. 746; 63 L. T. 160; Rattray v. Young, Cassels Sup. Ct. Dig. 692; McMaster v. Radford, 16 P. R. 20; Sherk v. Evans, 22 Out. App. 242; Hilson v. Carter, 1893, A. C. 638. Thus an alteration may be made so as to make the record truly contain what was adjudged: Re Swire, Mellor v. Swire, 30 Ch. D. 239, but where the defect is known before the order is passed and entered, the proper course is to move to vary the minutes, and if this course is not pursued the applicant may have to pay costs: S. C., 53 L. T. 205.

Where the Court intended to give costs, and the judgment as drawn up merely provided for their payment out of a sum of money, which, the Court was informed, was in Court, the judgment was amended so as to direct payment of the costs forthwith after taxation, it appearing that the money was not in Court: Letourneau v. Carbonneau, 35 S. C. R. 791.

Other Cases.—Where a Judge has given an erroneous judgment, Rule 640. he has no jurisdiction to alter or amend the judgment or order which correctly embodies the judgment actually given, even although he has been induced to make it under a misrepresentation, or mistake of fact: Preston Banking Co. v. Allsup, 1895, 1 Ch. 144; except at the instance of a party who did not appear when the order or judgment was made: see Rule 358; 71 L. T. 708. Such mistakes can, where the party complaining was represented, only be corrected by appeal. Where a judgment, before being drawn up, had been appealed from by one defendant, and varied, it was held that the Judge had no power to entertain a motion to vary his decision as to the defendant who did not appeal, on the question of costs, even though the judgment or order had not been drawn up: Port Elgin School Board v. Elgin, 17 P. R. 58; sed vide, Re Blackwell, Bridgman v. Blackwell, supra, and Re St. Nazaire, and other cases, supra; but a supplemental order may be made: Scowby v. Scowby, 1897, 1 Ch. 741.

Where, however, an order is made in the absence of a party, the Court has jurisdiction to reconsider its judgment or order, even after entry, and, if proper, to rescind or vary it: see Rule 358; Cassius v. Crank, 17 P. R. 348; and where the application to vary a judgment or order is based on the discovery of new matter, see Rule 642 and notes.

A judgment entered on præcipe cannot be amended on application. Amendment in Chambers, by inserting therein any special direction which could not properly be included in a judgment issued on præcipe: Ross v. Fuder, 3 Chy. Ch. 236.

Liberty to apply is implied in judgments and orders: Rule 622; Liberty to Fritz v. Hobson, 14 Ch. D. 542, 561, but, semble, not where they are final: Pearce v. Williams, 23 Ch. D. 353; but see Rule 622. It is not implied in favour of a defendant against whom the action has been dismissed, except for the purpose of enforcing the terms of the order: Hantley v. Luck, 26 Sol. Jour. 59.

An order made without jurisdiction, if not appealed against, must stand: West v. Dawson, 27 W. R. 697; and a de facto judgment, which has not been set aside, cannot be objected to, as having been rendered ultra vires, in an action of trespass for acts done under it: see Beuce v. Canadian Bank of Commerce, before Osler, J., 26th September, 1882; Forrester v. Thrasher, 9 P. R. 383; 2 Ont. 38; but it was held that a party could not be committed for disregarding an order made without jurisdiction: McLeod v. Noble, 28 Ont. 528.

A consent judgment on a contract ultra vires of a company, where the question of ultra vires is not raised either in the pleadings or on the facts stated, is of no greater value than the contract which it is founded: G. N. W. Central Ry. Co. v. Charlebois, 1891, A. C. 114.

Judgment obtained by Fraud.—Where a judgment has been obtained by fraud, the Court has jurisdiction, in a subsequent action brought for the purpose, to set aside the judgment: Cole v. Langford, 1898, 2 Q. B. 36; Wyatt v. Palmer, 1899, 2 Q. B. 106; 80 L. T. 639; but it will not be set aside on the ground alone that it was obtained by perjury: Baxter v. Wadsworth, 67 L. J. Q. B. 301.

Variation of Consent Judgments and Orders.—Where an order has been made by consent, the consent given without mistake is binding, and cannot be withdrawn, even before the order is drawn up: Harvey v. Croydon, 26 Ch. D. 249; overruling S. C. W. N.

Rule 640. 1881, 222; Elsas v. Williams, 52 L. T. 39; Re Wylt Devon, &c., Miles, 38 Ch. D. 51, 55; Holt v. Joss, 3 Ch. D. 177; and Rogers v. Horn, 20 W. R. 232. In which, as reported, it was held that the consent might be withdrawn before the order was passed and entered, and see Williams v. Meakins, Crump & Evans Chy. Pr. 522; Robert v. Donoran, 16 P. R. 450; but where counsel, being authorized by his client to agree to terms of an order, by mistake agrees to other terms, the client may withdraw the consent before the order is drawn up; Lewis v. Lewis, 45 Ch. D. 281; 63 L. T. 84. In Moore v. Peachey, 66 L. T. 398, a garnishee order made by mutual mistake of the judgment creditor, and garnishee was set aside, and money paid under it, was ordered to be repaid.

An interlocutory order consented to by mistake may be discharged, though the mistake was on one side only; Mullins v. Howell, 11 Ch. D. 703; and see Gilbert v. Eudeau, 9 Ch. D. 259; but not because one of the parties finds it less beneficial than he expected; Constance v. London F. Ins. Co., 12 P. R. 512; Powell v. Smith, L. R. 14 Eq. 85; Midland v. Johnston, 6 H. L. C. 811.

After a judgment by consent has been passed and entered, it cannot be afterwards amended, except for reasons sufficient to set aside an agreement on the ground of mistake; Attorney-General v. Toulton, 7 Ch. D. 388; Davis v. Davis, 13 Ch. D. 861; and it would seem that it can not even then be set aside on motion, but that an action must be brought for that purpose; see The Huddersfield Banking Co. v. Lister, 1895, 2 Ch. 273; 72 L. T. 761; 12 R. 331; Hidding v. Sanderson, 1897, 2 Ch. p. 538. Thus where parties had consented to a judgment establishing a will, which afterwards turned out to be a forgery, it was held that they were not estopped from shewing the forgery, and setting aside the compromise judgment on that ground, in an action brought for that purpose; Priestman v. Thomas, 9 P. D. 210; 51 L. T. 843. In Hickman v. Bercus, 1895, 2 Ch. 638; 73 L. T. 323; where a consent order had not been drawn up, it was rescinded on motion, on proof that there had been a mistake in giving the consent; and see Lewis v. Lewis, 45 Ch. D. 281; 63 L. T. 84.

Where the Master had proceeded on an alleged consent of counsel, of which he had made no entry in his book, and of which the terms were disputed, the report was referred back, although the Master's recollection agreed with that of one of the parties; Beaudry v. Gallien, 5 O. L. R. 75.

A consent judgment or order may be amended by striking out terms not consented to; Merchants Bank v. Grant, 3 Chy. Ch. 64.

The silence by a party in regard to a material fact which the party knowing it was not under obligation to disclose, is not a ground for a rescission of an agreement, or a compromise of an action; Turner v. Green, 1895, 2 Ch. 205; 43 W. R. 537; 72 L. T. 763.

A defendant gave an undertaking at the hearing to make certain payments to the plaintiff; the order was drawn up two or three weeks later, and the undertaking was embodied in it; the undertaking was given under a misapprehension of fact; but application to discharge the defendant from the undertaking was refused, on the ground that the facts were ascertainable by the defendant, and that the application was under these circumstances too late; Attorney-General v. Toulton, 7 Ch. D. 388.

A consent to a perpetual injunction was not allowed to be withdrawn, merely because the defendant afterwards discovered that he had a defence; Elsas v. Williams, 52 L. T. 39; 54 L. J. Chy. 336.

Where the Judge at the trial ruled adversely to the defendant, but Rule 640, in compliance with the request of his counsel modified his ruling, it was held that the judgment was not by consent, and defendant was not precluded from moving against it: Sweeney v. Sweeney, 16 Ont. 92.

An order arranged by consent between the parties, and not the result of an adjudication by the Court, should show on its face that it is by consent: Michel v. Mutch, 34 W. R. 251; 54 L. T. 45; 55 L. J. Chy. 485.

Disobedience to a consent order good on its face, cannot be justified by shewing grounds, which if urged against the making of the order, might have prevented it from being made: Ribblé, etc. v. Crasston, etc., 45 W. R. 318.

No appeal can be had from a consent judgment, or order, except by leave, see Ind. Act, s. 72.

The solicitor, on the record, or his agent acting for him, has a Compromise general authority to compromise an action on behalf of his client, provided he acts bonâ fide and reasonably, and not in defiance of his direct and positive instructions, and, whether the compromise is made by the solicitor or his agent, the client will be bound, although there is no privity between him and the agent: Re Noren, 1903, 1 Ch. 812. See also Hackett v. Bibb, 12 P. R. 482; but a solicitor has no implied authority before action to compromise a claim: Macaulay v. Polley, 1897, 2 Q. B. 122; Duffy v. Hanson, 16 L. T. 332.

Counsel has full authority to compromise an action at the trial: Mattheys v. Munster, 20 Q. B. D. 141; but see Watt v. Clark, 12 P. R. 379; and see 98 L. T. Jour. 489; but a compromise in intended pursuance of terms consented to by the client, but by misapprehension or intentionally not strictly following them, is not binding on the client: Lucia v. Lewis, 45 Ch. D. 281; 63 L. T. 84; Benart v. Edwards, 19 P. R. 9; Stokis v. Latham, 4 Times, 305; Veak v. Lennox, infra; and where, acting on general instructions to compromise, counsel consents under a misapprehension, such as where intending to concede one thing he inadvertently concedes another, or where counsel are not ad idem, the compromise is not binding, and the Court will set it aside: Hickman v. Bercus, 1897, 2 Ch. 638; 73 L. T. 323.

As to the right to repudiate a verbal arrangement of compromise made at the trial before it is recorded as a verdict or judgment, see Brown v. Blackwell, 26 C. P. 43.

Upon the question of the authority of counsel to compromise, the Court will take the statement of the counsel from his place at the bar without oath: see Hickman v. Bercus, supra; and Widding v. Samlerson, 1897, 2 Ch. 734.

An action by an infant by his next friend cannot validly be compromised by the infant or his counsel, without the sanction of the Court: Mattei v. Vatro, 105 L. T. Jour. 202.

As to the enforcement of a compromise by motion, for judgment or otherwise, in the action, see Pirang v. Dawson, 9 O. L. R. 248, and notes supra, p. 55.

A counsel has not authority to refer an action against the wishes of his client, or upon terms different from those which his client has authorized. Where a limitation has been placed by a client on the authority of his counsel with regard to the reference of Rule 640. the action, though it is not communicated to the other side, and if his counsel agrees to a reference in disregard of that limitation, the agreement to refer is not binding on the client, whether it results in an interlocutory or a final order: Neale v. Lennor, 1902, A. C. 465; 87 L. T. 341.

A consent order creates an estoppel between the parties: Re South American Co., 71 L. T. 334; unless procured by fraud: Priestman v. Thomas, 9 P. D. 210; 51 L. T. 843.

Correction of mistakes in judgments and orders.

640. Clerical mistakes in judgments or orders, or errors arising therein from any accidental slip or omission, may at any time be corrected by the Court or a Judge on motion. Con. Rule 780.

Based upon Chy. O. 335.

The same in effect as Eng. (1883) R. 319, and substantially the same as Eng. Chy. O. 23, r. 21, as to which see Morgan Chy. Acts and Orders, 4th ed., 493; Seton, 4th ed., 1547-8.

Lapse of time is not necessarily a bar to the making of amendments under this Rule, where the rights of other parties acquired under the judgment or order will not be improperly affected; thus an action was brought to enforce a covenant, in an assignment of lease, against carrying on a business, and the decree contained an injunction perpetually restraining the defendant from carrying on the business; after the lapse of 19 years it was amended by restricting the injunction "to the remainder of the term of the lease," which had previously expired: Shipwright v. Clements, 38 W. R. 746; 63 L. T. 160; and where a decree made in 1853, declared a party entitled to a charge on land for £500 and interest until paid, and it appeared in 1892 that the claim in question arose out of a bond in a penal sum of £1,000, the decree was amended so as to limit the charge for principal and interest to a sum not exceeding the amount of the penalty: Hatton v. Harris, 1892, A. C. 547; 67 L. T. 722; see also McMaster v. Radford, 16 P. R. 20; Milson v. Carter, 1893, A. C. 638.

What kind of errors corrected.

Under Chy. O. 335, a direction necessarily consequent upon the judgment, but omitted from the decree drawn up, might be supplied, such as a direction (now unnecessary, see Rule 734), to settle a conveyance: Moffatt v. Hyde, 6 U. C. L. J. 94; Trcvclyan v. Charter, 9 Beav. 140; or a reference as to title, in a decree for specific performance: Hughes v. Jones, 26 Beav. 24; and an error in an order arising from an error in the chief clerk's certificate which had escaped the notice of all parties: Eckersley v. Eckersley, W. N. 1884, 133; an error in a taxing officer's certificate by reason of disbursements (fees paid to a referee) by mistake not having been carried in for taxation: Chesnum v. Gordon, 1901, 1 Q. B. 694; 84 L. T. 137; a foreclosure judgment in the form without a reference as to incumbrancers, it having been discovered that there was an incumbrancer: Wilgoss v. Crawford, 12 P. R. 658; Clarke v. Cooper, 15 P. R. 54; or other mistake or slip: Turner v. Hodgson, 9 Beav. 265; Askew v. Puddle, 14 Sim. 301; and see Eadie v. McEwen, 14 Gr. 404; see also Ex parte Straight, 16 W. R. 661; Andrews v. Bohannon, W. N. 1869, 80; Jeffreys v. Smith, 11 W. R. 479; Re Glauville's Trusts, W. N. 1878, 21; Warman v. Zeal, W. N. 1871, 241; Re Tiel, 11 W. R. 351; but not any term which could only have been introduced by express direction of the Court, which was not given: Bird v. Heath, Rule 640, 6 Ha. 236; Whitehead v. North, Cr. & Ph. 78; nor any substantial addition except by consent: Willis v. Parkinson, 3 Sw. 233; but see Rule 641.

The application must, as a general rule, be on notice: Radenhurst v. Reynolds, 11 Gr. 521.

An error was corrected under this Rule, not because it did not correctly carry out the intention of the Court at the time, but because the parties were mistaken as to the fact upon which the judgment as it stood was founded: Barker v. Purvis, 31 Sol. Jour. 155; 56 L. T. 131; but see Re Leonard, 107 L. T. Jour. 409; so an order awarding costs against a defendant who had not appeared, the Court thinking he was represented, was amended by striking out such award of costs: Cousins v. Cronk, 17 P. R. 348; a clause giving special directions as to scale of costs was inserted in Doswell v. Norton, 18 Times. 728. But in Kluick v. Ontario Loan & L. Co., before the Divisional Court, Ch. D., 28 June, 1889, it was considered that a Judge had no power to amend his judgment after it had been formally issued, even on the ground of mistake (except to make it carry out the intention of the Court when it was made), and an order made under such circumstances was vacated, and a new order to the like effect was made by the Divisional Court. See also Glasier v. Rolis, 62 L. T. 395; Preston Banking Co. v. Allsop, 1897, 1 Ch. 141; McMaster v. Radford, 16 P. R. 20; Ainsworth v. Wilding, 1896, 1 Ch. 673; Port Elgin, etc., v. Eby, 17 P. R. 78. See also notes preceding Rule 640.

A motion to amend a decree in which the pleadings and evidence, or anything beyond the judgment pronounced, and the decree, is required to be looked at, must be made in Court: Lapp v. Lapp, 3 Chy. Ch. 234; 4 Chy. Ch. 3.

In Livingstone v. Wood, 29 Gr. 157, a decree directing an account was amended, by striking out a declaration that the plaintiff was entitled to certain credits which had not formed a substantive part of the judgment, so as to make the decree conform to the actual judgment, and enable the credits to be further investigated in the Master's office.

On motion under the corresponding English Rule, an order made under the Settled Estates Act was varied, so as to dispense with consents of tenants for life to leasing powers granted: Re Riley's Trust, 30 W. R. 78.

Where an order had been made on the petition of several persons, two of whom had not authorized it, the Court, under this Rule, amended the order by striking out the names of these two as petitioners, and treating them as not having been served with the petition: Re Savage, 15 Ch. D. 557.

Where the costs of a motion for an interim injunction having been reserved till the trial of the action, the plaintiff's counsel omitted to ask for them at the trial, and they were not provided for, it was held that the omission might be supplied under this Rule: Fritz v. Hobson, 14 Ch. D. 542, 561. So, where the Judge inadvertently omitted to make any order as to the costs of the action: Hardy v. Pickard, 12 P. R. 428; and see Rule 641.

But where the decree did not direct the payment of costs "forthwith," and it did not appear that such a direction was intended by the judgment, an application to amend was refused: Wilson v. Robertson, 3 Chy. Ch. 100.

Rules

641, 642. See, for amendment of orders so as to provide for costs omitted by mistake, Blakey v. Hall, 56 L. J. Chy. 568; 56 L. T. 400; Viney v. Chaplin, 3 De G. & F. 282; St. Michael's College v. Merrick, 26 Gr. 216.

Where a judgment, order, report or certificate is varied, it is not the correct practice to make any actual physical alteration in the document: Rule 315; see For v. Bearblock, 45 L. T. 469; 46 L. T. 145.

Amendment as to matters on which there was no adjudication.

641. Where a judgment or order requires amendment in any other particular on which the Court did not adjudicate, the same may be amended by the Court on motion. Con. Rule 781.

Based on Chy. O. 336.

Where the application was made after the time within which the cause could have been reheard without leave, it was held that the applicant need not apply for leave to move, but must, nevertheless, make out such a case as would be necessary, in order to obtain leave to rehear after the time had elapsed. O'Donoghue v. Hembroff, 19 Gr. 95. And see Fritz v. Hobson, and Hurdy v. Pickard; Blakey v. Hall, and other cases cited in note to preceding Rule.

Application by petition to impeach judgments, etc.

642.—(1) A party entitled to the reversal or variation of a judgment or order, upon the ground of matter arising subsequent to the making thereof, or subsequently discovered, or to impeach a judgment or order on the ground of fraud, or to suspend the operation of a judgment or order, or to carry a judgment or order into operation, shall proceed by petition in the cause, praying the relief which is sought, and stating the grounds upon which it is claimed. Con. Rule 782.

Petition to be verified and served on all parties interested.

(2) The petition shall be verified by affidavit, and served upon the solicitors of all parties interested; and in case a party has no solicitor, then upon the party. Con. Rule 783.

Hearing of petition.

(3) Upon the hearing of the petition, the Court may either make a final order, or direct the petition to stand over, with liberty to the parties interested in sustaining the judgment or order to file a special answer to the same; and may make such order as to evidence and the hearing of the petition, as may seem just. Con. Rule 785.

(4) Where the reversal or variation of a judgment or order is sought upon new matter, such proof as would have been requisite upon a motion to file a bill of review shall be supplied. Con. Rule 786.

Rule 642.

Evidence required when reversal sought on new matter.

Based upon Chy. O. 330. There is no similar Eng. Rule.

Formerly a person presenting a petition under Chy. O. 330, from which this Rule is taken, in a case where formerly a bill of review, or a bill in the nature of a bill of review, should have been filed, was required to give security for costs: Sadler v. Dogle, before Proudfoot, V.C., 19 and 26 Nov., 1877, and see Beames' Orders, pp. 314, 366, and see Ont. Order in Chy. 12th July, 1844, lxxix; but see Chy. O. 1; but it would seem that no such security is now required to be given unless expressly ordered.

An order made for the payment out of Court of money in a winding up proceeding, was rescinded on the application of the Receiver General who had received no notice of the motion for the order, though having an inchoate interest in the fund: Re Central Bank, 24 Ont. App. 470; 28 S. C. R. 192.

Leave to file a petition under this Rule is not necessary in any case. Duggan v. McKay, 1 Chy. Ch. 380.

For cases in which petitions have been presented under Chy. O. 330, see Bank of Upper Canada v. Wallace, 16 Gr. 280; Bronse v. Stagger, 16 Gr. 1; Dumble v. Cobourg & P. Ry. Co., 20 Gr. 121; Mason v. Seney, 12 Gr. 143; Colonial Trusts v. Cameron, 21 Gr. 70; Hobson v. Wrie, 14 Gr. 604; 15 Gr. 565.

As to vacating a judgment on the application of the party in whose favour it is, where a third party might be affected thereby, see Toronto Dental, etc., Co. v. McLaren, 14 P. R. 89; and as to vacating a judgment or order at the request of the plaintiff in order to enable him to amend his proceedings, see Clarke v. Cooper, 15 P. R. 54; Wilgress v. Crawford, 12 P. R. 658.

Seem, the Rule is not imperative, and where consequential relief is sought, which could not be granted upon petition in the original action, a new action may be brought: Leeming v. Armitage, 18 P. R. 486; see also Wyatt v. Palmer, 1899, 2 Q. B. 106; 80 L. T. 639.

Petitions to Impeach a Judgment on the Ground of Fraud.

—A bill of this kind was, prior to Chy. O. 330, proper, where a decree had been obtained by fraud. Where the decree, however, had also been affirmed by the House of Lords, it would seem to have been necessary that application should be first made to the House of Lords for directions: Shedden v. Patrick, 1 Macq. H. L. C. 535, and see Tomney v. White, 4 H. L. C. 313.

Petitions to impeach judgments on ground of fraud.

In England, where no such practice as that prescribed by this Rule is in force, it is held by analogy to the former practice, that in order to set aside a judgment obtained by fraud, a new action must now be brought: Floer v. Lloyd, 6 Ch. D. 297; Priestman v. Thomas, 9 P. D. 219; 51 L. T. 843; Cole v. Langford, 1898, 2 Q. B. 36; Wyatt v. Palmer, 1899, 2 Q. B. 106; 80 L. T. 639.

Petitions to Suspend the Operation of a Judgment.—Bills of this kind were formerly necessary whenever it was sought to stay the execution of a decree: e.g., where an appeal was pending from the decree. But relief of this kind has, since Chy. O. 330, been Petitions to suspend operation of a judgment.

Rule 642. granted on motion in Chambers, without even a petition: Campbell v. Edwards, 6 P. R. 159; Walker v. Niles, 3 Chy. Ch. 418. In such cases security was generally required to be given: Id. The staying of proceedings pending an appeal is discretionary. In a case where the Court refused to stay proceedings pending an appeal from an order allowing a demurrer, it directed that an answer filed should not prejudice the appeal: McMurray v. Grand Trunk Ry., 3 Chy. Ch. 125.

An order obtained by the suppression of material facts may be set aside on motion: Merchants Bank v. Sussler, 4 O. L. R. 524.

Petitions to carry judgment into operation.

Petitions to Carry a Judgment into Operation.—Bills of this kind were sometimes necessary where the parties neglected to proceed upon the decree, and their rights under it had become embarrassed by subsequent events, and it was necessary to have them settled by the decree of the Court. See Mitford Pleadings, 3rd ed., 75.

Petitions of review.

Petitions of Review.—Prior to Chy. O. 350, where a party sought to impeach a decree, either for error in law appearing in the body of the decree, without further examination of matters of fact, or in respect of some new matters arising after the decree; or on new evidence discovered after decree made, which could not possibly have been used when the decree was pronounced; in such cases, where the decree had been enrolled, a bill of review was filed, and where it had not been enrolled, a bill in the nature of a bill of review was the proper proceeding: see Dumble v. Cobourg, etc., 23 Gr. 121.

When bill filed on ground of error, error must be apparent on face of decree.

Where the bill was filed on the ground of error, it was necessary to specifically assign the error complained of, and it must have been an error of law, apparent on the face of the decree, and not a mere error of judgment: Green v. Jenkins, 6 Jur. N. S. 515, e.g.; it could not be assigned for error that any matter had been decreed contrary to the proofs: Mellish v. Williams, 1 Vern. 166; and see Rule 642 (4).

For cases since The Judicature Act, see Synod v. De Blaquiere, 10 P. R. 11; Bank of B. N. A. v. Western Ins. Co., 11 P. R. 434; Boswell v. Coaks, 6 R. 107; and see Wilkins v. Wilkins, 100 L. T. Jour. 418.

Seem, a petition of review will not now be entertained in any case in which the petitioner could have appealed from the judgment or order in question: Bright v. Sellar, 1904, 1 K. B. 6; 89 L. T. 137.

An application under the present Rule is a proceeding in the cause, and is properly made in Court to the Judge who pronounced the judgment or order sought to be varied, etc.: Armour v. Merchants Bank, 17 P. R. 108; Bank of British North America v. Western Assurance Co., 11 P. R. 434; Synod v. De Blaquiere, 10 P. R. 11; but where new evidence is discovered within the time limited for moving before a Divisional Court, under Rules 787, 788, a motion for a new trial on that ground may be made to the Divisional Court.

A new trial was refused where the fresh evidence was only in corroboration: Howarth v. McTugan, 23 Ont. 396; Trumble v. Horton, 22 Ont. App. 51.

A respondent may file affidavits in answer without the leave of the Court: Robson v. Wride, 14 Gr. 606; 15 Gr. 565.

On applications to open up proceedings, by way of review, on the Rule 643. ground of newly discovered evidence, the party applying must shew (1) that the evidence is such that if it had been brought forward at the proper time, it might probably have changed the result; (2) that at the time he might have so used it, neither he nor his agent had knowledge of it; (3) that it could not, with reasonable diligence, have been discovered in time to have been so used; and (4) the applicant must have used reasonable diligence after the discovery of the new evidence: Hosking v. Terry, 8 Jur. N. S. 977; Mason v. Senev, 12 Gr. 143; Dumble v. Cobourg and Peterboro' Ry. Co., 29 Gr. 121; Colonial Trusts v. Cameron, 21 Gr. 70; see also Caradice v. Currie, 19 Gr. 108; Waters v. Shade, 2 Gr. 218; Murray v. Canada Central Railway Co., 7 Ont. App. 646; Synod v. De Blaquiere, 10 P. R. 11; Bank of B. N. A. v. Western Ass. Co. 11 P. R. 434; Boswell v. Coaks, 6 R. 167.

12. ENTRY OF SATISFACTION.

643. In order to acknowledge satisfaction of a judgment, it shall be requisite only to produce a satisfaction piece Satisfaction of judgments, entry of. according to Form 210, and such satisfaction piece shall be signed by the party acknowledging the same or his personal representative, and his signature shall be witnessed by some practising solicitor expressly named by him, and attending at his request to inform him of the nature and effect of such satisfaction piece before the same is signed; the solicitor shall declare himself in the attestation thereto to be the solicitor for the person so signing the same, and state that he is witness as such solicitor (provided that the Court or a Judge may make an order dispensing with such signature under special circumstances); and in cases where the satisfaction piece is signed by the personal representative of a party deceased, his representative character shall be proved by the production of the probate of the will, or of the letters of administration, to the officer in custody of the judgment. Con. Rule 187.

Taken from Rule T. T. 1856, 64.

For App. Form No. 210, see H. & L. Forms, No. 900.

The plaintiff's signature may be dispensed with, and his solicitor in the cause may be authorized to acknowledge satisfaction, upon proof that the solicitor is authorized by the plaintiff to arrange the claim, and that the delay in obtaining the plaintiff's signature would be prejudicial: Rudall v. Hard, 3 U. C. L. J. 14; Pawson v. Wrightman, 2 U. C. L. J. 184; so also where the amount of the judgment is small and the plaintiff resides out of the jurisdiction: Bank of Montreal v. Cronk, 3 U. C. L. J. 32; or where the plaintiff resides abroad and has given his solicitor written authority to acknowledge satisfaction for him: Darling v. Wright, 3 U. C. L. J. 50. When a satisfaction piece is executed before an attorney of another Province, a Rule 644. certificate of his due admission must be produced, and his signature duly verified: Moss v. Dugly, 3 U. C. L. J. 74; signature before a practising attorney of a foreign country is a sufficient compliance with this Rule: Abernethy v. Beddome, 6 P. R. 162.

An order to enter up satisfaction will not be granted where it is not clear that the judgment has been satisfied: Lewine v. Savage, 3 U. C. L. J. 89.

After the judgment has been satisfied, the plaintiff's solicitor cannot be compelled by defendant to procure a satisfaction piece to be executed by his client; but the solicitor may be ordered to disclose his client's place of residence, so that the defendant may tender a satisfaction piece for execution, and if the plaintiff refuses to sign it he may be ordered to do so: Carr v. Coulter, 2 P. R. 226.

The arrest of one of several defendants on a ca. sa. and his subsequent discharge with the consent of the plaintiff, operates as a satisfaction of the judgment, as to him, even though the plaintiff at the time of the discharge expressly stipulated that his other remedies on the judgment were not to be impaired: Hamilton v. Holcomb, 7 U. C. L. J. 40; but it was held not to be a satisfaction as to other parties liable in priority to the party discharged: S. C. 11 C. P. 33; 12 C. P. 38; 2 E. & A. 239, and see Rule 1056. Where a vendor after recovering judgment for his purchase money, subsequently cancels the contract of sale, that operates as a satisfaction of the judgment: Cameron v. Bradbury, 9 Gr. 67.

Satisfaction piece, where to be entered.

644. The satisfaction piece shall be entered in the office in which the judgment is entered. Con. Rule 188.

Taken from Rule T. T. 1856, 65.

1. APPLICATIONS FOR ACCOUNT.

645. In default of appearance to a writ indorsed under Rule 140, and after appearance [in a case in which the preceding Rules do not entitle the plaintiff to a judgment or order otherwise] the plaintiff may apply for, and unless the defendant, by affidavit or otherwise, satisfies the Court or a Judge that there is some preliminary question to be tried, shall be entitled to a judgment or order for the taking of the account claimed, by a reference to any officer to whom the reference might be ordered at a trial, with all directions formerly usual in the Court of Chancery in similar cases. Con. Rule 745.

To the same effect as the Eng. (1883) R. 121, except that the words in brackets are new. The order or judgment for an account under this Rule can only be obtained on motion.

Rule 140 provides for the indorsement of a claim for an account where the plaintiff desires to have an account taken in the first instance. The present Rule provides for two cases; first, default of appearance, in which case the order will be made as of right; secondly, appearance, in which case the order is to be made unless the defendant shows that there is some question which ought to be tried first.

The writ should be indorsed under Rule 140, or the claim as indorsed should involve an account; Re Gylton, 20 Ch. D. 834, and notes infra.

Before taking proceedings under this Rule in default of appearance the plaintiff must file an affidavit of service of the writ of summons, or the notice in lieu thereof; see Rule 574.

The Rule applies not merely where the plaintiff claims an account from defendant, but also where the plaintiff will himself be the accounting party; Molony v. Molony, 21 L. R. Ir. 91.

Rule 646. Under the corresponding English Rule, where the account claimed is an executorship or administration account, the order made is the same as the usual administration decree formerly made in Chancery: see Bell v. Lowe, W. N. 1875, 229; 1 Charl. Ch. Ca. 56; and Pratt v. Brown, cited in Dau. Forms, 3rd ed., 206. Under such a judgment, the account may, in Ontario, be taken on the footing of wilful neglect and default: see notes to Rule 944; and it would seem that the account might be so taken when ordered under this Rule.

In Ontario it is not customary to make orders for an account under this Rule, in mortgage actions, a special procedure being provided to meet such cases: see Rules 595-6.

Administration accounts are also usually taken under other special Rules: see Rules 944, 946, 947, 955, and Forms 156 and 157, (11. & L. Forms, Nos. 838 and 839). Where, however, complete administration of the estate of a deceased person, or of a trust or the winding-up of a partnership, is not desired, but only an account, this Rule may probably be usefully applied: see Leybourne Popham v. Spencer-Brown, 9 Times, 309.

A form of indorsement claiming an account in administration actions is given in the Appendix, No. 9 (a and b). (11. & L. Forms, Nos. 54 and 55).

The provisions of the Rules 454, 473, for enforcing orders for discovery or inspection of documents, are not applicable to the order for accounts under this Rule: Pike v. Keene, 35 L. T. 341; 24 W. R. 322.

This Rule is not intended to enable parties upon a summary application to obtain what is equivalent to a judgment, but merely to take accounts upon which the Court can on a subsequent hearing, pronounce the appropriate judgment: Clover v. Wilts, etc., W. N. 1884, 110; see also Borthwick v. Ransford, 28 Ch. D. 79; 54 L. J. Ch. 569.

If the right to an account depends upon a preliminary question which is in dispute, that question must first be decided in some manner authorized by the Rules, and an account will not be granted unless it may properly be ordered under Rule 646; see Re Gibson, 29 Ch. D. 834 (disputed question of breach of trust); Batthyany v. Walford, 36 Ch. D. 276 (plaintiff's claim as a creditor disputed); Dyott v. Neville, W. N. 1887, 35.

Forms.

A form of a notice of motion will be found in 11. & L. Forms, No. 404. Two days' notice of motion is all that is necessary, Rule 348. It would seem that the motion may be made in Court or in Chambers: see Ladies' Tailoring Assoc. v. Clarkson, 27 C. L. J. 501. If made in Court it must be set down to be heard at the sittings of the Weekly Court.

It would seem that a statement of claim should, in general, be delivered before a motion is made under this Rule. In Re Huckwell, David v. Dalton, W. N. 1879, 86, an administration action, the motion was directed to stand over until a statement of claim was delivered. See also Green v. Colby, 24 W. R. 246.

Reference at any stage.

646. The Court or a Judge may, at any stage of the proceedings in a cause or matter, direct any necessary inquiries or accounts to be made or taken, notwithstanding that some special or further relief is sought, or some issue is to be tried, as to which it may be proper that the cause or matter should proceed in the ordinary manner. Con. Rule 551. Rules 646, 647.

Identical with the Eng. (1883) R. 381.

A reference under this Rule may be to a Master, or other proper officer, or to an Official Referee, under sec. 28 of The Arbitration Act (R. S. O. c. 62). See notes prefixed to Rule 647.

An inquiry was directed in West London Dairy Soc. v. Abbott, 29 W. R. 581; 44 L. T. 376, as to a question of fact, leaving questions of law for subsequent determination; and in Turquand v. Wilson, 1 Ch. D. 85, for taking of accounts of a partnership which by his defence defendant had admitted.

An order may sometimes be made under the combined authority of this Rule and Rule 617. See notes to that Rule and Turquand v. Wilson, supra; see also Re Barker's Estate, 10 Ch. D. 165-6; Rolfe v. MacLaren, 3 Ch. D. 106; Rumsey v. Reade, 1 Ch. D. 643.

It was considered that under this Rule it is not proper that the issue in the action should be referred to be tried on the reference; but only accounts subsidiary to the rights of the parties should be directed to be taken; Garnham v. Skipper, 29 Ch. D. 566; see also Macdonald v. Piper, 10 P. R. 586.

Where an action was brought to obtain a declaration of plaintiff's rights in certain mortgaged property, and to restrain a sale by the mortgagees, and the plaintiff obtained judgment declaring his rights, but the Court refused to restrain the sale, it was held that a supplementary order to take the mortgagees' account, tax costs and ascertain the surplus in their hands after the sale was properly made under this Rule; Meyers v. Hamilton Provident, etc., 15 P. R. 39.

The motion may be made either in Court or Chambers; see Ladies' Tailoring Assoc. v. Clarkson, 27 C. L. J. 501.

2. REFERENCES TO REFEREES.

Rule 647 provides that, except by consent, the Court will not refer to arbitration, so that all references of matters not disposed of by the Judge at the trial are referred either to a Master (see Rules 654-706), or to an Official Referee under R. S. O. c. 62, ss. 28-36.

See notes to Rule 647.

References to Referees under The Arbitration Act.

The following are the provisions of The Arbitration Act (R. S. O. c. 62) referred to:—

References under Order of Court.

References for Inquiry and Report.

28. Subject to Rules of Court and to any right to have particular cases tried by a jury (a), the Court or a Judge may refer for any question arising in any cause or matter for inquiry and report to a Judge of the County Court or to any Official Referee or to a special referee agreed upon by the parties. 60 V. c. 16, s. 28. Reference for inquiry and report.

Rule 647. Substantially the same as the former s. 102 of R. S. O. 1887, c. 41, and as sec. 13 of the Imp. Arbitration Act, 1889 (52 & 53 V. c. 49, s. 13).

(a) For such cases see Jud. Act (R. S. O. c. 51), ss. 102, 103 and notes, supra, p. 150.

"Court or a Judge."—The Master in Chambers, Local Judge, and Local Masters have no jurisdiction to make an order under this section: Union Loan Co. v. Boomer, 10 P. R. 430; Bank of Commerce v. Jennings, 7 C. L. T. 170, except by consent: see Rules 42, 45, 49, and except where a Local Judge has jurisdiction under Rule 47.

As to who are Official Referees, see section 141, supra, p. 175.

See also Rule 646, which provides further for references to take accounts or make inquiries at any stage of proceedings.

As to the employment of experts, see Rule 64.

Except by consent, the Court has no power to order a reference under above sec. 28 to any person other than an Official Referee, or the Judge of a County Court: Feinster v. Raleigh, 14 P. R. 429.

Scope of section.

"Inquiry and Report."—In view of other provisions of the Act, these words probably have a slightly different signification in this section from that given to them in the English Act. The inquiry intended is just such a judicial inquiry as a Master would make in the case, to ascertain, as the delegate of the Court, the rights of the parties in regard to the questions referred, and the report is to be similar to that of a Master and is to have the same effect given to it when filed: see sec. 31, infra, and notes.

Under Ont. Act.

What may be referred.

"Any Question Arising."—Under this section all that can be referred is a question or questions in the action, and must be a question or questions which must necessarily be decided in the action, not such as it may prove unnecessary to decide: Heed v. Ward, 40 Ch. D. 555. The whole action, facts and law, cannot be referred: Longman v. East, 3 C. P. D. 142; Braginton v. Yates, W. N. 1880, 150; Lunoy v. Essery, 10 P. R. 285; Re Queen City Refining Co., 10 P. R. 415; nor the whole of the issues in an action: Clarry v. B. N. Ass. Co., 12 P. R. 357. The whole action may be referred for trial by an official referee under s. 29 of The Arbitration Act, infra.

A question of liability, upon which the right to an account depends, should be tried in the usual way: Ward v. Hall, W. N. 1880, 120, per Cotton, L.J.; Clow v. Harper, 3 Ex. D. 198; Feinster v. Raleigh, 14 P. R. 429; more especially if it be a proper question for a jury: Young v. Prittie, Globe, 19th April, 1882. Where a question is directly raised by the pleadings, and is distinctly presented to the Court for its decision, and evidence has been taken upon it, it should not be referred, but should be disposed of by the Court: International Bridge Co. v. Canada Southern Ry. Co., 7 Ont. App. 266; Smith v. Armitage, 24 Ch. D. 727.

Amount of damages.

The question of the amount of damages, as a question in the action, may be referred, in the discretion of the trial Judge, but the exercise of his discretion is subject to review: Ratté v. Booth, 10 P. R. 187. The onus of shewing that the discretion was wrongly exercised is on the party objecting: Ib.; and generally speaking a reference as to damages ought only to be ordered in cases where the inquiry involves Rule 647. questions of detail which it would be wasting the time of the Court to investigate: Wallis v. Sapers, 34 Sol. Jour. 545, per Bowen, L.J.

A form of order of reference under this section is given in the ^{Form of} App. No. 122 (H. & L. Forms, No. 904). It should express on its ^{order.} face whether it is an order under this section for inquiry and report, or under sec. 29 for trial: Cumming v. Low, 2 Ont. 505; and see White v. Peto, W. N. 1886, 165; Wentlock v. River Dee Co., 19 Q. B. D. 155.

Further directions need not be expressly reserved, but a motion for judgment upon the report may be made after it has become confirmed, which is in effect the former motion for decree on further directions.

Procedure before Referee.—This section contemplates an inquiry by examination of witnesses and not by the Referee's personal observation only: Baroness Wentlock v. River Dee Co., 19 Q. B. D. 155.

The practice and procedure generally before a Referee is the same as before a Master: see Rule 650, also Rules 648-653, 483, and 654-706.

Rule 651 provides for the submission by the Referee, in his report, of questions for the decision of the Court.

As to discovery before the Referee: see note to Rule 648.

Report.—The report is subject to the same rules, and should be drawn in the same form, as the report of a Master, as to which, see notes to Rule 687.

The Master, if he sufficiently follows the directions of the judgment, is not obliged to give his reasons for, or to enter into detailed explanations of his report: Booth v. Rattle, 21 S. C. R. 637; and see Dunkirk, etc. v. Lever, 9 Ch. D. 20, under the English practice. Evidence should not be stated: Longman v. East, 3 C. P. D. 149; Sovereign v. Sovereign, 15 Gr. 559.

It is presumed that a Referee may, like a Master, report specially any circumstances which he deems necessary for the information of the Court, and that he should do so as to any matter affecting costs: see Hayes v. Hayes, 29 Gr. 90.

When the conduct of an arbitrator would invalidate his report the like conduct on the part of a referee would be fatal to his report: see Cumee v. Canadian Pacific Ry. Co., 16 Ont. 639.

The Referee should himself draw his report and settle it in the presence of both parties: Kuarr v. Bricker, 16 P. R. 363, where it was held to be improper for the referee to delegate the drawing of the report to the solicitor for the successful party.

As to filing the report, see sec. 31, infra, and Rule 653.

Judgment on Report.—A report under this section, under Rules 653 and 709, and sec. 31, infra, becomes absolute at the expiration of 14 days from the filing unless duly appealed from, or erroneous on its face. Judgment cannot be signed upon it, however, without a motion for judgment, which is similar to the former motion for decree on further directions, and the Referee cannot direct judgment to be entered upon his report: see Rule 648 (1). The Eng. practice is different under Eng. (1883) R. 471: see Clark v. Sammenschein, 25 Q. B. D. 226, 464.

Rule 647. Two clear days' notice of a motion for judgment was formerly, and is still, sufficient; Re Brook, 45 L. T. 172; 29 W. R. 801; 17 C. L. J. 301, and Rule 348.

Appeal from Report.—See R. S. O. c. 62, secs. 33, 34, infra, and Rules 760-772, 692 and notes.

Costs.—As to the costs of references and appeals: see McCallough v. Clemon, 26 Ont. 467.

Power to certain cases.

29. In any cause or matter,

- (a) If all the parties interested who are not under disability consent; or,
- (b) If the cause or matter requires any prolonged examination of documents or any scientific or local investigation which cannot in the opinion of the Court or a Judge conveniently be made before a jury or conducted by the Court or Judge directly; or,
- (c) If the question in dispute consists wholly or in part of matters of account,

Imp. Act,
52-53 V. c.
49, s. 14.

the Court or a Judge may at any time order the whole cause or matter or any question or issue of fact arising therein [or question of account] to be tried either before [a Judge of a County Court or before] a special referee agreed on by the parties, or before an Official Referee. 60 V. c. 16, s. 29.

The words in brackets are not in Imp. Act, 52 & 53 V. c. 49, s. 14, and the latter has at the end "or officer of the Court." In other respects the sections are substantially the same.

"Court or a Judge."—The Master in Chambers, Local Judge, and Local Masters, have no jurisdiction to order a reference under this section: White v. Beecher, 10 P. R. 531; Union Loan v. Bomer, 10 P. R. 630; Bank of Commerce v. Jennings, 7 C. L. T. 170; except by consent: see Rules 42, 45, 49; and except where a Local Judge has jurisdiction under Rule 47.

But where the Master in Chambers made an order of reference to a Judge of a District Court, and a report was made and judgment subsequently pronounced thereon by a Judge of the High Court, a Divisional Court refused to entertain the question whether the Master in Chambers had jurisdiction to make the order, there being no appeal therefrom: Fraser v. Buchanan, 25 Ont. 1.

Special Referee.—A reference to a special Referee under the last clause of R. S. O. c. 62, s. 29, is only ordered on consent: see London & Lancashire F. Ins. Co. v. British American Ass. Co., 52 L. T. 385; 54 L. J. Q. B. 302, where the extra costs of a trial before an Official Referee instead of a special Referee, to whose appointment defendants refused to consent, were reserved.

As to Official Referees: see Jud. Act, section 141.

What may be referred.

Under above sec. 29, the Court, or a Judge at Nisi Prius, or at a circuit sitting of the High Court: Hoch v. Boor, W. N. 1880, 93; 43 L. T. 425; 49 L. J. Q. B. 665, may send, where the parties have conented, the whole action (though this was not formerly authorized, Rule 647, see Longman v. East, 3 C. P. D. 142; Brigstock v. Yates, W. N. 1880, 150; Clarry v. B. N. Ass. Co., 12 P. R. 357), or any question of issue of fact, or question of account, to an Official Referee for trial. Where an order is made without consent, the Court can only send such questions as are brought within the terms of clauses (b) and (c), that is, any issue requiring prolonged examination of documents or accounts, etc., which in the opinion of the Judge cannot conveniently be made before a jury or conducted by the Court or Judge directly; Longman v. East, Hoch v. Boor, supra; or where the question in dispute consists wholly, or in part, of matters of account. But if a case is once brought within clauses (b) and (c), or either of them, the Court may refer not only the questions of account, but the whole cause or matter (see last clause of sec. 201; or all issues of fact in the cause; Ward v. Pilley, 5 Q. B. D. 427, 431; Miller v. Pilling, 9 Q. B. D. 738; Knight v. Coates, 19 Q. B. D. 206; though the question in dispute does not consist entirely of matters of account; Martin v. Fife, 31 W. R. 840; 40 L. T. 107; Goodwin v. Budden, 42 L. T. 536; as where issues of fact were so mixed up with matters of account, that they could not practically be discovered; Longman v. East, 3 C. P. D. 142; Ward v. Hall, W. N. 1880, 69). It is probable, however, that where there is a substantial question of liability upon which the taking of accounts depends, to be determined, it will first be determined in the ordinary way; Clove v. Harper, 3 Ex. D. 198; Ward v. Hall, W. N. 1880, 69; Ward v. Ward, 10 L. D. 555; and other cases under R. S. O. c. 62, s. 28, supra, p. 852.

"Prolonged" means prolonged if had before a jury, not if had before a skilled accountant; Ward v. Pilley, 5 Q. B. D. 428; and the documents are such as it would be necessary to inquire into, in order to leave the question properly to the jury, not such as require examination to determine a question of legal right; Ormeau v. Todmorden, 8 Q. B. D. 644, 677. Reading a lot of letters is not a prolonged examination of documents; Green's Trustee v. Barrett, W. N. 1875, 204.

The expression "question of account," will receive a large construction; Re Leigh, 3 Ch. D. 292; and any question of account which might have been compulsorily referred under the C. L. P. Act (see R. S. O. 1877, c. 50, ss. 189 and 195), may be compulsorily referred under this section; Ward v. Pilley, 5 Q. B. D. 427.

In a case involving a critical knowledge of pictures, the Court of Appeal refused to send the case for trial before a special Referee against defendant's will, as the fortune and character of the defendant were involved, and he was entitled to have the matters of fraud charged tried in a public Court; Leigh v. Brooks, 5 Ch. D. 592. But even where there are questions of fraud there is no inherent right to a trial by jury, and in such a case if the issues involve a prolonged examination of documents or accounts they may be compulsorily referred; Hoch v. Boor, W. N. 1880, 93; 43 L. T. 425; Sacker v. Ragazine & Co., 44 L. T. 308; but see Russell v. He v., 65 L. T. 752.

A question of damages consisting of various items in an action for injuries caused to a vessel by defendant's negligence; Liverpool & Co. v. London Navigation, W. N. 1875, 203; damages from obstructing a river by casting in sawdust and rubbish; Ratté v. Booth, 16 P. R. 187; issues of fact in a patent case requiring "scientific investigation"; Saxby v. Gloucester Wagon Co., W. N. 1880, 28; and Rule 647. damages in an action for specific performance: Stafford v. Coxon, W. N. 1877, 138, were ordered to be assessed by a Referee.

An order made under this section by a Judge in his discretion is appealable: Ormerod v. Todmorden, etc., 8 Q. B. D. 604; Hoch v. Boor, W. N. 1880, 93; 43 L. T. 425; Ratté v. Booth, 16 P. R. 185. But as a rule the Court of Appeal is disinclined to interfere with the exercise of a discretion: Sarby v. Gloucester Waggon Co., W. N. 1880, 28.

Order. A form of order is given in the App. No. 123 (H. & L. Forms, No. 905). It should, as intimated in Longman v. East, 3 C. P. D. 163, point out that it is an order under this section for issues to be tried, and should state whether all the issues are to be tried, or, if only certain issues, it should state by some sufficient description what those issues are: Cumming v. Low, 2 Ont. 505.

Powers and remuneration of referees, and R.S.O., c. 62.

Powers of Referees under R. S. O. c. 62.

30.—(1) In all cases of reference to or trial by an Official or special Referee under an order of the Court or a Judge in any cause or matter, the Official or special Referee shall be deemed to be an officer of the Court, and shall have such authority, and shall conduct the reference in such manner as may be prescribed by Rules of Court, and subject thereto as the Court or a Judge may direct.

(2) The remuneration to be paid to any special Referee to whom any matter is referred under order of the Court or a Judge may be determined by the Court or a Judge.

(3) The remuneration, fees, charges and disbursements, payable to an Official Referee, and, in the absence of any special direction, to any special Referee, shall be the same as are payable to a Local Master.

Where the Referee apportions the fees payable to him between the plaintiff and defendant according to the time occupied by each on the reference, and the plaintiff pays his proportion, the Referee cannot refuse to issue to the plaintiff the report until the fees payable by defendant are paid: Brooks v. Georgian Bay, etc., Co., 17 P. R. 34.

(4) In case of a reference by the Judge at the trial of any action to a County Judge or to the Registrar or Deputy Registrar, Deputy Clerk of the Crown, Local Master or other officer of the Court, paid wholly or partly by salary, of any matter which it would be competent for such Judge to himself try at the said trial, no fees, either in stamps or otherwise, shall be charged by such Referee in such reference. This sub-section does not apply to references made in pursuance of the ordinary practice of the Court of Chancery before The Ontario Judicature Act, 1881. 60 V. c. 16, s. 30.

See also Rule 155.

Procedure before Referee.—For the procedure before the Referee, see Rules 648, et seq.

Where a Referee refused to postpone the trial of a matter referred to him, it was held that an appeal from that decision might be made to a Judge in Chambers: see Richard v. Talbot, 38 W. R. 478. In Ontario, the course would seem to be to take out a certificate of the Referee of his decision, and appeal from it to the Court, as in the case of a Master.

Rule 651 provides for the submission of questions to the Court by Rule 647, the Referee before the conclusion of the trial before him, or by his report.

A Referee has the same power to allow interest as a jury has: Attorney-General v. Etna Insurance Co., 13 P. R. 459; and see Jud. Act, secs. 113 to 116, and notes.

Report.—The report of a Referee under this section should state his conclusions upon the issues referred, and he is not bound to give reasons for his findings: Miller v. Pilling, 9 Q. B. D. 736; see also Longman v. East, 3 C. P. D. 155; Fawcett v. Winters, 12 P. R. 232. Under Rule 652 the Court has power to obtain any explanation or reasons as to the principles upon which the Referee has rested his conclusions: Ib.

For an example of scientific or local investigation by a Referee, see Broder v. Saillard, 2 Ch. D. 692.

The Referee should himself draw his report and settle it in the presence of both parties: Knarr v. Bricker, 16 P. R. 363; he should not delegate the drawing of the report to the solicitor for the successful party: Ib.

See also notes to Rule 687.

Effect of Report of Referee.

31. The report of an Official or special Referee under the three next preceding sections may be filed by any party forthwith after the same shall have been made, and upon notice of the filing thereof having been given to the other parties, it shall from the time of service of such notice have the effect of and be subject to all the incidents of a report of a Master as regards confirmation, appealing therefrom, motions thereupon and otherwise. 60 V. c. 16, s. 31.

See also Rules 653, 693, 769 and 771.

The report should be filed in the office in which the proceedings were commenced: see Rules 693, 14 and 15.

As to appeals from reports, see sec. 33, infra.

Evidence to be Transmitted.

32. The evidence of witnesses examined upon a reference under any order of reference, together with the exhibits therein referred to, shall forthwith, after the making of the report, be transmitted by the Referee to the proper officer of the Court. 60 V. c. 16, s. 32. See Con. Rules 14 and 15.

The proper officer will be the officer in whose office the proceedings were commenced: see Rules 14 and 15; and if that office is the Central Office, the proper officer will be an officer of the Filing and Record Branch: Rule 22.

Appeals from Reports.

33. The appeal from the report may be heard and decided by a Judge sitting in Court, and the practice to be observed upon such appeal and any further appeal to the Court of Appeal shall in other respects be the practice observed on an appeal from the report of a Master. 60 V. c. 16, s. 33.

The mode of questioning a report, whether made under sec. 28 or sec. 29, is now by appeal from it in the same manner as in the case of a report of a Master, as to which see Rules 769, et seq.

Rule 647. Further appeals are regulated by Rule 772, and secs. 74 (1) and 76 (1) of the Jud. Act.

Where a Referee held that there was a want of reasonable and probable cause for the defendant's proceeding criminally against the plaintiff, and it was objected that this was a finding of law and not of fact, it was held to be equivalent to a verdict for plaintiff rendered by a jury under instructions from the Judge as to what would be reasonable and probable cause: Fawcett v. Winters, 12 P. R. 232.

Time for appealing.

34. An appeal from a report shall not be made after the expiration of 14 days from the filing thereof, and the giving notice of such filing to the opposite party, unless under special circumstances the Court or a Judge shall allow an appeal after the 14 days. 60 V. c. 16, s. 34.

See notes to Rule 770.

As to appeals in respect to costs, see Rule 1130 (4), and notes.

Costs.—As to the costs of references and appeals, see Rule 648: McCullough v. Clemon, 26 Ont. 467.

Where an action was referred to a Referee for trial, and he gave the defendant the costs of the action and award, this was held to include the costs of the reference: Patton v. West of Eng., etc., 1894, 2 Q. B. 159.

Where an action is referred under s. 29, the Referee may find by whom the costs should be paid, but payment of them can only be enforced under a judgment or order of the Court directing payment of them. The judgment or order of reference may contain such a direction: see Form 123. (H. & L. Forms, No. 905.)

Judgment.—An Official Referee has no power to order judgment to be entered: Longman v. East, 3 C. P. D. 142. The report must be brought before the Court on motion for judgment, when the Court will give judgment as formerly in Chancery upon the report of a Master: Longman v. East, supra; Deacon v. Dolby, W. N. 1883, 25; Miller v. Pilling, 9 Q. B. D. 736; Monro v. Rendall, W. N. 1878, 41; Walker v. Bunkell, 22 Ch. D. 722. The motion is made to a single Judge sitting in Court: see Cumming v. Low, supra. See also notes to R. S. O. c. 62, s. 28, supra, p. 853.

Defects appearing on the face of the report such as that the report is imperfect, or in excess of jurisdiction, may be urged in opposing a motion for judgment: Cooke v. Newcastle, 10 Q. B. D. 336.

Court to have same powers as on consent
references

35. The Court or a Judge shall, as to references under order of the Court or a Judge, have all the powers which are by this Act conferred on the Court or a Judge as to references by consent out of Court. 60 V. c. 16, s. 35.

Same as Imp. Act, 52-3 V. c. 49, s. 16.

For the powers referred to, see R. S. O. c. 62, ss. 3-17, 40-51.

Court of Appeal to have power of High Court.

36. The Court of Appeal shall have all the powers conferred by this Act on the Court or a Judge thereof under the provisions relating to references under order of the Court. 60 V. c. 16, s. 36.

Same as Imp. Act, 52-3 V. c. 49, s. 17.

647. [Except by consent] an order for a reference to arbitration shall not be made. Con. Rule 550. Rules 647, 648.
Arbitration

The words in brackets are new in this Rule, but they only express the decision in Macdonell v. Baird, 13 P. R. 331. under the former Con. Rule 550.

648. (1) Where a reference is made to a Referee under The Arbitration Act, he shall have all the powers of a Master, and shall, in addition, unless otherwise ordered, have in the conduct of the reference all the powers of a Judge of the High Court when presiding at a trial, except the powers of directing judgment to be entered and committing any person to prison, or enforcing an order by attachment or otherwise. Con. Rules 37, 38, 552. Provisions of reference to official or other referee.

Under this section a Referee has, in the absence of any restriction in the order of reference, the same discretion as to costs as a Judge under Rule 1130, and no appeal from his disposition of the costs will lie without his leave: see Jud. Act. s. 72; Minister v. Apperty, 1902, 1 K. B. 643.

(2) Neither the plaintiff nor the defendant shall bring or prosecute any action against the Referee, or against each other, of or concerning the matters referred to the Referee. Con. Rule 552 (b).

(3) In the event of the Referee declining to act, or dying before he has made his report, the parties, or if they cannot agree, a Judge of the High Court may, upon application of either party, appoint a new Referee. Con. Rule 552 (c).

This clause enables only a Judge of the High Court to appoint a new Referee. The Master in Chambers has therefore no jurisdiction in the matter: see Rule 42.

(4) The Referee shall make his report concerning the matters referred to him: and if either party by affected delay or otherwise wilfully prevents the Referee from making his report, he shall pay such costs to the other party as to the Court or a Judge may seem just. Con. Rule 552 (1) and (b).

(5) An order of reference to a Referee made under The Arbitration Act, or Rule 646, shall be read as if it contained the provisions of this Rule, but may contain any variation therefrom or addition thereto. Rules 23 June, 1894, 1343.

Rule 649. As far as this Rule confers on a Referee the powers of a Master it follows the former Con. Rule 35. The remainder of clause (1) and clauses (2), (3) and (4), are taken from Form 11. 32 in the schedule appended to Eng. R. Sup. C., April, 1880, which was the form of order for trial by a Referee, corresponding to a reference under sec. 29, supra, of The Arbitration Act (R. S. O. c. 62).

The English form of order in Rs. (1883) Appx. K. No. 24, sets out in extenso the directions, (2), (3), (4), contained in this Rule.

The present Rule renders unnecessary and improper the specification of those directions in orders in Ontario.

With clause (1) compare Eng. (1883) R. 474 and 475. Eng. Rule 474 confers power on the Referee to direct judgment to be entered, and gives authority with respect to discovery and production: see Serle v. Fardell, 44 Ch. D. 299; Clark v. Sonnenschein, 25 Q. B. 19, 226; Hayward v. Mut. Reserve, 1891, 2 Q. B. 236. The Ont. Rule 648 expressly denies the power to direct judgment to be entered, and no express provision is made in regard to discovery.

Discovery. There was formerly doubt as to whether a Referee had power to issue a direction for production like a Master, or whether an order on præcipe might be obtained: see Hilderbroom v. McDonald, 8 P. R. 289.

Now, however, it would seem to be the intention of the Ont. Rules that the practice before a Referee is to be as nearly as possible the same as before a Master. If the order of reference is made after discovery and production have been obtained in the action in the ordinary way under Rules 439, and 464, that may suffice, but if further discovery or production is required for the purpose of the reference, it would seem to be obtainable by a direction of the Referee: see Rules 650, 654, 669, and Brooks v. Georgian Bay, etc., 16 P. R. 511; Garland v. Clarkson, 9 O. L. R. 281.

Where a reference is made for trial, the referee has power to direct such discovery as might be obtained in an action before trial, including discovery, under Rules 440 and 466, from a person for whose immediate benefit the action was brought or defended: Garland v. Clarkson, 9 O. L. R. 281.

Hearing. The Referee, whether the reference is for report (R. S. O. c. 62, s. 28); or trial (Id., c. 29), has power, subject to the control of the Court, to fix a peremptory appointment for the hearing, and, on default of either party, to proceed in his absence: Wentlock v. River Dee Co., 32 W. R. 220; 49 L. T. 617.

Costs. Where an action is referred to a Referee for trial under sec. 29 of The Arbitration Act, he would seem to have power under clause (1) of Rule 648 to dispose of the costs of the action, including those of the reference: see Patten v. W. of England, etc., 1894, 2 Q. B. 159, and note supra, p. 858; but payment thereof can only be enforced under a judgment or order directing payment.

before
referee.

649. The Referee may, subject to the order of the Court or a Judge, proceed with the reference at, or adjourn it to, any place which he may deem convenient, and have any inspection or view which he may deem expedient for the better disposal of the matters referred to him. Con. Rule 34.

See Eng. (1883) R. 472.

In the former Rule 34 there was a direction to the Referee to sit Rules de die in diem, but this has now been omitted as unnecessary: see 650-653. Rule 664.

650. The practice and procedure on the reference to a Referee, including the procuring of the attendance of witnesses, shall be the same, as nearly as may be, as the practice and procedure in the Master's office. Con. Rule 35.

This Rule would seem to govern the practice and procedure on a reference, whether under section 28, or 29, of The Arbitration Act: see supra, and Rules 654, et seq. The English practice is different: see Eng. (1883) R. 473; Re Taylor, Turpin v. Pain, 44 Ch. D. 128; and notes to Rule 654.

As to costs of proceedings before a Referee and appeals in respect to costs, see Rule 1130, and notes.

651. The Referee may, by his report or by interim certificate, submit any question arising in the reference for the decision of the Court; and upon any motion in respect to the report or such certificate the Court may adjudicate in respect to the question so submitted. See Con. Rule 39.

See Eng. (1883) R. 476; R. S. O. (1877) c. 50, s. 211.

652. The Court may require explanations or reasons from the Referee, and remit the cause or matter, or any part thereof for further consideration, to the same or any other Referee; or upon an appeal from the Referee's report or certificate the Court may decide the question referred to the Referee on the evidence taken before him, either with or without additional evidence as the Court may direct. Con. Rule 40.

See Eng. (1883) R. 476.

This Rule supplements sec. 41 of The Arbitration Act. That section simply enabled an arbitrator to state his award as to the whole or any part thereof, in the form of a special case for the opinion of the Court; and the Court could only deal with the case as stated. Under this Rule the Court may require of the Referee explanations or reasons, or send the matter back for re-trial or re-consideration, and to another Referee if it thinks fit; or upon an appeal from the report may itself decide the question on the same evidence, or with additional evidence.

This Rule does not apply to the case of an arbitration ordered by the Court upon consent, where the arbitrator is selected and agreed on by the parties: Kennedy v. Beal, 29 Ont. 599.

653. The report of a Referee may be filed by any party forthwith after the same has been made, in the same manner as the report of a Master, and, upon notice of the filing hav-

Rule 653. ing been given, shall from the time of service of such notice have the effect of, and be subject to all the incidents of a report of a Master as regards confirmation, appealing therefrom, motions thereupon, and otherwise. Rules 23 June, 1894, 1288. See 60 V. c. 16, s. 31.

See also R. S. O. c. 62, s. 31, supra, and notes prefixed to Rule 647.

3. PROCEEDINGS ON REFERENCES TO MASTERS AND REFEREES.

Masters are officers of Supreme Court.

The Master in Ordinary, and Local Masters, are all officers of the Supreme Court; J. A. s. 131, and, as such, actions may be referred to them. They are also by Order in Council of May 22d. 1889, made Masters of the High Court, and Court of Appeal.

The Judges of the County Courts, the Master in Ordinary, Master in Chambers, the Clerk of the Crown and Pleas, the Registrars, and the Local Masters, are also ex officio Official Referees: s. 141, supra, p. 175.

Place of reference.

Under the former practice in Chancery the plaintiff was prima facie entitled to have a reference, when necessary, directed to the Master at the place where the bill was filed: Macara v. Gwynne, 3 Gr. 310; Watson v. Henderson, 2 Chy. Ch. 370; and the defendant might for good cause apply to change the reference: McNab v. McLunis, 4 Chy. Ch. 53; but now in administration actions, it has been held that the reference should be prima facie to the Master in the county where the deceased resided: Thompson v. Fairbairn, 10 P. R. 523; and see Armstrong v. Armstrong, 18 P. R. 55.

Prima facie
plaintiff entitled to have reference
issued.

Subject to this exception, the old rule, it is presumed, will still be followed, and a plaintiff will have the right prima facie to have the reference, if any, directed to the Master in the county where the writ issued. Formerly when it was sought to change the reference on the score of expense, the difference of expense must have been considerable; and if on the ground of convenience, a clearly preponderating convenience in favour of the proposed change must have been established; and the fact that a defendant was a man in extensive business, or a trustee, was not a sufficient ground for changing the reference: McNab v. McLunis, supra; Jackson v. Harriman, 9 C. L. J. 29.

Reference
may be changed;
on what grounds.

Since The Judicature Act it has been held that the policy of that Act is to decentralize business, and to send local matters to the Local Masters, and the fact that a partnership business had been carried on in the county to which it was proposed to change the reference to take the partnership accounts, and that a delay of two months would be incurred by retaining the reference at the place directed by the judgment, was held sufficient ground to warrant the change: Athen v. Wilson, 9 P. R. 75.

When Master has been professionally concerned.

Where the Master has been professionally concerned for any of the litigants, in reference to the same or any other matter, that is a sufficient ground for changing the reference: Bigelow v. Bigelow, 6 P. R. 124; Boyd v. Simpson, before Spragge, C., 19th June, 1878. (See Reg. Lib.)

But where the reference was directed to a Master, who had, prior to the appointment, been counsel for one of the litigants, neither party objecting, and the Master certifying that he acted in the reference at the pressing request of both parties, the Court held that the party against whom the Master reported could not raise that objection on appeal from the report, having taken the chance of the Master's finding in his favour: Cotter v. Cotter, 21 Gr. 159. Rules 654-656.

Where in the course of a suit it became necessary to add as a party the Master to whom the cause was referred, the reference was changed on an ex parte application by the plaintiff, in Weldon v. Templeton, 1 Chy. Ch. 360. Usually, however, any application to change the reference should be on notice: McConnell v. McConnell, 3 Chy. Ch. 122. Where necessary to add Master as a party.

The following Rules 654-666 regulate the practice in the Master's offices, and apply to all actions which are referred to a Master, or to a Referee. Application to be made on notice.

In England it has been held that an Official Referee is not bound on a reference to him to take accounts, to pursue the strict method followed on a reference to a Chief Clerk, who occupied there a position similar to that of the Master in Ordinary and Local Masters: Re Taylor, Turpin v. Pain, 44 Ch. D. 128. It would appear from this Rule and Rule 650, however, that a reference to an Official Referee is intended to be conducted in the same manner as references to Masters.

(i) General Rules.

654. In Rules 656 to 766 inclusive, the word "Master" shall include Local Master and Official or other Referee, as well as the Master in Ordinary of the Supreme Court. Con. Rule 43. Interpretation.

The powers conferred by the Rules on Masters may be exercised by a Judge in Chambers: Rule 368.

655.—(1) In High Court cases a reference on which fees are payable otherwise than in law stamps, shall not be taken before the Judge of the County Court, or Local Judge of the High Court, or Local Master being also a Judge of the County Court, by whom the order for such reference has been made. Certain references or examinations not to be before officer ordering same.

(2) This Rule shall not apply to references in administration and partition matters and in mortgage actions. Con. Rule 1192, part.

656. Instead of a reference, the Court may dispose of all matters itself without a reference, and may direct the proceedings to be taken in Court, or in Chambers. Con. Rule 44. Court may dispose of matters without reference.

Taken from Chy. O. 540.

This Rule is usually acted upon only in simple cases, to save the expense of a reference to a Master. The most usual instance of its Rule 657. application being where the account necessary to be taken involves a mere computation. In such a case the Judge usually directs the Registrar to ascertain the amount, and it is then inserted in the judgment, or order, as the finding of the Court.

Occasionally, however, the accounts in an administration suit have been taken under this Rule.

The proceedings referred to in this Rule are matters properly referrible to a Master, not the adjudication of the action.

Order to be carried into M. O.
14 days.

657. Every judgment or order of reference shall be brought into the proper office for prosecution, within 14 days after the judgment or order is signed or issued, or after the same should have been signed or issued, by the party having the carriage of the same; otherwise any other party to the cause or matter, or any party having an interest in the reference, may assume the carriage of the judgment or order. Con. Rule 45.

Taken from Chy. O. 211.

The "proper office for prosecution" is that of the Master, or Referee, to whom the reference is directed. Usually the original, or a copy, of the judgment or order of reference, is required to be left with the Master.

Under these Rules, no time appears to be prescribed within which an order, or judgment, directing a reference, is to be drawn up and entered.

According to the former practice, it would appear that the party having the conduct of an order, or a judgment, directing a reference, was entitled to at least 21 days from the time the order, or judgment, was pronounced, or finally disposed of, by the Court, within which to issue the order, or judgment, and carry it into the Master's office; but whether he is entitled to the same time, or any longer or shorter period, under the present practice is not clear, and the Rules seem to furnish no analogy.

Conduct of reference, who entitled to.

Duty of solicitor
having conduct.

The rule which regulates the question, as to who shall have the carriage of an order, or judgment, directing a reference to a Master, is a technical one, and in the majority of cases, the solicitors alone are interested. The solicitor of the party having the conduct of the judgment is entitled to prosecute all those proceedings which relate to the general inquiries, and the other parties only prosecute those which relate exclusively to themselves, or such as it would be inconsistent for the party having the carriage of the order or judgment to do. Thus, if the plaintiff has the conduct, his solicitor bespeaks and procures to be inserted all advertisements, whether for creditors, or for next of kin, or for the sale of property: he prepares the abstract, and answers the requisitions; and if the purchaser requires a reference as to title, he attends upon it. He furnishes, where directed, for the purpose of answering the general inquiries and taking the general account, copies, abstracts, or extracts of, or from accounts, deeds or other documents, and pedigrees, etc., relating to proceedings of a general character, and not belonging to particular parties to prosecute. Smith's Pr., 7th ed., 725. See also notes to Rule 203 (2).

Where the party having the carriage of a judgment or order, directing a reference, is guilty of delay in carrying it into the Master's office within the meaning of this Rule, any other party to the action, or any party having an interest in the reference, may assume the carriage of the judgment, or order, which, where necessary, would include the right to draw up the minutes and procure them to be settled, and to have the order or judgment passed and entered. No order seems necessary to entitle him to do this; but see Re Shaw, 14 Gr. 524, where a special application was made for the conduct of the reference, after the order issued, in pursuance of leave reserved. Where the judgment, or order, has been drawn up and entered, but has not been carried into the Master's office within the prescribed time, an office-copy of the judgment, or order, may be obtained and carried into the Master's office by any other party interested. Persons who are not parties to the action, but who are interested in the reference, e.g., creditors, next of kin, heirs, etc., are entitled under this Rule to assume the carriage of the order, or judgment, where the prescribed time has elapsed: see Re Shaw, 14 Gr. 524.

May be changed for delay.

When a plaintiff neglects for twenty years to prosecute a judgment directing a reference to take accounts in a redemption action, he may be deemed to have lost his right to prosecute the reference, and his proceedings may be stayed: see Re Leslie, 23 Ont. 143.

Or proceedings stayed.

Where a judgment or order has been carried into the Master's office, in the event of delay arising on the part of the party having the carriage of it, the Master may transfer the conduct of the reference to any other person interested: see Rule 663.

Party interested may assume carriage, when.

658. Unless otherwise directed by the Master, notice of the first proceeding before him in an action shall be given to every party affected by or interested in the inquiry, though any such party may not have appeared or pleaded in the action. New.

Notice to parties in Master's office.

This Rule, though new, merely gives the force of a Rule to what had been previously the practice in the Master's office.

Under the present practice, provision is made for hearing the action pro confesso for default of appearance or defence: see Rules 573, 586; and judgment may be awarded against a defendant on default of appearance, or on default of defence, and the future proceedings may be carried on against him ex parte, "except where otherwise provided by these Rules, or where otherwise ordered by the Court or a Judge." One of the cases "otherwise provided" is specified in this Rule. A defendant, if interested in, or affected by the inquiry, is, therefore, under this Rule, entitled to notice of proceedings upon a reference unless the Master sees fit to dispense with it.

Service on a defendant who has not appeared may, unless the Court otherwise directs, be effected by posting up a copy of the document required to be served "in the office where the proceedings are being conducted": Rule 334. Where a defendant who has not appeared, appears to have some substantial interest in the proceedings on the reference, the Master would probably direct personal service.

Rule 659.

Where service is effected by posting a copy, it would seem that it should be posted in the office in which the proceedings were commenced: see Rules 15, and 830.

Where a defendant who has made no defence, has no interest in, and is not affected by the reference, service on him may properly be dispensed with.

Master may add parties in his office.

659. Where, in proceedings before the Master, it appears to him that a person not already a party ought to be made a party, and ought to attend, or be enabled to attend the proceedings before him, he may direct an office copy of the judgment or order to be served upon such person; and upon due service thereof, such person shall be treated and named as a party to the action, and shall be bound by the judgment or order in the same manner as if he had been originally made a party. Con. Rule 46.

It is most important that all proper parties should be added. Persons interested, who are not added, or served with the judgment under Rule 203, are not bound by the proceedings, and may intervene and compel the refunding of moneys distributed in their absence to the prejudice of their rights: see Uffner v. Lewis, 27 A. R. 275; 3 O. L. R. 208; with interest, S. C. 5 O. L. R. 684.

Master may dispense with service of judgment

The Master has power to dispense with the service of the judgment on parties required to be served therewith under Rule 203; but he would seem to have no power to dispense with service on parties who ought to be added as parties under the provisions of this Rule.

As to substituted service of an office copy of the judgment or order and as to dispensing with service: see Re Hynes, Hodgins v. Andrews, 19 P. R. 217.

Persons served with a copy of a judgment under Rule 203, are not thereby made parties to the action: see notes to that Rule; but persons required to be served under this Rule are made parties to the action.

Adding
parties.

Where persons are required to be added as parties, the Master usually issues an order making them parties, and directing them to be served with the judgment, or order, of reference, indorsed as required by Rule 660.

Persons acquiring interests
pendente lite need not be added.

Persons who acquire equitable interests in the subject matter of litigation pendente lite need not be added as parties, but are nevertheless bound, and concluded, by the proceedings; thus, a person recovering a judgment, and execution, against a mortgagor: Wallbridge v. Martin, 2 Chy. Ch. 275; or obtaining a mortgage, or other incumbrance from him: Rohson v. Argue, 25 Gr. 407; pending an action for foreclosure, or sale, by a prior mortgagee, need not be made a party. But where a person acquires the legal estate pendente lite it may sometimes be necessary to make him a party for the purpose of obtaining a conveyance. A person, who after the institution of a foreclosure action acquired an interest, was on his own application added as a party in Gibson v. Nelson, 2 O. L. R. 500; 35 S. C. R. 181. A purchaser pendente lite may be added as a defendant in the Master's office under this Rule: Lindsay v. Bank of Montreal, 13 Gr. 66; but see Abell v. Parr, 9 P. R. 564. But where after registration of a certificate of lis pendens a statement of claim was amended by claiming further and other relief than that originally sought, it was held that persons acquiring interests before such amendment, though after the registration of the lis, were not bound by notice of such further relief: Priee v. Priee, 35 Ch. D. 297; but see 7 C. L. T. 205, and Bennett on Lis pendens, c. 1. The doctrine of lis pendens does not affect third persons acquiring title pendente lite under tax sales: Ib., c. 5, s. 80; nor bond file assignees of negotiable paper: Ib., ss. 80, 87; nor persons acquiring title under Acts authorizing expropriation: Ib., s. 89; nor persons claiming under prior unregistered deeds: Clergue v. McKay, 6 O. L. R. 51; 8 O. L. R. 84; and it has no application to personal property other than chattel interests in land: Wigram v. Buckley, 1894, 3 Ch. 483; 71 L. T. 287.

A purchaser from the plaintiff in a foreclosure action, in anticipation of a final order being granted, acquires no greater rights than his vendor, and where the final order was erroneously granted the fact of the sale was held to furnish no obstacle to its being set aside on the application of the mortgagor: Foresters v. Pegg, 19 P. R. 54; and such a sale pendente lite was held not to be shippable as a sale under the power of sale in the mortgage: Ib.

Persons having a paramount title to the plaintiff, cannot be made parties in the Master's office, if they object: Montgomery v. Shortis, 3 Chy. Ch. 69. Thus, in a suit by an execution creditor, to set aside a fraudulent conveyance of the equity of redemption by the execution debtor, an order adding a prior mortgagee for the purpose of redeeming him, was discharged. When that is required he should be made an original party to the action: Craeford v. Meldrum, 19 Gr. 163. But where a decree had been made to take partnership accounts, in the absence of one of the partners alleged to be insolvent, and out of the jurisdiction, it was held that he was properly made a party in the Master's office on his returning to the jurisdiction pending the reference: Paterson v. Holland, 7 Gr. 563; and as to parties interested in the equity of redemption, see Rule 190.

The action is only deemed to be commenced as against parties added in the Master's office from the date of the order adding them: Inson v. Gardiner, 11 Gr. 23; and see Dumble v. Larush, 27 Gr. 187; Sterling v. Campbell, 1 Chy. Ch. 147. Where it is made to appear to the Master that all liability on the part of a party added, is barred by the Statute of Limitations, he may discharge the order adding him as a party: Kline v. Kline, 3 Chy. Ch. 161.

No direct relief can be had against parties added in the Master's office, and they cannot be required to account: Hooper v. Harrison, 28 Gr. 22; Rolph v. Upper Canada Building Society, 11 Gr. 275, 278; Walker v. Seligmann, L. R. 12 Eq. 152; Re Parkes, Simpson v. Parkes, 66 L. T. 151. And it would seem they cannot themselves get any relief against co-defendants beyond what is claimed by the plaintiff: see Whitney v. Smith, L. R. 4 Chy. 513; they are simply bound by and entitled to the benefit of the proceedings.

A party filling two capacities, if made a party to a suit distinctly in one capacity only, may not be bound as to his rights in the other capacity: e.g., a person added as a defendant in his character of a judgment creditor, was held not to be bound in his character of a mortgagee: Crooks v. Watkins, 8 Gr. 340; but see Beardsley v. Bourdieu, 1899, 1 Q. B. 746; 80 L. T. 51.

Rules
660-662.

Office
judgment to be served on parties added in
M. O.

660. The office copy of a judgment or order directed to be served under Rule 659 shall be indorsed with a notice according to Form No. 75. Con. Rule 47.

Taken from Chy. O. 245.

For Form No. 75, see H. & L. Forms No. 931.

Parties
added in
M. O. may move
judgment

661. A person served with an office copy of a judgment or order under Rule 659, may apply to the Court at any time within 14 days from the date of such service, to discharge, add to, vary, or set aside the same. Con. Rule 18.

Taken from Chy. O. 240, and see Chy. O. 445.

Application when to be heard.

Under Chy. Orders 240, 445, the application was required to be brought on to be heard within the fourteen days; see Holmsted's Rules and Orders, p. 245. But the application might, in the discretion of the Court, be entertained after that time; Stewart v. Huels, 2 Chy. Ch. 295. The practice under this Rule now appears to be the same.

Both vacations are excluded from the fourteen days; Rule 352 (b).

Party added claiming priority to plaintiff

Where a party is added who claims by title paramount to the plaintiff, he should move to discharge the order; Montgomery v. Shortis, 3 Chy. Ch. 130; Crawford v. Meldrum, 19 Gr. 165; McFoss v. Tiffin, 13 Ont. App. 1. But an encumbrancer claiming priority to the plaintiff, but whom the Master finds to be subsequent, may also appeal from the report on the question of priority; McDonald v. Rodger, 9 Gr. 75.

Master may discharge order, when.

The Master may himself discharge the order adding a party who subsequently appears to be an unnecessary party; Kline v. Kline, 3 Chy. Ch. 161.

A party improperly added as a party in the Master's office is not limited to the time mentioned in this Rule within which to object that he should not have been made a party; he may take the objection on an appeal from the report, or upon the hearing on further directions, if any, if sufficient appears on the Master's report to enable the Court to deal with the question; Cowan v. Allen, 26 S. C. R. 292; McLaughlin v. Stewart, 1 O. L. R. 295.

Master may classify and appoint solicitors to represent different classes.

662. Where, at any time during the reference, it appears to the Master, with respect to the whole or any portion of the proceedings, that the interests of the parties can be classified, he may require the parties constituting each or any class, to be represented by the same solicitor; and where the parties constituting such class cannot agree upon the solicitor to represent them, the Master may nominate a solicitor for the purpose of the proceedings before him. Con. Rule 19.

Taken from Chy. O. 218.

Where the Master appoints a solicitor to act for a class, all the individuals composing that class are bound by the acts of the solicitor so appointed, and cannot repudiate them, unless they appoint a separate solicitor: Re McCounell, 3 Chy. Ch. 423.

A solicitor so appointed is entitled to act for the class, not only in the Master's office, but also in proceedings arising out of, or connected with, the proceedings in the Master's office: Id. But where a solicitor was ex parte appointed to represent creditors it was held that he could not recover his costs against creditors who had not proved their claims and who had no notice of his appointment: Monteith v. Merchants Bank, 12 P. R. 288; 23 C. L. J. 415.

As to the appointment of a solicitor to represent creditors generally: see Re Drury Nickel Co., 16 P. R. 525; where orders of that kind were not favourably regarded.

The Master should not appoint a separate solicitor for parties who are sufficiently represented by the plaintiff; and where prima facie the plaintiff represents the class (see Rule 213), if the Master appoints a separate solicitor he should state the reason for so doing in his report: Gorham v. Gorham, 17 Gr. 386.

After the appointment of a solicitor to act for a class, the separate costs of any member of that class subsequently incurred will not ordinarily be allowed against the estate under administration: Re Alna Insurance Company, 17 Gr. 160.

As to the liability for costs of any member of a class refusing to be represented by the solicitor nominated by the Master, and insisting on being represented by a different solicitor, see Rule 1148.

663. Where a party prosecuting a reference, does not proceed with due diligence, the Master may, upon the application of any other person interested, either as a party to the suit, or as one who has come in and established his claim under the judgment or order, commit to him the prosecution of the reference. Con. Rule 50.

Taken from Chy. O. 212.

The Master in his discretion may entertain an application to change the conduct of the reference ex parte: Stephenson v. Nicolls, 14 Gr. 144; but ordinarily the application should be made on notice: 1 Sm. Pr., 2nd ed. 312; and see Sims v. Ridge, 3 Mer. 458; Edwards v. Ireland, 5 Mad. 31.

An appeal lies from the order of the Master changing the conduct of the reference: Stephenson v. Nicolls, 14 Gr. at pp. 147, 149, and in Wyatt v. Sadler, 5 Sm. 459, the Court on a substantive motion changed the conduct of the reference, after the Master had refused an application for that purpose. But the application must in the first instance be made to the Master: Miller v. McNaughton, 1 Chy. Ch. 296.

Where there has been great delay in prosecuting a judgment in a creditor's suit, a creditor may apply to have the conduct of the cause, though it has become defective by the death of the defendant: Cook v. Bolton, 5 Russ. 282; and see Re Shaw, 14 Gr. 524; Patterson v. Scott, 4 Gr. 145.

Reference

and de

Warrant to

A party to whom the conduct of the reference is committed is entitled to inspect and take copies of briefs and documents in the possession of the party, or his solicitor, from whom the carriage of the reference has been taken: Bennett v. Baxter, 10 Sim. 417; and see Heslop v. Metcalf, 8 Sim. 622, and notes to Rule 335, supra, p. 544.

An order taking the conduct of the reference from the plaintiff, does not preclude him from applying to amend a clerical error in the judgment, or order, under Rule 640; Whitehead v. North, Cr. & Ph. 78. This Rule only enables the Master to transfer the conduct of proceedings in his office.

Where there is undue delay in prosecuting a reference the Court may stay the proceedings: see Re Heslic, 23 Ont. 143.

664. Unless the Master otherwise directs, a reference shall be proceeded with at the day and time fixed; and so de die in diem, without interruption, and without a fresh warrant; and when an adjournment is ordered, the Master shall note in his book the time and reason thereof. Con. Rule 52.

Taken from Chy. O. 213, 214.

The Master may proceed with a reference in vacation, and make his report: Marples v. Roscbrugh, 17 P. R. 104.

"It is the bounden duty of the Masters to observe these Orders to the letter, wherever it is not absolutely impracticable to follow them literally," per Spragge, C.; Falls v. Powell, 20 Gr. at p. 468.

The proceedings on the reference should be from time to time recorded in the Master's book referred to in this Rule; see Rule 681. All consents or undertakings should be duly entered therein, and signed by the parties to prevent misunderstandings: see Rule 681; Beaudry v. Gallien, 5 O. L. R. 73.

665. Upon the return of a warrant to consider, or upon the bringing in of the reference where the warrant is dispensed with, the Master shall fix a time at which to proceed with the reference and shall give any special directions he thinks fit as to:—

(a) The parties who are to attend on the several accounts and inquires;

(b) The time at which, or within which, each proceeding is to be taken;

(c) The mode in which any accounts referred to him are to be taken or vouched;

(d) The evidence to be adduced in support thereof;

(e) The manner in which each of the accounts and inquiries ^{Rule 666.} is to be prosecuted;

And such directions may be afterwards varied or added to, as may be found necessary. Con. Rule 55.

Where a judgment is manifestly erroneous, the Master may pro-Where perly refuse to proceed upon it until it has been corrected: Sucainson judgment v. Bartley, 18 C. L. J. 15; and see Commercial Bank v. Graham, 4 erroneous, Master Gr. 419; Mitchell v. Strathy, 28 Gr. 80; Adamson v. Adamson, Ib., at p. 224; but the mistake must be very obvious to warrant the Master to proceed on it. at may refuse to proceed on it.

Formerly a warrant to consider a judgment, or order, only required Warrant to one day's service: see Sutherland v. Rogers, 2 Chy. Ch. at p. 192; consider. other warrants required two clear days' service: Ib.; except warrants to settle report, which required four days' service: see Rule 687, note. The present Rules make no express provision as to Master's warrants.

The warrant must be underwritten so as to explain clearly what proceedings are to be taken under it: Denison v. Denison, 3 Chy. Ch. 349.

In any cause, or matter, for the administration of the estate of a who to deceased person, no person, other than the personal representative, appear on is, except by the leave of the Master, entitled to appear on the creditors' claim of any person not a party to the cause, against the estate of claims against the deceased, in respect of any debt or liability. The Master may estate. direct any person to appear, either in addition to, or in the place of, the personal representative, upon such terms as to costs and otherwise as may seem proper: see Rule 204.

As to mode of taking and verifying accounts generally: see Rules 674-679, 683; and as to taking accounts of creditors' claims against the estate of a deceased person: see Rules 703-715.

The ruling of the Master is not conclusive, and the Court may on appeal give a party leave to attend proceedings whom the Master has excluded: Davis v. Combermere, 9 Jur. 76. But it would seem that any objection to the Master's ruling should be brought up by way of appeal, and not as a substantive motion.

666. To enable the Master to exercise all or any of the No state- ment in powers conferred upon him by, or to take the accounts and pleadings, or evidence make the inquiries referred to in, the following Rules. it at trial necessary to shall not be necessary that any of the matters therein enable Master to mentioned shall have been stated in the pleadings, or that exercise his powers the evidence thereof shall have been given before the judgment or order of reference, or that the judgment or order shall contain any specific direction in respect thereof. Con. Rule 56.

Taken from Chy. O. 219. See Sculthorpe v. Burn, 12 Gr. 427.

This Rule enables the Master to take an account with rests, and to charge the accounting party for rents, and profits, which might have been received, but for wilful neglect and default, and to set an occupation rent in any case referred to him: although there be Rule 667. nothing in the pleadings: McLennan v. Heward, 9 Gr. at pp. 178, and 187; and though no evidence may have been given as to any such matters at the trial.

It was formerly held that under a common administration order obtained on motion without bill, by any person but the personal representative himself, there could be no inquiry as to wilful neglect, or default: Harrison v. McGlashan, 7 Gr. 332. But where the order was obtained by the personal representative himself, such an inquiry might be made: Ledgerwood v. Ledgerwood, 7 Gr. 584.

Inquiry as to neglect and default etc., can now be made without special direction.

The case of Carpenter v. Wood, 10 Gr. 354, though not referring to Harrison v. McGlashan, is said in effect to have overruled it; and the practice was stated by Boyd, C., to be now settled that under Chy. Orders 219, 220 (Rules 666, 667), the inquiry as to wilful neglect and default, may be made in all cases under the common administration order: Ke Allan, 9 P. R. 277.

If the Master refuses to exercise the power to take the accounts in the manner mentioned in Rule 667, his ruling will be appealable; but it has been said to be more proper to bring the question up on further directions: see Stewart v. Leys, 1 Ont. 375.

Where the judgment gives further relief than claimed by the pleadings, it has been held that the judgment is not to be construed by reference to the pleadings if it is unambiguous: Smith v. Gohdie, 11 P. R. 24.

Powers of Master to take accounts with rests

667. Under a judgment or order of reference, the Master shall have power:

To inquire as to wilful neglect and default.

To set occupation rent.
To allow for improvements.

To make just allowances.

To report special circumstances, and to inquire as to all matters relating to accounts.

(a) To take the accounts with rests or otherwise;

(b) To take account of rents and profits received or which, but for wilful neglect or default, might have been received;

(c) To set occupation rent;

(d) To take into account necessary repairs, and lasting improvements, and costs and other expenses properly incurred otherwise, or claimed to be so;

(e) To make all just allowances;

(f) To report special circumstances;

(g) And generally, in taking the accounts, to inquire, adjudge, and report as to all matters relating thereto, as fully as if the same had been specifically referred. Con. Rule 57.

Taken from Chy. O. 220.

Interest.—The Master has power to allow interest against an accounting party, though not expressly directed so to do by the judgment or order under which the account is taken: Earle v. Barland, 5 O. L. R. 327; and it is immaterial that the accounting party is merely a co-constructive trustee: Id. Interest is not chargeable, however, as a matter of course against an accounting party: Phillips v.

Homfray, 44 Ch. D. 694; 39 W. R. 45; 62 L. T. 897; London, Chat-Rule 667.
ham & D. Ry. Co. v. South Eastern Ry. Co., 1893, A. C. 420; and see the Act, ss. 113-116 and notes, supra, p. 159.

Taking the Account with rests:—

Taking an account with "rests" means, either that the accounting party is charged with compound interest on the amount found due from him; or that the surplus income remaining after satisfying the interest due to him, is applied at certain periods in reduction of the principal. The amalgamation of principal and interest, or the application of income to pay off the principal, may take place yearly, half-yearly; or at other times more or less frequently, and these periods are termed "rests." In Robinson v. Cumming, 2 Atk. 410, Lord Hardwicke said rests were only ordered in accounts of realty, and not of personalty, but this is no longer the rule. When the Master declines to take an account with rests, if it is intended to appeal from his decision, he should be required to report the facts, so as to enable the Court to judge of the propriety of his decision: Sievwright v. Lays, 1 Ont. 375; but it has been said that the preferable method is to bring the question up on further directions: Ib., sed quare.

Rests, as against Executors and Trustees.—In taking accounts against an executor, or trustee, he is to be charged "with what he ought to have made, with what he actually did make, or with what he must be presumed to have made": per Esten, V.C., Smith v. Roe, 11 Gr. 312. The principle on which the Court proceeds in charging an executor, or trustee, with interest, is that of restoring to the cestui que trust his own, and of fairly compensating him for loss directly attributable to the neglect, or breach of duty, by the trustee; and on the other hand, that of withdrawing from the trustee any advantage he has appropriated by abusing his position: per Moss, C.J., Inglis v. Beatty, 2 Ont. App. at p. 490. It is not that of punishment to the executor, or trustee: Attorney-General v. Alford, 4 D. M. & G. 843; Burdick v. Garrick, L. R. 5 Chy. 233; Vyse v. Foster, L. R. 8 Chy. 309; L. R. 7 H. L. 318. Compound interest may in some cases be a convenient mode of making this compensation, but in other cases it may be oppressive, and sound more as punishment than compensation, and therefore in such cases it ought not to be charged: see Fidler v. O'Hara, 14 Gr. 223.

In England the amount of interest with which an executor, or trustee is charged, depends on the circumstances: (1) When he is guilty of mere neglect, and gets no personal benefit, he is charged with simple interest at 4 per cent.: Forbes v. Ross, 2 Cox, 116; Rocke v. Harte, 11 Ves. 58; Robinson v. Robinson, 1 D. M. & G. 247; Tebbs v. Carpenter, 1 Mad. 290; Mousley v. Carr, 4 Beav. 49; Attorney-General v. Alford, 4 D. M. & G. 843; or 3 per cent. compounded: In re Barclay, 1899, 1 Ch. 674; or with the interest he should have received with half-yearly rests: Gilroy v. Stephen, 45 L. T. 761. (2) Where he is guilty of a positive breach of trust, or has employed trust money for his own benefit, he is charged with 5 per cent.: or, at the option of the beneficiary, with the profit actually made: Jones v. Foxall, 15 Beav. 388. The neglect to comply with a specific direction for investment, has been held to be such a positive breach of trust: Crackelt v. Bethune, 1 J. & W. 586; Berwick v. Murray, 7 D. M. & G. 519; Mosley v. Ward, 11 Ves. 581; and where the trust directed accumulation, the accounts have been taken with rests: Raphael v. Rochm., 11 Ves. 92; Knott v. Cotter, 16 Beav. 77; Jones v. Foxall, 15 Beav. 388; Re Barclay, 1899, 1 Ch. 674; and Rule 667. where a breach of trust, and the employment of the trust fund for his own benefit, in trade, or speculation, concur, whether there be any direction for accumulation or investment or not, the trustee is charged with 5 per cent., sometimes with: Burdick v. Garrick, L. R. 5 Chy. 233; and sometimes without rests, or in the option of the beneficiary with the profits actually realized from the fund: Flocton v. Bunning, L. R. 8 Chy. 323; Saltmarsh v. Barrett, 31 Beav. 349; Docker v. Somes, 2 My. & K. 655; Heathcote v. Hulme, 1 J. & W. 122; Sutton v. Sharpe, 1 Russ. 146; Robinson v. Robinson, 1 D. M. & G. 247; Re Davis, 1902, 1 Ch. 314; 86 L. T. 523. In Walker v. Woodward, 1 Russ. 107, annual rests were ordered, but this was said to have been obtained by surprise: see Attorney-General v. Solly, 2 Sim. 518. In Jones v. Fozall, 15 Beav. 388; Williams v. Powell, 15 Beav. 461; Heighington v. Grant, 1 Ph. 600; rests were ordered. In Docker v. Somes, 2 My. & K. 655; Palmer v. Mitchell, 2 My. & K. 672; Macdonald v. Richardson, 1 Giff. 81; accounts of profits arising from employment of trust funds in trade were ordered; and see Crawshay v. Collins, 15 Ves. 218; 1 J. & W. 267; 2 Russ. 325; Witlett v. Blunford, 1 Ha. 233; Wedderburn v. Wedderburn, 22 Beav. 84. Where a trustee raised money on the security of the trust estate in conjunction with his own property, he is bound to account to his cestui que trust for a proportionate part of the money so raised: Roche-foucauld v. Boustead, 1898, 1 Ch. 550. The paying in money to the general account of a firm of solicitors, of which the trustee was a partner, was held not to be a using of the money in his own business, so as to render him liable for compound interest: Burdick v. Garrick, L. R. 5 Chy. 233. Where an infant is interested, an inquiry will be directed whether it is for his advantage to take interest, or profits: Burden v. Burden, cited in Heathcote v. Hulme, 1 J. & W. 134-5. No special direction seems to be necessary to authorize the Master to make that inquiry in Ontario.

Where, however, trustees have improperly dealt with a trust fund but have invested it in such a way as to yield much larger profits than could have been obtained had it been dealt with strictly according to the trust, the cestui que trust are not at liberty to take the benefit of the investments and at the same time hold the trustees liable as for breach of duty; if they reprobate the transaction, they must account for the extraordinary profits they have received: see Smith v. Nelson, 92 L. T. 313.

Rule in Ontario as to rate of interest.

In this Province prior to the repeal of the usury laws, the rule was to charge interest at the rate of 6 per cent., and where according to the English cases a higher rate of interest than 4 per cent. would be charged, to take the account with half-yearly rests: see Landman v. Crooks, 4 Gr. 353; Small v. Eccles, 12 Gr. at p. 40. Since the abolition of the usury laws, an accounting party chargeable according to the English cases with more than 4 per cent., may now be charged, either with a higher rate of interest than the legal rate, according to the value of money, as was done in Wightman v. Hellwell, 13 Gr. 330 (where an executor was charged with 8 per cent. simple interest); or it would seem he may be charged with compound interest at the legal rate: Wiard v. Gable, 8 Gr. 458; Erskine v. Campbell, 1 Gr. 570; or even at a higher rate if the money has been used in trade: Wightman v. Hellwell, 13 Gr. at p. 343; Small v. Eccles, 12 Gr. 40, or, at the option of the cestui que trust, with the actual profits realized. Prior to 63 & 64 Vict. c. 29 (D.) which reduced the legal rate of interest to 5 per cent., a trustee who had kept no accounts, and made no attempt to keep the trust moneys separate from her own, was charged with interest at 6 per cent. on the Rule 667. yearly balances in her hands: Zimmerman v. Wilcox, 35 C. L. J. 688.

But where the trustee, or executor, has neglected to pay over sums Interest on in his hands to the parties entitled, he is chargeable with interest at sums the legal rate on such sums, no matter what the amount, from the neglected to time the payment ought to have been made: McLennan v. Howard, 9 over, Gr. at p. 190.

Where from the circumstances of the estate the executors are not justified in making permanent investments, they will be charged only with the interest actually received while the money is on deposit: see Re McIntyre, McIntyre v. London, &c., 7 O. L. R. 548.

In re Honsberger v. Kratz, 10 Ont. 521; 21 C. L. J. 400, Boyd, C., laid down the rule on which executors and trustees should be charged with interest, as follows:—(1) An executor or trustee who negligently retains funds in his hands which he should have paid over, or made productive for the estate, is to be charged with simple interest thereon at 6 per cent. (2) An executor or trustee who in violation of his trust has used the money for his own purposes (though not in trade or speculation), is to be charged at such rate as is the then current value of money. (3) An executor or trustee who makes a gain out of the trust by embarking the money in speculation or trading adventures, is to be charged either with the profits or compound interest. Since this rule was laid down the legal rate of interest has been reduced to five per cent.: 63 & 64 Vict. c. 29 (1.); and in the last case not more than 5 per cent. would now be chargeable except in case of liabilities existing at or prior to 7th July, 1900, to which the old rate of 6 per cent. would apply. Where under the third case mentioned a trustee is charged with profits, it is not the course of the Court to charge him also with interest on such profits: Silkstone & H. M. Co. v. Eddy, 1900, 1 Ch. 167.

Where the executor, or trustee, retains trust money in his hands, Where re- under a bonâ fide, though mistaken, belief that it is his own, he may tained un- be exonerated altogether from payment of interest: Brucere v. Pem- der bonâ bertson, 12 Ves. 386; Davenport v. Stafford, 14 Beav. 319; or he may fide belief be ordered to pay simple interest: Inglis v. Beatty, 2 Ont. App. 453; ship. and where there has been great delay on the part of the cestui que trust in making claim to the trust fund: Broune v. Cross, 14 Beav. Neglect of 145, provided such delay can be said to amount to acquiescence: c. q. t. to The Life Assurance Co. v. Siddal, 3 De G. F. & J. 72; Blain v. demand Terryberry, 12 Gr. 221, the trustee or executor may be relieved from payment. Neglect of paying interest thereon: but see Boys' Home v. Lewis, 4 Ont. 18. trustee to invest.

A direction to invest a trust fund for infants, is not properly executed by the deposit of the money in a savings bank at 3½ per cent. interest, even though made with the consent of the statutory guardian of the infant c. q. t.; and the trustees are liable for interest at the legal rate: Spratt v. Wilson, 19 Ont. 28.

An executor who paid over money under what proved to be a mistaken construction of his testator's will, was held nevertheless bound to pay interest thereon to the parties properly entitled; but not to a person who had acquiesced in the misapplication of the fund: In re Hulkes, Powell v. Hulkes, 33 Ch. D. 552; 55 L. T. 209; and see In re Deane, Bridger v. Deane, 42 Ch. D. 9.

A trust to invest in "public securities," is violated by investing in municipal debentures: Ewart v. Gordon, 13 Gr. 40; but as to debentures in which trustees may invest, see R. S. O. c. 130; and a direction to carry on a business will not justify an executor in embarking more capital in it: Smith v. Smith, 13 Gr. 81.

Rule 687.

Executors lending money to themselves.

Where trustees, or executors, lend money to themselves at a lower rate than could have been obtained by investing it according to the trust, they will be chargeable with the higher rate, but not with rests: Smith v. Roc, 11 Gr. 311, at p. 315; and see Forbes v. Ross, 2 Cox. 116.

In cases of simple neglect to invest, the Master is not justified in charging interest against the trustee until the balance amounts to a sum sufficient for an ordinary investment. $400 was considered a reasonable sum for this purpose: McLennan v. Heward, 9 Gr. 178; and see Re Jones, 49 L. T. 91; Re McIntyre, supra, p. 875.

Or not investing as directed.

But where a trustee is authorized to invest in either of two specified modes, and by mistake invests in neither, the measure of his liability is the loss arising from his not having invested in the less beneficial of the authorized modes. Thus where a trustee was authorized to invest in Government securities, or mortgages, and he invested in bank stocks, which proved a loss: he was charged with what would have been obtained had the investment been made in Government securities, although a larger rate of interest could have been obtained on mortgages: Paterson v. Lailey, 18 Gr. 13; and see Cameron v. Bethune, 15 Gr. 486; and see Re Gabouric, 13 Ont. 635.

Nor is an executor, or trustee, liable for neglect in not calling in investments made by the testator, in order to invest at a higher rate of interest, although authorized so to do: Smith v. Roc, 11 Gr. 311. Where a trust company was appointed executor of an estate and took over certain securities of the estate, and without giving any security or covenant, paid interest at a lesser rate than that received from the securities, to the beneficiaries, on the ground that they had "guaranteed" the payment of interest on the fund, it was held that the transaction could not be supported and that the company was accountable for the interest actually received: Hiddings v. De Villiers, 12 App. Cas. 107, 624; 57 L. T. 886.

An administratrix who allowed the moneys of the estate in her hands to be used by her husband, was charged with simple interest at the legal rate: it not being shewn that the money had been used in trade, or that any larger sum had been realized: Fidler v. O'Hara, 14 Gr. 223; and see Zimmerman v. Wilcox, 35 C. L. J. 688. Where a trustee mixes the trust fund with his own money in his bank account he cannot attribute investments made out of the common fund, to his private account, until he has fully restored the trust fund, and his c. q. t. is entitled to the benefit of all such investments: In re Oatway, 1903, 2 Ch. 356.

No interest on sums charged to executor, he has not actually received.

Where an executor, or trustee, has properly deposited the trust fund for safe keeping, or not unreasonably kept it in his hands unemployed, he may be relieved from payment of interest, except such as he has actually received; but if he has not kept it apart from his own moneys, or has used it, he will be liable for interest on it: Beaton v. Boomer, 2 Chy. Ch. 89; Re McIntyre, supra, p. 875.

An executor, or trustee, charged with principal sums which have never come to his hands, but which have been lost by his neglect, is not always chargeable with interest thereon as well: Vanston v. Thompson, 10 Gr. 542; Re Shaw, 15 Gr. 626; Re Crowter, Crowter v. Hinsmann, 10 Ont. 159; unless his neglect or default amounts to acquiescence in the spoliation of the estate: Sovereign v. Sovereign, 15 Gr. 559; Cudney v. Cudney, 21 Gr. 153; Archer v. Severn, 13 Ont. 316.

The commencement of a suit does not stop interest running: Mc-Rule 667.
Lennan v. Heward, 9 Gr. 178; McMillan v. McMillan, 21 Gr. 369; but see Blogg v. Johnston, L. R. 2 Chy. 225.

As against executors, interest should not ordinarily be charged, until after the lapse of a year from the testator's death.

Where a trustee or executor has made advances to the trust estate, he may be allowed simple interest on the balances of principal due to him from year to year, but not compound interest: Finch v. Prescott, L. R. 17 Eq. 554.

Principal and Agent.—An agent who had used moneys of his prin-Principal cipal, with his consent, was only charged simple interest: McLennan and agent.
v. Heward, 9 Gr. 178; and where the state of accounts could not be ascertained until they had been taken by the Court, interest on the balance was charged only from the date of the Master's certificate:
Turner v. Burkinshaw, L. R. 2 Chy. 488; and see Blogg v. Johnston
Ib., 225.

Where the principal was found indebted to the agent, interest on the balance was allowed from the filing of the declaration in the action by the agent to recover the amount: Ridley v. Sexton, 19 Gr. 146.

Legatees.—Interest on legacies runs from the end of a year from Legatees.
 the death of the testator, in the absence of any express direction in the will to the contrary: see Smith v. Seaton, 17 Gr. 397; even though the income of the whole estate be bequeathed to another for life: Toomey v. Tracey, 4 Ont. 708; and see Re Olive, Olive v.
Westerman, 50 L. T. 355; but this rule does not apply to sums appointed by will, under a power; as to such sums, interest runs from the death of the testator: Dodds v. Graham, 20 Gr. 258. But no interest can usually be recovered on arrears of annuities, bequeathed by will: Goldsmith v. Goldsmith, 17 Gr. 213; Crone v. Crone, 27
 Gr. 425; and see Snarr v. Badenach, 10 Ont. 131; 21 C. L. J. 401; nor on annuities granted to secure a loan, as against land on which the annuity is charged, even though judgment may have been recovered therefor: Beamish v. Farwer, Ir. R. 1 Eq. 466; and see Ashburner
v. Maguire, 2 W. & T. L. Cas. 317.

Legacies by persons in loco parentis to infant legatees, where there is no other provision for maintenance of the legatees, will bear interest from the death of the testator: In re McIntyre, 9 O. L. R. 408.

Where a legacy is vested in trustees upon an express trust, more than six years' arrears of interest are recoverable: Loring v. Loring, 12 Gr. 374.

Where, by mistake, a legatee has been paid by an executor before his legacy was due, he cannot be required to give credit as against subsequently accruing instalments of his legacy, for interest on the payments made before they were due: Barber v. Clark, 20 Ont. 522; 18 A. R. 435.

A legatee receiving more than his share may be ordered to refund, with interest: Davidson v. Bowmer, 17 Gr. 509; Uffner v. Lewis, 5 O.
 L. R. 684; but see Re Horne, 1905, 1 Ch. 76, where a trustee, who was himself a beneficiary, having in a distribution paid himself too little, his executors were held not entitled to compel other beneficiaries to refund, nor to impond accruing income to make an equalization.

Rule 667. Where there is a deficiency of assets to meet an annuity given by a testator or other person, the annuitant is entitled to have his annuity valued, and the value paid to him, where there is no gift over of the corpus of the fund after the death of the annuitant: In re Sinclair, 1897, 1 Ch. 921.

Creditors.—As to creditors overpaid their proportion of the assets and ordered to refund, see Chamberlen v. Clarke, 1 Ont. 135; 9 Ont. App. 273; Uffner v. Lewis, 3 O. L. R. 208; sed vide, S. C., 5 O. L. R. 684.

Policies of insurance. Policies of Insurance.—Interest does not begin to run until the party claiming is in position to give a full discharge: Toronto Savings Bank v. Canada Life, 14 Gr. 300; and see Matthew v. Northern Ass. Co., 9 Ch. D. 80.

Partnership accounts. Partnership Accounts.—In the absence of any agreement to the contrary, advances of capital made by a partner do not bear interest: Hill v. King, 9 Jur. N. S. 527; 3 D. J. & S. 418; Cooke v. Benbow, 3 De G. J. & S. 1; Sterens v. Cook, 5 Jur. N. S. 1415; but see Millar v. Craig, 6 Beav. 433. This applies not only to the original capital put in, but also to subsequent advances made by a partner on capital account: Jardine v. Hope, 19 Gr. 76.

No interest allowed on capital. Neither is interest chargeable on capital agreed to be advanced by a partner, but not advanced by him: Wilson v. McCarthy, 13 C. L. J. 303; Rishton v. Grissell, L. R. 5 Eq. 326.

As to temporary loans.—quere. As to advances in the way of temporary loans there seems to be no settled rule. In Cook v. Benbow, supra, Turner, L.J., thought interest should not be allowed; and see De Hertel v. Supple, 14 Gr. 421. But in Ex parte Chippendale, 4 D. M. & G. 36, Knight Bruce, L.J., was of the contrary opinion; and see Re German Mining Co., 17 Jur. 745, 747; Pim v. Harris, 10 L. R. Ir. Eq. 442.

Interest allowed on sums in the hands of a partner, or not accounted for. Interest is chargeable on sums in the hands of a partner, and not accounted for: Hutcheson v. Smith, 5 Ir. Eq. 117; or improperly applied: Evans v. Coventry, 8 D. M. & G. 835. But a partner in possession of partnership property is not obliged to account on the footing of wilful default: Rowe v. Wood, 2 J. & W. 556; Davidson v. Thirkell, 3 Gr. 330, at pp. 347-8.

No interest on capital withdrawn, or profits. Interest is not chargeable on withdrawal of capital, unless fraudulent or improper: Cooke v. Benbow, supra; Meymott v. Meymott, 31 Beav. 445; nor on withdrawn profits: Dinham v. Bradford, L. R. 5 Chy. 519.

Interest payable on capital where stopped by dissolution. Where capital carries interest during the continuance of a partnership, it does not do so after a dissolution: Watney v. Wells, L. R. 2 Chy. 250; Rhodes v. Rhodes, John. 653; although the business is carried on for the purposes of a sale: Watney v. Wells, supra; unless where the capital is treated as a debt: Wood v. Scoles, L. R. 1 Chy. 369; Barfield v. Loughborough, L. R. 8 Chy. 1; or in the case of a sleeping partner: Parsons v. Hayward, 4 D. F. & J. 414.

Interest when it runs. After the Master's report, simple interest at the legal rate runs on the amount found due: Bonville v. Bonville, 35 Beav. 129; Brereton v. Yorke, 46 L. T. 289.

Losses how borne. Losses resulting from investments of partnerships moneys, are to be borne by the partners, in the same proportions as they are entitled to share in the profits of the partnership business: Storm v. Cumberland, 18 Gr. 245.

Mortgagees in Possession.—Where a mortgagee in possession, has in Rule 667, that character received rents and profits, or is chargeable with an occupation rent, in excess of the interest due, the Master may strike a balance periodically, and apply the surplus to the reduction of the principal; this is called taking the account with rests: Thornycroft v. Crockett, 2 H. L. C. 239; Wilson v. Cluer, 3 Beav. 136; Schofield v. Ingham, 1 C. P. Co. 477; Thompson v. Hudson, L. R. 10 Eq. 407; and see Fisher on Mortgages, 5th ed., sec. 1793, et seq. And where a mortgagee, after having been paid in full, has continued in possession, he may be charged with compound interest on his receipts: Wilson v. Metcalfe, 1 Russ. 530; Lloyd v. Jones, 12 Sim. 490; Ashworth v. Lord, 36 Ch. D. 545; 58 L. T. 18.

In Coldwell v. Hall, 9 Gr. 110, VanKoughnet, C., stated it to be the settled practice of the Court, "that when a mortgagee enters, his money being in arrear, he is not liable to account for the rents received by or chargeable against him, with rests, until he is paid off in full." And see Wilson v. Cluer, 3 Beav. 136; Wilson v. Metcalfe, 1 Russ. 530; Paul v. Johnson, 12 Gr. at p. 482; Davis v. May, 19 Ves. 384; Finch v. Broico, 3 Beav. 70; Latter v. Dashwood, 6 Sim. 462. But if he enters when nothing is in arrear, it seems the account may be taken with rests from the beginning of the possession: Nelson v. Booth, 3 D. & J. 119.

But the mere fact of nothing being due when possession is taken, is not conclusive as to the right to have the account taken with rests; every attendant circumstance must be regarded: Horlock v. Smith, 1 Coll. 287. Thus a mortgagee who has taken possession of leaseholds to prevent a forfeiture is not liable so to account, though nothing was in arrear when he entered: Patch v. Wild, 30 Beav. 90; and see Gordon v. Eakins, 16 Gr. 363.

If a mortgagee holds bills, or notes, for arrears when he enters, he is nevertheless not liable to account with rests, if they are dishonoured: Dobson v. Land, 4 D. & S. 575.

Rests may be made when a mortgagee in possession sets up an unfounded claim to the equity of redemption, or resists the mortgagor's right to redeem; or when overpaid, has denied that his mortgage was satisfied: Incorporated Society v. Richards, 2 Dr. & W. 258; Crippen v. Ogilvie, 15 Gr. 569; Montgomery v. Colland, 14 Sim. 79.

Where the mortgagee is in occupation and is charged with an occupation rent more than sufficient to pay the interest, the account may be taken with rests, if the mortgage debt was not in arrear when he entered, subject to the qualifications above mentioned, from the time he entered, or, if then in arrear, then from the time he was paid in full: Wilson v. Metcalfe, 1 Russ. 530; Binnington v. Harwood, T. & R. 477; Coldwell v. Hall, 9 Gr. 110; where the account is taken with rests, it would seem that the proper time for making the rests is at the time of each payment of rent, whenever the payment exceeds the interest then in arrear.

The mere fact that a mortgagee resides with the owner of the equity of redemption on the mortgaged property, does not render him liable to account as a mortgagee in actual occupation: Paul v. Johnson, 12 Gr. 474.

A person entering as a bonâ fide purchaser from a mortgagee is not liable to account as a mortgagee in possession, in the event of his purchase being held invalid: Parkinson v. Haubury, L. R. 2 H. L. 1; Carroll v. Robertson, 15 Gr. 173. But a mortgagee who entered Rule 667. claiming to have purchased the equity of redemption, but who was held to be still redeemable, was ordered to account with rests: Atcheson v. Coombs, 6 Gr. 643; this point is not noticed in the report, but see the decree, D. B. 4, fo. 570; but see Parkinson v. Hanbury, supra.

The mere giving of notice by a mortgagee to his mortgagor's tenant to pay his rent to the mortgagee, does not, unless the tenant attorns and pays his rent to the mortgagee, create any tenancy between the tenant and the mortgagee; the mere fact that he continues in possession after the notice is not enough: Towerson v. Jackson, 1891, 2 Q. B. 484; 65 L. T. 332.

A mortgagee who has sold under a power of sale and retains the surplus in his hands is liable to pay interest on it to the party entitled, (unless there are circumstances which render it unjust, but mere non-claim even for four years is not such a circumstance: Elcy v. Read, 76 L. T. 39; Charles v. Jones, 35 Ch. D. 544; 56 L. R. 848.

No special direction now necessary

Prior to Chy. O. 220 (Rule 667), the account could not be taken against a mortgagee with rests, without an express direction in the decree to that effect: Webber v. Hunt, 1 Mad. 13. Under Rules 666, 667, no express direction in the judgment is necessary; but the Master of course cannot properly take the account with rests in cases where it would not under the former practice have been ordered by the Court.

Statute of Limitations

Statute of Limitations.—A mortgagee in occupation is liable to account for more than six years' occupation rent prior to the commencement of the action; the Statute of Limitations is no bar: Coldwell v. Hall, 9 Gr. 110; S. C., 7 U. C. L. J. 42; 8 U. C. L. J. 93.

Statute of Limitations, how far a bar to recovery of interest.

As against the person of the debtor, arrears of interest, or rent, payable under a covenant (except a covenant in a mortgage made on or after 1st July, 1894), accruing, or acknowledged in writing, or by part payment, to be due, at any time within twenty years of the commencement of the action, have been held recoverable, even though such interest, or rent, be charged upon, or payable out of land: R. S. O. c. 72, ss. 1, 9; Allan v. McTavish, 2 Ont. App. 278; and see Boice v. O'Loane, 3 Ont. App. 167; McMahon v. Spencer, 13 Ont. App. 439; but see contra, Sutton v. Sutton, 22 Ch. D. 511; 48 L. T. 95; Fearnside v. Flint, ib., 154; 22 Ch. D. 579, where it was held that the remedy on a collateral bond was barred, after the lapse of the time for bringing an action in respect of the land mortgaged by the principal security; and see Lewin v. Wilson, 9 S. C. R. 677; Re Powers, 30 Ch. D. 291; Kirkland v. Peatfield, 1903, 1 K. B. 756. In Macdonald v. Macdonald, 11 Ont. 187, Proudfoot, J., refused to follow Sutton v. Sutton, supra, on the ground that he was bound by the contrary decision of the Court of Appeal in Allan v. McTavish, supra; and in McDonald v. Elliott, 12 Ont. 98; 22 C. L. J. 220; but see Trimble v. Hill, 5 App. Cas. 342, and per Osler, J.A., 13 Ont. App. 434; and per Burton, J.A., 14 Ont. App. 256.

In the case of mortgages made on or after 1st July, 1894, the period will be 10 years: R. S. O. c. 72, s. 1 (1, h).

Although no more than six years' arrears of interest accrued prior to action can be recovered in an action for foreclosure or sale, the rule is different in redemption actions; in such actions if the mortgagor is personally liable on a covenant or otherwise for payment of the debt, he will not be allowed to redeem except on payment of all arrears for which he is liable: Dingle v. Coppin, 1891, 1 Ch. 729; Rule 667, 79 L. T. 603; but where he is not personally liable for payment of the mortgage debt, only six years arrears are recoverable: McMicking v. Gibbons, 24 Ont. App. 586.

As against land, no arrears of rent, or interest, in respect of any sum of money charged upon, or payable out of, any land, or rent, or in respect of any legacy charged upon land, can be recovered but within six years after the same shall have respectively become due, or next after any acknowledgment of the same, in writing, has been given to the person entitled thereto or his agent, signed by the person by whom the same was payable, or his agent: R. S. O. c. 133, s. 17; but a bond given by third parties as sureties for a mortgage debt was held not to be barred under R. S. O. c. 133, s. 17: see Re Poirers, 30 Ch. D. 291; 53 L. T. 647. But where any prior mortgagee, or other incumbrancer, has been in possession of any land, or in receipt of the profits thereof, within one year next before an action is brought by any person entitled to a subsequent mortgage, or other incumbrance, on the same land, the person entitled to the subsequent mortgage, or incumbrance, may recover in such action the arrears of interest which have become due during the whole time that such prior mortgagee, or incumbrancer, was in possession, or receipt, as aforesaid, although such time may have exceeded the time of six years: see R. S. O. c. 133, s. 18.

An acknowledgment by one of two executors against the will of the other, is not sufficient in England to bind the land: see Astbury v. Astbury, 1898, 2 Ch. 111; but see R. S. O. c. 127, s. 4.

Payments.—Where a covenant for payment of a debt is given by a principal and surety, payments by the principal on account of the debt, which will prevent the Statute of Limitations from running in his favour, will also prevent the Statute from running in favour of the surety, though he be no party to the payments: In re Frisby, 43 Ch. D. 106; but see Paxton v. Smith, 18 Ont. 178.

And payments made by a vendor of the equity of redemption in pursuance of an agreement with his vendee, will prevent the Statute from running in favour of the vendee, though he be no party to the payments: Trust & Loan Co. v. Stevenson, 20 Ont. App. 66.

Partnership Accounts.—In England it has been held that the Statute of Limitations cannot be set up as a bar to an action for an account so long as a partnership continues: Retjean v. Retjean, 1895, 2 Ch. 471; 73 L. T. 2; The Poogola, 73 L. T. 512; but in Canada it has been held by the Supreme Court that the statute may be set up as between partners, or at all events that long delay may be evidence of acquiescence: Tooth v. Kittredge, 24 S. C. R. 287. Where the partnership has expired or been dissolved more than six years before action, the Statute of Limitations may be pleaded as a bar to the taking of partnership accounts: Nages v. Crawley, 10 Ch. D. 31; and see Storm v. Cumberland, 18 Gr. 245; Carroll v. Eccles, 17 Gr. 529; this latter decision, however, would seem to be qualified by Wright v. Morgan, infra, but see Rule 271.

Where a Master is directed to take an account, he should allow whatever interest is proper to be allowed up to the date of his report, as on the hearing on further directions, interest will not be allowed on the amount found due anterior to the date of the report: Phillips v. Hoofrey, 44 Ch. D. 694; 53 W. R. 191; 62 L. T. 897.

Rule 667.

Where the Statute of Limitations is intended to be relied on as a bar to the whole claim, it should be specially pleaded: Rule 271; but it would seem that it may be set up in the Master's office as a bar to part of the claim, without having been pleaded: Wright v. Morgan, 1 Ont. App. 613; Cuttonach v. Urquhart, 6 P. R. 28; where no claim for interest is made by the pleadings and there is no covenant, six years' arrears only are recoverable: Wilby v. Ledgard, 10 P. R. 182; 20 C. L. J. 142.

Wilful neglect and default; English rule regarding.

Wilful Neglect and Default.—Under the present English practice, the accounts cannot be taken on the footing of wilful default without a special direction in the judgment, or order, or reference; and where wilful default is not pleaded, no order can be made on the footing of wilful default, either at the trial, or at any subsequent time; but where wilful default has been alleged and a case made for it in the pleadings, an account may be directed on the footing of wilful default, either at the hearing or trial of the action, or at any subsequent stage: Re Symons, Lake v. Tonkin, 47 L. T. 484; Barber v. Mackrell, 12 Ch. D. 534; 41 L. T. 23, 201, where affidavits raising a case of fraud, were treated as pleadings; and see Joh v. Joh, 6 Ch. D. 562; Mayer v. Murray, 8 Ch. D. 424; Re Bowen, Bennett v. Bowen, 47 L. T. 114; 20 Ch. D. 538; Re Lancelay, 1899 1 Ch. 674.

Ontario rule.

In Ontario no statement in the pleadings is necessary, in order to authorize the Master to take accounts in any proper case, on the footing of wilful default: see Rule 666. Mortgagees in possession were always liable, as of course, to account on the footing of wilful neglect and default, and the effect of Rules 666, 667, is to place trustees, executors, and others, liable for wilful default, upon the same footing in this respect as mortgagees in possession. Clause 2 of Rule 667, applies in terms only to accounts of realty, but it has been held that under clause (g), the Master may inquire as to wilful neglect and default, in all cases referred to him without any special direction so to do: Carpenter v. Wood, 10 Gr. 354. Wherever wilful neglect and default is charged against an accounting party, the Master is to determine whether or not he is liable to account on that footing, and, if so, the amount that is due; he should not report the facts as "special circumstances": Walmesley v. Bull, 3 Chy. Ch. 344; and in his report he should distinguish between sums actually received, and those charged by reason of wilful default, in order to enable the Court to deal with the question of costs: Moodie v. Lesto, 12 Gr. 537.

Executors and trustees, when liable for wilful neglect and default.

Executors and Trustees.—The Master may make the inquiry, though no case of wilful neglect or default is averred in the pleadings, or proved at the trial: Carpenter v. Wood, 10 Gr. 354, and see Rule 666. Formerly it was thought that the inquiry could not be made under the common administration order obtained in Chambers: Harrison v. McGlashan, 7 Gr. 531; except when obtained by the personal representative himself: Ledgerwood v. Ledgerwood, ib., 584; but the practice is now settled that the inquiry may be made in every case, per Boyd, C., Re Allan, Pocock v. Allan, 9 P. R. 277; Sullivan v. Hartp, 9 P. R. 500.

Executors are not liable for loss of interest arising from their delay in taking out probate: the remedy of any person likely to suffer loss from any such delay is to cite the executor in the Surrogate Court: Re Stevens, 1897, 1 Ch. 422; 76 L. T. 18; 1898, 1 Ch. 162; 77 L. T. 508.

An executor improperly delaying to sell lands which, by the will are saleable for the payment of debts, in order to benefit himself, is liable to account for rents and profits: Emes v. Emes, 11 Gr. 325; and executors without authority intermeddling with, and assuming the management of, the realty, are liable to account as if duly empowered to act as trustees: Chisholm v. Barnard, 10 Gr. 479; but in such a case they are not entitled to any compensation for so doing: Dugg v. Dugg, 25 Gr. 542; see now R. S. O. c. 127, s. 4. Rule 667

But it is the duty of the Court in all cases where executors, or trustees, are concerned, to administer equity in such a manner that honest and respectable men shall not be deterred from accepting the office, and if there is a doubt, where men have acted honestly and bono fide in discharge of their duty, although they have made mistakes, the doubt should be determined in favour of the executor, or trustee: Re Owens, 47 L. T. 51; In re Spright, 22 Ch. D. 727; 18 L. T. 279; 9 App. Ca. 1; 50 L. T. 330. and trustees, liable to the benefit of doubt.

Where a person becomes beneficially entitled to a trust fund, which, prior to his interest vesting in possession, he has actively assented to being applied otherwise than according to the terms of the trust, neither he nor his representatives have any right to sue for the breach of trust: Erons v. Bengoo, 37 Ch. D. 329; 58 L. T. 700.

Where a testator expressed the fullest confidence in one of the trustees named in his will, and directed the other trustees to be guided by his views as to sale, disposal, and reinvestment, of his American securities, and declared that his trustees should not be responsible for any loss occasioned thereby, it was held that the co-trustees were not answerable to legatees for loss occasioned by unauthorized investments of their moneys, made by the trustee: Burritt v. Burritt, 29 Gr. 321. But as regards creditors it seems they might not be discharged: Doyle v. Blake, 2 Sch. & L. 239.

A trustee is liable for not taking proper steps to get the trust fund into his hands: Re Brogden, Billing v. Brogden, 38 Ch. D. 546; 59 L. T. 659; but see Tudball v. Medlicott, 59 L. T. 370; Zimmerman v. Wilcox, 35 C. L. J. 688.

While the Court will not require from executors, and trustees, any greater care than a prudent man ordinarily bestows on the management of his own property, yet it will require them to give full explanations of all their dealings, and of the causes why outstanding assets were not collected, or property of the estate has disappeared; and a trustee, or executor, who cannot account for the one or the other, will be chargeable with them: Chisholm v. Barnard, 10 Gr. 481; Zimmerman v. Wilcox, supra; a trustee is not liable for losses arising through the default of agents to whom he may have properly confided the management of the trust: Re Speight, 22 Ch. D. 727; and see Re Brier, 26 Ch. D. 238; even though the trustee is remunerated for his services: Johnson v. Palmer, 1893, 1 Ch. 71; nor for the default of a co-trustee who has been bono fide allowed to convert registered bonds into bonds payable to bearer for the purpose of facilitating a sale thereof, and who has taken advantage of the fact by converting the bonds to his own use: Re Gasquoin, 1894, 1 Ch. 410; 69 L. T. 822; 70 L. T. 196; nor for the money of the estate obtained by a co-trustee by fraud, to which he is no party: Re McLatchie, Preston v. Loeble, 30 Ont. 179; nor for losses arising from mere errors of judgment: Re Chapman, 1896, 2 Ch. 763; 75 L. T. 196; but he is for the loss occasioned by employing improper agents:

Rule 667. Ery v. Tapson, 28 Ch. D. 208; 51 L. T. 326; for negligently allowing the money of the estate to remain in the hands of proper agents; McCarter v. McCarter, 7 Ont. 243; Cann v. Cann, 51 L. T. 770; Re Mitchell, 52 L. T. 178; Deicar v. Brooke, 52 L. T. 489; for losses occasioned by neglecting to supervise the actions of agents, Loic v. Gemley, 18 S. C. R. 685; but not for moneys misappropriated by a co-executor: Re Crowter, 10 Ont. 159; Preston v. Leslie, supra; unless he has knowingly allowed them to remain in his co-executor's hands uninvested without making any effort to secure the fund from loss.

Executors have a fair discretion in taking or delaying legal proceedings against a debtor, and a delay in suing, even though causing a loss of the debt, is not necessarily such negligence as subjects them to any liability: Re Owens, 47 L. T. 61. In the absence of special circumstances, an executor is only liable for his own individual receipts, and not for those of his co-executors: Re Crowter, 10 Ont. 159; but he is liable for the receipts of any agent jointly employed by himself and his co-executor: Harrison v. Patterson, 11 Gr. 105.

Losses on investments

There is no fixed rule as to the relative proportion which losses made by trustees ought to bear to the value of the property. As a general rule more than two-thirds the value should not be advanced; but a trustee who, in the honest exercise of his discretion, lends a little more than two-thirds, is not liable in the event of the security proving insufficient: Re Godfrey, 23 Ch. D. 483; 48 L. T. 853; and see Re Pearson, 51 L. T. 692. Where trust funds are lost through improper investments, the trustees are all equally liable, and as a general rule one trustee who has merely passively assented to the breach of trust has no right to be indemnified by his co-trustee who has acted honestly in making an improper investment: Babin Hughes, 31 Ch. D. 390; 54 L. T. 188; Bacon v. Camphausen, 58 L. T. 511; but see Re Partington, 57 L. T. 654.

Depositing money in a bank at interest may be a breach of trust: see Perpetual Executors v. Swan, 1898, A. C. 763.

As to the amount with which a trustee is chargeable where the trust fund is lost through investment in proper but insufficient securities: see R. S. O. c. 130, s. 9.

Where a trustee who is also a beneficiary has consented to an improper investment, he cannot call upon his co-trustee to bear any portion of the loss which he, as a beneficiary, thereby sustains: Chillingworth v. Chambers, 73 L. T. 208.

To accept a valuation made on behalf of the borrower is improper: Walcott v. Lyons, 54 L. T. 780; and see Re Somerset, Somerset Poulet, 68 L. T. 613; 69 L. T. 744; 42 W. R. 145, where the solicitors for the mortgagees acted also for the mortgagor; as is also neglecting to obtain a formal valuation: Re Olive, 34 Ch. D. 70; 55 L. T. 83; Re Stuart, 1897, 2 Ch. 583; and see Re Partington, supra, where trustees were held liable for neglecting to give proper instructions to the valuers; and see Leopard v. Whiteley, 12 App. Cas. 727, 58 L. T. 93.

Executors cannot be charged with losses arising from their having carried out the express directions of their testator: Re Hart, 63 L. T. 645; and where they have so carried on a business of the deceased pursuant to the directions in his will, or even without such directions, but with the consent of his creditors, they are entitled to be deputed from the estate against any loss, and creditors, who claim have been thus contracted, are entitled to stand in the executors' place against the testator's estate: Dowse v. Gorton, 1891, 190; 64 L. T. 809; Re Brooke, 71 L. T. 398; but they are not, without express authority, justified in embarking more capital in such business: Smith v. Smith, 13 Gr. 81.

Trustees investing trust money on insufficient security in breach of trust, are not entitled to an option of taking the security, and the order for realizing the security need not contain any such option: Re Salmon, 42 Ch. D. 351; 62 L. T. 270, although, of course, if they pay up what is due to the trust they are entitled to the benefit of the securities unrealized: see also Head v. Gould, 1898, 2 Ch. 250; 78 L. T. 739.

Where a sale by a trustee to himself is set aside as a breach of trust, he is liable to account for rents and profits received by him, but is not chargeable with interest thereon: Silkstone & H. M. Co. v. Edey, 1900, 1 Ch. 167.

The rule in Clapton's Case, 1 Mer. 572, applies as between two cestui que trustent, where money has been paid into the private bank account of the trustee: see Re Stanning, 1895, 2 Ch. 433; 73 L. T. 207.

Mortgagees.—A mortgagee in possession is bound to account, as of course, for what he has, or but for his wilful default might, or ought to have received: Chaplin v. Young, 33 Beav. 330; Parkinson v. Hanbury, L. R. 2 H. L. 1; Hughes v. Williams, 12 Ves. 493; Kennington v. Bouverie, 7 D. M. & G. 134; Quarrel v. Beckford, 1 Mad. 274. But he is not liable for more than he has actually received, unless it is clearly proved that he knew a greater rent might and could have been obtained, and that he refused or neglected to obtain it: McCrann v. Cronk, 21 Gr. 60; Coldwell v. Hall, 9 Gr. 110, 114; Metcalfe v. Campion, 1 Moll. 238; Hughes v. Williams, 12 Ves. 493; Brandon v. Brandon, 10 W. R. 287; Cocks v. Gray, 1 Giff. 77.

A mortgagee not in possession is not chargeable with rent which a tenant of the mortgagor had promised to pay him, but did not receive: Waddell v. McColl, 14 Gr. 211.

A mortgagee in possession who lets the mortgaged premises subject to a proviso that the lessee shall buy goods from him, is bound to account for the rent that could have been obtained for the premises without such a restriction as to trade, but he is not bound to account for the profits so made: White v. City of London Brewery Company, 39 Ch. D. 559; 60 L. T. 19; affirmed, 42 Ch. D. 237; 61 L. T. 741.

Where a mortgagee takes possession at a rent agreed on between him and the mortgagor, he is only liable to account to the mortgagor on the footing of the agreement, but such agreement is not binding on any subsequent incumbrancer, and as to him the Master may charge the mortgagee with a fair occupation rent, though it exceeds the amount agreed to by the mortgagor: Court v. Holland, 29 Gr. 10, and see Gilmour v. Roe, 21 Gr. 284; Gregg v. Arrott, Ll. & Co., temp. Sugd. 246.

But where a mortgagor agreed with a mortgagee in possession that the rents and profits should be applied in payment of the mortgagor's indebtedness for goods purchased from the mortgagee, it was held that a subsequent incumbrancer had no right to insist that the rents and profits should be applied in reduction of the mortgage debt: Mitchell v. Saylor, 1 O. L. R. 458.

Rule 667.

Where a mortgagee directly or indirectly becomes the purchaser at a sale made by himself under a power of sale in his mortgage, the sale may be set aside, and he may be required to account as a mortgagee in possession: Farrar v. Farrar, Limited, 40 Ch. D. 395; 60 L. T. 121; Martinson v. Claris, 21 Ch. D. 857; 46 L. T. 882; Hudson v. Deans, 1893, 2 Ch. 647; 89 L. T. 92.

A bona fide sale by a mortgagee under a power to one of several mortgagors, without notifying the others of the intended sale, cannot be impeached by the latter: Kennedy v. Trafford, 1897, A. C. 180; 76 L. T. 427; and a bona fide sale to his own solicitor was upheld: Autt v. Easton, 1899, 1 Ch. 873; 1900, 1 Ch. 29; 80 L. T. 352; 81 L. T. 530.

Where a sale of part of the land has been made under a power of sale in the mortgage, the expenses of sale are to be deducted from the gross proceeds of sale, and the balance only to be brought into the account; and, without special direction, the mortgagor is not entitled to have a rest made in the account of rents and profits at the date of each sale: Ainsworth v. Hilding, 1905, 1 Ch. 435; 118 L. T. Jour. 293.

A mortgagee who concurs in a sale by a mortgagor, and permits the surplus of the purchase money to be paid to the mortgagor to the prejudice of the subsequent incumbrancers, is liable therefor to the latter: West London Commercial Bank v. Reliance Permanent Building Society, 20 Ch. D. 954; 53 L. T. 442.

A puisne mortgagee who has cut timber on mortgaged property is liable to account to the prior mortgagee for the proceeds, where the mortgaged land proves an insufficient security: McLeod v. Avey, 16 Ont. 365.

Vendor, after time fixed for completing, is liable to purchaser for rents and profits.

Vendor and Purchaser.—After the time fixed for completion of the contract, the vendor is liable for rents and profits, but usually only for those actually received: Howell v. Howell, 2 My. & Cr. 486, unless he allows the rent to fall in arrear, when he will be held accountable for the arrears. Acland v. Gausford, 2 Mad. 28; Watson v. Clapham, 1 J. & W. 36; formerly a special case must have been made at the hearing to entitle a purchaser to have the account taken on the footing of wilful default: Sherwin v. Shakespear, 5 D. M. & G. 517, 532; Phillips v. Sylvester, L. R. 8 Chy. 173. But this is no longer necessary in Ontario: see supra, p. 882. Where no time was named in the contract for delivery of possession, the purchaser was held entitled to the rents from the date of the contract: Brady v. Keenan, 6 P. R. 262; and see Dudley v. Berczy, 2 Chy. Ch. 364, as to the liability of a vendor in possession.

Interest on
money.

No more than six years' arrears of interest on purchase money can be recovered from a purchaser as a charge on the land, whether he has been in possession or not: Avey v. Mitchell, 21 Gr. 512; Gunn v. Trust & L. Co., before Boyd, C., 19th January, 1882; but in some cases where more than six years' arrears was recoverable against the estate of a deceased person, the excess beyond six years was allowed to avoid circuity of action: Carroll v. Robertson, 15 Gr. 173; Taylor v. Hargrave, 19 Gr. 271; Raiceen v. Bradburn, 22 Gr. 96; Waver v. Vandusee, 27 Gr. 181.

Builder liable for neglect and default.

Principal and Agent.—A builder at Common Law was liable to account for what he might have made of the lands, but for his wilful default: Seton, 770; Whitaker v. Horn, Willes 268; Co. Lit. 172 a; and an agent acting under a power of attorney is liable so to account, Rule 687, though the power be defective: Bradburn v. Shantly, 7 Gr. 560. But a solicitor who paid off a mortgage for a client, and entered into the receipt of rents, was not held to be liable on the footing of wilful default, his possession being that of his client: Ward v. Carttar, L. R. 1 Eq. 23.

Persons not Liable to Account for Wilful Default:—

Partners in possession of partnership property are not liable to Partners- account on the footing of wilful default: Davidson v. Thirkell, 3 Gr. 330, at p. 348; Rowe v. Wood, 2 J. & W. 556; but one partner may have a demand against another for compensation for negligence or fraud: Bury v. Allen, 1 Coll. 584; Douglas v. Stewart, 13 Gr. 337.

Tenants in Common who have received more than their share, Tenants in common though liable to account for the excess: Lorimer v. Lorimer, 5 Mad. 333; Turner v. Morgan, 8 Ves. 145, are not answerable for wilful default: Wheeler v. Horne, Willes, 208.

Tenants for Life.—A tenant for life may cut down timber in the Tenant's proper course of husbandry, in order to bring the proper proportion for life of land into cultivation, and perhaps destroy such timber, but he cannot cut down timber even for that purpose and sell it for his own benefit: Drake v. Wigle, 22 C. P. 341; Saunders v. Breakie, 5 Ont. 603; but he may sell it in order to buy with the proceeds more suitable timber for making necessary repairs to buildings on the premises: Hiron v. Revely, 9 O. L. R. 6.

He is not liable for permissive waste: Patterson v. Central Canada Lumber Co., 29 Ont. 134; nor for repairs: In re Freeman, 1898, 1 Ch. 28; and a legatee for life of leasehold premises is not liable on the covenants in the lease: Re Tomlinson, 1898, 1 Ch. 232.

Purchaser for Value evicted by a person having a better title, of Purchaser's which he is fixed with constructive notice, is not liable to account for value on the footing of wilful default: Hewell v. Hewell, 2 My. & Cr. 478.

Persons who have obtained Possession by Fraud, are not liable to Persons in account on the footing of wilful default: Murray v. Palmer, 2 Sch. possession by fraud & L. 474; Trevdyan v. Charter, 9 Beav. 140; 4 L. J. N. S. 209; 11 C. & F. 74.

Occupation Rent.—A person liable to account for rents and occupation profits may, generally, if he has been himself in actual occupation of rent, then the property in question, be charged with a fair rent for the time he chargeable, has so occupied—which account of rent is liable to be taken with rests, wherever rests would be charged if rents and profits had been received; but see Silkstone & H. M. Co. v. Eley, 1900, 1 Ch. 167.

Vendors.—A vendor who continues in occupation after the time As against vendors, fixed for completion may be charged with an occupation rent: Leggott v. Metropolitan Ry. Co., L. R. 5 Ch. 716; Dorr v. Hargrave, 10 Ves. 565; but not in cases where the purchaser could, and ought to have taken possession: Larkin v. Cape, 2 Ross. 170; nor where—the purchaser making default in payment—the vendor continues to carry on his business: Leggott v. Metropolitan Ry. Co., supra.

Purchasers.—Where a conveyance is set aside, an occupation rent purchaser's may be charged against a purchaser who has been in occupation: Rhodes v. Spith, L. R. 13 Eq. 427; Nelson v. Clarkson, 2 Ha. 163; but see Parkinson v. Hinchburn, L. R. 2 H. L. 1.

Rule 667.

Mortgagee,
liability of,
for
rent.

Mortgagees.—A mortgagee may be charged with an occupation rent if it be proved that he has actually occupied the mortgaged premises: Trulock v. Robey, 15 Sim. 265. Any agreement as to the amount of the rent made between mortgagor and mortgagee, though binding between them, is not binding on others interested in the equity of redemption who are not parties to it: Court v. Holland, 29 Gr. 19; Gregg v. Ariatt, L.R. 4 G. temp. Sugd. 246. And where rent is paid in advance to a prior mortgagee, and applied, with the consent of the mortgagor, in discharge of other liabilities than the mortgage debt, a subsequent assignee of the equity of redemption is entitled to have all rents accruing subsequent to the assignment applied in reduction of the prior mortgage, notwithstanding the payment and application in advance: Gilmour v. Roe, 21 Gr. 284. A mortgagee who continues in occupation after payment in full, is chargeable with interest on the occupation rent, with rests: Wilson v. Metcalfe, 1 Russ. 537; Quarrel v. Beckford, 1 Mad. 269; Lloyd v. Jones, 12 Sim. 491; Ashworth v. Lord, 36 Ch. 11, 545; 58 L. T. 18.

May set off
of interest.

A mortgagee in occupation is entitled to set off, against the occupation rent, with which he is charged, the arrears of interest, so far as they were recoverable against the land at the time the rent accrued: i.e., for six years prior to its accruing: Wilton v. Bernard, 2 Gr. 358; Harrison v. Jones, 10 Gr. 39. A prior mortgagee is not bound to account to a subsequent mortgagee on the footing of a mortgagee in possession, merely because there is an attornment clause in the prior mortgage, if he has not actually taken possession: Western District Bank, Limited, v. Turner, 45 L. T. 433; Stanley v. Grundy, 22 Ch. D. 458; 48 L. T. 106.

Tenants in common,
how far liable for
rent.

Tenants in common.—A tenant in common who has been in exclusive occupation, cannot be charged with an occupation rent, if he has not ousted his cotenant: Rice v. Grogan, 20 Gr. 221; Re Kirkpatrick, Stevenson v. Kirkpatrick, 10 F. R. 4; except where his cotenant is an infant: Courcier v. Courcier, 26 Gr. 307. But he cannot recover for substantial repairs and improvements: Rice v. Grogan, supra; nor even for incumbrances paid off by him, unless he also submits to account for an occupation rent: Tweedale v. Sanderson, 33 Illy. 534; Rivet v. Desautels, 12 C. L. J. 202. But a tenant in common who has been in exclusive occupation, and has ousted his cotenant, is liable to account for an occupation rent: Pascoe v. Stann, 27 Illy. 508.

law.

Heirs.—Prior to The Devolution of Estates Act (R. S. O. c. 127), an heir-at-law was liable to account to a dowress for an occupation rent: Rumford v. Bamford, 7 H. 266.

Lease.

Devisees.—Under the law as it existed prior to The Devolution of Estates Act (R. S. O. c. 127), ss. 1, 2, devisees in possession of land devised, charged with a rent, were bound to account to the lessors, but not to the heirs, who had no right to the land: Allen v. Allen, 11, 48 H. 606; 62 L. T. 533.

Trustees.

Trustees.—Trustees of a mortgage, or of a trust, or of a will, or of a fund, are liable to account to the cestui que trust, or to the legatee, or to the beneficiary, for an occupation rent: Re G. H. G. v. G. H. G., 11 L. C. 878; Law v. Law, 7 Gr. 278; Zetser v. Zetser, 37 L. T. 1, 1888.

Mortgage of land.—No account is required by a mortgagee of land, who has been in occupation, and who has paid the interest on the mortgage, for an occupation rent, if he has not ousted the mortgagor: Yates v. Yates, 5

Ont. 617; Munsie v. Lindsay, 10 P. R. 173. Where occupation rent Rule 667. is charged in respect of property which has been improved by the occupant, according to the value as increased by the improvements, interest should be allowed on the outlay for the improvements; Munsie v. Lindsay, 11 Ont. 520.

Improvements:—

Persons in Possession of Lands under void Deeds, making lasting improvements, by which the value of the estate has been enhanced, may, within certain limits, be allowed for such improvements; Jordin v. South Eastern Railway Co., 2 Sm. & G. at p. 73; Quarrel v. Beckford, 14 Ves. at p. 179; and whether in, as actual, or constructive, trustees: Williamson v. Seeber, 3 Y. & C. Ex. 717; Quedor v. Lewis, 1 Y. & C. Ex. 427; Bridge v. Brown, 2 Y. & C. C. C. 191; Beris v. Boulton, 7 Gr. 39; or as solicitors: Robinson v. Ridley, 6 Mad. 2; or agents: Trevclan v. White, 1 Bear. 588; or as mortgagees believing themselves absolutely entitled: Neeson v. Clarkson, 2 Ha. 176; S. C. 4 Ha. 37; or as a bonâ fide purchaser under the void deed: Ashton v. Innis, 26 Gr. 42; Churcher v. Bates, 42 U. C. Q. B. 566; Pegley v. Woods, 14 Gr. 47; Gummerson v. Banting, 18 Gr. 516; and the claim for such improvements may be actively enforced, and allowed, whether the party claiming them be plaintiff or defendant: Id.; but see Le Brazill, 11 Gr. at p. 250; and even though the party claiming adversely be an infant: Beris v. Boulton, supra; and see Biehn v. Biehn, 18 Gr. 497; Wood v. Wood, 16 Gr. 471.

But when possession had been taken in pursuance of an immoral agreement which was void, it was held that there could be no lien for improvements: Maan v. Clarke, 30 C. P. 417.

Wrongdoers.—A mere wrongdoer, entering without colour of right, is not usually allowed for improvements made by him; Townstey v. Ayl, 10 Gr. 72; Scott v. Hunter, 14 Gr. 376, nor persons entering with actual notice of a paramount title: Wyoming v. Bell, 24 Gr. 564; Smith v. Gibson, 25 C. P. 248; Kilborn v. Workman, 9 Gr. 255; Grissett v. Carter, before Boyd, C., 2nd Sept. 1884.

But it would seem that mere legal fraud will not deprive a party of the right to improvements: McLaren v. Fraser, 17 Gr. at p. 520; and see Nevills v. Nevills, 6 Gr. 121, 130; and the owner standing by and not objecting, may preclude himself from getting back his estate, except on the terms of paying for improvements: Davis v. Sander, 1 Gr. 134.

Improvements made under Mistake of Title—Lasting improvements made under a bonâ fide mistake of title may now be allowed, and the person making them and his assigns are entitled to a lien on the land therefor: R. S. C. c. 179, s. 30; Fawcett v. Burton, 27 Gr. 445; McGregor v. McGregor, Id., 470; McCarthy v. Atchekle, 29 C. P. 529; Farick v. Smith, 54 P. C. Q. B. 389; Stam v. Chapman, 21 Gr. 540; Munsie v. Lindsay, 10 P. R. 173; 19 C. L. J. 186; Plunk v. Stenderoff, 2 Ont. 614. But improvements made with actual knowledge of the paramount title will not be allowed under that Act: Wyoming v. Bell, 24 Gr. 564; Smith v. Gibson, 25 C. P. 248; The Commissioners of Q. T. Park v. Colt, 22 Ont. App. 1; and see Kilborn v. Workman, 9 Gr. 225. Improvements made after action commenced cannot be allowed: O'Grada v. McCaffrey, 2 Ont. 309; Bright v. Campbell, 53 L. T. 428.

Rule 667.

By mortgagee.

Improvements made under mistake of title by a person in as mortgagee, but believing himself to be absolute owner, are allowed more liberally than improvements made by a mortgagee knowing that he is a mortgagee: Carroll v. Robertson, 15 Gr. 173.

By mortgagor.

Improvements made by a purchaser from a mortgagor under the erroneous belief that the mortgage had been discharged, cannot be claimed as against the mortgagee: Beuty v. Shaw, 14 Ont. App. 604.

By husband.

A husband is not entitled to be paid by his wife for improvements made by him on her lands while in his occupation: Till v. Till, 15 Ont. 133.

A mortgagee of a person making lasting improvements under mistake of title is an "assign," and as such entitled to the extent of his mortgage, to the benefit of the lien for such improvements: McKibbin v. Williams, 24 Ont. App. 122.

Tenants in common.

Tenants in Common are entitled to contribution from their co-tenants for the costs of repairs made to prevent the property from going to ruin: Co. Lit., 200 b.; Fitzherbert, N. B., 127; but not for ordinary repairs: Leigh v. Dickeson, 12 Q. B. D. 104; 50 L. T. 124; Re Jones, Farrington v. Forrester, 1883, 2 Ch. 461; Curry v. Curry, 25 Ont. App. at p. 277; unless they submit to be charged with rents and profits: Id.

The right of a tenant in common in partition proceedings to be paid for improvements is restricted to such as are made by him after the tenancy has commenced in fact: Lasby v. Creighton, 21 Ont. 255.

Where land held in common is sold under a paramount mortgage, money expended by one of the tenants in common in permanent improvements will be allowed to him in distributing the surplus: Re Cook's Mortgage, 74 L. T. 652.

Tenants for life.

Tenants for Life are not entitled to charge for repairs as against the inheritance, however substantial or lasting: Lewin, 9th ed., 642; Re Smith, 4 Ont. 518; sed vide, Conway v. Fruton, 40 Ch. D. 512, nor are they chargeable with repairs: In re Freeman, 1898 1 Ch. 28; nor liable to account for permissive waste: Patterson v. Central Canada Loan Co., 29 Ont. 134.

Tenants at will, improvements by.

Tenants at Will.—Improvements made by a tenant at will cannot be allowed: Foster v. Emmerson, 5 Gr. 135; but improvements made on wild land by a son, to whom his father had promised to give it by way of advancement, which he failed to do, were allowed as against the co-heirs of the father: Biehn v. Biehn, supra; Howe v. Ferguson, see 18 Gr. 108; but see Foster v. Emmerson, supra.

Trustees are entitled to be allowed for improvements on trust estate.

Trustees.—Substantial and lasting improvements, and repairs, made by a trustee on the trust property, are usually allowed to him: Barnes v. Boulton, 7 Gr. 39; Hill v. Hill, 3 H. L. C. 828; Smith v. Remondet, 13 Gr. at p. 35; Ex parte Hughes, 6 Ves. 624; Ex parte James, 8 Ves. 1352; Campbell v. Walker, 5 Ves. 482; Dunlop v. Dunlop, 1 De G. & J. 535; King v. Anderson, 8 Ir. R. Eq. 625, 636. Repairs are allowed, even in the case of actual fraud: Baugh v. Prior, 1 G. Wils. 320; and in one case improvements also: Oliver v. Court, 8 Price, 172; but see contra, Kenney v. Browne, 3 Rids. 518; Stratton v. Murphy, 1 Ir. R. Eq. 361.

Receivers.

Receivers.—A receiver has been allowed for improvements made, without the previous sanction of the Court: Timpest v. Ord, 2 Mer. 55.

Committee of Lunatic.—A committee has been allowed for improve- Rule 667.
ments made, without previous sanction: Re Shaw, 15 Gr. 618; Re Committee.
Churchill, 3 Jur. 719.

Personal Representative.—An unauthorized expenditure by an execu- Personal trix in improving the realty, was allowed, so far as the value of the represent-estate had been enhanced, and those interested had benefited by it; ative.
Harley v. Matthews, 14 Gr. 551. But where an administratrix had occupied and improved the realty, in a suit by her for administration, such improvements were disallowed as against infant heirs: but she was not charged with any increase of rental in consequence of such improvements. Re Brazil, 11 Gr. 253.

Purchaser.—A purchaser failing to complete his purchase is not Purchaser. entitled to be allowed for improvements: Re Yaggie, 1 Chy. Ch. 52.

Mortgagee.—The ordinary rule is, that a mortgagee will not be Mortgagee.
allowed for improvements further than is proper to keep the premises in necessary repair. But if buildings are incomplete or ruinous, he may complete or pull them down, and rebuild, and the rebuilding or repairing, may be done in an improved manner, and more substantially than before, so that the work be done providently, and that no new or expensive buildings be erected for purposes different from those for which the former buildings were used; for the property when restored ought to be of the same nature as when the mortgagee received it: Fisher, Mortg., 5th ed., s. 1781. And while the mortgagee in possession is not allowed to charge for lasting improvements which are not requisite for the purpose of keeping the property in necessary repair, he is not, on the other hand, chargeable with the increased rents and profits which are directly traceable to such improvements made by him: see Jones on Mortgages, s. 1127.

Mortgagees in possession are entitled to be allowed for necessary Mortgagees repairs, as just allowances. Under Rules 666, 667, no special direc- entitled to tion in the judgment is necessary to enable the Master, in a proper be allowed case, to allow substantial improvements. for necessary repairs.

A mortgagee in possession cannot charge the mortgaged property But only with improvements that are not necessary for its preservation: such as are Harrison v. Jones, 10 Gr. 321, unless with the consent of the parties necessary entitled to the equity of redemption: Kirby v. Kirby, 5 Gr. 587, for preser-Beav. 246; Fisher, Mortg., s. 1781. But a mortgagee is not bound to give the mortgagor notice before making any reasonable permanent improvement: Shepherd v. Jones, 47 L. T. 604; 21 Ch. D. 463.

Where a mortgagee is charged with rents, or improved rents, arising from his improvements, he should either be allowed for such improvements: Constable v. Guest, 6 Gr. 540; or he should not be charged with the rent, or improved rent, arising therefrom: McGregor Metropar, 5 Ont. 617; 19 C. L. J. 78; Munsie v. Lindsay, 10 P.
173; Bright v. Campbell, 53 L. T. 428; and see Curry v. Curry, 17 P. R. 379; 25 Ont. App. 267.

The Master is not necessarily bound to allow the actual cost of improvements, but should limit the allowance to the benefit which the property has derived therefrom: Paul v. Johnson, 12 Gr. at p. 479.

Rule 667

Improvements by purchaser when sale invalid, allowed.

Secure if he have knowledge of defect

Mortgagee submitting to redemption entitled to all improvements

What improvements allowed

Covenant to pay for improvements in rectorial lease invalid

Costs and expenses recoverable by mortgagees.

A person who had bona fide purchased under a power of sale, even mortgage, notwithstanding the sale was held invalid, was allowed improvements made by him as far as they enhanced the value of the property, and was not restricted to such improvements as a mortgagee in possession would have been entitled to make, knowing himself to be a mortgagee: Carroll v. Robertson, 15 Gr. 173; and see McLaren v. Fraser, 17 Gr. 567; Davey v. Durant, 1 De G. & J. 534. But where a purchaser from a mortgagee, who had obtained a decree for foreclosure, which was defective owing to there being outstanding claims, which were not foreclosed, entered, and made improvements, having notice of the outstanding title, such improvements were disallowed as against the unforced parties: Russell v. Romanes, 11 Ont. App. 637; and see Romanes v. Herms, 22 Gr. 403.

But where the mortgagor released his equity of redemption, and two months afterwards the mortgagee agreed to reconvey, upon being repaid principal and interest, and all costs of improvements made by him, on a bill to redeem, the mortgagee was held entitled to recover for all permanent improvements, although the estate might not have been increased in value to an amount equal to the sum expended: Byrtherton v. Hetherington, 23 Gr. 187.

What Improvements Allowed.—The clearing of land for farming purposes is a permanent improvement under The Doer, 1st: H. S. O. c. 67, s. 9 (21): Robinet v. Pickering, 44 F. C. Q. B. 337.

After suit commenced, the only improvements which can ordinarily be allowed, are such as are made to save the premises from deterioration: Hawn v. Cashion, 20 Gr. 518; and see O'Grady v. McAffrey, 2 Ont. 309.

Trustees with power to invest in the purchase of real estate, may be allowed for erecting a new building where an increased income can be obtained thereby: Re Henderson, 23 Gr. 47.

A rector cannot make a lease with a covenant to pay for improvements, which will be binding on his successor: Kirkpatrick v. Lyster, 13 Gr. 323; 16 Gr. 17; unless there be some statutory provision empowering him so to do.

Costs, and other Expenses:—

Mortgagees.—A mortgagee is entitled to charge against the estate the costs of defending the title to the mortgaged estate, for the benefit of all parties interested in the equity of redemption; and also the costs of proceedings taken to perfect his security, e.g., the costs of an equitable mortgagee of investigating the title for the purpose of preparing a legal mortgage, and the costs of preparing such legal mortgage are recoverable: National Provl. Bank v. Games, 53 L. T. 955; 54 L. T. 626; 31 Ch. D. 582; also the costs of an action brought against a surety of the mortgagor: Suchs v. Ashby, 88 L. T. 230; also, costs of a suit to redeem, brought by a subsequent incumbrancer, and dismissed: McKinnon v. Anderson, 17 Gr. 636; 18 Gr. 684; but not the costs of defending his own title to the mortgage, unless those interested in the equity of redemption had concurred in, or assisted, the litigation: Parker v. Watkins, John, 133; nor yet the costs of an unsuccessful litigation undertaken by him without the concurrence of the mortgagor: Wells v. The Trust and Loan Co., 9 Ont. 170.

Where a mortgagee is a solicitor and takes legal proceedings to recover the mortgage debt, he is not, upon redemption, entitled to charge the mortgagor with his profit costs: Re Wallis, 23 Rule 667. Q. B. D. 176; 62 L. T. 674; but only his costs out of pocket. Stone v. Lucknow, 1801, 2 Ch. 363; 61 L. T. 29; and see Ficht v. Hopkins, 14 Ch. D. 524; 62 L. T. 102; but where the proceedings are taken by his partner, the latter may recover the proportion of such profit costs to which he is entitled: Re Doody, Pisker v. Doody, 1893, 1 Ch. 129; Re Rollit, 105 L. T. Jour. 180; and see Eyre v. Wynn-Mack, 120, 1894, 1 Ch. 218; but a solicitor mortgagee cannot recover profit costs against the mortgagor, because he also acts as solicitor for his mortgagee who is not a solicitor. Re Doody, Hibbert v. Lloyd, 1893, 1 Ch. 129; 67 L. T. 650.

It has been held that a solicitor mortgagee, who is a trustee, is not entitled to profit costs of suits brought by him in respect of the mortgaged property: Schubert v. Colton, 29 L. T. O. S. 337; 3 J. & N. S. 630; 5 W. R. 741; but see contra, Re Donohoe, 27 Ch. D. 544; 51 L. T. 622.

A covenant to pay profit costs to a solicitor mortgagee is void in equity as an attempt to clog the right of redemption: see Eyre v. Wynn-Mack, supra.

In Re Griffith, 50 L. T. 314, it was said by Cotton, L.J., that in a foreclosure action "the mortgagor must pay all the costs of the mortgagee, including those payable by the latter to his solicitor."

The mortgagee may also be allowed the expenses of sales, and of costs of recovering the purchase money. Fisher, Mortg., 5th ed., sec. 1785, and supra. Also the costs of an alternative sale, where it has fallen through without default of the mortgagee. Lacey v. Lacy, 31 Ch. 10, 42; 70 L. T. 121.

But he is not entitled to a commission on a sale in addition to the costs, even though he has stipulated for it: Eyre v. Hughes, 2 Ch. 10, 118; Broad v. Selpe, 10 Jur. N. S. 885.

Where a mortgagee had made a sale of part of the land, but before it was completely carried out found another purchaser at the better price, a payment to the assignee of the rights of the first purchaser, to obtain a release from him, was allowed in the mortgage account: Lacey v. Toronto General Trusts Corp., 8 O. L. R. 522.

A mortgagee is also entitled to the expenses of taking and holding possession of a ship, advertising it for sale, and insurances: Wakes v. Sauran, 7 Ch. D. 188.

Where the mortgage so provides, a mortgagee may recover a commission for renewing notes held as collateral to the mortgage, but not unless the notes are actually renewed, even though the mortgagor has had all the time he would have had, had they been renewed. Bucknell v. Vickery, 64 L. T. 701; also bonuses and commissions agreed to at the time of the advance, where the security is of a speculative character: Guthrie v. Munro, 29 Ont. 375.

He is not entitled to charge for personal trouble in collecting rents: Cannot Bouthon v. Backhouse, 1 Vern. 316; Lamouette v. French, 10 Ves. 495; Godfrey v. Watson, 3 Atk. 518; Leath v. Terrell, 1 M. & K. 277; not even if he has stipulated for it with the mortgagor. French v. Bayne, 2 Atk. 120; Barnett v. Harby, L. R. 2 Eq. 780; Church v. Gubbins, 1 Ves. 271. But the mortgagee is entitled to an allowance for an agent, or bailiff, collecting rents where the property is of such a character that a prudent owner, whose time was of value, would appoint an agent. Lacey v. Ingram, 16 Ch. D. 59.

Rule 667.

Insurance,
when recoverable.

Insurance.—Sums paid for insurance by a mortgagee cannot, in the absence of a special contract, be charged against the mortgaged estate: Bellamy v. Brickenden, 2 J. & H. 137; Brook v. Stone, 13 W. R. 401; Dobson v. Laod, 8 Ill. 216; Russell v. Robertson, 1 Ch. Ch. 72; 6 L. C. L. J. 143; but see Scholfeld v. Lockwood, 11 W. R. 555. But in the case of a trustee, such payments may be allowed, without any express stipulation to that effect in the instrument creating the trust: Heron v. Moffatt, 22 Gr. 370.

Where a subsequent account is directed to be taken, sums properly paid for insurance since the last account, may be allowed under the head of just allowances, without any express direction: Bethune v. Calcutt, 3 Gr. 648.

Prior incumbrances.

Prior Incumbrances.—A mortgagee paying off prior incumbrances, is entitled to recover the amount paid, and interest on the principal, at the rate in his own mortgage, and on the interest and costs, at the legal rate: McMaster v. Hector, 8 C. L. J. 284; and see Tector v. St. John, 10 Gr. 85. But a tenant in common in sole possession paying off incumbrances, is not entitled to be allowed therefor, unless he submits to account for an occupation rent: Rivet v. Desouddi, 12 C. L. J. 203.

Trustees entitled as against e.g. l. to expenses of baillifs, etc.

Trustees and Personal Representatives.—Trustees are entitled to recover, as against the beneficiaries, the expense of baillifs, surveyors, and accountants, where necessarily employed, and also the necessary legal expenses of carrying the trust into effect: Wilkinson v. Wilkinson, 2 S. & S. 237; McNamara v. Jones, 2 Dick. 587; Henderson v. McIver, 3 Mad. 275.

Trustees are also entitled to be allowed the costs paid to the representatives of a deceased trustee properly incurred by the latter in reference to the trust; also the costs incurred by them, on being appointed to the trust, of examining into the state of the trust property, the validity of the power under which they were appointed, and the costs paid of the donee of the power in making the appointment: Hareco v. Olivee, 57 L. T. 239; as to what expenses come under the head of "testamentary expenses"; see Re Cleaver, 1900, 2 Ch. 182; Re Treasure, 1900, 2 Ch. 648.

So also a trustee is entitled to have his costs out of the trust estate even though by reason of subsequent events the trust becomes invalid: In Re Holden, 20 Q. B. D. 43.

Solicitor
trustee
when entitled to charge for professional services

Formerly a trustee, acting as solicitor for himself in any action was only entitled to costs and expenses out of pocket, properly incurred: Moore v. Froud, 3 My. & Cr. 45, 50; Robinson v. Pett, 2 W. & T. Lend. Ch. Eq. 214; Re Corsellis, 33 Ch. D. 160; 34 Ch. D. 675; 55 L. T. 167; unless there were a special power to charge for professional services: Re Sherwood, 3 Beav. 338; Maere v. Froud, supra; Re Wyche, 11 Beav. 200; but even then, no charge could be allowed for doing professionally, anything that he would have been bound to do himself, if not a solicitor: Harbin v. Darbin, 28 Beav. 325; Re Chapple, 27 Ch. D. 584; 51 L. T. 748; and what he could not charge for professionally himself, he could not recover for, if done by a partner though not a trustee: Christophers v. Hite, 10 Beav. 523; Collins v. Carey, 2 Beav. 128; but the partner might recover any part of such costs to which he was entitled for his own benefit: Clack v. Carlow, 7 Jur. N. S. 441; 9 W. R. 568; but where a solicitor trustee was one of several trustees, and acted for them, he might recover profit costs against the trust estate. The rule on this point was laid down in Craddock v. Piper, 1 Mac. & G. 604; 17 Sim. 41, viz., that where a Rule 667. solicitor (or his firm) appears in a suit on behalf of himself and a co-trustee, and the expense has not thereby been increased, then the solicitor (or his firm, as the case may be), is entitled to the usual full ^{Rule in Craddock v. Piper.} costs: see Re Doody, 1883, 1 Ch. at p. 138; In re Barber, Burgess v. Fincome, 34 Ch. D. 77; 55 L. T. 882; Re Thorpe, 1891, 2 Ch. 300; 64 L. T. 654; but this rule was held not to extend to professional services rendered by a solicitor trustee to the trust estate out of Court: Re Williams, 4 O. L. R. 501. Though the rule so laid down has been frequently regretted and its propriety questioned, and it was held that it should not be extended, it was nevertheless established: Re Corsellis, 34 Ch. D. 675; 55 L. T. 107; Re Doody, supra; Re Mimico Saver Pipe Co., 20 Ont. 289; see also Re McNab, 19 C. L. T. 74; and its principle applied to counsel fees, where the solicitor trustee was also counsel in the case: Strachan v. Rutton, 15 P. R. 109; but see Lawlin, 9th ed., 300; Manson v. Baillie, 2 Macq. St. See also Re Roberts, 43 Ch. D. 52, and a collection of the authorities in 20 C. L. J. 218. The profit costs of professional services which could not be recovered against the c. q. t., or out of the trust estate, might be recoverable by the trustee against a third party: Colonial Trust Co. v. Cameron, 21 Gr. 548; Meighen v. Buell, 25 Gr. 604; Re Donaldson, 27 Ch. D. 544; 51 L. T. 622; but see Re Corsellis, Lawton v. Elwes, 33 Ch. D. 160; 34 Ch. D. 675; 55 L. T. 107; and 82 L. T. Jour. 280; 23 C. L. J. 146.

It must be remembered, however, that the English cases on this point are all founded on the principle that according to English law a trustee is not to be allowed to make any profit out of the trust, and is entitled to no compensation for his services; see per Lord Hatherley in Clack v. Carlton, 7 Jur. N. S. 441, although in Meighen v. Buell, 24 Gr. 508, Spragg, C., was of opinion that one important consideration in disallowing such costs is the removal of the temptation to unnecessary litigation. How far the English cases on the right of solicitor trustees to costs should be followed, seems open to some question, having regard to the difference in the law of Ont. as to a trustee's right to compensation for his services; see R. S. O. c. 129, s. 40; Re Leckie, 36 C. L. J. 136.

The rule which denied a professional trustee the right to charge ^{1 Ed. vii., c. 7, s. 27.} for professional services rendered to the trust estate, has moreover ^{c. 7, s. 27.} now been materially modified by 3 Ed. vii., c. 7, s. 27, whereby it is provided that: "Where a barrister or solicitor is trustee or an executor or administrator, and has rendered professional services to the estate, regard may be had in making the said allowance (i.e., the allowance of compensation for services) to such circumstances, and such allowance shall be increased by such amount as the Court, Judge, Master or Referee may consider to be fair and reasonable in respect of such professional services; provided that nothing in this section shall affect pending litigation." This section is an addition to s. 43, but the words in italics would seem to indicate that it is intended also to extend the provisions of s. 40.

The rule laid down in Craddock v. Piper as to trustees, has been ^{solicitor} held not to extend to solicitor mortgagees; Re Doody, Hibbert v. Lloyd, 1893, 1 Ch. 129; 68 L. T. 128, and a solicitor mortgagee is not entitled as against the mortgagor to profit costs of a redemption action, or other proceedings, in which he appears in person; but only to costs out of pocket: Stoue v. Lickorish, 1891, 2 Ch. 363; 64 L. T. 79; Re Wallis, 25 Q. B. D. 156; 62 L. T. 654; nor is he entitled to costs for acting as agent for the mortgagor in collecting Rule 687. the rents of the mortgaged property: Eyre v. Wynn-Mackenzie, 1894, 1 Ch. 218; 69 L. T. 823; though where the business is done by a firm, of which the solicitor mortgagee is a partner, the other members of the firm are entitled to recover their proportion of the costs: Re Doody, Hibbert v. Lloyd, supra; and if by arrangement with the mortgagee solicitor they are entitled to all costs, semble, they may recover them in full: Re Kolbit, 96 L. T. Jour. 199.

Where costs had been taxed and allowed to the solicitors of an executor in an administration action, it was held that the Court had no jurisdiction, on an interlocutory application in that action, to compel the executor to account for and refund a share of the profit costs, to which, under a secret arrangement with the solicitors, he was entitled; but that a new action would have to be brought to compel him to account therefor: Re Thorpe, 1891, 2 Ch. 360; 64 L. T. 554.

Even though a will empowers a trustee to charge for his professional services, still, in the absence of express power to do so, trustees or executors cannot settle the amount payable out of the estate for such services to one of themselves, so as to bind the cestui que trust and preclude him from the right to have such costs taxed if he desires it: Re Fish, 1893, 2 Ch. 413; 69 L. T. 233.

Where an executor and trustee is authorized by will to charge the estate for his professional services as solicitor, that right is in the nature of a legacy, and cannot be asserted in competition with creditors: Re White, 1898, 1 Ch. 297; 2 Ch. 217; 77 L. T. 793; 78 L. T. 770; sed vide R. S. O. c. 129, s. 40; Harrison v. Patterson, 11 Gr. 105, 113.

Retaining fee and costs paid by trustee, how far recoverable.

A retaining fee paid by trustees to their solicitor in an administration suit, may be allowed under certain circumstances: see Chisholm v. Barnard, 10 Gr. 479; and see Hayes v. Hayes, 29 Gr. 90; but they are not entitled to any allowance for gratuitous services of an agent: Chisholm v. Barnard, 10 Gr. 479.

Costs paid by an executor, administrator, or trustee, to his solicitor, in respect of business of the trust estate, may be allowed, but the Master should examine the bill, and without strictly taxing it, should moderate it, by deducting such charges, if any, as are improper: McCargor v. McKinnon, 17 Gr. 525; Hayes v. Hayes, 26 Gr. 90; and where the costs have been paid out of the trust estate, and bona fide received by the solicitor without notice of any breach of trust on his client's part, he cannot be made to refund the costs so received to the estate, even though it should turn out that the trustee has disentitled himself to get the costs out of the estate: Re Blundell, Blundell v. Blundell, 58 L. T. 933; and see Brinsden v. Williams, 1894, 3 Ch. 325; 71 L. T. 77.

A personal representative is not liable to pay costs incurred by a beneficiary in reference to the estate, and for its protection, before the grant of probate, or letters of administration: Re Watson, 19 Q. B. D. 234; 57 L. T. 215.

Trustees' expenses are a lien on trust estate.

Trustees' expenses are a lien upon the trust estate, and have priority to the costs of suit: Marison v. Marison, 7 D. M. & G. 214; 2 S. & G. 504; Gaunt v. Taylor, 2 Ha. 413; Hughes v. Rees, 10 P. R. 301; unless the payments are not strictly authorized, and the estate is insufficient: Robison v. Killeen, 30 Beav. 520; or they have misconducted themselves: Rose v. Sharrod, 41 W. R. 356.

A personal representative is entitled to be recompensed out of the estate any costs he may be put to, or incur, without impropriety or fraud, in connection with the estate; and he is entitled to set-off, against the claims of next of kin or other beneficiaries, costs of an unsuccessful litigation, which they have been ordered to pay him: Re Jones, 1897, 2 Ch. 190; 76 L. T. 454.

Just Allowances.—Several of the matters which may be allowed under the head of "just allowances" have already been discussed in the preceding notes to this Rule.

Allowances to Executors, and Trustees.—Compensation for care, pains, and trouble, may be allowed by the Master to trustees under any deed, settlement, or will; or to any other trustee, however the trust is created; and to executors, and administrators; and to any guardian appointed by any Court; or to any testamentary guardian: R. S. O. c. 129, ss. 40-42; Re Commissioners of Cobourg, 22 Gr. 377; Re Toronto Harbour Commissioners, 28 Gr. 195. The Act is retrospective: Thompson v. Freeman, 15 Gr. 384; McMillan v. McMillan, 21 Gr. 309; Zimmerman v. Wilcox, 35 C. L. J. 688. The Surrogate Judge has also power to allow compensation to trustees under wills, and to executors, and administrators: R. S. O. c. 129, s. 43; and he may now allow compensation to professional trustees for services rendered by them to the trust estate as barristers and solicitors: see 3 Ed. vii., c. 7, s. 27. But where an action is pending in the High Court for the administration of an estate, it is improper for the Surrogate Judge to interfere by ordering the allowance of compensation to the executors, or trustees: McLennan v. Heward, 9 Gr. 279; Cameron v. Bethune, 15 Gr. 486. And the Master is bound to exercise his own discretion as to the compensation to be allowed, regardless of any order of a Surrogate Judge made under such circumstances: Biggar v. Dickson, 15 Gr. 233.

A person acquiring lands under circumstances which constitute him a constructive trustee thereof for another, is entitled to be recompensed his purchase money, and the lasting improvements made by him to the amount which the value of the property has been thereby enhanced: Rowley v. Gunnever, 1897, 2 Ch. 503; 77 L. T. 302.

A trustee does not lose his right to compensation, where part of the trust fund has been lost under circumstances for which he is not responsible, as, for instance, where the loss was occasioned by the fraud of a properly selected agent to whom he had entrusted it: Jobson v. Palmer, 1893, 1 Ch. 71; 67 L. T. 797.

A trustee of municipal debentures issued in aid of a railway, who holds them in trust, to be handed to the company in a certain event, is entitled to compensation, and has a lien on the debentures therefor: Re Tilsonburgh, L. Erie & P. Ry. Co., 24 Ont. App. 378.

No fixed rule can be laid down as to the amount of compensation proper to be allowed, as it must necessarily depend on the circumstances of each case: see Robinson v. Pett, 2 W. & T. L. C. Eq. 214. Usually the amount is fixed by a percentage on the amount of money passing through the hands of the trustee, or executor. In some cases five per cent. has been allowed: Bald v. Thompson, 17 Gr. 154; McLennan v. Heward, 9 Gr. 178; Chisholm v. Barnard, 10 Gr. 479; Re Batt, Wright v. White, 9 P. R. 447; Re Fleming, 11

Rule 667.

Usually a percentage on receipts and payments.

But a lump sum may be allowed.

A sliding scale suggested.

Allowance of percentage on investments and reinvestments disapproved.

Legacies given to executors as compensation.

Do not abate.

Bear interest.

P. R. 272, 426; Archer v. Severn, 13 Ont. 316; Re McIntyre, McIntyre v. London, &c., Trust Co., 7 O. L. R. 548. But this may in some cases be more, and in some less, than an adequate compensation. In Torrance v. Chewett, 12 Gr. 407, four per cent. was allowed; and in McMillan v. McMillan, 21 Gr. 381, two and a-half per cent. was allowed. The Master may, instead of a percentage, allow a lump sum, but only on proper evidence as to the services rendered: Stinson v. Stinson, 8 P. R. 560; Denison v. Denison, 17 Gr. 306. In fixing compensation, it has been suggested that it would be proper to adopt a sliding scale, similar in principle to that on which the poundage of Sheriffs is fixed; see observations of Spragge, V.C., in Thompson v. Freeman, 15 Gr. at p. 387. In that case, the estate amounted to nearly $300,000, and five per cent. on the amounts disbursed, which included investments, and reinvestments, made in the course of fifteen years, was considered excessive; and on appeal, the allowance was reduced to five per cent. on investments of sums of $600, and three per cent. on investments over that amount.

But in a later case it was considered vicious in principle, to allow any commission on investments, or reinvestments, on the ground that it offered an inducement to trustees to be constantly, and unnecessarily, calling in and charging the investments: Re Berkeley's Trusts, 8 P. R. 193; followed in Re Williams, 4 O. L. R. 501. No commission should be allowed for merely receiving the trust estate until it has also been duly accounted for: Ib., Re McIntyre, McIntyre v. London & Western Trust Co., 7 O. L. R. 548.

Where trust property consisting of land was exchanged, with the consent of the cuius que trust, for stock in a land company, from which nothing had been realized by way of income, and both land and stock were said to be valueless, a percentage on the nominal value of the stock was held to be an improper way of fixing the trustees' compensation; and a lump sum to cover their care and trouble was allowed instead: Re Prittie, 13 P. R. 19.

A legacy given to a person appointed executor is prima facie intended as a compensation, and if the legatee renounce, he is not entitled to the legacy: Williams on Executors (9th ed.), 1147; Re Appleton, Barber v. Tebbitt, 52 L. T. 906; and the fact that legacies are left to other executors of unequal amount is not sufficient to destroy the presumption: Ib.

Where a legacy is given to executors or trustees without any stipulation that it is to be a compensation for their trouble, they are not precluded from claiming a further sum under the statute, if the legacy is inadequate: Denison v. Denison, 17 Gr. 306; Huddingh v. De Villiers, 12 App. Cas. 107, 624; Re Fish, 1893, 2 Ch. 413; 69 L. T. 233; Freeborn v. Vandusen, 15 P. R. 264; and so also in the case of a devise: McClenaghan v. Perkins, 5 O. L. R. 129; but where it is expressly stated to be in lieu of compensation, it would seem that no further compensation can be allowed under the statute: see R. S. O. c. 129, s. 44; Williams v. Roy, 9 Ont. 534; 21 C. L. J. 236; Keenedy v. Pingle, 27 Gr. 305. Such a legacy precludes any presumption that the executor is entitled beneficially to the undisposed of residue: Loreless v. Clarke, 24 Gr. 14; but see Boys' Home v. Lewis, 4 Ont. 18. Such a legacy in the event of a deficiency of assets, does not abate with other legacies, even though it exceeds what the executor would be entitled to under the statute: Anderson v. Dougall, 15 Gr. 405; and such legacies bear interest at the expiration of a year from the testator's death: Anderson v. Dougall, per Strong, v.

C., on appeal from report, 8th and 14th Dec., 1870; but see Re White, Rule 667, 1898, 1 Ch. 297; 2 Ch. 217; 77 L. T. 703; 78 L. T. 770.

Where the executor is also a residuary legatee, he is entitled to commission on the receipt, but not on the payment of the share of the residue to which he is beneficially entitled: Boys' Home v. Lewis, 19 C. L. J. 139; Re Fleming, 11 P. R. 272, 426.

Where, on appeal from the Master, the Court increased the allowance for compensation, the Court of Appeal refused to interfere: McDonald v. Davidson, 6 Ont. App. 320.

Where the amount of a trustee's compensation is fixed by the trust deed, the Master cannot reduce the amount: Heron v. Moffatt, 7 P. R. 438; nor can he increase it: R. S. O. c. 129, s. 44.

When trust fixes compensation Master cannot allow less.

Executors are entitled to some compensation for moneys received by them pendente lite but not so much in other cases: Re Housberger, 10 Ont. 521; Thompson v. Fann, 11 P. R. 333.

Misconduct in the management of the estate may, but does not necessarily, disentitle an executor, or trustee, to compensation for what he has properly done: see Kennedy v. Pringle, 27 Gr. 305; Sieversright v. Leys, 1 Ont. 375; Gould v. Burritt, 11 Gr. 523; City Bank v. Maulson, 3 Chy. Ch. 334; Hoover v. Wilson, 24 Ont. App. 421; McClenaghan v. Perkins, 5 O. L. R. 129; Zimmerman v. Wilcor, 25 C. L. J. 688. But commission cannot be allowed on moneys which were not actually received, but charged against the executor, or trustee, on the ground of wilful default: Bald v. Thompson, 17 Gr. 154; and an allowance cannot be made to an executor, for unauthorized receipts of rents, and profits, of the real estate: Dagg v. Dagg, 25 Gr. 542.

Misconduct, how far it disentitles executor to compensation.

Nor is the fact that a balance is found against an executor, part of which is occasioned by the allowance of a surcharge, alone sufficient to disentitle him to compensation: Sieversright v. Leys, 1 Ont. 375; McCardle v. Moore, 2 Ont. 229. An executor, not being a trustee of the realty, is not entitled to receive the rents thereof, and if he do, he is a mere intermeddler, and not entitled to any compensation in respect of such rents: Dagg v. Dagg, 25 Gr. 542; and see Re Brazil, Barry v. Brazil, 11 Gr. 255. Since The Devolution of Estates Act, however, the rights of personal representatives in regard to the real estate are materially changed.

Where a suit was brought by an executor unnecessarily, the Court refused to allow him any commission: Graham v. Robson, 17 Gr. 318. But where executors had acted improperly, the Court, although allowing them compensation, refused them their costs of suit: Kennedy v. Pringle, 27 Gr. 305. The omission to keep a regular set of books is not alone a sufficient ground for refusing trustees compensation: Life Association of Scotland v. Walker, 24 Gr. 293.

When one executor incurs greater responsibility than another a larger proportion of the compensation will be allotted to him: Re Fleming, 11 P. R. 272.

An allowance to trustees, or executors, for compensation is prior to the claims of creditors: Harrison v. Patterson, 11 Gr. 105, at p. 113; (but see contra, Re White, 1898, 1 Ch. 297; 2 Ch. 217; 77 L. T. 703; 78 L. T. 770); or of cestui que trust: The Life Association of Scotland v. Walker, 24 Gr. 293; and a trustee may retain it from time to time, out of moneys received, and is not bound to wait until the expiration of his trust: Heron v. Moffatt, supra.

Executors' compensation is prior to claims of creditors.

Rule 667.Expenses.

A trustee who properly employs an agent to collect rents is entitled to an allowance for his own care and responsibility in addition to the sum paid to the agent (in this case the trustee was allowed two and one-half per cent.): Re Prittie, 13 P. R. 19.

Where a testator's estate was worth $200,000, an expenditure of $3,000 for a burial plot and monument was allowed: Archer v. Severa, 13 Ont. 316.

Trustees entitled to credit pro tanto for defective securities;

Trustees who have invested the trust fund, at the instance of one of their number, in a defective security, are nevertheless entitled to credit for the value of such security: Larkin v. Armstrong, 9 Gr. 300; and see R. S. O. c. 130, s. 9.

And for sums paid for maintenance

An allowance may be made to executors, for sums paid for the maintenance and education of infant cestuis que trustent out of the capital of the fund to which they are entitled, where the income thereof is insufficient: Stewart v. Fletcher, 16 Gr. 235.

Where compensation is allowed to a personal representative or trustee, it should be credited at the end of each year: Hoover v. Wilson, 33 C. L. J. 458.

Claims not referred cannot be allowed.

Claims not Referred to Master, cannot be allowed.—The authority to make "just allowances" does not authorize the Master to allow claims which are not referred to him by the judgment to take an account of, however reasonable they may appear to be. The Master may, however, report such a claim as "a special circumstance," and on the hearing on further directions, or otherwise, an application may be made to the Court for its allowance: Fielder v. O'Hara, 2 Chy. Ch. 255; Kellar v. Taché, 1 Chy. Ch. 788; Stewart v. Fletcher, supra.

Special Circumstances:—

Special circumstances, Master may report

Notwithstanding this Rule the Master may refuse to report as special circumstances, facts which would be immaterial on a hearing on further directions, or which would lend to evidence in relation to matters not necessary to the inquiry directed by the judgment: Benton v. Ammond, 19 Gr. 172. But he may, at the request of any party, report specially as to any matters which he may deem proper for the information of the Court: Roschatch v. Parry, 27 Gr. at p. 120; and he ought to report any matter bearing on the question of costs: Simpson v. Horne, 28 Gr. at p. 7; Hayes v. Hayes, 29 Gr. 181. And the Master may, at the request of a party, report specially as to matters not particularly referred to him, but which form the subject of charges of fraud in the pleadings: Ib.

In a mortgage suit the Master may report specially, as to the existence of a claim of the wife of a mortgagor to dower in the surplus: Bore v. Wert, 13 C. L. J. 326; 7 P. R. 252.

The Master should not report circumstances, showing an accounting party to have been guilty of wilful neglect, and default, as a "special circumstance," but he should himself determine whether or not the party is so liable, and if so, find the amount due on that footing: Wulmsley v. Bull, 2 Chy. Ch. 344.

Claims which are not referred to the Master to take an account of, cannot be allowed by the Master, but may be reported as "special circumstances": see Fielder v. O'Hara, etc., supra.

Where money has been received by a trustee during his minority the Master should report the amount so received, notwithstanding the infancy: Re Gurnes, Gurnes v. Applin, 31 Ch. D. 147; 54 L. L. 141.

General Powers of Master:—

Rule 667.

Rule 667 (y) provides that, generally, in taking the accounts, the Master is to inquire, adjudge, and report as to all matters relating thereto, as fully as if the same had been specially referred to him.

General powers of Masters to inquire as to all matters relating to accounts

The general powers here given, enable the Master to inquire as to, and to take the accounts on the footing of, wilful default in accounts of personalty, as well as of realty, and he is not limited to the matters of inquiry specially enumerated in this Rule: Carpenter v. Wood, 10 Gr. 354. But the Master cannot inquire into the validity of the instrument upon which the plaintiff's judgment was obtained: Bickford v. Grand Junction Ry. Co., 1 S. C. R. 696, see p. 725 et seq.; not even at the instance of parties added in his office: McDougall v. Lindsay Paper Mills Co., 10 P. R. 247; 20 C. L. J. 133; and see Re Munsie, 20 C. L. J. 112; Wiley v. Ledyard, 10 P. R. 182; 20 C. L. J. 142; nor, when the judgment awards larger relief than was claimed by the pleadings, can the Master restrict the inquiry as to damages or otherwise, to the relief claimed by the pleadings: Smith v. Leeson, 11 P. R. 24; neither can he extend the inquiry under a general reference "to take accounts" to matters beyond the scope of the pleadings: Rowland v. Burwell, 12 P. R. 607; Bennicourt v. Le Gendre, 1900, A. C. 173. But the mere fact that a plaintiff claiming to be a creditor has obtained a judgment directing the taking of accounts, reserving further directions, was held not to preclude the defendants from taking the objection that the plaintiff is not in fact a creditor, and consequently has no locus standi, and from insisting, on the hearing on further directions, that his action should on that ground, be dismissed: Bank of Toronto v. Beaver Mutual, 28 Gr. 87; and see Barton v. Barton, 3 K. & J. 512, 514; Houseman v. Houseman, 1 Ch. D. 335.

But it will be seen that it is only matters relating to the accounts which are referred to him to take, as to which he has these general powers; he cannot allow claims altogether outside of the accounts he is directed to take, and not necessarily connected therewith. Such claims, though they cannot be allowed by the Master, may, however, be reported by him as "special circumstances," and the Court, in its discretion, may on further directions, or on special application for that purpose, allow them: Fielder v. O'Hara, 2 Chy. Ch. 255; and see Wiley v. Ledyard, supra.

Under these general powers, in an administration suit where a creditor made a claim by virtue of a partnership with the testator, it was held that the partnership accounts might be taken in order to establish the claim: Kline v. Kline, 3 Chy. Ch. 137; and the Master may inquire as to a stated account set up in the defence, though no evidence was given of it at the hearing: Edinboro' Life Association v. Allen, 23 Gr. 230; Holgate v. Shutt, 28 Ch. D. 111; but scilicet, not as to usury, as affecting the amount recoverable on a security: see Penn v. Lockwood, 1 Gr. 547.

The Master cannot under these general powers set off costs so as to interfere with the lien of a solicitor on a fund: Bell v. Wright, 24 S. C. R. 656.

Where a settlement is come to between the parties, pending a reference, if it is disputed, the Master, under his general powers, may inquire as to its terms and report thereon: Corry v. Leuaine, 18 P. R. 482.

668. Witnesses may, by direction of the Master, be examined before a special Examiner. Con. Rule 58.

Taken from Chy. O. 221.

The Master may direct witnesses to be examined before any other Master, or Examiner, of the Court, without the consent of the parties: Re Casey, Biddell v. Casey, 1 Chy. Ch. 198.

The Master may also grant an order for a commission to issue to take evidence out of the jurisdiction: see Rule 499 (2).

The Master cannot grant an order for a commission ex parte, McLennan v. Helps, 3 Chy. Ch. 193; except where the reference is ex parte.

As to when a commission may be granted, see notes to Rule 499.

As to proceedings under a commission, see Rules 503-515.

Where an application is made to the Master for a commission to cross-examine a plaintiff resident abroad, on an affidavit filed by him in support of his account, the Master cannot properly refuse it, so long as the plaintiff relies on the affidavit in support of his claim: Townend v. Hunter, 3 C. L. T. 310.

The Master's order for a commission should follow, as nearly as may be, the form of order given in the Rules: see Form No. 120. (H. & L. Forms No. 757).

As to cross-examination on an affidavit in the Master's Office, see note to Rule 499, supra, p. 713.

669. The Master may cause parties to be examined, and to produce books, papers and writings, as he thinks fit, and may determine what books, papers and writings are to be produced, and when and how long they are to be left in his office; or in case he does not deem it necessary that such books and papers or writings should be left or deposited in his office, he may give directions for the inspection thereof by the parties requiring the same, at such time and in such manner as he deems expedient. Con. Rule 59.

Taken from Chy. O. 222.

All officers of the Court have power to administer oaths and to examine witnesses for the purposes of proceedings before them: see Jud. Act, sec. 177.

Any party to a reference pending before a Master is entitled to require the evidence to be given orally, and may object to affidavits being received: see Rule 484, and see per Mowat, V.C., Brady v. Walls, 17 Gr. at p. 702.

Witnesses.—A subpoena may issue, as of course, to secure the attendance of witnesses before a Master: Hannum v. McRae, 17 P. R. 567; 18 P. R. 185.

Any party to an action is now eligible as a witness in his own behalf: see R. S. O. c. 73, ss. 2-11.

In an action by, or against, heirs, or personal representatives, or assignees, of a deceased person: Ib., s. 10; or by or against a lunatic, or an inmate of a lunatic asylum: Ib., s. 11, the evidence of any opposite, or interested party, must be corroborated. As to the nature of the corroboration required, see Sugden v. Lord St. Leonards, 3 P. D. 154, 179; McDonald v. McKinnon, 26 Gr. 12; Stodhart v. Stodhart, 30 C. C. Q. B. 203; McKay v. McKay, 31 C. P. 1; Adamson v. Adamson, 28 Gr. 228; Brown v. Capron, 24 Gr. 31; Re Robbins, 23 Gr. 162; Halleron v. Moon, 28 Gr. 319; Re Ross, 29 Gr. 385; 18 C. L. J. 11; Re Laws, Laws v. Laws, 28 Gr. 382; Parker v. Parker, 32 C. P. 113; Birdsell v. Johnson, 24 Gr. 202; Findley v. Pedan, 26 C. P. 481; Rose v. Hickey, 3 Ont. App. 309; Re Marryn, 29 Gr. 443; 9 Ont. App. 363; Burn v. Burn, 20 C. L. J. 148; Re Curry, 32 Ont. 159; Thompson v. Coulter, 34 S. C. R. 261; Davis v. Walker, 5 O. L. R. 173; Wilson v. Howe, 5 O. L. R. 323. In England there is no such statute, nor any absolute rule as to corroboration in such a case: Re Griffin, 1899, 1 Ch. 408; 79 L. T. 442.

The whole case need not be proved by independent testimony: Radford v. Macdonald, 18 Ont. App. 167. It is sufficient if evidence of the interested party is strengthened by evidence which appreciably helps the judicial mind to believe one or more of the material facts deposed to: Ib.; and see Green v. McLeod, 23 Ont. App. 676; Secor v. Gray, 3 O. L. R. 34; Wilson v. Howe, supra. And where a wife made a claim against her husband's estate for moneys advanced to pay premiums on a policy on his life, and it was shewn that the money was paid by a third party out of moneys of the wife in his hands, in which payment the wife reluctantly acquiesced, and that the policy was entirely in the husband's control and disposition, it was held that corroborative evidence of a contract to repay the money was not necessary: Elliott v. Bussell, 19 Ont. 413.

The testimony of one interested witness cannot be accepted as corroboration of another interested witness's testimony: Taylor v. Regis, 26 Ont. 483.

No corroboration is necessary as to matters occurring after the death of a deceased person affecting his estate: McCloughan v. Perkins, 5 O. L. R. 129.

A witness may be cross-examined in the Master's office on the whole case. The Master cannot properly confine the cross-examination to the evidence given in chief. But in some cases, it may be proper to exercise his discretion, as to the party to pay the fees of the examination: Crandell v. Moon, 6 U. C. L. J. 143.

Where a party is examined as a witness on his own behalf and dies before he can be cross-examined, his evidence is nevertheless admissible: Randall v. Atkinson, 30 Ont. 242, 620.

The Master should not allow a witness who has been examined, to be recalled in order to supplement his testimony, except in cases where the Court itself would allow him to be re-examined: see Patterson v. Scott, 1 Gr. 582.

Depositions in Another Action, or Books of Account, how far Evidence.—As to how far evidence taken in another action, and books of account of third parties are receivable in evidence in the Master's office, see Court v. Holland, S. P. R. 219.

Rule 670.Production of documents

Production of Books and Papers.—When books are in constant use, and the party required to produce them offers to allow them to be inspected in his counting house, the Master should not require them to be left in his office, in the absence of any special ground for so doing: Re Ross, 8 P. R. 86; 5 Ont. App. 82; but the usual affidavit on production must be filed, though the deposit of the books in the Master's office be dispensed with: Ib.; Darling v. Darling, 10 C. L. J. 329.

In taking accounts in an action for infringement of a patent, the defendant is bound to disclose the names of customers to whom he has sold the goods infringing the patent: Saccharin Corporation v. Chemical & Drugs Co., 1900, 2 Ch. 556, 83 L. T. 206.

Remedy for default in production.

Default.—Where default has been made in the production of documents, or the attendance of a witness to be examined, an application may be made to commit for contempt. The application should be made to a Judge, and not to the Master in Chambers, or to any County Court Judge, or Local Master: Keefe v. Ward, 18 C. L. J. 166; 2 C. L. T. 264. For form of certificate of default: see H. & L. Forms, Nos. 1029, 1045; Sutherland v. Rogers, 2 Chy. Ch. 191.

Master

tise for creditors, heirs or next of kin, etc.

670. The Master may cause advertisements for creditors, and if he thinks it necessary, for heirs or next of kin, or other unascertained persons, and the representatives of such as are dead, to be published as the circumstances of the case require; and in such advertisements he shall appoint a time within which such persons are to come in and prove their claims, and within which time, unless they so come in, they are to be excluded from the benefit of the judgment or order. Con. Rule 60.

Taken from Chy. O. 223.

Time to be limited for coming inAdverts. for creditors
where dispensed
with.

The Master may dispense with an advertisement for creditors in an administration action, where the personal representative had, before action, duly advertised under H. S. O. c. 129, s. 38: Cuthbert v. Wharmby, W. N. 1869, 12; but he should state in his report that he has done so, and the reason for so doing. But mere lapse of time, even of twenty years, from the death of the deceased person whose estate is being administered, is not sufficient to warrant the Master in dispensing with an advertisement for creditors, and the Court has referred causes back to the Master to advertise for creditors, where the Master has omitted to do so, merely in consequence of the lapse of time.

There is no rule of practice rendering it necessary in every case for the sufficiency of publication of notices to creditors, under Imp. Act 22 & 23 Vict. c. 34, s. 29, to have an advertisement in the Times or other London daily papers in addition to the Gazette: Re Bracken, 38 W. R. 48; 61 L. T. 531; and it is not necessary that an advertisement in Ontario should be published in the Ontario Gazette: Re Cameron, 15 P. R. 272.

Forms of
advertisements.

See further as to advertisement for creditors of a deceased person, Rule 701, and for form of advertisements for creditors in an administration action, see Form 79 (H. & L. Forms, No. 936), and for heirs or next of kin, see H. & L. Forms, No. 960.

A month at least should be allowed for creditors to file claims, Rule 671 three weeks was considered too short a time: see Wood v. Weightman, L. R. 13 Eq. 434.

Time for sending in claims

Where the action has been constituted as provided by Rule 203 (1), heirs, and other persons interested, whose presence as original parties is dispensed with by that Rule, are nevertheless to be served with a copy of the judgment, as provided by Rule 203 (3), unless the Master dispenses with service. If they are neither served, nor service on them dispensed with, they are not bound by the accounts or proceedings: L. J. v. Lewis, 25 Out. App. 242. Where any of such persons cannot be found to be served with the judgment, the Master may require an advertisement to be published as a condition of dispensing with service on them. But there seems to be no provision authorizing substitutional service of a judgment under Rule 203 (3). Service out of the jurisdiction may be authorized: see Rules 162 (1) 163. It is doubtful whether persons on whom service of a judgment is dispensed with, would be bound by the proceedings: see L. J. v. Lewis, supra, and supra, p. 371.

Persons to be served with copy of judgment.

671. The Master shall proceed on the claims brought in before him pursuant to such advertisement, without further notice, and may examine witnesses in relation thereto at the time appointed in the advertisement, or thereafter as he sees fit. Con. Rule 61.

Master to proceed on claim brought in.

Taken from Chy. O. 224.

In actions for the administration of a deceased person's estate, the mode of proving claims of creditors is regulated by Rule 701 et seq.

Mode of proving claims of creditors.

In other actions the creditor, or claimant, is required to file his claim with an affidavit verifying it. If the claim be disputed, the claimant may be required, at the instance of a opposing party, to establish his claim by oral evidence. Where the claim is evidenced by some written document, the production of the document and proof of its due execution, if disputed, and the claimant's affidavit of the amount due, is usually a sufficient prima facie case, and the onus then rests with the party opposing the claim to adduce evidence: see Court v. Holland, 8 P. R. 213; and see Rule 750 and notes. A claimant may be cross-examined on his affidavit: Court v. Pomeroy, 3 Sin. & G. 369; 3 Jur. N. S. 38; 26 L. J. Ch. 353; and see Rule 400.

Parties residing out of the jurisdiction coming into the Master's office to prove claims, cannot be ordered to give security for costs: Palmer v. Lovett, 14 P. R. 415, overruling Re Ross, Urquhart v. Toronto General Trusts Co., 10 P. R. 425; but in the event of their failing to substantiate their claims they may be ordered to pay costs occasioned thereby: see Rule 1137.

In actions for the administration of a deceased person's estate, no party other than the personal representative, unless by leave of the Master, can appear on the claim of any person, against the estate of the deceased in respect of a debt or liability. But the Master may direct any person to appear, in addition to, or in place of, the personal representative, upon such terms as to costs or otherwise as may seem proper: see Rule 204; and see Rules 662, 665, 1147, 1148.

Parties entitled to attend on proof of claims

Rule 672.

In creditors' actions plaintiff must prove claim, and any creditor may dispute any other creditor's claim.

In a creditor's action, the plaintiff must prove his claim in the Master's office, even though he may have proved it at the trial, and any creditor may dispute the claim of any other creditor: Field v. Titman, 1 Sim. N. S. 218; Orcus v. Dickinson, Cr. & Ph. 48, subject to Rule 204; and the Master has power to adjudicate upon all questions arising between creditors inter se: Merchants Bank v. Monteith, 11 P. R. 458. The mere fact that a plaintiff claiming to be a creditor has obtained a judgment directing the taking of accounts and making of inquiries, does not preclude the defendants upon such reference from taking the objection that the plaintiff is not a creditor, and has consequently no locus standi, and from insisting, on the hearing on further directions, that his action should on that ground be dismissed: Bank of Toronto v. Beaver Mutual, 28 Gr. 87; see Barton v. Barton, 3 K. & J. 512, 517; Houseman v. Houseman, 1 Ch. D. 535.

Creditors coming in after time has expired.

Creditors who have omitted to file their claims within the time limited, may be allowed to come in and prove their claims, before report, by leave of the Master; and after report, on application in Chambers, so long as the fund remains in Court: Lashley v. Hogg, 11 Ves. 602; Angell v. Haddon, 1 Mad. 520; Re Metcalfe, W. N. 1870, 1045; Cotton v. Vansittart, 9 C. L. J. 312; Andrews v. Maulson, 1 Chy. Ch. 316; the statement in the advertisement that in default of coming in and proving their claims within the time limited, the creditors will be barred, is merely in terrorem and not conclusive: Harrison v. Kirk, 1804, A. C. 1; 80 L. T. 506. But a creditor coming in after a dividend has been paid, is only entitled to prove against the residue of the fund for a similar proportion of his debt; he is not permitted to disturb any prior dividend: Gillespie v. Alexander, 3 Russ. 130; Greig v. Somerville, 1 R. & M. 338; Todd v. Studholme, 3 K. & J. 324.

Creditor objecting to form of decree might rehear.

A creditor proving a claim, and objecting to the form of the decree, could, under the former practice, only obtain relief by rehearing the cause: Mutholland v. Hamilton, 12 Gr. 413; Willis v. Willis, 20 Gr. 306. And a petition of a creditor to vary a decree was refused with costs: Mutholland v. Hamilton, supra.

Creditor, appeal by.

A creditor whose claim is disallowed, may appeal at once on a certificate of disallowance, without waiting for a general report: Re Clagett, Fordham v. Clagett, 20 Ch. D. 657; 46 L. T. 70.

Interest.—As to the allowance of interest on claims in the Master's office, see Re Ross, 20 Gr. 385, and notes to ss. 113-116 of the Jud. Act.

A Referee has power to allow interest on the amount of a loss by fire referred to, or ascertained by him: Atty.-Gen. v. Etna Ins. Co., 13 P. R. 450.

As to interest on mortgages, see notes to Rules 607, 750.

Master's power as to settlement of conveyances.

672. Under every judgment or order whereby the delivery of deeds or execution of conveyances is directed, the Master shall give directions as to delivery of such deeds, settle conveyances where the parties differ, and give directions as to the parties to the conveyances, and as to the execution thereof. Con. Rule 62.

Taken from Chy. O. 226.

Under every judgment, or order, directing a sale, the Master to Rules whom the action is referred, may, without any special directions, 673, 674. settle all necessary conveyances in case the parties differ, or in case there be any parties interested in the sale who are under any disability except coverture: see Rule 731; and see further as to sales: Rules 718-742. Under this Rule the Master has power to deal with questions arising on the conveyance as to the payment off of incumbrances: and when a party applied to the Court instead of to the Master, no other costs were given: Stammers v. O'Nohoc, 29 Gr. 64.

A covenant on the part of an ant for payment is not a proper covenant to be inserted in a mortgage: Brown v. Grady, 31 Ont. 73.

673. Where an account is to be taken, the accounting party, unless the Master otherwise directs, shall bring in the same in debit and credit form, verified by affidavit. The items on each side of the account shall be numbered consecutively, and the account shall be referred to by the affidavits as an exhibit, and shall not be annexed thereto. Con. Rule 63.

Taken from Chy. O. 227.

When a personal representative of a deceased person is required to account in respect of the dealings of the deceased, he is bound to make up the accounts of such dealings, from the books in his possession: Strathy v. Crooks, 5 Gr. 162.

A party may be estopped by acquiescence from moving to set aside accounts brought in, in an improper form: Wade v. Rice, C. P. Co. 428.

The deponent may be cross-examined on an affidavit verifying accounts. A party who is to be cross-examined on an affidavit verifying accounts, is entitled to detailed notice of the points in respect to which he is to be examined: Re Lord, Lord v. Lord, L. R. 2 Eq. 605. A notice that all the items but one are objected to, is insufficient: McArthur v. Dudgeon, L. R. 15 Eq. 102; and see Rule 680 infra. Such cross-examination may take place before the account is vouched: Meacham v. Cooper, L. R. 16 Eq. 102.

The affidavit under this Rule and the production of the vouchers, is prima facie sufficient to warrant the Master in passing the accounts, and where voluminous accounts had been passed under this Rule, the pointing out of one or two items as prima facie objectionable, was held insufficient to warrant the re-opening of the account: In re Curry, 17 P. R. 379; affirmed, 25 Ont. App. 267.

674. The Master may direct that in taking accounts, the books of account, in which the accounts required to be taken have been kept or any of them, be taken as prima facie evidence of the truth of the matters therein contained. Con. Rule 64.

Taken from Chy. O. 228.

Rules675-677.

Sums of £5 and under allowed without voucher.

Vouchers to be produced.

Books of account when admissible.

No state of facts, etc., to be brought in.

Copies, abstracts, etc., to be supplied as Master directs.

Parties bound by Master's direction without warrant.

The Chy. O. 228 was adapted from Imp. Stat. 15 & 16 Vict. c. 86. s. 54. Every sum of £8 and under, is allowed without a voucher, upon the oath of the accounting party; see Everard v. Warren, 2 Ch. Ca. 249; but his oath must be positive, and not on belief only: Robinson v. Cumming, 2 Atk. 410; and it would seem that the aggregate of such items should not exceed $400 in amount: Bennett's M. O. 86. Greater latitude in proving other items is also allowed when the account is of long standing; Id. Receipts, or other vouchers, must be produced, but when they are lost, or accidentally destroyed, secondary evidence will be let in: Id.; and it is to such cases, or when, for any other reason, it is impossible to vouch the account in any other way, that this Rule is intended to apply: Lodge v. Prichard, 3 D. M. & G. 906; and see Ewart v. Williams, 7 D. M. & G. 67. In partnership cases, however, the books of account of the firm are admissible by virtue of the general law, without any special direction: Gething v. Keighley, 9 Ch. D. 547, 551. Books of trustees of a will were allowed to be taken as prima facie evidence for a period of 21 years, as against a cestui que trust who had access to them, but had not actually inspected them: Banks v. Cartwright, 15 W. R. 417; and see Steight v. Lawson, 3 K. & J. 202; Ogden v. Battams, 1 Jur. N. S. 791; Hardwick v. Wright, 15 W. R. 953.

675. No state of facts, charges or discharges shall be brought into the Master's office; and where original deeds or documents can be brought in, no copies are to be made without special direction. Con. Rule 65.

Taken from Chy. O. 229. See Bennett's M. O. p. 84.

676. Where directed, copies, abstracts of, or extracts from accounts, deeds, or other documents and pedigree, and concise statements shall be supplied; and where so directed, copies shall be delivered as the Master may direct. Con. Rule 66.

Taken from Chy. O. 230.

The party having the conduct of the reference, is usually required to furnish copies, abstracts, etc., which relate to the general inquiries, and the other parties only such as relate exclusively to themselves; see note to Rule 657.

677. A party directed by the Master to bring in an account, or do any other act, shall be held bound to do the same in pursuance of the direction of the Master, without any warrant or written direction being served for that purpose. Con. Rule 67.

Taken from Chy. O. 231.

This Rule of course implies that the party directed to do the act, or his solicitor, has actual notice of the direction, otherwise a warrant must be taken out and served.

678. Before proceeding to the hearing and determining of a reference, the Master may appoint a day in the meantime for the purpose of entering into the accounts and inquiries, with a view to ascertaining what is admitted and what is contested between the parties. Con. Rule 68.

Rules
678-681.

Warrant to appoint a day to ascertain what is admitted and what is contested

Taken from Chy. O. 232.

Admissions before the Master should be entered in his book (see Rule 681), and subscribed by the parties or their solicitors; Foster v. Allison, 11 P. R. 233; 21 C. L. J. 418. Admissions made by a solicitor without the authority of his client have been allowed to be withdrawn on the terms of the items admitted being taken to be prima facie correct, and the onus being cast on the party withdrawing the admission, of showing that they are wrong; McBean v. McBean, 11 P. R. 429; 22 C. L. J. 348.

679. Where the Master has appointed a day for the purposes mentioned in Rule 678, he may grant to the party bringing in accounts a warrant to proceed on the same, for the purposes aforesaid; such warrant to be underwritten as follows: "On leaving the accounts of, etc., and take notice that you are required to admit the same or such parts thereof as you can properly admit." Con. Rule 69.

When day not previously appointed warrant may issue to ascertain what admitted.

Taken from Chy. O. 233.

As to the costs occasioned by any party improperly refusing to admit facts: see Rule 1149; McIntyre v. Canada Co., 18 Gr. 370.

680. A party seeking to charge an accounting party beyond what he has in his account admitted to have received, shall give notice thereof to the accounting party, stating as far as he is able, the amount sought to be charged, and the particulars thereof in a short and succinct manner. Con. Rule 70.

Party seeking to charge accounting party must give notice of particulars.

Taken from Chy. O. 237.

An accounting party who is intended to be cross-examined on his affidavit verifying his accounts, is entitled to notice of the items on which he is to be cross-examined; Re Lord, Lord v. Lord, L. R. 2 Eq. 605; Wormsley v. Sturt, 22 Beav. 398; Re Curry, 17 P. R. 379; items he is 25 Ont. App. 267; and it is not sufficient to inform him that all the items except one are objected to, but the notice must specify the points on which the cross-examination is to proceed; McArthur v. Dudgeon, L. R. 15 Eq. 102; and see Glover v. Ellison, 20 W. R. 408; and unless he has been thus duly notified he may refuse to be sworn; McArthur v. Dudgeon, supra; see Eng. Chy. O. 30, of 16th October, 1852.

681. The Master shall keep in his office a book, to be called the "Master's Book," in which, upon the bringing in of a judgment or order of reference, he shall enter the Master's Book, how to be kept.

Rules
682-684.

style of the cause, the name of the solicitor prosecuting the reference, the date of the judgment or order being brought in, and the proceedings then taken; and he shall also enter therein, from time to time, the proceedings taken before him, and the directions which he gives in relation to the prosecution of the reference, or otherwise. Con. Rule 71.

In the book referred to in this Rule any admissions which are made during the proceedings before the Master, should be entered and signed by the parties or their solicitors making the same: Beaudry v. Gallien, 5 O. L. R. 73; and see Rule 677. note.

Master to certify proceeding in his office.

682. Upon the application of any person, the Master shall certify, as shortly as he conveniently can, the several proceedings had in his office in any cause or matter, and the dates thereof. Con. Rule 72.

Taken from Chy. O. 239.

After a Master has made his report, he should not certify as to any matters before him in the course of the inquiry upon which he has made his report, unless required by the Court so to do: Rosebath v. Parry, 27 Gr. 193; and see Rule 687, and notes.

For forms of certificates, see H. & L. Forms, Nos. 1028, 1029. As to appealing from a certificate, see Rules 769-772.

Master to devise simplest and speediest method of prosecuting
references.

683. In giving directions, and in regulating the manner of proceeding before him, the Master shall devise and adopt the simplest, most speedy, and least expensive method of prosecuting the reference and with that view, shall dispense with any proceedings ordinarily taken, but which he conceives to be unnecessary and shorten the periods for taking any proceedings, or substitute a different course of proceedings for that ordinarily taken. Con. Rule 73.

Taken from Chy. O. 240.

The Master is not authorized under this Rule to employ the services of experts: Re Robertson, Robertson v. Robertson, 24 Gr. 555. But he may appoint experts to examine into matters referred to him so as to enable them to give evidence before him, on which to act; and the costs of persons so appointed are taxable between party and party: McKay v. Ketcher, 12 P. R. 256.

The Master should allow amendments of accounts, when such amendments would be allowed before judgment: Court v. Holland, 4 Ont. 688.

Appointments for several days may be included in one warrant.

684. Where the Master directs parties not in attendance before him to be notified to attend at some future day, for different purposes at different future days, it shall not be necessary to issue separate warrants, but the parties shall be notified by one appointment, signed by the Master, of the proceedings to be taken, and of the times by him appointed for the taking of the same. Con. Rule 74.

Taken from Chy. O. 241.

The words "warrant" and "appointment," though apparently used in this and the two following Rules as distinct things, appear nevertheless to be in effect convertible terms: see Bennett's M. O., p. 6 et seq., and see form of warrant; Bennett's M. O. App. 1; H. & L. Forms, Nos. 957, 958.

685. Where parties are notified by appointment from the Master, of proceedings to be taken before him, no warrants shall be issued as to such parties, in relation to the same proceedings. Con. Rule 75.

Taken from Chy. O. 242.

686. Parties making default upon such appointments, shall be subject to the same consequences as if warrants had been served upon them. Con. Rule 76.

Taken from Chy. O. 243.

687. As soon as the hearing of any matter pending before the Master is completed, he shall so inform the parties to the reference then in attendance, and make a note to that effect in his book; and after such entry no further evidence shall be received, or proceedings had, without the special permission of the Master; and the Master may proceed to prepare his report or certificate without further warrant, except the warrant to settle which shall be served on the parties as the Master directs. Con. Rule 77.

Taken from Chy. O. 247.

The Master should not make any ex parte communications to any of the parties as to his decision, and he should draw his report himself; and not delegate it to the solicitor of any of the parties, and all parties interested should have equal facilities for knowing the result and being present at the settlement of the report: Knare v. Bricker, 16 P. R. 363.

There is no difference between a report and a certificate of a Master, "though we apply the term 'report' to the more lengthened productions of a Master, and the term 'certificate' to his shorter statements. It is, I think, clear that all his reports are certificates, and all his certificates are reports." per Shadwell, V.C., Chennel v. Martin, 4 Sim. 344; In re Mulphy, 17 P. R. 247.

Parties served with the judgment under Rule 203, who do not give notice to the plaintiff that they desire to attend the proceedings, need not be served with a warrant to settle the report: Green v. Measures, W. N. 1866, 122; Lee v. Sturrock, W. N. 1876, 226.

Rules
685-687.

Parties notified by Master not to be served with warrant.

Parties notified, liable for default as if served with warrant.

Master to notify parties when hearing concluded, and to note it in his book.

Thereafter no evidence to be given, except by leave.

Masters report and certificate.

Rule 687. It would seem that a warrant to settle a report formerly required four days' service: see Bennett's M. O. 20; Beames' Ord. in Chy. 259.

A report or certificate should not, in a contested matter, be made ex parte, when intended to be used as evidence against the opposite party: see Re Ryan v. Simonton, 13 P. R. 299; sed vide, Jones v. MacDonald, 14 P. R. 109.

Application to open reference. When the Master has closed the reference, an application to let in further evidence may be made to him at any time before the report is signed: Re Ritchie, Sewery v. Ritchie, 23 Gr. 66. After report, the application can only be made to the Court: O'Donohoe v. Hembroff, 9 C. L. J. 312; or a Judge: see note to Rule 769. But to warrant such application being granted, the applicant must in general make such a case as would entitle him to a new trial: Waddell v. Smyth, 3 Chy. Ch. 412; and see Patterson v. Scott, 1 Gr. 582; Saunders v. Saunders, 45 L. T. 628; Carradice v. Currie, 10 Gr. 108; Mason v. Seney, 12 Gr. 143; Hosking v. Terry, 8 Jur. N. S. 977.

Master not functus officio till he has fully reported. A Master is not functus officio until he has made his report on all the matters referred to him: Rae v. Geddes, 3 Chy. Ch. 404; but after he has made his report he should not certify as to any matters before him in the course of the inquiry upon which he has made his report, unless required by the Court so to do: Rosebatch v. Parry, 27 Gr. 193; the same rule applies to taxing officers: Langtry v. Dumoulin, 10 P. R. 444.

Masters' Reports are either General, Special, or Separate.

General report. A General Report is that which comprises the conclusion which the Master has come to, upon all the matters referred to him by the judgment, or order under which he has proceeded.

Separate report. A Separate Report is that which embraces one or more separate matters of the reference, and the conclusion the Master has come to thereon; and is limited thereto, apart from the other matters referred. A report on sale is a familiar illustration of a separate report.

Where an order directed a taxation of the plaintiff's costs including therein the remuneration of receivers and managers appointed in the action, and to certify the balance after setting off certain costs of the defence, it was held to be improper for the Master to make a separate report of the plaintiff's costs alone: Re Silkstone Co. v. Edey, 1901, 2 Ch. 652.

Special report. A Special Report, is a report of special circumstances found by the Master, as a guide to the Court for some further direction upon the facts so reported.

Special reports on matters which the Master has power himself to adjudicate upon, and dispose of, are not to be made, unless specially directed by the judgment, or order, of reference: see Bennett's M. O. 18, 19; Walmsley v. Bull, 2 Chy. Ch. 344, and other cases, infra.

Report, what it should state. A report should not be dated before the costs included therein have been revised, when revision is necessary: Waddell v. McColl, 14 Gr. 211.

A report, like a judgment, should state results only, and should not set forth the evidence, arguments, or reasons, on which the conclusions are arrived at: Sovereign v. Sovereign, 15 Gr. 559; Booth v. Ratté, 21 S. C. R. 657; Rule 689.

Where the Master is specially directed to state his reasons, they should be stated briefly: McLargar v. McKinnon, 15 Gr. 361. All unnecessary prolixity in reports is to be avoided: S. C. 17 Gr. 525.

The report should not go beyond the order, or judgment, of reference, or the Court will not respect it: see Beames' Orders, 23; and see Clouster v. McLean, 10 Gr. 576; and see Imperial Trusts Co. v. N. Y. Security Co., 5 O. W. R. 641. And matters should not be reported specially, or as special circumstances, which the Master has himself power to adjudicate upon: e.g.; whether or not an accounting party is chargeable on the footing of wilful default, etc.; Walmsley v. Bull, 2 Chy. Ch. 344; whether a particular debt is, or is not, an asset of an estate being administered; Clouster v. McLean, 10 Gr. at p. 578.

Rule 688.
Should not go beyond order of reference.
Nor report specially unnecessarily.

A Master's report was set aside where he had exceeded his authority by reporting on matters not referred to him Doult v. McHicth, 14 S. C. R. 739.

But the Master should state in his report such matters as may be necessary for the information of the Court on further directions, or to enable it to dispose of the question of costs: e.g., the priorities of creditors: Lavin v. O'Neill, 13 Gr. 170; and of the legatees: Clouster v. McLean, 10 Gr. 576, should be stated; and where a separate solicitor is appointed to represent a class which is prima facie sufficiently represented by the plaintiff, or some other party to the action, the reason for the appointment should be stated: Gorham v. Gorham, 17 Gr. 386; and where an advertisement for creditors has been dispensed with, the fact and the reason for it should be stated in the report: see Rule 670 note. Where the Master dispensed with service of judgment on parties required to be served therewith by Rule 203 (3) he was formerly required to state his reasons therefor, in his report: see Chy. O. 387, Holmsted's Rules and Orders, 349, but that provision is not embodied in these Rules, although it would seem to be a practice which should still be followed.

But should report matters necessary to dispose of costs.

Sums charged against an accounting party, on the footing of wilful default should be distinguished in the report from sums actually received: Moodie v. Leslie, 12 Gr. 537.

The Master should not make a final report in an action until he is in a position to deal with all the matters referred to him: e.g., it is improper to make a final report in an action to wind up a partnership, finding a balance due from one partner to another, until all the assets are realized: Smith v. Crooks, 3 Gr. 321. But when the Master is not able to make a final report, he may, when necessary, make a separate report as to certain of the matters referred to him, and which he is able to report on.

Final report, when to be made.

Death or Removal of Master.—Where a Master dies or becomes incapacitated pending the reference, an order may be obtained referring the cause to another Master with power to adopt the proceedings already taken: Anon., 4 Jur. 858.

Death, etc. of Master.

For forms of reports on sales see Form 86 (H. & L. Forms, No. 1013); and of reports in administration actions, Form 84 (H. & L. Forms, No. 1042).

688. Parties shall raise before the Master, in respect of any matters presented in his office, for his decision, all points which may afterwards be raised upon appeal. Con. Rule 18.

Points intended to be raised on appeal to be taken before Master.

Rules

689-692. Taken from Chy. O. 248, which went on to provide that in case an appeal was allowed on any ground not distinctly taken before the Master, the Court might order the appellant to pay the costs of the appeal; but this provision has not been embodied in these Rules. Under the Chy. O. 248, it would seem that the Court might, in its discretion, entertain appeals on grounds not distinctly taken before the Master, but in such cases might order the appellant, even if successful, to pay the costs of the appeal.

Or Court may refuse to entertain the appeal.

Although the Court might formerly allow an appeal on a ground not taken before the Master, it might refuse so to do. Thus, the Court refused to allow the Statute of Limitations to be raised on appeal, it not having been raised before the Master: Brigham v. Smith, 18 Gr. 224; and see Clouster v. McLean, 10 Gr. 576.

In order to avoid any question as to whether or not any point intended to be raised on appeal, has been taken before the Master, it is safer to deliver the objection in writing, or to have it noted in the Master's book; but this is not absolutely necessary: see Rule 692.

690. Reports affecting money in Court, or to be paid into Court, shall set forth, in figures, in a schedule, a brief summary of the sums found by the report, and paid or payable into or out of Court, and the funds or shares to which the sums of money are respectively chargeable. Con. Rule 80.

An omission to observe this Rule may prevent the report from being acted on in the Accountant's office.

691. As soon as the Master's report or certificate is prepared, it shall be delivered out to the party prosecuting the reference, or in case he declines to take the same, then, in the discretion of the Master, to any other party applying therefor; and a common attendance shall be allowed to the party taking the same. Con. Rule 81.

692. No written objections or exceptions need be taken before the Master previously to an appeal. Con. Rule 82.

Appeal, when Necessary.—Ordinarily, where the objection to the report is not manifest on its face, an appeal must be brought, unless the report be a nullity, Fuller v. McLean, 8 P. R. 549; Queen v. Smith, 7 P. R. 429; Brown v. Dollard, 6 P. R. 113; where the report goes beyond the judgment, or order of reference, the report as to such matters will "not be respected" by the Court: Beames' Ord., 23, and therefore no appeal as to such matters would seem necessary; an incumbrancer claiming priority to the plaintiff, who is made a party as a subsequent incumbrancer, may either move to set aside the order making him a party (which appears to be the preferable practice), or appeal from the report on the question of priority: McDonald v. Rodger, 9 Gr. 75, and see Montgomery v. Shortis, 3 Ch. Ch. 69.

necessary

Mere clerical errors in a report may be corrected, even after confirmation, without appeal, by order in Chambers: see Rule 769 note; and where the Master who has made the report has also jurisdiction in Chambers, it would appear to be competent for him to make the order: but he has no jurisdiction to make any material alteration or amendment of the report, not being a clerical error: that can only be properly done on appeal: see Sked v. Holland, 9 C. L. T. 50.

For the purpose of appeal, a Master's certificate stands on the same footing as a report: Re Molphy, 17 P. R. 247.

For the procedure on appeals from a Master's report: see Rules 769-772.

693.—(1) Pending a reference to a Master all affidavits, papers and documents relating thereto required to be filed shall be filed with the Master, but every report or certificate of a Master shall be filed in the office in which the proceedings were commenced.

Reports

be filed.

(2) Any report or certificate filed in any office other than the Central Office may, at the request of any party to the proceedings, be forwarded to the Central Office. Con. Rule 84. Rules of 1 Jan., 1896, 1420; amended.

Under the former Con. Rule 84, reports of Local Masters were required to be filed in their own offices: under the present Rule all reports are required to be filed in the office where the proceedings were commenced: see Rules 14, and 15, and notes.

694.—(1) Any party affected by a report or certificate may file the same, or a duplicate thereof, and the filing of a duplicate shall have the same effect as the filing of the report or certificate. Con. Rule 83.

Any party may file report, or duplicate.

Taken from Chy. O. 254.

(2) Notice of the filing shall be given forthwith thereafter by the party filing the report. New.

Rule 695.

Report must be filed before appeal, and before it can be enforced.

The report, or certificate, of a Master or a Taxing Officer, must be filed before an appeal can be had therefrom: Hayes v. Hayes, 8 P. R. 546; Langtry v. Dumoulin, 10 P. R. 444; or before any process can issue thereon: Jellett v. Anderson, 8 P. R. 387. And where it appoints a time for the payment of money it should be filed before the day for payment: Mills v. Dixon, 2 Chy. Ch. 53; and be confirmed, where the report is one requiring confirmation: Mountain v. Porter, 1 Chy. Ch. 207.

As to delay in filing a duplicate report by a party intending to appeal, see Caisse v. Burnham, 6 P. R. 201.

Formerly a party could not by neglecting to file a report, extend the time for bringing on the appeal to be heard beyond a calendar month from its date: see former Con. Rule 849; but see now Rules 769, 771.

Notice of filing need not be served on defendants who have not appeared: Toronto General Trusts Corp. v. Craig, 2 O. L. R. 238.

Payment of money into bank, how to be directed in report.

695.—(1) Where the Master is directed to appoint money to be paid at some time and place, he shall appoint the same to be paid into some bank to the joint credit of the party to whom the same is made payable, and the Accountant; the party to whom the same is made payable may name the bank into which he desires the same to be paid. Con. Rule 85.

Taken from Chy. O. 255.

Party may pay money to the sole credit of the party entitled thereto or to the joint credit of such party and the Accountant.

(2) Where money is paid into a bank, in pursuance of such appointment, the party paying may pay the same either to the credit of the party to whom the same is made payable, or to the joint credit of the party and the Accountant; and if the same be paid to the sole credit of the party, such party shall be entitled to receive the same without order. Con. Rule 86.

Taken from Chy. O. 256.

Object of Rule.

This Rule does not relate to the payment of money into Court (as to that, see Rule 405 et seq.), but it is intended to provide for the payment of money in cases where the payee is required to do some act, as a condition of his receiving the money; e.g., in specific performance actions, where the vendor is required to execute a conveyance, or in mortgage actions, where the mortgagee, or incumbrancers, are required to release and discharge their incumbrances, etc.

How paid out.

Money paid into a bank under this Rule, is paid out on a joint cheque of the officer of the Court and of the party to whose credit it is paid in. The cheque will be signed by the officer either upon an order, obtained for that purpose, being produced, or without order, upon filing the written consent of the solicitor of the party paying the money in, and production of the judgment or order, and Master's report showing the person entitled to receive the same.

If the money be paid in to the sole credit of the party entitled, Rules under Rule 695 (2) he may draw it out at his pleasure. 696-697.

Where the party paying money in, refuses to consent to its pay- order for ment out to the party entitled, the latter may move in Chambers for when an order to the officer to sign the cheque: Bernard v. Alley, 2 Chy. necessary.
Ch. 91; Weeks v. Stourton, 11 Jar. N. S. 278. Although the refusal to consent appears to have been without reason, the applicant in Bernard v. Alley was refused his costs. The application must be made on notice: Totten v. McIntyre, 2 Chy. Ch. 462.

A report appointing the payment of money, should be filed before Report the day named for the payment: Mills v. Dixon, 2 Chy. Ch. 53; and should be confirmed, where the report is one requiring confirmation: Mountain day ap-v. Porter, 1 Chy. Ch. 207. pointed for payment

If the bank closes its office on or before the day named for payment, and default be made, an application must be made in Chambers to appoint a new day and to name another bank, and the order must be served: King v. Connor, 1 Chy. Ch. 274.

The Master should not, in an administration action, attach to his report a copy of the will of the testator whose estate is administered:

are payable for the like business to the Master in Chambers.

ter in Ordinary, or of a Judge of the High Court, may Referee the authority and power of such Master, but shall not be Master and Practice as to appealing from or acting on report of an Official Referee.

It will be observed that this Rule only applies where the Official Referee is sitting "for the Master," it does not apply to cases where a reference is made to an Official Referee direct; in the latter cases he has, however, certain powers of the Master in Ordinary under Rule 654. A report of an Official Referee, whether made upon a reference to him direct, or when sitting for the Master, is to be appealed from, or confirmed, in the same manner as a Local Master's report: Rules 700, 771.

The concluding words of this Rule are probably only intended to prevent the Official Referee from collecting fees for his own use, but not to disentitle him to charge the usual fees in law stamps.

mission of reference.

700. On the conclusion of proceedings before a Master he shall annex together all the papers in the action or matter before him and transmit the same to the office in which the proceedings were commenced, to be deposited with the other papers in the action or matter. Rules of 1 Jan., 1896, 1402. See also Rule 958.

(ii) Inquiries for Creditors.

Advertisement for creditors,
form of.

701. Every advertisement for creditors issued pursuant to a judgment or order, shall direct every creditor, by a time to be thereby limited, to send to such other party as the Master or other officer before whom the inquiry is, directs, or to his solicitor, to be named and described in the advertisement, the name and address of the creditor, and the full particulars of his claim, and a statement of his account, and the nature of the security (if any) held by him; and such advertisement shall be according to Form No. 79, and, at the time of directing such advertisement, a time shall be fixed for adjudicating on the claims. Con. Rule 976.

Where the Master finds that there has been a proper advertisement for creditors, under R. S. O. c. 129, s. 38, he may dispense with any further advertisement without any special direction so to do: Cuthbert v. Wharmby, W. N. 1869, 12; Seton, 5th ed., 1189, 1216; and see Re Bracken, Doughty v. Townson, 60 L. T. 628; S. C., affirmed 88 L. T. Jour. 6. It is not necessary that the advertisement should have been published in the Ontario Gazette; Re Cameron, 15 P. R. 272; and see Re Bracken, 61 L. T. 531; 38 W. R. 48.

For Form 79, see H. & L. Forms No. 936.

702. Where, in a cause or matter, an inquiry as to creditors is directed, the Master or other officer shall proceed according to or by analogy to the procedure provided by Rules 703 to 715. New.

(iii) Administration.

703. In taking accounts under a judgment or order in administration proceedings, interest shall be computed on the deceased's debts from the date of the judgment or order, and on legacies from the end of one year after the deceased's death, unless any other time of payment is directed by the will. Con. Rule 975.

Taken from Chy. O. 474. Under that Order, and the former Con. Rule 975 the Master was specifically directed, in taking an account of a deceased's personal estate under an order of reference, to inquire and state to the Court what, if any of the deceased's personal estate is outstanding or undisposed of; the omission of that direction from this Rule is probably not intended to alter the practice, and such inquiry should still be made.

This and the following Rules 704-715, apply to proceedings before Referees as well as before Masters: see Rule 654.

The Master ought not to proceed ex parte, even though the defendant did not appear on the motion for administration: Jackson v. Mattheys, 12 Gr. 47.

Before proceeding to take the accounts, the Master should require the necessary evidence to be brought before him, to show who are the parties, if any, who ought to be served with an office copy of the judgment as prescribed by Rule 203 (3). The Master should direct on whom the judgment is to be served, and he may also dispense with service, on any parties, as he may think fit: Ib.; but see Rule 658.

Service may be dispensed with on parties whose apparent interest is small, and where there is difficulty in effecting service, and other parties in the same interest are already represented, or directed to be served with the judgment: mere difficulty in effecting service would not alone be sufficient ground for dispensing with service.

Persons who are served with an office copy of a judgment under Rule 203 (3) do not thereby become parties to the action, they merely acquire a right to attend the proceedings on giving notice of their desire to do so to the plaintiff's solicitor, but they are bound by the proceedings as though they were actually parties to the action: English v. English, 12 Gr. 441; and see supra, p. 372; and where they do not attend the proceedings in the Master's office, they are not entitled to notice.

Persons so served may give notice to the plaintiff of their desire to attend the proceedings, and are then entitled to be served with the appointments in the Master's office, and with notice of the motion for distribution: but where a person served with the judgment does not notify the plaintiff of his desire to attend the proceedings, he is not entitled to notice of the proceedings in the Master's office, nor of the motion for distribution: see Rule 203 (3) note.

Persons so attending, however, are not, as of course, entitled to the costs of so doing out of the estate, and unless the Court is satisfied that there was some good reason for their so attending they will be left to bear their own costs in any event; and may be ordered to pay the extra costs occasioned by their unnecessary attendance: see Rule 1148.

Rule 704. Persons served under Rule 203 (3) cannot be required to account: see supra, p. 372.

Master
parties

Where the Master finds that any persons not coming within Rule 203 (3), ought to be made parties, and enabled to attend the proceedings, he may add them as parties under Rule 630. Persons added under that Rule become parties to the action, as if they had been originally made parties to the writ, and thereafter their names are added as defendants in the title of the action.

Interest to istration

Rate of Interest on legacies.

The direction contained in this Rule, as to the allowance of interest on debts, applies to debts not bearing interest, prior to the date of the judgment. The judgment for administration, operates as a judgment for all the creditors of the estate for the amount of their respective debts, and consequently from that date they bear interest; but where a creditor is entitled to interest from any prior date, by virtue of any statute, or any contract, expressed or implied, the Master may allow such interest. But where a sum is payable at a certain day, with interest, there is no implied contract to pay interest at the same rate after default; and even where the same rate has been paid for many years after default, there is no implied contract to continue doing so: Re Roberts, Goodchap v. Roberts, 14 Ch. D. 49; 42 L. T. 693; Cook v. Fowler, L. R. 7 H. L. 27; Dalby v. Humphrey, 37 L. C. Q. B. 514; Simonton v. Graham, 9 P. R. 495. As to what is a sufficient demand of interest within the Jud. Act, s. 114 (2), supra, p. 100; see Ginke v. Rose, 32 L. T. 608.

General legacies payable out of personality bear interest from the expiration of a year from the testator's death, unless the testator was the legatee's debtor, or being a parent or standing in loco parentis to the legatee has made no provision for the maintenance of the legatee who is an infant; interest on legacies charged on land, bear interest from the testator's death: Ashburner v. Macguire, 2 White & Tudor's L. C. (7th ed.), 852; but where the legacy is payable out of the proceeds of the sale of land, the interest does not run until a year from the death: Tanner v. Buck, 18 L. R. Eq. 301; but where the sale was postponed by the testator till after the death of a tenant for life, and the rents were directed to be applied as if the sale had taken place, a legacy payable out of the proceeds, was held to bear interest from the death of the tenant for life: Re Waters, Waters v. Borer, 42 Ch. D. 517; 61 L. T. 431. Where, for the convenience of the estate, the payment of a legacy is postponed by the testator, the legacy bears interest nevertheless from a year from the testator's death: Re Olive, Olive v. Westerman, 50 L. T. 355; as to interest on a legacy to an infant executor, see Re Gardner, Long v. Gardner, 67 L. T. 552; and see further as to interest on legacies, Re Judkin, 25 Ch. D. 743; 50 L. T. 200.

For form of report in administration proceedings, see App. Form 84 H. & L. Forms No. 1042.

Affidavit of creditor dispensed with unless required.

704. A creditor need not make an affidavit, or attend in support of his claim (except to produce his security, if any), unless he is served with a notice requiring him to do so as hereinafter provided. Con. Rule 977.

No person, except the personal representative, is entitled (except Rule 705, by leave of the Master) to appear on the claim of any person not a party to the cause, against the estate of the deceased, in respect of any debt or liability. But the Master may direct any other party to appear on the cause to appear, either in addition to, or in place of, the personal representative, upon such terms as to costs or otherwise as he shall think fit: see Rule 204.

Creditors merely sending in their claims pursuant to advertisement, ought not to be allowed any costs of so doing; but where they are required to go into formal proof thereof, the Master may fix a sum for costs, or allow taxed costs of proving the claim: see Rule 1137.

A notice to a creditor requiring him to make an affidavit in support of his claim, may be transmitted by post, pre-paid, addressed to him or his solicitor: see Rule 715.

When a creditor's claim is disputed, he may be required to produce corroborative evidence thereof: see R. S. O. c. 73, s. 10; and see cases in notes to Rules 939 and 941.

A judgment obtained without fraud or collusion is conclusive evidence in suits between creditors in relation to the property of the debtor, of the indebtedness of the latter and of the amount of such indebtedness: Candee v. Lord, 2 Com. N. Y. Rep. 260; Martin v. Boulanger, 8 App. Cas. 298; 49 L. T. 62; and see Boycerman v. Phillips, 15 Ont. App. 679; Re Hague, Traders Bank v. Murray, 13 Ont. 727.

Where the solicitor of a plaintiff in an administration action, had purchased, after judgment and pending an inquiry thereunder as to debts, two claims against the estate for less than the sum due, it was held that the officer to whom the action was referred had no jurisdiction to certify that the solicitor was a trustee for the creditors for any surplus he might receive over and above what he had paid for the claims: Re Tillet, Field v. Lydell, 32 Ch. D. 639; 54 L. T. 991; and it was also held that such a contention could not be raised at the hearing on further directions, except by consent of the solicitor.

In the administration in Ontario of the estate of a person domiciled abroad, foreign creditors are entitled to dividends pari passu with Ontario creditors: Milne v. Moore, 24 Ont. 456.

As regards the estates of persons dying after 13th April, 1897, claims for three months' salary or wages are entitled to priority of payment over ordinary creditors: see R. S. O. c. 156, s. 6.

705. Every creditor shall produce before the Master the security (if any) held by him, at the time appointed for adjudicating on the claims: and every creditor, if required by notice in writing, to be given by the executor or administrator of the deceased, or by such other person as the Master directs, according to Form No. 80, shall produce all other deeds and documents necessary to substantiate his claim before the Master, at the time specified. Con. Rule 978.

The notice to produce documents in support of his claim, may be transmitted to the creditor, by post, addressed to him or his solicitor, if any: see Rule 715.

Rules706-710.

Where the estate being administered is insolvent, the creditor must value his securities, and can only rank for the difference. The personal representative, on the authority of the other creditors, is entitled to take over the securities on payment, after realization of the securities, of 10 per cent. advance on their specified value: or the creditor may assign his security to the personal representative and rank as an unsecured creditor for the full amount of his claim: see R. S. O. c. 132.

In case of a deficiency of assets all creditors claims not specifically secured are paid pari passu; those specially secured have only priority in respect of the property held in security: see R. S. O. c. 129, s. 34; and this would seem now to be the rule as to voluntary debts: see Re Whitaker, 1900. 2 Ch. 677; 83 L. T. 342, 449.

sufficient to pay: Re Stewart, Stewart v. Stewart, 10 Gr. 169. Where his proportion, be ordered to refund the excess: Chamberlen v. Clarke, the overpayment: Leitch v. Molson's Bank, 27 Ont. 621.

Where the Master requires a creditor to attend and prove his claim, the notice so to do may be transmitted to him or his solicitor by after the service of the notice, and to attend at a time to be therein named, being the time to which the adjudication thereon has been adjourned; and in case any creditor does not comply with the notice, his claim, or such part thereof as aforesaid, shall be dis-allowed, unless the Master thinks fit to give further time. Con. Rule 984.

713. Con. Rule 986.

An application of a creditor to prove after the time has elapsed is usually granted: but on the terms of not disturbing any division of assets which has actually been made: Re Metcalfe, Hicks v. May, 13 Ch. D. 236; 42 L. T. 383; 49 L. J. Ch. 192; Re McMurdy, Penfield v. McMurdy, 1902, 2 Ch. 684; Harrison v. Kirk, 1904, A. C. 1; 89 L. T. 566.

714. Where an order is made for payment of money out of Court to creditors, the person whose duty it is to prosecute the order shall send each creditor, or his solicitor (if any), a notice that the cheques may be obtained from the Accountant: and the notice may be according to Form No. 83, and such person shall, when required, produce any papers necessary to enable the creditors to receive their cheques. Con. Rule 987.

Taken from Chy. O. 486.

Creditors who have proved claims, but who are not parties to the action, are not entitled to notice of a hearing on further directions, nor of an application for distribution: Lavin v. O'Neill, 13 Gr. 179.

Creditors who have received more than their share, may be ordered to refund, on the application of a creditor who has not received his proper proportion: Chamberlen v. Clarke, 1 Ont. 135; 9 Ont. App. 273; but the right may be barred by the Statute of Limitations, if not prosecuted within six years from the date of the overpayment: Blake v. Gale 31 Ch. D. 196; or may be lost by acquiescence: S. C. 55 L. T. 234.

(iv) Sales.

716. Where a sale is ordered, the Master may cause the property, or a competent part thereof, to be sold either by public auction, private contract, or tender, or part by one mode and part by another, as he may think best for the interest of all parties. Con. Rule 89. General provisions where a sale is ordered.

This and the following Rules 716-743, apply to sales by Official Referees, as well as by Masters: see Rule 654.

717. Where the trusts of any will or settlement are being administered and a sale is ordered of any property vested in the trustees of such will or settlement upon trust for sale or with power of sale by the trustees, the conduct of the sale shall be given to the trustees, unless otherwise ordered. Con. Rule 90. Conduct of sale under trusts of will or settlement.

Identical with Eng. R., March, 1879, r. 7, formerly the plaintiff would have had the conduct: Re Marshall, W. N. 1879, 12.

Under this Rule the conduct of the sale was given to a defendant in an action by one trustee, who was also tenant for life, against the three other trustees: Re Gardner, Gardner v. Beaumont, 48 L. J. Chy. 644.

718. Where a sale is to take place under a judgment or order of the Court, the original judgment or order shall be used, unless the Master requires a copy. Con. Rule 91. Copy of order directing sale, is not to be brought into M. O. unless required by the Master.

Taken from Chy. O. 374.

Conduct of the Sale.—The party having the carriage of the order, or judgment, directing a sale, is the party usually entitled to the conduct of the sale. Conduct of sale. Who entitled to.

The mere extent of the interest of any party in the property, or the possession by him of title deeds, does not give any right to conduct the sale. Usually the plaintiff having the carriage of the judgment, or order, will also have the conduct of the sale: Dale v. Hamilton, 10 Ha. App. vii. But where it is for the benefit of all parties, the conduct of the sale may be given to a defendant: Hewitt v. Nansom, 7 W. R. 5; Dixon v. Pinner, 7 Ha. 331; or where all parties to the action wish to bid, it may be given to an independent solicitor: Ramsay v. McDonald, 8 P. R. 283.

Rules719, 720.Trustees entitled to in certain cases.Duty of solicitor conducting sale.

But "where the trusts of any will, or settlement, are being administered, and a sale is ordered of any property vested in the trustees of such will, or settlement, upon trust for sale, or with power of sale by such trustees, the conduct of such sale shall be given to such trustees, unless the Judge shall otherwise direct": Rule 717.

It is the duty of the solicitor of the party having the conduct of the sale, to prepare the advertisement, to procure its settlement by the Master, and to see to its publication, pursuant to the Master's direction, to make the necessary arrangements with the auctioneer, to attend the sale, to see that the contracts are duly signed by the purchasers, to prepare the necessary affidavits proving the sale, and procure the report on sale to be settled and filed, to deliver abstracts, answers to requisitions, and objections, and to attend any reference as to the title; to attend the settlement of the conveyances, and procure their execution by all necessary parties to the action; and to enforce, if necessary, by motion the due performance by the purchasers of their contracts. He is usually styled "the vendors' solicitor," and as such he acts for the purpose of the sale, and as regards the purchaser, for all the parties to the action who are interested in the land directed to be sold: Dalby v. Pullen, 1 R. & M. 204; Street v. Hallett, 6 P. R. 312; but his own client must bear any loss occasioned by such solicitor's malfeasance, such as the misappropriation of the purchase money: Mulkins v. Clarke, 11 P. R. 350.

parties.

Every party to the action is bound to facilitate the sale: Knott v. Cottee, 27 Beav. 33. Interference by other parties, with the party having the conduct of the sale, may be restrained by injunction: Dean v. Wilson, 10 Ch. D. 136.

The party having the conduct of the sale, is not at liberty to bid, unless leave to do so is granted specially: see Rule 725.

Abortive
sale.

Where a sale has proved abortive for want of bidders, the property may be advertised and put up again for sale without further order: Sherwood v. Campbell, 1 Chy. Ch. 299.

Appointment to settle advertisement.

719. An appointment or warrant in respect of the sale shall be obtained from the Master, and served upon all necessary parties. Con. Rule 92.

Taken from Chy. O. 375.

Draft advertis-
ment to be brought in, but no particulars or conditions.

720. At the time appointed thereby, the party having the conduct of the sale shall bring into the Master's office, a draft advertisement, but no particulars or conditions of the sale, or draft or copy thereof. Con. Rule 93.

It will be seen from the next Rule, that any particulars in which the proposed conditions of sale differ from the standing conditions, are to be set out in the advertisement. This Rule, therefore, renders, it unnecessary to bring in any particulars and conditions of sale, apart from those necessarily required to be embodied in the advertisement.

721. The advertisement shall contain the following particulars:—

- (a) The short style of cause;
- (b) That the sale is in pursuance of a judgment or order of the Court;
- (c) The time and place of sale;
- (d) A short and true description of the property to be sold;
- (e) The manner in which the property is to be sold, whether in one lot or several, and if in several, in how many, and what lots;
- (f) What proportion of the purchase money is to be paid down by way of deposit, and at what time or times, and whether the residue of such purchase money is to be paid with, or without interest;
- (g) Any particulars, in which the proposed conditions of sale differ from the standing conditions.

Rule 721.

Advertisements of sale to contain, style of cause, Recital of order.

Time and place of sale

Description of property.

Manner of sale.

Terms of payment of purchase money.

Any special conditions.

Taken from Chy. O. 377.

Advertisements of sale should be framed as concisely as possible, and all matter which conveys no necessary information to intending purchasers should be excluded. The introduction of "puffing" is to be avoided: Baxter v. Finlay, 1 Chy. Ch. 230; Buchan v. Wilkes, Id., 231. The advertisement should set out the improvements: Heward v. Ridout, 1 Chy. Ch. 244; and the existence of a favourable lease, if any: McAlpine v. Young, 2 Chy. Ch. 171. But any omissions of this kind, must, as a general rule, be objected to at the time of settling the advertisement, or before the sale has taken place: Creswick v. Thompson, 6 P. R. 32. But, where a material fact was omitted from the advertisement, e.g., that a lease was subject to a ground rent, the purchaser was discharged from his purchase: Jones v. Rimmer, 14 Ch. D. 588; 43 L. T. 111; 49 L. J. Ch. 775.

Misdescription in the advertisement, where it amounts to a material misrepresentation, is also a ground for compensation to the purchaser: Stammers v. O'Donoghue, 28 Gr. 207; even after conveyance: Bull v. Harper, 6 P. R. 36; or may entitle the purchaser, at his option, to be relieved from his purchase: Mathias v. Yetts, 46 L. T. 497; Redgrave v. Hurd, 20 Ch. D. 1; 45 L. T. 485; 51 L. J. Ch. 113; but he is not entitled to compensation if he bought with knowledge of the facts: Re Edwards & Daniel, 62 L. T. 445; and see post, pp. 944, et seq.

Where a misstatement in the advertisement has been verbally corrected at the sale by the auctioneer, but such correction was not heard by the purchaser, the latter is not entitled to compensation, though semble, the vendor might not be entitled to enforce the contract specifically: Re Hare & O'More, 1901, 1 Ch. 93; 83 L. T. 672.

Rule 721. Where leaseholds subject to onerous covenants are offered for sale, such covenants should be disclosed to the purchaser; and an acceptance of the title in ignorance of such covenants will not be binding on the purchaser: Re Haddicke & Lipski, 1901, 2 Ch. 666; 85 L. T. 402; Molyneux v. Hawtrey, 1903, 2 K. B. 487; 89 L. T. 350.

Special conditions of sale not to be resorted to without cause.

Special Conditions.—Unnecessarily stringent conditions of sale ought not to be sanctioned by the Master: thus where the title, or the proof of it, was involved in no difficulty, a condition of sale that "The vendor is not to be bound to give any evidence of title, or any title deeds, or copies thereof, other than such as are in his possession, or prove any abstract," was condemned by the Court: McDonald v. Gordon, 2 Chy. Ch. 125; and see Dance v. Goldingham, L. R. 8 Chy. 402; Dunn v. Flood, 25 Ch. D. 629; 49 L. T. 670; 28 Ch. D. 586; 52 L. T. 689; Re Rayner, 53 L. T. 495. Trustees were restrained from selling without a reserved bid: Downey v. Dennis, 14 Ont. 219.

In sales by the Court, if a good title can be made, the parties are not at liberty to relieve themselves by special conditions from the obligation to make such a title, and the Court will not provide by conditions for imaginary defects, per Mowat v. C., McDonald v. Gordon, 2 Chy. Ch. 126; Piers v. Piers, Sau. & Sc. 414. "It is the uniform practice of a Court of Equity, not to set up for sale a title knowing it to be bad": Bennett v. Wheeler, 1 Ir. Eq. 16; Lahey v. Bell, 6 Ir. Eq. 122; Sugden v. & P., 14th ed., 100, and see Hume v. Bentley, 5 De G. & S. 527.

Where a contract stated that the land was sold "subject to the conditions of the Incorporated Law Society" it was held that the conditions for the time being of the Incorporated Law Society were incorporated into the contract and it was not open to the objection that it did not sufficiently comply with the Statute of Frauds: Pickles v. Sutcliffe, 114 L. T. J. 172; and the same rule would doubtless apply to the incorporation of the standing conditions of the Court referred to in Rule 723.

Condition requiring purchaser to assume as true, what is false, is bad.

A condition of sale is bad, as misleading, if it requires the purchaser to assume as true what the vendor knows to be false; or if it states that the state of the title is not accurately known, when in fact it is known to the vendor: see Nash v. Wooderson, 78 L. T. Jour. 59. And a purchaser purchasing at a sale by the Court under such conditions, is entitled to have a good title made, notwithstanding the conditions; but where the conditions on the face of them purport to give only a good holding title, that is all the purchaser, even though relieved from the conditions, can insist on: Re Banister, Broad v. Munton, 12 Ch. D. 131.

Effect of special conditions as to title.

And where a sale was had, under a condition that precluded the purchaser from objecting to the title prior to the document chosen as the root of the title, but the purchaser inquired into the prior title and refused to complete, on the ground that the prior title was bad, the Court, being of opinion that the objection was well founded, refused to enforce the sale against the purchaser, and discharged him from his purchase: Elsie v. Elsie, L. R. 13 Eq. 196; Williams v. Wood, 16 W. R. 1005; Bennett v. Wheeler, 1 Ir. Eq. 16; Hume v. Bentley, 5 De G. & S. 527; and see Dunn v. Flood, supra; but see Re National Provincial Bank v. Marsh, 71 L. T. 629.

Where a sale was had under a condition that no objection or requisition should be made by the purchaser by reason of the non-acknowledgment of a deed dated 18th December, 1841, by a married woman, who was a party to it, and it turned out that the deed in question was the conveyance to the vendor, and that the married woman had one-fifth interest in the estate, and that the vendor, though in possession, had not acquired a title under the Statute of Limitations, the Court refused to enforce the contract against the purchasers: Re Cumming to Goldbolt, 78 L. T. Jour. 31.

Where a sale was had upon condition that in case the vendor should be unable or unwilling to remove or comply with any objection or requisition made by the purchaser, he might rescind the sale, and the purchaser delivered requisitions which the vendor answered, but the purchaser considered the answer insufficient, and the vendor then gave notice that he rescinded the contract, it was held that the purchaser could not by subsequently waiving his objections prevent the rescission from taking effect: Danck v. Wood, 51 L. T. 109. Where there was such a condition, and it appeared that the purchasers objected to a prior contract for sale appearing on the registry, and they offered to give time for the removal of their objection, if the vendor would give an indemnity against the prior contract, and they threatened action if this was not accepted, the vendor, in good faith rescinding, was held entitled to do so: Woolcott v. Peggic, 15 App. Cas. 42; see also Re 163rd Starr Bowkett Building Society v. Siburn, 61 L. T. 346; but such a power to rescind can not be exercised except in good faith: Smith v. Wallace, 1895, 1 Ch. 385.

Under a condition of sale giving the vendor right to rescind in the event of his being unable or unwilling to answer any requisition or objection to the title, there is a difference between the case of a vendor selling having no title, and selling a defective title; in the former case he cannot avail himself of the condition: Bowman v. Hyland, 8 Ch. D. 588; Re Jackson & Haden, 53 W. R. 426; while in the latter case he can: Re Deighton, 1898, 1 Ch. 458; 78 L. T. 430.

The expense of procuring title deeds not in the vendor's possession, to which the purchaser is entitled, must be borne by the vendor in the absence of any condition to the contrary, and semble, a condition that the vendor shall not be bound to produce them for verification of the abstract is not a sufficient condition to the contrary: Re Duthy & Jesson, 1898, 1 Ch. 419.

The standing conditions of sale are those referred to in Rule 723.

Where an advertisement is not settled in proper form, it may on motion in Chambers be referred back to the Master to be re-settled, and if necessary to appoint a new day for the sale: Heward v. Ridout, 1 Chy. Ch. 244; such an application if in the nature of an appeal from the Master would seem to be beyond the jurisdiction of the Master in Chambers, and to be proper to be made to a Judge.

Where the conditions limit a time for making objections to the title, and provide that objections not made within the time shall be deemed to be waived, such conditions will be strictly binding on the purchaser, except in the case of an objection shewing that the vendor has no title: Armstrong v. Nason, 25 S. C. R. 263.

Rule 722.

Master on return of warrant, to settle advertisement to appoint auctioneer and fix time and place of sale, etc.

722. At the time named in the appointment or warrant, the Master shall settle the advertisement, fix the time and place of sale, name an auctioneer, where one is to be employed, and make every other necessary arrangement preparatory to the sale, so that nothing may remain to be done but to insert the advertisement; and all the before mentioned matters shall be done upon the return of the appointment or warrant where it is practicable, and no adjournment shall take place unless it is unavoidable. Con. Rule 95.

Taken from Chy. O. 378.

Formerly sale must be by auction, unless otherwise ordered, but now Master may direct sale by tender, etc.

Formerly all sales directed by the Court of Chancery had to be by auction, unless the order, or decree, expressly authorized a sale in some other way. Even after an abortive attempt to sell by auction, a sale in any other way could not be had except by express order; Berry v. Gibbons, L. R. 15 Eq. 150. Now, where a sale is ordered, the Master may cause the property, or a competent part thereof, to be sold either by public auction, private contract, or tender, or part by one mode, and part by another, as he may think best for the interest of all parties; and he may fix an upset price, or reserved bidding, but such price or bidding, must be so fixed at the meeting held by him for the settling of the advertisement, and making the other arrangements preparatory to the sale, and must be notified in the conditions of sale: Rule 725. The Master is not justified in accepting a tender from the person having the conduct of the sale; Ramsay v. McDonald, 8 P. R. 283.

Sales by auction, highest bidder, right of.

Limited right of vendor to bid cannot be exceeded.

Where land is offered for sale by auction, unless in the particulars or conditions of sale it is stated that the land will be sold subject to a reserved price, or a right of the seller to bid, the sale is to be deemed, and taken, to be without reserve; and upon any sale without reserve, it is unlawful for the seller, or a puffer, to bid, or for the auctioneer knowingly to take any bidding from a seller, or puffer; see R. S. O. c. 119, ss. 22, 23; Heron v. Moffatt, 22 Gr. at pp. 375-6; Johnston v. Boyes, 1899, 2 Ch. 73; 80 L. T. 488. Upon a sale without reserve it is not open to the vendor to refuse a bid, however small; O'Connor v. Woodward, 6 P. R. 223; McAlpine v. Young, 2 Chy. Ch. 171; and the vendor is liable to the highest bidder for breach of contract if he refuses to accept his bid; Johnston v. Boyes, supra; and see 117 L. T. Jour. 455; Fenwick v. Macdonald, 41 Sc. L. R. 688; Rainbow v. Hawkins, 1904, 2 K. B. 322; 91 L. T. 149. The offer of property subject to a reserved bidding, does not involve also a right for the seller to bid, or to employ a puffer; thus, where a sale was advertised under a decree subject to a reserved bid, but no right on the part of the seller to bid was reserved, but a puffer was employed whose bids did not exceed the reserved bid, the sale was on the application of the purchaser set aside; Gilliat v. Gilliat, 18 W. R. 203; L. R. 9 Eq. 60, and if a limited right to bid be reserved, and the limit be exceeded, the sale is voidable; Parfitt v. Jepson, 46 L. J. C. P. 529.

Mortgage actions, mortgagor's duty as to advertisement.

Under a judgment for sale in a mortgage action it is the mortgagor's duty to see to the parcelling out of the land directed to be sold, and, if he considers too much is offered for sale, he should urge the objection at the time of settling the advertisement, and it should be stated in the advertisement that so soon as sufficient has been realized by the sale to pay off the plaintiff's and other claims. Rule 723. the remaining lots, if any, will be withdrawn, if that course is intended to be pursued: Beatty v. Radenkurst, 3 Chy. Ch. 344.

Properties widely apart should not be included in one parcel; thus shops in a village, and a farm three-quarters of a mile away, were held to have been improperly included in one parcel: Aldrich v. Canada Permanent L. & S. Co., 24 Ont. App. 193.

Where the Master enlarged the time appointed for sending in tenders, it was held that he had a right to do so, and that the highest tender in at the time originally appointed was not necessarily to be accepted; notwithstanding it was advertised that the sale would be then "peremptorily closed": Re Atyer, etc., 21 Ont. 440.

Where property is offered for sale subject to incumbrances, they must be accurately described; and where the agreement for sale stated that the land was to be subject to a "mortgage incumbrance of $750, bearing interest at the rate of 7 per cent. per annum," and it turned out that the mortgage was for $3,000, with interest at 10 per cent. per annum, payable half-yearly, to be reduced if punctually paid to 7 per cent., with an agreement to release the land, which was the subject of the contract, on payment of $750; it was held that the agreement did not convey an accurate statement as to the nature of the incumbrance, and that the purchaser was entitled to be relieved from the contract: Re Booth & McLean, 21 Ont. 452.

The Master, or his clerk, may conduct the sale if no auctioneer is employed: see Rule 727. No license for the Master, or his clerk, to act as auctioneer under R. S. O. c. 223, s. 583 (2), is necessary: Regina v. Chapman, 1 Ont. 582.

723. The standing condition of sale shall be those set forth in Form No. 85. Cont. Rule 96.

Taken from Chy. O. 379.

For Form 85 see H. & L. Forms No. 1005.

Any conditions varying from, or in addition to, the standing conditions must be stated at length in the advertisement: Rule 721.

Where the owner of the equity of redemption is dead, and his heirs are out of the jurisdiction, or unknown, a sale may be directed in an action against a subsequent mortgagee, and the Provincial Attorney-General as representing the deceased mortgagor, but the circumstances under which the sale is directed, must be stated in the particulars of sale: Smith v. Good, 14 Gr. 444.

As to special conditions, see note to Rule 721.

Even without the standing condition for a re-sale in case of default by the purchaser, and payment by him of any deficiency, the law implies such a contract: Re Hornibrook, 12 P. R. 591.

The fact that the standing conditions are incorporated into the contract by reference does not render the contract open to the objection that it does not comply with the Statute of Frauds: see Pickles v. Sutcliffe, 114 L. T. J. 127.

Where, as the standing condition provides, the deposit is payable to the vendor's solicitor; if he makes away with it, it cannot be recovered from the auctioneer: Brown v. Furbrother, 59 L. T. 822; but the client of the solicitor is responsible to the other parties interested, to make good the loss: Mulkins v. Clarke, 11 P. R. 350.

Taken from Chy. O. 380, and original J. A. Rule 331.

In order to enable the Master to fix a reserved bid, an affidavit made by some competent surveyor must be filed. See H. & L. Forms, No. 1003.

According to the English practice affidavits for the purpose of enabling the Judge to fix reserved biddings are to state the value of the property by reference to an exhibit, so that the value may not be disclosed by the affidavit when filed: Eng. (1883) II. 683.

The amount of the reserved bid should not be stated in the conditions of sale, but merely the fact that the sale is to be subject to a reserved bid.

Where the Master omitted on the setting of the advertisement to fix a reserved bid, on motion in Chambers, leave to fix a reserved bid, and re-advertise was granted: Fraser v. Bens, 1 Chy. Ch. 71.

Where the sale takes place elsewhere than before the Master, a note of the amount of the reserved bid under a sealed cover is to be delivered to the auctioneer, or person selling the estate, with instructions not to open it until the biddings are closed, and not to make the amount of it known even then.

A bona fide purchaser cannot be prejudiced by any mistake made in fixing the reserved bid: Re Jelly, 3 O. L. R. 72.

725. All parties may bid, without taking out an order for the purpose, except the party having the conduct of the sale, and except any trustees, agents, and other persons in a fiduciary position; and where any parties are to be at liberty to bid, it shall be notified in the conditions of sale. Con. Rule 98.

Taken from Chy. O. 381.

Leave to bid will not usually be granted to the party having the conduct of the sale: Phillips v. Conger, 1 O. S. 583; Domville v. Barrington, 2 Y. & C. 723; Sidney v. Ranger, 12 Sim. 118, nor to his servants, or agents: see Martinson v. Clowes, 21 Ch. D. 857; 46 L. T. 882; 51 L. J. Ch. 594; except upon the terms of transferring the conduct of the sale to an independent solicitor, if none of the other parties will take it: Ramsay v. McDonald, 8 P. R. 283. Leave to bid has also been refused to an executor, in an administration action: Geldard v. Randall, D. Jur. 1085; to a receiver: Alven v. Bond, 1 Flan. & K. 196; to a guardian ad litem: see Seton, 5th ed., 297; Crawford v. Boyd, 4 P. R. 278. Leave will not, in general, be given to trustees to bid, unless all the cestuis quo trustent who are sui juris consent, and no other purchaser at an adequate price can be found: Tennant v. Treachard, L. R. 4 Chy. 537, 547; Farmer v. Dean, 32 Beav. 327; and see Ricker v. Ricker, 27 Gr. 516; 7 Ont. App. 28; 18 C. L. J. 274; 2 C. L. T. 399, and a trustee who has obtained leave to bid, is not exonerated from his duty of protecting the in-trust of his cestui que trust; Ib., but see Bonwell v. Cooks, 48 L. T. Rules 929; 51 L. T. 242; 55 L. T. 32; 23 Ch. D. 302; 27 Ch. D. 424; 11 App. Cas. 232. Where a trustee, who was also entitled to a lien on the trust estate for advances, had failed to realize the trust estate by sale at auction, or by tender, he was himself permitted to become the purchaser; Hutton v. Justin, 2 O. L. R. 713. Although a vendor cannot himself become the purchaser unless he has obtained special leave to bid, yet it would seem that there is no objection to a Joint Stock Company in which he is a shareholder becoming the purchaser; see Furray v. Furrars, 40 Ch. D. 395; 59 L. T. 619. But where a trustee for sale or the vendor, has a secret understanding not amounting to a contract, that the purchaser will resell the property to him, the sale will be set aside though no actual fraudulent intent be proved; Re Pottlethwaite, 59 L. T. 58; but this case was reversed on appeal owing to the great lapse of time; 60 L. T. 514.

Leave for parties, not otherwise entitled, to bid, is sometimes obtained in the order, or judgment, directing the sale, but an order for that purpose is usually obtained in Chambers on notice to the other parties interested. The Master formerly had no power to grant such leave; Re Laycock, McGillivray v. Johnson, 8 P. R. 545, but may now do so in the exercise of his jurisdiction in Chambers under Rule 685.

Where a party not authorized to bid, has bid without leave and becomes the purchaser, the sale will not necessarily be set aside, but the property may, on the application of the other parties interested, be ordered to be put up for sale again at the expense of the party so bidding, and if no more can be realized he may be held to his purchase; Wilson v. Greenwood, 10 Sim. 101; Sidney v. Ranger, 12 Sim. 118; Crawford v. Boyd, 6 P. R. 278; and see Martinson v. Claves, 52 L. T. 703.

726. The advertisement shall be inserted by the party conducting the sale, at such times and in such manner as the Master appoints. Con. Rule 99.

Taken from Chy. O. 382.

Where a sale is postponed, a note of such adjournment published at the foot of the original advertisement will suffice, without incurring the expense of an entirely fresh advertisement; Thompson v. Milliken, 15 Gr. 197.

Sales are not to be postponed except in extreme cases. Where, pending the time appointed in a mortgage suit for redemption, the mortgagor made an assignment in insolvency, and the plaintiff proceeded with the suit without adding the assignee; a motion by the latter to stay the sale on the ground that he had no notice of settling the advertisement was refused; Hoskins v. Johnston, 6 P. R. 257.

727. The Master or his Clerk shall conduct the sale where no auctioneer is employed. Con. Rule 100.

Taken from Chy. O. 383.

An auctioneer selling land is not required to be licensed under the R. S. O. c. 223, s. 582 (2); Reid v. Chapman, 1 Ont. 582; but an assignee for the benefit of creditors cannot act as auctioneer at a sale of goods without a license; Reg. v. Robson, 22 Ont. 467.

Rules

728, 729.

Biddings.

728. Biddings need not be in writing, but a written agreement shall be signed by the purchaser at the time of sale. Can. Rule 101.

Sale without reserve.

Where the sale is to be without reserve, the vendor is not at liberty to refuse any bid, however small: O'Connor v. Woodhead, 13 P. R. 231; McAlpine v. Young, 2 Chy. Ch. 85, 171; Johnston v. Hopes, 1809, 1 Ch. 73; 80 L. T. 483; nor can the vendor, or a puffer, bid, unless the right to bid is expressly reserved in the conditions of sale. And where the right to bid is limited to one or more bids, the vendor may not exceed it. And where the sale is subject to a reserved bid, a puffer cannot also be employed: see Rule 722; but where a stranger, at the instance of the mortgagor, made a fictitious bid at a sale of the mortgaged property under a judgment of the Court, it was held that a purchaser could not avoid the sale on the ground that he had been thereby induced to bid more than he otherwise would: Union Bank v. Munster, 37 Ch. D. 51; 57 L. T. 877.

Vendor, or puffer may not bid.

Where the sale is without reserve, but the vendor, after a bid has been made, withdraws the property from sale, the highest bidder may, nevertheless, apply to be declared the purchaser: McAlpine v. Young, supra. It would seem that such an application should be made in the first place to the Master to report on the sale, and if he refuses to report the highest bidder the purchaser, an appeal would lie from him to the Court in the ordinary way: see Rule 771. In McAlpine v. Young, the application appears to have been made in Chambers in the first instance.

Acceptance of an invalid bid.

Where the auctioneer has accepted the bid of a vendor, or puffer, who had no right to bid, and declared him the purchaser, it would seem that the highest bidder lawfully bidding, would be entitled to set aside the sale, and have himself declared the purchaser.

Contract.

The agreement to be signed by the purchaser should identify the property purchased, by reference to the particulars and conditions of sale, and should in other respects be a sufficient agreement to satisfy the requirements of the Statute of Frauds; but it is possible that a contract upon a sale by the Court might be enforced though these formalities had not been complied with: see Daniel's Pr., 6th ed., 1104.

Contract,
how to be signed.

The purchaser should sign his name, and his address and quality should also be stated. If his signature is not plain, or initials are used, it is desirable that a note of his full name should be written at the foot. Where any person purchases as agent for another, it should be so expressed in the signature, otherwise he will be treated as the purchaser, unless an affidavit showing the fact to be otherwise, is produced on the settlement of the report on sale: see Dani. Pr., 6th ed., 1083.

The auctioneer has authority to sign the contract for the purchaser, but he must sign it at the time of the sale, he cannot do so afterwards, nor can he delegate the authority to sign for the purchaser to his clerk, or any other person: Bell v. Balls, 70 L. T. 254.

Deposit at sale, how to be paid.

729. The deposit shall be paid to the vendor, if present, or if not, to his solicitor, at the time of sale, and shall forthwith be paid by him into Court, in the name of the purchaser. Can. Rule 102 amended.

Taken from Chy. O. 387.

If the solicitor for the vendor neglects to pay the deposit into Court, he may be compelled to do so by order, on application of the purchaser: Crooks v. Glenn, 1 Ch. Ch. 354. And where he neglected to pay in the deposit, and in consequence of his not having done so the judgment was not in the hands of the Accountant, so that the purchaser could not obtain a direction to pay in the balance of his purchase money, the solicitor was ordered to pay the interest which would have accrued on the whole purchase money. If the money had been duly paid into Court: Smith v. Dunn, 3 C. L. T. 217.

Where the deposit was paid by the auctioneer to one of a firm of solicitors having the conduct of the sale, who misappropriated it, the other members of the firm were held liable for it: Riggs v. Bree, 45 L. T. 648; 46 L. T. 8; and see Thompson v. Robinson, 15 Ont. 662; 16 Ont. App. 175. The auctioneer is not bound to accept a cheque for the deposit: Johnston v. Boyce, 1890, 2 Ch. 73; 81 L. E. 488.

The client of the solicitor making default is responsible to the other parties to the action for his misfeasance: Mutkus v. Clarke, 11 P. R. 350; but an auctioneer who pays the deposit to the solicitor pursuant to the conditions of sale is discharged from liability: Brown v. Fairbrother, 59 L. T. 822. Where at a sale out of Court by a mortgagee he had accepted a cheque for the deposit which proved bad, and the sale fell through in consequence of the purchaser turning out to be worthless, it was held that the mortgagee was nevertheless entitled to add the costs of the auction sale to his debt: Farrer v. Lacey, 31 Ch. D. 42; 50 L. T. 121; 53 L. T. 515.

Where the sale is not completed through the default of the purchaser, he forfeits his deposit to the vendor: Rosenberg v. Cooke, 8 Q. B. D. 162; Whelan v. Couch, 20 Gr. 74; Smith v. Butler, 1900, 1 Q. B. 604; 82 L. T. 281; Tilt v. Knapp, 9 P. R. 314; Re Hornbrook, 12 P. R. 591; and all other payments made on account of purchase money: Gibbons v. Cozens, 20 Ont. 356; but see Cornwall v. Hanson, 1899, 2 Ch. 710; 81 L. T. 113; 1900, 2 Ch. 298; 82 L. T. 735; even though there be no stipulation to that effect: Ex parte Burrell, Re Parnell, L. R. 10 Ch. 512; Dunn v. Fere, 19 W. R. 151; and see Hove v. Smith, 50 L. T. 573; Cotton v. Bennett, 26 Ch. 1, 161; 51 L. T. 70; and even though specific performance is refused: Scott v. Alvarez, 1895, 2 Ch. 603; 73 L. T. 43. And this is so, even where the contract is invalid, and could not be legally enforced: Thomas v. Brown, 35 L. T. 247; but see Casson v. Roberts, 31 Heav. 613; or where there is a defect in the vendor's title, which the purchaser is precluded, by the conditions, from objecting to: Rosenberg v. Cooke, supra; nor can it be recovered though the purchaser shows that the title is bad, where he has bought subject to a condition which precludes him from objecting to the title: Scott v. Alvarez, supra; and where a good holding title is shewn, but not one which the Court would force on a purchaser, if the purchaser refuses to complete, he cannot under such circumstances recover the deposit: Re Turner & Thomas, 88 L. T. Jour. 81.

The deposit is only recoverable where there is a breach of contract by the vendor: Ib., and see Corrall v. Cattell, 4 M. & W. 734.

A deposit, which has been forfeited for default of the purchaser, cannot be recovered back on the ground that upon a re-sale of the property a fatal defect in the title was discovered: Super v. Arnold, 35 Ch. D. 384; 14 App. Cas. 420.

Rules

730, 731. But where a sale has been improperly conducted and the purchaser has notice that such is the case, he may refuse to carry out the purchase and recover his deposit: Locking v. Halstead, 16 Ont. 32.

Costs of paying in purchase money.

Though the vendor's solicitor is entitled to his costs of receiving the deposit on sale, and paying it into Court, out of the fund, he must look to the purchasers for his costs of receiving, and paying into Court any other instalments of the purchase money, which it is their duty to pay into Court: Re Robertson, 24 Gr. 555.

In England the auctioneer, or solicitor, appointed to receive the deposit, is required to give security duly to account therefor; Danl. Pr., 6th ed., 1089. But this has not been customary in Ontario.

In sales out of Court, a vendor's solicitor, who has received a deposit of the purchase money, and applied it on account of his costs due by his client, cannot be made to refund it at the suit of the purchaser: Ellis v. Goulton, 1893, 1 Q. B. 350.

Affidavit of auctioneer, or certificate of Master of result of sale.

730. After the sale is concluded, the auctioneer, where one is employed, shall make an affidavit according to Form No. 22; and where no auctioneer is employed, the Master or his Clerk shall certify to the like effect the result of the sale. Con. Rule 103.

Taken from Chy. O. 386.

For form of affidavit of auctioneer, see H. & L. Forms, No. 1010.

Report on sale, form of.

731. The report on sale shall be according to Form No. 86. Con. Rule 104.

Taken from Chy. O. 387.

For Form No. 86, see H. & L. Forms, No. 1013.

The solicitor having the conduct of the sale usually takes the necessary steps to procure the report on sale; but it would seem that a purchaser may himself take out the report on sale, and get it confirmed where he is the sole purchaser: Crooks v. Glenn, 1 Chy. Ch. 354; or semble, he may take a separate report as to his own purchase where he is not the sole purchaser.

Opposing sale before Master.

The confirmation of a sale may be opposed before the Master, and the sale disallowed, on grounds which would justify a motion to set it aside: Beatty v. Radenhurst, 3 Chy. Ch. 344; Rodgers v. Rodgers, 13 Gr. 143.

Opposing sale in Chambers.

A motion to confirm a sale will not be entertained in Chambers, where an irregularity has occurred, unless the sale has been approved of by the Master: Thomas v. McGee, 2 Chy. Ch. 456; and see Copley v. Colbart, Jr., 455. Where the Master's directions have not been observed, the party having the conduct of the sale will have to shew, at his own expense, that no person interested has been injured by the non-observance of the direction, otherwise the Master will not confirm the sale: Royal Canadian Bank v. Dennis, 4 Chy. Ch. 68.

Where a party bidding and becoming the purchaser had no right to bid.

Where a person not having authority to bid, has improperly bid and been declared at the auction to be the purchaser, the Master should not declare the sale void, but should report the sale, stating the facts as to the improper bid; and it is then open to the other parties to move to have the property again put up for sale, at the expense of the party so bidding improperly, and holding him to his purchase if Rule 732, no higher price is realized; Crawford v. Boyd, 6 P. R. 278, note p. 280; or the purchaser may, on notice to all parties interested, move to confirm the sale to him. When the person so bidding has also had the conduct of the sale, the sale will not as a general rule be confirmed, if any party objects.

Until confirmation of the report on sale, the property is at the risk of the vendor, and in the event of fire, the loss occasioned thereby must fall on him; Stephenson v. Bain, 8 P. R. 166, 278; S. C., 16 C. L. J. 15, 115; but as to sales out of Court; see Rayner v. Preston, 43 L. T. 18; S. C., in Appeal, 44 L. T. 787; 18 Ch. D. 1; Gill v. Canada Fire and Marine Insurance Co., 1 Ont. 341; Castellain v. Preston, 8 Q. B. D. 614; 46 L. T. 569; 19 C. L. J. 143; 49 L. T. 29; Keefer v. Phoenix Ins. Co., 26 Ont. App. 277.

Even when the sale has proved abortive for want of bidders, the report needs confirmation before it can be acted on; Robert v. Caughell, 6 O. L. R. 381.

732. Objection to the sale shall be by motion to the Court or a Judge to set aside the same; and notice of the motion shall be served upon the purchaser, and on the other parties. The biddings shall [be] opened only on special grounds, whether the application is made before or after the report is confirmed. Con. Rule 105.

Taken from Chy. O. 388.

The motion to set aside the sale, or open the biddings, must generally be made before the confirmation of the report, but see Ricker v. Ricker, 27 Gr. 576, and S. C., in appeal, 7 Ont. App. 282. Formerly, a mere offer to give an increased price was sufficient ground for opening the biddings but this is no longer the case; Roberts v. Durie, 1 Chy. Ch. 211; now, special grounds affecting the validity of the sale, must be established; Creswick v. Thompson, 6 P. R. 52; and the fact that the purchaser is one of the parties to the suit makes no difference in the rule; Mitchell v. Mitchell, 6 P. R. 232; and it applies to sales by tender, or private contract; Re Barthett, Newman v. Hook, 44 L. T. 17. Great delay, is an answer to such an application, unless misconduct is shown on the part of the purchaser; Crooks v. Crooks, 2 Chy. Ch. 29. The fact that property was suffered to be knocked down at an under-value to a son of the testator, under the belief that he was bidding for himself, when in fact he had been employed by a third person to bid for him, was held sufficient to warrant a re-sale; Rodgers v. Rodgers, 13 Gr. 143; and see Re Follis, Kilbourn v. Coulter, 6 P. R. 160; and where a vendor has a secret understanding with the purchaser of the property that the purchaser is to resell it to the vendor, the sale will be set aside though no fraudulent intent be proved; see Re Postlethwaite, Postlethwaite v. Rickman, 50 L. T. 58; but this decision was subsequently reversed on appeal owing to the great lapse of time; S. C., 60 L. T. 514.

But the fact that a defendant was prevented from bidding, by promises made by the purchaser to give him the benefit of the purchase, is no ground for opening the biddings, such fact, if established, would constitute the purchaser a trustee, and the trust must be established by action; Brock v. Saul, 2 Chy. Ch. 145.

Rule 733.

Purchaser by next friend of party having conduct.

Mere irregularity not sufficient ground to set aside sale.

Misstate-ments in advertisements may be.

After confirmation of report,
purchaser may pay his purchase money into Court.

Where the next friend of a plaintiff who had the conduct of the sale, had bid without authority, a re-sale was ordered, the next friend being held to his purchase in case a greater price could not be obtained, and he was ordered to pay the costs: Crawford v. Boyd, 1 P. R. 278; and see Ramsay v. McDonald, 8 P. R. 283.

The existence of mere irregularities in the proceedings prior to the sale, does not affect the validity of the sale as against a bond fide purchaser: Dickey v. Heron, 1 Ch. Ch. 149; Gunn v. Doble, 15 Gr. 655; Skate v. Crawford, 4 Ont. App. 371; McLean v. Grant, 20 Gr. 76; Collins v. Demson, 2 Ch. Ch. 465; but see Foresters v. Pegg, 19 P. R. 274; and the biddings will not be opened to his prejudice on the ground of mistake in fixing the amount of the reserved bid: Re Jelly, 3 O. L. R. 72.

Where a sale took place after an order had been made staying it, but of which the auctioneer, and the purchaser, had no notice, the Court refused, after confirmation of the report, to set aside the sale: Frechold Building Society v. Choate, 3 Ch. Ch. 444.

But where through a mis-statement in the advertisement, the property was knocked down at an under-value, and less than the purchaser himself would have otherwise given, a re-sale was ordered: Jones v. Clarke, 1 Gr. 368. But it would seem that if the purchaser without any misrepresentation, or undue concealment, by the vendor, gets a less benefit from his purchase than he expected, that would be no ground for relieving him from his contract: James v. Freeland, 5 Gr. 302; Commercial Bank v. McConnell, 7 Gr. 323. Where the property offered for sale was described as held under a lease, when in fact it was held under an under-lease, that was held to be such a mis-description as entitled the purchaser to a rescission of the contract: see Broom v. Phillips, 74 L. T. 459; so a misrepresentation that the property was subject to no restrictive covenants, where there were in fact such covenants, was held to entitle the purchaser to avoid the sale: Wanton v. Coppard, 1899, 1 Ch. 92; 79 L. T. 467. Misrepresentations in the advertisement as to facts visible to the eye, amounting to mere exaggeration, do not warrant a release of the purchaser from his contract: Crooks v. Davis, 6 Gr. 317; but see Stammers v. O'Donoghue, 28 Gr. 207; 8 Ont. App. 161; 11 S. C. R. 358; Gale v. Hubert, 6 Gr. 312; and see Rule 733, notes.

Where land was stated in the advertisement to be in the occupation of a tenant at a yearly tenancy, but before the sale the tenant had written intimating his intention of giving up the land, but the letter being written before the proper time for giving such notice the vendor had answered, "you will of course send me a formal notice at the right time," and after the sale the tenant gave the formal notice: it was held that the non-disclosure of the previous correspondence did not entitle the purchaser to rescind: Davenport v. Charley, 54 L. T. 372.

A purchaser will not be relieved from his purchase because, by his own mistake, he had been declared to be the buyer of a different lot from that which he intended to buy: VooPrangh v. Everidge, 1902, 2 Ch. 296.

733. At any time after the confirmation of the report the purchaser may pay his purchase money and interest, if any, or the balance thereof, into Court without further order, upon notice to the party having the conduct of the sale; and when he is entitled to be let into possession he may, if possession is wrongfully withheld from him, proceed ^{Rule 733.} at his own expense to obtain an order against the party in possession for the delivery thereof to him, or may call upon the vendor to cause possession to be delivered to him. Con. Rule 106.

Taken from Chy. O. 389.

Payment of Purchase Money.—Where the purchaser makes default in paying his purchase money into Court pursuant to the conditions of sale, the vendor may move to compel him to pay in the amount overdue, and in default of payment, for a re-sale of the property. ^{Default in payment of purchase money, effect of.}

The deposit paid at the sale, is to be paid into Court: see Rule 729, ^{Deposit at sale to be paid into Court.}

When the plaintiff's solicitor makes default in paying in the deposit, the other parties interested in the purchase money will not suffer thereby, but the plaintiff's share will be charged with the amount of the defalcation: Mulkins v. Clarke, 22 C. L. J. 267; 11 P. R. 350.

Where, by the conditions of sale, the purchase money is payable into Court, payment to the solicitor of the party entitled to it, is not a good payment, and is therefore no ground for dispensing with payment of it into Court: Blackburn v. Sheriff, 1 Chy. Ch. 208: except upon the production of the written consent of all parties beneficially interested duly verified; but where the deposit is payable to the vendor, payment to his solicitor as his agent is sufficient: Ellis v. Goulton, 1893, 1 Q. B. 350. Where the vendor's solicitor receives purchase money, which the purchasers are bound to pay into Court, the expense of payment in, must be borne by the purchasers, the estate, or fund, is not chargeable with such costs: Re Robertson, 24 Gr. 555. ^{Payment of purchase money to solicitor when not a discharge.}

But the purchaser will not be compelled to pay in his purchase money unless he has accepted the title: Crooks v. Street, 1 Chy. Ch. 35; Street v. Hallett, 6 P. R. 312; McDermid v. McDermid, 8 P. R. 28; 15 C. L. J. 136; Ellwood v. Pierce, 7 P. R. 427; or, has waived the right to investigate the title, by delay: Ontario Bank v. Surr, 6 P. R. 216; or by taking possession: Patterson v. Robb, 6 P. R. 114; and see Crooks v. Glenn, 8 Gr. 239; O'Keefe v. Taylor, 2 Gr. 305. ^{Payment of purchase money not compelled until title accepted.}

But possession may be taken in accordance with the contract, under circumstances not amounting to a waiver, or acceptance of title: see Mitchell v. Irvine, 13 Gr. 537; Darby v. Greenless, 11 Gr. 351; Wardell v. Trenouth, 24 Gr. 465. Merely obtaining the keys of a building for the purpose of viewing the premises, is not a taking possession: People's Loan Co. v. Bacon, 27 Gr. 294.

If the purchaser makes default a re-sale may be ordered and the defaulting purchaser may be ordered to pay any deficiency: Re Hornibrook, 12 P. R. 591; Noble v. Edwards, 5 Ch. D. 378. In the event of a re-sale being ordered by reason of the default of the purchaser, in the absence of any condition to the contrary, under the standing conditions of sale, Form 85, his deposit and all other payments on account are forfeited and cannot be recovered by him, even though the property should realize a larger price on the re-sale: Titt v. Knapp, 9 P. R. 314; 2 C. L. T. 597; Ex parte Barrett, L. R. 10 Chy. 512; Thomas v. Brown, 35 L. T. 237; Rosenberg v. Cook, 8 Q. B. D. 162; and see Whelan v. Couch, 26 Gr. 74; Collins v. Stinson, 10 Q. B. D. 142; 48 L. T. 828; but see Casson v. Roberts, 31 Beav. ^{Deposit forfeited, when.}

Rule 733. 613; and a purchaser who has forfeited his deposit by default, is not entitled to recover it, in the event of the title proving bad on a subsequent re-sale of the property: Soper v. Arnold, 35 Ch. D. 384; 56 L. T. 330; 37 Ch. D. 96; 57 L. T. 747; 14 App. Cas. 429; 61 L. T. 702.

Costs of re-sale and deficiency, how borne. The costs of the re-sale, and also any deficiency on the subsequent sale, are also usually ordered to be borne by the defaulting purchaser: Re Hornibrook, 12 P. R. 591; but where the land sold at an advance, and the profit was more than sufficient to cover the costs of the re-sale, the defaulting purchaser was relieved from the payment of the latter costs: Tilt v. Knapp, supra; Ontario Bank v. Sier, 6 P. R. 277.

Interest on purchase money, from what time payable.

Interest on Purchase Money. — Rents and Profits. — The liability of the purchaser for interest, depends on the terms of the contract of sale: Re Dingman & Hall, 17 Ont. App. 398. In the absence of any special stipulation in the contract, it would seem that the liability to pay interest commences on the day fixed by the contract for completion of the contract, from which time the purchaser also becomes entitled to possession, and to all rents and profits, subsequently accruing: Esdaile v. Stephenson, 1 S. & S. 122; People's Loan Co. v. Bacon, 27 Gr. at p. 301; Fauzant v. Burke, 38 U. C. Q. B. 104; but see Harrison v. Joseph, 8 P. R. 293. But where the contract provided for payment of the purchase money by instalments, but was silent as to the time when possession should be given, the purchaser was held entitled to the rents and profits, from the date of the contract: Brady v. Keenan, 6 P. R. 262. A purchaser is entitled to a proper proportion of all rents paid to the vendor in advance: Liscombe v. Gross, 6 P. R. 271; and where rents are received by a vendor pending the completion of the contract, he is not entitled as against the purchaser to appropriate such payments to rents in arrear prior to the contract: Pleas v. Samuel, 1904, 1 Ch. 464; 90 L. T. 533.

A purchaser cannot be compelled to pay interest during delay under a condition that "the purchaser in default" shall pay interest, where the delay is due to the vendor: Jones v. Gardner, 1902, 1 Ch. 191.

Where the contract provides for payment of interest in the event of any delay in completion not attributable to the vendor, the purchaser cannot relieve himself from liability to pay interest by depositing the money in a bank on notice to the vendor: Re Riley & Streetfield, 34 Ch. D. 386; 56 L. T. 48; Re Dingman & Hall, supra; but where delay arises attributable to the vendor, the purchaser may relieve himself from the payment of interest beyond what the money earns, by depositing it in a bank on notice to the vendor; but the deposit must be made to a separate and not to his general account: Sterenson v. Davis, 21 Ont. 442; 19 Ont. App. 591, this case was varied by the Supreme Court, but not on this point: 23 S. C. R. 629.

A delay, caused by the vendors having made a bonâ fide mistake as to the origin of their title, was held not to be caused by wilful delay on their part, the real cause of the delay being the purchaser's inability to find his purchase money: Mayor of London v. Tubbs, 1894, 2 Ch. 524; 70 L. T. 719; so also delay occasioned by the time occupied in remedying a defect in the title, which was not, and could not be, known to the vendor at the time of entering into the contract: Re Woods & Lewis, 1898, 1 Ch. 431; 78 L. T. 250, 665; 1898, 2 Ch. 277.

But a vendor has been held to be guilty of wilful delay, where, Rule 733. knowing the facts, he has named too short a time for the completion of the contract: Re Helling & Merton, 1893, 3 Ch. 269; 68 L. T. 749; 69 L. T. 266; or from a mistaken construction of the contract, has improperly refused to deliver an abstract of title: Re Pelly, 81 L. T. 45.

A stipulation for payment of interest, notwithstanding any delay in the completion of the contract, does not entitle a vendor to interest during delays in completion created by himself, or through an ineffectual attempt to rescind the contract, the purchaser being out of possession, and the rents not being equal to the interest: Hayes v. Elmsley, 21 Ont. 562; 19 Ont. App. 291 (this case was subsequently reversed by the Supreme Court, 23 S. C. R. 623, but not on this point); Re Young & Harston, 31 Ch. D. at p. 174; see also Stevenson v. Davis, 21 Ont. 642, supra.

Where a contract provided that the vendor should be entitled to the rents and profits up to completion, and part of the property consisted of a quarry, which was under lease, it was held that the vendor was entitled to the rent payable under the lease, and that it could not be treated as purchase money for part of the corpus of the property: Leppington v. Freeman, 66 L. T. 357.

The liability of the purchaser to pay interest, may, in the absence of express stipulation as to the payment of interest: Re Thompson, Biggar v. Dickson, 2 Chy. Ch. 196, be qualified by delay on the part of the vendor, either in making title, or giving possession. In such a case interest will not begin to run until the purchaser could safely have taken possession, and a difficulty respecting the conveyance, may justify his not taking possession: Rae v. Geddes, 3 Chy. Ch. 404; Re McLean & Walter, 19 Ont. 161; Re Helling, 1893, 3 Ch. 269; 68 L. T. 749; 69 L. T. 266; and see Re Wilson's & Steven's Contract, 1894, 3 Ch. 546; 71 L. T. 388. Where there are several parcels included in the purchase, possession cannot be safely taken of any until the title is made to all: Laird v. Paton, 7 Ont. 137; 20 C. L. J. 385; so also the liability of a purchaser for the payment of interest may be qualified by the delay of the vendor in delivering the conveyance: Stevenson v. Davis, 21 Ont. 642, judgment of Armour, C.J., which was affirmed by the Supreme Court, 23 S. C. R. 629; and even where the purchaser has entered into possession he may be entitled to compensation for the damages he sustains in keeping his purchase money idle, owing to the delay of the vendor in delivering the conveyance: Ib. The measure of such damages, is the excess of interest payable on the purchase money, over and above the net rental of the property in the condition it was in when the purchaser entered into possession: Ib. Where the property is unproductive, the purchaser may, where the completion of the contract is delayed by the vendor, be exonerated from payment of interest; where it is productive, but the rents and profits, are less than the interest, the vendor may be allowed to retain the rents, etc., and the purchaser may be relieved from paying interest; and where the rents exceed the interest, the purchaser may, notwithstanding the delay, be ordered to pay interest from the date fixed for completion, taking the rents and profits: Bank of Montreal v. Fox, 6 P. R. 217; The People's Loan Co. v. Bacon, 27 Gr. 294; unless the delay is attributable to the vendor: Hayes v. Elmsley, 21 Ont. 562; 23 S. C. R. 623.

Growing crops on the land at the time of sale pass to the purchaser, unless expressly excepted in the conditions of sale: McDowell v. Phippen, 1 Ont. 143; Manson v. Manson, 10 P. R. 155.

Rule 733. 20 C. L. J. 33; and he is entitled to compensation if they are removed before he gets possession: Id.

A mortgagor after default cannot give a chattel mortgage on his growing crops so as to defeat the right of his mortgagee thereto: Bloomfield v. Hellyer, 22 Out. App. 232; and even before conveyance a purchaser may apply to the Court to restrain parties bound by the sale from exercising even a legal right to his prejudice as purchaser: Re Powers, 63 L. T. 626.

Rescission of contract.

Where the purchaser pays his purchase money, and is let into possession, but upon a reference it is found that a good title cannot be made, and the contract is rescinded, the purchaser is bound to re-deliver possession on being repaid his purchase money, and if he insists on interest on the purchase money, he must submit to account for the rents and profits: Simmers v. Erb, 21 Gr. 289; and see Turley v. Evans, 13 C. P. 214.

Interest on purchase money.

Where a purchaser is let into possession, pending an investigation of title, he is bound to pay interest, although the possession extend beyond six years: see Birch v. Joy, 3 H. L. C. 565, where the purchaser was in possession forty years before the completion, and the agreement provided that interest should not run until the completion of the contract, see also Toft v. Stevenson, 5 D. M. & G. 735; but it would seem that no more than six years arrears can be recovered as against the land: Airey v. Mitchell, 21 Gr. 510, overruling on this point, Great Western Ry. Co. v. Jones, 13 Gr. 353; but where the purchaser dies, and no intervening incumbrance exists, in order to prevent elusivity of action, the full amount may be recovered even against the land: Airey v. Mitchell, supra; Howerton v. Bradburn, 22 Gr. 96.

Mortgage parol evidence admitted to show terms of.

Where the contract provided for giving a mortgage to secure part of the purchase money, but omitted to state that the mortgage was to bear interest, parol evidence to show that that was the real understanding of the parties was admitted: Gould v. Hamilton, 5 Gr. 192.

Delivery of possession to purchaser, effect of.

Delivery of Possession.—Where the conditions of sale provide that possession may be taken by the purchaser without waiving his right to investigate the title, he may take possession without waiving his right: Bolton v. School Board, 7 Ch. D. 766; but in the absence of any such condition, if a purchaser at a sale under a judgment, enters into possession without the sanction of the Court, and exercises acts of ownership by making repairs and improvements, he may be held to have accepted the title: Danl. Pr., 6th ed., 1093; Wattars v. Hesslein, 20 S. C. R. 171; and at any rate may be ordered to pay his purchase money into Court, notwithstanding his objecting to the title: Patterson v. Robb, 6 P. R. 114; but where, after a purchaser had taken possession, the vendor's solicitor delivered an abstract of title and answered requisitions, it was held that the vendor had waived the right to treat the taking of possession as an acceptance of title: Aldred v. Aldred, 6 P. R. 183; and see Gordon v. Harnden, 18 Gr. 231. Where, under the conditions of sale, a purchaser is entitled to possession, the letting him into the receipt of the rents and profits, is not a sufficient delivery of possession: The People's Loan Co. v. Bacon, 27 Gr. 294.

Summary application for possession.

A summary application for delivery of possession under this Rule can only be made against parties to the action, or strangers who have obtained possession pendente lite: Bank of Montreal v. Wallace, 13 Gr. 184; Trust & Loan Co. v. Start, 6 P. R. 90; where a stranger is in possession who has not obtained possession pendente lite an action must be brought.

Where the purchaser accepts a conveyance or vesting order, knowing that a stranger to the suit is in adverse possession, he cannot afterwards claim compensation for delay in recovering possession. Purchaser accepting conveyance, effect of. Bull v. Harper, 6 P. R. 26; Jolliffe v. Baker, 48 L. T. 966; 11 Q. B. D. 255; unless possession is withheld contrary to the express stipulation of the contract: Barber v. Barber, 11 P. R. 137; 21 C. L. J. 418.

Adverse Possession.—Notice to the purchaser that a person other than the vendor is in possession is notice to the purchaser of the possessor's rights, but not necessarily of his lessor's or other person's through whom he claims; and notice that the rents of the property are received by an estate agent is not notice of the rights of the person for whom he receives them, nor does it put the purchaser on inquiry: Hunt v. Luck, 1902, 1 Ch. 428.

Incumbrances.—A purchaser before accepting a conveyance, or vesting order, or consenting to the payment out of his purchase money, should see that all incumbrances are paid off, which the vendors are bound to discharge. After conveyance, or vesting order, his right to have incumbrances discharged out of his purchase money is gone, and he must rely on his covenant if any: Bull v. Harper, 6 P. R. 26; 8 C., before Spragge, C., February 1, 1873; Re Buck, Peck v. Buck, 6 P. R. 98; Kincaid v. Kincaid, 6 P. R. 93; Jolliffe v. Baker, 11 Q. B. D. 255; 48 L. T. 966; unless perhaps, where he was ignorant of such incumbrances when he accepted the conveyance: see Re Turner & Skelton, 13 Ch. D. 139; Henning v. McDougall, 8 P. R. 200; but see 68 L. T. Jour. 387; Robson v. Robson, 10 P. R. 324; or unless title at all has been conveyed, as where the land had been sold for taxes: Turrill v. Turrill, 7 P. R. 142; and see Jones v. Clifford, 3 Ch. D. 779. But a conveyance by the vendor to a third party, even though made at the purchaser's request, will not prevent the latter, after the conveyance, from claiming to have incumbrances discharged, to which the covenants in the deed may not extend, but which, under the contract of sale, the vendor was bound to pay off: McLennan v. Chequiu, 37 C. C. Q. B. 301. Acceptance of conveyance, effect of.

Ground rent and other outgoings, accruing whilst the purchaser is kept out of possession through the default of the vendor, are held to be payable by the latter: People's Loan Co. v. Bacon, 27 Gr. 294; and see Fisken v. Wride, 11 Gr. 248; sed quere, if this is so, where the purchaser, on the completion of the contract, receives the rents and profits, for the period during which such outgoings accrued. Where the contract is not completed at the appointed time owing to the default of the purchaser, subsequent outgoings paid by the vendor are chargeable to the purchaser: Barst v. Tagg, 1900, 1 Ch. 231, and this, notwithstanding that, under the contract, the vendor is entitled to the rents and profits up to the time of completion in lieu of interest: Ib. Outgoings, how payable.

A purchaser is entitled to have instruments registered against the title creating an apparently adverse claim, removed by the vendor even though they be registered by persons having no apparent title: Keefer v. McKay, 10 P. R. 345. Purchaser entitled to registered title.

A vendor, however, cannot be required to procure the discharge of a mortgage in fee made by a person, since deceased, who had only a life estate: Re Ponton & Swanston, 16 Ont. 602.

Where a vendor contracts to sell only such right or interest (if any) as he has, he is nevertheless bound to convey such right or interest free from any existing incumbrances created by himself: Gould v. Birmingham, Dudley & District Bank, 58 L. T. 599.

Rule 733.

Taxes by whom payable.

Taxes.—The vendor is bound to pay a proportionate part of all taxes accruing up to the time fixed for the completion of the contract, even though not actually imposed at the time: Bank of Montreal v. Fox, 6 P. R. 217; People's Loan Co. v. Bacon, 27 Gr. 294; Re Alger & Sarvia Oil Co., 23 Ont. at p. 591; 19 Ont. App. 446; unless the by-law imposing the taxes, expressly provides that they shall not form a charge on the land until a day after that when the title is made out: Harrison v. Joseph, 8 P. R. 293.

Where the purchaser pays taxes accrued before the time he is let into possession, he is entitled to be refunded out of his purchase money: Youner v. Alcombrack, 13 C. L. J. 226.

As to taxes imposed for local improvements: see The Con. Municipal Act (3 Ed. vii. c. 19, s. 681); R. S. O. c. 170, s. 17; 1 Ed. vii. c. 12, s. 27; Graydon v. Hamill, 20 Ont. 199; Armstrong v. Auger, 21 Ont. 98.

Compensation, when allowed to purchaser.

Compensation.—Although a vendor is allowed great latitude in the statements or exaggerations, he may make, as to the general qualities, and capabilities, of land he is about to offer for sale, still he will not be permitted to make misstatements, and misrepresentations, as to matters of fact, which would naturally have the effect of inducing parties resident at a distance to bid for the property. Therefore, where an advertisement of sale described the property as being "a farm of eighty-four and a half acres, twenty acres cleared and fenced," on the faith of which the plaintiff purchased, when, in fact, there was not any clearing or fencing, compensation for the misrepresentation was allowed: Stammers v. O'Donohoe, 28 Gr. 207; 8 Ont. App. 161; 11 S. C. R. 358; and see Re Murray & Kerr, 43 Ont. 414; but see Osborne v. Farmers & M. B. Socy, 5 Gr. 326.

Mis-representation in advertisements.

Evidence of misrepresentation.

Where a material misrepresentation has been made by the vendor, it is not necessary for the purchaser to prove that the representation was known by the vendors to be false, or was made recklessly; and in the absence of evidence to the contrary, the purchaser will be presumed to have bought on the faith of such representation: Redgrave v. Hurd, 45 L. T. 485; 20 Ch. D. 1; Jones v. Rimmer, 43 L. T. 111; see, however, Jolliffe v. Baker, 11 Q. B. 19, 255; 48 L. T. 966; Smith v. Land & House Property Co., 49 L. T. 532; 51 L. T. 718; but where it is shewn that the purchaser bought with knowledge that the statement was untrue, compensation will be refused: Carmichael v. Ferris, 8 P. R. 289; and see Curran v. Little, 8 Gr. 250; but see Lett v. Randall, 49 L. T. 71. So also where the purchaser is a party to the action, and has been party to settling the conditions of sale, he cannot, it would seem, be entitled to compensation for any misrepresentation therein: see Hopcraft v. Hopcraft, 76 L. T. 391. As to the effect of a verbal correction by the auctioneer of misstatements in the advertisement, but not heard by the purchaser: see In re Hare & O'More, 1901, 1 Ch. 93; 83 L. T. 672, and see 110 L. T. Jour. 419.

But the fact that the purchaser was in actual occupation of the property before the sale, does not disentitle him to compensation for a deficiency in the area represented by the particulars to be sold: Re Aspinall & Powell, 60 L. T. 595.

Compensation for delay in making title.

The purchaser may be entitled to compensation for delay in making out the title: Audley v. Boren, 3 Chy. Ch. 81; or in completing the contract: Jones v. Gardiner, 1902, 1 Ch. 191; 86 L. T. 74; if there is any bad faith on the part of the vendor: Rouse v. Gordon, 36 Ch. D. 619; or want of reasonable diligence in completing, and not merely delay due to conveyancing difficulties: Jones v. Gardiner, supra; or Rule 733, for delay in delivering possession: Thomas v. Burton, L. R. 8 Eq. 120; Manson v. Manson, 10 P. R. 155; 20 C. L. J. 33; Royal Bristol Co. v. Bonash, 35 Ch. D. 390; or for delay in delivering the conveyance: Hayes v. Elmsley, 21 Ont. 562; Stevenson v. Davis, Ib., 642, judgment of Armour, C.J., afterwards affirmed 23 S. C. R. 629, by the Supreme Court; or for destruction of the property by fire before the confirmation of the sale: see Stephenson v. Bain, S. P. R. 258; but see Rapier v. Preston, 14 Ch. D. 297; 43 L. T. 18; 18 Ch. D. 1; 44 L. T. 787; 50 L. J. Ch. 472. So also, for the existence of a public sewer on the premises sold in which other persons have rights of user: Re Breuer & Hankin, 80 L. T. 127. So, also, for deficiency of land; thus, where 300 acres "more or less," was advertised, and the land only contained 244 acres, compensation was awarded: Wardell v. Trenouth, 24 Gr. 465; Whittemore v. Whittemore, L. R. 8 Eq. 603; and see Canada Permanent L. & S. Co. v. Young, 18 Gr. 566; Re Fawcett & Holmes, 61 L. T. 105. But a vendor who sells a parcel of land at so much per acre, which turns out to contain a greater number of acres than represented in the advertisement, is not, after conveyance, entitled to payment for the excess: Cottingham v. Cottingham, 5 Ont. 704; 11 Ont. App. 624; and see Sea v. McLean, 23 C. L. J. 352; 14 S. C. R. 652.

The right of a purchaser to compensation for deficiency in quantity may be excluded by the conditions of sale: Re Terry & White, 32 Ch. D. 14; 51 L. T. 353. Where, however, the purchaser, by the conditions of sale, is deprived of the right to compensation for deficiency, and such deficiency is material, specific performance of the contract would not be decreed at the suit of the vendor except on the terms of his making compensation for the deficiency: Ib.

A purchaser may also be entitled to compensation for failure to make title to part of the property sold, although he may be precluded by the conditions of sale, from objecting to carry out the sale on that ground: English v. Murray, 49 L. T. 35, and see Re Jackson & Haden, 53 W. R. 428.

A purchaser is also entitled to compensation for dilapidations committed by parties in possession, after sale, and before completion: Fiske v. Wride, 11 Gr. 245; Thomas v. Burton, supra; and he is entitled to compensation for the removal of growing crops: Manson v. Manson, 10 P. R. 155; 20 C. L. J. 33; Royal Bristol Socy. v. Bonash, 35 Ch. D. 390; 59 L. T. 179; or for removal of the soil; and the acceptance of a conveyance in ignorance of the damage done, will not estop him from claiming compensation: Clarke v. Rawns, 1891, 2 Q. B. 456; 65 L. T. 657; Phillips v. Sylvestor, L. R. 8 Ch. 173; 27 L. T. 840. Where a vendor is liable for all "outgoings" up to the time fixed for completion, he must bear the expense of the removal of dangerous buildings on the property ordered to be removed under statutory powers in that behalf before, though not actually removed till after completion: Tubbs v. Wynne, 1897, 1 Q. B. 74.

Compensation may also be awarded for the suppression of material facts; thus, where the property offered for sale was a mill site, and the vendor had previously sold the right to take water for the purpose of floating logs, which fact was not communicated to the purchaser, it was held that this was a subject for compensation: Wardell v. Trenouth, 24 Gr. 465; or the contract may be rescinded: see Heywood v. Mallon, 49 L. T. 658. Notwithstanding a condition of sale that misdescription should not avoid the sale, it was held that Rule 73a. Describing the vendor's title as a lease, whereas it was an underlease, entitled the purchaser to rescind the contract: Re Begfus & Masters, 39 Ch. D. 110; 59 L. T. 740.

Defects which come within the terms of any covenants are not to be excluded from their operation, on the ground that they appear on the face of the conveyance, or are otherwise known to the purchaser: Page v. Midland Ry. Co., 1894, 1 Ch. 11, overruling Hunt v. White, 37 L. J. Ch. 326; 16 W. R. 478.

Conditions as to title. A vendor can only insist on specific performance of the contract with compensation for misrepresentations in the advertisement pursuant to a condition in that behalf, where the misrepresentation is comparatively trifling, but not where it is substantial: Jacob v. Kerell, 1900, 2 Ch. 538.

After conveyance, right to compensation for defects in title is gone. After conveyance, or vesting order, the purchaser's right to compensation for defects in title to which his covenants, if any, do not extend, is usually gone: Greswolde v. Barneby, 83 L. T. 708; Allen v. Richardson, 13 Ch. D. 524; Manson v. Thacker, 7 Ch. D. 620; Egleston v. Hove, 3 Ont. App. 560; Re Back, Peck v. Back, 6 P. R. 98; Kincaid v. Kincaid, 6 P. R. 93; Follis v. Porter, 11 Gr. 442; McCall v. Enithorne, 10 Gr. 324; Jolliffe v. Baker, 11 Q. B. D. 255; 48 L. T. 960; Besley v. Besley, 9 Ch. D. 103; Clayson v. Leach, 61 L. T. 60; but where there is an express condition for compensation, see Bos v. Halsam, L. R. 2 Ex. 72; Re Turner & Skelton, 13 Ch. D. 130; 44 L. T. 638; Palmer v. Johnson, 12 Q. B. D. 32; 13 Q. B. D. 351; 51 L. T. 211; and where the conveyance has been made to a third party: see McLennan v. Chequin, 37 U. C. Q. B. 301; and Clarke v. Ramuz, 1891, 2 Q. B. 456; 65 L. T. 637.

Exception where misstatements in advertisements. But misstatements in the advertisement of a sale by the Court, or suppression of material facts, may form the ground for compensation even after conveyance, so long as the fund remains in Court: Cann v. Cann, 3 Sim. 447; Bull v. Harper, 6 P. R. 36; Turrill v. Turrill, 7 P. R. 142; and see Horner v. Williams, Jo. & Co., 274; Re Perriam, Perriam v. Perriam, 49 L. T. 710, and see Palmer v. Johnson, 13 Q. B. D. 351; or the sale, may, after, or before, conveyance, be set aside: Nash v. Wooderson, 52 L. T. 49; Brewer v. Brown, 78 L. T. Jour. 79; and so also stipulations in the advertisement for the delivery of possession, if not carried out, may be the subject of compensation even after a vesting order has been taken, so long as the purchase money remains in Court: Barber v. Barber, 11 P. R. 137; and where a purchaser has by mistake or inadvertence taken a vesting order before an incumbrance has been discharged which he is entitled to have discharged, so long as the purchase money remains under the control of the Court, it may be ordered to be applied in discharge of the incumbrance: Fleming v. McDougall, 8 P. R. 200.

Specific performance, when not enforced. The Court will not enforce specific performance of a contract, with compensation for misdescription, where the sale was made by a vendor in a fiduciary capacity, and any cestui que trust would have a right to complain of the sale, if so enforced, as a breach of trust: Osborne v. Farmers & M. B. Socy., 5 Gr. 326; Mortlock v. Buller, 10 Ves. 292; Goodwin v. Fielding, 4 Da G. M. & G. 104; Sneizely v. Thorn, 1 Jur. N. S. 125; Dunn v. Flood, 28 Ch. D. 586; 49 L. T. 670; Re Douglas, 1902, 2 Ch. 296; and see Jacob v. Rowell, 1902, 2 Ch. 850; and it is immaterial whether the trustees are plaintiffs or defendants: Ib.; and vide Sea v. McLean, 23 C. L. J. 352; 14 S. C. R. 632; nor will the Court enforce the contract when the title is doubtful: see Re Hollis Hospital, 1899, 2 Ch. 540; Williams v. Scott, 1900, A. C. 499, 82 L. T. 727.

Insurance Pending Completion.—Where a vendor insures the property sold, pending completion, for the benefit of himself and his assigns, the insurance will enure to the benefit of the purchaser, for whom the vendor will be trustee for the balance, if any, of the insurance money which remains after satisfying the amount due to the vendor for purchase money: Keefer v. Phoenix, 29 Ont. 391; 26 Ont. App. 277; 31 S. C. R. 144. Rule 733.

Rescission of Contract.—The misrepresentation of material facts may entitle the purchaser to have the contract rescinded: Gule v. Hubert, 6 Gr. 312; Redgrave v. Hard, 20 Ch. D. 1; Broom v. Phillips, 74 L. T. 459; Moorhouse v. Hewish, 22 Ont. App. 172; and the giving of time to a vendor to make good a representation, on the faith of which the purchaser bought, does not prevent the purchaser from claiming a rescission if at the end of that time it is not made good: Tibbatts v. Boulter, 73 L. T. 534. Misrepresentation, ground for rescission.

The fact that a tenant of the premises sold, was, unknown both to the vendor and purchaser at the time of sale, keeping a disorderly house on the premises, was held to be no ground for rescission at the instance of the purchaser, nor any bar to the vendor's obtaining specific performance of the contract: Hope v. Wallace, 1899, 1 Ch. 879; 1900, 1 Ch. 257; 80 L. T. 355.

In the absence of fraud by the vendor, or other special circumstances, where the contract is rescinded by reason of the vendor's failure to make title, the purchaser cannot recover for improvements made while he is in possession under the contract: Rankin v. Sterling, 3 O. L. R. 646; Dart. V. & P. (6th ed.), 1085; nor is he ordinarily entitled to damages for loss of his bargain, unless the contract falls through in consequence of the failure of the vendor to do his best to complete it: Ib., and see Day v. Lighton, 1890, 2 Ch. 320; 81 L. T. 306. He is entitled to his costs of investigating and endeavouring to clear up the title: Dart. V. & P. 6th ed., 1085. As to the costs recoverable by the purchaser where the vendor rescinds pursuant to a condition: see Isaacs v. Towell, 1898, 2 Ch. 285. Purchaser not entitled to improvements on rescission.

As to special conditions enabling the vendor to rescind, see notes to Rule 721.

Where the vendor has the right to rescind, he may exercise it, notwithstanding the issue of a writ by the purchaser for specific performance: Isaacs v. Towell, 78 L. T. 619.

Reference as to Title.—The inclination of the Court is in favour of giving the purchaser a reference as to title, if he desires it. And it is only when the evidence is clear that the purchaser intended to waive, and has actually waived, his right of examining the title, that a reference will be denied: Mitchell v. Irwin, 13 Gr. at p. 543; and see Jackson v. Jessup, 6 Gr. 157. Reference as to title, when ordered.

On an application by the vendor to compel the purchaser to pay his purchase money into Court, a reference as to title may be ordered, if the purchaser has neither accepted, nor waived his right to examine the title: Crooks v. Street, 1 Chy. Ch. 95; Street v. Hallett, 6 P. R. 312; McDermid v. McDermid, 8 P. R. 28; 15 C. L. J. 136; Ellwood v. Pierce, 7 P. R. 427.

Where a reference as to title is directed in general terms it must be understood that the reference is to inquire whether a good title can be made, having regard to the contract: Upperton v. Nickolson, L. R. 10 Eq. 228; L. R. 6 Chy. 436.

Rule 734.

Waiver of right to reference,
what constitutes.

Waiver.—The right to a reference may be waived by buying in either demanding an abstract, or making any objection to the title; Ontario Bank v. Surr, 6 P. R. 216; and see Rae v. Geddes, 18 Gr. 217; or by taking possession; Denson v. Fuller, 10 Gr. 408; Commercial Bank v. McConnell, 7 Gr. 323; Wallace v. Hoshida, 20 S. C. R. 171; Patterson v. Robb, 6 P. R. 111; O'Connor v. Boyd, 22 Ont. App. 407; but see Wardell v. Trenouth, 24 Gr. 405; Daly v. Greenleaf, 11 Gr. 351; Matchett v. Irons, 13 Gr. 337; Cole v. v. Glens, 8 Gr. 239; Morin v. Wilkinson, 2 Gr. 157; O'Keefe v. Taylor, 11 Gr. 305; Jackson v. Jessup, 6 Gr. 156. But if after possession taken, the vendor proceeds with the investigation of title, and answers requisitions, the taking of possession will be no waiver; Boroughs v. Oakley, 3 Sw. 159; Alldred v. Alldred, 6 P. R. 18; Gordon v. Harnden, 18 Gr. 231.

Circumstances from which a waiver may be inferred.

The right of a purchaser to investigate the title may be also waived by his accepting a conveyance, or vesting order; Bull v. Harper, 6 P. R. 161. So also writing a letter apologizing for non-payment of the purchase money, although making no reference to the title; or negotiating a release of dower from a person interested in the estate; or the giving of a mortgage to secure the purchase money, are circumstances from which an acceptance of title may be inferred; Donald v. Garrett, 8 Gr. 200; but see Jackson v. Jessup, 6 Gr. 156. But though the purchaser by taking possession and dealing with the property may waive his right to compel the vendor to make out a good title, he may yet be relieved from payment of his purchase money before completion, on showing that the vendor has no title at all; Denson v. Fuller, 10 Gr. 408.

Possession taken with knowledge of incurable defects;
effect of.

In applying the doctrine of waiver, a distinction is to be observed between the case of a contract, providing that a good title shall be shewn, and that possession may be taken before completion, and the case of a purchaser taking possession before completion without any express stipulation in that behalf. There is also a broad distinction between a purchaser going into, or remaining in, possession, and making structural alterations, knowing of the existence of an incurable objection; and one entering with knowledge of objections which are curable. In the former case he may, although entitled to have the title otherwise made out, be held to have waived the particular incurable objection; Re Gleng & Miller, 23 Ch. D. 320; 48 L. T. 620; but where the title was by possession, and the purchaser after obtaining the evidence of possession as being insufficient, continued in possession and made improvements, it was held not to be a waiver of his right to have a good title made out; Rankin v. Sterling, 3 D. L. R. 646.

Settlement of conveyance.

734. The Master shall settle all necessary conveyances for the purpose of carrying out the sale in case the parties differ, or in case there are any persons under any disability (other than coverture) interested in such sale. Con. Rule 107.

Taken from J. A. Rule 331.

See Rule 672.

Conveyance.—In all sales by the Court, the Master to whom the action is referred, may, under this Rule, settle the conveyance in case the parties differ, or there be any parties not ad iure interested.

the purchaser is entitled to a conveyance with bar of dower by the wife; if she refuses to bar dower, the purchaser is entitled to an abatement, or to rescind the contract: Kendrick v. Sherman, 4 Gr. 578; VanNorman v. Beaupre, 5 Gr. 549; or to have a portion of the purchase money, sufficient to answer the dower, set apart until the wife's death, and the interest thereon paid to the vendor during his wife's life: see Skinner v. Ainsworth, 24 Gr. 148, and Loughhead v.

Rule 734. Stubbs, 27 Gr. 387; but the wife of a mortgagee cannot be compelled to join in a conveyance to a purchaser: Simpson v. Simpson, 1 Chy. Ch. 265, except where the mortgagee's title has become absolute by the foreclosure of the equity of redemption, and even then only when the mortgagee has the legal estate: see R. S. O. c. 164, s. 2. As to the mode of computing dower in an equity of redemption where the dower has not been assigned, but the widow has been in possession of the land, see Re Percy, 11 Ont. 374.

Purchaser may take vesting order in lieu of conveyance.

The purchaser is entitled to a conveyance with ordinary covenants; and for the principle for determining what are "usual covenants," see Re Lander & Badgley, 1892, 3 Ch. 41; 67 L. T. 521; Davidson on Conveyancing, vol. 5, pt. ii., pp. 51-54; 3 Bythw. 122; Re Can Pac. Ry. v. Toronto, 4 O. L. R. 134; 27 Ont. App. 54; 5 O. L. R. 717; 1905, A. C. 33; but he may, if he chooses, take a vesting order; but a purchaser cannot be compelled to take a vesting order instead of a conveyance: Laplante v. Scamen, 8 Ont. App. 557. Wherever the Court has authority to order the execution of a conveyance, it may make a vesting order: see Jud. Act, s. 36, supra, p. 31. The vesting order is granted in Chambers on production of the report on sale duly confirmed, and proof that the purchase money has been duly paid, or secured, according to the report. Where the purchase money is to be paid into Court, its payment must be proved by the production of the certificate of the Accountant or his Chief Clerk. The vendor's solicitor is entitled to notice of the application: Boulton v. Stegman, 1 Chy. Ch. 199; and where infants are interested, the guardian ad litem is usually notified also: Thorne v. Chute, 2 Chy. Ch. 221; but see Boulton v. Stegman, supra. Where the owner of the legal estate became the purchaser, a vesting order was refused: Bowen v. For, 1 Chy. Ch. 387; and see Jud. Act, s. 36, and notes, supra, pp. 31, 32.

Application for, how made.

Costs of vesting order.

Where, in consequence of the absence of one of the vendors from the jurisdiction, the execution of the conveyance prepared, and tendered by the purchaser, could not be procured, and a vesting order was then obtained, the purchaser was held entitled to the extra costs so occasioned: Re McMorris, 3 Chy. Ch. 430; and see Laurason v. Buckley, 3 Chy. Ch. 270.

Tender of conveyance.

The purchaser sufficiently tenders the conveyance for execution under the standing conditions of sale, by delivering the same to the vendor's solicitor: Weiss v. Crafts, 6 P. R. 151.

Even before conveyance a purchaser may apply to the Court to restrain any party bound by the sale from exercising even a legal right to his prejudice as purchaser: Re Powers, 63 L. T. 626.

Completion of Sale.—On the completion of the sale the purchaser is entitled to the delivery of all title deeds relating to the property purchased, unless otherwise provided by the conditions of sale; or unless the vendor is entitled to retain them as mortgagee; and the expense of procuring such of the title deeds as are not in the vendor's possession must be borne by the vendor in the absence of any conditions of sale to the contrary, and semble, a condition that the vendor shall not be bound to produce them for the verification of the abstract is not such a condition to the contrary: Re Duthy & Jesson, 1898, 1 Ch. 419.

The purchaser is also entitled to require the vendor to deliver to him possession of the premises: see Rule 733 and notes p. 942.

785. After the report is confirmed, the vendor shall, ^{Rule 735.} forthwith upon demand, deliver an abstract of title to the purchaser; and if the purchaser does not serve objections within 7 days, he shall be deemed to have accepted the abstract as sufficient. If objections are served, the vendor shall answer them within 14 days, and if the purchaser is still dissatisfied, and the parties cannot agree, either party may obtain from the Master a warrant to consider the abstract. ^{Delivery of abstract. If no objection served abstract to be deemed sufficient. Objections to abstract: how disposed of.} Con. Rule 108.

Taken from Chy. O. 390.

This and the six following Rules apply to all cases where a reference as to title is made to a Master or Official Referee, as well as to sales by the Court: Rule 742. But where a sale is made out of Court, subject to certain conditions as to the delivery of objections to title within a specified time, and before action objections are delivered, the purchaser on an action for specific performance being subsequently brought, cannot, in the Master's office, deliver any further objections: Imperial Bank v. Metcalfe, 11 Ont. 467; except by leave of the Court; the Master has no power to grant such leave: Clarke v. Langley, 10 P. R. 208.

In sales by the Court, the solicitor of the party conducting the sale, is considered the vendor's solicitor, and it is from him the abstract must be demanded, and it is his duty to prepare, and deliver it. ^{Abstract, delivery of.}

The vendor is only required to deliver an abstract on demand. ^{Demand of abstract.} The demand should be in writing: see R. S. C. c. 164, s. 91. Wilful falsification of pedigree, or concealment of deeds, renders a vendor criminally liable: Ib., and also civilly liable in damages: R. S. O. c. 119, s. 39.

Where after reasonable notice a vendor refuses to deliver a proper abstract of title, the purchaser is entitled to rescind the contract and claim a return of his deposit. Fourteen days has been held to be a reasonable time to limit for its delivery in the case of a sale out of Court: Compton v. Bagley, 65 L. T. 706.

The purchaser may, if he pleases, investigate the title, without making the demand. And where he made no demand of an abstract, and made no objection to the title, for twenty-three months, he was held to have waived his right to object to the title: Ontario Bank v. Surr, 6 P. R. 276; and see Rac v. Goldes, 18 Gr. 217. ^{Neglect of purchaser to demand, effect of.}

Where a purchaser neglects to demand an abstract of title, but brings a suit for specific performance in which the usual reference as to title is directed, and an inquiry when the title was first shewn: although the Master found the title was first shewn in his office, yet as no demand of abstract had been made previous to the suit, the purchaser was ordered to pay the costs of it: London & Canadian L. & A. Co. v. Graham, 12 P. R. 651.

Where the vendor neglects, on demand, to deliver an abstract, the purchaser may move to compel him to do so. Or it would seem if the delay is unreasonable, he may apply to be discharged: see Walton v. Armstrong, 11 Gr. 379. The purchaser is entitled to a solicitor's abstract, and not merely a registrar's abstract, unless there be an express condition of sale to the contrary. ^{Neglect of vendor to deliver abstract.}

Rule 736. Although the taking of possession by the purchaser, may amount to a waiver of title, yet if the vendor afterwards delivers an abstract, or proceeds with the investigation of the title, he cannot set up the waiver: Aldwell v. Aldwell, 6 P. R. 183; Gordon v. Harnden, 18 Gr. 231.

Abstract, nature of. An abstract may be defined to be a brief statement of all material deeds, and facts, necessary to be proved in order to establish a good title in a vendor. For form of a solicitor's abstract, see H. & L. Forms, No. 1015.

Where all matters essential to a good title are manifest in the abstract, and the vendor is able and willing to verify it, a good title is shewn; and a good title is made when the abstract is verified: Granger v. Latham, 14 Gr. 209, and other cases cited on p. 953.

Where a material document was omitted from the abstract, but its contents sufficiently appeared by a document which was abstracted, the omission was held to be no objection to the abstract: In re Ebsworth & Tidy, 42 Ch. D. 23.

Objection to abstract, how made. After the receipt of the abstract, the purchaser may deliver objections to the abstract: e.g., that assuming the chain of title therein set out to be proved, it does not shew a good, or any title, in the vendors; or that the effect of any instrument is not sufficiently abstracted. This class of objections is confined to the sufficiency of the abstract per se. The objections should be specific, and point out clearly the alleged defect.

Determination of. As to the determination of questions thus raised, see Rule 737, infra; McManus v. Little, 3 Ch. Ch. 263. After the abstract has been made perfect, or accepted as sufficient, the next step is its verification, and any defects in the proofs form the subject of objections to, or requisitions on, the title, as provided by Rules 739-741.

Objections to title, delivery of. The purchaser should not deliver objections, and requisitions, on title, until all objections to the abstract are disposed of, or he will be held to have waived all objections to the abstract: McManus v. Little, 3 Ch. Ch. 263.

For form of objections to the abstract, see H. & L. Forms, No. 1017.

Master to determine question as to sufficiency of abstract. 736. The Master shall determine all questions upon the abstract and the sufficiency thereof; and, if desired by the purchaser, may require the vendor to make the same as perfect as he can, and if the vendor neglects or refuses to do so, may permit the purchaser to supply defects therein, at the vendor's expense. Con. Rule 109.

Taken from Chy. O. 391.

Objections to abstract may be referred to Master. Where the objections to the abstract are not removed within fourteen days after service of the objections, it is not necessary to obtain any order of reference, in order to obtain the Master's decision; but the vendor, or purchaser, may carry the abstract and objections into the Master's office, and obtain a warrant to consider the abstract.

Vendor may supply defects in abstract. If the Master holds the abstract to be insufficient, and the vendor neglects or refuses to supply the defects, the purchaser may be permitted to do so. This, of course, will not always be in the power of a purchaser; but where deeds are registered, the purchaser may frequently obtain the necessary information to perfect the abstract from the Registry office. Rules 737, 738.

A condition of sale that "the examination of title is to be at the expense of the purchaser, who is to call for only those deeds and papers in my possession and under my control," does not relieve the vendor from delivering an abstract of title, even though such an abstract be not among the papers in his possession or control: Re Boustead & Warwick, 12 Ont. 488.

The vendor is usually bound to verify the abstract, by the production of all documents abstracted, or by proper secondary evidence, where the non-production of the originals is sufficiently accounted for; and by producing affidavits of all facts necessary to be proved in order to make out title: see Rule 739; Re Halifax Coml. Banking Co. & Wood, 79 L. T. 183; 1898, W. N. 174 (16).

A good title is not shewn until it is both exhibited by the abstract, and the vendor is able and willing to verify it: Granger v. Latham, 14 Gr. 200; Parr v. Lovegrove, 4 Drew. 176; 6 Jur. N. S. 600; but see Laird v. Paton, 7 Ont. 137; 20 C. L. J. 385; London & Canadian L. & A. Co. v. Graham, 12 P. R. 651; Graham v. Stephens, 27 Gr. 434.

The omission from the abstract of a document whose contents sufficiently appeared by a document abstracted, was held to be no objection to the abstract: Re Ebsworth & Tidy, 42 Ch. D. 23.

737. The Master shall not make a report on the abstract, but shall mark the objections as allowed or disallowed, and when he finds the abstract perfect, or as perfect as the vendor can make it, he shall certify to that effect thereon: and such certificate shall be final without filing, unless appealed from in the same manner as from a Master's report. Con. Rule 110.

Taken from Chy. O. 392.

Where the Master made a report on the title, instead of marking the objections "allowed," or "disallowed," the Court refused to entertain an appeal from his report, but referred the matter back to the Master, to be dealt with as provided by this Rule: Cockenour v. Bullock, 12 Gr. 73.

As to the time for appealing from a Master's report, see Rules 769-772.

738. After an abstract is confirmed, or is accepted by the purchaser as sufficient, no objection to the abstract shall be allowed. Con. Rule 111.

Taken from Chy. O. 393.

The abstract is accepted as sufficient, if the purchaser does not serve any objection within seven days after its delivery: Rule 735. It is confirmed, if the Master disallow the objections, and no appeal is had from his finding within the time limited by Rules 769-772.

Rule 739.Verification of abstract.Notice to deliver objections and requisitions.

739. After acceptance or confirmation of the abstract, the verification shall be proceeded with, and the vendor shall with all diligence afford the purchaser all the means of verification in his power, in the manner, and according to the practice usual with conveyancers; and after having done so, he may serve a notice on the purchaser to make objections or requisitions, if any, within 7 days, or that otherwise he will be deemed to have accepted the title. Con. Rule 112.

Taken from Chy. O. 394.

Verification of abstract.Title deeds, how proved.

Verification of Abstract.—The practice of conveyancers is for the vendor's solicitor to give notice of a time and place (usually his own office), where the abstract will be verified. Sometimes the deeds, and evidences of title, are sent to the purchaser's solicitor. So far as the title deeds are concerned, the abstract is verified by the production of the originals, or such of them as are in the vendor's possession, and by producing certified copies of the deeds, or registered memorials where the originals are not in the vendor's possession. Sometimes, however, notarial copies are furnished, e.g., where a deed covering other lands is in the hands of some third party. In verifying the abstract the production of the title deeds is sufficient proof of their due execution, unless evidence is adduced casting doubt on their authenticity: see Coventry, 41. As to how far registered memorials are evidence, and as to how far recitals in deeds are evidence of the facts recited, see R. S. O. c. 134, ss. 2, 3; Sanders v. Malaburg, 1 Ont. 178; 18 C. L. J. 206; Allan v. McTavish, 28 Gr. 539; Reg. v. Guthrie, 41 U. C. Q. B. 148; Canada Permanent Loan & Savings Co. v. Ross, 7 P. R. 79; Re Halifax Coml. Banking Co. & Wood, 1898, W. N. 174 (161); 79 L. T. 183; for cases before the Statute, see Wishart v. Cook, 15 Gr. 237; Gough v. McBride, 10 C. P. 166; Re Higgins, 19 Gr. 303; S. C., 4 Chy. Ch. 128; Russell v. Fraser, 15 C. P. 375.

Where the vendor relies on a possessory title, the possession must be proved by affidavits, and the purchaser is entitled to cross-examine the deponents: Re Boustead & Warwick, 12 Ont. 488; McIntosh v. Rogers, 12 P. R. 389; sed vide as to costs, Dame v. Slater, 21 Ont. 375.

The evidence in such a case must not only establish possession for the required period, but should also negative the existence of any fact mentioned in the Statute which would prevent, or stop, its running: Chapman v. Bunbury, 31 C. L. J. 103; 15 C. L. T. 57.

Other facts, how proved.

Facts necessary to be proved in order to make out the title, e.g., death, intestacy, heirship, etc., are required to be proved by affidavit; but statutory declarations of such facts, taken on a former devolution of the title, are usually accepted as evidence, and need not be corroborated by affidavits made in the action. By R. S. O. c. 134, s. 2, recitals and descriptions of facts, matters, and parties contained in deeds, instruments, Acts of Parliament, or statutory declarations twenty years old at the date of the contract, shall, unless and except so far as they are proved to be inaccurate, be taken to be sufficient proof of such facts, matters and descriptions; and see Re Ponton & Swanston, 16 Ont. 609; Re Marsh & Granville, 24 Ch. D. 11; 48 L. T. 947.

Where the title is a registered title, all instruments in the chain of title must be registered, and any unregistered deeds in the chain of title, must be registered at the expense of the vendor: Kitchen v. Murray, 18 C. P. 69; Brady v. Walla, 17 Gr. 699; Fahner v. Ran, 1 Chy. Ch. 246; Sweetnam v. Sweetnam, 6 P. R. 83; Laird v. Paton, 1 Ont. 137; 20 C. L. J. 385. Where a registered deed appears on the abstract it is not sufficient verification of the abstract to produce a deed apparently between the same parties as the registered deed, but bearing no certificate of registration, without in some way establishing the identity of the deed produced with that registered: McIntosh v. Rogers, 12 P. R. 389. Deeds must be registered at vendor's expense.

In the absence of any express condition of sale to the contrary, the vendor is bound to furnish, at his own expense, to the purchaser, copies of all instruments relating to the title which are not of record: Re Charles, 4 Chy. Ch. 19. He is also bound to furnish copies of all deeds registered by memorial, but it was held not of deeds registered in full: Id.; but see Harrison v. Joseph, 8 P. R. 233; but in a later case it was held by Street, J., that the vendor is bound to produce and deliver to the purchaser certified copies of all deeds, of which he cannot produce the originals, whether registered in full or not: McIntosh v. Rogers, 12 P. R. 389; and see Bohier & Ontario Invt. Assoc., 16 Ont. 259. Copies when to be furnished by vendor.

The ordinary liability of a vendor to produce all necessary evidence to make out a good title, and to deliver on completion the original deeds, or copies of such as are not in his possession, may be qualified by special conditions of sale. Where special conditions are imposed, they have to be set out in full in the advertisement: see Rule 721. Special conditions of this kind should not be unnecessarily stringent, as they are calculated to damp the sale. Thus where the proof of title was involved in no difficulty a condition of sale that "the vendor is not to be bound to give any evidence of title, or any title deeds or copies thereof, other than such as are in his possession, or prove any abstract," was held to be very objectionable, and one that should not be sanctioned by the Master, even by consent: McDonald v. Gordon, 2 Chy. Ch. 125. Liability of vendor to furnish qualified by conditions.

But it seems that even such a condition would not exempt a vendor from otherwise showing a good title: Canada Permanent Building Society v. Wallis, 8 Gr. 368; McIntosh v. Rogers, 12 P. R. 389; 14 Ont. 117; Secus, where the vendor purports to sell only such title as he has, but even then, if it can be shewn by the purchaser that the vendor has no title at all, the contract will not be specifically enforced against the purchaser: Leslie v. Preston, 1 Gr. 434; Jones v. Clifford, 3 Ch. D. 779; Darlington v. Hamilton, Kay, 550; but see Hume v. Pocock, L. R. 1 Cby. 379; Hume v. Bentley, 5 De G. & S. 520; even where a vendor advertises to sell only such title as he has, he is bound to convey that title free from any subsisting incumbrance: Goold v. Birmingham, Dudley & District Bank, 58 L. T. 560. The Court will not knowingly pass off a bad title, by the aid of special, or misleading conditions: Else v. Else, L. R. 13 Eq. 196; Seton, 5th ed., 204, 1854. Vendor may be bound, notwithstanding such conditions, to prove title.

The vendor is bound to procure the discharge of Crown bonds affecting the land: Re Charles, 4 Chy. Ch. 19. Crown bonds of the Province of Ontario, are no longer a charge on land of the obligor, unless registered against it: R. S. O. c. 113; Re Franklin, 8 P. R. 470; nor are Crown bonds of the Dominion: 51 Vict. c. 23 (D.). The vendor is also bound to remove certificates of lia pendens registered against the land: Bohier & Ont. Invt. Assoc., 16 Ont. 259. Crown bonds not pass off a bad title knowingly.

Rule 740.

Taxes and incum-
brances.

The vendor is not bound to give evidence, negativing the existence of arrears of taxes, or other incumbrances: Thompson v. Milliken, 10 Gr. 359. As to punishment for concealing incumbrances, or falsifying pedigree, etc., after written demand of abstract: see R. S. C. c. 164, s. 91. But he is bound to have removed from the register or otherwise nullified, any registered instrument, appearing to create an adverse interest in the land, even though such instruments purport to be made by parties having no apparent title: Keefe v. McKean, 10 P. R. 345.

Deeds by
T. & L. Co.
& Canada
Co.

As to execution of deeds, by the Trust & Loan Co., see 25 Vict. c. 72; Trust & Loan Co. v. Monk, 14 Gr. 385; by The Canada Company: Woodhill v. Sullivan, 14 C. P. 265; Fell v. South, 24 C. C. Q. B. 196.

Covenants
by Canada
Co.

The Canada Company is not exempted from giving ordinary covenants for title: see Scarlett v. Canada Co., 1 Cby. Ch. 90.

Notice to deliver objections,
service of.

As soon as the vendor's solicitor considers that the verification of the abstract is complete, he should serve notice on the purchaser to deliver objections, and requisitions.

The Master has no jurisdiction to permit further objections to be delivered after the time limited by this Rule, but the Court on special application for that purpose may permit further objections to be delivered: Clarke v. Langley, 10 P. R. 208. And where under the conditions of sale, the time for putting in objections has expired before the reference to the Master takes place, no further objections can be delivered in the Master's office: Imperial Bank v. Metcalfe, 11 Ont. 467.

Objections, and requisitions to whom to be delivered.

740. Upon being served with such notice, the purchaser, if dissatisfied, shall serve his objections or requisitions within the time thereby limited; and the like course shall be followed upon such objections or requisitions as is prescribed by Rules 735, 736, and 737, in relation to the abstract. Con. Rule 113.

Taken from Cby. O. 395.

Requisitions on title.

Requisitions on and Objections to Title.—If the purchaser is dissatisfied with the proofs of title adduced by the vendor, he must deliver his objections and requisitions within seven days after receipt of notice so to do, or he will be deemed to have accepted the title: Rule 739. For form of objections to and requisitions on title: see H. & L. Forms, No. 1025. As to the construction of conditions for the delivery of objections to title in the case of sales out of Court: see Nason v. Armstrong, 22 Ont. 542; 21 Ont. App. 183; 25 S. C. R. 263.

Objections to title.

Stipulations as to time for delivery of objections to title do not prevent objection, even after the stipulated time, to an entire want of title: Id.

The existence of an easement undisclosed by the particulars was held a valid objection, although the property was offered "subject to any existing public and private rights of way, and other rights and easements of whatever nature": Heywood v. Mallatcu, 49 L. T. 678; and a condition providing that the purchaser was deemed to have purchased with knowledge of the qualities and condition of the properly purchased was held not to apply to an underground culvert: Re Pickett & Smith, 1902, 2 Ch. 258; 87 L. T. 180. The existence of registered deeds by parties apparently having no title is a valid objection: McKay v. Keefer, 10 P. R. 345; the fact that the sale was by trustees under unnecessarily depreciative conditions is also a valid objection: Re Rayner, 53 L. T. 495.

The existence of a public road across the land was held a valid objection to the title, although a resolution of the Municipal Council to close it had been passed: Kronsbien v. Gaye, 10 Gr. 552; so also the existence of a right of way: Ashburner v. Sewell, 1891, 3 Ch. 405; 65 L. T. 524; or a sewer: Re Brewer & Hawkin, 80 L. T. 127; or underground culvert: Re Pickett & Smith, supra. So also is an outstanding claim to dower: Gannoe v. Gannoe, 5 Gr. 133. So also is the lunacy of a previous owner of the land: Francis v. St. Germain, 6 Gr. 630. So also is the fact that the vendor, an attorney, claimed through a will prepared by himself: Grove v. Bastard, 2 Phil. 621. So also is the fact that the title came through a will, whereby the testator purported only to devise a moiety: Stapylton v. Scott, 16 Ves. 273; and where the validity of the vendor's title depended on the fact of his having purchased without notice: Freer v. Hesse, 4 D. M. & G. 495; but a supposed equity in a person who died upwards of fifty years ago, where the possession since that time had been in another, and the vendor had a good legal title, was held no objection: Dewitt v. Thomas, 10 Gr. 21; McIntosh v. Rogers, 12 P. R. 389; Imperial Bank v. Metcalfe, 11 Ont. 467; Re Shortt & Howard, before Boyd, C., 21st March, 1888.

Where trusts affecting the title are accidentally disclosed to the purchaser, he may require the production of the trust deed: McClellan & Abrahams, 1899, 2 Ch. 340; and where a title is traced through a trustee for sale who has himself become the purchaser the burden is on the vendor of shewing by clear affirmative evidence, that the trustee and c. q. t. were at arm's length, and that the latter had full information of all material facts, and adopted what was done. In the absence of such evidence the Court would not compel an unwilling purchaser to complete: Williams v. Scott, 1900, A. C. 499; 82 L. T. 727.

And where litigation is threatened in respect of the property, specific performance would not be enforced until, at all events, it is reasonably clear that the claim in respect of which it is threatened is without foundation: see George v. Thomas, 90 L. T. 505.

Inquiry should always be made as to the possession. If a stranger is in possession, the purchaser should insist on his being ejected by the vendor. Under The Registry Act, R. S. O. c. 136, s. 98, it would seem that possession is no longer constructive notice of the title of the person in possession as against a party claiming under a registered title: Bell v. Walker, 20 Gr. 569; Grey v. Ball, 23 Gr. 390; Sherbourne v. Jeffs, 15 Gr. 574; Building & Loan Ass. v. Pops, 27 Ont. 470; nor of the title of the person through whom the person in possession claims: see Hunt v. Luck, 1901, 1 Ch. 45; 83 L. T. 449; 86 L. T. 68; not even though there be actual notice of the possession: Ib.; Cooley v. Smith, 40 U. C. Q. B. 543; Roe v. Braden, 24 Gr. 589; but where the person in possession is tenant under a lease for a term not exceeding seven years, his interest is protected though his lease is not registered: R. S. O. c. 136, s. 39; Latch v. Bright, 16 Gr. 653. As to the effect of possession in cases to which The Registry Act does not apply: see Attorney-General v. McNulty, 11 Gr. 281, 581; Gray v. Coucher, 15 Gr. 419; and as to what may amount to actual notice sufficient to take a case out of the protection of The Registry Act, see Rose v. Peterkin, 13 S. C. R. 677.

Rule 741.

Purchaser need not inquire as to regularity of proceedings. But must see that all necessary parties are bound, etc.

In investigating the title, the purchaser at a sale by the Court, is not bound to inquire into the regularity of the proceedings in the action; if the judgment appears to be regular on its face, he will be protected: Shaw v. Crawford, 4 Ont. App. 371; Gunn v. Doble, 15 Gr. 655; McLean v. Grant, 20 Gr. 78; but see Forsters v. Pegg, 19 P. R. 254. He must, however, ascertain that all proper necessary parties are bound by the judgment: Lechmere v. Brasier, 2 J. & W. 287; Calvert v. Godfrey, 6 Beav. 97; Bennett v. Hamill, 2 Sch. & Lef. 577; and that the sale was in accordance with the judgment: Colclough v. Sterum, 3 Bli. 181; Talbott v. Minnett, 6 Ir. Eq. 81. An order of the Court is not invalidated as against a bona fide purchaser under it on the ground of want of jurisdiction, or of want of any concurrence, consent, notice, or service: see Ind. Act, s. 58 (11); but semble, a purchaser having notice of the irregularity in the proceedings cannot be compelled to rely on the statutory indemnity: see Life Interests Corp. v. Hand-in-Hand, 1898, 2 Ch. 230.

Requisitions, how adjudicated on.

Where the requisitions and objections, or any of them, are not answered, either party may carry in the objections, or such of them as are not answered, before the Master, as provided by Rule 735, and get his decision thereon.

Matters of conveyance, what are.

Where it is found that the vendor has sold land which he cannot convey himself, the purchaser may rescind; he is not bound to wait and see if the vendor can procure a conveyance by a third party. Re Cooke, 78 L. T. 106, 108.

There are some objections which are not strictly objections to the title, but are considered "matters of conveyance." Thus, the existence of outstanding incumbrances, or satisfied mortgages—where the vendor is entitled to require the party appearing entitled thereto, to join in the conveyance to the purchaser, or to release or discharge his incumbrance,—are not objections to the title. But where the vendor is unable to procure such conveyance, or release, such incumbrances then constitute an objection to the title: see Re Great Northern Ry. Co. v. Sanderson, 25 Ch. D. 788; 50 L. T. 87; McLean v. Walker, 19 Ont. 161. See also Fry, Sp. Perf., 2nd ed., sec. 1357 et seq., and Martin v. McGee, 19 Ont. 705, and 18 Ont. App. 384; Re Deighton & Hurris, 1898, 1 Ch. 458; 46 W. R. 341.

Where a sale is made subject to a condition that the vendor may rescind the contract in case the purchaser should take any objection, or make any requisition which the vendor should be unable or unwilling to answer or comply with, such right must be fairly exercised, and a vendor will not be allowed to temporise with the purchaser whilst endeavoring to effect a sale to some one else: Smith v. Wallace, 1895, 1 Ch. 385; 71 L. T. 814.

Ordinarily a purchaser is entitled to a conveyance of the legal estate, but when the vendor was able to convey a good equitable title, an objection that the legal estate was outstanding, delivered after the time limited for delivery of objections had expired, the objection was held to be too late: Pryce-Jones v. Williams, 1902, 2 Ch. 517; 87 L. T. 230.

On refusal of vendor to verify abstract, Master may authorize purchaser to do so.

741. In case of the refusal or neglect of the vendor to verify the abstract to the best of his ability, or to furnish any necessary proof or documents in his power, the Master may authorize the purchaser to do so at the vendor's expense. Con. Rule 114.

Taken from Chy. O. 396.

Costs of Reference as to Title.—In sales by the Court, the purchaser is entitled to his costs of the reference, where the title proves good, on grounds not appearing on the abstract: Fielder v. Higginson, 3 V. & B. 142; and will not be ordered to pay the vendor's costs, though the title is proved according to the abstract: Flower v. Hartop, 8 Beav. 200; Holland v. King, 1 W. R. 80; Dart, V. & P. 1210; unless the objections are frivolous and vexatious: Thorpe v. Freer, 4 Mad. 406; Peers v. Snayd, 17 Beav. 151 Seton, 5th ed., 1875; Platt v. Blizzard, 29 Gr. 48; Hurd v. Robertson, 7 Gr. 42; Laird v. Paton, 7 Ont. 137. A special application is necessary for an order for such costs: Flower v. Hartop, supra.

Though the title be a possessory one, and be first proved in the M. O., a purchaser may be ordered to pay the costs of the reference where he has acted unreasonably; see Dame v. Slater, 21 Ont. 375.

A purchaser will be ordered to pay the costs of an unsuccessful application to be relieved from his purchase: Osborne v. Osborne, 18 W. R. 421.

Where a good title cannot be made, the purchaser is entitled to a lien on the land sold, for the deposit and costs: Hurd v. Robertson, 7 Gr. 142; and where the vendor rescinds under a condition enabling him to do so, the purchaser is entitled to his costs: see Isaacs v. Lowell, 1898, 2 Ch. 285.

742. The foregoing Rules 735 to 741 inclusive, shall apply to all cases of reference to the Master as to title, as well as to sales by the Court. Con. Rule 115.

Taken from Chy. O. 397.

743. Purchase money shall not be paid out of Court except upon consent of the purchaser or his solicitor, or upon proof being made to the Accountant that the purchaser has received a conveyance or vesting order in respect of the property for which the money in question was paid into Court. New. See Con. Rule 974, last part.

This although a new Rule really embodies what has always been the practice in the Accountant's office.

(v) Foreclosure, Sale and Redemption.

744. Upon a reference under a judgment for foreclosure or sale or redemption of mortgaged property, the Master shall inquire into and state, whether any person, and who, other than the plaintiff, has any lien, charge, or incumbrance upon the land and premises embraced in the mortgage security of the plaintiff, subsequent thereto. Con. Rule 124.

Taken from Chy. O. 442.

This Rule in its terms applies only to the case of mortgages of lands, but a similar procedure is followed upon a judgment for the sale, or foreclosure of chattels.

Rule 745.

Master to inquire as to incumbrances
subsequent to plaintiff.

The inquiry is confined to subsequent incumbrancers; persons against whom relief is sought, who are entitled to the ultimate equity of redemption, or whose claims, if any, are primâ facie prior to the plaintiff's must be made parties to the writ: Glass v. Freckleton, 10 Gr. 470; Lally v. Longhurst, 12 P. R. 510; and see White v. Beasley, 2 Gr. 662; and as to the wife of the mortgagor: see Blony v. Fitzgerald, 15 P. R. 467; and see 30 C. L. J. 113. Where, however, the plaintiff has sought to attack in the Master's office, the priority of an incumbrancer who is primâ facie entitled to priority over him, he has been allowed to vacate his judgment and to add the incumbrancer as an original defendant to the writ, and proceed de novo as against him: Lally v. Longhurst, supra. Where the mortgagor was the only defendant, and a decree, by consent, for immediate foreclosure was taken against him, a reference as to incumbrances was refused: Taylor v. Ward, 13 Gr. 590; but it seems doubtful whether the rule laid down in that case would be followed under the present practice. Where there are no incumbrances, the plaintiff should not take a judgment with a reference as to incumbrances: see Rule 619, and notes.

The incumbrancers are ascertained by the production of the certificates mentioned in the following Rule.

Plaintiff to bring into M. O.
Sheriff's and Registrar's certificates.

745. The plaintiff shall bring into the Master's Office certificates of the Registrar and Sheriff of the County wherein the property lies, setting forth all the incumbrances which affect the property in the writ or pleadings mentioned, and such other evidence as he may be advised. Con. Rule 125.

Taken from Chy. O. 443.

The certificates should be brought down to, at least, the day subsequent to the issue of the writ in the action.

Parties
acquiring title pendente lite need not be added.

It is not necessary to add as parties, those who acquire title pendente lite: Robson v. Argue, 25 Gr. 407; Walbridge v. Martin, 2 Chy. Ch. 275; Bellamy v. Sabine, 1 D. & J. 566, 578, 580, 584, 3 Jur. N. S. 943; Tyler v. Thomas, 25 Beav. 47; an order adding parties who had acquired interests pendente lite was set aside: Mell v. Parr, 9 P. R. 561; but see Lindsay v. Bank of Montreal, 13 Gr. 86. A party acquiring an interest in the subject matter of an action may be added as a defendant on his own application: Gibson v. Nelson, 2 O. L. R. 500. As to the doctrine of lis pendens, see supra, pp. 606 and 866.

Sheriff's
certificate,
form of.

Sheriff's Certificate.—Where the mortgage is of freehold lands, the certificate of the Sheriff must relate to executions against lands, but where the property mortgaged is leasehold, or chattels, it should relate to executions against goods: Sparrow v. Champagne, 5 C. L. 334. The certificates are usually confined to executions against the mortgagor, or other owner of the equity of redemption. But when the practice of registration of judgments was in force, it was held to be necessary to make the judgment creditors of the mortgagee parties also: Sanderson v. Juez, 7 Gr. 383; but in a later case it was held that a creditor of the mortgagee who had obtained an order attaching the mortgage debt, but not an order to pay over, was not an incumbrancer, and ought not to be made a party: Crashie v. Evans, 26 Gr. 283. The Sheriff's certificate should be so worded as to include writs which have been withdrawn for renewal, this may be done by making the certificate cover any writs which have been in the Sheriff's hands within thirty days preceding its date: see form of such a certificate, H. & L. Forms, No. 1437.

The withdrawal of a writ for renewal is not an abandonment of its priority, but on being returned to the Sheriff renewed, it retains the same position it held prior to its withdrawal for renewal: Reice v. Jarvis, 13 C. P. 495; Hair v. Munroe, 23 U. C. Q. B. 139. The day of the teste of a f. fa. is inclusive, so that a writ issued on the 15th day of a month expires on the 14th day of the same month in the last year of its currency: Bank of Montreal v. Taylor, 15 C. P. 107. A writ withdrawn for renewal, and not returned for fifteen days thereafter, when a year from the teste had expired, was held, nevertheless, to be re-delivered in sufficient time: Meneilly v. McKenzie, 3 E. & A. 290; but a writ not returned to the Sheriff until six months after its renewal—owing to mistake—was held to have lost its priority: Re Hime & Ledley, 13 P. R. 1; as to the currency and renewal of writs of f. fa., see Rule 872. A direction by the execution creditor to the Sheriff to stay proceedings, is tantamount to a withdrawal of the writ, and any subsequent execution then in the Sheriff's hands, or thereafter, and during the stay, coming to his hands, will take priority: Trust & Loan Co. v. Cuthbert, 13 Gr. 412. Under The Creditors' Relief Act, R. S. O. c. 78, the question of priority between execution creditors is to a large extent done away with: see s. 3.

Registrar's Certificate.—The Registrar's certificate is usually confined to registrations on the particular parcel of land included in the plaintiff's mortgage. But it is well to bear in mind, that judgments for money registered against a defendant, bind all his lands situate within the county, or counties, in which the registration is made, without any local description: see A. A. s. 35, supra, p. 30.

Where the mortgaged property consists of chattels, the certificate of the Clerk of the proper County Court should be produced, as to subsequent mortgages.

It is to the interest of the plaintiff to take care that all persons, having any claim as subsequent incumbrancers, are made parties; as the omission to make them parties at the proper time, may lead to difficulty in carrying out any subsequent sale which may be had in the action; and possibly render another action necessary.

746. The Master shall direct all such persons as appear to have any lien, charge or incumbrance upon the property in question, subsequent to the mortgage in question, to be made parties to the action, and to be served with a notice according to Form No. 77. Con. Rule 126.

Taken from Cby. O. 444.

For Form No. 77, see H. & L. Forms, No. 985.

Where it is doubtful whether persons, appearing to have claims, have any valid right, the question should not be determined against them in their absence, but they should be added as parties, and an opportunity given them to maintain their claims: Canada Landed Credit Co. v. McAllister, 21 Gr. 593. Persons whose claims, if any, would be prior to the plaintiff's should be made parties to the writ.

Rule 746. If any relief is claimed against them, and not added in the Master's office: Glass v. Freckleton, 10 Gr. 470; Lally v. Longhurst, 12 P. R. 510; and see Rule 744. Persons having mechanics' liens subsequent to the plaintiff, should be added under this Rule, and not made parties by the writ: Jackson v. Hammond, 8 P. R. 157. Under the former Mechanics' Lien Act an execution creditor whose writ was placed in the Sheriff's hands subsequent to the registration of a mechanic's lien, but prior to the institution of an action to enforce it, was a subsequent incumbrancer, and might be made a party to the action to enforce the lien in the Master's office, notwithstanding the 90 days limited by R. S. O. 1887, c. 126, s. 23, had expired: Cole v. Hall, 12 P. R. 584, affirmed by C. A., 13 P. R. 100; but under the present Mechanics' Lien Act (R. S. O. c. 173), it would seem that such an execution creditor should be made an original party. A creditor of a mortgagee who has obtained an attaching order against the mortgage debt, but who has not obtained an order to pay over, is not an incumbrancer within the meaning of the Rule: Crosbie v. Fenn, 20 Gr. 283; neither is a simple contract creditor of the mortgagor, nor has he any right of redemption: Archel v. Allenby, 17 Ont. 275; and where a tenant in common mortgages his share, his co-tenants have no equity to redeem that share: Id.

Where a subsequent mortgagee is dead his real representatives should not be made parties, it is only necessary to add his personal representatives: Whitla v. Halliday, 4 D. & W. 267; Taylor v. Stead, 1 Ch. Ch. 74; Grimshaw v. Parks, 6 U. C. L. J. 142; Lapierre v. Humphries, 11 Gr. 209; R. S. O. c. 121, s. 11; Dick v. Douglas, 20 Gr. 99; Robinson v. Myers, 9 Gr. 572; and see now R. S. O. c. 127, ss. 3, 4. And where a mortgage is taken in the name of one partner to secure a partnership debt, it is not necessary to add the real, or personal, representatives of a deceased partner in an action by the surviving partner to enforce the security: Stephens v. Simpson, 12 Gr. 493.

To an action for sale or foreclosure by a mortgagee of a limited company, whose mortgage covers specific property, debenture holders, secured by a subsequent mortgage constituting a floating security on all the property and undertaking of the company, are proper parties, and even though their debentures are not due, they should be added under Rule 746: Wallace v. Evershed, 1899, 1 Ch. 891; 80 L. T. 523.

Subsequent incumbrancers should not be made defendants by writ, even in an action to enforce an annuity: Nelson v. Cochrane, 13 P. R. 76.

Where a person is entitled to rights in two different capacities, if he be made a party to an action distinctly as regards his right in one capacity, he may not be bound as to his rights in the other capacity: e.g., a person made a defendant as a judgment creditor, was held not to be bound in his character of mortgagee: Crooks v. Watkins, 8 Gr. 340.

Where an execution creditor is made a party in the Master's office as a subsequent incumbrancer, service of the notice (Form 77) upon his solicitor in the action in which the execution was recovered is sufficient: see Rule 332. Where it is brought to the notice of the Master that there are parties having subsequent unregistered claims against the lands, they should be made parties in his office: Canadian Bank of Commerce v. Forbes, 10 P. R. 442.

A mortgagor's tenant for years is entitled to redeem, if the mortgagee refuse to concur in the lease: Tarn v. Turner, 39 Ch. D. 466; 58 L. T. 558; and should be added as a party: and see Anderson v.

Stevenson, 15 Ont. 563; but the tenant is not a subsequent incumbrancer, and cannot be added in the Master's office as such; McLaughlin v. Stewart, 1 O. L. R. 295; but see Rule 196.

Persons added as parties under this Rule become parties from the date of the notice (Form No. 77) not merely from the date of its service; Sterling v. Campbell, 1 Chy. Ch. 147.

747. Any party served with a notice under Rule 746 may apply to the Court at any time within 14 days from the date of the service, to discharge, add to, vary, or set aside the judgment or order making him a party. Con. Rule 127.

Taken from Chy. O. 445.

Where a party added by the Master, claims to be prior to the plaintiff, he should move to discharge the Master's order; McDougall v. Lindsay Paper Mills Co., 10 P. R. 247; 20 C. L. J. 133.

In Montgomery v. Shortis, 3 Chy. Ch. 60, the motion to discharge an order adding a party, appears to have been entertained in Chambers; and in McDonald v. Rodgers, 9 Gr. 75, the question was raised on an appeal from the Master's report; and in Kline v. Kline, 3 Chy. Ch. 161, an application was made to the Master himself, to discharge his order adding a party under Rule 650, on grounds disclosed subsequent to the making of the order.

Where the party added, desires to move to vary, or set aside the judgment, the motion must be made to the Court at its weekly sittings, and the motion must be returnable within the fourteen days from service of the notice on the party moving; Muller v. Brown, before Prondfoot, V.C., 23rd November, 1880; Wright v. Wright, before Blake, V.C., 29th March, 1881; and see Mellroy v. Hawke, 3 Chy. Ch. 66; Harris v. Meyers, 16 Gr. 117; Jackson v. Gardner, 2 Chy. Ch. 385.

Where the fourteen days is suffered to elapse, before the motion is made returnable to discharge the order, or to vary, or set aside, the judgment, the party added must first obtain leave to move, before he can move to vary, or set aside, the judgment, or set aside the order making him as a party; Roe v. Stoddard, 15 Gr. 137; Mellroy v. Hawke, 3 Chy. Ch. 66. This leave, in a proper case, may be obtained on motion in Chambers, but where the applicant failed to show a prima facie case, leave was refused; Boe v. Bridgman, 6 P. R. 234.

A subsequent incumbrancer is not entitled to have the judgment varied so as to require the plaintiff to bring before the Court parties for the purposes of effectuating relief to which the incumbrancer is entitled; his remedy is to redeem, and then to proceed on his own account to obtain such relief; Rutherford v. Rutherford, 17 P. R. 229.

748. The Master, before he proceeds to hear and determine, shall require an appointment according to Form No. 78, to be served upon all persons made parties before the judgment or order. Con. Rule 128.

Taken from Chy. Ord. 416.

For Form No. 78, see H. & L. Forms, No. 184.

Rule 749.

Defendant who has not appeared entitled to notice of proceedings in M.O.

Under the former practice in Chancery, it was held that notwithstanding a bill might have been taken pro confesso against a defendant he was, nevertheless, entitled under certain circumstances, to notice of proceedings in the Master's office: Robinson v. Whitcomb, 20 Gr. 415; McCormick v. McCormick, 6 P. R. 208; Buchanan v. Tiffany, 1 Gr. 98; Walsh v. Bourke, 1b. 105; Hawkins v. Jarvis, 1b. 257; 1 E. & A. 216; Strachan v. Murney, 6 Gr. 284; but see Perrin v. Davis, 3 Gr. 161. In mortgage cases it was customary to notify not only subsequent incumbrancers who were parties to the bill as required by this Rule, but also the mortgagor, whenever the plaintiff proved any other claim in addition to that alleged in his bill, or where subsequent incumbrancers were added, even though the bill had been taken pro confesso: see McCormick v. McCormick, supra; but see Baby v. Woodbridge, 5 U. C. L. J. 67. But a defendant cannot, in the Master's office, rely on any defence which, if sustained, would have the effect of determining that the Court had made a nugatory order or judgment: McDougall v. Lindsay Paper Mills Co., 10 P. R. 247; Wiley v. Ledyard, 1b. 182.

Under the new practice there is now an equivalent proceeding to an order or note pro confesso (see Rules 263, 573, 586); and a Rule expressly providing that defendants who do not defend, "except where otherwise provided by these Rules . . . shall not be entitled to notice of any subsequent proceedings in the action." This Rule contains such a provision for notice to such defendants. By Rule 330 non-appearing defendants may be served by posting up the document required to be served "in the office where the proceedings are being conducted."

Parties not attending, who have been duly served to be foreclosed.

749. Where a person who has been duly served with a notice under Rule 746 or with an appointment under Rule 748, neglects to attend at the time appointed, the Master shall treat such non-attendance as a disclaimer by the person so making default; and any claim of such person shall be thereby foreclosed, unless otherwise ordered upon application duly made for that purpose. Con. Rule 129.

Taken from Chy. O. 447.

Application to incumbrancer to be let in to prove after foreclosure.

Notwithstanding that a subsequent incumbrancer has been foreclosed under this Rule, he may in some cases obtain leave to prove his claim. Applications for leave to be let in after the time has expired must be obtained from the Master, if no report has been made, and where the report has issued, then upon motion in Chambers. After a Master has made his* general report, he is then functus officio, and there would therefore be no jurisdiction in the Master in Ordinary to entertain such an application under Rule 698 (1); but a Local Master having a general jurisdiction in Chambers under Rule 49 would appear to be entitled to entertain such an application. In Becher v. Webb, 7 P. R. 445, relief was given on the terms of postponing the applicant to a subsequent incumbrancer, who had duly proved his claim; and see Catell v. Simons, 8 Beav. 243; Hull v. Falconer, 11 Jur. N. S. 151; Cameron v. Wolfe Island Ry. Co., 6

Terms on which motion granted.

* In The Queen City Refining Co., before the Master in Ordinary, 7th May, 1885, the learned Master was of opinion that he was not functus until his report was filed.

P. R. 91; but in Ross v. Stevenson, 7 P. R. 126; Sterling v. Camp, Rule 750. bell, 1 Chy. Ch. 147, relief was granted, without postponing the applicant.

Where an incumbrancer had proved his claim on one mortgage, he was afterwards let in after report, on payment of costs, to prove a claim on another mortgage with a view to consolidating them: Ross v. Stevenson, supra.

Where a person added as a subsequent incumbrancer, appears and disclaims, he is not entitled to costs: Hatt v. Park, 6 Gr. 553; Lewin v. Jones, 51 L. T. 59. incumbrancer disclaiming costs.

750. When all parties have been duly served, the Master shall take an account of what is due to the plaintiff, and to the other incumbrancers (if any), for principal money and interest, and tax their costs, and settle their priorities, and appoint a time and place, or times and places, for payment according to the practice of the Court. Con. Rule 130. Master to take accounts of plaintiff and incumbrancers.

(a) Where moneys are by any judgment, order or report directed to be paid for the purpose of redemption or any like purpose, the same may be directed to be paid into Court.

(b) Moneys so paid into Court shall be paid out together with any interest accrued thereon, to the party for whom the same was by the judgment, order or report directed to be paid into Court, without order upon production to the Accountant of the consent of the party by whom the money was paid into Court, duly verified, or of his solicitor, but otherwise as the Court or Judge may order. Rule 1263, 18 June, 1904.

The first paragraph is taken from Chy. O. 448.

The second paragraph is new, and provides for payment into Court in lieu of payment into a bank, as has been heretofore the practice. It is not compulsory but will probably be generally adopted as being a simple and cheaper method. The consent of the party must be verified by affidavit, the consent of his solicitor needs no verification.

Proof of Service.—It is the duty of the Master, before proceeding to take the accounts, to require due proof to be adduced of service of the necessary proceedings on all parties not attending before him who are entitled to notice. All subsequent incumbrancers are entitled to attend the taking of the account, and it would seem also necessary that the defendants named in the writ should also be notified, even though they have not appeared: see note to Rule 748. Proof of service of notice.

Taking Account.—The production of the mortgage and affidavit of the incumbrancer proving his claim is prima facie sufficient proof of the claim, and under Rule 751 the affidavit of an assignee is prima facie sufficient: Court v. Holland, 8 P. R. 213; Elliott v. Hunter, 24 Gr. 430; Pollock v. Perry, 5 Gr. 591; Hancock v. Moulson, 10 Gr. Taking accounts, prima facie proof, what is.

Rule 750.
Affidavit of claimant.

483; Warren v. Taylor, 9 Gr. 59; he need not go into evidence to prove that the amount is unpaid: Markle v. Ross, 13 P. R. 135; where the bill was pro confesso, the mortgagee was bound to state the amount actually advanced: Stetling v. Raley, 9 Gr. 343; and in every case it is competent for the parties, if the mortgage has not been made for the purpose apparent on the face of it, to shew in the Master's office, the real purpose for which it was executed: Id.; Penn v. Lockwood, 1 Gr. 547; Brownlee v. Cunningham, 13 Gr. 586; Morrison v. Robinson, 19 Gr. 480; or for which it is held as security: Inglis v. Gilchrist, 10 Gr. 301; McIntyre v. Thompson, 6 Ont. 710; 19 C. L. J. 393. But to reduce the amount below the amount apparently secured, the evidence must be clear: Fraser v. Loeie, 10 Gr. 207.

Where the claim is brought in, in the name of the Accountant of the Court, his certificate of the amount appearing due by his books, and that he has not been in possession, is sufficient prima facie evidence of his claim: Holmsted v. Vanderbogart, 19 C. L. J. 97; this was a decision of the Chancellor and Proudfoot, J., on the matter being submitted to them.

Where a mortgagor had received only a part of the mortgage money, but gave a receipt for the full amount, and the mortgagee thereupon, and before any payment had fallen due under the mortgage, assigned it to a third person who took it bona fide without notice that the full amount has not been advanced, it was held that the mortgagor could not, as against the assignee, dispute that the mortgage was security for the amount it purported to secure, and for which he had given the receipt: Bickerton v. Walker, 31 Ch. D. 151; 53 L. T. 731. But the usual rule is that an assignee of a mortgage takes it subject to the actual state of accounts between the mortgagee and mortgagor, and cannot, even when the mortgage contains a formal receipt for the whole amount purported to be secured thereby, recover more than has been actually advanced: Manley v. London Loan Co., 23 Ont. App. 139; 26 S. C. R. 443.

An assignee, moreover, is not entitled to enforce a covenant which his assignor could not have enforced, thus, where a trustee by mistake executed a mortgage containing a covenant for payment personally of the mortgage debt, there being no consideration therefor, it was held that the assignee, though a purchaser for value without notice, could not enforce it: Patterson v. McLean, 21 Ont. 221.

Collateral advantages stipulated for by mortgagee.

Collateral advantages stipulated for by a mortgagee over and above his principal and interest, e.g., a bonus, cannot be recovered: James v. Kerr, 40 Ch. D. 449; 60 L. T. 212; Bradley v. Carritt, 1903, A. C. 253; 88 L. T. 633, overruling Sautley v. Wilde, 1899, 2 Ch. 474; 80 L. T. 154; 81 L. T. 393; see Rice v. Noakes, 1900, 1 Ch. 213; 2 Ch. 445; 1902, A. C. 24; 81 L. T. 482; 86 L. T. 62; nor costs not connected with the loan transaction: Field v. Hopkins, 62 L. T. 102.

And where a mortgagee stipulates for a life insurance as collateral security for the loan, and for the premiums being paid by or charged against the mortgagor, the representatives of the mortgagor are entitled to have the insurance applied to the payment of the debt, and are entitled to any surplus, notwithstanding any stipulation in the mortgage to the contrary: Salt v. Northampton, 1892, A. C. 1; 76 L. T. 765. A stipulation that the mortgagor should buy goods from the mortgagee was upheld: Biggs v. Hoddinott, 1898, 2 Ch. 307; 79 L. T. 201; but such a stipulation (if valid) is only enforceable during the currency of the mortgage; see Rice v. Noakes, supra; but since Bradley v. Carritt, supra, the authority of Biggs v. Hoddinott would seem to be doubtful.

An option to the mortgagee to purchase the mortgaged property, given at the time the mortgage was made, was held to be a clog on the equity of redemption which could not be enforced: Jarrah Timber Co. v. Samuel, 1902, 2 Ch. 479; 87 L. T. 44; 88 L. J. 106.

But a subsequent agreement giving the mortgagee a collateral advantage may be valid: Lisle v. Reeve, 1902, 1 Ch. 53; 1902, A. C. 481; 85 L. T. 464; 87 L. T. 308.

Where the secretary of a building society had given the society a mortgage to secure a loan payable by instalments "and other moneys becoming due from the mortgagor to the society," it was held that the mortgagees could not hold the mortgage as security for moneys embezzled from them by the mortgagor after he had assigned the equity of redemption, as against the assignee: Bailes v. Sunderland, Eq. Industrial Society, 55 L. T. 808.

A mortgagee in possession by an agent may be compelled to give a detailed account of the receipts by the agent; an account merely of the lump sums received from the agent is insufficient: Noyes v. Potlock, 30 Ch. D. 336; 53 L. T. 430.

A derivative mortgagee is bound to account to his mortgagor for all profits made by him: thus where a derivative mortgagee by representing himself to be the mortgagee obtained an assignment of the equity of redemption which he subsequently resold at a profit, he was held bound to account for the profit so made: Wilkins v. McLean, 10 Ont. 58; 13 Ont. App. 467; 14 S. C. R. 22.

Where a mortgagee had sold under his power of sale, but owing to a defect in the advertisement had been compelled to allow the purchaser compensation, it was held that he was chargeable, as against the mortgagor, with any loss occasioned by the misdescription: Tomlin v. Luce, 41 Ch. D. 573, in appeal, 43 Ch. D. 191.

Where the mortgage provided that the total amount to be recovered by the mortgagee "under these presents" should not exceed £900, payments made by the mortgagee for rent and insurance, while in possession, were held to be recoverable, though the aggregate amount of the claim exceeded £900: White v. City of London Brewery Co., 42 Ch. D. 237; but where an incumbrancer proved a claim on a bond in a penal sum of £1,000, conditioned for the payment of £500, it was held that he could not, as against a subsequent incumbrancer, recover any large sum against the land than the amount of the penalty, and the decree made in 1853 was amended in 1891 by limiting the principal and interest recoverable thereunder to the amount of the penalty: Hatton v. Harris, 1892, A. C. 547; 67 L. T. 722.

The plaintiff or defendant may rely in the Master's office, on a stated account set up in the pleadings, although no evidence was given of it at the trial: Edinburgh Life Assurance Co. v. Allen, 23 Gr. 238; and see Ingila v. Gilchrist, 10 Gr. 301; Neil v. Neil, 15 Gr. 110; Holgate v. Shutt, 28 Ch. D. 111.

The Master, in taking the account under the usual judgment in a mortgage action for sale or foreclosure, cannot go into any question affecting the validity of the plaintiff's security: McDonnell v. Lindsay Paper Mills Co., 10 Pr. R. 247; 20 C. L. J. 123, 253; Wiley v. Leppard, 10 P. R. 182; Bickford v. Grand Junction Ry. Co., 1 S. C. R. 696, and see Re Munster, 10 P. R. 98; 20 C. L. J. 112; but a subsequent incumbrancer is not bound by an agreement made after the date of such incumbrancer's charge, between the plaintiff and the mortgagor, as to the amount due to plaintiff, and may dispute it without moving against the judgment: Rutherford v. Rutherford, 17 P. R. 228.

Rule 750.

Taking account
when equity of redemption divided.

Consolidation of mortgages.

As to the proper method of taking the account, where the mortgagor has sold the equity of redemption in part of the mortgaged lands, and has agreed to indemnify the grantee against the mortgage: see Parkins v. Vanderlip, 11 Gr. 488.

Consolidation of Mortgages.—Subject inter alia to the exceptions hereafter mentioned, a mortgagee has a right, in actions for redemption, or foreclosure, to consolidate all mortgages held by him, and made by the same mortgagor, so as to prevent the mortgagor or subsequent incumbrancers from redeeming one or more without redeeming all: Watts v. Symes, 1 D. M. & G. 240; Selby v. Pomfret, 1 J. & H. 336; 3 De G. F. & J. 595; Johnston v. Reid, 29 Gr. 296; even though they were originally made in favour of different mortgagees: Pledge v. Carr, 1895, 1 Ch. 51; S. C., sub nom., Pledge v. White, 1896, A. C. 187; 74 L. T. 323, and though the securities are of different natures, or the mortgagee is a legal mortgagee in one security and a derivative mortgagee in another: Silverthorn v. Glazebrook, 30 Ont. 408. A subsequent incumbrancer added in the Master's office has the same right: Merritt v. Stephenson, 7 Gr. 22; Ross v. Stevenson, 7 P. R. 126. But the right to consolidate cannot be enforced against a subsequent registered purchaser or incumbrancer without actual notice: Brower v. Canada Permanent Building Society, 24 G. 509; Johnston v. Reid, 29 Gr. 296; Smith v. Smith, 18 Ont. 205; Miller v. Brown, 3 Ont. 210. Nor can it be enforced, where prior to the creation of the second mortgage, the mortgagor had assigned, or mortgaged, his equity of redemption in the first mortgage, as against such assignee or mortgagee: Jennings v. Jordan, 6 App. Cas. 698; 45 L. T. 593; Harter v. Coleman, 19 Ch. D. 630; 46 L. T. 154; and see Baker v. Gray, 1 Ch. D. 491; nor where, though the second mortgage was created before the assignment of the equity of redemption, it does not become united in the same hand with the first until after the assignment of the equity of redemption in the first mortgage: Minter v. Carr, 1894, 2 Ch. 321; 71 L. T. 526; nor where one of the mortgaged estates has ceased to exist, e.g., where it was a leasehold, or life estate: Re Raggett, ex parte Williams, 44 L. T. 4; 50 L. J. Chy. 187; nor can a mortgage of realty be consolidated with a mortgage of chattels so as to throw the debt secured by the realty, on the chattels: Chesworth v. Hunt, 5 C. P. D. 266; 42 L. T. 774; 49 L. J. C. P. 507; nor can it be allowed in favour of the plaintiff in an action for foreclosure, where one of the mortgages is not in default: Cummins v. Fletcher, 42 L. T. 859; 49 L. J. Chy. 117, 593; The Scottish-American L. Co. v. Tennant, 19 Ont. 263. Nor can a mortgage held by a sole mortgagee be consolidated with one held by him jointly with a third person: Riley v. Hall, 79 L. T. 244. The right to consolidate, except by express agreement, is now abolished in England by the Conveyancing Act, 1881 (44 & 45 Vict. c. 41) s. 17.

Consolidation is only allowed as a condition of granting the owner of the equity of redemption equitable relief, on the principle that "he who seeks equity must do equity," but it cannot be imposed as a condition of granting such relief in respect of a legal claim on his part: Re Union Assoc. Co., 23 Ont. 627, per Ferguson, J.

As to whether a mortgagee is entitled to consolidate mortgages as against surety: see Nicholas v. Ridley, 1894, 1 Ch. 192.

Where the right to consolidate mortgages on different properties has once been exercised, it is defeated by any subsequent transfer of the equity of redemption in the different properties to other parties, and the right to consolidate arises, notwithstanding that the mortgages which it is sought to consolidate, were not united in title with Rule 750. the mortgage sought to be redeemed until after the assignment of the equity of redemption in the latter mortgage to the person seeking to redeem: Pledge v. Carr, 1895, 1 Ch. 51; 71 L. T. 598; 8. C. sub nom., Pledge v. White, 1896, A. C. 187; 74 L. T. 323.

Where an intending purchaser of the equity of redemption inquires of the mortgagee the amount due on a prior mortgage, and also states the purpose for which the inquiry is made, and the mortgagee neglects to notify him of the claim to consolidate the security with another, the mortgagee is deprived of the right of consolidation as against such person: Dominion Savings & Investment Company v. Kittridge, 23 Gr. 631. So also the assignee of two mortgages cannot consolidate them if his assignor was precluded from so doing: Bird v. Wenn, 33 Ch. D. 215.

See further as to the consolidation of mortgages, 101 L. T. 200.

Tacking.—Tacking a subsequent to a prior incumbrance, so as to tack out an intervening registered incumbrance, can no longer be done so as to defeat the provisions of The Registry Act: R. S. O. c. 136, s. 98; and to this extent tacking is abolished, but there are still some instances in which claims not secured by the mortgage may be tacked thereto as a condition of redemption.

The mortgagee cannot tack to his mortgage debt a simple contract debt due from the mortgagor: Ferguson v. Frontenac, 21 Gr. 188; Canadian Bank of Commerce v. Forbes, 10 P. R. 442; but he may as against his representatives, in case of his death; and he may tack all prior charges or incumbrances paid off by him: Trust & Loan Co. v. Cuthbert, 14 Gr. 410; Tetter v. St. John, 10 Gr. 85; Wells v. The Trust & Loan Co., 9 Ont. 170; 20 C. L. J. 407; and he is entitled to claim as against subsequent incumbrancers, or the mortgagor, the full amount due thereon, no matter how advantageous the terms on which he may have acquired them: Watkins v. Mcellar, 7 Gr. 586; Dobson v. Land, 8 Ha. 216.

The mortgagee is also entitled to tack to his mortgage debt, any costs occasioned by part of the mortgaged estate being expropriated under any statute: Rees v. The Metropolitan Board of Works, 14 Ch. D. 372; 42 L. T. 685; 49 L. J. Ch. 620; and also any costs incurred in protecting, or endeavouring to realize, his security: Wilkes v. Senior, 7 Ch. D. 188; and see Rule 657, note p. 892; and the costs of an abortive sale: Farrer v. Lacey, 31 Ch. D. 42; 50 L. T. 121; but not the costs of unsuccessful proceedings undertaken without the concurrence of the mortgagor: Wells v. The Trust & Loan Co., supra; nor costs of proceedings for sale which he has taken but abandoned: Middleton v. Scott, 3 O. L. R. 26.

Merger.—Where an incumbrancer obtains a release of the equity of redemption, a question whether his incumbrance is merged arises. This is a question of intention, and where it is obviously not for his benefit, the Court will not presume any such intention: Hart v. McQuesten, 22 Gr. 133; North of Scotland Mortgage Company v. German, 31 C. P. 349; Elliot v. Jayne, 11 Gr. 412; Weaver v. Vandusen, 27 Gr. 477; Macdonald v. Bullivant, 10 Ont. App. 582; and see Adams v. Angell, 5 Ch. 634; Bell v. Sunderland Building Society, 24 Ch. D. 618; 49 L. T. 535; Re Pride, Schackell v. Cotnett, 1891, 2 Ch. 135; 64 L. T. 768; Thorne v. Cann, 1895, A. C. 11; Liquidation Estates Co. v. Willoughby, 1896, 1 Ch. 726; 74 L. T. 228; 1898, A. C. 321; 78 L. T. 329.

Rule 750.

Improvements—
What allowed mortgagee
in possession.

Improvements.—Where a sale of the mortgaged property under execution is set aside the vendee is entitled to improvements: Shaw v. Tims, 19 Gr. 496; and also when a sale is made by the mortgagee who claims to be the absolute owner, as purchaser at a sale under the power which proves invalid: McLaren v. Fraser, 17 Gr. 567; Carroll v. Robertson, 15 Gr. 173. The expense of erecting a carding mill was disallowed: Kerby v. Kerby, 5 Gr. 587. Expenses of planting and tending fruit, and ornamental trees, suitable for carrying out improvements commenced by the mortgagor were allowed, but not their value at the time of redemption: Paul v. Johnson, 12 Gr. 474. Where the mortgagee is charged with rents arising from improvements made by him, he should be allowed the expenses of such improvements to a corresponding amount: Constable v. Guent, 6 Gr. 510 and see further as to allowances to mortgagees in possession, notes to Rule 667, supra, pp. 891, 892.

Interest,
arrears of,
how far recoverable against mortgaged land.

Interest.—Interest on moneys secured by mortgages made after 1st July, 1880, is subject to the provisions of R. S. O. c. 127, ss. 3-8.

Interest begins to run only from the time the money is actually advanced: Edmonds v. Hamilton P. & L. Soc., 19 Ont. 677; 18 Ont. App. 347.

The general rule is that a mortgagee suing for sale or foreclosure cannot recover arrears of interest for more than six years prior to the commencement of the action: see R. S. O. c. 133, s. 17; and the same rule applies in an action by a subsequent mortgagee for redemption: McMicking v. Gibbons, 24 Ont. App. 586, overruling on that point Delaney v. C. P. R., 21 Ont. 11. See also Colquhoun v. Murray, 26 Ont. App. 204.

Where the action is either for foreclosure or redemption, and is between the mortgagee and the mortgagor, or the representative of a deceased mortgagor, who has covenanted for payment, and no subsequent incumbrancer intervenes, the mortgagee may tack all the interest recoverable on the covenant: Carroll v. Robertson, 15 Gr. 173; Howeren v. Bradburn, 22 Gr. 96; Macdonald v. Macdonald, 11 Ont. 187; see however McMicking v. Gibbons, supra; but where there is no covenant, even in such a case, no more than six years' arrears can be recovered: Taylor v. Hargrave, 19 Gr. 271; and see Airey v. Mitchell, 21 Gr. 510; Howeren v. Bradburn, 22 Gr. 96; Weaver v. Vandusen, 27 Gr. at p. 481; Barnes v. Glenton, 1898, 2 Q. B. 223; 1899, 1 Q. B. 885; 80 L. T. 606, (under the English Act, the language is different, not being, like R. S. O. c. 133, s. 23, confined to actions to recover "out of any land"); see also Dingle v. Coppin, 1898, 79 L. T. 189, 1 Ch. 726; but the limitation of six years' arrears of interest has no application where the mortgaged property is personal estate: Mellersh v. Brown, 45 Ch. D. 225; 63 L. T. 189; unless it is included in the same mortgage with realty so as to form one security: Charter v. Watson, 1899, 1 Ch. 175; 79 L. T. 440. See also London & Midland Bank v. Mitchell, 1899, 2 Ch. 161; nor does it apply as against a subsequent mortgagee, as regards interest accruing due to him while a prior mortgagee is in possession: see R. S. O. c. 127, s. 18.

When a mortgagee sells under a power of sale he may retain out of the proceeds, the arrears of interest though they exceed six years: Edmonds v. Waugh, L. R. 1 Eq. 418; Ford v. Allen, 15 Gr. 565; In re Marshfield, Marshfield v. Hutchings, 34 Ch. D. 721; 56 L. T. 694. See also Dingle v. Coppin, supra.

Interest is not ordinarily allowed on the costs of the action, but Rule 750. it may be allowed on costs which have been expressly ordered to be added to the plaintiff's security, from the date of taxation: Eardley v. Knight, 41 Ch. D. 537.

Rate of Interest.—Since the repeal of the usury laws, the Court will not refuse to enforce any contract, which parties, competent to contract, may make for the payment of interest, provided it is understood: Teeter v. St. John, 10 Gr. 85; R. S. C. c. 127, s. 1. But the rate of interest chargeable by corporations or companies or associations of persons, not being a bank, is restricted in certain cases to six per cent. or eight per cent.: see R. S. C. c. 127, ss. 9-11.

Where a mortgage stipulated that up to a certain day the interest to be charged should be eight per cent., and if the principal were not then paid twelve per cent., it was held that the mortgagee was entitled to recover the twelve per cent. on default: Waddell v. McColl, 14 Gr. 211.

Where a mortgage is made payable without interest, or no interest is reserved, interest may nevertheless be recovered at the legal rate from the time of default: McDonell v. West, 14 Gr. 492; Reid v. Wilson, 9 P. R. 165; 18 C. L. J. 58. Compound interest may now, subject to the provisions of R. S. C. c. 127, ss. 10, 11, be stipulated for and recovered: Clarkson v. Henderson, 14 Ch. D. 348; 43 L. T. 29; Henderson v. Dickson, 9 Gr. 379; or an increased rate in case of default: Downey v. Parnell, 2 Ont. 82; 18 C. L. J. 241; but a mortgagee is prima facie only entitled to simple interest, and where an account charging compound interest was assented to by the mortgagor in ignorance of his rights it was re-opened: Daniell v. Sinclair, L. R. 6, H. L. 381; 44 L. T. 257; and a bargain for an exorbitant rate of interest will not be enforced if it is shewn not to have been understood by the mortgagor: Teeter v. St. John, 10 Gr. 85.

Where the incumbrancer has redeemed a prior incumbrance, he is entitled to recover interest on the aggregate amount of principal, interest, and costs, so paid; on the principal, at the rate reserved in his own mortgage, and on the interest and costs, at the legal rate: McMaster v. Hector, 8 C. L. J. 284; and he has a lien on the land therefor as against subsequent incumbrancers: Trust & Loan Company v. Cuthbert, 14 Gr. 410; Teeter v. St. John, 10 Gr. 85. But where a solicitor purchases securities at his client's request, simple interest on the amount paid, is all that is chargeable, and not the rate reserved by the securities purchased, unless otherwise agreed: Macleod v. Jones, 50 L. T. 358.

The rate of interest reserved by the mortgage, is not necessarily payable after default, unless the mortgage expressly so provides: Cook v. Fowler, L. R. 7 H. L. 27; Dalby v. Humphrey, 37 U. C. Q. B. 514; Jackson v. Harris, 78 L. T. Jour. 130; and a covenant to pay interest on instalments in default does not necessarily mean that interest is to be paid on interest in default: Goldstyon v. Tatterman, 17 Q. B. D. 80; 18 Q. B. D. 1; 55 L. T. 866. But such rate was allowed after default, by way of damages, where it was not expressly shewn by evidence to be excessive: Simonton v. Graham, 8 P. R. 495; and see Mellersh v. Brown, 45 Ch. D. 225; 63 L. T. 189; but in another case, where no evidence was given by the mortgagees as to the rate of interest after default, only the legal rate was allowed: Archbold v. Building & Loan Assoc., 15 Ont. 237; but see S. C., 16 Ont. App. 1. A covenant to pay interest at a higher rate than the legal rate "until mortgage money paid" does not entitle the covenantor to such higher rate after the time fixed for payment has expired: Purell

Rule 750. v. Peck, 12 Ont. 492; 23 C. L. J. 93; 15 Ont. App. 138; Peoples Loan & D. Co. v. Grant, 18 S. C. R. 202, but a covenant to pay a specified rate of interest as well before as after maturity until the principal is fully paid, entitles the covenantee to recover the specified rate after maturity until the principal is fully paid: Middleton v. Scott, 4 O. L. R. 459. A covenant to pay interest on all instalments in arrear, does not cover principal becoming due under an acceleration clause: Biggs v. Freehold, 26 Ont. App. 232; 31 S. C. R. 136. In computing the amount to be paid for redemption in the case of a mortgage the payment of which had been accelerated by default in the payment of an instalment, the Court allowed the mortgage rate for the six months allowed for redemption though it exceeded the legal rate: Muttibury v. Stephens, 6 C. L. T. 588; 23 C. L. J. 12; and see Mellersh v. Brown, supra.

Where an instrument provided for payment of interest at a given rate, until the principal money should be paid, it was held that the rate contracted for could not be recovered after judgment had been obtained on the instrument; but only interest at the legal rate on the amount of the judgment: St. John v. Rykert, 4 Ont. App. 213; Grant v. People's Loan, 17 Ont. App. 85; 18 S. C. R. 262; Arbutnot v. Bunsell, 62 L. T. 234; Freehold Loan Co. v. McLean, 8 Man. R. 116; Manitoba & N. W. L. Co. v. Barker, ib. 296; Ex p. Feringa, 25 Ch. D. 338; 50 L. T. 100; but see contra, Popple v. Sylvester, 22 Ch. D. 98; 45 L. T. 329; and see 19 C. L. J. 21; Re Atkinson, before Boyd, C., 4th May, 1883; and it would seem to be settled that the mortgagee cannot be redeemed by a subsequent incumbrancer except on payment of the interest secured by the mortgage, notwithstanding that the mortgagor may have recovered a judgment on the covenant for interest in arrear: Economic Life Assce. Co. v. Usborne, 1902, A. C. 147; 85 L. T. 589.

Where a mortgagor in ignorance of his rights, has paid interest at a higher rate than he could have been legally required to pay, he cannot recover the over-payments from the mortgagee, nor have them set off against moneys subsequently accruing due on the mortgage: Stewart v. Ferguson, 31 Ont. 112; but money paid by a mortgagor under a mistake of facts is recoverable: McDermott v. Hickling, 38 C. L. J. 85.

Interest in advance.

Where the interest is payable in advance, the mortgagee is nevertheless not entitled to have interest allowed for a period subsequent to that appointed for redemption: Trust & Loan Co. v. Kirk, 8 P. R. 203.

Tender
Prima facie
it stops
interest.

Tender.—Where a tender is relied on, it should be set up by statement of defence. Where such a defence is pleaded, it is sometimes specially referred to the Master to inquire as to the tender, or whether the amount tendered was sufficient: Kuapp v. Bower, 17 Gr. 695. Prima facie a tender stops interest; but if the mortgagee shows that the money was subsequently used by the mortgagor, and a profit made, subsequent interest is nevertheless chargeable: ib.; and see Pearce v. Morris, L. R. 5 Chy. at p. 231.

A tender is not equivalent to payment, and if refused, the mortgagor's remedy is an action for redemption; detainee for his title deeds will not lie: Bank of N. S. W. v. O'Connor, 14 App. Cas. 273.

A tender under protest is good, and a mortgagor is entitled to an inquiry whether the amount tendered was sufficient: Peers v. Allen, 19 Gr. 98; Greenwood v. Sutcliffe, 1892, 1 Ch. 1; 65 L. T. 797; and although a mortgagee is usually entitled to the costs of a redemption action, yet where it has been occasioned by his refusal to accept the Rule 760. amount due, he may be ordered to pay the costs of the action up to judgment: Squire v. Purdoo, 66 L. T. 243. Tender by a cheque to a solicitor of a mortgagee is not a legal tender, though not objected to on that ground: Blumberg v. Life Interest R. I. Corp., 1897, 1 Ch. 171; 1898, 1 Ch. 27; and see Middleton v. Scott, 4 O. L. R. 459.

Parol Agreements Affecting Mortgage.—A written agreement for value by a mortgagor to pay additional interest, is enforceable against mortgagor, though not under seal: Brown v. Deacon, 12 Gr. 198; and see Alliance Bank v. Brown, 10 Jur. N. S. 1121. But a verbal agreement to that effect will not bind the lands, as against a subsequent purchaser of the equity of redemption: Totton v. Watson, 17 Gr. 233; or even as against a devisee, or heir-at-law, of the mortgagor: Re Houston, Houston v. Houston, 2 Ont. 81.

An agreement for extra interest between a derivative mortgagee and the mortgagor cures to the benefit of the original mortgagee: Gratwicke v. Anderson, 15 Gr. 189.

Where, after the mortgage debt was partly paid off, the mortgagor re-borrowed the money and returned the receipts given for his previous payments, it was held that he was estopped from disputing that the amount so re-advanced was still secured by the mortgage: Inglish v. Gilchrist, 10 Gr. 301.

Statute of Limitations.—Under a dispute note, the Statute may be set up as a bar to the recovery of more than six years' arrears of interest; but where it is relied on as a defence to the whole claim, a statement of defence must be filed: Wright v. Morgan, 1 Ont. App. 613; Cattanach v. Urquhart, 6 P. R. 28.

Although ten years is now a bar to the recovery of money charged on land, as against the land: R. S. O. c. 133, s. 4; yet it was held that the right of action on the covenant was not barred until the lapse of twenty years under R. S. O. 1887, c. 60, ss. 1, 6; Allan v. McTavish, 2 Ont. App. 278; Macdonald v. McDonald, 11 Ont. 187; McDonald v. Elliott, 12 Ont. 98; but see contra, Sutton v. Sutton, 22 Ch. D. 511; 48 L. T. 95; Fearnside v. Flint, 22 Ch. D. 579; 48 L. T. 154. As to mortgages made on or after 1st July, 1891, the ten years' limitation applies to actions on the covenant: see R. S. O. c. 72, s. 1 (b). (h). As to the application of the Statute of Limitations as regards interest: see supra, p. 970.

Where there is an acceleration clause in case of default in payment of an instalment, the statute begins to run as to the principal and interest from the date of default: McFadden v. Brandon, 6 O. L. R. 247.

The Statute is no bar to an account for more than six years' rent, as against a mortgagee in possession: Coldwell v. Hall, 9 Gr. 110; affirmed in appeal, 7 U. C. L. J. 42; 8 U. C. L. J. 93.

Where a prior mortgagee, or other incumbrancer, has been in possession of any land, or in the receipt of the profits thereof, within one year next before an action is brought by any person entitled to a subsequent mortgage, or other incumbrance on the same land, the person entitled to the subsequent mortgage, or incumbrance, may recover in such action the arrears of interest which have become due during the whole time that such prior mortgagee, or incumbrancer, was in possession, or receipt, as aforesaid, although such time may have exceeded the term of six years: see R. S. O. c. 133, s. 18.

Rule 760. Although the remedy against the person of the debtor for the debt may be barred, an action for the foreclosure of the mortgaged property may lie: see London & Midland Bank v. Mitchell, 1899, 2 Ch. 161; 81 L. T. 263; Barnes v. Glenton, 1899, 1 Q. B. 885; 80 L. T. 606.

An action for foreclosure, or sale, is an action to recover land, and the commencement of an action for foreclosure or sale by a mortgagee out of possession stops the running of the statute: Harlock v. Ashberry, 19 Ch. D. 539; 46 L. T. 356; Pugh v. Heath, 7 App. Cas. 235; 16 L. T. 321; Fletcher v. Rodden, 1 Ont. 155; but see Barwick v. Barwick, 21 Gr. 39; and an action for redemption is also an action to recover land: per Strong, J., Faulds v. Harper, 11 S. C. R. 639.

Tenant in common entitled to redeem whole estate.

Where some of several tenants in common, are barred by the Statute of Limitations, and others of them are not; the latter are entitled to redeem the whole mortgaged estate, and not merely an aliquot part: Faulds v. Harper, 2 Ont. 405; 9 Ont. App. 537; 11 S. C. R. 639; see also Martin v. Miles, 5 Ont. 404.

Payments to take a case out of the Statute of Limitations must be made by the mortgagor or his duly authorized agent; payments made on his behalf without his authority will not prevent the Statute from running: Acubould v. Smith, 29 Ch. D. 882; 33 L. T. 137; or else by some person to whom the right of redemption is expressly reserved by the mortgage even though he is no party to it; see Levin v. Wilson, 11 App. Cas. 639; or by some person liable to pay the mortgage debt, and payment by such person will prevent the Statute from running in favour of his grantee, who is in possession, and no party to the payment: Trust & Loan Co. v. Sterenson, 20 Ont. App. 56; and see Dobb v. Walker, 1893, 2 Ch. 429; 68 L. T. 614. Payment by one of several executors, against the will of the others, was held not to bind the land: Astbury v. Astbury, 1898, 2 Ch. 111; but see R. S. O. c. 127, s. 4.

Payment by a receiver appointed by a mortgagee, will be as effectual as a payment by the mortgagor, to prevent the running of the Statute of Limitations: Re Hale, Lilley v. Foad, 1899, 2 Ch. 107; 69 L. T. 468.

Payments.

Payments.—Payment to one of several executors, is a good payment on account of a mortgage held by two of them as executors: Ewart v. Dryden, 13 Gr. 50; but payment to one of several trustees, who held a mortgage, is not good as to the other trustees: Ewart v. Snyder, 13 Gr. 55.

When mortgagee liable for moneys not received.

Where a mortgagor requested his mortgagee to release a part of the mortgaged property on payment of £100, and he released it on payment of £50 only, he was held liable for the difference: Ball v. Jarvis, 19 Gr. 568. But where a mortgagee refused to accept £100 offered as the price of part of the mortgaged property, which was expropriated, and upon an arbitration only £30 was awarded, the mortgagee was held not to be liable for the difference: Gunn v. McDonald, 11 Gr. 140.

Appropriation of Payments:

Appropriation of payments.

Payments made on account are to be appropriated (1) as the debtor directs at the time of payment, or (2) Where there is no direction by the debtor, as the creditor directs, or (3) Where neither makes any direction, the law will apply it to the older debt, or as may be just: Wilson v. Rykert, 14 Ont. 188; and see Louther v. Heuser, 41 Ch. D. 248.

A payment unappropriated by a debtor may be appropriated by the creditor at any time before judgment; and an appropriation by the creditor in the witness box at the trial was held to be valid: Seymour v. Pickett, 1906, 1 K. B. 715; 92 L. T. 519.

A mortgagee in possession, and in receipt of rents and profits, may sell under the power of sale, if the mortgage be in default, even though the rents are sufficient to keep down the interest; as in the absence of any agreement there is no appropriation of payments until the taking of the account: Cockburn v. Edwards, 18 Ch. D. 449; 45 L. T. 500; 51 L. J. Ch. 46; and see Haddock v. Jobbery, 19 Ch. D. 539.

Where a mortgagee sells under a power of sale, he is bound to apply the proceeds, first, in payment of interest and costs, and then either to pay the balance to the mortgagor, or apply it in reduction of purchase principal: Thompson v. Hudson, L. R. 10 Eq. 497; but see Acworth v. Widding, 1905, 1 Ch. 435; Wright v. Gill, ib. 241. He may sell on time, but he must give credit for the amount secured by the mortgage of the purchaser as cash, and even if he gets the consent of the mortgagor to a sale on credit, he is not at liberty to convert the mortgage taken to secure that part of the purchase money for which credit is given into cash, and charge the mortgagor with the discount and expenses, without a distinct bargain to that effect: Heatly v. O'Connor, 5 Ont. 731; any surplus in his hands should be either paid over to the party entitled, or if there be no hand to receive it, it should be either paid into Court under the Trustee Relief Act, or set apart so as to be fruitful for the benefit of the party entitled. If the mortgagee neglects to do either of these things, he will be chargeable with interest on the money so long as it remains in his hands: Charles v. Jones, 35 Ch. D. 544; 50 L. T. 848; Read v. Eley, 1900, W. N. 57; 88 L. T. 369. A mortgagee who concurs in a sale by his mortgagor is responsible for the due application of the purchase money: West London Commercial Bank v. Reliance Permanent Building Society, 29 Ch. D. 954; 53 L. T. 442.

If money is not expressly appropriated by the party paying it, the party receiving it may appropriate it, even upon a claim which he cannot enforce by suit; but an appropriation cannot be made by the creditor after action brought, on bringing in his account: Fraser v. Loeie, 10 Gr. 207; Hagerman v. Smith, Tay. 123; Armour v. Carruthers, 4 U. C. L. J. 210; Fuller v. Parnall, 8 C. L. 1. 86; and where a mortgagee held as security for a partnership debt the mortgage of one partner and the note of the other, it was held that he could not, as against an assignee of the equity of redemption, appropriate all payments on account of the note, but that he was bound to apply one-half of the sums paid out of the partnership assets, on account of the mortgage: Moore v. Riddell, 11 Gr. 69.

In taking the account, payments on account, should (if not otherwise appropriated by the debtor or creditor at the time of payment) be applied first, in payment of overdue interest and costs, and then of overdue principal, and where there are several items, the appropriation should be made in discharge of those earliest in date: McGregor v. Gaulin, 4 U. C. Q. B. 378; Cummings v. Usher, 1 P. R. 15; Ross v. Porrault, 13 Gr. 206; Clayton's Case, Devaynes v. Noble, 1 Mer. 530, 604; Wilson v. Rykert, 14 Ont. 188; but this rule is not an invariable rule of law. It cannot be applied to two transactions of the same date merely because one precedes the other on the paper on which they are recorded: Cory v. S. S. Mecca, 1897, A. C. 286; and where an accounting party (a solicitor) had in his accounts appropriated payments to principal, instead of the overdue interest, he was Rule 750. held bound by the appropriation: Taylor v. Magrath, 10 Ont. 669. Where the creditor claims to have appropriated a payment, the onus lies on him of showing affirmatively that no appropriation was made by the debtor; Lowther v. Heaver, 41 Ch. D. 248. Where, for convenience, two separate accounts are kept by the creditor with his debtor in respect of one of which there is a credit, and the other a debit for which the creditor holds securities; the amount of the credit of the one account is properly applicable to the reduction of the balance to the debit of the other account: Mutton v. Peat, 1900, 2 Ch. 79.

Appropriation of payments, where mortgage given to secure a floating balance

A mortgage given to secure a floating balance, however, is not discharged by payments made on account, so long as the dealing between the parties continue, and any balance remains due in respect thereof, even though the payments exceed in amount the debt due when the mortgage was given, or the amount of the debt mentioned in the mortgage: Cameron v. Kerr, 3 Ont. App. 30; Russell v. Davey, 7 Gr. 13; The City Discount Company v. Mellon, L. R. 9 C. P. 692; Fenton v. Blackisford, L. R. 5 P. C. 167; Griffiths v. Crocker, 18 Ont. App. 370; but see Re Brown, 2 Gr. 111, 590; Buchanan v. Kerby, 5 Gr. 332.

An appropriation by the creditor cannot prevent the debtor from pleading the Statute of Limitations, but where the debtor pays a sum in respect of an account which includes a statute-barred item, that will amount to an acknowledgment. After a creditor has once made an appropriation, he cannot after action brought make another appropriation of the same payment: Re Friend, 1897, 2 Ch. 421; 77 L. T. 50.

Where a mortgagee in possession has, by an agreement with his mortgagor, applied the rents and profits on a collateral indebtedness for goods sold by him to the mortgagor, a subsequent incumbrance whose rights accrue after the arrangement is executed, is not entitled to have such rents applied on the mortgage debt: Mitcheil v. Saylor, O. L. 14, 458.

Insurance money, how applicable.

Insurance Money.—Where the mortgage contains no provision for the application of insurance money, payable under a policy effected by the mortgagor, or by the mortgagee under some covenant or provision in the mortgage in that behalf, the mortgagee is not bound to apply it in reduction of his debt before the time appointed for payment, or on the interest to accrue thereon, until it is actually due. In such a case, where the mortgagee declines to apply the money on his debt, or interest, the mortgagor is entitled to have the moneys laid out in rebuilding and restoring the premises to the status quo; but if the mortgagee retains the money he must apply it on account: Austin v. Storr, 10 Gr. 306. Under R. S. O. c. 121, s. 4 (2), the mortgagee cannot without the mortgagor's consent apply the insurance money in payment of moneys not yet due: Corham v. Kingston, 11 Ont. 432; Edmonds v. Hamilton P. & L. Socy., 19 Ont. 677; 18 Ont. App. 347; and he is not bound to apply it in payment of arrears, but may hold it in reserve as collateral security while any portion of the mortgage money is unpaid; and, though he applies part of the insurance money in payment of overdue principal, he is not bound to apply the balance in discharge of overdue interest: Edmonds v. Hamilton, supra; but if he elects to hold the insurance money in reserve, he is accountable for all profit made out of the money while so held, and he should not let it lie idle, but ought, if possible, to concur with the mortgagor on some profitable way of laying it out: see per Maclellan, J.A., 18 Ont. App. 367.

In mortgages executed before March 18, 1881, after default, there is a statutory power, under which the mortgagee may recover premiums paid, with interest, the proceeds being by the mortgage; R. S. O. c. 121, s. 18. Where the mortgagee insures, though there be no covenant, to the benefit of a loss, the mortgagee may have the insurance money paid out in reimbursement; Imperial Stat., 14 Geo. 3, c. 78, s. 83; Stinson v. French, 11 Gr. 404; Johnson (sed quib.) Carr v. Fire Insurance Association, 14 Gr. 487; the Imperial Statute is now repealed as to this Province by O. A. S. c. 26, s. 154 (O.); but see now R. S. O. c. 121, s. 4.

A mortgagee insuring out of his own funds, is not bound to give the mortgagor credit for the money received in the event of a loss; Mortgagee insuring Russell v. Robertson, 1 Chy. Ch. 72. Nor is he entitled to charge him with the premiums, unless the insurance is effected under R. S. O. c. 121, s. 18, supra; McIntosh v. Ontario Bank, 20 Gr. 24. But whether a mortgagee can recover both the insurance money, and also the mortgage debt seems doubtful; see Castellum v. Preston, 8 Q. B. 19, 613; 46 L. T. 568; 19 C. L. J. 143; Kerfer v. Phoenix, 26 Ont. App. 277; as to the right of a second mortgagee to recover on an insurance effected by him, when there is also an insurance on the same property effected by a prior mortgagee, see Westminster v. Glasgow, 12 App. Cas. 690; 50 L. T. 611.

Where a mortgagee holds several mortgages on different properties made by the same mortgagor, and receives insurance money in respect of one of such properties sufficient to satisfy the mortgage thereon, and the mortgagor has assigned his equity of redemption on that parcel to a third party, the third party is entitled to recover the surplus of the insurance moneys, and his right thereto cannot be defeated by consolidation of the mortgages; Re Union Assurance Co., 25 Ont. 627.

Mortgagees to whom a policy of insurance effected by the mortgagors is made payable as their interest may appear, may sue thereon in their own names and enforce payment to the extent of their interest, but if there is no mortgage or subrogation clause in the policy, the mortgagee stands in no better position than the mortgagor, and any defence against him will be a defence against the mortgagee; Agricultural L. & S. Co. v. Liverpool L. & G. Ins. Co., 3 O. L. R. 127. A renewal of a policy is a new contract, and though the original policy may have been voidable for non-disclosure of a prior insurance, yet, if, when the renewal is effected, there is no such prior insurance, the insurers cannot avoid the renewal on the ground of the existence of the prior insurance where the policy was originally issued; Id.

Where the mortgagor had insured in pursuance of a covenant, loss, if any, being payable to the mortgagee, and the buildings were burnt by the mortgagor, and the insurance money paid to the mortgagee, who assigned the mortgage to the insurance company; it was held, that inasmuch as the mortgagor could not have recovered on the policy, the insurance company were not bound to give credit on the mortgage debt for the amount of the insurance money, as against a puisne incumbrancer; Westmacott v. Huntley, 22 Gr. 382; Livingston v. The Western Assurance Company, 14 Gr. 461; S. C. 16 Gr. 9; and see Klein v. Union Fire Insurance Company, 3 Ont. 234; Reddick v. The Saugeen Mutual Insurance Company, 14 Ont. 506; 15 Ont. App. 363; Secus, if the mortgagor had not been debarred from recovering; Id. v. North British & Commercial Insurance Company, 14 Ont.

Rule 750. 322, 15 Ont. App. 421, 18 S. C. R. 697; Howes v. Dominion Insurance Company, 2 Ont. 89 (this case was reversed on appeal: see 19 C. L. J. 348, but not on the point for which it is here cited); Austin v. Story, 10 Gr. 308; and see Provincial Insurance Company v. Reesor, 21 Gr. 206; Burton v. Gore District M. F. I. Co., 12 Gr. 156; affirmed in appeal, January 21st, 1875; see R. & J. Dig. 1819, and per Prondfoot, V.C., 22 Gr. 384; Green v. Hewer, 21 C. P. 531; and even though the mortgagor could not himself have recovered on the policy by reason of breach of its conditions, yet, if it is unconditional in favour of the mortgagee, the insurance company is bound to give the mortgagor credit for the insurance moneys on the mortgage, if on payment of the loss it takes an assignment thereof from the mortgagee: Bull v. N. B. & Coml. Ins. Co., supra; McKay v. Norwich Union Ins. Co., 27 Ont. 251.

A boiler and other machinery were held as between mortgagor and mortgagees to be included under the word "building," as they were treated by the parties a part of the freehold and passed as such, and the mortgagor was held entitled to the benefit of the insurance thereon as on part of the building: Carr v. The Fire Insurance Association, 14 Ont. 487.

Rent
chargeable against mortgagee.

Rents.—A mortgagee in possession may be charged with rents actually received, or which, but for wilful neglect and default, he might have received; or he may be charged with an occupation rent when he has been in actual occupation, using and enjoying the mortgaged property in the place of a tenant; in the latter case, he is charged with a fair rental, such as a tenant might be expected to give, unless it is shewn that he actually made a larger profit: Truback v. R. ley, 15 Sim. 265; S. C., 2 Phil. 395; Coldwell v. Hall, 9 Gr. 110.

A mortgagee is accountable not merely for his actual receipts whilst in possession, but also for whatever is received by those to whom he transfers possession under an arrangement inoperative to transfer title, and in derogation of the rights of the mortgagor: National Bank of Australasia v. United Bank in Hand Band of Hope, 4 App. Cas. 391.

A mortgagee in possession, but not in actual occupation, will not be held liable for any greater rent than he actually received, unless it is clearly established, in evidence, that he knew a greater rent might and could have been obtained, and that he refused, or neglected, to obtain the same: Merriman v. Crouk, 21 Gr. 60; Waddell v. McColl, 14 Gr. 211; Penn v. Lockwood, 1 Gr. 547.

Mortgagee
in possession by arrangement with mortgagor,
how far liable to subsequent incumbrancer.

A mortgagee receiving rents or going into occupation by consent of the mortgagor, must account as a mortgagee in possession to a subsequent incumbrancer, or purchaser of the equity of redemption, although the mortgagor has directed the rent to be applied in payment of another debt due by him to the mortgagee: Gilmour v. Roe, 21 Gr. 284; Court v. Holland, 29 Gr. 19; unless such arrangement was made and executed before the right of the subsequent incumbrancer accrued: Mitchell v. Saylor, 1 O. L. R. 458; and where a mortgagee, pursuant to a power, enters into possession and manages the mortgaged estate without default, at a loss, he is entitled to be recouped the loss as against a puisne incumbrancer, not only out of the rents, but also out of any surplus proceeds arising from the sale of the property: Bumpus v. King, 13 Ch. D. 279; 55 L. T. 190. But when a mortgagee suffers the mortgagor to resume possession he ceases to be liable to account for rents: Rice v. George, 19 Gr. 174. Where the mortgage provides for payment of five per cent. interest, reducible if periodically paid, to four-and-a-half per cent., a mortgagee, on going into possession, after default, is not bound to accept the lower rate: Rule 750. Union Bank v. Ingram, 16 Ch. D. 53 (overruling Stains v. Banks, 9 Jur. N. S. 1049); Bright v. Campbell, 41 Ch. D. 388. A mortgagee in possession is entitled to be allowed a commission reasonably paid for collecting the rents: Union Bank v. Ingram, supra; but see Eyre v. Hughes, 2 Ch. D. 148.

A mortgagee, in possession, should not be charged with rests on rests, rents received by him, until he has been paid in full, when his money where was in arrear when he entered: Coldwell v. Hall, 9 Gr. 110; affirmed in appeal, 7 U. C. L. J. 42; 8 U. C. L. J. 93; but by setting up a title adverse to the mortgagor's right of redemption, he may lose the immunity of an ordinary mortgagee: National Bank of Australasia v. United Hand in Hand Band of Hope, 4 App. Cas. 391.

Notwithstanding the Statute of Limitations, a mortgagee in possession may be compelled to account to the mortgagor for more than six years' rent: Coldwell v. Hall, supra; although if the mortgagee has been overpaid, the Statute would doubtless be a bar to the mortgagor's recovering payment of more than six years' arrears.

Where the mortgagee is in occupation, he should be charged with an occupation rent up to the day appointed for payment: Pipe v. Shafer, 1 Chy. Ch. 251.

The mere existence of an attornment clause in a mortgage, does not make the mortgagee liable to account to a subsequent incumbrancer, as a mortgagee in possession: Stanley v. Grundy, 48 L. T. 100; but see Re Stockton Iron Company, 10 Ch. D. 335; 40 L. T. 19; Ex parte Jackson, 14 Ch. D. 725; 43 L. T. 272; Ex parte Pinnett, 16 Ch. D. 224; 41 L. T. 224; Ex parte Harrison, 18 Ch. D. 127; 45 L. T. 230; nor yet the fact that he has given notice to the tenant of the mortgagor to attorn, unless the tenant has, in fact, attorned, his mere continuance in possession after the notice is not sufficient: Anderson v. Jackson, 1891, 2 Q. B. 484; 65 L. T. 332.

Estoppel.—A mortgagee may be estopped as against a person inquiring of him the amount due on his mortgage, with a view to purchasing the equity of redemption, from claiming more than the amount then claimed: Dominion Savings & Investment Co. v. Kattridge, 23 Gr. 631. But if such representations are made to a person not known to be intending to purchase, or deal in respect of the equity of redemption, they are not binding on the mortgagee, although actually acted upon: Moffatt v. Bank of Upper Canada, 3 Gr. 374.

The mortgagor may, by his conduct, be also estopped from setting up payments on account of the mortgage: Inglis v. Gilchrist, 10 Gr. 301.

Vendor's Lien.—Void Mortgage for Purchase Money.—Where a mortgage was given by an infant for purchase money, and the infant on coming of age adopted the purchase, but repudiated the mortgage; an assignee of the mortgage was held nevertheless entitled to a lien for the purchase money: Glover v. Whithead, 7 Gr. 591.

Where land is conveyed in consideration of maintenance, the vendor has a lien for the consideration: Paice v. Chapman, 6 Gr. 338; 7 Gr. 179.

Mortgage payable in Foreign Currency.—Where the mortgage debt is payable in lawful money of the United States, the mortgagee is entitled, at his option, to claim the amount in the current foreign currency.

Rule 750. money of that country, or its equivalent in Canadian currency, at the time of default made in payment: Morrell v. Ward, 10 Gr. 231; Crawford v. Beard, 14 C. P. 87; and see Munners v. Pearson, 1898, 1 Ch. 581; 78 L. T. 432.

Priorities, as to executions.

Priorities.—Formerly the priorities were determined in the case of executions by the date of the delivery of the writs to the sheriff for execution, and for this purpose a fraction of a day was regarded. Beckman v. Jarvis, 3 U. C. Q. B. 280; Converse v. Michie, 16 U. C. P. 167. But now under The Creditors' Relief Act, (R. S. O. c. 78), all execution creditors whose writs are in the sheriff's hands to be executed are entitled to rank pari passu; Harvey v. McNeil, 12 P. R. 302; 24 C. L. J. 122. But an execution creditor directing the sheriff to stay execution, may now, as formerly, thereby lose his priority as against any subsequent execution then in, or thereafter coming into, the sheriff's hands, before the stay is removed: Ross v. Hamilton, E. T. 3 Viet.; Foster v. Smith, 13 U. C. Q. B. 243; Re Ross, 3 P. R. 394; Bank of Montreal v. Munro, 23 U. C. Q. B. 414; Kerr v. Kinsey, 15 C. P. 531; Trust & Loan Co. v. Cuthbert, 13 Gr. 412. But the sheriff, after being stayed, may make a second seizure during the currency of the writ: Gates v. Smith, 13 C. P. 572.

Stay of
execution,
effect of.

Priority of mortgagees

Mortgagees for value are usually entitled to priority, according to the date of registration of their mortgages; and the omission of the Registrar to index a registered instrument will not deprive it of its priority: Laurie v. Ruthburn, 38 U. C. Q. B. 255; Green v. Panton, 8 Ont. 471.

Voluntary
mortgagees

Voluntary mortgagees, and mortgagees with actual notice of a prior unregistered instrument, however, are not within the protection of The Registry Act (R. S. O. c. 136, s. 87); and see Geary v. Toft, 43 L. T. 100; Kettlewell v. Watson, 46 L. T. 83; 51 L. J. Chy. 281; Clarke v. Palmer, 48 L. T. 877; and a person making voluntary payments on a registered mortgage cannot thereby acquire the position of a prior incumbrancer in respect of such payments as against persons having charges or incumbrances on the mortgaged property at the time of such payments, subsequent to the mortgage, even though the person making the payment subsequently obtains an assignment of the mortgage: McMillan v. McMillan, 23 Ont. 371; and where an assignee of a term subject to a mortgage, in pursuance of an option in that behalf contained in the lease, purchases the fee, the mortgage becomes a charge on the fee, and the purchaser of the fee has no prior lien, even for his purchase money, as against the mortgagee: Building & L. Assn. v. McKeazie, 24 Ont. App. 700.

Payments
by guarantor, lien for

A mortgagee who has assigned the mortgage, and covenanted for its payment, is entitled to a lien as against the mortgagor for all payments so made: Fleming v. Pabner, 12 Gr. 226.

Execution
creditors,
purchasers at sheriff's sale.

An execution creditor cannot get priority over a prior unregistered deed: Russell v. Russell, 28 Gr. 419; nor over a prior unregistered equity: Hamilton P. L. Socy. v. Gilbert, 6 Ont. 434; Bevan v. McLean, 18 Ont. 533; Re Trusts Corporation v. Bachner, 26 Ont. 191; Parke v. Riley, 3 E. & A. 215; Re Lewis & Thorpe, 14 Ont. 133; but it would seem that a purchaser at a sheriff's sale may: Van Wagner v. Findlay, 14 Gr. 53.

A mortgagor who becomes also an execution creditor cannot acquire priority as such over his own mortgage, and where the mortgaged property is sold the proceeds are applicable to the mortgage, and only the surplus, if any, which remains will be applicable to his execution: see Dixon v. Steel, 1901, 2 Ch. 602.

Where it is necessary, for the purpose of settling the priority of Rule 750. incumbrancers, to inquire whether a person who has been sued, was, or was not, an absconding debtor within the meaning of the Act, the Master may do so, although the party sued may have taken no proceedings to set aside the attachment: Montreal Bank v. Baker, 3 Gr. 94, 268; but see Martin v. Bonlauger, 8 App. Cas. 205; 49 L. T. 62. An attachment only binds lands from the date of the seizure under it, and an execution delivered to the sheriff, before seizure made under the attachment, is entitled to priority over it: Robinson v. Bergin, 10 P. R. 127.

Where a creditor who had obtained security by an assignment from a debtor, his debtor of his chattels and other assets, by way of mortgage, was when notified by a subsequent execution creditor of his claim, and informed by conduct to that he would be held answerable for his dealing with the assets assigned, but negligently allowed the debtor to use, and deal with other creditors' them, so that they were lost; it was held that the first creditor was thereby postponed to the second as regards other property liable for the payment of their debts: Huntingdon v. Van Brocklin, 8 Gr. 421.

For the purpose of determining priorities between two deeds executed on the same day, the Master may inquire which was in fact the first executed, and may have regard to the internal evidence of the deeds themselves, for the purpose of ascertaining the intention of the parties upon the question of priority: Gartside v. Silkstone, D. C. d. 1. Co., 21 Ch. D. 762; 47 L. T. 76.

Where a judgment has been pronounced on the construction of an instrument declaring, A. to be entitled in priority to B., such judgment is a bar to any subsequent action by B. for the rectification of the instrument so as to give him priority; the proper course in such a case is for B. to procure a stay in the first action until his suit for rectification can be determined: Caird v. Moss, 33 Ch. D. 22; 55 L. T. 453.

Disputes between Incumbrancers.—Where there is a dispute between two persons, as to which of them is entitled to an incumbrance, the Master may determine the question himself, or, where he do so, would be likely unduly to delay the plaintiff and other parties not interested in the question, he may report the incumbrance, and its priority as regards other incumbrances, and the dispute between the claimants, so that the Court may give proper directions for determining the question: McDonald v. Wright, 12 Gr. 572.

Place of Payment.—The Master, in appointing the place, and manner of payment, must proceed under Rule 695. Place of payment.

Persons to Redeem, and Day for Redemption.—The Master is to appoint a day for redemption. He should be careful to see that the day appointed is not a Sunday, or a bank holiday, otherwise a new day will have to be appointed, before a final order can be obtained: Holcomb v. Leach, 3 Gr. 449. The omission of the Master to appoint a day for redemption may be remedied by order in Chambers: King v. Connor, 10 Gr. 364.

Where the judgment is for sale, one day is appointed six calendar months from the making of the report, for the mortgagor to redeem the plaintiff, and all subsequent incumbrancers who have proved claims; in default of payment a final order for sale is made: see directed Rules 385, 751; but see Jones v. Harris, 55 L. T. 884, where only three months were allowed for redemption. Where the judgment is for foreclosure, the subsequent incumbrancers are ordinarily entitled to successive rights of redemption in the order in which they acquired their charges: six calendar months being given to the first in priority, and one calendar month (Rule 393) to each of the others in succession. Seton, 5th ed., 1645; Webster v. Patterson, W. N. 1884, 20. But the Court may specially direct that one day only be given to all the defendants to redeem the plaintiff, without prejudice to their priorities inter se: Bartlett v. Rees, L. R. 12 Eq. 395; The General Credit & D. Co. v. Glegg, 22 Ch. D. 549; 48 L. T. 182; Smith v. Olding, 25 Ch. D. 462; 50 L. T. 357; Lewis v. Aberdare & P. Co., 59 L. T. 451; Western Canada L. & S. Co. v. Heimrod, 28 C. L. J. 185. In Mutual Life Assurance Co. v. Langley, 26 Ch. D. 680; 51 L. T. 284, Pearson, J., said that as a general rule where there are several defendants, but one day should be given; and see Platt v. Mendel, 27 Ch. D. 246; 51 L. T. 424; where the practice of giving successive days for redemption, where there are subsequent incumbrancers, was declared to be anomalous; and see Davis v. Manby, 78 L. T. Jour. 318; Doble v. Manley, 28 Ch. D. 664; Tufnell v. Nicholls, 50 L. T. 152. A puisne incumbrancer, and all persons claiming under him are entitled to have one day for redemption: Loveday v. Chapman, 32 L. T. 680; Beeson v. Lock, L. R. 4 Eq. 537; and so are execution creditors, where there are no intermediate incumbrances: Bates v. Hillcutt, 16 Beav. 139; Stead v. Banks, 5 D. & S. 560; Ardugh v. Wilson, 1 Chy. Ch. 380; Seton, 5th ed., 1645; but see Carroll v. Hopkins, 4 Gr. 431.

As to the mode in which the direction for redemption is given, where one of the subsequent incumbrancers is an acquitance: see Smithett v. Hesketh, 44 Ch. D. 161; 62 L. T. 802.

After a judgment or report appointing a day for redemption, the plaintiff cannot be required to accept payment of the redemption money before the day named for payment with interest only to that date: Hill v. Backlands, 1897, 2 Ch. 361; 77 L. T. 34; but see R. S. O. c. 121, s. 17; R. S. C. c. 127, s. 7.

A party making default in redemption at the time appointed, may be foreclosed: Rule 385, and new accounts may, from time to time, be taken without further order: Rule 753. When all the subsequent incumbrancers have been foreclosed, one calendar month (Rule 393) is given to the mortgagor to redeem, and, on default, he may be foreclosed. An incumbrancer redeeming, may proceed to foreclose the subsequent incumbrancers and the mortgagor, as if he were the original plaintiff in the action. A subsequent incumbrancer redeeming out of his order of priority may add the amount paid to his own claim as against all incumbrancers subsequent to himself, but not as against any that are prior; as against the latter he may claim to be redeemed in respect of any claim he has paid which had priority over the latter's claim. But, inasmuch as a prior incumbrancer on redeeming a subsequent incumbrancer, in respect of a prior claim paid off by the latter, would be entitled to add the amount so paid to his own debt, and to be redeemed by the latter, it will generally be found inexpedient to claim the right to be redeemed, and the incumbrancer next in priority to the plaintiff should be appointed to be redeemed as to his claim, without first requiring him to redeem a subsequent incumbrancer in respect of any prior claim paid by the latter. Where the mortgagor redeems after puisne incumbrancers have been foreclosed, he thereby opens the foreclosure as to them: see Bag v. Bridgman, 6 P. R. 234; Otter v. Lord Cairn, 2 K. & J. 650; 6 De G. M. & G. 428; Read v. South, 14 Gr. 250; 16 Gr. 52; Bell v. Sunderland Building Society, 4 Ch. D. 618; 49 L. T. 555; and see Leithrook v. Passman, 59 L. T. 306.

order

Where portions of an estate under mortgage are conveyed away by Rule 750, the mortgagor, one day should be given to all the persons interested in the equity of redemption to redeem: Hill v. Forsyth, 7 Gr. 461; so also where there is any dispute between co-defendants as to their priorities, one day may be given to all to redeem without prejudice to where their rights inter se: General Credit & D. Co. v. Glegg, 22 Ch. D. 549; 48 L. T. 182; Smith v. Olding, 25 Ch. D. 462; 50 L. T. 357; Leach v. Aberdare & P. Co., 50 L. T. 451; but where there is a stipulation in the mortgage that in case of sales by the mortgagor, the mortgagee shall, on payment of a certain portion of the purchase money, release the part sold, each purchaser is entitled to redeem his own part on payment of the stipulated portion of the money, and the Master should, in such a case, appoint one day for each of the several persons so entitled, to redeem his respective portion accordingly: Davis v. White, 16 Gr. 312.

As to the rights of purchasers of different portions of the mortgaged estate inter se, see Barker v. Eccles, 17 Gr. 277; Jones v. Peck, 18 Gr. 671; Pierce v. Canavan, 28 Gr. 356; 7 Ont. App. 187; Buckler v. Bowman, 12 Gr. 457; Norris v. Meadows, 28 Gr. 334; 10 Ont. App. 237; Clark v. Bogart, 27 Gr. 450; Fraser v. Nagle, 16 Ont. 241.

Where a mortgage comprised both real and personal estate, on the death of the mortgagor it was held that his personal representative was entitled to redeem both properties, but that the reconveyance to him should reserve the right or equity of redemption of any other person or persons: Hall v. Howard, 32 Ch. D. 420; 54 L. T. 810; but see now R. S. O. c. 127, ss. 3-10.

Where several persons are interested in the equity of redemption, any one of them seeking to redeem is entitled to, and as a rule must, redeem the whole mortgaged property and not merely a proportionate part, but the conveyance to one of several persons entitled to the equity of redemption should be made subject to the right of redemption of such other persons: Pearce v. Moccis, L. R. 5 Chy. 227; 22 L. T. 190; Faulds v. Harper, 11 S. C. R. 639. But under special circumstances one of several joint mortgagors was permitted to redeem his proportionate part of the mortgaged estate on payment of a proportionate part of the mortgage debt: Readdy v. Pendergast, 56 L. T. 790; and see Smith v. Huot, 2 O. L. R. 134; 4 O. L. R. 673, where third parties having acquired under a power of sale a legal title to an undivided three-fourths of the mortgaged property, the mortgagor was held only entitled to redeem the remaining undivided one-fourth, and to get compensation for the three-fourths from the mortgagee.

Where the day appointed for redemption is uncertain a new day must be appointed: Scott v. McKeown, 1 Chy. Ch. 186.

Pending the time allowed for redemption it is not competent for the mortgagee to sell the mortgaged property under a power of sale: Stevens v. Theatres, Ltd., 1903, 1 Ch. 857; 88 L. T. 458. (In this case leave to appeal was given: 117 L. T. J. 199.)

Master's Report.—The Master's report should bear date the day it is signed, and not before: Maddell v. McCall, 14 Gr. 211. It must be confirmed before the day appointed for redemption, or a final order will be refused: Mountain v. Potter, 1 Chy. Ch. 207; Mills v. Dixon, 21 Chy. Ch. 53. In the latter case a month's further time to redeem was allowed; and see Rule 393, and Two Trustees v. N. Y. Sec. Co., 5 O. W. R. 641.

Rule 760. As to confirming report, see Rules 692, 769, and notes. The omission to appoint a day for redemption may be remedied by application in Chambers; King v. Connor, 10 Gr. 364.

Correcting mistake in.

Where the Master had omitted to allow the plaintiff two items of interest, an order was made to correct the mistake, after a final order for sale, without appointing any new day for payment; Benson v. Graham, 9 C. C. L. J. 82; and see Morley v. Matthews, 12 Gr. 453; but the Master cannot, of his own motion, in a subsequent report, correct a mistake in a prior report; Crooks v. Street, 1 Chy. Ch. 78; and see further Rule 692, note p. 915.

Extension of time for payment, when granted,

Extending Time for Payment.—Application to extend the time for payment should be made in Chambers; Anon., 4 Gr. 61; where the defendant showed that he had sold for £300, and the mortgage debt was only £250, and that he expected to receive payment in full in two or three months, the time was extended; Ford v. Steeples, 1 O. S. 282. So also where the mortgage was for purchase money, and the vendor had neglected to pay off a prior mortgage, pursuant to his covenant, and it appeared that the existence of the first mortgage prevented the defendant from raising money to pay off the second, the time was extended; G. v. L., 2 Chy. Ch. 33. So also six months' further time was given, where the defendant was prevented from raising the money by reason of an improper advertisement published by the plaintiff's solicitors; Gilmour v. Meyers, 2 Chy. Ch. 171. So also where it was shewn that the value of the property would be enhanced in the meantime, by the construction of a railway; Cameron v. Cameron, 2 Chy. Ch. 375; and where a reasonable prospect of payment at the extended time was shewn, the time was extended; Cahoon v. Durie, 2 Chy. Ch. 394; Street v. O'Reilly, 2 Chy. Ch. 270; but an affidavit of the solicitor, that he believed his clients had exerted themselves, and were endeavouring to raise the money, and that the property was worth much more than the debt, was held insufficient; Anon., 4 Gr. 61.

Application after day appointed has elapsed.

Where the application is made after the day fixed for redemption, the applicant is usually required to pay interest for the extended time, on the whole amount found due for principal and interest; Street v. O'Reilly; Cahoon v. Durie; Cameron v. Cameron, supra; and the payment of the whole costs, or at all events the costs of the application, is also usually made a condition precedent; Id.; and see Holford v. Tate, 1 K. & J. 677; Whitfield v. Roberts, 7 Jur. N. S. 1268; Canada Permanent L. & S. Co. v. Donaldson, 30 C. L. J. 68; and where the mortgagee swore that he had been compelled, in consequence of the mortgagor's default, to contract a loan to meet his liabilities, at a higher rate of interest than that reserved by the mortgage; on extending the time, the mortgagor was required to pay such a sum as would cover the excess of interest payable by the mortgagee; Howard v. Macara, 1 Chy. Ch. 27. It is probable however, that where the application is made before a final order has been obtained the application will be more readily granted, and on less stringent terms, than where it is made after the final order has issued; Patch v. Hard, L. R. 3 Chy. 212.

Terms imposed.

Time may be extended on the same grounds in a redemption action; where the application is not made until after a final order dismissing the action, that order must be first vacated; see Collinson v. Jeffery, 1896, 1 Ch. 644; 76 L. T. 78.

See further as to applications to open foreclosure, and extend the time for payment, Rule 685, note.

751. On any proceeding for foreclosure by, or for redemption against an assignee of a mortgagee the statement of the mortgage account, under the oath of such assignee, shall be sufficient prima facie evidence of the state of such account, and an affidavit or oath shall not be required from the mortgagee or any intermediate assignee, denying any payment to such mortgagee or intermediate assignee, unless the mortgagor or his assignee, or the party proceeding to redeem, denies by oath or affidavit the correctness of such statement of account. R. S. O. 1887, c. 102, s. 11.

Rules
751-753.
In proceedings for foreclosure, etc., state of mortgage account may be proved prima facie by statement on oath of assignee of mortgagor.

See Court v. Holland, 8 P. R. 213.

752. The Master's report shall state the names of all persons who have been made parties in his office, and who have been served with the notice or appointment hereinbefore provided for, and the names of such as have made default, and shall set forth the amount of the claims, and priorities of such as have attended, and these latter shall be certified as the only incumbrancers upon the property. Con. Rule 131.

Master's report, contents.

Taken from Chy. O. 441.

For forms of reports in mortgage cases, see H. & L. Forms Nos. 1030-1040.

753. Subsequent accounts shall, from time to time, be taken, subsequent costs taxed, and necessary proceedings had, for redemption by, or foreclosure of, the other parties entitled to redeem the mortgaged premises, as if specific directions for all these purposes had been contained in the judgment. Con. Rule 132.

Subsequent accounts to be taken by Master.

Taken from Chy. O. 452.

If the mortgagor, or owner of the equity of redemption, or any incumbrancer, redeems any prior charge which was his own debt, or which, by contract, express or implied, he was bound to discharge, he cannot keep such charge alive as against a subsequent incumbrancer, effect of whose incumbrance he is also expressly, or impliedly, bound to discharge: Blake v. Beaty, 5 Gr. 359.

Mortgagor paying off incumbrance, cannot keep it alive as against a subsequent incumbrancer.

In taking the subsequent account the Master may allow a sum paid for insurance since the last account, under a provision in the mortgage: Bethune v. Cabott, 3 Gr. 648.

In England, it is the practice on taking the subsequent account, to allow interest on the gross amount of principal, interest and costs, found due by the last report: Ellon v. Curtis, 19 Ch. D. 49; 45 L. T. 435; and see Jacob v. Earl of Suffolk, Wms. 27; but in Ontario, it has not been customary to allow interest upon interest in respect of Interest on subsequent amount.

Rules an incumbrancer's own proper debt, unless the mortgage expressly 754, 755. provides therefor. But where a subsequent incumbrancer pays off a prior incumbrance, he is entitled to interest on the aggregate amount paid by him for principal, interest and costs; the interest on the principal being computed at the rate reserved in his own security, but on the interest and costs, at the legal rate only; McMaster v. Hector, 8
 C. L. J. 284.

Although ordinarily a mortgagee's own costs do not bear interest, yet if they have been expressly ordered to be added to his debt, they bear interest at the same rate as the principal money from the date of taxation: Eardley v. Knight, 41 Ch. D. 537.

Sale—proceedings &c.

754. If the judgment directs a sale instead of foreclosure on default in payment, then on default being made, and an order for sale obtained, the property shall be sold, with the approbation of the Master, who shall settle the conveyance to the purchaser in case the parties differ about the same; and the purchaser shall pay his purchase money into Court, to the credit of the action, subject to further order. Con. Rule 133.

Taken from Chy. O. 453.

Master may sell by tender, private contract
 etc.

By Rules 710, 724, 734, where a sale is ordered, the Master may cause the property, or a competent part thereof, to be sold, either by public auction, private contract, or tender; or part by one mode, and part by another, as he may think best for the interests of all parties; and he may fix an upset price, or reserved bidding, but such price, or bidding, must be so fixed at the meeting held by him for the purpose of settling the advertisement, and making the other arrangements preparatory to the sale, and must be notified in the conditions of sale.
 The Master is to settle all necessary conveyances for the purpose of carrying out the sale, in case the parties differ; or in case there shall be any persons under any disability (other than coverture) interested in such sale.

Settle all conveyances.

Before a sale can take place, a final order must be obtained: see Rule 385, note.

Whole should not be sold where part sufficient.

It is the Master's duty not to sell the whole, where it is clear that a sale of part would suffice for the payment of the incumbrances.
 Where the mortgagor thinks more land is offered for sale than is necessary, he should object at the settlement of the advertisement.
 It is too late to take the objection after the sale: Beatty v. Rotherhurst, 3 Chy. Ch. 344.

Purchase
 money, applied
 thereon.

755. The purchase money, when so paid, shall be applied in payment of what has been found due to the plaintiff and the other incumbrancers (if any), according to their priorities, together with subsequent interest, and subsequent costs. Con. Rule 134.

Taken from Chy. O. 454.

Even after a sale a dowress was allowed to come in and prove her claim: Hyle v. Barton, 8 P. R. 205.

This Rule makes no provision for the disposition of the residue, ^{Rules} 756, 757. after payment of the claims of the plaintiff, and other incumbrances. A motion may be made by the mortgagor, before a Judge in Chambers, for payment of the residue. Since 11th March, 1879, a wife barring dower in a mortgage, does so only for the purpose of the mortgage, and is consequently dowerable out of any surplus after satisfying the mortgage debt. It will therefore be necessary wherever this right exists, that the wife should be notified, and provision made for her protection, in any order directing payment out of the surplus: R. S. O. c. 164, s. 7; Martindale v. Clarkson, 6 Ont. App. 1; but it would seem that the wife of a mortgagor who has joined in the mortgage should now be made a party by writ: Blong v. Fitzgerald, 15 P. R. 167; ad quere, whether, even now, a woman having a mere inchoate right to dower in mortgaged lands has any present right of redemption.

The Creditors' Relief Act (R. S. O. c. 78), applies to executions against lands which have been sold in a mortgage action; and the surplus after payment of specific incumbrances is distributable, rateably among the execution creditors: Harvey v. McNeil, 12 P. R. 302; 24 C. L. J. 122.

756. Upon a reference under a judgment for redemption, the Master shall, without any special direction, take an account of what is due to the defendant for principal money and interest, and his costs shall be taxed, and a time and place for payment appointed according to the practice of the Court. Con. Rule 135.

Taken from J. A. Rule (1881) 332.

Six months is usually allowed for redemption by the plaintiff in a redemption action, as in the case of a defendant in a foreclosure action; see Rule 750, note. But it would seem that if the mortgagee were to insist on exercising his power of sale instantly, a mortgagor could not by commencing a redemption action, where the right to redeem is not in dispute, procure an extension of time for redemption, nor even stay the sale pending the action, except on the terms of bringing the money sworn to be due by the mortgagee for principal, interest and costs, into Court, to abide the taking of the account. But where the right of redemption is in dispute, a sale may be restrained until the trial or hearing of the cause without bringing the amount claimed into Court: Rhodes v. Buckland, 16 Beav. 212, 219; and the general rule requiring the payment of the money into Court may be modified, having regard to the special circumstances of the case: see Hickson v. Darlow, 23 Ch. D. 690; Macleod v. Jones, 24 Ch. D. 289.

In the event of a plaintiff in a redemption action failing to redeem at the time appointed he may be foreclosed: Rule 391.

757. Where the judgment is for redemption or foreclosure, or redemption or sale, such proceedings are in such case to be taken upon bid, and with the same effect as in an action for foreclosure or sale, and in such case the last incumbrance shall be treated as the owner of the equity of redemption. Con. Rule 136.

Taken from J. A. Rule (1881) 335.

Rule 758. In an action for redemption the plaintiff is not entitled to a sale in default of redemption, and it is only where the mortgagee expressly consents, that a judgment in a redemption action can be so framed.

Usually the only alternative of redemption is foreclosure, or dismissal of the action, which is equivalent to a foreclosure. The plaintiff may be foreclosed; see Rule 301; and under this Rule the mortgagee may bring in any subsequent incumbrancers and foreclose them. But when the mortgagee brings in the subsequent incumbrancers it would seem that they would have the ordinary right of defendants in a foreclosure action and be entitled to claim a sale on the usual terms, because the action then ceases to be a redemption action, and becomes one for foreclosure; see Rule 382.

A mortgagor, or any person liable to pay, is entitled to redeem any mortgage made after the 1st July, 1880, after it has run five years, even though the time limited by the mortgage itself for redemption has not expired: R. S. C. c. 127, s. 7; Re Parker, 30 C. L. J. 140; but this provision does not extend to mortgages or debentures secured on real estate given by any joint stock company or corporation; 73 Vict. c. 34, s. 1 (D.); and after the time for redemption has been fixed by any judgment, order, or report, the right of a mortgagor to stop interest by redeeming at an earlier period than that named would seem to be doubtful; see Hill v. Rorlands, 1897, 2 Ch. 361; 77 L. T. 34.

Where a mortgagee takes proceedings to enforce his security, he cannot refuse to accept payment of the whole amount of principal and interest, even though part of it has not matured; but when his proceedings are confined to protecting his security, he cannot, so far as the Statute above mentioned applies, be compelled to accept payment of moneys not yet accrued due; the right to accelerate payment for default being his, and not that of the mortgagor; see Ex p. Ellis, 1898, 2 Q. B. 79; 78 L. T. 733; Ex p. Wickens, 1898, 1 Q. B. 542; Wickens v. Shuckburgh, 78 L. T. 213.

A reversioner or remainderman is not entitled to redeem a mortgage of the particular estate, without the mortgagee's consent, before the reversion or remainder has come into possession; Prout v. Cock, 1896, 2 Ch. 808.

Rev. Stat., 1887, c. 162,
C. c. 121).

758. Subject to the provisions of section two of The Act respecting Mortgages of Real Estate, in an action for foreclosure or sale, upon payment by the defendant, or, in an action for redemption, upon payment by the plaintiff, of the amount found due, the plaintiff or defendant shall, unless the judgment otherwise directs, assign and convey the mortgaged property in question to the defendant, (or plaintiff as the case may be), making the payment, or to whom he may appoint, free and clear of all incumbrances done by him, and deliver up all deeds and writings in his custody or power relating thereto, upon oath; and in case of a corporation the affidavit shall be made by the officer thereof having the custody of such deeds and writings. Con. Rule 137.

Taken from J. A. Rule (1881) 336.

The Act referred to in this Rule is R. S. O. c. 121, under which a Rule 768 entitled to redeem instead of taking a discharge, or reconveyance, may require the mortgage debt, and mortgaged property to be transferred by the mortgagee to any third person: see s. 2.

A judgment creditor is bound to assign his judgment to the party Judgment creditor, redeeming it: Bank of British North America v. Moore, 8 Gr. 461.

Where both the mortgagor, and a subsequent incumbrancer, pay Who pays the money due to the plaintiff into the bank, the subsequent incumbrancer has the right to a conveyance in preference to a mortgagor, conveyance and as between two incumbrancers, the one who is prior is entitled to the conveyance: see Trean v. Smith, 20 Ch. D. 724.

Where there are other persons interested in the equity of redemption, besides the person redeeming, the mortgagee should convey to Redemption, besides the person redeeming, the mortgagee should convey to the party redeeming, subject to the equities of such other persons: of several interested persons: see Peace v. Morris, L. R. 5 Chy. 227; and see Boyd v. Petrie, L. R. 10 Chy. 182; L. R. 7 Chy. 392; and see further as to form of conveyance, Hutley v. Hurton, L. R. 3 Chy. 365.

Where a mortgagor who has assigned his equity of redemption Redemption, taking a covenant of indemnity from his assignee, is compelled to pay the mortgage debt, he is entitled to a reconveyance subject to the equities of persons other than himself in the property: Armour v. Dellope, 30 Ch. D. 434; 50 L. T. 433; Queen's Coll. v. Clutton, 25 Ont. 282; Stark v. Reid, 20 Ont. 257; and he is entitled to a charge on the land for the amount so paid as against his assignee: Hamilton Pyrdt, L. & I. Co. v. Smith, 17 Ont. 1. As to the terms of a conveyance to a tenant for life who redeems: see Hiderson v. Elvey, 20 Ch. D. 567. Where a mortgage is paid off, the mortgagee is bound to reconvey the mortgaged property so that it will revert in the mortgagors; if he reconvey to one of several mortgagors, he will be liable at the suit of the other mortgagors for any loss they may sustain by his so doing: Magnus v. Queensland National Bank, 36 Ch. D. 25; 57 L. T. 136; affirmed by C. A.: 57 Ch. D. 164; 58 L. T. 218.

A subsequent incumbrancer redeeming a prior mortgage is bound to take over all collateral securities of which he has notice, in the hands of the mortgagee, or is liable to subsequent incumbrancers for the value thereof: Glover v. Southern L. & S. Co., 1 O. L. R. 59. If a mortgagee has put it out of his power to reconvey the whole of the mortgage security, he may be compelled to make compensation for the part he is unable to reconvey: Smith v. Hunt, 2 O. L. R. 131; 4 O. L. R. 653.

A mortgagor redeeming is entitled to a reconveyance, or vesting order, and is not obliged to accept a certificate of discharge of the mortgage: Ellis v. Ellis, 1 Chy. Ch. 257; McLennan v. McLean, 27 Gr. 54.

In order to get the money out of the bank, it is necessary to produce to the officer required to sign the cheque, the consent of the party paying it in, duly verified, or that of his solicitor, if any. If this consent cannot be procured, an order must be obtained in Chambers, on notice to such party, and the costs of such motion will not be ordered to be paid by the latter: Bernard v. Hep, 2 Chy. Ch. 91; Meeks v. Stourton, 11 Jur. N. S. 278. There should also be produced to him a certificate from the bank that the money has been paid in, and the judgment and report, if any, under which it was paid in. The party paying in the money, is entitled to receive his conveyance and deeds, and to be let into possession, before the money is paid out.

Rule 759.

Lost mortgage, indemnity required.

Where the mortgagee has lost the mortgage deed, he is bound at his own expense to furnish the mortgagor, or any incumbrancer redeeming him, with proof of the loss, and with an indemnity against any demand of third persons: McDonald v. Hime, 15 Gr. 72; and see Caldwell v. Matthews, 62 L. T. 799.

(vi.) Receivers, Committees, etc.

Warrant for appointment of receiver, to name receiver and sureties.

759. The party prosecuting an order for a receiver shall obtain an appointment or a warrant from the Master, and serve the same on all the necessary parties, naming in the copy thereof served the proposed receiver and his sureties. Con. Rule 116.

Taken from Chy. O. 278.

Receivers, how appointed.

The appointment of receivers may now be made in any case in which it appears to the Court to be just or convenient: see Jud. Act, sec. 58 (9), supra, pp. 75 and 96.

Duty of Receiver.

A receiver is an indifferent person between the parties, appointed by the Court to collect and receive the rents and profits of land, or the produce of personal estate, or to take the care and custody of any other property which it does not seem proper to the Court that either of the litigants should do, either by reason of the controversy existing between them, or by reason of personal disability on the part of the party legally entitled, e.g., infancy or lunacy.

Claim for, to be indorsed on writ.

Where the appointment of a receiver is a substantial part of the relief sought by a plaintiff, he should indorse a claim to that effect on his writ: Colebourne v. Colebourne, 1 Ch. D. 691.

Appointment operates as injunction.

The appointment of a receiver operates as an injunction, and neither of the litigants can receive the money, or property, committed to a receiver, without a contempt of Court, and it is not necessary in the order appointing a receiver to grant an injunction in terms: Kerr on Receivers, 8.

As to whether interim Receiver superseded by judgment, quære?

It has been said that an interim receiver is superseded by the judgment subsequently given in the action, unless he is expressly continued by it: Kerr on Receivers, 2nd ed., 186; Reeves v. Acryll, 10 W. R. 335; Taylor's Orders, 3rd ed., 274; Gibson v. Montfort, 1 Ves. Sr. 485; but the authorities cited do not appear to bear out the proposition: see Seton, 5th ed., 658. The question would appear to depend on the terms of the order appointing the receiver: if appointed "until the trial," then it would seem clear, that unless continued by the judgment pronounced at the trial, he would be superseded by it; but if appointed generally without any limitation as to time, or "until the Court make order to the contrary," then it would seem that he would not necessarily be superseded by the judgment subsequently pronounced, even though not expressly continued by it: Davies v. Vale of Evesham Preserves, 73 L. T. 159.

Where a receiver has been appointed by the judgment in the action generally, it is not necessary that the judgment on further directions should continue him: Re Underwood, 60 L. T. 384.

Receiver, when Appointed:—

Rule 75a.

Infants.—A receiver will be appointed of an infant's estate in a proper case, as where the father is of bad character or insolvent, and where there is danger of loss; Kiffin v. Kiffin, cited 1 P. W. 704; Ex parte Mountfort, 15 Ves. 449 n.; Re Cormicks, 2 Ir. Eq. 264, or there is no testamentary guardian, or one who declines to act: Hicks v. Hicks, 3 Ark. 273; Bridges v. Hales, Mos. 111; or the guardian is misconducting himself; Beaufort v. Berty, 1 P. W. 704, and see Dillon v. Lord Mountcashel, 4 Bro. P. C. 306.

Lunatics.—A receiver will be appointed over a lunatic's estate, where no person will act as committee, or where the committee is infirm, or the management of the estate onerous: Kerr on Receivers, 78.

Executors and Trustees.—The Court will in a proper case appoint a receiver to act in place of an executor, or trustee, but it will not do so on slight grounds. Where fraud is charged a receiver will be appointed: Leeson v. Amzie, 2 O. S. 40, and see Menham v. Draper, 2 Gr. 316; or in case of misconduct or improper management, or where there is danger of loss of the trust property: Middleton v. Dodswell, 13 Ves. 266; H. v. H., 1 Ch. D. 276; Colebourne v. Colebourne, 1b., 690; or the executor or trustee is wasting the assets: Keene v. Riley, 3 Mer. 436; Re Wells, Molony v. Brooke, 45 Ch. D. 549; 63 L. T. 521; or that being a sole executor, or trustee, he is insolvent: Harrold v. Wallis, 9 Gr. 443; Re Johnson, L. R. 1 Ch. 325; Gauthorpe v. Gauthorpe, W. N. 1878, 91; although mere poverty is no ground for the appointment: Anon., 12 Ves. 4; but if coupled with bad character it may be: Everett v. Prythorpe, 12 Sim. 368; or if being a female, she has married a man in necessitous circumstances, the residus que trustent being infants: Dillon v. Lord Mountcashel, 4 Bro. P. C. 306. A receiver may also be granted before probate, or administration, to prevent waste or spoliation, and to provide for the collection of assets pending litigation as to the right of administration: Atkinson v. Henshaw, 2 V. & B. 85; Ball v. Oliver, 1b., 96; Jones v. Godrich, 4 Jur. 98; Wood v. Hitchings, 2 Beav. 289; 4 Jur. 558; King v. King, 6 Ves. 172; Re Moore, Acr v. Moore, 13 P. D. 36; 58 L. T. 386; but see Knight v. Duplessis, 1 Ves. S. 324; but to warrant the appointment there must in general be shown to be litigation pending, or threatened, in the Surrogate Court: Jones v. Jones, 3 Mer. 174; Jones v. Frost, 3 Mad. 1; Jac. 466; Marr v. Littlewood, 2 My. & Cr. 458; Parkin v. Seddons, L. R. 16 Eq. 36; or that there is some difficulty in obtaining administration: Overington v. Ward, 34 Beav. 175. Pending litigation respecting the grant of probate or administration, the Surrogate Court has power to grant administration pendente lite: R. S. O. c. 59, s. 56.

Mortgagee.—Formerly a receiver would not be granted at the instance of a mortgagee entitled to the legal estate: Berney v. Sewell, 1 J. & W. 648; except under special circumstances: see Kerr on Receivers, 29-30, 34; nor against a prior mortgagee in possession at the instance of a subsequent incumbrancer, so long as anything remained due on the prior mortgage; and the Court would only act on the prior mortgagee's own admission that he had been paid off, or his refusal to accept what was due to him: Berney v. Sewell, 1 J. & W. 647; Miles v. Moore, 15 Beav. 180; but where the prior mortgagee in possession had himself acquired the equity of redemption, and it appeared that he had received rents and profits more than sufficient to pay off his mortgage, a receiver might be granted:

Rule 759 Steinhoff v. Brown, 11 Gr. 114. And now a receiver may be appointed at the instance of a mortgagee of the legal estate, if it seems to the Court to be just or convenient so to do: Pease v. Fletcher, 1 Ch. D. 273; but see North London Railway Co. v. Great Northern Railway Co., 48 L. T. 695; and see In re Prytherch, P. v. Williams, 42 Ch. D. 590. Where the mortgagor is in possession, and a receiver is appointed at the instance of the mortgagee, the usual direction for the tenants to attorn is not sufficient to compel the mortgagor to pay a rent to the receiver; but he will from the date of the demand of rent by the receiver be compelled to pay an occupation rent if he continues to retain possession: Yorkshire Banking Co. v. Mallon, 35 Ch. D. 125; 56 L. T. 399; Re Burchnull, Walker v. Burchnull, 96 L. T. Jour. 130; see Jud. Act, s. 58 (9), and notes, supra, pp. 75 and 96.

When on application of equitable mortgagee.

An equitable mortgagee may, after default, have a receiver appointed against a mortgagor in possession "without prejudice" to the rights of any prior mortgagee: Aikins v. Blain, 13 Gr. 646; Kerr on Receivers, 35. The Court will not try, on an interlocutory motion, the question whether a prior mortgagee in possession has been paid off, when he himself distinctly swears that there is something due; but his affidavit as to the amount due is required to be specific; if vague, or his accounts are so negligently kept that he cannot speak positively, a receiver may be appointed: Rowe v. Wood, 2 J. & W. 558; Hiles v. Moore, 15 Beav. 180; Codrington v. Parker, 16 Ves. 433.

A mortgagee cannot have a manager appointed to manage a business carried on on the mortgaged property, where the business itself has not been mortgaged: Whitley v. Challis, 1892, 1 Ch. 64; 65 L. T. 838.

Interim Receiver, when granted on application of creditors.

Creditors.—An injunction to restrain a debtor from alienating his property pendente lite, cannot in general be obtained by a simple contract creditor suing to recover his debt, where the debtor is in case; nor under such circumstances could a receiver be granted: National Provincial Bank of England v. Thomas, 24 W. R. 1013; Queen v. Homan, 4 H. L. C. 1036; Robinson v. Pickering, 50 L. J. Chy. 527; Hepburn v. Patton, 26 Gr. 597; not even though the debtor be a public company: McCall v. Canada Farmers' Mutual Insurance Co., 18 C. L. J. 117; Mills v. Northern Railway of Buenos Ayres Co., L. R. 5 Chy. 621; nor though the creditor be an unpaid vendor, and the company admit their liability: Latimer v. Aylesbury & Bedford Railway Co., 9 Ch. D. 385.

But when the debtor is dead, a receiver may be obtained by a simple contract creditor against the personal representative, or devisee, wasting the assets of the deceased: see Acen v. Riley, 3 Mer. 436; and of the realty where it appears that the personal estate is insufficient: Tones v. Pugh, 8 Ves. 71; Chalk v. Raine, 13 Jur. 981; Kerr on Receivers, 40. Since The Devolution of Estates Act (R. S. O. c. 127), the realty and personalty of a deceased person constitute a common fund for the payment of his debts, and it would seem to be no longer necessary to establish that the personalty is insufficient as a condition of obtaining a receiver of the realty.

After judgment, Receiver may be appointed.

A creditor who has obtained judgment may apply for a receiver by way of equitable execution, as against property of the debtor, which could not be reached by a writ of execution: Anglo-Italian Bank v. Davies, 9 Ch. D. 275; Smith v. Hurst, 1 Coll. 705; 10 Ha. 48; Wells v. Kilpin, L. R. 18 Eq. 298; Tillett v. Pearson, 43 L. J. Chy. 93; Fuggle v. Bland, 11 Q. B. D. 711; Westhead v. Riley, 49 L. T. 776; 25 Ch. D. 413; Perks v. Mydred, 76 L. T. Jour. 336;

Kincaid v. Reed, 21 C. L. J. 144; Kincaid v. Kincaid, 12 P. R. Rule 759, 462; Book v. Ruth, 20 C. L. J. 193; Smith v. Egan, 17 P. R. 330. Formerly, in such cases, it was necessary, before applying for a receiver, to sue out a writ of execution; but it would seem now that if the property cannot be reached by the writ, such a preliminary is not necessary; Ex parte Evans, 13 Ch. D. 250; but see supra, p. 281. Where the fund can be reached by an attaching order, a receiver will not be appointed; Miller v. Thompson, 19 P. R. 291.

Where the application is made on behalf of an execution creditor, whether the receiver should be appointed for the benefit of the plaintiff alone, or for all creditors of the debtor by analogy to the provisions of The Creditors' Relief Act (R. S. O. c. 781, quarrel? see note supra, p. 100). The application may be made in the action in which the judgment has been recovered, if in the High Court, and it is not proper to institute another action for the purpose of obtaining a receiver; ib.; Smith v. Cowell, 6 Q. B. D. 73; Salt v. Cooper, 16 Ch. D. 544.

Where the execution debtor had a mere right of use of chattel property for life under a settlement, a receiver of such property was refused; Whitaker v. Cohen, 69 L. T. 451.

An interim receiver cannot, in general, be granted in favour of a creditor against a debtor company; McCall v. Canadian Farmers' Mutual Insurance Co., 18 C. L. J. 117, but after judgment has been obtained, an execution creditor, or a mortgagee, of a railway company, may obtain the appointment of a receiver and manager of the undertaking; Galt v. Erie & Niagara Railway Co., 14 Gr. 499; Peto v. Willand Railway Co., 9 Gr. 455, affirmed on rehearing, 16th February, 1864; Brantford v. Grand River Navigation Co., 8 Gr. 240; Gardiner v. London C. & D. Ry., 1 L. R. 2 Chy. 201; Eng. Ry. Act, s. 4. In re K. & O. Ry., 1901, 2 Ch. 8; Toronto General Trussing Corp. v. Cent. Ontario Ry., 6 O. L. R. 1; and see Brown v. Midland Railway Co., 3 Gr. 225 (where the plaintiff claimed a mechanic's lien); and as to other public companies, see Marshall v. South Staffordshire Tramways Co., 1895, 2 Ch. 36; Kerr on Receivers, 46-7, 50. Where a railway company had been ordered to be wound up, and an unpaid vendor brought a suit to enforce his lien for purchase money, it was held that he was entitled to an injunction restraining the company from using the land until payment of the purchase money; Althood v. Merryheat & Darlington Ry. Co., 33 Ch. D. 571; and see Williams v. Aylesbury & Buckingham Ry. Co., 28 L. T. 547; but see contra, Lincoln Paper Mills Co. v. St. Catharines N. C. Ry. Co., 19 Ont. 103, and see note to Rule 378, supra, p. 588.

In an action by a debenture holder of a company for foreclosure, the Court has power to appoint an interim manager as well as a receiver; Makins v. Percy Holton & Sons, 1891, 1 Ch. 133; 63 L. T. 515; and a receiver and manager has been appointed at the instance of debenture holders, whose debentures were a first charge on all the property of the company as "a floating security," notwithstanding that no part of the principal or interest was in arrear; Edwards v. Standard Rolling Stock Syndicate, 1893, 1 Ch. 574; but see Marshall v. South Staffordshire Tramways Co., supra, where it was held that there is no power to direct a sale, or the appointment of a manager of the undertaking of a joint stock company at the suit of a mortgagee, unless the Act authorizing the mortgage also empowers the Court to give that relief to the mortgagee.

Rule 759.

Appointment not to prejudice prior mortgagees.

Where a receiver is appointed at the instance of a judgment creditor, it is without prejudice to the claims of prior mortgagees, if any: Legg v. Matheson, 2 Ch. 71; Widd v. Mid-Hants Railway Co., 16 W. R. 409; Potts v. Warwick & B. C. Co., Kay, 145.

A judgment creditor at whose instance a receiver is appointed is not a "secured creditor" within the English Bankruptcy Act: Potts, 1893, 1 Q. B. 648; 68 L. T. 229; sed vide, Lyrasson v. Munn, 1891, 2 Q. B. 73; 61 L. T. 761.

Receiver,
when appointed in partnership
cases.

Partners.—The Court in granting a receiver of partnership property, thereby takes the affairs of the partnership out of the hands of all the partners, and entrusts them to a receiver or manager of its own appointment; and while an injunction only restrains one or more of the partners from doing what may be complained of, the appointment of a receiver excludes all alike from taking part in the management of the concern: Hall v. Hall, 3 Mc. & G. 86. It therefore, does not follow that the Court will grant a receiver pendente lite, in every case where it would grant an injunction.

Not appointed pendente lite of ;
concern.

Where a dissolution is neither sought nor is absolutely necessary, a receiver pendente lite will not in general be granted of a "going concern": Goodman v. Whitcomb, 1 J. & W. 589; Roberts v. Eberhardt, Kay, 148; Hall v. Hall, supra; unless there is danger of the business being destroyed, or the assets misapplied in the meantime, or unless one partner is misconducting himself; e.g., by colluding with debtors of the firm: Estwick v. Conningsby, 1 Vern. 118; or carrying on a separate trade with the partnership property: Hatting v. Glover, 18 Ves. 281; or is wrongfully excluding the plaintiff from the management: Wilson v. Greenwood, 1 Sw. 481; Goodman v. Whitcomb, 1 J. & W. 592; Roe v. Wood, 2 J. & W. 558; Cass v. Harris, T. & R. 525; Prentiss v. Brennan, 1 Gr. 371; Bulfin v. Blakely, 6 Gr. 575; Steele v. Grossmith, 19 Gr. 141; or where some of the partners are insolvent: Collins v. Barker, 1893, 1 Ch. 578.

Exception to rule.

Where a partnership is alleged on one side and denied on the other, usually a receiver is not appointed until that question has been determined: Penceck v. Penceck, 16 Ves. 49; Chapman v. Bouch, 1 J. & W. 594 n; Fairbairn v. Pearson, 2 Mac. & G. 144.

A receiver of a partnership may, in a proper case, be ordered by interlocutory order to sell assets: McLaren v. Whiting, 16 P. R. 552.

Where a partner is appointed receiver and manager without salary, he is entitled to be paid out of the assets for premiums paid to a guarantee company for becoming surety for him: Harris v. Kemp, 1891, 2 Ch. 89; 76 L. T. 458.

Receiver,
when appointed as against re-tenant in common.

Tenants in Common.—A receiver has been appointed in a partition action pendente lite, although there has been no exclusion by any of the co-owners: Porter v. Lopes, 7 Ch. D. 358. Formerly a case of destructive waste, or gross exclusion, was necessary to be made to warrant the appointment of a receiver in such a case; Kerr v. Receivers, 79; but see Gaskin v. Butts, 13 Ch. D. 313, per Theobald, L.J., and North London Ry. Co. v. Great Northern Ry. Co., 11 Q. B. D. 30; 18 L. T. 695, where it was held that the jurisdiction to grant injunctions, has not been extended by The Indemnity Act; see Phelps v. Jones, 76 L. T. Jour. 373.

Or between vendor and purchaser.

Vendor and Purchaser.—In actions for specific performance, a receiver may be appointed, in a proper case, by the Court: Kerr v. Jones, 3 Mer. 418; Hull v. Jenkins, 2 V. & R. 125; McLeod v.

Philips, 2 Jur. 962; and see Taylor v. Eckerstep, 2 Ch. D. 392; 3 Rule 759. Ch. D. 740, a case of chattels; or in actions to set aside conveyances as obtained by fraud; Stillwell v. Wilkins, Jac. 282; Hugonia v. Buschey, 13 Ves. 107; 2 White & Tind. Lg. Cases, 547.

Legal Title.—Formerly the Court would not, except under special Receiver, circumstances, or in cases covered by R. S. O. (1877) c. 40, s. 49, when appointed a receiver against a person in possession of lands claiming under a legal title; but since The Judicature Act, it has been held that the jurisdiction is extended, and that a receiver may be appointed against a person claiming a legal title, wherever the Court may think it "just or convenient"; Real and Personal Advance Co. v. McCarty, 27 W. R. 706; but see North London Ry. Co. v. Great Northern Ry. Co., 11 Q. B. D. 30; 48 L. T. 655; Phillips v. Jones, 6 L. T. Jour. 373.

Application for Appointment.—The application for the appointment of a receiver must in the first instance be made in Court, upon motion for that purpose where the appointment is required to be made pendente lite, or else at the trial, or on motion for judgment in the action; but after a receiver has been appointed, applications to fill vacancies subsequently occurring in the office may be made in Chambers; Grete v. Bug, 9 Ma. App. 4, but the order for a receiver has been granted in Chambers, by consent; Blackborough v. Ravenhill, 16 Jur. 1085; and see 22 Sol. Jour. 914.

Under Rule 341, a defendant may, before judgment, apply for an interim injunction and receiver. He may do so, notwithstanding that the plaintiff has already served notice of motion for the like purpose. In such case, one order will be made on the two motions, but the conduct of it will, in general, be given to the plaintiff; Sargant v. Reed, 1 Ch. D. 600.

If the receiver is named by the Court, "on his giving security," no other person can be named in the warrant, and if the person named in the order fails to give the security, a further order will be necessary to enable the Master to appoint some one else.

A receiver when appointed is an officer of the Court, and stands in the position of trustee to all who are interested in the estate or fund. In making the appointment, the Master should endeavour to select a person acceptable to all parties, as well as otherwise fit and competent for the duties he will be called on to perform; Simpson v. Latham & Prescott Ry. Co., 1 Chy. Ch. 391; and see Brant v. Wilbushby, 17 Gr. 627.

A receiver should in general be wholly disinterested, unless he carries otherwise consent, or the Court is of opinion that the appointment of one of the parties would be beneficial to the estate; Cuquant v. Read, 1 Ch. D. 600. Where a party to the action is appointed it is only on his undertaking to act without salary; Re Wilson v. Greenwood, 1 Sw. 471, 484; Blackney v. Dufant, 15 Beav. 441; Kerr on Receivers, 95. Where a receiver is appointed of trust property, the cestui que trust is entitled to have the superintendence of the trustee, as a check upon the receiver; the trustee should not therefore be himself appointed, except under special circumstances; Kerr, 95, 86; and where a receiver is appointed of the property of any person not sui juris, the guardian or committee of such person, should not be appointed for the same reason, nor yet any person connected with him, or the solicitor in the action; Re Lloyd, 12 Ch. D. 447; nor a Master of the Court; Ex parte Fletcher, 6 Ves. 127.

Rules760-762.

Parties not eligible.

Security.

A party to the action cannot propose himself as receiver unless leave to do so be embodied in the order: Davis v. Duke of Marlborough, 2 Sw. 118.

The giving of security for the due performance of his duty by a receiver will not be dispensed with where infants or other persons not sui juris are interested: Tyler v. Tyler, 17 Beav. 584; nor where all the parties are sui juris and consent, if it is referred to the Master to appoint the receiver: Hanners v. Furse, 11 Beav. 30; but it may be, if the parties themselves nominate the receiver: Ib.

Where a person is appointed receiver without salary, he is entitled to be paid out of property in question the premiums paid by him to a guarantee company for becoming his surety: Harris v. Sheep, 18 Q. 2 Ch. 80; 76 L. T. 458.

On return of warrant, bond to be brought in.

760. At the time appointed, the party prosecuting the order shall bring into the Master's office the bond proposed as security. Con. Rule 115.

The bond here referred to, is intended to be brought in as a draft, and should not be executed until it has been approved by the Master, see Rule 762, otherwise its re-execution may be necessary.

Bond, how to be given.

The bond must now be made to the "Accountant of the Supreme Court of Judicature for Ontario, his successors and assigns" Rule 66; Jud. Act, s. 150 (2), see supra, p. 183.

Where a guarantee company has been approved by the Lieutenant Governor in Council, its bond may be accepted as security: R. S. O. c. 220, s. 3; and see Carpenter v. Solicitor to the Treasury, 46 L. T. 821; R. S. O. c. 16, s. 24. The solicitor of any of the parties is not eligible as a surety: Re Gibson, 13 P. R. 359.

Party desiring to propose another person as receiver, to give notice.

761. Any other party desirous of proposing another person as receiver, shall serve notice of his intention so to do upon the other parties, naming in the notice the person proposed by him as receiver, and his sureties, and shall bring into the Master's office the bond proposed by him as security. Con. Rule 118.

See Chy. O. 280.

Master to appoint receiver and settle and approve security.

762. At the time named in the appointment or warrant the Master shall consider the appointment of the receiver, and determine respecting the same; and settle and approve of the proposed security. Con. Rule 119.

See Chy. O. 281.

Evidence to be produced on settling security.

In order to enable the Master to settle the security to be given, affidavits must be filed proving the amount of property likely to come to the receiver's hands. The amount of the security required will vary according to the circumstances; usually security will be required to be given by the receiver and at least two sureties in double the amount of the probable annual rents of realty, and double the probable amount of personal estate, likely to come to his hands.

When a receiver has passed his final accounts, and paid his balances as directed by the Court, an application may be made to discharge the bond; all parties interested are entitled to notice of the application: Brown v. Perry, 1 Chy. Ch. 253. As to the liability of the sureties, see Re Graham, 1895, 1 Ch. 66; 71 L. T. 623.

763. The Master shall approve of and appoint the receiver, by signing a written appointment according to Form No. 87, which shall be signed without any warrant or attendance for that purpose. Con. Rule 120.

See Chy. O. 282.

For Form No. 87, see H. & L. Forms, No. 1991.

Committees of lunatics, and guardians of the person and estate of infants, are to be appointed in the same manner as receivers: Rule 765.

764. After the execution and filing of the securities settled and approved by the Master, the appointment is to be filed by the party who has procured the person named by him as receiver to be appointed, and it may be moved against within seven days by any party interested. Con. Rule 121.

See Chy. O. 283.

A receiver appointed "upon his giving security," is not effectually constituted receiver as against third parties until he has given the security: Edwards v. Edwards, 1 Ch. D. 454; 2 Ch. D. 291; but if no security he required, he is legally clothed with the character of receiver from the date of his appointment: Taylor v. Eckersley, 2 Ch. D. 392; 5 Ch. D. 749. Where a receiver is required to give additional security his omission to do so may be a ground for removing him from office, but he cannot be proceeded against for contempt of Court for not doing so. Re Dominion Provid. B. & E. Assoc., 24 Ont. 416.

Interference by third parties with the property in question, before the appointment is completed, is not a contempt of Court: Taylor v. Eckersley, supra; and see Fox v. Nipissing Ry. Co., 29 Gr. 11.

After the appointment of the receiver is complete, any interference with the property committed to his charge and in his possession, either by parties to the action, or third parties having notice of his appointment, is a contempt of Court, unless the leave of the Court has been first obtained: Angel v. Smith, 9 Ves. 335; Russell v. East Anglian Ry. Co., 3 Mac. & G. 104; Ames v. Birkenhead Docks, 20 Beav. 353; even though such interference be by persons claiming by title paramount to that of the parties to the action in which the receiver is appointed: Ib.; Evelyn v. Lewis, 3 H. & A. 475; Hawkins v. Guthercole, 1 Drew. 17; Randfield v. Randfield, 1 Dr. & Sm. 314; Whitcomb v. Shropshire Ry. Co., 95 L. T. Jour. 272; and the Court will not permit any one, without its sanction, to intercept or prevent payment, or delivery to the receiver, of any money or property which he has been appointed to receive: Ames v. Birkenhead Docks, 20 Beav. 353; but where goods in the possession of a receiver were sold for taxes, and neither the bailiff, nor purchaser, had notice of the receiver's rights, the Court refused to hold the sale void: Gibson v. Lovell, 18 Gr. 197. As to payments which a receiver of a going concern may properly make, see Gooderham v. Toronto & Nipissing Ry. Co., 8 Ont. App. 685.

Rule 764.

Leave was given to abate an obstruction to a right of way, existing on land in the possession of a receiver; Lane v. Capsey, 1891, 3 C. L. 111; 65 L. T. 375.

It has been held that the effect of a receivership order obtained by an execution creditor is to vest in the party obtaining the same a right to the property in question, as from the date of the order, which cannot be divested by proceedings in bankruptcy subsequently taken against the debtor; Lecrassey v. Mason, 1891, 2 Q. B. 73; 64 L. T. 761; but, notwithstanding, it has been held that he is not a "secured creditor" within The Bankruptcy Act; Re Potts, 1893, 1 Q. B. 648; 68 L. T. 229; and see Croshaw v. Lyndhurst, 1897, 2 Q. B. 154; 76 L. T. 533, where it was held by Stirling, J., that a receiver's order, under which the receiver is required to pay the moneys received into Court subject to further order, gave the execution creditor no charge on the property. See also McLean v. Allen, 18 P. R. at p. 259.

Property in the hands of a receiver is in custodia legis in so far that none of the parties to the action can recover damages for its detention while in his custody; The Peruvian Guano Co. v. Decatur, 1892, A. C. 160; but not in the same way as it would be if in possession of a sequestrator, or sheriff; Re Hoare, H. v. Owen, 1892, 3 C. L. 94; 67 L. T. 45.

Receiver
to obtain leave to sue, or defend, or distrain.

Where it is necessary for the receiver to bring, or defend, an action, or take other legal proceedings, to recover, or maintain, his right to property committed to him, he should first obtain the sanction of the Court; Thomas v. Torrance, 1 Ch. Ch. 9. He cannot sue in his own name, but he must get the leave of the Court to bring the action in the name of the party in whom the legal cause of action is vested; McGuin v. Fretts, 13 Ont. 699; Stuart v. Grough, 14 Ont. 275.

The Court may refuse to authorize the receiver to sue where the party having the legal title is ready and willing to do so; McLean v. Allen, 14 P. R. 291.

Where a receiver is appointed by way of equitable execution, he may be authorized to sue in the name of the debtor for the purpose of recovering assets to satisfy the execution, on first giving the debtor a proper indemnity against costs; Morris v. McCollum, 17 P. R. 308.

The receiver should not himself initiate proceedings, but he should apply to the party having the conduct of the cause to take any proceedings that may be necessary; Third National Bank v. Queen City Refining Co., 20 C. L. J. 151. After attornment by a tenant to the receiver, the receiver may distrain in his own name; before attornment, leave must be obtained to distrain in the name of the person having the legal estate; Kerr, 142, 143. The application for leave to sue, defend, or distrain, may be made in Chambers; Thomas v. Torrance, 1 Ch. Ch. 9; notice to the tenants is not necessary; Palmer v. Dryden, 6 P. R. 127.

A receiver cannot be empowered by the Court to do things which the parties to the action could not themselves legally do, e.g., in a partnership he cannot be empowered to agree to a compromise against the will of one of the partners; Niemann v. Niemann, 43 Ch. D. 198; 62 L. T. 339.

Proceedings
against, restrained.

Proceedings instituted against a receiver for acts done by him in the execution of his office, will be restrained; Simpson v. Hutchison, 7 Gr. 398; and see Searle v. Choat, 25 Ch. D. 723; 50 L. T. 470; Re West Lancashire Ry. Co., 63 L. T. 56. After his discharge a receiver will not be restrained from soliciting customers, unless he was appointed on the terms that he would not do so after he ceased to be receiver; Re Irish, Irish v. Irish, 40 Ch. D. 49; 60 L. T. 224.

Accounts of Receiver.—See Rule 766.

Rules
765-766.

Liability of Receiver.—A receiver or manager entering into contracts will make himself personally liable, unless the contract expressly provides otherwise: Burt v. Bull, 1805, 1 Q. B. 276; 71 L. T. 810; or the credit is clearly given to the firm or business of which the receiver is manager: Isaacs v. Utnerp, 74 L. T. 320; and where a receiver is appointed by trustees for debenture holders in pursuance of a power in the trust deed, the trustees are not liable on the contracts of the receiver as undisclosed principals: Gaskell v. Godling, 1896, 1 Q. B. 669; 77 L. T. 311; 1897, A. C. 575, in which case the deed provided that the receiver when appointed should be the agent of the company who alone should be liable for his acts or defaults.

A receiver is bound to conform to the orders of the Court, and is responsible for any loss resulting from his not doing so: thus, where a receiver was ordered to pay money to the plaintiffs, and he paid it to their solicitor who misappropriated it, the receiver was held liable to make good the loss: Ind. Cooper & Co. v. Kidd, 71 L. T. 263.

A receiver is liable to attachment for disobeying the order of the Court as to the payment of moneys which came to his hands as receiver; but scilicet a specific order for payment should be first obtained and served on him: Parkes v. Griffin, 18 P. R. 48.

765. Committees of the persons and estates of lunatics, idiots, and persons of unsound mind, and guardians, excepting guardians ad litem, shall be appointed, as nearly as practicable, in the same manner as receivers, as nearly as circumstances will permit. Con. Rule 12³.

Taken from Chy. O. 537.

The husband of a married woman who is declared a lunatic, has no absolute right to be appointed her committee: Re Davy, 1892, 3 Ch. 38; 67 L. T. 180.

766. In the judgment or order directing the appointment of a receiver, committee of the person and estate of a lunatic, idiot, or person of unsound mind, or a guardian other than a guardian ad litem, in the absence of any provision therefor, (a) the Master shall fix the time or times in each year when the person appointed is to pass his accounts and pay his balances into Court; and in default of compliance with such direction, the person appointed, on the passing of his accounts, be disallowed any salary or compensation for his services, and may be charged with interest upon his balances. Con. Rule 12³.

Taken from Chy. O. 588.

(a) The words "in the absence of any provision therefor," were probably intended to be at the beginning of the Rule.

Where a receiver, who was appointed without a salary, performed divers extraordinary services in connection with his office which were not contemplated when he was appointed, he was allowed a reasonable compensation for such extraordinary services: Harris v. Ship, 76 L. T. 670.

A receiver appointed without salary, is entitled to be allowed in his accounts for premiums paid for the purpose of furnishing security: S. C., 1897, 2 Ch. 80; 76 L. T. 432.

Committees of lunatics to be appointed in same manner as receivers.

Master to appoint time for receivers, and cause committees to pass accounts where not fixed by Court.

Rule 767.

1. APPEALS FROM OFFICERS IN CHAMBERS.

Appeal from officers in Chambers.

767—(1 A person affected by a judgment, order or decision of the Master in Ordinary made or given under his jurisdiction in Chambers, or of the Master in Chambers, a Local Judge, or a Local Master, or other officer in Chambers, may appeal therefrom to a Judge of the High Court in Chambers.

(2) The appeal may be made notwithstanding that the order or decision was in respect of a proceeding or matter as to which the officer had jurisdiction only by consent:

(3) The appeal shall be by motion, on notice served within four days and returnable within ten days after the decision complained of, or within such further time as may be allowed by a Judge of the High Court or by the officer whose decision is complained of:

(4) The Deputy Clerk of the Crown, Deputy or Local Registrar shall, on præcipe, transmit to the Central Office all documents filed in his office required on the appeal;

(5) The appeal shall not be a stay of proceedings unless ^{Rule 767.} ordered by a Judge of the High Court or by the officer whose decision is complained of. Con. Rule 816, amended by Rules of 1 Jan., 1896, 1490; 58 V. c. 12, s. 71 and 59 V. c. 18, s. 3.

(6) Where the judgment, order, or decision is made or given in vacation, a person affected thereby may, subject to the provisions of Rule 114, appeal therefrom during vacation to the Vacation Judge, or may appeal after vacation in the same manner and within the same time as if the judgment, order, or decision had been made on the next day after vacation. New.

See former Rule 846, and compare Eng. (1883) R. 410.

This Rule only relates to orders made in Chambers. It does not cover or include Masters' reports, or certificates, as to which, see Rule 769.

This Rule governs appeals from the Master in Ordinary when acting in Chambers, under Rule 128; and from the Master in Chambers, and the Local Judges, and Local Masters, when acting under Rules 42, 45 and 49; Lowson v. Canada Farmers, etc., 9 P. R. 188, or Rule 956; Stroud Sun Oil Co., 7 O. L. R. 204; 8 O. L. R. 748.

As to appeals from a Local Judge when acting under Rule 47, see Rule 48.

Appeals from a Judge in Chambers to a Divisional Court are governed by Rule 777.

Appeals from orders made by the Judge of the District Court of Thunder Bay and Rainy River, in Chambers, may be brought as if the action were in the High Court, wherever the cause of action is beyond the jurisdiction of a County Court; see R. S. O. c. 100, s. 15 (O.), and consequently appeals in such cases must be brought in the manner prescribed by this Rule.

In High Court actions, appeals from the Stipendiary Magistrate of Rainy River may be brought within double the time allowed by this Rule; see R. S. O. c. 100, s. 13 (3).

Where a Judge or judicial officer decides a matter as a persona designata, there appears to be no right of appeal under this Rule; Houie v. Morhead, 1903, 2 K. B. 353; Re King, 18 P. R. 365, save as provided by R. S. O. c. 76, s. 6; as amended by 63 Vict. c. 17, s. 14.

There is no power to vary or discharge an order except in the manner provided by the Act, or Rules e.g. by way of appeal or by motion under Rule 355, or 642; see Att.-Gen. v. Llewellyn, 58 L. T. 367; and Re Adam Epton, Limited, 35 Ch. D., at p. 301; Hood-Barrs v. Cathart, 72 L. T. 184, and notes preceding Rule 640; or by an action; see Ainsworth v. Wilding, 1896 1 Ch. 673.

An appeal cannot be had direct to a Divisional Court from the Master, Local Judge, or other officer acting in Chambers. Ball v. Catheurt, 16 Ont. 525.

Any person affected by an order may appeal, and therefore an appeal lies from an ex parte order by a person affected thereby; Wigle v. Harris, 9 P. R. 276; G. T. Ry. Co. v. Ont. & Que. Ry. Co.

Rule 767. 9 P. R. 420; but an application to set aside an order, made ex parte, and without knowledge of the facts, is not an appeal, and not within this Rule: Hughes v. Field, 1 C. L. T. 702; and see Re Central Bank, 24 Ont. App. 470; and Rule 358.

A consent order of an officer in Chambers is within sec. 72 of the Jud. Act, and no appeal lies from it without leave: Re Solicitor, 18 C. L. T. 224, 261.

Discretionary orders.

The Master's discretion is open to review on an appeal under this Rule: Christie v. Conway, 9 P. R. 529; Abell v. Morrison, 14 P. R. 210; but to be interfered with, it must be shewn to be clearly wrong: Adamson v. Adamson, 12 P. R. 471; Odell v. Mulholland, 14 P. R. 180.

Time for appealing.

The time for appealing runs from the pronouncing of the order, and not from the day upon which it was issued: Miller v. Stillwood, 21 C. L. J. 98, following Dayer v. Robertson, 9 P. R. 78. The contrary was at one time decided in McNeil v. McGregor, 3 C. L. T. 300; see Heally v. Newton, 19 Ch. D. 326; Gibb v. Murphy, 2 Chy. Ch. 132; see also Lowson v. Canada Farmers, etc., 9 P. R. 185.

Where the time expires on a Sunday or holiday, Rule 345 applies; see that Rule and Taylor v. Jones, 45 L. J. C. P. 110.

An appeal from a decision of a Master refusing to rescind a former order was held tantamount to an appeal from the first order, and dismissed as too late under this Rule: Jamieson v. Prince Albert Colonization Co., 11 P. R. 115.

The notice of motion by way of appeal must be served within four days, and be made returnable within the ten days; see Hell v. N. Staffordshire Ry. Co., 5 Q. B. D. 205.

Extending time for appealing

Orders extending the time should not be made ex parte: Hamilton v. Tice, 9 P. R. 448, and cannot be made by the Master in Chambers in the case of an appeal from an officer other than himself: Re Davies & York, 10 C. L. T. 186.

It has been held that leave to serve short notice of appeal should not be obtained from the Master in Chambers; he has no power to shorten the time on a motion not returnable before himself: Duncan v. Boulton, 3 C. L. T. 501; and see 1 C. L. T. 614, 645.

Where an order was made on Friday, so that two clear days' notice of appeal could not be given for the next Chamber day (Monday), application was made ex parte within four days, for leave to bring on the appeal on the following Thursday, but leave was given instead for the following Monday, and no order was taken out, extending the time. It was held not an application for an extension of time, and an objection that the appeal could not be heard as eight days from the decision (the time named under the original Rule), had expired, was overruled: Standard Bank v. Wittis, 10 P. R. 159. Owing to the longer time allowed by the present Rule (viz., 10 days) the difficulty is not now likely to arise.

The time was extended where there was the intention to appeal, but by misapprehension of the new practice, the time was allowed to pass: Dayer v. Robertson, 9 P. R. 78; also where it was supposed that Christmas vacation did not count in computing the time: Stewart v. Leys, 9 P. R. 200. But in Snowdon v. Huntington, 12 P. R. 1, notice of appeal given Dec. 24 for Jan. 10, the first day after vacation when a Judge sat in Chambers, was held not good notice. The notice should have been given for a day within the eight (now ten) days, and then an extension of the time for bringing on the appeal should have been applied for, on an ex parte application Rule 767, as of course: see also Wallingford v. Mutual Soc., 5 App. Cas. 685; and Blaylock v. McFarlane, 15 C. L. J. 137; Lewis v. Tulbot St., etc., 10 P. R. 15; Lowson v. Canada Farmers, etc., 9 P. R. 185; Carter v. Stabbs, 6 Q. B. D. 116; Gibbons v. London Financial Association, 4 C. P. D. 263. But as to orders made in vacation, see now Rule 767, clause (6).

An application to enlarge the time should in general be made within the ten days: Stirling v. DuBarry, 5 Q. B. D. 67.

Neglect to set down an appeal through forgetfulness of the appellant's solicitors' clerk, has been held not sufficient reason for extending the time for appealing from an order refusing to dismiss an action for want of prosecution: Dunnard v. McLeod, 8 P. R. 343.

Where, on an application in Chambers, a party omitted to take an objection to the jurisdiction to make the order applied for in Chambers, he was held not entitled to raise the objection afterward on motion to discharge the order: Horton v. Bosson, 1899, W. N. 23, 38.

A right to appeal may be waived by acting upon the order appealed from: International Wrecking Co. v. Lobb, 12 P. R. 207; Videau v. Westover, 18 C. L. T. 83; 29 Ont. 1, Boulton v. Boulton, 5 O. W. R. 177; or otherwise recognizing it, e.g., by obtaining an extension of time for complying with it: Pierce v. Palmer, 12 P. R. 308, where a motion by defendant to set aside a judgment for irregularity was refused, but defendant was let in to defend on terms, and he was held to have waived the right to appeal from the refusal to set aside the judgment by obtaining an extension of the time for compliance with the terms. See also Re Smart, 12 P. R. at p. 638; Boyle v. Sacker, 39 Ch. D. 249; and Phillips v. Belleville, infra.

But mere payment of money as directed by a judgment: Phillips v. Belleville, 6 O. W. R. 129; and the mere compliance with the terms of an order by the party to whom an indulgence or relief is granted on terms: Anthony v. Blain, 5 O. L. R. 48; do not operate as a waiver of the right to appeal from the judgment or order; and see Duffy v. Donoran, 14 P. R. 159.

Under the English Indicture Act an appeal is in all cases a rehearing, and fresh facts may be gone into: Anon., per Lush, J., 60 L. T. Jour. 67; 1 Charl. Ch. Ca. 128. "Every appeal is now a rehearing, and therefore fresh affidavits may be used on all appeals from a Master to a Judge in Chambers": per Quain, J., Anon., W. N. 1875, 250; 1 Charl. Ch. Ca. 129. "This ruling has been held by other Judges and confirmed by the Court" (Coe's Practice in the Judge's Chambers, p. 6). This would not seem to be the case in Ontario. Fresh evidence may be given by leave only under Rule 498; see Taylor v. Sisters, etc., of Ottawa, 11 P. R. 496. In Re Neath Harbour, etc., Works, 20 Sol. Jour. 26, it was said that each case must in this respect depend upon its own circumstances; fresh evidence was there allowed, also in Robinson v. Bradshaw, 32 W. R. 95.

In Re Munns v. Longden, 32 W. R. 675; 50 L. T. 356, it was held that the Court will not receive further evidence on a motion to discharge an order made in Chambers, where the motion has been fully argued and disposed of; see also notes to Rule 498.

Where it is intended to apply for leave to use fresh affidavits on documentary evidence, notice should be given to the opposite party that such relief will be applied for on the hearing of the appeal:

Fresh evidence on appeals.

Rules Hastie v. Hastie, 1 Ch. D. 562; see Bigby v. Dickinson, 4 Ch. D. 24; 768, 769, and Dicks v. Brooks, 13 Ch. D. 654.

Costs of affidavits in answer to fresh affidavits were refused where the fresh affidavits were not allowed to be read: Mitchell v. Condy, W. N. 1881, 83.

Appeals not to be set down.

768. Appeals in Chambers shall be heard as motions without being set down and shall be argued by Counsel or Solicitor. Rules 13 June, 1890, 1266. Rules of 1 Jan., 1896, 1457.

2. APPEALS FROM MASTERS AND REFEREES.

Interpretation of
"report or certificate."

768a. The words "report or certificate" in Rules 769 and 771 shall include every order made by the Master in Ordinary, a Local Master, or an Official Referee, except an order made under the authority of Rule 767. Rule 1264, 20 June, 1904.

This Rule would not seem to apply to orders made by Masters under Rule 650; see Rules 660, 661.

Report
when absolute.

769. Every report or certificate of a Master shall be filed and shall become absolute at the expiration of fourteen days from the date of serving of notice of filing the same unless notice of appeal is served within that time. Con. Rule 848, amended.

Taken from Chy. O. 252.

The filing is a prerequisite to the report or certificate's becoming absolute: Re Sup. Legion of Select Knights of Canada, 29 Ont. 708.

This Rule applies both to appeals, and cross-appeals from reports: Stewart v. Ferguson, 19 P. R. 21; notice of appeal given by one party, does not prevent the report becoming absolute as against another party: Id.

As to appeals from Masters under the Dominion Winding up Act, see 52 Vict. c. 32, s. 20, (D.); Re Central Bank, 30 Ont. 320; Re Farmers' Loan & S. Co., 30 Ont. 337; formerly appeals from the Master in Ordinary under this Act, lay to a Divisional Court, but since the change effected by 3 Ed. vii. c. 8, s. 10, and Rule 1264, the appeal in such cases would appear now to lie to a Judge in Court as in other cases of appeals from reports.

Reports and certificates.—As to the reports and certificates which are the subjects of appeal, see notes to Rule 687, supra, p. 941. By Rule 768a orders (with certain exceptions) are also included under the words "report" or "certificate."

This Rule applies to the report or certificate of a Referee; see Freeborn v. Vandusen, 15 P. R. 261; Colchester v. Valod, 24 S. C. R. and R. S. O. c. 62, ss. 31, 33 and Rule 653. It is also considered to apply to all reports including those of Commissioners to measure dower under R. S. O. c. 67, s. 9. Rule 769.

This and the two following Rules apply only to appeals from reports, and certificates. Where Local Masters are exercising jurisdiction in Chambers, under Rule 49, appeals from their decisions are regulated by Rule 767.

Where a reference was directed by consent to a Local Registrar with all the powers of a Master, it was held that his report was appealable in the same manner as a Master's report: Kennedy v. Haddon, 19 Ont. 210.

The certificate of a Taxing officer of the result of a taxation between solicitor and client is a report, and only appealable in the manner pointed out in Rules 769, 771: see Rule 773.

As to appeals under the Act for simplifying procedure for enforcing Mechanics' Liens, see R. S. O. c. 153, s. 39: that section, it will be observed, seems only to provide for appeals from the judgment in the action; no provision is made by the Act for appeals from interlocutory orders or reports in such actions.

Reports which require Confirmation.—All reports and certificates, which are the subject of appeal, are, as a general rule, required to be confirmed before they can be acted on: Scott v. Liversay, 2 Sim. & S. 300; or any application can be made to the Court founded thereon: Hayes v. Hayes, 8 P. R. 546; Nichols v. McDonald, 6 Gr. 394; Green v. Ingham, 58 L. T. 486. Thus a report on sale, where the sale proved abortive, requires confirmation before it can be acted on: Robert v. Coughell, 6 O. L. R. 381. There are, however, some reports, and certificates, which may be acted upon without confirmation on their being filed: see Re Yaggie, 1 Chy. Ch. 108. Reports which require confirmation, may be confirmed by special order before the expiration of the time limited for appealing therefrom, upon consent of all parties interested. An order confirming a report may be made by the Master in Chambers.

Reports which do not require to be Confirmed.—All reports, or certificates, of mere calculation: Lewis v. Tulbot St. Road Co., 10 P. R. 15; Bocck v. Bocck, 16 P. R. 213; and of matters of opinion, which do not require any further order from the Court to give effect to, or to sanction them—except reports on sales—do not require confirmation. Under this head are included certificates of compliance, or non-compliance, with any order of the Master, or of the Court (but not certificates of insufficient compliance; e.g. that accounts filed are insufficient in substance and form: Foster v. Morden, 9 P. R. 70); certificates of scandal, or impertinence, in pleadings, or affidavits, referred to the Master; reports appointing trustees; and appointments of receivers, committees, or guardians, under Rule 763; but see Finkle v. Date, 7 P. R. 413; Foster v. Morden, supra; reports on passing the accounts of receivers, or committees; reports computing subsequent interest, or of apportionment of a fund on principles and in proportions, declared by the Court; reports approving of conveyances; and other certificates and reports of a like description: see Smith's Pr., 2nd ed., Vol. 11., 357-8.

No Appeal after Confirmation without Leave.—After a report requiring confirmation has been confirmed, no appeal from it will be entertained without leave first given, on special application: Thomson v. Luke, 10 Gr. 281.

Rule 769. After the cause or matter has been heard on further directions, the Court has no power to permit an appeal from the report in which the order or judgment on further directions is founded; as Dingman v. Hall, 13 P. R. 232; 17 Ont. App. 398. The judgment or order on further directions must be first vacated.

Effect of confirmation.

Effect of Confirmation.—After confirmation, the parties are concluded by the report; yet the Court in its discretion may refuse to act upon it, and may refer the cause back to the Master, or require additional information to be furnished; Taylor v. Craven, 10 Gr. 488; Baldwin v. Crawford, 1 Gr. 202; Harrison v. McSheehan, 80 L. J. Jour. 79.

Clerical errors may be corrected notwithstanding.

Notwithstanding confirmation, clerical errors, and accidental slips, in a report may be corrected at any time upon motion in Chambers, without appeal; Merley v. Matthews, 12 Gr. 453; Krag v. Coonan, 10 Gr. 364; Watson v. Moore, 1 Chy. Cl. 266; and where the error was apparent on the face of the report, the application was granted ex parte; White v. Cartney, 1 Chy. Cl. 11. But although the error be apparent, it does not follow that the proper correction is apparent, and the motion therefore is usually required to be on notice or consent; Shannon v. Ottawa, 2 Chy. Cl. 12. Mistakes in a report, however, cannot be corrected by the Master mero motu, on any subsequent reference in the matter; Crooks v. Street, 1 Chy. Cl. 78; but on a reference back upon an appeal, when the Court enunciates a principle, which is applicable to other parties, and other points, that those expressly concerned in the appeal, it is the duty of the Master so to apply that principle in all cases to which it is applicable, in making his new report, even though it involve the readjustment of an account not appealed from; Denison v. Denison, 17 Gr. 306; and see Gilbert v. Jarvis, 20 Gr. 478.

Report stands confirmed as to matters not appealed.

Even though an appeal be laid, the report will stand confirmed as to matters not objected to by the appeal, and when the decision of the appeal does not affect; Denison v. Denison, 17 Gr. 308; Ross v. Perrault, 13 Gr. 206. And when the report is referred back, an appeal will not lie from the further report, as to matters disposed of by the first report, and not objected to on the first appeal; Ross v. Perrault, supra, or affected thereby; Denison v. Denison, 17 Gr. 308.

Waiver of objection that appeal is late.

Where notice of appeal is delivered, without leave, after a report is confirmed, the delivery of notice of cross-appeal is a waiver of the objection; Larkin v. Armstrong, 1 Chy. Cl. 31.

Report not to be dated before costs assessed.

The report should not be dated before the costs have been assessed, where revision is necessary; Waddell v. McColl, 14 Gr. 211. A party who, being entitled to notice, have had no notice, is entitled; Fuller v. McLean, 8 P. R. 529.

Confirmation of report.

Confirmation of Report.—A report requiring confirmation now becomes absolute at the expiration of fourteen days from the date of service of notice of filing, unless in the meantime notice of appeal is served; Rule 769. An application to extend the time for appealing from a report, even before confirmation, must be made on notice; as Hamilton v. Treed, 9 P. R. 418; as also an application for leave to appeal after the time has expired; Peterborough v. Irton, before Proffoot, J., Nov. 11th, 1883.

Special order confirming report, when made.

Where it is desired to confirm a report before the expiration of 14 days, a special application in Chambers may be made for that purpose, but such applications are granted only where all parties are itled to appeal consent: Patterson v. Gilbert, 12 P. R. 652, and at Rule 769, is considered undesirable that an officer should make an order confirming his own report: Id.

Filing Report.—A report before it can be acted on must be filed, filing and notice of filing must be given by the party filing it to the opposite party: Rule 634; and a report does not become absolute until notice of filing has been given (when necessary), and fourteen days have elapsed: In re Supreme Legion S. K. of C., 29 Ont. 708; but service of such notice on defendants who have not appeared in the action is unnecessary: Toronto General Trusts Corp. v. Craig, 2 O. L. R. 238. So also a report must be filed before an appeal will lie: Hanes v. Hanes, 8 P. R. 546. If it appoints a day for payment of money, it should be filed before the day for payment: Mills v. Baron, 2 Chy. Ch. 53, and confirmed, if it is a report requiring confirmation: Mountain v. Porter, 1 Chy. Ch. 207. No proceedings can properly be taken on a report until filed, either by the issue of process or otherwise: Hennes' Ord. 233; Jellitt v. Badoescu, 8 P. R. 387; even though the report or certificate be one not requiring confirmation: Id.; but such reports can be set aside immediately on filing; it is not necessary to wait fourteen days: Re Yeggin, 7 U. C. L. J. 293; 1 Chy. Ch. 168.

All reports are to be filed in the office where the proceedings were commenced: Rule 633; and see Rule 14.

Leave to Appeal after Confirmation.—After a report is confirmed, leave to appeal from it may be granted on motion in Chambers after confirmation. The application must be made on notice, or consent: Coxon v. McDaniel, 1 Chy. Ch. 23; Cade v. Newhall, 1 Chy. Ch. 200; Peterborough v. Irton, before Proudfoot, J., 11th November, 1883; all parties are entitled to notice even though they be in the same interest as the party seeking to appeal: Larkin v. Armstrong, 1 Chy. Ch. 31. Where leave has been granted ex parte, the objection to the order may be taken on the appeal coming on for argument: Peterborough v. Irton, supra. On such application it is necessary to account for the delay, and to show a prima facie ground of appeal: Dickson v. Arverp, 3 Chy. Ch. 222; Wong v. Wood, 13 U. C. L. J. 326; Carrie v. Brinkham, 6 P. R. 201; Dudley v. Beyer, 3 Chy. Ch. 81; Chad v. Hiners, 3 Chy. Ch. 320. It is not absolutely necessary that the grounds of the proposed appeal should be stated in the notice of motion for leave to appeal: Romanes v. Hines, 1 Chy. Ch. 363; but reasonable, and probable, grounds of appeal, must be shown by the applicant: Id., and a mere statement of the proposed grounds of appeal in the notice of motion will not suffice: De Blaquiere v. Armstrong, 3 U. C. L. J. 363; but costs unnecessarily incurred in making out a case on the merits were disallowed: Nash v. Glover, 6 P. R. 267.

The Master in Chambers has jurisdiction to entertain the application: Russell v. Beuchen, 3 Chy. Ch. 488; Sunderlight v. Lugs, 3 P. R. 200.

Leave to appeal was refused with costs, where it appeared that the object of the appeal, was to fix executors with interest upon a sum which they had invested, and upon which a loss had been incurred: Charles v. McElashan, 2 Chy. Ch. 218; so also where the matter had been heard on further directions, and an order pronounced founded on the report: Re Diagon and Hall, 13 P. R. 232.

But leave was granted where time was allowed to elapse through the mistake of the solicitor in supposing that his clients would be secured to the benefit of the appeal of their co-defendants: Re

What necessary to account for the delay, and to show a prima facie ground of appeal.

Master in Chambers has jurisdiction to entertain the application.

Rule 769. Gabourie, Casey v. Gabourie, 12 P. R. 252; and see Steuwright v. Leys, 9 P. R. 200; but see Blackstock v. McFarlane, 15 C. L. J. 137.
See also notes to Rule 353.

Time for
appeal.

Time for Appealing.—An appeal from any report, ruling, or other determination, of any Master, other than the Master in Ordinary, must now be brought on for argument, before a Judge in Court, within one month from the date of the notice of filing of such report or certificate: Rule 769,—or within such further time as a Judge may think proper; the vacations are excluded from the computation of the month; Rule 352. An appeal from a ruling of a Master, must be brought within the same time as is allowed for appealing from a report; Mitchell v. Mitchell, 22 Gr. 23; formerly it had to be brought within one month from the date of the ruling, irrespective of the date of the certificate of such ruling; Macdonald v. Gray, 12 P. R. 431; but quære if that is now the case, though it is obvious that it may be inconvenient in practice if it is not.

In Markle v. Ross, 13 P. R. 135, it was held under the then Consolidated Rules that there could be no appeal to a Judge in Chambers from a ruling of a Master because the provision of Chy. O. 642 had not been included in the Consolidated Rules; and that an appeal only lay from a report, by which was possibly meant a general report. It is, however, to be observed that unless a new meaning is to be given to the words "report" and "certificate" from that which they possessed under the former practice, there is nothing in the present Consolidated Rules which prevents an appeal from a Master's ruling, as in the case of an appeal from a report, because, as we have already seen, a certificate of a Master is a report; see Rule 687, note; and a Master's certificate of his ruling is therefore a "separate report," and as such it would seem to be appealable in the same way as any other report. See also Re Crothers, 15 P. R. 92; and Re Molphy, 17 P. R. 247.

Scumble, that where it is not shewn that a report has been filed, or that notice thereof has been served, an objection that an appeal therefrom is not in time cannot prevail; Re McLellan & Chinguacousy, 18 P. R. 216.

Notice of appeal and setting down for argument.

Notice of Appeal and Setting Down for Argument.—Seven clear days notice of the appeal, stating the grounds of appeal, must be given to the opposite party; Rule 771; Hoyes v. Hoyes, 8 P. R. 546; and such notice must be returnable within one calendar month from the date of service of notice of filing the report or certificate; Rule 771 (1); and the appeal must be set down for argument at latest the day before that on which the notice is returnable; Id.

Such appeals from Local Masters are to be heard on Monday, Wednesday or Thursday; see Rule 98.

Appeals from a Master's certificate of taxation are an exception to the usual rule, and must be brought before a Judge in Chambers; see Rules 774-6.

Where an appeal was set down for a dies non, but was placed in the Clerk in the paper for the next regular sitting of the Court, it was held not to be irregularly set down; McCue v. Pontas, 11 P. R. 328.

Report must be first filed.

Before notice of an appeal is given the report must be filed, and notice of filing served on the opposite party; Rule 694; and see Hoyes v. Hoyes, 8 P. R. 546.

The notice of appeal should set out verbatim the grounds upon which the appeal is brought, and should include all the grounds of objection intended to be urged: Rules 770, 771; objections cannot be raised on an appeal from a further report, made in pursuance of an order to the Master to review his report, which might have been taken, but were not, on the appeal from the original report: Ross v. Perrault, 13 Gr. 206.

Who Entitled to Appeal.—Any person having a substantial interest in the question involved in an appeal, is entitled to appeal; but persons having no interest in the subject of appeal, cannot appeal, even though the report be erroneous: Thompson v. Luke, 10 Gr. 281; McCargar v. McKinnon, 17 Gr. 525; neither will an appeal lie from a Master's ruling, or direction, by a party who has complied with it, even though it be to escape commitment for disobedience: Mitchell v. Mitchell, 22 Gr. at p. 24; neither will an appeal lie, where the amount involved is of trifling amount, e.g., where not more than $10 was in question, an appeal was dismissed: McQueen v. McQueen, 2 Ch. Ch. 344.

An appeal may also be brought, before the Master has made his report, from his ruling as to the admissibility of evidence: McDonald v. Wright, 12 Gr. 552; or upon his finding as to the principle upon which an account should be taken: see Court v. Holland, 20 Gr. 19; or by a creditor from the Master's ruling, disallowing his claim: Wood v. Brett, 9 Gr. 452; and he need not wait for a general report, but may at once obtain a certificate of disallowance and appeal therefrom: Re Clagett, Fordham v. Clagett, 20 Ch. D. 637; 46 L. T. 70.

Where a cause had been referred to a Master as an arbitrator, by a consent decree, which provided that "either party should be at liberty to appeal against the award in the same manner and to the same extent that a report may be appealed from," it was held nevertheless, that an appeal from the award could not be entertained: Burns v. Chamberlin, 25 Gr. 148; and see Lemay v. McIsaac, 16 Ont. App. 348; but see R. S. O. c. 62, s. 14. Where the order directing the reference was made without jurisdiction, the Court refused to entertain any appeal from a report made thereunder: Queen v. Smith, 7 P. R. 429; Brown v. Dollard, 6 P. R. 113.

Hearing of Appeal.—Appeals from the Master's ruling as to the regularity of proceedings in his office, in point of form, will not be readily allowed, even though the Court be of opinion that he might have properly taken an opposite view: Sculthorpe v. Burn, 12 Gr. 427.

On matters of fact decided by the Master who has had the witnesses before him, the Judge will differ from the Master with great hesitation, and only when it is manifest that he has fallen into error: Coldwell v. Hall, 9 Gr. at p. 115; and the Judge will not in general interfere with the decision of the Master as to the weight of evidence, nor as to the relative creditability of witnesses whose evidence has been taken before him, vide cor.: Dag v. Brown, 18 Gr. 681; Haddell v. Smyth, 3 Ch. Ch. 412; but see McArthur v. Prittie, 20 Gr. 500; Coghlan v. Cumberland, 1898, 1 Ch. 704. But if it can be shown that there is not only a balance of direct testimony, but also corroborative circumstances pointing strongly against the Master's conclusion, the Judge on appeal may review the evidence, and reverse his finding on a question of fact: Chard v. Meyers, 19 Gr. 358; Armstrong v. Gage, 25 Gr. 1; Morrison v. Robinson, 19 Gr. 480.

Rule 769. Where the Master determines the question without seeing the witnesses, the Judge will, in such a case, be less trammelled by the Master's finding, and will dispose of the question upon his own judgment as to the weight of evidence; Fauccett v. Barnett, 27 Gr. 114.

Grounds of appeal to be recited in order.

Order on Appeal.—The order on appeal should always recite and state in substance the grounds of the appeal which have been allowed. (See Downey v. Roof, 6 P. R. 89, as modified by the directions of the Court, given to the Registrars 6th October, 1893), and where a reference back is ordered as to any ground of appeal, that ground is to be set forth in the order; Id.

Variation of report.

Where the report is varied, it is not proper to make any actual alteration in the original; Rule 315; Fox v. Bearblock, 45 L. T. 460; 17 Ch. D. 420; 46 L. T. 145; nor where the alteration is simple, need it be referred back to the Master to alter; Tetter v. St. John, 10 Gr. 85, the order on the appeal specifying the alteration made being sufficient; Id.

Where the report is referred back, and it is not intended that further evidence should be received, the order must contain a direction to that effect; Morley v. Matthews, 12 Gr. 453; 3 C. L. 3. 21.

Evidence back, further evidence on, when receivable.

Reference Back.—Where a report is referred back, the Master is at liberty, as of course, to receive further evidence, unless the Judge otherwise orders, or the reference back is expressed to be for a purpose on which further evidence could not be material; Morley v. Matthews, 12 Gr. 453; see also Imp. Trusts Co. v. New York Security Co., 5 O. W. R. 641. Where the reference back is to ascertain a particular fact, the Master cannot open other matters in his report not objected to on appeal; Williams v. Haun, 10 Gr. 553. Nor on a reference back can the Master entertain a claim not previously made before him, unless specially ordered so to do; Romance v. Hems, 22 Gr. 493.

Matters not objected to on first appeal.

When on an appeal from a Master's report a reference back to review the report is ordered, the appellant cannot appeal from the further report as to matters disposed of by the first report, and not objected to on the first appeal; Ross v. Perrault, 13 Gr. 206.

Costs of appeal from reports, how awarded.

Costs of Appeals from Masters' Reports. — When some grounds of appeal are allowed with costs, and others disallowed with costs, the appellant is entitled to all the costs of the appeal that are exclusively applicable to the objections allowed, and to a proportionate share of those costs common to all the objections, according to the number of really distinct grounds of appeal on which he succeeds; and the same rule applies to the costs of a respondent; Bank of Montreal v. Ryan, 13 Gr. 204; Trinity College v. Hill, 8 Ont. 286. Sometimes, instead of giving costs to each party of so much of the appeal as to which he succeeds, the general costs of the appeal are awarded to one of the parties, subject to the deduction of a proportionate part of the gross amount, in respect of the partial success of the other party. Thus, where there were four distinct grounds of appeal embraced in eleven objections, of which objections only two were allowed, the Court gave the general costs of the appeal to the respondent, deducting therefrom one-fourth in respect of the partial success of the appellant; Ferguson v. Frontenac, 21 Gr. 188.

General rule is that costs follow the event.

In the disposition of the costs of appeals from Master's reports, the Judges will probably continue to follow the rules of the Court of Chancery. The general rule is, that the costs should follow the event of the appeal; Downey v. Roof, 6 P. R. 89; Huntington v. Van Brocklin, 8 Gr. 421; and the word "even" is to be understood distributively: Bank of Montreal v. Ryan, 13 Gr. 204. But where the appeal fails on the principal point involved, and succeeds only as to a comparatively insignificant one, the whole costs of the appeal may be given to the respondent: Brownlee v. Cunningham, 13 Gr. 586. And where the Court is of opinion that the finding of the Master was a fit subject for discussion under the circumstances, although the appeal be dismissed, costs may be refused: Secord v. Terryberry, 14 Gr. 172, and costs have also been refused of a successful appeal, where the report was defective, and the solicitors appeared to have been negligent: Clonster v. McLean, 10 Gr. 556.

Where an appeal was dismissed on a ground raised for the first time on the appeal, and not adjudicated upon by the Master, the Court refused costs: Howard v. Wolfenden, 14 Gr. 188; McDonald v. Wright, ib., 284, and the same rule applies where the appeal is successful on a ground not taken before the Master: Goddard v. Jeffries, 46 L. T. 304; see also cases, p. 1051. Where an appeal by an executrix was allowed without costs, on the hearing on further directions, the Court refused to order costs of the appellant to be paid out of the estate: Storg v. Dunlop, 13 Gr. 375. Where the appeal was unnecessary, and the question raised thereby could have been disposed of on motion in Chambers, no costs were given: Fouchier v. St. Louis, 13 P. R. 318.

770. (Repealed by Rule 126½, 18 June, 1904.)

771. —(1) A notice of appeal from the report or certificate of a Master to which Rule 770 does not apply, or of an Official Referee, shall be a 7 clear days' notice, setting out the grounds of appeal, and shall be returnable within one month from the date of service of notice of filing of the report or certificate, unless otherwise ordered:

See Chy. O. 612.

(2) The appeal shall be set down for argument before a Judge in Court at latest the day before the day on which the motion is returnable. Con. Rules, 819-859, amended. See Rules of 1 Jan., 1896, 1492; see 59 V. c. 18, s. 3.

As to the time for appealing, see notes to Rule 760, p. 1008.

As to whether appeals now lie from a ruling of a Master, see Markle v. Ross, and note thereon in the notes to Rule 760, p. 1008.

A Divisional Court has no power to hear an appeal from a Local Master's report, the appeal is to a single Judge: Clarke v. Jamieson, 9 C. L. T. 97; not even, it would seem, by consent; see In re Wilson, 16 P. R. 150; sed vide, Jud. Act, s. 67 (f).

On an appeal the Court will only recognize the note of the Master, or a certificate from him, as evidence of what took place before him; affidavits are inadmissible: Spikes v. Spikes, 1897, 1 P. 396.

Rules

772-774.

Appeal from order of a Judge in Court on appeal from a Master.

772. An appeal shall lie to a Divisional Court [or to the Court of Appeal] from the judgment or order of a Judge in Court upon an appeal from the certificate or report of a Master or Official Referee in the same manner and subject to the same restrictions as in the case of other judgments or orders of a Judge in Court. New.

This Rule was introduced in consequence of the decision in Re Atolphy, 17 P. R. 247.

The words in brackets would seem to be affected by the provisions of 4 Ed. vii. c. 11 (O.). Under the Jud. Act as now consolidated and as amended by 4 Ed. vii. c. 11, s. 2, it is clear that an appeal from a decision of a Judge in Court, on an appeal from a Master's report or certificate, lies, of right, to a Divisional Court: see, 74 (10); and that whether any appeal can be taken to the Court of Appeal instead of to a Divisional Court depends upon the same considerations as in the case of any other judgment of a Judge in Court: see Jud. Act, s. 71a.

3. APPEALS FROM TAXATION.

Solicitor
and client taxations.

773. An appeal from the report or certificate of an officer to whom the taxation of solicitor's bill under R. 1184 to 1188 inclusive has been referred shall lie and may be brought in the same manner as in the case of a report of a Master. New.

See Rule 771.

This Rule and Rule 774 settle the differences of opinion expressed in previous decisions: see Re Robinson, 17 P. R. 137; Re Mearns, 17 P. R. 180; Re Crothers, 15 P. R. 33; Exchange Bank v. Newell, 10 P. R. 528; and make it clear that Rules 1182 and 1183 only apply in the case of party and party taxations.

Review of taxation by Judge on party and party
taxations.

774. In cases to which Rule 773 does not apply, a party dissatisfied with the certificate of a taxing officer may apply to a Judge in Chambers to review the taxation as to any item or part of an item, which has been objected to as provided by Rules 1182 and 1183; but the certificate of the taxing officer shall be final and conclusive as to all matters which have not been objected to in manner aforesaid. Con. Rule 851.

See Eng. 11883 R. 41.

See notes to Rule 773.

The Master in Chambers and officers having like powers have no jurisdiction to review taxations, except by consent: Rule 42 (1) c.

This Rule applies both to appeals from the Taxing Officers in Toronto, and from the Local Taxing Officers: Rule 87.

No appeal lies from the taxation under R. S. O. 1897, c. 121, of Rule 774, a mortgagee's costs of proceedings under a power of sale; Re Taulucon & Walker, 19 P. R. 216.

Discretion of Taxing Officer.—Where questions of taxation are in the Taxing Officer's discretion, his discretion will not be interfered with, unless it be manifest that he has failed to exercise it in a reasonable manner; The Aceru, 5 P. R. 118; Hargreaves v. Scott, 4 P. R. 21; Smith v. Wills, 34 W. R. 30; 53 L. T. 380; see also Boxwell v. Coaka, 36 Ch. D. 111; Re Hilliard and Royal Ins. Co., 12 P. R. 285; Gall v. Collins, 12 P. R. 413. Amongst such items placed by the tariff in his discretion, are instructions for motions, entries, attendances; McGinnon v. Clark, 9 P. R. 555; see also Tutnall v. Jansen, 3 C. P. D. 261. Matters in discretion of T. O.

The Taxing Officer's decision as to the number of counsel will not be interfered with where it is merely the officer's discretion that is in question, and not the correctness of his judgment in following any supposed rule of decision; Wheeler v. Frazer, 11 Times, 140; so his decision as to the amount of counsel's fees, will not be interfered with, unless a gross mistake is made; Brown v. Serrell, 16 Ch. D. 517; Talbot v. Poole, 15 P. R. 274; see also Fee v. Tarrant & Vipsing Ry., 7 P. R. 157; Betts v. Chance, L. R. 7 Ch. 513; Re Bitham & Co., 4 C. L. T. 251; Petrie v. Gulph, etc., 10 P. R. 600; Re Robinson, 16 P. R. 123; Rondal v. Monetary Times, 18 P. R. 141; Re Solicitors, 4 O. W. R. 302. The Court will slowly and reluctantly enter into all questions of quantum merely; Smith v. Butler, L. R. 19 Eq. 478; Morgan and Wurtzburg on Costs, 480; and generally on appeals from a Taxing Officer the Court will not interfere with his discretion as to quantum and qualities of fees, and this rule covers any question of distribution or allotment of charges among different cases or branches of a case; Canace v. N. American Contracting Co., 13 P. R. 433; see also per Barton, J.A., in Re Robinson, 17 P. R. 146; and Oliver v. Robins, 43 W. R. 137; but an appeal respecting only $5.32 was entertained where a question of principle was involved; Moak v. Benjamin, 13 P. R. 376.

Certificate.—A memorandum at the foot of the bill shewing the result, upon which execution has issued, was held to be a sufficient certificate, when filed in the proper office; McCallum v. McCallum, 11 P. R. 179; but an informal certificate written at the end of the bill, shewing that it was fixed at so much, initialed by the Taxing Officer, and marked filed in his office, is insufficient; Gall v. Collins, 12 P. R. 413. It must be filed in the proper office for filing a report; see Langtry v. Dumoulin, 10 P. R. 44.

Practice on Appeals.—An appeal from a taxation of costs in Appeal is to be made to a Judge of the High Court, Petrie v. Gulph, etc., 10 P. R. 600; Holmes v. Ready, 18 P. R. 79.

Two clear days' notice of appeal is sufficient; McCallum v. McCallum, supra.

An appeal will not be allowed as to any items not included in the objections brought in under Rules 1182 and 1183; Platt v. G. T. Ry. Co., 12 P. R. 273; and where no objections have been brought in under Rules 1182 and 1183, the appeal will be dismissed; Sanderson v. Huntington, 12 P. R. 1; Caneran v. Caneran, 9 C. L. T. 190; see also Hexter v. Hexter, 34 Ch. D. 607; Re Norton, 57 L. T. 648; Shenaboy v. Sanders, 38 W. R. 117; except where the whole principle or method of taxation is the subject of the appeal; see Clark v. Virgo, 17 P. R. 260, and notes to Rule 1182.

Rules

775, 776. In Quay v. Quay, 11 P. R. 258, it was held to be a convenient practice (which was for some time followed), on an appeal from a Local Officer as to numerous items, or on the ground of general exorbitancy, to refer the whole bill to the Taxing Officer in Toronto; and where this was done no costs of the revision and appeal were usually allowed, unless substantially entire success was with one party or the other; Platt v. G. T. Ry. Co., 12 P. R. 273; and where a taxing officer reported that the respondent should have had more allowed to him than had been taxed, he was not allowed the increased amount, as he had not appealed, but the appeal was dismissed; Loomis v. Pearshall, 12 C. L. T. R. 10; but this mode of procedure has been held by a Divisional Court to be not warranted by the Rules, and no doubt it will no longer be followed; Campbell v. Baker, 11 O. L. R. 291. The Judge in Chambers before whom an appeal is brought may take the opinion of an officer for his own information, but must himself determine the questions arising on the appeal; Id.

An appeal lies to the Divisional Court from an order of a Judge in Chambers on appeal from a Taxing Officer; Yalbot v. Poole, 15 P. R. 274.

Costs of Appeals in Drainage Cases.—In actions begun in the High Court, and referred to the Drainage Referee, where an order is made by an Appellate Court on the Referee's report for taxation and payment of costs, such costs are not within s. 106 of The Municipal Drainage Act (R. S. O. c. 226), but are to be taxed in the same manner, and to be subject to the same right of appeal as costs in an ordinary action; Crooks v. Ellice, 16 P. R. 553. See now, however, 1 Ed. vii. c. 39, s. 4, as to the procedure on claims arising under R. S. O. c. 226.

Time within which appeal to be brought on.

775. No appeal under Rule 774 shall lie unless a notice thereof is given within 4 days from the day of the date of the certificate, and the appeal brought on for argument within 10 days from the said day. Con. Rule 852, Rules 23 June, 1894, 1358.

This practice is similar to that on appeals from officers in Chambers; see note to Rule 767; except that there the time for appeal runs from the decision, here from the date of the certificate.

This Rule is in affirmance of what was held to be the practice in Stark v. Fisher, 11 P. R. 235; Ireland v. Pitcher, Id., 403.

The time runs from the date of the certificate of taxation, and not from the date of each ruling in the course of the taxation; Re O'Donohoe, 12 P. R. 612.

The time may be extended under Rule 353; Clark v. Virgo, 17 P. R. 260; by the Master in Chambers or officer having like jurisdiction, or by a Judge; Quay v. Quay, 11 P. R. 258.

Evidence thereon.

776. The appeal shall be heard by the Judge upon the evidence which was brought in before the taxing officer, unless otherwise ordered. Con. Rule 853.

Similar to the Eng. (1883) R. 42. See English Chancery Order 40, R. 36, Morgan Chy. Orders, 4th ed., 594.

Rule 777.

I. APPEALS FROM A JUDGE IN CHAMBERS.

777.—(1) A person affected by any judgment, order or decision of a Judge in Chambers may appeal therefrom to a Divisional Court, by motion, on notice served within 4 days and returnable within 7 days after the date of the judgment, order or decision, or within such further time as may be allowed by such Court or by a Judge of the High Court.

(2) The appeal shall not be a stay of proceedings unless so ordered by such Court or Judge.

(3) The appeal shall be set down at latest on the day before the day on which the motion is made returnable, and shall come on for hearing on the day on which the same is returnable or the first day thereafter upon which the Divisional Court sits. See Con. Rule 841, 59 V. c. 18, s. 3. Rules of 9 Jan., 1897, amended.

See Eug. (1883) R. 757.

This Rule applies only to appeals from a Judge in Chambers, not to appeals from the Master in Ordinary, the Master in Chambers, or Local Judges, or Local Masters. Appeals of the latter kind are governed by Rules 767, 770, 771; and see Louisa v. Canada Packers, etc., 9 P. R. 185.

An Interpleader order is not an exception. An appeal lies by any party affected by such an order; Rondot v. Manufacture Times, 10 P. R. 23.

The motion should be made returnable within seven days, "or so soon thereafter as the Court sits," and it has been held in England not to be sufficient to give notice of motion within that time; see For v. Wallis, 2 C. P. D. 45; see also Jackson v. Gaudier, 15 Gr. 425; Harris v. Meyers, 16 Gr. 117; Mellroy v. Hawke, 3 Chy. Cl. 195; Taylor v. Jones, 45 L. J. C. P. 110; Hewson v. Macdonald, 2 C. L. T. 348; McLaren v. Marks, 10 P. R. 451; Steadman v. Hakim, 22 Q. B. D. 10.

Notice of the appeal must be served two days or more before the return day named in it, and the motion must be set down, at latest, the day before the day on which it is returnable. The notice must also be served and made returnable as mentioned in clause (1). If a Divisional Court is to sit on the return day the appeal will be set down for that day; but if a Divisional Court is not to sit till after the return day, the appeal will be set down for the first day of the sittings.

As to the time of the sittings of the Divisional Court, see Jud. Act, sec. 139, and Rule 110.

An application for an extension of the time limited for appealing under this Rule must be made to the Divisional Court or a Judge of the High Court, not to the Master in Chambers or other officer having like jurisdiction; clause (1).

Rule 778. An order made at the Assizes on a motion referred from Chambers to change the venue, was held to be in Chambers. The Judge may treat the Court room as his Chambers if he chooses: Sarnia Agricultural Implement, etc., Co. v. Perdue, 11 P. R. 224.

Where the appellant neglects to set down his motion he is nevertheless liable to pay the respondent's costs of the motion: see Regan v. Armstrong, 13 P. R. 306; and see Rule 790 as to procedure for obtaining costs of an abandoned motion.

A solicitor knowing of a preliminary objection to an appeal which he intends to raise, ought, as a matter of professional courtesy, to inform his opponent, but the omission to do so is not a sufficient ground for depriving the respondent of the costs of the appeal. Ex p. Shead, 15 Q. B. D. 338, not following Re Spraght, 13 Q. B. D. 42 and Ex p. Blaise, 14 Q. B. D. 123.

The Court on appeal will, in general, not interfere on a question which is, by the practice, purely within the discretion of the Judge. McDonnell v. McKay, 2 Chy. Ch. 243; Neill v. Travellers' Ins. Co., 9 Ont. App. 54; and appeals from a Judge in Chambers made on appeal from the Master in Chambers on matters of pleading are not to be encouraged: see Dodge v. Smith, 1 O. L. R. 46; Bateman v. The Mail, 2 O. L. R. 416.

Judge as Persona Designata.—A Judge making an order under the Dominion Railway Act, 51 V. c. 29, s. 165, for payment out of compensation moneys acts not for the Court but as a persona designata, and no appeal lies to a Divisional Court from his order: Re Toronto H. & B. Ry. Co. and Hendrie, 17 P. R. 199; and see Hogg v. Marshhead, 1903, 2 K. R. 339.

As to appeals from orders of a Judge acting as a persona designata under an Ontario Statute, see R. S. O. c. 76, s. 6; Re King, 18 P. R. 365; 121 Vic. c. 17, s. 14.

5. MOTIONS AGAINST VERDICTS OR JUDGMENTS.

(i) Generally.

Setting aside judgment by default.

778. A verdict or judgment obtained where a party does not appear at the trial may be set aside by a Divisional Court or by a Judge in Court or by the Judge at the sittings, upon such terms as may seem just. Con. Rule 795.

Where a judgment was given at the trial for the defendant owing to the absence of the plaintiff, and an application to reinstate was refused by the Judge, it was held that the plaintiff might apply to the Divisional Court to set aside the judgment, and for a new trial. Wilson v. Irwin, 10 P. R. 598.

The regular appellate Court may have jurisdiction to hear an appeal from a judgment by default, such appeals are not encouraged. A party should apply to have the judgment set aside and the case retried: Finch v. Hadspeth, 29 Ch. D. 322; Armour v. Bate, 1891, 2 Q. B. 232.

Where a defendant was not represented at the trial of an action, Rule 779, because his solicitor was ignorant of the fact that the action had with others been transferred from one Judge of the Chancery Division to another, Fry, J., held that the solicitor had therein been guilty of gross negligence, and that the plaintiff could not be relieved. But it was held, on appeal, that the judgment must be set aside, on payment of the costs of the day, Jessel, M.R., observing: "Solicitors cannot any more than other men conduct their business without sometimes making slips; and where a solicitor watches the list, and happens to miss the case, in consequence of which it is taken in his absence, it is in accordance with justice, and with the course of practice, to restore the action to the paper on the terms of the party in default paying the costs of the day; which include all costs thrown away by reason of the trial becoming abortive"; Burgome v. Taylor, 9 Ch. D. 4.

Where the Court was satisfied that the absence of the defendant and his counsel was purely accidental, a judgment by default was set aside on payment of plaintiff's costs of hearing, including reasonable disbursements to counsel, and the costs of the application; Wolffe v. Hughes, 17 C. L. J. 427. On similar terms an action dismissed was restored to the paper, where, in consequence of the illness of the plaintiff's solicitor, the necessary arrangements were not made; Burch v. Williams, W. N. 1876, 168.

Where one counsel had been unavoidably detained by a railway accident, and the other had been prevented by indisposition from conducting the case (see Cockh v. Joyce, in Burgome v. Taylor, 9 Ch. D. 10), and where the defendant had personally been guilty of no negligence, though his solicitor had neglected to attend to the defence, and the defendant made an application within six days of his having heard that the trial had taken place, the Court granted an extension of time, to enable him to make application to set aside the judgment; Mitchell v. Wilson, 25 W. R. 380. So also where one side had trusted to a reasonable expectation of a settlement of the dispute; Night v. Clifford, 26 W. R. 363; 47 L. J. Chy. 544.

As to delay in applying, see May v. Head, W. N. 1880, 26; Wilkins v. Bedford, 35 L. T. 622; Webster v. Coal Consumers Co., 1 Chanc. (Court) 131; Attwood v. Chickster, 3 Q. B. 10, 722; King v. Sandemann, 38 L. T. 461, and notes to Rules 575 and 630.

779. A judgment of nonsuit shall, unless otherwise ^{Judgment of nonsuit.} directed, have the same effect as a judgment upon the merits for the defendant, but may be set aside on such terms as may seem just. Con. Rule 797.

Compare Eng. R. 1875, O. 41, r. 6, which was repealed by the Rules of 1883 and not re-enacted:

Formerly a judgment of non-suit was no bar to a fresh action for the same cause, but a non-suit is now the same as a judgment on the merits, and may be pleaded in bar to a fresh action for the same cause; Burater v. Dunne, 10 L. R. Ir. 380; and if the non-suit be reversed on appeal, the defendant is not entitled, as of right, to a new trial for the purpose of adducing evidence on his behalf, where the action is tried without a jury; Macdonald v. Worthington, 7 Ont. App. 531, 563 (as to which see Craig v. McKay, 8 O. L. R. 651); but where the action is tried by jury, scilicet, the defendant is so entitled; Raker v. The Grand Trunk Ry., 11 Ont. App. 68.

Rule 780.

This provision is not applicable to Division Courts under sec. 55, or sec. 312 of The Division Courts Act, (R. S. O. c. 60); Building & Loan Ass. v. Heimrod, 3 C. L. T. 361; Bank of Ottawa v. McLaughlin, 8 Ont. App. 543.

A plaintiff has no right to demand a non-suit, and he cannot discontinue at the trial without the leave of the Judge: Fox v. The Star, 1898, 1 Q. B. 636; 78 L. T. 311; 1900, A. C. 19; 81 L. T. 562.

The Judge at the trial has no power to give judgment of non-suit on the opening statement of counsel without hearing evidence, unless the plaintiff's counsel consents to that course: Fletcher v. London & N. W. Ry., 1892, 1 Q. B. 122; 65 L. T. 605; Isaac v. Evans, 16 Times, 489; 1899, W. N. 261; and see Argent v. Donigan, 8 Times, 432; and in actions for negligence the power of the Judge to non-suit on the ground of contributory negligence is restricted to cases where it is plain and indisputable that the injury of which the plaintiff complains would not have occurred but for his own negligence; where there is any dispute as to the facts, or to the inference from the facts, the case should be submitted to the jury: Servier v. Lowe, 32 Ont. 290; and the ruling of a Judge at the trial that there is no evidence in support of a particular issue may be reviewed on appeal: see McCord v. Cammell, 1896, A. C. 57.

A non-suit may be ordered, although there is some evidence adduced by the plaintiff, provided it be of such a character that the jury could not reasonably give a verdict in his favour: Hiddle v. National F. & M. Ins. Co., 1896, A. C. 372; Ryder v. Wombwell, L. R. 4 Ex. 38; e.g., where his witnesses established contributory negligence as above mentioned: Danger v. London St. Ry., 30 Ont. 493; Wakelin v. London & S. W. Ry., 12 A. C. 52; and see O'Hearn v. Port Arthur, 4 O. L. R. 209.

Where a defendant at the close of the plaintiff's case moves for a non-suit, and intimates that he will renew the motion at the close of the case, and then proceeds to call evidence until stopped by the Court, and a non-suit is entered, the defendant, in the event of a successful appeal from the non-suit, will be liable to pay the costs of the trial and appeal, notwithstanding that in deference to the Court he did not complete his evidence: Mills v. Hamilton St. Ry., 17 P. R. 74.

Motion for judgment where jury disagree.

780. If the jury disagree, and find no verdict, the Judge at, or after the trial may, notwithstanding, dismiss the action. Con. Rule 799.

Based upon R. S. O. 1877, c. 50, s. 290.

There is no Eng. R. to the same effect, but under Eng. (1883) R. 463 (corresponding to Ont. Rule 554), upon a disagreement of the jury judgment was directed to be entered for defendant, in Peters v. Perry, 10 Times, 366.

The Rule does not apply to every case of disagreement by a jury, but only to cases which may properly be withdrawn from the jury: Floor v. Michigan Centl. Ry., 30 Ont. 635; 27 A. R. 122.

See Bank of B. N. A. v. Eddy, in note to Rule 554; also Casey v. C. P. Ry. Co., 15 Ont. 574, where judgment was given for defendants, the plaintiff's own evidence shewing that the accident, the occasion of the damages claimed by him, was caused by his own negligence; and Gambell v. Heggie, 5 O. W. R. 746, an action for seduction, where Rule 781, the Judge was of opinion that there was no reasonable evidence upon which seduction only could be found by the jury, and that the evidence of the plaintiff's daughter, if believed, could only lead to the conclusion that the defendant had committed the offence of rape.

Where after the trial the plaintiff obtains leave to amend his statement of claim, so as to raise new issues, it is not competent for a Divisional Court to give judgment on the original pleadings under this Rule: Canadian Pacific Ry. Co. v. Cobban Mfg. Co., 22 S. C. R. 132.

The making of a motion under this Rule was held to stay the carrying of the case down to a second trial, where the motion was not heard because the notes of evidence were not ready in time: Schuhl v. Regenstadt, 9 C. L. T. 114.

781.—(1) Where the jury is directed to answer questions of fact, and answers some but not all of them, or the answers are conflicting, so that judgment cannot be entered on such findings, it shall not be necessary to move to set aside such findings, but the action may proceed as in the case of a disagreement of the jury. Where judgment cannot be entered on answers.

(2) Where the answers entitle a party to judgment as to some but not all of the causes of action, the Judge may direct judgment to be entered as to those of the causes of action as to which the findings are sufficient to entitle the party to judgment, and it shall not be necessary to move to set aside the findings as to other causes of action, but the action may, as to such last mentioned causes of action, proceed as in the case of a disagreement of the jury. New.

The first part of this Rule is intended to set at rest the question which led to a difference of opinion in Divisional Courts in the cases of Stevens v. Grout, 16 P. R. 210, and McDermott v. Grout, Ib., 215, and see Faulknor v. Clifford, 17 P. R. 363; Brown v. Defoe, 21 Ont. App. 133; and, in the case mentioned in the Rule, the action may therefore be taken down to trial again by a new notice of trial, as soon as it has been decided upon motion for judgment, at the trial or afterwards, or under Rule 780 or 781 (2), that judgment cannot be pronounced: see Moore v. G. T. Ry. Co., 5 O. W. R. 211.

This Rule will not enable the Court to direct a judgment to be entered contrary to the findings of a jury on any material question of fact. But, where the jury has found a fact entitling the defendant to a dismissal of the action, a new trial will not be granted merely because, notwithstanding such finding, the jury has also given a verdict for damages against such defendant: Kerry v. England, 1898, A. C. 742.

Under the preceding Rule 780 it would seem to be competent for the Court to dismiss the action, otherwise it must be tried again. A dismissal will, no doubt, only be ordered where the Court is satisfied that the plaintiff has made out no case. The Court would, however,

Rules not arrive at that conclusion on conflicting evidence: see notes to 782, 783. Rules 783, 615.

Motions for a new trial.

782 Where there has been a trial with a jury, an application for a new trial, whether made for that relief alone, or combined with, or as an alternative of, a motion under Rule 783, shall be made to a Divisional Court [or to the Court of Appeal]. New, as amended by Rule 1227.

Compare Eng. R. Dec., 1876, r. 5; Eng. (1883) R. 551 is different. The words in brackets were added by Rule 1227, 10 Dec., 1898; but it would seem that this Rule must be taken to be modified by 4 Ed. vic. c. 11, s. 2 (76a), and that a motion for a new trial cannot, at the option of the party moving, be made to the Court of Appeal in every case, but can only be made, by leave, in the cases mentioned in sec. 76a of the Jud. Act, supra. Ordinarily, the motion should be to the Divisional Court: Jud. Act, s. 67 (a).

Motions
against
judgment, not involving a new trial.

783.—(1) Where a judgment has been pronounced at or after a trial, a motion by way of appeal from such judgment and to set aside the same and to enter any other judgment may, without leave reserved, be made by a party:

(a) In actions tried without a jury;

(b) In actions tried with a jury, in the following cases:

1. Upon the ground that the judgment is wrong as directed to be entered upon the findings of the jury;
2. Upon the ground that notwithstanding the findings of the jury the applicant is entitled to judgment;
3. In any case to which Rule 782 does not apply;

(2) The motion or appeal in cases under this Rule may be made either to a Divisional Court of the High Court [or to the Court of Appeal.] See Rules 1st Jan., 1896, 1483.

As to the words in brackets, see note to Rule 782.

(3) The foregoing provisions of Rule 782 and of this Rule are not to restrict or affect the power of the Court of Appeal to direct a new trial in any appeal where such relief appears just and proper. Rule 1228, 10th Dec., 1898.

Compare Eng. (1883) R. 561.

Where the Judge at the trial does not pronounce a judgment, but orders the case to stand over to add parties, either party, or both, may appeal from his decision to a Divisional Court: Munro v. Toronto Ry., 1 O. L. R. 36; and consent to the Court's giving judgment on the merits: Payne v. Caughell, 24 Ont. App. 556.

The party against whom a judgment is given in a jury action has Rule 783. always to consider, in moving against it, whether his complaint is as to the findings of fact, and this consideration will determine whether his remedy is to move for a new trial, or for such judgment as may be the proper one. Jury cases.

Rule 782 relates to motions for a new trial. The present Rule 783 relates to motions only incidentally involving a new trial, and primarily being to have the judgment pronounced at the trial set aside and a different judgment entered. Such a motion may be made to a Divisional Court; see, 74 (11); but in cases within sec. 76*a* it may, by leave, be made to the Court of Appeal.

Jury Actions.—In jury actions a motion for a new trial is proper where the jury has made an error which the applicant is entitled to complain of, or where the Judge has prevented the facts from being properly brought forward, such as by misdirection, rejection of evidence, non-suiting or the plaintiff, etc. In such cases the objection is not to the conclusions of the Judge from the findings, and his consequent entry of judgment upon them; but the objection is to the correctness of the findings themselves; for instance, where the Judge misdirects the jury: Hamilton v. Johnson, 5 Q. B. D. 263, 266; or non-suits the plaintiff: Etty v. Wilson, 3 Ex. D. 359; or refuses to do so, and a verdict is found for the plaintiff, and judgment directed to be entered thereon: Durica v. Peter, 4 Ex. D. 32; or where the Judge gives judgment for one party on the findings of the jury: Hamilton v. Johnson, 5 Q. B. D. 263; or where, the facts being undisputed, the Judge directs the jury to find for one party, and it is contended that the finding should have been the other way: Yette v. Foster, 3 C. P. D. 437; or after leaving the case to the jury the Judge thinks on reflection that there was no evidence to go to the jury and directs judgment to be entered for defendant: Rocke v. McKerron, 24 Q. B. D. 463. In all these cases, though the action is that of the Judge, the dispute is in respect to the propriety of the findings of the facts, and the motion should therefore ordinarily be for a new trial.

Where the Court considers that it has all the needful evidence before it, it may, under Rules 817, 615, instead of directing a new trial, direct the proper judgment to be entered.

Non-Jury Actions.—Where the trial has been had before a Judge Non-jury without a jury, Rule 783 applies, whether the findings of fact, or the conclusions deduced from them, are questioned, and whether it is proper to direct a new trial or to enter a different judgment.

In such cases the remedy is generally by motion to the Divisional Court to reverse the judgment under this Rule, or, in cases within s. 76*a* of the Jud. Act, by appeal to the Court of Appeal in the ordinary way, and if the Judge has improperly rejected evidence, the Court has power to let in the evidence improperly rejected, and give such judgment as, upon the admission of such evidence, may seem proper, instead of directing a new trial; see Dallman v. Jones, 12 Ch. D. 753; and Rule 498.

The practice adopted by the Court of Appeal in such cases in England is thus explained by Lord Justice Cotton, in Jones v. Hough, 5 Ex. D., at p. 125: "When the appeal comes before us, the Court of Appeal has the full right, if it thinks necessary, although there is no motion for a new trial, to say that the conclusion of fact arrived at is not satisfactory; and as they have not the materials before them to arrive at a proper conclusion, the Court will order a new trial; and Rule 783. I can instance a case where this would be done; where the question turns on the credibility of witnesses who had been heard voir dire, and seen by the Judge, who himself has tried the case. In such a case, even although the Court had thought the conclusion was not a correct one, they might direct that the case should go back for a new trial. Here the case is not one which turns on the amount of credibility to be given to the different witnesses, but on the conclusion of fact from certain letters, and from certain evidence which was taken upon commission. Under those circumstances, it is our duty to deal with the matter; and if we see before us the materials for arriving at a conclusion on the facts contrary to that which was arrived at by the learned Judge, we ought not, in my opinion, to put the parties to the expense and delay of sending the matter back for a new trial. Of course I need not say in all questions of fact, especially where there has been voir dire evidence before the Judge in the Court below, the Court of Appeal ought to be most unwilling to interfere with the conclusion which the Judge has arrived at when he has had the opportunity, which the Court have not, of seeing the witnesses, and judging of their demeanour."

The finding of a Judge on a question of fact will be regarded by an appellate Court as prima facie right, and will not be interfered with unless the appellant can clearly show that it is wrong: Colonial Securities Co. v. Massey, 1896, 1 Q. B. 38; 73 L. T. 497.

But it would seem clear that the Court, under this Rule, has full power to review the decision of the Judge upon the facts. See also the language in Jones v. Hough, 5 Ex. D., at p. 122 (quoted with approval in Prentice v. Consolidated Bank, 13 Ont. App. 74), where Bramwell, L.J., says: "If upon the materials before the learned Judge, he has, in giving judgment, come to an erroneous conclusion upon certain questions of fact, and we see that the conclusions are erroneous, we must come to a different conclusion, and act upon the conclusion that we come to, and not accept his finding." * * A great difference exists between a finding by the Judge, and a finding by the jury. Where the jury find the facts, the Court cannot be substituted for them, because the parties have agreed that the facts shall be decided by a jury; but where the Judge finds the facts then the Court of Appeal has the same jurisdiction that he has, and can find the facts whichever way they like. I have no doubt, therefore, that is our jurisdiction, our power, and our duty." See also the observations of Brett, M.R., in Read v. Anderson, 14 Q. B. D. 781, and N. British, etc., Co. v. Tourville, 25 S. C. R. 177; Coghlan v. Cumberland, 1898, 1 Ch. 704; 78 L. T. 540.

Where there was a conflict of evidence and the Judge who tried the case attributed greater weight to the evidence of some witnesses than others, but in the opinion of the appellate Court took a wrong view of the law, the Court refused to pronounce a judgment upon the evidence, and sent the case for a new trial: Canada Landed Credit Co. v. Thompson, 3 C. L. T. 158.

In a non-jury case if evidence has been improperly admitted the appellate Court may reject it and maintain the judgment if the remaining evidence warrants it: Merritt v. Hepenstall, 27 S. C. R. 150.

Where a new trial was ordered by a Divisional Court to try certain questions of fact, the Supreme Court on appeal declined to interfere: Scott v. Bank of New Brunswick, 21 S. C. R. 30.

As to the principles upon which Courts act in reviewing the findings of a Court of first instance on the facts, see also supra, p. 43.

Practice.—Where there is a general judgment against several defendants, they are not entitled to sever, and appeal to several Courts; but they must all appeal to the tribunal to which the defendant who takes the first step has appealed: per Armour, J., in Hateley v. Merchants Despatch Co., 4 Ont. 723.

Where some, or one, of the parties only appeal, the judgment will not on such appeal, as a general rule, be varied in favour of an respondent who has not appealed, unless the result of the appeal makes it improper that the judgment against the non-appealing defendant should stand: Challoucr v. Lobo, 1 O. L. R. 272; Attorney-General v. Simpson, 1901, 2 Ch. 671; 85 L. T. 325. Where the respondent also seeks a reversal or variation of the judgment in any particular, he should give notice of motion by way of cross appeal. This, at least, has been the uniform practice in the Divisional Courts: sed vide, Hunter v. Hunter, 24 W. R. 527. The rule may be different in the Court of Appeal, see Ind. Act, sec. 53, and Rule 813, and notes.

On a motion for a new trial the evidence of persons who had been witnesses to the effect that the evidence they gave was untrue, and that statements made by them to the plaintiff's solicitor before trial were true, is inadmissible: Pushton v. Grand Trunk Ry., 6 O. L. R. 425.

Where a motion for a new trial was made conditionally upon the result of a decision pending in the Court of Appeal, it was held that the usual steps, to bring the motion on within the usual time, should be taken, and that, if necessary, application should be made to the Court to postpone the hearing of the motion till the decision of the Court of Appeal should be given. The Court has full discretion over such an application to extend the time for giving notice of such motion, and is not limited to cases where the party has been misled: Peckett v. Short, 32 W. R. 123.

On an appeal by a plaintiff from a judgment dismissing the action, a third party who had obtained leave to appear and oppose the plaintiff's claim, was held not entitled to be heard: Ewing v. Toronto, 18 P. R. 137.

Interpleader Issue.—Where a Judge has directed judgment to be entered on an interpleader issue, an appeal lies under this Rule: pleader. Witt v. Parker, 25 W. R. 518; see Wilson v. Kerr, 18 U. C. Q. B. 470; Dodds v. Shepherd, 1 Ex. D. 75; 45 L. J. Ex. 457; Withers v. Parker, 28 L. J. Ex. 383; Robinson v. Tucker, 14 Q. B. D. 371; Dawson v. Fox, 14 Q. B. D. 377.

Costs.—The costs of the former trial and of the application for a new trial, are in the judicial discretion of the Court: Rule 1130.

Where a new trial was granted on the ground that the Judge at the trial improperly non-suited the plaintiff, the defendant was ordered to pay the costs, though the Judge acted mero motu, and the defendant forebore to give his evidence in deference to his ruling: Mills v. Hamilton St. Ry., 17 P. R. 74.

784. Where any motion or appeal is set down to be heard before a Court which is not the proper Court for hearing the motion or appeal, the same may, upon such terms as may seem just, be transferred to, and shall be heard by, the proper Court for hearing the same. New.

Transfer of motion made in wrong
Court.

Rule 785. Under this Rule an appeal from an award under the Dom. Railway Act was transferred from the Divisional Court to the Weekly Court: Re Montreal & O. Ry. Co. and Ogilvie, 18 P. R. 120.

This Rule does not apply so as to enable a Local Judge before whom a motion is properly pending, to enlarge it to come before the Master in Chambers: Mahoney v. Walsh, G. O. L. R. 18.

Restrictions on new trials.

785. A new trial shall not be granted on the ground of misdirection or of the improper admission or rejection of evidence, [or because the verdict of the jury was not taken upon a question which the Judge at the trial was not asked to leave to them], unless some substantial wrong or miscarriage has been thereby occasioned; and if it appears that such wrong or miscarriage affects part only of the matter in controversy, [or some or one only of the parties], the Court may give final judgment as to part thereof or as to some or one only of the parties, and direct a new trial as to the other part only, [or as to the other party or parties].
Con. Rule 791.

Same as the Eng. R. 1885, O. 39, r. 3, except the provisions in brackets, which are taken from Eng. (1885) R. 556.

Grounds for new trial.

Grounds for New Trial.—The following are grounds for granting a new trial:—

1. Improper admission, or rejection, of evidence.
2. The improper non-suited of the plaintiff.
3. Misdirection of the jury.
4. Perverse verdict, or verdict against the weight of evidence.
5. Verdict for too small, or too great damages; or damages assessed on improper basis.
6. Surprise, and discovery of new evidence: see Arch. Pr., 13th ed., 1210.

Mistrial.

7. Mistrial: e.g., improper conduct of the parties or others, which has prejudiced the fair trial of the action; e.g., by interfering with the jury: see Tiffany v. McNee, 24 Ont. 551; Stewart v. Woodman, 26 Ont. 714; or where one of the parties has been denied his right of challenge under R. S. O. c. 16, s. 111; or allowed, in spite of protest, more challenges than he was entitled to: Empey v. Carscallon, 21 Ont. 658; misconduct of juror: Laughlin v. Harvey, 24 Ont. App. 438; bias of jury, or inclusion in jury of a person not on the jury panel, or of a person too deaf to hear the evidence: Canoeon v. Ottawa E. Ry., 32 Ont. 24.

"Substantial wrong," or miscarriage.

"Substantial Wrong or Miscarriage." — Substantial wrong was considered to have occurred where, amongst other things, inadmissible evidence was received after objection to it, and was commented on by the Judge in his charge, as being important: Bank of Hamilton v. Isaacs, 16 Ont. 450.

In an action for libel where there has been misdirection as to any Rule 785. material part of the alleged libel, there is a "substantial wrong," and a new trial must be ordered, although the Court may be of opinion that other parts of the libel were sufficient to justify the damages given: Bray v. Ford, 1806, A. C. 44; 73 L. T. 609.

A new trial was refused on a point not taken at the trial in Eyre v. Highway Board, etc., 8 Times, 648.

Where the real issue has not been passed on by the jury a new trial should be granted: Dunsmuir v. Lowenberg, 34 S. C. R. 228.

For other cases as to what amounts to "substantial wrong," see Pickup v. Thames Insurance Co., 3 Q. B. D. 594; Shapcott v. Chappell, 12 Q. B. D. 58 (rejection of evidence); Swift v. Nunn, W. N. 1878, 217; McDonald v. Murray, 5 Ont. 559 (misdirection); Hawell v. Eastern Rink & Park Co., 13 Ont. 476 (misdirection); Wells v. Lindop, 15 Ont. App. 695 (misdirection); Hesse v. St. John Ry. Co., 30 S. C. R. 218 (misdirection).

A plaintiff is not entitled to a new trial for rejection of evidence, which on the pleadings he was not entitled to give: Milligan v. Jamieson, 4 O. L. R. 650. Nor where the case has been improperly withdrawn from the jury and judgment given for defendant, if the appellate Court finds that the only verdict which could be properly given by a jury would be in favour of the defendant: Goddard v. Midland Ry., 80 L. T. 621; nor will a new trial be granted to a plaintiff where he would only be entitled to nominal damages: Simonds v. Chestley, 20 S. C. R. 171; Seammell v. Clarke, 23 S. C. R. 397; Milligan v. Jamieson, supra, or where on the findings damages were inappreciable: Kerry v. England, 1898, A. C. 742.

An appeal does not lie to the Supreme Court from a judgment upon a motion for a new trial granted as a matter of discretion: O'Sullivan v. Lake, 15 Ont. App. 711.

The defendant's counsel, in order to shew that a witness called by him was hostile, and to treat him as such under s. 22 of the C. L. P. Act (Eng.), asked the Judge to look at the affidavit of a witness in a former action. As there was nothing in the witness's demeanour, or way in which he gave his evidence, to shew that he was hostile, the Judge refused to look at the affidavit, and it was held on motion for a new trial that the Judge's discretion was absolute, and the Court had no jurisdiction to review his decision: Rice v. Howard, 10 Q. B. D. 681.

An appeal by counsel to the local prejudices of the jury was held by Robertson, J., to be a ground for a new trial: see Forwood v. Toronto, 22 Ont. 362-3; but a new trial was refused on the ground that counsel at the trial improperly inflamed the minds of the jury, the objection not having been taken at the trial: Sornborger v. Canadian Pacific Ry. Co., 24 Ont. App. 263. The exhibition of the injury for which the action is brought, to the jury, for the purpose of having it explained by a medical witness is admissible: Ib.; but not for the purpose of enabling the jury to form their own opinion and conclusions therefrom, and, if so used, a new trial will be ordered: Laughlin v. Harvey, 24 Ont. App. 438.

The omission to swear a juror, where no injustice was done, is not a ground for a new trial: Goose v. G. T. Ry. Co., 9 C. L. T. 403; nor the fact that a jurymen was challenged for cause, the party moving for the new trial having accepted the opinion of the Judge that there was no cause, and having proceeded with the trial: Wood v. McPherson, 17 Ont. 163.

right of challenge.

Where defendants, separately defending and separately represented at the trial, claimed the right of 4 peremptory challenges each, which in spite of objection was allowed them, a new trial was ordered: Empey v. Carnacallen, 24 Ont. 658.

Where a jury have been allowed to separate before giving their verdict, but their verdict is subsequently taken without objection, and with knowledge of the fact, the objection to their having been allowed to separate is waived: Coleman v. Toronto, 23 Ont. 347; and where, pending the trial, a newspaper containing comments calculated to prejudice the fair trial has been read by many of the jurors, and, with knowledge of the fact, the parties go on with the trial without objection, the objection is waived: Tiffany v. McVee, 21 Ont. 551. Where a plaintiff had had conversations with a member of the jury during the trial, and his brother, and also his solicitor, had treated some of them to drinks, a new trial was ordered: Stewart v. Woolman, 29 Ont. 714.

Where a jury disagree and the parties agree to accept the verdict of the majority, such agreement does not preclude either party from moving against the verdict: Groom v. Shuker, 60 L. T. 293. The agreement is no more than to accept the verdict as if it had been unanimous.

Misdirection

Misdirection.—Formerly a misdirection by the Judge in point of law, or the improper admission or rejection of evidence in any material matter was, at Law, ground for a new trial as of right. The Common Law Courts had only the power to grant a new trial of the action generally: see Fauld v. Wallace, 35 L. T. 361. This practice was altered by The Administration of Justice Act; see R. S. O. 1877, c. 50, s. 289, which contained a provision to the same effect as the present Rule.

A new trial may now be ordered on a particular question: see also Rule 786.

"Was the plaintiff guilty of contributory negligence?" is an improper question to put to a jury, involving as it does both fact and law: Brown v. London St. Ry., 2 O. L. R. 53. It is preferable to ask "could the plaintiff by the exercise of reasonable care have avoided the accident?" If so, in what respect do you think the plaintiff omitted to take reasonable care?" Id.

Quere whether "misdirection" in the Rule applies to the case of the Judge ruling that there is no evidence to go to the jury, and therefore withdrawing the case from them, and giving judgment for defendant: see Hall v. Jupe, 43 L. T. 411.

Where a new trial is moved for on the ground of misdirection, the onus of showing that the misdirection did not cause a miscarriage of justice lies upon the party shewing cause: Anthony v. Halstead, 37 L. T. 433.

In considering an objection for misdirection the question is not whether every expression in a charge is perfectly accurate, or whether there is any reason to believe that a verdict, which is warranted by the evidence, has been caused or induced by an erroneous enunciation of the law by the Court: Wells v. Lindop, 15 Ont. App. 497.

It is not misdirection for the Judge to tell the jury his own opinion Rule 785, on the issue before them; Smith v. Dart, 14 Q. B. D. 105, 108.

Where the Judge misdirects the jury as to the burden of proof, a new trial, will be ordered; Kingston v. Kingston, 1897, A. C. 500.

An improper definition of "malice" by a Judge is misdirection; English v. Lamb, 32 Ont. 73.

The refusal of the Judge to submit some particular question to the jury is no ground for a new trial; but if the Judge refused to charge the jury in respect to any material matter which counsel desired to have submitted to them, it may amount to non-direction, for which a new trial may be granted; Turner v. Burns, 24 Ont. 28.

Where a new trial is granted on the ground of misdirection the Costs, Court, as a general rule, will order the costs to abide the event; Jones v. Richards, 15 Times, 398; but they are in the discretion of the Court; Hamilton v. Seal, 1904, 2 K. B. 292.

Where the Judge at the trial reported to the Court that he did not make certain remarks which it was contended were objectionable, and stated what he did actually say, this course was held not to be objectionable; Dickie v. Campbell, 34 S. C. R. 265.

Verdict against Evidence. — It is the practice in England, ^{Verdict against weight of evidence.} adopting the practice of the former Court of Queen's Bench, not to grant a new trial, on the ground that the verdict is against the weight of evidence, where the damages are under £20, except under peculiar circumstances, such as the trial of a right, or where the personal character of a person may be injured; Jones v. Metropolitan Board of Works, 44 L. T. 810; 17 C. L. J. 411; Booth v. Bryson, 2 Q. B. D. 490; followed Crewer v. Holbert, 17 P. R. 283; see also Jenkins v. Morris, 11 Ch. D. 674.

A verdict will not be very readily disturbed on the ground of excessive damages; see Sornborger v. C. P. Ry. Co., 24 Ont. App. 263; Easton v. Brantford E. Ry. Co., C. P. D. Sept., 1897, nor where the evidence as to damages is conflicting; McCullough v. Anderson, 27 Ont. 73 (note); Ferguson v. Southwold, 16, 69.

If the damages found by the jury are so small, as to shew that they must have omitted to consider some of the elements of damage, the Court will grant a new trial; Phillips v. London & S. W. Ry. Co., 5 Q. B. D. 78; 5 C. L. J. 280; Church v. Ottawa, 25 Ont. 298; 22 Ont. App. 348. It has been held that a new trial will not be granted merely to enable a plaintiff to recover nominal damages; Sammell v. Clarke, 23 S. C. R. 397; Simonds v. Chesley, 19 S. C. R. 174; Milligan v. Jamieson, 4 O. L. R. 650; but see Femp v. Christman, 195 L. T. Jour. 356.

On an application for a new trial upon the weight of evidence, where there has been no miscarriage in law, the question is, does the verdict in the opinion of the Court do substantial justice, and, if not, does the evidence warrant interference; Griener v. Hudson's Bank, 8 Ont. 102, and the Court though considering that a different verdict would have been more satisfactory, may refuse to interfere, the question being one proper for the decision of a jury; Mulrobinson v. Hamilton Prov. & L. Socy, 13 Ont. App. 610; Ferrand v. Bingley, 8 Times, 70. In an action for slander the jury is not bound to return a verdict for the plaintiff, although the defamatory words are proved; Milligan v. Jamieson, supra.

Rule 785.

The ordinary reasoning according to which the verdict of a jury on a question of fact ought not to be disturbed unless the preponderance of evidence against the verdict is strong and clear, does not apply to cases in which the verdict depends upon a question of science which is not fully solved, but is still within the region of bona fide controversy. The importance of the verdict to others besides the parties to the litigation, and the novelty of the question are elements to be taken into consideration. Where a new trial is granted on the ground of the unsatisfactory nature of the verdict, a condition should not be imposed that the party applying for the new trial should pay the costs of the previous trial: Managers of Metropolitan Asylum v. Hill, 47 L. T. 29.

A new trial, on the ground that the verdict is against the weight of evidence, should not be granted, unless the verdict is one which the jury viewing the whole evidence reasonably, after proper directions, could not properly find: Webster v. Friederberg, 17 Q. B. D. 736, correcting Salomon v. Bittou, 8 Q. B. D. 176; see also Metropolitan Ry. Co. v. Wright, 11 App. Cas. 152, as explained in Jones v. Spencer, 77 L. T. 536; 14 Times, 4; Phillips v. Martin, 15 App. Cas. 193; Quinlan v. Murnane, 18 L. R. 1r. 53; Commissioners for Railways v. Brown, 13 App. Cas. 133; Dallas v. Great Western Ry., 57 J. P. 581; Prout v. Graecom, 21 Q. B. D. 53; Hampson v. Gup, 61 L. T. 778; Beckett v. G. T. Ry., 13 Ont. App. 184; see 16 S. C. R. 713; Logg v. Lethbridge, 11 Ont. App. 460; Brisbane v. Martin, 1801, A. C. 249; Australian Newspaper Co. v. Bennett, Id., 284; see also remarks in 31 Sol. Jour. 136. Where the question at issue turns upon a matter involving scientific and expert evidence, and the weight of expert testimony is overwhelmingly in favour of one view, against which there is only the evidence of persons without much practical experience, a verdict based on the latter evidence cannot stand: Jackson v. Grand Trunk Ry., 2 O. L. R. 689; 32 S. C. R. 247.

A new trial should not be granted merely because the Judge who tried the case, or the Court applied to for a new trial, is dissatisfied with the verdict of the jury: Salomon v. Bittou, 8 Q. B. D. 176; see Jenkins v. Morris, 11 Ch. D. p. 684; Wildecks v. Hurvell, 7 Ont. 360; Murtagh v. Barry, 24 Q. B. D. 632; Fraser v. Drew, 30 S. C. R. 241.

Though the report of the Judge who presided as to whether he was satisfied or dissatisfied with the verdict is not conclusive, great weight will be attached to it: Webster v. Friederberg, 55 L. T. 295; affirmed in appeal: Id., 49; 17 Q. B. D. 736.

The Court has in its discretion to weigh the delay, vexation and expense of a new trial, all in fact which forms the foundation of the maxim "Interest reipublice ut sit finis litium" against the injustice which may be worked in a particular instance, and may treat as conclusive a verdict which is not perfectly satisfactory: Metropolitan District Asylum v. Hill, 47 L. T. 29; Beckett v. G. T. Ry., 13 Ont. App. 207; see 16 S. C. R. 713; Winch v. Conservators of the Thames, L. R. 7 C. P. 472.

Where the jury find negligence and specify in what it consisted, but there is no evidence to support the specific finding, the Court may in its discretion order a new trial, notwithstanding that there is evidence of negligence in other respects: Colden v. C. P. Ry. Co., 25 Ont. App. 115.

Where cross-actions involving the same question of law and fact are separately tried with the result that contradictory verdicts are obtained. If the evidence is so fairly balanced that the jury might Rule 765. reasonably find either way, both cases ought to be tried again, not separately, but together. The Court cannot be called upon either to exercise the functions of a jury, or to issue contradictory judgments: Australian, etc., Co. v. Smith, 11 App. Cas. 321.

Excessive Damages.—The granting or refusing a new trial on the ground of excessive damages depends to some extent on the nature of the action, e.g., where the action is on contract, and the amount properly payable depends on computation, in case of error the Court would more readily interfere, even though the amount in excess is small, than in a case of tort, where the jury may properly give vindictive damages.

It was formerly held that the Court may, in its discretion, refuse a new trial on the consent of the plaintiff as to the damages being reduced to such an amount as the Court may think fit given by the jury, would not have been excessive: Hill v. Lavers, 12 Q. B. D. 376; St. Denis v. Baxter, 15 Ont. App. 387; Easton v. Brantford E. Ry. Co. (before C. J. D. 29th Nov. 1897); Finer v. London St. Ry., 29 Ont. App. 111; Curran v. Grand Trunk Ry., 25 Ont. App. 107; Cobbler v. Michigan Central Ry., 27 Ont. App. 630; Schmidt v. Grand Trunk Ry., 31 Ont. App. 164; 18 Ont. App. 184; 28 C. L. J. 245; but all these cases have been over-ruled in the House of Lords, where it has been held that, in an action of tort, where the Court finds the damages to be excessive, it must grant a new trial unconditionally, and except by consent of both parties, it has no power to reduce the damages: Bull v. Bull, 1905, A. C. 115; 92 L. T. 489; but where the Court is satisfied with the judgment except as to the amount of damages, a new trial need not be directed generally, but may under Rules 785 and 786 be limited to the quantum of damages: Huckley v. G. T. Ry. Co., 64 W. R. 55.

In an action for libel the Court will not grant a new trial on the ground of excessive damages, unless it thinks that, having regard to all the circumstances of the case, the damages are so large that no jury could reasonably give them: Pratt v. Graham, 21 Q. B. D. 53; and in assessing damages the jury are entitled to take into consideration the whole conduct of the defendant in the matter from the time the libel was published down to the time of the verdict; Id. See also as to the granting of new trials in actions for libel, Wilcock v. Horrell, 5 Ont. 360.

As to the application of Pratt v. Graham, supra, in cases generally; see Johnston v. G. W. Ry. Co., 1904, 2 K. B. 250; where Philips v. L. & S. W. Ry. Co., 1879, 1 Q. B. D. 106; 5 Q. B. D. 78, was approved, the effect of which is that a new trial may be ordered if the Court, without imputing perversity to the jury, comes to the conclusion from the amount of the damages and other circumstances, that the jury must have considered matters which they ought not to have considered, or have applied a wrong measure of damages.

Where damages are assessed on a wrong basis, e.g., on the ground of neglect of duty, where no such duty existed, a new trial will be ordered: Dunn v. Prescott Elevator Co., 26 Ont. App. 389; 30 S. C. R. 620.

Surprise.—In Riding v. Hawkins, 14 F. T. 56, the plaintiff's case, when opened, seemed to proceed on a case of fraud, but undue influence only was alleged. The plaintiff applied for leave to amend, which was granted, and the trial proceeded after the defendant had Rule 183. refused an offer of the Judge to adjourn the trial at the plaintiff's expense; the finding was for the plaintiff on the question of fraud, but for the defendant on the issues on the original pleadings. It was held that defendant was not precluded, by his refusal of the offer of adjournment, from moving for a new trial on the ground of being surprised by the plaintiff's new case. It was also held that the amendment was properly allowed, the care having been taken that the defendant should not be damaged.

See Canada Landed Credit Co. v. Thompson, supra, p. 814.

The abstaining by a party from proof under an idea that his adversary had no real intention of putting him to such proof, and being thereby taken by surprise, is no ground for a new trial: Andriess v. Stuart, 1 C. L. R. 724.

Where the reason for the application is surprise, the affidavits must state the grounds of surprise: Doe v. Dickenson, W. N. 1881, 52. Evidence of persons who were called as witnesses to the effect that the evidence they gave was untrue, and that statements made by them to the plaintiff's solicitor before trial were true, is inadmissible on a motion for a new trial: Rushton v. Grand Trunk Ry., 6 O. L. R. 425.

The fact that on cross-examination of an opposite party's witness a damaging statement was elicited is not surprise: Shipway v. Broadwood, 1899, 1 Q. B. 369; 80 L. T. 11.

Discovery of Fresh Evidence. — As to when a new trial or supplemental trial may be had on the ground of discovery of new evidence, see note to Rule 549; and see Rule 642 (1), as to motions to reverse or vary judgments upon the ground of matters arising subsequent thereto, or subsequently discovered; such motions may be made to the Court or Judge who tried the action: Armour v. Merchants Bank, 17 P. R. 108.

A new trial will not be granted on the ground of premature admission of evidence which has afterwards become admissible: Fauvel v. Wallace, 35 L. T. 361; nor of the discovery of new evidence, unless it is nearly or quite conclusive: Anderson v. Titmas, 36 L. T. 711; Young v. Kershaw, 81 L. T. 531; 16 Times, 52; and see Birch v. Birch, 1902, P. 130.

Where the new evidence is merely corroborative of that given at the trial, a new trial will be refused: Howarth v. McGowan, 23 Ont. 396; see Trumble v. Horton, 22 Ont. App. 51.

Where the new evidence might have been discovered before trial by examination for discovery, which were not taken, a new trial was refused: Turnbull v. Dural, 1902, A. C. 429.

Staying New Trial Pending Appeal.—An application to stay a new trial pending an appeal from the order granting the same was refused: Hockley v. Grand Trunk Ry., 7 O. L. R. 186.

Costs.—Prima facie, where a new trial is ordered, the party opposing the motion should be ordered to pay the costs of the motion: Hamilton v. Seal, 1904, 2 K. B. 262; 90 L. T. 592; but these costs, as also those of the former trial, are in the discretion of the Court: ib., and see Rule 1130 (1).

786. A new trial may be ordered on any question in an action, whatever be the grounds for a new trial, without interfering with the finding or decision upon any other question. Rules 766, 787. New trial as to part. Con. Rule 792.

See Eng. (1883) R. 557.

Quere, whether a new trial may not now be ordered as to one defendant, without disturbing the verdict as to another: Purnell v. G. W. Railway Co., 1 Q. B. D. 636; and see Rule 785.

A new trial may be ordered as to the assessment of damages, the finding as to the liability of the defendant in respect of the cause of action (for negligence) not being interfered with: Hesse v. St. John Ry. Co., 30 S. C. R. 218, 240; Hockley v. G. T. Ry. Co., supra, p. 1029.

Where there are distinct issues, the Judge may, under this Rule, accept the verdict of the jury on those issues on which they agree, and discharge them as to others, and a new trial may be ordered on undecided issues: Marsh v. Isaacs, 45 L. J. C. P. 505; Coleman v. Toronto, 23 Ont. 345.

Where a new trial is granted, if the order is not appealed from, the question determined by it cannot be re-argued upon an appeal from the judgment pronounced at the new trial: Journal Printing Co. v. Maclean, 23 Ont. App. 324.

(ii) Procedure in Divisional Courts.

787—(1) A motion to a Divisional Court against judgment or for a new trial, or by way of appeal from the judgment or order of a Judge of the High Court made at the trial, or otherwise in respect of the judgment pronounced at the trial, shall be set down to be heard for, at latest, the first sittings of a Divisional Court which commences after the expiration of one month from the date of judgment, unless otherwise ordered. a Procedure on appeal to Divisional Court from Judge at the trial.

(2) The motion shall be upon a 7 clear days' notice, and shall be set down 2 clear days before the commencement of the sittings of the Divisional Court for which the notice is given, unless otherwise ordered. Rules of 1 Jan., 1896, 1484 (199A).

This Rule only applies to appeals from judgments or orders pronounced at trials, or motions for new trials in jury actions; as to appeals from judgments pronounced otherwise than at a trial, see Rule 788.

For the Regulation of the Judges with respect to the duty of the officer who sets down a case for a Divisional Court, see note to Rule 102.

The Court may, on a special application, allow the appeal to be set down on short notice, and stay proceedings pending the appeal: Todd v. Russell, 17 P. R. 127.

Rule 788. As to how far a motion to a Divisional Court operates to stay execution and other proceedings under the judgment, see Rules 827, 829.

The "date of judgment" means the day of pronouncing the judgment or order; see Rule 629, and Hickey v. Storer, 11 P. R. 88; but where judgment is not given in open Court, see Wallace v. Bath, 7 O. L. R. 522.

A motion to extend the time for moving under this Rule should be made before the Divisional Court itself: Imperial Loan Co. v. Baby, 13 P. R. 59. For circumstances under which the time may be extended, see Hickey v. Storer, 11 P. R. 88.

A motion for a new trial was allowed after the time for moving had elapsed under peculiar circumstances, in Wilkins v. Wilkins, 12 Times 212, where it had been decided at the trial that a man was dead, but he was subsequently found to be alive.

A seven clear days' notice of motion must be given for the first day of the sittings, and will not be sufficient if given for any subsequent day, although given in time to permit the motion to be set down two clear days before the commencement of the sittings: Sierichs v. Woodcock, 13 P. R. 260.

Where a solicitor had instructed his clerk to set down a case, but the clerk, by a mistake in supposing that the days limited for that purpose were not clear days, allowed the last day to pass, this was held not a sufficient ground for granting leave to set the case down: Rumohr v. Marx, 18 C. L. J. 444; 19 C. L. J. 10; 3 C. L. T. 31.

Where judgment for defendants was delivered on 22nd November, and the plaintiff's solicitor immediately applied for a copy, but did not receive it until 29th November, which was the last day for setting down a motion to reverse the judgment, and there was therefore, no time to consult either the plaintiff or counsel, the Court held that the delay was sufficiently excused, and granted leave to set down, upon payment of costs: Foley v. Canada Permanent, etc., 18 C. L. J. 444; 3 C. L. T. 32.

Where a cause has been set down and notice of abandonment subsequently served, it will not be restored to the list on the appellant's application, unless he make out a case in which it would be proper to grant leave to appeal: Union Bank of Canada v. Rideau Lumber Co., 19 P. R. 106; semble, he should show that the judgment or order to be appealed from is prima facie wrong and that there is good ground for allowing the appeal to prevent a substantial wrong or injustice: Id.

Where a case is improperly set down, a substantive motion to the Divisional Court should be made to strike it out: Wansley v. Smallwood, 10 P. R. 223. Where the objection has not been taken until the case has been called on for argument, costs have sometimes been refused, although the objection has been sustained.

A third party who has obtained liberty to contest the plaintiff's claim is not entitled to be heard on an appeal by plaintiff from a judgment dismissing the action; see Ewing v. Toronto, 18 P. R. 137.

From Judge in
Court.

788.—(1) A motion to a Divisional Court by way of appeal from any judgment or order made by a Judge of the High Court, sitting in Court otherwise than at a trial, shall be set down to be heard for the first sittings of a Divisional Court for which due notice can be served after the expiration of seven days from the date of the judgment or order complained of, unless otherwise ordered. ^{Rules 789, 790.}

(2) The motion shall be upon a 2 clear days' notice, and shall be set down 2 clear days before the first day of the sittings of the Divisional Court for which the notice is given unless otherwise ordered. Rules of 1 Jan., 1896, 1484 (799B); Rules of 9 Jan., 1897, amended.

This Rule only applies to appeals from judgments or orders pronounced in the Weekly Court.

See notes to Rule 787.

For the Regulation of the Judges with respect to the duty of the officer who sets down a case for a Divisional Court, see note to Rule 102.

789. Every notice of motion or appeal to a Divisional Court shall set out the grounds of the motion or appeal. ^{Grounds of appeal to be set out in notice.} Con. Rule 790. Rules of 1 Jan., 1896, 1484 (799C); Rules of 9 Jan., 1897, amended.

The former Rule 790, only applied to motions for a new trial. Under the present Rule it will be necessary to set out the grounds in every notice of motion or appeal to a Divisional Court.

A notice of motion for a new trial on the ground of misdirection, or non-direction, should state how and in what manner the Judge misdirected, or failed to direct, the jury: Pfeiffer v. Midland Ry. Co., 18 Q. B. D. 243; Murfit v. Smith, 12 P. D. 116; Scott v. Orerar, 11 Ont. 541; Furlong v. Reid, 12 P. R. 201; see 12 Ont. 607. Amendment may be allowed in a proper case, but was refused in Furlong v. Reid.

790.—(1) Unless otherwise ordered, if a party who serves a notice of motion does not set the motion down, he shall be deemed to have abandoned the same, and the opposite party shall thereupon be entitled without an order to the costs of the motion. ^{Abandoning motion.} Con. Rule 801. Rules 1 Jan., 1896, 1485.

(2) A party who serves a notice of motion may countermand the same by notice served on the opposite party, who shall thereupon be entitled to the costs of the motion. ^{Counter-mand notice.} New.

(3) In either of such cases the costs may be taxed without an order, upon the production of the notice of motion served, with an affidavit that the motion was not set down, or of the notice of countermand served; and if the costs are not paid within 4 days from taxation, the party entitled thereto may obtain on praeceipe an order for payment of the same, on filing the certificate of taxation and an affidavit of non-payment of the costs. New.

Rules

The former mode of obtaining the costs of a motion not set down was to appear on the return day of the motion, and ask for the costs of an abandoned motion: Reg. v. Armstrong, 13 P. R. 306. It would not seem to be now proper to do this in the cases provided for by this Rule. Unless the party in default obtains leave to set the case down, the present Rule will apply. Semble, this Rule applies to a County Court appeal: Re Toronto Ry. Co. and City of Toronto, 18 P. R. 489.

A motion to dismiss an appeal for want of prosecution has been refused as unnecessary: Id.

On an application to restore an appeal after it had been abandoned, it was held that a prima facie ground of appeal must be made out: Union Bank v. Rideau Lumber Co., 19 P. R. 106. See S. C. in note to Rule 787.

judgment or order as settled to be furnished to Court.

791. On any motion for a new trial or by way of appeal from a judgment or order of the Court or a Judge of the High Court, or to enter a different judgment, the applicant or appellant shall deliver to the proper Registrar a copy of the written opinion (if any), unless it has been reported, of the Judge appealed from, and of the judgment or order in question on the motion or appeal, as the same has been settled or entered, before the motion or appeal is set down for argument; and in default, unless otherwise ordered, the motion or appeal shall be deemed to have been abandoned, and the opposite party shall be entitled to the costs thereof. New, as amended by Rule 1271. See Ont. Gaz., 31st Dec., 1900.

Since this Rule it is necessary that the judgment or order appealed from be settled, though not necessarily issued, before the appeal comes on for argument. The staying of the entry of the judgment will not prevent its settlement for the purposes of this Rule. Where a judgment is entered before the appeal therefrom is heard, a stay of execution where necessary can be obtained under Rule 827.

As to whether an appeal will be quashed if this Rule has not been complied with, see Henderson v. Rogers, 15 P. R. 241.

shorthand notes to be delivered on motions for new trial, etc.

792—(1) On every motion for a new trial, or by way of appeal or to enter a different judgment, where the evidence was at the trial taken down by a stenographer, 3 copies of the evidence, in words at length, each copy to be certified as correct by the stenographer, shall be delivered to the proper Registrar, at or before the time for setting down the motion: Provided that if such copies have not then ^{Rule 792.} been prepared the party making the motion shall shew to the officer setting down the motion, by memorandum on the præcipe, signed and initialed by the officer whose duty it is to procure such copies from the stenographer, that the same have been bespoken, and the same shall be delivered to the proper Registrar before the argument of the motion. Con. Rule 802, amended.

(2) The party making the motion shall not be entitled, unless by leave of a Judge or of the Court, to set it down until the record and exhibits have been, and it shall be his duty to cause them to be, transmitted to the Central Office. Rule 1486, as amended by Con. Rule 1232.

The Junior Registrar is the officer to whom the copies of the evidence are to be delivered: see Rule 28.

The fees payable to stenographers for copies of evidence on appeals to Divisional Courts and County Courts are regulated by the following Orders in Council.

Order in Council dated 18th March, A.D. 1896.

The Committee of Council advise that the portion of the charges ^{High Court Reporters.} for copies of shorthand notes of evidence at trials at present payable to the "Shorthand Reporters' Fund" be abolished, and that the fees payable and applicable to the personal use of the reporters, be hereafter as follows:—

1. For single copies—five cents per folio.
2. For copies required for the Judges under Rules made or to be made in that behalf, and to be furnished at the expense of the parties, and for one copy for the party desiring to move thereon — six cents per folio of one copy for all the copies required of any one transcription of shorthand notes, not exceeding five altogether.
3. For any additional copies made for the parties—one and one-half cents per folio for each copy.
4. The charges aforesaid shall be paid to the reporter when and as the moneys payable in respect of such copies are collected, and no charge is to be made for copies required by the Attorney-General of Ontario, or by the Judges for their private use and not taxable to any party, or for copies which it is the duty of the reporter to supply without charge.
5. The extra reporters shall be allowed for their own use, the same fees as the regular reporters, with twenty-five per cent. added thereon, to be paid out of the "Shorthand Reporters' Fund."
6. The above charges are to apply only to cases entered for trial after 1st January, 1896.

[Local Masters, Referees, Special Examiners and others, entitled to take examinations or cross-examinations in the High Court and County Court shall, for copies of such examinations or cross-examin-

Rule 793. ations, be entitled to the same fees for copies of notes of evidence at trials, as are payable to the Official Shorthand Reporters, vide 35 Vict. c. 13, s. 40.] (a).

County
Court Reporters.

Order in Council dated 26th May, A.D. 1896.

Upon the recommendation of the Honourable the Attorney-General, the Committee of Council advise that the Order in Council of 18th March, 1896, fixing the fees for copies of shorthand notes of evidence, payable to the Official Court Reporters, be amended by striking out the last paragraph thereof having reference to the fees for copies of evidence payable to Local Masters, Referees, Special Examiners, etc. (b).

The Committee further advise that the same fees as are under the said Order payable to the Official Court Reporters be paid to the Reporters in the County Courts.

Order in Council dated 12th August, 1897.

Upon the recommendation of the Honourable the Attorney-General, the Committee of Council advise that the same fees as are payable to the Official Court Reporters, for copies of shorthand notes of evidence under Order in Council of 18th March, 1896, be paid to the Official Reporter or other stenographer of the Master in Ordinary, for copies of notes of evidence taken on any reference before the Master in Ordinary.

6. COUNTY COURT APPEALS.

Appeals from County Courts are regulated by R. S. O. c. 55, ss. 50 to 57, and secs. 74 (2), 75, and 76 of the Jud. Act.

Appeals from District Courts are governed by the same Act, see R. S. O. c. 109, s. 7, except in some cases specially provided for, such as where a cause of action in the District Court of Thunder Bay and Rainy River is beyond the jurisdiction of a County Court. See R. S. O. c. 109, s. 15; and see s. 9 (3): Coutts v. Warton B. & Sugar Co., 39 C. L. J. 788.

The above-mentioned sections, 50 and 51 of The County Courts Act (R. S. O. c. 55), are as follows:—

Meaning of "party to a cause or matter," and "appellant."

50. The terms "party to a cause or matter," and "appellant," hereinafter used, shall include persons suing or being sued in the name of others, though not mentioned in the record, and persons on whose behalf or for whose benefit any action is prosecuted or defended, as well as parties named in the record. R.

(a) This clause was afterwards abrogated by the order of 26 May, 1896, which follows.

(b) The fees payable to Local Masters and Referees remain as provided by Tariff B. By sec. 175 of the Jud. Act power is given to the Lieut.-Governor in Council to fix fees to be taken by Special Examiners. For the tariff promulgated under that section see notes to sec. 175.

S. O. 1887, c. 47, s. 40.

51.—(1) Any party to a cause or matter in a County Court Appeal to may appeal to a Divisional Court of the High Court of Justice ^{Divisional} from any judgment directed by a Judge of the County Court ^{Courts.} to be entered at or after the trial in any case tried without a jury, and also in any case tried with a jury, [to which sub-section 4 does not apply.]

(2) Instead of appealing to a Divisional Court of the High ^{Motion to} Court of Justice any party may move before the County Court ^{County} within the first two days of its next quarterly sittings to set ^{Court for} aside the judgment and enter any other judgment upon any ^{new trial} ground. ^{or other}
^{judgment.}

(3) A motion for a new trial on the ground of discovery of ^{Moving for} new evidence or the like shall be made before the County Court. ^{new trial on} ^{discovery}

(4) Where there has been a trial with a jury any motion for ^{of new} a new trial, whether made for that relief alone or combined ^{evidence} with, or as an alternative for, any other relief, shall be made to by jury.
the County Court.

(5) If a party moves before a County Court under sub-sec-^{Party} tion 2 in a case in which he might have appealed to the High ^{moving} Court, he shall not be entitled to appeal from the judgment of ^{County} the County Court to the High Court, but the opposite party to appeal ^{Court not} shall be entitled to appeal therefrom to the High Court. 58 Vict. ^{High}
c. 13, s. 44 (1); 60 Vict. c. 15, Sched. A, (69). ^{Court.}

For a statement of the purview of this section, see Leishman v. Garland, 3 O. L. R. 241.

Notwithstanding sub-sec. 3 a Divisional Court on appeal from a County Court may under Rule 498 admit new evidence; Butler v. McKicken, 32 Ont. 422, even though the time for moving for a new trial has expired; Ib., but ordinarily in such a case the motion, whether in a jury or non-jury case, must be to the County or District Court, sub-sec. (3); and see Brown v. Carpenter, 27 Ont. 412.

In other cases the effect of the section seems to be, as follows:—

(1) In Jury Cases.—Where a new trial is sought, any motion respecting the judgment must be to the County or District Court at its quarterly sittings; sub-sec. (4); see formerly, Hunter v. Vanstone, 6 Ont. App. 337; Wilson v. Brown, 7 Ont. App. 181; *Campbell
v. Prince*, 5 Ont. App. 330; Ferguson v. McMartin, 41 Ont. App. 731.

Where a new trial is not sought, but where, accepting the findings of the jury, the appellant contends that, upon them or notwithstanding them, judgment should be entered in his favour, he may either appeal to a Divisional Court or move at the next quarterly sittings of the County or District Court to have judgment entered in his favour.

An appeal lies to the Divisional Court under sub-sec. (1), where the County Court Judge withdraws a case from a jury and gives judgment of non-suit, because that is held not to be a trial with a jury within the meaning of sub-sec. (4); Hagen v. Canadian Pacific Ry., 30 Ont. 138.

Rule 793.

(1) In Non-jury Cases.—Whatever the ground of complaint, and whether the right to a new trial be involved or not, a party complaining of the judgment has the option of appealing to the Divisional Court of the High Court: sub-sec. (1), or of moving against the judgment at the quarterly sittings of the County or District Court: sub-sec. (2).

A case which the Judge at the trial withdraws from the jury, is for the purpose of appeal a 'non-jury' case: Hagen v. Canadian Pacific Ry., 30 Ont. 138.

Though on an appeal to the Divisional Court a new trial cannot be applied for, the Divisional Court instead of either granting judgment for the appellant or dismissing his appeal, may order a new trial where justice so requires: see R. S. O. c. 55, sec. 54, infra.

After an appeal to a Divisional Court, no further appeal from its decision formerly lay to the Court of Appeal: McConic v. Boller, 17 P. R. 353; but it would seem that no appeal now lies as in the case of other decisions of a Divisional Court: see Jud. Act, secs. 75 and 76, and Christie v. Cooley, 6 O. W. R. 214, (where, however, by order of the Divisional Court, made on consent, the action was transferred to the High Court, and leave granted to appeal to the Court of Appeal).

The Court formerly refused to entertain an appeal where the decision turned wholly upon the evidence, and involved no point of law: Fowler v. McDonald, 3 U. C. Q. B. 385; Bradley v. Crane, 4 U. C. Q. B. 122; Manning v. Ashall, 23 U. C. Q. B. 362; Clerk v. Hachbart, 6 C. P. 438; McKinstry v. Farby, 24 U. C. Q. B. 176; Harris v. Robinson, 25 U. C. Q. B. 247. In such a case, where the trial has been by jury, the remedy will ordinarily be a new trial, so that an appeal will not lie to a Divisional Court. In a non-jury case, an appeal will lie, but the decision of the County Court Judge will not be interfered with, except upon the same principles as are observed in the case of other appeals from a Judge of first instance upon the evidence: see notes to Rule 783, supra, p. 1021. Where, therefore, the Judge of the County Court who has heard the witnesses finds in favour of the respondent on contradictory evidence, the Divisional Court will not interfere, even though it may think that, if the matter had come before it in the first instance, it would have decided otherwise: Rees v. McKeown, 7 Ont. App. 521. See also cases referred to in note to sec. 52 of the Act, supra, p. 43.

Appeals as to Costs.—An appeal as to a question of costs, where a question of principle is involved, has been entertained: Mitchell v. Lundusen, 14 Ont. App. 517, in which, however, it was pointed out as a reason for entertaining the appeal that leave to appeal had been granted, (though sec. 72 of the Jud. Act does not seem to apply to such a case: see notes to that section); see also McDermid v. McDermid, 15 Ont. App. 287; Weaver v. Sawyer, 16 Ont. App. 422; Grove v. Bender, 36 C. L. J. 161; 20 C. L. T. Occ. N. 95.

Appeals from decisions of a County Court at its quarterly sittings.—Under clause (5), a party who might have, but has not, appealed to a Divisional Court from the judgment at the trial, but has moved against it at the quarterly sittings of the County Court, is debarred, if unsuccessful on such motion, from appealing further from the order made upon it; but the opposite party may appeal.

Where a new trial is desired, (a) on the ground of discovery of new evidence, or (b) on any other ground, the party complaining can not appeal in the first instance to a Divisional Court: see sec. 54.

Appeals
from County Court quarterly

sub-secs. (3) and (4), supra, and no appeal lies from the decision of Rule 793, the County Court upon a motion (under sub-sec. 3) for a new trial on the ground of discovery of new evidence: Brown v. Carpenter, 27 Ont. 412; or on a motion in a jury case (under sub-sec. 4): Irvine v. Sparks, 31 Ont. 681, whether a new trial is granted or refused: Id.; and see H. & L. Jud. Act, 2nd ed., pp. 979-980.

Clause (1) is the only provision of sec. 51, giving any right of appeal to a Divisional Court, to the party complaining of the judgment at the trial, and, by that clause, where a new trial is part of the relief required no such appeal is given. Clause (4) gives to the opposite party the right to appeal to a Divisional Court where he is respondent to, and unsuccessful upon, a motion to the County Court; but only in a case in which his opponent might have appealed to the Divisional Court instead of moving in the County Court; and a motion for a new trial is not such a case.

Where a motion is made to the County Court to set aside a judgment, and for judgment for the applicant, or in the alternative for a new trial, on which the County Court under Rule 615, or otherwise, directs judgment to be entered for the applicant. In such case the opposite party is entitled to appeal from that decision to a Divisional Court, as the order is not merely for a new trial, but is a reversal of the judgment at the trial: Donaldson v. Wherry, 20 Ont. 552; Leishman v. Garlund, 3 O. L. R. 241.

Staying Execution.—As to stay of execution in a County Court case, pending an appeal, see Rule 797.

Power to stay until an appeal can be launched is given to any Judge of the County Court appealed from: Rule 794.

Setting Down Appeals.—See Rule 795, and notes.

Interlocutory Motions Relating to Appeals.—No power is given to a Judge to deal with matters relating to, but not involving the decision upon, the appeal, as was formerly the case under Ind. Act, sec. 54, when County Court appeals were to the Court of Appeal, and as was the case under 63 V. c. 17, s. 12 (now repealed by 4 Ed. vii, c. 10, s. 15). A motion to strike out or quash an appeal must be made to the Divisional Court: sec. 57, infra, and see O'Donnell v. Guinane, 28 Ont. 389.

A motion to extend the time for taking any step or proceeding in the appeal would seem to be proper under Rule 353, to the County Court or a Judge, until the papers have been certified under sec. 55 and Rule 793; and to the Divisional Court thereafter: section 57 (2) and (3) infra, but no such motion can be made to the Divisional Court until the papers are (under sec. 55) sent up to it, and filed in the High Court: section 57 (2), infra, p. 1014; and see Gilmor v. McPhail, 16 P. R. 151; Owen v. Sprung, 28 Ont. 607; Wheeler v. Gibbs, 3 S. C. R. 374.

Costs.—Costs of the former trial and of the application on the judicial discretion of the Court: Rule 1130, they are usually ordered to follow the event of the motion, even though the Judge below has ex mero motu made an erroneous adjudication: Mills v. Hamilton Street Ry. Co., 17 P. R. 74; Eddy v. Ottawa, etc., 31 P. C. Q. B. 569, 576; but see Harris v. Robinson, 25 P. C. Q. B. 247; and though the Court has no jurisdiction to hear the appeal: Cole v. Halliday, 33 C. L. J. 120; S. C., sub nom., Cole v. Halliday, 17 C. L. T. 73; and see Teskey v. Neil, 15 P. R. 244; Hewgill v. Chadwick, 18 P. R. 359; but they may be ordered to abide the result of a new trial, or the applicant, though successful, may be ordered to pay them as a condition of getting a new trial.

Rule 793.

Appeals from decision of Judge.

Sections 52 and 52a of The County Courts Act are as follows:—

52.—(1) An appeal shall also lie to a Divisional Court of the High Court of Justice, at the instance of any party to a cause or matter, (a) from every decision made by a Judge of a County Court under any of the powers conferred upon him by any Rules of Court or any statute, unless provision is therein made to the contrary; and from every decision or order made by a Judge of a County Court sitting in Chambers under the provisions of the law relating to interpleader proceedings, the examination of debtors, attachment of debts and proceedings against garnishees; and from every decision or order made in any cause or matter disposing of any right or claim, (b) provided always that the decision or order is in its nature final and not merely interlocutory. R. S. O. 1887, c. 41, s. 42; 58 Vict. c. 13, s. 71 (21); 59 Vict. c. 18, Sched. (18); c. 19, s. 14.

(2) This section shall not apply where jurisdiction is given to the Judge of the County Court as persona designata, 53 Vict. c. 13, s. 6.

Prior to 15 Vict. c. 6, there could be no appeal from a County Court in garnishee proceedings; Sato v. Hubbard, 6 Ont. App. 546.

This section does not apply to cases coming under sec. 51, supra; Weaver v. Sawyer, 16 Ont. App. 422; Irvine v. Sparks, 31 Ont. App. 66.

(a) "Party to a cause or matter." As to the meaning of these words, see sec. 50, supra, p. 1036, and sec. 2 (8) of the Jud. Act, also Henderson v. Rogers, 15 P. R. 211.

(b) "Right or claim." The right or claim referred to is that which forms the subject of the action, not the right to take any particular piece of procedure in the course of the action; McPherson v. Wilson, 13 P. R. at p. 340.

The proviso at the end of sub-section (1) governs the whole sub-section, so that, in interpleader and garnishee matters, and the other proceedings specified, an appeal does not lie unless the order appealed from is in its nature final; Hunter v. Hunter, 18 C. L. T. 114; Arnold v. Van Tuyl, 30 Ont. 663.

Appeal as to costs.

52a. An appeal shall also lie to a Divisional Court from any decision or order of a Judge whether pronounced or made at the trial or on appeal from taxation or otherwise, which has the effect of depriving the plaintiff of County Court costs on the ground that his action is of the proper competence of the Divisional Court, or of entitling him to County Court costs on the ground that the action is not of the proper competence of the Divisional Court. 4 Ed. vii. c. 10, s. 13.

Final or Interlocutory Order.—The question as to when an order is final, and when interlocutory, has arisen under various Acts, and may be answered differently under each, according to the intention of the enactment.

For the purpose of determining the time for appealing under English (1883) R. 867, a final order is one made on such an application or proceeding that, for whichever side the decision is given, it will, if it stands, finally determine the matter in litigation; Salaman v. Warner, 1891, 1 Q. B. 734; Standard Discount Co. v. LeGrange, 3 C. P. D. 67, 74; or disposes of the matter in dispute between the parties, even though inquiries have to be carried out after the order; see Re Herbert Reeves & Co., 50 W. R. 252; 1901, W. N. 213.

For the same purpose an interlocutory order includes an order for Rule 793, working out the rights given by a final judgment, e.g., an order setting off costs subject to a solicitor's lien: Blakey v. Latham, 43 Ch. D. 25, and see Leonard v. Burrows, 7 O. L. R. 316.

See also notes to sec. 73 of the Jud. Act, supra, p. 428.

An order interlocutory under the above English Rule is not necessarily interlocutory under the above section 52; see Rural Mun. of Harris v. London & Canadian, etc., Co., 19 S. C. R. at p. 412.

An order has been considered final because there remains nothing further to be done under it: Re D. A. Jones Co., 19 Ont. App. 63; and thus an order to sign judgment under former Rule 730, was considered not final, and therefore not appealable under the Supreme Court Act (R. S. C. c. 335, ss. 24 to 28). Such an order would, however, seem to be final within above section 52; see Nelson v. Thorne, 11 Ont. App. 616; Collins v. Hickok, Id., 620; Bank of Minnesota v. Page, 14 Ont. App. 317, though if judgment were denied to the plaintiff on such a motion, the matter in litigation would not have been determined, and an appeal would thus be excluded, if the rule in Sulaman v. Warner, supra, were applied. (The decision on an application under the present Rule 961, which takes the place of former Rule 730, would seem now beyond doubt to be appealable as, under it, an order to sign judgment is not what is obtained, but a final judgment in the action).

In view of the cases in which appeals have been entertained under sec. 52 it would seem that a "decision or order in its nature final and not interlocutory" within the meaning of the section, is a decision or order, whether before, or after, or by, the final judgment, (other than a judgment or order to which sec. 51 applies), by which the status of the parties is determined with respect to the matter in dispute, but it is not essential that nothing further has to be done to work out the rights thus determined, nor that the decision, had it been in respondent's favour, would necessarily end the matters in dispute; see cases infra and Standard Discount Co. v. Letcavage, 3 C. P. 10, 67, 71; Rural Mun. of Morris v. London & Can. L. & A. Co., 19 S. C. R. 434; Baptist v. Baptist, 21 S. C. R. 425; Bucock v. Stoddard, 19 P. R. 195; but see Hunter v. Hunter, 18 C. L. T. 114.

Judgments and Orders Appealable:—

Appeals have been entertained in the following cases:—From a judgment in a partition matter under R. S. O. c. 124; Furness v. Mitchell, 3 Ont. App. 510; an order or judgment disposing of an issue directed in a garnishing matter: Henderson v. Rogers, 15 P. R. 211; or in interpleader proceedings: Feckan v. Bank of Toronto, 10 C. P. 32, see also Whiting v. Horvy, 12 Ont. App. 119; Rural Mun. of Harris v. London and Canadian, etc., 19 S. C. R. at p. 412; a judgment on a special case: Osler v. Mutec, 19 Ont. App. 94; Re Sharer v. Hart, 31 P. C. Q. B. 603; an order refusing to set aside a judgment for partition under The Partition Act: Jenking v. Jenking, 11 Ont. App. 192; an order for judgment under former Rule 730 (now 961): Nelson v. Thorne, 11 Ont. App. 616; Collins v. Hickok, Id., 620; Bank of Minnesota v. Page, 14 Ont. App. 317; Sydenham v. Williams, Divisional Court, 16th January, 1897; an order imposing terms on a defendant as a condition of giving him leave to defend: McVicar v. McLaughlin, 16 P. R. 450; or refusing an application to set aside a judgment entered for default of defence, on the ground of irrequidity: Voight v. Orth, 5 O. L. R. 413; an order granting the instator of a contesting creditor, under The Creditors' Relief Act, setting aside a judgment and execution: Bowerman v. Phillips, 15 Ont. App. 673; Molson's Bank v. McHeekin, 16, 535; an order allowing or refusing to allow execution to issue on a judgment: Hason v. Johnston, 20 Ont. App. 412; McMahon v. Spencer, 13 Ont. App. 430; an order allowing a set off of costs which were not in the discretion of the Judge, contrary to right of plaintiff: Holbrook v. Standish, 19 P. R. 195; an order in proceedings under The Debtors' Stock Companies Winding-up Act (R. S. O. c. 222), approving of a sale, by the liquidator, of the assets of a company en bloc, and making certain provisions for distributing the purchase money: Re D. J. Jones Co., 19 Ont. App. 631; an order for the examination of the wife of a judgment debtor under Rule 901, as a person to whom the judgment debtor had made a transfer of his property: Gooder v. White, 15 P. R. 433; an order for the committal of a judgment debtor under Rule 907 for unsatisfactory answers on his examination as a judgment debtor: Ruby v. Ross, 14 P. R. 440; and see Re Anderson v. Toronto, 16 P. R. at p. 246 (but see New Hamburg v. Burden, supra).

Rule 793.

An order respecting the person having the right to continue an action after the death of the plaintiff would also seem to be included within the meaning of the section; see Baptist v. Baptist, 21 S. C. R. 425. So also a judgment or order made otherwise than at the trial determining a right and providing for the proceedings for working it out; e.g., by taking an account, though such an order may not be final for some purposes; see The Queen v. Clark, 21 S. C. R. 656, Re Alexander, 1842, 1 Q. B. 216; and an order perpetually restraining plaintiff from proceeding with an action (which is not a final order within The Supreme and Exchequer Court Acts); Mackenzie Bank v. Stewart, 20 S. C. R. 105.

An appeal now lies from an order or decision as to the scale of costs under a final judgment; see, 52a supra, (see formerly London v. Burrows, 7 O. L. R. 310).

Judgments and Orders not Appealable:—

Appeals have not been entertained in the following cases, as being final orders not in their nature final:— From an order setting aside a judgment and letting defendant in to defend: Schroeder v. Brown, 14 Ont. App. 673; O'Donnell v. Gaudin, 28 Ont. 389 (but in Re Vicar v. McLaughlin, 16 P. R. 159, an appeal was entertained from an order setting aside a judgment under Rule 901, in regard to the terms imposed upon defendant as a condition of being let in to defend); from an order dismissing a motion for judgment under Rule 902: Fisher v. Street, 17 C. L. T. 82; see Royal Mail, supra; Price v. London & Can. L. & S. Co., 14 S. C. R. 414; an order enlarging until after a named event, a motion to dismiss an action for want of prosecution: Slater v. Mader, 17 C. L. T. 82; an order striking out jury notice: McPherson v. Wilson, 13 P. R. 339; an interpleader order directing an issue: Baxter v. Hunter, 18 C. L. T. 114; an order or an application to amend: Readman v. Shaw, 10 U. C. Q. B. P. 1, and see Adair v. Kingston, 16 U. C. Q. B. 121; the decision of a Judge as to the right to begin: Hastings v. Earnest, 7 U. C. Q. B. 720; or on a motion to vary the minutes of a judgment: Re Casper v. Bennett, 4 O. L. R. 71; an order dismissing an application to commit a defendant for contumacy for refusing to be sworn on a re-examination: New Hamburg v. Burden, 37 C. L. J. 420; or order of discharge from custody under a ca. sa.: Gallagher v. Gallagher, 33 Ont. 172.

An appeal will not lie from a judgment or order pronounced in a Rule 793 matter in which the Court below had no jurisdiction: Feskey v. Neil, 15 P. R. 244, but see Sweetland v. Turkish Cigarette Co., 80 L. T. 172; 47 W. R. 511.

Where the Judge is persona designata.—In such case R. S. O. c. 76, s. 6, applies, which provides that there shall be no appeal from the order of a Judge so made, unless an appeal is expressly authorized by the Statute giving the jurisdiction; see Re Toronto H. & B. Ry. Co., 17 P. R. 199; Re Simpson v. Clafferty, 18 P. R. 403; or the Judge gives leave to appeal: 63 Viet. c. 17, s. 14.

Procedure.—The remaining sees. of The County Courts Act, relating to appeals, viz.: sees. 53-57 are as follows:—

53. An appeal may be had from any appealable decision of a County Court Judge, notwithstanding judgment has been signed thereon. R. S. O. 1887, c. 47, s. 13, part; 58 V. c. 13, s. 44 (31).

Formerly there could be no appeal after judgment entered: Murphy v. Northern Ry. Co., 13 C. P. 112; Duffl v. Dickinson, 14 C. P. 142; Wood v. Grand Trunk Ry. Co., 15 C. P. 275.

54. On an appeal the Divisional Court may set aside any judgment which may have been directed to be entered or may have been signed, and direct any other judgment to be entered or direct a new trial to be had, and make any other order as to such Court may appear requisite and just. 58 V. c. 13, s. 44 (41).

See notes to sec. 51, supra, p. 1037.

A respondent, the plaintiff in the action, who has recovered part only of his claim, cannot, on an appeal by defendant, without a cross-appeal, obtain judgment for the whole of his claim: Spears v. Harnden, 17 C. L. T. 84; but see Toronto Junction v. Christie, 25 S. C. R. 551, and formerly Hutson v. Valters, 19 Ont. App. 151.

55. The Judge shall, at the request of the appellant, certify under his hand to the proper officer of the High Court the pleadings in the cause, and all motions, rules or orders made, granted or refused therein, together with the Judge's charge and the judgment or decision on the same, and, where a trial has been had, the evidence and all objections and exceptions thereto, and all other papers in the cause affecting the questions raised by the appeal. R. S. O. 1887, c. 47, s. 51, part; 58 V. c. 13, s. 44 (50).

The certifying of the proceedings under this section is a necessary preliminary to setting down the case: Smith v. Hay, 35 C. L. J. 141; McCarroll v. Metropolitan Gas Co., 19 C. L. T. Dec. S. 2; Rockie v. McVitt, 31 C. L. J. 41, and see Mace v. Thompson, 19 C. P. 94; Baby v. Ross, 19 C. R. 140; Gilmor v. McPhail, 16 P. R. 151. In Lucas v. Holliday, 5 C. L. R. 511, the Court entertained the appeal notwithstanding the omission to certify the proceedings, no objection having been raised.

The Judge should not refuse to certify the papers in a case which is not appealable, it is for the appellate Court to decide whether the appeal can be entertained or not: Re Taggart v. Bennett, 6 O. L. R. 71.

Rule 793. What a Judge certifies as his judgment will be treated as conclusive: Huddleston v. Furness Ry., 15 Times, 238.

Certifying proceedings under
s. 52.

56. In appeals under section 52, the Judge shall only be required under the next preceding section to certify the motions, rules, orders, affidavits, evidence, and other materials, necessary for the full understanding of the matter in appeal, together with his judgment or decision on the same. R. S. O. 1887, c. 47, s. 45.

See Rule 793 and notes, infra, p. 1045.

The certifying of the papers may be compelled by mandamus where the Judge has been applied to, and has refused to certify, and the right to appeal still exists: see Reg. v. Wells, 17 U. C. Q. B. 545; Re Keenahan v. Preston, 21 U. C. Q. B. 461; Orr v. Barrett, 9 C. L. T. 72.

Abandonment or Non-prosecution of a County Court Appeal.—Where an appeal has been properly lodged in the High Court, semble, that in case of its abandonment or non-prosecution after service of notice, Rule 790 is applicable, and a motion to dismiss it is unnecessary: Re Toronto Ry. Co. and City of Toronto, 18 P. R. 489.

Setting
down
appeals.

57. The appeal shall be set down for argument at the first sittings of a Divisional Court of the High Court of Justice which commences after the expiration of one month from the judgment, order or decision complained of, and the Divisional Court shall give such order or direction to the Court below, touching the judgment to be given in the matter, as the law requires; and shall also award costs to either party in its discretion, which costs shall be certified to and form part of the judgment of the Court below; and upon receipt of the order, direction and certificate, the Court below shall proceed in accordance therewith. R. S. O. 1887, c. 47, s. 52, part; 58 V. c. 13, s. 44 (6); 63 V. c. 17, s. 12; 4 Ed. vii. c. 10, s. 15.

Costs.

(2) The Divisional Court shall be deemed to be seised of the appeal if and when the Judge has, pursuant to section 55, certified to the pleadings and other papers and the same have been filed in the High Court. 4 Ed. vii. c. 10, s. 14.

Appeals to Divisional
Court.

(3) A Divisional Court may, subject to rules of Court, extend the time for setting down the appeal, or for giving notice of setting down or for doing any act or taking any proceedings in or in relation to the appeal, and may if the certificate is incomplete or incorrect, direct the same to be amended, or to be sent back to the Judge for amendment, as to the Divisional Court may seem just. 4 Ed. vii. c. 10, s. 14.

The month begins to run from the day on which the order or judgment appealed from was pronounced, but if not delivered in open Court it is not to be considered to be delivered until the parties are notified of it: Fairclerk v. Sincayie, 31 Ont. 256; but the appellant is not obliged to wait the expiration of a month from the judgment or order before setting down the appeal: Lees v. Ottawa & N. Y. Ry., 31 Ont. 567; Smith v. Baptist Church, 1 O. L. R. 195.

As to setting down appeals from district Courts, see R. S. O. c. 109, s. 9 (3): Coutts v. Warton Beet Sugar Co., 39 C. L. J. 788.

793.—(1) In appeals from County Courts, the pleadings, motions, orders and other papers to be certified to the proper officer of the High Court under section 51 (x) of the Act respecting County Courts, shall include: Rules 793, 794.
Papers to be certified.

(x) Now R. S. O. c. 55, s. 55.

(a) The original pleadings;

Where copies only of the pleadings are certified, the Court may, in a proper case, dispense with a literal compliance with this Rule: Lees v. Ottawa & N. Y. Ry. Co., 20 C. L. T. 75; 31 Ont. 567.

(b) Notices of motion, and orders affecting questions raised by the appeal;

(c) The judgment or orders appealed from and the written opinion or decision of the Judge;
also where a trial has been had

(d) The Judge's notes, or where the evidence has been taken by a stenographer, his notes, of the evidence and of any objections and exceptions thereto, and of the rejection of any evidence, and of the Judge's charge.

(e) The exhibits put in at the trial.

(2) The said papers shall be fastened together and transmitted to the Central Office and the same shall be returned to the County Court when the appeal is disposed of.

(3) It shall not be necessary to certify or transmit the evidence or the objections or exceptions thereto, where the appeal is from a judgment or decision upon the pleadings, or upon a motion not founded upon the evidence. See Rules 1 Jan., 1896, 1489 (835).

Where the appeal is brought under s. 52, as to the papers to be certified, see s. 56, supra.

It is not a valid objection to an appeal that the Judge has not expressed in his certificate that the proceedings are certified "to the proper officer of the High Court": see Baby v. Ross, 14 P. R. 410.

Formerly the Court would not ordinarily quash or dismiss an appeal because the judgment appealed from had not been drawn up: see Henderson v. Rogers, 15 P. R. 241, but the Rule now explicitly requires that the formal judgment shall be among the proceedings to be certified.

794. Subject to the next following Rule, any Judge of the County Court appealed from, may, upon application to him, stay proceedings in the action to enable the appeal staying proceedings to Court below.

Rule 795 to be brought upon such terms and for such time as may seem just. Rules of 1 Jan., 1896, 1489 (836).

See also Rule 797, and Cotton v. Corby, 5 U. C. L. J. 67.

Setting
down.

795. The appeal shall be set down to be heard at latest 2 clear days before the first sittings of a Divisional Court, which commences after the expiration of 30 days from the decision complained of, and, where the motion or appeal is founded upon the evidence at or before the time of setting down, the appellant shall deliver to the proper officer 2 copies of the evidence certified as correct for the use of the Judges. Rules of 1 Jan., 1896, 1489 (837), amended.

Taken from App. O. 41.

R. S. O. c. 55, s. 57, is similar, but names "one month" instead of "30 days." It is presumed that the provision of this Rule will prevail over the Statute, as the Rule was passed to vary the Statute, 58 V. c. 13, s. 44 (6), upon which sec. 57 of R. S. O. c. 55, was based, and the Rev Stat. is not to be considered as a new law (69 V. c. 3, s. 9), but as a consolidation of the former Act which fixed the time subject to Rules of Court. The month runs from the date of the delivery of the judicial decision, oral or written, and the order or judgment founded on it must be referred to that date: Faulkes v. Swanzie, 31 Ont. 256. If the decision is not given in open Court, it cannot be said to be pronounced until the parties are notified of it: Id.

Sunday is not reckoned in the thirty days when it is the first day: Cooper v. Dixon, 3 C. L. T. 198 (sed quare); nor when it is the last day: see Rule 345.

The appeal must be set down for a Divisional Court, which begins its sittings not later than 30 days from the decision, but may be set down for an earlier sittings: Lees v. Ottawa & New York Ry. Co., 31 Ont. 567. The appeal cannot be set down until the Judge has certified the papers under R. S. O. c. 55, ss. 55, 56, and Rule 795: Reckie v. McNeil, 31 Ont. 444. After the time limited for setting down has expired there was formerly no jurisdiction to hear the appeal: Id.; but now the Divisional Court has jurisdiction to extend the time: 4 Ed. v. c. 10, s. 11. See section 57, (3) supra, p. 1044.

The fact that a stay of proceedings has been granted by the County Court Judge under Rule 794 for a time extending beyond the commencement of the sittings at which the appeal should be set down under this Rule does not absolve the appellant from the necessity of complying with this Rule: Paul v. Rutledge, 16 P. R. 140; it is presumed that an extension of the time may be obtained under Rule 553: see note on p. 1039; but the appellate Court cannot either dismiss the appeal or extend the time for appealing until the papers are actually sent up: see Gilmer v. McPhail, Id. 151, and sec. 57 (2), supra, p. 1044.

Where notice of hearing is given under Rule 796, but the case is not set down, it seems to be doubtful whether Rule 790 applies. It does not, an application for the dismissal of the appeal or the costs of an abandoned appeal may be made to the Divisional Court on the return day named in the notice of hearing: see notes to Rule 348, supra, p. 554, and O'Donnell v. Guinness, 28 Ont. 389.

796. The appellant shall, at least 7 days before the sitting at which the appeal is to be heard, serve the respondent with notice of hearing and the reasons of appeal. ^{Rules 796-798.} Rules of ^{Notice of} hearing. 1 Jan., 1896, 1489 (845), amended.

As to an extension of the time, see note to Rule 795, at 'see p. 1039.

Where notice is not given within the time limited, or any extension thereof, an appeal is not instituted.

There appears to be no provision requiring the respondent to serve reasons against the appeal.

797. Where notice of hearing of the appeal has been given and the appeal has been set down to be heard, and notice thereof signed by one of the Registrars of the High Court has been given to the sheriff where execution is in his hands, the execution of the judgment or order appealed from shall be stayed pending the appeal, unless otherwise ordered by the Divisional Court or a Judge of the High Court, or by a Judge of the County Court appealed from; and the order may be on such terms as the Court or Judge applied to thinks fit. Rules of 1 Jan., 1896, 1489 (838), amended. (See 58 V. c. 13, s. 8.) ^{staying execution.}

See also Rule 794, under which a County Court Judge may stay proceedings to enable the appeal to be brought.

7. APPEALS TO THE COURT OF APPEAL.

A suitor dissatisfied with the judgment of the High Court may, subject to the provisions of the Jud. Act, ss. 72 et seq., supra, appeal therefrom to the Court of Appeal, or, by consent of all parties, he may appeal directly to the Supreme Court of Canada: R. S. C. c. 135, s. 26 (2); or, by leave of the Supreme Court, he may also appeal directly to that Court, where the judgment or order to be appealed from is pronounced in any action, cause or matter, or other judicial proceeding, in the nature of a suit or proceeding in equity; or in other cases, when the judgment is a final judgment: Ib., s. 26 (3). Cass. S. C. Pr., 13, 20; but to obtain such leave special circumstances must be shewn: Ib., Schultz v. Wood, 6 S. C. R. 587; Bank of B. N. A. v. Walker, Cass. Dig. 382; Scirell v. British Columbia Towing Co., Ib., 381; Moffatt v. The Merchants Bank, 11 S. C. R. 46; Cass. Dig. 382; Lungtry v. Dumoulin, Ib.; Kyle v. Canada Compting, 15 S. C. R. 188; Histop v. McGilivray, Ib.

The Rules regulating appeals from the High Court to the Court of Appeal apply, so far as appropriate, to appeals from the Drainage Referee: R. Raleigh, 18 P. R. 73.

798. An appeal to the Court of Appeal shall be a step in the cause or matter in which the judgment or order complained of was given, and shall be upon a case to be stated ^{appeal to be a step in cause, and on a case stated.}

Rule 799. by the parties, or in the event of difference, to be settled by the Court appealed from, or a Judge thereof, and such case shall set forth the judgment, order or decision complained of, and so much of the pleadings, evidence and other documents as may be necessary to raise the question for the decision of the Court of Appeal. New. See Con. Rule 813 and Rules of 1 January, 1896, 1488 (813).

The formal judgment as drawn up must be included in the appeal book. That is the subject of the appeal, and not the reasons upon which it is founded: Thompson v. Robinson, 16 Ont. App. at p. 184.

Documents not proved or produced at the trial cannot be relied on, or made part of the case in appeal: Lionais v. Holson, 10 S. C. R. 527.

The burden of procuring from "the Court appealed from, or a Judge thereof," an appointment to settle the appeal book, is on the appellant, though the respondent may under Rule 801 (3) move in the matter if he chooses: Oatman v. Michigan Central R. Co., 1 O. L. R. 636.

See also Rule 806 and notes.

Commencement of
appeal.

799.—(1) The appeal shall be commenced by a notice of intention to appeal according to Form No. 68.

Notice of
appeal.

(2) The notice shall be filed in the office in which the proceedings were commenced, and shall be served upon the parties affected by the appeal within one month after the date of the judgment, order or decision complained of, or within such further time as the Court of Appeal or a Judge thereof may allow. New. See 58 V. c. 12, s. 78 (1).

The date of a judgment or order is the day on which it was pronounced: see Rule 629; but see Wallace v. Bath, 7 O. L. R. 742.

Vacation is not to be reckoned in the month: Rule 352 (c).

The notice, Form 68 (H. & L. Forms, No. 1155), is entitled in the High Court, but it is also the "commencement" of the appeal, and all subsequent proceedings should be entitled in the Court of Appeal. Formerly the appeal was not initiated by a notice under R. S. O. 1887, c. 44, s. 71, nor until security was given: see Smith v. Smith, 11 P. R. 6; Donovan v. Haldane, 14 P. R. 106.

Service.

The retainer of a solicitor continues after judgment, so as to make service of notice of appeal on him good service on the client until the client takes proper steps to inform his opponent that he has withdrawn his authority: De la Pole v. Dick, 20 Ch. D. 351.

Notice must be formal notice.

The notice of appeal must be a formal notice, i.e. mere communication, verbal or otherwise, by an unsuccessful party to his opponent of his intention to appeal is not sufficient notice of appeal: In re Blyth & Young, 13 Ch. D. 416; Re New Callan Co., 22 Ch. D. 481; see Kettlewell v. Watson, W. N. 1883, 102.

Service of the notice is now to be upon all parties "affected by the Rule 799. appeal." It would, therefore, seem to be necessary for a defendant appealing to serve any co-defendant or third party against whom he claims relief over, and probably all against whom the plaintiff, in case the appeal is successful, can claim any relief different from that which the judgment already gives him: see formerly Freed v. Orr, 6 Ont. App. 690, not followed in Johnston v. Petrovic, 17 P. R. 332; Re Salmon, 42 Ch. D. 351; see also Rules 811 and 813 and notes.

The service of notice as required by the Statute is not a condition precedent to the jurisdiction of the Court to hear the appeal, and may be waived by the respondent: see Park Gate Iron Co. v. Coutts, L. R. 5 C. P. 634. Notice of appeal not necessary to give Court jurisdiction.

Where a notice of appeal has been given contrary to an undertaking not to appeal, the notice may be set aside on a motion to the High Court: Donovan v. Haldane, 14 P. R. 106.

"Parties Affected by the Appeal."—Where a plaintiff appeals third parties are apparently, under the corresponding English Rule, not "directly affected by the appeal": Re Salmon, 42 Ch. D. 351, but quære whether they are not "affected by the appeal," within the above Rule 799: Eckenswiler v. Coyle, 18 P. R. 433; but see O'Sullivan v. Lake, 12 P. R. 550.

"Within such Further Time."

The language of this Rule is very similar to that of Con. Stat. U. C. c. 13, s. 25, under which it was held that the mere statement of an unexplained oversight on the part of a solicitor, was an insufficient ground for extending the time for giving notice of appeal, though it might be otherwise if an important question of law were involved, as to which there was a conflict between the Courts: Gordon v. Great Western Ry., 6 P. R. 300.

Under the present practice relief will be granted against a slip in practice, such as a failure to give notice of appeal, wherever the justice of the case requires it, and no injury has resulted to the opposite party which cannot be compensated for by costs; and, in considering what justice requires, regard is to be had to the bona fides of the applicant, and whether or not his proposed appeal appears to be groundless or frivolous: Ross v. Robertson, 7 O. L. R. 464; Ray v. Port Arthur, 7 O. L. R. 737.

Before applying for an extension of time, the solicitor requiring the time should apply for it to the opposite solicitor, who should in every proper case grant it: Bodine v. Howe, 1 O. L. R. 208. Where the opposite party unreasonably refused to consent to extend the time, an order extending the time was made without costs: Bodine v. Howe, 1 O. L. R. 208; and see McGuire v. Corry, Id., 590, where the costs of the application were made costs on the appeal. When allowed to be served after time has elapsed.

Where the notice was served on the last day after office hours, the notice was allowed, but the Court doubted whether the section requiring notice applied in that particular case: Rose v. Hickey, 7 P. R. 390; and where notice had been served in due time on the respondent, but, through the negligence of a clerk of the appellant's solicitor, notice had not been served on the Registrar of the Court appealed from (which was then necessary), notice was allowed to be served on payment of costs: Re Laws, 9 P. R. 72; and see Re Crosby, Munns v. Burn, 34 Ch. D. 664; and where notice had been given, but the appeal was not set down in time, but security had been given for a large part of the debt and costs, leave to prosecute the appeal

Rules was given on terms: D'Ivry v. The World, 17 P. R. 543; see also 800, 801. Thurcson v. Thurcson, 18 P. R. 414; but where nothing was done within the time, and no sufficient special circumstances were shown, leave was refused: Miller v. Brown, 9 P. R. 542. In England a delay of three days beyond the prescribed time in delivering notice to the officer has been held fatal to the right of appeal: Ex parte Lamb, 45
 L. T. 639, and see Ex parte Lyon, ib. 768; Re Blyth & Young, 13 Ch.
 D. 416; and Wright v. Leys, 10 P. R. 354.

See also the cases relating to applications for leave to appeal in notes to Rule 353.

Sittings at which to be set down.

800. The appeal shall be set down to be heard for, at latest, the first day of the first sittings of the Court of Appeal, which commences after the expiration of 6 weeks from the date of the judgment, order or decision complained of, unless otherwise ordered by the Court of Appeal or a Judge thereof.
See Rules 1 January, 1896, 1847 (804).

For the sittings of the Court of Appeal, see Rules 95 and 96.

The date of the judgment, etc., is the date of pronouncing it; see
Rule 629.

Statement of draft case.

801.—(1) At the time of serving the notice of intention to appeal, or within 4 days thereafter, or within such further time as the Court of Appeal or a Judge thereof may allow, the appellant shall serve the respondent with a draft of the appeal case or book as proposed by the appellant, together with his reasons of appeal. See Rules 1 Jan., 1896, 1488 (814).

Draft, what to contain.

(2) Such draft shall consist of the documents or copies thereof which the appellant proposes shall constitute the appeal book, or a list or statement of such of said documents as are proposed to be set out in the appeal book in full, and copies of the portions proposed to be used of such documents as are not proposed to be set out in full.

To be returned by respondent.

(3) The respondent shall return the draft appeal book within 4 days, with his modifications or suggestions, and in the event of difference, either party may give 2 clear days' notice of an application to the Court or a Judge to settle the case. The respondent shall serve his reasons against appeal within 6 days after service of the draft appeal book.
New.

The "respondent" will, it is presumed, be construed to mean all persons who are "affected by the appeal," and who must therefore be served with the notices provided for by Rules 799 and 811.

The Court, or Judge, to settle the case in the event of the parties differing, is the Court appealed from, or a Judge thereof: see Rule 801. 798.

Where the parties cannot agree as to the form of the case the duty rests on the appellant to obtain an appointment from the Court appealed from, or a Judge thereof, to settle it; although under s.-s. (31) of this Rule, the respondent may apply therefor if so disposed: Oatman v. Michigan Centl. Ry., 1 O. L. R. 636.

The case should only contain so much of the proceedings as is necessary to raise the questions involved in the appeal. In Parsons v. Standard Ins. Co., 4 Ont. App. at p. 330, Burton, J.A., in remarking upon the unnecessary length of the case, said: "It appears to us to be a very grave abuse and violation of the Rules we have made on the subject, and we do not intend to impose upon the Registrar the task which the appellants have cast upon us of wading through this mass of matter for the purpose of discovering whether some portion of it may properly be applicable to this appeal, but we disallow the whole of the appeal books in the taxation. If a similar case should occur again after this warning it will be our duty seriously to consider whether it is not sufficient reason for refusing the whole costs of the appeal"; see also Bryce v. Lontel, 21 Ont. App. 100.

If the notes of the evidence taken have been lost, the Court of Appeal may allow the evidence to be taken over again: Ex parte Firth, Re Cornburn, 19 Ch. D. 419; 51 L. J. Chy. 473.

A new point may not be allowed to be raised in the Court of Appeal, where, if raised, it might have been met by evidence: Th. v. Raudwick v. Australian C. I. Corp., 1893, A. C. 322; Brown v. Dunn, 6 L. 67; Martin v. Great Northern Ry., 16 C. B. 179; see also Millar v. McTuygart, 20 Ont. 617; Connecticut F. Ins. Co. v. Kavanagh, 1892, A. C. 473; 67 L. T. 508; and the Court will not decide such point in favour of the party taking it, unless it is satisfied that it has all the facts before it, and that no satisfactory answer to it could have been given: Tasmania v. City of Corinth, 15 App. Cas. 223, approved by P. C.; Karunaratne v. Ferdinandus, 1902, A. C. 467; 86 L. T. 329; Archambault v. Archambault, 1902, A. C. 575; 87 L. T. 404.

Where certain issues were not raised on the pleadings, but at the trial had been treated as if raised, the objection that they were not pleaded was not allowed to be taken in the Court of Appeal, because if taken at the trial an amendment would have been allowed: Kennan v. Murphy, 8 L. R. Ir. 285.

A point of law not taken at the trial may be raised for the first time on appeal: see McKelvey v. Le Roi Mining Co., 32 S. C. R. 664; provided that the appellate Court is satisfied that it has before it all the facts bearing on the new contention as completely as if it had been raised at the trial: Karunaratne v. Ferdinandus, 1902, A. C. 467; 86 L. T. 329; Archambault v. Archambault, 1902, A. C. 575; 87 L. T. 404; and see the Queen v. Poirier, 30 S. C. R. 36.

Where an appellant succeeds upon a point not adjudicated upon in the Court below he may not be allowed his costs: Goddard v. Jeffreys, 46 L. T. 904; Page v. Austin, 7 Ont. App. 1; Van Velsor v. Hughson, 9 Ont. App. 290; Cooper v. Cooper, 53 L. T. 1. See also p. 1010.

In the Privy Council an appellant is not allowed to take a point not taken in the Court below: Corporation of Adelaide v. White, 55

Rules
802-804.

L. T. 3; Rundwick v. Australian C. I. Corp., supra; Connecticut P. Ins. Co. v. Kavanagh, 1892, A. C. 473; or to raise questions not raised in the Court below either on the pleadings or evidence; Gies v. Manitoba & N. W. Ry., 1897, A. C. 254; but see McKeel v. Le Roi Mining Co., Karunaratne v. Ferdinandus, and Archambault v. Archambault, supra.

Appeal
books, when to be printed.

802.—(1) Unless otherwise ordered by the Court of Appeal or a Judge thereof as hereafter provided, the appeal books need not be printed in the following cases:

(a) Appeals under sub-clauses (a), (b), (d), (e), (f), (g), (h), (i), (j), (k), (n), and (o), of section 50 (2) of the Judicature Act, as amended by the Act 4 Ed. vii. cap. iii, entitled "An Act to amend the Judicature Act."

(b) Appeals under sub-clauses (e) and (f) of section 56 (1) of the Judicature Act as amended by the afore-said Act.

(2) In cases of appeal under sub-clause (c) of the afore-said section 50 (2), only so much of the evidence and exhibits shall be printed as pertain to the questions involved in the appeal; and, in the event of difference between the parties as to what the book should contain, the same shall be settled by the trial Judges, or one of them, on application, of which 7 clear days' notice shall be given to the opposite party. Rule 1265, 20 June, 1904; Ont. Gaz., 25 June, 1904.

Subject to this Rule and Rule 803, appeal books must be printed; see sec. 76b of the Jud. Act, supra, p. 138.

What may be printed.

803. The Court of Appeal or a Judge thereof may order the appeal book in any of the cases specified in Rule 802 (1) or any of the documents or proceedings or other papers therein to be printed; and may under special circumstances dispense with printing in a case in which printing would otherwise be necessary. Rule 1265, 18 June, 1904.

In the cases mentioned in which the printing of appeal books is not compulsory, it is probable that, except where, for the convenience of the Court of Appeal, cases ought to be printed, the Court will not, as a rule, force that course upon an unwilling appellant, at the instance of a respondent, upon a motion under this Rule; see Trotter v. Dominion Construction Co., 18 P. R. 16. If the respondent desires to have the appeal case printed, he may have it done at his own expense; and the appellant may be put on terms in the event of a further appeal by him, upon which a printed case will be necessary, as to the use of the books printed by respondent: Id.

Reasons for and against
appeal.

804.—(1) The reasons for and against the appeal shall contain a statement of the points of law intended to be argued, and the authorities relied upon. Rules 1 January, 1896, 1488 (817).

(2) If the appeal is from a part only of the judgment, ^{Rules 805, 806.} the reasons of appeal shall specify the part. Rules 1 January, 1896, 1488 (814a).

(3) If the respondent neglects to serve reasons against the appeal, the Court may hear the appeal ex parte and give judgment thereon.

(4) A respondent who has made default in service of the reasons against appeal may apply to the Court of Appeal or a Judge thereof for leave to serve his reasons, and leave may be given on such terms as may seem just. See Rules 1 January, 1896, 1488 (815, 816).

See also Rule 805.

805.—(1) The reasons of appeal and reasons against appeal shall form part of the appeal book, and the book shall contain the names and the written opinions of the Judges appealed from, but if such opinions have appeared in the official reports, a reference thereto shall be sufficient. See Rules 1 January, 1896, 1488 (819). ^{Appeal books to contain certain matters.}

(2) The copies of evidence to be contained in the appeal book, where not printed, may be procured from the stenographer, or may be made by the appellant's solicitor; but if made by the appellant's solicitor, no greater sum shall be allowed therefor than would be payable and allowed if the copies were furnished by the stenographer. See Rules 1 January, 1896, 1488 (818). ^{Copies of evidence.}

See Rule 792 and notes.

806.—(1) Where the appeal book or any matter is printed, the same shall be printed on paper of good quality, on one side of the paper only, and in demy-quarto form, with small pica type leaded; and the size of the books shall be 11 inches in length, and 8½ inches in width. Rules of 1 January, 1896, 1488 (821). ^{Form of printed appeal books.}

(2) The Registrar shall not file printed appeal books or printed matter for use on the appeal without the leave of a Judge, if this Rule has not been complied with. Rules of 1 January, 1896, 1488 (822).

Rule 806.

(3) If the press has not been carefully corrected, the Court may disallow the costs of printing, or may decline to hear the appeal, and make such order as to postponement and payment of costs as may seem just. Rules of 1 January, 1896, 1488 (823).

The following directions respecting the printing of appeal books, formerly issued by the Court of Appeal before 38 V. c. 13, s. 8 (G), by which printing of books became no longer necessary, are now again to be followed, having been re-issued on 8th Oct., 1894.

The Registrar, before receiving any appeal book, is to see that the following requirements have been observed:

1. Paper: good quality, printed on one side only. (The book should have the printed page on the left hand side).
2. Form: demy quarto, 11 × 8½ inches.
3. Type: pica leaded or small pica leaded. (Pica leaded preferred).
4. Marginal numbering of every tenth line of each page (and see Rule 809).

The numbering of the lines is not to run on through the book, but the lines of each page are to be numbered separately, e.g., 10, 20, 30, 40 (and see Rule 809).

5. Index of principal matters.

The index is to shew in detail

- (a) Each pleading, rule, order, or entry, with its date.
- (b) Each witness by name.
- (c) Each exhibit or other document, with its description and date.

The index is to be at the beginning of the book, and is not to be arranged alphabetically, but in the order in which the matters are printed in the book.

The Registrar is also to see that the title page contains a correct statement of the Court or Judge whose judgment is appealed from. An appeal from a single Judge is to be stated to be an appeal from the Judge, giving his name.

The appeal book is to contain the date of the first proceeding and the date of the filing of the several pleadings at the commencement of the copy thereof.

The provision as to printed books, which requires the reading matter to be on the left hand side, applies also to typewritten appeal books, and to copies of evidence, or examinations, which form part of the case, and the Registrar has been directed by the Court to refuse to accept any books where this rule has not been complied with.

Where no written judgment has been given by the Court or Judge appealed from, a statement of the grounds assigned for the judgment should be obtained from the reporter, or from the notes of counsel, and should be inserted in the appeal book: Blackley v. Kemp, 16 Ont. App. 523.

Documents not proved or produced at the trial cannot be put in as a part of the case in appeal: Lionais v. Molson, 10 S. C. R. 527.

In Barber v. Morton, 2 C. L. T. 340, Burton, J.A., said: "I think Rules 807-810. there is no reason to interfere with the previous decision in this Court as to allowing ten cents a folio for revising proof. It is, I think, little enough if the work is properly done; and if not properly done then the Court should adhere to its Rule and disallow this charge altogether."

807. The appeal book when not printed shall be legibly type-written, in words at length, in the form in which copies of evidence are furnished by stenographers for use in the High Court. See Con. Rule 818; Rules 1 January, 1896, 1488 (818) b. Form of appeal book when not printed.

808. The appellant, if costs are awarded to him, shall, when the appeal book has not been printed, be entitled to a sum not exceeding 30 cents per folio for one copy of the appeal book, for the making of all copies of necessary matter, other than evidence, included in the appeal books delivered. New. Allowance for preparing appeal books when not printed.

809. The appeal books whether type-written or printed shall have the pages numbered consecutively and every tenth line of each page shall be numbered in the margin. The numbering shall be from the top of the page and not from the beginning of the book. See Rules 1 January, 1896, 1488 (821). Pages of appeal books, how to be numbered.

810—(1) Where the appeal book or any matter is printed, the appellant shall, 7 clear days before the first day of the sittings at which the appeal is to be heard, deliver to the respondent 2 printed appeal books or copies of printed matter, and shall, at or before the time when the appeal is required to be set down, deliver one of such copies to the Registrar of the Court of Appeal, to be filed, and 10 copies for the use of the Judges and officers of the Court, and also 30 copies for the purpose of being delivered in the event of an appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada, to the party appealing to that Court, for use upon such appeal. Rules of 1 January, 1896, 1488 (824). Delivery of appeal books.

(2) Where the appeal book is not printed the appellant shall (subject to the provisions of Rule 812) serve the respondent with a copy within the time limited for service of notice of hearing of the appeal. New.

Rules
811, 812.
Notice of argument.

811. Notice of hearing of the appeal (which may be according to Form No. 69) shall be given to all parties affected by the appeal, 7 clear days before the first day of the sittings at which the appeal is to be heard. New. See Rules 1 January, 1896, 1487 (804).

For Form No. 69, see H. & L. Forms No. 1162.

"Parties Affected by the Appeal."—See note to Rule 799.

An appellant ought to serve notice on all parties who will be affected by the order of the Court of Appeal; and if such person is not served, he may appear without service and obtain costs: Re New Cullao, etc., 22 Ch. D. 481. A third party who obtains leave to appear at the trial, and take such part as the presiding Judge directs, is entitled to notice of an appeal by the plaintiff from a judgment dismissing the action: Eckenswiler v. Coyle, 18 P. R. 123.

See also notes to Rule 799.

Trustees served with notice of appeal, and holding merely a neutral position, without any intention of taking any part in the argument, ought not to appear by separate counsel on the appeal: Carroll v. Graham, 1905, 1 Ch. 178.

Setting
down
appeal.

812.—(1) The Registrar shall set down an appeal upon delivery to him 2 clear days before the sittings of the Court at which the appeal is to be heard, of such number of appeal books as are necessary for the use of the Judges who are to hear the appeal.

(2) If at the time when notice of hearing of the appeal should be given or when the appeal should be set down, copies of the stenographer's notes of evidence have not been prepared by him, the appellant, where the appeal book is not to be printed, may deliver the same to the respondent with the notice of hearing, or to the Registrar on setting down the appeal, as the case may be, without the evidence, and shall deliver the necessary copies of the evidence to the respondent and the Registrar as soon as possible thereafter and before the argument of the appeal. New. See Rules 1 January, 1896, 1488 (818).

It is the appellant's duty to set down the appeal, and for that purpose to get the case settled by a Judge if the parties differ: Outman v. Michigan Central Ry., 1 O. L. R. 624.

Where a motion was made to confirm an entry of an appeal made after the proper time, which the respondent should have consented to, no costs of the application were allowed: McLaughlin v. Mayhew, 7 O. L. R. 111.

818. A cross appeal shall not in any circumstances be necessary, but if a respondent intends upon the hearing to contend that the decision should be varied, he shall, in his reasons against the appeal, give notice of such contention to any party who may be affected thereby, and shall concisely state the grounds. The omission to give such notice shall not affect the power of the Court of Appeal, but may, in the discretion of the Court, be ground for an adjournment of the appeal, or for a special order as to costs. Rules of 1 January, 1896, 1488 (825).

Rule 813.

Cross appeal unnecessary. Proceedings in lieu of.

Taken from App. Orders (1878) O. 16.

As to the concluding clause, see Toronto Junction v. Christie, 25 S. C. R. 551, where cross relief was given though there was no cross appeal; and see Rule 817 (3), infra; and Hunter v. Hunter, 24 W. R. 527; but see Stephens v. Chausse, 15 S. C. R. 370, where it was held if there is no cross appeal the judgment cannot be modified in respondent's favour; but see Atty-Gen. v. Simpson and Challoner v. Lobo, infra.

This Rule is substantially the same as the English (1883) R. 570. Under the English practice, however, by which security for costs is not required to be given by an appellant, it is of less importance how parties are brought before the Court, and possibly the present Rule may, therefore, be more strictly construed than the corresponding Eng. Rule.

Notice by way of cross appeal will come on with the original appeal: see Coney v. Nichols, 7 L. R. Ir. 107.

Notice by a respondent under the English Rule to vary the decision of the Court was proceeded upon, though the point was one in which the original appellant had no interest: Ralph v. Carrick, 11 Ch. D. 873. But the Court will not, under the power contained in this Rule, entertain a cross appeal merely on a question of costs: Harris v. Aaron, 4 Ch. D. 749.

Where a claim and counter-claim are both dismissed, and the defendant appeals from the judgment on the counter-claim, if the plaintiff desires also to appeal from the judgment on his claim, he must bring a cross-appeal, and cannot raise the question by a notice under this Rule: National Society, etc., v. Gibb, 1900, 2 Ch. 280.

The Rule does not enable a respondent to give notice of cross appeal to parties or persons who are in no way affected by the original appeal: Begg v. Ellison, 14 P. R. 267; Johnston v. Petrolia, 17 P. R. 332; Re Cavander, 16 Ch. D. 270.

A respondent questioning the judgment under this Rule is so far in the same position as an appellant, that anything which would be an answer to an independent appeal by him will be an answer to his cross appeal: Re Charles Stark Co., 15 P. R. 451; but proceedings taken under this Rule are only a branch of the main appeal, and fall with the latter if it be discontinued, or dismissed for want of prosecution: Pickering v. Toronto Ry. Co., 16 P. R. 144; but see The Borsring, 10 P. D. 18, where it was held that where after a cross notice given, the appellant discontinues or abandons, the respondent's notice is to be treated as a cross appeal, but the appellant may bring Rule 814. forward the matter of his appeal by way of objection to the cross appeal.

A respondent may serve notice under this Rule on a co-respondent claiming a variation in his favour of the judgment appealed from: Ex p. Payne, 11 Ch. D. 539; Harrison v. Cornwall, etc., 18 Ch. D. 334; but, apparently, not in respect to a question in which the appellant is not interested; an independent appeal in such case would seem to be necessary: Johnston v. Petrolia, 17 P. R. 332, not following Freed v. Orr, 6 Ont. App. 690.

But where judgment was recovered against a township corporation, and a contractor, restraining them from constructing a drain, and ordering them to pay the costs of the action, but directing the township to indemnify the contractor as to such costs, and the township alone appealed, making the contractor a respondent, which appeal was allowed; it was held that as no case for relief was made against the contractor, except through the township, and the case failing against the township, the action should be dismissed as against both defendants, and that the contractor was entitled to his costs of action, but not of the appeal: Challoner v. Lobo, 1 O. L. R. 156, 292; 32 S. C. R. 505.

In Atty.-Gen. v. Simpson, 1901, 2 Ch. 671, acting under Eng. R. 808 (o. 58, r. 4), corresponding to Con. Rule 817, a judgment was varied in favour of a respondent, where the appeal was being allowed on other points, although there was no cross-appeal.

Where a respondent sought to vary the order appealed from, leave to enforce the order pending the appeal without prejudice to his cross appeal was refused: Re Stark, 15 P. R. 451.

Costs.—Where respondents gave notice of intention to have the judgment varied, and both appeals were dismissed, the appellants were ordered to pay the costs, except such as were occasioned by the notice: The Lauretta, 4 P. D. 25.

Where there were two respondents, one of whom gave a cross notice affecting the other respondent, the appellant, whose appeal was dismissed, was ordered to pay half the costs of both the respondents, and the unsuccessful respondent in the cross appeal was ordered to pay half the costs of the other respondent: Harrison v. Cornwall Mineral Ry. Co., 18 Ch. D. 334. Where, however, the costs could not have been materially increased by the notice, no apportionment was made, but a fixed sum was allowed for costs incidental to the notice: Robinson v. Drakes, 23 Ch. D. 98.

As to the costs of a respondent who has given no notice of objection under this Rule, and as to whom the judgment appealed from is reversed, see Challoner v. Lobo, supra.

Style of proceedings.

814. The style of the cause in the Court below shall be used and retained in every proceeding in the Court of Appeal, the designation "appellant" or "respondent" being added, e.g., Rules of 1 Jan., 1896. 1488 (827).

815. Where a party not served ought to be notified, the Court may direct service to be made, and may postpone the hearing of the appeal for that purpose, upon such terms as may seem just. Con. Rule 828.

Rules 815-817.
Court may order parties not served to be notified

In Re Salmon, Priest v. Tophay, 61 L. T. 146; W. N. 1889, 106, the Court directed third parties to be served, who, if the judgment were reversed, would have to indemnify defendant, the defendant so desiring, though the Court considered that the third parties were only indirectly affected. The defendant was ordered to pay the costs of the adjournment.

As a rule a respondent will not be heard by counsel in support of the appellant's case, but the rule may be relaxed; see Re Marquis of Ailesbury's Settled Estates, 1892, 1 Ch. 506.

816. If either party neglects to appear the Court may hear the other party, and give judgment or may postpone the hearing upon such terms as may seem just. Con. Rule 829.

Default of parties at hearing—effect of.

817.—(1) The Court shall have power to give any judgment which ought to have been pronounced and to make such further or other order as may seem just.

Powers of Court as to pronouncing judgment in the case.

(2) The Court [shall have power to draw inferences of fact, not inconsistent with the findings of the jury, if any, and] may, if satisfied that there are before the Court all the materials necessary for finally determining the questions in dispute, or any of them, or for awarding any relief sought, give judgment accordingly; or, if of opinion that there are not sufficient materials before it to enable it to give judgment, the Court may direct the appeal to stand over for further consideration, and such issues or questions to be tried or determined, and such accounts and inquiries to be taken and made, as it may think fit.

(3) The powers aforesaid may be exercised notwithstanding that the appeal is only as to part of the judgment, order or decision, and may be exercised in favour of all or any of the parties, although such parties may not have appealed. New.

The powers conferred by clause (2) are similar to those conferred on a Divisional Court by Rule 615, except that that Rule does not contain the words in brackets. See notes to Rule 615.

Clause (3) is only a repetition of what is provided by sec. 76 of the Act.

Rule 818. Under this Rule the Court of Appeal may vary a judgment appealed from in favour of a respondent who has not given any notice of cross appeal: Attorney-General v. Simpson, 1901, 2 Ch. 671; 85 L. T. 325; see also Challoner v. Lobo, 1 O. L. R. 292; 32 S. C. R. 505, in note to Rule 813.

Where the Court of Appeal is equally divided the judgment in appeal is affirmed, and usually with costs: Long v. Hancock, 12 Ont. App. 156; but the Court may refuse to give costs: Re Stratford & Huron, 38 U. C. Q. B. 112; and where, on a motion to quash, the Court was equally divided in opinion as to their jurisdiction to hear the appeal, no costs were given: Whiting v. Hovey, 12 Ont. App. 119.

In the Supreme Court the practice in such a case seems uniformly to have been to give no costs, though the Court may give the respondent costs where it thinks that course would be proper: see Poulin v. Quebec, 9 S. C. R. 185, and Cassel's Dig. p. 676.

Where a decision is affirmed in consequence of the appellate Court being equally divided, it has been held that the appellate Court is not bound by the decision, where the point involved arises in a subsequent case: Re Stanstead Election, 20 S. C. R. 12; see also Clarkson v. Atty.-Gen., 16 Ont. App. 202; and see supra, pp. 139-40.

As to costs in the case of a non-suit set aside, where respondents contended that the Judge had acted ex mero motu, see Mills v. Hamilton St. Ry., 17 P. R. 74, in note "Costs," on p. 1039.

Where an objection, held to be fatal, was taken by an appellant on appeal, but had not been taken in the Court below, the appellant was allowed costs of the appeal, but not costs of the hearing in the Court below: Re O. C. S., a Debtor, 1904, 2 K. B. 161. See also Horton v. Bosson, 1899, W. N. 23, 38.

The Registrar to certify result of appeal.

818. The decision of the Court of Appeal shall be certified by the Registrar to the officer of the High Court with whom the judgment or order appealed from was entered, who shall thereupon cause the same to be entered in the proper judgment or order book, and all subsequent proceedings may be taken thereupon, as if the decision had been given in the Court below. Con. Rule 830.

(a) Upon the filing of the order of His Majesty, in His Privy Council, made upon an appeal to His Majesty in Council, with the officer of the High Court with whom the judgment or order appealed from was entered, he shall thereupon cause the same to be entered in the proper book, and all subsequent proceedings may be taken thereupon as if the decision had been given in the Court below.

(b) When the judgment of the Supreme Court of Canada in appeal has been certified by the Registrar of the Court to the proper officer of the High Court he shall thereupon make all proper and necessary entries thereof, and all subsequent proceedings may be taken thereupon as if the judgment had been given or pronounced in the High Court. See R. S. O. Rule 819. c. 135, sec. 67. Rule 1255, 28th November, 1903.

As to the application of clauses (a) and (b) to pending cases, see Earle v. Burland, 8 O. L. R. 174, 176; 5 O. W. R. 629. 44:997.R.663

Since the Jud. Act, though not by reason of any provision contained in it, the Master in Chambers has held that an order in Chambers making the certificate of the Court of Appeal an order of the High Court is unnecessary: Freed v. Orr, 9 P. R. 181; Lowson v. Canada Farmers Ins. Co., ib., 185. Under Rule 818 the proper officer of the High Court can, without order, enter in the Judgment Book the certificate of the Court of Appeal, the Order of His Majesty in His Privy Council, or the certificate of the Supreme Court, and it may thereupon be acted on as a judgment of the High Court: see Lowson v. Canada Farmers Ins. Co., 8 Ont. App. 613. Process may then be issued on the judgment so entered, without further order: Lowson v. Canada Farmers, etc., supra. The judgment entered in the High Court must not be altered in accordance with the certificate of the Court of Appeal, where such certificate varies the judgment appealed from. The inconveniences attending any physical alteration of the records of the Court are pointed out in 19 C. L. J. 302; and it is now forbidden by Rule 315, supra.

The certificate of the Court of Appeal, or Supreme Court, or the order of His Majesty in His Privy Council, is entered in the judgment book verbatim et literatim, and a note referring thereto is made in the margin of the entry of the original judgment, or order, affected thereby: it should be entered in the same office in which the order or judgment appealed from was entered.

The Registrar in drawing up the certificate may introduce any proper and usual provision though not expressly ordered in the judgment delivered on the appeal, and this authority extends to the insertion of directions for the restitution of money paid in obedience to a reversed judgment: McKindsey v. Armstrong, 11 P. R. 200.

When the certificate drawn up and issued, does not conform to the judgment of the Court, a motion may be made to amend it, so as to make it conform thereto: St. John v. Rykert, 3 C. L. T. 119; McKindsey v. Armstrong, 1 P. R. 200; and see notes preceding Rule 640.

Where an injunction order had been varied by the Court of Appeal by suspending its operation for a time, it was held that a further extension might be granted by the Court below: Shelfer v. London Electric, etc., 1895, 2 Ch. 388.

The Supreme Court will not go behind the certificate as to the result of the appeal: Booth v. Ratté, 21 S. C. R. 637.

After the certificate of the Court of Appeal has issued under this Rule, the cause is no longer in the Court of Appeal, except as regards any application in reference to the certificate, but all subsequent proceedings are to be taken in the High Court, and any application to stay proceedings pending any further appeal must be made to the High Court: Hargrove v. Royal Templars, 2 O. L. R. 126.

819. Where the Registrar considers a notice of settling the certificate of the Court of Appeal to be proper, he shall appoint a time for the purpose, and 2 clear days' notice thereof shall be given. Con. Rule 831. Certificate of appeal—settle-ment of.

Rules
820-822.
 Moving to vary minutes of certificate.

Appellants may discontinue.

Any party dissatisfied with the minutes of the certificate, may move to vary them: General Share and Trust Co. v. Wetley, 20 Ch. D. 130; and see notes to Rules 624-627.

820 An appellant may discontinue his appeal by giving to the respondent a notice signed by the appellant or his solicitor, stating that he discontinues, and thereupon the respondent shall be entitled to the costs of the appeal. Con. Rule 832.

Where an appellant has given notice of his intention to withdraw his appeal and has obtained respondent's consent, he cannot afterwards revoke it and proceed with the appeal: Watson v. Cave, 29 W. R. 768; 44 L. T. 40; 50 L. J. Chy. 561; 17 C. L. J. 366.

After notice of abandonment of an appeal has been given, any application for leave to restore it must be supported by evidence showing the existence of a prima facie ground of appeal: Union Bank v. Rideau Lumber Co., 19 P. R. 106.

Where the Court had no jurisdiction, an appeal was quashed, with costs, the Court, on the merits seeing no reason to differ from the decision of the Court below: Teskey v. Neil, 15 L. R. 244.

As to the costs on discontinuance, see Rule 822.

As to quashing appeals, see sec. 51 of the Act.

Effect of default in giving notice of appeal or security.

821. If an appellant who has served a notice of appeal does not give security as hereinafter provided, in case security is not dispensed with, or does not set the appeal down, he shall be deemed to have abandoned the same, and the respondent shall be entitled to the costs of the appeal. Rules of 1 Jan., 1896, 1488 (826).

This Rule obviates in most cases the necessity of moving, as was the former practice, to dismiss for want of prosecution; see Con. Rules, 1888, R. 826; Re Toronto Ry. Co. v. Toronto, 18 P. R. 489.

After an appellant is in default, as in this Rule mentioned, he is strictly speaking not entitled to proceed further without obtaining leave, on application, for that purpose, on the granting of which proper terms may be imposed; see D'Ivy v. The World, 17 P. R. 543.

Costs on discontinuance or abandonment.

822. The costs under Rules 820 and 821 may be taxed without an order upon the production of the notice of discontinuance served, or of the notice of appeal, with an affidavit that the appeal has not been set down; and if the costs are not paid within 4 days from taxation the respondent may obtain on proceipe an order, in the Court appealed from, for payment of the same on filing the certificate of taxation and an affidavit of non-payment of the costs. Con. Rule 832. last part amended.

823. A respondent may consent to the reversal of the judgment, order or proceeding appealed against, by giving to the appellant a notice of such consent signed by him or his solicitor, and thereupon the Court may pronounce judgment of reversal. Con. Rule 833.

Rules
823-826.

A respondent may consent to a reversal of the judgment, etc.

824 On an appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada a case shall not be certified unless the proof sheets of the judgments in the Court of Appeal have been submitted to the Judges thereof for correction. Con. Rule 834.

Appeal to Supreme Court.

8. STAY OF EXECUTION AND SECURITY ON APPEALS.

(i) General Rules.

825. No security for costs shall be required on a motion or appeal to a Divisional Court. See 58 V. c. 12, s. 17; Rules 1 Jan., 1896, 1487 (803).

Security for costs on motions or Divisional
Court.

This Rule applies in County Court appeals as well as in High Court motions and appeals: Arnold v. Van Tugl, 30 Ont. 663, and see the Acts from which the Rule was taken, viz.: 58 Vict. c. 12, s. 17; c. 13, s. 3, and R. S. O., pp. 3762, 3763.

The Rule does not apply to appeals from Surrogate Courts: see Surrogate Rule 57; In re Nichol, 1 O. L. R. 233. The Rule does not preclude a defendant from obtaining security for costs under Rule 1198, where a plaintiff removes out of the jurisdiction pending the appeal: Tanner v. Weiland, 19 P. R. 149.

As to a stay of execution, see Rule 827.

826. Unless otherwise ordered by the Court of Appeal or a Judge thereof, an appeal to the Court of Appeal shall not be allowed unless before delivering his reasons of appeal, the appellant gives security that he will effectually prosecute his appeal and pay such costs as may be awarded in case the judgment appealed from is in whole or in part affirmed. New.

Security for costs on appeal to C. A.

"Unless otherwise ordered."—The Court appealed to, or a Judge thereof, may on special application dispense with security for costs, or may reduce the amount for which security is to be given, below that mentioned in Rule 830; see Re Sherlock, 18 P. R. 6. The mere fact that the appellant is suing in a representative capacity is no ground for dispensing with security: Ib.; nor is his poverty: Thursson v. Thursson, 18 P. R. 414. But where the appellant was an infant, security for costs was dispensed with: Fahy v. Jephcott, 1 O. L. R. 108; and so it may be dispensed with where the appellant's interest in the subject matter of the litigation will afford the respondent sufficient security in any event of the litigation: Thursson v. Thursson, supra.

Rule 827. The Rule applies to appeals in mechanics' lien actions: Sherlock v. Powell, 18 P. R. 312.

A stay of execution may also be granted although security for costs has not been given: Rule 827 (2).

Unless otherwise ordered, the security for costs is to be by bond for $400: Rule 830.

As to the form of bond, and affidavits of execution and justification, and allowance of bond, see Rule 830.

Stay of execution.

827.—(1) Unless otherwise ordered by the Court appealed to or a Judge thereof, the execution of the judgment or order appealed from shall, in the case of a motion or an appeal to a Divisional Court, upon the motion or appeal being set down for argument, and, in the case of an appeal to the Court of Appeal, upon the security in Rule 826 mentioned being allowed, be stayed pending the motion or appeal, except in the following cases:—

"Execution of the Judgment."—As to these words: see Mouge v. Toronto Ry. Co., 5 O. L. R. 15.

Where partial performance is required execution stayed by delivery into Court.

(a) If the judgment appealed from directs the assignment or delivery of documents or personal property, execution shall not be stayed until the things directed to be assigned or delivered have been brought into the Court appealed from, or placed in the custody of such officer or receiver as that Court or a Judge thereof appoints, or until security has been given to the satisfaction of that Court or Judge, and in such sum as may be directed, that the appellant will obey the order of the Court appealed to;

Or by execution instrument.

(b) If the judgment appealed from directs the execution of a conveyance or any other instrument, execution shall not be stayed until the instrument has been executed and deposited with the proper officer of the Court appealed from, to abide the judgment of the Court appealed to:

Or by the giving of special security not to commit waste.

(c) If the judgment appealed from directs the sale or delivery of possession of real property or chattels real, execution shall not be stayed until security has been given to the satisfaction of the Court appealed from, and in such sum as that Court or a Judge thereof directs, that during the possession of the property by the appellant, he will not commit or suffer to be committed any waste on the property, and that if the judgment be affirmed he will pay the value of the use and occupation of the property from the time of the ap- Rule 827.

peal. New. See Con. Rule 804.

(d) If the judgment appealed from awards a mandamus ^{Where} or an injunction, execution shall not be stayed except upon ^{injunction} application to the Court appealed to or a Judge thereof, and ^{or man-} upon such terms as may seem just. New. ^{damus} ^{ordered.}

(2) Upon special application, the Court appealed to or a Judge thereof may order that execution shall not be stayed, in whole or in part, except upon such terms as may seem just, including the giving of security for any sum directed by the judgment or order appealed from to be paid, either as a debt or for damages or costs, or for any less sum; or may order that execution be stayed, although security has not been given under Rule 826, and although the preceding provisions of this Rule have not been complied with, upon such terms as may seem just. New. See 58 V. c. 12, s. 77; Rules 1 Jan., 1896, 1496 (803).

Staying Execution under Judgment appealed from:—

The security provided for by Rule 826 is only for the costs of the appeal. The allowance of such security for the costs of the appeal, however, effects a stay of proceedings, and entitles the appellant to a fiat to stay any execution in the sheriff's hands: see Rules 828, 829; except in the cases mentioned in clauses (a), (b), (c) and (d) of this Rule: see McGarvey v. Strathroy, 6 Ont. 138; Toronto v. Toronto Street Ry. Co., 12 P. R. 361; and in any of such cases if the appellant desires to stay the execution of the judgment he must further comply with those clauses of this Rule; execution will not otherwise be stayed without a special order: see Fox v. Toronto & Nipissing Ry. Co., 26 Gr. 352; Gossage v. Canadian L. & E. Co., 24 U. C. Q. B. 452; Barker v. Lavery, 14 Q. B. D. 769; Rombough v. Balch, 19 P. R. 123.

In cases coming under clauses (a), (b), (c), (d), the execution of the judgment is not stayed merely on complying with those clauses, but an application to stay execution is necessary, supported by proof that the applicant has duly complied with those clauses, or such one or more of them as may be applicable. Clauses (a), (c) and (d), in terms require the sanction of the Court to the stay of execution. clause (b) does not, but it would seem that even under (b) an order is necessary besides the deposit of the document, before execution can be stayed.

Such application to stay execution must be made in the Court appealed from: see Rule 827, and G. T. Ry. Co. v. Ont. & Que. Ry. Co., 9 P. R. 420; Wilson v. Church, 11 Ch. D. 576; Otto v. Lindford, 18 Ch. D. 394; Cropper v. Smith, 24 Ch. D. 315.

In cases coming within clause (1), if it is desired to carry a judgment or order into execution, pending an appeal, a special application must be made for the purpose to the Court appealed to, or a Judge thereof: see clause (2); Confederation Life Assn. v. Labatt, 25 C. L. J. 443; Rice v. Rice, 35 C. L. J. 535.

Rule 827. An application to stay execution, or to allow execution to issue notwithstanding security has been given under Rule 826, should not be made ex parte: Grand Trunk Ry. v. Ont. & Q. Ry., 9 P. R. 420.

A stay of execution under clauses (a), (b), (c) and (d), will ordinarily be given to an appellant as a matter of right upon giving the security or conforming to the requirements of this Rule; see Campbell v. Edwards, 6 P. R. 139; Fox v. Toronto & Nipissing Ry. Co., 26 Gr. 352; Rice v. Rice, supra. But the Court may on such an application consider whether the appeal is frivolous; Norval v. Canada Southern Ry. Co., 7 P. R. 462; or whether the respondent may suffer any injustice by the stay; see Wintemute v. Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, 19 P. R. 6.

It would seem that an application under Rule 827 (2) for leave to proceed with an execution for money, or to compel the appellant to give security therefor, will not be granted merely on the ground that the appellant is impecunious; Confederation Life Assn. v. Labatt, 35 C. L. J. 443; Wintemute v. Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, 19 P. R. 6.

An order that execution should not be stayed was refused where an appeal appeared to be prosecuted in good faith, and upon substantial grounds, and the effect of the removal of the stay would be practically to close the business of the appellant; Centaur Cycle Co. v. Hill, 4 O. L. R. 92.

Where the judgment was for partition execution of the judgment was held to be stayed by giving security for the costs of the appeal pursuant to Rule 826: Monro v. Toronto Ry. Co., 5 O. L. R. 15.

Costs of motion.

The costs of an application to stay execution in England, where there is no enactment similar to Rule 827, are, as a general rule, ordered to be paid by the applicant; see Herry v. Nickalls, L. R. 8 Ch. 205; Cooper v. Cooper, 2 Ch. D. 492; Morgan v. Elford, 4 Ch. 258. In Burdick v. Garrick, L. R. 5 Ch. 453, and Adair v. Young, 11 Ch. D. 136, however, they were made costs in the appeal.

In Ontario, the costs of applications to stay execution, or proceedings, are in the discretion of the Court; Rule 1130; and the general rule is to make the costs costs in the appeal. Sometimes formerly they were ordered to be paid by the applicant; see Norval v. Canada Southern Ry. Co., 15 C. L. J. 86; 7 P. R. 462; Fox v. Toronto & Nipissing Ry. Co., supra; but there is no rule that the costs of a unsuccessful application to remove the stay of execution under Rule 827 (2) are to be costs in the appeal; they have been ordered to be paid by the applicant; Wintemute v. Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, 19 P. R. 6.

An order made under Rule 827 (2) is not merely discretionary so as to preclude the right of appeal therefrom; Centaur Cycle Co. v. Hill, 4 O. L. R. 92.

Where security has been perfected for a stay of execution under Rule 827, the execution is not only stayed, but is superseded, so that it ceases to bind, if it has been issued and placed in the Sheriff's hands; O'Donoghue v. Robinson, 10 Ont. App. 622; Vigcon v. Northcote, 15 P. R. 171.

When money made under execution, will be ordered to be re-

Where, formerly, in order to stay execution, security was required to be given for money payable under the judgment or order appealed from, if the money had been made by the sheriff, but not paid over before the Judge's fiat to stay execution was served on the sheriff.

the appellant might demand back the amount levied from the sheriff: Rule 827 see R. S. O. 1887, c. 44, s. 72. Where the money had been made by the sheriff, and transmitted to the respondent's solicitor, before an order staying execution was served, the Court refused to order such money to be refunded, even though the order staying the execution was granted before the money actually reached the solicitor's hands: McDonnell v. McKay, 2 Chy. Ch. 354; and see Rule 828. But where a suit was brought to restrain an action of ejectment, and the plaintiff failed, and thereupon a writ of hab. fac. poss. had been executed before the proceedings thereon could be stayed, possession was ordered to be restored to the appellant pending the appeal, on his giving security as required by Rule 827: Campbell v. Royal Canadian Bank, 19 Gr. 477.

funded or possession of land be ordered to be restored.

Where an appellant has given security under Rule 826, and clause (c) of this Rule, proceedings cannot be taken to enforce the judgment or order appealed from, pending the appeal, even against a third person, notwithstanding that the appellant may have neglected to comply with clause (b) of this Rule; see Vigcon v. Northcole, 15 P. R. 171; and where the judgment or order appealed from directs a reference to the Master, the reference is stayed on security being given under Rule 826: Mouro v. Toronto Ry., 5 O. L. R. 15.

After the execution of the judgment or order has been stayed, only the issue of the judgment or order, and the taxation of costs thereunder, can be proceeded with, unless otherwise ordered: Rule 829.

stay of proceedings under judgment or order appealed from.

Under the former practice the rule was the reverse, and proceedings under the judgment or order appealed from might be continued, unless expressly stayed; see Holmsted & Langton, 1890, p. 672; Shaw v. Holland, 1900, 2 Ch. 305; 82 L. T. 782.

Proceedings to commit a defendant for a breach of an injunction, will not be stayed pending an appeal from the judgment or order granting the injunction: Gamble v. Howland, 3 Gr. 281, 303; and see McLaren v. Caldwell, 20 Gr. 438; unless the operation of the injunction has been suspended under clause (d) of this Rule. Formerly pending an appeal from a judgment awarding an injunction, the injunction would not be suspended; Ib., and see S. C., 6 Ont. at p. 491; Fox v. Toronto & Nipissing Ry. Co., 26 Gr. 352, except in the case of a mandatory injunction, where obedience to the injunction would render the appeal nugatory; see Dundas v. Hamilton & Milton Road Co., 19 Gr. 475; but see McFarvey v. Strataroy, 6 Ont. 138; 19 C. L. J. 333, where Proudfoot, J., refused a sequestration to enforce an injunction restraining the defendants from permitting water to flow on to plaintiff's land, pending an appeal, after security had been given under R. S. O. 1877, c. 38, s. 26, from which this Rule is taken; and see also Toronto v. Toronto Street Ry. Co., 12 P. R. 361; and see Rule 827 (d), which now authorizes the Court to stay an injunction, or mandamus, in any case.

injunction, when suspended.

Where a sum of money was ordered to be paid, or in default a receiver was directed to be appointed, the appointment of a receiver could formerly only be stayed pending an appeal, on security being given for the amount ordered to be paid, as required by the former Rule 804; Fox v. Toronto & Nipissing Ry. Co., 26 Gr. 352; and see Polini v. Gray, 12 Ch. D. 438; such terms are not necessarily to be imposed under the present Rule.

Appointment of receiver, when stayed.

Even before this Rule in mortgage cases, simply for foreclosure, or mortgage sale, proceedings were stayed pending an appeal without security actions, being required: Bank of C. C. v. Pottruff, 8 C. C. L. J. 328. And it when stayed

Rule 827. would seem that the Court appealed from, may, in its discretion, irrespective of this Rule, suspend the operation of its judgment in any case pending an appeal: Cotton v. Corby, 5 C. C. L. J. 67.

As to the form of bond for security, and affidavits of justification, and execution, see Rule 830, infra.

Where an appellant proceeds to enforce an order or judgment appealed from, pending the appeal, and by his appeal he claims relief inconsistent with that given by the order or judgment appealed from, he will be held to have abandoned his appeal: International Wrecking Co. v. Lobb, 12 P. R. 297; Fideau v. Westover, 29 Ont. 6; but compliance with an order for security for costs, by giving security under protest, and proceeding with the action, was held not to be acceptance of, and acquiescence in, the order, which waived the right of appeal: Duffy v. Donovan, 14 P. R. 159.

In Re Charles Stark Co., 15 P. R. 451, a Judge in Chambers refused to enforce an order without prejudice to an appeal.

Money paid into Court pending
appeal—disposition
of.

Where money has been paid into Court for a specific purpose, and that purpose has been answered in favour of the party paying it, it will be paid out to that party: therefore, where security for costs of an appeal to the Court of Appeal has been given, by paying money into Court, the appellant is entitled, in the event of the appeal being successful, to have the money paid out to him, notwithstanding the respondent may desire to appeal to the Supreme Court: McKenzie v. Caldwell, 9 P. R. 118; Wilson v. Beatty, Re Donovan, 10 P. R. 71; Atherton v. B. A. I. Co., L. R. 5 Chy. 720; Lindsay Petroleum Co. v. Hurd, 3 Chy. Ch. 16; Billington v. Provincial Ins. Co., 9 P. R. 67; Crossman v. Shears, 15 C. L. J. 110; Centaur Cycle Co. v. Hill, 7 O. L. R. 411, 617; and the respondent in such a case, if he desires to stop the payment out, must give security for damages consequent on its detention in Court: McDonald v. Worthington, 8 P. R. 554, and see Polini v. Gray, supra.

Similarly a bond given as security for the costs of an appeal to the Court of Appeal may be ordered to be delivered up, where the appellant is successful in the Court of Appeal, all liability upon it being at an end, notwithstanding that an appeal to the Supreme Court may be pending: Burgess v. Conroy, 11 P. R. 514; so also a bond given for security for costs in the action, where the plaintiff has succeeded in the Court of Appeal: Marsh v. Webb, 15 P. R. 64.

This principle does not, however, apply to enable a party who has paid money into Court as security for costs in the High Court, and has succeeded, to obtain payment of the money out to him pending an appeal to the Court of Appeal, as the appeal is a step in the original action: Rule 798, and the purpose for which the money is paid is not answered, unless the appeal is unsuccessful: National Ins. Co. v. Egleson, 9 P. R. 202; see also Badische Anilin, etc. v. Johnson, 1897, 2 Ch. 322; Scaton v. Burnard, 15 Times, 342.

But where the opposite party was otherwise secured, payment out was directed: Napier v. Hughes, 9 P. R. 164. Similarly while an appeal to the Court of Appeal is pending, a bond given for security for costs in the action, will not be ordered to be delivered up to a successful plaintiff for cancellation: Hatchey v. Merchants' Despatch, 12 Ont. App. 640; 11 P. R. 9; nor delivered out for suit to a successful defendant: Coffey v. Scane, 16 P. R. 307; but where the plaintiff succeeds in the Court of Appeal, see Marsh v. Webb, 15 P. R. supra.

Money paid in by one of two appellants, but in the name of both, Rule 827, as security for the costs of an appeal, will not be paid out to the party who paid it in, on his abandoning the appeal, if his co-appellant wishes to proceed with the appeal: Centaur Cycle Co. v. Hull, 4 O. L. R. 493.

But where money was paid into Court as security for the costs of an appeal, and for the purpose of staying execution, and the appeal was dismissed, upon the appellant giving the farther security required for an appeal to the Supreme Court, it was held that an order for payment out of the costs of the appeal, and of the High Court, on an undertaking of the solicitors to refund should not be made: Agricultural Ins. Co. v. Sargent, 16 P. R. 397; and see Rombough v. Hatch, 19 P. R. 123.

It has been held that the recovery of costs, payable under an order, will not be stayed by the Court of Appeal, pending an appeal to the House of Lords, if the solicitors to whom they are payable, give their personal undertaking to refund, in case of the order being reversed: Grant v. The Banque Franco-Egyptienne, 3 C. P. D. 202; Morgan v. Elford, 4 Ch. D. 352; The Khedive, 5 P. D. 1; but see supra and Atty.-Gen. v. Emerson, 88 L. T. Jour. 97.

Money paid in by an appellant as security for costs of appeal, where it becomes liable to be applied to pay the costs of the respondent, will generally be paid out to the solicitor for the respondent on his undertaking to refund it if the appeal is allowed by the Supreme Court: Kelly v. Imperial, etc., 10 P. R. 499; Steele v. York, 7 C. L. T. 170; but see Agricultural, etc. v. Sargent, 16 P. R. 401; Rombough v. Hatch, supra.

The solicitors' undertaking may be enforced in a summary manner: Sney v. Harland, 1894, 1 Q. B. 707; but where no such undertaking is given the solicitors are not liable to be called on to refund, even though their client is worthless, and is ordered to repay the money: Hood-Barra v. Heriot, 1896, 1 Q. B. 610; 74 L. T. 372; Hood-Barra v. Crossman, 76 L. T. 297; 1897, A. C. 172.

And where a sum of money has been paid into Court, not to answer any specific purpose, but generally to abide further order, then the Court has a discretion as to ordering the money to be paid out pending an appeal, and in such a case, may require security to be given to refund if required: King v. Duncan, 9 P. R. 61; Canadian Land Co. v. Dysart, 11 P. R. 51; e.g., where owing to the poverty of the successful party there is danger that it may not be recovered if the decision should be reversed: Re Airey, Airey v. Bowser, 70 L. T. Jour. 95.

Where money was retained in Court to abide the result of such proceedings as the plaintiff might be advised to take in reference thereto, and the plaintiffs thereupon brought an action which was dismissed, and the judgment was subsequently affirmed by the Court of Appeal, and the plaintiffs then appealed from the Court of Appeal, a motion for payment out pending such appeal was refused: Toronto v. Toronto St. Ry., 15 P. R. 358.

Where a fund in Court is, by the judgment appealed from, directed to be paid out to the respondent, the Court may stay the payment out, upon the appellant giving security for the difference between legal interest and the interest which will actually accrue in Court: McDonald v. Worthington, 8 P. R. 554; Brewer v. York, 31 W. R. 109; Bradford v. Young, 28 Ch. D. 18; but if payment out is not

Rules stayed, the mere pendency of an appeal will not prevent its being paid 828, 829. out: McMunster v. Radford, 16 P. R. 20.

Where money has been paid in as security for costs of an appeal by a party who is unsuccessful, it will be applied in payment of the costs of the appeal, and the balance will not be treated as that party's own moneys and applied to pay other costs of the action payable by him, if it is shown to have been borrowed for the specific purpose of securing the costs of the appeal: McKenzie v. Kitchridge, 1 C. L. T. 110; see also Northington v. Johnson, 72 L. T. Jour. 373; but provida facie it will be considered to be the money of the party on whose behalf it was paid in, and the title of any other person must be made clearly to appear: Evans v. Huntsville, 7 O. L. R. 540.

Where money was so paid out to a respondent to satisfy costs of an unsuccessful appeal, but the decision was reversed by the Privy Council, the respondent was compelled, in an action brought for the purpose, to repay the moneys so paid out for principal and interest, with interest on that gross amount at six per cent., and all sums otherwise paid for costs without interest: Citizens Ins. Co. v. Parsons, 32 C. P. 492; semble, that an action was only necessary in that case because the money had been paid out to persons not parties to the original suit as trustees for the creditors of the original plaintiff: Id.; see McIndsey v. Armstrong, 11 P. R. 200.

Proceedings in an action upon an appeal bond were stayed, where a further appeal was pending and security had in it been given for the costs secured by the bond: McLaren v. Stephen, 10 P. R. 88.

An appeal under The Joint Stock Companies Winding-up Act (R. S. O. c. 222), s. 27 (2), cannot be entertained where security has not been given within eight days from the rendering of the final judgment, or order, appealed from: Re Union Ins. Co., 7 Ont. App. 783.

When given a fiat to stay execution
 may be granted.

828. Where, under the preceding Rules, an appellant has become entitled to a stay of execution, a Judge of the Court appealed to may issue his fiat to the Sheriff, to whom any execution under the judgment has been issued, to stay the execution, and the execution shall be thereby stayed, whether a levy has been made under it or not. New. See Con. Rule 805; Rules of 1 Jan., 1896, 1487 (805); 58 V. c. 12, s. 78 (2).

Stay of further proceedings in actions.

829. Where execution of the judgment or order appealed from has become stayed all further proceedings in the action in the Court appealed from, other than the issue of the judgment or order and the taxation of costs thereunder, shall be stayed, unless otherwise ordered by the Court appealed to or a Judge thereof; and the order may be on such terms as may seem just. New.

See Mouso v. Toronto Ry. Co., 5 O. L. R. 15.

A judgment on a special case by which the opinion of the Court is given, but upon which there can be no execution issued, is not within this Rule. Where, therefore, the opinion of the Court has been asked on questions of law, "before proceeding to take evidence," Rule 830. It was held that the taking of evidence was not a condition of appeal by virtue of this Rule, though it was a condition of stay existed by virtue of the terms of the St. Louis & N. W. Ry. Co., 5 O. W. R. 415.

(ii) Form of Security.

830. Where security is required under Rules 823 or 827, the security, unless otherwise ordered by the Court, shall be regulated by the following provisions:

1. The security shall be by bond which may be according to Form No. 197.
2. The bond shall be executed by two sufficient sureties.
3. The sureties shall make affidavit of justification according to Form 197.
4. Where security is to be given for costs of the appeal the same shall be given for $400.
5. Where security is to be given for payment of money directed by the judgment or order appealed from to be paid either as a debt or for damages or costs, the security shall be in double the amount by the judgment or order directed to be paid; but where security is to be given in a sum above $2,000, the Court or a Judge may allow security to be given by a larger number of sureties, apportioning the amount among them as may appear reasonable; and where the amount by the judgment directed to be paid exceeds $10,000, the Court or Judge may allow security to be given for such amount less than double as may appear reasonable.
6. Where the judgment appealed from directs the sale or delivery of possession, of real property or chattels real, the security required by Rule 827 shall be taken in double the yearly value of the property in question.

7. The bond, with an affidavit of the due execution thereof, and affidavit of justification, shall be filed in the office in which the action or matter was commenced, and shall be deemed to be perfected and allowed, unless within 14 days after being served with notice of the filing thereof, the respondent moves for its disallowance; but the appellant may

Rule 830. after the filing make a special application before the expiration of said 14 days to stay execution.

8. Instead of giving a bond the appellant may without order pay into Court a sum of money equal to half the penalty of the bond in cases within clauses 4 and 6 of this Rule, or equal to the amount by the judgment or order directed to be paid in cases within clause 5 of this Rule, and the money when so paid in shall stand as security in lieu of a bond, but either party may apply to the Court or a Judge to increase or diminish the amount of such payment into Court. New.

For Form 197, referred to in this Rule, see H. & L. Forms, No. 1161.

The Court, if it sees fit, may reduce the amount of the security to be given: see Re Sherlock, 18 P. R. 6.

Money paid in as security for the costs of the appeal cannot be ordered to be increased to more than $400: Centaur Cycle Co. v. Hull, 4 O. L. R. 493.

An application for increased security must be made to the Court of Appeal or a Judge thereof: Fitzgerald v. Wallace, 6 O. L. R. 634.

As to bonds of guaranty companies approved by order in council, see 62 Vict. (2) c. 12, s. 2.

After a bond has been given, the Court below may allow money to be paid into Court as security in substitution therefor: Chatham & Dover, E., v. The Erie & Huron Ry. Co., 7 P. R. 339; but it is not sufficient to deposit the money, and obtain a certificate of the deposit: It must also appear that the security so given, is to the satisfaction of the Court appealed from, or a Judge thereof: Macdonald v. Abbott, 3 S. C. R. 278.

As to the time for putting in security for costs in appeals to the Court of Appeal, see Rule 826, and McRae v. White, 9 P. R. 288.

The former Rule 897 required the appellant to be a party to the bond, unless that was dispensed with. And order dispensing with the execution of the bond by the appellants, or any of the appellants, where there are more than one, was necessary to be obtained before the bond was executed, and only those actually executing it were to be made parties to it: Grothe v. Pearce, 15 P. R. 195. Under the present Rule it is not necessary that the appellant shall be a party to the bond; but if he is made a party he must execute the bond or the respondent will be entitled to have it disallowed: Robinson v. Harris, 14 P. R. 373.

A surety is liable to cross-examination on the affidavit of justification. A surety who is a member of a mercantile partnership, but who justifies on his own individual property, and not on his share in the partnership is not compellable on cross-examination on his affidavit to disclose the liabilities of the partnership: Douglas v. Blackey, 14 P. R. 504.

The affidavit of justification cannot be dispensed with: Donnelly v. Jones, 4 Chy. Ch. 48.

The respondent is entitled to a security free from objections which Rule 831 might be raised by the sureties if sued; Jones v. Macdonald, 14 P. R. 335.

Where the respondent objects to the sufficiency of the bond, he must move to disallow it, or it will, under this Rule, stand allowed after the lapse of fourteen days from service of notice of its filing. The motion should be made in the Court appealed from. The application may be entertained by the Master in Chambers, or, where the bond is filed in an outer office, by a Local Master, or Local Judge, having jurisdiction; see Rules 45, 49; Brigham v. Smith, 1 Chy. Ch. 334.

A bond filed before leave to appeal is granted, in a case where leave is necessary, is irregular, and will be disallowed; and a bond which has been disallowed on that ground cannot afterwards be relied on leave to appeal being granted, without the consent of the sureties; Jones v. Macdonald, 14 P. R. 435.

Affidavits may be read in opposition to the affidavits of justification of the sureties; Campbell v. Royal Canadian Bank, 6 P. R. 45; Brigham v. Smith, 1 Chy. Ch. 334; and also depositions made by the sureties in another action to which the principal was no party; Jones v. Macdonald, 14 P. R. 435; and the sureties are also liable to cross-examination on their affidavits of justification; Rule 499; Douglas v. Blackie, 14 P. R. 504; and may be compelled to attend to be examined by being served with an appointment and subpoena though no motion against the bond is pending; Rule 492; Hughes v. Hughes, 17 C. L. J. 110; 1 C. L. T. 189.

The bond, and affidavits of execution, and justification, are separate documents, and each must be stamped with a proper filing stamp; McBeth v. Smart, 1 Chy. Ch. 269.

The affidavit of justification, should be entitled in the cause; see Form 197, H. & L. Forms, No. 1161a. In Molson's Bank v. Cooper, 17 P. R. 153, it was held that an affidavit of execution not so entitled is not invalid; but probably the better practice is to entitle both affidavits in the action; see R. S. O. c. 74, s. 12.

Where the bond stands allowed under this Rule, by reason of the lapse of fourteen days from its filing, a Judge's fiat to the sheriff to stay execution may be obtained; Rule 828. But where the appellant desires to stay execution before the fourteen days have expired, then a special application for that purpose is necessary.

Where the appeal to the Court of Appeal is dismissed, an action on the appeal bond will be stayed, where the appellant has given proper security, and is prosecuting an appeal from the decision of the Court of Appeal to the Privy Council; McLaren v. Stephen, 10 P. R. 88; 19 C. L. J. 404.

As to the damages recoverable under the bond, see Re Alger & Sarina Oil Co., 23 Ont. 583.

If either surety dies or becomes insolvent, pending the appeal, an application may be made to compel the appellant to substitute another; Saunders v. Furnival, 2 Chy. Ch. 159; Gage v. Canada Publishing Co., 10 P. R. 169. The application must be made to the Court appealed from; Lumsden v. Davis, 10 P. R. 10.

Although under clause (b) $200 is ordinarily sufficient to be paid into Court as security for the costs of an appeal, yet, on application, Rule 831. it may be increased, but the utmost that can be ordered to be paid in is $400: Centaur Cycle Co. v. Hill, 4 O. L. R. 483; the application for increased security should be made to the Court of Appeal: Phillips v. Wallace, 6 O. L. R. 634.

Where a sum of money is paid into Court by one of two appellants, but in the name of both, as security for the costs of an appeal, it will not be ordered to be paid out to the appellant who paid it in on his abandoning the appeal, if his co-appellant wishes to proceed with the appeal: Centaur Cycle Co. v. Hill, 4 O. L. R. 483.

Objections to sureties.

A bond cannot be excepted to on the ground that the sureties are "standing sureties" of the appellant, in the absence of evidence as to their insufficiency: Norral v. Canada Southern Ry. Co., 7 P. R. 313. It is irregular for the solicitor of the appellant to become surety on an appeal bond: Beckett v. Wragg, 1 Chy. Ch. 5; Grand Trunk Ry. Co. v. Ontario & Quebec Ry. Co., 3 C. L. T. 173; Re Gibson, 13 P. R. 359.

A married woman has been held to be not a proper surety: Metcalf v. Pascoe, 8 P. R. 372; Raham v. The News; Raham v. Front, 44 C.L., 14th March, 1891. But see The Married Woman's Property Act (R. S. O. c. 163), and Kerr v. Stripp, 40 U. C. Q. B. at p. 134; Frazee v. McFarland, 43 E. C. Q. B. 281; Lueson v. Luidlum, 3 O. App. 77; and Hessin v. Baine, 2 Ont. 302.

An officer of the Court is not an improper surety: Wilkins v. McLean, 7 C. L. T. 5.

Where the title to land, in respect of which a surety qualified, was not registered, it was held that he was an insufficient surety unless registration of his title was procured: Adamson v. Adamson, 3 P. R. 196.

APPEALS FROM THE COURT OF APPEAL.

The decision of the Court of Appeal on appeals from the High Court of Justice is not in all cases conclusive; and in certain cases an appeal can be had therefrom either to the Supreme Court of Canada or to His Majesty in Council, see infra, and p. 1082.

The decision of the Court of Appeal is final in cases which have not come to it from the High Court of Justice, e.g., such as have come from the Drainage Referee: Re Ratcigh & Harrich, Cassel's Sup. Court Prac., 2nd ed., 22; or in a case which originated in a County Court, though removed into the High Court: Young v. Tucker, 18 P. R. 449; Tucker v. Young, 30 S. C. R. 185.

Appeals to Supreme Court of Canada.—Appeals from the Court of Appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada are regulated by The Supreme and Exchequer Courts Act (R. S. C. c. 135), and the amendments thereto (see ss. 24, 28); Cass. Pr., 14-17, and 51-56; C. C. c. 25, s. 21.

R. S. C. c. 135, s. 24, is as follows:—

Appeal

24. An appeal shall lie to the Supreme Court:—

From final judgments

(a) From all final judgments of the highest Court of appeal resort, now or hereafter established in any Province of Canada, whether such Court is a Court of appeal or of original jurisdiction, in cases in which the Court of original jurisdiction is a Superior Court;

(b) From the judgment upon a special case unless the parties agree to the contrary, and the Supreme Court shall draw any inference of fact from the facts stated in the special case which the Court appealed from should have drawn; ^(upon a special case) Rule 831.

(c) From the judgment upon any motion to enter a verdict, or consuit upon a point reserved at the trial; ^(Points reserved)

(d) From the judgment upon any motion for a new trial; ^(Motion for new trial) amended by 54 & 55 Vict. c. 25, s. 2.

(e) From any judgment, decree, decretal order, or order in any action, suit, cause, matter, or other judicial proceeding originally instituted in any Superior Court of Equity in any Province of Canada other than the Province of Quebec; and from any judgment, decree, decretal order, or order in any action, suit, cause, matter, or judicial proceeding in the nature of a suit or proceeding in equity originally instituted in any Superior Court in any Province of Canada other than the Province of Quebec; ^(Decrees in Equity Courts.)

(f) From the judgment, rule, order, or decision, upon any motion to set aside an award, or upon any motion by way of appeal from any award made in any Superior Court in any of the Provinces of Canada other than the Province of Quebec; ^(Motion to set aside award)

(g) From the judgment in any case of proceedings for or upon a writ of habeas corpus, certiorari, or prohibition (etc.), not arising out of a criminal charge; and in any case or proceedings for or upon a writ of mandamus; and in any case in which a by-law of a municipal corporation has been quashed by rule or order of Court, or the rule or order to quash it has been refused after argument. R. S. C. c. 135, s. 24, as amended by 54-55 Vict. c. 25, s. 2. ^(Habeas corpus, mandamus, and mandel-pet by-laws.)

(h) These words in brackets were added by 54-55 V. c. 25, s. 2.

An appeal cannot be had direct from the High Court to the Supreme Court: R. S. C. c. 135, ss. 24, 26; Cass. Pr. 11, 15; except by consent of parties: s. 26 (2), or by leave of the Supreme Court, where the judgment sought to be appealed from is final, or is a judgment, decree, decretal order, or order pronounced in any cause, matter, or proceeding in the nature of a suit or proceeding in Equity Id., s. 26 (3).

By R. S. O. c. 49, s. 2, a limitation of the right to appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada was imposed in certain cases, but this provision was held to be ultra vires of the Provincial Legislature; Chabou v. Ryan, 17 S. C. R. 251.

The Dom. Act, 60-61 V. c. 34, see infra, p. 1076, now places restrictions on the right of appeal.

Questions not Appealable.—Except as hereafter mentioned an appeal cannot be had to the Supreme Court from any judgment or order which is not final, therefore, as a general rule, appeals from interlocutory orders or judgments will not lie: R. S. C. c. 135, s. 28. Nor can appeals be entertained from discretionary orders except when made in the exercise of appellate jurisdiction; Id., s. 27; see Vartan v. Hoxey, 16 S. C. R. 721; Martineau Bank v. St. Roch, 20 S. C. R. 106; Canadian Pacific P. v. Toronto, 30 S. C. R. 337. ^(Questions not appealable.)

Thus an order allowing amendment of pleading is not appealable; Williams v. Leonard, 26 S. C. R. 406; nor an order as to costs which are in the discretion of the Court: De Groot v. Vetter, 21 S. C. R.

Rule 831. 267; unless there be some question of principle involved; Arch. De Lisle, 27 S. C. R. 1; Smith v. St. John City Ry., 28 S. C. R. 603; O'Donohoe v. Beatty, 19 S. C. R. 356; Moir v. Huntington, 19 S. C. R. 363; Schlomann v. Dorker, 30 S. C. R. 323. So also no appeal will lie from an order granting or refusing an order on application to set aside a judgment by default; O'Donohoe v. Bourne, 27 S. C. R. 654; but see Voight v. Orth, 5 O. L. R. 443; nor from an order perpetually staying proceedings; Maritime Bank v. Stewart, 20 S. C. R. 105; and it has also been held that an order allowing such judgment to be entered on a specially indorsed writ is discretionary and not appealable; Morris v. London & Canadian L. & A. Co., 19 S. C. R. 434; but see Voight v. Orth, supra; nor does an appeal lie from an order refusing an application to set aside an order discharging bail; Scammell v. James, 16 S. C. R. 593; nor one which involves mere questions of practice or procedure; Arpin v. Merchant's Bank, 24 S. C. R. 142; Macdonald v. Ferdaiz, 22 S. C. R. 260; Perre v. Trepanier, 24 S. C. R. 86; Toronto Railway v. Balfour, 32 S. C. R. 239; Atty.-Gen. v. Scully, 33 S. C. R. 16; Gibson v. Nelson, 33 S. C. R. 181; unless some substantial question of right is involved, or grave injustice has been done; Lambe v. Armstrong, 27 S. C. R. 360; Eastern Townships Bank v. Swan, 29 S. C. R. 193; see Voight v. Orth, supra.

Orders granting or refusing a new trial, although discretionary, are appealable; see R. S. C. c. 135, s. 24 (d), as amended by 74 Vict. c. 25, s. 2; the amendment removing the doubt raised by J. Halifar, 17 S. C. R. 700; see S. C. c. 22 S. C. R. 258; but the appeal from an order granting a new trial is not absolute, thus, on an appeal to the Court of Appeal that Court granted a new trial, a further appeal by the appellant to the Supreme Court was not allowed, though the appellant desired to contend that the appeal had been dismissed; Canadian Mutual Reserve v. Dillon, 24 S. C. R. 111; and see Confederation Life v. Bodden, 34 S. C. R. 338.

appealable

Questions Appealable.—These are now regulated by rule 1, Act, 60-61 Vict. c. 31, s. 1, which provides that no appeal lies to the Supreme Court from the Court of Appeal for Ontario in the following cases:—

(a) Where the title to real estate or some interest therein is in question;

See Macdonald v. Galivan, 28 S. C. R. 258; Deerschel Light Co., Ltd., 268; Jeraga v. Teo, Id., 497; Waters v. Ho, 30 S. C. R. 504; Aurora v. Markham, 32 S. C. R. 457.

(b) Where the validity of a patent is affected;

See King v. Dupuis, 28 S. C. R. 388; Ottawa v. Hatcher, 33 S. C. R. 7.

(c) Where the matter in controversy in the appeal exceeds sum or value of $1,000, exclusive of costs;

See Banque du Peuple v. Tootill, 28 S. C. R. 422; Bata v. Ltd., 181; Jermyn v. Teo, Id., 397; Canadian Accident Co. v. Agnew, 28 S. C. R. 394; Frankel v. G. T. Ry. Co., 3 O. L. R. 7; Ward v. Davidson, 31 S. C. R. 274; Bouché v. Tensta, 31 S. C. R. 285; Goold-Renphr. Co. v. Laishley, 35 S. C. R. 181.

(d) Where the matter in question relates to the taking of interest or other rent, customary or other duty or fee, or the kind of a general or public nature affecting future rights.

See Canadian Mutual Loan Co. v. Ltd., 31 S. C. R. 224; Id., 31 S. C. R. 274.

(c) In other cases where the special leave of the Court of Rule 831. Appeal for Ontario or of the Supreme Court of Canada to appeal to such last mentioned Court is granted.

Special leave to appeal may be granted in cases involving matters of public interest, important questions of law, the construction of Imperial or Dominion statutes, a conflict between Dominion and Provincial authority on questions of law applicable to the whole Dominion: Lake Erie, &c., Ry. Co. v. Marsh, 35 S. C. R. 197; but not if there is no doubt about the correctness of the decision: Id.

See Atty.-Gen. v. Scully, 33 S. C. R. 16; Rice v. The King, 32 S. C. R. 450; Fisher v. Fisher, 28 S. C. R. 404; Hagrove v. Royal Templars, 31 S. C. R. 387; Tucker v. Young, 30 S. C. R. 187.

Leave was refused where the judgment was for $1,000 damages, and the grounds upon which leave was asked for were that the costs had accumulated so as to amount to $2,000, and the damages it was alleged had been estimated by a mere guess: Gohl Biegeh Co. v. Lushby, 35 S. C. R. 184.

(f) Whenever the right to appeal is dependent upon the amount in dispute, such amount shall be understood to be that demanded, not that recovered, if they are different.

See Ottawa v. Hunter, 31 S. C. R. 7; Jeraya v. Ter, 28 S. C. R. 467; Bain v. Anderson, 28 S. C. R. 181.

The fact that the aggregate amount for which several respondents were sought to be made liable exceeded $1,000 was not sufficient, where the individual liability of each respondent was less than that amount: Stephens v. Gerth, 24 S. C. R. 716.

The Court cannot refuse to entertain an appeal because the amount involved has not been found or stated by the Court appealed from, but it can ascertain the amount in dispute on affidavits: In re Falkner Gold Mining Co. v. McKinnery, 1901, A. C. 581; Amor Light v. Heschel, 18 C. L. 7, 200.

Under these clauses no appeal lies unless the amount in controversy in the appeal exceeds $1,000, exclusive of costs; the amount demanded (in the clause f), having regard to clause (c), means, "demanded in the appeal": Bain v. Anderson, 28 S. C. R. 481. See also Jeraya v. Ter, 28 S. C. R. 467; Ottawa v. Hunter, and King v. Dupuis, supra.

Where the jurisdiction of the Supreme Court is doubtful, the Court may assume jurisdiction when it has been decided that the appeal, on the merits, should be dismissed: Bain v. Anderson, supra.

The Act 60-61 Vict. c. 34, s. 1, applies to civil cases only; criminal appeals are regulated by the Criminal Code, 1892: Rice v. The King, 32 S. C. R. 480.

The Supreme Court has entertained an appeal on a question of law appearing on the pleadings, but not raised or adjudicated in the Court below, where no evidence in rebuttal could have been adduced to affect it, had it been taken at the trial: McKelvey v. Le Roi Mining Co., 32 S. C. R. 664.

An appeal may be entertained on a question of fact: Dempster v. Lewis, 34 S. C. R. 222; Behcher v. McDonald, 33 S. C. R. 321; but see S. C. 1904, A. C. 429. Ordinarily, however, if there is evidence to support a finding of fact an appellate Court will not interfere with that finding, especially if the case has been tried by a jury: Grand Rule 831. Trunk Railway v. Rairville, 25 Ont. App. 242, 29 S. C. R. 201; D. Trignon v. Jonea, 32 S. C. R. 650; Parolia v. Lamoille, 30 S. C. R. 405; Graham v. Ménard, 31 S. C. R. 14; even though the Judge at the trial was dissatisfied; Fraser v. Dreier, 30 S. C. R. 211. So, ordinarily, an appellate Court will not interfere with the assessment of damages unless they are plainly excessive or inadequate, or have been arrived at by mere guess-work; Williamson v. Stephenson, 33 S. C. R. 323. See also notes to sec. 52 of the Jud. Act.

It is only where some fundamental principle of justice has been ignored that appeals on a question of costs can be successful: Smith v. St. John, 28 S. C. R. 603; Schlomann v. Doecker, 30 S. C. R. 323.

Leave to Appeal.—Where the time for lodging an appeal, or giving notice of an appeal, where notice is necessary, is suffered to elapse without the appeal being lodged or notice given, the Court appealed from, or any Judge thereof, may under special circumstances allow an appeal to be brought: see R. S. C. c. 135, s. 42; Dewar v. Bank of Montreal, 20 S. C. R. 435; Bank of B. N. J. v. Walker, Countess's Dig. 111; Cass. Dig. (2), pp. 670, 671; but the Court or Judge is to impose such terms as to security or otherwise as seems proper under the circumstances: R. S. C. c. 135, s. 42; the applicant should shew that he had a bona fide intention to appeal while the right to appeal without leave existed, and the suspension of further proceedings by reason of some special circumstances: Smith v. Hunt, 7 O. L. R. 97; or that the omission to proceed with the appeal in due course was owing to an unintentional slip: Ross v. Robertson, 7 O. L. R. 404; Hewitt v. Mutual Reserve Life Ins. Co., 4 O. W. R. 290.

As to what are considered special circumstances, see notes to sec. 42.

Approving of the security for the appeal is the mode of allowing the appeal under sec. 42; Cass. Pr. 2nd ed., p. 433.

Security to be Given.—Security must be given by the appellant to the satisfaction of the Court appealed from, or a Judge thereof, or to the satisfaction of the Supreme Court, or a Judge thereof, to the extent of $500, that the appellant will effectually prosecute his appeal and pay such costs and damages as may be awarded against him by the Supreme Court; see R. S. C. c. 135, s. 46; except where the appeal is brought by or on behalf of the Crown, or in proceedings for, or upon, a writ of habeas corpus; De. subsec., 124, and 50-51 Vol. c. 16 Sched. A. The amount of the security fixed by s. 46 cannot be increased: Archer v. Seabra, 12 P. R. 472.

For the form of bond for security on appeal to the Supreme Court, see H. & L. Forms, No. 1165; Darvill v. Fraser, 17 P. R. 246; Molson's Bank v. Cooper, 17 P. R. 153; Jamieson v. London & Canadian L. & C., 18 P. R. 413.

Instead of giving a bond, the $500 may be paid into Court on order for that purpose must be obtained for form of such order, see Cassell's Pr. 2nd ed., p. 224.

The application for the allowance of the security should be made in Chambers, either in the Court appealed from, or at the Supreme Court; the application should be made within the sixty days period for lodging the appeal, or within the extended time, if any: St. Charles v. Ward, 11 P. R. 288.

For form of certificate that security has been given, see H. & L. Rule 831. Forms, Nos. 1168, 1169.

The giving of security is a condition precedent to the appeal being entertained; and where security has not been given, the appeal will be quashed: Scammell v. James, 16 S. C. R. 593; even though there be no one interested in opposing the appeal: Re Cahan, 21 S. C. R. 100.

A Judge of the Court of Appeal has no jurisdiction to extend the time for the allowance of the security in a case in which an appeal can only be brought by leave, and such leave has not been obtained: Tahh v. The G. T. Ry., 8 O. L. R. 281; and he has no jurisdiction to grant such leave to appeal: Id.

Leave to Appeal, when Necessary.—An appeal can only be brought, without leave or consent, from the decision of the Court of last resort in the Province: R. S. C. c. 135, s. 24; but by consent of parties an appeal may be had direct from a Court of original jurisdiction: R. S. C. c. 135, s. 26 (2); and the Supreme Court may also in its discretion allow an appeal from a superior Court of first instance: R. S. C. c. 125, s. 26 (3).

The Supreme Court has permitted an appeal to be brought from the High Court without first going to the Court of Appeal, where an important constitutional question was involved: Ontario Mining Co. v. Sepphold, 31 S. C. R. 125; and also where there were only two Judges on the Bench of the Provincial Court of Appeal: Schultz v. Wood, 6 S. C. R. 585; so also in favour of persons interested who desired to prosecute an appeal in the name of a party who refused to allow his name to be used: Duttonlin v. Langtry, 13 S. C. R. 278; but the fact that the Provincial Court of Appeal has given an adverse decision on the question involved is not considered sufficient ground for an appeal per se: Hishop v. McGillivray, 15 S. C. R. 188; and such leave will not be granted in cases where there would be no appeal to the Court of Appeal: Ottawa Electric Co. v. Brannan, 31 S. C. R. 311; but see Farrpharson v. Imperial Oil Co., 35 C. L. J. 230; 30 S. C. R. 188.

The Supreme Court will not entertain an application for leave to appeal after a similar application has been made to the Court of Appeal: Aurora v. Markham, 32 S. C. R. 457.

There is no appeal to the Supreme Court from the order of a Judge of the Supreme Court in Chambers granting leave to appeal: Farrpharson v. Imperial Oil Co., 30 S. C. R. 188, 201.

Time for Appeal. An appeal to the Supreme Court in a civil action must be brought within sixty days from the signing or entry or pronouncing of the judgment appealed from: R. S. C. c. 135, s. 40, as amended by 50-51 Vict. c. 16, Sch. A. The signing and entry of judgments are, in Ontario, usually contemporaneous acts; but they may take place long after the pronouncing of a judgment. Ordinarily the time runs, from the pronouncing of the judgment, and it is only where some substantial matter remains to be determined before judgment can be entered that the time for appealing runs from the signing or entry: O'Sullivan v. Harty, 13 S. C. R. 131; Wabash v. Griffith, 13 S. C. R. 131; Martien v. Carson, 13 S. C. R. 130. Where the judgment of the Court of Appeal allowed the appeal, and postponed the judgment at the trial, but reduced the amount of damages, it was held that nothing substantial remained to be settled, and that the time ran from the pronouncing of the judgment: News Printing Co. v.

Rule 831. Macrae, 26 S. C. R. 695; and see Martin v. Sampson, 26 S. C. R. 707; as to the time when a judgment not pronounced in open Court is to be deemed to be pronounced for the purposes of appeal; see Wallace v. Smith, 7 O. L. R. 542. The vacations of the Supreme Court are not to be excluded in reckoning the time for appeal; Ates, etc., v. Macrae, supra. The day of pronouncing or entering judgment, whichever of them is the day from which the sixty days is to be reckoned, is excluded. The time for appealing may be extended even after the time prescribed by the statute has expired; Vaughan v. Richardson, 17 S. C. R. 703; but see Canadian Mut. Loan & T. Co. v. Lee, 34 S. C. R. 224; Atty.-Gen. for Quebec v. Scott, 34 S. C. R. 282; and Hamilton v. Mut. Reserve, 4 O. W. R. 290; 5 O. W. R. 102.

Where a party elects to move for an extension of the time for appealing before a Judge of the Court of Appeal in Chambers, he cannot afterwards make a substantive application for the same to the Court; Hamilton v. Mutual Reserve Life Ins. Co., 5 O. W. R. 102. Whether an appeal lies from the Judge in Chambers to the Court, quære; Id.; see Fraserharson v. Imperial Oil Co., 30 S. C. R. 188, 201.

Notice of Appeal, when Necessary. No appeal upon a special case, or from a judgment upon a motion to enter a verdict, or a result, upon a point reserved at the trial, or from a judgment upon a motion for a new trial upon the ground that the Judge has erred according to law shall be allowed, unless notice thereof is given in writing to the opposite party, or his attorney of record, within twenty days after the decision complained of, or within such further time as the Court appealed from, or a Judge thereof, allows; R. S. C. c. 135, s. 41. Notice of appeal would seem to be unnecessary in the case of all other appeals to the Supreme Court in civil proceedings. The "special case" mentioned in s. 41, supra, p. 1075, does not refer to the case prepared for an appeal to the Court of Appeal under Rule 708; Draper v. Radenhurst, 14 P. R. 376.

The giving of notice, when necessary, is a condition precedent to the right to appeal; Vaughan v. Richardson, 17 S. C. R. 703.

For form of notice of appeal, see 11. & L. Forms, No. 1164.

Case to be Settled.—The appeal is to be on a case stated by the parties, or, in case of difference, to be settled by the Court appealed from, or a Judge thereof; see R. S. C. c. 135, s. 44.

The case is to set forth so much of the pleadings, evidence, affidavits and documents as is necessary to raise the question for the decision of the Court; it must also include the reasons of the Judge or Judges of the Court or Courts below; see Rule S. C. c. 2; but see Maphew v. Stone, 26 S. C. R. 58; and also the formal order or judgment of the Court appealed from; R. S. C. c. 135, s. 44; Reid v. Ransay, Cass. 102, 120, 120; Kearns v. Keen, and Wallace v. Southern, Id. 672. It must also contain the formal judgment or order of the Court of first instance; Wright v. Huron, Id. 373; and also a copy of any order which may have been made by the Court below or a Judge thereof enlarging the time for appealing; Rule S. C. c. 3.

It should not contain immaterial documents, or documents, or other matter, not before the Court of first instance; Lévesque v. The Montreal Bank, 19 S. C. R. 526; Exchange Bank v. Gilman, 17 S. C. R. 498; unless the Court appealed from has formally admitted further evidence to be given; see Rule 498; in which case such further evidence would, if material to the question in appeal, be a necessary part of the case.

The Supreme Court does not go behind the statement in the certificate of the Court of Appeal as to the result of the appeal; Bouth v. Ratté, 21 S. C. R. 637. Rule 831

By R. S. C. c. 135, s. 39, it is provided that proceedings in appeals shall, when not otherwise provided for by that Act, or by the Act providing for the appeal, or by the general Rules of the Supreme Court, be as nearly as possible in conformity with the present practice of the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council; but notwithstanding this provision it is held that the Supreme Court cannot allow an appeal in forma pauperis; Fraser v. Abbott, Cass. Dig., 695; although the same may be allowed by the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council; Quintan v. Quintan, 1901, A. C. 612.

Stay of Proceedings, pending Appeal. Where it is desired to stay execution pending the appeal, further security, in addition to the $500 above mentioned, is required to be given: see R. S. C. c. 135, s. 17; and an order obtained allowing the security: Kelly v. Imperial Loan Co., 10 P. R. 490; Agricultural Ins. Co. v. Sargeant, 16 P. R. 316; and see Rombough v. Balch, 10 P. R. 123. After the judgment of the Court of Appeal has been certified under Rule 818, that Court has no jurisdiction to stay proceedings in the Court below pending an appeal to the Supreme Court: Hargrove v. Royal Templars, 2 O. L. R. 126.

The Master in Chambers has no jurisdiction in such case, and,semble, a Judge in Chambers, in a case in which an appeal does not lie to the Supreme Court without leave, cannot stay proceedings until leave to appeal can be obtained: Tabb v. Grand Trunk Railway Co., 8 O. L. R. 544.

The Court of Appeal refused to continue an injunction, which was dissolved by the judgment appealed from, pending an appeal to the Supreme Court: Klee v. Dominion C. & A. Co., 3 O. W. R. 937; and see supra, p. 1067; or to stay a new trial: Hockley v. Grand Trunk Ry., 7 O. L. R. 186.

Upon the case being agreed to by the parties, or settled by a Judge, the case is to be printed: see Rules S. C., 749; and when printed the Registrar of the Court appealed from is to certify the case and transmit it, with 25 copies, to the Registrar of the Supreme Court: see R. S. C. c. 135, s. 45; Rule S. C., 7. For form of certificate, see 11. & L. Forms, No. 1167; and when the security has been allowed by a Judge of the Court appealed from, the Registrar should also transmit his certificate thereof: see Id. Nos. 1168, 1169; and see Macdonald v. Abbott, 3 S. C. R. 278.

Together with the printed case, certified copies of all original documents and exhibits used in evidence in the Court of first instance are to be deposited with the Registrar of the Supreme Court, unless their production is dispensed with by order of a Judge of the Supreme Court; and the Supreme Court, or a Judge thereof, may order that all or any of the original documents be transmitted to the Registrar of the Supreme Court: see Rule S. C., 10.

The case must be filed with the Registrar of the Supreme Court twenty clear days, at least, before the first day of the session of the Supreme Court at which the appeal is to be heard: see Rule S. C., 31.

Factams.—At least fifteen days before the first day of the session at which the appeal is to be heard, the appellants and respondents are, respectively, to deposit with the Registrar of the Supreme Court

Rule 831. twenty-five copies of their factums, or points for argument in appeal; see Rule S. C. 23. The factum is to contain a concise statement of the facts and of the points of law intended to be relied on, and of the arguments and authorities to be urged and cited at the hearing, arranged under appropriate heads; see Rule S. C. 24; and is to be printed in the same style as the case; see Rule S. C. 25.

If the appellant does not deposit his factum within the prescribed time, the respondent may move to dismiss the appeal; see Rule S. C. 26; and if the respondent does not deposit his factum the appeal may set the appeal down to be heard ex parte; see Rule S. C. 27; but such setting down may, on application in Chambers, supported by affidavits excusing the default, be set aside; see Rule S. C. 28. The factum first deposited is not to be open to inspection by the opposite party until he has deposited his own factum; see Rule S. C. 29. After each party has deposited his factum he may, on demand, obtain three copies of his opponent's factum; see Rule S. C. 30.

No factums are required in habeas corpus appeals; see Rule S. C. 47.

Each party states briefly the facts in his factum according to his contention as to the result of the evidence. He then states his proposition of law applicable to those facts, and gives the proper citation of cases and other authorities intended to be relied on in support. Offensive comments on the conduct of Judges of any of the Courts below are irrelevant, and may be ordered to be struck out or taken off the files; see Vernon v. Oliver, 11 S. C. R. 156; O'Sullivan v. Lake, 16 S. C. R. 436; and the solicitor of the party on whose behalf they are made may subject himself to the censure of the Supreme Court; and costs may be refused to the party so offending, even though successful on the appeal.

Notice of Hearing.—After the case is filed, the appellant is to give 15 days, or, in habeas corpus appeals, two weeks, notice of hearing (see H. & L. Forms, No. 1173), for the next following session of the Court is fixed by the Act, or as specially convened for hearing appeals; or, if there be not sufficient time, then for the next session of the Court; Rules S. C. R. 11, 14, 49, 80.

Setting Down Appeal for Argument.—The appeal is to be set down for argument at least fourteen days before the first day of the session at which it is to be heard; see Rule S. C. 31. A case cannot be set down without the leave of the Supreme Court, or a Judge thereof, which has not been filed with the Registrar of the Supreme Court twenty clear days, at least, before the first day of the session; Id.

9. APPEALS TO HIS MAJESTY IN HIS PRIVY COUNCIL.

From Court of Appeal.

Appeals to His Majesty in His Privy Council.—In cases where the matter in controversy exceeds the sum or value of $1000, or where the matter in question relates to the taking of an annual or other rent, customary or other duty, or fee, or any like demand of a general and public nature affecting future rights of whatever value or amount soever the same may be, an appeal from the Court of Appeal lies to His Majesty in His Privy Council; but except as aforesaid it is declared that no appeal shall lie to His Majesty in His Privy

This appeal may be had to the Privy Council without first resorting to the Supreme Court of Canada; but it cannot be had per saltum from the High Court.

Proceedings in Obtaining Leave to Appeal.—The practice in applying for leave to appeal to His Majesty in Council is comparatively simple. A petition is drafted setting out the matter as briefly as possible, and reducing it as far as possible to the condition of a legal problem; showing that the amount involved is very considerable, or the case otherwise very important, or that it involves matter of public interest; or that an important and far-reaching point of law is involved, and that there is prima facie ground for contending that the judgment in the Court below is wrong. Any one of these contentions may turn the scale in favour of the applicant. Their absence is generally the ground for refusing leave, and of the three the question of law is more often the decisive one; see Daily Telegraph v. McLaughlin, 1904, A. C. 776; Montreuil v. St. Sulpice, 14 App. Cas. 650; Prince v. Gwynne, 8 App. Cas. 103.

The petition may be drawn, revised and typewritten here, there is no reason why it should not be printed in Canada provided it be printed in the manner prescribed by the Rules of the Privy Council. See infra, p. 1088. As a general rule, however, it is drafted and sent over to the London agents who see to its typing or printing. They then set it down with the Registrar of the Privy Council for hearing.

The Privy Council will not advise His Majesty to admit an appeal from the Supreme Court, save where the case is of gravity involving matters of public interest or some important question of law, or affecting property of considerable amount, or where the case is otherwise of some public importance, or of a very substantial character: Prince v. Gagnon, 8 App. Cas. 1003; Jokuston v. St. Andrews, 3 App. Cas. 159; Daily Telegraph v. McLaughlin, 1904, A. C. 770. Amongst the considerations affecting the granting of the leave are—the general importance of the question, whether it has caused great difference of judicial opinion, and the extent to which the decision has been based upon English authorities; Rohinson v. C. P. Ry., 1892, A. C. 481; 67 L. T. 505; it is not enough that the questions involved are of great importance to the parties or calculated to attract public attention; Dunsmuir v. Langtry, 57 L. T. 317.

Rule 831. Special leave to appeal was refused in a case involving only an issue of fact: Canada Central Ry. Co. v. Murray, 8 App. Cas. 574.

Leave to appeal was refused though the question sought to be raised was one of public importance, and turned on the construction of a statute, because the Privy Council did not think there was any reasonable doubt as to the correctness of the construction which had been adopted: Montréal v. Seminaire de St. Sulpice, 14 App. Cas. 600; 16 S. C. R. 497; and see Toronto v. Attorney-General, 29 C. L. J. 601; and where the appellant had the right to appeal either to the Supreme Court or to His Majesty in Council, and has elected to appeal to the Supreme Court and has failed, a further appeal to His Majesty in Council will not be allowed unless some important question of law is involved; the question whether a railway company is bound to protect a passenger on its railway from assault was not considered a question of such importance as to warrant the granting of leave: Canadian Pacific Ry. v. Blain, 1904, A. C. 453, and see Churgue v. Murray, 1903, A. C. 521.

Where an appellant obtained leave to appeal on the ground that he desired to raise a particular question of great and general importance, he was not permitted on the appeal to contend that no such question arose, and that the case turned upon a question of fact on which the Court below was in error: St. John's v. Central Vermont Ry. Co., 14 App. Cas. 590.

For other cases illustrating the principles on which the Judicial Committee acts in granting special leave to appeal, see 89 L. T. Jour. 287.

Where leave to appeal is granted in a case where the amount in dispute is below that for which an appeal lies in strict course of law, it may be granted only on the terms of the appellant paying the costs of the appeal in any event: Shenton v. Smith, 1895, A. C. 229; 72 L. T. 130; Montreal Gas Co. v. Cadieux, 1898 A. C. 718.

His Majesty in Council will not entertain appeals on mere questions of procedure, where no substantial injustice has been done, and will not suffer points to be raised on such appeals which were not taken, or have been abandoned, in the Court below: The Palgrave Gold Mg. Co. v. McMillan, 1892, A. C. 460; 67 L. T. 425; Randrick v. Australian C. I. Corp., 1893, A. C. 322; Solling v. Broughton, 1893, A. C. 556; Ex p. Kennington, 8 Jur. N. S. 1111; Grey v. Manitoba & N. W. Ry., 1897, A. C. 254, unless the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council is satisfied that it has before it all the facts bearing on the new contention as completely as if it had been raised at the trial: Karunaratne v. Ferdinandus, 1902, A. C. 405, 86 L. T. 329; Archambault v. Archambault, 87 L. T. 404; 1902, A. C. 575; and see The Queen v. Poirier, 30 S. C. R. 36; and when the question of the illegality of a contract was raised by the Court of Appeal itself, but had not been raised in argument before them, the Judicial Committee, though considering the circumstances suspicious, declined to give judgment on the question and sent the case for a new trial: Connolly v. Consumers' Cordage Co., 89 L. T. 347.

Where the Supreme Court of Canada has acted under a special reference to it, under an agreement between the parties, and not in its ordinary jurisdiction as a Court of Appeal, no appeal lies to His Majesty in Council: Atty.-Gen. of Nova Scotia v. Gregory, 55 L. T. 270; 55 L. J. P. C. 40.

Appeal in Forma Pauperis.—By leave of the Judicial Committee an appeal may be allowed to be prosecuted in forma pauperis in a proper case; but where it subsequently appeared that such an appeal was frivolous and the leave would not have been granted if all the facts had been disclosed, the order was rescinded: Quintan v. Quintan, 1901, A. C. 612. Rules 831, 832.

831 The security to be given in cases of appeal to [His] Majesty in Privy Council, shall be personal, and by bond to the respondent, such bond to be executed by two sufficient sureties (except in special cases), as mentioned in Rule 830, in the penal sum of $2,000, the condition of which bond shall be to the effect that the appellant shall and will effectually prosecute his appeal, and pay such costs and damages as shall be awarded in case the judgment appealed from shall be affirmed, or in part affirmed. Security to be given on appeal to Privy Council. Con. Rule 855.

R. S. O. c. 48, s. 2, requires this security to be given.

A form of bond is given in the App. Form 198. See H. & L. Forms No. 1178.

A bond according to the terms of this Form having the words "or pay" in the condition, instead of "and pay," the words used in Rule 831, is regular; and "effectually prosecute" means "successfully prosecute." But to secure the amount found due to the respondents by the judgment appealed from, so as to entitle the appellant to a stay of execution, a bond with the condition in the form of Form 198 is not sufficient; see Rule 832 (d). A bond for that purpose must be conditioned in the same way as a bond under Rule 830; see Form 197, H. & L. Forms No. 1161, and Rule 833; International Bridge Co. v. Canada Southern Ry. Co., 9 P. R. 250; McMaster v. Radford, 16 P. R. 20; R. S. O. c. 48, s. 4.

832. Upon the perfecting of the security mentioned in Rule 831, execution shall be stayed in the original cause, except in the following cases:—

(a) If the judgment appealed from directs the assignment or delivery of documents or personal property, execution shall not be stayed until the things directed to be assigned or delivered have been brought into the Court of Appeal or placed in the custody of such officer or receiver as that Court or a Judge thereof appoints, nor until security has been given to the satisfaction of that Court or a Judge thereof, and in such sum as may be directed, that the appellant will obey the order of the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council. Subject to certain exceptions in which partial performance is required by delivery into Court.

(b) If the judgment appealed from directs the execution of a conveyance or any other instrument, execution shall not be stayed until the instrument has been executed and deposited. Or by executing instrument.

Rules 833, 834. with the proper officer, to abide the judgment of the said Judicial Committee.

Or by the giving of special security not to commit waste.

(c) If the judgment appealed from directs the sale or delivery of possession of real property or chattels real, execution shall not be stayed until security has been entered into to the satisfaction of the Court of Appeal, and in such sum as that Court or a Judge directs, that during the possession of the property by the appellant, he will not commit or suffer to be committed any waste on the property, and that if the judgment be affirmed, he will pay the value of the use and occupation of the property from the time of the appeal until the delivery of possession thereof, and also, in case the judgment is for the sale of property and the payment of a deficiency arising upon the sale, that the appellant will pay the deficiency;

Or to pay debt and costs.

(d) If the judgment appealed from directs the payment of money, execution shall not be stayed until the appellant has given security, to the satisfaction of the Court of Appeal or a Judge thereof, that if the judgment, or any part thereof, be affirmed, the appellant will pay the amount thereby directed to be paid, or the part thereof as to which the judgment may be affirmed if it be affirmed only as to part, and all damages awarded against the appellant on the appeal. Con. Rules 804, 855.

See also R. S. O. c. 48, ss. 3, 4.

The Supreme Court of Canada will not entertain an application to stay proceedings pending an appeal from that Court to His Majesty in Council: Adams v. Bank of Montreal, 31 S. C. R. 223.

Form, etc., of security.

833. The provisions of Rule 830 shall apply to security given under Rules 831 and 832. New. See. Con. Rules 856, 857.

When given, a pat to stay execution to be granted.

Judge may order execution to issue.

834. When the security has been perfected and allowed, a Judge of the Court of Appeal may issue his fiat to the Sheriff to whom any execution under the judgment has been issued, to stay the execution, and the execution shall be thereby stayed, whether a levy has been made under it or not; but if the grounds of appeal appear to be frivolous, the Court of Appeal or a Judge thereof, may order execution to issue or to be proceeded with. Con. Rules 805, 855.

Where judgment is given by the Court of Appeal in favour of defendant with costs, he is entitled to payment out of Court of money paid into Court by the plaintiff as security for the costs of the action, notwithstanding an intended appeal by the plaintiff to the Privy Council, as, otherwise, there would in effect be a stay of proceedings without any security being given. In such a case the plaintiff should apply to the Court of Appeal to stay execution: Centaur Cycle Co. v. Hill, 7 O. L. R. 317. Rule 834.

Under the Imperial Statute, 7 & 8 Vict. c. 69, s. 11, the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council is empowered to make Rules, and under the power thus conferred the following Rules relating to appeals have been passed.

RULE MADE BY THE JUDICIAL COMMITTEE.

Directing Judges of the Courts in the Colonies and Foreign Settlements of the Crown to give their reasons in writing for the judgment appealed from, and to transmit the same with the transcript of the judgment. Rule of P. C. of 12th Feb., 1845.

AT THE COUNCIL CHAMBER, WHITEHALL, the 12th Feb., 1845.

By the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council:

Whereas, by an Act passed in the eighth year of Her Majesty's reign, intitled, etc. [Here follows a recital of 7 & 8 Victoria, c. 69, s. 11.]

Now, therefore, the Lords of the said Judicial Committee of the Privy Council are pleased to order, as it is hereby ordered, that when any appeal shall be prosecuted from any judgment of any Court in the Colonies or foreign settlements of the Crown, the reasons given by the Judges of such Court, or any of such Judges, for or against such judgment, shall be, by the Judge or Judges of such Court, communicated in writing to the Registrar of such Court, or other officer, whose duty it is to prepare and certify the transcript record of the proceedings in the cause, and that the same be by him transmitted in original to the Clerk of Her Majesty's Privy Council, at the same time when the documents and proceedings proper to be laid before Her Majesty in Council upon the hearing of the appeal are transmitted.

Whereof the Judges of all such Courts in the Colonies or foreign settlements of the Crown are to take notice, and govern themselves accordingly.

This Rule is still in force, and is to be observed: see 12 App. Cas. 133.

Rule 834.

Rules of P. C.

Whereas, there was this day read at the Board a report from the Right Honourable the Lords of the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council, dated the 30th May last past, humbly setting forth that the Lords of the Judicial Committee have taken into consideration the practice of the Committee with a view to greater economy, despatch, and efficiency in the appellate jurisdiction of Her Majesty in Council, and that their Lordships have agreed humbly to report to Her Majesty that it is expedient that certain changes should be made in the existing practice in appeals, and recommending that certain Rules and Regulations therein set forth should henceforth be observed, obeyed, and carried into execution, provided Her Majesty is pleased to approve the same.

Her Majesty, having taken the said report into consideration, was pleased, by and with the advice of Her Privy Council, to approve thereof, and of the Rules and Regulations set forth therein, in the words following, viz:—

when successful may recover costs of
appeal.

I. That, any former usage or practice of Her Majesty's Privy Council notwithstanding, an appellant who shall succeed in obtaining a reversal, or material alteration, of any judgment, decree or order, appealed from, shall be entitled to recover the costs of the appeal from the respondent, except in cases in which the Lords of the Judicial Committee may think otherwise to direct.

Transcripts to be sent to the Registrar of the Privy Council.

II. That the Registrar or other proper officer having the custody of the records in any Court, or special jurisdiction from which an appeal is brought to Her Majesty in Council, be directed to send by post with all possible despatch, one certified copy of the transcript record in each cause to the Registrar of Her Majesty's Privy Council, Whitehall; and that all such transcripts be registered in the Privy Council office, with the date of their arrival, the names of the parties, and the date of the sentence appealed from; and that such transcripts be accompanied by a correct and complete index of all the papers, documents and exhibits in the cause; and that the Registrar of the Court appealed from, or other proper officer of such Court, be directed to omit from such transcript all merely formal documents, provided such omission be stated and certified in the said index of papers; and that special care be taken not to allow any document to be set forth more than once in such transcript; and that no other certified copies of the record be transmitted to agents in England by or on behalf of the parties in the suit; and that the fees and expenses incurred and paid for the preparation of such transcript be stated and certified upon it by the Registrar, or other officer, preparing the same.

Transcripts
printed abroad.

III. That where a record of proceedings or evidence in the cause appealed has been printed or partly printed abroad, the Registrar or other proper officer of the Court from which the appeal is brought shall be bound to send home the same in a printed form, either wholly or so far as the same may have been printed, and that he do certify the same to be correct, on two copies, by signing his name on every printed sheet, and by affixing the seal, if any, of the Court appealed from to these copies, with the sanction of the Court.

And that in all cases in which the parties in appeals shall think fit to have the proceedings printed abroad, they shall be at liberty to do so, provided they cause fifty copies of the same to be printed in folio, and transmitted, at their expense, to the Registrar of the Privy Council, two of which printed copies shall be certified as above by the officers of the Court appealed from; and in this case no further expense for copying or printing the record will be incurred or allowed in England (a). Rule 334.

IV. That on the arrival of a written transcript of appeal at the Privy Council office, Whitehall, the appellant or the agent of the appellant prosecuting the same shall be at liberty to call on the Registrar of the Privy Council to cause it, or such part thereof as may be necessary for the hearing of the case, and likewise all such parts thereof as the respondent or his agent may require to be printed by Her Majesty's Printer, or by any other printer on the same terms, the appellant or his agent engaging to pay the costs of preparing a copy for the printer at a rate not exceeding one shilling per brief sheet, and likewise the cost of preparing such record or appendix, and that one hundred copies of the same be struck off, whereof thirty copies are to be delivered to the agents on each side, and forty kept for the use of the Judicial Committee; and that no other fees for solicitors' copies of the transcript, or for drawing the joint appendix, be henceforth allowed, the solicitors on both sides being allowed to have access to the original papers at the Council office, and to extract or cause to be extracted and copied such parts thereof as are necessary for the preparation of the petition of appeal, at the stationer's charge, not exceeding one shilling per sheet.

V. That a certain time be fixed within which it shall be the duty of the appellant or his agent to make such application for the printing of the transcript, and that such time be within the space of six calendar months from the arrival of the transcript and registration thereof in all matters brought by appeal from Her Majesty's Colonies and plantations east of the Cape of Good Hope, or from the territories of the East India Company, and within the space of three months in all matters brought by appeal from any other part of Her Majesty's Dominions abroad; and that in default of the appellant or his agent taking effectual steps for the prosecution of the appeal within such time or times respectively, the appeal shall stand dismissed without further order, and that a report of the same be made to the Judicial Committee by the Registrar of the Privy Council at their Lordships' next sitting (b).

VI. That wherever it shall be found that the decision of a matter on appeal is likely to turn exclusively on a question of law, the agents of the parties with the sanction of the Registrar of the Privy Council, may submit such question of law to the Lords of the Judicial Committee in the form of a special case, and print such parts only of the transcript as may be necessary for the discussion of the same; provided that nothing herein contained, shall in any way bar or prevent the Lords of the Judicial Committee from ordering the full discussion of the whole case, if they shall so think fit; and that in order to promote such arrangements and simplification of the matter

(a) Where the record is printed elsewhere than in England, a successful appellant is unable to recover the cost of printing, whilst he may do so if it is printed in England; Lattey's P. C. Pr., 3. As to form and size, etc., see page 1090.

(b) Where the order of the Court below granting leave to appeal made no provision as to the costs of the motion in the event of the appeal being dismissed for want of prosecution, it was held that the Court below had jurisdiction to rectify the mistake: Milson v. Carter, 1894, A. C. 638; 63 L. T. 755.

in dispute, the Registrar of the Privy Council may call the agents of the parties before him, and having heard them and examined the transcript, may report to the Committee as to the nature of the proceedings.

And Her Majesty is further pleased to order, and it is hereby ordered, that the foregoing Rules and Regulations be punctually observed, obeyed, and carried into execution, in all appeals or petitions, and complaints in the nature of appeals, brought to Her Majesty, or to Her heirs or successors, in Council from Her Majesty's Colonies and plantations abroad, and from the Channel Islands, or the Isle of Man, and from the territories of the East India Company, whether the same be from Courts of Justice, or from special jurisdictions, other than appeals from Her Majesty's Courts of Vice-Admiralty, to which the said Rules are not to be applied.

Whereof the Judges and Officers of Her Majesty's Courts of Justice abroad, and the Judges and Officers of the Superior Courts of the East India Company, and all other persons whom it may concern, are to take notice and govern themselves accordingly.

AT THE COURT AT WINDSOR CASTLE.

The 26th day of June, 1873.

Present:

THE QUEEN'S MOST EXCELLENT MAJESTY IN COUNCIL.

Whereas, in many appeals now pending before Her Majesty in Council, no effectual steps have been taken by the parties or their agents to set down their cases for hearing, although more than twelve months have elapsed since the arrival and registration of the transcript of appeal in this country, and it is expedient to make further provision in that behalf: Her Majesty, by and with the advice of Her Privy Council, and upon a recommendation of the Lords of the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council, is pleased to order, and it is hereby ordered, that the solicitors or agents for the party appellant in all such appeals now pending before Her Majesty in Council are hereby required to take effectual steps to set down their cases for hearing within six months from the date of this Order, and in all other appeals to Her Majesty in Council within a period not exceeding twelve months from the date of the arrival and registration of the transcript in this country.

And Her Majesty is further pleased to order, and it is hereby ordered, that it shall be the duty of the Registrar of the Privy Council to report to the Lords of the Judicial Committee the names of the parties and dates of the decrees in appeals in which no effectual steps have been taken within the aforesaid periods of time to set down the case for hearing; and the Lords of the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council shall be at liberty to call upon the appellant or his agent in such cases to shew cause why the said appeal or appeals should not be dismissed for non-prosecution, and if they shall so think fit to recommend to Her Majesty the dismissal of any such appeal, or to give such directions therein as the justice of the case may require.

And Her Majesty is further pleased to order that nothing in the present Order shall prevent the dismissal of an appeal under the 5th of the Rules approved by Her Majesty on the 13th of June, 1873, in cases to which that Rule is applicable.

Whereof the Governors of Her Majesty's Plantations and Colonies abroad, and the Judges or Officers of Her Majesty's Courts of Justice from which an appeal lies to Her Majesty in Council, and all other persons whom it may concern, are to take notice, and govern themselves accordingly.

PRIVY COUNCIL APPEALS.

AT THE COURT AT RUCKINGHAM PALACE.

The 20th day of March, 1905.

Present:

THE KING'S MOST EXCELLENT MAJESTY,

ARCHBISHOP OF CANTERBURY, LORD PRESIDENT, LORD SUFFIELD, AND SIR WILLIAM WALROND.

Whereas there was this day read at the Board a representation from the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council, dated the 16th day of March, 1905, and in the words following, viz.:

"The Lords of the Judicial Committee having taken into consideration the practice under which an appeal to Your Majesty in Council cannot in the absence of a special order in that behalf made by their Lordships be set down for hearing ex parte as against a respondent to the appeal, who has failed to enter an appearance thereto in the Registry of the Privy Council, unless the appellant shall have previously obtained from their Lordships two successive orders, commonly known as "Appearance Orders," requiring the said respondent to enter an appearance to the appeal within the periods by the said orders respectively limited, and shall have duly published the said orders by affixing the same on the Royal Exchange and elsewhere in the usual manner, and unless the said periods so limited by the said orders as aforesaid shall have expired. And being of opinion that the said practice is inconvenient and ought in certain cases and subject to certain conditions to be dispensed with. Their Lordships do this day agree humbly to recommend to your Majesty to order as follows, that is to say:

"1. That where a respondent to an appeal to Your Majesty in Council, whose name has been entered on the record of the appeal, by the Court admitting the appeal, fails to enter an appearance to the appeal in the Registry of the Privy Council, and it appears from the Transcript Record in the appeal, or from a certificate of the officer of the Court transmitting the said transcript record to the Registrar of the Privy Council, that the said respondent has received notice of the order admitting the appeal to Your Majesty in Council, or of the order of Your Majesty in Council giving the appellant special leave to appeal to Your Majesty in Council (as the case Rule 834. may be), and has also received notice of the despatch of the said transcript record to the Registrar of the Privy Council, the appellant shall not, subject to any direction by their Lordships to the contrary, be required to take out appearance orders calling upon the said respondent to enter an appearance in the appeal, and the appeal may, subject as aforesaid, be set down for hearing ex parte, as against the said respondent, at any time after the expiration of three calendar months from the date of the lodging of the appellant's petition of appeal, in like manner as if the said appearance orders had been taken out by the appellant, and the times thereby respectively limited for the said respondent to enter an appearance had expired.

"2. That where a respondent to an appeal to Your Majesty in Council, whose name has been brought on the record of the appeal by an order of Your Majesty in Council, fails to enter an appearance to the appeal in the Registry of the Privy Council, and it appears, from the transcript record, or from a supplementary record in the appeal, or from a certificate of the officer of the Court transmitting the said transcript record or supplementary record to the Registrar of the Privy Council, that the said respondent has received due notice of any intended application to Your Majesty in Council to bring him on the record as a respondent to the appeal, the appellant shall not, subject to any direction by their Lordships to the contrary, be required to take out appearance orders calling upon the said respondent to enter an appearance in the appeal, and the appeal may, subject as aforesaid, be set down for hearing ex parte, as against the said respondent, at any time after the expiration of three calendar months from the date on which the said respondent shall have been served with a copy of Your Majesty's Order in Council bringing him on the record of the appeal, in like manner as if the said appearance orders had been taken out by the appellant, and the times thereby respectively limited for the said respondent to enter an appearance had expired.

"3. That nothing herein contained shall be deemed to affect the power of their Lordships to order the appellant, in an appeal referred by Your Majesty to their Lordships, to take out appearance orders, or to be excused from taking out appearance orders, in any case in which their Lordships shall think fit so to order, and generally to give such direction as to the time at which, and the conditions on which, an appeal so referred as aforesaid shall be set down, as in the opinion of their Lordships the circumstances of the case may require.

"4. That this order shall apply to all appeals in which the petition of appeal shall be lodged after the date hereof."

Enforcing Judgments of His Majesty in Council.—Provision is made by Rule 818 (a) for enforcing the judgments of His Majesty in Council by filing the order in the High Court, whereupon it may be entered and acted upon as a judgment of that Court. Where the order reverses a judgment of the Supreme Court of Canada it may be made a rule of that Court: Lewis v. Howe, 11 S. C. R. 722; and where costs have been paid under the judgment so reversed the Supreme Court will order them to be refunded: Ib., and semble with interest from the date of payment; see Ashworth v. English Card Clothing Co. (No. 2), 1904, 1 Ch. 704; 90 L. T. 263.

1. WRITS OF EXECUTION.

(i) General Provisions.

835. In Rules 836 to 921 and 1015 to 1020, unless there is something in the context indicating a different meaning, ^{Interpretation.}

(a) "Judgment" shall include an order to the same effect: ^{"Judgment."}

(b) "Judgment creditor" shall mean the party or person who is entitled to receive payment or to enforce a judgment or order: ^{"Judgment creditor."}

(c) "Judgment debtor" or "debtor" shall mean the party or person to make payment under any judgment or order or against whom the same may be enforced. New. See Con. Rules 866, 934. ^{"Judgment debtor."}

See Enr. (1883) R. 602, and R. S. O. 1877, c. 66, s. 72, and Ib., c. 67, s. 12.

This Rule only means that an order may be enforced in the action in the same way as a judgment. An order does not create a debt like a judgment, so as to enable an independent action to be maintained upon it: Re Keer v. Smith, 24 Ont. 473. By 61 Vict. c. 15, s. 9 (O.), it is now enacted that no suit or action shall be brought in a Division Court upon any judgment, decree, or order, for the payment of money made by the High Court or a County Court, where execution may issue in upon or in respect to such judgment, decree or order.

Rules

836, 837. In England it has been held that it is not intended that all orders are to be equivalent to judgments: Ex p. Chinery, 12 Q. B. D. 342; and that the provisions respecting attachment of debts (Rule 911, et seq.) which apply to judgments may not be employed to enforce an order dismissing an action with costs for want of prosecution: Cremetti v. Crom, 4 Q. B. D. 225; see also Ex p. Earl of Strathmore, 20 Q. B. D. 512, Ex p. Whinney, 13 Q. B. D. 476; Ex p. Grimstead, 17 Q. B. D. 357; Ex p. Moore, Re Faithfull, 14 Q. B. D. 627; see, however, Nott v. Sands, W. N. 1883, 74; Whittaker v. Whittaker, 7 P. D. 15.

As to the practice in this Province, see notes to Rules 900 and 911.

As to enforcing orders made by a Judge of the H. C. J., or of a C. C., as persona designata, and not in Court, see R. S. O. c. 76.

The non-service of an order under which an execution has been issued, is no ground for setting aside the execution: Cranston v. Blair, 15 P. R. 167.

Meaning of "Writ of execution," and issuing of execution

836. In these Rules the term "writ of execution" shall include writs of fiery facias, capias, sequestration and attachment, and all subsequent writs that may issue for giving effect thereto. And issuing execution against any party or person shall mean the issuing of any such process against his person or property as under these Rules is applicable to the case. Con. Rule 858.

See Eng. (1883) R. 586.

"Execution" does not include the appointment of a receiver by way of equitable execution: Norburn v. Norburn, 1894, 1 Q. B. 448, Re Craig v. Leslie, 18 P. R. 270.

An order may not only be enforced in the manner provided by the following Rules, but also by action, but that course ought not to be adopted except in cases of real necessity and where the ordinary process of execution is inadequate: Pritchett v. English, 1899, 2 Q. B. 428; 81 L. T. 706.

As to whether "attachment" includes "attachment of debts," see Fellows v. Thornton, 14 Q. B. D. 335. In this Rule the words are "writ of attachment," which would not be applicable to attachment of debts, which is done by order.

In some Rules, e.g. Rules 836-838, the term "writ of execution" seems to be used in its widest signification, and to include other writs than those here mentioned, for example writs of delivery and possession.

Enforcing
judgment for recovery of money.

837. A judgment for the recovery by or payment to any person of money may be enforced by any of the modes by which, prior to the passing of The Ontario Judicature Act, 1881, a judgment or decree or order of any (a) of the Superior Courts for the payment of money, might have been enforced. Con. Rule 826.

The Eng. (1883) R. 581, has at (a) the words, "Court whose jurisdiction has been transferred by the same Act." The Rules are otherwise the same. Rules 838, 839.

The effect of this Rule is to preserve the right to issue any process of execution which might formerly be adopted to enforce payment of money under a judgment or decree: see London, etc., v. Merritt, 32 C. P. 380.

The principal of these were:

1. Writs of fiat facias and (in aid thereof) renditioni caponum, (as to which see Rule 845) and distringas.

2. Writs of sequestration: Rules 859 and 860.

In aid of execution, proceedings might also be taken by way of,

(a) Attachment of debts and garnishee process: Rules 911, et seq.

(b) Equitable execution: Rules 1015, 1016.

The word "judgment" in this Rule includes "order." Where execution is required to enforce an order, the original order, or an office copy thereof, should be produced to the officer required to issue the execution, unless he has access to the book in which it is entered: Peoples B. & L. Assn. v. Stanley, 4 O. L. R. 644; where costs are to be set off against costs payable under an order the execution should be issued only for the balance after making the set off: Ib.

838. Where a judgment directs the payment of money into Court, or to the credit of any cause, or otherwise than to any person, the person having the carriage of the judgment, so far as relates to such payment, shall be deemed the person to receive payment. Con. Rule 934 (a).

Person having carriage of the judgment, etc., to be deemed the person to receive payment.

839. Any judgment for the payment of money into Court may be enforced (a) [by any mode by which a judgment for the payment of money to a person may be enforced], and the person having the carriage of the judgment shall be deemed to be the person to receive payment for the purpose of enforcing the same. Con. Rule 867.

For payment into Court.

See Eng. (1883) R. 582.

(a) What follows is taken from R. S. O. 1877, c. 66, s. 72 (3).

Instead of the other words in brackets, the Eng. R. has the following: "by writ of sequestration: or, in cases in which attachment is authorized by law, by attachment."

In Stranger Leathes v. Stranger Leathes, W. N. 1882, 71, payment of money into Court was enforced by the appointment of a receiver of the dividends of moneys invested in Court, of rents of lands, and of shares in a mining company, in which the party ordered to pay had an interest: so also in Coney v. Bennett, 33 W. R. 700; 29 Ch. D. 993, where money was payable by a trustee into Court, he being out of the jurisdiction.

Rules

840, 841. The Eng. (1883) R. 582, enables an order for payment into Court to be enforced by writ of attachment in certain cases: see Hutchinson v. Hartmont, W. N. 1877, 29; Carter v. Roberts 1903, 2 Cb. 312; but that process cannot be employed here: see notes to Rules 854-856.

Where a solicitor is ordered to pay money into Court, which he has improperly obtained out of Court, but he fails to obey the order, the party having the carriage of the order is not obliged to enforce such an order by issuing a fi. fa., but may apply to commit the solicitor for contempt notwithstanding R. S. O. c. 80, s. 5; Pritchard v. Pritchard, 18 Ont. 173. and see Berry v. Donovan, 21 Ont. App. 14; Roberts v. Donovan, 16 P. R. 456; Swyny v. Harland, 70 L. T. 227.

On execution by infant, person of unsound mind, or a class, money to be paid into Court.

840 Where money (other than for costs) is recovered by or on behalf of an infant, or a person of unsound mind, by his guardian, next friend, or committee, or on behalf of a class, the same shall, unless otherwise ordered, be paid into Court, subject to further order; and no payment to the guardian, next friend, or committee, of moneys due to such infant or person of unsound mind, or person having the conduct of the proceedings on behalf of the class, otherwise than for the costs of the action, shall be a valid discharge as against the infant or person of unsound mind, or the class. Every writ of execution for the levying of any such moneys shall be indorsed by the officer issuing the same with the following notice: "All moneys made under this execution, other than costs, are to be paid into Court by the Sheriff, as required by Rule 840." Con. Rule 877. amended.

Judgment for conditional relief.

841. Where a judgment is to the effect that any party is entitled to any relief subject to or upon the fulfilment of any condition or contingency, the party so entitled may, upon the fulfilment of the condition or contingency, and demand made upon the party against whom he is entitled to relief, apply to the Court or a Judge for leave to issue execution against such party. And the Court or Judge may order that execution issue accordingly, or may direct that any issue or question necessary for the determination of the rights of the parties be tried in any way in which a question arising in an action may be tried. Con. Rule 875.

See Eng. (1883) R. 587.

In an action for specific performance of a contract for the purchase of leaseholds, judgment was obtained for the payment of purchase money on the delivery of deeds. The vendor tendered the deeds, but the purchaser refused to accept them or pay the money. On motion under this Rule the vendor was ordered to deposit the deeds in Court, Rules 842, 843.

 and the purchaser was ordered to pay the money within four days:
Bell v. Denvir, 34 W. R. 638; 54 L. T. 724; W. N. 1886, 113; see also Morgan v. Brisco, 31 Ch. D. 216; 32 Ch. D. 192.

842. In case any action of the proper competence of a Division Court is brought in the High Court or in a County Court, no execution against lands shall issue unless the amount of the judgment exceeds $40. Con. Rule 865.
See The Division Courts Act (R. S. O. c. 60), ss. 230, 231.

No execution in Division Court against lands unless the judgment exceeds $40

(ii) Writ of Fieri Facias.

843. Every person to whom any sum of money or any fi. fa. costs are payable under a judgment shall be entitled immediately to issue one or more writ or writs of fieri facias to enforce payment thereof, subject nevertheless as follows:

- (a) If the judgment is for payment within a period therein mentioned, the writ shall not be issued until after the expiration of such period.
- (b) The Court or Judge at the time of giving the judgment, or the Court or a Judge afterwards, may give leave to issue execution before, or may stay execution until after, the expiration of such period. Con. Rule 863.
Rules 23 June, 1894, 1859.

See Eng. (1883) R. 595, to the like effect.

Seem, the jurisdiction here given to stay execution cannot be exercised by qualifying a judgment for recovery of money, so as to make it payable by instalments: Brien v. Sullivan, 14 L. R. Ir. 391.

Now, in all cases, judgment may be entered as soon as given by the Judge, unless otherwise ordered: Rule 630.

The word "immediately," in this Rule, means instantly: Clarke v. Creighton, 14 P. R. 31, and its use probably sets at rest the question raised in Cullen v. Cullen, 2 Chy. Ch. 94, and Coolidge v. Bank of Montreal, 6 P. R. 73, as to whether the party to pay is entitled to any time to pay, before the issue of execution. See Peoples B. & L. Assoc. v. Stanley, 4 O. L. R. p. 645-6.

Notwithstanding this Rule, a writ of execution against a mutual, or a cash mutual insurance company cannot, under R. S. O. c. 203, s. 141, issue until after the expiration of sixty days from the recovery of judgment: see Loewson v. Canada Farmers' Ins. Co., 9 P. R. 185; Lount v. Canada Farmers' Ins. Co., 8 P. R. 433. (That provision in R. S. O. 1877, c. 161, s. 61, did not apply to a judgment recovered on a policy issued on the cash premium principle: Loewson v. Canada Farmers' Mutual Ins. Co., 3 C. L. T. 452.) The above section 141

Execution against mutual insurance companies.

Rule 843. now applies to a mutual, or a cash mutual company, except where more than sixty per cent. of the premium or premium note or undertaking was paid in cash at the time of the insurance, or the application therefor; and a Judge, or the Master in Chambers, may, on application of the judgment creditor, inquire into the question, whether sixty per cent. was paid, and, if he certifies that more than 60 per cent. was so paid, execution may issue forthwith: R. S. O. c. 203, s. 141 (2).

Against municipal corporations.

For the mode of enforcing execution against a municipal corporation, see 3 Ed. vii. c. 19, s. 471.

Staying
execution.

The Court of Appeal is the proper Court to which to apply to suspend any order which that Court has made; consequently the application should be made to it to stay proceedings under its own order, pending an appeal from that order: The Khedive, 5 P. D. 1.

In Murray v. Infield, 1 Charl. Ca. (Court) 142, an action for libel, a verdict was given for the plaintiff for £100. "Huddleston, B., said that although he was now able to order immediate execution, he would adopt the old (English) practice, and give execution in fourteen days."

In Taylor v. Sherley, 1 Charl. Ca. (Court) 143. "Following the old practice," Pollock, B., gave execution in fourteen days. In Ontario the same result is sometimes attained by staying the entry of the judgment.

See Hodges v. Fincham, 1 Ch. D. 9.

This Rule abrogates the old practice, under which if a judgment creditor issued execution before costs were taxed, he was held to have waived his right to costs: Harris v. Jewell, W. N. 1883, 216.

Where an application under clause (b) has been refused by the Judge at the trial, special circumstances must be shewn on a subsequent application to the Court, as to which, see Monk v. Bartram, 1891, 1 Q. B. 346.

What may be seized under a fi. fa.—As to what may be taken under executions against goods and lands respectively, see R. S. O. c. 77, ss. 7, 10, 17, 18, 30, 33, 34, 35.

The writ affects only the interest which may be in the judgment debtor at the time of its delivery to the Sheriff: see Park v. Riley, 3 L. & A. 215; Re Lewis & Thorne, 14 Ont. 133; Re Trusts Corporation & Boehmer, 26 Ont. 191; Darcy v. Williamson, 1898, 2 Q. B. 194.

A pawnbroker's interest in redeemable pledges may be taken in execution under a fi. fa.: Re Rolleston, 43 Ch. D. 495; and see R. S. O. c. 77, s. 17.

As to the effect of an execution in the sheriff's hands upon growing crops, see Smith v. Union Bank, 15 C. L. T. 15 (Man.).

A right of dower in an equity of redemption before assignment, is not exigible under a writ of fi. fa., nor is the share of one of several tenants in common of an equity of redemption: Canadian Bank of Commerce v. Ralston, 4 O. L. R. 106; nor is the right of property in a registered specific trade-mark; such a right can be sold, if at all, only as appurtenant to the business in which the trade-mark has been used: Clegg v. Bassett, 3 O. L. R. 263.

Where an equity of redemption has been sold and only in part ^{Rules} satisfied the judgment, and the purchaser sells his interest in the ^{844-846.} lands to the mortgagor, the lands again become liable to the execution: Chittick v. Lowery, 6 O. L. R. 547.

844. Subject to Rule 842, a writ of fieri facias issuing ^{Writs to be against both goods and lands.} under a judgment for the payment of money shall be issued against both the goods and chattels and the lands and tenements of the judgment debtor. See 57 V. c. 26, s. 1.

See R. S. O. c. 77, s. 8.

As to the mode of making a return of nulla bona without affecting the currency of the writ as to lands, see Rules 883, et seq.

(iii) Writ of Venditioni Exponas.

845. A writ of venditioni exponas may be issued against ^{Ven. ex.} goods and chattels alone or lands alone. New. See Con. Rule 860.

See Eng. (1883) R. 617, which embraces other writs, viz.: writs of "distingas nuper vice comitem, fieri facias de bonis ecclesiasticis, sequestrari facias de bonis ecclesiasticis, and all other writs in aid of a writ of fieri facias or of elegit."

The sheriff should sell the goods under a writ of fi. fa. without the issue of a ven. ex., but where he has seized, but, for some reason, not sold, goods, he may be required to make a return respecting the fi. fa., and thereupon a writ of ven. ex. may issue on præcipe. After the delivery of this writ to the sheriff he is bound to sell the goods and have the money in Court immediately after its execution: Chit. Arch., 13th ed., 584; Keightley v. Birch, 3 Camp. 521.

(iv) Writ of Possession.

846. A judgment for the recovery or for the delivery of ^{For recovery of land.} the possession of land may be enforced by writ of possession. Con. Rule 868.

Identical with Eng. (1883) R. 583.

Under a writ of possession, under a judgment for possession, in an action by a landlord against his tenant, sub-tenants, not parties to the action, may be put out of possession: Synod of Toronto v. Fiske, 29 Ont. 738.

A writ of possession was ordered to issue in an action by a landlord against a tenant, notwithstanding that the landlord's reversion terminated before the trial, the defendant not shewing affirmatively that it would be unjust and futile to issue the writ: Knight v. Clarke, 15 Q. B. D. 294.

A final order of foreclosure is not a judgment for the recovery or delivery of possession of land within this Rule: see Wood v. Wheeler, 22 Ch. D. 281, although the bringing of an action for foreclosure stops the running of the Statute of Limitations: Heath v. Pugh, 6 C.

Rules

847, 848. P. D. 345. Under the practice in Ontario, an order for the delivery of possession forthwith may be contained in the judgment in a foreclosure action: see Rule 141, and Forms 153, 154 (H. & L. Forms, Nos. 864 and 865). As to whether an application for an order for delivery of possession may be made on or after obtaining the final order for sale, or foreclosure, see note to Rule 141, pp. 275-6.

See Rudd v. Frank, 17 Out. at p. 764.

For the purpose of recovering possession of land, the writ of possession supersedes the old writ of assistance: Wyman v. Knight, 39 Ch. D. 165.

Writ of possession.

847. Where by any judgment any person therein named is directed to deliver up possession of any lands to some other person [on or at any specified time after being served with the judgment], the person prosecuting the same shall, without any further order for that purpose, be entitled to issue a writ of possession, on filing an affidavit showing due service of the judgment and that the same has not been obeyed. Con. Rule 869.

The same as the Eng. (1883) R. 645, except the words in brackets which are not in the English Rule.

In Chitty's Forms (12th ed.), p. 596, note, it is said that the affidavit is only necessary in cases within the words of the Rule, viz., where the judgment directs the defendant "to deliver up possession."

The judgment on an award is in this form, and judgments in mortgage actions are so drawn: see Forms 153, 154 (H. & L. Forms, Nos. 864 and 865). In other cases the form is usually "that the plaintiff do recover," etc.: see Forms 140 to 143 (H. & L. Forms, Nos. 866 to 869).

Where plaintiff's title has expired pro tanto lite, see Rule 61 and note.

Effect of writ.

848. A writ of possession shall have the effect of a writ of assistance as well as of a writ of habere, acias possessi nem, Con. Rule 861.

Not in any Eng. Rule.

This writ supersedes the old Chancery writ of assistance so far as the recovery of land is concerned: Hall v. Hall, 2 L. J. Chy. 680; Wyman v. Knight, 39 Ch. D. 165; but in Eagle it seems that in case of necessity the writ of assistance may still be used, e.g., to recover possession of personal property which is in danger of being removed beyond the jurisdiction of the Court: Wyman v. Knight, supra. It may be doubted whether this is so in Ontario in view of Rule 3. A special form of writ of delivery might probably in such case be framed from Form No. 175 (H. & L. Forms, No. 1082).

For the form of writ of possession, see Form 174 (H. & L. Forms, No. 1081).

The chief difference between a writ of assistance and the former writ of habere facias possessionem was, that the latter used merely to order the Sheriff to put the plaintiff in possession, whereas the former instructed the Sheriff to "defend and keep" the plaintiff "and his assigns in peaceable and quiet possession when and as often as any interruption may or shall be given or offered to them or any of them": see Daniell's Forms 982; thus it is presumed, rendering unnecessary applications for a new writ where a defendant wrongfully resumed possession after being ejected by the Sheriff: see Hoc d. Peck v. Roe, 2 U. C. Q. B. 27; Edwards v. Bennett, 5 P. R. 161; McDermott v. McDermott, 4 P. R. 252. This is now the language of Form 174, and a defendant who retakes possession wrongfully, after being ejected, is liable to be committed for contempt: see Re Higgs, Goddard v. Higgs, 97 L. T. Jour. 11.

Where a plaintiff has been put in possession under a writ of possession and a defendant soon after regains possession after the return of the writ executed, the plaintiff, on motion, is entitled to an order for a new writ of possession: Practor v. Weller, 3 C. L. T. 551; see Stacpoole v. Walsh, 6 L. R. Ir. 444.

If in executing the writ a person is found in possession not claiming under the defendant, and is dispossessed by the Sheriff, such person may apply for leave to defend the action under Rule 181; Minet v. Johnson, 63 L. T. 507.

849. Upon a judgment for recovery of any land and mesne profits or rents in respect of the property claimed and costs, there may be either one writ or separate writs of execution for the recovery of possession, and for mesne profits, rents and costs, at the election of the party entitled to recover the same. Con. Rule 870. Execution for lands and costs

It is held in Ireland, under sec. 209 of the C. L. P. Act (46 & 47 V. c. 113), repeated in the Rules under the Ir. Jud. Act, that where a plaintiff has obtained a verdict for possession, mesne profits and costs, execution for possession cannot issue till the costs are taxed, unless he has waived them; Beasley v. Chapman, 6 L. R. Ir. 393.

That section is as follows:

"209. Upon any judgment in ejectment there may be either one or several writs of execution for the recovery of possession and for the damages, the rents ascertained to be due and costs, at the election of the plaintiff."

(v) Writ of Assignment of Dower.

850. A judgment for the recovery of dower (whether with or without costs or damages) may be enforced by a writ of assignment of dower, directed to the Sheriff of the County in which the lands lie; and the writ shall set forth the lands out of which the plaintiff is to recover dower, and may be according to Form No. 183. R. S. O. 1887, c. 56, s. 7. Con. Rule 871. Writ of assignment of dower

Rules851, 852.

A judgment in an action to establish a will, declaring plaintiff entitled to land in question in fee simple subject to the dower of the testator's widow (a defendant) is not a judgment for the recovery of dower within the meaning of this Rule: Cope v. Cope, 20 Ont. 441.

For Form No. 183, see H. & L. Forms No. 1084.

Dower pursuant to Rule 959.

851. The writ of assignment of dower required to be issued under Rule 959, when the right of dower is acquired in by the owner of the estate, may be according to Form No. 184. Con. Rule 872.

For Form No. 184, see H. & L. Forms, No. 1085.

(vi) Writ of Delivery.

Specific delivery of goods.

852. Where specific goods, chattels, deeds, securities, valuable papers, or any property other than land or money, are demanded in an action, and judgment has been entered to recover the same or their value, the Court shall at the request of the judgment creditor, where a recovery or delivery of the property in specie is desired, direct a writ of execution to issue on the judgment, commanding the judgment debtor specifically to deliver up forthwith the property demanded, and in case of refusal that the judgment debtor be arrested and detained in prison until he complies with the terms of the writ, and also that the goods and chattels of the judgment debtor to double the value of the property in question be taken and kept until the further order of the Court to enforce obedience to the writ, or that a writ of sequestration may issue; or, at the option of the judgment creditor, the Court may order the Sheriff to make of the judgment debtor's goods the value of such property; but the judgment creditor shall, either by the same or by a separate writ of execution (to be issued in the ordinary manner) be entitled to have made of the judgment debtor's goods and lands, the damages, costs and interest in such action. Con. Rule 873.

Damages,
costs, etc.

See Eng. (1883) R. 649.

The judgment for delivery of the property, or payment of its value, does not divest the plaintiff of the property in the chattel until the satisfaction of the value found by the judgment, even though satisfaction is prevented by the bankruptcy of defendant: Ex p. Drake, 5 Ch. D. 866.

It is doubtful under the English Rules, whether an order for the writ is necessary: Ivory v. Cruickshank, W. N. 1875, 249. In Ont. it is probable that the direction of the Judge will be given in the judgment.

In Ivory v. Cruickshank, W. N. 1875, 240; 1 Charl. Ch. Ca. 123, Rule 553.
 an action for rent and for the return of specific goods, judgment having been signed for the amount of rent in default of appearance, the plaintiff was allowed to sign judgment also for the return of the specific goods, and then to proceed under Eng. R. 584 as he might be advised by writ of delivery, attachment or sequestration. In Battley v. Sears (Times, 7th March, 1876, cited Charley's Jud. Act, 3rd ed., p. 660), it is stated that a rule nisi for an attachment was granted against a defendant for refusing to give up a diamond ring or pay for it, execution having proved futile, as the defendant was a married woman.

(vii) Writs of Attachment and Sequestration.

553. A judgment requiring any person to do any act other than the payment of money, or to abstain from doing anything, may be enforced by writ of attachment, or by committal. Con. Rule 874.

Judgment

undone.

Identical with Eng. (1883) R. 585.

A technical difference exists according to the English practice between attachment and committal; an attachment being held to be the proper remedy for punishing the refusal to do any act ordered to be done, and committal the proper remedy for punishing the doing of any act which by any order is prohibited. In England, while an attachment is directed to the Sheriff, committal is executed by an officer (Sergeant at Arms) of the Court. This distinction is still observed in England: Re Evans, 1893, 1 Ch. 252; 68 L. T. 271; Haunder v. Falcke, 1891, 3 Ch. 488; 64 L. T. 791; Callow v. Young, 56 L. T. 147; and see Harvey v. Harvey, 26 Ch. D. 654; 51 L. T. nt p. 512, and D. v. A. & Co., 1900, 1 Ch. 484. Formerly an attachment issued at the instance of the party aggrieved, and at his own risk and without motion; whereas a committal could only be obtained on motion: Ib.; under the Con. Rules, however, a notice of motion is necessary now in the case of attachment; see Rule 875.

On a notice of motion to commit the defendant, Malins, V.-C., ordered a writ of attachment to issue against him: Piper v. Piper, W. N. 1876, 202; but after obtaining an order for an attachment, a party cannot move ex parte for an order for committal instead: Buist v. Bridge, 43 L. T. 432; 29 W. R. 117; and on a motion for an attachment, where the proper remedy was committal, Chitty, J., required the notice of motion to be amended, and re-served.

In Ontario both an attachment, and an order for committal, are directed to the Sheriff, and how far the technical difference between the two remedies which prevails in England has any application here does not appear to have been considered. The only apparent difference in the procedure in Ontario between an attachment and committal is, that in the former case a writ of attachment issues, and in the case of a committal no writ issues and the Sheriff acts under the order.

An attachment, or committal, for contempt, is a punitive process, and not a mere civil proceeding, though issued to enforce private Rule 853. rights, and the Sheriff is bound to break open the outer door if necessary in order to execute it; see Harvey v. Harvey, 20 Ch. D. 654.

As to mode of obtaining a writ of attachment, see notes to Rules 854 and 855.

An order for committal may be obtained not only for enforcing a judgment, but also to punish persons guilty of acts calculated to interfere with the course of justice.

The publication in a newspaper of scurrilous abuse of a Judge with reference to his conduct as a Judge in a judicial proceeding which has terminated, is a contempt of Court, punishable on summary process; Rog. v. Grop, 1900, 2 Q. B. 36.

It was laid down by the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council that committal for contempt of Court is to be used only with reference to the administration of justice, and not for the vindication of a Judge as a person; thus a person innocently and without knowledge of its contents lending a newspaper to another containing scandalous matter relating to a Court of Justice, was held not to be thereby guilty of contempt of such Court, and his committal was set aside; McLeod v. St. John, 1891, A. C. 549; 81 L. T. 178. In that case Lord Morris said "commitments for contempt of Court by scandalizing the Court itself have become obsolete in this country. Courts are satisfied to leave to public opinion attacks or comments derogatory or scandalous to them."

See Addenda

A proprietor of a newspaper publishing comments on matters in litigation, calculated to interfere with the fair trial of the action by exciting prejudice against one of the parties, is liable to committal and also to be fined for contempt of Court; Re Crown Bank, 41 Ch. D. 649; 63 L. T. 304; Re Labouchere, Kensit v. Eng. News, 18 Times 208; Phillips v. Has, ib., 400; even where the case is pending before an inferior tribunal; Rex v. Parke, 1903, 2 K. B. 432; 89 L. T. 431. As to the extent to which newspaper comments on cases in litigation are allowable see Re O'Brien, 16 S. C. R. 197. On the same principle any person knowing of an injunction, and wilfully assisting or participating in a breach of it, is liable to be committed for contempt of Court, for interfering with the course of justice; Steward v. Paterson, 1897, 1 Ch. 545; 76 L. T. 215; and see Furard v. Furard, 75 L. T. 664. The fact that the order has not been served on the party sought to be punished is no answer; ib. Issuing fraudulent circulars to influence the course of pending litigation was held to be a contempt; In re Parsonage & Co., 1901, 2 Ch. 424. A motion to commit for contempt in publishing comments must be made in Court, and not in Chambers; Southwick v. Hare, 15 19 R. 290.

The Court will not encourage motions where the object is not really to commit, but only to obtain an apology and costs, and therefore in Plating Co. v. Farquharson, 17 Ch. D. 50, no costs were given; and see Regina v. Payne, 1896, 1 Q. B. 577.

Non-payment of money, when punishable by attachment.

Under R. S. O. c. 80, s. 5, process of contempt for non-payment of money or costs is abolished; but where, for the purpose of giving a party the equitable relief to which he is entitled, a defendant is ordered to do an act, e.g., procure a mortgage to be discharged which he has wrongfully caused to be put upon the registry, the performance of such act may be enforced by attachment, notwithstanding that, in order to perform the act, it may be necessary for the defendant to ^{Rule 854} pay money to some other person: Berry v. Donovan, 21 Ont. App. 14; and see Roberts v. Donovan, 16 P. R. 456; Pritchard v. Pritchard, 18 Ont. 173; Sargny v. Harland, 70 L. T. 227.

Where a married woman living with her husband was in contempt for disobeying an order of the Court it was formerly considered that her husband was answerable unless he could satisfy the Court that he had used his best endeavours to get his wife to comply with the order: see Maugham v. Wilkes, 2 Chy. Ch. 91; Morckeson v. Donohoe, 6 P. R. 138; but it would seem that a married woman is now personally liable for her default: see Re Turnbull, 1890, 1 Ch. 180; 81 L. T. 439; Evans v. Jenkins, 115 L. T. Jour. 457.

Where it is sought to enforce a judgment or order by attachment, or committal, the order or judgment must be first served on the party required to obey the same, except in the case of an injunction order of which the party or his solicitor or counsel has notice. And where some act is to be performed by a time limited by the order or judgment, the service should be effected a reasonable time before the time limited by the order or judgment has expired: Berry v. Donovan, supra.

Where after a writ of possession has been executed, the defendant wrongfully retakes possession, he is liable to attachment: see Re Higgs, Goddard v. Higgs, 97 L. T. Jour. 11.

An attachment will only be granted for disobedience of an order or judgment, where the disobedience has been wilful: see Fairclough v. Manchester Ship Canal, 102 L. T. Jour. 292.

As to obtaining a writ of sequestration, where an attachment is ineffectual, see notes to Rule 857. Also in the case of a corporation: Cook v. Credit Valley Ry. Co., 8 P. R. 167; Demarest v. Midland, 10 P. R. 82; McKeown v. Jobit Stock Institute, 1899, 1 Ch. 671.

As to enforcing injunctions, and punishing a breach thereof, see further the notes to sec. 58 (3) of the Act.

If the Court had no jurisdiction to make the order sought to be enforced, that is a good answer to a motion to commit for disobedience of it: McLeod v. Noble, 28 Ont. 528.

Where there is a remedy by action, and also by attachment, in respect of the same matter, the plaintiff is not precluded from exercising the one remedy by having made an unsuccessful attempt to enforce the other: Godfrey v. George, 1896, 1 Q. B. 18; 73 L. T. 599; 44 W. R. 246; but semble, if a writ of attachment is obtained and defendant is taken under it, the remedy by action is gone: Ib.

As to the right of action in a Division Court to enforce a judgment where execution can be issued upon it, see now 41 Vict. c. 17, s. 19.

854. A writ of attachment against the person shall be ^{Effect of attachment.} issued under the same circumstances, and shall have the same effect, as under the practice of the Court of Chancery, prior to The Ontario Judicature Act, 1881. Con. Rule 878.

See Eng. (1883) R. 620.

Rule 854. Chancery Order 288 provided as follows:

Ch. Ord. 288. "288. If a party who is ordered, otherwise than by an order of course, to do any act, other than to pay money, in a limited time, refuses or neglects to obey the order according to the exigency thereof, the party prosecuting the order shall, at the expiration of the time limited, upon filing with the Registrar an affidavit of the service of the order, and of the non-performance thereof, be entitled, upon præcipe, to a writ or writs or attachment against the disobedient party."

But Rule 854 requires a notice to be served, and leave to be obtained, before an attachment is issued. To this extent the former practice preserved by Rule 854 is varied.

Chy. O. 293. Chy. Order 293, provided that every order requiring a party to do an act, other than the payment of money, should have indorsed upon the copy of the order served, a memorandum to the effect set forth in Schedule N to the Chy. Orders notifying the party as follows:

Schedule N. "If you, the within named (here insert the name of the party), neglect to obey this order by the time therein limited, you will be liable to be arrested by the Sheriff; and you will also be liable to have your estate sequestered for the purpose of compelling you to obey this order without further notice. If you wish to apply to the Court to add to, vary, or set aside the said order, or to suspend the operation thereof, you must do so before the expiration of the time within limited."

This Chy. O. 293, is not consolidated in the Ont. Rules, but the corresponding Eng. O. is continued in the Eng. (1883) R. 573. Under the new practice it was held in England under the Rules of 1875 (that of course not under the Rules of 1883, R. 573; see Hampden v. Mullis, 36 Ch. D. 746, and Treherne v. Dale, 27 Ch. D. 66; 54 L. J. Chy. 831), that this indorsement was not necessary, as an attachment under the new procedure could not be obtained except upon notice: see Rule 855, but the rule might be different in the case of a sequestration: Thomas v. Pullin, 21 Ch. D. 360; and see Wadsworth v. Graham, 11 L. R. Ir. 360. In Ontario a sequestration does not issue in præcipe except where a party is already in custody under an attachment; see Rule 857; and in other cases, is not, under Rule 856, obtained without notice: so that the indorsement would seem to be not necessary in cases either of attachment or sequestration: see Rule 2; sed vide per MacLennan, J.A., Berry v. Doucroun, 21 Ont. App. at 199, 20, 31.

If the notice referred to above is indorsed, the words "without further notice," at all events, should be now omitted: see Rule 855.

Eng. (1883) R. 573 has no application to a prohibitive order: Silous v. Croydon, 53 L. T. 210; 20 Sol. Jour. 485; such an order is enforced by committal: see notes to Rule 853, supra, p. 1105.

The order or judgment sought to be enforced by attachment should limit the time for the performance of the act therein required to be done, and it should be served on the party required to obey it a reasonable time before the time thereby limited has expired: Brown v. Doucroun, 21 Ont. App. 14; Re Seal, 1903, 1 Ch. 87.

Where default in complying with an order was not clearly enough shown to justify an order for attachment, if the opposite party had not appeared, the defect was held to be cured by his appearing and resisting the motion on other grounds: Treherne v. Dale, 27 Ch. D. 66.

855. A writ of attachment shall not be issued without Rule 855. the leave of the Court or a Judge, on notice to the person ^{leave to} against whom the attachment is to be issued. Con. Rule 819. ^{issue.}

To same effect as Eng. (1881) R. 621.

to the difference between attachment and committal, see supra, Rule 853 and notes.

This Rule introduced an important change in the Chancery Practice: see Rule 853 and notes. A writ of attachment can now never issue as of right without an order, granted after notice to the party: Baigent v. Baigent, 1 P. D. 421; W. N. 1875, 218; Abud v. Riches, 2 Ch. D. 528; Dallas v. Glau, 3 Ch. D. 300; see Re Heiron's Estate, Holl v. Leg, 12 Ch. D. 705; Re Knight, Knight v. Gardiner, 25 Ch. D. 297; Re Chalkona Harvester Co. v. Campbell, 12 P. R. 666. This was the rule in the Common Law Courts, except in the case of an attachment against a Sheriff for disobeying an order to return a writ; in which case the rule was made absolute ex parte; Reg. Gen. 7th T. 1856, R. 140; see Jupp v. Cooper, 5 C. P. D. 26. In Jupp v. Cooper, all that the attention of the Court was called to was whether the order should be absolute in the first instance, or only an order nisi, and the latter was granted, as also was done in Fowler v. Ashford, 45 L. T. 46. An attachment against the Sheriff, like any other attachment, is now governed by the new Rule; Eynode v. Gould, 9 Q. B. D. 335; see also Dallas v. Glau, supra; Re Heiron's Estate, supra.

The provisions of Rule 133, infra, apply to an application for an attachment. The costs are therefore in the discretion of the Court; Abud v. Riches, supra, and should be asked for and dispensed of on the application for the attachment: Ib.

An Interlocutory order, under Rule 405, et seq., may be enforced by attachment: Hutchinson v. Hartnunt, W. N. 1877, 20; and an order directing a solicitor to repay into Court moneys which had been paid out to him, has been so enforced: Pritchard v. Pritchard, 18 Ont. 173.

An order should be drawn up and entered before being enforced by process: Bullard v. Tomlinson, 48 L. T. 515.

A motion for attachment when made for non-compliance with orders of course, or orders in Chambers, may be made to a Judge in Chambers; see Sohn Kyebury v. Poznanski, 13 Q. B. D. 218; Amstell v. Lessar, 53 L. T. 759, 34 W. R. 230, but when made for non-compliance with an order or judgment of the Court, it should be made in Court; Klein v. Fulton Fire Ins. Co., 3 C. L. T. 602. The practice in England is not similar to that in Ontario: see Davis v. Galtoun, 39 Ch. D. 222; 40 Ch. D. 355.

Neither the Master in Chambers, nor a Local Judge or Master (acting under Rules 42, 45 or 49), has jurisdiction to entertain a motion to attach or commit, as such matters are excepted from the powers conferred upon them; see Rule 42, and Keece v. Ward, 9 P. R. 220, but as to Local Judges see Rule 47.

In Re Steele, 23 Sed. Jour. 906, the question was raised whether the order to be obeyed need be personally served since an attachment can now only be had upon notice. It is submitted, however, that there is nothing to alter the former practice which required personal ^{Service of} the order ^{to be} obeyed.

Rule 855. service of the order to be obeyed (except in cases under Rule 474, and except where it is shown that the order has come to the knowledge of the person sought to be attached, and that he is evading service of it; Kistler v. Tettmar, 1905, 1 K. B. 331; 92 L. T. 360), more especially if the notice of motion to attach is not personally served. Where the director of a company was sought to be attached for disobedience of an order against the company, it was held that he must be personally served with the order; McKenna v. Joint Stock Institute, 1899, 1 Ch. 671; 80 L. T. 641. The order or judgment must be served a reasonable time before the time limited thereby for the performance of the act ordered to be done, has expired; Berra v. Donovan, 21 Ont. App. 14.

An order to deliver a bill of costs served on a solicitor's clerk at his office was disobeyed. On motion for attachment the solicitor swore that he had not been personally served. A letter from him giving reason for delay and promising to deliver bills was produced, but it was held that the necessity for personal service was not waived by the letter; Re Cunningham, 55 L. T. 766.

Notice of motion.

Two clear days' notice of motion is sufficient. The practice laid down in Abell v. Hiltz, 6 P. R. 122, and Bryce v. McIntyre, 7 P. R. 134, is not now in force; Monaghan v. Dobbin, 2 C. L. T. 215; see also Cook v. Credit Valley Ry. Co., 8 P. R. 167.

It is not necessary to serve with the notice of motion copies of the affidavits filed in support of it; Huffman v. McKee, 18 P. R. 185.

Service of.

Where the order to be obeyed has been personally served it is nevertheless necessary, in case of disobedience, to serve personally any notice of motion for attachment or committal; Rule 855, see also Ellerton v. Thirsk, 1 J. & W. 376; Angerstein v. Hunt, 6 Ves. 488; Hope v. Carnegie, L. R. 7 Eq. 254; Nelson v. Worsam, W. N. 1880, 216; except in the case provided for by Rule 474 of disobedience of an order to bring accounts into the Master's office, or for production, or inspection of books and papers; in cases under Rule 474 it is not necessary to serve a notice of motion to attach personally upon the disobedient party, if he has a solicitor; see Wilson v. Wilson, 7 P. R. 57.

Where personal service of notice of motion to attach the defendant could not be effected, the order was made an affidavit of service of the notice on a solicitor who had appeared in the action for the defendant, although the solicitor had ceased to act for him; Callow v. Young, 55 L. T. 543; and see Re Evans, 1893, 1 Ch. 252; 68 L. T. 271.

There is no distinction, in regard to service of a notice of motion for attachment, between contempt in breach of an undertaking, and contempt in breach of an injunction, knowledge of which is given by previous service of the order; Id.

In Hann v. Perry, W. N. 1881, 4; 44 L. T. 248; 50 L. J. Chy. 251, it was held that notice of motion to commit must be served personally, unless some reason is shown for dispensing with personal service. On a motion for an attachment, however, it had previously been held that service of notice of motion upon the solicitors on the record of the party to be attached was sufficient, though personal service was not shown to be impracticable; Browning v. Sabia, 5 Ch. D. 511; Richards v. Kitchen, 25 W. R. 602; or by leaving the notice at the residence of the party affected thereby; Re a Solicitor, 14 Ch. D. 152. See also Tibbitt v. Stansfield, W. N. 1880, 77; Trotter v. Leach, 13 C. L. T. 64.

In Ontario it has been held that Mann v. Perry, is to be followed: Rule 855.
Smith v. Martin, 4 C. L. T. 493; except where Rule 474 applies;
Re Hamlen, 11 P. R. 35.

In England it is now held that there is jurisdiction to order substitutional service where every reasonable effort to effect personal service has been made: Mander v. Fulke, 1891, 3 Ch. 488; Re Bassett, 1894, 3 Ch. 179.

Where a motion is made to attach a defendant who has not appeared in the action, see notes to Rule 330.

The copy of order served must be an exact copy: Re Holt, 11 Ch. D. 168; see also Ex p. Smith, 28 W. R. 174.

Where a party has not been personally served, his appearance on the return of the motion to take the objection is not a waiver of it: Mander v. Fulke, 1891, 3 Ch. 488; Taylor v. Roe, 68 L. T. 213; but service of notice is waived by counsel appearing and consenting to an enlargement: Ex p. Meock, 1 C. P. D. 68. But scilicet, an objection that personal service has not been effected, though given effect to, if taken on the return of the motion (see Taylor v. Roe, supra), will not of itself be a sufficient ground for setting aside the attachment, if granted, where the party did not appear on the return of the motion: Petty v. Daniel, 34 Ch. D. 172; 55 L. T. 745; and see Re Evans, Evans v. Norton, 1893, 1 Ch. 252; 68 L. T. 271.

The provisions as to substituted service have been held not to apply to an application for an attachment, but only to service of writs of summons: Amos, W. N. 1876, 105; but see cases supra, p. 283, and Williams v. Johns, 2 Dick. 477; 1 Mer. 303 (d); Pultney v. Shelton, 5 Ves. 347; DeMauverille v. DeMauverille, 12 Ves. 202; Lechevre-Charlton's Case, 2 M. & C. 335; also Hope v. Carnegie, L. R. 7 Eq. 254; Howarth v. Howarth, 11 P. D. 35; Tilney v. Shusfield, W. N. 1880, 57; Mander v. Fulke, 1891, 3 Ch. 488; 65 L. T. 454; Trout v. Long, 13 C. L. T. 64; Re Bassett, Bassett v. Bassett, 1891, 3 Ch. 179.

Service of notice made on the clerk of a solicitor at his office, his residence not being known, was held to be good service, but, notwithstanding, the order was stayed for a week, and notice thereof directed to be served on the solicitor: Tilney v. Shusfield, supra.

On a motion to commit for contempt, an attachment may issue: Piper v. Piper, W. N. 1876, 202; but on a motion for an attachment an order to commit cannot be obtained ex parte: Baist v. Rydop, 43 L. T. 432; 29 W. R. 117. Issue, and execution, of writ of attachment.

On a motion for attachment for contempt in committing a breach of undertaking contained in an order, a preliminary objection was raised that the proper remedy was committal. The objection was allowed, and the plaintiff given leave to amend his notice of motion and serve it again: Callow v. Young, 56 L. T. 147; 56 L. J. Chy. 690. The distinction between attachment and committal still exists in England; see note to Rule 853. See also D. v. A. & Co., 1900, 1 Ch. 484.

A writ of attachment may be issued against a party out of the jurisdiction, though it can only be enforced in the event of his coming within the jurisdiction: Bloomfield v. Brooke, 6 P. R. 264; Trout v. Long, 13 C. L. T. 64.

No particular return day is inserted in the writ: see Form No. 177 (H. & L. Forms, No. 1108); but after a reasonable interval a return may be required: Orce v. Pritchard, W. N. 1876, 117.

Rule 856. The officer charged with the execution of the writ may break open the outer door of the house in order to execute it: Harvey v. Hurrey, 26 Ch. D. 644.

A further opportunity to comply with the order may be given, or the order may be stayed, pending an appeal, in the discretion of the Judge: Mellor v. Thompson, W. N. 1883, 128.

A person attached for misconduct will not be detained for costs: Jackson v. Marby, 1 Ch. D. 86; see also Earl of Lewes v. Barnett, 6 Ch. D. 252; and Micklethwaite v. Fletcher, 27 W. R. 793. But, in order to punish anyone who has been guilty of a contempt, he may be imprisoned for a stated period: see Rule 861; and allowed to be discharged if he pays the costs before the expiration of such period: Harris v. Meyers, 1 Chy. Ch. 229; see also Marris v. Ingram, 13 Ch. D. 338.

The president of a company cannot be attached for non-performance of an act which could only be performed by a majority of the board of directors: Demorest v. Midland Ry. Co., 10 P. R. 82.

As to attaching a Member of Parliament, see Re Anglo-French Co-operative Soc., 14 Ch. D. 533.

Where an attachment issued against a defendant for not complying with an order for discovery, and compliance was then made, but the defendant was nevertheless thereafter arrested, it was held that the arrest was irregular and that it was the duty of the plaintiff's solicitor to have stayed the enforcement of the attachment: Guy v. Hancock, 46 L. T. 207.

A party committed for contempt of Court is not entitled to a habeas corpus: Re Anderson v. Faustone, 16 P. R. 243; not even for the purpose of attending in person to move for his discharge: Roberts v. Donovan, Ib. 456.

But where a motion is made against a person, in close custody, it is in the discretion of the Court whether a habeas corpus be granted to enable him to attend in person to shew cause: Ib.

Where an attachment had been properly issued against a solicitor, for non-payment of money, it was held that the subsequent acceptance of part, and giving time for payment of the balance, was no waiver of the right to enforce the attachment for non-payment of the balance as agreed: Re Fereday, 1895, 2 Ch. 437; 73 L. T. 56.

Attachment for non-performance of an act.

856. If a person who is ordered, otherwise than by an order of course, to do any act other than to pay money, in a limited time, refuses or neglects to obey the judgment, the party prosecuting the same shall be entitled to a writ of attachment against the disobedient party. Con. Rule 880.

Taken from Chy. O. 288.

A writ of attachment cannot issue as of course, because under the preceding Rule 855 no such writ is to issue without an order to be applied for on notice: Thomas v. Pollin, 21 Ch. D. 360; 57 L. T. 207.

An order to discharge a mortgage improperly put upon the registry, may be enforced by attachment, notwithstanding that the person required to obey the order may have to pay money in order to comply with it: see Berry v. Donovan, 21 Ont. App. 14; Roberts v. Donovan, Rule 857, 16 P. R. 456; so also, an order requiring a solicitor to refund money he has obtained from the Court under circumstances which make him liable to refund it: Pritchard v. Pritchard, 18 Ont. 173; or which has been paid to him under an undertaking to refund it, if required: Smyth v. Harland, 70 L. T. 227.

Provision is made by R. S. O. c. 324, s. 20, for the discharge of a person, committed for certain contempts, who is entitled to his discharge but neglects to apply for it.

857. Where a person is, under Rule 856, taken or detained in custody under a writ of attachment, without obeying the judgment, then upon the Sheriff's return that the person has been so taken or detained, the party prosecuting the judgment shall be entitled upon procipe, to a commission of sequestration against the estate and effects of the disobedient person. Con. Rule 881.

Taken from Chy. O. 289.

Sequestration.—Originally the writ of sequestration was the last prerogative process, issued out of the Court of Chancery, for the purpose of enforcing obedience to its decrees. The right of the Court of Chancery to issue such writs was at first contested by the Common Law Courts, on the ground that the Court of Chancery could not enforce its decrees by process in rem, but only in personam. And it was even ruled at Law, that to kill a sequestrator in the execution of such process was no murder. But the authority of the Court to issue such writs was ultimately established, in spite of the "bloody and desperate resolutions" of the common lawyers: see Gilbert's Chy. Pr., 77.

A sequestration is in "the nature of a grand distress." It is a "A grand process of contempt in rem:" Tatham v. Parker, 1 Sm. & G. 506 (see, distress). However, observations of Spragge, C., in Meyers v. Meyers, 21 Gr. 216; and may be issued to enforce any mandatory order, or judgment. It affects the personal estate, and the rents and profits of the realty, of the person whose estate is sequestered: Jackson v. Jackson, 1 Chy. L.R. 115; but it does not appear to bind the land itself: Hyde v. Greenhill, 1 Dick. 197; and lands cannot be sold under a sequestration: Meyers v. Meyers, 21 Gr. 218. According to English authorities, it is said that the writ binds from its date, and not merely from its delivery for execution: Burdett v. Rockley, 1 Vern. 58; but see Angel v. Smith, 9 Ves. 336; Harris v. Meyers, 3 Chy. Ch. 107; but though the property be bound, yet the seizure under the writ does not create a charge on the property in favour of the creditor: In re Pollard, 1903, 2 K. B. 41; 87 L. T. 61.

The writ of sequestration has been shorn of much of its original efficacy by the enlarged operation given in Ontario to the fi. fa. goods. It is now only to be employed as a last resource. Fi. fa. goods and proceedings for attaching debts, etc., are first to be used, and if by those the debtor's property cannot be reached, a writ of sequestration may be issued on application in Chambers, upon notice as a general rule, but it will in general only be granted when the debtor's lands are insufficient to satisfy the debt, and it therefore becomes of importance to enter upon the land and realize the profits thereof during binds personally, and rents and profits of realty.

Rule 857. the year which must elapse before they can be sold under a fi. fa. lands, or where the interest of the debtor is such that it cannot be taken under a fi. fa.: Nelson v. Nelson, 6 P. R. 194. The Court has, however, power to order a sequestration instead of a fi. fa., if occasion should require. Id. See note to Rule 859.

The granting of the writ is discretionary, and the discretion will not be interfered with by an appellate Court: Hulbert v. Cathcart, 1896, A. C. 470. An order for a sequestration must be absolute, and not conditional, and where further time is intended to be given to the debtor, the writ should be directed to file in the office, or not to issue until the expiration of the further time given: In re Lumley, 1894, 2 Ch. 271.

Where it was shewn that a debtor had no effects which would be available in execution, a writ of sequestration was granted to enforce payment of costs which had been ordered to be paid: Snook v. Bolton, W. N. 1883, 73. The Court must be satisfied that the application is reasonable, but it is not necessary to point to any property which may be made available: Hulbert v. Cathcart, supra.

It is not necessary here to serve the judgment or order for payment, or a demand thereunder, as a condition precedent to an application for a sequestration: Long v. Long, 6 P. R. 137; and see Re Deakin, ex p. Cathcart, 1900, 2 Q. B. 478.

Writ may issue without order, where contemnor in custody.

Formerly the writ could in no case issue except under special order: Rule 877 makes an exception to this rule, where the party is in actual custody for contempt, without obeying the judgment, or order, sought to be enforced. In such cases the writ may be obtained on præcipe, upon filing the Sheriff's return.

A sequestration to enforce compliance by a railway company with a peremptory mandamus was refused, and an attachment against the directors was held to be the proper remedy: Demorest v. Midland Ry. Co., 10 P. R. 82; see, however, Rule 858; but it seems to be a proper mode of enforcing an injunction against a corporation: see Young v. Ridgetown, 18 Ont. 140; but see Rule 862.

Property liable; goods and chattels.

Property Liable to Sequestration.—All goods and chattels in the possession of the contemnor, are liable to be seized; and also any property belonging to him which can be reached by the sequestrator without suit or action. And if the keys are denied him, the sequestrator may open rooms and boxes that are locked, and schedule the contents; but may not remove property off the premises without the special order of the Court: Pelham v. Newcastle, 3 Sw. 200 n. A debtor's seat in the Stock Exchange is not exigible under sequestration: London & Canadian L. & I. Co. v. Murphy, 10 Ont. 86. By R. S. O. c. 324 s. 19, sequestrators have the same power over documents in the custody of a person committed for not delivering them, or depositing them in Court, as they have over the contemnor's own property.

Documents in custody of contemnor.

Choses in action, how far bound.

Choses in Action.—At one time it was doubted whether choses in action could be reached by sequestration; the later authorities establish that they can: Irring v. Boyd, 15 Gr. 157; and see McDonnell v. McDonnell, 1 Chy. Ch. 140; Wilson v. Metcalfe, 1 Beav. 263; Crispin v. Cumana, L. R. 1 P. & M. 622. As regards choses in action, an order of the Court is necessary, to enable the sequestrators to sue for the recovery: Irring v. Boyd, 15 Gr. 157; or they may be reached by motion in the action in which the sequestration issued; see

But the chase in action is not bound by the writ of sequestration, until either the sequestrator, or the party prosecuting the writ takes steps to obtain payment: McBorell v. McDowell, 1 Chy. Ch. 140; 10 L. J. 48; London and Canadian Loan and Agency Co. v. Mercitt, 32 C. P. 375; and the writ does not constitute a charge on a chase in action, even after notice to the debtor: Re Pollard, 1903, 2 K. B. 41; 87 L. T. 61.

If the debtor admits the liability, and submits to the order of the Court, an order may be made, without further suit, authorizing the debtor to pay, and deliver, the fund, or property, to the sequestrator; or authorizing the latter to seize the property: Wilson v. Metcalfe, 1 Beav. 263; Re Shade, Shade v. Huime, 18 Ch. D. 653; 45 L. T. 276; Crispin v. Caniano, L. R. 1 P. & M. 622; but such order cannot be made without the debtor's assent: Ib.

A claim to indemnity, which a surety has against his principal, before payment by the surety, is not a chase in action, which can be reached by sequestration: Irring v. Boyd, 15 Gr. 157.

The accrued dividend of a fund in Court, to the income of which a married woman is entitled for her separate use without power of anticipation: Claydon v. Finch, L. R. 15 Eq. 266; Bryant v. Bull, 10 Ch. D. 153; a deposit on appeal: Conn v. Gacland, L. R. 9 Chy. 101; and a rent charge: Wilson v. Metcalfe, 1 Beav. 263, have been held liable to sequestration.

Money in Bank.—Money of the debtor on deposit in a bank is not bound by a sequestration, until an order has been obtained for its payment to the sequestrator: In re Pollard, 1903, 2 K. B. 41; 87 L. T. 61.

Pensions and Salaries.—Pensions granted entirely for past services, may be sequestered: Willcock v. Terrell, 3 Ex. D. 323; Dent v. Dent, L. R. 1 P. & M. 366; McCarthy v. Gould, 1 Ba. & B. 387; but pensions and salaries for services, still being rendered, or which may be required in future, cannot be sequestered: Fenton v. Lowther, 1 Cox. 315; McCarthy v. Gould, supra; Collyer v. Fulbin, 1 T. & R. 459; Spooner v. Payne, 1 D. M. & G. 383; and see L'gal v. Cheetham, 3 Giff. 171.

Rents and Profits of Real Estate, including crops, or other natural produce, or rents paid in kind, are liable to sequestration, but land, whether freehold or leasehold cannot be sold under the writ, which only confers a right to the possession, but does not transfer any title to the land, or term, to the sequestrator: Shaw v. Wright, 3 Ves. 22; or confer any priority over prior specific charges: Meyers v. Meyers, 20 Gr. 187; 21 Gr. 214. Tenants in possession should be notified to attend to the sequestrator, and pay their arrears and growing rents to him: Daml. Pr., 5th ed., 916; and upon refusal the sequestrator may obtain an order compelling them to attend: Routley v. Ridley, 3 Sw. 336; Jackson v. Jackson, 1 Chy. Ch. 115.

If a tenant attends to the sequestrator, and afterwards pays his rent to another party, he may be compelled to pay it over again to the sequestrator: Harris v. Meyers, 2 Chy. Ch. 121. A sequestrator, with the sanction of the Court, may make leases, for any period during which the aggregate rents will not exceed the amount for which the sequestration issued: Harris v. Meyers, 3 Chy. Ch. 89. But the sequestrator cannot, by his lease, affect the right of a person holding an incumbrance prior to the claim of the party issuing the sequestration: Meyers v. Meyers, 19 Gr. 541.

Where a sequestration is issued against a person in contempt for not delivering books, papers, or any other articles or things, the sequestrator may seize such books, papers, writings, or other articles; and the Court may then deal with them as shall be just; and after such seizure the person in contempt may be discharged from custody: see R. S. O. c. 324, s. 19.

Disposition of property sequestered

Disposition of Property Sequestered.—Prima facie a sequestration confers merely a right of detainer of the property sequestered. Where the sequestration, however, is issued for non-payment of money, the proceeds of the goods seized will be ordered to be applied in satisfaction of the demand: Davis v. Davis, 2 Atk. 24. The sequestrator should not, however, so apply them, but should pay the proceeds into Court upon leave obtained on motion in Chambers: Dani. Pr., 5th ed., 917.

The Court may, at the instance of the sequestrator, order payment into Court of the balance standing in a banker's books to the credit of the debtor, upon notice to the banker: Miller v. Huddleston, 22 Ch. D. 233; but where after notice of the sequestration, but before an order to pay had been obtained, the banker honored checks of the debtor, the Court refused to order the bank to re-pay to the sequestrator the amount so paid out: In re Pollard, 1903, 2 K. B. 41; 87 L. T. 671.

Books, papers, or other articles, writings, &c., ordered to be delivered up, which are seized by a sequestrator, may be dealt with as the Court thinks just: see R. S. O. c. 324, s. 19.

Sale, when ordered.

Sale of Property.—Where necessary, a sale of personal property sequestered, may, on the application of the sequestrator, be ordered, e.g., where goods are of a perishable nature: Shaw v. Wright, 3 Ves. 22; or it is necessary for the satisfaction of the claim for which the writ issued: Id.; Mitchell v. Draper, 9 Ves. 208; a defendant's lever-sonary interest in a fund in Court, has been ordered to be sold: Cocper v. Taylor, 16 Sim. 314. The application for leave to sell must be made on notice to the debtor: Mitchell v. Draper, supra, Forbes v. Connolly, 1 Chy. Ch. 6; but service of notice may be dispensed with Re Rush, 19 W. R. 417.

Notice of Lands sequestered cannot be sold.—"All that the Court does is to direct the application of the rents and profits, and this, not by way of execution, but upon the ground that the party is in contempt for disobedience of some order of the Court": Meyers v. Meyers, 21 Gr. at p. 218; see also Nelson v. Nelson, 6 P. R. 194.

ings by.

Adverse Claims.—Where property affected by a sequestration, or any interest therein, is claimed by some third person, the sequestrator, and possibly the claimant, may apply to the Court for relief, by a summary application in the cause: see Rule 1102, et seq. And see Holmsted's Chy. Orders, 217. The right of the sequestrator as against such third person where disputed, cannot be determined in proceedings to which the third person is not a party: Craig v. Craig, 1896, 1 P. 171.

The claimant should not commence an action against the sequestrator, or disturb his possession without the leave of the Court. If he does so, he may be restrained by injunction.

Obstruction of Sequestrator. is a contempt of Court: Atwell v. Rule 858. Smith, 9 Ves. 335; Pelham v. Newcastle, 3 Sw. 289 n. and see Fruecklyn v. Colhoun, 3 Sw. 276. But persons having claims on the property sequestered, adverse to the sequestrator, are not driven to bring actions, but may apply to the Court for relief in a summary way upon petition in the action; and see Meyers v. Meyers, 19 Gr. 541.

Death of Contemnor.—Where a sequestration has issued to compel payment of money, in case the contemnor die, an order may be obtained to continue proceedings against his real representative, where the lands descended, or devised, would be assets for the payment of the debt: Hyde v. Greenhill, 1 Dick. 407; Pratt v. Luman, 43 Ch. 175; 61 L. T. 760; and also as against his personal representative; but where the writ issues for personal contempt, on the part of the contemnor, on the death of the contemnor, no order to continue proceedings can be obtained: Turley v. Meyers, 3 Chy. Ch. 102; Gilbert's Chy. Pr., 86-87; except perhaps for the costs: see Rule 404.

858. If an attachment cannot be executed against the person refusing or neglecting to obey the judgment, by reason of his being out of the jurisdiction of the Court, or of his having absconded, or that with due diligence he cannot be found or if in any other case the Court may think proper to dispense with a writ of attachment, an order may be granted for a commission of sequestration against the estate and effects of the disobedient person; and it shall not be necessary for that purpose to issue an attachment. Con. Rule 882.

Taken from Chy. O. 200.

An order for sequestration will not be granted against a defendant required to do an act, where an appeal is pending from the judgment directing its performance, and the defendant has perfected the security required to entitle him to a stay of proceedings: Dundas v. Hamilton & Milton R. Co., 19 Gr. 455; McGarren v. Strathroy, 6 Ont. 138.

Originally the sequestration only issued after an attachment, and all other process had been exhausted. Under this Rule in cases where it would be impossible to execute an attachment, it is unnecessary to go through the form of issuing one; and see Snare v. Bolton, W. N. 1881, 73.

An attachment may be ordered against a party who is out of the jurisdiction: Blaomfield v. Brooke, 6 P. R. 264, and see Furwell v. Wallbridge, 3 Gr. 128; but see Rex v. Pinckney, 1904, 2 K. B. 84; 90 L. J. 408, where it was held that there is no jurisdiction to order the issue of a writ of habeas corpus directed to a person out of the jurisdiction.

A writ of sequestration was issued against a person of unsound mind, not so found, in Robinson v. Galland, W. N. 1889, 108; for non-compliance with an order made before he became of unsound mind: see 37 W. R. 296, 60 L. T. 697.

In granting a sequestration for disobedience of an order, the Court acts on the same principle as where committal is sought; a casual accidental, or unintentional disobedience will not be sufficient ground. The Court must be satisfied that a contempt has been committed. Fairclough v. Manchester Ship Canal Co., W. N. 1897, 7.

Sequestration for default in payment of money.

859. If a person who is ordered to pay money, neglects to obey the judgment, the Court or Judge may, upon the application of the party prosecuting the same, at the expiration of the time limited for performance, make an order for a writ of sequestration. Con. Rule 883.

Sequestration when granted to enforce payment of money demand.

Where a writ of sequestration is sought, to enforce the payment of money, unless some special ground is made for proceeding ex parte, notice of motion must be given; and the ordinary procedure for recovering money demands, viz.: writs of fi. fa., etc., and attachment of debts, should be first resorted to, or shown to be unavailing; Nelson v. Nelson, 6 P. R. 194; but see Re Russell, Barnett v. Allen, before Spragge, C., January 24th, 1876, where the writ of sequestration was granted without such preliminary proceedings; and see Samic v. Bolton, W. N. 1881, 73, where the sequestration was granted on it being shown that the debtor had no effects exigible under execution.

An order for payment of money need not be personally served in order to found a motion for a sequestration; Long v. Long, 6 P. R. 101.

It was at one time held that the writ could not properly be issued to enforce an ordinary judgment for the recovery of money, which does not expressly order payment, or limit a time therefor; London and Canadian L. & A. Co. v. Merritt, 32 C. P. 375; Ex parte Nelson, Re Hoare, 14 Ch. D. 41; and that an order cannot be got limiting the time for payment of an ordinary judgment for debt merely to enable a sequestration to be issued therein; Hallbert v. Cathcart, 14, 1 Q. B. 244; 70 L. T. 558; and that the writ could only be issued to enforce the payment of money where the non-payment is still, notwithstanding R. S. O. c. 80, s. 5, a contempt of Court; Stoner v. Fawcett, 13 App. Cas. 20; 58 L. T. 1; Berry v. Donovan, 21 Ont. App. 14; Pritchard v. Pritchard, 18 Ont. 173; but it would now seem that the writ may be issued to enforce an ordinary judgment or order for payment of money or costs; see Slade v. Hahne, 18 Ch. D. 653; 45 L. T. 276; Hallbert v. Cathcart, 1896, A. C. 470, 75 L. T. 302.

Commissions of sequestration.

Release from custody or other relief of persons committed for contempt.

861. In case an attachment has been issued under any order of the Court or a Judge that a person be committed to gaol for contempt of Court, and there to be detained and imprisoned until such person shall have purged his said contempt, if it be made to appear that such person is in actual custody under such attachment, the Court or Judge may, upon such notice as may be directed, modify and change the order and limit the term of imprisonment under such attachment or grant such other relief as may in the nature and circumstances of the case seem just, but any relief that may be granted to any such person shall not relieve him from any civil liability to any other person. 58 V. c. 12, s. 129a. Rules of 1 Jan., 1896, 1494.

Rules
862, 863.

See Rule 900.

Where the contempt consists in not executing a deed or other instrument, the Court has power to appoint some one to execute it on behalf of the contemnor; see R. S. O. c. 324, s. 18. And as to the discharge of prisoners in custody for contempt, who are entitled to their discharge, but neglect to apply for it; see Ib., s. 19.

2. ENFORCEMENT OF MANDATORY ORDERS.

862. If a mandamus granted in an action or otherwise, or a mandatory order, injunction, or judgment for specific performance of any contract is not complied with, the Court or a Judge, besides or instead of proceedings against the disobedient party for contempt, may direct that the act required to be done may be done so far as practicable by the party by whom the judgment has been obtained, or some other person appointed by the Court or Judge, at the cost of the disobedient party; and upon the act being done the expenses incurred may be ascertained in such manner as the Court or Judge may direct and execution may issue for the amount so ascertained and costs. Con. Rule 1128.

Mandatory order, how enforced.

See Eng. (1883) R. 608. It extends to all kinds of mandatory orders and injunctions, a power which previously existed in regard to a mandamus; see R. S. O. 1877, c. 52, s. 9.

In an action for specific performance, where an order had been made requiring defendant to make a certain road, and on his default the plaintiff applied for liberty to complete the road at the cost of defendant, it was held that the case was not within this Rule, but an order was made permitting plaintiff to do the work with liberty to apply that the defendant should pay the expense; Mortimer v. Wilson, 33 W. R. 927.

3. ISSUE AND FORM OF WRIT, RENEWAL, ETC.

863. As between the original parties to a judgment execution may issue at any time within 6 years from the date of the same. Con. Rule 885.

Execution

See Eng. (1883) R. 600, and R. S. O. 1877, c. 50, s. 322.

Rule 884. Concurrent writs of execution may be issued to different counties when necessary: Lee v. Dangar, 1892, 1 Q. B. 237; 60 L. T. 102.

Garishee process is not a form of execution within Rule 880 so as to be subject to Rules 883 and 884: Felloes v. Thornton, 14 Q. B. 11, D. 335.

Execution
by leave of Court.

884. (a) Where the 6 years have elapsed or any change has taken place by death or otherwise in the parties entitled or liable to execution, or

(b) where a husband is entitled or liable to execution upon a judgment for or against his wife, or

(c) where a party is entitled to execution upon a judgment of assets in futuro, the party alleging himself to be entitled to execution may apply to the Court or a Judge for leave to issue execution accordingly, or to amend any execution already issued. And such Court or Judge may make an order to that effect or may order that any issue or question necessary to determine the rights of the parties, shall be tried in any way in which a question in an action may be tried. Con. Rule 886, amended.

See Eng. (1883) R. 601.

The Eng. Rule includes the further case of a party entitled to execution against any of the shareholders in a joint-stock company upon a judgment against the company. Previously a writ of scire facias was necessary, and in Ont. Rules 642, 865, will probably apply in such a case.

The practice at Common Law in reviving pecuniary judgments for the purpose of execution, after the lapse of six years, or the death of parties, was formerly governed by C. L. P. Act, R. S. O. 1877, c. 50, ss. 322 to 330 (corresponding with Eng. C. L. P. Act, s. 128, et seq.). Under those provisions the party seeking execution could apply to the Court or a Judge for leave to enter a suggestion to the effect that such party was shewn to be entitled to execution, and to allow execution to issue, and, if the case was made clear, the suggestion and the consequent execution were allowed. If the case was not made clear, the suggestion and execution consequent upon it were disallowed, and the party was left to his writ of revivor. This was a new action, in which, by the ordinary processes of pleading, the questions in dispute were brought to issue and decided.

The above Rule preserves alternative processes, according as the right to execution is, or is not, sufficiently clear to be enforced summarily by a Judge; but a somewhat simpler process is provided; if the case be clear, the Judge may order execution to issue; if it be not, he may direct an issue to try the right.

The Rules do not prescribe any form of order to be made on the application, they do not seem to contemplate that the applicant in the case of the death of the plaintiff, or that the representatives of a deceased defendant, are to be made parties to the action, and the somewhat anomalous proceeding of issuing execution by or against persons who are not parties seems to be sanctioned.

It would have been more logical to have required any stranger to the action, by or against whom any proceedings are to be taken, to be first made a party under Rule 306. An order giving leave to issue execution against an executor of the debtor does not operate as a judgment so as to make the executor a judgment debtor, and is not equivalent to an order to continue proceedings under Rules 305 et seq., and whenever any further matter or proceeding is desired to be taken other than the mere issue of execution, it is necessary that an order, to continue proceedings should be first obtained. Thus, on the death of a sole plaintiff, his representatives cannot apply under this Rule for the appointment of a receiver by way of equitable execution, without first making themselves parties to the action by obtaining an order to continue the proceedings in their names under Rule 306; Norburn v. Norburn, 1804, 1 Q. B. 440; 70 L. T. 411; so also where a charging order under Rule 1129 is sought: Stewart v. Rhodes, 1900, 1 Ch. 386.

Where judgment is obtained by several executors, and one of them dies after the entering of judgment, there is no "change" of parties within the meaning of this Rule. The surviving plaintiffs are entitled to issue execution in the name of all the survivors, adding simply after the name of the deceased plaintiff the words "since deceased," and no order for leave to do so is necessary: Baird v. Thompson, 14 L. R. Ir. 497. So also in the case of partners the action survives: Davies v. Andrews, 28 Sol. Jour. 411; W. N. 1884, 94.

Successors in title are not bound by a judgment against their predecessors restraining the continuance of a nuisance: Atty.-Gen. v. Birmingham, etc., Board, 17 Ch. D. 685.

A writ of habeas corpus is within this Rule, and therefore if issued without leave after the death of a sole plaintiff is irregular, and may be set aside by the defendant without first reviving the action: Chambers v. Kitchen, 16 P. R. 219.

An application for leave to issue execution should be made on notice: Mercer v. Lawrence, 26 W. R. 506; Lysaght v. McGrath, 7 L. R. Ir. 532; Allison v. Breen, 19 P. R. 119, 143; Re Trusts Corporation, etc., and Boehmer, 26 Ont. 191.

Where writs had expired, leave was given, on notice to defendant, under this Rule, to issue new writs to include the costs of the former ones and the costs of the motion: McDougall v. McDougall, 3 C. L. T. 42.

At Common Law, after 20 years without payment, a presumption arises that the judgment is satisfied: see Coke, 2 Inst. 470; Mortimer v. Piggott, 2 Dowl. 615. But this presumption may be rebutted: Williams v. Welch, 3 D. & L. 565, and possibly does not arise where execution has never been issued: see Jenkins v. Kirby, 2 C. L. J. 164.

But now under R. S. O. c. 72, s. 1 (b), the right of action on a judgment of a Court of Record is barred after the lapse of twenty years from its recovery, or from the last payment on account, or acknowledgment in writing: Id., s. 8; Boice v. O'Leane, 3 Ont. App. 167; Butler v. McMicken, 32 Ont. 422.

Rules
865-868.

Leave to issue execution was given where a judgment recovered in 1860 was revived in 1880, twenty years not having elapsed: McCullough v. Sykes, 11 P. R. 337; Allison v. Breen, 19 P. R. 115, 143.

Where more than 20 years had elapsed after the last execution issued on a judgment had been returned, it was held that a motion for leave to issue execution was properly refused on the ground that no evidence of part payment, or acknowledgment, within the 20 years was adduced: McMahon v. Spencer, 13 Ont. App. 430; in this case a doubt was thrown out whether leave to issue execution was necessary at all, execution having issued within six years of the recovery of the judgment; possibly, however, if execution had issued without leave it would have been open to the defendant to apply to stay the proceedings: see Rule 863. In Prine v. Wade, 14 P. R. 351, an application for leave to issue execution was made under similar circumstances and refused, because it was held by analogy to the rule laid down by R. S. O. c. 72, s. 1, that the Statute of Limitations was a bar to an action on the judgment, and therefore a bar to the right to enforce it by execution: see also Bolce v. O'Loane, 3 Ont. App. 167; Caspar v. Keachie, 41 U. C. Q. B. 590; McDonald v. Elliott, 12 Ont. 98; MacDonald v. MacDonald, 11 Ont. 190; Mason v. Johnston, 20 Ont. App. 412, and McCullough v. Sykes, 11 P. R. 337; Allison v. Breen, supra.

As to proceedings under this Rule in actions against executors, etc., under a judgment of assets quando, etc., see note to Rule 624.

In case of persons not parties.

865. In cases other than those mentioned in Rule 863 any person, not being a party, who obtains any judgment or in whose favour any judgment is made, shall be entitled to enforce obedience to the same by the same process as if he were a party; and any person not being a party, against whom obedience to any judgment may be enforced, shall be liable to the same process for enforcing obedience to such judgment as if he were a party. Con. Rule 887.

See Eng. (1883) R. 604, which is applicable in the case of a "cause or matter," and corresponds with Chy. O. 297.

See note to Rule 864.

Præcipe for writ.

866. A writ of execution shall be issued upon præcipe, which may be according to the Forms in the Appendix, Part V. Con. Rule 888.

For Forms of Præcipes for Writs of Execution, see H. & L. Forms, Nos. 384 to 389.

Date.

867. Every writ of execution shall bear date of the day on which it is issued. Con. Rule 893.

Indorsement of name and address.

868. Every writ of execution shall be indorsed with the name and place of abode or office of business of the solicitor issuing the same; and if he issues the same as agent for another solicitor, the name and place of abode of such other solicitor shall also be indorsed; where a solicitor is not employed the writ shall be indorsed that the same has been issued by the plaintiff or defendant in person issuing the same, with the name of the city, town, or other place, and also the name of the street and number, if any there be, of the house of his residence. Con. Rule 889.

See Eng. (1883) R. 591.

Where the Sheriff, being misled by an indorsement made on a writ by the plaintiff's solicitor, seized the goods of a wrong person, the plaintiff was held liable in an action of trespass: Harris v. Southam, 22 Q. B. D. 614. See also Smith v. Keel, 9 Q. B. D. 310; Lee v. Russell, 7 Times, 303; but not where there is nothing untrue in the indorsement so as to mislead: Coady v. Blairberg, 7 Times, 421.

889. Every writ of execution for the recovery of money shall be indorsed with a direction to the Sheriff, or other officer or person to whom the writ is directed, to levy the money really due and payable and sought to be recovered under the judgment, stating the amount, and also to levy interest thereon, if sought to be recovered, at the rate of 6 per cent. per annum from the time when the judgment was entered; in cases where there is an agreement between the parties that more than 6 per cent. interest shall be secured by the judgment, the indorsement may be to levy the amount so agreed. Con. Rule 891.

Same in effect as Eng. (1883) R. 591, except that the rate of interest therein named is the legal rate of four per cent., and provides for the case of money payable under a judgment or order.

Since this Rule was passed the statutory rate of interest in Canada was reduced to 5 per cent.; after 7 July, 1900, but the reduced rate does not apply to liabilities existing at that date: 35-36 Vict. c. 29 (D.).

It is not quite clear how far the last clause is intended to alter the former rule that a contract for payment of a higher rate of interest than six per cent. when sued on, becomes merged in the judgment under which the statutory rate only will be recoverable; see St. John v. Rykert, 4 Ont. App. 213. At all events, in the absence of any agreement operating subsequently to judgment, interest is limited to the statutory rate, though the debt on which the judgment was recovered bore a higher rate: Re European Central Ry. Co., 4 Ch. D. 37; Ex p. Fewings, 25 Ch. D. 338.

In indorsing a writ to levy interest upon the amount of the judgment, the interest is to be computed from the day of pronouncing the judgment; that, and not the day of formal entry thereof, is the day from which the judgment takes effect: Rule 629, and is, therefore, the day upon which it is entered within the meaning of this Rule; Kelcher v. McGibbon, 10 P. R. 89; see Rule 629, and McLure v. Canada Central there noted.

Rules

870, 871. The date from which the interest is to be computed has been further made clear by sec. 116 of the Jud. Act.

As a general rule, interest cannot be allowed on untaxed costs though awarded out of a fund in Court: West v. West, 17 L. R. Ir. 49; but see Taylor v. Roe, 1894, 1 Ch. 413; 70 L. T. 232; where costs payable under an interlocutory order were held to bear interest from the date of the order.

Where costs of all parties of an action for the construction of a will were ordered to be paid out of an estate and were taxed, but no estate was available for their payment for five years, interest on the costs was not allowed out of the estate: Tricker v. Severn, 12 P. R. 618.

Where costs are paid with interest thereon, under a judgment or order, which is subsequently reversed on appeal, and are then refunded, but on a further appeal the original judgment is restored, the costs bear interest from the date of the original judgment: Ashworth v. English Card Clothing Co., 1904, 1 Ch. 704; 90 L. T. 263.

Interest on costs runs from the date of the judgment, if the amount is specified in the judgment, but if taxed afterwards, then from the date of the certificate of taxation, that being the date given in the form of a writ No. 169 in the App.; H. & L. Forms No. 1067; Schröder v. Cleugh, 40 L. J. C. 1, 365; Trinity College v. Hill, 8 Ont. 286.

See also notes to secs. 113-116 of the Act.

Indorsement of amount to be levied for costs
of writs.

870. The officer issuing the writ or renewal thereof, shall indorse upon the same a memorandum signed by him of the amount or amounts respectively hereinafter mentioned, which the party issuing such writ is entitled to receive for such writ or renewal, and placing it in the Sheriff's hands, including all attendances, indorsements, letters and postage, and for his costs of any prior or other writs, or renewals, specifying the amount allowed for each writ or renewal; and no sum not so indorsed is to be collected for such costs. Con. Rule 892.

The amounts which may be collected were mentioned in the original Rule 594, but are now contained in the Tariff of Costs, Item 15.

Poundage,
etc.

871. Upon every execution there may be levied, in addition to the sum recovered by the judgment, the poundage, fees, expenses of execution and interest upon the amount recovered. Con. Rule 890.

Identical with the Eng. (1883) R. 563, and to the same effect as R. S. O. 1877, c. 66, s. 44. Poundage was originally given to Sheriffs by 29 Eliz. c. 4.

For the fees to which Sheriffs are entitled: see Tariff C., and Rule 1189.

As to the Sheriff's right to poundage, see notes to Rule 1190.

As to taxation of Sheriff's fees, see Rule 1193, et seq.

872. A writ of feri facias, if unexecuted, shall remain in force for three years only from its issue, unless renewed in the manner hereinafter provided; but such writ may at any time before its expiration, be renewed by the person issuing it for 3 years from the date of such renewal, and so on from time to time during the continuance of the renewed writ,—either by being marked in the margin with a memorandum signed by the proper officer who issued such writ, or by his successor in office, stating the date of the day, month and year of such renewal, or by such person giving a written notice of renewal to the Sheriff, signed by him or his solicitor, and with the like memorandum; and a writ so renewed shall have effect and be entitled to priority, according to the time of the original delivery thereof. Con. Rule 894. 58 V. c. 13, s. 31. See also R. S. O. c. 77, s. 9.

Rule 872.

Currency of writ of fi. fa.

See Eng. (1883) R. 398, which is different, requiring for renewal the leave of the Court or a Judge.

The method of marking provided for in the present Rule is taken from R. S. O. 1877, c. 66, s. 11.

A writ is, for the purpose of renewal, necessarily taken out of the actual possession of the Sheriff, without affecting the position of the party who so withdraws it; but where more than a reasonable time for renewal elapsed, and by mistake a writ was not returned renewed, for more than six months, though there was no intention of withdrawing it except for purposes of renewal, it was held that a mortgage registered before the withdrawal had gained priority, and that it made no difference that no new rights had intervened: Re Hime v. Lidley, 13 P. R. 1; and see other cases noted p. 961.

There is no power to enlarge the time for renewing writs where, by an accident, they have not been renewed within the time limited for renewal: Lowson v. Canada Farmers' Ins. Co., 9 P. R. 309.

A writ of assistance was held to be a writ of execution within R. S. O. 1887, c. 66, s. 11, and to be not in force for more than one year from the teste unless renewed: Adamson v. Adamson, 12 P. R. 21.

It may, however, now be open to question whether writs of execution, other than writs of ca. sa. (as to which see Rule 874) and writs of fi. fa. do not now remain in force until executed without any renewal.

This Rule only provides for the renewal of writs of feri facias, and R. S. O. c. 77, ss. 8 and 9, seem to be intended to be confined to writs for the levying of money; there seems therefore to be now no provision for renewing any other writs of execution except fi. fas., nor any provision limiting the time they are to be in force as in the case of fi. fas.

Making the execution creditor a party to a petition for partition under R. S. O. c. 123 s. 10, will not have the effect of keeping the execution alive after the three years have expired: Macdonell v. Best, 6 O. L. R. 18.

Rules

873, 874. A sale of land under a fi. fa., after the expiration of the writ, where there has been no previous inception of execution, and no renewal of the writ, is null and void: Daby v. Gehl, 18 Ont. 132.

Where a writ is lost in transmission to the Sheriff after renewal, an order may be made for the issue of a new writ nunc pro tunc, to bear the same indorsement and evidence of renewal marked by the proper officer as the lost writ, and to have the same force and effect as the lost writ: Fairchild v. Crauford, 32 C. L. J. 638; 16 C. L. T. 359 (Man.).

Where a writ under which a seizure had been made, but from which the Sheriff improperly withdrew, was suffered to run out pending a motion to compel the Sheriff to return the writ, it was ordered to be renewed nunc pro tunc, so as to continue it in force, and the time for making the return was extended: Gunge v. Freeman, 14 P. R. 330.

In Neil v. Almond, 29 Ont. 63, and Re Woodall, S. O. L. R. 288, it was held that a writ against lands, though kept renewed, must be enforced by sale within 10 years from its first delivery to the Sheriff, otherwise the lien created thereby may be barred under R. S. O. c. 133, s. 23; but by 5 Ed. vii. c. 13, s. 10, an amendment of that Act has been made which prevents s. 23 of the Act from barring the lien or charge created by the placing of an execution against lands in the Sheriff's hands, where the writ has been kept alive by renewals.

renewal.

873. The production of a writ of execution, or of the notice renewing the same, purporting to be marked with the memorandum in Rule 872 mentioned, showing the same to have been renewed, shall be sufficient prima facie evidence of its having been renewed. Con. Rule 895.

See the Eng (1883) R. 599, and R. S. O. 1877, c. 66, s. 12. It has been said that the expression "sufficient evidence" in the Eng. Rule probably means prima facie evidence: Barracough v. Greenhough, L. R. 2 Q. B. 612.

Ca. ret.
when returnable.

874. Every writ of capias ad satisfaciendum against a party who has not been previously arrested or who has not given security pursuant to an order for arrest shall be returnable immediately after the execution thereof, and shall continue in force two months from the day of the issue thereof inclusive, and no longer, but on the expiration thereof another writ may be obtained upon a Judge's order, as provided by section 9 of the Act Respecting Arrest and Imprisonment for Debt. Con. Rule 896, amended.

R. S. O.
1857, c. 67.

Taken from R. S. O. 1877, c. 66, s. 53.

Sec. 9 of The Act Respecting Arrest and Imprisonment for Debt above referred to is now R. S. O. c. 80, s. 8.

After a writ of ca. sa. has expired under this Rule by reason of lapse of time, a concurrent writ cannot be issued: Merchants Bank v. Sussex, 4 O. L. R. 524.

4. SALE UNDER WRIT OF Fieri Facias.Rules
875-877.

875. Where any goods or chattels are seized in execution under a writ of fieri facias issued out of the High Court or a County Court, the Sheriff, his Deputy, or officer who seized the same, shall, on request, deliver to the owner, his agent or servant an inventory thereof before they are removed from the premises on which they have been so seized; and no Sheriff or other officer shall sell any goods or chattels under a writ of execution until he has previously thereto given at least 8 days' public notice in writing of the time and place of sale in the most public place in the municipality where such goods or chattels have been seized. Con. Rule 899.

Taken from R. S. O. 1877, c. 66, s. 19.

There must be reasonable and proper care taken in advertising the sale as this Rule requires; failure to give proper notice will render a sale invalid and subject the purchaser and the Sheriff to liability: McLaughlin v. Allan, 4 O. W. R. 37.

A sale by a Sheriff or his bailiff under execution is within the Statute of Frauds (R. S. O. c. 338), s. 12, and either of them may sign for the purchaser the memorandum in writing in the same manner as an auctioneer or his clerk; see notes to Rule 729. The entry of the purchaser's agent as the purchaser will bind the principal if he afterwards acknowledges the agent's authority: Flintoft v. Elmore, 18 C. P. 274.

A sale under execution of goods the subject of a patent, which the execution debtor has a license from the patentee to use, will not confer on the Sheriff's vendee a right to use them: British Mutoscope Co. v. Horner, 1901, 1 Ch. 671; 84 L. T. 26.

876. The Sheriff shall, where goods seized by him under a writ of fieri facias remain unsold in his hands for want of buyers, state in his return of "goods on hand for want of buyers," the time and place when and where such goods were offered for sale by him, and the names of at least three persons who were present at the time of such attempted sale, if so many were present, but if so many were not present, then the names of those who were present, if any, and that there were no others, and if no person was present then he shall state that fact. Con. Rule 900.

Taken from R. S. O. 1877, c. 66, s. 34.

877. The Sheriff shall not expose the lands for sale under a writ of fieri facias, or sell the same within less than twelve months from the day on which the writ is delivered to him. Con. Rule 901.

Taken from R. S. O. 1877, c. 66, s. 14.

Sheriff to deliver inventory to the owner, etc.

Return where goods remain in Sheriff's hands unsold.

Lands not to be sold within 1 year

Rule 877.

It would seem that the Crown is not bound by this Rule and that an execution against lands in favour of the Crown may be made returnable before the execution of twelve months: Reg. v. Desjardins Canal Co., 29 U. C. Q. B. 165.

Where a fi. fa. lands has been in the Sheriff's hands for a year and is returned, nothing having been done under it, the Sheriff may never- the less sell, under an alias fi. fa. land, issued thereon, without wait- ing a year: Campbell v. Deliaanty, 24 U. C. Q. B. 236; Nickall v. Crawford, Tay. 277; Rattan v. Levisconte, 16 U. C. Q. B. 495.

Sale of lands, when invalid.

A sale of lands under an expired writ is void: Doe d. Burnham v. Simmonds, 9 U. C. Q. B. 436; Gardiner v. Juson, 2 E. & A. 188; Doe d. Greenhields v. Garrow, 5 U. C. Q. B. 237; Reynolds v. Streeter, 3 P. R. 315; Lee v. Howes, 30 U. C. Q. B. 292; Daby v. Gihl, 18 Ont. 132, but where there has been an inception of execution during its currency, e.g., by advertising the land for sale under it, the sale may be made, and carried out, after the writ has become return- able: Hull v. Goshe, 15 C. P. 101; Rule 882. Though the advertise- ment may be published during the currency of the writ, yet by the express terms of this Rule the day named for the sale must not be earlier than twelve calendar months from the day on which the writ was delivered to the Sheriff. Advertisements of sale under the writ, first published after the writ has expired, are invalid, and a sale in pursuance of such advertisement is void: Gardiner v. Juson; Reynolds v. Streeter; Lee v. Howes, supra; and a return of "lands on hand" made after the writ has expired, and without any previous inception of execution under it, is invalid, and will not authorize the issue of a venditioni exponas, and if issued, and a sale be made under it, the sale may be set aside: Lee v. Howes, supra. The Sheriff's telling the execution debtor that he has a fi. fa. against his lands, and that his lands will be sold, unless he pays up, is not an inception of execution: Bradburn v. Hall, 16 Gr. 518, neither is the mere sending of a list of lands for sale under an execution to the Gazette for pub- lication an inception of execution: there must be an actual publi- cation of the advertisement during the currency of the writ: Reynolds v. Streeter, supra.

Defects in advertisement of sale, effect
of.

The selling of land by the Sheriff before the proper period has ex- pired is not a mere irregularity, but renders the sale void: see cases supra; whereas defects in the advertisement of sale, to which the purchaser is no party, will not affect the validity of the sale: Pate- son v. Todd, 24 U. C. Q. B. 296; Ross v. Malone, 7 Ont. 215, 397, unless the circumstances are such that the purchaser's taking the deed can be said to amount to a fraud: McDonald v. Cameron, 13 Gr. 84; but where irregularities are committed by the Sheriff by instruc- tions of the execution creditor's solicitor, and the execution creditor himself becomes the purchaser, the Court may, if the sale has been prejudicial, refuse to maintain the Sheriff's deed, if attacked, except as a security for the debt: Id.; and see In re Davis, 17 Gr. 603; Kerr v. Bain, 11 Gr. 423; and where land has been sold under execu- tion at a gross undervalue, owing to the title being in dispute, the Court may refuse to give effect to the Sheriff's deed, except as a security: Chalmers v. Piggott, 11 Gr. 475; and see Malloch v. Plum- kett, 11 Gr. 439; but the inadequacy of price must be very excessive to induce the Court to refuse to maintain a Sheriff's deed: Laing v. Matthews, 14 Gr. 36.

Irregularities of sale,
effect of.

Where the sale has been improperly conducted, the Sheriff may be restrained by injunction from executing a conveyance: Jones v. Jones, 15 Gr. 49.

Lands patented under The Free Grants and Homesteads Act (R. S. Rules O. c. 29), are exempt from liability to execution against the grantee even after the 20 years mentioned in the Act, in respect of judgments either previously to the grant, or during such period of 20 years recovered against him: Re Beatty & Finlayson 27 Ont. 642 and see, 25 of the Act. 878-881.

Free grant lands when not saleable under execution.

By R. S. O. c. 109, s. 34, it is provided that no Sheriff, etc., shall sell or expose for sale under execution any lands in Manitoulin, or any lands in Rainy River, which are situate more than 20 miles from the Canadian Pacific Railway, except during the months of July, August, September or October. Sale in Manitoulin and Rainy River.

878. Where a writ of feri facias is issued against an absconding debtor (a) in which an order for attachment has been issued, the Court or a Judge may order the Sheriff to sell lands of the absconding debtor before the expiration of the twelve months, but in other respects in like manner as in other cases. Con. Rule 902. Fe. fa. as to lands against absconding debtor.

Taken from 50 V. c. 7, s. 7.

(a) Here the words "in an action" appear to have been inadvertently omitted: see former Con. Rule 902.

879. A sale of lands shall not be had under any writ of feri facias until after a return of nulla bona, in whole or in part, in the same action or matter by the Sheriff of the same county. Con. Rule 904. No sale of lands until return of nulla bona.

Taken from R. S. O. 1877, c. 16, ss. 15-16.

The omission to make a return of nulla bona, as required by this Rule, before selling lands, is an irregularity only, and will not render the sale of the lands void: Ross v. Malone, 7 Ont. 215, 397; Doc d. Spafford v. Brown, 3 O. S. 92. So also a return of nulla bona, where there are in fact goods liable to execution, is only an irregularity: Ontario Bank v. Kerby, 10 C. P. 35, 41; Molson's Bank v. McMeekin, 15 Ont. App. 535.

880. If the amount authorized to be made and levied under a writ of feri facias is made and levied thereunder out of goods and chattels, the person issuing the writ shall not be entitled to the expenses of any seizure or advertisement of lands thereunder; and the return to be made by the Sheriff to the writ for sale of lands shall be to the effect that the amount has been so made and levied as aforesaid. Con. Rule 905. If the debt is realized under writ against goods.

Taken from R. S. O. 1877, c. 16, s. 17.

881. Before the sale of lands under a writ of feri facias, the Sheriff shall publish once, not less than three months and Advertisement by Sheriff

Rule 882. not more than four months preceding the sale, an advertisement of sale in The Ontario Gazette, specifying:

- (a) The particular property to be sold;
- (b) The name of the plaintiff and defendant;
- (c) The time and place of the intended sale;
- (d) The name of the debtor whose interest is to be sold;

and he shall, upon one day at least in each week for four successive weeks next preceding the sale, also publish such advertisement in a public newspaper of the County or District in which the lands lie; and he shall also for three months preceding the sale, put up and continue a notice of such sale in the office of the Clerk of the Peace, and on the door of the Court House or place in which the General Sessions of the Peace of the County or District is usually holden; but nothing herein contained shall be taken to prevent an adjournment of the sale to a future day. Rule 886 as amended by Rule 1268 of 24 Dec., 1904, Ont. Gaz. 31 Dec., 1904.

Taken from R. S. O. 1877, c. 66, s. 41, with amendments.

It would seem that the omission to advertize, where there is an uncertainty as to what has been sold, though it may give a right against the Sheriff, will not invalidate the sale as against a bond fide purchaser: Osborne v. Kerr, 17 U. C. Q. B. 134, 141; and see Lee v. Howes, 30 U. C. Q. B. 292. Defects in the advertisement will not invalidate the sale as against a third person, or even the execution creditor, who bond fide becomes the purchaser: Paterson v. Todd, 24 U. C. Q. B. 296; but where the execution creditor becomes the purchaser, if he has in any way, by himself, or his solicitor, participated in the irregularities, his deed may be ordered to stand merely as a security: McDonald v. Cameron, 13 Gr. 84; In re Davis, 17 Gr. 603.

The want of regularity in giving public notice of an adjournment of the sale was held to be cured where the debtor attended the sale by his agent, and afterwards ratified what had been done: Doe Dissett v. McLeod, 3 U. C. Q. B. 297. But where a Sheriff refused to execute a deed on the ground of there having been an irregularity in the advertisement, but readvertised the lands and put them up for sale again, when they brought a price far exceeding that offered by the first purchaser, the Court refused to interfere summarily on the application of the first purchaser to compel the Sheriff to make a deed to him: In re Campbell, 10 U. C. Q. B. 641.

Notice in Gazette shall constitute incipient
execution.

882. The advertisement in the Ontario Gazette of any lands for sale under a writ of fieri facias, during the currency of the writ (containing some reasonably definite description of the land), shall be deemed a sufficient commencement of the execution to enable the same to be completed by a sale and conveyance of the lands after the writ has become returnable. Rules

Con. Rule 907. 583-885.

Taken from R. S. O. 1877, c. 66, s. 42.

5. RETURN OF WRITS, ETC.

883.—(1) The Sheriff to whom a writ of fiert facias Certificate in lieu of return of writ, as to goods. against goods and chattels is directed shall indorse on such writ all necessary returns thereto in respect of his proceedings thereon as to goods and chattels, and shall return a certificate of such indorsements in lieu of the writ; such indorsements, and the certificate so returned, shall be deemed a return for all purposes of the writ as to goods and chattels.

(2) The certificate may be according to Form No. 185. Rules of 1 Jan., 1896, 1503.

For Form No. 185, see H. & L. Forms No. 1113.

884. A return by the Sheriff of "goods (or lands) on hand for want of buyers," may be made by a certificate in the manner in Rule 883 mentioned, and thereupon a writ of renditioni exponas may be issued for the sale of such goods or lands as the case may be, and the original writ of execution shall remain in force for the residue. New.

See Rule 876, for the particulars required in a return of "goods on hand, etc."

Where a seizure has been made under a writ, the judgment creditor cannot have another fi. fa. upon the judgment until a return has been made to the first, even though he has abandoned the seizure, but this does not apply where the Sheriff has seized only goods not belonging to the debtor: Ex. p. Smith, 1902, 2 K. B. 260.

885. An order against a Sheriff to return a writ or to bring in the body shall be returnable in 6 days, and shall be issued on procipe. Con. Rules 908-909.

Taken from Rule T. T. 1856, 101.

Before an order to return a writ is issued, it would seem that a demand for a return should first be made under Rule 888. The neglect to make the demand first would probably be held to disentitle the party issuing the order to the costs thereof: see Rule 890.

An order to bring in the body upon a return of cepi corpus may be issued immediately after the time for putting in security in the action has expired: Poucher v. Liven, 4 Mo. & Sc. 427; Hutchins v. Hind, 5 T. R. 479; Potter v. Marsden, 8 East, 525. But the order should not issue until the day after the expiration of an order (if any) to return the order for arrest: see Hutchins v. Hind, supra. The order to bring in the body cannot be properly issued where the plaintiff has taken an assignment of the bond to the Sheriff: 2 Samd. 606; or where he accepts a cognovit, or other security from the defendant, without the privity of the Sheriff: Re v. Sheriff of Surrey in Brown v. Clarke, 1 Taunt. 159. The order should be issued and served promptly: Re v. Sheriff of Middlesex, 1 Dowl. 53. It would seem that an order to return the writ or bring in the body need not be personally served on the Sheriff, if he cannot conveniently be found: see Rule 891.

As to the effect of an order to bring in the body, see Rule 1045 (1). This order must issue from the office in which the proceedings were commenced: see Rule 37.

Sheriff to file writ in office from which order to return issues.

886. The Sheriff shall file the writ in the office from which the order to return the same was issued, and the officer with whom it is filed shall indorse the day and hour when it was filed. Con. Rule 910.

Taken from Rule T. T. 1876, 103.

Where a Sheriff disobeys the order to return the writ, he is liable to attachment for contempt, but an attachment can only be obtained on motion, of which the Sheriff is entitled to notice: see Rule 877.

Sheriff not entitled to fees on writs unless returned in 4 days after being ordered, if writ delivered 15 days before such order.

887. Where a writ delivered to a Sheriff for service or execution has remained in his hands 15 days, and he has not been delayed from returning the same by an order in writing from the party from whom he received the writ, his solicitor or agent, and he is afterwards directed by order of Court to return such writ, he shall not be entitled to any fees thereon unless, within 4 days after being so directed, he returns or encloses the writ by post to such party, his solicitor or agent. Con. Rule 913.

Taken from R. S. O. 1877, c. 64, s. 58.

Sheriff refusing to make return when demanded by party who delivered writ to him.

888. Where the party who delivered any writ or process to any Sheriff to be executed, by himself or by his solicitor, or by the agent of such solicitor, requires, by a demand in writing, the Sheriff to return the writ either to the party or to his solicitor or solicitor's agent, or to the Court from which the writ issued (and whether such requisition is made before or after the service or other execution thereof), the Sheriff shall within 8 days inclusive of the day of the service of the requisition return the writ according to the terms of the requisition; and if the Sheriff wilfully refuses or neglects to do so, he may be ordered to return the writ, and may be further proceeded against as in other cases of contumacy. Con. Rule 914.

Personal service on the Sheriff shall not be necessary, if it appears by affidavit that inquiry was made for him, and that he could not conveniently be found, but service shall be deemed to have been made upon him by serving the Deputy Sheriff, or if he cannot be conveniently found service may be made upon the Sheriff's clerk, or upon any bailiff of the Sheriff who may for the time being be present in, or have charge of, the Sheriff's office. restore and return the same to the Sheriff, and may order a writ of attachment to issue, as in other cases of contumacy. Rules 898-900

898. If a Deputy Sheriff, bailiff, or Sheriff's officer has in his possession, custody or control, any writ of summons, feri facias, or other writ or process, and, upon demand made by the Sheriff from whom the same was received, or his successor in office, or by any other person entitled to the possession of the same, neglects or refuses to deliver up the same, any Judge of the Court out of which the writ or process issued, may, upon the application of the Sheriff or his successor in office, or of the person entitled to the possession of the writ or process, order the production thereof; and the order may be enforced in the same manner as orders for the return of writs against Sheriffs. Con. Rule 924.

6. DISCHARGE OF EXECUTION DEBTORS FROM CUSTODY.

899. A written order under the hand of the solicitor in the action by whom a writ of capias ad satisfactionem has been issued, shall justify the Sheriff, gaoler or officer in whose custody the party is under the writ in discharging such party, unless the party for whom such solicitor professes to act has given written notice to the contrary to the said Sheriff, gaoler or officer; but such discharge shall not be a satisfaction of the debt unless made by the authority of the judgment creditor; and nothing herein contained shall justify the solicitor in giving an order for discharge without the consent of his client. Con. Rule 925.

7. DISCOVERY IN AID OF EXECUTION.

900.—(1) Where a judgment is for the recovery by, or payment to, any person, of money or costs, the judgment creditor may, without an order, examine the judgment debtor upon oath before a Master or Local Master, or an Examiner, or before one of the Registrars, Local Registrars or Deputy Clerks of the Crown, or before the Judge of the County Court of the County within which such debtor resides, or before any Official Referee (or by the order of the Court or a Judge before any other person to be named in such order), touching his estate and effects, and as to the property and means he had when the debt or liability which was the subject of the cause or matter in which judgment has been obtained against him was incurred (or in the case of a judgment for costs only, at the time of the commencement of the cause or matter), and as to the property and means he still has of discharging the said judgment; and as to the disposal he has made of any property since contracting such debt or incurring such liability (or in case of a judgment for costs only, since the commencement of the cause or matter), and as to any and what debts are owing to him. Rules 23 June, 1894, 1360, amended.

(2) In County Court cases the examination may also be had before the Clerk of the County Court. New.

See Eng. (1883) Rs. 610, 611, and R. S. O. 1877, c. 49, s. 17; c. 50, s. 304.

"Judgment," "judgment creditor," and "judgment debtor"; as to these expressions, see Rule 835.

An examination should not be had under this Rule without necessity. The ordinary procedure to obtain payment through the Sheriff should therefore in general be taken, and a return of nulla bona obtained from the Sheriff, or intimation procured from him that he is prepared to make such a return: Ontario Bank v. Trowern, 13 P. R. 422; but the judgment creditor is prima facie entitled to examine his judgment debtor under this Rule, and the onus is on the debtor of shewing affirmatively that the issue of the appointment is an abuse of the process of the Court: Grant v. Cook, 17 P. R. 362.

The express language of the present Rule has removed the doubts formerly entertained as to whether examination of a debtor, and attachment of debts due to him, could be had where the judgment or order was for costs only: see McLachlin v. Blackburn, 7 P. R. 287; Meyers v. Kendrick, 9 P. R. 363; Troutman v. Fiskin, 13 P. R. 153; Re Irciac, 12 P. R. 297; Elliot v. Capel, 9 P. R. 35, and notes to Rule 911.

A judgment for recovery of land, and awarding costs, is within the Rule: Lloyd v. Wallace, 9 P. R. 335. So also now an order for costs in interpleader proceedings: Rules 835 and 6 (c); see formerly McKinnon v. Crowe, 17 P. R. 291; Hartley v. Shewell, 1 B. & S. 1.

Where the debtor was a member of Parliament residing in another Province, although temporarily resident in Ontario in discharge of his parliamentary duties, an order to compel him to attend for examination was refused: Regan v. McGreevy, 5 P. R. 94.

A judgment creditor is entitled to examine the judgment debtor notwithstanding the latter has made an assignment for the benefit of his creditors: McEachern v. Gardau, 18 P. R. 459; Bank of Hamilton v. Scott, 10 C. L. J. 432.

Not only the judgment debtor, but, by order, under Rule 907, his Rule 900, clerks or employees, may be examined. The Rules in this respect are wider than those in England: see Jewell v. Eden, 18 Q. B. D. 588; Hand-Burns v. Heriot, 1890, 2 Q. B. 338. Who may be examined.

As to the examination of officers of a corporation debtor, see Rule 902.

A debtor under arrest on final process may be examined: Brown v. Beattie, 2 U. C. L. J. 213; or a garnishee who has been ordered to pay over: Cowan v. Cuthill, 33 W. R. 583; 52 L. T. 431.

A married woman may be examined as to her separate estate: Standard Bank v. McQuaig, 7 P. R. 356; Aylesford v. G. W. Ry. Co., 1892 2 Q. B. 626; and see McLeod v. Fudge, 12 P. R. 150; Re Teasdale v. Ready, 18 P. R. 101; Kistner v. Tottman, 1905, 1 K. B. 339; 92 L. T. 36.

Where a garnishee has been ordered to pay over, he becomes a judgment debtor, and may be examined under this Rule: Cowan v. Cuthill, 52 L. T. 431; 33 W. R. 583.

Though an examination may be had without an order in the first instance, yet, where a party wishes to examine a judgment debtor a second time, he must make a substantive motion for that purpose on notice to the judgment debtor, and show grounds for the order: London & Canadian Loan, etc., v. Merritt, 2 C. L. T. 260; Re Central Bank, Watson's Case, 15 P. R. 127; affirmed by Divisional Court, 16 P. R. 55.

The examination is intended to be a cross-examination of the strictest character: Beattie v. Barton, 2 C. L. T. 104; Re Central Bank, Watson's Case, supra; and may question "fairly pertinent to the subject matter of the inquiry, which means put with a view to ascertain so far as possible, by discovery from a reluctant defendant, what debts are owing to him, ought to be answered by the defendant." He must also "give all necessary particulars to enable the plaintiffs to recover under a garnishee order": Republic of Costa Rica v. Steamship, 16 Ch. D. 8, 12; see also McLean v. Bruce, 13 P. R. 504. (Examination.)

The examination may extend to property assigned by the debtor to a third party by way of security: Watkins v. Ross, 68 L. T. 423. It should not be so conducted as to try to entrap the debtor, but it should be full, fair and searching: Graham v. Berlin, 13 P. R. 215.

Where the person examined cannot speak as to the facts about which examination may be had, without referring to books, etc., the Examiner's duty is to require their production and they must be produced: Russell v. Macdonald, 12 P. R. 478.

Inquiry as to means of the debtor is not restricted to the period of contracting the debt, but it may be shewn at some anterior time the debtor had property as to which he is required to give an account, and it is not a sufficient answer to say merely that it has all been disposed of before the debt was incurred: Ontario Bank v. Mitchell, 32 C. P. 73.

See further as to nature of the examination which may be had under this Rule, notes to Rule 907.

As to the mode of compelling attendance, see Rule 905.

Rules
901-903.

In High Court cases examination not to be before officers ordering same.

901. In High Court cases the examination of a judgment debtor on which fees may be payable otherwise than in law stamps shall not be taken before the Judge of the County Court, or Local Judge of the High Court, or Local Master being also a Judge of the County Court, by whom the order or appointment for the examination has been issued. Con. Rule 1192, part.

Application for examination of officers of corporations

902. Where the judgment is against a corporation the judgment creditor may in like manner examine any of the officers of such corporation, upon oath, before a Judge or other officer authorized to take an examination under Rule 900, [touching the names and residences of the stockholders in the corporation, the amount and particulars of stock held or owned by each stockholder and the amount paid thereon, and] as to what debts are owing to the said corporation, and as to the estate and effects of the corporation; and as to the disposal made by it of any property since contracting the debt or liability, in respect of which the said judgment was obtained, or in the case of a judgment for costs only, since the commencement of the cause or matter. Con. Rule 927.

Taken from R. S. O. 1877 c. 49, s. 19.

The corresponding provision in England (Rules of 1883, R. 610), does not contain the words in brackets, but in other respects is in substance the same. Before this Rule there was no power to order the examination of an officer of the corporation in such case: Dickson v. Neath, etc., Ry. Co., L. R. 4 Ex. 87.

A person who was, but has ceased to be, an officer, may be examined under this Rule: Societe Generale v. Johann Maria Farina, 1904, 1 K. B. 794; 90 L. T. 472.

Where an officer of a company is examined under this Rule the judgment creditor is entitled to a full disclosure of the company's affairs, and as a consequence to have access to its books pertinent to that inquiry: Charlebois v. Great North-West Ry. Co., 15 P. R. 10. The person examined must procure the necessary information to enable him to answer all questions the creditor is entitled to have answered: Ib. The creditor has no right to examine as to the dealings with paid-up stock: Ib.

Examination of certain persons as to a debtor's means.

903. Where judgment has been obtained as aforesaid, the Court or a Judge, on the application of the judgment creditor, may order any clerk or employee or former clerk or employee of the judgment debtor, or any person, or the officer or officers of any corporation, to whom the debtor has made a transfer of his property or effects, exigible under execution, since the date when the liability or debt which was the subject Rule 903. of the action, in which judgment was obtained was incurred (or where the judgment is for costs only since the commencement of the cause or matter), to attend at the county town of the county in which such person resides, before a Judge or officer authorized to take an examination under Rule 900, and to submit to be examined upon oath as to the estate and effects of the debtor, and as to the property and means he had when the debt or liability aforesaid was incurred (or in the case of a judgment for costs only, at the date of the commencement of the cause or matter), and as to the property or means he still has of discharging the judgment, and as to the disposal he has made of any property since contracting the debt or incurring the liability, and as to any (u) debts are owing to him. The examination shall be for the purpose of discovery only, and no order shall be made on the evidence given on such examination. Con. Rule 928.

Taken from 49 Vict. c. 16, s. 12.

At (a) the words "and what" were in the former Con. Rule 928, and appear to have been inadvertently omitted. The omission would not seem to alter the effect of the Rule.

"Exigible under execution."—These words do not include equitable execution or the appointment of a receiver: Canadian Mining & Investment Co. v. Wheeler, 3 O. L. R. 210.

An order under this Rule should not be made without notice to the transferee; nor without proof that the transfer was made after the date when the liability of the judgment debtor was incurred: Blakeley v. Blause, 12 P. R. 565.

A chattel mortgage is a transfer of property and effects within this Rule: Id.

The wife of a debtor to whom he has transferred property, may be examined notwithstanding that he alleges that the property was her own, and that he was acting as her agent only: Goodere v. White, 17 P. R. 431; so also where the transfer has been made to a mortgagee of the wife and she receives a benefit by the reduction of the incumbrance: Croft v. Croft, 17 P. R. 452.

The examination of a third mortgagee of real estate of the judgment debtor was refused, and the mortgagee was held not to be a transferee of property exigible in execution under this Rule: Canadian Mining Co. v. Wheeler, 3 O. L. R. 210; sed vide R. S. O. c. 77, s. 30.

This provision being remedial, is to be construed so as to advance the remedy given by it, so far as the fair meaning of the words will permit: Goreans v. Barnett, 12 P. R. 320; Coleman v. Hood, 4 O. W. R. 300.

It has therefore been held that the word "transfer" in this Rule should not be limited to the transfer of the title to the property or Rules effects, but should be regarded as equally applicable to the transfer of 904, 905. the possession, and therefore a solicitor to whom under a power of attorney to receive it, the consideration money on a sale of property had been paid, was held to be examinable: Ib.

It has been said by Boyd, C., that "transfer" in this Rule does not cover an "assignment" for the general benefit of creditors, as such an assignment virtually ends all litigation with respect to property and effects of a debtor, and this Rule is only to aid a judgment creditor in proceeding against the debtor's property, which he can no longer do after a valid assignment for all creditors: British Com. L. & I. Co. v. Britnell, 13 P. R. 310; in Canadian Bank of Commerce v. Wall, 11 C. L. T. 201, the contrary was decided by Street, J.

904. Where the Court or a Judge is satisfied that there is reasonable ground for supposing that any person or corporation is in possession of any property of the judgment debtor exigible under execution, the Court or Judge may order such person or any officer of said corporation to attend and submit to examination vidé voce upon oath before an examiner named in the order, touching the property and means of the judgment debtor. 56 V. c. 5, s. 9.

See notes to preceding Rule.

Compelling attendance.

905. A person liable to be examined under any of the preceding Rules may be compelled to attend and testify, and to produce books and documents, in the same manner and subject to the same rules of examination, and the same consequences of neglecting to attend or refusing to disclose the matters in respect of which he may be examined, as in the case of a witness. Con. Rules 928 (2), 929.

Taken from 49 V. c. 16, s. 12.

The procedure by this Rule directed to be followed is that provided in case of examination of witnesses generally: Rules 439, 443; see Rule 492.

This Rule merely regulates the mode of procuring the attendance of a party for examination; it does not enable the subpoena, and appointment under Rule 443, to be issued without a previous order for the examination being first obtained, where one is necessary, see Rules 902, 903, 904; see Rule 906.

If a party liable to examination refuses to be sworn, he will be ordered to attend again at his own expense and to take the oath and submit to be examined; and if he makes default, an application may be made to attach him for contempt: Chrig v. Chrig, 15 P. R. 53; and such order may be made where the party has been sworn and has objected to answer questions on the advice of his counsel, and though the Examiner has sustained the objection and there has been no appeal from his ruling: Hamilton v. Eschery, 15 P. R. 202.

906. A person liable to be examined under Rules 900 to 904 may be served with an appointment signed by the Judge or officer, and where the examination is to take place under an order, also with a copy of the order; such service shall be made at least 48 hours before the time appointed for the examination. The person to be examined shall be paid the same fees as a witness, and the examination shall be conducted in the same manner as an oral examination of an opposite party. Con. Rules 930, 931.

Service of
ment.

Mode of conducting examination

Taken from J. A. Rule 369, and R. S. O. 1877, c. 50, s. 366.

Formerly if the original order were not shewn at the time of service, the person served could not be brought into contempt for disobedience of it: Blakeley v. Blause, 12 P. R. 565. Now it is only necessary to shew the original if it is demanded: see Rule 333.

Insufficient service is waived by attending and submitting to be examined: Dayfoot v. Byrnes, 7 C. L. T. 21; Jones v. Macdonald, 14 P. R. 109.

An appointment signed by the Judge or officer is what is required to be served, not a copy, nor a subpoena, nor copy: Meyers v. Kendrick, 9 P. R. 363.

As an original appointment is required to be served, it would seem advisable, in order to prove service, that the appointment should be signed by the Judge or officer in duplicate.

An order to examine a defendant as a judgment debtor, and an appointment under it, are together equivalent to an order that the debtor should attend on the day mentioned in the appointment: Re Chatham Harvester Co. v. Campbell, 12 P. R. 665. Where he attends and offers to be examined, the force of the order is spent, and to obtain a fresh appointment a fresh order is necessary: Ib.

In England there is no corresponding provision with reference to the present subject, but there, also, the debtor or other person to be examined is entitled to conduct money. An attachment was refused for disobedience to an order to come up to London for examination, without an affidavit shewing tender of conduct money, and reason for not examining the debtor at his own residence: Protector Endowment Co. v. Whittam, 36 L. T. 467.

907. Where the judgment debtor does not attend, does not allege a sufficient excuse for not attending, or if attending refuses to disclose his property or his transactions, or does not make satisfactory answers respecting the same, or if it appears from such examination that such debtor has concealed or made away with his property in order to defeat or defraud his creditors or any of them, the Court or Judge may order the debtor to be committed to the common gaol of the county in which he resides, for any term not exceeding twelve months: or that a writ of capias ad satis-

Rule 907. faciendum may be issued against the debtor, or in case the debtor is at large upon bail, may make an order for his committal to close custody; and the Sheriff, on due notice of the order, shall forthwith take the debtor and commit him to close custody until he obtains an order of the Court or a Judge allowing him to go out of close custody, on giving the necessary bond in that behalf, or until he is otherwise discharged in due course of law. Con. Rule 932.

Taken from R. S. O. 1877, c. 49, s. 18, and Ib., c. 50, s. 205; and A. Rule 369 (a).

The fact that the debtor has made an assignment for the benefit of his creditors is no excuse for his not attending for examination: McEachern v. Gordon, 18 P. R. 459; Bank of Hamilton v. Scott, 41 C. L. J. 432.

In McKinnon v. Crowe, 17 P. R. 291, it was objected that an order for examination under Rule 903 could not properly be made under a judgment for costs in an interpleader issue, but the point not having been raised until a motion to commit for concealment of property, it was held to be too late, and was not adjudicated on: see now Rules 835, 909.

An order committing a debtor to close custody under this Rule is "process" in an action within the exception in sec. 1 of R. S. O. c. 83 (respecting Habeas Corpus), so that a habeas corpus should not be granted in such case, and if granted may be quashed as improvidently issued: Re Anderson v. Vanstone, 16 P. R. 243.

Unsatisfactory answers.

The broad test to be applied in gauging the character of the answers, in order to determine whether they are satisfactory, is, having regard to the circumstances of each particular case, are the answers sufficient to satisfy the mind of a reasonable person that a full and true disclosure has been made: Graham v. Devlin, 13 P. R. 245; Miller v. Macdonald, 14 P. R. 499.

Answers are not "unsatisfactory" because they do not account for the application of the debtor's assets in a proper manner: Hobbs v. Scott, 23 U. C. Q. B. 619; but see Crooks v. Stroud, 10 P. R. 131. The debtor must have continuously refused to answer, or so equivocated as to render his answer no answer at all: Lemon v. Lemon, 6 P. R. 184; see also Merrill v. McFarren, 1 C. L. T. 133; Beattie v. Burton, 2 C. L. T. 104, and the authorities fully reviewed in Schneider v. Agnew, 6 P. R. 138. Where the defendant, a widow, was shown to have received $500 insurance money payable on the death of her husband, part of which she had lent to her brother, part she had expended on clothing for herself and children, and the remainder, $100, she still had, but refused to apply on the judgment, as she had no other means with which to support herself and three children, an order to commit for unsatisfactory answers was refused: McKay v. McEachern, 12 P. R. 484.

An agreement by a debtor to work for his wife in order to pay her a debt due by him to her was held to be neither an illegal nor unreasonable arrangement: Baby v. Ross, 14 P. R. 440.

It is the debtor's duty to furnish such explanation about his affairs as will place his dealings in an intelligible shape, and not leave his creditors to find out as best they may, what it is the business of the debtor to make clear. It is not enough for the debtor to say, touching any transaction, that he does not know, or does not remember, if he has the means at hand to qualify himself to explain: Foster v. VanWormer, 12 P. R. 597. He must produce books, etc., which will enable him to answer: and submit to examination upon them: see Russell v. Macdonald, 12 P. R. 458; and any question fairly pertinent and properly asked with a view to ascertain full particulars of what debts there are, and which of them may be attached, must be answered: Rep. of Cass v. Strousberg, 10 Ch. D. S.; 43 L. T. 399.

Rule 907.

Where particulars, wherein dissatisfaction is felt, have been pointed out, an opportunity should be given to the debtor of reconciling what may be conceived to be contradictions, or explaining what may appear to be admissions: Graham v. Devlin, 13 P. R. 245.

Where answers were considered unsatisfactory the Judge allowed defendant a week to pay costs of examination and of the motion and attend again and give further information, before making an order on the motion to meet the justice of the case: Dymont v. Jerrett, 9 C. L. T. 141.

Where a debtor swears that he has lost money by gambling, the Court refused to order him to disclose the particular transactions in which the money was lost, or to commit him for unsatisfactory answers, or for making away with his property: Harvey v. Aikine, 17 P. R. 71.

Although the Examiner rules that the debtor need not answer questions, he is not necessarily protected, and it is not necessary for the creditor to appeal from the Examiner's ruling; but on a motion to commit the debtor for not answering, the order may be made for him to attend again at his own expense, if it should appear that the Examiner was wrong: Bank of Hamilton v. Essery, 15 P. R. 202.

The latter part of the Rule is confined to the case of a ca. sa., or re-commitment upon a ca. sa., and not to the case of a penal order of commitment for not disclosing property or transactions. In such case, therefore, quære whether, by submitting to another examination and disclosing his property, the debtor could be relieved from the imprisonment imposed: Baby v. Ross, 14 P. R. 440.

An order for committal for a fixed period, is said to be the appropriate punishment authorized by this Rule: Jones v. Macdonald, 15 P. R. 345; an order for a writ of attachment requiring the Sheriff to hold the debtor in custody for an indefinite period was held to be improper: Re Chatham Harvester Co. v. Campbell, 12 P. R. 633.

Motion for committal.

A notice of motion, seeking relief on the ground of unsatisfactory answers, should particularize the answers complained of: Foster v. VanWormer, 12 P. R. 597.

The application is to a Judge in Chambers: see R. C. Bank v. Lockman, 7 P. R. 102. It may be made at the time of the examination and without further notice, if the officer before whom the examination takes place has jurisdiction to entertain it, e.g., in County Court cases, where the examination is before the Judge: Pontou v. Bullen, 2 E. & A. 379; Baird v. Story, 23 U. C. Q. B. 624.

An order to commit must be absolute, not upon a condition, e.g., unless the debtor forthwith gives a note: Chichester v. Gordon, 25 U. C. Q. B. 527.

Rule 907.

A married woman is liable to be committed: Metropolitan L. & S. Co. v. Mara, 8 P. R. 355; Dillon v. Cunningham, L. R. 8 Ex. 23; Watson v. Ontario Supply Co., 14 P. R. 96; Kistler v. Tettmar, 1905, 1 K. B. 39; 92 L. T. 36.

The committal is for a contempt, and the fact that the judgment is one for costs does not make the committal an imprisonment for non-payment of costs: Pearson v. Emery, 12 P. R. 496; and see Re Tensdall v. Brady, 18 P. R. 104. The committal is penal in its nature, and a second punishment cannot be awarded for the same offence; therefore where the debtor ordered to be committed was released by mistake it was held that a second order for attachment could not issue; but semble, an order for re-arrest under the first order might be made: Church's Trustee v. Hibbard, 1902, 2 Ch. 784.

Substituted service of notice of motion to commit for unsatisfactory answers was allowed in Troat v. Loney, 13 C. L. T. 64, and an order was made for committal of defendant, though he was out of the jurisdiction: ib., following Bloomfield v. Brooke, 6 P. R. 264.

On a motion to commit under this Rule for unsatisfactory answers, where the depositions shew on their face that the party was being examined as a judgment debtor, it is not necessary to prove service of the appointment and payment of conduct money: Jones v. Macdonald, 14 P. R. 109. Secus, where the motion is to commit for non-attendance. The certificate of the Examiner of the proceedings before him is good evidence although it may have been given ex parte: ib.

The order must commit the debtor to the common gaol of the county in which he resides; it is not proper, nor warranted by the Rule, to direct that he be committed to the gaol of any other county where he may be found: Baby v. Ross, 14 P. R. 440.

Where a debtor contumaciously refused to answer questions, he was committed for three months, and an application for his discharge before the expiry of the three months was refused, though the creditor consented: Jones v. Macdonald, 15 P. R. 345. Where after a reasonable opportunity the debtor refused to disclose the whereabouts of his property, he was committed for three months: McKinnon v. Crowe, 17 P. R. 291.

Appeal.

An appeal lies to a Divisional Court from the order of a Judge in Chambers refusing an order to commit for unsatisfactory answers: Millar v. Macdonald, 14 P. R. 499; but the appellate Court will not reverse the order unless the Judge has erred in principle, or is almost overwhelmingly wrong: ib.

Where, therefore, the Court of first instance in its discretion refused to order the debtor to answer questions, the Court of Appeal refused to do so, although of opinion that the Court below would not have been wrong if it had ordered them to be answered: Watkins v. Ross, 68 L. T. 423.

An order made in a County Court action by the Judge of the County Court, under this Rule, committing a debtor, is appealable to a Divisional Court of the High Court: see R. S. O. c. 53, s. 52, supra, p. 1040 and Baby v. Ross, 14 P. R. 440. Where the debtor is ordered to be committed he may also be ordered to pay costs of the motion: McKinnon v. Crowe, 17 P. R. 291.

908. Where an officer of a corporation does not attend, ^{Rules 908-911.} and does not show a sufficient excuse for not attending, or if attending, refuses to disclose any of the matters in respect of which he may be examined, the Court or Judge may order him to be committed to the common gaol of the County in which he resides, for any term not exceeding six months. ^{Committal of officer of corporation in like manner} Con. Rule 933.

Taken from R. S. O. 1877, c. 49, s. 19.

Rule 907, it will be noted, is confined to the case of a debtor himself not attending, or making unsatisfactory answers, etc., and this Rule is confined to the case of officers of corporations making default, but there appears to be no express provision for the committal of employees of the debtor ordered to attend for examination under Rule 903 who make default: such cases are left to be governed by the ordinary procedure of the Court for the enforcement of its orders against recalcitrant witnesses. See Rule 905.

909. Where under Rules 905, 907 or 908 a person has been committed to gaol, the Court or Judge may, upon such notice as may be directed, limit the term of imprisonment or grant such other relief as may seem just, but the order shall not relieve such person from any civil liability to any other person. New. ^{Release or other relief of persons committed for contempt}

See Rule 861.

910. Where a difficulty arises in or about the execution or enforcement of a judgment, the judgment creditor interested may apply to the Court or a Judge, and the Court or Judge may make such order thereon for the attendance and examination of any party or person as may seem just. Con. Rule 948, amended. ^{Examination in other cases.}

Taken from Eng. (1883) R. 611.

S. ATTACHMENT OF DEBTS.

911.—(1) The Court or a Judge, upon the ex parte ^{Court or Judge may order attachment of debts.} application of the judgment creditor, either before or after the oral examination mentioned in Rules 900 to 904 and 910, and upon affidavit by him, or his solicitor [or some other person aware of the facts. (a)] stating that judgment has been recovered, that it is still unsatisfied, and to what amount, and that some third person is indebted to the judgment debtor, and is within Ontario, may order that all debts owing or accruing from the third person (hereinafter called the garnishee) to the judgment debtor, shall be attached to answer the judgment debt; and, by the same or any subsequent order it may be ordered that the garnishee appear before the Court or a Judge or before such officer as the Court or Judge shall appoint, to show cause why he should not pay the judgment creditor the debt due from the garnishee to the judgment debtor, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to satisfy the judgment debt. Con. Rule 935; Rules 23 June, 1894, 1361

out of Ontario.

(2) Upon a like application where the garnishee is not within Ontario, and upon its being made to appear on affidavit that the garnishee is so indebted to the judgment debtor, and that the debt to be garnished is one for which the garnishee might be sued within Ontario by the judgment debtor, an order may be made that such debt shall be attached to answer the judgment debt; and, by the same or any subsequent order, leave may be given to serve upon the garnishee, or in such manner as may seem proper, a notice (which may be embodied in the order), calling upon the garnishee to appear before the Court or a Judge or before such officer as the Court or Judge may appoint, to show cause why he should not pay the judgment creditor the debt due from the garnishee to the judgment debtor, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to satisfy the judgment debt.

(3) The order allowing the notice so to be given shall limit a time when the motion is to be heard, having regard to the place or country where or within which the notice is to be served. New.

(4) Where the garnishee is not within Ontario and is neither a British subject nor in British dominions, notice of the order, according to Form No. 126, and not the order itself, shall be served. New.

Clauses (2), (3) and (4), are new in the present Consolidation of the Rules.

Clause (4) contains a similar provision to that made by Rule 165, in the case of writs of summons issued against a foreigner out of the jurisdiction: see notes to Rule 165. This Rule otherwise corresponds with the Eng. (1883) R. 622, and also with R. S. O. 1877, c. 50, ss. 307, and 308, except that those sections did not contain the passage in brackets at (a) owing to the absence of which the affidavit was required to be by the creditor or his solicitor: Builder v. Kerr, 7 P. R. 323; Boyd v. Haynes, 5 P. R. 15.

The provisions of this Rule are held not to apply to the Division Rule 911.
 Courts: Simpson v. Chase, 14 P. R. 280.

See The Creditors' Relief Act (R. S. O. c. 78, s. 371, as to the rights of other creditors to share in moneys attached; and also as to the right of a sheriff to attach debts due to an execution debtor; and as to his right to recover money due on a mortgage to an execution debtor, see R. S. O. c. 77, ss. 23-28.

For Form No. 126, see H. & L. Forms No. 1130.

Scope of the Rule.—As to the meaning of "judgment," "judgment creditor," and "judgment debtor," see Rules 835-839.

Under those Rules an order for payment of money into Court may, it would seem, be enforced by attachment of debts under Rule 911. This can not be done in England: see Re Giverr, Napper v. Fanshawe, 1895, 2 Ch. 217; 72 L. T. 865.

The judgment creditor mentioned in Rule 911 is a judgment creditor who may examine his debtor under Rule 900, and, under that Rule where the judgment or order of the creditor is only for costs, the creditor is a judgment creditor within that Rule, and therefore also within this Rule: Lloyd v. Wallace, 9 P. R. 335; Elliot v. Capell, 9 P. R. 35; see also Whittaker v. Whittaker, 7 P. D. 15; and Manchester, etc., v. Parkinson, 22 Q. B. D. 173.

An assignee of the judgment being a "person entitled to enforce the judgment," is "a judgment creditor": Rule 835 (b); Goodman v. Robinson, 18 Q. B. D. 332; McLean v. Bruce, 14 P. R. 190.

The creditor must be one who is entitled to enforce immediate payment. Therefore the holder of a bond of a corporation containing a condition that all bondholders should be paid pari passu, was held not to be such a creditor, since an attachment would have given him priority over other bondholders: Kennett v. Westminster Improvement Commissioners, 11 Ex. 349.

Only such property can be attached as the debtor could deal with properly, and without violation of the rights of other persons, at the time the attaching order is served: see Buddeley v. Consolidated Bank, 34 Ch. D. 536; 38 Ch. D. 238; Re General Horticultural Co., 32 Ch. D. 512; Vyse v. Brown, 13 Q. B. D. 199; McCrancy v. McLeod, 10 P. R. 541; Parker v. Howe, 12 P. R. 351; Beaty v. Hackett, 14 P. R. 395.

Proceedings to attach a judgment debt may be taken after the pronouncing, but before the actual entry, of the judgment debtor's judgment: Holtby v. Hodgson, 24 Q. B. D. 103; Davison v. Taylor, 14 P. R. 78.

A judgment against a married woman, to be executed against her separate estate, is a judgment enabling the judgment creditor to attach debts due to the married woman: Holtby v. Hodgson, supra.

Where a claim can be attached it has been held that a receiver should not be appointed, even though the claim be one which could formerly be reached only by way of equitable execution: Fleming v. Stephenson, 28 C. L. J. 370 (Dartnell, J.C.C.).

Clause (1) of the Rule applies where the garnishee is within Ontario. A foreign corporation not shewn to carry on one of the principal parts of its business in Ontario is not within Ontario for the purposes of this Rule: Parker v. Odette, 16 P. R. 69; Canada

Rule 911. Co. v. Parmelee, 13 P. R. 308; Hoswell v. Piper, 17 P. R. 257; and vide, Huggin v. Comptoir D'Escompte de Paris, 23 Q. B. D. 519; and Wentworth v. Smith, 15 P. R. 372. The mere fact that the foreign corporation has a resident agent, or chief agency in Ontario, is not sufficient to bring the corporation within the first part of this Rule; but a Canadian banking corporation authorized by Parliament to do, and doing, business in Ontario, although its head office is in another Province, is resident within Ontario within the meaning of this Rule. Wentworth v. Smith, 15 P. R. 372.

Where the garnishee is not within Ontario, clauses (2)-(4), may be applied.

Partnership firms.

Debts owing from a firm carrying on business within the jurisdiction may be attached under this Rule, although one or more members of the firm be resident out of the jurisdiction: Rule 229; but the attaching order must be served on the person having the control or management of the partnership business or on one of the partners within Ontario: Ib.

Attachment of debts.

Attachment of Debts.—This Rule applies where the interest of the debtor is in the shape of a debt whether legal or equitable: see cases infra of debts held to be attachable.

Affidavit.

The affidavit for an attaching order need not state the amount of the debt: Lucy v. Wood, 28 Sol. Jour. 326; W. N. 1884, 58; and will be sufficient if it states that the deponent is informed and believes that the garnishee is indebted to the judgment debtor: Coren v. Buene, 22 Q. B. D. 249; De Pas v. Capital & Industries Corporation, 1891, 1 Q. B. 216; 64 L. T. 93; S. C., sub nom. Vinall v. De Pas, 1892, A. C. 90; 66 L. T. 422. In answer to such an affidavit it is not sufficient for the garnishee to deny owing the particular debt referred to in the affidavit filed in support of the application, but he must deny owing any debt to the judgment debtor or he may be ordered to pay over: Ib.

No distinction between legal and equitable debts.

Since The Judicature Act the power of garnishing debts has been very extensive. The word debt has been given a more extended meaning than it had at the time of the passing of the original garnishee clauses in the C. L. P. Act, and under those clauses now embodied in the Rules a creditor may attach any debt due by any other person to his judgment debtor, whether legal or equitable: Leaming v. Woon, 7 Ont. App. 42; Wilson v. Dundas, W. N. 1875, 232; Summers v. Morphet, 61 L. T. Jour. 140; Re Cowan's Estate, 14 Ch. D. 638; Hammer v. Giles, 11 Ch. D. 942; Webb v. Stenton, 11 Q. B. D. 518.

Under the present Rule it is clear that a claimature legal claim, which has not ripened into a debt, and, by possibility, may never do so, cannot be attached: see Simpson v. Chase, 14 P. R. at p. 286.

Moneys in a receiver's hands.

Money of the debtor actually in the hands of a receiver may be attached: Re Cowan's Estate, 14 Ch. D. 638; but the future accruing income of a trust fund in the hands of trustees, to which the debtor may become entitled, is not attachable: Webb v. Stenton, 11 Q. B. D. 518; nor is the interest of a debtor in the proceeds of land to be sold by trustees attachable before the sale has taken place: Stuart v. Grough, 15 Ont. App. 299; and see Hunsberry v. Kratz, 5 O. L. R. 635.

Before the Judicature Acts, it was held that on a judgment against a company, money of the company in the hands of an official liquidator might be attached: Ex parte Turner, 2 D. F. & J. 354; and though this was afterwards questioned in Re Hunter v. Greenhill, L. R. 8 C. Rule 911 P. 24, The Indicture Act, or the present Rule, will probably be held to have removed any difficulty in holding the money to be attachable. See also cases, infra, p. 1151.

A fair test as to a debt being attachable has been said to be, whether the debt is capable of being the subject of a set-off: Webster v. Webster, 31 Heny. 393; McNaughton v. Webster, 6 U. C. L. J. 17; see also Parker v. Howe, 12 P. R. at p. 353.

The debt must be an absolute and perfected debt, not merely a conditional one, e.g., payable upon the execution of a conveyance: Howell v. Metropolitan District Ry. Co., 19 Ch. D. 508, or payable on a contingency which has not happened: Carswell v. Langley, 3 O. L. R. 261, and must be owing to the judgment debtor alone; where it is due to him jointly with another person it cannot be attached: Macdonald v. Tacquah Gold Mines Co., 13 Q. B. D. 535; Parker v. Gidette, 16 P. R. 63; Marshall v. James, 1905, 1 Ch. 432.

Where the judgment debtors were persons authorized under Rule 261 to defend on behalf of all persons constituting an unincorporated association, money deposited in a bank at the credit of that association was held to be not attachable for costs payable by the judgment debtors: Metallic Roofing Co. v. Local Union, &c., supra, p. 358.

Where a husband and wife joined as plaintiffs in an action for damages for personal injury to the wife, and the jury awarded them each a specific sum, but judgment was entered for the plaintiffs for the whole amount awarded, without stating the proportions assigned to each, it was held that the amount awarded to the wife could not be attached by a judgment creditor of the husband: Beasley v. Roney, 1891, 1 Q. B. 509; 65 L. T. 153.

The Rule applies to debts accruing, as well as debts actually owing: Debts accruing. see Sparks v. Young, 8 Ir. C. L. 251; Tapp v. Jones, L. R. 10 Q. B. 591; ex parte Joselyne, 8 Ch. D. 327; but a future debt, i.e., a debt which has no present existence but can only arise on the happening of some future event, e.g., moneys which may in the future come into the hands of a trustee for the benefit of his cestui que trust, cannot be attached: Fellows v. Thornton, 14 Q. B. D. 335; but such claims have been made available under equitable execution by the appointment of a receiver: Block v. Cox, before Robertson, J., see Judgment Book Chy. D. No. 12, fo. 28. Debts due, but not payable till a future time, may be ordered to be paid at such future date; and it is not necessary to wait and obtain a fresh order for payment of each instalment as it becomes payable: Tapp v. Jones, L. R. 10 Q. B. 591; see also Re Cowan's Estate, and Leaming v. Woon, supra; Booth v. Troil, 12 Q. B. D. 8, and Rule 915; but the garnishee cannot be compelled to pay before credit given to him has expired: Harding v. Barratt, 3 U. C. L. J. 31.

Whether money due on cheques or promissory notes or other negotiable instruments is attachable seems doubtful: pro, see Hynd v. Freeman, 35 Sol. Jour. 87; Roblee v. Rankin, 11 S. C. R. 137; contra, see Jackson v. Cassidy, 2 Ont. 521; Esley v. Dey, 15 P. R. 353. Under the present state of the authorities such debts may probably be better made exigible by receiver and injunction: Esley v. Dey (No. 2), 15 P. R. 405.

Where a garnishee before service of an attaching order, had given a cheque for the debt due by him to the judgment debtor, which was duly paid, it was held that there was no debt owing or accruing

Rule 211. between the time of giving the cheque and its payment, and no duty upon the garnishee to stop payment on being served with the attaching order: Elliott v. Jackson, 1 Cal. & El. 362.

Where, before an attaching order issued, a legacy was payable to the defendant, and he had made a settlement of it, it was held that no debt was due from the executor of the will to the defendant, es. et. even if the settlement were set aside by the plaintiff, there was no ground for saying that the executor was obliged to pay over to the defendant. The defendant could not revoke the settlement, and even if it were set aside as void against creditors, it would be still valid as between the executor and the defendant: Fyfe v. Brown, 13 Q. B. D. 139; 1 Cal. & El. 225.

Where the trustees of an annuity, payable to a judgment debtor half-yearly, had advanced to him more than was payable at the end of the last half-yearly period, it was held that nothing was attachable as either owing or accruing: Webb v. Stenton, 11 Q. B. D. 518; see Booth v. Trail, 12 Q. B. D. 8. So a salary which is not payable till earned is not attachable as a debt before the date when it is payable: Hall v. Pritchett, 3 Q. B. D. 215; Shanley v. Moore, 9 F. C. L. J. 204. But a debtor's interest in a trust fund not yet payable by the trustee has been held to be attachable: Nash v. Pearce, 47 L. J. Q. B. 766; Lloyd v. Wallace, 9 P. R. 335.

An order to attach a debt may be made, notwithstanding that six years have elapsed since the judgment was obtained by the judgment creditor: Fellows v. Thornton, supra.

Rule 222 does not apply to garnishee proceedings. Where the debt attached is due by a firm the attaching order should be made not against the firm, but against the several members of the firm: Walker v. Rooke, 6 Q. B. D. 631.

Attachable debts.

Debts Attachable.—The following have been held to be attachable:—

Rent.

Rent due by a tenant: Mitchell v. Lee, L. R. 2 Q. B. 250. Formerly, rent not due was not attachable: Commercial Bank v. Jarvis, 5 F. C. L. J. 90; McLaren v. Sudworth, 4 U. C. L. J. 233; but since the Act (now R. S. O. c. 170, s. 41), by which rent is made apportionable, it has been held in Ontario that it may be attached as a debt accruing between gale days; and the judgment creditor is entitled to be paid, on the gale day, such portion as had accrued due on the day of service of the attachment: Massie v. Toronto Printing Co., 12 P. R. 12; but see contra, Barnett v. Eastman, 67 L. J. Q. B. 517, where notwithstanding the Apportionment Act, rent was held not to be attachable before it was due; and in Division Courts only rent due can be attached: see Christie v. Casey, 31 C. L. J. 35; Birmingham v. Malouf, 32 C. L. J. 717.

The attachment of rent intercepts the rent up to the day of attachment: Re Wilson, 5 R. 455, and suspends the landlord's right of distress therefor: Patterson v. King, 27 Ont. 56.

Rents due to a mortgagor before a notice given by the mortgagee to the tenant to pay subsequent rents to him: Patterson v. O'Reilly, 10 L. R. 1r. 304, and see Massie v. Toronto Printing Co., supra.

McKim*, 8 Ont. 739; but see contra, Perout v. Gregory, 24 Q. B. D. 281; 61 L. T. 396; Re Hunter v. Greenhill, L. R. S. C. P. 24.

Surplus money in the hands of mortgagees after sale under a power in a mortgage: Nicol v. Ewin, 7 P. R. 331; see McKay v. Mitchell, 6 Q. B. 1, 1, L. J. 31; see also Chatterton v. Watney, 16 Ch. D. 378; 17 Ch. D. 259, where it was held that a judgment debtor, who had obtained a garnishee order against a mortgagor debtor of his debtor, was not entitled to surplus proceeds of a sale by a prior mortgagee, which took place after his garnishee order, but the holder of a garnishee order obtained after the sale against the prior mortgagee was entitled.

Money in the hands of Bankers: Re United Eng. & Saut. Ins. Co., By Bankers L. R. 5 Eq. 300; L. R. 3 Chy. 787; Miller v. Huddleston, 22 Ch. D. 233; Wentworth v. Smith, 15 P. R. 372.

Money payable under a contract for work done for a municipal corporation: Alden v. Bower, 2 P. R. 329.

Money payable under a contract to supply a lunch, was held to be due when the purveyor had performed his part and supplied the food, tables and accessories, and where the lunch was over at 2 p.m., the amount was held to be attached by service of an attaching order at 5 p.m.: Kelly v. Rider, 11 Times, 206.

Money due to a railway company for the purpose of distribution among its shareholders under an agreement sanctioned by Act of Parliament, may be attached by a creditor of the company: Bauch v. The Seven Oaks, etc., Railway Company, 4 Ex. D. 132.

A debt for which a cheque has been given by the garnishee, if the cheque is dishonored or stopped: Cohen v. Hale, 3 Q. B. D. 371; but see Elicell v. Jackson, supra, pp. 1149-50.

Money due for calls on shares in a company: Re Pass v. Capital & Industries Corporation, 1891, 1 Q. B. 216, S. C., sub nom. Tinnall v. De Pass, 1892, A. C. 90; 66 L. T. 422.

Money in the hands of an agent in this Province may be garnished, though the garnishee resides out of the jurisdiction: Brown v. Merrills, 3 F. C. L. J. 31; but not where the garnishee is a foreign corporation: Bank of British North America v. Longhrey, 2 C. L. J. 44; Lundy v. Dickson, 6 F. C. L. J. 92; and see Canada Cotton Co. v. Parvashie, supra, pp. 1147-8, unless the claim is within clause (2) of this Rule.

Money placed in the hands of solicitors by their client for a specific purpose which had failed, and even though the solicitors claimed a larger sum to be due them from their client: Stewart v. Campbell, 1892, 1 Q. B. 314.

Rule 911.

Debt due to or by executor.

Upon a judgment against a deceased person when proceedings are continued against his executor, or in an action against an executor as such, a debt due to the testator's estate may be attached: Burton v. Roberts, 6 H. & N. 93; Fowler v. Roberts, 2 Giff. 226; Tiffany v. Bullen, 18 C. P. 91; McDonald v. Sullivan, 5 O. L. R. at p. 300. So also a debt due by an executor to a judgment debtor is attachable, but the order in such case should show on its face that it is directed to the executor as such: Stevens v. Phelps, L. R. 10 Ch. 417; but such a debt is not attachable after an administration judgment has been granted: Ib.

Imperfect gift.

A debt of which an incomplete gift has been made: Davidson v. Cochrane, 34 C. L. J. 318.

Debt due one of several debtors.

After the analogy of a fi. fa. under which the goods of any one of those against whom it is issued may be taken, a debt due to one of several judgment debtors may be attached to satisfy the judgment against all: Müller v. Mynn, 1 E. & B. 1075; but a debt owing to two cannot be attached for a debt of one: Re Smart v. Miller, 3 P. R. 385; McCormick v. Park, 9 C. P. 330; Macdonald v. Tacquah Gold Mines Co., 13 Q. B. D. 555; Parker v. Odette, 16 P. R. 69; Marshall v. James, 1905, 1 Ch. 432.

Pensions.

As to pensions and superannuation allowances, see Iunes v. East India Co., 17 C. B. 351; Dent v. Dent, L. R. 1 P. & D. 366; Ex parte Hawker, L. R. 7 Ch. 214; Willcock v. Terrell, 3 Ex. D. 323; Sansom v. Sansom, 4 P. D. 69; Birch v. Birch, 8 P. D. 163; Lucas v. Harris, 18 Q. B. D. 127; 55 L. T. 658; Crowe v. Price, 22 Q. B. D. 429; Booth v. Traill, 12 Q. B. D. 8; Re Webber, 18 Q. B. D. 111.

servants

As to salaries or remuneration of municipal officers, see Wilson v. Fleming, 1 O. L. R. 599; Edmunds v. Edmunds, 1904, P. 362.

Fees payable to a public vaccinator and registrar of births, etc.: see Edmunds v. Edmunds, supra.

Debts not ascertained
in amount.

A debt of an unascertained amount, if only it be payable as soon as ascertained: Re Sato v. Hubbard, 8 P. R. 445; Macpherson v. Tisdale, 11 P. R. 261, where costs remained to be taxed: Re Withrow, Poucher v. Donovan, 19 C. L. J. 97, 114, where the amount to be found due to a plaintiff who had been declared entitled to a mechanic's lien, was attached; so also a residuary bequest, though it is undetermined whether anything, and, if anything, how much is due: McLean v. Bruce, 14 P. R. 190. As to the mode of making inquiry to ascertain the amount, see Ib.

(1) Not attachable as debts, but sometimes exigible by equitable
execution.

Moneys not Attachable.—The following are not attachable, but probably, in some cases, may be reached by the appointment of a receiver by way of equitable execution: see Esley v. Day, 15 P. R. 353, 405:—

Unliqui-dated damages.

Unliquidated damages: Johnson v. Diamond, 11 Ex. 73; though secured by bond in a penal sum, Ib.; Griswold v. Buffalo, Brantford & Goderich Ry. Co., 2 P. R. 178; though the amount has been ascertained by the verdict of a jury, or award, but no judgment has been obtained to make the claim a debt: Jones v. Thompson, E. B. & F. 63; Dresser v. Johns, 28 L. J. C. P. 281; In re Newman, 3 Ch. D. 491; Boyd v. Haynes, 5 P. R. 15; Tate v. Corporation of Toronto, 3 P. R. 181; Bank of Toronto v. Burton, 4 P. R. 56; Gwynne v. Rees, Rule 911, 2 P. R. 282; Roberts v. City of Toronto, 16 Gr. 236; money due under a judgment for unliquidated damages, pronounced but not formally entered, is attachable: Holtby v. Hodgson, 24 Q. B. D. 103; 61 L. T. 297, affirmed in appeal, 62 L. T. 145; followed in Davidson v. Taylor, 14 P. R. 78; insurance moneys unadjusted, and not payable in respect of any admitted claim, as long as the company's right to have the money applied in rebuilding remains: Simpson v. Chase, 14 P. R. 280; and see Canada Cotton Co. v. Parmelee, 13 P. R. 308.

Where a claim for work done under a contract, and one for unliquidated damages are referred, there can be no garnishment of the latter until after award: Tate v. The Corporation of the City of Toronto, 10 I. C. L. J. 66; 3 P. R. 181. See also Randall v. Lithgow, 12 Q. B. D. 525.

So any claim which might or might not result in a debt, e.g., a notice to treat under the English Lands Clauses Act, on which notice nothing had been done: Richardson v. Eluit, 2 C. P. D. 9; an unascertained balance due from one partner to another: Campbell v. Peden, 3 H. C. L. J. 68.

Salary not yet payable: Hall v. Pritchett, 3 Q. B. D. 215; Re Salary, Shanley v. Moore, 9 I. C. L. J. 264; Central Bank v. Ellis, 20 Ont. App. 361; but as to the garnishment of the salaries of civil servants, see 61 Vict. c. 7 (O.).

Full pay of an officer in the Royal Navy on active service cannot be assigned or attached: Apthorpe v. Apthorpe, 35 W. R. 728; 12 P. D. 192; nor the pay of a retired officer in the Army: Crowe v. Price, 22 Q. B. D. 429. See Stewart v. Jones, 1 O. L. R. 34.

A negotiable promissory note not yet due: Jackson v. Cassidy, 2 Negotiable Instruments, Ont. 521; Pyne v. Kinna, 11 Ir. C. L. R. 10; Exley v. Day, 15 P. R. 353; but a receiver may be appointed: Exley v. Day, 15 P. R. 405.

A legacy in the hands of an executor unless there has been such an account stated by the executors as would entitle the legatee to sue: McDowall v. Hollister, 25 L. T. Jour. 185; see vide, McLean v. Bruce, 14 P. R. 190, and Fleming v. Stephenson, 28 C. L. J. 770 (Dartnell, J.C.C.), which was, however, decided under the former Con. Rule before its amendment by Rule 1361.

The interest of a residuary legatee in the estate of a testator who had died within a year of the application for attachment: Hunsberry v. Kratz, 5 O. L. R. 635.

Money sent by a father to his son, the debtor, as a gift, through a bank, was garnished before the debtor was advised of the deposit; it was held not garnishable, as the father had till then power to revoke the gift: Caisse v. Tharp, 5 P. R. 265. Gifts.

Money in the hands of a solicitor as purchase money of lands in which the debtor is alleged to have had an interest as tenant by the curtesy which he disclaims: Palmer v. Lovett, 14 P. R. 415; and quære even though the debtor had been tenant by the curtesy: see Id., per Armour, C.J. Where debtor disclaims interest.

Rule 911.

Money payable by trustees.

A dividend payable to the judgment debtor under an administration in bankruptcy of the estate of a person dying insolvent: Prout v. Gregory, 24 Q. B. D. 281; 61 L. T. 696.

Surplus, if any, after payment of the debts of A. by the terms of a trust deed to be paid to the judgment debtor: McKindsey v. Armstrong, 10 Ont. App. 17.

Surplus share due debtor, of a fund of a company in liquidation, paid over to the Inspector General by the liquidator pursuant to a statute: Spence v. Coleman, 1901, 2 K. B. 199; 84 L. T. 703.

(2) Not attachable or exigible by equitable execution.

In the following cases, the claims can neither be attached nor reached by equitable execution:—

Money on deposit to the credit of the debtor "on trust" where the debtor has no beneficial interest in it: Stobart v. Asford, 29 C. L. J. 383 (Man.).

Where debtor has no beneficial interest in fund.

A debt payable to the debtor only as agent for another person: Burrell v. Read, 11 Times, 36.

Money in a bank at the credit of the judgment debtor, a stock broker, which was shewn to be wholly money of his clients: Hancock v. Smith, 41 Ch. D. 456.

A debt due by the garnishee to the judgment debtor as executor: Macaulay v. Rumball, 19 C. P. 284; and a debt due to an administrator as such, cannot be attached to answer a private debt: Bozman v. Bozman, 1 Chy. Ch. 172; but secus where the personal representative is also beneficially entitled to the debt: McDonald v. Sullivan, 5 O. L. R. 87.

Money was held not attachable under a contract which was not performed according to its terms, so that nothing was due at the time of the attaching order: see McCrancy v. McLeod, 10 P. R. 539.

When subject to restraint against anticipation.

The income of trust funds payable to a wife for her separate use, subject to a restraint against anticipation, accrued since a judgment against her and her husband, was held not attachable, as otherwise it would in effect enable her to anticipate her income in violation of the restraint on anticipation: Chapman v. Biggs, 11 Q. B. D. 27; see also Stanley v. Stanley, 7 Ch. D. 589; and notes, supra, p. 353; but in the more recent case of Hood Barrs v. Heriot, 1896, A. C. 174; 74 L. T. 353, the restraint on anticipation was held to be at an end as regards the instalments of income, as soon as they became payable; but see Whiteley v. Edwards, 1896, 2 Q. B. 48; Bolitho v. Gidley, 1905, A. C. 98; 92 L. T. 369.

Alleged trustee for debtor.

Money due to the wife of a debtor for purchase money of lands alleged to have been vested in the wife in fraud of the debtor's creditors: O'Donoghue v. Hull, 24 S. C. R. 483.

Money of prisoner in hands of police.

Money taken from a prisoner, and in the hands of a police officer: Noth v. Kerry, cited 112 L. T. Jour. 495 (N. S. W. W. N. vol. 18, p. 250).

Juror's pay.

The allowance of a juror is not attachable in the hands of the County Treasurer: Phillips v. Austin, 3 C. L. T. 316.

Wages.

Wages or salary of servants, etc., to the extent of $25, are exempt from attachment: R. S. O. c. 156, s. 7. The salary of the secretary of a company amounting to £200, payable quarterly, was held not to be within the meaning of a similar Imperial protecting Act: Gordon v. Jennings, 9 Q. B. D. 45.

The future earnings, as wages, or salary, of the debtor: Holmes v. Millage, 1893, 1 Q. B. 551; 68 L. T. 205; Central Bank v. Ellis, 20 Ont. App. 364.

The salary of a municipal officer which has been, even though irregularly, paid in advance: Wilson v. Fleming, 1 O. L. R. 589.

A debt due to a firm cannot be attached to secure a debt of one of the partners: Marshall v. James, 1905, 1 Ch. 432.

A garnishing order cannot be made attaching a debt due from a partnership firm described by its partnership name: Walker v. Rooke, 6 Q. B. D. 631.

A debt which is attachable does not cease to be so because the debtor has brought an action to recover it: and the giving of a cheque by the garnishee to the debtor, payment of which was stopped on service of the order nisi, was held not to prevent the debt from being attached: Cohen v. Hale, 3 Q. B. D. 371; but it is otherwise where a cheque has been given and accepted in payment of a debt, though the cheque has not been presented: Ellicott v. Jackson, 1 Times. 454; 1 Cab. & E. 362, and it is not the duty of the garnishee to stop payment on being served with an order attaching debts: Ib., and where the garnishee before the attaching order has given his creditor a negotiable instrument in payment of the debt attached, that would seem to be a defence to any application against the garnishee to pay over: see Bence v. Shearman, 1898, 2 Ch. 582; payment to the debtor after service of the attaching order is of no avail against the attaching creditor: Edmunds v. Edmunds, 1904, P. 362. An attaching order is no bar to an action by the judgment debtor to recover the debt attached, but payment over by the garnishee pursuant to an order is a defence, but it does not arise until the payment is made, and does not relate back to the date of the attaching order: Pickard v. Tins, 19 P. R. 109.

Action by debtor, no bar to attachment.

Payment to debtor by cheque, effect of.

Death of Garnishee.—There was formerly at Law no power to order or permit a suggestion to be entered of the death of a garnishee, so as to get execution against his representative: Re Ward v. Vance, 3 P. R. 323; but that end possibly may now be attained under Rule 306.

Death of garnishee.

Death of Judgment Creditor.—An executor or administrator of a judgment creditor who has not made himself a party to a judgment cannot proceed under this Rule without making himself a party to the record: Baynard v. Simmonds, 5 E. & B. 59.

Assignment by Debtor, of Debt due by Garnishee.—A garnishing order can only charge what the judgment debtor can honestly deal with himself without affecting the interests of third persons: Re General Horticultural Co., 32 Ch. D. 512; Hancock v. Smith, 41 Ch. D. 456; see also Wood v. Jasdin, 18 Ont. App. 59; O'Connor v. Ireland, 1897, 2 Ir. Rep. 150. A debt, therefore, bona fide assigned, before service of the attaching order, is not bound by the order: Hirsch v. Coates, 18 C. B. 777; Wise v. Birkenhead, 29 L. J. Ex. 240; Graham v. Bourque, 6 O. L. R. 428, 700; even though the garnishee had no prior notice of the assignment: Pickering v. Hiramby Railway Co., L. R. 3 C. P. 235; Robinson v. Nesbitt, L. R. 3 C. P. 261; Brown v. McGuffin, 5 P. R. 231; Grant v. McDonnell, 39 U. C. Q. B. 412; Beuty v. Hackett, 14 P. R. 395; Parker v. McIlwain, 37 P. R. 84; Badeley v. Can. Bank, 38 Ch. D. 238; Davis v. Freethy, Assignment of the debt garnished.

Rule 911. 24 Q. B. D. 519; Graham v. Bourque, 6 O. L. R. 428, 700; and formerly, even though the assignment were attacked as a fraud on creditors; Type v. Brown, 13 Q. B. D. 199; O'Donoghue v. Hall, 24 S. C. R. 683; but this is no longer the case; see Rule 912; Edmunds v. Edmunds, 1904, 1 P. 362.

An attaching order though in form attaching "all debts due and owing or accruing due" by the garnishee to the judgment debtor, does not preclude an assignment by the debtor of any part of the debt attached not required for the satisfaction of the claim of the attaching creditor; thus, when, after an attaching order, the debtor assigns part of the debt attached and the assignee gives notice of the assignment to the garnishee, the assignee is entitled to priority over any subsequent attaching creditor; under such circumstances the garnishee cannot safely pay into Court more than sufficient to satisfy the first attaching creditor's claim without setting up the claim of the assignee; and if he does, and the second attaching creditor gets the surplus money out, the garnishee may have to pay it over again to the assignee; Yates v. Terry, 1902, 1 K. B. 527; 86 L. T. 133.

An equitable charge given before a garnishee order is obtained takes priority of the order even in the absence of notice of the charge; Badley v. Consolidated Bank, 34 Ch. D. 536; 38 Ch. D. 238.

An incomplete gift of a debt is no bar to its attachment; Davidson v. Cochrane, 34 C. L. J. 318.

Solicitor's
lien.

Solicitor's Lien.—An attachment of a judgment overrides a solicitor's lien or control over it in respect of general costs; Davidson v. Douglas, 15 Gr. 347; Reg. v. Benson, 2 P. R. 350; Bank of U. C. v. Wallace, 2 P. R. 352; Cotton v. Vansittart, 6 P. R. 96; Hough v. Edwards, 1 H. & N. 171; Burchell v. Pugin, 32 L. T. 495; but the special lien for costs of the action in which the debt attached has been recovered will be protected where the garnishee has notice of it; The Jeff Davies L. R. 2 A. & E. 1; The Leader, Ib., 314; Canadian Bank of Commerce v. Crouch, 8 P. R. 437; Shippey v. Grey, W. N. 1880, 99; 28 W. R. 877; Berneski v. Tourangeau, 18 P. R. 263; but the solicitor may by conduct waive his lien; Ib.

As to the effect of an attachment upon a solicitor's lien, see further Hough v. Edwards, 1 H. & N. 171; Eisdell v. Coningham, 28 L. J. Ex. 213; Sympton v. Prothero, 26 L. J. Chy. 671; Cole v. Elcy, 1894, 2 Q. B. 180.

Set-off by garnishee.

Set-off by Garnishee.—The Judge has no power to go into the state of the accounts between the garnishee and the judgment creditor, or to allow the former to deduct any amount due to him from the latter, but must order execution to issue for the whole amount due by the garnishee, or for so much thereof as may be sufficient to satisfy the debt due from the judgment debtor to the judgment creditor; Sampson v. Seaton & Beer Railway Co., L. R. 10 Q. B. 28. He may, however, go into the state of accounts between the judgment debtor and the garnishee, and give effect to any set-off or cross debt arising before (Ib., and see Nathan v. Giles, 5 Taunt. 558), but not after (Tapp v. Jones, L. R. 10 Q. B. 591), the service (see Rule 913), of the attaching order; but the garnishee cannot set off a counter-claim which he has against the judgment debtor; Stumm v. Campbell, 1892, 1 Q. B. 314; 66 L. T. 218.

A garnishee cannot set off against a judgment creditor a debt due to him (the garnishee) from the judgment debtor, if the garnishee was aware, from the commencement of the transaction which re- Rule 911.

sulted in his becoming indebted to the judgment debtor, that the latter's right to such debt would only be as trustee for the judgment creditor: Pitt v. Bryant, 1 Cal. & El. 194.

A garnishee can set off against a judgment creditor costs incurred by him, but not paid at the time the issue is directed, against which the judgment debtor is bound to indemnify the garnishee: Rynall v.
Waudsworth, Dist. Bd., 1 Cal. & El. 92.

In an action in the High Court where the amount claimed from the garnishee is within the jurisdiction of a County or Division Court, Where amount is within the jurisdiction of County or Division
Court.
the garnishee is to be directed to appear to shew cause before the County Court Judge of the County where he resides: Rule 917 (1).

For similar procedure in actions in a County Court, see Rule 918 (1).

The garnishee should not pay over without an order to do so, or he may also have to pay the judgment debtor: Clark v. Clark, 8 U. C.
L. J. 107; Turner v. Jones, 1 H. & N. 878; Plummer v. Caldwell, Ch.
Divisional Court, March, 1892.

The judgment debtor should be notified of the application for the Payment over.
order to the garnishee to pay over: Beatty v. Hackett, 14 P. R. 395; Ferguson v. Carman, 26 U. C. Q. B. 26.

Charging Stocks, etc.—See R. S. O. 1897, c. 324, s. 22.

Debentures are not stock within the statute: Sellers v. Bright, 1904, 2 K. B. 446. Charging stocks

Where under a will a judgment debtor was interested in a share of the estate payable after 6 years, and the trustees under the will had invested the fund in stock pending the arrival of the period of distribution, it was held that the debtor had an interest in the stock which might be charged: Bollard v. Young, 1904, 2 K. B. 824.

The Act does not apply to enable stock to be charged which does not stand in the name of the debtor or a trustee for him, though it be alleged that the stock has been fraudulently assigned: Caffrey v.
Phelps, 24 Gr. 344.

The Court has not jurisdiction on summary proceedings to order a sale of stock to enforce a charging order: Leggott v. Western, 12 Q. B. D. 287; Kolchmann v. Maurice, 1903, 1 K. B. 534; 88 L. T. 369.

ing payment of a judgment by reaching, by means of the assistance of the Court, property of the debtor which the Sheriff, by reason of the imperfection of the statutes or Rules respecting execution, is unable to deal with: see Kirk v. Burgess, 15 Ont. 608; Wills v. Luff, 18 Ch. D. 200; Re Shephard, Atkins v. Shephard, 43 Ch. D. 131; Re Craig & Leslie, 18 P. R. 270.

The principal mode of obtaining equitable execution is by the appointment of a receiver; and it has now, after some cases to the contrary (see Kirk v. Burgess, Re Pope, 17 Q. B. D. 749; Kincaid
v. Kincaid, 12 P. R. 462), been decided that, as in other cases where the auxiliary jurisdiction of Equity is invoked, the power to award equitable execution is only to be exercised, in general, where the legal remedy is ineffectual, and therefore a receiver was refused where an attaching order could be obtained: see Trust & Loan v.
Gardine, 12 P. R. 654; or a fi. fa. was sufficient: Manchester, etc.,
v. Parkinson, 22 Q. B. D. 173; Harris v. Beauchamp, 1844, 1 Q. B.
801; and see Tyrell v. Panton, 1895, 1 Q. B. 202; 71 L. T. 687.

Rule 911.

Before the Jud. Act, 1881, only a legal debt could be attached. By the Jud. Act and Rules the right to attach was extended, and where a judgment debtor had an equitable interest in personalty, if it assumed the shape of an equitable debt, this was held to be attachable; see Webb v. Stenton, 11 Q. B. D. 518; Stuart v. Grough, 15 Ont. App. 299; and other cases, supra, p. 1148. There still, however, remained cases where the Rules respecting attachment of debts would not apply, by reason of the judgment debtor not being entitled to a debt either legal or equitable, though he, nevertheless, was entitled to some valuable interest.

Receivers.

The mode in which such equitable interests were reached and made available was generally by the appointment of a receiver. Receivers have thus been appointed of a reversionary interest under a will: Fuggle v. Bland, 11 Q. B. D. 711; Tyrell v. Paine, supra; a legacy expectant on the death of a tenant for life: Macnicoll v. Parnell 35 W. R. 773; the income of a trust fund: Oliver v. Lowther, 28 W. R. 381; 42 L. T. 42; Webb v. Stenton, 11 Q. B. D. 518, 520; an interest in a subsisting life insurance, and in a charge upon land: Beamish v. Stevenson, 18 L. R. Ir. 319; moneys secured by mortgage held by the debtor, who resided abroad: Parent v. Lortie, 7 C. L. T. 195; the life interest of a married woman in stock: Bryant v. Bull, 10 Ch. D. 153; a fund in another Court: Westhead v. Riley, 25 Ch. D. 413; the interest of a debtor in a trust estate, being a share of the proceeds of the estate when sold by the trustees: Stuart v. Grough, supra; an annuity payable to the execution debtor under a contract to which he is not a party, but for which he has given consideration, and to the benefit of which he is entitled: Moot v. Gibson, 21 Ont. 248; a receiver by way of equitable execution may be appointed of a debt due by the Crown to the judgment debtor: Stewart v. Jones, 19 P. R. 227; but a sum payable merely by the bounty of the Crown cannot be so reached: S. C. 1 O. L. R. 34, and the Court refused to appoint a receiver by way of execution of weekly payments of salary falling due in futuro: Holmes v. Millage, 1893, 1 Q. B. 551; 68 L. T. 205; Central Bank v. Ellis, 20 Ont. App. 364; see also other cases referred to, supra, pp. 99 and 100.

The debtor's equity of redemption in chattels is saleable under execution: see R. S. O. c. 77, s. 17.

The proper form of equitable relief can only be granted where proper parties are before the Court, therefore after the death of the debtor it cannot be granted without first making parties those in whom his estate is vested: Re Shephard, 43 Ch. D. 131.

Where a receiver is appointed of a debtor's reversionary interest in property: Flegg v. Prentiss, 1892, 2 Ch. 428; or a future accruing fund, as for instance a policy on the life of a person still in esse: Weekes v. Frarley, 23 Ont. 235, that does not give the creditor a charge entitling him to realize it by sale; and where the estate of the debtor is a legal remainder it can only be sold by and under the usual process of execution; there is no jurisdiction to order a sale of it merely because a receiver of it has been appointed by way of equitable execution: Re Harrison and Bottomley, 1899, 1 Ch. 465; 80 L. T. 29; the appointment of a receiver does not create a charge on the land: Ib., and see Thomson v. Cushing, 30 Ont. 123, 388.

Where the trustees of a will are in their absolute discretion authorized to make payments out of the income of the estate of the testator to a judgment debtor, that is not an interest which can be reached by equitable execution: see Re McInnes v. McInnes, 30 Ont. 38.
