"Toronto is facing heavy shortage in homes of all kinds" is the feature announcement in an evening paper. "The demand is for moderate-priced houses, but all kinds are pretty scarce."

Knocking for High Rents

The house famine is directly connected with the congested traffic situation. The people cannot get sufficiently speedy access to the ocalities where cheaper houses could be had.

All the proposals to remedy this state of affairs are opposed by newspaper crowd headed by The Globe and The Telegram. The World will not say that they are playing the traction interests' game, but they are decidedly not playing the people's game. They object to the annexation of North Toronto, where cheaper houses could be had, and civic car lines on streets parallel to Yonge-street would give single-fare rapid transit. The Bloor-Danforth viaduct would open up territory sufficient for 100,000 people, where cheap land over the Don awaits settlement, but The Globe and The Telegram and their friends have obstructed this proposal for years.

Mr. Maclean suggested to the mayor that a great measure of religi could be obtained by asking for a suburban service on the steam railways, such as is furnished in every other city of the size of Toronto. This plan is also frowned upon by the two Melinda-street knockers. Anything that will tend to help the people to cheaper land and cheaper homes, fresher air, pleasanter traveling conditions and healthfer surroundings is knocked by the knockers.

Democrats Are Shocked By Governor Wilson's Cold-Blooded "Break"

Editor of Harper's Weekly, Political Godfather of Ex-Schoolmaster, Grievously Wounded by Latter's Lack of Tact in Refusing Support of That Journal-Will Lose the Governor the Presidential Nomination.

United States political circles, particularly within the Democratic party, ave been deeply stirred by the disclosure of what lay behind the sudden the strong presidential boom made by Harper's Weekly on behalf of Governor Woodrow Wilson of New Jersey.. Colonel Harvay, its editor, was among the first to urge the governor's entrance into public life, and after his election to the governorship to advocate his selection as Democratic

This was done with an insistence that made the complete disappearance of the governor's name from the columns of Harper's Weskly more than a day's wonder. Everyone recognized that something must have happened, but what it was remained a secret for the moment. Asked about the disappearance, the governor issued a statement to the effect that his attention had, "of course, been called to the fact that the last two numbers of Harper's. have made no mention of my name. But that is certainly not due to any breach of any kind between Colonel Harvey and myself. Colonel Harvey runs Harper's Weekly entirely on his own judgment. This statement, it now appears, was to some extent disingenuous. Im nediately before the disappearance of his name, Governor Wilson had an interview with Colonel Harvey, and Colonel Henry Watterson, editor of The Louisville Courier-Journal, the well-known couthern Democrat, in the latter's apartment at the Manhattan Club, in New York, for the purpose of considering certain practical measures relating to Covernor Wilson's candidacy. Colonel Watterson, after receiving statements from Colonel Harvey actually happen at the interview, found they did not materially differ and coincided with his own recollection. On Thursday morning Colonel Watterson's version of the story was published and revealed the fact that the governor was personally desirous that Harper's Weekly should cease from its support of his presidential candidture. Col. Watterson says that during the interview, which lasted more than an hour, nothing of a discourteous kindeven of an unfriendly kind-passed. "From the first, however," he proceeds, Governor Wilson'es manner, the absence of the cordiality and candor which should mark hearty, confidential intercourse, intimating the existence of some adverse influence.

"His manner was autocratic, if not tyrannous. I did not take this to myself, but thought it related to Colonel Harvey, and when Colonel Harvey, apparently overcome by Governor Wilson's austerity, put the direct question to Governor Wilson whether the support of Harper's Weekly was doing him an injury and received from Governo Wilson the cold rejoiner that it kas, I was both surprised and shocked."

When the Canadian Pacific Railway resolved to locate its great car and locomotive shops five miles from Calgary it gave that rapidly expanding western city a tremendous impetus. Alive to the importance of the move, F. C. Not one of the Turks moved a muscle. The electric light fell in blonde waves on the outspread treasures. Shafts of light sparkled and went out, blazed forth anew and crossed each other obliquely. The glittering whole made an enormous prismatic scintillation, which flamed and twisted like a veritable fire. What splendor!"

M. Richepin, hypnotized, put forth his hands and bathed them in the flashing rays. Bending forward, he caressed the cold stones, remembering as he did so that in the days of his power Abdul Hamid loved to sit for hours, plunging his hands among the gems. Then, carried away by his emo tion, the poet apostrophized the stones as if they imprisoned some capricious fairy of grace and light. "I was," he said, "like one laboring under an hallucination . Ottawa Valley Lumber Has Serious Shortage

Supply 100,000,000 Feet Less Than Last Year-Main Reasons Are Low Water and Labor Shortage.

OTTAWA, Jan. 20,4"The Ottawa Valley lumber cut was about 100,000,-000 feet short of 1910 total," stated a prominent lumber man to-day.

Whe production during 1911 hardly. xceeds 450,000,000 feet," he went on, while the previous year had 550,000;-000 feet to its credit." The main reason for the shortage was the low water on the Ottawa River. This necessitated the shutting down of some mills earlier than usual, and previous to that, a curtailed run ning, as the water power gradually diminished.

diminished.

The shortage of labor, however, must also be credited with a share in the diminished production. The larger firms, such as Booth's, had serious trouble at the height of the season in keeping their full compliment of employees at even increased wages.

The cutleok for 1912, however, is said to be much better than for the past white. Logging operations, while devaluyed somewhat this winter, are now well under way; and about the same number of logs will be taken out as last year.

Earl of Carlisle Dead. LONDON, Jan. 20.—George James Howard, ninth Earl of Carlisle, died today. He was born on August 12, 1843, and succeeded to the title in 1889. He represented East Cumberland in parliament as a Liberal during 1879-80 and 1881-85.

CRACKED FINGERS.

During cold, dry wintry weather, when east winds prevail, cracked fingers are a source of annoyance to many. The skin on the end of the fingers, or more commonly the thumb, becomes rough and then cracks, sometimes forming a deep, cut-like fissure with hard edges which will not come together. These edges are liable to be caught and torn still further open in the course of work, and certain occupations, such as sewing, may be rendered quite impossible. These cracks are difficult to heal, and the best way is to prevent their appearance by applying a few drops of gly, cerine daily after washing all thruthe cold weather. When the skin of the fingers or thumbs is much hardened it should be rubbed with pumice stone, as this will render it less liable to crack. When the trouble has already made its appearance, glycerine, ready made its appearance, glycerine, lanoline, or ordinary mutton fat should be well rnbbed in, and a finger stall should be be constantly worn. The hands should not be washed oftener-than need be, and always well dried after the washing.

The production of fruit for export was increased during the last year about one-third, the total shipments reaching in value over $2,000,000, a matter worth note since this is practically a new industry in Forto Rice, dating as a fact of commercial importance from 1900.

In tobacco and sugar the two leading industries of the island, notable increases during the year are recorded. About 25 per cent. of the tobacco crop is shipped in the leaf, while the remainder is sold in manufactured form. The growth of this industry may be judged from the fact, that 276,000,000 cigars were manufactured in 1311, or 31,000,000 more than were made in the praceding year.

York Geographical Society Awaiting Word From British Antarctic Expedition.

NEW YORK, Jan. 20 .- Officials of the graphical Society and various simi-organizations interested in polar lar organizations interested in polar explorations are eagerly awaiting word from Capt. Robert Falcon Scott, who expected to reach the South Pole on Christmas Day, and they believe that when he announces the result of his British Antarctic expedition, it will be to say that his quest was successful. Lieut. Shackleton of the British Navy, reached the farthest south on Jan. 9, 1909, ninety-seven geographical Jan. 9, 1909, ninety-seven geographical miles away from his objective point, and then turned back only because he and then turned back only because he ran short of provisions.

Capt. Scott had 750 miles to cover from his winter quarters to reach the South Pole. His journey consisted of a dash across the comparatively level ice to the ice barrier, then up the glacier side to the plateau, some ten thousand feet above sea level, and then to the pole.

sand feet above sea level, and then to the pole.

The Scott expedition was outfitted as no other exploration party was equipped before. The British Government subscribed $100,000 to the fund, and the British public contributed an equal sum. Accompanying him, in addition to a picked crew, were five lieutenants of the royal navy, two surgeons and three biologists.

Three motor sledges were carried in the hold of his vessel, seventy tons of provisions, 130 dogs and 30 Siberian ponies.

OXYPATHOR COMPANY EXPAND OFFICES

Another Concern For North Yonge-

The Ontario Oxypathor Company, Jerome P. Owen, Mgr., have moved their offices from the McKinnon Building to 701 Yonge-street, which premises they have leased for a term

Owing to the Oxypathor being better known each day as a cure for disease this company was obliged to seek larger quarters.

The main floor of their new building is devoted to store and reception rooms, while the two upper floors are arranged for offices, stock and shipping rooms.

Smith & Wood are the authorized agerts for Toronto and vicinity, and would be glad to have any one interested in the use of the Oxypather as a cure for disease without drugs call on them at 701 Yonge-street and have it explained. See the advertisement in this issue.

"The Servant in the House"

"The Servant in the House," which comes to the Princess Theatre for one week, comencing Jan. 29, with matinee Wednesday and Saturday.

Mr. Power is a man of enormous

Mr. Power is a man of enormous temperament, enormous pedsonality, enormous gusto—and he has a mind. Thus equipped, he is able to enact not only the Robert of the blistering epithet and the mood of revolt, the Robert who Toars forth his hatred of the bloomin' world, but to interject amid the torrent of imprecation that brief, sobbing recollection of the books and the mortar boards, and the bits of clothes whereby the clever brother should be made respectable—"Cos why?

Cos we was proud of the little brother!—proud of 'is 'eadpiece!" The resentment of sympathy, followed by the unfolding of the cramped, bruised soul folding of the cramped, bruised soul to Mansen, the instinctive repelling of the Bishop of Lancashire as being a bad, greedy, heartless old shuffler, and the slow awakening of the spirit at the sound of Manson's apostrophe to the comrades—these are mounting notes in a spiritual change that Mr. notes in a spiritual change that Mr. I'ower seems fairly to live. That he does, in truth, project his own tempestuous soul and yital intelligence into them with a passionate sincerity was indicated to the writer very eloquently last Wednesday afternoon, when he occupied an upper box at Powers' that affords a diagonal view of the stage. of the stage. From every other person the actor's face must have been hidden, for his back was all but squared to the audience. And yet his countenance was working with the stress of Robert's slow comprehension of what Manson's words about the comrades meant to the outcast. It was a fleeting and perhaps hardly intended demonstration of the artist-feeling that compels a great actor to envelop himself and submerge himself in his part whether anybody is going to applaud him for a particular stroke of detail or not. This actor's eyes were drinking in the words; with his lips he was silently following them; he

he was silently following them; he was living the scene.
Viewing this masterly portrayal as a whole, one capitulates rather tamely to the prodigious force of its opening notes and to the tender appeal of the scenes with the child, and analysis is baffled. The words of Mr. Hall, when he said "Tyrone Power is a very great actor," and spoke of "the blazing light of this actor's genius," strikes one as saying all that requires to be said.

vanished. The Madonna takes upon herself the duties and the work of Sacristan, and the first act is done.

The intermezzo tells how the knight is met and killed by a robber-count, who takes the nun to his ribald board and makes her dance upon the table for the guests' amusement.

Scene of debauchery the kings son breaks and wins the girl by the cast of the die. He in turn is killed by the king, his father, who also succumps of the die. He in turn is killed by the king, his father, who also succumbs to the charms of the nun's dancing. And thru it all, fantastic and weird, grotesque and gruesome, the piper leads her on with his fateful instrument. She is tried by the inquisition, rescued by the populace, only to be thrown from hand to hand and to sink to a miserable state of degredation, until she is seen dragging her wasted body in the trail of a marauding army—a despised camp-follower.

Mun's Hardships of the struggle thru the snow, exhausted, with the hardships of the struggle thru the snow, exhausted, with the blapy at her breast and the Spellmann, at her heels, she breaks away and totters back to the cathedral, where the Virgin, having dropped veil and scapula, has resumed her gorgeous vestment and mounted her throne—a statue once again. Spent with the flight, the nun swoons, and on the frosty air without is born the lowely strain of the "Adeste fideles." "Come. all ye faithful" is wafted into the cathedral and the nun awakes—to find her child dead. The wretched woman, rent with grief and sorrow, takes the dead infant to the altar steps and lays it at the feet of the statue.

Revification.

Once more the Virgin returns to life, and resumes her immobility. The nun, awaking from another swoon, is gladdened by the sight of her veil and scapula on the steps where she has left them when she set out for the left them when she set out for th

National Chorus

The National Chorus, under Dr. Albert Ham, gave, without exception, the most successful concert in its history last Thursday evening at Massey Hall, when the large auditorium was filled with most enthusiastic admirers of this famous Toronto chorus. The singers, two, displayed great enthusiasm and excellent discipline. The several sections were well balanced, the intonation, was pure, the execution fluent, with an attractive crispness in the rhythm and surety of attack that gave marked evidence of most skilful and careful training. The first numbers were "Why Rage Fiercely the Heathen," Mendelssohn, for double choir. "A Morning Song of Praise," filled with most enthusiastic admirers choir, "A Morning Song of Praise," Bruch, which served to reveal the fine

Infantile Paralysis in its acute form is a malady that attacks the spinal marrow and affects the brain. If the fever is not promptly checked and the disease controlled, sudden and complete paralysis of various muscles takes place, causing these to liquefy and shrivel up.

Deformity follows because the circulation through the affected part or parts has been partially shut off, and these shriveled parts do not get a sufficiency of vitalizing blood to nourish them.

In the midst of medical indecision and uncertainty that exists today it is a source of comfort and mental relief to the ever-anxious mother to know that she has in the OXYPATHOR a drugless, safe, reliable cure for Infantile Paralysis.

No fever can resist the curative action of the OXYPATHOR. It is its complete and supreme master?

Take for example a little child in the first stage of Infantile Paralysis with a very high fever. The child vomits, is sick at the stomach. Malnutrition is the cause—gas the result. Swiftly does this gas filter into the system. It finds its way into the circulation, where it is transformed into an acid. The child's extremities become cold—no circulation—while inwardly it is burning with fever. The blood lacks the oxygen it needs at this time to combat and overcome the poisons in the child's circulation, and the high fever is Nature's call for more oxygen.

This call for more oxygen can be answered in but one safe and sure way. Apply an OXYPATHOR to the child, and usually in 20 or 30 minutes a most profuse perspiration will break out. The pores of the child's skin, which before seemed to be sealed, are now open and discharging great quantities of waste and poisons. The OXYPATHOR will keep up this sweating process until the blood is entirely purged of its poisons. Furthermore, the OXYPATHOR is always ready, day or night, for instant use—no fatal delays waiting for the doctor.

The OXYPATHOR makes you independent of doctors and drugs forever—it is Nature's way of healing, therefore the safest and surest way. The diseases that are successfully treated by the OXYPATHOR are almost unlimited in number and kind. They rank from the most simple to the most severe.

Give us an opportunity to prove to your satisfaction every statement we make. Your investigation places you under no obligations. We simply desire to acquaint you with the facts—your judgment and conscience will decide in favor of the OXYPATHOR.

Society at the Capital

All Saints' Church was on Wednesday afternoon the scene of a large ashionable and most interesting wedding when Miss Lilian Daintry, second daughter of the late John Daintry, Esq., and Mrs. Daintry of "The Poplars," Co-bourg, became the wife of Mr. Sam Mc-Dougall, son of the late John Lorn Mc-Dougall, anditor-general of Canada. Rev. A. W. Mackay performed the coremony and during the signing of the cofemony and during the signing of the register Miss Jennie Baird sang most beautifully "A Song of Thanksgiving" and "Temple Beils." The church was appropriately decorated with white lilies and ferns, the altar being banked with the former, and small bunches of white and nink cornections designations. white and pink carnations designated the pews reserved for the guests who were principally the relatives of both families. It sometimes happens, however, from a variety of causes, that the blood becomes congested in certain portions of the body. This means that the blood vessels in these parts become weakened, and the circulation in that section of the body becomes sluggish and stagmant. The consequence is that the dead matter in that part of the body is only partially carried away, and that but little of the new, vital matter is introduced there to build up and strengthen the tissues and nerves.

Hollinger and Dome Ex. Depressed at Week-End---Mining Notes

More Confident Feeling Shown In Respect to Porcupine Issues

Indications of Revival of Confidence Visible in Mining Markets-Prospects Favor a Substantial Recovery

World Office, Saturday Evening, One of the most salient points in respect to the Porcupine situation, which it was possible to observe during the week just closed was to be found in the fact that the stock market has so successfully combatted the adverse influences which marked the carly portion of the week. For a time conditions resolved themselves into little more than actual demoralization, but cleared to a certain extent, and this special unabated. It has been necessary to postpone the anticipated date of the completion of these plants, but in view of the extremely cold weather prevailing up north, which has delayed all construction work materially, this was only to be expected. Recont advices are to the effect that the form of the week. For a time conditions resolved themselves into little similar operations at the Hollinger, Vipond, and McIntyre, are to be expected about a month later. From this it cleared to a certain extent, and this more than actual demoralization, but pond, and McIntyre, are to be expectit was not long before the air was ed about a month later. From this it cleared to a certain extent, and this would seem that by the end of the first would seem that by the end of the first quarter of the year Porcupine will outlied the producing stage, and ably by those who have followed the Porcupine securities in their various movements since the inception of trading a little more than a year ago. True apprehension is still existent in minating companies in particular. ing a little more than a year ago. True apprehension is still existent in mining circles, but there is none of the aggressive, and as conditions were by no means propitious, when viewed from a bullish standpoint, pressure was exercised on stocks in the most successful way. That values should have proved vulnerable is not at all surprising in view of the condition of the market; indeed, it is more surprising that prices held up to the extent that they did. Public sentiment, undoubtedly received a severe shock by the edly received a severe shock by the recent brokerage failure and the drastic liquidation necessitated thereby, but in the material recovery which has been made since that time there is the best of evidence of an underlying the propositions. In this connection it is interesting to note that the new Hollinger stamp per diem, or a daily output of 279 tons, for 30 stamps. If one has a fancy for statistics, it may be figured from this that in a year of 300 working days the plant will crush $1,000 tons, which at an average valuation of gold, contents in the material recovery which has been made since that time there is the best of evidence of an underlying firmness, which at one time was thought to be partly if not altogether thought to be partly if not altogether lacking. If present indications are to be believed the market should do better in the near future. Precedent points strongly to the fact that once conditions are righted after so drastic a shake-out as occurred, an upward movement should be in effect, and if the public speculative account were ward movement should be in effect, and if the public speculative account were to broaden to any material account there is every reason to believe that this would soon be realized. There is still some belated liquidation coming out from time to time, but the market has been taken pretty well in hand, and it would not take much to actually has been taken pretty well in hand, and it would not take much to actually inaugurate a substantial recovery. It is to be said that sentiment was of a fairly bullish trend at the year end; it is only to be expected, therefore, that since conditions have not materially changed, it should be even more builtsh with prevailing values at a much lower plane.

is proceeding unabated. It has been disruption of speculative faith which was so much in evidence at the height of the downward trend.

Compared with prices at the first of the year ruling quotations for the Porcupine stocks show a remarkable adjustment practically thruout the whole list. The bear interest in the market has been more than usually aggressive, and as conditions were by no means propitious, when viewed from a bullish standpoint, pressure was exercised on stocks in the most successful way. The one adverse fact was the closing down of the Foley-O'Brien property, but in view of the litigation which is now under way, this did not cause any great surprise. On the other hand the other operating mines are understood to be making substantial progress. At the Hollinger and Dome the erection of the stamp mills from Ottawa yesterday shows that the show remarkable increases, reflecting un-Shipments show remarkable increases, reflecting unmistakeably the marked, the growing, prosperity of the country. During last year there was an increase of over $1.00,000,000, while since 1908 there has been a gain of close on to $200,000,000.

On the other hand, commercial loans in Canada have kept pace with the gain in deposits, and were at the close of the year $774,000,000.

For the first time in history a year has closed with the note circulation of the Canadian banks over 25 per cent. upon the circulation at the close of 1908. Here is a comparison between last year and its dimmediate predecessor along various lines as gleaned from the report. Dec. 30, '11. Dec. 30, '10.

Natural Cure for Catarrh Obviates Taking Drugs

it Has Superseded the Old-Fashioned Stomach-Dosing Remedies, and Invariably Cures Quickly.

It was their inability to reach the real source of catarrh and bronchitis that caused the medical profession to drop Muid cough medicines and adopt "Catarrhozone" instead. Catarrhozone provides a method of breathing right into the lungs certain rare medicinal vapors which are so healing and comforting as to entirely banish coughs, catarrh and throat trouble in a very short time.

MAKING THE SMALLEST SCREWS IN THE WORLD.

The smallest screws in the world are made in a watch factory. A writer in Harper's Weekly describes the process of making these screws. He says they are cut from a steel wire by a machine, but cut from a steel wire by a machine, but as the chips fall from the knife it seems as tho the operator were simply cutting up the wire for his own amusement. No screws can be seen, and yet a screw is made at every third operation.

The fourth jewel screw is next to invisible, and to the naked eye it looks like a grain of dust. With a magnifymg glass, however, it is seen to be a screw with 260 threads to the inch, and with a very fine glass the threads may be seen quite clearly.

All the winter fireside gab about big Tim Jordan going to wear the uniform of one of the major league clubs, is put to rest and the "fence-breaker" will be ambling around the first station for Joe Kelley for another season, at least.

Things promise to be a little livelier this coming summer when Mr. Benny Meyers opens up with that foghorn voice of his on the coaching line. Toronto has needed somebody with a little life on the line for some time, and Benny will be received with open arms.

ST. CATHARINES, Jan. 20.—Local should be broken or that the suggestion that it be broken should be made.

The arguments of the Toronto course by the Canadian Association of anticle in a Toronto paper this morning editor are very amusing, as he takes for granted that the proposed Welland Ship canal is to be located on the site of the sent permanent regatta site on the old Welland Canal between this city and Fort Dalhousle. The local course was secured after some difficulties and the city made a large grant to assist, with the understanding that a permanent course would be established.

This is no reason why the agreement from the present Royal Canadian Henley course.

Johnson hasn't been treated altogether fairly in the matter. A public ban of the champion wasn't necessary. He might have been told in a quiet way that his presence in the ring in New York would mean a cruel blow to boxing. Johnson would surely have said: "All right; I won't show." But to hurl the issue at him is perhaps more than he could stand without sending a return message. This he has done. But he should be a "good fellow" and let the matter rest there. For the sake of the game, Johnson must suffer, but there isn't any use of piling on the pain by public announcements.

The ban on Johnson is not because he is a colored man, but because there isn't a white man in the game at present who

Dr. Helmbold, of Newport, Ky., Claims He Was Offered $1000 Cash and $100 a Month If He Would Allow a Racing Poolroom to Carry on Business.

CINCINNATI, O., Jan. 20.—Dr. August Helmbold, mayor of Newport, Ky., opposite this city, declared to-day that he had been offered $1000 in cash and $100 a month if he would allow a racing pool room to run in that city. As a result he held a conference with the board of commissioners and a crusade to remove handbooks was decided upon.

The effort to open a poolroom in Newport is said to be a result of the action of the mayor, Henry T. Hunt, of this city, who has been conducting a police campaign against "hand books" since he entered into office on the first of the year.

Results of the public school basketball games played in Central Y.M.C.A. Saturday afternoon are as follows:
Senior—Lansdowne v. King Edward—Won by Lansdowne by 50 to 25. Winners: L. Wood, R. Lovell, M. Locke, J. Togin, J. Brodey.

Junior—McCaul v. Lansdowne—Won by McCaul by 60 to 17. Winners: S. Dickman, L. Krugel, S. Simon, O. Davis, M. Steinworzel.

Junior—Annette v. Jesse Ketchum—Annette won by default. Winners: C. Roberts, E. Shortt, J. Rush, A. Collins, L. Mundock.

The senior game was fast and clean, all the boys showing strength. The Lansdowne boys could locate the basket almost every time. Locke played a great game. Two Members of Ontario Legis-Appointed.

Office Staff Defeat Inspectors for Banquet on T. B. C. Alleys-The Scores.

At the Toronto Bowling Club Friday afternoon, the office staff and inspectors of the city architect's department at the city hall battled at five-pins for who would pay for a banquet held at the St. Charles the same evening. Under the able chaperonage of Ald. Sam McBride, president of the Toronto Bowling Club, and also Ald. O'Neill, Hilton and Maguire in attendance, the boys, both young and old, entered into the game with almost the same enthusiasm as they do their daily work at the city hall under the management of Jack Whittman of the inspectors department, who engineered the match. Both teams, twelve men a side, including the aldermen, lined up promptly at a o'clock, and after three of the most exciting games ever seen at the club the office staf, with Ald. McBride and Maguire on the firing line, were returned the winners over the inspectors, including Ald. O'Neill and Hilton, who went down to defeat by over 500 pins on the total. After the games the party repaired to the St. Charles, where dinner awaited them, and with Ald. McBride in the chair, speeches were delivered by the chairman, Ald. O'Neill, Hilton and Maguire and Fred Price, the latter not forgetting to tell about his "booby," which he made in the first game, when he counted I pins. Ex-Ald. Frame was highly commended by all speakers for his good showing on the alleys, and with a little more practice the worthy ex-alderman of the office staff said he though the would be able to take the measure of Ald. McBride. After a vote of thanks to the Toronto Bowling Club and St. Charles management, the party broke up with three cheers for the winners and the singing of "God Save the King." The scores:

whom he fights as long as a battle is in store for him. Morris, perhaps, has one exception. He has said on numerous occasions that he wouldn't bother with Champion Jack Johnson yet awhile, and it is likely that he will stick to his book in this regard. But Morris is dead anxious to mix it up with some one, preferably Al Palzer, who is just at present getting more advertising than any other white hope in the business. Carl evidently figures that Palzer is the right one to meet, and he has challenged him to fight before one of the New York clubs. Whether the defi will be accepted or not is a matter of considerable interest. The fight fens are anxious to see a Palzer-Morris bout, and the unusual clamor for the contest may eventually bring it about. The hockey games for the week are s follows:

It seems that very few people who keep tab on pugilism take much interest in the match that has been arranged between Champion Jack Johnson and Jim Flynn. Flynn has only a long outside chance with Johnson, yet it must be conceded that the Pueblo mixer is a fighter just the same and it will be up to Johnson to knock him out to put him aside. Tex Rickard, who promoted the Jefries. Johnson championship in Reno, and who keeps in touch with promising "white hopes," laments that there is no white gent know in sight to take the measure of the colored champ. Rickert selects Al. Palzer, who knocked out Kaufman, as the coming possibility in the "white hope" class and in this selection he may not be far wrong, if, in fact, he is not correct in his long range guess. Palzer is under the management of Tom O'Rourke who has the faculty of picking out a great fighter about once in each decade. It was O'Rourke who developed George Dixon and also Joe Walcott, and in their respective classes when they were in their prime they could trim anything that came along. Of course Palzer is yet to be seasoned and nursed along carefully before he will be ready to step into a ring with Johnson. This may take, as Rickard says, about a year and a half, after which Palzer will know a great deal more than he does now and will have confidence in himself, provided he develops as many believe he will. He has all the qualifications of a champion. He is rugged, game and willing to learn and with O'Rourke to teach him and guide him along the route, he may yet reach the heavyweight championship.

The two men right now that can give Johnson the best argument in a championship clash are McVey and Langford. Johnson the more time the first. Wednesday, Johnson seems rather inclined to first take a shy at McVey and if he is successful in this contest, he may get up courage enough to take on Langford. It is known that Langford has been trying to get on with Johnson for a long time, but the champion doesn't seem anxious to tackle Samuel.

Motorcyclists Are to Have Glidden Tour

This announcement came with the close of the Motor-cycle Show in Madison-square Garden, New York, when A. B. Coffman of Toledo, O., and A. J. Mussel man of Chicago made public their plans for the tour, and also the fact that they will put up two valuable cups as trophie for competing motor-cyclists with the

It is planned to have the tour last for ten days and cover approximately and miles. It is to be an annual affair, and the first will probably be staged just preceding the annual meet of the Federation of American Motor-cyclists next July.

G. H. Hamilton, president of the F. A. M., is heartly in favor of the big tour and will co-operate in making it a success.

M., is heartily in favor of the big tour and will co-operate in making it a success.

While the details of the plans are yet to be worked out, the tour itself seems a certainty. There will be one cup for trade riders—the one valued at $100. The trade riders will also be a cup for private owners, valued at $100. The trade riders cup must be competed for each year, while the other will pass each year permanently into the Keeping of the victorious private owner.

Only tentative plans for the route can be made at this time, for the city in which next summer's F. A. M. meet will be held his not yet been chosen. The buffalo meet there were two F. A. M. tours, one from the east and one from the west, each ending at Buffalo. These tours were highly successful and attracted many riders, and it is believed that tour on a large scale, such as is proposed by Coffman and Musselman, will be even more successful.

The success of the "Glidden" tour for automobilists is unquestioned. It is one of the big events of the automobile year. The big motor-cycle tour will be patterned after it, and, with the two valuable trophies, will, it is believed, attract an army of riders.

Several states will be used just as in the "Glidden tour." The tour will be conducted under the rules of the F. A. M. and the scoring will be strict. The trade and pathfinders will be used just as in the "Glidden tour." The tour will be conducted under the rules of the F. A. M. and the scoring will be strict. "July is somewhat in the future," said Mr. Coffman, "but there is much to be done in preparing for a 2000-milet tour. We believe that now is the time to start. After the first tour has been conducted to the other may not require as much work.

Violations of Customs Laws

Matters Said to Be Extremely Loosely Conducted at Various Points Along the Borders of Alberta and Saskatchewan-Horses Rushed In and Not Properly Examined.

The article in last Sunday's World directing attention to the violations of the customs laws that is going on in the northwest has attracted a deal of notice. And well it might, for the trouble is most scrious. Not only does it interfere and check the legitimate trade of the country but the national treasury is materially robbed and the health of our live. Stock placed in great danger. If as is reported twenty thousand horses are to be forced in elither free or at the lowest valuation, namely, fifty dollars, it means that the treasury is to be robbed of two or three hundred thousand dollars, Nor is that altogether the worst of the situation, for the animals are simply driven across, they escape test and examination. Even when the test is officially applied if the story that reaches me is true it is decidedly in-efficiently done. My information is to the effect that recently a hundred mules were imported and passed. Afterwards they were subjected to the test and only forty successfully stood the trial. If this illustrates the real stage of affairs then official inquiry is urgent.

THOROBRED AND TROTTER.

Shifting Blades of Grass in Dear Old

Thirty-five or forty years ago most of the big horsemen of Kentucky bred both thorobreds and trotters. Then the thorobred obtained the ascendancy in some portions of the states owing to the larger prizes offered in racing compe-tition and the fact that the breeder was enabled to turn his product into money so much more quickly because of two-year-old racing, the contests for light harness horses being of such a nature that mature development was demanded. Because of their superior earning capacity the thorobred except in isolated cases yielded a greater re-turn at the auction block. The thorobred had the advantage of being mark-etable at one year old. Thus the cost of production and maintenance was all in their favor as against their diagonally-gaited brothers and sisters.

With the crusade against racing and the closing of the great racetracks in New York, Chicago, St. Louis, New Orleans, San Francisco and other points where large stakes and purses were offered the earning capacity thorobred was restricted to the Canadian tracks, to Kentucky, Maryland, Montana, Mexico and a few other places where meetings were held that elevated the quality neither of the men nor of the horses that took part in them. Those who liked the sport and who wanted to enjoy it without hindrance and whose pocketbooks could af-ford the outlay shipped their horses to England or France; and there they will remain until some degree of relief is

The meeting mentioned above will serve to keep a few persons breeding thorobreds, but the pursuit will be engaged in in only a limited way.-N. Y.

The Ottawa Jockey Club has been and under the most favorable auspices. That the organization will be a success being so. The most gratifying feature is the willing patronage extended by our new Governor-General, H.R.H. the Duke of Connaught. We are told that at the meeting for organization a letter was read from His Royal Highness not alone signifying his pleasure to allow the plant to be termed Connaught Park, but also wishing the club every success. By the same token it would be a graceful thing if the O. J. Miss Wilks' stallion, Kentucky Todd, 2.08%, has 29 representatives in Kentucky Futurity.

It is expected that at the forthcoming meeting of the National Trotting Association another effort will be made to have the rule prohibiting hopples re-pealed. As the rule now stands no fouryear-old or younger horse can start in hopples in 1912, and after 1914 no horse of any age may race with his legs tied Uhlan, 1.58%, and other trotters in C. K. G. Billings' string are wintering at Brunswick, Ga., a short distance south of Savannah on the Atlantic Coast. Uhlan will probably be shipped to Russia early in May, and it is hoped that he will return in time to start at the Grand Circuit meeting in New York in August. As yet the champion trotter has never been seen here. He is now eight years old and sound, and should, with good luck, go faster next season than ever before.

Ancient Days When the Sport of the Turf Flourished in South

the revolution, the scene changed to the Washington course, and here was ushered in the golden age of horse racing in the south. The character of the sport is reflected in the names of the distinguished men who were the owners of the course and the members of the jockey club thental army; his son, Colonel Wade Hampton, owner of three thousand slaves and of the greatest racing stud and stable of the period; Colonel William Alston, Colonel John E. Mc-Pherson, Colonel James B. Richardson, General C. C. Pinckney, aide-decamp to General George Washington; Colonel William Moultrie, and General Thomas Sumter, in whose honor the Thomas Sumter, in whose honor the historic forts were named, and H. M.

The races commenced on the first Wednesday in Feb, of every year and continued thruout the week. Only two races were run each day, but since these were races of heats the program was almost as long as the six race cards of to-day. On the opening day the jockey club usually gave a purse of $1000 for four-mile heats, with a purse of $200 for mile heats. On the second day the main race was at three-mile heats for a purse of $750, and on the third day at two-miles heats for $500. No race was at less than a mile, and dash races at any distance were almost unknown. In very early days gold and silver plate formed the prizes to be won, and many high-minded turfmen of those days did all in their power to prevent a change when money prizes were proposed. The races commenced on the first when money prizes were proposed.

The Courts Adjourned.

The Courts Adjourned.

Perhaps the best idea that can be conveyed as to the status of racing at this period is by stating that the courts of justice used daily to adjourn and all the schools were regularly let out as the hour for starting the horses drew near. The stores were closed and all business was suspended, while merchants, bankers, clergymen and judges went to the course. Respect-

32ND YEAR—PAGES I TO 10 TORONTO SUNDAY MORNING JANUARY 21 1912 -PRICE FIVE CENTS.

HOCKEY, CANADA'S GREAT WINTER SPORT

Editorial Section of The Toronto Sunday World

H OCKEY, properly named Canada's greatest winter's sport, is increasing in interest year after year. The game is one that is easily understood — its rules are simple, particularly in On-

It is a game in which speed is one of the greatest assets and it is by this speed that. the public interest is aroused. A recent statement by a newspaperman of British Columbia, where the game has recently taken a great hold. was: "Lacrosse is fast, but it is a funeral procession compared with hockey."

In the Province of Quebec hockey is the popular winter sport. There the greatest interest seems to be in the professional side. The reverse is the case in Ontario, where the game has made its most advanced strides. Amateur hockey reigns supreme in our own province and the sport is conducted by one of Canada's greatest amateur bodies, the Ontario Hockey Association.

To give some idea of the heights of popularity to which hockey has reached it might be mentioned that the O. H. A. this winter has no less than 113 teams playing in its association.

Owing to the uncertain winters in some parts of Canada artificial ice rinks are being built in many of our cities. In British Columbia no less than three of these structures have been erected and the game has taken a great hold on the far western people. The three places in question are Vancouver, New spared to secure players from all parts of the Dominion. British Columbians want the fastest and best hockey in Canada, if they can buy it.

In Toronto there is in course of construction a great artificial ice arena, and next winter the followers of the game will be able to sit in comfort and watch the game played under the most favorable conditions. The game itself was not played to any extent in To-ronto or neighboring towns and cities until 1890 altho it had previously awakened great interest and popularity in Montreal, Ottawa and a number of eastern places. It was in 1890 that the O. H. A. was organized and from that time the interest has increased. Many notable public men have from time to time taken great interest in hockey and one of the first was the now Judge Barron of Stratford, who in his day was also a crack player. The first president of the O. H. A. was the late Lieut.-Col. A. M. Cosby, who also donated a handsome trophy to the association.

The first Ontario championship went to Ottawa in 1890, the runners up being St. Georges of Toronto and the teams lined up as follows:

Ottawa-Goal, Morell; point, Kerr; cover, Young; forwards, Ross, H. Kirby, C. Kirby and Smith.

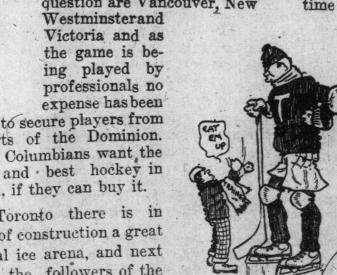

St. Georges—Goal, McVit-tie; point, Henderson; cover, Hargraft; forwards, Lucas, Thompson, Henderson and Jackson.

Many old-timers will remember these teams and the games played during the early years of the game in Ontario.

This winter the game is furnishing the keenest kind of interest and many fast and interesting battles will be played before the championships of the senior, intermediate or junior groups in Ontario are decided. Toronto is one of the hotbeds of the game, but in places like Stratford, Preston, Kingston, Midland and many others this invigorating winter sport has taken a great hold and from these places representative teams are put on the ice from year to year.

Reform of the Almanac.

During the coming summer an international conference will take place in Switzerland for the purpose of considering and recommending a reformed calendar. This step has been in contemplation for some considerable time and has been earnestly advocated by many who are more intimately acquainted with the practical inconvenience of the Roman Calendar than the mass of the people can be. Yet there are few persons that have not at some time or other in their lives been desirous of ascertaining on what day some event of previous happening in which there is personal interest actually coccurred. To find it out one of those mysterious tables known as a Perpetual Calendar must be consulted and its directions mastered and applied. Failing that opportunity or distrustful of the result the information seeker resorts to some newspaper or periodical that undertakes to answer the questions of the curious. With the increasing complexity of modern life and application of scientific methods to commerce and industry the trouble caused by the unequal division of months and the other defects of the existing calendar has become ever more apparent and intolerable. Hence the various efforts made to devise a reformed calendar which will secure that in each successive year the dates and days shall correspond and holidays and festivals recur at identical periods.

Among the most earnest advocates of a "Rational Almanac" is Mr. Moses B. Cotsworth, F.G.S., formerly of York, England, now of Victoria, B.C., who has been occupied with this subject for more than a quarter of a century. At the annual meeting in 1909 of the Royal Society of Canada he read a paper on the need of the reform, which was subsequently issued by the society in pamphlet form, Introducing the speaker, Sir Sandford Fleming, K.C.M.G., the originator of the system of standard time now used all over the world, remarked that the calendar of days, weeks and months, which we have inherited from past ages, is found in many quarters to be inadequate for our modern requirements, especially in many branches of industrial life, in business operations and various spheres of human activity; it is especially felt, he added, by railway and other transportation companies. For himself, he said, he warmly approved of the movement to simplify the calendar, and expressed his earnest desire to see the Royal Society of Canada take a leading part in promoting a needed change—a change which would benefit the great human family for all future time. At this particular annual meeting the society carried unanimously a recommendation to the effect that the council be instructed to memorialize the governorgeneral on the subject of the reform of the almanac, asking his excellency to bring the need of a new calendar to the attention of the Imperial Government with the view to steps being taken to obtain the assent of all civilized nations thereto.

Excellent service is being done in the way of educating the public mind by the International Almanac Reform League, of which Mr. Cotsworth is secretary-treasurer. It has compiled and issued much information regarding the need of the reform and the various methods suggested to overcome the defects of the Roman Calendar. That calendar was the first fixed almanac for national use and owed its origin to the great Julius Caesar. It was based on the solar year. assumed to be 3651/4 days long and the quarter-day was accounted for by the insertion of an additional day every fourth year, leap year. The calendar was, however, defective, because it made the year more than eleven minutes too long and as the centuries passed its deficiencies became more apparent, the true vernal equinox occurring before March 21 and the real new moons preceding the calendar new moons. Pope Gregory XIII undertook the task of reforming the calendar and entrusted it to a German Jesuit, Christopher Schlussel, better known by his Latinized name of Clavius, who in turn carried out a scheme planned by Aloysius Lilius, a Neapolitan physician and astronomer. In 1581 the true equinox fell on March II, ten days before the equinox as given in the calendar and to rectify this error October 15, 1582, when the reform was accomplished, was made to follow October 4, the intervening days being omitted. Hence came the difference between the new and old style, the latter still retained in Russia which country, however, is about to adopt the more accurate system.

The unequal division of the months is attributable to the vanity of Augustus Caesar. Mr. Cotsworth says that July, so named in honor of Julius Caesar's birthday had thirty-one days, but when Augustus was made emperor, vanity led him to alter the name of his birthday month from Sextilio (sixth) to August and as it had only thirty days his pride led him to add one day to August. Julius had arranged for fixed alternate months of thirty-one and thirty days, but when Augustus, for reasons best known to himself, took his additional day for August from February it gave the third-quarter of the year ninety-three days, leaving only ninety in the first quarter. thus disturbing calculations for rents, interest, etc., and causing public outcry. To sustain his pride, continues Mr. Cotsworth, from publicly acknowledging the superiority of the Julian plan Augustus took one day each from September and November to make 31st October and 31st December. "Thus," he comments, "the pride and arrogance of Augustus Caesar has during 1900 years inflicted the present irrational months upon European races with the consequent inequalities of 90, 91, 92, 92 days in the quarters of the year and the disparity of three days between the 181 days in the first half and the 184 days in the second half of the year. "These inequalities," he proceeds, "not only disturb the compilations for interest, rents, etc., but they unequalize the annual subdivision of salaries, etc., and have a far more potent effect upon the most desired net earnings of large railway and other corporations whose influences are yearly becoming more powerful, e. g., the three days' difference between the half years inflate the dividends for the half-year ending December 31 by about 2 per cent." This and other disparities in the existing calendar "render accurate comparisons impracticable whilst fair adjustments can only be approximated after elaborate calculations are made."

Various methods for providing a rational calendar have been mooted and were discussed by Mr. Cotsworth in his Royal Society paper. His own plan, originally proposed in the years 1896 to 1899, is to have thirteen months of four weeks each, the additional month to be interculated between June and July, with either Christmas Day or New Year's Day as the "Dies-non" necessary to get rid of the odd 365th day of the year and obviate the changing week-day names of dates thru successive years. Leap-Day would also be inserted as an extra day without disturbance of the normal calendar. Mr. Cots-worth holds strongly that the change to a reformed calendar can be accomplished with ease and with much less disturbance than would accompany the introduction of the metric or decimal system of weights and measures. But the advantages to be derived are so vast that even far more formidable difficulties might well be faced to accomplish the reform. The International Conference will no doubt give full consideration to the questions involved and the movement should certainly receive the support of the Canadian Government and

In the case of an official at Oshawa it is stated that his partisanship consisted of canvassing against the Conservative candidate. This and other matters will be aired in parliament and the truth will come out. Start Now.

Sir James Whitney has had the benefit of the views of representative citizens of Toronto and other cities, with regard to the burying of light, power, telephone and telegraph wires, and the elimination of unsightly poles from streets. He has advised a conference of municipal officers to draft a proposition and present it to the government.

At least in the congested sections of a great city like Toronto, the wires should be placed under ground. Just how this can be done, is a matter for consideration, but the experiment of municipally-owned conduits has been tried in other cities, and has proved successful.

Toronto might make a beginning by mapping out a few of the central blocks, and building conduits that will carry all the wires; leasing them to the various companies and making the scheme a financial success from the outset. The area could then be extended as the necessities of the case might warrant, but the main thing is, now that the matter has been given official recognition, to go right at it, and do something more than talk.

The provincial authorities should not delay in carrying out the most drastic measures for the suppression of rabies in the province, even to the extinction, if necessary, of the whole dog family in Ontario.

The Spoils System.

Liberal politicians continue to make a loud noise about the dismissal of office holders by the new government, but these same gentlemen are not anxious to have a comparison with the number of official executions in 1896.

As a matter of fact, the principle has been laid down, and it is a good one, that there shall be no dismissals without just cause, such as offensive partisanship or incompetency.

It is well known, that a great many office, holders, believing that the late government had a permanent lease of life, acted towards their continue to make a loud of the such that the profits accruing from the telegraph and telephone the telegraph and telephone lines. The general public will at once condemn McDevitt as insare, but he was only doing in an aggravated form what many others are doing to day: taking no thought of to-morrow, and living up to or in excess of their means.

If he was seeking notoriety, he got it; this is his satisfaction, and to be satisfied is the chief aim in life. If McDevitt had put his $2,500 away he would have yearned for more; would not have been satisfied. However, many of those who are looking for the Blue Bird of happiness, might get it where McDevitt found it. Others will find the enjoyment in hoarding up gold, and depriving themselves of even the necessities of life.

Curious data have been gathered abroad with reference to the dreams of the blind. It appears that all dreams of normal persons are sight dreams, and that a dream is spoken of as a vision. If the blind have not been born so, it is said they may re-member enough of what they have seen to enable them to imagine how things look, and, when the imagination has free look, and, when the imagination has free principal part. When dreaming of home, play in sleep, to picture themselves as in full possession of the sense of sight.

THE AMERICAN VOICE AND ITS LACK OF CULTIVATION Some of these critics have maintained

Some of these critics have maintained that, owing to our abominably changeable climate, we are all, in some degree, sufferers from catarrh, so that our national nose is in a chronic stage of "no thorofare"—hence our high-pitched and nasal tones, writes Francis Rogers in Scribner's. This explanation is hardly to be taken seriously, and I, for one, do not believe that we are a more catarrhal people than are the inhabitants of any other country within the north temperate zone. Our "American winters, so full of bright sunshine and bracing air, are, despite the occasional severe storms, quite as healthful. I am sure, as the dank, sunless winters of London, Paris, Milan and Berin.

The American voice is not inherently (or catarrhally) nasal or unmusical, but it is certainly crude and uncultivated. Its disagreeable qualities are due to our generally slovenly utterance and to our neglect of the mere technique of speech. Under cultivation our voices are as beautiful as any. Our best actors, a few public speakers, like W. J. Bryan and President Ellot, and our singers in every opera giving country furnish ample proof of this assertion.

I found upon investigation that the truck had never been washed since it was practically never under cover. in Expense of Operation.

Woodrow Wilson has made a statement that has come to be almost a maxim in the business world:-

"Profits are legitimate only when they come from service." I feel that this is applicable in the very strictest way to the motor truck industry. I believe that no motor truck manufacturer can build up and maintain a permanent success unless he gives service in the fullest measure to his truck vice in the fullest measure to his truck owners.

The manufacturer should back up his product. That does not mean that he should back it up for a week, a month or a year or two years. A motor truck manufacturer is in the business to stay, and he can only hope to do this by according fair treatment to the users of his product, which means he must vouch for his product to the limit.

Manufacturers, of course, must rely upon their representatives to see that

Manufacturers, of course, must rely upon their representatives to see that truck owners get maximum service in various parts of the country, and it is the amount of service and the attention the dealer gives individual owners that will determine their ability to go back for a second and third and subsequent crders. No company con operate upon first orders, but must give such service that it can go back again and again for reorders.

These cabs are now the result they are giving reasonable service and they are making money for the first time in their history. It is a point that cannot be impressed too strongly, no company can give service unless the truck receives most thoro attention.

There was a man who was hauling

It is no use to speed up a truck in a congested section in such cities as New York, Chicago or Pittsburg, because it can only go as fast as the traffic soes. Drivers of trucks should be educated to understand this and to act intelligently. I have seen operators in New York handle trucks so carefully that eight times out of ten they would slide thru the traffic without bringing the car to a stop, because when they would leave one street they would see the traffic stop at the next corner, and they would regulate their speed so that by the first a point that cannot be impressed too strongly, no company can give would be removed and they could go right thru. The operation of trucks in such ways as this will be conducive to much longer life.

H. B. JOY, PRESIDENT OF THE P.

There was a man who was hauling to much longer life.

Altho this man may make money, he will not derive maximum benefits from his truck. No truck can be built well enough so that it can receive this sort of treatment and last. Ten Hours a Day Enough.

It is necessary to insist and educate truck owners that the truck should have attention at night so as to be ready to go out again in the morning, and we are gradually getting our customers educated. One trouble is the fact that there is so much economy in trucks that the average owner will figure if a truck will make $12 a day running twelve hours it will make $14

Manufacturers, of course, must rely upon their representatives to see that truck owners get maximum service in various parts of the country, and it is the amount of service and the attention the dealer gives individual owners that will determine their ability to go back for a second and third and subsequent crders. No company con operate upon first orders, but must give such service that it can go back again and again for reorders.

Lesson in Taxicabs.

In order that companies operating trucks may derive maximum service educational work must be done between the factory and the dealer and operating company. At one period several of the largest operating companies in New York absolutely lost their prestige from the fact that they do not know how to operate for service. The cab and taxicab service in New York lost thousands of dollars,

LETTER NO. 2.

Hamilton, Ont., May 3rd, 1911. THE INDEPENDENT TIME CO.. 133 Bay Street, Toronto, Ont.

Gentlemen:

The following is a testimonial regarding the Security Tread Tire, manufactured by the Independent Tire Company, c. Toronto, Limited.

I purchased these tires about May 1st, 1909, and drave them 7.000 miles in 1909, never removing the tires from my car during the winter. I drove the same tires in 1910 about 6,600 miles more, and one of these tires I drave between 400 and 500 miles on the canvas, and could have driven it farther. I consider this the time best non-skild tire made, as I never used a set of chains all the time I hadythem.

Yours truly,

Propects Good.

At this time last year there had been but 4 entries made to the first 500-mile race, so the prospects for the second one seem even better than those of 1911. The other five entries to the race 1911. The other five entries to the race consist of two Stutz cars, entered by the Ideal Motor Car Company, of Indianapolis; a Fiat entered by E. E. Hewlett, of Los Angeles, California, with Joe Matson named to drive; and two Case cars entered by the J. I. Case Threshing Machine Company, of Racine, Wisconsin. Joe Jagersberger and Louis Dishray have been pomineted Louis Disbrow have been nominated as the pilots of the two Case entries. The fact that such famous drivers have been entered early in the year. and that all the cars so far named are among the foremost racing machines in the world, makes it seem certain that the field of starters next May will have even more class than the bunch that took the word from starter Wagner last year.

Owing to the fact that there have been so many early requests for seats and parking space reservations for the next race, the speedway management opens the seat sale on Jan. 15. From that time on seats may be obtained for the next Memorial Day event, either in person or by mail. Indianapolis hotels have been besieged with reservation requests already, and are booking their rooms for visitors next May. The speedway has arranged to provide 4,000 rooms in private homes in addition to the hotel accommodations, so that a crowd of 150,000 persons may be cared for easily.

An Interesting Feature.

One of the interesting features in connection with the next 500-mile race is that the foreign manufacturers have taken a greater interest than ever be-fore and many requests for particulars have been received from European motor car makers. It is believed, highly probable, that several new foreign cars and drivers will make their American debut in this classic event.

The entry list so far for the race shows that four American cars have been entered as against three foreign machines. All of the foreign cars are privately owned, DePalma's mount being the property of E. J. Schroeder, of New York, Matson's Fiat being owned by E. E. Hewlett, of Los Angeles, and Wishart's Mercedes his own personal property. This leads the racing enthusiasts in the country to believe that motor car racing is becoming more a sporting proposition than ever before, and eventually it may become a com-

Several entirely new colors have been devised as the result of years of experimenting by chemists and by practical carriage painters and upholsterers. The way in which the color scheme of the chassis and body is carried out in the appointments shows a new field of artistic success. One is opaline blue, another vin de mulberry—both colors new to motor-car decoration, but productive of very handsome effects. The car which is attracting as much attention as any in the whole show, probably, is the limousine in the Stevens-Duryea group—a splendid example of a fine car, with black upper-body and chassis, and lower panels and running-gear of a new tone reproducing the delicate tint of the wild violet.

A representative was sent to the re-cent Olympia show for the express purpose of inspecting upholstering materials and interior fittings, and ideas which he gathered there were applied in the appointments of this beautiful example of Stevens-Duryea construc-tion. The ground-work of the upholstery fabric, which is embossed doeskin, specially imported, is a very light shade of tan, the raised figure being a delicate violet. The broad and nar-row lace, silk curtains, cords, etc., match in color, shade and design the principal fabric. The carpet, especially woven to match the upholstery as exactly in pattern as in color, is partly

Several interesting noveltles shown in the London exhibition were brought over-seas especially for this car. One is a silver-mounted hand-mirror equip-ped with small electric lamps which light by the pressure of a button in the handle. A reel in the holder automatically winds the electric cord as the glass is returned to its place. Another novelty not often seen in American cars but quite generally exhibited at the Olympia show, and adding materially to luxurious motoring comfort, is a pair of handsome pillows made of the same fabric as the upholstering, edged with heavy silkcord and filled travel, whether in trains, in motor cars or in the pace of human life, inevitably costs something. Just as speed increases, so the ratio of costs runs up. It is known for instance, that the Twentieth Century train makes no money, and it is equally certain that those who live a fast life seldom live a long time. Why should it be different in the case of the motor car which is run at top speed all the time?

Driving a motor car at its highest speed all the time involves an ex-Lower gear ratios are provided for Local theatregoers will be introduced to the biggest theatrical novelty of the present decade when Gertrude Hoffmann begins her "Saison des Ballets Russes" at the Royal Alexandra this week. New York took the dancers and mimes from the shores of the Volge to its heart and delighted itself with a new fad-chorographic mimodrama—which has up to this time been a closed book to the English-speaking world. In Russia, however, the art of plastic drama has been reverenced almost as a religion for 200 years. Since introduced in Paris three years ago, the Russian dancers have filled the beauty-loving Parisians with rapture.

The entertainment to be offered consists of three ballets of differing types. The first, "Cleopatre," is a short love drama, with a tragic ending; the second, "Les Sylphides," is a series of dances to Chopin music and the third, "Sheherazade," is another love drama, with another tragedy to end it.

"Sheherazade," the final ballet, is termed a chorographic drama. Its story is the introduction to the Arabian Nightt and its scene is the harem of the King of India and China. The costuming, the setting and the arrangement of the music suggest ancient Persia.

The Travelling Saleman.

James Forbes' four-act comedy,""The Traveling Salesman," comes to the Grand Opera House for one week starting Monday evening. Those who have not had the opportunity of wit-nessing the humor of "The Traveling Salesman" before owing to the high prices that have always been charged, will now have the opportunity of doing so at a price that will be within the reach of all persons. At the same time they will know that tho the prices are popular, the merits of the attraction will be the same as when twice the amount was charged for tickets.

In this play the author has provided Shep Camp, the clever comedian, who salesman, with a vehicle just suited to his style of acting. As Bob Blake, the jolly drummer, whose specialty is ladies' apparel, he is said to conform in every particular to the popular concep tion of a traveling salesman. The play opens on Christmas Day at

"Mother" is just an amusing comedy of life and its little ironies. The author takes advantage of one opportunity for intense pathos in the elder son of the family, who forges his mother's name to a note, and in so doing brings tem-porary misery and sorrow to a house-hold that in the main is one of the most interesting little families ever conceived in the brain of a dramatist. In her other children,—for there are six of them in all—mother has about the or-dinary lot of olive branches left her by father, together with an estate that several of the children seem to think was willed to them for their own par-ticular pleasure and gain. Altogether these children are an appealing lot, the relating of their little affairs is interesting and amusing and the maternal in-terest sheds a warmth and calm that makes of this play one of the most en-joyable in many seasons. For the bene-fit of those who have been led to be-lieve that "Mother" is a play of tears and tragedy, it might be said to the contrary, it is a genuine comedy, with many lines that sparkle and many situations that are thoroly amusing.

and yet reasonably economical family dinner. It is accompanied by recipes for all the dishes mentioned in it. With this object lesson before us I would like to impress upon my housekeeping readers the importance of constructing a menu. This is a great science to which a whole lifetime may well be devoted, but anybody may learn to apply some of the fundamental rules of this science. Too many housekeepers neglect to construct their menus properly, that is, to bring the right dishes in combination. Through this neglect much good cooking fails of its effect. In an ill-combined menu the best of materials may be wasted, while in a well-combined menu a pleasing result may be obtained with less costly materials. As an illustration, I may point out that it is a mistake to serve more than one vegetable, in addition to potatoes, with a roast. Three or four different vegetables served at the same time fatigue the appetite and may cause in-

A most important point for housekeepers is illustrated by the accompanying menu. That point is the providing of sufficient food without waste. The desired object is secured in this instance, as I will explain, by putting a dish of sliced ham on the table.

Every housekeeper naturally wishes to give her family and guests all the food they really want. One way of doing this is to supply a superabundance of food, but if you do this you run the risk of finding a large quantity of excellent food left over from dinner and prac-tically spoiled This is discouraging and a serious loss financially. How are we to get around this difficulty? Calculate the amount of food required by each guest on a reasonable basis, and have in addition your plate of cold ham served after the entree or roast. Then even the person with the largest appetite will be satisfied and will enjoy an increased variety in his dinner. The cold ham is quite welcome to most people after a number of hot dishes If it is no eaten it will remain perfectly good for your breakfast or lunch next day, and nothing will be wasted.

Potage Paysanne, or the Country Woman's Soup.

Woman's Soup.

SLICE up in fine discs not larger than a twentyfive cent piece some carrots, tender turnips, and potatoes. Add the whites of leeks cut in Julienne style (fine strings); all these materials in about equal proportions. Put these vegetables in a closed saucepan and let them simmer on a slow fire.
Then add boiling water and the necessary salt and let the mixture boil until the vegetables are thoroughly cooked.

At the moment of serving, pour the soup over little slices of bread placed in the soup toureen. This soup may be improved with fresh green peas or small white beans.

In apportioning your materials allow ten and one-half ounces of vegetables, an ounce and a half of butter, and a quarter of an ounce of salt to every butter, and a quarter of an ounce of salt to every quart of water.

You may add to potage paysanne one-third of its volume of puree of green peas, or puree of white beans, or potato puree (puree Parmentier). You may also at the moment of serving add a few spoonfuls of cream or fresh butter, which will make it more delicious.

I give these details to show that a simple soup suited to a workman's table may be transformed at a small expense into one fit for the most sumptuous household.

Sole Meuniere with Tomatoes a

La Provencale. THE sole must be carefully cleaned, the white side cleared of scales and the dark side of its skin. Then make a cut at the side along the backbone. Salt the sole moderately, put it in the flour and then in a frying pan, in which you have previously melted an ounce and a half of butter. Gook the sole until it takes a fine brown color. When

During the cooking divide the tomatoes in two and remove the seeds. Cook the tomatoes in a frying pan with a little olive oil, salt, pepper and chopped parsley and a little mite of garlic.

Arrange the sole on a dish. Slip the tomatoes on the sole. Cover the whole with finely chopped parsley mixed with the butter which has been used in cooking the sole, and a few bread crumbs. You may add over the tomatoes a filet of anchovy and a stoned olive. This is optional.

Capon With Rice.

CHOOSE a fine capon, tie it up and lard it with CHOOSE a fine capon, tie it up and lard it with slices of cooking bacon and place it in a saucepan of suitable size. Moisten it with bouillos from the pot-au-feu (or any clear broth) until the liquid covers it. Add a small onion pricked with two cloves, a bouquet made of sprigs of parsley, a bay leaf and little sprigs of thyme, the whole well tied together. Cook on a slow fire in a covered saucepan. When the capon is three parts cooked add about nine ounces of rice, previously washed in boiling water, for each quart of bouillon (broth), then cover the saucepan and finish cooking. By this time the rice ought to be almost completely dry. Unstring the capon and arrange it on a dish. Remove the bouquet and the onion from the rice. Add a little grated nutmeg, an ounce and a half of pure butter, and arrange around the capon.

Ham a la Gelee.

A RRANGE some slices of nice lean ham on a dish and garnish with some cold meat-jelly and sprigs of parsley. The jelly, of course, is optional. It makes the ham more appetizing for those who find it rather dry.

made diamond shaped pieces of them. Season them with salt, pepper, oil and vinegar, keeping the proportions of three parts of oil to one of vinegar.

Apples With Butter.

Choose by preference some russet apples, allowing one for each person; divide them in quarters, peel and trim them. Place them in a shallow saucepan just large enough to hold the apples without leaving too much empty space. Add four tablespoonfuls of sugar, a glass of warm water and an ounce of butter. Cover the saucepan and cook the apples, sprinkling them thoroughly from time to time with their juice. The time of cooking depends on the quality of the apples and how tender they are. Before serving, arrange each quarter apple on little cakes of bread crumb toasted in butter, sprinkled with sugar and glazed in the oven.

with sugar and glazed in the oven.

Add to the juice of the apples a tablespoonful of spricot preserve, boil it a minute, so that the apricot may be thoroughly mixed, add a third of an ounce of butter, shake the saucepan until the butter is thoroughly mixed with the sauce, pour over the apples and serve.

A French Open Work Apple Pie or Tart.

Pie or Tart.

In Place of the last recipe you may serve a delicious kind of French pie—or, more properly, tart—with an open-work top exposing the fruit to the eye. I give here a particularly attractive recipe for making this pie, which should delight all American lovers of good cooking.

Cut into quarters a dozen apples (pippins by preference) weighing about two pounds. Peel them, alice them, put them in a rather wide saucepan with a pound and three-quarters of fresh butter, several tablespoonfuls of hot water and seven ounces of sugar. Shake up the apples from time to time to secure an even cooking. The apples being cooked, add four tablespoonfuls of apricet preserve.

Fill the bottom of one or two circular pie molds with fine paste. Fill the bottom with the prepared apples. Even the surface with the blade of a knife. Cook in the oven. When the cooking is finished sprinkle the surface of the tart with powdered sugars, and hot iron near the surface.

Nature's Cruelty.

During his travels the greatest impression made upon his mind is that of the extreme cruelty of nature's laws ir regard to life. "Man's cruelty may cease, but nature's over-production; under-protection and the destructive elements will continue forever."

The greatest sufferings he saw during his travels were those of thousands of sheep dying for want of water in Australia, which is as large as Canada, and yet not a single snow-covered mountain to keep the water supply up to normal in the summer time. Again he saw 5000 head of cattle in the eastern part of Colorado standing for three days and nights in an awful bilzzard with nothing to eat and the only protection afforded them was a wire fence.

Dear Editor.—During the peat I have taken great pleasure in reading some of the writings of Kit (I don't know if it is a man or woman writer), but I did feel hurt at Kit on Saturday might reading. Kit says, would you like to live to a hundred? and then goes on to say how ugiv we would grow. Now, Kit I love old buildings. I love old relics and, above all, I love old men and women. I was brought up to love and respect my mother. Why do most of the old men and women bear the scars of time so? It is because they were the builders of our beautiful Canada. I am an English woman it being 24 years sincel chme here. I feel I am nearly a Canadian; but I am sorry to see our Canadian fathers and mothers bringing their children up and allowing them to give grandpa, and grandma such hard looks and call them by such rude names. Even their own fathers and mothers they call by slang names. I would love to live to one hundred, and if I grow as old and wither-dead as the covers on my old bible, may I have handed out so much I am old and feeble and perhaps blind I may then have a little of the lov

The homely presentation of the quiet rural life of the "Sunshine-Shadder" settlement stirs the recollection and brings forth the above quatrain from Gray's elegy. This particular field in Canada fiction—the portrayal of life as it is in the various sections and com-munities—as yet seems in no danger of being overworked, and when some phase of it is even passably presented, the workers should be encouraged. The simple scenes, incidents, and character-sketches to be found in such settlements as "Sunshine-Shadder" deserve to be recorded in the permanent form of literature. In this little book, the sketches, in spite of palpable defects of composition, are true to life and filled with revelations of the manysided character of humanity. In "An Evening At the Store," we glimpse that keen interest in local gossip, so characteristic of secluded rural communities; "Benjamin William Bright" (village hermit) shows the consuming audicate. hermit) shows the consuming curiosity of the "Shadderites" but reveals also the sort of shamefaced kindness often found among such people—they are always ready to be friend the needy, yet hate to reveal any signs of hidden tenderness. "The Pompey-Binks Sensation"—a quarrel of two life-long friends over two cats—has its counterpart in some trivial feud in many a Canadian settlement. The writer reveals a full ntimacy with the community she portrays It is advisable, however, to point out that, when material of this kind—indeed. literary material of any kind—is to be put into print, the pub-lisher should in a measure act as advisory critic and the material should go to the public dressed in the best Hterary garb. There is no excuse for wrong or awkward English. If the author, who has the ideas, has not the knack of properly presenting those ideas, and the material is yet worthy of publication, the revision of the manu-script to correct mere faults of composition, should be handed over to an

The Age of Libraries.

We are inclined to look upon public libraries as quite modern institutions, and the custodians of even famous collections of books as men whose names were unknown beyond their generation. cause of choral music by the Toronto Mendelssohn Choir.

Famous Numbers.

For the New York programs Dr. Vogt will draw upon the repertoire of the society in offerings of surpassing interest in which the great versatility of the organization will be displayed to advantage. Bach's B Minor Mass. Filgar's "Caractacus." Fierlioz's Te Deum and Wolf-Fierrari's "La Vita Nueva" will furnish material for programs of great beauty and dignity. A cappella works by Lotti, Gound, Brockway, and Herzogenberg, will complete the scheme. At the second New York concert Verdi's brilliant "Manzoni" Requiem will be given in its entirety. The Boston and Buffalo concerts will, with some slight variations from the New York imiscellaneous program, represent the society at its best, and no pains are being spared by Dr. Vogt to render the foreign concerts of the Toronto singers this year the most telling in the history of the organization. The Toronto concerts are being looked forward to by the members of the chorus with keen anticipation of the pleasure to be derived from participation in the performances of works of such significance as make up this years programs. In the charm and beauty of the complex "La Vita Nuova," by Wolf-Ferrart, in the exhilaration of the almost barbaric grandeur of the scoring of Berlioz's Te Deum, and in the fascinating music of Verdi's great Re-

In Mr. Josef Lhevinne, the great Russian pianist, the society has succeeded in getting into touch with the greatest present day planistic personality. His participation in the matines concert of the series, when the orchestra, under Mr. Stock plays at the greatest strength at which any visiting orchestra has ever performed in Toronto, should constitute a memorable concert in every way. For the Verdi Requiem the number of players will be nearly one hundred, including the four extra trumpeters required in the stirring "Dies Irae" of the work.

The sale of seats for subscribers comes at Massey Hall on Thursday morning next. The sale to the public begins on Thursday, Feb. 1.

The quality of Mme. Pasquali's voice is of wonderful sweetness but it is the range of voice and its amazing facility that have united to place the prima donna in the ranks with the most prominent exponents of bel canto. Har singing of a coloratura aria is an exlibition of vocalization that every student of singing needs. There are some lyric sopranos who make an attempt to reach such notes as "d," "e," and "f" in alt, but fail as a rule, because they lack the peculiar timbre, as well as that extraordinary range, which mark the wonderful voice of Pasquali.

An Englishman's Impressions of Canadian Cities

Being the Letters of Captain D. J. Stenton to His Friend R. H. Franklin, London, E. C.

'My Dear Franklin: I received your ldng letter and budget of interesting news this morning and, frankly speaking, the sight of that London postmark gave me just the slightest little ache in the throat muscles. Not that I ain homesick, old man. No; I should say not. But, don't you know, one wort of misses old London, even altho the is foggy and noisy, after one has been away from her for a time. lave been in Canada six months now, and a most enjoyable and instructive ux months it has been for me-paricularly instructive. It's a beautiful tountry, Bob, a great, sweeping, beauti-(lu) country whose very vastness makes one catch his breath and whose splen-sid natural resources makes one want to applaud. That's how this country impresses you and that's the spirit that grips her sons and daughters and holds

Not that they go around singing "C Canada," or anything of that sort, you know, for really there is little or no surface patriotism here such as one finds across the border; it's another and deeper variety, almost as impossible to discover as it is to define. like the Canadian people immensely They have a quiet way of taking chap's measure and of giving him me that makes an Englishman feel at once among friends.

So much for this glorious country and the sturdy sons who are busy in her shaping. Now for her cities.

Did you ever notice, old man, that any sort of thing that possesses an element of uncertainty is the very thing that appeals to our average country-man? A Turkish bath, for instance, would never have appealed half so much to either you or me had we been absolutely certain as to what the changeable attendant intended to do with us next. We were never sure whether we would get a vapor finish or an ice-water spray. There is a sort of gamble about a Turkish bath and the same holds good of strange cities. One never quite knows what next to expect. Therein rests the fascination.

When we landed in Montreal, last August, my first impression of that humming metropolis was the tender cordiality with which I was received.

Words missed.

"My man," said I, fixing my eye on him sternly, "would it be taking

"He tells you that your horse has slipped its cable and has pranced back to its hay-manger in the far city."

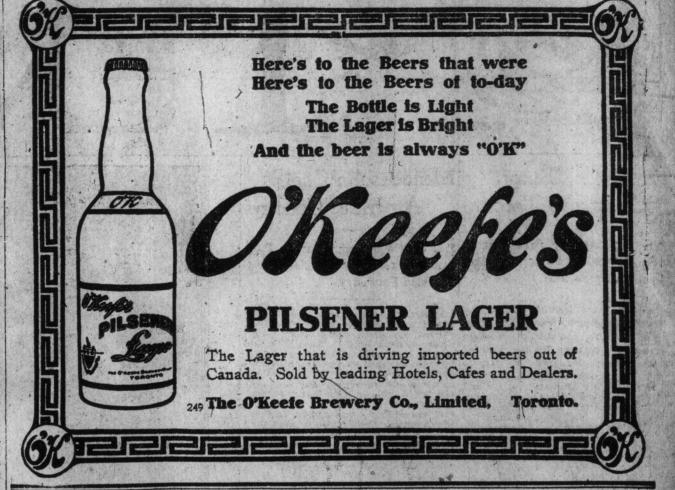

These questions which are liable to strike its visitor as peculiar are asked in all seriousness. You see there are really quite a number of French people in Montreal and there really is a mountain. On clear days one may see it quite distinctly. One hears the sweet, mellow French tongue spoken too; low and fluted it floats like the soft cadence of some perfectly hartnstrument, a note of perfect harmony amidst the jarring discord of our harsher tongue. If I were contemplating making a prolonged stay hero I should study French. I feel assured it would be a wise things to do as it would save me money and other things including feelings. It is embarrassing, for instance, to be asked your name and how much of this world's goods you possess outside of what you have in your wife's name, and mot be able to give a satisfactory and intelligent answer. Also, when one has driven eight or ten miles out of the city to enjoy a perfect autumn day in the flaming country and has tied his horse enjoy a perfect autumn day in the flaming country and has tied hie horse flaming country and has tied his horse—as he thinks securely to a quivering, while spen and has hiked up hill and down dale like a sheered two-year old lambkin who scents the green pasture, and he is returning laboriously along the track, muscles aching and breath wheezy, and he meets a polite and smiling habitant who puffs rings of blue Canada Green tobacco towards him and talks at him thruthem, his meliow words not even ruffling their wispy edges, one leasus that one should be the better for understanding French. He tells you that your horse has slipped its cable and has pranced back to its hay-manger in the far city, that you are a mighty in the far city, that you are a mighty "punk" horseman, and, finding your ignorance quite defenceless against attack names over several unnameable

THE DUKE OF ARGYLL. LONDON, Jan. 20.—The Duke of Argyll has London thrilled with keen argul has London thruled with keen articipation and eager speculation over the production of "Flonn and Tera," an opera for which he has written the libretto. "It is infinitely better for a young man to get out into God's fresh air, where there is light and sunshine, than to sit drinking in his room, and filling it with foul tobacco smoke and topics of conversation. Where there is light, there is safety. Statistics show us that when certain streets of old Lon-don became lighted, there crime ceased. When things are done openly, there is nothing to fear, but when they are nothing to fear, but when they are kept behind barred doors, one never knowe what may happen. In the days of old, Sunday was a day of painful application of principles. No newspaper was opened, scarcely a book was read, and one did penalice for the sins of the week. Well, if religion in these modern days is to be confined to the narrow observance of a painful Sabbath, then it ceases to be religion. For, unless one can bring one's religion into bath, then it ceases to be religion. For, unless one can bring one's religion into one's everyday life, what good is it? Eames Reappears In Glorious Voice

Famous Prima Donna and Gogorza Wildly Applauded in Dual Recital at New York.

The initial appearance of these two famous artists in concert in New York. since their romantic marriage, attracted an immense audience to the Hippo-drome. The program was of a popudrome. The program was of a popular character and consisted partly of selections from operas and partly of concert favorites. Mme. Eames looked handsomer than ever and her voice was superb. Mr. de Gogorza, looking aggressively Spanish, tho born in Brooklyn, led off with the well-known arloso from "Le Roi de Lahore." He sang it with abundant voice and ease, phrasing in perfection and informing all he did with style and taste, and as an encore gave a dashing Spanish air. Mme. core gave a dashing Spanish air. Mme. Eames followed with "Dich. Theure Halle," from "Tannhauser," which she had sung so many times at the Metropolitan. All ears and eyes were strained as she moved legents. as she moved toward the footlights,

There is no roomnow for such contention and consequently the question resolves itself into one of right or wrong. Tobogganing is in no class by itself. It is in the same category as riding, driving, bleycling for pleasure. It is true that the argument cannot be put up that it is part of a system of transit from one place to another, but all the same it would be absurd to contend that all people using the ferries in summer or oring or driving in High Park at season are doing so solely because of their desire to pass from one point to another. The difficulty of suppression or drastic enforcement of rigid Sebbatharian laws lies in the impossibility of differentiation. Tobogg or Not Tobogg.

Tobogg or not tobogg, that is the question. Many of us entertain the opinion that there is no more harm in sliding down a hill on Sunday than on any other day. The act itself is conducive to good health and good spirits. In ancient days the argument would have been put up that it was and he is not one of the limiting kind.

Lyon another, altho the latter won his spurs quite a few years ago.

Ne Temere Decree. The Evangelical Alliance wish Sir Whitney to make a test case of the Ne Temere decree. Why should the province make a test of a case that comes under the common law of the Dominion? If anybody should undertake that job it is the federal government thru the minister of justice. Another question has arisen that might be dealt with at the same time, namely, the political bearings of the recent papal decree, renewing an ancient pro-hibition on individual Roman Catholics from summoning any ecclesiastical person before a tribunal of laymen without permission of an ecclesiastical authority, which is being discussed in England. It still remains to be settled by jurists whether the decree is applicable to Great Britain and Ireland, and if applicable in the United Kingdom, is probably the same in Canada. In Germany it seems the decree is inapplicable because the old prohibition has fallen into desuetude, which, one would think, should be the case elsewhere.

Yet these same people will tell you that amateur boxing is all right. Now I cannot see wherein lies the difference. A clumsy amateur is much more likely to damage either his opponent or himself than a professional who is simply hired to exhibit his skill, and who is assuradly vitally interested in keeping free from broken limbs. Nearly every sport has its professionals. Curling, lawn-bow-ling and croquet stand out pretty well alone in this respect. Golf, cricket, baseball, lacrosse, hockey, all have their professors. If they hadn't they would be shorn of half their interest and more than half their attraction. Professionals are almost a necessity in boxing as teachers. Why a public exhibition of their skill should be so horrible a sight and so objectionable is one of those things some men may think they know but they can never explain. The Great Keinplatz Experiment - By A. Conan Doyle

F all the sciences which have puzzled the sons of men, none had such an attraction for the learned Professor won Baumgarten as those which relate to psychology and the ill-defined relations between mind and matter. A celebrated anatomist, a profound chemist, and one of the first physiologists in Europe, it was a relief for him to turn from these subjects and to bring his varied knowledge to bear upon the study of the soul and the mysterious relationship of spirits.

Professor von Baumgarten was tall and thin, with a hatchet face and steel-gray eyes, which were singularly bright and penetrating. Much thought had furrowed his forehead and contracted his heavy eyebrows, so that he appeared to wear a perpetual frown, which often misled people as to his character, for though austere he was tender-hearted. He was popular among the students, who would gather round him after his lectures and listen eagerly to his strange theories. Often he would call for volunteers from amongst them in order to conduct some experiment, so that eventually there was hardly a lad in the class who had not, at one time or another, been thrown into a mesmeric trance by his Professor.

Of all these young devotees of science there was none who equalled in enthusiasm Fritz von Hartmann. It had often seemed strange to his fellow students that wild, reckless Fritz, as dashing a young fellow as ever hailed from the Rhinelands, should devote time and trouble which he did in reading up abstruse works and in assisting the Professor in his strange experiments. The fact was, however, that Fritz was a knowing and long-headed fellow. Months before he had lost his heart to young Elise, the blue-eyed, yellow-haired daughter of the lecturer. Although he had suceded in learning from her lips that she was not indifferent to his suit, he had never dared to announce himself to her family as a formal suitor. Hence he would have found it a difficult matter to see his young lady had he not adopted the expedient of making himself useful to the Professor. By this means he frequently was asked to the old man's house, where he willingly submitted to be experimented upon in any way as long as there was a chance of his receiving one bright glance from the eyes of Elise or one touch of her little hand.

Young Fritz von Hartmann was a handsome lad enough. There were broad acres, too, which would descend to him when his father died. To many he would have seemed an eligible suitor; but Madame frowned upon his presence in the house, and lectured the Professor at times on his allowing such a wolf to prowl around their lamb. To tell the truth, Fritz had an evil name in Keinplatz. Never was there a riot or a duel, or any other mischief afoot, but the young Rhinelander figured as a ringleader in it. No one used more free and violent language, no one drank more, no one played cards more habitually, no one was more idle, save in the one solitary subject. No wonder, then, that the good Frau Professorin gathered her Fraulein under her wings, and resented the attentions of such a mauvais sujet. As to the worthy lecturer, he was too much engrossed by his strange studies to form an opinion upon the subject one way or the other.

For many years there was one question which had continually obtruded itself upon his thoughts. All his experiments and his theories turned upon a single point. A hundred times a day the Professor asked himself whether it was possible for the human spirit to exist apart from the body for a time and then to return to it once again. When the possibility first suggested itself to him his scientific mind had revolted from it. It clashed too violently with preconceived ideas and the prejudices of his early training. Gradually, however, as he proceeded farther and farther along the pathway of original research, his mind shook off its old fetters and became ready to face any conclusion which could reconcile the facts. There were many things which made him believe that it was pos sible for mind to exist apart from matter. At last it occurred to him that by a daring and original experiment the question might be definitely decided.

It happened, then, that shortly after the time when Professor von Baumgarten conceived the idea of the above-mentioned experiment. he was walking thoughtfully homeward after a long day in the laboratory, when he met a crowd of roystering students who had just streamed out from a beer-house. At the head of them, halfintoxicated and very noisy, was young Fritz von Hartmann. The Professor would have passed them, but his pupil ran across and intercepted him.

What is it, then, Fritz?" the physiologist asked, looking at him in mild surprise.

"I hear, mein herr, that you are about to do some wondrous experiment in which you hope to take a man's soul out of his body, and then to put it back again. Is it not so?" "It is true. Fritz."

"And have you considered, my dear sir, that you may have some difficulty in finding some one on whom to try this? Potztausend! Suppose that the soul went out and would not come back. That would be a bad business. Who is to take the risk? But, Fritz," the Professor cried, very much startled by this view of the matter, "I had relied upon your assistance in the attempt. Surely you will not desert me. Consider the honor and glory."

"Consider the fiddlesticks!" the student cried angrily. "Am I to be paid always thus? Did I not stand two hours upon a glass insulator while you poured electricity into my body? Have you not stimulated my phrenic nerves, besides ruining my digestion with a galvanic current round my stomach? Four-and-thirty times you had mesmerized me, and what have I got from all this? Nothing. And now you wish to take my soul out, as you would take the works from a watch. It is more than flesh and blood can stand."

"Dear, dear!" the Professor cried in great distress. "That is very true, Fritz. I never thought of it before. If you can but suggest how I can compensate you, you will find me ready and will-

"Then listen." said Fritz solemnly. "If you will pledge your word that after this experiment I may have the hand of your daughter, then I am willing to assist you; but if not, I shall have nothing to do with it. These are my only terms."

'And what would my daughter say to this?" the Professor exclaimed, after a pause of astonishment. "Elise would welcome it," the young man replied. "We have loved each other long."

"Then she shall be yours," the physiologist said with decision, "for you are a good-hearted young man, and one of the best neurotic subjects that I have ever known—that is, when you are not under the influence of alcohol. My experiment is to be performed upon the fourth of next month. You will attend at the physiological laboratory at twelve o'clock. It will be a great occasion, Fritz. Von Gruben is coming from Jena, and Hinterstein from Basle. The chief men of science of all South Germany will be "I shall be punctual," the student said briefly; and so the two parted: The Professor plodded homeward, thinking of the great coming event, while the young man staggered along after his noisy companions, with his mind full of the blue-eyed Elise, and of the bargain which he had concluded with her father. The Professor did not exaggerate when he spoke of the wide spread interest excited by his novel psycho-physiological experiment. Long before the hour had arrived the room was filled by a zalaxy of talent. There was considerable applause from this eminent assembly upon the appearance of Professor von Baumgarten and his subject upon the platform. The lecturer, in a few well-thosen words, explained what his views were, and how he proposed to test them. hold," he said. "that when a person is under the influence of mesmerism, his spirit is for the time released from his bedy, and challenge any one to put forward any other hypothesis which will account for the fact of clairvoyance. Five minutes passed, and then ten, and then fifteen, and then fifteen more, while the Professor and his pupil sat stiff and stark upon the platform. During that time not a sound was heard from the assembled savants, but every eye was bent upon the two pale faces, in search of the first signs of returning consciousness. Nearly an hour had elapsed before the patient watchers were rewarded A faint flush came back to the cheeks of Professor von Baumgarten. The soul was coming back once more to its earthly tenement. Suddenly he stretched out his long thin arms, as one awaking from sleep, and rubbing his eyes, stood up from his chair and gazed about him as though he hardly realized where he was. "Tausent Teufel!" he exclaimed, rapping out a tremendous South German oath, to the great astonishment of his audience and to the disgust of the Swedenborgian. "Where the Henker am I then, and what in thunder has occurred? Oh yes, I remember now. One of these nonsensical mesmeric experiments. There is no result this time, for I remember nothing at all since I became unconscious; so you have had all your long journeys for nothing, my learned friends. and a very good joke, too"; at which the Regius Professor of Physiology bush into a roar of laughter and slapped his thigh in a indecorous fashion. The audience were so enraged at this unseemly behavior on the part of their host, that there might have been a considerable disturbance, had it not been for the judicious interference of young Fritz von Hartmann, who had now recovered from his lethargy. Stepping to the front of the platform, the

"Gentlemen," said the Professor, standing up, albeit somewhat totteringly, at the end of the table, and balancing his high old-fashioned wine glass in his bony hand, "I must explain to you what is the cause of this festivity. "Hear! hear!" roared the students, hammering their beer glasses against the table; "a speech, a speech!-silence for a speech! "The fact is, my friends," said the Professor, beaming through his spectacles, "I hope very soon to be married.

"Married!" cried a student, bolder than the others. "Is Madame dead, then?" "Madame who?"

"Why. Madame von Baumgarten, of course."

"Ha, ha!" laughed the Professor; "I can see, then, that you know all about my former difficulties. No, she is not dead, but I have reason to believe that she will not oppose my marriage.

"Oh, my darling! you do but joke in order to frighten your little Elise."

young man apologized for the conduct of his companion. "I am sorry to say," he said, "that he is a harum-scarum sort of fellow, although he appeared so grave at the commencement of this experiment. He is still suffering from mesmeric reaction, and is hardly accountable for his words. As to the experiment itself, I do not consider it to be a failure. It is very possible that our spirits may have been communing in space during this hour; but, unfortunately, our gross bodily memory is distinct from our spirit, and we cannot recall what has occurred. My energies shall now devoted to devising some means by which spirits may be able to recollect what occurs to them in their free state, and I trust that when I have worked this out, I may have the pleasure of meeting you all once again in this hall, and demonstrating to you the re-This address, coming from so young a student, caused considerable astonishment among the audience, and some were inclined to be offended, thinking that he assumed rather too much importance. The majority, however, looked upon him as a young man of great promise, and many comparisons were made as they left the hall between his dignified conduct and the levity of his professor, who during the above remarks was laughing heartily in a corner, by no means abashed at the failure of the experiment.

Now, although all these learned men were filing out of the lecture room under the impression that they had seen nothing of note, as a matter of fact one of the most wonderful things in the whole history of the world had just occurred before their eyes. Professor von Baumgarten had been so far correct in his theory that both his spirit and that of his pupil had been for a time absent from his body. But here a strange and unforeseen complication had occurred. In their return the spirit of Fritz von Hartmann had entered into the body of Alexis von Baumgarten, and that of Alexis von Baumgarten had taken up its abode in the frame of Fritz von Hartmann. Hence. the slang and scurrility which issued from the lips of the serious Professor, and hence also the weighty words and grave statements which fell from the careless student. It was an unprecedented event, yet no one knew of it, least of all those whom it concerned. The body of the Professor, feeling conscious suddenly of a great dryness about the back of the throat, sallied out into the street, still chuckling to himself over the result of the experiment, for the soul of Fritz within was reckless at the thought of the bride whom he had won so easily. His first impulse was to go up to the house and see her but on second thoughts he came to the conclusion that it would be best to stav away until Madame Baumgarten should be informed by her husband of the agreement which had been made. He therefore made his way down to the Gruner Mann, which was one of the favorite trysting places of the wilder students, and ran, boisterously waving his cane in the air, into the little parlor, where sat Spiegel and Muller and half a dozen other boon companions.

Had the green man who is depicted upon the signpost of that well known inn suddenly marched into the room and called for a bottle of wine, the students could not have been more amazed than they were by this unexpected entry of their revered professor. They were so astonished that for a minute or two they glared at him in utter bewilderment, without being able to make any reply to his hearty invitation.

"That was very accommodating of her," remarked one of the "In fact," said the Professor, "I hope that she will now be induced to aid me in getting a wife. She and I never took to each other very much; but now I hope all that may be ended, and when I marry she will come and stay with me."

"What a happy family!" exclaimed some wag. While all this festivity had been going on at the Gruner Mann, a very different scene had been enacted elsewhere. Young Fritz von Hartmann, with a solemn face and a reserved manner, had, after the experiment, consulted and adjusted some mathematical instruments; after which, with a few peremptory words to the jamitors, he had walked out into the street and wended his way slowly in the direction of the house of the Professor. As he walked he saw Von Althaus, the professor of anatomy, in front of him, and quickening his pace he overtook him.

"I say, Von Althaus," he exclaimed, tapping him on the sleeve, you were asking me for some information the other day concerning the middle coat of the cerebral arteries. Now, I find"-

"Donnerwetter!" shouted Von Althaus, who was a peppery old fellow. "What the deuce do you mean by your impertinence! I'll have you up before the Academical Senate for this, sir;" with which threat he turned on his heel and hurried away. Von Hartmann was much surprised at this reception. "It's on account of this failure of my experiment," he said to himself, and continued moodily on his way.

Fresh surprises were in store for him, however. He was hurrying along when he was overtaken by two students. These youths, instead of raising their caps or showing any other sign of respect. gave a wild whoop of delight the instant they saw him, and rushing at him, seized him by each arm and commenced dragging him along with them.

Now, Madame Baumgarten, who was looking out of the window and wondering why her husband was late for dinner, was considerably astonished to see the young student come stalking down the road. As already remarked, she had a great antipathy to him, and if ever he ventured into the house it was on sufferance, and under the protection of the Professor. Still more astonished was she, therefore, when she beheld him undo the wicket-gate and stride up the garden path with the air of one who is master of the situation. "Good day, sir," Madame Baumgarten remarked to the in-

"Yes, dinner, Martha, dinner!" howled Von Hartmann, who was becoming kritable. "Is there anything wonderful in that request when a man has been out all day? I'll wait in the dining-room. Anything will do. Schinken, and sausage, and prunes-any little thing that happens to be about. There you are, standing staring again. Woman will you or will you not stir your legs?" This last address, delivered with a perfect shriek of rage, had the effect of sending good Madame Baumgarten flying along the passage and through the kitchen, where she locked herself up in the scullery and went into violent hysterics. In the meantime Von Hartmann strode into the room and threw himself down upon the sofa in the worst of tempers.

"Elise!" he shouted. "Confound the girl! Elise!" Thus roughly summoned, the young lady came timidly downstairs and into the presence of her lover. "Dearest!" she cried. throwing her arms round him. "I know this is all done for my saket It is a ruse in order to see me.

Von Hartmann's indignation at this fresh attack upon him was so great that he became speechless for a minute from rage, and could only glare and shake his fists, while he struggled in her embrace. When he at last regained his utterance he indulged in such a bellow of passion that the young lady dropped back, petrified with fear, into an armchair,

"Never have I passed such a day in my life," Von Hartmann cried, stamping upon the floor. "My experiment has failed. Von Althaus has insulted me. Two students have dragged me along the public road. My wife nearly faints when I ask her for dinner, and my daughter flies at me and hugs me like a grizzly bear." "You are ill, dear," the young lady cried. "Your mind is wandering. You have not even kissed me once. "No, and I don't intend to, either." Vor Hartmann said with decision. "You ought to be ashamed of yourself. Why don't you go and fetch my slippers, and help your mother to dish the dinner?"

"And is it for this," Elise cried, burying her face in her handkerchief—"is it for this that I have loved you passionately for upwards of ten months? Is it for this that I have braved my mother's wrath? Oh, you have broken my heart; I am sure you have!" and she sobbed hysterically.

"I can't stand much more of this," roared Von Hartmana furiously. "What the deuce does the girl mean? What did I do ten months ago which inspired you with such a particular affection for me? If you are really so very fond, you would do better to run away down and find the schinken and some bread, instead of talking all this nonsense.'

"Oh, my darling!" cried the unhappy maiden, throwing herself into the arms of what she imagined to be her lover, "you do but joke in order to frighten your little Elise.

Von Hartmann gave a yell of fury, and dashing out of the room. in spite of the entreaties of Elise, he seized his hat and rushed of into the town, all dripping and dishevelled, with the intention of seeking in some inn the food and comfort which he could not find

As the spirit of Von Baumgarten encased in the body of Von Hartmann strode down the winding pathway which led to the little town, brooding angrily over his many wrongs, he became awars that an elderly man was approaching him who appeared to be in an advanced state of intoxication.

"Well, sonny," said the drunken man, surveying Von Hartmann and swaying about in front of him, "where the Henker have I seen you before? I know you as well as I know myself. Who the deuce are you?" "I am Professor von paumgarten," said the student. "May I ask who you are? I am strangely familiar with your features." 'You should never tell lies, young man,' said the other. "You're certainly not the Professor, for he is an ugly, snuffy old chap, and you are a big, broad-shouldered young fellow. As to myself, I am Fritz von Hartmann-at your service. "That you certainly are not," exclaimed the body of Vos Hartmann. "You might very well be his father. But hullo, sir, are you aware that you are wearing my studs and my watch-beer again. Now as Von Hartmann, overwhelmed by the many strange things which had occurred to him that day, passed his hand over his forehead and cast his eyes downwards, he chanced to catch the reflection of his own face in a pool which the rain had left upon the road. To his utter astonishment he perceived that his face was that of a youth, that his dress was that of a fashionable young student, and that in every way he was the antithesis of the grave and scholarly figure on which his mind was wont to dwell. In an instant his active brain ran over the series of events which had oc-curred and sprang to the conclusion. He fairly reeled under the

"Himmel!" he cried, "I see it all. Our souls are in the wrong bodies. I am you and you are I. My theory is proved—but at what an expense! Is the most scholarly mind in Europe to go about with this frivolous exterior? Oh, the labors of a lifetime are ruined!" and he smote his breast in his despair.

"I say," remarked the real Von Hartmann from the body of the Professor, "I quite see the force of your remarks, but don't go knocking my body about like that. You received it in excellent condition, but I perceive that you have wet it and bruised it, and spilled snuff over my ruffled shirt-front."

"It matters little," the other said moodily. "Such as we are o must we stay. My theory is triumphantly proved, but the com

"If I thought so," said the spirit of the student, "it would be hard indeed. What could I do with these stiff old limbs, and how could I woo Elise and persuade her that I was not her father? No, thank Heaven, in spite of the beer which has upset me more than ever it could upset my real self, I can see a way out of it."

"How?" gasped the Professor.

"Why, by repeating the experiment. Liberate our souls once more, and the chances are that they will find their way back into their respective bodies."

No drowning man could clutch more eagerly at a straw than did Von Baumgarten's spirit at this suggestion. In feverish haste he dragged his own frame to the side of the road and threw is into a mesmeric trance; he then extracted the crystal ball from the pocket, and managed to bring himself into the same condition.

Some students and peasants who chanced to pass during the next hour were much astonished to see the worthy Professor of Physiology and his favorite student both sitting upon a very muddy bank and both completely insensible. Before the hour was up quite a crowd had assembled, and they were discussing the advisability of sending for an ambulance to convey the pair to the hospital, when the learned savant opened his eyes and gazed vacantly around him. For an instant he seemed to forget how he had come there, but next moment he astonished his audience by waving his skinn? arms above his head and crying out in a voice of rapture, "Gott sei gedanket! I am myself again. I feel I am!" Nof was the amazement lessened when the student, springing to his feet, burst into the same cry, and the two performed a sort of pas de joie in the middle of the road.

When the worthy lecturer returned home that night he did not receive the cordial welcome which he might have looked for after his strange adventures. On the contrary, he was roundly upbraided by both his female relatives for smelling of drink and tobacco, and also for being absent while a young scapegrace invaded the house and insulted its occupants. It was long before the domestic atmosphere of the lecturer's house resumed its normal quiet, and longer still before the genial face of Von Hartmann was seen beneath its roof. Perseverance, however, conquers every obstacle, and the student eventually succeeded in pacifying the enraged ladies and in establishing himself upon the old footing. riage as inevitably as in simpler days they did. He may pay for having his buttons sewed on and his dinners cooked, and he may grow selfish and crabbed and critical and self-conceited in his single life, not realizing that he is his single life, not realizing that he is disloyal to society and preparing for himself a lonely old age. In primitive settlements and in frontier life, where women are at a premium and luxuries are few, men better appreciate women. A young army officer who had been serving a long time in a rough border country, rode one day thru a village where the Monday's wash was hanging on a line. He dismounted and sprang over a fence and kissed the hem of a woman's apron. That apron was to him the symbol of domestic bliss.

The work of the ARNOTT INSTITUTE in treating Stammerers and Stutterers is becoming more and more widely recognized as perhaps the most successful on this continent.

Following our own scientific methods, the institute treats the CAUSE of stammering—not the habit itself. It is aches the putient why he stammered, and once he understands that, it is comparatively easy for him to learn, in from five to eight weeks how to speak fluently and naturally, without any of the objectionable mannerisms commonly taught. As he knows why he is specifing correctly, the cure is permanent.

If you know anyone who stammers or stutters, in kindness to them advise them to consuit the ARNOTT INSTITUTE.

SHEP CAMP ON STAGE REALISM.

Shep Camp, who portrays the character of Bob Blake in "The Traveling Salesman," has this to say upon the subject of realism in plays:-

"Did you ever notice that no one in any profession is ever satisfied with a play about that profession, even tho this same play makes a tremendous hit with the general theatregoing public?"

"It's a fact, they never like to see themselves, as it were. Maybe they will like the play, but they will all tell you how much better you could have done it, and that the actor playing such and such a part should not do so and so under the conditions imposed by the story of the play. They never seem to grasp the idea that certain realities must be sacrificed, when the incidents of life are put before conglements as of life are put before conglomerate au-diences and crowded into a short space of two hours.

"If we follow exactly the actions of people characterized the play would run three or four months longer than a Chinese drama does nowadays." a Chinese drama does nowadays.

"Traveling men can always find fault with, a play about traveling men. College boys can always tell you what is the trouble with an actor trying to play a college boy. I never saw an actor, who liked the character of an actor in a play, and I meet 'drummers' every day, who tell me how I should every day who tell me how I should have staged 'The Traveling Selesman,' where it should be changed, and a
