LONDON, July 20. - In the House of Commone today the Government was asked whether the pictorial posters used by M. Kirafly in advertising his spectacular play in the Olympia Theater were not in violation of the Merchandise Marks Act, the posters having been photographed in Cleveland, Ohio, and imported into Great Britain. Mr. James Bryce, president of the Board of Trade, said the Merchandise Mark Act applied only where misleading marks were used. The posters in question, he said, did not infringe upon the act. In the course of discussion it was stated the posters mentioned cost Kiralfy £7,000.

In India. LONDON, July 20 .- In the House of Lords today Lord Lansdowne asked if the Government intended to continue to prohibit the Government of India from levying duties on cotton goods imported into that country from England. Lord Reay, under secretary of India, said the matter was in no sense a party question but one which depended altogether on the future. The financial situation in India he said was causing no alarm. Lord Roberts warned the Government that the Indian people felt that refusal of English Government to put an import duty on cotton goods sacrificed their interests to English feeling. This, he said, ought not to be Anniversary of a Notable Event. LONDON, July 20 .- The 25th anniversary of laying the eastern submarine cable was celebrated this evening at the Imperial Institute, Sir John Pender, who is at the head of the Eastern, the eastern extension, the Cape, and other cable systems, presided. The Prince of Wales telegraphed congratulations. Several colonial gover-nors, a crowd of scientific men, many military and naval officers, and a host of noblemen and society leaders were present. United States Ambassador Bayard spoke on submarine telegraphy in its international aspect. On such occasion he said he could not be unmindful of that great American, Cyrus W. Field, to whom the world owed so much in the critical days of submarine telegraphy. He wished that Mr. Field had lived to be present. He was glad to speak his name in the assembly before him, and in presence of that English brother who took Mr. Field's hand in the hour of dire extremity and the head and back, inflicting serious great experiment. He had always regarded wounds. The captain then fired one bullet great experiment. He had always regarded submarine telegraphy as a blessed means of harmonizing the nations. The regular morning meeting of the Baptist Young People's Convention opened at 9 o'clock. The feature of the morning's proceedings was an effort to raise the sum of $20,000 for which amount the union is in debt during the year. A handsome sum was raised by subscriptions from the delegates, and direction was made to the delegates to appeal to their respective State unions.

The presentation of flags which took place about 11 o'clock was a splendid spectacle. Secretary Dr. Wilkins was in command. Ladies were chosen as standard bearers of the State flags, and under escort of the speakers for their respective States they marched to the platform, where oneminute speeches were given by the rep resentatives of the various delegations The great audience rose and greeted them, singing the hymn, "Onward, Christian Soldiers." The reception given the banner of Ontario and Quebec when it was raised was magnificent, the audience rising en masse and singing "God Save the Queen," followed by cheers for the Queen and the President of the United States.

The Pig Iron Bounty To Be Extended Five Years-Proregation Put Off Till Monday-The Premier Takes "a Night Off."

OTTAWA, July 20 .- In Parliament today, on the resolution extending the bounty on pig iron and billets of steel for five years, and allowing the same bounty on products of any furnace to be established for a period of five years after such establishing, Sir Richard Cartwright protested against binding Parliament to a fixed policy for ten years and announced he would refuse to be bound by it.

Mr. Foster granted that the policy was only binding so long as the party now in office remained in power, but there was after a period always the question of vested

Sir Richard Cartwright said he was prosed to any bounty on pig iron. The resolution was reported and the House went into committee on the Franchise Bill which applies the revised voters' lists to redistributed constituencies and provides a new form of ballot paper which will prevent spoiled ballots.

The discussion on the bill lasted until 1 clock. Before rising at I o'clock the Premier announced that the Government would not insist on clause "D" of the Insurance Bill thrown out in the Senate last

When the House resumed at 3 o'clock the estimates were proceeded with. The first item was $2,500 for repairs to stables, conservatories, etc., for the residence at Regina of Lieutenant-Governor of the Northwest Territories. This expenditure, with another-a revote for a similar purpose-makes over $5,000 which is being expended this year upon that mimic court. The question of the cost of the Lieutenant-Governor's new residence was inquired into by the Opposition. From the replies of the Minister it was seen that the residence has cost between $40,000 and $50,000, and that it is fitted up with a billiard hall and every other luxurious convenience.

Messrs. McMullen, Mulock and Mills (Bothwell) strongly protested against the acrease of expenditure in these offices in view of the present temper of public opinion with regard to them.

The items were finally passed. After attempting to proceed in committee with Mr. Haggart's bill to compel purchasers of railway tickets to sign receipts, Mr. Haggart withdrew the bill.

Prorogation will not take place until Monday. Premier Thompson was detained at home tonight, having given out under the strain of the session and the intense heat.

A CRACK AT CANADA.

Canadian Crushed Stone to be Shut Out of Detroit.

DETROIT, July 20. - The consumption of crushed stone has enormously increased in Detroit during the last three or four years. The new policy in pavement building requires a concrete foundation for even cedar block, as well as asphalt or brick paving, and the furnishing of crushed stone for mixing with cement in making this concrete has become an important item in local traffic. Some of the stone is brought in from quarries at Newport and elsewhere, but by far the greater portion as is said, is imported from Canada, being the product of quarries in the vicinity of Amherstburg. While crushed stone is not specifically mentioned as a dutiable article in the Mc-Kinley law, the Detroit custom house authorities held, up to last fall, that it was an "unenumerated manufactured article" under section 4, and liable accordingly to a duty of 20 per cent ad valorem. Dakota. | case to the board of general appraisers. The report of the neminating committhat the stone should be admitted free. Collector Hopkins had the privilege of appealing the case to the United States court within 30 days after the decision was rendered. No appeal was taken, however, and since that time Canadian crushed stone has been coming in without the payment of duty, the effect of the decision being to stimulate activity of the Amherstburg quarries, where crushed stone has been turned out in much larger quantities than before. The sum of $1,100 paid in duties before the decision was announced was refunded to the importers.

The attention of the Treasury Department was called to the matter some weeks ago and it was referred back to Mr. Wood for a thorough investigation. His report thereon was carried by him in person to Washington a few days ago and is understood to have taken the ground that crushed stone is clearly dutiable under quiring an expensive plant. Now the news comes from Washington that Secretary Carlisle is convinced of the soundness of this position and is about to issue an order directing the collector at Detroit to exact a 20 per cent duty on all future importations of stone.

The imposition of the duty will make lot of difference in the plans of some of those who have gone into the business. A recent addition to the plant at Amherstburg is a big $15,000 crushing machine. The importers will probably take the case to the board of general appraisers again, and if the decision is for the second time favorable to the importers, the collector can take advantage of the opportunity neglected, of appealing to the United Ratepayers paying the installments as they become due according to the above dates, will not be charged interest, nor will discount be allowed. If either of the said installments is not paid during the time above specified, a 5 per cent charge will be immediately added thereto. Any ratepayer paying the whole of his taxes during the first 30 days of August will be allowed a discount of 3 per cent off the second installment, the payment of which he might have deferred till October. Rates amounting to less than $6 are not subdivided. The collectors are not authorized to receive the second installment until the first installment, with all charges thereon has been paid. The Gold From Their Teeth Pays for defunct pauper. Hood's plaintive wail-

Rattle his bones over the stones: He's only a pauper whom nobody owns is now out of date. The guardians know better than to act so recklessly, for often the party concerned is the possessor of a set of teeth which contains a good deal of gold—last relic of more prosperous times-and in the interest of the ratepayers the precious metal must be secured and turned into pounds sterling. Often, too, they are the owners of rings or tiny trinkets, not pawnable, but still containing as much auriferous value as not a few modern gold mines. These have to be collected and also converted into cash by means of the melting pet. In the Holborn union the melting process takes place once a year, and has just been accomplished for the present season. The jewelry dealt with is what is found on paupers who die friendless and unclaimed in the various establish-This week rings, chains, brooches and trinkets have been melted down, and produced a bar of gold, estimated as eleven karats, and worth about £40. A good portion of it was got from the plates of artificial teeth. Mr. Walton said that on one set of artificial teeth there was at least £4 worth of gold. The proceeds are paid into the common exchequer of the union .-London Telegraph.

Centracts for Repairing the Breakwater

-New Asseszors-A Lockup. The main business at the London West Council meeting last night was the granting of contracts for repairing the breakwater in various places. After considerable discussion the following tenders were granted: John McPherson, for repairs on Ann street, at $85; Neil McNeil, at foot of Wharncliffe road, $19; Joseph Butier, on Leslie street, $14 50, and Saunby street, Messrs. R. F. Lacey and R. Jarvis were appointed assessors at a salary of $35 each. Mr. James Howie asked for a plank sidewalk from Center street to his house on Cherry street. Referred to board!

works. It was decided to place a notice in the papers stating that all back taxes must be paid by July 30 to save a further charge of 10 per cent on taxes. Councilor Moore wished to enact a bylav against peddlers and hawkers in the village. It was decided to look up the law and see whether they had jurisdiction in this matter. As there is much complaint about boys swimming in the river, the village constable has been instructed to arrest any parties violating the village bylaw in this matter. Bylaw 282, establishing a lockup on the premises of R. W. Ward, on Dundas street, near Kensington bridge, was carried. The Registrar-General, who had been communicated with, stated that Mr. Bartram. the late clerk, would be requested to hand over to John Simpson, the new clerk, all forms and papers in connection with the registrarship. Some stormy discussion was raised on the payment for a tile drain which was laid in the village. It will be paid at once. A large number of accounts were passed. The following were present: Councilors Moore, Hammond, Scarrow, and Hamilton,

THE STEWART CASE. Mr. Stewart Pays a Visit to Pictou-Congratulated by His Many Friends on His Restoration to Health. PICTOU, N. S., July 16,-Good news sometimes travels as fast as bad news, which is proverbially fast. Many people here knew that Mr. Allan Stewart, of Springton, P. E. I., had been for many years afflicted with kidney disease and gravel. It was known, too, that last year he was so bad that public opinion put him down as likely to die soon. Mr. Stewart fooled publie opinion, though, for he began using Dodd's Kidney Pills, and ten boxes of then competely cured him. When he paid a flying visit to this city a few days ago he received many hearty congratulations on his restoration to health and improved appearance. Dodd's Kidney Pills have never yet failed to cure in this part of the Dominion.

David Tisdale, M. P. P., Paints a Rosy Picture of It. WINDSOR, July 20 .- David Tisdale. M.P.P., has this to say of the proposed St. Clair and Erie Ship Canal Company, of which he is a provisional incorporator: The Lime Kiln crossing, the reefs and shoals at Colchester and the bad spots at Grosse Pointe, are serious impediments to navigation. Boats cannot draw more than sixteen feet over these spots, which are so rocky it is almost impossible to deepen or remove them. Our canal will be thirteen miles long, from Lake St. Clair to Lake Erie, with a descent of four feet, and we purpose to dig it twenty feet deep, with 72 feet width at the bottom. The ground through which it will run is soft, and we will have easy digging, and we figure on saving 120 miles of distance or twelve hours of time for ordinary boats. What the owner will have to pay in tolls he will make up in the amount saved in time, fuel, wages and increased carrying capacity of the larger boats. "When the canal is finished then Detroit can have her bridge to Canada, a project that will incalculably benefit that city and against which vessel-owners will no longer have reason to kick." These incorporators of the canal, the act of incorporation of which has passed the Canadian Parliament, will meet at the Russell House, Detroit, tomorrow: William C. Baxter and Winfred C. Porter, of Minneapolis; L. Frank Lukens, of Mil-waukee; Charles T. Towne, of Duluth; Edmund G. Arnot, of Brooklyn; David Royal Art Union Edmund G. Arnot, of Brooklyn; David Tisdale, of Simcoe, Province of Ontario, and D. Farrand Henry, of Detroit.

HOLIDAYING IN PORT STANLEY. Good Times at the Rotel Fraser-Some

Recent Guests. There is no more delightful watering place in Canada than Port Stanley, and no more cheerful, enjoyable and well-equipped summer hotel than the Hotel Fraser, now owned by Mr. T. Douly, a man of great experience and carefulness. The hotel is this year patronized by many old-time guests, but there are not a few visitors for the first time. One of these, from Chicago, said to the ADVERTISER representative the other day: "Port Stanley is a delightful place. Here, on the heights, when all over the country they are sizzling, we are as cool as if in midocean. We are glad that we have discovered Port Stanley, and fortunate that we can find accommodation at a hotel so well managed as is Hotel Fraser." This sentiment is echoed by visitors generally. Port Stanley is bound to grow in public favor as a summer resort. Among the guests arriving within the last two days were the following: W. A. Williams. Detroit; James A. Burton and wife, Chicago; Mrs. George E. Casey, Belleville Geo. R. Patullo, Woodstock; Mrs. (Canon) Richardson and family, London; Miss Elliott, London; A. A NEW ENTERPRISE!

What the Salvation Army is Doing With Victoria Hall.

Poor Man's Shelter and Food Depot-A Boon to the Needy and Deserving -Mrs. Cemmandant Booth Coming.

It is generally known that the Salvation Army have purchased the Victoria Hall,

The gallery is being taken out of the auditorum, and a new floor, which will have a gradual slope towards the platform, will be said over the entire part of the main Ladies' Lisle Thread Gauntlets, retail hall. The platform is being remodeled acprice 25c, 3oc, 5oc; we will clear the cording to the most approved S. A. style. The old arch tops are being taken from the windows and replaced by square ones. This hall is to be used for Sunday and large week night meetings, while a smaller hall will be made in the old gymnasium on the amphitheater style for the smaller and private meetings of the local soldiery.

Offices are to be fitted up in the building for the execution of the business in connection with the Western Ontario Provincial headquarters which has hitherto been done in a private house at 301 Simcoe street. Quarters are also being made for the accommodation of the officers in charge of the corps.

The south portion of the building is to be fitted up as a "poor man's shelter," and "food depot." This will be provided with a separate entrance from the main building. The ground floor will be occupied as a cheap "food depot." The second flat will be divided into a reading room and bedrooms, while the third will be fixed up with cheap bunks for the accommodation of poor men. The building is to be thoroughly cleaned and decorated throughout. On the vacant lot adjoining the building, in connection with the "shelter," will be established a woodyard, so that when a man turns up asking relief, and yet having no cash, he will be able to do a small amount of work, when he will receive as payment a ticket of admission to the "shelter," where he can have a good wash, a comfortable bed and a good meal, and vet feel that he has paid for the same. This accomplishes a twofold end-it helps the individual and at the same time discourages pauperism. Of course special consideration will be given in ex-treme cases. Tickets can be issued to any gentleman who is charitably disposed, which will be honored by the officer in charge, who will collect payments for the same periodically. The alterations will cost from $2,500 to $3,000, which with the first cost of the building will bring the total of the scheme to about $13,000. Any donations towards the same will be thankfully received by the army people who are canvassing the

The financial receipts for the year were $3,691 37, and disbursements $1,987 80, leaving a balance on hand of $1,704 57. The assets of the chapter amount to $20,708 67. During the year 730 have been added to the membership.

A Mixed Diet.

Experiments and experience prove that a mixed diet is necessary. Observation shows an habitual excess of any one or more of the great divisions of food over and above ates the popular antidote to pain, throat the wants of the body will result in the production of a constitutional derangement, and these derangements or diseases often become chronic. Chronic disorders are not readily removed, but a continued course of treatment with Eseljay's Liver Lozenges has been proved to radically build up the whole digestive system. These Lozenges are 25 cents a box, or five boxes for $1.

THE BUSINESS OUTLOOK

As Reported by the Commercial Agencies of Dun & Cc. and Bradstree . NEW YORK, July 20. - R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says: The effect of the great strikes have not vet entirely wern off, and meanwhile disagreement between the two Houses of Congress has made tariff uncertainties more distinct and impressive. It follows that the customary tests of the condition of business are less instructive than usual. The financial situation is somewhat less favorable, because the exports of gold have been re-

Behind all other embarrassments there is a remarkable narrowness of demand for finished products. In all quarters there is much disappointment because after the stoppage of work for months there appears scarcely demand enough to keep supplied the establishments now in operation-little more than half the producing force in the country. The failures have been 236 in the United States, against 467 last year, and 44 in Canada, against 25 last year.

Bradstreet's says: The disappearance of the great railway strike of 1894, the revival of regular freight schedules and the customary movement of produce and merchandise by water and rail have done much to restore something like the preceding volume of trade. The most encouraging statement is merely that general business is only approaching the usual midsummer proportions. The return to work of the potters at Trenton and Wheeling, employes at Pullman, tube works at McKeesport, Pa., afurther return of cokeoperatives in the Connellsville region, and of coal miners in Western and Southern States, together with nearly all the recently striking employes, will furnish more industrial employment within a fortnight than at any previous date since April 1.

Larger eastern business centers report a eeling among jobbers and other wholesale dealers favorable to a revival in trade as soon as the tariff legislation shall be definitely settled.

There are 212 business failures reported in the United States this week, against 229 last week, as compared with 527 in the corresponding year ago, when the effects of financial panic were making themselves severely felt.

A good demand for Manitoba flour at Montreal is reported, and stocks are ample. General trade is quiet. Inactivity characterizes wholesale lines of business at Toronto. Farmers throughout Ontario are so much merit. He announced that Lonbusy harvesting, and country dealers find trade dull. The usual midsummer quiet 100; Brussels-Stratford, 85; Berlin, 82, and characterizes business at Halifax. The weather is favorable for crops through Nova Scotia, Prince Edward Island and New Brunswick. Bank clearings at Ham- of cheering. Mr. Pococke, the successful ilton, Toronto, Montreal and Halifax amount to $20,287,000 this week-an increase of about 4 per cent over last week, as well as over the total for the corresponding week last year.

From the London News: It gives an impressive idea of what subterranean London is tast becoming to learn that on emerging from the river the new city and Waterloo line will, in its passage up Queen Victoria street, run for a part of the way under the low level main sewer, which in its turn runs along beneath the district point in the city we shall have, first, a busy main thoroughfare, below that a steam minus at a depth of about 63 feet below the another line-the Central London-which will lie at a depth of 80 feet.

MUSIC EN MASSE.

The Great Choirs' Excursion and Competition at Sarnia.

London Wins the First Prize-A Close Contest-The Victors Cheered.

The London choristers who visited Sarnia on Thursday were delighted with their experience. As they were the prizewinners, this is only natural. The local arrangements and the accommodations were superior to those of the previous year, and the 4,000 excursionists enjoyed the river breezes and natural attractions of the tunnel town as well as the musical treat presented on a huge scale. The crowd, after arrival, lunched in true picnic fashion at Bayview Park and then seated itself in the big grand stand. The programme commenced with the overture to 'Zampa" by the magnificent Waterloo band, followed by the chorus, "Holy, Holy," from over 1,000 throats, Prof. Avers, of St. Thomas, leading. The effect was grand, Mayor Proctor read an address of welcome. The choirs followed with other choruses under the leadership of Messrs. Freeland, of Stratford, Zoelver, of Berlin, and Pococke, of London.

The competitive concert in the evening at St. Andrew's Rink drew an aucience that filled the big building. The mayor presided, and the performers, stationed on an elevated platform, made an imposing, artistic battalion. The Waterloo band led off with a selection from "Les Huguenots." Then the choir, the audience and the band rendered in one rousing chorus the dear old hymn, "Rock of Ages."
The competition lay between London Berlin, Brussels and Stratford combined and St. Thomas. Mendelssohn's "Nightingale" was the number to be sung by all, and each choir sang in addition a selection of its own choosing. The shading and phrasing of the Berlinites, who led off, were extremely good, and put the Londoners on their mettle. The latter gave the "Nightingale" with splendid results, and their execution of "The Merry World is Free" evoked rounds of applause. St. Thomas and the Brussels-Stratford contingent followed. The judges were Prof. Aldous, of Hamilton, and Prof. Tripp, of Toronto. Prof. Aldous informed the audience that it was difficult to discriminate in don had received 88 points out of a possible St. Thomas, 78. The audience had evidently picked out the winner in advance and the decision was the signal for a burst leader, was warmly received as he stepped forward and led the entire company in the National Athem. He received the prize baton and his choir the badges of victory The male choirs' competition was enacted in alternation with the other event, Berlin winning, with Waterloo second and Brussels third. The local party arrived home after midnight. All speak in the highest terms of the way the crowd was handled by the G.

Mr. Pococke's clever and prize-winning choir was composed of the following: Sopranos-Mrs. James McCormick, Mrs. Wm. Essex, Misses Gott, Aggie Gilmour, Grace Goldsmith, Etta Wright, Annie Smallman, Grange, Taylor, F. Donald, L. Donald, M. Bradford, M. Murray, Berrigan, J. Nicol, M. Griffiths, Gourley.

Between the upper and the nether millstones of plutocracy and vagrancy, of capital and labor, of the trust and the trades union, of the monopolist and the demagogue, of the corruptionist who would vitiate legislation by bribery, and the rioter who would set it aside by violence, the public, loving law and order and equal privileges for all men, seems to be grist for

Taking a Telephone to Bed. A doctor's profession requires him, if he seeks convenience and comfort, to have the telephones-one in his office and one in his bedroom. As any one who has to pay tribute to the telephone companies knows, their charges hardly represent the progress McWatt, Barrie; J. Malloy, Hamilton; W. underground railway. So that at this that has been made in other lines in the world in cheapening commodities. But necessity is the mother of invention, and a railway, then a huge metropolitan sewer, docor in the east end found a way to have then an electric railway, reaching its ter- the convenience of two telephones and yet only pay for one. He has his telephone streets, and here it will communicate with hung upon hooks in his office, the connections being made by the telephone coming in contact with an electric board which he has had constructed. He also has wires run to his bedroom, where another electric board has been placed. The doctor may be said to take his telephone to bed with him every night. He takes it from the hooks in his office, carries it under his arm up to his bed room, and places it upon the hooks there. Should any calls come during the night, he can answer them without leaving his room, thereby getting the use of two telephones for the price of one.

Now that there is practically no Conservative party to lead his desire to get out will be naturally stronger than ever. The Baptist Young People of Canada and the United States have held a most successful convention in Toronto, in which several thousands of delegates have parsicipated. The representatives are a fine type of people, as was to be expected in a Church of the standing and influence of the Baptist Church on this continent. This denomination has always occupied advanced ground in Ontario and in the Dominion, while in the United States, from which the majority of the delegates in the convention came, some idea of the stand-ing and influence of the Baptists in the neighboring country may be found from the report that any reliable contractor would have executed the same amount of work in the same time for $160,000, whereas United State census recently printed:

Only two other religious bodies in the United States exceed the Baptists in point ists occupy a strong position. For a long time they had within their ranks the vorld's most celebrated preacher, Rev. C. riends of liberty and of progress. We rust that the delegates will have a good department to the contractor for labor ime. Certainly Toronto is decidedly mored in having assembled within its counds a convention representative of so $4 50, and $9 20 for other work for which arge and influential a body.

A RIVER THAMES BOULEVARD. Ald. J. W. Jones made a valuable suggestion at a meeting of the London City Council, the other evening, which should not be lost sight of. London, as has frequently been pointed out in these columns, is an admirable mercantile center. Our factories, our wholesale stores and our retail establishments excel in point of completeness any to be found in cities of the same size on either side of the border. We have everything to attract buyers here. Can we not make the city a firstclass holiday resort for the population of Western counties, thereby enabling the city and country populations to mutually

The city has practically done nothing in recent years to encourage the advent of pleasure seekers and holiday makers. Rather have our people been busily engaged in having Londoners carried to other points to spend their spare time and cash. There should be some reciprocity.

No city in Ontario is better situated from a railway point of view. Visitors can be brought to this city by a dozen and one lines of railway every lawful day in the week, and can be given ample time to enjoy themselves in this neighborhood. Does the city do anything to encourage such visitations of outsiders? Next to nothing, except during the holding of the Western Fair. Is it not time that a reform took place, and that those interested in the prosperity of London, without regard to political or creed differences, got together to persistently promote the welfare of the city by diverting the stream of visitors to London and its delightful surroundings rather than to rival communities?

Ald. J. W. Jones agrees with us in thinking so, and we believe there will be many enthusiastic indorsers of his view. Briefly stated, Ald. Jones suggests that the River Thames and its surroundings, down as far as the romantically situated waterworks park, should be put into a condition to attract excursion and other parties from a distance, and to form a means of contributing to the enjoyment of the citizens of London as well. The idea promulgated is to have a boulevard on either side of the river as far as the waterworks, with an electric railway line down one side and up the other, supplemented by a carriage roadway. is a pleasant exercise, but where is the It seems to be a foregone conclusion that the electric railway will be run to the waterworks, and in the arrangements to be come to with the electric railway company, French treaty on the ground that spaps the city, and county municipalities affected, an amicable bargain might be reached for duly sharing the expenditures incurred. the companies for the performance of any The electric railway authorities would undoubtedly be benefited by the construction of the boulevards, so would the townships of Westminster and London, through the building of new residences along the river banks which would be thus encouraged, while the property owners on the route would be so manifestly benefited that election of any candidate to a Legislature they could surely be relied on to grant the bare right of way.

> We venture to say that with good boating accommodation, the electric cars running down one side of the river, across a bridge to the other side, and back to the city; with a splendid drive along the beautiful banks of the Thames, the London river resort might be made most attractive to visitors as well as to citizens.

What would it cost? Not more than it would be worth. Who would bear the expense? Let it be apportioned in equity; it can be met without a doubt if the civic up the project in earnest. They cannot too soon go about the preliminaries and discover from the engineer's survey and from a canvas of the property owners just what difficulties there regarding other public works frauds: "That in March, 1889, a contract for the construction of a graving dock at Kingston, Ontario, was entered into by the Government with a contractor tendering as A. K. and M. Connolly the sum of $43,621 50 in connection with their claim for works done on the Kingston graving dock, under the fictitious name of A. C. Bancroft; that the said payment to the said N. K. and M. Connolly was highly improper under the circumstances herein set forth, and is deserving of the censure of this House."

The scheme, if properly carried out, would make London a center for holidaymakers-purchasers from London's factories and London's stores, at the time when such patronage is most required-Now is the time to act.

Hon. Wilfrid Laurier's motion with regard to gifts of public money to railway corporations:

"That within four days after the opening of each session, the Minister of Railways shall lay upon the table of the House copies of all agreements made by any of the companies with the Government, together with statement of all payments made by the Government up to date for subsidies earned by any of the said companies, and the orders-in-council authorizing such payments. That within a month after the payment to any company of any portion of the subsidies the president and manager of said company shall furnish to the Auditor-General a statement under oath showing if the whole of the subsidies so paid to the company have been applied in the manner herein intended, and that a statement shall be supplied by every contractor of the company who is to receive or has received the payment out of any such subsidies or out of the proceeds thereof, and that within four days after the opening of each session the Auditor-General shall lay all such statements upon the table of the House. That all such documents thus laid upon the table of the House shall be referred to the committee on public accounts, to be by them investigated in the same manner as the public accounts. That every officer nd director of the said companies, and every person having a contract with any of work, the doing of anything, or the furnishing of any goods, effects or materials, and having or expecting to have any claim or demand against the company by reason of such contract, who either directly or indirectly, by himself or by any person on his behalf, subscribes, furnishes, or gives, or promises to suscribe, furnish, or give, any money or other valuable consideration for the purpose of promoting the or to Parliament, or with the intent in any way of influencing or affecting the result of a Provincial or Dominion election, is guilty of a misdemeanor and liable to a fine of not less than $100 and not exceeding $1,000; unless the value of the amount or thing paid, offered, given, loaned, promised, received, or subscribed, as the case may be, exceed the last mentioned sum, in which case the fine may be raised to a sum not exceeding such value, and also to a term of imprisonment not exceeding one

These motions were voted down by the Parliamentary majority at Ottawa, on the demand of Sir John Thompson. That result does not discredit the resolutions. A WOMAN'S GIFT.

Something About Mrs. Hayden's Endowment of Harvard.

A remarkable gift has been made to Harvard University quite unparalleled in the world. This is the bequest of $5,000 to found a fellowship for the benefit of poor and deserving colored students, preference to be given to the students of medicine. The remarkable fact about this gift is that it comes from a former slave, Harriet Hayden, who was formerly the property of a Kentucky slave owner. Harriet lived as a slave until after her marriage and the birth of her child, when one night she, with husband and baby and a fellow slave, escaped to Canada. The Haydens got through all right, but their companion was captured and taken back. The first act of the Haydens, after they had contrived to get work to do, was to send $650 to secure the release of their unfortunate comrade. Harriet Hayden's child died in the civil war while bravely fighting under Admiral Farragut.

CRICKET.

DETROIT VS. LONDON. The strongest cricket team that London could put in the field faced the crack eleven of the Detroit Athletic Club on the beautiful crease of the Asylum grounds yesterday, and a two days' match was begun. The weather was perfect, and a large crowd from the city enjoyed the game and incidentally the charming surroundings. The result of the first day's battle was satisfactory from a local standpoint. In the first inning Ross and Grew mowed down the wickers of the visitors, and the side was retired for 69 runs. Then the London batters encountered the terrific onslaught of Burrows and Roberts, the best bowlers in Michigan. As the score shows the attack was very destructive, five Londoners succumbing without a run. But in H. Pope the men from Michigan met a veritable stone wall, and his performance was one of the most brilliant ever seen on a London crease. Between the time he went to the wickets and returned with 98 to his credit he gave only one possible chance, and that when he had made 48. His score included no less than eighteen fours. And with little or nothing. However, London compiled 164 in the aggregate, which gave her a complete lead over Detroit.

The Detroit eleven began their second inning late in the afternoon, and when time was called at 5:30 had 48 for the loss of two wickets, and their prospects were rosier. Burrows was still at bat for 21. The match will be continued today. The D. A. C. has just finished a series with Toronto and Hamilton, coming out with even honors. Yesterday's score: LONDON. THE WHEEL. THE DONLY ROAD RACE.

The finish of the regular Donly road race (handicap) from St. Thomas to Port Stanley last night was witnessed by hundreds from London and St. Thomas, who elimbed Fraser Heights to welcome the dusty wheelmen or encourage them up the mountain. Five handsome prizes were offered, London securing four and St. Thomas one. The distance, including the climb, was 9 miles and 2 yards, and the record, 28 minutes and 50 seconds, was held by Radway. The streets of St. Thomas are being torn up and the start had to be made from the bridge to the south. The record from this point was fixed at 27:30 and a special prize was offered to him who could beat it. Radway lowered it last night to 24:13, which is terrific riding. Devine, St. Thomas, rode a fast race and won the first place prize. The results clothes. There is one paragraph in our bylaws that should be wiped out. We refer to one by which it is made a high crime to ride in a bicycle race on Dominion Day at any spot in the Province of Ontario other than in those races that form part of the Annual Meet programme. The original intent of the law was good. It was framed when our membership was still below the first thousand mark and when our affiliated clubs fell short of a score. There were in those days barely enough racers to fill one programme, and if all our members gathered in one city we were not too many to be entertained. But times have changed. The army of Canadian wheelmen has grown to be a mighty throng, and a C. W. A. meet can stand on its own merits and without paternal legislation, and hold its own against all rival cycling attractions. Let us wire out the prohibitive clause, and put July 1st on the same footing as to sanctions as any other day in the calendar. The racing board can be trusted not to grant a sanction that would really detract from the meet, but their hands would not be so tied that they cannot give the right to hold single races of no general importance or interest, to ambitious towns and villages desirous of adding a bicycle race to a general programme of sports held in celebration of our national holiday. There are enough of us now in Ontario to make a C. W. A. meet a glorious cycling carnival and still leave plenty at home to run a race or two in each of twenty little towns. The ex-

Ridgetown in a friendly game on Friday by wrath is laughed to scorn by scores of racers. Our dignity will be conserved by gracefully yielding to a demand we cannot successfully withstand. The protection we wisely threw around cur annual meet is no longer required; we can now afford to deal generously with those who do not go with us to see our Canadian championship decided. - [Canadian Wheelman.

day submitted to the House of Represent-of the Democratic party on this question. After reading extracts from this letter Mr. GALT, July 20. - A game of lawn tennis | Hill went on as follows: "I approve every manly statement of the true attitude which Berlin 3. A return game will be played in or wisdom of the promulgation of this letter at this particular time. It may have been indiscreet, it may operate as a firebrand to spread the flames of discord already kindled among party friends honestly differing, as I am disposed to concede, upon questions of public and party policy. It may widen the breach already existing in this Senate, and in that view it may be regarded as unfortunate and ill-advised. But aside from the question of its mere expediency, I am here to defend the President's letter in so far as | ruined completely. it demands that the party shall not be led astray into the violation of Democratic pledges and principles. Upon the question of free raw materials the President is right, and you know it. You cannot answer his arguments. You cannot successfully dispute his propositions. You cannot doubt his sincerity and patriotism. You must yield, in the end, to his views. You cannot stand up against the sentiment of the great Democratic masses of the country, which will rally round the President in his contest with you on this particular branch of the schedule. The time to yield is now, before there is further humiliation, embarrassment and discord." Mr. Hill argued that the true Democratic theory of revenue requires that free raw materials should be its distinguishing feature, and that the Senate bill violates this Democratic theory. Mr. Hill went on to say: "In the light of the letter of the President, the House cannot honorably retreat. It has no other alternative except to insist upon its bill wherein it provides for free raw materials. The President cannot approve the Senate Bill after what he said in his remarkable letter. He arraigns the Senate, and intimates that the enactment of the Senate Bill means 'party perfidy and party dishonor." There was great excitement during the delivery of Mr. Hill's speech, but there The C. W. A. has outgrown swaddling and impassioned burst of oratory defended the course of the Democratic Senators against intimidation in the President's letter. A motion was made by Senator Vilas (Dem., Wis.) to recede from the differential duty of a cent on sugar, and this motion provoked a long discussion. No vote was taken on any of the propositions, and the Senate at 5:30 adjourned till Monday next. Owing to the condition of affairs in the Senate there was some talk among the Democrats of holding a general caucus

THE FIRST MAN

Who comes to us for Shoes will be disappointed, so will the second, because we don't supply men's goods, only Women's, Misses' and Children's. In these lines we do handle the best manufactured in Canada or the United States, in fact, as they are manufactured expressly to our order, we know what we are getting. There is no reason why our lady friends should not ring the elevator bell, go up and buy their footwear from us. Go up anyhow. Our reputation as regards shoes will be as good as that of our other popular departments. All that we want now is to let the people know that we have shoes to sell and they will do the rest.

THE FIRST WOMAN

To step into our store to-day who is looking for a tasty pair of Tan Shoes for herself or children, will be offered a truly splendid pair of Oxford Tans for 85c, worth $1 25. We have all the sizes from 21/2 to 7. The second lady will be similarly treated, and so on until this whole line of Tans is cleared. This is just the season for them, and who will ladies, never.

EXPLOSION AT FORT PULASKI.

Four Hundred Pounds of Powder Ignited,

While Two Tons More Were Stored Near By-Sergt. Chinn Fatally

SAVANNAH, Ga., July 20 .- An explosion of 400 pounds of loose powder at Fort Pulaski at 9 o'clock this morning, fatally wounding Ordnance Sergeant Wm. Chinn, seriously injuring Mary Washington, his mother-in-law and set fire to the fort, causing intermittent explosions of ammus nition and doing much damage to the structure.

Just after breakfast Sergt. Chinn went into his storeroom where he had his carpenter tools to do some work. In the room were 400 pounds of powder and a lot of fixed ammunition. He took a handful of powder from one of the casks, wet it at the pump, and then placed it in the middle of the room, igniting it in order to drive out the mosquitos. In carrying the handful of powder from the cask he left a trail of dry powder from the middle of the floor right miss a $1 25 pair at so low a the powder it burned along the trail, and make things move, and that up to the cask. As soon as he had ignited price as 85c? Those outside the 400 pounds exploded. There were the city may, but London three large explosions, each within a few pretty lively too. seconds of the other, and he was knocked down three times in trying to get out of the door. He managed to get as far as Sherman Austin's quarters, where the medicine chest was kept.

Mary Washington, his mother-in-law, who was approaching the door at the time, was knocked about 40 feet and badly burned about the face and arms. The storeroom where the explosion occurred adjoins the magazine in which is stored two tons of powder. There is a fire wall between, but the constant explosion of heavy loaded shells in the storeroom gave ground to fear that a breach would be made in the magazine wall. This kept everybody out of the way until Capt. O. M. Carter, who had charge of the fort, went down and made an inspection. It was found safe to enter the magagine, and 32 cases of powder were hurriedly taken out. The men then began to play on the fire with a hose and tonight had it under control. Within 200 feet of the fire was 200 pounds of dynamite, which, in case the magazine had blown up, would have exploded from the concussion. As it was, however, only the southwest corner of fort was damaged.

Two of the casements were burned, and the roof was destroyed by the bursting of shells. Sergeant Chinn belongs to the Twenty-fourth Infantry. He was burned and blistered over three-fourths of his body and will die.

THIRTY KILLED.

The Battle at Elucfields Was a Lively Affair.

NEW YORK, July 20 .- The Herald's Panama dispatch says: The correspond- for the ent at Port Limon, Costa Rica, sends word today that United States cruiser Marblehead has returned from Bluefields, and reports that the trouble in the Mosquito territory originated in the failure of the territory originated in the failure of the Nicaraguan Governor to pay the members AND GENUINE of the police force, who were mostly Jamaicans. As a consequence, the police joined the Indians and dreve out the Nicaraguans, hoisted the flag of the Mosquito reservation, proclaimed the Indian chief head of the district, and claimed British protection.

Thirty persons were killed in the conflict and 100 were wounded. During the fight the Marblehead landed a force of 60 men to protect the interests of resident Americans. The Nicaraguan commissioner has been driven from the Mosquito territory by Indians and Jamaicans.

HAD A MANIA FOR HOUSEKEEPERS.

Death of Evan Adams, Who Had Tried Nearly Two Hundred.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., July 20.-Evan Adams, locally famous as the man who had 187 housekeepers in the few years that have elapsed since the death of his wife, has just died at Mount Pleasant in the same little house where he was born 76 years ago. He was mar-ried before he reached his ma-jority and for over 40 years lived a happy wedded life, raising a large family of daughters. Mrs. Adams died about ten years ago, and her husband was stunned by his sudden bereavement. Soon he developed a mania for housekeepers. None could be secured near his home, so he procured one through the medium of a Philadelphia employment agency. She remained three days only and left without wages or a reference. She was replaced by another domestic, who in turn left within a week. Others followed in quick succession, none remaining longer than one week. Finally he secured No. 187, who, after a fierce quarrel, dreve him out of the house with an axe and chased him up a cherry tree. There she kept him all night. She swore if he came down she would kill him. Finally, after roosting in the tree for fifteen hours, he ventured down, and found his house smashed. This was the last housekeeper, and since he lived alone till his

Sent for Trial,

Squire Lacey has been engaged for a couple of days past in hearing the charge of seduction preferred by John Collier, Dorchester, on behalf of his daughter Edith May Collier, against Edward Kilbourne, a Belmont young man. The girl, while in the box, told a very straightforward story of Kilbourne's alleged deception. When she had finished her evidence she fainted, and on recovering became hysterical. Kilbourne admitted the act, but denied that there had been any promise of marriage. Squire Lacey sent him for trial this morning and he was immediately taken before Judge Edward Elliott and arraigned. He pleaded not guilty and elected trial by jury. He was remanded to the fall assizes and ordered to be bailed. His own bond of $500 was accepted with two securities of $250 each. Funeral of the Late Mr. Kiely.

The funeral of the late George W. Kiely took place on Friday from the family residence, Jarvis street, Toronto. There was a large attendance of friends of the Messrs. Sir Frank Smith, James Quinn, Capt. Murray, Lawrence Cosgrave, Hugh Ryan, Wm. Clarke, Charles E. Doherty, John L. Morrison, Thomas Flynn, Hon. Wm. Harty, E. E. Sheppard, and C. A. B. Brown. The funeral cortege, which was of great length, proceeded first to St. Basil's Church, where mass was sung by Rev. Father Walsh, assisted by Father Guinane. The remains were then taken to St. Michael's cemetery for interment, Deceased left an estate valued at about $1,000,000. The General Trusts Company have been appointed executors for the will of the deceased, which provides that Radway Lowers His Previous Record the estate shall not be divided for 60 years. The sum of $10,000 is left to Mr. James Gunn, and $10,000 to charities, to be selected by Mrs. Kiely. Incomes are provided for the children of deceased ranging from $75 to $100 per month for life. The chief revenues of the estate go to Mrs.

The Scottish Demonstration. Last (Friday) night the general committee appointed to arrange for the great Caledonian demonstration at Port Stanley married on Wednesday at 174 Shaw street, on Tuesday, Aug. 31, met in the rooms of Ald. J. W. Jones, treasurer. There was a large attendance and President Clarke was in the chair. It was reported that the committee on games had made a full list of sports, including 30 events. The baby show will take place at 2:30 p.m. sharp. There will be some splendid Highland dancing in costume, and no fewer than seven medals will be distributed. Two of these will be given to the best dressed boy and the best dressed girl, under 14, in Highland costume. THE "QUADRANT" SCORES AGAIN

frem St. Themas to Port Stanley S Minutes 17 Seconds-Remarkable Performance in the Donly Read Race-Distance, 9 Miles; Time, 24:13.

All honor to Frank F. Radway and his 'Quadrant" run. Since his settlement in London he has done some great work on the road, but his last night's ride eclipsed everything. Mr. Donly offered a special prize if he could beat the time limit of 27:30; and when it was learned that the nine miles-and climbing the big hill to the | sickness. For sale in 75c bottles by all the Fraser House included-had been done in 24:13, a big shout went up, for Radway had accomplished what probably no other rider in Canada can duplicate-at any rate, we have yet to hear of any other performance approaching this. The "boys" are prouder of Frank than ever and are confident he will render a good account at Detroit on July 28, where he is entered for the 25-miles Hilsendegen troad race-open to the world. Radway's wheel was the same little racer that has carried him to victory so often this season and it came through the ordeal last night splendidly. There were three "Quadrants" in the race and they got two prizes.

This day is charming. A last taste of summer pervades it. It is a week later, and Mr. Trefusis's going has become a thing of the past. Terry, leaning over the old balustrades of the balcony, looks to the south, where the light-blue clouds are blowing, and whence the stir of the sea can be heard. Larry, who is beside her, touches her arm, as if to bring her back from fairy-land, or whatever land it may be to which her thoughts have wandered.

"Yes?" says she, turning to him, her eyes a little vague.

"I wish you would try to help a fellow," eays Larry, in an aggrieved tone. "Help you? Of course I'll help you in any way I can. "Come down from the clouds, then," says be jealously.

"Oh, clouds!" says she laughing, a little preertainly perhaps. "Well, I'm down how: what can I do for you?"

"You can marry me!" says Larry, promptly, brilliantly. It is a tribute to his innate honesty that it never for one moment occurs to him that he ought not to ask her to marry him now, because of the money she has just come into. To Terry also it must be allowed that not one base thought of her cousin on this subject helps her to her decision.

She looks at him sadly.
"Well, will you marry me?" he asks.
"No. Larry, don't be angry with me. Every one"—pathetically—"tis angry with me now, I think. But you won't be, will you? I couldn't marry you. I don't love you that way. I couldn't indeed!"

'I believe you are in love with that confounded prig after all, in spite of your sending him away," says Larry, violently. "You have been moping for the last week; not a word for any one. Just look at your face." A deep Indeed, her face is a study. A deep Indeed, her face is a study. A deep blush has dyed it. So vivid, so painful is this rush of color that it brings tears to her eyes. All at once she knows that she is trembling. What had Lirry said to make her feel like this, and why should it touch her so? It is false!—false! There is no touth in it. Yet it is only by a determined effort that she keeps herself from bursting

"You are rude," she says, with a calmness that costs her a good deal. "If I blush, it is for you-your manner-the way you speak. It is better to say the last word at once, Larry. I shall never marry you: never. I"-tremulously-"would rather be an old maid forever than marry you."

"You won't say that when you are an old maid; and I'll wait till then," says the devoted Larry. Terry bursts into un-Our sweetest laughter with some pain is

"Ah, don't!" says she. "It will be no use; and look at my nose, Larry. I shall be a hideous old maid!" "Oh, I'll wait," asys he. "I'll chance the nose!" At this they both laugh.

Eight months have gone by, and once more sweet April is with us. The trees are all alive; each bush and shrub is casting forth its greenery.

Of Spring that breaks with all her leaves, of birds that build in thatch and eaves, of woodlands where the throstle calls. Of girls that gather cowslip balls, there are enough and to spare. Terry, stepping into the sweet upbursting garden, stands still, as if to take in all the delights around her. From a corner of the old orchard beyond, a stray wind has blown some blossoms on her head.

"Ah, it is sweet, sweet!" She sighs and throws out her arms pensively. The winter is over-the long, long winter.

She is glad to think of it as buried, dead, It was so terribly long, and so singularly dull, so inexpressibly areary. Fanny had gone abroad, Fanny, who had been so cold to her, so almost unkind. Just at the very last she had relented, and had asked Terry to go with her to Florence, but Terry had

There were the boys, she said. But the boys had not helped her to bear the duliness. Max had been sent to a grinder, preparatory to his entering college, and Geoffrey, with many tears on both sides, had gone to a good school at a great distance. So that, after all, the boys did not count. The winter had been almost too lonely for endurance. She had had no one to keep her company during the long cold nights. And sometimes, in her solitary sittings over the fire, she had thought of Trefusis. Her mind had gone after him a good deal when first he left her, and then had grown stagnant; but these sad silent evenings, when even the boys were away, compelled her to think of him again. Over and ever her brain traveled across the road that had had him

It was spring then too, and certainly he had made a little break in the monotony of her life. She acknowledged so much to her unwilling heart, and more than that. He had loved her! In the solitude of the winter she had learned to believe so much Yes, he had loved, in his own way-a high and mighty way, no doubt-but there was love in it, love all through it, for all that. anyway, and Terry, darling"—with the fondest air—so glad to see you again. How sweet you look! How sweet your garden looks !-how sweet it all is !'

"You especially," says Terry, eatching her and kissing her again.

'Oh, get away, flatterer." "When did you come?"

Well, half an hour ago, and ran down see you first thing. "Oh, Fanny!" "Yes, you ought to be conceited over it.

"Oh, as for that, quite, I think, He talks of you in the most usual manner. He has quite got over that, I think, so you need not be worried about it in any way. And you'll come up to dinner to-night, won't you? Better get over it at once, you know, especially as he is going to stay here Certainly I shall come," says Terry. She feels quite unconcerned, quite calm and composed. Husband your time that, when needed, you may have a large store to use wisely. Among the pains and aches cured with marvelous rapidity with Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil is earache. The young are especially subject to it, and the desirability of this Oil as a family remedy is enhanced by the fact that it is admirably adapted not only to the above ailment, but also to the hurts, disorders of the bowels, and affections of the throat, to which the young are specially subject.

I tried almost every conceivable remedy, outwardly and inwardly, to cure the sore but all to no purpose. I had often thought of trying Northrop & Lyman's VEGETABLE DIS-covery, so I got a bottle and when I had used about one half the sore showed evident signs of healing. By the time that bottle was done it had about disappeared and my general health was improving fast. I was always of a very bilicus habit and had used quinine and lemon juice with very little affect. But since using three bottles of the VEGETABLE DISCOVERY the biliousness is entirely gone and my general health is excellent. I am 60 years old. Parties using it should continue it for some time after they think they are cured. It is by far the best health restorer I know." 3 The chafe comes not by wearing chains,

Dr. Monro Gibson. The Interior has the following in reference to the distinguished brother of Mr. Lawrence Gibson, of this city: "Dr. J. Monroe Gibson is in no danger of becoming fossilized by the speeches and examples of slow-going Londoners. At an evening meeting connected with the Y. M. C. A., jubilee songs were sung and a few gymnastic exercises were indulged in. Some good people questioned the propriety of those exercises. Next night Dr. Gibson broughtdown the house by a few pertinent questions concerning the author of man's being. He holds that it is time we were done with the ungodly divorce of the secular from the sacred, done with the super-stition that God is to be acknowledged only in part of our life." Terrible Elevator Accident. An elevator accident that may terminate fatally happened at Stirling's shoe factory yesterday. The victim was Miss Maggie Pugsley, the 16-year-old daughter of Wm. Pugsley, 76 York street. She had only been employed at the factory for a couple of weeks and had been sent to deliver a message down stairs. She walked down one flight and then stepped to the elevator opening and called down. As she leaned over she did not notice the descending elevator, which was just above her head. Somebody called, but it was too late. The elevator caught the unfortunate girl on the back of the head, stunning her and forcing her down to the floor. Here her face and head were crushed and the lower jaw bone broken in two places. She was released at once and conveyed to her home a few blocks away. Two medical men were called in, but up to a late hour last night her condition was very critical, and fears were entertained for her recovery. Besides the broken jaw Miss Pugsley sustained severe injury to her head. Had the young woman been stooping slightly more forward her neck would probably have been broken. Miss Pugsley is a Christian young lady, who has many friends. Her parents will have much sympathy in their trouble. Ald. J. W. Melvin Stanley, of Albion, who that meeting, moved that the council offer was on the platform of the baggage car, the Canadian General Electric Company jumped, the car falling on him, injuring the privilege of lighting the city at the rate of 25 cents a night, the offer to be accepted within three weeks. Yesterday the company replied, and Chairman Parnell called a special meeting of the fire and light committee last night to consider the matter. Mayor Essery, Ald. O'Meara, Ald. John Heaman, the chairman, Engineer Graydon and Secretary Bell were present. The company's reply read as follows: "I beg to say that I am now authorized by the general manager of this company to accept the offer made by you on behalf of the corporation of the city of London for electric street lighting, namely: Twenty-five cents per light per night, upon the condition that the matter should be finally settled within one week, as there is a great deal of work to be done on the lines, and it is desirable that it should be all finished before the cold weather sets in. Among the chief attractions in the procession of the Cock & Woitby circus last Saturday was the yellow wagon, which conveys through all of Canada that most desirable of cures "Williams' Royal Crown Remedy". This is what Mr. Weir says, whose life it saved: "This is a most marvelous cure. I became pale as a corpse; my blood seemed to be turned to water. I had dizziness and a ringing noise in my head: my hands and feet were cold all the time, and my limbs were completely swoolen up to the body. Some doctors called it consumption of the blood. I got so weak that I could not walk, and finally took to my bed." Mrs. Weir says: "All Mr. Weir has told you is true. At times he lay for days unconscious and unable to take nourishment of any kind, and was reduced to a mere skeleton of 84 pounds: and I fully believe if we had been one day later in getting williams' Royal Crown Remedy he would be in his grave to day. ### THE OPEN AIR PARLOR.

AN ACTUAL PASSION FOR BALCONIES AND VERANDAS.

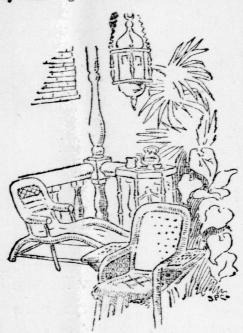

What the Evolution of the Country House Has Developed in Modern Architecture -Some Useful Things for the Veranda-An Inviting Corner.

The evolution of the country house in modern archirecture has developed an actual passion for balconies and verandas. And undoubtedly this recent departure has added tenfold to the beauty and luxury of rural dwellings. Skimpy porches or narrow piazzas that were formerly considered quite sufficient for all the purposes of comfort have broadened to-day into wide, stately galleries often encircling the entire building, and here and there bourgeoning into a breezy tea-room or airy umbra.

In nothing have we advanced more decidedly than in our appreciation of the charm of out of door living. From June till October we revel in unstinted ozone, and when country places are opened for the summer infinite care and taste are expended upon the furnishings of al fresco partments.

As it is well to be both practical and accurate when writing upon domestic topics, I stopped in a famous shop the other day to inspect and price the new Eastern goods they provide for just such use.

The first thing to attract my attention was some reed and bamboo screens, designed to hang between piazza pillars and thus soften the light. Sidarris are man of the finest of split canes held together by a weaving of knotted cord and so flexfble that they roll as readily as a hartshorn shade. Being colored a deep, dull green and so thin that tempered sunshine sifts through they are delightful for the windows of umbra or tea-room and every day become better known and more highly appreciated. These admirable Eastern shades sest from 75 cents to $7.

As for rugs so generally used on balcony floors these days, nothing quite equals in economy, service and beauty those of Japanese jute. Of course the Daghestan, Carbadh, Kazark and Anatolia carpetings are richer and more effective, but they are far too costly for hard out-of-door use and the colorings are rather dark. Jute survives the ravages of rain and sun, sheds dust, is soft without wrinkles and comes in China blue tints contrasted with white or deve color. Nor are they the least bit expensive, ranging in price from $2 to $10 or $20 each according to size.

For an octagonally shaped room I really think the big single rug is preferable, as the small ones have a tiresome way of rumpling up under one's feet.

The next matter of importance is the actual furniture used in the balcony. Rattan and willow are excessively pretty and picturesque, and with any sort of care last for many successive seasons. Long low cane chairs are most pleasing when pale striped Anatolia is used for upholstering them. This is a cheap Eastern wash goods with wrinkled surface, its white ground banded in smooth stripes of tan, orange, dahlia or dull blus. The material is extremely popular for covering hammock and yachting pillows, and a gracefully knotted fringe of white cotton is always used to fenish off ruffles or bald edges.

In addition to the settees there are delightfully luxurious lounging chairs with high backs, long seats and foot rests to be adjusted at will. These have extensions on one arm for writing gad and sketch book, and opposite a deep basket into which one's novel, fan and bonbonnier drop conveni-ently when cushions are adjusted for an afternoon nap.

It is well to get half a dozen different styles of chairs, as they give an attractive

SOME USEFUL THINGS FOR THE VERANDA. pillows freely about and then trust to your guests making themselves comfortable. In this connection I should not fail to mention those broad, thin pillows ineased in fine matting that are being used extensively this summer; also the round grass cloth cushions sold for $3 each that can be knocked about the lawn, carried when boating, tucked under the feet in a buckboard and always turn up taut and trim when needed.

There are no end to the Cairo stands, Turkish tabourets, graceful bam 500 tea tables and sturdy little stools sold for veranda sitting-rooms. The best tea table for the piazza is a medium sized tabouret in oak, mahogany, cherry, maple or black or white enamel, and the very finest costs less than $10. For the lawn I prefer those clever little Cairo stands that the waiter folds and carries under the arm when fetching the tea things out under the trees. With the tray they are worth all sorts of prices, from $6 up, but then the trays are charming specimens of Oriental workmanship and lend a distinguished air to the servings of ices, coffee and fruit al fresco

THE WAY TO WASH FLANNELS.

She Who Follows These Rules Will Have Soft Woolens.

The wise woman and the wealthy woman wear "flannels" all the year. The difference between those they wear in winter and those in summer is entirely a difference of weight and not of material. The coolest possible underwear for summer is the most zephyr weight flannel. It does not cling to the body as cotton stuffs do, and it has not the same depressing tendency to lie in damp folds about one's arms and back. But, unfortunately, it has exactly the same inclination towards thickening and shrinking when washed that is displayed by its winter relative.

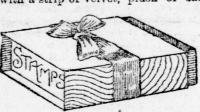

The washing to many flannels is tedious work, as each article must be done sepa rately, and in order that the result should be quite satisfactory the work should be accomplished with as much expedition as possible, for any woolens will shrink if allowed to lie about damp. To avoid delay it is best to prepare the soap the day before the flannels are to be washed. Cut a quarter of a pound of good yellow soap into shreds with an old knife and put into a saucepan containing a quart of water; simmer gently, stirring occasionally, until the soap is dissolved; then strain and set aside to get cold, when it will be found to be in a jelly. Take as much of this jelly as is required to make a good lather, using plenty of warm water, which should not exceed 98 degrees Fahrenheit. Add a small quantity of household ammonia, and after having shaken the things to be washed proceed to clean them in the soapy water, but do not rub dry soap on them. If they are much soiled a second edition of the soapy water will be necessary; they should then be rinsed twice in warm water, just a little cooler than that used with soap, and never put into quite cold water, as the difference in the temperature would shrink the wool.

There is quite a knack in wringing so as to abstract as much of the water as possible from the wet clothes, and if one does not possess this knack or a wringer the following will be found an easy way of freeing a garment from superflous moisture. Begin by squeezing as much water as possible from it, then roll the article up in a large, dry cloth or bath towel; place one end under foot and twist the rolled up cloth around and around until it is curled up quite tightly; then shake out the cloth and the garment, and repeat the operation, only placing the other end of the roll under foot on the second occasion. The garment must next be well shaken and stretched out to its proper size and shape, for as it is pulled when wet so will it remain when dry; it should be hung either in the sun or at a little distance from the fire to dry, but not too near, or it will steam and shrink; an occasional shake during the drying will help to raise the wool and make it soft. It is best not to iron any fabrics of this description, as this tends to make them close; however, if the slightly creased appearance which they have after being washed is objected to they may be smoothed with a cool iron. Whoever washes either winter or summer flannels by this method will find them always soft, fluffy, light and-crowning glory-

Handy for Postage Stamps. A nice new slip-drawer box, at least three inches long, two wide and an inch high, is required for this pretty stamp holder, says the Orange Judd Farmer. If not on hand they may always be obtained at the druggists. Cover the outside of the box with a strip of velvet, plush or satin of some handsome, bright color; gum it to the box and overhand the ends together at one lower side-edge. Pass a prettily contrasting satin ribbon around the box and tie it, as shown, at the top. Tint the ends of the drawer, with watercolor, to match the ribbon and print "Postage" on one end and "Stamps" on the other. When kept in such a receptacle stamps may always be readily found, the bright colors rendering the holder quite conspicuous on the desk.

Household Hints.

One woman tells that no matter how large the spot of oil, any carpet or woolen stuff can be cleaned by applying buckwheat plentifully, brushing it into a dustpan after a short time, and putting on fresh until the oil has disappeared.

The disagreeable odor which spreads through the house when onions are cooking will be hardly perceptible if a cup of vinegar is boiled on the stove at the same time the onions are cooking.

How a Curious Custom Originated. Particulars have been cabled regarding the attendance of Mr. Asquith, the English Home Secretary, at the birth of the little Duke of Kent. The origin of the custom arose out of the dispute that followed the birth of the eldest son of King James II of England. This led to the enacting of the saw which requires one of the Secretaries of State to be present whenever there is a birth in the reigning family of Great Britain. When the eldest son of King James was born the King's enemies maintained that the heir was not the offspring of the Queen, but an infant that has been procured elsewhere for the purpose. Since then a cabinet Minister has always been present in the room when a royal birth has taken place, and the custom has been

THE LATEST FASHIONS.

A JENNESS MILLER TAILOR-MADE LINEN DUCK GOWN.

The Distinguishing Characteristics of the Latest Gowns-The Fabrics Most in Vogue -The Smart Hats Worn by Well-Dressed Women This Season.

Some of the latest and dressiest gowns have long, full panniers which are met by jabots of lace so wide that they fill in the entire side of the skirt. This garniture is used, of course, only on very handsome dresses, and is adapted to Jenness Miller models with good results. A recent creation in doe-colored taffeta—"doe" cool, clear brown-has a waist pointed at back and front, a wide jabot of pale, cream-colored Medicis lace set in as a vest, very full sleeves showing a narrow edge of the lace set on in jabot style, and the skirt panniered and paneled with the jabots of lace as described above. This, is, of course, a very dressy gown, designed more for carriage or dinner use than for the promenade. Its full panniers cannot be worn by stout women, and even slender ones should be careful not to exaggerate them. The skirt is sewed to a Jenness Miller underwaist. The sleeves are not as long as those of street dresses, and the waist is cut a trifle low at the neck. Crepon, perhaps, is the most popular fabric worn this season. It comes in a countless variety of colors, and at its best is shown with a crinkled surface and a mohair thread. Sometimes, too, it has a corded effect, and sometimes it is flowered, but in any of these designs it is pretty and desirable. A valuable suggestion lies in the hint that crepon must be draped over silk to show its folds properly. Such silk, of course, should be as soft as possible. Taffeta is used for such purposes entirely this season.

Grenadine is now shown with a mixture of silk and wool. These goods show flowers, stripes and the boucle effects so fashionable recently in stylish wools. Canvas crepe is another variety which is attracting high favor. This goods shows crinkled, plain, lace, silk and satin stripes. It is one of the leading novelties.

In thick goods the covert suitings take precedence, the brown and blue mixtures being the latest favorites. It is a singular fact that the demand for these color mixtures in fine woolen goods changes with the advent of every season. Last spring people wanted conglomerate patterns of black and white, blue and gray, and now the fad has changed again to brown and blue, and blue and green.

There is a new material called worsted

silks which launder quite as well as cotton. New challies are in with borders in large flowers, these patterns being especially adapted for tea-gowns. There is a great variety of patterns in linens, the embroidered spots showing all colors singly and in combination. The latest thing in organdie shows a pond lily floating on a lake of palest green -which is, of course, the groundwork of the material. The new muslins, chiffons and, in fact, all the summer stuffs show a wondrous march of progress from month to month in the way of beautiful designs. No woman needs to be shabbily dressed this season because she can afford only a cotton gown.

The figure in the illustration shows a tailor made gown of linen duck which is appropriate for traveling, shopping or any of the plainer uses of warm weather. In color it is a clay brown, the waistcoat being sprigged with green. The short, natty acket shows a full ruffle on the bottom. The smart revers are the full length of the garment, and extend out over the shoulders in sharp points. The sleeves show that desirable moderation in fulness which our system recommends. The waistcoat is pique, the groundwork being the exact shade of the duck suiting. The four-inhand is of dark green satin sprigged with dark buff. The skirt is plain in front and pleated full at sides and back. The stylish straw hat is in clay brown, with sprigged satin trimming to match the waistcoat and tie. - Jenness Miller Monthly.

Some Smart Hats. The first shapes seen in spring and autumn are rarely to be relied upon as being the correct style for summer and winter wear. They are usually conspicuous, and are feelers sent out to try the popular taste. The jaunty little cavalier hats worn a year ago have yielded their place to the Hombergs and a modified Alpine, something on the plan of the old-fashioned English walking hat. These Hombergs were at first sold only by two high-priced hatters in town, but can now be bought in almost any shop. Not quite the same, but sufficiently like to make them satisfactory and vastly more economical.

Sailors are pretty much the same as we remember them. They have wide brims and medium high crowns, trimmed as usual with band and flat bows of ribbon. The fine straws are more in favor than the coarse ones.

Trimmed sailors resemble those of two or three seasons ago, with quite narrow brim and low crown. The correct thing is to have the straw look as though it had been exposed to at least one summer's sun and rain. It is called "burnt," and the color certainly is that of scorched straw. Leghorn hats, black and white, are as much the fashion as ever. With wash gowns nothing can be prettier, and now, made soft and flexible, they can be bent and caught up in a thousand and one dainty and stylish shapes. These hats are more becoming to young girls than to older women. A very charming one worn the other day by a woman of thirty-five pay. Mrs. Hazely—Perhaps they'd think was of black, with the brim left untouched 1 so if they so your wife dress better at point and sides, but caught up sharply at the back. A big Alsatian bow of black moire ribbon was put directly across the crown, the back loops falling over the turned up back brim, and with a curved rhinestone buckle.

Another of white leghorn was trimmed with lilacs, purple and white, and a soft scarf of purple gauze the exact shade of the lilacs. This hat was covered with lilacs above and beneath the brim, and the scarf went around the low crown through the back of the hat, falling in a long end, which could be twisted around the neck-An exquisite confection was trimmed with masses of different colored roses, and just a touch or two of black velvet ribbon to emphasize the freshness and beauty of the straw and flowers.

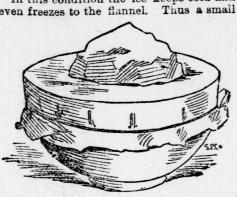

Large black hats with ostrich feathers are always worn-this year, perhaps, not so much as usual, but those seen are ex-tremely picturesque. The finer straws, like the old-fashioned Neapolitan, are much used and trimmed with feathers.

HOW TO KEEP ICE.

A Sick-Room Hint Which Certainly is Worth Knewing.

A very simple but little known method of keeping ice is to draw a piece of thick flannel tightly over some deep vessel, like a bowl, for instance, and fasten it there. The ice is placed on top of this drumhead and covered loosely by another piece of

In this condition the ice keeps cold and piece of ice can be kept near the patient all night, so as to avert many weary marches up and down stairs to the refrigerator. To break the ice a sharp needle or hat pin is the best thing. Force it in and you will be astonished to see how easily it will divide the ice.-Vesper L. George, in Youth's Companion.

Preserving Eggs.

Any method of preservation to be effective must be applied when the eggs are quite fresh and must aim at the exclusion of the air from the inside of the shell. The buttering process is very simple, as detailed by the Feathered World. A very small piece of good butter should be placed between the palms of the hands and rubbed well over the inner surface of both hands. When it is thoroughly melted, the eggs to be buttered should be taken in the hands and thoroughly covered over with the melted butter. The thinner the covering the better, provided that the whole surface be covered. The buttered eggs should then be placed in a basket in some dry, cool place and need not be moved until they are wanted for use. The other process of preservation is by putting them in lime water. A large earthenware vessel of some kind is most suitable for this purpose. There are several methods which 'vary in detail, but all are equally efficacious. The simplest plan is to fill the vessel intended to be used with water, put in it a couple of good sized pieces of unslacked lime. The exact quantity used is not of consequence, provided that there is not enough to saturate the water. As evidence of this there should always be a film of lime on the surface of the water. The lime at the bottom will do no harm, but rather good, as it will lessen the risk of any eggs being cracked when being put into the lime water.

The vessel may be filled with eggs at once, or these may be added day by day. Care must be taken that the eggs are all covered with water, and to prevent evaporation a cover to the vessel is of advantage. In case there is evaporation or leakage water must be added from time to time, and if there be not a film on top some fresh slacked lime should be added by sprinkling it in the water. Unless it is certain that all are fresh, every egg should be examined before placing it in the lime, as in this process one bad egg frequently leads to a lot being spoiled. Some salt is added to the lime by old hands.

Lan Tablet.

A writing pad that can be carried about and used on the lap, will be found very convenient, particularly in summer, when one likes to carry all possible work out of doors. For the foundation of the pad, shown herewith, cut two pieces of pasteboard the desired size; cover them with gray linen, drawing it smoothly over one side and gluing it down on the back. The pockets and corners are covered in the same manner over buckram, leaving the outer edge loose to fasten over the upper half of the pad. Stitch them on the inner side and bottom, and add loops of light blue satin ribbon to slip the pencil, penholder and rubber under. Above them fasten a pen wiper made of light blue felt or flannel, and to the left a blue envelope to hold stamps. A sheet of light blue blotting paper, slipped under the corner, completes the upper half of the pad. Glue the two pieces together and place the pad under a heavy pressure. Decorate it with a few flowers on the corners, and fancy lettering on the pockets. - American Agri-

A Hammock in the Sickroom. A hammock will often prove a boon to a sick person who has grown weary of the bed. It can be strung across a room from a door frame to the window casing and may be even hung right over the bed where the patient can slip into it at will. There are light cotton hammocks that are right pretty, and they are soft as silk to the touch. A hammock adjusts itself so perfectly to every inch of the body that it is a wonder that tired women do not try their resting properties oftener.

Boiler Explosions and Boiler Inspection.

The Canadian Manufacturer has the fol- [tions of the inspector carried out will owing to say about boiler explosions: This paper has frequently called the attention of steam users to the necessity of regular inspections, by a competent engineer, of all stationary boilers. Nearly all the explosions which have occurred in ate years have been boilers uninspected and uninsured. True, some of the wrecked boilers have been under the supervision of Government inspectors, but those under the charge of boiler inspection and insurance companies have escaped almost entirely, there being only three reported as having exploded in the last ten years. We give a cut of the power house of the Royal Electric Light Company of Montreal, showing the damage done by the explosion on May 24. This company has a battery of six boilers, used to develop power. Five of these were insured and regularly inspected. The sixth, a new boiler, was considered safe and was not insured, and, strange as it may appear to those who are not conversant with the use of steam, this boiler was the one to bring wreck and devastation to the property of the company. The damage as reported in the Montreal papers was close to $20,000." The Steam Boiler, Plate Glass Insurance and Inspection Company, of London, Ont., has the follow-ing quotation printed on their calendar: 'The unexpected generally happens.' That was certainly true in this case. No person has a right to place the lives of his fellow-men in jeopardy. It is the duty of every owner of a steam plant to take every precaution; not only to think, but to know, hat his boilers are in a safe condition.

Does boiler inspection pay? North Dakota has been experimenting with the question in a practical way, trying one year with, the next without. The year the inspection law was in force it got through the threshing season without a single explosion. The hill was then repealed, and the season just closed has witnessed seven explosions and seventeen fatalities. If human life is worth anything in Dakota, the inspection pays. - [Power.

It is only a few months ago that a frightful calamity happened near Dresden, resulting in the death of the engineer and little children and th wreck of the boiler. These casualties, of course, cause thinking men to take precautions, but the great majority of steam boiler owners are willing to trust to luck. We think it is high time that the Ontario Government took some means to prevent the sacrifice of lives and loss of property entailed by the carelessness of those in charge of boilers. Quebec has a law which makes it compulsory for all owners of stationary boilers to have them regularly inspected, recognizing the good work done by boiler insurance companies. The Government accepts the inspection of these companies in lieu of their own officials. The Mani toba Government at its last session passed a law similar to the Quebec law. There is no reason why there should be an explosion. Careful inspection and the instruc-result in safety. The risk of an explosion is reduced to a minimum. We think that the proper course lies in the direction of that taken by the Governments of Quebec and Manitoba. It has been said that a good manager is never to poor to economize. It certainly is economy, as well as safety, to have your boilers inspected at regular intervals by a competent engineer. Another strong point in favor of boiler in surance and inspection is that the lives of the men in charge are insured free of any additional cest, which certainly indicates that insurance companies have discovered by experience that inspection prevents explosions. The Steam Boiler and Plate Glass Insurance Company, of London, Ont., are reported to be about to institute open meetings, at which lectures on economy in engineering will be eers, and owners of steam plant. The Toronto Globe, of late dates, contained the following accounts of accidents.

THE EXPLOSION NEAR KAMLOOPS. Kamloops, B. C., July 5.—When the boiler of the steamer Queen exploded yesterday in North Thompson River, twelve miles north of here the craft was blown to pieces. Eight men were on board the boat. Fireman Joseph Russond and the cook, Joseph Priette, were instantly killed, and nothing could be found of their bodies. Captain Ritchie was seriously scalded, cut and bruised. Engineer Martin was badly cut. The other four men on board escaped with slight injuries.

FATAL BOILER EXPLOSION. Cayuga, June 28 .- A fatal accident occurred this afternoon at Cayuga Station on the M. C. R. The boiler in the sawmill of Wm. Stevenson, sen., of Indiana township, exploded, killing John Commer, the engineer, and fatally injuring Franks, a sawyer, from Wellandport. Commer was cut in two, and Franks' skull was fractured, Wm. Stevenson, jun., was badly scalded about the face. Frank Lathrum was also scalded. but not seriously. The mill is a complete wreck. The boiler was thrown 200 feet. An inquest will be held.

THE CAYUGA EXPLOSION.

Cayuga, June 30 .- An inquest was held last night before Dr. Thompson, in the town hall here, inquiring into the accident connected with the boiler explosion at the M. C. R. station, where John Commer was killed. Some very important evidence was taken including the evidence of practical engineers. No blame was attached to anyone for the accident. The verdict of the jury was "That the deceased John Commer came to his death by accident. We attach no blame to anyone, and the jury recommends that engineers professing to run boilers should stand some examination to show that they are qualified and competent for that business. We also recommend that all boilers should be officially examined every twelve months." While the inquest was in progress it was announced that Franks the second victim had died.

LESSON V, THIRD QUARTER INTER-NATIONAL SERIES, JULY 29.

The Youth of Jesus-Text of the Lesson, Luke ii, 49-52-Golden Text, Luke ii, 52 -Commentary on the Lesson by Rev. D

40. "And the child grew and waxed strong in spirit, filled with wisdom, and the grace of God was upon him." previous verse says that after all things written in the law had been performed for the child they returned to Nazareth. This first verse of our lesson may be said to contain all we know of the first welve years of His life. Since John the Baptist was filled with the Holy Spirit From his birth (Luke i, 15), we cannot think otherwise of Jesus, and that would explain His being "strong in spirit and filled with wisdom."

41. "Now, His parents went to Jerusalem every year at the feast of the passover." Three times a year all men in Israel were commanded to appear before the Lord in Jerusalem (Ex. xxiii, 17; Deut. xvi, 16), at the feast of the passover, the feast of weeks and the feast of tabernacles, and none were to appear empty. The time is coming when all the nations of the earth shall be represented in Jerusalem once a year to worship the Lord (Zech. xiv, 16).

42. "And when He was twelve years old they went up to Jerusalem, after the custom of the feast." It would be a journey of two or three days as they traveled then from Nazareth to Jerusalem, but nothing is said of the incidents of the journey.

43. "And when they had fulfilled the days, as they returned, the child Jesus tarried behind in Jerusalem, and Joseph and His mother knew not of it." He does not appear to have been the prodigy which the Apocrypha would make Him out to be, but probably a quiet, thoughtful boy whose mind was more in heaven than on earth, yet not so absent-minded as to be at any time or in the least degree disrespectful or disobedient, for He never sinned in thought, word or deed (II Cor. v, 21).

44. 'But they, supposing him to have been in the company, went a day's journey, and they sought him among their kinsfolk and acquaintance." Had He been the wonder working boy of the Apocrypha, they would hardly have left Him out of their sight, and great would have been the commotion in Jerusalem concerning Him.

45. "And when they found Him not they turned back again to Jerusalem seeking Him." While they had sacredly excluded all leaven from their food for days past, they would now think that they had not excluded all evil from their hearts and lives, else they might have been spared this retracing of their steps. Satan would be very busy at such a time suggesting all manner of doubts and fears, and we may imagine Mary full of upbraidings. His presence is peace and fullness of joy. Let us

46. "And it came to pass that after three days, they found Him in the temple sitting in the midst of the doctors, both hearing them and asking them questions." Not one, nor two, but three days of sorrow had they experienced because of Him and their neglect of Him, but over twenty years after this Mary had three days' deeper sorrow through no fault of hers. Where had He spent the days? Who had fed and lodged him? These and other questions we must wait to have answered. But we see the bent of His mind in the place and company and occupation in which

He was found. 47. "And all that heard him were astonished at His understanding and answers." He could say then in at least some measure, as He did later, "The words that I speak unto you I speak not of Myself" (John xiv, 10). We may also suppose that his questions would be in the line of pressing Scripture hard upon the precepts of man, such as "What is written in the law?" "How readest thou?" (Luke x, 26). His own answers would doubtless be in the very words of Scripture.

48. "And when they saw Him they were amazed, and His mother said unto Him: Son, why hast Thou thus dealt with us? Behold, Thy father and I have sought Thee sorrowing." They had learned that carelessness-going from the sanctuary-causes loss of Jesusthat is, communion-and one day's neglect had caused three days' anxiety. How often it is so in the spiritual lifea forgetfulness of Him for an hour, or not responding the moment He calls may lead to much anxious seeking for Him. See S. of Sol, iii, 1-4; v. 6, 7.

49. "And He said unto them: How is it that ye sought Me? Wist ye not that I must be about My Father's business?" People to-day seek him everywhere but in the one place where He is to be found. He will always be found in the sanctuary; not necessarily in a so-called place of worship, though He should be found there, but always in His word. Contrast His "My Father" with her "Thy Father." This is the first "My Father" of human lips used in reference to God, and the words of this verse are the first recorded words of Jesus.

50. "And they understood not the saving which He spake unto them." If even Mary understood not, what wonder that the apostles afterward understood not? How utterly helpless we all are, apart from the Holy Spirit, to understand the things of God! The things of God knoweth no man but the Spirit of God (I Cor. ii, 11). All the wisdom of Egypt and of Babylon could not interpret the dreams of their respective kings. None but a Joseph and a Daniel filled with the wisdom and the Spirit of God could

51. "And he went down with them and came to Nazareth and was subject unto them, but His mother kept all these sayings in her heart." Verse 40 covers the first twelve years of His life, and this verse covers the next eighteen years. Thirty years, unknown, he trod Galilee's sequested sod,

But His life was known to God,
Daily work at Joseph's call,
Daily duties howe'er small,
Yet he was the Lord of all.

52. "And Jesus increased in wisdom and stature and in favor with God and man. Physically He grew as other boys: spiritually He became filled with wisdom from above, like Joseph and Daniel, but in greater measure. All who admired goodness could not help look-ing favorably upon Him, while He did always those things which pleased the Father (John viii, 29). The Scriptures were His special and probably His only study and the Holy Spirit His great teacher. See our commands and privi-leges in Joshua i, 8; Col. iii. 16; John tiv. 26; II Cor. iv, 11.

A YOUNG EDITOR.

The Clever Little Fellow Who Runs "The Woodlawn News."

There comes to my office weekly "The Woodlawn News," which is edited, com-posed, printed and published by probably the youngest all-round newspaper man in the world. It is the property of my little friend, Fred. Partridge, whose father is a big superintendent in the great A. N. Kellogg Newspaper Company of Chicago, and its subscribers number somewhere near 300 of the nice people composing the "Woodlawn" suburb of the World's Fair

I wish I could reproduce the front page of the paper here to show my little friends who read this column what a neat and creditable sheet Fred's paper is, and pos-sibly stimulate some of them to make the attempt to furnish such pleasant, social and church gossip for their neighborhoods also. You can have no idea how much a factor this little paper, with its artistic rustic Brownie heading, has become in the social functions that materialize from time to time within its ken.

"Did you see it in the paper?" is a common expression, and the kindly, goodhumored bantering tone which distinguishes the editor makes the paper a welcome visitor every week to an ever-enlarg-ing circle of subscribers and friends.

In addition to the other, and routine, work mentioned as necessary to getting out the paper, Fred. canvasses for all his advertisements and does his own collecting. In the number immediately before me, there are 55+ inches of display advertising, which, at 40 cents per inch per month, gives the clever lad an advertising revenue of $22.20-or $5.55 per week. Then he has 15 lines reading notices at 5 cents per line, which makes his total advertising revenue for the week $6.30. His subscription price is 50 cents a year or one cent per copy, and will add another $2 to his weekly revenue, which is wonderfully good for a boy between 10 and 12-I don't give his exact age for Fred. is as touchy on this point as a girl, I suppose because he wants to appear as big a little man as he

There is, of course, another side to the story besides the revenue. There is the outlay in producing the paper. I will give you the dimensions, etc., and you may figure it up yourself. "The Woodlawn News" is a 4-page, 3 column per page paper, containing some 19,618 ems of composition in each number. 16x11 inches is the size of the paper over all, and the issue is between 200 and 300 copies weekly.

Fred's printing office is situated in the attic of his father's handsome residence, 6250 Lexington Ave., Chicago, Ill., but only his special and particular friends are ever invited to "see the elephant," and I draw the line in disclosing secrets I may not divulge. It is a good office and wellequipped, however, as may be seen from the creditable little paper which greets its subscribers weekly.

I close this sketch of the little Chicago lad whose friendship I am proud to claim by saying he is all his picture herewith given represents him to be—clever, pleasant, alert, and always "up to the eyes" in business, and giving one of the racy local paragraphs I find in his last issue:

'The event of the week in elite circles has been the exhibition of W. C. Coups' Collossal Aggregation and Stupendous Equescuriculum, all of which was exhibited in a twenty-foot ring without crowding the ring. Among the audience and occupying the Bleachers, were seen several prominent doctors, lawvers and real estate men from Sheridan avenue, with a sprinkling of deacons, vestrymen and elders from various other avenues. We refrain from mentioning names only on the understanding that they will buy reserved seats next time. Of course it was all on account of the children, but it is safe to say that never before in their history have the children of Woodlawn been the object of so much solicitous care on the part of their elders."

Young folks, doesn't that item convey much to you that we old folks cannot see? Parents, what think you of the view point PATHFINDER.

ALL THE WORLD OVER.

There is no poet laureate to celebrate, as Tennyson did, events of national interest. So the new little prince some day to be king has not had a line of verse sung about him except those that did not count, and that is almost as bad for a royal child as for an ordinary child not to have had a rattle. They say that Earl Rosebery wants to have Rudyard Kipling made laureate. What a stunning one he would be! By the bye, have you read those stories of his of the animals in the jungles of India? They were published first in St. Nicholas, and are now in book form under the title of "The Jungle Book." See if you ever read anything more fascinating in your

The very best food for the Polar regions, so says Dr. Frederick A. Cook, who went out as surgeon to the Peary expedition of 1891-92, is pemmican. When you hear what pemmican is made of you will wonder how any one can enjoy it. "It is a combination," he says, "of dried beef and tallow; the beef is pulverized, the tallow heated, and the two substances are mixed in equal proportions, with a few currants and no salt, but a little sugar thrown in. When the mixture cools it hardens into a solid that can be cut up into squares weighing half a pound, the allowance per man for each meal." A man, Dr. Cook goes on to say, can eat this food every day for months without ever tiring of it. An awful plague, called the Black Death, is raging in China. It is thought to be the same disease known as the plague which devastated Europe in the fourteenth and seventeen centuries

MYSTERIES OF THE DEEP REVEALED BY PHOTOGRAPHY.

Wonderful Results of Experiments by Prof. Beutan Off the Southern Coast of France-Fiction of the Coral Palaces Not Equal to the Truth.

Wonderful preparations are being made this year both by professional and amateur photographers for taking submarine pictures. Dr. L. Boutan, professor in zoology the Sarbonne University, has illustrated the possibility of taking pictures many feet under water and the world of science is greatly indebted to him for the interesting iscovery. He made some successful experiments last fall on the southern coast of France and began operations again as early as March. In the intervening time he was busy working on certain improvements in his apparatus, which makes him quite sure of being able to attain remarkable results during the coming summer. Of course, all photographers are watching his movements with intense in-

can be utilized at any depth of water, from a shallow river bed to several thousand feet below the surface of the ccean. During the spring he experimented in the waters of the Mediterranean, opposite Banyuls-sur-Mer, which is one of the French zoological stations near the Spanish frontier.

For the benefit of those who are eagerly waiting the time and opportunity for a successful descent Prof. Boutan gives some good advice. The beginner should first ascertain if his photographic outfit is waterproof, and next accustom himself to the diver's costume. He should descend many times before he thinks of taking a picture. He would do well not to venture into too deep water at first, but select some moderately deep spot where he can wade in or out without assistance. If he will wade in the water until his head is covered he will soon become accustomed to the sensation experienced when under deep water. When this is accomplished he can then think of carrying his kodak with him. Of course the beginner should select pure streams with clear water for his initial experiments.

Boutan wears the regular diver's suit and extra heavy leaden shoes so as to get a good foothold and steady his gait on the tom of the sea. He uses the ordinary outfit of a photographer, with the exception that he has it all protected by waterproof coverings against the dampness and water. He places his Leyden jars in a barrel, which is surmounted by a bell glass provided with the necessary lamp. The latter is a spirit lamp, to which is attached a receptacle for the magnesium powder connected with the usual pneumatic ball and tube. The photographs are taken by the instantaneous flash which follows the scattering of powdered magnesium into the flame. He has a branch tube connected with the pheumatic ball which forces a puff of air into the powder and carries it into the flame, exposing the lens at the moment of maximum light. The pictures taken at the bottom of the sea by this process show no material difference from those produced in the ordinary way by the instantaneous method with one exception, that the negatives have a peculiarly soft tone. As Boutan predicted, the plates have created a great sensation in scientific circles, being regarded as forerunners of a new era of development of the deep water researches.

Prof. Boutan writes entertainingly of the discoveries he made through the experiments at Banyuls-sur-Mer. It was this immediate neighborhood that was inhabited by the ancient Romans of the imperial era, and the ruins of the many splendid structures that once stood on the shore of the sea have now found a place of rest at the bottom where they have remained buried under the waters perhaps a thousand years or more. He describes a beautifully sculptured palace niche, partly covered by blue mud and prettily colored shells, in which he discovered a gigantic cuttlefish. Quick as a flash he snapped his camera and the picture was taken notwithstanding master cuttlefish's resentment which exhibited itself in a stream of dark liquid which he ejected toward the camera.

"When once down," says Boutan, "you are loath to return. When the novelty wears off and one becomes a little accustomed to his surroundings he can then enjoy the beauties of the deep. He is then apt to stay under water longer than he realizes. So many strange objects attract the eye and they must all be investigated and reproduced for the benefit of those who have laughed at the possibility of taking pictures at the bottom of the sea." Prof. Boutan has several plates showing those extremely peculiar little animals, the sea mice. These little queer creatures are about five inches long and one or two broad; their backs are covered with thick. silky hair, brilliantly iridescent, that looks something like matted felt. Their eyes are luminous, and as they creep through the dark caverns or appear suddenly from a crevice in the rocks the effect is startling. The architecture of the deep is artistic and picturesque. The coral palaces which one reads of in fiction are not helf so beautiful as those which really exist. The designs are so delicate and artistic and the coloring marvelously beautiful. Here a tint that is merely a suggestion of the pink flush that precedes a sunrise and further on the tone is deeper, till finally there is an intermingling of gold and pink which is indescribable. In these fairy palacee are a multitude of small red and blue bedied fishes having peculiarly elongated

The crabs are interesting as they crawl along the bottom of the sea. One surprised Boutan by crawling out of its house and swimming toward him on a tour of investigation. He kept still and Master Crab, after swimming around and viewing him from all sides, returned to his shell. Boutan noticed that the last pair of legs expanded at the extremity into a broad blade for swimming. The spider crab suggested "daddy longlegs," but they did not get over the ground quite so quickly, but once frighten them and you will see they can make pretty good time.

During the later expeditions to the bottom of the sea the professor has devoted considerable time to making pictures of the submarine plants. He says that few people can imagine the exquisite grace and brilliant hue which most of these aquatic plants possess. "I was much astonished," says Mr. Boutan, "on one occasion while wandering around the bottom of the sea to see a number of what happened to be brightly colored sponges deliberately come up to my camera as if to examine it and its proprietor. I had always regarded sponges as unable to indulge in any perambulations and hence my amazement However, the mystery was soon solved. What at first sight appeared to be sponges were a number of vain little crabs who, like the lamented McGinty, were aressed in their best suit of clothes, which consisted of many-colored sea anemone which was deftly fastened to their shell.

Some of these sea "landscape" views shown in Prof. Boutan's collection are the most exquisite effects artistically, and are really a revelation of the beautiful things that may be seen in the realms of the mer-What the submarine dredge has maids. failed to accomplish the submarine camera will do with ease. The great objection to the dredge was that most all specimens brought to the surface were more or less damaged or hopelessly entangled with one another. No really good idea could thus be obtained of the actual appearance of the plant when growing. All these objections are entirely done away with by using the deep sea camera.

When asked if he had had any exciting adventures with sharks or other ferocious monsters of the deep, Prof. Boutan laughed and said that after his experience in the deep blue sea he was inclined to look upon the stories of sharks, etc., that divers are so ready with, as being flimsy in the matter of truth. "The trouble is," says the professor, "that on account of the magnifying properties of the glass with which the helmet of the diver is fixed everything appears, especially in the water, of gigantic proportions. Thus an inoffensive minnow which happens to swim up to the eyes of the diver is magnified into a really amazing size. What the effect will be if, for instance, a gaudy, gamy, mackerel chances to be inquisitive may well be imagined. His appearance, aided by the diver's more or less fertile imagination, will be absolutely monstrous and correspondingly fierce. Aside from great scientific value Prof. Boutan's discovery promises to be equally important from the practical application to which it can be put. The submarine camera and electric pump combined were of invaluable assistance for divers when engaged in locating wrecks or in search for lost property. Should the diver find his vessel he does not need to descend an infinite number of times to ascertain the amount of damage done to the craft. He simply brings his camera down and takes half a dozen or more plates from whichever points he desires, and this done the rest is simple. With the aid of the devel-oped plates he can easily determine on what course to pursue to enable him to raise the sunken vessel. The portable electric lamp is of almost as much importance as the camera and can be used as a search light in hunting for smaller articles lost in the water. Some wide awake Italian merchants are talking of introducing this method in their extensive coral fisheries. It has been tried a few times with great success, and it is claimed that it would save fully half the time now spent in bringing this product to the surface.

All fun-loving people and novelty seekers will hail the advent of the submarine kodah with delight, and the electric lamp as well. In a short time no surprise will be felt upon being invited to accompany s few friends on a ramble beneath the waves. Bou will don your diver's costume and with lamp in hand start for a "pleasant stroll." One of the party may carry a kodak and all can have their pictures taken at the bottom of the sea. The less fortunate, who have not been invited to join the party, can be seen as they swim around over head, and a laughable picture hev will make. Prof. Boutan claims that the cost for making these submarine photographs is not any more than for the ordinary ones. Not a Drunkard's Paradise.

Renowned though Switzerland be for the reedom and democracy of its institutions, there is no country in the world that is so lrastic and severe in the treatment of inbriates. The laws vary in detail in the wenty-two cantons, but in their essential principles they are very similar and proride for the punishment not only of those persons who indulge in strong drink to xcess, but also of the people who supply the liquor in question. Drunkards are risited with penalties amounting to a maxnum of a year's imprisonment with hard abor and three years' interdiction from exercising the franchise and from the purthase of any alcoholic drink, while the lealers and innkeepers who permit their sustomers to become intoxicated, or who urnish "interdicted" persons, are likewise entenced to the payment of heavy fines, mprisonment and the forfeiture of license. Altogether, Switzerland can scarcely be onsidered a drunkard's paradise.

CHIEF JUSTICE RUSSELL.

A Master of Legal Tactics and Skill as a Cross-Examiner.

The official announcement made recently that Lord Russell-Killowen, better known as Sir Charles Russell, had been appointed Lord Chief Justice in succession to the late Baron Coleridge, did not cause any surprise. When the fatal nature of Justice Coleridge's illness was first made known, it was recognized that Lord Russell was his legitimate heir; and the only circumstance putting the succession at all in doubt was the question whether the Liberal Ministry would still be in power when the Chief Justice died.

Charles Arthur Russell-he laid aside the "Arthur" long ago-is an Irishman. He was born in Newry in 1833, studied at Trinity College, Dublin, practiced as a solicitor in Belfast, was admitted to Lin-coln's Inn in 1856, was called to the bar in 1859, became a Queen's Counsel in 1872, represented Dundalk as a Liberal member of Parliament from 1880 to 1885, and South Hackney in 1885-6; and had served in the last two Liberal Cabinets as Attorney-General. That is a summary of the new Lord Chief Justice's professional career.

Lord Russell is not a specialist in his profession, not an orator, not a master of style, and not a statesman or even a great politician, and his life has not been by any means an unbroken series of successes. On the other hand he has a wide general knowledge of law, coupled with the ability to turn it into special knowledge at any time, as a critic writing of him in the Green Bag has expressed it. He is a good Parliamentary debater, an effective speaker, a cogent reasoner and an excellent jury lawyer. He chiefly owes his success, however, to the fact that he is a master of legal tactics and the greatest living cross-examiner-at least in Great Britain. It is these two qualifications which have made him prominent in almost every case of note in the last 20 years. Other lawyers may have been deeper thinkers, better strategists; but when it came to tactics-- "handling troops in the presence of an enemy" in a military sense, in other words conducting a case in the presence of a jury, Sir Charles has had no superior.

He is a tall, strongly-built, white-whiskered, keen-eyed man. To complete the picture of him as it exists in the public mind add a pair of eye-glasses, a snuffbox and a red pocket-handkerchief. In cross examination it has been his practice not to bully a witness unless, as when the spy Le Caron confronted him, the witness beat him at his own game. This insinuating method was like that of Lord Coleridge himself, who is described as having by gentle words helped many a man into putting the noose about his own neck before he knew it. As a proof of Sir Charles' generalship a story is told how, in a certain litigation. the counsel for the plaintiff, in moving for a new trial, complained that "the Attorney General had carried the verdict with a rush." 'If we were to yield to that contention," returned Lord Coleridge, "it would be necessary for us to grant a new trial whenever Sir Charles Russell was 'on the other side,' "Another story told of him illustrates his bearing when in conference with brother lawyers. Sir Charles has not been very popular with his brethren, because he is apt to treat them rather imperiously; and his conferences have been described as being like the councils of war of a certain general who allowed no one to talk but himself. The story is that, at a certain conference, Sir Charles finally stopped to take breath; when an Irish barrister, associated with him in the case, broke in with: "Will you kindly call to mind, Sir Charles, that this is a consultation, and not a lecture?" The Parnell inquiry brought Sir Charles into the general knowledge of people on this side of the Atlantic. The result of that inquiry was one of his greatest triumphs. The artistic, even dramatic way in which he brings out his points was shown when he began with Pigott by desiring him to "write the word hesitancy"; and when he introduced his memorable speech by asking, "Who are the accusers?" and "Who are the accused?"

You may puzzle a long time over that word before you tell how to pronounce it. Take the last end first and read backwards, and you have the familiar word "notice." Thus it might puzzle you to learn that "Yrevocsid Lacidem Nedlog" cures incipient consumption and all scrofulous impurities of the blood, and is a sure remedy for piles, skin affections and all complaints due to deranged liver. Take the right hand end of your title and read backwards and you have the "Golden Medical Discovery," the famous preparation of Dr. Pierce, of Buffalo. Get hold of disease by the right end. Don't wait till the undertaker is the only man that can do anything. "G. M. D." cures consumption, lung scrofula, when taken in the early stages of the

Motto for the Week:

Are not all true men that live or that ever lived soldiers of the same army, enlisted under heaven's captaincy, to do battle against the same enemy-the empire of darkness and wrong? Why should we misknow one another, fight not against the enemy, but against ourselves, from mere difference of uniform ?- [Carlyle.

Writing of the great American railway strike and the consequences the New York Voice gives currency to a rumor that about the time the great Pullman company reduced the wages of its men it declared a good dividend of profits. This may have been, however, on other branches of its large business besides car building. It is also estimated that no reduction had been made in the large salaries of its chief managers. The Voice then lays down this broad principle: "No corporation that reduces the wages of labor before it reduces the dividends on its capital or the salaries of its officials is, as a rule, entitled to any sympathy from the public, especially when these dividends and salaries are on a magnificent scale." Such a broad rule would include many large corporations. The conflict between capital and labor is one of the most serious problems of our times.

in nearly all the universities. At the leges and universities young ladies are now being admitted, and are well holding their own in every department in which they enter.

What a horror some electors, and temperance ones at that, have of losing their votes! They would vote for a temperance candidate if they supposed there was any chance of his being elected, but - Griffin's Journal, a well known Roman Catholic temperance paper, has just been putting the case in this somewhat strong light: one way you vote for what you want, and maybe you get it. The other way you vote and surely get what you don't want." These same remarks, with a few changes suited to latitude, apply quite as forcibly to Canadian elections.

It now appears that all liquor dealers who are importing wines, whether they are French wines or not, are to have the advantages of greatly reduced import duties in the future. On Thursday of last week the Hon. Finance Minister informed the Ottawa Parliament that it was the intention of the Government to reduce duties on wines imported from all countries to the same low rate as those included in the new French Treaty. The annual loss to revenue by these reductions he estimates at $150,000, or something over double as much as on French wines alone. So much the harder for Canadian wine producers, who are likely to be pretty well crowded out of the business entirely, unless they, too, resort to the production of cheap and coarse liquors, calling them "wines." So much the worse, too, for the interests of temperance. Liquors will thus be made cheaper and more abundant, and a greater consumption may be naturally expected.

Someone has been well saying that "The labor question cannot be settled until the liquor question has been settled also." To some such words on a spree and—well, he will be a may sound like rant, but they are ruined man." words of truth and soberness. The terrible facts in connection with the late labor strike, and the consequent riots, anarchy, arson and bloodshed at Chicago are strong corroborative eviother great leaders in labor movements, who have given the whole subject careful study, do not hesitate to day are the direct outcome of the the peace, safety and well-being of all tion affecting the interests of the are so well guarded. While the Dominion Government were introducing their new, fast Atlantic steamboat service to the Commons last week, involving an additional annual expenditure of $750,000 a year, the Finance Minister also announced that their new reduction of duties on imported wines would probably involve an annual loss to revenue of $150,000. It will be remembered that earlier in the session he announced a reduction on the malt duties involving an annual revenue loss of at least $200,000. The candle seems to be burning pretty fast at both ends this year. The burdens of the general taxpayers are being made much heavier. The burdens of much lighter. At any rate the Government is doing something substantial to remove the objections of "the revenue question" from prohibition.

A single lie destroys that absolute confidence which for certain souls is the foundation of love.

The Chicago Lever, writing of the terrible experience that city went through in connection with the late railway strike and riots, attributes the that so many of the most active spirits were filled up with drink at the time. Writing during the very time when the whole city was filled with alarm and when every citizen's home and life was in danger, it went on to say:

"If there were no saloons in Chicago there would have been no mob, no soldiers, no riot. They have, during the past years, produced a crop of hoodlums, toughs and thugs by whom property has been thus destroyed. These men, excited by the strike, naturally took to drink and were then ready for anything. On our national holiday, when so many men consider it patriotic to fill themselves full of beer and whisky, the real trouble began. The men for the most part got drunk, or nearly so, and then exhibited a boldthe liquor dealers are being made ness and a determination to destroy Ohio. "That night much valuable property was destroyed. It is estimated as high as $2,000,000 or $3,000,000. The next day was worse and the authorities and the law-abiding citizens realized the danger as they did not before. The mob was in the saddle. It had moved at will on the previous day and now it proposed to rule the city. Intoxicated both with liquor and success it defied all restraint so that even Federal troops were taunted, insulted, and defied. In alarm the mayor telegraphed the governor for help and five regiments of militia were sent.

Work Amongst Sailors.

Of the many departments of work taken under the fostering care of the W. C. T. U., none perhaps has been more necessary or more beneficial in results than that effected by it for sailors, fishermen, and lighthousekeepers.

This department aims to study the welfare of the classes above mentioned; and so far as the sailor and fisherman is concerned, to exercise a beneficent influence upon them not only during their sojourn on land, but in their

Our sailor laddies, because of their warm hearts and long isolation at times from home and land, are keenly sensitive to their surroundings. Coming from a long voyage to a strange port, away from the dear restraining home influences, is it a marvel that their hearts are taken by the glitter and glare, the warmth and show and beguilements of the saloons of our land? The Woman's Christian Temperance Union is striving to offset these pernicious, deceptive charms, by caring heartily and truly for the welfare of our nation's boys, "who go down to the sea in ships and do business on great waters." ### Mrs. J. K. Barney.

The following letter will speak for itself, and will be a great disappointment to both our London workers and to those in a number of adjoining places, where Mrs. Barney was expected this fall. We cannot doubt but that our loss will be England's gain. We bid our friend and fellowlaborer God speed, and hope that many may remember and comply with of every member in it. her request.

My dear Mrs. Thornley,-I am obliged to write you of a great change in my plans for the next few months. Before Miss Willard left England she wrote me for Lady Somerset, urging Willard's return she urged the desirability of my going, if only for a short time, and letters since received have decided me to do so. I shall go someoblige me to defer my Canada work, to which I have looked forward with great pleasure. I shall hope to fill the engagements soon after my return or at such time as may seem best to friends there. I felt to let you know at once that you might not have needless work in making arrangements. Will you and the dear women send a little prayer up for me that the dear Lord may have his own way in all the work and details of my trip, and that he will keep my dear ones safe during my absence? With love to you and our dear workers and with such a pleasant memory of my visit in London, I remain yours in best of S. K. BARNEY. bends.

Providence, R. I., U. S. A. July 30,

Charles Dudley Warner, a leading American literary man, has struck a new key-note in connection with the franchise reform movement. He says: "It is not so much for the sake of the women as for the sake of the men that made a bad mess of governing the world; they have filled it with drinking saloons and standing armies." There need be no doubt whatever that men would, in many cases at least, receive as great advantages from equal franchise to all as the women themselves. In New York and Chicago, for example, and even in some of our Canadian towns and cities, almost any

When the school closes many remain for their summer outing. The attraction of the gathering this year was that altogether wonderful woman, Mrs. Mary Hunt, of Boston-the National and International W. It is something to even look upon the face of one who is so shaping the future of millions of human beings! Think of it! Through her instrumentality—backed up by the W. C. T. U.—laws making compulagainst the future encroachments of the American saloon.

New Jersey is the latest throphy. For years each new legislature was besieged by the women, the ministers and the church organizations, the Their persistence, instead of wearing out the "unjust judge in the Biblical way," only provoked insult; until, so outrageous became the treatment accorded the annual deputation, that it was discontinued.

Matters went from bad to worse politically; at last the party in power was hanged with its own rope, and the opposition became the government. Hope was renewed in the hearts of the temperance workers. Mrs. Hunt was the bill cleared both Houses and received the signature of the governor.

has done much, but this department | As Mrs. Hunt really framed the act, acted, her explanations of its provisions and methods of enforcement were listened to with great interest by hundreds of men and women. As usual the success of the measure was shown, in the last analysis, to rest with Amongst Sailors, Fishermen, and the voter. Though the directions were explicit, and the penalties sufficient, a school board in opposition to enforcement would be a grave detriment. So the cry was-to the ballot box! And the women electors-for New Jersey women have school suffrage-were evidently the great hope of the cause.

Mrs. Hunt is very prepossessing in appearance and has a personality that strangely impresses her hearers. In storming a legislature it is said that she makes the personal acquaintance

An incident that occurred five or six years ago in connection with the passage of a law in a State adjoining Canadian territory gives one a glimpse of the "place of power" in this great soul. A legislator, whom the workers me to make a trip to England for had confidently counted as a friend, work in the autumn. I did not give proved refractory. Mrs. Hunt deterthe matter a second thought—as I was | mined to see his constituents and so sure I could not go. On Miss bring pressure to bear from that quarter. To do this a long journey was necessary, most of which had to be taken in a stage.

On the return trip a blizzard set in; the snow was very deep; Mrs. Hunt and the mail bags were the only occupants of the coach, and she and they were deposited upon the roadside a number of times during the ride. Upon reaching her destination it was found that both feet, both hands and her chin were badly frozen, and for many mation regarding where there is room weeks she was unable to walk.

But the news that greeted her on her arrival was much harder to bear than the physical pain she was already enduring. The cry had been started by the enemies of the bill that the whole thing was a "book job," and Mrs. Hunt and the W. C. T. Think what it must mean to the tens of thousands of children in our public linces, the Home Guard will probschools if they receive the prescribed ably be supplied with a pretty cominstruction concerning alcohol and narcotics in this most impressionable period of their lives? One's mind becomes dazed in an endeavor to compass the results in the life and practice of the incoming generation. One of our public school inspectors told me that when a teacher he had marvelously moulding the thought and | a school upon the managing board of which were two hotel-keepers. When the Scientific Temperance Law was passed, though he feared trouble, he determined to teach the new branch thoroughly. After a time these men of 2,091 during the past year. The sory the teaching in the public schools called and examined the school, and of the nature and effects of alcoholic thus had their attention directed to beverages and narcotics have been the subject. One expressed himself as enacted in 39 States, and by Congress pleased, and hoped that his boy, who for all the territories! Only five States was one of the scholars, would be remain outside the bulwark erected thoroughly grounded. The teacher voiced his surprise. The hotel man responded: "Why, of course, I know the stuff is bad; and the whole business ought to cease. I don't want my boy to have anything to do with it But as long as the thing is legal, I woman always leading in the fight. might as well make money out of it as someone else." To this the other hotel man assented, adding that he, too, was glad to have his children under such instruction.

And what does the Ontario law prescribe? As the regulations now stand, one hour per week must be given by every teacher, in every grade, up to the fourth. The wording of past regulations left it optional with the teacher whether they presented the moral and social side of the evil, or the physical. But the present instructions call for the teaching of the effects of narcotics on the body. For the fourth and fifth grades a course of study, in the new book, is outlined, and examination made compulsory.

While these instructions and the text book just issued are in many respects very inferior ones in certain of the States, yet they are by far the best so far provided in Ontario, and deserve our careful attention in the way of enforcement. Any school failing to comply with these edicts from our educational headquarters, can be deprived of its Government grant.

Let every union member who reads this letter, make inquiry of the local superintendent of scientific temperance in regard to the working of this law in her own locality.

Only a couple of months ago the American Presbyterian Assembly passed a series of ringing resolutions indorsing the teaching of scientific temperance in the public schools; and calling on their ministry and membership everywhere to co-operate with temperance organizations in the carrying out, to the fullest extent, of the various state laws.

Why should not our Canadian Presbyterians, Baptists, Methodists, Congregationalists, etc., follow this illustrious example, and not leave the whole weight of enforcement upon the shoulders of the W. C. T. U.? Sin-MAY R. THORNLEY.

The total number of subordinate divisions now on this continent reporting at the present time is 1,272, which is a decrease of 45 from the report of last year. The total aggregate membership on April I last, reported at 62,528, which also shows a falling off number of members admitted by initiation or card during the year was 21,248. There were gains of membership in twelve grand divisions, including Ontario, Prince Edward Island, Manitoba, Newfoundland, Pennsylvania, Massachusetts, Illinois, Tennessee, Florida, Washington, Georgia and Bahama Island. In the other twenty two grand divisions decreases were reported.

THE CANADIAN GRAND DIVISIONS. -From the M. W. G. Scribe's statistical tables we glean the following statistics regarding the Canadian work: Grand Division of Ontario, total members now reported, 10,630, being a net gain during the year. There were 4,-377 admissions of membership during the year. Grand Division of Nova Scotia, members, 12,445, being a falling off from last year's report. Total admissions of the year, 3,556. Ontario and Nova Scotia report the largest membership of any two grand divisions in the entire jurisdiction. New Brunswick, members, 5,063, also showing a net falling off; admissions during the year, 1,069. Prince Edward Island, membership, 2,009, being a nice net gain; admissions during the year, 639. Quebec, members, 457; admissions, 156. The order in that Province has never been very strong. British Columbia, membership, 271, being a falling off; admissions, 208.

THE PROPAGATION WORK-The following is the full report of the secretary the propagation committee regarding the Canadian work: "Ten years ago there were 621 divisions in British North America with 31,174 members; in 1893 there were 647 divisions with a membership of 33,377, and at the close of the present official year 618 divisions, with 31,-498 members. In ten years there has been a loss of 3 divisions and a gain of 324 members, and during the past year there has been a loss of 29 divisions and 1,879 members.

"New Brunswick loses 8 divisions and 448 members; Nova Scotia reports a less number of divisions by 32 and a loss of 1,573 members; Quebec has lost 4 divisions and 87 members during the year, and British Columbia has lost the same number but has gained I division.

"Always." "It's what they ask for when they come in, is it?"

"Every time." "And you don't try to sell them any other kind, do you?

"You bet I don't." "Well, I guess I'll go to some other store where they are as anxious to please a white man as they are to please a Chinaman. Good evening!"

Jim was a long, lank mountaineer Kentuckian, who owned a creek farm, fairly well stocked, and he was not a bad catch, as those things go in the mountains, but he had no wife.

"How is it, Jim," I said to him one day, "that you don't marry?" He grinned guilelessly.

Friends' Temperance Union, held in London during May, Sir Wilfred Lawson, M.P., gave an address from a re- tion would have been with the Alliance,

I look upon the Friends, as far as I know their history, as having been for generations the friends of every good movement in this country, and I am sure of one thing, that no better movement did they ever take in hand than the temperance movement. Why? Because it helps all other movements. Why? Because Mr. Cobden was right when he said years ago, "The temperance movement lies at the root of every political and social reform."

Why, a man may be as and they are uniting on some simple highly educated as you like, but if he mode of getting prohibition. drinks a pint of brandy it will make him drunk. You have had more than a quarter of a century of board schools, and education has not stopped intoxication. I read only two or three days ago a remarkable speech by a German professor at Munich, the very headquarters of drink, and he said and described how the whole country was honeycombed by this drink, and that each generation was getting worse in Great Britain were assembled; but consequence of the deterioration caused these were experts and specialists of by drink. I read of a man who thought he would try that, and he got a lot of drunkards and put them into nice cottages, but instead of the drunkards being improved the cottages were thing; where for the sake of justice in deteriorated. Gen. Neal Dow used to the concrete she often plays the part explain that in this way: "If you put a pig into the parlor do you think the parlor will reform the pig, or the pig deteriorate the parlor?" (Laughter.)

I do not think better homes will do. Then it was said: "Have counterattractions," and we have them. What an age this is for reading-rooms, concerts for the people, and the like, but still there is a greater attraction which unfortunately has more influence. It is like the old lady who had a cask of small beer near the pantry door, and it you think I had better keep that small beer?" "Weel, mam, I think the best way would be to put a cask of strong beer beside of it." (Laughter.) The greater attraction has the greater effect, and the attractions of the public-houses have been greater than all these counter-attractions. Some people say, "You must pray." Well, that is quite right. I am sure that in the Society of Friends none would think of disparaging prayer; but still I do think that praying without adopting the means which Providence gives us is not a very effectual remedy. We people who go to the church provided by law, pray that the people may be induced to lead "a sober, righteous, and godly life." We know the reason is that because while we pray that they may be sober, rightunsober, unrighteous and ungodly. It is of no use praying unless you work ject to that doctrine. (Loud laughter.) That is our fault, and, therefore, there is an imperfect answer to our prayers. The Government has tried, too. Do Government has not done a great deal to promote temperance; and the general law of the land is a very good one. It admits that the trade is dangerous, and thus confirms the Band of Hope song, "Where There's Drink There's be allowed to deal in this drink, but it lot. makes exceptions and says that only certain people shall minister to the religious wants of the community, and these people are to be ordained. And so it is with the drink traffic. (Laughter.) The Government says no one shall sell drink unless he is ordained to the work. (Laughter.) They have done their best and have taken great pains to find out the suitable men, the suitable places and the suitable times for selling drink. Each would-be publican has to undergo an examination. One man came up and wanted a license, and the magistrate asked the police whether he would do. "Yes, sir, he is a very good man, but sleeves and give it them between the eyes." It was a "muscular Christian" who was wanted there. (Laughter.) They have done all this for generations, best houses and the right hours.

Who is the devil? Why, he is the tempter. A man only does evil because he is tempted to do it, and the devil is the most mischievous tempter. But the religious bodies would not do it. It seems to me most extraordinary that a lot of religious people should go Sunday after Sunday praying "Lead us not into temptation," and that during the week they should license public houses to do the devil's work. The point was well taken and appreciated by the platform, where with one or two exceptions the leaders of the woman's movement in -that, until they help to make the womankind can never expect justice. We cannot do better than quote Miss Willard's own words: "For the abstract principal of justice on which the woman question is really based, the average woman does not care a farof a heroine. If she thought she ought to want the ballot, she would seek it with persevering zeal; but she honestly believes that it is more womanly to cry out against than for it. She has been told this from press and pulpit since her earliest recollection, and she has learned the same doctrine from 'her husband at home.' The average woman is oftentimes a member of the church, and, like the rest of us, falls into the error of confounding the husks of Christ's gospel embodied in used to run out very quickly, and she theology with its kernel embodied in said to John, the footman, "How do the golden rule; she is devoted and good and conventional; she usually has a home of her own, and her favorite end of all controversy is, 'I have all the rights I want.' She is (like some others) disgusted with the 'woman-novel,' and not two well pleased with platform women-at least not until she has had the happiness of hearing them; after that she has not intrequently been known to say, 'With all thy faults I love thee still.' She is attractive, kindly and well-meaning, but dreads 'the speech of people' more than she does all the speechifying of the speaking sisterhood, even though their tireless tintinnabulations should tinkle on until the crack of doom. She is not clear concerning the relations of cause and effect in how many of them do not do it, and politics and law, but she must be if women are to win the ballot. ### About Non-Enforcement.

The people of the Province of Ontario are not alone by any means in their complaints about the non-enforcement of the stringent provisions of the license laws. These complaints are very general. As a matter of fact it would seem as though our liquor laws are better enforced and our officers in Ontario are more efficient in this respect than almost anywhere

There lies before us a copy of the resolutions adopted by the Irish Presbyterian Church General Assembly, held in Belfast last month, and one of the resolutions unanimously adopted denounced in strong language "the scandlous infringements of the Sunday Closing Act, to the consequent demoralization of the transgressors themselves, and to the hardships inflicted on all peaceful and law-abiding residents in the localities where such violations are perpetrated." It is wellknown, too, that a Presbyterian General Assembly is cautious about the changes it makes and temperate in the language it uses.

At the last Manitoba W. C. T. U. convention, held in Winnipeg last month, a resolution was adopted denouncing in strong terms the shameful and open violations of the liquor laws In that Province. We have reason to believe that these charges are well founded.

From British Columbia similar reports come. The liquor laws are not nearly as stringent as ours, and even these are very poorly enforced in many

In Montreal and in most other populous parts of the Province of Quebec similar complaints are frequent and bitter. In Nova Scotia, while the license laws are very stringent and the penalties for violations are severe, it is a well-known fact that open and systematic violations are much more general than here. In Halitax for some years it was currently reported that at least of the Patrons, and of the P. lifted the wine to her lips. A servant 200 unlawful liquor selling places were kept open, and the city authorities were well cognizant of the fact. Matters are reported to be better there now, but in such leading towns as Amherst, Truro, Windsor and Yarmouth unlawful selling has been pretty general and open for years.

Very few laws are more difficult to enforce than liquor laws and in very few have the officials so little assistance from the general community. There are large profits to the violators-the sellers. Most persons feel that "it is not their business" to give any practical help in the matter of giving any help. In many cases it is actually dangerous to furnish any help or even a hint of information; the homes of those even suspected have been burned or other property injured or destroyed; there is a great prejudice against "informers," and when detectives are employed they are denounced as "sneaks ling lawyers. ### ATALANTIS.

ICH THE NEW ISLAND ME INTO BEING.

Bay to Be Floated to When Enough Completed tions to Be Sunk-Ready

tis Company, the represetais C. M. Coen, and the con-John F. Anderson of Ander-240 Eleventh street, Jersey got a patent on their plan of of an artificial island on the shoals of the Cholra Banks, says the New York Sun. The invention is the result of the engineering studies of Messrs. DATION WITH Coen and Barr. They reached the same on almost simultaneously. They in details, but not in the essen-Coen describes himself as a practiman. Capt. Anderson has already ade his mark as a successful engineer. His constructions of the foundations of the Hawkesbury river bridge in New South Wales and the Cape Hatteras lighthouse are monuments to his skill. The building of the foundations of the new Hudson river bridge will doubtless add to his laurels.

RACES.

The plan of the inventors is to build the island in the Lower Bay, or in some other safe harbor, and float the structure to the Cholera Banks, where it will be sunk and the superstructure erected on the foundation. The construction of the floating island is as follows: To begin with, thirty-six hollow cvlinders made of inch-and-a-half iron, ten feet in diameter and six feet high, with a valve resting on lugs at the bottom of the cylinder, made watertight with red lead and rubber, are placed in a square, 260 feet on each side, and sunk in the Lower Bay at the point at which the first work is to be done. Each longtitudinal foot of cylinder weighs one ton, but has a buoyancy of three tons; therefore the six-foot valved cylinder will sink two feet in the water, leaving four feet of its height above water.

The 36 cylinders will be fastened together with two-inch iron rods and wooden braces. This will be done by means of the Howe truss. The truss is the one in use in the construction of the roofs of buildings and ordinary TOP VIEW OF FOUNbridges. To the top of the first series of cylinders, a second thirty six, which are without values, are securely bolted. The island will now sink to the depth of four feet. Eight feet of the tubes will be in the air. The braces are added, and the framework is ready for new cylinders. The work will be carried on at this point in the harbor until it is found that the lower edges of the cylinders are almost touching the bottom of the bay. The anchors of the island will then be lifted and the structure towed into deeper waters. All material, lumber and machinery will be carried to the floating foundation in lighters and landed on the framework. Even in stormy weather, it is asserted, men can work as safely as on the top of a high Broadway building.

Atalantis, so far as it is completed, will then be towed out to sea through the Swash channel. The depth of the water in the waterway floats a ship drawing thirty feet. By this time the foundation of Atalantis will be thirty feet under water and sixty above the sea level. The entire structure is securely braced, and in the distance will have the appearance of a colonnaded building without a roof. To a passenger in a balloon it would look like a huge checkerboard, with the checkers in place for a game, and with diagonal lines connecting the squares.

When the site of the new island is reached, clamps will be fastened about the tops of the cylinders, the jaws of which are opened and closed with a screw and The braces have been so built as to allow the cylinders to move up and down freely in the framework. The valves at the bottom of the cylinders are opened by being raised by chains. If this is not desired, an automatic valve in the side of the tube is opened. The structure sinks by its own weight to the sea bottom. When irregularities occur in the formation of the FOUNDATION CYL- shoals, the cylinders which do not touch INDER. an be lowered by opening the clamp and allowing the tube to sink until a resting place is found. New cylinders can be added to the top of the hollow column until it is equal with the others. Should it be desired to raise a cylinder, a giver will be sent down to close the valve. The water will be exhausted by pumps and the cylinder will rise because of its own buoyancy. When the entire foundation rests on bottom, the sand closed by the bottom rim will be dredged out. As this is done the tube sinks into the sand. The wooden braces will be removed from the structure if it is thought to be safe. New cylinders will be bolted on, as each of the great tubes reaches the water line. For each foot of water above the sea bottom, the tubes will be sunk an equal depth into the and. The water at the shoals varies from 50 to 66 feet in depth. The depth of the foundation will be, therefore, from 120 to 132 feet.

When a sufficiently firm foundation is reached, the valves of the hollow cylinders will be removed and the space filled with a soncrete, which will become as hard as stone. The foundtion will become by the action or the water thirty-six stone enclosed in neh-and-a-half iron sylinders and braced CLAMP HOLDING with a network of CYLINDERS. wo-inch iron rods. A wave breaking upon the edge of the island will have its force livided by a rock almost ten feet in dianeter. Its force will be scattered by the other columns of the foundation. The reactionary energy which follows each breakng wave will be resisted by the iron braces which connect the cylinders. The invenors assert that no storm could destroy the structure when finished. Should a storm trise, when the island is afloat off the shore, and only anchored by chains and the lowered iron tubes, it is said the strucare can ride it out as safely as the staunch-st ironclad. Capt. Anderson was the first to use n the place of stone and other materials.

When the foundation is finished the floor will be built of cement and iron and the superstructure of iron and glass. Should the first building be a success, a second will be built and connected with the first by bridges. The actual cost of the building cannot be estimated. There is plenty of money. it is said, back of the scheme. The Louisiana Lottery desired to take shares in the company, but the offer was rejected. To a second company of New York men, who desired to establish an American Monte Carlo, admission to the enterprise was also refused. The inventors think the island will be built before next October and be ready for business by next summer.

WILL THE SAFETY BE SUPPLANTED ! A Unicycle Which the Inventor Claims

Can Beat All Wheel Records. A novelty in the cycling line which has been attracting considerable attention is a unicycle most ingeniously contrived to run along by its own momentum after it has been fairly set going by the usual pedalling method. A forward inclination of the rider's body keeps the wheel revolving, and it is said it can be easily stopped by leaning backward. The same simple law of gravitation causes it to spin unerringly round any curve toward which the rider leans on either side.

The machine has no steering gear and is said to require none beyond the tendency given to its direction by the poise of the rider's body. The motion is generated as in a safety bicycle until the small inner wheels set the outer or traveling wheel spinning. It does the rest and covers so much ground at each revolution as would enable an average rider to compass a mile well under two minutes. The inventor thinks a record of half that time within the possibilities with an expert in the saddle, and is at present engaged on improvements which he claims will obtain universal recognition for the contrivance. The inventor's brain has been revolving in cycles since he conceived the idea of a bicycle thirty years ago. Some four years ago it occurred to him to electrify the wheel world by introducing a unicycle, and the present machine is the result. He completed it a year ago and had it tried with satisfactory results at the Syracuse armory. As the wheel now stands it measure six feet in diameter and weighs 185 pounds. It cost all told about $600.

The more modern types which the inventor is preparing to produce will be built on a much lighter scale. In fact, he thinks he can get the weight down to fifty pounds and reduce the cost of output

The unicycle is not so difficult to mount as appears at a first glance. In fact, the same graceful method which secures a seat on a lady's safety helps the rider to take control and set the pedals going. The seat is a capacious affair, protected by handles on either side, which afford a sure grip when the rider is mounted. A few evenings ago a curious visitor mastered the requisite preliminaries in a few moments and then took a jaunt around the block to the ecstatic surprise of the local small boys. It would be interesting to see what an expert could do around a

Bicycle Printing Press.

A patent has been issued in the United States for the most novel attachment yet devised for the wheel since it was invented. The illustration which is herewith presented will enable the reader to understand the principle and satisfy the curiosity that has been aroused by the former article.

As explained by the patentee the purpose of the apparatus is to enable one to print short advertisements on sidewalks and pavements as he rides along on the bicycle. The apparatus consists of a tank or ink fountain, in which is situated a train of wheels that convey ink or paint from the fountain to the tire of the rear wheel of the bicycle.

The fountain is suspended from the frame between the wheels of the bicycle. One of the wheels in the train has letters on its periphery spelling the word or sentence which is to be printed on the walk. By pressing on a handle the type wheel is forced against the bicycle wheel and the latter takes the paint from the type and transfers it to the walk on which the wheel is running.

By keeping the type-wheel in contact with the pneumatic tire a continuous line of words can be printed on the path of the wheel. The rider can curve the line at will and print the matter in any shape he can form on the machine. The letters on the type-wheel are to be made by "setting up" the words in ordinary type of suitable size and taking an impression from them by stereotype process. The matrix so formed can be placed in a circular mould and typemetal poured in it Or a thin flat casting can be taken from the matrix and attached to the face of the type-wheel, bending it to fit the pneu matic tire. The attachment will weigh but a trifle and is inexpensive. It will work on a snow-covered walk as well as in dry weather, and an advertisement can be put on a wheel by the plan in h,lf an hour. It can be applied to any safety bicycle.

Oriental Armies.

In view of the possible unpleasantness between China and Japan over Corea, the following account of the military strength of the two powers is not without interest: The military force of China consists of the army of Manchonia, 70,000 men, many of them armed with the Manser rifle, with a liberal supply of Krupp field cannon; the army of the center, 50,000 men, which can be doubled in case of war; the army of Turkestan, of uncertain strength, employed to maintain order in the extreme western territories, and the territorial army, something like the Canadian militia, of 200,000 men in time of peace, but which is capable of being raised to 600,000. Her navy comprises 1 first-class battleship, 1 second-class, 3 third-class, 9 port defense vessels, 9 second-class cruisers, 47 thirdclass, 2 first-class torpedo boats, 26 second-class, 13 third-class and 2 smaller boats. Japan's army on a peace footing is about 66,000, but she has a reserve strength of nearly 200,000. Her fleet is a purely defensive force. It comprises 5 armored cruisers and 22 third-class cruisers.

The Home of Hapsburg. Rudolph von Hapsburg, riding to his Swiss home from hunting, came upon a priest carrying the sacrament to a sick man. The priest on foot was stopped by a river. Rudolph immediately dismounted. set the priest and sacrament on horseback and led the steed by the rein to the sick man's house. He declined to take the horse again to daily use, but gave it to the priest for the service of the church.

Remembering this deed, Werner, archbishop of Mainz, in 1273, procured the election of Rudolph as king of the Romans and Kaiser. Hence we have the source and fount of the proud imperial house of Hapsburg. Schiller enhances the legend in one of the best of his ballads, "Der Graf von Hapsburg." It may be mentioned that the late heir to the imperial throne of Austria was named after his illustrious ancestor. Rudolph.

Holes in the Legs.

A scientist tells us that the bog's legs perform a function not known to any other animal, and that is an escape pipe or pipes for the discharge of waste water or sweat not used in the economy of the body. These escape pipes are situated upon the inside of the legs above and below the knee in the forelegs and above the gambrel joints in the hind legs, but in the latter they are very small and functions light; upon the inside of the foreleg they are in the healthy hog always active, so that moisture is always there from about and below these orifices or ducts in the healthy hog. The holes in the leg and breathing in the hog are his principal and only means of ejecting an excess of heat above normal, and when very warm the hog will open the mouth and breathe through that channel as well as the nostrils.

How Thermometers are Made. A small glass tube blown into a bulb at one end, is partly filled with mercury; the mercury is boiled to expel air and fill the tube with mercury vapor, and then the tube is hermetically sealed and allowed to cool. The gradations are found as follows: The instrument is immersed in ice water, and the freezing point is found and is marked; then it is placed in water which is allowed to reach the boiling point, and so 212 degrees is found. The spans between are marked by mathematical calculations.

Untransferable Pass Checks. The theatres in Japan have a novel method of pass-checks which are positively non-transferable. When a person wishes to leave the theatre before the close of the performance, with the intention of returning, he goes to the doorkeeper and holds out his right hand. How a Young Lady Was Cured of a Terrible Malady When Near the Brink of the Grave.

The large, pretentions brick residence at 86 Miami avenue, Detroit, is the home of the heroine of this interesting story. She is Miss Margaret Stenbaugh, and her interesting experiences during the past four years are published here for the first time.

"Four years ago," she said, "I was a sufferer in all that the word implies, and never thought of being as happy as I am to-day. Why, at that time I was such a scrawny, puny little midget, pale and emaciated by an ailment peculiar to us women, that my father and mother gave me up to die. The local practitioner (I was at that time living at Scotland, Brant county, Ont.,) said it was only a matter of days when I should be laid away in the churchyard, and as I was such a sufferer I cared not whether I lived or died; in fact 1 think I would have preferred the latter. I could not walk, and regularly every night my father carried me upstairs to my room. remember my telling him that he wouldn't have to carry me about much longer, and how he said with tears in his eyes, that he would be willing to do it always, if he could only have me with him. It was evidently foreordained that I should not die at that particular time, as a miraculous transformation in my condition was the talk of the neighborhood. I read of the wonderful cures that were being wrought by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People and my father went to Brantford, where he purchased a couple of boxes from Jas. A. Wallace. ### ON PLUCKING CHERRIES.

TIMELY AND APPROPRIATE HINTS THAT ARE WELL TO HEED.

Wise Plucker, One Who Knows How, Saves the Tree and Guarantees Crops for the Future-How to Reach the "Extreme" Cherries.

Untold numbers of valuable cherry trees are damaged more and more every season, by the thoughtless practices of the persons who pluck the fruit. Wherever I go about the country, I observe that most of the cherry trees have long and slender branches, at the extremities of which the twigs and fruit-spurs are loaded with fine fruit, most of which is beyond the reach of pluckers. A neighbor has a number of large cherry trees, more than forty feet high, the tops of which are over forty feet in diameter. The fruit is nearly all at the extremities of long and ragged branches, destitute of small limbs, twigs and fruisspurs. A person cannot climb out on the leading limbs and pluck the fruit, because the long and slender branchlets will not sustain weight. The trees have been ruined by breaking off the fruit-spurs and fruitbearing twigs from the large limbs and the branches. Fruit spurs are the short and stocky projections on the bodies of the leading limbs and on the surface of the branches. Fruit spurs are not sprouts, er branches or twigs. When a fruit tree is managed judiciously (as to pruning), nature will cover every branch with fruitspurs, from the body of the tree to the extremities of the main limbs. If these are not pruned off, or jammed off by the feet of thoughtless fruit-pluckers, or if they are not pulled off with the fruit, every one will be loaded with fruit, from the body of the tree to the ends of the long limbs.

We have a few trees, in the tops of which no other person has been allowed to climb beside myself. Why? Simply because thoughtless persons who do not know what a fruit-spur is, would jam off with feet, and tear off with unskilled hands, half the fruit-spurs, to the great damage of the crop for future years. But look at our tree-tops! Every limb and branch is well covered with strong fruitspurs; next year every fruit-spur will be loaded with fruit. Nature is a scientific promologist and an expert in dendrology. When not overruled and her purpose thwarted by some tree-butcher, who knows nothing about vegetable physiology, and nothing about the scientific principles of pruning trees and vines, she will cover every bare limb and branch with fruitspurs. Look at our big cherry tree; see what plump fruit-spurs are filled with clusters of beautiful fruit clear down to the main body of the tree, where the lowest branches are united. How convenient it is to have branchlets all along the leading limbs, so that one can climb away out near the extremities and pluck the fruit. Whenever I pluck fruit of any sort, I always avoid pulling off a fruit-spur with the fruit (whether cherries, apples or pears,) and exercise great care not to break off a spur with my feet. Nature produces fruit-spurs on the bodies of limbs and branchlets for two purposes—to shade the bare limbs from the sun, and to develor fruit close to the branches, where it will be less likely to be blown off.

Now, here is a fact which ought to be inculcated into the mind of all persons who ever have anything to do with trees or plucking fruit. The crop of cherries, and the crop of apples and pears for next year, must be started this year in the fruit buds. Very few people know this important fact. I frequently see the ground beneath and around cherry trees covered with fruit-spurs and the leaves attached to them. Fruit-pluckers haul off and throw to the ground all the spurs that are loaded with fruit, and then separate the fruit and throw away the spurs and buds that would be loaded with fruit next year. By hauling off all the twigs and spurs from the bodies of the branches, the limbs are induced to grow long and slender, and produce all the fruit at the extremities of the long branches. We often see long and naked limbs, sixteen or twenty feet, withont a leaf, twig or branchlet. Such trees have been pruned in a very unscientific and damagie z manner. Look at our cherry trees. I can climb around in the tops and pluck almost every cluster of ripe fruit. Examine my neighbor's trees. There are several bushels of choice fruit on them which they cannot gather. Why? Simply because the fruit-spurs and twigs have been pulled off every year with the fruit, and that injudicious annual pruning has induced the trees to shoot upward, and to send out such long and slender limbs, bearing very little fruit, except so high and out of reach that the crop cannot be gathered. If those trees had been managed judiciously, and the long branches had not been hauled in with hooks and mutilated, and if all the fruit spurs had not been hauled off from year to year, and every branchlet broken off when it was loaded with ripe fruit, a person would be able to climb around on the branches and gather most of the fruit.

Every person, child or adult, when plucking fruit of any sort, should be taught how to separate the stems from the twigs or spurs without damaging the buds that contain the embryos of a future crop. When plucking apples or pears, instead of hauling off the fruit with spurs, buds and leaves, take hold of the apple or pear and at the same time thrust the thumb nail against the stem and pull on the fruit, and thus sever the stem from the fruit spur at the seam perpared in the growth of the stem and spur for the separation of fruit and spur. When plucking cherries, take hold of the long stems and separate them with the thumb nail, handling the fruit by the stems rather than by taking hold of the fruit. If the hand clasps a cluster of cherries, and the fruit is hauled off carelessly, the fruit-spur will be broken off together with all the half mature fruit. Then, if the cherries are fully ripe, and they are clawed off without taking hold of the stens, the fruit and stems will be separated, to the great damage of the ripe fruit. When cherries are to be used immediately they may be pulled off the stems. But when the fruit is to be sent to market, the stems should not be separated, as the rupture of the fruit-incident to the separation of the stems will hasten decay and damage appearance, because as soon as the stems of cherries are removed from the fruit the juice will flow

Almost every variety of cherries fail to ripen with desirable uniformity. For this reason the persons who pluck the fruit should be instructed to glean only the ripe fruit without hauling off immature specimens. But whoever is allowed to pluck cherries should have this brief precept-"be careful of the fruit spurs"-reiterated, until he or she will understand that the fruit buds, the fruit spurs, the little branches that are loaded with fruit, must not be crushed by the feet or pulled off by careless hands. Make every duliard understand that every twig and fruit spur broken | borne in clusters.

off represents a cluster of cherries of next year's crop, and the fruit for many future years actually lost by inexcusable heed-lessness. There should be many placards posted up where pickers can read the important words: "Do not break off the fruit spurs."-Serero E. Todd, in Country

Cultivated Honey Producers.

The plants which yield a generous supply of honey are not numerous, and many of them are not of a character which invites cultivation. The most important of these cultivated plants, and the one upon which beekeepers place the most dependence, is the white clover. While it is not so free a grower as red clover, and is, therefore, less cultivated by the farmer, it still makes excellent pasturage, forms a thick mat near the ground, and is, by no means, an unprofitable forage plant. It grows spontaneously in many by-places, even when it is not cultivated. It produces an abundant flow of honey during its blossoming period, and the honey is peculiarly white, fine, and free from any disagreeable odor or offensive taste. The farmer who keeps bees can well afford to raise white clover. It makes a pretty lawn when closely shaven, and is frequently used for this purpose about city residences and village homes. Another important and cultivated honey plant is the buckwheat. It comes late in the season, beginning to blossom in August and remaining in bloom until the coming of frost. From this plant the bees gather an abundant harvest of very rich, dark honey, having a peculiar taste, not at all offensive, and for which a liking is easily and speedily acquired. But buckwheat is not largely cultivated.

It is believed by some apiarists that in alsike clover will be found a plant that is alike profitable for the apiarist and the farmer. Whether the hopes entertained of this forage plant will be fully realized, is a matter for future demonstration.

To this list of cultivated honey producers can be added the red raspberry, though it is the wild berry, growing spontaneously on mountain clearings and in open fields, which produces the largest amount. The red raspberry is an abundant producer, and the honey from it is nearly or quite equal to that produced from the white cloved. And as this berry is one of the most delicious of small fruits, there seems to be good reason why it should be cultivated, especially by those who have convenient and ready access to a good market. The blackberry, also, often cultivated, but oftener growing wild, produces honey, and the reasons which would lead to the cultivation of the raspberry ought to be efficacious in its care. It is vigorous, very productive, and of good, marketable quali-

Preparing Plums for Market.

In most cases experience has proven that plums, if shipped to market in ten-pound grape baskets, provided with handles, and put up in neat, presentable shape, will bring the producer a greater per cent. of profit than if shipped in half-bushel, or

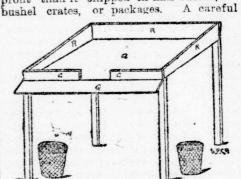

TABLE FOR ASSORTING PLUMS. picker can fill the basket direct from the tree; but the usual plan is to pick into large receptacles, then, carefully sorting the plums, to place them in packages ready for market. The frequent handling removes a great deal of the bloom from the fruit, which removal should be avoided as much as possible. By the use of a single table, similar to the one shown in the engraving, from the American Agriculturist, plums and other similar fruits are easily sorted. The top of the table should not be over three feet long and two and onehalf feet wide. The sides and back, r, r, r, may be eight inches wide at back, tapering to three inches in front; the front guards, cc, should be less than three inches high, leaving a six-inch space between the inner ends; the slanting board, g, is six inches wide. To operate it, place the fruit carefully upon the table, the sorter occupying a chair in front of the table, with a basket on his lap. Both hands can then be used in removing the leaves, limbs, damaged or imperfect fruit, throwing the refuse into baskets, m, m, located upon the floor, at a convenient point upon each side. The perfect fruit, or that intended for shipping, is rolled in front, and passes over the incline, g, into the basket. This table need cost but little, and may be made in as crude or elaborate a form as wished. In working, the elbows can rest upon the guards, c c, which will make the operation much easier. An ordinary table can be fitted with these simple appliances, and quickly removed after the shipping season is passed.

Cows Protect Sheep. Where small farmers keep a few sheep and predatory dogs are likely to bother, it might be well to yard them with the cows | the Orange Judd Farmer. This wheelat night and permit them to graze with those animals by day. Cows apparently become attached to sheep when they are habitually herded together; and when dogs molest the sheep the cows will pursue and drive them off, just as if the sheep were of their own kind. But if the animals are yarded together at night, care should be observed that it be not on the bare ground much. Soil coming in contact with wool absorbs the oil and leaves the ends of the wool fibers dry and harsh, a condition known in the wool trade as "dead tips." Also, where sheep lie on bare soil long. earth works into the wool and intermingles with the yolk, robbing it of some of its constituent parts, giving the wool a "frowzy" appearance. Buyers "dock" the seller one-third on "dead tip" and "frowzy" wool. Sheep should habitually rest on sod or on ground littered with

This is a very rapid climber and bears in great profusion rich flowers of every shade of red and orange, which I bought two vines, but they turned out to contrast well with the luxuriant foliage. There are several varieties differing in color of foliage as well as of flowers. Some have light green leaves, while other sorts have very dark foliage. In some varieties the flowers are striped and spot-

SELF-CLEANING CISTERN.

How to Make One-A Speaking Diagram of Its Cross-Section.

Soft water for washing purposes is a necessity. To meet this necessity cisterns of various kinds are built, but the dust lodging on the roof, together with dead leaves, and various substances whirled about by the wind, will be carried by the water into the cistern. Unless it is frequently cleaned, this fouls the water and gives it a bad odor. The illustration, reengraved from the American Agriculturist, shows a plan for a cistern so arranged as to avoid this difficulty. The overflow pipe, a, instead of simply entering the cistern at the surface of the water in the usual way, continues down the inner surface and opens near the bottom. Then, whenever the cistern fills with water and overflows, the surplus enters the discharge pipe at the bottom, thus carrying off whatever sediment may have been deposited. As the substances that are washed from the roof into the cistern always settle gradually to the bottom, each hard rain that fills it to overflowing forces them into the discharge pipe and carries them off to the drain. Such foul sediment forms a good nest for disease germs. Where the ground is of firm texture it is not necessary to brick up the sides, but the cement may be laid directly on the earth. Begin by laying out a circle about a foot larger across than the intended size of the cistern. Dig this size down three feet, then dig the cistern three inches smaller on all sides, thus leaving a shelf on which to place the covering stones three feet below the surface, to be out of the way of the frost. Cover it by laying on opposite sides of this shelf two long flat stones, eighteen inches apart

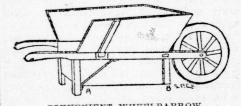

SECTION OF A SELF-CLEANING CISTERN. Then lay two other stones across the ends of these, and a man-hole of eighteen inches square will be left. It is now ready for plastering. Use Portland cement, one part of cement to two of fine, clean sand, giving the sides a good layer clear up to the cover, the leader from the roof having been inserted in or near the top. Now dig a drain from some convenient point of discharge, and lay the overflow pipe by beginning at the bottom of the cistern, passing it out near the top. It may be made of common round two-inch drain tile, having that part which is in the cistern well covered with cement. When all is complete place a crib of plank over the man-hole, through which it may be entered by means of a small ladder; then cover with earth, rounding it well up.

If a pump is used the suction pipe should be furnished with a strainer, and should reach to within a foot of the bottom of the cistern. Where a cistern can be built directly under the kitchen it is very convenient to connect it with a pump over the kitchen sink. The capacity of a cistern may be approximately ascertained by allowing seven gallons to the cubic foot. Or, if it is round, multiply the diameter by the average depth, in feet, and the product by five and one-half. The result will be the capacity in gallons.

A Handy Style of Barrow.

A deep wheelbarrow is more useful than one built on the old plan, because it will hold more, and the work of building such a barrow is not much greater. Anyone who owns a wheel and irons belonging to an old wheelbarrow can easily construct one by first procuring two stout pieces for the shafts and mortising them together firmly just behind the wheel. The next mortise must come two inches from the ground on the legs of A. From the mortise the floor of the barrow must reach forward to B, where it is supported by two false legs mortised into the shafts and reaching within two inches of the ground. The sides may be solid from the floor up, or if preferred, they may extend only to the top of the shafts, and from this point movable side-boards may extend upward. The only disadvantage in having the body solid is in being forced to remove most of the load from between the handles, says barrow is especially useful in carting leaves, etc., and in handling heavy stones. which are loaded upon it with ease, because so near the ground. If one desires he may arrange a movable bottom, which will permit the load to be deposited without tipping by merely raising the

Under Your Own Vine.

The grapevine grows in almost any soil, but does not flourish unless the ground is well drained and well enriched with old. well-rotted manure. The situation should be fully exposed to the sun and free circulation of air. Grapes are so easily raised and bear so abundantly that we can conscientiously recommend every person to plant at least enough for his own family use. Two or three vines well attended to will be sufficient. The first consideration is earliness. Our first choice would be Moore's Early, which possesses all the good qualities required. Second, the Delaware, a medium sized berry, but a delicious grape. Third, Worden, which is superior to the Concord. The Concord is a good grape, hardy and prolific, but often overtaken by frost before the fruit is ripe. We consider the Worden superior in many respects, ripening a week earlier than the Concord. For white, the Pocklington has done very well with me. It ripens with the Concord. I have not tried the Niagara. be some tender kind that freezes every winter. Have seen it grown at a neighbor's place; it did well; it also ripens with the Concord. If you have room for only three vines, plant Moore's Early, Worden
