OR, THE
Countess of Basingwille

CHAPTER IX.

Lionel, Earl of Basingwille, left Basingwille Castle early in the morning, saying something about business.

"I'll be back to the funeral, of course," he said to William. "In fact I shall return to-night. Let the carriage be at the station for the eight o'clock."

"Yes, your lordship," said William, following the retreating figure of the new lord with great admiration. "No wonder they call you handsome! The finest picture of a lord I ever set eyes on! But, ah! if the stories they tell be true, you will be making ducks and drakes of the property in a little while."

And while he was admiring and prophesying, the new earl was saying to himself:

"I must keep my word to the little thing. She must think me as unstable as water. But I will be a fairy prince to her—that is, so far as opening the door of plenty to her, and letting her realize her innocent dream of studying art."

He might have gone to see Phyllis right from the train, but he said he would treat her as respectfully as he would any other lady; and so he went home first, and dressed himself as if going to call upon the Duchess of Sadozet, and she was the most particular of ladies.

"The famous Sir Lionel must go in character," he said to himself, with the pleased smile that always broke over his face at the thought of his friends in the attic.

There was something of a sensation when he drove up in his own carriage to the door of the house where Miss Phyllis lived. A great many windows were filled with frowny heads and curious eyes; but such things never had disturbed the magnificent squire of Lionel, and he rapped at the door as coolly as if not an eye saw him, or a voice inquired audibly who the swell was.

"Who do you wish to see?" asked the astounded landlady, who had opened the door in person, to the everlasting indignation of the little serving-maid, who had opened it scores upon scores of times when she didn't wish to, but who had been arrested on this occasion in a headlong flight down the baluster in her haste to come face to face with the apparition from the West End.

Whom did he wish to see? What on earth was her other name? If he had heard it he had forgotten it. To him she had been Miss Phyllis, or, in honesty, little Phyllis, and that was all.

"Oh-er," he said, with a drawl that was all affected to gain time, "you have a crippled girl up stairs—Miss Carrie, yes, Miss Carrie. I wish to see her. I have some flowers."

"I'll take them to her," said the landlady, severely.

"Oh, Sir Lionel! is that you?" cried a voice from up stairs—a voice that fell very pleasantly on his ears.

"Is that you, Miss Phyllis? Yes, it is I. With your permission, madam," he said, politely pushing past her. "I am so glad to have met you. I am sure my young friends up stairs are safe in such care as yours. I hope I may see you on my way down."

His politeness was far too overwhelming for the good woman, who had been inclined to play the dragon.

"Honored, I'm sure," she said, with a courtesy, which was just so much lower because she had just caught sight of the coat-of-arms on the panel of the carriage door.

If his intentions were evil at least he was noble, and had such manners! Lionel hurried up the stairs, and was greeted by Miss Phyllis.

"Oh, I'm so glad to see you," she said. "Why, there have been such strange reports!"

"That confounded supper!" thought Lionel.

"It was even said that you intended—"

"Now, what nonsense that would have been, my dear Miss Phyllis. How is Miss Carrie?"

"I think she is better. I am so glad it isn't true about you. You seemed so nice!"

"And I am just as nice as I seem," he laughed.

"I am beginning to doubt that," she answered.

"Why?"

"You said you were coming to see Carrie yesterday, and you didn't come."

"A death in the family," he said, apologetically.

"Oh," she said, sympathetically, and then, as they had reached the top of the house, where she could see him, she looked at his clothes.

Then, for the first time, he remembered he had forgotten to put mourning on.

"Oh, confound it! I beg your pardon, but the truth is, I never thought of the mourning. Oh, don't look shocked; he was ever so distantly related. I'd never think of putting on crape if I wasn't to gain by his death. That's worse yet, isn't it? But those big eyes of yours do confuse a fellow so!"

He looked so perfectly at ease, and so gay and happy that the inquiring eyes suddenly lighted with as merry a smile as ever Lionel had seen.

"You look terribly confused," she said. "Did you bring those flowers for Carrie?"

"I did."

"Well, don't let us stand out here talking. Go into my room—you know the way, and I will go tell Carrie. If you hear a scream you will know it is from her. She is just child enough to scream when she is pleased, and these flowers will please her."

"To say nothing," suggested Lionel, "of the opportunity to look at the famous Sir Lionel Warne."

Miss Phyllis looked questioningly at him for a moment, and then said, soberly:

"Don't you ever get tired of laughing at things?"

Something made his thoughts rush back to that terrible race against death, and his face grew suddenly stern.

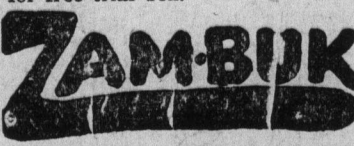

"This is the first time I have laughed in many hours," he answered.

"Laugh just as much as you wish to," she said, impulsively, for it seemed to her that she had unwittingly struck a painful chord. "Carrie will like you to be merry. She is such a notice the number of times you have heard Zam-Buk recommended for skin diseases and injuries? Don't you think there must be good reason for this popularity? Did you ever think just what this reason might be? Some have said advertising. Advertising may lead one to try Zam-Buk, but merit alone can induce one to buy a second box. Zam-Buk's popularity is based on Zam-Buk's power to cure.

Did You Ever

A person who has suffered half a lifetime from eczema, ulcers, or some skin disease, is persuaded to try Zam-Buk, and is cured. What more natural than that that person should tell other sufferers? So it has been, and will be, everywhere. Yes, indeed, are evidences of the marvelous healing power of Zam-Buk. If you have never tried Zam-Buk, and are suffering from any skin disease or injury, send this article and 1c. stamp to Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for free trial box.

jolly little thing herself. Only you won't say anything that will seem like making fun of her, will you? and the beautiful, sweet young face grew very tender.

"Trust me, Miss Phyllis," he said, with deep feeling, and she smiled gratefully at him, and left the room.

When he was alone he began to examine the little room, and was thinking what a dainty place it was to be away up in the attic of a dirty London house, when he heard a sort of squeal of delight, and knew that either the flowers or the prospect of seeing the famous Sir Lionel had called it forth.

"Did you hear her?" said Miss Phyllis, from the doorway.

"Yes, I heard her. Was it the flowers, or the famous Sir Lionel?"

"Both. She wanted me to make you wait while I fixed up the room, but—"

"Nonsense," said he, with a man's scorn of fixing.

"That's what I told her," said Miss Phyllis. "I said you would never know the difference."

"Oh, but that wasn't a bit complimentary," said he.

"Of course not. I don't believe in compliments."

"Not even when the subject is not present?"

"Then it isn't a compliment, but only the truth. But how you do keep on talking about nothing!"

"I protest against that," he said, following her into the adjoining room.

"Miss Carrie Brathwait," said Phyllis, quietly ignoring his protest, "permit me to present to you Sir Lionel Warne."

"I ask your pardon, Miss Phyllis," said Lionel, "the famous Sir Lionel, if you please."

At that Carrie laughed merrily, proving Phyllis' words that she was a jolly little thing. And, as it was what Lionel had wished to make her do, he was satisfied, though he could not help wondering pitifully how the little creature, all propped up with pillows, could find the heart to laugh at all.

"I hope you will excuse the room," said Carrie, as soon as she had laughed her fill.

"He needn't do anything of the sort," said Phyllis. "The room is good enough. It is our studio, Sir Lionel, and you can't expect it to be in order."

"I should have thought it was in order," he said.

"Oh, my! said Carrie; "but of course it must be this way. I can't very well get out of the room—at any rate not without being carried, and I won't let Phyllis do it, though she is terribly obstinate."

"Oh, I was certain of that," said Lionel, laughing.

"She would go out that night," said Carrie. "You know, the night you—oh, you rescued her, don't you know. Only it sounds so foolish and romantic."

hesitated, though why he did he could not have told.

"Well?" said Phyllis, as he did not go on.

"Why, Phyllis," said Carrie, "what difference does it make to you what he was doing here?"

"None," said Phyllis, quietly; "only he started to tell."

"I think," said Lionel, gravely, "you would both be interested to hear why I was in this part of the city that night."

They both looked at him inquiringly.

"Have either of you ever heard of Lady Flora Vanemore?" he asked.

"What the famous beauty? Yes, indeed," they both answered.

"Well," he said, slowly, "I had just asked her to be my wife, or I had told her I loved her."

For a moment those two pairs of eyes stared at him as if he had been a vision out of some fairy tale. Then Phyllis asked, with gentle commiseration:

"And she had refused you?"

"Oh, no, she had accepted me."

"Oh!" cried Carrie, clasping her thin little hands ecstatically; "and you too are going to be married! Oh, how I'd like to see you! Is she so very beautiful? More than—"

And she nodded her head and pointed a finger in dumb show at Phyllis, who at that moment was standing with her back to them, looking, with head inclined to one side, at a picture she had been teaching up.

Lionel looked at her as she stood there, and then called up the image of the stately woman who had promised to be his bride.

"Different," he said to Carrie.

"What do you mean by different?" asked Phyllis; "I didn't catch all you said just then."

"She was admiring her picture," laughed Carrie.

"But I don't see," said Phyllis, in her direct way, "why you should have come away over here if she had accepted you. Now, if she had said no—"

"That is what I expected her to say," said Lionel, "and it rather upset me to have her say yes."

"Oh!" said Carrie.

"I don't see why," said Phyllis, painting briskly.

"Well, I hadn't any money, for one thing," said Lionel.

"Oh, yes, that was in the paper," said Carrie.

"The duse it was! I beg your pardon; I mean I'm surprised. No, I'm not surprised, either. Why, of course, I might have expected it."

"We were awfully sorry," said Carrie.

"I'd forgotten all about it," said Phyllis, "until you spoke of it. Was it all true?"

"What was in the newspaper, do you mean?" he asked, in vexation.

A few reasons why an estate can be better administered by the Eastern Trust Company than by a personal executor or administrator:—

1. The Company affords the estate absolute security; it has a paid-up capital of $331,000.00, and a reserve fund of $225,300.00.
2. It has a long experience in the work of administering estates; it is incorporated for this business of acting as a trustee, and, unlike many other trust companies, it does no other.
3. Its existence is perpetual. Your estate, in the event of the death of a personal executor or administrator, must look around for a substitute, and the work of administration is impeded during that time, and the new executor is unfamiliar with the policy of his predecessor, and confusion results. This company's existence is perpetual, and there is a continuity of policy in its administration that the death of its officers does not break.
4. It possesses the confidence of governments, universities and prominent charities and administers their funds.
5. A number of other advantages which will appear in due course.

COLD-BURST DROWN MANY SOLDIERS AND COLD FREEZES THEM.
Ricasoli Hospital, Malta, December 20, 1915.
Dear Jack—It is a long time now since I had a chance to write you. I hope you are not uneasy about me; I am O.K. I hope you are all as well as I am, and that you will spend a very merry Christmas. I expect you will be rather lonesome, I am afraid, as the crowd is getting small. This is the second Christmas dear mother has not been with us, but then, it's little use repining, though one can scarcely help it at this season. Now you will want to know why I am here. In the latter part of November (the night of the 27th), I think, we had a tremendous cloudburst; in about half an hour our trenches were full, just imagine, torrents, 7 and 8 feet deep. We had to leave and jump over the parapet, when the lightning flashed, I never saw such lightning. You would see blankets, overcoats, all kinds of equipment, drowned and drowning men floating past. In one trench, a little to our left, 50 men were drowned. They were of different regiments; Worcesters, Dublin Fusiliers, Munster Fusiliers and others. It was awful; over two hundred perished, and many others, I don't know how many, have died since through frost bite and exposure. We were all water-soaked, and I like nearly everybody else, lost every stitch, nothing to do now but let our clothes dry on us if they would, but fate decreed otherwise, for though it cleared off after the cloudburst, and became very cold, the next day it started to pour rain again, which continued all night until next morning about daybreak, when (unluckiest out of all), it started to snow, which continued for a few hours, when it cleared off and began to freeze, and freeze hard, too. Now our troubles started in earnest; our feet began to freeze, and that is why I am here, but don't worry, I am O.K. again.

And Will Not Lose Even a Toe.
I stood to our gun in water and mud for 4 days and 3 nights without even once sitting down. Let me tell you here, that as far as I am aware, not one of our fellows perished in that awful time. I never want to go through anything like it again as long as I live. I believe the Newfoundland disaster was a "Midsummer Night's Dream" compared with it. If we ever meet again I will be able to tell you more fully of it. You know Jack Fitzgerald, he used to work at Channing's drug store. He was a Red Cross man. Well, the last morning I was on the Peninsula, I saw him shot together with three others of our boys; they were sniped, and died in a heap. You can tell anybody you like from me, that poor Fitz, died here and a martyr. He deserved the V.C. I don't suppose you get a full list of fatalities; in fact I am sure you don't according to the home papers. I've seen, but I'll all come out in time. Well, old chap, it does not look like Christmas weather here in Malta; the weather is fine and warm. Not much like our Christmas weather at home, still I believe we are going to have a good time; we are already starting to decorate our ward. You'll know I'm not very bad when I can go out to town across the harbor to Valetta. I am enjoying my rest and the good food here, and the nurses and orderlies are kindness itself. Believe me, it feels good to lie in a bed, and have no shells screaming and bursting over your head. I must leave you now, old chap. I hope you will have a very merry Xmas. Tell father I was to confession Oct. 29th, and communion next day, all done in sight of Johnny Turk's trenches, and within reach of the guns. Give my love to all at home. Good-bye for now.

The Hon. Treasurer of the Society for Protection of Animals, has received the following letter, accompanied by a subscription:—
"Dear Sir,—
Enclosed please find a dollar note, which I will share some and a weary goat and comfort some poor hen, or buy some teeth for aged calf, that she may chew her cud and "calf" and feel quiet young again; or perhaps for sheep with 'smutty face' 'twill make this world a brighter place, and ease her greatest pain.
I'd like to raise it fifty bones to help some donkey o'er the stones, and let him have a 'cinch,' but what with one thing and another I'll have to get some 'dough' from mother. I really feel the pinch. There's this and that, and Nickel Shows, and sox to warm poor soldiers' toes, I'm nearly in the 'pen,' with 'mayolinds' to 'beat the band' they've taken nearly all my sand, and left me not a 'yen.' The price of coal, too, is gone up. I'm forced to sell my 'setter' pup' to raise a little tin. We'll have to turn to 'peat or sod' or burn my brand-new-fishing-rod; Oh! what an awful sin. I'll make my 'gun-stock' into spits, to light a fire and dry my mitts. I will, 'so help my tin.'
But any way this dollar goes, to warm some worn-out horse's nose, or buy him a new tail, get 'Blue Jay' for his tender feet, that he may tread the frozen street and stop his mournful wail. If some poor broken-winded nag, while climbing hills is forced to lag and groan the whole day long, get chloroform. I think it's best, and dope poor Dobbin' off to rest, and so I end my song."
With profuse apologies to Uncle Walt Mason and yourself if you have read this, and asking you to place the dollar to the credit of the S.P.A.
I remain,
Yours truly,

TUESDAY, January 25, 1916.

Carry On by Co-Operation.

We are glad to learn that a combined effort is to be made by the Government and the importers of salt for the fishery and at as low a price as is possible, considering the difficulty of obtaining steamers and the high freight rates that are being demanded by ship owners, who have steamers to charter. The situation as regards tonnage is a very serious one, and its effect is seen in the British Isles, the United States, Canada and elsewhere. The causes of the shortage are many. It is said that one-third of the British tonnage has been taken over by the Admiralty, for purposes of the war. A considerable amount of tonnage has been sunk by the enemy; and the enemy's mercantile tonnage is largely held up in their own ports, and British ship-building yards during the past eighteen months have been utilized mainly for naval work. Every issue of London newspapers which comes to hand contains articles and letters on the question and almost daily we see some reference to it in the news despatches. For instance to-day, it will be seen that the British Board of Trade are taking steps to curtail the importation of luxuries, to lessen the use of petrol by pleasure motor cars and to limit the supply of the importation of paper and pulp into England, in order that steamer space may be available for what are regarded as necessary. The pinch too is felt in Newfoundland. Difficulties are being found in obtaining steamers for importing coal and the offers available are at exceedingly high rates. The same difficulty is being experienced in the freighting of fish to market. An adequate supply of salt to conduct the fishery next season is absolutely necessary. The ordinary competition system of 'importing salt has broken down under the strain of the situation, and the only way out is by co-operation between the Government and the salt importers, and we are glad to find that the situation is being faced and the way out is being sought in this direction. We must carry-on, and the carrying-on can only be done by co-operation in the importation of salt.

Curler's Day.

Yesterday was the Curlers' Day, and was set apart for helping along an excellent cause, the providing by the Patriotic Committee of St. John's, of comforts for our Soldiers and Sailors abroad. The success of the occasion is largely due to the lady curlers, who did everything possible, both in preparation and work, to make the event "a clean sweep" of success, and in short "no stone was left unturned" to crown the whole day's fete with laurels.

The games were closely contested from start to finish, and great interest was shown by the large number of people who visited the rink. During the forenoon the Highlanders' Band was in attendance, at the afternoon and night the C. C. C. and C. L. B. Bands played "a roarin' game." Teas and refreshments were served by the ladies of the Committee, and a candy stall, presided over by the ladies, are held responsible for a large amount of the day's proceeds.

Before the final game of the day, Mr. P. C. O'Driscoll, who knows his "curling" as well as any man, held an auction sale, and the cakes and candies and things remaining went quick. Mr. O'Driscoll, with that excellent wit, all his own, won great applause as he "knocked down" the various items of the impromptu sale, but it was not till later when he addressed the whole assembly on the object of the day's event—the doing of a "bit" for Newfoundland's sons on sea and land—that he showed the real stuff of which our Curlers and he are made. Messrs. Ross and Miller, who were responsible for the decorations which were arranged in most artistic style, deserve a good word for their work, whilst to the Secretary, A. H. Salter, the thanks of the Committee and the public are due. To sum up "Curler's Day" for 1916, it was a big success, and the proceeds, some $700, will be handed over to the W.P.A. Fund to help along the good cause.

Guild Holds Successful Patriotic Sociable.

An enjoyable and highly successful sociable was held by St. Margaret's Guild at Canon Wood Hall last night. Amongst the large audience present were the clergy of St. Thomas's Church. A concert, splendidly arranged and faultlessly carried out, was rendered, the programme being:—
Highland Fling by Misses Marshall and Groves; songs by Miss Nora Bennell and H. J. Earle, Esq.; recitations by Misses M. Quick and Mildred Coen; a costume dance by Miss D. Snow; a minut in costume by eight members of the Guild; the sketch entitled "An Unexpected Entertainment" also by Guild members and a piano solo by Miss M. Williams.

Each of the performers had to respond to encores. Prior to the concert Rev. Dr. Jones spoke on the good work of the Guild, and refreshments were served at the interval. The C. L. E. Band furnished excellent music during the evening. The proceeds were substantial and will be used to buy comforts for our soldiers and sailors.

Burns' Nicht at Rossley's Theatre.

Last night the Rossley Theatre held a highly delighted audience. They certainly enjoyed the show, every member of the company receiving encores for their songs and dances. In fact patrons said it was the best entertainment seen for some time. Mrs. Rossley's pupils, who have been in training for over four years, worked well and appeared in a complete change of costume. Some of the songs were as follows: "Bugle Boy," "I Like the Hat," "Boy Scout," "I Love the Ladies," "A Little Chap Like Me," "Kitty, the Telephone Girl," "Dolly McFugh," "Whoops, Let's Do It Again," "Where the Band Plays," "A Big Fat Busker" and others. To-night the whole company will be in Scotch costumes, and the Rossleys who made a great name for themselves years ago with St. John's people need no boosting. Their work is original, clean and clever. Hock Aye.

Durango Arrives.

The Furness Liner Durango, Capt. Chambers, reached port this morning from Halifax, after a passage of 49 hours, bringing a small cargo. As previously noted, the Durango had a terrific experience on a recent trip to Halifax from Liverpool, being 21 days on the run. First her engine gave out and she was forced to put into Belfast for repairs, then she met a succession of storms. The Durango is expected to get away again to-night for Liverpool, taking a big outward freight and a large mail.

Watch Your Voice.

By RUTH CAMERON.

RUTH CAMERON

Watch your voice. Every day I spend among my fellow men and women I am more impressed by the need of that injunction. The voice is an traitor. Unless you have learned the very difficult art of keeping it under control it will betray your secrets every time.

For instance, I was explaining the way to get to a certain place to a friend of mine. At each pause she said "Yes," "I see," "Oh, yes," and all the other things that are proper to say in pauses in an explanation. Her face shone with the intelligence and understanding. If I had judged by her acquiescence and appearance alone, I would have thought that she understood me perfectly. But while she could control what she said and how she looked, she couldn't control her voice. It betrayed her. There was a note in it of complete incomprehension. Finally I taxed her with this. She laughed and admitted it frankly.

"I never should have asked you the way," she said, "for I never can understand or remember 'the first turn to the right' and 'the fourth house on the left,' and all that sort of thing. What I always do is to find out where to get off the car and then ask the way when I get off, and keeping on asking until I find it. It's no good for me to try to understand advance directions."

Another case of voice betrayal is when a person who still remains fundamentally and unalterably cheap has put on a surface veneer of education. So long as the education is only superficial and doesn't reach down into the wellsprings of the heart and mind, the peculiar rough uneducated tones of the voice remain. No label pasted across the forehead could say, "This person is uneducated," any more plainly than the rough voice says it to those whose ears are attuned to voice distinctions.

She Couldn't Stand The Accusing Voice.
A dear friend of mine who kept a boarding-house once asked one of her boarders to leave. "My dear," she explained to me afterwards, "I simply couldn't stand being reproached by her for everything that didn't go just so."

"Oh, was she that kind?" I asked. "Somehow I can't quite imagine her reproaching you."

"She never did in words," she answered, "but if the least thing went wrong, there was an accusatory note in her voice that got on my nerves."

I know what that is like, for I used to have a friend who frequently offered to do errands for me. If, for some reason, the errand turned out to be a little more difficult than she expected, if, for instance, she had to go to a second store to match the worsted, she would tell me about it in an accusatory voice that set my teeth on edge. I soon decided to do my own errands.

The uncontrolled voice is the index both of the mood and of the character. Watch your voice, or rather listen to your voice. Don't let it be nasal, high-pitched or too loud. Don't on the other hand, talk so low and indistinctly that people have to make an effort to understand you. That's selfish. Learn to control your voice so that it won't betray you, or better still, learn to control yourself so that you will have less to betray.

Open Hall Notes.

Christmas has once more passed away and we have again entered into another New Year.

There was a tea and dance held in the R. C. School here on Monday, Dec. 27th, St. John's Day, and a fairly good sum was realized.

A sale, tea and dance was held at Red Cliff on Wednesday, 29th Dec., under the kind management of the people of Open Hall and Red Cliff, and the sum of $160 was realized, the proceeds was devoted towards the repairing of the wall of St. Michael's Church. Some of the young men did fairly well in the shooting gallery, but it would be more to their credit if they would try and practice shooting for a better cause.

The several people belonging here and neighboring places have felt the effects of the latter fall of snow, which has detained the mails from arriving at their proper time. The King's Cove mail carrier, Mr. W. Devine, could not arrive here Friday past or either Saturday, so Mr. L. Miss (Postmaster) of Plate Cove, hired a man to bring the mail here Saturday afternoon. Mr. G. S. Shears, Postmaster of this place, engaged two men Sunday to convey the mail to King's Cove, but owing to large quantities of snow they had to retreat before reaching their destination. Yesterday being a fine day, Mr. Devine, accompanied by another man, left King's Cove at nine o'clock in the forenoon and arrived here at five o'clock in the afternoon, a distance of 8 1/2 miles. "Walking must be backward."

The trout season opened Saturday 15th, but owing to disagreeable weather no one ventured to "try their skill." A big catch is expected for the first trial.

The last remains of Mrs. B. Quinton was laid in the C. of E. Cemetery at Red Cliff Thursday, Jan. 6th. The burial service was read by Rev. S. A. Dawson. Deceased reached the ripe age of 73.

Also on Monday, 3rd, in the C. of E. Cemetery at Open Hall, was laid to his last resting place the youngest child of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. B. Fitzgerald. Service was read by the Lay Reader.

Again on Sunday, 16th, the last remains of Miss M. Walsh, of Western Plate Cove, was laid to rest in the R. C. Cemetery, Open Hall, Mr. J. Long officiating.

Letters recently received from Private Warren, who is stationed at Scotland, stated that he is enjoying good health and longing to get out to have a spell fighting the Huns.

Mr. A. L. Warford received a letter from his brother Garland, of Upper Gullies, C.B., stating that he was in Malta Hospital, sick, and was getting on fine.

Open Hall, Jan. 18, 1916. —COR.
December 15, 1915.
Following is a copy of a letter received from Private G. Warford, of the 1st Nfld. Regiment, D Company: Manoeil Hospital, Malta.

Dear Brother—Just a note to let you know I have been admitted into hospital, sick, and am getting on well. I will be all right in two or three weeks, and get away with my regiment again to have another spell dodging bullets. But I tell you we are fine and comfortable here, much better than in the trenches.

I have not had a letter from you for a while, and I suppose I won't get any more till I get back with the regiment, "but what matter." I thought that so long as I was in hospital and had lots of time to write, I would write to all the folks, as I did not do much writing while I was in the trenches.

I guess you will have lots of snow in Open Hall by this time, I suppose you will be able to skate on the ponds. We had a little snow before I left the trenches. I suppose you will have two weeks home for to spend your Xmas vacation, and I hope you will spend a merry one, don't mind because the war is on and I am not home. I will spend my Xmas here in Malta as it is the first one ever I spent from home, "but what harm." God willing this terrible war will be over and I will spend next Xmas home with you. Remember me to all the friends. Tell them I would like to be home for Xmas but the war must be over first with us, and then if we survive, we will have Christmas, supposing it is in the summer.

I know you are all praying at home for this cruel war to be over, and don't forget to say a few prayers for me, as I am as wild as boy as ever.

I think I have told you all for the present. Good-bye. Wishing you a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year.

Don't forget to write to your loving brother,
GARLAND.

Cleanses Your Hair Makes It Beautiful, Thick, Glossy, Wavy

Try this! All dandruff disappears and hair stops coming out.

Surely try a "Danderine Hair Cleanse" if you wish to immediately double the beauty of your hair. Just moisten a cloth with Danderine and draw it carefully through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; this will cleanse the hair of dust, dirt, or any excessive oil—in a few minutes you will be amazed. Your hair will be wavy, fluffy and abundant and possess an incomparable softness, lustre and luxuriance.

Besides beautifying the hair, one application of Danderine dissolves every particle of dandruff; invigorates the scalp, stopping itching and falling hair.

Danderine is to the hair what fresh showers of rain and sunshine are to vegetation. It goes right to the roots, invigorates and strengthens them. Its exhilarating, stimulating and life-producing properties cause the hair to grow long, strong and beautiful.

You can surely have pretty, soft, lustrous hair, and lots of it, if you will just get a 25-cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store or toilet counter and try it as directed.

GOOD AS WHEAT.

WIT MARCO

"His word is as good as his bond," they say of the man who is straight; and e'en when his overcoat is pawned, and luck doesn't swing on his gate, the merchants are eager to trust the man with so healthy a fame; they know when he's earning the dust, he'll come and unbosom the same. And when he is walking the street, the citizens turn and exclaim, "That man is as good as new wheat, there isn't a crook in his game." The banker who's stern and austere, to most of the jays in the grad, is smiling from ear unto ear, when meeting this excellent lad. Wherever he goes there are smiles, the smiles of approval and trust, and greetings and lifting of ties—'tis thus men behave to the just. The maidens are glancing his way; perhaps to a ring they aspire, for who wouldn't marry the joy, whom all men respect and admire? At last, in the fullness of time, he goes to the golden beyond, and seraphim say, "He's sublime—his word was as good as his bond!"

Theatre parties, if arranged for, will be served at close of performance at WOOD'S Central or West End Restaurants during Klark-Urban Co's. season.—Jan 13, 11

LIGHT, HEAT, COMFORT!

The proprietor of one of the best known multiple shopping systems is credited with saying, "Give me any old shop, in any old street, and I'll guarantee to make it in twelve months the most widely known and best frequented shop in the district." He was asked to explain. Holding up three fingers he said, "I believe in the trinity of LIGHT, WARMTH, COMFORT. I should dazzle the moths until the candle drew them, I should bring them into a warm, comfortable shop, filled with a soft, pleasing radiance, and the rest is—well, mere child's play."

Mixed metaphors, perhaps, but expressive. Now we can more than imagine the kind of shop this well-known individual would open, for we pass it in almost every town—always a landmark to the street. No one fails to notice it. There is an indefinable air of welcome and invitation as one stands for a moment on the pathway and lets one's gaze travel inside it. The subdued, restful lighting effect that so charms because of its very unobtrusiveness, the absence of dark corners, the intangible feeling that if one would step inside one would be sure of experiencing a delicious sense of warmth and comfort and cheerfulness—all these are part of its appeal. Truly a shop with an individuality.

We cordially invite all progressive business men to visit our showroom and see our latest Lighting and Heating Appliances, by the adoption of which the ideal outline in the above extract from a London paper may be easily secured. Our new RADIO X. Lamp and GASTEAM Radiators fill all light and heat requirements.

LARGE ATTENDANCES AT NICKEL THEATRE.
The holiday programme at the Nickel Theatre yesterday attracted very large audiences both afternoon and evening. The pictures were splendid, the programme including such high liners as "The Goddess," the Wonderful "Who Pays" and others, which met with the approval of all. This evening the entire programme will be repeated and another large attendance is assured, as many were unable to be present yesterday. Tomorrow the most sensational of all the serials, "The Exploits of Elaine," will be continued.

BRITISH THEATRE.

Large and appreciative audiences attended at the British Theatre yesterday and were delighted with the splendid programme. "The Recoil" was a most remarkable story and one that is being enacted daily in real life. Edna Mason as the reporter is seen to advantage, and she is ably supported by the remainder of the cast. The other feature picture, entitled "The Voice in the Night," was also a splendid one; the acting of Lindsay Hall was up to his usual high standard. The Universal Animated Weekly News contained most interesting items, among which was that of a train of motor trucks delivering $52,000,000 of England's money to the treasury of the United States. Madame Timmons sang "Mother Machine" and "I dream I dwell" most beautifully, and was loudly applauded. This is Madame Timmons' last week and all should hear her sing.

Fell 300 Feet and Lives.

Newport News, Va., Jan. 13.—Bert Acosta, of San Diego, Cal., an instructor in the local Curtiss School of aviation, and a student named McDonald, plunged to the ground with their aeroplane from a height of 800 feet here and neither man was scratched. Both were badly shaken up, however. The machine landed in a mass of electric wires, which broke the force of the fall. The aeroplane was wrecked. A big crowd witnessed the spectacular drop. Acosta said he had just begun a spiral descent when a chain on the control gear slipped from the sprocket. The momentum of the machine kept it on a slanting course downward, and it did not careen until it was within 300 feet of the earth. Then it tilted and landed on the wires, the power wing striking first and crumpling up. The machine missed a passing trolley car by a few inches.

"Kick In."

PLAYED TO OVERFLOWING AUDIENCE.

The Klark-Urban Co. played "Kick In" to a bumper house at the Casino Theatre last night. It was the opening of the third week of the company's engagement here and the reception they got is sufficient assurance that the troupe are continuing to meet with big successes. "Kick In" is an underworld term and means "give up." It is a strong play, though not extra heavy, is comprised of thrills and sensations, with an occasional grain of comedy and throws some light on the styles and doings of the underworld. A diamond necklace has been stolen and the perpetrator, who is shot, in the "get away" evades the clutches of the law through the help of two friends, who are running straight, but the police authorities say: "Once a crook, always a crook" and saddles the reformers with having full knowledge of the crime. Eventually, there is a solution to a very mysterious robbery, as the necklace falls into the possession of the authorities and those held on suspicion are set free by the constabulary Police Commissioner. It was a well balanced cast and the various characters were well sustained. Frank Urban won new laurels as Commissioner Garvey. Maise Cecil and Albert Patterson, as Chick and Molly Steves were seldom seen to better advantage. Miss Lillian Dean was quite at home in a double role. All the other members of the Company gave faithful portrayals of difficult parts. "Kick In" is a play of merit. It will be repeated to-night and is a sure draw for another packed house.

FATAL EXPLOSION.

BUFFALO, New York, To-day. Fifteen workmen were killed and as many more probably fatally injured in an explosion in the plant of the Keiker Blower Co., Harrison Street, here yesterday afternoon. Without warning the boiler in the plant exploded with terrific force and a three story building crumpled to the ground, burying two score of workmen in its ruins. Few escaped uninjured. A fire broke out in the ruins. The explosion broke every pane of glass in a school across the street from the wrecked factory and threw several hundred pupils into a panic. The school fire alarm was sounded and the children marched out without disorder. Blower Co. operated under Larkin Co. and manufactured glass and pottery ware.

M.P.'S TO VISIT THE FRONT.

LONDON, To-day. A proposal was made in the Commons to-day that all members of the House should visit the front during the Parliamentary recess and that arrangements should be made for their reception by the Commander-in-Chief, the idea being that great benefit would accrue to the Parliamentarians by close contact with actual war operations. Tennant in replying thought it would prove too big an undertaking, entailing too much work for the General Staff, but he promised to see what could be done if members, desirous of making the trip, would communicate their names. Tennant also gave an idea of the great part aeroplanes were playing in the operations on the Western front, announcing that in the last four weeks 13 British aeroplanes, and nine or ten German machines had been lost in the same period. The Under Secretary for War said the British employed 138 machines, while the Germans used approximately 29. The number of British aeroplanes which crossed the German lines was 1,227, while 310 German machines crossed British lines. Aerial battles, Tennant said, have occurred over behind the German lines, owing to the westerly winds, and German machines if hit plied down in their own lines which the British were unable to do.

BERLIN, To-day. Scutari has been occupied by the Austro-Hungarian troops, according to an announcement issued to-day by the Austro-Hungarian headquarters.

All the machines returned safely though they were subjected to heavy fire. It is believed the bombs did great damage.

An official report was made public last night: "We exploded a mine near St. Eloi, damaging the enemy trenches considerably, a small patrol passed through the enemy's wire entanglements near Sterlorenhook and fired into the trench which was strongly held, retiring, without casualties. To-day the artillery on both sides have been active about Loos. We carried a successful bombardment of the enemy's trenches northeast of Armentieres, doing considerable damage. There have been bombardments about Hooge, St. Jean, Pilkem in the vicinity of Ypres. Near the latter place we silenced the enemy's trench mortars with our artillery fire."

House has definitely decided to visit Berlin. The Hamburg Freie Presse declares Col. THE SERVICE BILL IN THE LORDS.

LONDON, To-day. The military Service Bill passed through the report stage in the Commons last night without serious modification. The Government accepted an amendment that capital punishment should not be inflicted for refusal to obey the call to the colors. The principal discussion turned upon safeguards against employing the measure for industrial compulsion, many members expressing suspicion regarding the attitude of David Lloyd George, Minister of Munitions, especially as Lloyd George had not participated in the debate in the Bill. Andrew Bonar Law, on behalf of the Government, gave further assurances on this point, which he declared, were binding on the whole Government. On motion for the third reading, Sir John Simon, Former Home Secretary, asserted although the Government had done all that could be done to meet objections to the Bill, it had failed to allay the fears of those who believed the Bill was a mere prelude to industrial compulsion and had also failed to meet the case of the conscientious objector, therefore, he was unable to recommend the Bill should be allowed to pass its third reading without a division. He strongly deprecated however "violent" opposition to the Bill once it became law. The Bill was immediately sent to the Lords and given its first reading. The second reading will be taken in the Lords on Wednesday. Parliament will probably be prorogued on Friday.

BRITISH AND RUSSIANS MAKING FOR THE KUT.

LONDON, To-day. The British force at Kut-el-Amara and the Russian troops west of Hamadan are so near that if there were no difficulties in the way it might be possible to effect a junction within ten days. In spite of this fact, there is much fighting yet to be done, and difficult country to be crossed. The British press already is beginning to speculate about the meeting of the expected junction. The Chronicle says it will be a happy day when the British and Russians begin to fight side by side in this theatre of war, and it ought to contribute to a better understanding between the two people. The Times, however, notes the Turks appeared to have stopped the Russian advance in this district. It fears a Russian set back if Turkish reports of the retaking Assadabad from the Russians are correct, as this would threaten the Russian occupation of Hamadan from more than one direction.

PARIS, To-day. The City of Nancy was again bombarded yesterday morning by long range German guns and yesterday afternoon a number of bombs were dropped from German aeroplanes. The damage from bombardment was considerable and daily two persons were wounded, while the aeroplane attack is reported to have been without result. It was announced from Paris, January 8, that during three preceding days six persons had been killed and ten wounded in Nancy as a result of a bombardment of the city by German 15 inch guns. Alarming rumors having been circulated as to the havoc caused by the bombardment and consequent panic among the inhabitants, the Prefect of the Department in which Nancy is situated, issued a circular discrediting rumors on day mentioned. President Poincare went to Nancy and passed the entire day there. Safe conducts were issued to 30,000 persons to leave the city on the occasion of the three days bombardment.

The German fleet, with the heaviest new battleships, armed with 17 inch guns, far outranging the largest of the British, and escorted by a fleet of fast torpedo boats, is expected to give battle in the North Sea, according to Thomas R. MacMeehan, Aeronautical Engineer and President of the Aeronautical Society of America. Mr. MacMeehan said to-day that this prediction is from sources of authoritative information in Germany.

Whist coming down Carter's Hill this morning, an elderly lady named Measey fell on the ice, and badly sprained her right ankle, also inflicting some severe bruises to her arms and shoulders. She was removed to Stafford's pharmacy nearby and given kindly attendance. Carter's Hill is really in a very dangerous condition and it would be wise if the residents there give the steep incline a plentiful supply of ashes.

A Daring Burglar.

AYRE & SONS' OFFICE ENTERED. After the day's business had been concluded and employers and employees had left, the office of Messrs. Ayre & Sons, Pitts Building, was entered on Saturday night. Up to press hour the police had not made any arrests, also a four year old boy, Bros. store was found cut out also on Saturday night, but it is believed that the would-be burglar fled, fearing that some one heard him, as there was nothing to show that the store had been entered.

Fire At Conception Harbour.

MOTHER AND TWO CHILDREN BURNED—HOUSE AND CONTENTS DESTROYED.

Mr. Hutchings, Deputy Minister of Justice, received the following communication this morning from Magistrate O'Toole at Conception Harbour: "On Saturday night the house of Maurice Costello was burnt with all its contents, also a four year old boy. The origin of the fire is unknown. The mother and another child were badly burned. They escaped in their night clothes by jumping from a top window."

From the tenor of the foregoing the assumption is that the four year old boy was fatally burned. Further particulars are eagerly awaited.

Big Liner Reaches Port, Short of Coal.

The s.s. Noordam, Capt. Vanwalraon, put into this port this morning short of coal. She is 14 days out from Rotterdam, via Falmouth, England, bound for New York with a general cargo. She has on board 370 passengers of different nationalities but principally British and American people. The steamer was 5 days out from Rotterdam when she put into Falmouth where she took on board all the passengers. After leaving Falmouth, on the 16th inst., strong head winds were met. As Capt. Vanwalraon put it, "each day was a continuation of bad weather." The ship sustained no damage but her headway was impeded greatly. On Saturday last the engines reported that the bunkers were running short and Capt. Vanwalraon decided to come here to get a supply of coal, after ascertaining what our port conditions were.

The Noordam is a large palatial steamer belonging to the Holland-America Line, was built by the Harland-Wolff, Ltd. Belfast, in 1909. She is twin screw, 12,500 tons gross, 7,375 net, 550.2 ft. long, 62.2 ft. wide and 34 ft. deep. Her normal power, working 180 lbs. pressure. The Furness Withy Co. are the agents for the Noordam, which is now getting 600 tons of Admiralty coal at the port of St. John's, J. Harvey & Co., Ltd. She will probably resume her voyage early to-morrow morning.

HOUSE IN PARIS. PARIS, Jan. 24. The Temps lengthily discusses the visit of Colonel F. M. House, President Wilson's personal representative to Paris, and says he will be able to compare the present state of mind of the belligerents to what it was during his previous visit last year. Colonel House will find in London, as well as in Paris, says the Temps, the same resolution as on his recent trip, to fight without lassitude or weakness until final victory. He will note with as much more impartiality our determination that this war shall have as its conclusion a stable peace, based on right and liberty, and no thought of mediation will guide his investigation.

MONASTIR BOMBED. PARIS, Jan. 24. The bombardment of Monastir, in southwestern Serbia, by a squadron of 45 French aeroplanes yesterday, is reported by the Havas correspondent at Saloniki. Considerable damage is said to have been done to ammunition depots, the quarters of the general staff and railways.

KAISER ON GRECIAN FRONT. LONDON, Jan. 24. The Daily News correspondent at Athens says it is rumored that the Kaiser, accompanied by Von Mackensen, has arrived at Chevelgi, on the Greco-Bulgarian frontier. The Austro-Germans, it is said, have now completed the necessary arrangements for an attack on Saloniki. An army of 22,000 men is reported to be ready, supported by heavy artillery, including three 16-inch guns.

BIG LOSS OF AEROPLANES. LONDON, Jan. 24. Harold J. Tennant, Parliamentary Under Secretary for War, announced in the Commons this afternoon that in the course of the last four weeks 13 British aeroplanes were lost on the Western front, and nine or ten German machines were brought to the ground.

TO EXTEND THE BLOCKADE. LONDON, Jan. 24. The debate on the question of enforcing a stricter blockade on Germany by the British fleet, which is to open in the Commons on Wednesday, is being awaited with keen interest in Government circles, where it is felt there would be no great opposition to the suppression of present orders in council by the declaration of an actual blockade, if the majority of members in the Commons were convinced it would provide a better medium of strangling German trade than the present system.

The weather throughout was atrocious, pouring rain rendering the movements of troops extremely difficult. Owing to floods it was impossible to renew the attack Saturday. General Aymer took up a position 1,300 yards from the trenches. No details regarding casualties have been received, but they are reported very heavy on both sides.

TURKISH STEAMERS TORPEDOED. PETROGRAD, Jan. 24. Russian torpedo boats in the Black Sea have torpedoed two Turkish ships loaded with war supplies and taken the crews prisoners.

AUSTRIAN CONFERENCE. ZURICH, Jan. 24. A Vienna despatch says it may be declared authentically that the King of Montenegro has not withdrawn his unconditional surrender, but should he do so it would matter little, as the Montenegrin army is no longer capable of resistance, nine-tenths of its artillery being in the hands of the Austrians and the importation of munitions and foodstuffs being impossible because the Austrians have occupied Antivari.

CUTTING NEWSPAPERS. LONDON, Jan. 24. The Weekly despatch says that the Government are taking drastic steps regarding the importation of luxuries, it may safely be stated that in a few weeks time there will be no imported luxuries whatever. Certain necessities will still be admitted, such as bananas for the poor, but expensive fruits for the rich will be debarré. Wasteful motoring, which is everywhere seen, is to be stopped because it is using up shipping which brings petrol and rubber, and the importation of pulp and paper probably will be cut down 40 per cent. Walter Runciman, President of the Board of Trade, will meet the leading British newspaper owners to-day regarding proposals to reduce the importations of paper, wood pulp, etc., and thus liberate ships for other trade. Such steps will necessitate an agreement for a corresponding reduction in the size of newspapers, which will not be welcomed by the owners.

of invasion against Egypt but to support the authority of the Turkish War Minister, Enver Pasha. Reports say the Turks have recently been restive under the rule of Enver, and serious plots against him have been discovered, which are being ruthlessly suppressed. Born in 1863, he distinguished himself in the Soudan and Boer campaigns, was mentioned several times in despatches, and received the Distinguished Service Order for services with the Dongola Expeditionary

THOSE AEROPLANE RAIDS. LONDON, Jan. 24. The War Office announces that, taking advantage of the bright moonlight, a hostile aeroplane visited the east coast of Kent at one o'clock this morning and after dropping nine bombs in rapid succession, it made off seaward. No naval or military damage was done, but there was some damage to private property by incendiary bombs, and one man was killed, and two men, one woman and three children slightly injured. The point of interest in the official account is the statement that the raid was made by an aeroplane. Heretofore, Germany has relied principally on Zeppelins for aerial attacks on England. Of late, however, there has been much discussion in England of a new type of German aeroplane, the Fokker, which has been said to excel the aircraft of the Allies. English newspapers stated last week that British airmen were out-powered and out-engineered. Harold J. Tennant, Parliamentary Under Secretary for War, replied to this criticism in the Commons, asserting that the Fokker was well adapted to defensive operations, but was incapable of making long flights. Some London newspapers were not satisfied with this statement, pointing out that the British headquarters reports showed a loss of 16 aeroplanes during the month, and suggested Fokker aeroplanes would accompany the zeppelins when the next raid over England was made.
