Through Rail Service—Atlantic To Pacific

Canadian National Railways Furnish Direct Connections With Famous "Continental Limited" Out of Montreal.

The finest train service to the Pacific Coast is afforded by the Canadian National Grand Trunk "Continental Limited" now leaving at 9:00 p. m. daily from Bonaventure Station, Montreal.

The route of this finely equipped all steel train to the coast is via Ottawa, North Bay, Cochrane and via the Transcontinental to Winnipeg, and by Grand Trunk Pacific to Saskatoon and Edmonton, and via Canadian Railways to Vancouver—the finest of scenic routes through the Rockies and over the smoothest roadbed.

From Maritime Province points there is connection by Ocean Limited with the Continental Limited daily, and by the Maritime Express daily except Sunday. The Maritime arriving daily in Montreal at 7:40 affords the most direct connection, but passengers by the Ocean Limited will have the advantage of a day spent in Montreal. The Maritime arriving at Levis at 1:50 p. m. affords connection with Train No. 11 leaving Quebec daily for Cochrane at 5:00 p. m. This train makes connection at Cochrane with the Continental Limited, so it will be seen there is really a choice of two distinct routes.

There is also the through service to the Pacific Coast by train leaving Toronto daily at 10:30 p. m., via Sudbury, Port Arthur, Fort William and Winnipeg. Connection for this is made by the Ocean Limited to Montreal, and the Grand Trunk International Limited to Toronto.

Particulars of these splendid rail services to the west will be explained by all C. N. R. ticket agents, and folders and illustrated matter may be obtained by application to any of the City Ticket Offices or by writing the General Passenger Department, Moncton, N. B.

Sermons On Catholic Worship

This is the ninth of a series of sermons on Catholic Worship. The sermon was preached by the Rev. Peter F. MacDonald, pastor of the Church of St. John the Evangelist, Butte.

PREPARATION FOR MASS.

"I will go in to the Altar of God: to God who giveth joy to my youth."—Psalm xlii; 4.

Having spoken of the altar, the sacred vessels and vestments, we begin today our study of the Mass itself.

The principal parts of the Mass are those of the "Last Supper," namely: 1. The Offertory, in which the bread and wine are prepared for the sacrifice. 2. The Consecration, at which the bread and wine are changed into the body and blood of Christ and offered to God in sacrifice. 3. The Communion, at which the body and blood of Christ are received by priest and people as the fruits of the sacrifice.

What precedes the Offertory is called the preparation for the Mass. What follows the Communion is thanksgiving for the graces gained through the Mass.

The preparation, or what precedes the Offertory, was called, in the early Church, the Mass of Catechumens, because the catechumens were permitted to be present only at this portion of the Mass. The sign for them to go was "Ita missa est," which at that time was said immediately before the Offertory as well as at the end of Mass.

St. Thomas says that the proper preparation for Mass consists in two things, devotion and instruction.

DEVOTIONAL PRAISE.

1. Devotion. We stir up devotion (a) by praising God, and this is done in the Introit, which is generally taken from the Psalms, of which St. Dionysius says that they re-echo in the form of praise whatever is contained elsewhere in the Holy Scriptures. (b) By acknowledging our misery. This we do in the Kyrie, crying to God for mercy. (c) By contemplating the glory to come. This we do by the "Gloria in Excelsis." (d) Finally, by praying that, notwithstanding our unworthiness, we may be fit to celebrate or to assist at the divine mysteries. This we do in the Collects.

The preparation consists also in instruction for the Mass is the "mystery of faith." This instruction is given by the prophets and apostles, whose doctrine is contained in the epistle and by Christ Himself in the gospel. Then follows the Creed, the priest and the people professing their faith in the doctrines of the Church taught in the Epistle and Gospel.

This morning we are to explain the portion of the preparation of the Mass which consists in the prayers at the foot of the Altar.

First of all, the priest makes the sign of the Cross to signify that the Mass which he is going to say is a renewal of the sign of the Cross. "In the name of the Father and of the Son and of the Holy Ghost." He invokes the name of the Father, because it was the Father who sent His Son into the world to die for us upon the Cross. He invokes the name of the Son, who offered up for us upon the Cross the sacrifice of His life. He invokes the name of the Holy Ghost because it was through the Holy Ghost, says St. Paul, that Christ offered Himself unspotted unto God.

"JUDICA ME DEUS" PSALM.

The priest then recites the psalm "Judica me Deus"—Judge me, O God." This is the Psalm which David composed when fleeing from the wrath of Absalom. In it he consoles himself with the thought that one day he will, with God's help, again ascend the holy hill of Zion and offer the sacrifice of praise. So the priest, in the midst of the trials and sorrows of his ministry, rejoices in the thought that he will, day after day, ascend the holy altar, there to renew the spiritual youth and strength that will enable him to carry his burdens. As this is a psalm of joy, it, and the "Gloria Patri" which follows it, are naturally omitted in all Requiem Masses and in the Lenten Masses from Passion Sunday to Holy Saturday.

The central and chief part of the prayers said at the foot of the altar is the Confiteor. It is the general confession of sin. At the foot of the altar the priest is incited to humble, contrite self-accusation, and to earnest supplication for the forgiveness of his sins. Only he who is innocent of hands and clean of heart may approach the altar. In order worthily to represent the high priest, Jesus Christ, who is "holy, innocent, undefiled, separated from sinners and made higher than the heavens" (Hebrews, vii, 26) the priest should be adorned with purity and sanctity of life. Therefore, before ascending the altar he makes a public confession of guilt and implores heavenly and earthly intercession. These present beg for the priest by the mouth of the server mercy and forgiveness by repeating the "Misereatur." The server, then, in the name of the faithful, repeats the Confiteor, that the people also by the intercession of the saints and of the priest may obtain pardon and have a fruitful part in the holy sacrifice.

Before the priest ascends the steps of the altar he expresses the desire that all his petitions, supplications and cries for help may be heard and answered by God. He then says, "The Lord be with you." The server answers, "And with thy spirit." When the priest says, "The Lord be with you," he desires and prays that God would especially bless and favor those who are present at the holy sacrifice. He addresses this salutation to the people eight times during the Mass—five times before the Communion and three times after the Communion. By such frequent repetition he would impress the faithful with the chief purpose of the Mass, which is not only to make our Lord present on the altar, but to bring Him into the very hearts of His people, both by His grace and his sacramental indwelling. It is also a prayer that the eucharistic Lord may abide with those who have received Him, and that He may dominate their lives. The people reciprocate the wish and prayer of the priest when they answer through the server, "And with thy spirit."

Realizing more and more how pure and spotless his soul should be as he draws nearer and nearer to the true Holy of Holies, the priest again calls the people to pray by saying aloud, "Take away from us our iniquities, we beseech Thee, O Lord, that we may be worthy to enter with pure minds into the Holy of Holies."

Holies, through Christ, our Lord. Amen. He has now arrived at the altar, wherein are sealed relics of martyrs. Bowing moderately and placing his hands on the holy altar he says: "We beseech Thee, O Lord, by the merits of the saints, whose relics are here, grant all the saints, that Thou wilt vouchsafe to forgive me all my sins. Amen."

The remainder of the preparation for Mass will be explained in sermons that follow.

St. Vitus Dance

For some reason a chapel was dedicated to that holy man of the fourth century who was martyred under the Emperor Diocletian—St. Vitus—whose festival is celebrated on June 15. We are told that to this chapel came annually many women who labored under a nervous or hysterical affliction impelling them to violent motion. This ailment came to be known as St. Vitus Dance, and perhaps the term was gradually extended to other afflictions involving involuntary muscular motion. Scientifically this disease is known as chorea. Another explanation is that in certain places in Germany during the seventeenth century it was believed good health could be obtained, for a year by dancing before the saint's image on his festival day, and that it was in this way the original St. Vitus Dance was founded with the disease. The aid of this saint is also invoked against sudden death, hydrophobia, and so on.—Chicago Journal.

Mrs. Justine Ward, of the Pontifical Institute of Sacred Music, New York, and Miss Ellen Robbins, have presented to the Holy Father a great organ for the Pontifical School of Music in Rome. It was installed July 25, the Feast of St. James, the Holy Father's name-day. Cardinal Biletti presided at the ceremonies.

Some Press Opinions

It is no exaggeration to state that the impression made by Mr. Meighen on his conferees at the Premiers' Conference and upon the public men and the press of England has been of an unusual nature, and one of which Canadians, irrespective of politics, have reason to be proud.

Appended are a few of the press opinions expressed by writers of the Old Country: (The London Times)

"His stay in this country has not been a long one, and his time has necessarily been fully occupied with affairs of State. But he will take back with him to the Dominion the deep respect of all with whom he has come in contact, both now and during his previous visit in 1917. Even before he came among us he was assured of a warm welcome here, on account of the part which he played in Canadian politics during the war, and for his known devotion to the ideals and well-being of the Empire."

"The speech that he made at the unveiling of the Great War Cross in the Thelma Cemetery was a fine tribute to the fallen, expressed with the simple eloquence and delicate choice of words of which Mr. Meighen is a consummate master. It showed, too, a deep realization of the spiritual and idealistic aims with which Canada and the other members of the great family of British nations took their stand by the side of France and Belgium."

"When he leaves these shores the country will say an adieu to him as a faithful and upright son of the Empire, who stood by our side in the time of trouble, and leaves us, as he came amongst us, with good will in his heart."

(The People, London.) "Described by Sir Wilfrid Laurier as 'the ablest mind that the Canadian Conservative party has produced,' Mr. Meighen, who represents Canada at the Conference of Prime Ministers, has achieved the summit of political eminence in this country by the sheer force of his intellect."

"A Canadian publicist said not long ago that Meighen was a mathematician in politics. To those who have watched the new Premier the remark explains a good deal of his political character. For to Meighen politics is something to be taken seriously; to be worked out almost upon a mathematical basis, with sentiment and emotion and everything else that is even remotely hostile to cold reason ruthlessly ruled out."

"Mr. Meighen possesses an amazing capacity for sizing up a situation quickly and diagnosing it accurately. The attitude he will adopt on the many problems to come before the gathering remains to be seen, but one thing at least is already clear: He will stand for the traditional policy of Canadian statesmen since Confederation, namely that Canada must continue an integral part of the British Empire, but with the largest possible measure of freedom which such a position can permit."

(Eastern Daily Press, Norwich.) "Discussing the improvement of the communications between all portions of the British Empire, says:

"Mr. Meighen spoke anxiously of the indisposition of the British Press to publish Canadian news, and declared that he did not know how to get over that. Our own view is that trade expansion will remove that particular cause of complaint. The establishment of a community of solid interest will create the demand for news."

(Manchester Guardian.)

"The beauty of British institutions is that they are so flexible, and flexibility implies the possibility of surprise. With a growing thing we never quite know where we shall catch it, and the tendency will always be to catch it a little too late. This is an experience which has by no means been altogether absent from the source of the discussions with the Dominion Premiers."

"They have at times developed an assertive quality very natural and wholesome in itself, but a little disconcerting to those who had looked for more plastic material."

"Canada would not have the treaty (Anglo-Japanese) at any price. She feels that, in this matter of the treaty and all that it implies, her interest and America's interests are the same, that for good or ill they are in the same boat and can't get out of it. Therefore, Mr. Meighen, with wise fore thought, and frankness appears to have taken an extreme step. He let it be understood that if the treaty were renewed Canada might have to proclaim herself outside of it. That would create a singular and anomalous position and one that might make a considerable inroad on the constitutional unity of the Empire. It was a grave prospect with which the wisdom and legal acumen of the Foreign Office and its chief were by no means prepared to cope."

(Canadian Gazette, London.)

"In the Anglo-American Japanese approach, to conference Mr. Meighen has played his part, and we have great hopes of practical results from Mr. Hughes' persuasive punch in the matter of inter-Empire communications."

"Mr. Meighen has, of course, exactly interpreted Canadian wishes, heartily welcoming the forthcoming conference on armaments, and especially armaments as affecting the Pacific."

(Daily Despatch, Manchester.)

"Meighen is fluent to a degree, and his speeches possess a certain eloquence, but cold reason and extreme earnestness are invariably the chief marks of his public pronouncements. Not long ago one of his intimates described him as a mathematician in politics."

"His ability to subject the argument of an opponent to a logical dissection, restrained in its expression but pitiless in its thoroughness, has been one of the main factors which has brought him to his present place in the politics of his own country."

"We need not expect either sentiments of flamboyant Imperialism or that of aloof nationalism in Mr. Meighen's utterances during his stay. Indeed, he intends to say as little as possible in public. His whole bearing during this visit will be one of inquiry."

(The Daily Telegraph, London.)

"When the Canadian Prime Minister received yesterday the Freedom of the City of London, he interpreted that gift as a compliment to the Dominion from which he comes. He may be well assured that it was to the man who is the first citizen of Canada as well as to his office that the citizens of London were glad to do honor."

that whatever may be the future vicissitudes of politics and parties in the Dominion there is no dispute as to the confidence which his fellow-citizens have placed in the man who is now their Prime Minister."

"He has the good fortune to represent a country which at this anxious time enjoys a larger measure of content and prosperity than any other State in the world save one or two."

"Mr. Meighen assured us that the Canadians, as they prize the advantages of unity in the British Dominions in North America, have learnt to prize the unity of the Empire, and they are convinced that upon its maintenance depends the hope of evolving that greater league on the success of which the future of the world depends."

"Such is the message of the Prime Minister of Canada; and if we may echo his words, not only the Dominions overseas but every British citizen must hope and pray that his anticipations will be fulfilled."

A Policy Of National Suicide

These short-sighted farmers who are enamored at the prospect of the few dollars they will be able to save on what they may purchase under Free Trade had better seriously consider what they are bound to lose on their sales should that suicidal policy ever go into effect. It is estimated that 85 per cent of all what the Eastern farmers raise is sold for cash at good prices in our towns and cities, the most of the surplus going to the United States. The United States market is now "banged, barred and bolted" in our faces. Not a single thing that the Canadian farmer raises is exempt from a heavy, indeed, a prohibitive Customs tax under the new Tariff.

Where are our farmers to dispose of their surplus? Abroad? That remains to be seen. Europe, on account of the ruinous rate of exchange, will buy as little as possible and as cheaply as possible. Europe, indeed, aims to be self-sufficient, and people abroad are working the land as never before. According to the International Bureau of Agriculture at Rome there are sufficient stocks of grain on hand at present in Europe to carry the European peoples till the next harvest (which promises to be good) is reaped, and leave 6 1/2 millions quarters of a surplus. Surely, under these circumstances, common-sense and self-interest should cause our wild Free Traders to pause in their mad career. Free Trade or a near approach to Free Trade, would destroy our towns and cities, and, of course, at one blow, destroy the farmer's principal market. The cities would go down; but the farms would go down with them and we should all be involved in a common ruin. Free Trade in food stuffs (the principal plank of the Laurier Liberal party) would result in the United States dumping their surplus stocks of farm produce on Canada to the great detriment of Canadian agriculture. Our markets would be open to them; theirs would be closed to us. It is time for the farmers to wake up and grasp the fact that their very solvency depends upon prosperous local markets that will take all they can raise and pay cash for it. The policy of Orerar, Wood, Drury is a policy of national suicide.

According to word reaching Saulte Ste Marie, Mich., on the 7th, a new spectacular gold find has been made seven miles from Goudreau by Charles Kesley, a veteran prospector and discoverer of the famous Kesley Mine at Cobalt. The new find is about three miles west of the Murphy Mine which has been attracting considerable attention lately.

Canada's New Governor-General

Quebec, August 11.—With the air vibrating from the firing of guns from Quebec's ancient citadel, the sounds of whistles from river craft, the ringing of bells and the applause of a large crowd, Lord Bingham of Viny, Canada's new Governor-General, landed this morning at King's Wharf, proceeded through the beflagged streets to the Provincial Legislative Buildings and was sworn in office with a pomp and impressiveness which probably have never before been equalled in the history of the Dominion. The Dominion Cabinet Ministers present, in addition to the Prime Minister, were: Right Hon. C. J. D. Herby, Minister of Justice; Hon. P. B. Blondin, Postmaster General; Hon. C. C. Ballantyne, Minister of Marine and Fisheries; Hon. Sir Henry Drayton, Minister of Finance, and Acting Secretary of State; Hon. B. F. McCurdy, Minister of Public Works, and Hon. E. K. Spinney, Minister without Portfolio. A band played the National Anthem as His Excellency came ashore.

The Governor-General, who wore a general's uniform, stood smartly at the salute while it was being played and afterwards inspected the smart guard of honor on the wharf. Behind an escort of cavalry the Governor-General and Lady Byng and their staff proceeded in carriages by a round about route to the Parliament Buildings. In the meantime those present on duty by virtue of their offices and those by invitation had gathered in the Legislative Council Chamber, where the ceremony of swearing-in was to take place. The scene was one of considerable brilliancy. Against a background of vivid red, the scarlet robes of Cardinal Begin, and the variegated tints of the ladies' dresses.

The administrator of the Government of Canada and others to officiate in the installation having taken their allotted places, there was a short pause broken by the announcement that the Governor-General had arrived. His Excellency and Lady Byng entered the chamber, preceded by representatives of the militia, air force and navy, the Lieutenant-Governor of the province, and aides-de-camp to the Governor-General. After the Governor-General had taken his stand on the dais, Mrs. Meighen presented Lady Byng with a bouquet of white roses. Lord Bingham's commission as Governor-General was then read by his military secretary, Captain O. P. C. Balfour, His Excellency immediately afterwards taking the oath of allegiance to the King and swearing to "well and truly" exercise his office as Governor-General and subscribing his name in the oath book. He was next handed the Great Seal of Canada by Sir Henry Drayton, Minister of Finance, which, according to custom, he handed back to Mr. Drayton "for safe keeping."

The festivities following the swearing-in included a luncheon, by the Federal Government, and a dinner by the Lieutenant Governor of Quebec. About eleven o'clock p. m. Their Excellencies boarded their special train for Ottawa.

The train bearing the Governor-General and Suite reached Ottawa about 1.15 p. m. Friday. Briefly described this is what took place: Enthusiastically wholehearted, spectacular and brilliant was the civic welcome extended to Canada's newly installed Governor-General, General the Lord Bingham of Viny, and Lady Byng. Greeted by the spontaneous cheers and plaudits of many thousands of citizens of Ottawa and Hull, and the booming of guns with the traditional 19 shots of the salute from Nepean Point, Their Excellencies took Ottawa by storm. The memorable scenes enacted, not only at the moment of arrival of the Governor-General and his lady, but also during and after the civic reception on Parliament Hill, transcended those usually associated with similar events. It was in reality a triumphal entry. The cheers that echoed in the ears of the Governor-General were not merely the cheers of loyal subjects paying homage to the representative of His Majesty King George the Fifth. They were also the cheers and the tribute of hundreds of old comrades-in-arms who remembered the mastery leadership of the former Corps Commander during one of the most critical stages of the late war.

The Enigmatical Brought To Book

Mr. Mackenzie King has been declaring himself again enigmatically on the tariff. According to the Toronto Globe, he said at Tillsonburg: "The Liberal Party is not, and never had been since there had been a tariff in Canada, for free trade. The issue was between a protective tariff and a tariff for revenue, but not between a protective tariff and no tariff at all, which was the meaning of free trade."

It is about time to expose this fine worn tariff for revenue without protection fallacy. To apply the term "tariff for revenue" to a tariff imposed only on imported goods is absolutely incorrect. Any tariff on imported goods of a class or kind manufactured in Canada is a protective tariff to the Canadian manufacturers to the extent of the rates that may be imposed. Nothing could be clearer or plainer than this, nor could anything be clearer or more evident than that the only true tariff for revenue, without protection, is a tariff or tax which applies equally to imported goods and to goods manufactured or produced in Canada. Mr. King says revenue is what he wants—no protection, upon which he pretends to frown—and so, to be consistent, his tariff for revenue must bear equally upon home-made goods as upon imported goods.

The fact of the matter is, Mr. Mackenzie King and his party are in a serious dilemma. They are trying to be friends with two sharply opposing interests—the manufacturers, and the organized farmers—and to do so they have to resort to camouflage, if not deception. They say to the farmer: "We are with you. We are against protection. We believe in a tariff only for revenue," and to the manufacturer (privately mostly) they say: "We are with you also because a tariff for revenue must, in view of the great necessities of the revenue, be sufficiently high to afford you all the protection you want."

The issues cannot be said to be clarified by Mr. King's recent utterances but the hypocrisies have been made more manifest. The Government stands foursquare for a reasonable, moderate tariff, not higher nor lower than is necessary to provide the maximum amount of profitable labour to the people in all spheres of activity; it stands practically for the tariff which has been in operation in Canada for forty years, under both Conservative and Liberal Governments, and which has done so much to develop the country.

Mr. King straddles and twists. He doesn't want to offend either the manufacturer or the farmer and he is holding up the same bait to both in the vain hope that both will be fooled. We say again that his tariff for revenue talk is the most unbecoming. He dare not come out openly and say that what he favours is a true tariff for revenue which would apply to the same extent exactly on home-made goods as on imported goods. He knows the vast majority of Liberals in Eastern Canada are moderate and reasonable protectionists, just as the supporters of the Government are, and he is trying to placate them by promising them protection under the cover and guise of a so-called tariff for revenue on all imported goods. In other words, he would give protection stealthily but not openly.

Look at the subject from another angle. No one can dispute that any tariff imposed on imported goods alone will afford protection more or less

(according to the rates imposed) to Canadian manufacturers. Why not then take advantage of the position to make that protection sufficient by applying it scientifically instead of haphazard. The necessities of the revenue are so great as to justify a tariff which scientifically applied would be sufficient to foster and promote the development of every legitimate Canadian industry.

The glamour of Sir Wilfrid Laurier's name and personality enabled him to persuade many of his followers that there was a substantial difference between his so-called tariff for revenue and a protective tariff, but in reality there was no practical difference. The Liberal tariff in operation for 15 years was a protective tariff, was designed and framed as a protective tariff and became more and more protective as the time went on. But it was not an extreme tariff. It was not a tariff suitable to the "high as Haman's gallows" advocates. It was a moderate tariff designed to be fair alike to producers and consumers. It is the tariff which is in force today and the principle of which has been accepted by all believers in protection supporting the Government. It is the tariff which in their hearts is supported by nine-tenths of the Liberals of Eastern Canada.

The Liberal-Conservative Convention for organization, which assembled in the Market Hall, Charlottetown, yesterday was a splendid success. About four hundred delegates and others of the Liberal-Conservative Party were in attendance, and the greatest enthusiasm prevailed. A new Constitution for the party in this Province was adopted, and the foundation of a Province-wide plan of organization was laid down and approved. Enthusiasm and determination permeated the meeting from beginning to end and several admirable addresses were delivered. Want of time and space prevents us in this issue from presenting a longer account of this excellent Convention.

Destroyed By Fire

Fanned by a wind blowing inshore off Lake Deschenes with a gale-like velocity fire which broke out at the stables on the Holt property on the south side of Main street, Aylmer, P. Q., at 2:15 o'clock Wednesday afternoon of last week, swept across the town in a diagonal, north-easterly direction with amazing rapidity, burned to death D. George Lortie, 72, a prominent citizen, destroyed 100 stores and residences, left about 700 people homeless, and caused property loss totalling between $800,000 and $700,000. Within an hour, the best section of the quaint and picturesque old lumbering town was but a waste of smouldering ruins. From the very outset the fire, which had its origin near Peter Clement's pool room at the southeast corner of Main and Brancroft streets, assumed the proportions of a conflagration, the flames leaping across Main Street, darting, as it were, from building to building, and devouring everything in their path which covered a width of four blocks. About an hour after it started, the fire had spent itself on the extreme northerly outskirts of the town, but not before most of the finest commercial and residential buildings, including prosperous business establishments, stately and manorial stone residences, survivals of Aylmer's best days, comfortable and bright-looking homes, and the humble and unpretentious frame dwellings of scores of workers, had fallen an easy any ready prey before the untrammelled onrush of the flames. Aylmer in the Province of Quebec, is about 9 miles from Ottawa, on the opposite side of the Ottawa River, and before the fire had a population of about 7,000 people. It was quaint picturesque town and a place of popular resort in the summer.

Now the Prices you've been waiting for are here The old year took away, for ever, we hope, the old burden of war prices. For months conditions have been working toward the great climax that brought the remarkable merchandise that is here assembled for this our great January Carnival of Economy. The results came in two ways: 1st. The drastic lowering of prices on our own stocks, down to the new low basis, and often far below it—to double your interest in January buying in our store. 2nd. We have combed the markets—taking utmost advantage of the opportunities created by far sighted manufacturers who were ready to co-operate with us in presenting to you now the lowest prices that will be possible, for the next six months, at least. We can just see the delight of our Customers when they see the splendid assortment of goods, in every department of our store, and then realize that prices are way down to the bottom, where it is a pleasure to buy things. Many Manufacturers have ACCEPTED LARGE LOSSES. We shall forgo a large part of our profits on the new goods and accept large losses on our own mark-downs—to inaugurate this first New Year under the New Management and THE MOST STIRRING PRICE-UPSET THAT THIS COMMUNITY HAS EVER KNOWN. No matter what you need or desire, now is the best time for months to come to buy it. Some of the reasons are told on this page; but scores of others are here that can get no mention today, even in this broad space.

"Pierced For Thee!"

Two hands have haunted me today— Two hands of slender shape— All crushed and torn, as in the press Is bruised the purple grape. At work, at meals, at prayer or play Those mangled palms I see, And a plaintive voice keeps whispering, "Those hands were pierced for thee!"

Dick The Young Seaman

The wind had just come up and as the Bouncing Betsy had made little progress today, Captain Brace ordered "sails up." The Bouncing Betsy was a schooner bound for Rio de Janeiro from New York. Captain Brace commands 21 men mostly Spaniards, and treats his crew very cruelly. On the Bouncing Betsy is a young lad about 15. As he is to be our hero, we shall do well to describe him. Richard Conrad, better known as Dick, is a bright, frank, manly fellow, who had lived in New York with his aunt. He used to work in a store as an errand boy and one morning was called to take a parcel down to Bouncing Betsy. The ship was to sail in the afternoon, and the captain, being in need of a cabin boy, invited Dick to see the ship, with the intention of kidnapping him. Dick thought this was an excellent opportunity to see through a ship and to be told the different parts, and gladly accepted this offer. The captain took Dick down to the hold of the ship and told him to try on a suit (which had been worn by a preceding cabin boy about Dick's size), to feel what it would be like to be a sailor. But to Dick's dismay, after he had put on the uniform the captain ordered two men to carry Dick into a small room, which they did, and after binding him carefully, left him there and proceeded on deck to perform their duties. Fearful thoughts passed through Dick's head; he would perhaps never see his aunt or even New York again. He had lain in the room for about an hour when he heard the dashing of waves against the sides of the ship, and all hopes left him. About two hours later, when they were well out to sea, Dick heard the sound of footsteps coming down the stairs. As he glanced up, expecting to see the captain, he instead saw a man with a bright face and red hair, and looking like a native of the "Emerald Isle."

Pains in the Back

Are symptoms of a weak, torpid or stagnant condition of the kidneys or liver, and are a warning it is extremely hazardous to neglect, so important is the healthy action of these organs. They are commonly attended by loss of energy, lack of courage, and sometimes by gloomy foreboding and depression. "I was taken ill with kidney trouble, and became so weak I could scarcely get around, took medicine without benefit, and finally decided to try Hood's Sarsaparilla. After the first bottle I felt so much better that I continued its use, and six bottles made me a new woman. When my little girl was a baby, she could not keep anything on her stomach, and we gave her Hood's Sarsaparilla which cured her." Mrs. Thomas Latta, Wallaceburg, Ont.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Purges kidney and liver troubles, relieves the back, and builds up the whole system.

About fifteen minutes later, the captain came down and released Dick. He led him on deck and said: "Now, get to work and don't let me hear a whimper out of you." Dick went to work rather reluctantly, as he did not wish to be put in irons and cause trouble. We will now see how Dick's aunt was getting along. When Dick did not appear at noon, she became uneasy and went to his employer to see if she could find out where he was. But his employer was also wondering what had happened to him, for when Dick was sent on an errand he did not dally on the way. His employer and Mrs. Conrad then hurried to the wharf, only to find that the Bouncing Betsy had left about one hour before they came. Mrs. Conrad was heart-broken at the loss of her nephew. She always used to take work in from a tailor, but when she went around to get some more she was told there would be no more for perhaps three months. Looking into one of the daily papers she saw where a governess was wanted for a young girl. Mrs. Conrad at once applied for the position, which she secured. Her employer was Mrs. Manning, a resident of Fifth Avenue. Mrs. Conrad was to look after the little girl named Mildred. She was about twelve years of age. Mildred liked her new governess and Mrs. Conrad liked her little pupil and her new home very much. She told Mr. Manning how Dick had been carried away, and he promised if Dick ever returned to give him a position in his office. We will now return to Dick. He now started to examine the men, and found them to be all agreeable men except one Spaniard named Antonio. He seemed to have a spite on Bill, and seeing the interest taken in Dick by Bill, plotted to ruin Dick in the eyes of the captain and crew. All went well for some time. Generally, Bill Sturdy and Dick were put on the same watch at night. During this time Bill used to tell his young friend about other voyages on which he had sailed. One morning the captain rushed on deck and cried: "Pipe all hands on deck." The sailors were startled when they heard that someone stole $100 and a gold watch, the property of the captain. This morning Antonio had been put to work near the cabin and looking in, saw a roll of bills and the gold watch lying on the table, with the captain asleep on the bed. With the stealth of a cat he went into the cabin, took the articles and went down to Dick's chest. It happened to be unlocked, and the villain put the watch and money at the bottom of it. But though Antonio thought nobody had seen him one pair of eyes had. A sailor was lying on his bunk and had wondered at the way Antonio had acted, but decided to say nothing till the time came. Antonio went on deck. "Come forth, the man who is the thief," cried the captain. "Of course nobody stepped forward." "Have all the chests searched, Antonio, you search them." Antonio was only too eager to do so, and readily pounced upon Dick's. Pulling them out, he cried:

'Here they are, captain, in Conrad's chest.' 'Conrad, step forward,' said the captain. 'You villain, what have you to say for yourself?' Here Dick stepped forward, his heart sinking. 'I don't know how they were found in my chest, sir. I didn't put them there,' said he. 'Of course, nobody is willing to admit himself to be a thief,' said the captain. 'I am no more a thief than you are,' replied Dick. A moment after he was sorry he had said this, for fear the captain would be offended. 'You have a sharp tongue, youngster,' said the captain. 'However has anybody anything to say?' Here the sailor before mentioned stepped forward and said: 'The boy is correct. I saw Antonio put it in his chest myself.' The captain bit his lips and said, 'I shall look into this later.' He was sorry that he did not have the chance to flog Dick then, but was only afraid of the crew, lest they should mutiny. 'It was well for you, lad, that the man saw Antonio, said Bill Sturdy to Dick the following night. 'I was indeed lucky, Bill,' answered Dick. 'But they did not know that the captain was thinking of another way in which to injure Dick. When the captain came on deck the next morning he called the crew to order. 'Richard Conrad, come forward.' Dick instantly obeyed. 'Young man, you were impudent to me yesterday, and I sentence you to twelve lashes on the bare back,' he continued. Dick turned sick as he heard this sentence to be flogged before all the men. But Bill Sturdy advanced. 'To be Continued.

DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE

Now the Prices you've been waiting for are here

The old year took away for ever, we hope, the old burden of war prices. For months conditions have been working toward the great climax that brought the remarkable merchandise that is here assembled for this our greatest January Carnival of Economy. The results came in two ways: 1st. The drastic lowering of prices on our own stocks, down to the new low basis, and often far below it—to double your interest in January buying in our store. 2nd. We have combed the markets—taking utmost advantage of the opportunities created by far sighted manufacturers who were ready to co-operate with us in presenting to you now the lowest prices that will be possible, for the next six months, at least. We can just see the delight of our Customers when they see the splendid assortment of goods, in every department of our store, and then realize that prices are away down to the bottom, where it is a pleasure to buy things. Many Manufacturers have ACCEPTED LARGE LOSSES. We shall forgo a large part of our profits on the new goods and accept large losses on our own mark-downs—to inaugurate this first New Year under the New Management and THE MOST STIRRING PRICE-UPSET THAT THIS COMMUNITY HAS EVER KNOWN. No matter what you need or desire, now is the best time for months to come to buy it. Some of the reasons are told on this page; but scores of others are here that can get no mention today, even in this broad space.
