North River, April 23d, 1885. THE FARM AND GARDEN.

HINTS FOR SPRING.

Make gates and hang them, re-hang old gates; nail loose boards on old barns and old fences; repair all tools, as ploughs, harrows, rakes, &c.; oil harness; paint tools; provide a place for overything, and let everything be in its place; lay up fallen rails, tumbling walls and tottering fences; draw out old stumps; see to water-furrows in wheat fields; cut up stove-wood for next summer's use; examine vegetables in cellars, pick over apples and use the partly rotten, and put door-yard, tool-houses, and all out-houses in "apple-pie order." and keep them so; cut grafts of the very best varieties of fruit and save them till next month, by inserting the lower ends in moist sand in a cellar; make grafting wax by heating together one part beeswax, two of tallow, and three or four of rosin; fruit trees should now be pruned, but prune carefully and sparingly; do not mutilate. The best composition to cover the wounds made in pruning, is alcohol and shellac, about as thick as paint, kept corked in a bottle, and applied with a brush—tar and brickdust makes a good and much cheaper one.

CURRANT AND GOOSEBERRY BUSHES.—Cut out all old or decayed wood and straggling shoots so as to admit plenty of light and air, and leave young and thrifty wood to produce the fruit, which will be greatly improved thereby. The farmer will take advantage of any fine sweather that may occur this month, to commence ploughing for the spring crops Especially he will see that everything is in order for the active duties of next month. The gardener may improve his time, in fine weather by commencing to clear up the grounds, pruning fruit trees and grape vines, which should be done as early as possible, otherwise they will bleed when cut.

PLANT TERES AND SURVES —When the circles

PLAST TREES AND SHAUBS.—When the air is not freezing, fruit and ornamental trees and shrubs may be planted. No man who understands himself, will be disposed to undervalue what, by too many are considered small matters. The planting of a tree for ornament or for use, the rose, lilac, or snowball for their fragrance or beautiful appearance—the bed of strawberries for the gratification of the palate—the training of the clematis, or the honeysuckle over the window, to temper the light and refresh the eye with their vivid, green, waving foliage, we consider are no small matters at all. But, on the contrary, it goes to show that we will enjoy some of the beauties, as well as the bounties, of creation.

THE SERFS OF THE CRIMEA.

"The condition of cerfs in the Crimea, as in other parts of Russia, differs, of course, according to the character and disposition of their masters. Many are ruled with an ison hand; harsh words, threats, and even blows, being of no uncommon occurrence. Others, again, seem to be perfectly happy in their own homes, and quite contented with their lot. As suon as children attain the age of eight or oine years, the master decides what trade they are to follow. Some of the smallest boys are fixed upon as lacqueys, coachmen, or postillious; and the rest are brought up to be atable-boys, cooks, carpenters, gardeners, or to any aseful employment about the property. In many large establishments, where the families of the household servants are too numerous for these occupations, some of them learn shoemaking; and many are allowed to hire themselves out to others, upon paying a certain sum annually to their master. With the exception of some of the superior household servants, whose ideas are a little more refined, the style of living of the Russian peasant is little removed from that of the brute beasts. Men, women, and children occupy one room, and eat out of one dish; they never take off their clothes, from one week's end to the other, except when they go to the bath; and they sleep on the top of their stoves, on the floor, or in the open air, according to the season, or as chance may require."

may require."

The Crimea: Its Towns, Inhabitants, &c. By a Lady,—According to the representations of the lady writer of this book, night and day scarcely stand in more distinct antagonism to each other, than do the northern and southern parts of the Crimea;—the northern consisting of a series of plains and steppes; while, as if to balance this continuity of flatness and desolation, Nature seems to have lavished all her grandeur and beauty on the southern part. The lower part of the Crimea towards the south is popularly known as Russian Italy.—The general features of this range are bold crags and ravines, covered with never-ending forests of pine and oak, and which form, a striking contrast to the splendid walnut, chestnut, mulbery, and cypress trees, which vie with one another in beauty, lower down towards the sea. As this chain of mountains forms a screen against the biting winds from the north, the climate is much milder here than on the other side; and although an occasional winter's frost destroys many of the plants which have remained unharmed for years, yet the rhododendron, the magnolia, and many delicate plants, may be seen of large size in the open air. It is in these nooks and corners by the sea-side, and under the stupendous erage, that the traveller finds the luxurious villas of the Russian nobles. The soil here is particularly suited to the cultivation of the vine, and from its warm, sunny exposures, the wine is equal in strength and quality to that of the South of France. The fig-tree, the pomegranate with its showy scarlet blossoms, and the lively little caper bosh; are everywhere to be seen. Olive groves also are here and there to be met with; but they are not widely cultivated, as the ground is more profitably laid out in vineyardys."

wonderful tales told of Alim; how he faced alone the ten or twelve occupants of a dilligence; how he made them all tumble out, one after the other, and give up their all; and how, instead of taking all himself, he nock from those who had plenty, and gave to 'those who had none, reserving to himself a per-centage, as it were, on the transaction. He was not known to have wounded or killed any one; but every one felt afraid to leave the shelter of his own roof, while he was abroad. He always rode on horseback; and on one occasion, his horse was killed by a shot from a traveller, he was going to rob, and he himself wounded. After this, his health began to give way, and he could no longer pursue his avocation; so he wandered about from sheepfold to sheepfold, till at last a shepherd, with whom he had taken refuge, betrayed him to the authorities. He was taken into custedy, punished with the knout, and sent to Siberia."

THE QUEEN'S MOTHER.—The Duchess of Kent' Queen Victoria's mother, being left a widow when her daughter was eight months old, devoted herself to the great purpose of training her to be worthy of the crown. She nursed her infant at her own bosum—always attending to its bathing and dressing; and as soon as the little girl could sit alone, she was placed at a small table beside her mother at her meals; yet never indulged in any, except the prescribed simple kinds of food; thus early being taught obedience, temperance and self-controul. Her father having died in debt, her mother encouraged her to lay the money which might have been expended in the purchase of toys, as a fund to pay the demands against him, thus caltivating the virtues of justice, fortitude, fidelity, prudence, and filial devotion. Thus, through the whole period of her education, the counsels and example of her faithful mother, who was her e of her faithful mother, who was her and example of her faithful mother, who was her sole guardian, were constantly directed towards fitting her daughter to become what she is, the best sovereign, morally speaking, that ever sat on the throne of England—perhaps the best in the

GLEANINGS FROM LATE PAPERS.

COMMODORE M'CAULEY'S ORDERS-WILL

THERE BE WAR.

They who imagine that Commodore M'Cauley has been sent to Cuba upon another Greytown expedition are very much mistaken. One of our Wall Street contemporaries, with the air of an outsider speaking by authority, says:

The orders that have been given to Capt.

M'Cauley are of the most explicit and prudent character. He is not authorized to make any devands upon the Cuban exvernment, nor to.

character. He is not authorized to make any demands upon the Cuban government, nor to ask for any explanations with reference to the past; and even if he shall hear (not having himself witnessed the fact) that a vessel of the United States has been fired into, his instructions do not allow him to resent the affront, nor to take any notice of it whatsoever. It is his duty, however to use indefatigable vigilance in protecting American commerce, and, if possible, to prevent outrage from occurring under his own immediate observation. A higher bounty, than has ever been paid in our Navy, is offered to seamen, in order that Captain M'Cauley's squadron may be reinforced as rapidly as possible; but only in the case, that a vessel under his command shall witness an attack upon one of our merchantmen, is he at liberty to resent it. If so wanton and gratuattack upon one of our merchantmen, is he at liberty to resent it. If so wanton and gratuitous an insult to this country should be offered, as firing upon an unarmed vessel of the United States, in presence of one of our menof-war, Capt. McCauley is instructed to chastise, and, if possible, to sink the aggressor, no matter what disparity of force may exist against him, what armed witnesses favorable to Spain may be present, or what the risk to himself may be.

This confirms our views of these notable instructions. It is likely, that any Spanish vessel of war will fire into an American merchantman with an American war-steamer in chantman with an American war-steamer in sight? Very "prudent" instructions indeed. Under them, Mr. Pierce himself might have gone out in the San Jacinto without fear of any cause for fainting. Old Hickory would have ordered the Commodore to bring home the first Spanish cruiser that might fall in his way, so as to transfer all explanations from Cuba to Washington, and bring the whole imbrogio to a focus. But Mr. Pierce's instructions are of the "most prudent character." what a public blessing are these old grannies in time of war? What a virtue is bravery at Greytown and prudence at Havana! Don't be

OPENING OF THE TRADE WITH JAPAN .- AD OPENING OF THE TRADE WITH JAPAN.—An enterprising firm of this city have put up the brig Samuel Churchman, with dispatch for Japan. According to the treaty negotiated with that country by Commodore Perry, the ports of Samoda and Hakopadi were to be opened to American commerce at the expiration of one year from the date of the treaty, which would fix the time about the end of this month. These ports will therefore he freely parameted. would fix the time about the end of this month. These ports will, therefore, be freely opened to the Samuel Churchman by the time she can reach the islands, and we doubt not a highly profitable commerce may at once be established with the millions of inhabitants who compose the Japanese nation. They are represented to be a refined people—far in advance of the Chinese in civilization—luxurious in their tastes and mode of life, courtous in their tastes and mode of life, courtous in their tastes and mode of life, courtous in their tastes. There are many of our products and inventions which would find a very ready sale among them, and we doubt not the enterprise of Mears. Green, Heath & Allen will be richly repaid by this, the pioneer adventure to the Islands.—An Francisco Herald, March 5.

A PROVIDENTIAL ESCAPE PROM DEATH.

Baltimore, April 23, 1855.

The eleven o'clock train from this city met with a serious accident to-day. While crossing Gunpowder Crock, a part of the bridge gave way, and the engine, baggage and express cars ran into the river. The passengers cars would have followed suit, but the coupling breaking saved them. The engineer was badly injured, and the fireman slightly. Some twenty yards of the track was torn away. Much fright existed among the passengers, but none of them were injured. The trains coming this way were detained in consequence of the accident.

A person by the name of J. R. Bucknall, said to be an officer of the British army, was arrested in New York on Saturday, by the United States authorities, on a charge of enlisting persons to serve in the allied armies against Russis. He says, that he is an engineer, and was engaged in enlisting men to work upon railroads in Texas, and not to go to the Crimea.

Her complexion is fair, here eyes blue, and the very modest expression of her countenances; said to be a true index to her character. She never, as nurse, takes an infant in herarms, but always holds it in her hand. Placing the head upon the end of her fingers, its feet extend toward the wrist, and with the thumb and little finger elevated, she forms an ample and admirable cradle—the length of her hand being quite equal to, the whole length of an infant. The city is quiet. The military is still stationed in front of the court house, and considerable excitement exists yet. Very, little is required to draw out an immense crowd. Eight or ten fires have occurred in different parts of the city since Saturday. The license suits are progressing, and a multitude of belligerent rumors are affoat, but they will probably amount to nothing.

New York produced in the year 1850, 10,357,-484 pounds of maple sugar, Vermont produced 6,349,357 pounds, and Ohio 4,588,209 pounds. Few persons have any idea of the amount of this article of home-production manufactured in the Northern States; yet almost all this large quantity is manufactured by the rudest and most wasteful processes. The value of the yearly crop of maple sugar to New York is nearly $1,000,000.

Sir;
I perceive that Mr. Coles denies that he made use of the words attributed to him by the Sons of Tempersone. He does not however tell us, what they really were, but says, that "his speech in the House of Assembly will answer for itself, when it appears in the regular way," that is to say, the authorized and amended by the author. Does Mr. Coles think that the public of Prince Edward Island are so soft, as not to perceive that this regular vay is just the most unsatisfactory one that could be referred to. No! No! your version of the speech is the most upon, yours was taken of course at the same time with that of Mr. Howe, saither of you write in short hand, but there is this difference between you. Mr. Howe is not obliged to extend the short notes of the heads of the debates immediately after they are taken, and while they are fresh in the memory, and you are. You are not obliged to submit your summary, that is published in your paper, as soon as may be after it is desired, to the surveillance of Mr. Coles; Mr. Howe, if the surveillance of Mr. Coles; Mr. Howe, if the surveillance of Mr. Coles; Mr. Howe, it is dependent to correct their own Speeches. Who should know better what they said, or meant to have said, or wish the public to believe they had said better than themselves! Mr. Howe, I have no doubt, has reported correctly, but before Mr. Coles will suffer it to appear in the regular way, depend upon it he will have the regular way, depend upon it he will have the regular way, depend upon it he will have the regular way, depend upon it he will have the regular way, depend upon it he will have the regular way, depend upon it he will have the regular way, depend upon it he will have the regular way, depend upon it he will have the regular way, depend upon it he will have the regular way, and you are regular to prevent the regular way, and he will have the regular way, and you are regular to the head of the debates in the regular way, and you are regular to the head of the debates there are chronic features about it, which very often defy all the efforts of nature to create a healthy action of the digestive organs, and it not unfrequently happens that thousands suffer for years, diseased both in body and in mind, from indigestion and its kindred ills. To such, Hoofland's German Bitters, prepared by Dr. C. M. Jackson, are truly a most valuable preparation. It is a tonic medicine, giving a healthy action to the stomach, and will be found highly serviceable at all seasons, but especially during the spring. Dyspepsia can only be cured by a patient perseverance in one course of treatment; and to all those suffering ander this sad malady we would recommend an application to the depot of Hoofland's German Bitters, 120 Arch street, Philadelphia Inquirer See advertisement.

ANOTHER CASE OF FEVER ANE AGUE CURED.

A few days ago we recorded an astonishing cure of Fever and Ague by the use of Dr. M'Lane's Liver Fills. We have now another to mention, viz; that of Mr. James Sharpe, of Madisonburgh, who states, that he had labered under a very severa attack of Ague and Fever, and was soon regioned by the use of these Pills. Mr. Sharpe also expresses an opinion, founded on observation, that the Liver Fills are the best for bilious complaints ever offered in his section of country.

Although long known as a sovereign remedy for chronic cases of Hepatic derangement, or diseases of the Liver, the proprietors of Dr. M'Lane's Fills were not prepared for the frequent, but gratifying evidences of its general utility and curative capacity. In this respect, this invaluable medicine has exceeded their meet tanguine expectations, and induced them to hope, that it will be introduced into overy family in the United States. How to begin business.

One of the wealthight merchants of New York city tells us how he commenced business;—I entered a store and asked if a clerk was not wanted. "No," in a rough tone was the answer, all being too busy to bother with me—when I reflected that if they did not want a clerk they might want a labourer; but I was dressed too fine for that. I went to my lodgings, put on a rough garb, and next day went into the same store and demanded if they did not want a porter, and again "No, Sir," was the response—when I exclaimed, in despair almost, A laborer—Sir I will work at any wages. Wages is not my object, I must have employment, and want to be useful in business. These last words attracted their attention; and in the end I was hired as a labourer in the basement and subceller, at a very low pay, scarcely enough to keep body and soul together. In the basement and subcellar I soon attracted the notice of the countinghouse and chief clerk. I saved enough for my employers in little things wasted, to pay my wages ten times over, and they soon found it out. I did not let any one commit petty larcenies, without remonstrances and threats of exposure, and real exposure if HOW TO BEGIN BUSINESS. sine for that. If I was wanted at 3, A. M. I never growled, but told everybody to go home, "and I will see everything right." I loaded off, at day-break, packages for the morning boats, or carried them myself. In short I soon became indispensable to my employers, and I rose, and rose, till I became head of the house, with money enough, as you see, to give me any luxury or any position a mercantile man may desire for himself and children in this great city.
