

LABOR DAY CELEBRATION GRAND SUCCESS; LARGE CROWD, FINE WEATHER, GOOD TIME

Excellent Programme of Vaudeville and Sports Carried Out Without a Hitch in Queen's Park.

Much Credit Due to Committee and the Trades and Labor Council.

Labor Day was celebrated right royally yesterday, and one of the most successful celebrations the Trades and Labor Council have ever had under their control was held at Queen's Park.

The morning looked none too propitious, threatening skies and suspicions of rain making those in charge feel rather uncomfortable. Along about 11 o'clock, however, Old Sol came out in all his glory, and furnished one of the most delightful September days. No dust, no heat, but pleasant and bright, the day left nothing to be desired.

The crowd was large, not so large, perhaps, as on one or two former occasions, but nevertheless it was a large crowd. The center stand was quite well filled, but a large number of labor men and their families picked in the park itself.

Good Programme.

There was a good programme, although in some of the events the entries were not so numerous as it was expected that they would be. One of the most interesting races of the day was the two-mile open race.

There were eight entries and they started off at a slow pace. One by one they were weeded out until "Crow" Carrothers and Vincent Adams had the race practically to themselves. They came along together until about 300 yards from home, when Adams cut loose with a magnificent sprint, and won hands down.

Bernard Adams, a plodder, wore out the rest of the bunch, and finished a nice third.

The relay race for the Canadian Club trophy did not fill only one team appearing. They ran an exhibition mile, paced by Mr. Clegg in his Oldsmobile, in four minutes and eight seconds.

The Scotch dances were well filled, quite a large number of girls and boys facing the judges. The kiddies were all good dancers, and they were much applauded.

Clever Entertainers.

The rest of the programme consisted of musical and vaudeville sketches by well known performers. The programme was a very good one, about the best yet given by the labor men. Mr. Victor Lewis, of Toronto, was very clever in character impersonations of great men. His range of subjects is much wider than the usual run and he received much applause for his work.

Bert Harvey and Leroy Kenny are no strangers to Londoners, and they were well received. Their work reveals a high order of merit. They are comedians of the first rank, and never fail to make good.

Master Frank Clegg, well-known in this city as a boy soprano, played several xylophone selections yesterday in a manner that stamped him much.

Bags and Books for the "Kiddies" End of the "Good Old Summertime"

Collegiate, Public and Separate Schools Reopen for the Fall Term.

All the city schools opened this morning with a large attendance of "kiddies."

The youngsters could be seen trooping to the schools, a merry, bright-eyed lot. They were not overjoyed, the majority of them, to go back to school, as the days are fine and there is so much play that is never finished. Still they do not complain, but trudge along with their books, to learn some of life's little lessons.

There was one school that did not open. St. George's School has been thoroughly overhauled and a large addition made to it. The addition is not completed and will not be finished for some time yet. The old part is ready with the exception of the lavatories. Some delay was experienced in changing the heating system. It is expected that the work will be completed this week, so that the scholars in St. George's may begin work next Monday. Of course, the kiddies do not complain about the extra week's holidays.

The Collegiate Institute.

The Collegiate Institute began work this morning also. There was a good attendance of scholars, and the classes were organized for the season. At present there are two very important branches. English and modern languages without teachers, and it will be some time before they are filled. This will handicap the students to a considerable degree.

Mr. H. G. Martyn, of Berlin, will take the moderns department, but he will be tied up in Berlin for a month at least, it is said. There is no teacher in sight for the English department as yet, and it will be some time before the vacancy is filled.

It is expected that substitutes will (Continued on Page Eight.)

SIX DEAD, HUNDREDS HURT IN EXCURSION TRAIN WRECK

Heavily Loaded Special on the C. P. R. Ditcher Near Orangeville, Ontario.

Norman Tucker, Flesherton.
John Thurston, Walters Falls.
James Banks, Perth.
Three bodies unidentified.

Orangeville, Ont., Sept. 3.—A special excursion train on the Canadian Pacific Railway, bound for the Toronto Exhibition, was wrecked this morning at the Horseshoe Curve, some nine or ten miles to the south of this place. Three hundred persons were aboard the train, and it is reported that six of them have been killed and two hundred and fifty injured, many of these fatally, it is feared. The names of those killed have not yet been learned.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

Toronto, Ont., Sept. 3.—A special excursion from Markdale carrying between three and four hundred visitors for the Toronto Exhibition, was wrecked near Caledon this morning. When the heavily-laden excursion train left Markdale it was very late, and it was while endeavoring to make up lost time that the accident occurred. The train was dashing around the Horseshoe Curve, when it left the rails, burying hundreds in the wreckage. Six persons are reported dead and between two hundred and fifty and three hundred are injured, many of them seriously. The injured are being hurried to Toronto by special trains sent out with doctors and nurses. Few details of the accident are known as yet.

Orangeville, Sept. 3.—Word has been received here of the wreck of a special train from Owen Sound, which passed through here at 9 a.m., containing six coaches. Five cars left the tracks, the one containing most of the Orangeville people remaining on the track. Seven bodies have been taken from the wreck and brought to Orangeville.

A large number were injured. Harry Halbert, son of James Halbert, nightwatchman here had a leg broken; W. J. Robison, of North Bay, formerly of Orangeville, was badly injured, as were Mr. and Mrs. Douglas, of Markdale, father and mother of A. C. Douglas, druggist, of Orangeville.

FIVE CARS PILED UP

Toronto, Sept. 3.—Five coaches crowded with men, women and children, every seat filled and people standing in the aisles, followed the locomotive that jumped the rails on the Horseshoe curve nine miles below Orangeville at 9:45 today. The train was an exhibition special timed to leave Markdale at 6:30 a.m. The locomotive was in charge of Engineer Hart. At 9:45 the train pulled into Orangeville one hour late. Less than half an hour later the locomotive jumped the rails on the down grade of the Horseshoe curve of the Caledon Mountains. Five crowded cars were piled up on top of the locomotive. At Orangeville every seat was jammed, people were standing in the aisles. All these cars were jammed together in the fierce shock. Not less than 300 passengers were in the cars that left the rails.

Mercury Only Went Above 80 Degrees in Nine Days—Comparative Figures.

The rainfall for August, 1907, was 1.20 inches, which was very light compared with the same month the year previous, when 5.63 inches was measured.

The highest temperature was 86 on the 11th, while the lowest was 38.50 on the 22nd day. In 1906 the highest temperature in August was 88 degrees on the 23rd. The lowest temperature was on Aug. 31—71 degrees.

During the past month the mercury rose above 80 degrees only 9 times against 18 times in August, 1906. The temperatures for August, 1907, and August, 1906, are of much interest. They show that the month of this year was much cooler than the same month of a year ago. The figures are as follows:

New G.T.R. Depot Is To Be Erected Immediately Opposite Old One

Manager Brownlee Makes Statement to Ald. Stevenson, on the Subject.

Ald. W. J. Stevenson has returned from a trip east. He was at Quebec and saw the scene of the recent bridge disaster. "It was an appalling affair," he says, and created a profound impression in that city.

While in Montreal he had a conversation with General Manager Brownlee, of the Grand Trunk Railway, and they discussed track elevation.

"Mr. Brownlee intends to deal with the council all right," said Ald. Stevenson. "The reason that matters have been delayed is because the company was anxious to finish up what work it had in hand, especially the work west of this city."

"Mr. Mitchell came here yesterday and is looking over the ground. He will finish the work up very shortly. "The tightness of the money market, and the scarcity of men have made it almost impossible to continue the work intended to be completed this year."

"As soon as this work is completed satisfactorily, and that will not be long now, the company will enter into negotiations with the council regarding the elevation of the tracks throughout the city."

"The site of the new station has been fixed on. It will be just opposite the present station on the land purchased some time ago by the Grand Trunk. Mr. Brownlee said that the company had purchased this land for that purpose, and if the tracks are elevated it will be of no use except for that purpose."

"Mr. Brownlee thought that last year's council was reasonable with a few exceptions, and they misunderstood the company's intentions. He spoke as if the matter was in a fair way to be settled."

Presbytery of London in Session

The Presbytery of London is meeting today in the First Presbyterian Church with a large attendance of ministers and laity. Only routine business was transacted this morning. It is expected that some word will have been heard today from Rev. Dr. Pidgeon, of Toronto Junction, who has been called to the First Presbyterian Church of this city.

Rev. A. Henderson, clerk of the London Presbytery, and a committee from the First Church are meeting with the Toronto Presbytery in Toronto today relative to the matter.

It is expected that word will be received some time this afternoon. The following gentlemen are in Toronto in support of the call from the First Church: Dr. Merchant, principal of the Normal School; Mr. John Cameron, postmaster; Mr. J. C. Jarvis, Mr. Edward Reid, and Dr. Hodge. Rev. A. Henderson is also with the delegates.

Ontario Govt. Asks for Statement Regarding Liquor Convictions

P. M. Love to Send Particulars to Provincial Secretary Hanan.

Local hotelmen are still wrothy over what they term the most unfair and illegal methods employed by Macrae and Hanson, the detectives, upon whose evidence a number of local hotels were recently fined $50.

In fact, it is said, that the attention of Provincial Secretary Hanna has been called to the matter, and he is credited with saying that if it can be proven that the detectives had deliberately enticed hotelmen to commit crimes he would dismiss them summarily.

Police Magistrate Love.

Police Magistrate Love this morning admitted that he had instructions from the Provincial Secretary to forward a statement in regard to the matter. Further than that he knew nothing of what was about to be done.

"If one of our city detectives tempted a man to commit a crime and then arrested him for it there would be the biggest kind of an outcry raised by fair-minded citizens," declared a hotelman today. "And yet those 'spotters' do that very same thing, and the license inspectors wink and think it a great joke—on us."

Fast Express Delayed Three Hours As Result of a Mishap at Paris

Lehigh Train Ran Foul of Cars Being Shunted at Paris Yards.

An accident at Paris yesterday morning delayed No. 3, the Lehigh Valley express, due here at 11 o'clock, for fully three hours. No one was hurt, although several were shaken up severely.

The train was just leaving Paris station, and was going west. The engineer could not see a freight crew shunting some cars, which were running foul of the track, until he was right upon them.

The emergency brakes were applied, and the train stopped in good time. The freight cars, however, were shunted along at a rather lively rate before the crew discovered they were on the wrong track, and crashed into the passenger engine. The pilot was smashed and otherwise damaged, so that un-other engine had to be secured to take the train on. A delay of nearly three hours was caused.

Bert Harvey, Leroy Kenny, Victor Lewis, Bert Walton and Frank Clegg, who gave the vaudeville entertainment at Queen's Park were on the train. They vividly describe the wreck.

"We were going along all right when I heard four whistles," said Bert Harvey. "I knew something was wrong. The window was up and I looked out to see what the trouble was. I saw the engineer jump, and then saw the freight back down on the passenger engine. The caboose was doubled up like a jackknife and pitched on to a coal car in front. The shock was not so great as when the emergency brakes were applied."

The dining-car was shaken considerably. The dishes on the table were strewn all over the car.

Mr. H. Ruthven McDonald and Mrs. McDonald, formerly of London, were also passengers on the train. They, along with Miss Grace Emery, the violinist, were on their way to Chil-

WRECK AVERTED AT PORT STANLEY

Big Derrick Barge in Danger—Scene of Excitement—A Lawn Party.

Port Stanley, Sept. 2.—The tug Kaminitiquia arrived about 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon from Port William, and Capt. Thompson at once landed and strolled up into the village. He had no sooner reached there, however, than he heard the tug McCrea give the danger signal. Capt. Thompson immediately rushed to the Kaminitiquia and ordered her out. At a glance could be seen the cause of the alarm.

The tug, at the end of the breakwater, lay the large derrick barge in great danger of being beaten to pieces on the hidden rocks. The tug steamed swiftly toward the barge, but owing to the very high sea running at the time was unable to get close enough to the endangered boat. After half an hour of fruitless efforts to relieve the barge, the Kaminitiquia summoned the McCrea to assist. This little boat was soon at work, and in a very few minutes had the vessel in tow. During the rescue the piers were crowded with excited people, and the whole scene was one of unusual interest.

ENORMOUS JUMP IN BANK CLEARINGS

Month of August Shows Increase of Nearly $1,000,000 Over 1906.

Local bank clearings for the month ending Aug. 31, 1907, totaled $5,631,007, against $4,692,366 for the month of August, 1906. Increase $938,641.

Thus in one year the clearing-house returns of London have increased in one month by close on to $1,000,000.

Local bank managers say the statement is extremely satisfactory.

ANTWERP RIOTERS ATTACK BRITISHERS

Board Steamers and Throw Freighting Apparatus Overboard.

Antwerp, Sept. 3.—The rioting dock laborers boarded the British steamer Agorion yesterday, destroyed her freighting implements, and seriously injured one of her engineers. They also took possession of the British steamer Sydney, tossed a number of tools and trucks overboard, and did other damage.

Their violence so terrified the men at work on board a number of vessels that they fled to the shore.

The disturbance continued throughout last evening. The strikers lay in wait at the railroad station, and made attempts to interfere with the English and German strikebreakers as they arrived. The strikers captured an omnibus used to convey strikebreakers to and from the wharves and threw it overboard from a dock.

HELP IS FOUND IN THE SHADOW

Lessons Drawn From Experience of David—A Church's Good Progress.

After a month's vacation spent mostly in the west, Rev. T. T. Shields, pastor of Adelaide Street Baptist Church, occupied his own pulpit Sunday, both morning and evening. An added interest marked the occasion, because of its being the third anniversary of Mr. Shields' installation as pastor.

The preacher took as his text in the words in Psalm 138: 7, "Because thou has been my help, therefore, in the shadow of thy wings will I rejoice."

Referring to his pastorate, Rev. Mr. Shields said: "We have spent three years together as pastor and people. It is not modesty but base ingratitude which would declare that nothing has been done. As a matter of fact 275 have been added to the church—151 by baptism and by experience. Our income and our congregations are more than double what they were. But this is God's work. True converts are made by God. I am ambitious by God's help to build a church that can easily do without me. A pastor should never make himself necessary to a church if he can help it. I want it to be God's work. I would not be like one of the pillars of Dagon's temple, whereon some Sampson may lean until the structure is destroyed." The happy resolution of the text, the preacher said, involves faith in God's overshadowing care—a faith that is a light in the darkness, that sees in every shadow only the protection of his covering wing. The weighty reason for David's resolution was his experience. "Because thou hast been my helper." The life of trust, said the preacher in conclusion, is the reasonable thing because nothing is impossible with our divine helper, and because of the inexhaustible riches of his grace.

There was a large attendance at the evening service when the pastor preached from Heb. x, 11-12: "The complete salvation wrought out by Jesus Christ."

The popularity of all kinds of sports in South Africa, emphasized by the recent successful visit of the Springbok football team to England, is in itself abundant evidence of the large market open for further development by enterprising importers of suitable clothing and accessories.

CARRIED TO SOO ON WRONG BOAT

Two Women and Four Children Boarded Huronic Instead of Tashmoo at Sarnia.

Sarnia, Aug. 31.—Two women, one of whom resides in Sarnia, and the other a visitor, went to Clark's wharf one recent afternoon, accompanied by four children, for the purpose of taking the steamer Tashmoo for Marine City, intending to return on the Toledo the same evening. Arriving at the wharf in ample time, they joined the crowd filing on board, and after seeing to the children and attending to other details, went on board to view the river scenery.

The only scenery visible was the broad expanse of Lake Huron, with Fort Gratiot lighthouse astern. They had taken the wrong boat.

Inquiry revealed the fact that they were on board the steamer Huronic, bound for the upper lakes. An appeal was instantly made to the captain to see if the boat could be turned about to allow them to be put off at Point Edward, but the steamer had over a hundred passengers on board and runs on a railway schedule, and the request was impossible. The trip, it was instantly begun, was not to be suddenly terminated. The Huronic makes no stop between Sarnia and the Canadian Soo, and the women had to make up their minds to three days' absence from home at least.

The Sarnia woman's house had been left open, in the expectation of turning at 9 o'clock, and no word had been left behind the statement that they were going to Marine City. As the boat would not arrive at the Soo until noon the following day, there was nothing to do but settle down and make the best of it. The officers of the line showed every courtesy, but were, of course, unable to send any word to the friends in Sarnia. Next day at noon the steamer reached Sault Ste. Marie, and a telegram was dispatched to Sarnia, and the women and children were transferred to the steamer Majestic bound for Sarnia. Two days later the boat arrived in Sarnia, and a very enjoyable trip had a pleasant termination.

TREE THAT REALLY WEEPS.

Among the historical curiosities to be seen at Chateworth House, the residence of the Duke of Devonshire, is a willow tree that weeps, very often to the personal discomfort of those beneath it. The weeping willow appears to be an ordinary willow, but on close inspection it is seen to be artfully artificial. It is made from a metal to closely resemble a living tree, and each of its branches is covered with innumerable holes. In fact, the whole tree is a monster syringe, being connected to a water main near by. The key for turning on and off is close at hand, and many a visiting party has been entertained by its branches by practical jokes—Tid-Bits.

STORM BREEDER OF MOROCCO

What One Old Sheikh Has Done to Stir Up Trouble for Sultan.

Paris, Sept. 2.—There is a mysterious old sheikh in Morocco whom the French would greatly like to seize and to hold. His name is Ma el Ainin. All along the Sahara frontier and up the Atlantic Coast, from Senegal to Fez, and from Cape Juby to Rabat, he appears when least expected. Trouble for Christians follows him where he goes. A year ago the Pasha of Rabat had the courage to get him out of the city. He tramped over to Casablanca. This was last September. The agitation he began has now worked out to its end in the massacre of European workmen. Meanwhile there has been trouble ever since. Then he wound up in Marrakesh, where the French Doctor Mauchamp was soon after assassinated. And the French now remember that it was Ma el Ainin's men who thrice raided their advance posts in Mauritania—there where they are peacefully penetrating Morocco, by steadily pushing inward their military frontier.

Ma el Ainin is a holy man—a marabout—a prophet and the son of a prophet. The common people hold him in awe as a sorcerer of power. The higher class of Moors look on him as the most learned and authorized interpreter of their Scripture and law. The old Sultan had him at Marrakesh to consult him. The present Sultan venerates him, and not a year ago welcomed him to Fez, giving him all his own spare money and all the rifles and ammunition which Ma el Ainin and his band could carry away.

The old man was born in what we call the desert, and belongs to a great family of the western Sahara—the Fadelya. There, far away from Christian criticism and modern ideas, exists a revered center of studies of the law and the Prophet. Ma el Ainin, in the desert solitude, became the most reputed theologian of Morocco. He has written more than fifty books, and a dozen of them have been struck off on the Sultan's lithographic presses. Law and theology, the Sufi philosophy of religious ecstasy and union with God, astronomy and astrology and orthodox grammar, even a volume of verse, are found in the works of this religious leader, who is now making history.

When he was at the height of his fame, Ma el Ainin gathered his best trained disciples into one of those religious orders which have wrought the Moslem revival in Africa. He does not seem to have affiliated himself or them to any of the older orders, some of which date back to Bagdad and the first Moors in Spain.

Blue Marabouts. Four days' ride from Cape Juby, in the oasis of Saguet el Hamra, sheltered from profane influence by desert wastes on every side, he founded the seat of his prayer—the fizaoua, half monastery and half center of pilgrimage for the faithful. To his marabouts, chosen emissaries of the inner circle, he gave a robe of blue cotton, worn next the skin. As sweet and rain takes out the color, and as the holy men do not wash, their penitential forms when the wind blows open their loose gowns are known by the distinctive tinge of their holiness—they are the "blue marabouts."

This brotherhood, known as the 'Ainin, from the founder's name, has been blessed exceedingly. It has branch zaouas at Marrakesh and Fez. When the old Ma el Ainin goes to visit his monasteries, it is no light event for the towns along his way. The numerous blue brothers and unnumbered followers that escort him have to be fed and lodged. And no one would dare to refuse a suitable money contribution. Magador, where they passed last year, handed over more than $20,000. It was politic, for Ma el Ainin was on his way to affiliate the Sultan himself to his brotherhood.

A year ago, also, one of those wild, flying tribes of the desert, whose god was made of butter and long since melted in the sun, after a fifty-days' raid, in which they had taken nothing, came suddenly on Ma el Ainin's herd of female camels. There were 300 of them, each with her little one. The Touaregs rounded them up in triumph, and arranged thankfully for a good night's rest. But with nightfall two blue-gowned messengers appeared. Their words were clear and to the point.

"You know these camels belong to the holy man. You will do as you choose; he is not going to fight if you decide to drive them away. But he will cast his curse on you, and not one of you shall ever see his children again, not one shall ever return home."

A Sorcerer's Curse.

The robbers, who feared nobody's god, were not beyond fear of a sorcerer's curse. They held out a long time, disputing what might happen to them; but they gave back the camels. Four days later they captured a whole caravan. Again the blue brothers appeared and claimed nineteen camel-loads as the property of their chief. And again the Touaregs yielded.

In Morocco itself, from north to south, from the Sultan to the lowliest peasant in the mountain fastness, Ma el Ainin is the chief of the Holy War; it is he who shall make Islam to live again in triumph. When the French explorer Segonzac was in Marrakesh, the old man told him plainly that the Moors would soon cut and slash among the Christians.

This is one of their problems about which the French do not consult Germany or the other powers. The blue marabouts, safe as they think them in the isolation of their desert zaouas, are to be rooted out and scattered.

Little by little the French troops have occupied oases after oases, skirting the whole southeastern corner of the uncertain boundary of what is still known as Morocco. For years the generals have been forming bands of raiders—"meharistes"—who can strike off across the desert as well as Touaregs or Moors. Capt. Fyfe Sainte-Marie, in command of the Western Sahara

A HAPPY GATHERING

Large Unbroken Family Meet for First Time in Twenty-four Years.

St. Marys, Sept. 2.—A very happy event occurred at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Purdie, 285 Berkeley street, Toronto, recently being the fiftieth anniversary of their marriage, and a reunion of the members of the family who had not all met together for 24 years. All were present excepting one son, Frank, who is living in New York City. The family consists of seven sons and six daughters, there having been no break by death in their numbers. They include: James, Robert and Vincent (Dick), St. Marys; William and Frank of New York; Arthur and George, Toronto; Mrs. Thos. Massey and Mrs. Geo. Smith, St. Marys; Mrs. Robert Major and the Misses Maggie, Carrie and Nellie, Toronto. In the evening all sat down to a sumptuous repast, there being about 35 children, grandchildren and friends in the party. Mr. George Smith and Mrs. Jas. Purdie, of St. Marys, and Messrs. Frederick and Alexander, sons of William, of New York, attended. The tables were tastefully decorated. Hearty toasts were drunk to the health of the host and hostess, and the evening was spent in singing, music, dancing and games. Mr. Purdie was born in Ipswich, England, and Mrs. Purdie in Scotland. Mr. Purdie is 81 years of age, and Mrs. Purdie a few years his junior, and both enjoy good health.

WIDOW HOLDS THE FORT

Gains Access to Mike McDonald's Home and Refuses to Leave.

Chicago, Sept. 2.—Sick and nearly penniless, Mrs. Dora McDonald, widow of Millionaire "Mike" McDonald, the former "gambling king" of Chicago, has returned to the family residence at 4501 Drexel Boulevard, which her husband had not allowed her to enter since she is alleged to have shot and killed Webster Guerin, her supposed paramour.

The latest action on the part of the widow has startled the other heirs, who fear it may conceal some legal trick affecting their interests. Every peaceful means possible has been taken to induce her to leave, but without avail, and an armistice has been declared between the contending factions until Wednesday, when McDonald's will is to be probated.

Mrs. McDonald has been at a sanatorium since her release from jail on bond. She gained access to the house by saying she wished to get some of her things. A colored maid is the only medium of communication between her and the caretaker of the house.

A CURIOUS FROG.

South America has a frog of peculiar habits. Dwelling in the virgin forest, at the tops of the highest trees, it chooses as the site of its nursery some hollow stump and then proceeds to line it with rosin procured from trees in the neighborhood. This lining serves to catch and hold the rain-water, with which it quickly becomes filled. As soon as this takes place the eggs are laid therein, and here they undergo development into tadpoles. How the rosin is collected is a mystery, nor is it yet known how the separate pieces become welded to form the water-tight basin necessary to insure the safety of the treasure deposited therein.—New York Tribune.

According to Mr. Carl Snyder, writing in Everybody's Magazine, not a passenger was killed during the last fiscal year upon 279 American railroads, which include more than half the track mileage of the country and carry more than one-half of the passenger mileage. The writer mentions only one of the companies on this roll of honor and that, the Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis and Omaha, is clearly entitled to the glory, for it does a yearly business of 145,000,000 passenger miles and not a passenger has been killed on its 1,700 miles of track in the last ten years.

LONDON, TUESDAY, SEPT. 3.

CANADA'S RAILWAY PROGRESS.

An excellent idea of the wonderful expansion of Canadian railways is afforded by the railway map recently issued by the department of the interior. On the map are plainly marked the lines of the different systems in operation, under construction and located, tables showing railway construction in 1906, the total mileage at present, the amount of public money paid to railways last year, etc.

It is interesting to recall that in 1855
what is now the Dominion of Canada could show but 563 miles of railway.
Twelve years later, at the time of Confederation, this had grown to 2,000 miles. Today, according to this map, the total mileage in operation is 23,706
miles, traversing the entire continent, and representing a paid-up capital of $1,332,498,705. The Canadian Pacific leads in mileage in operation, with a total of 9,306, the Canadian Northern comes next with 3,946, and the Grand Trunk follows with 3,708 miles. The total train mileage of all lines is 72-723,482.

Last year no less than 1,165 miles of railway were constructed in Canada, but great as that amount is, the prospects are that each of the next few years will see it exceeded. When completed, the Grand Trunk Pacific will have 3,782 miles of railway. Of that over 1,200 miles are not yet actually under construction, but there is every reason to believe that by the fall of 1908 the line between Edmonton and Fort William will be in active operation.

The map is comprehensive, but it is only one feature of the literature sent out by the Immigration branch of the interior department, the object being to show to the people of the old world what Canada's railways mean, and to give an idea of the vastness in extent of the territory covered.

THE IMPERIAL PARLIAMENT.

The session of the Imperial Parliament which was prorogued last week, though less productive of actual legislation than it would have been but for the obstruction of the Lords, has by no means been a barren one. Several measures of significance and value have been placed on the statute books.
Prominent among these are an act establishing a court of criminal appeal, a pure food act, an army reorganization act, an act establishing small holdings in England, an act legalizing marriage with a deceased wife's sister, which removes from the political arena what for half a century or more has been a vexed question, and an act for the relief of evicted tenants in Ireland, the adoption by the Government of the Lords' amendments to which has caused the breaking of the alliance which for over twenty years had existed between the Liberal and Irish Nationalist parties.

Some of the important bills that were announced in the speech from the throne could not, owing to pressure of other business and lack of time, even be introduced, and two very important measures, the Irish administrative councils bill and the Scotch small holdings bill were withdrawn. The aim of the Government in the first-named measure was to give to Ireland an installation of the home rule for which its representatives at Westminster have for many years fought. The Ministry would have gone farther towards meeting Nationalist aspirations, but it had to consider the House of Lords. The object of the Government was to so frame the measures as to make it of real value and at the same time leave no possible excuse for its rejection by the upper chamber. The introduction of the bill was followed by its rejection by the Nationalists themselves as inadequate, and there was nothing left the Government but to withdraw it.

Perhaps the most important feature of the session was the opening of the campaign against the House of Lords.
The House of Commons, by an overwhelming majority, has pronounced in favor of curtailing the power of the upper chamber to block the legislation of the people's representatives. The reform of the House of Lords will henceforth be in the forefront of the Liberal programme and will be a rallying cry for all the forces of democracy.

THE WATER PROBLEM.

A plan for a high-pressure system for fire protection was prepared some time ago by Engineer Moore, and provides for using the water of the south branch. The map shows the mains running through the industrial district of the east end, and covering the downtown business section and the public buildings in the north end. The shrinkage of the volume of water in the north branch and the complications that would ensue from the claims of mill-owners, if any considerable quantity of water were diverted for civil purposes, make a recourse to the south branch the likelier alternative for an independent high-pressure system, or for river filtration. The advocates of Mr. Maury's plan must admit this, since it has been shown that the estimate of the flow of water in the north branch, upon which he based his arguments, was absurdly astray. It is not claimed for the south branch that it is "a series of springs," but south branch water is used with satisfaction by the Grand Trunk and the rolling mills, and if distributed by means of an independent system would replace large quantities of spring water now used for industrial purposes, streetsprinkling, etc. It is unfortunate that the water commissioners do not appreciate the twofold benefit of such a system. It would make the spring water supply go further, and would afford a degree of efficiency in fire protection which no other scheme can approach. The commissioners still stand by the Komoka scheme, which would be too costly for the results obtained.

Is Mr. Borden going to bring the Foster-Fowler-Lefurgey outfit into Ontario?

The amount of spring water saved by the independent system would increase every year.

If the Quebec bridge had been a Government work, the air would have rung with cries of "Graft!"

Mr. Graham makes the second journalist in the Dominion Cabinet, the other being Mr. Fielding. The Minister of Finance has set a pace for his confere.

The Toronto Globe says the success of the Toronto Exhibition is due to "a thorough mixture of the best Grit and Tory brains." The recipe is respectfully commended to the London School Board, which will not give Grit brains a chance.

The Free Press, not so many months ago, suggested that an independent system, using river water for fire-fighting, would go a long way toward the solution of the water problem.
Since then it professes to have been converted to the filtration scheme by Engineer Maury, and to have pinned its faith to the "bubbling springs" of the north branch as a permanent way out of the difficulty. Now that Mr.
Maury's calculations put the north branch out of the running, our neighbor should return to its first position, which was a sensible one.

TOO MUCH FOR HIM.

[Exchange.]
Huggins—Why did Peckem apply for a divorce?
Muggins—He happened to be home one wash day when it rained.

GRAVELLED.

[New York Sun.]
George Washington was boasting that he never told a lie.
"But," they asked him, "what did you say when they asked how you enjoyed your vacation?"
"With the great man hastily changed the subject."

IN NEW YORK.

[Life.]
Waiter (in New York restaurant)—We do not serve half portions to two persons, sir.
Patron—Yes, you do; only you charge for a full one.

LOST IN COOK'S RESPECT.

[Puck.]
Edgar—Didn't the cook like us?
Euphemias—Oh, yes; she said that we liked us all right, but that she had to economize so that she could not respect us.

A TACTFUL VICAR.

[Punch.]
Vicar (effusively to conductor, at close of a brilliant programme)—The music sounded very delightful in the distance, and I can assure you it did not in any way interfere with the sales.

ON TIME.

[Judge.]
"John."
"Yes, sir."
"Be sure to tell me when it is four o'clock."
"Yes, sir."
"Don't forget it. I promised to meet my wife at 2.30 in the drug store across the street, and she'll be provoked if I'm not there when she comes."

A BITTER SPEECH.

[Exchange.]
Hillary K. Adair, the noted western detective, replied to the toast "Detection" at a dinner in Omaha.
"Speeches pregnant with meaning often help the detective in his delicate work," said Mr. Adair. "Often a speech of eight or ten words will reveal volumes."

"Thus I once knew how things stood in a Boston house when I heard a Boston woman say to her husband, 'Jim, do you know you talk in your sleep?' and the man replied, 'Well, do you begrudge me
those few words?'"

THE MODERN MOTHER.

[Cleveland Leader.]
Mrs. X—What lovely children! Are all forgets?"
Mrs. Y—The court hasn't decided yet.

IN CASE OF FIRE.

[Exchange.]
A German town was talking about the famous Dr. Henry Van Dyke, of Princeton.
"When Van Dyke was a little chap," he said, "I went to school with him."
"One day, before school closed for the Christmas holidays, we expected a visit from a certain director. This director said ways questioned the children about one thing, namely: What they'd do in case of fire. So the teacher coached us all the morning before he came, preparing us about on the games to be taken if fire should break out. The director called,

"Well, now enough, the director called,
but when he got up to address us he said:
"It is good to be here at this jolly Christmas season among so many merry smiling young faces. You are a bright looking lot of children, and I wonder what you would do now if I were to make you a little speech on the best way to celebrate Christmas."
"Quick as a flash young Van Dyke piped out:
"Form in single file and march out quickly!"

THE DRIVER NOT AT FAULT.
[New York Sun.]
Knicker—Was your auto speeding?
Booker—No; the landscape was going by too fast.

THE GREEN INN.
[Theodosia Garrison, in Scribner's.]
I sitken of men's company—
The crowded tavern's din,
Where all day long, with oath and song,
Sit they who entrance win;
So come I out from noise and rout
To rest in God's Green Inn.

Here none may mock at empty purse.
Or ragged coat and poor,
But Silence waits within the gates,
And Peace beside the door;
The weary guest is welcomed,
The richest pays no score.

The roof is high and arched with blue.
The floor is spread with pine;
On my four walls the sunlight falls
In golden flecks and fine,
And swift and fleet, on noiseless feet,
The Four Winds bring me wine.

Upon my board they set their store—
Great drinks mixt cunningly,
Wherein the scent of furze is blent
With odor of the sea,
As from a cup I drink it up
To thrill the veins of me.

It's I will sit in God's Green Inn,
Untroubled by man or ghost,
Yet ever fed and comforted,
Companioned by mine host,
And watched at night by that white light
High-swinging from coast to coast.

Oh, you who in the House of Strife
Quarrel and game and sin,
Come out and see what cheer may be
For starveling souls and thin,
Who come at last from drought and fast
To sit in God's Green Inn!

A MORAL OBLIGATION.
[Tales.]

"But why do you keep your new maid
if she is so awkward?"
"Out of gratitude. Last week she upset all the sauce over my old gown."

UNHEALTHY.

[Translated for Tales.]
Man (to a friend)—I am done with doctors henceforth! One of them advised me to sleep with my windows open. I did so,
and the very next morning my gold watch was gone from the bureau.

HIS POWERS.

[Chicago Record-Herald.]
"Don't you think my son has marvelous powers as a mimic?" asked the hostess.
"He has indeed," replied the gentleman who had overheard her son mimicking him, much to his disadvantage. "He might imitate a gentleman to the life, if he were to practice a little."

UNHAPPY BILL.

[London Opinion.]
Noble Sportsman—Whatever it is I've shot it makes a most unearthly row.
Keeper—Yes; poor Bill ain't got a musical voice, 'as he?

RAYNER AND THE TEACHERS.

[Washington Herald.]
Senator Rayner, of Maryland, is a stout advocate of larger salaries for teachers in all sorts of schools. Recently at a reception he told a story about a teachers' meeting in a district where the salaries were unusually low.
"A rich, portly banker opened the meeting with an address," said the senator.
"The banker concluded his remarks with an enthusiastic gesture, and the words,
'Long live our teachers!'"
"What on?" shouted a thin, pale, seedy man, in a black coat smeared with chalk marks.

YE OLDEN SPELLING.

[Youth's Companion.]
Proof is below that ladies criticized each other's clothes in the seventeenth as in the twentieth century—and in "fonetik" spelling.
In 1686, May or June, Bridget Noel wrote to her sister, the Countess of Rutland:
"My Lady Gansbourn meet us at Burley, but in such a dress as I never saw without dispute. Her jengon mantlé is the worst of its kind, & her apparel, a great deal of green, & a letel Gould & great flours, there is some red with the green, and noe lining, which lüks a homenable."

MISLEADING.

[Youth's Companion.]
"De Riter has had a novel published, I hear."
"Yes. It's called 'Pygmalion,' and it's having a remarkable sale in Chicago."
"Why in Chicago particularly?"
"Well, I believe the people there were misled by the first syllable. They thought she had something to do with their great home industry."

HIS LAUDABLE AIM.

[Chicago News.]
Stern Parent—Young man, you have been calling on my daughter rather frequently for some time. Are your intentions serious?
Young Man—Certainly. I'm trying to persuade her to persuade you to purchase the make of piano I am agent for.

THE SIDE BOOTH.

[Monetary Times.]
Certain British journals are solemnly warning their readers of the Cobalt "wild cat" proposition. Investors must be thoroughly sick of hearing of the Cobalt fakir.
If Cobalt from the first had been considered as a mining district and nothing more, all would have been well. Certain interested people gave it a moral halo, with the result that people who knew not the difference between a stock certificate and an income tax plunged wildly into the net of the first enterprising gentleman with unlimited check and an encyclopaedia vocabulary. Investors have been told to discriminate when dealing with Cobalt.
They ought to know that. The impudent will always prosper on the shelves of the ignorant. When Barium was about to turn away thousands from his show one day, he quickly fired up a side show and admitted the overflow at the usual price.
"This way to the lions," was the first sign; "This way to the tigers," was the second; "This way to the egress," was the third. When people found themselves in the street they were surprised. Cobalt investors should keep clear of the side booth.

day up until the eighth, and it began to look like an extra inning contest up to that point. Then it all happened.
Runs came so fast and furious in the last two innings that it was with difficulty that the official scorer could keep track of them.

Gillett, at short, was a mistake, and had no less than two glaring errors.
The old fellow evidently couldn't get out of the notion that he was out in the outer garden, and several times tried to get hot grounders standing straight up, with the result that the ball bumped against his feet and then bounced over his head.

In the ninth each one of the Champions had a turn at bat, and Ecclestone was up twice.
Gibson twirled a fair game, but was touched up rather freely at that.
However, he kept the hits scattered in good fashion, and was never in much danger after the fourth, when an error, two hits and a stolen sack gave the Rockets their only run.

The White Cat

[BY GELETT BURGESS, AUTHOR OF "VIVETTE"]
Copyright by Bobbe-Merrill Company.

"Yes. Your keeping it up so well, you know."

"Oh, I'll keep it up! It's the chief charm of being here, flat on my back, in a strange place. I'm sure it will be most amusing."

"I'm not so sure. I'm full of moods and whims—you're going to be terribly disappointed in me sometimes—though that sounds like vanity—and I may take advantage of your complaisance, of your promise, that is, I hope you won't regret it."

So it rested, my promise not to be too inquisitive (for I took its meaning to be that), given and accepted. It quite whetted my appetite, you may be sure. If all this talk seems lineal, I'll give-and-take me perfectly understood each other. I cannot, of course, give her delicate infections, but these, with her looks and gestures, said as much as her words.

But if this equivocal conversation was vague and shadowy, she could pass into the sunshine as deftly. She seemed to do so now, as she rose and went to the open window and whistled. A chorus of barks answered her. She turned to me.

"I must go down to my dogs," she said. "I wish you could see them—that is, if you like collies. I have five, all thoroughbreds—they're beauties! You'll have to get acquainted with them as soon as you're able to go downstairs."

She leaned a little out of the window and called. "Hi! Nokomis!" drawing out the vowels. A deep bark responded.

"Hiawatha!" she called next, and she was answered by a sharp, frenzied yelping. "Minnehaha!" followed—she almost sang the name, which was really to like the others. Then Chevalier and John O'Groat greeted her in turn.

"I'm going to take them for their morning run," she said, as she left me. "I'll examine you on the essays."

A SMART LITTLE COAT FOR A MISS—4236.

Separate jackets are very modish this year, and those who count the dollars and cents find them very economical. A chic little coat of unusual style and not difficult for home-making is sketched. It may be made of cloth, linen or pongee, as well as taffetas, and serve for wear with the odd skirt, or it may serve as a suit coat and be of the same material of the skirt. The front closes with a trig vest and the sleeves are of three-quarter length, having tucks at the lower edge and natty turn-back cuffs. For the medium size 1 1/2 yards of 54-inch material are needed for the coat.

4236—SIZES, 14, 15, 16, 17 years.
The price of this pattern is 10 cents.

When I come back."

She went down, and soon after I heard her talking, evidently to Uncle Jerdon and to King. Then the barking rose ecstatically, receded in the distance, and finally was lost. I took up the essays and read for a while. My head was much better, and my soreness was slowly disappearing, but the constrained positions I had to hold to keep my rib from paining me made me too weary and impatient to put my mind on my book. I could hardly wait for Miss Fielding to return, and lay inert, watching the flies drift lazily through the sunshine that filled the room, hoping that Leah, at least, might come in to break my ennui. I welcomed even the hoarse, squeaky cry of King's pump, the occasional crowing of a rooster, the twittering of birds in the apple-tree, and the many little homey sounds of country life. The fragrant perfume of the roses in the room was a blessed reminder of Miss Fielding's kindness.

In a half an hour I heard the dogs approaching and she came into the room again, hatless, bringing a new breath of June with her. Her hair was blown to a silky veil through which her eyes shone and her rosy cheeks glowed as she smiled at me over the foot-board of my bed. Throwing off her little white bolero, a saucy thing, with black velvet collar and cuffs, she went to the mirror and gathered up the loose strands of hair, tucking them in, here and there, with deft touches of her fingers and adjusting them with dark tortoise-shell pins, until her little head, coiffed high, was as smooth as a cat's.

She came up to the bedside and was quick to notice by my nervous movements that I was suffering. Sitting down she began to tell gaily of her walk over the hill, and as she spoke my aching was calmed as if she had laid a finger on the electric switch that controlled it. Then she suggested reading to me, and took up the volume of poems we had discussed.

Her voice was not quite intense enough for strong emotion; it had not the momentum, so to speak, to carry the lines along with the swing and rhythm necessary. It was too light for that, but it more than made up for it by its sympathetic tenderness and the delicacy of its inflection. Her tones lulled me, and I fell asleep.

In the afternoon she brought her mending, and we talked for a couple of hours or so, always keeping, as she expressed it "on the island." What personalities we discussed, that is had no reference to her history or her plans. She warned me off very cleverly several times when the talk approached her circumstances or even her moods and tastes.

When she confessed that she played a little on the piano and violin, I positively insisted upon my rights as an invalid to be amused. She rolled up her work and went to get her violin without excuses or apologies.

I waited with considerable anxiety to hear what she would play, not committing myself as to my own choice of composers. She began in her own room, and through the open doors I heard the strains of Prize Song played with great nerve and sentiment. I was delighted. She came, still playing, into my chamber, her sleeves rolled up (she said she could not play else), and accepted my compliments graciously and simply. Then, walking up and down, absorbed, she gave me fragments of Cesar Franck's sonata for the violin and piano. To watch her, supple, verile, rapt, to note her clever, accomplished technique, the passionate, free-armed command of the bow—I have seldom seen such an attack or so sure and true a vibrato—was a joy beautifully associated with the clarity and subtle craftsmanship of the master.

So she ran on, alternating her renditions with scraps of talk which showed a keen musical sense and an appreciation of the radical, ultra-modern movement of the time. Next she burst into a vibrant, dramatic Polish folk-song that excited me like fire. And finally, as a tour de force, her eyes dancing as she watched me over her shoulder with some new audacious devil in her smile, she played a waltz, a vivacious piece more in the original, enlivened with flights of technique—trills, brilliant chord passages and runs with the upward and downward "staccato bow." Then she threw down her fiddle and came up to me, laughing.

That evening she had another delight for me, coming to my bedside and reading Villon and Verlaine in the original, translating the old French for me when I was perplexed by the argot. And for the picture, I need only add that Leah was of the circle, and made her own comments!

CHAPTER III.

There was, next morning, a little dialogue much like that which I had overheard the day before, except that this time it was "stewed rose-leaves with a small pot of sunshine," which Miss Fielding was fanciful enough to demand. I wondered what, after such a pleasantry, she did have for I took it to be some joke between her and Leah, who, no doubt, translated the metaphor into something more substantial.

As I ate breakfast, I could hear Miss Fielding singing in her room. She came in before I had finished my egg and coffee, bringing an armful of new magazines. This time she was dressed in pongee and wore a short string of graduated white coral beads which was mimicked, when she smiled, by her little teeth.

"I've found out about you—quite by accident, though, Mr. Castle, really," she said gaily; and, opening one of the magazines, she tapped with her hand the picture of a country house my firm had just rather successfully completed. "So you're an architect! And I'm the wife to get off the island, after all."

"It doesn't matter, I suppose, so long as I stay on!" I asked.

"Oh, this doesn't by any means absolve you of your promise," she answered, examining the illustration carefully, still standing at the foot of the bed.

"You aren't really much wiser, are you? There are architects and architects, you know."

"Yes," she said, apparently thinking of something else. "Quite as there are women and women," she added, turning over the pages idly.

"There's only one of your sort!" I exclaimed.

A queer smile passed and was repressed upon her lips, moulding them into new curves. "Yes, only one of me."

"I don't exactly mean that, either," I went on. "The fact is, rather, that there is more than one of me. There's the architect and the man in me—and how many more! One is always astonishing the others. Aren't there, after all, several of you, Miss Fielding?"

She gave me a frightened glance, then tossed the magazine on the bed. It wasn't petulance; she seemed to be disturbed at the subject.

"Oh, I'm only a White Cat!" she said cryptically.

She seemed anything but that, to me. "I'll tell you about it sometime—perhaps," she added. "But not now."

She stood with her hands behind her back, raising herself on her toes, and changed the subject. "I'm awfully anxious to show you this house, now that I know you're an architect. It's one of the oldest hereabouts, and it was a wreck when I bought it. I've had it all done over inside, and I shall expect you to compliment me on my taste, for it's mainly my own ideas."

"What I've seen of it is charming—but a bit impersonal, perhaps."

"Oh, this is only the guest chamber. One doesn't inflict one's ideas on the transient visitor. Of course this is a bloodless, sexless place. You'll find personality enough in my room, I fancy. I hope you will be able to get downstairs by the day after tomorrow, and have a chance to look about the place. I'm sure you'll love Middlemarch. I'm expecting the doctor this afternoon, and he'll probably be able to tell you how long you'll have to stay. I do hope you won't get well too fast, Mr. Castle."

"Trust me for that," I said. "I give you fair notice, I shall probably do some malingering. But I shall be glad to see the doctor, and I shall make sure that I can impose upon him."

My heart sank, nevertheless, at the thought of his interruption on our idyl. I felt an illogical right to her by discovery, a certain franchise in her good graces that Fate herself had given me. The possible weakening of our alliance, however, was only the negative side of my annoyance, and so energetically that Dr. Copin seemed to be an old acquaintance, even a friend; for Miss Fielding had mentioned that she was going to walk over to the Harbor to meet him. It was possible, even—and the idea was poison—that she was in love with him. Well, I must needs wait and see him before I decide as to that chance.

I asked her if all her dogs again, and, seeing that it might amuse me, she offered to bring Nokomis, the best behaved, and matron of the kennel, up to see me. I accepted, eagerly, and from the window, she called her favorite.

Nokomis was one of the most beautiful collies I have ever seen, a tawny red, or sable, with white ruff, feet, and tail-point. Her head was very finely shaped—not too dull for keenness, nor with too much of the silly greyhound's tapering muzzle, as not a few flatheaded prize-winners, bred chiefly for color and coat, have.

She had dark brown eyes set with dark, oblique lines that gives the breed its characteristic look of brightness, kindness and craft. Her small ears, as she entered, were semi-erect, giving her, as she topped with her head lightly on one side, the sharp, doubtful expression of the fox. She came with her flag up, as if she were in exhibition, her sleek, smooth coat, to Miss Fielding and awaited orders.

"Isn't she a darling?" Miss Fielding said affectionately, rubbing her pet's neck. "You haven't got flappy, saddle-bag ears and a high forehead and a velvet jacket, has you? I don't see so snipely nose! Han't she got an honest, sonny face? Mr. Castle, she isn't 'bawst'! And look at her gawdle tail, my upward curl! she has old Cockie herself for an ancestor, she has!"

Nokomis gravely stood on her hind legs with her forepaws on her mistress's skirt, panting—smiling, I might well say. Then in obedience to a word and a gesture, she dropped and came over to me in her dignified and friendly way that I fell promptly in love with her. Her outer coat was abundant, straight and stiff, the under one was so thick and soft and furry that I could not find the skin. Her ruff was magnificent, her chest deep and strong. I was sure she would be a good worker; her wit had already been proved.

Miss Fielding was pleased with my appreciation, and consented to having Nokomis remain, and so, for the rest of the day, except for occasional inquisitive excursions, she lay on the floor beside my bed, thumping her tail and listening attentively whenever I looked down to speak to her.

Early in the afternoon Miss Fielding put on a fresh linen waist and corduroy skirt to set out for the station. Before she went she moved about the room, re-adjusting the flowers, drawing a shade or two which threatened to let the sun in, my eyes, remembering my pitcher of water and so on, giving me in five minutes a dozen evidences of her tact, thoughtfulness and consideration. Then, with a last warning to Nokomis to take good care of me, she went away, leaving the apartment depressingly empty.

Leah came in occasionally, however, to see if I was comfortable, but I could get little talk from her. She answered all my questions, looking at me with her meeting, deep brown eyes, which were really not a little like those of old Nokomis, but vouchsafing no remark of her own. Between the two I managed to be fairly patient till, at about three o'clock, Miss Fielding returned with the doctor. I was aware of their approach for some time before they arrived by the jocular barking of the collies in front of the stable. At this Nokomis pricked up her ears, but was too well-bred to pay any more attention. I had laughed at her for yawning wide with her wolf-like jaws, and she was sensitively on her dignity.

NEARLY CONVERTED QUEEN VICTORIA

Earl Dunmore, Who Has Just Died, Possessed Remarkable Versatility.

London, Sept. 1.—Charles Adolphus Murray, the Earl of Dunmore, who died suddenly Tuesday, was up to a few years ago one of the most active and best known members of the peerage, and was widely known in both Europe and America for activities and achievements along many lines.

He was the originator of smoking concerts in England, and he also won fame as an employer. The most venturesome of his journeys was 15 years ago, when he traveled from India across the Pamirs and Central Asia to the Caspian Sea. Lord Dunmore was an accomplished musician and played the violin and piano. His musical compositions are credited with being of more than average merit and he often conducted an orchestra of sixty pieces. He was a successful breeder of farm stock, and as a draughtsman and painter he was eminently successful. He was also an ardent believer in homeopathy, and for a time was vice-chairman of the London Homeopathic Hospital.

As a hunter and deer stalker he also won a high reputation, and his exploits as a life-saver were some years ago the talk of all England. On a stormy night, accompanied by three men, he went in an open fishing boat to rescue the passengers and crew of a yacht that had been wrecked 11 miles from the coast of his estate in Inverness-shire. Two trips had to be made on the heavy sea, but after many hours of the hardest kind of work Lord Dunmore and his aides saved all hands on board the yacht. About the year 1900 Lord Dunmore began to take an interest in Christian Science, and in 1901 he first visited America and had interviews with the leaders of the new belief.

Upon his return to England Lord Dunmore had as co-worker the Earl of Tankerville, and so energetically were their operations that it was said that before her death Queen Victoria had become a reader of Christian Science literature, and that they had made notable conversions.

That Lord Dunmore attributed to Christian Science his relief from an annoying malady is well known, but the detailed account now available will probably not convince anybody not a Christian Scientist of the accuracy of his assertion. A disability was what Lord Dunmore claimed to have been cured of. One surgeon he consulted assured him that it was incurable. In six weeks from the time he put himself in the hands of his daughter, who was a Christian Scientist, he was absolutely cured. He had, he said, the best proof of this in the fact that the year afterward he went to a doctor to be examined for a life insurance company and one of the first questions he had to answer was whether he suffered from such a disability? He answered, "No, I do not, but some time I did."

The doctor laughed, and said, "You cannot possibly ever have had such a disability and you never had one." A short time later Lord Dunmore testified to his cure in London and an Edinburgh surgeon, who was present, asked to be allowed to accompany him home and examine him. He consented to the doctor's request, and the same as the other doctor had said, but luckily according to Lord Dunmore's view, he had the proof of what he asserted in a letter from a London specialist and a bill from a firm of instrument makers in connection with the treatment.

The Dunmore case has often been quoted by Christian Scientists as one of the most remarkable demonstrations of the truth of their claims, but the details have hitherto not been generally known.

LUCKY NEWSBOYS

Mysterious Stranger Shows Them With Silver.

Dublin, Sept. 2.—There was a scene of great excitement in Abbey street yesterday, when a gentleman was seen in the midst of a crowd of newsboys near Catholic Boys' Home distributing silver, chiefly florins and half-crowns. The boys scrambled over each other to share in the generosity of the mysterious and eccentric individual. A couple of policemen endeavored to keep order, but without much success, until the benefactor's store had given out.

Having exhausted his silver, the gentleman went into the boys' home, where he selected two lads, whom he drove in a cab to a neighboring tailoring establishment, had them fitted out in new suits and then took them back to the home, where the bewildered boys were the object of the envious admiration of their fellows.

A further distribution of silver took place inside the home, and finally the stranger, accompanied by his selected boys, drove off in a cab to a city establishment in which he has an interest, where, it is understood, the boys will be installed as clerks.

The French Government is taking steps to stop the promiscuous wearing of foreign uniforms in France. The reason is that they are often used to promote and cloak fraud.

JEW ASSAILS JEW WHO ACTS AS CAD

Vulgarity and Ostentation of the Race in London Is Vigorously Denounced.

London, Sept. 1.—A remarkable attack on the vulgar and ostentatious type of Jew is made by a member of the Jewish community in a letter published in the current issue of the Jewish Chronicle. This objectionable type, the writer says, is responsible for most, if not all, the anti-Jewish feeling which exists in this country.

The following are extracts from the letter: "All respectable members of the Jewish community should be grateful to 'Anstrax' for so straightforwardly opening a discussion on the vulgarity and ostentation exhibited by a large section of our people—qualities to which most, if not all, of the anti-Jewish feeling that exists in this country is due. Whatever be the cause of these characteristics—whether racial or otherwise—they are certainly most objectionable."

"Look around certain districts of the east end—notably Whitechapel and Aldgate—and see hordes of Jewesses with their gaudy and hideous costumes, their enormous and gruesome hats, their plentiful supply of mock jewelry—to see them is to be overcome by a sense of nausea! This type is not confined to the districts named, but is to be found also in the suburbs and west end—in the latter case, real jewelry being substituted for imitation."

"Now, for the Jewish young man. Who doesn't know the type which will only wear the very latest style in clothes, the latest shaped hat, the latest tie, the latest cane—the creature that wears the gaudiest of colored waistcoats; who walks with elbows stuck out, ostentatiously puffing a fat cigar, occupying as much of the pavement as he can, and speaking as loudly as possible, with the thickest voice and the most objectionable, slovenly and vulgar enunciation!"

"The pomposity and conceit of this type, coupled with their appalling ignorance is simply overwhelming. They send a shudder through the frame of all fellow Jews with the least suspicion of refinement."

"This type of Jew is, unfortunately, plentiful. He pervades—and disgraces—all classes of the community. He is quite as much in evidence in Throckmorton street as in Aldgate and Whitechapel. You will find him playing the aristocrat in Belgrave—I should say, aping the vulgarities of the aristocrat, for the vulgarities alone attract him."

EDDY'S

CZAR OF RUSSIA REVISITS CAPITAL

He Attends Consecration of Church in Memory of Grandfather.

ROYAL PARTY WELL GUARDED

Representatives of the Civic Element
Are Conspicuously Absent From Church Ceremony.

St. Petersburg, Sept. 1.—For the second time since "Red Sunday" (January 22, 1905), Emperor Nicholas today entered the capital to attend the consecration of a church erected as a memorial to his grandfather, Alexander II, who was assassinated in March, 1881, on the site of the new edifice. The date of the trip, coinciding with the conspiracy trial just closed here, plainly was designed to stimulate the loyalty of the army and the people. It was a complete success and no untoward incident occurred.

The police neglected no precaution to insure the safety of the emperor and even went so far as to thoroughly search the city and inspect the passports of suspicious individuals. Gendarmes were stationed in every window facing the route over which the imperial procession passed, and owners of houses were forbidden to open windows under pain of being fined. The bridge and river traffic was entirely suspended; the banks of the Neva were lined with marine guards and torpedo boats patrolled the river.

Emperor Comes Quietly.

The imperial party arrived from Peterhof unannounced, not a single salute being fired during their whole stay. The emperor and his party disembarked from a yacht at the admiralty and entered an inconspicuous launch, landing at the Duke Constantin's palace. Thence they proceeded the remainder of the way to the memorial church in carriages.

After two months of daily rains the day cleared and the sun shone on the brilliant scene of nearly 100 detachments of troops with widely varying uniforms stationed along the line of march. The emperor's arrival was announced by cheers from the troops, the public looking on indifferently. The big church yard, where the imperial party arrived, at the hour set for the function was picturesquely bordered by platoons of cuirassiers, grenadiers and dragons in multi-colored uniforms waving plumes, busbies and silver breastplates.

After walking around the church and saluting the guard the emperor entered the edifice at the south door. The scene inside was one of great splendor, recalling the old-time cathedral. An abundance of light streaming through the lofty windows illuminated the four immense mosaic columns around which were grouped 2,000 representatives of the ruling classes. The emperor and the empress occupied the so-called patriarch's place at the right of the altar, where they were visible only from the diplomatic loge.

Stolypin Also Present.

Premier Stolypin was the only minister to attend the ceremony, all the others being abroad. Mr. Riddle, the American ambassador, and Sir Arthur Nicolson, the British ambassador, and the civic element were conspicuously absent, though millions of rubles were subscribed to the church fund by peasants and others who were not invited. The three walled loges of the church were lined with a double line of palace grenadiers and the entrances were guarded by veterans of the Russo-Turkish war.

The emperor seemed to be in excellent spirits, but the empress had the same care-worn, sad look which has often been remarked. The emperor wore a simple uniform with a dark blue tunic and trousers. Across his shoulders was the blue sash of St. Andrew. The empress was garbed in white silk and wore a white ostrich feather hat and a string of diamonds. She also wore the sash of St. Andrew. Both their majesties remained standing throughout the entire ceremony, which lasted three and a quarter hours, the empress slightly leaning on her parasol.

A characteristic part of the ceremony consisted of a solemn procession with the cross and banners embowered by an American, in which the emperor and his suite followed the clergy around outside the church, repeating a special liturgy.

After the ceremony the imperial party left for a cruise in the Gulf of Finland.

CALVE IN LOVE

Or Perhaps Not as Prima Donna Is Not Certain Herself.

London, Sept. 2.—Calve, who is in France, still talks about her millionaire lover. She is much perplexed. She says that when she is away from him she feels that she "loves him so," but when he is near he bores her.

She has a very serious desire to exploit her own vineyard and will soon put on the market a wine with the label "Chateau Calvères" and the signature "Emma Calve."

She was advised to ask a high price for her wine on account of her celebrity, but prudently declined, saying, "No, that will suffice to launch it, but I must give people value for their money or they will not buy my wine at all."

Calve claims to be related to the Astor family. She says one branch went to the south of France, and the other went to America, and that the French branch from which she is descended became miners.

RAID SHIPS' PANTRIES

Strike-Breakers Seize Beer and Get Gloriously Drunk.

Peterboro, Sept. 2.—Passengers on 11 o'clock last night the captain of the steamer Cambroman, on which the English strike-breakers are quartered, sent an urgent message for police assistance. It appears that the Englishmen, apparently with the intention of taking part in yesterday's local celebrations, raided the ship's pantries, and after broaching 32 barrels of beer, drank the contents. They then seized a quantity of other drink and food and threw the stores of butter overboard.

To the remonstrance of the officers, the men replied with threats, and they afterward broke in the doors of the officers' cabins, taking possession of sixteen revolvers and a number of razors. When the police arrived they found the rioters lying about the deck, the majority of them overcome by drink. Thirty policemen remained all night on the ship with drawn revolvers. This morning the Englishmen posted up notices in their quarters demanding an increase of a shilling in their pay from tomorrow.

The number of strike-breakers at work today is very small, only 50 men having gone to the ship, and which they engaged from the Cambroman, where their companions are still under the influence of liquor. At 11 o'clock a telephone message was sent to the police, declaring that the men absolutely refused to go on board the tug, and that they were drinking and singing. The authorities were obliged to put several of them in irons. The police are still on board.

PEKSIAN PREMIER SHOT TO DEATH

Aminis Sultan Assassinated as
He Was Leaving Assembly Chamber.

Teheran, Sept. 1.—Aminis Sultan, who was the present premier and minister of the interior, was shot dead Saturday night while leaving the assembly chamber. He received five shots and died on the spot. A soldier and a constable were also killed and a member of the assembly shot in the leg. One of the assassins committed suicide. The effect of this news on the interior where a condition of anarchy prevails, must be disastrous. It is doubtful if any Persian statesman can be induced to accept the vacant portfolio.

CHEKIB BEY HAS REAL FIGHT OUT

Turkish Legation Is Sleepless and Howls Unto the Police.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 1.—This tale hath to do with the adventures of Chekib Bey, vicar of his most illustrious magnificence, Abdul Hamid IV, successor to Mohammed, Eyes of the Son and Grand Vizier of Allah on earth, who was seized with a desire to roam.

And behold it was the night of the third day of the week—this is to say, Tuesday, And Chekib Bey came up from his ottoman and cast to the floor his cigarette and communed with himself, saying:

"I will go forth into this city of unbelievers by night even as the great Caliph Haroun Al Raschid was wont to do in his city of Bagdad, and I will cut a swath, yea, I will even see the lights."

And it was even so.

No word said he to the under-servants of his household, neither did he leave word of his destination, and it came to pass that midnight had come yet the illustrious servant of the "sick man of Europe" did not return. So that the people of his palace, even the inhabitants of the Turkish legation, waxed big with fear. Yea, and it came to pass that from every club the Nubian who made answer to inquiries did affirm that the magnificent Presence had not that night adorned the glittering haunts.

The watchmen at the desks of the caravansaries, who keep their vigil, so that impoverished guests shall not evade payment of their reckoning, spake the chief understrapper, "We will have not this night delighted our eyes by beholding the Glory of the Salt of the Earth."

"There is but one more chance," spake the chief understrapper. "We will even confide our woe to the police."

"We will seek him for ye," replied the night call of the force. "Rest ye in peace."

And lo! it waxed near on to morning, and the chimes had even tolled the hour of three, yet had Chekib Bey come neither, and the lamentations of the watchmen filled the house—yet, even unto the abode of the hours did they penetrate. And it availed nothing.

But secret emissaries had been sent broadcast by the night call of police, and they sought the Light of the Sun high and low. It came to pass the cock crowed four times, and in the east—yea, even towards Moscow—did the first faint streaks of the morning appear.

And behold, there was a brisk step on the pavement and sounds of searching for proper place resounded on the vestibule. And the satraps begat themselves as one to the entry and spread open the door and saluted.

Yea, even three did they bow themselves to earth before the Vicar of the Invalid of Europe, for it was he, and with him as escort, so doth the saying go, were unbelievers, members of the finest:

For behold, they had found him. Yea, the illustrious prodigal had returned in state.

NEW BOOKS IN THE OLD COUNTRY

Queen Elizabeth and Leicester, Shakespeare and Napoleon in Writings.

London, Sept. 2.—Publishers are making rapid preparations for a busy autumn season, and already are well advanced in their announcement of new books. Memoirs always occupy a prominent place, and especially so this season.

The Duke of Argyll is to produce this year an account of his life through his own pen. It is entitled "The World at Eighteen," and the author, Miss Ray Costello, is just that age. It is the story of a young girl, fresh from a school in England, who finds herself suddenly, almost tragically, at war with the world about which she has read so much, but knows so little.

Mrs. Aubrey Richardson is producing through Werner Laurie a book entitled "A Lover of Queen Elizabeth," being a story of the life of Robert Dudley, Earl of Leicester. We are told that her biography is not a contribution to the streams of whitewash with which many historians have plastered the doings of Queen Elizabeth, but that Mrs. Richardson gives Lord Leicester and the queen the benefit of all doubts to which their words and conduct give rise.

Romance on Shakespeare. "Shakespeare's Sweetheart," the title of a work by Miss Sarah Sterling which Chatto shortly will publish, seeks to reconstruct in the form of romance the story of Shakespeare's marriage with Ann Hathaway. Incidentally the author suggests several theories which are likely to give the book additional interest and not only to the ordinary reader but also to the Shakespearean student.

In Quiller-Couch's new story, "Major Vigoureux," which is about to appear with Methuen, the scene is laid in a group of islands lying in the Atlantic Ocean off the Cornish coast. It tells of a middle-aged officer left in charge of a deserted garrison and his tribulations and quarrels with the lord protector of the island and of a mysterious enemy who at first brought him much trouble but afterward great consolation.

Dies as Book Is Ended.

Every book has its history, and pathetic interest attaches to one which Fisher & Unwin are publishing. It is called "Bonaparte in Egypt and Egyptians of Today," and it bears the name of Hadji H. Browne as the author. He is an Irishman by birth, but has lived for many years as a Mohammedan among the Mohammedans. In fact, he made a pilgrimage disguised as a Turk to Mecca, and hence the name Hadji. Browne's life had been a romance and he died suddenly just as he had finished the book.

ROYAL PALACE TO LET

Here's a Rare Opportunity for Some American Millionaire.

London, Sept. 2.—American magnates, with their known love of the antique, will learn with interest that an English royal palace is to let as a place of residence. Here is a splendid opportunity for the millionaire who the other day announced his intention of settling down in England, and incidentally of winning the Derby.

The Old Palace at Richmond, which has come into the market, was formerly a part of the royal palace at Sheen, which is older than any building America can show, for it was formerly the home of Anglo-Saxon monarchs, and has a history almost as interesting as that of the Tower itself. Edward III. closed his long reign here in 1377, and after his death the palace was pillaged by his servants. Richard II., who Geoffrey Chaucer as his clerk wrote, added greatly to the building, and Edward IV. settled it on Queen Elizabeth. At the end of 1497 it was burnt down, but was rebuilt in 1501.

There is just the possibility that the next tenant may come across a rich hoard of gold, for when Henry VII. died at the palace in 1509 he left a treasure of the value of $30,000,000 hidden in the vaults. The last royal personage to reside at the palace was Queen Charlotte, to whom a lease was granted in 1817.

The Old Palace faces Richmond Green. It contains five reception rooms, two bedrooms, and two bathrooms, with stabling and coach houses in the Old Palace yard.

NOTHING LOOKS MORE UGLY than to see a person whose hands are covered with warts. Why have these disgusting eruptions on your person when a sure remedy of all warts, corns, etc., can be found in Hore's Ointment?

Germany has taken great interest in her culture of recent years, and the crop is about 20,000 tons a year. Spain is a close second of the European countries.

A SUCCESSFUL MEDICINE.—Everyone who is to be successful in life, is, therefore, extremely gratifying to the proprietors of Farnell's Vegetable Pills to know that their efforts to compound a medicine which would prove a blessing to mankind have been successful beyond their expectations. The information of these Pills by the public is a guarantee that a pill has been produced which will fulfill every claim made for it.

THIS MINISTER WAS MUSCULAR

Took Indian by Back of Neck and Threw Him From Deck Downwards.

Antwerp, Sept. 2.—Shortly before the steamer Esturion, which ran an excursion the other day from Chemong Park to Stony Lake for the regatta, passed through an experience which none of them want a repetition of. The trouble was caused by three Indians, belonging to the Chemong band, who, it is alleged, secured some liquor at Burlington Falls on the return trip, and, until they were forcibly ejected from the boat at Buckhorn, they made life miserable for the other passengers on the steamer.

Muscular Christianity was given an exemplification during the disturbance. At Buckhorn, when an attempt was made to eject the troublesome Indians from the steamer Mr. Hopwood, of Chemong, stationed himself at the head of the stairs, and with a chair upraised, threatened to brain any Indian who tried to reach the deck.

One Indian succeeded in getting up, he did not stay long. Missionary Potter, a brother of J. C. Potter, of this city, who is in charge of the mission at Buckhorn, had taken his coat and hat off, when the trouble commenced, and he was on hand when the Indian eluded Mr. Hopwood and reached the deck. Taking the Indian by the back of the neck, he sent him down the steps quicker by a good deal, than he came up.

One of the Indians who saw the feat, and who was surprised at the ease with which his brother redman was handled, said to Mr. Potter, "Who are you, and at the reply, 'Oh, the preacher here.' He felt back surprised and pleased at the athletic ability shown by the 'sky pilot.'"

POLICE DOGS TRAIL THIEVES

Remarkable Sagacity Exhibited in Novel Contest in Paris Streets.

Paris, Sept. 2.—A novel contest was held in Paris this week, styled the "Concours International de Chiens de Police," its object being to test the sagacity of dogs employed to help the police in their duties. Among the tests for which marks were given were the following:

"At command the dog will march in front of his master, on follow him, and obey at a distance the directions given by voice or gesture."

"The dog will at command seek for and bring to his master an object hidden within a certain area by the judge."

"Fifteen points will be awarded for the dog which succeeds best in climbing palisades, and marks are also offered for long jumps and high jumps."

"To the dog which best protects any object left in its charge fifteen marks will be given."

"For attacking at command any person indicated by its master ten marks will be gained."

"For the dog which, immediately after being directed to attack a man, on a second command halts without touching the person, fifteen marks will be granted."

Ten dogs competed. Among their accomplishments were high jumps of over 6 feet, long jumps of 14 feet, climbing of walls, vigorous defense of their master against the attacks of hooligans and tracing the latter after their flight. How to knock a man down by running between his legs, and how to keep him on the ground with vigorous blows of the muzzle, are acts in which all the competitors were perfect.

A man who played the role of hooligan, brandished a stick and fired a pistol, was foremost by the winning animal's clever attack. The dog, Athos, black Belgian collier, found the hooligan when he hid in a tub, and pursued him over the slates when he took refuge on a roof. Other competitors ran the winner close in similar maneuvers.

Athos has developed a new method of attack, which, his owner says, has never yet failed. Instead of flying at the throat or seizing the leg, he huris himself head foremost at that part of his opponent's anatomy known to the fraternity as the "wind." The result is said to be rather more effective than a knockdown blow with the fist. The trials took place in the Velodrome d'River.

EARL'S FAMILY NEAR THRONE

Late Lord Dunmore's Ancestor Once
Close to Gaining Crown.

London, Sept. 2.—The late Lord Dunmore's prominence as a Christian Scientist and his adventurous travels in his earlier days so filled the notices of his life that no room was found for the fact that at one time his family came near the throne.

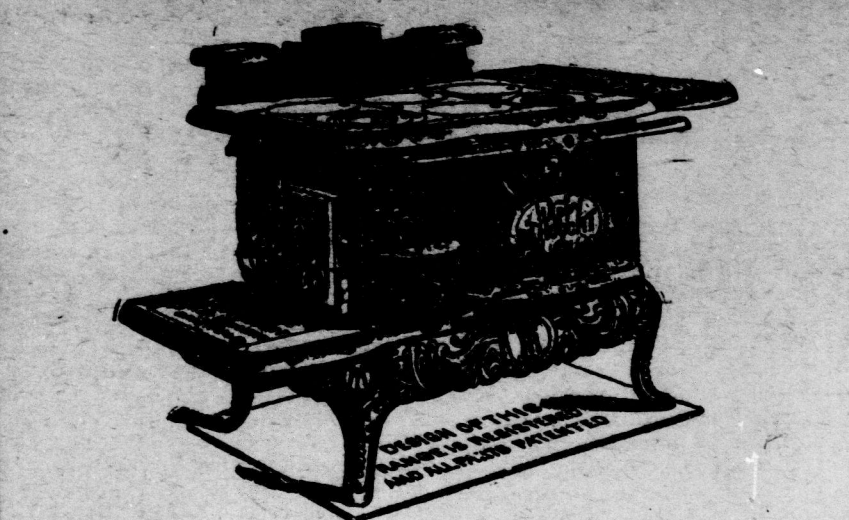

His great-grandfather, the fourth earl, who was governor of Virginia when England lost the American colonies and who commemorated the event by christening his son "Virginia" and his daughter Virginia, had a daughter Augusta. She married in 1733 the Duke of Sussex, a son of George III. They were married in Rome with some idea, it is said, of evading the royal marriage act, which was then a new thing, but, of course, there was no escape from the act, and they remarried a few months later at St. George's in Hanover Square, but nothing availed them and the marriage could not be recognized.

The duke, so the story goes, was bent at first on refusing to surrender, but he was deeply in debt. He was a most unfortunate prince, for as sure as he was appointed to rangiership of parks and such like office the office was doomed to be deprived of its salary.

Therein lay the undoing of this marriage. Gossip said that the prince offered to get his debts paid if he would repudiate the marriage. That may be malice, but repudiated it certainly was.

There were two children, who grew up as Colonel and Mademoiselle D'Este. He said to a warden: "One of the benches gave me six months and

PLAIN TALK FROM THE DOCTOR

A prominent physician, famous for his success in the treatment of kidney and bladder troubles, stated that to the following prescription is due a great deal of his success:

One ounce fluid extract dandelion;
One ounce compound salisone;
Four ounces compound syrup sarsaparilla.

Mix and take a teaspoonful after meals and at bedtime, drinking plenty of water.

This mixture will, he says, positively cure any diseases arising from weak, clogged or inactive kidneys, and will assist these organs to cleanse the blood of the poisonous waste matter and acids, which if allowed to remain, cause lumbago, lame back, rheumatism and sciatica, and at the same time will restore the kidneys to healthy normal action.

The ingredients, which are purely vegetable and entirely harmless, can be procured from any good druggist and mixed at home at very little cost. This advice will undoubtedly be much appreciated by many readers.

LABOR DAY BOWLING TOURNEY DEVELOPED SOME FINE SPORT

Skip Lockheed, of the Asylum Team, Wins the Trophy.

The Labor Day bowling tournament held yesterday under the auspices of the London Bowling, the Thistle and the Asylum clubs, was one of the most successful affairs of the kind yet held. Twenty trials in all were entered, and there was not a default. The bowling was well above the average, and the bowlers, the merriest of the merry, had one of the best times of the season. The trophy winner turned up in Mr. John Richardson, of the Asylum, as pretty a game of bowls as one would care to see. The popular Asylum skip was in good form himself, and it was due to his splendid trundling that the prizes came his way. His support was good also. And do not forget that Lockheed, as he is called, was not only one of the best bowlers, but he was also a very good bowler. When anybody beats him they are satisfied they have been at a bowling game. Both men bowled consistently and well throughout the series, and their good work was heartily applauded. A tired but happy lot of men wended their way home after the games.

The association game reached the finals. This game will be played some time this week, and is sure to be a good one, as there will be a couple of strong links left to fight it out.

Some interesting work was done. One of the striking features of the game was an eight end that Skip J. K. Spry got on Skip Bert Heaman. This is one of the rare occurrences in a game of bowls, where every bowl on one side counts and there is nothing doing on the other. It was a rare battle. Taylor, won out by one shot in a very close and well-bowled contest.

Londoner Makes Poor Showing in St. Marys-Stratford Road Race—Grant Wins.

Stratford, Sept. 2.—The Stratford-St. Marys road race was won by Dick Grant, of St. Marys, who finished a quarter of a mile ahead of his nearest competitor, Joshua Nicholas, of Muncie. Grant's time was 1:24:36.

Thirty-seven runners started, and only 23 finished.

Nicholas, who finished second, is a protégé of Dr. Hugh Stevenson, of London. The Indian's work was highly commended.

One of the most remarkable cases of heart displacement known to science was shown at the autopsy in the New York morgue recently on the body of Michael Kruckman, of Jersey City. It appeared that Kruckman's heart had been pushed out of its pericardial sac and was crushed up against the lung. He had lived thus for 23 days.

BAKERS DOWNED IN TAME GAME

The Stars Win a Spiritless Contest by the Score of Five to Two.

Poor baserunning and errors on the part of the Bakers gave the Stars a victory in the first game at Tecumseh yesterday. The contest itself was as tame as some of the filtration people since the disclosures regarding the low stage of the much-touted north branch, and everything went along in a manner which reminded one of an old maid's sewing bee. The score was 5 to 2.

Think of a team garnering a total of eleven bingles losing to a team that had only six hits to its credit! Wouldn't that almost drive you to riding in a London street car when you were in a hurry?

Gregory at shortstop for the Bakers put up a most wretched game in the field, but led the way for the entire aggregation at the bat, having no less than three hits to his credit. Beaton also contributed at the bat, but performed badly in the field the three innings he played.

It will be recalled that Brer Earley has but recently returned from camp at Petawawa where a bugle call awakened the tenters each and every morning. Fatigue had become so used to this method of procedure that they have to blow a horn every morning at his boarding house before he will get up, and sometimes they have to tout twice or more to arouse him. Yesterday morning they forgot to pull off the morning stunts in the tooting line and as a consequence the rotund person was not on deck at the park when the going sound for the opening of hostilities. Wanless, the narrow, who was at one time some big things on the rubber, was therefore elected to perform until Fat put in an appearance. Wann got away with the stunt very acceptably but was removed to make way for Earley in the fourth.

At the jump off it looked as though the crowd from the pie factory were going to be the real and only things of the day, but it wasn't long before the illusion was irreparably dispelled. The silent man, Isshy, Clark, held down the slab for in liberal fashion.

Round one went to the Bakers by a run. In the fifth they got another. Then they stopped, although they appeared to have numerous chances of landing home had they taken full advantage of their opportunities. The victors corralled one in the second, another in the third, two in the fourth and another in the last.

The game was absolutely devoid of sensational plays and the fair crowd present scarcely made a sound during the entire affair.

Pop Stein could not hold the slippery spheroid at critical moments, and assisted the bunch from West London materially.

The fracas as a whole was one of the tamest that has been seen at Tecumseh Park in some time. The score:

GRIFITH STAYS WITH N. Y.

Rumors to Contrary Are Denied—Club Has Many Youngsters.

New York, Sept. 1.—Rumors dig up a new manager for the New York Americans every day or so, but the new manager next season will be the old manager, Clark Griffith, who has had the berth ever since there have been New York Americans. He has been re-engaged, according to a well-founded report.

The New York American League Club has expended something like $35,000 for new players for next season—players who have been bought outright.

Among the new men bought for next season are: Lake, a pitcher from the Jersey City team; Manning, a pitcher, and Blair, a catcher, from the Williamsport team; Zeeler, a pitcher, and Sweeney, a catcher, from Atlanta; Baker, a shortstop, from Montgomery; Nener, the southpaw pitcher from Savannah who shut out the Bostonians the other day; Arellanes, a California pitcher; Bell, an outfielder from the Northwest League and London, an infielder from Dallas. Griffith has a string on Roy Castleton, the Atlantic pitcher, and will get additional material by draft.

NO ONE NEED FEAR CHOLERA or any summer complaint if they have a bottle of Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Dysentery Cordial ready for use. It corrects all looseness of the bowels promptly and causes a healthy and natural action. This is a medicine adapted for the young and old, rich and poor, and is rapidly becoming the most popular medicine for cholera, dysentery.

SPORTING GOSSIP

Labor Day was a bad one for local ball teams out of town. Each and every one of those that wandered from their own heartstones were handed ripe fruits of the lime variety.

Of the Stars, though, we expected better things. To be walloped by a St. Thomas team by the score of 20 to 2 means disgrace everlasting. The local players, however, insist that the Railroaders had a dose all cooked up for them, and had imported a bunch of pros for the occasion. The caboose riders aren't a bit above such practices, at that.

At last Dr. Stevenson's clever Indian runner, Nicholas, has come into the area. A man who can run second to Dick Grant is no false alarm at any stage of the game.

We were paired—but not surprised—to learn that Longboat's extra wound up at the tail end of the program in the Stratford road race. Chris arrived in time for dessert anyway.

Hats off to Clay Gibson. The quiet third-sacker of the Sippities, was there with all the attending spangles yesterday, and made London fandom miss his presence. A little more aggressiveness when dealing with baserunners will polish off the last rough spot in Gibson's diamond make-up. There are certain runners in the league who make life miserable for basemen who will stand for their rough-and-tumble tactics.

Mr. A. Campbell, of Winnipeg, is spending a few days in the city. He is an old London boy and was a famous ball player in the days gone by when Frank Love, Sam Wood, Jim Priddy, George McNabb, Jack Steed, Charlie Stone, Jack McIntosh, Hon. James Ross, and others made baseball history in the early seventies as members of the celebrated O. K. team. He was also a lacrosse player of note in those days. There was quite a fan-fan yesterday about the London bowling games about the good old days.

Surprises were the order of the day across the creek yesterday. Previous to the beginning of the afternoon contest Unipine Sagar announced that a well-known cigar firm had offered a box of choice weeds to the player making the longest hit. Almost immediately the bunch got busy. Singles came regularly and the fun waxed fast and furious. First one player would have a lead and then the other, and the contenders were arguing as to which one of them had made the longest poke. Clay Gibson put all previous aspirants for the honor out of business when he rapped out a beautiful double. Then Males jumped into fame with a three-sacker, and was the real and only—for a moment—Big Jack McHugh looked longingly at the box of choice perfectos—or whatever they were—grabbed a poke stick, and drove out for three bags him.

He started just to make sure that he had captured the choice weeds the big first sacker repeated the performance, and the wildest enthusiasm of the Tinworks gang.

The games at Queen's Park yesterday for some reason or another failed to draw as they were expected to. Everybody had a royal good time, though, so what's the odds.

The defeat of Joe Thomas has given the ring a new champion in the welterweight class, although there is some doubt as to whether Ketchel will be able to make the weight for any length of time. According to all accounts, the young fighter, and did not give the latter a chance to even get set for a punch. Thomas was one of the cleverest of modern-day boxers, and was never before defeated, although it is said that Ketchel got the worst of the decision when the pale man recently in that time claimed lack of condition.

Ketchel hails from some place in Montana and is the hero of fifty battles. Of these four draws and the remainder victories. Most of Ketchel's battles have, however, been with second and third rate men, and up to his first battle with Thomas he was practically unknown.

TIGERS BREAK EVEN WITH SOX

Detroit Wins Morning Game, But Donovan Is Beaten in Afternoon.

Chicago, Ill., Sept. 2.—The Tigers landed the morning game against the White Sox, but, like the rest of the Chicago contenders, could not take in two straight as a Labor Day celebration. The world champions had Bill Donovan against them for the first time this year, this afternoon, and beat him, 4 to 2. Killian pitched the morning contest, winning 5 to 5. This victory was his twentieth and he is thereby possessor of the $500 bonus offered by the club to the pitcher winning that number.

Fully 33,000 people paid to see the two games. There were about 10,000 at the morning contest, and in the afternoon the largest gathering of the year turned out, 23,000 people being on hand to watch the fight.

Donovan's game was a peculiar one. With a man on first by virtue of Davey Jones' error, the Sox netted five straight singles off the smiler's delivery. These were good for four tallies. But from that inning they could not touch him. They were retired practically in order from then on, without landing another. Only one man reached first, and that was on an error by Bill himself.

What looked like one of those rows that usually benefit the team not doing the kicking came up, was directly the contrary for the Tigers. Walsh opened for the locals, and the spitter showed signs of the strain he is suffering from pitching so often. While the Tigers had not been hitting safely, they were stinging the ball hard, and Walsh was making chances look still brighter by issuing frequent passes. But in the sixth he got into a row with Tim Hurst over a score made by Ty Cobb, pushed the dummy little umpire in the chest, and was ordered off the lot.

They might have gotten to Walsh if he had remained. As it was, Jones sent in Doc, White and from then on there was nothing doing, despite the fact that in the eighth the league leaders did fill the bases.

Donovan forced Hahn to pop to O'Leary, who started in the first inning. Fielder Jones sent a low drive to left that Davey Jones sprinted for and got both hands on. The ball bounded from his mitts, however, and the way to woe was paved. Donovan singled over shortstop and the season's center, Jones crossing the plate. Dougherty dropped a bunt toward third, beating the throw of Coughlin. The bags were full. Donovan and Davis scored when Robe drove one to left and Dougherty came home when Tannehill banged one to center. Sullivan and Schmidt, clearing the atmosphere slightly. Donovan retired the side by striking out Walsh.

The score:

nehill banged one to center. Sullivan fouled to Schmidt, clearing the atmosphere slightly. Donovan ret the side by striking out Walsh.

Labor Day Proved a Pleasant Holiday

The holiday yesterday was a very quiet one in London. The demonstration in Queen's Park drew a large crowd, and a number spent the day at Springbank. A large number went to Port Stanley, for the purpose of the year making the lakeside additionally attractive.

Not an unpleasant feature occurred to mar the day's pleasure. Not an accident is reported, and few made their way to notoriety by the police court. There was quite a large sprinkling of visitors in the city, who spent the day quietly with friends. On the whole it was a very pleasant holiday.

SERGEANTS' MESS HAD FINE OUTING

Hold Annual Picnic at the Cove Ranges and Have Right Merry Time.

The sergeants of the Seventh Regiment had a great time at their annual picnic held yesterday at the Cove Ranges.

Sporting events, speeches and other forms of entertainment were indulged in and everybody was happy all the way.

The leading feature of the day was a ball game between the sergeants of the Twenty-fifth Regiment, of St. Thomas, and the Seventh officers.

Sergt. Colborne and Sergt. Jeffries umpired on the occasion, and are still living. It is said that an attempt was made to bribe Sergt. Colborne to throw the game by offering him a pass around the Buffalo belt line good for one five-cent trip, but this story cannot be verified.

At all events the local soldiers won out by a score of 11 to 8.

The prize for the great event was a handsome cup offered by Col. Sergt. Sink, of the Royal Grenadiers, Toronto. To Sergt. Sink is a former London boy.

The batteries were: Seventh Regiment—Penwarden and Nettleship; Twenty-sixth Regiment—Grey and Rumball.

prosecuted, said that he had heard nothing official about an investigation of the detectives' methods.

Tempt Bartenders.

"No, I have heard nothing about an investigation," replied Squire Chittick, who discharged one hotelkeeper the other day in the face of the spotters' evidence. "All I know is that the hotelkeepers are complaining that the spotters tempt the bartenders into giving them a drink on the plea of sickness or some other dodge, and that they (the proprietors) then have to pay for an act of which they may be in ignorance."

In the meantime, it is said, Macrae and Hanson are lying low, awaiting developments before attempting to get additional convictions.

HOLIDAY DRUNKS LENIENTLY TREATED

Large Number of Offenders Discharged by the Police Magistrate.

The usual holiday crowd of offenders in the drinking line were lined up in police court this morning, and a large number of these were discharged.

Thomas Galvin and Pat Sheehan were assessed $1 and costs, with the option of a two-day visit to Castle Carter for fighting yesterday, while Davis James paid $5 and costs for bed disorderly.

When James Harris faced the magistrate on a charge of drunkenness, he did so with much trepidation. Harris has been before his honor on the same charge so many times before that he has lost all track of the number. He was fined $10 and costs or 21 days in jail.

The much discussed Gray-Burton criminal assault case did not come up and bail for the two men was renewed until the 20th of this month.

William Burgess and five other young men faced a charge of disorderly conduct. It was alleged that they had pulled down an awning near the corner of Richmond and York streets about 3 o'clock in the morning of Aug. 25. Burgess pleaded guilty, and stated that he was not the only guilty one. Burgess was fined $5 while the others were discharged.

A case of breach of the health act against Anthony Keenleyside, a local landlord, was held over until next Tuesday.

Six first-time offenders were allowed to go with a warning.

CROWDS WATCH A DEATH LEAP

Girl Suicides by Jumping From a High Church Tower.

London, Sept. 2.—A young girl met with a tragic fate at Saggart, a small village near Dublin, on Sunday.

Minne Hunt, aged 21, was employed as a domestic in the district, and on Saturday afternoon seemed strange in manner. She obtained permission to go to church, and on her return informed a fellow-servant that she had been up in the church tower, and had made several efforts to throw herself over, but could not do it. Her employer had her examined by a doctor, who suggested that she should be kept under observation, and, pending the arrival of her mother, a woman was called in for this purpose.

On Sunday the girl asked for permission to go to mass, but Mr. Hutton, her employer, refused to allow her out. Later it was discovered that she had escaped, and had succeeded in making her way to the top of the church tower, which is about 120 feet high. Here, in view of a crowd of horrified spectators, she sat on the edge of the parapet. Efforts were made to reach her from the inside, but it was found that she had locked the door. She also threatened that she would jump if anyone came near her.

At last Father Seever, the parish priest, and a police-sergeant forced the door, ascended the tower, and succeeded in getting quite close to the poor girl, but she still refused to come down.

For three hours the priest knelt within a few yards of the unfortunate girl on the top of the tower. He dare not approach closer, as each time he moved she advanced as if to throw herself over. He prayed and implored her to leave her terrible position, but she refused. He held up a crucifix, asking her to take it, but she would not, saying that she would meet him on the ground. When he offered to go towards her she would step forward as if to go over.

The situation was a terrible one. Suddenly she gave a loud shriek, leaped over the parapet, and fell on the gravelled walk of the churchyard. When picked up she was quite dead.

The terrible tragedy was described at an inquest held on Monday and a verdict was returned to the effect that she had died from shock from injuries received.

London Has Been Located.

[Special to 'The Advertiser']
Detroit, Sept. 3.—Miss Irene De Pappi, who so mysteriously disappeared from London on Saturday night, and for whom a search was instituted, has been located at her home in this city.

Miss De Pappi stated that she suddenly made up her mind to return home to look after some matters of business which she had overlooked, and that she did not have time to notify her friends of her intended departure.

DUBLIN AS GAY FETE

Horse Show Proves Great Success,
Attracting Many Visitors.

London, Sept. 2.—The Dublin horse show has been the chief event at the Irish capital. It has been a great success, visitors having been present from all parts of the world, including America, Germany and France. Hotel accommodations have been at a premium, and many persons have been glad to sleep in bedrooms.

Lord Lieutenant and Lady Aberdeen entertained a large house party, but Lady Aberdeen has not been able to take the very prominent part in the week's doings owing to a slight indisposition.

Kingston harbor has been crowded with yachts, including Sir Thomas Lipton's Erin. A brilliant function was the ball given at Kingston in honor of the commander-in-chief of the Atlantic fleet, Lord Curzon Howe, and officers. The lord lieutenant danced in the state quadrille with Lady Curzon Howe, who wore white poplin. Lord Curzon Howe danced with Lady Liverpool, who wore white. Lady Grenfell wore pink satin, and the Marchioness of Donegal white satin. Lady Robinson, Sir T. Robinson and Mrs. Pelham also danced in the state quadrille.

On another night Lord Lieutenant and Lady Aberdeen gave a dance at Vice-regal Lodge, at which magnificent dresses and jewels were worn. Lady Aberdeen was dressed in blue silk, with touches of fine gold embroidery. Her corsage was draped with point lace, caught up with diamond bees and butterflies. Bodies of bees were formed of one single pearl and the wings of diamonds. She also wore a spray of rubies and emeralds.

The international polo matches aroused much interest during the week. One of the keenest players has been the Duke of Westminster, who has taken a house in Dublin for the occasion.

A large Filipino Methodist Episcopal Church is in process of erection in a prominent location in the city of Manila.

HAGUE CONFERENCE DISMAL FAILURE

Author's Copyright Only Thing
on Which the Powers Are Agreed.

The Hague, Aug. 31.—Nothing this week's demonstration of the hopelessness of the conference. The delegates were prepared to find serious obstacles to overcome before either the prize court or the permanent bench of judges could be established, but the degree of acrimonious wrangling that characterized the week's negotiations surprised even the cynics. The methods adopted by the disappointed delegations are rather of the nature of a challenge to a contest in national bragadocio than a friendly furtherance of international peace. Senor Barbosa, of Brazil, has been demonstrating that he represents a first rank war power by giving a series of banquets which for gorgeousness, outshine the memory of even Harry Thaw's Parisian feasts. This mode of conquering the esteem of his colleagues has naturally failed, with the delegations of the great powers, but that does not prevent the announcement that the flowers on the tables cost $2,000, and other similar advertisements of Barbosa's greatness of resources. The greatest jurist at the head of the American and English missions and other serious members of the conference have come to regard this gentleman as embodying most of the reasons against convoking another peace conference. Let us have by all means, they say, another international arbitration conference based on the principle of jurisprudence, but we already have had abundant proof of the futility of a world assembly given over to political self-assertion.

The leaders of the conference who have left the military issue alone and devoted themselves to what they call the judicial organization of peace have not made any progress during the week. A succession of projects for a convention of obligatory arbitration have been handled carefully and dropped. About the only subject in which all agree to arbitrate before resource to coercion is an author's copyright. This means in practice that if a pirated Paris farce is produced in New York the author may not order a French fleet to drop shells into Broadway before he has taken his case to arbitration. The chief obstacle to the creation of a permanent bench of judges, apart from the difficulty of allocating them among the nationalities of the world, is the drastic limitations on their authority, which make eminent jurists hesitate to accept a position on the bench.

NEW BUSINESS FIRM

R. E. Davis & Co. Open a China, Crockery and Glassware Store at 206 Dundas Street.

That London is adding prestige to its retail business is evidenced by the many changes and additions being made to the stores in this city. It has been a difficult problem for a long time for business-men, desiring premises, to find suitable quarters for catering to the public. Alterations are continually being made to stores, thereby enhancing the value of the property. This city is growing so steadily and the population increasing in the suburbs that business premises are very scarce, and when a store is vacated it is soon rented.

A new retail store was opened in London by R. E. Davis & Co., at 206 Dundas street, on Saturday, which is a credit to the members of the firm. The stock comprises a full line of crockery, glassware, china, etc. Mr. R. E. Davis was a traveler for W. J. Reid & Co. for seventeen years, and is known to the trade throughout the Dominion. Mr. Howard Houston had charge of the retail trade for the same firm for some time, and was a very efficient salesman.

Among the specialties to be carried by R. E. Davis & Co. will be Royal Doulton, Royal Crown Derby, Royal Worcester, Wedgwood Dinner Sets, including open stock, and Copeland China. They have also secured the sole agency for the celebrated china manufactured at Limoges, France, by Poyat.

One of the efforts of this new firm will be to sell the best of goods at the cheapest price. It is a splendid motto, and customers who patronize them will be sure of obtaining value for the money spent.

CLEARs JIM HOWARD

Caleb Powers Says He Knows Real
Goebel Assassin.

Georgetown, Ky., Sept. 3.—Goaded by the statement Saturday in the opening speech of Judge S. W. Hager, Democratic nominee for governor, that he elected he would not pardon Caleb Powers if convicted for conspiracy in the assassination of Gov. Wm. Goebel, Powers last night issued a written statement saying that he had at last learned the name of the man who slew Goebel, and could point him out.

Powers says that the man who killed Goebel is not Jim Howard, who is serving a life sentence on that charge. "The time has come," said Powers, "when my name must not be dragged into political campaigns to be used to aid one candidate, or prove a disadvantage to the other."

Powers says if he does not get a trial before the election, that immediately after the next governor of the state is elected he will demand a trial, and will aid in bringing the real assassin to justice.

A MEDICINE FOR THE MINER'S PACK.—Prospectors and others going into the mining regions, where doctors are few and drug stores not at all, should provide themselves with a supply of Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil. It will offset the effects of exposure, reduce sprains, and when taken internally will prevent and cure colds and sore throat, and as a lubricant will keep the muscles in good condition.

LIMITED ON A DOWN GRADE CRASHES INTO STALLED FREIGHT

Fast Grand Trunk Train Rips a Path Through Seven Cars Without Taking the Ditch or Killing a Passenger.

Royal Oak, Mich., Sept. 1.—In the midst of a terrific thunderstorm the Pan-American Flyer on the Grand Trunk Railway crashed into seven freight cars stalled at Clawson road, two miles north of this village.

By a miracle not a single one of the passengers of the seven Pullman coaches were killed. The freight cars and cabooses were reduced to kindling wood. The engine of the flyer was almost totally demolished. Fireman George Chanter jumped, striking a fence, cutting his head and breaking his shoulder. Engineer Bennett stuck to his post like a hero and crawled from the wreck alive though badly bruised. The other injured are: J. Findling, Fourteenth street car, New York, cut by flying glass, badly shaken up, not seriously; infant child of Dr. Rule, of Elsie, shaken up, nearly frightened into spasms; Homer Jennison, Battle Creek, eye injured and face cut by flying glass.

At about 9 o'clock a freight train of 14 cars pulled out of Birmingham, bound for Detroit. Near Clawson road the train parted, leaving the cabooses and six cars standing on the track. At Royal Oak the freight conductor sent a man back to put torpedoes and lights on the track to warn the laden Pan-American flyer, nearly due. These warnings were placed, but in the raging tempest the passenger train, going a mile a minute down grade, ran into the freight cars, plowing completely through every one of them and reducing them to splinters. The mail car tipped over and wreckage of freight cars strewn the tracks and fields for rods. The mail clerk and baggage man narrowly escaped being crushed by flying trunks, but escaped unhurt. By a miracle not one of the Pullmans left the track, but the terrific impact sent men, women and children flying from their seats, and screaming with fright many fainted.

A passing automobile halted and learning of the extent of the accident rushed to Royal Oak and hurried Dr. Smith and others to the wreck, and in a few minutes dozens were on the scene. The splintered cars broke into flame but the merciful torrents of rain stopped all danger of fire. Word was at once sent to Detroit and the wrecking train was hurried to the scene.

Among the passengers was F. E. Mellin, of 333 Van Dyke avenue, Detroit, and his sister-in-law, Eunice Howell, of Battle Creek, who are coming to Detroit to visit the state fair.

"It is a miracle that we are alive and unhurt," said Mr. Mellin. "It is my narrowest escape."

"I'm rather shaky in my nerves," said J. Findling, of New York, "but thankful to the merciful providence that has saved my life in this remarkable accident from the result of somebody's blunder."

"I want to take the electric car to Detroit at once," said Mrs. Dr. Rule, of Elsie. "I feel as though I never wanted to see another steam car. I'm so thankful our dear little baby girl isn't killed." The physician-father sat soothing the frightened infant into troubled slumber with a thankful smile on his face.

"If you want to know anything about this wreck," said Conductor Sam Burgess, of the flyer, "you'll have to ask somebody with more time to answer you than I've got."

Terrific Electrical Storm Plays Havoc With Barns

Great Damage Done Throughout Western Ontario on Sunday Night.

The severe electrical storm which crossed Western Ontario late Sunday night did considerable damage, especially by the destruction of barns, many of them filled with freshly-harvested crops.

Mr. Perrin, who lives on the Bid-dulph boundary line, lost all his crops, which were stored in his barn, and several head of cattle.

Farmer Magee, who lives on the first concession of Nissouri, also had his barn destroyed by a bolt, entailing a serious loss.

CELEBRATION A GRAND SUCCESS

above the ordinary, with this difficult instrument. He made a great hit, and he was applauded to the echo. Bert Walton was clever in freeing himself from the stocks, and other instruments of torture.

R. Madden and Mr. Delaney, London boys, did some exceptionally clever acrobatic dancing. They were repeatedly cheered.

Ald. Tom Gillean was starter in the various racing events, with B. C. McCann as assistant and announcer. The judges were Ald. Stevely, Ald. Rose, Mayor Judd, Ald. Gerry, and George O'Neill.

The music of the day was furnished by the Twenty-sixth Regiment Band, under the leadership of Bandmaster Roselle Pococke. This band is one of the best in the business, and it added to its honors yesterday.

The Evening Programme.

A large crowd was present at the evening programme. The entertainers of the afternoon, Harvey and Kenny, Victor Lewis, Bert Walton and Master Frank Clegg were in good form and their work was highly appreciated. The Imperial Quartet also sang, and the favorite quartet of London did splendid work. The Twenty-sixth Band also added a very great deal to the programme.

The Sports.

The sports resulted as follows: Boys' race under 15—H. McDonald, J. McLeod, W. O'Rourke.

Girls' under 15—Hattie Biggs, Jennie Heaslip, Thelma Gaze.

100 yards open—Fred Dent, M. Delaney, C. Swale.

Irish jig—R. Rowan.

Highland fling, girls and boys—Amy McLeod, Flora Mitchell, Eva Grayson.

Special, by George O'Neill, Tecumseh House—Helen Mitchell.

Two miles open—Vincent Adams, A. Carrothers, Bernard Adams, Time, 11:40.

Pat man's race—H. Fowler, E. W. Rau, George O'Neill.

Three-legged race—M. Delaney and R. Donohue, V. Poulton and G. Finch, H. Reed and T. Broadison.

The Cigar-makers' Union relay team ran an exhibition mile in 4 minutes and 5 seconds. The team was composed of C. Swale, M. Delaney, Arch. Poulton and J. Sweeney.

Mr. W. E. Mitchell, of Brynstown, who was in the vicinity of the barns which were burned on Sunday night, states that the storm was a terrific one. As he was driving into London on Monday morning he saw two fine young cattle lying dead beside the road, which had evidently been struck by lightning.

From Leamington comes news of an empty factory building destroyed by lightning, and close to Petrolia a couple of barns were wiped out.

Morris O'Neill, of Raleigh Township, was a heavy loser. Two barns, all his crops and implements, and sixteen pigs were lost.

In the vicinity of Cairo, Lambton County, several barns were destroyed.

RAILWAY TRAINS KILL MANY MOOSE

Beasts Are Frequently Run Down on T. and N. O. Tracks in Temagami District.

Temagami, Ont., Sept. 2.—The abundance of moose in the Temagami district is exciting much comment of late, and not a little anxiety has been caused the officials of the Temiskaming and Northern Ontario Railway because of the frequency with which moose are slaughtered by trains running over this road.

Within the past few weeks three moose, one of immense size, have been run over and killed, and many others have just cleared the rails in time to escape the approaching headlight of the engine.

Veteran sportsmen know the peculiar fascination that a bright light has for moose and deer. Even the noise and rumble of the approaching train does not seem to terrify the animals until it is too late. When seen in time the train is stopped, and the animals driven from the track, but on various occasions the engineer does not notice the moose until it has been struck and thrown from the track. There is some danger, of course, that a train might be derailed through striking so large an animal as a full-grown moose, and the railway officials are considering the advisability of fencing the right of way, not only to protect their trains, but to protect the game.

This would mean quite a large expenditure, as not only are the moose unusually plentiful all through the Temagami district, but even for a long distance north the same is true. In the portions where the settlements are more common, however, the moose are not so troublesome, being made more shy by the presence of man. But they are plentiful even all through the mining district. Prospectors state that they are all through the woods, even to the very edge of the Cobalt mining district.

It is in the Temagami region, though, that game is the most plentiful.

There is a movement in Maine to permit an open season for killing beavers, because of the damage to standing timber caused by the little animals. Lumbermen lay all sorts of depredations at the door of the dam-builders.

A copy of Goldie's painting of the death of St. Francis Xavier—the great Christian missionary to Japan and China in the sixteenth century—has been ordered in London by the Japanese Government for the public library at Tokio.

LABOR DAY WAS WIDELY KEPT

Big Demonstration at Many Points Throughout Western Ontario.

Labor Day demonstrations were held at many points throughout Western Ontario yesterday.

At Stratford it took the form of a trades procession and athletic games. There were many visitors from outside points.

At Brantford there was a monster parade of some 3,000 union men, and a large number of fine floats shown. In the afternoon there were games and amusements.

At Wingham the holiday was celebrated principally in an athletic way, baseball, bowling, etc.

Windsor and Amherstburg united forces and put up a fine parade at the former place. One thousand men were in line.

Berlin, St. Catharines, Galt, Toronto and Hamilton all had splendid turn-outs.

WILL WED DUKE MICHAEL

Report of Princess Victoria's Engagement is Confirmed.

Copenhagen, Sept. 1.—Reports of the engagements of Princess Victoria of England and the Grand Duke Michael Alexandrovitch, of Russia, are revived and in responsible quarters are confirmed.

The grand duke will accompany his mother, the Dowager Empress of Russia, on her coming Scandinavian cruise, when he will meet Queen Alexandra and Princess Victoria. A number of Russian detectives have arrived here as a bodyguard to the dowager empress during her visit. They are quartered at a villa within the castle grounds.

Their presence is due to the colony of Russian fugitives here which has increased rapidly since 1906, and now number 2,000, including several adherents of the terrorist organization.

MORE SOLDIERS LEAVE LONDON FOR OTTAWA

Will Take a Course of Instruction in Shooting at Rockcliffe.

Capt. Hill and the following men from the barracks left last evening via C. P. R. for Ottawa, where they will take a course of instruction in shooting at the Rockcliffe ranges: Lance-Corps, Hutchings, Pte. Ludgate, Pte. Morrison, Pte. Quick, Pte. Stroud, Pte. Williams, Pte. Block, Pte. Mitchell, Pte. O'Neill, Pte. Shaw, and Pte. Tobias. They will be away about six weeks.

BRITISH WARSHIP DAMAGED

Hong Kong, Sept. 1.—The British protected cruiser Flora, 4,360 tons, went aground today while entering the harbor. She was soon got off and has been put on the dry dock. The extent of her damage has not been ascertained yet.

The Flora was built in 1892 at Pembroke. She carries twenty-one guns, including two of 6-inch calibre, also four machine guns and four torpedo tubes. Her crew consists of 318 men. She has 7,000 indicated horsepower and can steam at the rate of 18 knots or 12½ under forced draught. She has a steaming radius of 5,700 miles.

She is one of a group of vessels built under the navy defense act.

PLAYING AT WAR

London, Sept. 2.—A state of warfare, which will continue throughout the week, commenced this morning on the military area known as Salisbury Plain. The troops of one district are being pitted against those of another, 20,000 men of all ranks being engaged, this being the ultra strength of an Aldershot command.

Lieut. General Innes Hamilton, commander of the southern district, with 10,000 troops, is playing the part of an invader from "Blue Land," described as a country situated several days' steaming from "Red Land," upon whose shores Hamilton has effected a landing. The defending force is under the command of Major-General Sir Frederick Stopford. Marlborough is supposed to be the chief harbor on the east coast, and the only other place suitable for landing troops are Pigeon and Wilton Bay.

"Red Land" is supposed to have as its capital "Redtown," which is laid down as situated 40 miles west of Bath. A certain engagement is assumed to have occurred and arrangements are understood to have been made for capturing "Red Town." All the various mobilizations, marchings, establishment of garrisons, etc., having been effected, the cavalry brigades of the two forces are expected to come in touch today. Then the work will go on without intermission, as in actual warfare, one phase of the campaign merging itself into another until the problem set for elucidation is solved.

Reminding their men that public spirit led the landholders to place their ground at the disposal of the military authorities, the officers have announced that endeavors have been made to avoid damage and annoyance and that the game on the landowners' preserves particularly must not be molested.

They all want St. George's Baking Powder.

"I never in my life saw an article make friends like St. George's."

"It seems as if every order I get calls for this Baking-Powder."

"And no wonder!"

St. George's Baking Powder

is made of Cream of Tartar that is 99.90% pure—it keeps its full strength till the can is empty. It never disappoints—but always makes the baking light and white.

THE WAYS OF WINGHAM

Burglars Busy—Arrest of Suspects—Gang May Be Broken Up.

Wingham, Sept. 1.—Thursday afternoon the Oddfellows' lodge, headed by the town band, proceeded in a body to the cemetery, and decorated the graves of departed brethren.

A contract for a bridge at the south end of the town was some time ago awarded to Mr. Chas. Barber. Mr. Barber has thrown up the contract, and the bridge which was to have been completed this month is only in its first stage. Should we have heavy rains, the traveling public will be put to a great inconvenience.

Nightwatchman Lewis met with a very bad accident Wednesday night. Thinking he saw some one in Hannah's new store, he proceeded to investigate, and in doing so fell through an opening to the cellar below. There bleeding and bruised he lay in an unconscious condition for several hours, until, regaining consciousness, he managed to scurry home. Two of his ribs were broken by the fall and he sustained other bad injuries.

Mrs. Charles Lloyd passed peacefully away on Friday afternoon. Although she was a sufferer for several years and had passed the allotted span of life, the end came suddenly. She was an estimable woman, and her genial presence will be greatly missed in this community. The late Mr. C. Lloyd died ten years ago.

On Friday morning the indignation of our citizens reached fever heat when they learned that a burglar gang, had entered the hardware stores of Messrs. Young and Bishop, and also the drugstore of Mr. Whaley. In Young's store they secured a considerable sum in cash, while all three lost many valuable articles. By noon, however, Murdoch McLeod, one of the suspects, was nabbed. He is a man of about forty years of age, who has spent all his life in Wingham. It is stated that he has turned King's evidence, and implicated several others, warrants for whose arrest were placed in the hands of the chief of police.

DEATH OF DAVID BULLIS

A Well-Known Cattle Dealer Passes Away at Home on Maitland Street.

Mr. David Bullis, a former well-known resident and cattle dealer of Oxford County, passed away at the family residence, 204 Maitland street, this city, after an illness of some three weeks. His wife died last year.

The surviving members of the family are Edgar and Monroe, of this city; Henry, of Dorchester Township; Sarah and William, of Big Rapids, Mich.; and two daughters, Mrs. John Hardy and Mrs. W. Millard, both of this city.

The funeral service will be conducted by the Rev. Jas. Livingstone from the family residence on Wednesday afternoon at 2:30 p.m. to Mount Pleasant Cemetery.

KILWORTH PIONEER DEAD

Death of Mr. Samuel Sutton, at the Ripe Age of Ninety-six Years.

Mr. Samuel Sutton, one of Kilworth's oldest residents, passed away yesterday at the ripe old age of 96 years, after a brief illness, he having been stricken with an attack of paralysis, which proved fatal at his advanced age.

The late Mr. Sutton was born in Dunbar, Ont., and came to Kilworth in 1850, having resided there continuously until his death. His wife predeceased him 39 years ago.

The members of the family of the late Mr. Sutton are Mrs. John Blair, of St. Catharines; Mrs. James Hiseock; Mrs. Wm. Campbell, Komoka; Miss Alice Sutton, at home, and James Sutton, of Washington State.

The funeral will take place from the family residence on Wednesday afternoon at 1:30 p.m. to North Street Cemetery.

—The executive committee of the English society met on Saturday evening last at the city hall to consider the report of the secretary on the English picnic held at Port Stanley on the 18th of June, 1907.

In the absence of President E. T. Essery, the chair was occupied by Mr. J. Sanders, of the Children's Aid office. The secretary's report showed a very satisfactory state of affairs, inasmuch as after all accounts have been settled there will be a considerable sum to go over towards next year's picnic. This is very gratifying, and the Englishmen of London are to be congratulated on the success of this their first annual picnic.

Mr. R. R. A. Essery reported that the donation of $5 by Mr. J. Nutkins for the lodge of Sons of England sending, the greatest percentage of members to picnic had been awarded to Lodge No. 13, Waterloo, Sons of England, St. Thomas, 90 per cent of the members of the lodge being present.

Messrs. Cadwallader and Cole were appointed auditors, and Mr. R. A. Jones and J. Sanders, stewards of the fund. After mutual congratulations on the success of the undertaking the committee adjourned until the accounts have been audited, when a statement will be published with a full list of contributors to the fund.

The vaudeville season was ushered in last night at Bennett's under circumstances most auspicious. A splendid audience enjoyed a great programme, and when it was all over, the patrons, one and all, declared that London will be well supplied with theatrical entertainment this year, judging by the quality of yesterday's bill.

Standing room only was the order last night, and it looks as if it will be the order for some time to come.

The house itself, pretty and all as it was last year, when it was first opened, seemed prettier still. Many improvements in decorations, and a freshness and daintiness about everything, make the house exceedingly attractive. The foyer is especially improved. The whole interior has been gone over thoroughly, and taking it all in all it is much beautified. It is a credit to Bennett's, and Manager Elms.

The standard of entertainment, if the first night is to be any criterion of the season, will be much in advance of the previous year. Each year it has been steadily improving, and this year the standard has been raised still higher. Excelsior is a good motto even for theatrical people, and Mr. Bennett has ever had that before him. The result was very apparent last night.

It is somewhat difficult to pick out the headlines, as nearly every act has some outstanding features that made it notable. Harry Vokes and Margaret Daly Vokes, stars of many days ago, if it is not ungallant to say so, were in great favor, and their work received much attention. They have some good jokes and are always funny. They are assisted by a very clever young lady, Miss Maud Dunn, who sang and danced well.

Hal Stephens & Co., in "A Modern Rip Van Winkle," have some very funny lines, and the sketch is one of the most enjoyable shown at Bennett's in a long while. It is good, in short, and was well entitled to the applause showered upon it.

The Kratons, a young colored team, do some marvelous work with the hoops, introducing many novel features. They make hoops talk, and talk funny.

Toledo and Price are an exceptionally clever and strong team of gymnasts. Contortion work is not always pleasing to most people, but there is a brilliancy of movement and dash that makes their work well-nigh irresistible.

The Conley sisters sing well, dance gracefully and show some rare dramatic ability. It is a refreshing act, one of the rarely good sister acts seen on stage today.

Shugravil, the Indian Medicine Man, introduces many novelties, and is entertaining.

Gus Bruno tells some good stories, and excels in dialect work.

The Bennetts bring to a close a very strong bill.

"My Wife's Family," an uproariously funny farce-comedy, which was written by Hal Stephens, who is on Bennett's bill this week, drew a large crowd to the Grand Labor Day. At night the audience was very large. Apperton and Parry, two very funny comedians, made themselves favorites with the audiences. The same pair introduced some good dancing turns.

There will be a fair chance for everyone to spend a big evening of laugh, when "Sis in New York" comes to the Grand next Friday. "Sis" herself needs no introduction, and the fact that the same distinguished cast, which has always been with her, is coming this time, leaves only the new play to talk about. The advance notices say that it is the best chance she has ever had, and their claims do not sound extravagant when you consider what a dash the pigtailed Hoosier lassie and her following must have cut in the metropolis.

"Faust" will be presented here on next Saturday, matinee and evening, at the Grand, by the Porter J. White Company. No play written in many years has retained such a hold on the hearts of the public. It has proved to be far better than the book, for while the play has steadily held its popularity, the book is now almost forgotten.

"Madam Butterfly," the most widely discussed, the greatest grand opera success of modern times, is coming to

The Bishop of Digne stated recently in the Paris Gaulois that, while some of the priests are now living on their savings, others are supporting themselves by mending watches, making beehives and knitting jerseys.

In the advertisement of Mr. Goldberg, 251 Wellington street, on page 3, Saturday's edition, it is stated by error that $25 a week will buy $75 worth of goods. This should read $1 a week will buy $25 worth of goods.

Mr. Steve O'Grady, business manager for the company, is in town to begin the preliminary arrangements for the engagement, and he promises that Mr. Savage will bring here the original New York company in its entirety.

The organization numbers nearly 150 people, including a great symphony orchestra of 60 musicians, without which "Madam Butterfly" could not be given. Besides a grand opera chorus of native Americans, Mr. Savage has engaged a triple cast of artists for the leading roles, while for the part of Madam Butterfly he has engaged four noted prima donnas, namely, Miss Rena Vivienne, an American; Mme. Fabia Strakosch, a Portuguese singer, who has appeared with great success in London for the last four years; Fraulein Rosa Wolf, from the Stadt Theater, Mainz, Germany, and Mile. Dora de Filippes, from the Opera Comique, Paris; Harriet Behnee, the famous contralto from the Royal Opera House at Berlin, and Ethel Dufre Hous-ton, an American contralto, who was secured from the Opera Comique, Paris, all the qualities necessary for high-class use—strength, fineness, flexibility and adaptability for dyeing, bleaching, etc.

This city at the Grand, and Henry W. Savage, the impresario of grand opera in English, is to bring it here. Produced with enormous success in the leading cities of the United States and Europe last year, Mr. Savage has concluded to again bring forth the spectacular Puccini opera this season, making productions in 100 American and Canadian cities, which, as a rule, are not figured on the theatrical map in the matter of great things in the show world.
