SAILOR WITH KNIFE THREATENS POLICE.

Officer Finley's Life Was in Danger.

Ex-Soldier Drew a Knife on a Mill Street Hebrew and Cut Him Before His Arrest.

Officer Finley arrested a man this morning who laid out for that officer a rather choice programme. First the officer's intestines were to be cut out, but as the knife that was evidently the instrument of operation was taken away from him, when Finley bumped him down and held him with a broom, the officer drew the desperado's teeth, the schedule was changed to merely having Finley fired from the force, as he had fringed the officer's coat.

The man in question gave his name to the officers as Walsh but he was saying that he had served with the Royal Scots and had been with "Gat" Howard in South Africa and vowing vengeance on the officers because, they took the word of a Hebrew before his he would give no information at first but later intimated that he was a mate on a coasting schooner.

His reference to the Hebrews was because of a row he had with some of the Mill street second hand dealers that ultimately led to his arrest.

Early this morning he called at William Webber's store and sold to that gentleman a revolver and purchased a rain coat. Later he returned, about 11.30 a. m., and said he had sold the coat for fifty cents, and that that was all it was worth. Webber replied that he did not care if he had given it away. Walsh then began to abuse Webber, according to the latter's statement, and threatened him with all kinds of horrible mutilation and death.

At this point Samuel Webber entered the store, overheard the conversation and saw Walsh throw his coat back and reach his hand to his hip pocket as if to get a revolver. Instantly he grabbed Walsh's hand and a tussel ensued. Walsh did not have a gun but a long bladed knife, and in the mix-up Samuel Webber's hand was badly cut.

He was then forcefully ejected and the police sent for. Walsh made no attempt to get away, but quietly walked across the street and in a cigar and beer store bought six cigars and a package of cigarettes. It was in this store that Officer Finley arrested him.

On the way to the lock-up Walsh threatened the officer, saying he would cut him up in a most unscientific way, but the officer, who knew he had a knife on him, did not give him a chance to get his hand to his pocket. In the lock-up Finley arrested him before he knew what happened found himself on the floor, with Finley holding him down as if he was a child, while Officer Lee took from his pocket a bloody knife with a blade about eight inches long. Samuel Webber's cuts are not severe but are very painful.

Mutineers Seek Shelter in a Roumanian Port.

Undecided Whether to Disband or Go Back and Fight--Russian Baltic Fleet Demoralized.

timorous portion of the crew again gained the upper hand and agreed to surrender and disarm the ship. The rest of the squadron returned to Sevastopol without venturing to take up the gauntlet thrown down by the mutineers on the Kniaz Potemkin, and Admiral Kruger, after a council of war, finding that he could not depend on his crews, ordered the first drawn beneath the boilers of his ships, and gave permission to all the disaffected officers and sailors to quit the vessels and go ashore.

The sailors of the Ekaterina II. were known to be so mutinous that the battleship was left behind when the squadron started for Odessa, the whole crew dismissed and the ship disarmed.

The spirit manifested throughout the fleet goes far to explain the defeat in the Sea of Japan, as a large part of the crews, especially those of Admiral Nebogatoff's division, were drafted from the Euxine Sea and were evidently not in a mind to offer a stout fight.

A proclamation attached to the body of the Kniaz Potemkin's sailor Omilichuk at Odessa, the text of which was received yesterday, confirms the statement of the authorities that the revolt was engineered by social revolutionists. This makes the situation more serious than would have been the matter of simple dissatisfaction and gives rise to the greatest apprehension that the revolutionary organization may have conducted an equally successful propaganda among the soldiers, the results of which will be suddenly manifested when the army is called upon in some internal emergency.

CONSTANTINOPLE, July 3.—The Turkish admiral at Anadolu Kavak, Asia Minor, at the entrance of the Bosphorus are taking precautionary measures to prevent the possible use of that port by the mutineers of the Kniaz Potemkin. The Turkish fleet will permit the battleship to pass through the Bosphorus after sunset. They even suggested the Russian admiral to Constantinople with a blank shot while returning with Ambassador Selinoff, after a cruise in the Black Sea. Mr. Selinoff, who is expected to proceed to Constantinople, the guardship was held until morning.

LONDON, July 3.—A private telegram received here today from Odessa says the town is quiet.

ST. PETERSBURG, July 3.—A 40 m.—The unprecedented spectacle of a powerful modern battleship cruising around the coast of the Black Sea in the command of the rest of the Russian fleet frankly confessing his inability to cope with the situation and ordering the rest of the warships to be drawn up, has stupefied the Russian admiralty.

On the Georgi Pledometski, which cast in its fortunes with the Kniaz Potemkin after it arrived at Odessa, and landed its officers, the more loyal or EBEN PERKINS AFTER JOHN B. JONES. Eben Perkins is on the war path again. It will be remembered that some little time ago he secured a conviction against Col. Blaine, of the board of liquor license commissioners on a technical infringement of the Liquor Act. This time Mr. Perkins, after the inspector, John B. Jones, who has declined to be dictated to by Mr. Perkins, who is an American citizen, and act in a hasty manner without the advice of the commissioner.

Mr. Perkins wants two widows, who were situated on Mill street to be removed because, as a side line, they sell ginger beer and similar beverages after 11 o'clock at night. Mr. Perkins says that he will lay information at once. Mr. Jones is not worried.

TRAIN WRECK NEAR WOODSTOCK. (Special to the Star.) WOODSTOCK, N. B., July 3.—An accident occurred on the railway above here near Hartland, after the noon express went up. It appears the Tobique down train was shunting at Sawyer's mill when it collided with the express. Considerable damage was done to the cars, and a woman whose name is not known here had her leg broken, after a heavy rain all day yesterday had cleared off and is hot today.

G. E. SYNOD TOMORROW. Bishop Kingden and a number of other clergymen arrived in the city this morning to attend the meeting of the synod and a large number of others will be in today. About sixty clergymen and an equal number of laymen are expected to be in attendance. The session will begin with a communion service in Trinity church at 8 a. m. tomorrow and business will commence at 10 a. m. The meeting will be opened with roll call after which the bishop will make his annual report on the conditions of the diocese. The routine work will then be gone through and the reports of the different committees and boards received. The committees for the ensuing year will then be appointed. The session will likely continue till Friday morning.

A number of fishing parties returned today from their holiday outing and as a rule reported good catches although complaints were general against the weather man.

All Temples of Honor possessing any of the degrees are requested to reserve Tuesday evening and attend a degree council, by which twelve candidates will be given the first degree.

$10,000,000 FOR EDUCATION--JOHN D. ROCKEFELLER'S LATEST MUNIFICENCE.

The Standard Oil Magnate's Great Fund to be Used Without Restriction as to Religion or Territory--Carnegie Outdone.

NEW YORK, July 2.—Announcement has been made of a gift of $10,000,000 by John D. Rockefeller to the General Education Board to be devoted to the cause of higher education with particular regard to colleges as distinguished from universities. Coming so soon after Mr. Rockefeller's donation of $1,000,000 to Yale University, this gift was received with enthusiasm by all persons engaged in important educational work.

Dr. Wallace Buttrick, secretary and executive officer of the board for the states south of the Potomac and Ohio rivers and for Arkansas, Louisiana and Texas, informed the General Education Board of the endowment at a meeting held in its offices at No. 53 William street.

John D. Rockefeller, with other prominent men of New York, was instrumental in forming the General Education Board, in February, 1902. A very broad charter was obtained from congress and signed by President Roosevelt on January 12, 1903.

Immediately a gift of $1,000,000 from John D. Rockefeller was passed over to the board, especially designated for educational work in the south. Funds have been added by others since that time, and the board has confined its work hitherto mainly to educational work in the southern states.

According to the board the present gift differs from Mr. Rockefeller's first gift in the following particulars:—The principal of the gift of $10,000,000 made on the organization of the board could be distributed. The proceeds of the $10,000,000 is held as endowment, the income only being available for distribution.

The first gift could be used for common schools and secondary education. The second gift is confined to higher education and is designed especially for colleges as distinguished from the great universities, although there is no prohibition in the letter of gift against making contributions to universities.

Both gifts are alike available for denominational schools as well as for those which are non-sectarian. While the funds may be employed for denominational schools, they will be employed without sectarian distinction. No special denomination will be particularly favored, but the gifts will be open to approved schools of all denominations, although they cannot be employed for giving specifically theological instruction.

In distributing the funds the board will aim especially to favor those institutions which are well located and which have a local constituency sufficiently strong and able to insure permanence and power. No attempt will be made or to resuscitate moribund schools or to assist institutions which are so located that they cannot promise to be permanently useful.

READY FOR HENLEY REGATTA. HENLEY, Eng., July 3.—The Vesper Bells were rung on the course today and very hopeful. They have not the slightest fear of anything but the Leanders and Manager Thorne expressed himself most satisfied that his crew will carry off the grand challenge cup. Owing to the large number of entries three preliminary heats for the Thames cup and seven heats for the Diamond sculls were rowed off today.

FUNERALS TODAY. The funeral took place this afternoon at 2.30 of the late John J. Collins, from his late residence, 277 Charlotte street, and was largely attended. The funeral services were conducted by the Rev. W. S. Chapman, in the Church of St. John the Baptist, Internment was at the old Catholic cemetery. The pallbearers were as follows: H. Hooper, A. Porter, Capt. J. Ferris, John Welsh, F. Collins and Aid. McCollodrick. There were a large number of flowers sent by the friends of the deceased, including ferns from Mr. and Mrs. McKinnon, cross from Aid. McCollodrick, and cut flowers from Mr. and Mrs. F. McArthur.

The funeral will take place this afternoon at Musquash of the late Joshua Knight. The funeral services will be conducted by Canon Richardson and Rev. Mr. Baker, and internment will be at the Musquash cemetery. The remains were taken down at noon from her late residence, Sheriff street. Requiem high mass was celebrated in St. Peter's church by the Rev. Father Scully. Burial was at the old Catholic cemetery.

ANOTHER MONARCHY THREATENED.

The effect of Norway's example upon Hungary is being watched with anxiety by the continental diplomats to whom the growth of the independence sentiment in the latter state and the great opportunity now in the hands of those who favor a separation from Austria, is causing much disquietude.

The governmental system of Austria-Hungary—two parliaments owing allegiance to a common king—is markedly similar to that of Norway-Sweden and the causes for friction are even greater.

The Hungarian people have always been animated by a strong and deep desire for an independent national life, as the revolution of 1848 certifies, and this, quickened again by the complicated political conditions in the dual monarchy's easy escape from similar bonds, threatens to burst out anew into action—armed if necessary—that may bring freedom.

At present there is an absolute deadlock between the Hungarian parliament and the king which can apparently have no solution except the complete surrender of one or the other or a separation. In the general elections, in January, the government, under Premier Tisza, which was favorable to the union and submission to the king was overwhelmingly routed, and there came into existence the combined opposition of today, the "Independence Party."

These demands the crown has peremptorily and convincingly refused, and the newly elected parliamentary majority had to choose between relinquishing its principles or abandoning its prospects of power. It decided to hold to its principles, and it is apparently as firm in its demands as the crown is in its refusal of them.

So the king refused to allow the majority to form a government and has retained the Tisza ministry in power in spite of its protest. Meanwhile the Hungarian parliament is an inoperative body.

SIR WILFRID'S PRETENSES. It is a good thing that parliament did not go so far as to impose dual languages upon the Northwest, though there was the same constitutional reason for this coercion as for the imposition of separate schools.

The effecting of this. Sir Wilfrid pleaded in the language case that the constitution did not call for two languages and that he did wish to impair the liberty of the new provinces more than the constitution required.

Iris vividly recalled the anguish betrayed when this topic was inadacquaintance. Now he was reciting his painful history with the air of a man far more concerned to be scrupulously accurate than aroused in his deepest passions by the memory of past wrongdoings. What had happened in the interior to blunt these bygone sufferings?

Iris clasped her locket. She thought she knew.

"The remainder may be told in a sentence," he said. "Of what avail were my frenzied statements against the definite proofs adduced by Lord Vennor and his unfortunate ally? Even her husband believed her and became my bitter foe. Poor woman! I have it in my heart to pity her. Well, that is all I can say."
"Can a man be ripped so easily?" murmured the girl, her exquisite gesture of sympathy.
"It seems so. But I have had my reward. If ever I meet Mrs. Costobell again I will thank her for a great service."
Iris suddenly became confused. Her brow and neck tingled with a quick access of color.
"Why do you say that?" she asked.
And Lank, who was rising, either did not hear or pretended not to hear the tremor in her tone.
"Because you once told me you would never marry Lord Ventnor, and after what I have told you now I am quite sure you will not."
"Ah, then you do trust me?" she almost whispered.
He forced back the words trembling for utterance. He even strove weakly to assume an air of good humored badinage.
"See how you have tempted me from work, Miss Deane," he cried. "We have gossiped here until the foreman tired of our company. To bed, please, at once."
Iris caught him by the arm.
"I will pray tonight and every night," she said solemnly, "that your good name may be cleared in the eyes of all men, as it is mine. And I am sure my prayer will be answered." She passed into her chamber, but her angelic influence remained. In his very soul the man thanked God for the tribulation which brought this woman into his life. He had traversed the wilderness to find an oasis of rare beauty.
It was a beautiful night. After a balmy hot day the rocks were radiating their stored up heat, but the pleasant southwesterly breeze that generally set in at sunset tempered the atmosphere and made sleep refreshing.
Jenks could not settle down to rest for a little while after Iris left him. She did not bring forth her lamp, and, unwilling to disturb her, he picked up a relicious branch, lit it in the dying fire and went into the cave.

"Her name was Elizabeth-Elizabeth Morris." The young lieutenant of those days called her Bessie, but no matter.
"Well, you didn't marry her, anyhow," commented Iris, a trifle sharply.
And now the sailor was on level ground again.
"Thank heaven, no!" he said earnestly. "We had barely become engaged when she went with her uncle to Simla for the hot weather. There she met Lord Ventnor, who was on the viceroy's staff, and if you don't mind, we will skip a portion of the narrative—I discovered then why men in India usually go to England for their wives.
While in Simla on ten days' leave I had a foolish row with Lord Ventnor in the United Service club—hammered him, in fact, in defense of a worthless woman—and was only saved from a severe reprimand because I had been badly treated. Nevertheless, my hopes of a political appointment vanished, and I returned to my regiment to learn after due reflection what a very lucky person I was."

"Concerning Miss Morris, you mean?"
"Exactly. And now exit Elizabeth.
Not being cut out for matrimonial enterprises, I tried to become a good officer. A year ago, when the government asked for volunteers to form Chinese regiments, I sent in my name and was accepted. I had the good fortune to serve under an old friend, Colonel Costobell, but some malign star sent Lord Ventnor to the far east.
This time in an important civil capacity. I met him occasionally, and we found we did not like each other any better. My horse beat his for the Pagoda Hurdle handicap. Poor old Sultan, I wonder where he is now!"

"Colonel Costobell fell ill, and the command of the regiment devolved upon me, our only major being absent in the interior. The colonel's wife, unhappily, chose that moment to flirt as people say, with Lord Ventnor. Not happily learned the art of minding my own business, I remonstrated with her, thus making her my deadly enemy.
Lord Ventnor contrived an official mission to a neighboring town and detailed me for the military charge. I sent a junior officer, then Mrs. Costo-bell and he deliberately concocted a plot to ruin me, for the sake of his old animosity—don't remember that I had also crossed his path in Egypt—she because she feared I would speak to her husband. On pretense of seeking my advice she inveigled me at night to a deserted corner of the club grounds at Hongkong. Lord Ventnor appeared, and as the upshot of their vile statements, which created an immediate uproar, I—well, Miss Deane, I nearly killed him."

Iris vividly recalled the anguish he betrayed when this topic was inadvertently broached one day early in their acquaintance. Now he was reciting his painful history with the air of a man
far more concerned to be scrupulously
accurate than aroused in his deepest

E. LAWSON SMITH AND SON DROWNED.
Awful Holiday Tragedy at Carter's Point.

Father Lost His Life in Gallant Attempt to Save His Boy—A Grief Stricken Home.

A sad and tragic drowning fatality occurred early on Saturday morning at Carter's Point, in which E. Lawson Smith lost his life in a gallant but unsuccessful attempt to save his little son, George Eric, about seven years of age, from drowning.

Mr. Smith and his boy, in company with Charles Edwin Colwell, Mr.
Smith's brother-in-law, joined the latter's two-sail boat Hilda, one of the R.
K. Y. club fleet, on Friday evening, with the intention of making a day or two's trip on the river. They sailed from Millidgeville at five o'clock on Saturday morning, and reached Carter's point some four hours later. There they anchored and went ashore for their lunch. About noon they rejoined the vessel, and soon made ready to start.

All of a sudden both men were alarmed by a cry from the little fellow, who had been sitting on the stern deck, sliding along with the help of his hands.
Apparently he had slipped too far astern, lost his balance and fallen overboard. Mr. Smith jumped to the assistance of his son, and succeeded in reaching him, clasping the little boy in his arms and fighting hard to save him.
The weight of Mr. Smith's heavy clothing was all against the struggle, and after a heroic struggle both father and son sank to rise no more.

Mr. Colwell did what he could, but the boat having had the sails set and the anchor up, it glided away, so as to make it impossible to throw a rope far enough to reach Mr. Smith. Mr. Colwell called for help, and John Frederick, Arthur Henderson and E. N.
Jones, who live at Carter's Point, put out in row boats from the shore, but it was too late. The bodies had disappeared.

Mr. Colwell collapsed when he realized the awful tragedy and had to be taken ashore to E. N. Jones' house, where for hours he was in delirium.
He, however, got somewhat better towards evening, and was able to be brought to the city yesterday.

The Hilda, when the accident occured, was about 200 feet from the shore, but as there is rather a strong tide, the search for the bodies was not confined to any particular spot. Many of the R. K. Y. club boats helped in the search, but it was Diver Dehert, who went up Saturday evening along with Capt. Kenny on the Elaine, who finally succeeded in recovering Mr. Smith's body. It was only fifteen feet from shore and lay in about fourteen feet of water. His right arm was still in a curved position as when clasping his boy, but the body of his son had slipped from his hold. Mr. Smith had put up a gallant struggle for life. It was found his watch had stopped at twelve minutes to one.

Still the search went on for Eric, and many residents of Westfield, including A. E. Gilmour, Mr. Ballantyne, F. G.
Spencer and others assisted in it, some staying out all night in the hope of finding the body, but their efforts were not rewarded with success until yesterday noon, when Mr. Craig, from Carter's Point, found the body of the poor little chap about two hundred feet from where he had fallen overboard.
Both bodies were at once brought down to the city on the Serapha B. and taken to Brennan's undertaking room, and thence removed to their home, 159 Leinster street.

THE HOLIDAY.

Glorious Weather Enjoyed by Thousands Excursions in All Directions Well Patronized—At Camp Sussex.

After the long season of rain and if the weather of Dominion Day might considered ideal, and the different excursions were patronized accordingly. Beside Park drew its thousands, resorts hundreds, while the local tractions such as baseball, and parties were well patronized.
The Congregational Endeavor and friends to the number fifty enjoyed a pleasant out-day afternoon up river, going King's Point on the Lord Noel.
A large number attended a party held by the St. Vincent Society on the convent at Albert Village, there we planted under the auspice Methodist church.

of Adelaide Neilson. Miss Crozman holds the record run for a woman in Shakespeare. She appeared in "As You Like It" for one hundred nights in New York City. Next fall she is to make an elaborate revival of the Shakespearean comedy. She will produce "As You Like It" in New York on a magnificent scale and with as strong a cast as has ever been organized for the Shakespearean comedy. After the New York engagement there will be a brief tour, following which Miss Croz-man will produce a new modern com-

New York play. Miss Crozman's position among dramatic stars of this generation is illustrated by the fact that her Shakespearean revival has already awakened the interest of dramatic critics all over the country
