Page lii has been incorrectly numbered page iil. Copy has manuscript annotations. Pages wholly or partially obscured by errata slips, tissues, etc., has been refilmed to ensure the best possible image. Some pages may film slightly out of focus.

The copy filmed here has been reproduced thanks to the generosity of:

University of Toronto
Bora Laskin Law Library

The images appearing here are the best quality possible considering the condition and legibility of the original copy and in keeping with the filming contract specifications.

Original copies in printed paper covers are filmed beginning with the front cover and ending on the last page with a printed or illustrated impression, or the back cover when appropriate. All other original copies are filmed beginning on the first page with a printed or illustrated impression, and ending on the last page with a printed or illustrated impression.

The last recorded frame on each microfiche sheet contains the symbol $\rightarrow$ (meaning "CONTINUED"), or the symbol ∇ (meaning "END"), whichever applies.

Maps, plates, charts, etc., may be filmed at different reduction ratios. Those too large to be entirely included in one exposure are filmed beginning in the upper left hand corner, left to right and top to bottom, as many frames as required. The following diagrams illustrate the method:

L'exemplaire filmé fut reproduit grâce à la générosité de:

University of Toronto

Les images suivantes ont été reproduites avec le plus grand soin, compte tenu de la condition et de la netteté de l'exemplaire filmé, et en conformité avec les conditions du contrat de filmage.

Les exemplaires originaux dont la couverture en papier est imprimée sont filmés en commençant par le premier plat et en terminant soit par la dernière page qui comporte une empreinte d'impression ou d'illustration, soit par la seconde plat, selon le cas. Tous les autres exemplaires originaux sont filmés en commençant par la première page qui comporte une empreinte d'impression ou d'illustration et en terminant par la dernière page qui comporte une telle empreinte.

Un des symboles suivants apparaîtra sur la dernière image de chaque microfiche, selon le cas: le symbole $\rightarrow$ signifie "À SUIVRE", le symbole ∇ signifie "FIN".

Les cartes, planches, tableaux, etc., peuvent être filmés à des taux de réduction différents. Lorsque le document est trop grand pour être reproduit en un seul cliché, il est filmé à partir de l'angle supérieur gauche, de gauche à droite, et de haut en bas, en prenant le nombre d'images nécessaire. Les diagrammes suivants illustrent la méthode.

PREFACE.

In the present edition of the Judicature Act and Rules the Editors have attempted, though they feel with only partial success, to reduce the size of the volume. To attain this object, some matter printed in the last edition has been omitted. The principal omissions are the following:

(1) The Tables showing where the former Rules and Orders had been inserted in the Consolidated Rules. These are not of much practical importance to the present generation of practitioners.

(2) The Forms contained in the Appendix to the Consolidated Rules. All these have been inserted in appropriate places in the volume of forms and precedents recently published by the editors.

(3) The tariffs of costs and fees and disbursements. The publishers propose to include these in the copies hereafter issued of the Editors' Volume of Forms and Precedents, and, on application, to furnish them to those who already have the volume, as a supplement thereto.

(4) Many passages in the last edition of merely historical interest; such as notes explaining the legislative history of Rules.

It has been found necessary, however, to add a very considerable quantity of new matter.

If the book were to be strictly confined to matters of procedure its size might be further reduced, but this would, as the Editors believe, be at the cost of utility. In this, as in former editions, beside the cases dealing with practice, many others are collected dealing with the principles on which relief is granted,—which, in view of the scarcity of Canadian text books, will doubtless prove in the future, as it has in the past, a great convenience to the general practitioner.

Owing to the rapidity with which the work has been passed through the press, cases decided almost up to the date of publication will be found cited.

The Tables (pp. xiii to xx) showing the English Rules of 1883, and Rules in force in Nova Scotia, British Columbia and Manitoba, corresponding with the Ontario Rules, have, as in the last edition, been kindly prepared for the Editors by Mr. A. Bedford-Jones, Barrister-at-law.

HER MAJESTY, by and with the advice and consent of the Legislative Assembly of the Province of Ontario, enacts as follows:—

TITLE.

Short title. 1. This Act may be cited as "The Judicature Act." 3s
V. c. 12. s. 1.

INTERPRETATION.

Interpre-
terms.

2. Where the words following occur in this Act and in the Rules made thereunder, they shall be construed in the manner hereinafter mentioned unless a contrary intention appears.

1. "Rules of Court" shall include forms.

2. "Cause" shall include any action, suit, or other original proceeding between a plaintiff and a defendant.

3. "Action" shall include suit, and shall mean a civil proceeding commenced by writ, or in such other manner as may be prescribed by Rules of Court.

An interpleader matter comes within the above definition of "action": see Rule 6 (e).

"Action" may include a petition: see Re Atkin's Estate, 1 Ch. D. 82; Finnay v. Hinde, 4 Q. B. D. 102; Re Dynevor & Duffryn Collieries, W. N. 1878, 199; and in England includes proceedings by originating summons; Re Fawcitt, 30 Ch. D. 231; and, in Ontario, proceedings commenced by notice of motion under Rules 938, 944, 950, 956; or by petition under Rule 962.

4. "Matter" shall include every proceeding in the Court not in a cause.

5. "Plaintiff" shall include every person asking any relief (otherwise than by way of counterclaim as a defendant), against any other person by any form of proceeding, whether the same be taken by action, suit, petition, motion, summons, or otherwise.

6. "Petitioner" shall include every person making any application to the Court, either by petition, motion or summons, otherwise than as against any defendant.

7. "Defendant" shall include every person served with any writ of summons or process, or served with notice of or entitled to attend any proceeding.

"Defendant" does not include a third party served with notice under Rule 209: Eden v. Weardale, 28 Ch. D. 333, 339; but by an order made under Rule 213 he may be placed in the same position as a defendant: Eden v. Weardale, 35 Ch. D. 287.

8. "Party" shall include every person served with notice Sec 3. of or attending any proceeding, although not named on the record.

9. "Pleading" shall include any petition or summons, and shall also include the statement in writing of the claim or demand of any plaintiff, and of the defence of any defendant thereto, and of the reply of the plaintiff to any counter-claim of a defendant.

"Summons" in the corresponding English section 100 does not mean a writ of summons: Murray v. Stephenson, 19 Q. B. D. 60.

10. "Judgment" shall include decree and a decretal order.

11. "Order" shall include rule.

As to the difference between a judgment and an order: see Ex p. Chinnery, 12 Q. B. D. 342; Re Schmitz, Ib. 509; Onslow v. Com. of Inland Revenue, 25 Q. B. D. 465.

12. "Oath" shall include solemn affirmation and statutory declaration.

13. "Proper officer" shall, unless and until any Rule to the contrary is made, mean an officer to be ascertained as follows:—

(a) Where any duty to be discharged under this Act or under Rules of Court is a duty which has been discharged by any officer, such officer shall continue to be the proper officer to discharge the same, until otherwise provided by Rule. 58 V. c. 12, s. 2 (1—13a).

(b) Where any new duty is, under the Rules afore-said, to be discharged, the proper officer to discharge the same shall be such officer as may be named in the Rules, or in case no officer is so named, then such officer as may from time to time be directed to discharge the same by the President of the High Court. 59 V. c. 18, Sched. (1); 60 V. c. 3, s. 3.

It may be observed that all the foregoing definitions are, with perhaps the exception of numbers 3 and 13, merely inclusive, and not exhaustive.

CONSTITUTION OF THE SUPREME COURT OF JUDICATURE FOR ONTARIO.

3.—(1) The Supreme Court of Judicature for Ontario at present existing is hereby continued, and all commissions, rules, orders and regulations granted or made, in, by, or ^{Supreme Court of Judicature continued.}

respecting the former Court of Queen's Bench for Ontario, the Court of Chancery for Ontario, and the Court of Common Pleas for Ontario, or the Supreme Court of Judicature, the Court of Appeal, and the High Court of Justice, or the Judges or officers thereof now existing and in force shall remain in force until altered or rescinded or otherwise determined.

The Jud. Act has not fused the two systems of Law and Equity, but has transferred each of these two jurisdictions to one Court which administers both systems: per Chitty, J., in Emmerson v. Ind., 34 W. R. 636; 54 L. T. 757; 33 Ch. D. 327; see 12 App. Cas. 300.

The Supreme Court does not sit as a Court unless it be to make General Rules and Orders: sec. 122, sub-s. 1, and it has been said that it might be more properly called the Supreme Council of Judicature. Reg. v. Bunting, 7 Ont. 118. The Judges of the Supreme Court are also to hold a Council once a year to consider the Procedure and Administration of the Law, and to report thereon: sec. 127. The Master in Ordinary, the Master in Chambers, and the Accountant of the Supreme Court, and Local Masters, and the Taxing Officers, are declared to be Officers of the Supreme Court and attached thereto: sec. 131 (2); by order in Council of 22nd May, 1880, the Masters are also made officers of the High Court. All the Judges, and their successors, are Judges of the Supreme Court, thus marking the uniformity which is aimed at in the administration of justice, and the abolition of all distinction between Courts administering Law, and Courts administering Equity. The Appeal Judges are made competent to do any work which ordinarily is discharged by the Judges of the High Court, and the Judges of the High Court are to act, when needed, in the Court of Appeal: secs. 4, 10.

All of the Judges of the Supreme Court of Judicature are required to reside in Toronto, or within five miles thereof: 60-61 Vict. c. 34 (D).

(2) The Supreme Court shall continue to consist of two permanent Divisions, to be called The High Court of Justice for Ontario, and The Court of Appeal for Ontario.

(3) The High Court of Justice for Ontario shall hereafter consist of four Divisions, to be called The King's Bench Division, The Chancery Division, The Common Pleas Division and The Exchequer Division of the High Court.

(4) The King's Bench Division shall during the reign of a Queen, be called The Queen's Bench Division, and during the reign of a King, The King's Bench Division.

The Divisions of the High Court are not themselves Courts, but together constitute the High Court which is thus divided for convenience in transacting business: Reg. v. Bunting, 7 Ont. 118. See also Reg. v. Dudley, 33 W. R. 348; Serrao v. Nord, 15 Q. B. D. 557-8.

(5) The persons hereafter appointed to fill the places of the Chief Justice of the [King's] Bench, the Chancellor of Ontario, the Chief Justice of the Common Pleas, and the respectively, are to be appointed by the authority mentioned in The British North America Act, and with the same re- Imp. Act, 30

spective titles as heretofore. V. c. 3.

By the B. N. A. Act, section 96, it is provided that "the Governor-General shall appoint the Judges of the Superior, District and County Courts in each Province, except those of the Courts of Probate in Nova Scotia and New Brunswick."

(6) The persons to be appointed Judges of the High Court shall be Barristers-at-Law of at least ten years' standing at the bar of Ontario.

(7) Save as in this Act is otherwise expressly provided, all the Judges hereinbefore mentioned, and their successors, shall have in all respects equal power, authority and jurisdiction.

See in England by Jud. Act, 1873, sec. 5.

(8) The Chief Justice of the [King's] Bench shall be the President of the [King's] Bench Division, the Chancellor shall be the President of the Chancery Division, the Chief Justice of the Common Pleas shall be the President of the Common Pleas Division, and the Chief Justice of the Exchequer Division shall be the President of the Exchequer Division.

See Eng. Jud. Act, 1873, sec. 31.

(9) Besides the Chief Justice of the [King's] Bench, two Justices of the High Court shall be attached to the [King's] Bench Division; besides the Chancellor of Ontario, two Justices of the High Court shall be attached to the Chancery Division; besides the Chief Justice of the Common Pleas, two Justices of the High Court shall be attached to the Common Pleas Division; and besides the Chief Justice of the Exchequer Division, two Justices of the High Court shall be attached to the Exchequer Division.

(10) The President of the said High Court shall be that one of the Presidents of the King's Bench, Chancery, Common Pleas or Exchequer Divisions who, for the time being, is first in order of seniority; and in case of the absence or illness of the President of the High Court, any duty which he is required to perform under any statute or any Rule of Court may be performed by the President of any Division.

(11) Upon a vacancy happening among the Judges, the Judge appointed to fill the vacancy is (subject to the provisions of this Act, and to any Rules of Court which may be Secs. 5-8. made pursuant thereto) to become and be a member of the same Division to which the Judge whose place has become vacant belonged.

(12) Nothing in this Act shall prevent, or shall be construed as intended to prevent the transfer of any Judge of any of the said Divisions from one to another of the said Divisions. 58 V. c. 12, s. 3; 2 Ed. vii. c. 12, s. 7; 3 Ed. vii. c. 8, s. 1.

(Section 4 was repealed by 3 Ed. vii. c. 8, s. 2.)

Judgment of Judge who resigns
heard.

5. Where a Judge resigns his office, and any case which has been fully heard by such Judge, either alone or jointly with other Judges, stands for judgment, he may give judgment therein as if he were still a Judge of the Court; and any such judgment shall be of the same force and validity as if he were still such Judge, provided that such judgment of the Judge be delivered within six weeks after his resignation. 58 V. c. 12, s. 5.

Judge.

Where a Judge dies after the trial of an action, but before giving judgment, there is no power to direct that the action be set down for hearing before a Divisional Court on the evidence already taken, except by consent of parties, but the case must go to trial again: Clarke v. Trask, 1 O. L. R. 207. See s. 19 as to death of Judges of Appeal.

Existing Court of
continued.

6. The Court of Appeal for Ontario at present existing is continued under that name, and shall consist of a Chief Justice, to be called the Chief Justice of Ontario, and four other Judges to be called Justices of Appeal, and the Judges of the High Court shall be ex officio Judges of the Court of Appeal, so as to provide for the cases mentioned in sections 12, 13 and 14 of this Act. 58 V. c. 12, s. 6; 60 V. c. 13, s. 1.

Appeal.

7. The Chief Justice of Ontario and the Justices of Appeal may be selected from the Judges for the time being, or the retired Judges of the High Court, or from such barristers as are eligible to be appointed Judges of that Court. 58 V. c. 12, s. 7.

See supra, s. 3 (6).

Precedence
of Judges.

8.—(1) The Chief Justice of Ontario shall have rank and precedence over all other Judges of the Courts in Ontario.

(2) The Justices of Appeal, the Chief Justice of the [King's] Bench, the Chancellor of Ontario, the Chief Justice of the Common Pleas, and the Chief Justice of the Exchequer Division, shall have rank and precedence among themselves according to their seniority of appointment to any of the said offices.

(3) The other Judges of the High Court shall have rank and precedence among themselves according to seniority of appointment to their respective offices. 58 V. c. 12, s. 8; 3 Ed. vii. c. 8, s. 3. secs. 9-11.

9. The Chief Justice of Ontario and the Justices of Appeal may, in addition to their duties as Judges of the Court of Appeal, preside over Courts of Assize and Nisi Prius, Oyer and Terminer and General Gaol Delivery, and hold sittings of the High Court of Justice, for the trial of civil causes, matters and issues, and criminal matters or proceedings; and every such Justice in the exercise of such duties shall have the same rights, powers and privileges as a Judge of the High Court presiding at such Court or Sittings. 58 V. c. 12, s. 9. The Justices of the Court of Appeal may hold Assizes, etc.

10. Upon the request of the Judge or Judges with or for whom he is requested to sit or act, it shall be lawful for any Judge of the Court of Appeal, or any retired Judge of the said Court, or of the High Court, who may consent so to do, to sit and act as a Judge of the said High Court, or to perform any other official or ministerial acts for or on behalf of any Judge absent from illness or any other cause, or in the place of any Judge whose office has become vacant, or as an additional Judge of any Division; and while so sitting and acting, any such Judge of the Court of Appeal or retired Judge shall have all the power and authority of a Judge of the said High Court. 58 V. c. 12, s. 10. Provision for absence or vacancy in office of a Judge.

See Eng. Jud. Act, 1873, sec. 51.

As to the authority of the Judges referred to, to hold Courts of Assize, etc., see sec. 188.

APPEALS.

11. — (1) Subject to sections 18 and 19.

Quorum of Court of Appeal.

(a) Appeals from decisions of a Divisional Court and appeals now required to be so heard and disposed of, shall be heard and disposed of by the full Court of five Judges.

(b) Other appeals may be heard and disposed of by not less than three Judges.

(2) Where an appeal comes before a Court of less than five Judges, the Court, instead of hearing such appeal, or giving judgment thereon, may direct the case to be heard or re-argued, as the case may be, before the full Court. 4 Ed. vii. c. 11, s. 1. Reargument before full Court.

Secs. 12, 13.

Divisional Courts of
Appeal.

12.—(1) In case from pressure of business, or other cause, it shall at any time seem expedient to the Lieutenant-Governor in Council, or to the Judges of the Court of Appeal or to the Judges of the Supreme Court, or a majority of them (of which majority two Judges of the Court of Appeal, including the Chief Justice, unless absent on leave, shall form part), the Court of Appeal may sit in two Divisions either at the same time or at different times; and to enable two Divisional Courts of the Court of Appeal to be held, the Judges of the Supreme Court or the said majority of them, shall select from the Judges of the High Court as many of the Judges thereof as may be necessary to form, with the Justices of Appeal, two such Divisional Courts; and every Judge so chosen shall, while sitting in a Divisional Court of the Court of Appeal, have and may exercise all the powers and authority of a Justice of Appeal. Such selection shall be made on or before the Saturday before the commencement of the Long Vacation in each year, and if not then made such selection may be made at any time afterwards at a meeting duly called for the purpose, and any selection which shall be made may be varied or rescinded from time to time, and a new selection made as occasion may require.

(2) At least two of the Justices of the Court of Appeal shall sit in such Divisional Court. 60 V. c. 13, s. 4; 3 Ed. vii. c. 8, s. 5.

Quorum may be made up by the Judges of the High Court.

13. In case of there being a vacancy in the Court of Appeal or in case from illness or some other cause, any of the Judges of the said Court are not present at some sitting of the Court, or in case any of the said Judges are under some legal disqualification to hear an appeal, the Judges of the High Court shall choose from amongst their number as many Judges as are necessary, to form a quorum; and the Judges so chosen and acting shall have authority to continue to hear appeals partly heard, and to give judgment in all appeals heard before them, notwithstanding that such vacancy may in the meantime have been filled up, or that the Judge who was absent may have resumed his duties. 58 V. c. 12, s. 13; 60 V. c. 13, s. 5.

One cause of disqualification is given in section 17. As to other causes; see Boulton v. Church Society, 15 Gr. 450; Dimes v. Grand Junction, 3 H. L. C. 759. "The law looks with such distrust upon an interested Judge that, whatever may be the amount of interest, the fact is enough to disqualify all his judicial acts"; per Field, J., Ex p. Dale, 43 L. T. 542; in case of necessity an interested Judge may sit for the purpose of enabling a quorum of the Court to give judgment; see Boulton v. Church Society, supra; and see further as to JURISDICTION OF HIGH COURT.

25 The High Court shall be a Superior Court of Record of original jurisdiction, and shall, subject as in this Act mentioned, possess all such powers and authorities, as by the law of England, are incident to a Superior Court of civil and criminal jurisdiction; and shall have, use and exercise all the rights, incidents and privileges of a Court of Record, and all other rights, incidents and privileges as fully to all intents and purposes as the same were on the 5th day of December, 1859, used, exercised and enjoyed by any of Her Majesty's Superior Courts of Common Law at Westminster in England, and may and shall hold plea in all and all manner of actions and causes as well criminal as civil, and may and shall proceed in such actions and causes by such process and course as are provided by law, and as shall tend with justice and despatch to determine the same; and may and shall hear and determine all issues of law, and may and shall also hear and (with or without a jury, as provided by law) determine all issues of fact that may be joined in any such action or cause, and judgment thereon give, and execution thereof award in as full and ample a manner as might, at the said date, be done in Her Majesty's Courts of Queen's Bench, Common Bench, or, in matters which regard the Queen's revenue (including the condemnation of contraband or smuggled goods), by the Court of Exchequer in England. 58 V. c. 12, s. 21.

Jurisdiction of High
Court.

All that was done by the Jud. Act, 1881, was to give the High Court all the jurisdiction which the Court of Chancery or the Courts of Common Law had before. It conferred no new right to relief. An action to enforce a charge where the value of the subject matter was under £100 could not have been entertained by any of those Courts before the Jud. Act, and therefore cannot now be maintained Westbury v. Meredith, 30 Ch. D. 387; see Gilbert v. Braithwaite, ? Chy. Clk. 413; Westbrooke v. Browett, 17 Gr. 339; Reynolds v. Cop, 19 Gr. 627; Harding v. Cardiff, 29 Gr. 308; Allen v. Lyon, 5 Out. 615; Shaw v. Freedy, 8 C. L. J. 135. Where, however, an action is brought to recover an annuity, or other periodical payment, although the amount actually in arrear when the action is commenced be less than £10, it may nevertheless be entertained, inasmuch as such an 1881.

Effect of
Jud. Act,

Sec. 25. action is brought to recover not only the arrears but also the growing payments: see Story's Eq. Plg. (8th Ed.), s. 500; and where a substantial right is in question, the Court has jurisdiction, and will entertain the action, even though the pecuniary amount involved is trifling: see Clarry v. G. T. Ry., 29 Ont. 18; Clarke v. Creighton, 14 P. R. 100.

Mandamus In England it has been held that the prerogative writ of mandamus is still only granted on application to the K. B. D.; Glossop v. Heston Local Board, 12 Ch. D. 115, 116, 122. In Ontario, however, it is different: see notes to section 58 (9).

Actions relating to land out of Ontario. The High Court has no jurisdiction to entertain an action against a defendant resident within its territorial jurisdiction for damages for trespass to land situate out of the territorial jurisdiction of the Court: Companhia de Mocambique v. The British South Africa Co., 1893, A. C. 602; 69 L. T. 604; Brereton v. C. P. Ry., 29 Ont. 57. See The Black Point Syndicate Ltd. v. Eastern Concession, Ltd., 1898, 79 L. T. 658. Nor will it entertain an action against a defendant within its jurisdiction, to set aside an alleged fraudulent conveyance of land without the jurisdiction: Burns v. Davidson, 21 Ont. 547; nor for redemption: Henderson v. Bank of Hamilton, 20 Ont. App. 64; 23 S. C. R. 716; nor for a declaration that a deed of lands out of the jurisdiction is in reality a mortgage, and for redemption: Gunn v. Harper, 2 O. L. R. 611; nor to enforce a lien on lands out of the jurisdiction by a judgment for sale, or recovery of possession: Great North Western Ry. v. Charlebois, 1899, A. C. 114; 79 L. T. 37; but see Duder v. Amsterdamsch, infra; nor by a mortgagee for sale: Strange v. Radford, 15 Ont. 145; nor to determine the title: Ross v. Ross, 23 Ont. 43, of lands out of the jurisdiction. But it would seem that an action for foreclosure of the equity of redemption in land out of the jurisdiction may be entertained: Paget v. Ede, 18 Eq. 118; and see Re Robertson R. v. R., 22 Gr. 449; Bryson v. Huntington, 25 Gr. 265.

Specific performance was decreed of a contract to exchange land in the United States for land in Ontario, the plaintiff being the owner of the land in U. S., and submitting to the jurisdiction of the Court of Ontario by suing in it: Montgomery v. Ruppensburg, 31 Ont. 433; and a receiver was appointed of the rents and profits of land out of the jurisdiction on which plaintiff claimed to have an equitable charge: Duder v. Amsterdamsch, 1902, 2 Ch. 132; 87 L. T. 22.

Where a plaintiff is entitled to sue a defendant within Ontario to set aside an agreement, the fact that there are lands included in the agreement which are out of the jurisdiction will not prevent the Court from exercising jurisdiction: see Hackney v. Colonial Investment Co., 4 O. L. R. 571.

Foreign sovereign. The Court will not exercise jurisdiction against a defendant who is a foreign sovereign and refuses to submit to its jurisdiction: Mighell v. Sultan of Johore, 1894, 1 Q. B. 149; 70 L. T. 64; nor over a foreign ambassador: see Musurus Bey v. Gadbau, 1894, 2 Q. B. 352; 71 L. T. 51.

Criminal Jurisdiction.—By the B. N. A. Act, s. 91, s.s. 27. "The criminal law, except the constitution of Courts of criminal jurisdiction, but including the procedure in criminal matters," is within the exclusive legislative power of the Dominion Parliament; and by s. 93, s.s. 14, "the administration of justice in the Province, including the constitution, maintenance, and organization of Provincial Courts, both of civil and criminal jurisdiction, and including procedure in civil matters in the Courts," is within the legislative control of the Provincial Legislatures. This division of legislative powers in regard to criminal Courts for a short time occasioned some difficulty in determining the precise effect of the Judicature Act upon the criminal jurisdiction of the High Court and its various Divisions.

Now the High Court is a "Superior Court of Criminal jurisdiction" within the meaning of the Code, and the Court of Appeal for Ontario is the "Court of Appeal" under the Crim. Code: see section 3 (c) and (y) as amended by 63-4 V. c. 46 (D.).

What branch or composition of the High Court had power to enter motions to quash convictions was at one time doubtful: see H. & L. 2nd ed., p. 14. Now such motions are to be brought before a Divisional Court: Rule 117 as amended by Rule 1239. Quashing convictions.

By section 533 of the Criminal Code, as amended by 63-4 V. c. 46 (D.), "the Supreme Court of Judicature" is in Ontario empowered to make rules for the regulation of the sittings of the Courts and the pleading, practice, and procedure, in the Court, including the subjects of mandamus, certiorari, habeas corpus, prohibition, quo warranto, and the stating of cases by Justices under sec. 900 of the Code. In pursuance of this power, Rules 1238-1241 may have been passed.

The Rule of the High Court of 17th November, 1886, relating to security on motions to quash convictions, passed under the authority of 49 V. c. 49, s. 6 (D.), (see now Crim. Code, s. 892), and printed under the schedule of repealed Rules, is also still in force: Reg. v. Robinet, 16 P. R. 49, and has been made applicable to convictions under Provincial Statutes: see 1 Ed. vii. c. 13, ss. 3, 4.

Proceedings to collect a debt due to the Crown under an estreated recognizance of bail, taken in a criminal case, are civil and not criminal proceedings, and are regulated by R. S. O. c. 106; Re Talbot's Bail, 23 Out. 65; Rastall v. Attorney-General, 18 Gr. 138. Estreating bail.

26. The High Court shall also, subject as in this Act mentioned, have the like jurisdiction and powers as by the laws of England were on the 4th day of March, 1837, possessed by the Court of Chancery in England, in respect of the matters hereinafter enumerated, that is to say: Equitable jurisdiction.

1. In all cases of fraud and accident;
2. In all matters relating to trusts, executors and administrators, co-partnership and account, mortgages, awards, dower, infants, idiots, lunatics and their estates;
3. To stay waste;
4. To compel the specific performance of agreements;
5. To compel the discovery of concealed papers or evidence, or such as may be wrongfully withheld from the party claiming the benefit of the same;
6. To prevent multiplicity of suits;
7. To decree the issue of Letters Patent from the Crown to rightful claimants;

Sec. 26.

8. To repeal and avoid Letters Patent issued erroneously or by mistake, or improvidently, or through fraud. 58 V. c. 12, s. 22.

Fraud.

Fraud and Accident.—Fraud. The jurisdiction by this section vested in the High Court, in respect of fraud, is confined to fraud arising in reference to civil rights. A distinction has been attempted to be drawn between acts which are illegal but which are not accompanied by any moral turpitude, and acts which are both illegal and are the result of moral delinquency. The former class of acts have been termed "legal fraud"; see Peck v. Derry, 37 Ch. D. 541, and the latter "moral fraud," or "actual fraud," but it has been denied that any such distinction exists, and that in all cases where "fraud" is charged it must be supported by proof of moral turpitude: Jolliffe v. Baker, 11 Q. B. D. 255; 48 L. T. 966; Weir v. Barnett, 3 Ex. D. 238, 243, per Bramwell, J.; and see In re Watson, 21 Q. B. D. 301; Peck v. Derry, 14 App. Cas. 337; Glacier v. Rose, 42 Ch. D. 436. The House of Lords in Peck v. Derry, 14 App. Cas. 337; 61 L. T. 265, has held that in an action of deceit the plaintiff must prove actual fraud, and such fraud is proved when it is shown that a false representation has been made knowingly or without belief in its truth, or recklessly, without caring whether it be true or false. A false statement made through carelessness, and with reasonable ground for believing it to be true, may be evidence of fraud, but does not necessarily amount to fraud; such a statement, if made in the honest belief that it is true, does not render the person making it liable in an action for deceit: Tomkinson v. Balkis & Co., 1891, 2 Q. B. 614; Angus v. Clifford, 1891, 2 Ch. 449; Knor v. Hayman, 67 L. T. 137; Le Licore v. Gould, 68 L. T. 626. But misrepresentations upon an application for life insurance found to be material will make void the policy, notwithstanding that they may have been made in good faith and in conscientious belief that they were true: Jordan v. Provincial Provident Institution, 28 S. C. R. 554.

The law as laid down in Peck v. Derry, supra, as regards false statements made by the directors of joint stock companies in prospectuses issued by them, is very materially modified by statute: see R. S. O. cc. 216, 217, and see Angus v. Clifford, 1891, 2 Ch. 449.

Where fraud is alleged in any proceeding, the facts must be set out in the statement of claim or petition, as the case may be, which are alleged to amount to fraud, mere general allegations that fraud has been committed are insufficient: Re Rica Gold Mining Co., 11 Ch. D. 36, per Jessel, M. R.

As to the effect on costs, of unsuccessfully charging fraud: see notes to Rule 1130, "Discretion of Court or Judge."

Accident.

Accident.—By the term accident is intended not merely casualty, or the act of Providence, or what is technically called vis major, or irresistible force, but such unforeseen events, misfortunes, losses, acts, or omissions as are not the result of any negligence or misconduct of the party seeking relief in respect thereof: Story, s. 78. One of the most common instances in which relief is sought under this head is in the case of lost bonds, or other instruments under seal. In such a case relief is usually granted on the terms of the plaintiff giving a bond of indemnity to the defendants: McDonald v. Hime, 15 Gr. 72; but see Macaulay v. Boyle, 25 C. P. 339; and where a suit was brought to recover promissory notes alleged to be lost after maturity, and the defendant allowed the bill to go pro confesso, indemnity was dispensed with: Abell v. Morrison, 23 Gr. 109. A will lost or destroyed may be established on parol evidence of its contents, and proof of due execution: Sugden v. St. Leonards, 1 P. D. 154; Carroll v. Carroll, 34 C. L. J. 415; Stewart v. Walker, 6 O. L. R. 495. The jurisdiction of the Court also extends to giving relief in respect of instruments which have been destroyed: Frontenac v. Briden, 17 Gr. 645.

Under this head of jurisdiction the Court may also grant relief in the case of a defective execution of a power resulting from accident or mistake, or both, and also in regard to agreements to execute powers, which may generally be deemed a species of defective execution: see Sugd. on Pow. 549. But this relief is only granted to persons having some moral right, and where there are no opposing equities. Thus, such relief may be granted in favour of a purchaser: Pothergill v. Pothergill, 2 Freem. 256; under which term a mortgagee, or lessee, is included: Barker v. Hill, 2 Chy. R. 113; Reid v. Shergold, 10 Ves. 370; to a creditor: Pollard v. Greenvil, 1 Chy. Ca. 10; Wilkes v. Holmes, 9 Mod. 485; to a wife: Cowp. 267; Clifford v. Burlington, 2 Vern. 379; to a legitimate child: Sarth v. Blanfrey, Gilh. Eq. R. 166; Sneed v. Sneed, Amb. 64; and to a charity: Innes v. Sayer, 7 Ha. 377; 3 Mac. & G. 606; Attorney-General v. Sibthorp, 2 R. & M. 107; but not in favour of the donee of the power, nor a husband: Watt v. Watt, 3 Ves. 244; nor an illegitimate child: Tudor v. Ineson, 2 Ves. Sr. 582; nor a grandchild: Watt v. Bullas, 1 P. Wms. 60; nor of remote relations, or volunteers: Smith v. Ashton, 1 Freem. 308.

Under this head of jurisdiction, personal representatives who have by mistake overpaid creditors, or legatees, beyond the amount they are justly entitled to receive, may recover the overpayment: Edwards v. Freeman, 2 P. Wms. 447; Hawkins v. Day, Amb. 160; Story s. 90. See also Uffner v. Lewis, 5 O. L. R. 684; Re Horne, 1905, 1 Ch. 76.

But relief cannot be given from the consequences of a positive contract: thus, a lessee cannot get relief from payment of rent because of the destruction of the demised premises by accident: Pym v. Blackburn, 3 Ves. 34, 38; Story, s. 101; nor can relief be given on the ground of accident to a party whose own gross negligence or fault has caused the accident: Ex p. Greenway, 6 Ves. 812; nor can a lessee be relieved from a forfeiture for breach of a covenant not to assign or sub-let, because he has acted in forgetfulness of his covenant: Borrow v. Isaacs, 1891, 1 Q. B. 417; Eastern Telegraph Co. v. Dent, 1899, 1 Q. B. 835; 78 L. T. 713; 80 L. T. 459.

Mistake.—The cases in which contracts may be set aside for mistake are usually those in which, either there has been mutual mistake or ignorance in both parties affecting the essence of the contract, or a fact is known to one and unknown to the other, and there is some fraud or surprise upon the ignorant parties: see Beauchamp v. Winn, L. R. 6 H. L. 223, at p. 233; but although as a rule the mistake must be mutual in order to afford a ground for equitable relief, yet even a unilateral mistake which has been induced by the opposite party may be a ground for setting aside a contract: see Hilding v. Sanderson, 1897, 2 Ch. 524.

Trusts.—The jurisdiction in respect of trusts was formerly a part of the exclusive jurisdiction of the Court of Chancery. By the Statute of Frauds (29 Car. 2, c. 3; see now R. S. O. 1897, c. 338, s. 6), all declarations or creations of trust or confidences, of any

Sec. 26. lands, tenements or hereditaments, shall be manifested and proved by some writing signed by the party who is by law enabled to declare such trusts, or by his last will in writing; and by sec. 8, all grants and assignments of any trust or confidence shall likewise be in writing, signed by the party granting or assigning the same, or by his last will. Section 7 makes two exceptions from the statute: (1) trusts arising or resulting from any conveyance of lands or tenements, by implication, or construction of law; (2) trusts transferred or extinguished by act or operation of law. Trusts of chattels real must be evidenced by writing: Forster v. Hale, 3 Ves. 695; Riddle v. Emerson, 1 Vern. 108, but not trusts of chattels personal: He Phadden v. Jenkins, 1 Ph. 153; Benbow v. Townsend, 1 My. & K. 506.

A trust of land in a foreign country may be enforced by the High Court where the trustee is resident within its jurisdiction: Smith v. Henderson, 17 Gr. 6; Rocheffoucauld v. Boustead, 1897, 1 Ch. 196; and see Re Robertson, Robertson v. Robertson, 22 Gr. 449. See also Ross v. Ross, 23 Ont. 43, and other cases cited supra, p. 12.

The Court has jurisdiction under The Trustee Relief Act (R. S. O. 1897, c. 336, to appoint new trustees upon a summary application: see sec. 21 of the Act, and Re Hellierell, 21 Gr. 346; Re Dillon, 3 C. L. J. 126.

The Court is authorized to allow trustees under any deed, settlement or will, compensation for their services: R. S. O. c. 129, s. 40.

Executors
istrators.

Executors and Administrators.—The jurisdiction of the Court over personal representatives authorizes it to entertain actions or proceedings to compel them to account for their administration: see Rules 944, et seq., to fix the compensation to be paid them for their services: R. S. O. c. 129, s. 40; to control their management of the estate of their testator, or intestate, and if necessary to restrain them from exercising their office, and to appoint a receiver or other person to act in their stead: Harrold v. Wallis, 9 Gr. 443; Re Moore, McAlpin v. Moore, 21 Ch. D. 778; Re Morphy, before Boyd, C., 9 April, 1887; Johnson v. McKenzie, 20 Ont. 131; and an injunction may be granted at the instance of an executor against his co-executor, to restrain him from intermeddling with the estate before probate: In re Moore, Ker v. Moore, 13 P. D. 36; 58 L. T. 386; without appointing a receiver: Bourn v. Phillips, 1897, 1 Ch. 174; 75 L. T. 629.

An executor may now be removed on the same grounds as the Court may remove any other trustee: Jud. Act, s. 39. Before that enactment it was held that the High Court would not remove an executor from his office while anything remained to be done by him as executor, even though the will provided for his continuance as a trustee after his duties as executor had ceased, and he had acted as trustee by investing the trust fund: Re Bush, 19 Ont. 1, and see Eaton v. Daines, 96 L. T. Jour. 413.

The statutory jurisdiction to remove an executor cannot, however, be exercised summarily on petition in invitum; an action is necessary: Re Davis, 17 P. R. 187.

Partnership.

Co-partnership.—The Court of Chancery formerly exercised a concurrent jurisdiction with the Courts of Common Law in partnership cases, but in all cases of difficulty and complexity the equity jurisdiction was resorted to. Under this head the Court has power to entertain actions for the specific performance of agreements to enter into partnership for a definite term: Buxton v. Lister, 3 Atk. 385; England v. Curling, 8 Beav. 129; but not where no specified time for the duration of the partnership has been named: Hercy v. Birch, 9 Ves. 357. It has also power to enforce the specific performance of articles of partnership: Somerville v. McKay, 16 Ves. 382; England v. Curling, 8 Beav. 129; Miles v. Thomas, 9 Sim. 606. 609; Marshall v. Watson, 25 Beav. 501; Haggart v. Allan, 4 Gr. 36; but not where damages would be an adequate compensation: *Street v. Sec. 26.

It has also power to decree a dissolution of partnership: Rawlins v. Wickham, 1 Giff. 355; Hue v. Richards, 2 Beav. 305; Newton v. Doron, 1 Gr. 590; O'Leone v. O'Leone, 2 Gr. 125; and to appoint a receiver of the partnership assets: Prentiss v. Brennan, 2 Gr. 274; Ib. 322; Rule 759, note; and to decree the taking of the partnership accounts. The Court has also power to entertain an action to establish a partnership: Bingham v. Smith, 16 Gr. 373; and to decree an account up to the time of the commencement of the action, even where a dissolution is not asked: Loscombe v. Russell, 4 Sim. 8; Southorne v. Weston, 3 Ha. 387; and see Lyon v. Tweedell, 44 L. T. 485; 50 L. J. Chy. 571.

Account

Account.—In this respect the Court of Chancery formerly also exercised a concurrent jurisdiction with the Courts of Law, but owing to its superior machinery for compelling discovery, and taking accounts, it practically exercised an almost exclusive jurisdiction in all cases of any complication. Under this head of jurisdiction the Court entertains actions for an account brought by a principal against his agent: McKenzie v. Johnson, 4 Mod. 373; Kerr v. Lafferty, 7 Gr. 412; Ridley v. Sexton, 18 Gr. 580; 19 Gr. 146; Arthurton v. Dalen, 2 Gr. 1; Wright v. Rankin, 18 Gr. 625; McLean v. Grant, 20 Gr. 76; Smith v. Henderson, 17 Gr. 6; Harrison v. Harrison, 14 Gr. 586; Landman v. Crooks, 4 Gr. 353; but not necessarily by an agent against his principal: Padwick v. Stanley, 9 Ha. 627; Smith v. Leveaux, 2 D. J. & S. 1. An action for an account will lie where there are mutual accounts between the plaintiff and defendant, i.e., where each has received and paid on account of the other: Phillips v. Phillips, 9 Ha. 471; or by cestui que trust against his trustee; or by creditors, legatees, or next of kin against personal representatives; or by a client against his solicitor; or by partners against each other; or by a mortgagor against his mortgagee, or vice versa; or where the accounts are complicated; or where fraud is charged; or by any party having a statutory right to call another to account, e.g., by a municipal corporation against a registrar of deeds for an account of moneys received by him in excess of his salary, to which excess the corporation is entitled: Re Ingersoll, Gray v. Ingersoll, 16 Ont. 194.

See further as to proceedings in taking accounts: Rule 667, et seq., and notes.

Awards on references by consent out of Court.—The Court of Chancery had formerly a concurrent jurisdiction with Courts of Law in respect of awards. The Court has power to set aside awards: Lawson v. Hutchinson, 19 Gr. 84; Edicard v. Gordon, 12 Gr. 333; Wemp v. Henderson, 10 Gr. 54; Jekyll v. Wade, 8 Gr. 363; Hickman v. Watson, 8 Gr. 386; Gillam v. Cleghorn, 7 Gr. 82. But an award is not impeachable in Equity on the ground that it was erroneous in either law or fact, unless the error appeared on its face. The cases in which the Court of Chancery could interfere were those in which such an error so appeared; or where there had been corruption, fraud, or excess of jurisdiction; or where the arbitrators making the award admitted that they had made a mistake: Re Grant v. Eastwood, 22 Gr. 363; Pardee v. Lloyd, 26 Gr. 374; and see La May v. McKee, 16 Ont. App. 348; Re Harvey & Parkdale, 16 Ont. 372. The Court of Chancery could also enforce awards: Armstrong v. Cayley, 2 Chy. Ch. 128, 163; Wilson v. Switzer, 1 Chy. Ch. 44, and see Bell v. Miller, 9 Gr. 385; Hodder v. Turvey, 20 Gr. 63; where specific performance was decreed: Darnley v. London, Chatham & Dover Ry. Co., L. R. 2 H. L. 43; Blackett v. Bates, L. R. 1 Chy. 117; Nickels v. Hancock, 7 D. M. & G. 300; Norvall v. Canada Southern Ry. Co., 5 Ont. App. 13. Formerly it was customary in Chancery to make the award a rule of Court as a preliminary to proceeding to enforce it: White v. Kerby, 2 Chy. Ch. 452; Wadsworth v. McDougall, 5 Gr. 290; Allan v. O'Neal, 2 Chy. Ch. 452; but at law the practice was to make only the submission a rule of Court. Both practices are now superseded by R. S. O. c. 62, s. 3.

An award must now be moved against as provided by R. S. O. c. 62, s. 45; or where it has been agreed that there may be an appeal: see ib. s. 14.

Appeals from awards of compensation made under the Dominion Railway Act (3 Ed. vil., c. 58), are regulated by s. 168 of that Act; and see Birely v. Toronto, H. & B. Ry., 25 Ont. App. 88.

Dower.

Dower.—The jurisdiction of the Court of Chancery was formerly concurrent with that of the Courts of Law in actions to enforce claims for dower: Craig v. Templeton, 8 Gr. 483; Grieve v. Woodruff, 1 Ont. App. 617. Damages for detention of dower cannot be recovered where the husband does not die seised, even though a demand of dower be made: Morgan v. Morgan, 15 Ont. 194.

The Court had jurisdiction to compel a widow to elect between the provision made for her by her deceased husband's will and her dower, wherever it was inconsistent with the testator's intention to be collected from his will, that she should enjoy both: Lapp v. Lapp, 10 Gr. 159; Murphy v. Murphy, 25 Gr. 81; Ripley v. Ripley, 28 Gr. 610; Laidlaw v. Jackes, 25 Gr. 293; 27 Gr. 101; Patrick v. Shaver, 21 Gr. 123; Armstrong v. Armstrong, 21 Gr. 351; McGregor v. McGregor, 20 Gr. 450; Coleman v. Glanville, 18 Gr. 42; Lee v. McKim, 18 Gr. 527; Hutchinson v. Sargent, 16 Gr. 78; Melchman v. Grant, 15 Gr. 65; Kerr v. Leishman, 8 Gr. 435; Re Quimby, 5 Ont. 738; Dawson v. Fraser, 18 Ont. 496; Marriott v. McKay, 22 Ont. 320; Re Biggar, 8 Ont. 372; Rudd v. Harper, 16 Ont. 422; McNicol v. Lynch, 24 Ont. 632; Elliott v. Morris, 27 Ont. 487; Re Geo. Shunk Est., 31 Ont. 175; Reynolds v. Palmer, 32 Ont. 431; and where a dowress has made her election she may be restrained from afterwards prosecuting an action for dower: Westcott v. Cockerline, 13 Gr. 79.

Infants.

Infants.—The jurisdiction of the Court of Chancery over infants was partly exclusive, and partly concurrent with that of the Superior Courts of Common Law. As regards the custody of the persons of infants, it was concurrent with that of the Courts of Law; but as regards their estates, it was exclusive.

As regards the persons of infants, the Court of Chancery could make order for their custody, education, and maintenance, and

The Surrogate Courts had a concurrent jurisdiction with the Court of Chancery to appoint guardians of the persons and estates of infants: Re Stannard, 1 Chy. Ch. 13; Re McQueen, 23 Gr. 191.

As regards the custody of infants: see Re Keith, 7 P. R. 138; Re Gillicie, 3 Gr. 279; Re Davis, 3 Ch. Ch. 277; Andrews v. Salt, L. R. 8 Chy. 622; Re Smart, 12 P. R. 312, 435, S. C. sub. nom. Smart v. Smart, 1892, A. C. 425; 67 L. T. 510; and see R. S. O. c. 168, ss. 1, 2, 11, 14 in notes to sec. 58 (12), whereby important changes were made in the law relating to the custody and guardianship of infants.

Formerly there was a conflict between the Courts of Law and Equity as to whether a testamentary guardian could be interfered with: see Re Andrews, L. R. 8 Q. B. 153; Andrews v. Salt, L. R. 8 Chy. 622; but the power to remove testamentary guardians is now expressly given to the Court by statute: R. S. O. c. 168, s. 17; and see Re X 1899, 1 Ch. 526. Formerly it was not customary for the Court of Chancery to exercise jurisdiction in regard to an infant, unless the infant had some property in respect of which the jurisdiction could be invoked: Wellesley v. Beaufort, 2 Russ. 21; Clayton v. Clarke, 3 D. F. & J. 682; but the right of the Court to exercise jurisdiction is not considered to be limited to cases in which the property of the infant is involved: Re Spence, 2 Ph. 247; Re Tynn, 2 L. R. & S. 481; Re Smart, 12 P. R. 312, 435; see S. C. sub. nom. Smart v. Smart, 1892, A. C. 425; 67 L. T. 510; Re McGrath, 1892, 2 Ch. 246. Any suit relating to the estate or person of an infant and for his benefit has now the effect of making him, whether plaintiff or defendant, a ward of Court: Gynn v. Gilbard, 1 Dr. & S. 356; Re Berte, 9 H. L. C. 440; Peadleton v. Macrory, 2 Dick. 736.

The Court, upon an application for a habeas corpus by a father to obtain the custody of his children, cannot require the applicant to proceed by way of petition in order that the facts may be better inquired into: Re Smart, 12 P. R. 635.

The Court has power to order the sale of infants' estates when necessary to provide for their maintenance or education, or when by reason of any part of the property being exposed to dilapidation or depreciation from any other cause, the infant's interest requires it: R. S. O. c. 168, s. 3. The Court may also make provision out of an infant's estate for his maintenance and education: Ashbough v. Ashbough, 10 Gr. 430; R. S. O. c. 168, s. 7.

An injunction to restrain a breach by an infant of an apprenticeship deed was refused: De Francesco v. Barnum, 43 Ch. D. 165.

Marriage.—The Court has jurisdiction to declare a marriage void, but nothing short of the most clear and convincing testimony will justify the interposition of the Court: Lawless v. Chamberlain, 18 Ont. 296; Burns v. Anderson, before Proudfoot, J., 10th November, 1883; and see Scott v. Sebright, 12 P. D. 21; 57 L. T. 421; Bartlett v. Rice, 72 L. T. 122; Clark v. Stier, 73 L. T. 632.

Idiots and Lunatics.—The Court of Chancery formerly exercised an exclusive jurisdiction over the persons and estates of idiots and lunatics. This jurisdiction is now regulated, so far as regards obtaining declarations of lunacy and providing for the sale of lunatics' estates, and for their custody and maintenance and the payment of Sec. 26. their debts, by R. S. O. c. 65. The Court has jurisdiction to authorize the committee of a lunatic to accept a devise made to him on condition: Re Sefton, 1898, 2 Ch. 378; 78 L. T. 705.

Staying
waste.

Staying Waste.—The jurisdiction of the Court of Chancery to stay waste was part of the concurrent jurisdiction of the Court which was exercised by means of injunction. The jurisdiction of Equity originally arose in England on account of the incompetency of the Courts of Law to give adequate relief. The jurisdiction of the Court of Chancery was originally confined to cases of what was by a somewhat misleading use of words called "equitable waste," meaning thereby acts which were deemed waste only in Courts of Equity, and for which no action would lie at law; and to cases where no waste had been actually committed, but was threatened; but by late statutes the jurisdiction was extended, and the Court was enabled to grant an injunction to restrain waste, notwithstanding that the party in possession claimed by an adverse legal title: R. S. O. 1877, c. 40, s. 39; Wightman v. Fields, 19 Gr. 559. This clause is now superseded by sec. 58 (9), infra; see R. S. O. 1887, p. 2687. Sec. 58 (2) in effect abolishes the distinction between legal and equitable waste, by taking away from a tenant for life without impeachment of waste, the legal right to commit equitable waste. See, however, In re Cartwright, Avis v. Neuman, 41 Ch. D. 532; Dashwood v. Maguire, 1891, 3 Ch. 306; Meur v. Cobley, 1892, 2 Ch. 253.

All the niceties of ancient learning as to waste are not to be transferred without discrimination to such a country as Ontario: Rice v. Rorcher, 9 O. L. R. 6.

A mortgagee of a term of years being in possession, may, at the suit of the mortgagor, be restrained from committing waste, even though he have obtained the consent of the reversioner: Chisholm v. Sheldon, 1 Gr. 318.

A mortgagor in possession will not be restrained from cutting timber for fuel, fencing, or repairs upon the premises, but if the security is scanty he will be restrained from cutting timber for other purposes, at the suit of the mortgagee: Russ v. illa, 7 Gr. 145; King v. Smith, 2 Hn. 239; or at the suit of an execution creditor: Wason v. Carpenter, 13 Gr. 329.

An injunction has been granted to restrain waste pending litigation as to the ownership of the property: Christie v. Long, 3 Gr. 420; Robins v. Porter, 2 U. C. L. J. 230; and an injunction has also been granted to restrain waste in favour of an unpaid vendor against a vendee and his assignee: Lawrence v. Judge, 2 Gr. 301; Perrier v. Kerr, 2 Gr. 668; Mitchell v. McGaffey, 6 Gr. 361; Walsh v. Brown, 4 U. C. L. J. 68; McLean v. Burton, 24 Gr. 134; Summers v. Cook, 28 Gr. 179. A tenant for life who is not entitled to hold without impeachment of waste, may be restrained from committing any waste in an action at the suit of the remainderman: Cloie v. Cloie, 4 Ont. 355; but see Drake v. Wigle, 22 C. P. 341; Saunders v. Breckin, 5 Ont. 603; Munsie v. Lindsay, 10 P. R. 173, and where the tenant for life holds his estate without impeachment of waste, if he is guilty of malicious, extravagant, or capricious waste, that was formerly called "equitable waste," and may be restrained at the suit of the reversioner or remainderman: Garth v. Cotton, 1 W. & T. L. C. Eq. 806; Fane v. Barnard, 2 Vern. 738; Rolf v. Somerville, 2 Eq. Ca. Abr. 759; Morris v. Morris, 15 Sim. 505; Micklethwait v. Micklethwait, 1 De G. & J. 519; Turner v. Wright, 2 D. F. & J. 234; Talbot v. Hope-Scott, 4 K. & J. 96; and see s. 58, s.s. 2 infra. He cannot be restrained from merely permissive waste; see In re Cartwright, Avis v. Neuman, 41 Ch. D. 532.

A tenant in tail in possession cannot be restrained from committing waste: Turner v. Wright, Joh. 752; Saville's case, Mos. 224, 1 W. & T. L. C. Eq. 13, except after possibility of issue extinct: Attorney-General v. Marlborough, 3 Madd. 538; Abraham v. Bubb, 2 Sw. 172.

A purchaser who has gone into possession and has failed to meet his payments may be restrained from committing waste: Ferrier v. Kerr, 2 Gr. 668.

Where the plaintiff has slumbered on his rights: Hughson v. Cook, 20 Gr. 238; or the injury is trifling: Bernard v. Gibson, 21 Gr. 193, an injunction will be refused.

Specific Performance.—The jurisdiction of the Court of Chancery to decree specific performance of contracts was discretionary, but the exercise of this discretion was regulated by certain fixed rules and principles: Lamare v. Dixon, L. R. 3 H. L. 414. This branch of the jurisdiction of the High Court is also discretionary: In re Scott, 1895, 2 Ch. 603. Speaking generally, the Court of Chancery refused to decree specific performance of contracts or obligations except in those cases in which there was no adequate remedy at law for breach of the agreement, and in which the Court could superintend and enforce the execution of its decree: Johnson v. Montreal & City of Ottawa Ry., 22 Gr. 290; neither would it enforce specific performance of mere voluntary agreements: Re Lucan, 45 Ch. D. 470. Agreements for the sale or leasing of land will be specifically enforced: Dennison v. Kennedy, 7 Gr. 342; Simmons v. Campbell, 17 Gr. 612; Heater v. Pearce, 1900, 1 Ch. D. 341 (an agreement for lease of an undivided moiety of mineral property), even when made by parol, if there have been acts of part performance: Shannon v. Parsill, 18 Gr. 8; Butler v. Church, 16 Gr. 295; McDonald v. McKinnon, 26 Gr. 12; but payment of the whole, or part, of the purchase money is not in itself of part performance sufficient to admit parol evidence of a contract for the sale of lands: Johnson v. The Canada Co., 5 Gr. 558; the acts of part performance relied on must be such as cannot be referred to any other than the alleged contract: Alderson v. Maddison, 5 Ex. D. 293; 7 Q. B. D. 174; 8 App. Cas. 467; Sexton v. Shell, 3 U. C. L. J. 94. Letting the purchaser into possession is, ordinarily, a sufficient part performance: see Crane v. Rapple, 22 Ont. 549; this case was reversed in appeal on another point: see 20 Ont. App. 291. As to how far signing the deed, without delivery by the vendor, is part performance, or evidence to satisfy the Statute of Frauds: see Gillately v. White, 18 Gr. 1; McClung v. McLaughlin, 3 Ont. 593.

The purchaser under a contract for sale of land is not entitled to a decree for specific performance by the vendor, unless he has been prompt in the performance of the obligations devolving upon him, and always ready to carry out the contract on his part within a reasonable time, even though the time was not of its essence; and is not entitled where he has declared his inability to perform his share of the contract: Wallace v. Heston, 29 S. C. H. 171; Levy v. Stogden, 1895, 1 Ch. 5; 79 L. T. 364; but though a purchaser by laches may have debarred himself from the right to specific performance he may nevertheless be entitled to damages: Cornwall v. Henson, 1900, 2 Ch. 298; 82 L. T. 735; but in the case of land he is not entitled to damages for loss of his bargain, but only to the amount of the price paid: Id. and see Confederation Life v. Labatt, 27 Ont. App. per

Sec. 26.

Osler, J.A., at p. 320, whereas in the case of goods he may recover damages to the amount of their value and not merely the price paid: Ib.

Sometimes where the vendor is unable to convey all that he contracted to sell, he may be compelled to perform the contract so far as he is able, and the purchaser will be allowed an abatement in his purchase money, e.g., where the purchaser was entitled to a conveyance free from the dower of the vendor's wife, and she refused to join in the conveyance, specific performance was decreed, but with an abatement: Van Norman v. Beaupre, 5 Gr. 590; Loughead v. Stubbs, 27 Gr. 387; and see Jones v. Dale, 16 Ont. 717; Stammers v. O'Donohoe, 28 Gr. 207; 8 Ont. App. 161; 11 S. C. R. 358. But where a partner agreed to sell partnership lands, but owing to his co-partner refusing to join in the sale, the vendor was only able to convey an undivided interest, the Court refused to decree specific performance in favour of the purchaser with an abatement: Crain v. Kapple, 20 Ont. App. 291; but where the plaintiff at the time he entered into a contract for the exchange of lands had no title to the lands he proposed to give in exchange, but the title, as the defendant knew, was in the plaintiff's wife, it was held that the defendant could not on that ground repudiate the contract, and the plaintiff having before action tendered a conveyance from his wife, specific performance was decreed: St. Denis v. Higgins, 24 Ont. 230.

A contract for the sale of land involving a breach of trust, will not be specifically enforced: Deleca v. Gray, 1902, 2 Ch. 606; 87 L. T. 423.

Specific performance of an agreement for the exchange of lands in the United States for lands in Ontario, was enforced at the suit of the owner of the lands in the United States: Montgomery v. Ruppensburg, 31 Ont. 433.

The sale and specific delivery of chattels may be enforced when damages would manifestly be an inadequate compensation. So also the specific delivery of heirlooms: Pusey v. Pusey, 1 W. & T. L. C. Eq. 961; Somerset v. Cookson, 1 W. & T. L. C. Eq. 962; of chattels of unique value: Fells v. Reul, 3 Ves. 70; Falcke v. Gray, 4 Drew 651; Dowling v. Bettjemann, 2 J. & H. 544; Thorn v. Commissioners of Works, 32 Beav. 490; Elves v. Brigg Gas Co., 33 Ch. D. 562; 55 L. T. 831; may be enforced: but specific delivery of merchandise will not usually be decreed: Buxton v. Lister, 3 Atk. 384; Fothergill v. Rowland, 17 Eq. 141; but a contract relating to saw logs has been specifically enforced: Farewell v. Wallbridge, 6 Gr. 634; Flint v. Corby, 4 Gr. 45; Stevenson v. Clark, Ib. 541; Fuller v. Richmond, 2 Gr. 24; 4 Gr. 657.

An agreement for the allotment of shares in a company, if any shares remain available, may be specifically enforced: Price v. Denbigh Ry. Co., 17 W. R. 572; Ferguson v. Wilson, 2 Chy. 77; Canada Life Assur. Co. v. Peel Manufactory Co., 26 Gr. 477; agreements for the sale of shares in companies: Duncuft v. Albrecht, 12 Sim. 190; Cheale v. Kenward, 3 D. & J. 27; Turner v. Hoy, 32 L. T. 56; for the sale of patents: Cogent v. Gibson, 32 Beav. 557; or future inventions: Printing Co. v. Sampson, L. R. 19 Eq. 462; for the sale of good will with business premises, and fixtures: Smith v. Peters, 20 Eq. 511; Mossop v. Mason, 18 Gr. 453; 17 Gr. 360; 16 Gr. 302; or with plant and trade secret: Bryson v. Whitehead, 1 S. & S. 74; but not of good-will only: Baxter v. Connolly, 1 J. & W. 580. A contract between several manufacturers not to sell goods manufactured by them below a stipulated price may be enforced: The Ontario Salt Co. v. The Merchants Salt Co., 18 Gr. 540; nor also agreements not to trade within reasonable limits: see Holcomb v. Nixon, 5 Gr. 278, 373; but conditions as to the price at which goods are to be sold by retail cannot be enforced against any sub-purchaser: Taddy v. Sternum, 1904, 1 Ch. 354; 89 L. T. 628; McGruther v. Pitcher, 1904, 2 Ch. 300. Sec. 26.

A contract which on its face does not appear to have been intended to be a final and concluded agreement will not be specifically enforced: Page v. Norfolk, 70 L. T. 23, 781.

A covenant by a lessor to employ a porter for the general benefit of his lessees of flats, was held not to be one which the Court could specifically enforce: Ryan v. The Mutual Tontine Westminster Chambers Co., 1893, 1 Ch. 119; 67 L. T. 820.

Specific performance of an agreement to refer to arbitration, will not be decreed, either directly or indirectly, by compelling the recalcitrant party to appoint an arbitrator: Re Smith & Nohon, 25 Q. B. D. 545; but see R. S. O. c. 62, s. 6; Manchester Ship Canal v. Pearson, 1900, 2 Q. B. 696; 83 L. T. 16.

As to specific performance of awards, and contracts relating to partnerships: see supra.

Agreements for the execution of separation deeds may be enforced: Wilson v. Wilson, 1 H. L. C. 538.

Sometimes where the Court cannot decree specific performance of a positive part of a contract, if the contract includes a separate negative contract, the latter may be enforced, e.g., an agreement by a singer to sing at a particular place cannot be enforced, nor an agreement by a writer to write for a particular publisher; but if the agreement also provides that the singer is not to sing elsewhere without the consent of the plaintiff, or that the writer will not write for any other publisher during the engagement, the negative agreement may be enforced: Lumley v. Wagner, 1 D. M. & G. 604; Rolfe v. Rolfe, 15 Sim. 88; Stiff v. Cassell, 2 Jur. N. S. 348; Dayett v. Ryman, 16 W. R. 302; Brown v. Harper, 68 L. T. 488; Star Newspaper Co. v. O'Connor, 94 L. T. Jour. 182; but such negative covenant must be reasonable: Lermann v. Bartholomew, 1898, 1 Ch. 671; 78 L. T. 646; and where there is no such negative covenant, an injunction will not be granted: Whitwood v. Hurdman, 1891, 2 Ch. 416; 64 L. T. 716; Grimston v. Cuninghame, 1894, 1 Q. B. 125.

Where the specific performance of a contract involves the working of a railway in all its minutiae for all time to come, specific performance will not be decreed, nor will the Court attempt to enforce it by mandamus or injunction: see Kingston v. Kingston P. & E. Ry., 28 Ont. 229; Bickford v. Chatham, 16 S. C. R. 235.

The Court has refused to order specific performance of an agreement by an Electric Railway Company to run its cars on certain streets at certain hours, and with certain officers, as the Court could not oversee the carrying out of the judgment if granted: Kingston v. Kingston P. & E. Electric Railway Co., 25 Ont. App. 462; see Hamilton v. Hamilton Street Ry. Co., 8 O. L. R. 642.

In cases where County Courts have no jurisdiction to decree equitable relief, they cannot indirectly decree specific performance by treating an agreement for a lease as an actual lease: Poster v. Reeves, Sec. 26. 1802, 2 Q. B. 257; 67 L. T. 537; and see Whidden v. Jackson, per Osler, J.A., 18 Ont. App. 442; but since the latter case the equitable jurisdiction of the County Courts has been restored in certain cases: see R. S. O. c. 55, s. 21.

Discovery.

Discovery.—This was formerly a part of the exclusive jurisdiction of the Court of Chancery, but, even before the Judicature Act, the Common Law Courts were empowered to compel discovery: see R. S. O. 1877, c. 50, ss. 150, et seq.; 41 Vict. c. 8, s. 9. Discovery is now an incidental part of the relief which may be obtained in every action. This may be obtained by a plaintiff against a defendant, and by a defendant against a plaintiff. The method of obtaining discovery is prescribed by Rules 433-477. Actions for discovery only, in aid of a foreign action, will not be entertained: Dreyfus v. Peruvian Guano Co., 41 Ch. D. 151.

Multiplicity of suits.

Multiplicity of Suits.—The mode by which a multiplicity of suits in reference to the same matter, was avoided in the Court of Chancery, was by requiring all persons interested in the subject matter of the litigation to be made parties either as plaintiffs or defendants in one suit; but as this general rule sometimes operated inconveniently it was in certain classes of cases provided that some only of the persons interested need be made parties, and that those who were not made parties should be sufficiently represented by those who were made parties, and should be bound by the proceedings as if they had been themselves parties: (see Rules 185-195, 200, 201, 203, and notes), or else it was provided that the parties interested need not all be made original defendants, but might be added as defendants at a later stage of the proceedings (see Rule 190).

Patents.

Decreeing the Issue, or Cancellation of Patents.—The jurisdiction conferred on the High Court by this section to decree the issue or cancellation of patents is probably confined to patents issued by the Provincial Government. But under the R. S. C. c. 61, s. 34, the Court has also power to decree the cancellation of patents for invention issued by the Dominion Government; and may also entertain motions to restrain the infringement of such patents, and for damages therefor: Id. s. 30; Hunter v. Carrick, 28 Gr. 489; 10 Ont. App. 449; 11 S. C. R. 300; Smith v. Goldie, 7 Ont. App. 628. A prior patent to a person who is not the true inventor is no defence to an action by the true inventor under a subsequent patent: Smith v. Goldie, 9 S. C. R. 46. The Court of Chancery would formerly rescind a patent for land improperly granted by the Provincial Government, although the grant were voidable, or even void at law: Martin v. Kennedy, 2 Gr. 80. But it would not set aside a patent issued upon a deliberate view of all the circumstances, where there was no fraud or mistake: Simpson v. Grant, 5 Gr. 267; Boulton v. Jeffrey, 1 E. & A. 111; Barnes v. Boomer, 10 Gr. 532; Kennedy v. Lawlor, 14 Gr. 224; and see Farmer v. Livingstone, 8 S. C. R. 140; even though the patent issued contrary to a report of the Heir and Devisee Commissioners as to the party entitled: McDiarmid v. McDiarmid, 9 Gr. 144; nor if the plaintiff had no opportunity of bringing the material facts to the attention of the officers of the Crown before the patent issued, and neglected to do so: Mahon v. McLean, 13 Gr. 361. But a patent issued in error might be rescinded; e.g., where a patent issued to a third party after another party had contracted to purchase and had gone into possession of the land: Martyn v. Kennedy, 4 Gr. 61; Attorney-General v. Hill, 8 Gr. 532; or where it issued without proper consideration by the officers of the Crown of all the facts: see 27. Fricht v. Scheck, 10 Gr. 254; or had issued to A., when an order in council had been passed for the grant of the land to B.: Attorney-General v. Garbutt, 3 Gr. 383; and see Saugeen v. Church Society, 8 Gr. 538.

The Attorney-General is a proper party to such actions whenever the person to whom the patent has issued would be entitled to compensation if the patent be rescinded: ib.; Rice v. Attorney-General, 16 Gr. 467; and see McIntyre v. Attorney-General, 14 Gr. 86; but if the case made by the plaintiff is one of fraud, and the patentee would not be entitled to any compensation on the patent being set aside, then the Attorney-General is not a necessary party: Rice v. Attorney-General, 16 Gr. 467; and see Cosgrove v. Corbett, 14 Gr. 617; Lawrence v. Pomeroy, 9 Gr. 474; but see Attorney-General v. McNulty, 8 Gr. 321; 11 Gr. 281, 381; Westbrooke v. Attorney-General, 11 Gr. 330; Mitchmore v. Davis, 14 Gr. 346, where the Attorney-General appears to have been a party though the patent was impeached for fraud.

The Court may be unable to grant relief where third parties have acquired a title under the impeached patent without notice of the defect: Proctor v. Grant, 9 Gr. 26, 224; but see Stevens v. Cook, 10 Gr. 119.

The Court by virtue of its jurisdiction to decree the issue of patents, would not, however, entertain a suit for the specific performance of an order in council for the grant of land: Simpson v. Grant, 5 Gr. 297.

Though there is jurisdiction before the issue of a patent to establish the right to the issue, the Court will not act, in the absence of any special ground for invoking the jurisdiction: see Bull v. Frank, 12 Gr. 80; Brouse v. Cram, 14 Gr. 677; but the Court may in a suitable case make a declaratory judgment as to the rights of the parties which will practically work the result of a partition if the Crown is willing to act upon the judgment: Fride v. Rodger, 27 Ont. 325.

27. The rules of decision in the said matters in the last preceding section mentioned shall, except where otherwise provided, be the same as governed the Court of Chancery in England, in like cases, on the 4th day of March, 1837. 58 V. c. 12, s. 23.

This section must be read in connection with the rest of the statute law of this Province; and wherever any Provincial statute modifies what was the law or rule of decision of the Court of Chancery in England in like cases on the 4th March, 1837, then the express provisions of the Provincial statutes must control the decision of the High Court rather than those rules which governed the Court of Chancery in England at the date above mentioned: see Smith v. The Methodist Church, 16 Ont. 199.

The jurisdiction of the Court of Chancery in England was to some extent regulated by Imperial Statutes, and by force of s. 27 these statutes became part of the law of Ontario. They are all now included in R. S. O. 1897, vol. iii.

Rule of decision in such cases.

Secs. 28-30. 28. The High Court shall have the like jurisdiction and power as the Court of Chancery in England possessed on the 10th day of June, 1857, as a Court of Equity to administer justice in all cases in which there existed no adequate remedy at Law. 58 V. c. 12, s. 24.

Jurisdiction in cases where formerly no adequate remedy at Law.

This section confers upon the High Court all the powers of the English Court of Chancery on 10th June, 1857, whether derived from the Common Law, or statutory enactment: see Re Hodges, 1 Gr. at p. 289, per Esten, V.C. The general words of this section, however, are controlled by other express enactments of the Provincial Legislature. See sec. 27, notes supra.

Amongst other things the Court has jurisdiction to entertain an action for the perpetuation of testimony where the Court of Chancery could have done so: See West v. Lord Sackville, 1903, 2 Ch. 378; 88 L. T. 814; but the Court will not entertain such an action where the plaintiff can, if he chooses, bring the matter in controversy to an immediate judicial investigation: Ib. 1903, 2 Ch. p. 388.

Jurisdiction in matters of revenue.

29. The High Court shall have the like equitable jurisdiction in matters of revenue as the Court of Exchequer in England possessed on the 18th day of March, 1865. 58 V. c. 12, s. 25.

This section in the Revised Statutes of 1877 (c. 40, s. 371), was taken from 28 Vict. c. 17, s. 2, and was confined in its terms to the Court of Chancery. The Courts of Law appear also to have had jurisdiction both legal and equitable in matters of revenue: see R. S. O. 1877, c. 39, s. 4; and see s. 25, supra. Prior to 28 Vict. c. 17, s. 2, it had been held that the Court of Chancery had no equitable jurisdiction in revenue cases: see Norwich v. Attorney-General, 2 E. & A. 541; Miller v. Attorney-General, 9 Gr. 558; and even after equitable jurisdiction in revenue cases had been conferred on the Court of Chancery, it was held that the Court had no jurisdiction to relieve against the forfeiture of a recognizance of bail in a criminal case, which had been estreated into a Court of Quarter Sessions: Rastall v. Attorney-General, 17 Gr. 1; 18 Gr. 138; but it was held that the Crown might proceed in Chancery for dues alleged to be fraudulently withheld, although there were no equitable circumstances connected with the demand: Attorney-General v. Walker, 25 Gr. 233.

Relief against forfeiture for breach of covenant to insure in certain cases. Imp. Act. 22-23 V. c. 35, s. 4.

30. The High Court shall have power to relieve against a forfeiture for breach of a covenant or condition in any lease to insure against loss or damage by fire, where no loss or damage by fire has happened, and the breach has, in the opinion of the Court, been committed through accident or mistake, or otherwise without fraud or gross negligence, and there is an insurance on foot at the time of the application to the Court in conformity with the covenant to insure, upon such terms as to the Court may seem fit. 58 V. c. 12, s. 26.

Under the general jurisdiction of the Court of Chancery now vested in the High Court independently of this section, it has power to relieve against forfeitures in cases other than those provided for in sec. 30. this section: see sec. 57 (3), infra. Wherever a penalty or a forfeiture is imposed to secure the performance of some act, or the enjoyment of some right or benefit, if the breach of the act, or the withholding of the right or benefit can be adequately compensated in money, relief from the penalty or forfeiture may be decreed: e.g., where the payment of a larger sum is imposed in the event of failure to pay a stipulated sum by a given day, such larger sum is regarded as merely a security for legal interest during the time the money is in default: Aylet v. Dodd, 2 Atk. 239; Sloman v. Walter, 1 Bro. C. C. 418; Sanders v. Pope, 12 Ves. 282; Davis v. West, 12 Ves. 475. So where the performance of several acts is secured by a covenant to pay a sum, which as to some of the acts, would be too large, and as to others too small, a compensation for the injury, the sum is considered to be a penalty: see Kemble v. Farreu, 6 Blng. 141. But where the damages from the breach cannot be measured, then the sum agreed to be paid in default of performance, is held to be liquidated damages from which no relief can be granted: Atkyns v. Kinnier, 4 Ex. 76, 783; Galsworthy v. Strutt, 1 Ex. 659; Law v. Redditch, 1892, 1 Q. B. 127; 66 L. T. 76; Elphinstone v. Monkland, etc., 11 App. Cas. 332. See also note to sec. 57 (3), and Townsend v. T. H. & B. Ry. Co., 28 Ont. 195, there mentioned.

Relief will be given against a forfeiture incurred by the omission of a mere money payment, e.g., the payment of taxes under a covenant: Buckley v. Beigle, 8 Ont. 85; but see R. S. O. c. 170, s. 13 (7), as to non-payment of rent.

The general leaning of the Court was formerly against granting relief against forfeitures for breach of covenants to repair, in the absence of special circumstances: Hill v. Barclay, 16 Ves. 402; 18 Ves. 62; Gregory v. Wilson, 9 Ha. 683; Nokes v. Gibbon, 3 Drew. 681; Croft v. Goldsmid, 24 Beav. 312; Burt v. Gray, 1891, 2 Q. B. 98; but see Bamford v. Creasy, 3 Giff. 675; Hughes v. Metropolitan Ry. Co., 2 App. Cas. 439; neither would the Court grant relief against a forfeiture for breach of a covenant by a lessee not to assign the term without leave: Hill v. Barclay, 18 Ves. at p. 63; Barrow v. Isaacs, 1891, 1 Q. B. 417; 68 L. T. 86; Eastern Telegraph Co. v. Dent, 1890, 1 Q. B. 835; 80 L. T. 459; but an equitable assignment is not a breach of such a covenant: Geutle v. Faulkner, 1900, 2 Q. B. 267; 82 L. T. 708. Prior to the 29 Vict. c. 28, s. 5, on which this section is founded, the Court of Chancery would not relieve against a forfeiture for breach of a covenant to insure: Green v. Bridges, 4 Sim. 96. Relief may be granted under this section in respect of a covenant contained in an instrument made before the passing of the 29 Vict. c. 28, as regards any subsequent breach: Page v. Bennett, 2 Giff. 117. See further as to cases in which the Court will, or will not, relieve against penalties and forfeitures: Story's Eq. chap. 34.

By sec. 57 (3), infra, a general power is given to the Court to relieve against all penalties and forfeitures. Whether the Court in the exercise of its discretion will relieve against forfeitures which a Court of Equity would not formerly relieve against, has not been determined: see Barrow v. Isaacs, 1891, 1 Q. B. 417, 430; 64 L. T. 686. It will not relieve against a forfeiture arising from a breach of covenant by a lessee not to assign without leave: see Eastern Telegraph Co. v. Dent, supra.

By R. S. O. c. 170, s. 13, special provision is made in reference to forfeitures under any proviso or stipulation in a lease, for a breach of any covenant or condition in the lease.

31. The Court, where relief is granted, shall direct a record of such relief having been granted to be made by indorsement on the lease or otherwise. 58 V. c. 12, s. 27.

The object of the indorsement required by this section is probably for the purpose of identifying the instrument, in respect of which the relief is granted, and to give notice to third persons dealing with the property, of the fact that relief has been granted by the Court. In the case of lauds this may also be effected by the registration of the judgment.

32. The preceding two sections shall be applicable in the case of leases for a term of years absolute, or determinable on a life or lives or otherwise, and also in the case of a lease for the life of the lessee or the life or lives of any other person or persons. 58 V. c. 12, s. 28.

Jurisdiction in partition.

Rev. Stat.
c. 124.

33. In any action or proceeding in the High Court for partition or sale of the estate of joint tenants, tenants in common or co-partners, where any of the persons interested in the lands whereof partition or sale is sought are unknown to the plaintiff, or have not been heard of for three years or upwards, the Court shall have the same jurisdiction that, in proceedings under The Partition Act, it possesses for the purpose of binding the interests of such persons and dealing with the estate of such of them as by reason of long continued absence may reasonably be believed to be dead; and the like proceedings may be taken in such action or proceeding for the said purposes as might be taken upon a petition under the said Act; and every deed or vesting order made in any such action or proceeding shall have the same effect as a deed or vesting order made in proceedings under the said Act. 58 V. c. 12, s. 29.

The effect of this section is to enable the Court in an ordinary suit to avail itself of the powers and authorities conferred upon it by The Partition Act, without resorting to the procedure laid down in that Act: see Bennett v. Bennett, 8 Gr. 446; Cursey v. Cassey, 15 Gr. 399; Munro v. Munro, 1b. 431; and see Rules 956, 957, and notes.

In re Humes, Hodgins v. Andrews, 19 P. R. 217, an order was made appointing a guardian for an absentee who had been long unheard of, and directing that he be served with an office copy of the judgment or order for partition, and notice for the absentee.

34. The High Court shall have jurisdiction to grant alimony to any wife who would be entitled to alimony by the law of England, or to any wife who would be entitled by the law of England to a divorce and to alimony as incident thereto, or to any wife whose husband lives separate from her without any sufficient cause and under circumstances which would entitle her, by the law of England, to a decree for restitution of conjugal rights; and alimony when granted Sec. 34. shall continue until further order of the Court. 58 V. c. 12, s. 30.

The jurisdiction by this section conferred on the High Court, is part of the jurisdiction formerly exercised in England by the Ecclesiastical Courts, as incident to proceedings for divorce or judicial separation.

Where proceedings are instituted against a defendant for alimony, if he is about to quit Ontario with intent to defraud his creditors generally, or the plaintiff in particular, he is liable to be arrested and held to bail: see R. S. O. c. 80, s. 2, Rule 1022: Richardson v. Richardson, 8 P. R. 274; Needham v. Needham, 29 Gr. 117; Harn v. Harn, 4 U. C. L. J. 261.

The defendant may be discharged from arrest if on the facts it shall appear that the plaintiff cannot reasonably be expected to succeed in the action: Macpherson v. Macpherson, 2 Ch. Ch. 222. The order of arrest issued pendente lite remains in force after judgment, even though the wife resides out of the jurisdiction: see Macdonald v. Macdonald, 5 U. C. L. J. 66.

Pending the action, if the wife is in need of support, an order may be granted for payment of interim alimony: as to the mode of obtaining interim alimony: see Form 9 k (H. & L. Forms No. 64). Rules 370, 371, and notes.

The only bar in England to a suit for restitution of conjugal rights is cruelty or adultery on the part of the plaintiff; and cruelty or adultery therefore under this section is the only bar to an action by a wife for alimony against a husband who declines to live with her: Nelligan v. Nelligan, 26 Ont. 8.

Proof of grave misconduct short of adultery will not disentitle a wife to alimony: Aldrich v. Aldrich, 21 Ont. 447.

An agreement to live apart founded on valuable consideration will be a bar: Atwood v. Atwood, 15 P. R. 425.

Permanent alimony is granted where the husband has been guilty of desertion and cruelty: Severn v. Severn, 3 Gr. 431; see Martin v. Martin, 78 L. T. 568; or desertion, where coupled with other acts of cruelty, ib.; or cruelty alone: Jackson v. Jackson, 8 Gr. 499; but not as a rule where he has only been guilty of a solitary act of personal violence: Rodman v. Rodman, 20 Gr. 428. So also it may be granted for desertion and adultery: Henderson v. Henderson, 19 Gr. 464; Martin v. Martin, 78 L. T. 568; and perhaps for adultery alone: Howey v. Howey, 27 Gr. 57; Aldrich v. Aldrich, 21 Ont. 447; Koch v. Koch, 1899, P. 221; 81 L. T. 61; or for wrongfully accusing the wife of adultery: see Ferris v. Ferris, 7 Ont. 496.

The committal of a lunatic wife to an asylum is not cruelty or desertion: Hill v. Hill, 2 O. L. R. 541; 3 O. L. R. 202.

But where the wife leaves the husband without sufficient cause: Edwards v. Edwards, 20 Gr. 392; or refuses him his marital rights: Synge v. Synge, 1901, P. 317, she is not entitled to alimony; and it would seem that where the husband refuses to live with her by reason of her cruelty or adultery, she is not entitled to alimony: Nelligan v. Nelligan, supra. The condonation by a wife of acts of cruelty by

Sec. 35. her husband, is annulled by repetition of such acts: Bavin v. Bavin, 27 Ont. 571; Copsey v. Copsey, 1905, P. 94; 91 L. T. 363.

Where the ground is desertion, and the husband offers to receive his wife back, the Court will require to be satisfied that the offer is bona fide, and not merely set up to prevent the pronouncement of judgment: Rae v. Rae, 31 Ont. 321.

Persistent and malicious charges by a wife against her husband of an abominable offence against morality, is held not to be legal cruelty: Russell v. Russell, 1897, A. C. 395; 77 L. T. 249; but it was held sufficient ground for refusing a restitution of conjugal rights: Russell v. Russell, 1895, P. 315; 73 L. T. 295.

One-third of the income the property of the husband calculated at 4 per cent, is allowed as permanent alimony in England: Shorthouse v. Shorthouse, 78 L. T. 687.

A judgment for alimony may be suspended on the application of the husband on proof of the wife's subsequent adultery: Serren v. Serren, 14 Gr. 150; but a husband who has deserted his wife, is not entitled as of right to have a judgment against him for alimony vacated on his afterwards offering to receive and maintain her: Cronk v. Cronk, 19 Gr. 283.

Judgment for alimony may be registered and thus bind lands.

35. An order or judgment for alimony may be registered in any Registry Office in Ontario, and the registration shall, so long as the order or judgment registered remains in force, bind the estate and interest of every description which the defendant has in any lands in the county or counties where the registration is made, and operate thereon in the same manner and with the same effect as the registration of a charge by the defendant of a life annuity on his lands. 58 V. c. 12, s. 31.

A judgment for alimony is registered by means of a certificate: see R. S. O. c. 136, s. 52; and semble, an order for payment of interim alimony may in like manner be registered.

The charge created by the registration of a judgment for alimony, binds all the lands of the defendant in the registration division in which the registration is made. The judgment itself does not contain any clause creating a lien, nor does it specify any lands to be bound: it can only be registered among the instruments having no local description: (see R. S. O. c. 136, s. 29). The simple fact of registration creates the charge. This charge may be enforced by a petition in the alimony action, where the defendant has made default in paying the alimony ordered to be paid. Upon such a petition the Court may order the land bound by the judgment, or such part thereof as may be deemed necessary, to be sold and the purchase money to be applied in payment of the arrears of alimony, and the alimony as it accrues. For form of order in such a case, see Forrester v. Forrester, D. B. 37, fo. 232; H. & L. Forms, No. 842.

The charge created by a registered judgment under this section is not affected by an assignment for the benefit of creditors subsequently made by the defendant, and the plaintiff is not obliged to rank pari passu with other creditors of the defendant under R. S. O. c. 124, s. 9; Abraham v. Abraham, 19 Ont. 256; 18 Ont. App. 436; nor is the charge affected by the plaintiff recovering judgment in another Court for instalments of alimony in arrear: Lee v. Lee, 27 Ont. 193. Sec. 36.

36. In every case in which the Court has authority to order the execution of a deed, conveyance, transfer or assignment of any property, real or personal, the Court may by order vest such real or personal estate in such person or persons, and in such manner, and for such estates, as would be done by any such deed, conveyance, assignment or transfer if executed; and thereupon the order shall have the same effect as if the legal or other estate or interest in the property had been actually conveyed, by deed or otherwise, for the same estate or interest, to the person in whom the same is so ordered to be vested, or in the case of a chose in action, as if such chose in action had been actually assigned to such last mentioned person. 58 V. c. 12, s. 32. Vesting order, effect of.

The power of the Court to grant a vesting order extends to every case where it has power to order the execution of a conveyance, transfer, or assignment, of any property, real or personal; but the Court cannot order the execution of any conveyance by any person who is not before the Court and amenable to its jurisdiction, and it can therefore only vest the interests of those who are before the Court and subject to its jurisdiction: Re Hewish, 17 Ont. 454. as to the report of which see Ayerst v. McClean, 10 C. L. T. 341. Only interests of parties before the Court can be vested.

Where lands are sold under the judgment or order of the Court, a conveyance by the person having the legal estate is all that is necessary to vest the title in the purchaser. It is not necessary that parties to the suit having purely equitable interests should also join in the conveyance: Ross v. Steele, 1 Chy. Ch. 94; Moore v. Shinnors, 1 Chy. Ch. 59; but persons having equitable interests who were not parties to the action would not formerly (unless represented sufficiently by persons who were parties) be bound by the judgment, and it was necessary for a purchaser, before taking either a conveyance or vesting order, to see that all persons having any interest, had been made parties, or were properly represented by persons who were parties, and were bound by the judgment; but see now s. 58 (11) infra.

By a vesting order, all the interest, legal and equitable, of the parties to the action, or any of them, may be vested in the person named in the order: Re Robertson, 22 Gr. 449; even though some of them be infants: Donaldson v. Berry, 2 Chy. Ch. 16. But where the legal estate was in the plaintiff, who became the purchaser himself at a sale under a decree, the Court refused to make a vesting order because it had no power to order him to convey to himself: Bowen v. Fox, 1 Chy. Ch. 387. In such cases the purchaser's title would be made out by the production of the judgment and the Master's report on sale duly confirmed (see per MacLennan, Q.C., arguendo, 22 Gr. 452); but this has been thought an unsatisfactory mode of proving that the equitable rights have been extinguished, and in some cases under similar circumstances vesting orders have been made, no objection thereto being raised by the parties. Effect of vesting order.

Vesting order when refused.

A vesting order will not be granted to a purchaser except on proof of payment of his purchase money, or on evidence entitling him to an order dispensing with its payment.

Sec. 37. The purchaser is entitled to a conveyance with ordinary covenants for title, and he cannot be compelled to accept a vesting order: see Slater v. Fiskin, 1 Chy. Ch. 1; but he may, if he chooses, take a vesting order instead.

Evidence.

In Slater v. Fiskin, supra, it was held that a purchaser, before taking a vesting order, was entitled to proof that the persons whose estates were sold were alive at the time of the sale; but in deducing title under a vesting order it has been held unnecessary to give this evidence because the order will be presumed to be rightly made until the contrary is shown: Re Morse, 8 P. R. 475; and see Gunn v. Doble, 15 Gr. 655; Shaw v. Crawford, 4 Ont. App. 371; McLean v. Grant, 20 Gr. 76.

Notice of motion for vesting order, to whom to be given.

Upon a sale of lands by the Court, notice to the vendor's solicitor of the application for a vesting order by the purchaser is sufficient, and notice to infants interested was held to be unnecessary: Boulton v. Stegman, 1 Chy. Ch. 199; but see Thorne v. Chute, 2 Chy. Ch. 221. So also a vesting order has been granted ex parte where a party to the action was ordered to convey, but could not be found after due diligence: McNair v. Simpson, 1 Chy. Ch. 299; and see Laurason v. Buckley, 3 Chy. Ch. 270, where the costs of the motion were ordered to be paid out of the purchase money. But where one of the plaintiffs had become the purchaser in a mortgage action, notice of a motion to dispense with payment into Court and for a vesting order was required to be given to the mortgagor who had appeared in the suit: McMaster v. Kempshall, 1 Chy. Ch. 329.

Purchaser taking v. o. waives objections to title, etc.

Where a purchaser takes a vesting order he usually waives all objection to the title, and if possession has not previously been delivered to him, he assumes the responsibility of obtaining possession: Bull v. Harper, 6 P. R. 36; and where a purchaser after the lapse of a year from obtaining a vesting order, applied to be allowed compensation in respect of certain taxes which the vendor should have paid, the application was refused: Kincaid v. Kincaid, 6 P. R. 93. But so long as the purchase money remains in Court, an application by a purchaser who has inadvertently taken a vesting order without first requiring incumbrances to be paid off, to have the incumbrances discharged out of the purchase money, will be granted: Fleming v. McDougall, 8 P. R. 200; Turrill v. Turrill, 7 P. R. 142.

Infants.

As regards infants, whose estates have been sold under the direction of the Court, the Court may order some person to execute the conveyance in the place of the infants: R. S. O. c. 168, s. 5; and the Master in Ordinary or a Local Master may, in like manner, be ordered to execute a deed for adult parties who have been committed to gaol for contempt in refusing to execute the same, after the expiration of two calendar months from their being committed or detained under such process: see R. S. O. 1897, c. 324, s. 18, and supra, s. 28; Ledyard v. Campbell, O. R. 26, fo. 719.

Trustee Acts.

Under the Trustee Relief Act, R. S. O. 1897, c. 336, ss. 5-19, the Court has also power to make vesting orders: and under secs. 14, and 15 (2), wherever the Court can under that Act make a vesting order, it may also appoint some person to execute a conveyance.

Jurisdiction of High Court in respect to settlement of

37. The High Court shall have the same jurisdiction as the Court of Chancery in England had on the eighteenth day of March, 1865, in regard to enabling infants, with the approbation of the Court, to make binding settlements of their real and personal estate on marriage; and in regard to ^{Sec. 37.} questions submitted for the opinion of the Court in the form of special cases on the part of such persons, as may by themselves, their committees or guardians, or otherwise, concur therein. 58 V. c. 12, s. 33 (1). ^{estates of infants, and special cases.}

Settlements.—The jurisdiction of the English Court of Chancery as to sanctioning marriage settlements by infants of their property, was on the 18th March, 1865, regulated by the Imp. Stat. 18 & 19 Vict. c. 43, now R. S. O. 1897, c. 340, ss. 15-18. The Act does not apply to males under twenty years nor females under seventeen years: see sec. 8. An application for the sanction of the Court to a settlement does not constitute the infant a ward of Court so as to necessitate the Court's inquiring into the propriety of the marriage: Seton, 5th ed., 1903. ^{Settlements by infants.}

This Act only enables the Court to remove the bar of infancy, but it does not enable an infant, even with the sanction of the Court, to do more than an adult could do: e.g., where an infant was a married woman and made a post-nuptial settlement with the sanction of the Court under the above-mentioned Act, but the settlement was one which would not have bound her if she had been an adult: it was held, notwithstanding it had received the sanction of the Court, to be invalid: Buckmaster v. Buckmaster, 35 Ch. D. 21; 56 L. T. 795; 13 App. Cas. 61; Mills v. Fox, 37 Ch. D. 153; sed vide Buckland v. Buckland, 1900, 2 Ch. 534. But the Act enables an infant with the sanction of the Court to make a valid post-nuptial settlement so far as an adult can make one: Re Wall, 50 L. T. 435.

In England applications for the sanction of the Court to a settlement by an infant are required to be supported by evidence to show, (1) The infant's age; (2) If there is any parent or guardian; (3) If none, what near relatives, and with whom, and under whose care the infant is; (4) Infant's parents' rank and position; (5) Infant's fortune and property; (6) The age, rank and position of the other party; (7) His property, fortune and income; (8) The fitness, and consent to act, of the trustees: Seton, 6th ed., 1902.

A post-nuptial settlement by a married woman while an infant, made under the sanction of the Court, was held valid against creditors: Hemingway v. Braithwaite, 61 L. T. 224; but see Re Holland, 85 L. T. 304.

A settlement made by an infant without the sanction of the Court was held binding on the settlor, he not having attempted to repudiate it until the lapse of four years after attaining his majority: Edwards v. Carter, 1893, A. C. 300; 69 L. T. 153; sed vide Re Jones, Farrington v. Forrester, 1893, 2 Ch. 461; a settlement made by a married woman while an infant may be ratified by her on coming of age, notwithstanding her coverture: Re Hodson, 1894, 2 Ch. 421.

Special Cases.—The jurisdiction of the English Court of Chancery in regard to special cases on the 18th March, 1865, was regulated by Imp. Stat. 13 & 14 Vict. c. 35. By that Act a special case may be stated without commencing an action, but that provision has not been retained in Ontario, and the only provisions of Imp. Stat. 13 & 14 Vict. c. 35, on this point, now in force in Ontario are to be found in R. S. O. 1897, c. 324, ss. 16 and 17. ^{Special cases.}

Sec. 38.

After action commenced a special case may be stated under Rules 372-375, but, as no provision is made for stating a special case otherwise than in an action, the above section 37 of the Jud. Act, must be taken to be modified so that the jurisdiction mentioned can now only be exercised as provided by the Rules.

Fictitious questions not entertained.

Fictitious questions will not be entertained, so as to give the Court jurisdiction in matters not cognizable under the Act: Pryse v. Pryse, 15 Eq. 86; and see Key v. Key, 4 D. M. & G. 73. All persons beneficially interested should be parties: Entwistle v. Lannon, 4 W. R. 450; and trustees must be parties to a case for construing the trust deed: Vorley v. Richardson, 8 D. M. & G. 120. Where some of the parties beneficially interested are out of the jurisdiction, but others having identical interests are before the Court, the presence of the absentees may in the discretion of the Court be dispensed with: Re Brown, 29 Beav. 401.

The case must be framed so that the rights of the parties can be determined, or the Court will decline to answer the questions submitted: Bulkely v. Hope, 4 W. R. 280. The Court will not act on inferences drawn by the parties, but necessary facts should be proved by affidavit: Domville v. Lamb, 9 Hn. 1v.

Amendment of case.

The case may be amended: see Rule 312; but where a material fact was omitted from the case, but was admitted by all parties at the hearing, prefacing the order with a recital to that effect was held to be sufficient: Lane v. Debenham, 11 Hn. 188; 17 Jur. 1005.

But an amendment after final judgment cannot be allowed: Johnston v. Consumers' Gas Co., 17 P. R. 297; and see S. C. 23 Ont. App. 506; 78 L. T. 270.

Costs.

The costs of all proceedings under the Act are in the discretion of the Court: see Attorney-Gen. v. Toronto Gen. Trusts Corporation, 5 O. L. R. p. 608.

The Court may try the validity of wills.

38. The High Court shall have jurisdiction to try the validity of last wills and testaments, whether the same respect real or personal estate, and whether probate of the will has been granted or not, and to pronounce such wills and testaments to be void for fraud and undue influence or otherwise, in the same manner and to the same extent as the Court has jurisdiction to try the validity of deeds and other instruments. 58 V. c. 12, s. 34.

The jurisdiction of the High Court, as regards wills affecting personalty, depends on this section; but as regards wills affecting realty the jurisdiction of the High Court would seem to depend not only on this section, but also on secs. 25 and 41, by which the jurisdiction of the former Superior Courts of Law is vested in the High Court.

Letters probate are, notwithstanding The Devolution of Estates Act, now R. S. O. c. 127, only prima facie evidence as far as realty is concerned of the testamentary capacity of the testator; and in an action asserting title under a will, the defendant may give evidence showing want of testamentary capacity: Sproule v. Watson, 23 Ont. App. 692.

For cases in which wills have been contested on the ground of the ^{Sec. 22.} mental incapacity of the testator: see Brown v. Bruce, 10 U. C. Q. B. 35; Meuzies v. White, 9 Gr. 574; Emes v. Emes, 11 Gr. 325; Martin v. Martin, 15 Gr. 586; Ingoldsby v. Ingoldsby, 20 Gr. 131; Wilson v. Wilson, 22 Gr. 39; and for cases in which wills have been sought to be set aside as having been obtained by undue influence: see Waterhouse v. Lee, 10 Gr. 176; Donaldson v. Donaldson, 12 Gr. 431; Wilson v. Wilson, 22 Gr. 30; 24 Gr. 377; Re White, Kersten v. Tane, 22 Gr. 517; 24 Gr. 224; Thompson v. Torrance, 28 Gr. 253; 9 Ont. App. 1.

This section provides that the Court may pronounce wills void for fraud and undue influence or otherwise in the same manner and to the same extent as the Court has jurisdiction to try the validity of deeds and other instruments. The cases in which Courts of Equity are accustomed to set aside deeds and other instruments for fraud, where they are voidable and not merely void, are, firstly, where there is actual fraud in the party defendant in which the party plaintiff has not participated. Secondly, where there is a constructive fraud against public policy, and the party plaintiff has not participated therein. Thirdly, where there is a fraud against public policy, and the party plaintiff has participated therein, but public policy would be defeated by allowing it to stand. And lastly, where there is a constructive fraud by both parties, but they are not in pari delicto: Story, s. 695.

39.—(1) The High Court may remove an executor or administrator upon the same grounds as such Court may remove any other trustee, and may appoint some other proper person or persons to act in the place of the executor or administrator so removed. ^{Powers of High Court as to removal of executor or administrator.}

(2) The order may be made upon the application of any executor or administrator desiring to be relieved from the duties of the office, or of any executor or administrator complaining of the conduct of a co-executor or co-administrator, or of any person interested in the estate of the deceased.

(3) Subject to any Rules to be made under this Act the practice in force for the removal of any other trustee shall be applicable to proceedings to be taken in the High Court under this section.

(4) Where the executor or administrator removed is not a sole executor or administrator the Court need not, unless it sees fit, appoint any person to act in the room of the person removed, and if no such appointment is made the rights and estate of the executor or administrator removed shall pass to the remaining executor or administrator as if the person so removed had died.

(5) The executor of any person appointed an executor under this section shall not by virtue of such executorship be an executor of the estate of which his testator was appointed executor under this section, whether such person acted alone or was the last survivor of several executors. ^{Executor of an executor}

(6) A certified copy of the order of removal shall be filed with the Surrogate Clerk and another copy with the Registrar of the Surrogate Court by which probate or administration was granted, and such officers shall, at or upon the entry of the grant in the registers in their respective offices, make in red ink a short note giving the date and effect of the order, and shall also make a reference thereto in the index of the register at the place where such grant is indexed. The date of the grant of the letters probate or the letters of administration shall be indorsed upon the copy of the order filed with the Surrogate Court. 59 V. c. 18, s. 4; 63 V. c. 17, s. 7.

The Court will not under this section act upon a summary petition, or otherwise, than in an action, remove a trustee or executor in invitum: Re Davis, 17 P. R. 187. See also note to sec. 28, p. 18.

Matters Testamentary.—The clauses of the Surrogate Courts Act referred to, provide for the transfer of contentious matters regarding the grant of probate or administration from the Surrogate Court to the High Court (a) where the parties agree, or (b) where a Judge of the High Court so orders.

The High Court has also original jurisdiction to appoint an administrator ad litem: Rule 195; but it has no original jurisdiction to grant probate of a will, or letters of administration; and where a case is transferred to the High Court from the Surrogate Court, it is usually ultimately remitted to the Surrogate Court, to issue probate or administration, as the case may require: Thompson v. Torrance, 28 Gr. 253; see Decree in that case: D. B. 37, fo. 192: H. & L. Forms, No. 896.

Infants.—The jurisdiction by this section conferred on the High Court over infants is cumulative with that already conferred under section 26 (2) and s. 28. As to the general jurisdiction of the Court over infants: see Story's Eq., chap. 35.

Guardians and Trustees.—The same observation applies in regard to the jurisdiction over trustees: see supra, s. 26 (2) and s. 28.

Partition.—The like observation applies in regard to the jurisdiction in Partition: see sec. 28, supra, and Story's Eq., chap. 14, and see supra, s. 33. The jurisdiction under The Partition Act may be exercised in any ordinary action for partition; and it would seem that it is not essential that the procedure prescribed by that Act should be strictly pursued, in order to enable the Court to exercise any special powers conferred by that Act: see Bennett v. Bennett, 8 Gr. 446; Casey v. Casey, 15 Gr. 309.

Leases and Sales of Settled Estates.—R. S. O. c. 71, now regulates the jurisdiction of the Court as to Settled Estates. Rules contained in the original Act 58 Vict. c. 20, regulating matters of practice under the Act are now included in the Con. Rules: see Rules 973-990, and notes.

41. The High Court shall have, generally, all the jurisdiction which, prior to the 22nd day of August, 1881, was vested in, or capable of being exercised by, the Court of Queen's Bench, Court of Chancery, Court of Common Pleas, and Courts of Assize, Oyer and Terminer, and Gaol Delivery (whether created by Commission or otherwise) and the High Court shall be deemed to be and shall be a continuation of the said Courts respectively (subject to the provisions of this Act) under the said name of "The High Court of Justice for Ontario." 58 V. c. 12, s. 36.

As to criminal jurisdiction see note to sec. 25, supra.

42. The jurisdiction of the High Court shall include (subject to the exceptions hereinafter contained) the jurisdiction which at the commencement of this Act, was vested in or capable of being exercised by the Judges of the said Courts respectively, sitting in Court or Chambers, or elsewhere, when acting as Judges in pursuance of any statute or law: and all powers given to any such Court, or to any such Judges, by any statute: and also all ministerial powers, duties and authorities, incident to any and every part of the jurisdiction. 58 V. c. 12, s. 37.

See Eng. Jnd. Act of 1873, s. 16.

In the corresponding English section 16 the same Courts are mentioned as above, and several others: and the jurisdiction is said to be "transferred to" the High Court—an expression which is not used in this Act.

Secs. 43-45. Where a person fraudulantly personating a testator had forged mortgages of the testator's estate, and an action was brought to obtain a declaration that certain mortgages were void, and to have them delivered up, Kay, J., looking at this enactment said that he was not administering equity merely, and should therefore give the plaintiff his legal remedy as to the deeds, and direct them to be delivered up as well as declare them void: Cooper v. Vesey, 51 L. J., Chy. 149; see also Manners v. Mew, 29 Ch. D. 725.

Rights and
of Judges.

43. Every Judge of the High Court shall have, use and exercise all the rights, incidents and privileges of a Judge of a Court of Record and all other rights, incidents and privileges as fully to all intents and purposes as the same were, prior to the fifth day of December, 1859, used, exercised or enjoyed by any of the Judges of any of Her Majesty's Superior Courts of Common Law at Westminster. 58 V. c. 12, s. 38.

A Judge to sit in Chambers.

44. The Judges of the High Court shall, in rotation or otherwise, as they may agree among themselves, sit in Chambers or elsewhere, and there transact any such business as may be transacted by a single Judge out of Court, whether such business be in the Division of the High Court to which such Judge is attached, or in another Division, subject to the right of appeal as provided in this Act and the Rules from time to time in force. 58 V. c. 12, s. 39.

As to the business which may be transacted in Chambers: see Rule 366; as to the jurisdiction of the Master in Chambers, Local Judges, and Local Masters, in Chambers, and the various matters excluded from their jurisdiction: see Rules 42-49; and as to the jurisdiction of the Master in Ordinary in Chambers: see Rule 608.

The business before a single Judge in Court, other than trials, is regulated by sec. 65 of the Jud. Act and Rules 98 to 112.

Anyone while acting as Judge of Assizes in Toronto, may act as Judge in Chambers.

45. Any person sitting or acting as Judge at any Assizes or sittings of the High Court for the trial of causes, matters, and issues, in the City of Toronto, may, while so sitting or acting as such Judge, or while the Assizes or sittings last, act as a Judge in Chambers in all matters as if he were a Judge of the High Court. 58 V. c. 12, s. 40.

This section applies to the acting Judge of Assize at the City of Toronto: a similar provision is made by the following section in regard to the acting Judge of Assize in any outer county.

The power to act in Chambers hereby conferred, may be exercised not only by a Judge of the Supreme Court, but by any retired Judge of the Supreme Court, Judge of a County Court, or King's Counsel, appointed to hold the Assizes under s. 85.

The jurisdiction in Chambers under this section would seem to extend to all actions, and not merely to those entered for trial: see sec. 46.

Orders made by a Judge at the Assizes in actions set down for trial thereat should be signed by the officer who acts as registrar at such sittings: Waghorn v. Hawkins, 12 P. R. 145. The same rule probably applies to orders made in Chambers by the Judge of Assize. Secs. 46-48.

It is the duty of the officer signing the order to see that it is in proper form, and correctly embodies the order actually made by the Judge, and that the Court fees thereon are duly paid. It should be entered in the proper office: Rule 635.

The Court has power to make any interlocutory order which is reasonably asked for, as auxiliary to the administration of justice at the hearing: Smith v. Peters, L. R. 20 Eq. 511.

46. Any person acting as a Judge at any Assizes or sittings of the High Court for the trial of causes, matters and issues, may, in and for the county in which he is acting, and while the sittings of the said Court last, act as a Judge in Chambers in all matters entered for trial before him, as if he were a Judge of the High Court. Anyone sitting as Judge of Assize may during sittings act as Judge in Chambers. 58 V. c. 12, s. 41.

See note to sec. 45. It will be noticed that this section is not so wide in its terms as sec. 45, and the jurisdiction in Chambers hereby conferred on the Judge of Assize is not general, but limited to the "matters entered for trial before him."

There is nothing to prevent a Judge sitting at the Assizes from hearing a Chamber motion if he is disposed to treat the Court room as his Chambers: Sarnia, etc. v. Perdue, 11 P. R. 224.

47. The several jurisdictions vested in the said High Court, shall not be exercised except [in the name of] the said High Court as provided by this Act, save as otherwise in this Act provided. Jurisdiction to be exercised in name of High Court. 58 V. c. 12, s. 42.

In Eng. J. A. 1873, c. 22, was the word "by" instead of the words in brackets.

Orders made by a single Judge in Court, or in Chambers, are not drawn up as the order of the Judge making them, but of the High Court. All judgments and orders, whether made by a single Judge or by a Divisional Court, are to show the names of the Judge or Judges who pronounced the same: Rule 623. This is usually done by inserting the name or names of the Judge or Judges in the margin of the order under the title of the Court: see Forms 102, 103 (H. & L. Forms, Nos. 908, 910).

48. The jurisdiction of (a) the High Court of Justice and the Court of Appeal, respectively, shall be exercised (so far as regards procedure and practice) in the manner provided by this Act, or by Rules and Orders of Court now in force or to be made pursuant to this Act; and where no special provisions are contained in this Act or in any such Rules or Orders with reference thereto, it shall be exercised as nearly as may be in the same manner as prior to the 22nd day of August, 1881. Jurisdiction to be exercised according to Rules of Court. 58 V. c. 12, s. 43.

Sec. 49.

(a) Instead of the word "of," the English Act has the words "by this Act transferred to."

The concluding clause must probably be taken to be modified by Rules 2 and 3, which repeal the practice and procedure existing prior to 22nd Aug., 1881 (except in certain cases in which it is expressly continued in the Con. Rules), and provide that in the absence of any special provision the practice is to be regulated by analogy to the Con. Rules: see notes to those Rules, and to sec. 128.

As to the jurisdiction given to a Judge as a persona designata, and the mode of enforcing orders made by him in that capacity: see R. S. O. c. 76; 63 Vict. c. 17, s. 14.

JURISDICTION OF THE COURT OF APPEAL.

Jurisdiction of Court of Appeal.

49. The Court of Appeal shall continue to be a Superior Court of Record with appellate jurisdiction in civil and criminal cases and matters. 4 Ed. vii. c. 11, s. 2.

Civil Jurisdiction of the Court of Appeal.—The jurisdiction of the Court in civil cases is partly original and partly appellate. It is entirely of statutory origin, and is regulated by sections 50 and 72-77 infra of the Judicature Act, and the Acts referred to in those sections.

Where a habeas corpus is granted in a civil proceeding, e.g., for obtaining the custody of a child, an appeal lies to a Divisional Court from an order of attachment for disobedience to the writ: see 74 (1); whether a further appeal to the Court of Appeal would lie from the order of the Divisional Court would depend upon secs. 50, 75 and 76, as in any other civil case: see Reg. v. Barnardo, 23 Q. B. D. 305; an appeal to the Court of Appeal lies from the order of a single Judge remanding a person to custody upon a return to a habeas corpus issued under R. S. O. c. 83: see R. S. O. c. 83, s. 6; Re Harper, 23 Ont. 63, and section 50 (2) clause (i) infra.

Criminal Jurisdiction of Court of Appeal.—This section does not enlarge the civil jurisdiction of the Court of Appeal, and of course cannot give it any criminal jurisdiction which it does not otherwise possess: see Cox v. Hakes, 15 App. Cas. per Lord Bramwell, p. 527. The criminal jurisdiction of the Court of Appeal now extends only to those cases in which it is conferred by Dominion legislation, and those in which an appeal is given by statute of the Province in respect of branches of laws within the power of the Province to enact: see Reg. v. Eli, 13 Ont. App. 526; R. S. O. c. 91; Reg. v. Cushing, 26 Ont. App. 248; and perhaps also to appeals from a Divisional Court of the High Court refusing a habeas corpus, or refusing to discharge a prisoner in a criminal proceeding upon a return to a habeas corpus: see 29 & 30 Vict. c. 45, s. 6 (which is to be found at p. 446 in the volume of the Statutes of Canada and the Provinces, not repealed, and yet not included in R. S. C. 1886; Reg. v. Brown, 6 Ont. App. 386; Reg. v. Boucher, 4 Ont. App. 191. In these cases it was held that there is no appeal under the latter statute to the Court of Appeal from a single Judge; but see contra, Reg. v. St. Clair, 27 Ont. App. 308, where R. S. O. c. 83, was assumed to be applicable. Where a habeas corpus is refused an appeal lies to the Court of Appeal and its judgment is final: see Taylor v. Scott, 30 Ont. 475. No appeal to the Court of Appeal lies from an order of the High Court discharging a prisoner Sec. 50. on the return of a habeas corpus in a civil, and a fortiori in a criminal proceeding: see Cox v. Hakes, 15 App. Cas. 506 (and see per Lord Halsbury, L.C., pp. 514 and 522).

In Reg. v. Cushing, 26 Ont. App. 248. It was held that no appeal lies to the Court of Appeal from an order of a Divisional Court quashing a conviction by a Police Magistrate for a breach of a municipal by-law. Whether under the recent enactments of 4 Ed. vii. c. 11 (see infra, section 67 (1) (c), and section 75), there would be an appeal in such case, and in the case of convictions generally, for offences against Ontario statutes, quære? It may be that the question of appeal in such case depends on whether the case falls within the terms of sec. 76: see Re v. Mancion, 8 O. L. R. 24. See Addenda

In the case of convictions under Dominion legislation there would seem to be no appeal to the Court of Appeal unless one is given by Dominion legislation.

For instances in which the Court of Appeal has exercised appellate jurisdiction in criminal cases arising from a breach of Provincial Statutes: see Reg. v. Potter, 20 Ont. App. 516; Reg. v. Sloan, 18 Ont. App. 482; Reg. v. Hazen, 20 Ont. App. 633; Reg. v. Elborne, 19 Ont. App. 439; Reg. v. Hodge, 7 Ont. App. 246, (where the cases arose under The Liquor License Act: R. S. O. c. 245. s. 3), and Reg. v. Edwards, 19 Ont. App. 706; Reg. v. Wason, 17 Ont. App. 221 (under R. S. O. c. 91, see s. 3). As to the legislative authority of a Provincial Legislature in regard to offences against Provincial Acts: see Atty.-Gen. for Ontario v. Hamilton Street Railway Co., 1903, A. C. 524.

The "Court of Appeal" referred to in the Cr. Code, s. 742, is "the Court of Appeal for Ontario": see Cr. Code. s. 3 (c); as amended by 63-64 V. c. 46.

In civil and criminal cases, the jurisdiction of the Court of Appeal is appellate only: see Brown v. Collins, W. N. 1883, 155. It has original jurisdiction in election cases (s. 50) and in cases relating to constitutional or provincial questions referred under R. S. O. c. 84.

50.—(1) The Court of Appeal shall have jurisdiction and power to hear and determine appeals from any judgment, order or decision, save as in this Act mentioned, of a Divisional Court of the High Court, subject to the provisions of this Act, and to such Rules and Orders of the Court for regulating the terms and conditions on which appeals shall be allowed, as are now in force or may be made pursuant to this Act. 4 Ed. vii. c. 11. s. 2, part.

(2) The Court of Appeal shall also have jurisdiction as provided by

- (a) The Ontario Voters' Lists Act,
- (b) The Ontario Election Act,
- (c) The Ontario Controverted Elections Act,
- (d) The Registry Act,

Appeal from Divisional
Court—present rights continued.

(3) For greater certainty it is hereby declared that notwithstanding the provisions of section 75 an appeal shall lie to the Court of Appeal from any judgment, order or decision of a Divisional Court in any of the cases mentioned in sub-section 2 in which such appeal now lies. 4 Ed. vii. c. 11, s. 2, part.

May quash proceedings
When

51 The Court of Appeal shall have power to quash proceedings in cases brought before it, in which appeal does not lie, or where such proceedings are taken against good faith. 58 V. c. 12, s. 46.

Where a party had lodged an appeal contrary to an undertaking he had given not to appeal, it was held that the Master in Chambers had jurisdiction to enforce the undertaking by setting aside the proceedings in appeal; Donovan v. Haldane, 14 P. R. 106. Semble, in such a case the order should now be made in the Court of Appeal. See Rule 799, and see, 131, infra, and note to s. 54.

To make whatever
be required

52. The Court of Appeal shall have power to dismiss an appeal, or give any judgment and make any decree or order which ought to have been made, and to direct the issue of any process, or the taking of any proceedings in the Court below.

or to award restitution and payment of costs, or to make Sec. 52. such further or other order as the case may require. 58 V. c. 12, s. 47.

The Court may make such order as is justified by the law as then existing, though the effect be to vary a decision of the Court below, which was in accordance with the then existing law: Quilter v. Mapleson, 47 L. T. 561; Re Gillespie and Toronto, 19 Ont. App. 713.

While there is no rule of law or procedure which prevents the Supreme Court or any intermediate Court of Appeal from reversing the decision at the trial on the facts: Dempster v. Lewis, 1903; 33 S. C. R. 292; nevertheless the Supreme Court in its discretion has refused to reconsider concurrent findings of the Courts below on the facts; see Matthews v. Bouchard, 28 S. C. R. 580; G. T. Ry. Co. v. Rainville, 29 S. C. R. 201; and the rule generally followed by the Courts is not to review the findings of the Judge of first instance, where his decision depends upon the balance of testimony: Hall v. Kennedy, 8 Ont. App. 157; Cook v. Patterson, 10 Ont. App. 645. Review of questions of fact.

The appellate Court, however, is not deterred from reversing such a judgment merely by the consideration that the Judge of first instance had the advantage of seeing the demeanour of the witnesses and their manner of giving their evidence, unless the decision of the case rests upon the credibility of the witnesses, and the Judge in determining the credit to be given to them proceeded upon their demeanour: see Day v. Brown, 18 Gr. 681; Morrison v. Robinson, 10 Gr. 480; Armstrong v. Gage, 23 Gr. 1; Ryon v. Ryan, 5 S. C. R. 406; The Picton, 4 S. C. R. 648; Little v. Brunker, 28 Gr. 191; The Glanibanta, 1 P. D. 283; Bigsby v. Dickinson, 4 Ch. D. 24; Symington v. Symington, L. R. 2 Sc. App. 424; Gray v. Turnbull, ib. 53; Redgrave v. Hurd, 20 Ch. D. 22; Trumpour v. Saylor, 1 Ont. App. 104; Taylor v. Taylor, ib. 264; Re Randolph, ib. 331; The Milanese, 43 L. T. 107; Bickford v. Hawkins, 19 S. C. R. 362; Warner v. Hurroy, 16 S. C. R. 720; N. British, etc., Co. v. Tourville, 25 S. C. R. 177; Coghlan v. Cumberland, 1898, 1 Ch. 704; 78 L. T. 540; Lefeunteum v. Beau-doin, 28 S. C. R. 89.

Where the appellate Court has the same materials before it as the Court whose decision it is reviewing, the above considerations do not apply: Redgrave v. Hurd, 20 Ch. D. 23; e.g., where evidence was taken by commission; Malzard v. Hart, 27 S. C. R. 510; and the Court will exercise its judgment on the evidence just as it would on a question of law. It will reverse the judgment if satisfied that it is wrong: Berdan v. Greenwood, 20 Ch. D. 769 n.; Jones v. Hough, 5 Ex. 11, 122; Prentice v. Consolidated Bank, 13 Ont. App. 69; otherwise it will affirm it: Symington v. Symington, sup.; Hale v. Kennedy, 8 Ont. App. 157. See also Card v. Cooley, 4 C. L. T. 248; Berthier Election Case, 9 S. C. R. 102; Grasett v. Carter, 10 S. C. R. 105.

Where the case does not so turn upon the credibility of the witnesses, but upon the proper inference to be drawn from all the evidence in the case, it is the duty of the Court to review the conclusion arrived at by the Court below upon the questions of fact: Russell v. Lefrançois, 8 S. C. R. 535; Cameron v. Bickford, 11 Ont. App. 52. Thus, where, without differing from the Judge as to the credibility of the witnesses, the appellate Court came to a different conclusion upon the evidence, documentary and written, the judgment was reversed: Cameron v. Bickford, 11 Ont. App. 52.

Sec. 53

Read v. Anderson, 13 Q. B. D. 781, where Brett, M.R., said that the Court of Appeal was not bound by the findings of fact by a Judge who tried the case without a jury, is not inconsistent with the above cases; see also Sugden v. St. Leonards, 1 P. D. 200.

In appeals to the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council, where there have been concurrent findings of fact by the Courts below, the question in appeal in the P. C. is not what conclusion the P. C. would have arrived at if the matter had come for the first time before them, but whether it has been established that the Courts below were clearly wrong: Allen v. Quebec Warehouse Co., 12 App. Cas. 111.

The Supreme Court of Canada refused to interfere with a decision of the Court of Appeal in a matter of procedure, viz., whether a verdict of a jury was a general or a special verdict: Toronto Railway Co. v. Balfour, 32 S. C. R. 231.

The amount of damages awarded by the Judge at the trial will not be interfered with by an appellate Court unless clearly unsupported by evidence and unreasonable, or there is some error of fact, or law, or partiality, on the part of the Judge: Coussette v. Dun, 18 S. C. R. 222; Montreal Gas Co. v. St. Laurent, 26 S. C. R. 176; in McGarr v. Prescott, 4 O. L. R. 250, the damages were reduced from $1500 to $900.

The Court has power under this section, and sec. 53, to increase damages awarded to a respondent without a cross appeal by him: Toronto Junction v. Christie, 25 S. C. R. 551.

The Supreme Court refused to disturb a verdict attacked as being against the weight of evidence after it had been affirmed by the Court of Appeal: Toronto Railway Co. v. Balfour, supra.

Powers of Court of Appeal.

53. The powers of the Court of Appeal may be exercised, notwithstanding that the appeal is brought against part only of the judgment of the Court below; and may be exercised in favour of all or any of the respondents or parties, although such respondents or parties may not have appealed from, or complained of the judgment. 58 V. c. 12, s. 48.

One of two or more plaintiffs (Beckett v. Attwood, 18 Ch. D. 511), or counter-claiming defendants (Hester v. Hester, 71 L. T. Jour. 153), where the claim or counter-claim respectively is dismissed, may appeal, where the others refuse to join they being made respondents.

As to how far a party not appealing can obtain relief on an appeal by another party: see Black v. Black, 9 Gr. 413; 2 E. & A. 419; Sampson v. McArthur, 8 Gr. 84; Topping v. Joseph, 1 E. & A. 305, 322; Kent v. Freehold, etc., L. R. 3 Chy. 493; Vaughan v. Halliday, L. R. 9 Chy. 561; Gilbert v. Jarvis, 16 Gr. 275, 279; Saffron Waldron Benefit Co. v. Bayne, 14 Ch. D. 406, 419; Dilke v. Douglas, 5 Ont. App. 43 (as to which see 1 O. L. R. p. 294); Peterkin v. McFarlane, 6 Ont. App. 254; R. Gaborie, 12 P. R. 252; Esdaile v. Piquet, 50 L. T. 804; 40 Ch. D. 520; R. Rawlins, 45 Ch. D. 299; Toronto Junction v. Christie, 25 S. C. R. 551; Hackin v. Robidon, 7 Gr. 215; Hunter v. Hunter, 24 W. R. 527; Challoner v. Lobo, 1 O. L. R. 292; Atty.-Gen. v. Simpson, 1901, 2 Ch. 671; 85 L. T. 325.

Leave to appeal may be given to a person interested, but not a party: Re Markham, 16 Ch. D. 1; Re Securities, etc., Co., 1894, 2 Ch. 410; but only where his interest is such that he might have been made a party by service: Crawcour v. Salter, 30 W. R. 329; see also Langtry v. Dumoulin, 11 Ont. App. 544; Wood v. Madras, 23 Ch. D. 248; Watson v. Cave, 17 Ch. D. 19; Re Claggett, 30 W. R. 374; Ex p. Tupper, 12 Ch. D. 308; Re Youngs, Doggett v. Revett, 33 W. R. 880; 53 L. T. 682.

54. In any cause or matter pending before the Court of Appeal any direction incidental thereto, not involving the decision of the appeal, may be given by a single Judge of the Court of Appeal; and a single Judge of the Court of Appeal may at any time during vacation make any interim order to prevent prejudice to the claims of any parties pending an appeal, as he may think fit; but every such order made by a single Judge may be discharged or varied by the Court of Appeal or a Divisional Court thereof. 58 V. c. 12, s. 49.

Same as Eng. Jud. Act, 1873, s. 52.

A matter becomes pending before the Court of Appeal upon the service of notice of intention to appeal: Rule 799; see also Sugden v. St. Leonards, 1 P. D. 200.

A matter is ~~not~~ pending in the Court of Appeal after its decision has been certified under Rule 818; Hargrove v. Royal Templars, 2 O. L. R. 126; and a Judge of the Court of Appeal has no jurisdiction thereafter to stay proceedings pending a proposed appeal to the Supreme Court, either under s. 54 or 60-61 Viet. c. 34, s. 1 (D.) Ib.

On an appeal by a party committed for extradition it would seem that a single Judge of the Court of Appeal has no jurisdiction under this section to admit the applicant to bail: Re Watts, 3 O. L. R. 279.

Where pending an appeal from an order refusing an injunction to restrain erection of buildings, the buildings were completed before the appeal could be argued, it was said that an interim order should have been applied for under the corresponding section of the Eng. Act: Johnstone v. Royal Courts, W. N. 1883, 5.

In a matter of discretion an order made by a single Judge will not be interfered with by the Court: Acill v. Tracellers' Ins. Co., 9 Ont. App. 54; Platt v. G. T. Ry. Co., 12 P. R. 380.

55. For all the purposes of and incidental to the hearing and determination of any such appeal, and the amendment, execution, and enforcement of any judgment or order made on such appeal, and for the purpose of every other authority given to the Court of Appeal by this Act, the said Court of Appeal shall have all the power, authority and jurisdiction by this Act vested in the High Court. 58 V. c. 12, s. 50.

On an appeal Court of Appeal to have all powers of High Court.

This corresponds substantially with the second part of the English J. A. 1873, section 19.

This section only confers additional powers on the Court of Appeal without interfering with the practice under the Rules, so that Secs. 56, 57. execution for costs, etc., awarded by the Court of Appeal is to be issued out of the Court appealed from: Freed v. Orr, 2 C. L. T. 90; see Lowson v. Canada Farmers' Ins. Co., 8 Ont. App. 613; Rule 818; and Cox v. Hakes, 15 App. Cas. 520.

Jurisdic-
to Rules, etc.

56. The jurisdiction and power of the Court of Appeal, in respect of the said matters and all others, shall be and are subject to the provisions of this Act, and to such Rules and Orders of Court for regulating the terms and conditions on which such appeals shall be allowed as are now in force or as may be made pursuant to this Act. 58 V. c. 12, s. 51.

Same in effect as Eng. J. A., 1873, s. 19, first part.

RULES OF LAW.

Law and equity to be concu-rently administered.

57. In every civil cause or matter commenced in the High Court of Justice, law and equity shall be administered by the High Court and the Court of Appeal respectively according to the rules following:

relief.

1. If any plaintiff or petitioner claims to be entitled to any equitable estate or right, or to relief upon any equitable ground against any deed, instrument or contract, or against any right, title or claim whatsoever asserted by any defendant or respondent in such cause or matter, or to any relief founded upon a legal right which heretofore could only have been given by a Court of Equity, the said Courts respectively, and every Judge thereof, shall give to such plaintiff or petitioner such and the same relief as ought to have been given by the Court of Chancery in a suit or proceedings for the same or the like purposes properly instituted before the passing of The Judicature Act, 1881.

Taken from Eng. J. A., 1873, s. 24, sub-sec. 1.

This and the next section deal with the old anomaly of different Courts, recognizing different rights and duties, applying different remedies to the same case, and in some cases even enforcing rules of law in conflict with one another. The removal of the conflict of law is provided for by sec. 58. The rest of the matter is dealt with in the present section, the provisions of which have been summarized thus:—

The plaintiff may assert an equitable claim in the High Court (sub-sec. 1); and may obtain an equitable remedy (ibid.); the defendant may raise any equitable answer or defence to any claim; that is to say, anything which would formerly have been good by way of answer if the suit had been brought in Chancery (sub-sec. 2), or would have afforded ground for an injunction if the action had been brought at law (sub-sec. 9); and he may assert, by way of counter-^{Sec. 57.} claim against the plaintiff, any claim, legal or equitable, which he might have raised by a cross suit at Law, or in Equity (sub-sec. 7); the defendant may also obtain relief relating to, or connected with, the original subject of the action, against other persons, whether already parties or not (ibid.). The Court is to recognize equitable rights incidentally appearing (sub-sec. 8); no cause is to be restrained by injunction; what would have been ground for injunction is to be raised by way of defence, or upon an application to stay proceedings (sub-sec. 9). Subject to these provisions, Common Law rights and duties are to be recognized (sub-sec. 11). Every Court is to apply all appropriate remedies, and dispose of all matters in controversy (sub-sec. 12). (Wilson Jud. Act, 7th ed., p. 15).

By the operation of the Act the High Court is to administer justice according to so much of the principles of the two old systems as may be necessary to give complete and effectual relief to suitors: Gibbs v. Guild, 9 Q. B. D. 66, per Lord Coleridge, citing Pugh v. Heath, 7 App. Cas. 237; therefore concealed fraud, and the absence of means of discovery, will, if pleaded, prevent the application of the Statute of Limitations, as formerly in pure Equity proceedings: Gibbs v. Guild, 8 Q. B. D. 296; 9 Q. B. D. 59; Barber v. Houston, 14 L. R. Jr. 273; irrespective of the question whether such matters formerly constituted at Law a good answer to a plea of the Statute.

In Adamson v. Adamson, 7 Ont. App. 592, the opinion was expressed by Burton, J.A., that notwithstanding the Jud. Act, the owner of an equitable estate cannot proceed to recover possession of land against a trespasser in possession, but was bound to sue in the name of the person having the legal estate. This opinion did not form part of the judgment of the Court in the case, and was founded upon the view that before the Administration of Justice Act, 1873, ejectment would not lie in such a case, and that the latter Act only enabled the Court of Chancery to entertain suits for ejectment in the same way as the Courts of Common Law. The point, which did not there distinctly arise, as the proceedings were before the Jud. Act, has since been considered in Heenan v. Heenan, 3 C. L. T. 163; Thorne v. Williams, 13 Ont. 577, and Gordon v. Armstrong, 16 P. R. 432; see also Jones v. McGrath, 16 Ont. 617, where the opinion was expressed that since the Jud. Act, such an action may be maintained by the equitable owner in his own name; but the owner of the legal estate should also be made a party to the action: Cope v. Crichton, 30 Ont. 603; Allen v. Woods, 68 L. T. 143; Saylor v. Cooper, 2 Ont. 338; Fairclough v. Marshall, 4 Ex. D. 37; and Goodrich v. Everglyn Coal Co., W. N. 1889, 152.

In an action of ejectment by the owner of the legal title, he was, on the counter-claim of the defendant setting up an equitable title, ordered to convey the legal estate to the defendant: Trinidad Asphalt Co. v. Corput, 1896, A. C. 587.

For definitions of "plaintiff," "petitioner," "defendant," see s. 2.

2. The High Court shall have jurisdiction to en-^{Jurisdiction as to validity of Provincial statute.}tertain an action at the instance of either the Attorney-General for the Dominion, or the Attorney-General of this Province, for a declaration as to the validity of any statute, or any provision in any statute of this Legislature.

THE JUDICATURE ACT.

though no further relief should be prayed or sought; and the action shall be deemed sufficiently constituted if the two officers aforesaid are parties thereto. A judgment in the action shall be appealable like other judgments of the said Court.

Under this sub-section or R. S. O. c. 84, cases have been submitted as to the validity of 53 V. c. 56, s. 18: Re Local Option Act, 18 Ont. App. 572; 24 S. C. R. 145, 170; 1896, A. C. 348; of 51 V. c. 5 (O.) (remitting of sentences): Atty.-Gen. for Canada v. Atty.-Gen. for Ontario, 20 Ont. App. 222; 19 Ont. App. 31; 23 S. C. R. 458; of R. S. O. 1897, c. 147, s. 11: Re Assignments and Preferences Act, 20 Ont. App. 480; 1894, A. C. 189; of R. S. O. c. 173, s. 6: Re Queen's Counsel, 23 Ont. App. 792; S. C. sub. nom. Atty.-Gen. for Canada v. Atty.-Gen. of Ontario, 1898, A. C. 247.

As to the questions which should be put under R. S. O. c. 84: see Atty.-Gen. for Ontario v. Hamilton Street Ry. Co., 1903, A. C. 524.

See sec. 60, infra, which provides for the case of the validity of a Statute of Canada or of Ontario being questioned in an ordinary action.

The Supreme Court has no jurisdiction to entertain an appeal from the opinion of a Provincial Court upon a reference made by the Lieut.-Governor in Council under a Provincial Act, although the statute provides that such opinion shall be deemed a judgment of the Court: Union Colliery Co. v. A.-G. of Brit. Columbia, 27 S. C. R. 637.

Relief
against penalties,
etc.

3. Subject to appeal as in other cases, the High Court shall have power to relieve against all penalties and forfeitures. (a) and in granting such relief to impose such terms as to costs, expenses, damages, compensation, and all other matters, as the Court thinks fit.

Taken from 49 V. c. 16, s. 38; 58 V. c. 12, s. 52 (3), which, however, had at (a) the words "and agreements for liquidated damages" struck out subsequently by 60 V. c. 15, Sched. (64).

See also secs. 30, 57 (8), to which this section is supplementary. Similar power was at the same time (see 49 V. c. 16, s. 38), conferred upon the County and Division Courts: see R. S. O. c. 55, s. 28, and c. 60, s. 75. It has not been determined whether there is power to relieve against a forfeiture which a Court of Equity would not formerly relieve against; e.g. for breach of a covenant not to assign or sublet without leave; but the Court has refused to give such relief. Barrow v. Isaacs, 1891, 1 Q. B. 417; 64 L. T. 686; Eastern Tel. Co. v. Dent, 1899, 1 Q. B. 835. A forfeiture for such a breach was not formerly relieved against in Equity: Hill v. Barclay, 18 Ves. 63, and the relief does not seem to be contemplated by R. S. O. c. 170, sec. 13, sub-sec. 6), passed in 1886 in the same Session in which the present section was enacted.

When the party seeking relief has himself by negligence or design participated in, or contributed to the forfeiture, query, is he entitled to relief: see Lurray v. Oakshette, 1897, 2 Q. B. 218.

The Court would seem to have no jurisdiction under this section sec. 57. to relieve against the payment of liquidated damages for breach of contract: Empire Loan & S. Co. v. McKee, 5 O. L. R. 710; although it had under 58 V. c. 12, s. 52 (3) as originally framed: see Townsend v. T. H. & B. Ry., 28 Ont. 196; and see Clyde Engineer, etc., Co. v. Castuneda, 91 L. T. 686.

4. No appointment, which after the 25th day of March, 1886, is made in exercise of a power to appoint any property, real or personal, among several objects, shall be adjudged to be invalid on the ground that any object of the power has been altogether excluded, and an appointment shall be valid and effectual notwithstanding that one or more of the objects shall not thereby or in default of appointment take a share or shares of the property which is subject to the power.

But nothing in this subsection shall prejudice or affect any provision in any deed, will or other instrument creating a power, which shall declare the amount or the share or shares from which no object of the power shall be excluded, or shall declare some one or more object or objects of the power who shall not be excluded.

Adopted from Imp. Act, 37 & 38 V. c. 37. See further provisions, R. S. O. c. 330, ss. 31 and 33.

As to the law before the Act, see Bulfeel v. Plummer, L. R. 6 Chy. 160. The Act applies only to an appointment made after 25th March, 1886, not to one made before, though only taking effect after that date: see Moyman v. Moyman, 1 L. R. Ir. 382.

5. No action or proceeding shall be open to objection on the ground that a merely declaratory judgment or order is sought thereby, and the Court may make binding declarations of right, whether any consequential relief is or could be claimed or not.

This section is the same as Eng. O. 25. r. 5, and is an amended reproduction of Chy. O. 538. It does not make any radical change in the rules and practice of the Court: Bunnell v. Gordon, 20 Ont. 281.

Chancery Order 538 was held only to apply to cases where the plaintiff was entitled to relief consequent upon the declaration he asked, if he chose to claim it, but it was held not to apply to cases where the plaintiff was not entitled to claim any relief consequent upon the declaration: Rooke v. Lord Kingsdown, 2 K. & J. 753; Clark v. Cook, 23 Gr. 110; Copswell v. Sugden, 24 Gr. 474; Brookes v. Conley, 8 Ont. 549. Thus, a decree was pronounced declaring the true construction of a will, without directing administration, in a case where the plaintiff was entitled to the latter relief if he desired it: Murphy v. Murphy, 20 Gr. 575; and see Canada Central Ry. Co. v. The Queen, ib. 303. This section was passed to enable the Court to pronounce a declaratory decree whether consequent relief could be claimed or not. But notwithstanding the power thus conferred the jurisdiction will be exercised with great caution: Austen v. Collins, 54 L. T. 903. See also Grand Junction W. W. v. Hampton Urban, etc., Co., 1898, 2 Ch. 331.

Declaratory judgments and orders.

Sec. 57

Semble, the Court has now jurisdiction under this section to make a declaration of the legitimacy of a plaintiff, and his right in remainder to a title and estates: West v. Sackville, 1903, 2 Ch. 378; 88 L. T. 514.

A declaratory judgment is a judicial act, and will not be made merely on admissions of counsel, or by consent: Williams v. Powell, W. N. 1894, 141.

A declaratory judgment may be pronounced even though the cause of action be one at Common Law: e.g., that defendant is a trespasser on land: Harrison v. Rutland, 1893, 1 Q. B. 142; 68 L. T. 37; that certain land is a highway: Toronto v. Lorsch, 24 Ont. 227; Callerton v. Miller, 26 Ont. 36; Gooderham v. Toronto, 19 Ont. App. 641; and the rights of parties in unpatented lands: Pride v. Rodger, 27 Ont. 320; and regulations of defendants have been declared to be not binding upon the plaintiff, without granting any consequential relief: London Ass'n of Shipowners v. London and India Docks, 1892, 3 Ch. 242. De facto marriages may also be declared invalid: see supra, p. 19.

A declaration was made that a lessor was not entitled to impose a particular condition attached by him to a license to assign, and that the lessee was entitled to assign without any further consent of the lessor: Young v. Ashley Gardens Properties, Limited, 1903, 2 Ch. 112; 88 L. T. 541.

In Bunnell v. Gordon, 20 Ont. 281, the plaintiff asked for a declaration that she was entitled to an inchoate right of dower. She had joined in a mortgage with her husband to bar dower. Subsequently the husband had assigned his equity of redemption to an assignee for the benefit of creditors, and the mortgagees were proceeding for a sale. The plaintiff claimed a declaration in order to have a portion of any surplus arising on such sale set apart to answer her dower, in case it should become consummate by the death of her husband. The declaration was refused, it being held that what was asked was a declaration as to a claim which might be made by another or others under circumstances which might or might not happen: see also Thomson v. Cushing, 30 Ont. 123.

Where a right of recovery was given by statute in a Court of summary jurisdiction, it was held that the High Court had no power to make a declaratory judgment that the plaintiff had such right: Barracough v. Brown, 1897, A. C. 615.

A declaration was refused as to the validity of a life policy during the life of the assured, even where the Society issuing the policy had refused to accept from the holder premiums upon the ground that the policy was void: Honour v. Equitable Life, etc., 1900, 1 Ch. 852.

A declaration that a debtor was the beneficial owner of a claim against the Dominion Government, was refused, the plaintiff not being in a position to claim any consequential relief: Stewart v. Guibord, 6 O. L. R. 202.

A declaration of right in respect of a matter which the Legislature had expressly assigned to the Surrogate Court Registrar was also refused: Attorney-General v. Cameron, 20 Ont. App. 103. Sec. 87.

A declaratory decree was refused under the former practice where it was sought for the purpose of protecting the plaintiff against a contingent claim by the defendant: Jackson v. Turnley, 1 Drew, 617; and see Cogswell v. Sugden, supra; and also where it was sought to affect future rights in events which had not happened: Lungdale v. Briggs, 8 D. M. & G. 391; Dowling v. Dowling, L. R. 1 Chy. 412; or persons entitled in reversion: Guthrie v. Lawson, 10 Ha. App. xv.; or not in case, Bright v. Tyndall, 4 Ch. D. 189; or to declare a purely legal question as against infants, even by consent: Webb v. Byng, 8 D. M. & G. 633; De Windt v. De Windt, L. R. 1 H. L. 87; or to declare a merely legal right: Trustees of Birkenhead Docks v. Laird, 1 D. M. & G. 732; Bristow v. Whitmore, 4 K. & J. 743; Metropolitan Board of Works v. Sant, L. R. 7 Eq. 197; Jenner v. Jenner, L. R. 1 Eq. 361; see also Miller v. Robertson, 35 S. C. R. 80; but see now supra. Other cases in which declaratory judgments have been refused.

But in some cases the Court made a decree declaring future rights. Thus the question of the right of renewal, on which a lessee's claim to compensation for land taken by a railway depended, was declared: Bogg v. Midland Ry. Co., L. R. 4 Eq. 310; and, to save expense, it has construed exoneratory marriage articles: Bynum v. Bynum, 19 Beav. 58. Cases in which declaration of right made

A merely declaratory judgment will not prevent the setting up of the Statute of Limitations against the person in whose favour the declaration is made: Cope v. Cope, 26 Ont. 441.

County Courts.—This sub-section applies to County Courts in cases otherwise within the jurisdiction of a County Court: Bradley v. Barber, 30 Ont. 443, 449.

6. If any defendant claims to be entitled to any equitable estate or right, or to relief upon any equitable ground against any deed, instrument or contract, or against any right, title or claim asserted by any plaintiff or petitioner in such cause or matter, or alleges any ground of equitable defence to any claim of the plaintiff or petitioner in such cause or matter, the said Courts respectively, and every Judge thereof, shall give to every equitable estate, right or ground of relief so claimed, and to every equitable defence so alleged, such and the same effect, by way of defence against the claim of such plaintiff or petitioner, as the Court of Chancery ought to have given if the same or the like matters had been relied on by way of defence in any suit or proceedings instituted in that Court for the same or the like purposes before the passing of The Ontario Judicature Act, 1881. defendants.

7. The said Courts respectively, and every Judge thereof, shall also have power to grant to any defendant in respect of any equitable estate or right or other matter of equity, and also in respect of any legal estate, right or title claimed or asserted by him, all such relief against any plaintiff or petitioner as such defendant shall have properly claimed by his pleading, and as the said Courts respectively, or any Judge thereof, might have granted in any suit instituted for that purpose by the same defendant against the same plaintiff or petitioner; and also all such relief relating to or connected with the original subject of the cause or matter, and in like manner claimed against any other person, whether already a party to the same cause or matter or not, who shall have been duly served with notice in writing of such claim pursuant to any rule of Court or any order of the Court, as might properly have been granted against such person if he had been made a defendant to a cause duly instituted by the same defendant for the like purpose; and every person served with any such notice shall thenceforth be deemed a party to such cause or matter, with the same rights in respect of his defence against such claim as if he had been duly sued in the ordinary way by such defendant.

The Rules respecting set-off and counterclaims (Rule 251. et seq.), and third parties (Rules 209-216) were made in furtherance of the powers conferred by this sub-section. See notes to those Rules.

As to how far Rules have been made to regulate the exercise of the powers conferred by this section of granting relief between co-defendants: see Treleavan v. Bray, 45 L. J. Chy. 113; and notes to Rule 209, et seq.

This section does not entitle a defendant to proceed by way of counterclaim against a co-defendant unless the plaintiff is also interested in such counterclaim: if the plaintiff is not so interested, the defendant must seek his relief against a co-defendant under the third party procedure: Cope v. Crichton, 18 P. R. 462.

In Mudge v. Adams, 50 L. J. Pro. 49; 17 C. L. J. 369, an action propounding the will of a married woman made after she had obtained a protection order, and become possessed of separate estate, the defendant set up that the protection order had been fraudulently obtained, and claimed by way of cross relief to have it set aside, Sec. 57. the will pronounced against, and administration granted to the defendant: and it was held to be within this section as asserting by counterclaim what might be asserted in a suit against the same plaintiff.

A defendant is not bound to make his cross claims in the same action, but may assert them by cross action. Thus where an action was brought against shippers and consignees for damages for detention at the port of lading, and for freight, and the defendants brought a cross action for a larger sum for damages for loss of cargo by the shipowners' negligence, and the writs were issued on the same day and statement of claim delivered first in the former action, a Master stayed proceedings in the second action with liberty to the plaintiffs in it to file a counterclaim in the first action; but it was held on appeal that though there was jurisdiction to make such an order, it should only be exercised where the points in issue are the same, and that in the case in question the right to bring a cross action should not be interfered with: Adams v. Tuff, 44 L. T. 420. See also the notes to sec. 57 (9) and Rule 435.

As to the effect of the concluding words of this section, see Fowler v. Knoop in note to Rule 209.

8. The said Courts respectively, and every Judge thereof, shall recognize and take notice of all equitable estates, titles and rights, and all equitable duties and liabilities appearing incidentally in the course of any cause or matter, in the same manner in which the Court of Chancery would have recognized and taken notice of the same in any suit or proceedings duly instituted therein before the passing of The Ontario Judicature Act, 1881. Courts to take notice of equitable rights and duties.

Identical with the Eng. J. A., 1873, section 24 (4).

In Williams v. Snowden, W. N. 1880, 124, a plaintiff in ejectment was ordered specifically to perform an agreement to lease the premises to defendant, which agreement, though not raised by defence, appeared incidentally in the cause. See Mostyn v. W. Mostyn, etc., 1 C. P. D. 145; Borrowes v. Delancy, 24 L. R. Ir. 503, where it incidentally appeared that a party was entitled to have a deed rectified. See also Furness v. Bond, W. N. 1888, 78; Scott v. Brown, 1892, 2 Q. B. 724; Annesley v. Annesley, 31 L. R. Ir. 457; and cases in note to sub-sec. 6.

The doctrine of Equity whereby part performance furnishes a ground for enforcing a contract not enforceable at law by reason of s. 4 of the Statute of Frauds, is confined to suits as to the sale of interests in land, and has not been extended by the Jud. Act. The Jud. Act confers no new rights, but alters procedure only: Britain v. Rossiter, 11 Q. B. D. 123. See also Gibbs v. Guild, 9 Q. B. D. 67, and notes to sec. 58, sub-sec. 8.

Under this section relief was given against a forfeiture in an action to re-enter for breach of covenant for payment of taxes which the defendant paid before statement of claim delivered: Buckley v. Beigle, 8 Ont. 87.

Sec. 57.

Notwithstanding this sub-section an equitable assignment is not equivalent to a legal assignment, and is not a breach of a covenant not to assign without leave: Gentle v. Faulkner, 1900, 2 Q. B. 207; 82 L. T. 708.

Section 57 (3) also now enables the Court to relieve against penalties and forfeitures.

Restraining proceedings.

9. No cause or proceeding at any time pending in the High Court of Justice or before the Court of Appeal shall be restrained by prohibition or injunction; but every matter of equity on which an injunction against the prosecution of any such cause or proceeding might have been obtained, prior to The Ontario Judicature Act, 1881, either unconditionally or on any terms or conditions, may be relied on by way of defence thereto:

Provided always, that nothing in this Act contained shall disable either of the said Courts from directing a stay of proceedings in any cause or matter pending before it, if it shall think fit; and any person, whether a party or not (a) to any such cause or matter, who would have been entitled, prior to The Ontario Judicature Act, 1881, to apply to any Court to restrain the prosecution thereof, or who may be entitled to enforce by attachment or otherwise, any judgment, decree, rule or order, contrary to which all or any part of the proceedings in such cause or matter may have been taken, shall be at liberty to apply to the said Courts respectively, by motion in a summary way, for a stay of proceedings in such cause or matter either generally, or so far as may be necessary for the purposes of justice; and the Court shall thereupon make such order as shall be just.

The effect of this sub-section is that, in ordinary cases, whatever would formerly have been ground for an injunction restraining an action must now be raised in the action, either by way of defence, or upon an application to stay proceedings: Garbutt v. Fawcus, 1 Ch. D. 155.

(a) "Whether a party or not." The jurisdiction to stay proceedings on the application of a person not a party is only to be exercised where the action is an improper one, or where its prosecution might have been restrained by injunction under the former practice in Chancery, and only where the applicant is one who seeks to intervene, and can properly be added as a party: Fawkes v. Griffin, 17 P. R. 473.

An application to stay proceedings in an action must be made in Sec. 27. the action sought to be stayed, and not by commencing a new action for an injunction: Garbutt v. Faucus, 1 Ch. D. 155; Re South of France Pottery Works Syndicate, 37 L. T. 260; Re People's Garden Company, 1 Ch. D. 4; Walker v. Banagher Distillery Company, 1 Q. B. 129; Wright v. Redgrave, 11 Ch. D. 24; White v. Harrow, 50 W. R. 166. Two decisions to the contrary, Kinchurch v. People's Garden Company, 1 C. P. D. 45, and Needham v. Rivers Protection Company, 1 Ch. D. 253, are overruled. See also Scarle v. Choate, 25 Ch. D. 723; Lane v. Capsey, 1891, 3 Ch. 411, and the same rule applies where the proceedings sought to be stayed are being taken by an officer of the Court, e.g., a sheriff: Wright v. Redgrave, supra; or a receiver: Scarle v. Choate, and Lane v. Capsey, supra.

Thus actions for claims provable (as to which see Crowle v. Russell, 4 C. P. D. 186), in pending administration proceedings must be restrained by motion in the actions and not in the matter in which the administration proceedings are being taken: see Cobbold v. Pryke, 4 Ex. D. 315; Powell v. Jewsbury, 9 Ch. D. 39; Bailey v. Mountith, 3 C. L. T. 599.

Proceedings under a writ of elegit, issued to enforce payment of costs of an action, were stayed where the lands taken under the writ were not lands in the hands of the defendants, chargeable with those costs: Earl Jersey v. Uxbridge Rural Sanitary Authority, 1891, 3 Ch. D. 183.

In Besant v. Wood, 12 Ch. D. 630, it was said that though a pending motion cannot be restrained, a person may, in a proper case, be restrained from instituting proceedings. See also Cercle Restaurant Co. v. Lavery, 18 Ch. D. 555; Hart v. Hart, 18 Ch. D. 670; and Armstrong v. Armstrong, 1892, P. 98, where proceedings in a foreign Court were stayed by injunction: see next sub-section.

See also Hedley v. Bates, 13 Ch. D. 498; (explained Sta v. Giles 20 Ch. D. p. 196); Re Artistic Colour Printing Co., 1 Ch. D. 502; Crowle v. Russell, 4 C. P. D. 186.

Stay to Enforce a Compromise.—Under this clause and sec. 57 (12), the Court has power to enforce a compromise entered into pending an action, and (where no terms of the compromise go beyond what is in controversy in the action: Rees v. Carruthers, 17 P. R. 51), to stay the action on a summary application in that action: Eden v. Naish, 7 Ch. D. 781; Scully v. Lord Dundonald, 8 Ch. D. 658; Re Gaudet Frères Steamship, etc., Co., 12 Ch. D. 882; Baker v. Baker, 55 L. T. 723; Smythe v. Smythe, 18 Q. B. D. 544, followed in Farran v. Hunter (before Ferguson, J., 25th Sept., 1888). See also Davidson v. Merritton, 18 P. R. 139. The former Chy. practice required a fresh suit to be brought for specific performance of the agreement for compromise, unless it related merely to the prosecution of the suit: Pryer v. Gribble, L. R. 10 Chy. 534, or unless where the compromise was entered into before answer, and was set up by the answer and specific performance prayed by way of cross-relief: Small v. Union Perm. B. S., 6 P. R. 206.

A separate action to enforce a compromise may still be brought: Hart v. Hart, 18 Ch. D. 670; Knoules v. Roberts, 58 L. T. 259, and may sometimes be necessary: see Gilbert v. Eudcan, 9 Ch. D. 259, but ordinarily it will be proper to apply in the action for such order as may be necessary. Where the pronouncing of some judgment is necessary to give effect to the compromise, a motion for judgment should be made to the Court; the Master in Chambers would have no jurisdiction to make an order in such a case: Pirung v. Dawson, 4 O. W. R. 499; though possibly he would have jurisdiction where the order required is merely to stay or dismiss the action: see Ib.

The decisions as to staying proceedings upon summary application in case of a compromise are not necessarily applicable to a compromise arrived at pending a reference, as under Rule 667 the Master may after the compromise proceed to report it: Corry v. Lemoine, 18 P. R. 482.

An agreement as to payments after judgment in a foreclosure action was enforced by the appointment of a new day: McCollum v. Caston, 1 O. L. R. 240.

Setting

It has been held that the compromise cannot be set aside on summary application, and that an action is necessary: Emeris v. Woodward, 43 Ch. D. 185; and see Ainsworth v. Wilding, 1896, 1 Ch. 673; 74 L. T. 193; 1897, 2 Ch. 584; 77 L. T. 57; Gilbert v. Endean, 9 Ch. D. 259; but, where necessary, an issue may be directed to determine as to whether a valid agreement of compromise has been arrived at, and a stay may be directed provisionally to be continued in the event of the compromise being valid: Rees v. Carruthers, 17 P. R. 51; and it has also been held that the validity of a compromise agreed to by an illiterate plaintiff without the knowledge or concurrence of his solicitor, may be inquired into, without bringing a new action to set it aside, if the compromise is pleaded in the action alleged to be compromised, and, where that is done, its validity may be tried in the action: Johnston v. G. T. Ry. Co., 25 Ont. 64; 21 Ont. App. 408; Haist v. G. T. Ry. Co., 22 Ont. App. 504; Davidson v. Merrittton, 18 P. R. 139.

Where the intended compromise fails but the plaintiff has obtained some advantage, he will be required to restore it, as a condition of being allowed to continue the action: Henderson v. Underwriting Assoc., 65 L. T. 616, 732; Guy v. Walker, 8 Times, 314.

A stay was refused where an action had been settled by the plaintiff's solicitor, the settlement having been provisional and not adopted by the plaintiff: McDonald v. Field, 12 P. R. 213.

Staying
proceedings

Vexatious Proceedings.—Actions or proceedings which are absolutely groundless are frivolous and vexatious. A stay of such proceedings may be granted not as a substitute for an injunction, but under the inherent jurisdiction of the Court to control its procedure.

"A Court of competent jurisdiction has inherent power to prevent abuse of its process, by staying or dismissing, without proof, actions which it holds to be vexatious": per Lord Watson, Haggard v. Pelicier, 1892, A. C. 61.

The institution of such proceedings is an abuse of the process of the Court, and they may be stayed summarily upon motion: Edmunds v. Attorney-General, 26 W. R. 550; 38 L. T. 213; W. N. 1878, 64. See also Tucker v. Collinson, 34 W. R. 355; 54 L. T. 128, 263; or dismissed: Metropolitan Bank v. Pooley, 10 App. Cas. 210; Ker v. Williams, 79 L. T. Jour. 229; W. N. 1886, 16; Willis v. Earl Beauchamp, 11 P. D. 59; Blair v. Corder, 36 W. R. 64; Grepe v. Loam.

37 Ch. D. 168; Lawrance v. Lord Norreys, 30 Ch. D. 213; 15 App. Sec. 87. Cas. 210; 62 L. T. 706; Warwick v. East, W. N. 1889, 8; Willis v. Earl Howe, 1893, 2 Ch. 545; 69 L. T. 358; e.g., actions against a public officer for an act plainly in accordance with his duty: Castro v. Murray, L. R. 10 Ex. 213; Chatterton v. Secretary of State for India, 1895, 2 Q. B. 189; 72 L. T. 858; against a Judge for any act done in that capacity; Cobbett v. Field, W. N. 1877, 8; Hind v. Brett, W. N. 1883, 37; Anderson v. Gorrie, 1895, 1 Q. B. 668; Haguard v. Pélissier Frères, 1892, A. C. 61, an action against a member of Parliament for a mandamus to compel him to present a petition in Parliament: Chaffers v. Goldsmid, 1894, 1 Q. B. 186; where the point has already been decided against the plaintiff in another action: Dawkins v. Saxe Weimar, etc., 1 Q. B. D. 499; Edmunds v. Attorney-General, supra; Mortlock v. Mortlock, 20 L. T. 773; Horrocks v. Stubbs, 74 L. T. 58; Macdougall v. Knight, 25 Q. B. D. 1; Hall v. Paulet, 66 L. T. 645; Willis v. Howe, 69 L. T. 358; Kellaway v. Burp, 66 L. T. 599; Wallace v. Duff, 94 L. T. Jour. 181; Stephenson v. Garnet, 1898, 1 Q. B. 677; 78 L. T. 371; Whitworth v. Darbshire, 68 L. T. 216; Stephenson v. Garnett, 1898, 1 Q. B. 677; where the plaintiff has no locus standi: Robson v. Dodds, L. R. 8 Eq. 302; Vale v. Oppert, 5 Ch. D. 969; or it is clear that the plaintiff has no cause of action: Lawry v. Tuckett-Lawry, 2 O. L. R. 162; or the case is clearly res judicata: Birch v. Birch, 1902, P. 130; 86 L. T. 334; Boswell v. Coaks, 86 L. T. 365 n; where the claim though stating a sufficient case is shown by admission of the plaintiff to be without foundation: Jameson v. Laing, 7 P. R. 404. The Court will not decide a doubtful point of law on an application to stay proceedings as frivolous: Roberts v. Charing Cross & E. H. Ry., 87 L. T. 732; or dismiss an action which is brought in good faith to try a question of law: Rea v. Thursby, 90 L. T. 265. Where a right to sue, however slight, appears on the face of the proceedings, and is not displaced by any admission, the plaintiff will not be prevented from having his action disposed of in the regular way: Bloxam v. Metropolitan, etc., L. R. 3 Chy. 337; Seaton v. Grant, L. R. 2 Chy. 459; Ross v. Edwards, 14 P. R. 523; 15 P. R. 150, but he may be directed to facilitate an early disposition of the action: Jameson v. Laing, supra, or may be required to give security for costs as a condition of being allowed to proceed: Smith v. Clarkson, 7 O. L. R. 460; 8 O. L. R. 131.

In England a special Act empowering the Court to prevent the bringing of vexatious proceedings has been passed: see Vexatious Actions Act, 1896 (59 & 60 V. c. 51), and see Ex p. Attorney-General, 76 L. T. 351.

In Davey v. Bentinck, 67 L. T. 742, an action was dismissed as frivolous and vexatious, under the inherent jurisdiction of the Court, where the plaintiff had persistently disobeyed an order for particulars. The inference was drawn that he did not deliver them because he had none to give, the action being frivolous.

Similarly there is inherent jurisdiction to strike out a defence as frivolous, vexatious and abuse of procedure: Reichel v. McGrath, 14 App. Cas. 665.

Actions against Justices of the Peace, brought contrary to the provisions of R. S. O. c. 88, may be stayed summarily: see s. 12 of that Act: sed vide Webb v. Spears, 15 P. R. 232. The omission to give notice of action where one is requisite is no ground for summarily staying an action: Gurney v. Emmett, 7 O. L. R. 604.

in addition

Sec. 57.

The power to stay proceedings as frivolous or vexatious will not ordinarily be exercised merely on the indorsement on the writ, and before statement of claim: Ross v. Edwards, 15 P. R. 180; Fletcher v. Bethom, 68 L. T. 438.

An action in which relief is claimed which had been already claimed in another action will be stayed, only in so far as it claims relief included in the former action: Morton v. Quick, 26 W. R. 441.

For a form of order staying proceedings where repeated frivolous applications have been made, see Grepe v. Loam, 37 Ch. D. 169; Seton, 5th ed., 344.

Staying for non-payment of costs.

There was no rule of practice at Common Law by which a plaintiff ordered to pay costs in the course of an action, but not paying them, was liable to have his action stayed till they were paid: Morton v. Palmer, 9 Q. B. D. 89; but the Court had power in its inherent jurisdiction to direct a stay if that appeared to be equitable. The onus of showing the propriety of a stay was on the party asking for it. In Equity the onus was on the other party, and he was required to show that a stay would be inequitable. The Common Law rule is adopted in Ontario as the most convenient: Stewart v. Sullivan, 11 P. R. 529, followed in Wright v. Wright, 12 P. R. 42. See also, in addition to the cases there cited, Re Wickham, Marony v. Taylor, 35 Ch. D. 272; and if the action is vexatious, or has been vexatiously conducted by the plaintiff, the Court by virtue of its inherent jurisdiction may stay the proceedings for non-payment of costs: Graham v. Sutton, 1897, 2 Ch. 367; 77 L. T. 35.

An action may be stayed till security ordered to be given for damages has been given: Richards v. Howell, W. N., 1883, 159, 168.

Another

Another Action in Ontario Pending.—Proceedings will not be stayed pending another action where the plaintiff would not be bound by the result of the other action: Tilbury v. Romney, 19 P. R. 242; or if it will not determine the question raised in the action sought to be stayed: Toronto v. Toronto Ry. Co., 5 O. W. R. 14.

actions.

Cross Actions.—One of two cross actions between the same parties, arising out of the same matter may be stayed, and a consolidation in fact thus effected; and where such an application is made the action against the party on whom the burden of proof lies ought in general to be stayed, and the action brought by him ought to be allowed to proceed, the other party being at liberty to raise by defence, set-off or counter-claim, all questions intended to be raised by him in the action which is stayed: Thompson v. Eastern Ry. Co., 9 Q. B. D. 320. See further the notes to sec. 57 (7), and Rule 435.

Staying proceedings where an agreement to

Staying Proceedings Where an Agreement to Refer to Arbitration.—Where the parties have agreed that no action shall be brought in respect of the matters in question, until the amount due shall have been ascertained by arbitration, an action brought in contravention of the agreement will be stayed: R. S. O. c. 62, s. 6; Scott v. Avery, 5 H. L. C. 811; Belfield v. Bourne, 69 L. T. 780; Trainor v. Phoenix Fire Ass. Co., 65 L. T. 825; Scott v. Mercantile Accident Co., 66 L. T. 811; and see notes to C. L. P. Act, s. 214. Maclellan's Ind. Act, 2nd ed., p. 90. An allegation of fraud by the plaintiff will not prevent the application of this rule: Id. But when the plaintiff is entitled to some relief (e.g., an injunction or receiver) which could not be attained by a reference to arbitration, such relief Sec. 57. may be granted, and the action stayed, except so far as is necessary to enable the plaintiff to obtain such relief: Pini v. Roncoroni, 1892, 1 Ch. 631; Baker v. Yorkshire F. & L. Ass., etc., Co., 1892, 1 Q. B. 144; Lyon v. Johnson, 60 L. T. 223; 40 Ch. D. 579; Chappell v. North, 1891, 2 Q. B. 252; Turnock v. Sartoris, 62 L. T. 200.

An action was perpetually stayed where its subject was embraced in a reference to an official referee under the Vendors and Purchasers Act, R. S. O. c. 134: City of Toronto v. Canadian Pacific Railway Co., 18 P. R. 374, 451.

Practice.—An application to stay must in general be on notice. Practice. "in a summary way" does not mean ex parte except in cases of emergency: see Blewitt v. Dowling, W. N. 1875, 202; Kerens v. Mitchell, W. N. 1876, 53, and notes to sec. 58 (9).

Seem, the Master in Chambers has no jurisdiction to stay an action on the ground that it is frivolous or vexatious: see Kuapp v. Carley, 40 Ch. J. 390.

A motion to stay proceedings under the jurisdiction of the Court to control its own proceedings should be made in Chambers, not in Court: Lee v. Mimico Real Estate Co., 15 P. R. 288; and before the action is entered for trial: Cross v. Howe, 62 L. J. Chy. 342; 3 R. 218.

10. If any action is brought in the High Court for any cause of action for which any suit or action has been brought and is pending between the same parties or their representatives in any place or country out of Ontario, the Court or any Judge thereof may make an order to stay all proceedings in the High Court until satisfactory proof is offered to the Court or Judge that the suit or action so brought in such other place or country out of Ontario is determined or discontinued.

Stay of proceedings if action for same cause is pending out of Ontario.

No corresponding clause in the Eng. Act.

The power to stay under this section is a discretionary one, and the English cases are authorities as to the exercise of discretion, though there is no similar statutory provision in England: First Natchez Bank v. Coleman, 2 O. L. R. 159.

The rule in England is, that where one of two actions for the same English cause is pending abroad, the Court has jurisdiction to stay, but the rule. party applying must make out a special case for relief; whereas where all the actions are in England, or seem in the King's Courts anywhere, the concurrent proceedings are prima facie vexatious: McHenry v. Lewis, 21 Ch. D. 202; 22 Ch. D. 397; The Christiansburg, 10 P. D. 141. The Court will not consider the double litigation vexatious where there are substantial reasons to induce the plaintiff to sue in both countries; as when he can get judgment in each action, but execution is more easily obtained in one than in the other: Peruvian Guano Co. v. Bockwoldt, 23 Ch. D. 225; Hyman v. Helm, 24 Ch. D. 531; Direct U. S. Cable Co. v. Dom. Tel. Co., 8 Ont. App. 416; Armstrong v. Armstrong, 1892, P. 98.

7. Whether a Court having ample authority to decide the matter brought before it should await the expected adjudication of another tribunal having only similar authority is merely a question for the exercise of judicial discretion: Phosphate Sewage Company v. Molleson, 1 App. Cas. 780. See Hounston v. M. of Sligo, W. N. 1884, 20, reversed, p. 151.

There is a discretion to stay proceedings in the High Court for damages for a collision, in respect of which proceedings are being taken in rem in a Vice-Admiralty Court: The Peshawar, 48 L. T. 790; 8 P. D. 32.

Rule in Ontario.

Under the above clause 10, proceedings were stayed in this Province, where the matter could more conveniently be disposed of in the foreign Court, by reason of the suit being there in a more advanced stage, and the parties being personally subject to the jurisdiction of the foreign Court, and the latter was the most convenient, in view of the evidence to be procured: Howell v. Jewett, 7 P. R. 69. A stay was also ordered pending an appeal in a foreign Court, terms as to diligence in prosecuting the appeal being imposed: Huntington v. Attrib, 12 P. R. 36.

Where a Bank was being wound up in Ontario under the Dominion Winding-up Act, an injunction was granted restraining proceedings in a Montreal Court against the Bank, and also proceedings against the liquidators for things done in their official capacity, and from attacking the validity of their appointment: Baxter v. Central Bank, 20 Ont. 214.

Where there are substantial reasons for double litigation the Court will not stay proceedings in an action in Ontario until after the determination of another action for the same cause pending in a foreign Court. Thus where a defendant resident in Ontario was sued there on a promissory note, the Court refused to stay proceedings until after the determination of attachment proceedings in a foreign Court, the only effect of which would be to make available towards payment of the note certain stock in a Company domiciled in a foreign country: First Natchez Bank v. Coleman, 2 O. L. R. 159.

As to staying an action in Ontario where the plaintiff's claim is being prosecuted in bankruptcy proceedings in England: see Maritime Bank v. Stewart, 13 P. R. 86, 262, 491.

Giving effect to legal claims.

11. Subject to the aforesaid provisions for giving effect to equitable rights and other matters of equity in manner aforesaid, and the other express provisions of this Act, the said Courts respectively, and every Judge thereof, shall recognize and give effect to all legal claims and demands, and all estates, rights, duties, obligations and liabilities existing by the Common Law or created by any statute, in the same manner as the same would have been recognized and given effect to prior to The Ontario Judicature Act, 1881, by any of the Courts then existing and whose jurisdiction is now vested in the High Court.

Same as Eng. J. A., 1873, s. 24 (6), except that the latter has the words "transferred to" instead of "vested in"; and after the words "Common Law" has the words "or by any custom."

12. The High Court of Justice and the Court of Appeal respectively, in the exercise of the jurisdiction vested in them by this Act in every cause or matter pending before them respectively, shall have power to grant, and shall grant, either absolutely or on such reasonable terms and conditions as to them shall seem just, all such remedies whatsoever as any of the parties thereto may appear to be entitled to in respect of any and every legal or equitable claim properly brought forward by them respectively in such cause or matter; so that, as far as possible, all matters so in controversy between the said parties respectively may be completely and finally determined, and all multiplicity of legal proceedings concerning any of such matters avoided. 58 V. c. 12, s. 52; 60 V. c. 15, Sched. A (64).

Same as Eng. J. A., 1873, s. 24 (7).

Sir W. T. Charley, M.P., in his edition of the Judicature Act, said: "If the closing words of this section be verified by experience, this Act will prove a second Magna Charta to the suitor."

Modern procedure endeavours to work out the rights and liabilities of all parties, as far as possible, in the same action: per Boyd, C., in Stilllicay v. Toronto, 20 Ont. 98.

A cause or matter is pending within the meaning of this section so long as final judgment remains unsatisfied: Salt v. Cooper, 16 Ch. D. 544; Smith v. Cowell, 6 Q. B. D. 75; Hart v. Hart, 18 Ch. D. 670. See also Re Clagett, Fordham v. Clagett, 20 Ch. D. 637, where it was said that a "pending matter" in any Court of Justice is one in which some proceeding may still be taken. A foreclosure action is at an end after the granting of the final order: Wills v. Luff, 38 Ch. D. 200.

The meaning of this and the preceding sub-section is, that whenever a subject of controversy arises in an action which can conveniently be determined between the parties to the action, the Court should, if possible, determine it, so as to prevent further and needless litigation: Re Tharp, 3 P. D. 81; McDougall v. Hall, 13 Ont. 166; Byrne v. Brown, 22 Q. B. D. 666. The right of the parties is limited by the opinion of the Court as to the practical convenience of trying incongruous claims in the same action. See notes to Rules 373 and 374.

Notwithstanding this sub-section the Court may, nevertheless, decline to decide questions relating to contingent interests which may never come into possession: Keran v. Crawford, 6 Ch. D. 29; or questions not raised in the pleadings: see Gray v. Manitoba & N. W. Ry., 1897, A. C. 254.

Sec. 58.

Rules of law upon certain points.

58. The law to be administered in Ontario, as to the matters next hereinafter mentioned, shall be as follows:

See Eng. J. A., 1873, s. 25; J. A., 1875, s. 10.

Statutes of Limitation not to apply to express trusts.

1. [Subject to the provisions of section 32 of The Trustee Act] no claim of a cestui que trust against his trustee for any property held on an express trust, or in respect of any breach of such trust, shall be held to be barred by any Statute of Limitations. 58 V. c. 12, s. 53 (1); 59 V. c. 18, Sched. (4).

Rev. Stat.
c. 129.

Except the words in brackets introduced by 59 Viet. c. 18, this clause is the same as the English Jud. Act, 1873, sec. 25 (2).

See Petre v. Petre, 1 Drew, 333, and Nugent v. Nugent, 15 L. R. 1r. 321, for the difference in Equity between express and implied trusts. In the case of an express trust it was always the doctrine of Courts of Equity that no time as between the trustee and cestui que trust operates as a bar to the equitable right of the latter; and this subsection as originally enacted was only a statutory declaration of that doctrine: Hurston v. Tenison, 20 Ch. D. 100; see also Thompson v. Eastwood, 2 App. Cas. 215. As to what nevertheless amounts to laches and acquiescence which will be a bar to relief: see Id. and Lewin on Trusts, 6th Ed., 714, and Fisher, Dig. 1880, p. 2200. It is not necessary that the express trust be evidenced by writing to bring the case within this provision: Cook v. Grant, 32 C. P. 511, 521, and see Copie v. Brodby, 15 Ont. App. 159; Wright v. Bell, 18 Ont. App. 25.

Seuble, an implied or constructive trustee may set up the statute as a bar: Re Davis, Evans v. Moore, 1891, 3 Ch. 119. See also In re Barker, Burton v. Campbell, 1892, 2 Ch. 491, where the circumstances showed that there was no express trust; Shaver v. Harkness (before Boyd, C., Nov., 1891); but see Cameron v. Campbell, 7 Ont. App. 361.

Under R. S. O. c. 129, s. 32, the Statute of Limitations may be pleaded by trustees, except in the case of a claim founded upon fraud, or fraudulent breach of trust, to which the trustee was a party or privy, or where the action is to recover trust property retained or converted by the trustee: see Stephens v. Beatty, 27 Ont. 75; North American Land Co. v. Watkins, 1904, 2 Ch. 233. This Act is similar to the Imperial Statute, 51 & 52 Viet. c. 59, as to which see Re Borden, Andrew v. Cooper, 45 Ch. D. 444; Moore v. Knight, 1891, 1 Ch. 547; 63 L. T. 831; Re Swain, S. v. Bringeman, 1891, 3 Ch. 233; 65 L. T. 296; Gardner v. Perry, 6 O. L. R. 231; In re Garney; *Mason v. 1892, 1 Ch. 161. Directors of a company were held to be trustees Sec. 55. within the Imp. Act: Re Lands Allotment Co., 1891, 1 Ch. 510.

If fraud or non-discovery of fraud is to be relied on to take a case out of the Statute of Limitations, it must be the fraud of, or in some way imputable to, the person who invokes the aid of the Statute: Thorne v. Heard, 1895, A. C. 495; Re Metallum, 1901, 1 Ch. 143.

As to breaches of trust against liability for which a trustee may be relieved: see R. S. O. 1897, c. 129, s. 31; 62 V. c. 15; and Wear v. Jackson, 5 O. W. R. 281.

R. S. O. c. 133, s. 30, is as follows:—

"30. Where any land or rent is vested in a trustee upon any express trust, the right of the cestui que trust, or any person claiming through him to bring an action against the trustee or any person claiming through him, to recover such land or rent shall be deemed to have first accrued, according to the meaning of this Act, at and not before the time at which such land or rent has been conveyed to a purchaser for a valuable consideration, and then shall be deemed to have accrued only as against such purchaser, and any person claiming through him."

It has been said by Kay, J., Bauer v. Berridge, 18 Ch. D. 262, that that enactment is in effect extended to personality by the present sub-section, which is also repeated in c. 133, as sec. 30 (2).

See also Patrick v. Simpson, 24 Q. B. D. 128.

2. An estate for life without impeachment of waste ^{Equitable waste.} shall not confer or be deemed to have conferred upon the tenant for life any legal right to commit waste of the description known as equitable waste, unless an intention to confer such right shall expressly appear by the instrument creating such estate.

Seem, this sub-section is retrospective: Dibb v. Walker, 1893, 2 Ch. 429.

For the difference between legal and equitable waste see the notes to Garth v. Cotton, 1 W. & T. Lend. Cas., 751 (5th Ed.); Scogram v. Knight, L. R. 2 Chy. 628. A tenant for life without impeachment of waste is not permitted to make an excessive use of his legal power as such, by cutting down ornamental trees, defacing the mansion-house, etc. See also Seton on Decrees (7th Ed.), 477, and s. 25, sub-sec. 3, supra, and notes p. 20, and Patterson v. Central Canada, etc., Co., 20 Ont. 134; Re Freeman, 1898, 1 Ch. 28; Zimmerman v. O'Reilly, 14 Gr. 646; Walker v. Friel, 16 Gr. 105.

3. There shall not be any merger by operation of ^{Merger.} law only of any estate, the beneficial interest in which would not, prior to The Ontario Judicature Act, 1881, have been deemed merged or extinguished in Equity.

Same as Eng. J. A. 1873, s. 25 (4).

Sec. 56.

Merger is where a greater estate and a less coincide and meet in one and the same person in the same right without any intermediate estate; in which case the less is immediately annihilated or "merged" in the greater; as, if the fee comes to a tenant for years or life, the particular estates are merged in the fee; but, in Equity, if the merger which would take place at law would occasion prejudice to a party having a previous equitable interest in the estate, such interest is not deemed to be merged: see Tyrwhitt v. Tyrwhitt, 32 B. 249; Finlayson v. Mills, 11 Gr. 218; MacLennan v. Gray, 16 Ont. 326. As to the rule in Equity: see Forbes v. Moffatt, 18 Ves. 394; Compton v. Ozenden, 2 Ves. Jr. 264; Swinfen v. Swinfen (No. 3), 20 Bea 199; The Liquidation Co. v. Willoughby, 1896, 1 Ch. 726; 74 L. T. 228; 1898, A. C. 321; 77 L. T. 320; Adams v. Angell, 5 Ch. D. 634; Re Price, Shackell v. Colnett, 1891, 2 Ch. 135; Re Radcliffe, 1892, 1 Ch. 227; Thorne v. Cann, 1895, A. C. 11; Brett Leading Cases in Equity, 3rd Ed., 225.

By R. S. O. c. 121, ss. 8-9, a mortgagee may take a release of the equity of redemption without merging his debt as against any other mortgagee or person having a charge on the property. The cases on the construction of this enactment will be found in The Ontario Digest, 4347, et seq.

Where C., an administrator, granted an underlease for a term of years of land held by him as administrator, and shortly afterward the underlessee assigned the land to C. for the residue of the term, it was held that there was in Equity no merger of the term: Chambers v. Hingham, 10 Ch. D. 743; see also Hyde v. Warden, 3 Ex. D. 72, and where a tenant for life conveyed her estate to a tenant for life in remainder expectant on the grantor's death, subject to a charge in the grantor's favour, and the grantee predeceased the grantor, it was held that there was no intention to merge the two estates: Shore v. Boycot, 1892, 3 Ch. 110; and see Re Barry Ry. Co., 76 L. T. 489.

Actions for possession
mortgagors.

4. A mortgagor entitled for the time being to the possession or receipt of the rents and profits of any land as to which no notice of his intention to take possession or to enter into receipt of the rents and profits thereof shall have been given by the mortgagee, may sue for such possession, or sue or distrain for the recovery of such rents or profits, or to prevent or to recover damages in respect of any trespass or other wrong relative thereto, in his own name only, unless the cause of action arise upon a lease or other contract made by him jointly with any other person (a), and in that case he may sue or distrain jointly with such other person. 58 V. c. 12, s. 53 (4).

(a) Up to this point this sub-section corresponds with the Eng. J. A., 1873, s. 25 (5), what follows is not in the English sub-section.

As to the law before this enactment: see Walsh v. Lonsdale, 21 Ch. D. 9.

This section does not give a mortgagor in possession of land subject Sec. 58. to a lease created before the mortgage the right to re-enter for breach of covenants in the lease: Matthews v. Usher, 1900, 2 Q. B. 535. In this case the mortgagee was added as a co-plaintiff at the trial, but it was held that as the legal owner of the reversion was not a party when the writ issued, the action could not be maintained.

In cases under this sub-section the mortgagor may sometimes have to make the mortgagee a party; but "unless there is a probability that the relief for which the mortgagor sues will injuriously affect the interest of the mortgagee, the mortgagee ought not to be brought before the Court on a mere suggestion of a possibility that he may be prejudiced": Fairclough v. Marshall, 4 Ex. D. 37 and 49.

Where a tenant of the mortgagor, who has received notice from the mortgagee to pay the rent to him, remains in possession, that alone does not create any tenancy between him and the mortgagee: Towers v. Jackson, 1891, 2 Q. B. 484.

A mortgage having been assigned, the assignee served notice on the tenants to pay him rent. A judgment creditor of the mortgagor obtained an order on the tenants to pay. The rents due at the date of the assignment were not thereby assigned to the transferee, but were assigned to him by the mortgagee after the garnishee order. It was held that under this sub-section the rents attached were debts due to the mortgagor: Puterson v. O'Reilly, 10 L. R. Ir. 304.

The owner of the equity of redemption may maintain an action for trespass to the mortgaged property, and injury to the freehold, though after the trespass and before action he has parted with his equity: Brookfield v. Brown, 22 S. C. R. 398; and see Gordon v. Armstrong, 16 P. R. 432; but mortgagees out of possession cannot after their interest has ceased to exist maintain an action for trespass and injury committed while they held the title: Ib.

A mortgagor entitled to the equity of redemption in mortgaged patents, may sue to restrain infringement without making the mortgagee a party: VanGelder, etc., v. Sowerby, 44 Ch. D. 374.

Mortgagees were made co-plaintiffs with the mortgagor in Goodrich v. Everglyn Coal Co., W. N. 1889, 152, an action on covenants in a lease made by both mortgagor and mortgagees to defendants.

As to when mortgagees are necessary parties: see Saylor v. Cooper, 2 Ont. 398; Re Nickle v. Walkerton, 11 Ont. 433, and Platt v. G. T. Ry. Co., Ib. 246.

5. Any absolute assignment, made on or after the 31st day of December, 1897, by writing under the hand of the assignor (not purporting to be by way of charge only) of any debt or other legal chose in action of which express notice in writing shall have been given to the debtor, trustee or other person from whom the assignor would have been entitled to receive or claim such debt or chose in action, shall be effectual in law (subject to all equities which would have been entitled to priority over the right of the assignee if this section had not been enacted) to pass and transfer the legal right to such debt or chose in action from the date of such notice, and all legal and other remedies for the same and the power to give a good discharge for the same without the concurrence of the assignor. 60 V. c. 15, s. 5.

This sub-section is taken from 60 Vict. c. 15, s. 5, whereby R. S. O. 1887, c. 122, ss. 7, 10, 11 and 12, were repealed, and the law of Ontario on this point assimilated with that of England under the Eng. Jud. Act, 1873. 36 & 37 Vict. c. 66, s. 25 (6).

For a discussion of the English cases bearing on this section: see 108 L. T. Jour. 436.

See also Rule 203 (1), (g), which provides that an assignee of a chose in action may institute an action in respect thereof without making the assignor a party.

Scope of the Enactment.—This sub-section is not retrospective, in which respect it differs from the Eng. Act: see Dibb v. Walker, 1893, 2 Ch. 429. Assignments of choses in action made prior to 31st December, 1897, are probably still governed by R. S. O. 1887, c. 122: see R. S. O. c. 1, s. 8 (50).

The effect of the clause is to give the assignee of a chose in action a legal, where he formerly had a merely equitable, title. In other respects the enactment does not give new rights, but only affords a new mode of enforcing old rights: Walker v. Bradford Bank, 12 Q. B. D. 511, 515. It does not make anything an assignment which was not theretofore an assignment either at Law or in Equity: Schroeder v. The Central Bank, 24 W. R. 710; as, for instance, a claim, the assignment of which is against public policy, such as a bond to secure alimony payable to a married woman: Reiffenstein v. Hooper, 36 U. C. Q. B. 295; Re Robinson, 27 Ch. D. 160; and see Watkins v. Watkins, 74 L. T. 636. It only enables an action to be brought by the assignee in his own name where previously he would have sued in the assignor's name: Torkington v. Magee, 1902, 2 K. B. 427.

The enactment transfers the legal remedies as well as the legal rights of the assignor: thus the assignee of a judgment debt is enabled to garnish debts due to the judgment debtor: Goodman v. Robinson, 18 Q. B. D. 332. The assignee does not, however, acquire any greater right than his assignor had, and therefore the assignment of an agreement to advance money by way of loan does not create a debt, and confers no right on the assignee to compel the specific performance of the agreement, or to recover damages for its breach, unless some specific fund is bound by the agreement: Western Waggon Co. v. West, 1892, 1 Ch. 271; South African Territories v. Wallington, 1898, A. C. 309; 78 L. T. 426; May v. Lane, 43 W. R. 58, 193; 71 L. T. 869; Roxburghe v. Cox, 17 Ch. D. 520; Webb v. Smith, 30 Ch. D. 199.

A cheque is a mere order to pay and a revocable request, and does not purport to be an absolute assignment: Schroeder v. The Central Bank, supra. After a cheque has been marked good by the bank, however, the drawer is discharged and the bank becomes the principal debtor: Boyd v. Nasmith, 17 Ont. 40.

Quære, whether an assignment of an ascertained part of the debt is within this section. An assignment of an indefinite and unascertained tained part is not, and therefore the assignee cannot sue in his own name: Jones v. Humphreys, 1902, 1 K. B. 10. Sec. 58.

"Debt or other Legal Chose in Action."—These words include "all rights, the assignment of which a Court of Law or Equity would before the Act have held to be lawful": King v. Victoria Ins. Co., 1896, A. C. pp. 254, 256; see also Colonial Bank v. Whinney, 30 Ch. D., pp. 285, 286; 11 App. Cas. p. 438, as to what are "choses in action." See also Warren's Choses in Action, Bk. i., c. ii. The former Act, R. S. O. 1887, c. 116, s. 7, was confined to choses in action "arising out of contract": see Blair v. Ascalatine, 15 P. R. 211.

The enactment does not appear to extend to all choses in action, but only to debts or other legal choses in action. A claim for damages for a tort is a legal chose in action, but it appears to be doubtful whether it is within the section, not being ejusdem generis as a "debt"; and equitable choses in action do not appear to be within the section, but the former equitable right of the assignee to enforce such choses in action in his own name is not taken away, and continues. In Dawson v. Great Northern Ry., 1904, 1 K. B. 277, reversed, 1905, 1 K. B. 260, it was held that a claim for compensation for damages done to land by a railway company is not in the nature of damages for a tort and is assignable within this section. In King v. Victoria Ins. Co., 1896, A. C. 250, the Supreme Court of Queensland held that a claim for unliquidated damages arising out of a tort is a chose in action within the corresponding section of the Queensland Jud. Act, which is in the same terms as the English Act, but the Jud. Committee of the Privy Council, on appeal, while not dissenting from that construction of the Act, affirmed the judgment on other grounds. See article in 20 Law Quarterly Review, p. 113.

This subjects capable of assignment within this sub-section there-fore include debts due: Comfort v. Betts, 1891, 1 Q. B. 737; judgment debts: Goodman v. Robinson, 18 Q. B. D. 332; moneys due under a building contract: Drew v. Josolyne, 18 Q. B. D. 590; Ex p. Moss, 14 Q. B. D. 310; 52 L. T. 188; money accruing due but not yet due: Brice v. Bannister, 3 Q. B. D. 569; Buck v. Robson, ib. 686; British Wagon Co. v. Lea, 5 Q. B. D. 149, 154; Walker v. Bradford, 12 Q. B. D. 511, 516; May v. Lane, 43 W. R. 58, 193; 71 L. T. 869; Ex p. Hall, 10 Ch. D. 621; future book debts during a limited time: Tailby v. Official Receiver, 13 App. Cas. 523; moneys accruing due to the assignor as legatee under a will: Re Coleman, 39 Ch. D. 443; a beneficial interest under a policy of insurance: Re Turcan, 40 Ch. D. 5; a future balance at a banker's: Walker v. Bradford, 12 Q. B. D. 511; rent accruing: Knill v. Proise, 33 W. R. 163; or in trustees' hands: Harding v. Harding, 17 Q. B. D. 442; a solicitor's bill of costs: Ingle v. McCutchan, 12 Q. B. D. 518; Ibberson v. Neck, 2 Times, 427; a claim on a policy of insurance of goods before loss, even though the goods are not transferred to the assignee: McPhillips v. London M. F. Ins. Co., 23 Ont. App. 524; a covenant to indemnify against liability under a covenant: Re Perkins, 1898, 2 Ch. 182; 78 L. T. 216, 666; a claim against a purchaser of an equity of redemption for indemnification against the mortgage debt: British Canadian L. Co. v. Tear, 23 Ont. 664; Scarlett v. Nattress, 23 Ont. App. 297; Maloney v. Campbell, 28 S. C. R. 228; Small v. Thompson, ib. 211; Irring v. Boyd, 15 Gr. 162; Glenn v. Scott, 18 C. L. T. 162; McCaig v. Barber, 23 S. C. R. 126 (in which it was held that the mortgagee had so dealt with the covenant assigned to him that he had disentitled Sec. 58. himself to sue at that time upon it); an executory contract for the purchase of a reversionary interest, is assignable under this section as a "legal chose in action": Torkington v. Magee, 102, 2 K. B. 427, 431, 435; sed vide S. C. 1903, 1 K. B. 644; 88 L. T. 443. And an executory contract for the purchase of materials for the purposes of a trade is assignable, so as to enable the assignee to sue thereon in his own name: Tolhurst v. Associated Portland Cement Works, 1903, A. C. 414; but quere whether this sub-section covers a claim for unliquidated damages arising upon a tort; see supra; but see King v. Victoria Ins. Co., supra; or an assignment of part of a debt: see Jones v. Humphrey, 1902, 1 K. B. 10.

Requisites of assignment within the Act.

"Absolute Assignment."—A deed by which debts are assigned to a trustee to receive them and thereout pay himself a sum due from the assignor, and pay the surplus to the assignor, is an absolute assignment (not purporting to be by way of charge only): Burlinson v. Hall, 12 Q. B. D. 347; Comfort v. Betts, 1891, 1 Q. B. 737; so is an assignment made merely to enable the assignee to sue in his own name: Wiesener v. Rackow, 102 L. T. Jour. 577; so is a mortgage of debts due, in the ordinary form with proviso for redemption and reconveyance: Tancred v. Delagoa Bay Ry., 23 Q. B. D. 239, in which Nat. Provincial Bank of England v. Harle, 6 Q. B. D. 626, was disapproved of and not followed; see also Durham v. Robertson, 1898, 1 Q. B. 765; 78 L. T. 438.

An assignment in these terms: "We hereby charge the sum of £1080, which will become due to us from J. R. on the completion of the above building, as security for the advances, and we hereby assign our interest in the above mentioned sum until the money, with interest added, be repaid to you," was held not to be an absolute assignment: Durham v. Robertson, supra. So an assignment though in general terms of the whole rights and interest of the assignor, where it appeared from the instrument of assignment that it was "as security for the repayment on demand" of a sum advanced and really an assignment only of sufficient to make the repayment, is not an absolute assignment within the section: Mercantile Bank, etc. v. Evans, 1899, 2 Q. B. 613; 81 L. T. 376.

But where the intention to be gathered from the whole instrument is not to assign merely so much of the debt or chose in action as will provide security, but to pass the whole interest of the assignor though subject to an equity of redemption, the assignment will be an absolute one within the section: Hughes v. Pump House Hotel Co., 1902, 2 K. B. 190.

In order to entitle an assignee to sue in his own name the assignment must be explicit in its terms, and free from ambiguity: McMillan v. Orillia E. L. Co., 6 O. L. R. 126.

Mode of Assignment.—"In Writing."—The sub-section only applies to an assignment in writing: Re Sutton's Trusts, 12 Ch. D. 175; a written order on trustees of a fund notified to them is a good assignment within the sub-section: Harding v. Harding, 17 Q. B. D. 442; so is a letter from a landlord to a tenant directing him to pay rent to another person till further order: Knill v. Prouse, 33 W. R. 163; but a direction by A. to pay a debt to B., without referring to a specific fund out of which the payment is to be made, is not an assignment: Percival v. Dunn, 29 Ch. D. 132; see Webb v. Smith, 30 Ch. D. 192; Western Waggon Co. v. West, 1 Ch. 271; Brandts & Co. v. Dunlop & Co., 1904, 1 K. B. 387; 90 L. T. 106; Thomson v. Huggins, 23 Ont. App. 191; and Quick v. Colchester South, 30 Ont. 645; Greenway v. Atkinson, W. N. 1881, 47; Southwell v. Scottar, 19 L. J. Q. B. 356; and a discussion in 78 L. T. Journ. 439.

Equitable Assignment.—Although, to bring a case within this sub-section, it is necessary that the assignment should be in writing, yet the statute does not invalidate parol assignments of choses in action: see Trusts Corporation v. Rider, 27 Ont. 593; 24 Ont. App. 157; McMaster v. Canada Paper Co., 21 C. L. J. 16; and may take priority over a subsequent written assignment: Heyd v. Müller, 29 Ont. 735. Neither a writing nor any particular form of words is necessary to constitute an equitable assignment; an intention to pass the beneficial interest is all that is required: Re McRae Estate, 6 O. L. R. 238; but where there is only a parol assignment the action to recover the chase in action must be brought in the name of the assignor, or he must be joined as defendant if he refuses an offer of a proper indemnity to allow his name to be used as plaintiff: see Turquand v. Fearon, 4 Q. B. D. 280; 40 L. T. 141; Trusts Corporation v. Rider, 27 Ont. 593; 24 Ont. App. 157. The indorsement and delivery to a third party as a gift of a hanker's deposit receipt expressed on its face to be unassignable, was held to be a good equitable assignment: Re Griffin, 1899, 1 Ch. 408; 79 L. T. 442.

An assignment which may not come within this sub-section by reason of the absence of writing, notice or otherwise, may be enforceable as an equitable assignment or charge: see Gorringe v. Irwell, 34 Ch. D. 128; Christie v. Tannan, 1893, 2 Ch. 175, 181; Webb v. Smith, 30 Ch. D. 192; Re Patrick, 1891, 1 Ch. 82, 87.

A present appropriation by order of a particular fund not yet realized operates as an equitable assignment, and a promise or executory assignment to apply a fund in discharge of an obligation has the same effect in equity: Heyd v. Müller, 29 Ont. 735, and see Quick v. Colchester South, 30 Ont. 645; Palmer v. Culverwell, 85 L. T. 758; Re McRae, 6 O. L. R. 238.

A letter indicating an intention to make an equitable assignment of a fund written to the holder of the fund, is operative upon the posting of the letter: Alexander v. Steinhardt Walker & Co., 1903, 2 K. B. 208; but a request by a creditor to his debtor to agree to pay his debt to a third party is not an assignment of the debt to such third party within the meaning of this sub-section: Brandts v. Dunlop, 1904, 1 K. B. 387; 90 L. T. 106. In Appeal 119 47 Jan 330

Notice in Writing.—The notice may be given after the death of the assignor: Walker v. Bradford Bank, 12 Q. B. D. 511; or of the assignee: Bateman v. Hunt, 1904, 2 K. B. 530; 91 L. T. 331. It is in some cases necessary, in order to make the assignment effectual as regards third person, e.g., in the case of book debts to bind the debtor: Tailby v. Official Receiver, 13 App. Cas. 534; but is not necessary as between the assignor and the assignee: Newman v. Newman, 28 Ch. D. 678; Gorringe v. Irwell, 34 Ch. D. 128.

The notice must be clear and unequivocal: McMillan v. Orillia E. L. Co., 6 O. L. R. 126.

Sec. 58.

Notice of an assignment of funds, in the hands of a trustee, is necessary to be given to the trustees in order to preserve priority as against other chargees or assignees of the same fund.

Notice should be given to all of the trustees; where notice was given to one only of several trustees, and be died, a subsequent assignee of the fund without notice of the prior assignment, who first gave notice to the surviving trustees, was held entitled to priority: Re Phillips, 1903, 1 Ch. 183; 88 L. T. 9.

A subsequent assignee of a chose in action may, by being first to give notice of his assignment to the debtor, obtain priority over a prior assignment, of which he had no notice when he took his assignment: see Marchant v. Morton, infra.

An assignee of a reversionary fund who has given notice to the existing trustees is under no obligation to give any further notice, and is consequently entitled to priority over a subsequent assignee who has taken an assignment after the death of all the old trustees, and has given notice to the new trustees: Re Wasdale, Brittin v. Purtridge, 1899, 1 Ch. 163.

As to the effect of omitting to give notice, see English and Scottish, etc., Investment Co. v. Brunton, 1892, 2 Q. B. 1, 700; West v. Williams, 46 W. R. 362; Re Phillips, 1903, 1 Ch. 183, Lloyd's Bank v. Pearson, 1901, 1 Ch. 865; McMillan v. Orillia E. L. Co., supra.

The omission to give notice in writing to the debtor will not enable an execution creditor of the debtor to acquire priority over the assignee: Rennie v. Quebec Bank, 1 O. L. R. 303; nor semble, a subsequent assignee for creditors; In re Wallis, 1902, 1 K. B. 719.

After notice of the assignment no valid agreement can be made between the debtor and the assignor to the prejudice of the assignee with reference to the chose in action assigned: Quick v. Colchester, 30 Ont. 645.

A debt due to a firm was assigned by one partner to defendant in writing, and subsequently, by the other partner to plaintiff by deed. The plaintiff gave notice of his assignment to the debtor before the defendant did, and it was held that there was a valid equitable assignment, and that the plaintiff having given notice first was entitled to priority: Marchant v. Morton & Co., 1901, 2 K. B. 829; 85 L. T. 169; following Ward v. Duncombe, 1893, A. C. 369; 69 L. T. 129.

Where a debtor gives a negotiable cheque in payment of his debt before notice of its assignment, he is not bound to stop payment and take steps to get back the cheque on subsequently receiving notice, but before payment of the cheque. He may properly pay the assignor, who still holds the cheque: Bence v. Sherman, 1898, 2 Ch. 582; 78 L. T. 804.

Notice must be given to the person having legal dominion of the fund. A notice given by an assignee to the person who is himself the assignor is not an effectual notice to alter priorities: Re Dallas, 1904, 2 Ch. 385.

The doctrine of obtaining priority by notice does not apply between successive equitable sub-mortgagees of land: Hopkins v. Hemsworth, 1898, 2 Ch. 347.

Action by assignee.

Action by Assignee.—Where an assignment within this sub-section is made and notice given, the legal right and legal remedies are transferred, and the assignee may sue in his own name: see Sec. 58.

Read v. Brown, 22 Q. B. D. 132; and since the right is transferred to him he must probably so sue, as was necessary under the repealed Act, R. S. O. 1887, c. 122, s. 7; (see Dawson v. Graham, 41 U. C. Q. B. 532; Ward v. Hughes, 8 Ont. 138), where the assignee took the beneficial interest: Wood v. McAlpine, 1 Ont. App. 234.

Any equitable right remaining in the assignor may doubtless be enforced by him in the same way as in the case of any other equitable right.

Formerly under R. S. O. 1887, c. 122, the assignee in order to sue Former law alone must have taken the beneficial interest in the claim assigned: Wood v. McAlpine, 1 Ont. App. 234; Scarlett v. Nattress, 23 Ont. App. 297; and where the assignment was by way of security only, the assignor might sue in his own name: Hostrawser v. Robinson, 23 C. P. 350; Dawson v. Graham, 41 U. C. Q. B. 532; Pritt v. Connecticut F. Ins., 23 Ont. App. 449; and see McPhillips v. London M. F. Co., 23 Ont. App. 524; but under the present sub-section it is only necessary that there be an assignment in writing absolute in form. It may Present law be an assignment with a trust declared for the benefit of the assignor or others: Burlinson v. Hall, 12 Q. B. D. 347; Comfort v. Betts, 1891, 1 Q. B. 737; or with a proviso for redemption and reconveyance: Tancred v. Delagoa Bay, 23 Q. B. D. 239; or it may have been made to the assignee as agent of the assignor, and merely to enable the assignee to sue in his own name: Wiesener v. Rackow, 102 L. T. Jour. 577.

In Lee v. Magrath, 10 L. R. Ir. 45, 315, the payee of a promissory note not negotiable, and not then payable, indorsed it as follows: "I indorse the within promissory note for £100 to my sister L." and delivered it to L. There was no consideration for the indorsement and delivery, but it was found as a fact that the intention was to vest in L. the beneficial interest. The payee died before the note was due, and bequeathed to one of the makers all moneys he should die possessed of, and appointed the legatee executor. Express notice in writing of the indorsement was given to the maker after the payee's death and before action. It was held that as the appointment of the maker of the note, executor of the payee, extinguished the debt prior to service of notice of the indorsement, there had been no legal transfer of the debt to L. within this sub-section so as to enable her to bring an action thereon.

Where the assignment is not an "absolute assignment," but purports to be by way of charge, the assignor is a necessary party: see Turquand v. Fearon, 4 Q. B. D. 280; 40 L. T. 141; and may sue in his own name: Walls v. Sault Ste. Marie Paper, etc., Co., 18 C. L. T. 117; 34 C. L. J. 196; see Pritt v. Connecticut F. Ins. Co., 23 Ont. App. 449; Western Waggon Co. v. West, 1892, 1 Ch. 271. Where assignment not absolute

Where the plaintiff had only a partial assignment, the objection that the assignor should be made a party when taken at the hearing was cured by the assignor appearing by counsel and submitting to be added as a party plaintiff, and to be bound by the proceedings: Yates v. Great Western Railway Company, 24 Gr. 495; his consent in writing to be added as a plaintiff is now necessary: see Rule 206 (3).

Where the assignee sued in his own name, and afterwards desired to amend by adding the assignor as a co-plaintiff, the amendment

Sec. 55. was refused, the Statute of Limitations having in the meantime run out as against the assignor: Hudson v. Fernyhough, 61 L. T. 722. See Thompson v. Iquo, S.C., 12 Q.M.R.

Equities.

Equities and Set-off Against Assignee.—It has been said that the Act does not affect the rule that the assignee of a chose in action takes subject to all equities; and the assignor can give no greater right in equity than he himself possesses: West of England Banking Co. v. Batchelor, W. N. 1882, 11; Rosburghe v. Cox, 17 Ch. D. 520; Webb v. Smith, 30 Ch. D. 199. That rule, however, does not apply to choses in action assignable at Common Law, and therefore does not apply to an assignee of a negotiable security: Taylor v. Blakelock, 32 Ch. D. 560; 55 L. T. 8.

Where a mortgagor gave his solicitor money to pay off a mortgage which he misapplied, but subsequently obtained a transfer of the mortgage to himself and then assigned it for value to a third party without notice, it was held the assignee could not hold the mortgage against the mortgagor as a subsisting security: Turner v. Smith, 1901, 1 Ch. 213; 83 L. T. 704.

A licensee of a patentee takes subject to an equitable assignment of which he has express notice: New Lion Type Co. v. Spilsbury, 1898, 2 Ch. 137, 484.

The fact that the debtor before notice of the assignment has given a negotiable instrument in payment of the debt, is a defence to any claim by the assignee: Bence v. Shearman, 1898, 2 Ch. 582, supra, p. 70.

Set-off of Debts.

It seems to be clear that the debtor may set off as against the assignee a debt which accrues prior to the time notice of the assignment is received by the debtor: see Christie v. Taunton, 1893, 2 Ch. 181; and payment to the assignor after the assignment but before the notice is good against the assignee: Crawford v. Canada Life Ass. Co., 24 Ont. App. 643. It has also been held that the debtor cannot set off as against the assignee a debt which accrues subsequently to the notice, even though the debt arises out of a liability which existed at and previously to the notice: see Christie v. Taunton, 1893, 1 Ch. 181; unless it flows out of and is inseparably connected with the dealings and transactions which gave rise to the subject of assignment: Id., and Newfoundland v. Newfoundland Ry. Co., 13 App. Cas. 200, 213. See also Quick v. Colchester S., 30 Ont. 645.

Of unliquidated damages.

In regard to unliquidated damages, some change seems to have been made by the repeal of R. S. O., 1887, c. 122, s. 11. Under the present enactment unliquidated damages, under a right of action, accrued before the notice, and also unliquidated damages under a right of action accruing after the notice, if flowing out of and inseparably connected with the dealings and transactions which gave rise to the subject of assignment, may be set off as against the assignee to the extent of his claim: Newfoundland v. Newfoundland Ry. Co., 13 App. Cas. 213; but damages beyond the amount claimed by the assignee cannot be recovered from him.

Thus where the statement of claim alleged that the plaintiff sued as assignee by deed of a debt due from the defendant to the assignor on a building contract, and the defendant pleaded by way of set-off and counter-claim that he was entitled to damages for breaches of contract by the assignor to complete and deliver the buildings at the specified time, whereby the defendant lost the use of them, it was held, on demurrer, that the defendant was not entitled to recover any damages against the plaintiff; but was entitled, by way of set-off or deduction from the plaintiff's claim, to the damages which he had sustained by the non-performance of the contract by the assignor: Young v. Kitchin, 3 Ex. D. 127; and see Farquhar v. Toronto, 26 Ont. 356. For cases under R. S. O., 1887, c. 122, s. 11: see Exchange Bank v. Stinson, 32 C. P. 158; Seyfang v. Mann, 27 Ont. 631; 25 Ont. App. 179.

A debt due by the assignee to the debtor in another capacity cannot be set off as against the assignee: Nelson v. Roberts, 69 L. T. 352.

Where an assignment is absolute in form, a subsequent assignee for value is not affected by an equity, of which he had no notice, between the original assignor and assignee: Quebec Bank v. Taggart, 27 Ont. 162.

6. In case of an assignment of a debt or other chose in action, if the debtor, trustee or other person liable in respect of the debt or chose in action shall have had notice that such assignment is disputed by the assignor or any one claiming under him, or of any other opposing or conflicting claims to such debt or chose in action, he shall be entitled, if he thinks fit, to call upon the several persons making claim thereto to interplead concerning the same, or he may, if he thinks fit, pay the same into the High Court under and in conformity with the provisions of law for the relief of trustees.

Where several claimants under assignments of debts or choses in action.

This sub-section corresponds with the latter part of sub-section 6 of the English J. A., 1873, a. 25 (6).

The Eng. sec. 25 (6) has been held to be retrospective: Dibb v. Walker, 1893, 2 Ch. 429; and this sub-section not being restricted as is the preceding sub-section, would also probably be held to be retrospective and applicable to all assignments of debts or choses in action whenever made.

A broker to whom shares had been transferred for the purpose of sale may, where rival claims are set up to them by a third party, call on the latter and the transferor, to interplead: Robinson v. Jenkins, 24 Q. B. D. 167.

A debtor, against whom an action has been brought for a debt of which notice of assignment has been given, may call on the claimants to interplead in respect of part of the debt, and dispute the remainder: Reading v. School Board for London, 16 Q. B. D. 686. The application may be made in a pending action, or by a separate proceeding under this section: ib., and McElheran v. London Masonic, etc., 11 P. R. 181. On a separate application under this clause an action commenced against the debtor cannot be stayed: Reading v. School Board, supra, otherwise if a summary application is made in the action: McElheran v. London Masonic, supra.

The provisions of this sub-section were held to entitle an insurance company to pay insurance money into Court where it is claimed by different parties: Re Bajns, 24 Ont. 397.

Sec. 58.

To entitle the debtor, trustee, etc., to interplead, sufficient notice of the assignment must be shown: see Re New Hamburg, etc., Co., W. N., 1875, 239.

A banking company, having received notice in writing of conflicting claims to moneys placed with them on deposit, paid such moneys into Court under the Trustee Relief Acts after first deducting therefrom their costs of payment in. Upon petition by one of the claimants for payment out, it was held that the corresponding sub-section in the Eng. Act applied only to debts of which there had been an absolute assignment in writing, and that the banking company, not being trustees within the Trustee Relief Acts, were not entitled to pay the deposit moneys into Court thereunder; but it was also held that the petitioner must be taken to have submitted to the jurisdiction under the Trustee Relief Acts by petitioning the Court; and that the bank was entitled to taxed costs of paying in the money, and of the petition; In re Sutton's Trusts, 12 Ch. D. 115; see In re Haycock's Policy, 1 Ch. D. 611; but it is to be noticed that this sub-section, unlike the corresponding Eng. sub-sec., is not in terms confined to an absolute assignment in writing. The provisions of the Trustee Relief Acts are now to be found in R. S. O. c. 336.

Stipulations not of the essence of contracts.
44 V. c. 5.

7. Stipulations in contracts, as to time or otherwise, which would not before the passing of The Ontario Judicature Act, 1881, have been deemed to be or to have become of the essence of such contracts in a Court of Equity, shall receive in all Courts the same construction and effect as they would, prior to the passing of said Act, have received in Equity.

Same as Eng. J. A., 1873, s. 25 (7).

Time is not of the essence of a contract in Equity except in cases of express stipulation: Oakden v. Pike, 34 L. J. Chy. 620; Hatten v. Russell, 38 Ch. D., p. 339, or by necessary implication: Parkin v. Thorold, 16 Beav. 59; see also Patrick v. Mûner, 2 C. P. D. 342; Crossfield v. Gould, 9 Ont. App. 218.

The stipulation cannot be made by giving a notice, where not originally part of the contract, unless there has been such delay as to entitle the party giving the notice to be relieved from his contract: Green v. Sevin, 13 Ch. D. 589.

As to the equitable construction of stipulations in contracts as to time: see further Tilley v. Thomas, L. R. 3 Chy. 61.

Satisfaction of obligation by performance in part.

8. Part performance of an obligation, either before or after a breach thereof, when expressly accepted by the creditor in satisfaction, or rendered in pursuance of an agreement for that purpose, though without any new consideration, shall be held to extinguish the obligation.

This clause changes the law as settled by the decision of the House of Lords in Foakes v. Beer, 9 App. Cas. 665. Since the old case of Cumber v. Wane, 1 Str. 426, it had been held that a debtor being Sec. 56 under a legal obligation to pay the whole of his creditor's demand an agreement upon payment of part to discharge the whole was nudum pactum, unless there was some new consideration. Many subsequent cases exemplified circumstances under which Cumber v. Wane might be distinguished, such as where some dispute existed as to the exact amount due, or the money was to be paid in advance, or there was the acceptance of some new consideration however slight, or a negotiable instrument was given for the smaller sum: 1 Smith, L. C., 10th ed., 325; Bidder v. Bridges, 37 Ch. D. 406. In Foukes v. Beer, the House of Lords was asked to overrule Cumber v. Wane, but held that legislation was requisite for that purpose, the doctrine of that case having been part of the law of England for 280 years.

In Day v. McLea, 22 Q. B. D. 610, the plaintiffs made a claim for damages for breach of contract; the defendant sent a cheque for a less sum, saying that it was in full of all demands; plaintiffs kept the cheque, stating that they did so on account, and brought an action for the balance of the claim. It was held that keeping the cheque was not as a matter of law conclusive that there was accord and satisfaction, and that it was a question of fact on what terms the cheque was kept; and see Mason v. Johnston, 20 Ont. App. 412.

But where money has been paid in pursuance of a compromise, the person to whom it is so paid cannot both keep it and repudiate the compromise; and where money had been thus paid to a plaintiff he was required to bring it into Court, as a condition of being allowed to proceed with the action: Henderson v. Underwriting Assoc., 65 L. T. 616; affirmed Id., 732; Guy v. Walker, 8 Times 314.

This clause was applied in Bank of Commerce v. Jenkins, 16 Ont. 215, where it was held that an agreement of composition, by which notes for 40c. on the dollar were to be given, was irrevocable, when entered into by a creditor, though other creditors had not given their assent.

9. A mandamus or an injunction may be granted or ^{Injunctions and receivers.} a receiver appointed by an interlocutory order of the Court, in all cases in which it shall appear to the Court to be just or convenient that such order should be made; and any such order may be made either unconditionally, or upon such terms and conditions as the Court shall think just; and if an injunction is asked, either before, or at, or after the hearing of any cause or matter, to prevent any threatened or apprehended waste or trespass, such injunction may be granted, if the Court shall think fit, whether the person against whom such injunction is sought is or is not in possession under any claim of title or otherwise, or (if out of possession) does or does not claim a right to do the act sought to be restrained under any colour of title; and whether the estates claimed by both or by either of the parties are legal or equitable.

Identical with the English J. A., 1873, s. 25 (8).

Where an injunction or receiver is a substantial object of the action, the writ should be indorsed with a claim for that relief: Colbourne v. Colbourne, 1 Ch. D. 630, but may be had though not so claimed: Norton v. Glover, W. N., 1877, 203.

"Interlocutory order."

An "interlocutory order" means not merely an order between writ and final judgment, but an order other than final judgment whether before or after final judgment: Smith v. Cowell, 6 Q. B. 19, 76; McLean v. Allen, 14 P. R. 84; Easton v. Nar Valley, etc., 8 Times 649. See also Salt v. Cooper, 16 Ch. D. 544, and Agnew v. McDowell, 14 L. R. 1r, 115, where, after a verdict, an injunction was granted against a continuance of the trespasses complained of in the action, no injunction having been granted at the trial. See also notes to sec. 73, and Rule 702.

An action is pending where judgment has been pronounced but has not been entered: Spence v. G. T. Ry. Co., 17 P. R. 172.

Practice.

Motions under this section may be made in Court, except probably in the case of a mandamus, in regard to which provision is made for a summary application in Chambers: see Re Brookfield, etc., 12 P. R. 485, and Rules 1081, 1091-1093.

Mandamus.

Mandamus.—The jurisdiction as to mandamus before the Ont. Jud. Act, 1881, related to writs of two kinds, (1) the old prerogative writ of mandamus, and (2) a writ which was grantable under various statutory provisions.

Prerogative mandamus.

Prerogative Mandamus.—The prerogative writ was one which did not issue as of strict right like the writs which the subject had the right to call for under the clause of Magna Charta, by which the Crown is bound not to refuse or delay justice or right, but issued at the discretion of the Crown, and the power to issue it was not delegated to the ordinary Judges between party and party, but the discretion of the Crown was exercised through that one of the Courts in which the Sovereign is supposed to be personally present: see 3 Bl. Com. 110, 132; 4 Mod. 340; Reg. v. Cowle, Burr. 855; Tapping 4; Shortt 223. For this reason it is still in England only granted on application to the K. B. D. being considered one of the flowers of the old Court of Queen's Bench, now belonging to the K. B. D.: Glossop v. Heston Local Board, 12 Ch. D. 115-116. The discretion which the Court possessed was not an arbitrary, but a judicial discretion: see Reg. v. Wigan, 1 App. Cas. 622; but was only exercised where there was no other effectual remedy: Rex v. University of Cambridge, 1 W. Bl. 552; Re Borlow, 30 L. J. Q. B. 271; Rex v. Hall, 3 A. & E. 497.

In Ontario the former Superior Courts of Law had concurrent jurisdiction in the matter; and the High Court has now the same jurisdiction that any of the Courts formerly existing had: see sec. 25 of the Act. Re Stratford & Huron Railway and County of Perth, 38 U. C. Q. B. 156, per Moss, J.A., and Board of Education, Napanee v. Napanee, 29 Gr. 395; Re Paris Skating Rink Co., 6 Ch. D. 731; Toronto Pub. Lib. Board v. Toronto, 19 P. R. 329.

The prerogative mandamus is not interfered with by the above ^{Sec. 55.} sub-section, or by any other enactment.

It is not the appropriate remedy for the enforcement of rights arising out of contract: Re London H. and B. Ry. and Tp. Wawanosh, 30 U. C. Q. B. 93; Re Hamilton and N. W. Ry. and Halton, 30 U. C. Q. B. 93; Grand Junction Ry. v. Peterboro', 8 S. C. R. 78; or other personal right in the applicant against the respondent: Reg. v. Cammell, 45 W. R. 330; Kingston v. Kingston P. & C. E. Ry., 25 Ont. App. 462. If a mandamus be grantable in such a case it is the mandamus which may be claimed in an action under Rule 1081, or the above sec. 58 (9).

The prerogative mandamus is preserved for the extraordinary cases, where without it a party would be left without effectual remedy to compel the performance of some duty in which the applicant is interested, and to the performance of which he has a specific legal right: Reg. v. Lewisham, 1897, 1 Q. B. 498; 45 W. R. 346, but it is not granted where the applicant has another appropriate remedy: see cases supra, and Pasmore v. Oswaldtwistle Urban D. Co., 1898, A. C. 397 (where a special Act provided the remedy for non-performance of the duty), Bush v. Brocan, 1 H. & C. 500; Tp. of Moulton and Haldimand, 12 Ont. App. 503; Re Massey Mfg. Co., 11 Ont. 441; 13 Ont. App. 446; Reg. v. Lambourne Ry., 22 Q. B. D. 463; Reg. v. Registrar of Joint Stock Co's, 21 Q. B. D. 131; Re Whitaker & Mason, 18 Ont. 63; Re Marter v. Cravenhurst, 18 Ont. 243; Probley v. Oswaldtwistle, 1897, 1 Q. B. 625; 76 L. T. 315; Westacott v. Steuart, 48 W. R. 379. See, however, Rule 1084. A petition of right has been considered to be other appropriate remedy: Reg. v. Commissioners of Inland Revenue, 12 Q. B. D. 461.

The prerogative mandamus cannot be granted against the Crown: McQueen v. McQueen, 16 S. C. R. 1; and see per Cockburn, C.J., Queen v. The Lord Commissioner of the Treasury, L. R. 7 Q. B. 388; though it may be granted against an officer of the Crown to compel the performance by him of a public duty: Re Massey Mfg. Co., supra.

Formerly the existence of a remedy in Equity was not sufficient reason for refusing the writ, the Court only considered whether there was another specific remedy at Law: see R. v. Stafford, 3 T. R. 652; Re Hamilton and N. W. Ry. v. Halton, 30 U. C. Q. B. 93; and see Re Stafford and Huron Ry. Co. and Perth, 38 U. C. Q. B. 112, but, since the Ont. Jud. Act, the existence of any other remedy, legal or equitable, which the Court can apply will probably be sufficient reason for not interfering by way of the prerogative mandamus.

The granting of the prerogative mandamus is discretionary, and it will not be granted where the applicant is himself in fault: Reg. v. Wigan, 1 App. Cas. 622; Reg. v. G. W. Ry. Co., 62 L. J. Q. B. 572; 69 L. T. 572.

Where a prerogative mandamus is the proper remedy it should be applied for on motion: an action for a mandamus cannot be maintained: Smith v. Chorley, 1897, 1 Q. B. 532, 678; Kingston v. Kingston E. Ry., 28 Ont. 399; 25 Ont. App. 462; but where an action was brought and a motion made in it for a mandamus the proceedings were stayed so as to turn the motion into a summary application for a prerogative mandamus: Toronto Public Library Board v. Toronto, 19 P. R. 329.

Examples.—A mandamus will not be granted (either in an action Examples. or otherwise) to interfere with a discretion vested in, and honestly exercised by, a local public authority: Smith v. Chorley, 1897, 1 Q. B. 532, 678; but has been granted where the discretion has been exercised on a mistaken view of the matters to which the discretion of the local authority extends: Reg. v. St. Pancras, 24 Q. B. D. 371; Reg. v. Cotham, 1898, 1 Q. B. 802; and to a Judge of an inferior Court who refused to hear a cause because he erroneously decided that he had no jurisdiction: Reg. v. Judge of Southampton, C. C., 65 L. T. 320.

Sec. 58.

Where a Division Court Judge held that the evidence before him showed that the case was beyond the jurisdiction of a Division Court, and ruled that no further evidence should be given, and the plaintiffs submitted to this, and a judgment of non suit was entered, and the plaintiff moved to set it aside and for a new trial, which was refused, it was held that mandamus did not lie. The fact that the plaintiff had no right of appeal did not enlarge the remedy by mandamus: Re Ratcliffe v. Crescent Mill & Lumber Co., 1 O. L. R. 331.

A mandamus will not be granted against a public body where, if issued, it would be unavailing, or where there is no necessity for the relief: Re Gies v. Wellington, 30 Ont. 610; nor where the performance of the duty sought to be enforced is impossible by reason of want of funds: Re Bristol and Somerset Ry., 3 Q. B. D. 10; see Atty.-Gen. v. Dorking, 20 Ch. D. 345; nor against a railway company to compel it to reinstate and keep open its line which had fallen into disuse in consequence of subsidence: Reg. v. Great Western Ry., 69 L. T. 443, 572; nor to compel a railway company to operate its railway: Kingston v. Kingston E. Ry. Co., 28 Ont. 399; 25 Ont. App. 462.

A mandamus was granted to rehear an application for a license to sell liquor before justices who had improperly taken money for granting the application: Reg. v. Bowman, 1898, 1 Q. B. 663.

Statutory mandamus.

Statutory Mandamus.—The right to claim a mandamus in an action was first given by Imp. Act. 17 & 18, c. 125, s. 69, adopted here in 1850 (see R. S. O. 1877, c. 52, s. 4), and now embodied in Rule 1081.

Under Rule 1081.

The decisions under the Act from which Rule 1081 was taken (and for which see notes to Rule 1081 and the elaborate notes of Chief Justice Harrison in his edition of the C. L. P. Act, pp. 462, et seq.), somewhat limited its application, possibly by reason of some confusion of the new writ with the old prerogative writ (though a distinction between them is made in the Act: see R. S. O. 1877, c. 52, s. 10, where the right to issue the old writ is preserved), and it would seem that the intention of the above sec. 58 (9) of the Jud. Act was to enlarge the scope of the mandamus which was obtainable in an action.

This enactment goes further than the previous statutes, and than Rule 1081, and enacts that a mandamus may be granted "by an interlocutory order of the Court in all cases in which it shall appear to the Court to be just or convenient that such order should be made."

The object of this clause was probably two-fold: (1) to enlarge the discretion of the Court in granting writs of mandamus, and (2) to enable the writ to be obtained on an interlocutory application, and not merely as part of the judgment in an action. The latter matter possibly did not require legislation in this Province, as the Act 35 Vict. c. 14, s. 1 (now Rule 1091), enabled parties to obtain a mandamus on motion in Chambers.

The mandamus referred to in this section is not the old prerogative mandamus, "but only a mandamus which may be granted to direct the performance of some act, of something to be done, which is the result of an action where an action will lie": per Brett, L.J., in Glossop v. Heston, etc., 12 Ch. D. 122.

Semble, a mandamus grantable by action will not be granted to enforce private rights arising under an agreement: Kingston v. Kingston P. & C. E. Electric Railway, 25 Ont. App. 462.

Although the Court or a Judge has power to grant a mandamus on an interlocutory application, it will not be done unless the plaintiff clearly shows that he will suffer some injury by waiting for the result of the action: In re Paris Skating Rink Co., 6 Ch. D. 731; vidue Alkali Co. v. Sheffield and Midland Railways Co.'s Committee, 37 L. T. 131.

There is no Statute of Limitations applicable to a claim for a mandamus: Ward v. Loindes, 1 E. & E. 940; 29 L. J. Q. B. 40.

Where it is sought to restrain interference with an individual's rights under a statute, the remedy is by injunction, and not by mandamus: Holland v. Dickson, 37 Ch. D. 669.

Practice.—As to practice on motions for mandamus: see notes to practice. Rule 1091.

When a mandamus nisi is granted, as to the return thereto, and practice thereon, see Rule 1085 and notes.

A second application for a prerogative mandamus, after the first has been dismissed, will not be entertained: Reg. v. Mayor of Bodmin, 1892, 2 Q. B. 21; Ex p. Thompson, 6 Q. B. 721; Reg. v. Pickles, 12 L. J. Q. B. 401; unless the dismissal was owing to a technical insufficiency in the affidavits: Re Guillot & Southwick, etc., 26 U. C. Q. B. 246; but see Reg. v. Bodmin, supra.

In England it has been held that the prerogative writ must be moved for by counsel, not by an applicant in person: Reg. v. Mayor of Liverpool, 7 Times, 592; Ex p. Whyte, 12 Times, 458; Ex p. Wallace, 1902, 2 K. B. 488; and see Rules 3, 768, 355 note.

Although on an application for a prerogative mandamus proof of a previous demand and refusal to do the act required must be given, this is not essential in actions for mandamus: Young v. Erie & Huron Ry., 27 Ont. 530.

Appeal.—Where a peremptory mandamus is granted the decision Appeal is subject to review: Reg. v. Churchwardens of All Saints, 1 App. Cas. 611; Reg. v. Bangor, 18 Q. B. D. 349, 360.

Costs.—A successful applicant for a prerogative mandamus is not necessarily entitled to costs. These are in the discretion of the Court: Reg. v. Harding, 6 Times, 53, 175.

Injunctions.—By the transfer to the High Court of the former jurisdiction of the Common Law Courts (see J. A., sec. 25), it has power to grant injunctions, interlocutory or final, in any action to restrain the defendant from the repetition or continuance of any breach of contract, or wrongful act complained of in the action, or from the commission of any breach of contract, or injury of a like kind arising out of the same contract, or relating to the same property or right: such relief may be granted or refused upon such terms.

Sec. 58. as to its duration, keeping an account, or giving security or otherwise, as may seem just (see R. S. O. 1877, c. 52, s. 30). The High Court has, therefore, not only the jurisdiction formerly possessed by the Court of Chancery to grant injunctions, but also that formerly conferred on the Courts of Law by the above enactment.

enactment as to injunctions.

Scope of the Act.—The meaning of the words "just and convenient," and whether they have enlarged the powers of the Court, has been considerably discussed.

An injunction may be granted where "it shall appear to the Court to be just and convenient": Thorley's Cattle Food Company v. Massam, 6 Ch. D. 582; Hinrichs v. Berndes, W. N. 1878, 11; Sarby v. Easterbrook, 3 C. P. D. 339; Re Cambrian Mining Co., 29 W. R. 881, and the words of the section rather enlarge than diminish the arm of the Court in respect of injunction: per Fry, J., in Thomas v. Williams, 43 L. T. 94; 49 L. J. Chy. 605. But it is with regard to settled legal reasons or principles that the Court will decide what is just and convenient: Beddow v. Beddow, 9 Ch. D. 89; Shaw v. E. of Jersey, 4 C. P. D. 359; Gaskin v. Balls, 13 Ch. D. 324; Fletcher v. Rogers, 27 W. R. 97; Aslatt v. Corporation of Southampton, 16 Ch. D. 143; and this sub-section does not in the least alter the principles upon which the Court should act: Day v. Brownrigg, 10 Ch. D. 294, and does not give any new rights to parties who had previously no rights enforceable at Law or in Equity; but it enables the High Court, without being hampered by any old rules, to grant an injunction whenever it is just or convenient so to do, for the purpose of protecting or asserting the legal rights of the parties: N. London Ry. Co. v. Great Northern Ry. Co., 11 Q. B. D. 30; 48 L. T. 696; Bonner v. G. W. Ry., 24 Ch. D. 1; Wood v. Lillies, 61 L. J. Chy. 158; Richardson v. Methley School Board, 1893, 3 Ch. 510; Kitts v. Moore, 1895, 1 Q. B. 253. See also Robinson v. Pickering, 16 Ch. D. 660; and Brett Ldg. Cas. in Modern Equity, 324; and notes, infra, under "Receivers."

of the general principles on which injunctions

In Cooper v. Whittingham, 15 Ch. D. 507, Jessel, M.R., said that this section may be said to be a general supplement to all Acts of Parliament, and where a statute creates a penalty for doing an act, an injunction to restrain the act may be claimed as an ancillary remedy. As to this dictum, see Hayward v. E. London W. W. Co., 28 Ch. D. 146; see also Richardson v. Methley, 1893, 3 Ch. 510.

The Court will not grant an injunction at the suit of the Crown to restrain acts ultra vires of a company: except where injury to the public is plainly shewn: Attorney-General v. Niagara, etc., Tramway Co., 18 Ont. App. 453 (where an injunction to restrain a tramway company from running its cars on Sunday was refused); nor will even irreparable injury be restrained if legal rights are not invaded: Corp. of Birmingham v. Allen, 6 Ch. D. 284; Ballard v. Tomlinson, 26 Ch. D. 194.

No Court will issue an injunction where if the thing sought to be restrained is allowed to go on, no legal injury is done to any one: per Brett, L.J.: N. London Ry. Co. v. G. N. Ry. Co., supra. Thus there is no right to restrain the removal of exigible goods where there is no subsisting judgment or order under which execution might be issued: see Newton v. Newton, 11 P. D. 11 (see after judgment Newton v. Newton, 1896, P. 36); Carter v. Carter, 1896, P. 35; Burdett v. Fader, 6 O. L. R. 532; 7 O. L. R. 72 (where the entry of judgment was stayed); nor the alienation by defendant of lands which would be liable to satisfy the judgment if the plaintiff should succeed in the action: see Hepburn v. Patton, 28 Gr. 597; Robinson v. Pickering, 50 L. J. Chy. 527; Merchants Bank v. Bell, 29 Gr. 413; Parkes v. St. George, 10 Ont. App. 496, 542; nor the alienation of her separate property by a married woman pending an action against her to recover a debt: Nat. Prov. Bank v. Thomas, 24 W. R. 1013. An action will not lie for such purposes: Chamberlain v. McDonald, 14 Gr. 447.

In Street v. Union Bank of Spain and England, 30 Ch. D. 156, an injunction restraining the use of the telegraphic name "Street London" was refused, it being held that defendants had done no injury, and that the matter was simply one of inconvenience, which the Court had no jurisdiction to restrain, though mistakes had occurred, and plaintiff's telegrams had been received and opened by defendants.

But the Court has jurisdiction to grant an injunction to give effect to a legal right, and the only limit to such jurisdiction then is, that it shall be just and convenient to make the order: Corporation of Cork v. Rooney, 7 L. R. Ir. 191. To use the words of Jessel, M.R., in Aslatt v. Corporation of Southampton, 16 Ch. D., at p. 148: "Of course the words 'just and convenient' do not mean that the Court is to grant an injunction simply because the Court thinks it convenient. It means that the Court should grant an injunction for the protection of rights, or for the prevention of injury, according to legal principles. The moment it is found that there is a legal principle, that a man is about to suffer serious injury, and that there is no pretence for inflicting that injury upon him, the Court ought to interfere"; and see Richardson v. Methley School Board, supra; Evan v. Smith, 3 Times 390. But an injunction will not be granted to restrain the commission of a trivial act, although an invasion of the plaintiff's legal rights: Llandudas v. Woods, 1899, 2 Ch. 705; or to restrain a trespass where the damages were merely nominal: Graham v. Northern Ry., 10 Gr. 259.

In London & Blackwell Ry. Co. v. Cross, 55 L. J. Chy. 313, it was held that the enlarged powers as to injunctions given by this section did not enable the Court to restrain a person from proceeding for compensation under the Lands Clauses Act, though the claim be futile or vexatious, and made in the name of a third party without his authority. The Court acts in such case on the ground that its process is being abused.

An injunction was granted to restrain a railway company from proceeding to trial in respect of land not properly included in or delineated on their plan and book of reference: Protheroe v. Tottenham & Forest Gate Ry., 1891, 3 Ch. 278; 65 L. T. 323.

An injunction restraining a landowner from taking proceedings before Justices of the Peace on an irregular notice under a Drainage Act, was granted as shorter and cheaper than a prohibition: Hedley v. Bates, 13 Ch. D. 498; but this was because the Court was seised of the case aliunde. Where it is a mere case of prohibition, and the Court is not called upon to decide the question on other grounds between the same parties, there is no reason for changing the proceeding from prohibition to injunction: Stannard v. Vestry of St. Giles, 20 Ch. D. 196, 197.

Where the legislature has pointed out a mode of procedure before a magistrate, the Court will not interfere by way of injunction or declaration of right, except, it would seem, in very special circumstances: Grand Junction W. W. Co. v. Hampton Urban, etc., Council, 1898, 2 Ch. 331.

Sec. 66.

The performance of statutory duties imposed on a public body may be enforced by injunction. Thus an injunction was granted against a railway company to compel it to observe statutory provisions respecting the speed of trains, although there was no evidence of any damage by reason of their breach: Attorney-General v. Landon & N. W. Ry., 1900, 1 Q. B. 78; and to restrain a road company from constructing its road otherwise than as authorized by statute: Attorney-General v. Weston, 4 Gr. 211; and an injunction was granted to restrain a municipal corporation from carrying on a business in excess of its statutory powers, and the discretion of the Attorney-General to institute such proceedings on the relation of rival traders cannot be interfered with by the Court: Attorney-General v. London County Council, 1901, 1 Ch. 781; 84 L. T. 245; but an injunction or mandamus to compel a street railway company to run its cars in accordance with its agreement with a city was refused: Kingston v. Kingston P. & C. E. Ry., 25 Ont. App. 462; Hamilton v. Hamilton St. Ry., 8 O. L. R. 642; and an injunction to compel a road company to keep its road in repair was also refused: Attorney-General v. Weston, 4 Gr. 211.

It was held that an action for an injunction may be commenced against a Local Board without the month's notice required by the Public Health Act, in all cases where, before the Judicature Act, a bill would have been sustained in Chancery for an injunction; and although damages are claimed by way of subsidiary relief: Flower v. Law Lepton Local Board, 5 Ch. D. 347; and when the action is bona fide brought for an injunction, damages may be awarded in lieu of the injunction, though no notice of action has been given: Chapman v. Auckland, 23 Q. B. D. 294.

Where if the defendant succeeded in an appeal to the House of Lords, success would be useless unless the fund in question in the action was protected in the meantime, it was held that the injunction ought to be continued pending the appeal: Polini v. Gray; Sturla v. Freese, 12 Ch. D. 438.

The granting of an injunction to restrain the doing of a particular thing is an act dependent on the discretion of the Court, and in exercising its discretion the Court will consider amongst other things whether the act complained of will produce injury to the applicant, whether the injury can be atoned for by damages, and whether the damages must be sought in successive suits, or may be obtained once for all: Doherty v. Allmon, 3 App. Cas. 709.

An injunction may be granted restraining an act, though a statute imposes a penalty for its commission: Hamilton, etc., Road Co. v. Raspberry, 13 Ont. 466; and to restrain a company from acting contrary to its Act of incorporation: Devonport v. Plymouth, 52 L. T. 161.

An injunction is granted against a person not a party, only when he is agent of a party, or in cases where he is doing something which amounts to contempt of the Court or its process: Re Gay & Gay v. Hancock, 80 L. T. Jour. 392.

Hearing in camera.

In Mellor v. Thompson, 31 Ch. D. 55, an injunction motion was heard in camera on the ground that a public hearing would defeat the object of the action.

Delay.

Delay.—Delay is, in general, no bar to an injunction in aid of a legal right, unless the legal remedy is barred by the lapse of time: Fullwood v. Fullwood, 47 L. J. Ch. 459; but where buildings (which transgressed the provisions of restrictive covenants) had been allowed to remain for five years without complaint, an injunction was Sec. 58. refused: Gaskin v. Balls, 13 Ch. D. 324.

Damages.—As to awarding damages in lieu of an injunction, see sec. 58 (10).

Mandatory Injunctions.—These may be granted as formerly: Mandatory see Strelley v. Pearson, 28 W. R. 752; Mullins v. Howell, 11 Ch. D. injunctions. 763; Smith v. Smith, L. R. 20 Eq. 504; Gaskin v. Balls, 13 Ch. D. 324; Hermann Loog v. Bean, 26 Ch. D. 306; but an injunction will not be granted where the proper remedy is a prerogative writ of mandamus: Glossop v. Heston Loc. Board, 12 Ch. D. 120; Attorney-Gen. v. Dorking, 20 Ch. D. 595.

For a statement of the function of a mandatory injunction: see Glossop v. Heston, 12 Ch. D. 120.

A mandatory injunction may be granted for the removal of a building obstructing ancient lights though completed before the writ issued: Laurence v. Horton, 38 W. R. 555; 62 L. T. 749, especially where it has been run up with extra haste to anticipate the action of the Court: Daniel v. Ferguson, 1891, 2 Ch. 27; and even though the action has not been actually begun before the building is completed, where defendant has evaded service in order to have the building completed before service: Van Joel v. Hornsey, 1895, 2 Ch. 774. Auble v. Poole, 105 L. T. Jour. 474; a fortiori, it will be granted where a building is completed pendente lite: Parker v. First Avenue Hotel Co., 24 Ch. D. 282, 49 L. T. 318; Home & Colonial Stores v. Colls, 1902, 1 Ch. 302; 85 L. T. 701.

The Court may interfere by mandatory injunction on an inter- On an inter- locutory application, but the right must be very clear indeed: Toronto locutory Brewing and Malting Co. v. Blake, 21 Ont. 175; Bonner v. G. W. Ry. application. Co., 24 Ch. D. 10; Hermann Loog v. Bean, 26 Ch. D. 306.

Although a mandatory injunction is not usually granted on an interlocutory application, yet it may be so granted where the defendant has done the act complained of after knowledge of the plaintiff's intention to move to restrain him from doing it: Van Joel v. Hornsey, 1895, 2 Ch. 774; 73 L. T. 372.

A mandatory injunction to pull down buildings erected before notice of any intention to restrain their erection will not be granted upon an interlocutory application: Johnston v. Royal Courts of Justice, W. N. 1883, 5; but in a clear case the Court may on such a motion order an erection to be restored: Allport v. The Securities Co., 72 L. T. 533.

A mandatory injunction was granted in a positive and not in the Form. usual negative form, where the defendant was an uneducated man: Bidwell v. Holden, 63 L. T. 104; and it was held that this is now the proper form of a mandatory injunction in all cases: Jackson v. Normanby Brick Co., 1899, 1 Ch. 438 (C.A.); 80 L. T. 482; and see Snarr v. Granite Rink, 1 Ont. 102 nt p. 107; Smith v. Smith, L. R. 20 Eq. 505.

The Court may in a proper case award damages in lieu of grant- Damages in ing a mandatory injunction: Tolton v. C. P. Ry. Co., 22 Ont. 204; lieu of. Mayfair, etc., v. Johnston, 1894, 1 Ch. 508.

Interlocutory Injunctions.—The office of an interlocutory in- Interlocu- junction is usually simply to retain matters in statu quo till the trial: tory in- Erie & Niagara Ry. Co. v. C. W. R. Co., 21 Gr. 171; Preston v. Luek, junctions. 27 Ch. D. 497; and the Court will not determine legal rights on such an interlocutory application: G. T. Ry. Co. v. Credit Valley R. Co., Sec. 53. 26 Gr. 572. See also Lybbe v. Harte, W. N. 1883, 127; and Attborough v. London, etc., Telephone Co., W. N. 1884, 2, where the Court declined to consider the questions involved till the hearing.

An application for an interlocutory injunction must be made promptly. Acquiescence or delay will generally be an answer to the motion before trial; but the applicant is not bound to move till the hearing, and delay till then is not such acquiescence as will disentitle him then to relief: Davies v. Marshall, 4 L. T. 105; Rich v. Brantford, 14 Gr. 83. See Caldwell v. Galt, 27 Ont. App. 162.

The motion is made in Court, not in Chambers: see above clause (9). The Master in Chambers and judicial officers having like powers have not jurisdiction: Rule 42 (12). County Judges as Local Judges of the High Court have a limited jurisdiction under Rules 46 and 47 in High Court cases. In the County Courts they have the same jurisdiction that High Court Judges have in the High Court: R. S. O. c. 55, s. 28.

The plaintiff must shew upon his own material a prima facie right to the injunction, otherwise it will not be granted, however much the balance of convenience may be in favour of granting it: Société Anonyme, etc. v. Tilghman, etc., 25 Ch. D. 1. It will not be granted on the ground that no harm will be done thereby: Strousberg v. Linklater, 32 Sol. Jo. 751, and see per Cotton, L.J., in Preston v. Luck, 27 Ch. D. 506; Challender v. Royle, 36 Ch. D. 425.

Where the plaintiff is himself in fault an interlocutory injunction should not be granted: Kirkhouston v. Airlie, 1892, 2 Q. B. 278; 67 L. T. 229.

A deliberate violation of a covenant may be restrained though the injury may be trifling: Cooke v. Gilbert, 92 L. T. Jour. 312; 8 Times, 382.

Balance of convenience.

The Court will not by an interlocutory order interfere on behalf of one party in a way which might injure the other in case he should succeed: Hill v. Kirkwood, 28 W. R. 358; 42 L. T. 105; Evans v. Puleston, W. N., 1880, 127.

The Court on an interlocutory application for an injunction should consider the balance of convenience, and if on the one hand irreparable injury may be caused by withholding the injunction, while on the other hand any injury occasioned by the injunction may be sufficiently compensated by damages, the injunction should be granted: Corporation of Cork v. Rooney, 7 L. R. Ir. 191; see also Atty-Gen. v. Dorking, 20 Ch. D. 595; Bonner v. G. W. Ry. Co., 24 Ch. D. 10; and Masson v. Grand Junction Ry. Co., 26 Gr. note p. 289; Grafton v. Watson, 27 Ch. D. 43; 51 L. T. 141; Walker v. Clarke, 56 L. T. 111; 35 W. R. 245; Hamilton, etc., Road Co. v. Raspberry, 13 Ont. 466; Newson v. Pender, 27 Ch. D. 43.

When the plaintiff's legal right is not clear and serious loss and public inconvenience may necessarily result from granting an interlocutory injunction, and no irreparable loss would result from refusing it, it should not be granted: Dwyre v. Ottawa, 25 Ont. App. 121.

Where, in pursuance of a clause in articles of partnership, one partner had expelled a co-partner from the firm on the ground of his having been convicted of a crime, the Court refused an interlocutory injunction to restrain such expulsion, the fact of the conviction not being denied: Carmichael v. Evans, 1904, 1 Ch. 486; 90 L. T. 573.

The judicial committee of the Privy Council refused to interfere with an interlocutory injunction restraining trespass on mining lands, although the respondent did not appear: Croudace v. Zobel, 1899, A. C. 258. Sec. 68.

An interlocutory injunction to restrain a nuisance caused by defendant teaching music in the ordinary course of his business was refused, on the ground that if granted it would break up the defendant's business, whereas damages would be a sufficient compensation to the plaintiff if found entitled to succeed at the trial: Pope v. Peate, 7 O. L. R. 207.

An interim injunction was granted restraining the repetition of a slander under a pretence of mind reading: Quirk v. Dudley, 4 O. L. R. 532.

A plaintiff may serve notice of motion for an injunction without leave at any time after the issue of the writ: Rule 361; Re Sceptre V. Co., 23 Sol. Jour. 230; or possibly by leave before, in cases of urgency: see Thornloe v. Skoines, L. R. 16 Eq. 126; but ordinarily an action should be pending. A case involving necessity for dispensing with the issue of the writ is not easily imaginable. It might, however, occur where immediate action is necessary after the offices of the Court are closed for the day. The mere preparation of the writ ready for issue is easily done in connection with the affidavits, which, in any case, must be prepared, and should properly speaking be entitled and sworn in a pending action: see Chanvock v. Hertz, 4 Times, 331; Süder v. Lewin, 33 Sol. Jour. 757; Green v. Prior, W. N. 1886, 50. The notice of motion may be served with the writ: Capes v. Brewer, 44 W. R. 40; Rule 361. When interlocutory motion may be made.

A defendant may move at any time after service of the writ and before judgment: Sargant v. Read, 1 Ch. D. 600; Rule 361; but see "Injunction against plaintiff," infra, p. 87.

In cases of urgency and necessity an application may be made before service of the writ, and ex parte, as for instance, where it was alleged that trustees were on the eve of bankruptcy, a receiver was appointed: Re T's Estate, 1 Ch. D. 276.

Where notice has been given, an injunction should not be granted ex parte even where from pressure of business the motion cannot be brought on: Graham v. Campbell, 7 Ch. D. 490; where, however, there is some defect in the notice served, the Court may, when injury is likely to ensue by delay in serving a new notice, grant an injunction ex parte; but where the opposite party appears gratis, and claims to be heard in opposition to the motion, the Court cannot properly proceed ex parte: McLeod v. Noble, 24 Ont. App. 459.

After notice of motion for an injunction is served it is a contempt of Court to proceed with the act sought to be restrained pending the motion: Cornell v. Assiginack, 28 C. L. J. 279; and see McGill v. McKittrick (Ch. D.), (before Street, J., 6th July, 1892); and a mandatory injunction will, if necessary, be granted to restore matters to the status quo: Ib., and see Van Joel v. Hornsey, 1895, 2 Ch. 774; 73 L. T. 372.

The plaintiff is entitled to move as soon as his legal right is invaded. Notice to the defendant before coming to the Court is not necessary: Cooper v. Whittingham, 15 Ch. D. 501; Upmann v. Forster, 24 Ch. D. 231; Goodhart v. Hyett, 25 Ch. D. 182; United Telephone v. London Tel. Co., 26 Ch. D. 766; Nicols v. Pitman, 26 Ch. When plaintiff may commence action.

Sec. 58.

D. 374; Wittman v. Oppenheim, 27 Ch. D. 200; and an offer to accede to the plaintiff's demands will not deprive the plaintiff of his right to move, or to costs, where the violation of his rights has been wilful: Fennessy v. Day, 55 L. T. 161; but if the violation is trifling and has been innocent and unintentional, costs may be refused the plaintiff: American Tobacco Co. v. Quest, 1892, 1 Ch. 630. Where, on service of the writ, defendant offered an undertaking and costs, an injunction was refused: Jenkins v. Hope, 1896, 1 Ch. 278; Snuggs v. Seyd, W. N. 1894, 95.

Ex parte injunctions.

"Ex Parte" Injunctions.—An injunction should not be granted ex parte except in cases of urgency, as where immediate damage is being done or apprehended: see Anon, per Lindley, J., W. N. 1876, 12; Meluish v. Milton, 24 W. R. 679; Tozer v. Walford, W. N. 1875, 250; Blewitt v. Dowling, ib., 202; Hennessey v. Rohmann, 36 L. T. 51; W. N. 1877, 14, and Taylor v. Eokersley, 2 Ch. D. 302; Re H's Estate, 1 Ch. D. 276; Hyde v. Warden, 1 Ex. D. 309; cases of receivers. If the defendant has appeared, that fact should always be mentioned to the Judge on an ex parte motion for an injunction: Harrison v. Cockercill, 3 Mer. 1, and where it is not, the plaintiff may be made to pay in any event the costs of a motion to dissolve an injunction so granted: The Mexican Co. v. Maldonado, 88 L. T. Jour. 238, W. N. 1890, 8.

The affidavits on which an ex parte motion is made should disclose all facts and circumstances material for the Court to know, or the injunction will be dissolved on motion for that purpose, even though the party moving did not consider the omitted matter material: McMaster v. Callaway, 6 Gr. 577; Ley v. McDonald, 2 Gr. 398; Hynes v. Fisher, 4 Ont. 60; see notes to Rule 357.

Where an ex parte injunction is dissolved on the ground of concealment of material facts, the party who obtained it will, in general, be ordered to pay the costs of the motion forthwith: Walton v. Henry, 13 P. R. 390; an interim injunction obtained on the suppression of facts, may be dissolved on the motion to continue it, though there be no cross motion: Boyce v. Gill, 64 L. T. 824; and though the Court may see fit to grant another injunction in the same terms: ib.

Duration of interim injunction.

Duration of Interim Injunction.—Where an interim injunction is granted ex parte, it is usually limited to a few days only, and the party obtaining it, when serving it on the party enjoined, usually serves at the same time a notice of motion to continue it. If the Court on the hearing of this motion thinks fit to continue it, it is usually continued "until the trial or other final disposition of the action," and in that case the injunction continues in force until judgment is entered. An injunction granted until a certain day expires on that day unless continued; no motion to dissolve is necessary unless it is sought to get rid of the injunction in the meantime: McCuaig v. Connee, 19 P. R. 45. Where the judgment at the trial is directed not to be entered until a future time, an interim injunction until the trial, etc., remains in force until that time arrives: Carroll v. Provincial Gas Co., 16 P. R. 578, and where a party by his counsel or solicitor gives an undertaking to refrain from doing an act, and a party has refrained from applying for an injunction in consequence, the undertaking will continue in force, and be enforced by the Court in the same manner as an injunction: Haggert v. Brampton, ib., in note, p. 518; Polini v. Gray, 12 Ch. D. 438; London & B. Ry. Co. v. Grand Junction C. Co., 1 Eng. Ry. Cas. 224; and see Bolton v. London School Board, 7 Ch. D. 766.

A plaintiff was held not entitled to have matters kept in statu quo ^{Sec. 59.} by an injunction after judgment, and until the case could be heard by the Court of Appeal, although the decisions in Courts of first instance were against the plaintiff, and therefore unless time was given to take the case to the Court of Appeal he would be without substantial relief: Wyld v. McMaster, 4 Ont. 717; sed vide, King v. Duncan, 9 P. R. 61; Polini v. Groy, 12 Ch. D. 438.

In Mackenzie v. Toronto (7th Dec., 1904), where the plaintiff sought to restrain the defendants from cutting off the water supply to his house, Boyd, C., at the trial, being of opinion that the immediate dissolution of the interim injunction would work unnecessary hardship and inconvenience on the plaintiff, continued the injunction to the 1st Murch following, or any later date which might be fixed by the Court of Appeal, and subject thereto, dismissed the action.

Injunction against Plaintiff.—An interim injunction may in a proper case be granted against the plaintiff at the instance of a defendant: Stewart v. Kingsmill, 13 Gr. 347; Edgcumbe v. Carpenter, 1 Heav. 171; but a defendant who has not filed a counter-claim is not entitled to such an injunction unless the relief sought by injunction arises out of or is incidental to the relief sought by the plaintiff, e.g., where he and the plaintiff are both claiming under the same contract: Collison v. Warren, 1901, 1 Ch. 812; 84 L. T. 482; and see 17 Times L. R. 315. If the defendant desires any other injunction before he is in a position to file a counter-claim, he must bring a cross action: Carter v. Fey, 1894, 2 Ch. 541; 70 L. T. 786; distinguishing Sargent v. Read, 1 Ch. D. 600, and Parker v. Lopez, 7 Ch. D. 358; and see Brandon v. Elliott, 14 Gr. 109.

Costs.—As to the mode of disposing of the costs where a party obtains the relief he seeks on an interlocutory motion: see Sonnen-schein v. Bornard, 57 L. T. 712.

The plaintiff may be ordered at the trial to pay the costs of an interim injunction obtained by him, where the facts proved at the trial show no anticipation of such immediate serious damage as to justify the application for an injunction: Sklitzsky v. Cranston, 22 Ont. 590; Johnson v. Jenking, 13 C. L. T. 270.

Appeal.—Where after the expiration by effluxion of time of an interim injunction, proceedings are taken against a party to the action to commit him for disobeying the order, an appeal by him against the interim order will lie: McLeod v. Noble, 24 Ont. App. 459.

Miscellaneous Decisions.—The following are further decisions illustrating the principles on which the Court acts in regard to injunctions:

Any injunction which can be granted by interlocutory order, can a fortiori be granted at the trial: Beddow v. Beddow, 9 Ch. D. 93.

The right to an injunction to restrain trespassers formerly depended on whether the person sought to be restrained was in possession or not, and if in possession whether he was a mere trespasser or acted under colour of right: see Kerr on Injunctions 289, Louder v. Bettle, 33 L. J. Ch. 451; 10 Jur. N. S. 226; Stanford v. Harlstone, L. R. 9 Chy. 116. But the Canadian Legislature long ago dealt with this difficulty by enacting (20 Vict. c. 56, s. 4; Cons. Stat. U. C. c. 12, s. 27; R. S. O., 1877, c. 40, s. 39) that "the Court ing trespassers.

may grant an injunction to stay waste in a proper case notwithstanding that the party in possession claims by an adverse legal title." The enactment in the above clause 58 (9) is to the same effect.

In Anon. W. N., 1876, c. 38, an ex parte application for an injunction restraining a man from trespassing with a horse and cart was refused, the Judge remarking that "injunctions are not ordinarily granted for mere trespass, unless serious injury is threatened to the property." On a fresh application being made in this case, after notice to the defendant, no order was made, on the defendant consenting that damages should be assessed up to the date of the trial: Makin v. Barrow, Id. 105.

An injunction to restrain interference with the enjoyment of an easement, which was not 20 years old, was refused, although it had been enjoyed for 19 years: Governor of Bridewell v. Ward, 68 L. T. 212.

Nuisances

Nuisances may be restrained by injunction: but where the act complained of as a nuisance is done in pursuance of a legal right conferred by statute, and to carry out a lawful object, and is temporary in its character, it is no nuisance in law, and no injunction can be granted to restrain it: Harrison v. Southwick & Vauxhall Water Co., 1891, 2 Ch. 409; but a legal right may be exercised in an unreasonable way so as to become a nuisance: e.g., the ringing of church bells at unreasonable times, and may be restrained: Soltau v. De Held, 2 Sim. N. S. 133; 21 L. J. Chy. 153; the unreasonable playing of a band: St. Margaret's Church v. Stephens, 29 Ont. 185; or of street organs: Lambton v. Mellish, 1894; 3 Ch. 163. A public urinal is not necessarily a public nuisance: Vernon v. St. James' Vestry 16 Ch. D. 449; 44 L. T. 229; Graham v. Newcastle, 67 L. T. 260, 790; but it may be one which will be restrained by injunction: Sellers v. Matlock Bath, 14 Q. B. D. 928; 52 L. T. 762. A nuisance caused by the noise of washing dishes, and heat and smell from a cooking range, was restrained: Sanders v. Grosvenor Mansions, 1900, 2 Ch. 373; 82 L. T. 758; so also noise, vibration, and smell from steam engines: Knight v. Isle of Wight, E. L. & P. Co., 90 L. T. 410; Colwell v. St. Pancras, 11 1 Ch. 707.

Where after an action commenced to restrain a nuisance, the nuisance was abated by defendant, no injunction was granted, but the motion being turned into motion for judgment, the costs of the action were awarded to plaintiff: Barber v. Penley, 1893, 2 Ch. 447; 68 L. T. 662.

Recount of ballots.

The High Court has no jurisdiction to restrain by injunction a County Court Judge and returning officer from holding a recount of ballots cast at an election for the House of Commons. The proceedings before the County Court Judge are not cognizable by the High Court, except in so far as Parliament has by legislation conferred jurisdiction: McLeod v. Noble, 24 Ont. App. 459.

The Crown or its servants discharging discretionary function

The Court has no jurisdiction at the suit of a subject to restrain the Crown, or its officers acting as its agents or servants, or discharging discretionary functions committed to them by the Sovereign: Atty.-Gen. for Ont. v. Toronto Junction R. Club, 8 O. L. R. 440.

Foreign sovereign.

The Court has no jurisdiction to prevent a foreign sovereign from removing his property in this country, though it be an article made in infringement of a patent; and a foreign sovereign who submits to be made a defendant in an action for the purpose of empowering the Court to make an order does not thereby part with any of his rights: Varasseur v. Krupp, 9 Ch. D. 351.

In the absence of any sufficient equity to justify it the Court will not restrain by injunction a plaintiff from proceeding in a foreign Court: Hunt v. Hunt, 1807, 2 Q. B. 34, as reversed in appeal, 77 L. T. 421. Mere hardship or inconvenience will not be sufficient reason: Fletcher v. Rodgers, 27 W. R. 97; but where a foreigner has appeared in an English Court, the Court has a discretion to restrain him from litigating the same subject matter in his own country: Dawkins v. Simonetta, 29 W. R. 228; see also Re Boyse, Crofton v. C., 15 Ch. D. 591; and notes to sec. 57 (10) supra.

Sec. 58.
Proceedings in foreign Courts.

In Ex parte McPhail, 12 Ch. D. 632, Jessel, M.R., refused leave to serve a writ out of the jurisdiction, on the ground that the plaintiff could have an effectual remedy by application to the local Court. As to providing for an injunction where the writ is to be served out of the jurisdiction, see Young v. Brassey, 1 Ch. D. 277.

Property which is the subject of an action may be preserved under Rule 1006, by means of an injunction: Strelley v. Pearson, 43 L. T. 155.

Preservation of property.

In Volati & Co. v. Braham & Co., 46 L. J. C. P. 415, which was an action against a jeweller for the return of goods deposited with him, the defendant was ordered to deliver up the goods to an officer of the Court to abide the event of the action.

A threatened sale of a specific chattel, which, if carried out could have been compensated in damages, is not a proper case in which to grant an injunction restraining the sale: Bradley v. Barber, 30 Ont. 442.

In London and County Banking Co. v. Lewis, 21 Ch. D. 490, an equitable mortgagee, who had commenced an action for foreclosure, obtained an injunction restraining the defendant from parting with the legal estate.

In Anon., W. N. 181: 1, a defendant was restrained from parting with a bill of exchange. See also Anon., Ibid. 37.

An interim injunction was granted against a lunatic partner at the suit of a co-partner: J. v. S., 1894, 3 Ch. 72; 70 L. T. 758. An injunction may be granted to restrain the interference with light to which plaintiff is entitled for the purpose of his business: Lazarus v. Artistic Studio Co., 1897, 2 Ch. 214; 76 L. T. 457.

Injunctions have been granted restraining the committee of a club from acting improperly in expelling a member: Fisher v. Keane, 11 Ch. D. 353; Labouchere v. Earl of Wharfedale, 13 Ch. D. 346; see also Dawkins v. Antrobus, 17 Ch. D. 615; Foster v. Harrison, W. N. 1881, 171.

Restraining

An injunction was granted restraining a photographer from publishing a photograph of the plaintiff, whose portrait he had taken: Pollard v. Photographic Co., 40 Ch. D. 345; restraining the publication of libels: Thorley Cattle Food Co. v. Massam, 14 Ch. D. 763; Thomas v. Williams, Ib. 864; Saxby v. Easterbrook, 3 C. P. D. 339; Hayward v. Hayward, 34 Ch. D. 198; or slanderous oral statements injuriously affecting the person: Quirk v. Dudley, 4 O. L. R. 532; or property or trade: Hermann Loog v. Bean, 26 Ch. D. 306; Mellin v. White, 1894, 3 Ch. 276; subsequently reversed on the facts; 1895, A. C. 154; or tending to injure a friendly society or a joint stock company: Hill v. Hart Davies, 31 W. R. 22; 47 L. T. 82; but the Court will not restrain a trader from publishing circulars to the effect that his goods are better than those of a rival trader: Hubbuck v. Wilkinson, 1890, 1 Q. B. 86; 70 L. T. 429.

Publication

Libel and slander.

Sec. 88.

Though the jurisdiction in the case of such libels is clear, even on an interlocutory application, the Court only acts in a strong case, and in general not unless satisfied that the statements complained of are untrue: Quartz Hill Gold Mining Co. v. Beall, 20 Ch. D. 501; Bonnard v. Perryman, 1801, 2 Ch. 234; 65 L. T. 506; Collard v. Marshall, 1802, 1 Ch. 571; 98 L. T. 248; Lea v. Gibbins, 8 Times, 773; Liverpool v. Smith, 37 Ch. D. 170; nor where defendant swears he will be able to justify, and the Court is not satisfied that he may not be able to do so: Bonnard v. Perryman, 1801, 2 Ch. 234; Monson v. Tussaud's, etc., 1804, 1 Q. B. 671; 70 L. T. 225; nor where there is no reason to apprehend such danger or injury to the plaintiff in person or property, as to make it right to grant an interlocutory injunction: Salomons v. Knight, 1891, 2 Ch. 294.

Where an action for defamation will not lie, an injunction to restrain the alleged defamation will not be granted: White v. Mellin, 1895, A. C. 154.

Where the jury at the trial negatived the publication being a libel, an injunction to restrain its further publication was refused: Dockrell v. Duggall, 78 L. T. 840; 80 L. T. 556.

Publication of "Black list."

An interlocutory injunction was granted against a trades union, to restrain the publication pendente lite, of a black list of men employed by plaintiff: Trollope v. London Building Trades Federation, 72 L. T. 242.

Misappropriation of funds by public body.

An interlocutory injunction was granted to restrain a municipality from misappropriating its funds: Jarvis v. Fleming, 27 Ont. 309.

Contravention of charter.

An interlocutory injunction was granted to prevent a corporate body from acting in contravention of a prohibition contained in its special Act: Atty.-Gen. v. Metropolitan Electric Supply Co., 1905, 1 Ch. 24; and from proceeding to elect some one to fill the place of the plaintiff as a member, who was alleged to have forfeited his seat by absence: Richardson v. Methley School Board, 1898, 3 Ch. 510.

Interference in suit by nominal party.

Also to prevent a defendant from interfering with the proceedings in another action, in which he was also defendant, but which he had agreed to allow the plaintiff to defend in his name on being indemnified; the indemnity having been given: Montfort v. Marsden, 1895, 1 Ch. 11; 71 L. T. 620.

Goodwill.

Canvassing for customers of a business, the good will of which has been sold by defendant to the plaintiff, may be restrained: Trenn v. Hunt, 1896, A. C. 7; 73 L. T. 514; and an injunction may be granted against a former partner to prevent him from using information acquired while a partner, to the prejudice of the good will in the business to which his former co-partner is entitled: Jennings v. Jennings, 77 L. T. 786.

Servants.

So also a servant may be restrained from utilizing copies of entries surreptitiously obtained from his master's books: Robb v. Green, 1895, 2 Q. B. 315; 73 L. T. 15.

Shorthand notes.

The publication of shorthand notes of private letters by the clerk who took them was restrained: Laidlaw v. Lear, 30 Ont. 26.

Landlord and tenant.

Where an injunction was applied for to restrain a landlord from exercising his legal rights of distress, until the determination of an action brought by the tenants against the landlord, to try his right to the rent, the injunction was granted for a fortnight, and continued only if the rent should in the meantime be paid into Court: Shaw v. Earl of Jersey, 4 C. P. D. 120, 359.

An injunction will not be granted at the suit of a landlord or reversioner to restrain a trespass or nuisance not of a permanent character, or not actually injuring the reversion: Cooper v. Crabtree, 47 L. T. 5; 51 L. J. Chy. 180.

In Blewitt v. Dowling, W. N., 1875, 202, an action of ejectment against a landlord, the plaintiff was restrained from issuing writs against the tenants. In Drake's Patent Concrete v. Dower, Ib. 230, an order was granted restraining the defendant from pulling down partially erected houses. In Fenner v. Bedford, Ib. 238, an order was made on an ex parte application restraining the continuance of trespasses and destruction of property, and liberty was given to serve the order on any persons found on the premises as well as the defendant. In Tozer v. Walford, Ib. 250, a defendant who had covenanted not to do any act dangerous to his co-tenants, was restrained from working an engine, in consequence of the working of which the plaintiff's insurance company had refused to continue his insurance, whereby he had become liable under a covenant with his superior landlord.

An interlocutory injunction for the purpose of enforcing an agreement to lease premises for a single day was refused: Glasco v. Woolgar, 103 L. T. Jour. 172.

A covenant by a lessor to employ a porter for the general benefit of the lessees of premises, let in flats, was held not to be enforceable by injunction: Ryan v. Mutual T. W. Chambers Assn., 1893, 1 Ch. 116.

An injunction to restrain a breach by an infant of an apprenticeship deed was refused: De Francesco v. Barnum, 43 Ch. D. 165.

Restrictive covenants in a lease may be enforced by injunction: e.g., covenants against carrying on an offensive trade; not only as against the lessee but also as against any occupant of the demised premises: Mander v. Falcke, 1891, 2 Ch. 554; 65 L. T. 203; or from using premises otherwise than for a private residence: Hobson v. Tallock, 1898, 1 Ch. 424.

The enforcement by injunction of a negative stipulation in a covenant by defendant not to employ himself in any business other than the plaintiff's, was refused as being unreasonable, in Ehrman v. Bartholomew, 1898, 1 Ch. 671.

Restrictive covenants as to building, which are made for the personal benefit of the covenantee, and not as part of a general building scheme, may be enforced by injunction; but where the injury occasioned by a breach is slight, and damages would be an adequate compensation, they may be awarded in lieu of an injunction: Shaw v. Wilmott, 5 O. W. R. 361.

The Court has jurisdiction to restrain by injunction the commission of acts which, if committed, would be a contempt of Court: e.g., threatened contempt of the threatened publication of a statement of claim with comments, as calculated to prevent a fair trial: Kitcat v. Sharp, 31 W. R. 227; 48 L. T. 64; publication of advertisements warning the public, that an invention claimed by the plaintiff is an infringement of defendant's patent rights: Barney v. United Telephone Co., 28 Ch. D. 394; and distribution of circulars containing ex parte statements on the merits of a case in litigation: Coats v. Chadwick, 1894, 1 Ch. 347; 70 L. T. 228.

Sec. 58.

A party to an action sending circulars to other persons in the same interest soliciting their support in the litigation is not contempt of Court: In re New Gold Coast Co., 1901, 1 Ch. 860; but the distribution of fraudulent circulars containing misrepresentations to persons interested in pending litigation, with a view to inducing them to adopt a certain course, is a contempt punishable with imprisonment: In re Septimus Parsonage & Co., 1901, 2 Ch. 424.

To maintain an action quia timet to restrain an apprehended injury, the plaintiff must prove imminent danger of a substantial kind, or that the apprehended injury, if it does come, will be irreparable: Fletcher v. Bealey, 28 Ch. D. 688; see Attorney-General v. Manchester, 1893, 2 Ch. 87 (small pox hospital being established); Phillips v. Thomas, 62 L. T. 793 (apprehended repetition of a nuisance). The Court in its discretion refused an injunction where there would be great difficulty in framing an order so as not to prejudice the trial. Liverpool, etc., Stores Assoc'n v. Egerton, 57 L. T. 770; 58 L. T. 204; 37 Ch. D. 170. See also Hinrichs v. Berdes, W. N. 1878, 11.

In patent cases.

The principles on which the Court ought to act in determining whether to grant an interlocutory injunction to restrain an alleged infringement of a patent, or only to require the defendant to keep an account, were discussed in Plimpton v. Spiller, 4 Ch. D. 286.

Where a defendant before action offers to account and to destroy all articles infringing plaintiff's patent, the Court may refuse an interlocutory injunction: Jenkins v. Hopc, 1896, 1 Ch. 278; 73 L. T. 705.

An injunction against the infringement of a patent was refused where, though there had been an infringement, it had been discontinued several years before action, and there was no intention or probability of a renewal of the wrongful user: Proctor v. Bayley, 38 W. R. 100.

Trade marks

An injunction will be granted to restrain the exportation of goods under a trade mark likely to deceive a foreign though not a home purchaser: Orr Ewing v. Johnston, 13 Ch. D. 434, and also to restrain the infringement of a trade mark: Cochrane v. Macnish, 1896, A. C. 225; but where the action was brought against a retail dealer, who had not been guilty of any intentional infringement, and who at once yielded to the plaintiff's demand, no costs were awarded against the defendant: American Tobacco Co. v. Guest, 1892, 1 Ch. 630; so also the user of a name which has come to be known to the trade, as indicating goods made by the plaintiff, may be restrained by injunction: Reddaway v. Banham, 1896, A. C. 199; Powell v. Birmingham Vinegar Co., 1896, 2 Ch. 54; 1897, A. C. 710; Pinet v. Maison Pinet, 77 L. T. 322; 1898, 1 Ch. 179; 77 L. T. 613; but see Lever v. Beddingfield, 80 L. T. 100.

The use of a name by a company so like that of another company as to be calculated to deceive the public may be restrained: Manchester Brewery Co. v. N. Cheshire and Manchester Brewery Co., 1898, 1 Ch. 539; 1899, A. C. 83; 79 L. T. 645.

The use of a trade name calculated to lead the public to believe that the defendant's business was that of the plaintiff, was restrained: Randall v. British & American Shoe Co., 1902, 2 Ch. 354.

Copyright.

The infringement of copyright may also be restrained by injunction: Church v. Linton, 25 Ont. 131; Collis v. Cater, 78 L. T. 613.

The Court will restrain an arbitrator from acting in any case in Sec. 58. which he is unfit or incompetent to act: Malmesbury v. Budd, 2 Ch. D. 89; Beddow v. Beddow, 9 Ch. D. 89; Burford v. Chambers, 25 Ch. D. 663; Vineberg v. Guardian, etc., Co., 19 Ont. App. 293; but see Jackson v. Barry Ry. Co., 1893, 1 Ch. 238; and will restrain arbitration proceedings where the instrument containing the agreement for reference is impeached: Kitts v. Moore, 1895, 1 Q. B. 253; 71 L. T. 676.

An injunction restraining arbitration proceedings, in Farrar v. Cooper, 44 Ch. D. 323, and proceedings outside the arbitration agreement, in Wood v. Lillies, 61 L. J. Chy. 158; 8 Times, 281, was refused, where, if proceeded with, they would be futile.

Proceedings were restrained which were being taken for the fixing of a new renewal rent by a sole arbitrator appointed by the lessor, on the assumption that default had been made by the lessees in appointing an arbitrator, they having appointed one under protest contending that there was no right to arbitrate: Farley v. Sanson, 5 O. L. R. 105; 7 O. L. R. 639.

See also as to restraining arbitration proceedings: N. London, etc., v. G. N. Ry., 11 Q. B. D. 30; London & Blackwell, etc., v. Cross, 31 Ch. D. 354; Ires v. Willans, 1894, 1 Ch. 68; 2 Ch. 478.

Undertaking as to Damages.—The usual undertaking as to damages should be inserted in all interlocutory injunction orders; Graham v. Campbell, 7 Ch. D. 491; Corp. of Cork v. Rooney, 7 L. R. 191; Re Johnston, Ex p. Abrams, 50 L. T. 184, even though the order is granted on notice: Smith v. Day, 21 Ch. D. 421; 48 L. T. 54; and there is no exception in this respect in favour of the Crown: Secretary for War v. Chubb, 43 L. T. 83; W. N. 1880; but see Att'y-Gen. v. Albany Hotel Co., 1896, 2 Ch. 696; 75 L. T. 140, 195, where it was not required.

The history of the undertaking is given by Jessel, M.R., in Smith v. Day, supra.

Where the injunction, though made pendente lite is of the nature of a final order, no undertaking as to damages need be inserted: Fenner v. Wilson, 1893, 2 Ch. 656; 68 L. T. 748, where an injunction was granted restraining the publication of matter tending to prejudice the fair trial of the action.

The usual form of the undertaking is as follows: "and the plaintiff, by his counsel, undertaking to abide by any order which this Court may make, as to damages, in case the Court shall hereafter be of opinion that the defendant [or defendants, or any or either of them], shall have sustained any by reason of this order, which the plaintiff ought to pay."

Where there are several defendants, the undertaking should be so worded as to apply to all of them who are affected by the injunction: Tucker v. New Brunswick, etc., Co., 44 Ch. D. 249; 63 L. T. 69.

Where a married woman applies, her undertaking by her counsel is sufficient: Re Prynn, 53 L. T. 465; Pike v. Cave, 68 L. T. 659.

Seem, that the undertaking of counsel for a corporation, as to damages, renders the corporation as responsible as in the case of an individual: East Molesey v. Lambeth, 1892, 3 Ch. 289; 67 L. T. 497; see Manchester, etc., v. Parkinson, 60 L. T. 47.

Sec. 58.

Where the plaintiff has been required to give security for costs of an action, an undertaking as to damages must be given by a responsible person within the jurisdiction, as one term of the plaintiff's obtaining an interlocutory injunction: Delap v. Robinson, 18 P. R. 231.

An order having been made restraining the defendant from proceeding with certain buildings, he appealed, offering an undertaking to abide by any order the Court might make at the hearing as to pulling down or altering any buildings erected by him; the Court of Appeal, being of opinion that the right to an interlocutory injunction was not established, discharged the order, taking from the defendant an undertaking in the terms of his offer, but held that, without any undertaking, the Court would have jurisdiction at the trial to order the pulling down of any buildings erected after the commencement of the action, or after notice had been given to the defendant that the plaintiff objected to the building: Smith v. Day, 13 Ch. 1. 651; and see Greenwood v. Hornsey, 53 L. T. 126, in which a similar undertaking was given on a motion for an interim injunction, where buildings were erected by the defendant pendente lite of the value of between $35,000 and $40,000, and were ordered to be pulled down, although plaintiff's damages were estimated at only $3,000.

Where an interlocutory injunction is granted ex parte on the terms that a party shall be added as plaintiff, and his undertaking given as to damages, the amendment must be made and undertaking given at the earliest practicable moment, or the injunction will be dissolved with costs: Spanish General Agency Corporation v. Spanish Corporation, 63 L. T. 161.

The undertaking as a general rule should extend to the damages incurred by any party to the suit, who may be damaged by the injunction wrongly granted, and should not be confined to the person actually enjoined: Tucker v. New Brunswick Trading Co., 44 Ch. D. 249.

Where an order is made by consent embodying an undertaking by the defendant equivalent to an interlocutory injunction as asked by the plaintiff, there is in that case no implied undertaking as to damages by the plaintiff; if such an undertaking is required it must be made part of the consent: Howard v. Press Printers, 91 L. T. 718; 53 W. R. 98.

See further as to Undertakings as to Damages, 21 C. L. J. 44.

Enforcing the Undertaking.—How far an undertaking can be enforced when the Court has erred in granting the injunction has been the subject of some difference of opinion: see Smith v. Day, 21 Ch. D. 421; Norello v. James, 5 D. M. & G. 876; 24 L. T. O. S. 165; Griffith v. Blake, 27 Ch. D. 474; 51 L. T. 274; Montreal St. Ry. Co. v. Ritchie, 16 S. C. R. 622; Hunt v. Hunt, 54 L. J. Chy. 289.

The application for an inquiry as to damages should be made at the trial or when the injunction is dissolved: Smith v. Day, supra; Ross v. Burton, 60 L. T. 630; W. N. 1888, 55; 58 L. J. Ch. 442; but in Newby v. Harrison, 5 L. T. 12; 3 D. F. & J. 287, an inquiry was granted after the lapse of four months from the hearing; but an application to enforce the undertaking after an unexplained delay of four years was refused, though a prima facie case was made out: Ex p. Hall, 23 Ch. D. 644; 49 L. T. 275.

Enforcement of the undertaking

The granting of an inquiry as to damages consequent on the grant- Sec. 58.
 ing of an injunction is discretionary, and cannot be claimed ex debito justitie. Where, therefore, no damage appeared to have been sustained apart from the detriment arising from litigation, and the Court at the trial thought the defendant's conduct had provoked the litigation, and even though the action was dismissed, the inquiry as to damages was refused: Gault v. Murray, 21 Ont. 458; see also Mansell v. British Linen Co. Bank, 1892, 3 Ch. 159; and Montreal
St. Ry. Co. v. Ritchie, 16 S. C. R. 622; Smith v. Day, 21 Ch. D.
 1893, 57.

Where a receiver is appointed of property in litigation, such property is thereafter in custodia legis, and the unsuccessful party to the litigation is not liable for damages for its detention while in the hands of a receiver: Peruvian Guano Co. v. Dreyfus, 1892, A. C. 166;
 66 L. T. 536.

As to the measure of damages for restraining the sale of shares, see Mansell v. British Linen Bank, 1892, 3 Ch. 159.

Notice and Enforcement of Injunctions.—A notice granting Notice of injunction.
 an injunction may be given by telegram. A sheriff's officer who receives such a notice should inquire by telegraph to see if it be bona fide: Ex parte Langley, 13 Ch. D. 110, in which case it was held that a London solicitor obtaining an order restraining a sale in the country ought to telegraph to his agent at the place and ask him to give notice to the persons affected; and see McLaren v. The Ish- penning, 39 C. L. J. 290 (Ex.). See also Re Bryant, 4 Ch. D. 98.
 A defendant is bound to obey an injunction of which he is made aware before being served with it: Stewart v. Richardson, 17 Gr.
 150; and a wilful breach of the injunction may be punished by committal, even though there had been ample time to serve the order, and it had not been served: United Telephone Co. v. Dale, 25 Ch. D.
 778. See The Seraglio, 10 P. D. 120. But notice of motion to commit must be served personally: see Nelson v. Worssam, W. N.
 1890, 216.

A solicitor falsely stating that an injunction has been granted is liable to be struck off the rolls: Kimpton v. Eve, 2 V. & B. 352; and see per Blake, C., 1 Gr. 66.

Where notice of motion for an injunction has been served, it is a contempt of Court to proceed with the act sought to be restrained pending the motion: Cornell v. Assiginack, 28 C. L. J. 279; and see McGill v. McKittrick, Ch. D., before Street, J., 6th July, 1892, where an act of trespass by building a wall was persisted in after action brought, though no interim injunction was applied for, and defendant was ordered by the judgment to remove the wall, although it trespassed but a few inches on the plaintiff's land.

Where an injunction was granted restraining a defendant from negotiating bills of exchange, which had been deposited by him with his solicitor, and the solicitor subsequently ordered the defendant to indorse one of them, both defendant and his solicitor were held to have committed a contempt of Court, notwithstanding that the solicitor had a right to call for the indorsement: Day v. Longhurst, 68
 L. T. 17.

A person who is neither a party, nor a servant or agent of a party, but who with full knowledge of an injunction assisted defendant in Sec. 55. disobeying it, may be committed not for breach of the injunction but for contempt of Court: Seauard v. Paterson, 1897, 1 Ch. 545; 76 L. T. 215; Crooks v. Crooks, 1 Gr. 66.

Where a defendant was restrained from selling goods, being a colourable imitation of the plaintiff's, it was held that a sale of such goods by the defendant, acting as agent for a third party, was no breach of the injunction: Ripley v. Arthur, 86 L. T. 495, 735.

A breach of an injunction may be punished by committal for contempt, or by sequestration; but it is only where the disobedience has been wilful that punishment will be awarded: see Fairclough v. Manchester Ship Canal, 102 L. T. Jour. 292.

Where an injunction is granted against a party, his servants and agents, a servant continues bound by the injunction though he subsequently leaves his master's service, and may be committed for a breach of the injunction though not served with it: Brown v. Sage, 12 Gr. 1; Gilchrist v. Carden, 26 C. P. 1. So also new trustees are bound by an injunction granted against their predecessors in the trust, of which they have notice: Avory v. Andrews, 46 L. T. 279.

As to the term of imprisonment of persons in contempt for breach of an order of the Court: see Re Davies, 21 Q. B. D. 236; Rule 561.

Where the injunction order is ultra vires of the Court granting it, a breach of it is no contempt: McLeod v. Noble, 28 Ont. 528.

Where, however, an injunction is erroneously or improvidently granted, but only voidable, nothing should be done while it is in force in contravention of its reasonable import: Dunn v. Board of Education, Toronto, 7 O. L. R. 451.

Where the Court finds a party guilty of contempt, it may order him to pay the costs of a motion to commit, though the committal be refused; but if no contempt has in fact been committed, there is no jurisdiction to award costs against such party, and if granted the order is appealable on that ground: Ellam v. Martyn, 79 L. T. 510.

Scope of the enactment
as to receivers.

Receivers.—A receiver is a person appointed by the Court to receive property which is the subject of litigation. A receiver may be appointed pendente lite for the purpose of receiving the property in question, until it shall be determined whether the plaintiff or defendant is entitled to it; and such appointment may be continued, or made, at the trial for the purpose of working out the rights of the parties as determined by the judgment. Or such an appointment may be made after judgment by way of equitable execution.

It has been a moot point whether this sub-section has enlarged the power of the Court to grant a receiver. In Anglo-Italian Bank v. Davies, 9 Ch. D., at p. 293, Cotton, L.J., said, "Under that (the present) sub-section the Court may and does grant receivers where it never could have done so before. Thus, for instance, it has the power to grant a receiver under that section where a plaintiff has himself the power of obtaining possession at law." See also Tyrell v. Panton, 1895, 1 Q. B. 202; Tillet v. Nixon, 49 L. T. 598; 25 Ch. D. 238; The Amphill, 5 P. D. 224, and Gawthorpe v. Gawthorpe, W. N., 1878, 91, where Jessel, M.R., considered that there was no limit to the power of the Court to grant a receiver on motion, except that it was only to be exercised where it appeared just and convenient. But in Habershon v. Gill, W. N., 1875, 231, Quain, J., on the other hand, indicated an opinion that the words "just and convenient" were to be interpreted by the old practice. See also Holmes v. Sec. 58. Millage, 1893, 1 Q. B. 551, and Harris v. Beauchamp, 1894, 1 Q. B. 501; 70 L. T. 636; where the Court of Appeal (Lord Esher, M.R., Lopes and Davey, L.J.J.), were unanimous in holding that the Eng. Act has not given the Court power to grant a receiver by way of equitable execution in any case in which the Court of Chancery was formerly not able to do so; and that there is no right to an order merely because a receiver would be a more convenient mode of obtaining satisfaction of the judgment than execution in the usual way. This decision has been followed in O'Donnell v. Faulkner, 1 O. L. R. 21; Re Asscin & Cleghorn, 6 O. L. R. 170.

The former Common Law Courts had no power to appoint receivers.

In Chancery a receiver would not be appointed at the instance of a mortgagee having the legal estate, or other person able to obtain protection at law: Berney v. Sewell, 1 J. & W. 617; Buxton v. Monkhouse, G. Coop. 41; Kelsey v. Kelsey, L. R. 17 Eq. 495. But see now Tillet v. Nixon, 25 Ch. D. 238, and Mason v. Westoby, 32 Ch. D. 206, and note supra, as to the power of the Court now in all cases where it is "just and convenient."

If it appears to be just and convenient the power may be exercised where the plaintiff seeks to recover land by a legal title. The Court has to consider amongst other things the probability of the plaintiff's succeeding, length of defendant's possession, and whether he has any prima facie title, also the position of tenants, who, if the defendant is not of undoubted solvency and remains in the receipt of the rents, may have to pay twice if plaintiff succeeds: John v. John, 1898, 2 Ch. 573.

Thus in Pense v. Fletcher, 1 Ch. D. 273, where the plaintiff was mortgagee of property, as to some of which his title was legal and as to some equitable, Bacon, V.C., on an interlocutory application, appointed a receiver for the whole. In Truman v. Redgrave, 18 Ch. D. 547, a receiver was granted on application of a legal mortgagee who was prevented by the mortgagor from taking possession, and an injunction restraining the mortgagor from interfering with the management of the business and possession of the premises. (See the form of order in that case). So the Court has power now to appoint a receiver where the title to the property is uncertain and disputed: Berry v. Keen, 51 L. J. Chy. 912; and the defendant in possession: Cook v. Andrews, 1897, 1 Ch. 266; Foxcell v. VanGrutten, 1897, 1 Ch. 64; 75 L. T. 311, 368; John v. John, supra; but a case must be made to justify the appointment. Such cases as Talbot v. Hope Scott, 4 K. & J. 139, and Dunn v. Ferrior, L. R. 3 Chy. 719, are not now law: Berry v. Keen, supra.

But a mortgagee is not as of right entitled to a receiver under all ^{Mortgagees} circumstances, at the expense of the equity of redemption: Re Prytherch, Prytherch v. Williams, 42 Ch. D. 590; 38 W. R. 61, where it was considered not just and convenient to grant a receiver to a mortgagee in possession, who desired to give up possession.

An interim receiver of rents has been, however, refused to the plaintiff in an action of ejectment: Powell v. Powell, 73 L. T. Jour. 140, but granted in an action by a landlord against his tenant for recovery of land, under a proviso for re-entry: Gwatkin v. Bird, 52 L. J. Q. B. 263, and granted in Real and Personal Advance Co. v.

Sec. 55. McCarthy, 27 W. R. 706; 40 L. T. 878, an action of ejectment by a sub-mortgagee, where the property was wasting and insufficient, and the plaintiff's action had been stayed till another action by defendant against the plaintiff and others should be ready for trial.

Co-owners. In an action for partition, where one of the co-owners is in occupation, though not in exclusive occupation of the property, the Court has jurisdiction under this sub-section to appoint a receiver until the hearing: Porter v. Loner, 7 Ch. D. 358. So in an action to enforce specific performance of a parcel agreement to execute a bill of sale of personal chattels, upon an ex parte motion before appearance of defendant, there being evidence of immediate danger of the chattels in question being disposed of: Taylor v. Eckersley, 2 Ch. D. 302. Where in an administration action the defendant, the sole surviving executor and trustee of the testator, had been personally condemned in costs in an action to test the validity of the will, and an execution had been issued against him, and there had been a return of nulla bona, on the application of the present plaintiffs, who were executors of the deceased executor of the testator, who was also a creditor of the testator and a residuary legatee, a receiver of the proceeds of the sale of part of the testator's real estate, and of the rent of the other part, and of the outstanding personal estate was granted: Gauthorpe v. Gauthorpe, W. N., 1878, 91.

The mere fact of a dissolution does not entitle a partner to a receiver, as against his co-partners: Pini v. Roncoroni, 1892, 1 Ch. 633. The lunacy of a partner is a ground for appointing a receiver: J. v. S., 1894, 3 Ch. 72; 7 L. T. 758. A receiver and manager of a partnership business was appointed at the instance of the trustee in bankruptcy of one of the partners, notwithstanding a provision in the articles that the share of a bankrupt partner should remain in the business as a loan to the solvent partners until the end of the term: Collins v. Barker, 1893, 1 Ch. 578; 68 L. T. 572.

In an action for the dissolution and winding up of an insolvent partnership, an order was made for the sale of the assets by a receiver before trial; the assets being of such a character that their sale at once was desirable and other special circumstances existing: McLaren v. Whiting, 16 P. R. 532.

A receiver and manager of the property and undertaking of a limited company was granted to a debenture holder of the company, whose debenture was a charge on the property of the company, the security being in jeopardy through the insolvency of the company, even though the principal secured by the debenture was not immediately payable and default had not been made in payment of interest: McMahon v. N. Kent Iron Works Co., 1891, 2 Ch. D. 148; Edwards v. Standard Rolling Stock Syndicate, 1893, 1 Ch. 574; In re Victoria Steamboats, 1897, 1 Ch. 158. See also Hubbuck v. Helms, 56 L. T. 232; and notes to Rule 759; but see Marshall v. South Staffordshire T. Co., 1895, 2 Ch. 36, where it was held that the Court had no jurisdiction to do this unless the Act authorizing the mortgage conferred it. In London Co 1905 1 Ch 576*

Other cases. A trustee appointed, upon his own undertaking in a suit, to act as receiver of the trust property, is not, under ordinary circumstances, in England, entitled to a salary as receiver: Pilkington v. Baker, British Mutual Investment Co. v. Pilkington, 24 W. R. 234. But in this Province trustees are entitled to compensation as such: R. S. O. c. 120, ss. 40, et seq.

An interpleader issue being ordered to try the right to goods seized in execution a receiver and manager of the property may be appointed under this section instead of a sale by the sheriff; eg., where the property was in cab business, a going concern: Howell v. Dawson, 13 Q. B. D. 67.

A simple contract creditor of a joint stock company cannot obtain an interim order appointing a receiver of the assets of the company on the ground that the company is insolvent, or has made an assignment of its assets: McCall v. Canada Farmers' Mut. Ins. Co., 18 C. L. J. 117, following Mills v. Northern Ry. of Buenos Ayres Co., L. R. 5 Chy. 621.

An unpaid vendor of property of a company in voluntary liquidation, and unable from insolvency to carry on its works, was appointed without security or salary: Boyle v. Betties Llantwit Colliery Company, 2 Ch. D. 726.

In a creditor's action for administration against an executrix, a decree had been made and summons taken out for a receiver; but, pending the summons, the sole defendant died. The Court, on the application of the plaintiff, appointed an interim receiver, whose powers were to extend for ten days after the appointment of an administrator de bonis non, the plaintiff undertaking to use all possible speed in obtaining the appointment of such administrator, and to accept short notice of motion to discharge the receiver: In re Parker, Cash v. Parker, 12 Ch. D. 293.

Equitable Execution.—Receivers have since the Jud. Act often been appointed as a means of enforcing judgments and reaching property not capable of being seized under an execution, eg., at the instance of the plaintiff who had recovered judgment, and sued out an elegit against the debtor whose only interest in land was an equity of redemption in fee, for the protection of the property until a decree could be obtained, under which the equity of redemption could be reached: see Anglo-Italian Bank v. Davis, 9 Ch. D. 275; Re Watkins, 13 Ch. D. 252; and Re Pope, 34 W. R. 693 (in Ontario the sheriff can sell an equity of redemption: see R. S. O. c. 77, s. 30), and it has been held that there is no need first to issue a fi. fa.; see ib. and Stuart v. Grough, 15 Ont. App. 309; but see Thomas v. Cushing, 30 Ont. 123, 388; and see Re Harrison & Bottomley, 1899, 1 Ch. 465; 80 L. T. 29, where it was held by the Court of Appeal that the appointment of a receiver by way of equitable execution does not create a charge on property which can be enforced by a sale.

In Kincaid v. Kincaid, 12 P. R. 462, this was called "one of the now usual and ordinary methods of execution," and it was held to be no answer to the motion that the judgment creditor could probably make the amount of his judgment by sale of other property under common law process, but in Manchester, etc., v. Parkinson, 22 Q. B. D. 173, it was held that in the absence of any legal impediment to obtaining execution of the judgment in the ordinary course of law by fi. fa., or attachment of debts, and of any special circumstances showing it to be just or convenient, an appointment of a receiver should not be made. See also I. v. K., W. N. 1884, 63; and Hamilton v. Brogden, 1891, W. N. 36; Harrison v. Harrison, 14 P. R. 436; Harris v. Beauchamp, 1894, 1 Q. B. 801; 70 L. T. 636. Street, J., in Trust & Loan Co. v. Gorsline, 12 P. R. 654, refused an order in a case where a garnishing order would afford a remedy. See also his judgment in Miller v. Thompson, 19 P. R. 224; and O'Donnell v. Faulkner, 1 O. L. R. 21.

It may, therefore, not be considered to be settled that a receiver by way of equitable execution will only be appointed in respect of property which the execution creditor has a right to make available for the payment of his debt: Holmes v. Millage, 1893, 1 Q. B. 555; 68 L. T. 205; but which cannot be reached by execution in the ordinary way, or by garnishee proceedings: Harris v. Beauchamp, 1891, 1 Q. B. 801; Morris v. Taylor, 32 L. R. Ir. 14; and see Cadogan v. Lyric Theatre, 1894, 3 Ch. 338; Re Asselin & Cleghorn, 6 O. L. R. 170.

In Cummins v. Perkins, 1899, 1 Ch. 16, an order for the payment of costs out of a married woman's separate property having been made, and the only separate property she had being an interest under a will, which the trustee was about to distribute, a receiver of it was appointed on the application of the party to whom the costs were payable, before taxation.

Seemle, in England a legal debtor's remainder in real estate is not a sufficient present interest to justify the appointment of a receiver with a view to realization: see Re Harrison & Bottomley, 1899, 1 Ch. 467. In Ontario there is the further reason against the appointment of a receiver in such case, that under R. S. O. 1897, c. 77, s. 33, the interest in remainder can be sold under an execution.

On the application the plaintiff is sometimes appointed the receiver: Fuggle v. Bland, 11 Q. B. D. 711. See also Book v. Ruth, 20 C. L. J. 183; Heicitt v. Murray, 52 L. T. 380; McGarry v. White, 16 L. R. Ir. 322; but a plaintiff cannot in this way get himself made a sort of general assignee of all his debtor's assets: Re Asselin & Cleghorn, supra.

It was decided in the Chancery Division, that a receiver appointed by way of execution, since The Creditors' Relief Act, must be ordered to receive and distribute in accordance with the principle of that Act: Silecster Mfg. Co. v. McEachren, 9 C. L. T. 138, followed: Steuart v. Jones, 19 P. R. 227; which was, however, subsequently reversed on the ground that the claim was not exigible: 1 O. L. R. 37; and he should probably be an officer of the Court: Kirk v. Burgess, 15 Ont. 608. But in the other Divisions there were decisions the other way: see McLean v. Allen, 14 P. R. 84, where it was held that The Creditors' Relief Act is not to be extended, by analogy, to cases not actually provided for by that Act, and a receiver will be appointed where that is an effective way of enforcing equitable execution: McLean v. Bruce, 14 P. R. 190, 202.

granted.

A receiver has been appointed to receive the life interest of a married woman in stock: Bryant v. Bull, 10 Ch. D. 153; the income of a defendant's reversionary interest under a will: Fuggle v. Bland, 11 Q. B. D. 711; of the debtor's share of his deceased wife's estate, of which he was administrator, and an injunction was granted to restrain him from dealing with his share: Smith v. Egan, 17 P. R. 330; a legacy to a debtor expectant upon the death of a tenant for life: Macnicoll v. Parnell, 35 W. R. 773; a judgment debtor's interest as one of the next of kin of an intestate to whose estate no administrator had been appointed: Mullane v. Aberne, 28 L. R. Ir. 105; and see Re McNulty, 31 L. R. Ir. 391; a judgment debtor's interest in subsisting life insurance policies and in a charge upon land: Beamish v. Stephenson, 18 L. R. Ir. 319; or in a fully paid up life insurance policy which he had assigned to the plaintiffs as security, reserving to himself the cash surrender value of the policy: Canadian Mutual L. & I. Co. v. Nisbet, 31 Ont. 562; moneys secured by mortgage held by the debtor who was resident out of the Province: Parent v. Lartie, Sec. 56, 7 C. L. T. 195; an equitable reversionary interest in personalty (though it was said by Lindley, L.J., that he could not find that the Court of Chancery had ever done so): Tyrrell v. Paintan, 1893, 1 Q. B. 202; an equitable reversionary interest in freehold and leasehold property: Re Jones, etc., W. N. 1895, 123; the rents and profits of defendant's lands (without prejudice to prior incumbrances), the possession of the lands being ordered to be delivered to the receiver: Cadogan v. Lyric Theatre Co., 1894, 3 Ch. 338; see also Hills v. Webber, 17 Times, 513; the moneys receivable in respect of the debtor's interest in a ship and her freight (without prejudice to prior incumbrances): Croshaw v. Lyndhurst Ship Co., 1897, 2 Ch. 154; and in other cases where proceedings for attachment of debts are not applicable: see Westhead v. Riley, 25 Ch. D. 413; Book v. Ruth, 20 C. L. J. 193; Stewart v. Jones, 19 P. R. 227; 1 O. L. R. 34.

The Court has no jurisdiction to appoint a receiver of the future earnings of a judgment debtor by way of equitable execution: nor in any other case where prior to the Jud. Act the Court of Chancery would not grant such relief: Holmes v. Millage, 1893, 1 Q. B. 551; Harris v. Beauchamp, 1894, 1 Q. B. 801; 70 L. T. 636.

A receiver will not be appointed by way of equitable execution of a judgment debtor's property generally: Hamilton v. Brodgen, No. 1, 1891, W. N. 14; Harris v. Beauchamp, supra; nor to receive all debts due to the judgment debtor: Re Asselin & Cleghorn, 6 O. L. R. 170; nor of a particular fund or interest after the death of the defendant in the action when the estate has become vested in his legal representative: Re Shepherd, 43 Ch. D. 131; nor of money payable in respect of insurance of chattels exempted under R. S. O. c. 77, s. 2: the money takes the place of the chattels, and is subject to the same protection: Osler v. Muter, 19 Ont. App. 94; nor of a debtor's interest in land vested in trustees on trust to permit the debtor and his wife and children to use it for a home: Cameron v. Adams, 25 Ont. 229; nor of a fund applicable for the benefit of the debtor in the discretion of trustees: Re McInnes v. McGarr, 30 Ont. 38; nor of a husband and wife's interest in furniture of which they were entitled to the use under a settlement: Whitaker v. Cohen, 69 L. T. 451; nor of the income of a married woman debtor, becoming due after the date of the judgment, as to which at that date she is restrained from anticipating, even as regards an instalment in arrear at the time of the application: Hood Barrs v. Cathcart, 1894, 2 Q. B. 559; 70 L. T. 862, 863; see notes to Rule 199; nor, in the case of a defendant a theatre company, to receive the money paid by the public for admission to the theatre: Cadogan v. Lyric Theatre Co., 1894, 3 Ch. 338; nor of unliquidated damages the subject of a pending action: Central Bank v. Ellis, 27 Ont. 583; nor of shares of stock in a foreign company said to be owned by the debtor; nor of the interest of the debtor in a certain policy of insurance on the life of another assigned to the debtor: Re Asselin & Cleghorn, supra.

Practice.—Where a receiver is appointed subject to security practice, being given, the appointment does not take effect until the security is perfected, and even where the security is given, the appointment does not relate back to the date of the order: Ridout v. Fowler, 1904, 1 Ch. 658; 2 Ch. 93; 90 L. T. 147; Edwards v. Edwards, 2 Ch. D. 291; therefore, where it is desired to intercept a fund, an injunction restraining any dealing with it until the appointment of a receiver is completed should also be obtained, or the object of the receivership order may be frustrated.

Sec. 88.

A third person injuriously affected by the appointment of a receiver may move to rescind it: McLean v. Allen, 18 P. R. 255.

Practice.

Where the plaintiff desires the appointment of a receiver, otherwise than by way of equitable execution, he should claim that relief by the indorsement on his writ of summons, and in his statement of claim.

A defendant in order to obtain the appointment of a receiver must file a counter-claim claiming that relief, where his right to such relief arises out of some matter independent of the plaintiff's case; and if such relief is required before he is in position to file a counter-claim a cross action must be commenced: Carier v. Fey, 1894, 2 Ch. 541; but where such right arises out of the plaintiff's case, a counter-claim does not appear to be necessary: Sargant v. Read, 1 Ch. D. 600.

A motion for a receiver is made in England to a Judge in Chambers as a rule: Re Hartley, Nuttall v. Whittaker, 66 L. T. 588; but in Ontario it is customary to apply to the Judge sitting in the weekly Court.

Except in cases of emergency the application should be on notice: see Lucas v. Harris, 18 Q. B. D. 134; Re Potts, 1893, 1 Q. B. 648; Tilling v. Blythe, 1899, 1 Q. B. 557. In cases of emergency a receiver will be appointed ex parte not only before appearance: Taylor v. Eckersley, 2 Ch. D. 302; but before service of writ: Re H's Estate, 1 Ch. D. 276; Colbourne v. Colbourne, 1 Ch. D. 600; Hyde v. Warden, 1 Ex. D. 309; Evans v. Lloyd, W. N. 1889, 171; and not only in cases of equitable execution (see Minter v. Kent, 11 Times, 197; 72 L. T. 186), where delay might mean loss of the property, but also in actions.

In cases of equitable execution the practice has grown up of applying ex parte, in cases of emergency, for an interim order for a limited time, and of applying within such time to continue and make permanent the appointment: see Stark v. Ross, 17 P. R. 237.

In an action for the specific performance of an agreement to accept a lease of a farm, in which judgment had been given for the defendant, the plaintiff having appealed, the Court of Appeal (no previous application having been made to the Divisional Court or a Judge) appointed the plaintiff receiver and manager of the farm without security, on his undertaking to abide by any order which the Court might make in the matter: Hyde v. Warden, 1 Ex. D. 309.

The plaintiff may be appointed receiver in cases of emergency: Taylor v. Eckersley, 2 Ch. D. 302; and under special circumstances: Hyde v. Warden, 1 Ex. D. 309; but not the plaintiff's solicitor: In re Lloyd, Allen v. Lloyd, 12 Ch. D. 447; one of the members of a dissolved partnership in certain cases may be appointed receiver: Sargant v. Read, 1 Ch. D. 600. The manager of a mining company was appointed receiver in an action by debenture holders against the company for foreclosure: Peck v. Trinamarian Iron Company, 2 Ch. D. 115.

An interim receiver of a partnership may be ordered to sell the assets: McLaren v. Whiting, 16 P. R. 552.

The receiver must, as a rule, give security, but, in cases of emergency, an interim receiver will be appointed without security: Taylor v. Eckersley, 2 Ch. D. 302. Persons who are deeply interested in the proper management of a concern will not always be required to give security: Boyle v. Bettus, etc., Co., 2 Ch. D. 726.

A receiver is liable to account, and his sureties are responsible, for Sec. 55. all moneys coming to his hands in that capacity at any time: Smart v. Flood, 49 L. T. 467.

The appointment of a receiver is in the discretion of the Court, and the Court of Appeal will not, as a rule, interfere with that discretion: Nothard v. Proctor, 1 Ch. D. 4.

For the practice in the Master's Office on the appointment of receivers, and the security, if any, to be given by them: see Rules 756-766, and notes.

Effect and Enforcement of Order.—The appointment of a receiver (at any rate when not accompanied by a direction to any person to pay) creates no lien or charge on the property of which he is to be receiver, and is not equivalent to a seizure in execution: Croshaw v. Lyndhurst Ship Co., 1897, 2 Ch. 154; but as to the extent to which it prevents the debtor from dealing with the fund prejudicially, and prevents other persons from obtaining priority in regard to it: see Re Marquis of Anglesea & De Galve v. Gardner, 1903, 2 Ch. D. 727.

Where a receiver and manager of a partnership business has been appointed, it is a breach of the order for one of the partners to set up a rival business and spread reports that the partnership business is about to be closed: Dixon v. Dixon, 1904, 1 Ch. 161; 89 L. T. 272.

Where a creditor has obtained an order appointing himself receiver of his debtor's interest in personal estate, the Court has no jurisdiction to make a declaration of charge in his favour upon such interest: Flegg v. Prentice, 1892, 2 Ch. 428; 67 L. T. 107; nor to order a sale: De Peyreclaye v. Nicholson, 97 L. T. Jour. 286; 42 W. R. 702.

As to the effect of an order for a receiver as against a trustee in bankruptcy: see Levasseur v. Mason, 1891, 2 Q. B. 73; Re Potts, 1893, 1 Q. B. 648; 68 L. T. 229; Croshaw v. Lyndhurst, 1897, 2 Ch. 154.

A receiver appointed by way of equitable execution is not entitled to carry on the debtor's business, but he may prevent the debtor or anyone else from carrying it on, on the debtor's premises: Cadogan v. Lyric Theatre, 1894, 3 Ch. 338, 344.

Property in possession of a receiver is not for all purposes in custodia legis: Re Hoare, 67 L. T. 45; but it is so, so far as to prevent the party ultimately found entitled, from claiming damages for its detention while in his possession: The Peruvian Guano Co. v. Dreyfus, 1892, A. C. 166.

A receiver of the debtor's share in an estate which could not be reached by execution in the usual way, after refusal of the debtor to allow the use of his name, was authorized, on giving security to him, to take proceedings in his name for the administration of the estate, and is necessary for the removal of the executor: Mones v. McCallum, 17 P. R. 398.

A person who is not a party to an action is not entitled to apply by motion for payment of money to him by a receiver appointed in the action, even though his claim is made in respect of a debt properly payable out of the funds in the receiver's hands: Brocklebank v. East London Railway Company, 12 Ch. D. 839; see Neate v. Pink, 15 Sim. 459; 3 Mac. & G. 476.

Sec. 55.

Court may award damages,
etc.

10. In all cases in which the Court has jurisdiction to entertain an application for an injunction against a breach of any covenant, contract or agreement or against the commission or continuance of any wrongful act, or for the specific performance of any covenant, contract, or agreement, the Court, if it thinks fit, may award damages to the party injured either in addition to or in substitution for such injunction or specific performance, and such damages may be ascertained in such manner as the Court may direct, or the Court may grant such other relief as it may deem just.

Taken from R. S. O. 1877, c. 40, s. 40, which was taken from Lord Cairns' Act, 21 & 22 Vict. c. 27, s. 2 (6). This section does not enable the Court to grant damages in a case where before the Act damages were not recoverable, e.g., in the case of an oral agreement not capable of specific performance in Equity, and in respect of which the defendant, in an action at Law for damages, might have successfully pleaded the Statute of Frauds: Re Northumberland Avenue Hotel Co., Sully's Case, 54 L. T. 76; 33 Ch. D. 16. See also Lavery v. Pursell, 30 Ch. D. 308.

The following is stated as a "good working rule," under this clause: "Damages may be given in substitution for an injunction in cases where there are found in combination the four following requirements, viz.: where injury to the plaintiff's legal rights is (1) small, (2) capable of being estimated in money, (3) can be adequately compensated by a small money payment, and (4) where the case is one in which it would be oppressive to the defendant to grant an injunction": per A. L. Smith, L.J., in Shelfer v. City of London Electric, etc., Co., 1895, 1 Ch. 287; see S. C. sub nom. Meux v. London, etc., 72 L. T. 34; and Coeper v. Laidler, 1903, 2 Ch. 337; 80 L. T. 409.

The Court has no jurisdiction under this sub-section to award damages where no wrongful act has been actually committed, but only threatened, by the person against whom the injunction is claimed: Coeper v. Laidler, supra; Dreyfus v. Peruvian Guano Co., 43 Ch. D. 316; 62 L. T. 518; Martin v. Price, 1894, 1 Ch. 276; 70 L. T. 228; but see Holland v. Worley, 26 Ch. D. 578.

Substantial damages can only be given where there is a proper case for an injunction, and in lieu of it: Proctor v. Bailey, 42 Ch. D. 390; 38 W. R. 100; General Accident Asscc. Co. v. Noel, 1902, 1 K. B. 377; 86 L. T. 555; but nominal damages may be given in addition to an injunction: Lyman v. Pulman, 91 L. T. 132; 1904, W. N. 129.

Where the act sought to be restrained is a continuing actionable nuisance, although there is jurisdiction to award damages in lieu of an injunction, yet it is said it ought to be exercised under very exceptional circumstances: Meux Brewing Co. v. London, supra.

Where a plaintiff has established his right to a perpetual injunction, the Court has no power to oblige him to accept damages in lieu of an injunction: Martin v. Price, supra; Krehl v. Burrell, 1 Ch. D. 146; and Greenwood v. Hornsey, 33 Ch. D. 471, in which Holland v. Worley, 26 Ch. D. 378, was distinguished. See also Allen v. Ayres, W. N. 1894, 242.

Where the wrongful act has ceased before trial, the Court may ^{Sec. 56.} under this Act, in lieu of an injunction, which would be useless, assess at the trial the damages from the commencement of the wrongful act, including damages accrued since the writ: Fritz v. Hobson, 14 Ch. D. 542, 557.

Where the wrongful act has been discontinued before suit, without the plaintiff's knowledge, it was held that the Court had no jurisdiction under the above enactment to make a decree for damages: Brockington v. Palmer, 18 Gr. 488.

See also White v. Boby, 37 L. T. 652; Kino v. Rudkin, 6 Ch. D. 180; National Provincial Plate Glass Ins. Co. v. Prudential Ass. Co., 6 Ch. D. 761; Krehl v. Burrell, 7 Ch. D. 551; Fritz v. Hobson, 14 Ch. D. 542; Rock Portland Cement Co. v. Wilson, 52 L. J. Chy. 217; Sayers v. Collyer, 28 Ch. D. 103, and Serrao v. Noel, 15 Q. B. D. 549; Laurance v. Horton, 38 W. R. 555; Ryan v. Mutual, etc., 1893, 1 Ch. 116; Elmore v. Pirrie, 57 L. T. 333; Tamplin v. Jones, 15 Ch. D. 222.

11. An order of the Court under any statutory or other jurisdiction shall not, as against a purchaser, whether with or without notice, be invalidated on the ground of want of jurisdiction, or of want of any concurrence, consent, notice, or service.

Purchaser not affected by irregularities in orders of Court.

This provision was held not to operate to give a good title to a purchaser at a sale under an order of the Court, where the Court in making the order supposed that it was dealing with an interest belonging to a judgment debtor, though in fact it belonged to a person not a party to the proceedings and not bound by them: Jones v. Barnett, 1900, 1 Ch. 370; 80 L. T. 408.

See Calvert v. Godfrey, 6 Beav. 97; Blean v. Blean, 10 Ont. 693; Re Hall Dare's Contract, 21 Ch. D. 41; Mostyn v. Mostyn, 1893, 3 Ch. 376; 69 L. T. 741.

Semble, a purchaser showing the existence of irregularities in the proceedings cannot be compelled to rely on the indemnity of this sub-section: see Life Interest Corp. v. Hand-in-Hand Socy., 1898, 2 Ch. 230; Forsters v. Pegg, 19 P. R. 254.

12. In questions relating to the custody and education of infants, the Rules of Equity shall prevail.

Same as English J A., 1873, s. 25 (10).

At Common Law the father of an infant (or his testamentary guardian, or guardian appointed by the Court; Wellesley v. Beckett, 2 R. & M. 639), had a prima facie right to the custody of the infant, even against the mother, unless the child was of an age to judge for himself, or there was an apprehension of cruelty from the father, or contamination in consequence of his immorality or gross profligacy. If the infant was of an age to elect for himself, the Court would merely interfere so far as to get it free from illegal restraint, without handing it over to anybody: Rex v. Delaval, 3 Burr. 1435. But, in the absence of any right of choice, the Court transferred the infant to the proper legal custody. The right to such an election was decided Sec. 53. to depend upon age alone, and not on mental capacity: see Reg. v. Clarke, 7 E. & B. 186; and it was settled that no such choice could be made, at all events by a female infant, under the age of sixteen: see Re Andrews, L. R. 8 Q. B. 158.

Equity rule. The English Court of Chancery had original jurisdiction over the persons and property of infants, springing from the right of the Crown as paterfamilias, and had power to interfere with the Common Law rights of the father, in the interest of the infant, on the ground of the father's cruelty, immorality, etc. (as to the father's rights in such case, see further notes below, and Swift v. Swift, 6 N. R. 137; 34 L. J. Chy. 209, 394); or of his agreement, express or implied, to waive his rights (see Simpson on Infants, 136 et seq.). This jurisdiction was not often exercised except where the Court had the means of applying property for the use and maintenance of the infant (Ib.) The existence of the jurisdiction, however, was affirmed in Re McGroth, 1892, 2 Ch. 496; 1893, 1 Ch. 143.

Under Judicature Act.

Under the Judicature Act, the High Court has now jurisdiction with regard to the care and custody of infants; and, in the exercise of that jurisdiction, the rules of Equity are to prevail.

Where an infant is in the custody of some person who is required to deliver him up, the application may be made for a habeas corpus ad subjiciendum, and the Court on the return of the writ will determine to whom the future custody of the infant should be committed, but the application may also be made by petition entitled in the matter of the infant: Re Smart, 12 P. R. 312, 435, 625; 9 C. L. T. 200.

A wife who left her husband's home without reasonable cause, taking with her their only child, was ordered forthwith to deliver the child into the custody of the father, with liberty to either party to apply in Chambers as to access: Constable v. Constable, 34 W. R. 649; and see Re Mothieu, 29 Ont. 546.

A habeas corpus should not issue where the person, in whose custody the child had been, has parted with the custody of the child (except in the case of this being done to evade the process of the Court, and so is virtually a contempt): Reg. v. Barnardo, Gossage's case, 24 Q. B. D. 283; 1892, A. C. 326, sub nom. Barnardo v. Ford, overruling Reg. v. Barnardo, 23 Q. B. D. 305.

There is no power in the Court or a Judge to order the issue of a writ of habeas corpus directed to a person who at the date of the order is out of the jurisdiction: Re v. Pinkney, 1904, 2 K. B. 84.

Under
R.S.O. c. 165

The rights of the parents as to custody of their infant children have been modified by statute in Ontario. R. S. O. 1897, c. 168, contains the provisions now in force, as follows:

Court may make order as to custody and right of access to

1.—(1) The High Court or Surrogate Court, or any Judge of either Court, may, upon application of the mother of an infant (who may so apply without next friend) make such order as the Court or Judge sees fit regarding the custody of the infant, and the right of access thereto of either parent, having regard to the welfare of the infant, and to the conduct of the parents, and to the wishes as well of the mother as of the father, and may afterwards alter, vary or discharge the order on the application of either parent, or, after the death of either parent, of any guardian under this Act, and in every case may make such order respecting the costs of the mother and the liability of the father for the same or otherwise as to costs as the Court or Judge may think just.

(2) The Court or Judge may also make order for the maintenance of the infant by payment by the father thereof, or by payment out of any estate to which the infant is entitled, of such sum or sums of money from time to time as according to the pecuniary circumstances of the father, or the value of the estate, the Court or Judge thinks just and reasonable. R. S. O. 1887, c. 137, s. 1. Sec. 58.
Order as to maintenance.

Taken from Imp. Act, 49-50 Vict. c. 27, s. 5.

2.—No order directing that the mother shall have the custody of or access to an infant shall be made by virtue of this Act, in favour of a mother, against whom adultery has been established by judgment in an action for criminal conversation at the suit of her husband against any person. R. S. O. 1887, c. 137, s. 2.

See Imp. Act, 49 & 50 Vict. c. 27, s. 7.

The Act mentions no age within which the mother may be given the custody of her children. In case application is made under the Act, the matter is left entirely open for the Judge to deal with the infants as may seem best for them: see Re Witten, 57 L. T. 336, W. N. 1887, 167; Skinner v. Skinner, 36 W. R. 912. But the prima facie right of a father to the custody of his children will not be interfered with merely because his wife, without any good cause, refuses to live with him: Re Mathieu, 29 Ont. 546.

R. S. O. 1897, c. 168, does not affect the right of a father to decide as to the religious education of his children: sec. 23, and see Re Scanlan, 40 Ch. D. 200; 36 W. R. 842.

A father has a legal right to control and direct the education and bringing up of his children until they attain the age of 21, even though they are wards of Court, and the Court will not interfere with him in the exercise of his paternal authority, except (1) where by his gross moral turpitude he forfeits his rights, or (2) where he has by his conduct abdicated his paternal authority, or (3) where he seeks to remove his children, being wards of Court, out of the jurisdiction, without the consent of the Court: Re Agar Ellis, 24 Ch. D. 317; Re Mathieu, 29 Ont. 546. Prima facie
the father.

Before the jurisdiction of the Court to deprive a father of the guardianship of his children can be called into action, the Court must be satisfied that he has so conducted himself, or placed himself in such a position as to render it not merely better for the children, but essential to their safety or welfare in some very serious and important respect, that the father's ordinary rights should be interfered with: see Re W—5 N. R. 363; Smart v. Smart, 1892, A. C. 425; 67 L. T. 510.

The affidavits of the mother and others, in answer to a rule for a habeas corpus by a father to remove his child (a boy of nine years) from the custody of the child's maternal grandfather, disclosing facts which shewed the applicant to be a person of intemperate and vicious life, and in the habit of using gross and disgusting language, as well as personal violence to his wife,—the Court declined to interfere, the present custody of the child being unobjectionable: In re Goldsworthy, 2 Q. B. D. 75. So the Court, in the interest of the children, declined to interfere where it was contended that there had been a gross breach of marital duty on the husband's part, he not desiring or intending that his wife should live with him, or if she insisted on doing so he declined to meet or speak to her except at meals, and when the interests of the children required: Re Elderton, 25 Ch. D. 220.

Sec. 58.

See also Re Ferguson, 8 P. R. 556, where the father being imbecile the Court refused to take a child out of the custody of its grandfather and her brother-in-law.

The father, a medical officer in the army, who was under a covenant to allow his wife access to his children, was held entitled to take his children with him wherever his duties called him: Hunt v. Hunt, 28 Ch. D. 606.

The custody of children was given to a guardian appointed by the father to be brought up in the faith of the father, it not appearing to be for the benefit of the children to do otherwise: Re Chulman Infants, 25 Ont. 268.

Where a father had secreted two of his children, aged 8 and 11, from their mother, to prevent their being brought up in the Roman Catholic religion, he was on petition of the mother under R. S. O. c. 168, directed to disclose the whereabouts of the younger child, and access by the mother was provided for. No order was made as to the other child, who was nearly 12: Re Keith, 7 P. R. 138.

Interests of
considered.

The best interests of the children were considered on petitions under the former Act, and will be under the present Act: see Re Ethel Davis, 25 Ont. 579; Re Young, 29 Ont. 665; Re Mathieu, supra; and unless what is asked for is for the real benefit of the child the Court will not interfere: Re X., 1899, 1 Ch. 526; 80 L. T. 311. In Re Murdoch, 9 P. R. 132, the Court refused under the circumstances to remove a child from its mother's custody, but allowed the father to have access: see also Re Newton, 1896, 1 Ch. 740. In Re Scott, 8 P. R. 58, a child was allowed to remain with a stranger, having been originally placed there by the mother, the father being dead, and the mother having married again and being in poor circumstances: see also Re Dickson, 12 P. R. 639; Smart v. Smart, 1892, A. C. 425; Re McGrath, 1892, 2 Ch. 496; 1893, 1 Ch. 143; Witt v. Witt, 1891, P. 163, 64 L. T. 121.

In Reg. v. Gyngall, 1893, 2 Q. B. 232, though the mother was the legal guardian of a child, and had not been guilty of any misconduct to disentitle her to its custody, the Court refused to give her the custody, being satisfied that that course was essential for the welfare of the child. The grounds generally upon which a parent's rights may be interfered with were discussed in that case.

In exercising its jurisdiction the conduct of the mother is taken into consideration by the Court: Re Taylor, 11 Sim. 178; Re Bartlett, 2 Collyer, 661; Shilleto v. Collet, 8 W. R. 683; Re Winscom, 2 H. & M. 541; Re Shaw, referred to in 11 Sim. 182-195; Re Halliday, 17 Jur. 56.

As to custody of infants where both parents have been guilty of adultery: see In re A. & B., 1897, 1 Ch. 786, and where the father alone was guilty: Re Young, 29 Ont. 665.

Where the Court has made an order respecting the custody of an infant, and directed it to remain within the jurisdiction, it is a contempt of Court, punishable by attachment, to remove such infant out of the jurisdiction: Farard v. Farard, 75 L. T. 664.

The order may be made ex parte if the necessity of the case requires it: Re Taylor, 11 Sim. 178.

The Court has jurisdiction to summarily order the personal attendance before it of any persons who are supposed to be in a position to give information as to the place of concealment of wards of Court: Rosenberg v. Lindo, 48 L. T. 478. Sec. 56.

On a habeas corpus under R. S. O. c. 83, the Court may direct evidence to be taken viva voce to examine into the truth of the return: Re Smart, 12 P. R. 2.

As to the custody of illegitimate children: see Re Holshed, 5 P. R. 231; Re Brandon, 7 P. R. 347; Re Smith, 8 P. R. 23; Reg. v. Bernardo, Jones' Case, 1891, 1 Q. B. 194; 1891, A. C. 388; Reg. v. Armstrong, 1 P. R. 6; Re v. New, 20 Times, 583. Illegitimate children.

As to the support of illegitimate children: see R. S. O. c. 169.

Guardians.—R. S. O. c. 168, secs. 14 and 15, are as follows:—Guardians.

14.—(1) On the death of the father of an infant, the mother, if surviving, shall be the guardian of the infant, either alone, when no guardian has been appointed by the father, or jointly with any guardian appointed by the father. On death of father, mother to be guardian alone or jointly with others.

As to the right of a mother as guardian: see Re X., 1899, 1 Ch. 526; 80 L. T. 311.

(2) Where no guardian has been appointed by the father, or if the guardian or guardians appointed by the father is, or are, dead, or refuses or refuse to act, the High Court or Surrogate Court, or any Judge of either Court, may from time to time appoint a guardian or guardians to act jointly with the mother, as such Court or Judge shall see fit. R. S. O. 1887, c. 137, s. 13.

15.—(1) The mother of an infant may, by deed or will, appoint any person or persons to be guardian or guardians of the infant after the death of herself and the father of the infant (if the infant be then unmarried), and where guardians are appointed by both parents they shall act jointly. Mother may appoint guardian in certain cases.

(2) The mother of an infant may, by deed or will, provisionally nominate some fit person or persons to act as guardian or guardians of the infant after her death jointly with the father of the infant, and the Court or a Judge, after her death, if it be shown to the satisfaction of the Court or a Judge that the father is for any reason unfitted to be the sole guardian of his children, may confirm the appointment of such guardian or guardians, who shall thereupon be empowered to act as aforesaid, or make such other order in respect of the guardianship as the Court or Judge shall think right. R. S. O. 1887, c. 137, s. 14.

This Act is in the same terms as Imp. Act, 49 & 50 Vict. c. 27.

The Court has jurisdiction to remove a guardian appointed by the mother, under sec. 15 (2), after the father's death, if that course is for the welfare of the infants: Re McGrath, 1892, 2 Ch. 496; 1893, 1 Ch. 143; and see Re G., 1892, 1 Ch. 292, where an appointment by the mother was adopted by the Court though the guardian was not appointed to act jointly with the father.

As to the father's power to appoint a testamentary guardian: see R. S. O. c. 340, s. 2; and as to the powers of guardians so appointed: see Ib., ss. 2, 3.

Religious Education.—As to the father's right to control the religious education of his children, recognized by the above Act (sec. education 23): see Re Agar Ellis, 10 Ch. D. 49, where the father was held not of infants.

Sec. 58.

to have forfeited his right by promising his wife on their marriage that their children should be brought up of her religion: see also Re Besant, 11 Ch. D. 308; Re Dickson, 12 P. R. 659; Re Scanlan, 40 Ch. D. 200; 59 L. T. 599; Re Chillman, 25 Ont. 268; and Re Nevin, 1891, 2 Ch. 299.

The father's right to have his infant children educated in his religious faith may be lost if he allows them to be educated in another faith for such a time that it would, in the opinion of the Court, be contrary to the children's interests to alter their religious education. The welfare of the children is of paramount consideration: Re Newton, 1896, 1 Ch. 740; 73 L. T. 687.

The fact that the infant's mother and sole guardian has married a person of a religion different from that of the infant, was considered to be no ground for interfering with the guardianship of the mother, when no attempt was made by the step-father to interfere with the infant's religion: Re X., 1899, 1 Ch. 526; 80 L. T. 311.

In Condon v. Vollum, 57 L. T. 154, a child was allowed to be brought up of its mother's religion, as it was maintained by her, and the father was indifferent and made opposition only for the sake of vexing the mother. It was also held that the father's living in adultery was not a relevant fact to the question of his right to control the religious education of his child.

A Protestant on his marriage with a Roman Catholic agreed that their children should be brought up as Roman Catholics, but a son should when old enough be permitted to change his religion. A boy was born, baptized and brought up a Roman Catholic. The father died intestate, only expressing a wish that his son should go to an English Protestant School. It was held that having regard to the indication of intention on the father's part, and the present and future benefit of the son, his mother ought to be appointed his guardian, and he be brought up as a Roman Catholic: Re Clarke, 21 Ch. D. 817; 31 W. R. 37; 47 L. T. 84; and where there was no father, mother or guardian, and therefore no one entitled to the custody, or to say that the child was to be brought up in any particular religion, and it appearing to the Court to be best for the interest of the child that she should be brought up as a Protestant, it was so directed, notwithstanding that she had been baptized in the Roman Catholic Church: Re Nevin, 1891, 2 Ch. 299; 65 L. T. 35. An ante-nuptial agreement that the child should be brought up as a Roman Catholic was held not binding on the father, who was a Protestant: (ib.); and see Re McGrath, supra.

Where a testator, a Protestant, appointed his sister to be guardian of his infant daughter, and four years after the sister became a Roman Catholic, it was held under the circumstances that it was for the benefit of the infant who had been brought up as a Protestant that the guardian should be removed: F. v. F., 1902, 1 Ch. 688.

Where infants interested in real estate in England, whose father was dead, were living with their mother out of the jurisdiction, and she was one of their testamentary guardians, an order was made at the instance of their two other guardians declaring in what faith they should be educated: Re Montagu, 28 Ch. D. 82.

Cases of conflict not already mentioned.

13. Generally in all matters not hereinbefore particularly mentioned, in which there is any conflict or variance between the Rules of Equity and the Rules of Common Law with reference to the same matter, the Rules of Equity shall prevail.

58 V. c. 12, s. 53 (5-12).

Same as Eng. J. A. 1873, s. 25 (11). In Re Terry & White, 32 Ch. D. 14, it was denied by Lord Esher, M.R., that any such difference between the Rules of Law and Equity existed; and see Pugh v. Heath, 7 App. Cas. 237; Kearsley v. Philips, 10 Q. B. D. 41; Lowe v. Dixon, 10 Q. B. D. 455.

This sub-section relates to matters of substantive law, not mere practice: Friendly v. Carter, 9 P. R. 41; Dalrymple v. Leslie, 8 Q. B. D. 5; La Grange v. McAndrew, 4 Q. B. D. 210; Harrison v. Rutland, 1893, 1 Q. B. 142. As to matters of practice: see secs. 48 and 128, and Rules 2 and 3.

The following decisions illustrate this sub-section:—

Examples

The old learning on the subject of "conversion" at law is not imported into the Judicature Act: Stimson v. Block, 11 Ont. 96, 103.

Where the terms of a bill of sale are such as to bind after-acquired goods in Equity, the title of the claimant must now prevail as against the execution creditor, under this sub-section: per Lush, J., W. N. 1875, 203; per Archibald, J., W. N. 1876, 64.

The rule of Equity now prevails that letters of administration, when obtained, relate back to the death, and it is sufficient if a plaintiff suing as administrator qualifies before trial: Trice v. Robinson, 18 Ont. 433; Doyle v. Diamond Flint Glass Co., 8 O. L. R. 499; Dini v. Fauquier, 8 O. L. R. 712.

Where assets have come into possession of the executor and are afterwards lost to the estate, the rule in all Courts now is, that the executor cannot be charged without some wilful default: Job v. Job, 6 Ch. D. 562; and see Barber v. Mackrell, 12 Ch. D. 534.

Since the Judicature Act there is only one Court, and the rules of Equity prevail in it; therefore a tenant in possession holding under an agreement for a lease (of which specific performance would be decreed: Swain v. Ayres, 21 Q. B. D. at p. 293) has no longer two estates, one a legal tenancy, from year to year and the other an equitable tenancy under the agreement. He holds as if a lease had been granted: Walsh v. Lonsdale, 21 Ch. D. 9; Lowther v. Heaver, 41 Ch. D. 264; Re Maughan, 14 Q. B. D. 956; Allhusen v. Brooking, 26 Ch. D. 559; Pugh v. Heath, 7 App. Cas. 237; Crump v. Temple, 7 Times, 120; Magee v. Gilmour, 17 Ont. App. 27; 18 S. C. R. 579; but this doctrine can only be applied in cases in the County Court in which the Court is competent to exercise equitable jurisdiction: see Foster v. Reeves, 1892, 2 Q. B. 255; 67 L. T. 537. The landlord has the same right of distress as if a lease had been executed, and he cannot distrain by virtue of a legal title if he cannot distrain under the agreement: Walsh v. Lonsdale, 21 Ch. D. 9; and see Lowther v. Heaver, 41 Ch. D. 248. So in actions to re-enter for breach of covenant in a lease the Court will dispose of questions in their equitable rather than their legal aspect in cases where under the former practice the Court of Chancery would have relieved against a forfeiture: Buckley v. Beigle, 8 Ont. 85.

Where the solicitor of a lessee fraudulently procured from him a memorandum of deposit of the lease as security for a loan by the solicitor, and upon the security of the lease and memorandum procured a loan from an innocent lender, it was held in an action by the lessee against the latter, for the delivery up of the lease, that this section did not apply to enable the defendant to say that he was a purchaser for value without notice, and retain the lease: James v. Giles, W. N. 1880, 170.

It has been held in England that where an executor or administrator, after the commencement of a creditor's action for administration and before judgment, has voluntarily paid any creditor in full, the rule in Equity and not at Law must prevail under this subsection, and he will be held to have made a good payment, and will be allowed it in his accounts, even though he may have had notice of the action before payment: Re Radcliffe, European Soc. v. Radcliffe, 7 Ch. D. 733; Vibart v. Coles, 24 Q. B. D. 364; Re Wells, 45 Ch. D. 569; but quære whether in Ont. this was the rule in Equity: see R. S. O. c. 129, s. 34.

The rule of Equity in the administration of partnership assets was applied in administering a fund in the sheriff's hands, and joint estate was applied to joint debts, and separate estate to separate debts, to the exclusion of any legal lien acquired by an execution creditor: see further, as to the application of this rule: Re Ruby, 24 Ont. App. 509. Equitable rules are, however, only applied where they would have been applied formerly by a Court of Equity: e.g., the plea of purchase without notice had no effect in a case under the concurrent jurisdiction of Equity where a plaintiff was pursuing a legal title for legal relief: Manners v. Mew, 29 Ch. D. 725, 734.

See also Ryan v. Fish, 4 Ont. 335; Re Hodgson, Beckett v. Ramsdale, 55 L. J. Chy. 241, and Trower on the Prevalence of Equity under the Jud. Act.

Rules of law to apply to all Courts

59. The several rules of law enacted and declared by this Act shall be in force and receive effect in all Courts whatsoever in Ontario, so far as the matters to which such rules relate shall be respectively cognizable by such Courts. 58 V. c. 12, s. 54.

Taken from Eng. J. A. 1873, s. 91.

The provision of Rule 1130, that in an action tried by jury the costs shall follow the event unless the Judge otherwise orders, was considered to be a rule of Law and not one of practice, and therefore under the corresponding English section was held to be applicable to the Passage Court of Liverpool: King v. Haickworth, 4 Q. B. D. 371. Quære, whether notwithstanding this decision it was not the intention of this section to apply in all Courts the Rules of Law only which are enacted by sec. 58; see Building and Loan, etc., v. Heimrod, 19 C. L. J. 256, and Pryor v. City Offices, 10 Q. B. D. 504; Poyser v. Minors, 7 Q. B. D. 329. The transfer of this section in the Revision of the Statutes of 1888 from the end of the Act to its present position immediately following sec. 58 seems to give some support to the latter view.

See also Speers v. Daggers, 1 Cah. & E. 503; Fellows v. Owners, etc., 1893, 1 Q. B. 104; Foster v. Reeves, 1892, 2 Q. B. 255.

CONSTITUTIONAL QUESTIONS.

60.—(1) When in any action or other proceeding, the constitutional validity of any Act of the Parliament of Canada or of the Legislature of Ontario comes into question, the same shall not be adjudged to be invalid until after notice thereof has been served on the Minister of Justice and the Attorney-General of Ontario, or at their offices respectively.

Notice to be given to Minister of Justice and Attorney-General of Ontario before any Act is declared invalid.

(2) The notice in such case shall be entitled in the cause; shall state what the Act or section of an Act is which is in question, and the day on which the case or the said question is to be argued; and shall give such other particulars as are necessary to show the constitutional point proposed to be argued.

(3) The notice shall be served six days before the day of the argument unless a Judge authorizes a shorter notice.

(4) Upon every such question the said Minister of Justice and the said Attorney-General shall be entitled as of right to be heard, either in person or by counsel, notwithstanding that the Crown is not a party to the action or proceeding. 58 V. c. 12, s. 55.

See notes to sec. 57 (2).

SITTINGS OF COURT AND DISTRIBUTION OF BUSINESS.

61. The legal year shall not be divided into Terms so far as relates to the administration of justice; and there shall not (a) be terms applicable to any sitting or business of the High Court (b), or of any Commissioners to whom any jurisdiction may be assigned under this Act, or of any Commissioners of Assize (c); but in all (d) cases in which, under the law existing prior to the 22nd day of August, 1881, the terms into which the legal year was divided were used as a measure for determining the time at or within which any act was required to be done, the same may continue to be referred to for the same or the like purpose, unless and until provision is otherwise made by any lawful authority. 58 V. c. 12, s. 56.

Abolition of Terms.

With the exceptions mentioned below, this clause corresponds with Eng. J. A. 1873, s. 26, first part.

Secs. 62, 63. (a) The English section has the words "no longer," instead of the word "not."

(b) The English section has here the words "or the Court of Appeal"; the Court of Appeal in Ontario had no "Terms."

(c) The words "commissioners of assize" are not in the English Act.

As to commissions of Assize, etc., see note to sec. 188 of this Act.

(d) The English Act has the additional word "other" here.

Time of former Terms.

The former Common Law Terms were certain fixed periods in the year when the former Common Law Courts sat in banc; and certain business could only be transacted before the Court at those periods. There were four of these Terms, viz.: Hilary, Easter, Trinity and Michaelmas: R. S. O. 1877, c. 39, s. 11.

Terms survive as measures of time for the purpose of marking time: e.g., formerly in the time for making a motion to set aside an award: College of Christ's Hospital v. Martin, 3 Q. B. D. 28; Giles v. Morrice, 4 Ont. 649; Kean v. Edwards, 12 P. R. 625; Re Garson, 16 P. R. 179; but now Terms will not be used in such case, provision having been made for the time for moving against an award by R. S. O. c. 62, s. 45.

Sittings of Courts.

62.—(1) Subject to the Rules of Court, the High Court of Justice, and the Court of Appeal, and the Judges thereof respectively, or any such Commissioners as aforesaid, shall have power to sit and act, at any time and at any place, for the transaction of any part of the business of such Courts respectively, or of such Judges or Commissioners, or for the discharge of any duty which by any statute, or otherwise, is required to be discharged.

Where Divisional Sittings to be held.

(2) Subject to the preceding proviso. the Divisional Sittings of the High Court shall be held at the city of Toronto. 58 V. c. 12, s. 57.

The sittings of Divisional Courts are regulated by Rule 116.

Vacations.

63. The Lieutenant-Governor in Council may from time to time, upon any report or recommendation of the council of Judges of the Supreme Court hereinafter mentioned, make, revoke or modify, orders regulating the vacations to be observed by the High Court of Justice and the Court of Appeal, and in the offices of the said Courts respectively; and any Order in Council made pursuant to this section shall, so long as it continues in force, be of the same effect as if it were contained in this Act; and Rules of Court may be made for carrying the same into effect in the same manner as if such Order in Council were part of this Act. 58 V. c. 12, s. 58.

As to vacations, see Rule 354.

64. Commissions of assize or any other commissions, ^{secs 64, 65.} either general or special, may be issued, by the proper authority, assigning to the persons to be therein named, the duty of trying and determining within any place or district specially fixed for that purpose by such commission, any causes or matters, or any questions or issues of fact or of law, or partly of fact and partly of law, in any cause or matter, depending in the said High Court; or the exercise of any civil or criminal jurisdiction capable of being exercised by the said High Court; and any commission so issued shall be of the same validity as if it were enacted by the body of this Act; and any Commissioner or Commissioners shall, when engaged in the exercise of any jurisdiction so assigned to him or them, be deemed to constitute a Court of the said High Court. 58 V. c. 12, s. 59.

The English J. A. 1873, s. 37, gave this authority expressly to His Majesty. In Canada it has been questioned whether the authority belongs under the B. N. A. Act to the Governor-General or the Lieutenant-Governor; the present section provides for the issuing "by the proper authority." A commission in its ordinary form both constitutes the Court and names the Judges, while under the B. N. A. Act the creation of Courts belongs to the Province, and the appointment of Superior Court Judges belongs to the Dominion: see Regina v. Amer, 42 U. C. Q. B. 391.

The English section limited the appointment to "any Judge or Judges of the High Court, or other persons usually named in commissions of assize." The Dominion Government is understood to maintain that a Provincial Legislature has no authority to limit the class of persons from which Judges are to be selected.

65.—(1) Every action and proceeding in the High Court and all business arising out of the same, except as hereinafter provided, shall, so far as is practicable and convenient, be heard, determined, and disposed of, before a single Judge (a). ^{Business to be disposed of by one Judge as far as practicable.}

(2) A Judge sitting elsewhere than in a Divisional Court, is to decide all questions coming properly before him, and is not to reserve any case, or any point in a case, for the consideration of a Divisional Court. ^{Judge not to reserve questions.}

(3) In all such cases any Judge sitting in Court shall be deemed to constitute a Court (b). 58 V. c. 12, s. 60. ^{Judge to constitute a Court.}

See Eng. J. A. 1873, s. 46; J. A. 1875, s. 22; and J. A. 1876, s. 17.

(a) This is the same in effect as the enactment in the Eng. J. A. 1876, s. 17; and is an extension of the authority, previously to Ont. J. A. 1881, possessed in Ontario by a Judge of the Common Law Courts under the Administration of Justice Act, 1874 (R. S. O. 1877, c. 50, s. 281).

The provisions of sec. 81 (2) constitute an exception to this subsection.

Secs. 66, 67. In Benachor v. Colcy, 52 L. J. Q. B. 308; 48 L. T. 583, it was held that notwithstanding the first clause of this section a Judge at Nisi Prius may leave any party to move a Divisional Court for judgment, and that the words "so far as is practicable and convenient" above, should be interpreted to authorize that course. This decision would not seem to be applicable in Ontario as the Imp. Act contains no clause similar to sub-sec. (2) above.

Where "a special case on the pleadings" had been referred to a Divisional Court in forgetfulness of the above sections, the application was turned into a motion and heard under Rules 600, 615 and 617; Till v. Till, 15 Ont. 133.

In re Vivian, Rose, J., directed an issue to be heard before a Divisional Court, and it was heard and disposed of by C. P. Divisional Court, 9th January, 1896: but see Hood Barrs v. Oathcart, 72 L. T. 184; W. N. 1895, 34.

A hearing in camera may be allowed in a proper case: see Mellor v. Thompson, 31 Ch. D. 53, an application to restrain a solicitor from disclosing communications made to him confidentially as such solicitor; and see 82 L. T. Jour. 297, and observations of Lord Fitzgerald in Macdougall v. Knight, 14 App. Cas. 206-7; also articles in 25 C. L. J. 597, and 88 L. T. Jour. 40, 123. Where a cause is heard in camera it is a contempt of Court to publish a report of the hearing: Re Martindale, 1894, 3 Ch. 193.

(b) The English J. A. 1873, s. 39, last part, is the same. See Cooper v. Central Ont. Ry. Co., 4 Ont. 280.

The civil business of Divisional Courts is regulated by secs. 74 and 75, and Rules 117, 770, 777 and 778-797. As to their criminal jurisdiction see note to sec. 25.

As to the comparative authority of decisions of a single Judge sitting as the High Court and those of a Divisional Court, see Toncred v. Delagou Bay, etc., Co., 23 Q. B. D. 242.

Business of Divisional Courts of the High Court.

66. All business which may from time to time be so ordered by Rules of Court shall be transacted and disposed of by the Divisional Courts of the High Court, which shall for that purpose exercise all or any part of the jurisdiction of the said High Court. 58 V. c. 12, s. 61.

See notes to Rule 117, and sec. 67.

Certain matters to be heard before Divisional
Court.

67.—(1) Subject to Rules of Court the following proceedings and matters shall be heard and determined by a Divisional Court of the High Court:—

- (a) Proceedings directed by any Statute to be taken before the High Court in which the decision of the Court is final;
- (b) Cases of habeas corpus in which the Judge directs that the writ be made returnable before a Divisional Court;

- (c) Motions to quash summary convictions or orders, ^{Sec. 62.} including convictions and orders made or purporting to be made under the authority of Imperial or Dominion legislation;
- (d) Applications for a new trial in the High Court when the action has been tried with a jury;
- (e) Stated cases under The Ontario Summary Convictions Act and amendments thereto, and under ^{Rev. Stat. c. 90.} Section 900 of the Criminal Code, 1892;
- (f) Other cases where all parties agree to the same being heard by a Divisional Court.

(2) Nothing in this section contained shall take away or limit the power of a single Judge to hear and determine any proceeding or matter which he has heretofore had power to hear and determine or shall require any interlocutory proceeding heretofore taken before a single Judge to be taken before a Divisional Court. 4 Ed. vii. c. 11, s. 2.

The Heir and Devisee business was transferred to Divisional Courts by 62 Vict. c. 11, s. 33.

Rule 117 as amended by Rule 1239, also contains the provisions of the above sub-section (1), except (d) and (e), and clause (e) is embodied in Rule 782.

A special case stated by arbitrators pursuant to R. S. O. 1897, c. 62, s. 41, must be argued before a Divisional Court under clause (a) and Rule 117. A single Judge in Court has not jurisdiction: Re Geddes & Cochrane, 2 O. L. R. 149.

The order on motion in the nature of an application for a mandamus under R. S. O. 1897, c. 88, s. 6, is not final; and, therefore, such a motion should be to a single Judge in Court: Rex v. Meehan, 3 O. L. R. 361.

A Divisional Court will not hear an appeal from an award under the Railway Act: Re Montreal & Ottawa Railway & Ogilvie, 18 P. R. 120; and see Re Potter & Central Canada Railway, 16 P. R. 16.

Semble, where parties agree, under clause (d), to the Divisional Court hearing a case, the order made on such hearing is not a consent order so as to necessitate leave to appeal therefrom: Payne v. Caughell, 24 Ont. App. 556.

68. The [King's] Bench, Chancery, Common Pleas and the Exchequer Divisions of the High Court shall not sit or give judgments as such Divisions; and there shall not be Divisional Courts of any of the said Divisions; but the Divisional Courts shall be Divisional Courts of the High Court, without reference to the said Divisions. 58 V. c. 12, s. 63; c. 13, s. 10; 59 V. c. 18, Sched. (5); 3 Ed. vii. c. 8, s. 6.

King's Bench, Chancery, Common Pleas and Exchequer Divisions not to sit as such.

secs. 69-70. The three Divisions of the High Court do not necessarily correspond with the Divisional Courts referred to in this section and elsewhere in the Act and Rules: see next three sections. The Divisional Courts are a distinct organization under the Jud. Act, and invested with special functions: Reg. v. Beemer, 15 Ont. 263. For the business assigned to Divisional Courts: see Rules 117, 770, 777 and 797, also secs. 67 and 73.

As to the constitution of Divisional Courts for criminal matters, see notes to sec. 25.

In s. 62 (2), supra, it may be noticed that the phraseology used is "Divisional Sittings of the High Court."

Sittings of Divisional
Courts.

Proviso.

69. The Judges of the High Court or a majority of them, may from time to time, pass such Rules to regulate the sittings of the Divisional Court as may be found necessary for the due despatch of business; provided always that there shall be at least a monthly sitting of such Court except during vacation. 60 V. c. 15, Sched. A (65).

The sittings are at present ordinarily regulated by Rule 116, but further sittings are sometimes provided for, during the months in which circuit sittings are not being held.

Certain
Judges not to be assigned to sittings of Assize.

69. In arranging the sittings of Assize and for the trial of causes as well in the County of York as the other counties, the President of one of the Divisions and two other Judges shall be selected, to none of whom shall any of the said sittings be assigned, and it shall be the duty of the said President and Judges to hold the sittings of the Divisional Court during the time that they are left free from the sittings of Assize and for the trial of causes as aforesaid. 3 Ed. vii. c. 8, s. 7.

Under this section the sittings of the Divisional Court are no longer confined to two weeks in each month, as provided by Rule 116 (1), but are made continuous throughout each month.

As to whether a puisne Judge can sit in place of a President of a Division: see infra, sub-secs. (5), (6).

Divisional Courts, how composed.

70—(1) Every Divisional Court of the High Court shall be composed of three Judges. 58 V. c. 12, s. 66 (1); c. 13, s. 15, part; 59 V. c. 18, s. 10; as amended by 3 Ed. vii. c. 8, s. 8 (1).

As to how far the decisions of one Divisional Court are binding on another, see sec. 81 and notes.

No Judge to hear appeal from his own
judgment.

(2) No Judge shall sit as a Judge on the hearing of an appeal from any judgment or order made by himself; but subject to this provision every Judge of the High Court shall be qualified and empowered to sit in any of such Divisional Courts. 58 V. c. 12, s. 66 (2); c. 13, s. 15, part.

Where a motion against the judgment of the C. J. was made before Sec. 71. a full Court of three Judges, but when judgment was delivered one of the puisne Judges was absent, being engaged in another Court, on a motion for leave to appeal, the judgment of the C. J. and the remaining puisne Judge was held to be invalid, and therefore there was no judgment which could be appealed against: Cochran v. Boucher, 19 C. L. J. 349; 3 C. L. T. 544; 8 Ont. App. 555. For the subsequent proceedings taken in consequence of this decision, see 3 C. L. T. 547, and 19 C. L. J. 402.

(3) The Judges of the High Court, or a majority of them, ^{Judges to arrange sittings.} may arrange in what order the Judges of the High Court shall hold the said sittings. 58 V. c. 12, s. 66 (3); c. 13, s. 16 (3).

(4) If no arrangement is made, or subject to any arrangement so made, the presiding Judge shall, wherever practicable, be a President of one of the Divisions of the High Court. 58 V. c. 12, s. 66 (4); c. 13, s. 16 (4); as amended by 3 Ed. vii. c. 8, s. 8 (2).

(5) In the absence of a President of a Division the senior Judge present shall preside. 58 V. c. 12, s. 66 (5).

(6) Nothing in this Act is to be construed as preventing any Judge from sitting in a Divisional Court in the absence of the Judge whose turn it may be to sit; and nothing in this Act is to be construed as making irregular any sitting or any proceeding thereat by reason of the Court not being constituted as hereinbefore mentioned, provided that the sitting is held by the proper number of Judges, not including the Judge from whose judgment or order an appeal is heard.

(7) Where a Judge has heard a case in a Divisional Court and is not present at the time of the judgment being delivered, his written judgment may be read by one of the other Judges of such Divisional Court, and shall have the same effect as if he were present. 58 V. c. 12, s. 66 (6-7); c. 13, s. 16 (6, 7).

71. All such arrangements as may be necessary or proper ^{Arrangements for transaction of business.} for the holding of any of the Courts, or the transaction of business, or assignment from time to time of Judges to hold such Courts, or to transact such business, shall be made by the Judges of the High Court or a majority of them. 58 V. c. 12, s. 67.

Sec. 72.

APPEALS.

A right of appeal must be given by express enactment. It does not exist in the nature of things: Sandback v. N. Staffordshire Ry., 3 Q. B. D. 4.

The High Court has no jurisdiction to review its own judgments or orders in an action brought for that purpose, on the ground of error apparent on their face. The remedy is now by appeal: Bright v. Sellar, 1904, 1 K. B. 6.

Jurisdiction of Court of Appeal.

Sept., 1904.

Sept., 1904.

By 4 Ed. vii., c. 11, the jurisdiction of the Court of Appeal has been changed. Before that Act, general appellate jurisdiction was given to the Court under Jud. Act, s. 50, from judgments or orders of the High Court, whether pronounced by a Divisional Court, or by a single Judge sitting in Court, but restrictions on appeals were imposed by other provisions in the Act and in the Rules. Now by the above section 50 (1), the general appellate jurisdiction of the Court is confined to appeals from Divisional Courts and by section 76a, it is empowered to entertain appeals from judgments, orders or decisions of a single Judge in Court, in certain cases only, and only upon consent or upon leave being granted.

Appeals
from orders made in jurisdiction not judicial but consultative.

An appeal will not lie from a judgment which is not impeached, merely for the determination of an abstract point of law upon which an opinion is expressed by the Court below, but which is not necessary for the decision of the question between the parties: Rex v. Lowe, 1904, A. C. 412.

Quare, whether an appeal lies from an order where it expresses the opinion of the Court, not being a judicial decision, but merely consultative: Re Arbitration, Knight & Tabernacle, B. S., 41 W. R. 35; 67 L. T. 403; or from a decision of the High Court on a question submitted to it under a special enactment enabling that course to be taken: Ex p. County Council of Kent, etc., 39 W. R. 465.

In giving an opinion on a special case, the jurisdiction exercised by a Court is judicial, not consultative, so that its decision is a "judgment or order": Overseers of Walsall v. L. & N. W. Ry. Co., 4 App. Cas. 30.

In Harmon v. Park, 29 W. R. 750; 17 C. L. J. 389, it was held that an appeal would lie to the Court of Appeal from a Divisional Court on a question as to whether a petition against a municipal election was properly instituted, as being an order of the High Court of Justice, though the Act, under which the petition was presented, provided that a decision upon the hearing of the petition should not be appealable. See also Corporation of Peterboro' v. Wilsthorpe, 12 Q. B. D. 1. See further the notes to sec. 76.

c. 11.

Summary of Enactments as to Appeals.—Formerly, subject to certain restrictions, an appeal was given to the Court of Appeal from every judgment, order or decision of the High Court, whether of a Divisional Court or of a Judge in Court: Jud. Act, ss. 50 and 76; and an appeal from a Judge in Court also lay to a Divisional Court: Jud. Act, s. 75.

Those enactments have been repealed by 4 Ed. vii., c. 11, s. 2, and new provisions on the subject have been made as follows:

(a) Divisional Courts have practically the same appellate jurisdiction as formerly: s. 74.

- (b) The general appellate jurisdiction of the Court of Appeal Sec. 72. lies in respect of judgments, orders or decisions of Divisional Courts only: s. 50 (1).

Appeals from a Divisional Court to the Court of Appeal are regulated by secs. 50, 76 and 77.

- (c) An appeal from a single Judge in Court lies in all cases to a Divisional Court, but only lies to the Court of Appeal by leave of that Court or a Judge thereof, and in cases where an appeal would lie from the decision of the Court of Appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada: s. 76a.

In other words, the judgment, order or decision must be the final judgment in the action or matter, within the meaning of the Acts relating to the Supreme Court, and must also involve a certain amount, or questions of a certain nature, as specified in the Supreme Court Acts. This has the effect of excluding appeals directly to the Court of Appeal from all decisions of a single Judge, which are interlocutory only, (e.g., a motion for an interim injunction), and also from all final judgments and orders not falling within the cases specified in 40-61 Vict. c. 34, s. 1 (d).

Under the new provisions an appeal to a Divisional Court does not of itself preclude a further appeal to the Court of Appeal by the same party, as was previously the case. Whether an appeal lies from a Divisional Court will depend, (1) on whether the Divisional Court was unanimous: sec. 76 (1), clause (a); or (2) on the nature of the questions involved: sec. 76 (1), clauses (b) to (h).

Appeals from a Single Judge.—The appellate forum in the case of the different kinds of judgments and orders which may be pronounced by a single Judge of the High Court, would seem to be as follows:—

- (i.) From the decision of a Judge in Chambers—
To a Divisional Court: Rule 767.
- (ii.) From the decision of a single Judge in Court not at the trial—and
- (iii.) From the decision of the Judge at the trial where the appeal does not involve a new trial only (though a motion for a new trial may be asked as an alternative)—
 - (a) To a Divisional Court: sec. 74 (1), or
 - (b) To the Court of Appeal by its leave, or by consent, if an appeal would lie in the case from the Court of Appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada: sec. 76a.
- (iv.) Motions for a new trial in cases tried with a jury—
 - (a) To a Divisional Court: sec. 67 (1) (d).
 - (b) To the Court of Appeal by consent or leave in cases within sec. 76a.

Appeals from a Divisional Court.—(1) An appeal to the Court of Appeal lies from the order of a Divisional Court in any of

Sec. 72. the cases enumerated in sec. 76 (1), whether the order of the Divisional Court was made—

- (a) On an appeal from a Judge in Chambers;
- (b) On an appeal from a Judge in Court, whether at the trial or otherwise;
- (c) On a motion for a new trial in a jury case, or
- (d) On an appeal from a Surrogate Court or a Surrogate Court Judge in the two cases mentioned in sec. 77.

(2) An appeal lies to the Court of Appeal from an order of a Divisional Court made under any of the Statutes mentioned in sec. 50 (2), as provided in those Acts, or wherever such appeal lay prior to 4 Ed. vii., c. 11: sec. 50 (3).

County Courts Appeals, Etc.—No appeal lies to the Court of Appeal from the order of a Divisional Court on an appeal from a County or District Court, or a Division Court, nor from an order made on a Surrogate Court appeal, except in certain cases specially mentioned in sec. 77: see secs. 75 and 77.

Appeal from Orders Obtained by Default.—There would not seem to be any difference, so far as the right to appeal is concerned, between an order obtained by default in appearing to oppose it, and any other order, but see Re Morris, Ex p. Streeter, 19 Ch. D. 216; Walker v. Budden, 5 Q. B. D. 267; Allum v. Dickenson, 30 W. R. 930.

Appeals
from discretionary orders.

Discretionary Orders.—Where a judgment or order is appealable under this section, it remains appealable though made in the exercise of judicial discretion. In such case, however, the Court does not in general interfere (though it may disapprove), unless in a strong case, or when the discretion was exercised on a wrong principle: Golding v. Wharton, 1 Q. B. D. 374; Watson v. Rodicell, 3 Ch. D. 380; Huggons v. Ticead, 10 Ch. D. 359, cases respecting the striking out of pleadings; Byrd v. Nunn, 7 Ch. D. 286, 287; Laird v. Briggs, 16 Ch. D. 663, respecting allowance of amendments; Swindell v. Birmingham Syndicate, 3 Ch. D. 127; Ormerod v. Todmorden, 8 Q. B. D. 664, respecting the mode of trial; Papayanni v. Coutpas, W. N. 1880, 109; Wallingford v. Mutual Soc., 5 App. Cas. 685, 709, as to allowing a defendant to defend on a motion under Rule 603. See also Jarmain v. Chatterton, 20 Ch. D. 493, and notes to sec. 72.

As to an appeal from an order granting or refusing leave to appeal: see notes to sec. 72.

Interpleader issue.

Interpleader.—Formerly it was doubtful whether an appeal lay to the Court of Appeal from the decision upon the trial of an interpleader issue: Whiting v. Hovey, 12 Ont. App. 119, where the Court was divided in opinion: but now such a decision would seem to be appealable in the same way as any other decision given at a trial in Court: see Rules 6 (e) and 783, sec. 74 of the Jud. Act, and Graham v. Temperance, etc., 17 P. R. 271.

Habeas corpus

Habeas Corpus.—There is no appeal to a Divisional Court from a decision of a Judge in Chambers on a habeas corpus application, under R. S. O. c. 83, s. 1. There is only an appeal to the Court of Appeal, as provided by sec. 6 of that Act: Re Harper, 23 Ont. 63.

 an appeal lies by either party from an award of compensation exceeding $600, either to the Court of Appeal or to the High Court of Justice, but if an appeal is taken to the latter tribunal, no further appeal lies by either party to the Court of Appeal: Re Birchy and T. H. & B. Ry. Co., 25 Ont. App. 88.

Appeal by a Party in Contempt.—The rule is not universal that a party in contempt can take no steps in the action; he is entitled to take the necessary steps to defend himself: Small v. American Federation of Musicians, 5 O. L. R. 456, and may proceed with the action in the ordinary way.

The contempt is only a bar to his asking the Court for an indulgence: Ferguson v. Elgin, 15 P. R. 399. He may of course appeal from the order putting him in contempt: McGregor v. McDonald, 1 C. L. T. 20; and also from the order which he has disobeyed: Ferguson v. Elgin, supra; McLeod v. Noble, 24 Ont. App. 459.

The express provisions of sec. 47 of the Eng. Jud. Act of 1873, prevent an appeal "in any criminal cause or matter," and so prevent an appeal from an order punishing a stranger to an action for contempt of Court, where the contempt is of a criminal character, though not perhaps indictable, e.g., for publishing statements calculated to prejudice the fair trial of an action, such an order being a criminal cause or matter: O'Shea v. O'Shea, 15 P. D. 59; 62 L. T. 713; Ellis v. The Queen, 22 S. C. R. 7. In Ontario it seems doubtful whether an appeal lies in such a case: see Ont. J. A., sec. 191, though an appeal was entertained in Reg. ex rel. Frelitz v. Howland, 14 Ont. App. 184; 16 S. C. R. 197, where no objection to the jurisdiction appears to have been raised, (see the remarks in Ellis v. The Queen, 22 S. C. R. at p. 13); but an order adjudging a party to be in contempt for not obeying an order of the Court is an order in a civil proceeding, and an appeal from it lies in England: Reg. v. Barnardo, 23 Q. B. D. 305; Re Freston, 11 Q. B. D. 545; Re Dudley, 12 Q. B. D. 44; Re Hardwick, 12 Q. B. D. 148; Re Johnson, 20 Q. B. D. 68; Re Wray, 38 Ch. D. 138; and probably in Ontario an appeal will lie to a Divisional Court, or to the Court of Appeal, as the case may be, as in the case of any other judgment or order in a civil proceeding.

As to appealing from a refusal to commit for contempt, see Jarman v. Chatterton, 20 Ch. D. 493; Ashworth v. Outram, 5 Ch. D. 943; Debenham v. Wardroper, 48 L. T. 235; Krehl v. Burrell, W. N. 1883, 177; see also notes to Rule 855, and to sec. 72.

72. No order made by the High Court or any Judge thereof, by the consent of parties, or as to costs only which by law are left to the discretion of the Court, shall be subject to any appeal, except by leave of the Court or Judge making such order. 58 V. c. 12, s. 68.

Identical with Eng. J. A. 1873, s. 49.

No exception is made of cases involving a question of law or principle, nor is any reference made to the discretion of the Judge being exercised: per Lindley, M.R., in Adlington v. Conyngham, 1898, 2 Q. B. 492; but see McCausland v. Quebec Fire Insurance Company, 25 Ont. 330; Bew v. Bew, 1899, 2 Ch. 467; 81 L. T. 284; and Civil Certain orders not subject to appeal.

Sec. 72. Service Co-operative Soc. v. Gen. Steam Navigation Co., 1903, 2 K B. 756; see also notes to Rule 1130.

Consent
order.

Where a Divisional Court by consent of parties under s. 67 (f), hears a case, such judgment does not make the order pronounced on the application a consent order within this section: Payne v. Caughell, 24 Ont. App. 356.

A judgment in which some of the terms have been inserted at the suggestion of a party struggling for the best possible terms, in a decision adverse to him, cannot be regarded as a consent judgment: Sweeney v. Sweeney, 16 Ont. 92; so also the mere initialing of the minutes of an order, does not make the order a consent order; it merely amounts to an admission that the minutes correctly embody the order pronounced: McMaster v. Radford, 16 P. R. 20; and where a party accepts an alternative order offered by the Court, his acceptance does not make the order a consent order: Aldam v. Brown, 89 L. T. Jour. 116; 34 Sol. Jour. 525.

Where a party is offered an option as to the judgment to be pronounced, his acceptance of one of the alternatives offered does not make the judgment a consent judgment within this section: Sun Life v. Elliott, 31 S. C. R. 91.

There can be no appeal from an order appearing on its face to be made by consent unless by leave of the Court or Judge making it, even though the appeal is on the ground that no such consent was given: Re Justin, 18 P. R. 125.

A consent order made by the Master in Chambers or officer having the like jurisdiction would seem to be within this section: see Re Solicitor, 18 C. L. T. 224, 261.

Where an undertaking equivalent to an injunction asked by plaintiff was given, and the case was tried on the question of costs only, it was held that there was no appeal, both because the judgment was as to costs within this section, and, except so far as the costs were concerned, the judgment was by consent: Hadida v. Fordham, 10 Times, 129.

An interpleader matter tried summarily by consent by a Judge in Chambers under R. S. O. 1877, c. 54, s. 5, was formerly within this section: Edd v. Winsor, W. N. 1878, 88; Turner v. Bridgett, 9 Q. B. D. 55; Lyon v. Morris, 19 Q. B. D. 139; but now Rule 1110, which has superseded the above sec. 5, provides for an appeal.

Not only is there no appeal from a consent judgment, but there is no jurisdiction in the Judge who pronounced it to re-open the matter and re-hear it on the ground of mistake, and it can only be set aside by bringing a fresh action: Ainsworth v. Wilding, 1896, 1 Ch. 673; 74 L. T. 193; and see Wilding v. Sanderson, 1897, 2 Ch. 534; 77 L. T. 57. See also notes to Rule 640.

to costs.

Appeals as to Costs.—Where a defendant is ordered to pay costs of an action, but no further relief is given, an appeal from the judgment is not an appeal as to costs within the section: Fleming v. Toronto, 19 Ont. App. 318.

Where pending an appeal from an order refusing to quash a by-law, the by-law was repealed, the Supreme Court refused to entertain the appeal as it involved costs only: Moir v. Huntington, 19 S. C. R. 363.

Costs awarded to a third party under Rule 214 are in the discretion of the Court, and within this section: Russell v. Eddy, 5 O. L. R. 379.

Where a Judge decided that a defendant had committed a breach of an injunction, and no committal being pressed for on the other side, simply ordered the defendant to pay the costs, it was held that the order was not one as to costs only in the discretion of the Court, within the meaning of this section, and that an appeal lay: Witt v. Corcoran, 2 Ch. D. 69; followed in Stevens v. Metropolitan Ry., 29 Ch. D. 60. See also Miller v. Macdonald, 14 P. R. 499; Re Evans, 68 L. T. 271; Ellam v. Martyn, 79 L. T. 510. On the other hand, where a Judge, being asked to commit for contempt made an order, within his power but of a different kind, viz.: to deliver a deed within a certain time, and disposed of the costs: Krehl v. Burrell, W. N. 1883, 177, and in another instance refused to commit, and made the costs, costs in the cause: Ashworth v. Outram, 5 Ch. D. 943. It was held that no appeal lay. See also Jarmain v. Chatterton, 20 Ch. D. 493; Re Wray, 36 Ch. D. 138.

By Rule 1130 the right which certain classes of persons, such as trustees, mortgagees, etc., had in Equity to costs out of a particular estate or fund, is preserved. Such costs are not in the discretion of the Court, and are therefore a proper subject of appeal, if no other restriction on the right of appeal applies. See notes to Rule 1130.

Where a settlement is set aside in an action by the settlor, the trustee has no claim to his costs as a matter of right, there being no contract in existence, and therefore where costs were given against him, it was held that, under this section, no appeal lay: Dutton v. Thompson, 23 Ch. D. 278.

So an order directing an executor to pay costs of an administration action, on the ground that he had caused the litigation by refusal to furnish accounts, is appealable, as he is entitled to costs unless the right is displaced by misconduct, and whether there was misconduct is the subject of appeal: Re Pugh, 57 L. T. 858.

An appeal lies from an order depriving a trustee of costs on the ground that he severed from his co-trustee in an action to administer the estate: Re Isaac, 1897, 1 Ch. 251.

There is a distinction between "costs" and "charges and expenses." Where a trustee defended an action unreasonably (though by the advice of counsel), and paid the costs of it, these were allowed in subsequent administration proceedings, and were held to be not costs in the administration proceedings but "charges and expenses," and therefore not costs in the discretion of the Judge. An appeal as to the allowance of these costs in the trustee's accounts was therefore held to lie, and the costs were disallowed: Re Beddoe, 1893, 1 Ch. 547; but an appeal from an order for payment of costs, charges and expenses will not lie as to the "costs" only, if the order is right as to charges and expenses: Bew v. Bew, infra.

The effect of this section is that a mortgagee may appeal from an order depriving him of costs out of the estate for misconduct (he-cause if there was no misconduct the costs are not in the discretion of the Court under Rule 1130); but a mortgagor cannot appeal from an order negating misconduct and allowing a mortgagee costs out of the estate (because misconduct if proved would bring the costs within the discretion of the Judge): Charles v. Jones, 33 Ch. D. 80; in that case it was held that even though the Judge does not exercise his discretion, there would be no appeal, but Bew v. Bew, 1890, 2 Ch. 407; 81 L. T. 284, overrules Charles v. Jones in this respect, and decides that if a Judge has not exercised his discretion but has applied some rule which excluded his discretion, an appeal lies without leave; and see The City of Manchester, 1890, 5 P. D. 221; 42 L. T. 521.

An order directing an official receiver in bankruptcy to pay costs was held to be appealable without leave; but an order refusing him costs was considered to be discretionary, and therefore not appealable without leave: Re Rayner Park Golf Club, 1899, 1 Q. B. 961; and see Re Silver Valley Mines, 1892, 21 Ch. D. 381.

Where costs are improperly ordered to be paid out of an estate, such order is appealable without leave: Crawford v. Bradley, 18 P. R. 233; Bew v. Bew, supra.

Costs ordered to be paid by solicitor personally.

The Court has a discretion to order costs to be paid personally by a solicitor where there has been misconduct or negligence, but an appeal lies on the question whether there has, in fact, been misconduct or negligence: Re Bradford, 15 Q. B. D. 635, overruling 11 Q. B. D. 373; and see Charles v. Jones, supra.

Examples of costs in discretion of Court.

The following are instances of costs in the discretion of the Court and therefore within this section:—

Costs of an interpleader issue disposed of in Chambers: Hartmont v. Foster, 8 Q. B. D. 82; costs given over to a defendant against a third party: Hornby v. Cardwell, 8 Q. B. D. 329; costs refused to a third party: Tomlinson v. Northern Ry., 11 P. R. 526; costs given or refused to a plaintiff on confessing a defence under Rule 295; Perkins v. Bersford, 47 L. T. 515; and costs of inspection of property under Rule 1096; Mitchell v. Darley, 10 Q. B. D. 457; and costs on dismissal of an action for want of prosecution: Snelling v. Pulling, 29 Ch. D. 85. See also notes to Rule 1130.

In a suit to settle the priorities between incumbrancers, B., one of the defendants, was ordered to pay the costs of the plaintiff and his co-defendant. B. appealed, and the decision being affirmed on the merits the Court refused to vary the order as to costs, as that would be practically allowing an appeal for costs: Harpham v. Shacklock, 19 Ch. D. 215; Harris v. Aaron, 4 Ch. D. 749.

Notwithstanding this section, an appeal from a decision as to costs will lie, without leave, if the Judge has not exercised his discretion, or has decided on grounds which were not open to him: Civil Service Co-operative Soc. v. Gen. Steam Navigation Co., 1903, 2 K. B. 756; or if he has proceeded on an erroneous principle, and so has not exercised his discretion: see per Lindley, L.J., in Young v. Thomas, 1892, 2 Ch. at p. 137; McCausland v. Quebec F. Ins. Co., 25 Ont. 330.

Cases where appeals as to costs permitted.

The following are instances in which appeals involving questions of principle on the subject of costs have been permitted:

Where the question was the right of a claimant in interpleader proceedings to recover from the execution creditor the charges of the sheriff as costs: Goodman v. Blake, 19 Q. B. D. 77; where costs were directed to be first paid out of a fund, and then various incumbrancers in order of priority, and the fund, after payment of costs, was not sufficient to pay the first incumbrancer, who appealed: Johnstone v. Cox, 19 Ch. D. 17; where an order imposed, as a condition of a new trial, the payment within a certain time of the costs of the first trial: Metropolitan Asylum District v. Hill, 5 App. Cas. 582; sec. 72, where at the trial of an action for the infringement of a copyright of a novel, it appeared that the defendant before trial discontinued the use of the title of the novel objected to, and therefore the only order made was that defendant pay the costs of the action: Dicks v. Yates, 18 Ch. D. 76; and where a defendant who had disclaimed was ordered to pay costs: Wansley v. Smollwood, 11 Ont. App. 439.

Where leave to appeal is given on questions of costs in the discretion of the Court, the Appellate Court ought to have the same regard to the discretion of the Judge as in other cases in which his discretion is subject to review, and it ought not to interfere unless there has been a manifest disregard of principle or misapprehension of facts: per Baggallay, L.J., in Re Gilbert, Gilbert v. Huddleston, 28 Ch. D. 549; Young v. Thomas, 1892, 2 Ch. 134; Huxley v. W. L. Extension, etc., 17 Q. B. D. 378; Russell v. Russell, 1892, P. 152.

As to the principle upon which the Appellate Court proceeds in appeals on matters of discretion, see notes supra, p. 122.

An appeal lies from the decision of a Judge as to the scale on which costs should be taxed, but the Court will not interfere unless he has proceeded upon a wrong principle, or made a manifest slip: Re Terrell, 22 Ch. D. 473. See also as to charges the allowance of which is in the discretion of the taxing officer: McGannon v. Clark, 9 P. R. 555. Other cases.

Leave to Appeal.—Leave to appeal will not be granted unless the appellant makes out a prima facie case for attacking all the grounds on which the judgment or order sought to be appealed from is based; wherever any one ground is sufficient to support the order or judgment leave will be refused: Appleby v. Turner, 19 P. R. 175; Ray v. Port Arthur, 7 O. L. R. 737. Leave to appeal generally.

Where the decision is final and conclusive, no appeal can be had from it, even by leave: Van Laun v. Boring, 1903, 2 K. B. 277; 89 L. T. 120.

Laches in making the application may be a ground for refusing it: Ray v. Port Arthur, supra.

Leave to appeal on a question of costs should be asked for when the judgment in question is given: Moy v. Thompson, W. N. 1882, 53. Leave to appeal as to costs.

Leave may be refused where the amount involved is small and the case involves matters of infrequent occurrence: Ford v. Mason, 15 P. R. 398. Leave to appeal will not be given after the time for appealing has elapsed merely on the ground of the law having been subsequently altered by statute, even though it be retroactive: Eyre v. Wynn-MacKenzie, 1896, 1 Ch. 135; 73 L. T. 571.

No appeal lies from an order granting or refusing leave to appeal: Lane v. Esdaille, 1891, A. C. 210; Re Sarnia Oil Co., 15 P. R. 348; Kay v. Briggs, 22 Q. B. D. 343; *Ex p. Sec. 73.

Appeals
from interlocutory
orders.

73. There shall be no appeal to a Divisional Court from any interlocutory order, whether made in Court or Chambers, in case prior to The Ontario Judicature Act, 1881, there would have been no relief from a like order by an application to a Superior Court; and there shall be no appeal to the Court of Appeal from any interlocutory order in case prior to The Ontario Judicature Act, 1881, there would have been no relief from a like order by an appeal to the Court of Appeal (a). Any doubt which may arise as to what orders or judgments are interlocutory, shall be determined by the Court of Appeal. 58 V. c. 12, s. 69.

(a) What follows is taken from the Eng. Jud. Act, 1875, s. 12. The former part of the section is not in the English Act. For the cases in which, before the Ont. Jud. Act, there was an appeal to the Court of Appeal: see R. S. O. 1877, c. 18, and Whiting v. Hovey, 12 Ont. App. 119.

Prior to the Judicature Act, 1881, appeals from orders made by a Judge in Court or in Chambers lay to the full Court: see Chy. Ord. 323; R. S. O. 1877, c. 39, s. 26; and 37 Vict. c. 7, ss. 17, 19, 20.

Interlocutory judgments or orders.

An order or judgment is said to be interlocutory unless the decision, whichever way it might be given, would finally dispose of the action: e.g., a decision dismissing an action on a point of law raised on the pleadings was held to be interlocutory, because if the decision had been the other way it would not have disposed of the action: Salaman v. Warner, 1891, 1 Q. B. 734; but see Bozson v. Altrincham, 1903, 1 K. B. 547. In the earlier case of Trowell v. Shenton, 8 Ch. D. 318, an order overruling a demurrer was held not to be interlocutory.

See generally as to the distinction between final and interlocutory orders, White v. Witt, 5 Ch. D. 589, 591; Pheysey v. Pheysey, 12 Ch. D. 305, 307; Whiting v. Hovey, 12 Ont. App. 119; Hateley v. Merchants Despatch Co., ib. 640, and notes to sec. 58 (9) q, 76.

The following have been held to be interlocutory orders: An order that a case be tried by jury: Swindell v. Birmingham, 3 Ch. D. 127; a rule absolute for a new trial: Highton v. Treherne, 48 L. J. Ex. 167; an order discharging a rule for a new trial: Wilks v. Judge, W. N. 1880, 98; a refusal to remit an award to an arbitrator: Re Delagoa Bay Ry., etc., 37 W. R. 578; an order on the trial of an interpleader issue: McAndrew v. Barker, 7 Ch. D. 701; McNair v. Audenshaw, 1891, 2 Q. B. 502 (but see Whiting v. Hovey, supra); an order for final judgment under Rule 603: Standard Discount Co. v. La Grange, 3 C. P. D. 67; an order setting aside a demurrer as frivolous: Kandick v. Morrison, 2 S. C. R. 14; an order providing for defendant's costs, the action not being further proceeded with: Re Lewis, 31 Ch. D. 623; the judgment of a Div. Court affirming the judgment of a County Court in an interpleader issue: Hughes v. Little, 18 Q. B. D. 32, reversing 17 Q. B. D. 204; an order after final judgment in regard to a set-off of costs, payable under the judgment: Blakey v. Latham, 43 Ch. D. 23; an order striking out a statement of claim: Jones v. Insale, 64 L. T. 703; an order directing a review of taxation: Ex p. Phillips, 19 Q. B. D. 234; an order refusing a motion to set aside a judgment signed on default: see O'Donoghue v. Bourne, 27 S. C. R. 654; an order refusing application to have issues tried by a jury: Demers v. Bank of Montreal, 27 S. C. Sec. 74. R. 107; and an order directing an issue in an interpleader matter: Hunter v. Hunter, 18 C. L. T. 114; an order striking out a statement of claim as disclosing no reasonable cause of action, and as being frivolous and vexatious: Bright v. River Plate, etc., Co., 17 Times, 708; and an order for security for costs, and directing that it be not given within a limited time, dismissing the action: Stewart v. Royds, 118 L. T. 176.

The decision of the Court upon a special case stated by an arbitrator, who is thereupon to make his award, is an interlocutory order: Collins v. Vestry of Paddington, 5 Q. B. D. 368; but in Shubbrook v. Tufnell, 9 Q. B. D. 621, it was held that a decision upon a special case must be treated as a final order, unless the decision of the Court could not, in any event, necessitate the entering of final judgment.

The following have been held to be final:—A judgment for foreclosure, even before final order: Smith v. Davies, 55 L. J. Chy. 496, 54 L. T. 478; an order made on an application for the delivery and taxation of a bill of costs, whether granting or refusing it: Re Reeves, 1902, 1 Ch. 29; 85 L. T. 495. An order refusing a motion to set aside a judgment signed by default, for irregularity, though the order reserved to the defendant leave to apply again on the merits: Voight v. Orth, 5 O. L. R. 443. Indep. An issue as to further the action after judgment
Swat, Dec. 90 L. R. 437

Interlocutory Orders, When Appealable.—It must be observed that the effect of this section is negative. It does not authorize an appeal from any interlocutory order, but in effect declares that no appeal shall be had from any interlocutory order unless an appeal would have lain therefrom prior to the Jud. Act, 1881.

The section does not prevent an appeal to a Divisional Court from an order of a Judge in Chambers on appeal from a certificate of taxation: Talbot v. Poole, 15 P. R. 274; see Rule 717.

An order by a Judge in Court, directing the execution by defendants (mortgagees) of a conveyance or discharge directed by a previous judgment, was said not to be interlocutory. But if interlocutory it was held to be appealable to the Court of Appeal notwithstanding this sec.: Bull v. N. British, etc., Co., 12 P. R. 284. Now the appeal would be to the Divisional Court: sec. 74 (1), unless section 76a applies.

Appeals to Divisional Courts.

74. Subject to sections 72 and 73 of this Act, an appeal shall lie to a Divisional Court of the High Court, in the following cases:—

- (1) From any judgment, order or decision (a) of a Judge of the High Court in Court, whether at the trial or otherwise;
- (2) From a County Court as provided in The County Courts Act;

(9) From a Judge of a County Court, or a Stipendiary Magistrate, as provided in The Act for Protecting the Public Interest in Rivers, Streams, and Creeks.

Under Rev.
Stat. c. 153.

(10) Appeals which by The Mechanics' and Wage Earners' Lien Act, are to be heard and determined by a Divisional Court. 4 Ed. vii. c. 11, s. 2, part.

(a) The insertion of the word "decision," is the only change of any consequence made by 4 Ed. vii., c. 11, s. 2. Whether its insertion really makes any addition to the matters appealable under the former section 73 is doubtful. A decision probably always can, and generally at any rate, must be, embodied in a judgment or order: see Rule 791.

Appeals to Divisional
Court.

This section does not contain an enumeration of all the matters in respect of which a Divisional Court has jurisdiction: when originally enacted by 58 Vict., c. 12, s. 71, and c. 13, s. 11, its main object was to transfer jurisdiction in appeal in certain matters from the Court of Appeal to a Divisional Court of the High Court. As to the jurisdiction of Divisional Courts: see also Rules 117, 770, 777, 778-786.

Judgments or Orders of a Single Judge at the Trial.—See as to these, Rules 778-797, and notes.

An appeal lies from an order at the trial directing a case to stand over to add parties: Payne v. Caughell, 24 Ont. App. 556.

Judgments or Orders of a Single Judge in Court, not at the Trial.—In this class of decisions an appeal lies to a Divisional Court in every case under clause (1) supra; but to the Court of Appeal only in certain cases, and by consent or upon obtaining leave: see 74, see section 76a and Rule 772.

Orders of a Judge in Chambers.—Appeals in such cases are regulated by Rule 777.

An appeal does not lie to a Divisional Court from the order of a Judge under R. S. O. c. 164, s. 12, dispensing with the concurrence, for the purpose of barring dower, of the wife of an owner of land selling or mortgaging it free from dower: Re Rush, 10 C. L. T. 184; and see R. S. O. c. 76, s. 6.

County Court Appeals.—See notes to Rules 703-707.

Surrogate Court Appeals.—R. S. O. c. 50, s. 36, and Rules 57-59 of the Surrogate Court Rules, regulate such appeals.

Notice of appeal must be served within fifteen days as required by s. 36, and vacation is not excluded in the computation of the 15 days: Re Eastman, Div. Court, 17th Nov., 1898.

The service of a notice of appeal, and the deposit with the Registrar of the Surrogate Court, as security, of an unmarked check for $100, payable to the order of the Registrar, but never cashed by him, was held not to be compliance with Rule 57 of the Surrogate Rules, and, therefore, the appeal, not having been lodged and brought within 15 days, as required by R. S. O. c. 50, s. 36, was quashed: Re Wilson, 17 P. R. 407.

An appeal lies to a Divisional Court from an order of a Surrogate Court Judge allowing compensation to an executor under R. S. O. 1897, c. 120, s. 43: Re Alexander, 31 Ont. 167.

An appeal under s. 36 of the Surrogate Court Act cannot be entertained unless lodged before any removal of the matter into the High Court under s. 34. Upon the making of an order for removal the matter becomes an action in the High Court, and the practice to be followed is the practice prescribed in a High Court proceeding: Justin v. Goodison, 18 P. R. 174.

On an appeal from an order of the Surrogate Court, security must be given and an affidavit of the value of the property affected filed, as required by Rule 57 of Surrogate Rules 1802 (notwithstanding Con. Rule 825). Unless this is done an appeal is not properly lodged, and may be quashed: Re Nichol, 1 O. L. R. 213.

A notice of appeal not specifying that it was to a Divisional Court, or any Court, and a bond reciting that the appellant desired to appeal to the Court of Appeal, were held not to be defects sufficient to have an appeal quashed: Taylor v. Delancy, 3 O. L. R. 380. Certain defects in Surrogate Rule 59 and forms are pointed out in this case.

As to the cases in which an appeal lies to the Court of Appeal from the decision of a Divisional Court on a Surrogate Court appeal: see section 77.

Division Court Appeals.—Under The Division Courts Act, R. S. O. c. 60, s. 154, an appeal does not lie to a Divisional Court until a new trial has been applied for: Cole v. Halliday, 33 C. L. J. 120; 17 C. L. T. 53.

The right of appeal from a Division Court is not lost because the Judge of the Division Court omits to take notes of the evidence: see

Sec. 78.

Sullivan v. Francis, 18 Ont. App. 121; Wohlgemuth v. Coste, 1890, 1 Q. B. 501; 80 L. T. 529. Where the evidence in such a case cannot be agreed on, or otherwise supplied, it may be necessary for the Divisional Court to remit the case to the Judge to take the evidence upon a new trial: Davidson v. Head, 18 C. L. T. 260; 34 C. L. J. 415.

The consent required by ss. 121 and 122 of the Division Courts Act, R. S. O. 1897, c. 60, to dispense with the evidence being taken down in writing in a case where the amount claimed exceeds $100, must be in writing and filed: a verbal consent is not sufficient: Davidson v. Head, 18 C. L. T. 260; 34 C. L. J. 415.

The giving of notice of setting down for argument before the Divisional Court, with the grounds of appeal required by sec. 158 of the Division Courts Act, is a condition precedent to the right to appeal, and if not given the Divisional Court has no jurisdiction to deal with the appeal: Bradley v. Wilson, 8 O. L. R. 184.

The Divisional Court has no jurisdiction to extend the time for taking steps in a Division Court appeal; such a matter is for the Judge of the Court below: Owen v. Sprung, 28 Ont. 607.

A Division Court appeal is lodged as soon as a certified copy of the proceedings has been filed in the Central Office in proper time: the time for setting it down for argument and giving notice thereof, and other matters relating to the appeal, are in the discretion of the appellate Court, and that Court may allow an amendment and enlarge the time, etc.: see 4 Ed. vii., c. 12, s. 2.

Further opportunity was given to supply a notice of appeal, where it could be given within the proper time: Smith v. Port Colborne, etc., 1 O. L. R. 195.

An appeal may be quashed where "the sum in dispute upon the appeal" does not exceed $100, exclusive of costs: Lambert v. Clarke, 7 O. L. R. 130; see R. S. O. 1897, c. 60, s. 154 (1); and an appeal which has been duly lodged may be dismissed if not set down for the first Divisional Court commencing after the expiration of one month from the decision complained of: see Heise v. Shanks, 1 O. L. R. 48; and R. S. O. 1897, c. 60, s. 158 (1); but the time may be extended by the Divisional Court: see 4 Ed. vii., c. 12, s. 2.

The Water Privileges Act.—The costs of such appeals are in the discretion of the Divisional Court, and are not part of "the practice and proceedings upon the appeal," which are subject to regulation by the Judge to whom application for leave is made, under R. S. O. c. 141, s. 18: Re Burnham, 16 P. R. 390.

Dominion Railway Act.—See Birdy v. T. H. & B. Ry. in note preceding sec. 72, supra, p. 123.

No appeal from Divisional Court in Crown cases except at the instance of the Crown.

75. The judgment, order, or decision of a Divisional Court shall be final, and there shall be no further appeal therefrom, save only at the instance of the Crown, in a case in which the Crown is concerned, and save as provided in sections 50 and 76. 4 Ed. vii. c. 11, s. 2, part.

The side note to the section in the Act does not seem to be accurate. It would seem to be provided by the section, that as a rule when any appeal is taken to a Divisional Court, the decision is final except (a) where an appeal is given by section 50, or 76; or (b) at the instance ^{Sec. 76.} of the Crown, in a case in which the Crown is concerned: see Res v. Pierce, 5 O. W. R. 405.

No appeal lies by leave or otherwise at the instance of a defendant from an order of a Divisional Court respecting a conviction by a Police Magistrate under an Ontario Statute: Res v. Pierce, supra.

As to an appeal to the Supreme Court direct, where a Divisional Court is the final appellate Court: see Farquharson v. Imperial Oil Co., 30 S. C. R. 188.

Since, however, by section 76 (1), clause (h), infra, an appeal lies to the Court of Appeal in all cases in which a question is raised which would be the proper subject of an appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada, there would not seem to be now any cases in which an appeal can be taken to the Supreme Court direct from a judgment of a Divisional Court as the final appellate Court in the Province.

76.—(1) An appeal shall lie to the Court of Appeal from the judgment, order or decision of a Divisional Court of the High Court in the following cases, that is to say:

When appeal to lie to Court of Appeal from Divisional
Court.

- (a) Where the judgment, order or decision is pronounced in an action or proceeding in the High Court and the Divisional Court is not unanimous;

Absence of a unanimous decision would seem to be the only requisite to make a case appealable under this clause. It need not fulfil the conditions mentioned in the subsequent clauses.

- (b) Where the matter in controversy in the proposed appeal is of the sum or value of $1,000, exclusive of costs, or involves indirectly or otherwise that sum or value;

Compare the somewhat similar clause in 60-61 V. c. 34, s. 1 (D.), relating to appeals to the Supreme Court of Canada, and see the cases decided under that enactment, infra, in notes preceding Rule 831.

- (c) Where the matter in controversy in the proposed appeal involves the validity of a copyright, trademark or patent;
- (d) Where the matter in controversy in the proposed appeal involves a question of the validity of an Act of the Parliament of Canada or of the Legislature of the Province of Ontario;
- (e) Where the judgment, order or decision involves a question of law or practice on which there have been conflicting decisions by Divisional Courts of the High Court and leave to appeal is obtained as herein provided;

Soc. 76.

- (f) Where the judgment, order or decision is in regard to a matter of practice or procedure, but affects the ultimate rights of the parties to the action to the extent of the said sum or value;

In the cases covered by this clause, the obtaining of leave to appeal does not seem to be a preliminary condition.

- (g) Where there are special reasons for treating the case as exceptional and allowing a further appeal and leave to appeal is obtained as herein provided;

- (h) Generally, but not so as to restrict an appeal in any of the foregoing cases, in all cases in which from time to time an appeal would lie from the judgment of the Court of Appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada.

Leave to appeal, how given.

- (2) Such leave to appeal may be given by a Divisional Court or a Judge of the High Court if a Divisional Court is not sitting or by the Court of Appeal or a Judge thereof if the Court of Appeal is not sitting. 4 Ed. vii. c. 11, s. 2.

Amount involved.

On a defendant's appeal.

On a plain-tiff's appeal.

Clauses (b), (c), (d)—Matter in Controversy on Appeal.—

The test as to determining the matter in controversy on an appeal was defined in Macfarlane v. Leclaire, 15 Moo. P. C. C. 181. The judgment is to be looked at as it affects the interest of the party who is prejudiced by it. This test has been recognized as the correct one by the Jud. Committee of the Privy Council, which has accordingly determined that on an appeal by a defendant, the proper measure of value for determining the question of the right to appeal is the amount recovered in the action, not the amount claimed by the plaintiff in his pleadings: Allan v. Pratt, 13 App. Cas. 780; 59 L. T. 674; see also Foster v. Emory, 14 P. R. 1; and Cossette v. Dun, 18 S. C. R. 222; Hunt v. Taplin, 30 C. L. J. 459; 24 S. C. R. 36. Therefore where the plaintiff appeals to the Court of Appeal, if he has acquiesced in the judgment of the Court below, semble the amount of the judgment, and not the amount originally claimed by him, is the amount in question as regards the appeal. Thus, where the plaintiff claimed $5,000, and recovered a judgment for $200, from which he did not appeal, but it was subsequently reversed on the defendant's appeal and the action dismissed, for the purpose of an appeal by the plaintiff from this latter decision $200 was held to be the amount in question: Monette v. Lefebvre, 16 S. C. R. 387.

Where the plaintiff's claim was for $1,500, and a reference was directed to ascertain the amount due on certain specific principles, it was held that, on an appeal by the defendant, the amount in question "in the appeal" was more than $1,000, although counsel for the plaintiff admitted that under the reference he could not establish a claim for more than $1,000; Frankel v. Grand Trunk Ry., 3 O. L. R. 703.

In O'Donohoe v. Whitty, 9 P. R. 361, bills of costs amounting to $250.10 were, on taxation, reduced to $187.10, and the client desired to appeal: the Court held, following Macfarlane v. Leclaire, that the matter in controversy was whether the appellant was liable Sec. 76. to pay as much as $187.10. The Divisional Court in that case subsequently granted leave to appeal, as the case involved the construction of clause 14 of the form appended to R. S. O. 1887, c. 107, a question of general interest, and affecting solicitors at large and other parties besides the parties to the litigation: S. C., 10 C. L. J. 9.

Where the amount involved in an interpleader issue was under $500 (the amount mentioned in the section then in force, R. S. O. 1887, c. 44, s. 67), but it was alleged that the decision of the Divisional Court, desired to be appealed from, affected the right to other property amounting to $2,000, it was held that the decision in this matter was not conclusive as to the right to the other property, and therefore there was no sufficient ground for granting leave to appeal: Buty v. Bryce, 19 C. L. J. 9.

For the purpose of determining the amount involved, interest on the amount for which judgment has been given in the Court below cannot be taken into account: Foster v. Emory, supra.

Where bank shares are in question the market, and not the par value, determines the amount in question: Muir v. Carter, 16 S. C. R. 473.

In an action to set aside a fraudulent conveyance, the amount in dispute is the amount of the plaintiff's claim, and not the value of the property conveyed where it is of greater value than the plaintiff's claim: Flatt v. Ferland, 21 S. C. R. 32; Lachance v. Société des Pêches, etc., 26 S. C. R. 200; and see Jermyn v. Tru, 28 S. C. R. 497.

Where the action is ejectment and for mesne profits, both the value of the estate and the mesne profits are to be taken into account in determining the amount at stake: Mohideen v. Pitchay, 1893, A. C. 193.

See also the decisions under 40-61 V. c. 34, which contain restrictions on appeals to the Supreme Court of Canada, infra, in the notes preceding Rule 831.

Leave to Appeal.—Leave to appeal is necessary in cases falling within clauses (c) or (g).

Where a Divisional Court has refused leave to appeal, the Court of Appeal has jurisdiction to grant it: see Goodman v. Mosca, 1900, W. N. 179; 83 L. T. 46; Dorset v. Pethick, 14 Times, 183.

Clause (c)—Conflicting Decisions by Divisional Courts.—Few cases of this kind can now arise since the enactment of s. 81 of the Judicature Act, and the existing provisions of the Rules, by which two Divisional Courts will rarely be sitting at the same time, so as to be in danger of deciding a point simultaneously and with conflicting results: See cf. Krentziger v. Brox, 32 Ont. 418; McCormick v. Warnica, 3 O. L. R. 427; Bank of Toronto v. Keystone Fire Ins. Co., 18 P. R. 113; and Skac v. Moss, Id., p. 119, note.

Clause (g)—Special Reasons for Treating a Case as Exceptional.—This clause is similar to former section 77 (4), clause (c), under which it was held, that on an application for leave it must appear that there is some reasonable ground for doubting the soundness of the judgment; and in addition, that special reasons exist for taking the case out of the general rule, which forbids a further appeal: Re Reddock & Toronto, 19 P. R. 217. See addenda

Sec. 76.

A sufficient special reason exists where the question is the status, jurisdiction and authority of a judicial officer: McClure v. Brooke, 4 O. L. R. 102.

Leave granted.

Leave was granted to appeal from an order of a Divisional Court affirming, but on different grounds, the judgment at the trial dismissing the action, where no lapse of time had occurred to prejudice the plaintiff's claim to the consideration of the Court, the injury in respect to which he sued being a serious one, and there being no authority upon the question of law decided by the Divisional Court: Spence v. G. T. Ry. Co., 17 P. R. 172.

Leave was granted where an important question was raised as to the meaning of an obscurely phrased section of the Public Schools' Act: Re School Trustees v. Cartwright, 4 O. L. R. 278; and where two questions were raised, and the trial Judge had decided one only, and the Divisional Court the other only, against the appellant: Kidd v. Harris, 3 O. L. R. 277; and where a case has been disposed of on an originating notice in Chambers, instead of in Court in an action, as it ought to have been, and an appeal would have lain as of course if it had been disposed of in Court: Re Sherlock, 18 P. R. 6; see 28 Ont. 638.

Where leave to appeal on one point was given, the Court of Appeal confined the argument to that point: Jones v. Bierstein, 1900, 1 Q. B. 100.

Leave refused.

Leave was refused by a Judge of the Court of Appeal, where the Court appealed from had refused leave, and there appeared to be good ground for supporting the decision complained of, and none of the special circumstances, enumerated in the clauses then in force corresponding to clauses (b), (c), (e) and (f), existed, and there were no special reasons for treating the case as exceptional under clause (g): G. N. W. Central Railway Co. v. Stevens, 18 P. R. 392.

Leave was also refused where the question was the power of a Judge in Chambers to strike out a jury notice, a power which has never been doubted: People's Loan Co. v. Stanley, 4 O. L. R. 90, 377; and where the decision of the Divisional Court ought to be appealed from appeared to be in accordance with well established practice: Walker v. Gurney-Tilden, etc., Co., 18 P. R. 471; also where two questions were raised, but plausible grounds of appeal were shown only on one of such grounds, while the other was sufficient alone to support the judgment attacked: Appleby v. Turner, 19 P. R. 175; also from an order staying proceedings in an action which appeared to have been unnecessarily brought: Toronto v. Canadian Pacific Ry., 18 P. R. 451.

Procedure.

Procedure.—Where leave to appeal is necessary it should be applied for, if not when the judgment was given, at any rate within the time within which an appeal should be commenced: see McCrae v. White, 9 P. R. 288; May v. Thompson, W. N. 1882, 53, and Rule 799.

All parties should be represented on an application for special leave: Dornes v. Somerville, 56 L. T. 424.

In England it has been held by the Court of Appeal that a motion for leave to appeal from a Divisional Court should be made ex parte, and that if the Court desires to hear the other side notice will be directed to be given: Dorset v. Pethick, 14 Times, 183. In Ontario the practice is to move on notice, or in the presence of counsel for the respondent, at the time when the decision complained of is given. Sec. 76a.

The Court of Appeal may award costs on such a motion, and execution may issue out of the High Court under Rule 3, by analogy to the proceedings under Rule 818: People's Loan Co. v. Stanley, 4 O. L. R. 247.

No appeal lies from an order granting or refusing leave to appeal: No appeal Re Sarnia Oil Co., 15 P. R. 348; Lane v. Esdaile, 1891, A. C. 210; Kay v. Briggs, 22 Q. B. D. 343; Ex p. Stevenson, 1892, 1 Q. B. 609; Farquharson v. Imperial Oil Co., 30 S. C. R. 188; and therefore leave to appeal from such an order will not be given: Re Central Bank of Canada, 17 P. R. 395; but see in the case of a refusal of leave: Moore v. Peachey, 8 Times, 406.

Leave to Appeal after Time Elapsed.—See cases under Rule 353.

76a. In any case in which an appeal would lie from the Court of Appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada, any party may by consent or by leave of the Court of Appeal, or a Judge thereof, appeal to the Court of Appeal from a judgment, order or decision of a Judge in Court at the trial or otherwise, or may apply for a new trial of the action. 4 Ed. vii. c. 11, s. 2, part.

Appeal to lie to Court of Appeal in cases which may be appealed to Supreme Court

The meaning of this section is, perhaps, not perfectly clear, but the intention would seem to be that the cases in which the section applies are those in which a further appeal would lie to the Supreme Court from the decision of the Court of Appeal whatever it may be.

Assuming this to be the meaning of the section, in order to determine what cases come within it regard must be had to the Statutes and Rules which govern appeals from the Court of Appeal to the Supreme Court. Consequently, the judgment, order or decision, must be final and not interlocutory merely, or otherwise within R. S. C., c. 135, s. 24; and must involve the amount or be of the nature specified in R. S. C., c. 135, s. 24, and 60-61 Vict., c. 34, s. 1 (D.). See Canada Carriage Co. v. Lea, 5 O. W. R. 86.

A judgment so appealable to the Court of Appeal may be one given at a trial with a jury: Randall v. Ottawa Electric, etc., 8 O. L. R. 701.

"Or may apply for a new trial of the action."—The effect of these words is not very clear. If their meaning is not that a motion for a new trial simpliciter may be made to the Court of Appeal, but that the party may apply for a new trial in the ordinary way (viz., on motion to a Divisional Court: sec. 97 (1), (d), and Rule 782), the provision is unnecessary; an application for a new trial would, without the enactment, be a course open to the party if he did not wish to appeal, and he would also have another alternative not mentioned, viz., an appeal to a Divisional Court: sec. 74 (1). If, on the other hand, the words in question mean that a motion for a new trial may be made to the Court of Appeal, a strictly grammatical construction of the sentence would seem to involve the result that a motion for a Secs. 75b-77 new trial may be made to the Court of Appeal without leave or consent. This would be grafting an exception on section 67 (1) (d), and the several enactments, taken together, would in effect provide that a motion for a new trial may be made in all cases to a Divisional Court, but in certain cases the party has the option of moving for a new trial in the Court of Appeal.

It is submitted that, notwithstanding the insertion of the word "may" in the last line, the section requires that in cases of the nature specified (viz., in which an appeal would lie from the Court of Appeal to the Supreme Court), an appeal may be taken or an application to the Court of Appeal for a new trial may be made, only by consent or by leave of the Court of Appeal or a Judge thereof. In all such cases an appeal may be had to a Divisional Court as of right: secs. 67 (1), (d), and 74 (1); and an appeal may, as a rule, be taken as of right from the decision of the Divisional Court: see sec. 76 (1), (b)—(d); the granting of leave, under sec. 76a, would therefore be likely in many cases to save the parties an intermediate appeal. That this consideration should prevail in cases of substantial importance would seem to be the view of Osler, J.A.: Molson's Bank v. Stearns, 5 O. W. R. 479; but it has been held that the fact that the nature of the case and the amount involved render it one in which an appeal would lie to the Supreme Court of Canada, is not alone a sufficient ground for granting leave to appeal to the Court of Appeal under sec. 76a, and that some reasonable ground must also be shown for departing from the usual course of an appeal to a Divisional Court: Canada Carriage Co. v. Le, 5 O. W. R. 801; O'Leary v. Perkins, 5 O. W. R. 257.

Appeal
books to be printed

76b. Subject to Rules of Court, the appeal books shall be printed. 4 Ed. vii, c. 11, s. 2, part.

Rules of Court respecting the printing of appeal books have now been made: see Rules 802, 803, as amended by Rule 1265.

Security for costs on appeal.

76c. Subject to Rules of Court on appeals from a Divisional Court, or under the provisions of section 76a, security unless otherwise ordered by the Court of Appeal shall be given for the costs of the appeal. 4 Ed. vii, c. 11, s. 2, part.

See Rule 826.

No appeal from Divisional Court decisions on appeals from inferior Courts, etc.

77 Nothing in section 76 contained shall be construed so as to permit an appeal to the Court of Appeal from the judgment, order or decision of a Divisional Court of the High Court upon an appeal to the Divisional Court in any of the cases mentioned in clauses 2 to 9, both inclusive, of section 74, except from a judgment, order or decision of a Divisional Court upon an appeal from a Surrogate Court or a Surrogate Judge in the following cases:

- (a) Matters of account or distribution where the amount in question is the sum or value of $1,000, exclusive of costs.

- (b) Where a proceeding might have been removed into the High Court, under the provisions of section 34 of the Surrogate Courts Act, and then only if leave to appeal shall have been obtained as herein provided. 4 Ed. vii. c. 11, s. 2, part. Secs. 78-81.
Rev. Stat.
c. 50.

Limitation of Time for Appealing.

78. Subject to the provisions of this Act, all appeals from a judgment or order of the High Court shall be brought to hearing within one year [from the date thereof], or within such further time as the Court of Appeal or a Judge thereof may allow. 58 V. c. 12, s. 74. Time within which appeals from judgment must be brought to a hearing.

Instead of the words in brackets the section formerly (as R. S. O. 1887, c. 44, s. 73), had the words "after the giving of the judgment, decision, rule or order," under which language it was held that the year counted from the day on which the judgment, etc., was pronounced, not from the time when it was drawn up or entered: Platt v. G. T. Ry. Co., 12 P. R. 380; see, however, Robertson v. Wigle, 15 S. C. R. 214. The effect of the present section is the same. A judgment or order must have a date, which must be the date of pronouncing the judgment or order: see Rule 629.

79 If the appeal is from an interlocutory order, then the appellant shall bring the same to a hearing within six months from the pronouncing of the same, or within such further time as the Court of Appeal or a Judge thereof may allow. 58 V. c. 12, s. 75. Time within which appeals from interlocutory orders must be brought to a hearing.

As to interlocutory orders, see note to sec. 73.

80. The time limited for appealing from a judgment or order, which does not become absolute upon the same being pronounced, shall be computed from the time when the same does become absolute. 58 V. c. 12, s. 76, part; 59 V. c. 18, Sched. (8). Time to be reckoned from the judgment or order becoming absolute.

Chy. O. 113-117, under which certain decrees and orders were not absolute are now abrogated: see Rule 3; but notwithstanding the abrogation of those orders there is nothing to prevent the Court from still pronouncing a judgment or order which shall not be absolute in the first instance.

EFFECT OF JUDICIAL DECISIONS.

81 —(1) The decision of a Divisional Court of the Court of Appeal on a question of law or practice shall, unless overruled or otherwise impugned by a higher Court, be binding on the Court of Appeal and all Divisional Courts thereof. Decision of Divisional Court of Court of Appeal to be binding.

Sec. 21. as well as on all other Courts and Judges, and shall not be departed from in subsequent cases without the concurrence of the Judges who gave the decision, unless and until so overruled or impugned.

Decision of Court of co-ordinate authority to be binding.

(2) It shall not be competent for the High Court or any Judge thereof in any case arising before such Court or Judge to disregard or depart from a prior known decision of any Court or Judge of co-ordinate authority on any question of law or practice without the concurrence of the Judges or Judge who gave the decision; but if a Court or Judge deems the decision previously given to be wrong and of sufficient importance to be considered in a higher Court, such Court or Judge may refer the question to such higher Court. 58 V. c. 12, s. 79; c. 13, s. 9.

This section only affects civil proceedings. As Courts of Appeal for criminal cases are now constituted (as to which see note to sec. 25), the decision of the Judges of one Court is not binding on the Judges of another Court of co-ordinate jurisdiction: The Queen v. Hammond, 20 Ont. 211.

A decision of the House of Lords upon a question of law is conclusively binding upon the House afterwards: London Tramways Co. v. London County Council, 1898, A. C. 375.

It would seem to have been decided in Toronto v. Toronto Ry. Co., 4 O. W. R. 330, 335, that sub-section (1) interferes with the rule laid down in Trimble v. Hull, 5 App. Cas. 344 (see also City Bank v. Barrow, 5 App. Cas. 679), and adopted in Hollender v. Foulkes, 25 Ont. 61, that in the construction of a Colonial Act similar in its terms to an Imperial Act, the Colonial Courts should adopt as authoritative the construction placed upon the Imperial Act by the Court of Appeal in England in preference to prior decisions of the Colonial Courts of Appeal. The rule was not adopted in Macdonald v. Macdonald, 11 Ont. 187, and McDonald v. Elliott, 12 Ont. 98; see also Woodruff v. McLennan, 14 Ont. App. 256, and in Toronto v. Toronto Ry. Co., supra, it has been held that a decision of the Court of Appeal is to be followed, notwithstanding that it is in conflict with English authorities, except decisions of the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council.

As to the effect of a decision where the Court of Appeal is equally divided: see Clarkson v. Atty-General of Canada, 16 Ont. App. 202; Re Stanstead Election, 20 N. C. R. 12.

Though the High Court may be the final Court of Appeal, it will defer to previously decided cases affirming the validity of a patent, and will follow the Court of Appeal in refusing to disturb a decision in the Exchequer Court: Toronto Amer Light Co. v. Colling, 31 Ont. 18.

Sub-section (2) is intended to prevent, and, now that two Divisional Courts do not ordinarily sit at the same time, will probably prevent, such a result as occurred in Sterens v. Grout, 16 P. R. 210, and McDermott v. Grout, 16 P. R. 215, where two Divisional Courts decided differently the same point in two actions which had been tried together. The decisions were in those cases given on the same day.

For a conflict still existing between decisions of Divisional Courts, see McKelvey v. Chilman, 5 O. L. R. 263, and cases referred to therein, and in the notes to Rules 425.

Before this enactment it was decided in Pledge v. Carr, 1895, 1 Ch. 51, and other cases that the decision of a Court of co-ordinate jurisdiction is to be followed, though this rule has not been uniformly observed and exceptions to it have been made; see Heath v. Meyers, 15 P. R. 388, more especially in cases where there is no further appeal.

Where after a succession of Ontario decisions the point involved becomes differently decided by Courts of first instance in England, the Ontario cases will, it would seem, be followed in preference to the English cases until a different decision is given by the English or the Provincial Court of Appeal: Moore v. Bank of B. N. A., 15 Gr. 308, 319.

As to the comparative authority of decisions of a single Judge sitting as the High Court, and those of a Divisional Court, see Tancred v. Delagoa Bay, etc., 23 Q. B. D. 242.

SITTINGS FOR TRIALS.

82.—(1) Subject to Rules of Court, as often in every year as the due despatch of business and the public convenience may require, there shall be sittings of the High Court at every County Town for the trial of causes, matters and issues, whether legal or equitable, in [all Divisions of] the High Court, which are to be heard and determined by a Judge without a jury, and also for the trial of causes, matters and issues [in all Divisions of] the High Court which are to be tried with a jury, and for the trial of criminal matters and proceedings; and in case such first mentioned sittings are appointed at any county town for the same time and before the same Judge as jury cases, separate lists shall be made of the jury and non-jury cases, and the jury cases shall be first disposed of, unless the Judge sees fit to direct otherwise. 55 V. c. 12, s. 80 (1). Sittings for trial of causes.

The words in brackets seem to be no longer necessary.

(2) The Judges of the High Court of Justice, or a majority (a) of them, shall appoint the days upon which such sittings shall be held. 58 V. c. 12, s. 80 (2), part; 59 V. c. 18, Sched. (4).

(a) Rule 113 provides that any four of the Judges of the High Court shall form a quorum having power to appoint the days upon which the Assizes and Sittings for trial shall be held. The provisions of Rule 113 would seem to prevail; see supra, 129.

Under this section the High Court holds Circuit Sittings similar to the former Sittings of Courts of Assize and Nisi Prius.

Commissions for holding Courts of Assize and Nisi Prius may still be issued; see R. S. O. c. 53.

Secs. 53-55. Scoble, that the Lieut.-Governor as well as the Governor-General has power to issue such commissions: Reg. v. Abou, 12 U. C. Q. B. 391.

See Reg v. Bunting, 7 Ont. 118.

As to the weekly sittings for business other than trials, see Rules 98-112.

Sittings in each County.

53.—(1) Subject to Rules of Court, not less than two of such sittings shall be held at the County Town of every County and Union of Counties in each year. 58 V. c. 12, s. 81 (1).

York

(2) In the County of York, there shall in every year be held at the County Town of such County not less than three of such sittings, and also a fourth such sittings, unless the same is not required for the administration of justice, but if the said Judges, on inquiry, ascertain that such fourth sittings for any year is not required for the administration of justice, it shall not be necessary to hold the same or to appoint a day for holding the same. 58 V. c. 12, s. 81 (3); 59 V. c. 18, Sched. (11).

Carleton, Wentworth, Middlesex.

(3) In the Counties of Carleton, Wentworth, and Middlesex, there shall, in every year, be held at the County Town of each of the said Counties not less than three of such sittings. 58 V. c. 12 s. 81 (4).

Additional
sittings.

(4) In addition to the regular sittings to be held under subsection 1 of this section, a third such sittings may be appointed if the Judges of the High Court, or a majority of them, shall see fit for the trial of civil causes, matters and issues and criminal matters and proceedings, or of civil causes, matters and issues only, to be held at the County Town of any County in the Province. 58 V. c. 12, s. 81 (5); 59 V. c. 18, Sched. (12).

Judges
may appoint sittings in any county for issues to be tried without a jury.

54. The Judges of the High Court may appoint sittings of the High Court in any County in the Province, as often and at such times as they see fit, for the trial of causes which are to be tried by a Judge without a jury. 58 V. c. 12, s. 82; 59 V. c. 18, Sched. (13).

Separate sittings may be held for civil and criminal matters

55. The sittings of the High Court for the trial of civil causes, matters and issues in any County may, in the discretion of the Judges appointing the days therefor, or of the Judge who has been appointed to preside or is presiding

Thereat, be held separate and apart from the sittings for the ^{Secs. 86, 88.} trial of criminal matters and proceedings, either on the same day or on a different day. 58 V. c. 12, s. 83.

86. Such sittings may, at the discretion of the Court or of the Judge who is to hold the same, be held in the court house of the County Town in which the same are appointed to be held, or in such other place in the County Town as the Judge selects, and the Judge shall in all respects have the same authority as a Judge formerly had when sitting at Nisi Prius in regard to the use of the court house, gaol and other buildings or apartments set apart in the County for the administration of justice. 58 V. c. 12, s. 84.

87.—(1) Such sittings shall be presided over by one of the Judges of the Supreme Court, or in the absence of any such Judge by a retired Judge of the Supreme Court, or by a Judge of any County Court in Ontario, or by one of Her Majesty's Counsel learned in the law appointed for Upper Canada, or for the Province of Ontario, upon such Judge or Counsel being requested by a Judge of the Supreme Court to attend for that purpose. ^{Who may preside.}

(2) Such Judge or Counsel while holding the sittings shall possess, exercise and enjoy all the powers and authorities of a Judge of the High Court, and in civil proceedings may reserve the giving of his decision on questions raised at the trial, and such decision shall have the like force and effect as the decision of a Judge of the High Court. 58 V. c. 12, s. 85. ^{Powers of presiding Judge.}

See note to sec. 64.

88. Where the Judge whose duty it is to hold any sittings of the High Court for the trial of civil causes, matters and issues and for the trial of other matters and proceedings within the jurisdiction of the Provincial Legislature, does not arrive in time, or is not able to open such Court on the day appointed for that purpose, the sheriff of the County in which such Court should be held, or, in his absence, his deputy, may, after the hour of six of the clock in the afternoon of such day, adjourn by his proclamation, the Court which should have been opened on that day, to an hour on the following day to be by him named, and so from day to day until the Judge arrives to open such Court, or until such sheriff receives other direction from the Judge in that behalf. 58 V. c. 12, s. 86. ^{Course to be pursued by the sheriff if the Judge does not arrive on the day appointed for opening Court}

Secs. 90-92. The adjournment of Courts of Assize and Nisi Prius and of Oyer and Terminer and General Gaol Delivery is similarly provided for by R. S. O. c. 53, s. 6.

Sittings to commence at one o'clock in the afternoon.

89.—(1) No such sittings of the High Court for the trial of causes, matters and issues shall open earlier than one of the clock in the afternoon of the first day of the sittings, but this shall not prevent a non-jury trial from being begun before one of the clock with the consent of the parties. 58 V. e. 12, s. 87 (1).

Hours for sittings.

(2) No such sittings shall begin before nine o'clock in the forenoon, nor, except for special reasons, extend beyond seven o'clock in the evening, with at least a half-hour's intermission at or near noon. An irregularity under this section shall not render any trial or other proceeding void. 58 V. e. 12, s. 87 (2); c. 13, s. 19.

Entering non-jury actions for trial

90. All non-jury actions in any County may be entered for trial at any sittings of the High Court in such County, except in the County of York. 58 V. e. 12, s. 88; c. 13, s. 17.

General docket after sittings of High Court or Assizes.

91. At the sittings of the High Court or Assizes in any county town there shall be a general docket in addition to the docket of cases entered for trial, and such general docket may include all motions, petitions, proceedings and other matters which may be heard by a Judge in Court or in Chambers in any case where the solicitors consent, or where the matter in controversy arose in the County or where the party opposing or showing cause in the matter, or his solicitor, resides in the County. Such general docket shall be disposed of after the trial of causes. 58 V. e. 12, s. 89; c. 13, s. 18.

This section does not except the County of York, but in practice no such general docket is kept or necessary, as the matters for such a docket are disposed of in the Weekly Court and in Chambers at Toronto; see Rules 98-103.

TRIAL OF HIGH COURT CASES IN COUNTY COURTS, AND COUNTY COURT CASES BEFORE HIGH COURT.

Certain cases in High Court may be tried in the County Court of the county in which the cause is laid 92.—(1) All issues of fact and assessments of damages in the High Court relating to debt, covenant and contract, where the amount is liquidated, or ascertained by the signature of the defendant, may be tried and assessed in the County Court of the County where the trial is to take place.

if the plaintiff desires it, unless a Judge of the High Court sec. 92. otherwise orders, and upon such terms as the Judge deems meet.

The amount must be ascertained by the signature of defendant or liquidated in the same way: McPherson v. McPherson, 5 P. R. 240. A note made in the U. S. and payable in American currency is not so liquidated or ascertained: Cushman v. Reid, 20 C. P. 147; 5 P. R. 121. By sub-sec. (3), infra, the Court has a discretion to send an action for any debt for trial in a County Court, though the debt be not liquidated or ascertained by the signature of the defendant.

In the cases mentioned in sub-section 1 the plaintiff is prima facie entitled to a trial in the County Court of the county in which the place named as the place of trial is, but if he takes steps for this purpose the defendant may move to have the trial in the High Court.

(2) In such case the action shall be entered for trial, notice of trial shall be given, and the trial take place in the same way as in ordinary cases in such County Court.

No order is necessary.

(3) In any action in the High Court, in which the amount of the demand is ascertained by the signature of the defendant, and in any action for any debt in which a Judge of the said High Court is satisfied that the case may be properly tried in a County Court, any Judge of the High Court may order that such case shall be tried in the County Court of the County [the county town of which is named as the place of trial], and such action shall be tried there accordingly, and the record shall be made up as in other cases, and the order directing the case to be tried in the County Court shall be left with the clerk of the County Court on entering the action for trial, annexed to the record; and the trial shall take place in the same way as in ordinary cases in such County Court.

Certain cases in High Court may be tried at the County Court of the county in which the action is to be tried.

Proceedings in such case.

The words in brackets are new. Formerly the trial was required to be in the county in which the action was commenced, i.e., the county in which the writ was issued.

In the cases mentioned in sub-section 3 the plaintiff must first obtain an order for trial in a County Court.

Seem, that the Judge of the County Court, at the trial of an action being tried under this section, would have power to allow an amendment by substituting a claim for unliquidated damages: see Spencer v. Forster, 1905, 1 K. B. 434.

Any appeal from the judgment given on the trial of a High Court action in the County Court, or motion for a new trial therein, must be made to a Divisional Court, or the Court of Appeal, as if the action had been tried in the High Court: see Rule 562, and sec. 760, and notes.

By order
County Court cases may be tried at High Court
sittings.

93.—(1) By the order of a Judge of the High Court, made upon such terms as the Judge may consider just, the issues of fact and assessment of damages in any action pending in a County Court may be tried and assessed at the sittings of the High Court at any county town.

(2) In such cases the action shall be entered and the case tried as in ordinary cases. 58 V. c. 12, s. 91.

This does not enable issues of fact to be tried in the High Court, leaving issues of law on the same record to be determined in the County Court: Pattypiece v. Mayville, 21 C. P. 316.

The jurisdiction of the County Court is not enlarged by the trial of the case in the High Court. Where, therefore, the title to land came in question so that a County Court had no jurisdiction, a verdict was entered for defendant: Wetherall v. Garlow, 30 U. C. Q. B. 1. But semble, in such a case an order might now be made transferring the action to the High Court, and the trial would then proceed as if the action had been originally brought in the High Court: see R. S. O. c. 55, s. 32.

An issue under The Partition Act was ordered to be tried in the High Court where it had been tried in a County Court and the jury had disagreed: Brown v. Neff, 17 C. L. T. 81, following Symonds v. Symonds, 20 C. P. 271.

Powers of County
Court
afterwards.

94. Where any such cause is referred by the presiding Judge at such sittings, the County Court in which the action is brought, and the Judge thereof, shall have the same power to enforce any award, report or certificate made on the reference, and to make rules and orders upon appeals therefrom and motions relating thereto, as if the order referring the case had been made by the County Judge. 58 V. c. 12, s. 92.

The reference here referred to, may be either to an arbitrator, or to a Master or Referee, and the section provides that the subsequent judicial proceedings shall be in the County Court.

Books for
notes of trial, etc.

95. The Clerks of the several County Courts shall provide books in which the Judges presiding at the sittings of the High Court, where cases brought in any County Court are tried or assessed under this Act, may enter their notes of such trials and assessments; and such books, immediately after the trials or assessments, shall be returned to the said Clerks and shall remain in their offices. 58 V. c. 12, s. 93.

officers.

96. The jury fees and the fees and charges payable and pertaining to officers of the County Courts, upon all actions or proceedings brought in the County Courts and tried or assessed in the High Court, shall be chargeable and paid as if the same were being tried or assessed in the County Courts; and no other fees shall be chargeable thereon, and the Clerk of a County Court shall be entitled to receive and take such part thereof as pertains to him, to his own use. 58 V. c. 12, s. 94. Sec. 97.

CERTIFICATES OF Lis Pendens.

97. The instituting of an action or the taking of a proceeding, in which action or proceeding any title or interest in land is brought in question, shall not be deemed notice of the action or proceeding to any person not being a party thereto, until in cases where the land is registered under The Land Titles Act a caution is registered under that Act, nor in other cases until a certificate, signed by the proper officer of the Court, has been registered in the Registry Office of the Registry Division in which the land is situate, which certificate may be in the following form:—

Action, etc., not notice unless certificate registered.

Rev. Stat. c. 135.

"I certify that in an action or proceeding in the High Court, between A. B., of and C. D., of some title or interest is called in question in the following land (describing it.)"

Form.

Dated at (stating date and place.)

But no certificate shall be required to be registered in any action or proceeding for foreclosure or sale upon a registered mortgage. 56 V. c. 21, s. 53. Proviso.

The registration of a lis pendens is notice to persons subsequently dealing with the lands which are the subject of the lis, and they take subject to the rights of the parties as ultimately declared in the action. It cannot avail to give a plaintiff priority over any prior unregistered instrument: Clergue v. McKay, 6 O. L. R. 51; 8 O. L. R. 84. Lis pendens.

As to the doctrine of lis pendens, see notes to Rule 659.

As to the effect of a lis pendens, see Price v. Price, 35 Ch. D. 297.

Where the plaintiff desires to register a certificate of lis pendens, the indorsement on the writ of summons should contain a short description of the property, sufficient to identify it for the purpose of registration: see note to Form No. 9 (H. & L. Forms No. 64). The officer who issues the writ will issue the certificate of lis pendens, in the manner provided in this section; and see Rules 22 (h), and 35. Where a lis pendens is required the plaintiff should be more precise than in ordinary cases, and should by the indorsement define generally the grounds of his claim to an interest in the land: Sheppard v. Kennedy, 10 P. R. 242. A solicitor suing for his bill of costs of foreclosure proceedings and claiming a lien or charge on the property in question under Rule 1129, was held entitled to register a lis pendens: O'Flynn v. Middleton, 5 O. L. R. 621. Mode of registering.

Where the title to land is not in question in the action, e.g., in an alimony suit: White v. White, 6 P. R. 208; Crandell v. Crandell, 20 C. L. J. 329; 4 C. L. T. 500, it is improper to issue a lis pendens; and if this appears from the indorsement on the writ, the registration When not to be issued or registered.

Sec. 98.

may be vacated on motion before the Master in Chambers: Sheppard v. Kennedy, supra. If the suit ostensibly brings the title to land in question, but is an illusory suit brought in order to register a lis pendens, the action may be dismissed on an admission by the plaintiff, as to the real nature of the suit; but otherwise it must be disposed of in the regular way. If there is not such an admission, but the affidavits clearly shew the nature of the suit, the Master in Chambers may refer the matter to a Judge, and an order may be made by a Judge directing a speedy trial: see Jamieson v. Laing, 7 P. R. 404; Sheppard v. Kennedy, supra.

Vacating
lis pendens.

Where, however, the motion is to vacate the registration of the lis pendens because the remedy against the land is not appropriate to the cause of action which is pending, then the Master in Chambers may finally dispose of the matter without referring it to a Judge: Sheppard v. Kennedy, supra. Thus, a plaintiff may not register a lis pendens merely to prevent a defendant from alienating land which would be liable to satisfy the judgment if the plaintiff should succeed in the action. An action for that purpose will not lie, and the registration of a certificate of lis pendens may be vacated on motion: Westloh v. Brown, Referee in Chambers, 5th June, 1878; see Newton v. Newton, and National Provincial Bank v. Thomas, supra, p. 80, also White v. White, supra; Hepburn v. Patton, 26 Gr. 597; Robinson v. Pickering, 50 L. J. Chy. 527; Green v. Temple, 8 O. W. R. 15. A certificate of lis pendens issued before the action was actually begun was set aside: St. Louis v. O'Callaghan, 13 P. R. 322.

Where a certificate of lis pendens is registered, a defendant is entitled to appear gratis and anticipate the service upon him of actually issued process, so as to compel the plaintiff to proceed promptly: McTaggart v. Toote, 20 C. L. J. 175; Poulton v. Lee, 7 P. R. 415. Where an appearance is so entered gratis, the defendant should serve notice thereof on the plaintiff's solicitor: Vigcon v. Northcote, 12 C. L. T. 101.

Seem, an action will not lie for maliciously registering or maintaining the registration of a lis pendens: see Conan v. Macanlay, 5 B. C. R. 495.

Provision has now been made by secs. 98-100 of the Jud. Act for the discharge of a certificate of lis pendens where the plaintiff does not promptly proceed with his action. Before this enactment, where a lis pendens had been properly issued and registered, it could not be vacated pending the action: Foster v. Moore, 11 P. R. 447, a case of fraudulent conveyance.

The registration of a certificate of an order dismissing the action is a sufficient discharge of a lis pendens: Tedford v. Tedford, 7 C. L. T. 140; Graham v. Chalmers, 2 Chy. Cb. 53.

actions.

It may be observed that the concluding words of the section dispensing with the registration of a certificate of lis pendens in actions for foreclosure or sale, do not expressly provide that the institution of such actions shall be deemed notice thereof to any person not a party; nor does the clause extend to actions for redemption.

98.—(1) Where a certificate of lis pendens has been registered, and the plaintiff, or other party at whose instance the certificate was issued, does not in good faith, prosecute the litigation, the Court or Judge may at any time during the litigation make an order vacating the certificate of lis pendens.
53 V. c. 33, s. 1.

(2) Where a certificate of lis pendens has been registered, and the plaintiff's claim is not solely to recover the land, or the estate or interest therein, but is to recover a sum of money or money's worth which is chargeable on or payable out of the land, or some estate or interest therein, or for which he claims that the land or such estate or interest therein ought to be subjected to payment, or where the plaintiff claims the land or some interest in land, and, in the alternative, damages or compensation in money or money's worth, the Court or a Judge may at any time during the litigation make an order vacating the certificate of lis pendens upon such terms as to giving security or otherwise as may be deemed just. 53 V. c. 33, s. 2.

Order where claim not limited to land.

These sections apply only where the lis pendens has been registered by an opposite party: McGillivray v. Williams, 4 O. L. R. 451. A party by whom or for whose benefit a lis pendens has been registered may obtain ex parte an order vacating it and may register the order at any time: Id.

The Master in Chambers or other officer having like jurisdiction may entertain the motion: see Rules 42, 366, (7). and notes.

(3) The Court or Judge may at any time annul the registration upon any other just ground. 53 V. c. 33, s. 3.

Upon other grounds.

(4) On application under this section, the Court or Judge may order any of the parties to the application to pay the costs of any of the other parties thereto: he may make any other order with respect to costs, as under all the circumstances may appear to him (a) just. 53 V. c. 33, s. 4.

Costs.

(a) Quare, if "him" is a misprint for "be."

99. The order for vacating or annulling a certificate of lis pendens shall be subject to appeal according to the practice of the High Court in like cases, and may be registered in the same manner as judgments and other orders affecting lands are registered, such registration to be on or after the fourteenth day from the date of the order, unless a Judge of the High Court reverses the order meanwhile, or postpones or forbids the registration. 53 V. c. 33, s. 5.

Appeal from order.

Registration of order.

An order refusing to vacate a certificate is not in terms appealable under this section, and has been held to be not appealable under Rules 767 or 777: Hodge v. Hallamore, 18 P. R. 447.

100. Where a certificate of lis pendens is vacated, any person may deal in respect to the land, as fully as if such lis pendens had not been registered, and it shall not be incumbent on any purchaser or mortgagee to enquire as to the

ASSESSORS.

Assessors. 101—(1) The High Court, or any Divisional Court or Judge before whom any cause or matter may be pending, or the Court of Appeal, may, in any cause or matter in which it thinks it expedient so to do, call in the aid of one or more assessors specially qualified, and try and hear such cause or matter wholly or partially with the assistance of such assessors.

Remuneration. (2) The remuneration, if any, to be paid to such assessors shall be determined by the Court. 58 V. c. 12, s. 105 (2, 3); 60 V. c. 16, Sched. D, part.

Assessors are not to take part in the judgment, the Judge alone is to adjudicate, and the litigants are entitled to his judgment. He cannot simply adopt the assessors' opinion as to the result of the evidence: Wright v. Collier, 19 Ont., at p. 298.

TRIAL, PROCEDURE AND PLACE OF TRIAL.

Practice in Ontario. In Ontario the practice as to having, or dispensing with, a jury is different from that which prevails in England, as to which see II. & L. Jud. Act, 2nd ed., p. 139.

(1) All actions which, under the practice existing at the time of the passing of the A. J. Act, 1873, could have been brought in the Court of Chancery only, must be tried by a Judge without a jury (unless a jury can be had on special application): see sec. 103, and a notice of jury given in such a case is irregular and will be struck out on motion: see Gowantac's v. Mann, 9 P. R. 270, an action for rectification of a lease: Thurlow v. Beck, 9 P. R. 268, an action to set aside a conveyance: see also Usil v. Whelpton, 45 L. T. 39; 20 W. R. 799.

(2) Certain actions against municipal corporations are to be tried without a jury: sec. 104.

(3) In all other actions (except those mentioned in sec. 102), the provisions of secs. 105 and 106 will apply; and either party, upon giving notice, has a prima facie right to a trial by jury, subject to the discretion vested in a Judge in Chambers, or the Judge at the trial, to direct otherwise: see notes to sec. 110, infra.

Certain actions for torts to be tried by a jury. 102. In actions of libel, slander, criminal conversation, seduction, malicious arrest, malicious prosecution and false imprisonment, all questions which might prior to The Administration of Justice Act, 1873, have been tried by a jury.

shall be tried by a jury, unless the parties in person or by their solicitors or counsel, waive such trial. 58 V. c. 12, s. 109. Sec. 103.

In these cases it is not necessary to file and serve a jury notice: Puterbaugh v. Gold Medal Mfg. Co., 3 O. L. R. 259, and the Court has no power to dispense with the jury, except by consent of both parties: see Adair v. Wade, 9 Ont. 15, but it is for the Judge to say if an alleged libel is reasonably capable of being interpreted as libellous, and, if it is not, there is no question for the jury, and the Judge may give judgment for the defendant: McQuire v. Western Morning News, 1903, 2 K. B. 100; McDonald v. The Mail, 2 O. L. R. 278.

An action for trade libel does not come within this section so as to be triable only by a jury, unless by consent: Dickerson v. Radcliffe, 17 P. R. 418.

103. Subject to Rules of Court, all causes, matters and issues, over the subject of which prior to The Administration of Justice Act of 1873, the Court of Chancery had exclusive jurisdiction, shall be tried without a jury, unless otherwise ordered. 58 V. c. 12, s. 110. Cases formerly within exclusive jurisdiction of Court of Chancery.

A change in the practice was made by this section in 1887. The words "prior to The Administration of Justice Act of 1873," were in the Revision of the Statutes, 1887, substituted for the words "at the time of the passing of this (the J. A. 1881) Act," in sec. 45, of 44 Vict. c. 5. The effect of this alteration was to add to the cases which must be tried without a jury those actions which by the A. J. Act, 1873, were made cognizable by a Court of Law as well as by the Court of Chancery, e.g., actions for purely money demands, though the right to recover was an equitable one, (see R. S. O. 1877, c. 49, s. 4), and actions where an injunction, or similar equitable relief is required, though otherwise cognizable by a Court of Law: see Toronto & Hamilton Navigation Co. v. Silcox, 12 P. R. 622, and R. S. O. 1877, c. 49, s. 8. The what actions prima facie to be tried without a jury.

In determining whether an action is one over the subject of which the Court of Chancery had exclusive jurisdiction, the test is not whether the plaintiff's end might have been substantially obtained by some proceeding cognizable in a Court of Law, but whether or not the specific relief asked for in the statement of claim is of a kind which on the 29th March, 1873, could only have been obtained in the Court of Chancery: see Pattison v. Merchants' Bank, 11 P. R. 72; Masse v. Masse, 11 P. R. 81, reversing S. C., 10 P. R. 574; Herring v. Brooks, 11 P. R. 15. If the cause of action is an equitable one, the circumstance that the issues or questions of fact to be tried are matters which juries are accustomed to consider, in actions differently framed, will not entitle a party to a trial by jury: Farran v. Hunter, 12 P. R. 324.

An action to enforce a charge and also for a personal judgment for the recovery of the sum charged was held to be not an action for relief, which prior to 29th March, 1873, could only have been obtained in the Court of Chancery: Saunders v. Robertson, 19 P. R. 172; so also an action to restrain a nuisance, and for damages: Shantz v. Berlin, 4 O. L. R. 730; see also, St. Margaret's v. Stephens, infra.

Sec. 104.Examples.

The following have been held to be cases which could have been only brought in Chancery: an action for the rectification of a lease: Gowanlock v. Mann, 9 P. R. 270; to set aside a conveyance: Thurlow v. Beck, 9 P. R. 268; to declare void the delivery of certain notes: Pawson v. Merchants' Bank, sup.; to establish a will: Re Lewis, 11 P. R. 107.

An action by ratepayers against members of a municipal council for misconduct causing loss to the municipality is an action against trustees, and formerly within the exclusive jurisdiction of Chancery: Morrois v. Connor, 11 P. R. 423; so also an action for an injunction, and to establish a will, and for an account: McGill v. McDonell, 14 P. R. 483; and an action for an injunction to abate a nuisance and for damages: Lauder v. Didmon, 16 P. R. 74; St. Margaret's v. Stephens, 33 C. L. J. 464; see 29 Ont. 185; sed vide, Shantz v. Berlin, supra.

An action for specific performance of a covenant to repair, or for damages, was held to be a Common Law action, as specific performance of such a covenant could not be decreed in Chancery: Bingham v. Warner, 10 P. R. 621; but generally where a party seeks equitable relief to which he is not entitled, the opposite party should, unless in a very clear case, move to strike out the pleading (see Rules 385-7), instead of attacking it indirectly by asking to have a jury: Fraser v. Johnston, 12 P. R. 113.

Jury obtained on special motion.

Even in cases formerly within the exclusive jurisdiction of the Court of Chancery, a trial by jury may be had. Prima facie the trial is to be without a jury. It may, however, be "otherwise ordered" on special application. The power to order a jury existed under the Chancery Act (R. S. O. 1877, c. 40, s. 99). Applications under that section could only be made to the Court; the Master in Chambers had no jurisdiction: Thurlow v. Beck, 9 P. R. 268. It is presumed that under the present section the application may be made in the same way as an application under section 110, that is, to the Court or a Judge thereof, and should not be made to the Master in Chambers or a local Judge, as the discretion to be exercised on the motion is similar to that vested in the Judge at the trial under section 110; see, however, Bennett v. Tregent, 25 C. P. 443.

A jury was refused in Re Lewis, 11 P. R. 107, a suit to establish a will; and see McGill v. McDonell, 14 P. R. 483.

It was granted in an action by a mine owner against another mine owner for an account and for an injunction, in which a view was said to be necessary: Jenkins v. Bushby, 1891, 1 Ch. 484; 64 L. T. 213; and also in a partnership action in which allegations of fraud and misconduct were made against the defendant as grounds for a dissolution: Ehrmann v. Ehrmann, 72 L. T. 352, 548.

As to where there are both legal and equitable issues, see Rule 551 and notes.

Certain actions against municipalities to be tried without a jury and venue to be local.

104 All actions against municipal corporations for damages in respect of injuries sustained through non-repair of streets, roads or sidewalks, shall be tried by a Judge without a jury, and the trial shall take place in the County in which the road, street or sidewalk is situated. 59 V. c. 18, s. 5.

As to actions of the kind mentioned in this section, see Con. Secs. 105, 106. Municipal Act (3 Ed. vii. c. 19, s. 606).

In Lennard v. Township of Bruce, 19 C. L. T. 87, it was held that a bridge, part of the highway, was within the words "streets, roads or sidewalks," in this Rule.

An action against a municipal corporation for negligently leaving a stone roller on the highway whereby plaintiff's horses were frightened and thereby caused damage to the plaintiff is not in respect of non-repair of streets, and therefore is not within this section: Clemens v. Berlin, 7 O. L. R. 33; nor is an action in respect of injuries occasioned by the negligent use of a steam roller of the municipality, operated by a contracting company: Kirk v. Toronto, 7 O. L. R. 30.

An action based both on non-repair and obstruction is within the section, and on a motion to strike out a jury notice leave to amend by striking out the allegations as to non-repair was refused: Read v. City of Toronto, 4 O. W. R. 810.

Where an action was brought against a railway company and a city corporation to recover damages for injuries sustained by the plaintiffs by being upset upon a street in the city, owing to the heaping up of snow upon the side of the roadway, and the plaintiffs in their statement of claim alleged that the corporation had permitted this to be done, and had thereby allowed the street to be out of repair and dangerous for travel. It was held that the action must be treated as one for non-repair of a street within the meaning of this section, and a jury notice was therefore irregular and was struck out: Barber v. Toronto Ry. Co., 17 P. R. 293.

An action based on negligent construction of a pavement, rendering it slippery and dangerous, is within the section: Armour v. Peterborough, 5 O. W. R. 630.

105. Subject to Rules of Court, all causes, matters and issues other than as aforesaid, and the assessment or inquiry of damages therein may, and (subject to the provisions of section 110) in the absence of such notice as in the next section mentioned, shall be heard, tried and assessed by a Judge without a jury. 58 V. c. 12, s. 111 (1).

One of the Rules to which this provision is subject is Rule 550, by which equitable issues are to be tried without a jury. See also Rule 551, providing for the case where there are both legal and equitable issues.

106. If any of the parties desires the issues of fact to be tried or damages to be assessed or inquired of by a jury, he shall [at any stage of the proceedings, but not later than the fourth day after the close of the pleadings, or in case notice of trial is served before that time, then within two days after service of notice of trial], or within such other time as may be ordered by the Court or a Judge, file and serve on the opposite party a notice in writing requiring that the issues should be tried, or the damages assessed by a jury, and a copy

Other issues to be tried and damage assessed by Judge alone unless jury notice given.

Unless jury notice given or Court or Judge otherwise directs.

secs. 107,

of the notice shall be attached to the record or certified copy of the pleadings prepared for the Judge. 58 V. c. 12, s. 111 (2); 59 V. c. 18, Sched. (17).

The words in brackets were introduced by 50 Vict. c. 18, Sched. (17).

For the form of jury notice, see Form 64 (H. & L. Forms, No. 784).

Where a jury notice was served but by inadvertence not filed within the proper time, it was held that there was power to correct the slip by ordering the notice to stand good, and that such an order should be made where the case is a proper one to be tried by a jury: Macrae v. News Printing Co., 16 P. R. 364.

No jury notice is necessary in actions of the class provided for by sec. 102: Puterbaugh v. Gold Medal Co., 3 O. L. R. 250.

Effect of notice requiring a jury.

107 —(1) Where any one of the parties has given such notice requiring a jury, the issues of fact shall (subject to the provisions of section 110) be tried and determined, or the damages assessed by the verdict of jurors duly sworn for the trial of such issues or for the assessment of such damages.

See sec. 108.

Parties
may waive notice.

(2) The parties present at the trial may consent that the said notice requiring a jury shall be waived, and the case tried and damages assessed by the Judge, and may indorse a memorandum of such consent upon the record, and thereupon the Judge may try the issues or assess the damages without a jury. 58 V. c. 12, s. 112 (1, 2).

The memorandum, if omitted to be made at the time, may be made afterwards nunc pro tunc: Wyeott v. Campbell, 31 U. C. Q. B. 584.

Agreement of ten jurors in verdict or answers to be sufficient.

108 —(1) In all civil cases in the High Court of Justice or in a County Court, or in any matter or cause within the jurisdiction of the Provincial Legislature, where issues are tried or where damages are assessed by a jury, it shall be sufficient if ten of the jurors empanelled for the trial or assessment shall agree, instead of twelve; and in such case ten jurors may give the verdict, or answer the questions submitted to the jury by the Judge. 58 V. c. 12, s. 112 (3); c. 16, s. 1.

Effect of verdict or answers so given.

(2) A verdict rendered or question answered under the provisions of this section shall have the same effect as the verdict or answer given by twelve jurors. 58 V. c. 12, s. 112 (4); c. 16, s. 3.

Special juries.

(3) This section shall apply to special juries. 58 V. c. 12, s. 112 (5); c. 16, s. 4.

109. If at the trial of any action or issue or assessment of damages, a juror should die or become incapacitated by illness or any other cause from continuing to sit or act on the jury, or if it should be discovered that one of the jury sworn has an interest in the result of the suit, or is a relative of any of the parties thereto within the degree of first cousin, the presiding Judge may discharge such juror, and may in any such case direct that the trial or assessment shall proceed on such terms as he thinks fit with eleven jurors, and in such case ten jurors may give the verdict or answer the questions submitted to the jury by the Judge. 58 V. c. 12, s. 113.

110.

Death or illness of juror or discovery of interest during trial.

110. Notwithstanding anything in sections 106 and 107 contained, the Judge presiding at the trial may in his discretion direct that the action or issues shall be tried or the damages assessed by a jury; and upon application to the Court in which the trial is pending, or to a Judge thereof, by an order made before the trial, or by the direction of the Judge presiding at the trial, the issues may be tried and damages assessed without a jury. 58 V. c. 12, s. 114; 59 V. c. 18, Sched. (18).

Judge may direct trial by jury or
a jury.

It has been said that as a rule the question whether a jury notice ought to be struck out can be better disposed of by the Judge at the trial, when the real questions to be tried have been ascertained, than by a Judge in Chambers on the pleadings and affidavits (per Osler, J.A., in Conmee v. C. P. R., 12 Ont. App. 760), and the Judge at the trial is considered to have absolute control over the manner in which the case shall be tried, and his discretion will not be interfered with by a Divisional Court: Brown v. Wood, 12 P. R. 198. See, however, per Osler, J.A., in Reg. v. Grant, 17 P. R. at p. 171.

In Conmee v. C. P. R. (sup.), though the Court of Appeal held that the plaintiff was entitled to a jury, at the trial a jury was dispensed with and the case referred to arbitrators. It has, therefore, sometimes been considered inexpedient to deal with the matter on motion before trial in view of the power of the Judge at the trial: see Temperance Colonization Co. v. Evans, 12 P. R. 48, 380; McMahon v. Lovcry, ib. 62. Cases, however, have arisen in which the Court has acted on motion. In Bennett v. Tregent, 25 C. P. 443, Mr. Dalton, Q.C., Clerk of the C. & P. sitting in Chambers, directed the trial to be without a jury in an action for a breach of warranty, and his power to do so was affirmed by the Court.

The Master in Chambers and officers having like jurisdiction can now, however, only strike out a jury notice for irregularity, e.g., where not proper under sec. 103 (see notes to that section), or where delivered after the time allowed by section 106 for doing so: see Rule 42, clause 15. Before that Rule the Master in Chambers had the same jurisdiction as a Judge: see Baldwin v. McGuire, 15 P. R. 306; Bristol, etc. v. Taylor, 15 P. R. 310; Lauder v. Didmon, 16 P. R. 74.

Jurisdiction of Judge and Judicial officers.

Sec. 110.

The jurisdiction of a Judge in Chambers to strike out a jury notice has never been judicially doubted: Peoples' Loan, etc., Co. v. Stanley, 4 O. L. R. 90, 377; Shantz v. Berlin, 4 O. L. R. 730.

A Judge in Chambers, on motion before trial, has full discretion to direct as to the mode of trial: Lauder v. Didmon, 16 P. R. 74; and semble, where, before trial, the Court or a Judge has ordered that the action be tried without a jury, the Judge at the trial has no power (while the order stands unreversed) to say that the issues shall be tried by a jury: Reg. v. Grant, 17 P. R. at p. 171, per Osler, J.A. It had previously been said that the exercise by a Judge in Chambers of his power before trial may hamper the discretion of the trial Judge: per Street, J., in Bristol, etc., v. Taylor, 15 P. R. 310; and see Bank of Toronto v. Keystone F. Ins. Co., 18 P. R. 113. While, therefore, there is no doubt as to the discretionary power of a Judge in Chambers before trial to strike out a jury notice, the practice is not to strike it out where the ground is merely that the action can be more conveniently dealt with without a jury, that being a matter which can better be left for the consideration of the Judge at the trial: Harke v. O'Neil, 18 P. R. 104; Shantz v. Berlin, supra. On the other hand it is said that it is desirable to have the question whether an action is to be tried with or without a jury determined at as early a stage as possible: Lauder v. Didmon, 16 P. R. 74; and the discretion of a Judge on this point will not be lightly interfered with: Id.; and see Togood v. Hindmarsh, 17 P. R. 446; and see Mangan v. Metropolitan Electric Supply Co., 1891, 2 Ch. 551.

Local Judges.

A local Judge acting under Rule 47 has the same power as a Judge of the High Court in Chambers: Fox v. Fox, 17 P. R. 161; and in a case where it was almost certain that the Judge at the trial would dispense with the jury it was held that the discretion of the local Judge ought to have been exercised by striking out the jury notice.

It has been held that this section places the matter in the discretion of the Judge in much the same way as under the English Order 36, rr. 3-7, that is, the Judge must be satisfied that sufficient reasons exist to deprive the party claiming a jury of his prima facie right. The onus of establishing this is on the other side, if an application is made before trial, and if the case can be equally well tried by either mode, then, if either party desires it, the case should go to a jury: Bank of B. N. A. v. Eddy, 9 P. R. 470; see also Clark v. Skipper, 21 Ch. D. 134; Moses v. Simpson, 20 C. L. J. 230.

Where a trial is commenced with a jury, the Judge may, even after the evidence is taken, or during its progress, dispense with, and discharge the jury, and try the case himself: Marks v. Windsor, 17 Ont. 719; see also Denmark v. McConaghy, 26 C. P. 563; Adair v. Wade, 9 Ont. 15; but semble, where he refuses to try a case with a jury he should proceed to try it himself, and semble, he has no jurisdiction to strike out the jury notice and transfer the case to a non-jury sittings for trial: Bank of Toronto v. Keystone Fire Insurance Co., 18 P. R. 113.

County Court cases.

In cases in County Courts an order made by the Judge before trial, as to trial of the action with, or without a jury, is not appealable under section 52 of the County Courts Act (R. S. O. c. 55): McPherson v. Wilson, 13 P. R. 339.

Examples.

In Pickup v. Kincaid, 11 P. R. 445, an action to recover fees for medical attendance, where nothing was in dispute but the amount, it was held to be a proper case to strike out a jury notice with a view to having an account directed at once.

Simple, mere complexity of facts would not, alone, be sufficient Sec. 111.
reason for dispensing with a jury, in a Common Law action: Bank of
B. N. A. v. Eddy, 9 P. R. 468. Examples

Under ordinary circumstances an action for infringement of a patent should not be tried by a jury: Veradyn v. Guthrie, 9 P. R. 267; and where there is an issue involving a scientific investigation, that may be a good reason for dispensing with a jury: Siegn v. H. E. Ry. Co., 100 L. T. Jour, 3901.

It has been said that actions against physicians and surgeons for malpractice, should now, as a general rule, be tried without a jury: Town v. Archer, 4 O. L. R. 383; and an action on a fire policy in which the defendants set up fraud was tried without a jury: Whyte v. British America Assurance Co., 38 C. L. J. 165.

Causes of action may in a proper case be severed, that some separate proper for a trial by jury may be so tried: see Temperance Colonization Co. v. Evans, and McMahon v. Larven, 12 P. R. 62; but such separate trial by jury should not be ordered where there is but one cause of action: Farran v. Hunter, 12 P. R. 324.

Rules 550, and 551, provide the mode of trial where equitable issues, or both legal and equitable issues, are raised: see notes to those Rules.

Where a case had been tried and the jury disagreed, a motion was made to dispense with a jury, as a jury would be likely to disagree again, but it was held that the case having been considered proper for a trial by jury, it should be so tried, subject to the directions of the Judge at the trial: Bank of B. N. A. v. Eddy, 3 C. L. T. 499; see 19 C. L. J. 158; but in Adamson v. Adamson, 12 P. R. 469, a second trial was directed to be without a jury, the case being one where there was no prima facie right to a jury.

In McGinnighal v. G. T. R., 9 P. R. 269, after the jury disagreed, and a second trial had been had, but the verdict had been set aside as against evidence, an order was made for trial by a Judge.

Where at the trial both parties treated an issue as one which should be tried by the Judge, and not by the jury, and the plaintiffs obtained a rule nisi for a new trial on the ground that the Judge had decided the issue wrongly, they were not allowed to amend the rule so as to state that the Judge should have left the issue to the jury: Australian, etc., v. Smith, 14 App. Cas. 318.

As to the effect of withdrawing a juror, see Thomas v. Kruter, Flying Post, 18 Q. B. D. 582.

Verdict.

111. Upon a trial by a jury, it shall not be lawful for the jury to give a general verdict, where the Court or the presiding Judge otherwise directs, and it shall be the duty of the jury to give a special verdict if the Court or presiding Judge so directs; and the jury may give either a general or a special verdict, unless the Court or the presiding Judge otherwise directs; but this section shall not apply to actions of libel.

58 V. c. 12, s. 116.

Court may direct jury to give a special verdict except in actions for libel.

Sec. 112.

A "general verdict" is one whereby the jury find the issue in favour of one party or the other, generally, i.e., for plaintiff, or defendant, as the case may be; and where there are several issues, if some be found in favour of one side and some in favour of the other, this would still be a "general verdict": Co. Lit. 226; Davies v. Loundes, 1 Sc. N. R. 328; Chitty's Arch. Pr. (14th ed.) 655. A "special verdict," on the other hand, is one whereby the jury simply find the facts, leaving it to the Court on applying the law to the facts so found, to determine for which of the parties a judgment should be given: Co. Lit. 227 h., 228; Chitty's Arch. Pr. (14th ed.) 655.

Formerly a jury might in all cases give a general verdict: Mapes v. Devises v. Clark, 3 A. & E. 506; but this and the following section have restricted this right, and the jury may in certain cases be required to answer specific questions: sec. 112.

In certain cases the jury may be directed to answer questions, and on the answers the Judge shall enter verdict.

112. Upon a trial by jury, in any case except an action for libel, slander, criminal conversation, seduction, malicious arrest, malicious prosecution or false imprisonment, the Judge, instead of directing the jury to give either a general or a special verdict, may direct the jury to answer any questions of fact stated to them by the Judge for the purpose; and in such case the jury shall answer such questions, and shall not give any verdict; and, on the finding of the jury upon the questions which they answer, the Judge may direct judgment to be entered. 58 V. c. 12, s. 117.

See Canada Central v. McLaren, 8 Ont. App. 564; St. Denis v. Barter, 13 Ont. 41; Gower v. Lusse, 16 Ont. 88.

It is imperative upon the jury to answer the questions submitted to them, and they may not give a general verdict instead, unless the Judge in his discretion receives it: Furlong v. Carroll, 7 Ont. App. 145, but to enable the jury to give such general verdict instead of answering the questions, the Judge's charge must give them such instructions as to the law, that they can properly give a general verdict instead of merely answering the questions: Reid v. Barnes, 25 Ont. 223.

In the excepted cases mentioned, this section prevents a judgment from being entered upon answers to questions submitted to the jury: a general or special verdict may be given by the jury, either by directions of the Judge or of their own accord (except in an action for libel in which a general verdict must be given); and a finding, in answer to a question, of a certain amount of damages is not equivalent to a general verdict: Gordon v. Denison, 22 Ont. App. 315 (an action for false imprisonment). In an action (e.g., for malicious prosecution) where the question of the presence or absence of reasonable and probable cause is for the Judge to decide, this section cannot prevent his putting questions to the jury in order to obtain a finding as to the facts for his assistance in forming his opinion upon the question of reasonable and probable cause: Ib., pp. 319, 320-1.

A Judge is not bound to submit questions in writing to the jury: Lett v. St. Lawrence, 1 Ont. 545. See also Balfour v. Toronto Railway Co., 5 O. L. R. 735; 32 S. C. R. 231; where Armour, C.J.O., said that questions should be in writing, but Osler, J.A., said that Sec. 113. while it is convenient and no doubt the usual course that questions submitted to the jury should be in writing, the law does not so require; and his refusal to submit any particular question is not ground for a new trial: Turner v. Burns, 24 Ont. 28.

When the jury fail to answer questions, or their answers are conflicting, so that no judgment can be awarded for either party on their finding, or in case the Judge at the trial refuses to give judgment for either party, the action may, unless his decision is appealed from, be carried down for trial again, as upon a disagreement of the jury: see Rules 780, 781.

In Spencer v. Alaska, etc., 35 S. C. R. 362, it was said by Nesbitt, J., that in an action founded upon negligence it is advisable that specific questions be submitted to the jury to enable them to state the special grounds on which they find negligence or no negligence.

INTEREST.

113. Interest shall be payable in all cases in which it is now payable by law [or in which it has been usual for a jury to allow it]. 58 V. c. 12, s. 118. Interest may be allowed as hitherto.

The words in brackets are not in the Imp. Act. 3 & 4 Vict. c. 42, s. 28, from which this section was taken. As to the words in brackets: see McCullough v. Clemow, 26 Ont. pp. 472, 475.

Interest is in practice more frequently allowed by our juries than English authority would seem to warrant: Spence v. Hector, 24 U. C. Q. B. 277; see also Mennie v. Leitch, 8 Ont. 397; Snarr v. Badenach, 10 Ont. 131; Re Kirkpatrick, 10 P. R. 4; Michie v. Reynolds, 24 U. C. Q. B. 303; Montgomery v. Boucher, 14 U. C. C. P. 45; McCullough v. Clemow, supra; McCullough v. Newlove, 27 Ont. 627; City of Toronto v. Toronto Ry. Co., 7 O. L. R. 78.

As to the allowance of interest on a claim in the Master's office: see Re Ross, 29 Gr. 385; Rule 667 and notes.

As to interest on mortgages: see Rule 750, and notes.

The Interest Act, 1897, 60 & 61 V. c. 8 (D.), being an Act passed on grounds of public policy for the benefit of borrowers, its application cannot be waived: Dunn v. Malone, 6 O. L. R. 484.

A referee on taking accounts has power to allow interest whenever a jury would be entitled to allow it: Attorney-General v. Etna Insurance Co., 13 P. R. 459; and on amounts claimed for work and services agreed to be paid at a fixed rate, from the times when they became payable: McCullough v. Newlove, 27 Ont. 627.

Interest is not recoverable on the amount of a foreign judgment except as unliquidated damages: Solmes v. Stafford, 16 P. R. 78; 264 nor on an award; and such interest does not begin to run until notice of the award has been given to the person liable to pay: Hupck v. Wilson, 18 P. R. 44.

Interest is payable on money obtained and retained in fraud of the plaintiff, but not on money paid by mistake: Johnson v. The King, 1904, A. C. 817; 91 L. T. 234.

Sec. 114.

When allowed on debts certain and overdue.

114—(1) On the trial of any issue, or any assessment of damages, upon any debt or sum certain, payable by virtue of a written instrument at a certain time, interest may be allowed to the plaintiff from the time when the debt or sum became payable.

See Torcsley v. Wythes, 16 U. C. Q. B. 139; McCullough v. Clemon, supra.

"Debt or Sum Certain, etc."—The Act requires that the contract shall ascertain the sum and the time: the certainty of both must appear from the contract. But still, if all the elements of certainty appear by the contract, and nothing more is required than an arithmetical computation to ascertain the exact sum or the exact time for payment, that will be sufficient: Per Lindley, L.J., in London, etc., S. E. Ry. Co., 1892, 1 Ch. 144; see also 1893, A. C. 429; and McCullough v. Clemon, 28 Ont. p. 473. But it is not sufficient that the debt or the time may be made certain by some process of calculation, or some act to be performed in the future: Sinclair v. Preston, 31 S. C. R. 408.

Where the amount recovered on a bond is damages not ascertainable until judgment, interest will not be allowed: see Sinclair v. Preston, 31 S. C. R. 408; Beam v. Beatty, 3 O. L. R. 345 (but this case was reversed on another point, 4 O. L. R. 554); but interest is payable as interest, and not as damages, under a bond having a condition or defeasance to make void the same on payment of a lesser sum at a day or place certain, even although no express mention of interest is made in the bond: Re Dixon, Heynes v. Dixon, 1899, 2 Ch. 561; 1900, 2 Ch. 561.

And where a railway company was bound by agreement to pay a certain sum to a municipal corporation by way of rental of its tracks, and disputes having arisen as to the construction of the agreement, the payment was delayed and no sum tendered; and the amount being subsequently ascertained in the action, it was held that the corporation was entitled to interest as damages from the time when it should have been paid: Toronto v. Toronto Ry. Co., 7 O. L. R. 78. That was held to be when the plaintiffs first made a good title: see S. C., 1905, A. C. 33. Where lessees went into possession under an agreement for a lease, and there was delay by the lessors in making title, it was held that interest on rent in arrear did not begin to run until the lessors had made title: Re Canadian Pacific R. W. v. Toronto, 5 O. L. R. 717, in appeal, 1905, A. C. 33.

(2) If such debt or sum is payable otherwise than by virtue of a written instrument at a certain time, interest may be allowed from the time when a demand of payment is made in writing, informing the debtor that interest will be claimed from the date of the demand. 58 V. c. 12, s. 119.

These provisions are founded upon Imp. Act. 3 & 4 Wm. 4. c. 42, s. 28.

Interest
on claims, when allowed.

Interest cannot be allowed on merchants' accounts unless a demand of interest under this section is proved: Juglia v. Wellington Hotel Co., 20 C. P. 387. But in Michie v. Reynolds, 24 U. C. Q. B. 303, 310, Draper, C.J., said: "It has been the practice for a very long time to leave to the discretion of the jury to give interest where the payment of a just debt has been withheld, and we can find no good reason to depart from that practice"; and in Spence v. Hector, Ib. 277, 281, the same learned Judge remarked that "Interest is in practice much more frequently allowed by our juries than English authorities would seem to warrant."

When the debt or sum is payable by virtue of a written instrument at a certain time, no demand is necessary in order to entitle the payee to interest. A covenant to pay six months after the death of the covenantor is a covenant to pay at "a certain time": Re Horner, 1896, 2 Ch. 188; 74 L. T. 686; and interest is usually allowed, without demand made, on sums awarded to be paid at a particular time: Townsend v. Wythes, 16 U. C. Q. B. 139.

Where the indorsement on the writ claimed interest, Boyd, C., was of opinion that that was a good demand of interest under the statute: Irwin v. Victoria Harbour, Jan. 22nd, 1894 (not reported); but the mere bringing of the action appears not to be a sufficient demand where there has been no specific demand of interest: London, Chatham & Dover Ry. v. South Eastern Ry., 1893, A. C. 429; 69 L. T. 637.

It has been held in England that a printed notice at the head of an account that interest will be charged is not a sufficient demand within the statute: Re Edwards, 65 L. T. 453; but where interest had been regularly charged on sums overdue for three years and upwards, the fact that no objection was made by the debtor was held to be evidence of a promise to pay interest: Re Anglesey, 1901, 2 Ch. 548; 85 L. T. 179, overruling Re Edwards, supra, on this point.

Interest may be allowed upon a solicitor's bill, if a demand in writing is made for it: Re McClive, 9 P. R. 213.

Although interest cannot, in the cases provided for in this section, be allowed without a prior demand, it is still in the discretion of the Judge or jury to allow interest in such cases, even though a demand be proved.

Where money has been paid by mistake, interest on it will not be allowed in favour of the payer: Barber v. Clark, 20 Ont. 522; 18 Ont. App. 435; Johnson v. The King, 1904, A. C. 817; 91 L. T. 234, but where moneys of an estate were distributed under a judgment subsequently reversed for irregularity, the payees were ordered to refund with interest from the commencement of the proceedings to set aside the judgment: Uffner v. Lewis, Boys' Home v. Lewis, 5 O. L. R. 684.

Where an action was brought upon a written agreement, silent as to interest, to recover the amount of net profits of a business for a period ending 1st May, 1895, as ascertained in the manner provided for in the agreement, but not so ascertained till after the time fixed thereby, and it was adjudged at the trial that the ascertainment was void, and a reference was directed to a Master to take an account, it was held that interest was not recoverable, (1) under s. 113, as in a case in which it had been usual for a jury to allow it, because no debt existed which was payable till ascertained, either in the manner provided in the agreement, or by the account taken in the action; nor (2) under s. 114 (1), because, the mode of computation provided by the contract being departed from, there was no certainty as to the amount payable, nor time of payment: McCullough v. Glenow, 26 Ont. 467.

Secs. 115, 116. As regards the rule followed by Courts of Equity in the allowance of interest, Bacon, V.C., said, in Spatali v. Constantinidi, 20 W. R. 823, "I take the law of this Court to be perfectly clear and distinct, and to have prevailed for centuries, that upon the wrongful withholding of a debt, the party who wrongfully withholds it is liable to pay interest upon that debt. A jury might always have given it, I do not say it did, but it might always have given it at law. But without reference to what a jury might do, this Court has given it in numberless instances": see Rodger v. Comptoir d'Escompte de Paris, L. R. 3 P. C. 465; but it is said that as regards legal claims the Courts of Equity always followed the law: see per Lindley, L.J., London, Chatham & Dover Ry. v. South Eastern Ry., 1892, 1 Ch. at p. 142. Booth v. Leicester, 3 My. & Cr. 459; 1 Keen. 247.

Rate. After judgment has been recovered for a sum of money, payable "with interest until paid," it is doubtful whether the rate reserved by the contract can be recovered after judgment: see Hutton v. Federal Bank, 9 P. R. 568. In Rykert v. St. John, 4 Ont. App. 213; 10 S. C. R. 278, it was held that the contract became merged in the judgment, and only the interest payable under the judgment could be recovered. But in Popple v. Sylvester, 22 Ch. D. 98; 47 L. T. 329, it was held that the difference between the rate payable by the contract, and the rate recovered on the judgment, for the period between the recovering of judgment and payment, might be recovered in a subsequent action; and see 19 C. L. J. 21; Acc. Economic Life Assce. Co. v. Usborne, 85 L. T. 587; but see Ex p. Fewings, 25 Ch. D. 338; 50 L. T. 109.

Right of the Crown. In England the Crown has a prerogative right to be paid in priority to other creditors: In re West London Commercial Bank, 38 Ch. D. 364; Attorney-General v. Leonard, 38 Ch. D. 622; Rex v. Ward, 2 Ex. 301 u.; Maritime Bank v. The Queen, 17 S. C. R. 657; but see Clarkson v. Attorney-General, 15 Ont. 632; 16 Ont. App. 202; and see R. S. O. c. 129, s. 34, which in effect repeals 9 Hen. viii. c. 18.

When by way of damages in certain actions.

115. In actions for conversion of goods or for trespass de bonis asportatis, the jury may give interest in the nature of damages over and above the value of the goods at the time of the conversion or seizure, and in actions on policies of insurance may give interest over and above the money recoverable thereon. 58 V. c. 12, s. 120.

After goods are placed in the custody of the law, as for instance, in the hands of a sheriff or receiver, the liability of the defendant for interest on the value of such goods ceases: Peruvian Guano Co. v. Dreyfus, 1892, A. C. 166.

Interest on judgments.

116. Unless it is otherwise ordered by the Court, a verdict or judgment shall bear interest from the time of the rendering of the verdict, or of giving the judgment, as the case may be, notwithstanding that the entry of judgment shall have been suspended by any proceedings in the action, whether in the Court in which the action is pending or in appeal. 58 V. c. 12, s. 121.

Interest does not run from the date of the verdict, where the judgment is expressly directed to be entered at a future day: McLaren v. Canada Central Ry. Co., 10 P. R. 328; and where a verdict is entered, subject to an award, the amount of the award does not bear interest from the date of the verdict: Hope v. Beatty, 7 P. R. 39; and see Woodruff v. Canada Guarantee Co., 8 P. R. 532.

Where the entry of judgment is stayed, the interest nevertheless runs from the date of the judgment: Talbot v. Canadian C. C. Co., 33 C. L. J. 735; 17 C. L. T. 336; and see Rule 629.

Where the judgment declares a charge of money upon land without imposing any personal liability, it bears interest unless otherwise ordered: Re Drax, 1903, 1 Ch. 781; 88 L. T. 510; although the contrary was held in Lynch v. Skerrett, 5 Ir. Eq. 494.

An interlocutory order for payment of costs was held to be a judgment within Imp. Act, 1 & 2 Vict. c. 110, s. 28, and to carry interest on the costs from the date of the order: Taylor v. Roe, 1894, 1 Ch. 413; 70 L. T. 232; see also R. S. O. c. 80, s. 9.

The interest included in a judgment is a part of the claim for the purpose of determining the scale of costs applicable: Malcolm v. Leys, 15 P. R. 75; but not the interest which accrues on the verdict or judgment under this section: Sproule v. Wilson, 15 P. R. 349.

PLEADINGS IN ACTIONS ON FOREIGN JUDGMENTS.

Foreign judgments are those given by Courts whose jurisdiction does not extend to Ontario: Macfarlane v. Derbyshire, 8 U. C. Q. B. 12; a foreign judgment if not impeached or denied is prima facie evidence against the defendant: Manning v. Thompson, 17 C. P. 606; but it must be a judgment which finally and conclusively (subject only to appeal) settles the existence of the debt, so as to become res judicata between the parties: Noarion v. Freeman, 15 App. Cas. 1.

A foreign judgment constitutes a simple contract debt, so that the period of limitation in such case (6 years), for bringing an action upon it, applies: North v. Fisher, 6 Ont. 206; and is a liquidated demand which may be specially indorsed under Rule 138: Solmes v. Stafford, 16 P. R. 78.

The principle upon which a foreign judgment is enforced is that the judgment of a Court of competent jurisdiction over the defendant imposes an obligation upon the defendant to pay which the domestic Court is bound to enforce: Fowler v. Vail, 4 Ont. App. 270; Castrique v. Imrie, L. R. 4 E. & L. App. 414; Godard v. Gray, L. R. 6 Q. B. 139; Re Trufort, Trafford v. Blane, 57 L. T. 674; Ritter v. Fairfield, 32 Ont. 350; Foycrick v. Hubbard, 86 L. T. 829; Swaizie v. Swaizie, 31 Ont. 324.

No legislature, having merely territorial jurisdiction, can confer on Courts under its control, jurisdiction which any foreign Court ought to recognize, against absent foreigners who owe no allegiance or obedience to the power which so legislates. In all personal actions the Courts of the country where the defendant resides, not the Courts of the country where the cause of action arose, should be resorted to: Sirdar Gurdyn Singh v. Rajah of Faridkote, 1894, A. C. 670; see also note prefixed to Rule 162.

A judgment for a penalty payable to a foreign state, under a statute of such foreign state, does not create a debt enforceable in this Province; but where the penalty is payable by way of indemnity Sec. 116. to a private citizen a foreign judgment for such penalty may be enforced in Ontario: Huntington v. Attrill, 20 Ont. App. 703; 1883, A. C. 150.

A foreign judgment is not a merger of the original cause of action, which may, notwithstanding such judgment, be sued on in Ontario: Trevelyan v. Myers, 26 Ont. 430; Bugbee v. Clergue, 27 Ont. 201, affirmed in S. C., sub nom. Clergue v. Humphrey, 31 S. C. R. 66; the foreign judgment creditor may sue either upon the judgment or upon the original cause of action: Id.

The tribunals constituted by Provincial authority cannot extend their powers so as to bind by their decisions persons, or their property, in other Provinces, unless such persons choose to attorn to their jurisdiction: but judgments of Provincial Courts are binding on persons resident in other Provinces when pronounced in actions or proceedings which they have themselves instituted: Deacon v. Chadwick, 1 O. L. R. 346.

A foreign judgment is prima facie evidence only that the foreign Court had jurisdiction over the subject matter, or the person of the defendant, and that the judgment was regularly obtained. It may be shown by way of defence that the judgment was not binding in the foreign country, for want of jurisdiction. The Court has jurisdiction over the person of the defendant when he is a subject of the country, even though not resident nor domiciled in it, and he is therefore bound by a judgment, though obtained in his absence, where recovered under the process of the country to which he owes allegiance as a subject, or temporary allegiance, by being when the suit was commenced, resident in the country, so as to have the benefit and protection of its laws. The absence of these circumstances will constitute a defence: see Fowler v. Fail; Godard v. Gray (sup.) Schibsky v. Westenholz L. R. 6 Q. B. 155; Manbournet v. Wyse, 1 Ir. C. L. 471; McLean v. Shields, 9 Ont. 699; Solmes v. Stafford, 16 P. R. 78; Beatty v. Cromwell, 9 P. R. 547; Turnbull v. Walker, 67 L. T. 767; 2 Smith L. C., 10th ed., 766.

If the foreign Court had jurisdiction as above (or if defendant submitted to its jurisdiction by appearing: Voinet v. Barrett, 34 W. R. 161; 1 Cab. & E. 554), the judgment is conclusive so as to prevent him from pleading any defence which might have been pleaded in the foreign country: Fowler v. Fail, and other cases, supra; Paisley v. Broddy, 11 P. R. 202; Solmes v. Stafford, 16 P. R. 78.

A judgment or decree pronounced by a foreign Court will be treated and acted on as final, notwithstanding any irregularity of procedure under the local law; provided the foreign Court had jurisdiction over the subject matter, and over the persons brought before it, and the proceedings do not offend against English views of substantial justice: Pemberton v. Hughes, 1891, 1 Ch. 781; but an action on a foreign judgment must fail if it be proved that the judgment was obtained without notice to the defendant, actual or constructive: Bugbee v. Clergue, 27 Ont. 96; 31 S. C. R. 66; but if a defendant in the foreign action does not prove that he had no notice of the proceedings and no opportunity of appearing in the foreign Court, the judgment, if in rem, may be conclusive on him: see Fraser v. Carr, 81 L. T. 541; 1902, A. C. 156; 85 L. T. 144.

By invoking and submitting to the jurisdiction of a foreign Court, a party may, in an action in Ontario on the judgment of the foreign Court, be precluded from setting up want of jurisdiction to it: Swaikie v. Swaikie, 31 Ont. 324.

Fraud in obtaining a foreign judgment is a defence: Abouloff v. Secs. 117. Oppenheimer, 10 Q. B. D. 295; c.g., by means false evidence adduced 118a. in the foreign Court: Hollender v. Foulkes, 26 Ont. 61; Anderson v. Nesbitt, 1 O. W. R. 818; 2 O. W. R. 430; though the fraud is such that it cannot be proved without re-trying the questions adjudicated upon by the foreign Court: Ib. and Vadala v. Lawes, 25 Q. B. D. 310; 62 L. T. 701; 63 L. T. 128. It is also a defence that the judgment is contrary to natural justice, as in Buchanan v. Rucker, 1 Camp. 43; 9 East., 192; or the fact that it was obtained against defendant without notice (he being an alien), notwithstanding the judgment is valid in the foreign country: Rousillon v. Rousillon, 14 Ch. D. 351.

Where the defendant did not appear or submit to the jurisdiction of the foreign Court, and was not resident within the territorial jurisdiction when the foreign judgment was obtained, an action on such judgment (except when recovered in the Province of Quebec, as mentioned in s. 117, post), cannot be maintained in Ontario: see Turnbull v. Walker, 67 L. T. 767; and see Schibsby v. Westminster; Sirdar Gurdial Singh v. Faridkote, and other cases, supra.

117. In any action brought in Ontario on a judgment obtained in the Province of Quebec in an action in which the service of notice on the defendant or party sued has been personal, no defence that might have been set up to the original action shall be pleaded to that brought on the judgment. 58 V. c. 12, s. 122.

Suit upon judgment in Quebec, where service was personal.

118. In any action brought in Ontario on a judgment obtained in the Province of Quebec in an action in which personal service was not obtained and in which no defence was made, any defence that might have been set up to the original action may be made to the action on the judgment. 58 V. c. 12, s. 123.

Suit upon judgment in Quebec, where the service was not personal.

Quære, whether the personal service referred to in these sections means service in the Province of Quebec: Court v. Scott, 32 U. C. C. P. 148. In that case the action was upon a prom. note made in Toronto, payable in Montreal, so that the contract was performable, and the breach occurred in Quebec, bringing the defendant within 22 Vict. c. 5, s. 58, which, by the law of Quebec, gave the Quebec Court jurisdiction upon a personal service in Ontario.

As to the mode of proof of a Quebec judgment: see Tilton v. McKay, 24 U. C. C. P. 94.

118a. In any action brought in Ontario on a judgment obtained in Quebec, the costs incurred in obtaining the judgment shall not be recoverable without a Judge's order directing their allowance; and such order shall not be granted unless, in the opinion of the Judge, the costs were properly incurred, nor if it would have been a saving of expenses and costs to have first instituted proceedings in Ontario on the original claim. 3 Ed. viii., c. 8, s. 11.

Costs of actions on Quebec judgments

COSTS.

Costs in discretion
of Court.

119. Subject to Rules of Court, and to the express provisions of any statute, the costs of and incident to all proceedings in the Supreme Court of Judicature, shall be in the discretion of the Court or Judge, and the Court or Judge shall have full power to determine by whom and to what extent such costs are to be paid. 59 V. c. 18, s. 11.

See notes to Rule 1130, and see Rules 1238, 1241.

Habeas corpus proceedings are within this section: Re Weatherall, 1 O. L. R. 542; so also motions to quash convictions under Ontario statutes: Re v. Mancion, 8 O. L. R. 24.

The mere absence of any clause conferring jurisdiction on the Court to award costs under a particular statute is not an "express provision of any statute" so as to amount to an express prohibition by the Legislature, and to deprive the Court of its discretion as to costs conferred by this section: Re Schmarr, 1902, 1 Ch. 326.

This section authorizes the awarding of costs by the Court of Appeal on motions before it: People's Loan, etc., v. Stanley, 4 O. L. R. 247.

The ancient doctrine that in matters of Common Law the Crown neither pays nor receives costs, has not been altered in England: Re v. Archbishop of Canterbury, 1902, 2 K. B. 503; 86 L. T. 450; but various statutory provisions have in Ontario made a change in this respect, so that it has been said that the rule is practically superseded; see Attorney-General v. Toronto General Trusts Corporation, 5 O. L. R. 607, and Rule 239; but see Johnson v. The King, 1904, A. C. 817.

WITNESS FEES.

Fees of certain officers producing documents.

120. No public official or other witness subpoenaed or called upon to produce before any Court or other tribunal any public or other document shall be entitled to more than ordinary witness fees, unless the Court or other tribunal otherwise orders. 58 V. c. 12, s. 127, part; 59 V. c. 18, Sched. (20).

See also Rule 1151.

REFERENCES TO MASTER IN ORDINARY.

When references to be to Master in Ordinary.

121.—(1) Unless the Master in Ordinary shall certify that by reason of press of business, or for other good reason, he is presently unable to proceed with any reference or trial, or unless the Judge or the Court which directs the reference or the trial is satisfied that the said Master in Ordinary is otherwise unable or ought not by reason of disqualification or for any other good reason, to take or proceed with any reference or trial, the references which shall be made by the High Court or a Judge thereof at the trial or hearing in Toronto of any action, suit or proceedings begun and carried on in Toronto, and which might according to the practice of the Court be referred to the Master in Ordinary, shall be to the Master in Ordinary. This section shall apply to references made by order of the Court or a Judge under The Arbitration Act. Sec. 122.

c. 62.

(2) Nothing in this section contained shall affect the powers of reference of the Court or Judge where a reference shall be made to an engineer or other skilled or expert person or to an Official Referee agreed upon by the parties. 60 V. c. 14. s. 8; 3 Ed. vii. c. 8, s. 12.

RULES OF COURT.

The result of sections 122 to 125 in the present Act is, that since the Act went into operation, the power of making Rules is as follows:

(1) Rules may be made by the Supreme Court of Judicature for Ontario for governing its several Divisions (sec. 122).

(2) Subject to any such Rules of the Supreme Court, the Judges of the Court of Appeal may make Rules for that Court, and the Judges of the High Court may make Rules for the High Court (secs. 123 and 124). The English Acts do not give any such power to the Judges of the High Court.

(3) The Lieutenant-Governor may authorize the three Chief Justices and the Chancellor to make Rules; and Rules so made are to have the same effect as if made by all the Judges of the Supreme Court; sec. 125.

As to the power to make Rules respecting criminal procedure: see Cr. Code, s. 533.

As to the virtue and effect of Rules of Court; and as to Rules which may not be considered intra vires: see Williams v. Goose, 1897, 1 Q. B. 471.

Rules of the Court are not to be construed as having a retroactive effect, so as to deprive any snitor of any vested right or interest he may have acquired at the time of their being passed: Island v. Amaranth, 16 P. R. 3; but where they merely affect procedure, they will be held to apply to all pending actions: Ib.; Spence v. G. T. Ry., 17 P. R. 172; but see McGillivray v. Lindsay, 16 P. R. 11.

122.—(1) The Supreme Court may at any time, with the concurrence of a majority of the Judges thereof present at any meeting held for that purpose, alter and annul any Rules of Court for the time being in force, and may make any further or additional Rules of Court for carrying this Act Judges of Supreme Court may make Rules.

Sec. 122. into effect, and in particular for all or any of the following matters, that is to say:

(a) For regulating the sittings of the High Court of Justice and the Court of Appeal, and of any Divisional or other Courts thereof respectively, and of the Judges of the said High Court sitting in Chambers;

(b) For regulating the pleading, practice, and procedure in the High Court of Justice and Court of Appeal;

See Eng. J. A., 1875, s. 17.

The Court of Appeal and the High Court have each additional Rule-making powers: see ss. 123 and 124.

(c) For the hearing of appeals from County Courts, or from a Judge of a County Court, from Provisional Judicial District Courts or from a Judge of any such Court, from Surrogate Courts, Stipendiary Magistrates, or Division Courts, by any two or more of the Judges of the Supreme Court, and for regulating the selection of the Judges of the Supreme Court, who shall hear such appeals, and for regulating all matters relating to the practice of such appeals;

There is no similar clause in the Eng. Acts.

See Rules 793-797.

To emp-power Master in Chambers, etc., to make orders.

(d) For empowering the Master in Chambers, or any Referee sitting for him, or the Judges of the County Courts, other than the Judge of the County of York, or the Local Masters in respect of actions brought in their counties, to do any such thing, and to transact any such business, and to exercise any such authority and jurisdiction in respect of the same as by virtue of any statute or custom, or by the Rules of the High Court, are now or may be hereafter done, transacted or exercised by a Judge of the High Court sitting at Chambers, and as shall be specified in any such Rule, except in respect of matters relating to—

1. The liberty of the subject;
2. Appeals and applications in the nature of appeals.

3. Proceedings under The Act respecting Lunatics; Sec. 122. Rev. Stat. c. 68.
4. Applications for advice under The Trustee Act; Rev. Stat. c. 122.
5. Matters affecting the custody of children; and
6. Proceedings under section 37 of this Act.

See notes to Rule 42.

(e) Generally, for regulating any matters relating to the practice and procedure of the said Courts respectively, or to the duties of the officers thereof, or of the said Supreme Court, or to the costs of proceedings therein; (a) and every other matter deemed expedient for the better attaining the ends of justice, advancing the remedies of suitors, and carrying into effect the provisions of this Act and of all other Acts now or hereafter in force respecting the said Courts.

(a) What follows this is not taken from the English Acts, but from R. S. O. 1877, c. 49, s. 45 (7).

(f) Subject to the approval of the Lieutenant-Governor in Council, to make Rules from time to time regulating all fees payable in stamps.

See the Tariff B. infra; and as to power to impose fees, see Institute of Patent Agents v. Lockwood, 1894, A. C. 347.

(2) Where any provisions in respect of the practice or procedure of any Courts, the jurisdiction of which is vested by this Act in the High Court, are contained in any statute, Rules of Court may be made for modifying such provisions to any extent that may be deemed necessary for adapting the same to the High Court, unless, in the case of any Act hereafter passed, this power shall be expressly excluded.

See Williams v. Goose, 1897, 1 Q. B. 471.

The operation of this section is probably now very limited, as nearly all the statutory enactments regulating practice and procedure in any of the Courts existing prior to Ont. J. A., 1881, whose jurisdiction is now vested in the High Court were, at the time of the Revisions of the Statutes in 1887 and 1897, intended to be embodied in the Consolidated Rules. For an instance in which the Rules vary a statute, see note to sec. 128, infra.

(3) Any provisions relating to the payment, transfer or deposit into, or in, or out of any Court of any money or property, or to the dealing therewith, shall, for the purposes of this section, be deemed to be provisions relating to practice and procedure.

Taken from Eng. J. A., 1875, s. 24.

(4) All Rules of Court made in pursuance of this section shall from and after they come into operation, regulate all matters to which they extend, until annulled or altered in pursuance of this section or section 125. 58 V. c. 12, s. 132; c. 13, s. 41.

Taken from Eng. J. A., 1876, s. 17.

Rule 8 requires that new Rules shall be published in the Ont. Gazette for 7 days before coming into force, unless the publication is expressly dispensed with.

Judges of Court of Appeal may make Rules.

123 Subject to any Rules of Court which may be made under the provisions of the preceding section, the Judges of the Court of Appeal, or a majority of them, may from time to time make such general Rules and Orders for fixing the costs to be allowed in respect of proceedings in the said Court, and for regulating the different proceedings in appeal, and generally for the effectual execution of this Act and the intention and object thereof in regard to the practice in appeals as to them may seem expedient; and may also from time to time alter and amend any of the existing Rules or any Rules made under the authority of this Act, and make other Rules instead thereof; and until such Rules are made, the present Rules and the existing practice and mode of proceeding in the Court shall continue in force. 58 V. c. 12, s. 133.

The Rules authorized to be made under this section, would appear to be merely Rules affecting the procedure, and costs to be allowed in the Court of Appeal.

Judges of High Court may make Rules.

124. The Judges of the High Court or any four of them, of whom two of the Presidents of the Divisions of the High Court shall be two, shall, as regards matters in the High Court, have power to make general rules from time to time for the regulation of the practice of the High Court. 58 V. c. 12, s. 134.

Lieut. Governor in Council may authorize certain Judges to make Rules.

125. The Lieutenant-Governor in Council may from time to time authorize the following persons, viz.: the Chief Justice of Ontario, the Chancellor, the Chief Justice of the [King's] Bench, the Chief Justice of the Common Pleas, and any one or more of the other Justices of the Supreme Court.

to make Rules of Court under this Act; every such appointment to continue for such time as shall be specified by Order in Council, and the Judges so appointed, or any three of them, may make such Rules, and the same shall have the same effect as if made by all the Judges of the Supreme Court, under section 122. 58 V. c. 12, s. 135.

Secs 126-128.

126. The Judges of the Supreme Court and of the High Court, respectively, shall have the same authority to make Rules of Court with respect to District Courts as they have with respect to the High Court and to County Courts, and the Judges authorized as mentioned in section 125 of this Act shall, with respect to District Courts, have the like authority. 58 V. c. 12, s. 136.

Authority to make Rules of Court for District Courts.

127. A Council of the Judges of the said Supreme Court, of which due notice shall be given to all the said Judges, shall assemble once at least in every year, on such day or days as shall be fixed by the Lieutenant-Governor, for the purpose of considering the operation of this Act and of the Rules of Court for the time being in force, and also the working of the several offices and the arrangements relative to the duties of the officers of the said Courts respectively, and of inquiring and examining into any defects which may appear to exist in the system of procedure or the administration of the law in the High Court of Justice or the Court of Appeal, or of any other Court, or by any other authority; and they shall report annually to the Lieutenant-Governor what (if any) amendments or alterations it would in their judgment be expedient to make in this Act, or otherwise relating to the administration of justice, and what other provision (if any) which cannot be carried into effect without legislative authority it would be expedient to make for the better administration of justice; an extraordinary council of the said Judges may also at any time be convened by the Lieutenant-Governor. 58 V. c. 12, s. 137.

Council of Judges to consider procedure and administration of justice.

See Imp. enactment J. A., 1873, s. 75.

128. Save as by this Act or by any Rules of Court otherwise provided, all forms and methods of procedure which, prior to the 22nd day of August, 1881, were in force in any of the Courts whose jurisdiction then became vested in the said High Court, under and by virtue of any law, general order or rule whatsoever, and which are not inconsistent with this Act or with any Rules of Court, may continue to be used and Provision for saving of existing procedure where not inconsistent with this Act or Rules of Court.

Secs. 129-131. practised in the said High Court of Justice, in such and the like cases, and for such and the like purposes as nearly as may be, as those to which they would have been applicable prior to the said date in the respective Courts of which the jurisdiction became so vested. 58 V. c. 12, s. 138.

This section is taken substantially from Imp. Act of 1875, s. 21. See also secs. 48, 58 (13).

This section must be taken to have been greatly modified by Rule 3, which provides that as to all matters not provided for in the Rules, the practice is to be regulated by analogy thereto instead of, as in this section mentioned, by the practice prior to the Jud. Act, 1881.

Consolidated Rules of Practice prepared under 58 V. c. 12, 59 V. c. 18, confirmed.

129. The Consolidated Rules of Practice and Procedure of 1897, revised and consolidated under the authority of section 42 of The Law Courts Act, 1895, and of section 15 of The Law Courts Act, 1896, by the Commissioners appointed under the said section 42 and approved by the Lieutenant-Governor in Council, are hereby declared to be as valid as if contained in an Act of the Legislature; and nothing in the said Rules shall be open to any question as to the jurisdiction to make, approve and authorize the same under the said section or otherwise, but the same shall be subject to be varied or repealed from time to time by the same authority and in the same manner as other Rules of Court. 59 V. c. 18, s. 15.

OFFICERS AND OFFICES.

Registrar and Assistant Registrar of Court of Appeal.

130.—(1) The Lieutenant-Governor in Council may from time to time appoint a Registrar and an Assistant Registrar of the Court of Appeal.

(2) The said Registrar or Assistant Registrar shall not take for his own use or benefit, directly or indirectly, any fee or emolument, save the salary to which he is entitled by law; and all fees received by him on account of the said offices shall form part of the Consolidated Revenue Fund, and shall be payable in stamps, subject to The Act respecting Law Stamps.

Rev. Stat. c. 25.

(3) In the case of the absence or illness of the Registrar, or in case the office of Registrar is vacant, the Assistant Registrar shall perform all the duties of the Registrar. 5 Ed. VII. c. 13, s. 4.

Appointment of Masters, etc.

131.—(1) The Lieutenant-Governor may from time to time appoint a Master in Ordinary, a Master in Chancery, an Accountant of the Supreme Court and two or more Taxing Officers.

(2) Subject to orders of the Lieutenant-Governor in Council, the said officers and the Local Masters shall be officers of the Supreme Court and attached thereto. 58 V. c. 12, s. 140. Secs. 132-134.

By order of the Lieutenant-Governor in Council of 22nd May, 1889, the Master in Ordinary, and Local Masters, were constituted officers of the High Court.

132. The Lieutenant-Governor may from time to time appoint for the High Court: one Clerk of the Crown and Pleas; two Registrars; one Clerk of the Process; one Clerk of Records and Writs, and also such other clerks and officers as the business of the Court may, from time to time, require; and such officers and clerks shall, in addition to any of the duties usually performed by the like officers and clerks, perform such duties as may by Order in Council or Rules of the Supreme Court or the High Court be provided. 58 V. c. 12, s. 141, part; 59 V. c. 18, Sched. (22). Appointment of Clerk of Process, etc.
Duties

133 —(1) Subject to orders of the Lieutenant-Governor in Council, all officers attached to the various Divisions of the High Court shall remain and continue to be attached to the Division to which they are now respectively attached. Officers to remain attached to their several Divisions until changed.

Compare Eng., 1883, R. 890.

(2) Where a doubt exists as to the position under this Act of any existing officer attached to any Court or Judge affected by this Act, such doubt may be determined by Rule of Court.

(3) The Lieutenant-Governor in Council shall have the power and (subject to any Order in Council) the Judges of the said Supreme Court shall have power to change the official names of offices and officers, and to change and regulate the duties of the officers. 58 V. c. 12, s. 142.

See Eng. J. A., 1879, s. 24.

134 Subject to any Order in Council in that behalf, the business to be performed in the High Court and in the Court of Appeal respectively, or in any Divisional or other Court thereof, or in the Chambers of any Judge thereof, other than that performed by the Judges, shall be distributed among the several officers attached to the said Courts by the preceding section in such manner as may be directed by Rules of Court; and such officers shall perform such duties in relation to such business as may be directed by Rules of Court; and, subject to such Order in Council and Rules of Court, all such officers Distribution of business among officers.

Secs. 135-138.

respectively shall continue to perform the same duties, as nearly as may be, and in the same manner as if this Act had not been passed. 58 V. c. 12, s. 143.

See Eng. J. A., 1873, s. 77.

Oath of officers.

135.—(1) Every officer of the Court hereafter appointed shall, before he enters upon his duties, take and subscribe the following oath:—

Form.

"I, A. B., of—, do hereby solemnly swear that I will, according to the best of my skill, learning, ability and judgment, well and faithfully execute and fulfil the duties of the office of (as the case may be), without favour or affection, prejudice or partiality, to any person or persons whomsoever. So help me God."

Before whom taken.

(2) When not convenient to a person appointed to any office to attend at Toronto to take the oath of office, the oath may be taken before the Judge of the County Court of the County in which the officer resides, or before a Commissioner authorized to administer affidavits in such County, and the oath shall be certified by the Judge or Commissioner and filed amongst the records of the Court at Toronto. In all other cases the oath shall be administered to the officer by the Judge in open Court. 58 V. c. 12, s. 145.

Officers to give security.

136. The Clerk of the Crown and Pleas, the Clerk of the Process, the Registrars and Local Registrars of the High Court, and the Deputy Clerks of the Crown and Pleas, shall when required by the Lieutenant-Governor in Council, give security to [His] Majesty, in such sum and with so many sureties, and in such form as the Lieutenant-Governor in Council directs, conditioned respectively for the due performance of the duties of their respective offices. 58 V. c. 12, s. 146, part; 59 V. c. 18, Sched. (23); 63 V. c. 17, s. 8.

Consequences of neglecting to do so.

137. The neglect by any such officer to give such security shall render his appointment void; but the forfeiture of office shall not affect any act done by him during the time he actually continues to hold his appointment. 58 V. c. 12, s. 147, part; 59 V. c. 18, Sched. (24).

Who to approve of the sureties.

138. The Lieutenant-Governor shall in his discretion approve of the security and sureties so given by the Clerk of the Process, Clerk of the Crown and Pleas and Registrars; and the Judge of the County Court having first certified his approval in writing, of the security and sureties given by the Local Registrar or Deputy Clerk of the Crown for his County.

the Lieutenant-Governor shall in his discretion approve of the security and sureties so given by such Local Registrar or Deputy Clerk; and such securities, when executed and approved, shall be duly recorded in the manner provided by The Act respecting Public Officers, and shall then be deposited in the office of the Provincial Treasurer. 58 V. c. 12, s. 148, part; 59 V. c. 18, Sched. (25).

Secs. 139-142.

To be recorded and deposited as provided by Rev. Stat. c. 16.

139. The Clerk of the Crown and Pleas, the Registrars and the Clerk of the Process respectively, shall keep their offices in Osgoode Hall, in the City of Toronto. 58 V. c. 12, s. 149; 59 V. c. 18, Sched. (26).

Offices to be kept at Osgoode Hall.

140. The Clerk of the Process shall make to the Treasurer of the Province quarterly returns, verified by his affidavit, of all writs and process supplied by him to be issued by the said officers. 58 V. c. 12, s. 151, part; 59 V. c. 18, Sched. (27).

The Clerk of Process to make quarterly returns.

141.—(1) Subject as aforesaid, the Judges of the County Courts, the Master in Ordinary, the Master in Chambers, the Clerk of the Crown and Pleas, the Registrars of the High Court and the Local Masters shall be Official Referees for the trial of such questions as shall be directed to be tried by such Referees.

Official referees.

The Drainage Referee is not an Official Referee under this section unless specially so appointed, which has not been done: McClure v. Brooke, 5 O. L. R. 59.

(2) In case the business is found to require other or additional Official Referees, and the President of the High Court so certifies, the Lieutenant-Governor from time to time may appoint other additional Official Referees accordingly. 58 V. c. 12, s. 152 (1, 2), part; 59 V. c. 18, Sched. (28).

Additional referees may be appointed.

This section does not correspond with the provisions of the English Act as to official referees. The English Act appears to have contemplated an immediate appointment of a new set of officers as official referees, which has not been thought necessary for the present here, the authority of official referees being given to the County Court Judges, Masters in Chancery, Local Masters, and other officers specially named in this section, and the appointment of others being deferred until the President of the High Court certifies that others are necessary. Hitherto only one additional referee has been appointed, viz.: Mr. McLean, the Chief Clerk of the Master in Ordinary.

142. In the case of officers who are paid by salary, the fees on any reference or trial shall be paid in stamps, other referees shall be paid in money. 58 V. c. 12, s. 152 (3).

When fees to be paid in stamps.

144.

Local Masters.

143.—(1) There shall be a Local Master in every county or union of counties other than the County of York, and every Local Master hereafter appointed shall reside in the county for which he is appointed.

See section 149, authorizing the High Court, with the concurrence of the Lieutenant-Governor in Council, to relieve present officers from the operation of this provision. No part of sections 143 to 151 is taken from the English Acts.

vacancy.

(2) When a vacancy occurs in the office of Local Master, the Judge of the County Court for the county shall be the Local Master until and unless another person is appointed Local Master. In such case if there are two County Judges, a Senior and Junior Judge, both Judges shall be Local Masters until and unless one of them or some other person is appointed sole Local Master.

More than one Master may now be appointed for a county or union of counties: see 62 Vict. (2), c. 11, s. 3, infra, p. 177.

Prior to that Act the contingency provided for in this sub-section was held to be the only case in which there could be two Local Masters in a county: see Re Glen, Fleming v. Curry, 27 Ont. App. 144.

Where a Master writes a letter to the government resigning his office, the appointment of some other person to the office is equivalent to an acceptance of the resignation: Ib.

Deputy Clerks of the Crown.

(3) Except in the County of York, the several Clerks of the County Courts shall be ex officio Deputy Clerks of the Crown and Pleas of the High Court for their respective Counties, unless the offices of Deputy Clerk of the Crown and Deputy Registrar are consolidated under sub-section 5.

Ex-Deputy Registrars.

(4) Where a County Court Judge is the Local Master, the County Court Clerk shall be the Deputy Registrar.

Local Registrars.

(5) The offices of Deputy Clerk of the Crown and Deputy Registrar (not Local Master) shall be consolidated as vacancies occur in either: unless where the Presidents of the Divisions of the High Court or a majority recommend otherwise: when the said offices are held by the same person, he shall be styled Local Registrar of the High Court. 58 V. c. 12, s. 153 (1-5).

As to officers in Districts: see R. S. O. c. 109, ss. 16-18.

Fees of Deputy Clerks of the Crown.
Rev. Stat.
c. 62.

144.—(1) Except as provided in sub-section 4 of section 30 of The Arbitration Act, where a reference is made to a Deputy Clerk of the Crown, or an examination is taken by him, he shall be entitled to take and receive to his own use the fees on such reference or examination.

(2) The Local Masters and Deputy Registrars not paid by salary and the commissioners for taking affidavits may retain to their own use all the fees of office which they respectively receive not payable to the Crown, or belonging to any fee fund, and need not account to the Crown for any portion of such fees. 58 V. c. 12, s. 180 (2).

Local Masters not to practise in certain cases.

148. No Local Master whose gross income from his office of Local Master or of Deputy Registrar and Local Master, is $2,000 or upwards, shall, during the continuance of his appointment, directly or indirectly, practise in the profession of the law as Counsel, or Solicitor, or as a Notary Public, or Conveyancer, or do any manner of conveyancing, or prepare any papers or documents to be used in any Court of this Province, under the penalty of forfeiture of office and the further penalty of $400, to be recovered by any person who sues for the same by action in the High Court, and one-half of such pecuniary penalty shall belong to the party suing, and the other half to [His] Majesty for the use of the Province; and nothing in this section shall prevent the Lieutenant-Governor in Council, or the High Court, from requiring a Local Master whose income does not amount to $2,000, to abstain from practising under the like penalties. 58 V. c. 12, s. 153 (12).

149. The High Court may, with the concurrence of the Lieutenant-Governor, relieve any person now holding the office of Local Master and Deputy Registrar, or any other officer, from the operation of sub-section 1 of section 143, and section 148, or of either of them. 58 V. c. 12, s. 153 (13).

High Court may except

(2) The preceding provision fixing the maximum at $600 shall not apply to any case where the Deputy Clerk does not hold the office of Registrar of the Surrogate Court. 58 V. c.
12, s. 181.

151.—(1) Every officer paid by fees, whether commuted or not, shall on or before the 15th day of January in every year, transmit to the Inspector of Legal Offices appointed under section 165 of this Act, a just, true and faithful account, verified upon oath, of the amount of fees paid or payable to him in cash or in stamps, in respect of his office during the preceding year, and also such particulars with reference to the business of his office as the Inspector of Legal Offices may require.

Returns of fees.

(2) The Lieutenant-Governor or the member of the Government having charge of the matter may require the return to state any particulars, or to be made in any form that may be thought proper, and such return shall be made accordingly.

Seals of Deputy Registrars and Deputy Clerks of the Crown.

152. In the office of every Local Registrar, Deputy Registrar and Deputy Clerk of the Crown such seal shall be used as the Lieutenant-Governor shall from time to time direct, which seal shall be impressed on every writ and other document issued out of or filed in such office; and all such writs and documents, and all exemplifications and copies thereof, purporting to be sealed with the seal of any such Local Registrar, Deputy Registrar, or Deputy Clerk of the Crown, shall in all parts of this Province be received in evidence without further proof thereof. 58 V. c. 12, s. 154.

See Eng. J. A., 1873, c. 61.

Owing to doubts as to whether the effect of this section was to make an additional fee of 50 cents, payable under R. S. O. 1877, c. 39, s. 53 (now sec. 183, infra), upon all filings, Rule 1225 (now 1180) was passed to make such fee not payable except where the former practice required a seal to be impressed.

Marshal and Clerk of Assize for County of York.

153. The Lieutenant-Governor in Council may from time to time appoint a suitable person to be the Marshal and Clerk of Assize for the County of York, who shall hold office during pleasure. 58 V. c. 12, s. 155.

Remuneration of Marshals of Assize.

154. Every Marshal and Clerk of Assize, being a Deputy Clerk of the Crown, Deputy Registrar, or Local Registrar, or authorized to act as such, shall be entitled to be paid out of the Consolidated Revenue Fund the sum of $4 for each day's attendance as such Marshal or Clerk of Assize at non-jury as well as at jury sittings. 58 V. c. 12, s. 156; 59 V. c. 18, Sched. (29); 1 Ed. vii. c. 12, s. 6.

Not to receive fees in criminal cases.

155. No charge whatever shall be made by any of the said Marshals or Clerks of Assize upon any criminal trial or proceeding in any Court at which they act as Marshals and Clerks of Assize respectively. 58 V. c. 12, s. 157.

Where Deputy Clerk's office to be kept.

156—(1) Each Deputy Clerk of the Crown and Pleas shall, if proper accommodation is afforded him, keep his office in the Court House of his county, and until he can obtain such accommodation he shall keep his office in some convenient place in the County Town.

Proviso.

(2) Provided, however, that the Deputy Clerk of the Crown and Pleas at Sandwich may keep an office in some convenient place in the Town of Windsor, in the County of Essex, subject to such arrangements as the County Council of the County of Essex may assent to, and subject also to the approval thereof by the Lieutenant-Governor in Council. 58 Sec. 137.

V. c. 12, s. 158.

157.—(1) There shall be an Official Guardian ad litem Official Guardian ad litem. of infants, who shall be appointed by the Lieutenant-Governor, and shall be a Barrister-at-Law and Solicitor of this Province, of not less than seven years' standing, and shall hold office during pleasure. 58 V. c. 12, s. 159 (1).

(2) The Official Guardian, besides acting as a Guardian ad litem Duties of Guardian. of infants under Rules of Court and other orders, shall perform such other duties as the President of the High Court may from time to time direct. 58 V. c. 12, s. 159 (2); 59 V. c. 18, Sched. (30).

(3) The same costs as hitherto shall be paid to the Guardian by any party; and the same costs as hitherto shall be payable to the Guardian out of funds in Court; but all costs so to be paid to the Guardian by any party shall be by such Guardian paid forthwith into Court with the privity of the Accountant of the Supreme Court, and shall be placed to the credit of an account to be entitled "Account of Official Guardian ad litem"; and all costs payable to the Guardian out of any funds in Court, shall be transferred to the credit of the same account. Costs of Guardian.

The costs of the Official Guardian ad litem, are taxed as between party and party, and not as between solicitor and client; but the taxing officer is accustomed to tax them on a liberal scale, so as to remunerate the Guardian for all reasonable expenses incurred by him.

(4) Where the estate is small, and, in view of the amount Costs where estate is small. at the credit of the said account, the amount or part of the amount payable out of the estate for the Guardian's costs does not appear to be required to pay the salary and disbursements of the Official Guardian, the Court may withhold payment out of such estate of the sum or any part of the sum due for the Guardian's costs in respect of such estate; and may distribute the estate as if such costs were not payable by or out of the same.

(5) There shall be paid to the said Guardian in respect Salary of Guardian. of all business done a fixed salary of such sum per annum as, in view of the amount of business done or to be done by the Guardian, and the sum at the credit of the account, the said Judges think reasonable and the Lieutenant-Governor in Council approves; which salary shall be over and above all

Sec. 167. necessary disbursements; and the salary and disbursements shall be paid monthly or otherwise as shall be determined by Rule of Court, out of the fund at the credit of the said account of Official Guardian ad litem, and not otherwise.

Transfer of surplus of Guardian's account.

(6) The surplus appearing from time to time at the credit of the said account beyond what may be required to pay the charges on the said account, shall be transferred to the "Suitors' Fee Fund Account."

See note to sec. 164.

Costs of solicitor employed by Official Guardian.

(7) Where the Official Guardian has occasion to employ a solicitor in another county for the purpose of any proceeding in an action, such solicitor shall be entitled to receive from the Official Guardian in respect of the proceeding the same costs as if the solicitor so employed were solicitor and Guardian of the infant.

Return of costs.

(8) The Official Guardian ad litem shall once every six months file in the Accountant's office an affidavit, showing all costs recovered by him as Official Guardian ad litem, during the six months preceding the making of the affidavit, giving therein the several amounts received by him and the name or names of the actions and matters in which the same were respectively received by him, together with the date of receipt.

Transfer on appointment of new Guardian.

(9) When a new Official Guardian ad litem is appointed, he shall, ipso facto, become, and be by virtue of such appointment, Guardian ad litem to all infants, in the place and stead of his predecessor, with the same duties and powers; and the latter (his executors and administrators, as the case may be) shall forthwith deliver over to the new Official Guardian all letters, papers, documents and books in his possession or power as Official or other Guardian ad litem of infants; and the new Guardian shall forthwith communicate his appointment to whomsoever it may concern.

Guardian not to practise if Lieutenant-Governor in Council or Court so orders.

(10) The Lieutenant-Governor in Council, or the High Court, may order that the Official Guardian is not to practise as a Barrister or Solicitor, and in such case he shall not, during the continuance of his appointment and of such order, directly or indirectly, practise the profession of the law as Counsel or Solicitor, or as a Notary Public or Conveyancer, or do any manner of conveyancing, or prepare any papers or documents to be used in any Court of this Province, except in the discharge of his duties as Official Guardian, or of any other duties which may be assigned to him by the said High Court or any Division or Judge thereof, as the case may be; Secs. 156, 159. and the said Official Guardian, in case of his offending in the matter aforesaid, shall be subject to a penalty of forfeiture of office, and the further penalty of $400, to be recovered by any person who sues for the same by action in the High Court; and one-half of such pecuniary penalty shall belong to the party suing, and the other half to [His] Majesty for the use of the Province. 58 V. c. 12, s. 159 (3-10).

158 The Accountant shall on or before the 15th day of January in every year, transmit to the Lieutenant-Governor in Council a just, true and faithful statement, showing the state of the "Account of Official Guardian ad litem," upon the 31st day of the preceeding December. 58 V. c. 12, s. 160. Annual statement of Official Guardian's accounts.

159.—(1) Subject to any Rules of Court made under the provisions of sections 122 to 129 of this Act, the present Accountant and his successors appointed under section 131 of this Act, shall be the Accountant of the Supreme Court of Judicature for Ontario and shall be so designated. Accountant of Supreme Court.

(2) For the purposes of holding the mortgages, stocks, funds, securities, and all estate therein, and any interest in real and personal estate, effects or property, and of all moneys and effects mentioned and described in sections 162 and 163 of The Judicature Act, 1895, or in any Rule or Order of Court, the said Accountant shall be a corporation sole by the name of "The Accountant of the Supreme Court of Judicature for Ontario," and the said Accountant, as such corporation sole, shall have perpetual succession and may sue and be sued, may plead and be impleaded in any of [His] Majesty's Courts in this Province. 58 V. c. 12, s. 161. To be a corporation sole. 58 V. c. 12.

All moneys and securities for money vested in or held by the said Accountant or by the Official Guardian ad litem, or either of them, or by any one appointed to discharge the duties of either of the said officers, shall be deemed to be vested in them in trust for [His] Majesty. All such moneys and the proceeds of such securities shall nevertheless be paid out in accordance with any statute or with any rule, judgment, decree, or order of Court, or Order-in-Council, or otherwise as heretofore, or as may be provided or directed by any such statute, rule, judgment, decree, or order, or Order-in-Council. 62 V. (2) c. 11, s. 4. Moneys, etc., vested in Accountant, Guardian, etc., to be deemed to be held in trust for Crown.

This clause is to be deemed and held to have been in force since the coming into force of the Revised Statutes of Ontario, 1897: see 62 V. (2) c. 11, s. 4.

Secs. 160. Moneys in Court are not liable to assessment for municipal taxation: Re Accountant, 35 C. L. J. 75.

When there is no Accountant securities to be vested in officer appointed by Court.

160. In case of there being at any time no Accountant of the Supreme Court, all mortgages, stocks, funds, annuities and securities whatsoever theretofore standing in the name of any Accountant, or in his custody or power in respect of his office, together with all the interest and estate of the said Accountant in the lands and premises embraced in such mortgages or other securities, shall become and be, by force of this Act, vested in such other officer as the Supreme Court, by general rule, may, from time to time, direct, subject to the same trusts as they may then respectively be subject to, 58 V. c. 12, s. 164.

Money under control of Court, how to be paid or invested.

161. All moneys that become subject to the control and distribution of the High Court or Court of Appeal shall be paid in the name of the Accountant of the Supreme Court (or if there is no Accountant, in the name of such other officer as the Court by general rule may have directed) into the hands of such person or body corporate, or shall be invested in the name of the Accountant (or, if there is no Accountant, in the name of such other officer) in the public funds of the Dominion of Canada or of this Province, or in such other securities as the Court may from time to time direct. 58 V. c. 12, s. 165.

For the purpose of investing the moneys in Court, arrangements have been made by the Court with the Toronto General Trusts Corp. These arrangements are embodied in the former J. A. Rule 721, Con. Rule 191, and Rule of 23rd March, 1895. Subject to the next section, moneys in Court can only be invested in the manner provided for in those Rules, and the Court will not on the application of suitors authorize the investment of moneys in Court in any other way: see Re Smith's Trusts, 18 Ont. 327; Re Harrison, 18 P. R. 303.

Investment of Court funds in municipal debentures.

161a. The Supreme Court of Judicature for Ontario may, if it shall see fit, authorize the investment of any of the funds standing in Court in the purchase of any debentures issued by any municipality in Ontario, except incorporated villages, and in case any such investment shall be so made the debentures so purchased shall not thereafter be questioned and shall be deemed to be valid to all intents and purposes. 62 V. (2) c. 11, s. 5.

This section was added to the Act by 62 V. (2) c. 11, s. 5, repealing 61 V. c. 13, s. 1.

Expenses of Accountant's office.

162. The expenses of the Accountant's office, including all salaries, shall be the first charge on the income arising from the funds in Court. 58 V. c. 12, s. 166.

See Imp. Stat. 32 Geo. III, c. 42.

163. The surplus income arising from the funds in the High Court after payment of the expenses of the Accountant's office, and of such interest on the moneys of suitors as from time to time by Rules of Court or otherwise is directed to be paid, shall be transferred to the "Suitors' Fee Fund Account." 58 V. c. 12, s. 167.

Secs. 163.
165.

Surplus to be paid to Suitors'
Fee Fund.

164. "The Suitors' Fee Fund Account" shall continue to be kept and managed as may from time to time be directed by the Court, and any Divisional Court or any Judge of the Supreme Court of Judicature for Ontario may apply the same as may be necessary for the protection of infants and other persons not sui juris or non compos mentis, on whose behalf proceedings may be had in the Court, or may, by the Court, be ordered to be had in other Courts, and may also, from time to time, order to be paid, out of the money at the credit of the said account, any sum required to make good a default arising in respect of suitors' money or securities from any mistake, act or omission of any official of the Court. Such payment is to be without prejudice to any personal liability of the official or his sureties in respect of the mistake, act or omission. 58 V. c. 12, s. 168.

Suitors' Fee Fund.

Certain losses may be charged on Suitors'
Fee Fund.

The "Suitors' Fee Fund Account," which is an account formerly kept by the Court of Chancery, was first created by 20 Vict. c. 50, s. 20 (Con. Stat. U. C. c. 12, s. 73; R. S. O. 1877, c. 40, s. 104). It was constituted by a fee of ten cents on every bill, answer, and demurrer filed; and it was provided that the account should "be kept and managed as may from time to time be directed by the Court; and the sums at the credit of such account shall be applied by the Court as may be necessary for the protection of infants and other persons not sui juris, on whose behalf proceedings may be had in the Court, or may by the Court be ordered to be had in other Courts." This section of the Revised Statute was repealed by 41 Vict. c. 8, s. 5, "so far as it directed payment of any fee to the account." There was then, and is still, a considerable sum at the credit of the account; and this sum, with the additions that may be made to it under sections 157 (6) and 163, will continue to be applicable to the same purposes and the others mentioned in this section.

165. The Lieutenant-Governor may from time to time appoint one of the officers of the High Court, or some other competent person, to be called "The Inspector of Legal Offices," to inspect the offices of the Sheriffs, Local Masters, Deputy Registrars, Deputy Clerks of the Crown, Local Registrars of the High Court, Registrars of the Surrogate Courts, Clerks of the Peace and County Crown Attorneys and Clerks of the County Courts, in the respective Counties of the Province, and such other officers connected with the administration of justice as the Lieutenant-Governor in Council may from time to time direct. 58 V. c. 12, s. 169.

Inspector of Legal Offices.

Secs. 166-168.

Duties of Inspector.

166. The following shall be the duties of the Inspector:

1. To make a personal inspection of the said offices and of the books and Court papers belonging thereto respectively;

2. To see that proper books are provided, that they are in good order and condition; that the proper entries and records are made therein in a proper manner, at proper times and in a proper form and order, and that the Court papers and documents are properly classified and preserved;

3. To ascertain that the duties of the officers are duly and efficiently performed;

4. To see that proper costs and charges only are allowed or exacted;

5. To ascertain that proper security has been given by any officer required by law to give security;

6. To ascertain whether uniformity of practice prevails in the several offices of the High Court and in the County and Surrogate Courts;

7. To report upon all matters to the Lieutenant-Governor. 58 V. c. 12, s. 170.

Inquiries by Inspector.

167. When the Inspector has occasion to institute an inquiry into the conduct of any officer in relation to his official duties or acts, it shall be lawful for the said Inspector to require such officer, or any other person or persons, to give evidence on oath; and for this purpose the Inspector shall have the same power to summon such officers and other persons to attend as witnesses, to enforce their attendance and to compel them to produce books and documents and to give evidence, as any Court has in civil cases. 58 V. c. 12, s. 171.

Books, etc., to be produced for inspection.

168. The said several officers shall, as often as required by the Inspector, produce for examination and inspection all books and documents which are required to be kept by them, or which may hereafter be required to be kept by them; and shall report to the Inspector all such matters relating to any cause or proceeding as the Inspector shall require. 58 V. c. 12, s. 172.

169. The stenographic writers heretofore appointed, or who shall hereafter be appointed by the Lieutenant-Governor to report trials at sittings of the High Court or of a County Court, shall be officers of the Court to which they are appointed, and shall hold office during the pleasure of the Lieutenant-Governor, and shall perform such other duties as may be assigned to them by Rule of Court, or order of the Lieutenant-Governor in Council.

Secs. 169-172.

58 V. c. 12, s. 114.

171—(1) To provide a fund to enable a reduction to be made to litigants for copies of evidence taken in shorthand at trials or on references, a fee of $2 shall be paid in every civil case in the High Court of Justice entered for trial.

Fee for copies of evidence for trial.

(2) The fee provided for by the next preceding subsection shall be paid in law stamps and not in money, and shall be payable and be paid when the case is entered for trial.

(3) Any moneys now standing at the credit of the Shorthand Reporters' Fund shall forthwith, after this section comes into force, be paid over to the Provincial Treasurer.

(4) This section shall come into force on the 1st day of September, next. 5 Ed. vii. c. 13, s. 5.

This section was by 5 Ed. vii. c. 13, s. 5, substituted for the former section 171, and came into force on Sept. 1st, 1895.

For the duties of the Registrar under this section: see Rule 511.

172.—(1) The Supreme Court may, from time to time, under the seal of the Court, appoint, and at discretion remove, special examiners for the purpose of taking evidence of parties and witnesses, and the examiners so appointed shall have all the powers formerly possessed by Masters Extraordinary and Examiners. 58 V. c. 12, s. 115.

Fees of examiners.

(2) There shall be but four special examiners at or in the City of Toronto, besides the officer or clerk at Osgoode Hall mentioned in sub-section 4. 60 V. c. 14, s. 56 (1).

(3) The Lieutenant-Governor in Council may make regulations fixing the fees and charges of and payments to stenographers and others entitled to take examinations for taking examinations for discovery or cross-examinations in the High Court and County Court, and for copies of such examinations or cross-examinations. 58 V. c. 12, s. 131 (2); c. 13, s. 10 (2).

(4) No officer or clerk at Osgoode Hall who is in receipt of a salary as such officer or clerk from the Province shall act as a special examiner for fee or reward; but the fees payable in respect of such examination or for copies or certificates thereof or connected therewith shall be payable in stamps, subject to the provisions of The Act respecting Law Stamps, and not otherwise, and no such officer or clerk whose salary is paid as aforesaid shall hereafter be eligible for appointment as a special examiner. In the event of a vacancy occurring in the said office of examiner there shall thereafter be but three special examiners in the said city besides such officer or clerk. 60 V. c. 14, s. 56 (2).

173. When an examination is taken by a stenographer or other person who is not an examiner, it shall be taken in all cases in the presence of the examiner. 60 V. c. 14, s. 60.

174. No special examiner shall solicit or make request from any suitor, solicitor, or other person, or offer inducements to have special examinations taken before him, nor shall any one do so on his behalf with his knowledge or assent, on pain of forfeiture of office. 60 V. c. 14, s. 57.

175. The Lieutenant-Governor in Council shall fix a schedule of fees to be charged and taken by special examiners, and may make rules and regulations in respect thereof; and no other fees or charges than those fixed by the said schedule shall be charged or taken. 60 V. c. 14, s. 58.

By Order in Council, 12th February, 1899, and 16th March, 1899, the Schedule of Fees fixed, is as follows:

The charge for taking depositions per hour in the High Court shall be $1 per hour.

The charge for each copy ordered by each party to the suit represented by different solicitors shall be seven cents per folio—but in any case the first copy is to include the copy for the Court—and four cents per folio for each copy after the first; where no copy is ordered by either party, but a copy is required to be filed in Court or for the Judges, the charge shall be seven cents per folio, where one copy only is required to be made. In case more than one copy is required for the Court or the Judges, a charge of four cents per folio for each additional copy may be made. Secs. 176-179.

The charge for marking every exhibit in the High Court shall be 10 cents.

The charge for every attendance out of office, when within two miles, shall be $1.50.

The charge for marking exhibits in the County Court shall be reduced from 20 cents to 5 cents for every exhibit, and that the other charges stand as in the present tariff.

A special Order-in-Council dated 22nd June, 1898, regulates the shorthand writer's fees in the District of Rainy River.

176. Where it appears to the Lieutenant-Governor in Council that the Local Registrar or Deputy Clerk of the Crown or Clerk of the County Court elsewhere than in Toronto, is infirm or ill, or is absent on leave, or is otherwise unable or unfit to act personally as special examiner, the Lieutenant-Governor in Council may appoint the shorthand writer for the County Court, or some other efficient person temporarily or otherwise to act as such special examiner, instead of the said Local Registrar, Deputy Clerk of the Crown, or Clerk of the County Court. 60 V. c. 14, s. 59. Appoint-
examiners pro tem.

177. Any officer of the Supreme Court, the Court of Appeal or the High Court shall, for the purposes of any proceedings directed by the Court to be taken before him, have full power to administer oaths, to take affidavits, to receive affirmations and to examine parties and witnesses as the Court may direct. 58 V. c. 12, s. 176; 60 V. c. 15, Sched. A. (67). Administration of oaths.

178. Sheriffs, Deputy Sheriffs, Gaolers, Constables and other peace officers, shall aid, assist and obey the Court and the Judges thereof respectively in the exercise of the jurisdiction conferred by this Act, and otherwise, whenever by any general or other order of the Court or by order of a Judge thereof, required so to do. 58 V. c. 12, s. 177. Sheriffs, Gaolers, etc., to be officers of the Court.

179. All gaols in Ontario shall be prisons of the High Court. 58 V. c. 12, s. 178. Gaols to be prisons of the Court.

Secs. 180-183.

Salaries,
etc.

180.—(1) There shall be paid out of the Consolidated Revenue Fund of this Province as and for the salaries of officers of the said Courts, who are not paid by fees or otherwise, such sums as the Legislature may from time to time appropriate for such purpose.

(2) The salaries of all officers of the Court which are payable out of the Consolidated Revenue Fund shall be paid monthly, but the payment to be made in each case on the first day of payment which happens after the right thereto accrues, shall be a rateable proportion of a month's salary, according to the time then elapsed since the accrual of the right; and in case of a vacancy, the person who vacates the office, his executors or administrators, shall be entitled to a proportional part of his salary according to the time elapsed between the vacancy and the last payment. 58 V. c. 12, s. 179.

Certain officers not to take fees for their own use.

181. Unless specially authorized, neither the Master in Ordinary, the Clerk of the Crown and Pleas, the Master in Chambers, the Registrars, nor any of their deputies, nor the Process Clerk, nor the Clerk in Chambers, nor the Accountant, nor any of their clerks, shall take for his own benefit, directly or indirectly, any fee or emolument, save the salary to which he may be entitled by law; but the like sums and fees heretofore payable on proceedings in the offices of the said officers shall continue to be payable; and all such fees shall form part of the Consolidated Revenue Fund of the Province, and shall be payable in stamps, subject to the provisions of The Act respecting Law Stamps. 58 V. c. 12, s. 180 (1); 59 V. c. 18, Sched. (31).

Rev. Stat.
c. 25.

This section does not preclude an officer from claiming compensation from the Crown for any special and extraordinary services he may be called on by the government to perform, which could not have been legitimately expected or intended when he accepted office; see The Queen v. Bradley, 27 S. C. R. 657.

Fees on writs and process.

Rev. Stat.
c. 25.

182. The fees payable on all writs and process issued out of the Central Office at Toronto shall be payable in stamps, subject to the provisions of The Act respecting Law Stamps. 58 V. c. 12, s. 182, part; 59 V. c. 18, Sched. (32).

Fees on certain proceedings in High Court.

Rev. Stat.
c. 25.

183. In addition to all fees, otherwise authorized to be levied on proceedings in the High Court, the following fees shall be payable to the Crown in stamps, subject to the provisions of The Act respecting Law Stamps.

On every writ of summons, capias or subpoena, and on every other writ or other document of what nature and description soever, having the seal of the Court affixed thereto	$0 50	Secs. 184, 185.
On every judgment entered	0 60
On every certificate of action instituted, judgment or decretal order made	0 50
On the setting down on the paper for argument of every special case, points reserved, special verdict or appeal case	0 30
On every rule or order of Court issued	0 20
On taxation of every bill of costs	0 20

58 V. c. 12, s. 183; 3 Ed. vii. c. 8, s. 9.

The fees payable under this section have been included in the Tariff established by Rule 1179.

184. In addition to all fees otherwise authorized to be levied on proceedings in cases brought to the Court of Appeal from the High Court, the following fees shall be payable to the Crown in stamps, subject to the provisions of The Act respecting Law Stamps.

Fees on certain proceedings in Court of Appeal.
Rev. Stat. c. 25.

On every appeal entered	$4 00
On every judgment, decree or order of the Court passed and entered	2 00

58 V. c. 12, s. 184.

The fees payable under this section have been included in the Tariff established by Rule 1179.

LOCAL JUDGES OF THE HIGH COURT.

185. Except in the County of York, the Judges of the several County Courts shall be Judges of the High Court for the purposes of their jurisdiction in actions in the High Court; and in the exercise of such jurisdiction may be styled "Local Judges of the High Court," and shall, in all causes and actions in the High Court, have, subject to the Rules of Court, power and authority to do and perform all such acts, and transact all such business in respect to matters and causes in and before the High Court as they are by Statute or Rules of Court in that behalf from time to time empowered to do and perform. 58 V. c. 12, s. 185 (1).

County Court Judges to be local Judges of High Court.

See notes to Rules 45-47.

Notwithstanding anything in R. S. O. 1897, c. 109, s. 7, and this section 185, Judges of District Courts who are Local Judges of the High Court have no jurisdiction to deal with applications under The Vendors and Purchasers Act, R. S. O. 1897, c. 134, or under The Land Titles Act, c. 138; Re Mitchell & The Pioneer Steam Navigation Co., 31 Ont. 542.

Sec. 186.

TRANSFERRING CAUSES FROM COUNTY OR DIVISION COURTS TO HIGH COURT.

Transfer to High Court from County and Division
Courts.

186. In any case in a County or Division Court where the defence or counterclaim of the defendant involves matter beyond the jurisdiction of the Court, the High Court or any Judge thereof, may on the application of any party to the proceeding, order that the whole case be transferred from such Court to the High Court, and thereupon all the proceedings in such case shall be transmitted by the clerk or other proper officer, of the County or Division Court to the said High Court; and the same shall thenceforth be continued and prosecuted in the High Court as if it had been originally commenced therein. 58 V. c. 12, s. 186.

Adopted from Eng. J. A. 1873, s. 90.

In the Ont. J. A. 1831, this section was preceded by a clause which, as subsequently amended, is now, in the Revised Statutes, transferred to the County and Division Courts Acts as c. 55, ss. 28 and 29, and c. 60, ss. 75 and 76; see infra.

Where a transfer is made under s. 186 the proceedings must thenceforward be regulated by the practice of the High Court: Davies v. Williams, 13 Ch. D. 550; and all applications must be made in that Court: see Duke v. Davis, 1893, 2 Q. B. 107, 260; 69 L. T. 342.

But actions transferred from a County Court are not for all purposes on the same footing as actions commenced in the High Court, and no appeal will lie in any such action to the Supreme Court: Tucker v. Young, 30 S. C. R. 185. Apart altogether from this section the Crown has a prerogative right to have causes in which it is concerned in inferior Courts removed to the High Court, even after judgment: see Stanley v. Wild, 1900, 1 Q. B. 256; but such prerogative right cannot be claimed on the part of a relator in the case of an information: Attorney-General v. Wilson, 83 L. T. 646; 1900, W. N. 263.

County Courts.—Section 28 of The County Courts Act (R. S. O. c. 55), is as follows:—

may be granted by County
Courts.

28. Every County Court shall have legal and equitable jurisdiction, and shall, as regards all causes of action within its jurisdiction for the time being, have power to grant, and shall grant, in any [action or] proceeding in such Court such relief, redress or remedy, or combination of remedies, either absolute or conditional [including the power to grant vesting orders, and to relieve against penalties and forfeitures], and shall in every such action or proceeding give such and the like effect to every ground of defence or counter-claim, equitable or legal (subject to the provision next hereinafter contained) by and upon the same mode of procedure, and in as full and ample a manner as might and ought to be done in the like case by the High Court. 59 V. c. 19, s. 6; 60 V. c. 15, Sched. A (72).

Adopted from Eng. J. A. 1873, s. 89, which, however, had not the words in brackets. Sec. 186.

Under the corresponding section of the English Act, it was held that a County Court, in actions within its jurisdiction, has power to grant an injunction against a nuisance, and to enforce obedience by committal: Martin v. Bannister, 4 Q. B. D. 212, 491, and though the order is only interlocutory: Richards v. Cullerne, 7 Q. B. D. 623; 18 C. L. J. 364.

The operation of the above section 28, in conjunction with Rule 1216 (by which the Rules and the practice and procedure of the High Court are to apply and extend to actions in the County Courts) has had the effect of overruling Pryor v. City Offices, 10 Q. B. D. 504, and conferring on the County Court and its Judges, in actions and proceedings within its jurisdiction, the same powers of granting relief and remedy as the High Court and its Judges have in High Court actions, and by the same procedure: Bradley v. Barber, 30 Ont. 443.

Section 29 of The County Courts Act (R. S. O. c. 57), is as follows:—

29. Where in a proceeding before a County Court any defence or counter-claim of the defendant involves matter beyond the jurisdiction of the Court, such defence or counter-claim shall not affect the competence or the duty of the Court to dispose of the whole matter in controversy so far as relates to the demand of the plaintiff and the defence thereto, but no relief exceeding that which the Court has jurisdiction to administer shall be given to the defendant upon such counter-claim. R. S. O. 1887, c. 47, s. 22.

This was adopted from Eng. J. A. 1873, s. 90.

It has been held, under that section, that an inferior Court has jurisdiction to entertain a claim set up by way of counter-claim, although in respect of matters which arose beyond its local jurisdiction, but the power to grant relief in respect of such counter-claim is limited to the same amount as the plaintiff has claimed in the action: Davis v. The Flagstaff Mining Co., 3 C. P. D. 228; see also Ward v. Wyld, 5 Ch. D. 779; Wallace v. People's Life Ins. Co., 30 Ont. 438. The relief which a defendant can obtain against a third party brought in under Rules 209, et seq., is similarly limited to protection against the plaintiff's demand: Neuld v. Corkindale, 4 Ont. 317.

A defendant who has succeeded on a counter-claim for an amount beyond the jurisdiction of the County Court is not estopped from bringing an action in the High Court on the same cause of action to recover what the County Court could not give him. The defendant in the High Court is estopped by the judgment in the County Court from denying the cause of action of the plaintiff in the High Court. The only question in the High Court is the amount of damages: Webster v. Armstrong, 54 L. J. Q. B. 236; 1 Cab. & E. 471.

Division Courts.—Sections 75 and 76 of The Division Courts Act (R. S. O. c. 60), are as follows:—

75. (1) Every Division Court shall as regards all causes of action within its jurisdiction for the time being, have power to grant and shall grant in any proceedings before such Court such relief, redress, or remedy, or combination of remedies, either absolute or conditional [including the power to relieve against penalties and forfeitures], and shall in every such proceeding have such and the like effect to every ground of defence or counter-claim, equitable or legal (subject to the provision next hereinafter contained), in as full and ample a manner as might and ought to be done in the like case by the High Court. R. S. O. 1887, c. 51, s. 73; 61 V. c. 3, s. 3; c. 15, Sched. A (64).

Sec. 186.

(2) Nothing in this section shall confer or be deemed to have conferred on a Division Court jurisdiction to grant injunctions in cases otherwise within the competency of the Court; 61 V. c. 15, s. 1.

Adopted from Eng. Jud. Act, 1873, s. 89, except the words in brackets.

Duty of Court where defence or counter-claim involves matters beyond jurisdiction.

76. Where in any proceeding before a Division Court any defence or counter-claim of the defendant involves matter beyond the jurisdiction of the Court, such defence or counter-claim shall not affect the competence or the duty of the Court to dispose of the whole matter in controversy so far as relates to the demand of the plaintiff and the defence thereto, but no relief exceeding that which the Court has jurisdiction to administer shall be given to the defendant upon any such counter-claim. R. S. O. 1887, c. 51, s. 74. [See also cap. 51, sec. 186.]

Adopted from the Eng. Jud. Act, 1873, s. 90.

As regards the Division Courts there has been some conflict of authority, but it may perhaps be fairly said to be now settled that these sections only enable Division Courts to exercise, so far as that can be done in pronouncing the judgment in the action, the legal and equitable jurisdiction conferred upon the High Court (see also sec. 59, and R. S. O. c. 55, s. 58), and do not purport to deal with details of practice, or apply to the Division Courts the Rules of Procedure made under the Jud. Act. See Building & Loan Co. v. Heimrod, 19 C. L. J. 254; 3 C. L. T. 361, and Bank of Ottawa v. McLaughlin, 8 Ont. App. 543, where Rule 797 (now 779), as to the effect of a non-suit, and Fletcher v. Noble, 9 P. R. 258, where the right to security for costs, were held not to fall within the purview of section 75. See also Pryor v. City Offices Co., supra; Speers v. Daggers, 1 Can. & E. 503; and Foster v. Reeves, 1892, 2 Q. B. 255. On the other hand in Connors v. Birmingham, 20 C. L. J. 10, Rule 80 (now 603), was, by virtue of section 75, applied: (see now R. S. O. c. 60, s. 116). In Auchberry v. McLean, 19 C. L. J. 335, the right to counter-claim, which seems implied by the terms of the above sec. 76, was held to exist.

Where an equitable doctrine requires the special machinery of the High Court in order to work it out, it would, therefore, seem that the doctrine cannot be applied in the Division Courts.

By 61 V. c. 15, s. 1, it has been expressly enacted that the above sec. 75 (1) of The Division Courts Act, "shall not confer or be deemed to have conferred on a Division Court jurisdiction to grant injunctions in cases otherwise within the competency of the Court."

The provisions of the Judicature Act relating to garnishee process do not apply in Division Courts, the proceedings in such cases being specially provided for by The Division Courts Act (R. S. O. c. 60), ss. 179-205; Re Clark v. McDonald, 4 Ont. 310; nor the Rules as to service of partnership firms, ib.: see R. S. O. c. 60, s. 110.

The practice under Rule 778, as to moving to set aside a verdict Sec. 187. or judgment obtained by default of appearance by a party at the trial, is not applicable in Division Courts, being inconsistent with sec. 152 of The Division Courts Act: Re Foley v. Moran, 11 P. R. 316.

There has also been some difference of opinion as to how far the practice of the High Court may or should be introduced into Division Courts under sec. 312 of The Division Courts Act (R. S. O. s. 60).

That section is as follows:—

312. In any case not expressly provided for by this Act, or by existing Rules, or by Rules made under this Act, the County Judges may, in their discretion, adopt and apply the general principles of practice in the High Court, to actions and proceedings in the Division Courts; provided that nothing herein contained shall be held to authorize the taxation or allowance of costs to any officer of the Court other than those to be found in the tariff of fees as authorized and allowed by the Board of County Judges under the provisions of this or any other Act. R. S. O. 1887, c. 51, s. 304.

Under this section the right to security for costs has been held to be a principle of practice which may be applied by the Division Court Judges: Fletcher v. Noble, 9 P. R. 255, with all its consequences: ib., 3 C. L. T. 360.

The power of adding defendants (see Rule 206) is not a principle of practice within the section: Barber v. Bingham, 20 C. L. J. 65; nor is service out of the jurisdiction a principle of practice, but a branch of a system of practice or a means of relief which the procedure in Division Courts does not admit of being applied: Re Guy v. G. T. Ry. Co., 10 P. R. 372.

Quære, whether the third party Rules (209, et seq.), are applicable: Re Merchants Bank v. Van Allen, 10 P. R. 348.

The power to apply the High Court practice of examining parties before trials has been affirmed: MacNee v. Ont. Bank, 19 C. L. J. 252; 3 C. L. T. 360; and denied: Re Willing v. Elliott, 37 U. C. Q. B. 320; Fletcher v. Noble, 9 P. R. 258.

MacNee v. Ont. Bank (supra), is also in favour of the power to apply the Rules under the Jud. Act generally. See also Murray v. Gillett, 18 C. L. J. 78. The decision in Building & Loan Co. v. Heinrod, 19 C. L. J. 254; 3 C. L. T. 361, is the other way, and in that case the discretion, if it existed, to apply Rule 779 was not exercised.

The provisions of Rule 603 have been made applicable to Division Courts: see R. S. O. c. 60, s. 116.

MISCELLANEOUS.

187.—(1) Every Order in Council determining the commutation allowance or the salary of any Judge, Official Guardian or other officer under the authority of this Act, shall be laid before the House of Assembly forthwith, if the Legislature is in session at the date of the order, and if the Legislature is not then in session, the order shall be laid before the said House within the first seven days of the session next after the Order in Council is made.

Order in Council as to allowances and salaries subject to ratification by Legislative Assembly.

189.

Disapproval of order by Assembly.

(2) In case the Assembly at the said session, or if the session does not continue for three weeks after the said order is laid before the House, then at the ensuing session of the Legislature, disapproves by resolution of such Order in Council, either wholly, or so far as relates to any of the persons therein named, the Order in Council, so far as so disapproved of, shall have no effect from the time of such resolution being passed. 58 V. c. 12, s. 187.

Saving as to Commissions of Assize, &c.

188. This Act shall not affect the issue of any Commissions of Assize, Nisi Prius, Oyer and Terminer, Gaol Delivery, or other Commission for the discharge of civil or criminal business on circuit or otherwise or the authority of a Judge or a retired Judge of any of the Superior Courts, or a Judge of a County Court, or one of [His] Majesty's Counsel learned in the law, to preside without any Commission at any Court of Assize, Oyer and Terminer, and General Gaol Delivery, or at a Court held under this Act in the exercise of the jurisdiction now belonging to the Courts of Assize, Oyer and Terminer, and General Gaol Delivery, or the authority of any Judge or retired Judge of a Superior or County Court, or Counsel learned in the law, to hold any sitting for the hearing of causes; and any such Judge or Counsel shall after the commencement of this Act have the same authority to preside as aforesaid, or to hold any sitting of the High Court for the hearing of causes in the High Court, which such Judge or Counsel has to preside at Court of Assize, Oyer and Terminer, and General Gaol Delivery, and any such Judge or Counsel when presiding as aforesaid, with or without a Commission, or when holding any sitting as aforesaid, shall be deemed to constitute a Court. 58 V. c. 12, s. 188.

See Eng. J. A. 1873, s. 93.

See R. S. O. (1877) c. 40, s. 27; c. 41, s. 6.

All books in which writs, judgments, &c., are entered to be open to inspection.

189. Every person shall have access to and be entitled to inspect the several books of the High Court and of the County Courts, containing records or entries of the writs issued, judgments entered, and chattel mortgages and bills of sale filed; and no person desiring such access or inspection shall be required, as a condition to his right thereto, to furnish the names of the parties or the style of the causes or matters in respect of which such access or inspection is sought; and the Clerk of the Crown and Pleas, Registrars, Deputy Clerks of the Crown, Deputy and Local Registrars of the High Court and all Clerks of the County Courts of the Province respectively, shall, upon demand or request, produce for inspection any writ of summons or copy thereof, and any judgment roll or chattel mortgage, or bill of sale so issued, entered or filed in their respective offices, or of which records or entries are, by law, required to be kept in such several books of the High Court and County Courts respectively. 58 V. c. 12, s. 189; 59 V. c. 18, Sched. (33). Secs. 190, 191.

190. The fees payable in respect of such inspection of books shall be twenty-five cents as for a general search, and ten cents for each writ of summons, judgment roll, chattel mortgage or bill of sale so inspected, and ten cents per folio shall also be payable for all extracts, whether made by the person who makes the search or by the officer. 58 V. c. 12, s. 190. Fees on inspection

191. Nothing in this Act shall affect the practice or procedure in criminal matters, or matters connected with Dominion controverted elections (a). 58 V. c. 12, s. 191; 59 V. c. 18, Sched. (35). This Act not to apply to criminal matters or Dominion elections.

As to what are criminal proceedings: see Scaman v. Burley, 75 L. T. 311; Southport v. Birkdale, 76 L. T. 318; O'Shea v. O'Shea, 15 P. D. 59; Ellis v. The Queen, 22 S. C. R. 7; Rex v. Bennett, 4 O. L. R. 207.

In Reg. v. Cushing, 26 Ont. App. at p. 250, Osler, J.A., said: "The jurisdiction of the High Court to review convictions made under Provincial Acts, when brought before it on certiorari, to the same extent and in the same manner as summary convictions under a Dominion Act, seems not to be interfered with; see Judicature Act, sec. 25. The practice in that respect followed in the High Court as to both classes of convictions is the same: see supra, s. 67 (1) (c), and Rules 1238 and 1239.

The High Court is a continuation of the former Courts, and has the same jurisdiction in Dominion Controverted Election matters as the former Courts of Law and Equity had under the Dominion Controverted Elections Act of 1874: Mitchell v. Cameron, 8 S. C. R. 126, reversing S. C. 1 Ont. 433. See also Re V. York, 32 C. P. 458, and Re Russell, 1 Ont. 439, and note to sec. 3 (4).

THE CONSOLIDATED RULES OF PRACTICE

OF THE

SUPREME COURT OF JUDICATURE FOR ONTARIO.

CHAPTER I.

INTERPRETATION, ETC.

1. These Rules shall take effect on the 1st day of September, 1897.

Date of coming into force of Rules.

The expression "Rules of Court," when used in relation to any Court, mean Rules made by the authority having for the time being power to make Rules or Orders regulating the practice and procedure of such Court: R. S. O. c. 1, s. 8 (36); and the power of the said authority to make Rules of Court, as above defined, includes a power to make Rules of Court for the purpose of any Act directing or authorizing anything to be done by Rules of Court: Ib., s. 8 (37).

These Rules were consolidated by a Commission appointed by the Lieutenant-Governor in Council under the authority of 58 Vict. c. 13, s. 42. By 59 Vict. c. 18, s. 15, the Commissioners were empowered to incorporate in such revision and consolidation any statutory provisions relating to practice and procedure, with such amendments, additions to such Rules of Practice and statutory provisions as they might seem expedient; and it was enacted by that session of the Legislature (see 129 of the Ind. Act: see supra, p. 172), that the Rules so prepared, on being approved by the Judges of the Supreme Court or the Lieutenant-Governor in Council, should have the force of an Act of the Legislature, and that nothing in the Rules should be open to any question as to jurisdiction to make, approve and authorize the same under the said 58 Vict. c. 13, s. 42, or otherwise, but the same are subject to be varied or repealed from time to time by the same authority and in the same manner as other Rules of Court.

Rules 2-6. It, therefore, does not appear to be possible to question the validity of any of these Rules on the ground that the Commissioners have exceeded their authority, as was done in Williams v. Goose, 1897, 1 Q. B. 471.

Former
practice superseded.

2. All Rules and Orders heretofore passed are rescinded, save and except those mentioned in the Schedule hereto. All practice inconsistent with these Rules is superseded. Con. Rule 3, part.

Matters
unprovided for.

3. As to all matters not provided for in these Rules, the practice, as far [as] may be, shall be regulated by analogy thereto. Con. Rule 3, part.

For cases in which this Rule has been applied: see Wolff v. Ogilvy, 12 P. R. 645; Flett v. Way, 14 P. R. at p. 315; Ladies' Tailoring Ass'n v. Clarkson, 27 C. L. J. 501; Morse v. Lamb, 15 P. R. 9, in note to Rule 263; Smith v. Houston, 15 P. R. 18, in note to Rule 337; Re Murray, 13 P. R. 367, in note to Rule 1005.

See also Jud. Act, sec. 128, and notes, supra, p. 171-2.

The word in brackets is not in the official edition of the Rules.

Criminal matters not affected.

4. Nothing in these Rules shall be construed as intended to affect the practice or procedure in criminal matters (a). Con. Rule 1.

See Eng. Jud. Act, 1890, a. 4; and R. S. O. c. 51, s. 191, and notes, supra, p. 197.

The former Rule had at (a) the words "or proceedings on the Crown or Revenue side of the Queen's Bench or Common Pleas Divisions." Such proceedings are now to be conducted in the same manner as proceedings in ordinary actions, subject to Rules 238 and 241.

A proceeding before Justices to recover a penalty against a municipal body for not supplying gas up to the proper standard was held to be a criminal proceeding: Southport v. Birkdale, 76 L. T. 318; and see other cases cited in note to s. 191, supra, p. 197.

Interpretation.

5. The provisions of The Interpretation Act and the interpretation clauses of The Judicature Act, 1895, shall apply to these Rules unless there is anything in the subject or context repugnant thereto. Con. Rule 4 amended.

See R. S. O. c. 1, s. 8; and Jud. Act, R. S. O. c. 51, s. 2.

Interpretation.

6. In these Rules unless there is something in the context indicating a different meaning.

"Judge."

(a) "Judge" shall mean a Judge of the Supreme Court, or a Judge [or officer] having the authority for the time being of a Judge of the High Court.

The words in brackets are new.

The definition of "Judge" in this Rule gives jurisdiction to the Rules 7, 8. Master in Chambers, or Local Judge or Master, under Rules 42, 45 and 49 (subject to the express limitation of their authority), to entertain applications which under these Rules are to be made to "the Court or a Judge," but not those which are required to be made to a "Judge of the High Court."

The interpretation clause in the Act, viz., sec. 2, applies to the Rules; see Rule 5.

For the reason for employing the expression "Court or a Judge" throughout the English Rules: see Freason v. Loe, 26 W. R. 138.

(b) "County Court" shall include District Court. ^{"County Court."} Rules 23 June, 1894, 1281. Con. Rule 2.

(c) "Accountant" shall mean "The Accountant of the ^{"Accountant."} Supreme Court of Judicature for Ontario." Con. Rule 140.

(d) "Official Guardian" shall mean "The Official Guar- ^{"Official Guardian."} dian ad litem."

(e) "Action" as defined by section 2 of The Judicature Act, 1895, shall include garnishee proceedings under Rules 911 to 921 and proceedings for relief by interpleader under Rules 1102 to 1128. New. ^{"Action."}

The definition of "action" had previously been held not to include such proceedings: see Hogaboom v. Gillies, 16 P. R. 402, following Hamlyn v. Betteley, 6 Q. B. D. 63; Coulson v. Speers, 9 P. R. 491.

7. The division of these Rules into chapters, titles and headings, and the addition of marginal notes, is for convenience only, and shall not affect their construction. Con. ^{Division of Rules and marginal notes.}
Rule 5.

But for this Rule the construction of the Rules would be controlled by the title and headings: see Inglis v. Robertson, 1898, A. C. 616; 79 L. T. 224.

8. Every Rule hereafter made shall be construed as intended to come into force on the seventh day after the day of its publication in the Ontario Gazette, unless such prior publication is expressly dispensed with in or by the Rule. Con. ^{Promulgation of Rules.}

1. OFFICE HOURS.

Office hours to be observed in the offices of the Courts.

9. Except during Vacations and on holidays, the offices of the Supreme Court of Judicature, of the Court of Appeal, and of the High Court of Justice for Ontario, shall be kept open from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., and in Toronto and Ottawa on Saturdays from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. Con. Rule 7, amended. See 60 V. c. 14, s. 89. [As amended by Rule 1226 of 8th Oct., 1898.]

See also Jud. Act, sec. 146.

This Rule is merely directory, and for the guidance of the officials only. It does not forbid them to keep their offices open to a later hour than those mentioned if they think fit, or the business of the office requires it: Muir v. McNeil, Re N. Bruce Election, 27 C. L. J. 538; 11 C. L. T. 265. The hours will be according to standard time: R. S. O. c. 144, s. 1; see also Lloyd v. Ward, 13 P. R. 238.

A special examiner, though an official of the Court, has no office in connection with the Court which is required to be kept open or closed under this or any other Rule: Hogaboom v. Cox, 15 P. R. 23, 127; see also Rule 439 (3).

As to the office of the Taxing Officers: see Cousineau v. City of London F. I. Co., 13 P. R. 36; and as to the office of Official Referees: see Marples v. Roschbrugh, 17 P. R. 104.

Office hours during vacation.

10. The offices of the Supreme Court, of the High Court of Justice and of the Court of Appeal, shall be kept open during the Long Vacation, and the Christmas Vacation, from 10 o'clock in the forenoon until 12 o'clock noon. Con. Rule 8. See 60 V. c. 14, s. 89.

During vacation the Registrars' offices are open only for the transaction of matters of an urgent nature, such as issuing injunction orders, but not as a general rule for the transaction of business requiring the attendance of the opposite party, such as the settlement of the minutes of orders or judgments not of an urgent nature: Miller v. Spencer, 13 P. R. 478; and see former Chy. O. 425.

Rules
11-13.

2. BUSINESS IN OFFICES.

11. Except as provided in Rules 991 to 1014, no business shall be transacted in any of the offices of the Courts, either in procuring or issuing process, or in entering judgments or taking any proceeding whatever in a cause, unless upon the personal attendance of the party on whose behalf such business is required to be transacted, or of the counsel or solicitor of such party, or the clerk or agent of the solicitor, or the clerk of the agent. Con. Rule 9.

Putting an appearance under the door of the office of a Deputy Clerk of the Crown during office hours, or handing it to him in the street, was held not to be a due entry of the appearance: Gray v. Stacey, 10 U. C. L. J. 245; and see Frolick v. Huffman, 1 C. L. Ch. 80; Campbell v. Modden, Dra. 2.

But the Court refused to set aside a fi. fa. issued at the officer's house before office hours: Rolker v. Fuller, 10 U. C. Q. B. 447; and see Hall v. Hunter, 5 O. S. 705; and an election petition, filed after office hours on the last day for filing, was held to be well filed: Muir v. McNeill, 27 C. L. J. 538.

Where a defendant's solicitor is present at the opening of the office to enter an appearance, or file a statement of defence, and the plaintiff's solicitor is present to sign judgment for default, the defendant's solicitor is entitled to precedence: see Fralick v. Huffman, 1 C. L. Ch. 80; and where the plaintiff's solicitor had begun to enter judgment for non-appearance, and before it was completed, the defendant's solicitor arrived to enter an appearance, it was held that the officer should stay the entry of judgment in order to admit the entry of the appearance: Smith v. Logan, 17 P. R. 219.

The offices of the Court should not be opened for business, on days on which they are appointed by statute, or Rule of Court, to be closed, and proceedings taken therein on such days are irregular: Trust and Loan Co. v. Dickson, 2 C. L. J. 166; Mumford v. Hitchcock, 9 Jur. N. S. 1200.

12. All officers shall be auxiliary to one another for promoting the correct, convenient, and speedy administration of business. Con. Rule 10.

Not in the English Rules.

13. In case of the absence or illness of any officer to whom any special duty is assigned, the duty may be performed by such other officer as may be designated for that purpose by the President of the High Court of Justice, or in his absence by the Senior Chief Justice. New. See Con. Rule 1300.

Rules
14-16.Office in which

14. Where the first document in a cause or matter is required to be filed in Toronto, the Central Office shall be deemed to be the office in which the cause or matter is commenced. In other cases the office of the Deputy Clerk of the Crown, Deputy or Local Registrar of the County in which such first document is required to be filed shall be deemed to be the office in which the cause or matter is commenced. New. See Rules of 1 January, 1896, 1502.

The first document to be filed in an action commenced by writ is a copy of the writ (Rule 123), together with a copy of order for leave to issue it (where leave is required), and these must be filed in the office out of which the writ is to issue.

Most proceedings commenced otherwise than by writ are motions commenced by petition, or notice of motion, to be prosecuted in the Weekly Court or in Chambers. The first document to be filed in such cases is the petition or notice of motion, or an affidavit in support of the motion.

In Toronto, if the proceeding is in the Weekly Court, the filing must be in the Registrar's Office (Rule 102); if in Chambers, the office of the Clerk in Chambers (Rule 525). All documents so filed subsequently reach the Central Office (Rules 341, 525); and the Central Office is to be deemed to be the office in which the cause or matter is commenced, so that subsequent ministerial proceedings must be taken there.

In other proceedings in Toronto not commenced by writ, the first document filed should be in the filing branch of the Central Office, viz., in the office of the Clerk of Records and Writs (Rules 14, 22).

In other counties in proceedings not commenced by writ the office of the Local Registrar, if any, is the office in which to file all documents which have to be filed. Where there is a Deputy Clerk of the Crown, his office is the proper office in which to file documents which commence proceedings to be prosecuted at the Weekly Sittings, if any. (Rule 107); and the first document to be filed in other cases (except in administration and partition proceedings) may be filed either in his office or that of the Deputy Registrar (Rules 14, 35).

In administration and partition proceedings the first document should be filed with the Deputy Registrar (Rule 958).

Where an issue is directed to be tried it is to be filed in the proper office in the county in which it is to be tried, and subsequent proceedings in the issue are to be carried on in that office: Rule 377.

Proceedings to be there carried on.

15. All proceedings in a cause or matter shall be carried on in the office in which [the cause or matter is commenced]. Con. Rule 279, amended.

See Eng. (1888) R. 77.

3. THE CENTRAL OFFICE.Central
continued.

16. The Central Office of the High Court of Justice heretofore established is hereby continued. See Rules 1 Jan., 1896, 1392-1393.

17. The Central Office shall be under the control and superintendence of such officer as may from time to time be designated or appointed for that purpose by Order in Council, and, until such officer is so designated or appointed, shall continue to be under the control and superintendence of "The Clerk of the Crown and Pleas." Rules of 1 Jan., 1896, 1394.

Rules
17-21.
Chief officer of Central Office.

18. The Clerk of Records and Writs shall be the Chief Clerk of the Central Office, and besides any special branch of the business of said office which may be assigned to him, may in all actions, matters and proceedings in the Central Office, sign all orders, writs, certificates and other documents requiring signature, and may affix the seal of the Court to such of the proceedings in the Central Office and such other documents as require the seal of the Court to be affixed thereto: Provided that the same may be signed and sealed by the Clerk of the Crown and Pleas. Rules of 1 Jan., 1896, 1395.

Clerk of Records and Writs.

19. The business to be performed in the Central Office shall, subject to Rules of Court, be distributed amongst the several officers of the Central Office as may be directed by Order in Council or by Rules of Court, or, subject to such Orders in Council and Rules of Court, by the officer having the control and superintendence of the said Central Office. Rule 1396.

Distribution of business.

20. The business of the Central Office shall, for the convenient despatch of business, be divided amongst the following Branches, viz.:—

Branches of Central Office.

(a) The Writs of Summons Branch.

(b) The Filing and Record Branch.

(c) The Judgment Branch. Rules of 1 Jan., 1896, 1397.

21. The business of the Writs of Summons Branch shall comprise:—

Writs of Summons
Branch.

(a) The issuing of writs for the commencement of actions in the County of York.

(b) Such other business as may be assigned thereto. Rules of 1 Jan., 1896, 1398.

The business of this Branch is performed under the immediate superintendence of the Clerk of Records and Writs.

Rule 22.Filing and Record
Branch.

22. The business of the Filing and Record Branch shall comprise the following:—

(a) The receiving, filing and custody of all appearances, pleadings, petitions, reports, depositions, affidavits, bonds, and other papers and proceedings, and making entries thereof in the proper books.

(b) Amending pleadings.

(c) Entering notes of default in pleading and giving certificates thereof.

(d) The care and custody of all papers and proceedings in actions commenced in the Central Office, and of all documents required or ordered to be deposited for safe keeping or produced under any order of Court.

(e) Preparing and issuing all writs (other than writs of summons), commissions and orders obtainable on præcipe.

As to the orders obtainable on præcipe: see note to Rule 37.

(f) Certifying proceedings and making exemplifications of proceedings and of judgments or orders.

Certificates of officers as to proceedings in their offices are conclusive; and affidavits cannot be read to contradict them: Beaven v. Burgess, 10 Jur. 63; Foley v. Griffith, 2 Moll. 318.

(g) Examining and authenticating office copies of pleadings and other proceedings.

(h) Issuing certificates of lis pendens.

(i) Preparing and issuing certificates for registration.

(j) Receiving the return of commissions and attending on the opening of the same.

(k) The issuing of writs of execution or other process under judgments and orders.

(l) Receiving and filing articles of clerkship.

(m) Preparing receipts for summoning juries and transmitting them to the proper officers.

(n) The following business under The Quieting Titles Act:—

(1) The care and custody of all books kept under the Act for Quieting Titles and making the necessary entries therein.

- (2) Preparing and signing certificates of the filing of Rule 23. petitions under the said Act and issuing the same.
- (3) Transmitting such petitions to the proper Referee.
- (4) Entering and issuing certificates of title and conveyances granted under the said Act.

The petition, affidavits, and other evidence used upon Quelling Titles proceedings (except the original title deeds, which are usually returned to the petitioner or other person by whom they are produced), are retained by, and remain in the custody of, the Senior Registrar, but are not open to public inspection except by consent of the petitioner or his solicitor, or leave of the Court.

(o) All other business transacted in the office of the Clerk of Records and Writs, prior to the 1st day of January, 1896, not otherwise expressly provided for by these Rules, and all similar business transacted, prior to said date, in the offices of the Registrars of the Queen's Bench and Common Pleas Divisions. Rules of 1 Jan., 1896, 1399.

The business referred to in this Rule is also performed under the superintendence of the Clerk of Records and Writs.

23. The business of the Judgment Branch shall comprise :— Judgment Branch.

(a) The signing of all judgments in actions commenced in the Central Office.

(b) The issuing of all such judgments and all orders pronounced in Toronto (other than orders in Chambers), and the entering of such thereof as by the Rules or practice are required to be entered.

(c) The custody of all judgment and order books of the former Courts of Queen's Bench and Common Pleas and the Court of Chancery, and all judgments and order books (other than Chambers order books in actual use) containing judgments and orders entered since the Judicature Act of 1881 came into force. Rule of 1 Jan., 1896, 1400. amended.

By the officers of the Judgment Branch judgments and orders are signed and entered after they have been settled by the proper Registrar, or other officer, pursuant to Rules 26 (d), 28, 624, et seq.

This department also has charge of records, exhibits, and other documents received by the Central Office from outer offices, and attends to their transmission to the proper local office.

Rules
24-26.

4. THE CLERK OF THE PROCESS.

Clerk of the Process.

24. The Clerk of the Process shall, as heretofore, prepare and furnish to the officers requiring them, forms of writs to be issued by them, and shall perform such other duties as he may by Rule of Court or Order in Council, be directed to perform. Rule of 1 Jan., 1896, 1403.

5. REGISTRARS' OFFICE.

Registrars.

25. There shall be two Registrars of the High Court. The Registrar first appointed shall be deemed the Senior Registrar unless otherwise directed by Order in Council or Rule of Court. Rules 1 Jan., 1896, 1404.

Registrars'
office, business in

26. The following business shall be transacted in the office of the Registrars :

(a) The business of the Crown Office, which shall comprise all criminal business and quasi criminal business and proceedings carried on in the offices of the Registrars of any Division of the High Court prior to the 1st day of January, 1896, and all business and proceedings on the Crown and Revenue side of the Queen's Bench and Common Pleas Divisions carried on in the offices of the Registrars of those Divisions prior to said date.

(b) The preparation of Cause Lists comprising the following, viz. :—

- (1) The setting down of actions for trial at Sittings of the High Court in the County of York and of motions, appeals and other matters for Sittings of Divisional Courts of the High Court.
- (2) The setting down of all motions, special cases and other matters required by the Rules to be set down for the Sittings of the Weekly Court at Toronto.
- (3) The attendance with records, exhibits and papers on the Court or Judges thereof, and the furnishing to the proper officer on his requisition, of all papers and exhibits necessary for the purposes of all motions, appeals, special cases and other matters.

- (4) The custody of the records, exhibits, affidavits and papers relating to the matters aforesaid until the conclusion of the same, when the same shall be transmitted to the Central Office to be dealt with under Rule 340. Rules 27-29.

(c) The custody of the roll of barristers and solicitors and all former rolls of barristers, attorneys and solicitors, and the producing thereof when necessary and the issuing of certificates in respect thereof.

(d) Subject to Rule 30 of these Rules, the settling of all judgments and orders made at any Sittings of the High Court in the County of York, for the trial of causes, matters and issues, or at any Sittings of a Divisional Court. Rules 1 Jan., 1896, 1405, amended by Rule 1230.

27. The control and superintendence of the business to be performed in the office of the Registrars shall be distributed amongst them as may be directed by Order in Council or by Rules of Court. Rules 1 Jan., 1896, 1406. Distribution of business.

28. Subject to any such Orders in Council and to the provisions of Rule 30 of these Rules the duty of settling the judgments and orders referred to in clause (d) of Rule 26, and such other special judgments and orders as may be referred to him for that purpose, is assigned to the Senior Registrar; and the control and superintendence of the business referred to in clauses (a), (b) and (c) of Rule 26 is assigned to the Junior Registrar. Rules 1 Jan., 1896, 1407. Duties of Registrars.

29. In addition to any duties specially required by the Rules to be performed by them, it shall be the duty of the Registrars: Further duties.

(a) To attend the sittings of Divisional Courts in rotation as they may arrange, or, in default of arrangement, the said sittings shall ordinarily be attended by such one of the Registrars as may be designated for that purpose by any Order in Council or by Rules of Court, and, subject to any such Order in Council or Rules of Court, shall ordinarily be attended by the Junior Registrar.

(b) To attend, when required, and act as Registrar at any Sittings of the Court of Appeal or a Divisional Court thereof, or the Weekly Sittings of the High Court at Toronto, in case of the inability by absence, illness or other cause, of the Registrar of the Court of Appeal and the Clerk of the Weekly Court, respectively, to attend the same.

30-34.

(c) To attend, when required, the Assizes or Sittings at Toronto for the trial of causes, matters and issues. Rules 1 Jan., 1896, 1408.

Settlement of judgments and orders by Registrar.

30. The Registrar attending the Sittings of a Divisional Court or the Weekly Sittings of the High Court at Toronto, or any Sittings in the County of York, for the trial of causes, matters and issues, may settle all judgments pronounced at any such Sittings so attended by him, and settle and sign all orders pronounced at the Sittings of the Divisional Court or Weekly Sittings so attended by him; provided that at the instance of any party any of such judgments or orders may be settled by the Registrar to whom is specially assigned the duty of settling judgments and orders of the High Court. Rules 1 Jan., 1896, 1409.

Cause lists to be transmitted to proper officers.

31. The proper officer shall make out and transmit to the proper Registrar, Clerk of Assize, Clerk of the Weekly Court or other proper officer, a list of all actions and matters set down for trial at the Sittings of the High Court for trial of actions, causes and matters in the County of York, and of all motions, appeals, special cases and matters set down for argument in the Divisional Courts and the Weekly Court. Rules 1 Jan., 1896, 1426.

6. CLERK OF THE WEEKLY COURT.Clerk of the Weekly
Court.

32. There shall be a Clerk of the Weekly Court at Toronto. Subject to any Order in Council, the present holder of that office shall continue to be such Clerk, and shall be designated "The Clerk of the Weekly Court." Rules 1 Jan., 1896, 1410.

To attend
Weekly
Court.

33. The Weekly Sittings of the High Court at Toronto shall ordinarily be attended by the Clerk of the Weekly Court. Rules 1 Jan., 1896, 1411, part.

Settle judgments and orders.

34. The officer attending such Sittings may settle and sign all orders and settle all judgments pronounced thereat. Rules 1 Jan., 1896, 1411, part.

7. LOCAL REGISTRARS.

35-36.

35. Deputy Clerks of the Crown, Deputy and Local Registrars shall perform the duties of their offices in the same manner and under the same regulations as the like duties are performed in the Central Office and in the Registrars' Office, and shall have all such powers and authorities in relation to causes, matters and proceedings commenced in their offices respectively as the Central Office and the officers thereof have in the case of causes, matters and proceedings commenced in the Central Office; and all Rules and practice in force respecting the Central Office and the Registrars' Office shall be applicable to the Deputy Clerks of the Crown, Deputy and Local Registrars in relation to such duties as they are required to perform; and the like sums and fees payable on proceedings in the Central Office and the Registrars' Office shall be payable to the Deputy Clerks of the Crown, Deputy and Local Registrars in relation to similar matters. Con. Rule 20. Rules of 1 Jan., 1896, 1413, 1414.

Local Masters and Deputy Registrars, under the former practice in Chancery, were not at liberty to practice by themselves in Chancery, nor were they even at liberty to practice in partnership with solicitors practising in Chancery, although they might not actually share in the emoluments arising from such business: McLean v. Cross, 3 Chy. Ch. 432. After the merging of the three Superior Courts in the High Court, it was doubtful whether a Master could practice at all, even though he confined his practice to the Queen's Bench and Common Pleas Divisions of the High Court, as under the new system he is just as much an officer of those Divisions as he is of the Chancery Division; but see Rule 49, from which it may be inferred that it is not the intention of The Judicature Act to deprive them of the right of practising; and see also sec. 148, supra.

Local Masters may quere.

The fees now payable to Deputy Clerks of the Crown, Deputy and Local Registrars, are regulated by Tariff B.; see Rule 1179.

Officers paid by fees are entitled to receive all fees payable under the Tariff, in cash, but those fees payable under any statute not expressly requiring them to be paid in cash, must be paid in stamps.

A certificate of a Local Officer on a post card is no evidence; semble, where the fees are payable to such officer in stamps, it is a nullity for want of a proper stamp: Johnson v. Loney, 6 P. R. 70.

36. Every Deputy Clerk of the Crown, Deputy and Local Registrar, shall within 10 days after the 31st day of March, the 30th day of June, the 30th day of September and the 31st day of December in each year, transmit to the Central Office, at Toronto, a return signed by him in his official capacity according to Form No. 211 in the Appendix, of all judgments which have been entered by him in the High Court of Justice during the three months ending on the above dates respectively; and from the said returns the proper officer in the Central Office shall prepare and from time to time keep up, a general index or list of such judgments, which shall be open to inspection by all persons interested, upon payment of the usual fee. A return shall be sent whether any judgments have been entered by such officer during said three months or not. Con. Rule 21, Rules of 1 Jan., 1896, 1415.

For the Form No. 211 referred to, see H. & L. Forms No. 1001.

Orders on præcipe.

37. All orders heretofore issued on præcipe shall continue to be issued at any time from the office in which the cause, matter or proceeding is commenced. Con. Rule 25, Rules of 1 Jan., 1896, 1416.

These orders are all the orders which, according to the practice of the Court of Chancery, could be obtained on præcipe without an actual motion therefor, or which, at Common Law, were called "side bar rules," and were issued on the filing of a motion paper signed by Counsel. The most common orders of this kind were:—

1. Orders for security for costs, where the writ or other proceeding by which an action is commenced discloses on its face, that the plaintiff or person asking relief (see Jud. Act, s. 2), is resident out of the jurisdiction: Rule 1100.

2. Orders to produce, under Rule 404.

3. Orders for appointment of guardians of infants when necessary: see Chy. O. 610, but the power to issue orders of this kind seems now to be abrogated, owing to the omission of Chy. O. 610 from the Rules, since the consolidation of the Rules in 1888.

4. Orders to continue proceedings where the death or marriage of parties, or the transmission of interest pendente lite, renders it necessary for other persons to be made parties to the action: Rule 396.

5. Orders for sheriffs to return writs, or to bring in the body: see Rules 885, 1045.

6. Orders for leave to plaintiff or defendant, to change his solicitor, or solicitor and agent: Rule 335—or to prosecute, or defend, in person, instead of by a solicitor—or to enable one of several plaintiffs to appoint a solicitor for the purpose of making an application separate from his co-plaintiff—or to enable a solicitor of a plaintiff, or defendant, to change his agent.

7. Orders for delivery and taxation of solicitors' bills of costs, on the application of a client: or for the taxation alone of such bills on the application of the client within a month from the delivery thereof, or on the application of the solicitor at any time after such month: see Rule 1184.

For other orders issuable as of course, see Daniel's Pr., 5th ed. 2002-2012.

30-40.

38—(1) The Deputy Clerks of the Crown and Local Registrars in the several Counties and Unions of Counties, except the County in which the City of Toronto is situated, shall ex officio be and act as Marshals and Clerks of Assize at the Circuit Sitzings of the High Court for the trial of causes, matters and issues, and of criminal matters or proceedings, and at any Courts of Assize and Nisi Prius, Oyer and Terminer, and General Gaol Delivery, appointed to be holden by commission in their respective Counties or Unions of Counties, and shall have all the powers and perform all the functions incident to the same as such Marshals and Clerks of Assize. Con. Rule 26.

(2) In counties where there are a Deputy Clerk of the Crown and a Deputy Registrar of the High Court of Justice, the records for trial at the jury sittings shall be entered with the Deputy Clerk of the Crown, and he shall act as Clerk of Assize at such jury sittings; and the records for trial at the non-jury sittings shall be entered with the Deputy Registrar, and he shall act as Clerk of Assize at such non-jury sittings. Rules of 29 December, 1894, 1391; Rules of 1 January, 1896, 1466.

39—(1) The said Deputy Clerks of the Crown and Local Registrars respectively shall, immediately after each sitting of such Courts, forward by post to Toronto, addressed to "The Registrars' Office, Osgoode Hall, Toronto," every recognizance, indictment, paper or proceeding in any criminal matter in their custody as such officers respectively, and also the usual and proper returns as such Marshals and Clerks of Assize. Con. Rule 27; Rules of 1 Jan., 1896, 1411.

(2) The Deputy Clerks of the Crown and the Local Registrars shall pay the postage on the transmission to Toronto of the indictments and other proceedings in criminal cases, and the same shall be repaid out of the Consolidated Revenue Fund. Con. Rule 27.

40—(1) The Marshal and Clerk of Assize for the County of York, shall perform the duties of Marshal and Clerk of Assize at the Sitzings of the High Court for the trial of causes, matters and issues and of criminal matters

Con. Rule 28 ; Rules of 1 Jan., 1896, 1418, first part, amended.

(2) The said Marshal and Clerk of Assize shall take and receive the same fees only as other Marshals and Clerks of Assize ; and such fees shall be by him accounted for, paid over and applied in the manner provided by law : and he shall not take for his own use or benefit, directly or indirectly, any fee or emolument save the salary to which he may be entitled by law.

(3) When the Circuit Sittings of the High Court at the County Town of the County of York for the trial of civil and criminal proceedings are held separately, or when any Court of Assize and Nisi Prius by Commission in the County of York is held separate and apart from any Court of Oyer and Terminer and General Gaol Delivery held by commission in the said county, and at the same time, one of the Registrars of the High Court shall personally or by Deputy, act as Clerk of the Sittings for criminal proceedings or of such Courts of Oyer and Terminer and General Gaol Delivery, only as long as such separate Sittings or such Courts are being held at the same time, and shall, while so acting, have all the powers and exercise all the functions that are by law had and exercised by Marshals and Clerks of Assize.

(4) The Marshal and Clerk of Assize for the County of York or Registrar sitting personally or by deputy shall forthwith, after the close of each Assize, or sittings of the Court, or earlier if required, return to the Central Office all records, together with all exhibits and other documents appertaining thereto. Con. Rule 28 ; Rules 24 March, 1894, and 23 June, 1891, 1226.

(5) In the absence of the Clerk of Assize one of the Registrars or such other officer as may be designated by the President of the High Court, shall act as Clerk of Assize at all non-jury Sittings for trial of actions in the County of York. Con. Rule 28 ; Rules of 1 Jan., 1896, 1418 (a), (b), (c), (d). Rules
41, 42.

41. In the event of any Marshal or Clerk of Assize or Registrar being absent or being prevented by illness or other cause from performing his duties as such Marshal or Clerk or Registrar, the presiding Judge at such Sittings or Courts may authorize some person to act as Marshal and Clerk of Assize, and the person so authorized to act shall receive the remuneration payable for the performance of the duties. 9. MASTER IN CHAMBERS.

42. The Master in Chambers, in regard to all actions and matters brought [or proposed to be brought] in the High Court, including proceedings in the nature of a quo warranto under The Municipal Act, shall be, and hereby is, empowered and required to do all such things, transact all such business, and exercise all such authority and jurisdiction in respect to the same as are now done, transacted, or exercised by any Judge of the said Court sitting at Chambers, save and except in respect to the matters following: Master in
jurisdiction
of.

Matters
excepted.

The words in brackets, which are new, were introduced to meet the case of an application before an action is actually commenced, e.g., for leave to issue a writ for service out of the jurisdiction.

1. All matters relating to criminal proceedings, or the liberty of the subject ; Criminal matters, etc.

2. Appeals and applications in the nature of appeals ; Appeals.

3. Extending the time for appealing to the Divisional Court, or the Court of Appeal, before or after the time limited for that purpose has expired ; Extending time to appeal.

4. Applications to arrest ; Arrest.

5. Proceedings as to Lunatics under The Revised Statutes of Ontario 1887, chapter 54, sections 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 17 and 18, and section 168 of The Judicature Act, 1895 ; Lunacy.

These sections referred to are now R. S. O. 1897, c. 65, ss. 5-9, 17 and 18, and c. 51, s. 164.

6. Applications for advice under the Revised Statutes of Ontario, 1887, chapter 110, section 37 ; Application by trustees for advice.

See now R. S. O. 1897, c. 129, s. 39.

- Rule 42. 7. Applications as to the custody of infants under the Revised Statutes of Ontario, 1887, chapter 137, section 1; See now R. S. O. 1897, c. 123.
- Custody of infants.
- Settled estates. 8. Applications as to leases and sales of settled estates; to enable minors, with the approbation of the Court, to make binding settlements of their real and personal estate on marriage; and in regard to questions submitted for the opinion of the Court in the form of special cases on the part of such persons as may by themselves, their committees, or guardians, or otherwise, concur therein;
- Settlements by infants, etc.
- Special cases.
- Partition. 9. Proceedings as to Partition and sale of Real Estate, under the Revised Statutes, chapter 104. See now R. S. O. 1897, c. 123.
- Administration. 10. Opposed applications for judgment for Administration; See also Rule 947, and Re Underhill, 17 C. L. T. 9; 33 C. L. J. 40.
- Infants or their estates. 11. Opposed applications respecting the Guardianship of the person and property of Infants;
- Mandamus and injunction. 12. Applications for Prohibition, Mandamus or Injunction;
- Payment out of Court. 13. The payment of money out of Court, or dispensing with payment of money into Court, in administration and partition matters;
- Granting taxed costs in lieu of commission. 14. Making an order for taxed costs in lieu of commission under the provisions of Rule 1146.
- Striking out jury notice. 15. Striking out a jury notice except for irregularity;
- Other matters. 16. Any matter which by these Rules is expressly required to be done by a Judge of the High Court;
- In certain matters jurisdiction by consent. 17. And (unless by consent of the parties) the following proceedings and matters, that is to say:
- (a) The removal of causes from Inferior Courts, other than the removal of judgments for the purpose of having execution;
- (b) The making of orders for reference under The Arbitration Act;
- See R. S. O. 1897, c. 62, secs. 28, 29.
- (c) Reviewing taxation of costs.
- Review of taxation. (d) Staying proceedings after verdict, or on judgment after trial or hearing before a Judge. Rules 23 June, 1894, 1287.
- Staying proceedings.

This Rule appears to be intended to confer on the Master in Chambers all the jurisdiction of a Judge in Chambers at the time of this Rule coming into force, i.e., 1st September, 1897, except as to the matters above excepted; see In re Donisthorpe, 1897, 1 Q. B. 671; Watson v. Dandy, 18 C. L. T. 164. Any powers hereafter conferred by Rule or Statute will not by force of this Rule be exercisable by the Master in Chambers. The propriety of extending any such after conferred powers to the Master in Chambers, or Local Judges or officers, is thus reserved for consideration by the Judges.

Where a statute hereafter passed merely enlarges the power of a Judge in Chambers, in a case in which the Master in Chambers has previously exercised jurisdiction, it would seem that the Master in Chambers can exercise the additional powers conferred by the statute upon a Judge in Chambers; see Collier v. Swayzie, 8 P. R. 42.

Setting aside Fraudulent Conveyances.—The Master in Chambers has, therefore, now power to entertain applications to set aside fraudulent conveyances, etc., by judgment debtors, and for the sale of equitable interests under Rules 1015-1020, which the Referee in Chancery Chambers did not formerly possess; see Queen v. Smith, 7 P. R. 429; and Wark v. Moulton, 7 P. R. 144; but which was exercised by the Clerk of the Crown and Pleas in Chambers; see Watts v. Hobson, 7 P. R. 334.

Jurisdiction intended to be Reserved to Judges.—While the Master in Chambers may thus, speaking generally, exercise (except as to the matters excepted) the jurisdiction which a Judge in Chambers had on 1st September, 1897, yet this Rule is subject to some exceptions. It would not seem to enable the Master in Chambers to act in a matter in which a Judge in Chambers acts by virtue of any statute as a persona designata (e.g., under R. S. O. c. 164, ss. 12 and 13, in making orders dispensing with a wife's joining in a conveyance by her husband; Re Nolan, 6 P. R. 115); nor does it give the Master in Chambers powers which it has been the policy of the Court to retain in the hands of the Judges. Thus in Hendricks v. Hendricks, 13 P. R. 79, it was held that the mere consolidation of the Rules could not work a construction which was not in accordance with the policy upon which Rule 1146 (originally promulgated along with Rule 956 (4)) was framed. It would, therefore, seem to be still contrary to Rule 956, that the words "Judge in Chambers" therein should by the aid of Rule 42 be made to extend to the Master in Chambers, and by force of Rules 45 and 49 to Local Judges and Local Masters also; and it would seem that the Master in Chambers has still no power to grant judgments under Rule 956 for partition on summary application in Chambers, which was formerly excluded from the jurisdiction of the Referee in Chambers; Re Arnott, Chatterton v. Chatterton, 8 P. R. 39.

Applications to the summary jurisdiction of the Court against solicitors, are excluded from the jurisdiction of the Master in Chambers and like officers; Re L. & M., 6 P. R. 21; Re Bridgman, 16 P. R. 322; Re Ross, ib. 482; but see Re Carroll, 2 Chy. Ch. 323; Re Walker, ib. 324; Re Toms, ib. 381; Re Attorney, 7 P. R. 174; also applications by parties claiming adversely to a receiver, or sequestrator; see Brown v. Dollard, 6 P. R. 113; also an application by a person claiming adversely to the heirs or next of kin in an administration suit to be made a party in the Master's office and for leave to establish his claim there; Re Tobin, Tobin v. Tobin, 7 P. R. 67; and an application for payment into Court by an executor or administrator of Rule 42. money admitted by him to be in his hands: Re Curry, 8 P. R. 340; but see now Rule 616.

Other cases. The Master in Chambers has no jurisdiction on conflicting evidence to strike out pleas, raising questions of liability preliminary to an account and to order an account to be taken: Ryan v. Fish, 20 C. L. J. 114; nor to set aside a judgment of a creditor against an absconding debtor to enable another creditor to defend: Wills v. Carroll, 10 P. R. 142.

References to Masters.

References to Masters.—The right of the former Referee in Chambers to direct a reference to a Master was denied: Brown v. Dollard, 6 P. R. 113; this case was affirmed on re-hearing, however, on another ground, viz.: that the relief should have been sought under Chy. Ord. 398 et seq.; see also Queen v. Smith, 7 P. R. 429; and since The Judicature Act the right of the Master in Chambers to direct such a reference under the Dominion Winding-up Act has also been denied: Re Queens City Refining Co., 10 P. R. 415; Re Joseph Hall Manufacturing Co., 10 P. R. 485; and see Fraser v. Buchanan, 25 Ont., per Rose, J., at p. 5.

But whatever may be the case in regard to interlocutory orders, it would seem clear that when the Master in Chambers has jurisdiction to award a judgment, he has power, for the purpose of carrying out such judgment, to direct a reference to the Master: see Rules 616, 944, 946, 952, 953, and notes.

Quo Warranto applications.

Quo Warranto.—The jurisdiction of the Master in Chambers in quo warranto proceedings under the Municipal Act as now framed, affirmed in Reg. ex rel. Felitz v. Howland, 11 P. R. 264, but denied in Reg. ex rel. Wilson v. Duncan, ib. 379, has been finally confirmed by this Rule, Reg. ex rel. McGuire v. Birkett, 21 Ont. 162, and the enactment of the Municipal Act; see 3 Ed. vil. c. 19, s. 219 (2). He has also power to direct a reference to a County Judge to take evidence in such a matter under The Municipal Act (R. S. O. c. 223, see ss. 248 and 219); Reg. v. McClay, 13 P. R. 96. His decision respecting a municipal election was held to be not appealable, in Reg. ex rel. McGuire v. Birkett, 21 Ont. 162; but see now R. S. O. c. 223, s. 219 (3).

The jurisdiction of the Master in Chambers in Quo Warranto Proceedings is confined to those under the Municipal Act and does not extend to applications provided for by R. S. O. c. 324, ss. 31-5.

Jurisdiction to Dispose of Costs of an action where no Other Question Remains.—See note to Rule 1130.

Changing Venue in C. C. Actions.—The jurisdiction to entertain motions to change the venue in County Court actions was doubted: Brigham v. McKenzie, 10 P. R. 406; but is now settled by Rule 1219.

As to changing the venue where the Judge of the County Court is a defendant: see Anon., 4 P. R. 310.

Appeals, etc.

Appeals.—An application impeaching the propriety of a filing, is not an appeal or in the nature of an appeal from the officer who filed the document, so as to exclude the jurisdiction of the Master in Chambers: Watrous v. Farran, 6 P. R. 31.

Where a reference in an action had been made to a County Court Judge, who died before entering upon it, an application to set aside (as having been issued without jurisdiction), an appointment to proceed with the reference, issued by the deceased's Judge's successor was held to be in the nature of an appeal: Toronto v. Toronto Ry. Co., 5 O. W. R. 403. Rules 43, 44.

Staying Proceedings Pending Appeal.—The Rules do not seem to empower the Master in Chambers to make any order in regard to proceeding with a reference or issue of execution under a judgment pending an appeal: see Rule 42, clause 17 (d), and Rule 27. Clause 17 (d) of this Rule prevents the Master in Chambers from having jurisdiction, after a decision of the Court of Appeal in favour of the plaintiff, to order a stay of proceedings till such time as leave to appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada can be moved for, in a case requiring such leave; or to require the defendant to undertake to refund damages and costs in the event of the judgment proposed to be appealed from being reversed: Tabb v. G. T. Ry. Co., 8 O. L. R. 514.

Liberty of the Subject.—Formerly the Referee in Chambers could entertain motions to commit for disobedience of an order to produce, but the Clerk of the C. & P. Q. B. had no jurisdiction in matters relating to the liberty of the subject. The latter restriction is continued under this Rule, and is held to prevent the Master in Chambers from entertaining motions to compel obedience to an order for production by committal: Keefe v. Hard, 18 C. L. J. 166. He has also no jurisdiction to order the discharge of a defendant held in custody under a ca. sa.: Cochrane v. Lamou, 11 P. R. 351.

Adjournment of Motions before Court or Judge.—An application made to an officer in Chambers, which he has no power to entertain, may be adjourned before a Judge: Rules 44, 367.

Long Vacation.—As to the officers empowered to hold Chambers during the Long Vacation, see Rule 115.

43. Any Official Referee, upon request of the Master in Chambers, or of a Judge of the High Court, may act as Master in Chambers, and while so doing shall have all the authority, jurisdiction and powers of the said Master. Con. Rule 31. Rules 18 Feb., 1892, 1272 amended. Master in Chambers, Official Referee may act as.

See Rule 690, making similar provision where an Official Referee sits for the Master in Ordinary; and see Jud. Act, s. 41.

44. The Master in Chambers, or such Referee, may refer any matter pending before him to a Judge of the High Court for decision, and the Judge may dispose of or refer back the same in whole or in part. Con. Rule 32. M. C. may refer to Judge.

A case may be brought before a Judge under this Rule upon a certificate of the officer that in his opinion the case is a proper one to be heard by a Judge; otherwise applications within the jurisdiction of any officer must be disposed of by him: Hughes v. Rees, 9 P. R. 56; see also Hood-Burrs v. Cathcart, 72 L. T. 184.

45, 46.

Where a motion, made returnable before an officer in Chambers, is one in which a Master has not, but a Judge has, jurisdiction, quære, whether he can transfer it to the proper forum by analogy to the practice laid down in Rules 307, 784.

A Local Judge has not power to transfer a motion, which may properly be heard by him, to be heard by the Master in Chambers, though the latter officer would have had jurisdiction to hear the motion had it been made originally before him: Mahoney v. Welsh, 6 O. W. R. 18.

10. LOCAL JUDGES.

Local Judge's jurisdiction in Chambers.

45.—(1) The Judge of every County Court other than the County Court of York, shall in all actions brought, or proposed to be brought, in his county and in interpleader proceedings where the goods in respect of which interpleader is sought are situate in his county, have concurrent jurisdiction with, and the same power and authority, as the Master in Chambers at Toronto, except that the authority of such Judge shall not (except as provided by sec. 185 of The Judicature Act, 1895, or Rules 47, and 1127), extend to the payment of money out of Court or dispensing with the payment of money into Court in any action or matter, or to making an order for the sale of infants' estates. Rules 29 Dec., 1894, 1386.

refer to Judge of High
Court.

(2) Every Local Judge may refer any matter pending before him in Chambers to a Judge of the High Court for decision, and the Judge may dispose of or refer back the same in whole or in part. Con. Rule 42.

See notes to Rules 42 and 44.

The jurisdiction of a Local Judge in Chambers is made co-extensive with that of a Judge of the High Court in all cases within the provisions of Rule 47 (a).

As to Chambers matters in the District of Rainy River, see R. S. O. c. 109, ss. 12, 13.

Local Judge's jurisdiction as to injunction.

46.—(1) A Local Judge of the High Court may, in cases of emergency, grant an interlocutory injunction under subsection 8 of section 53 of The Judicature Act, 1895, (c) in any action in the High Court brought in his county, on proof, to the satisfaction of the Judge, that the delay required for an application to the High Court is likely to involve a failure of justice: such injunction shall remain in force for a period not exceeding eight days as such Local Judge may direct, unless continued by the Local Judge under this Rule or Rule 47, or by the High Court: the injunction shall be by order to be signed, sealed and issued by the Deputy Clerk of the Crown, Deputy or Local Registrar of such county, as ^{Rule 47.} the case may require, upon the direction or fiat of the Local Judge, and the injunction shall have the same force and effect and may be continued, varied, dissolved and otherwise dealt with by the High Court as if it had been originally granted by judgment or order of the Court. 52 V. c. 11, s. 1. See 58 V. c. 12, s. 185 (2).

(x) Now Jud. Act, sec. 58 (9).

(2) In any action in which a Local Judge of the High Court has granted an interlocutory injunction under the next preceding clause, and in which all parties interested consent thereto, the Local Judge may hear, determine and dispose of any motion to continue, vary, dissolve or otherwise deal with the injunction, including such terms and conditions as to costs and other like matters as the Local Judge sees fit. Rule 1419 of 1 Jan., 1896.

47.—(1) A Local Judge of the High Court shall in actions brought and proceedings taken in his county, possess ^{Local Judge's jurisdiction generally.} the like powers of a Judge in the High Court in Court or Chambers, for hearing, determining and disposing of the following proceedings and matters, that is to say:

- (a) Motions for judgment in undefended actions;
- (b) Motions for the appointment of receivers after judgment by way of equitable execution;
- (c) Application for leave to serve short notice of motion to be made before a Judge sitting in Court or in Chambers;
- (d) Motions for judgment and all other motions, matters and applications (except: (i) trials of actions; (ii) applications for taxed or increased costs under Rule 1146; and, (iii) motions for injunction other than those provided for by Rule 46) where all parties agree that the same shall be heard, determined or disposed of before such local Judge, or where the solicitors for all parties reside in his county.

See Wendover v. Nicholson, 5 O. W. R. 645, where the Local Judge was held to have no jurisdiction, the circumstances not being within clause (d) (iii).

Provided always that where an infant or lunatic or person of unsound mind is concerned in any such proceedings or matters, the powers conferred by this Rule shall not be exercised, in case of an infant without the consent of the Official

48, 49.

Guardian, and in the case of a lunatic or person of unsound mind without the consent of his committee or guardian; and provided also the like consent shall be requisite in the case of applications for payment of money out of Court and for dispensing with the payment of money into Court, where an infant, lunatic, or person of unsound mind, is concerned.

(2) No order for the payment of money out of Court, or for dispensing with the payment of money into Court, shall be acted upon unless a Judge of the High Court has manifested his approval thereof in manner provided by Rule 414.

(3) The judgment or order of the Local Judge in any of the proceedings or matters in this Rule referred to shall be entered, signed, sealed and issued by the Deputy Clerk of the Crown, Deputy or Local Registrar of the County, as the case may require, and shall be and have the same force and effect and be enforceable in the same manner as a judgment or order of the High Court in the like case: Rule 1242 of 20th June, 1903.

Since this Rule a Local Judge has no power to hear a motion to continue an injunction until the trial, except by consent as provided by Rule 46 (2); see formerly Dougall v. Hutton, 19 C. L. T. 190; 35 C. L. J. 368.

Appeal.

48. Any person affected by a decision, judgment or order of a Local Judge under paragraph (2) of Rule 46 or clauses (a), (b) or (d) of Rule 47, may appeal therefrom to a Judge of the High Court in Court, and such appeal shall be brought within the time and upon the like notice and proceedings as in cases of appeals from orders and decisions of Local Judges in Chambers. 56 V. c. 11, s. 1; 57 V. c. 20, ss. 11 and 13. See Rule 1 Jan., 1896, 1419. As amended by Rule 1243.

See Rule 767.

11. LOCAL MASTERS.

Local Masters, jurisdiction of in Chambers.

49.—(1) Every Local Master who does not practise as a Barrister or Solicitor, and who has not taken out certificates to practise, shall, in addition to his other powers as Local Master, have, in all actions brought in his county and in interpleader proceedings, when the goods in respect of which the interpleader is sought are situated in his county, concurrent jurisdiction with, and the same power and authority as, the Master in Chambers, in all proceedings now ^{Rules} taken in Chambers at Toronto, except that the authority of ^{50. 61} such Local Master shall not extend to proceedings in the nature of a quo warranto under The Municipal Act, or to the payment of money out of Court, or dispensing with payment into Court, or to making an order for sale of infants' estates. Rules 23 June, 1894, 1291.

(2) Every Local Master may refer any matter pending before him in Chambers to a Judge of the High Court for his decision, and the Judge may dispose of or refer back the same in whole or in part. New.

See notes to Rule 42.

12. ACCOUNTANT'S OFFICE.

50. The Suitors' Accounts in the Court of Appeal and the High Court shall be in charge of "The Accountant of ^{Suitors} ^{Accounts.} the Supreme Court of Judicature for Ontario." Con. Rule 139.

The suitors' accounts in the Courts of Queen's Bench, Common Pleas, and Chancery, were, on the passing of The Judicature Act, consolidated and placed in charge of an officer called the Accountant of the Supreme Court: original Rule 475, 44 Vict. c. 5, s. 18; and by Rule 10, H. C. J., passed 25th August, 1881, all moneys and securities, etc., standing in the name of the Accountant of the Court of Chancery, or the Referee in Chambers, or any other officer named by the Court of Chancery, or in the name of the Clerk of the Crown and Pleas of the Court of Queen's Bench, or the Clerk of the Crown and Pleas of the Court of Common Pleas, on the 21st of August, 1881, were transferred to and vested in the Accountant of the Supreme Court as such Accountant, and by 48 Vict. c. 13, s. 19, all moneys and securities in the hands of the Registrar of the Court of Appeal were also transferred to, and vested in, the Accountant. See now 58 Vict. c. 12, ss. 162, 163.

The Accountant of the Supreme Court of Judicature for Ontario is constituted a corporation sole: see Jud. Act, s. 159 (2).

In case of the office being at any time vacant, provision is made for vesting all moneys and securities in some other officer to be named by Rule of Court: Jud. Act, s. 160.

Books.

51. The following books shall be kept by the Accountant:— ^{Books to} ^{be kept.}

1. A book of Directions to the Bank to receive money.
2. A Book of Cheques.
3. A Journal.
4. A General Ledger.

Rules
52-55.

5. A Stock Journal.
6. A Stock Ledger.
7. A Balance Book.
8. A Book of Investments.
9. A Bond Index.
10. A Deposit Index.
11. A Private Ledger. Con. Rule 141.

Directions and cheques.

52. The Directions and Cheques shall be in the form approved of by the President of the High Court, and shall be numbered consecutively. Con. Rule 142, amended.

Journal

53. The Journal shall show the several sums daily paid into and out of Court, and shall be so kept, that at the foot of the account for each month will appear the total amount paid into and out of Court during such month, and the amounts to the debit and credit of the said account shall be transferred each month to the Private Ledger. Con. Rule 143.

General
Ledger.

54. The General Ledger shall contain a separate account for every action or matter, in which there is money in Court: and also, "The Suitors' Fee Fund Account," and "The Suspense Account" for the High Court, and for the Court of Appeal, each of which accounts shall show correctly the state and condition thereof for the time being. Con. Rule 144.

To "The Suitors' Fee Fund Account" is to be transferred the surplus income arising from the funds in the High Court after payment of the expenses of the Accountant's office, and interest payable to suitors: see Jud. Act, s. 163. Out of the funds standing to the credit of this account any Divisional Court or Judge of the Supreme Court of Judicature may order such sums to be applied as may be necessary for the protection of infants and other persons not sui juris, on whose behalf proceedings may be had in the Court, or be directed to be taken in other Courts: and may also order any sum to be paid which is required to make good a default arising in respect of suitors' money or securities, from any mistake, act or omission of any official of the Court without prejudice to the liability of the official or his sureties: see Jud. Act, s. 164.

accounts.

55.—(1) In each of the suitors' accounts there shall be entered every sum of money paid into Court, and by whom, and under what authority: and also every sum paid out, to whom, and under what authority. Con. Rule 145, part.

Clause (2) of this Rule was repealed by Rule 1272. See Ont. Gaz., 31 Dec., 1904.

56.—(1) Each account opened in the Ledger shall from time to time until the same is closed, be credited with the interest allowed by the Court from time to time accruing in respect of such account; and a corresponding transfer of interest shall be made at the bank by cheque signed and countersigned as in other cases; and there shall also be entered in each account any statement or memorandum of any other matters material to be recorded for the information of the Court or its officers, or any of the parties. Con. Rule 146; Rules 23 June, 1894, 1292.

*Crediting
interest.*

(2) From and after the 1st day of October, 1898, interest shall not be credited in any action or matter in respect of moneys paid into Court: (1) With a defence; (2) as security for costs of an action or appeal; (3) as security for debt or costs, to stay execution; (4) as a deposit for sale in mortgage actions; (5) as a condition imposed by any injunction order; (6) as proceeds of sale in, or to abide the result of, interpleader proceedings; or (7) for any other merely temporary purpose unless or until after the same shall have been in Court for six months, and then only at the rate of 2 per cent. per annum, not compounded in any case; but the President, or in his absence the next senior Judge of the High Court, may, for special reasons, order that in any particular case, interest shall be allowed on such moneys at any higher rate not exceeding $3\frac{1}{2}$ per cent. per annum.

(3) From and after the 1st day of October, 1898, the interest to be credited on the Assurance Fund (a) shall be at the rate of $2\frac{1}{2}$ per cent. per annum, compounded as provided by Rule 57.

(4) The interest to be credited to suitors' accounts, on all moneys paid into Court after the said 1st October, 1898 (other than for the purposes above mentioned), shall until further or other order be at the rate of $3\frac{1}{2}$ per cent. per annum from the date, and as provided by Con. Rule 57. Rule 1225 of 29 June, 1898, part.

(5) From and after the first day of April, 1902, the interest to be paid on any suitor's account which has been heretofore allowed at four per cent. per annum, is to be three and one-half per cent. per annum, but this Rule is not to affect any payments of interest at four per cent. already made on such accounts. Rule 1236, 10th May, 1902.

(c) See The Land Titles Act (R. S. O. c. 138), s. 130.

The interest which accrues on funds in Court is apportioned among the parties beneficially interested in the funds; sums payable thereon for costs do not bear interest, but the interest which accrues on money applicable to the payment of the costs is, with the other interest, apportioned among the suitors in proportion to their respective interests in the principal money.

Where in an administration action costs are directed to be paid out of the estate, and a direction is made for the division of the fund after such payment among the parties beneficially entitled, in the absence of a special direction to that effect, the costs do not bear interest: In re Marsden; Withington v. Neumann, 40 Ch. D. 375; even though the payment of the costs has been delayed owing to there being no funds available: Archer v. Scriven, 12 P. R. 648.

Interest on moneys in
Court.

87.—(1) Interest shall be credited upon moneys paid into Court only after the same have been in Court for fifteen days. Rule 21 Oct., 1893, 1273.

This has been the rule since 17th Oct., 1893, the date named in the above Rule 1273.

Compound
interest.

(2) Compound interest shall not be credited to any action or matter, or allowed or paid to any suitor in respect of any fund which has not been in Court for at least five years. Con. Rule 147.

Where compound interest is allowed the practice of the Accountant's office is to compound it half-yearly.

Balances
under $10 standing for 2 years carried to Suspense Account.

88.—(1) Wherever the balance remaining to the credit of any action or matter to which an adult party is entitled does not exceed $10, and two years elapse without the balance being claimed, the account in such action or matter shall be closed by the transfer of the balance to "The Suspense Account" of the High Court, or of the Court of Appeal, but such transfer shall not prejudice the claim of any suitor entitled to the balance to its payment. Con. Rule 148.

By the closing of the account, the amount transferred ceases to bear interest: see Rule 56.

(2) All balances which are or shall hereafter be standing to the credit of any action or matter which have not been, or which hereafter shall not be claimed, before the lapse of ten years from the time when the same became, or shall hereafter become payable out of Court, shall be transferred to the Suspense Account; and the account in such actions or matters, in respect of all money so transferred, shall be closed, Rules 59-63. and no further interest shall thereafter be credited thereto in respect of the moneys so transferred; but such transfer is not to prejudice the claim of any person to the payment of any moneys so transferred. Interest shall not hereafter be credited to the Suspense Account in respect of moneys standing at its credit or authorized to be transferred thereto. Rule 1225 of 29th September, 1898. part.

59. In the Stock Journal and Stock Ledger shall be entered all transactions relating to Dominion stock held or purchased by the Court for suitors, other than such orders, reports and other particulars as to the said stock as are entered in the General Ledger. Stock Journal and Ledger. Con. Rule 149.

60. The Balance Book shall contain a statement to be entered therein quarterly of the balances at the credit of the various accounts in the three Ledgers at the date of such statement; such balances shall be made up to the 31st of March, 30th of June, 30th of September, and 31st of December of every year. Balance Book. Con. Rule 150.

61. In the Book of Investments shall be entered under the heading of the action or matter in which any mortgage or other security other than Dominion stock has been taken by the order of the Court, the date, and a concise statement of the material contents of the mortgage or other security, and of all subsequent orders and proceedings in relation thereto until the mortgage or other security is discharged. Book of Investments. Con. Rule 151.

62. In the Bond Index shall be entered under the heading of the action or matter in which the same is entitled, a memorandum of all bonds, or recognizances, filed or deposited with the Accountant, and also receipts for all bonds or recognizances delivered out pursuant to any order. Bond Index. Con. Rule 152.

63. In the Deposit Index shall be entered under the heading of the action or matter in which the same are ordered to be deposited, a memorandum of all securities for money, or other documents, books, papers, or other things which may at any time be ordered to be deposited with the Accountant for safe custody, and also receipts for all such Deposit Index.

Rules
64-67.

documents, books, papers, or other things so deposited as may be delivered out pursuant to any order. Con. Rule 153.

Private Ledger.

64. In the Private Ledger, which is not to be open to general inspection, shall be entered "The General Interest Account," "The Toronto General Trust Company Account," the "Bank Account," and "The Account of the Official Guardian ad litem," and such other accounts as the Accountant, with the approbation of the President of the High Court, may direct. Con. Rule 154, amended.

By direction of the President of the High Court, the Suspense Account was ordered to be transferred to the Private Ledger on 20 June, 1900.

Books to be open to inspection.

65. The other books kept under these Rules shall be open to inspection by any person interested in any account entered therein, or his solicitor or agent; and the Accountant shall give a certificate of the state of any account, or an extract therefrom, or of any entry in such books, at the desire of any person interested, or his solicitor or agent, and all such certificates shall be signed by the Accountant, or the Chief Clerk in the Accountant's office. Con. Rule 155.

Investments, etc.

Securities to be taken in name of Accountant.

66. All mortgages and other securities taken under an order or judgment of the Court, and all bonds, and other instruments required by the practice of the Court for the purpose of security shall, unless otherwise ordered, be taken in the name of the Accountant, his successors and assigns, and shall be deposited in his office. Con. Rule 156, amended.

(2) Mortgages and other securities made to, or vested in the Accountant, in any action or matter, are to be held by him subject to the order of the Court or a Judge; but no duty or liability (save as custodian of the instrument) is by reason of such mortgage or other security being made, given to or vested in him, imposed on the Accountant in respect of such mortgage or security or any property thereby vested in the Accountant. Rule 1225, 29th September, 1898, part.

Accounts.

67. An Auditor shall be appointed to the Supreme Court. It shall be the duty of the Auditor in each year to examine and verify the several account books and securities in the Accountant's office and to compare the balances entered in the Balance Book with the balances entered in the Rules 68-70.

 Ledgers, and with the Bank account, and to certify such balances if found to be correct, and to make such further and other examination of the said books and securities as he may think necessary for the proper audit thereof, and to report forthwith, after making such examination, the result thereof to the President of the High Court, and from time to time to make such suggestions as may appear to be desirable for the efficient keeping of the accounts. Con. Rule 157, amended.

68. The Auditor's remuneration, which is hereby fixed at the sum of $500 per annum, shall be payable in monthly instalments, for which cheques shall be issued payable out of the General Interest Account, upon the fiat of the President of the High Court. Rule 9 Feb., 1895, 1392. amended. Auditors' remuneration.

69. During the month of January in each year the Accountant shall present to the President of the High Court a statement of the amounts paid for salaries and expenses of the Accountant's office during the previous year, and the names of the persons to whom such amounts were respectively paid, and also an estimate of the salaries and expenses of his office for the current year, and such estimates shall be examined by the President, who shall be at liberty to make such variations therein as he may think necessary, and when approved of by him, a fiat shall be indorsed thereon or appended thereto which shall be signed by him authorizing the payment of the sums mentioned and cheques may issue accordingly. Con Rule 159, 160. amended. Salaries and expenses of office.

The expenses of the Accountant's office, including the salaries, are a first charge on the income arising from the funds in Court: Jud. Act, s. 162.

70. Where money, stock, or securities in Court are directed by an order to be paid or transferred to an unmarried woman, and she marries before payment of the money or transfer of such stock or securities, the Accountant may pay out the money or make or execute a transfer of the stock or securities, in favour of such woman, upon an affidavit of herself and her husband that no settlement or agreement for a settlement has been made or entered into before, upon or since their marriage; or in case any settlement or agreement for a settlement has been entered into, then upon an affidavit by the woman and her husband, identifying the settlement Stock, how transferred to a married woman or agreement for a settlement, and stating that no other settlement or agreement for a settlement has been made or entered into as aforesaid, and an affidavit of the solicitor of the woman and her husband that such solicitor has carefully perused such settlement or agreement for a settlement, and that according to the best of his judgment, such money, stock or securities are not, nor is any part thereof, subject to the trusts of the settlement or agreement for a settlement, or in any manner comprised therein or affected thereby. Con. Rule 179, amended.

Where a married woman had assigned her interest in a fund in Court, and both she and her husband refused to make an affidavit of no settlement to enable the assignee to obtain payment of the fund, the Court made an order for payment, on the affidavit of a third party who knew the facts and was able to swear that there was no settlement: Timothy v. Crown, 1900, W. N. 51; 82 L. T. 142; following Rowland v. Oakley, 14 Jar. N. S. 845.

Affidavit
pensed with.

Where the fund was under £10, an affidavit was dispensed with: Ucal v. Ucal, L. R. 4 Eq. 115; Guest v. Newman, 78 L. T. Jour. 161; and where the husband was permanently resident out of the jurisdiction, the affidavit of the wife alone was accepted and acted on: Wilkinson v. Schneider, L. R. 9 Eq. 423; and in another case an affidavit by a solicitor disclosing facts, from which it appeared that it was unlikely that there was any settlement, was accepted as sufficient: Hoodward v. Pratt, L. R. 16 Eq. 127; and see Timothy v. Crown, supra.

Where the applicant for the money is an infant, it is probable that even since this Rule the money may be settled. It was formerly held that a female infant had no power to waive her equity to a settlement: Shipway v. Ball, 16 Ch. D. 376; 44 L. T. 49. If not settled, doubtless the money will be held for the infant in Court, till she becomes of age, as in the case of any other infant, to be then paid to her, or to her trustees, under any settlement as circumstances may require.

Ordinarily a married woman, if an infant, is not entitled to get money out of Court to which she is entitled, before attaining her majority; but when the infant is married and domiciled abroad, and by the law of such foreign country is entitled to give a valid receipt for moneys due to her, notwithstanding her infancy, a fund in Court may be ordered to be paid to her notwithstanding her infancy: Kavanagh v. Lennon, 16 P. R. 229. So also where a legacy is bequeathed to an infant and is expressly directed to be paid to her at a certain age before attaining majority, if such legacy is in Court, the Court will direct it to be paid in conformity with the will: Re Denckin, 72 L. T. 220.

Infants,
lunatics, etc.

Infants and Persons Non Compotes Mentis. — Money in Court belonging to an infant will not as a matter of right be paid out to the Surrogate Guardian of the infant: Re Harrison, 18 P. R. 204; nor to a foreign guardian or official custodian of a lunatic: Re Thompson, Thompson v. Thompson, 19 P. R. 304, though in either case such allowance for maintenance as may be shown to be proper and necessary for an infant or person of unsound mind may be allowed and paid to the guardian, etc., ib. See also Re Chute's Settlement, 1899, 1 Ch. 712; Thiery v. Chalmers, Guthrie & Co., 1899, Rules W. N. 235. 71, 72.

Where an infant is found entitled to moneys in Court in an administration suit, or moneys of an infant or person of unsound mind are otherwise in Court: Re Thompson, 19 P. R. 304; the Court takes charge of the fund, and will not suffer it to go into the hands of a trustee for the infant: Kingsmill v. Miller, 15 Gr. 171; Mitchell v. Richey, 13 Gr. 445, and where it is in the hands of a personal representative it may be ordered to be paid into Court: Re Humphries, 18 P. R. 289; Whitewood v. Whitewood, 19 P. R. 183. But where a married woman died entitled to a fund in Court which she bequeathed to her executor to be invested and the income applied for maintenance of her children, the fund was ordered to be paid out to the executor: Re McDougall, 11 P. R. 494.

The Court has refused to pay money out of Court to the tutrix of an infant residing in Quebec, although by the law of that Province the tutrix is entitled to the possession of all of the infant's property, where the fund in question was insurance money to which the infant was entitled under R. S. O. c. 136: In re Berryman, 17 P. R. 573; but she may under s. 155, s.-s. 2, apply to be appointed trustee of the fund and obtain an order for payment on giving security. Money to which a lunatic was entitled was ordered to be paid to a foreign Court, of which she had been made a ward, and within whose jurisdiction she resided: In re DeLinden, 1897, 1 Ch. 453.

In Re Knight, 1898, 1 Ch. 257; 77 L. T. 773, the Court refused to transfer to the curator of the person and property of a lunatic (appointed according to the law of Jersey, where the lunatic resided), stock of the lunatic in England, without proof of the need of the property for the maintenance of the lunatic, or other sufficient reason. In Re Brown, 1895, 2 Ch. 666, stocks in England were transferred to a Master in Lunacy of a Colony appointed by the Courts of the Colony to manage the lunatic's property.

71. Where money, stock or securities in Court are to be paid out of Court or transferred to the legal personal representative (a) of any person, the same may, upon proof, to the satisfaction of the Accountant of the death of any of them (whether before, on, or after the day of the date of the order), be paid to the survivors or survivor of them. See Con. Rule 189.

Transfer of stock to representative of person entitled.

(a) An "s" seems wanting here in the Rule; but see Rule 5, and R. S. O. c. 1, s. 8 (24).

72. Where money, stock, or securities in Court are to be paid out or transferred to any person named in the order or judgment, or named, or to be named in any report, the same or any portion thereof for the time being remaining unpaid or untransferred, may, on proof, to the satisfaction of the Accountant of the death of such person (whether before, on, or after the date of the order or judgment), and that his legal Money, etc. payable to representatives may be paid to survivor of them.

Rule 72. personal representatives are entitled thereto, be paid or transferred to such legal personal representatives or the survivors or survivor of them. See Con. Rule 181.

Where no letters of administration have been taken out to the estate of a person who has died entitled to money in Court, and the amount is so small as not to warrant the expense of procuring letters of administration, the Court may direct the money to be paid out on the undertaking of the solicitor for the applicant to see to its due administration; Ross v. Ross, 4 Chy. Ch. 27; Callender v. Toppdale, 3 W. R. 289; King v. Isaacson, 9 W. R. 369; Hivings v. Hivings, 2 H. & M. 32; Re Cable, 3 W. R. 84; but see Re Cahel, 3 W. R. 289; Mulock v. Caithra, 13 P. R. 473.

In Frogley v. Phillips, 1901, W. N. 243; 50 W. R. 184, it was held that where a person entitled to a fund in Court has died intestate, the Court will not allow the fund to be paid out to the person who is entitled to take out letters of administration, but has not done so, even although the fund is under £20, and it is there said that the Judges had agreed that letters of administration must be taken out in all cases.

Payment has been ordered to be made of moneys in Court to an official assignee in bankruptcy of a deceased person entitled to the same, without requiring him to take out letters of administration; In re Layson, 1890, 1 Ch. 175; 73 L. T. 571. And where persons claiming to be the next of kin of a person entitled to money in Court applied in 1897 for payment, on the ground that the person entitled had in 1889 escaped from a prison in the United States where he was serving a life sentence, and had never since been heard of, the application was granted, and the taking out of administration to the estate of the person originally entitled was dispensed with; In re Dunn, 23 C. L. J. 434; 17 C. L. T. 197.

An administrator is entitled to have money in Court, to which he is entitled as administrator, paid out to him, notwithstanding there may be infants who may be entitled to a share of it as next of kin; In Parsons, Jones v. Kelland, 14 P. R. 144; Stewart v. Whitton, Ib., 147; Hanrahan v. Hanrahan, 19 Ont. 396. Where the money in Court was the property of a person domiciled out of the Province, on his death it would seem that the money would not ordinarily be ordered to be paid out except to a personal representative duly appointed by the Court of this Province; Stewart v. Whitton, supra. See R. S. O. c. 79, s. 78, as to the power to grant ancillary probate of letters of administration to personal representatives appointed in another Province or other parts of the British Empire.

Where money was paid into Court under The Trustee Relief Act, under the erroneous supposition that a deceased person, of whose estate the fund was part, had died intestate, on the subsequent discovery and proof of a will, it was ordered to be paid out to the executors named therein, on petition presented by them, on proof that certain legacies bequeathed to infants were properly secured; Re Reid, 1884, 1 Ch. 270; 74 L. T. 77.

Where money is standing in Court to the credit of two or more persons as joint tenants, an application for payment out of a share to one of the parties, on which an order is actually made prior to the death of the applicant, will not amount to a severance of the joint tenancy; In re Wilks; Child v. Bulmer, 1891, 3 Ch. 59.

Where a beneficiary named in a will had disappeared and there was no evidence that he had survived the testator, and a sufficient time had elapsed, the Court presumed him to be dead, and made an order for the trustees to distribute the fund on the basis of the beneficiary not having survived the testator: see Re Benjamin, 1902, 1 Ch. 223; 86 L. T. 387. Rules 73-77.

See Rules 73, 74, which limit the operation of this Rule.

73. No principal sum of money, nor any stocks, funds, shares or securities shall, under Rules 71 and 72, be paid, transferred or delivered out of Court to the legal personal representative of any person under any probate, or letters of administration, purported to be granted at any time subsequent to the expiration of six years from the day of the date of the order, or judgment, directing such payment, transfer or delivery. Principal money, etc., not to be paid to representative after 6 years. Con. Rule 182.

74. No interest or dividends shall, under Rule 72, be paid out of Court to the legal personal representatives of any person under any probate, or letters of administration, purported to be granted at any time subsequent to the expiration of 6 years after the day of the date of the order or judgment directing such payment, or after the last receipt of such interest or dividends under such order or judgment, whichever shall last happen. Interest in like manner not to be paid after 6 years. Con. Rule 183.

75. Where money is to be paid out to persons named or to be named in an order or report, and the money is thereby found to be due to them as partners, the cheque may be made payable to the firm. Payments to partners. Con. Rule 184.

76. Persons entitled to money in Court may have a sufficient amount of the unappropriated Dominion Stock standing in the name of the Accountant appropriated as an investment of such money, or of part thereof, at par value. Investment of funds in Court in Dom. Stock. Con. Rule 185.

See Re Smith, 18 Ont. 327.

77. If all parties interested consent in writing, the consent shall be filed with the Accountant, and he shall make the appropriation without an order being drawn up for the purpose, and shall enter the consent in the Stock Ledger under the heading of the cause or matter. Appropriation without order. Con. Rule 186, as amended by Rule 1273. See Ont. Gaz., 31 Dec., 1904.

Rules
78-80.Crediting interest on stock.

78. The interest on stock so appropriated or purchased, shall, each half year, be credited to the various accounts entitled thereto; and wherever interest is ordered to be paid from time to time to any person in respect of the moneys which have been so invested, he shall be entitled to receive a cheque therefor without further order. Con. Rule 188.

Official Guardian's duty as to mortgages.

79.—(1) It shall be the duty of the Official Guardian to see that moneys payable on mortgages held by the Accountant, in which persons for whom the said Guardian has acted are interested, are promptly paid, and that the mortgaged premises are kept properly insured, and that the taxes thereon are duly paid.

Remuneration of Guardian.

(2) There shall be paid quarterly to the Official Guardian out of the surplus interest fund for services rendered by him under this Rule the sum of $200 per annum; and in the event of the fund to the credit of the account of the Official Guardian exceeding the sum requisite to meet the other charges thereon, the moneys so to be paid out of the said surplus interest fund, shall be recouped out of the fund to the credit of the said account of the said Official Guardian. Con. Rule 190.

Discharge of mortgages held by Accountant.

80. Any person entitled to the discharge of a mortgage, made to or vested in the Accountant or other officer, may leave with the Accountant the required discharge with a request that the same be executed. The Accountant shall thereupon certify as to the payment of the money secured by the mortgage, and the matter shall in such case be considered by the officers whose duty it is to sign and countersign cheques for payment of money out of Court, and if they find that the mortgage has been satisfied in full, and that the proposed discharge is in due form, they shall indorse upon such certificate and discharge a direction for the execution of the said discharge by the Accountant or other officer in whom the mortgage may be vested, and thereupon the Accountant or such other officer may execute such discharge and may on a receipt being given therefor, deliver up all deeds and documents relating to such mortgage in his hands and may assign any policy of insurance held by him as collateral security for such mortgage to the person entitled to such discharge, or as he may by writing direct. Rules of 1 Jan., 1896, 1423.

81. The arrangement as to the investment by the Toronto General Trusts Company (a) of the funds in Court is hereby continued subject to change by the Judges of the High Court. See Con. Rule 191; Rules 13 Sept. 1890, 1269; Rule 23 March, 1895, 1393.

Rules
81, 82.
Investment of funds in
Court.

(a) Now the Toronto General Trusts Corporation.

The arrangement referred to was made under Con. Rule, 1888, 191. That Rule which is not abrogated (see Rule 2, and schedule therein, referred to); it has, however, been modified by other Rules (see 11, & L. Jud. Act, 2nd ed., p. 220, for Rule 1269 and Rule 1393) of 23rd March, 1895, which are also unrepealed, and by new arrangements made by the Judges of the High Court with the T. G. T. Corporation.

82.—(1) Any person claiming to be interested in, or to have a lien or charge upon, or an assignment of, any money, stock or securities in Court, or invested in the name of the Accountant or other officer of the Court, or any portion thereof, or claiming to have the same applied towards the satisfaction of any judgment or execution against the person to whose credit such moneys, stocks or securities stand, or for whose benefit the same are held by the said Accountant or other officer, may, upon an affidavit verifying his claim, apply to the Court or a Judge ex parte, for an order directing that such money, stock or securities shall not be paid out or dealt with except upon notice to him. New. See Con. Rule 192.

Stop orders how and when obtained.

(2) The person obtaining any such order may be ordered to pay any costs, charges and expenses occasioned thereby to any person interested in the money, stock or securities to which such order relates. New. See Con. Rules 192, 193.

Costs of.

The power to grant stop orders was formerly part of the jurisdiction of the Court of Chancery, and now, under The Judicature Act, is vested in the High Court.

Jurisdiction to grant stop orders.

This Rule, therefore, applies to the moneys and investments in Court, in any action in the High Court, which are vested in the Accountant of the Supreme Court.

The object of the Rule is to define the cases in which a stop order may be granted, and prevent injustice being done by the granting of stop orders ex parte. The applicant for a stop order is always required to submit to be bound by the terms of this Rule as a condition of getting the stop order. See Form of order H. & L. Forms, No. 542.

No petition is necessary under this Rule; see also Hack v. Postle, 1894, 2 Ch. 454. An affidavit verifying the applicant's claim, i.e., showing his title, is all that is required; see Wood v. Vincent, 4 Beav. 419; Quarman v. Williams, 5 Beav. 133.

Rule 82.Object of stop order.

The effect of a stop order is simply to prevent the payment out of money, or the transfer of securities in Court, to the person appearing on the books of the Accountant to be entitled thereto, without notice being first given to the person who obtains the stop order. Nothing is decided thereby as to the rights of the parties: Lucas v. Peacock, 11 Beav. 177. A stop order has no effect until delivered to the Accountant, but the payment out may be stayed for twenty-four hours, on lodging a caveat with that officer.

When
granted.

Stop orders may be granted against a fund in Court, on the application of an execution creditor of the party entitled to the fund: Wilson v. McCarthy, 7 P. R. 132; Courtney v. Vincent, 15 Beav. 480. A motion by a judgment creditor who had not obtained execution was refused: Brooke v. Brooke, before Ferguson, J., 28th May, 1884; but granted in Steckle v. Byers, 10 C. L. T. 41, and by Boyd, C., in Tweed v. Larocque (2nd June, 1890), where it was also held to be unnecessary to issue executions where the assets to be reached consisted of money in Court, and the costs of stop orders instead were allowed; see also Stuart v. Grough, 15 Ont. App. 309. A stop order may be obtained on a fund ordered to be paid into Court, though it has not been actually paid in: Shaw v. Hudson, 48 L. J. Ch. 689, but not against a fund which is neither in Court, nor ordered to be paid in: Wellesley v. Mornington, 11 W. R. 17.

Where a fund in Court has been assigned, but no stop order is lodged by the assignee with the Accountant, that officer is not liable if he pay the money out on a fraudulent application by the assignor: Bath v. Bath, 1801, 1 Ch. 460.

Payments made by the Accountant to a second assignee before notice of a prior assignment will not be disturbed: Cottingham v. Cottingham, 11 Ont. 244.

Application to pay out.

Sometimes the stop order is followed by an application for payment to the party obtaining it: such a motion is of course made on notice to all parties interested in the fund: Re Gilchrist, Bohn v. Fife, 7 P. R. 430, including any other persons who have obtained stop orders against the fund: see Hulkes v. Day, 10 Sim. 41.

Where the party obtaining the stop order does not move for an order for payment to him of the fund, the opposite party may move for payment out notwithstanding the stop order, or may move to discharge the stop order: such motions must, of course, be made on notice to the person who has obtained the stop order.

An order for payment out to a party entitled was made notwithstanding a stop order had been lodged by a mortgagee of a person who had a contingent interest in the fund, but whose interest never actually vested, and without notice to the mortgagee: Vernon v. Craft, 58 L. T. 989; 30 W. R. 778. This, however, seems like adjudicating upon a man's rights in his absence, and is a precedent that will no doubt be very cautiously followed.

A mortgagee of a fund in Court is not entitled to have the whole fund paid out where it exceeds the amount due under his mortgage, but only sufficient to satisfy his debt: see Re Bell, 1896, 1 Ch. 1; 76 L. T. 391; Hacken v. Western, 1898, 1 Ch. 370.

Effect of stop order
on priorities.

Priorities.—As between specific chargees on a fund, a subsequent chargee having at the time of his advance notice of the prior charge cannot obtain priority over it by first obtaining a stop order against the fund: Livesey v. Harding, 23 Beav. 141; Richardson v. Ibbotson.

4 D. J. & S. 122; Swayne v. Swayne, 11 Beav. 403; Re Holmes, 20 Rule 82. Ch. D. 786; but if he had no notice of the prior charge when making his own advances, he may gain priority over it by first obtaining a stop order, even though he do so after notice of the prior charge: Ib., Greening v. Beckford, 5 Sim. 195; and see Stephens v. Green, Green v. Knight, 72 L. T. 83; and an assignee for value of a fund claiming under an assignor who had a legal title, and obtaining a stop order without actual notice of a prior equitable assignment, will be entitled to priority as against the prior equitable assignees: Montepore v. Guedella, 1903, 2 Ch. 26; 88 L. T. 496; but as between parties having no specific charge against the fund: e.g., execution creditors, he who first obtained a stop order formerly gained priority: Thomas v. Cross, 2 Dr. & S. 423; but now the fund will be distributed among all creditors ratably according to the principle of The Creditors' Relief Act, R. S. O. c. 78; Dawson v. Moffatt, 11 Ont. 484; 22 C. L. J. 31; and see la re Bokstal, 17 P. R. 201; but an execution creditor cannot by obtaining a stop order acquire priority over a prior charge, legal, or equitable: Re Bell, Carter v. Stadden, 34 L. T. 370; see also Cottingham v. Cottingham, 11 Ont. 294, nor against a creditor who has obtained the prior appointment of a receiver of the fund: Re Anglessey, 1903, 2 Ch. 727; 89 L. T. 584; although the appointment of a receiver creates no lien or charge upon the fund: see supra, p. 103.

Where a fund had been directed to be carried over to another account, and it was subsequently discovered that the person entitled to the fund was a debtor to the estate from which the fund was carried over, it was, nevertheless, held that specific chargees on the fund after it had been carried over were entitled in priority to the claims of the parties in the original suit: Re Eyton, Bartlett v. Charles, 45 Ch. D. 458; 63 L. T. 336.

Where a trust is being administered by the Court, the trustees cease to have any power over it, and a notice to them of an incumbrance will not give the party giving the notice priority over a prior incumbrancer who has not given notice: a stop order in such a case is the most effectual notice: Pinnock v. Bailey, 23 Ch. D. 487; 48 L. T. 811; Mutual Life Assurance Company v. Langley, 26 Ch. D. 686; 51 L. T. 284; Mack v. Postle, 1894, 2 Ch. 449; 71 L. T. 153; Cottingham v. Cottingham, 11 Ont. 294; but see Stephens v. Green, 1895, 21 Ch. 148, 72 L. T. 574.

The priority acquired by a stop order extends only to the charge in respect of which it was obtained: MacLeod v. Buchannan, 33 Beav. 234; 4 D. J. & S. 265.

To ascertain the effect of a stop order the Court may look not merely at the ordering part, but also at anything else appearing on the face of the order: Mack v. Postle, 1894, 2 Ch. 449.

The stop order cannot defeat the rights of third parties to the stop order fund, thus, the lien of a solicitor on the fund cannot be defeated by obtaining a stop order against his client, even under an assignment: Hammer v. Couper, 33 Beav. 431.

Costs of obtaining a stop order are not given as of course: Grimaby v. Webster, 8 W. R. 755; Houle v. Roberts, 12 Jur. 108; Waddilove v. Toller, 6 Ha. 497, the applicant may be ordered to pay the costs of a person unnecessarily notified: Churchbrook v. Gillatt, 6 Beav. 611.

Rules
83-87.

13. TAXING OFFICERS.

Taxing
Officers.

83. There shall be two or more Taxing Officers of the Supreme Court at Toronto. Con. Rule 194.

Local Taxing
Officers.

84. Every Local Registrar, Local Master, Deputy Registrar and Deputy Clerk of the Crown, shall be a Local Taxing Officer. Con. Rule 195.

Powers of local Taxing
Officers.

85. Every Local Taxing Officer shall, subject to the provisions of Rules 1167 to 1171, inclusive, in actions begun or pending in his office, be entitled to tax all bills of costs, including counsel fees, subject only to appeal to a Judge of the High Court. This Rule shall not apply to cases in which infants are concerned, unless the Official Guardian is the guardian ad litem for the infants. Con. Rule 196.

In lunacy matters all costs should be revised by a Taxing Officer in Toronto: Re Norris, 5 O. L. R. 99.

Powers of Taxing
Officers.

86. All Taxing Officers shall, for the purpose of any taxation, have power to administer oaths and take evidence, direct production of books and documents, make certificates, and give general directions for the conduct of taxations before them. Con. Rule 197.

Substantially to the same effect as Eng. (1883) R. 27 (25).

Taxing officers have power to call evidence on taxations before them: Williamson v. Town of Aylmer, 12 P. R. 129.

Where the taxing officer refused to proceed until the plaintiff was produced for examination as to a retainer, and he was out of the jurisdiction, the taxing officer was directed to examine other witnesses, and if unable to decide as to the retainer, then to report to a Judge in Chambers: Ib.

Where solicitor and client contradict one another in affidavits, the taxing officer should allow oral evidence to be taken under this Rule: Re Evans, 35 W. R. 546.

There is no power to direct shorthand notes of evidence before him without the consent of the parties: Re Hilleary v. Taylor, 36 Ch. 11, 202; unless Rule 457 is applicable in such a case, which does not seem to have been contemplated, as that Rule deals with an examination authorized under other provisions.

14. BARRISTERS AND SOLICITORS.

Barristers' Roll.

87. There shall be one Roll of Barristers-at-Law, and all persons admitted to the Bar of Ontario shall sign the same and take the prescribed oaths. See Con. Rule 200.

88. There shall be one Roll of Solicitors of the Supreme Court of Judicature for Ontario, and all persons admitted as solicitors shall sign the same upon taking the prescribed oaths. Rules 88, 89.
 Con. Rule 198. Solicitors' Roll.

89. In a case appearing to justify investigation, it shall be competent for the Court, in lieu thereof, to issue an order calling upon the solicitor to answer the matters appearing on affidavit or otherwise. Striking solicitor off roll.
 Con. Rule 201.

The Court of Appeal, as well as the High Court, has power to strike a solicitor off the rolls: R. S. O. c. 174, s. 3 (3): Re Whitehead, 28 Ch. D. 615.

The Solicitors Act, R. S. O. 1897, c. 174, does not deprive the Court of its inherent authority over solicitors as officers of the Court: Re McBrady & O'Connor, 19 P. R. 37.

Where the employment of a solicitor is so connected with his professional character as to afford the presumption that that character formed the ground of his employment by the client, the Court will exercise its summary jurisdiction over him: Re McBrady & O'Connor, supra.

The Law Society has a disciplinary jurisdiction over solicitors and barristers: see R. S. O. c. 172, s. 44: Hunda v. Law Society, 16 Ont. 625; 17 Ont. App. 41; and where, on complaint to the Law Society, the Society has acquitted the solicitor, any application to the Court to strike the solicitor or barrister off the rolls for such alleged misconduct cannot be made by a suitor in person, but must be made by counsel: see Re Solicitor, 1903, 2 K. B. 205; 89 L. T. 119.

Where in the course of a cause, evidence of fraudulent conduct on the part of a solicitor is brought to light, the Court may sua sponte direct proceedings to be taken against the offending solicitor: Goodwin v. Gosnell, 2 Coll. 457, 462; Wheatley v. Bastow, Re Collins, 7 D. M. & G. 261, 588; Re Toms, 3 Chy. Ch. 204, 215; Re Currie, 25 Gr. 338; Re Solicitor, 27 Gr. 77; Thorndyke v. Hunt, 5 Jur. N. S. 879, or upon the application of any party interested: Cave v. Cave, 43 L. T. 158.

Answering Affidavits.—This is usually a preliminary measure to see whether a motion to strike a solicitor off the rolls need be resorted to. Answering affidavits

In Burton v. Earl of Chesterfield, 9 Jur. 373, it was said that the motion could not be made, calling on an attorney to answer the affidavits and at the same time to show cause why he should not be struck off the rolls; and in that case the rule was confined to calling on him to answer the affidavits. In a later case, however, the rule nisi was granted in the double form: Re Blake, 3 E. & E. 34; and see Re Grueber, 63 L. T. Jour. 637.

Where the motion is confined to calling on the solicitor to answer affidavits simply, and the Court is of opinion that his answer is insufficient, the practice at law has been to enlarge the motion to a future day, intimating to the solicitor that he may be further heard on that day, why he should not be struck off: Re Wright, 12 C. B. N. S. 705; Re H., 31 L. T. 730.

Rule 89.

In order to give the Court jurisdiction to entertain an application for a solicitor to answer matters contained in an affidavit, or to strike him off the rolls, it is not necessary that the misconduct of which he is accused should arise strictly between solicitor and client: Re Aitken, 4 B. & Ald. 47; Re Attorney, 39 U. C. Q. B. 171; Re Knight, 1 Bing. 91; Re Blake, 3 E. & E. 34; Re Hill, L. R. 3 Q. B. 743; Re Chandler, 22 Beav. 353; and see Re Cutts, 16 L. T. 715; Re Keays, 13 C. P. 282; Re Solicitor, 80 L. T. Jour. 103; Re Strong, 53 L. T. 694; 55 L. T. 3; 31 Ch. D. 273.

Striking off the Roll.

Striking off Roll.—A solicitor may be struck off the rolls for fraudulent conduct as a trustee: Re Chandler, supra, where the application was made by the cestui que trust; and see Thorndyke v. Hunt, supra; Dolland v. Johnson, 2 Jur. N. S. 633; or for fraudulently abusing the confidence of a client: Re Martin, 6 Beav. 337; Re J. C. M. & J. M., 24 W. R. 111; or for obtaining a client's money to discharge alleged liabilities of the client which did not exist: Re H., 31 L. T. 730; Re Strong, 31 Ch. D. 273; 55 L. T. 3; or for getting a false affidavit sworn, and without authority instructing counsel to consent to payment of money out of Court: Wheatley v. Bastow, 7 D. M. & G. 261, 558; or for falsely representing an injunction to have been granted: Kimpton v. Eve, 2 V. & B. 352; or for making an interlineation in an affidavit after it had been sworn: Erskine v. Adcane, 18 Sol. Jour. 573; 10 C. L. J. 209; or for committing perjury, Seton 652; or for revealing the secrets of a client: Re Cutts, 16 L. T. 715; Cholmondeley v. Clinton, 19 Ves. 261; or for persuading his client to give him money to be used for bribing a jury before whom the client was to be tried for a criminal offence: R. Titus, 5 Ont. 87; or where he has been convicted of crime and sentenced to imprisonment, as, e.g., for being a party to the use of premises as a disorderly house: Re Solicitor, 69 L. T. 148, 522, S. C., sub nom Re Weare, 1893, 2 Q. B. 439; or for misappropriating fees paid to him to be paid to counsel: Re Lewis, 95 L. T. Jour. 85; or borrowing large sums of money from a client, who has just attained his majority, without giving proper security: Re Solicitor, 1894, 1 Q. B. 254; 70 L. T. 27.

Non-payment of money.

Under R. S. O. c. 174, s. 29, a solicitor may be struck off the rolls for default of payment of money received by him as a solicitor: Anon, 12 C. L. J. 204; Re Knowles, 16 P. R. 408. Where considerable sums had got into the hands of a solicitor who made default in payment, but the client issued execution upon the order directing payment, it was held that he had treated the claim as a debt, and a subsequent motion to strike the solicitor off the rolls for non-payment was therefore refused: Re Fletcher, 28 Gr. 413; see also Ex p. White Sewing Machine Co., 12 C. L. T. 256; but the English cases on which these decisions were based have been since overruled: In re Grey, 1892, 2 Q. B. 440. And where the client had sued the solicitor for the money and failed on the ground that his claim was barred by the Statute of Limitations, it was held that he could not afterwards resort to summary proceedings against the solicitor without any allegation of misconduct: Sittingbourne & S. Ry. Co. v. Lawson, 50 L. T. Jour. 448. The Court will not exercise its summary jurisdiction over a solicitor to compel repayment of a loan: Re Bryant, 50 L. T. 450; unless the loan has been fraudulently obtained by the solicitor from his client: see Re Strong, supra.

Where the application is to strike a solicitor off the roll for non-payment of money, it should be made in Court, and if the order is granted it may direct payment by the solicitor within a specified time, or in default that he be struck off. Upon default no further order is necessary, but the applicant must move, on notice to the solicitor, to have the roll brought into Court for the purpose of having the name struck off: Re Bridgman, 16 P. R. 232; Re Advocates, 18 C. L. T. 159; and see Re W., 72 L. T. 679. On the roll being brought into Court, the officer of the Court will, in open Court, on the direction of the Court, strike the name off the roll. Rule 89.

The order to strike off the roll for non-payment of money, issues in respect both of the specific moneys ordered to be paid, and also the costs of the application: In re Knowles, 16 P. R. 408; and see In re Solicitor, 1895, 2 Ch. 66.

The Court will not on a summary application against a solicitor for payment of money alleged to be in his hands, make it a term of an order for the delivery and taxation of his bill that on non-payment of what shall be found due he be struck off the roll, where there appears to be a bona fide dispute as to whether there is anything in the solicitor's hands at all, such a provision being regarded as an unnecessary slur on the solicitor's professional character: Re Ross, 16 P. R. 482.

A summary application for payment of money will not be entertained against a solicitor, as against whom no professional misconduct can be alleged, even though he may be liable to an action: Id.

Repayment, pending a motion to strike off the rolls, of money fraudulently obtained, is no purgation of the offence: Re H., 31 L. T. 730; nor is it, where the money was properly obtained, but misappropriated: Re Solicitor, 62 L. T. Jour. 446.

Where a solicitor is struck off the rolls for misappropriating the moneys of his client, the order directing him to be struck off may properly contain a reference to ascertain the amount for which he is liable and direct him to pay the amount so to be ascertained, and payment may be enforced against him even after he has been struck off: Re Strong, 31 Ch. D. 273; 55 L. T. 3.

Where the solicitors engaged in any action or matter in court represent conflicting interests, any undisclosed arrangement or practice between them whereby a share of profit, whether by way of agency or otherwise, is paid to any of them, for introducing the litigation, that is professional misconduct: Re Four Solicitors, 1901, 1 K. R. 187; 83 L. T. 484.

Where the application against a solicitor is made on the ground of fraud, the fraud must be clearly proved; the Court will not infer an equivocal action to have been fraudulent: Re Stewart, L. R. 2 P. C. 88; Re S—, 14 C. P. 323.

The Court refused to make an order on the production merely of a certificate that the solicitor had been struck off the roll of a Colonial Court: Re Solicitor, 1898, 1 Q. B. 331; 77 L. T. 661.

Suspension from Practice.—Instead of striking a solicitor off the roll for misconduct, the Court may, if it see fit, suspend him from practice for a specified period; thus, for antedating a marriage settlement in order to make it appear to have been executed before Suspension.

Rule 89. marriage, a solicitor was suspended from practice for five years: Re Parry, 98 L. T. Jour. 404; and see Erskine v. Adeane, 18 Sol. Jour. 573; Re Hill, L. R. 3 Q. B. 543; Re Blake, 3 E. & E. 34; Re Officer, 95 L. T. Jour. 299; Re Russell, 95 L. T. Jour. 300; Re Solicitor, 1894, 1 Q. B. 274; 70 L. T. 27; Re Solicitor, 61 L. T. 842; Re Lewis, 95 L. T. Jour. 85, where the solicitor was suspended until restitution should be made to the client. In some cases, though the solicitor has been exonerated from fraud, he has nevertheless been ordered to pay the costs of proceedings against him, where the circumstances were such as to call for investigation: Re Holland, 95 L. T. Jour. 160.

Where a solicitor has been suspended for misappropriating the moneys of his clients, he will not necessarily be struck off the rolls on being subsequently convicted of embezzlement in reference to the same transaction: Re Solicitor, 61 L. T. 842.

Restoration to Roll.

Restoration to Roll.—A solicitor who has been struck off the roll, after conviction of a criminal offence, may be restored to the roll, if there are circumstances justifying it: Re Brandreth, 64 L. T. 739; and see Re Poole, L. R. 4 C. P. 350; Ex p. Pyke, 6 B. & S. 703; Re Solicitor, 19 C. L. J. 234.

Where a solicitor has been struck off the rolls for non-payment of money, it is a condition precedent to restoration that he shall have made full restitution, or made the best efforts in his power thereto, and shall satisfy the Court as to the propriety of his conduct in the meantime: Re Poole, L. R. 4 C. P. 350; Ex parte Pyke, 6 B. & S. 703. And the Law Society must be notified of any application to restore to the rolls, a solicitor who has been struck off for misconduct: Re Solicitor, 19 C. L. J. 234.

Appeal.

Appeal.—An order striking a solicitor off the rolls is not a criminal proceeding and is appealable: Re Hardwick, 49 L. T. 584.

Leave to appeal to Her Majesty in Council from an order striking a barrister off the roll of a Colonial Court was given, and the order was reversed by the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council, on the ground that the facts did not warrant the order: In re Renner, 1897, A. C. 218.

Restitution, etc., in case of negligence or other breach of duty.

Restitution, etc., on Summary Application.—Where negligence or other breach of duty is committed by a solicitor in a matter of which the Court has selsin, the Court can summarily order the solicitor, as its officer, to make good the loss actually occasioned thereby, but cannot mulct him in damages for his misconduct: Marsh v. Joseph, 1897, 1 Ch. 213.

A solicitor may on a summary application be compelled to make good moneys improperly obtained out of Court, through negligence on his part; thus, a solicitor who, at the request of a third person, applied as solicitor for a person entitled to money in Court for payment out of the money, and by reason of the fraud of the third person, and on forged affidavits, improperly obtained payment of the money, without ever having had any direct communication with the person for whom he acted; he was ordered on a summary application to refund the money so obtained: Slater v. Slater, 1897, 1 Ch. 222, note. And where it is brought to the attention of the Court that money has been improperly obtained out of Court by a solicitor, the Court may sua sponte direct proceedings to be taken to compel him to refund it: see Re Central Bank, per Burton, C.J., 24 Ont. App. at p. 473.

Where in the course of an action it appears that a solicitor for Rules one of the parties has in breach of trust got possession of a trust 90, 91. fund, he may be directed to pay it into Court by order made on a summary application in the action, and in the matter of the solicitor: Re Carroll, 1902, 2 Ch. 175; 86 L. T. 862.

The Court may also, in exercise of its summary jurisdiction over Costs, order a solicitor to pay the costs of proceedings instituted by him without authority: Nurse v. Durnford, 13 Ch. D. 764; 41 L. T. 611; Re Savage, 15 Ch. D. 557, or where by his negligence a cause has been tried as undefended, which was intended to be defended, a new trial may be ordered, and the solicitor ordered to pay costs so occasioned, as between solicitor and client: Re Reaiguay, 3 Taunt. 484.

Where an action is carried on by a solicitor on an agreement to indemnify his client against costs, the solicitor is personally liable for the costs, if the action fail: Cockle v. Whiting, 1 K. & M. 43; Re Jones, L. R. 6 Chy. 497, and this liability may be summarily enforced: Ib.; and where a solicitor agreed to charge no "solicitor's fees," this was held to include fees as counsel, if the solicitor himself acted as counsel: Re Solicitors, 33 C. L. 115.

Undertaking of Solicitor—Enforcing.—A solicitor, being an officer of the Court, his undertaking, given in his professional capacity, whether in an action or not, will be enforced on a summary application to the Court: Woodfin v. Wray, 51 L. J. Chy. 427; 97 L. T. Jour. 41; Sneyay v. Harland, 1894, 1 Q. B. 707; In re Coolgardie Gold Fields, 1900, 1 Ch. 475; D. v. A. & Co., 1900, 1 Ch. 484. Under-takings.

90. A book to be called "The Solicitors' and Agents' Book" shall be kept in the Central Office to be there inspected by any party. A solicitor or his clerk without fee: and every solicitor having an office or carrying on his business within the said city, shall cause to be entered in such book (in alphabetical order) his name and place of business or some other proper place within the city where he may be served with pleadings, notices, orders, warrants and other documents, proceedings and written communications; and as often as any such solicitor changes his place of business or the place where he may be so served as aforesaid, he shall cause to be made the like entry thereof in the said book. Solicitors' and agents' book. Rules 1 Jan., 1896, 1423. Toronto Solicitor.

The entries required to be made under this Rule are compulsory: Essery v. G. T. Ry. Co., 13 P. R. 219.

For the consequences of not complying with this Rule, see Rule 329.

91. Every other practising solicitor shall cause to be entered in the said book (in alphabetical order) his name and place of business, and also in an opposite column the name of some solicitor having an office and carrying on business in the city of Toronto as his agent. Entry of Toronto Solicitors as agents. Rules 1 Jan., 1896, 1423.

92-94.

The entry of a Toronto agent by solicitors practising out of Toronto is compulsory: Essery v. G. T. Ry. Co., supra. See also Rule 320.

Solicitors' and agents' book in County Towns.

92. Every Deputy or Local Registrar shall keep in his office a book to be called "The Solicitors' and Agents' Book," in which each solicitor residing elsewhere than in the County Town, and not having an office there, may specify the name of an agent, being a solicitor of the Supreme Court, and having an office in such County Town, upon whom all pleadings, notices, orders, warrants, and other documents, proceedings and written communications in relation to business conducted in the office of the Local Master, Deputy Clerk of the Crown, Deputy or Local Registrar of such County may be served. Rules 1 Jan., 1896, 1423.

The entry of the name of an agent in the books required to be kept under this Rule is optional: Essery v. G. T. Ry. Co., supra. If the entry is made, services may be effected accordingly: see Rule 320; but service on an agent is not good service on the principal, unless the agent is booked as agent under this Rule: Robinson v. Robinson, 13 P. R. 51.

In England a town and a country firm, having certain partners in common, are treated as the same firm, and not as principals and agents: Re Borough Com. & Bdg. Soc., 1894, 1 Ch. 289.

15. SHORTHAND REPORTERS.

Copies of evidence.

93. All copies of evidence required to be furnished by the official shorthand reporters shall be obtained and paid for through such officer as may from time to time by Rule of Court or Order in Council be named for the purpose. New.

Mr. Strange of the Registrar's office is now the person to whom applications for copies of the shorthand reporters' notes should be made.

See Ind. Act, ss. 169-171.

For the fees payable for copies of evidence, see notes to Rule 792.

16. EXPERTS.

Court may obtain service of experts.

94. The Court may obtain the assistance of merchants, engineers, accountants, actuaries, or scientific persons, in such way as it thinks fit, the better to enable it to determine any matter in evidence in any cause or proceeding, and may act on the certificate of such persons. Con. Rule 207.

Master cannot employ experts.

It is only the Court that is authorized to obtain the assistance of experts. A Master to whom a cause is referred, has no authority to employ experts for the purpose of assisting him to come to a conclusion on matters referred to him: Re Robertson, Robertson v. Robert- son, 24 Gr. 555; Mildmay v. Lord Methuen, 1 Drew. 216; 16 Jur. Rule 94. 965; but see contra, Re London & Birmingham Ry. Co., 6 W. R. 141; and see Rule 683, note.

Where, however, the Master had, at the instance of the plaintiff, and with the consent of the creditors, in an administration suit, employed an expert, and the parties received the benefit of his services without objection, the Court on appeal by the creditors refused to disallow the costs incurred: Re Robertson, Robertson v. Robertson, supra. Costs of expert may be allowed though incurred improperly.

This Rule gives a wide discretion to the Court as to the manner in which experts shall be employed; but apparently it does not give the Court power to direct experts to be employed for the purpose of giving evidence as witnesses; it appears merely to enable the Court to procure the assistance of experts for the purpose of getting their opinions, on the evidence adduced by the parties, or upon a view of the locus in quo: see Enderwick v. Alden, 88 L. T. Jour. 12.

In Broder v. Saillard, 25 W. R. 456, the Judge at the trial, appointed an independent surveyor to make a report, and at the adjourned hearing his report was handed to the Judge: the Judge thought that two points should be stated more fully, and he directed the surveyor to make an addition to his report, observing that he preferred not to allow the surveyor to be sworn as a witness, as he was acting in a quasi-judicial capacity.

Where there is contradictory evidence on a scientific question the Court is at liberty to employ an independent expert to give advice upon which the Court may form its judgment: Badische Anilin, etc., v. Levinstein, 24 Ch. D. 156. Cases in which expert appointed.

An expert has been employed to ascertain the effect of a dam on the water penned back: Dickson v. Burnham, 14 Gr. 601; 17 Gr. 265; Hawkins v. Mahaffy, 29 Gr. 326; and the amount of encroachment of alluvium on a sea shore: Attorney-General v. Chambers, 4 DeG. & J. 55, 58; and as to the effect of using steamboats on a canal: Case v. Midland Ry. Co., 27 Beav. 247. As to the circumstances under which the Court will send an expert, to report in the case of a suit to abate a nuisance, see Slavin v. North Bancepeth Coal Co., L. R. 9 Chy. 705; Enderwick v. Alden, supra.

Where a plaintiff proves himself entitled to an injunction against a nuisance, or other injury, the Court cannot, before pronouncing judgment, order an expert to be employed, for the purpose of ascertaining the best mode of removing the nuisance, etc., even though the injunction to which the plaintiff is entitled be a difficult one for the defendant to obey: Attorney-General v. Colney Hatch Asylum, L. R. 4 Chy. 146; and a general inquiry as to what ought to be done to preserve the plaintiff's light and air was refused: Stokes v. City Office Co., 13 W. R. 537. But after judgment, the opinion of an expert may be taken, as to the time which ought to be allowed for carrying it into effect: Attorney-General v. Merthyr Tydfil, 5 W. R. 148. Court cannot refuse to grant relief against nuisance until inquiry made by expert as to how it may be best abated.

In the Baltic Co. v. Simpson, 24 W. R. 390, it was held that the Court ought not, under 15 & 16 Vict. c. 80, s. 42, or sec. 57 of the Jud. Act (now R. S. O. c. 62, s. 29), to make an order before trial, appointing a scientific person to report on a question of fact.

Where a matter is referred by the Court to an expert for report, a formal order of reference to him should be drawn up; but where an expert acted, and made his report, without this having been done, the Court acted on the report notwithstanding the objection: Enderwick v. Alden, 88 L. T. Jour. 12.

Appointment may be ex parte.

Where an expert is employed, it is not absolutely necessary that the appointment should be made in the presence of the parties: Re London & Birmingham Ry. Co., 6 W. R. 141.

Expert cannot call witnesses.

An expert cannot call witnesses: Morris v. Llanelly Ry. Co., W. N. 1868, 46; and his report is not conclusive: Ford v. Tynte, 2 D. J. & S. 127; Adamson v. Gill, 16 W. R. 306.

Assessors.

Under the Jud. Act, s. 101, the Court may call in the aid of one or more assessors specially qualified, and may try or hear a cause or matter wholly, or partially, with the assistance of such assessors. Where experts are called in to act as assessors their powers are merely advisory, and the Court is not bound to adopt, or follow, the advice which they may offer. Assessors sit with the Judge and hear the evidence upon which their advice is required. It has not been usual for them to take any oath of office.

The Court cannot after the evidence has been taken in an action call in the aid of experts as assessors, and base its judgment on their opinion as to the result of conflicting testimony of a technical character: Wright v. Collier, 19 Ont. App. 298; not even though the assessors are so called in with the consent of the parties: Ib.

Reference to experts under R. S.
O. c. 62, ss.
28, 29.

Under The Arbitration Act, sec. 28, any question arising in any cause or matter may be referred to a Judge of a County Court, or an official referee, or to any referee agreed on by the parties, for inquiry and report, and in this way the assistance of experts may be obtained. And under sec. 29 a cause or matter may, in certain cases therein mentioned, be referred to a special referee (if the parties so agree) for trial.

No power it will be seen is given to the Court under sec. 28 or 29, to refer a cause to anybody but a Judge of a County Court, or an official referee, except by consent of the parties. Where, therefore, a reference is required under those sections to an expert, it would seem that the parties must agree on the referee to be named. It is possible, however, that this Rule may be held so to amplify the power of the Court as to enable it to refer causes for the purposes mentioned in sections 28 and 29, to special referees of its own nomination, independently of the consent of the parties.

Where a reference is directed to an expert for inquiry or report under sec. 28, or for trial under sec. 29, that is, of course, an exception to the rule laid down in Morris v. Llanelly Ry. Co., supra, that he cannot call witnesses: see Rules 648, 650.

Where a question, or a cause or matter, is referred to a special referee under sec. 28 or 29, his report is appealable in the same way and within the same time as a Master's report: see Rules 654, 769.

Expert
evidence.

Where an expert is required to give evidence, his evidence should be given viva voce, as the Court as a general rule discourages the taking of such evidence by commission: The Attorney-General v. Gooderham, 10 P. R. 259.

It is provided by 2 Ed. vii., c. 15, that not more than three expert witnesses on each side shall be examined without leave, to be obtained before the examination of any of the three which may be called without leave, in any action, arbitration, or other proceeding.

In the case of proceedings within the jurisdiction of the Dominion Rule 94. Parliament, five may be called subject to the like provision: 2 Ed. vii., c. 9 (D.).

Where parties adduce quasi expert evidence, it is not open to the Court, upon a trial by jury, to withdraw the case from the jury, because, in the opinion of the Court, the witnesses are incompetent to give expert evidence, but the evidence must be submitted quantum valent; e.g., in an issue in which the mental capacity of a testator was in question, the evidence of witnesses who spoke to his mental capacity was held to be admissible, even though the witnesses were not, in the opinion of the Court, experts: Regan v. Waters, 10 Ont. App. 85. As to the weight to be attached to the conclusions of scientific witnesses, see Goldamid v. Tunbridge Wells, L. R. 1 Chy. 349.

Where the opinions of experts on foreign law are conflicting, the Court may examine for itself the text books and judicial decisions of the foreign country, in order to arrive at a satisfactory conclusion: Rice v. Gunn, 4 Ont. 579; The Stettin, 14 P. D. 142. The Court will not receive the opinions of experts as to the proper construction of a statute: e.g., the evidence of surveyors as to the correct mode of making a survey under a statute is inadmissible: Stafford v. Bell, 6 Ont. App. 273.

The costs incurred in order to qualify experts to give evidence are not taxable between party and party: see Molannon v. Clarke, 9 P. R. 555.

CHAPTER III.

SITTINGS OF THE COURTS.

- | | |
|---|---|
| 1. COURT OF APPEAL, 95, 96. | (iii) Weekly Sittings, Ottawa and London, 104-112. |
| 2. HIGH COURT, | (iv) Sittings for trials, 113. |
| (i) Distribution of business, 97. | (v) Vacation Business, 114, 115. |
| (ii) Weekly Sittings, Toronto, 98-103. | (vi) Divisional Courts, 116-119. |

1. COURT OF APPEAL.

[Rules 95 and 96 were repealed by Rule 1233.]

2. HIGH COURT.

(i) Distribution of Duties amongst the Judges.

Distribution of work amongst Judges.

97. In case a Judge of the High Court assigned to any duty is unable to act, or in case some special work requires to be done by a Judge for which no appointment has been made, it shall be competent for any two of the Presidents of Divisions of the High Court, by writing, under their hands, to assign the particular work or duty to any Judge of the High Court. Rules of 1 Jan., 1896, 1427 (213 A.).

(ii) Weekly Sittings at Toronto.

Sittings of Weekly
Court.

98. A Judge shall be at Osgoode Hall every week, except during vacations, for the purpose of disposing of all business, except trials, which may be transacted by a single Judge. All applications in respect to such business are to be made to him. Rules 29 Dec., 1893, 1276 (210).

The Judge sitting in the Weekly Court has no jurisdiction to entertain an appeal from an order of a Judge of the High Court made in a criminal proceeding: Reg. v. Graham, 29 Ont. 193.

Business.

99. The business of the weekly sittings shall be as follows: Tuesday and Friday, Chambers; Monday, Wednesday and Thursday, Court. Rule 1259 of 28th Nov., 1903.

Settling down.

100 All Court business, except ex parte motions, shall be entered on a list for the proper day, and shall be disposed of in the order of entry, unless otherwise directed by the Judge. Rules 29 Dec., 1893, 1276 (212).

101. The proper officer shall make out and transmit to the Clerk of the Weekly Court a list of all business set down for argument in the Weekly Court. Rules of 1 Jan., 1896, 1426. Rules 101-104.
Cause list.

102. All papers relating to proceedings in the Weekly Court at Toronto shall be filed in the Registrars' office. Rules 1 Jan., 1896, 1501, amended. Filing papers in Registrars' office.

Affidavits before the Court on a motion and mentioned in the order made thereon, were held to be taxable, though filed in the office of the Clerk in Chambers instead of in the Registrars' office: Sturgeon Falls P. Co. v. Sturgeon Falls, 10 P. R. 286.

No. 8 of the Regulations of the High Court, passed on 17th Dec., 1904, to take effect from 31st Dec., 1904, is as follows:

(8) When a case is required to be set down for a Divisional Court, Weekly Court or Chambers, the officer shall require the party desiring the case to be set down to indorse on the notice of motion the name of the office in which the action or proceeding was commenced, and the officer shall not set down any case without such indorsement, unless otherwise ordered by the Court or a Judge.

103. All documents sent from local offices to Toronto for use in the Weekly Court shall be sent to The Central Office, and the necessary return postage or express charge shall be transmitted therewith. Rules 29 Sept., 1894, 1382; 1 Jan., 1896, 1425. Transmission of papers to Toronto.

(iii) Weekly sittings at Ottawa and London.

104.—(1) Subject to the Rules of Court, sittings of the High Court of Justice shall be held at Ottawa and London respectively at least once one day in each week, except during vacations; and all proceedings in any action or matter which may be heard and disposed of before a Judge in Court, or by a Judge in Chambers (not including such proceedings as may in the first instance be heard and disposed of by the Master in Chambers or Local Judge), may be heard and determined at such Weekly sittings in the cases following: Sittings of High Court at Ottawa and London.

Matters which may be heard at such sittings.

(a) Where the solicitors for all parties reside in the county in which the sittings are held;

(b) Or where such solicitors, who do not so reside, consent in writing under their hands to the proceeding being heard at such sittings;

Rules
105 106.

(c) Or where such solicitors as do not so reside or so consent as aforesaid shall have registered their names in the book to be kept as hereinafter provided ;

(d) Or where the solicitors for all parties are so resident or consent as aforesaid with the exception of the solicitor for the party on whose behalf and at whose instance the proceeding is being taken ;

(e) Or where the party making and entitled to make an ex parte motion sees fit to make it at said sittings ;

(f) Or where any Rules of Court made hereafter, or where any Court or Judge may direct any proceedings to be heard at such sittings. 58 V. c. 12, s. 95.

Rules as to sittings at Ottawa and London.

(2) Upon the written request of a majority of the practising solicitors resident at Ottawa and London, or either of them, the Judges of the High Court may by Rule, passed as provided by section 134 (x) of The Judicature Act, 1895, substitute monthly or semi-monthly sittings in either or both of the said cities, as the case may be, in lieu of such Weekly Sittings. 58 V. c. 12, s. 96.

(x) See now Jud. Act, sec. 124.

"Proceedings," what to include.

105. Proceedings under Rules 104 to 112 inclusive shall be deemed to include motions, petitions, special cases, appeals and other proceedings and matters generally which by the law and practice of the said Court may be heard and disposed of by a single Judge in Court as aforesaid. 58 V. c. 12, s. 101.

Practice.

106. The Rules relating to setting down and giving notice of motions and other matters before a Judge in Court, or in Chambers in Toronto, shall mutatis mutandis apply to proceedings under Rules 104 to 112. 58 V. c. 12, s. 104.

Duties of Deputy Clerks and Local Registrars.

107. The Deputy Clerk of the Crown or Local Registrar at Ottawa and London respectively, shall in regard to matters under Rules 104 to 112, perform the duties pertaining to the Registrars' office and Clerk of the Weekly Court or Clerk in Chambers at Osgoode Hall. 58 V. c. 12, s. 99.

Fees

108. Where proceedings are taken under the provisions of Rules 104 to 112, no greater fees shall be taxed as between party and party or between solicitor and client than ^{Rules} would have been taxable had such proceedings been carried ^{109-111.} on in accordance with the previously existing practice. 58 V. c. 12, s. 102.

109. To avoid the necessity of a Judge attending when there is no business, all proceedings to be brought on at any such Weekly Sittings shall be entered for that purpose with the Deputy Clerk of the Crown or Local Registrar on or previously to the day next but one before the day appointed for the sittings; and it shall be the duty of the Deputy Clerk or Local Registrar on the evening of the last day for making such entries to notify by mail or telegram the Senior Registrar of the High Court at Toronto, or another officer of the High Court named for the purpose from time to time by the Court, as to whether any and what business has been so entered, and the said Senior Registrar or other officer shall forthwith by note in writing inform the Judge appointed to attend at such sittings; and if no business has been so entered it shall not be necessary for any Judge to attend. 58 V. c. 12, s. 97.

110.—(1) Where the Judge whose duty it is to hold such sittings is not able to hold the same on the day appointed for that purpose, such sittings may be presided over by some other Judge of the High Court or by a Judge of any County Court in Ontario, or by one of [His] Majesty's Counsel learned in the law appointed for Upper Canada or for the Province of Ontario, upon such Judge of a County Court or Counsel being requested by a Judge of the High Court to attend for that purpose. ^{Where Judge unable to attend on the day fixed.}

(2) Such Judge or Counsel while holding the sittings shall possess all the powers and authorities of a Judge of the High Court. 58 V. c. 12, s. 103.

111. Solicitors desiring to be registered shall file with the Deputy Clerk of the Crown or Local Registrar at the place of such sittings a request to the effect following: ^{Form of declaration by solicitors desiring to be registered}

I (or in the case of a firm, we) hereby request the Deputy Clerk of the Crown (or Local Registrar) of the High Court at Ottawa (or London) to register my (or our) name as consenting to the hearing and disposal at the sittings of the High Court at Ottawa (or London as the case may be)

Rules 112, 113. of all proceedings in which I (or we) may be acting as solicitor (or solicitors) as provided by The Judicature Act, 1895, and Rules of Court. 58 V. c. 12, s. 98.

"Consent register."

112.—(1) A book to be called "The Carleton (or Middlesex) consent register" shall be kept by the Deputy Clerk of the Crown or Local Registrar at Ottawa and London respectively, wherein shall be recorded such requests as aforesaid and the names of the local agents (if any) of the solicitors filing the said request; and such solicitors so registered shall be deemed to have consented to the hearing at the said sittings of any proceeding that may lawfully be made thereat.

(2) The book shall be open to inspection by any solicitor or his clerk without fee or reward.

(3) A solicitor who files such request may at any time withdraw the same by giving to the same officer notice in writing to that effect as respects future actions. In respect of actions begun before such withdrawal the order of a Judge made on notice shall be necessary. The Deputy Clerk or Local Registrar, upon receiving such notice of withdrawal, or such order of a Judge, shall forthwith make an entry thereof in the said book.

(4) The Judge holding any such sittings shall take judicial notice of the said book and the entries therein. 58 V. c. 12, s. 100.

(iv) Sittings for Trials.

Appointment of.

113. The Judges of the High Court of Justice (four of whom (x) shall form a quorum for the transaction of business) shall appoint the days upon which the Assizes and sittings for trials shall be held. Con. Rule 213 : Rules 1 Jan., 1896, 1427 (213 B).

(x) Jud. Act, s. 82 (2), provides that the Judges of the High Court of Justice, or a majority of them, shall perform the above duty. The provisions of this Rule would seem to prevail: see sec. 129.

Sittings for trial of non-jury actions at Toronto are appointed from time to time as occasion may require, and are ordinarily held for about 10 consecutive weeks, between 1st February and 1st June, and about 10 consecutive weeks between 1st September and December, and separate sittings are appointed for the trial of criminal cases in the spring and autumn.

Two sittings, one for jury, and one for non-jury cases, between Rules January and June, and two similar sittings, between 1st September 114-116. and about 20th December, are ordinarily appointed at each county town.

At Hamilton, Ottawa and London, there are also winter assizes: see s. 83 (3).

(v) Vacation Business.

114. One or more of the Judges of the High Court shall be selected at the commencement of each Long Vacation, for the hearing in Toronto during Long and Christmas Vacations of all such applications as may require to be promptly heard. Con. Rule 214, amended.

Vacation
Judges.

No provision is made for the attendance of the Court of Appeal, or Judges thereof, in vacation.

No business is heard by the vacation Judges, except such as requires "to be promptly heard" within the meaning of the above Rule. As to what is vacation business, see also Re Wigan Junction Railway Co., L. R. 10 Chy. 541. No Judges except the vacation Judges, or those sitting for them, can dispose of business in vacation: Per Lush and Lopes, JJ., 24th September, 1877. Sed quare.

115. All applications within the jurisdiction of the Master in Chambers which require to be immediately or promptly heard during Long Vacation shall be heard by one of the following officers, viz., the Master in Ordinary, the Master in Chambers, and the Registrars of the High Court, who shall arrange among themselves at the commencement of each Long Vacation on what days and for what period each shall act; and in the absence of such arrangement the duty shall devolve upon the said officers in rotation, beginning with the junior officer, in order of appointment, and they shall so sit in rotation at least one day in each week. Rules 1 Jan., 1896, 1428.

Chambers
vacation

(vi) Divisional Courts.

116.—(1) Unless otherwise ordered, sittings of Divisional Courts shall commence on the first Monday of each month (except during the Long and Christmas Vacations); and shall continue to sit for two weeks (except on Saturdays and public holidays and on any days falling in any Vacation) unless the business before the Court is sooner disposed of.

Sittings of Divisional
Courts.

Since the coming into force of sec. 69a, supra, p. 118, the sittings of the Divisional Court are continued from week to week in each month unless the business is sooner disposed of.

Rule 117.

(2) Where the first Monday in a month falls in any Vacation the Sittings shall commence on the first Monday after the expiration of such Vacation ; and where the first Monday in the month is a public holiday the Sittings shall commence on the first juridical day thereafter. Rules of 9 Jan. 1897, 1511.

Proceedings to be taken before Divisional
Courts.

117. In addition to the proceedings and matters elsewhere in these Rules or by Statute expressly provided for, the following proceedings and matters shall be heard and determined before the Divisional Courts ; but nothing herein contained shall take away or limit the power of a single Judge to hear and determine any such proceedings or matters in any case in which he has heretofore had power to do so (a), or require any interlocutory proceeding therein, heretofore taken before a single Judge, to be taken before a Divisional Court:

Cf. Eng. (1883) R. 884, and sec. 67 of the Jud. Act. supra.

Proceedings directed by any statute to be taken before the Court, and in which the decision of the Court is final (b).

Cases of Habeas Corpus, in which a Judge directs that a motion for the writ, or the writ be made returnable before a Divisional Court.

Other (c) cases where all parties agree that the same be heard before a Divisional Court.

Proceedings for or in relation to the quashing of convictions or orders. Con. Rule 219. Rules of 1 Jan., 1896, 1430, 1431, as amended by Rule 1239, 7th June, 1902.

See also secs. 66 and 67 of the Jud. Act.

(a) These matters, except so far as has since been otherwise provided by Statute or Rule, are the matters which were defined in R. S. O. (1877) c. 50, s. 281, which was as follows:

R. S. O.
(1877) c. 50,
s. 281.

281. All matters which according to the law or practice prevailing before the 24th day of March, 1874, had been heard in the Court of Queen's Bench or Common Pleas, before the full Court in Term or in the Practice Court, with the exception of motions for a new trial on account of some error on the part of the Judge before whom the trial was held, motions to enter or set aside a nonsuit, or any other matters being in the nature of an appeal from the decision, judgment or order, of a single Judge; or such matters as the Judges of the said Courts may by Rule or Order, appoint to be heard before the full Court, shall unless a Judge otherwise directs, be heard and disposed of in the first instance by a single Judge sitting under the 20th section of the Act respecting the Courts of Queen's Bench and Common Pleas. See 37 V. c. 7, ss. 17 and 20.

(b) For example, proceedings under the Overholding Tenants Act, Rules R. S. O. c. 171: Re Scottish Ont. and Man. Land Co., 21 Ont. 676; 118, 119. or upon a special case stated by arbitrators under The Arbitration Act (R. S. O. c. 62): Re Geddes & Cochrane, 2 O. L. R. 145.

For the appellate business which may come before a Divisional Court, see the Jud. Act, s. 74. supra, p. 120.

(c) Instead of "other" the Eng. Rule has "special." Before the Jud. Act of 1893 (58 V. c. 12, s. 71), the words "other cases" did not include appeals from judgments or orders of a Judge sitting in the Weekly Court, no appeal then lying in such a case to the Divisional Court, and it was held that consent could not give jurisdiction: Re Wilson and County of Elgin, 16 P. R. 150. See, however, Beatty v. O'Connor, 5 Ont. 731, 737. The cases in which this clause applies are probably those which a single Judge might dispose of, but which from their importance or for other good reason the parties agree to bring before the Divisional Court in the first instance: see Court v. Scott, 32 U. C. C. P. 148; Armstrong v. Provident Life, 2 O. L. R. 771.

A Divisional Court has no jurisdiction in appeal from an order under R. S. O. c. 164, s. 12, dispensing with a wife's concurrence in a bar of her dower: Re Rush, 28 C. L. J. 127. The Judge under that provision acts not as a Judge in Chambers, but as a persona designata for the purposes of the Act: Re McMillan & the Guelph Junction Ry. Co., 12 P. R. 294. As to appeals in such cases, see R. S. O. c. 76, s. 6, as amended by 63 Vict. c. 17, s. 14.

An appeal from an award under The Railway Act, 3 Ed. vii., c. 58, s. 168 (D.), should not be to a Divisional Court, but to a Judge in Court: Re Potter & Central Counties Ry., 16 P. R. 16; Re Montreal & Ottawa Ry. Co. and Ogilvie, 18 P. R. 120.

A Divisional Court has no jurisdiction to entertain appeals from orders of a Judge in Chambers made under the Dominion Winding-up Act (R. S. C. c. 129): Re Sarnia Oil Co., 15 P. R. 182; Re Central Bank (Divisional Court, 16 June, 1898): the appeal in such cases is to the Court of Appeal: R. S. C. c. 129, s. 74.

For the proceedings and matters elsewhere prescribed to be taken before Divisional Courts: see Jud. Act, ss. 67, 73-80, pp. 116, 128, and Rules 770, 777, 778, 797.

The jurisdiction of a Divisional Court is strictly limited by these provisions. It has, therefore, no power to hear an appeal from a Referee or Master: Clarke v. Jamieson, 9 C. L. T. 97; or from the Master in Chambers: Ball v. Cathcart, 16 Ont. 525; as these are provided for by Rules 767-772; and it has no jurisdiction to order a mandamus to a magistrate to entertain an information: Rex v. Meehan, 5 Can. Cr. C. 307; 3 O. L. R. 361; nor has it any original jurisdiction to quash a municipal by-law, except where sec. 67 (1) (f) applies: see formerly Landry v. Ottawa, 11 P. R. 442.

118. All business before a Divisional Court, except ex Cause list, parte motions, shall be set down in the Registrars' office upon payment of the proper fees. Rules of 1 Jan., 1896, 1426 and 1432, amended.

119 Six cases, in the order of priority, in the general Peremptory list, shall be set down in a peremptory list for argument, on each day excepting upon the last day of the sittings. Con. Rule 220, amended.

1. FORM AND COMMENCEMENT OF ACTION.

(i) Writ of Summons.

All actions commenced by writ of summons.

120. All actions shall be commenced by the issue of a writ of summons (a), which shall be prepared by the plaintiff (b), and shall contain the names of the parties and the characters in which they sue and are sued (c), and the office (d) in which and the time within which the defendant is to enter his appearance, and shall be indorsed with a short statement of the nature of the plaintiff's claim (e). Con. Rule 224. Rules of 1 Jan., 1896, 1433.

- (a) See Eng. (1883) R. 1.
 (b) See Eng. (1883) R. 3.
 (c) See Eng. (1883) R. 14.
 (d) See Eng. (1883) Rs. 25, 26.
 (e) See Eng. (1883) Rs. 11-13, 16-18.

Every writ must have the full title of the action, including the names of all the defendants and their addresses: State Savings Bank v. Columbia Iron Works, 6 O. L. R. 358; but need only be directed to the particular defendant or defendants intended to be served with it. Where different times have to be mentioned for different defendants to appear, the proper course is to issue concurrent writs: Traill v. Porter, 1 L. R. 1r. 60; see Burt v. Bowen, 8 Times, 28. Rule 120.
Actions generally.

The term "action" is defined by the Act (s. 2), to be a civil proceeding commenced by writ, or in such other manner as may be prescribed by Rules of Court. See also Rule 6 (c). As to the effect of this definition, see Darcy v. Whittaker, 33 L. T. 778; 24 W. R. 244; and notes to sec. 2 and Rule 6 (c).

There is to be no special form of writ for particular kinds of actions, such as proceedings by capias, and against absconding debtors, in dower, replevin, ejectment, etc. See also Rules 142, 177, 1021, 1058, 1067; all are to be commenced by writ of summons. As to the former practice, see Holmsted & Langton, Jud. Act, 1st ed., p. 270; and Bank of Hamilton v. Aitkin, 20 Ont. App. 616.

Proceedings appear to have been instituted by a writ of scire facias in Shaver v. Cotton, 16 P. R. 278.

Con. Rule (1888) 224, on which the present Rule 120 is based, expressly provided inter alia that all suits which were commenced by bill or information, shall be commenced by the issue of a writ of summons; but scilicet, "information" in that Rule only included "information in Chancery," and not an information in the nature of a quo warranto; see Attorney-General v. Bergin, 29 N. S. R. 135; but as to the procedure in quo warranto; see now R. S. O. 1897, c. 324, ss. 31-35.

An action may, by amendment of the writ and statement of claim, be turned into an action by the Attorney-General at the suit of a relator corresponding to an information under the old practice, the sanction of the Attorney-General being obtained: Caldwell v. Pagham Harbour, etc., Co., 2 Ch. D. 221; Wallasey v. Gracey, 36 Ch. D. 599; see Rule 312. The title information is no longer to be used: Attorney-General v. Shrewsbury Bridge, 42 L. T. 79; W. N. 1880, 23; but the name of a relator is to be used where the action does not immediately concern the rights of the Crown; see Brooks v. Terry, 4 Times, 678. Where the rights of the Crown are immediately concerned, the action may be brought by the Attorney-General alone without a relator: Atty.-Gen. v. Logan, 1891, 2 Q. B. 107; but such an action can only be instituted by his sanction; see Attorney-General v. Toronto Street Railway Co., 2 Chy. Ch. 165, and his fiat should be obtained and indorsed on the writ and a copy thereof. The copy should then be filed under Rule 123.

Where the action is to enforce a public right, e.g., the proper management of a city park, it must be brought by the Attorney-General: Hope v. Hamilton Park Commissioners, 1 O. L. R. 477.

The address of the defendant is a necessary part of the writ. If omitted the writ may, in a proper case, be amended by inserting it; but where defendant lived out of Ontario, and no cause of action within Rule 162 was shown, the writ was set aside: State Savings Bank v. Columbia Iron Works, 6 O. L. R. 358. See also notes to Rules 127 and 128. Address of defendant.

Rule 120.

Indorsement of claim.

Except so far as Rule 244 applies, it is irregular to proceed by statement of claim upon a different cause of action from that mentioned in the writ: see United Telephone Co. v. Tasker, 59 L. T. 852, and notes to Rules 242 and 244.

In case a mandamus, or an injunction, or a receiver is claimed, the plaintiff ought to indorse his writ accordingly, though, if the necessity for such relief arises incidentally in the course of the action, the Court has power to give the relief even if a claim for it was not indorsed on the writ: see Colebourne v. Colebourne, 1 Ch. D. 690; Norton v. Gover, W. N. 1877, 206. A defective indorsement may be amended. A general power of amending proceedings is given by Rule 312.

In an action for administration, the writ should show that such is the nature of the action, by being entitled "in the matter of the estate of": Re Jones, Eyre v. Cox, 24 W. R. 317.

No very precise indorsement of the nature of the claim is required: see Rule 137.

A writ against A. O. & R. indorsed to have set aside a deed from A. to O., and a deed from O. to A., was held sufficient, and a motion by R. to have service on him set aside as shewing no cause of action against him was refused: Gilmore v. Orford, 11 P. R. 437.

Character of parties.

Where a woman is made a defendant, she ought to be described in the writ as a spinster, married woman, or widow: Tofield v. Roberts, 96 L. T. Jour. 11; W. N. 1894, 74; Re Poinons, W. N. 1891, 139; where a plaintiff sues on behalf of a class it should so appear in the title of the action; a statement to that effect in the body of the statement of claim is not sufficient: Re Tottenham, 1896, 1 Ch. 628; 74 L. T. 376.

Action on
a class.

In Worraker v. Pryer, 2 Ch. D. 109, it was held by Jessel, M.R., and in Re Boyle, 5 Ch. D. 540, by Bacon, V.C., and in Adcock v. Peters, W. N. 1876, 139; 2 Charl. N. C. (Court) 288, by Malins, V.C., that in an ordinary creditors' action for administration of the real and personal estate of a deceased debtor, the action must be by the plaintiff on behalf of himself and all the other creditors; and the writ must be indorsed accordingly. In the earlier case of Cooper v. Blissett, 1 Ch. D. 691, Hall, V.C., had taken a contrary view. In the later case of Eyre v. Cox, 24 W. R. 317, Jessel, M.R., said that when it appeared in the statement of claim that the plaintiff was suing on behalf of himself and other creditors, it was not necessary to amend the writ by the insertion of these words. See also McNab v. Macdonnell, 15 P. R. 14.

Where a judgment for administration is applied for under Rule 944, et seq., it has not been the practice to require the style of the cause to shew that the action is on behalf of all the creditors, etc. See also Re Blount, 27 W. F. 865.

See notes to Rule 200, as to class suits.

Plaintiffs suing on behalf of a class, should specify the class as accurately as possible: Marshall v. S. Staffordshire Tramways Co., 1895, 2 Ch. 36.

A statement of the representative capacity in which a plaintiff sues cannot be supplied from allegations in plaintiff's affidavits on a motion: Hynes v. Fisher, 4 Ont. 78; but may be shewn in the statement of claim if omitted in the writ: McNab v. Macdonnell, 15 P. R. 14.

The irregularity of omitting to indorse the character in which the Rules plaintiff sues, if a representative one, may be waived by appearance: 121-124.

Where notice of action is necessary it may not be required where the principal relief sought is an injunction, and damages are only claimed as subsidiary thereto: see Flower v. Low Leyton, 5 Ch. D. 347.

121. The writ of summons may be issued in any county. Writ may issue in any county.
Con. Rule 230.

This Rule corresponds substantially with the Eng. (1883) R. 23, and with the former practice in this Province as respects transitory actions.

The writ in an action for recovery of land may under this Rule issue in High Court cases out of the proper office in any county without reference to the locality of the land, though the trial must, under Rule 529, be in the county where the land lies: Canada Permanent, etc. v. Foley, 9 P. R. 273. In County Court cases under R. S. O. c. 55, s. 23 (8), the action must be brought as well as tried in the county in which the land is: R. S. O. c. 55, s. 36.

An action for assignment of dower is an action for the recovery of land: McCulloch v. McCulloch, 4 C. L. T. 252.

122. Writs of summons in the county of York shall be issued out of the Central Office and in other counties by either the Deputy Clerk of the Crown or Deputy Registrar at the option of the plaintiff, or in counties where there is a Local Registrar by such Local Registrar. Rules of 1 Jan., 1896, 1435. From what office.

123. The proper officer shall, on receiving a copy of the writ so prepared, to be filed with him, issue the writ by signing and sealing the same with his seal of office. Rules of 1 Jan., 1896, 1434. Con. Rules 229, 234. Issue of writs of summons.

See Eng. (1883) R. 33.

The issue of the writ is not a judicial act and the Court will take cognizance of the fact that it was not issued till later in the day than the cause of action arose: Clarke v. Bradlaugh, 8 Q. B. D. 63.

A writ sealed but not signed was held valid: Archibald v. Strathg., 18 S. C. R. 116.

124. The writ shall bear date on the day on which it is issued, and shall be tested in the name of the President of the High Court of Justice. See Rules 23 June, 1894, 1307. Date and teste of writ.

Corresponds substantially with the Eng. (1883) R. 10, which also provides that all other writs shall be similarly tested. The date of most other writs is provided for by Rules 478 and 867, and the teste by the Forms given in the App. Nos. 166-184. In Ontario, by section 3, sub-section 10, of The Judicature Act, the President of the High Court is "that one of the Presidents of the [King's] Bench, Chancery and Common Pleas Divisions, who, for the time being, is first in order of seniority."

Rules

A clerical error in the teste is of no importance: Pleasants v. East Derham, 47 L. T. 439; Warron v. Stalker, 47 L. T. 444. See also Rule 312.

Where the teste was "witness, . . . Lord High Chancellor," leaving out the name of the Lord Chancellor, the writ was held to be good: McNay v. Alt, 66 L. T. 832.

See Rule 312 as to irregularities in the teste of writs.

Absence from the Province of the Judge in whose name writs are tested, does not render it improper to teste writs in his name: Brett v. Smith, 1 P. R. 309.

A writ issued after the cause of action accrued, but on the same day is good. The issue of the writ is the act of the party and not of the Court, and the Court will in such case inquire as to the actual time, and not refer the act to the first moment of the day: Clark v. Bradlaugh, 7 Q. B. D. 151; 8 Q. B. D. 63; see Lord Dorchester v. Petrie, 3 Doug. 273.

Office from which issued to be noted in the margin.

125. The officer shall note in the margin of the writ under his hand from what office and in what county it is issued, and shall subscribe his name thereto. Con. Rule 228. Rule of 1 Jan., 1896, 1437.

Process Book.

Procedure Book.

Writ for service in Ontario.

126. The officer shall make an entry of and number every writ of summons issued by him in the Process Book, and in case of any further proceeding in the action, an entry thereof shall be made in the Procedure Book. Con. Rule 235.

127. Where the service is to be made in Ontario (whether upon the defendant personally or in any other manner), the writ shall be according to Form No. 1 in the Appendix. Con. Rule 231, amended.

See Eng. (1883) R. 5.

For Form No. 1, see H. & L. Forms, No. 35.

A writ in the form for service within the jurisdiction will not be set aside before service because the defendant is resident without the jurisdiction, for the plaintiff may wait until he comes within the jurisdiction to serve him: The Helenslea, 7 P. D. 57; 47 L. T. 446; and see Snor v. Cole, 7 P. R. 162; Fry v. Moore, 23 Q. B. D. 395, 397.

Where a writ for service on persons domiciled within, was served on them without the jurisdiction, leave was given to issue nunc pro tunc a concurrent writ for service out of the jurisdiction, and to amend the copies served in accordance therewith: Metcalf v. Davis, 6 P. R. 275.

Where a writ for service out of the jurisdiction is issued, and the defendant is abroad, the Judge may, if the circumstances warrant substitutional service, order a copy to be served within the jurisdiction: Ford v. Shephard, 34 W. R. 63; 53 L. T. 564. Where a writ is served substitutionally it should be in the form in which it would be required to be if personal service were being effected, i.e., if the defendant is within the jurisdiction, the writ must be one for service within the jurisdiction; and if the defendant is out of the jurisdiction, the writ, though served substitutionally within the jurisdiction, must nevertheless be in the form of one for service out of the jurisdiction: see Worcester Banking Co. v. Firbanks, 1894, 1 Q. B. 784; 1894, 70 L. T. 443; and notes to Rule 162.

The form contemplates the defendant's address being stated in the body of the writ, but an incorrect statement of his address will not invalidate the writ: Smith v. Hammond, 1896, 1 Q. B. 571; but its omission, coupled with the fact that no cause of action is shown against the defendant properly sueable in Ontario, may be a ground for setting the writ aside: State Savings Bank v. Columbia Iron Works, 6 O. L. R. 358.

In The W. A. Scholten, 36 W. R. 559, a writ was set aside for not containing the address of defendant as prescribed by the form of writ, but the decision seems to have proceeded upon the fact that the defendant was a foreign corporation, and if the address abroad had been inserted the writ could not have been issued without leave. But see The Helenslea, 7 P. D. 57; Zuccato v. Young, 38 W. R. 474. See also Sedgwick v. Yedras Mining Co., 35 W. R. 780.

128. A writ for service out of Ontario shall be according to Form No. 2, and shall bear indorsement that such writ is for service out of Ontario. Where the defendant is not a British subject, and is not in British Dominions, notice of the writ, according to Form No. 3, shall be served in lieu of the writ. Con. Rule 232. See Rule 168.

Writ and notice for service out of jurisdiction.

See Eng. (1883) R. 7.

For Form No. 2, see H. & L. Forms, No. 36, and for Form No. 3, ib. No. 37.

The last clause is adopted from R. S. O. 1877, c. 50, s. 45, and is not in the English Rule. As to the form of affidavit of service: see Bustros v. Bustros, 14 Ch. D. 849, and H. & L. Forms, Nos. 70 et seq.

A writ not according to the form for service out of the jurisdiction may, if served out of the jurisdiction, be set aside: Sedgwick v. Yedras, 35 W. R. 780.

Where a writ for service on a foreigner out of the jurisdiction was served on him while within the jurisdiction on a temporary visit, a judgment signed by default of appearance was held to be regular: Snare v. Cole, 7 P. R. 162.

Where a foreigner is served out of the jurisdiction, with a writ, instead of a notice as prescribed by this Rule, the service is void: Howitson v. Fabre, 21 Q. B. D. 6.

See also notes to Rules 127 and 162.

Rules

129, 130.

Concurrent writs for service within or without the jurisdiction.

129 The plaintiff may at any time within twelve months after the issuing of the writ, issue concurrent writs, tested of the same day as the original writ, and marked "concurrent," and with the date of actual issue. Concurrent writs shall only be in force during the currency of the original writ. Con. Rule 236.

See Eng. (1883) R. 40.

The twelve months are calendar months: Rule 342.

By the terms of this Rule the concurrent writ can only be issued within the twelve months for which the original writ is current: see also Smallpage v. Yonge, 17 Q. B. D. 644; but under Rule 353 the Court or Judge may enlarge the time, and after the renewal of the original writ under Rule 132, may allow a concurrent writ to issue: Smallpage v. Yonge, supra, and Re Jones, Eyre v. Cox, 46 L. J. Ch. 316; W. N. 1877, 38.

Where different times are to be mentioned for different defendants to appear, the proper course is to issue concurrent writs: Truitt v. Porter, 1 L. R. Ir. 60; see Hurt v. Borch, 8 Times, 28; so that that course will be proper where several defendants out of the jurisdiction are given different times to appear, or where some defendants are within and others without the jurisdiction: see next Rule, and Beddington v. Beddington, 24 W. R. 248; 34 L. T. 386; 45 L. J. (P. D. & A.) 44.

Where it is sought to issue a concurrent writ for service out of the jurisdiction on a party alleged to be a necessary party to an action against a defendant resident within the jurisdiction [see Rule 162 (g)], the defendant within the jurisdiction should be first served; and an application should then be made for leave to issue a concurrent writ for service on the absent party: see Rules 162, 163, 164, and in support of the application it must be shown that the party sought to be served out of the jurisdiction is a necessary party: Collins v. N. B. & M. Ins. Co., 1894, 3 Ch. 228; 71 L. T. 58. The omission to mark the copy served of a concurrent writ as "concurrent" is irregular: ib. See also notes to Rule 162 (g).

Concurrent writs.

130 A writ for service within Ontario may be issued and marked as a concurrent writ with one for service out of Ontario; and a writ for service out of Ontario may be issued and marked as concurrent with one for service within Ontario. Con. Rule 237.

See Eng. (1883) R. 41. Corresponds in substance with R. S. O. 1877, c. 50, s. 52; see Beddington v. Beddington, supra.

A concurrent writ may be issued after the original writ has been issued, and although there is only one defendant, and for service abroad although the original writ is for service within the jurisdiction: Smallpage v. Yonge, 17 Q. B. D. 644; cf. Wilding v. Bean, 1891, 1 Q. B. 100.

Where a defendant, whose domicile was within the jurisdiction, was served abroad with a writ in the form for service within the Province, on an application to set aside the service for irregularity, leave was granted to issue nunc pro tunc, a concurrent writ for service abroad.

and the copies served were directed to be amended to conform to Rules the concurrent writ: Metcalf v. Davis, 6 P. R. 275.

131, 132.

As to substitutional service, within the jurisdiction, of writs against defendants who are abroad: see notes to Rules 127 and 132.

Service on a defendant, within the jurisdiction, of a concurrent writ issued for service on him out of the jurisdiction was, on motion to set it aside, allowed to stand as good service: Marshall v. McFarish, 32 C. L. J. 190.

131. Where a writ has been lost, the Court or a Judge ^{Lost writ.} may order a duplicate thereof to be issued. Rules 23 June, 1894, 1308.

See Eng. (1883) R. 47. Introduced in 1894 by Rule 1308 to meet the difficulty presented in Davies v. Garland, 1 Q. B. D. 250, in which it was held that only the original writ when produced could be renewed. Scoble, a concurrent writ might be issued.

(ii) Renewal of Writ.

132.—(1) The writ shall be in force for twelve months ^{currency} from the date thereof, including the day of such date; but, if ^{of writ.} any defendant has not been served, the writ may at any time before its expiration, by order of the Court or a Judge, be renewed for twelve months, and so from time to time during the currency of the renewed writ.

A local Judge has jurisdiction under this clause: Gilmour v. Magee, 14 P. R. 120.

An original writ of summons, notwithstanding the expiration of 12 months mentioned in this Rule, and even though not renewed, still continues effectual for all purposes, except that of service, the limit of time applying to service only: Re Kerly, Son, & Verden, 1901, 1 Ch. 467.

The twelve months is inclusive of the day of issue, or of the last renewal, if any: Laird v. King, 19 P. R. 307; 1 O. L. R. 51.

(2) The writ shall be renewed by being marked by the ^{Evidence} proper officer, with the date of the order and renewal, upon ^{of renewal.} delivery to him of a copy of the order.

(3) The writ so renewed shall be available to prevent the operation of any statute whereby the time for the commencement of the action is limited and for all other purposes, from the date of the original issue of the writ. See Con. Rule 238.

See Eng. (1883) R. 45, which provides for the renewal being marked with a seal.

This Rule, in 1881, introduced an important change. Theretofore the writ if not served, might, as of right, during its currency, be renewed for six months from the date of renewal, and so on from Rule 132. time to time during the currency of the renewed writ; so as to keep the action alive without service, and thereby defeat the Statute of Limitations for an indefinite time; whereas under this Rule a writ can only be renewed by leave, and if reasonable efforts have been made to serve the defendant, or for other good reason. The application is made ex parte; see Chitty's Arch., 14th ed., 220.

The writ will expire at midnight preceding the anniversary of its issue; see Fitch v. Walker, 7 P. R. 8.

The order, besides providing for the renewal, should also provide that service of the writ may be made notwithstanding the lapse of a year; Gilmour v. Magee, 14 P. R. 120.

The twelve months are calendar months; Rule 142; and run from the date of the writ; Re Jones, Eyre v. Cox, 46 L. J. Chy. 313; W. N. 1877, 38; and vacation is included; see Rule 152, and Mullin v. Bonjar, 7 Ir. C. L. 475.

By Rule 153 a Court or Judge may enlarge the time for any proceeding, and although the prescribed time has elapsed. In Re Jones, Eyre v. Cox, supra, Jessel, M.R., allowed a writ to be renewed after its period of currency had expired, the plaintiff not having been able to serve it; and see Canadian Bank of Commerce v. Tennant, 5 O. L. R. 524; see also St. Louis v. O'Callaghan, 13 P. R. 322, followed in Gilmour v. Magee, supra; Cairns v. Airth, 10 P. R. 100. The Judge exercises a discretion, however, where the time has expired, and where the Statute of Limitations had in the meantime run, the Queen's Bench Division refused to renew the writ; Dogle v. Kaufman, 3 Q. B. D. 7, affirmed in Appeal, 340; see also Hewett v. Barr, 1891, 1 Q. B. 18, where, however, it was said by Kay, L.J., that even in such a case there would, under exceptional circumstances, be a discretion to allow a renewal. Where the plaintiff has made every reasonable effort to serve the writ, or for some unavoidable reason the service has been prevented; see Gilmour v. Magee, supra; but where a writ is ordered to be renewed notwithstanding that the action has become barred by the Statute of Limitations, and the order is not appealed or moved against, it is too late on an appeal from the judgment in the action to raise the objection that the writ ought not to have been renewed; Butler v. McMicken, 32 Ont. 425.

In Mair v. Cameron, 18 P. R. 484, where orders had been made from time to time renewing the writ of summons, but the plaintiff knew, though he did not disclose that he knew, where the defendant could be served, and but for the renewals the Statute of Limitations had barred the plaintiff's claim, the orders were rescinded on defendant's application under Rule 132.

Where an order has been made ex parte under this Rule, it is open to the defendant to move against it within the time prescribed by Rule 132, and to show that no reasonable efforts were made to serve the writ, and that there was no good reason for making the order for renewal, even though the result of setting the order aside will be to make the Statute of Limitations a bar to the claim; Holland v. Dominion Bank, 15 P. R. 56; 22 S. C. R. 130; Mair v. Cameron, 18 P. R. 484; sed vide Canadian Bank of Commerce v. Tennant, 5 O. L. R. 524; and Williams v. Harrison, infra.

The Master in Chambers has jurisdiction to make an ex parte order made by a Local Judge for the renewal of a writ, if material evidence has, even unintentionally, not been brought to the attention of the Local Judge; Williams v. Harrison, 6 O. L. R. 687, and see Langley v. Costigan, 5 O. W. R. 147.

But such a motion, unless made within the time prescribed by Rules 133, 134. Rule 358, viz., within 4 days of its coming to the notice of the applicant, will be too late: Cairns v. Airth, 13 P. R. 100.

Where a defendant is entitled to immunity from suit, a writ of summons cannot properly be issued against him and kept renewed in the expectation that the immunity may cease: Munro v. Gubbins, 1894, 2 Q. B. 352.

Where the writ has expired before service, the copy and service of the writ may be set aside, but not the original writ: Fitch v. Walker, 7 P. R. 8.

Where a defendant has been served with an unrenewed writ after the expiration of twelve months from the date of its issue, he probably cannot treat it as a nullity, but should apply to set aside the service for irregularity: see Rule 310, and Hemp v. Warren, 11 M. & W. 163; 2 Dowl. N. S. 758.

133. The writ so marked shall be evidence of the re- Evidence of renewal newal, and of the commencement of the action as of the date of the original issue of the writ. Con. Rule 239.

See Eng. (1883) R. 46, which corresponds in substance with the English C. L. P. Act, 1852, s. 13, and with R. S. O. 1877, c. 50, s. 28. See Fisher v. Cox, 16 L. T. 397.

(iii) Indorsement of Address.

134 —(1) Where a plaintiff sues by a solicitor, the writ of summons or notice in lieu thereof, shall be indorsed with the solicitor's name or firm and place of business, where pleadings, notices, orders, warrants and other documents, proceedings, and written communications may be served. Address of plaintiff and of solicitor.

(2) Where the solicitor issuing or filing a writ of summons is only agent of another solicitor, his name or firm and place of business, as well as the name or firm and place of business of the principal solicitor, shall be indorsed. Con. Rule 240.

Compare Eng. (1883) R. 19.

Where a petition was indorsed by agents only, it was held to be irregular and was set aside: Re Scholes, 34 W. R. 501; 54 L. T. 466; see also Wray v. Kemp, 26 Ch. D. 169.

It has been held in Ontario that, though not expressly provided in this Rule, the plaintiff's address, as well as the solicitor's address, must be indorsed, as the form of writ No. 1 in the Appendix (H. & L. Form No. 35), so provides, and that form is made imperative by Rule 127: Chess Carley Co. v. Rodger, 4 C. L. T. 500; see also Rule 139. A writ not so indorsed may be set aside as irregular: Ib.; Sherwood v. Goldman, 11 P. R. 433; see also McCready v. Hennessy, 9 P. R. 489.

The address of the plaintiff indorsed must be that of his residence: McC v. Denbigh, 27 Sol. Jour. 617; Stoy v. Peck, 24 Q. B. D. 748; 63 L. T. 46. The business address of a firm is sufficient: ib.; 59 L. J. Q. B. 311.

Rules

135, 136. Where the suit was on behalf of "the plaintiff and all others, the underwriters of a steamship Id at the time of loss in 1873," it was held that there was only one plaintiff, that his address alone need be given; the other persons mentioned were not plaintiffs: Leathby, etc., v. McAndrew, W. N. 1873, 259; 1 Charl. Ch. Ca. 58.

As to obtaining security for costs where an illusory address is given, see notes to Rule 1198. The suit is not irregular, though the address be illusory: Pittsburgh C. & Co. v. Mara, 102 L. T. 532.

Address of plaintiff in person.

135—(1) Where a plaintiff sues in person, there shall be indorsed upon the writ or notice in lieu thereof, his place of residence and occupation.

(2) If his place of residence is more than two miles from the office in which the proceedings are commenced there shall be indorsed also another proper place which shall not be more than two miles from such office, to be called his address for service, where pleadings, notices, orders, warrants and other documents, proceedings, and written communications not requiring personal service may be served.

(3) If the writ or notice is not so indorsed, or if such address or place is more than two miles from the office aforesaid, the opposite party shall be at liberty to proceed by posting up in such office all pleadings, notices, orders, warrants and other documents, proceedings and written communications requiring service. Con. Rule 241.

See Eng. (1883) R. 20.

The clause (3) is not in the English Rule, but corresponds with the practice of the Courts: Arch. Practice (13th ed.), p. 176.

No one but a solicitor or plaintiff in person may issue a writ. Where a person not a solicitor, but purporting to be next friend of a married woman, issued a writ, the writ and all subsequent proceedings were set aside: Swann v. Swann, 43 L. T. 530; 25 Sol. Jour. 134.

As to sufficiency of address, see Smith v. Dobbin, 3 Ex. D. 338.

As to what retainer of a solicitor authorizes him to issue a writ, see Wray v. Kemp, 26 Ch. D. 169.

Defendant's Address.—An incorrect statement of the defendant's address in the writ does not invalidate the writ: Smith v. Hammond, 1896, 1 Q. B. 571.

Indorsement on other proceedings.

136 Indorsements similar to those mentioned in the two next preceding Rules shall also be made upon every writ issued and upon every document by which proceedings are commenced in cases where proceedings are commenced otherwise than by writ of summons. Con. Rule 242.

Rules
137, 138.

Indorsements under Rules 120, 139, are compulsory, as also are those under Rules 141, 142, in the cases therein provided for. Indorsements under Rules 138, 140, are optional.

137. The indorsement of claim may be to the effect of such of the Form[s] in Part II. in the Appendix as are applicable, or if none be applicable, then in such other concise form as the nature of the case may require; and it shall not be essential to set forth the precise ground of complaint, or the precise remedy or relief to which the plaintiff considers himself entitled. Con. Rules 243 and 244.

Form of indorsement.

Precise statement not essential.

See Eng. (1883) Rs. 12 and 13. The object of the indorsement is to identify the claim to which the action relates; one advantage of this being to facilitate a settlement without the action going further. In some cases the indorsement will take the place of a pleading: see Rules 245, 278, etc.

Though the plaintiff's precise ground of complaint, or the precise remedy or relief claimed, need not be set forth under this Rule, still a claim for an injunction or receiver should be indorsed where the obtaining of either is a substantial object of the action: see notes to Rule 120, and Colchourne v. Colchourne, there cited.

As to amendment of the indorsement on the writ: see notes to Rule 312.

An amendment of the indorsement by increasing the amount claimed was allowed after judgment: The Dictator, 1892, P. 64; 66 L. T. 863; and see Wyatt v. Rosherville, 2 Times, 282; Modera v. Modera, 10 Times, 69; Wilder v. Crowe, 10 C. P. 406, 412; Robinson v. Hall, 1 Ont. 266; Smith v. Goldie, 11 P. R. 24; Rowland v. Bennett, 12 P. R. 667; but when, without any such amendment, judgment was signed for damages assessed at a greater amount than was claimed, it was set aside: Chattell v. Daily Mail, 18 Times, 165.

Where a plaintiff seeks to enforce a claim against the separate estate of a married woman, the writ should be indorsed with a claim for that relief, though an amendment may be allowed where such indorsement has been omitted: see the remarks in McNab v. Macdonnell, 15 P. R. 17; referring to Nesbitt v. Armstrong, 14 P. R. 366; Sweetland v. Neville, 21 Ont. 412; see also other cases in notes to Rule 603.

Where a husband is sued as trustee of separate estate of his wife as well as in his personal capacity, the claim against him as such trustee should be made expressly in the indorsement: Dixon v. Dougan, 8 L. R. Ir. 211.

Lis Pendens.—As to the registration of a certificate of lis pendens: see sec. 97 of the Jud. Act, and notes, supra, p. 147.

138—(1) The writ of summons may, at the option of the plaintiff, be specially indorsed with a statement of his claim, or of the remedy or relief to which he claims to be special indorsements.

Rule 138. entitled, where the plaintiff seeks to recover a debt or liquidated demand in money (with or without interest, and whether the interest be payable by way of damages or otherwise), arising—

(a) Upon a contract, express or implied (as, for instance, on a bill of exchange, promissory note, cheque, or other simple contract debt); or,

(b) On a bond or contract under seal for payment of a liquidated sum; or

(c) On a statute where the amount sought to be recovered is a fixed sum of money or in the nature of a debt other than a penalty; or

(d) On a guaranty, whether under seal or not, where the claim against the principal is in respect of a debt or liquidated demand; or

(e) On a trust; and also

(f) In actions for the recovery of land (with or without a claim for rent or mesne profits); and

(g) In actions for the recovery of chattels.

(2) Such special indorsement shall be to the effect of such of the Forms in sec. 2 of Part II. in the Appendix as are applicable. Con. Rule 245, amended.

See Eng. (1883) R. 10; and see R. S. O. 1877, c. 50, s. 19, which latter section was not so wide in its operation as this Rule.

Clause (g) is not in the Eng. Rule, and was first introduced in the present Rule.

The use of this indorsement is optional; the chief advantage in using it is that it will entitle the plaintiff to final judgment in case of default of appearance, and even notwithstanding appearance, unless the defendant can satisfy a Judge that he has a defence, or ought to be allowed to defend; see Rule 603; and where the plaintiff's claim is properly the subject of a special indorsement under this Rule he may not be entitled to any extra costs occasioned by his omitting so to indorse his writ; see Rule 1176.

The difficulties in the previous Rule raised in the decided cases (see H. & L., 2nd ed., p. 253), have been removed by the amendments contained in Rules 138, 573-580 and 603; and a special indorsement is not now vitiated by the indorsement, in addition to claims of the kind mentioned in this Rule, of claims of a different character, and the appropriate judgment may be obtained under Rules 575, et seq., or Rule 603, as to the claims properly the subject of a "special indorsement," and the action may be proceeded with as to any other claims indorsed.

Special Indorsement.—For forms of special indorsement, see Rules 138, Appendix No. 5 (H. & L. Forms No. 39). Such forms must be substantially followed to entitle plaintiff to judgment under Rules 575 or 603, but a merely formal difference will not prejudice: per Archibald J., Anon., W. N. 1876, 53. Special indorsements
demands.

As the object of the special indorsement is to give the defendant an opportunity of avoiding further proceedings by payment of the debt, as well as to entitle the plaintiff to a summary remedy, the indorsement must give sufficient particulars to enable the defendant to satisfy his mind as to whether he ought to pay, or resist: Walker v. Hicks, 3 Q. B. D. 8; and if it gives sufficiently specified particulars to bring to the mind of the defendant knowledge as to what the plaintiff's claim is, it is a good special indorsement: Bickers v. Spight, 22 Q. B. D. 7.

The indorsement may be sufficient though not so full as a statement of claim: see Satchwell v. Clark, 66 L. T. 641; but it must be sufficient to show a cause of action: see Fruhauf v. Grosvenor, 67 L. T. 350; 8 Times, 744.

It cannot be supplemented by affidavits: see notes to Rule 603.

In Anon., W. N. 1875, p. 220, Lush, J., said that it could not be intended that a list of items, extending perhaps over three or four years, should be indorsed on the writ. In an action for the price of goods sold, the dates and amounts of consignments were held necessary: Parpaite v. Dickinson, 38 L. T. 178; 26 W. R. 479.

A claim for arrears of alimony, and alimony pendente lite, is not a claim for "a debt or liquidated demand in money" within this Rule: Bailey v. Bailey, 13 Q. B. D. 855. Neither is a claim for a sum in dispute and requiring assessment or valuation, as a claim by lessor against lessee for amount of dilapidation to premises leased: Clarke v. Berger, 36 W. R. 809; nor a claim for quarterly payments of an annuity secured by a bond for a penal sum, as breaches have to be assigned: Tutcher v. Caralampi, 21 Q. B. D. 414; nor is a claim on a bond conditioned for payment of a sum of money by instalments with interest in the meantime on the unpaid principal, where only some of the instalments are overdue: Star Life, etc. v. Southgate, 18 P. R. 151; nor a claim on a bond given as security for costs: Appelby v. Turner, 19 P. R. 145; but in an action on a common money bond, where only one breach can be assigned, and the penal sum is not for the performance of several covenants, a special indorsement can be framed, e.g., on a bond conditioned for the payment of a sum certain on a day certain: Gerrard v. Cloes, 1892, 2 Q. B. 11.

A claim for damages against an over-holding tenant for double the yearly value of the land, under R. S. O. c. 342, s. 20, is an unliquidated claim: Magann v. Ferguson, 29 Ont. 235.

A claim for unliquidated damages other than interest, whether arising out of contract or tort, even though the amount of damages be fixed and definite, cannot be specially indorsed: Knight v. Abbott, 19 Q. B. D. 11; nor a claim by an unpaid vendor to recover possession of the land sold, and also a money demand: Spears v. Fleming, 19 P. R. 127; nor a claim to recover alleged overpayments made under a contract, on the ground that it has not been carried out by the opposite party, where the amount of the overpayments has not been ascertained or settled between the parties: McIntyre v. Muir, 3 O. L. R. 230; nor a claim by a vendor for a balance of purchase money under a contract, on the ground that he had shown and was ready to show title.

Rule 138. and was willing to convey: Leader v. Tod-Hentley, 1891, W. N. 174; Hood v. Martin, 9 P. R. 313. Such a claim is not a liquidated demand, but only for damages: Laird v. Pim, 7 M. & W. 474.

A claim on a bond for a penal sum cannot be specially indorsed: Star Life, etc. v. Southgate, 18 P. R. 151; but a bond to secure payment of a sum as liquidated damages may be specially indorsed; thus a bond conditioned to obey an injunction restraining defendant from committing trespasses of various kinds was held to depend upon one event only, viz.: the breach of the injunction, and that the sum secured by it was a liquidated sum which might therefore be specially indorsed: Strickland v. Williams, 1899, 1 Q. B. 382.

A special indorsement within Rule 138 may be framed upon a covenant for payment in a mortgage, where foreclosure or sale is not also claimed; but the particular covenant which makes the money payable (e.g., by default in payment of interest), must be sufficiently stated in the indorsement, also the agreement to pay interest, if interest is claimed, under the terms of the mortgage: Munro v. Pike, 15 P. R. 164. But where foreclosure or sale is also asked, the writ must be indorsed under Rule 141, and not under this Rule: Canadian Bank of Commerce v. Bricker, 1 C. L. T. 729; Hill v. Sidebottom, 47 L. T. 224.

In Richardson v. Malloy, before Falconbridge, J., on 5th Aug., 1898, an indorsement respecting a merchant's account with the addition of "And for interest thereon $12," was held to be sufficient within this Rule, to enable the plaintiff to sign judgment for the interest, under Rule 375.

An action upon a foreign judgment is within the Rule: Grant v. Easton, 13 Q. B. D. 302; Solmes v. Stafford, 16 P. R. 78 (where the foreign judgment is one that can be sued on at all, i.e., where it is a final and conclusive judgment: Re Henderson, 37 Ch. D. 244; S. C. sub nom.; Nouvion v. Freeman, 15 App. Cas. 1; 62 L. T. 189, and see Huntington v. Attrill, 20 Ont. App. Appx. i; Dohn v. Gillespie, 33 C. L. J. 394).

A claim based on an implied covenant or equitable obligation to pay cannot be specially indorsed, or support an application under Rule 603: Davidson v. Gurd, 15 P. R. 31.

A place of trial should be named in a special indorsement as no statement of claim may be delivered; and when a place of trial is so named it cannot be changed by the plaintiff by naming a new one in a subsequent statement of claim: Segsworth v. McKinnon, 19 P. R. 178.

Interest

Interest.—Formerly interest could only be claimed by "special indorsement" where it was payable under a contract or by a statute: Gold Ore Reduction Co. v. Parr, 1892, 2 Q. B. 14; Wilkes v. Wood, 1892, 1 Q. B. 684; 66 L. T. 520; Casselman v. Barrie, 14 P. R. 507; Hupck v. Wilson, 18 P. R. 44; and if a contract was relied on, it must have appeared from the indorsement itself, and any defect in that respect could not be supplied by affidavit on a motion for summary judgment: Gold Ore, etc. v. Parr, supra; and see Clarkson v. Dwan, 17 P. R. 92; but now the first clause of the Rule is so framed as to enable a claim for interest, though payable only by way of damages, to be specially indorsed.

See also notes to Rule 603.

Interest on a foreign judgment is recoverable as unliquidated damages: Hollender v. Foulkes, 16 P. R. 175, 204; and Solmes v. Stafford, ib. 78, and formerly could not, but under the present Rule may be "specially indorsed." Under ss. 57 and 88 of The Bills of Exchange Act, 1890, interest accruing from the maturity of a bill or note, and the "expense of noting" or protesting: London and Universal Bank v. Clancarty, 1892, 1 Q. B. 689; Laurence v. Willcocks, ib. 696; McVicar v. McLaughlin, 16 P. R. 450; Clarkson v. Dwan, 17 P. R. 92; are recoverable as liquidated damages and may be specially indorsed, and expense of noting and protesting are sufficiently expressed by the words "bank charges": Dando v. Boden, 1893, 1 Q. B. 318.

Where more than the statutory rate of interest is claimed on a promissory note, the ground on which the claim is based should be specifically stated in the indorsement: see Clarkson v. Dwan, 17 P. R. 92.

Indorsements Insufficient.—The following indorsements have been held to be insufficient: Insufficient indorsements.

(1) "The plaintiff's claim is £399 9s. 7d., the defendant's share or contribution to the payment of certain bills of exchange and promissory notes in which he and the plaintiff were jointly liable, and which bills and notes have been taken up by the plaintiffs": Walker v. Hicks, 3 Q. B. D. 8.

(2) A claim on a dishonoured cheque, where the indorsement did not aver that notice of dishonour had been given to the drawer: Fruhauf v. Grosvenor, 8 Times, 744.

(3) "The plaintiff's claim is £399 9s. 7d., being seventy-five per cent. of the invoice price of goods supplied by the plaintiff to the defendant under an agreement" (giving its date and nature).

"The plaintiffs also claim to recover from the defendants the following bills of exchange, drawn by the plaintiffs and payable to the order of the defendants, being bills drawn for the price of goods supplied by the plaintiffs to the defendants as aforesaid." A list of bills was then set out in the indorsement, giving their dates and amounts: Parpaite v. Dickinson, 38 L. T. 178; 26 W. R. 479.

(4) The plaintiff's claim is for $420.37, balance of work, etc., less credits as agreed upon. The plaintiff claims interest on $420.37 until judgment: Fitzsimmons v. Wilson, 4 C. L. T. 91.

(5) The plaintiff's claim is for $213.90, balance due for sawing wood by the plaintiff for the defendant: Villeneuve v. Wait, 12 P. R. 505.

(6) The plaintiff's claim is against the defendants as makers of a joint and several promissory note, dated 11th April, 1892, £36 6s. 0d. and payable by certain instalments in respect whereof default has been made: Particulars.—To balance of moneys owing upon the said promissory note £24 6s.: Manchester & D. Bank v. Walton, 68 L. T. 167; 5 R. 147.

(7) Where a plaintiff had brought an action for the foreclosure of a mortgage, and had obtained therein the appointment of a receiver, it was held that in a subsequent action on the covenant to recover interest payable under the same mortgage, the interest claimed was not a liquidated sum having regard to the order for the receipt of rents by the receiver, and therefore could not be "specially indorsed": Poulett v. Hill, 1893, 1 Ch. 277; 68 L. T. 476.

Rule 138. (8) "The plaintiff's claim is for the price of goods supplied. The following are the particulars:—$621.06 for money payable by the defendant to the plaintiff for goods bargained and sold and delivered by the plaintiff to the defendant, and interest thereon from 25th July, 1882": Lucas v. Ross, 9 P. R. 251. No reasons are given for holding this to be insufficient, but the omission of the date of sale and the claim of interest would appear to have rendered it bad under the Rule as it then stood.

(9) A claim for $404 for services rendered and money expended for the defendants, indicating the nature of the services and of the expenditure, but not the items, was held to be not a special indorsement: Hoffman v. Crerar, 18 P. R. 473; 19 P. R. 15.

Indorsements held sufficient.

Indorsements Sufficient.—The following indorsements have been held to be sufficient:—

(1) "The plaintiff's claim is £36 5s. for the balance of goods sold." Anon, W. N. 1875, 220; 1 Charl. Ch. Ca. 44. See, however, Parpate v. Dickinson, supra, as to effect of absence of dates.

(2) "The plaintiff's claim is £49 5s. 8d.; the following are the particulars:

and £2 15s. for costs": Smith v. Wilson, 4 C. P. D. 392; 5 C. P. D. 25.

(3) "The plaintiff's claim is for £116 0s. 10d., being the balance due to him from the defendant, for moneys paid at the said defendant's request, and on his behalf, for the purchase of certain stocks and shares, between the 3rd June, 1879, and the 31st August, 1879, an account of which has been rendered and exceeds three folios": Ashton v. Hurwitz, W. N. 1879, 194. The ground of the decision was that such an indorsement would have been sufficient under C. L. P. Act: see R. S. O. 1877, c. 50, s. 19, and the schedule where the form given states that an account previously delivered may be referred to by its date: see also Bickers v. Speight, 22 Q. B. D. 7.

(4) "The plaintiff's claim is £130 due him from the defendant, under an assignment, under the hand of one M. J., and dated July 14, 1888; particulars whereof are as follows: I do hereby authorize and request you to pay to Mr. E. Bickers, of, etc., the sum of £130 being the amount due or to become due from you to me, as appears by an I. O. U. signed by you, and dated Feb. 4, 1885, and his receipt Rule 138, for the same shall be a good discharge": Bickers v. Speight, 22 Q. B. D. 7.

(5) "The plaintiffs claim $2,000, being the amount of the defendants' overdrawn account with the plaintiffs' bank on the 18th September, 1882": Imp. Bank v. Britton, 9 P. R. 274. A similar indorsement omitting the date of the overdraft was held to be insufficient: Ontario Bank v. Burk, 10 P. R. 648.

(6) Claim for payment of a legacy of £2,750, "which has remained unpaid by reason of a breach of trust" with interest, the interest being payable under the will and not as damages: Hamilton v. Brogden, 60 L. J. Chy. 88.

(7) Claim for the amount due under a covenant in a mortgage in an action by an assignee without averring that the mortgagor had been notified of the assignment: Satchwell v. Clark, 66 L. T. 641; S Times, 592.

(8) "To 12 Debentures of Municipality of Morris, in the Province of Manitoba, which debentures are dated . . . and numbered . . . and were issued under a By-law passed . . . being By-law No. 5 of said municipality, which said By-law, and the coupons attached thereto, were legalized and confirmed by the Act of the Manitoba Legislature, 46 & 47 Vict. c. 70. The said debentures fall due respectively, Nos. 10, 11 and 12, on . . . To interest on debentures 10, 11 and 12 since their due date to the issue of this writ, at 6 per cent.": London & Canadian L. & I. Co. v. Rural Mun. of Morris, 11 C. L. T. 20.

(9) A claim by a surety for a debt and costs paid by him for the principal debtor: Borland v. Curry, 4 L. R. Ir. 273.

(10) A claim by a cestui que trust against his trustee for money payable under an express trust: Wilson v. Dundas, W. N. 1875, 222.

(11) An indorsement setting out an agreement by defendant to pay £210 to the plaintiff, if he would deliver to defendant's husband certain bills, was held to be good, notwithstanding that it contained no averment of performance by plaintiff of the conditions precedent: Bradley v. Chamberlyn, 1893, 1 Q. B. 439; 68 L. T. 413.

Actions to Recover Land.—The power to specially indorse a writ in an action for the recovery of land now extends to all actions of ejectment and is not now limited as it was by the former Con. Rule 245, to certain cases between landlord and tenant. In Jarred v. Edwards, 92 L. T. Jour. 8, it was held that the former Con. Rule applied (and a fortiori the present Rule applies) in the case of a tenancy at will. Special indorsement in actions to recover land.

The indorsement of a claim for possession of the mortgaged land in an action for foreclosure is not "a special indorsement" under Rule 138, so as to enable the plaintiff to apply for judgment under Rule 603: Foresters v. Peggy, 19 P. R. 80; nor simile, a claim by an unpaid vendor of land for possession: Spears v. Fleming, 19 P. R. 127.

But a claim by a mortgagee "to recover possession of" land (describing it) and "for an order that defendant do forthwith deliver up possession thereof" where that was the only claim, was held to be

Rule 139. a sufficient indorsement within Rule 138: Central Trust Co. of N. Y. v. Algoma Steel Co., 6 O. L. R. 464.

Where in an action by a landlord for possession the copy of writ served omitted the length of the tenant's term, which was in the indorsement on the original writ. It was held on a motion under Rule 603 for final judgment that sufficient information was given by the copy: Hammer v. Clifton, 1894, 1 Q. B. 238.

Amendment.

Amendment of Indorsement.—The particulars of claim indorsed on the writ may, by leave, be amended, even though the writ has been served out of the jurisdiction, so long as no claim is introduced by amendment, which could not have been properly indorsed on the writ originally: Holland v. Leslie, 1894, 2 Q. B. 450; 71 L. T. 33; Hogaboom v. MacCulloch, 17 P. R. 377.

Where claims are added by amendment, the order allowing amendment may provide that the action as to such added claims shall be deemed to have been commenced only as from the date of the amendment: Holland v. Leslie, supra.

The place of trial named in the indorsement cannot be altered without leave in a subsequently delivered statement of claim: Segsworth v. McKinnon, 17 P. R. 178.

Indorsement in cases of debt or liquidated demand.

139. Where the plaintiff's claim is for [or includes] a debt or liquidated demand, the indorsement, besides stating the nature of the claim, shall state the amount claimed in respect of such debt [or demand], and for costs, respectively, and shall further state that upon payment thereof within the time allowed for appearance, further proceedings will be stayed. Such statement may be according to Form No. 6. The defendant, notwithstanding that he makes such payment, may have the costs taxed, and if more than one-sixth be disallowed, the plaintiff's solicitor shall pay the costs of taxation. Rule 1244, amending Rule 139.

This is to the same effect as section 18 of the C. L. P. Act (R. S. O. 1877, c. 50), and Eng. (1883) R. 17, except the words in brackets, which are new (and as to which see note to Rule 138), and except that the latter names four days.

For Form No. 6, see H. & L. Forms, No. 50.

The indorsement must state clearly what is debt and what costs: Truslove v. Whitechurch, 8 Dowl. P. C. 837; and when interest is claimed the amount and the period from which it is claimed should be given: Bardell v. Miller, 7 C. B. 753.

The use of this indorsement, it will be observed, is obligatory. The effect of it is to entitle the defendant to settle the claim by payment within eight days: the plaintiff is not bound by it for any other purpose: Jacquot v. Boura, 5 M. & W. 155, 156.

Where the defendant paid the amount, but not within the four days, he was nevertheless held entitled to have the costs taxed under the last clause of this Rule, as the plaintiff, by accepting the amount indorsed, was considered to have waived payment within the four days: Hoole v. Earnshaw, 39 L. T. 400.

140. Where the plaintiff desires to have an account taken in the first instance, the writ of summons shall be indorsed with a claim for such account. Con. Rule 247.

See Eng. (1883) R. 18.

The former Con. Rule 247 had reference to cases of "ordinary account, as for instance in the case of a partnership, or executorship or ordinary trust account," and a claim against an executor for an account on the footing of wilful default, which is not an "ordinary account," did not fall within this Rule or Rule 645: Re Bowen, Bennett v. Bowen, 20 Ch. D. 538; but the present Rule makes no distinction between ordinary and other accounts. See also Re Allan, 9 P. R. 277, and infra, Rule 667 "Wilful neglect and default," and Rule 944; and York v. Stowers, W. N. 1883, 174.

Rules
140, 141.

Indorsement of claim for account.

141 A claim for the foreclosure of a mortgage or for the sale or redemption of mortgaged property, or for immediate delivery of possession, or for immediate payment, shall be indorsed in accordance with the Forms in the Appendix, Part II. sec. VI., applicable thereto. Con. Rule 248. Rules of 1 Jan., 1896, 1438.

Foreclose-ure, etc.

This Rule and the Forms referred to are not in the English Act.

The Forms are those numbered No. 9 (d), (e) and (f), in the Appendix, for which see H. & L. Forms, Nos. 57-59.

The indorsement should also state concisely the lands in question: Canada Landed Credit Co. v. Callaghan, Boyd, C., 26th October, 1881; see Forms.

This Rule having reference to the indorsement of a writ only, does not apply to a counter-claim on a mortgage, and orders for immediate payment and possession may be granted, though not asked for specifically by the counter-claim: Klein v. Union Fire Insurance Co., 3 Ont. 250.

A separate action for possession should not be brought when other remedies against the mortgagor are claimed: Hay v. McArthur, 8 P. R. 321.

A writ indorsed with all the claims mentioned in this Rule is not specially indorsed under Rule 138 so as to entitle the plaintiff to move under Rule 603 for summary judgment for recovery of land: Forsters v. Pegg, 19 P. R. 80.

In an action for foreclosure, in which also possession is claimed, where the mortgage sought to be foreclosed was held void for illegal or immoral consideration, the plaintiff was held not entitled to recover possession: Clark v. Hagar, 22 S. C. R. 511.

Where a mortgage is being enforced by foreclosure against executors of the mortgagor, and an order for payment is asked against them, and they do not plead plene administraverunt, the additional costs of the latter claim only should be taxed against the executors personally: Miles v. Brown, 15 P. R. 375.

Formerly under Chy. O. 464, and former Con. Rule 341, after a final order for foreclosure or sale had been obtained in a mortgage action, an order for delivery of possession might have been obtained, even though the judgment did not include an order for possession:

Rules 142, 143. see Holmsted & Langton Jnd. Act, 1st ed., p. 383. Since the repeal of Con. Rule 341, it would seem, however, that that procedure may no longer be available, and possession may be only obtainable where claimed by the writ. See also Wills v. Luff, 38 Ch. D. 197, 200; but see Jnd. Act, sec. 57 (12).

Indorsement in action of dower.

142. Where the plaintiff in an action of dower claims damages for detention of her dower, the indorsement shall contain a statement that the plaintiff claims damages for the detention of her dower, from some day to be stated. Con. Rule 249.

Where the plaintiff's husband did not die seised of the land out of which dower is claimed, no damages for detention are recoverable: Losce v. Armstrong, 11 Gr. 517, even though a demand for dower may have been made by the plaintiff before action: Morgan v. Morgan, 15 Ont. 194. See further as to damages in actions for dower, Wallace v. Moore, 18 Gr. 560; Ryan v. Fish, 4 Ont. 335, and notes to Rule 177.

2. DISCLOSURE BY SOLICITORS AND PLAINTIFFS.

Demand on solicitor instituting proceedings.

143.—(1) The solicitor whose name is indorsed on any writ of summons, [notice, petition or document by which a cause or matter is commenced] shall, on demand in writing made by or on behalf of any defendant, [party or parties] who has been served therewith or has appeared thereto, declare forthwith in writing whether the cause or matter (a) has been commenced by him or with his authority or privity.

Whether commenced by his authority.

(2) If he answers in the affirmative, he shall also, in case the Court or a Judge so directs, disclose in writing within a time to be limited by the Court or Judge, the profession or occupation, and place of abode [giving name of street and house number where practicable] of the plaintiff, [or party on whose behalf he is acting.] on pain of being guilty of a contempt of Court.

(3) If the solicitor declares that the writ, [notice, petition or document] was not issued or served by him or with his authority or privity, all proceedings upon the same shall be stayed, and no further proceedings shall be taken thereupon without leave of the Court or a Judge. Con. Rule 250, amended.

See Eng. (1885) R. 42.

The words in brackets are new, and at (a) "cause or matter" has been substituted for "writ." These amendments extend the Rule so as to enable it to be ascertained in any "cause or matter," how-commenced, whether it was commenced by the authority of the per-^{Rule 143.} son in whose name it is commenced.

Where a solicitor continued to act for a Company after it had been dissolved, he was held to be not liable for acting under his original authority after it had been revoked, until he knew, or by the exercise of due diligence he might have known, of the dissolution: Salton v. New Beeston Cycle Co., 1900, 1 Ch. 43. Where he had not exercised such due diligence he was ordered to pay the opposite party's costs between solicitor and client: Id.

Where a solicitor without authority prosecutes or defends an action, the proceedings are not necessarily void in all cases; e.g., an action prosecuted without authority binds the plaintiff, and his remedy is against the solicitor; he may, however, on getting notice of the proceedings, move to stay them: see infra, and Chisholm v. Sheldon, 1 Gr. 244. But where a defendant has not been served with process, and an unauthorized appearance is entered for him, the proceedings will be set aside on his applying promptly after he has notice of them: Rossiter v. Westbrook, 24 C. P. 91; Massey v. Rapelje, 5 C. P. 134; Wright v. Hull, 2 P. R. 26; Re Gray, 65 L. T. 743; and this rule applies in the case of partners, one of whom will not be bound by an appearance entered for him on the instructions of a co-partner, but without his authority: Mason v. Cooper, 15 P. R. 418; unless he be a dormant partner: see Court v. Berlin, infra; or unless the partner giving the retainer be the managing partner, in which case an appearance entered by authority of the managing partner for the other partners will be binding on them: Tomlinson v. Broadbent, 1896, 1 Q. B. 386; 74 L. T. 265; and the retainer of the solicitor will not be terminated by the retirement of a sleeping partner from the firm, of which the solicitor has no notice: see Court v. Berlin, 1897, 2 Q. B. 396.

By delay defendant may waive his rights: Kerr v. Malpas, 2 P. R. 135. In McLean v. Grant, 20 Gr. 76, the party was held to be bound by an unauthorized defence to a Chancery suit, though he does not appear to have been served with the bill. Where a defendant has been personally served with process, he is bound by an unauthorized appearance and defence, and the proceedings will not be set aside unless the plaintiff had notice: see Rossiter v. Westbrook, supra; Moran v. Schermerhorn, 2 P. R. 261; Bayley v. Buckland, 1 Ex. 1; Arch. Pr., 14th Ed., 107 (y); or unless the solicitor be insolvent: Warely v. Poapst, 7 C. C. L. J. 294. See note to Rule 145.

Where a solicitor has commenced an action in the name of a plaintiff without authority, the plaintiff may, on notice to the defendant and the solicitor, move that the action be dismissed, and that the solicitor pay the costs of the plaintiff as between solicitor and client, and the costs of the defendant as between party and party: Newbiggin-by-the-Sea Gas Co. v. Armstrong, 13 Ch. D. 310; Nurse v. Burnford, 13 Ch. D. 764; Wray v. Kemp, 26 Ch. D. 169; Scribner v. Parcells, 20 Ont. 354; Geilinger v. Gibbs, 1897, 1 Ch. 479; a defendant is also entitled to move to strike out the name of a plaintiff which has been used without authority: Barrie v. Weymouth, 15 P. R. 95; Barrie Public School Board v. Barrie, 19 P. R. 33. The fact that the action has been dismissed: Morris v. Confederation Life, 17 P. R. 24; Scribner v. Parcells, supra, or discontinued: Gold Reefs of W. A. v. Dawson, 1897, 1 Ch. 115, is no answer to the application.

Rule 144.

Dismissal on defendant's application.

So where plaintiffs were joined without authority, their names were struck out, on the defendant's application, with costs payable by the other plaintiffs. The plaintiff's solicitors were not ordered to pay the costs personally, as they had acted bona fide. Scoble, that any plaintiff joined without his authority should be made a party to the motion by a defendant: Barrie v. Weymouth, 15 P. R. 95; but where a plaintiff was added as a party without his written consent as required by Rule 206 (3), although a verbal consent to his being added had been given by his solicitor in his presence. It was held that he was entitled to have his name struck out, and the solicitor who had added him was ordered, notwithstanding he appeared to have acted bona fide, to pay the applicant's costs as between solicitor and client, and also the costs of the adverse party, which the applicant had been ordered to pay, together with all the costs of the application: Fricker v. Van Stratten, 1896, 2 Ch. 649; and see Morris v. Confederation Life, supra. A plaintiff residing out of the jurisdiction moving to set aside proceedings brought by a solicitor without his authority cannot be ordered to give security for costs on the solicitor's application: Sample v. McLaughlin, 17 P. R. 400.

The fact that a solicitor has acted as a solicitor for a trustee does not authorize the solicitor to enter an appearance for the trustee in an action in relation to the trust without any further retainer: Re Gray, 67 L. T. 743.

Where an order for security for costs has been obtained against a plaintiff for non-payment of the costs of a former action, in which his name had been used without his authority, he cannot apply to set aside the order on that ground, he must attack the root of the irregularity, and take proceedings to have his name struck out of the former action: Lea v. Lang, 17 P. R. 203, and see S. C., 18 P. R. 1.

Any former rule of practice that an action brought without the authority of the plaintiff can be dismissed, on application of the plaintiff, only on payment of costs, is not now in force. He may now leave the action stayed without payment of costs: McKay v. Macfarlane, 12 P. R. 149. In this case it was held that on an application of this kind after judgment, the action should not be dismissed, where it is brought for the benefit of a class: sed quare, see Bank of Toronto v. Beaver, etc., 28 Gr. 87.

Where a solicitor acts as solicitor for a party without a direct retainer, and only upon the instructions of a third person, he may become personally liable for any loss arising to such party, in the proceedings, consequent on the fraud of the third person: Slater v. Slater, 1897, 1 Ch. 222, note.

Names and addresses of members of firm suing as partners.

144—(1) Where an action is brought by partners in the name of their firm, the plaintiffs or their solicitor, shall, on demand in writing by or on behalf of any defendant, declare forthwith in writing the names and places of residence of all the persons constituting the firm.

(2) If the plaintiffs or their solicitor fail to comply with such demand, all proceedings in the action may, upon an application for that purpose, be stayed upon such terms as the Court or a Judge may direct.

(3) Where the names of the partners are so declared, the ^{Rule 145.} action shall proceed in the same manner, and the same consequences in all respects shall follow, as if they had been named as the plaintiffs in the writ; but all proceedings shall, nevertheless, continue in the name of the firm. Con. Rule 251. See also Rule 222.

This Rule is the same as Eng. (1883) R. 43.

By Rule 222, any party to an action, in which partners either are or are sued in the name of their firm, may apply for a statement of the names of the persons who were at the time of the accruing of the cause of action co-partners in the firm, to be furnished in such manner, and verified on oath or otherwise, as may be directed.

By R. S. O. c. 152, s. 1, the names of the individual members composing a firm carrying on a trading, manufacturing or mining business, are required to be registered in the Registry Office for the county or registry division in which the business is carried on.

Where the names of partners are disclosed under Rule 144 (3), it does not seem to be necessary to verify the declaration by an affidavit; but if so verified, it has been held in England that the defendant is not liable to cross-examination on the affidavit, nor can the Court order the trial of an issue to determine who are the actual partners of a plaintiff firm; Abrahams & Co. v. Dunlop, 1905, 1 K. B. 46; 91 L. T. 11; but quære, whether in Ontario the defendant might not be cross-examined; see Rule 450.

3. SERVICE OF WRIT OF SUMMONS.

(a) Generally.

145. Service of a writ or other document by which a ^{Undertaking to accept service.} cause, matter, or proceeding may be commenced shall not be required where the defendant by his solicitor [accepts service and undertakes to appear]. Con. Rule 252.

The corresponding Eng. (1883) R. 48, has the words "undertakes in writing to accept service and enters an appearance." Instead of the words in brackets.

In order to take advantage of Rule 174 the solicitor's undertaking must be in writing, for that Rule provides that a solicitor not entering an appearance in pursuance of his written undertaking so to do, shall be liable to an attachment; see Rule 174; and he may also be ordered to pay all costs occasioned by his neglect; Cook v. Broomhead, 14 Ves. 133; and see Courtney v. Stock, 2 D. & W. 251; Townley v. Jones, 29 L. J. C. P. 299. The plaintiff may also proceed against defendant as upon default of appearance; he must take the risk, however, of the solicitor not having had authority to accept service; Reissler v. Westbrook, 24 C. P. 91; and it would therefore be proper to serve any subsequent proceedings upon the defendant personally. See note to Rule 143.

A solicitor's undertaking is binding and enforceable for six years from its date; Re Kerby, 83 L. T. 524, 699; 1900, W. N. 274.

Rule 146. As to the effect of a judgment obtained by the plaintiff in an action where the appearance of defendant was entered without his authority: see notes to Rule 143, supra, p. 277.

A sleeping partner may be bound by an appearance entered for the firm by the authority of the acting partner: see Court v. Berlin, 1897, 2 Q. B. 396; Tomlinson v. Broadsmith, 1896, 1 Q. B. 386.

Personal and substituted service.

146. Where service is required, the writ may be served in any County or District in Ontario, and the service thereof shall be personal; but if it appears to the Court or a Judge on affidavit that the plaintiff is unable to effect prompt personal service, the Court or Judge may order substituted or other service, by advertisement or otherwise. Con. Rule 253, amended.

See Eag. (1883) R. 49.

As to service of corporation, see Rules 159-161.

Service of process must if possible be personal, or, in the case of a corporation, upon the duly constituted agent: the substitutional method is to be followed only when prompt personal service is shown to be unavailable: Young v. Dominion Construction Co., 19 P. R. 139.

Personal service.

Personal service may be by delivering the process into the defendant's hand; or by seeing him and bringing the process to his notice: Thomson v. Phency, 1 Dowl. 441; and shewing him the original if he desires it: Goggs v. Huntington, 12 M. & W. 503; Philpott v. Emmanuel, 56 L. T. 858; Hawthorn v. Harris, 23 W. R. 214; within a reasonable time after service: Thomas v. Pearce, 2 B. & C. 761; Petit v. Ambrose, 6 M. & S. 274; a quarter of an hour was considered reasonable time in Westley v. Jones, 5 Moo. 162; or if he refuses to receive the copy, after being told its nature and being tendered it, then by placing it on his person: Bell v. Vincent, 7 D. & R. 233; or by throwing it down in his presence: 1 Dowl. 443. The copy must, however, be left with the defendant and not merely shewn to him: Worley v. Glover, 2 Str. 877, even though he refuses to take it: Pigeon v. Bruce, 8 Taunt. 410; Erwin v. Powley, 2 U. C. Q. B. 270. Handing a writ or notice of writ in an envelope, the defendant not being informed of the contents, and having no knowledge that an action has been or is about to be brought against him, is not good personal service: Banque Russe, etc. v. Clark, W. N. 1894, 203.

In O'Sullivan v. Murphy, 78 L. T. Jour. 213, placing the writ on the ground within 20 or 30 yards, and holding up the original, the defendant having run away to evade service, was held to be insufficient.

Where the person serving did not show the original, although requested to do so, service was set aside: Philpott v. Emmanuel, supra.

Appearance precludes all question as to the sufficiency of service: Dart v. Citizens' Insurance Co., 11 P. R. 513; see Boyle v. Sacker, 39 Ch. D. 251, and notes to Rule 169.

If it is intended to object to the service, a motion to set it aside should be made before appearance: Boyle v. Sacker, sup.

Under the present Tariff A. (item 17) the costs of service of a writ by a person other than a sheriff are only taxable where the sheriff has made default: see Rule 148.

Service of the writ may be effected at any time of the day or night: Updon v. Mackenzie, 1 D. & R. 172; Priddie v. Cooper, 1 Bing. 66; Rule 349 does not apply: Murray v. Stephenson, 19 Q. B. D. 60; but not on Sunday: Mackreth v. Nicholson, 19 Ves. 337; Taylor v. Phillips, 3 East, 155; R. S. O. c. 324, s. 3.

Where a person has been induced by fraud to come into the jurisdiction for the purpose of serving him, within it, with a writ, the service will be set aside as an abuse of the process of the Court; sees, if the invitation to come within the jurisdiction was bona fide for another purpose, even though it was also intended to take advantage of the opportunity to serve the person: Watkins v. A. A. Land & Timber Co., 20 Times, 533.

Action to Recover Possession of Land.—In actions for recovery of land where it is in the actual possession of several persons, all ought to be named as defendants, and served with the writ, as judgment must follow the writ, and can be awarded only against the defendants; and only the defendants, and those claiming under them, can be ejected: see Mint v. Johnston, 133 L. T. 507. Persons in the position of servants, or the members of the family of a person in possession, need not be made parties or served with the writ. Persons not named as defendants, and claiming to be in possession, independently of the defendants, may appear: Rules 180, et seq., and, even after judgment against the defendants, may obtain leave to defend: Id.

Action to Recover
Land.

In an action by a landlord against his tenant, sub-tenants of the tenant, though in actual occupation, need not be made parties, and may be ejected under a judgment recovered against the tenant: Spence of Toronto v. Fiske, 29 Ont. 738; Green v. Herring, 1905, 1 K. E. 152.

Substitutional Service.—The present Rule gives a wide discretion to the Court. It allows substituted service to be ordered in whatever way the Court or a Judge may direct: Whitley v. Honeywell, 24 W. R. 871; if, from any cause, the plaintiff is unable to effect prompt personal service.

By send plaintiff.

Substitutional service should not be ordered where service under Rules 146, 150 or 160, might be effected: Young v. Dominion Construction Co., 19 P. R. 139 (where an order for substitutional service was set aside).

substituted service of writ.

A Statute authorizing Courts in the case of contracts made or to be performed within the jurisdiction, to decide whether they will, or will not, proceed in the absence of defendants, is intra vires, but whether a judgment obtained in such circumstances will be enforced by the Courts of another country is for those Courts to determine: Ashbury v. Ellis, 1893, A. C. 339.

As to substituted service where a defendant is out of the jurisdiction, see notes to Rule 162.

As to whether the Rule applies to the case of persons sued in the name of a firm, where no person having control or management of the business can be found, see notes to Rule 229.

Where defendant has an agent within the jurisdiction, substitutional service may be allowed on such agent, o.g., a managing clerk in his place of business: Armitage v. Fitzwilliam, W. N. 1875, 238; general agents: Jones v. Carhill, 11 L. T. 506; special agents: Hab-

When substituted service
allowed.

Rule 146. hanse v. Courtney, 12 Sim. 140; solicitors who had acted for defendant; Hornby v. Holmes, 4 Ha. 306; Watt v. Barnett, 3 Q. B. 11, 183, 363; Tottenham v. Barry, 12 Ch. D. 798; but see The Pommerania, 4 P. D. 195; and Young v. Dominion Construction Co., supra.

Substituted
service.

Where the defendant, out of the jurisdiction, has expressly agreed to service being effected on him in a particular way, service effected in that way will be allowed as good service: Montgomery v. Lichen, ibid., 1898, 1 Q. B. 487; but only in a case in which there is jurisdiction to allow service upon him out of the jurisdiction: see Reid, Wagon Co. v. West, 1896, 1 Q. B. 35, 37.

As was said in Watt v. Barnett, 3 Q. B. D. 367, substituted service may be properly ordered upon any persons with whom the Court is satisfied that the party is in communication. The Court has a right to consider that the copy of writ served will be sent on, and the service will be good, though the service is not in fact communicated.

In cases decided under the former Chancery practice the agent was required to be such in relation to the subject matter of the suit: Allan v. Pyper, 5 F. C. L. J. 118; Cupples v. Yurston, 2 Chy. Ch. 31; Conniffe v. Taylor, 2 Gr. 317; Doremus v. Kennedy, 2 Gr. 657; but under the present practice orders have been made though the person served has no connection with the subject of the suit, if only he is likely to communicate the fact of service to the defendant: see Watt v. Barnett, supra.

Where defendant's wife, or other relative or person, is shown to be, or to be likely to be, in communication with him, and is within the jurisdiction, service may be allowed on such person: Dicker v. Chalk, 11 W. R. 635; Bank of Whitehaven v. Thompson, W. L., 1877, 45; Smacerville v. Joyce, 1 Chy. Ch. 378; and even under the former Chancery practice such service has been allowed though the relative was not shown to be at the time in communication with defendant: Cameron v. Baker, 2 Chy. Ch. 281. Such service may be accompanied by advertising where the person upon whom substituted service is made, may not be able to communicate with defendant: Bank of Whitehaven v. Thompson, Cameron v. Baker, supra; Conthoupe v. Curshaw, 32 W. R. 33, or by mailing to an address at which defendant is shown to have recently been: Cupples v. Yurston, supra.

Where a bill had been filed for foreclosure, and the defendant the official assignee of the mortgagor absconded before service effected, service was allowed substitutionally upon one of the Inspectors of the estate: London Canadian Loan & Agency Co. v. Thompson, 8 P. R. 91.

When not allowed.

Substituted service will not be ordered under this Rule unless it is shown that prompt personal service cannot be effected. The fact of a defendant being out of the jurisdiction is not alone a reason for dispensing with personal service. He must be evading service, or his whereabouts be unknown: Robertson v. Mera, 9 P. R. 540; see also Adler v. Benjamin, 1 Times, 308; Young v. Dominion Construction Co., 19 P. P. 129; and see as to that case, Taylor v. Taylor, 6 Q. B. R. 356, 345. Where his residence can be ascertained by examination of relatives, that course will doubtless be proper as formerly in Chancery: see McMurrich v. Hogan, 1 Chy. Ch. 307; McDonald v. McMillan, 2 Chy. Ch. 1982.

In the case of actions brought in respect of a business carried on in Ontario, by a defendant out of the jurisdiction, a special provision is made by Rule 147.

After a service, not personal, has been effected, there is power to Rule 146. make an order allowing the plaintiff to proceed on the service made, but this power must be prudently exercised: Adler v. Benjamin, 1 Times, 308.

Substituted service will not be ordered under this Rule, of a writ which could not legally have been served personally—as a writ against a colonial government: Stoman v. Governor of New Zealand, 1 C. P. L. 563; or against a foreign sovereign: see Mihell v. Sultan of Johore, 1892, 1 Q. B. 149; 70 L. T. 64; or a foreign ambassador: see Musurus Bey v. Gaddan, 1894, 1 Q. B. 533; or of a writ for service within the jurisdiction, where the defendant is without the jurisdiction, and there is no evidence that he left the jurisdiction to avoid service: Wilding v. Bean, 1891, 1 Q. B. 100; or of a writ against a partnership firm, upon a partner resident out of the jurisdiction: Worcester, etc., v. Firbank, 1894, 1 Q. B. 784.

But where after issue of a writ for service within the jurisdiction the defendant, knowing of it, leaves the jurisdiction, though not for the purpose of evading service, substituted service of the writ may be authorized, and the plaintiff will not in such a case be required to issue a concurrent writ for service out of the jurisdiction: Jay v. Budd, 1898, 1 Q. B. 12; 77 L. T. 335; distinguishing Wilding v. Bean, supra.

See also Fry v. Moore, 23 Q. B. D. 395; Field v. Barnett, 56 L. J. Q. B. 89; Hilliard v. Smyth, 36 W. R. 7; and note preceding Rule 162.

The principle upon which substituted service is granted is that the service is likely to come to the knowledge of the party: Hope v. Hope, supra; Furber v. King, 29 W. R. 535; where therefore the defendant was shewn to have absconded from his residence and place of business, leave to serve him substitutionally, by leaving copies of the writ at those places, was refused, and service was allowed by advertising: Wolverhampton & Staffordshire Banking Co. v. Bond, 43 L. T. 72; 29 W. R. 599; see also Coulbourn v. Carshaw, 32 W. R. 33.

For observations on an order made for substitutional service, where there was not sufficient evidence that the service was likely to come to the knowledge of the defendant: see Alexander v. Alexander, 1 O. L. R. 639.

The Court will not set aside substitutional service if it appears, or ^{Setting} can fairly be inferred, that the defendant has notice of the proceed- ^{service aside} ings: Taylor v. Taylor, 6 O. L. R. 356, 545. Where, after instructions to a solicitor to accept service had been revoked, and the plaintiff's solicitor so informed, an order for substitutional service on the solicitor was obtained, it was held that the solicitor had no locus standi to move to set aside the order on the defendant's behalf: Taylor v. Taylor, supra; but a person served as the agent of defendant may move to set aside the service if he is not the agent: Doremus v. Kennedy, 2 Gr. 65; The Pommerania, 4 P. D. 195; cited in Taylor v. Taylor, supra.

The provision for substituted service has been held in England to apply to an originating summons as well as to a writ: Re Pepper. ^{Not confined to service of writs.} 32 W. R. 765; 50 L. T. 580; 53 L. J. Chy. 1054; though it has also been held by Denman, J., in Chambers, to relate only to service of writs of summons or notices thereof, and therefore substituted service of a notice of application for a writ of attachment was refused.

Rule 146. Anon., W. N. 1876, 105; 2 Charl. Ch. Ca. 26. It is presumed, however, that notices under Rule 209 (see last clause of that Rule) may be so served, and that, under the general jurisdiction which the Courts of this Province have heretofore had, they may order such service of all papers not required to be personally served: see Rules 147, 167; McTaggart v. Merrill, 7 P. R. 405, and Rule 334 as to notices of motion and appointments. Substituted service has been allowed of proceedings to set aside fraudulent conveyances under R. S. O. 1877, c. 49, s. 10, now Rules 1015, et seq.; Dobson v. Marshall, 9 P. R. 1; and in England of a notice of motion: Cook v. Dey, W. N. 1876, 122; Hamilton v. Davies, W. N. 1880, 82; see Dan. Pr., 5th ed., 1142; an order for an interim injunction: Young v. Brassey, 1 Ch. D. 277; a summons to shew cause, where defendant was evading service: Hunt v. Austin, Ex p. Mason, 9 Q. B. D. 598; a notice of appeal: Ex p. Warburg, Re Whalley, 24 Ch. D. 364; 25 Ch. D. 336; and a notice of motion for an administration order under Chy. Gen. O. 638 (now Rule 947): Re Allan, 9 P. R. 77; see also Re Morant, W. N. 1879, 144; Trubner v. Trubner, 62 L. T. 186.

An order to proceed without service will not be made; substituted or equivalent service must be effected, if personal service, or acceptance of service cannot be obtained: W. N. 1875, p. 202; 1 Charl. Ch. Ca. 37.

Substitution of notice for service.

In Cook v. Dey, 2 Ch. D. 218, it was held by V. C. Hall, that the substitution of notice for service mentioned in the latter part of the original Rule was not intended to apply to ordinary cases of persons not able to be found, but who were within the jurisdiction. He, however, directed substituted service of the writ by advertising, and by leaving a copy at defendant's office and lodgings, which is plainly authorized by the Rule in its present shape. In Leddell v. McDougall, 22 Sol. Jour. 838, Manisty, J., held that the Court had power to make an order for substitution of notice for service within the jurisdiction. See also Rule 273.

In such cases the time for appearance runs from the time the order takes effect, that is, from the service of the writ at the place mentioned, or publication of the advertisement, whichever is the later: Crane v. Jullion, 2 Ch. D. 220; see also Johnson v. Moffat, W. N. 1875, 248; 1 Charl. Ch. Ca. 39.

A combination of different modes of effecting service where defendant's address is not known, or he cannot be found, may be ordered, depending upon the circumstances of the particular case.

When
service
set aside.

Where defendant gave his club as his address, and an order for substitutional service had been granted on an affidavit of a clerk that he had been to the defendant's residence but had been unable to effect personal service, and judgment by default was signed on the substituted service, the affidavit was considered misleading, and the order for substitutional service was set aside, though two years had elapsed since the signing of judgment: Johnson v. Menzies, 72 L. T. Jour. 348.

An order directing substitutional service upon solicitors of defendant in a former action was set aside, it being shown that the solicitors had ceased to act for defendant in such former action: The Pommerania, 4 P. D. 195. See also Young v. Dominion Construction Co., 19 P. R. 139; and Taylor v. Taylor, 6 O. L. R. 356, 545.

Examples.—Where the defendant was supposed to be within the jurisdiction but had absconded or was evading service, service was allowed by leaving copies of writ with his wife or other relatives presumably in communication with him: Bank of Whitehaven v. Thompson, W. N. 1877, 45; Atkins v. Atkins, W. N. 1887, 92; at his last lodgings and place of business, and by advertising or mailing: Cook v. Day, 2 Ch. D. 218; Capes v. Breicer, 24 W. R. 40; by serving his managing clerk at his offices, and upon his solicitors: Armitage v. Fitzwilliam, W. N. 1875, 238; by serving tenants of lands in question in the action to whom the defendant had given notice to pay rents to him, and advertisement: Crane v. Jullion, 2 Ch. D. 220; Coulbourn v. Carshaw, 32 W. R. 33; by posting to defendant's last address: Dymond v. Croft, 3 Ch. D. 512; by leaving a copy of writ at defendant's only known place of residence, a club, and serving solicitors who refused to accept service, but had acted in other matters for defendant: Rafael v. Ongley, 34 L. T. 124; see Anon., 1 Char. Ch. Cs. 38; Hornby v. Holmes, 4 Ha. 306; Tottenham v. Barry, 12 Ch. D. 797; by mailing to his address and advertising: Hamilton v. Davies, W. N. 1880, 82; by serving defendant's wife or other relative leaving copies at his residence and advertising: Mullows v. Bannister, W. N. 1882, 183; 31 W. R. 238; Waters v. Waters, 24 W. R. 190; Coulbourn v. Carshaw, 32 W. R. 33. Where defendant is out of the jurisdiction but his whereabouts is unknown, service may be allowed by advertising alone, if there is no agent within the jurisdiction or person likely to be in communication with defendant: Hartley v. Dilke, 35 L. T. 706; Gordon v. Hanna, 6 P. R. 266; Whitley v. Honeywell, 24 W. R. 871; Rowley v. Southwell, 61 L. T. 805; or by advertising and mailing to various addresses at which defendant has been heard of: Stimson v. Stimson, 6 Gr. 379.

Substituted service, when duly effected, is for all purposes equal Practice, valent to personal service: Watt v. Barnett, 3 Q. B. D. 363.

Where it is necessary to effect substitutional service on several defendants at the suit of the same plaintiff, and the application is based on the same facts, a single affidavit may be used setting out the necessary facts and entitled in all the actions: Orkney v. Shanahan, 8 L. R. Ir. 155.

Any objection to an order allowing any particular mode of service must be taken by motion to set aside the order and not by pleading the objection as a defence: Preston v. Lamont, 1 Ex. D. 363; and it should be made before the defendant has taken any other step in the action, otherwise he will be deemed to have waived his right to object: see Fry v. Moore, 23 Q. B. D. 395; Western Nat. Bank v. Percz, 1891, 1 Q. B. 304, and notes preceding Rule 162.

Costs of a motion for leave to effect substituted service are taxable Costs, in the cause: Eager v. Buckley, 8 L. R. Ir. 99.

147. Where service of a writ out of Ontario may be allowed under Rules 162 to 167, and the defendant, whether a British subject or not, is, or was at the time the cause of action arose, carrying on business within Ontario, the Court or a Judge may, if the cause of action arose in respect of such business, make an order allowing service upon any person having the control or management of the business; and such Substitutional service on manager of a business in Ontario.

Rules 149-150. service shall be equivalent to personal service upon the defendant. New.

See Rules 159-161.

Indorsement of receipt of process, etc., non-service, re-delivery to plaintiff; costs of service.

148. Upon the delivery of a writ at the office of a Sheriff for service, he shall indorse thereon the time when it was so delivered; and in case the writ is not served within ten days after such delivery, the plaintiff shall be entitled to re-delivery of the same; and the Sheriff shall indorse thereon the time of the re-delivery; and the mileage and costs of service of the writ by any literate person afterwards, shall, in case the person served was at any time during such ten days within the County, be allowed in the taxation of costs, as if the service had been by the Sheriff. Con. Rule 254.

See Carty v. London, 13 P. R. 285, and Item 17 of Tarif A.

Failure of sheriff to re-deliver.

149. If the Sheriff, being applied to, neglects or refuses to re-deliver the writ, after the expiration of the ten days, the plaintiff may issue a duplicate writ on the praecipe already filed, and the costs of the writ not re-delivered may be recovered from the Sheriff. Con. Rule 255.

Indorsement of service.

150 —(1) The person serving a writ shall, within three days after the service, indorse on the writ the day of the month and week of the service thereof; otherwise the plaintiff shall not be at liberty, in case of non-appearance, to proceed by default [without the leave of a Judge, such leave to be obtained at the sole cost of the plaintiff].

(2) Every affidavit of service of such writ shall state the day on which such indorsement was made. Con. Rule 256.

See Eng. (1883) R. 62. which is expressly made to apply to substituted service.

The words in brackets are not in the Eng. Rule. In Hastings v. Hurley, 16 Ch. D. 734, and in Sproat v. Peckett, W. N. 1883, 76; 48 L. T. 755, and in Shepherd v. Silcock, W. N. 1886, 84, the time for making the indorsement was extended under Rule 353.

An order to amend the indorsement of service was granted where a wrong date was indorsed by mistake: Hync v. Murphy, 2 L. R. 1r. 35.

Judgment was allowed to be signed where the indorsement shewed the day of the month but not the day of the week: Foat v. Basset, W. N. 1888, 255.

Holidays are not included in the three days: Rule 343.

This Rule does not apply to cases of substituted service: Dymond v. Croft, 3 Ch. D. 512; Cruse v. Kuttingwell, W. N. 1875, 250; 1

Charl. Ch. Ca. 40; or where notice in lieu of a writ (see Rule 165), Rules is served: Fish v. Chatterton, W. N. 1882, 145; 31 W. R. 87; 47 L. 161, 162, T. 328; or where the writ is served by advertisement: Davis v. Lound, 78 L. T. Jour. 318; W. N. 1883, 54.

There is power under Rule 310 to hold a service to be valid notwithstanding the want of strict compliance with this Rule: Steers v. Rogers, 7 Times, 183.

(b) Married Women.

151. A married woman shall be served in the same manner, and with the like effect, as if she were a feme sole. Con. Rule 257. Married Woman.

(c) Infants.

152.—(1) Where an infant is to be served in respect of his interest in an estate, whether beneficially or in a representative capacity, with a writ of summons, petition, notice of an application or other proceeding in the High Court, he shall be served by delivering to the Official Guardian a copy of the writ, petition, notice, or other proceeding required to be served. New. See Con. Rule 258, first part. Service on Infants.

(2) From the time of such service, the said Official Guardian shall be the guardian ad litem of the infant, unless and until the Court or a Judge otherwise orders; and it shall be the duty of the said Official Guardian, or of any other guardian appointed for such infant, forthwith to attend to the interests of the infant, and to take all such proceedings as may be necessary for the protection of such interests in the proceeding in which he is appointed guardian, and for that purpose to communicate with all proper persons and parties, including the father or guardian of the infant and the person with whom or under whose care the infant is. See Con. Rule 258.

(3) In case there is more than one infant for whom service is made on the Official Guardian, one copy only of the writ, petition, or notice or other proceeding need be served, but the name of each person on whose behalf the Official Guardian is served shall be stated on the copy served. See Con. Rule 258.

The practice under Eng. (1883) R. 51 is different.

The cases in which the Official Guardian is to act are those which formerly were dealt with in Chancery, viz., where an infant, whether within or without the Province is interested in an estate in question in the suit. The present Rule further expressly provides that 153-155.

whether the interest of the infant in the estate is beneficial or fiduciary, he is to be represented by the Official Guardian: see Re Jackson, Massey v. Crookshanks, 12 P. R. 475. In all other cases Rule 155 applies.

Where a plaintiff signs judgment against a defendant in ignorance that he is an infant, it is discretionary with the Court whether such judgment shall be set aside: Furnival v. Brooke, 49 L. T. 134; Straughan v. Smith, 19 Ont. 558; Millson v. Small, 25 Ont. 144.

Service on the Official Guardian of a notice under The Quitting Titles Act is good service upon infants who are required to be notified: Re Murray, 13 P. R. 367.

See also notes to Rules 155 and 197.

Service
on infant personally when necessary.

153. Where the action against an infant defendant is for the recovery of lands, goods, or chattels of which he is personally in possession, service shall be made on the infant personally, and one copy of the writ shall also be mailed to, or delivered at the office of the Official Guardian, [who may enter an appearance for the infant, in the absence of other order or direction]. Con. Rule 259.

This Rule varies from Eng. (1883) R. 51.

The words in brackets were not in the former Con. Rule 259 referred to.

Personal service on an infant is made in the same manner as upon an adult: Lan. Chy. Prac. (5th ed.), 368, 376.

Where an infant is out of the jurisdiction the Court has the like power to order service substitutionally, or by publication, or otherwise, as in the case of an adult: Duffy v. O'Connor, 1 Chy. Ch. 393.

In an action for foreclosure, where possession is claimed, the writ of summons need not be served personally on the infant heirs of the mortgagor if they are not personally in possession: Sparks v. Purdy, 15 P. R. 1, 295.

See also notes to Rule 152.

Torts, etc.

154. Where the action is against an infant in respect of a personal tort or for the recovery of money only, the infant shall be served, as in the case of an adult defendant. Con. Rule 260.

See notes to Rules 152 and 197.

Guardian
other than official guardian.

155. Where an infant defendant is not represented by the Official Guardian, a guardian may be appointed for him by the Court or a Judge. Con. Rule 261.

The English practice is different: see White v. DuVernay, 1891, P. 291.

See note to Rule 152.

Under this Rule the defendant may himself before appearance make an application in Chambers to appoint a guardian ad litem, by whom he may appear and defend the action, or in case he does not, the plaintiff may, after the time for appearance has elapsed and defendant has not appeared by guardian, move on notice to the defendant for the appointment of a guardian ad litem for him, and if the defendant fails to nominate a guardian, the plaintiff may probably be allowed to do so; the consent of the person nominated, and an affidavit of his fitness, and that he has no adverse interest, should be filed; see Hugh v. Brown, 13 P. R. 17, and the proposed guardian should appear before the Judge with the infant; Rule 221.

Where a plaintiff knows that the defendant is a minor he should not proceed with his action until a guardian has been appointed, or his proceedings may be invalid; but in Stoughton v. Smith, 19 O.R. 568 (an action of tort), the appointment of a guardian was held not to be imperative, so that the want of one would not necessarily invalidate the proceedings after judgment, where the defendant was not quite of age, but his interests appeared to the Court to have been sufficiently protected, and the fact of his infancy was well known to his parents and solicitors, and no objection to the want of a guardian had been taken until the case was in the Divisional Court.

156. Subject to Rule 221, any person interested may apply to a Judge of the High Court for an order substituting another guardian for the Official Guardian. Con. Rule 262.

This Rule is in substantial accordance with Chancery Order 612.

In Hodgins v. Hodgins (Mr. Justice, March, 1882), the mother of infant defendants of tender years, who was also their guardian appointed by the Surrogate Court for the purpose of taking proceedings on their behalf for partition of the lands in question under The Partition Act, 1st, applied to have a guardian other than the Official Guardian appointed. There was no conflict of interest and the action involved a partition of lands inherited by the infants from their grandfather, but the Master in Chambers held that there was an sufficient reason for not using the power conferred by this Rule, and that the policy adopted by the Rules of appointing the Official Guardian was not to be departed from without some reason, apart from the wishes of those who naturally have the care of the infants' interests.

On an application at the instance of an infant of 18 who was considered capable of exercising a sound discretion in managing his own affairs, and applied with the approbation of his father, a guardian nominated by the infant was appointed under the above clause in the place of the Official Guardian; McKenzie v. Dorfold, 2 O. L. T. 176.

See also note to Rule 221.

The Court would appear to have inherent jurisdiction to substitute another guardian for a guardian appointed under Rule 155.

64 Lunatics and Persons of Unsound Mind.

157. [Subject to the provisions of section 55 of chapter 245 of The Revised Statutes of Ontario, 1887]. (a) where a lunatic, or person of unsound mind not so found by inquisi-

Rule 158 tion [or judicial declaration], is a defendant, service on the committee of the lunatic or on the person with whom the defendant of unsound mind resides, or under whose care he is, shall, unless otherwise ordered, be deemed good service, Con. Rule 263.

Same as Eng. (1883) R. 52, except the words in brackets. The R. S. O. 1897, c. 65, s. 8, authorizes the Court or a Judge to serve on a person a lunatic without an inquisition.

1897 N. W. R. S. O. c. 317, s. 55.

By R. S. O. c. 317, s. 53, the Inspector of Prisons and Public Charities is ex officio the committee of every lunatic who has no other committee, and is detained in any public asylum. Service on the Inspector is not, however, sufficient. R. S. O. c. 317, s. 55, referred to in this Rule, provides as follows:—

Process
being against persons confined in public Asylums.

55. In case any action or other proceeding is brought against a person confined as insane in a public asylum for the insane, it shall not be sufficient in order to bind the estate of such insane person, or to make the proceedings otherwise valid, to serve any writ, process, return or other document upon the Inspector of Prisons and Public Charities, although the Inspector is named therein as committee, but the same proceedings shall and may be taken for the appointment of some person or persons to protect the interests of the insane person aforesaid in the action or other proceeding, as would be requisite, if might be taken if the said Inspector was not the committee of the lunatic under this Act.

Where a lunatic had no committee, service was, in England, directed to be on the keeper of an asylum where the lunatic was lying: Thorn v. Smith, W. N. 1879, 81; 27 W. R. 617. It is the duty of the keeper of an asylum to allow the writ to be served: Dunlop v. Harbington, W. N. 1867, 17, unless the service might be injurious to the lunatic: Re McIn, 2 Chy. Ch. 420. Service on the manager of a lunatic defendant's business was held bad: Forestreet Co. v. Murdoch, 10 Q. B. D. 471.

Guardian
ad litem.

158. After service of the writ no further proceedings shall be taken against a defendant who is a lunatic and has no committee, or against a defendant of unsound mind not so found until a guardian ad litem is appointed, Con. Rule 264.

See notes to Rules 217, et seq.

Where the fact of lunacy is disputed, and the defendant has not been judicially found lunatic, an inquiry would probably be ordered on this point, on the application of the defendant, before appointing a guardian: see Howell v. Lewis, 67 L. T. 672, the case of a plaintiff.

Where proceedings are taken against a lunatic defendant without the due appointment of a guardian, in the manner prescribed by Rules 218, et seq., they may be set aside as irregular: Warnock v. Priour, 12 P. R. 264.

(c) Partners.

[See Rules 223 and 231.]

Rule 159.

(f) Corporations.

159. Where a corporation is a party to a cause or matter; Service on corporations, how effected.

(a) A writ of summons or other document by which the cause or matter is commenced, and,

(b) In the absence of the appearance of the corporation by solicitor, all papers and proceedings in the cause or matter before the final judgment or order therein, may be served on the Mayor, Warden, Reeve, President, or other head officer, or on the Township, Town, City or County Clerk, or on the Cashier, Treasurer or Secretary, Clerk or agent of such corporation, or of any branch or agency thereof in Ontario; and every person who, within Ontario, transacts or carries on any of the business of, or any business for any corporation whose chief place of business is without Ontario, shall, for the purpose of being served as aforesaid, be deemed the agent thereof. Con. Rule 267.

The Eng. (1883) R. 53, first clause, contains analogous provisions, being a consolidation of the repealed Rule of 1875, O. 9, r. 7, and the provisions of sec. 16 of the C. L. P. Act of 1872.

As to the residence of a corporation: see Bank of Nova Scotia v. McKinnon, 12 C. L. T. 178.

The Mother Superior of a convent is not the "head officer" within the corresponding English Rule upon whom to serve the writ in an action against an order whose governing body is in France: Golding v. Order of La Sainte Union des Sœurs Cœurs, 67 L. T. 606. Whether such a body is a corporation quære, Ib.

Rule 159 applies to a company incorporated by the Dominion. Such a company cannot in any Province be regarded as a foreign corporation: Tytler v. C. P. R., 21 Ont. 654, 659; 26 Ont. App. 467. Dominion companies. As to such companies: see 2 Ed. vii. c. 15, s. 80 (D.).

Where the head office of such a corporation had been at Ottawa at the time of the issue of the writ, and, though it was said that the head office had been changed to Montreal, this was not clearly shown to be the case, an order for substitutional service of the corporation by advertising was upheld, there being at the time of service no place of business of the corporation in Ontario, nor any representative on whom service could be made: Gold Run (Klondike) Mining Co. v. Canadian Gold Mining Co., 5 O. W. R. 411.

Foreign Corporations.—A foreign corporation is not subject to process simply because some person in its employ as clerk or agent can be found in Ontario: per Moss, J.A., in Murphy v. Phoenix Bridge Co., 18 P. R. 502. A foreign corporation in order to be sued in Ontario must be carrying on business there in such a way as to render it subject to be deemed resident within Ontario, and in order to serve a writ upon it within Ontario some person must be served within Ontario who sufficiently represents it: if a clerk, he must be one transacting business or performing duties in Ontario on behalf of Foreign corporations

Rule 159.Foreign
tions.

the corporation of such a nature that if transacted or performed by a clerk of a domestic corporation, would make him a proper person to be served: Ib., per Moss, J.A., 502; or one who transacts or carries on in Ontario or controls or manages for the corporation some part of the business which it professes to do, and for which it was incorporated: per Osler, J.A., Ib., p. 501.

It is sufficient to warrant service under this Rule that the corporation is actually carrying on business within the jurisdiction, though it be merely temporarily doing so: Dudlop, &c., v. Actien-Gesellschaft, 1892, 1 K. B. 312; 86 L. T. 472.

Where there is such an officer or agent as is in this Rule mentioned of a corporation whose chief place of business is without Ontario, service may be effected on such officer or agent, even in an action respecting a liability incurred by the corporation out of the Province: Armstrong v. Lancashire, 3 O. L. R. 395.

Service within the Province on the President of a foreign corporation was held bad where it was not shown that it transacted any business there: Wilson v. Detroit & Milwaukee Ry. Co., 3 P. R. 37. Where a foreign Insurance Co. had a head office for the Province in Toronto, service on the local agent of the Co. at Ottawa was held good, notwithstanding the provisions of the Dom. Act, 40 Vict. c. 42, s. 9: Wilson v. Etna Life Insurance Co., 8 P. R. 131; see now R. S. C. c. 124, s. 11; even though the company had transferred its business to another company, the authority of the agent remaining unrevoked: Armstrong v. Lancashire, supra.

For peculiar circumstances under which a corporation was held not to have had an agent in Ontario upon whom service might be effected: see Murphy v. Phoenix Bridge Co., 18 P. R. 406, 495.

"Carrying on Business in Ontario."—See cases under Rule 222, + Burnett, In Assist. Cap. 6 O.W.R. 144

It has been decided under the English O. 63 of 1875, and s. 100 of the Ind. Act of 1873 [see s. 2 (7) of the Ont. Act, and R. S. O. c. 1, s. 8 (13)], that a foreign corporation, though it does not carry on business within the jurisdiction, may be sued there, in cases where an individual foreigner might be sued; see Westman v. Aktiebolaget, etc., 1 Ex. D. 237; Scott v. The Royal War Candle Co., 1 Q. B. D. 404; Royal Mail Steam Packet Co. v. Braham, 2 App. Cas. 381. Such a corporation might, under the old practice, have been sued in Ontario, and the mode of service in such a case was prescribed by Chy. O. 92, and R. S. O. 1877, c. 50, ss. 50 and 51. Since the Ind. Act a foreign defendant can only be sued where Rules 162, et seq., apply.

A foreign corporation which carries on business within Ontario is capable of being treated for the purpose of service as a Provincial corporation resident within the Province: Haggin v. Comptoir, etc., 23 Q. B. D. 519; 61 L. T. 748; approving of and following Nesby v. Von Oppen, L. R. 7 Q. B. 293; see also Palmer v. Gould's Manufacturing Co., W. N. 1884, 63; per Lord St. Leonards in The Carron Iron Co. v. MacLaren, 5 H. L. C. at p. 459; La Bourgeois, 70 L. T. 310, 321; S. C. sub nom. Compagnie-Generale v. Law, 1889, A. C. 431; 80 L. T. 845; Logan v. Bank of Scotland, 1904, 2 K. B. 495.

A foreign corporation, all the directors and officers of which are abroad, but the majority of the shareholders of which are in England, and which has a London agent with a London office, but carries on no principal or material part of its business in England, is Rule 160, not liable to be sued in an English Court: Badcock v. Cumberland, 1893, 1 Ch. 302; 41 W. R. 204; 68 L. T. 155.

Nor can a foreign corporation which advertises that inquiries may be made at the office of its agents within the jurisdiction, be served, by serving the managing clerk of such agents where the office is the agent's office, and the clerk is the agent's servant: Re Princess Clementine, 75 L. T. 335, but see La Bourgogne, supra.

Service under the Eng. (1883) R. 55 was held good on a foreign corporation which had an agency office in London: Lhuissier & Co. v. Hong Kong & Shanghai Banking Co., 33 Ch. D. 445.

The word "clerk" in this Rule means a principal officer and not a mere subordinate clerk: Walton v. Fairclough & Co., 10 M. & W. 438; Hackforth v. Glasgow, 1 L. R. 8 Ex. 151.

Where, by a statute, service of a writ might be effected by being left at, or sent by post to, the company's office, or given to the secretary, or if no secretary, to a director, and the company had no office, and the action was brought by the secretary, service on a director was held invalid: Lancashire v. Dublin Metropolitan, etc., Railway, 37 L. T. 32.

Service on the liquidator of a company is not good service on the company: see Re Flowers, 75 L. T. 306.

Service within the jurisdiction on a broker employed by a foreign corporation to obtain subscriptions to its stock, was held good service on the corporation: Globe P. Co. v. Hilltop, G. M. Co., 33 C. L. J. 771.

A foreign corporation may contract that process, etc., may be served upon a person within the jurisdiction, and the appointment of such person is irrevocable until some other agent is appointed: Tharion Sulphur, etc., Co. v. Société Industrielle, etc., des Métaux, 38 W. R. 78; 60 L. T. 924; Montgomery v. Liebenthal, 1898, 1 Q. B. 407; but only in a case where the Court has jurisdiction to allow service of a writ out of the jurisdiction: British Waggon Co. v. West, 1890, 1 Q. B. 35, 37.

A colonial Government: Sloman v. Governor of New Zealand, 1 C. P. D. 563, and a foreign Government: Strousberg v. Costa Rica, 20 W. R. 125, have been held not to be corporations.

160. In the case of a railway, telegraph, or express corporation, service may be effected under the next preceding Rule, on the agent of such corporation at any branch or agency thereof, or on any station-master of the railway company, or on the telegraph operator, or express agent having charge of any telegraph or express office belonging to such corporation. See Rule 268.

See notes to Rule 159.

The Canadian Pacific Railway, whose head office is in Montreal, was served in Ontario under this Rule with a writ of summons in an action to recover damages for negligence in British Columbia, and the service was upheld: Tytler v. Canadian Pacific Ry., 20 Ont. 654; 26 Ont. App. 467.

Services of papers on certain corporations.

Rule 161.

But an action against a railway company in Ontario, whose head office is in Quebec, for damages to lands in another Province, the title of the plaintiff to which is denied, cannot be maintained in Ontario: Brereton v. Canadian Pacific Ry., 20 Ont. 57.

or by letters patent or special Act.

A mode of serving companies incorporated by special Act, and by letters patent, was formerly provided, in the case of corporations created by Provincial authority by R. S. O. 1877, c. 149, s. 43, and c. 150, s. 60, but these sections have not been consolidated in the R. S. O. 1897. See R. S. C. c. 118, s. 42; c. 119, a. 62, as to companies incorporated by the authority of the Dominion Parliament; and Id. c. 124, ss. 13 and 16, as to insurance companies. See also White v. Land and Water, etc., Co., W. N. 1883, 174, and Harvey v. Harvey, 9 Ont. App. 91.

The provisions of any such statutes must be strictly followed: Wood v. Anderston, 36 W. R. 918.

(ii) Service Out of Ontario.

Jurisdiction.

The right of the Court to order service of proceedings out of the jurisdiction, whether on British subjects or foreigners, is not an inherent right, but depends altogether on statute: see In re Anglo-African S. Co., 32 Ch. D. 350; and see Re Busfield, 32 Ch. D. 123; Re Maugham, 22 W. R. 748. The jurisdiction of all Provincial Courts is prima facie only territorial, and, generally speaking, is exercisable only over persons and land and movables within the territorial limits within which this jurisdiction is to be exercised. "Territorial jurisdiction attaches (with special exceptions) upon all persons either permanently or temporarily resident within the territory while they are within it; but it does not follow them after they have withdrawn from it, and when they are living in another independent country. It exists always as to land within the territory, and it may be exercised over movables within the territory, and in questions of status and succession governed by domicile, it may exist as to persons domiciled, or who, when living, were domiciled within the territory"; see Sirdar Gurdial Singh v. Faridkote, 1894, A. C. 670. In the same case the Privy Council laid down (1) that no territorial Legislature can give jurisdiction, which any foreign Courts ought to recognize, against absent foreigners who owe no allegiance or obedience to the power which legislates; and (2) that in all personal actions the Courts of the country in which the defendant resides, not the Courts of the country where the action arose, ought to be resorted to. And it was also said that "in a personal action to which none of the above named causes of jurisdiction apply, a decree pronounced in absentem by a foreign Court, to the jurisdiction of which the defendant has not in any way subjected himself, is by international law an absolute nullity."

The present English Rules as regards suits against absent foreigners, which are followed by the Ontario Rules, are the result of diplomatic remonstrance in regard to the previous practice of the English Courts, and they were passed "to bring that practice into Rule 162. accordance with well-settled rules of international law, or at all events, comity": see per Lord Coleridge, C.J., Field v. Bennett, 3 Times, 239; 56 L. J. Q. B. 89; and see per Huddleston, B., Lendens v. Anderson, 12 Q. B. D. p. 57; and per Field, J., Hewitson v. Fabre, 21 Q. B. D. p. 8; and per Chitty, J., Re Busfield, 32 Ch. D. 123.

Former Practice.—See H. & L., 2nd ed., 277.

Former practice.

Present Practice.—Under the English Rules it has been held that the provisions of the new Rules are exhaustive, and even though under any former practice process might be served out of the jurisdiction it will not now be allowed unless the case falls within these Rules: Re Eager, 22 Ch. D. 86; Re Cliff, 1895, 2 Ch. 21; and following this English practice the present Ontario Rules embrace all cases in which it is intended that the jurisdiction of the High Court shall, for the present, be exercised in the case of a defendant out of the jurisdiction.

Present practice.

There is, for instance, no power given by the Rules to give leave to serve a writ out of the jurisdiction in an action to enforce a charge against personal property in Ontario: Kolchmann v. Meurice, 1903, 1 K. B. 534; nor in an action for alimony: Wheeler v. Wheeler, 17 P. R. 45; and see Allen v. Allen, 15 P. R. 458, unless Rule 162 (c) applies. See Bonbright v. Bonbright, 1 O. L. R. 629; 2 O. L. R. 249; see also Rasch v. Wulfert, 1904, 1 K. B. 118, where it was held that there was no jurisdiction to authorize service out of the jurisdiction of a summons to enforce an award, under The Arbitration Act. Nor is there jurisdiction now to allow service out of Ontario of a statement of claim already filed. A motion must be made for leave to issue the writ of summons showing a case falling within some clause of this Rule: Pennington v. Morley, 3 O. L. R. 514, and see Re Jones v. Bissonnette, 3 O. L. R. 54.

Where, however, a foreign firm which cannot be sued within the jurisdiction brings an action, it thereby brings itself within the jurisdiction, and by a counter-claim the defendant can set up matters which could not be set up in an action against the foreign firm: Griendtoven v. Hamlyn, 8 Times, 231; but see Imperial Japanese Govt. v. P. & O. Co., 1895, A. C. 644.

A foreign sovereign suing in the Courts of this country submits to the jurisdiction to the extent only that (1) he must give discovery, and (2) cross-proceedings in mitigation of the relief claimed by him can be taken against him: S. African Rep., etc., v. La Compagnie, etc., 1898, 1 Ch. 190.

Motion for Leave to Issue and Serve Writ.—Leave to issue and serve the writ may, and generally should, be asked for on the same motion: Young v. Brassey, 24 W. R. 110; 1 Ch. D. 277; Traill v. Porter, 1 L. R. Ir. 60; McIver v. Crown Point Mining Co., 19 P. R. 335; though separate motions may possibly sometimes be necessary: see Stigand v. Stigand, 19 Ch. D. 460.

Motion for leave to issue and serve.

The motion for leave should also be for the limiting of the time for defendant to appear, and the order giving leave should name the time: Rule 164; Re Jones v. Bissonnette, 3 O. L. R. 54.

The motion is made in Chambers: Ib., before the Master in Chambers or other officer (except the Master in Ordinary) having like jurisdiction in Chambers: see Rules 6, 42, 45, 49, 608.

Rule 162. The evidence in support of the motion (usually an affidavit) is prescribed by Rule 163: see also Scagrove v. Parks, 1891, 1 Q. B. 551.

Affidavit. The affidavit or other evidence should show that prima facie the plaintiff has a good cause of action within the Rules: Great Australian Mining Co. v. Martin, 5 Ch. D. 1; Société, etc., v. Dreyfus, 37 Ch. D. 215; but the Court need not try the action to determine the existence of a cause of action. If there is prima facie evidence that is sufficient: Badische Anilin, etc., v. Chemische Fabrik, etc., 88 L. T. 490; Badische Anilin v. Thompson, 88 L. T. 492a.

Although the affidavit need only establish a prima facie case, it should be "cautious": see Hardingham v. Rowan, 24 Sol. Jour. 309. An order, ex parte, allowing service out of the jurisdiction was discharged upon its being shown that the affidavit on which the order was obtained contained misstatements of fact, which had the effect of showing the plaintiffs to have good cause of action: Republic of Peru v. Dreyfus, 55 L. T. 802. The affidavit may be made by the solicitor or any one who has a knowledge of the facts. Identifying a copy of the statement of claim is not enough: the material allegations contained in it as to the contract, etc., must be sworn to: Great Australian, etc., v. Martin, sup.; Perkins v. Mississippi, etc., Co., 10 P. R. 198; Société, etc., v. Dreyfus, 37 Ch. D. 215. It is not necessary to use the words "there is a cause of action" if the facts sworn to show it: Fowler v. Barstow, 30 W. R. 113; 20 Ch. D. 240.

The affidavit should be styled, "In the matter of an intended action between, etc.": Young v. Brassy, 1 Ch. D. 277; Blake v. Lever, 6 L. R. Ir. 476; Re Jones v. Bissonnette, supra.

The facts must be fairly disclosed, or the order may be rescinded: Plaskitt v. Eddis, 79 L. T. 136.

Where a defendant out of the jurisdiction was a proper party to an action against defendants within the jurisdiction, and on that ground alone was made a defendant, the order allowing service on him was made subject to an undertaking by the plaintiff to submit to a dismissal of the action against the defendant out of the jurisdiction if he failed as against those within: Re Jones v. Bissonnette, supra; and see Barson v. German Union Ins. Co., 6 O. W. R. 21, in which the action was for that reason dismissed.

Service of proceedings other than writs of summons out of the jurisdiction.

Proceedings other than Writs of Summons.—What documents or proceedings other than writs of summons may be served out of the jurisdiction was originally left in some uncertainty: see 11. & L. Ind. Act, 2nd ed., p. 279, 280. Now, however, it has been provided by 3 Ed. vii., c. 8, s. 13, that the word "writ" in Con. Rule 162, shall be deemed to include any document by which a matter or proceeding is commenced.

As to proceedings under The Settled Estates Act: see Rule 975.

As to service of infants with proceedings under The Quietting Titles Act: see Re Murray, 10 C. L. T. 88.

In Manitoba & N. W. v. Allan, 1893, 3 Ch. 432, it was held that the Court had no power to give leave for service of a notice of motion with a writ, where the writ is to be served out of the jurisdiction. But see Herscy v. Herscy, W. N. 1894, 18, and Rule 361.

Counter-claim.

Leave to serve a counter-claim on a third person out of the jurisdiction was granted in Re Luckie, W. N. 1880, 12; and see Grindal v. Haullyn, 8 Times, 231; but refused in Potters v. Miller, 31

W. R. 358; but this case is probably overruled by Dubout v. Mac- Rule 162.
pherson, 23 Q. B. D. 340; and see Rule 249.

As to service of a third party notice out of the jurisdiction: see Third party notes to Rule 200, p. 395. notice.

Discretion.—The Court is not bound to allow service in cases Discretion.
 within this Rule, but has a discretion on a consideration of the merits: Société Generale de Paris v. Dreyfus, 37 Ch. D. 215.

It has been held to be a matter for the discretion of the Judge or officer in Chambers whether he will give leave to issue a writ for service out of the jurisdiction to recover damages for breach of promise of marriage, where the affidavits on the motion do not show that the plaintiff is prepared to prove her case by corroborative evidence of the promise: Franklyn v. Chaplin, 17 Times, 84. See also Cooper v.
Knight, Id., 290.

Motion to set Aside Service.—If the case is not one in which Motion to service should be allowed, the proper course is, not to raise the ques- set aside tion by statement of defence, but to move to set aside the service or service.
 to rescind the order allowing service, if an order has been made:
Preston v. Lamont, 1 Ex. D. 361; Boyle v. Sacker, 39 Ch. D. 249.

If defendant contends that the Court has not jurisdiction under the Rule he may move in the ordinary way in Chambers to set aside the order for service, and the service, and any judgment signed by default of appearance. A motion to a Divisional Court was held to be improper: Black v. Dawson, 1895, 1 Q. B. 848.

Where an order giving leave to serve out of the jurisdiction had been made, a motion against it, on the ground of irregularity, made after the lapse of a year, was held to be too late: Reynolds v. Cole- man, 36 Ch. D. 453.

Where defendant moves against the order or to set aside the service, affidavits are admissible to try the question whether a cause of action arose within the jurisdiction, or other circumstances exist which are necessary under Rule 162 to give the Court jurisdiction, though not to try the merits of the case: Fowler v. Barstow, 20 Ch.
 D. 240; overruling on this point Great Australian Gold Mining Co.
v. Martin, 5 Ch. D. 1; see also Thomas v. Hamilton, 17 Q. B. D. 592; Société, etc., v. Dreyfus, 37 Ch. D. 215.

Where a defendant was resident in Scotland or Ireland the omission of any statement that he was a British subject was held immatterial: Fowler v. Barstow, supra.

Where there has been a conflict of evidence as to whether the cause of action arose within or without the jurisdiction, orders have been made similar to that in Diamond v. Sutton, L. R. 1 Ex. 130, i.e., the service to stand, plaintiff undertaking to be non-suited if no cause of action within the jurisdiction be shewn at the trial: see O'Donoghue v. Wiley, 43 U. C. Q. B. 350; Nottage v. Attkin, 71 L. T.
 Jour. 326, 25 Sol. Jour. 834; see also Fowler v. Barstow, 20 Ch. D.
 240; Shearman v. Findlay, 32 W. R. 122; Thomas v. Hamilton, 17
 Q. B. D. 592, reversing the judgment of the Court below, reported in 55 L. T. 219; and Perkins v. Mississippi, supra, where the practice was disapproved of; but it was again approved of in Simpson v.
Hall, 14 P. R. 310; see also Bell v. Villeneuve, 16 P. R. 413; Franchot v. General Securities Co., 18 P. R. 291; Re Jones v.
Bissonnette, 3 O. L. R. 54; and Burson v. German Union Ins. Co., 6
 O. W. R. 21.

Rule 162. In the case of such a conflict of evidence another practice has sometimes been adopted since Rule 173 was passed, viz., to allow the defendant to enter a conditional appearance and raise on pleadings the want of jurisdiction, so that, where there would be great expense involved in the trial of all the merits, the preliminary question as to the jurisdiction may be tried separately: see Canadian Radiator Co. v. Cuthbertson, 9 O. L. R. 126.

Upon motion to set aside the service on the ground that the breach of contract did not occur within the jurisdiction the plaintiff was refused leave to amend by setting up another and distinct cause of action: Parker v. Schiller, 17 Times L. R. 299.

A notice of motion to set aside an order for service out of the jurisdiction operates as a stay of proceedings till the motion is disposed of, so that the time for appearance does not run in the meanwhile: Confederation Life, etc., v. Moore, 6 O. L. R. 603.

The Court will not try the case on a motion to set aside an order allowing service out of the jurisdiction: Badische Anilin v. Chemische Fabrik, 88 L. T. 490.

Effect of
appearance.

Effect of Appearance.—It is probable that an appearance by defendant in the usual way estops him from moving to set aside a writ and service as contrary to this Rule, notwithstanding White v. MacGregor, Mews Dig. 1882, 342. See also notes to Rule 169.

In Sears v. Meyers, and Heath v. Meyers, 15 P. R. 281, the C. P. D. so held; and see S. C. in appeal, 15 P. R. 456. The Ch. D. doubted this, and held that obtaining security for costs and opposing a motion for speedy judgment (without formally appearing) did not estop: see also Manitoba & N. W. v. Allan, 1893, 3 Ch. 432; Dart v. Citizens, 11 P. R. 513. In the Court of Appeal it was said by Osler, J.A., that defendant might perhaps have appeared under protest, but not having done so, and not having moved against the service, but having appeared simply and submitted to the jurisdiction, he was estopped from questioning the jurisdiction: Sears v. Meyers, 15 P. R. 456.

There is an express Rule in England (O. 12, r. 30), under which a motion to set aside the service of a writ may be made before appearance: see Western v. Perez, 1891, 1 Q. B. 304; but a conditional appearance may be entered: Firth v. De las Rivas, 1893, 1 Q. B. 768; 69 L. T. 383; or an ordinary appearance, unaccompanied by a protest, if defendant notifies plaintiff that he objects to the jurisdiction: Mayer v. Claretic, 7 Times, 40, without waiving the right to set aside the service.

In Ontario a conditional appearance may now be entered by leave of the Court or a Judge: Rule 173; and see Burson v. German Union Ins. Co., 6 O. W. R. 22.

An objection to the jurisdiction of the Court, not based on the ground that Rule 162 does not authorize service, but upon other grounds which might arise even though the Court has jurisdiction over the person of the defendant, is not necessarily waived by an ordinary appearance: Willmott v. Macfarlane, 16 C. L. T. 83; 32 C. L. J. 129.

Objection to an order for service was held to have been waived by appearing on a motion for injunction and arguing the merits: Boyle v. Sacker, 39 Ch. D. 249; by taking a summons for delivery of a statement of claim: Fry v. Moore, 23 Q. B. D. 398; and by applying for security for costs: Lhonneux & Co. v. Hong Kong, etc., Corp.

33 Ch. D. 446; proceeding to examine witnesses after objection to the jurisdiction overruled: Guy v. G. T. Ry. Co., 10 P. R. 372. See also notes to Rule 169.

Substituted Service.—Under the Irish Rules it is held that a writ intended to be served substitutionally upon a person within the jurisdiction may be issued without leave though the defendant be resident out of the jurisdiction: Levin v. Herberts, 16 L. R. 1r. 340; but the contrary has been held in England: Fry v. Moore, 23 Q. B. D. 395, where it was said that holding otherwise would enable the Rule to be evaded, which requires leave to be obtained. Where a writ has been properly issued against a defendant out of the jurisdiction, an order for substituted service within the jurisdiction may be obtained: Ford v. Shephard, 53 L. T. 564; 34 W. R. 63; or by mailing to an address out of the jurisdiction: Dillon v. Bornemann, 3 Times, 3.

In Ontario an order for substituted service can only be obtained in case the subject matter of the action makes Rule 162 applicable; and the time for appearance, etc., will be the same as if the defendant had been served out of the jurisdiction.

The person on whom service is authorized should be served with such form of writ or notice thereof as would be proper if the service were being personally effected upon the defendant himself, at the place where he is at the time of the substituted service.

There cannot be substituted service of an ordinary writ for service within the jurisdiction on a defendant who cannot be served with it by reason of his being out of the jurisdiction: Société Industriale, etc., v. Companhia Portuguesa, etc., W. N. 1889, 32; Fry v. Moore, 23 Q. B. D. 399; Hillyard v. Smyth, 36 W. R. 7; see Field v. Bennett, 56 L. J. Q. B. 89; Stewart v. Bank of England, W. N. 1876, 263; Wilding v. Bean, 1891, 1 Q. B. 100; Worcester, etc., v. Firbank, etc., 1894, 1 Q. B. 784, unless defendant is out of the jurisdiction to evade service: Re Urquhart, 24 Q. B. D. 723; see Watt v. Barnett, 3 Q. B. D. 186; or has left the jurisdiction after the issue of the writ without intending to evade service: Jay v. Budd, 1898, 1 Q. B. 12; 77 L. T. 335.

Foreign Corporations.—A foreign corporation is within the Rules and may be served abroad: Scott v. Royal Wax Candle Association, 1 Q. B. D. 404; Westman v. Aktiebolaget, etc., Snickarefabrik, 1 Ex. D. 237, but not a foreign sovereign or state: Strousberg v. Costa Rica, 29 W. R. 125; see also Sedgwick v. Yedras Mining Co., 35 W. R. 780; Mighell v. Sultan of Johore, 1894, 1 Q. B. 149.

A corporation incorporated by the Dominion is not in any Province a corporation of foreign origin: Tytler v. C. P. Ry., 29 Ont. 654; 26 Ont. App. 467.

Miscellaneous.—The power conferred by Rule 162 of serving a writ or notice of a writ on a defendant out of the jurisdiction, who is neither a British subject nor in British dominions, does not affect 4 & 5 Anne, c. 16, s. 20 (see R. S. O. c. 324, s. 40), by which in certain specified actions where a defendant is beyond the seas when the cause of action arises, the plaintiff is not liberty to bring his action after the defendant's return, but within the period limited by 21 Jac. 1, c. 16 (see R. S. O. c. 324, ss. 38, 39): Musurus Bey v. Gadban, 1894, 2 Q. B. 352; 71 L. T. 51.

Rule 162. It would seem that a party out of the jurisdiction cannot, even by consent, give the Court jurisdiction in cases not within the provisions of Rule 162: see The British Waggon Co. v. West, 1896, 1 Q. B. 35, 37; 73 L. T. 498; but it was held that a party out of the jurisdiction may appoint a person within the jurisdiction to accept service for the purpose of being sued within the jurisdiction; Tharion, etc., Co. v. Société, etc., 60 L. T. 924; 38 W. R. 78; nud see per Lord Esher, 1896, 1 Q. B. 37; Montgomery v. Liebenthal, 1898, 1 Q. B. 487; and that the jurisdiction of any Court may be excluded by agreement: Hoerler v. Hanover, etc., 10 Times, 22.

Service of writ out of jurisdiction.

162.—(1) Service out of Ontario of a writ or notice of a writ may be allowed by the Court or a Judge wherever:—

This Rule is taken from Eng. (1883) R. 64.

The word "writ" in this Rule "shall be deemed to include any document by which a matter or proceeding is commenced, and service of any such document heretofore or hereafter made, if in other respects proper, shall be deemed good service as against the objection that such document was not included in the said Rule"; 3 Ed. vii. c. 8, s. 13.

The sub-sections of Rule 162 are to be read disjunctively, and each of such sub-sections is complete in itself and independent of the others; Tassell v. Hallen, 1892, 1 Q. B. 321; Livingstone v. Sibbald, 15 P. R. 315; Hadad v. Bruce, 8 Times, 409.

(a) The whole subject-matter of the action is land situate within Ontario (with or without rents or profits):

Same as Eng. (1883) R. 64 (a).

The fact that the defendant is the owner of land within the jurisdiction, against which the plaintiff seeks to realize the amount of a judgment recovered against a defendant in a foreign Court, does not raise a cause of action within this or any other section of Rule 162; Heath v. Meyers, 15 P. R. 381, unless the case can be brought within clause (b) infra.

In Conrad v. Alberta, 17 C. L. T. 134, under the similar Ordinance of the N. W. Territories, s. 32 (1), it was held that an action by judgment creditors to declare defendants, resident in a foreign country, trustees for the judgment debtor of lands situated within the jurisdiction of the Court, and for a sale of the land to satisfy the judgment, is an action in which the whole subject-matter is land situate within the judicial district.

(b) Any act, deed, will, contract, obligation, or liability affecting land or hereditaments situate within Ontario is sought to be construed, rectified, set aside or enforced in the action:

Same as Eng. (1883) R. 64 (b).

An action for breach of covenant to repair, contained in a lease of premises situate within the jurisdiction was held to be within this clause: Tassell v. Hallen, 1892, 1 Q. B. 321; 66 L. T. 196; and see Haye v. Sutherland, 20 Q. B. D. 147; so also was an action by a simple contract creditor on behalf of himself and other creditors to set aside an alleged fraudulent conveyance of lands in Ontario, made by the alleged debtor residing out of Ontario: Livingstone v. Sibbald, 15 P. R. 315. But an action for rent is held to be not within this clause, though the lands in respect of which it is payable are within the jurisdiction: Agnew v. Usher, 14 Q. B. D. 78; 51 L. T. 576, 752; but see Tassell v. Hallen, supra.

A statement in the nature of slander of title, made out of the jurisdiction, concerning property within the jurisdiction, has been held not to be an act or thing affecting such property within the meaning of this clause: Casey v. Arnott, 2 C. P. D. 24, where the Rule was held not to apply in a case in which the defendant in Ireland said that a ship in England was unseaworthy.

A slander, not actionable in itself without special damage, spoken out of the jurisdiction, but resulting in a special damage within the jurisdiction, was not within the original Rule: Bree v. Marescanz, 7 Q. B. D. 434; but may now fall within the case provided for by clause (c).

An action between foreigners on a foreign judgment to obtain equitable execution against lands of defendant in Ontario is not within this Rule: Sears v. Meyers, 15 P. R. 381; unless the case can be brought within clause (h) infra.

(c) Any relief is sought against any person domiciled or ordinarily resident within Ontario;

Same as Eng. (1883) R. 64 (c).

As to what amounts to domicile: see Wanzer v. Woods, 13 P. R. 511; Allen v. Allen, 15 P. R. 458; Re Craignish, 1892, 3 Ch. 180; Bonbright v. Bonbright, 1 O. L. R. 629; 2 O. L. R. 249.

If it is shewn that defendant is ordinarily resident within Ontario, it is not necessary to bring the case within any of the other clauses of this Rule: Hudad v. Bruce, 8 Times, 409; but notwithstanding this Rule the High Court has no jurisdiction to entertain an action for damages for trespass to land situated in a foreign country against a defendant resident within Ontario: Companhia de Mocambique v. B. S. African Co., 1892, 2 Q. B. 358; 1893, 1 A. C. 602; Brereton v. Canadian Pacific Ry., 29 Ont. 57; and see Black Point v. Eastern Concessions, 79 L. T. 658; or to set aside an alleged fraudulent conveyance of lands out of the jurisdiction: Burns v. Davidson, 21 Ont. 547, approved in Purdom v. Pavey, 26 S. C. R. 412; or to declare a conveyance of lands out of the jurisdiction, though absolute in form, to be by way of mortgage only, after an absolute conveyance by the grantee to other parties: Gunn v. Harper, 30 Ont. 650; or to redeem lands out of Ontario: Henderson v. Bank of Hamilton, 20 Ont. App. 646; 23 S. C. R. 716. As to the appointment of a receiver of lands out of the jurisdiction, see Mercantile I. Co. v. River Plate, 1892, 2 Ch. 303; Kerr on Receivers, p. 100; and see further as to the jurisdiction in respect of lands out of the jurisdiction, 94 L. T. 409, 30.

It has been held in England that an Admiralty writ in personam cannot be issued for service abroad in respect of a wrong done on the high seas. The phrase "within the jurisdiction," was construed to mean "within the territorial jurisdiction": Re Smith, 1 P. D. 309; The Firar, 2 P. D. 29; which does not extend beyond low water mark: Harris v. Owners of the Franconia, 2 C. P. D. 173; see Reg. v. Keyn, 2 Ex. D. 63.

Rule 142.

A company with a registered office in Scotland and branches in England, was held not to be domiciled or ordinarily resident in England: Jones v. Scottish Accident Insurance Co., 17 Q. B. D. 421; Watkins v. Scottish, etc., Co., 23 Q. B. D. 285; sed vide In re Burland, Burland v. Broxburn Oil Co., 41 Ch. D. 542; Tytler v. Canadian Pacific Ry., 20 Out. 654; 26 Ont. App. 467.

As to foreign corporations doing business within the jurisdiction, see Palmer v. Goulds Mfg. Co., in note to clause (e).

An action to recover damages for negligence alleged to have been committed in British Columbia was held to be maintainable against the Canadian Pacific Railway in Ontario: Tytler v. Canadian Pacific Ry., supra.

No action will lie for a wrong committed out of the jurisdiction, unless it was a wrong according to the law of the place where it was committed: Corr v. Francis, 1902, A. C. 176. Neither can a contract be enforced in Ontario, which would be void as against public policy if made in Ontario, notwithstanding it may be legal according to the law of the place where it was made: Kaufman v. Gerson, 1904, 1 K. B. 591.

A person who has acquired a domicile of choice in Ontario, and has not abandoned it, may be served out of Ontario with a writ claiming alimony: Bonbright v. Bonbright, 1 O. L. R. 249.

- (d) The action is for the administration of the personal estate of any deceased person, who at the time of his death was domiciled within Ontario, or for the execution (as to property situate within Ontario) of the trusts of a written instrument of which the person to be served is a trustee, which ought to be executed according to the law of Ontario;

Taken from Eng. (1883) R. 64 (d). Same as the clause previously in force.

It is a condition precedent to the proper service of a writ out of the jurisdiction under this clause that there be property within the jurisdiction, either when leave to serve the writ is applied for, or when service is effected, or at the latest when an application to set aside the service is made: Winter v. Winter, 1894, 1 Ch. 421; 69 L. T. 759. It is not sufficient that according to the terms of the trust it ought to be within the jurisdiction, if in fact it is not: Ib.

This clause it may be observed is limited to the "personal estate" of a deceased person: where the realty, within the jurisdiction, of a deceased person is also sought to be administered, the case would seem to come within clause (a), or sub-section (3).

- (c) The action is founded on [a judgment or on] a breach within Ontario of a contract wherever made, which is to be performed within Ontario [or on a tort committed therein]; (Rule 1246, 20 June, 1903).

Except the words in brackets, similar to first part of Eng. (1883) R. 54 (c): the Eng. Rule has instead of the words "is to be performed," the words "according to the terms thereof ought to be performed." The words "a judgment or on" were introduced by Rule 162. Rule 1240.

Contract.—No difficulty can now arise such as used to arise under R. S. O. 1877 (c. 50, s. 49), as to the meaning of a "cause of action which arose in Ontario"; see Gilderale v. McDougall, 31 C. P. 104, 106. The breach within Ontario is the test of the application of the Rule, and it is, therefore, enough if any part of the contract in respect of which the breach is alleged, is to be performed within the jurisdiction: Rein v. Stein, 1892, 1 Q. B. 753; 60 L. T. 409.

It is not necessary that a contract should expressly state that it is to be performed within the jurisdiction. It is sufficient if this appear from the contract either expressly, or by necessary implication; surrounding circumstances: Reynolds v. Coleman, 36 Ch. D. 453; Duval & Co. v. Gans, 1904, 2 K. B. 685; 91 L. T. 308; but it must appear from the contract either expressly or by necessary implication: Bell & Co. v. Antwerp Line, 1891, 1 Q. B. 103; 64 L. T. 276; see also The Elder, 1893, 1 P. 119; 69 L. T. 622. If by the contract, as an express or implied term, payment is to be made in Ontario, an action based on a breach of that term will lie within this clause: Anger v. Vasmier, 18 Times, 596; Atkinson v. Plimpton, 6 O. L. R. 566; Duval v. Gans, supra, and see Phillips v. Malone, 3 O. L. R. 47, 492; but quære, whether under the Ontario Rule 162 (c), in construing the contract, the rule of law must be applied that the debtor must seek out his creditor to pay him, unless the application of that rule is inconsistent with the terms of the contract, construing it in the light of the facts which existed when it was made: Blackley v. Elite Costume Co., 9 O. L. R. nt p. 387. See also cases infra, under "Examples."

Bayley v. Handman
6 O. W. R. 108

Where the contract was not in writing, and would only be within this Rule if, by it, payment was to be made in Ontario, and this was disputed, leave to issue the writ was held to be proper; but the defendant was given leave to enter a conditional appearance, so as to enable the question of jurisdiction to be raised in the action: Canadian Radiator Co. v. Cuthbertson, 9 O. L. R. 126.

Where no place of payment is named in a policy of insurance, it must be assumed that payment is to be made at the head office of the company, and that fact may determine the question of the lex loci contractus: Burson v. German Union Ins. Co., 6 O. W. R. 21.

Where part of a contract only is to be performed within the jurisdiction, and a foreign defendant is sued for breach of the contract, the order giving leave for service out of the jurisdiction should expressly limit the relief to be given against such defendant to relief in respect of the breach within the jurisdiction: Manitoba & N. W. Co. v. Allan, 1893, 3 Ch. 432; 69 L. T. 558; see also Indigo Co. v. Ogilvy, 1891, 2 Ch. D. 31, and Lovell v. Coles, 3 O. L. R. 291.

The plaintiff may be directed so to restrict his statement of claim without prejudice to his bringing an action elsewhere for breaches committed without the jurisdiction: Lovell v. Coles, supra.

A contract which may be performed either within or without the jurisdiction is not within this Rule: Bell & Co. v. Antwerp, etc., Line, 1891, 1 Q. B. 103; Comber v. Leyland, 1898, A. C. 524; 79 L. T. 180; see also The Elder, 1893, 1 P. 119; 69 L. T. 622; Thompson v. Palmer, 1893, 2 Q. B. 80; 69 L. T. 366.

Where a contract of hiring is made within Ontario, and the work thereunder is to be done there, the remuneration is payable there: Bell v. Villeneuve, 16 P. R. 413.

Rule 162.

Where a servant employed within the jurisdiction was dismissed by a letter written and posted by his employer out of the jurisdiction, leave to serve a writ for wrongful dismissal was refused, there being no breach of the contract within the jurisdiction: Holland v. Bennett, 1902, 1 K. B. 867; 81 L. T. 485.

As to breach of a promise to marry in Ontario, see Cooper v. Knight, 17 Times, 200.

Tort.—A transfer of goods effected in Ontario as a fraudulent preference, the goods being afterwards removed to Quebec, is a "tort committed within the jurisdiction" within this Rule: Clarkson v. Dupré, 10 P. R. 521.

The publication within Ontario of a libel written without, entitles the plaintiff to sue in Ontario: Shearman v. Finlay, 32 W. R. 122.

The making of a fraudulent conveyance of land out of the jurisdiction, would not appear to be a tort for which the plaintiff could sue under this Rule, even though the deed were actually executed within the jurisdiction: see Burns v. Davidson, 21 Ont. 547.

Criminal proceedings begun in Quebec, under which the plaintiff was arrested in Ontario and taken to Montreal, where he was discharged, were held to constitute one entire tort, founded upon transactions in Quebec, so that leave to issue a writ of summons for malicious prosecution was not allowed: Olinvy v. Beauchemin, 16 P. R. 508.

A foreigner out of the jurisdiction cannot be sued in Ontario for a tort committed out of the jurisdiction: Badische Anilin, etc., v. Johnson, 76 L. T. 434. (See S. C. 1896, 1 Ch. 25, where leave was given for the service, a prima facie case having been made out: see also Rourke v. Wiedebach, 1 O. L. R. 581.)

It is open to question how far a judgment recovered against a defendant sued under this clause would be binding on the defendant in a foreign country: see Sirdar Gurdyal Singh v. Faridkot, 1891, A. C. 70.

Tort committed abroad.

To entitle a plaintiff to sue in Ontario for a tort committed abroad, the act complained of must be wrongful according to the law of England, and must not have been justifiable according to the law of the place where it was committed: Phillips v. Eyre, L. R. 6 Q. B. 1; Machado v. Fontes, 1897, 2 Q. B. 231. See also Carr v. Francis, etc., 1902, A. C. 176. In such an action the defendant can only be sued in Ontario if he can be served therein; leave to serve out of the jurisdiction cannot be given under clause (c): see Rourke v. Wiedebach, 1 O. L. R. p. 583.

Examples.—The following are further examples of the application or non-application of this clause:

Service allowed.

Service was allowed.—Where the plaintiff complained of an agreement made in England as infringing his rights under an agreement made in India, because the action was in respect of a breach within the jurisdiction, of a contract made abroad: Harris v. Fleming, 13 Ch. D. 208; where a contract made in England by a defendant resident in Ireland, to pay for a rink constructed in Dublin, was broken by non-payment to the plaintiff in England: Green v. Brown, 34 L. T. 760. See Atkinson v. Plimpton, 6 O. L. R. 566.

Where goods were furnished by an English firm to defendants in Man, and no place for payment was named, it was presumed that it was to be in England and the breach therefore took place there: Rule 162. Robey v. Snarfell Mining Co., 20 Q. B. D. 152.

So where according to the course of business in similar transactions ^{Service allowed.} payment was to be made in England: Rein v. Stein, 1892, 1 Q. B. 753; Fry v. Raggio, 40 W. R. 120; but where money is payable under a contract, and no place for payment is stated, the case is not brought within the Rule by the fact that the person to whom the money is payable resides within the jurisdiction: Bell v. Antwerp, etc., 1891, 1 Q. B. 103; Banque Nationale v. S. A. Trading Co., 12 C. L. T. 20; Phillips v. Malone, 3 O. L. R. 47, 492; see, however, Thompson v. Palmer, 1893, 2 Q. B. 80.

Where goods were to be shipped in British Columbia and delivered freight paid at Toronto, and payment was to be made in Toronto, an action in Ontario for the amount paid by plaintiff for freight and for damages for breach of contract, the goods not being up to sample, was held to be within the Rule: Fisher v. Cassidy, 14 P. R. 577; and in such a case an action will also lie in Ontario for the price: Atkinson v. Plimpton, 6 O. L. R. 566; Ducal v. Gana, 1904, 2 K. B. 685; so also where a firm in Montreal delivered an order to the plaintiffs' traveller in Montreal, which was accepted by letter of plaintiffs, posted in Toronto, under which goods were to be delivered f. o. b. in Toronto: Blackley v. Elite Co., 9 O. L. R. 382.

Where defendant, a commercial traveller, under a contract for selling and taking orders for goods over a route through British Columbia and Ontario, resigned his position by letter from British Columbia, before the expiry upon performance of the contract in Ontario, the plaintiffs after waiting until the expiration of the time by which the entire contract was to be performed, moved for leave to issue a writ for damages for non-performance of the entire contract, and leave was given to issue a writ confined to breaches of the contract within Ontario, but reserving to the plaintiffs the right to bring action for breaches out of Ontario: Lovell v. Coles, 3 O. L. R. 291.

As to the principles applicable where a plaintiff sues for an account, upon a contract to pay in a foreign currency: see Manners v. Pearson, 1898, 1 Ch. 581; 78 L. T. 432. The payments due must be ordered to be paid in Canadian currency, and must be converted into such currency at the rate of exchange current at the time of the ascertainment of the amount due: Id.

An action to foreclose a mortgage on a policy of insurance against a subsequent incumbrancer was held not to come within this subsection: Deutsche Nat. Bank v. Paul, 1898, 1 Ch. 283; 78 L. T. 35.

Service was not allowed.—Where the writ was indorsed with a ^{Service not allowed.} claim to restrain a ship-owner from dealing with a ship in port at Cardiff contrary to a charter party entered into in Scotland between a plaintiff and defendant who both resided in Scotland: Ex parte McPhail, 12 Ch. D. 632; where the claim was by a cestui que trust resident in England for administration of trusts of Scotch property by Scotch trustees: Crosswell v. Parker, 11 Ch. D. 601; where mortgagees of a ship and her freight, in an action against second mortgagees, discovered that some freight had previously to the suit been collected by brokers in Antwerp, who claimed to retain the money against a debt due to them by the second mortgagees, the plaintiffs obtained leave to serve the brokers, but the order was on motion set Rule 162. aside, the Court holding that the right to the freight was claimed by virtue of a right as mortgagees to take possession of the ship and its earnings, and not by way of enforcement of the contract: Mc-Stephens v. Carnegie, 28 W. R. 385; 42 L. T. 300.

Where by the contract, defendants, a steamship company, were exempted from liability for damage for loss arising beyond their line of steamships, and there was a breach alleged within Ontario, but beyond the said line of steamships, in not delivering the subject of the contract, it was held that as no damage would result from the breach, though the case was technically within this Rule, discretion, if any existed, should be exercised in refusing to allow the service: Perkins v. Mississippi, 10 P. R. 108.

Where an offer to purchase goods was made by letter from London (Ont.), and accepted by letter posted at Quebec, and delivery was to be on the cars at Quebec, it was held that the contract was to be performed in Quebec: Empire Oil Co. v. Vollerand, 17 P. R. 27; and see Phillips v. Molone, 3 O. L. R. 47, 492.

Service was not allowed in an action for wrongful dismissal where the appointment was in Glasgow, and the letter of dismissal was posted there. The defendant was a Scotch coal merchant, who verbally appointed the plaintiff commission agent in Ireland. The posting of the letter was held to be the act of dismissal: Hamilton v. Barr, 18 L. R. 1r. 297; Offord v. Bresse, 16 P. R. 332; but see Bell v. Villeneuve, 16 P. R. 413; Holland v. Bennett, 1902, 1 K. R. 847; 81 L. T. 485.

It was held in Moritz v. Stephon, 36 W. R. 779; 58 L. T. 850, that an action to enforce a charge obtained by a judgment creditor under a statutory provision (1 & 2 V. c. 110, s. 14), (see R. S. O. c. 324, ss. 21, 22), in that behalf, does not fall within this clause, nor any other clause of this Rule, and that therefore service of a writ in such an action out of the jurisdiction is not authorized: Kolchmann v. Maurice, 1903, 1 K. B. 534; and see Re Lo Compognie, etc., 1891, 3 Ch. 451, where, although leave to serve was refused, the Court nevertheless held that the party required to be served, might be notified, without order, that proceedings affecting his interests were pending, leaving him to appear and submit to the jurisdiction if so advised, and the Court if satisfied that a notice so served was sufficient will act upon the notice: Re Cliff, 1895, 2 Ch., p. 28.

A foreigner resident in the Province, or a foreign corporation having a place of business in the Province, may be served without any leave though the contract was made and breach thereof occurred out of the jurisdiction: see Palmer v. Gould's Manufacturing Co., W. N. 1884, 63; and notes to Rules 159-161.

- (f) An injunction is sought as to anything done or to be done within Ontario, or any nuisance within Ontario is sought to be prevented or removed, whether damages are or are not claimed in respect thereof: or (x)

The same as Eng. (1883) R. 64 (f).

(x) As to the effect of this disjunctive "or": see Tussell v. Hallen, 40 W. R. 221; 1892, 1 Q. B. 231.

In Tosler v. Hawkins, 15 Q. B. D. 680, it was held under the Rule 162, corresponding English Rule that the Court might allow service out of the jurisdiction of a writ claiming an injunction to restrain the defendant from sending libels to the plaintiff, resident within the jurisdiction, where the defendant does not state on affidavit that he never comes within the jurisdiction.

But it would seem that the Court has no jurisdiction to grant an injunction restraining a person resident abroad from infringing a Canadian patent of invention: see Badische Anilin, etc. v. Johnson, 1881, 1 Ch. 25; 70 L. T. 434; and see Sirdar Gurdial Singh v. Faridkote, 1894, A. C. 670; but the Court may entertain an action for an injunction against a defendant resident out of the jurisdiction to restrain an infringement of a patent within the jurisdiction: Badische Anilin v. Chemische Fabrik, 88 L. T. 410.

A claim to an injunction to restrain defendant from parting with his assets in a case not otherwise within the Rule does not give jurisdiction by virtue of above clause (f): Sears v. Meyers, 15 P. R. 381.

An injunction to restrain executors out of the jurisdiction from suing within the jurisdiction to recover part of the estate, is an injunction "as to anything to be done within Ontario": Re De Pennu, De Pennu v. Christie, 1891, 2 Ch. 63.

A claim for an injunction which does not appear to be bona fide, but merely to bring the case within this Rule, will not be sufficient: De Bernales v. N. Y. Herald, 68 L. T. 638; 1893, 2 Q. B. 97 (n).

Seemingly, leave cannot be given for service of a notice of motion for an injunction out of Ontario, with the writ: Mautoba, etc. v. Allan, 1883, 3 Ch. 432; but see Rule 361.

See also Lisbon, etc., v. Heddle, 52 L. T. 796; Speckhart v. Campbell, W. N. 1884, 24.

And as to the effect of a judgment recovered under this Rule, see Sirdar Gurdial, etc., v. Faridkote, 1894, A. C. 670.

Unless the injunction can properly be asked against the party out of the jurisdiction he cannot be sued under this clause: Postlethwaite v. McWhinney, 6 O. L. R. 412.

(g) A person out of Ontario is a necessary or proper party to an action properly brought against another person duly served within Ontario. Rules 23 June, 1894. 1309.

The same as Eng. (1883) R. 64 (g).

This clause applies to a foreigner resident out of the jurisdiction: Firth v. De las Rivas, 1893, 1 Q. B. 768; 42 W. R. 100; 60 L. T. 283, 686; Duder v. Amsterdamsch, 1902, 2 Ch. 138; The "Duc D'Aumale", 1903, P. 18; 87 L. T. 674; and whether the action be founded on contract or tort: Croft v. King, 1893, 1 Q. B. 419; but ought only to be applied to an action of tort in extreme cases: Williams v. Cartwright, 43 W. R. 145, per Lord Esher; but see Duc D'Aumale, supra.

Where a person out of the jurisdiction is made a defendant to an action under clause (g), the application for leave to serve him should not be made until the defendant within the jurisdiction has been Rule 162. served: Postlethwaite v. McWhinney, 6 O. L. R. 412; and see Firth v. De las Rivas, 95 L. T. Jour. 297; Yorkshire Tannery Co. v. Eglinton, 54 L. J. Chy. 81; 33 W. R. 162; Collins v. N. B. & M. r. Inacc. Co., 1894, 3 Ch. 228. See, however, Livingstone v. Sibbald, 15 P. R. 315; Tassell v. Hallen, 1892, 1 Q. B. 321.

On the application it should be shewn that the party within the jurisdiction has been served, and that against him substantial relief is claimed: Yorkshire Tannery Co. v. Eglinton, 54 L. J. Chy. 81; 33 W. R. 162; Collins v. North British, etc., Inacc. Co., 71 L. T. 58; 1894, 3 Ch. 228. Failure to so proceed (viz., first to serve the defendant who is within the jurisdiction, and then to apply for leave to serve the defendant who is out of the jurisdiction, with a concurrent writ), is not an irregularity merely which can be condoned: Postlethwaite v. McWhinney, 6 O. L. R. 412.

In order to make the Rule apply, the plaintiff must have an apparent cause of action against the person served within Ontario, or an alternative claim either against the person within or the person without Ontario, though it cannot be ascertained till the trial which of the two is liable: Witted v. Galbraith, 1893, 1 Q. B. 431, 577; 68 L. T. 421; and the relief sought against the person within and the person without the jurisdiction must be connected: Collins v. North British, etc., supra. The Rule cannot be evaded by making persons against whom there is no cause of action, parties only in order to obtain leave to serve the persons out of the jurisdiction whom it is really desired to sue: Ib.; and see Simpson v. Hall, 14 P. R. 310.

The plaintiff cannot by making a person within the jurisdiction a defendant, when he ought properly to have made him a co-plaintiff, thereby acquire a right to add a party out of the jurisdiction as a necessary party under clause (g): Deutsche N. Bank v. Paul, 1898, 1 Ch. 283; 78 L. T. 35; and where the party out of the jurisdiction is made a defendant solely on the ground that he is a proper party to the action against a co-defendant within the jurisdiction, the plaintiff may be required to undertake as a condition of being allowed to serve the defendant out of the jurisdiction, that if he fails against the defendant within the jurisdiction, he will submit to a dismissal of the action as against the defendant out of the jurisdiction: Re Jones v. Bissonnette, 3 O. L. R. 54.

Clause (g) has no application to a third party notice for contribution unless, semble, there were at least two joint contributors, one of whom is within the jurisdiction: McCrane v. Gyles, 1902, 1 Ch. 287; 86 L. T. 1.

In an action to set aside an agreement between a Quebec and Ontario loan company, transferring the assets of the Quebec company to the Ontario company, and for the distribution of the proceeds of the assets, service was allowed on the Quebec company and its liquidator as necessary parties to the action brought against the Ontario company under clause (g): McKay v. Colonial Investment, etc., Co., 4 O. L. R. 571.

In the absence of special circumstances no term ought to be imposed that the plaintiff is not to sign judgment without leave of the Court or a Judge: Firth v. De las Rivas, supra.

In an action for salvage against owners of a vessel within the jurisdiction, leave was given to serve the owner of the cargo out of the jurisdiction: The Elton, 1891, P. 265.

An order was made where the alleged cause of action was a conspiracy by three defendants, one of whom resided out of the jurisdiction; but the plaintiff was required to undertake to submit to a writ out of Ontario. Rule 162.
Simpson v. Hall, 14 P. R. 310.

In an action against defendants in London, for breach of warranty of authority, their principals out of the jurisdiction having repudiated a contract abroad as made without authority, it was held that the foreign principals were proper parties, and service on them was allowed abroad: Massey v. Heynes, 21 Q. B. D. 330; and see Bennetts v. Mee, 1896, 2 Q. B. 464; 75 L. T. 145.

In an action by debenture holders of a foreign corporation against trustees of the debentures residing within the jurisdiction, the validity of the debentures being in dispute, it was held that the corporation was a necessary party, and service on it abroad was allowed under this clause: Bustree v. The G. N. Ry., 195 L. T. Jour. 104.

See also The Steamship Shamrock, Limited, v. Thompson, 52 L. T. 552; Lisbon, etc., v. Heddle, 16, 796; Livingstone v. Sibbald, 15 P. R. 315; Dudge v. Amsterdamse, etc., 1902, 2 Ch. 132, supra, pp. 307, 308.

Where the land in question was out of the jurisdiction, but some of the parties within, liberty was granted to serve a defendant out of the jurisdiction: Jenny v. Mackintosh, 33 Ch. D. 595; Dickson v. Lane, 1885, 2 Ch. 62; 72 L. T. 680; but specific performance of a contract for the exchange of lands out of Ontario for lands in Ontario, was decreed in favour of the plaintiff, who was the owner of the lands out of Ontario: Montgomerie v. Rappensbury, 31 Ont. 433; but see Burns v. Davidson, 21 Ont. 547; Pardon v. Percy, 26 S. C. R. 112; Henderson v. Bank of Hamilton, 23 S. C. R. 716; 20 Ont. App. 646; Gunn v. Harper, 30 Ont. 650; 2 O. L. R. 611.

In Harvey v. Dougherty, 56 L. T. 322, an action for breach of trust was brought against the executors of a testator dying in England, two of whom were in Ireland and one in England. The action was to compel them to replace assets invested in Ireland; service on the defendants resident in Ireland was allowed; see also Re Lane, 55 L. T. 149.

To an action against the personal representatives of a deceased trustee for breach of trust, the solicitors for the trustee, who resided out of the jurisdiction, and had made the investment which had resulted in a loss, were held not to be necessary parties: Plaskitt v. Eddis, 79 L. T. 136.

In Lightowler v. Lightowler, W. N. 1884, 8, an order was made where the party out of the jurisdiction was a partner of the defendant already served, and the action was for specific performance of an agreement to convey the partnership property.

Whether a third party notice can be served under this clause, quære; see Speller v. Bristol, 13 Q. B. D. 96.

The order granting leave to serve the persons out of the jurisdiction, may be for the issue of a writ to be concurrent with the writ served on the other defendants within the jurisdiction: Bart v. Buren, 8 Times, 28.

- (h) Service may also be allowed where the action is for any other matter and it appears to the satisfaction of the Court or a Judge that the plaintiff has a good cause of action against the defendant upon a contract or judgment, [or in respect of a claim for alimony] and that the defendant has assets in Ontario of the value of $200 at least, which may be rendered liable for the satisfaction of the judgment, in case the plaintiff should recover judgment in the action; but in such case if the defendant does not appear, the Court or a Judge shall give directions from time to time as to the manner and conditions of proceeding in the action, and shall require the plaintiff, before obtaining judgment, to prove his claim, before a Judge or jury, or in such manner as may seem proper. 58 V. c. 12, s. 124. Rules 1 Jan., 1896, 1439. 5 Ed. vii. c. 13, s. 22.

"Contract or Judgment."—The words "where the action is for any other matter" in the first line, would appear to extend the class of cases in which service of a writ out of the jurisdiction may be allowed to all other cases not within any of those enumerated in the preceding clauses, but the subsequent words shew that the operation of the Rule is limited to cases where the plaintiff is suing upon a contract or judgment, or for alimony, and it is shewn that the defendant has assets in Ontario of the value of at least $200, which may be considered liable to satisfy the plaintiff's claim if judgment is recovered.

The right to alimony is not based on "contract," and, before the amendment of this clause by 5 Ed. vii. c. 13, s. 22, by inserting the words in brackets, an action for alimony could be brought against a defendant residing out of the jurisdiction only under clause 1c1, upon a judgment recovered out of the jurisdiction: Wholter v. Wholter, 17 P. R. 15; or under clause 1c1 supra.

Amendment of Writ.—The indorsement of a claim on a writ served out of the jurisdiction may be ordered to be amended after service, without requiring re-service, but not so as to add any claim which could not under this Rule be indorsed on a writ for service out of the jurisdiction: Holland v. Leslie, 1894, 2 Q. B. 450; followed Hogaboom v. MacCulloch, 17 P. R. 377.

Where plaintiff and defendant were both residing out of Ontario, and neither of them was a British subject, and the plaintiff's right, if any, to sue depended upon the above clause (th), and defendant, pleading that there was no jurisdiction, a summary judgment under Rule 603 was refused, in view of the provision in clause (th), requiring that the plaintiff prove his claim "before a Judge or jury, etc.," and the case was allowed to go to trial in the regular way: Campbell v. Randall, 17 P. R. 243.

Proceeding in winding up of companies.

(2) Service out of Ontario of any order or notice in the winding-up of a Company, may be allowed by the Court or a Judge:

See also R. S. C. c. 129; 52 Vict. c. 32, s. 11 (D.).

Service of petitions or notices of motion out of jurisdiction.

(3) Service out of Ontario of a petition or notice of motion in an action or matter relating to the administration of the estate of a deceased person or to the execution of a trust, or, praying for an order dealing with any funds in ^{Rule 163.} Court and in interpleader proceedings, may be allowed by the Court or a Judge. Rules 23 June, 1894, 1309 (7).

As to the time for the hearing of the petition or notice of motion: see Rule 164.

An originating notice of motion under Rules 933 or 944, would seem to be within this Rule; but it may be open to question whether a notice of motion for partition under Rule 956 would be so. Such notices will, however, be within other clauses of Rule 162: see Rules 3, 162 (1a), and 3 Ed. vii. c. 8, s. 13, in the note to 162 (1).

Seem, leave cannot be given to serve a notice of motion for an injunction out of the jurisdiction with the writ: Manitoba, etc., v. Allan, 1893, 3 Ch. 432: but see Rule 361.

See also notes supra, p. 295.

Service of proceedings under The Settled Estates Act are provided for by Rule 975.

Notice of a summary application for an interpleader order by an insurance company was allowed to be served out of the jurisdiction under this Rule: Re Confederation Life Ass. Co. & Cordingley, 19 P. R. 89.

(4) Where, under Rule 203 or 659 or otherwise under the practice of the Court, it is necessary or proper to serve persons, not already parties to an action, with an office copy of any judgment or order, or notice to prove claims thereunder, service of the same out of Ontario may be allowed by the Court or a Judge. Rules of 1 Jan., 1896, 1440.

The order allowing service of a copy of a judgment under this Rule must also prescribe the time within which the party served may move against the judgment: see Rule 164 (3), (4).

163. Every application for leave to serve or give notice of any proceeding out of Ontario shall be supported by affidavit or other evidence stating that in the belief of the deponent the applicant has a right to the relief claimed, and showing in what place or country the person to be served is or probably may be found, and whether he is a British subject or not, and the grounds upon which the application is made, and that the case is a proper one for service out of Ontario under these Rules. Rules 23 June, 1894, 1309 (3).

The affidavit must shew that the plaintiff has a prima facie case: Collins v. North British & M. Ins. Co., 1894, 3 Ch. 228; 71 L. T. 58. And a material mistake in the affidavit, though unintentional, will be a ground for rescinding the order: Republic of Peru v. Dryfus, 55 L. T. 802.

It may be difficult for a conscientious plaintiff to comply literally with this Rule, as the relief can only be claimed by the writ and statement of claim, and the affidavit is required to be made before the Rules writ is issued, and therefore before the relief can be claimed: see a form of affidavit, H. & L. Forms, No. 84.

164, 165.

Order to fix time for appearance to writ.

164.—(1) An order allowing service of a writ or notice of a writ out of Ontario shall limit the time for entering appearance.

Order to fix time for hearing motion where no appearance to be entered.

(2) An order allowing service out of Ontario of a petition or notice of motion shall limit a time when the petition or motion is to be heard.

(3) An order allowing service out of Ontario of an office copy of a judgment or order or notice to prove claims thereunder shall limit a time for moving to add to, vary or set aside the judgment or order.

(4) In regulating in an order for service out of Ontario, the time for entering an appearance to a writ, or for hearing of a motion or petition, or for moving to add to, vary or set aside any judgment or order to be served out of the jurisdiction, regard shall be had to the place where service is to be effected. See Rules 23 June, 1894. 1309 (4). (5). (7): Rules 1 Jan., 1896. 1440.

Compare Eng. (1883) R. 68.

See notes to Rule 168.

The order allowing service, besides regulating the time for appearance, should also authorize the service of the statement of claim, if any (see Rule 166), at the same time, and limit a time for the delivery of the statement of defence, which should be not earlier than eight days from the last day for appearance: Melver v. Crown Point Mining Co., 19 P. R. 335. See Lovell v. Taylor, 5 O. W. R. 525.

Notice in lieu of writ.

165.—(1) Where the defendant is to be served out of Ontario, and is neither a British subject nor in British dominions, notice of the writ and not the writ itself shall be served. Such notice shall be served personally, or as the Court or Judge may direct. Rules 23 June, 1894. 1309 (6).

Compare Eng. (1883) R. 69.

Service of notice in lieu of writ.

(2) Notice in lieu of a writ shall be served in the same manner as writs are served. Con. Rule 272.

Compare Eng. (1883) R. 70; and see notes, p. 280.

Notice in lieu of writ.

Service of a writ may be made on a British subject abroad, or upon a foreigner within the jurisdiction: Fowler v. Barstowe, 20 Ch. D. 246; but service of process abroad upon a defendant not a British subject might involve unpleasant questions of jurisdiction. Where, therefore, a defendant to be served out of the jurisdiction is a foreigner, or a foreign corporation, notice of the writ, and not the Rules writ itself, is to be served: Beddington v. Beddington, 1 P. D. 426; Westman v. Aktiebolaget, etc., 1 Ex. D. 237; the Court having jurisdiction to so order service: James v. Despott, 14 L. R. Ir. 71. If the defendant is a British subject residing abroad, the writ itself should be served on him: Great Australian, etc., Co. v. Martin, 5 Ch. D. 1. and so if the defendant is the British wife of a foreigner: see Bacon v. Turner, 34 L. T. 647; Re Howard, 10 Ch. D. 550; but see R. S. C. c. 113, s. 22; Piggott on service out of the jurisdiction, 100. Where the writ was served instead of notice thereof, it was held, under the similar practice before the Judicature Act, that this was an irregularity which could not be cured by amendment, and the service was accordingly set aside: Henderson v. Hall, 8 P. R. 353; and in Hewitson v. Fabre, 21 Q. B. D. 6, such service was held to be a nullity, unless made good by appearance to it without objection.

A respondent to a petition or a notice of motion which can be served out of Ontario may properly be served with the petition or notice of motion itself, and not merely with notice of it. It is only in the case of a writ (or formerly a summons) which commands the attendance of the party served, that service of the document itself is only proper upon a subject who owes obedience to the Courts of the Sovereign.

A foreigner who cannot be served personally out of the jurisdiction may by order be served substitutionally: see Field v. Bennett, 56 L. J. Q. B. 89; but only in a case in which there is jurisdiction to allow service of a writ, or notice thereof, upon him personally: Id.; Worcester, etc., v. Firkbank, 1894, 1 Q. B. 784; 70 L. T. 443; see also note to Rule 146.

166. Where a defendant is to be served out of Ontario, with a writ of summons or notice in lieu thereof, the statement of claim shall be served therewith unless the writ is specially indorsed under Rules 138, 139 or 141. Rules 23 June, 1894, 1311. See Rule 128.

The statement of claim referred to in this Rule means the pleading so called, and not any indorsement, however full, upon the writ, of the nature of the claim: Summers v. Summers, Mr. Dalton, 6th February, 1882; but it will be observed that under the present Rule it is no longer necessary to serve a statement of claim out of Ontario with the writ, where the writ is specially indorsed under Rules 138, 139 or 141.

167. Where a party to an action or matter is absent from Ontario or cannot be found therein to be served, the Court or a Judge may authorize proceedings to be taken against him according to the practice of the Court in the case of a defendant whose residence is unknown, or in any other manner that may be directed, if the Court or a Judge deems such mode of proceeding conducive to the ends of justice; and service so effected shall be equivalent to personal service upon the party. Con. Rule 273.

Other modes of proceeding against absent defendant.

Rule 168. The Act (R. S. O. 1877, c. 40, s. 94), from which this Rule was originally taken, was held to apply to cases where defendants are very numerous or where they reside out of the jurisdiction at a very great distance, or where the residence is not known at all, or where from any other cause it would be difficult or expensive to effect a service: Pearson v. Campbell, 2 Chy. Ch. 25. Advertising has been dispensed with where it would be useless, and service allowed by mailing to the address of defendant's brother resident in the Province, though not in any way an agent of defendant: Cooper v. Lane, 1 Chy. Ch. 323; see also Dobson v. Marshall, 9 P. R. 1.

As to the constitutionality of such a provision as that contained in this Rule: see Ashbury v. Ellis, 1893, A. C. 339.

Mere absence from Ontario unaccompanied by any difficulty in effecting personal service, is no ground for resorting to substituted service under this Rule: Young v. Dominion Construction Co., 19 P. R. 139; but a solicitor on whom service has been ordered to be effected, has no locus standi to move to set aside the service, even though before service his authority to act for the defendant had been revoked: Taylor v. Taylor, 6 O. L. R. 356; though it would be proper for him to notify the opposite party and also the Court of the fact of his want of authority.

APPEARANCE, ETC.

(i) General Rules.

Time for appearance.

168.—(1) Where a defendant is served within Ontario, elsewhere than in the Districts of Algoma, Manitoulin, Nipissing, Rainy River or Thunder Bay, he shall appear within ten days, including the day of service.

(2) If served within the said Districts, unless otherwise ordered under Rule 353, he shall appear within twenty days after the service, including the day of service. Rules 23 June, 1894, 1310, amended; 60 V. c. 19, s. 20.

This Rule supersedes the previous statutory provisions; as to which, see 47 Vict. c. 14, s. 7 (O.); and Kendell v. Ernst, 30 C. L. J. 402.

It is made clear by this Rule that the period limited for appearance is to be inclusive of the day of service: see Cornish v. Manning, 18 C. L. J. 76, 143; 2 C. L. T. 105, and Con. Rule 233 of 1888.

Under the terms of a special order limiting the time for appearance to "10 days from the service of the writ," Rule 344 (1) was held to apply, and the period to be computed "exclusively of the first day and inclusively of the last day": Bank of B. N. A. v. Hughes, 16 P. R. 61.

In case of service by advertising, the advertisement should specify the time for appearance and the time allowed should date from the last publication unless otherwise ordered: Crane v. Jullion, 2 Ch. D. 220.

Service out of Ontario.—Where service is to be effected on a defendant resident out of Ontario, the order which allows service to be effected must name the time for appearance, (see Rule 164), which will be regulated in the discretion of the Court or Judge making the order, according to the distance of the place where service is to be effected, or (in case of substitutional service), according to the distance of the place where defendant is: see Rule 164, and Sparks v. Purdy, 15 P. R. 1. See the form of order, No. 108, in the Appendix (H. & L. Forms, No. 85).

On application in Chambers the periods fixed by the former Rules 275 and 276 were frequently shortened under Rule 353, according to the facilities of communication with the place where the defendant was shewn to be residing. Two weeks was ordinarily limited by the Master in Chambers where the defendant resided in Montreal, and three weeks where defendant resided in some place in the United States not far from the border of Ontario. Similar periods will now probably be fixed in orders giving leave to serve defendants resident in such places.

Where a writ has been issued for service within the jurisdiction, and a defendant out of the jurisdiction is added as a party, the writ should also be amended so as to conform to Form No. 2 (H. & L. Forms, No. 36), or a concurrent writ according to Form No. 2 should be issued: see Dickson v. Law, 1895, 2 Ch. 62; 72 L. T. 680; Burt v. Boucen, 8 Times, 28; Manitoba, etc., Co. v. Allan, 1893, 3 Ch. 434.

169. A defendant shall appear by filing with the proper officer a memorandum in writing, according to Form No. 27, stating, if the defendant appears by solicitor, the name and place of business of such solicitor, or, if the defendant appears in person, stating that he so defends in person, giving his address and naming a place to be called his address for service, which shall not be more than two miles from the office from which the writ of summons was issued. See Con. Rules 277, 282, 284, 286.

(Compare Eng. (1883) Rs. 77, 80, 81, 83.

An appearance entered by two solicitors for one defendant is not a nullity, but is irregular: see Williams v. Williams, 10 M. & W. 178; Walton v. Thompson, L. R. 6 Eq. 7. If sued in a wrong name defendant should appear by the right one, stating that he was sued by the wrong one: Lomax v. Kilpin, 4 D. & L. 295; Hobson v. Wadsworth, 8 Bowl. P. C. 601; (see Zuccato v. Young, 38 W. R. 474, where a motion by a defendant wrongly named and described to set aside the writ as irregular was refused), otherwise the plaintiff may proceed against him by the wrong name: Clark v. Baker, 13 East, 273; Williams v. Bryant, 5 M. & W. 447.

Where a party who appears in person subsequently appoints a solicitor, the practice in Ireland is to enter the solicitor's name on the record by side bar rule for that purpose before any proceeding is taken by such solicitor: Johnston v. Coleman, 8 L. R. Ir. 148. Under these Rules a notice to the opposite party is all that is necessary, but it might be well also to file a copy of such notice: see Rule 336.

An appearance entered without an address is not a nullity, and therefore judgment cannot be signed disregarding it. It must first be set aside as irregular: Gordon v. Roudlen, 34 C. L. J. 135 (Brit. Col.).

Rule 170. Where at an address for service given by a defendant in person, no one was found but a housekeeper who refused to receive documents, service of a summons for judgment under Rule 603 by putting it into the letter box was held not sufficient: Jimincy v. Owen, 28 Sol. Jour. 163.

The former Con. Rule 278 was as follows:

"278. If two or more defendants in the same action appear by the same solicitor and at the same time, the names of all the defendants so appearing shall be inserted in one memorandum. J. A. Pub 50."

This has been omitted in the present consolidation as being unnecessary. The course indicated by it will, however, of course, be taken, otherwise the additional costs will doubtless be disallowed.

Where several defendants represent one interest (e.g., trustee and cestui que trust, mortgagee and mortgagor, partners, etc.), they should appear by the same solicitor, and if they do not, will be allowed only one set of costs: Morgan & Wurtzburg, 124; see also Barrett v. Campbell, 7 P. R. 150; but where a trustee has really a separate interest, as where he claims that a co-trustee is liable, he may reserve a separate set of costs: Webb v. Webb, 16 Sim. 55.

Waiver of irregularity by appearance.

An ordinary appearance usually operates as a waiver of an irregularity in the proceedings taken against the defendant: see Gulton v. Radcliff, L. R. 9 C. P. 189; Preston v. Lamont, 1 Ex. D. 362; Diamond v. Sutton, L. R. 1 Ex. 131; Boyle v. Sacker, 39 Ch. D. 249; Re Merchants Bank v. VanAllen, 10 P. R., per Osier, J.A., at p. 37; Manitoba v. Allan, 1893, 3 Ch. 432; Dart v. Citizens Ins. Co., 11 P. R. 513. See, however, Beuecke v. Frost, 1 Q. B. L. 421; Moore v. Gamgee, 38 W. R. 669; Western National Bank of N. Y. v. Perz, 1891, 1 Q. B. 304; see also note, supra, p. 298.

An appearance to the original writ stands as a good appearance to the writ though subsequently amended: Hammer v. Clifton, 10 R. 55.

Appearance Gratis.—A defendant need not necessarily wait till he is served, before entering an appearance, and where he is prejudicially affected by the issue of the writ, he may appear gratis, so as to compel the plaintiff to proceed promptly: see McTaggart v. Tooth, etc., in notes to sec. 97 of the Act, supra, p. 147 (where a certificate of lis pendens had been issued). Where appearance is so entered notice should be given to the plaintiff's solicitor: Vigeon v. Northcott, 12 C. L. T. 101.

Where no address or improper address
given.

170. If the memorandum does not contain the address of the solicitor or the defendant (as the case may be) it shall not be filed; and if such address is illusory or fictitious, the appearance may be set aside by the Court or a Judge; and thereafter, unless otherwise ordered, the plaintiff may proceed as if the defendant had not appeared. Con. Rule 285.

See Eng. (1883) R. 82.

Where a defendant gives an address for service at which he is not to be found, and there is no person authorized to take in or forward documents, such address is illusory, and the appearance will be set aside: A. v. B., W. N. 1883, 174; W. N. 1884, 241; Edell v. Carr

(probably S. C.), 51 L. T. 621; 33 W. R. 208; E. v. C., 54 L. J. Chy. Rules 308. Rule 171-174.

171. If a defendant does not require the plaintiff to deliver a statement of claim he shall so state in his memorandum of appearance, and in that case shall serve a copy thereof on the plaintiff. Con. Rule 286. Where statement of claim not required.

See Eng. (1883) R. 225.

Where a defendant dispenses with a statement of claim under this Rule, and delivers a defence, the indorsement on the writ becomes for the purposes of pleading the statement of claim, which may be amended without leave under Rule 300; but it was held irregular after defence to deliver a statement of claim, as if none had been delivered; Confederation Life Ass. Co. v. Moore, 6 O. L. R. 648. Sed quare, might not the statement of claim in that case have been allowed as an amended statement of claim within Rule 300.

172. Upon a Memorandum of Appearance being filed, the officer shall forthwith note the same in the Procedure Book. Con. Rule 287. Entry of memor. andum.

See Eng. (1883) R. 83.

An appearance filed without the proper stamp affixed is a nullity: Bank of Montreal v. Harrison, 4 P. R. 331.

173. A conditional appearance may be entered by leave of the Court or a Judge. New. Conditional appearance.

Where a defendant wishes to contend that he is not properly subject to the jurisdiction of the Court, he should obtain leave under this Rule to enter a conditional appearance: see Howland v. Insurance Co., 16 P. R. 514; Campau v. Randall, 17 P. R. at p. 244; as an unconditional appearance will be deemed a waiver of the right to take the objection: Scars v. Meyers, 15 P. R. 381, 456; Western National Bank v. Perez, 1891, 1 Q. B. 304, 313; but an unconditional appearance, though a waiver of the right to object to the jurisdiction of the Court over the person of the defendant, would seem not to be a waiver of the defendant's right to object to the jurisdiction of the Court over the subject matter of the action: see Wilmott v. McFarlane, 22 C. L. J. 129.

174. A solicitor not entering an appearance for a defendant in pursuance of his written undertaking so to do, shall be liable to an attachment. Con. Rule 283. Solicitor's undertaking.

This is the same as Eng. (1883) R. 88; and also as the Ontario Rule 3 of T. T. 1856.

The plaintiff may also proceed, as on default of appearance. Rule 145 provides that service of writ or other document by which a cause, matter or proceeding may be commenced, shall not be required where the defendant by his solicitor accepts service, and undertakes to appear.

Rule 175. Where a solicitor accepted service, but did not in terms undertake to appear, a motion to attach him was refused: The Anna & Bertha, 61 L. T. 332.

An undertaking to "enter an appearance in due course" is unconditional, and must be performed forthwith. A solicitor's undertaking is binding even after the lapse of 12 months from issue of the writ, and under this Rule it may at the instance of the plaintiff be enforced by attachment at any time within six years from its date: Re Kirby, Son, & Verden, 1801, 1 Ch. 407; 83 L. T. 524.

An application to attach should be entitled not in the action but in the matter of the solicitor: Id.

If a solicitor enter an appearance without authority, it may be discharged with costs, to be paid by him: Re Lloyd, 12 Ch. D. 443. See also cases in the note to Rule 143, p. 277; and Re Gray, Gray v. Cole, 65 L. T. 743.

Proceedings by attachment to compel an appearance to be entered, may perhaps be usefully adopted where it is desired to obtain from defendant a waiver of some irregularity: see Carwick v. Young, Jac. 524, or to prevent a relitigation of the matter in an action on the judgment in another country. The plaintiff should request the defendant's solicitor to enter the appearance before moving to attach: Jacobs v. Magnay, 7 Jur. 326.

See also as to the enforcement of an undertaking by a solicitor given out of Court, Woodfin v. Wray, 51 L. J. Chy. 427; and see Sirry v. Harland, 1884, 1 Q. B. 707.

When appearance may be entered and when notice is to be given.

175. A defendant may appear at any time before judgment. If he appears after the time limited for appearance he shall, [forthwith give notice thereof, and he shall] not, unless the Court or a Judge otherwise orders, be entitled to any further time for delivering his defence, or for any other purpose, than if he had appeared according to the writ; and if the defendant appears after the time appointed and omits to give such notice, the plaintiff may proceed as in case of non-appearance. Con. Rule 281, amended.

Compare Eng. (1883) R. 92. The words in brackets are not in the Eng. R., nor is the last clause, which was taken from R. S. O. 1877, c. 50, s. 60 (The C. L. P. Act).

"Forthwith" means "as soon as practically possible, admitting of such reasonable time as may be required for the performance, having regard to the circumstances": Leake on Contracts (2nd ed.), 728; see also Hyde v. Watts, 12 M. & W. 254; Morton v. B. of Montreal, 18 C. L. T. 157.

For the time limited for appearance, see note to Rule 168.

A form of notice of appearance will be found in App. Form No. 45 (H. & L. Forms, No. 1061).

An appearance entered or tendered while the plaintiff is signing judgment is in time: Harris v. Andrews, 3 C. C. L. J. 31; and the judgment is not complete until the stamps are affixed: Smith v. Logan, 17 P. R. 219. See also note to Rule 11, p. 203.

If an appearance has been entered, but the plaintiff nevertheless proceeds as if none had been entered, the proceedings are not null, but merely irregular, and the irregularity may be waived: see Alsager v. Crisp, 9 Dowl. 353; Strauge v. Freeman, 5 Dowl. 407; Maple v. Woodgate, 1 B. & C. 79; but, under this Rule, where notice of an appearance, entered after the proper time was not given, judgment signed disregarding the appearance was upheld: Smith v. Dobbin, 3 Ex. D. 338; see also Hunter v. Wilcockson, 9 P. R. 305; and the knowledge of the fact that an appearance has been entered does not constitute such notice as the Rule requires: Hudson's Bay Co. v. Hamilton, 13 P. R. 481.

In an action for recovery of land, an appearance by the original defendant, after the landlord had intervened and appeared, so as to join with the landlord in a statement of defence, was held regular: Gioring v. Cameron, 10 P. R. 498.

Although an appearance may, under this Rule, be entered at any time before judgment, yet the defendant may be precluded from putting in a defence after the proper time, by the plaintiff's noting the pleadings closed under Rule 263.

(ii) Appearance disputing amount only.

176.—(1) A defendant appearing to a writ, in actions other than upon a mortgage or for the recovery of land, may, in his appearance, or, by notice served within four days thereafter, state that he disputes only the amount claimed; and he need not file any further defence, and the plaintiff may proceed to take an account of the amount due to him before the officer with whom the judgment is to be entered, on four clear days' notice, and judgment may be signed for the whole amount due as in default of a defence. Rules of 1 Jan., 1896, 1443.

Limitation of defence to question of amount only.

(2) The notice may be according to Form No. 46. Con. Rule 299.

For Form No. 46, see H. & L. Forms, No. 112.

A similar notice was provided for by Chy. Gen. Order 436, in mortgage suits, and entitled the defendant to four days' notice of the taking of the plaintiff's account. The extension of the practice by the Jud. Act, 1881, Rule 68, to other suits was new.

The present Rule, following the amendments of Rule 1443 referred to, makes it clear that the Rule is not intended to apply to actions upon a mortgage, which are specially provided for by Rule 596. Upon the appearance, disputing the amount only, being filed, the record is complete. No statement of claim is necessary or proper. Express provision is by this Rule made for the proceedings which may thereupon be taken by the plaintiff to take the account and obtain judgment. Formerly a motion for judgment was necessary: see Peel v. White, 11 P. R. 177; Mahoney v. Horkins, 14 P. R. 117.

A defendant cannot limit his appearance to part of the plaintiff's claim, and offer to submit to another part of it: Padgett v. Padgett, 38 C. L. J. 207; except in the case of an action to recover land, as to which, see Rule 184.

Rule 177. Statute of Limitations.—If the defendant wishes to set up the Statute of Limitations as a bar to the suit, he should set it up by a defence. He can not avail himself of the Statute for that purpose by filing a notice under this Rule: see Cattanach v. Frquhart, 5 P. R. 28, explained, 1 Ont. App. 410, and notes to Rule 271.

As to how far the Statute may be taken advantage of in taking the account under this Rule, see Wright v. Morgan, 1 Ont. App. 613, and note to Rule 506.

(iii) Dower.

Defendant may file appearance and acknowledge tenancy.

R. S. O.
1887, c. 54.

177.—(1) A defendant in an action for dower, may, with his appearance, file an acknowledgment that he is tenant of the freehold of the land named in the writ, together with his consent that the plaintiff may have judgment for her dower therein and may take the proceedings authorized by The Dower Procedure Act to have the same assigned to her, unless the parties otherwise agree, and he shall forthwith serve the plaintiff or her solicitor with a copy of such appearance, acknowledgment and consent, together with an affidavit of the day of the filing of the same; and upon such consent the plaintiff may enter judgment of seisin, and may obtain a writ of assignment of dower, but shall not be entitled to tax or recover the costs of the action or judgment against the defendant.

Judgment
of seisin and writ of assignment thereon.

(2) Where the plaintiff claims arrears of dower or damages for detention of dower, neither the entry of a judgment of seisin nor the taking of proceedings for the assignment of her dower thereunder shall prevent her from proceeding with the action for the recovery of such arrears or damages. Con. Rule 290.

The Dower Procedure Act is now R. S. O. c. 67.

Clause (2) was introduced in Con. Rules 1888, to meet the decisions of Linfot v. Duncombe, 21 C. P. 484, and Cameron v. Christie, 7 P. R. 184, which decided that judgment of seisin is conclusive, and when signed the defendant cannot be proceeded against for damages: see also Harvey v. Pearall, 31 C. P. 239. Those cases are therefore no longer to be followed.

It was held in Ryan v. Fish, 4 Ont. 337, that a dowress may recover damages as well for incure profits as for detention against all persons, and in all cases where they were recoverable before Aug. 10th, 1850. By R. S. O. 1877, c. 55, sec. 45, the procedure before that date was made applicable to all cases not provided for by the Act. This sec. 45 was omitted from R. S. O. 1887, as "effete," because the procedure in an action for dower is under the Jud. Act to be the same as in other actions for recovery of land. No doubt the right to damages has not been affected by the change in the mode of procedure to obtain them: but see Giles v. Morrow, 1 Ont. 527. Costs are not given unless a demand for dower was made: Lance v. Armstrong, 11 Gr. 517.

A widow is not entitled to damages for detention of dower till Rules after demand; Ryan v. Fish, 4 Ont. 355; Mason v. Atwood, 17 Ont. 176-180. 101; nor to either arrears of dower or damages for detention unless her husband died seised; Loose v. Atwood, 11 Gr. 377; McLean v. Morgan, 15 Ont. 104; even though Loose v. Atwood and Morgan v. Morgan, supra.

As to whether damages are to be computed against the value of the freehold from the death of the husband or the day of demand, quære; see Ryan v. Fish, supra.

The mere fact that at the death of, or detention by the husband, his lands were of no rentable value, is not alone sufficient to disentitle the widow to damages if the land has been subsequently made rentable by reason of improvements or otherwise, either by the heir or the vendee; in such case a portion of the rent is attributable to the land; Wallace v. Moore, 18 Gr. 590.

For form of writ of assignment of dower, see Form No. 183 in the Appendix (H. & L. Forms No. 1084).

178. Where the defendant has filed and served an acknowledgment and consent under the preceding Rule, and the plaintiff does not within 3 months thereafter sue out and cause to be executed a writ of assignment of dower, the defendant may, by leave of the Court or a Judge, sue out such writ; and the writ shall be, as nearly as may be, in the same form as a writ sued out by the plaintiff, and the like proceedings shall be had thereon. Con. Rule 291.

See Form No. 183.

179. In an action for dower the landlord or other person under whom a tenant in possession, who is not also tenant of the freehold, holds or entered into possession, may, if he has not been served with the writ, without leave, appear and defend, by filing with his appearance an affidavit that he is tenant of the freehold, and is advised and believes that there is good ground for disputing the plaintiff's claim to dower. Con. Rule 292.

Case wherein defendant may sue out execution, if plaintiff does not.

Landlord may be substituted as defendant.

(iv) Recovery of Land.

180. Any person not named as a defendant in a writ for the recovery of land, may, without leave, appear and defend, by filing with his appearance an affidavit stating that he is in possession either by himself or his tenant (a) (as the case may be), and if the possession is by his tenant, that the defendant named in the writ is his tenant. The affidavit may be according to Form No. 18. Con. Rule 293.

Appearance without leave by person not named as a defendant.

To (a) this Rule corresponds with Eng. (1883) R. 95.

For Form No. 18; see H. & L. Forms, No. 115.

Rules181-183.

The intention would appear to be that in simple cases in which leave would have been given under the former practice as of course, and an affidavit in the form given can be made by the defendant, no leave need be applied for. Under s. 10 of the Ejectment Act (R. S. O. 1877, c. 51) it was often a question whether a person could be said to be in possession by himself or his tenant within the meaning of that section; for example a mortgagee out of possession in an action against his mortgagor: McDermott v. Keeling, 7 T. C. L. J. 150; see also Morris v. Smythe, 2 U. C. L. J. 212. In such cases it will be necessary to apply for leave under Rule 181.

Even where judgment has been signed against the defendant named in the writ, any other person claiming to be in possession independently of him, may obtain leave to defend the action: see Rule 181. and Minet v. Johnson, 63 L. T. 507.

In ejectment by a landlord against his tenant, the sub-tenants of the lessee are not necessary parties; and under a judgment recovered against the plaintiff's lessee, the defendant's sub-tenants may be ejected: Synod v. Faken, 20 Ont. 738. See also Geen v. Herring, 1905, 1 K. B. 152.

Appearance
by leave in action for land.

181. [Where such affidavit is not filed,] any person not named as a defendant in a writ of summons for the recovery of land, may, by leave of the Court or Judge, appear and defend, on filing an affidavit shewing that he is in possession of the land, either by himself or his tenant. Con. Rule 294.

Except the words in brackets, the Rule is the same as Eng. (1883) R. 25.

For cases under the old practice, see Harrison's C. L. P. Act, 518. See also notes to the preceding Rule.

The Court will not on the application consider nice questions as to the right of possession: see Croft v. Lumley, 4 E. & B. 611, and Thompson v. Tompkinson, 11 Ex. 442. In Longbourne v. Fisher, W. N. 1878, 28; 47 L. J. Ch. 379, an equitable tenant for life was given leave to defend an action of ejectment in the place of her trustees, using their names and indemnifying them; and see note to Rule 180. See also Leader v. Hayes, 54 L. T. 204.

Form of appearance
by landlord

182. Any person appearing to defend an action for the recovery of land as landlord, in respect of property whereof he is in possession [in person or] by his tenant, shall state in his appearance that he appears as landlord. Con. Rule 295.

Same as R. S. O. 1877, c. 51, s. 12. The English (1883) R. 96, has the word "only" instead of the words in brackets.

Notice of appearance by person not named as a defendant in writ.

183. Where a person not named as defendant in a writ for the recovery of land enters an appearance according to the foregoing Rules, the appearance shall be entitled in the action against the parties named in the writ as defendants; and the person so entering an appearance shall forthwith give notice thereof, and shall in all subsequent proceedings be named as a party defendant (a); and if such person appears and omits to give notice the plaintiff may proceed as in case ^{Rules} 184, 185. of non-appearance. Con. Rule 296.

(a) The preceding part of the Rule corresponds with Eng. (1883) R. 97: what follows has been taken from R. S. O. 1877, c. 50, s. 60.

A form of notice of appearance will be found in the App. Form No. 45 (H. & L. Forms, No. 106).

The notice should of course be given to the plaintiff if he sues in person, otherwise to his solicitor.

184.—(1) Any person appearing to a writ for the recovery of land may limit his defence to a part only of the land, describing the part with reasonable certainty in his appearance, or in a notice to be served within four days after appearance. ^{Limited appearance in action for land.} Con. Rule 297. ^{Notice.}

(2) The notice may be according to Form No. 47. ^{Form of notice.} Con. Rule 298.

Compare Eng. (1883) Rs. 98 and 99.

For Form No. 47, see H. & L. Forms, No. 113.

This Rule has been held to be applicable in an action of dower: Cunningham v. Pearce, Mr. Dalton, 21st Sept., 1881; see also McCulloch v. McCulloch, 4 C. L. T. 252. Better particulars may be obtained where there is a want of "reasonable certainty": Watson v. Breuer, 4 P. R. 202.

The notice should be served upon the plaintiff if he sues in person, otherwise upon his solicitor.

An appearance without limitation therein, or by notice served within four days after appearance, will of course be an appearance to defend for the whole land, as was expressly provided in the former Rule 297.

This Rule does not enable a defendant in actions other than for recovery of possession of land, to limit his appearance to part of the plaintiff's claim: Padget v. Padget, 38 C. L. J. 207.

5. PARTIES.

(i) Generally.

185. All persons may be joined in an action as plaintiffs in whom any right to relief [in respect of or arising out of the same transaction or occurrence, or series of transactions or occurrences.] is alleged to exist, whether jointly, severally, or in the alternative, [where if such persons brought separate actions any common question of law or fact would arise; but, if, upon the application of a defendant, it appears that such joinder may embarrass or delay the trial of the action, the Court or a Judge may order separate trials, or make such other order as may be expedient]; and without any amendment, judgment may be given for such one or more of the plaintiffs as may be found entitled to relief, for such relief as he or they may be entitled to. [But the defendant, though unsuccessful, shall be entitled to his costs occasioned by joining any person who is not found entitled to relief unless the Court or a Judge, in disposing of the costs, otherwise orders.]. New. See Con. Rule 300.

^{who may be joined as plaintiffs.}

Rule 185.

The former Rule 300, followed Eng. (1883) R. 123; and did not contain the clauses in brackets, which are new, following substantially the Eng. Rule of 26th Oct., 1896. (See W. N. 1896, p. 291; Storey Ann. P. 1905, p. 148).

The last clause in brackets is also contained in Rule 1131.

For the changes in regard to parties introduced by the Judicature Act, and for the decisions down to the time of the passing of the above Rule in 1897, see Holmsted & Langton Jud. Act, 2nd ed., pp. 304, et seq.

Practice
under former Rules and decisions.

Speaking generally the Jud. Act provided that all parties may be joined whose presence before the Court is necessary to enable the Court effectually and completely to adjudicate upon and settle all the questions involved in the action. On the question, however, how far separate causes of action by several plaintiffs or against several defendants might be investigated in one action, the cases do not present a consistent and uniform course of decision. A change of view began about 1893, and culminated in the decision of the House of Lords in Smurthwaite v. Hannay, 1894, A. C. 494, where it was held that several shippers, or several consignees of different shipments, of goods shipped on board the same ship, for carriage from and to the same places, could not join as plaintiffs in one action, against the ship-owners to recover damages for short delivery; because the causes of action were separate and distinct, and could not under the Rule, as it formerly stood, be joined in one action; see also Peninsular and Oriental S. N. Co. v. Taunse Kijima, 1895, A. C. 161.

The numerous cases in which the decision of the House of Lords was subsequently applied led to the passing in England of the Rule of 1896, above mentioned, and in Ontario of the above Rule 185.

Under present
Rule
185.

Under the new Rule probably all of the cases which follow Smurthwaite v. Hannay, 1894, A. C. 494, would now be differently decided. Even under the former Rules it was held that separate actions by husband and wife for damages caused by the same wrongful act ought not to be brought, but that they should join in one action; Noyes v. Young, 16 F. R. 254; but see Himbs v. Vancouver, 76 L. T. 109.

The power to order separate trials contained in Rule 185 is in accordance with the decision in Hannay v. Smurthwaite, in the C. A., 1895, 2 Q. B. 412.

"Series of Transactions."—The allegation, that the defendants have been actuated by the same motive in each of a number of similar transactions between them and distinct plaintiffs, is sufficient to constitute the transactions a "series" within the meaning of this Rule; Mason v. G. T. Ry. Co., 8 O. L. R. 28.

Eight different contracts of insurance, made by six different persons with the same insurance company, were held not to constitute a series of transactions within the Rule: Housinger v. Mut. Reserve, 5 O. W. R. 528. Rule 185.

Joinder of Plaintiffs.—Two or more holders of debentures may join as plaintiffs in an action against directors of a company for damages for alleged misrepresentations in the prospectus of the company: Dringbier v. Wood, 1890, 1 Ch. 393; 70 L. T. 548.

So also two plaintiffs whose names had been wrongfully used in publications of the defendant were held entitled to join in an action to restrain such user: Oxford v. Gill, 1890, 1 Ch. 55; 70 L. T. 338. So also two plaintiffs, a married man and an unmarried woman, against whom charges of criminal intimacy had been made by the defendant, on three different occasions, were held entitled to sue in one action in respect of the three charges, there being publication as to all, and the three occasions being a series with a common question of fact: Agar v. Excott, 8 O. L. R. 177; but the male plaintiff was held not entitled to join in the action a claim for libel contained in a letter to the female plaintiff, except by way of aggravation of damages: Ib.; and several plaintiffs claiming to have been damaged by several defendants combining and conspiring together as officials of different trades unions, to prevent the plaintiffs doing acts they were legally entitled to do, were held entitled to join in one action, and the defendants were also held to be properly sued together: Walters v. Green, 1899, 2 Ch. 696.

Where two or more fruit-growers brought an action claiming to enforce certain preferential rights in Covent Garden Market, it was held that the plaintiffs, as representing a class who had an interest in common, could maintain the action; the Attorney-General was directed to be added as a defendant to represent the rest of the public; sed quare, if that was necessary: Ellis v. Duke of Bedford, 1899, 1 Ch. 494; 1901, A. C. 1; 83 L. T. 486.

Mortgagees asking to have a lease set aside as having been made by the mortgagor after the mortgage, and an assignee for the benefit of creditors asking to have the lease set aside as being voluntary and void as against creditors, were held not entitled to join as plaintiffs: Bank of Hamilton v. Anderson, 7 O. L. R. 613; 8 O. L. R. 153.

The new Rule does not permit claims for seduction and breach of promise of marriage to be joined in one action: Dixon v. Tracey, 17 C. L. T. 381.

A plaintiff claiming on his own behalf damages against directors of a company, in respect of his having been induced by fraud of defendants to purchase shares, was held not entitled under the new Rule to make, in the same action, that claim, and also a claim on behalf of himself and all shareholders to a declaration that a declaration of a dividend on shares, when there were no profits, was ultra vires and illegal, and for judgment for repayment of the dividend: Stroud v. Lawson, 1898, 2 Q. B. 44; 78 L. T. 720.

One of two joint promisees can maintain an action on a contract making the other joint promisee a co-defendant, if after tender of an indemnity against costs he refuses to be joined as a co-plaintiff: Callen v. Knowles, 1898, 2 Q. B. 380.

So also one of several joint covenantees may sue alone to restrain a breach of the covenant, where the other covenantees have ceased to be interested in the covenant; but, scilicet, they should be joined as defendants: see Parrell v. Dean, 31 Ont. 515.

Rule 185. One of several joint owners of a patent may sue for a recovery of profits due for the use of the patent without joining the other owners: Sheehan v. G. E. Ry. Co., 16 Ch. D. 59.

One of several mortgagees may bring a foreclosure action, making his co mortgagees defendants, if they will not join as plaintiffs: Luke v. South Kensington Hotel Co., 11 Ch. D. 121.

One of several owners of a reversion may sue for injury to the reversion without joining his co-tenants: Roberts v. Holland, 1893, 1 Q. B. 685.

As to the mode of objecting to a misjoinder or non-joinder of plaintiffs, see Rule 206.

Where two or more plaintiffs sue for a joint claim, the defendant may set up a separate counter-claim against each plaintiff: Manchester, etc., Ry. v. Brooks, 2 Ex. D. 243.

The proper person to sue directors of a limited company for acts done by them ultra vires, is the company itself; but if the company will not allow its name to be used, a shareholder on behalf of himself and other shareholders may sue, making the company a defendant: per Jessel, M.R., in Russell v. Wakefield, etc., L. R. 20 Eq. 474; Atwood v. Merryweather, L. R. 5 Eq. 464 n.

Where the action is brought to enforce a public right, the Attorney-General should be plaintiff: Deranport v. Tozer, 1903, 1 Ch. 759 (an action to enforce a municipal building by-law). Some only of the public cannot maintain such an action unless they have a special and private interest in the subject matter of the action: Hop v. Hamilton Park, 1 O. L. R. 477; Liverpool v. Chorley, 1872, 2 D. M. & G. 852.

A company in liquidation retains its corporate powers, and suits to recover debts or property of the company should be brought by the liquidator in the company's name: Keat v. Communauté des Sœurs de Charité, 1903, A. C. 220; where, however, the liquidator is suing as representative of the creditors or contributories, he should sue in his own name: Id.

An objection that one of several plaintiffs has no title to maintain the action, should be taken by defence under Rule 285: Harvey v. Ross, 3 O. L. R. 354.

A sovereign of a foreign state is not obliged to sue in his own name to enforce contracts made on his behalf by his ministers, by such ministers or their successors in office, though not expressly named in the contract, may sue for the enforcement thereof: Yezquiedo v. Clydebank E. Co., 1902, A. C. 524; 87 L. T. 329.

Costs. Where two plaintiffs joined in an action and one was successful and the other unsuccessful, the successful plaintiff was held to be chargeable with the costs of joining the unsuccessful plaintiff: W. Horwood & Co. and Isaacs & Co. v. Grey, 10 Q. B. D. 13; 52 L. J. Q. B. 16, but in Viscount Gort v. Rowney, 17 Q. B. D. 625, where costs had been ordered "to abide the event," it was held that the unsuccessful plaintiff only was liable for the costs occasioned by his being joined in the action.

Where some plaintiffs were successful but some were absent from the trial from illness and gave no evidence, the latter were ordered to pay defendants the costs occasioned by their being joined as plaintiffs without prejudice to their bringing a fresh action: Landon v. S., 41 Ch. D. 318.

186. All persons may be joined as defendants against whom the right to any relief is alleged to exist, whether jointly, severally, or in the alternative; and, without any amendment, judgment may be given against one or more of the defendants, according to their respective liabilities. Con. Rule 301.

Rule 186.

Who may be joined as defendants.

(Compare Eng. (1883) R. 126.

This Rule must be read with Rule 206: Edwards v. Lowther, 24 W. R. 434.

Rules 187 and 188 seem to be applications of the principle of the present Rule.

Joinder of Defendants.—Under the present practice in considering the propriety of the joinder of defendants, the nature of the action and the relief asked must be considered. If that relief is of an equitable nature all parties must be before the Court whose presence is necessary to give the plaintiff, if successful, the full measure of his rights, assuming that the action is not multifarious. On the other hand the plaintiff cannot join two independent claims merely because they happen to relate to the same subject matter, there being no connection otherwise between the parties: Ludlow v. Forsythe, 7 Q. L. R. 188.

Ordinarily the right to sue, and the liability to be sued attaches only to individuals, corporations or firms, and as a general rule all persons interested in the subject matter of an action should be made parties either as plaintiffs or defendants, but there are many cases in which the parties interested are so numerous that if it were necessary to make them all parties the difficulty in suing them and carrying on the suit would be insuperable. The rules as to parties to suits in equity were not the same as those which governed Courts of Common Law, and were long since adapted to meet the difficulties presented by a multiplicity of persons interested in the subject matter of litigation. Some of such persons were allowed to sue and be sued on behalf of themselves and all others having the same interests. This was avowedly done to prevent a failure of justice: see per Lord Lindley: Tuff Vale Ry. Co. v. Amalgamated Society of Railway Servants, 1901, A. C. 426; 85 L. T. 147. Suits so constituted were technically called class suits, and provision is made by Rule 200 for the continuance of the former equity practice as to parties in such cases.

This Rule was formerly analogous to Rule 185 as to plaintiffs; and the two Rules received a similar construction; but no amendments corresponding to those indicated by brackets in Rule 185 have been made in this Rule, so that even assuming that the amendments to Rule 185 have the effect of overriding the decision in Smurthwaite v. Hannay, 1894, A. C. 494; 71 L. T. 157, as to plaintiffs, it may still be open to doubt whether the former decisions based upon that case, as regards the joinder of defendants, are not still binding authorities: see Gincer v. Couldridge, 1898, 1 Q. B. 318.

Defendants severally sued on several causes of action.

Following Hannay v. Smurthwaite, it was held by the House of Lords that a plaintiff could not join several defendants in an action to abate several separate nuisances, though occasioned by similar but separate acts: Sadler v. G. W. Ry., 1896, A. C. 450; 74 L. T. 561. And it has been held that several defendants, sued under R. S. O. c. 245, s. 122, for wrongfully supplying liquor to a person at Rule 186. different times, could not be joined as defendants in the same action Crane v. Hunt, 26 Ont. 641.

Torts — Separate causes of action against different persons.

Where several defendants are sued, a claim for damages in respect of a tort alleged against some of them cannot be combined with a claim for damages in respect of a separate tort alleged against all: Gower v. Condrige, 1898, 1 Q. B. 348 (explained in Frankenburg v. Great Horsham Carriage Co., 1900, 1 Q. B. 504; see also Thompson v. London County Council, 1899, 1 Q. B. 840); claims against two or more defendants in respect of separate torts cannot be joined in the same action: Appleton v. Fuller, 6 O. L. R. 683; Hinds v. Barric, 6 O. L. R. 656; even though the damage complained of may be the same as against each defendant; Thompson v. London County Council, 1899, 1 Q. B. 840; and generally speaking, a plaintiff cannot claim on separate causes of action against different persons in one action, if the real causes of action that exist against them are separate; Quigley v. Waterloo, 1 O. L. R. 606; Hinds v. Barric, 6 O. L. R. 656; but there may be such unity in the matters complained of as between all parties as to justify the joining of defendants who are not all interested in the same way, or in the same inquiries: Ernst v. Jaffray, 1 O. L. R. 614.

Causes of action for a similar slander spoken at different times by each defendant, but arising out of the same matter, cannot be joined in the same action; and a cause of action for conspiracy between the defendants wrongfully to dismiss the plaintiff cannot properly be joined with either of the causes of action for slander: Pope v. Hurtray, 17 Times L. R. 717; 85 L. T. 203; but persons who conspire illegally to watch and beset a place with a view to persuade workmen not to work, or to cease work for a person, may be sued jointly in the same action: Walters v. Green, 1899, 2 Ch. 696. (There the right to the relief claimed arose out of the same series of transactions, and there was a common question of fact as well as law, whether all the acts complained of were done in pursuance of a combination so as to render the defendants jointly liable.) Even if it were not established that all the defendants had committed the acts complained of, judgment might be recovered against some or one of them: Id.

In an action against two joint tort-fensors for conversion, a claim may be joined against one of them for money had and received, if it arise out of the same transaction: Rice v. Reed, 1900, 1 Q. B. 54, so also an action may be maintained against a company and its directors and the executors of a deceased director, for cancellation of plaintiff's shares and damages, on the ground of misrepresentations in the prospectus of the company: Frankenburg v. Great Horsham Carriage Company, 1900, 1 Q. B. 504.

Alternative claims

In an action by the assignee of a debt, the plaintiff was allowed to add the assignor and claim alternative relief against him, in the event of being unable to recover against the debtor: Langdon v. Life Society, 3 O. L. R. 247. But the later cases seem to establish that this Rule is confined to cases in which the alternative relief asked by a statement of claim against one defendant is consistent with that asked against another; and entirely separate and distinct causes of action, founded upon different rights, cannot be joined in the same action: Quigley v. Waterloo, 1 O. L. R. 606; Chandler v. Grand Trunk Ry., 5 O. L. R. 589; Andrews v. Forsyth, 7 O. L. R. 188, but see Honduras Ry. Co. v. Tucker, 2 Ex. D. 301; Child v. Staddon, 5 Ch. D. 657; Philips v. Philips, 4 Q. B. D. 134.

If the defendant can show that there is inconvenience or additional expense in trying both the claims at the same time, or that the disposition of one will render the trial of the other unnecessary, he may apply under Rule 237 for the trial of one issue before the other is approached: Bagot v. Easton, 7 Ch. D. 1; or he may apply to compel a plaintiff to elect against which defendant he will proceed: Andriess v. Foraythe, 1 O. L. R. 188.

If alternative cases are alleged, the facts ought not to be mixed up, but should be stated so as to shew on what facts each alternative of the relief sought is founded: Davy v. Garrett, 7 Ch. D. 489.

Where the claim of the plaintiff is in the alternative against one or the other of two defendants, if the plaintiff take final judgment against one of the defendants, that is a bar to the further prosecution of his action against the other defendant: Morrell v. Westmoreland, 1883, 1 K. B. 64; 87 L. T. 635; 1904, A. C. 11; 89 L. T. 702; and see Cross v. Mathers, 117 L. T. Jour. 220.

Where the plaintiff succeeds against one defendant, but not against another: the costs of the successful defendant must be borne by the plaintiff, and not by the unsuccessful defendant, unless the Court orders otherwise: see Child v. Stenning, 7 Ch. D. 413; 11 Ch. D. 82, and Bingham v. Alexander, cited Charley's Judicature Act, 3rd ed. 475. See also Rule 1131.

If a plaintiff brings separate actions against a number of persons whom he might have joined as defendants in one action, he may have to pay the defendants' extra costs: Gueret v. Young, W. N. 1883, 216.

In Warch v. Mihelli, W. N. 1891, 86; 64 L. T. 560, it was said that a man cannot be both plaintiff and defendant, and therefore where the plaintiff was also made a defendant in another capacity his name was struck out as a defendant.

It is not proper to make individual corporators defendants for the sole purpose of making them pay costs: Atty.-Gen. v. Vestry of Bermundsey, 23 Ch. D. 60. See also Matthias v. Yetts, 46 L. T. 497; Barnes v. Addy, L. R. 9 Chy. 244, 25; 256; Burstall v. Bopfus, 26 Ch. D. 35; Amos v. Herne Bay, 80 L. T. Jour. 356, for what was formerly known in Chy. as the Rule of the three A's, and for observations on the practice of making attorneys, agents and arbitrators parties to suits, alleging against the principal defendants fraud in which the co-defendants are not implicated.

As to adding a party for discovery only, see Symonds v. City Bank, 79 L. T. Jour. 175, and Rule 191.

A sovereign of an independent foreign state, though within the jurisdiction of the Court, is not liable to a civil action unless he chooses to submit to the jurisdiction: Mihelli v. Sultan of Johore, 1894, 1 Q. B. 149; 70 L. T. 64; neither is a foreign ambassador: Muxuru Bey v. Galhau, 1894, 1 Q. B. 533. As to the extent to which a foreign sovereign by suing submits to the jurisdiction, see S. African Republic v. Compagnie Franco Belge, 1898, 1 Ch. 190, in the note, supra, p. 235.

In Hyad v. Bowman, 9 P. R. 12, the plaintiff sued in respect of the flooding of land by a milldam. The G. W. Ry. had turned the waters of the stream into another channel, which was not deep enough to carry off all the water, even though the defendant's dam were removed, so that complete relief could not be given, even though the plaintiff were successful against the defendant. The plaintiff was Rule 187. therefore allowed under this Rule and Rule 208 to add the G. W. Ry. Co. as defendants.

In Heatley v. Newton, 51 L. J. Chy. 225, an action by a purchaser for rescission of a contract of sale and costs, auctioneers were made co-defendants with the vendors, the plaintiff alleging that they and the vendors had joined in a fraud whereby the plaintiff was induced to pay too high a price. It was held that the auctioneers were rightly joined and could not claim to be dismissed merely on payment of the deposit into Court, and costs to the date of the order.

In an action to recover the value of goods (an engine and boiler), a person who had notified the plaintiff not to remove the goods, which had not been paid for, and the property in which had not passed, was made a defendant in the action: Polson v. DeGroot, 12 Ont. 279.

An action against four independent saw-mill owners, from whose mills sawdust and refuse matter were carried down the River Ottawa and lodged upon and in front of the plaintiff's land, was held to have been properly brought against all four owners as defendants: Ratti v. Booth, 10 P. R. 649.

Where a restrictive covenant in a lease is omitted in a sub-lease, both lessee and sub-lessee are properly made defendants in an action for breach of the covenant: Tritton v. Bankart, 35 W. R. 474; 161 T. 306; 56 L. J. Chy. 623.

In an action by a creditor to recover a debt, persons to whom the debtor had made an alleged fraudulent conveyance of his property, which the plaintiff claimed to have set aside, were held to be properly joined as defendants: Hutton v. McKellar, 13 P. R. 81.

In an action by a simple contract creditor claiming merely to set aside a conveyance as fraudulent against creditors, the debtor and grantor is a necessary party as well as the grantee: Gibbons v. Davill, 12 P. R. 478.

See also Rule 192 and notes.

Where defendant not interested in all the relief prayed.

187. It shall not be necessary that every defendant to an action shall be interested as to all the relief thereby prayed for, or as to every cause of action included therein; but the Court or a Judge may make such order as may appear just, to prevent any defendant from being embarrassed or put to expense by being required to attend any proceedings in the action in which he may have no interest. Con. Rule 302.

Same as Eng. (1883) R. 127.

See Cur v. Barker, 3 Ch. D. 359, where this Rule was considered and given a liberal construction. The judgment of V.-C. Bacon, which was affirmed on appeal, contains the following passages: "I take it that it was the intention of the Legislature, when any question of any sort, or any set of questions, arose, to endeavour by one hearing and one decree to dispose of all matters in litigation between all the parties who were interested in the subject of the litigation. The Act of Parliament, at the same time that it has enabled any person stating a claim to bring before the Court all persons interested in that claim, and to include in the claim every question that belong to it, or arise out of it, has, at the same time, carefully provided that no one shall be prejudiced by the fact of his being joined. The Rules are distinct on the subject." Rule 188.

It was held that notwithstanding this Rule separate tortfeasors could not be joined as defendants in the same action: Sadler v. Great Western Ry., 1890, A. C. 450; 74 L. T. 561; Gower v. Couldridge, 1898, 1 Q. B. 348; Thompson v. Lardon, 1890, 1 Q. B. 840; 80 L. T. 512; Pope v. Hawtrey, 85 L. T. 263; Quigley v. Waterloo, 1 O. L. R. 606; Walter v. Green, 1899, 2 Ch. 606, 81 L. T. 151; but see Evans v. Jaffray, 1 O. L. R. 614.

See notes to Rule 186.

188 The plaintiff may join as parties to the same action all or any of the persons severally, or jointly and severally, liable on any one contract, including parties to bills of exchange and promissory notes. Con. Rule 303.

All or any parties liable on one contract may be joined.

Same as Eng. (1883) R. 128.

By R. S. O. 1877, c. 50, s. 134, it was provided that all the parties to a bill or note might be joined in one action; but by sec. 135 the non-joinder of any joint drawer, maker, indorser, or acceptor might be pleaded in abatement.

By the present Rule it is optional with the plaintiff in actions on bills and notes, as well as in actions on any other contract, to proceed against any one or more of the parties jointly or severally liable: see Re Arcedeckne, Atkins v. Arcedeckne, 24 Ch. D. 709; Hurray v. Gillett, 18 C. L. J. 78; but one of such parties if sued alone is entitled to have his co-contractors joined, wherever under the old practice a plea in abatement might have been pleaded: Pilley v. Robinson, 20 Q. B. D. 155, as explained in Wilson v. Balcarres, 1893, 1 Q. B. 422; S. C. sub nom. Wilson v. Killick, 68 L. T. 169. Where, however, the joint contractor is a foreigner residing out of the jurisdiction the defendant cannot insist on his being joined: Id.; see also Rubb v. Hurray, 13 P. R. 397. The Court will ordinarily stay the plaintiff's proceedings until the co-contractor is added, when the latter is within the jurisdiction, but where he has been added as defendant, and after reasonable efforts, the plaintiff is unable to serve him with process, the action will be allowed to proceed against the other parties: Robinson v. Girard, 1894, 2 Q. B. 695; 71 L. T. 70.

As to the rule that judgment recovered against one of two joint contractors or tortfeasors is a bar to an action against the other: see Hammond v. Schofield, 1891, 1 Q. B. 453; Toronto Dental Mfg. Co. v. McLaren, 14 P. R. 89; Kelly v. Hammond, 2 Times, 804; Went v. James, 68 L. T. 515; and note to Rules 222 and 223.

Under Chy. Gen. Order 62, a plaintiff might select one or more of several persons liable. Under the corresponding English Con. Order (A. R. 21), it was held in Smith v. Horsfall, 24 Beav. 331, that if the plaintiff chose to sue all or some of them, and the suit became defective or abated by reason of a transmission of the interest of one of them, he could not afterwards proceed against the other. This gloss on the Order was described as highly technical: Grey v. Leavis, L. R. 8 Chy. 1037, 1052, and will not be imported by analogy into the present Rule: Lloyd v. Dimmack, 7 Ch. D. 398. In the latter case two of five defendants became bankrupt, and it was held that the action might proceed against the other three without bringing the Rules trustees of the bankrupts before the Court. For other restrictions upon the application of Chy. G. O. 62, see Lewin, 8th ed., 807. See also Wilson v. Rhodes, 8 Ch. D. 777.

189. A surety for the payment of a mortgage debt may be made a party to the action for the sale of the mortgaged property. Con. Rule 304.

Surety may be joined with mortgagor, relief obtained against both.

Liability of assignee of mortgagor.

Of assignor of a mortgage on covenant for its payment.

Under this Rule an assignee of the mortgagor who had covenanted with the mortgagor to pay the mortgage debt, could not formerly have been ordered to pay the mortgagee, to whom he was under no legal liability: Turnbull v. Symmonds, 11 Gr. 315; Clarkson v. Scott, 25 Gr. 373; and see other cases in notes to Rule 378. And where the original mortgagee had assigned the mortgage to the plaintiff and covenanted for payment, it was held that he was not a surety within the meaning of this Rule, but that the contract amounted merely to a guaranty, to enforce which, a separate action must be brought. Clarke v. Best, 8 Gr. 7. But it would seem that in such cases the appropriate relief as between the plaintiff and defendants, and between the defendants inter se, may now be granted in the same action. See Rule 215, and Campbell v. Robinson, 27 Gr. 634; Chamberlain v. Norris, 28 Gr. 404.

Principal, when a necessary party.

Where the surety had given a mortgage on his own property, the principal debtor was formerly a necessary party to an action for foreclosure, or sale thereof: Scidler v. Sheppard, 12 Gr. 453.

A surety cannot be required to pay the amount of a judgment which it has been agreed shall stand as security for the deficiency on a mortgage, until the security has been realized and the deficiency ascertained: Tetter v. St. John, 10 Gr. 85.

Liability of surety for deficiency.

Where a surety is not joined in an action against his principal, he may be released from liability for interest accruing subsequent to the judgment against his principal, on the ground that the right of action against the principal is merged in the judgment: Faber v. Latham, 77 L. T. 108.

Parties interested in equity of redemption may be allowed to be added or dispensed with.

190 —(1) Where one or more of the persons interested in the equity of redemption are already defendants and it is made to appear to the Court or a Judge either upon motion for that purpose, or at the trial or other disposition of the action, that by reason of their number or otherwise, it is expedient to permit the action to proceed without the presence of the other persons interested in the equity of redemption, the Court or a Judge may make directions accordingly, and may order such other persons to be made parties in the Master's office after judgment.

(2) Where after judgment it appears that persons are interested in the equity of redemption besides those who are already parties, the Court or a Judge may order such persons or any of them to be made parties in the Master's office upon such terms as may seem just. See Con. Rule 306.

Based upon Chy. O. 438 with amendments. This Rule and Rules 203 (3), 659 and 746, constitute an exception to the general rule of practice, that after judgment at the trial parties cannot be added: Rule 190. see Durham v. Robertson, 1898, 1 Q. B. 763, per Chitty, L.J., at p. 774; and see Johnston v. Consumers' Gas Co., 17 P. R. 207.

The words "persons interested in the equity of redemption" in this Rule are intended to apply to persons interested in the ultimate equity of redemption, i.e., the mortgagor or any one standing in his place. As a general rule, all parties interested in the ultimate equity of redemption in mortgaged property, ought to be made original defendants in an action to enforce the mortgage, by sale, or foreclosure: Peters v. Holland, 8 Gr. 238; Buckley v. Wilson, 8 Gr. 500; but not incumbrancers, or execution creditors, who are always added in the Master's office: see Rule 740.

This Rule makes an exception to the general rule, and enables the Court or a Judge to direct that parties interested in the ultimate equity of redemption, may be made parties in the Master's office.

Under the former Con. Rule 300 it was not clear whether before judgment the other persons could by order be directed to be added in the Master's office. It was in Chancery done either upon motion for judgment: Jones v. Bank of E. C., 12 Gr. 429; Faulk v. Harper, 2 Ont. 405; or upon motion in Chambers afterwards: see cases infra. This Rule contemplates either an interlocutory order, or an order embodied in the judgment. Such a direction, however, cannot be inserted in a judgment obtained ex parte.

Clause (2) is new, but only states what might previously have been done.

Upon any such motion to add parties in the Master's office the parties already before the Court are entitled to notice, but not those intended to be added: Pomeroy v. Canniff, 1 Chy. Ch. 351; Harrison v. Greer, 2 Chy. Ch. 440; Runkle v. Moore, 1 Chy. Ch. 59; but see Chumley v. Harrison, 1 Chy. Ch. 380, where the order was granted ex parte. But after a final order of foreclosure, or sale, the application is in general too late: see Orford v. Bayley, 1 Chy. Ch. 272; Street v. Dolan, 3 Chy. Ch. 227. And where the plaintiff had not acted with reasonable diligence in framing his suit, the order was refused: Portman v. Paul, 10 Gr. 458.

Where an order of this kind has been obtained in Chambers after judgment, the defendant so added should be served with a copy of the order adding him, and also with an office copy of the judgment which, by analogy to the procedure laid down in Rule 203 (31), should be indorsed with a notice according to Form No. 74. Any motion to set aside or vary the order or judgment should be made to the Court upon petition: Tice v. Myers, 3 C. L. J. 102.

Wherever the party added claims by title paramount to the plaintiff's, he may move to discharge the order adding him as a party: Houghton v. Shortis, 3 Chy. Ch. 69; but see note to Rule 747.

Occasionally it happens that the plaintiff is unable to determine which of the defendants is entitled to the equity of redemption, or there may be a conflict between defendants on this point inter se. The Court will not however determine such questions ex parte, even against defendants who have not appeared, but will pronounce the usual judgment directing all the defendants to redeem, leaving them to settle their rights inter se by a separate proceeding: Robinson v. Dobson, 11 Gr. 357, and see Ramsay v. Thompson, 8 Gr. 372; or may direct the Master to inquire as to the point: Copley v. Hudson, 13

Rule 190. Gr. 433. But latterly any such reference if ordered has been directed as a separate reference from the general reference in the cause, and so as the plaintiff may not be put to expense, or delay, thereby: see decree in Johnson v. Neezer, D. B. 27, fo. 150.

Wife of Mortgagor.—Whether the wife of the mortgagor who joined in the mortgage to bar her dower should be a party to an action for foreclosure or sale has been several times considered. Prior to R. S. O. 1887, c. 133, ss. 5-8 (see now R. S. O. c. 164, secs. 7-9), it was held that she was neither a proper nor a necessary party: see Moffatt v. Thomson, 3 Gr. 111; Davidson v. Boyes, 6 P. R. 27. After that Act she was held to be a proper party: Building & Loan v. Carswell, 8 P. R. 73; Ayerst v. McClean, 14 P. R. 15. In Cassner v. Haight, 6 Ont. 451, she was held, by Proudfoot, J., to be not a necessary party, but the contrary view was taken by Rose, J., in Blong v. Fitzgerald, 15 P. R. 467, where on her application she was added as a defendant, the opinion being intimated that she was a necessary party in order to bind her by the proceedings. The weight of authority appears to be rather in favour of the view that she is a proper, but not a necessary party. The safer practice is to add her as a party, though strictly speaking a married woman having a mere inchoate right of dower in the equity of redemption has no present right to redeem.

Husband of Mortgagor.—In view of what is said by Osler, J.A., in Moore v. Jackson, 19 Ont. App. at p. 396, and see Wallace v. Lea, 28 S. C. R. 595; it would seem safer to add the husband of a married woman mortgagor as a defendant in an action for foreclosure or sale, notwithstanding the estate mortgaged may have been her separate estate.

Infant Heirs of Intestate Mortgagor.—Though the record may be complete as a matter of title, since The Devolution of Estates Act, by making the administrator of the mortgagor sole defendant (see Plenderleith v. Smith, 5 O. W. R. 753), yet as a matter of procedure the infant heirs are proper parties, and as such should be made defendants to the writ, unless some good reason exists for omitting them: Keen v. Codd, 14 P. R. 182. See notes to Rules 193-195.

Devisees of a mortgagor were ordered to be added: Watts v. Lanc, 84 L. T. 144.

Railway Co.—A railway company which has expropriated part of the mortgaged property and obtained an award fixing the compensation is a proper party to a foreclosure action when the award has not been taken up, and the compensation has not been paid: Scottish Investment Co. v. Prittie, 20 Ont. App. 398.

Prior Mortgagees.—Con. Rule 305 of 1888 has not been inserted in the present Consolidation, as the practice which it stated is now too well established to require stating in a Rule. That Rule was as follows:

Where relief is sought subject to prior mortgage, prior mortgagee an unnecessary party.

"305. Where the plaintiff prays a sale or foreclosure, subject to a prior mortgage, the prior mortgagee is not to be made a party either originally or in the Master's office, except under special circumstances to be alleged in the statement of claim. Chy. O. 440."

This Rule was, and the practice which it stated will still be, confined to cases where the plaintiff claims relief subject to the prior mortgage; where he seeks to redeem, or in any way to bring in question the right of the prior mortgagee, the latter must, of course, be made a defendant by writ. Rule 190.

Formerly Chy. O. 439 provided that where a bill was filed by a subsequent incumbrancer seeking relief against a prior mortgagee, such mortgagee must be made a party previous to the hearing of the cause; but that Order was in 1888 omitted from the Rules as being no longer necessary. The practice it prescribed, however, is still in force.

An action for redemption by a subsequent, against a prior mortgagee, will not lie, unless the prior mortgage, and that of the plaintiff, are both overdue: Parsons v. Bank of Montreal, 15 Gr. 411; Long v. Long, 16 Gr. 239. The owner of the equity of redemption is a necessary party to such an action: Id. Subsequent incumbrancer, action for redemption by.

A bill, by a subsequent incumbrancer, against a prior mortgagee, claiming the right of redemption, but not offering to redeem him, was not demurrable: Pearson v. Campbell, 2 Chy. Ch. 12 (but see Rogers v. Lewis, 11 Gr. 257); and it would probably now be held that a statement of claim, omitting an offer to redeem, would not be open to objection under the present practice: see National Bank v. United Hand in Hand Co., 4 App. Cas., at p. 400.

A subsequent incumbrancer, bringing an action against a prior mortgagee, is not entitled to a sale: McDougall v. Campbell, 6 S. C. R. 502; unless the prior incumbrancer consents, or does not object, to a sale: Grange v. Barber, 2 Chy. Ch. 189; he is only entitled to judgment for redemption, and in default of redemption he is foreclosed: see Rule 391, or the action is dismissed, as against both mortgagee and mortgagor with costs: Hallett v. Furze, 54 L. T. 12, which is equivalent to a foreclosure of the plaintiff: Cornwall v. Henriod, 12 Gr. 338; Inman v. Wearing, 3 De G. & Sm. 734; except in the case of an equitable mortgage by deposit: Marshall v. Shrewsbury, L. R. 10 Chy. 250, unless in the latter case the defendant on obtaining the dismissal, obtains also an order for the absolute conveyance of the property, as he probably might do under the present system of procedure: see Jud. Act, s. 57 (12). Not entitled to a sale.

In an action by a subsequent incumbrancer, to redeem, he may also impeach transactions by the prior mortgagee in reference to the mortgaged estate: McLaren v. Fraser, 15 Gr. 239.

Although a prior mortgagee can, ordinarily, only be made a party to an action by a subsequent incumbrancer, for the purpose of redeeming him, yet where the prior security is created by a deed absolute in form, a subsequent incumbrancer is at liberty to bring him before the Court for the purpose of showing his interest to be redeemable, without offering to redeem him: Moore v. Hobson, 14 Gr. 703; and see Rogers v. Lewis, 12 Gr. 257. To such an action the execution creditors of the alleged mortgagee are necessary parties: Glass v. Freckleton, 10 Gr. 470; and see Darling v. Wilson, 16 Gr. 255, 257. Prior mortgagee, when he may be made a defendant.

Where a prior incumbrancer is made a party to an action by a subsequent incumbrancer, and a judgment for sale is obtained by consent, or without objection on the part of the prior incumbrancer, the proceeds of the sale must be distributed in payment of the claims of the incumbrancers according to their priorities, and in such a case the plaintiff is not entitled to any priority in respect of his costs, even though the fund prove insufficient: Grange v. Barber, 2 Chy. Ch. 189. Subsequent incumbrancer obtaining sale has no priority for costs.

Rules191, 192.

Assignee of equity of redemption, when entitled to attack prior mortgage for fraud.

Where the equity of redemption was valueless, and an assignment thereof was made merely for the purpose of enabling the assignee to impeach a prior mortgage on the ground of fraud for the benefit of the assignor, the assignment was held to savour of champerty, and no relief was granted to the assignee, even though he asked in the alternative for redemption: Muchall v. Banks, 10 Gr. 25; and see Little v. Hawkins, 19 Gr. 267; Wigle v. Settrington, Ib., 512; Bell v. Walker, 20 Gr. 558; Hilton v. Woods, L. R. 4 Eq. 432. But where the assignee takes beneficially, and the assignment is not made merely to enable him to sue in respect of the alleged fraud, it would seem that he may maintain the action: Swear v. Lawson, 15 Ch. D. 424; Dickinson v. Burrell, L. R. 1 Eq. 337.

Relief against other incumbrancers.

A subsequent incumbrancer may, in the same action, obtain relief against the mortgagor, and incumbrancers subsequent to himself—consequent on his redeeming the prior mortgage: Rogers v. Lewis, 12 Gr. 257; McLaren v. Fraser, 15 Gr. 230; and see Rule 753.

Prior mortgagee owning eq. of red., account for rents by.

A prior mortgagee in possession, who is also the owner of the equity of redemption, is only bound to account to a subsequent incumbrancer for rents and profits, on the footing of a mortgagee in possession, until his mortgage is paid off; any subsequent receipts he is entitled to retain without account as owner: Steinhoff v. Brown, 11 Gr. 114.

Officers of corporations not to be made defendants merely for discovery.

191. Where an action is brought against a corporation aggregate, an officer of the corporation shall not be made a defendant for discovery only. Con. Rule 307.

Officers may be parties when charged with wrongful acts.

This Rule applies to cases where the officers are made parties for "discovery only," but where the plaintiff charges the officers of a corporation with collusion and conspiracy to deprive plaintiff of his rights, or damages are claimed against them for wrongful acts, such officers may be properly made defendants notwithstanding this Rule: Cuthbert v. The Commercial Travellers' Association, 24 Gr. 731; Cline v. The Mountairvine Cheese Factory, 20 Gr. 227; Betts v. Neilson, L. R. 3 Ch. 420; L. R. 5 H. L. 1.

As to discovery by corporations, see Rules 433a, 468.

Several defendants in cases of doubt.

192. Where the plaintiff is in doubt as to the person from whom he is entitled to redress he may join two or more defendants, in order that the question as to which, if any, of them is liable and to what extent, may be determined as between all parties. Con. Rule 308.

Substantially the same as Eng. (1883) R. 129.

This Rule is applicable to actions which have been already commenced, as well as to those in which the plaintiff is in doubt at the commencement of action: per Cockburn, C.J., in Honduras, etc., v. Tucker, 2 Ex. D. 395. In that case the plaintiffs claimed against L. specific performance of a contract alleged to have been made by T., the authorized agent of L.; they afterwards alleged that L. denied that T. was his authorized agent, and were therefore in doubt as to who was liable, and they obtained leave to add T. as defendant, claiming that if he was not the authorized agent of L. he was liable as principal. See also Bennett v. McIlraith, 1890, 2 Q. B. 464, followed in Fate v. Natural Gas Co., 18 P. R. 82, but it is doubtful whether these cases would now be followed: see Quigley v. Waterloo, Rule 193, 1 O. L. R. 606; Chandler v. Grand Trunk Ry., 3 O. L. R. 589; Andriens v. Forsythe, 7 O. L. R. 188; and it would seem that the Rule would now be held only to apply to the case of the plaintiff having a single claim, and being in doubt as to which of two or more defendants is liable to satisfy it.

If the doubt arises after an action has been commenced as to whether the defendant sued is the party liable, other parties may be added under Rule 206 (2): Tate v. Natural Gas Co., supra.

This Rule was applied in Harvey v. G. T. Ry. Co. & G. W. Ry. Co., 9 P. R. 80, affirmed on appeal 7 Ont. App. 715, where injury was done to goods carried by two railway companies, but the plaintiff was not able to ascertain which line of railway the goods were on at the time of the injury. The plaintiff was held entitled to join both companies as defendants; and see Witted v. Galbraith, 1893, 1 Q. B. 431. But this Rule does not authorize the recovery of judgment against two or more parties separately liable, and where damages were assessed against two defendants under such circumstances, the Court directed judgment to be entered against one defendant only, on the plaintiff agreeing to abandon judgment as to the other defendant: Crauc v. Hunt, 26 Ont. 641.

In an action brought against an Irish railway company claiming damages for breach of contract in not carrying pigs from a station in Ireland to Liverpool, and for trover and conversion of the pigs; the company having stated in answers to interrogatories, that some of the pigs were sold by the L. & N. W. Ry. Co., on whose line part of the journey had to be performed, but without communication with the defendants, leave was given to add the L. & N. W. Ry. Co. as defendants: Creaton v. Midland, G. W. Ry. Co., 10 L. R. Ir. 74.

Where a plaintiff sues two defendants as alternatively liable, if he recovers final judgment against one of them, he cannot prosecute the action any further against the other defendant, and against him the action must be dismissed: Morel v. Westmoreland, 1894, A. C. 1. see also

As to the person by whom the costs of a successful defendant are to be borne: see notes to Rules 186 and 1131.

193. Trustees, executors, and administrators may sue and be sued on behalf of, or as representing, the property or estate of which they are trustees or representatives, without joining any of the persons beneficially interested, and shall represent them; but the Court or a Judge may, at any time, order any of them to be made parties in addition to, or in lieu of, the previous parties. Con. Rule 309.

Substantially the same as Eng. (1883) R. 130, and an extension of Cby. O. 61.

The effect of Rule 193 is that in litigation with strangers, trustees and executors represent their cestuis que trustent: Re Cooper, Cooper v. Vesey, 20 Ch. D. 611; Bulley v. Bulley, 8 Ch. D. 489; Brooke v. McLean, 5 Ont. 209; thus in a suit for redemption a trustee of the equity of redemption has been held to sufficiently represent the trust estate: Mills v. Jennings, 13 Ch. D. 639; 6 App. Cas. 638; sub nom.

Rule 193. Jennings v. Jordan; see Day v. Radcliffe, 24 W. R. 844; so trustees of real estate, in a partition suit under The Partition Act: Starr v. Gage, 8 Ch. D. 451; Simpson v. Deeny, 10 Ch. D. 28; Goodrick v. Marsh, W. N. 1878, 188; In Re Cooper, 20 Ch. D. 611, one of four trustees under a will was a beneficiary and son of the testator and bore the same name. He, personating the testator, mortgaged the trust estate, and employed the mortgage money for his own use. After his death the remaining trustees brought an action against the mortgagees and beneficiaries to have the mortgage declared void. It was held that the plaintiffs represented the beneficiaries, and that the latter were improperly made parties, and an order directing the mortgagees to pay their costs was therefore reversed on appeal.

But where the trustee was bankrupt: Francis v. Harrison, 43 Ch. D. 183; and even where not bankrupt: Griffith v. Pound, 45 Ch. D. 553; Warell v. Mitchell, 64 L. T. 500, it has been held that he does not sufficiently represent his c. q. t. as defendant in an action of foreclosure unless he is also personal representative of the mortgagor: S. C. 65 L. T. 851; Re Booth & Kettlewell, 67 L. T. 551.

Where the action is brought by a cestui que trust in respect of an alleged breach of trust, the trust estate must be represented, e.g., where the trustees have died, and none been appointed in their stead, the personal representative of the last surviving trustee must be before the Court, or new trustees must be appointed and made parties to the action, because a cestui que trust has no legal title to the trust estate, and it is always necessary that the party having the legal title to the property in question shall be a party to the litigation: Re Jordan, 1904, 1 Ch. 260.

Where the subject of a settlement was an equitable chose in action, and the legal estate was not in the trustees of the settlement, but in the trustees under a prior will who were charged with mis-application of the fund, the cestui que trust was held entitled to institute the suit: Pigot v. Stewart, W. N. 1875, 69.

Notwithstanding this Rule where the interests of the cestui que trust are in conflict with those of the trustee, they should all be made parties: see Meldrum v. Scorer, 56 L. T. 471.

A cestui que trust may probably also still be properly joined where the chief object of the suit is to affect the right of the cestui que trust: Liddell v. Deacon, 20 Gr. 72; Day v. Radcliffe, 24 W. R. 844; or the trustee has an adverse interest: Payne v. Parker, L. R. 1 Ch. 327; or there is a question of fraud: Read v. Prest, 1 K. & J. 183.

Where the action is against a personal representative to recover a debt due by the deceased, if the defendant does not plead and prove plene administravit, he is liable to be personally ordered to pay the costs of the action; but when the action is brought for foreclosure as well as to enforce a covenant for the payment of the mortgage debt, only so much of the costs as relate to the claim on the covenant should be ordered to be paid by an executor or administrator personally: Miles v. Brown, 15 P. R. 375.

In an action for foreclosure, although since The Devolution of Estates Act (R. S. O. c. 127), the record may as a matter of title be complete with the general administrator as sole defendant, yet as a matter of procedure the infant children of the deceased intestate mortgagor are proper parties, and should, as a rule, be made parties, unless good reason exists for omitting them: Keen v. Codd, 14 P. R. 182, and in Watts v. Lane, 84 L. T. 144, a devisee beneficially in-interested in the equity of redemption was required to be added as a defendant. But where the mortgagor had devised his lands to his executors, the latter were held to be the only necessary defendants to an action for foreclosure, even though the widow and children of the deceased mortgagor were in actual possession of the mortgaged premises; Emerson v. Humphreys, 15 P. R. 84; and see Re Booth v. Kettlewell, 67 L. T. 551. Rule 193.

In an action respecting the realty of a deceased person, where the personal representatives neglect to register a caution under R. S. O. c. 127, s. 13, the parties beneficially entitled to such realty as heirs or devisees, sufficiently represent it after the lapse of 3 years: see Ramus v. Dow, 15 P. R. 219; and 2 Ed. vil. c. 17, s. 3.

In an action to establish a will, the executors do not sufficiently represent the next of kin, nor does one of the next of kin sufficiently represent the rest: all should be made parties; Cornell v. Smith, 14 P. R. 273; O'Sullivan v. Phelan, 14 P. R. 278; Gunn v. Carson, 11 C. L. T. 47; and see Clifton v. Crawford, 18 P. R. 316.

Where a party was only agent and not trustee, the principal was required to be made a party: Wright v. Mills (No. 2), 63 L. T. 186.

Where persons are joined with trustees as defendants on the ground that they have become constructive trustees, all are equally liable: there is no primary or secondary liability as between them: Coeper v. Stincham, 68 L. T. 18.

The question of the beneficiaries being parties, or not, is now entirely in the discretion of the Court: see Jennings v. Jordan, 6 App. Cas. 698; 45 L. T. 593. It has been laid down that in the exercise of this discretion, wherever the suit is to set aside the trust, or is adverse to the rights of the beneficiaries, the Court should require one or more of the beneficiaries to be made parties: Read v. Prest, 1 K. & J. 183; Baker v. Trainor, 15 Gr. 252; Payne v. Parker, L. R. 1 Ch. 327; and see Thomas v. Torrance, 1 Ch. Ch. 46, and Clarke v. Cook, 23 Gr. 110; Liddell v. Deacon, 20 Gr. 72.

It would seem that, notwithstanding the general terms of Rule 193, it is only where the trustee has the like absolute control over the trust estate which an executor has over personality, that he can, in general, be said to sufficiently represent his cestui que trust: Cox v. Burnard, 5 Harc. 233. As to the extent to which the personal representative prior to The Devolution of Estates Act represented those interested in the realty: see Eccles v. Lowry, 23 Gr. 167. Under The Devolution of Estates Act (R. S. O. c. 127), ss. 3, 4, the personal representative may, if his letters of administration extend to the realty, as fully represent those interested in the realty as he does those interested in the personality: see Malone v. Malone, 17 Ont. 101; see, however, Kee v. Codd, 14 P. R. 182; Watts v. Lane, 84 L. T. 144; and Ramus v. Dow, supra. Where, however, the beneficiaries are infants or persons not sui juris, they are usually required to be added as defendants.

In a suit for administration, by a plaintiff claiming as a beneficiary under a will, but whose title was doubtful, one of the cestuis que trust was required to be added as a party before the hearing, in order to have an opportunity to argue the question of the plaintiff's title: Day v. Radcliffe, 24 W. R. 844.

In a suit to execute the trusts of a will, where the trustee had only a power of sale on the death of tenants for life who were still living, the parties interested in remainder were ordered to be added: Cox ^{Cases where c. y. t required to be added.}

Rule 194. v. Barnard, 5 Hare, 253; where the plaintiff claimed under an assignment, the validity of which was denied by the trustee, who set up that the heir of the assignor was entitled to the trust estate, the heir was required to be added: Miller v. Ostrander, 12 Gr. 349.

In a suit for foreclosure, where a trustee was defendant and was bankrupt, the cestui que trustent were added: Francis v. Harrison, 43 Ch. D. 183.

Cases where c. q. t. not required to be added.

Effect of representation of c. q. t. by trustee.

For cases where the cestui que trust was not required to be added under the former practice, see H. & L., 2nd ed., pp. 320-321.

Effect of Representation.—Where the action is brought by, or against, a trustee without adding the cestui que trustent as parties, if the question in issue has been fairly tried, all parties represented by the trustee would, generally speaking, seem to be concluded by the judgment, but not otherwise: Eccles v. Lowry, 23 Gr. 167. Thus a decree made after replication filed, dismissing a bill brought by an official assignee, was, in the absence of fraud, conclusive against the creditors of the estate of which he was assignee: Morrison v. Robinson, 19 Gr. 480, and see Jardine v. Wood, 19 Gr. 617.

Where, however, a suit by trustees had failed for want of evidence, it was held that a subsequent suit might be maintained for the same purpose by the cestui que trust on the discovery of new evidence: Pierce v. Brady, 2 Jur. N. S. 772. See, however, Commissioners, etc., of London v. Gollally, 3 Ch. D. 610; 24 W. R. 1059; Morrison v. Robinson, 19 Gr. 480.

Actual knowledge of, and acquiescence in, the proceedings, and acceptance of the benefit thereof, may preclude a person interested from afterwards disputing their validity, even though he were not sufficiently represented in such proceedings; see In re Lart, 1896, 2 Ch. 788.

If a deceased person has no personal representative, proceedings may go on or the Court may appoint a representative.

194. Where in any action or other proceeding it appears that a deceased person who was interested in the matters in question has no personal representative, the Court or a Judge may either proceed in the absence of any person representing his estate, or may appoint some person to represent the estate for all the purposes of the action or other proceeding, on such notice as may seem proper, [notwithstanding that the estate in question may have a substantial interest in the matters, or that there may be active duties to be performed by the person so appointed, or that he may represent interests adverse to the plaintiff, or that there may be embraced in the matter an administration of the estate whereof representation is sought]; and the order so made and any orders consequent thereon, shall bind the estate of such deceased person in the same manner as if a duly appointed personal representative of such person had been a party to the action or proceeding, [and had appeared therein]. Con. Rule 319.

The foundation of this Rule is Chy. Gen. Ord. 56. The clauses in brackets are additions made by R. S. O. 1877, c. 49, s. 9, to the provisions of that Order, which was substantially the same as the present Eng. (1883) R. 168.

A person appointed to represent an estate under this Rule is not entitled to the assets of the deceased, or to administer the same; his authority is purely representative, and upon the subsequent grant of general administration to another his authority, even as a representative of the deceased's estate, is entirely superseded: see McLean v. Allen, 18 P. R. 255. Rule 194.

It was held that an appointment should not be made where an administrator ad litem appointed by the Probate Court would not suffice, and that an administrator ad litem did not sufficiently represent the estate where a general administration of the estate is necessary: Dowdencell v. Dowdencell, 9 Ch. D. 294; see also in. Fr. 5th ed., 181; 6th ed., 208. Morgan Chy. Orders, 201; Webster v. British Empire Co., 15 Ch. D. 169; Curtis v. Caledonia, etc., Ins. Co., 19 Ch. D. 534.

The words in brackets in this Rule were intended to meet the various cases decided under Chy. O. 56 (see Morgan, Chy. Orders, supra), and the Rule as now framed may have rendered some of those cases obsolete; see, however, Fairfield v. Ross, 4 O. L. R. 534. As to the constitutionality of such provisions: see Ashburn v. Ellis, 1893, A. C. 339.

This Rule has still a comparatively limited scope, as the representation which may be ordered under it is only of a deceased person "who was interested in the matters in question." A person the administration of whose estate is the subject of the action, is not a deceased person "interested in the matters in question," within the meaning of the Rule. He must in his lifetime have been interested in the matters in question: Hughes v. Hughes, 6 Ont. App. 373; Fairfield v. Ross, 4 O. L. R. 534; sed vide, Webster v. The British Empire Ins. Co., 15 Ch. D. 169. The legal personal representative of deceased must in such case be a party to properly constitute the action: see ib. and Rossell v. Morris, L. R. 17 Eq. 20; Outram v. Wyckoff, 6 P. R. 150; Leonard v. Clydesdale, 6 P. R. 142; Toronto Savings Bank v. Canada Life Ass. Co., 13 Gr. 171; unless, there being an executor de son tort, Rule 196 applies; but a judgment against an executor de son tort would not bind the deceased person's estate: see Mohamidu v. Pitcher, 1894, A. C. 437; 71 L. T. 99; except so far as is provided by Rule 196.

The Rule enables the Court to take one of two courses, either (1) to proceed without a representative of the estate of a deceased person who may have been interested in the matters in question; or, (2) to appoint some person to represent such deceased person's estate for the purposes of the action.

Where the Court makes an order adopting either of these courses, the estate in question is bound and concluded by the proceedings as though it had been represented in the litigation by a duly appointed legal personal representative.

In order to bind the estate, however, an order under this Rule must be made: it is not enough that the Court should proceed to adjudicate on the matters before it in the absence of a representative of the estate: Re Richerson, 1893, 3 Ch. 146; 3 R. 643; and see Mohamidu v. Pitcher, 1894, A. C. 437; 71 L. T. 99.

Originally the Chy. O. only applied to the representation of the personal estate, and wherever it was necessary that the real estate of a deceased person should be represented in any action or proceeding, the Court had no power, before The Devolution of Estates Act, under this Rule to proceed in the absence of the real representative, or to

No authority to appoint any one to represent realty.

Rule 194 appoint any person to represent such estate, so as to bind it by the proceedings. But in the case of the estates of persons dying after the 1st of July, 1880, the personal representative is also the representative of the realty, unless his powers are expressly limited to the personal estate, or have expired as to realty by reason of his omitting to register a caveat: Ramus v. Dow, 15 P. R. 219; R. S. O. 1897, c. 127, ss. 4, 13; and see Re Williams & McKinnon, 14 P. R. 338; id. v. ib., R. S. O. 1897, c. 50, s. 61.

Further provisions are made by Rules 201-203 to enable actions to be prosecuted in the absence of persons who, according to the ordinary practice, should be joined as parties.

Application
under Rule 194, how made.

The application under the Rule is usually made by ex parte motion in Chambers, but the order may be made at the trial of the action: Menden v. Guidalla, 10 W. R. 485; Hewitson v. Todhunter, 22 L. J. Chy. 76; Re Peppitt, 4 Ch. D. 230; or on a motion for judgment: Gairdner v. Gairdner, 1 Ont. 184, and see Curtius v. Caledonian Fire and Life Ins. Co., 19 Ch. D. 534; or at a subsequent stage of the action where the party whose estate is to be represented, dies after the trial: McCarthy v. Arbuckle, 31 C. P. 48. Before the order is made notice is sometimes required to be given to the person, if any, who would be entitled to letters of administration: Curtius v. Caledonian Fire and Life Ins. Co., supra.

Discretion
of Court.

The Court has a wide discretion either to appoint a representative, or to order that the action may proceed without any representation if it considers the estate in question sufficiently protected: see Joint Discount Co. v. Brown, L. R. 8 Eq. 380; Tarratt v. Lloyd, 2 Jur. N. S. 371; Hewitson v. Todhunter, 22 L. J. Chy. 76.

Cases when representative dis-pens-ed with.

Representation of the estate has been dispensed with, where the deceased person was in the same interest as the plaintiff: Car v. Taylor, 22 L. J. Chy. 910; or where other persons of the same class were before the Court: Threy v. Newman, 17 Jur. 153; and a representative of the estate of one of two executors who had died insolvent, and to which representation could not be obtained was also dispensed with: Moore v. Morris, L. R. 13 Eq. 139; Band v. Randle, 2 W. R. 331; Rogers v. Jones, 1 Sm. & G. 17; and where the deceased person's interest was very small: Montgomery v. Douglas, 14 Gr. 268; and where his estate was insolvent and his next of kin refused to take out letters of administration, and the estate appeared to have no substantial interest in the fund sought to be recovered by the plaintiff, representation was dispensed with: Curtius v. Caledonian Fire and Life Ins. Co., 19 Ch. D. 534; Webster v. The British Empire Ins. Co., 15 Ch. D. 103; and even where the deceased party was sole plaintiff and tenant for life, and an arrear of income remained due to him, an administration suit instituted by him was, on the application of the defendants, revived without any representative of the original plaintiff, whose executor had died without proving his will, but without prejudice to the right of the personal representative of the original plaintiff to intervene: Hayward v. Pile, L. R. 7 Chy. 634, but see Bank of Montreal v. Wallace, 1 Chy. Ch. 261.

Where a deceased person had by an instrument inter vivos made over his property to the defendant, who became bound to pay his grandchildren $400 each after the death of the settlor, the Court dispensed with a personal representative of the settlor, in a suit by one of the grandchildren to enforce payment of the $400: Mulholland v. Merriam, 19 Gr. 288; S. C., 20 Gr. 152.

Where an estate had been administered, and pending the suit for Rule 194. administration, the personal representative died, and all that remained to be done was for the Master to make his report, and it appeared that the estate was insolvent, an order was made appointing the solicitor of the deceased administratrix to represent the estate: Re Tobin, Cook v. Tobin, 6 P. R. 40; and see Sherwood v. Freeland, 6 Gr. 305; Toronto Savings Bank v. Canada Life Assur. Co., 13 Gr. 171.

The Rule has been held to apply though the deceased person was ^{Cases} never a party to the action: Hebster v. British Empire Ins. Co., 15 ^{where Rule} Ch. D. 160; but see Hughes v. Hughes, 6 Ont. App. 373, and to an ^{applies.} action for administration where the estate is small: Re Colton, Fisher v. Colton, 8 P. R. 542, and to actions for the construction of wills: Gairdner v. Gairdner, 1 Ont. 180; see also Mendes v. Guadalla, 10 W. R. 487, where an order was made at the trial; and McCarthy v. Arkhuckle, 31 C. P. 48, where a defendant died after the trial. It also applies to proceedings on a special case: Sicallow v. Binns, 17 Jur. 20; and to proceedings by petition: Re Ranking, L. R. 6 Eq. 601-5; Ex parte Cramer, 9 Hare, App. xlvii.; and see Magnay v. Davidson, 16, lxxxii., but is generally applicable only where from any cause there is difficulty in obtaining representation of the estate: Loag v. Stone, Kay App. xii.; Davies v. Boulcott, 1 Dr. & Sm. 23; Bliss v. Putnam, 20 Beav. 20.

In an action to enforce a lien for an annuity charged upon real estate, it is not necessary to make the personal representative of a deceased person who was liable for its payment a party, unless an account of the personal estate of the deceased is asked: Paine v. Chapman, 7 Gr. 179, and see Burns v. Canada Co., 7 Gr. 387.

In an action for a general account against a surviving trustee or executor it is not, in the absence of special circumstances, necessary that the representatives of a deceased trustee or executor should be made parties where no relief is sought as against the deceased's estate. The defendant may have such representatives added under Rules 206 or 207 if the circumstances render it advisable: Re Harrison, 1891, 2 Ch. 349.

In an action to make several defendants liable for a breach of trust, where one died before decree having made a will appointing executors who had not proved the will (the liability of the surviving defendants being the same as that of the deceased defendant), the Court made an order allowing the suit to proceed in the absence of a personal representative, reserving leave to the executors to intervene, if so advised when they had proved the will: Heberman Joint Stock Co. v. Fotherill, 13 L. R. 1r. 335.

An administrator ad litem does not, under R. S. O. c. 129, s. 11, sufficiently represent the estate of a person sued for a tort who dies pendente lite: Hunter v. Boyd, 3 O. L. R. 183.

Where a mortgagor died pending a foreclosure action, it was held that a final order could not properly be made so as to bind the mortgagor's estate against a person appointed to represent his estate under this Rule: Aylward v. Leicis, 1891, 2 Ch. 81; 64 L. T. 250.

See Wingrove v. Thompson, 11 Ch. D. 419, cited in note to Rule 403.

A person cannot be appointed to represent an estate under this Rule without his consent: Prince of Wales Co. v. Palmer, 25 Beav. 405; Hill v. Bonney, 26 Beav. 372. The proper person to be appointed ^{Consent of person appointed necessary.}

Rule 194. pointed is the person who would be appointed administrator ad litem. Dean of Ely v. Gayford, 10 Beav. 581; where the deceased had left a will which was disputed, the person named as executor therein was appointed; Hele v. Lord Berkeley, 15 Beav. 344.

Judgment against personal representative
how far binding on real representative

Although a judgment in a suit to which the personal representative was a party was conclusive as regards the personal estate and those beneficially interested therein, whether as legatees or next of kin; it was formerly only prima facie evidence of liability of the estate as against those interested in the realty, whether as devisees, or heirs-at-law, and the latter were at liberty to rebut it; Eccles v. Lowry, 23 Gr. 107; Lovell v. Gibson, 19 Gr. 280; Willis v. Willis, 19 Gr. 573; Horvey v. Wilde, L. R. 14 Eq. 438; Steel v. Linberger, 78 Penn. St. Rep. 308; Story v. Fry, 1 Y. & C. C. C. 603, and see Anderson v. Paine, 14 Gr. 110; and it is therefore only to this extent that an order under the Rule will bind those interested in the real estate, except in cases coming under The Devolution of Estates Act (R. S. O. 1897, c. 127), s. 4, in which the personal representative also represents the realty. But even before The Devolution of Estates Act the lands of a deceased person could be sold under execution against his personal representative, without making the persons interested in the realty parties; R. S. O. 1877, c. 66, ss. 35, 36, 40; and the persons interested in the realty were prima facie bound by the sale; McEvoy v. Chant, 21 Gr. 515. But where the claim for which the judgment was recovered was one that was not properly enforceable against the realty, the execution might be stayed in an action by heirs-at-law; Anderson v. Paine, 14 Gr. 110; and if a sale took place it might be successfully impeached by the heirs-at-law; Freed v. Orr, 6 Ont. App. 600; Mohamidu v. Pitcher, 1894, A. C. 437; 71 L. T. 99. Where the judgment against the personal representative was successfully impeached on the ground of fraud and collusion, the beneficiaries were entitled to set up the Statute of Limitations against the claim of the creditor which the personal representative had omitted or neglected to plead; Jardine v. Wood, 19 Gr. 617.

The Master in Chambers has power to entertain applications under this Rule for the appointment of a person to represent the estate of a deceased party; Colliver v. Surpuzie, 8 P. R. 42.

Rule does not supersede jurisdiction of Surrogate
Courts.

This Rule does not authorize the High Court to grant letters probate of wills, or letters of administration. It merely enables the Court to proceed with an action so as to bind the personal estate of a deceased person even though no letters probate, or letters of administration, have been granted by the Surrogate Court. In the absence of some such power the Court would have no jurisdiction to bind the estate of a deceased person unless some duly appointed personal representative were before the Court; even an executor who had applied for, but not actually obtained probate, would not represent the deceased's estate so as to bind it by a judgment recovered against him; Mohamidu v. Pitcher, supra. The representative authorized to be appointed by this Rule is not an administrator, but merely represents the estate for the purpose of the action in which the order is made, and he is not entitled to act as an administrator of the estate except so far only as it is necessary for him to do so for the purposes of the action in which he is so appointed. It has not been usual to require any security to be given by a person appointed under this Rule to represent an estate; and he has no authority to receive any moneys belonging to the estate he is appointed to represent, except according to the express order of the Court in that behalf. The Court has, under the original Chy. O., refused to appoint a person Rule 195 to receive a sum of money payable out of Court to a deceased person: Randall v. McMahon, 1 Drew. 225; Williams v. Allen, 32 Beav. 450; and has refused to order payment to a person who has been appointed in the suit to represent the estate: Dyam v. Sutton, 19 Beav. 646.

An administrator ad litem, however, may be appointed by the Surrogate Court: R. S. O. 1807, c. 59 s. 59, and see s. 59, and a judgment against him binds the general administrator: Davis v. Chanter, 2 Ph. 545; Croft v. Waterton, 3 Sim. 651; Ellice v. Goodson, 2 Coll. 4; Williams v. Allen, 32 Beav. 450; Woodhouse v. Woodhouse, L. R. 8 Eq. 514; Collins v. Hesse, 12 W. R. 505; and by the following Rule the High Court has also power in certain cases to appoint an administrator ad litem: Rule 195.

195. Where probate of the will of a deceased person, or letters of administration to his estate, have not been granted, and representation of such estate is required in any action or proceeding in the High Court, the Court may appoint some person administrator ad litem. See Con. Rule 311. Rules of 1st Jan., 1896, 1441.

Appointment of ad-mini-strator to represent estate in proceedings in High
Court.

The former Con. Rule 311 was different, and provided for the appointment either of an administrator ad litem, or a general administrator, and for the payment to the Crown and the proper Surrogate Court of the same fees as if the appointment had been by that Court, and for the same notification of the order to the Surrogate Clerk as would be given by a Surrogate Court. These provisions and difficulties occasioned by the question of security, and other matters have led to the repeal of the former Rule, and the substitution for it of the above Rule 195.

Where an administrator ad litem has been improperly appointed under this Rule, a general administrator on being subsequently appointed was held entitled to apply to set aside the order: McLean v. Allen, 18 P. R. 255.

Under this Rule an administrator ad litem only, can be appointed. He will have no power or duties other than those of representing the estate in the action, and of obeying and carrying into execution any orders of the Court, giving directions or imposing duties upon him. Security will rarely if ever be necessary to be given by him, though, doubtless, the Court or a Judge may order it to be given where necessary. A judgment against an administrator ad litem, will as effectually bind the estate as if a general administrator were a party: but in any action which involves general inquiries as to next of kin or general inquiries as to assets and creditors, an administrator ad litem should not be appointed as he would not sufficiently represent the estate; a general administrator would in such case be necessary: Dowdeswell v. Dowdeswell, 9 Ch. D. 294; and see Rodger v. Moran, 28 Ont. L. R. 283; and McLean v. Allen, 18 P. R. 255.

The intention of the Rule doubtless is to provide for necessities arising in the progress of an action, where representation of an estate is required in an action and there has not been carelessness or negligence on the part of the party who may require the appointment to be made; the fact that a claim is likely to be barred by the Statute Rule 195. of Limitations is not a ground for applying under this Rule: Meir v. Wilson, 13 P. R. 33; Ford v. Lauded Banking Co., 13 P. R. 210; and it is not applicable where a person commences action without right or title, and asks to be made a competent plaintiff by being appointed administrator ad litem: Fairfield v. Ross, 4 O. L. R. 534; sed vide, p. 111, as to the effect of letters of administration granted after the commencement of an action.

Under the former Rule an application by a mortgagee seeking to foreclose his mortgage to appoint an administrator to the estate of the mortgagor was granted: MacLaren v. Rivett, 7 C. L. T. 202; Re Chambliss & Canada Life Ass. Co., 12 P. R. 649; Cameron v. Phillips, 13 P. R. 78. In re Chambliss & Canada Life Ass. Co., supra, the appointment was made before action commenced, and this course was also held to be proper in Re Williams & McKinnon, 14 P. R. 338. Probably under similar circumstances an administrator ad litem may be appointed under the present Rule.

This Rule seems to authorize the appointment of an administrator only in the case where no probate of the will of a deceased person, or letters of administration to his estate, have been granted. It does not appear to authorize such appointment where probate or administration has been granted, but the executor or administrator has died or has become incapable of acting.

This Rule may, since The Devolution of Estates Act (R. S. O. 1897, c. 127), be applied where a deceased person has left only land: Re Williams & McKinnon, 14 P. R. 338.

As a person cannot, without his consent, be appointed under Rule 194 to represent an estate (see Prince of Wales Co. v. Palmer, supra, p. 343, it seems a fortiori that a person cannot under this Rule be appointed administrator ad litem, without his consent.

The order appointing an administrator ad litem should as nearly as possible follow the form of a grant of administration made in a like case by the Surrogate Court, and should contain all the particulars necessary to be entered in the books of the Surrogate Clerk under the Surrogate Rule 48. For form of order see App. Form 119, II. & L. Forms. No. 456, and Cameron v. Phillips, 13 P. R. 141; Howell's Surrogate Court Pr., pp. 841, 266; Davis v. Chaater, 2 L. 549; and a copy of the order should be forwarded to the Surrogate Clerk at Osgoode Hall: see Surrogate Act, ss. 44-51. As to the effect of the grant, see Faulkner v. Daniel, 3 Ha. 208; McLean v. Allen, 18 P. R. 275; for form of foreclosure against an administrator ad litem: see Peal v. Gott, W. N. 1885, 46.

The authority of an administrator ad litem in a probate action terminates on the pronouncing of a judgment in favour of a will; a grant of probate is not necessary to put an end to his powers: Wickland v. Bird, 1894, P. 262; 71 L. T. 267.

An administrator ad litem in an administration action has no power to commence another action in respect of the lands of the deceased, and a fortiori where the lands have vested in the heirs of the deceased through no caution having been filed: Rodger v. Moraa, 28 Ont. 275; and it may be open to question whether an administrator ad litem has any power to register a caveat under R. S. O. c. 127, s. 13.

A general administrator pendente lite, appointed by the Surrogate Court in a probate action, may be served without first obtaining the leave of the Court: In re Toleman, 1897, 1 Ch. 866; but an administrator ad litem appointed under this Rule, being merely appointed for the purpose of the particular action, could not be sued as administrator in any other action. Rules 196, 197.

The Court declined to act under the Rule in favour of a plaintiff, sole heir and next of kin of a deceased person, suing to set aside a transfer of chattel property made by the deceased: Fairfield v. Ross, 4 O. L. R. 534.

196. Where an order for general administration is not asked or required, or where it is shewn that an executor de son tort has taken possession of the bulk of the personal assets belonging to the estate of a deceased person, he may on the application of any one interested in the estate of the deceased, without the appointment of any personal representative, be required to account for any assets of the estate which have come to his hands; and where a case is made for the appointment by the High Court of a receiver of the estate of a deceased person who has no personal representative, the estate may be administered under the direction of the Court without the appointment of any person other than the receiver to represent the estate. Con. Rule 312. Order for account against executor de son tort.

Prior to the statute from which this Rule is taken (48 V. c. 13, s. 12), it was impossible to obtain a decree for the general administration of the estate of a deceased person, without having a duly appointed personal representative before the Court, either as plaintiff or defendant; because the personal representative was the only person who had a legal title to the personal estate: see Rule 194, note.

Where the Court acts under this Rule and grants an order for the general administration of a deceased person's estate, without requiring a duly appointed personal representative to be made a party, it will itself assume the duties of a personal representative, and will not suffer the assets to be paid over to next of kin, legatees, or devisees, without making due inquiry as to the debts of the deceased, and providing for their payment out of the assets.

197. An infant may sue by his next friend (a); and may defend by his guardian appointed for that purpose, [or by the Official Guardian as the case may be]. Con. Rule 313. Infants.

The original J. A. Rule 96 had at (a) the words "in the manner practised in the Court of Chancery," following Eng. R. 1875, O. 16, r. 8 (1883, R. 138). The words in brackets are not in the Eng. Rules, which, as respects infants, correspond otherwise with the above.

See also Rules 152, 153, 155 and 156.

Infants as Plaintiffs.—By the practice of the Court of Chancery, every suit or application: Cox v. Wright, 9 Jur. N. S. 981, on behalf of an infant must be by next friend, who properly will be the father if he is not adverse in interest: Woolf v. Pemberton, 6 Ch. D. 19; but who need not be a relation: Cross v. Cross, 8 Beav. 455; nor a solvent person: Re McConnell, 3 Chy. Ch. 423; Woran v. Next friend of infant.

Rule 197. Kellogg, 10 C. L. T. 184; and therefore need not give security for costs: Fellows v. Barrett, 1 Keen, 119; but see Sloan v. Fellows, 18 Q. B. D. 585; but may not be a married woman: Thynne v. St. Maur, 34 Ch. D. 465; nor a defendant: Anon., 11 Jur. 258; Payne v. Little, 13 Beav. 114; Re Burgess, 25 Ch. D. 24, unless merely a formal defendant: Taylor v. Taylor, 16 L. J. N. C. 66.

In Nalder v. Hawkins, 2 M. & K. 248, it was said that the Court always expected next friends to be substantial persons, and that they should be relations, connections or friends of the family, not mere volunteers; see also Foster v. Cautley, 10 Ha. App. 24, and Woolf v. Pemberton, sup.; but see cases supra and infra.

The primary object of requiring the infant to sue by next friend is not, however, that defendants shall have security for costs, but that there may be some one before the Court to answer for the propriety of the action, and through whom the Court may compel the obedience of its orders. Thus even where the natural guardian and next friend is not a resident of Ontario, infants having a bona fide cause of action are privileged suitors, and the same rule as to security for costs should not be applied as in the case of adults: Roberts v. Coughlin, 18 P. R. 94; Scott v. Niagara, etc., Co., 15 P. R. 400. In the latter case the infant and the next friend were within Ontario, but that would not, however, seem to affect the question: see Roberts v. Coughlin, supra, and Rule 1198 (b).

Circumstances connecting a next friend too closely with parties adverse in interest may render him an improper person, and liable to be removed, though nothing is alleged against his character, circumstances or conduct: Re Burgess, Burgess v. Bottomley, 25 Ch. D. 243. The consent of the next friend should be obtained before using his name, though the infant's consent is unnecessary: Worthan v. Pemberton, 9 Jur. 291.

As to obtaining and filing the written authority of the next friend for the use of his name in the proceedings, see Rule 198.

If no next friend is named a motion may be made to dismiss the action, with costs to be paid by the solicitor: Flight v. Bolland, 4 Russ. 298; Dau. Pr., 6th ed., 105.

Where a suit was prosecuted by an infant without a next friend, an application made by him more than twelve months after he became of age to set aside the proceedings was refused: Milson v. Smith, 25 Ont. 144.

If an action is brought in the name of an infant by a married woman as next friend, the course is, to apply to have her removed, and to stay proceedings until a proper next friend is appointed: Martin v. Martin, 15 P. R. 177.

Where an infant plaintiff and his next friend both reside out of the jurisdiction, the defendant may move to have the action stayed until either security for costs is given or a next friend within the jurisdiction is appointed: McBain v. Waterloo, &c., 8 O. L. R. 620.

Notwithstanding that generally anyone may sue as next friend of an infant, the Court will, on the application of the defendant, or of any person acting as next friend of the infant for the purpose of the application: Guy v. Guy, 2 Beav. 460, institute an inquiry as to whether the suit is for the benefit of the infant, and if the result shows that the proceedings are not for the benefit of the infant, the suit may be stayed: Anderson v. Yates, 5 DeG. & S. 202, or dismissed with costs, to be paid by the next friend: Fox v. Suickerrop, Rule 197. 1 Beav. 583; Golda v. Kerr, W. N. 1884, 46; and see Re Elsom, Thomas v. Elsom, W. N. 1877, 177; Mill v. Mill, 20 C. L. J. 252.

In general a next friend is as to costs in the same position as any Costs, other litigant, and receives or pays costs personally as between him- liability self and defendant: Smith v. Mason, 17 P. R. 444; unless otherwise of next friend for. ordered: Caley v. Caley, 25 W. R. 528.

As to whether a next friend is entitled to solicitor and client costs, see Damant v. Hennell, 33 Ch. D. 224.

The costs of an unsuccessful action by infants by their next friend claiming a share of a testator's estate, by the alleged forfeiture of the share by the legatee thereof after the testator's death, were ordered to be paid by the next friend, and not out of the testator's estate, without prejudice to the claim of the next friend to be indemnified out of the shares of the infants when they should come into possession: Smith v. Mason, 17 P. R. 444.

The next friend of an infant was indemnified against the costs of an appeal to the Supreme Court out of the infant's estate, where the appeal was advised by more than one counsel, and the Court of Appeal was not unanimous: Cottingham v. Cottingham, 11 P. R. 13.

When the next friend of an infant dies pending the action, a new Death of next friend may be appointed on an ex parte motion: Daly v. Daly, 9 next friend. L. R. Ir. 383; Dan. Forms, 34.

In an action on behalf of an infant by a next friend acting with the father's authority, the father died and the mother, the testamentary guardian, was held entitled to be substituted as next friend, though no charge of improper conduct had been made against the actual next friend: Hutchinson v. Norwood, 31 Ch. D. 237.

The next friend should not take any step in the cause in the name Authority of the infant after he attains twenty-one, for the infant may abandon ceases on the suit: Brown v. Weatherhead, 4 Ha. 122. If the infant adopts infant's the proceedings after he becomes of age, he becomes liable for all the 21. costs of the suit.

A next friend who refuses to appeal may be removed: Depuy v. Removal of next friend Welsford, W. N. 1880, 121.

The next friend of an infant plaintiff may obtain leave to withdraw upon such terms as the circumstances of the case and the welfare of the infant may require, and subject amongst other things to liability to the opposite party for costs theretofore incurred in case the Court should so order: Taylor v. Wood, 14 P. R. 449. Where a next friend desires to withdraw, the defendant may move to stay proceedings until a new next friend is named, though the normal practice is for the next friend to move: Ib. A solicitor should not continue an action in the name of a next friend who has notified him of his desire to withdraw: Ib. Scoble, if a next friend cannot be found to prosecute an action for an infant, the Court in a proper case may appoint the Official Guardian to act as next friend: Ib.

A compromise cannot be forced upon infants if it is of no benefit Compro- to them, even though agreed to by their counsel: Rhodes v. Swithin- mise. bank, 22 Q. B. D. 577; or if it is contrary to the opinion of their legal adviser: Re Birchall, Wilson v. Birchall, 16 Ch. D. 41; 44 L. T. 113. A compromise of an action brought by a next friend of an infant is invalid unless approved of by the Court: Mattei v. Lantini, 78 L. T. 682.

Rules

198, 199. Infants as Defendants.—Defendants when known to be infants of an estate in which the infant is interested (see Rule 152), or for recovery of lands, goods or chattels of which he is personally in possession (see Rule 153), will be the Official Guardian. In other cases (see Rules 154, 155), a guardian should be appointed, but the appointment of a guardian is not imperative, so that the want of one will not necessarily invalidate the proceedings after judgment, where the interests of the infant appear to have been sufficiently protected: see Furnival v. Brooke, 40 L. T. 134; Straughan v. Smith, 19 Ont. 558.

Consent of next friend or relator to be filed.

198. Unless otherwise ordered, before the name of any person is used, in a cause or matter, as next friend of an infant or other party or as relator, such person shall sign a written authority to the solicitor for that purpose, and the authority shall be filed in the office in which the cause or matter is commenced. New.

Married Women.

199.—(1) A married woman may sue for alimony without a next friend.

R. S. O.
1897, c. 162.

(2) In cases not provided for by The Married Women's Property Act, a married woman may sue by her next friend. Con. Rule 314.

Not the same as the Eng. (1883) R. 138.

In suits for alimony a wife could always formerly sue alone; and might compromise the suit and deal with it just as any other plaintiff can: Vardon v. Vardon, 6 Ont. 719.

For the practice as to a married woman's suing and being sued under the various Married Woman's Acts prior to 1897, see Holmsted & Langton Jud. Act, 2nd ed., pp. 331-338.

By 60 Vict. c. 22 (following imp. Stat. 56 & 57 Vict. c. 631, an important change was made in reference to the contracts of married women made after 13th April, 1897. By that Act (now R. S. O. 1897, c. 163, s. 4), it is provided as follows:—

Contracts of married women to bind all their separate estate.

4.—(1) Every contract entered into by a married woman on or after the 13th day of April, 1897, otherwise than as an agent:

(a) Shall be deemed to be a contract entered into by her with respect to and to bind her separate property whether she is or is not in fact possessed of or entitled to any separate property at the time when she enters into such contract, and it shall not be necessary in any proceeding to prove that she had any separate property at the time when such contract was entered into, or subsequently;

(b) Shall bind all separate property which she may at the time or thereafter possess or be entitled to; and

(c) Shall also be enforceable by process of law against all property which she may thereafter while discoverer possess or be entitled to.

Except where restraint on anticipation exists, 55-57
V. (Imp.) c.
63, s. 1.

(2) Nothing in this section contained shall render available to satisfy any liability or obligation arising out of such contract any separate property which she is restrained from anticipating. 60 Vict. c. 22, s. 1.

Section 15 of R. S. O. 1897, c. 163, is as follows:—

Rule 199.

15. Every woman, whether married before or after this Act, shall have in her own name against all persons whomsoever, including her husband, the same remedies for the protection and security of her own separate property, as if such property belonged to her as a feme sole, but, except as aforesaid, no husband or wife shall be entitled to sue the other for a tort. In any proceeding under this section it shall be sufficient to allege such property to be her property; and in any proceeding under this section a husband and wife shall be competent to give evidence against each other. R. S. O. 1887, c. 132, s. 14.

Remedies of married woman for protection and security of separate property.

This last section seems to apply to all married women, whether married before or after 1st July, 1884, to enable them to sue or be sued alone, whether in respect of a cause of action arising before or after that date: James v. Barraud, 49 L. T. 300; 31 W. R. 786 (an action for trespass committed before the Act, brought in her own name); Gloucester, etc., v. Phillips, 12 Q. B. D. 533; (an action of contract); Weldon v. Winslow, 13 Q. B. D. 784; Weldon v. De-Bathe, 14 Q. B. D. 330; Love v. Fox, 15 Q. B. D. 667 (actions for torts).

A husband may bring an action against his wife for money lent and for money paid at her request after marriage; Butler v. Butler, 14 Q. B. D. 831; affirmed in appeal, 16 Q. B. D. 374; see McGregor v. McGregor, 20 Q. B. D. 529; and a wife may sue her husband to recover possession of her real estate: Till v. Till, 15 Ont. 133.

As to contracts made since 13th April, 1897, by a married woman, it is no longer necessary to allege or prove the existence of separate property, either at the date of the contract or subsequently; see R. S. O. c. 163, s. 3, supra, and Gibson v. Le Temps, 8 O. L. R. 707.

The Act, in enlarging the capacity of a married woman to take property, as her separate property, has changed the former rule in respect to a gift to a husband, his wife and a third party, so that now the husband and wife do not take one moiety, and the third party the other moiety, but each takes one-third: Re March, 24 Ch. 11, 222; Re Dixon, 42 Ch. D. 306; Re Wilson & Incandescent Light Co., 20 Ont. 397; Thornley v. Thornley, 1893, 2 Ch. 229; 68 L. T. 139; but see Re Jupp, 39 Ch. D. 148; 59 L. T. 123, and 11 C. L. T. 97, 153, 157; 13 C. L. T. 177.

The separate estate of a married woman is liable for her funeral expenses: Re Gibbons, 31 Ont. 252.

Where a wife is sued on a contract made before marriage (whether before or after 13th April, 1897), there is no need to shew the possession of separate estate at the time of entering into the contract or at the time of judgment: Downe v. Fletcher, 21 Q. B. D. 11; more fully reported, 59 L. T. 180. Judgment in such case will not be restricted to property not subject to any restraint on anticipation, as in Scott v. Morley, infra; Robinson v. Lynes, 1894, 2 Q. B. D. 577; see also Downe v. Fletcher, 59 L. T. 181, per Lord Coleridge; and Axford v. Reid, 22 Q. B. D. 548, (decided under the English M. W. Act of 1870, and as to which, see Birmingham v. Haywood, 1904, 1 K. B. 35; 89 L. T. 656); Re Teasdale v. Brady, 18 P. R. 104; but even, though the judgment be in a personal form, it would seem that R. S. O. c. 163, ss. 4, (2), 16, 21, will still have the effect of protecting property from execution which the defendant is restrained from anticipating, unless the restraint is imposed by the married woman herself: Birmingham v. Lane, 1904, 1 K. B. 35; 89 L. T. 656.

In an action on a contract made before marriage.

Rule 199. Enforcement of Judgment Against a Married Woman.—

Before 13th
April, 1897.

In the case of a contract entered into before 13th April, 1897, both separate property at the date of the contract, and all separate property thereafter acquired, will be liable to satisfy any judgment recovered: see R. S. O. c. 163, s. 3 (4).

After 13th
April, 1897.

In the case of a contract entered into by a married woman on or after 13th April, 1897, otherwise than as an agent, all separate property which she may at the time or thereafter possess or be entitled to is bound, and the contract is also enforceable by process of law against all property which she may thereafter while discoverer possess or be entitled to: Id., sec. 4 (1 b. c.), provided it has not been subject to a restraint against anticipation: sec. 4 (2).

Form of judgment under present Act.

The form of judgment against a married woman was settled in Scott v. Morley, 20 Q. B. D. 132, but that form was settled prior to the statute of 1897; and now where the action is brought to recover a debt contracted on or after 13 April, 1897, it is suggested that the form should now be as follows: "It is adjudged that the plaintiff recover against the defendant $, and costs to be taxed, such sum and costs to be payable out of the defendant's property, as hereinafter mentioned, and not otherwise; and it is ordered that execution hereon be limited to the separate property of the said defendant not subject to any restriction against anticipation (unless by reason of s. 21 of The Married Woman's Property Act, such property shall be liable to execution notwithstanding such restriction), and to any property which the said defendant may at any time hereafter while discoverer be possessed of or entitled to, and not theretofore subject to any restriction against anticipation as aforesaid": see Brown v. Dumbleby, 1904, 1 K. B. 28; 89 L. T. 424; Doull v. Doelle, 5 O. W. R. 414. The forms Nos. 883, 884, in H. & L. Forms, should be amended in accordance with the above.

See also Quebec Bank v. Radford, 10 P. R. 619; Turnbull v. Forman, 15 Q. B. D. 234; Kinnear v. Blue, 10 P. R. 465; Camrose v. Rutherford, Id. 620.

Where the married woman after the contract has become a widow, such verbal alterations should be made in the form of judgment as are necessary to adapt the form to that state of facts: see Softlaw v. Welch, 1899, 2 Q. B. 419; 81 L. T. 64.

The judgment has been said not to subject the married woman to a "personal" liability, but only to a "proprietary" liability: per Bowen, L.J., in Scott v. Morley, 20 Q. B. D. at p. 128; and see In re Hewitt, 1895, 1 Q. B. 328; 72 L. T. 60; but in Holtby v. Hodgson, 24 Q. B. D. 105, it was said that this was only a short and compeadious way of saying that the judgment must be executed against her property, not her person: see also Van Wart v. Burlaud, 17 C. L. T. 68, and McLeod v. Emigh, 12 P. R. 45, doubted in Re Tensdale v. Brady, 18 P. 104. The judgment is, in other words, a personal judgment though it can only be enforced against her property: Peltan v. Harrison, 1891, 2 Q. B. 422; 65 L. T. 845.

Where a married woman administratrix was ordered to pay into Court money admitted to be in her hands and to belong to the estate of the intestate, it was held that in the absence of any evidence that she had committed a devastavit, the order should be in the ordinary form, and should not be restricted to payment out of her separate estate; and if she failed to comply with the order the Court had jurisdiction to make an order for attachment against her; but, semble, if Rule 199. the object of the order be to make her make good a loss occasioned by her deceit, the order should be as in Scott v. Morley; Re Turnbull, Turnbull v. Nicholas, 1900, 1 Ch. 180, subject to modification as above where the liability has arisen after 13 April, 1897.

An order for arrest should not be made under R. S. O. 1897, c. 80, s. 1, in the case of a married woman against whom a judgment in the form settled in Scott v. Morley, has been recovered: Doull v. Doelle, 4 O. W. R. 525.

As to how far a married woman is subject to the provisions of The Division Courts Act (R. S. O. c. 60, s. 247), relating to judgment summonses, see McLeod v. Emigh, supra; Aylesford v. G. W. R., 1892, 2 Q. B. 626; Re Teasdale v. Brady, 18 P. R. 104; sed vide, 116 L. T. Jour. 467-70.

With regard to all her property, other than that settled to her separate use with a restraint on anticipation, a judgment operates against a married woman just as it would against an unmarried woman: Holtby v. Hodgson, supra, at p. 107; Hood-Barrs v. Heriot, 1897, A. C. 177; see also Cox v. Bennett, 1891, 1 Ch. 617; but it does not even after her husband's death bind her personally to pay the debt, as if she were a feme sole at the time of its recovery: Pelton v. Harrison, 1891, 2 Q. B. 422; In re Hewett, 1895, 1 Q. B. 324.

The law remains as before 1887, that separate property which is subject to a restraint on anticipation, is not separate property upon which a judgment can operate (unless such restraint exists under any settlement of her own property made by herself): Bursill v. Tanner, 13 Q. B. D. 691; Myles v. Burton, 14 L. R. Ir. 258; Scott v. Morley, 20 Q. B. D. 120; Beckett v. Tasker, 19 Q. B. D. 7; see also Pike v. Fitzgibbon, 17 Ch. D. 454; Smith v. Lucas, 18 Ch. D. 531; Re Hedgeley, 34 Ch. D. 385; Re Dixon, 35 Ch. D. 4; Smith v. Whitlock, 34 W. R. 414; Roberts v. Watkins, 46 L. J. Q. B. 552; Re Glanville, 31 Ch. D. 532; Re Andrews, 30 Ch. D. 159; even after the removal, by the death of the husband, of the restraint on anticipation: Pelton v. Harrison, 1891, 2 Q. B. 422; Softlaw v. Welch, 1899, 2 Q. B. 419; 81 L. T. 64; Barnott v. Howard, 1900, 2 Q. B. 784; Brown v. Donnelly, 1904, 1 K. B. 28; 89 L. T. 424; in the case of a judgment on a contract entered into before marriage: see cases supra; and Birmingham v. Lane, 89 L. T. 656; and the judgment cannot be enforced by any kind of process (receiver, sequestration, or otherwise), against income of property subject to a restraint on anticipation, accruing due after the date of the judgment: Hood-Barrs v. Cathcart, 1894, 2 Q. B. 559; Loftus v. Heriot, 1895, 2 Q. B. 212; 73 L. T. 167; Hood-Barrs v. Heriot, 1897, A. C. 177; Whiteley v. Edwards, 1896, 2 Q. B. 48; 74 L. T. 720; Colyer v. Isaacs, 77 L. T. 198; Bolitho v. Gidley, 1905, A. C. 98; 92 L. T. 369. Thus income, which is subject to a restraint on anticipation, accrued before the date of the judgment, but not paid over to the married woman (but not income accrued after the judgment) can be reached by the appointment of a receiver: Loftus v. Heriot, supra; Hood-Barrs v. Heriot, 1897, A. C. 177.

A plaintiff cannot by postponing the entry of his judgment make available income not accrued due before the time when he became entitled to enter judgment: Colyer v. Isaacs, 77 L. T. 198.

Judgment against a widow on a contract entered into by her during coverture must be according to the form settled in Scott v.

Rule 199. Morley, and not in the ordinary form as though she were a fence sale; Softlaw v. Welch, 1899, 2 Q. B. 429; but it may be enforced against property acquired after the death of her husband: Doull v. Doelle, 5 O. W. R. 238, provided it was not during coverture subject to a restraint against anticipation, which during coverture would have exempted it from liability: Brown v. Dimpleby, supra.

The restraint on anticipation though suspended on a married woman becoming discover: In re Wheeler's Settlement, 1899, 2 Ch. 717; revives on her subsequent re-marriage: Stroud v. Edwards, 77 L. T. 280.

The execution by a married woman of a general power of appointment by will makes the property appointed liable to meet her debts: see sec. 8 of R. S. O. c. 163: Re Inn, 1894, 1 Ch. 549; 70 L. T. 273. This was not the case before the Act of 1887, and the section does not apply in the case of a contract entered into before that Act: Re Roper, 59 L. T. 203.

A writ of sequestration against the "estate and effects" was held to be in proper form, but it is only operate on separate property, not subject to any restraint on anticipation: Hyde v. Hyde, 59 L. T. 529; 36 W. R. 708; Hood-Barra v. Cathcart, etc., supra.

Execution.

The property liable may be reached in execution in the usual way, as in the case of any other judgment debtor: Barker v. Westover, 5 Ont. 121-2; Larson v. Laidlaw, supra; and see Perks v. Mylra, W. N. 1884, 64; Peuce v. Waller, 24 Ch. D. 405; and a direction in a judgment that an inquiry be made as to separate estate exigible, does not authorize the examination of any person other than the debtor or other person examinable under Rules 900-910: Hood-Barra v. Heriot, Ex p. Blyth, 1896, 2 Q. B. 338.

Actions of tort.

Actions for Torts.—In actions in this Province against a married woman for a tort committed by her during coverture, it was held under the Act of 1872 that the husband was not a proper party, but the wife was to be sued alone, and that her liability was not dependent upon her possession of separate estate: Amer v. Rogers, 31 C. P. 197; Barker v. Westover, supra; but see Lee v. Hopkins, 20 Ont. 666. This seems to be in accordance with the opinions expressed by Hagarty, C.J., in Stone v. Knapp, 20 C. P. 609, Spragge, C., in McFarlane v. Murphy, 21 Gr. 80; and Wilson, J., in Wagner v. Jefferson, 37 Q. B. 577, 578. The husband is, however, liable for his wife's torts committed before or after marriage to the extent of all property whatsoever belonging to his wife, which he shall have acquired and become entitled to, from or through his wife, after deducting any payments made by him and any sums for which judgment may have been bona fide recovered against him in any legal proceeding in respect of any of his wife's ante-nuptial debts, contracts or torts, or post-nuptial torts: R. S. O. c. 163, s. 17. Under the present Act the husband and wife may be sued jointly, or the wife may be sued alone, for torts committed by her after marriage: Seroka v. Kattenburg, 17 Q. B. 14, 177; see Scott v. Morley, 20 Q. B. D. at p. 125; Bahin v. Hughes, 31 Ch. D. 390; Earle v. Kingscote, 1900, 2 Ch. 585, followed in Travis v. Hales, 6 O. L. R. 514, approving of Lee v. Hopkins, 20 Ont. 666, and overruling Amer v. Rogers, 31 C. P. 195.

Where the action is against both husband and wife, they cannot put in inconsistent defences. The defence of the husband is to be considered the one on the record: Beaumont v. Kaye, 1904, 1 K. B. 292, 90 L. T. 51, though what was regarded as an inconsistent defence in that case might probably not be so regarded under the Ontario Rules.

In actions by a married woman for a tort suffered by her, un-Rule 199, connected with her separate estate, her husband was, even after the Act of 1872, required to be a party plaintiff: see Imier v. Rogers, 31 C. P. 190; but under the present Act it would seem that the wife may sue alone: Weldon v. Winslow, 13 Q. B. D. 784; Spahr v. Bean, 18 Ont. 70.

A married woman in sole occupation of a house bought by her out of her own earnings may sue alone, without her husband, in an action for trespass: Weldon v. De Buthe, 14 Q. B. D. 339.

There cannot be many cases which are not provided for by The Next friend Married Woman's Property Act, and in which, therefore, under clause (2) of the present Rule, a married woman may sue by next friend. The Act 1880, 3 (2) renders a married woman capable of suing and liable to be sued "in all respects as if she were a feme sole;" but that section seems to assume that the action shall be one in which she is beneficially interested, and it, therefore, may be that in cases in which she sues as a trustee, a next friend may still be necessary.

It is also left in doubt whether in cases where a next friend may be necessary the practice formerly existing in Chancery applies, such as for instance the rule that the next friend must be a solvent person: see Re Thompson, Stevens v. Thompson, 38 Ch. D. 317.

Where a next friend is necessary, his written authority to the solicitor must be filed: see Rule 398.

The following summary of the principal decisions under the former practice may still be useful:—

The defendant may raise the question of want of next friend by motion to stay proceedings till a next friend is appointed: McPherson v. McCabe, 1 Chy. Ch. 250; Pruyn v. Soby, 7 P. R. 44; Abouloff v. Oppenheimer, 47 L. T. 702; 52 L. J. Q. B. 309; and formerly by demurrer: Jessop v. McLean, 15 Gr. 489; Blackburn v. McKinlay, 3 Chy. Ch. 67; but a demurrer would not now be a proper course: see Young v. Robertson, 2 Ont. 434, and notes to Rules 259-261.

Objection for want of next friend, how taken.

The question whether a next friend was necessary was not allowed to be raised upon a motion to limit the time for the appointment of a new next friend. The original order was required to be first rescinded: Olustrad v. Rutherford, 7 P. R. 140, and see Shelley v. Goring, 8 P. R. 36; Webster v. Leys, 10 P. R. 86; 5 Ont. 599; and Re Thompson, Stevens v. Thompson, 38 Ch. D. 317.

The objection was one which formerly might be waived by conduct, as it stands on the same footing as the right to security for costs: Mallory v. Mallory, 7 P. R. 446; but see now Martano v. Mann, 14 Ch. D. 419, where it was held that since the Judicature Acts the Court has a judicial discretion to direct security for costs to be given at any time, and that the old rule as to waiver by step taken is abrogated: see also notes to Rules 1198, et seq.

If the next friend is not appointed in a reasonable time, a motion may be made to limit the time therefor, or, in default, that the action be dismissed: McPherson v. McCabe, supra. The time limited is the same as upon an application to limit the time for furnishing security for costs; as to which see Rule 1202, and Grant v. Winchester, 6 P. R. 56.

A defendant cannot act as next friend of a married woman plaintiff: Payne v. Little, 13 Beav. 114; Bennett v. Sprague, 4 C. L. J. 45; see Lewis v. Nobbs, 8 Ch. D. 591; except perhaps a merely formal Rule 200. defendant: Taylor v. Taylor, 10 L. J. N. C. 464. The next friend must be a person of substance, as he is liable for the costs: Hood v. Whitmore, 2 K. & J. 458; Rann v. Lawless, 1 Chy. Ch. 333; Pan Winkle v. Chaplin, 2 Chy. Ch. 98; Re Thompson, Stevens v. Thompson, 38 Ch. D. 317. If not solvent an order may be made, on motion of defendant, to stay proceedings till a new next friend be appointed or security for costs given: Stord v. Colox, 3 Chy. Ch. 421. Where such an order had been made and, not being complied with, the action was dismissed with costs, a second action by another next friend was stayed till the costs of the first were paid: Re Payne, Randle v. Payne, 23 Ch. D. 288.

A next friend of a married woman plaintiff must be authorized to act as such, otherwise the action may be dismissed on the application of the defendant. Where a next friend's authority was disputed by defendant, and not deposed to by the next friend, the action was dismissed with costs, payable by the next friend: Schjott v. Schjott, 19 Ch. D. 344; see also Cook v. Fryer, 4 Beav. 16. A written authority to the solicitor must now be filed: Rule 398. A writ issued by a next friend without employing a solicitor was set aside with all the proceedings: Swann v. Swann, 43 L. T. 530.

The next friend may be changed by the married woman on notice to the defendant: Eastman v. Eastman, 2 Chy. Ch. 183; Harvey v. Boomer, 3 Chy. Ch. 11.

Where parties are numerous.

200. In an action where there are numerous parties having the same interest, one or more of such parties may sue or be sued, or may be authorized by the Court to defend, on behalf of, or for the benefit of, all parties so interested. Con. Rule 315.

This is the same as Eng. (1883) R. 131, and corresponds with what had long been the practice of the Court of Chancery: see Dan. Ch. Pr., 5th ed. 207, et seq., 1088; Thomson v. Victoria Mutual Company, 29 Gr. 56.

The object of this Rule is to avoid the expense and inconvenience of bringing before the Court a numerous body of persons all having the same interest: Ward v. Benson, 3 O. L. R. 199; and to prevent a denial of justice: see observations of Lord Macnaghten: Taff Vale Ry. v. Amalgamated Society, etc., 1901, A. C. 426; 85 L. T. 147.

The Rule does not authorize the making of an order on the plaintiff's application for the appointment of a solicitor to defend for a number of persons in the same interest who are already defendants to the action: Ib.

A plaintiff suing under this Rule must indorse his writ accordingly: see Rule 120, and Hynes v. Fisher, 4 Ont. 78; and the class should be specified as accurately as possible: Marshall v. S. Staffordshire Tramways Co., 1895, 2 Ch. 36.

Plaintiffs.—A plaintiff can only sue under this Rule where he has the same interest as all the members of the class he claims to represent: see Parkinson v. Wainwright, 72 L. T. 495; Johnston v. Consumers' Gas Co., 23 Ont. App. 566; Herman v. Wilson, 32 Ont. 60; and where a person suing on behalf of himself and others is disentitled to sue on his own behalf, he cannot do so on behalf of the others interested: Dillon v. Raleigh, 13 Ont. App. 53.

In De Hurt v. Stevenson, 1 Q. B. 11, 313. It was held that one part—Rule 200. owner of a ship might sue under this Rule on behalf of himself and his co-owners for freight. So also one underwriter on behalf of all: Leathley v. McAndrew, W. N. 1875, 259; 1 Charl. Ch. Ca. 48; one of a number of co-owners of a patent: Sheehan v. G. E. Ry., 10 Ch. D.
 539; or bondholders: Frazer v. Cooper, Hall & Co., 21 Ch. D. 718, or policy holders in an insurance company: Thomson v. Victoria Mutual Company, 20 Gr. 56; or shareholders of a company: International Wracking Company v. Murphy, 12 P. R. 423; see also Bergmann v.
McMillan, W. N. 1881, 39; Ellis v. Bedford, 1899, 1 Ch. 4; 1901,
 A. C. 1; 80 L. T. 332; 83 L. T. 680.

Where a plaintiff described himself as suing on behalf of himself and all other debenture holders of the defendant company, "and its predecessors in title," the fact being that the plaintiff was the debenture holder of a company which had been dissolved, and which had transferred its business to the defendant company, it was held that the description of those on whose behalf the plaintiff sued was too vague, and that he should describe himself as suing on behalf of all other debenture holders of the (naming the Company): "now dissolved": Marshall v. South Staffordshire T. Co., 1897, 2 Ch. 30.

An action cannot be brought by a plaintiff on behalf of himself and other persons to recover damages for conspiracy, or any other tort:
Curry v. Clapp, 33 C. L. J. 771; and see Temperton v. Russell, 1893,
 1 Q. B. 435.

A plaintiff in a class suit under this Rule cannot be compelled to disclose the names and addresses of the persons on whose behalf he sues: Leathley v. McAndrew, W. N. 1875, 259.

In Strond v. Lawson, 1898, 2 Q. B. 44; 78 L. T. 729, it was held that notwithstanding Rule 185, a claim cannot be joined by a plaintiff individually with one by him on behalf of a class.

Defendants.—To bind the absent parties, an order must be made under this Rule authorizing one or more persons to defend on behalf of all persons interested: Re Rickerson, 1893, 3 Ch. 146; 3 R. 643; Fairfield v. London, W. N. 1895, 64; Saragossa, etc., v. Collingham, etc., 1904, A. C. 159; and an order may be made against the will of the persons so authorized to defend: Wood v. McCarthy, 1893, 1 Q.
 B. 775; 62 L. T. 431.

It should be shown that the parties having the same interest are numerous before a party can be authorized to defend on "behalf of all": Wilson v. Church, 9 Ch. D. 552.

The officers of an unincorporated benevolent society may be sued, to compel them to make a levy for the plaintiff's benefit on the members of the society in accordance with its rules, and an order may be made under this Rule authorizing them to represent both themselves and the other members of the society: Wood v. McCarthy, supra.

Apart altogether from this Rule the executive officers of an unincorporated club may be sued personally for contracts entered into by them on behalf of the club: see Aikins v. Dominion Live Stock Ass., 17 P. R. 303.

In Andrews v. Salmon, W. N. 1888, 102 (see also Ib. 176), defendants were authorized to defend on behalf of all the members of the committee of a club.

Rule 200.

There is jurisdiction under this Rule to make an order that some of the officers of a voluntary unincorporated association may be sued, as representing themselves and all other members of the association, to restrain torts by the members of the association, or to recover damages for torts committed by the association or its servants or agents, but in order to lay against the property of the association it may be necessary that the persons or trustees in whom such property is vested should also be made parties to the action; Metallic Roofing Co. v. Local Union, etc., 5 O. L. R. 424; 9 O. L. R. 171; (*) and Tuff Vale Ry. v. Amalgamated Society of Engineers, 1901, A. C. 420; 53 L. T. 147; and Wallace v. Railroad Telegraphers, 5 O. W. R. 788, but such a society (not being registered anywhere by its name so as to constitute it a quasi corporation, such as was sued in the Tuff Vale case) cannot be sued in its own name; see Kington v. Salvator Army, 7 O. L. R. 681; Metallic Roofing Co. v. Local Union, 5 O. L. R. 424; 5 O. W. R. 95; Small v. American Society of Association Musicians, 5 O. L. R. 450; Sellers v. Dutton, 7 O. L. R. 616; Wood v. Lovetham, 4 O. W. R. 502; Logan v. Hurlburt, 23 Ont. App. 628; but after a trade union had appeared and pleaded in an apparently corporate capacity, it was held to be too late at the trial to raise the objection that it was not in fact incorporated or liable to be sued. Such an objection must be specially pleaded; Krug Furniture Company v. Berlin Union of Amalgamated Workers, 5 O. L. R. 601.

Where the plaintiff sought an injunction against a musical protective association to restrain them from making a member of that body break a contract with the plaintiff, and made the president and six other officers or leading members of the association defendants as representing the association, an order was granted directing that the defendants might be sued and authorized to defend on behalf of all the members of the association; Small v. Hyttenrauch, 6 O. L. R. 588.

This Rule was acted on in a case where certain charitable bequests in a will, if held invalid, would go to the next of kin, and four of the next of kin besides the widow of the testator, and the Attorney-General, as representing the charities, had been served, and it appeared that there were a large number of next of kin, many of whom were unknown, and service upon others would be difficult and expensive. An order was made declaring that the next of kin were sufficiently represented by those before the Court; Gillies v. McConochie, 18 C. L. J. 179; see S. C., 3 Ont. 203.

The Rule applies only to persons who have or claim some proprietary right, which they are asserting or defending. It was therefore held not to authorize a plaintiff to sue in tort several presidents of defendant trades unions and societies as representing not only themselves, but all the members of their respective societies; Tennerton v. Russell, 1903, 1 Q. B. 435; 4 R. 302.

* On a subsequent application to enforce the judgment in this case by attachment of money in a Bank at the credit of an account headed "Amalgamated Sheet Metal Workers' Union, No. 39" (said to be the defendants, the Local Union), payable out on cheques signed by three officers of the Local Union, it was held that the members of the Union, other than those who had been made defendants to represent all members, though bound by the judgment, were not parties to the action; and that the money in the Bank not being the property of the representative defendants, was not exigible under a judgment against them; see 5 O. W. R. 700; 6 O. W. R. 11 and 283. But see per Meroloth, C.L., as to whether property of the Local Union might have been exigible under a judgment differently framed.

Where an action is brought to establish a will, unless so ordered, Rule 200 one of the heirs or next of kin does not sufficiently represent the others. As a general rule all should be made parties; Cornell v. Smith, 11 P. R. 275; O'Sullivan v. Phelan, 11 P. R. 278; Gunn v. Carson, 11 C. L. T. 47; and see Clifton v. Crawford, 18 P. R. 310.

It will be observed that where an application is necessary to obtain the authority of the Court to defend on behalf, or for the benefit, of all parties similarly interested, the motion cannot be made in Chambers, but must be in Court.

Effect of Representation of a Class.—In suits by one on behalf of all others of a particular class the other members of the class, if fairly represented, are bound by the judgment; Commissioners of Sewers v. Gellatly, 3 Ch. D. 610; Leathley v. McAndrew, W. N. 1874, 38; 2 Chanc. Ch. Ch. 24; Burt v. British Nation Life Assurance Association, 4 De G. & J. 158, 174; Barker v. Waters, 8 Beav. 97.

But an order authorizing a person to represent a class only binds those whose interests are identical with the rest of the class; persons belonging to the class, but having other interests, may however be bound by acquiescence; if any member of a class having notice of the proceedings conceives that his interests are not properly represented, he may apply to be made a defendant; see Rule 200; Young v. Hollaway, 1884, P. 87; 72 L. T. 118; but if he lies by he may be bound by the judgment; see Re Lart, 1896, 2 Ch. 788; 75 L. T. 175.

The same rule holds good where one of the class, on behalf of which the plaintiff claims to sue, objects to the proceedings; he may on applying, be made a party defendant; Wilson v. Church, 8 Ch. D. 552; Fraser v. Cooper, 21 Ch. D. 718; and that is the proper course if he is really not represented by the plaintiff. He cannot otherwise appeal from an order obtained by the plaintiff; Watson v. Gape, 17 Ch. D. 19; unless perhaps in a case where a person has already been made a defendant in the same interest as the applicant, and appointed under this Rule to represent that interest; see Fraser v. Cooper, etc., 21 Ch. D. 718.

A person fairly represented will not be allowed to attend the proceedings unless he may be joined as a party; Conybeare v. Lewis, 48 L. T. 526.

But where the object of the action was to fix the parties represented with liability, a party so represented on being brought in in the Master's office, on appeal from the Master's certificate, succeeded practically in reversing the judgment so far as he was concerned, although he did not in terms appeal therefrom; Wise v. Perpetual Trustee Co., 1903, A. C. 139; 87 L. T. 569.

Persons authorized by the Court to defend an action on behalf of others having the same interest, have no power to consent on behalf of such others to judgment; the proper course, in case there is no defence, is for the representative to submit the rights of such other person to the judgment of the Court, and the judgment should be so drawn up; Rees v. Richmond, 62 L. T. 427.

Where suit is brought by a plaintiff on behalf of himself and other persons of the same class, he continues dominus litis, until judgment, and the other persons interested are bound to see that it is prosecuted to judgment or it may be dismissed for want of prosecution or compromised; Smith v. Doyle, 4 Ont. App. 477. After a judgment for the plaintiff in a class suit, any person of the same class as the plaintiff may intervene and apply to prosecute the action if the plaintiff declines to do so; Canadian Bank of Commerce v.

Rule 201. Tinning, 20 C. L. J. 614; and after judgment in such suit a certificate of lis pendens will not be vacated on the plaintiff's consent: Arnbury v. Thornton, 6 P. R. 190; In re Alpha Co., 1903, 1 Ch. 203.

Where the judgment is not in favour of the plaintiff, the same considerations do not apply, and another member of the class is not entitled to be substituted for the plaintiff in order to appeal from the judgment: Macdonald v. Toronto, 18 P. R. 17.

Where several ratepayers, in fact, combined in taking proceedings to quash a by-law and put forward one of their number to actually take the proceedings, and he was afterwards corruptly induced to countermand the notice of motion to quash given by him, it was held that the others might, on application, be allowed to continue the proceedings in his name upon indemnifying him as to costs: Re Ritz v. New Hamburg, 4 O. L. R. 639.

Persons appointed to represent a class.

201.—(1) Where the right of an heir-at-law or of the next of kin, or of a class, [or of an unborn person,] depends upon the construction of an instrument, and it is not known or is difficult to ascertain who is such heir-at-law or next of kin or class, and the Court deems it convenient to have the question determined before the heir-at-law, next of kin or class in question is ascertained, [or before the birth of any person who may be born.] the Court may appoint some person to represent the heir-at-law, next of kin or class, [or unborn person,] and the judgment of the Court shall be binding upon the person or class [or unborn person] so represented. Con. Rule 316. Rules 23rd June, 1894, 1312.

(2) The Court, in other cases, where necessary in furtherance of justice, may at any time appoint some person to represent, for the purposes of any action or proceeding, the interest of any person who may be not ascertained or who may be unborn. New.

The extension of clause (1) of this Rule, by the words in brackets, to the case of an unborn person, follows Rule 1312 of 23rd June, 1894. In other respects the clause is substantially the same as Eng. (1883) R. 154.

Clause (2) is new, and makes the Rule applicable in cases other than where the right of the heir, etc., depends upon the construction of an instrument, for example, in an action for foreclosure, where the estate of a deceased mortgagor is vested in unascertained persons.

The Rule is thus wider than the English Rule, under which the Court has no power to appoint a person to represent a class of which there is no member in existence, e.g., unborn children: Re Whiting's Settlement, 1905, 1 Ch. 96.

As to the constitutionality of such an enactment, see Ashbury v. Ellis, 1893, A. C. 339.

To enable the Court to act under this Rule, an order must be made under Rule 201. obtained: see Re Richerson, 1893, 3 Ch. 146; 3 R. 643.

As to when the rights of unascertained persons may be determined, and as to their representation by trustees: see Cardigan v. Curzon-Howe, 1901, 2 Ch. 479; Re Whiting's Settlement, 1905, 1 Ch. 96.

It will be observed that an application under this Rule cannot be made in Chambers but must be made in Court.

Examples.—Where upon the construction of a will, questions had arisen as to what classes of representatives of the testator were entitled, and great difficulty was foreseen in attempting to find the heir, who in the result might be held not entitled, an order was made under this Rule appointing persons to represent the various classes of persons, some or one of which might be held to be entitled, before the questions of construction came on to be decided: Re Poppitt's Estate, Chester v. Phillips, 4 Ch. D. 230.

In Re Hake, Pownall v. Pryor, W. N. 1895, 116, plaintiffs, the legal representatives of the last surviving executor or trustee under a will, were appointed to represent the next of kin for the purposes of the determination, on the construction of a will, whether, in the events which had occurred, the residuary estate was undisposed of.

Persons interested in an estate, the subject of an administration action to which they have not been made parties, and whose rights or interests may be affected by an order directing accounts and inquiries, are not bound by proceedings under that order, at any rate where they ought to be served, unless they are served with notice of the order, or an order has been made appointing a member of their class to represent them: May v. Newton, 34 Ch. D. 347.

In Re Rees, Rees v. George, 49 L. J., Chy. 568, persons who had not been parties, but had been served with notice of decree, were directed to be served with notice of hearing on further consideration, where an order was asked against them personally: see quare, whether relief can in any case be properly granted against persons who are not parties: see Hooper v. Harrison, and other cases cited in notes to Rule 659.

In Re Pringle, 17 Ch. D. 821, an action by legatees for construction of a will, the defendants the executors, two of the next of kin, were at the hearing authorized to represent the absent next of kin.

In Cook v. Fearn, 27 W. R. 212, representation of an unascertained class, viz., the next of kin of the plaintiff, was dispensed with.

See also Lovesy v. Smith, 15 Ch. D. 635; Hobbs v. Reid, W. N. 1876, 95; and Beale v. Ruston, W. N. 1878, 179; Moore v. Sinkin, 53 L. T. 815.

An order appointing a person to represent a class, such as next of kin, is not binding on one of the next of kin who has a distinct and independent interest in another capacity: Re Lart, 1896, 2 Ch. 788; 57 L. T. 175.

A person not a party to the action nor technically bound by the judgment, but who was fully cognizant of the proceedings, and stood by and took the benefit of a decision on the construction of a will under which a particular fund was distributed, was held to be estopped by his conduct from re-opening any of the questions covered by the decision by means of a fresh action, relating to another fund under the same will: Id.

Rule 202.

Court may proceed though some of the parties interested are not before it.

202. Where questions arise between parties, who are some only of those interested in the property in question, or where the property is comprised with other property in the same instrument, or is the property of an intestate, the Court may adjudicate on the questions arising between such parties without making the other persons interested in the property respecting which the question arises, or interested under the instrument, parties, and without requiring the whole trusts and purposes of the instrument, or the whole estate of the intestate, to be executed or administered under the direction of the Court, and without taking the accounts of the trustees or other accounting parties, or ascertaining the particulars or amount of the property in question or of the whole estate or assets. Con. Rule 319.

Based upon and substantially the same as Chy. O. 57.

This Rule is confined to cases where some special reason exists for not bringing all proper parties before the Court; Gunn v. Corson, 11 C. L. T. 47, and as a general rule where an action is brought to establish a will, all heirs or next of kin should be made parties; Cornell v. Smith, 14 P. R. 275; O'Sullivan v. Phelan, Ib., 278, note.

The Court may under this Rule execute one or more of several specific trusts embraced in an instrument without making all the persons interested in the other trusts embraced therein parties; Parnell v. Hingston, 3 Sm. & G. 337. But some of the parties interested on both sides of the question involved must be before the Court; Swallow v. Binns, 9 Hare App. xlvii. The Court has refused to permit a plaintiff at the hearing to strike out the names of defendants whom he had improperly omitted to serve with a subpoena to hear judgment, and proceed in their absence although such parties had merely a nominal interest; Lauhara v. Pirie, 2 Jur. N. S. 1201, and see Quaint v. Smolker, 6 P. R. 288; but where at the hearing it was discovered that an order pro confesso against certain defendants had been vacated by a subsequent amendment, the Court pronounced a decree saving the rights of such defendants; Waddle v. McGinty, 15 15 Gr. 261. A decree for foreclosure could not be made under this Rule as against some only of the parties interested in the equity of redemption; Caldick v. Cook, 32 Beav. 70. But where the parties interested in the equity of redemption are numerous, the Court may, under Rule 190, award judgment and direct that parties so interested be made parties in the Master's Office, but such order can only be made when one or more parties interested in the equity of redemption are already parties to the action.

This Rule applies to applications made under The Trustee Relief Act (see R. S. O. 1897, c. 3361), and some out of several parties entitled to the equity of redemption were held entitled to apply under that Act for a reconveyance; Re Sharpley's Trusts, 1 W. R. 271. The Rule also applies to parties to special cases; Swallow v. Binns, 9 Hare App. xlvii.; Re Brown, 20 Beav. 401.

In Collingham v. Sloper, 1901, 1 Ch. 769, the Court held that it had no jurisdiction to limit a time within which unascertained bondholders must come in or be excluded from the benefit of a compromise. As to whether represented parties are bound by a compromise order, see S. C., 1904, A. C. 159, and Eng. Rule 131 A.

When the Court proceeds under this Rule in the absence of any Rule 203, parties interested, the absent parties are not bound by the proceedings: Doody v. Higgins, 9 Hare App. xxxii., unless an order has been made for their representation by some person who is a party to the proceedings: Re Richerson, 1893, 3 Ch. 146.

203—(1) An objection for want of parties shall not lie in any of the following cases:

(a) A residuary legatee, or next of kin, may have a judgment for the administration of the personal estate of a deceased person without serving the other residuary legatees or next of kin.

Cases where one of a class may sue without joining others.

Residuary legatee, etc.

(b) A legatee interested in a legacy charged upon real estate; or a person interested in the proceeds of real estate directed to be sold, may have a judgment for the administration of the estate of a deceased person, without serving any other legatee or person interested in the proceeds.

Legatee whose legacy is charged on realty.

(c) A residuary devisee, or heir, may have the like judgment, without serving any other residuary devisee, or heir.

Residuary devisee or heir.

(d) One cestui que trust, under an instrument, may have a judgment for the execution of the trusts of the instrument, without serving the other cestuis que trustent.

One of several c. q. t.

(e) In actions for the protection of property pending litigation, and in cases in the nature of waste, one person may move on behalf of himself, and of all persons having the same interest.

In actions for protection of property.

(f) An executor, administrator, or trustee, may obtain a judgment against any one legatee, next of kin or cestui que trust, for the administration of the estate or the execution of the trusts.

Administration against one c. q. t.

(g) An assignee of a chose in action may institute an action in respect thereof without making the assignor a party. Con. Rule 320.

Assignee of chose in action may sue without joining assignor.

The English (1883) Rs. 155-160, are to the same effect as clauses (a, f).

The object of this Rule is to save unnecessary expense, and where unnecessary parties are joined in the action, the Court will refuse to charge the estate with extra costs thereby occasioned: Rodgers v. Rodgers, 33 Gr. 457; Bradley v. Wilson, Ib. 645, and it would seem that the plaintiff may be ordered to pay such costs.

Persons interested in an estate the subject of administration proceedings to which they have not been made parties, and whose rights

Rule 203. may be affected, are not bound by the proceedings unless they are served with notice of the judgment; see clause 3 of this Rule; or an order has been made appointing a member of their class to represent them: see Rule 201: May v. Newton, 34 Ch. D. 347.

Persons not made parties, must be served with judgment.

Although in the several cases mentioned in this Rule the action may be commenced and judgment obtained without making all persons interested parties to the action, yet the persons who but for this Rule, would be necessary parties to the proceedings must under clause (3), be served with a copy of the judgment, unless the Court, or Master, dispense with the service, and it is not until "after such service," that they are bound by the proceedings. Whether persons upon whom service of judgment is dispensed with, are bound by the proceedings as if they had been actually served, is not stated in the Rule, and it is possible that they would not be so bound: see Duddy v. Higgins, 9 Hare App. xxxii.

Persons from whom an account is sought should be made parties

Notwithstanding this Rule, all persons from whom an account is sought, must be made parties in the first instance: Latch v. Latch, L. R. 10 Ch. 464; Walker v. Seligmann, L. R. 12 Eq. 152; Rolph v. U. C. Building Society, 11 Gr. 275, 278-9; Hopper v. Harrison, 28 Gr. 22; Re Parkes, 66 L. T. 151; and the judgment cannot be varied under clause (3), post, at the instance of persons served with the judgment so as to direct the taking of accounts for which no foundation is laid in the pleadings: Foster v. Foster, L. R. 3 Ch. 330, at all events not without giving the party from whom an account is sought an opportunity to adduce evidence to show that the account should not be ordered: a. 1 persons served with the judgment have no greater right to call the original defendants to account, than they would have if such persons had been originally made co-defendants in the action; thus in an action by a remainderman for an account, it was held that a tenant for life served with the judgment could not claim an account of the income: Whitney v. Smith, L. R. 4 Ch. 513.

All persons in the same interest with the plaintiff, necessary to be made parties, except perhaps infants, should be made co-plaintiffs: where they are made defendants in consequence of their refusal to join as plaintiffs, they will be refused their costs; Ling v. Smith, 25 Gr. 246.

Action by
legatee.

Sub-clause (a).—Where the action is brought by one of several residuary legatees, the plaintiff sufficiently represents all the residuary legatees, and the others are not entitled as of course to appear in the Master's Office, by a separate solicitor, and if they do, they may be refused their costs: to entitle them to costs some sufficient reason should be stated in the Master's report, for their being represented by a separate solicitor: Gorham v. Gorham, 17 Gr. 386.

The legal personal representative is ordinarily a necessary party to an action for general administration, and it is necessary to allege that the person named as the legal personal representative has proved the will or obtained letters of administration, as the case may be: Penny v. Watts, 2 Ph. 149; Re Marshall, Fowler v. Marshall, 1 Ch. Ch. 29; Kelly v. Ardell, 11 Gr. 579; Simons v. Millman, 2 Sim. 241; Lowry v. Fulton, 9 Sim. 104; Zimmerman v. O'Reilly, 14 Gr. 646; Groves v. Lane, 16 Jur. 1061; Cooke v. Gittings, 21 Beav. 497; Beardmore v. Gregory, 2 H. & M. 491; Cary v. Hills, L. R. 15 Eq. 79; Dowdswell v. D., 9 Ch. D. 204; Roswell v. Morris, L. R. 17 Eq. 20; but see Rule 196. But probate, or administration, obtained by the alleged personal representative pendente lite before the trial of the action, will be sufficient to bind the estate: Bateman Rule 203. v. Margerison, 6 Hare, 496; Trice v. Robinson, 16 Ont. 433; Doyle v. Diamond Flint Glass Co., 8 O. L. R. 493; and semble, will relate back to the commencement of the action so as to bar the running of the Statute of Limitations: Dini v. Fauquier, 8 O. L. R. 712 (casting doubt upon if not overruling Chard v. Rae, 18 Ont. 374); and this was held even though the objection was taken by defendant in his answer: Edinburgh Life Assurance Co. v. Allen, 19 Gr. 593; and see Stump v. Bradley, 15 Gr. 30; McDonald v. McDonald, 14 Gr. 133 (where probate was not obtained until after judgment); but where the executor had applied for and had obtained an order for the grant of probate, but had never actually obtained probate, after his death, a judgment recovered against him as executor was held not to bind the estate: Mohanidu v. Pitchey, 1894, A. C. 437; 71 L. T. 99. Judgment for the general administration of a deceased person's estate may now be granted against an executor de son tort without a legal personal representative being a party. Rule 196; formerly it was otherwise: Rowell v. Morris, L. R. 17 Eq. 30; Outram v. Wyckhoff, 6 P. R. 150; Re Kirkpatrick, 10 P. R. 4; but see Re Lovett, 3 Ch. D. 198. Judgment for administration, however, cannot be granted against one of several executors who have proved, even though the absent executor be out of the jurisdiction: Re Freckova, F. v. Carroll, 6 P. R. 183; Latch v. Latch, L. R. 10 Ch. 464. All the executors who have proved, and all who have acted, even though they have not proved, are necessary parties: Lickers v. Bell, 4 D. J. & S. 274; Hamp v. Robinson, 3 D. J. & S. 97; Latch v. Latch, supra; but an executor who has renounced, or who has neither proved nor acted, need not be made a party: Forsyth v. Drake, 1 Gr. 223; Willie v. Walker, 1 Vern. 30 (4) 2; Stinson v. Stinson, 2 Gr. 508. Where the plaintiff brought a suit for administration against one of three executors and trustees, alleging in the bill that the others had never acted, and the bill having been served by publication, on a hearing pro confesso the Court refused to make a decree in the absence of the other two executors and trustees as parties, or of proof of the facts alleged, accounting for their not being made parties: Lane v. Young, 17 Gr. 104. The renunciation of an executor under R. S. O. c. 59, s. 65, is peremptory and cannot be recalled on the death of the acting executor: Allen v. Parke, 17 C. P. 105; and after renunciation he cannot execute a power of sale given to him, qua executor: Travers v. Gustin, 24 Gr. 106; and see Re Oclaronde, 19 Gr. 119. As to the acts which will render an executor liable, notwithstanding his renunciation of probate, see Lannatto v. Mitchell, 13 Gr. 665.

The representative of a deceased executor who fully accounted to the surviving executor, need not be made a party: Webster v. Lens, 28 Gr. 471; and in an action for a general account against surviving trustees, the representatives of a deceased trustee were held not to be necessary parties to the writ, but they may be added at any time under Rule 206 if necessary: Re Harrison, 64 L. T. 442.

An executor proving the will, after judgment has been obtained, against another executor who has previously proved, might formerly have been added as a party by a supplemental order: Guthrie v. Walrond, 22 W. R. 723; and it would seem he might under the present practice be brought before the Court under an order to continue proceedings: see Rules 395, 396. A general decree for administration was granted in a creditor's suit against an administrator ad litem, it being alleged in the bill that there was no personal estate, and the parties interested in the realty having allowed the bill to be

Personal representative a necessary party to action for administration.

Rule 203. taken pro confesso against them: Dey v. Dey, 2 Gr. 149, but see remarks of Spragge, C., in Garrow v. McDonald, 20 Gr. 130.

Action for protection of estate until probate.

An action for protecting the estate until probate cannot be joined with an action for administration; formerly a bill so framed was demurrable for want of parties: Rawlings v. Lambert, 1 J. & H. 458; Overington v. Ward, 34 Beav. 175; and see Tempest v. Camoys, 35 Beav. 201; and Cole v. Glover, 16 Gr. 392; but now any objection to an action on the ground of the absence of necessary parties, can not under The Judicature Act be taken by demurrer; the question must be raised on motion to add the necessary parties; Werderman v. Société Générale d'Electricité, 45 L. T. 514, 18 C. L. J. 18; 19 Ch. D. 246; Young v. Robertson, 2 Ont. 439; Carter v. Clarkson, 15 P. R. 379, and see Rule 206.

Removal of assets may be restrained.

The removal of the assets out of the jurisdiction will be restrained by injunction even though the deceased's domicile was out of the Province: Shaver v. Gray, 18 Gr. 419.

Real representatives, when necessary parties.

Where the action relates to the realty as well as the personality, unless the executor is also trustee, or devisee, of the realty, or of some part of it: Stewart v. Hunter, 14 Gr. 132, or entitled thereto under The Devolution of Estates Act, (R. S. O. 1397, c. 127), s. 4, it is necessary to join the heir, or if the lands be devised, then the devisee, or one or more of the devisees: Calvert, 151, 153; Rule 191 infra. But execution against the lands of a deceased person might, prior to The Devolution of Estates Act, be issued upon a judgment against his personal representative, although those interested in the realty were not parties to the action: R. S. O., c. 77, s. 35, and see McEvoy v. Clune, 21 Gr. 515.

No action for administration lies by legatee, or next of kin, within a year of death.

No action can be brought by a legatee, or next of kin, against a personal representative before a year has elapsed from the death of the testator, or intestate: R. S. O., c. 335, s. 4; Slater v. Slater, 3 Chy. Ch. 1; Fivian v. Westbrooke, 19 Gr. 401; but see Wallis v. Wallis, 9 Ir. Chy. 511; Prosser v. Mossop, 29 W. R. 439. But an action for the protection of the estate simply, may be brought by a legatee, or next of kin, against an executor de son tort before the lapse of the year: Beardmore v. Gregory, 2 H. & M. 491; but not for administration as well: Rawlings v. Lambert, 1 J. & H. 458; Overington v. Ward, 34 Beav. 175. Formerly the High Court had no power to appoint an executor, in place of executors who had become incompetent to act through bodily infirmity, that could only be done by the Surrogate Court; nor would the High Court appoint a trustee in place of such executors: Corriyal v. Henry, 2 Gr. 310; but in Re Moore, 21 Ch. D. 778, under The Trustee Relief Act, a trustee was appointed to discharge the duties of an executrix who retired; and see Re Morphy, before Boyd, C., 9th April, 1887; and it would seem that Rule 195 does not extend the power of the High Court in this respect: see Re Bush, 19 Ont. 1; Rule 195, note. But where an executor had become insolvent, a receiver was appointed: Harrold v. Wallis, 9 Gr. 443; and see Meacham v. Draper, 2 Gr. 316; and now jurisdiction to remove executors and appoint others in their stead has been conferred on the High Court: see Jud. Act, s. 39.

Formerly High Court could not appoint trustee in place of executor.

When personal representative has distributed estate after

Where the personal representative has duly advertised for creditors under R. S. O., c. 129, s. 38, and has distributed the estate, that is an answer to a subsequent action against him for administration, by a legatee: see Newton v. Sherry, 1 C. P. D. 246; or by a creditor: Clegg v. Rowland, L. R. 3 Eq. 368; or by an alleged cestui que trust of the deceased: Re Bracken, 43 Ch. 1, 1; 61 L. T. 531; even though he have retained money in his hands to answer legacies, Rule 203. because from the time he sets apart moneys to answer legacies, he ceases to hold them as executor, and becomes then a trustee thereof for the legatees: Id.; Cameron v. Campbell 27 Gr. 307; Ballard v. Marsden, 42 L. T. 763; Galbraith v. Duncombe, 28 Gr. 27; but see Noble v. Brett, 24 Beav. 499. But if he has notice of a creditor's claim, he is not discharged because it was not sent in: Wood v. Wood, Markwell's Case, 21 W. R. 135; Re Land Credit Co. of Ireland, W. N. 1872, 210; and if the advertisement is insufficient he is not protected: Wood v. Weightman, L. R. 13 Eq. 434.

Where also there had been an accounting in the Surrogate Court by the personal representative, and no objection made for eight years, the right to a further account in the High Court of Justice was held to be barred: Bell v. Landon, 18 C. L. J. 178.

Personal representatives distributing an estate without advertising under the Statute (R. S. C. c. 129, s. 381), or without the authority of the Court remain liable to a creditor, though they had no notice of his claim: Knatchbull v. Fearnhead, 3 My. & Cr. 126; Noble v. Brett, 24 Beav. 499; Jeffreys v. Jeffreys, 19 W. R. 464; and also to legatees; and where the executor has distributed under a mistaken construction of the will he is liable to the parties injured: Hildard v. Fulford, 4 Ch. D. 389; Boulton v. Peard, 3 D. M. & G. 608; Doyle v. Blake, 2 Sch. & L. 243; but he would have a right to recoup himself out of any further payments due to those who had been overpaid: Dibbs v. Goren, 11 Beav. 483; and would also seem entitled to call on them to refund the money overpaid them, but not any interest thereon: Jervis v. Wolferstan, L. R. 18 Eq. 18; Boys' Home v. Lewis, 3 O. L. R. 208.

Publication of the advertisement in the Ontario Gazette is not necessary: Re Cameron, 15 P. R. 272.

An infant executor or administrator is not liable to account for assets received by him whilst a minor: Nash v. McKay, 15 Gr. 247; Hindmarsh v. Southgate, 3 Russ. 324; Merchants' Bank v. Monteith, 10 P. R. 334; 20 C. L. J. 377. But a judgment for an account against a trustee who has received moneys while an infant ought to be general in its terms and not confined merely to his receipts after he comes of age: In Re Garnes, 31 Ch. D. 147.

Payment of a legacy in full, is prima facie an admission of assets to pay all legacies in full, but it is open to explanation: Coleman v. Whitehead, 3 Gr. 227. Where an executor in a residuary account stated that he retained £500 to meet outstanding legacies he was held to be precluded from afterwards showing that the statement was a mistake: Brewster v. Pryor, 55 L. T. 771.

Administration has been refused, where the estate was sworn by the executors not to have exceeded $50: Foster v. Foster, 19 Gr. 463; but see Re Falconer, 1 Chy. Ch. 273; and where the plaintiff's claim as legatee only amounted to $28, notwithstanding it was alleged that there were other legacies for a considerable sum remaining unpaid, administration was refused, though the suit was unopposed: Reynolds v. Coppin, 19 Gr. 427. Administration has also been refused where the applicant was a partnership creditor of the deceased whose separate estate proved to be insufficient to pay his separate creditors: Re Barnard, Edwards v. Barnard, 32 Ch. D. 447; 55 L. T. 40.

Rule 203.

Rule applies to application in Chambers for administration.

This Rule applies to applications for administration on summary applications in Chambers, under Rules 944 to 953; but it is to be noted that clause (a) of this Rule is confined to actions by a residuary legatee, or next of kin, and clause (b) is confined to actions by a legatee interested in a legacy charged upon real estate, and therefore neither of these clauses extends to actions by specific legatees, or pecuniary legatees whose legacies are not charged on real estate.

Sub-clause (d).—A new trustee may be appointed in an action by one of several cestuis que trustent: Jones v. James, 9 Hare, 12 Eq. lxxx.

A suit by one of two cestuis que trustent to recover an annuity charged upon land devised to the defendant, was held maintainable without making another cestui que trust interested in another annuity charged on the same land, a party: Ree v. Engleback, L. R. 12 Eq. 225.

But parties who claim adversely to the trust could not formerly be made parties to a suit for the execution of the trust: Attorney-General v. Lyon Corporation, 3 De G. J. & S. 637, where it is said that Talbot v. Earl of Radnor, 3 My. & K. 252, to the contrary had been constantly disapproved of and never followed; but see now Rules 186, 187.

Persons from whom account required, trust notwithstanding be parties.

All persons from whom an account is required must be made original parties to the action: see note, p. 364; thus a cestui que trust who has been party to a breach of trust, is a proper party: Jones v. Bennett, 6 D. M. & G. 609; and a stranger or a creditor who has joined in the breach of trust may be joined: Lund v. Blanshard, 4 Hare, 9; Bank of Toronto v. Beaver & Toronto Mutual Fire Insurance Co., 26 Gr. 102; Consett v. Bell, 1 Y. & C. C. C. 509; Stainton v. The Carron Co., 18 Beav. 146. But if a trustee commits a breach of trust, the person participating is not a necessary party to an action for the general administration of the trust estate: Tiffany v. Thompson, 9 Gr. 244.

Where a suit was brought by a remainderman for an account against trustees, the tenants for life who were served with the decree, were held not entitled to call the trustee to account as to the income: Whitney v. Smith, L. R. 4 Chy. 513.

Execution of trust in foreign country.

The Court will decree the execution of a trust of lands in a foreign country when the trustee is resident within the jurisdiction: Smith v. Henderson, 17 Gr. 6; and see Re Robertson R. v. R., 22 Gr. 449; but see Burns v. Davidson, 21 Ont. 547; 94 L. T. Jour. 30; Mercantile Inv. Co. v. River Plate Co., 1892, 2 Ch. 303; Gunn v. Harper, 30 Ont. 650.

Sale by trustee restrained in suit by one of several c. q. t.

Sub-clause (e).—Where property was offered for sale by a trustee under depreciatory conditions of sale as to title, the sale was restrained in a suit instituted by one of several cestuis que trustent: Dance v. Goldingham, L. R. 8 Chy. 902; but see R. S. O. c. 129, s. 29.

Where the action is necessary and proper, and has resulted in benefit to the co-owners, they may be compelled to bear their proportion of the expense of the action, according to the advantage they are shown respectively to have derived from the proceedings: Stage v. Mutholland, 16 Gr. 145.

One tenant in common is entitled to maintain an action for in-Rule 203.
 jury to the reversion without joining his co-tenants. The only question would be whether non-joinder of the co-tenants is a reason for staying proceedings till they are joined: Roberts v. Holland, 1893, 1 Q. B. 665.

Sub-clause (f).—Where an action for administration is brought in action by the personal representative, some special circumstances requiring for administration the intervention of the Court must be shown: Cole v. Glover, 16 by personal Gr. 392; Barry v. Barry, 19 Gr. 458; Grant v. Grant, 10 P. R. 211; representative, 18 C. L. J. 99. It seems that he has no right to institute an action merely to obtain an indemnity by passing his accounts: White v. special Cummins, 3 Gr. 602; Cole v. Glover, 16 Gr. 392. As to whether a stance

 7 P. R. 129; Re Jack, Jack v. Jack, 13 C. L. J. 358; Re Bromley (Blake, V.C., 28th Jan., 1878); and see further, Rule 950. Where there were leaseholds it was held that the executor was entitled to bring an action in order to obtain indemnity against liability on the covenants in the lease. Re Bosworth, Howard v. Easton, 45 L. T.
 136; Dodson v. Sammel, 1 Dr. & Sm. 575; 4 L. T. 44; but see R. S. O. 1897, c. 129, s. 36. The absence of a legatee beyond the jurisdiction, whom the executors are unable to discover, was held to be a sufficient ground for the executors coming to the Court: Re Wade, Dec v. Wade, 18 Gr. 485.

 defence is filed that he is not executor: Simons v. Milman, 2 Sm. probate, the same rule applies to administrators: Humphreys v. Humphreys, 3 P. Wms. 350; see also supra p. 364-5.

Where an executor, before probate, brought an action to recover an asset of the estate, which the defendant had refused to deliver up until probate should be obtained, the action was stayed as being frivolous and vexatious: Tarn v. Commercial Banking Company, 12 Q. B. D. 294; 50 L. T. 365; and an executor intermeddling with the estate before probate may be restrained from so doing, and a receiver may be appointed at the suit of a co-executor: In re Moore, 13 P. D.
 36; 58 L. T. 386.

An executor cannot under this Rule bring an action against one of two co-executors who have proved, without making the other a party: Latch v. Latch, L. R. 10 Chy. 464. Executor suing one of several co-executors.

An action may be brought by a trustee against his co-trustee to recover and secure the trust fund, without joining any of the ces- tuis que trustent as parties: Horsley v. Fawcett, 11 Beav. 565; Bay- But c. q. t.

Peak v. Ledger, 4 De G. & S. 137; Franco v. Franco, 3 Ves. 75; and be joined. an action may also be brought by the trustee against one cetui que trust to recover the trust fund, without making the other cetuis que trustent parties: Bridget v. Hames, 1 Coll. 72.

Rule 208.

Action by personal representatives to enforce claim against realty.

An executor who advanced money to pay the price of certain land held by his testator as lessee with a right of purchase, was held entitled to enforce his claim against the land, for the advances so made, the personal estate being exhausted: Lanvin v. Jermy, 9 Gr. 100.

A personal representative who is a creditor of the estate may where the personality is exhausted, obtain judgment against a devisee for administration of the realty devised. To such an action the heir-at-law was a proper party; but where the devisee made no objection in his answer to his not being joined, and the plaintiff alleged by his bill that there were no lands descended, a decree was made in the absence of the heir, for the administration of the realty: Tiffany v. Tiffany, 8 Gr. 158; but see now The Devolution of Estates Act (R. S. O. 1897, c. 127), s. 4.

Sub-clause (g).—As to assignments of choses in action, and as to when an assignee can sue in his own name, see notes to the Jud. Act, sec. 58 (5), supra, p. 65.

In such cases Court may require persons to be joined as parties.

(2) The Court may require any other person to be made a party, and may give the conduct of the action to such party as it deems proper; and may make such order as it deems just for placing the defendant on the record on the same footing in regard to costs as other persons having a common interest with him in the matter in question. Con. Rule 321.

See Chy. O. 50.

Where proceedings are necessary against persons who have had dealings with the testator whose estate is being administered, the executor has a right to the conduct of the cause unless his conduct has been proved: Longbourn v. Fisher, 40 L. T. 124.

Where trustees were accounting parties they were not given the conduct of proceedings: Allen v. Norris, W. N. 1884, 118.

Conduct of a sale was given to the party most interested in getting a good price, in Woolley v. Colman, 30 W. R. 769; and Davis v. Wright, 32 Ch. D. 221.

Where the conduct of an administration action is given to a creditor he is entitled to costs as between solicitor and client: Re Richardson, Richardson v. Richardson, 14 Ch. D. 611; 43 L. T. 279.

As a general rule where two actions for administration have been commenced the conduct will be given to the plaintiff in the first, even though a judgment may have been first obtained in the second. This rule is not however inflexible. There may be special circumstances which the Court will take into account, such as the object of the first plaintiff in commencing his action, the amount of his interest and the nature of his claim: Re Scire, Mellor v. Scire, 21 Ch. D. 647; Townsend v. Townsend, 23 Ch. D. 100; Re McRae, Forster v. Davis, 25 Ch. D. 16; or the fact of one of the applicants being an accounting party: Re Curry, Curry v. Curry, 17 P. R. 60. See also Perrin v. Perrin, 3 Chy. Ch. 452, and Re Draggan, 8 P. R. 330, and notes to Rule 949.

Where the conduct of the cause was refused to a party, and he appealed, it was held that all parties were interested and should be served with notice: Septon v. Quillam, 71 L. T. Jour. 264.

(3) The persons who, but for this Rule, would have been necessary parties, shall be served with an office-copy of the judgment (unless the Court, or Master, dispenses with such service) indorsed with a notice according to Form No. 74, and after such service they shall be bound by the proceedings in the same manner as if they had been originally made parties; and upon notice to the plaintiff they may attend the proceedings under the judgment. Any person so served may apply to the Court to add to, vary, or set aside the judgment within fourteen days from the date of such service. Con. Rule 322.

Rule 203.

Persons who would be necessary parties except for Rule 203 must be served with judgment.

See Chy. Orders 60 and 507.

The Eng. (1883) R. 162, makes the service of such persons necessary only if directed by the Court or a Judge: see May v. Venton, in note, supra, p. 347.

For Form No. 74, see 11. & L. Forms, No. 929.

Office Copy to be Served.—An office copy of the judgment must be served. As to the making and certifying of office copies of judgments, see Rule 323.

Office copy to be served.

Who is to be Served.—All parties, who, but for clause (1) of Rule 203, would have been necessary parties to the action, who have not been made parties by writ, must be served with the judgment, unless service is dispensed with. Infants and persons of unsound mind not so found who are interested must be served: Clarke v. Clarke, 20 L. T. O. S. 88. In such manner as the Master or officer before whom the reference is being prosecuted directs: Rule 220. Before proceedings can be validly carried on against an infant or a person of unsound mind not so found, a guardian ad litem must be appointed for such person. Service of the office copy of the judgment on the Official Guardian ad litem seems of itself sufficient to constitute him guardian ad litem for the infant parties requiring to be served under clause (3) of Rule 203: Rule 219; see also Rule 3; and notes to Rule 219. The procedure to obtain the appointment of a guardian ad litem for persons of unsound mind by order is not prescribed by these Rules: see Rule 220, and notes. Where a guardian ad litem is appointed by order, he must be served with the order appointing him guardian, and with the office copy of the judgment. The Official Guardian is usually appointed guardian ad litem.

All persons who but for Rule 203 (1) would have been necessary parties to action, must be served.

Infants.

Lunatics.

Where parties who should be served are not served, and no proper order is made dispensing with service on them, they will not be bound by the proceedings, and they may be opened up on their application, and moneys distributed to their prejudice may be ordered to be refunded with interest: Uffner v. Lewis, 27 Ont. App. 242; 8. C. 3 O. L. R. 208; 5 O. L. R. 684. But if a party who should have been served, lie by after notice of the proceedings, and take no step until after the estate is distributed, he may be precluded by inches from thereafter disputing the validity of the proceedings: Mohan v. Broughton, 1900, P. 56; 82 L. T. 20.

Service out of the jurisdiction may be directed: Rule 162 (4), and Rule 167; see Chambers v. Laurie, 10 Ha. App. xxvii.; Strong v. Moore, 22 L. J. Chy. 917; or substituted service: Dan. Pr., 6th ed. 929; Re Hynes, Hodgins v. Andrews, 19 P. R. 217.

Service out of Ontario.

Substituted service.

Rule 203.

Parties who are served, are bound by proceedings.

Effect of Service.—The person served is not liable to account, nor can a motion for an injunction be made against him: Walker v. Seligmann, L. R. 12 Eq. 152; Hopper v. Harrison, 28 Gr. 22; Rolph v. T. C. Building Society, 11 Gr. 275, 278-9; Re Parkes, 68 L. T. 151; see, however, In re Rees, 15 Ch. D. 490; Re Rolfe, 70 L. T. 624. Neither can he require the defendant to account any further than if he had been himself an original defendant in the action: Whitney v. Smith, L. R. 4 Chy. 513. A party served, however, may impeach in the Master's Office an instrument set up in answer to his claim as a legatee, on the ground of fraud: Dadling v. Dadling, Rossa's claim, 15 C. L. J. 112.

Whether the party served attend the proceedings or not, he is bound by the proceedings. Unless he gives notice to the plaintiff of his intention to attend the proceedings under the judgment he is not entitled to service of notice of the proceedings: in the Master's office: English v. English, 12 Gr. 441.

Persons who have been improperly served may move to set aside the service: Re Symons, 54 L. T. 501.

Parties served may on notice to plaintiff attend the proceedings.

Attending Proceedings.—A person served is entitled, on giving notice to the plaintiff, to attend the proceedings. A party so attending, although entitled to notice of the future proceedings in the action, does not thereby become a party to the action: English v. English, 12 Gr. 441; Walker v. Seligmann, L. R. 12 Eq. 152; but see Re Rees, 15 Ch. D. 490.

Costs where attending unnecessary.

Under Rule 205 the Master has power, among other things, to give special directions as to the parties who are to attend on the several accounts and inquiries: and see also Rule 204. A person served under Rule 203 (3), and attending the proceedings without special leave, may be ordered to pay all the extra costs occasioned by his so attending, if it appear that his attendance was unnecessary: Sharp v. Lush, 10 Ch. D. 463; and see Daubney v. Luke, L. R. 1 Eq. 495; Re Marshall, W. N. 1879, 12.

Persons not attending proceedings not entitled to notice.

Persons served with the judgment, and not attending the proceedings, are not entitled to service of the warrant to settle the report: Green v. Measures, W. N. 1866, 122; nor of the notice of hearing on further directions: Lee v. Sturrock, W. N. 1876, 226. If any relief is intended to be asked against them they are entitled to notice, even though they have not attended the proceedings before the Master: Re Rees, 15 Ch. D. 490; Re Rolfe, supra.

Parties
served may move
judgment.

Motion to Vary Judgment.—The motion to vary, or set aside the judgment, must be made on notice to the plaintiff. The motion is to be made before a Judge in Court. Two clear days' notice of the motion must be given: see Rule 348; and it must be set down at least the day before the day named for hearing the motion: see Rule 364.

On the motion to vary the judgment by any person served with a copy, the Court will not direct the taking of accounts for which no foundation was laid in the pleadings or proceedings in the action, except perhaps on the terms of allowing the party from whom such account is sought, an opportunity to adduce evidence, to shew why it should not be granted: Foster v. Foster, L. R. 3 Chy. 330; and see Murgatroyd v. Caldwell, 10 L. T. 410. Additional accounts and inquiries have been directed after the report, at the instance of a party subsequently served with the decree: Rees v. Rees, W. N. 1871, 52.

Under the former practice in Chancery, any person served with the Rule 203 decree might rehear the cause: Elison v. Thomas, 1 D. J. & S. 18.

A person improperly made a party under this Rule is not limited to moving against the order, but may appeal from the Master's report: Coican v. Allen, 21 Ont. App. 457; 20 S. C. R. 292; McLaughlin v. Stewart, 1 O. L. R. 205.

Where the question intended to be raised does not appear on the pleadings or previous proceedings in the action, it may be necessary to present a petition in the nature of a bill of review under the former Chancery practice. No petition for leave to file this petition is necessary: Kidd v. Cheyne, 18 Jur. 348; Duggan v. McKay, 1 Chy. Ch. 380; and see Rule 642.

It would seem that a purchaser under a judgment pronounced in an action constituted under Rule 203, is bound to see that it has been served on all necessary parties, so as to bind them by the proceedings, in the same way that a purchaser is bound to see that all necessary parties are made parties to any other action in which a sale is directed by the Court. Prima facie, only the persons who are actually named as parties to the record are bound; Rule 203 (3) forms an exception to this rule: see Reeve v. Reeve, W. N. 1871, 52, and Russell v. Romanes, 3 Ont. App. 635.

A purchaser, however, is not bound to inquire into the regularity of the proceedings antecedent to the judgment: Gunn v. Doble, 15 Gr. 655; Shaw v. Crawford, 4 Ont. App. 371; Collins v. Denison, 2 Chy. Ch. 465, and see Jud. Act, s. 58 (11); but a purchaser pending proceedings whose rights are made expressly subject to a termination of proceedings in a regular way is in a different position: Foresters v. Pepp, 13 P. R. 254.

Dispensing with Service.—The Master, to whom an action is referred, as well as the Court, has under this Rule power to dispense with the service of a copy of the judgment: Re Hynes, Hodgins v. Andrews, 19 P. R. 217. Formerly, where the Master dispensed with service he was required to state the reasons therefor in his report: see Chy. O. 587; but that provision has not been embodied in these Rules.

An advertisement may be published for persons who cannot be found to be served, as a condition of dispensing with service on them: see Rule 670.

Service on some of the next of kin, who were resident out of the jurisdiction, was dispensed with: English v. English, 12 Gr. 441. An application to the Court to dispense with service may be made ex parte: Ib.

Absence from the jurisdiction is not of itself sufficient reason for dispensing with service: Chalmers v. Laurie, 10 Hare. App. xxvii.; Mayberry v. Brooking, 7 D. M. & G. 673; Strong v. Moore, 22 L. J. Chy. 917.

Whether parties on whom service of the judgment is dispensed with, either by the Court, or Master, are nevertheless bound by the proceedings, is nowhere stated: it would seem that they are in the same position as parties in whose absence judgment is pronounced under Rule 202, and that they are not bound: see Doody v. Higgins, 9 Hare. App. xxxii.; May v. Newton, 34 Ch. D. 347; unless by acquiescence: see Re Lort, 1896, 2 Ch. 788; 75 L. T. 177; and see Rules Bunnett v. Foster, 7 Beav. 540; Saragossa & M. Ry. v. Collingham, 204, 205. 1904, A. C. 159; and Eng. Rule 131 A.

Persons not having an interest at the date of the judgment cannot be brought before the Court under this Rule: Colyer v. Colyer, 11 W. R. 355; but see Rule 659.

As to the effect of omitting to serve, or dispense with service: see Uffner v. Lewis, supra, p. 371.

tration proceedings

204. In administration proceedings no person other than the executor or administrator shall, unless by leave, be entitled to appear either in Court or in Chambers, or in a Master's office, on the claim of any person against the estate of the deceased in respect of any debt or liability. The Court, Judge or Master, as the case may be, may direct any person to appear, either in addition to or in the place of the executor or administrator, upon such terms as to costs or otherwise as may seem proper. Con. Rule 334.

Compare Eng. (1883) R. 169, which is in substance the same.

Mere liberty to attend proceedings does not necessarily entitle the party to costs of attendance. The order should so provide if it is the intention that costs should be allowed: Day v. Beatty, 21 Ch. D. 830.

Only one party, generally speaking the executor or administrator, should in general attend to oppose a contested claim in an administration action: Re Smith v. Watts, 52 L. J. Chy. 209.

rights of absentees.

205. Where a defendant, at the trial or on motion for judgment, takes objection for want of parties, the Court, if it thinks fit, may pronounce a judgment saving the rights of all persons not parties. Con. Rule 323.

Taken from Chy. O. 65.

The Court may now in every action deal with the matters in controversy, so far as regards the rights and interests of the parties actually before it: Rule 206.

When the Court acts under this Rule the absent parties will not, as a general rule, be bound by the judgment pronounced, unless after knowledge thereof, they accept any benefit thereunder, or otherwise acquiesce therein: see Re Lart, 1896, 2 Ch. 788; 75 L. T. 175; but the Court instead of pronouncing a judgment saving the rights of an absent party, may make an order adding him as a defendant, and adjourn the hearing or trial to enable him to be served: see Clifton v. Crawford, 18 P. R. 316.

The Court will only act under Rule 205, where justice can be done to all parties notwithstanding the defective constitution of the action: Lambert v. Hutchinson, 1 Beav. 277, 286.

Cases in which Rule acted on.

Where in a suit to set aside an alleged fraudulent conveyance by a debtor, it appeared at the hearing that a note pro confesso entered against one of the defendants, the original debtor, had been waived by a subsequent amendment of the bill, the Court dismissed the bill as against that defendant, on the application of the plaintiff, without Rule 206, the dismissal being equivalent to a dismissal on the merits, and made a decree, saving the rights of that defendant: Waddle v. McGinty, 15 Gr. 261.

A decree was made under Chy. O. 65, from which this Rule is taken, in the absence of the assignee of a bankrupt: Maybery v. Brooking, 7 D. M. & G. 673; of a mortgagee: Feltham v. Clark, 1 De G. & Sm. 307; of a person entitled in a remote contingency: Daubuz v. Peel, 1 Coop. temp. Cott. 365; of the heir-at-law of the last surviving trustee, and of the personal representative of a testator: Faulkner v. Daniel, 3 Hare, 199.

An objection for want of parties should be taken as soon as possible, and not postponed until the trial, or motion for judgment: for want of parties must be taken promptly. Luke v. South Kensington, 11 Ch. D. 121; Sheehan v. Great Eastern Ry. Co., 16 Ch. D. 59; 29 W. R. 69; the objection should be taken by motion, and not merely raised by statement of defence: Id., and see notes to Rules 202, 206; and see Vallance v. Birmingham, 24 W. R. 454; Roberts v. Evans, 7 Ch. D. 830; 26 W. R. 280, where no costs of pleadings were allowed to plaintiff from the time the objection was taken.

206.—(1) An action shall not be defeated by reason of the misjoinder of parties, and the Court may deal with the matter in controversy so far as regards the rights and interests of the parties before it.

(2) The Court or a Judge may, at any stage of the proceedings, either upon or without the application of either party, and upon such terms as may appear to the Court or Judge to be just, order that the name of a plaintiff or defendant improperly joined, be struck out, and that any person who ought to have been joined, or whose presence is necessary in order to enable the Court effectually and completely to adjudicate upon the questions involved in the action, be added as plaintiff or defendant.

See Long v. Crossley, 13 Ch. D. 391.

(3) No person shall be added or substituted as a plaintiff (a), or as the next friend of a plaintiff, without his own consent in writing thereto to be filed.

The words "in writing" were not in the original Rule.

At (a), the former Con. Rule 324 had "suing without a next friend." The meaning is doubtless the same, as it is not to be supposed that where the consent of a next friend is obtained, the consent of the plaintiff, of whom he is next friend, is also to be obtained.

It seems to be assumed that in some cases a person may be added as a plaintiff without his consent: Murray v. Wurtch, 19 P. R. 288; sed quare, if that is correct, having regard to the explicit terms of this Rule.

Rule 206.

(4) Parties who are so added [or substituted] as defendants shall be served with a writ of summons or notice in manner hereinafter mentioned, or in such other manner as may be ordered, and the proceedings as against them shall be deemed to have begun only at the time of service. Con. Rule 324.

Clauses 1-4 are the same as Eng. (1883) R. 133, except the words in brackets.

As to the words "only at the time of service," (in the Eng. R. "only on the service of summons or notice.") see The Bowesfield, 51 L. T. 128; St. Louis v. O'Callaghan, 13 P. R. 322.

How application is to be made.

(5) An application to add, or strike out, or substitute a plaintiff or defendant may be made to the Court or a Judge, at any time before trial, by motion, or at the trial in a summary manner. Con. Rule 325.

Clause (5) is the same as Eng. (1883) R. 134.

The first clause is an extension of the Chy. O. 53, which provided that no suit should be dismissed by reason of the misjoinder of persons as plaintiffs.

The Court of Chancery formerly under Chy. O. 65, exercised a similar power of dealing with the questions raised in a suit, wherever justice could be done to all parties notwithstanding misjoinder or nonjoinder: see Lambert v. Hutchinson, 1 Beav. 277, 286. Where necessary, the decree expressly saved the rights of absent parties.

From the provisions for adding parties contained in the sub-clauses of this Rule, it would appear that "misjoinder" includes "nonjoinder." As to substituting a plaintiff when an action has been commenced in the name of a wrong party: see Rule 313.

Persons who might have been made parties under Rule 185, may be added under this Rule: Liddiard v. Toronto Railway Co., 5 O. L. R. 371 (where, in an action for damages for injuries to the plaintiff occasioned by negligence of defendants, liberty was given to join as a plaintiff the plaintiff's infant son who was also injured, making him to sue by his father as next friend).

Misjoinder, though it cannot defeat an action, may affect the costs: Roberts v. Evans, 7 Ch. D. 830.

Striking out and adding parties.

Misjoinder and non-joinder of parties ceased after the Ind. Act to be grounds of demurrer: see Blake & Co. v. Moore, 8 L. R. Ir. 95; Werderman v. Société Générale, etc., 19 Ch. D. 246; Hunter v. Young, 4 Ex. D. 256; Young v. Robertson, 2 Ont. 434; Seane v. Duckett, 3 Ont. 370; Carter v. Clarkson, 15 P. R. 379. The defendant's course is to apply under the present Rule to add, or strike out, parties, or require the plaintiff to do so; and the defendant should raise any objection of this kind that he may have, at the earliest possible moment: Sheehan v. Great Eastern Ry. Co., 16 Ch. D. 59, where the objection was not allowed though taken by the defence; see also Ruston v. Tobin, W. N. 1880, 19; Roberts v. Evans, 7 Ch. D. 830; Seane v. Duckett, 3 Ont. 370. Where the defendant's contention is that additional parties are necessary to enable the action to proceed at all. It would seem, however, that it is sufficient for him to take Rule 206, the objection by his defence, leaving the plaintiff to apply to add parties if so desired: see Nobel's Explosives Co. v. Jones, 28 W. R. 653; 42 L. T. 734; 49 L. J. Chy. 726; Lydall v. Martinson, 5 Ch. D. 780; see also Cornell v. Smith, 14 P. R. 275, an action to establish a will.

If the plaintiff cannot proceed without the addition of parties, the action should not be dismissed (see the first clause of this Rule), but the parties deemed necessary should be directed to be added by him: VanGelder v. Sowerby Bridge, etc., Soc., 44 Ch. D. 374. If in such a case the trial has to stand over, the question as to how the costs thrown away should be borne will doubtless depend upon which party was in default in not applying to have the parties added.

It was held to be too late to raise objection for the first time in the Supreme Court, that the legal representatives of the person injured were not made parties, where a policy was sued on by the person in whose favour it was made: Venner v. Sun Life, 17 S. C. R. 394.

Where the plaintiffs are not persons entitled to bring the action, so that the objection is one of substance, and not merely that other parties should be joined, formerly a demurrer was proper, and now, probably, that objection may be raised under Rule 259: see McCleughan v. Grey, 4 Ont. 329.

Clause (1) provides a cure for misjoinder and non-joinder, by Time of striking out or adding parties. Applications under it may be made application by either party, or the Court may act mero motu: Kino v. Rudkin, 5 Ch. D. 160. The power given is very extensive, and may be exercised at any stage of the proceedings, before trial on motion, and at the trial: Kino v. Rudkin, 6 Ch. D. 160, in a summary way: Rule 206 (5). An order was made after delivery of a statement of claim: Anon., 2 Charl. Ch. Ca. 25; but was refused as being asked for at an unreasonably late stage where the case had come on for trial and had been adjourned: Williams v. Andrews, W. N. 1875, 237; 1 Charl. Ch. Ca. 60. It cannot be made after the trial or after final judgment: Durham v. Robertson, 1898, 1 Q. B. 765, per Chitty, J., at p. 974; Attorney-General v. Corporation of Birmingham, 15 Ch. D. 423. In that case new parties had succeeded to the rights and liabilities of the defendants, and it was held on appeal, that the pleadings could not be amended to introduce these parties after final judgment, and that when it becomes necessary to enforce such a judgment against persons who had acquired a title after it was made, an action must be brought for that purpose; and after final judgment dismissing an action it was held to be too late to add a party as plaintiff, in order to remedy an objection of want of proper parties: Johnston v. Consumers' Gas Co., 17 P. R. 297. Where the judgment is not drawn up, however, and can therefore be recalled, the plaintiff may be allowed to amend and add parties: Keith v. Butcher, 25 Ch. D. 750.

An application to add as a defendant a person who ought to be, but has not been joined, ought to be granted or refused upon the same principles on which a plea in abatement for the non-joinder of such person would have succeeded or failed: per Lord Cairns in Kendall v. Hamilton, 4 App. Cas. 516.

Applications to add or strike out.—An application to add or strike out parties should be made promptly: Sheehan v. Great Eastern Ry. Co., 16 Ch. D. 59; Williams v. Andrews, W. N. 1875, 237;

Rule 206.

1 Charl. Ch. Ca. 60; Fallance v. Birmingham, etc., 2 Ch. D. 369. It may be after delivery of statement of claim: Anon., 2 Charl. Ch. Ca. 25; or at the trial, even during examination of witnesses: Ruston v. Tobin, W. N. 1880, 19; Kino v. Rudkin, 6 Ch. D. 160; House Property Co. v. H. P. Horsenail Co., 29 Ch. D. 190; Gandy v. Gandy, 30 Ch. D. 57; though it may under the circumstances be then too late: Nobel's Explosives Co. v. Jones, 28 W. R. 653; or in some cases after judgment if the party to be added does not object: see Re Mason, Turner v. Mason, W. N. 1883, 134, 147; sed quære, see Heard v. Borgwardt, W. N. 1883, 173 and 194, and Hurst v. Hurst, 21 Ch. D. 278, 289; Johnston v. Consumers' Gas Co., supra.

The order, whether for adding, striking out, or substituting parties, is in the discretion of the Judge; and after trial it was held too late to add new plaintiffs and make a new case: New Westminster Brewing Co. v. Hannah, 24 W. R. 899.

A Divisional Court in ordering a new trial may properly add as a party a person against whom relief is then for the first time claimed in the alternative: Casson v. Consolidated Plate Glass Co., 25 Ont. App. 63.

A voluntary association of individuals forming an unincorporated society cannot be sued in the name of the association, and if so sued, may move to strike out its name as a party defendant: Metallic Roofing Co. v. Local Union, 5 O. L. R. 424. As to the proper way of suing such an association, see Rule 200 and notes.

Where it becomes necessary to enforce a judgment against persons who acquired title after it was made, an action must be brought: Attorney-General v. Corporation of Birmingham, 15 Ch. D. 423; but see Young v. Huber, 29 Gr. 49; and see Morgan v. Day, Dan. Pr. 5th ed., 463, note (c), and Campbell v. Holyland, 7 Ch. D. 166.

The application is made in Chambers: see Wilson v. Church, 9 Ch. D. 552; and on notice: Tildesley v. Harper, 3 Ch. D. 277; Re Calbeck, Hall v. Calbeck, 36 W. R. 259; but an order nisi has under peculiar circumstances been made ex parte, to become absolute unless moved against within a time named in the order: Re Worthley, 4 Ch. D. 180; Wilson v. Church, supra.

A motion on behalf of some of several plaintiffs, when all should join, will not be entertained: Re Wright, 1895, 2 Ch. 747.

In Roberts v. Holland, 1893, 1 Q. B. 665, the objection that the plaintiff could not sue alone was raised as a point of law on the pleadings.

Appeal.—An appeal lies from an order of the Judge at the trial directing the case to stand over to add parties: Payne v. Caughell, 24 Ont. App. 556; and see Monro v. Toronto Railway Co., 4 O. L. R. 36; 5 O. L. R. 483.

Striking out parties.

Striking out Parties.—Under the former practice, if a party was improperly joined, the defendant might demur if the impropriety appeared on the face of the proceedings; otherwise it was necessary to defend, and proceed to a hearing of the cause. The present Rule enables the Court to strike out a party improperly joined, before expense is incurred.

An objection that a person joined with others as plaintiff has no title to maintain the action is a matter of substance which should be raised on the pleadings under Rule 259, and not by motion to Rule 204.

strike out parties under Rules 206 and 185: Morang v. Rose, 3 O. L.
R. 354.

Where an action is brought without proper authority, the action may be stayed in the case of a sole plaintiff; or in case there be several plaintiffs, some of whom have not authorized it, the names of such plaintiffs may be ordered to be struck out. The application may be made by the defendant or by the parties whose names have been used without authority: Barrie v. Weaymouth, 15 P. R. 95; Barrie v. Barrie, 19 P. R. 33. If the application is made by the defendant the parties whose names are to be struck out are necessary parties to the motion: see infra, p. 383.

If a defendant is improperly joined, he should apply to have his name struck out, at the earliest possible moment; but a defendant was struck out on his own application, though he had delivered a statement of defence upon which issue had been joined, and delay only influenced the decision as to the costs: Lallance v. Birmingham & Midland Land, etc., Corporation, 2 Ch. D. 369.

Where two defendants are sued in the same action, in respect of separate torts, or other distinct and separate causes of action, either may apply to compel the plaintiff to elect against which of them he will proceed, and the name of the other will be struck out: Sadler v. G. W. Ry. Co., 1896, A. C. 450; 74 L. T. 561; Andrews v. Forsythe, 7 O. L. R. 188; Chandler v. Grand Trunk Ry., 5 O. L. R. 389.

Where defendants did not move under this Rule to be struck out, but took part in the defence, they were held jointly liable with other defendants to the costs of the action: Twinbarrow v. Braid, W. N. 1878, 169.

The Court will not virtually try the cause, however, on such an application. Where, therefore, a plaintiff, a builder, sued for work and labour done, and made two persons defendants who occupied the position of lessee and lessor, alleging that there was a doubt which was liable to him, Lush, J., on the application of the lessor, refused to strike him out on his statement that the lessee was liable to do all repairs: Anon. W. N. 1875, 203; 1 Charl. Ch. Ca. 59. Under an order striking out a defendant and giving the plaintiff leave to amend, he may not amend by striking out another defendant, even though that defendant's interest was determined: Wymer v. Dodds, 11 Ch. D. 436; Elwen v. Vaughan, W. N. 1879, 69. A defendant sought to be struck out is entitled to notice, that he may be heard as to the question of his costs: Wymer v. Dodds, supra.

A defendant in ejectment, a tenant, whose landlord had obtained leave to defend, and whose lease had expired pending the suit, was not allowed to have his name struck out, as the plaintiff's security would thus be diminished: Johnston v. Oliver, 9 P. R. 353.

On grounds apart from any question of personal responsibility, defendants on their own application may not be allowed to be struck out: see Heatly v. Newton, 19 Ch. D. 336.

Where there is a misjoinder of plaintiffs, a defendant may apply to stay proceedings until the plaintiffs elect which of them shall proceed, and the names of the others will then be struck out. On such an application the Court has no power to impose terms on Rule 206. defendants as regards any defence under the Statute of Limitations which they may have against the plaintiffs whose names are struck out, or to enable the latter to issue new writs nunc pro tunc: Huthnance v. Raleigh, 17 P. R. 458.

Plaintiffs joined without their authority.

Where persons are joined as plaintiffs without their authority, the defendant may move to strike out their names as plaintiffs: Barrie v. Weaymouth, 15 P. R. 95; or the party improperly joined as plaintiff may move to have his name struck out of the proceedings, and the formal discontinuance of the action is no bar to the motion: Gold Reefs v. Dawson, 1897, 1 Ch. 115; 75 L. T. 575.

Adding
parties.

Adding Parties.—This Rule is to be read in connection with Rules 185, 186, and 313: Edwards v. Louther, 24 W. R. 434; and any person who might have been joined originally under the latter Rules may be added under this Rule: see Liddiard v. Toronto Ry. 5 O. L. R. 371; Smith v. Haseltine, W. N. 1875, 250; 1 Charl. Ch. Ca. 56; Long v. Crossley, 13 Ch. D. 388, subject to the restrictions hereafter referred to, and to the power of the Judge in his discretion to refuse to interfere if injustice is likely to be done in any way by the addition: see Edwards v. Louther, 34 L. T. 257.

The words "who ought to have been joined," in this Rule mean "ought, in order to do complete justice, to have been joined," and, as a general rule, "all parties against whom remedy or relief is sought should, if possible, be joined in the same action": per Archibald, J., in Edwards v. Louther, 45 L. J. C. P. 419. There, an action was brought against a publisher of a newspaper for libel, and after issue joined the proprietor of the newspaper was added as a defendant on the plaintiff's application.

Where a plaintiff assigned his interest to a third person, who obtained an order giving him liberty to prosecute the suit in the name of the original plaintiff, it was held on the application of the defendant, that the assignee was bound to amend the title of the action, so as to shew that he was the real plaintiff, and to set forth the assignment, by amendment or otherwise. In the statement of claim: Seear v. Lawson, 16 Ch. D. 121.

But the Courts do not interpret the Rules as empowering them to add parties at the instance of a defendant to the same extent as upon the plaintiff's application.

In an action to restrain defendants from using certain premises as a smallpox hospital, application was made under this Rule by the plaintiff, to join another person with his consent who was an inhabitant of the same neighbourhood, on the ground that since the action was commenced the plaintiff had given up his business and was going abroad. An order was refused, on the ground that the cause of action was injury to the plaintiff's own property only, and it was not necessary, to enable the Court effectually to dispose of all questions in the action, that anyone be added: Dalton v. St. Mary Abbots, 47 L. T. 349.

Where the plaintiffs were lessees of eleven houses for a long term, one being sub-let, they, together with the sub-tenant, brought an action to restrain a nuisance, etc., subsequently the sub-tenant declined to go on. The other ten houses having been let in the meantime, two of the other sub-tenants were on application added as co-plaintiffs with their consent: House Property & L. Co. v. H. P. Horsnail Co., 29 Ch. D. 190.

Persons were added as defendants who appeared to be the persons really liable to plaintiffs, and were conducting the defence for the defendants sued: Adams v. Watson Manufg. Co., 15 Ont. 218; and 16 Ont. 2, where the decision was affirmed as to the terms of payment of costs imposed as a condition precedent to amending.

In Hathaway v. Doig, 6 Ont. App. 264, where the plaintiff in an action to restrain a nuisance appeared to have no interest, his wife being the owner of the property injured, an application to substitute the wife with her consent as plaintiff was refused, it being held that the suit was not merely not properly constituted, but had no proper existence at all, and another person who had a right should not be substituted for a person who had no right to institute proceedings: see also Nor Westminster Brewery Co. v. Hannah, 24 W. R. 899; Walcott v. Lyons, 29 Ch. D. 584, where an action was brought by a life tenant against trustees for improper investment; the defence made was that the life tenant had acquiesced; a motion to add the tenant in remainder, who had not acquiesced, as co-plaintiff was refused; but see Rule 313.

Adding Plaintiffs.—The addition of a plaintiff is subject to the provision of clause (3) of this Rule, that the addition shall be by his consent in writing; (see vide, Murray v. Wartle, supra, p. 359), but if he consents, the addition may be made against the wish of the other plaintiffs, if necessary, as where the right of action has passed from the original plaintiff: Emden v. Cotte, 17 Ch. D. 100; 29 W. R. 600.

Where a party brought an action in his own name instead of in the name of the person in whom the legal title of the property to be recovered was vested, an amendment was allowed adding such party: McGuin v. Fretts, 7 C. L. T. 159; Walcott v. Lyons, 29 Ch. D. 584; and see Ayscough v. Bullar, 41 Ch. D. 341.

But in a later case it was held that if the plaintiff by whom the action was commenced had no cause of action, the adding as a co-plaintiff at the trial a person who had the right of action, would not cure the defect, and the action must fail; see Matthews v. Usher, 1900, 2 Q. B. 535; see, however, Rule 313 and notes; and Kent v. Communauté des Sœurs de Charité, 1903, A. C. 220.

In De Hart v. Stevenson, 1 Q. B. D. 213, one of the several co-owners of a ship, sued for freight dues; the defendant applied to add the other co-owners as plaintiffs confessedly in order to obtain the benefit of their liability for costs. The application was refused, on the ground that it was not shown that the presence of the others was necessary in order to completely adjudicate upon and settle the questions arising in the action; see also Harry v. Davey, 2 Ch. D. 721, and Walcott v. Lyon, supra.

In Long v. Crossley, 13 Ch. D. 388, an action was brought by a tenant for life for specific performance of an agreement, signed by her "for myself and those entitled after me," to accept a lease of a coal mine. After notice of trial the plaintiff died, and the persons entitled in remainder, of whom the plaintiff's executor was one, wishing to adopt the suit, were at their request added as plaintiffs at the trial. The question whether the action would nevertheless fail was not considered by the Court. Fry, J., said, "I think that at present I have nothing to do with that. The object of the provision was, not that a party's case should be framed so as to succeed, but that it can be adjudicated on by the Court, whether in his favour or against him."

Rule 206.

In Cormack v. Grofrian, W. N. 1876, 22, the action was by a ship-owner against consignees of the cargo for demurrage, and a counter-claim was put in for damage to the cargo. Leave was refused to the plaintiff to add as co-plaintiffs the other owners (perhaps because they did not consent), though it was admitted to be hard that the plaintiff should have to meet the counter-claim alone if others were liable as much as he.

In Beck v. Dear, W. N. 1876, 40; 2 Charl. Ch. Ca. 25, the addition of a plaintiff was refused where the object was to bring a counter-claim against him. See also Bank of Commerce v. Bank of B. N. America, 10 P. R. 158; Norris v. Beazley, 2 C. P. D. 80.

See also Secar v. Lawson, 16 Ch. D. 121, supra, where a plaintiff was in effect added on a defendant's application.

In Emden v. Carter, 17 Ch. D. 163, a trustee of a bankrupt plaintiff was added as a plaintiff, and the conduct of the action given to him on his own application, he alleging that the interest in the action had passed from the plaintiff to him. A similar order was made in Bied v. Matthews, 46 L. T. 512; see also Woodward v. Shields, 32 C. P. 282, and notes to Rule 396.

In Saylor v. Cooper, 2 Ont. 308, where the equitable owner of land sued in respect of a right of way of necessity implied by a grant of land, he was permitted to make the owner of the legal estate a co-plaintiff by amendment at the hearing; and see Lynce v. Snaith, 1800, 1 Q. B. 486; 80 L. T. 122.

An amendment by adding a plaintiff ought not to be allowed so as to prejudice the defendant's right to set up the Statute of Limitations as against the added party; see Hudson v. Fernyhough, 61 L. T. 722; affirmed by C. A.; see 88 L. T. Jour. 253.

Neither this Rule nor Rule 207 provides for the issue or service of an amended writ where a plaintiff is added. As to when an amended writ should be served, see notes to Rule 312.

Consent of person added as plaintiff.

Consent of Person added as Plaintiff.—The consent referred to in clause (3) must be proved; Turquand v. Fearon, 27 W. R. 326; Mason v. Harris, ib., 700; under the original Rule it need not have been in writing. It was sufficient if the solicitor for the existing plaintiff stated that he was authorized to consent on behalf of the new plaintiff, the solicitor taking the ordinary responsibility of using a plaintiff's name; Cor v. James, 19 Ch. D. 55. The practice now requires the consent to be in writing and filed. It must be given personally by the party to be added; the consent in writing of his solicitor, though given with his knowledge, and in his presence, is not in compliance with the Rule, and is insufficient; Fricker v. Van Grutten, 1890, 2 Ch. 649; 75 L. T. 117. The objection that there is no consent of a plaintiff sought to be added may be taken by the defendant; Turquand v. Fearon, supra; see also Jackson v. Kruger, 51 L. J. Q. B. 446; 52 L. T. 962; Tryon v. National Prov., 16 Q. B. D. 678.

The case of trustee and cestui que trust is no exception to this provision: the trustee's consent will be required in order to make him a co-plaintiff on the application of his cestui que trust; Besley v. Besley, 37 Ch. D. 648; so also where an assignee for the benefit of creditors was sought to be added as a plaintiff in an action by a creditor to set aside a fraudulent conveyance; Bank of London v. Wallace, 13 P. R. 176; and persons alleged by the defendants to be beneficially interested in the subject matter of the action, named on the defendant's application be added as plaintiffs without their consent Rule 206, sent in writing: Major v. MacKenzie, 17 P. R. 18.

In Duckett v. Gover, 6 Ch. D. 82, a company was made, by mistake of law, a defendant instead of a plaintiff; and time was given to obtain the consent of the company to be joined as co-plaintiffs: see also Mason v. Harris, 11 Ch. D. 97, and Pender v. Lushington, 6 Ch. D. 70. Where a resolution of a company had been passed that the company's name should not be used in an action brought by a shareholder for himself, and also in the name of the company, against directors alleging misapplication of the funds, the company's name was struck out as plaintiff, and leave was given to amend the writ by adding the company as defendants: Silber Light Co. v. Silber, 12 Ch. D. 717. In MacDougall v. Gardiner, 1 Ch. D. 13, 22, it was said that every litigation on a company's behalf should be in the name of the company if the company really desires it. See also McHenry v. Lewis, 25 So. Jour. 777. Where there is a fraud committed by persons who can command a majority of votes, the majority may sue and the company need not be plaintiff: see Aticool v. Merryweather, L. R. 5 Eq. 464; Menier v. Hooper, L. R. D Chy. 350; Mason v. Harris, 11 Ch. D. 107; and see Spokes v. Grovenor, etc., Hotel Co., 1897, 2 Q. B. 124; 76 L. T. 679, per Chitty, L.J.

Jessel, M.R., in Duckett v. Gover, 25 W. R. 554, said: "An application to strike out the name of a person added as plaintiff without his consent can only be made by the person so added"; but where proceedings were instituted without the authority of a company, they were set aside at the instance of defendants: see Cape Breton Co. v. Fenn, W. N. 1881, 23; and see Barrie v. Weymouth, 15 P. R. 95; Barrie Public School Board v. Barrie, 19 P. R. 31.

The authority given by a married woman to a next friend to sue for her is not a document which can be filed: Rodgers v. Horn, 26 W. R. 432.

But a next friend's authority to the solicitor to use his name as next friend must be filed in the office in which the proceedings are commenced: see Rule 198.

As to adding a person as plaintiff without his consent under Rule 396, see notes to that Rule and Murray v. Wurtel, 19 P. R. 288.

Adding Defendants.—On the plaintiff's application, as a rule all persons may, on proper terms, be added, against whom the plaintiff desires to proceed, and whom he might have made defendants originally. Adding defendants on plaintiff's application.

A person whom plaintiff was entitled to join originally under Rule 192, as a defendant, was added upon proper terms on the plaintiff's application after he had obtained discovery: Tate v. Natural Gas Co., 18 P. R. 82.

A plaintiff the assignee of a book debt, in an action against the debtor, was allowed to add the assignor, and make an alternative claim against him in the event of the debtor succeeding in his defence: Langley v. Law Society of U. C., 3 O. L. R. 245.

Whether a defendant will be added or not upon a defendant's application, depends upon whether the adjudication upon and settling of the questions arising in the action requires the presence of the person proposed to be added: Harry v. Darcy, 2 Ch. D. 721. In general a defendant will not be added against the plaintiff's will, unless in the language of clause (a) his presence is necessary to enable On defendant's application.

Rule 206. the Court to effectually and completely settle all matters in question, and unless the parties will be prejudiced by his non-joinder: Leduc v. Ward, 54 L. T. 214; McCheane v. Gyles, No. 2, 1902, 1 Ch. 911, 80 L. T. 217. In Norris v. Beasley, 2 C. P. D. 80, a defendant sought to add a person as a defendant. The person sought to be added consented, and the object of the application was to enable such person to set up a counter-claim against the plaintiff, (and see Montgomery v. Foy, Morgan & Co., 1895, 2 Q. B. 321). The plaintiff objected, and it was held that this Rule should not be made use of in a manner harassing to plaintiffs, by forcing them to include in their action persons against whom they do not seek to proceed, unless a strong case is made out, showing that in the particular case justice cannot be done without the person being brought in. Denman, J., there said, "We ought not to act upon it (the Rule) by adding a defendant without the consent of the plaintiff, except in cases where it is clearly made out that it is necessary to do so."

See also Draye v. Hartopp, 28 Ch. D. 414, (where one executor brought an action for foreclosure without joining either as plaintiff or defendant his co-executor who had absconded to avoid prosecution for fraud), and Toronto & Hamilton Navigation Co. v. Silcox, 12 P. R. 622, supra, and Sanders v. Peck, 50 L. T. 630; 32 W. R. 492; Peterson v. Fredericks, 15 P. R. 361.

The addition of a defendant contemplated by this Rule, is not of a person against whom the original defendant may have a remedy over: Hewett v. Heise, 11 P. R. 47; or for contribution or indemnity: see Re Harrison, 1891, 2 Ch. 349 (as to which see Rule 200), Peterson v. Fredericks, 15 P. R. 361; McCheane v. Gyles, No. 2, 1902, 1 Ch. 911; nor of a person claimed by a defendant to be liable to the plaintiff instead of himself: Lercaley v. Harrison, W. N. 1876, 39; 2 Charl. Ch. Ca. 26; Lovell v. Holland, W. N. 1876, 53; 2 Charl. Ch. Ca. 26; Thompson v. London County Council, 1899, 1 Q. B. 840; 80 L. T. 512. In such case the defendant can defend himself without the presence of the other party; and if the plaintiff does not proceed against the other party, the defendant is not injured. But the Rule has been held to apply where some only of several joint contractors are sued: Robb v. Murray, 13 P. R. 397.

In actions against newspapers for libel, however, provision is made whereby a defendant may apply to add as a co-defendant, and claim relief over against, any person by whom the alleged libel was communicated in writing to the original defendant, except where the communication was anonymous, or known to be untrue: see R. S. O. c. 68, s. 17.

Adding joint contractors as defendants.

As a general rule where an action is brought against one only of several joint contractors, he is entitled to have his co-contractors joined as defendants, and is not limited to serving them with a third party notice under Rule 200; Pilley v. Robinson, 20 Q. B. D. 157; as explained in Wilson v. Balcarres, 1893, 1 Q. B. 422; S. C. sub nom. Wilson v. Kulick, 68 L. T. 169, 312, that is, where under the old practice a plea in abatement might have been pleaded: see also Scarf v. Jardine, 7 App. Cas. 364; Robb v. Murray, 13 P. R. 397; but not necessarily where the joint contractor resides out of the jurisdiction: Wilson v. Balcarres, supra; or being within the jurisdiction cannot be found after reasonable inquiry: Robinson v. Geis, 1894, 2 Q. B. 685; 71 L. T. 70; or is insolvent: Güldersleeve v. Balfour, 15 P. R. 293, nor where the party sued is on the face of the contract the sole contractor, though other persons are behind jointly interested: Toronto & Hamilton Nav. Co. v. Silcox, 12 P. R. 622; see also Eyre v. Moring, W. N. 1884, 58.

As to adding members of a club in an action against the club, and Rule 206. the right of those added to apply to have co-contractors added, see Aikins v. Dom, Live Stock, etc., 17 P. R. 303.

A defendant who is desirous of raising the objection that some one jointly liable with him has not been joined as a defendant, may make a motion under this Rule to add the persons jointly liable: Gibbshere v. Balfour, 15 P. R. 283, or may apply in Chambers to have the action stayed, shewing that the person alleged to be jointly liable with him, is within the jurisdiction: McArthur v. Hood, 1 Ch. & E. 550; and see Begg v. Ellison, 14 P. R. 384; Robinson v. Gusch, supra.

On such an application it need not be admitted by the plaintiff, or by the person sought to be added, that he is jointly liable with defendant. If the defendant shows some ground for so saying, he is entitled to have the person added on any proper terms as to costs: Fardell, etc., Co. v. Basset, 15 Times, 204.

By analogy to the old practice where a plea in abatement for non-joinder of co-contractors was pleaded, a defendant now moving to stay proceedings until co-contractors are added should shew by affidavit the names and residences of the persons whom he seeks to have added, and he is subject to the same liability as to costs, in case persons are added who turn out not to be liable: Aikins v. Dom, Live Stock, etc., 17 P. R. 303.

In Byrne v. Brown, 22 Q. B. D. 657, lessors sued the son of the lessee who was entitled to the term, subject to a sub-lease to D., for damages for breach of covenant caused by dilapidations made by D. Under the terms of the sub-lease to D. (who was brought in under a third party notice) it was doubtful whether he was liable to indemnify the defendant, or only the executors of the deceased lessee. On defendant's application, the plaintiffs not objecting, the executors were added as defendants to enable them to get indemnity from D., and D. was held not entitled to object, though the case might be different if plaintiffs objected.

In Day v. Radcliffe, 24 W. R. 844, an administration suit, where the plaintiff's title as a beneficiary under a will was doubtful, and the trustee under the will was the only defendant, the beneficiary interested in disputing the plaintiff's claim was added; and where an executor was sued for a legacy, a third person to whom he had paid it was ordered to be added as a co-defendant on the defendant's objection: Clifton v. Crawford, 18 P. R. 316.

In Ashley v. Taylor, 10 Ch. D. 768, a defendant died, and the cause of action alleged in the claim did not survive. Upon the plaintiff's motion, alleging further facts which shewed a cause of action which did survive, the administrator of the deceased defendant was added. See also Rule 396.

In Head v. Bowman, 9 P. R. 12, the plaintiff sued for damages caused by the flooding of his lands by defendant's mill dam. The G. W. Ry. Co. had turned the waters of the stream into another channel, which was not deep enough to carry off all the water if the defendant's dam were removed, so that plaintiff could not obtain complete relief by succeeding against the defendant. Liberty was therefore given to add the Ry. Co.

Defendants might under the former Chancery practice, be added after the judgment, for the purpose of a motion for injunction to Rule 200. preserve the subject of the suit: Young v. Huber, 29 Gr. 49; see sub. Attorney-General v. Corporation of Birmingham, 15 Ch. D. 423.

In Dis v. G. W. Ry. Co., 34 W. R. 712; W. N. 1880, 130; 54 L. T. 810; 55 L. J. Chy. 707, the defendant company covenanted separately with the plaintiff and two other covenantees by one indenture. The plaintiff sued for specific performance of the covenant without joining the separate covenantees. They were added on the application of the company; but see McChane v. Gyles, No. 2, 1802, 1 Ch. 911, supra, p. 384.

An officer of a corporation cannot be added merely for the purpose of discovery: Wilson v. Church, 9 Ch. D. 552. See notes to Rules 191 and 186.

In Gibson v. Nelson, 2 O. L. R. 500; 35 S. C. R. 181, a person who had acquired an interest after the commencement of a foreclosure action was on his own application added as a party, and in Kino v. Rudkin, 6 Ch. D. 160, a person to whom the defendant had assigned pendente lite was added at the trial at his own request. Where plaintiff had assigned his interest before suit it was doubted whether it was proper to allow the assignee to be added as plaintiff: Foster v. Ward, 9 L. R. 1r. 447.

In Molloy v. Kilby, 29 W. R. 127, it was held that persons, not parties, made defendants to a counterclaim and wishing to interrogate the plaintiff, should apply under this Rule to be made defendants to the original action.

In Hewitt v. Heise, 11 P. R. 47, it was held that the facts did not show a case for adding a defendant, but rather for service of a notice under Rule 200, claiming indemnity.

Adding a defendant at his own instance.

Cases have arisen in which a third party has applied for leave to come in as a defendant. For such a case no express provision is made. In Mills v. Griffith, 45 L. J. Q. B. 771, an action of ejectment was brought by a lessor against a lessee who had incurred a forfeiture; on motion of a mortgagee of the lessee to be added as a defendant, the Court refused to make an order, holding that the questions involved in the action were wholly on the covenant between the lessee and lessor. In Wilson v. Church, 9 Ch. D. 552, a representative action, a bond-holder who had a substantial interest and disputed the plaintiff's contention, was, on his own application, added as a defendant. See also Watson v. Case, 17 Ch. D. 19, and Kino v. Rudkin, 6 Ch. D. 160; Debeature Co. v. De Murieta Co., 8 Times, 493.

In Kitching v. Hicks, 9 P. R. 518, an action against an assignee for the benefit of creditors, claiming a lien on goods taken by the assignee, certain creditors claiming that they had a substantial interest in the subject of the action were, on their own application, added as defendants.

A third party who would be commercially and incidentally, but not legally and directly injured by a judgment being obtained against the defendant in an action, is not entitled on the ground of such prospective injury to be made a party to the action; therefore, in an action to restrain the user of a machine alleged to be an infringement of the plaintiff's patent, the maker of the alleged infringement was not allowed, on his own application, to be added as a defendant: Moser v. Marsden, 1802, 1 Ch. 487; 66 L. T. 570.

In Varasseur v. Krupp, 27 W. R. 176, a foreign sovereign (the Mikado), applied and was added as a defendant in order to enable him to apply to dissolve an injunction.

In Farris v. Farris, 9 P. R. 441, an action was brought by a Rule 207. father to recover arrears under an annuity deed against his son who had absconded. The son's wife had barred her dower by the annuity deed, and had brought a suit against her husband for alimony. She now applied to be let in to defend this action, on the ground that it was collusively brought to defeat her suit for alimony, and defraud her of dower. She was let in to dispute the amount claimed.

Where defendants are added as parties after the commencement of an action, the action as to them is deemed to be commenced only from the date they are added: Rule 206 (4); and see St. Louis v. O'Callaghan, 13 P. R. 322; Huthnance v. Raleigh, 17 P. R. 458; i.e., from the time when they are served with the amended writ: see Gooderham v. Moore, 31 Ont. 86, and Rule 206 (4).

Costs.—Where persons who are not necessary, but are proper parties, are added as defendants, upon an objection made by an original defendant, the Court may in its discretion refuse to award costs to such added parties: Merry v. Porrett, 1898, 1 Ch. 306; 78 L. T. 146; 46 W. R. 487; or may order the defendant, at whose instance they were added, to pay them, where it is ultimately found that they should not have been added: Mikins v. Dom. Live Stock, &c., 17 P. R. 305.

207. Where a defendant is added [or substituted], unless otherwise ordered, the plaintiff shall issue an amended writ of summons, and serve the new defendant with such writ, or notice in lieu thereof, in the same manner as an original defendant is served. Con. Rule 326.

Original J. A. Rule 105 was identical with Eng. R. 1875, O. 16, r. 15. The words in brackets which were not in the original Rule are taken from Eng. (1883) R. 135, which is to the same effect as the present Rule. Where the person added is out of the jurisdiction, the writ if originally issued for service within the jurisdiction, should before service be amended according to the form for service out of the jurisdiction: Keate v. Phillips, W. N. 1878, 186; or a concurrent writ should be issued.

The directions for service of the writ on new defendants do not meet the case of consolidated actions: Re Wortley, Culley v. Wortley, 4 Ch. D. 180, where the defendants were added to the consolidated action without service of any writ being required.

Service of the writ of summons on a company, added for conformity as defendants, was dispensed with under this Rule, where the defendants already before the Court were directors and principal shareholders of the company, and were being sued in respect of money in their hands and found (as against them) to belong to the company: Es v. Miller, 24 Ont. 268.

When the sole plaintiff died after delivery of statement of claim, his executors took out the common order to revive, copies of the writ, order to revive, and order adding a defendant were directed to be served on the added defendant: Austen v. Bird, W. N. 1881, 129; 17 C. L. J. 365.

As against defendants added by amendment, the action will be deemed to be commenced from the time when they are served with the amended writ: Rule 206; and see Gooderham v. Moore, and other cases in note to Rule 206, p. 387.

Rules 208, 209. Neither this Rule nor Rule 206 provides for the issue or service of an amended writ where a plaintiff is added. As to when an amended writ should be served: see notes to Rule 312.

Amended statement of claim.

208 If a statement of claim has been delivered previously to such defendant being added, the same shall, unless otherwise ordered by the Court or Judge, be amended in such manner as the making of the new defendant a party may render desirable; and a copy of the amended statement of claim shall be delivered to the new defendant with the writ or notice. Con. Rule 327.

Same as the Eng. R. 1875, O. 16, r. 16. It is omitted from Eng. Rules 1883.

(ii) Third Party Procedure.

Third party notice, where contribution or indemnity claimed.

209. Where a defendant claims to be entitled to contribution, or indemnity from or any other relief over against (a) any person not a party to the action, he may by leave of the Court or a Judge issue a notice (hereinafter called the third party notice) which shall be sealed in the same manner as the writ of summons, and shall state the nature and grounds of the claim and be according to Form No. 49. A copy of the notice shall be filed in the office in which the action was commenced, and a copy, together with a copy of the statement of claim, or, if there be no statement of claim, of the writ, shall be served by the defendant within the time limited for the delivery of his defence, and according to the Rules relating to the service of writs of summons. Rules of 23rd June, 1894, 1313, (328). amended.

Third parties.

(a) Provision for the case of "other relief over" is not contained in Eng. (1883) R. 170. In other respects this Rule, though not in identical terms with, is to the same effect as, the Ont. Rules of 23rd June, 1894 (1313), which followed the Eng. Rule of 1883.

For Form No. 49, see H. & L. Forms, No. 478.

The Rules relating to third party procedure provide machinery for giving effect to sec. 57 (7) of the Act, supra, p. 55.

The third party procedure as provided by the Rules, applies only to actions commenced by writ, not to summary proceedings such as an originating summons in England: Re Wilson, Atty-Gen. v. Woodall, 45 Ch. D. 266; 63 L. T. 100; nor to proceedings commenced in Ontario under Rules 938 to 943, or 944-957.

Scope of the Rules.

Scope of the Rules.—By Rules 186 and 187, plaintiffs are given the fullest liberty to join as defendants all persons against whom, jointly, severally, or in the alternative, they may jointly, severally, or in the alternative claim relief. By sec. 57 (7) of the Act, in furtherance of one of the main objects of the Legislature, namely, to have the claims of all persons interested in the subject of the litigation disposed of in the same action, a further and entirely new Rule 209. jurisdiction was conferred upon the Court. By that section a defendant to an action may obtain (1) against a plaintiff—any relief that might be granted in an independent suit by the same defendant against the same plaintiff; (2) against (a) a co-defendant, or (b) any other person—any relief relating to, or in connection with, the original subject of litigation which might be granted in an independent suit by such defendant against such co-defendant or other person.

The mode in which a defendant may obtain the relief above mentioned against a plaintiff is by counterclaim, and is treated of hereafter: Rules 251, et seq.

By a counterclaim, to a certain extent, complete relief may be obtained against a co-defendant, or a third person not originally a party: Rules 251-253; but no counterclaim can be set up which does not seek relief against a plaintiff: see notes to Rule 251.

The Rules as at present framed however, do not provide means to give a defendant the full benefit of the remaining provisions of sec. 57 (7) of the Act. The third party procedure provided by them prescribes the procedure, so far as has at present been thought expedient, for giving a defendant (whether so in an action or a counterclaim: see Leri v. Anglo-Continental, &c., 1902, 2 K. B. 481; 86 L. J. 857), relief against a co-defendant, or any other person, as contemplated by section 57 (7) of the Act.

The Rules which have been made since the introduction of the former Judicature Act in 1881, shew a gradual reduction of the scope of Rules third party procedure: see H. & L. Jud. Act. 2nd ed., p. 371.

In June, 1894, the former Rules on the subject of third parties were repealed and the English Rules (1883) R. 170, et seq., were adopted, by which the third party procedure was confined to cases of contribution and indemnity only: see H. & L. Jud. Act. 2nd ed., 371.

The present Rules follow in the main the Ontario Rules of 1894, ^{Present} and the Eng. Rules of 1883, but extend third party procedure to ^{Rules.} cases of claims for "other relief over" in addition to contribution and indemnity. They in effect provide that:

(1) Third party procedure is confined to claims for (a) contribution from, (b) indemnity from, and (c) other relief over against a third party.

(2) Contribution, indemnity, or other relief over, may be enforced against a co-defendant as well as a person not originally a party.

(3) Final judgment may be given between a defendant and a third party, or between a defendant and a co-defendant in the same proceedings, without the bringing of a subsequent action.

(4) The third party procedure applies not only to the parties to the action, but also to parties to a counterclaim, who may also avail themselves of it: see Leri v. Anglo-Continental, supra.

Contribution.—The right to contribution is an equitable right ^{Contribution} arising where two or more persons are subject to a common liability other than for a fraud or other wilful tort: see Johnson v. Wild, 44 Ch. D. 146.

Except in cases of liability for fraud or other wilful tort, the right exists between trustees: Butler v. Butler, 14 Ch. D. 329; Re Fyton, 45 Ch. D. 458; quasi trustees, such as directors: Ramskill v.

Rule 209. Edwards, 31 Ch. D. 100; co-trustees: Lever v. Pearce, W. N. 1888 105; co-partners or co-adventurers in partnership: McLaren v. Marks, 10 P. R. 451; Loive v. Dixon, 16 Q. B. D. 455; co-sureties: Moorhouse v. Kidd, 28 Ont. 35; affirmed in C. A., 18 C. L. T. 235; 34 C. L. J. 381.

There is no right to contribution between tortfeasors, knowingly committing the wrong: Atty-General v. Wilson, Cr. & Ph. 1; Argard v. Bromley, 1 V. & B. 117; Power v. Hocky, 19 W. R. 916; Merryweather v. Nison, 8 T. R. 186; and per Lord Herschell, Palmer v. Wick, 1894, A. C. 318; see also The Englishman, 43 W. R. 670; Pollock on Torts (5th ed.), 191; but a trustee committing a breach of trust, at the request, or instigation, or with the consent in writing, of his cestui que trust, is in some cases entitled to be indemnified out of the share in the trust estate of such cestui que trust; see R. S. O. c. 129, s. 30.

An assignee of a lessee as to part of the land leased who had paid the whole of the rent due by the lessee, was held not entitled to contribution from the assignee of the lessee of the remaining part of the land, there being an independent and not a common liability: Johnson v. Wild, supra; but semble, in such a case relief over might properly be claimed under this Rule.

Where a surviving executor is sued for an account, and he seeks contribution against the representatives of the deceased executor, he cannot insist on the plaintiff making such representatives defendants, but he may proceed against them as third parties under this Rule: Re Harrison, 1891, 2 Ch. 349; 64 L. T. 442.

As to contribution between co-defendants, see notes to Rule 215.

Indemnity. Indemnity.—Indemnity arises where the defendant sued by the plaintiff, though liable to the plaintiff, may have a right to indemnity over against a third party whom the plaintiff could not sue.

The right to indemnity within the English Rules must be one arising out of a contract for indemnity as such, expressed, or implied: Speller v. Bristol Steam Navigation Co., 13 Q. B. D. 96, where it was held that a warranty of seaworthiness of a vessel hired was no such contract for indemnity against a claim for damages for the injury of plaintiff's goods in the vessel by reason of its not being seaworthy. So in an action for trespass by cutting timber, defendants justifying their acts under an agreement with third parties from whom the defendants purchased the timber, would not seem to be entitled to bring in the third parties and claim indemnity, under the English Rule, the damages not being necessarily the same, and semble, there would not be a case for relief over within the Ontario Rule; see Parent v. Cook, 2 O. L. R. 712; 3 O. L. R. 350. See also The Jacob Christensen, 1895, P. 281, and Payne v. Caughell, 17 P. R. 39.

Cases where there is no such contract, but merely a right to damages against the third party if the plaintiff succeeds in recovering from defendant, are not within the English Rules: Birmingham Land Co. v. L. & N. W. Railway Co., 34 Ch. D. 261; Pontifer v. Foord, 12 Q. B. D. 152; Payne v. Caughell, 17 P. R. 39; and see Wilson v. Boulter, 18 P. R. 107; Windsor, &c., v. Highland Park, 19 P. R. 130; Miller v. Sarnia Gas Co., 2 O. L. R. 546; but may sometimes be cases of "other relief over" within the Ontario Rule 209.

Cases of an express contract for indemnity will present no difficulty; but an express contract may be met by a defence that the claim is not within the contract: see Page v. Midland, 95 L. T. Jour. 252, following Hunt v. White, 37 L. J. Ch. 326. Rule 209
Express contract.

In Hall v. Sim, 10 Times, 463, in an action against the committee of a club, they were held entitled to bring in some of the members, under a rule of the club which provided that the committee of the club was to be indemnified by the members.

A covenant by the assignee of a lease to indemnify the assignor against liability on the covenants in the lease was enforced by third party proceedings: Gooch v. Clutterbuck, 1890, 2 Q. B. 148; 81 L. T. 9. Resonance not indemnity under rule Nelson v. Simpson 1905 2 K.B. 261

An implied right of indemnity may arise in the case of principal and agent: see Langley v. Law Society of U. C., 3 O. L. R. 245; Birmingham v. London & N. W. Railway, 34 Ch. D., at p. 277; of acts done at request: ib.; and Carshore v. N. E. Railway Co., 23 (Ch. D.) 344; of identical contracts (e.g., for supply of goods with a warranty), where the second contract (with a similar warranty), is entered into with knowledge of the first: see Birmingham v. London, 34 Ch. D. p. 277; also Jacobs v. Brown, W. N. 1884, 23; Hart v. Brown, 28 Sol. Jour. 577; Steel v. Dixon, W. N. 1880, 113; 42 L. T. 765; 28 W. R. 796; also between trustees and their cestui que trust concurring in a breach of trust: Sawyer v. Sawyer, 28 Ch. D. 595; Re Holt, 1897, 2 Ch. 525; R. S. O. c. 129, s. 30; Re Salmon, Priest v. Uppleby, 42 Ch. D. 351. (In the last case, however, there seems to have been an express contract for indemnity). There is no right of indemnity on the part of a passive trustee for a breach of trust by the acting trustee, except under special circumstances, as where the acting trustee is solicitor for the trust, or has derived personal benefit from the breach of trust: Bahin v. Hughes, 31 Ch. D. 390; Blyth v. Fladgate, 1891, 1 Ch. 337; all are equally liable to the c. q. t.: Concper v. Stoneham, 68 L. T. 18. Implied contract.

Where an action was brought against a surviving trustee for recovery of a trust fund, lost by misapplication thereof by a deceased trustee, a solicitor, it was held that the partners of the deceased solicitor could not be brought in as third parties on a claim of defendant to be indemnified by them, the right of the defendant to recover from the surviving partners a sum equal to the lost trust fund being an independent right not depending on the liability of the defendant: Wynne v. Tempest, 1897, 1 Ch. 110; see also Campbell v. Farley, 18 P. R. 97.

As to claims against third persons for indemnity against liability for damages arising out of negligence of the third persons as contractors, see McCann v. Toronto, 28 Ont. 650.

The right to indemnity may have arisen either before, or after, the commencement of the action: Edison v. Holland, 33 Ch. D. 497; see also Edison v. Jablockhoff, 35 W. R. 178.

As to the difference between a guaranty and a contract of indemnity, see Guild v. Conrad, 1894, 2 Q. B. 885; 71 L. T. 140; Beattie v. Dinnick, 27 Ont. 285.

Other Relief Over.—This is a new class of case provided for in Ont.; but not under Eng. (1883) R. 170. It arises under the over-words in brackets which are restored from J. A. Rule 108 (repealed by the Rules of 23 June, 1894).

Rule 206.

The amendment introduced by the present Rule does not restore the whole of the practice as it was under the original J. A. Rules 107, 108, following Eng. Rules of 1875, O. 16, r. 17. That part of the original J. A. Rule enabling a "common question in the action to be determined which under the original J. A. Rules presented the greatest difficulties, (see Holmsted & Langton, Jud. Act, 1st ed., 1890, p. 364), remains repealed.

The object of the present Rules is probably to extend the third party procedure to cases where if a defendant is held to be liable to the plaintiff he has a right of action (to recover the amount for which he may be liable to the plaintiff: see Miller v. Sarnia Gas Co., 2 O. L. R. 546), against another person whether by way of contribution or indemnity, or as damages under an independent contract, or otherwise; and relief against a third party can probably now be obtained in Ontario in cases in which it could not be obtained under the Eng. Rules, or the former Ont. Rules which follow them: see for example Constantine v. Warden, 44 W. R. 162; 73 L. T. 450; 12 Times, 33, where a defendant who became liable in consequence of a failure to unload a ship pursuant to a charter party, was held not entitled to claim over against a third party, a purchaser of the cargo from the defendant under an agreement by which he was liable to the defendant for "any loss, demurrage or expenses arising therefrom"; and see The Jacob Christensen, 1895, P. 281. But the scope of the Rules in cases of "relief over" cannot yet be said to be at all well defined. A tendency to restrict the scope is rather indicated in Miller v. Sarnia Gas Co., 2 O. L. R. 546, where it was said that the third party procedure is only applicable where a defendant, if liable to the plaintiff, is entitled to recover against the third party the very damages which the plaintiff seeks to recover against him. It would seem that an independent right, which may be enforced before defendant is damaged, and whether he is damaged or not, is not a right to either indemnity or relief over: see Wynne v. Tempest, 1897, 1 Ch. 119; 75 L. T. 624; supra, p. 391; Campbell v. Farley, 18 P. R. 97; see also Birmingham v. L. & N. W. Ry. Co., 34 Ch. D. 261; Moore v. Death, 16 P. R. 296.

One object of the Rules is to prevent the same question, common as between the plaintiff and defendant, and the defendant and the third party, from being tried on different occasions and in different forums: Wilson v. Boulter, 18 P. R. 107; but where damages, if recoverable by defendants, would be assessed upon a different principle from those of the plaintiff, there is no such identical question and no case for relief over: Ib.; see also Parent v. Cook, 2 O. L. R. 712; 3 O. L. R. 350; Pontifex v. Foord, 12 Q. B. D. 152; Catton v. Bennett, 26 Ch. D. 161.

In an action for conversion of goods, the defendant may bring in the party who sold him the goods as a third party against whom he is entitled to relief over: Confederation Life Association v. Labatt, (No. 2), 18 P. R. 266.

Where the plaintiff claimed a balance due to him for hire of a race track, and the defendants alleged an agreement by a Ferry Company to pay $15 per day to defendants while the races were being carried on, it was held that defendants had no right to contribution or indemnity, or any relief over against the Ferry Company, in respect to the plaintiff's claim for rent: Windsor Fair Grounds v. Highland Park Club, 19 P. R. 130.

In an action by an employee in a factory for damages for injuries Rule 209. occasioned by alleged negligence, in that a retort by which the injury was caused was defective and without a safety valve, a third party notice given by defendant to the manufacturers of the retort was set aside, the retort appearing to have been manufactured under a written contract containing no warranty, and providing that the defendants were to put in their own fittings, including the safety valve: Wilson v. Boulter, 18 P. R. 107.

The Rules do not, and even the original Rule did not enable a defendant to bring in a third party in an action for specific performance by a vendor so as to have it determined between plaintiff and defendant, whether the third party has a title to the whole or part of the land: Begg v. Ellison, 14 P. R. 384.

Other Cases.—in certain special cases by statute, relief over other cases, against a third party may be obtained by a defendant. By R. S. O. c. 68, s. 17, in actions for libel against newspapers, the defendant may have added as a co-defendant and claim relief over against him, any person by whom the alleged libel was communicated in writing, Libel, but not where the communication was anonymous or known to be untrue. By the Municipal Act, R. S. O. c. 223, s. 600, a municipal corporation sued for damages sustained by reason of any obstruction, excavation or opening in or on a highway or bridge, made, left or maintained by any person or corporation, may have such other person or corporation added as a defendant or third party: see also Erdmon v. Walkerton, 15 P. R. 12; Stillwoy v. Toronto, 20 Ont. 98; Homewood v. Hamilton, 1 O. L. R. 266. Obstruction, etc., of highways.

Third Party Procedure—General Principles.—If a third party is a necessary party to the action as regards the plaintiff, the defendant ought to have him added as a defendant and not as a third party under this Rule: see Pilley v. Robinson, 20 Q. B. D. 155, and other cases in notes to Rule 200; and see Bank of Commerce v. Bank of B. N. A., 20 C. L. J. 136; 4 C. L. T. 200.

Leave to serve a notice was refused where defendant claimed indemnity from three persons jointly, viz.: a plaintiff, a defendant and a third person: Re Gilson, 1894, 2 Ch. 92.

Whether the claim which the defendant has against the third party, need not be identical or co-extensive with the plaintiff's claim against the defendant himself, quære: see Sironasco Co. v. Duncan, 45 L. J. Q. B. 640; 1 Q. B. D. 649, and Miller v. Sarnia, 2 O. L. R. 546.

"The object of the Act was not only to prevent the same question being litigated twice, but to obviate the scandal which sometimes arose by the same question being differently decided by different juries": Benecke v. Frost, 1 Q. B. D. 422, per Blackburn, L.J.; see also Re Collie, 2 Ch. D. 51.

A right to indemnity arising after action brought, entitles a defendant to notify a third party: Edison & Swan Co. v. Holland, 33 Ch. D. 497.

The third parties can only be joined before trial: Lockie v. Tenant, 5 Ont. 52, and will not be allowed to be brought in, if the plaintiff will be prejudiced: Bowser v. Hartley, 1 Q. B. D. 652; Wye Valley Ry. Co. v. Howes, 16 Ch. D. 489; see also Sironasco, etc., v. Duncan, 1 Q. B. D. 648-9, and Rule 216; Hutchinson v. Colorado

Rule 209. United Mining Co., W. N. 1884, 40; Mead v. Etobicoke, 13 P. R. 341.

Married woman as third party.

A married woman may be brought in as a third party if a separate action might be brought against her: Gloucestershire Banking Co. v. Philipps, 12 Q. B. D. 533; Jones v. Elderton, W. N. 1884, 39.

Third party notice by a plaintiff counter-claimed against.

Where a defendant in an action counterclaims against a plaintiff, the plaintiff may serve a third party notice on a person against whom he claims contribution or indemnity in respect of the counter-claim: Levi v. Anglo Continental, etc., 1902, 2 K. B. 481.

See notes to Rule 210, et seq.

Counter-claim by third party.

A third party cannot counterclaim against the plaintiff: Eden v. Weardale, 28 Ch. D. 333; but it would seem that he may against the defendant who brings him in: ib. 338; 54 L. J. Chy. 384; Borough v. James, W. N. 1884, 32.

A third party is not a person served with notice of proceedings within the definition of "defendant" in sec. 2 of the Act: but by an order giving directions under Rule 213, he may be placed in the same position as a defendant: Eden v. Weardale, 28 Ch. D. 338; 35 Ch. D. 287.

Replevin.

The Rules relating to third party procedure apply in an action of replevin: Bradley v. Clarke, 19 C. L. J. 80; 9 P. R. 410.

Counter-claim not proper to raise claim for relief against co-defendants.

Where a defendant makes a claim against a co-defendant for indemnity or other relief, his proper course is to proceed under Rules 209 and 215, and not by counterclaim: Furness v. Booth, 4 Ch. D. 586. The contrary ruling of V.-C. Hall in Shepherd v. Beane, 2 Ch. D. 223 (an earlier case), has not been followed, and was subsequently disapproved of by the same Judge in Harris v. Gamble, 6 Ch. D. 748. The defendant might formerly raise a question against a co-defendant by a pleading which also stated a defence against a plaintiff; but such pleading is not a counterclaim, and should not be so entitled: Furness v. Booth, supra. It would seem, however, that this cannot now be done; if a defendant claims relief over against a co-defendant he must now proceed under Rule 215.

Fourth, etc. parties.

In Walker v. Balfour, 25 W. R. 511, it was held that a third party brought in under Rule 209, was not entitled under that Rule to have any other person against whom he has a claim, added; but in Fowler v. Knoop, 36 L. T. 219; W. N. 1877, 68, the third party against whom indemnity was claimed, was allowed under the concluding words of section 57, sub-section 7, of the Act to bring in a fourth party, from whom he claimed indemnity upon the same grounds upon which it was claimed from him. Perhaps the point cannot yet be considered as settled: see Yorkshire Waggon Co. v. Newport, etc., 5 Q. B. D. 268; Witham v. Vane, W. N. 1880, 108.

Practice.—The mode of procedure is provided by Rules 209, et seq. A defendant is to obtain leave to serve, and is then to serve a notice on the third party: Rule 209. The latter must enter an appearance if he intends to contest the plaintiff's claim as against the defendant who served the notice, or such defendant's claim to indemnity, contribution, or relief over. If he does not appear he is bound by the decision both as to the plaintiff's claim against the defendant, and the defendant's claim for indemnity contribution, or relief over: Rule 210. If he appears, before anything further can be done in respect of the claim to contribution, etc., directions must be obtained as to the extent to which, and the mode in which, the claim is to be determined: Rule 213.

Motion for Leave to serve Third Party Notice.—Leave must be obtained to issue the notice for service on a person not already a party, but leave is not necessary to serve a co-defendant with a third party notice under Rule 215; see notes to that Rule. An application for leave may be made ex parte unless the Judge or officer applied to considers notice to be necessary. This is the practice of the Q. B. D. in England: Ann. Pract. 1905, p. 195. If notice of motion is given it should be served on the plaintiff, but not on the third party: Wye Valley v. Hawes, 16 Ch. D. 489; Edison v. Holland, 33 Ch. D. 497; and see Rules 355-357, 348.

The application should be made as soon as the statement of claim is delivered, and before the time for putting in a defence has expired, inasmuch as the notice, if allowed, must be served on the third party within the time for delivering the defence: Rule 209; but see Re Gilson, 1894, 2 Ch. 92.

A notice which was too late, having been served after the pleadings were closed, and the action entered for trial, was under the circumstances not allowed to be made good by the granting of an extension of time, and was set aside on the application of the third party: Parent v. Cook, 2 O. L. R. 709; 3 O. L. R. 350.

Even under the former Rules such an application would not be entertained after the close of the pleadings: see Lockie v. Tennant, 5 Ont. 52; Birmingham, etc., v. L. & N. W. Ry., 56 L. T. 702; Associated H. Co. v. Whichcord, 8 Ch. D. 457; and it would seem to be doubtful whether after judgment there is jurisdiction, on an appeal, to add a third party by amendment: see Edison v. Holland, 41 Ch. D. 28; or to allow a defendant to claim relief against a co-defendant: Boulthbee v. Cochrane, 17 P. R. 9.

Evidence in Support of Application.—The motion should be on affidavit shewing the state of the action, the nature of the plaintiff's claim, and the circumstances under which the right to indemnity, contribution, or relief over, is claimed. The defendant must make out a prima facie case; it is not sufficient merely to state that he claims contribution, etc., etc.: Birmingham v. L. & N. W. Ry., supra; but the Court in giving leave to issue a notice, does not decide that the claim is a valid one, but merely that a prima facie case has been made for the relief claimed by the defendant against the third party: Carshore v. N. E. Railway Co., 29 Ch. D. 344; Edison v. Holland, 33 Ch. D. 497; Beynon v. Godden, 4 Ex. D. 247.

Service of Notice.—The notice to the third party is to be served according to the Rules relating to the service of writs of summons: Rule 209. Such notice may therefore be served out of the jurisdiction under Rule 162; but only where, if it were a writ, it would be capable of being so served; and in determining whether the notice could be so served, if it were a writ the Court will not have regard to the plaintiff's claim, but will only consider the defendant's claim actually made in the notice: McCheane v. Gyles, 50 W. R. 376; 1902, 1 Ch. 287; 86 L. T. 1; see notes to Rule 162, and Swansea Shipping Co. v. Duncan, 1 Q. B. D. 644; Dubout v. Macpherson, 23 Q. B. D. 340. In such case the time for appearance (eight days) mentioned in Rule 210 will not be sufficient; and in Swansea, etc., v. Duncan, supra, this was used as an argument that the enactments as to notice to third parties were not intended to apply to persons out of the jurisdiction. The answer given by the Master of the Rolls Service of notice out of jurisdiction.

Rule 210. to this objection was, that the order giving leave to serve the notice out of the jurisdiction is to name such a time for appearance as the necessity of the case as to time and place requires: see Rule 164, and the Rule allowing eight days only must be taken to be modified accordingly.

Third party, necessary.

310. If a person not a party to the action, who is served as mentioned in Rule 209 (hereinafter called the third party) desires to dispute the plaintiff's claim in the action as against the defendant on whose behalf the notice has been given, or his own liability to the defendant, he shall enter an appearance in the action within eight days from the service of the notice, and in default of his so doing, he shall be deemed to admit the validity of the judgment obtained (whether by consent or otherwise) against such defendant, and his own liability to contribute or indemnify, or as may be, to the extent claimed in the third party notice. Provided always that a person so served and failing to appear, may apply to the Court or a Judge for leave to appear, and such leave may be given upon such terms, if any, as may seem just. Rules 23rd June, 1894. 1313 (329.)

Substantially the same as Eng. (1883) R. 171, except that it is co-extensive with Rule 209, and so applies to cases of "other relief over" as well as of contribution and indemnity.

The notice Form No. 49, in the Appendix to the Rules, should in cases of "other relief over" be slightly modified in its last paragraph. Instead of the words "your own liability to contribute or indemnify," there should be stated appropriately the liability to which it is claimed that the third party is subject. See H. & L. Forms No. 478.

As to the time for entering appearance in the case of a third party out of the jurisdiction, see note to Rule 209, "Service of notice."

Appearance
by third party served under Rule
209.

Appearance indicates a desire "to dispute the plaintiff's claim in the action, as against the defendant, on whose behalf the notice has been given, or his own liability to the defendant." When a motion is afterwards made under Rule 213 for directions, the third party will state whether he admits his own liability to the defendant, and whether he wishes to dispute the plaintiff's claim, and the extent to which he will be allowed to take part in the action will be defined accordingly.

Where the third party appears, nothing more can be done in regard to the claim for contribution, etc., without an application under Rule 213 for directions as to subsequent proceedings: see notes to that Rule.

By non-appearance the third party is taken to admit the validity of any judgment obtained against the defendant who brought him in, and his own liability to the extent of the claim made against him by the third party notice. As to judgment against him in such case, see Rules 211, 212.

Motion to Set Aside Notice.—The third party may move to set aside the notice served upon him: Bencke v. Front, 1 Q. B. D. 429; Bower v. Hartley, 1b. 652; Harwell v. London Gen. Omnibus Co., 2 Ex. D. 305; and semble, he generally should take that course and not wait until a motion for directions is made under Rule 213: see Holden v. G. T. R., 2 O. L. R. 421, where it was said that the third party should appeal from the order allowing him to be served. Probably the proper test is whether the applicant is prepared to rely solely on the affidavits and papers on which the order was made, if he is, then he should appeal, if, on the other hand, it is necessary for him to adduce further evidence on the motion, then the application should be to set aside the order.

Rule 211.

Motion to set aside notice.

In England a conditional appearance may be entered by a third party who intends to move to set aside a notice served on him: see Eng. (1883) R. 100; Pleasants v. E. Derham, 47 L. T. 439; Nelson v. Pastorino, 49 L. T. 544; but in Ontario a conditional appearance cannot be entered except by leave of the Court or a Judge: Rule 173; and it has now been decided in Ontario, that the third party should not appear as a preliminary to moving to set aside the notice: Windsor v. Highland Park, 19 P. R. 130.

Appearance whether necessary.

Notice of an application to set aside the notice must of course be given to the defendant who served the notice, and may also properly be given to the plaintiff, who is interested in seeing that no question is introduced into the litigation which may prejudice him: see Bower v. Hartley, 1 Q. B. D. 652; Wyo Valley Ry. Co. v. Hawes, 16 Ch. D. 489; Rule 333.

Notice to plaintiff.

If the defendant who gave the notice cannot, from the nature of the case, become entitled to any remedy or relief over against the third party, the service will be set aside: Horwell v. London General Omnibus Co., 2 Ex. D. 365; as where it was made to appear that the contract under which indemnity was claimed did not apply to the state of facts appearing in the pleadings between the plaintiff and defendant: Ferguson v. Toronto, 14 P. R. 358. See also Rice v. Alliance, etc., 12 L. R. Ir. 172; Johnson v. Wild, 44 Ch. D. 146; Birmingham, etc. v. L. & N. W. Ry., 34 Ch. D. 261; Hammond v. Bussey, 20 Q. B. D. 97; Pontifex v. Foord, 12 Q. B. D. 152; Cotton v. Bennett, 26 Ch. D. 161; Moore v. Death, 16 P. R. 296.

Order.

211. Where the third party makes default in entering an appearance, the defendant giving the notice, in case he suffers judgment by default, shall be entitled at any time, after satisfaction of the judgment against himself, or before such satisfaction, by leave of the Court or a Judge, to enter judgment against the third party to the extent of the contribution, indemnity [or relief over] claimed in the third party notice; but the Court or Judge may set aside or vary such judgment upon such terms as may seem just. Rules 23rd June, 1894, 1313 (330).

Third party judgment against, how obtained.

Substantially the same as Eng. (1883) R. 172, except the words in brackets.

Judgment by default may be signed without order by defendant against a third party who has failed to appear, upon proof of satisfaction of the judgment against himself and proof of the third party's default.

Rules Judgment for costs can probably not be signed against the third party without an order under Rule 214.

For proof of default in entering of appearance, see Rule 374. Judgment can only be signed by leave before satisfaction, by defendant, of the judgment against himself. Proper terms can then be imposed. A reasonable term may sometimes be that the amount payable by the third party be paid into Court: see Cunningham v. Lyster, 13 Gr. 575; Boyd v. Johnston, 20 Ont. 404; Mewburn v. Mackelcan, 10 Ont. App. 729.

This Rule will probably not affect the decisions in which it was held that a person entitled to indemnity might obtain judgment before he has actually paid anything to the person to whom he is liable: see English and Scottish Trust Co. v. Flatau, 38 W. R. 938; Underhay v. Read, 1b., 75; Ottendennen v. Grant, 10 P. R. 593; Cunningham v. Lyster, supra; Boyd v. Johnston, supra; Mewburn v. Mackelcan, supra, and Federal Bank v. Harrison, 10 P. R. 271.

Third party judgment against, how obtained

212. Where a third party makes default in entering an appearance, if the action is tried and results in favour of the plaintiff, the Judge who tries the action may, at or after the trial, direct such judgment as the nature of the case may require to be entered for the defendant, giving the notice against the third party; but execution thereon shall not be issued without leave of the Judge, until after satisfaction by such defendant of the judgment against him. And if the action is finally decided in the plaintiff's favour, otherwise than by trial, the Court or a Judge may, on motion, direct such judgment as the nature of the case may require, to be entered for the defendant giving the notice, against the third party, at any time, after satisfaction by the defendant of the amount recovered by the plaintiff against him. Rules 23rd June, 1894, 1313 (331).

In substance the same as Eng. (1883) R. 173. See notes to Rule 211.

In cases coming within the principle of Cunningham v. Lyster, Boyd v. Johnston, and Mewburn v. Mackelcan, supra, execution will probably be allowed to issue before payment by the defendant, for the purpose of compelling the third party to pay the amount for which he is found liable into Court: but see Sutherland v. Webster, 21 Ont. App. 228.

Defendant notifying third party may apply for directions.

213.—(1) Where the third party appears pursuant to the third party notice, the defendant giving the notice may apply for directions, and the Court or a Judge, if satisfied that there is a question proper to be tried as to liability of the third party, in whole or in part, may order the question of such liability, as between the third party and the defendant giving the notice, to be tried in such manner at or after the trial of the action, as may seem proper; and, if not so satisfied, may direct such judgment as the nature of the case may require, to be entered in favour of the defend- Rule 213.

ant giving the notice against the third party.

(2) The Court or a Judge upon the application may, if Order to be made on such application.
it shall appear desirable to do so, give the third party liberty to defend the action, upon such terms as may be just, or to appear at the trial and take such part therein as may seem proper, and generally may order such proceedings to be taken, documents to be delivered, or amendments to be made, and give such directions as may appear proper for having the question most conveniently determined, and as to the mode and extent in or to which the third party shall be bound or made liable by the judgment in the action. Rules 23 June, 1894, 1313 (332 and a).

Substantially the same as Eng. (1883) Rs. 174 and 175.

"Court or Judge," these words confer jurisdiction on the Master in Chambers and Local Judges: see Rule 6.

Application for Directions.—After appearance by a third party or co-defendant against whom relief is claimed (Pontifex v. Foord, 12 Q. B. D. 152), before the trial can be had of any issue raised against him, the directions of the Court or Judge must be obtained under this Rule as to the extent to which the third party is to take part in the action, and how the question between the defendant and the third party or co-defendant is to be determined: Piller v. Roberts, 21 Ch. D. 198; Flower v. Todd, W. N. 1884, 47; Burke v. Pittman, 12 P. R. 662; Tritton v. Bankart, 35 W. R. 474. Without an order under this Rule the Court at the trial will not entertain the question raised by the third party notice: Ib., and the third party is not entitled to take any part in the trial and is not entitled to costs: Gibb v. Camden, 10 P. R. 316. Directions as to procedure

This application may sometimes be the first opportunity the plaintiff has of considering how the introduction of the third party will affect him, and notice of the motion must of course be given to him: see Bower v. Martley, 1 Q. B. D. 652; Wye Valley, etc., v. Haynes, 16 Ch. D. 489; Swansea, etc., v. Duncan, 1 Q. B. D. 648-9; Finlay v. Scott, W. N. 1884, 8.

In general the motion will be made, as the Rule provides, by the party giving the notice; but an application seems to have been made by the third party in Piller v. Roberts, 21 Ch. D. 198.

The words "at or after the trial of the action," have been construed as meaning that any question between the plaintiff and the defendant should be tried at the trial between the plaintiff and the defendant, or that directions should then be given as to further proceedings: Caster v. Chapman, W. N. 1884, 31. It was there said that it was not intended that an action should go to trial between defendant and third party after the question between the plaintiff and defendant had been determined. The intention of the Rules is that a third party is, if he desires it, to have an opportunity to contest the plaintiff's claim, as well as his liability to the defendant who brings him in; and therefore directions must be obtained at a stage when it is possible that there may still be a trial between plaintiff Time for trial of question against the third party.

Rule 212. and defendant. After judgment has been obtained against the defendant, a Judge cannot give directions as to the trial of the question of the liability of the third party, who has been brought in; Rich v. Barrett, 28 Sol. Jour. 513, and this seems to be still the rule.

For the decisions under the former Rules: see II. & L. Jud. Act, 2nd ed., p. 381.

Effect of settlement of action
before trial.

Where after a third party had been brought in and directions were given as to trial, the action was settled as between the plaintiff and defendant, it was held that the defendant could not proceed to trial against the third party, and the claim of defendant against the third party was dismissed with costs, without prejudice to the defendant's bringing an action against him: Wheeler v. Cornwall, 4 O. L. R. 120.

Effect of going to trial without directions.

If the case proceeds to trial, between the original parties, without obtaining directions under this Rule as to a third party who has appeared, semble, the third party proceedings thereby become abortive, and no subsequent order can be made giving the defendant any relief against such third party, but he would have to proceed against him by a separate action.

Order on motion for directions.

The Court or Judge may give such directions as may be proper for having the question in which the third party is interested determined, subject always to the condition that the plaintiff must not be prejudiced or unreasonably delayed; see Rule 216, and Carshore v. N. E. Ry. Co., 29 Ch. D. 346; or looking at the circumstances, and notwithstanding that the third party may not have moved to discharge the service of the notice upon him, the Court or Judge may determine that it is not a proper case for citing a third party, or that the giving of any directions will prejudice or delay the plaintiff and may therefore refuse to give any: Schneider v. Batt, 44 L. T. 142; 8 Q. B. D. 101; Pontifer v. Foord, 12 Q. B. D. 152; see Burser v. Hurlley, 1 Q. B. D. 652; Associated Home Co. v. Whitchord, 8 Ch. D. 457; in which case the third party must be considered as dismissed from the action: Schneider v. Batt, 8 Q. B. D. 701; 45 L. T. 370; 50 L. J. Q. B. 525; 30 W. R. 420; 18 C. L. J. 56; see Barter v. France, 1895, 1 Q. B. 591; or may dismiss the third party from the action without any motion for that purpose by the third party: Scripture v. Keilly, 14 P. R. 249.

Where an application for directions involves a preliminary question, as to whether there is a right to indemnity, etc., about which there is great doubt, that doubt may sometimes be a sufficient ground for refusing to give directions as to such cases; see Barter v. France, 1895, 1 Q. B. 455, 591; 72 L. T. 183; and see where the claim set up is really and properly the subject of a counter-claim: Moore v. Deeth, 16 P. R. 296; but see Holden v. G. T. R., infra.

Upon the application for directions, none will be given for the trial of the question between the defendant and the third party, unless the Judge or officer is satisfied that there is a proper question to be tried. If satisfied that the case is one for contribution, indemnity, or other relief over, but that there is no disputed question to be tried, he may give judgment against the third party: Gloucestershire, etc., v. Phillips, 12 Q. B. D. 536; and see cases cited under Rule 616; or if the case is not a proper one for the application of the third party procedure, he may make no order for trial.

Directions were given where it was desirable that the question of the defendant's liability to the plaintiff should be established in such a way as to be binding on the third parties, although all matters in Rule 213. dispute between the defendant and the third parties would not be determined in the action; and the questions between the defendant and the third party were ordered to be tried after the trial of the action: Holden v. G. T. R., 2 O. L. R. 421, and see Christie v. Toronto, 15 P. R. 415.

Where a co-defendant is served with a notice claiming relief under Rule 215, it has been held that he cannot properly move to set it aside, because there is no order giving leave to issue it to be appealed from: Baxter v. France, 1895, 1 Q. B. p. 458; Holden v. G. T. Ry. Co., 2 O. L. R. p. 423; and that on the motion for directions under this Rule the question of the propriety of serving the notice may be raised: Id.

Refusal of Motion.—Where the motion for directions under this Rule is refused, that is equivalent to a dismissal of the third party refused from the proceedings: Baxter v. France, supra; Schneider v. Butt, 8 Q. B. D. 701; 45 L. T. 370; and see Scripture v. Reilly, 14 P. R. 249.

Application Granted.—Where the application is rightly made, the Directions third party, on the return of the motion, should decide whether or not he admits his liability to the defendant, and whether or not he desires to dispute the plaintiff's claim against the defendant. If he admits that, in the event of the plaintiff's succeeding, he is liable to the defendant, he may be allowed to defend, or to actively assist in resisting the plaintiff's claim, if he so desires: Pearson v. Lane, W. N. 1875, 248; Coles v. Civil Service, 26 Ch. D. 520.

If the third party does not admit his liability, that question may be ordered to be determined at the trial under Rule 213: Flower v. Todd, W. N. 1884, 47; 28 Sol. Jour. 301; see also Callender v. Wallingford, 53 L. J. Q. B. 509; Blare v. Ashby, 42 Ch. D. 682; or after the trial: Holden v. G. T. R., supra; and if he desires so to do, he may be allowed to put in a defence to the plaintiff's claim, and take such part in the proceedings as seems right under the circumstances of the case: Coles v. Civil Service, supra; see form of order in that case, and in Seton on Decrees, 5th Ed., p. 23, also Barton v. L. & N. W. Ry. Co., 38 Ch. D. 144; Byrne v. Brown, 22 Q. B. D. 657; 60 L. T. 651; Christie v. Toronto, 15 P. R. 415.

If the pleadings are closed as regards the plaintiff and defendant at the time the application for directions is made, that fact should be mentioned to the Court, so that special directions as to pleading and notice of trial may be given. Where this was not done, and the action had been previously set down for trial, and notice of trial given by the plaintiff, an order made on the application for directions allowing a third party to defend, and for the trial of the issue between the defendant and the third party at the trial, and the delivery of the defence by the third party, were held to have the effect of re-opening the pleadings, making it necessary for the plaintiff to make up a new record, including the defence of the third party, to enter the case again, and to give notice of trial to the defendant and to the third party: Confederation Life, etc., v. Labatt, 18 P. R. 238.

Examples of Directions.—In an action by the holders of a bill, Examples. indemnity as to part was claimed by the acceptors from the drawer, on the ground that the consideration had in part failed; the drawer

Rule 213. denied failure of consideration; an order was made substituting the drawer for the plaintiff, and allowing him to sue on the bill, upon the acceptor's undertaking to pay the amount not in dispute, and the drawer's paying to the plaintiff the balance in dispute: National Provincial Bank of England v. Bradley Bridge, etc., Co., W. N. 1876, 63; 2 Charl. Ch. Ca. 30.

A. contracted to sell goods to B. with a warranty, and himself bought the goods from C. stipulating for a similar warranty. B. sued A. for breach of warranty. It was held that C. was properly brought in, and directions were given for trial of the liability of C. to indemnify A.: Hart v. Brown, 28 Sol. Jour. 577.

Third parties admitting their liability to indemnify were substituted as defendants with the plaintiff's consent: Commissioners of Waterford v. Veale, W. N. 1876, 23, but not where plaintiff objected: Mearns v. Thomas, W. N. 1875, 203; see also Norris v. Beasley, 2 C. P. D. 80; Dawes v. Thornton, W. N. 1876, 74; Seligman v. Mansfield, W. N. 1875, 240; Barton v. London & N. W. Ry. Co., 38 Ch. D. 144; Byrne v. Brown, 22 Q. B. D. 657; 37 W. R. 592; 60 L. T. 651.

The third party may probably obtain leave under this Rule to counter-claim against the defendant, or at any rate the fact of his having a valid counter-claim will prevent judgment from being given against him: Borough v. James, W. N. 1884, 32; but a third party will not be allowed to counter-claim against the plaintiff: Eden v. Weardale, etc., 28 Ch. D. 333.

If the defendant does not effectually defend the action, and the third party has not liberty to defend, further application may be made by him for directions: Barton v. L. & N. W. Ry. Co., supra; and see Blore v. Ashby, 42 Ch. D. 682.

Costs

Costs.—The costs of the proceedings will in general be reserved till the trial: Bencke v. Frost, 1 Q. B. D. 422, but quære whether the order giving directions should not make some reference to the costs of the proceedings: Tomlinson v. Northern Ry., 11 P. R. 526; see also Gibb v. Camden, 16 P. R. 316.

Where the motion for directions is refused, it would seem that the costs of the third party or defendant against whom relief is claimed should be provided for: see Rule 214.

A third party who is given liberty to contest the plaintiff's claim against the defendant should not, without necessity, defend separately from the defendant, where his case and that of the defendant are identical, as against the plaintiff. If he does so, he may be refused costs, even though the plaintiff fails: Williams v. Buchanan, 7 Times. 226.

Where the third party on being served with notice, pays the plaintiff's claim, he is liable to the defendant for his costs of defence as between solicitor and client, and for his costs of claim between party and party: King v. Federal Life Ins. Co., 17 P. R. 65.

Effect of Directions.—A third party permitted to defend, or to take part in defending the action, does not become a defendant for all purposes: Eden v. Weardale, 33 Ch. D. 287; but see sec. 57 (7), last sentence; though if he is really the person who is fighting the plaintiff he may be added as a defendant: Edison, etc., v. Holland, 41 Ch. D. 33.

A third party defending the action along with the defendant is not Rule 214 confined to the defences which are open to the defendant: Callender v. Watlingford, 32 W. R. 491; but see Bell v. Van Delszen, W. N. 1883, 208, where, defendant admitting the plaintiff's claim, the third party was not allowed to dispute it. In such case the third party would not seem to be bound by the judgment against defendant in proceedings between the defendant and the third party.

Where a third party has liberty to appear at the trial he may cross-examine the plaintiff's witnesses on the question of the liability of the defendant to the plaintiff: Re Salmon, 42 Ch. D. 362; and may call witnesses: Barton v. L. N. & W. Ry. Co., 38 Ch. D. 144.

As to the giving of the directions opening the pleadings, see Confederation Life v. Labatt, supra, p. 401.

Discovery as between Parties to the Action and a Third Party.—For the purpose of any proceedings directed between defendant and third party, discovery may be obtained: see Rule 465, and notes, and Bates v. Burchell, W. N. 1884, 108.

Rule 465, however, only provides for discovery as between the third party and the defendant bringing him in. No express Rule provides for discovery as between the third party and the plaintiff, but where the third party appears and is permitted to defend the action, he would, as regards the plaintiff, then seem to be a defendant, and Rules 439 and 464 would seem to be applicable: or where the third party is only given leave to take a limited part in resisting the claim of the plaintiff, an order, upon a special application in Chambers for that purpose, or upon the motion for directions under Rule 213, may be made in favour of the third party for discovery by the plaintiff: Eden v. Weardale (No. 3), 35 Ch. D. 287. In like manner the plaintiff may obtain discovery from the third party: see McAllister v. Bishop of Rochester, 5 C. P. D. 194; Eden v. Weardale (No. 2), 34 Ch. D. 223; Bradley v. Clarke, 9 P. R. 410; Piller v. Roberts, 21 Ch. D. 201; Hornby v. Cardwell, 8 Q. B. D. 329.

214. The Court or Judge may decide all questions of Costs, costs, as between the third party and the other parties to the action, and may order any one or more to pay the costs of any other, or others, or give such directions as to costs as the justice of the case may require. Rules 23 June, 1894, 1313. (332b.)

Same as former Rule 1313 (332 b), and Eng. (1883) R. 176.

Where a third party appears and obtains leave to defend, his costs are in the discretion of the Judge at the trial, and may be ordered to be paid by the plaintiff: Witham v. Fane, 28 W. R. 812; W. N. 1880, 108; 1881, 79; 44 L. T. 718; Fulton v. Brown, 18 P. R. 137; Russell v. Eddy, 5 O. L. R. 379; or by defendant: Dawson v. Shepherd, 49 L. J. Q. B. 529; W. N. 1880, 110; Living v. Toronto, 18 C. L. T. 237; 34 C. L. J. 417; or to be borne by himself: Williams v. S. E. Ry. Co., 26 W. R. 352; Re Salmon, 42 Ch. D. 359; Williams v. Buchanan, 7 Times, 226; Toulinson v. Northern Ry., 11 P. R. 419, 526; Wallbridge v. Gaujat, 13 P. R. 463; or he may be ordered to pay the plaintiff's costs directly: Piller v. Roberts, 21 Ch. D. 198; Edison v. Holland, 41 Ch. D. 28; or defendant's costs: Bates v. Burchell, W. N. 1884, 108; Morgan v. Hardy.

Rule 215. 17 Q. B. D. 782; Jablochkoff v. McMurdo, W. N. 1884, 91; and costs payable by defendant to the plaintiff may be given to defendant against the third party: Hornby v. Cardwell, 8 Q. B. D. 329; Morgan v. Hardy, supra; see also Beynon v. Godden, 4 Ex. D. 246; Blore v. Ashby, 42 Ch. D. 682.

Where defendants were sued for insurance moneys which they had paid to deceased's executors, taking from them a bond of indemnity, and the executors being brought in as third parties paid the plaintiff's claim and costs, the defendants were held entitled against the third party to the costs of their defence between solicitor and client, and costs of their claim against the third party between party and party: King v. Federal Life Ins. Co., 17 P. R. 65.

Where no directions were made giving a third party leave to take part in the action, and he voluntarily appeared at the trial and asked to be made, and was made, a defendant, it was held that the defendant who gave the notice could not be ordered to pay his costs: Gibb v. Camden, 16 P. R. 316.

Claims to contribution in indemnity, etc., against a co-defendant.

215. Where a defendant claims to be entitled to contribution or indemnity from, or relief over against, any other defendant, a notice may be issued and the same procedure shall be adopted as if such last mentioned defendant were a third party [except that a copy of the statement of claim or writ need not be served with the third party notice, and service may be effected upon the solicitor in the action, if any, of the defendant sought to be made liable as a third party.] Rules 23 June, 1894, 1313, (332c) amended.

See former Rule 1313 (332 c), and Eng. (1883) R. 177, which latter only covers cases where contribution or indemnity is claimed. The words in brackets are new. The present Rule makes it clear that relief in the cases contemplated by Rule 209 may now be given between co-defendants, as well as between a defendant and a third party, and by the same general mode of procedure, this was formerly doubtful: see H. & L. Jud. Act, 2nd ed., p. 385.

No leave to issue the notice need be obtained: Baxter v. France, 1895, 1 Q. B. 455, 458; Holden v. G. T. Ry., 2 O. L. R. p. 423; see also Towse v. Loveridge, 25 Ch. D. 76. It is perhaps doubtful whether a defendant who has already appeared in the action should enter a second appearance to the notice, but that course was taken in Baxter v. France, supra, and is, it is submitted, the proper course under this Rule. The notice (Form 49 in the App., see H. & L. Forms, No. 478), served on the co-defendant will direct him to appear if he disputes the claim made by the notice, and failure to appear will, it would seem, subject him to the consequences stated in Rule 210 and in the notice.

Motion for directions.

When an application is made under Rule 213, for directions as to the proceedings upon such claim, the defendant against whom relief is claimed may object to the claim being entertained: see Schneider v. Batt, 8 Q. B. D. 705; Wye Valley Ry. Co. v. Hawes, 16 Ch. D. 489; Baxter v. France, 1895, 1 Q. B. 455; and it has also been held that this is the proper course to be pursued where a co-defendant served contends that the claim is not one to which Rules 209 and 215 apply, or objects to the question between himself and his co-defendant being tried. It is not proper (unlike in this respect the case of a notice served on a person not a party to the action) to Rule 216. move to set aside the notice: Baxter v. France, supra; but see Towse v. Lovelidge, 25 Ch. D. 76.

A claim by a defendant against a co-defendant for indemnity will not be tried without an order under Rule 213 providing for the determination of the claim raised: Burke v. Pittman, 12 P. R. 662; Flower v. Todd, W. N. 1884, 47; Tritton v. Bankart, and other cases, supra, p. 399.

The procuring by a defendant of the pleadings of a co-defendant who claims contribution, etc., from him does not operate as a notice to the former: Steel v. Dixon, 28 W. R. 796; 42 L. T. 765.

In Walker v. Dickson, 14 P. R. 343, where the defendant claimed indemnity against a co-defendant, the question was directed to be tried at the same time and place as the plaintiff's claim, notwithstanding that the time for pleading to the claim for relief over had not expired, and that it was at the date of the order too late to give the usual ten days' notice of trial to the third party.

As to whether a defendant who is entitled to indemnity from a co-defendant is entitled to judgment before he has actually paid anything in discharge of his liability to the plaintiff, see Rules 211, 212, and notes.

Security for Costs.—As to security for costs by a defendant security for from a co-defendant making a claim against him, see Molsons Bank costs, v. Sawyer, 19 P. R. 316.

216. A plaintiff is not to be [prejudiced or] unnecessarily delayed by reason of questions between the defendant and the third party in which he is not concerned: and the Court or Judge shall give such directions, on terms or otherwise, as may be necessary to prevent such delay of the plaintiff, where it can be done without injustice to the defendants. Plaintiff not to be delayed by questions between defendants.
Con. Rule 333.

The words in brackets are new in this Rule. They appear to have been taken from the last clause of the former Rule 1313 (332 c). see note to Rule 215. The object of the present Rule is to prevent the plaintiff from being delayed by questions between the defendant and a third party, whether such third party is a stranger or a co-defendant. The former Rule referred only to questions "between defendants," probably, however, including as defendants third parties when brought in.

There is no express Rule like this under the English Practice, but the decisions of the Courts are to the same effect: see Bower v. Hurley, 1 Q. B. D. 652; Wye Valley Ry. Co. v. Hawes, 16 Ch. D. 489; Barton v. London & N. W. Ry. Co., 38 Ch. D. 144; Byrne v. Brown, 22 Q. B. D. 657; 60 L. T. 651; Hutchison v. Colorado, W. N. 1884, 40; and see note to Rule 215 as to the former practice in Chancery.

Rule 217.

(iii) *Guardians.*Insane
persons.

217. Where a lunatic or a person of unsound mind (not so found by inquisition or judicial declaration) might before the passing of The Ontario Judicature Act 1881, have sued or have been sued, he may as heretofore sue by his committee or next friend, and may defend by his committee or guardian. Con. Rule 335.

The words "or judicial declaration" are not in the English Rules; in other respects this is to the same effect as Eng. (1883) R. 139.

The practice adopted by this Rule is that of the Court of Chancery.

As plaintiffs. Lunatics—As Plaintiffs.—A lunatic so found by inquisition (or judicial declaration under R. S. O. c. 65, s. 8), and having a committee, must sue by him. If he has no committee, or if the committee has an interest in the subject matter of the action adverse to the lunatic, the suit in certain cases may be brought by the Attorney-General: Atty.-Gen. v. Panther, 2 Dick. 748, but is usually by next friend: Light v. Light, 25 Beav. 248; Porter v. Porter, 37 Ch. D. 420; who may be any person who chooses to act, just as in the case of an infant: Skinner v. White, 19 C. L. J. 115; and need not be a solvent person: Sharp v. Sharp, 2 Chy. Ch. 244; Crummey v. Kingston, 3 C. L. T. 311.

As in the case of an infant the next friend may not be a married woman. If an action is so framed the defendant may move to remove her, and stay the action till a proper next friend is named: Martin v. Martin, 15 P. R. 177.

A committee before instituting a suit on behalf of a lunatic or his estate must obtain the sanction of the Court: Dan. Prac. 5th ed., 82; 6th ed., 118.

If an action is brought in the name of a person, who was at the time in a state of mental incapacity, without either a committee or next friend, the defendant may move to dismiss the action, but not if the plaintiff becomes imbecile after commencing an action in the ordinary way: Dan. Pr., 5th ed., 81, 83; 6th ed., 118; Wartnaby v. Wartnaby, Jac. 377; Blake v. Smith, You. 594.

Where an action has been commenced in the name of a person of unsound mind by next friend, an inquiry may be directed at the instance of the person alleged to be of unsound mind as to his competency: Powell v. Lewis, 40 W. R. 88; 65 L. T. 672.

An action which can be shown to be not beneficial to a lunatic plaintiff will be stayed on application, as in the case of an infant: Waterhouse v. Woranop, 59 L. T. 140.

Where an action is brought by a next friend on behalf of a person alleged to be of unsound mind, but who is really of sound mind, the action will on his application, shewing by affidavit his sanity and ability to manage his own affairs, be ordered to be dismissed with costs against the next friend: Palmer v. Walesby, L. R. 3 Chy. 732; and the defendant may make a similar application: Skinner v. White, 19 C. L. J. 115; and see Barrie v. Weymouth, 15 P. R. 95; and vide Quantz v. Smeltzer, 6 P. R. 126.

The application must be to a Judge in Chambers, since if the affidavit is contradicted or doubtful, an inquisition in lunacy might be directed and the Master in Chambers has no jurisdiction to entertain such a question: Skinner v. White, supra.

If a plaintiff is found a lunatic, and a committee appointed after the commencement of an action, an order should be obtained for the committee to carry on the proceedings: Green v. Pratt, 41 L. T. 30, and see Beall v. Smith, L. R. 9 Chy. 85, where the effect of the appointment of a committee was said to paralyze a preceding action by a next friend. If during the action the committee dies or is removed, and a new committee is appointed, a similar order should be obtained. If the plaintiff's solicitor neglects to obtain an order in either of such cases, to carry on the proceedings, the defendant may, before judgment, move to dismiss the action, unless the order is obtained within a limited time; after judgment the defendant may obtain the order himself. See Dan. Forms, 3rd ed., 55.

The Court has no jurisdiction over the property of a person of unsound mind, except to protect it, so that where more is desired the proper course is to apply for the appointment of a committee to prosecute the suit: Skinner v. White, supra; see Jones v. Lloyd, L. R. 18 Eq. 265; Beall v. Smith, L. R. 9 Chy. 85.

As to the effect of a person of unsound mind being declared a lunatic after an action commenced by next friend, see Beall v. Smith, supra.

By R. S. O. c. 317, s. 53, the Inspector of Prisons and Public Charities is ex officio committee of lunatics detained in any public asylum, and having no other committee. But the High Court may appoint a committee of any such lunatic, and upon its so doing, so long as the committee appointed by the High Court exercises such office, the Inspector ceases to be the committee.

Lunatics—As Defendants.—A lunatic defends by the committee of his estate, if he has one. If he has none, or the defendant has an adverse interest, or the lunatic has not been so found by inquisition or judicial declaration, he defends by guardian ad litem under this Rule: see also Howlett v. Wilbraham, 5 Mad. 423; Worth v. McKenzie, 13 M. & G. 363.

The committee of a lunatic's estate is a necessary party defendant with the lunatic in an action relating to that estate, and may defend without obtaining leave: Dan. Pr., 5th ed., 82.

As to the mode in which a lunatic defendant in an action is to be served: see Rule 157, and Wolff v. Ogilvy, 12 P. R. 645.

After service under Rule 157, no further proceedings are to be taken against a lunatic who has no committee, until a guardian ad litem is appointed: Rule 158. If the friends of a lunatic desire to defend for him, they should cause an appearance to be entered for him: see Rule 218 (2), and then apply in Chambers: Crawford v. Crawford, 9 P. R. 178, to have a guardian ad litem appointed, see Rule 221. Any fit person who has no adverse interest may be such guardian: Dan. Pr., 5th ed., 160, but in general the Official Guardian will be appointed: Rule 218 (3).

If no application is made on the lunatic's part the plaintiff may, after the time for appearance has expired, apply for the appointment of a guardian by motion on notice: in which case the Official Guardian will be appointed, unless he be already acting as solicitor

Rule 218. for the plaintiff, or for some other parties having an interest in the subject matter of the action adverse to the lunatic, or unless the friends of the lunatic ask for the appointment of some other person, in which case some other proper person may be appointed: see Rule 218 (3), though some good reason is now required for appointing some one other than the Official Guardian: see Rule 218, and notes.

Where proceedings are carried on without the due appointment of a guardian to a lunatic defendant, they are not merely irregular but void: see Warnock v. Prieur, 12 P. R. 264.

The defence of a lunatic or person of unsound mind should be expressed to be by his committee or guardian: Arch. Pr., 13th ed., 1048.

Where a person of sound mind not so found has to be made a party in the Master's office after judgment, or to be served with notice of motion for an administration order, a guardian ad litem must be appointed "in like manner as before judgment," that is to say by analogy to the practice (see Rule 3) in an action before judgment: see Rule 218, and Wolff v. Ogilvy, 12 P. R. 645. The procedure will therefore be by special motion in Chambers; in the latter case before the application for the administration order is made: Wolff v. Ogilvy, supra; Burvy v. Brazil, 1 Chy. Ch. 237.

Service of persons of unsound mind with an office copy of a judgment, pursuant to Rule 203 (3) or otherwise, is effected as the officer before whom the reference is pending directs: Rule 220.

A guardian ad litem to a defendant, who became of unsound mind after judgment, was appointed at the instance of a co-defendant who wished to obtain indemnity from the insane defendant: Re Dawson, Johnston v. Hill, 41 Ch. D. 415.

No appearance by persons of unsound mind.

218.—(1) Where no appearance has been entered to a writ of summons for a defendant who is a person of unsound mind not so found by inquisition or judicial declaration, the plaintiff may apply to the Court or a Judge for an order that a guardian of such defendant be appointed, by whom he may appear and defend.

(2) No such order shall be made unless it appears that the writ was duly served, and that notice of the application was, after the expiration of the time allowed for appearance, and at least six clear days before the day in the notice named for hearing the application, served upon, or left at the dwelling-house of, the person with whom the defendant resides, or under whose care he is at the time of serving such notice.

(3) The Official Guardian shall be so appointed, unless it is otherwise directed. Con. Rule 356; Rules 23 June, 1894, 1314.

Eng. (1883) R. 101 does not speak of an Official Guardian, and includes the case of an infant which is here provided for by Rule 152.

This Rule is based upon the English Chancery Order 7, Rule 3, as Rule 219 to which, see H. & L. Jud. Act, 2nd ed., p. 390, and Morgan's Chy. Orders, 4th ed., p. 400; Seton, 4th ed., 706.

It would seem that Sunday is reckoned in computing the six clear days: see Brewster v. Thorpe, 11 Jur. 6, see also Rules 343, 344, 348.

It will be seen, from the terms of Rule 158, that the practice in Ontario is the same as under the Eng. Rule of 1883, and that even though an appearance should be entered for a lunatic, if he has no committee or guardian ad litem, the plaintiff cannot proceed until a guardian ad litem is appointed. It is apprehended that the intention of the Rules is, that application may be made on behalf of a lunatic for the appointment of a committee or guardian ad litem by whom he may appear and defend; but that if no such appointment is made, the plaintiff may under this Rule apply to have a guardian appointed.

By R. S. O. c. 317, s. 53, the Inspector of Prisons and Public Charities is ex officio committee of lunatics detained in any public asylum who have no other committee, but, in the case of a defendant for whom the Inspector is thus committee, service of a writ or other paper on the Inspector is not sufficient, but service must be made and a guardian appointed as if there were no committee: Ib., sec. 55; see also notes to Rule 217.

Applications under this Rule should be made to the Master or other officer having jurisdiction in Chambers, not to a Judge: Crawford v. Crawford, 9 P. R. 178. If the lunatic defendant has been found to be of unsound mind by inquisition, or judicial declaration, the Rule does not apply, and he should defend by his committee; but where he has not been so found lunatic the Rule applies, and it should be shewn, on the application to appoint a guardian, that the defendant has not been found lunatic by inquisition or judicial declaration: Crawford v. Birdsall, 1 Chy. Cham. 70; and facts must also be shewn upon which the Court may judge for itself that the person is of unsound mind: McIntyre v. Kingsley, 1 Chy. Ch. 281. The Official Guardian is to be appointed, unless a case is made for appointing another proper person: see Rule 218. It will have to be shewn that such other person has no conflicting interest: see Rule 221, and James v. Robertson, 1 Chy. Ch. 197. Service of notice of the application is necessary though the person to be served is out of the jurisdiction: O'Brien v. Maitland, 10 W. R. 275.

An appointment of a guardian without notice served as directed by this Rule was held to be void, and not to be a mere irregularity, and to be a defect not capable of being waived by the fact that the Official Guardian who was appointed, acted as such, and made all the inquiries usual in such cases in the interests of the lunatic: Warlock v. Priour, 12 P. R. 264.

219. Where an infant, or a person of unsound mind not so found by inquisition or judicial declaration, is served with an office copy of a judgment or order, or is made a party after judgment, a guardian ad litem shall be appointed for him in like manner as before judgment. Con. Rule 337.

Based upon Chy. Orders 522, 525.

Infants.—The appointment of guardians ad litem to infants before judgment, is now governed by Rules 152, 155, 156. Under those Appointment of guardian ad litem to infants or lunatics added after judgment.

Rule 220. Rules service of the writ on the Official Guardian ad litem, ipso facto constitutes him the guardian of the infant on whose behalf he is served, where the infant is served in respect of his interest in an estate, but not in actions for personal torts, or for the mere recovery of money: see Rule 154. Where an infant is required to be served with an office copy of judgment it is ordinarily in that class of cases in which service of a writ on the Official Guardian is sufficient service on the infant if an original defendant, and by analogy to Rule 152 (see Rule 3). In such cases, service of the office copy of the judgment on the Official Guardian would be sufficient service on the infant, and the Official Guardian would thereby become ipso facto his guardian ad litem. Where there are several infant defendants to be served, by analogy to Rule 152, only one copy of the judgment need be served on the Official Guardian.

Lunatics.—This Rule refers to persons of unsound mind not so found by an inquisition or order of the Court. The appointment of guardians ad litem to such persons before judgment is regulated by Rules 218, 221. Where the person is found lunatic by inquisition or order, it is not necessary to appoint a guardian ad litem for him, his committee having power to act for him.

The appointment is made on an application in Chambers, notice of which motion may be served along with the office copy of the judgment—or afterwards, but no further proceedings affecting the person of unsound mind can properly be taken until a guardian ad litem has been appointed for him: Wolff v. Ogilvy, 12 P. R. 645. Where the Master before whom the reference is pending, has also jurisdiction in Chambers, it would seem that he would have power to entertain such applications: see Rules 49, 698.

Where a person has been judicially declared a lunatic, service is effected on his committee, who should be made a co-defendant: Sm. Pr., 7th ed., p. 311, and it would seem not to be necessary in such a case to appoint a guardian ad litem: Ib., but where the lunatic has no committee within the jurisdiction, it has been held proper to serve the Official Guardian ad litem on behalf of such lunatic: see Re Hagar, 12 P. R. 645, sed quare; see Warneck v. Priour, supra, and in case of lunatics detained in any public asylum, see R. S. O. c. 317, supra, p. 409.

Service of infant or lunatic with judgment, how effected.

220. Where a person required to be served with an office-copy of a judgment or order is an infant, or a person of unsound mind not so found by inquisition or judicial declaration, service is to be effected in such manner as the officer before whom the reference is being prosecuted directs. Con. Rule 338.

Based upon Chy. O. 523.

Infants,

Service of Office Copy of Judgment.—Infants.—For the reasons given in the note to the preceding Rule, service on the Official Guardian of an office copy of a judgment required to be served on an infant, is sufficient service on the infant, and the Official Guardian thereby ipso facto becomes his guardian ad litem: see Rule 3, and Re Murray, 13 P. R. 367.

A guardian ad litem must be appointed for an infant whether he is made a party in his own right, or in a representative capacity.

e.g., as executor or trustee, or the proceedings will be void as against Rule 221. such infant: Re Jackson, Massey v. Crookshanks, 12 P. R. 475, and see supra, p. 410.

Lunatics so Found.—Where a person who has been judicially declared a lunatic is required to be served with a judgment, the office copy should be directed to be served on his committee, who should be also made a co-defendant; the service should also be made on the lunatic as well, unless it is shewn that for any reason it is dangerous to serve him personally: Re Miller, 1 Chy. Ch. 215. See note to Rule 219, sed vide, Re Hagar, 12 P. R. 645.

Lunatics Not so Found.—Where the person required to be served is of unsound mind, but has not been judicially declared to be a lunatic, the direction of the Master before whom the reference is pending should be obtained under this Rule as to the mode in which he is to be served. By analogy to Rule 157 (see Rule 3) it would appear that the person with whom, or under whose care he is, should be directed to be served; and, unless it is shewn that service on the person of unsound mind would be attended with danger, it would seem that he should be directed to be personally served as well: see Re Miller, 1 Chy. Ch. 215; Re Newman, 2 Chy. Ch. 390; Re Mein, 2 Chy. Ch. 420. No proceedings can be validly taken against a person of unsound mind who has no committee until a guardian ad litem has been appointed: Rule 264: Warnock v. Prieur, 12 P. R. 264.

It is therefore necessary not only to obtain the Master's direction for service of the office copy of judgment on the person of unsound mind under this Rule, but it is also necessary to obtain an order appointing a guardian ad litem to such person. This is to be done by order to be obtained in Chambers on motion, supported by affidavits. By analogy to Rule 218 it would seem that the notice of the motion should be served in the manner mentioned in that Rule, and that it must be a six clear days' notice instead of the ordinary two clear days' notice.

Where the Inspector of Prisons and Public Charities is ex officio committee of the lunatic (see R. S. O. c. 317, s. 53), it is nevertheless necessary in proceedings against the lunatic that a guardian should be appointed of such lunatic: R. S. O. c. 317, s. 55.

Where a defendant in an action becomes of unsound mind after judgment, a guardian ad litem must be appointed for him before proceedings can be validly continued against him: Wolff v. Ogilvy, 12 P. R. 645. This must be done by order, upon motion, and cannot be effected by merely serving the Official Guardian on his behalf: Id.; sed vide, Re Hagar, 12 P. R. 645, where it was held that this might be done where the defendant had been judicially declared insane, sed quare: see Warnock v. Prieur, supra.

221. A person desirous of appointing a guardian for himself other than the Official Guardian to defend an action or matter, may go before a Judge or Master with the proposed guardian. He must satisfy the Judge or Master by affidavit that the proposed guardian is a fit person, and has no adverse interest: and the Judge or Master may examine the proposed guardian, or the person making the affidavit, viva voce, or require further evidence to be adduced until he is satisfied of the propriety of the appointment. Con. Rule 339.

Based on Chy. O. 526.

This Rule would appear to apply to all cases of disability where the appointment of a guardian is necessary.

The Official Guardian ad litem is now, by the direction of the Court, appointed in all cases, unless some special reason exists for the appointment of some other person.

Where a guardian was irregularly appointed upon insufficient notice to the infant, the appointment was set aside on the application of the infant after decree: Hamilton v. Hamilton, 2 Chy. Ch. 160; and see Re Jackson, Massey v. Crookshanks, 12 P. R. 475.

(iv) Actions by and against Partnership Firms.

The following Rules 222-231, form a code, and must in construing them be read together: per Lord Esher in Worcester, etc., Banking Co. v. Firbank, 1894, 1 Q. B. 787-8, adopting the view of Fry, L.J., in Heinemann v. Hale, 1891, 2 Q. B. 90.

Rules 222-231 supply a mode of suing all the partners, by suing them in the name of the firm. They may still be sued individually if the plaintiff so desires. In such case, if he does not sue all the partners, those sued may be entitled to have the others added as defendants: see note to Rule 206, p. 384; and a judgment obtained against some only of the partners will be a bar to an action for the debt against the others not sued: see note to Rule 228, p. 424.

Partnership firms, how may sue and be sued.

222. Any two or more persons (whether British subjects or not and whether residing within or without Ontario) claiming or being liable as partners, and carrying on business within Ontario, may sue or be sued in the name of the firm of which such persons were co-partners at the time of the accruing of the cause of action; and any person may in such case apply to the Court or a Judge for a statement of the names and addresses of the persons who were, at the time of the accruing of the cause of action, co-partners in the firm, to be verified on oath or otherwise as may be directed. Con. Rule 317 amended. (Eng. O. 48a, r. 1.) [See also Rule 144.]

Follows in substance Eng. R. 1891, O. 48a, r. 1, which was the same as Eng. 1885, O. 16, r. 14, with the addition of the words "and carrying on business within the jurisdiction" ("within Ontario" in the above Rule).

The words in brackets are not in the English Rule, and have been inserted to make clear what seems also to be established by decision to be the meaning of the Eng. Rule: see Grant v. Anderson, 1892, 1 Q. B. 108; Worcester City Banking Co. v. Firbank & Co., 1894, 1 Q. B. 784; Shepherd v. Hirsch & Co., 45 Ch. D. 231.

The application for names and addresses is not to be "by summons as provided in Eng. R., but by motion (in Chambers as a rule) on notice in the usual way. The words "Court or a Judge" confer Rule 222. Jurisdiction of the Master in Chambers and like officers in Chambers: see Rule 6.

The Ind. Act, 1881, Rule 100 (now the above Rule), first authorized the suing of partners, and empowered partners to sue or be sued, in the firm name. Formerly all the partners must have been named individually as parties, and if sued were required to be jointly sued as their liability is joint: see Kendall v. Hamilton, 4 App. Cas. 504. Now the action may be brought against the firm without first ascertaining who the partners are.

If a firm is sued as such service may be effected either upon any one or more of the partners, or, at the principal place of business of the partnership, upon any person having the control or management of the business. The partners are to appear individually in their own names, but all subsequent proceedings go on in the name of the firm: Rule 225.

After judgment against the firm, execution may issue as provided in Rule 228.

Disclosure of Names and Addresses.—If partners are suing ^{Disclosure} in the name of the firm they must, on the demand of the defendant, by partners, disclose the names of the partners: Rule 144; and whether suing or being sued, they may be ordered by the Court or a Judge, on the application of any party to the action, to make such disclosure: Rule 222.

The names of the partners composing firms for trading, manufacturing or mining purposes in Ontario, are also required to be registered in the registry office of the registry division in which they carry on business: R. S. O. c. 152, s. 1.

A plaintiff in a class suit cannot under this Rule be compelled to disclose the names and addresses of the persons on whose behalf he sues: Leathley v. McAndrew, W. N. 1875, 250.

A form of notice of motion for a statement of the partners under this Rule is given in the App. No. 58, and a form of order in No. 113. (See H. & L. Forms, Nos. 103, 403 and 404.)

The order for the statement cannot be enforced by attachment under Rule 473; Pike v. Keene, 24 W. R. 322; 35 L. T. 341.

See also notes to Rule 144.

Scope of the Rules.—The Rules in effect merely furnish a convenient way of proceeding by or against the individuals who constitute a firm, by enabling them to sue, or be sued in the name which they have adopted for business purposes. Their creditors are enabled to reach in the first instance the property of the firm, but also under certain circumstances (see Rule 228) the property of the individuals; see Re Frances Hondford, 1899, 1 Q. B. 566. ^{What are firms within the Rule.}

A proprietary club would appear to be a partnership in which the proprietors are the partners, and may be sued in the club name: Firmin v. International Club, 5 Times, 612, 694. As to a member's club, see Overton v. Hewett, 3 Times, 656; The Granville Club, 28 Sol. Jour. 513; Stansfeld v. Ridout, 5 Times, 656.

As to whether trades unions can be so sued, see Taff Vale Ry. v. Amalgamated Society of Railway Servants, 1901, A. C. 426; 85 L. T. 147; and other cases noted under Rule 200.

Rule 222. The Rule only covers the case of two or more persons trading as a firm. It does not authorize a single person carrying on business in the name of a firm to sue in the firm name: see Lang v. Thompson, 10 P. R. 516; St. Gobain v. Hoyermann, 1893, 2 Q. B. D. 901; Russell v. Cambefort, 23 Q. B. D. 520. He may be sued in the name or style under which he carries on business, under Rule 231, but must sue in his own name.

See, also, as to the general scope of Rules 222-231, an article in the Law Quarterly Magazine for 1890, p. 53.

Infant. Infant Partner.—This Rule applies though one of the partners is an infant: Harris v. Beauchamp, 1893, 2 Q. B. 534; see Re Beauchamp, 1894, 1 Q. B. 1; but the judgment should be expressed to be either against the firm "other than A. B., an infant," or possibly against the other partners by name: Id.; and Lovell v. Beauchamp, 1894, A. C. 607; see pp. 612, 613; but see Rule 225.

Carrying on business. "Carrying on Business Within Ontario."—Under the present Rules the test of the power to sue a firm by its firm name is whether or not it "carries on business within Ontario": per Lord Davey in Worcester City, etc., Banking Co. v. Firbank, 1894, 1 Q. B. p. 710, so that the Rule has no application to actions by or against a foreign firm not carrying on business within Ontario, the members of which are domiciled and resident out of Ontario, even though a partner be temporarily within and served within Ontario: Agar v. Kauffman, 30 Sol. Jour. 181; Grant v. Anderson, 1892, 1 Q. B. 108; but it applies to a firm carrying on business within Ontario though it be a foreign or a British or a colonial firm, the members of which are resident out of Ontario: Worcester, etc., Banking Co. v. Firbank, etc., Co., 1894, 1 Q. B. 784.

As to the difference between "carrying on business" and "transacting business," see Nelson v. Lenz, 9 O. L. R. 50, 52, and Rule 159.

A place of business held in the name of the firm in charge of a partner or employee would seem to be necessary to bring the firm within the meaning of this Rule. Regular visits to Ontario to purchase goods to be sent to the firm is not "carrying on business" within the Rule: see Singleton v. Roberts, 10 R. 223; 76 L. T. 687; Worcester City Banking Co. v. Firbank, 1894, 1 Q. B. 784; sed quare whether a place of business is necessary except to effect substitutional service on a manager provided for by Rule 223.

A partner may perhaps be considered as carrying on business of the firm at his regular office though the name of the firm does not appear there: see Heinemann v. Hole, 1891, 2 Q. B. 83, where some such circumstances existed, but the former Rules were held not to apply.

A foreign corporation having agencies within the jurisdiction and conducting a trade therein by means of steamships was held to be "carrying on business" within the jurisdiction: La Bourgogne, 1899, A. C. 431; 79 L. T. 310, 331. So a foreign corporation having "a stand" at the Crystal Palace for exhibition of their manufactures at a "cycle show," and for explaining their cycles, taking orders, and pressing the sale of their goods: Dunlop Pneumatic Tire Co. v. Action Gesellschaft, etc., 1902, 1 K. B. 342. See also Nelson v. Lenz, 5 O. W. R. 21.

The mere employment of an agent within the jurisdiction to solicit orders, but not to make contracts, is not "carrying on business" within Ontario" within the meaning of the Rules, notwithstanding Rule 223, that the name of the firm is entered on the door of the agent's office: Grant v. Anderson, 1892, 1 Q. B. 198. See also Railton v. Goodwin, 33 Ch. D. 604.

See also notes to Rule 223.

Foreign Firm as Plaintiff. If not "carrying on business within Ontario," a foreign firm cannot sue by its firm name. An action may, of course, as formerly, be brought by all the partners in their individual names, and in such an action a counter-claim may be made against the firm even though an action respecting the subject of the counter-claim could not have been brought within Ontario against the plaintiffs: Orendtoven v. Hamlyn & Co., 8 Times, 231.

Foreign Firms as Defendants.—The individual members of a foreign firm may still it is presumed be sued jointly in any case within Rule 162; but unless carrying on business within Ontario the firm cannot be sued in the firm name (even by leave under Rule 162: Dobson v. Festi, 1891, 2 Q. B. 92), where the members of the firm (or any of them: Indigo Co. v. Ogilvy, 1891, 2 Ch. 31) reside abroad: see per Lord Davey in Worcester, etc., Banking Co. v. Firbank, 1894, 1 Q. B. 780; and see Western, etc., v. Perez, 1891, 1 Q. B. 304, under the former Rules.

Where a foreign firm carries on business within Ontario, that circumstance makes it under the Rules subject to the jurisdiction of the Court, apparently, whatever the cause of action may be. It will not be necessary to bring the case within Rule 162, or to obtain leave to issue the writ against the firm: Rule 223; Worcester, etc., Banking Co. v. Firbank, 1894, 1 Q. B. 784.

The writ when issued however must be served according to some one of the modes prescribed by Rule 223, otherwise the service will not be sufficient to bind the firm and support a judgment against it, which is the only form of judgment obtainable in such an action: see Rules 225, 227, 228. Substitutional service in modes not prescribed by Rule 223 cannot be ordered: Worcester, etc., Banking Co. v. Firbank, 1894, 1 Q. B. 788.

From the reference to the time of the accruing of the cause of action in this Rule, and from the last clause of Rule 223, it would seem that a firm dissolved before action may nevertheless sue or be sued in the firm name, but in the case of defendants, if the dissolution was known to the plaintiff at the time of the issue of the writ all of the partners within the jurisdiction sought to be made liable must be individually served: see Rule 223; Fisher v. Linton, 28 Ont. 322.

223. Where persons are sued as partners in the name of the firm under Rule 222 the writ shall be served either upon any one or more of the partners, or at the principal place within Ontario of the business of the partnership, upon any person having the control or management of the partnership business there; and subject to these Rules such service shall be deemed good service upon the firm whether any of the members thereof are without Ontario or not, and leave to issue a writ against them shall not be necessary: but in the case of a Rule 223. partnership which has been dissolved to the knowledge of the plaintiff before action, the writ of summons shall be served upon every person within Ontario sought to be made liable. Con. Rules 265 and 317 amended. (Eng. O. 48a, r. 3.)

The Eng. O. 48a, r. 3, is to the same effect.

The service provided for by this Rule is of a writ issued against a firm by its firm name under Rule 222, i.e., of a firm "carrying on business within Ontario."

Foreign firms.

Foreign Firm.—This Rule applies to foreign firms carrying on business within the jurisdiction—but not to foreign firms not so carrying on business. Foreign firms not carrying on business within the jurisdiction must be sued in the names of the partners, each of whom must be served: see formerly H. & L. Jud. Act, 2nd ed., 397; and Russell v. Cambefort, 22 Q. B. D. 526; Western v. Perez, 1891, 1 Q. B. 304; Nutter & Co. Messageries Maritimes, 54 L. J. Q. B. 527; and Lysaght v. Clark, 1891, 1 Q. B. 552.

Firm dissolved before action.

Firms Dissolved Before Action.—Notwithstanding the dissolution of a firm, it may still be sued in the firm name: In re Wenham, 1900, 2 Q. B. 698.

But the concluding clause of the Rule seems practically to render it useless to sue partners in the firm name if the firm has been dissolved: for notwithstanding that a firm existing at the date of the accrual of the cause of action may be sued in the firm name, although it has been dissolved before action, yet every individual member of the firm, resident in Ontario, and sought to be made liable, must also be personally served with the writ; and in such a case partners resident out of Ontario are not personally bound by service on those within Ontario, and cannot be made individually liable unless they are individually made parties and served under Rule 162; see Rule 228. Wigram v. Cox, 1894, 1 Q. B. 792; 70 L. T. 656; Shepherd v. Hirsch, 45 Ch. D. 231, and "Service on a partner," infra.

When a partner dies before action brought against the firm, a judgment against the firm can only be enforced against the surviving partners, and the partnership assets: Ellis v. Wadson, 1899, 1 Q. B. p. 718; 80 L. T. 508; and the same result will follow where a partner dies between the service of the writ and the trial of the action and judgment: Ib., pp. 718-19.

Where a partnership, unregistered, existed between A., B. and C., under the style A. & Co., and A. absconded, and three days later C. made a secret assignment of his interest in the business to B., and two days thereafter, before the announcement was made public, C. was served with a writ in an action against the firm by its firm name, of which proceedings B. was aware, it was held that the service was good: Bank of Hamilton v. Blakeslee, 9 P. R. 130.

Mode of service of firms.

Service.—The service provided for is of a writ issued against a firm by its firm name under Rule 222, i.e., of a firm "carrying on business within Ontario."

In the case of an action against a foreign firm as a firm, or against a firm, some members of which do not reside within Ontario, service must be effected as in this Rule mentioned, and in the case of a firm, none of whose members reside within Ontario, no other mode of substitutional service than upon the manager as mentioned in this Rule is authorized: Worcester, etc., Banking Co. v. Firbank, 1894, 1 Rule 223. Q. B. 788; 70 L. T. 443.

It does not seem to be clear whether a partner within Ontario may be served for the firm under this Rule, by serving him, not personally, but substitutionally: see Skillico v. Child, W. N. 1883, 208; Croyden v. Jackson, 3 Times, 650; Worcester, etc. v. Firbank, 1894, at pp. 792 and 790, 1 Q. B.; and 70 L. T. p. 445. Where a partner is only substitutionally served, it is doubtful whether execution could issue against him, without leave, if he does not appear in the action: see Jackson v. Litchfield, in note to Rule 228.

Service on a Partner.—A service within Ontario only is what (on a partner in Ontario) is contemplated: see last clause of Rule 228. Service on a partner temporarily within Ontario will probably suffice: see Pollczfen v. Sibson, 16 Q. B. D. 792; Shepherd v. Hirsch, 45 Ch. D. 231. These cases are probably again authorities on this point though decided under the repealed Rules and overruled in Western, etc., v. Perez, 1891, 1 Q. B. 304, for reasons not applicable under the new Rules.

The words used in this Rule are "be served on one or more of the partners," without any express qualification that the partners served are to be within the jurisdiction, but as under the old Rules it was held that words equally unqualified must be confined to persons within the jurisdiction of the Court, the same rule of construction will probably be applied to this Rule: see Russell v. Cambefort, 23 Q. B. D. 526; St. Gobain, etc., v. Hoyermann's Agency, 1893, 2 Q. B. 102; Rule 228.

Furthermore service out of Ontario is regulated by Rule 162: see notes to that Rule, and by the terms of Rule 223, leave to issue a writ is not necessary as against the members of the firm who are out of Ontario, which may point to a service not requiring to be scrutinized under Rule 162, by reason of the service being within Ontario: see also the last clause of Rule 228.

In a case within Rule 162 an order may be made for service of any individual partner so as to reach assets of his in Ontario under Rule 228, (see last clause of that Rule); but such service will probably only bind the partner served: see Russell v. Cambefort, and other cases supra; and it would seem that such an order can only be made against partners individually defendants: see Rule 228 (2), and Dobson v. Festi, 1891, 2 Q. B. 92; and quære whether any order binding upon the firm can be made other than for service of all the partners: Id. If all partners are to be served out of the jurisdiction, no object is gained by suing the firm by its name rather than the partners individually: see per Lindley, L.J., in Western, etc., v. Perez, 1891, 1 Q. B., at p. 314.

If the person served as a partner is not a partner, the service may be set aside with costs on the application of the firm: Nelson v. Pastorino, 49 L. T. 564.

Service on Manager.—Service otherwise than on a partner, (on a manager of a partnership business at its principal place of business in Ontario.) must be made upon some person having the control or management of the partnership business at its principal place of business in Ontario. The Eng Rule adds "at the time of such service" and that must be the meaning of this Rule.

The substitutional service on a manager, thus authorized, is good service upon which to obtain judgment and execution against the firm.

Rules 224, 225. As to what constitutes "having the control or management of the partnership business," see Baillie v. Goodwin, 33 Ch. D. 604; Hennemann v. Hale, 1891, 2 Q. B. 83; Grant v. Anderson, 1892, 1 Q. B. 108; Worcester, etc., v. Firbank, 1894, 1 Q. B. 784, in notes to Rule 222. Service on a receiver or manager appointed by the Court of the business of a firm in litigation will not bind the firm: Re Flowers, 1897, 1 Q. B. 14. Where a manager is served, notice in writing that he is served as manager must be given: Rule 224.

As to when execution may be issued against partners individually, see Rule 228.

Notice of capacity in which a person is served.

224. Where a writ is issued against a firm and is served as directed by Rule 223, every person upon whom it is served shall be informed by notice in writing given at the time of service whether he is served as a partner or as a person having the control or management of the partnership business, or in both characters. In default of such notice the person served shall be deemed to be served as a partner. New. (Eng. O. 48a, r. 4.)

Same as Eng. (1883) O. 48a, r. 4.

The notice is required apparently for the purpose of enabling the person served to know whether it is intended to charge him as a partner under Rule 228, and to enable him to dispute that he is a partner. If he is only manager and not a partner he need not appear where the notice informs him that he is served only as having control or management of the business: Rule 226.

Form of notice.

For a form of notice, see H. & L. Forms, No. 74.

If served as a partner the delivery of a notice to that effect is not necessary; the Rule provides that in default of notice the person served is to be deemed to be served as a partner.

Where the notice is that he is served as a partner, or where no notice is given, and the person is therefore deemed to be served as a partner, he may, and probably if not a partner should, appear under protest denying that he is a partner: Rule 227. If he does not appear under protest, or otherwise, it may be that execution may be issued against him under Rule 228 (c). Probably a motion may be made by the firm, at any rate, to set aside service effected upon a person as a partner where he is not a partner: Nelson v. Pastorino, 49 L. T. 564.

It may not always be possible to ascertain before service the name of the person in charge of the business, and the notice though required to be delivered at the time of service need not be directed to any one, and need not contain anything but the notification of the capacity in which the person is being at the time served with the writ.

Where no such notice is given and the person served is not a partner the service is defective and may be set aside on the application of the firm: Gibson v. Le Temps, 6 O. L. R. 690; but not after judgment has been obtained after appearance by the firm: Id.

Appearance of partners

225. Persons sued as partners in the name of the firm shall appear individually in their own names, but all subsequent proceedings (a) shall continue in the name of the firm. Rule 225.

Con. Rule 222. (Eng. O. 48a, r. 5.)

Same as Eng. (1891) O. 48a, r. 5.

(a) These words should be confined to "subsequent proceedings" by the plaintiff: Langman v. Hudson, 14 P. R. 215; in that case it was held that a defence and counter-claim by the defendant, individually, is regular, at any rate in an action against a firm after its dissolution; but see Ellis v. Wadeson, infra.

Appearance.—No appearance is to be entered for the firm. Part-Appearance, persons, whether served personally or not, must appear individually within the time limited for appearance computed from the time of a valid service of the firm under Rule 223; and the appearance of a partner is an appearance on behalf of the firm so as to found proceedings against the firm under Rule 223: Lysaght v. Clark, 1891, 1 Q. B. 556. Probably an appearance under protest under Rule 227 will not be sufficient for that purpose.

Seemle, an appearance not under protest is an admission that the person appearing is a partner; see Davies v. André, 24 Q. B. D. 508; 63 L.T. 151; Zuccato v. Young, 38 W. R. 474, under the former practice.

Seemle, also, that a person claiming to be a partner may, after a service of the firm under Rule 223, appear, notwithstanding that his claim to be a partner is disputed: see Robinson v. Ward & Son, 36 Sol. Joar. 415.

As to the effect of partners severing in their defence and not raising the same defences, see Cropper v. Smith, 26 Ch. D. 700; 51 L. T. 733; and Smith v. Cropper, 10 App. Cas. 249.

Each partner appearing is entitled to put in a defence for the firm: Taylor v. Collier, 30 W. R. 701; Ellis v. Wadeson, 1899, 1 Q. B. p. 517; 80 L. T. 508, though they should endeavour by agreement to put in but one statement of defence: Ellis v. Wadeson, supra; but it is only a defence for the firm that a partner can put in; he is not entitled to put in a personal defence: Ellis v. Wadeson, supra; and the defence must be in the name of the firm, even though pending the action the firm is dissolved by the death of one of the partners, and the defence is delivered by the surviving partner: Ib.; but see Langman v. Hudson, supra.

After appearance by any partner the plaintiff cannot sign judgment against the firm until the defence of every partner appearing is disposed of: Adm v. Townsend, 14 Q. B. 103; Jackson v. Litchfield, 8 Q. B. D. 474; Manster v. Cox, 10 App. Cas. 680.

Time for Appearance.—The time for appearance, where the writ is served on the manager, and also on a partner personally, runs from the date of the last of such services; see Allen v. Borkley, 25 Q. B. 10, 543.

Solicitor's Authority to Enter Appearance.—Where a partner has not been served but an appearance is entered for him by the instructions of a co-partner, who has been served on behalf of the firm, such appearance if unauthorized will be set aside on the prompt application of the partner in whose name it was entered: Mason v. Cooper, 15 P. R. 418; but ordinarily instructions from a managing partner to defend the action for the price of goods supplied to the firm in the ordinary course of business is good authority to a solicitor to enter an appearance for all the partners: Tomlinson v. Broadsmith, 1896, 1 Q. B. 380; Court v. Berlin, 46 W. R. 57; 1897, 2 Q. B. 396.

Rules 226, 227. Where one partner is an infant, and appears by a guardian ad litem, the appearance is proper: Harris v. Beauchamp, 1893, 2 Q. B. 534; 60 L. T. 373; but as to the form of the judgment, see note to Rule 227.

No appearance except by partners.

226. Where a writ is served under Rule 223 upon a person having the control or management of the partnership business an appearance by him shall not be necessary unless he is a member of the firm. New. (Eng. O. 48a, r. 6.)

Same as Eng. (1891) 48a, r. 6.

An appearance by a person describing himself as manager should be refused by the officer unless it is under protest pursuant to Rule 227.

Appearance under protest of person served as partner.

227. A person served as a partner under Rule 223 may enter an appearance under protest, denying that he is a partner, but such appearance shall not preclude the plaintiff from otherwise serving the firm and obtaining judgment against the firm in default of appearance if no partner has entered an appearance in the ordinary form. New. (Eng. O. 48a, r. 7.)

Same as in Eng. (1891) 48a, r. 7.

Form.—For a form of appearance under protest, see H. & L. Forms No. 107.

Contesting Denial of Partnership.—If the plaintiff insists that the person served is a partner, he may if it would seem, move in Chambers to strike out the appearance, shewing that the person so appearing is a partner; upon such a motion probably an issue may be directed to determine the question; see Worcester Banking Co. v. Trotter, 3 Times, 709; and Davis v. Harris, 10 Q. B. D. 433 (cases of an issue directed under Rule 228). This course will probably be expedient where there is no other means of serving the firm pursuant to Rule 223.

Re-service of Firm.—The plaintiff may leave for decision in the action (probably under Rule 228 (2), when execution is sought) the question whether the person served is a partner, and may serve the writ in some other way pursuant to Rule 223, so as to bind the firm.

Judgment.—If one of several partners does not appear, judgment cannot be entered against him individually. Judgment if recovered must follow the writ and be against the firm: Jackson v. Litchfield, 8 Q. B. D. 474; Adam v. Townsend, 14 Q. B. D. 103; (see the discussion of this case in 17 L. J. 324); Firmin v. International Club, 5 Times, 612. But where one of the partners is an infant, the judgment given against the firm should expressly except the infant: Harris v. Beauchamp, 1893, 2 Q. B. 534, 60 L. J. 373; Re Beauchamp, 1891, 1 Q. B. 1; S. C. sub nom Lovell v. Beauchamp, 1894, A. C. 607.

Execution may be issued under Rule 228 against individual partners.

Where an action was brought against a firm, and one of the partners individually, and the partner only appeared, but separate defences were afterwards delivered by the partner and the firm, it was held that the defence of the firm could not be struck out; Taylor v. Collier & Co., 30 W. R. 701; W. N. 1882, 83; 51 L. J. Chy. 853. The firm is sued though appearance must be by the partners individually, and as regards any claim against the firm, the defence to be filed must be for the firm and in the firm's name; Ellis v. Hadenon, 1899, 1 Q. B. 714, 720.

In Munster v. Railton, 10 Q. B. D. 475, 11 Q. B. D. 435 (affirmed in the House of Lords, 10 App. Cas. 680) an action was brought against a firm, "R. & Co."; R. appeared individually and the plaintiff then delivered a statement of claim against "R. sued as R. & Co." and obtained judgment. Afterwards discovering that C. was a member of the firm of "R. & Co." plaintiff was not allowed to amend his judgment to make it conform to the writ and he a judgment against the firm, as he had chosen to sue R. individually.

Where a partner is served after a service on a manager or other person under Rule 223, judgment by default of appearance cannot be signed until the requisite time has expired after the second service; Alden v. Beckley, 25 Q. B. D. 543.

228.—(1) Where a judgment or order is obtained against a firm, execution may issue

Execution of judgment against a firm.

- (a) Against any property of the partnership within Ontario;
- (b) Against any person who has appeared in his own name under Rule 225 or Rule 226, or who has admitted on the pleadings that he is, or who has been adjudged to be, a partner;
- (c) Against any person who has been individually served as a partner with the writ of summons and has failed to appear.

(2) If the party who has obtained the judgment or order claims to be entitled to issue execution against any other person as being a member of the firm, he may apply for leave so to do; and the Court or a Judge may give such leave if the liability be not disputed, or if disputed may order that the liability be determined in any manner in which any issue or question in an action may be determined. Except as against any property of the partnership, a judgment against a firm shall not render liable, release or otherwise affect any member thereof who was out of Ontario when the writ was issued, and who has not appeared to the writ unless he has been made a party under Rules 162 to 167, or has been served within Ontario after the writ was issued. Con. Rule 876, amended. (Eng. O. 48a, r. 8.)

Same as Eng. (1891) O. 48a, r. 8.

Rule 223. This Rule provides the mode of realizing a judgment against a firm. Where a partner has been made a party individually, any judgment awarded against him may of course be enforced against him in the ordinary way.

Execution of judgment against a firm and the partners. Where the writ is issued against partners, not individually, but in the name of the firm, service of the writ on one or more will be sufficient: Rule 223; but the judgment must follow the writ and be against the firm: Rule 225. Therefore, if no appearance is entered judgment cannot be entered against any of the individual partners, even though they may have been served with the writ. Execution may, however, under this Rule, be issued, without leave, in the cases mentioned, against individual partners, upon the judgment against the firm: Jackson v. Litchfield, 8 Q. B. D. 474.

Infant partner. Where one of the partners is an infant, under a judgment against the firm, execution may be issued against the firm so as to bind all the partnership assets, and the assets of the adult partners, but the infant partner is not personally bound by the judgment, and execution cannot issue against him individually although he may have been personally served with the writ: Harris v. Beauchamp, 1893, 2 Q. B. 534; and the firm cannot under such a judgment be put into bankruptcy: Re Beauchamp, 1894, 1 Q. B. 1.

Any appropriate form of execution may be issued to reach the property liable under this Rule, and it is presumed that where the property can only be reached by a receiver or other proceedings by way of equitable execution (see Rule 853), the necessary order may be made.

Married woman. Where a married woman is a partner, execution as against her individually can only be against her separate estate as in the case of a judgment against her individually: see Re Frances Handford, 1891, 1 Q. B. 506; Gibson v. Le Temps, 8 O. L. R. 707, and supra, p. 352.

Action on judgment. The plaintiff is not confined to his remedy against the individuals by execution under this Rule, but may bring fresh actions against the partners individually upon the judgment obtained against the firm: Clark v. Cullen, 9 Q. B. D. 355, and a judgment against a firm is no bar to an action against the partners individually on a promissory note given as a collateral security for the same debt: Banque Provinciale v. Arnoldi, 2 O. L. R. 624.

Exigible property. Under an execution against an individual partner the sheriff cannot sell the interest of the partner in the partnership assets. He can seize the partnership goods and sell the execution debtor's share, whatever may be the difficulties that arise thereafter; and the Judicature Act has made no difference in this respect: Harrison v. Harrison, 14 P. R. 436; but it is only the partner's interest in the tangible property of the partnership that can thus be sold: Reaume v. Quebec Bank, 1 O. L. R. 303; 3 O. L. R. 541; the partner's interest in the goodwill or book-debts or anything else which cannot be seized by the sheriff cannot be reached in that way: Helmore v. Smith, 35 Ch. 19, 436.

Clause 1 (c). Clause 1 (c)—Person Individually Served as Partner Failing to Appear.—The service contemplated is such service as is provided for by Rule 223; and "individually" would appear to mean "personally": Jackson v. Litchfield, 8 Q. B. D. 478; 46 L. T. 519.

A person so served, if he is served otherwise than as a partner, Rule 228, must be so notified, and if no notice is given he is deemed to be served as a partner (Rule 224) and must govern himself accordingly. If where so served, or deemed to be served, as a partner, he fails to appear, it would seem that he may be proceeded against under this Rule (clause c). Under the present Rules the doubt referred to in Davis v. André, 24 Q. B. D. 598, as to whether a person was served as a partner or only as manager, will not arise.

Execution by Leave.—This clause (2), only applies where Clause (1) there is in truth a partnership, which is bound by the judgment, in consequence of service upon one of its members, or its manager: see Standard Bank v. Frind, 15 P. R. 438. It does not apply where the plaintiff seeks to obtain, on a judgment against a firm, execution against a person not actually a partner whom he has not served as a partner with the writ, but whom he claims to treat as a partner by estoppel: see per Osler, J.A., in Ray v. Isbister, 22 Ont. App. 16.

Where the action is between a firm and one or more of its members, or between firms having one or more members in common, execution cannot issue at all without leave: see Rule 230.

A judgment against a firm is not conclusive of the liability of a person who has neither admitted on the pleadings that he is, nor has been adjudged to be a partner, nor has been served with the writ. Execution in such case will not be allowed to issue without a trial of the liability under the last clause of the Rule: Ex parte Young, 19 Ch. D. 124; 18 C. L. J. 119.

The Master in Chambers cannot under Rule 616, determine that a person was a partner without directing the trial of an issue if desired: Standard Bank v. Frind, 14 P. R. 355, overruling Tennant v. Mauhard, 12 P. R. 619.

An issue in which the question was whether the person alleged to Form of be a partner "was or had held himself out as a partner in the de-issue. fendant firm" was held to have been rightly ordered: Davis v. Hyman & Co., 1903, 1 K. B. 854; 88 L. T. 284.

The issue will only be as to the question of the partners in the firm against which judgment has been recovered: the validity of the judgment will not be allowed to be put in issue by a person who disputes his liability as a partner: Gibson v. Le Temps, 6 O. L. R. 690.

A statutory declaration of partnership registered under R. S. O. c. 152 is incontrovertible: S. C., 8 O. L. R. 707.

The execution is not limited to partners carrying on business at the date of the writ, but it is a question of fact in each case whether the persons against whom it is desired to issue execution are partners in the firm against which the judgment has been obtained (subject to Rule 223, last clause, and, in the case of partners out of Ontario, to Rule 228 (2), last clause): see Davis v. Morris, 10 Q. B. 11, 436.

Where an individual has entered an appearance in an action against a firm, there must be a novation to render him liable for a debt contracted before he was a member, the fact that the individual had undertaken to indemnify the firm is not enough: Cripps v. Toppin, 1 Can. & El. 13. See Searf v. Jardine, 7 App. Cas. 345.

Rule 228. Joint Contractors.—A judgment obtained against some joint contractors is a bar to an action for the debt against others not so. King v. Hoare, 13 M. & W. 494, and partners are such joint contractors; Kendall v. Hamilton, 4 App. Cas. 504. See Re Holyoake, Beckett v. Ramsdale, 31 Ch. D. 177; 34 W. R. 127; 35 L. J. Chy. 241; Cumbeport v. Chapman, 10 Q. B. D. 220. In Hoare v. Niblett, 1891, 1 Q. B. 781, it was held that the fact that one of the joint contractors was a married woman contracting in respect of her separate property, made no difference in the application of the rule; but the rule does not apply in the case where the judgment against one joint contractor is on a contract by him alone for payment of the joint debt, such as a cheque given by him alone; Weggs Press v. Evans, 1894, 2 Q. B. 101; 1895, 1 Q. B. 108, overruling Cumbeport v. Chapman, supra.

Action against joint contractors.

So also a judgment against one of two tortfeasors is a bar to an action against the other, but an interim injunction followed by a compromise whereby the action is stayed against him is not a bar to an action against the other; Kelly v. Hammond, 2 Times, 804; nor is a judgment against one of two joint debtors under Rule 587, or Rules 603 and 604, a bar to the action as against the other joint debtor who has obtained leave to defend; Ducher Watch Case Manfg. Co. v. Haggart, 26 Ont. App. 265; 30 S. C. R. 373; Wells v. James, 68 L. T. 515; but where two joint contractors were sued, and judgment was entered, by consent, against one, it was held that the plaintiff could not subsequently bring on the action for trial, and obtain judgment against the other; McLeod v. Power, 1898, 1 Ch. 235; 70 L. T. 67. A defendant who relies on the recovery of judgment against another joint contractor as a defence should plead it; ib.

The release of one of two joint debtors under a joint, or joint and several obligation operates as a release of his co-debtors; Hoffman v. Crerar, 18 P. R. 473; 19 P. R. 15; Bogart v. Anderson, 8 O. L. R. 261, and this rule of law applies as much to a judgment debt as to any other obligation; Re E. W. A., a Debtor, 1901, 2 K. B. 642. Where judgments were signed by default of appearance against some defendants, joint contractors, but judgments by default were not warranted by the practice, and the action was proceeded with to trial against other defendants only, it was held that, by proceeding against such other defendants without taking any warranted proceedings against the defendant who failed to appear, the plaintiff must be considered as having abandoned his action against him; Hoffman v. Crerar, 18 P. R. 473; 19 P. R. 15; and a compromise having been made with some of the defendants who did not appear in respect of a debt for which judgment had been obtained against others of the defendants, further proceedings on the judgment were stayed; ib.; but see Edwards v. Hood-Barrs, 1905, 1 Ch. 20; 91 L. T. 766.

Where a judgment has been recovered against one of two joint contractors in ignorance of the liability of the other of them, and without joining him as a party in the action; Hammond v. Schofield, 1891, 1 Q. B. 454, or against an agent in ignorance of his having acted as agent for an undisclosed principal; Toronto Dental Mfg. Co. v. McLaren, 14 P. R. 89, the judgment will not be vacated on the application of the plaintiff in order to enable him to join the other joint debtor, or undisclosed principal, as a defendant, even on the consent of the defendant against whom the judgment has been entered; Hammond v. Schofield, supra.

The above rules of law would, however, seem to be modified by Rule 228, so far as those members of a partnership are concerned who are out of the jurisdiction. The effect of proceeding under Rule 222, et seq., would seem to be that all members of the partnership are sued, though by their firm name, and subject to certain restrictions as to execution: see Heinemann v. Hale, 1891, 2 Q. B. at p. 91, et seq.; Lindley, L.J., in Western, etc., v. Perez, 1891, 1 Q. B. 304.

229. Debts owing from a firm carrying on business within the jurisdiction may be attached under Rule 911, although one or more members of the firm may be resident out of Ontario, provided that any person having the control or management of the partnership business or any member of the firm within Ontario is served with the attaching order. Appearance by a member pursuant to the order shall be sufficient appearance by the firm. New. (Eng. O. 48a, r. 9.)

Attachment of debts owing from a firm.

Same as the Eng. Rule, O. 48a, r. 9.

The right to attach debts is confined to cases where the debtor is within Ontario, and where under Rule 162, leave might be given by the debtor to serve a writ of summons on the garnishee out of the jurisdiction: see Rule 911; Parker v. Odette, 16 P. R. 69; Boswell v. Piper, 17 P. R. 257. The present Rule therefore is an enlargement of the right to attach debts due by firms given by Rule 911, to cases where some of the garnishees are out of Ontario, upon proof that their firm carries on business within the jurisdiction.

The appearance referred to in this Rule is merely the appearance by a member of the firm by solicitor or counsel, upon the motion to pay over, and not the formal entry of an appearance as provided for by Rules 169, 225.

230. Rules 222 to 229 shall apply to actions between a firm and one or more of the members, and to actions between firms having one or more members in common, if the firm or firms carry on business within Ontario, but execution shall not issue in such actions without leave of the Court or a Judge, and on an application for leave, all such accounts and inquiries may be ordered and directions given as may seem just. New. (Eng. O. 48a, r. 10.)

Application of Rules to actions between co-partners.

Same as the Eng. Rule, (O. 48a, r. 10).

Although Rule 228 is made applicable to the class of actions mentioned in this Rule, yet the subsequent words of the Rule show that in no case coming within this Rule is execution to issue without leave.

231.—(1) Any person (whether a British subject or not, and whether residing within or without Ontario), carrying on business within Ontario in a name or style other than his own name, may be sued in such name or style.

Party carrying on a business under a name not his own, how to be sued.

(2) Leave shall not be necessary to issue the writ of summons in such case.

Rule 331.

(3) The writ may be served upon the person so carrying on the business if he be within Ontario, or at the place of business within Ontario, (or if there are several such places, at the place within the county in which the cause of action arose), upon any person having the control or management of the business there; and such service shall be equivalent to personal service on the person so sued.

(4) The person upon whom the writ is served shall be informed by notice in writing, given at the time of service, whether he is so served as the person carrying on the business or as a person having the control or management of the business or in both characters. In default of such notice he shall be deemed to be served as the person carrying on the business.

(5) Any party may apply to the Court or a Judge for a statement of the name and address of the person who is, and of the person who, at the time of the accruing of the cause of action, was, carrying on business in such name or style, to be furnished in such manner and verified on oath or otherwise, as may be directed.

(6) The person so sued shall appear in his own name, but all subsequent proceedings shall continue in the said name or style.

(7) A person served as the person carrying on the business may enter an appearance under protest denying that he is the person so carrying on the business; but such appearance shall not preclude the plaintiff from otherwise serving the person sued or from obtaining judgment in default of appearance in the ordinary form by the person so sued.

(8) Where a writ is served under clause 3 of this Rule on a person having the control or management of, but not carrying on, the business, an appearance by him shall not be necessary.

(9) Any judgment or order in the action may be enforced by execution against

(a) The property of the person so sued, used or employed in or in connection with the business;

(b) The property within Ontario of the person so sued if he has appeared in the action, or has been adjudged to be the person carrying on the business, or has been personally served with the writ within Ontario and has failed to appear.

(10) If the person so sued has not appeared or has not been personally served, or has not been adjudged to be the person carrying on the business, the plaintiff may apply for leave to issue execution against the person within Ontario whom the plaintiff alleges to be the person carrying on the business, and the Court or a Judge may give such leave if the liability be not disputed, or if disputed, may order that the liability of such person be determined in any manner in which any issue or question in an action may be determined. New. (See Con. Rules 266, 271, 280, 318 and Eng. O. 48 a, r. 11.) Rule 231.

See the corresponding Eng. (1891) O. 48a, r. 11.

The present Rule is an adaptation of the procedure provided in the case of a partnership firm. It only authorizes an action against a person in his trade name in connection with the business carried on under that name: Molter v. Burns, 1895, 2 Ch. 630; 73 L. T. 39.

The Rule by its express terms applies to a person not a British subject residing out of the jurisdiction, but carrying on business within the jurisdiction in a name or style other than his own name. To such a case the Eng. R. has been held not to apply: St. Gobain Co. v. Hoyermann's Agency, 1895, 2 Q. B. 96; 69 L. T. 329; 4 R. 441; see also De Bernales v. N. Y. Herald, 68 L. T. 658; 1893, 2 Q. B. 96 (n).

A business carried on under such names as "Mndame Louise" or "Waukenbast," and not being the title of a corporation, will therefore be within the present Rule; so also will probably a business carried on under such circumstances as existed in Standard Bank v. Frind, 15 P. R. 438; St. Gobain v. Hoyermann, supra. In De Bernales v. New York Herald, 1893, 2 Q. B. 96; 68 L. T. 658, it was held that "The New York Herald" was not a firm name, and that it was the name of the thing sold and not the name under which the proprietor trades. The Rule probably does not affect that decision. The Rule would also seem not to include the case of an ecclesiastical order, some of whose members reside within Ontario, as in Golding v. La Sainte Union, etc., 67 L. T. 605; 4 R. 93.

This Rule does not apply where the person so carrying on business has become a lunatic; Rule 157, in such case applies: Fore Street Warehouse Co. v. Durrant & Co., 10 Q. B. D. 471.

It will be noticed that a person carrying on business in the manner described, may be sued in the name or style adopted by him in his business, but he cannot sue in that name; he must sue in his own name: see Mason v. Mogridge, 8 Times, 805; but where a plaintiff named "J. W. Lang," carried on business alone as "J. W. Lang & Co.," and sued by that name it was held that he was suing in his own name, as "and Co." was surplusage and might be struck out: Lang v. Thompson, 16 P. R. 516.

As to what is meant by "carrying on business," see notes to Rule 222.

Service of Writ.—The Rule (clause (3)) prescribes the method of service of a person sued under any name or style other than his own name. (1) The writ may be served in Ontario upon the person sued, or (2) it may be served upon any person having the control or management of the business in Ontario of the person sued. Where Rule 232. the latter mode of service is adopted the person served must be notified in writing that he is served as being the person having the control or management of the business; clause (4). Where the person sued is resident abroad, it would seem that if he is to be personally served with the writ or notice of the writ, the provisions of Rules 165, 166, would have to be observed; but not the provisions of Rules 162-164; see Rule 231, clause (2); and in such a case it would seem that the time for appearance should be more than the ordinary 10 days allowed in the case of service within the jurisdiction, and application should be made for an order regulating the time for appearance in such a case.

Appearance.—Appearance must be entered by the person sued in his individual name; see clause (6), and Taylor v. Collier, 30 W. R. 701. A person served merely as having the control or management of the business need not appear; clause (8).

An appearance under protest by a person served, (see clause 7) denying that he is the person carrying on the business, will of course be entered by him in his own name.

See clause (5) as to the means of ascertaining the person who at the time of the accruing of the cause of action, was the person carrying on the business.

See also notes to Rules 226-228.

Judgment.—Judgment must follow the writ and be against the defendant by the name or style by which he is described in the style of the action.

Execution.—Execution may be enforced against the property employed in the business, wherever there has been a valid service under clause (3), i.e., either upon the person carrying on the business (within Ontario), or at the place of business within Ontario upon some person having the control or management of the business there. To enforce the execution against other property as being that of the owner of the business, it would seem that there must either be proof, or what amounts to an admission, that the owner of the property is the owner of the business, or proof that the owner of the property has had an opportunity of disputing that he is the owner of the business; he therefore (1) must have been adjudged to be the owner of the business; or (2) must have appeared in his own name (not under protest), and so have admitted the fact, or (3) must have been personally served and failed to appear.

Where judgment has been obtained by default on a service not on the owner personally, an application under clause (10) will be necessary where it is desired to reach property not used or employed in or in connection with the business; see also Standard Bank v. Frind, 15 P. R. 438, under the former Rules.

6. JOINDER OF CAUSES OF ACTION.

What causes of action may be joined.

232. Subject to the following Rules, the plaintiff may unite, in the same action, several causes of action. Con. Rule 340.

Substantially identical with the first clause of Eng. (1883) R. 188.

Multifariousness, or the uniting of separate and distinct subjects in one suit, was formerly a ground for demurrer; but is now no objection of itself: see Cox v. Barker, 3 Ch. D. 359; and the right to join several causes of action is not limited to cases where they are between the same parties, nor (save as provided in these Rules) in the same right.

The present Rule is an extension of s. 84 of the C. L. P. Act, and it is apprehended that the words "cause of action" must receive the same construction as they received under the above section of the C. L. P. Act: see Bustros v. White, 1 Q. B. D. 423. The Rule must, therefore, as put by an able commentator on the English Judicature Act, be taken to include, not only different legal relations arising out of the same transaction, but also separate and independent transactions: Wilson's Jud. Act, 7th ed., 189.

Where there is but one plaintiff and one defendant, then the plaintiff may, apparently, without any restriction, join in an action any number of separate and distinct causes of action, but subject to separate trials being directed of issues which cannot, without prejudice to either of the parties, be tried at the same time: see Rule 237. Where, however, there are two or more plaintiffs or defendants, then different considerations arise, and the plaintiff's right to join separate and distinct causes of action is subject to important limitations. Though it is not necessary that every defendant in an action shall be interested as to all the relief claimed by the plaintiff or as to every cause of action included therein, (Rule 187) yet it is not competent for a plaintiff or plaintiffs to join in the same action several defendants against whom wholly separate and distinct causes of action are alleged.

The provisions of this Rule are therefore subject to Rule 186, respecting the joinder of parties defendant.

In Honduras Ry. Co. v. Tucker, 2 Ex. D. 301, there was one subject matter, a contract made and broken. The plaintiffs claimed relief against L. who made it, if T. was authorized to make it as agent of L., but if not so authorized then against T. as principal. Both were held to be rightly made defendants. Examples.

In Bagot v. Easton, 7 Ch. D. 1, separate alternative causes of action were held to have been properly joined against the same defendant.

In Dessilla v. Schunck, etc., W. N. 1880, 96, it was held that separate causes of action against separate defendants might be joined with joint and several causes of action, where all related to the same subject matter.

A plaintiff cannot join an individual claim with one by him on behalf of a class, unless they arise out of the same transaction: Stroud v. Lawson, 1898, 2 Q. B. 44; 78 L. T. 729.

A cause of action against promoters and directors of a company, for a fraud and conspiracy in pursuance of which they had carried out certain purchases, loans, etc., and a cause of action against directors alone for, in regard to the first cause of action, having been guilty of a breach of duty as directors, were held to be properly joined: Keut, etc., v. Martin, 16 Times, 486.

A claim by plaintiffs who were mortgagees to set aside a lease by the mortgagor, joined with a claim by a co-plaintiff, who was assignee for the creditors of the mortgagor, for the avoidance of the lease, as having been made voluntarily and with intent to defraud creditors,

Rules 233, 234. were held to be improperly joined: Bank of Hamilton v. Anderson, 7 O. L. R. 613; 3 O. L. R. 153.

A claim by two plaintiffs, a married man and an unmarried woman, in respect of charges of criminal intimacy made on three different occasions by the defendant, was held to be proper, there being publication as to all, and the three occasions being a series with a common question of fact: Agar v. Escott, 8 O. L. R. 177.

Lord Selborne, in Burstall v. Beyfus, 26 Ch. D. 39, said: "To bring into one claim distinct causes of action against different persons neither having anything to do with the other (and only historically connected) is not contemplated by Order 18, s. 1 (Rule 232)."

The liberty given by the present Rule is, however, subject to the limitations contained in the following Rules, and to the discretion of the Court (see Rule 237) to interfere in order to prevent issues being raised which embarrass a fair trial of the action.

Action to Recover Land.—The former Con. Rules 341 and 1315 did not allow the joining without leave in an action to recover land, any other claims except claims in respect of mesne profits or arrears of rent, or double value in respect of the premises claimed, or any part thereof, and damages for breach of any contract under which the same or any part thereof were held, or for any wrong or injury to the premises claimed, or for specific performance, or for an injunction or receiver in respect of the same lands, or the rents and profits thereof. Those Rules are repealed, and there is now nothing to prevent any cause of action from being joined with one for the recovery of land: but the Court has power to prevent the joining in one action of claims which are incongruous and inconvenient to try together: Rule 237.

assignee in insolvency.

233. A claim by an assignee in insolvency [or for the benefit of creditors], shall not, unless by leave of the Court or a Judge, be joined with any claim by him in any other capacity. Con. Rule 342.

Same as Eng. (1883) R. 190, except that for "an assignee in insolvency or for the benefit of creditors," the English Rule has "a Trustee in Bankruptcy."

The words in brackets are new in the present Rule.

The general rule as to joinder of causes of action being now made without the proviso contained in C. L. P. Act, s. 84, that they be in the same rights, it became necessary to specify cases in which causes of action accruing in different capacities shall not be joined. This is one of the cases: see also Rule 235.

Claims by or against husband and wife.

234. A claim by or against husband and wife may be joined with claims by or against either of them separately. Con. Rule 343.

Same as Eng. (1883) R. 191.

By the Common Law Procedure Act (R. S. O. 1877, c. 50, s. 86), a husband might add claims in his own right in an action brought by him and his wife, for a cause of action accruing personally to the wife in respect of which they were necessarily co-plaintiffs: see Harrison, C. L. P. Act, 87.

235. A claim by or against an executor or administrator may be joined with a claim by or against him personally, provided the last mentioned claim is alleged to have arisen with reference to the estate represented by him in the action. Rules 235-237.
Claims by or against executor.
Con. Rule 344.

Same as Eng. (1883) R. 192.

"Alleged," i.e., in the writ or pleadings: Davis v. Saintsbury, 1 Times, 538.

In an action against executors founded on an alleged promise of a testator to leave a sum of money to the plaintiff by his will, it was held that the plaintiff could not join a claim against the executors personally for fraudulently influencing the testator to omit such bequest: Whitworth v. Darbishire, 41 W. R. 317; 68 L. T. 216; 5 R. 198.

Scmble, that as regards claims by an executor, this Rule refers to a case where the plaintiff's personal claim is in respect of the assets of the testator qua assets; the claim as executor and the claim personally are to be with reference to the same estate: Johnson v. Johnson, 47 L. J. Chy. 552.

The Rule it seems does not apply to a counter-claim, so as to enable the defendant to set up by way of counter-claim, claims against the plaintiff personally and as executor, where he is only suing in a distinct personal character: Macdonald v. Carington, 4 C. P. D. 28.

236. A claim by plaintiffs jointly may be joined with a claim by them or any of them separately against the same defendant. Joint and several claims.
Con. Rule 345

Same as the Eng. (1883) R. 193.

237. If several causes of action joined in the same action are such as cannot be conveniently disposed of in one action, the Court or a Judge may order any of them to be excluded, or may direct the issues respecting the separate causes of action to be tried separately, and may direct the statement of claim, or, if no statement of claim has been delivered, the copy of the writ and the indorsement of claim thereon to be amended accordingly. Order for separate issues.
Con. Rule 346.

See Eng. (1883) Rs. 188, 194, 195, 196.

In Re Worssam, Hemery v. Worssam, 51 L. J. Ch. 669, the Court declined to entertain an action to set aside a transaction, and in the same proceedings inquire whether to do so was for the benefit of infants or unborn persons.

The provisions of the Rules for preventing any of the parties from being prejudiced are two:

(1) A claim which emharrasses a fair trial of the action may be struck out: Rules 237, 298. This was done in a case where a claim was made for inconsistent alternative relief by different plaintiffs: Smith v. Richardson, 4 C. P. D. 112, where the vendor of goods and the indorsees of a bill given by the purchaser to the vendor for the price, jointly sued the purchaser, the vendor, to recover the price, and the other plaintiffs to recover upon the dishonoured bill.

Rules238, 239.

Where the plaintiff's claim was for infringement of 23 different patents, this was considered embarrassing to the defendants, and the action was confined to a limited number: Saccharin, etc., v. Wild, 1903, 1 Ch. 410; Saccharin, etc., v. White, 1903, W. N. 120; 88 L. J. 850.

Separate trials.

(2) The Court may direct the different causes of action to be tried separately under this Rule: see Bagot v. Easton, 7 Ch. D. 1; Child v. Stenning, 5 Ch. D. 695, and Day v. Radcliffe, 24 W. R. 84; Barker v. Cox, 3 Ch. D. 359; Hannay v. Smurthwaite, 1893, 2 Q. B. 412; 1894, A. C. 494. This course might formerly have been directed under R. S. O. 1877, c. 50, s. 85; see Fitzsimmons v. McIntyre, 5 P. R. 119. In Rodger v. Nowon Co., 19 P. R. 327, it was held to be proper where the two causes of action were wrongful dismissal and slander.

Compare similar power given in Rule 254, in regard to counter-claims, and see Hall v. Old Talargoch Lead Mining Co., 45 L. J. Chy. 775; 34 L. T. 901; Re Woodfine, 38 L. T. 753; Dessilla v. Schunck, etc., W. N. 1880, 96; Cox v. Barker, 3 Ch. D. 372.

7. CROWN ACTIONS.

Forms and procedure in Crown actions.

238. The procedure and forms which are from time to time in force for the prosecution of rights, claims or demands, or for the recovery of the possession of any lands, deeds or personal property between subject and subject, shall be used in the like cases for the prosecution of rights, claims or demands which [His] Majesty may have against any person, or for the recovery of the possession of any lands, deeds or personal property whereto [His] Majesty claims to be entitled, but the right of reply shall be always allowed to the Attorney-General, and to any [King's] Counsel having written authority from him for that purpose. Con. Rule 364.

Taken from R. S. O. 1877, c. 58, ss. 6, 8.

The Court may on the application of the Crown strike out a jury notice in a Crown action: Reg. v. Grant, 17 P. R. 165.

The Crown has the same right of discovery as a subject has in an ordinary action: see Atty.-Gen. v. Newcastle, 1897, 2 Q. B. 384, but is not bound to give discovery: Id. See note, p. 608.

As to the right of reply, see a similar provision in the Crim. Code, 1892, s. 661, and Rea v. Martin, 9 O. L. R. 218.

Costs in revenue cases.

239. In case in any action, information, or other proceeding before any Court or tribunal in Ontario, by or on behalf of the Crown, against any person in respect of any lands, or of any goods or chattels belonging or accruing to the Crown, or standing or being in the name of [His] Majesty, or in respect of any sum of money due and owing to [His] Majesty by virtue of any vote of the Legislature for the service of the Crown, or by virtue of any statute relating to the public revenue, or in any manner whatsoever, judgment is given for the Crown, [His] Majesty's Attorney-General may recover costs, subject to the same rules as though such proceedings had been between subject and subject. Con. Rule 365. Rules 240, 241.

Taken from R. S. O. 1877, c. 58, s. 9.

See note to Jud. Act, s. 119.

240. If in any information, action, or other proceeding, judgment is given against the Crown, the defendant shall be entitled to costs, subject to the same rules as though such proceeding had been had between subject and subject. Con. Rule 366. Defendant may recover costs in revenue cases.

Taken from R. S. O. 1877, c. 58, s. 10.

In Atty. Gen. v. Williamson, 60 L. T. 930, the Atty-Gen. notified the defendant that the information would not be further prosecuted, and it was held that there was no power to dismiss it for want of prosecution, or to award costs to the defendant as the cause was not determined. Quare, in Ontario.

241. Notwithstanding the want of enrolment, writs of summons to repeal letters patent, grants or other matter of record under the Great Seal, shall be issued in the same cases and under the same restrictions, as nearly as may be. as writs of scire facias were on the 5th day of December, 1859, issuable from the Court of Chancery in England; and all the proceedings thereafter shall be the same as the proceedings in an ordinary action; but before the issue of any such writ, the person making application for the same shall, in addition to the fiat of the Attorney-General, file in the Court from which the writ is to be issued, an exemplification under the Great Seal of the Province of the letters patent, grant or other matter of record with respect to which the said writ is to be issued. Con. Rule 367. High Court may issue writs of summons in the same cases as scire facias, formerly issued.

Taken from R. S. O. 1877, c. 58, ss. 11, 12.

As to the jurisdiction of the Court in regard to the cancellation of letters patent, see J. A., s. 26 (7), (8), and note p. 24.

PLEADINGS.

- | | |
|--|--|
| 1. STATEMENT OF CLAIM, 242-245. | 5. CLOSE OF PLEADINGS, 262, 263. |
| 2. DEFENCE AND COUNTER-CLAIM, 246-255. | 6. GENERAL RULES OF PLEADING, 264-288. |
| 3. REPLY AND SUBSEQUENT PLEADINGS, 256-258. | 7. PLEADING MATTERS ARISING PENDING ACTION, 289-295. |
| 4. RAISING QUESTIONS OF LAW IN PLEADINGS, 259-261. | 8. STRIKING OUT, AMENDING PLEADINGS, ETC., 300-308. |

1. STATEMENT OF CLAIM.

Statement
of claim.

242. The plaintiff shall state the nature of his claim and the relief sought in a pleading to be called the Statement of Claim. Con. Rule 368.

Statement of claim,
when necessary.

A statement of claim is necessary where the defendant has not dispensed with it at the time of appearance; see Appendix, Form 27 (H. & L. Forms, No. 105), and Rule 243, and even where no appearance is entered, if the case is one in which the plaintiff can only obtain judgment by motion for judgment: see Minton v. Metcalfe, 46 L. J. Chy. 584; Hunter v. Wilcockson, 9 P. R. 305, except where Rule 176 applies.

No statement of claim is necessary where (1) the defendant does not require one; see Rule 171, and notes; or (2) the Court dispenses with it; Chorlton v. Dickie, 13 Ch. D. 160; or (3) the defendant has not appeared, and the final judgment can be obtained by default of appearance; see Rules 575-578, and 596, or (4) a defendant has not been allowed to defend under Rule 603.

If the defendant dispenses with the delivery of a statement of claim, the writ of summons, a copy of which has been already filed (Rule 123), becomes the only pleading necessary; and it stands as and for a statement of claim, and becomes amendable as a statement of claim would be under Rule 300: Confederation Life v. Moore, 6 O. L. R. 648. Where a statement of claim is necessary, if the writ has been specially indorsed, the plaintiff may deliver notice, under Rule 245, that his claim is that which appears by the indorsement upon the writ. Where such notice will not suffice, the statement of claim will be framed in accordance with the Form No. 10 given in the Appendix (H. & L. Forms, No. 123).

The plaintiff may deliver a statement, even though the defendant has stated in his appearance that he does not require one; Rule 245 (b); subject to the power of the Court, or the taxing officer (Rule 1154), with regard to costs occasioned thereby, if the delivery be unnecessary or improper.

Form of Statement of Claim.—A statement of claim should Rule 243. follow the writ as to the names of the parties and the character in which they are sued or suing. The plaintiff will not be strictly Form. confined to the particulars of his cause of action indorsed on the writ: see Rule 244 and notes.

The plaintiff need not ask relief against all the defendants named in the writ, but may claim against some only, if he abandons proceedings against the rest, but not otherwise: Arch. Prac., 13th ed., 215.

In a statement of claim the mention of the date of the issue of the writ of summons, as shewn in Form 10, is essential. Where it was omitted, leave to amend was given on a motion to set aside the statement of claim: Scott v. Creighton, 9 P. R. 252.

As to printing the statement of claim, see Rule 265. As to the causes of action which may be joined, see Rule 232. As to the form in which material facts should be set out, see Rule 268.

The facts in support of each separate cause of action should be separately stated as far as may be: Rule 274. Under the English Rules it has been said that, in general, a defence should not be anticipated and answered: Hall v. Eve, 4 Ch. D. 341; Clarke v. Callow, 46 L. J. Q. B. 53. The relief desired must be asked for: Rule 273.

The place where the plaintiff proposes to try the action is to be mentioned in the statement of claim; and (subject to exceptions mentioned in Rule 529), the plaintiff has a prima facie right to have the trial at any place he names: Rule 529; unless otherwise ordered: see notes to Rule 529.

As to what variations from the indorsement on the writ may be made in the statement of claim, see Rule 244.

Attention should be given to the matters mentioned in Rule 266 to be marked on the pleading. For the time for delivery, see Rules 243 and 349; and as to the mode of delivery, see Rule 329. A copy should be filed as well as served: Rule 267.

243 The delivery of the statement of claim shall be regulated as follows:—

Time within which to be delivered.

(a) If the defendant does not state that he does not require the delivery of a statement of claim, the plaintiff shall, unless otherwise ordered by the Court or a Judge, deliver it within three months from the entering of appearance;

(b) The plaintiff may, if he thinks fit, deliver a statement of claim, with the writ, or notice in lieu of writ, or at any time afterwards, either before or after appearance, and although the defendant may have appeared and stated that he does not require the delivery of a statement of claim: but in no case where a defendant has appeared shall a statement be delivered more than 3 months after the appearance has been entered, unless otherwise ordered by the Court or a Judge. Con. Rule 369.

Rule 243. Clause (a)—The Eng. (1883) R. 225 is different, as was also the corresponding Eng. Rule of 1873.

Clause (b)—Substantially the same as Eng. (1883) R. 225 d.

The defendant is, in his memorandum of appearance, to state whether or not he requires the delivery of a statement of claim: see Rule 171 and Appendix Form, No. 27 (H. & L. Forms, No. 105).

Where the defendant states that he does not require a statement of claim, and delivers a defence, the plaintiff is not, thereafter, at liberty to deliver a statement of claim. The writ in that case becomes in effect the statement of claim, and if not sufficient may be amended like an ordinary statement of claim: see Rule 300; Confederation Life v. Moore, 6 O. L. R. 648.

As to delivery of defence where no statement of claim is required by defendant: see Rule 247.

If the plaintiff delivers a statement of claim though not required to, the defendant must deliver a defence, but the plaintiff may be disallowed the costs of the statement of claim if it was unnecessary: see Rule 1154.

A guardian ad litem of an infant, and a married woman, may waive delivery of a statement of claim: see Knatchbull v. Foebe, W. N. 1876, 2; Pryer v. Wiseman, W. N. 1876, 3.

The three months are calendar months: Rule 342; and in computing them vacation is not reckoned: Rule 352. For the mode of delivery, see Rules 266 and 329.

Extension of time,

Extending Time for Delivery.—As to extension of time, see Higginbottom v. Aynsley, 3 Ch. D. 288.

An order extending the time will not be made ex parte: Wight v. Harris, 9 P. R. 276.

A statement of claim filed after the time for doing so has expired without leave, has been held under the Irish Act to be not irregular, unless the defendant has served a notice of motion to dismiss: O'Connell v. O'Connell and Sampson v. O'Donnell, 6 L. R. Ir. 470, 471; but in Ontario it has been decided that a statement so filed is irregular, and may be struck out on motion in Chambers unless circumstances are shewn justifying an extension of time: Clarke v. McEwing, 9 P. R. 281; see clause (b) and Anon., 25 Sol. Jour. 511. It cannot be treated as a nullity: Gill v. Woodfin, 25 Ch. D. 707; see also Graves v. Terry, in notes to Rules 246, 256.

On a motion to strike out as irregular a statement of claim delivered after the proper time an order may be made allowing it to stand, and any proper terms may be imposed as a condition of its being validated: Toronto v. Ramsden, 5 O. W. R. 381, 413.

An application to enlarge the time will, in general, be by motion in Chambers. Or the time may be enlarged by consent: Rule 347. The consent should be in writing, and no order is then necessary: Ambrose v. Evelyn, 11 Ch. D. 759.

Where, by mistake of a clerk of the plaintiff's solicitor, the statement of claim was served too late by two days, further time was given. The Court thought it immaterial that plaintiff had delayed bringing the action till shortly before the Statute of Limitations would have barred the claim: Canadian Oil Works v. Hoy, 38 L. T.

540; W. N. 1878, 107; but the Court has refused to renew a writ of Rule 244 summons after the time for effecting the renewal has expired, where the claim, in the absence of such renewal, would be barred by the Statute of Limitations: Doyle v. Kaufman, 3 Q. B. D. 7, 340; Hewitt v. Barr, 1801, 1 Q. B. 98.

Where a statement of claim was delivered after the time limited by an order, and an order afterwards was made extending the time for delivery on payment of $20 costs, and the costs were paid, but no new statement delivered, it was held, that though the delivery was irregular, it was waived by retaining the copy served and the costs: Pierce v. Palmer, 12 P. R. 275.

Where an order is made giving a further limited time to file a pleading, and providing that, in default, judgment may be signed, a judgment signed without serving a copy of the order is regular: see Farden v. Richter, 23 Q. B. D. 124.

After nine years' delay in proceeding to deliver a statement of claim in an action by solicitors on a bill of costs, the delay being owing to the fact that defendant was unable to pay, the plaintiffs were allowed to deliver a statement of claim, on terms of not charging interest, and a set-off of the costs of the motion, and the plaintiffs submitting to a taxation of the bill sued on: Finkle v. Lutz, 14 P. R. 446.

Where further time for a month "peremptory" was given, this was held to mean that the pleading must be delivered within the specified time, unless the order itself be expressly altered by any subsequent order: Falck v. Azheim, 38 W. R. 196.

See also notes to Rules 246, 256, 432.

Shortening Time.—Where plaintiff has obtained an injunction, or registered a lis pendens, or for other reasons justice so requires, the plaintiff may be ordered under Rule 353 to file a statement of claim before the three months above mentioned: see Armstrong v. Toronto & R. E. St. Ry., 15 P. R. 449; Hall v. Forteye, 9 C. L. T. 231; Jamieson v. Loing, 7 P. R. 404; Sheppa v. Kennedy, 10 P. R. 242.

The plaintiff becomes in such case "bound to deliver a statement of claim" (see Rule 432) within such shortened time, but the order should not provide that on default the action be dismissed: such an order is under Rule 432 only to be made "after the expiration of such time": Armstrong v. Toronto, etc., supra.

244. Wherever a statement of claim is delivered, the plaintiff may therein alter, modify or extend his claim without any amendment of the indorsement of the writ. New.

Claim beyond indorsement.

Same as Eug. (1883) R. 228, and passed in affirmance of Large v. Large, W. N. 1877, 198. See also Smith v. Richardson, 4 C. P. D. 112; Johnson v. Palmer, Id. 258; Eyre v. Cor, 24 W. R. 317; Wilmott v. Frechold, 51 L. T. 551.

The construction placed upon the corresponding Eng. Rule has been that it applies only where a statement of claim is actually delivered, not where it is constructively delivered, under Eng. (1883) R. 206 (see Con. Rule 330), in case of non-appearance, by filing with the proper officer.

Rule 245.

It is presumed therefore that a similar view will be taken where, in Ontario, a defendant has not appeared, and a statement of claim has to be served under Rule 330 by posting up a copy in the proper office, so that if a defendant does not appear the plaintiff cannot in his statement of claim enlarge his claim as indorsed on the writ: Law v. Philby (2), 35 W. R. 450; Gee v. Bell, 35 Ch. D. 191; see also Ford v. Brown, 20 L. R. 1r. 185; Stone v. Smith, 35 Ch. D. 188.

Probably this Rule only expresses what was formerly decided, viz., that the plaintiff will not be strictly confined to the particulars mentioned in the writ: see before the Jud. Act, Sweden v. Sarsden, 4 P. R. 276; Huggins v. Guilph Barrel Co., 8 P. R. 170; and after the Jud. Act in Johnson v. Palmer, 4 C. P. D. 258; Large v. Larp, W. N. 1877, 108; Lainchberry v. Dunn, 9 C. L. T. 412.

An absolutely distinct and different cause of action from any mentioned in the indorsement on the writ may not be set up in the statement of claim: United Telephone Co. v. Tasker, 50 L. T. 852; Cave v. Creche, 68 L. T. 254; 41 W. R. 350; W. N. 1893, 42; 3 L. 401; Kerr v. Williams, W. N. 1886, 16; 30 Sol. J. 238; nor a claim arising pendente lite: McLean v. McLean, 17 P. R. 440.

The added claim must have some direct relation to the original claim, but, being so related, the claim may be substantially different from that indorsed on the writ, thus, where the claim on the writ was for specific performance, a statement of claim for cancellation of the agreement and recovery of possession of the land in question was held to be a legitimate extension: Gibson v. Hieb, 1 O. L. R. 247; and see Alexander v. Alexander, 1 O. L. R. 630; so a claim that is supplementary to the original claim will be proper, as where the writ was by a mortgagee against a mortgagor, indorsed for an injunction to restrain waste, and the statement of claim claimed also possession of the land by reason of default in the mortgage: Smith v. Martin, 18 P. R. 227.

An objection that the statement of the claim goes beyond the writ should be taken promptly; if not made till the trial, it is too late: Bugbee v. Clergue, 27 Ont. App. 90, 717; Gibson v. Hieb, supra.

Notice in lieu of statement
of claim.

245.—(1) Where the writ is specially indorsed and the defendant has not dispensed with a statement of claim, it shall be sufficient for the plaintiff to deliver as his statement of claim a notice to the effect that his claim is that which appears by the indorsement upon the writ, unless the Court or a Judge orders him to deliver a further statement.

(2) Such notice may be according to Form No. 48.

(3) Where the plaintiff is ordered to deliver such further statement it shall be delivered within such time as by the order is directed; and if no time is so limited then within the time prescribed by Rule 243. Con. Rule 370; Rules 23 June, 1894, 1317.

Substantially the same as Eng. R. 1875, O. 21, r. 4, Eng. (1883) R. 225 (a), is different. It makes a specially indorsed writ always serve as the statement of claim, and provides that no further statement of claim shall be delivered: Rule 245.

For Form No. 48, see H. & L. Forms, No. 24.

A "specially indorsed" writ would seem to be one indorsed with- in the meaning of Rule 138: See notes to that Rule.

A writ specially indorsed, and a notice given under this Rule, were in the earlier decisions on the Act, held together to constitute a pleading which might be demurred to; Robertson v. How et al., 3 C. P. 1, 280; but it was subsequently decided that a demurrer was not proper, and that the defendant's course was to apply under the present Rule for delivery of a further statement of claim: Faucus v. Charlton, 11 Q. B. 1, 516. Demurrers are now abolished: see Rules 259, et seq.

The plaintiff ought to indorse his writ for money claims, in such a way that a notice may be given under this Rule, and with the view that the indorsement may furnish all necessary information to the defendant in regard to the claim: see Booth, W. N. 1875, 202, per Lush, J. Where the indorsement is not sufficiently explicit, particulars may be ordered, and further time to put in a defence given, if necessary: see Cotton v. Houseman, W. N. 1876, 22; 2 Charl. Ch. Ch. 30; but the proper form of application in such case would seem to be for a further statement of claim: Schomberg v. Zucbelli, W. N. 1876, 106; 1 Charl. Ch. Ch. 36. Particulars of lump sums, for which credit was given, were ordered in Godden v. Corsten, 5 C. P. D. 17.

For further information with regard to particulars, see notes to Rules 138, 209.

In an action for money alleged to have been obtained by fraudulent misrepresentation, the nature of the misrepresentation, and the particulars of the sums sued for being set out in the indorsement of the writ, it was held that notice in lieu of a statement of claim was sufficient, and a motion to compel the delivery of a better statement of claim was refused: Young v. Beattie, 16 L. R. Ir. 192.

2. DEFENCE AND COUNTER-CLAIM.

The defendant may waive the delivery to him of a statement of claim: Rule 171. If none is then delivered he must deliver his statement of defence within 8 days from appearance: Rule 247. For the time for delivering a statement of defence, see Rule 246.

The facts relating to the defence must be stated in the same manner as is provided in respect to other pleadings: Rules 268, et seq. If the defendant has no facts to set up he may simply "take issue" or deny the statement of claim. Such a pleading will prevent an implied admission and put the plaintiff to the proof of his claim: Rule 272; Hare v. Cartkrope, 11 P. R. 355; Malcolm v. Race, 16 P. R. 330; and see Irvine v. Turner, ib. 349. All facts not in the statement of claim on which the defendant means to rely should be set out: Rule 271. Where distinct grounds of defence are relied on, founded on separate and distinct facts, such facts should be stated separately and distinctly: Rule 274. Though a defendant is not taken to have admitted what he does not deny (see Rule 272), he should nevertheless make all proper admissions: Rule 269; otherwise he may have to bear the costs rendered necessary by the failure to Rule 246. admit: Rule 1149. The character in which the plaintiff sues (Rule 280), the incorporation of a corporate party (Rule 281), and the legality or sufficiency of a contract in point of law, if intended to be disputed, must be expressly traversed (Rule 282). In an action for the recovery of land the defendant need only state that he is in possession, unless he has some equitable ground to set up: Rule 285.

There may be a plea to the jurisdiction: see Rule 162, Dart v. Citizens Ins Co., 11 P. R. 513.

Inconsistent pleas may still be used where applicable: Re Morgan, Owen v. Morgan, 35 Ch. D. 492; e.g., in an action for money, a denial of the loan, and plea that, if lent, it has been repaid or release given: Barnicott v. Hann, W. N. 1876, 24; 2 Charl. Ch. Ca. 39. A defence amounting to pleas of not guilty, and justification, may be properly pleaded: Restell v. Steward, W. N. 1875, 231; 1 Charl. Ch. Ca. 87. The offering of an apology, payment into Court, and a justification may be pleaded together in an action for libel: Hawkesley v. Bradshaw, 5 Q. B. D. 302. This was not formerly allowed; see Doyle v. Owen Sound Printing Co., 8 P. R. 69. But where payment into Court was pleaded together with a justification, in a libel action, and it was not clear from the pleading in respect of which particular part of the cause of action the payment was made, the defence was struck out as embarrassing: Fleming v. Dollar, 23 Q. B. D. 388; and see Rule 421.

As a general rule, the defendants may deny the plaintiff's cause of action, and plead payment into Court in respect to the whole or any part of them: Rules 419, 420; Berdan v. Greenwood, 3 Ex. D. 251, in which the decision in Spury v. Hall, 2 Q. B. D. 615, was questioned. A defendant may plead "not guilty by Statute" where that defence is applicable: Rule 283; also grounds of defence arising after action brought, but before delivery of defence: Rules 289, et seq.; but pleading in abatement is abolished: Rule 283.

The Rules following in relation to counter-claims are made in order to give effect to the Jud. Act, s. 57 (7), supra.

As to counter-claims, see note to Rule 251.

Frivolous, vexatious, or scandalous defeaces, or defences tending to prejudice, embarrass, or delay the fair trial of the action, may be struck out on motion in Chambers: see Rule 298 and notes.

When defence must be delivered.

246. Where a statement of claim is delivered to a defendant he shall deliver his defence or counter-claim within 8 days from the delivery of the statement of claim, or from the time limited for appearance, whichever shall be last, unless such time is extended by the Court or a Judge. Con. Rule 371, Rules 23 June, 1894, 1318.

Same as the Eng. (1883) R. 239, except that the Eng. R. has 10 days. The eight days will be counted from the last day for appearance, where a statement of claim has been delivered with the writ, or before appearance: see Rule 243 (b), and not from the actual entry of appearance where it has been entered before the time for appearing has expired: McCulloch v. Hamilton, 32 C. L. J. 364; Lovell v. Taylor, 5 O. W. R. 525, 527. Vacation is not reckoned in the eight days: Rule 352.

A "defence" and a "counter-claim" cannot be delivered separately. Rule 247. but must be included in one pleading: see Form 13 (H. & L. Forms No. 127), and Halloway v. York, 25 W. R. 627; also Bagot v. Easton, 11 Ch. D. 392. It would seem, however, that a "reply" to the statement of defence, and a "defence" to the counter-claim may, where necessary, be delivered separately: see notes to Rule 250.

The time may be extended by consent (Rule 347), which to avoid question should be in writing: Ambroise v. Evelyn, 11 Ch. L. 759. No order is then necessary: but if a consent cannot be obtained, the Court is liberal in granting further time. The motion for further time is made in Chambers on notice: Wigle v. Harris, 9 P. R. 276.

If a defence is not put in, the pleadings may be noted as closed, after which no defence may be received or filed without an order (Rule 263), or, it is presumed, a consent (Rule 347). Where proceedings are not taken to note the pleadings as closed, a defence put in without leave, after the proper time but before judgment, cannot be treated as a nullity: Gill v. Woodfin, 25 Ch. D. 707; see also Harding v. Lyons, 13 L. R. Ir. 302; Gibbings v. Strong, 26 Ch. D. 66; and notes to Rules 243, 256, and 263.

An action should not now be set down on motion for judgment by default of pleading until the pleadings are noted as closed: see notes to Rule 263, but if a defence be filed after such noting: Jackson v. Gardiner, 19 P. R. 137; or even after the action has been set down on motion for judgment the defence though irregular cannot be treated as a nullity and ignored: See Gill v. Woodfin, and other cases supra, and notes to Rule 263.

A defence delivered after the time, and after a motion for leave to deliver it had been refused, was set aside with costs: Meehan v. Meehan, 14 L. R. Ir. 301.

A defence delivered after the time, and upon the day when the case was to be heard on a motion for judgment, was held to be irregular and ordered to be struck out, unless the defendant paid the costs of setting down the action on motion for judgment, within a limited time: Snider v. Snider, 11 P. R. 34.

Where an order is made giving a further limited time for filing defence, and providing that in default judgment may be signed, a judgment signed after default is regular, though no copy of the order is served: Farden v. Richter, 23 Q. B. D. 124.

A counter-claim has been allowed to be filed after issue joined: Erans v. Gann, W. N. 1875, 199; but it may be too late after the case is entered for trial: Ware v. Gwynne, W. N. 1875, 240.

See also notes to Rules 243, 256.

247. A defendant who has appeared and stated that he does not require the delivery of a statement of claim and to whom a statement of claim is not delivered, may deliver a defence or counter-claim at any time within 8 days after his appearance, unless such time is extended by the Court or a Judge. Con. Rule 372, Rules 23 June, 1894, 1319.

Where no statement of claim.

Except as to time, the same as the Eng. R. 1875, O. 22, r. 2. The Eng. (1883) R. 240, is different.

Rule 248. "After his appearance." Not "after the time limited for appearance," as in Rule 246.

"And to whom a statement of claim is not delivered."—Notwithstanding that the defendant by his appearance states that he does not require the delivery of a statement of claim, the plaintiff may deliver one: Rule 243 (b); but this can only be done before the defendant, treating the writ as a statement of claim, delivers a defence to it: Confederation Life v. Moore, 6 O. L. R. 648; the defendant has, under Rule 247, 8 days from his appearance within which to deliver such a defence. If before such a defence is delivered the plaintiff delivers a statement of claim, the defence must be delivered to, and within the 8 days from the delivery of, the statement of claim: Rule 246.

In Harrison v. Surrey Masonic Hall Co., and Grimshaw, etc., v. McDowell, 66 L. T. Jour. 277 (cited in Chitty Forms, p. 116), it was held that where the defendant dispenses with the delivery of a statement of claim, he must deliver his defence within eight days from his appearance, otherwise judgment may be signed under Rule 587. These cases overruled Hooper v. Giles, W. N. 1876, 10; 1 Chanc. Ch. Ca. 68, (see note to Rule 587).

Where counter-claim affects third person

248 Where a defendant sets up a counter-claim which raises questions between himself and the plaintiff and (a) any other person, he shall [entitle it as a statement of claim], setting forth the names of all the persons who, if such counter-claim were to be enforced by cross-action, would be defendants to such cross-action, and shall deliver his counter-claim to such of them as are parties to the action within the period within which he is required to deliver it to the plaintiff. Con. Rule 376.

For the form of the title required by this Rule, see App. Form 13 (H. & L. Forms, No. 127).

(a) For the word "and" the former Con. R. 376 had, and the Eng. (1883) R. 244 has, "along with."

The Eng. R. 244 reads, "questions between himself and the plaintiff along with any other person," and this does not authorize a counter-claim by defendant raising "questions between himself along with any other person and the plaintiff," so that where the defendant and a third party had a joint cause of action against the plaintiff, even though arising out of the same circumstances that gave rise to the plaintiff's cause of action, a counter-claim by the defendant against the plaintiff, making also the third party a defendant to it, was struck out: Pender v. Taddei, 1898, 1 Q. B. 708. Under the present Rule 248, such a counter-claim would also seem to be unauthorized. The variation in the language of the Rule would not seem to change its meaning in this respect. The intention would seem to be that relief by counter-claim is confined to defendant and that a third party (not being a defendant in the action) cannot be thus directly or indirectly introduced into an action so as to enable him to claim relief against the plaintiff. Thus, a claim by the defendant on behalf of himself and other parties, which as regards an action would be within Rule 203, cannot be set up by counter-claim: Hume v. Hume, 38 C. L. J. 204.

Where defendant in an action on a note shewed that the note had been transferred to the plaintiffs to secure a debt due to them by the payee, one T. N., which debt had been satisfied since the commencement of the action, and the defendant swore that he had a good defence on the merits against T. N., it was held that this Rule had no application, but that the plaintiffs admitting these facts were entitled to their costs under Rule 295, and the cause of action having devolved upon T. N., he was entitled to continue it by taking out an order under Rule 396: Oshawu Cabinet Co. v. Note, 18 C. L. J. 60. Rules 249, 250.

A third person made n defendant to a counter-claim is not entitled to enter an appearance until he has been served with the counter-claim: and if he appears without having been so served, the appearance may be discharged on motion by the plaintiff in the counter-claim: Fraser v. Cooper, 23 Ch. D. 685.

Where, in an action for the price of iron, the defendant set up a counter-claim for a deduction, which he had been obliged to allow a purchaser, owing to the inferiority of the quality of iron, it was held unnecessary to add the purchaser's name to the title of the action: see Anon., 60 L. T. Jour. 66; 1 Charl. Ch. Ca. 85 per Lush, J., who said Order 22, r. 5 (corresponding to the present Rule), does not apply to such a case: see also Williams v. Wright, W. N. 1875, 232.

249. Where any such person as in the last preceding Rule mentioned is not a party to the action, he shall be summoned to appear by being served with a copy of the counter-claim, and such service shall be regulated by the rules with respect to the service of a writ of summons, and every counter-claim so served shall be indorsed according to Form No. 50. Con. Rule 377. Service of counter-claim on third party.

Same as the Eng. (1883) R. 245.

For the rules in respect to service of writs of summons, see Rules 145, et seq., and 162.

A third person, not n party to the action, when made a defendant to a counter-claim, is not entitled to appear gratis to the counter-claim: Fraser v. Cooper, 23 Ch. D. 685.

250. Any person, including the plaintiff, named as a party to a counter-claim, shall within 8 days after service thereof on him, deliver a defence thereto as if it were a statement of claim. Con. Rules 379, 380; Rules 23rd June, 1894, 1321. a Defence by third party.

The original J. A. Rule had "reply" instead of "defence" following the Eng. R. 1875, O. 22, r. 8; (1883) R. 247.

The repealed Rule 378 required the third person to appear as if he had been served with a writ of summons, and the repealed Rule 379 required him to deliver his defence (if any) to the counter-claim within 8 days. No appearance is now required. The delivery of a defence is all that is necessary.

Rule 250.

How far a counter-claim may be pleaded to a counter-claim.

A plaintiff made a defendant by counter-claim may counter-claim against the plaintiff by counter-claim, in respect of a cause of action accruing subsequent to the issue of the writ; Toke v. Andrews, 8 Q. B. D. 428; or in respect of a breach of the contract alleged in the counter-claim: Renton v. Neville, 1900, 2 Q. B. 181; 82 L. T. 446; but not in respect of independent matters arising before action: James v. Page, 85 L. T. Jour. 157, such matters can only be set up by amendment of the statement of claim; see Rule 288; and a third party made a defendant by counter-claim is limited to a defence and is not entitled to counter-claim against the defendant who brought him in: Street v. Gover, 2 Q. B. D. 498; General Electric Co. v. Victoria Electric Co., 16 P. R. 476, 329; Alcoy Ry. Co. v. Greenhill, 1896, 1 Ch. 19; 73 L. T. 452; but see Green v. Thornton, 9 C. L. T. 139, where a pleading, though called a counter-claim, was allowed as being in substance a defence: General Electric, etc., v. Victoria Electric, etc., supra, per Meredith, J., at p. 481, and per Street, J., ib., at p. 534; see also Eden v. Weardale, 28 Ch. D. at p. 338.

Plaintiff's pleading to a counter-claim.

By this Rule a plaintiff has 8 days to deliver a "defence" to the counter-claim. By Rule 256 the plaintiff has 21 days to "reply" to the statement of defence. The defendant combines his defence to the action and his cross-claim (by counter-claim) in one pleading. It would not seem that merely because there is a counter-claim (to which the plaintiff must deliver a defence in 8 days) he loses the right to reply to the statement of defence within 21 days: Irwin v. Turner, 16 P. R. 349. That time was originally fixed to give plaintiff time to obtain production and discovery, and to amend his statement of claim, if so advised, instead of delivering a reply: see Rule 300.

The defence to the counterclaim was in Irwin v. Brown, 12 P. R. 639, held to be technically his "reply" in the action, but that case was not followed in Irwin v. Turner, supra. Doubtless the plaintiff may still if he chooses combine in one pleading his "reply" to the statement of defence and his "defence" to the counter-claim, but such a pleading must under this Rule be delivered within 8 days.

The Eng. Rules are different. Under them the plaintiff has the 21 days mentioned in Rule 256 within which to reply to the counter-claim: Rumley v. Winn, 22 Q. B. D. 265.

In case of default being made by plaintiff in delivery of a defence, the defendant cannot sign judgment for default of pleading, but must move for judgment under Rule 593; see that Rule and Jones v. Macaulay, 1891, 1 Q. B. 221. Such a judgment may be obtained even after the plaintiff's action has been dismissed for want of prosecution: Roberts v. Booth, 1893, 1 Q. B. 52; 3 R. 151; see also Higgins v. Scott, 21 Q. B. D. 10. See notes to Rule 251.

A pleading in answer to a counter-claim which denies the allegations of the counter-claim, puts the counter-claiming defendant to proof of his counter-claim, and submits that it should be dismissed, is a "defence" to the counter-claim, and not a joinder of issue in the action: Irwin v. Turner, 16 P. R. 349.

Subsequent pleading by the counter-claiming defendant.

Whether "plaintiff" in Rule 256 includes a plaintiff by counter-claim, or whether, by virtue of Rule 3, Rule 256 applies by analogy. It would seem that a counter-claiming defendant has 21 days from the delivery of the defence to the counter-claim within which to reply to such defence, and therefore the pleadings in such an action cannot be closed until the expiry of that time or until the delivery of a reply: Irwin v. Turner, 16 P. R. 349.

 against the claim of the plaintiff, any right or claim whether the same sounds in damages or not. Con. Rule 373, first part. Set-off and counter-
claim.

See also notes before Rule 246.

This is a Rule made in furtherance of sec. 57 (7) of the Act.

"Defendants" in this Rule would seem not to include a third party made a defendant to a counter-claim: see notes to Rule 250.

Part of the benefit given by section 57 (7) of the Ind. Act has been discussed under Rule 209. In addition to the class of cases there mentioned, the defendant by the above sub-section enabled (subject to the discretion of the Court) to set up in an action brought against him, any claims whatever which he may have against the plaintiff, and under certain restrictions claims against the plaintiff and other persons: see Naylor v. Farrer, 26 W. R. 809; Besant v. Wood, 12 Ch. D. 605; Gray v. Webb, 21 Ch. D. 802; Fried v. Gallo-way, 4 C. L. T. 191.

(x) The original Rule following Eng. R. 1875. O. 19, r. 3 (1883). R. 199, had here the words "set-off or."

The effect of the original Rule seems to have been to enlarge the right of set-off, so as to make it extend to claims sounding in damages.

The alteration in the present Rule was made in consequence of what was said in Chamberlin v. Chamberlin, 11 P. R. 501, where it was held that what was really a set-off, was pleadable as a defence, and could be set up as a defence, if it arose before the commencement of the action, and that pleading it in the form of a counter-claim made no difference. A counter-claim may set up any matter properly pleadable in a cross-action, though arising after the commencement of the action: Id., and Rule 289; and consequently a set-off, if arising after action, may, under the present Rule, and in fact can only, be set up by way of counter-claim.

A counter-claim properly so-called is therefore a claim by defendant for relief, which he cannot obtain by defence in the action: Girardot v. Welton, 19 P. R. 162, 201. By it a defendant may set up any cross-claim whether sounding in damages or not, subject however to Rule 254.

What was before the Judicature Act a set-off, and pleadable as a defence, is still so pleadable, and should be so pleaded and not as a counter-claim; and if the set-off exceeds the claim, the excess may be recovered without counter-claim for the same: Girardot v. Welton, supra; R. S. O. c. 324, s. 7.

If a claim for liquidated damages is pleaded by defendant by way of counter-claim, the plaintiff may set up matters arising subsequent to action brought: McNamara v. Skain, 23 Ont. 103; accus if the claim is pleaded by way of set-off; and see Toke v. Andrews, 8 Q. B. D. 428.

Other cases recognize that a set-off and counter-claim are quite distinct: see Cutler v. Morse, 12 P. R. 594; Taggart v. Marcus, 36 W. R. 469; Winterfield v. Bradnum, 3 Q. B. D. 326; Stumore v. Campbell, 1892. 1 Q. B. 314, 316; and cases infra, p. 450; and on the subject of costs, see the notes to Rules 1130, 1132.

Rule 251.

Former practice as to set-off.

Set-off.—It will be seen that a most important change was made by the Jud. Act in the previously existing law relating to set-off, and cross-demands.

Set-off, like counter-claim, was created by statute. Prior to the statutes of set-off, 2 Geo. 2. c. 22, s. 13, and 8 Geo. 2. c. 24, ss. 4, 5—see now R. S. O. c. 324, ss. 5-7—where there were cross-demands unconnected with each other, the parties were put to their cross-actions. R. S. O. c. 324, ss. 5, 6, enabled "mutual debts" to be set-off against one another (see Rees v. Watts, 11 Ex. 410), though the mutual debts are of a different nature, that is, a bond debt can be set off against a simple contract debt.

In Equity, set-off has been allowed in many cases not within the Statutes of set-off; see Story's Eq. Jur. ss. 14, 38, et seq.; Lundy v. McCulla, 11 Gr. 308; Mucbeth v. Smart, 13 Gr. 332. The Statutes of set-off applied only where the set-off was of a legal debt, and excluded equitable debts and unliquidated damages.

The Judicature Act abolished the distinction between legal and equitable debts; and the present Rule expressly authorizes the setting up of unliquidated demands as an answer to either liquidated or unliquidated demands, not merely by way of set-off, but so as to enable the defendant to obtain judgment in his favour for any balance, or for such other relief as he may be entitled to, on the merits of the case: see note to Rule 253, and Staples v. Young, and Horrocks v. Ribby, there referred to. The effect of The Judicature Act would seem to be to abolish any distinction in effect between set-off and cross-demands so far as the right to recover is concerned, though any cross-demand which could not formerly be pleaded as a set-off must now be pleaded by way of counter-claim.

A distinction has, however, been recognized which is still of importance in reference to the disposition of the costs where a counter-claim is set up, not by way of a defence against the plaintiff's cause of action. Mr. Pitt Lewis, in his work on County Court Practice, quoted with approval by Cockburn, C.J., in Stooke v. Taylor, 5 Q. B. D. 577, says:—"A set-off would seem to be of a different nature from a defence (qu. counter-claim) inasmuch as a set-off appears to shew a debt balancing the debt claimed by the plaintiff, and thus leaving nothing due to him; while a counter-claim, it would seem, consists of a cross-claim, not necessarily extinguishing or destroying the plaintiff's demand. In other words a set-off appears to consist of a defence to the original claim of the plaintiff; a counter-claim is the assertion of a separate and independent demand, which does not answer or destroy the original claim of the plaintiff. The right to rely on a set-off has long existed. The right to set up a counter-claim was first given by the Judicature Acts." See also Gathercole v. Smith, 7 Q. B. D. 626; Pellas v. Neptune Marine Ass. Co., 5 C. P. D. 34; and notes to Rule 1130.

Under the
Jud. Act.

The terms of the present Rule are wide enough to allow a defendant to set up any cross-demand, whether connected with the plaintiff's claim or not, and whether it sounds in damages or not; but the Rule must be read in connection with Rules 254, 298, providing for the exclusion of counter-claims, and the compulsory amendment of pleadings, in the discretion of the Court: Gray v. Webb, 21 Ch. D. 802.

The Rule is only one of procedure, designed to prevent the necessity of bringing a cross-action where a cross-demand can conveniently be tried in the original action. It does not give rights as against third parties, or confer rights of set-off between the parties Rule 251. which did not exist before. Thus claims against a company held by a director and bona fide for value assigned to a third person, were held not subject to be set-off against damages payable under an order, afterwards obtained by the liquidator of the company against the director: Re Milan Tramways Co., Ex p. Theys, 22 Ch. D. 122; affirmed in appeal, 25 Ch. D. 387; see Mercer Steel, etc., Co. v. Naylor, 9 Q. B. D. 648; 9 App. Cas. 434. In an action for calls by the liquidator of a company, a claim by a shareholder against the company was not allowed to be set up: Re Whitehouse, 9 Ch. D. 595. A set-off claimed against arrears of pension, against which, by statute, no set-off was permissible, was disallowed: Guthrie v. Smith, 7 Q. B. D. 626.

In an action by a trustee for a debt due to him as such trustee, or as agent for another person, the defendant may set up as a defence to the extent of the claim that the cestui que trust is indebted to him in a greater sum for unliquidated damages: Banks v. Jarvis, 1883, 1 K. B. 549; 88 L. T. 20. In that case the defence was set up in the form of a counter-claim, but quære, whether it should not have been set up as an equitable defence, as it might have been under the old practice: Ib.

The right of set-off only applies to mutual debts, viz., debts due and owing to and by the same parties; therefore a defendant cannot set-off a debt due by the plaintiff to him and another person in equal shares: Boatcar v. Paterson, 6 Q. B. D. 540; see also Federal Bank v. Harrison, 10 P. R. 271; 20 C. L. J. 194. Debt set-off must be mutual.

In an action by a receiver of a landlord's estate for rent due the landlord the defendant set up a set-off of money due by the landlord; it was held that the action by the receiver being in the interest of incumbrancers on the lands, the set-off could not be relied on: Mullarkey v. O'Donohue, 16 L. R. Ir. 365. So a receiver of an estate was held not entitled to set-off against a debt due by him as executor, a debt due to him as receiver, notwithstanding that both claims arose in respect of the same estate: Nelson v. Roberts, 69 L. T. 352.

Where a set-off is claimed or pleaded in defence to an action for debt, the debt sued on is not thereby extinguished to the extent of the debt sought to be set off, but two separate and distinct debts remain until judgment: Re Hiram Maxim Lamp Co., 1902, 1 Ch. 70.

Counter-claim.—The mode in which a defendant proceeds to obtain the cross-relief contemplated by the Rule is by counter-claim, which has been defined as "a pleading where a defendant claims some remedy or relief either against the plaintiff alone, or against the plaintiff together with some other person or persons, whether already parties to the action or not"; see Haynes' Chy. Pr. 77, and per Blackburn, J., in Treleaven v. Bray, 45 L. J. Chy. 115. Counter-claim.

A defendant is not bound to make his cross-claims by counter-claim, but may assert them by cross-action: Adamson v. Tuff, 44 L. T. 420; see note to sec. 57 (7) of the Act, supra, p. 53; Neale v. Clarke, 4 Ex. D. 295; and a counter-claim can only be maintained where a cross-action might be brought: Birmingham Estates v. Smith, 13 Ch. D. 508.

But where an action and cross-action have been brought there is power, in a proper case, to stay one, and compel the plaintiff in it to proceed by way of counter-claim in the other action: see Irvine v. Speery, 11 P. R. 229; Connice v. C. Pl. Ry., Ib. 149.

Rule 251.

The Courts should give a liberal interpretation to these Rules, which were no doubt passed with the intention of settling in one litigation all questions arising out of the subject matter of the dispute: per Brett, L.J., in Turner v. Hednesford Gas Co., 3 Ex. D. 151.

Plaintiff
party.

It is of the essence of a counter-claim that it claims relief against the plaintiff, either alone, or in conjunction with some other person. There can be no counterclaim against a co-defendant alone: Cope v. Crichton, 18 P. R. 462; Warner v. Twining, 24 W. R. 536; McLay v. Sharp, W. N. 1877, 216; Benecke v. Craddock, W. N. 1881, 54;—Sheppard v. Beane, 2 Ch. D. 223, is not to be considered an authority: see Harris v. Gamble, 6 Ch. D. 748; Furness v. Booth, 4 Ch. D. 586. So there can be no counter-claim against a third party, unless a claim is made against plaintiff along with such third party: Dear v. Swarder, 4 Ch. D. 476; Romann v. Brodrecht, 9 P. R. 2; Barber v. Blaiberg, 19 Ch. D. 473; and Rule 248. Relief against co-defendants and third parties alone can only be obtained under the third party procedure: see Rules 209 et seq.

A counter-claim irregularly filed, not including a claim against a plaintiff, may be struck out on motion: Cope v. Crichton, 18 P. R. 462.

The relator in an action in the nature of an information at the suit of the Attorney-General is not a plaintiff, and a counter-claim cannot be filed against him: Atty.-Gen. Ex rel. Russell v. Vaughan Road Co., 14 P. R. 516.

A counter-claim may be set up by the Crown in a petition of right: Thomas v. The Queen, W. N. 1875, 218; 1 Cbarl. Ch. Ca. 71.

Where by a statute a particular mode of procedure is provided for obtaining a particular relief, that mode must be pursued and procedure by a counter-claim will be improper: Pinto v. Badman, 7 Times, 317.

Against plaintiff
alone.

Counter-claim against Plaintiff Alone.—Where a counter-claim is brought against a plaintiff alone, it is not necessary that the claim of the defendant should be connected with the plaintiff's original cause of action; it may relate to any matter which might be the subject of an independent action: Stooke v. Taylor, 5 Q. B. 19, 576; and Quin v. Hession, 40 L. T. 70, where it was held that the words, "relating to or connected with the original subject of the cause or matter," in sec. 57, sub-sec. 7, of the Act, only qualify that portion of the section with which they are in immediate connection, viz.: a counter-claim which seeks relief against a third party as well as the plaintiff: see also Beddall v. Maitland, 17 Ch. D. 174; Gray v. Webb, 21 Ch. D. 802. But the defendant can not set up by way of counter-claim against the claim of a plaintiff, suing only in his individual capacity, claims against him personally, and also as executor: Macdonald v. Carington, 4 C. P. D. 28; and see Rule 235.

The plaintiff may answer the defendant's counter-claim by a counter-claim: see Kenton Gibbs v. Neville, 1900, 2 Q. B. 181; 82 L. T. 446; Toke v. Andrews, infra; which may be in respect of a cause of action arising after the issue of the writ, but arising out of the same transaction as the counter-claim: Toke v. Andrews, 8 Q. B. D. 428; but not if the ground of claim is independent and arose before the issue of the writ: see Rule 288, and James v. Page, 85 L. T. Jour. 157. In such latter case the new claim may be raised by amendment of the statement of claim: Ib.

A counter-claim against a foreign plaintiff may be for a cause of Rule 251. action for which the defendant could not obtain leave to serve a writ of summons out of the jurisdiction: Griendtoven v. Hamlyn, 8 Times, 231; but semble, not in the case of a plaintiff a foreign sovereign, as semble a foreign sovereign only submits to the jurisdiction as to matters arising out of the claim: S. African Republic v. Compagnie Franco Belge, 1897, 2 Ch. at p. 490; 77 L. T. 555; S. African Republic v. Transvaal Northern Ry., 67 L. J. Chy. 92.

There may be separate counter-claims against two plaintiffs severally, though they sue jointly: Manchester S. & L. Co. v. Brooks, 2 Ex. D. 243.

Counter-claim against Plaintiff and Others. — Where a counter-claim is made against the plaintiff and another person it is subject to certain restrictions. Against the plaintiff and others.

(1) The relief sought to be obtained against him must relate specifically to, or be connected with, the subject matter of the action: Padwick v. Scott, 2 Ch. D. 736; see Harris v. Gamble, 6 Ch. D. 748; Quin v. Hession, and Barber v. Blidberg, supra.

(2) The counter-claim must, as before mentioned, claim relief against the plaintiff along with such other person: Rule 248; Trelovey v. Bray, 45 L. J. Chy. 113; 1 Ch. D. 176; Dear v. Swooner, and Harris v. Gamble, supra; Turner v. Hednesford Gas Co., 3 Ks. D. 145.

Where the defendant and a third person have a joint cause of action against the plaintiff, even though arising out of the same circumstances that give rise to the plaintiff's cause of action, the defendant cannot set up his cause of action by counter-claim making the third person a defendant to it: Pender v. Taddoe, 1898, 1 Q. B. 798. Where relief is not claimed against the third party along with the plaintiff, the proceedings must be under Rule 209: Central African Trading Co. v. Grove, 40 L. T. 540; 48 L. J. Ex. 510. It is not enough that the counter-claim be in form, if it be not in substance, for relief against the third person along with the plaintiff; thus where the matter of the counter-claim may be set up against the plaintiff as a defence without the third party, and the plaintiff is not interested in what is claimed from the third party, the counter-claim is improper: Romann v. Brodrecht, 9 P. R. 2; Torrance v. Livingstone, 10 P. R. 29.

Furthermore, it has been held, perhaps under the terms of original Rule 167 (now 250), that a third party cannot counter-claim against the defendant who brought him in: Street v. Gover, 2 Q. B. D. 498; Alcoy v. Greenhill, 1896, 1 Ch. 19; 73 L. T. 452; and such a pleading may be struck out on a summary application: General Electric Co. v. Victoria Electric Light Co., 16 P. R. 476, 529, which distinguished Green v. Thornton, 9 C. L. T. 139, where a third party, made with the plaintiff a defendant to a counter-claim, was allowed to amend a reply to the defendant's counter-claim, by asserting another counter-claim against the defendant, but this was said to have been allowed because, although called a counter-claim, it was in substance a defence: see 16 P. R. 481, 584; see Rule 250, and notes. In Evans v. Buck, 4 Ch. D. 432, it was held that a person cannot be brought in, as a defendant to a counter-claim, against whom relief is claimed in one of two inconsistent alternatives: see note to Rule 126.

Rule 251.

The counter-claim need not be for the same cause of action against all the defendants to it: Central African, etc., Co. v. Grove, 27 W. R. 931; 40 L. T. 540; Turner v. Hednesford, 3 Ex. D. 145.

A defendant is not entitled to set up in his counter-claim a hypothetical case for relief against a third party: Sackville v. Pacey, 18 C. L. J. 14.

A defendant may not serve a third party out of the jurisdiction with a counter-claim: Potters v. Miller, 31 W. R. 858. See, however, Re Luckie, W. N. 1880, 12; and notes to Rule 162.

Where a defendant counter-claims against the plaintiff as liable alone, the plaintiff cannot have added another person who, he alleges, is also liable as to a part of the counter-claim: Eyre v. Moreing, W. N. 1884, 58.

Counter-claim only where separate action would lie.

Counter-claim only where a Separate Action would lie.—

In any case, a counter-claim can only be set up where an action might be brought: Birmingham Estates v. Smith, 13 Ch. D. 506, 508.

A counter-claim has therefore been disallowed where it set up a debt alleged to have been incurred by the plaintiff when an infant, and not ratified under Lord Tenterden's Act: Rawley v. Rawley, 1 Q. B. D. 460. So in an action by an administrator for the balance of an intestate's banking account, a debt due from the intestate on a note which became due after his death was not allowed to be set up, because an administration order had been before action obtained, of which the defendants had notice; and under 23 & 24 Vict. c. 38, s. 14, equity would restrain the defendant from proceeding on the note, leaving him to prove for it in the administration proceedings: Newell v. National Provincial Bank of England, 1 C. P. D. 496; 1 Charl. Ch. Co. 82; see also Monteith v. Walsh, 10 P. R. 162. So also, where the claim set up in the counter-claim had been extinguished by the obtaining of a judgment in another Division, which judgment the defendant was not at liberty to enforce without leave, it was disallowed: Birmingham Co. Estates v. Smith, 13 Ch. D. 506; see also Beddall v. Maitland, 17 Ch. D. 174, where a counter-claim for damages for forcible entry under the Statute of Richard II. failed, because that Act gave no civil remedy. So also, where a counter-claim was by a surety against the plaintiff and third parties (the debtors) to require the plaintiff to first proceed against the debtors (they being able to pay), and for indemnity from the debtors, it was disallowed: Federal Bank v. Harrison, 10 P. R. 271.

See also Re Milan Tramways Co., Ex parte Theys, 22 Ch. D. 122, affirmed in appeal 25 Ch. D. 587; followed in Re Gillespie, 54 L. J. Q. B. 342; Gathercole v. Smith, 7 Q. B. D. 626; Beatty v. Mair, 10 L. R. 1r. 208.

Injunction by counter-claim.

As to when a counter-claim is necessary to enable a defendant to obtain an injunction or a receiver against the plaintiff, see notes to sec. 58 (9) supra, p. 87.

Counter-claim When Regarded as a Separate Action.—

Whether a counter-claim is to be considered merely as a defence, or as something like a separate action, has been much discussed. It is not an action: Irwin v. Brown, 12 P. R. 639; but see Irwin v. Turner, 16 P. R. 349, though by the terms of the Rule 252 it has the same effect as a statement of claim in a cross-action, to enable judgment to be given on both claim and counter-claim; see Lumsden v. Winter, 8 Q. B. D. 650, and it was early viewed as in the nature of an independent action in dealing with the question of the costs of Rule 281. It; see Stooke v. Taylor, 5 Q. B. D. 577; Baines v. Brindley, 6 Q. B. D. 685, and notes supra, p. 446, and to Rule 1130; Haring v. Pearson, 32 W. R. 420; 35 L. T. 633; and now in England it has practically been decided that though not a cross-action everything done in respect of the proceedings upon it must be treated as if it were; McGowan v. Middleton, 11 Q. B. D. 469; Sykes v. Sacerdoti, 15 Q. B. D. 425; Amon v. Bobett, 22 Q. B. D. 548; Neck v. Taylor, 1893, 1 Q. B. 560. This result is partly based upon the amended language of Eng. (1883) R. 100, which says that a counter-claim "shall have the same effect as a cross-action, etc." The corresponding Ont. Rule 252 reads, "shall have the same effect as a statement of claim in a cross-action, etc."; but other amendments of the Ontario Rules are in the direction of regarding proceedings on the counter-claim as independent of those in the action; see notes to Rules 250, 252, 255, 263, 583, 1130. See also Dominion Burglary Guarantee Co. v. Wood, 3 O. L. R. 305.

In Stumore v. Campbell, 1892, 1 Q. B. 314, it was held that the judgments of plaintiff and defendant on claim and counter-claim respectively, constitute two independent debts either of which may be garnished, notwithstanding that the other party's judgment may be for a larger sum. It would of course be otherwise where an order is made to set off one against the other.

A counter-claim has also been viewed as a cross-action for other purposes. For instance, in Beddall v. Maitland, 17 Ch. D. 174, it was held by Fry, J., that a counter-claim is an independent action, and relief may be given upon it in respect of a cause of action that arose after the issue of the writ in the original action; and this view seems now established in England by decisions; see McGowan v. Middleton, 11 Q. B. D. 469; see also Chamberlia v. Chamberlia, 11 P. R. 501, and all doubt is removed in Ont. by Rule 289.

In Ellis v. Munson, W. N. 1876, 253; 35 L. T. 585, the Court of Appeal had previously held that such a counter-claim should, under Order 16 of Eng. R. 1875, state that it was founded on facts which have arisen since the action was brought; and in 1877, in Original Hartlepool Collieries Co. v. Gubb, 5 Ch. D. 713, Jessel, M.R., had expressed the opinion that damages claimed by counter-claim must be limited to the date when the writ issued.

In accordance with the principle of Beddall v. Maitland, it has further been now decided (and the decision was confirmed in England by an express Rule (Eng. (1883) R. 249), that the discontinuance of an action by the plaintiff does not put an end to the counter-claim; McGowan v. Middleton, 11 Q. B. D. 464, overruling L'asscur v. Krupp, 15 Ch. D. 474; The Queen v. Judge of City of London Court, 1891, 2 Q. B. 71; that a counter-claim may be revived on the death of the defendant, independently of the revivor of the action by the plaintiff; Andrew v. Pitken, 30 W. R. 701; 46 L. T. 689; and that a plaintiff may in reply to a counter-claim set up a counter-claim against defendant; Toke v. Andrews, 8 Q. B. D. 428; Reaton v. Neville, 1900, 2 Q. B. 181; 82 L. T. 446; see also 19 C. L. J. 162.

Where the plaintiff's claim was dismissed for default in compliance with an order, the defendant was allowed to proceed with his counter-claim by motion for judgment as by default of pleading thereto by the plaintiff; Higgins v. Scott, 21 Q. B. D. 10, in note to Rule 593; Roberts v. Booth, 1893, 1 Ch. 52; 67 L. T. 646; these cases in England have the support of the express Rule of 1883 R. 249 (not Rule 281. adopted in Ontario), providing that where the defendant sets up a counter-claim, and the plaintiff's action becomes stayed, discontinued or dismissed, the counter-claim may nevertheless be proceeded with, but it is probable that in Ontario the decision would be the same without an express Rule. See also Hildt v. Foy, 9 Times, 31, 83; Jones v. Macaulay, 1891, 1 Q. B. 221. But where the counter-claim is one which the defendant could only set up by reason of the plaintiff, a foreigner, having come within the jurisdiction and sued the defendant, if the plaintiff moves to discontinue his action the defendant is in the position of a plaintiff quoad the counter-claim, and will not be permitted to continue it as a term of the plaintiff, being allowed to discontinue: Dominion Burglary Guarantee Co. v. Wood, 3 O. L. R. 305.

Where a claim can properly be the subject of a set-off, it should be set up as a defence, and not by way of counter-claim, and if set up by counter-claim, even though it is allowed, the defendant will not be entitled to any more costs than if it had been pleaded simply as a defence: Girardot v. Welton, 19 P. R. 162, 201.

In respect to security for costs also, a defendant who sets up a counter-claim becomes to some extent in the position of a plaintiff in a cross-action: Winterfield v. Bradnum, 3 Q. B. D. 324; and, when out of the jurisdiction, was in one case ordered to give security for costs: The J. Fisher, 2 P. D. 115; but a defendant will not be ordered to give security where his counter-claim is in respect of the same subject-matter as the plaintiff's claim: Mapleton v. Masbi, 5 Q. B. D. 144; see also Shepherd v. Hayball, 13 Gr. 681; or is in effect a defence: Neck v. Taylor, 1893, 1 Q. B. 560; and where he admits the plaintiff's claim, and sets up a counter-claim founded on a distinct claim, he cannot demand security for costs from plaintiff if out of the jurisdiction: quare, however, where he sets up a counter-claim for an amount greater than the plaintiff's claim: see Winterfield v. Bradnum, supra; see also notes to Rule 1201.

Other Incidents of a Counter-claim.—An order, however, will not be made upon the counter-claim until the original claim is dealt with: Aitkin v. Dunbar, 46 L. J. Chy. 489; but whether issues raised by the claim and counter-claim shall be tried together is a matter of convenience: Re Woodfine, Thompson v. Woodfine, 38 L. T. 753; 47 L. J. Chy. 832.

It is not necessary that the amount claimed by the defendant should be equal to the claim of the plaintiff: Mostyn v. West Mostyn Co., 1 C. P. D. 145.

Evidence. Where the issues of fact in the claim and counter-claim were identical, it was held that the plaintiff was not entitled to adduce in reply to the counter-claim fresh evidence which would have been material to the original case: Green v. Scrin, 13 Ch. D. 589; see also, as to the evidence where claim and counter-claim are tried together, Re Woodfine, Thompson v. Woodfine, 38 L. T. 753.

Co-defendants to a counter-claim cannot examine one another for discovery: Molloy v. Kilby, 15 Ch. D. 162.

Irregular counter-
claim

Striking Out Counter-claim. — Where a so-called counter-claim is irregular by not claiming relief against the plaintiff: Cope v. Crichton, 18 P. R. 462; or is otherwise not authorized by the Rules: General Electric Co. v. Victoria Electric Light Co., 16 P. R. 476, 529, it may be struck out on motion, notwithstanding that the party moving to strike it out has pleaded to it and the case has come on Rule 251, for trial: Cope v. Crichton, supra. See also Barber v. Hühberg, 10 Ch. D. 473.

In order to prevent the abuse of the extensive powers of counter-claim given to defendants, the Court has a discretion under Rule 251 to consider whether the counter-claim should be proceeded with or struck out, leaving the defendant to make it the subject of an independent action. Counter-claims in convenient to be tried.

There is jurisdiction to stay proceedings in a cross-action and allow the claim to be set up by counter-claim in another action, yet it should only be done when the points at issue are the same: Adams v. Tuff, 44 L. T. 420; see Irwin v. Sperry, 11 P. R. 220; Connice v. C. P. Ry., 11 P. R. 140.

Where the Court was of opinion that a counter-claim was not bona fide scandalous file, and it contained scandalous charges, it was struck out: Lee v. Ashwin, 1 Times, 291; see Rule 208. counter-claim.

Form of Counter-claim.—A counter-claim and statement of defence must be included in the same pleading, and the same rules apply in many respects to a counter-claim as to a statement of claim: see Holburn v. York, 25 W. R. 627, and Form 13 (H. & L. Forms, No. 1271). form.

A counter-claim is subject to the same rules as a claim in respect to the causes of action which may be joined: see Compton v. Preston, 21 Ch. D. 138; Hunter v. Stark, 17 P. R. 47.

By the express terms of the Rules, the relief prayed for by way of counter-claim must be specifically stated: Rule 273; and the facts supporting each cause of action are, as far as may be, to be kept distinct: Rule 274; but a counter-claim under the Ontario Act and Rules is not governed by as strict regulations as in England. Eng. Rule 243, provides, that "where any defendant seeks to rely upon any facts as supporting a right of set-off or counter-claim, he shall, in his statement of defence, specifically state that he does so by way of set-off or counter-claim." Under that Rule a defendant is not allowed, in England, to mix the facts supporting his counter-claim, indiscriminately with those constituting his defence. Where a pleading was headed "statement of defence and counter-claim," and set forth in thirteen paragraphs facts on which the defendant relied for his defence without making any reference to counter-claims, and concluded in the fourteenth paragraph with a claim by way of counter-claim for damages, it was held by Fry, J., to be not a proper counter-claim, and was dismissed: Croice v. Barnicot, 6 Ch. D. 753; see also Hillman v. Mayhew, 24 W. R. 485; but the same Judge afterwards qualified his decision in another case, and held that it is not necessary that a set-off or counter-claim should have a separate heading, or be separated by a marked line from the defence, or that paragraphs containing the facts relied on should be separately numbered: Lees v. Patterson, 26 W. R. 399; 7 Ch. D. 806.

The necessity for strict compliance with the above mentioned Eng. (1883) Rule 243, may have been partly due to the principle of the English system in regard to admissions (see note to Rule 272), and to the Eng. (1883) R. 213, which requires the plaintiff to deal specifically in his reply with each allegation in the counter-claim of which he does not admit the truth.

Rule 252.

The result under the English Act is, therefore, that though the statement of defence and counter-claim may be combined in the same document, they are quite distinct pleadings. The paragraphs of the document may be numbered consecutively; and the counter-claim need not be separated from the defence by any marked line or separate heading; but it is necessary that all the facts which the defendant relies upon by way of counter-claim should appear in that part of the document which in fact constitutes the counter-claim; and it is not enough if the facts be found scattered through the defence and counter-claim. If the facts relied on by way of defence are also relied upon to support the counter-claim, they may be incorporated in the counter-claim by reference to the paragraph in which they are set forth in the defence: Birmingham Estates Co. v. Smith, 13 Cb. D. 503.

The result under the Ontario Act would seem to be, that it is not necessary, by separate numbering of paragraphs, headings, or otherwise, to distinguish the defence from the counter-claim. It will be sufficient if the facts on which the defendant relies, whether by way of defence or counter-claim, are concisely stated and without proximity, (Rule 268) keeping, as far as may be, separate and distinct, the facts relating to several and distinct causes of action relied on by way of counter-claim: see Rule 274. A prayer for the counter-relief desired should be added: Rule 273. Then, by analogy to the decisions in Watson v. Hawkins, 24 W. R. 884, if the facts stated show either a defence, or a right to any relief prayed for by way of counter-claim, the defendant will be entitled to the benefit of such defence or to such relief: see also Newell v. National P. Bank, 1 C. P. D. 501. If relief, by way of counter-claim, whether general or otherwise, is not asked, it will be taken that it is not wanted: Holloway v. York, 25 W. R. 627.

Defence to Counter-claim. — The defence to a counter-claim must be delivered within eight days after the service of the counter-claim: Rule 250.

Besides delivering a defence the plaintiff in the action may set up a counter-claim arising out of the same transaction as the defendant's counter-claim: Renton v. Neville, 1900, 2 Q. B. 181; 82 L. T. 448; to which the same rules would apparently apply as to the original counter-claim. But the right to deliver a counter-claim to a counter-claim is confined to the plaintiff in the action, and does not extend to any co-defendant or third person who is made defendant to a defendant's counter-claim.

The plaintiff in the action would also seem entitled to resort to the third party procedure in regard to any claim set up against him by counter-claim, and obtain leave to serve a third party against whom he claims indemnity, contribution, or relief over, in respect of the counter-claim: Leri v. Anglo-Continental, 1902, 2 K. B. 481; 86 L. T. 857.

Judgment
where counter-claim set up.

252. A counter-claim shall have the same effect as [a statement of claim in] a cross action, so as to enable the Court to pronounce a final judgment in the same action, both on the original and the counter-claim. Con. Rule 373. last part.

Same as Eng. R. 1875, O. 19, r. 3, except that that Rule commenced. "Such set-off or counter-claim shall, etc." The Eng. (1883) R. 199, is the same as the Rule of 1875 except that it omits the words above in brackets, as to the effect of which omission, see note supra, p. 451, and McGowan v. Middleton, 11 Q. B. D. 464.

See notes to Rule 251.

253 Where a counter-claim is established against the plaintiff's claim, the Court may, if the balance is in favour of the defendant, give judgment for the defendant for such balance, or may otherwise adjudge to the defendant such relief as he may be entitled to upon the merits of the case. Con. Rule 375.

Judgment for balance of counter-
claim.

Substantially the same as the Eng. (1883) R. 250.

"Balance in Favour of the Defendant."—These words mean the balance upon the hearing of the action: Rolfe v. Maclaren, 3 Ch. D. 106. Judgment upon the counter-claim may give the defendant complete relief as in an independent action, by ordering payment of any balance found in his favour: Staples v. Young, 2 Ex. D. 324; or by awarding to him such other relief as he may be entitled to; and the judgment may provide that the amount recovered on the counter-claim for damages and costs shall, notwithstanding any claim of lien on the part of the defendant's solicitors, be set off pro tanto against the sum awarded to the plaintiff for a debt and costs: Blumenstiel v. Edwards, 5 O. W. R. 796. In Horrocks v. Rigby, 26 W. R. 714, a defendant, who had purchased the entirety of a leasehold, resisted a claim against him for a specific performance of a contract for sale of a moiety of the leasehold; he was also mortgagee, and in the latter capacity, as alternative relief by way of counter-claim, he called upon the plaintiff to redeem him, and it was held that he was so entitled, with costs as of a foreclosure suit.

As to costs, where a balance is found in favour of the defendant, and in other cases of claims and counter-claims tried together, see Staples v. Young, supra; Blake v. Appleyard, 3 Ex. D. 195; Potter v. Chambers, 4 C. P. D. 69 and 457; Chatfield v. Sedgewick, ib., p. 459; Baines v. Bromley, 6 Q. B. D. 197, 691, and notes to Rule 1130.

Where the plaintiff claimed £49 12s. and defendant admitted the claim and counter-claimed for £75, and judgment was given for the plaintiff on his claim and for defendant for £40 on his counter-claim, it was ordered that the plaintiff should have costs of his claim, and the defendant costs of his counter-claim, which was interpreted to mean that the plaintiff should have costs up to the delivery of the defence, and the defendant his costs after that time: Bowker v. Kesteren, 47 L. T. 545.

Judgment will usually be entered for the balance: see Shrapnel v. Laing, 20 Q. B. D. 338; Griffiths v. Patterson, 22 L. R. Ir. 656; but the judgment may be for the plaintiff upon the claim, and for defendant upon the counter-claim: ib. The form in which the judgment is entered does not affect the mode of taxing the costs, which will depend upon whether the counter-claim could or could not be pleaded as a set-off: see Shrapnel v. Laing, supra, and other cases in note to Rule 1130; it probably would affect the right of a third person to garnish either debt separately, as to which see Stumore v. Campbell, 1892, 1 Q. B. 314.

Rule 254. As to the effect of a solicitor's lien upon the right to a set-off, see notes to Rule 1165.

A charging order in favour of a solicitor under Rule 1129 will be limited to the balance actually recovered: Westcott v. Bevan, 1891, 1 Q. B. 774.

This Rule is confined to claims set up by counter-claim, but a defendant is only entitled to a judgment for a balance in his favour in case of a set-off: see R. S. O. c. 324, s. 7.

Striking out counter-
claim.

254. Where a defendant sets up a counter-claim, if the plaintiff, or any other person named in manner hereinafter mentioned (a) as party to such counter-claim, contends that the claim thereby raised ought not to be disposed of by way of counter-claim, but in an independent action, he may, at any time [before trial,] apply to the Court or a Judge for an order that such counter-claim be excluded; and such order may be made as may seem just. Con. Rule 374; Rules 23rd June, 1894, 1320.

The Eng. (1883) R. 248, is substantially the same, except that it has "before reply" instead of the words "before trial," in brackets above.

(a) The reference is really to Rule 248. The words "hereinafter mentioned" come from Rules 23 June, 1894 (1320), which substituted them for "aforesaid," correcting an oversight in the Con. Rules, 1888, due to the placing of Con. Rule 374 before Con. Rule 376. A similar oversight has occurred in the present consolidation, in which the former Rule 376 (now Rule 248) has been placed before Con. Rule 374 (now Rule 254), without changing the words "hereinafter mentioned."

Excluding Counter-claims.—For the principles upon which the Court acts in excluding counter-claims, see Naylor v. Farrer, infra. Padwick v. Scott, 2 Ch. D. 736; Dear v. Swoorder, 4 Ch. D. 476; Harris v. Gamble, 6 Ch. D. 748; Birmingham Estates v. Smith, 13 Ch. D. 506; Rotherham v. Priest, 28 W. R. 277; also the examples infra.

An application under this Rule may, in England, be made in Court: see Dear v. Swoorder, 4 Ch. D. 476; Huggons v. Tweed, 10 Ch. D. 359; but, as a general thing, should be made in Chambers: see Naylor v. Farrer, 26 W. R. 809; and Coe's Prac. in Cham. 78. In Ontario it may, and usually should, be made before the Master in Chambers or other officer having like jurisdiction: see Rule 6 (a). It is to be made before trial. In Lynch v. Macdonald, 37 Ch. D. 227, it was said that it was too late to apply after reply (the period fixed by the Eng. Rule), but doubtless also at the trial the Judge has power to deal with the pleadings and the action as he may deem proper: see Barber v. Blalberg, 19 Ch. D. 473.

The decision of a Judge under this Rule, if appealed from, will rarely be interfered with: Huggons v. Tweed, 10 Ch. D. 359.

In Naylor v. Farrer, Jessel, M.R., said that, in his opinion, under the English Rule, a defendant might set up any number of cross-claims. There was no limit laid down in that Rule either to their number or nature; but it was left to the discretion of the Court or a Rule 254. Judge to limit them, otherwise fifty causes of action of the most diverse nature might be joined together and set up, and witnesses of all kinds called in support of each. How would it be possible for the Court to try all those in one action? There must also be some limit to the character of the claim set up. Suppose, for instance, an action for account brought by a surviving partner against the widow, who was also the executrix of the other, to which the widow set up a counter-claim for damages for breach of promise of marriage, could that be said to be a counter-claim which could be conveniently disposed of in the pending action? It was impossible. The Judge must exercise the discretion given to him by the Rule in allowing or rejecting a counter-claim.

In Bartholomew v. Rawlings, W. N. 1876, 56; 2 Charl. Ch. Ca. 32, Archibald, J., said: "There is no doubt whatever that a defendant is entitled to set up any counter-claim that is not so incongruous as to be incapable of being conveniently tried with the original claim." The question of the convenience of trial depends greatly upon whether the subject of the counter-claim is germane to the subject of the action. But though a counter-claim be not in relation to matters foreign to the subject of the action, still the fact that it will necessitate a long account, and thus unduly delay the action, may furnish grounds for excluding it: Gray v. Webb, 21 Ch. D. 802. See also Delobel-Filipo v. Varty, 1893, 1 Q. B. 663; Hawkins v. Myhra, 3 Times, 91.

In Canadian Securities Co. v. Prentice, 9 P. R. 329, Cameron, J., said: "I have assumed that allowing or disallowing a counter-claim, where third parties are to be brought in, is matter of discretion, not of course to be exercised arbitrarily, but upon consideration of all the circumstances, including rights involved in the counter-claim, and the question of delay, and convenience of trial. In jury cases there can be no question that much difficulty may arise by the mixing up of different claims—if I may use the term "mixing" in such connection—and cross or counter-claims in the same action; and unless the clear legal rights of the defendant for his protection against the plaintiff's action would seem to require it, counter-claims ought not to be favoured."

A counter-claim for damages arising out of the same subject matter or contract as the plaintiff is proceeding upon, is therefore in general, proper. So also a counter-claim in the nature of a cross-demand, pecuniary or otherwise, unconnected with the subject matter of the plaintiff's claim, provided there is no inconvenience in having a trial of both in the same action.

A counter-claim, like any other pleading, may be struck out for scandal, or if it tend to prejudice or embarrass the fair trial of the action: Rule 298; or if it be frivolous or vexatious: Rule 261. See also Lee v. Ashwin, 1 Times, 291.

See Monteith v. Walsh, 10 P. R. 162, in note to Rule 944.

Counter-claims Allowed.—Examples.—The following are examples of counter-claims allowed to be set up as raising questions which can conveniently be tried with the plaintiff's claim in the action:

Action by a stock-broker for price of shares. Counter-claim for fraudulent misrepresentations as to the values of the shares: Anon., 1 Charl. Ch. Ca. 73; Evans v. Gann, W. N. 1875, 199; 1 Charl. Ch. Ca. 70; see also Lee v. McMahon, 2 Ont. 654.

Rule 254.

Counter-claims allowed.

Action for price of iron. Counter-claim for inferiority of iron. Anon., 1 Charl. Ch. Ca. 73; or non-delivery of part; Midland Ry. Co. v. Ontario Rolling Mills, 2 Ont. 1.

Action for price of coals. Counter-claim for non-delivery of part of the coals: Norton v. Merriman, W. N. 1875, 219; 1 Charl. Ch. Ca. 80; see Fulton v. U. C. Furniture Co., 32 C. P. 422; 20 C. L. J. 11.

Action for negligent construction of ship. Counter-claim for extras due beyond the contract price: Trinacria v. Richardson, W. N. 1875, 219; 1 Charl. Ch. Ca. 74.

Action by builder. Counter-claim for breach of covenant in building contract: Trevana v. Watts, W. N. 1875, 250; 1 Charl. Ch. Ca. 79.

Action by lessor for rent. Counter-claim for an alleged debt and damages for non-performance of lessor's agreement: Atwood v. Miller, W. N. 1876, 11; 1 Charl. Ch. Ca. 82; see Atkinson v. Ellison, W. N. 1875, 199; 1 Charl. Ch. Ca. 69.

Action of ejectment for non-payment of rent. Counter-claim for rectification of lease so as to state terms by which no rent would be due: Carcio v. Christopher, 10 L. R. Ir. 38.

Action of ejectment by heir against widow. Counter-claim for dower: Glass v. Glass, 9 P. R. 14.

Action for recovery of land and mesne profits. Counter-claim for damages for illegal distress against p. intiff and his bailiff: Duckstader v. Phipps, 9 P. R. 204.

Action for specific performance. Counter-claim for damages and rectification of agreement and specific performance of the agreement as rectified: Durlop Tire Co. v. Ryckman, 5 O. L. R. 249.

A counter-claim was allowed claiming against an assignee a set-off of damages due from the assignor: Young v. Kitchin, 3 Ex. D. 127; Exchange Bank v. Stinson, 32 C. P. 158; see Pellas v. Neptune Marine Ass. Co., 5 C. P. D. 34.

Where A. sued B. on a bill and B. defended by alleging that A. was really trustee for C. who owed B. money; B. was allowed to bring in C. and claim set-off: Macdonald v. Bode, W. N. 1876, 23; but this case was disapproved of in Tagart v. Marcus, 36 W. R. 469; see infra, p. 440.

Action to establish a will. Counter-claim propounding two earlier wills, under which defendant claimed in the event of the last in date being invalid: Appleman v. Appleman, 12 P. R. 138.

Action by an executor for detention of the goods of his testator. Counter-claim for funeral expenses paid by the defendant, and a debt due to him from the testator before his death: Watkin v. Newcomen, 1 Cal. & El. 113.

Action for the recovery of land. Counter-claim for damages in respect of a trespass by the plaintiff on the lands in question, and for an assault: Goring v. Cameron, 10 P. R. 496.

Action by lessor for ejectment and forfeiture of lease. Counter-claim for relief from the forfeiture: Wardens of Cholmeley's School v. Sewell, 1893, 2 Q. B. 254; 69 L. T. 118.

Action for money lent. Counter-claim for money paid by defendant, and for work done by him for the plaintiff and another (without joining the other person): Eyre v. Moreing, W. N. 1884, 58.

Action by executors to charge a married woman's estate with a Rule 254. debt to their testator. Counter-claim by her and her husband, also a defendant, for money belonging to the wife, not part of her separate estate, and for chattels in the possession of the testator at his death, and alleged to be the property of the husband: Hodson v. Mochi, 8 Ch. D. 569.

Action by caveat against a surviving trustee to make good purchase money of testator's share of a partnership business, allowed to remain outstanding. Counter-claim to be indemnified by all caveats quo trustent including the plaintiffs, as the retention of the money by the surviving partner was by their consent: Re Holmes, Wright v. Weatherhead, W. N. 1883, 110.

Action propounding will of defendant's wife, who had obtained a protection order. Counter-claim to set aside the protection order as fraudulent, pronounce against the will, and for letters of administration: Mudge v. Adams, 50 L. J. Pro. 49; 17 C. L. J. 369.

A mortgagor was allowed to set up, in a foreclosure suit, a claim to open signed accounts: Eyre v. Hughes, 2 Ch. D. 148.

Action by a trustee in bankruptcy for unpaid price of a chattel purchased from the bankrupt. Counter-claim for fraudulent representation made by the bankrupt on the sale: Jack v. Kipping, 9 Q. B. D. 113.

Action to enforce an agreement by injunction. Counter-claim for damages for breach of agreement by plaintiff: Dunlop v. Ryckman, 5 O. L. R. 249.

M. and C. are partners with B. in London and Honduras: the two firms are separate. Actions by M. and C. against the London firm as agents of the Honduras firm for an account. B. had a decree in Honduras for the taking of partnership accounts there, and the London firm asked by counter-claim for the accounts of the Honduras firm to be taken: Mutrie v. Binney, 35 Ch. D. 614; 36 W. R. 131.

A County Court judgment was allowed to be set off against a Set-off. judgment of a Superior Court: Sandys v. Louis, W. N. 1875, 249; 1 Charl. Ch. Ca. 81.

Counter-claims Disallowed—Examples:—Counter-claims will not be allowed to be set up which cannot be the subject of an action; Counter- see Rawley v. Rawley, and other cases, p. 450, or which raise ques- claims not tions not capable of being conveniently tried in the action. allowed.

The following are examples of counter-claims held not capable of being conveniently tried in the action:

Action of assault and battery. Counter-claim for seduction of the defendant's daughter: Cappeleus v. Brown, W. N. 1875, 231; 1 Charl. Ch. Ca. 77.

Action for assault. A counter-claim for breach of agreement to repair a house was struck out, though an endeavour was made to connect the causes of action by showing that the parties were talking about the state of the house at the time of the assault: Lee v. Colyer, W. N. 1876, 8; 1 Charl. Ch. Ca. 86.

Action for libel consisting in the circulation of a letter by defendant among the shareholders of a colliery company. The plaintiff was one of the directors in the company, who were charged in the letter

Rule 254. with conspiracy and fraud. Counter-claim for damages for loss sustained in respect of shares bought on false representations. Lindley, J., said: "This is one of those cases where it would be very difficult to keep the jury from mixing up the two claims." The counter-claim was therefore struck out without prejudice to any action defendant might bring, and the plaintiff was put on terms not to issue execution on any judgment he might obtain without leave of the Court or a Judge: Nicholson v. Jackson, W. N. 1876, 38; 2 Charl. Ch. Ca. 37.

Action for slander. Counter-claim for assault which was also pleaded in mitigation of damages for the slander: Greer v. Hunter, 11 C. L. T. 281.

Action for the specific performance by S. of an agreement for purchase by him of certain patent rights. H. & N., who were made co-defendants as claiming some interest in the subject-matter of the contract, alleged that the plaintiff had agreed to sell to them, and not to S., and that they had afterwards agreed to sell to S. By counter-claim H. & N. asked for specific performance by the plaintiff of his agreement with them, and by S. of his subsequent agreement with them. The counter-claim was excluded: McLay v. Sharp, W. N. 1877, 216.

Action for specific performance. Counter-claim for conspiracy against the plaintiff and others all but one resident out of Ontario: Dunlop v. Ryckman, 5 O. L. R. 249.

Action against trustees of a settlement for breach of trust. Counter-claim against the husband of a plaintiff (also a plaintiff) for £45, due on a bill of exchange: Fendall v. O'Connell, 32 L. T. 538.

Action for protection of a trust fund. Counter-claim for libel: S. African Republic v. Compagnie Franco-Belge, 1897, 2 Ch. 487; followed in Dunlop v. Ryckman, 5 O. L. R. 249.

Action against an indorser on a promissory note. Defence, that it was to be paid out of a certain agency in which the defendant and the maker of the note were engaged, and that the plaintiff by libel and slander of the defendant had prevented that business from going on. Counter-claim for damages for the libel and slander: Central Bank v. Osborne, 12 P. R. 160.

Action for foreclosure. Counter-claim for damages by reason of false and depreciative statements in regard to the value of the mortgaged premises: Odell v. Bennett, 13 P. R. 10; see also Lynch v. Macdonald, 37 Ch. D. 227.

Action to recover land for non-payment of rent. Counter-claim not connected with plaintiff's demand, in the absence of special circumstances disallowed: Hildidge v. O'Farrell, 8 L. R. Ir. 158.

Action by A. against B. for trover of goods which C. assigned by bill of sale to A., and which B. had seized. Counter-claim by B. alleging a bill of sale from C. to him and claiming relief against C. upon it. So far as claim against C. was concerned, it was held not sufficiently connected with the original cause of action: Barber v. Blaiberg, 19 Ch. D. 473.

Action by liquidator for calls against a newspaper proprietor. Counter-claim for price of advertisements and damages: Government Security Invest. Co. v. Demfrey, 50 L. J. Q. B. 199.

Action for damages for negligence. Counter-claim for libel: McLean v. Hamilton Street Ry. Co., 11 P. R. 193.

Action by a trustee in bankruptcy of L. & Co. Counter-claim not against the firm but against L. only: Baker v. Gent, 9 Times. 159.

Action on promissory note. Counter-claim that plaintiff had conspired with third persons, added as defendants by counter-claim, to keep certain moneys instead of applying them on the note, and praying that the new defendants might be ordered to account therefor: General Electric Co. v. Victoria E. L. Co., 16 P. R. 529. Rule 255.

Action of trover and for goods sold and delivered. Defendant was not allowed to set-off a claim against a third party, though such third party was the principal of the plaintiff: Taggart v. Marcus, 36 W. R. 469.

Action for specific performance by vendor against purchaser. Counter-claim for a comparatively small amount of money owing, as the result of an account, by plaintiff to defendant, and which the latter claimed to set-off against the purchase money. Counter-claim excluded as irrelevant to original claim, and because it would be inexpedient to try the two claims together, and would unduly delay the action to investigate the account: Gray v. Webb, 21 Ch. D. 802. Cases of set-off.

Separate Trial of Counter-claim.—Where a counter-claim is not excluded, it is still a question of convenience and in the discretion of the Court, whether the action and counter-claim should be tried together or separately: Re Woodfine, Thompson v. Woodfine, 47 L. J. Chy. 832; 38 L. T. 753.

255. Where a defendant does not dispute the plaintiff's claim and sets up no defence thereto, but sets up a counter-claim, the Court or a Judge may stay proceedings respecting the plaintiff's claim until the counter-claim is disposed of upon such terms as may seem just. New. Stay of proceedings on undisputed claim pending disputed counter-claim.

This Rule is new, and was introduced to prevent the obvious injustice of permitting the plaintiff to sign judgment and enforce payment from a defendant, though in the end the latter might establish a counter-claim entitling him to a balance upon the claim and counter-claim taken together.

3. REPLY AND SUBSEQUENT PLEADINGS.

Under the Ontario Rules of pleading the plaintiff may either reply, or amend his statement of claim; which course he shall pursue depends on circumstances. If he desire to strengthen his case made in the statement of claim, either by setting up new facts, or correcting mistakes therein, he should amend. If on the other hand he wishes merely to set up an answer to facts alleged by the defence, without in any way altering his statement of claim, or merely takes issue on the defence, then he should reply.

A reply must not set up new claims; or refer to an independent document as containing facts on which the pleader relies, without properly setting out such document as part of the reply; and, like other pleadings, it must not state evidence, argument, or conclusions of law: see Rule 268, and Williamson v. L. & N. W. Ry. Co., 12 Ch. D. 790, and Collambell v. Flight, W. N. 1877, 125.

A reply is to be delivered within three weeks after the last of the defences: Rule 256.

Rule 256. As to reply and a defence to a counter-claim, see Rules 250 and 290.

As to the further defence to a counter-claim founded on matter arising after the defence, see Rule 292.

If the plaintiff amends, the defendant has further time to plead to the amended pleading: see Rule 302.

Delivery of reply.

256. A plaintiff shall deliver his reply, if any, within 3 weeks after the defence or the last of the defences has been delivered, unless the time is extended by the Court or a Judge. Con. Rule 381.

Same as Eng. (1883) R. 276.

The last of the defences means the last defence of all the defences: see Collett v. Preston, 3 Mnc. & G. 432; Arnold v. Arnold, 9 Beav. 206; Bertolacci v. Johnstone, 2 Hn. 633; Chy. O. 152; and Jimbroise v. Evelyn, 11 Ch. D., nt p. 762.

Vacations are not reckoned in computing the time: Rule 352. As to extending the time, see notes to Rules 243, 246 and 353.

Delivery after Time.—Under the English practice a reply delivered after three weeks and without an extension of time is irregular, and may be set aside, the pleadings having become closed, (see Rule 262): Webb v. Kerr, 14 L. R. Ir. 294; and where a reply was delivered without leave after the time, and before notice of motion for judgment, it was held to have the effect of preventing notice of motion for judgment from being given under the English Rules, on admission of the defence by default of reply: Graves v. Terry, 9 Q. B. D. 170; see also notes to Rules 243, 246.

In Ontario, however, it has been held that the delivery of a reply after the three weeks does not in itself entitle the opposite party to move to set it aside, and even if strictly the right to move exists, the pleading should not in general be set aside, but the time should be extended: Wright v. Wright, 13 P. R. 268, see also notes to Rules 243, 246.

Where the time to deliver reply would have expired on 25th July, but was extended to 22nd August, and afterwards to 19th September, and on 26th September, no reply having been filed, the defendant took proceedings (warranted by the English, though not by the Ontario Rules), to obtain judgment as on admissions by reason of the default, and on the same day the plaintiff, by leave, served notice for leave to deliver a reply, leave was refused by the Judge of first instance on the ground of unexplained delay, but was granted, on payment of costs, by the Court of Appeal: Eaton v. Storer, 22 Ch. D. 91.

Leave to deliver a reply after the regular time for doing so had expired was granted, though the reply only sought to put in issue what was already in issue by the defence, the object of filing it being to enable the plaintiff to file a jury notice, the case being one in which a jury notice would be proper; and so it would be left to the discretion of the Judge at the trial to decide whether the trial should be with or without a jury: Qua v. Canadian Order of Woodmen, 5 O. L. R. 51.

Close of Pleadings by Reply.—The pleadings are not closed Rules until a reply has been delivered, or the time for delivering one has expired, and until then a defendant cannot give notice of trial: see 257, 258. Robinson v. Caldwell, 1891, 1 Q. B. 519; 68 L. T. 218; 5 R. 320.

Form of Reply.—See II. & L. Forms, Nos. 126, 128. The reply must not raise a new ground of claim not made by the writ or statement of claim: Rule 288; Williamson v. L. & N. W. Ry. Co., 12 Ch. D. 787; Kingston v. Corker, 29 L. R. Ir. 304; and must not contradict the statement of claim: Breslaue v. Barwick, 36 L. T. 52; Collett v. Dickinson, 26 W. R. 403; Hancock v. De Nicville, W. N. 1875, 230; but it may either traverse the allegations made in the defence, or confess and avoid them, or both: Hall v. Eve, 4 Ch. D. 341; 40 L. J. Chy. 145; 35 L. T. 926; 25 W. R. 177. In an action of ejectment where the defendant set up a claim as assignee of a mortgage, the plaintiff was held entitled to reply that the alleged assignment was made without consideration, and that the assignor was a lunatic at the time of the assignment to defendant's knowledge: Smith v. Smith, 2 Q. B. 410.

Defence to Counter-claim and Reply Thereto. — Quære, whether the word "plaintiff" in this Rule includes a plaintiff by counter-claim: semble, it does: see Irvine v. Turner, 16 P. R. 349; Rule 250 and notes; but see Jud. Act, s. 2 (5).

257. No pleading subsequent to reply other than a joinder of issue shall be pleaded without leave of the Court or a Judge, and then upon such terms as the Court or Judge thinks fit. Con. Rule 382. Leave for subsequent pleadings.

Same as Eng. (1883), R. 277.

Pleadings cannot go beyond reply without leave, except that the defendant may join issue if he chooses. That, however, would not seem to be necessary, as the pleadings are deemed to be closed without joinder of issue, at the expiration of the time within which the delivery of subsequent pleadings is necessary: Rules 258 and 262. If the plaintiff replies specially, it may be necessary for a defendant either to amend his statement of defence or to rejoin, so as to set up some new feature in the case, in the nature perhaps of a confession and avoidance, or something destroying the effect of the reply: see Williamson v. L. & N. W. Ry. Co., 12 Ch. D. 792-3; but this cannot now be done in any case without leave: Rules 304 and 257.

In Norris v. Beazley, 35 L. T. 845, leave to rejoin was refused, the proposed rejoinder being regarded as unnecessary, and only amounting to a statement of matters contained in the statement of defence in a more detailed way.

In Evans v. Gann, W. N. 1875, 199, leave was granted to plead a counter-claim after issue joined.

As to pleading grounds of defence to a counter-claim arising after delivery of defence thereto, see Rule 292.

258. Subject to Rule 257, every pleading subsequent to reply shall be delivered within 4 days after the delivery of Time for delivery Rule 259. the previous pleading, unless the time is extended by the Court or a Judge. Con. Rule 383.

Same as Eng. (1883) R. 278.

An extension by consent will doubtless be sufficient: see Rule 303.

4. RAISING QUESTIONS OF LAW IN PLEADINGS.

Questions of law, how to be determined.

259. A party shall not be at liberty to demur, but shall be entitled to raise by his pleading any point of law, and the point so raised shall be disposed of by the Judge who tries the cause at or after the trial, provided that by consent of the parties, or by order of a Judge of the High Court on the application of either party, the same may be set down for hearing and disposed of at any time before the trial. Con. Rules 384, 385; Rules 23rd June, 1894, 1322, amended.

Same as Eng. (1883) Rs. 285, 286.

Scope of Rule.—Though by this Rule demurrers are abolished, the object of this and the succeeding Rules is to preserve a procedure for determining substantial questions of law as expeditiously as by the former demurrer, while rendering it no longer possible to raise objections which would lead to nothing but an amendment: see Burstall v. Beyfus, 26 Ch. D. 35; Brophy v. Royal Victoria, etc., Co., 2 O. L. R. 651.

A motion to strike out the name of one of several plaintiffs, on the ground that he has no title to maintain the action, should not be made under Rule 185, but the objection should be raised under this Rule: Morang v. Rose, 3 O. L. R. 354.

Three methods of proceeding are provided by Rules 259-261 (see Burstall v. Beyfus, 26 Ch. D. at p. 38, and Hubback v. Wilkinson, 1899, 1 Q. B. 91), namely:—

(1) By raising on the pleadings a question of law, so that the parties may have it quickly decided: Rule 259.

(2) By raising on a pleading (see Lever v. Land Securities, 70 L. T. 323), the question whether it discloses any reasonable cause of action or answer. If it does not the Court or Judge may order the pleading to be struck out, not necessarily disposing of the action: Rule 261, first part.

(3) In a case where an action, or defence, is shewn by the pleading, or by undisputed facts, to be frivolous and vexatious, then the Court or Judge can dismiss the action or order it to be stayed, or judgment to be entered, as may seem just: Rule 261, last part.

A fourth mode of procedure for disposing of a preliminary question of law, which may dispose of the action without going to trial, is provided by Rule 373, and this course may be pursued where the preliminary question is not raised by the pleadings, but it can be shewn nevertheless to be necessarily involved in the action and to be convenient to have decided in limine: see notes to Rule 373 and Magnus v. Nat. Bank of Scotland, 58 L. T. 617; 37 W. R. 602, ante.

Horton v. White, 61 L. T. 683; 38 W. R. 201. Ordinarily pleadings are only required to state the material facts: Rule 268. Questions of law may arise on the facts alleged. Under this Rule, however, it will be proper to raise and state a point of law in a pleading.

A point of law will always be based upon a certain state of facts, which must be assumed or proved to be true before the point of law can be disposed of. The facts in the opposite pleading may be expressly admitted, and Rule 616 may then apply; or (as formerly by a demurrer) a pleading may allege that the pleading of the opposite party discloses no cause of action or defence, and a point of law within this Rule will thus be raised: Solaman v. Warner, 1891, 1 Q. B. 734; Thioden v. Tindall, 7 Times, 581; and the facts in the pleading will in such case be taken to be admitted: Hollender v. Foulkes, 26 Ont. 61.

The facts raising the point of law were, in O'Brien v. Tysen, 28 Ch. D. 372, assumed to be true, though denied by the pleading of the opposite party, where the case was set down by consent under this Rule for argument: see also Shafte v. Rolckow, 34 Ch. D. 725. The facts were verified by affidavit in Re Braeken, 43 Ch. D. 3, where the case was set down pursuant to an order. Probably on motion to set down a point of law raised under this Rule for argument, an investigation on affidavit or otherwise may take place to ascertain whether, notwithstanding the pleadings, there is any real dispute as to the facts necessary for the determination of the point of law: see Blaydes v. Selby, 35 Sol. Jour. 528, where admissions of fact were made.

Procedure.—The question of law raised will be determined at the trial, unless, by consent, or by order, under the latter part of the Rule, the case is set down for argument at the Weekly Court.

Motion to set down for Argument.—The motion to set the matter down for argument must be made before a Judge in Chambers: see Rule 6 (a), Rule 42 (16), and Bank of Montreal v. Morrison, 3 O. W. R. 303; Smith v. Smith, 5 O. W. R. 518, 673.

An order may be made where the decision of the point of law will materially affect and have an important bearing upon the action, and probably cause a saving of expense: London, Chatham & Dover Ry. v. S. E. Ry., 53 L. T. 109; Chatenay v. Brazilion, etc., 1891, 1 Q. B. 70; and see Leyman v. Latimer, 3 Ex. D. 352; 26 W. R. 305; 37 L. T. 819; but probably not, unless the action, or a distinct cause of action, or some considerable question in the action, can be disposed of (see Rule 260) or where the question of law may not arise if the issues of fact are tried: Parr v. London, Edinburgh & Glasgow Assoc. Co., 8 Times, 88; particularly where evidence may be lost by delaying the trial of the issues of fact: Scott v. Mercantile, etc., Ins. Co., 8 Times, 431 (see 66 L. T. 811); and see Re Palmer, 22 Ch. D. 88; Owners, etc., of Muori King v. Hughes, 73 L. T. 141, in note to Rule 531.

Party to Begin.—The party entitled to begin is the party who raised the point of law in his pleading: Richards v. Butcher, 62 L. T. 867; Stevens v. Choron, 1901, 1 Ch. 894.

Stay of Trial pending Appeal on question of Law.—The trial of the issues of fact will not in general be stayed pending an Rule 259. appeal respecting questions of law: Re Palmer, 22 Ch. D. 88; and see Arnold v. Toronto Ry. Co., 10 P. R. 394; Hockley v. G. T. Ry. Co., 7 O. L. R. 186.

Examples.—On a motion to strike out a pleading as bad in law, the Court will not look at the pleading with the same strictness as upon a demurrer under the former practice: Bank of Hamilton v. George, 16 P. R. 418.

Under this Rule an objection in the nature of the former general demurrer for want of equity was entertained: see Salaman v. Warner, 1891, 1 Q. B. 734; Thioden v. Tindall, 65 L. T. 343; Cobb v. G. W. Ry., 37 Sol. Jour. 190; also a question of law depending on the construction of a will: Re Ball, 30 Ch. D. 508 (though that case was brought on under Rule 261); Chatenay v. Brazilina, et al., 891, 1 Q. B. 79; or any other instrument such as a debenture: Page v. International, 68 L. T. 435; the effect of a disentailing deed: Millbank v. Vane, 1893, 3 Ch. 79; the validity of an admitted instrument imposing a fetter on a mortgagor's right of redemption: Salt v. Northampton, 45 Ch. D. 194; 1892, A. C. 8; in an action of libel whether statements by solicitors in objections to taxation while acting as solicitors were absolutely privileged: Pedley v. Morris, 65 L. T. 523; 10 W. R. 42; a question of estoppel: Priestman v. Thomas, 9 P. D. 210; of res judicata: Caird v. Moss, 33 Ch. D. 22; Boswell v. Coaks, 6 R. 167; a question preliminary to the right to sue, e.g., a defence that an action would lie only after adjustment of insurance by arbitration: Viney v. Bignold, 20 Q. B. D. 172; whether a corporation can maintain an action for libel: Mayor of Manchester v. Williams, 1891, 1 Q. B. 94; whether the Atty.-Gen. or Local Board could sue for a nuisance: Atty.-Gen. v. Logan, 1891, 2 Q. B. 100; whether an action of tort survived to an executor suing: Oakey v. Dalton, 35 Ch. D. 700; whether plaintiffs who had assigned their business to defendants in trust for creditors had a right to sue for an account: Cooke v. Smith, 45 Ch. D. 38; whether the purchaser, from the proprietors of a trade mark, of goods having that mark, could sue alleged infringers of the trade mark: Richards v. Butcher, 62 L. T. 867; whether a Statute of Limitations applied to bar the plaintiff's claim: Parker v. London County Council, 1904, 2 K. B. 501; whether the Court has jurisdiction: Compagnie de Mocabique v. British S. A. Co., 1892, 2 Q. B. 358; 1893, A. C. 602; a question under the Statute of Frauds: Stokell v. Niven, 61 L. T. 18; whether notice of action was necessary: McCarthy v. Vespra, 16 P. R. 416. A statement of claim setting up a cause of action, in respect of which a notice of action is necessary, but omitting to allege that notice of action was given, cannot be struck out on that ground: Coumce v. Weidmann, 16 P. R. 239.

A pleading which sets up matter which has been held by an unreversed decision of the Court of Appeal to be bad in law, will be struck out, though the pleader disputes the correctness of the decision: McCarthy v. Vespra, 16 P. R. 416; Lavery v. Tuckett-Lavery, 2 O. L. R. 162.

The question whether an action would lie without an allegation of special damage for falsely and maliciously and without reasonable or probable cause presenting a bankruptcy petition was held not to be one to be determined on application to strike out a statement of claim as disclosing no reasonable cause of action: Wyatt v. Palmer, 1896, 2 Q. B. 196. Nor the question whether one of several plaintiffs was entitled to maintain the action: see Morung v. Rose, supra, p. 464.

260. If, in the opinion of the Court the decision of such point of law substantially disposes of the whole action, or of any distinct cause of action, ground of defence, set-off, counter-claim or reply therein, the Court may dismiss the action or make such other order as may seem just. Con. Rule 386; Rules 23rd June, 1894, 1322, amended.

Rules
260, 261.
Judgment
thereon.

Same as Eng. (1883) R. 287.

Leave to amend may be given in a proper case: Richards v. Butcher, 62 L. T. 867, on such terms as to costs as may be just: Preston v. Fulwood, 34 W. R. 200.

Where an action is dismissed because the statement of claim shews no cause of action, a fresh action may be brought: see Jones v. Lucile, 64 L. T. 763; 39 W. R. 629.

261. A Judge of the High Court may order any pleading to be struck out on the ground that it discloses no reasonable cause of action or answer, and in any such case, or in case of the action or defence being shown by the pleadings to be frivolous or vexatious, may order the action to be stayed or dismissed, or judgment to be entered accordingly, as may be just. Con. Rule 387; Rules 23rd June, 1894, 1322.

Pleading
may be struck out.

Same as Eng. (1883) R. 288, except that the Eng. Rule authorizes "the Court or a Judge" to act. The power by the Ontario Rule is given to "a Judge of the High Court." The object of the alteration is to exclude the jurisdiction of the Master in Chambers, and of officers having the like jurisdiction: see Rule 6 (a); Knapp v. Carley, 7 O. L. R. 409.

Scope of Rule.—Two cases are provided for by this Rule:

Two cases provided for.

(1) Where a pleading discloses no reasonable cause of action or defence.

In such case a claim or defence may be struck out, not necessarily disposing of the action, as leave may be given to amend; or the action may be dismissed or judgment given for the plaintiff or defendant.

(2) Where an action is shewn by the pleadings to be frivolous or vexatious.

This appears to apply to the case of a plaintiff's action appearing by the pleadings to be frivolous or vexatious, and in such case the action may be stayed or dismissed, or judgment may be given for defendant.

This Rule does not seem to apply where only part of a pleading is scandalous, defective, or embarrassing. Rules 296-298, then apply.

A description of the cases in which this Rule is applicable has been expressed in various ways. In Attys Gen. v. L. & N. W. Ry. Co., 1892, 3 Ch. 274; 27 L. J. N. C. 126, and Parsons v. Burton, W. N. 1881, 215; it was said that the Rule was not intended to take the place of a demurrer, but only to get rid of frivolous actions; but see Habbuck v. Wilkinson, 1899, 1 Q. B. 86.

Rule 261.

In Darlow v. Scrutton, 29 Sol. Jour. 131, Chitty, J., said, that the word "reasonable" is merely redundant, and the question is whether there is any question to be tried. In Burstall v. Boyfus, 26 Ch. D. 35, and Dadswell v. Jacob, 34 Ch. D. 278; 55 L. T. 751, 857; Cotton, L.J., thought that the Rule applied where a pleading is demurrable, but that the same strictness is not to be used in looking at the statements in the pleadings, as formerly on demurrer; see also Bank of Hamilton v. George, 16 P. R. 418; Landley, L. J., in Dadswell v. Jacob, at p. 284, said that a pleading which discloses no reasonable cause of action "is demurrable at once, and it is something more, it is perfectly frivolous," and that is the thing which is struck at by the Rule.

It has also been held that the Rule applies where a pleading is obviously bad: Brophy v. Royal Victoria Life, etc., Co., 2 O. L. R. 651; see Lawry v. Tuckett-Lavery, infra; but does not apply where an arguable question of law is involved: see Rodger v. Noxon Co., 19 P. R. 327; nor where a lengthy argument and citation of numerous authorities is necessary to shew that the plaintiff should not succeed: Ib., 655; Anderson v. Gorrie, 36 Sol. Jour. 256; Boaler v. Holder, 54 L. T. 298; Mutrie v. Binney, 35 Ch. D. 614; see also Re Bathygaun, 32 W. R. 379; Shafte v. Bolekoe, 34 Ch. D. 725; and Grosvenor v. White, 61 L. T. 663; 38 W. R. 201; but only in a very clear case: Christy v. Ion Specialty Co., 18 C. L. T. 85; 34 C. L. J. 163, as where on the face of the statement of claim the action is obviously unsustainable: Atty.-Gen. v. L. & N. W. Ry. Co., 1892, 3 Ch. 274; 27 L. J. N. C. 126; as for example, being in respect of a question decided by the Court of Appeal adversely to the plaintiff's alleged cause of action: Lawry v. Tuckett-Lavery, 2 O. L. R. 162; or a defence is frivolous and vexatious: Salomons v. Knight, 8 Times, 472; Reichel v. McGrath, 14 App. Cas. 665; Remington v. Scoles, 1897, 2 Ch. 1; 76 L. T. 667; Mackellar v. Hornsey, 49 W. R. 301.

It is not convenient to act under the Rule where, assuming a defence to be true and to be no answer in law, the defendant may have another defence: Grosvenor v. White, 38 W. R. 201; 61 L. T. 663.

Again in Kellaway v. Bury, 66 L. T. 602; 8 Times, 434, Lindley, L.J., said, "It is not enough that the statement of claim should be demurrable, it is essential that the Court should see that the plaintiff has no case at all either on his statement of claim, or on such affidavits as he may file with a view to amendment.

Apart from this Rule the Court has jurisdiction to stay proceedings wherever necessary for the purposes of justice: see Jud. Act, s. 57 (9), and notes, supra, p. 56; and it has moreover inherent jurisdiction to prevent an abuse of its process.

(1) No Reasonable Cause of Action or Defence.—In ascertaining whether there is a reasonable cause of action or answer, the Court does not try the action on the pleadings, but merely looks to see if a reasonable case is set up: Louis v. Guardians of Marylebone, 4 Times, 442. The pleading complained of will not be looked upon with the same strictness as it used to be upon a demurrer; a party is not to be lightly deprived of a ground of substantial defence by the summary process of a judgment under this Rule: Bank of Hamilton v. George, 16 P. R. 418; Dadswell v. Jacobs, 34 Ch. D. 278. A defence to a sci. fa. action which might have been pleaded as a defence to the original action was struck out: Shaver v. Cotton, 16 P. R. 278; but the Court refused to strike out clauses of a statement of claim because notice of action was not alleged to have been given though notice appeared to be necessary: Coumce v. Weidman, 16 P. R. 239; also where a statement of claim set up an agreement required by the Statute of Frauds to be in writing, but not stating it to be in writing: Fraser v. Pape, 91 L. T. 340. Rule 261.

The principles formerly applicable to demurrers will, however, to some extent be applied. As a general rule the pleading alone will be looked at: Boaler v. Holder, 54 L. T. 299; Sulomons v. Knight, 8 Times 473; Willer v. Beauchamp, 11 P. D. 59; Reichel v. McGrath, 14 App. Cas. 667; Peru v. Peruvian Guano Co., 36 Ch. D. 489; and perhaps the particulars if any: see Davey v. Bentinck, 1893, 1 Q. B. 188; but the admissions of the defendant may also be considered: Remington v. Scoles, 1897, 2 Ch. 1; 76 L. T. 667; it is not enough to refer to a document in the pleadings and read the document on the motion: the part relied on must be set out in the pleading: New Chile v. Lee, 4 Times, 444; Howard v. Hill, W. N. 1887, 193.

Where therefore a material fact is not pleaded, without which no cause of action or defence is disclosed, the pleading might formerly have been demurred to; now, objection in law may be taken to it under Rule 259; see Griffiths v. London and St. Katharine Docks, 12 Q. B. D. 493; 13 Q. B. D. 259, (sed vide Coumce v. Weidman, supra); or a motion to strike out may be made under Rule 261, in a plain case, and perhaps also in a case where the possibility of amendment is doubted, so as to compel the party whose pleading is defective to shew by affidavit whether he can amend it.

A statement of claim was struck out where the Court was satisfied that the plaintiff could not succeed at the hearing: South Hetton Coal Co. v. Haswell S. & E. Co., 1898, 1 Ch. 463; 78 L. T. 8; Hodson v. Pare, 1899, 1 Q. B. 455.

Liberty to Amend.—The Court will give leave to amend in a proper case rather than give judgment in ignorance of facts which it ought to know before rights are decided: Steeds v. Steeds, 22 Q. B. D. 37; Griffiths v. London & St. Katharine Docks, supra; Richards v. Butcher, 62 L. T. 867; on such terms as to costs as may be just: Preston v. Fullwood, 34 W. R. 200.

Application.—An application to strike out a pleading should be made promptly. It may be made immediately after the delivery of the pleading, and before pleading in answer to it: Atty.-Gen. v. L. & N. W. Ry. Co., 1892, 3 Ch. 274, or perhaps after the close of the pleadings: see Tucker v. Collinson, 34 W. R. 354; at any rate before the case is set down for trial: Cross v. Howe, 62 L. J. Ch. 342.

(2) Frivolous and Vexatious Actions.—Under the second branch of the Rule the action must be obviously frivolous or vexatious; see per Lindley, L.J., in Atty.-Gen. v. L. & N. W. Ry. Co., 1892, 3 Ch. 277. An action appearing from the pleadings to be of that description comes within this Rule: see Willis v. Beauchamp, 11 P. D. 59; Reichel v. McGrath, 14 App. Cas. 667; but, apart from the Rule altogether, the Court has inherent jurisdiction to prevent abuse of its process, and to dismiss an action which can on motion be shewn to be frivolous or vexatious; see Metropolitan Bank v. Pooley, 10 App. Cas. 210; Kellaway v. Bury, 96 L. T. 603; Brophy v. Victoria L. I. Co., 2 O. L. R. 651; Lawry v. Tuckett-Lawry, 2 O. L. R. 162; Ker v. Williams, 29 Sol. Jour. 687; and notes to sec. 57 (9) of the Ind. Act. supra, p. 56.

Rule 262.

This Rule only applies after a statement of claim is delivered: but the application need not be made until after the close of the pleadings, when the Court may look at the whole case upon the pleadings: Tucker v. Collinson, 34 W. R. 354. A motion before delivery of statement of claim may, however, be made by way of application for the exercise of the inherent jurisdiction of the Court: Ker v. Williams, 29 Sol. Jour. 681.

Jurisdiction under this Rule will only be exercised with caution: Magrath v. Reichel, 57 L. T. 850; 14 App. Cas. 667, and a doubtful question of law will not be decided: Roberts v. Charing Cross Ry., 1903, W. N. 13; 87 L. T. 732; nor will an action be dismissed brought bona fide to try a question of law: Lea v. Thursby, 59 L. T. 744; 90 L. T. 265. The improbability of the facts alleged is not material. However improbable, their truth will be assumed: see Laurance v. Norreys, 39 Ch. D. 236; Langdale v. Knill, 6 Times, 236; Johnston v. Johnston, 33 W. R. 239; but if nevertheless the Court is satisfied that the action is frivolous or vexatious: Kellaway v. Bury, 66 L. T. 603; 8 Times, 433, as for example, being plainly based upon some ground which, if proved, as it is assumed it will be, would not in law entitle plaintiff to judgment: Johnston v. Johnston, 33 W. R. 239; Re Batthyany, 32 W. R. 379; Rep. of Peru v. Peruvian Guano Co., 36 Ch. D. 489; Williams v. Earl Beauchamp, 11 P. D. 60; Weldon v. Maples, 20 Q. B. D. 331; Willis v. Howe, 1893, 2 Ch. 545; 2 R. 427; or being a case where a plea of res judicata if raised must succeed: Macdougall v. Knight, 25 Q. B. D. 1, see also Reichel v. Magrath, 14 App. Cas. 667; Rio Tinto v. Société des Métaux, 6 Times, 478; Stephenson v. Garnett, 1898, 1 Q. B. 677. So where an action was brought against an official liquidator personally, in respect of property vested in him officially, so that no action was maintainable, except against him officially, and by leave of the Court: Graham v. Edge, 4 Times, 442; an action for libel against a solicitor respecting statements made by him in an affidavit made in the action on an interlocutory motion: Gompas v. White, 6 Times, 20; see also Lilley v. Roney, 61 L. J. Q. B. 727; Lawrence v. Newberry, 7 Times, 588; Salomons v. Knight, 8 Times, 472; Guy v. Walker, 8 Times, 314.

This Rule would seem to contemplate that the frivolous or vexatious nature of the action or defence should appear from the pleadings: see also Atty-Gen. v. L. & N. W. Ry., 1892, 3 Ch. 278; but in Rep. of Peru v. Peruvian Guano Co., 36 Ch. D. 489; affidavits, and in Remington v. Scoles, 1897, 2 Ch. 1; 76 L. T. 667, the defendant's admissions under oath in another Court, were admitted: see also cases, supra, p. 56. Probably affidavits may always be used, as the application may be considered to be made to the Court both under this Rule and under its inherent jurisdiction: Fletcher v. Bethom, 41 W. R. 621; Chaffers v. Goldsmid, 1894, 1 Q. B. 190; and see Boswell v. Coaks, 6 R. 167.

A defendant may move notwithstanding that the action is brought by an infant: Anon., 29 Sol. Jour. 638.

5. CLOSE OF PLEADINGS.

When pleadings closed.

262. As soon as either party has joined issue upon any pleading of the opposite party simply, without adding any further or other pleading thereto, [or as soon as the time for amending the pleadings under these Rules or under any Rule 262. order, or for delivering a reply or subsequent pleading, has expired,] the pleadings as between such parties shall be deemed to be closed [without any joinder of issue being pleaded by any or either party.] Con. Rule 392. Rules 23rd June, 1894, 1323.

The clauses in brackets are not in Eng. (1883) R. 280, which is in other respects the same.

Under this Rule, in an action in which there is no counter-claim, it is not necessary to deliver any pleading to the defence: see Rule 256, 300: Lockington v. King, 7 C. L. T. 47; Robinson v. Caldwell, 1893, 1 Q. R. 519; 5 R. 320; and the pleadings become closed when the plaintiff has delivered a joinder of issue, or where, without joinder, three weeks have elapsed from the delivery of the defence: Schneider v. Proctor, 9 P. R. 11. Where there is no counter-claim.

Where there is no counter-claim and a reply has been delivered, the pleadings become closed without the delivery of any other pleading or of a joinder of issue upon the expiration of four days from the delivery of the reply: Qua v. Canadian Order of Woodmen, 5 O. L. R. 51; and see Weller v. Proctor, 10 P. R. 323; and Piper v. Benjamin, 17 P. R. 267.

A joinder of issue may, however, properly be delivered either to a defence, or a reply, and sometimes materially saves expense and delay: see Robinson v. Caldwell and Qua v. Can. Order of Woodmen, supra.

By the delivery by the plaintiff of a simple joinder of issue upon the statement of defence and counter-claim, the pleadings are closed, and notice of trial may be given: Hare v. Cawthrope, 11 P. R. 353; Malcolm v. Race, 16 P. R. 330; but a pleading which denies the allegations in a counter-claim, puts the counter-claiming defendant to the proof thereof, and submits that the counter-claim should be dismissed, is not a joinder of issue, but a defence, to which the counter-claiming defendant has 3 weeks to reply, so that the pleadings are not closed until he replies, or joins issue, or the 3 weeks expire: Irwin v. Turner, 16 P. R. 349.

A reply joining issue on the statement of defence, and further alleging that the facts set forth in the defence are no answer to the claim, is a joinder of issue only, within Rule 262, and closes the pleadings: Gibson v. Nelson, 19 P. R. 265.

In Webb v. Kerr, 14 L. R. Ir. 294, it was held that when the pleadings were closed by expiry of time under this Rule, neither party could re-open them without the leave of the Court; but see contra Wright v. Wright, 13 P. R. 268, where the delivery of a reply after the time had expired was held to be not necessarily open to objection. A reply was allowed to be delivered after time, to enable the plaintiff to give a jury notice, the case being one prima facie proper to be tried by jury: Qua v. Canadian Order of Woodmen, supra.

Where a pleading is amended under an order giving leave to amend, or the time limited by the order for making the amendment has expired, the pleadings are in the same position as to their being closed

Rule 263. as they were when the order was made: Thompson v. Howson, 16 P. R. 378.

Where a plaintiff issued a writ against several defendants, but only served one, and proceeded against him to the close of the pleadings, it was held that he must be assumed to have abandoned as to the others, and the pleadings in the action were closed, and notice of trial could be regularly given: Vaudusen v. Johnson, 3 C. L. T. 505.

Where there is a counter-claim.

Where there is a counter-claim the delivery of a pleading by the plaintiff which is more than a joinder of issue, and constitutes a reply to the defence proper, and a defence to the counter-claim, will not close the pleadings, as the counter-claiming defendant has further time to reply: Irwin v. Turner, supra. See also Garner v. Tunc, 12 P. R. 280, decided under the former Con. Rule 425, repealed by Rule 1327 of 23 June, 1894 (see note to Rule 304).

Where a third party has been made a defendant to a counter-claim, the action is not at issue till the counter-claim has been struck out, or the third party has pleaded, or become in default: Canadian Securities Co. v. Prentiss, 2 C. L. T. 90.

A counter-claim must be a defence, and therefore a joinder of issue on the defence, not mentioning the counter-claim, closes the pleadings, and notice of trial thereafter is therefore regular: Macara v. Snow, 12 P. R. 616.

See also notes to Rules 433, 530.

Note may be entered of default.

263. Where any party makes default in delivering a statement of defence, or subsequent pleading, including pleadings in counter-claims, within the time limited therefor, in cases where interlocutory or final judgment cannot be signed, the opposite party may, at any time before the pleading is filed, upon proof of the default, by praecepe to the officer with whom the pleadings are filed, require him to note that the pleadings in the action are closed as to the party in default: and thereupon the officer shall enter such note in the pleadings book accordingly, and thereafter no pleading by the party in default shall be received or filed without the order of a Judge. Con. Rule 393. Rules 23rd June, 1894, 1324, amended.

There is no similar English Rule.

Where interlocutory judgment cannot be signed, and an assessment of damages is necessary, or a motion for judgment, after the delivery of a statement of claim to which no defence is filed, the pleadings must be first closed by the entry of a note under this Rule before the case is set down for assessment of damages, or on motion for judgment: Alexander v. Alexander, 1 O. L. R. 639.

In Lloyd v. Ward, 13 P. R. 238, Saturday being the last day to deliver a defence, the plaintiff caused a note under this Rule to be entered at 2.25 p.m., conceiving that no defence could be validly delivered on that day, none having been served by 2 o'clock; but it was held that under Rule 267, filing was part of the delivery, and the defendant had under former Rule 7, up to 3 o'clock to file the Rules defence, whether it had been delivered or not. The offices now close at 1 p.m. on Saturday: see Rule 5. 264, 265.

An action should not be set down on motion for judgment by default of pleading until the pleadings are noted as closed: see Rule 593; directions to officers in note to Rule 539, and Alexander v. Alexander, 1 O. L. R. 639. A defence filed after the pleadings have been so noted as closed is irregular, but is not a nullity, and if filed before notice of motion for judgment is given entitles the defendant to notice of the motion: Jackson v. Gardiner, 19 P. R. 137.

If a defence be delivered after service of a notice of motion for judgment, it should be brought to the attention of the Court by the plaintiff, if he is aware of it: or the defendant may do so, and the Court will exercise its discretion under all the circumstances: Gibbings v. Strong, 26 Ch. D. 66; Montagu v. Land Corporation, 56 L. T. 730; or the defendant may move to stay the motion for judgment, and for leave to deliver the defence: Potts v. Deane, 11 L. R. Ir. 396. See also Wilson v. Noble, 11 L. R. Ir. 546.

See also notes to Rule 246.

See also notes to Rules 246 and 262.

6. GENERAL RULES OF PLEADING.

264. The following Rules of pleading substituted for those used in the Court of Chancery and in the Courts of Common Law, prior to The Ontario Judicature Act, 1881, shall continue to be used. Con. Rule 394. Old rules abolished.

Same as Eng. (1883) R. 197.

For the definition of "pleading," see sec. 2 (9) of the Act.

The former system of pleading at Common Law required the parties to set forth the legal result of the facts, and not the facts themselves. Under The Judicature Act the facts must be stated, and the Court decides what is the legal result: Hammer v. Flight, 35 L. T. 127. The new system is thus to a great extent similar to that of the former Court of Chancery, and the forms of Chancery pleadings, except in some points noticed hereafter (notes to Rule 268), will in general serve as guides: Heap v. Marris, 2 Q. B. D. 630.

265.—(1) Every [writ,] pleading [or other document,] may be printed or written, in whole or in part, but not more than four copies [thereof] exclusive of the draft, but inclusive of all other copies that may be required or made, in the progress of the cause, shall be allowed. Con. Rule 395. Rules 23rd June, 1894, 1325. Copies of pleadings.

See Eng. (1883) R. 205, and Chy. O. 66 and 403.

The words in brackets, introduced in 1894, make it clear that copies of writs are covered by this Rule, affirming the decision in Sparks v. Purdy, 15 P. R. 1, so that no more than 4 copies can be taxed.

Rules266-263.

The provisions of this Rule cover all copies of the writ, pleading or other documents required during the litigation, including the copy for brief: Sparks v. Purdy, supra.

Printing pleadings.

(2) If more than three copies, exclusive of the draft, are required, the party may have the writ or pleadings or document printed, and he shall in lieu of all charges for copies be allowed thirty cents per folio of the writ or pleading or document, and his reasonable disbursements for printing. Con. Rule 396. Rules 23rd June, 1894, 1325.

This is the same as the Chy. Gen. Ord. 404. The Eng. (1883) R. 205. is not similar.

See notes to clause (1) of this Rule.

How pleadings delivered should be marked.

266. Every pleading shall be delivered, and shall be marked on the face with the date of filing, and with the title of the action, the description of the pleading, and the name and place of business of the solicitor and agent (if any) of the party filing the same, or the name and address of the party filing the same if he does not act by a solicitor. Con. Rule 397.

Substantially the same as the Eng. (1883) R. 207, except that under the latter pleadings are to be delivered only, and need not be filed. Filing is necessary in Ont. under Rule 267.

Delivery includes filing and service.

267. Delivering a pleading shall include filing and service. Con. Rule 398.

The English practice does not require pleadings to be filed.

See Lloyd v. Ward, in note to Rule 263.

Form of pleadings.

268. Pleadings shall contain a concise statement of the material facts upon which the party pleading relies, but not the evidence by which they are to be proved; dates, sums and numbers shall be expressed in figures: the signature of counsel shall not be necessary. Con. Rule 399.

The somewhat similar Eng. (1883) R. 200, provides for the signing of pleadings, and that a pleading "shall contain, and contain only, a statement in a summary form of the material facts, etc." The pleadings in England since this Rule are now like a special indorsement on a writ which indeed always serves as a statement of claim: see O. 20, r. 1. The English pleadings and decisions thereon, and as to particulars, cannot now be safe guides in Ontario.

Facts to be stated.

The system of pleading introduced by the Jud. Act, 1881, requires not the legal result of the facts, but the facts themselves, to be stated: see note to Rule 264. A statement of claim therefore which merely alleged that a good and valid donatio mortis causa had been made to the plaintiff, without stating the facts which constituted it, was formerly held to be demurrable: Re Parton, Townsend v. Parton, Rule 268. 30 W. R. 287; 45 L. T. 735. ~~see Addenda~~

Subsequent Rules modify slightly the original Rule requiring the facts only to be stated: see Rule 259, by which the contentions in point of law may be stated, and 271, under which the contentions of the party must be raised so as to prevent surprise. In complying with these Rules it may not always be proper to state only facts.

In an action for defamation, the plaintiff must set out as formerly Libel. the words of the alleged libel: see notes to Rule 275. and Robinson v. Sugarman, 17 P. R. 419; Hay v. Bingham, 5 O. L. R. 224; and the defendant must set out all the facts showing defences, e.g., justification or privilege: Bell v. Lawes, 51 L. J. Q. B. 359; or intended to be relied on in mitigation of damages, such as the plaintiff's general bad character: Scott v. Sampson, 8 Q. B. D. 491; see notes to Rule 488; or that the alleged libel (where in a newspaper article) was published in good faith and in the usual course of business: Beaton v. Intelligencer, etc., 22 Ont. App. 97; or that the words were spoken on a privileged occasion: Vansycle v. Parish, 1 O. L. R. 13; so in an action for libel, where the defendant pleads fair comment on matters of public interest, he must set out the facts upon which it is alleged that the article complained of was a fair comment, or allege the truth thereof: Crow's Nest Pass Coal Co. v. Bell, 4 O. L. R. 600.

In an action of slander it is not sufficient to allege that the defendant falsely and maliciously spoke and published the defamatory words complained of. The time and place, and the persons to whom, or in whose presence, they were spoken must be stated with reasonable certainty: Thornton v. Capstock, 19 C. L. J. 254; the statement that the words were spoken and published to certain named persons, "and to others at present unknown to the plaintiff," was held sufficient: Townsend v. O'Keefe, 18 P. R. 147; an allegation that during a period of 5 months the defendant spoke and published various slanders to certain named persons, and to others not known to the plaintiff, was held bad, and struck out because it did not shew which of the persons were present when the different statements were made, nor at which times and places they were present: Ib.

A statement of claim in an action for defamation for words charging the plaintiff with an offence under R. S. C. c. 168, ss. 26, or 58, need not aver special damage, but it is otherwise when the offence charged is a violation of ss. 27, or 59: Routley v. Harris, 18 Ont. 405.

A counter-claim for slander, referring to charges set out in the statement of defence, on an occasion prima facie privileged, and alleging that they were falsely and maliciously spoken, was held to be a good pleading, though it omitted to shew in what respect the plaintiff had exceeded the privilege: Hopewell v. Kennedy, 9 O. L. R. 43.

A defence of purchaser for value without notice may be relied on at the hearing, though not expressly pleaded, if it be a just inference from the facts admitted, on the pleadings, or subsequently by agreement of the parties: Taylor v. Blacklock, 34 W. R. 175. Purchaser for value.

The pleadings in dower are governed by the same rules as those power, in other actions. The right of dower is a legal conclusion from certain facts, and those facts should be stated in the pleading: Lauder v. Carrier, 10 P. R. 612.

A plaintiff who claimed to be entitled to a right of way over a other cases, road, and an injunction against the obstruction of the road, was required to state in his pleading the way and the route and limitations

Rule 268. of the road over which he claimed the right. A general statement that there was a road over a certain farm connecting two other farms, and that the plaintiff and his tenants were entitled to a right of way over it, was held to be embarrassing: Harris v. Jenkins, 22 Ch. D. 481; see also Spedding v. Fitzpatrick, 38 Ch. D. 410. So a plaintiff claiming an easement must set out the facts on which he relies as entitling him, by grant, prescription or otherwise: Farwell v. Houghton, 12 L. R. Ir. 14.

Where the pleadings alleged that "the company has otherwise acknowledged the insolvency," it was held that as a matter of pleading, the manner of acknowledgment should have been stated: Re British American Loan, etc., Co., 4 C. L. T. 248.

In a foreclosure action where the mortgagee applies for judgment, on default of appearance, not only for foreclosure but also for a personal order for payment, the statement of claim ought, shortly, to contain an express statement of the covenant or other contract upon which the order is claimed: Law v. Philby, 56 L. T. 230; 35 W. R. 401.

What are "material facts."

Stating the Material Facts.—The "material facts" are those which the party must prove to be fully and completely successful: Prince v. Toronto Ry. Co., 5 O. W. R. 88. Facts may be "material," though they are not merely facts which must be proved in order to establish the cause of action; if they are facts which if proved would affect the damages, they are properly pleadable in a statement of claim: Millington v. Loring, 6 Q. B. D. 190; (explained, Prince v. Toronto Ry. Co., supra); Lumb v. Beaumont, 49 L. T. 772; Glossop v. Spindler, 29 Sol. Jour. 556; Whitney v. Moignard, 24 Q. B. D. 630; so facts in mitigation of damages in an action for malicious arrest: Pursley v. Bennett, 11 P. R. 64; and in an action for slander: Vansycle v. Parish, 1 O. L. R. 13. The Eng. Rules of 1883 (R. 237), provide that no defence as to damages shall be necessary; and, therefore, such a defence is not allowed to be pleaded: Wood v. Earl of Durham, 37 W. R. 222; sed vide, Whitney v. Moignard, 24 Q. B. D. 630. There is no similar provision in Ontario.

In an action for malicious prosecution, a part of the statement of claim, setting out the observations of the Judge, before whom the plaintiff was tried on a criminal charge, was struck out, but a part, stating damage from publication of such charge, was allowed to stand: Morrow v. Cheyne, 12 P. R. 487.

In an action for damages for false representations inducing the plaintiffs to supply the defendant with goods and money, it is sufficient to aver that the goods and money were supplied on the faith of statements, oral and written (specifying them), falsely and fraudulently made, leaving the details of goods, etc., to be given by particulars subsequently if required: Arthur v. Runnians, 18 P. R. 205.

A plea to an action on a contract, that it was entered into for immoral or illegal consideration, must set out the particular facts relied on as establishing such consideration: Clark v. Hagar, 22 S. C. R. 510.

Though each paragraph should as nearly as possible contain a separate allegation, it need not contain a separate cause of action or defence: Union, etc., v. Lyman, 46 U. C. Q. B. 453. The facts must be stated concisely, without any rhetoric: per Mellish, L.J., in Watson v. Rodwell, 45 L. J. Chy. 744; 3 Ch. D. 380; but if a pleading states only material facts, it will not be struck out merely be- Rule 265.

 cause the facts are stated at too great a length: Heap v. Marria, 2 Q. B. D. 630; unless the pleading is so prolix as to embarrass:
Dary v. Garrett, 7 Ch. D. at p. 488; Marsh v. Pontefract, etc., W.
 N. 1876, 7. Prolixity may consist in (1) necessary facts being stated at undue length; or (2) statements of unnecessary facts: per Baggallay, L.J., in Dary v. Garrett, 38 L. T. 77. It is improper to state argument, or inferences and conclusions of law: Dary v.
Garrett, supra; per Mellish, L.J., in Watson v. Rodwell, supra; Hammer v. Flight, 35 L. T. 127; Williamson v. L. & N. W. Ry. Co., 12 Ch. D. 787; or matters of law except under Rules 250-261:
Stokes v. Grant, 4 C. P. D. 25; or "charges" such as were sometimes introduced in Equity pleadings, and were merely statements of the Admissions pleader's view of the equity: Watson v. Rodwell, supra; or evidence, and other evidence.
per Evelyn v. Evelyn, W. N. 1880, 62; see also Blake v. Abdon Life Ins. Co., 35 L. T. 260; 45 L. J. C. P. 663; Jones v. Turner, W. N. 1875, 239; Williamson v. L. & N. W. Ry. Co., supra; Prince
v. Toronto Ry. Co., 5 O. W. R. 88; or evidence in the shape of admissions: Askew v. N. E. Ry. Co., W. N. 1875, 238. Documents relied on as admissions are nothing but evidence: Dary v. Garrett, 7 Ch. D.
 473.

A plaintiff is entitled to have the defences set out in such a manner as will enable him upon reading them to form a fairly correct judgment as to their scope and meaning, and as to what is intended to be relied upon under them. Paragraphs should be arranged so as to group separate defences: Dryden v. Smith, (2) 17 P. R. 505. Arrangement of allegations and causes of action
 and defence.

The Court has a discretion to strike out statements which are open to any of these objections: Rule 208. There are many cases in which facts and evidence are so mixed up as to be almost indistinguishable: per Archibald, J., in Smith v. West, W. N. 1876, 55; 2 Charl. Ch. Ca. 41.

The plaintiff in an action to recover land, must set out all the material facts upon which his title is founded: see note to Rule 285.

The plaintiff need not state under what particular form of action he is proceeding; nor in what legal relation he claims to stand to the defendant: Metropolitan Ry. Co. v. Defries, 36 L. T. 150, 494; Hammer v. Flight, 24 W. R. 346.

What is material, is a statement of the facts and of the relief claimed; and the facts need not be distributed so as to show which of them support each claim to relief. So long as they show that the plaintiff is entitled to any one kind of relief claimed, or, where there is a claim for general relief, to any relief at all, the paragraph containing them will not be objectionable: Watson v. Hawkins, 21 W. R.
 884.

Where the old forms of Common Law pleadings will serve as models, they may still be followed. Where a defendant had received a sum of money for the plaintiff, it was considered that the statement of that fact was all that could be required; and an application for the amendment of the statement of claim by setting forth the circumstances under which the money was received, was dismissed:
Bartlett v. Roche, W. N. 1876, 54. mer amon w Forms.

Defences, however, of "never indebted" and "set-off," in the old forms, have been struck out as violating the present Rule: Davis v.
McCoy, Mr. Dalton, 11th April, 1882. See Copley v. Jackson, W. N.
 1884, 39.

Rule 269. The pleading of the "common counts" is not admissible: Spradley v. Ferrier, 20 C. L. J. 284.

The plea of "not guilty," without statutory authority to plead it, is not admissible: Peterborough v. Midland Ry. Co., 12 P. R. 127.

Conditions precedent.

It has been held by some Judges in England that the old general allegation of the performance of conditions precedent is improper, not being an allegation of facts: see 72 L. T. Jour. 343; but see Home Life Association v. Randall, 30 S. C. R. 97; where it was held that the performance of conditions precedent to the right of action must still be alleged and proved by the plaintiff.

The English Rules of 1883 now contain an express Rule on the subject (Rule 210); see also Bradley v. Chamberlyn, 1893, 1 Q. R. 439.

Quare, whether hypothetical defences can be pleaded: Smith v. Farr, 14 Ont. 729.

Unconventional forms of pleadings.

An appearance with these words added, "the defendant admits only $103, but otherwise disputes the plaintiff's claim in this action," was held to be in effect a statement of defence: Voight, etc., Co. v. Orth, 5 O. L. R. 443.

Signature of Counsel.—The provision that signature of counsel is not to be necessary, does not mean that it is improper and ought to be struck out: Bernard v. Harwick, W. N. 1876, 134. In Duchatt v. Jones, W. N. 1876, 17; 33 L. T. 777, counsel's signature was said to be desirable; and in case of a petition by trustees for advice, necessary: Re Boulton's Trusts, W. N. 1882, 62; 30 W. R. 596; 51 L. J. Chy. 493; but this practice is not followed in Ontario.

Admission of statements of opponent.

269. Each party shall admit such of the material allegations contained in the statement of claim or defence of the opposite party as are true; or he may give notice, by his own statement or otherwise, that he admits for the purposes of the action the truth of the case generally, or of any part of the case, stated or referred to in the statement of claim or defence of the opposite or any other party. Con. Rule 400.

This Rule corresponds in principle with the former practice in Chancery. The Eng. (1883) R. 371, is permissive only, and authorizes, but does not require (as this Rule does) a party to the action to give notice, by his own statement or otherwise, that he admits the truth of the whole or part of his adversary's statement.

In Lee v. Button, 12 Ch. D. 383, Malins, V.C., said that a defendant ought not to deny the plain and acknowledged facts, which it is neither to his interest, nor in his power to disprove.

As to the construction of admissions not made by reference to paragraphs of the opposite party's pleading, see Dovey v. Irwin, 4 Ont. 8; see also notes to Rule 216.

Where all the material allegations in the plaintiff's claim were admitted, he was not allowed to go into evidence: The Hardwick, 9 P. D. 32.

As to costs where proper admissions are not made, see Rule 1119.

As to withdrawing admissions made otherwise than in pleadings, see East v. O'Connor, 19 P. R. 301, infra, in notes to Rule 616.

270. Admissions are, in all cases where it is practicable, to be by reference to the number of the paragraphs in the pleading to which they relate, with such qualifications as may be necessary or proper for protecting the interests of the party making such admissions; thus—"the defendant admits the allegations made in the first, second and third paragraphs of the plaintiff's claim." Con. Rule 401.

Rules
270, 271.
Manner of making admissions.

Not in the English Rules. See notes to Rule 272.

See Rule 269, which requires each party to admit such of the material allegations contained in the pleading of the opposite party as are true.

271. Each party in any pleading shall raise [all matters which show the action or counter-claim not to be maintainable, or that the transaction is either void or voidable in point of law,] and all such grounds of defence or reply, as the case may be, as if not raised would be likely to take the opposite party by surprise, or would raise issues of fact not arising out of the [preceding] pleadings, as for instance, fraud, Statute of Limitations, release, [payment, performance, facts showing illegality either by statute or Common Law, or Statute of Frauds]. Con. Rule 402, amended.

Pleadings to raise all grounds of defence or reply.

Same as Eng. (1883) R. 211. The former Con. Rule 402, followed Eng. R. 1875, O. 10, r. 18, which was less full and specific. It did not contain the passages in brackets.

In Byrd v. Nunn, 5 Ch. D. 781, where a statement of defence denied the making of an agreement alleged, and proceeded to say that the person by whom it was alleged to have been made was of unsound mind, it was held that the only issue was the unsoundness of mind of the alleged contractor. In Collette v. Goode, 7 Ch. D. 842, the defendant alleged that a song was not duly registered by reason of the time of registration not being entered: he was not allowed to prove that the registration was void by reason of the name of the publishers not being truly stated. Both the above cases, however, depended to a great extent, upon the English Rules as to admissions, which have not been adopted in Ontario: see note to Rule 272.

Plea to the Jurisdiction of the Court.—In a proper case the Court will allow an objection of ouster of jurisdiction to be raised at the trial though not previously raised by the pleadings: Crossfield v. Manchester Ship Canal Co., 1904, 2 Ch. 123.

Notice of Action.—Want of notice of action must be pleaded: Verrill v. McAulay, 5 Ont. 313; McKay v. Cummings, 6 Ont. 400; and see Connee v. Weidman, 16 P. R. 239.

Notice of Dishonour.—In an action on a dishonoured cheque, notice of dishonour to the drawer should be averred: Fruhauf v. Groutenor, 67 L. T. 350; 61 L. J. Q. B. 717; 8 Times, 744.

Rule 271. Libel—Justification—Privilege.—In an action for libel, justification, or privilege, must be specially pleaded: Holt v. Luce, 51 L. J. Q. B. 350, and see notes to Rule 268.

Fraud.—As to the mode of pleading fraud; see notes to Rule 276.

Statute of Limitations.—Prior to this Rule there was a difference in the mode of setting up a Statute of Limitation, which merely barred the remedy, and one which extinguished the title. As to the former the defendant was bound to plead it, but as to the latter, if it appeared by the plaintiff's claim that his title was extinguished under the Statute, the objection might have been taken by demurrer: see 11. & L., 2nd ed., p. 458. Now it would seem that in all cases the Statute must be pleaded. In the cases in which formerly a demurrer was proper, a motion may probably now be made under Rules 259-261.

Where the Statute is pleaded the particular section or sections relied on should be specified, or the defendant may be required to give further particulars: Dodge v. Smith, 1 O. L. R. 46.

Statute of Frauds.—The effect of this Rule and of Rule 282 is to require the defendant who wishes to rely on the Statute of Frauds, in an action between the parties to a contract, to plead the Statute specifically; but where the plaintiff has to show a title good in omnibus (as in an action for conversion of goods) the defendant may without specially pleading the Statute of Frauds set up that the plaintiff's title is based upon a contract which is void under that Statute: Kent v. Ellis, 31 S. C. R. 110.

Formerly "at law, if the contract was denied, it was a matter of evidence whether the contract was one which could be sued upon, or whether the remedy was barred by the Statute; but in Equity, if the defendant intended to rely upon the Statute of Frauds or any other special statute, he was compelled to make a special averment of his intention": per Mellish, L.J., in Clarke v. Collow, 46 L. J. Q. B. 54; see also Morgan v. Worthington, 38 L. T. 443.

Formerly in Equity the statute might have been relied on by demurrer where the facts, which made the statute apply, appeared on the face of the bill: Wood v. Midgeley, 2 Sm. & G. 115; Agnew on Statute of Frauds, 404; and might have been relied on as a defence, though not pleaded in the answer: Wilde v. Wilde, 20 Gr. 521; sed vide Butler v. Church, 18 Gr. 190; but in Clarke v. Collow, supra, the plaintiff by anticipation of the defence of the statute alleged facts to show that the contract though verbal was a binding one under the Statute, and the defendants traversed these facts merely, not setting up the Statute. It was held that defendant was not entitled to rely on the Statute.

The facts which make the Statute apply should be stated, and the particular provisions relied upon should be pointed to. It is not sufficient to merely make a general statement of reliance on the Statute: Pullen v. Snellus, 40 L. T. 303. But see James v. Smith, 1891, 1 Ch. 384, where it was held that it is not necessary to plead any particular section of the Statute of Frauds, but the defendant having pleaded sec. 4 was not allowed to amend, or avail himself of sec. 7 (see S. C. in Appeal, 65 L. T. 544, and Dodge v. Smith, 1 O. L. R. 46).

Though it has not been proper since the Judicature Act to raise Rule 272, the defence of the Statute of Frauds by demurrer; Culling v. King, 5 Ch. D. 660; Morgan v. Worthington, 38 L. T. 413; Towle v. Topham, 37 L. T. 308; Duckins v. Lord Parkyn, 4 App. Cas. 71; Shardlow v. Cotterill, W. N. 1881, 2; Futcher v. Futcher, 20 W. R. 881, and see Johnson v. Bonhote, 2 Ch. D. 208, a question under the Statute may probably now be raised under the procedure adopted in lieu of demurrers (see Rules 230-231) where the facts which make the Statute apply appear upon the pleading of the opposite party.

Where the Statute is not pleaded, it cannot now be relied on as a defence; see Olliv v. Fisher, 34 Ch. D. 367.

See also Rule 282 and notes.

Illegality.—See Pearson v. Carpenter, 35 S. C. R. 380.

Other Statutes.—As to pleading statutes relied on other than the pleading Statute of Limitations, and the Statute of Frauds, see 83 L. T. Jour. order 93; Cahoun v. Collins, 35 Ch. D. 373 (registration necessary under statutes, the Bill of Sales Act); Hugieard v. Lely, 56 L. T. 418 (registration under the Copyright Act); from which it would appear to be well to mention any statute relied on in the pleading. In order to prevent the imputation of an attempt to surprise. The pleadings in the above cases were held insufficient, but amendments were allowed; see also McKay v. Canonnings, 6 Ont. 400. As to The Chattel Mortgage Act, see Williams v. Leonard, 16 P. R. 511; 17 P. R. 73; and as to The Registry Act (R. S. O. c. 136), see R. v. L. Assur. v. Paine, 27 Ont. at p. 476, and as to The Master and Servant Act, (R. S. O. c. 157), see Neil v. Park, 10 P. R. 476. Statute 2 of 1881 was added Routh - May 93 L.T. 10

Where a plaintiff at the trial is allowed to amend by setting up a new case, the defendant is ex debito justitiae entitled to amend by setting up a defence thereto, and may in such defence set up the Statute of Frauds as to the new case, though not previously pleaded; Ebbsley v. Harrison, 17 P. R. 425; Bramming v. Odhams, 75 L. T. 622; and wherever the plaintiff is allowed by amendment to set up a new claim, the Court may, and ordinarily will, impose the term, that the defendant shall be in the same position in regard to such new claim under the Statute of Limitations, as if the action, as to such claim, had been commenced at the date of the amendment; Hogaboon v. MacCallach, 17 P. R. 377.

Res judicata.—Estoppel by res judicata cannot be relied upon unless specially pleaded; Cooper v. Molsons Bank, 26 S. C. R. 611; Huntoun v. Sligo, 20 Ch. D. 448; Edevala v. Cohen, 43 Ch. D. 187.

Performance.—As to the averment of performance of conditions precedent, see note to Rule 208.

272. Save as otherwise provided, the silence of a pleading as to any allegation made in the previous pleading of the opposite party shall not be construed as an admission of the truth of such allegation. Con. Rule 403.

See Eng. (1883) R. 209, which is different.

This Rule introduces the practice of the Court of Chancery as to admissions; Chy. O. 123; see also Rule 269. It was a principle of Rule 273. Common Law pleading that each party was to be taken to admit those allegations in the pleadings of the opposite party which he did not deny, and that is the present English practice.

"Save as otherwise provided." The exceptions referred to in these words are those which require the pleading to specifically deny the right of the party to claim in a representative capacity; or the alleged constitution of a partnership firm: Rule 290; or the incorporation of a corporate party: Rule 281; or the legality of a contract; or its sufficiency in point of law: Rule 282.

Where a material fact therefore is alleged in a pleading, and the pleading of the opposite party is silent in respect thereto, the fact must be considered in issue: Waterloo Mutual, etc., v. Robinson, 4 Ont. 295; Seabrook v. Young, 7 C. L. T. 152; King v. Bailen, 31 S. C. R. 342.

Where a pleading, however, does not maintain silence, but contains an answer to allegations in opposite pleadings which has no sense if not read as admitting certain statements, those statements must be taken as admitted: Richardson v. Jenkins, 10 P. R. 292.

The present Rule is not applicable where under Rule 250 a point of law is raised on the pleadings. Thus where a replication raised a question of law to the effect that certain paragraphs of the statement of the defence raised no defence to the action, it was held that this Rule did not apply, and that the statements referred to were thereby admitted for the purposes of the argument of the question of law: Hollender v. Foulkes, 26 Ont. at p. 65.

The English Rules under the Judicature Acts, in regard to admissions, differ from the above: see Eng. (1883) Rules 209, 213, 216, 218, the effect of which is that, so far as regards statements of claim and defence and counter-claim, and as regards parties who are not infants or lunatics, the want of a specific denial of a fact will operate as an admission, and will entitle the party, whose pleading is thus admitted, to move for judgment; and thus upon a technical construction of the pleadings final judgment may be obtained: see Thorpe v. Holdsworth, 3 Ch. D. 637, and Rutter v. Tregent, 12 Ch. D. 758; and the merits might sometimes not be reached: see Tildesley v. Harper, 7 Ch. D. 403; reversed, however, in appeal, 10 Ch. D. 393; Lumsden v. Winter, 8 Q. B. D. 650; Caroli v. Hurst, W. N. 1883, 115; Thorn-ton v. Church, 10 L. R. Ir. 378; Williamson v. London, etc., 27 W. R. 724; Elliott v. Harris, 17 L. R. Ir. 351.

By Rule 269 (which is founded upon Chancery G. O. 124) each party is to admit such allegations in the pleadings of the opposite party as are true; and if he does not do so, Rule 1149 gives the Court or Judge power to make a proper order with respect to any extra costs occasioned by the failure to admit.

Relief claimed to be stated
specifically.

273. Every statement of claim shall state specifically the relief which the plaintiff claims, either simply or in the alternative, and may also ask for general relief. And the same rule shall apply to any counter-claim made, or relief claimed by the defendant, in his statement of defence. If the plaintiff's claim be for discovery only, the statement of claim shall shew it. Con. Rule 404.

Same as the Eng. R. 1875, O. 19, r. 8. The Rule of 1883, R. Rule 274, 230, is different, providing that general or other relief need not be prayed for, and may always be given.

A claimant is not entitled to any relief unless it is specifically prayed for, or can be given under a prayer for general relief; and if general relief is not asked for, it will be considered that the party does not want it: Holloway v. York, 25 W. R. 627; Cargill v. Bower, 10 Ch. D. 508. Where general relief is claimed, a pleading will not be open to objection, if the facts stated in it show that the plaintiff is entitled to any relief: Watson v. Hawkins, 24 W. R. 884, unless the relief be foreign to the scope of the claim: Gaughan v. Sharpe, 6 Ont. App. 417; Gunn v. Trust & Loan Co., 2 Ont. 393. It is sufficient to set out in the statement of claim facts which entitle to relief, and pray for any relief that the facts warrant: Phelps v. White, 7 L. R. Ir. 160. Under a prayer for general relief the Court will grant the appropriate relief which the facts warrant, although unable to grant the specific relief claimed: see Slater v. The Canada Central Ry. Co., 25 Gr. 363.

Facts, arising after action brought, entitling the plaintiffs to further relief, in respect of the subject matter of the litigation, beyond what they were entitled to at its commencement, have been allowed to be set up by amendment: Yorkshire Waggon Co. v. Cornwall Minerals Co., 73 L. T. Jour. 120.

In an action for an injunction, under the usual prayer for general relief, damages are included under sec. 58 (10) of the Jud. Act (Lord Cairns' Act): Serrao v. Noct, 15 Q. B. D. 549.

As to the efficiency of a prayer for general relief, see Cook v. Martyn, 2 Atk. 3, and the observations thereon in Byrne v. Freer, 2 Moll. 166.

It does not follow, because a plaintiff has asked for reformation of a document, that a defendant is entitled to claim the same relief though he has not asked for it: Wolfe v. Hughes, 1 Ont. 322; 18 C. L. J. 177. See as to asking two inconsistent kinds of relief, Evans v. Davis, 27 W. R. 285, referred to in note to Rule 298, and Breslau v. Barwick, 24 W. R. 902.

274. Where the plaintiff seeks relief in respect of several distinct claims or causes of complaint founded upon separate and distinct [facts,] they shall be stated, as far as may be, separately and distinctly. And the same rule shall apply where the defendant relies upon several distinct grounds of defence or counter-claim, founded upon separate and distinct facts. Con. Rule 405.

Same as the Eng. (1883) R. 231, except that in the latter, "grounds" is used instead of "facts," the word used in the Eng. R. 1875, O. 19, r. 9, from which the Ont. Rule was taken.

Rules 186 and 232 enable the plaintiff to unite in the same statement of claim several causes of action. The present Rule requires such a statement of claim to keep the facts supporting one cause of action, as far as may be, together, and distinct from the facts supporting another cause of action. It is not necessary, however, to distribute the various facts so as to show which are intended to support any particular prayer for relief: Watson v. Hawkins, 24 W. R. 884. The same rule applies to a counter-claim.

Distinct claims or defences.

Rules 275, 276.Effect of document may be stated.

275. Where the contents of any document are material, it shall be sufficient in any pleading to state the effect thereof as briefly as possible, without setting out the whole or any part thereof unless the precise words of the document or any part thereof are material. Con Rule 406.

Same as the Eng. (1883) R. 217.

This does not dispense with the necessity for setting forth the precise defamatory words in an action of libel or slander: Harris v. Warre, 4 C. P. D. 125; Bradlaugh v. The Queen, 3 Q. B. D. 497; Darbyshire v. Leigh, 1896, 1 Q. B. 554; 74 L. T. 241; Hay v. Ringham, 5 O. L. R. 224; see also Davy v. Garrett, 7 Ch. D. 473.

Where res judicata in an Irish Court was alleged, a brief statement of the Irish judgment was held sufficient: Houstoun v. Shoo, 29 Ch. D. 448.

It is sufficient to state the effect or substance of the limitations in a will, without setting out the precise words used in the will: Darbyshire v. Leigh, 1896, 1 Q. B. 554; 74 L. T. 241.

Allegation of malice,
etc.

276. Where it is material to allege malice, fraudulent intention, knowledge or other condition of the mind of any person, it shall be sufficient to allege the same as a fact, without setting out the circumstances from which the same is to be inferred. Con. Rule 407.

Same as the Eng. (1883) R. 218.

Where an act is lawful in itself, so that no cause of action arises from the doing of it, the fact that it was done maliciously or from a bad motive does not make one: Chaffers v. Goldsmid, 1894, 1 Q. B. 186; Allen v. Flood, 1898, A. C. 1; and no use of property which would be legal if due to a proper motive can become illegal because it is prompted by a motive which is improper or even malicious: Mayor, etc., of Bradford v. Pickles, 1895, A. C. 587; see also Davy v. Garrett, 7 Ch. D. 489; Riddell v. Strathmore, 3 Times, 329.

A statement by a trader that his own goods are superior to those of another trader, even if untrue and the cause of loss, gives no cause of action; and the allegation of malice does not convert a statement prima facie lawful into one prima facie unlawful: Hubbuck v. Wilkinson, 1899, 1 Q. B. 86.

Fraud.

Fraud.—Fraud should be distinctly charged as fraud: Davy v. Garrett, 7 Ch. D. at p. 489; and if "fraudulently," or words of similar import are omitted, there must be allegations of fact which necessarily and per se amount to fraud: Byrne v. Muzio, 8 L. R. 12, 396, and see Rule 271; and the facts constituting the fraud should be stated, or no evidence in support will be received: Re Rica Gold Washing Co., 11 Ch. D. 36, 43, 47; Redgrave v. Hurd, 25 Sol. Jour. 372; Arkerwright v. Newbold, & Co., 338; Symonds v. City Bank, W. N., 1886, 19; 80 L. T. Jour. 245; see Smith v. Chadwick, 9 App. Cas. 187; Cargill v. Bower, 10 Ch. D. 592; but where facts and circumstances are set out from which an inference of fraudulent intent, etc., may be inferred, the inference may be drawn: see Herring v. Bishop's schim, W. N. 1876, 77; Johnson v. Barnes, W. N. 1883, 32; but see Davy v. Garrett, supra. See Kattenbach v. Lewis, 30 W. R. 356; Rule 276. 45 L. T. 666, for allegations which were considered to amount to a charge of fraud.

A general allegation of fraud, however strong the words used, where there was no statement of the circumstances relied on as constituting the alleged fraud, was held not to amount to an averment of fraud, of which any Court ought to take notice: Wallingford v. Mutual Society, 5 App. Cas. 685, 697, 701. In that case, however, the allegation in question was contained in an affidavit filed by the defendant upon a motion to obtain judgment on a specially indorsed writ. The construction of this Rule was not in question.

Fraudulent concealment of fraud, which within Gibb v. Guild, 9 Q. B. D. 53, may be relied on as ground of equitable relief against the running of the Statute of Limitations, being a question of fact, must be averred as such in the pleadings: Barber v. Houston, 14 L. R. Ir. 273.

In Herring v. Bischoffsheim, W. N. 1876, 77, the statement of claim alleged the purchase of bonds through fraudulent misrepresentations in the prospectus of the company, and, on a motion to strike out parts of the statement of claim as prolix, it was held sufficient to allege generally that the prospectus, which was set out, was fraudulent to the knowledge of the defendants, without specifying the particulars, and without going into either the motive which led to the issue of the prospectus, or the particulars of the fraudulent scheme of which the prospectus formed a part.

As to obtaining more specific allegations of, or particulars of fraud charged, see notes to Rules 268 and 299.

Malice.—It will be sufficient under this Rule, in an action for malicious prosecution, to allege that the proceedings were taken without reasonable or probable cause, without setting forth the circumstances from which the same would be inferred: Aderis v. Thrigley, W. N. 1876, 56; 2 Charl. Ch. Ca. 43.

In an action for malicious prosecution the plaintiff should allege the absence of reasonable cause, and the presence of malice, as the burden of proof thereof rests on him: Abrath v. N. E. Ry. Co., 11 Q. B. D. 440; 11 App. Cas. 247; 55 L. T. 63; Hicks v. Faulkner, 8 Q. B. D. 167; see Malcolm v. Perth Mut., etc., 29 Ont. 717; St. Denis v. Shoultz, 25 Ont. App. 131; in an action for false imprisonment, neither allegation nor proof of malice is necessary, and the burden of shewing reasonable cause is on the defendant: Hicks v. Faulkner, supra.

For an action against a corporation for malicious prosecution, see Corford v. Carlton Bank, 1899, 1 Q. B. 392; 1900, 1 Q. B. 22; and for a malicious libel, see Citizens Life Assce. Co. v. Brown, 1904, A. C. 423.

Negligence.—A statement of claim was held sufficient, which alleged that while the plaintiff was using an hotel, of which the defendant was a proprietor, as a guest for reward to the defendant, by the negligence of defendant the ceiling of the room, in which the plaintiff then was, fell upon and injured him: Sandys v. Florence, 47 L. J. C. P. 598. Negligence averred generally, was held sufficient in Quillinan v. Canada Southern Ry., 6 Ont. 567.

Rules277, 278.Condition of mind.

Condition of Mind.—Where knowledge or ignorance is material, it should be alleged, eg., of untruthfulness of statements in particulars of sale: Redgrave v. Hurd, 20 Ch. D. 1; of unsafe condition of the defendant's premises, in an action by a servant for injuries through their unsafe condition: Griffiths v. London & St. Katharine Dock Co., 13 Q. B. D. 259; of want of knowledge on the servant's part: Ib.; threats and intention to commit a trespass: Stuana v. Vestry of St. Giles, 20 Ch. D. 195.

Purchase for value without notice

Purchaser for Value without Notice.—This claim, or defence, should generally be made specifically: Atty-Gen. v. Biphosphated, etc., Co., 11 Ch. D. 327; but may sometimes be inferred from facts alleged: Taylor v. Blakelock, 32 Ch. D. 564. See R. S. O. c. 119, s. 36, as to proof of payment of purchase money.

Allegation of notice.

277 Where it is material to allege notice to a person of any fact, matter or thing, it shall be sufficient to allege such notice as a fact unless the form or precise terms of the notice (a) is or are material. Con. Rule 408.

Same as the Eng. R. 1875. O. 19, r. 26; that of 1883, R. 219, has at (a) the words "or the circumstances from which the same is to be inferred."

contract.

278. Where a contract or relation between persons does not arise from an express agreement, but is to be implied from a series of letters or conversations, or otherwise from a number of circumstances, it shall be sufficient to allege the contract or relation as a fact (a); and if the person so pleading desires to rely in the alternative upon more contracts or relations than one, as to be implied from such circumstances, he may state the same in the alternative. Con. Rule 409.

To the same effect as the Eng. (1883) R. 220, which has, however, at (a) the following words, formerly in Con. Rule 409, but now struck out as unnecessary: "and to refer generally to such letters, conversations or circumstances, without setting them out in detail."

Where a Court has to find a contract in a correspondence, and not in one note or memorandum formally signed, the whole of what has passed between the parties must be taken into consideration: Hussey v. Horne Payne, 4 App. Cas. 311; N. W. Transportation Co. v. McKenzie, 25 S. C. R. 38.

An agreement is not strictly speaking a fact; it is an inference of law from facts. The material facts should therefore be stated: Rule 268. If there is an "express agreement" in writing, that fact should be stated, and the effect of the document set forth: Rule 275. If the agreement is to be gathered from a series of letters, conversations or circumstances, the present Rule applies: Turquand v. Fearon, 40 L. T. 543; see also Smyth v. Levinge, 38 L. T. 579; Noad v. Murrott, 40 L. T. 100. There should not be a bare statement that "it was agreed," however, "as a general rule it is not sufficient to state merely that there was an agreement * * * the party pleading * * * must give such particulars as will enable his opponent to meet the case set up": per Thesiger, L.J., in Turquand

v. Fearon, 40 L. T. at p. 545. In other words the party must make a general reference to the letters, conversations, or circumstances. Rules 279-282.

Where an agreement to have any effect in law must be in writing, it is sufficient to allege that there was an agreement without alleging that it was in writing; that it was in writing is matter for evidence at the trial: Pasco v. Richards, 50 L. J. Chy. 340; and it lies upon the party setting up the agreement to prove one sufficient in law at the trial: Privett v. Hay, Mr. Dalton, 4th March, 1884. See also Fraser v. Pape, 91 L. T. 340, supra, p. 469.

279. Neither party need in any pleading allege any matter of fact which the law presumes in his favour, or as to which the burden of proof lies upon the other side, unless the same has first been specifically denied. Facts presumed need not be stated.

[E.g.—Consideration for a bill of exchange where the plaintiff sues only on the bill, and not for the consideration as a substantive ground of claim]. Con. Rule 410.

Same as the Eng. (1883). R. 221.

280. If either party wishes to deny the right of any other party to claim as executor, or as trustee, or as assignee in insolvency, or in any representative or other alleged capacity, or the alleged constitution of any partnership, he shall deny the same specifically. [or the same will be taken to be admitted]. Con. Rule 411. Denial of representative capacity.

The Eng. (1883) R. 238, does not contain the words in brackets, otherwise the Rules are the same.

See notes to Rule 272.

The rule was the same at Law under Reg. Gen. T. T. 1856, No. 5, as to assignees in insolvency, executors and administrators, and persons authorized by any Act of Parliament to sue, or be sued, as nominal parties: see Jones v. Brown, 1 Bing. N. C. 484, and Harr. C. L. P. Act, 712.

281 Unless the incorporation of a corporate party is specifically denied, it shall not be necessary to prove it. Con. Rule 412. Incorporation.

The Rule would seem to apply to plaintiffs suing, or defendants sued, in an alleged corporate capacity, though they be not, in fact, incorporated: see Krug Furniture Co. v. Berlin Union, etc., 5 O. L. P. 463. See Rule 231.

282. Where a contract is alleged, a denial of the contract shall be construed only as a denial of the making of the contract in fact, and not of its legality or its sufficiency in law, whether with reference to the Statute of Frauds or otherwise. Con. Rule 413. Denial of contract only denial
making.

Rules Same as the Eng. R. 1875, O. 19, r. 23. The Eng. (1883) R. 216; 283, 284. is a little more explicit.

A plea of non est factum pleaded to a declaration filed before The Judicature Act, in an action on a policy of insurance, was held to be not embarrassing; as under this Rule it must be treated as a denial of the making of the contract of insurance in fact: Burnett v. Union Mut. F. Ins. Co., 32 C. P. 134.

In an action of ejectment by an assignee of a lessee against the assignors, the statement of claim alleged an assignment by deed to defendants to the plaintiffs. The defendants denied "that they had assigned or made over the premises" to the plaintiff. This was held under the corresponding Irish Rule to put in issue the execution of the assignment only, and not its invalidity as contrary to a covenant against alienation in the lease: Hayes v. Corcoran, 8 L. R. Ir. 75.

Where a plaintiff sets up a written contract in a case within the Statute of Frauds, it is not necessary for the defendant to plead the statute as a defence, and evidence of a parol contract in such a case is not admissible without an amendment of the pleadings; and if such amendment is allowed the defendant should, if he desires it, be allowed to set up the Statute: Brunning v. Odhams, 75 L. T. 602; Elmsley v. Harrison, 17 P. R. 425.

No plea in abatement.

283. A plea or defence in abatement shall not be pleaded.
 Con. Rule 414.

Same as the Eng. (1883) R. 253.

A plea in abatement was one which showed some ground for abating or quashing the writ, or the writ and declaration. Such pleas were generally based on the non-joinder of parties, or the personal competency of the parties to sue, or be sued. An instance of an ineffectual attempt to raise what amounted to a plea in abatement, will be found in Preston v. Lamont, 1 Ex. D. 361.

Though the form of objecting by means of a plea in abatement to the non-joinder of a defendant, who ought to be included in the action, is abolished, yet an application to have such person included as a defendant ought to be granted or refused upon the same principles on which a plea in abatement would have succeeded or failed: per Lord Cairns in Kendal v. Hamilton, 4 App. Cas. 516.

A defence stating that the plaintiff is a married woman and her husband is a necessary party is in reality an informal plea in abatement and is no defence: Abouloff v. Oppenheimer, 30 W. R. 429.

No new assignment.

284. A new assignment shall not be used, but everything which was formerly alleged by way of new assignment shall be introduced by amendment of the statement of claim (a).
 Con. Rule 415.

Same as the Eng. R. 1875 O. 19, r. 14. The Eng. (1883) R. 281 adds at (a) the words "or by way of reply."

Sometimes, owing to the generality of a declaration, the defendant was not sufficiently guided by it to the real cause of complaint, and was therefore led to apply his plea to a different matter from that which the plaintiff had in view; for example, a plaintiff might have been twice assaulted by defendant; one of these assaults may have been justifiable, as having been committed in self-defence, while the other might be without excuse. Supposing the plaintiff to sue in respect of the latter, the declaration from its general terms would not necessarily inform the defendant that it was the second assault, and the defendant might plead to the first non assault demesne. The plaintiff then had no course but by new assignment to declare that he brought his action, not for the first, but for the second assault: see Stephen on Pleading, 187. Such an occurrence is not easily conceived under the present system, where the facts are stated, and not the legal result of facts only. Should it happen, however, the statement of claim may be amended. This Rule is not to be construed as rendering an amendment of the statement of claim necessary in other cases than those in which a new assignment would have been necessary under the old system of pleading at Law. In other cases, if new matter is raised by defendant, the plaintiff may either amend, or may reply by traverse, or confession or avoidance, or both: see Hall v. Eve, 4 Ch. D. 341; and Earp v. Henderson, 3 Ch. D. 254.

See also Rule 288.

285. A defendant in an action for the recovery of land who is in possession by himself or his tenant need not plead his title, unless his defence depends on an equitable estate or right, or he claims relief upon any equitable ground against any right or title asserted by the plaintiff: but except in the cases hereinbefore mentioned, it shall be sufficient to state by way of defence that he is so in possession, and he may rely upon any ground of defence which he can prove. Con. Rule 416.

Same as Eng. (1883) R. 254, except that the latter provides that by so pleading he shall be taken to deny the allegations in the statement of claim: see Danford v. McNulty, and note infra.

This Rule only applies to a defendant. In an action for recovery of land the statement of claim is as much subject to the foregoing Rules as in any other action, and the plaintiff must therefore set forth the material facts upon which he relies to prove his title. The effect of a deed is not a fact, and a statement of claim which merely alleged that by virtue of certain deeds, etc., plaintiff was entitled to possession of land, and did not state the purport of the deeds or set out the plaintiff's pedigree, or show the devolution of title by which the land in question became vested in the plaintiff, was therefore held embarrassing: Philipps v. Philipps, 4 Q. B. D. 127; 39 L. T. 329 and 556; Davis v. James, 26 Ch. D. 778; Jones v. Curling, 13 Q. B. D. 273. So also a statement of claim which simply alleged that the plaintiff had been wrongfully dispossessed of the land by the defendant was set aside for not stating the facts which shewed the plaintiff's interest in the land: O'Connor v. O'Hara, 8 L. R. Ir. 249; see also Lyell v. Kennedy, 20 Ch. D. 491; 8 App. Cas. 217; Cromwell v. Scaill, 1 Times, 474.

A statement of claim stating that "by virtue of a certain settlement, the plaintiff is entitled" without setting out or stating the effect of the limitations in the settlement is insufficient: Riddell v. Strathmore, 31 Sol. Jour. 183.

A statement that the plaintiff, or any person through whom he claims, was on such a day seised in fee simple in possession, would Rule 286. seem to be sufficient statement of a plaintiff's title: see the Form in Wilson's Jud. Act, 7th ed., 572; and Smith v. Cairns (before Chief Justice Gtlt, 8th April, 1880). In Beatty v. Leacy, 16 L. R. Ir. 132, a general allegation of the plaintiff's derivative title was held sufficient.

In several cases under the Irish Jud. Act a defence, in actions of ejectment for non-payment of rent, has been set aside as embarrassing, where it, in effect, merely denied that defendant was tenant, without alleging anything as to the defendant's title, or saying that he was in possession: see Hidige v. O'Farrell, 8 L. R. Ir. 158; Barnes v. Barnes, 8 L. R. Ir. 165; Rowley v. Laffan, 10 L. R. Ir. 11.

Where the plaintiff's case depended on the heirship of A., and that fact was stated simply, without showing how A. became heir, the pleading was held sufficient: Evelyn v. Evelyn, 42 L. T. 248; 28 W. R. 531.

But in Palmer v. Palmer, 1892, 1 Q. B. 319, a defendant was held entitled to particulars shewing the links of relationship on which plaintiff relied as constituting him "heir": see also Blackledge v. Anderton, W. N. 1893, 112.

An action for the assignment of dower is an action for recovery of land: McCulloch v. McCulloch, 4 C. L. T. 252; McLean v. McLean, 17 P. R. 440.

In an action for dower, the facts showing the right of dower (which is a legal conclusion from the facts) must be stated: Lauder v. Carrier, 10 P. R. 612.

Equitable title.

Equitable Estate or Right.—The defendant relying on an equitable title must, in his statement of defence, allege the nature of the deeds and documents on which he relies; and it is not sufficient to allege that by virtue of divers meane acts and meane assurances, all the estates and interests of the plaintiff's predecessor in title are now vested in the defendant: Sutcliffe v. James, 40 L. T. 875; 27 W. R. 750. A defendant who pleads merely that he is in possession, was always at liberty to question the plaintiff's title even under the English system of pleading, by which what is not denied is taken to be admitted: Danford v. McAnulty, 6 Q. B. D. 645, affirmed in 11 L. 8 App. Cas. 456; and this is now expressly provided in the English Rule of 1883, 254; a fortiori under the Ontario system, where mere non-admission puts the plaintiff to proof.

See Attorney-General v. Midland Ry. Co., 3 Ont. 511, and Adamson v. Adamson, 17 Ont. 425; Allan v. Woods, 68 L. T. 143.

Plea of not guilty by statute.

286. Nothing in these Rules contained shall affect the right of a defendant to plead not guilty by statute. A defence of not guilty by statute shall have the same effect as heretofore (a). Con. Rule 417, amended.

The Eng. (1883) R. 208 adds at (a), "but if the defendant so plead he shall not plead any other defence to the same cause of action without the leave of the Court or a Judge." A similar clause in the former Ont. Con. Rule 417 has been omitted in the present consolidation of the Rules, so that a defendant may now plead any defence in addition to "not guilty by statute."

Formerly the Court did not in general with this plea allow other Rule 287. pleas: Neale v. McKenzie, 2 Dowl. P. C. 702; Fisher v. Thames Junction Ry. Co., 5 Dowl. P. C. 773; O'Brien v. Clement, 15 M. & W. 435; Legge v. Boyd, 1 M. & G. 808; O'Donohue v. Maguire, 1 P. R. 131; Dale v. Coon, 2 P. R. 100.

There are numerous statutes authorizing this defence of "not guilty by statute" to be pleaded: e.g., It may be pleaded under R. S. O. c. 88, s. 15, by Justices of the Peace and other public officers: Dale v. Coon, 2 P. R. 100; Aldrich v. Humphrey, 18 C. L. T. 172; 34 C. L. J. 385; under R. S. O. c. 207, s. 42, by a railway company under Provincial control; or under 3 Ed. vii. c. 58, s. 242 (D.) by a railway under Dominion control, in an action against it for indemnity for damage or injury sustained by reason of the railway; but see Reist v. Grand Trunk Ry. Co., 15 U. C. Q. B. 355; Pear v. Buffalo & Lake Huron Ry. Co., 17 U. C. Q. B. 282; under R. S. O. c. 318, s. 90, by the defendant in any action brought for anything done in pursuance of that Act, which relates to private lunatic asylums: see Bullen & Leake Proc. of Pleadings, 5th ed., 930; and under R. S. C. c. 41 (Militia Act), s. 114, by any officer or person sued for anything done in violation of that Act.

The statute must be formally pleaded to enable the defendant to avail himself of any defence under it: McKay v. Cummings, 6 Ont. 400.

An informal pleading of the statute has been allowed to be amended so as to be pleaded in the form of the general issue: Grant v. Culbard, 19 Ont. 20; and see Bond v. Coumec, 16 Ont. App. 419.

A railway company cannot be required to give particulars of the defence of "not guilty by statute": Taylor v. G. T. Ry., 2 O. L. R. 148, overruling Jennings v. G. T. Ry. Co., 11 P. R. 300, in which particulars were ordered where the plaintiff was not aware of the defence intended to be set up.

"Not guilty by statute" cannot be pleaded to an action for specific performance of a contract: Peterborough v. Midland Ry. Co., 12 P. R. 127; Scottish Ont., etc., Co. v. Toronto, 24 Ont. App. 208; and see Brown v. Blackwell, 35 U. C. Q. B. 239.

The plea of "not guilty by statute" puts in issue not only the defence which the statute gives, but also all the defences which were admissible under the general issue at Common Law: Ross v. Clifton, 11 A. & E. 631.

Contributory negligence may be set up under this plea: Dunn v. Michigan Central, 17 Ont. App. 481.

An equitable defence is not admissible under this plea: Brown v. Blackwell, 35 U. C. Q. B. 239.

A plea of the general issue by statute was not demurrable, though no statute is applicable: Cairns v. Water Commissioners of Ottawa, 25 U. C. C. P. 551.

In an action in the County Court a plea of "not guilty by statute" does not necessarily raise any question as to the title of land, so as to exclude the jurisdiction of the Court: Bell v. Grand Trunk Ry. Co., 16 C. P. 252.

287. Where a defendant pleads not guilty by statute, he shall insert in the margin of the paragraph containing the plea the words "By Statute," with the year of the reign in which the Act of Parliament upon which he relies was passed.

Plea of "not guilty by statute" to contain reference to statute relied on.

Rule 288. and the chapter and section of the Act, otherwise the plea shall be taken not to have been pleaded by virtue of an Act of Parliament. Con. Rule 418.

Taken from Rules of Pleading, T. T. 1856, 21.

The provisions of this Rule must be strictly followed: Bond v. Connee, 15 Ont. 716; 18 Ont. App. 398; Heming v. Woodgatt, 32 C. L. J. 120. Both the statute by which the plea is allowed and that containing the matter relied on by way of defence must be mentioned in the margin: VanNatter v. Buffalo & Lake Huron Ry. Co., 27 U. C. Q. B. 581; Belch v. Arnott, 9 C. P. 68; Doan v. Michigan Central Ry., 18 Ont. 482; and see Grant v. Culbard, 19 Ont. 20, where an amendment was allowed; but where evidence is given under the pleas as pleaded, without objection at the trial, it is too late afterwards to object to the sufficiency of the plea: Doan v. Michigan Central Ry., 17 Ont. App. 481.

If the defendant omits to follow the requirements of this Rule, he cannot give special matter in evidence to bring himself within the terms of an Act of Parliament which allows a plea of "not guilty": Coy v. Lord Forester, 8 M. & W. 312; Joy v. McKinn, 1 U. C. Q. B. 13. An amendment may sometimes be allowed to supply the omission, even after verdict: Edwards v. Hodges, 15 C. B. 477; Van Natter v. Buffalo & Lake Huron Ry. Co., 27 U. C. Q. B. 581. But where a defendant pleaded "not guilty," intending to justify under a statute, but the Nisi Prius record had not the words "by statute" in the margin, the Judge at Nisi Prius refused to allow an amendment by the addition of those words, as it was not shown that they were in the margin of the defendant's plea: Forman v. Davies, 1 Car. & M. 127. The parties may so act at the trial, and subsequently as to be precluded from raising the objection of the omission to name a particular statute in the margin of the plea: Burridge v. Nicholls, 6 H. & N. 383.

The words "according to statute" instead of "by statute" written in the margin, are sufficient: Robertson v. Cooley, 7 U. C. Q. B. 305.

Inconsistent pleadings.

288. A pleading (a) shall not except by way of amendment, raise any new ground of claim or contain any allegation of fact inconsistent with the previous pleadings of the party pleading the same. Con. Rule 419.

This is the same as the Eng. (1883) R. 212, except that at (a) are the words "not being a petition or summons," and the former practice was substantially the same.

A second pleading may add a fact to, but must not contradict, the first: per Brett, L.J., in Breslaue v. Barwick, 36 L. T. 52; 24 W. R. 901; nor raise a fresh cause of action: Collambell v. Flight, W. N. 1877, 125. See also Williamson v. L. & N. W. Ry. Co., 12 Ch. D. 787; Duckworth v. McClelland, 2 L. R. Ir. 527; Kingston v. Corker, 29 L. R. Ir. 364. Where a reply violates this Rule the Judge at the trial may refuse to try the action: Hurd v. Bostwick, 16 P. R. 121.

In an action for goods sold, the defence was coverture; plaintiff replied, that he was not aware that defendant was a married woman, and thought she was a widow, and that she obtained credit by represetting herself to be entitled to an annuity under a separation deed; Rule 289. and it was held that the reply did not raise a claim inconsistent with the previous pleading; Collet v. Dickenson, W. N. 1878, 52.

See also Rule 284.

In the following cases pleadings have been held not to be objectionable:

Action for infringement of patent, by alteration of goods supplied by plaintiffs—Defence that under an agreement with the plaintiffs the alterations were authorized — Reply denying this and asking rectification of the agreement on the ground of mistake if it did so authorize; McLaughlin v. Lake Erie & Detroit River R. R. Co., 2 O. L. R. 151.

Action for possession — Defence a mortgage made by plaintiff's father and assigned to defendant—Reply that there was no consideration for the assignment, and that the assignor was of unsound mind to the knowledge of defendant; Smith v. Smith, 2 O. L. R. 419.

1. PLEADING MATTERS ARISING PENDING THE ACTION.

289. Any ground of defence [or counter-claim] which has arisen after action, but before the defendant has delivered his statement of defence (a), may be pleaded either alone or with other grounds of defence. Con. Rule 434.

Same as the first part of Eng. (1883) R. 282, except that in the latter at (a) the words "and before the time limited for his doing so has expired" are inserted, and the Eng. Rules have not the words in brackets. Reg. Gen. T. T., 1876, No. 22, was to the same effect: see also R. S. O. 1877, c. 50, ss. 106 and 107, and Harr. C. L. P. Act, pp. 115 and 731. The result is, that under this Rule the defendant may in his defence set up any ground of defence or counter-claim which he has at the time of delivering the defence, no matter when such ground arose; and not merely grounds of defence which arose before the time limited for delivering the defence.

Whether a ground of counter-claim arising after action brought can be set up was the subject of conflicting decisions in England: see Boddall v. Maitland, Tuke v. Andrews, and other cases cited in notes to Rule 251, p. 448. The words "or counter-claim" have been inserted in this Rule to remove any doubt. See also Chamberlain v. Chamberlain, 11 P. R. 501, and notes to Rules 251 and 291.

Where the claim sued for had been attached by garnishee proceedings instituted before action, any payment made by the defendant pendente lite in pursuance of such proceedings constitutes a defence arising after action, and does not relate back to the attaching order: Pickard v. Tims, 19 P. R. 109.

A plaintiff cannot, except by way of defence to a counter-claim (Rule 290), set up matters arising pendente lite as a ground of claim; McLean v. McLean, 17 P. R. 440.

As to raising new matter after judgment, see Rule 642 and notes.

Rules
290, 291.

Before delivery of defence to counter-
claim.

290. If, after a counter-claim has been delivered, a ground of defence arises to anything alleged therein by the defendant, it may be pleaded by the plaintiff thereto, [or be introduced by amendment into the statement of claim, within three weeks after the counter-claim or the last of the counter-claims has been delivered, unless the time is extended by the Court or a Judge]. Con. Rule 435.

See Eng. R. 1875, O. 20, r. 12; O. 24, r. 1; (1883) R. 282, last part. The words in brackets are not in the Eng. Rules.

The original J. A. Rule 152 was similar to the Eng. Rules of 1875, except that the latter confined plaintiff to a reply, nothing being said about amending the statement of claim. The original J. A. Rule and the English Rules authorized the plaintiff to take the course provided for "after a statement of defence has been delivered." The present Rule is confined to cases where a counter-claim has been delivered so that if no counter-claim, but only a defence is delivered and facts exist, having arisen after action, which constitute a reply to the defence, the plaintiff may not be entitled to proceed under this Rule, but may be obliged to have recourse to an application under Rule 254.

A plaintiff may, in his reply to a counter-claim of defendant, counter-claim in respect of a cause of action accruing after the issue of the writ, or arising at the same time and out of the same transaction as the counter-claim of defendant: Toke v. Indreus, 8 Q. B. D. 428; Renton v. Neville, 1900, 2 Q. B. 181; 82 L. T. 446.

But where a claim which might have been pleaded by way of counter-claim is pleaded as a set-off, the plaintiff may not reply matters arising subsequent to action brought: McNamara v. Skua, 23 Ont. 103. See also notes to Rule 251.

After delivery of defence.

291. Where a ground of defence [or counter-claim] arises after the delivery of the statement of defence (a) [or counter-claim], the defendant may within 8 days after such ground of defence [or counter-claim] has arisen, deliver a further defence or counter-claim setting forth the same, [or introduce the same by amendment into his statement of defence or counter-claim]. Con. Rule 436.

Same as that part of the Eng. (1883) R. 283, which relates to a defendant; except that the English Rule has not the words in brackets, and has at (a) the words, "or after the time limited for his doing so has expired," and provides that the additional defence is to be raised only "by leave of the Court or a Judge." Leave will be unnecessary under this Rule if an affidavit is filed under Rule 293.

A counter-claim and set-off were, under the Eng. Rules corresponding to the original Ont. Rules, held to constitute a ground of defence within this Rule: Wood v. Goodwin, W. N. 1884, 17, and this will no doubt be so now under this Rule and Rule 251; see contra, Chamberlain v. Chamberlain, 11 P. R. 501, under the original Rules.

In computing the eight days, Vacation is not reckoned: Rule 352, and the time may be enlarged: Rule 353; and see Re Jones, Eyre v. Coe, 25 W. R. 303.

By pleading such a plea at law under the former practice, a defendant abandoned all his former pleas: Barker v. Palmer, 1 Salk. 178; but this is not so under the present Act, though semble, other defences fall to the ground if the plaintiff confesses the new plea: see Foster v. Gampel, 1 Q. B. D. 600. Rules 292-295.

292. Where a ground of defence to any counter-claim arises after the expiration of three weeks from the time of delivering the counter-claim or the last of the counter-claims, the plaintiff, within 8 days after such ground of defence has arisen, may deliver a further pleading setting forth the same, [or may introduce such new ground of defence into his statement of claim by amendment]. Con. Rule 437. After delivery of reply.

This Rule is substantially the same as the Eng. (1883) R. 283, in the case of a plaintiff, except that the Eng. Rule has not the words in brackets, and that the leave of the Court or a Judge is required. The same liberty is here given to a plaintiff after the time for delivering a reply has expired as is, by the preceding Rule, given to a defendant after the delivery of his defence.

Where the new ground is introduced by amendment an affidavit is required: see Rule 293.

293. The amendment may be made without order, on filing a præcipe and an affidavit that the matter of amendment arose within 8 days next before the making of such amendment. Con. Rule 438. Amendment on præcipe.

The affidavit here required is similar to that formerly required in obtaining leave to plead a plea puis darrein continuance, under R. S. C. 1877, c. 50, s. 107. Where, instead of amending, the plaintiff files a further pleading under Rule 292, the affidavit referred to in this Rule is not required.

294. In cases not provided for by Rules 289 to 293, the leave to amend the statement of claim or defence or counter-claim, or to deliver a further defence or counter-claim, or reply, may be obtained on application to the Court or a Judge on notice supported by affidavit. Con. Rule 439. Amendment by leave.

Not in Eng. Rules. See Eng. (1883) Rs. 313, 314.

This Rule will apply, for instance, where a further defence or reply has not been delivered under Rules 291 and 292, within the eight days mentioned. See also Rule 353, and Re Jones, Eyre v. Cox, 25 W. R. 303. The affidavit should set forth the new grounds of defence or reply, and explain any delay: Haynes' Ch. Pract. 88.

295. Where any defendant, in his statement of defence [or counter-claim,] whether by way of amendment or otherwise, alleges any ground of defence [or counter-claim] which has arisen after the commencement of the action, the plaintiff may deliver a confession of such defence (a), (which Plaintiff may deliver confession of defence confession may be according to Form No. 54), and he may thereupon sign judgment for his costs up to the time of the pleading of such defence (a) unless the Court or a Judge shall, either before or after the delivery of such confession, otherwise order. Con. Rule 440.

This is substantially the same as the Eng. R. 1875, O. 20, r. 3, and (1883) R. 284. Rules 22 and 23 of Reg. Gen. T. T. 1856, were to the same effect, but were not applicable where a plea raising such a defence was pleaded by one or more only, of several defendants.

(a) "Defence" here includes "counter-claim," which is of course a defence.

Payment of money into Court is not a "defence" within the meaning of this Rule: Callander v. Hawkins, 2 C. P. D. 592.

Under the Rules of T. T. 1856, though a defendant pleaded with such a plea other defences arising before action, the plaintiff as nevertheless entitled to confess the plea and have his costs, the other pleas falling to the ground. And the present Rules seem to have the same effect: Foster v. Gamgee, 1 Q. B. D. 666. There is no difference in this respect between a plea of bankruptcy and any other plea: Foster v. Gamgee, supra. A plea that defendant was an adjudicated bankrupt, upon an act of bankruptcy which occurred after the service of the writ, was held to be "a ground of defence" which has arisen after the commencement of the action, and the plaintiff was held entitled to confess it and sign judgment for his costs under this Rule: Champion v. Formby, 7 Ch. D. 373.

Such a confession is a determination of the matters in litigation, and precludes a second action for the same cause: Newington v. Lepp, L. R. 5 C. P. 607; 6 C. P. 180.

For form of confession, see App. Form No. 54; (H. & L. Forms, No. 559); and of judgment for costs, No. 150, (H. & L. Forms, No. 518).

This Rule applies to a counter-claim in the nature of a pecuniary set-off, arising after action brought: Ellis v. Munson, 36 L. T. 585; Wood v. Goodwin, W. N. 1884, 17, and to counter-claims generally: see notes to Rules 251 and 291, and Beddall v. Maitland, 17 Ch. D. 174.

Where a Judge refused to deprive the plaintiff of the costs, under the last clause of this Rule, it was held that they were costs left within the discretion of the Judge within section 49 of the English Judicature Act (corresponding to sec. 72 of the Ont. Act), and that, therefore, there could be no appeal from the decision except by leave: Perkins v. Beresford, 47 L. T. 515; and see Hopkins v. Tickers, 3 Times, 610.

Defendants delivered a further defence of matter arising since former defence. Plaintiff delivered a confession of this defence and signed judgment for costs. The defendants asserting that the plea was sufficiently raised by the former defence, which was not intended to be waived, and consenting to withdraw the further defence, the judgment for costs was set aside under this Rule: Bridgman, etc. v. Barbado, etc., 38 Ch. D. 378.

This Rule was held not to apply, where the defence also set up matters of defence, which had occurred before the commencement of the action: Harrison v. Marquis of Abergavenny, 57 L. T. 360.

and where an action had been brought by a judgment creditor against a judgment debtor and another, to set aside a conveyance as fraudulent, and after pleading of several defences the judgment debtor obtained leave to amend by adding as a defence, without abandoning his other defences, that the plaintiff's claim had become extinguished by reason of a set-off ordered in another action, it was held that this was a case in which the plaintiff should not be allowed to confess the new defence, and sign judgment for costs: Patterson v. Smith, 14 P. R. 558.

As to discontinuance of the action by the plaintiff in other cases, see Rule 430.

8. STRIKING OUT, AMENDING PLEADINGS, ETC.

296. If upon the hearing of a cause or matter, the Court is of opinion that any pleading, petition or affidavit, or any part of a pleading, petition or affidavit is scandalous, the Court may order the pleading, petition or affidavit to be taken off the file, or may direct the scandalous matter to be expunged, and may give such directions as to costs as may seem just. Con. Rule 421.

Court may order scandalous matter to be expunged.

Taken from Cby. O. 69.

Scandal.—This Rule enables the Court at the hearing of an action sua sponte to order scandalous matter in any pleading, petition or affidavit to be taken off the files or expunged. Under Rules 297, 298, a motion may be made for the like purpose at any time before the bearing.

As to scandalous matter in the statement of claim or defence, see also Rule 298.

Nothing can be scandalous which is relevant: per Cotton, L.J., Application in Fisher v. Owen, 8 Ch. D. 653; Jones v. Huntingdon, 3 Chy. Ch. 117; B—— v. W——, 31 Beav. 342; Millington v. Loring, 6 Q. B. D. 190; and the test is whether the matter alleged to be scandalous would be admissible in evidence to show the truth of any allegation which is material with reference to the relief prayed: Christie v. Christie, L. R. 8 Chy. 499; Cashin v. Craddock, 3 Ch. D. 376. The Court has power to strike out scandalous matter from an affidavit, or to order the person who has filed it to pay the costs of it, on the application of any person, even a stranger to the action, or mero motu. It is not necessary that the applicant should be the injured person: Cracknell v. Janson, 11 Ch. D. 1; Middlemas v. Wilson, L. R. 10 Chy. 230; Sadtler v. Smith, 7 P. R. 400; 15 C. L. J. 52; Goddard v. Parr, 24 L. J. Chy. 783.

Where proceedings are ordered to be taken off the files it is said to be the proper practice to destroy them: Hill v. Hart-Davis, 26 Chy. D. 471; sed quare, is not the proper practice to seal them up? Otherwise should they be destroyed, and the order be subsequently reversed, they could not be restored to the files. See also Rule 315.

The Court has jurisdiction to order in any proceeding, scandalous matter to be struck out: thus, scandalous statements in a bill Rules of costs were ordered to be struck out; Re Miller & Miller, 51 L. T. 297, 298. 853; 33 W. R. 210; W. N. 1884, 234; Erskine v. Gartshore, 18 Ves. 114.

As to the power of the Court to strike out scandalous matter, see Bright v. Marner, W. N. 1878, 211; Cracknall v. Janson, 11 Ch. D. 1; and as to scandalous matter in affidavits, Warner v. Mosses, W. N. 1881, 69; Kenrick v. Kenrick, 12 W. R. 335; Sadler v. Smith, 7 P. R. 409; Blake v. Albion, 24 W. R. 677.

Costs of motion.

The costs of the motion are as between solicitor and client: Ex parte Thorp, 1 Ves. 394; Ex parte Porter, 2 M. & Ay. 220; Ex parte Simpson, 15 Ves. 476, and both the party and his solicitor concerned are liable to pay costs of an application: Id.; Rattray v. George, 16 Ves. 232, and see Bishop v. Willis, 5 Beav. 83; Anon. 4 P. R. 242. As to the disallowance of the costs of unnecessary matter in pleadings and affidavits, see Rule 1154.

Prolivity.—Although there is no Rule specially giving the Court power to take pleadings or affidavits off the files for prolixity, it has nevertheless an inherent power to do so: Hill v. Hart-Davis, 26 Ch. D. 470; and pleadings may also be ordered to be struck out for prolixity; Marsh v. Pontefract, W. N. 1876, 7; 1 Charl. Ch. Ca. 66; Davy v. Garrett, 7 Ch. D. 473; or amended by striking out the prolix matter: Brock v. Tew, 18 P. R. 30.

Impertinence.—The Court has also jurisdiction to order pleadings, petitions, or affidavits, containing matter which is impertinent, i.e., irrelevant, to be taken off the files, or amended by striking out the offending matter.

Motion may be made at any time before hearing.

297. A motion to have any pleading, petition or affidavit taken off the files for scandal, or to have the scandalous matter expunged, may be made to the Court or a Judge at any time before the hearing of the cause or matter. Con. Rule 422.

Scandal in pleading.

Taken from Chy. O. 70.

As to scandalous matter in statements of claim or defence, see Rule 298.

As to disallowance of costs of unnecessary matter contained in pleadings and affidavits, see Rule 1154.

Master has no power to strike out interrogatories for impertinence.

Under this Rule the Master in Chambers, or Local Judge, or Master, has no power to strike out for impertinence, interrogatories which have been delivered for the examination of a witness under commission: Williams v. Corby, 8 P. R. 83.

For form of notice of motion, see H. & L. Forms. Nos. 412, 413.

Amendment with leave.

298. The Court or a Judge may at any stage of the proceedings order to be struck out or amended any matter in the pleadings respectively, which may be scandalous, or which may tend to prejudice, embarrass, or delay the fair trial of the action. Con. Rule 423.

Same as Eng. Rule 1875, O. 27, r. 1. Eng. (1883) R. 309, is different in language.

Scandal.

As to striking out scandalous matter, see Rule 296 and notes.

Rules 296, 297, enable the Court at the hearing of the action, or Rule 298, on a motion made before the hearing, to strike out scandalous matter in any pleading, petition, or affidavit. This Rule enables the Court to strike out any scandalous matter in any "pleading" at any stage of the proceeding. A petition is a pleading: see J. A. s. 2 (9).

Striking out a Pleading as Improper or Embarrassing, on the Application of the Opposite Party.—Apart from the Rules, the Court has inherent jurisdiction to strike out a defence as frivolous, vexatious, and an abuse of the procedure, e.g., where it attempts to re-try, in another form, a question already decided against the defendant: Reichel v. McGrath, 14 App. Cas. 665; see also Rule 261.

As a rule the only grounds for striking out pleadings are that they are either (1) embarrassing, (2) scandalous, or (3) tending to prejudice or delay: Ryan v. Fish, 10 P. R. 187, 192; but in Chamberlain v. Chamberlain, 11 P. R. 501, it was held that a defence which was wholly inapplicable, might be struck out, though neither scandalous, nor tending to prejudice, embarrass, or delay; and see Glass v. Grant, 12 P. R. 480; so also a pleading tendering no issue, and containing unnecessary matter: Brock v. Tev, 18 P. R. 30; a defence alleging want of notice of action, where defendants were not entitled to notice of action: McCarthy v. Vespra, 16 P. R. 416. Pleadings will not necessarily be struck out because they are inconsistent: Re Morgan, 35 Ch. D. 492; but where the plaintiff asked for an injunction and damages, and recovery of possession, it was held that such claims were inconsistent and embarrassing, and the plaintiff, though granted an injunction, was refused costs: Evans v. Davis, 27 W. R. 285.

An embarrassing pleading has been defined as one in which matter is pleaded which the party is not entitled to make use of: Heugh v. Chamberlain, 25 W. R. 742; W. N. 1877, 128; Stratford v. Gordon, 14 P. R. 407; e.g., in an action to enforce a contract for the sale of a patent without warranty, a defence putting in issue the validity of the patent: Liardet v. Hammond Electric Light, 31 W. R. 710; W. N. 1888, 96; allegations respecting matters compromised in a former suit, and which therefore could not be re-litigated: Knowles v. Roberts, 38 Ch. D. 263; Reichel v. McGrath, supra.

A pleading not drawn according to the Rules respecting pleadings is embarrassing: see notes to Rules 268 and 264, et seq.

As a general rule a pleading should not be set aside on summary application unless plainly frivolous, or indefensible. Formerly the party was left to demur, and even though the pleading appeared to be demurrable, that was not a sufficient reason for striking it out: Glass v. Grant, 12 P. R. 480; Stratford v. Gordon, 14 P. R. 407; Dale v. Byrne, 15 P. R. 4; now, however, that demurrers are abolished, it would seem to be proper to move under Rule 261, in cases where that Rule is applicable.

A motion to strike out a reply on the ground of its being a departure from the statement of claim was refused: McLaughlin v. Lake, 2 O. L. R. 151; and see Brophy v. Royal Victoria L. I. Co., 2 O. L. R. 651.

Where allegations are properly pleadable under Rule 268, the Court has no power to strike out the paragraph containing them, unless scandalous, or tending to prejudice, embarrass or delay, within the meaning of the present Rule: Millington v. Loring, 6 Q. B. D. 190.

Rule 298.

The whole of a pleading may be struck out: a statement of claim: Cashin v. Cradock, 3 Ch. D. 376; Ker v. Williams, W. N. 1886, 16; a defence: Preston v. Lumont, 1 Ex. D. 361; or a reply: Williamson v. L. & N. W. Ry. Co., 12 Ch. D. 787. See also Golding v. Wharton Saltworks Co., 1 Q. B. D. 374; W. N. 1876, 40; 2 Charl. Ch. Ca. 40, and Harris v. Gamble, 3 Ch. D. 748; Atty-Gen. v. L. & N. W. Ry. Co., 1892, 3 Ch. 274; 2 R. 84.

Striking out the whole of a pleading.

In Finch v. The Guardians of York Union, 35 L. T. 360, a motion to strike out the whole statement of defence was held to be misconceived, as the defence was not so frivolous as to justify its being set aside. In Weir v. Barnett, W. N. 1875, 258; 1 Charl. Ch. Ca. 94, a defendant applied to compel the plaintiff to amend, in an action for false representations in regard to debentures, stated to have been made in a letter and prospectus, and Huddleston, B., refused to order an amendment of the claim, so as to shew which of the false representations were in the letter, and which in the prospectus.

Striking out parts of pleadings.

The power to strike out is not exercised so as to enable one party to dictate to the other how he should plead: Rolfe v. MacLaren, 3 Ch. D. 106, 108; but portions of pleadings have been struck out which are not in accordance with Rule 268: e.g., where they contained irrelevant allegations of fraud, to the effect that in transactions other than the one in question the defendants had been guilty of fraud: Blake v. Albion, etc., 35 L. T. 269; Menhinick v. Turner, W. N. 1876, 55; 2 Charl. Ch. Ca. 42; immaterial facts set out with prolixity: Davy v. Garrett, 7 Ch. D. 473; Brock v. Tew, 18 P. R. 30; admissions, Askew v. N. E. Ry. Co., W. N. 1875, 238; 1 Charl. Ch. Ca. 90; Davy v. Garrett, supra; evidence: Jones v. Turner, W. N. 1875, 239; 1 Charl. Ch. Ca. 91; Cole v. Can. Pacific Ry. Co., 19 P. R. 104; Gloster v. Toronto Electric Light Co., 4 O. W. R. 522; Prince v. Toronto Ry. Co., 5 O. W. R. 88; scandalous statements which were immaterial: Duncan v. Vereker, W. N. 1876, 64; 2 Charl. Ch. Ca. 44; see Cracknall v. Janson, 11 Ch. D. 1; Sadler v. Smith, 7 P. R. 409; Christie v. Christie, L. R. 8 Chy. 499; Wood v. Earl Durham, 21 Q. B. D. 501; and notes to Rule 296; but nothing is scandalous that is relevant to the merits: see Fisher v. Owen, 8 Ch. D. 653, and other cases in note to Rule 296; Whitney v. Moignard, 24 Q. B. D. 630; Dan. Prac., 5th ed., 290. General statements of title may be struck out: Philipps v. Philipps, 4 Q. B. D. 127; Riddell v. Strathmore, 31 Sol. Jour. 183; Rule 285; allegations so prolix as to be obscure: Marsh v. Pontefract, W. N. 1876, 6; 1 Charl. Ch. Ca. 66; see also Hill v. Hart-Davis, 26 Ch. D. 470; and unnecessary details though not amounting to statements of evidence: Alderis v. Thrigley, W. N. 1876, 58; 2 Charl. Ch. Ca. 43; paragraphs pleaded to a hypothetical case which might never arise, and could only arise on an amended claim: Fulford v. Wallace, 1 O. L. R. 278.

Paragraphs in a statement of claim tendering an immaterial issue: e.g., in a claim for damages caused by a defect in a machine, an allegation in the statement of claim that defendants were insured against such accidents was struck out as being immaterial, and embarrassing: Flynn v. Industrial Exhibition, etc., 6 O. L. R. 635; see also Prince v. Toronto Ry. Co., 5 O. W. R. 88; and Hay v. Bingham, 5 O. L. R. 224; or in a statement of defence which raised no issue, or only one that is immaterial: Webb v. Hamilton Cataract Power Co., 7 O. L. R. 607.

In an action for seduction, a paragraph of the statement of claim alleged that the defendant administered noxious drugs to the plaintiff's daughter. It was held that the paragraph could not be struck out as disclosing a felony for which the defendant ought to have been prosecuted, inasmuch as the plaintiff was not the person upon whom the felonious act was committed, and had no duty to prosecute: Appleby v. Franklin, 17 Q. B. D. 93; but see Vincent v. Sprague, 3 U. C. Q. B. 283; Brown v. Dalby, 7 U. C. Q. B. 160; Walsh v. Nattrass, 19 C. P. 453; Williams v. Robinson, 20 C. P. 255.

A plea denying liability is not embarrassing by being joined with a plea of tender before action, and payment into Court: Davis v. National Insurance Co. of Ireland, 16 P. R. 116.

Where a statement of claim for libel set out the whole article complained of, the Court refused to strike out any part of it as embarrassing: Hay v. Bingham, 5 O. L. R. 224; but where a plaintiff set up a breach of 23 different patents he was ordered to limit his claim to any three of them: Saccharin Co. v. Wild, 1903, 1 Ch. 410; 88 L. T. 101.

In an action for slander, where there was a denial of the speaking of the words alleged, a paragraph of the defence, admitting the speaking of other words (setting out the defendant's version of what he had said), and saying that they were true, was struck out as embarrassing: Rassam v. Budge, 1893, 1 Q. B. 571; 5 R. 336; 68 L. T. 717; Fulford v. Wallace, 1 O. L. R. 278.

A defence separating a libel, and justifying as to part, without leaving it clear what part was justified, was struck out as embarrassing: Fleming v. Dollar, 23 Q. B. D. 388; so also a defence setting up that an alleged libel was fair comment, without setting out the facts on which it was alleged to be a fair comment: Crow's Nest Coal Co. v. Bell, 4 O. L. R. 600.

Reasons pleaded to shew why an act, said to be ultra vires, was not ultra vires, were held not to be irrelevant or embarrassing, and a matter alleged as a reason should not be struck out because it is a bad reason: Tomkinson v. S. E. Ry. Co., 57 L. T. 358.

A defence in a sci. fa. action, which might have been pleaded as a defence to the original action, was struck out: Shaver v. Cotton, 16 P. R. 278.

Where a defendant pleaded that a sum paid by him into Court as security for costs, was a satisfaction of the plaintiff's claim, the defence was struck out: Mendels v. Gibson, 7 O. L. R. 611.

Allegations in the statement of claim may be struck out where they have been abandoned by the reply: Brooking v. Maudsley, 55 L. T. 343.

For cases where several plaintiffs and defendants are joined, and causes of action alleged which can not be set up in one action: see notes to Rules 185 and 186.

In an action to restrain a breach of contract in restraint of trade, it was held to be embarrassing to claim both an injunction and liquidated damages, but, the point not having been taken until the hearing, it was held that the plaintiff should elect: Grant v. Harrison, 69 L. T. 307.

Where a pleading is defective in not containing all the allegations necessary to shew a case for relief, or a defence, the pleading may, for that reason, be embarrassing, and, where the defects can be supplied, it will in general be proper to move to strike out the pleading or paragraph, thus, where in a claim by a simple contract creditor he omits to state that he sues on behalf of all creditors to set aside a conveyance as fraudulent against creditors, the objection should be raised by motion under this Rule, and not under Rule 259; see Scime

Allegations which have been abandoned. Parties or causes of action improperly joined.

Embarrassing by being defective.

Rule 298. v. Duckett, 3 Ont. 370. So where a claim for ejectment alleged that prior to 1874 defendant was tenant and had paid rent, but since 1874 had not paid rent. It was held to be embarrassing as not showing any subsisting tenancy: Molloy v. Lewers, 12 L. R. Ir. 39; see also Rowley v. Laffan, 10 L. R. Ir. 9.

When should be struck out. Where pleadings are such as should be struck out, they ought to be struck out by the Judge, and not be left to be dealt with as a question of costs: Watson v. Rodwell, 3 Ch. D. 380.

Amendment when allowed. Ordinarily, instead of altogether striking out a pleading, or part of a pleading, the party whose pleading is defective will be given an opportunity to amend: Moorkhouse v. Colville, W. N. 1876, 12; 1 Charl. Ch. Ca. 95; Anon., W. N. 1876, 24; 2 Charl. Ch. Ca. 39.

Where a pleading is obscure, instead of striking it out, it may be ordered to be amended so as to make it clear to the opposite party: Dryden v. Smith, 17 P. R. 505; Johnson v. Stafford, 33 C. L. J. 433; and see Rule 299. So with an allegation improperly made as a distinct cause of action, but which might be properly pleaded as an aggravation of damages: Agar v. Escott, 8 O. L. R. 177.

An amendment which will injuriously alter the rights which the parties would have if there were no amendment will not be allowed: Weldon v. Neil, 19 Q. B. D. 394; Hudson v. Fernyhough, 61 L. J. 722; e.g., an amendment for the purpose of setting up a claim, which since the issue of the writ has been barred by the Statute of Limitations: Weldon v. Neil, supra; Lancaster v. Moss, 15 Times, 476.

Striking out amendments. Matters improperly introduced by amendment may be struck out, e.g., an amendment adding claims for assault and false imprisonment, which would be barred by the Statute of Limitations if made by a new writ, was struck out: Weldon v. Neil, supra.

In Restell v. Steward, W. N. 1875, 249, paragraphs improperly introduced into a statement of defence by amendment were struck out: see Rule 301.

Frivolous or vexatious. As to striking out a pleading as shewing no reasonable cause of action, or answer, or as being frivolous, or vexatious, see Rule 261.

English authorities not always applicable in Ontario. In view of the difference between the English and Ontario systems as to admissions (see Rule 272), caution will be necessary in applying the English authorities on the subject of striking out embarrassing pleadings. The English Rules require a party to deal specifically with the allegations in the previous pleading, and to deny such allegations as he is not prepared to admit; but where, as under the Ontario system, a party is not so bound to make denials, he might not, in framing his pleading, be embarrassed by an improper pleading, though he might be prejudiced if irrelevant statements of fact in such a pleading were allowed to go before a jury.

Appeals. The striking out of pleadings is in the discretion of the Judge; and, as a general rule, an appeal from his order will not be entertained, unless a question of principle is involved: see Golding v. Wharton Saltworks Co., 1 Q. B. D. 374; Watson v. Rodwell, 3 Ch. D. 380; Ruston v. Tobin, 10 Ch. D. 558, 565; Re Martin, Hunt v. Chambers, 20 Ch. D. 365. Such an appeal was entertained in Daru v. Garrett, 7 Ch. D. 473; Knowles v. Roberts, 38 Ch. D. 263; see also Laird v. Briggs, 19 Ch. D. 22; Peterkin v. McFarlane, 4 Ont. App. 25.

On this subject, see also notes to sec. 72, supra, p. 122.

299. A further and better statement of the nature of the Rule 299. claim or defence, or further and better particulars of any ^{Particulars may be ordered.} matter stated in any pleading, notice or written proceeding requiring particulars, may in all cases be ordered upon such terms, as to costs or otherwise, as may seem just. Rules 23rd June, 1894, 1326.

Same as Eng. (1883) R. 203.

See Dryden v. Smith, (2) 17 P. R. 505, in note to Rule 268, supra, p. 477.

Until this Rule the practice in Ontario as to ordering particulars ^{Particulars} depended upon the inherent jurisdiction of the Court to prevent ^{of pleadings.} injustice, no Rules on the subject having been adopted: Queen Victoria Park, etc., v. Howard, 13 P. R. 14. This Rule has, however, made no substantial change in the practice. The principle upon which particulars were ordered in Ontario, even before this Rule, has been the same as in England, viz.: to prevent surprise and embarrassment at the trial, and to lessen expense of evidence: Mason v. Vancamp, 14 P. R. 296; Spedding v. Fitzpatrick, 38 Ch. D. 410.

"As a general rule applications for particulars are to be made before the applicant has pleaded over. Particulars are ordered with reference to pleading, and are distinguished from examination for discovery, which is to get at the knowledge of the adverse litigant. . . . Particulars are ordered primarily with a view to have the prior pleading made sufficiently distinct to enable the applicant to frame his answer thereto properly." per Boyd, C.: Smith v. Boyd, 17 P. R. 463 at p. 467.

Demanding Particulars.—Before applying for particulars a written demand for the particulars desired should, in general, be made, so as to confine any subsequent motion to such particulars as are refused.

Where a party complies with a demand for particulars of his pleading, he will be restricted at the trial to the particulars given without any order for that purpose: Young v. E. & H. Ry. Co., 17 P. R. 4.

Particulars given in compliance with a written demand or an order, should be given in writing; an oral statement of them will not be sufficient: Ryan v. Donovan, 16 C. L. T. 71 (N. W. T.).

Application for Particulars.—The applicant should prove the previous demand, if any, and the non-compliance with it, and should shew by affidavit the need for particulars: Roberts v. Owen, 6 Times, 172; Sachs v. Spielman, 37 Ch. D. 303-305, unless it is clear from the pleading that particulars of general allegations there made must be necessary, in which case a motion to strike out the pleading as embarrassing, or to compel its amendment by setting out particulars, will often be proper.

In Kohfreitsch v. McIntyre, 19 C. L. J. 116; 3 C. L. T. 173; it was held by Mr. Dalton, in Chambers, that, in a case where formerly a party would have been entitled to particulars of a pleading, the proper course will in general be to move to compel an amendment of the pleading so as to state the particulars required. In that case the defence was that a note sued on had been obtained by fraud (as ^{When amendment of pleading proper instead of particulars.}

Rule 299. to pleading which, see Rule 271), and the defence was ordered to be amended so as to state the circumstances of the fraud: see Wallingford v. Mutual Soc., 5 App. Cas. 685; Schomberg v. Zoebelli, W. N. 1876, 108; 2 Chari. Ch. Ca. 36. Particulars have sometimes been ordered: see Boston v. Bradshaw, 8 L. R. 1r. 30; Appleman v. Appleman, 12 P. R. 138. A like order would seem to be proper where justification is pleaded in general terms in an action for libel: see Corcoran v. Robb, 8 P. R. 49; or an action for wrongful dismissal: see Saunders v. Jones, 7 Ch. D. 435, 448; Crabbe v. Hickson, 14 P. R. 42; or in such a case as Palmer v. Palmer, 1892, 1 Q. B. 319, where a statement of claim alleged merely that plaintiff was entitled to possession of land as heir-at-law of B., who died seised in fee and in possession, and the plaintiff was ordered to give particulars of the relationship relied on as constituting him the heir.

There may, however, be cases in which a general allegation may be allowed in the pleading to avoid prolixity, leaving the opposite party to apply for particulars if necessary: see The Cory, 7 P. D. 129, where a statement of claim, claiming damages for delivery of cargo in a damaged condition, alleged that the damage was occasioned by the defective condition of the vessel, or by the negligence or breach of duty of the defendants; see also Appleman v. Appleman, 12 P. R. 138.

Time for Application.—As particulars are most frequently desired for the purpose of framing a pleading in answer, the application should be made before the applicant pleads over: Smith v. Boyd, 17 P. R. 463, 467; by a defendant before delivering a defence: see Augustinus v. Nerinckx, 16 Ch. D. 7; Blackie v. Osmaston, 28 Ch. D. 123; and by a plaintiff before delivering his reply, or amending his statement of claim. Putting in a defence is not necessarily a waiver of the right to particulars: Sachs v. Spielman, 37 Ch. D. 295; 58 L. T. 102; Watson v. North Metropolitan Co., 3 Times, 273; but in general, in the absence of special circumstances, particulars will not be ordered after the close of the pleadings: Smith v. Boyd, 17 P. R. 463; see S. C., 18 P. R. 296; and Gourand v. Fitzgerald, 37 W. R. 55, 263. Particulars can not at that stage be required for the purpose of pleading, and they will only be granted for the purposes of the trial, upon affidavit shewing that they are necessary: Bank of Toronto v. Ins. Co. of N. A., 18 P. R. 27.

Where defendant applied before defence for particulars of transactions impeached, the circumstances of which were within his own knowledge, and not that of the plaintiff, the application was ordered to stand over until the defence was put in: Sachs v. Spielman, supra; see Re Morgan, 35 Ch. D. 500.

Discovery
before particulars ordered.

Particulars may not be ordered until discovery is given by the party asking for the particulars.

There is no hard and fast rule as to the class of cases in which particulars will be ordered to be delivered before discovery, or discovery to be given before particulars. The Court will look at the circumstances of each case: Waynes Merthyr Co. v. Radford, 1896, 1 Ch. 29.

Where the details of the facts pleaded lie in the knowledge of the party asking particulars, particulars should not be ordered before discovery is given by the party asking the particulars: Sims v. Slater, 10 C. L. T. 227; Millar v. Harper, 38 Ch. D. 110; Sachs v. Spielman, supra; Whyte v. Ahrens, 26 Ch. D. 717; Leitch v. Abbott, 31 Ch. D. 374; Mazim & Co. v. Nordenfeldt, 1893, 3 Ch. 122; Edclinton

* Kelly v. Martin
6 O.W.R., 141.

v. Russell, 57 L. T. 927; Waynes Merthyr Co. v. Radford, 1806, 1 Ruls 299. Ch. 29; but see Zierenberg v. Labouchere, 1803, 2 Q. B. 183, an action for libel.

In some cases all the particulars required may be obtained by examination for discovery: see Saunders v. Jones, 7 Ch. D. 435; explained in Benbow v. Low, 10 Ch. D. 97; Frost v. Brooke, 32 L. T. 312; Hill v. Waters, L. R. 9 C. P. 688; Blatchford v. Green, 14 P. R. 424; Hall v. Bryce, 6 Times, 344.

Where by examination for discovery the defendant had obtained the information which would be given by particulars, particulars were refused: Gould v. Beattie, 11 P. R. 320.

Where a pleading sets up that a deed is fraudulent and void under 13 Eliz. c. 5, (R. S. O. c. 334), particulars of the fraud should be obtained by examination for discovery: see Pitfield v. Guest, (Nov. Scot.), 18 C. L. T. 144.

Particulars—General Principles.—Particulars will be ordered giving information to prevent the opposite party from being taken by surprise at the trial, and to save unnecessary expense: Spedding v. Fitzpatrick, 38 Ch. D. 410; Turnock v. Sartoris, 33 Sol. Jur. 58; Alexport v. Paynter, 34 Ch. D. 93; Crompton v. Anglo-American, etc., 35 Ch. D. 283; Thompson v. Birkley, 31 W. R. 230; but not such as will oblige a party to disclose the evidence upon which he relies: Queen Victoria Park Commissioners v. Howard, 13 P. R. 14; (where defendants pleading that certain lands were Ordnance Lands were not ordered to give particulars of facts and means by which, and the time at which, the lands so became Ordnance Lands, it not appearing that the defendants had any special means of information not open to the plaintiffs): see also Temperton v. Russell, 9 Times, 319; Cove v. Torre, 54 L. T. 518, 519; Salisbury v. Nugent, 9 P. D. 1. The drawing of the line between evidence, and particulars of facts to prevent surprise, is often difficult: Briton Medical v. Britannia, 59 L. T. 888; Molsons Bank v. Hall, 5 O. W. R. 625.

A defendant may be ordered to give particulars of documents referred to in his pleadings, though he has in an affidavit on production of documents effectually claimed for those documents the privilege of non-production: Milbank v. Milbank, 1900, 1 Ch. 376.

A party is entitled to have the opposite party's case presented in an intelligible form: Harbord v. Monk, 38 L. T. 411; Dryden v. Smith, 17 P. R. 505; and if the charges are not sufficiently explicit, particulars may be ordered: see Anon., W. N. 1875, 202, 220; or an amendment of the claim may be applied for: Schomberg v. Zocbelli, W. N. 1876, 106; 2 Charl. Ch. Ca. 36.

Particulars compel a litigant to state the details of what he pleads, whether he himself knows the facts or not; discovery compels him to state what he knows: see Turnock v. Sartoris, 33 Sol. Jour. 58.

In determining what particulars may be demanded, the decisions under the English practice of delivering interrogatories may be usefully referred to. These shew that a party cannot be compelled to disclose the details of his evidence as contradistinguished from the facts: Eode v. Jacobs, 3 Ex. D. 335; explained in Atty-Gen. v. Gas-kill, 30 W. R. 558; Bidder v. Bridges, 29 Ch. D. 29; Benbow v. Low, 16 Ch. D. 93; Re Leigh, Rowcliffe v. Leigh, 6 Ch. D. 256; Sheppard v. Lord Lonsdale, 5 C. P. D. 47; 42 L. T. 172; Commissioners of Sewers v. Glassey, L. R. 15 Eq. 302; Lister v. Thompson, 7 Times, 107; or matters which do not pertain to the questions to be raised Rule 299. at the trial, though they may be relevant if a judgment is obtained: Parker v. Wells, 18 Ch. D. 477; but the material facts upon which the issues in the case will be raised must be disclosed: Ashby v. Taylor, 38 L. T. 44, such as, in an action for dissolution of a partnership in the practice of surgeons, occasions when the defendant conducted himself in such a way as to make it impossible for the plaintiff to practice with him: Lyon v. Tweddell, 13 Ch. D. 375; and, in an action for wrongful dismissal, instances of misconduct relied on to justify the dismissal: Saunders v. Jones, 7 Ch. D. 435; Crabbe v. Hickson, 14 P. R. 42.

Where by his statement of claim, the plaintiff sued as trustee for A. B. "and others," upon motion by defendant he was ordered to amend his statement of claim by striking out the words "and others," or else to give particulars to defendant of such "others" within one week: Johnson v. Stafford, 33 C. L. J. 433.

Where the plaintiff claims not an account merely but a definite sum, he must state what his case is in detail, either in the pleadings or by way of particulars: Blackie v. Osmaston, 28 Ch. D. 119.

Where a claim was for a liquidated sum under an agreement for services rendered, and money disbursed, particulars of services and disbursements were ordered: Gunn v. Tucker, 7 Times, 280; see also Sedgwick v. Yedras, 4 Times, 17; Hall v. Symons, 92 L. T. Jour. 337.

See also notes to Rule 138.

As to particulars of damages, see Turnock v. Sartoris, 33 Sol. Jour. 58; Blatchford v. Green, 14 P. R. 424.

As to particulars of payment into Court, see Rowe v. Kelly, 59 L. T. 139; James v. Rudnor, 6 Times, 240.

Where particulars of money claims can be indorsed or stated in the claim they ought to be so: see per Lush, J., Anon., W. N. 1875, 202; 1 Charl. Ch. Ca. 35. If, therefore, sufficient particulars are not given, the costs of an application to obtain them should be borne by the plaintiff.

Examples—Particulars not Ordered.—Particulars will not be ordered where the ordering of them will embarrass the party from whom they are asked, and the want of them will not take the party asking them by surprise, as where knowledge of the circumstances of the case lies with the party asking particulars: see Roberts v. Owen, 6 Times, 172; Lister v. Thompson, 7 Times, 107; Temperton v. Russell, 9 Times, 319; Scottish, etc., v. Toronto, (Boyd, C., 20th Dec., 1897), or where they are immaterial, as, for example, in an action to recover certain charges, where the defence was that they were unreasonable and excessive, particulars of the items objected to were refused as the plaintiff would at the trial have to prove that they were reasonable: James v. Radnor, 6 Times, 240; see also Cave v. Torre, 54 L. T. 515; Gibbons v. Norman, 2 Times, 676; or where by them it is sought to have evidence of the facts disclosed, and not the facts themselves: see cases, supra.

Where defendant pleaded that a deed was made for the purpose and with the intent to defraud, hinder and delay the creditors of the grantor, etc., and that the deed was void under 13 Eliz., c. 5. (R. S. O. c. 324), particulars of the fraud were refused: Pitfield v. Gucat, 18 C. L. T. 144 (Nov. Scot.).

Where the plaintiff's claim was not a merely legal demand for an Rule 299. ascertained sum, but an equitable claim, which if successful would only lead to an account being taken, and particulars were not necessary to enable defendant to frame his defence, the plaintiff was not ordered to furnish them: Augustinus v. Norinoka, 16 Ch. D. 16.

Where a plaintiff was suing for an account by an administrator, an order requiring him to give particulars of the property of which he required an account was held to be erroneous and was discharged: Carr v. Anderson, 112 L. T. Jour. 214. Particulars of defence under a plea of "not guilty by statute" cannot be ordered: Taylor v. Grand Trunk Ry., 2 O. L. R. 148.

Particulars Ordered.—Of payments which the defendants, who were mortgagees in a redemption action, admitted having received, and in respect to which they counter-claimed: Kemp v. Goldberg, 36 Ch. D. 505; of a sum for which credit was given by the claim. In order to enable defendant to frame his set-off or counter-claim: Godden v. Corsten, 5 C. P. D. 17; W. N. 1879, 190; of negligence and damages, in an action for damages for injuries caused by negligent driving: O'Meara v. Stone, W. N. 1884, 72; 28 Sol. Jour. 359; of general allegations of trust, and breaches thereof: Re Austice, 33 W. R. 557; 52 L. T. 572; of errors in progress certificates, though these were the result of information derived from documents prepared for the litigation which were privileged: C. P. R. v. Conner, 11 P. R. 297; of items alleged to be false entries, and of the nature of the objection to each: Newport v. Paynter, 34 Ch. D. 88; of false and fraudulent misrepresentations: Seligman v. Young, W. N. 1884, 93; 28 Sol. Jour. 411; in an action for infringement of a trade mark, of "divers persona" alleged to have been deceived: Humphries v. Taylor, 39 Ch. D. 603; of items of a claim in respect of which the defendant pays money into Court, but only if the trial will be facilitated and neither party embarrassed: Orient Steam Nav. Co. v. Ocean Marine Ins. Co., 34 W. R. 442. This case was decided under Rule 203, of Eng. Rules of 1883, providing expressly for a demand of particulars and order therefor, if not given on demand, which is the practice pursued in Ontario without special Rule.

In an action for goods sold and delivered, a counter-claim for damages for inferior quality was set up. Particulars of the damages claimed were ordered: Anon., W. N. 1875, 220; see also notes to Rules 138 and 245.

Defendants claiming a road to be a highway by dedication were ordered, if they relied on any specific acts of dedication or declarations of intention to dedicate, whether alone or jointly with user, to give the nature and dates of the acts or declarations, and the names of the persons by whom they were done or made: Spedding v. Fitzpatrick, 38 Ch. D. 410.

In suits for alimony, the former Chancery practice required that the various acts of violence or adultery relied on, should be set forth specifically in the bill, that the defendant might have notice of them, otherwise no evidence of such acts could be given: Rodman v. Alimony, Rodman, 20 Gr. 428, 440, 441. This is in accordance with the present Rules of pleading; see Brook v. Brook, 35 W. R. 351; 57 L. T. 425; in Rosenstadt v. Rosenstadt, 9 P. R. 311, an order was made for delivery of particulars of acts relied on, within one month, and confining the plaintiff's evidence to such acts; and though in that case it was considered convenient to order particulars, the decision shews clearly enough that the plaintiff's statement of claim was not properly framed to enable her to go into evidence. Particulars were Rule 299. ordered of names of servants in whose presence abusive language was alleged to have been used to plaintiff: Bishop v. Bishop, 1901, P. 325; 85 L. T. 173.

Wrongful dismissal. In an action for wrongful dismissal, the plaintiff is entitled to a list of the specific acts which defendant is aware of, and on which he proposes to rely as justifying dismissal, and if further facts are afterwards discovered, particulars of them should also be furnished before trial: Crabbe v. Hickson, 14 P. R. 42; Saunders v. Jones, 7 Ch. D. 435; Scott v. Mewbery, 3 O. L. R. 252.

Malicious prosecution. In an action for malicious prosecution defendant was not ordered to give particulars of what he relied on in support of an allegation of reasonable and probable cause, in the absence of any necessity for giving any such particulars being shown by plaintiffs: Roberts v. Owen, 6 Times, 172.

Grounds of belief. Where directors, sued for misrepresentations in a prospectus, set up that they had reasonable grounds to believe such representations to be true, particulars of such grounds of belief were ordered to be delivered: Odman v. Oppert, 1901, 2 K. B. 576; 87 L. T. 828.

False imprisonment. In an action for false imprisonment as a lunatic, reasonable and probable cause as a defence was held to be an immaterial allegation, and particulars of it were refused: Cave v. Torre, 54 L. T. 87, 515.

Seduction. In an action for seduction defendant was held not entitled to particulars of times and places, unless he made affidavit denying the seduction, so as to shew that he did not know the nature of the charges brought against him, which otherwise would be deemed to be matters within his own knowledge: Thompson v. Birkley, 31 W. R. 230; 47 L. T. 700; Knight v. Engle, 61 L. T. 780; Hollister v. Annable, 14 P. R. 11; Mason v. VanCamp, ib., 296; and see Turner v. Kyle, 2 C. L. T. 311. Where such an affidavit is made, particulars may be ordered before defence: A. v. B., 7 O. L. R. 73.

Criminal conversation. In an action for crim. con., defendant is entitled to particulars of times and places, where he makes affidavit denying the alleged acts and stating that he is ignorant of the charge, and that the application is made bona fide: Keenan v. Pringle, 28 L. R. Ir. 135; but not without such an affidavit, especially after an examination for discovery: Murray v. Brown, 16 P. R. 125.

Undue influence. The practice in the Probate Division in England is not to order particulars of undue influence charged: Lord Salisbury v. Nugent, 9 P. D. 23; or of allegations of a testator's unsoundness of mind: Hankinson v. Barningham, 53 L. J. Pro. 16.

Testator's mental capacity. In an action for libel against a newspaper, the statement of claim must be confined to the statement specified in the notice required by R. S. O. c. 68, s. 6 (2), to be given before action: Obernier v. Robertson, 14 P. R. 552.

Libel and slander. Where the charge made against the plaintiff is general, the defendant who pleads justification must set out the facts on which he relies in support of his justification, and if he do not, particulars will be ordered: Zierenberg v. Labouchere, 1893, 2 Q. B. 183; Bristol v. German P. & P. Co., 33 C. L. J. 462.

Where a review of a book stated that the plaintiff by his own confession was a barefaced liar, and the defence was justification, the plaintiff was held entitled to particulars of the passages relied on: Devereux v. Clarke & Co., 1891, 2 Q. B. 582; and see Poster v. Perryman, 8 Times, 115.

In an action for libel in a newspaper published in which the defence is that the said was an accurate report of certain public proceedings and for comment thereon, particulars by interrogation were denied in Hennessy v. Wright (No. 2), 36 W. R. 879; 24 Q. B. 1, 115, and where the action is against the proprietor of a newspaper who admits the publication of the libel, and pleads an apology, the plaintiff is not entitled to interrogate the defendant as to the name of the writer, unless the identity of the writer is a fact in issue, as in the issue raised in the case; Gibson v. Evans, 23 Q. B. 1, 384; Hann v. Burrows, 12 Times, 521; nor to have production of the original manuscript of the libel: Hope v. Brash, 1897, 2 Q. B. 188.

Particulars were ordered of a defence of justification in a libel suit, where it was not clear whether the defence was that what was charged against plaintiff was true, or was truly reported: Hennessy v. Wright (No. 1), Id. 878; 57 L. J. Q. B. 594. In Wills v. Carman, 17 Ont. 223, a defendant not pleading justification, but saying that the alleged libel was a fair comment on matters of public interest, was held entitled to shew what the facts were, as to the matters commented upon, in order to shew that the comments upon them were fair; but this does not mean that a defendant can give evidence to shew that the alleged libel is true without pleading justification: Brown v. Meyer, 20 Ont. App. 509; Manitoba, etc., v. Martin, 21 S. C. R. 518.

In an action for slander, particulars may be ordered of the persons to whom the slanderous words were spoken, or if such persons are unknown, or the words were spoken to the plaintiff, then the name of any person who was present and heard, or might have heard the words spoken: Thornton v. Capstock, 9 P. R. 535; which, it has been held in Gould v. Beattie, 11 P. R. 329 (see also Patterson v. Dunn, 14 P. R. 40), is in Ontario, to be followed in preference to the contrary views expressed in Bradbury v. Cooper, 12 Q. B. 11, 94, and Roselle v. Buchanan, 16 Q. B. D. 656; but see Mellillan v. Colicell, 7 C. L. T. 141; but it has been held, even in England, that those decisions are not to be extended to occasions of publication of an alleged libel: Gourand v. Fitzgerald, 37 W. R. 55. Particulars as to the names of persons alleged to have been passing by, when the slanderous words were used, and particulars as to the alleged damages, have been refused: Wingard v. Cox, W. N. 1876, 106, 2 Charl. Ch. Ca. 33; see also Colonial Insurance Corporation v. Prosser, W. N. 1876, 55; 2 Charl. Ch. Ca. 35; Restell v. Steward, W. N. 1875, 231; 1 Charl. Ch. Ca. 87; more especially where the persons are persons whose names the plaintiff does not know: Dawson v. Rogan, 10 C. L. T. 300.

Where the plaintiff alleged slander spoken to S. C. "and others," particulars as to "others," were refused, where, before motion, the plaintiff gave all the information in his power as to what he knew of the other persons present, and the defendant did not swear that he could not plead without further particulars: Winnett v. Applebe, 16 P. R. 57.

In an action for slander imputing a specific charge, which is justified, no particulars are necessary: Cuming v. Green, 7 Times, 408; see Foster v. Perryman, 8 Times, 115.

But a defendant is entitled to the fullest particulars the plaintiff can furnish as to places where, times when, and persons to whom alleged defamatory words were uttered; and also of the names of persons who have ceased to do business with plaintiff, in consequence

Rule 299. of the alleged slander, and also particulars of the slanderous statements, alleged as showing express malice, or in aggravation of damages: Muller v. Gorth, 17 P. R. 129; and see Robinson v. Sugarman, 17 P. R. 419.

Slander of title. In an action for slander of title, particulars were refused as to persons who would have given more than was realized at the sale in respect of which damages were claimed: Catton v. Gleason, 14 P. R. 222; but in an action for libel, particulars were ordered of the facts on which the plaintiff's claim for damages for loss of trade was based: Blachford v. Green, 14 P. R. 424.

Ejectment. Particulars were ordered of the links of relationship, whereby plaintiff sought to establish his title as heir, in an action for the recovery of land: Palmer v. Palmer, 1892, 1 Q. B. 319; also of the section of the Real Property Limitation Act on which defendant relied: Dodge v. Smith, 1 O. L. R. 46.

Insurance cases. As to the extent to which a defendant setting up a defence of misrepresentation in procuring insurance, arson, and improper statement of loss, may be ordered to give particulars, see Katrine L. Co. v. Liverpool & L. Ins. Co., 17 P. R. 318.

Patent cases. Particulars of objections to a patent must be given: see Cropper v. Smith, 51 L. T. 729; see form of order in Ehrlich v. Ihlee, 56 L. T. 819.

The general law applicable to discovery governs actions for infringement of patents. Full disclosure of the lines of attack must be made, but no such individualizing of the persons who are alleged to be prior users as would enable the plaintiff to fix upon the defendant's witnesses: Smith v. Greay, 4 C. L. T. 589; 21 C. L. J. 58; 11 P. R. 169.

In Mosley v. Victoria Rubber Co., 55 L. T. 482, particulars of infringements of two patents were delivered. The defendant answered the plaintiff's interrogatories, whereupon he discontinued as to one patent. The defendants then required the plaintiff to distinguish between the infringements complained of, referring him to their answers and interrogatories and interrogating him as to which of the processes, which they described, infringed the patent relied on by him. It was held that the plaintiff was not obliged to particularize the infringements: see also Birch v. Mather, 31 W. R. 362; 22 Ch. D. 629; Anglo-American Brush Co. v. Crompton, 34 Ch. D. 152; 35 Ch. D. 283, under Imp. Act 46 & 47 Vict. c. 57, s. 29.

Particulars were ordered of respects in which the defendants denied that the plaintiffs' patent was for any new invention, etc. (as alleged), and dates and occasions when, and also names of persons by whom prior user was had: Smith v. Greay, 11 P. R. 169; see also Holliday v. Heppenstall, 41 Ch. D. 109; Union Electrical, etc., Co. v. Electrical Storage Co., 38 Ch. D. 325; Bray v. Farrar, 57 L. T. 866.

An application by the defendant to amend his particulars of objections to a patent, on the ground that, pending the trial, the defendant had discovered new facts showing want of novelty, was refused, it not being shown that he could not with reasonable diligence have discovered the new facts sooner: Moss v. Malings, 33 Ch. D. 603.

All defects in the specifications of a patent on which the defendant intends to rely at the trial must be specified in the particulars of objection: Anglo-American Brush Light Co. v. Crompton, 34 Ch. D. 152; 35 Ch. D. 283.

In an action for infringement of a duly registered copyright, Rule 300. particulars were ordered shewing the date of registration of the copyright, and the parts of defendant's book which infringed it: Liddell v. Copp Clark Co., 19 P. R. 332.

Effect of Order for Particulars.—Where particulars are delivered pursuant to a demand or an order, the party delivering the same will be restricted at the trial to the particulars so delivered without any order for that purpose: Young v. Erie & H. Ry. Co., 17 P. R. 4.

It may be made a term of an order for the delivery of particulars, that in default of delivery by a plaintiff his action be dismissed, and in case of a defendant, that his defence be struck out: see Davey v. Bentinck, 1893, 1 Q. B. 185; 67 L. T. 742; or it may provide for the exclusion of evidence if no particulars, or insufficient particulars, are given: Noxon v. Patterson, 16 P. R. 40, and if by the terms of the order the latter is the penalty imposed on a defendant for default, a further order will not be made limiting a time for delivery of particulars, and on default striking out the defence: Bell v. Morrison, 5 O. W. R. 226; nor should the order for particulars direct the excision of the pleading, on default, if it is good per se: Noxon v. Patterson, supra.

Where an order was made for particulars of certain paragraphs of defence, and in default the paragraphs to be struck out, it was held that the officer with whom the pleadings were filed could strike out the paragraphs without further order upon default being shown by affidavit: Hamilton Road Co. v. Platt, 10 P. R. 581.

An order striking out particulars complained of as too general was refused, it being held that if too general the admission of evidence thereunder was in the discretion of the Judge at the trial: Citizens Insurance v. Campbell, 10 P. R. 129.

As to the giving of particulars by parties in a representative capacity: see Higgins v. Weekes, 5 Times. 238.

300. A plaintiff may, without leave, amend his statement of claim whether indorsed on the writ or not, once, either before the statement of defence has been delivered, or after it has been delivered, and before the expiration of the time limited for reply, and before replying. Rule 1247. 20th June, 1903, repealing Con. Rule 300.

Amendment by plaintiff without leave.

Differs from the Eng. (1883) R. 310.

This Rule applies to a statement of claim which has been served out of the jurisdiction, where the defendant has appeared, and where it is amended it will not be necessary to re-serve the writ: Holland v. Leslie, 1894, 2 Q. B. 346; the amended pleading must, of course, be delivered to a defendant who has appeared, as provided by Rule 380; sed quare, where the defendant has not appeared: see Rule 573, and Re Hartley, 1891, 2 Ch. 121, and notes to Rule 312, infra, p. 526. Where an amended writ is served a second appearance is not necessary, the first appearance stands as an appearance to the amended writ: Paxton v. Baird, 1893, 1 Q. B. 139.

Where leave to amend is necessary, and defendant is out of the jurisdiction, the plaintiff must shew that the claim as proposed to be

Rule 300. amended is one for which he would have been entitled to have to issue a writ for service out of Ontario under Rule 162: Holland v. Leslie, supra; Hogaboom v. MacCulloch, 17 P. R. 377. It would seem, therefore, that any amendment made under this Rule without leave must be of the like character, otherwise the defendant may apply under Rule 301 to have it disallowed.

In Malcolm v. Itace, 16 P. R. 331, it was held that a defendant who simply files a joinder of issue to the statement of claim, thereby closes the pleadings; and semble, in such a case a plaintiff would be precluded from amending under this Rule.

Chancery
Practice.

The former Chancery practice warranted the addition, under an order of course to amend, of a plaintiff: Dunn v. McLean, 6 P. R. 97, or defendant: Attorney-General v. Nethercoat, 2 M. & Cr. 601; but not the striking out of a defendant, or of a plaintiff, if any of defendants had answered: Dunn v. McLean, supra. As, however, this Rule relates to the amendment of a pleading only, and as an action is not now commenced by a pleading but by a writ, it would seem that no alteration in the frame of the action as to parties can be made by amendment under this Rule. It is to be observed also that Rules 207 and 208 point to the service of added defendants with a writ. Rule 206, et seq., (and perhaps Rule 312) would seem to apply where an amendment in respect to the parties is desired.

It has been held under the similar provisions of the Irish Judicature Act, that a plaintiff amending without leave may not add a fresh cause of action not covered by the indorsement of the writ, and that such an amendment is liable to be moved against under Rule 301: Moore v. Atwill, 8 L. R. Ir. 245. Such an amendment may affect the costs of prior pleadings, and on a motion under Rule 301 such costs may be provided for, but under the English practice, and now in Ontario (see Rule 244), it is not the rule that the statement of claim must be no wider than the claim indorsed on the writ: see Johnson v. Palmer, 4 C. P. D. 258; and Bourke v. Alexandra Hotel Co., W. N. 1877, 30 (except when a defendant has not appeared, and a statement of claim has to be delivered, in order to found a motion for judgment): Gee v. Bell, 35 Ch. D. 160; 56 L. T. 305; and see Gibson v. Hieb, 1 O. L. R. 247, where defendant, by appearance, waived objection; and there seems to be no reason why the plaintiffs should not, except as to parties, make under this Rule as large amendments as by the former Chancery practice might have been made under an order of course: as to which see McGillivray v. McCoukcy, 6 P. R. 56. The provisions of Rule 301 will enable the defendant to obtain the imposition of any terms that may be just.

Extension of claim by amendment.

Where the writ claimed damages for wrongful dismissal and slander, but the statement of claim was confined to the former cause of action only, an amendment made under this Rule setting up the second cause of action was held to be proper: Rodger v. Noxon, 19 P. R. 327.

Where a plaintiff has obtained discovery, he cannot thereafter by amendment add a claim which, if it had been originally made, would have disentitled him to discovery, e.g., a claim for penalties: Rose v. Croden, 3 O. L. R. 383.

Amendment as to place of trial.

The plaintiff may not change the place of trial by amendment under this Rule: Bull v. N. British, 10 P. R. 622; and it has also been held in England that he may not, by amendment under this Rule, supply an omission to name the place of trial in his statement of claim: Locke v. White, 33 Ch. D. 308. But this may not be so in Ontario, for it would not be known where the place of trial was to be; while in England the effect of omitting to name any place is that the action is to be tried at the Middlesex Sittings. Such an amendment in England, therefore, would amount to changing the place of trial without order, but would not have that effect here. See also Powell v. Cobb, 52 L. T. 183.

Where the plaintiff amends after a statement of defence has been put in, the defendant may amend his statement of defence under Rule 302; or put in a new defence, or may proceed with his original defence: Boddy v. Wall, 7 Ch. D. 164 (not following Durling v. Lawrence, 46 L. J. Chy. 808; W. N. 1877, 182). Where the plaintiff amends by striking out claims to which certain paragraphs of the defence make an answer, so that they are no longer necessary, it would seem that defendant need not amend by striking them out: Christy v. Ion Specialty Co., 18 C. L. T. 85; 34 C. L. J. 163. As to costs in such a case, see note to Rule 301. If he neither amends nor puts in a new defence, it is presumed that the original defence will stand as a defence to the amended statement of claim.

After an order which extended the time for delivery of the defence until after particulars of claim should be delivered, an amended statement of claim delivered without leave was held to be irregular: Anthony v. Blain, 5 O. L. R. 48. And see Confederation Life v. Moore, 6 O. L. R. 648.

Where after judgment a defect in the pleadings is required to be amended, ordinarily the judgment will have to be vacated: Hilgrees v. Craicford, 12 P. R. 658; Clark v. Cooper, 15 P. R. 54; after a final judgment in favour of defendant, an amendment by adding a party plaintiff so as to reconstitute the suit was refused: see Johnston v. Consumers' Gas Co., 17 P. R. 297; 1898, A. C. 447; and Rules 312 and 640, and notes.

301. Where a pleading has been amended under Rule 300, the opposite party may, within eight days after the delivery to him of the amended pleading, apply to the Court or a Judge to disallow the amendment, or any part thereof as may seem just. Rules 23rd June, 1894, 1328.

Varies from Eng. (1883) R. 312, so as to apply only in the case of an amendment by the plaintiff under Rule 300.

The giving of security for costs has been imposed as a term where a new case was raised by the amendment: Northampton Coal, Iron & Waggon Co. v. Midland Waggon Co., 7 Ch. D. 500. See also Bourne v. Coulter, 50 L. T. 321; 53 L. J. Chy. 690.

Where the plaintiff issued a writ indorsed for the recovery of land, claiming as reversioner and under a surrender of a lease; and the defence was that the lease was in effect a mortgage, and the surrender was obtained by fraud, an amendment by the plaintiff asking, in the alternative, foreclosure of the land as mortgagee, was disallowed on motion under this Rule: Mellhargen v. McGinnis, 9 P. R. 157.

Where a plaintiff strikes out allegations so as to make the answer of defendant useless, the defendant may apply under this Rule for the costs unnecessarily incurred: see McGillivray v. McCracken, 6 P. R. 54; Clarkson v. White, 4 Ont. 663; Strickland v. Strickland, 3 Beav. 242; Marar v. Drn, 2 S. & S. 113; Mounsey v. Burnham, 1

Rules Ha. 22; Dan. Pr., 5th ed., 351-2; Bourne v. Coulter, 50 L. T. 321; 302-304. 53 L. J. Chy. 609; Sidebottom v. Hooton Park Club, 18 Times, 153.
 See also Weldon v. Neal, 19 Q. B. D. 394, in note to Rule 298.

Pleading or amendment by the other party after amendment.

302. Where a plaintiff has amended his statement of claim under Rule 300, the opposite party shall plead thereto or amend his pleading within the time he then has to plead, or within eight days from the delivery of the amendment, which ever shall last expire, and in case the opposite party has pleaded before the delivery of the amendment and does not plead again or amend within the time above mentioned, he shall be deemed to rely on his original pleading in answer to such amendment. Rule 1248, amending Con. Rule 302.

The Eng. (1883) R. 313 is similar.

For the reason for the latter provision, see Boddy v. Wall, 7 Ch. D. 164; Powell v. Jewsbury, 9 Ch. D. 34.

This Rule has been held not to apply where amendments are made under an order: Thompson v. Howson, 16 P. R. 378.

Amendment by consent.

303. Either party may amend his pleadings at any time without order on filing the written consent of the opposite party or his solicitor. Con. Rule 428.

Application for leave to amend.

304. In other cases application for leave to amend may be made to the Court or a Judge, or to the Judge at the trial, and such amendment may be allowed upon such terms as to costs or otherwise, as may seem just. Con. Rule 429. Rules 23rd June, 1894, 1327.

The Eng. (1883) R. 314 is to the same effect.

The English Rule seems to be intended to provide the mode in which an application under Rule 298 is to be made. The object of the present Rule is probably the same, and to authorize an application for leave to amend when the time for doing so without leave under the preceding Rules has expired, or in cases not within them, e.g., the case of the amendment of a counter-claim after a defence to it has been delivered. The latter case was met by the former Con. Rule 425, which provided for an amendment of a counter-claim within a specified time (as is still the English practice under Eng. (1883) R. 311). The effect was that until that time had expired the pleadings were not closed: Garner v. Tunc, 12 P. R. 280; and the trial of the action was thereby delayed. The former Rule 425 was therefore repealed, and a special application required by Rule 1327 of 23rd June, 1894, which, with Rule 429, is consolidated in the present Rule 304.

A counter-claiming defendant must therefore now make special application if he desires to amend his counter-claim unless the opposite party consents: Rule 303.

Amendment of Pleadings by Leave.—General Principles. Rule 304.

—Amendments which justice requires are to be allowed: see Rule 312 and notes; but it is to be justice to both parties; therefore the allowance of amendments to pleadings is subject to limitations to meet the requirements of justice, and so that the whole nature of the action may not be changed by amendment: Blankhorn v. Penrose, 20 W. R. 237; 43 L. T. 668; Raleigh v. Goschen, 1898, 1 Ch. 73; 77 L. T. 429; Rose v. Croden, supra, p. 489; and subject also to whether justice will be advanced, having regard to the nature of the proposed amendment: McIlhargey v. McGinnis, 9 P. R. 157; Caughill v. Clark, 9 P. R. 471; 3 Ont. 269; Hendricks v. Montagu, 17 Ch. D. 642; Weldon v. Neal, 19 Q. B. D. 394; and to the time when the application is made: see Cropper v. Smith, 26 Ch. D. 700; 10 App. Cas. 249, and other cases, infra.

An action may, by amendment of the writ and statement of claim, be turned into an action by the Attorney-General at the suit of a relator without prejudice to a pending motion in the action; the necessary sanction of the Attorney-General being obtained: Caldwell v. Payham Harbour, etc., 2 Ch. D. 221; see Mounsey v. Earl of Londsdale, L. R. 6 Chy. 141.

An action against a Minister of the Crown will not be allowed to be amended, so as to make it an action also against the defendant as a private individual: Raleigh v. Goschen, 1898, 1 Ch. 73; 77 L. T. 429; and see Smith v. Boyd, 18 P. R. 76, 296.

In Cargill v. Bower, 4 Ch. D. 78, a defendant who had put in a joint defence with another was allowed to amend by raising defences separately from his co-defendant, and an affidavit showing the nature of the new defence sought to be raised, or its materiality, was not required: see also Long v. Crossley, 13 Ch. D. 391; and Chesterfield v. Black, 25 W. R. 409. From subsequent cases, however, it is clear that, provided the position of the cause is such that the granting leave to amend will not work injustice to the opposite party, the materiality of the amendment is a matter for consideration on the motion, and it would seem that the Court or Judge has power to consider the amendment and refuse to allow an amendment which is immaterial, or does not appear to be true, or capable of being substantiated: see McIlhargey v. McGinnis, in note to Rule 301, or which would set up an unmeritorious defence, where the time for raising it without leave has expired: see Caughill v. Clark, 9 P. R. 471; 3 Ont. 269; Oates v. Foresters, 4 Ont. 535; Machado v. Fontes, 45 W. R. 565; 1897, 2 Q. B. 231; Holland v. Leslie, 1894, 2 Q. B. 348.

Where an amendment of a matter of account as stated in the pleadings would be allowed before judgment, a similar amendment in respect of accounts filed should be allowed in the Master's Office: Court v. Holland, 4 Ont. 688.

Stage of Proceedings.—Application should be made at as early a stage as possible. Delay will be a circumstance to be considered in forming an opinion as to the justice of allowing an amendment: Clark v. Wray, 34 Ch. D. 68. The Rules apply and confer power to allow an amendment so long as anything remains to be done in the case: The Duke of Buccleuch, 1892, P. 212.

It is not necessarily too late after reply or issue joined: Chesterfield v. Black, 25 W. R. 409; after the cause is entered for trial: Roe v. Davies, 2 Ch. D. 729; at the trial: Budding v. Murdoch, 1 Ch. D. 42; King v. Corke, ib. 57; Long v. Crossley, 13 Ch. D. 388;

Rule 304. Dallinger v. St. Albans, 41 L. T. 406; Green v. Sevin, ib., 580, 505; Nobel's Explosives Co. v. Jones, 17 Ch. D. 721, 724; Laird v. Briggs, 19 Ch. D. 22; Russell v. Canada Life Ass. Co., 32 C. P. 256; Blackburn v. Penrose, 29 W. R. 237; Nottage v. Jackson, 11 Q. B. D. 627; Riding v. Hawkins, 14 P. D. 56; or after a new trial has been ordered (in which last case the action is in the same position as if it was at issue and had not been tried): Hunter v. Boyd, 6 O. L. R. 639. (In such cases the opposite party may sometimes obtain costs incurred in respect to the old pleadings: see Dan. Prac., 5th ed., 351-52; or, if a plaintiff, he may have the opportunity given him to consider whether he will discontinue: see Edison Telephone Co. v. India Rubber Co., 17 Ch. D. 137). An amendment may also be allowed after interlocutory judgment, but before assessment of damages: The Duke of Buccleuch, supra; after verdict, but before judgment: Stilliray v. Toronto, 20 Ont. 98; Noad v. Murrow, 40 L. T. 100; or an application for a new trial: Ecklin v. Little, 34 Sol. Jour. 543; but an application after final judgment is too late, except upon the terms of vacating the judgment: Wilgress v. Crauford, 12 P. R. 658; Clarke v. Cooper, 15 P. R. 54. See also Johnston v. Canadian Gas Co., 17 P. R. 297; Durham v. Robertson, 1898, 1 Q. B. 771; and see notes to Rule 312, p. 527.

At the trial where all the evidence that could throw light on the case has been given, it is a mere matter of form to adapt the pleadings to the matters proved: Cough v. Bench, 6 Ont. 690; in order to determine the real matter intended to be tried: Smith v. Bond, 18 P. R. 76 (but see 18 P. R. 296); Stilliray v. Toronto, 20 Ont. 98; see also The Dictator, 1892, P. 65; Wyatt v. Rosherville, 2 Times, 282, and Modera v. M., 10 Times, 69, where a greater sum having been awarded than was claimed amendments accordingly were made in the writ and pleadings. But where an amendment of the pleadings is allowed at the trial, the amendment should be made as provided by Rule 314. Judgment ought not to be entered until the amendment has been made.

Leave to amend should as a rule be asked before argument of the case as it stands has failed: Cropper v. Smith, 26 Ch. D. 700; James v. Smith, 1891, 1 Ch. 384; Brown v. Dunn, 6 R. 67; Sales v. L. Erie, etc., Ry. Co., 17 P. R. 224.

Motion before Trial.—The expression "Court or a Judge" gives jurisdiction to the Master in Chambers or other officer having like jurisdiction: see notes to Rules 6 and 42.

The application should be made in Chambers, before trial as a general thing: Marriott v. Marriott, 26 W. R. 416. It should be made ordinarily to the Master in Chambers or like officer, upon notice, and the amendments should be specified, or their nature stated, either in the notice of motion or in the affidavits in support of it: see Lawrence v. Norreys, 39 Ch. D. 218. The condition in which the action stands should also be shewn.

When
allowed

Amendments allowed.—In Tildesley v. Harper, 10 Ch. D. at p. 340; Bramwell, L.J., said his practice in Chambers had been to give leave to amend, unless satisfied that the party applying was acting mala fide, or that by his blunder he had done some injury to his opponent which could not be compensated for by costs or otherwise; followed in Re Truport, Trafford v. Blane, 34 W. R. 56; 53 L. T. 498; Kurtz v. Spence, 36 Ch. D. 770, 773; Clavapete v. Commercial Union, 32 W. R. 151, 262. See also Cropper v. Smith, 26

Ch. D. 711; Shickle v. Lawrence, 2 Times, 776; Steward v. Metro- Rule 304.
politan, etc., 10 Q. B. D. 180; Johnston v. Consumers' Gas Co., 17
 P. R. 297 (see S. C. in P. C., 1898, A. C. 447; 78 L. T. 2701. For Amend-the similar rule in cases where an extension of time is applied for. ^{ment} allowed.
 see notes to Rule 790.

The Court of Appeal in Tildesley v. Harper applied, in respect of an amendment at the trial, the same principles as if the application had been made before trial on motion: see Green v. Sevin, 13 Ch. D. 589, 595.

Where, by a slip in pleading, the legality of a will intended to be impeached was admitted, leave to amend was granted: Smith v. Smith, 5 Ont. 690, 698.

Leave to amend will generally be granted where there has been a slip in pleading, but not, in general, so as to raise a fresh cause of action: Clarke v. Yorke, 31 W. R. 62; 47 L. T. 381; see Budding v. Murdoch, 1 Ch. D. 42; Raleigh v. Goschen, 1898, 1 Ch. 73; 77 L. T. 429.

Leave to amend may be granted, though the proposed amendments set up a case not raised by the claim, and may require an adjournment to obtain fresh evidence: Budding v. Murdoch, 1 Ch. D. 42; see, however, the remarks as to the headnote to that case, Re St. Nazaire Co., 12 Ch. D. at p. 92; Betts v. Doughty, 5 P. D. 26. And leave will in general be granted, on proper terms, so as to enable the real question between the parties to be tried: Laird v. Briggs, 10 Ch. D. 22; Kurtz v. Spence, 36 Ch. D. 770, 773; but see Smith v. Boyd, 18 P. R. 76, 296. See also notes to Rule 312.

Under this Rule, and Rule 312, a plaintiff was allowed to amend his statement of claim in an action on a building contract by increasing the amount claimed for extras, and to amend his reply by changing acceptance into non-acceptance of money paid into Court, the Court being satisfied that the plaintiff had made a mistake, and, on finding it out, had moved with reasonable promptness to correct it, and that no real prejudice was done to the defendant: Chevier v. Ross, 3 O. L. R. 219.

Where leave is necessary and the defendant is out of the jurisdiction, the plaintiff must shew that the amended claim is in respect of a cause of action which would have entitled him, had it been preferred in the first instance, to leave to issue the writ for service out of the jurisdiction: Holland v. Leslie, 1894, 2 Q. B. 334; Hogaboom v. McAlloch, 17 P. R. 377.

A defendant was allowed to amend his defence by setting up the Statute of Limitations as an additional defence: Patterson v. Central Canada L. & S. Co., 17 P. R. 470; and see Williams v. Leonard, 16 P. R. 544; 17 P. R. 73; and Hogaboom v. McAlloch, 17 P. R. 377.

As to setting up the Statute of Frauds, see Elmsley v. Harrison, 17 P. R. 425, 525.

Amendments Refused.—The Court has, however, a discretion as to the amendment: see Ishley v. Taylor, 10 Ch. D. 772; Oates v. Forsters, 4 Ont. 535; and leave was refused at the hearing, where no reason appeared why the bill was not amended when the answer came in: Offord v. Offord, 1 Charl. Cn. (Court) 102; see Louthier v. Heaver, 37 W. R. 55; 50 L. T. 631; and where the effect of allowing an amendment would be to compel the plaintiff to re-assign, and

Rule 304.Amendments
refused.

adduce new evidence: Edevain v. Cohen, 41 Ch. D. 563; 43 Ch. D. 187; or where the added claim would take away a defence, such as of the Statute of Limitations, which had accrued, and would change the substantial rights of the parties: Hudson v. Fernyough, 61 L. T. 722.

Leave was refused, where the Judge thought the amendment would merely enable the defendants to raise, to the plaintiff's title to sue, a technical objection which was not raised on the pleadings (as required by Rule 271), and which the defendant never intended to raise, till he adroitly sought to avail himself of it at the hearing: Collette v. Goode, 7 Ch. D. 842; see also Caughill v. Clark, 11 P. R. 471; Oates v. Forsters, 4 Ont. 335. So also where the proposed amendments were irrelevant: Lever v. Goodwin, W. N. 1887, 107; Wood v. Durham, 21 Q. B. D. 501; Marshall v. Laughon, W. N. 1889, 222; or inconsistent and useless: Central Queensland, etc. v. Gallop, 8 Times, 225; or where the effect would be to raise a new question which would involve an estate in further intricacies, and might more conveniently be raised in a separate action: R. v. Blight v. Hartnoll, 42 L. T. 531; or to convert a claim based on a subsisting lease into one based on an eviction: Newby v. Shaggs, 31 Ch. D. 39; see also Clarke v. Wray, 31 Ch. D. 68; Cropper v. Barnicot, 6 Ch. D. 753; Mellhargey v. McGinnis, in note to R. v. 301; Blackmore v. Edwards, W. N. 1879, 175; 24 Sol. Jour. 17; and where the plaintiff had elected to claim in a manner inconsistent with the proposed amendment: Cargill v. Bowser, 10 Ch. D. 522; Hipgrave v. Case, 28 Ch. D. 356; Lowther v. Heaver, 41 Ch. D. 218; 59 L. T. 630; where a new defence would be raised, after failure of the defence on the record: Sales v. L. Eric, etc., Ry. Co., 17 P. R. 224; Cropper v. Smith, 26 Ch. D. 700; Light v. Hawley, 29 Ont. 25; and where the effect would be to raise a new issue merely to determine how the costs of the action should be borne: Webber v. Wedgwood, W. N. 1883, 8; or to raise a charge of fraud when the case has been launched independently of fraud: Hendricks v. Montagu, 17 Ch. D. 642; Bentley v. Black, 9 Times, 580; Symonds v. City R., 34 W. R. 364; Lever v. Goodwin, supra (but see Riding v. Hawley, 14 P. D. 561; or vice versa; Dunbar v. Meek, 32 C. P. 195; or to raise a defence under a section of the Statute of Frauds which had not been pleaded: James v. Smith, 1891, 1 Ch. 384; or to require the addition of parties, and raise a new case: Nobel's Explosives Co. v. Jones, 17 Ch. D. 721; Edevain v. Cohen, supra; Raligh v. Goshen, 77 L. T. 429; 46 W. R. 92; and were made too late, as where the trial was approaching and the amendment would have the effect of delaying the trial: Tottenham Local Board v. Lea Conservancy Board, 80 L. T. Jour. 244; James v. Smith, supra; Clark v. Wynn, 31 Ch. D. 68.

Where a claim was for specific performance, or damages for breach of an agreement, and the plaintiff, pending the action, re-sold the subject of the contract, notifying the defendant of his intention to do so, but went to trial without amending his claim, it was held that, as he had disabled himself from enforcing specific performance, the action must be dismissed. Leave to amend at that stage by striking out the specific performance claim was not considered proper: Hipgrave v. Case, 28 Ch. D. 356. See also Cropper v. Smith, 26 Ch. D. 700; 10 App. Cas. 249.

In an action for personal injuries, the defendants denied the charge of negligence. After more than six months they proposed to amend by alleging a contract that would transfer the liability to a local body. An action against such local body was required by statute.

to be brought within six months from the accrual of the cause of Rule 305. action. Leave to amend was accordingly refused, as the plaintiff would be irretrievably injured, and could not be restored to the same position as before the defendant's mistake in pleading: Steward v. Metropolitan Tramways Co., 1 Q. B. D. 550. See also Re Gaulard, 57 L. J. Chy. 200.

Though the Court will not allow an amendment for the purpose of setting up an unmeritorious claim or defence, yet the defence of the Statute of Limitations is not considered unmeritorious: Patterson v. Central Canada Loan Co., 17 P. R. 470. See also note to Rule 375.

Terms—"As may be Just."—The terms on which an amendment is allowed are in the discretion of the Court or Judge, according to what the justice of the particular case requires: Woolley v. Broad, 1892, 2 Q. B. 317. The opposite party must not be allowed to be prejudiced: Kurtz v. Spence, 36 Ch. D. 774; and will be given all proper opportunity of meeting new matter: see Budding v. Murdoch, 1 Ch. D. 42, and other cases supra, in which application was made at the trial, or, if a plaintiff, he may have an opportunity given him to consider whether he will discontinue: see Edison Telephone Co. v. India Rubber Co., 17 Ch. D. 137.

Where a plaintiff is allowed to amend at the trial by setting up a new case, the defendant is ex debito justitiæ entitled to put in a defence thereto: Elmsley v. Harrison, 17 P. R. 425, 525, where the Statute of Frauds was allowed to be set up.

The time to amend or deliver a new pleading will vary with each case. Fourteen days was allowed in Planet Building Society v. Part, W. N. 1878, 204; a week in Chesterfield v. Black, 25 W. R. 409; a month in Williamson v. L. & V. W. Railway Co., 12 Ch. D. 787. Where no time is limited by the order, Rule 305 applies.

Costs.—Costs are in the discretion of the Court or Judge: Rule 1130; and are generally awarded so that the opposite party shall not have to bear the expense, either of the motion to amend, if any, or of proceedings rendered unnecessary, such as costs of trial: Chesterfield v. Black, 25 W. R. 409; Cargill v. Rower, 4 Ch. D. 78; King v. Corker, 1 Ch. D. 57; Long v. Crossley, 13 Ch. D. 392; Kurtz v. Spence, 36 Ch. D. 770; Re Gaulard, 57 L. J. Chy. 200; or of pleadings, etc., rendered useless: Dan. Pr., 5th ed., 351-2; the costs may sometimes be reserved to be disposed of when the merits are tried: Roe v. Davies, 2 Ch. D. 729; and Nobel's Explosives Co. v. Jones, 17 Ch. D. 721, in which the costs given to the plaintiffs by the Judge at the trial appear to have included costs of amendments, which apparently were necessary in consequence of disclosures made by defendant's clerk.

305. If a party who has obtained leave to amend does not amend within the time limited by the order, or if no time is limited, within 14 days from the date of the order, the order shall, on the expiration of the time limited, or of the 14 days, as the case may be, become ipso facto void, unless the time is extended by the Court or a Judge. Con. Rule 430.

Same as the Eng. (1883). R. 315, and as Chy. G. O. 83; see Morgan Chy. Orders, 4th ed., 415-17; Dan. Prac., 5th ed., 346.

Rules
306-308.How alterations to be made.

306. A pleading may be amended by written alterations in the copies filed and served, and by additions on paper to be interleaved therewith if necessary; unless the amendment require the insertion of more than 200 words in any one place, or are so numerous or of such a nature that making them in the copies filed and served would render the same difficult or inconvenient to read; in either of which cases the amendment shall be made by delivering a re-print or fresh copy of the pleadings as amended. Con. Rule 431.

Substantially the same as the Eng. (1883) R. 310.

The number of words mentioned in the Eng. R., viz.: 144, make two folios according to the English mode of computation by which a folio is 72 words.

In John v. Lloyd, L. R. 1 Chy. 64, it was held that, though amendments to a bill did not in any place exceed two folios, the Clerk of Records and Writs had discretion to refuse to file the bill without a reprint, if the amendments were numerous and complicated.

Marking of amended
pleadings.

307.—(1) Where a pleading is amended, it shall be marked with the date of the order, if any, under which the same is so amended, and of the day on which such amendment is made, in manner following, viz.: "Amended day of under order dated day of ."

Same as Eng. (1883) R. 317.

(2) The amendment shall be written or interlined in ink of a different colour from that used in the original pleading. Con. Rule 432. amended.

These directions apply to the copy filed, but an omission to similarly mark the copy of the amended pleading, delivered under Rule 308, is unimportant: Hammer v. Clifton, 1894, 1 Q. B. 238; 10 R. 55.

Delivery of amended pleadings.

308. The amended pleading shall be delivered to the opposite party within the time allowed for amending the same. Con. Rule 433.

Same as the Eng. (1883) R. 318.

This would seem only to apply to amendments made before trial. Where amendments are made at the trial under Rule 314, it is not usual, or necessary, to deliver the amended pleading.

1. EFFECT OF NON-COMPLIANCE AND ERRORS.

309. A proceeding shall not be defeated by any formal ^{Formal} objection. ^{objections,} Con. Rule 441.

Taken from R. S. O. 1877, c. 49, s. 7.

310. Unless the Court or a Judge so directs, non-compliance with the Rules shall not render the writ or any act or proceeding void, but the same may be set aside, either wholly or in part, as irregular, or amended, or otherwise dealt with, as to the Court or Judge may seem just. Con. Rule 442.

To the same effect as Eng. (1883) R. 1037.

"Otherwise Dealt With."—For the manner in which these words were applied or construed by Kay, J., see Reynolds v. Coleman, 36 Ch. D. 458.

Proceedings not Curable.—Service of a writ of summons instead of a notice, on a foreigner abroad (see Rule 165) is a nullity: Hevittson v. Fabre, 21 Q. B. D. 6; and service of a writ without shewing the original when demanded: Phillipson v. Emanuel, 56 L.

Rule 310.

Proceedings not curable.

T. 858. and service on a wrong person, whether void or only irregularities, have been held to be not remediable. The service will be set aside: Ib.; Nelson v. Pastorino, 49 L. T. 564.

As to the difference between an irregularity and a nullity: see further Hoffman v. Crerar, 18 P. R. 473; 19 P. R. 15.

"If unwarranted by any enactment or Rule it (the joinder in one action of several plaintiffs having different causes of action) is in my opinion more than an irregularity": per Lord Herschell, in Smurthwaite v. Hannay, 1894, A. C. 501.

A writ purporting to be issued out of the District Court of Thunder Bay and Rainy River, after the district of Rainy River had been created a separate provisional judicial district, was held to be a nullity and not curable by amendment: Hevigill v. Chadwick, 18 P. R. 359.

A judgment purporting to be signed under Rule 575, but not properly so, the writ not having been specially indorsed, is a nullity: Hoffman v. Crerar, 18 P. R. 473; 19 P. R. 15; Appleby v. Turner, 19 P. R. 145, 175.

A judgment irregularly signed is not a matter which can be remedied under this Rule: Anlaby v. Pretorius, 20 Q. B. D. 764; the defendant has a right to have it set aside: Ib.; Voight B. Co. v. Orth, 5 O. L. R. 443.

Defects in proceedings taken under an Act of Parliament cannot be overlooked: see Lawsen v. Can. Farmers, etc., 9 P. R. 309; Re Ostrom and Sidney, 15 Ont. App. 372; Smith v. Baker, 2 H. & M. 500.

See also Ferrand v. Mayor of Bradford, 8 D. M. & G. 93.

Proceedings curable

Irregularities Curable.—Where short notice of motion had been irregularly given, but the opposite party had not been injured by the irregularity, the Court exercised its discretion under this Rule, disregarded the irregularity, and heard the motion: Dawson v. Beeson, 22 Ch. D. 504; see also Williams v. De Boinville, 17 Q. B. D. 180; Re Coulton, 34 Ch. D. 22. In Re McRae, 25 Ch. D. 19, it was held that objection to a short notice of an appeal was waived by appearing upon it.

An irregularity may be condoned, in the discretion of the Court, even on a motion for attachment: Petty v. Daniel, 34 Ch. D. 172; Litchfield v. Jones, 25 Ch. D. 64; see Re Pilcher, Pilcher v. Hindes, 11 Ch. D. 905; Re Evans, 1893, 1 Ch. 252; 68 L. T. 271. It was said in Taylor v. Roe, 68 L. T. 213, that the Court will not condone a direct non-compliance with the Rules upon an application affecting the liberty of the subject: but see Rendell v. Grundy, 1895, 1 Q. B. 16, 21.

The following irregularities have not been allowed to prevail to defeat a proceeding: The non-service of affidavits with notice of motion to set aside an award: Re Wyggeston Hospital v. Stevenson, 33 W. R. 551; or with a notice of motion for attachment (see Eng. (1883) R. 699); Rendall v. Grundy, supra; or with an application under The Overholding Tenants Act: Re Dewar & Dumas, 8 O. L. R. 141; the service of a writ out of the jurisdiction without the indorsement given in the N. B. (Form 2), and issued upon an order granted without an affidavit being filed under Rule 163; Dickson v. Law, 1895, 2 Ch. 62; service of a writ omitting the address of plaintiff's solicitor: Hoerter v. Hanover Casutchow, etc., 10 Times, 22.

103; date of service not indorsed under Rule 150; Steers v. Rogers, Rule 311. Times, 183; Foat v. Bassett, W. N. 1888, 255; service of petition instead of summons: Re Bethlehem and Bridewell Hospitals, 30 C. D. 541; Re Stafford's Charity, 57 L. T. 846.

See Taylor v. Delaney, 3 O. L. R. 380, supra, p. 131.

Waiver.—Irregularities may be waived by appearance: Re McCrac, 25 Ch. D. 19; see also notes to Rule 169; but not necessarily where the liberty of the subject is affected: Mander v. Falcke, 1891, 3 Ch. 488; Taylor v. Roe, 68 L. T. 213; Rendell v. Grundy, 1895, 1 Q. B. 16, 21; nor where the appearance is merely to take the objection to the regularity of the proceedings. see Mander v. Falcke, 1891, 3 Ch. 488; Firth v. De las Rivas, 1893, 1 Q. B. 768; 60 L. T. 383.

See also notes to Rules 311, and 362.

A nullity cannot be waived by any act of the party against whom it has been taken, nor by lapse of time: Hoffman v. Cregar, 18 P. R. 473, 19 P. R. 15; Appleby v. Turner, 19 P. R. 145, 175.

311. An application to set aside process or proceedings for irregularity shall be made within a reasonable time, and shall not be allowed if the party applying has taken a fresh step after knowledge of the irregularity. Con. Rule 443.

Irregularity, motion to set aside proceedings to be made promptly.

The same in effect as Eng. (1883) R. 1038.

If an objection can be waived, it amounts to an irregularity, if not, it is a nullity: Bank of Upper Canada v. Van Voorish, 4 U. C. L. J. 232. The tendency of the cases is to consider defects as irregularities, rather than nullities: Herr v. Douglas, 4 P. R. 102. A stranger cannot set aside proceedings for irregularity: Perrin v. Bores, 5 U. C. L. J. 138; Balfour v. Ellison, 8 U. C. L. J. 330; McKenzie v. Harris, 10 U. C. L. J. 213; Nicholls v. Nicholls, 3 P. R. 201; see, however, Bonistiel v. McMaster, 6 O. S. 32; unless they are, in effect, fraudulent: McDonald v. Boice, 12 Gr. 48; and see Martin v. Boulanger, 8 App. Cas. 296. See also notes to Rule 310.

The notice of motion must specify the irregularity: Rule 362.

A writ joining causes of action which under former Rule 341 (now abrogated), could not be joined without leave, was held to be an irregularity, and appearance to such a writ was a "fresh step," within this Rule; and a defendant who appeared, instead of applying to strike out the irregularity, could not insist upon it: Mulkern v. Doerks, 51 L. T. 429; 53 L. J. Q. B. 526; Re Derbon, 36 W. R. 667; see, however, Hunt v. Worsfold, 1896, 2 Ch. 224; 74 L. T. 456, where North. J., refused to follow Mulkern v. Doerks, supra, considering it to have been overruled by Smurthwaite v. Hannay, 1894, A. C. 494; 71 L. T. 457.

See also Fry v. Moore, 23 Q. B. D. 375, and Boyle v. Sacker, 39 Ch. D. 249, in notes to Rule 162, p. 298; and Tozier v. Hawkins, 15 Q. B. D. 650.

An order setting aside proceedings must be served promptly, or it will be deemed to have been abandoned: Molsons Bank v. Dillabaugh, 13 P. R. 313.

Rule 312.

But where a Divisional Court sets aside the judgment at the trial, and orders a new trial, delay in issuing the order cannot be set up as a waiver by either party: Kelly v. Wade, 14 P. R. 66. There is a distinction in this respect between interlocutory orders, and judgments or orders going to the merits of the action: Id.; see also Re Leshe, 23 Ont. 143.

Where, on the return of a motion, an enlargement is granted for the purpose of remedying an objection to the regularity of the proceedings, and the motion is afterwards heard and disposed of on the merits, the objection to the regularity of the proceedings is not open on appeal: Rendell v. Grundy, 1895, 1 Q. B. 16.

2. AMENDMENTS.

Amendment of defects or errors.

312. The Court or a Judge may at any time amend any defect or error in any proceedings; and all such amendments may be made as are necessary for [the advancement of justice,] determining the real matter in dispute, [and best calculated to secure the giving of judgment according to the very right and justice of the case]. Con. Rule 444.

The words in brackets are not in the Eng. (1883) R. 309, and are taken substantially from R. S. O. 1877, c. 49, ss. 7, 8; ib. c. 50, s. 270, which were the enactments of The Administration of Justice Act, 1873, (36 Vict. c. 8, s. 50).

The first clause of this Rule differs from the Eng. R. of 1883.

This Rule is in regard to amendment of defects and errors generally, and is supplemental to Rule 208, respecting amendment of pleadings, and Rule 640, respecting clerical errors and slips.

Under The Administration of Justice Act, 1873 (36 Vict. c. 8), it was held that if the Court comes to the conclusion that an amendment is "necessary for the advancement of justice, the prevention and redress of fraud, the determination of the rights and interests of the respective parties, and of the real question in controversy between them, and best calculated to secure the giving of judgment according to the very right and justice of the case," the granting or refusing of the amendment ceases practically to be a matter of discretion: Peterkin v. McFarlane, 4 Ont. App. 45; Gilleland v. Wadsworth, 1 Ont. App. 82.

The Court is required by this Rule to allow any amendment which is "necessary for the determining the real matter in dispute," provided also it is for the "advancement of justice," in which is included justice to the opposite party.

In Cropper v. Smith, 26 Ch. D. at p. 710, Bowen, L. J., said:—"I know of no kind of error or mistake which, if not fraudulent or intended to over-reach, the Court ought not to correct, if it can be done without injustice to the other party. . . . Courts do not exist for the sake of discipline, but for the sake of deciding matters in controversy, and I do not regard such an amendment as a matter of favour or of grace. . . . It seems to me that as soon as it appears that the way in which a party has framed his case will not lead to the decision of the real matter in controversy, it is as much a matter of right on his part to have it corrected, if it can be done without injustice, as anything else in the case is a matter of right. Rule 312.

 . . . The question seems to me to be this, can you by the imposition of any terms place the other side in as good a position for the purpose of having the question of right determined as they were in at the time when the mistake of judgment was committed? It does not seem to me material to consider whether the mistake of judgment was accidental or not, if not intended to over-reach." The other L.J.J. do not seem to have agreed with these observations so far as they include a mistake of judgment, and they refused leave to amend on the ground that the party had deliberately chosen a course inconsistent with that afterwards sought to be taken by amendment; but see Ecklin v. Little, 34 Sol. Jour. 516; see also Kartv. v. Spencer, 34 Ch. D. 774; Collette v. Goode, 7 Ch. D. at p. 847; Laird v. Briggs, 19 Ch. D. 22, 29.

In Ontario it has been held that an amendment may be allowed under this Rule at any stage of the proceedings before final judgment, wherever any prejudice it may occasion to the opposite party can be compensated by costs: Williams v. Leonard, 16 P. R. 544; 17 P. R. 72.

Under this Rule, a plaintiff who had by his pleading accepted money paid into Court by the defendant, was allowed to amend by withdrawing the acceptance and substituting a refusal to accept; and where he had claimed too little, he was allowed to increase his claim by amendment: Chevalier v. Ross, 3 O. L. R. 219.

Amendment of Writs of Summons:—

Amendment of writ.

An order to amend has been held to be necessary, even though the writ has been served: per Lush. J., Anon., 60 L. T. Jour. 32; 1 Chnrl. 34; and this decision has been followed by Mr. Dalton in Waters; see Globe, 6th Oct., 1881, and Form 112 (H. & L. Forms, 10. 467); see contra under the former practice, Worthington v. Boulton, 6 P. R. 98.

When a statement of claim has been delivered, containing an extension of the claim made by the writ, an amendment of the indorsement on the writ seems to be unnecessary: Large v. Large, W. N. 1877, 98; Johnson v. Palmer, 4 C. P. D. 262; and now Rule 244. See under the previous practice, Conybeare v. Lewis, W. N. 1881, 31; 44 L. T. 242; 29 W. R. 391; Re Jones, Eyre v. Cox, 24 W. R. 317.

An action may, by amendment of the writ and statement of claim, be turned into an information without prejudice to a pending motion in the action, the necessary sanction of the Attorney-General being obtained: Caldwell v. Pagham Harbour Reclamation Company, 2 Ch. D. 221.

An amendment of the indorsement on the writ by increasing the amount claimed was allowed after verdict: The Dictator, 1892, P. 64; 66 L. T. 863; and see Wyatt v. Rosherville, 2 Times, 282; Chattell v. Daily Mail, 18 Times, 165; and other cases in notes to Rule 304, p. 516.

A writ of summons served out of Ontario may like any other writ be amended, but, it would seem, not so as to introduce any claim in respect of which service out of Ontario would not be allowed under Rule 162; see Holland v. Leslie, 1894, 2 Q. B. 346.

Rule 312.

Where a writ has been amended, the amended writ must be served. If the writ had been served and the time for appearance had elapsed, and the defendant has not appeared, it would seem that the service may be in the manner mentioned in Rule 330, at least in a case where no new claim, but only an amplification of the original one, is made: Re Hartley, 1891, 2 Ch. 121; 64 L. T. 786; Jamaica Ry. Co. v. Colonial Bank, 1905, 1 Ch. 677. There is no hard and fast rule that an amended writ must be served personally on a defendant who has not appeared: Ib.; or the writ may be served in the same way as the original was served: The Cassiopeia, 4 P. D. 188 (where a new claim was introduced); Guess v. Perry, 12 P. R. 460 (where a claim for damages was struck out by amendment); see also Bryans v. Hughes, 14 L. R. Ir. 62. The Court in its discretion may direct personal service, if the amendment has been a substantial one, and there might be danger of injustice if the absent defendant were not notified personally: Jamaica Ry. v. Col. Bank, supra. If the defendant has appeared it would seem to be sufficient to serve his solicitor with the amended writ; but see Rules 146 and 329.

Where a statement of claim has been delivered and it is amended it will not in general be necessary to amend and re-serve the writ. It will be sufficient to serve the amended pleading: see Rules 300 and 306, and notes.

Irregularities in a writ of summons may be amended either on motion by the plaintiff, or leave to amend may be granted where the defendant moves to set aside the writ. The following irregularities have been allowed to be amended:—A writ signed by a Process Clerk issued after the appointment of his successor: Stevenson v. Williams, 7 P. R. 358; a writ issued without the signature of the proper officer: Labadie v. Darling, 7 P. R. 355; a writ tested in the name of a retired Chief Justice after the appointment of his successor had been gazetted, but before he had taken the oath: Nelson v. Roy, 3 P. R. 226; a writ tested in the name of a Lord Chancellor after his resignation and the appointment of his successor: Pleasants v. East Dereham, etc., 47 L. T. 439; a mistake in the date in the teste as "eighty—" for "eighty-two": Wesson v. Stalker, 48 L. T. 444. But the absence from the Province of the Judge in whose name writs are tested does not render it improper to teste a writ in his name: Brett v. Smith, 1 P. R. 309.

An amendment was not allowed where it would defeat the Statute of Limitations: Hudson v. Fernyhough, 61 L. T. 722; S. C. 88 L. T. Jour. 253, in appeal; but see Challinor v. Roder, infra.

The plaintiff will have to pay the costs of an amendment of the writ.

Amendments of Pleadings.—See notes to Rule 304.

Amendments Respecting the Parties are treated of in Rules 206, 304, 312 and 313.

Amendments which require the addition of parties as well as the restatement of allegations in pleadings are made by the combined action of Rule 206, and Rule 312, or 298: Ashley v. Taylor, 10 Ch. D. 772; Secar v. Lawson, 16 Ch. D. 121.

Misnomer.

Where a person was intended to be sued as an executor, but by mistake was misnamed in the writ, an amendment was allowed substituting the true name of the defendant intended to be sued, notwithstanding that in the meantime the Statute of Limitations would, but for such amendment, have been a defence to the action against such party: Challinor v. Roder, 1 Times, 527.

Amendment after Judgment.—The writ of summons and subsequent proceedings may, in a proper case, be amended after judgment to correct some defect or error: Clarke v. Cooper, 15 P. R. 54; see Wilgoss v. Crawford, Id. 638; but the judgment in such case must be vacated and proceedings taken afresh from the point at which the defect occurred; 15 P. R. 54; and see formerly Barrett v. Gardner, 1 Chy. Ch. 344; Laurason v. Buckley, 2 Chy. Ch. 334; Park of Montreal v. Power, 2 Chy. Ch. 47; and any such amendment will probably be only of defects and errors, not of pleadings or as to parties necessitating re litigation: see Durham v. Robertson, 1898, 1 Q. B. 774. Thus where the judgment was in favour of the defendant, an amendment reconstituting the suit by adding the Attorney-General, and turning the action into an information and action, was refused: Johnston v. Consumers' Gas Co., 17 P. R. 297; and see Durham v. Robertson, supra.

An amendment made affecting a person not a party, was, at his instance, rescinded: Glass v. Cameron, 9 Ont. 712.

Amendment of Slips, etc.—See as to the correction of slips, omissions, or clerical errors, generally, Rule 640; and as to clerical errors in reports and certificates of Masters, notes to Rule 702.

A notice of motion which did not shew any interest in the relator as required by R. S. O. c. 223, s. 221, was held amendable: Reg. ex rel., Percy v. Worth, 23 Ont. 688.

Where judgment had been pronounced for sale of property as described in a claim, but afterwards it was discovered to have been mis-described, the claim was by consent of all parties amended, and the judgment post-dated, so as to appear to have been made after the amendment: Winkley v. Winkley, 44 L. T. 572; 29 W. R. 628. In general, however, an order ought not to bear a fictitious date: Ashley v. Taylor, 10 Ch. D. 773.

A notice of motion in a quo warranto proceeding in which there was a discrepancy between the day of the week and the day of the month mentioned as that on which it was returnable, was amended in accordance with a notice subsequently given stating the day on which the motion would be brought on: Rex ex rel. Roberts v. Ponsford, 3 O. L. R. 410.

313. Where an action has been commenced in the name of the wrong person as plaintiff, or where it is doubtful whether it has been commenced in the name of the right plaintiff, the Court or a Judge, if satisfied that it has been so commenced through a bona fide mistake and that it is necessary for the determination of the real matter in dispute so to do, may, [subject to clause (3) of Rule 206], order any other person to be substituted or added as plaintiff, upon such terms as may seem just. Con. Rule 445.

Same as the Eng. (1883) R. 124, except the words in brackets.

Actions have been inadvertently brought by the wrong person, as by cestui que trust, instead of trustee; by mortgagor, instead of mortgagee. The same mistake has been made where it was matter of real difficulty to say which of the two persons ought to sue, as in the Substitution and addition of plaintiffs.

Rule 313. case of contracts made by agents, as to which it is sometimes a question of much nicety to determine who ought to sue. Previous to The Administration of Justice Act, 1873, in Ontario, and until the Judicature Acts in England, though the Common Law Courts had the largest powers of adding parties, or amending mis-descriptions of parties, they had no power to substitute one plaintiff for another, such as this Rule confers: see De Gendie v. Bogardus, L. R. 7 C. P. 409.

Substitution and addition of plaintiff.

Where an action has through a bonâ fide mistake been commenced in the name of the wrong person as plaintiff the fact that the original plaintiff has no cause of action, does not take away the jurisdiction of the Court to order the substitution of another person as plaintiff: Hughes v. Pump House Hotel Co. (No. 2), 1902, 2 K. B. 485; 87 L. T. 359.

An application under this Rule can only be made by a plaintiff: Clares v. Hilliard, 4 Ch. D. 413; and is restricted to cases where a bonâ fide mistake has occurred, which has been discovered after action brought: as where a new partner was brought into a firm before the dealing in question: but it is not intended to confer upon the Judge unlimited discretion to re-model the proceedings: per Mellor, J., in Turquand v. Fearon, 4 Q. B. D. at p. 282. In Smith v. Heslitt, W. N. 1875, 250; 1 Chanc. Ch. Ca. 56, Huddleston, B., said: "You have to satisfy me of two things: 1st, that there has been a bonâ fide mistake in the issue of the writ; and 2d, that it is a necessary change." See also Clares v. Hilliard, 4 Ch. D. 413.

In an action by assignees of insolvents, the Judge at the trial held that the claim sued for did not pass, under the circumstances, to the assignees. The defendants having been given time during the sittings to ascertain whether they had any defence to a suit by the insolvents, the latter were added under this Rule as plaintiffs, and judgment was given in their favour, but without costs: Woodward v. Shields, 32 C. P. 282; but see Durham v. Robertson, 1898, 1 Q. B. 774. See also Emden v. Carte, 17 Ch. D. 169.
