

THREE NEW REGIMENTS FOR OVERSEAS CONTINGENT WANTED

THRIFT AND ECONOMY MUST BATTLE WITH WASTE FOR VICTORY

Big Campaign Inaugurated at Guildhall—London Assurance Company Applies For $12,000,000 of New War Loan.

"We shall fight to the end, to the last farthing of our money, to the last drop of our strength, and to the last drop of our blood."—Premier Asquith in his appeal for national thrift.

London, June 30.—Penny-wise economy heretofore has not been a strong feature of the gatherings at the Guildhall, so closely connected with Aldermanic banquets of proverbial opulence, but Premier Asquith yesterday chose this home of wealth to initiate a movement in support of the British war loan and to urge personal thrift throughout the nation so as to make it possible for the country to bear the strain of the expenditure of $15,000,000 daily entailed by the cost of the war.

As if to give the campaign a good send-off, the first really big subscription to the war loan was announced simultaneously with the appearance of Premier Asquith on the platform. This was the application made by a London assurance company for £2,000,000 ($15,000,000) of the new loan.

WORLD'S COSTLIEST WAR Premier Asquith opened the meeting by stating that apart from many of its "other features" the present war was the costliest that ever had been waged, with the total prospective expenditure of the nation being a thousand millions of pounds ($5,000,000,000), the daily expenditure being and likely to be for weeks and months to come something like $15,000,000.

The Premier emphasized that for the first time in the financial history of Great Britain this was a great democratic loan. The State, he said, was appealing to all classes, even those whose resources were most limited, to step in and contribute their share to meet the supreme national need.

"Under such conditions," Mr. Asquith said, "I am confident that the success of the loan as a financial instrument ought to be and indeed is."

GERMAN SPIRIT OF BRAG IS REDUCED BY PASSING EVENTS

Lecture in Berlin by Herr Flamm Reflects a Sober Outlook and a Shaken Conviction as to Their Success

By Special Wire to the Courier. New York, June 30.—A cable to The Herald from London says: The newspapers reaching London from Germany are particularly interesting just now. For the first time since the war began the old boastful tone seems to have subsided and while in many quarters there are significant allusions to peace prospects—significantly because they are made with official sanction—there is a general realization that the naval and military outlook is not so promising for the Fatherland as appeared a few months ago.

In the course of a lecture on the sea power of Germany's enemies, which was delivered by Herr Geheimrat Flamm at Berlin a few days ago, the following statement was made: "Today the strength of the English fleet in ships of the line and cruisers is hardly less as compared with ours than at the beginning of the war, for they possess ninety five of the first class and sixty-nine of the second class, in spite of the losses which they have incurred, which amount to sixteen and thirteen percent respectively. The reason for this is that England retained all the ships which she was building for foreign states. Our submarines still have a great deal to do." This, of course, is only half the Capt. Dunlop, of Dufferin Rifles Receives Call For Men Last Night From the Headquarters of Second Division.

Brantford Will Likely Supply One Platoon of About Two Hundred Officers and Men—Pay Will Commence on Day of Enlistment.

Capt. R. S. Dunlop, who is at present acting as C. O. for the 38th Dufferin Rifles, in the absence of Capt. M. B. Cutcliffe at Niagara camp, last night received a wire from the divisional officer commanding which stated that three additional infantry regiments were to be raised from Western Ontario, and that recruiting should open immediately at the Dufferin Rifles armories.

THE DISTRICTS. This district forms part of No. 2 division, and is comprised of country west of Toronto and south by St. Kitts, then north to Sault Ste. Marie. From this part it is proposed to raise three battalions of infantry, and cavalry may be called upon to supply men for these detachments.

DUFFS RECEIVE CALL. The quota required from the Dufferin Rifles, it is anticipated, will be upwards of two hundred men, and one battalion may in all probability be officered from this regiment.

In conversation with a staff officer, the Courier learned that while the regiment has answered every call so far, there remains the fact that if the numbers are to be obtained a reduction in the physical standards will be necessary, the present severe tests eliminating many who are otherwise fit.

In connection with this it should be noted that there was a proposal made to form a corps of irregulars in Toronto, to be known as the "Backwoodsmen," of rejects who were accustomed to outdoor life and had proven experience, the only qualification being that a man could shoot, ride, and be able to march twenty miles.

STAFF OFFICERS. The Dufferin Rifles have undergone many changes of rank since the departure of Colonel H. Genet and Major P. P. Ballachey with the 58th, and the senior officers on the staff are at present taking part in a field officers' training class at Niagara.

Attending at present are Major M. B. Cutcliffe and Capt. W. F. MacLean. For captain's certificates, Capt. R. Secord and Lieut. Robinson of Paris, while Lieut. G. Fair is qualifying for his subaltern's certificate. This will place on the Dufferin Rifles roster a goodly percentage of well-trained and efficient officers, whose new roles when they are promoted will require the additional training now being undergone.

ORDERS EXPECTED. Orders from headquarters at Toronto are expected forward, and until their arrival nothing more definite can be made known of the plans for recruiting.

NO ORDERS FOR CAVALRY. Colonel M. F. Muir stated this morning that so far no word had been received regarding the enlistment of cavalry, and at present nothing was being done in that direction.

THE PRESENT IS NOT TIME FOR SUCH A QUESTION; NOTHING CAN BE SAID, SAYS PREMIER ASQUITH IN REPLY

LONDON, JUNE 30.—PREMIER ASQUITH TO-DAY MADE REPLY IN THE HOUSE OF COMMONS TO THE QUESTION ASKED YESTERDAY AS TO WHETHER THE GOVERNMENT WOULD STATE THE TERMS UPON WHICH PEACE WOULD BE POSSIBLE.

"IT WOULD NOT BE IN THE PUBLIC INTEREST TO ADD ANYTHING TO WHAT I HAVE ALREADY PUBLICLY STATED ON THIS SUBJECT." THE QUESTION YESTERDAY WAS ASKED BY DAVID MASON (LIBERAL).

British Forces Capture Two Lines of Trenches From Turkish Army

By Special Wire to the Courier. LONDON, June 30, 5.18 p.m.—A British official statement issued today, dealing with the operations in the Dardanelles, announces that two lines of Turkish trenches have been captured to the east of Saghir Dere, and that three lines have been stormed to the west of that place.

SCENES ON ACTIVE SERVICE; GRAPHIC STORIES OF THE WAR

Col. Morrison Writes of Wreck of Battery—A Picturesque Sight—Wire Cutting Brigade Watched Shelling From Safety on Flank.

Ottawa, June 30.—Col. E. W. B. Morrison of Ottawa, Commanding Officer of the 1st Artillery Brigade, which has been for months in the thick of the fighting in France, has sent to his wife here another of his graphic and intensely interesting letters detailing scenes and incidents at the front. He writes in part as follows, under date of June 7:

Northern France, June 7.—The weather is beautiful, the ruined gardens full of roses and the fields brilliant with poppies, which rival in plenitude and color the blood we are shedding. We have been here fifteen days, close up to the enemy's trenches, as we have the honor of being the "wire-cutting brigade"—namely, the trick shooters who cut the barbed-wire entanglements with shell fire to let the infantry through. We are under both heavy shell and rifle fire. We have had another gun smashed, killing the Sergeant and wounding three men, and have had four ammunition waggons smashed or blown up.

NOT WAITING. On Friday last the enemy put 60 or 70 shells into or around the headquarters in 40 minutes. We are in a desolate little garden. Most of the time the place was a cloud of smoke and brick dust, and the surrounding corps thought the Germans had us, but, bless you, we were not waiting to be exterminated. We doubled out to a bank when the shelling became pronounced, and smoked and watched it all from the side. Came back after it was over and cleaned up.

HOW BATTERY WAS WRECKED. A week ago the Germans put 260—count 'em, 260—six-inch "crumpers" into the 2nd Battery. I do not think that in the course of the war there has been seen such a wreck of a battery position. Ammunition waggons blown up, a limber thrown upside down on top of a gun emplacement, two other limbers put out of business,

RUSSIA HAS REALIZED HER WEAK POINT

Creation of New Munitions Board Was Work.

London, June 30.—Russia's reply to the series of Austro-German victories in Galicia is a law setting up a board of munitions empowered to spend unlimited money and given virtually unrestricted power over all private industries in the whole of the country.

It is reported from Petrograd that the creation of the board became law with a celerity that was absolutely astounding, which is taken to indicate that the country fully realizes that the recent disasters to the forces of Grand Duke Nicholas largely were due to lack of munitions and equipment.

With comparative quiet prevailing on all the fronts except that along the border separating Russian Poland and Galicia the attention of the English public again is turned toward diplomatic and domestic problems. Special despatches from the Balkans declare that Bulgaria is not satisfied with the territory offered her by the entente allies. That Turkey has not lost hope of conciliating her dangerous neighbor, however, is shown by the news that Bulgar-Turkish negotiations looking to the delimitation of the frontiers of their respective countries will be resumed in Constantinople.

Rumors of a break in the diplomatic relations between Italy and Turkey again are rife. With the exception of the French claim that they have recovered all the trenches which the Germans had recaptured in the Vosges Mountains, no change in the military situation in the western battle-line is reported.

COURIER BOX GOES OFF TO THE SOLDIERS

Another Load of Gifts for the Brantford Boys.

The Courier to-day sent off another box of comforts, which had been collected from the Soldiers' Box, to the men of the Brantford platoon under Capt. P. Jones, at the front. The box contained perhaps less in the way of smokes, and had quite a large contribution of envelopes and writing paper, something that will, no doubt, be as useful to the men as a smoke, if it gets there at the right time.

DOMINION DAY

The Courier will not be issued to-morrow. For a period both in the morning and in the afternoon the special leased wire of this office will be kept open, and bulletins be displayed with reference to anything of importance in connection with the war.

CLOSING RECITAL

The final closing recital of the Academy of Music was held last evening in Victoria Hall. A very large audience was present, who showed full appreciation of the program by their spontaneous and insistent applause.

In the vocal department Miss Louise Jones' light and sweet soprano voice was heard to best advantage in Purcell's dainty "Nymphs and Shepherds." Contrasting with this, Mr. Carpenter sang with very fine resonance of tone and dignity of expression; the lowest notes, with the concluding E, of the Mozart aria being taken with great ease and yet with full round tone. Miss Gertrude Brohm sang with fine dramatic feeling the difficult "Cavalleria" aria. Mrs. Arthur Secord's very brilliant and yet sweet soprano was never heard to better advantage than in the "Caro Nome" aria. The cadenzas were beautifully even in tone and the whole rendition was very delightful in every way. An encore being insisted upon, the aria was repeated, after which Mr. Wright announced that Mrs. Secord had been the only one in the Dominion to pass the Toronto University Licentiate examination, obtaining honors. Greatest credit and heartiest congratulations are due both Mrs. Secord and Miss Nolan, her well-known and successful teacher.

All the piano numbers were very well played, but for sympathetic rendering and fine tonal quality, together with steadiness of control, the numbers by Misses N. Hargreaves, M. Cooper, L. Bremner and L. Nixon deserve especial mention. The very brilliant and yet clear playing of Misses H. Ferguson, P. Keen, M. O'Grady and M. Armstrong, was most satisfactory in every way, the very difficult numbers by the latter two young ladies being rendered with the control of mature artists.

Miss E. Goutry played the Ries' Adagio for violin with fine depth of feeling. Master Errol Gamble played the difficult Mendelssohn "Andante" with breadth of tone and ease of style very remarkable for his years. The opening and closing quartets were played with fine spirit.

Twenty-three months in the prison at Lethbridge, the sentence meted out to John McLean, former ledgerkeeper of the Calgary branch of the Imperial Bank, for the theft of $15,000 from that institution.

Mr. W. M. Lewis has accepted a position with the Royal Bank.

Miss Frances Mitchell is home from Toronto to spend the holiday.

Mrs. Woodside and the children left last evening to spend the summer in Magantic.

Rev. George and Mrs. Stephenson are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. James Isaac, Terrace Hill, for a few days.

Mrs. H. S. Farrar and children, 185 St. Paul's avenue, are visiting in Hamilton.

Miss Victoria Connolly is visiting her aunt, Mrs. John Gartz, Gagetown, Mich.

Miss Burbank, who has been visiting her sister in Boston, returned to the city yesterday.

Mrs. Hurley and son of Boston, Mass., arrived in the city yesterday at her parental home, 74 Brant Ave.

Mr. W. S. Wisner and family have left for Goderich to spend the remainder of the summer there.

Rev. Mr. and Mrs. J. Walker of Chicago are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Roy E. Walker, 18 Bedford street.

Dr. A. F. Vogt, director of the Toronto Conservatory of Music, is holding examinations at the Academy today.

Dr. Percy G. and Mrs. Brittain of Guelph, who are on their honeymoon trip, are the guests of friends for a few days.

Dr. and Mrs. A. H. Montgomery arrived yesterday for a few days visit at the parental home, Dufferin Ave., having motored from New York city in two and a half days.

A surprise party was given by the schoolmates of Miss Nellie Dennis at her home, 172 Erie Ave., on Monday evening, when the little people enjoyed themselves immensely.

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Isaac, Mr. and Mrs. George McKay and Mrs. L. D. Scruton were in Alma, Ont., yesterday, attending the wedding of Miss Winnie Lyons to Dr. Percy G. Brittain of Guelph.

The engagement is announced of Jessie Stewart, daughter of the late Mr. John Hope, of Bow Park, Brantford, and Mrs. John Hope, Toronto, to Arthur Garfield Northway, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Northway, Toronto. The marriage will take place quietly the latter part of July.

The remains of Edna, beloved wife of Frank Brown, who fell asleep at the family residence in Simcoe on Saturday last were conveyed to Paris on Monday afternoon and tenderly laid to rest in the family plot, in the Paris cemetery.

The services were held in the Methodist church at which Rev. Mr. Brandon was assisted by Rev. Mr. Kerruish and Rev. Mr. Wooten, former pastors of the deceased. Mrs. Martin sang very sweetly, "Asleep in Jesus." During the service very high tributes were paid to the deceased. The same clergymen officiated at the grave. The pallbearers were Messrs. C. McCausland, C. Wells, O. Deckert, Dr. Howell, R. Ridley and Geo. Bosworth. The floral tributes were many and beautiful.

Services were also held at the family residence in Simcoe on Sunday evening conducted by Rev. Dr. Benson, assisted by the choir of the Simcoe Methodist church, at which the deceased was a member. She passed away in her 26th year and was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Walker. A sorrowing husband and one little son, George, one brother, Roy E. Walker, 18 Bedford street city, and an uncle, Rev. Jos. L. Walker of Chicago, are left to mourn her great loss.

ON THE TRAIL
 By Special Wire to the Courier.
 Quebec, June 30.—The militia department and M. Laperre Marsan, Chief of Levis, are continuing to-day their investigations into the mysterious discovery of fifty sticks of dynamite buried underground in Shaw Park yesterday. Just now they are of the opinion that they are on the trail of supposed depositors of the explosives, and have the names of two citizens employed by another Levis company. Why the dynamite was buried is not yet known, but it was said today that it was taken as a precaution to avoid any serious accident.

Mr. Thompson's Model

And How She Got a Permanent Engagement.

By ALICE R. WETMORE.

"Where are you, Billy?" came a lazy drawl from the tiny anteroom, which Thompson designated the office.

"Here," replied that gentleman as distinctly as a mouthful of brushes would permit. "It's only Carter," he explained to his model. "Or perhaps you'd rather?"

"Oh, let him come in by all means," replied the girl. "I'd rather like to see him."

A long, clean lined young fellow lounged in, latched apathetically for a moment behind Thompson's canvas and then sank lazily into a pile of cushions on the floor.

The girl on the model stand scrutinized him closely and made up her mind that he was the most typically lazy man she had ever seen. His voice, his walk, his carriage, had an absolute lack of effort that was positively fascinating, and to complete the impression his strong, lean face was absolutely devoid of expression.

Suddenly, however, he gazed intently and with a semblance of awakened interest at the model. The pose was rather striking. A heavy black velvet gown accentuated that peculiar transparency of coloring which accompanies a certain deep rich shade of auburn hair.

A dull green background recalled the brilliant coloring of the upper part of the picture to the dusky mysteries of the lower canvas. The pose of the figure was saved from insouciance only by the winsomeness of the face.

Carter pulled lazily at his pipe and continued to gaze at the girl with half closed critical eyes. "Nice color," he finally asserted. "By Jove, that's a wonderful pose!" with a sudden burst of enthusiasm that startled the girl. "Are you engaged after you finish with Thompson?"

The other artist opened his mouth; then, with a quiet smile, closed it again. The girl smiled, too, a little smile that curled her upper lip deliciously.

"No, sir; I'm not engaged next week," she replied quietly.

"Can you come to me for a two weeks' pose, then, in the mornings?" Thompson looked dubiously at the girl. "Yes, sir, I'll come," she said.

The next Monday the model presented herself at John Carter's studio. He scarcely looked up as he greeted her.

"Oh, is that you, Miss—? Do you know I forgot to ask your name," he drawled.

"Parks," the girl supplied smilingly. The gown he gave her was also black. He had hung heavy stuffs around and above the model stand until the black gown and the white face and auburn hair fairly jumped from the gloom in a single, startling note of color.

Carter set to work with a feverish energy which quite transformed him. He tried first one pose, then another, in such rapid succession that the girl was positively bewildered.

When he had at last found one that pleased him, he drawled apologetically, with a slow, winning smile, "I'm rather a hard fellow to get started, Miss Parks, but I won't give you much trouble over it."

The girl watched the man with fascinated eyes. He worked with the precision and energy of a splendid machine. His face shone with positive inspiration.

As for Carter himself, he was blissfully happy. With the true artist's sensitiveness he felt the absence of the usual clash between the half hearted, prosaic models and the ideals he struggled to embody by their aid. The atmosphere lacked a single inharmonious element, for the girl seemed to throw her whole personality into the work.

At last he emerged from his trance sufficiently to observe that a white line had appeared around the girl's compressed lips and that she wavered as she stood.

"It must be time to rest," he observed. "Why," as he glanced at the clock, "you've been posing for nearly an hour. Why didn't you rest?" he demanded reproachfully.

The girl sank into a chair with an amused gleam in her eyes. "I never saw anybody so completely lost," she said. "I couldn't bear to disturb you."

The next morning he found himself awaiting with unmistakable impatience the arrival of his model, and when at last she did stand before him with a smiling "Good morning" on her lips he gazed at the girl with an artist's satisfaction.

She was charming in her dark street gown. Her face was flushed and her eyes bright with the exhilaration of an autumn morning, and Carter was strongly tempted to put away serious work and make a study of her as she stood. He banished the idea, however, and soon they were at work on the "masterpiece." He refused to believe it when the noon whistle insisted that it was 12 o'clock and Miss Parks departed.

The afternoon was unprecedently long. He felt strangely disinclined to work and finally put aside the canvas and brought out some unfinished sketches. He worked on these until he discovered that he had converted five different heads into unmistakable likenesses of Miss Parks. Then he muttered something beneath his breath and gave up in despair.

At the end of the last day but one of the two weeks Carter realized that the central figure of his canvas was completed, and the realization brought a poignant feeling of regret. The reason for it came when it suddenly flashed upon him that tomorrow was Miss Parks' last day. And then it was that Carter made a discovery that a less inexperienced man would have made long before. It came with such a shock that he was fairly stunned.

He, John Carter, the most unimpressible of men, in love with his model! When Miss Parks appeared the next day he greeted her with his usual cheerful "Good morning," but not another word was spoken until she had taken the old familiar pose—for the last time, he said to himself, with a pang.

There was a strange restraint of which both were aware. At last, "This is the last day of the pose," the girl ventured. Carter worked furiously. "Yes," he answered shortly. Another pause. "Then you won't want me any more?" The girl's voice strove hard to be unassuming.

Carter threw down his palette in despair. The girl kept her pose bravely, her pretty head tilted, but the eyes which met Carter's held a look which he could not mistake. The man brushed his hand across his eyes in a quick, desperate little gesture. He seemed to have brushed the old nonchalance away. He was fairly transfixed.

"Want you?" he gasped. "Want you? Don't you know I want you more than anything in the world?"

"But you don't understand," the girl began finally in a voice that was somewhat smothered by Carter's broad shoulder. "There are reasons," she continued, with dignity, "why I cannot marry you."

"I am all ears," avowed Carter solemnly. "But you won't mind if I say right now that the reason won't make a particle of difference, will you?"

"Oh, but they will. I've been deceiving you," she confessed haltingly.

"Go on," commanded Carter more soberly. All kinds of dreadful possibilities loomed up before him.

"You'll never love me when you know," she continued, with visible effort. "I'm not a model at all. I'm Billy Thompson's cousin," she rushed on, "and when you came in and thought I was a professional I wouldn't let Billy tell you, and—I thought it would be such a good joke because Billy had told me how you never cared for girls or anything, and—"

"You there, Jim!" interrupted a familiar voice from the hall. The girl fled to the next stand and took her pose. Carter looked lazily and with perfect composure at his canvas.

Billy strolled in an amused look in his eyes. "See model," he remarked. "Can I engage you for next week, my pretty maid?"

Carter turned about lazily and regarded Billy from the hall. The girl fled to the next stand and took her pose. Carter looked lazily and with perfect composure at his canvas.

Women's Institute
 Alford and Park Road Women's Institute held their June meeting at the home of Mrs. W. Edmondson, Friday June 25th. The president, Mrs. Jas. A. Gillen, occupied the chair in her usual pleasant manner.

The meeting which was well attended, 85 ladies being present, was opened by singing O Canada.
 An instrumental solo by Miss Armstrong was much enjoyed, and was followed by an instructive and interesting address on institute work by Miss Coultts, government delegate.
 Mrs. Simpson delighted the audience with a violin solo. Addresses were given by Mrs. Edmondson, Hamilton, Mrs. J. Y. Brown and Mrs. J. J. Hurley, Brantford, also Mrs. G. T. Wood, President Moyer-Tranquility Institute.
 Miss Graham, Cainsville, gave a humorous reading.
 The meeting was brought to a close by singing the Maple Leaf, after which the ladies served cake and owing to the generous hospitality of the host, ice cream was enjoyed.
 A hearty vote of thanks was extended to Mr and Mrs Edmondson.
 The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. R. J. Kinney July 15th. Roll call to be answered by President Moyer-Tranquility Institute.

When the Big Fleet Comes In Five p.m., and the officers of one of his Majesty's oiltankers are yarning and thanking their lucky stars that things are likely to be quiet for the night. Anchor watch, will then only mean having an occasional look round. Suddenly a "scream" is heard and the Chief tears on deck. That "scream" is well-known and means coming in to dock. Friday, the fifth day of the Port Coaling Officer's tug, which, for a small ship, can make the deuce of a row. When she gets close aboard her skipper pokes his head out of the wheelhouse and yells:
"Stand by for an emergency to-night and to oil the main destroyer flotilla."
"Right! What's all the shindy?"
"Don't know, but I believe the big fleet is coming in, and they're in the devil of a hurry. I'm hustling around to the colliers as well. There are to be ready for coaling at a minute's notice," and off he goes, making enough noise with his siren to wake the dead. Incidentally he wakes up the colliers. The bay is full of oiltankers and colliers of every description and size, ranging from a big ten thousand tonner to a little motor schooner. Restlessness becomes apparent throughout this fleet. The white feathers of ex-tender haul steam show here and there, and a few ships heave up their second anchor to be in readiness to get under way. The Port Coaling Officer has done his job.
Half an hour later the whole bay is alive with destroyers tearing about and blowing their sirens as signals to various ships that they are coming alongside to oil. Two of them are soon made fast and a hoarse voice on deck of the destroyers bellows out, "Starboard watch away for exercise." "Starboard watch away for exercise." "ands in 'oses (Hands in hoses)." A few moments later the pumps are started and the oil is pouring into the destroyers' tanks.
Away down the bay the main battle fleet is coming into its anchorage. All the colliers frantically heave up anchors and steam off to coal their appointed ships. Whistles, sirens and exhausts raise a deafening racket.
On board our oiltanker we now get time to have a yarn with the men just in from the grey North Sea. "Anything doing?" That is always the first question. "Not a thing," almost invariably comes the reply. Then, perhaps, we ask if they were in the "Lion dust up." "No, we were sent in just before with a damaged turbine, and our old man's language blistered all the wardroom paint." Then we get their own story, full of adventures, perhaps with a submarine, how they only missed ramming it by a few yards, and how one of the gunners had a fit when a lurch sent his shot just wide of the mark. After that we take up papers and magazines, and have a look round at the whole scene.
The sight of all the fighting ships of different types starts one's blood flowing swiftly. No landsman can quite understand the impression that such a fleet creates in the mind of the sailor man. "That's our life's blood," says someone on deck, "and we're a dead race when that goes."
Oh, for a chance to be a fighting unit instead of an oiltanker!—London Chronicle.

SATISFIED!
The Wright Piano is Held in High Esteem!
We have just received a letter from a customer in the County of Norfolk, who purchased a Wright piano some little time ago—as follows:
"According to the agreement, I find I made my final payment on the piano on June 10th. I must say I have been very much pleased with piano, and it has proven entirely satisfactory in every way."
We are pushing sales of this high-class piano, and for a short time longer will sell them at greatly reduced prices. Now is your opportunity to secure one. Numbers of other customers would speak in the same way as this party. We are selling Mendelssohn pianos, Thomas organs and high-class sewing machines.

THE SITUATION.

A year has passed since the assassination which constituted the excuse for the precipitation of the present great war by Germany, and there has also been almost twelve months of fighting. With what results? One writer thus presents them:

"Let us look at the military situation from a German point of view. They have driven the Russians back from the Carpathian passes and the neighborhood of Cracow to beyond Lublin. They are holding parts of Russian Poland and are again assailing Warsaw, probably with considerable confidence in the efficacy of their superior weight of shells. They have made good an invasion of the Baltic Provinces. Their lines in the West have practically held in the face of the perhaps too well-advertised 'Spring Drive' of the British, and the 'undescribable gallantry' of the French. They are in possession of the richest section of France, industrially, and of nearly the whole of Belgium. Their own territory is entirely free of the allied forces, and Austria is now only touched on the Galician border and penetrated at some points by the Italian armies."

All of the above is true enough, but the fact has to be remembered that Germany jumped into the game full strength after long years of preparation, and that she cannot make good her depletions in the same way. For instance, as Russia and Great Britain moreover, as an offset to the above quoted list, it must be remembered that German commerce has been swept from the seas, that her costly navy has for some months been bottled up in the Kiel canal, an utterly impotent factor, and that her overseas possessions, so dear to the heart and the ambition of the Kaiser, have been lost to the Hohenzollern Empire. The smashing of Germany on land has not yet made any tangible progress, it is quite true, but each day sees her great war machine more or less tested under a strain of which the ultimate breaking point must be reached. And on top of this her high place as one of the great trading nations of the world has already not only been jeopardized, but smashed.

Meanwhile the Kaiser and his war lords are manifestly preparing for another big offensive movement in Belgium and Northern France and another one in Eastern Galicia.

They have evidently now reached the point of desperation.

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

In the Old Land just now they are free of the militant suffragette, and in Brantford we have been freed from gas sulphurette. All round thanks both ways.

A London paper avers that this is an actual extract from a sailor's letter to his wife:

"Dear Jane—I am sending you a postal order for 10s., which I hope you may get—but you may not—as this letter has to pass the censor."

A large part of the paper is taken up to-day with school results—the names of the men and women of the future. And they in turn will be just as interested in the examination results for their own kiddies, and so the old world goes along.

The Hamilton Board of Health has ordered that citizens must do without roller towels. Failing anything else, they may wipe their hands on the atmosphere.

Right now people are paying a good price for ice when only a few weeks back they thought it a damned nuisance to have to clear that substance off the walks.

Bulgaria with regard to entering the war seems to be about as cozy as Italy was for a while. Let's hope that the final jump will be in the right direction also.

GOT OVATION

By Special Wire to the Courier. North Bay, Ont., June 30.—A great ovation was tendered the Yukon field battery by our citizens this morning. The troops were allowed one hour's rest from travelling and paraded through the town, accompanied by a regiment from Victoria. The battery was entirely equipped by Millionaire Boyle of the Yukon.

SCENES ON ACTIVE

silent men called from the guns standing in the dusk in the lush grass under an apple tree; the open grave, the stretcher with the muffled rubber sheet. The young readers' voice punctuated by the crash of shells exploding only a hundred yards away; the ruined farmhouse making a silhouette of blackened timbers against the translucent western sky. They put the body in the grave, and nearly every man repeated the Lords Prayer in unison. They watched the hole filled up, and then shuffled silently off through the long grass to the gun pits in the orchard. Such a scene must have an influence on men, and raise a depth of emotion such as not a century of smug peace could ever awaken in men of a similar status in the scheme of things.

WAR NOT UNMIXED EVIL. We are in the middle of war, and goodness knows we are taking our share of it, but I see so much that is awakening and ennobling in it that I am still unprepared to recant my conviction that as periodic affliction it is by no means an unadvised evil—unless it be in the minds of people whose ideal is fatness of body, soul and brain, whose gods are big dividends and "business as usual."

TELL EVERYBODY TO WRITE. Up to date we are no nearer Berlin than you would notice. I see with pride the Canadian making more shells than the British private factories. My brigade is three officers short at present. Tell your friends that all the soldiers want is letters from home: one every mail, or better still, two or three. Tell everybody to write. It is so good to get letters and those who don't get one look so disappointed. Regards to all our friends.

WORSE THAN OLD TIME BATTLES. "It takes sand, and lots of it, to hold your job down in this war," says Col. Morrison in another letter to his wife. "People don't seem to realize that Waterloo was only a one-day battle and Gettysburg, only lasted three days. In our last engagement we had seventeen days' fighting. That was worse than any old-fashioned battle."

SMASH GERMANY OR HELL FOR US. "Some of us would not mind a little holiday to freshen up and re- turn to kill the Germans with more zest, for if we don't smash Germany it will be hell for somebody, not excepting Canada and the United States. The best one can expect is a condition similar to that revealed in Alsace and Lorraine. You remember the German officers in Metz when we were there, pushing people off the sidewalks and striking some with their canes. I suppose that in Ottawa the people don't think this could be possible; but so far the allies have not done anything to render this outside the range of possibilities. The Canadians are doing their work magnificently."

WORLD PRESS ON THE WAR

STRENGTHENING OUR ARM

London News and Leader.—There may be many Zeppelin raids to come. There was much in that of Monday night to suggest that it was merely a trial balloon. But if the Kaiser supposes that these outrages will have any effect on our people except to strengthen their arm and their resolution, it only shows how completely it misapprehends the spirit of this country. We may suffer some inconvenience and some loss, and the lives of some innocent people may be sacrificed, but for every home that is burned and every life that is destroyed there will be a more assured triumph and a heavier reckoning.

INTERNATIONAL NIHILISM

London Times.—Neither right nor law exists for Germany when she is at war. They exist, she insists, for others, but where she thinks she can snatch a military advantage neither treaty nor universal custom, neither promises nor oaths nor the first instincts of human feeling are to hold her back. For her and for her alone, the plea of military necessity, which she constitutes to include the slightest prospect of military advantage, wipes out all the moral obligations of morals, of religion and of law. The rights of neutrals have ceased to exist in her eyes as completely as the rights of belligerent enemies. If neutrals like to waste ink by asserting them on paper, she is quite willing to humor their weakness.

A CHANGE OF MIND

People's Journal.—We have to doubt whatever that if the Government putting aside all theoretical possessions, were to tell the country that voluntary enlistment entails a half speed prosecution of the war, the country would emphatically pronounce for a change of policy. The feeling is taking root that in a great struggle, which seriously drains the country of its manhood, it deals equally both between man and man and between one enterprise and another. These unfairnesses are telling, and have done much to reconcile unwilling minds to the idea of compulsory conscription. The new government might do worse than begin its work by ascertaining the available resources by means of a registration.

STILL "NIBBLING." Glasgow Herald.—It is an encouraging omen for the future that the Allies, while they are concentrating for the real advance, are in a position of superiority already which enables them to indent the German line frequently at chosen points. Sometimes the enemy is merely cleaned out of his advanced trenches over a front of a few hundred yards. Sometimes he is thrust back a mile or so over a front of half a mile. Sometimes he is driven out of a village after house to house fighting, or pushed off a little hill, which he esteemed of sufficient importance to spend much time and ingenuity in its fortification. These minor operations serve to indicate what the Allies may be expected to accomplish when the time comes for them to exert their full strength.

THE BIRTHDAY LIST

London Daily Telegraph.—What is the obvious characteristic of a list which exceeds all the ordinary dimensions and makes so manifold an appeal to our interests and sympathies? It is clearly the wide geographical distribution of the honors, an aspect which must necessarily strike us at the first glance, and which testifies so eloquently to our present conditions. We are concerned in a war for the actual existence of the British Empire, and every component portion of that Imperial fabric is not only aware of the fact, but gladly acknowledges its full responsibility. Thus, in any distribution of honors notice must be taken of all those silent workers in distant fields who have organized the troops in our outlying possessions and marshaled them in the defence of all the Britains.

FORGETFUL STATESMAN

Belfast Weekly News.—The German people, Herr von Jagow tells us, have enough to live on, and also enough raw materials to keep their industries going. Thus when they started the submarine warfare it was not a case of necessity—though that would have been a poor excuse—but one of unprovoked wickedness. Herr von Jagow denies that we have a right to besiege Germany, and he argues that the analogy of a besieged fortress does not apply. But he forgets that it was Bismarck who used the analogy, and that both he and another German chancellor, von Caprivi, defended in the Reichstag the policy of starving the civil population in order to hasten the end of a war. German statesmen appear to be still of opinion that they have a right to do what they like, but that all other nations unless allies of Germany must be guided by international law. This is one of the questions which the war will decide.

TAKE SAME MEASURES

Berlin, via London, June 30.—The German Government has decided to adopt the same measures for the conservation of this year's crop of grain as were employed last year, appropriating all grain and fixing maximum prices for its sale. The exportation will be in the hands of commissioners and the maximum prices will not be fixed until it is seen exactly how the harvest turns out. The same measures will apply to foder.

Canadian manufacturers say no orders for shells are available just now.

lights of the English warships play. Suddenly there is a flash of light as clear as day over the entire horizon and a terrible broadside is delivered at Maudos, to be followed by two sharp detonations. "A fresh fire starts, new and meaningless destruction is inflicted on the peaceful inhabitants, with the idea of making all existence as difficult as possible in the Dardanelles. And now, as the inhabitants, with the help of the soldiers, put out the fire, the rattle of the machine guns sounds on the ear, broken by the thunder of the ships guns, which send a hail of shrapnel on the attacking ranks of the Turkish infantry, or attempts to destroy their camps. The roll of the machine guns sounds for an hour at a time without any break.

"And if for an instant the guns are silent then one knows that on the other side of the waters the night battle, the revolver and the side arm, that bloodiest conflict of man with man, is going on, and one recalls the fact that the Turkish troops have proved themselves the most terrible combatants with the bayonet in these night affairs. In spite of all his efforts the enemy still stands where he landed, under the fire of his ships. What plans the allies have, what resources they may be able to develop, no one can say. Perhaps they do not know at Tenedos. No one can say what significance the illness of the French General, D'Amade, may have for the operations on the Dardanelles."

FUTURE AT STAKE

Remarking that it was not merely a question of self-preservation, Mr. Asquith proceeded: "There is not a man or woman who has seen what is hanging in the balance but who has during the past year become greatly conscious that the battle in which we are engaged touches interests and ideals far beyond even the confines of our world-wide Empire, and realizes that it concerns the whole future of humanity. "Is it right or force to dominate mankind?" asked the Premier, who, remarking that comfort, prosperity

There are voiles, muslins, crepes, etc., in either all white, white with color and colored, also some very pretty and neat black and white effects.

98c The Balance of Those Beautiful Waists 98c SUCH A DAY.— One lady remarked that Brantford people knew where they got bargains by the looks of the crowd. Well we did not expect such gratifying results but knew we would get a hearty response, we always do. There were 396 waists in all and naturally we did not expect to sell them in the one day, but our intentions were to get our regular prices for these waists after Saturday, on looking at the few that are left (and by the way there some of the best ones overlooked by the eager buyers) we have decided to let them clean right out at the one price. Regular prices $1.50 to $3.00.

ELECTRICIANS HELD A BUSY SESSION.

City Hall Scene of Engineers Gathering From All Over Ontario.

A large deputation consisting of the managers and engineers of the Ontario Municipal Electrical Association...

The most important business being discussed is the municipal rates. These all vary, and the deputation is struggling with the problem of equalizing them.

Yesterday afternoon the subject which received considerable discussion, was the annual convention. Although no definite steps were taken...

The deputation consists of the following delegates: from all over western Ontario: P. E. Yates, St. Catharines, chairman; E. I. Sifton, Hamilton; W. H. Child, Hamilton; Mr. Myers, Stratford; Geo. Gosse, Waterloo; Mr. McIntyre, Berlin; Mr. Scott and Mr. Elliott, Galt; Mr. Archibald, Woodstock; Mr. Haig, Guelph; Mr. Wilson, Seaforth; Mr. Buchanan, London; Mr. Caughell, St. Thomas; Mr. Tekko, Tillsonburg; Mr. Chant, Clinton; L. G. Ireland, Brantford.

The gentlemen arrived in the city yesterday morning, and several visited the new municipal terminal station, with Mr. Bunnell. They have since taken an auto trip around the city, also visiting the old Mohawk church, the Bell homestead and the Golf club.

When the conference sat at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon, Captain Spence extended a cordial welcome, and hoped that when their business had been concluded they would enjoy themselves as much as possible in the city.

Mr. W. H. Orde, accountant of the Bank of Commerce here for the past two or three years, has been appointed to the management of a branch of the bank at Provost, Alta.

Mr. Orde will be especially missed in golf circles in Brantford. He has won several trophies this season already.

The police court session was by no means a short one this morning, but half of the cases entered were juvenile ones.

M. Goldberg charged Philip Shear with non-payment of wages, but the dispute was settled. John McDonald and William Johnston charged with both vagrancy and theft of chickens.

The Women's Institute of Alford Junction held a very successful strawberry festival yesterday in aid of the Red Cross fund.

The Surrogate Court yesterday afternoon examined the accounts of the estate of the late E. M. Luzent.

The County Orange Order asked the Toronto Board of Control to investigate the affairs of the Toronto Hydro System.

BIG CARGO OF RIFLES IS SEIZED.

Suspected They Were For Europe, Though Shipped to Mexico.

By Special Wire to the Courier. Hoquiam, Wash., June 30.—Laden with a cargo of four thousand old style Springfield rifles, and 100,000 cartridges loaded with dum dum bullets, according to the captain of the three-masted schooner Annie Larsen, arrived at Hoquiam to-day short of provisions and water.

Some of the authorities believe, though her manifest cleared here from San Diego, Calif., for Topolo Bampo, Mexico, the Larsen's cargo, was intended for one of the Euro- pean belligerents. The cargo it was said originated in Kansas City. It was to have been transferred at Socorro Island, a barren Mexican island, 800 miles off the Mexican coast, to the former Standard oil tanker Maverton, now under charter to the Jensen Company.

While her manifest was for Mexico, Captain Paul H. Schuller was instructed that a super-cargo, Walter Page, would be aboard and that he would get his sailing orders after he got to sea. The schooner was towed 200 miles off shore by a tug and after being out of port 24 hours, the super-cargo took charge and told the captain to lay a course for Socorro, where his cargo would be transferred to the Maverton. The schooner reached Socorro in 11 days from San Diego, and lay there a month waiting for the Maverton, but the tanker did not arrive and as the Larsen was running short of provisions, Captain Schuller sailed for Acapulco, Mexico, to replenish his supplies.

At Acapulco Carranza troops attempted to confiscate the vessel and her cargo, and the captain was only able to clear through the Mexican customs, Yerktown, which was in port. The Larsen's cargo from Kansas City was shipped to New York City; from there by steamer to Galveston and then by rail to San Diego. The cargo is valued at $300,000.

FRENCH OFFICIAL.

Paris, June 30.—The French War Department to-day gave out the following official statement: "In the region to the north of Arras last night saw a violent cannonade, together with some infantry engagements. To the north the Chateau of Curleu we made slight progress; to the south, at the Cabaret Rouge, a German attack was repulsed."

Malone, N.Y., June 30.—State authorities have succeeded in locating Evelyn Nesbit Thaw. She has been served with a subpoena at her summer camp at Lake Chateaugay and will testify against her husband, Harry K. Thaw, in the jury proceedings to determine his mental condition now being held in New York city.

THE PROBS

Toronto, June 30.—Showers have occurred quite generally in Alberta and more locally in Saskatchewan and Manitoba, but the weather throughout the West has been for the most part fair and warm. From Ontario eastward, it has been also mostly fair and warm, but heavy rain has fallen during the night near Lake Erie and showers have occurred in Eastern Quebec and parts of the Maritime Province.

FORECASTS.
Moderate winds, warm and unsettled with some local showers or thunderstorms. Thursday, local showers early, then fair and warm.

MATERIALLY LESSENER
By Special Wire to the Courier.
Cologne, Germany, June 30.—Discussing the interview of Chancellor Von Bethmann-Hollweg and Foreign Minister Von Jagow with Baron Burbanck, Austrian foreign minister, the Gazette's Berlin correspondent says it is impossible to state positively as yet how the future policy of Rou-mania and Bulgaria, with regard to the war will shape itself. He asserts, however, that it can be said that the quadruple entente's hopes of military support from Roumania and Bulgaria have been materially lessened.

SAXON COURTESY HELPS THE ALLIES

British Officers Very Careful to Avoid Giving Offence to the French.

By Special Wire to the Courier.
British Headquarters, France, June 17.—Correspondence—One of the first considerations of the British army officials is the avoidance of all friction with the inhabitants of the occupied districts of France and maintenance of the most cordial relations with the French soldiers. A principal factor in keeping on good terms with the allied army has been the steadfast insistence on the courtesies of discipline.

Military etiquette for example demands that when a party of British officers are saluted by a British private only the senior officer acknowledges the salute. When however, the salute is given by a French private the acknowledgment is made by all the officers. "The idea is," a staff officer explained, "that by this act of courtesy we daily show the French our consciousness that if we are their allies, we are also guests in their country, and where the officers give the lead, the men are quick to follow."

Two Norwegian Ships Torpedoed

By Special Wire to the Courier.
London, June 30.—The Norwegian ship Cambus Kenneth, which sailed from Liverpool or Manchester, was sunk to-day by the German submarine U-39.

Thirteen members of the crew were landed. Eight other sailors, being German subjects, were taken aboard the submarine.

ANOTHER ONE
The Norwegian Steamship Gjesjo, of 1,004 tons, carrying reinforcements to a German submarine to-day, the crew was landed at North Shields.
The vessel was sent to the bottom by a torpedo.

The Norwegian Steamship Gjesjo was built at Trondheim in 1912. She was 226 feet long, 36 feet beam and 15 feet deep.

The ship Cambus Kenneth was a three master of 1,925 gross tonnage, and was built in Glasgow in 1893.

VALUABLE ARMS
By Special Wire to the Courier.
Rochester, N.Y., June 30.—Jess Willard, world's heavyweight champion, places a valuation of $100,000 on the two arms he gave him the title at Havana, He made application to a Rochester insurance company yesterday for a one year policy in that sum, $50,000 for each arm. He also applied for an accident travelling insurance policy for a smaller sum in favor of his wife. He was in Rochester with a circus.

SUPPRESSED BY POLICE
By Special Wire to the Courier.
Prague, Bohemia, via London, June 30.—The newspaper Narodni Listy, leading organ of the young Czech party, has been suppressed by the police. There have been many reports almond since the war began of disaffection among the Czech element in Hungary and of a peace propaganda conducted by that party.

NEEDS ALL COTTON
By Special Wire to the Courier.
Berlin, via London, June 30.—The military commandant of the Province of Brandenburg, in which Berlin is situated, has issued an order effective August 1, prohibiting the manufacture of fabrics wholly or chiefly cotton for nearly all ordinary purposes, such as articles of clothing, bed sheets, pillow slips and table cloths. The presumption from this order is that Germany needs all the cotton available for use in the manufacture of explosives.

36TH ON CORSICAN.
By Special Wire to the Courier.
Montreal, June 29.—The steamer Eagle Point, carrying reinforcements from the Fifteenth Batt., Calgary, and Fifty-first, Edmonton, and horses, which sailed from Montreal, June 14, has reached England. The Allan liner Canadian reached an English port yesterday. She carried the following troops: Thirty-sixth Batt., Hamilton, and reinforcements from Fifty-fifth of New Brunswick and the Thirty-fourth of London. She left Montreal on June 19.

CONTRADICT SUCCESS.
By Special Wire to the Courier.
Stuttgart, Wurttemberg, June 30.—
The Wurttemberg Minister of War to-day announced that a French bi-plane on Sunday approached Friedrichshafen, where the Zeppelin hang-ars are situated coming from Constance. The machine was bombarded by anti-air craft guns and it turned back after dropping three bombs between Lake Constance and the town of Schmettenhausen and Ragershausen without doing any damage. The biplane returned to Switzerland where it was compelled to land and the aviators were arrested.

The French official statement issued on Monday last, said that on the morning of June 27 (Sunday) one of our aeroplanes succeeded in dropping with success eight shells on the Zeppelin hangars at Friedrichshafen. Me-tor trouble obliged the aviator to make a landing during his return. He succeeded in reaching Swiss territory at Rheinfelden."

A FEW PAIRS AT 75 CENTS.

LINER RUN DOWN IN CHANNEL

No Lives Lost, Though
Her Port Side is Damaged.

By Special Wire to the Courier.
Deal, England, June 30.—The Holland-American Line steamship, Nieuw Amsterdam, having a large number of passengers on board bound from New York for Rotterdam, was run down in a fog by an unknown steamer while anchored in the Downs today.

The port quarter of the trans-Atlantic liner was damaged but the vessel still is riding safely at anchor.
This makes the eighth collision in the Downs within the past three days.

The liner Nieuw Amsterdam sailed from New York, June 15, with approximately 1,200 passengers and a general cargo for Rotterdam. She should have reached Rotterdam if not detained en route, on June 26.

A ROYAL VISIT
By Special Wire to the Courier.
New York, June 30.—A London cable to The Herald says: The Queen and Princess Mary were greeted with a salvo of cheers from hundreds of wounded soldiers at the Duchess of Marlborough's matinee at the Palace Theatre yesterday. The Queen wore a dress of pale blue with white, with a white and black hat. The Princess Royal and Princess Maud, Mrs. Lewis Hartcourt and Lady Randolph Churchill also were present. Miss Laurette Taylor in the Marchioness Townsend's playlet "The Monk and the King's Daughter" received the royal applause.

Hon. Arthur Villiers
on the Canadians

The Honorable Arthur Villiers, secretary of the Earl of Jersey, writing to a Montreal friend, says:—

"Expeditionary Force, 7th May 1915.
You will be surprised to get a letter from me, but I have been up near Paris and I cannot refrain from writing you what absolute heroes the Canadians have been.

"The first battle of Ypres,
the Germans were held up, and they have been doing it—its ownelves for the Canadians to be so brave in such a hopeless struggle. If it had not been for the courage of the Canadians there would have been a bad disaster at Ypres. I think no troops could have done more trying positively. I am sure you would agree that the Canadians have done more than any other nation. These things are remembered for ever. I do hope that the other side of the Atlantic realize what they have done.

"There is a fellow in my regiment who is a brother in the Canadian army. He told me that he and his corporals crucified to the bayonets, and for some of the Germans believe that the wounded and the Germans—they treat the wounded as if they were beasts even their customary when dealing with the Canadians. I slept in a room with two Red Cross sergeants and two sergeants. One afternoon they were killed. They killed four hundred wounded out of which the Germans were killing a wounded man and one of our sergeants was killed. While a parson attached to the Canadian Brigade read the service, big shells dropped close by and he was killed. He was killed as if he was in the middle of his church. I have seen nothing and gone through nothing compared to anyone in the Fruit and Vegetables Beauty.

Fruit is indeed the keynote of spring diet which shall help to improve the complexion. Apples, raw and cooked, baked or as sauce; any of the whole some citrus family, in itself a whole pharmacopoeia of goodness; the lemon, the orange and the grapefruit—these eaten lavishly and freely are indeed health and beauty at any time of the year, as well as the springtime. Then, to augment all of this, such things as spring onions, chives and parsley are helpful, with crisp salads of romaine, endive or escarole, always with plenty of lemon juice and olive oil. These things, not forgetting plenty of water, taken between meals should obviate all necessity for physic. Internal medicines are not as essential as exercise, proper diet, rest, water drinking. All of these, as said above, will help to secure that improved and regenerated complexion so much desired when winter is a thing of the past.

Then it must not be overlooked that a course of facial treatment is well worth its cost and very necessary if such a course is taken in reputable establishments, where knowledge and long experience have resulted in really helpful methods. Personal advice as to proper local as well as constitutional treatment is given, and the patient is sure of benefit from such a course. When later on that pretty chapeau, that dainty dress, are donned the wearer shall look into her mirror and have nothing to regret as she scrutinizes her reflection, for her complexion will be as fresh and as flawless as her costume, and the ensemble will be entirely satisfactory.

Beware of Headaches.

Headaches are much more serious in their hidden possibilities than most persons believe, and they work havoc with facial beauty.

Middle ear disease, mucus and pus in the upper part of the nose, nasal tuberculosis, fevers of various sorts, brain troubles, distempers such as tuberculosis, joint infections, or gout, eye disorders, tonsillitis, gastric crisis, constipation, dysentery, pneumonia and almost the whole roster of human maladies may be preceded or accompanied by headaches.

Further be it remembered that slovenly breathing, overeating, poor ventilation, lack of exercise and an indoor life all have their accompanying headaches.

There are different methods in the treatment of headaches. Each depends upon the source.

Deep breathing and simple rations, sleep in the open air and muscular sport in the open may cure safely, if not quickly.

Charcoal, olive oil, milk of magnesia and fruits eliminate the frontal throbs that come from constipation.

A short diet with green vegetables may cure the headache of glaucoma.

Rational gymnastics, physical culture, graduated exercises in the fresh air and a cold bath may cure the headache due to sleeplessness.

If a headache is persistent see a physician.

For Brittle Nails.
You can't make your hands look nice if your nails are very brittle, because they always break off and show rough, jagged edges. Brittle nails are often constitutional, or a sign of poor health.
You can do a great deal toward curing them in the following way:

But some persons could cream or white vasoline all over the nails and well into the base at night. Once or twice a week apply a little olive oil, and never wash the hands in hard water or put them in strong soda water, for this aggravates the condition. The treatment described is a remedy for hang nails also, for it keeps the skin round the base of the nails pliable and soft.

Odessa's Great
Reception of Tsar

The Tsar has come and gone, and in this greatest city of Southern Russia the Ruler of all the Russians was accorded a magnificent reception writes the Odessa correspondent of the London Daily Chronicle.

Nicholas II drove through streets that were lined with troops and cheering multitudes. "Long live the Tsar!
Long live Russia!" were the cries which everywhere greeted the Imperial cars.

Gone are the days of distrust and unrest evidently in Southern Russia.
The workmen have made common cause in the present war with the classes. "Never before has a Russian ruler received so splendid a public reception as that which Odessa accorded to our Allied Sovereign.

During his triumphal progress through the streets, the Tsar, flinging etiquette to the winds, stood up in his automobile with an uncovered head and bowed to the cheering multitude.

At the railway station, amongst the officials, both military and civil were the members of the Consular Corps. Mr. Roberts, the British Consul-General, expressed Britain's appreciation and admiration of the valiant Russian army, which had done so much to further the Allied cause. He hoped that the Tsar would long be spared to direct the destinies of the country.

The Tsar, who seemed much touched, replied in English. "In a soft, musical voice, with only the slightest trace of a foreign accent, he said:
"I thank you very much for what you have said. We do not forget how much we in Russia owe to the brave English and French. We are now on the high road to victory and with the aid of our British and French Allies our common cause shall speedily triumph."

In the quadrangle of the Railway station the Tsar inspected the troops.
It was no perfunctory ceremony. The Emperor, at a brisk pace, walked along the entire front of the massed force, stopping to speak to a general or a private when he had something to say.

Meanwhile the bands rolled out the glorious National Anthem of Russia. But even more impressive was the roar of the soldiers shouting in unison, "Long live the Tsar! Long live the Tsar! Long live our Little Father!"

Then the Tsar made a speech to the officers and men. It was effective to a degree, yet without oratorical, embroidery such as the Kaiser Wilhelm would dearly love on a similar occasion. He reviewed the history of the present war and reminded them of Russia's glorious past, of the splendid deeds of the army in the present campaign. He said:

"Do as your brothers have already done on the battlefields of East Prussia, Galicia and Bukovina. God will watch over you, and Russia will remember you."

A hush fell on that assembly of fighting men. Here and there a hand stole up to wipe away a future tear. Then the silence was dramatically broken. The soldiers gave vent to their enthusiasm and patriotism and, waving their caps in the air, cried, "Long live the Tsar! Long live our Little Father!"

Old World Notes

A four legged chicken was hatched out a few days ago in the New Deer district. The legs were placed two on the right side and two on the left.
They were all fully developed except the hind one on its left side. It lived for two days quite lively, and moved about by hopping on the right side hind leg.

A pledge signing campaign in which citizens were asked to abstain from intoxicating liquor during the war, was recently conducted in Glasgow. The total number of occupied houses within the city's area is 218,773 and the total population 1,008,487.
From the 218,773 households, 67,188 signed schedules were returned, 67, 119 being in favor of total abstinence during the war and 96 against. The total number of pledges received was 169,759, equal to fully one in six of the total population.

An interesting discovery was made last week on the farm of Keir, Bellevue. In the course of cultivation in a field near by a clump of trees known as the Haircain, an ancient grave was discovered containing a perfect human skeleton and three urns. One of the urns was practically whole, but the other two were broken.
The grave, which was about 4 feet long by 2-4 in width and depth, was composed of stout undressed slab stones. The find was examined by Dr Alex. Low, a professor of Aberdeen University, who expressed the opinion that the remains were about 2000 years old. Nothing was found in the urns. Permission is being asked to remove the relics to the University Museum.

RAILWAY CONSTRUCTION IN CANADA.

(1) Western portal Roger Pass tunnel. (2) Steam shovel at work. (3) A C. P. R. track laying machine. (4) Pioneer Tunnel near Glacier.

Few people realize what a tremendous undertaking it is to construct a railway or tunnel a mountain. It is the heaviest kind of work as every foot is fought for, and often costs heavily in life, to say nothing of the labor and the money. In the early history of the Canadian Pacific the engineers were often called upon to thread wildernesses never trod by white men. Much arduous work is entailed in the location of the proposed line. After this preliminary work, probably occupying months in order to secure the easiest grades by the shortest cuts, has been accomplished, gangs of workmen are sent usually employed in grading consists of steam shovels (one of which is seen here at work) weighing from 30 to 90 tons; locomotives from 20 to 140 tons; cars for transportation of materials in excavation of cuttings; Lidgerwood unloaders, car plows and spreaders. Special plants have to be put down for bridge construction and tunnelling. One of the greatest engineering works ever attempted in America is the tunnelling of Mount Sir Donald near Glacier. The entrance to the pioneer bore of this great undertaking is here shown. The work has been proceeding now over twelve months and great headway is being made. This tunnel will be five miles long, and when completed it will do away with the many snowsheds in this district. Not only will it reduce the periods of the year. When the grading is completed the track layer comes along and after it has been properly ballasted by crushed rock it is ready for the regular passenger and freight service.

The Canadian Pacific engineers spent two years seeking a location, and finally decided on the Roger Pass. According to the United States Commerce Reports, this tunnel will be the longest on the American continent. Constructed at a cost of ten million dollars will shorten the route four miles and materially reduce the grades.

The minister of Kilevich has prepared a roster of Sons of the Manse who have answered their King's and country's call to arms.
The results detailed are of a remarkable and gratifying character. They were brought to the notice of his Majesty and the place of honor in the volume is given to a letter addressed to the author, in which it is said: "The King was interested to hear you had compiled a roll of the Sons of the Manse of the Church of Scotland who are now serving in the army and navy, from which it appears that about 90 per cent of those of military age have given their services at the present time to their Sovereign and country."
His Majesty is much impressed with these remarkable figures and considers that the Scottish clergy may well be proud of the splendid manner in which their sons have responded to the call of duty to fight for the honor and freedom of the British Empire."

The Clyde armament committee at a recent meeting in Glasgow sent the following telegram to Sir John Jellicoffe: "We, the representatives of the employers and workmen on the Clyde armaments committee, wish you to know that we thoroughly realize the situation, and that with the help of the government departments concerned, who are working in cordial co-operation, our gallant comrades under your leadership, wish you to know that you shall lack for nothing which the Clyde can provide. We wish to take this opportunity of expressing our unbounded admiration for the devotion and heroism displayed by the Clyde armaments committee, and the following telegram to Sir John French: "We, the representatives of the employers and workmen on the Clyde armaments committee ask you to tell the gallant men in the trenches that so far as munitions of war are concerned, they may expect the last ounce from the Clyde at the earliest possible moment."

To combat the distress among women workers in Scotland, valuable work has been done by the Scottish committee on women's employment, and the local relief committee in various parts of the country. Workrooms, financed by the Queen's Work for Women fund, and supervised by the local committees, have been maintained during the past winter months in many of the principal industrial centres, and help has also been given by the organization of training schemes for younger girls, the provision of knitting for women of the fishing districts and Outer Islands, and by the placing out of small contracts amongst firms which would otherwise have had to dismiss their workers. Of late, however, there has been a steady improvement in the industrial market throughout Scotland, and so marked has been this improvement in the employment of women, that it has been found possible, temporarily, at least, to close a number of the workrooms, the women having returned to their former employment or found openings along new lines.

The lambing season of 1915 among hill flocks in Scotland will be noted for the dry weather which prevailed at the critical period. Had it been wet as well as cold during lambing, the results would have ended in a very heavy loss. On the deeper land the ewes were in extra good condition in the autumn, but on the harder hill they were not so well thriven, and where the drought told severely. In the summer, were even lean. At the present moment looping ill is very prevalent, and is affecting sheep on certain lands, which have been free from the evil for years. Hand feeding was given in some cases during winter, but not to a great extent. Help in spring in the shape of a shift to grass fields lower down for draughts of lean sheep was considerably resorted to, and when sixty birds were in readiness for the fray, viz, to keep the mother alive and even enable her to nurture her lamb without assistance.

The weather during the first few weeks of lambing was not good, but a few warm days during the second week put a different face on matters, and on the whole the weather has been moderately good. The young stock seem to be doing quite well, but are "sucking down" the leaver ewes.
The crop of lambs will be below the average. It is stated that 18 lambs to the store will be regarded as a satisfactory crop. This is somewhat less than the large crop of 1914, but will not compare unfavorably with the average of the last ten years.

A famous Fenian recently passed away in Dublin, in the person of Jas.
Mullet, who in 1883 was convicted, and sentenced to ten years' penal servitude for conspiracy to murder in connection with the Invincible movement out of which the Phoenix Park murders arose. Mullet was in prison when the murders occurred.

An eleven-year-old Belfast girl who, with pennies that she had saved, bought ribbon and made flags selling, them and forwarded the proceeds to Lord Kitchener, has received from his Lordship a photograph of himself, and a letter thanking her very much for her kindness in sending him 23s. 6d., which, as she desires will be spent in cigarettes for the soldiers in the front. The photograph is now her most prized possession.

"Spying" fortunes is evidently still a lucrative profession in some parts of Ireland. At the court at Baly-money an old woman was tried, recently for telling the fortunes of a farmer and his wife and obtaining 83s. for doing it. It appeared that the farmer and his wife were in such great fear of the prophets that they "crossed her palm" to the extent of all the money they had in the house.
Afterwards they recovered their courage sufficiently to inform the police, with the result that the old woman was apprehended and sentenced to three months in prison.

The Reservoir at Roundwood, on which the City of Dublin is dependent for its water supply, was last week, 14 inches below the level of the same time last year. In the Southern police court during the hearing of summons against a number of people for waste of water, it was stated that there was every prospect of a drought similar to that of last year.
A great deal of the inconvenience householders were put to last year could be prevented by avoiding waste of water in the early part of the summer. The corporation is taking immediate proceedings against persons found wasting water.

A cockfight which had been arranged to take place at Admore, near Derry, between birds from the Counties Antrim, Derry, Tyrone and Donegal, was frustrated by the Derry police, who arrived on the scene when sixty birds were in readiness for a "battle." A gathering numbering over two hundred persons were dispersed, but later on they assembled at Legahurry, a few miles away, and there a hundred birds were prepared for the fray. The party travelled from Larne on char-a-bancs, and numerous motors brought other parties from all over the northwest to witness the fight but it had again to be abandoned owing to the unexpected arrival of the police.

A lifeboat belonging to the Lusitania having on board the bodies of three women and two boys, drifted ashore at Schull, near Castle Townsend, a few days ago. It is obvious that the occupants perished from cold and exposure, and their sufferings on the open sea, within sight of the land, they had not strength to reach, must have been pitiable in the extreme.
Schull is a coast point a good many miles from where the ship sank.
Fishermen have reported several bodies at sea. An interesting article on wreckage has been driven ashore at Castle Townsend, a mail basket containing three registered packages.
As these would be deposited in the hold of the ship, their discovery suggests how devastating was the explosion.

The MASQUERADER

By Katherine Cecil Thurston, Author of "The Circle," Etc. Copyright, 1904, by Harper & Brothers

Loder made no answer. Moving into the room, he paused by the oak table that stood between the fireplace and the door.

They made an unconscious tableau as they stood there—he with his hand, set face, she with her heightened color, her inexplicably bright eyes. They stood completely silent for a space—a space that for Loder held no suggestion of time. Then, finding the tension unbearable, Eve spoke again.

"Has anything happened?" she asked. "Is anything wrong?"

Had he been less engrossed the intensity of her concern might have struck him, but in a mind so harassed as his there was only room for one consideration—the consideration of himself. The sense of her question reached him, but its significance left him untouched.

"Is anything wrong?" she reiterated for the second time.

By an effort he raised his eyes. No man, he thought, since the beginning of the world was ever set a task so cruel as his. Painfully and slowly his lips parted.

"Everything in the world is wrong," he said in a slow, hard voice. "I've said nothing, but her color suddenly deepened."

Again Loder was unobservant, but with the dogged resolution that marked him he forced himself to his task. "You despise lies," he said at last. "Tell me what you would think of a man whose whole life is an elaborate lie." The words were slightly exaggerated, but their utterance, their painfully brusque sincerity, precluded all suggestion of effect. Resolutely holding her gaze, he repeated his question.

"Tell me! Answer me! I want to know."

Eve's attitude was difficult to read. She stood twisting the string of diamonds between her fingers.

"Tell me," he said again. She continued to look at him for a moment; then, as if some fresh impulse moved her, she turned away from him toward the fire.

"I cannot," she said. "We—I—I could not set myself to judge—any one."

Loder held himself rigidly in hand. "Eve," he said quietly, "I was at the Arcadian tonight. The play was 'Other Men's Shoes.' I suppose you've read the book 'Other Men's Shoes?'"

She was leaning on the mantelpiece, and her face was invisible to him. "Yes, I have read it," she said without looking round.

"It is the story of an extraordinary likeness between two men. Do you believe such a likeness possible? Do you think such a thing could exist?" He spoke with difficulty. His brain and tongue both felt numb.

Eve let the diamond chain slip from her fingers. "Yes," she said nervously. "Yes, I do believe it. Such things have been!"

Loder caught at the words. "You're quite right," he said quickly. "You're quite right. The thing is possible. I've proved it. I know a man so like me that you, even you, could not tell us apart."

Eve was silent, still averting her face.

In dire difficulty he labored on. "Eve," he began once more, "such a likeness is a serious thing—a terrible danger, a terrible temptation. Those who have no experience of it cannot possibly gauge its pitfalls." Again he paused, but again the silent figure by the fireplace gave him no help.

"Eve," he exclaimed suddenly, "if you only knew, if you only guessed what I'm trying to say!" The perplexity, the whole harassed suffering of his mind showed in the words. Loder, the strong, the resourceful, the self-contained, was palpably, painfully at a loss. There was almost a note of appeal in the vibration of his voice.

And Eve, standing by the fireplace, heard and understood. In that moment of comprehension all that had held her silent, all the conflicting motives that had forbidden speech, melted away before the unconscious demand for help. Quietly and yet quickly she turned, her whole face transfigured by a light that seemed to shine from within—something singularly soft and tender.

"There's no need to say anything," she said simply, "because I know."

It came quietly, as most great revelations come. Her voice was low and free from any excitement, her face beautiful in its complete unconsciousness of self. In that supreme moment all her thought, all her sympathy, was for the man—and his suffering.

To Loder there was a space of incredulity; then his brain slowly swung to realization. "You know?" he repeated blankly. "You know?"

Without answering, she walked to a cabinet that stood in the window, unlocked a drawer and drew out several sheets of flimsy white paper, crumpled in places and closely covered with writing. Without a word she carried them back and held them out.

He took the sheets in silence, scanned them, then looked up.

In a long, worthless pause their eyes met. It was as if each looked speechlessly into the other's heart, seeing the passions, the contradictions, the short-comings, that went to the making of both. In that silence they drew closer together than they could have done through a torrent of words. There was no asking of forgiveness, no elaborate confession, on either side. In the deep, eloquent pause they mutually saw and mutually understood.

 "When I came into the morning room today," Eve said at last, "and saw Lillian Astrupp reading that telegram nothing could have seemed further from me than the thought that I should follow her example. It was not until afterward—not until he came into the room—until I saw that you, as I believed, had fallen back again from what I respected to what I despised—that I knew how human I really was. As I watched them laugh and talk I felt suddenly that I was alone again—terribly alone. I—I think—I believe I was jealous in that moment!" She hesitated.

"Eve!" he exclaimed. But she broke in quickly on the word. "I felt different in that moment. I didn't care about honor or things like honor. After they had gone it seemed to me that I had missed something—something that they possessed. Oh, you don't know what a woman feels when she is jealous!" Again she paused. "It was then that the telegram and the thought of Lillian's amused smile as she had read it came to my mind. Feeling as I did—acting as I felt—I crossed to the bureau and picked it up. In one second I had seen enough to make it impossible to draw back. Oh, it may have been dishonorable, it may have been mean, but

"There's no need to say anything," she said simply.

I wonder if any woman in the world would have done otherwise! I crumpled up the papers just as they were and carried them to my own room."
 From the first to the last word of Eve's story Loder's eyes never left her face. Instantly she had finished his voice broke forth in irrefragable question. In that wonderful space of time he had learned many things. All his deductions, all his apprehensions, had been scattered and disproved. He had seen the true meaning of Lillian Astrupp's amused indifference—the indifference of a variable, flippant nature that, robbed of any real weapon for mischief, soon tires of a game that promises to be too arduous. He saw all this and understood it with a rapidity born of the moment; nevertheless, when Eve ceased to speak the question that broke from him was not connected with this great discovery—was not even suggestive of it. It was something quite immaterial to any real issue, but something that overshadowed every consideration in her mind.

"Eve," he said, "tell me your first thought—your first thought after the shock and the surprise—when you remembered me."

There was a fresh pause, but one of very short duration; then Eve met his glance fearlessly and frankly. The same pride and dignity, the same indescribable tenderness that had responded to his first appeal, shone in her face.

"My first thought was a great thankfulness," she said simply. "A thankfulness that you—that no man—could ever understand."

CHAPTER XXXII
 AS she finished speaking Eve did not lower her eyes. To her there was no suggestion of shame in her thoughts or her words, but to Loder, watching and listening, there was a perilous meaning contained in both.

"Thankfulness?" he repeated slowly. From his newly stirred sense of responsibility pity and sympathy were gradually rising. He had never seen Eve as he saw her now, and his vision was at the clearer for the long oblivion. With a poignant sense of compassion and remorse, the knowledge of her youth came to him—the youth that some women preserve in the midst of the world when circumstances have permitted them to see much, but to experience little.

"Thankfulness?" he said again incredulously. A slight smile touched her lips. "Yes," she answered softly—"thankfulness that my trust had been rightly placed."

She spoke simply and confidently, but the words struck Loder more sharply than any accusation. With a heavy sense of bitterness and renunciation he moved slowly forward.

"Eve," he said very gently, "you don't know what you say."

She had lowered her eyes as he came toward her. Now she lifted them in a swift upward glance. For the first time since he had entered the room a slight look of personal doubt and uncertainty showed in her face. "Why?" she said. "I—I don't understand."

For a moment he said nothing. He had found his first explanation overwhelming. Now suddenly it seemed to him that his present difficulty was more impossible to surmount. "I came here tonight to tell you something," he began at last, "but so far I have only said half!"

 "Half?"
 "Yes, half." He repeated the word quickly, avoiding the question in her eyes. Then, conscious of the need for explanation, he plunged into rapid speech.

"A fraud like mine," he said, "has only one safeguard, one justification—a boundless audacity. Once shake that audacity and the whole motive power crumbles. It was to make the audacity impossible—to tell you the truth and make it impossible—that I came tonight. The fact that you already knew made the telling easier, but it altered nothing."

Eve raised her head, but he went resolutely on.

"Tonight," he said, "I have seen into my own life, into my own mind, and my ideas have been very roughly shaken into new places."

"We never make so colossal a mistake as when we imagine that we know ourselves. Months ago, when your husband first proposed this scheme to me, I was, according to my own conception, a solitary being vastly ill used by fate, who, with a fine stoicism, was leading a clean life. That was what I believed, but there, at the very outset, I deceived myself. I was simply a man who shut himself up because he cherished a grudge against life and who lived honestly because he had a constitutional distaste for vice. My first feeling when I saw your husband was one of self righteous contempt, and that has been my attitude all along. I have often marveled at the flood of intolerance that has rushed over me at sight of him—the violent desire that has possessed me to look away from his weakness and banish the knowledge of it—but now I understand."

"I know now what the feeling meant. The knowledge came to me tonight. It meant that I turned away from his weakness because deep within myself something stirred in recognition of it. Humanity is really much simpler than we like to think, and human impulses have an extraordinary fundamental connection. Weakness is ecstasism, but so is strength. Chilcote has followed his vice; I have followed my ambition. It will take a higher judgment than yours or mine to say which of us has been the more selfish man." He paused and looked at her.

She was watching him intently. Some of the meaning in his face had found a pinned, alarmed reflection in her own. But the awe and wonder of the morning's discovery still colored her mind too vividly to allow of other considerations possessing their proper value. The thrill of exultation with which the misgivings born of Chilcote's vice had dropped away from her mental image of Loder was still too absorbing to be easily dominated. She loved, and as if by a miracle her love had been justified! For the moment the justification was all sufficient. Something of confidence, something of the innocence that comes not from ignorance of evil, but from a mind singularly unprejudiced, blinded her to the danger of her position.

Loder, waiting apprehensively for some aid, some expression of opinion, became gradually conscious of this lack of realization. Moved by a fresh impulse, he crossed the small space that divided them and caught her hands.
