The Die is Cast For Better or For Worse.

CHAPTER XXIII.
Startling Intelligence.

"Oh, well, let him in," said Lashmore, with a shrug of his shoulders. "It's a tax-collector or something of the kind, I expect."

After a minute or two—devoted by Forbes to collecting himself—the door opened, and he ushered in Mr. Levison. Lashmore got up from his chair and nodded, and was rather impressed by the much-wrinkled face and the thin, carefully-dressed figure of his visitor.

"You want to see me," began Lashmore. "Levison did not glance at Forbes, but he waited until the old man had left the room; then he said in his impassive voice:

"Yes, Lord Herndale; I want to see you very badly."

Lashmore grew red and his eyes flashed angrily.

"You're making a mistake, sir," he said. "I am not Lord Herndale. My name is Lashmore—but pray sit down if your business is with me."

"My business is with you, my lord," said Levison, seating himself on the edge of the chair, and looking at Lashmore with a calm so profound that it was almost stupefying.

"I don't think it can be," said Lashmore; "if you address me as 'my lord,' I tell you my name is Lashmore."

"I will accept that for the present, sir," said Levison. "I am extremely obliged to you for consenting to see me, and I will state my business as briefly as possible; and I am sure you will give me a patient hearing. My name is Levison." He produced a card and slid it on the table with an automatic gesture. "I am a financial agent, as you will see by my card. I am in a position to give you unexceptionable references as to my position and integrity. This is of importance, because the business I have to lay before you is a very great one. A client of mine, quite a poor man, is a mineralogist; he has discovered coal on a portion of the Herndale estate. There can be no question about my client's reliability; he is a man who never makes mistakes. He came to me with his information, and I am prepared to find him the capital—a very large amount—if I can come to some arrangement with you, either by way of a concession or as partner in the exploitation."

Lashmore had been listening with bent brows and hardly repressed impatience; and he broke in now somewhat angrily:

"Look here, Mr. Levison, you're making a great mistake. The Herndale estates have nothing whatever to do with me. They belong to Lord Herndale."

"To whom I have the honor of speaking," said Mr. Levison, as calmly as before.

Lashmore grew pale and turned aside to the mantel-shelf. It was rather hard that he should have to speak of his shame, of his lost birthright, to this stranger; but there seemed no help for it. The man had evidently got a bee in his bonnet, and the quickest way of getting rid of him would be to tell him the truth.

"You're wrong," he said a little huskily. "I am not Lord Herndale."

"Wait, please! You do not seem to be aware that though I am the late Lord Herndale's son—I have no right to the name—the title, the property, I—I am illegitimate. Neither you nor I will want to prolong this interview, now you have heard this."

"I have come to right a wrong, my lord," said Levison, as impassive as ever. "Your father was convinced that there was no marriage; but he was wrong. He had been misled by a gentleman, a friend, on whose opinion he relied. Had he been able to tell you the whole story, you would have seen that there was a doubt, a chance."

Lashmore turned swiftly, gripping the mantel-shelf.

"A doubt, a chance!" he breathed hoarsely.

"Yes," said Levison, slowly, impressively. "A ceremony took place between your mother, Lady Herndale, and your father. It was at Algiers,

Health for Sick Women

For Forty Years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Has Been Woman's Most Reliable Medicine—Here is More Proof.

To women who are suffering from some form of woman's special ills, and have a constant fear of breaking down, the three following letters ought to bring hope:—

North Crandon, Wis.—"When I was 16 years old I got married and at 18 years I gave birth to twins and it left me with very poor health. I could not walk across the floor without having to sit down to rest and it was hard for me to keep about and do my work. I went to a doctor and he told me I had a displacement and ulcers, and would have to have an operation. This frightened me so much that I did not know what to do. Having heard of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I thought I would give it a trial and it made me as well as ever. I cannot say enough in favor of the Pinkham remedies."—Mrs. MAYBE ASBACH, North Crandon, Wis.

Testimony from Oklahoma.

Lawton, Okla.—"When I began to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I seemed to be good for nothing. I fired easily and had headaches much of the time and was irregular. I took it again before my little child was born and it did me a wonderful amount of good at that time. I never fail to recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to ailing women because it has done so much for me."—Mrs. A. L. McCASLAND, 509 Hlave St., Lawton, Okla.

From a Grateful Massachusetts Woman.

Roxbury, Mass.—"I was suffering from inflammation and was examined by a physician who found that my trouble was caused by a displacement. My symptoms were bearing down, pains, backache, and sluggish liver. I tried several kinds of medicine; then I was asked to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It has cured me and I am pleased to be in my usual good health by using it and highly recommend it."—Mrs. B. M. OSOON, 1 Haynes Park, Roxbury, Mass.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

You will, of course, go to Lord Herndale."

It was a dismissal; but Levison did not move, but sat with his eyes fixed on Lashmore's face.

"I have come to Lord Herndale," said Levison. "I am, I hope, too good a business man to come to the wrong person, to make a mistake in a matter of such vast importance. I am quite sensible of your candor, my lord, and I thank you for it; but I am aware of the circumstances which, for a time, have ousted you from your title and estate; and you will readily believe that I should not come to you unless I had good proof that you have been laboring under a misapprehension."

"Misapprehension!" Lashmore echoed the word mechanically.

"I think that is the right term to use, Lord Herndale," said Levison; "and it is my duty and pleasure, before proceeding further with my business, to lay before you the evidence of which I spoke. First, will you allow me to ask you why you accepted your illegitimacy?"

Lashmore, pale now and struggling with his agitation, was silent for a moment; then he forced himself to answer the painful question.

"I had it from my father's own lips," he said, "on his death-bed. He was near the end and could only—"

He broke off and turned away to hide his emotion.

"My father and I were good friends—fond of each other—he was not likely to have made a mistake," he said. "I have said what he did—disinherit me—unless he had been sure. 'Man, man! why have you come to rake up the past?'"

"I have come to right a wrong, my lord," said Levison, as impassive as ever. "Your father was convinced that there was no marriage; but he was wrong. He had been misled by a gentleman, a friend, on whose opinion he relied. Had he been able to tell you the whole story, you would have seen that there was a doubt, a chance."

Lashmore turned swiftly, gripping the mantel-shelf.

"A doubt, a chance!" he breathed hoarsely.

"Yes," said Levison, slowly, impressively. "A ceremony took place between your mother, Lady Herndale, and your father. It was at Algiers, soon after they had run away together. Your father had no doubts of the validity of the marriage at the time; and it was not for some time after your birth that doubts arose in his mind. He went over to Algiers to consult this gentleman, this friend of his. His name was George Osborne. He held a high position in Algiers; your father placed the case before him, and Mr. George Osborne decided that the marriage was not valid."

Lashmore was trembling. "But— he managed to get out."

"You are going to ask me why your father was satisfied with Mr. Osborne's opinion? The answer is obvious. As you are aware, your father had a great affection for his wife. He was an easy-going man, a man who loathed anything approaching publicity or scandal. To have raised the question openly—in a court of law, for instance—would have proclaimed you, if the marriage proved invalid, what you have considered yourself to be. You can understand, my lord, that his great desire would be to spare your mother pain. In a word, fully convinced of Mr. Osborne's capacity to give an opinion, Lord Herndale accepted it, rather than expose Lady Herndale to the terrible ordeal which she would have had to have gone through if he had stirred up the matter."

"But—but—this man's opinion?" said Lashmore.

"Was wrong," said Levison, quite quietly. "I have seen Mr. Osborne, I have been over to Algiers. I have all the documents, extracts from the register, copies of certificates, counsel's opinion." He laid a packet of papers on the table. "And I am so convinced, so sure that I am in the presence of the Earl of Herndale, that I am ready to accept the concession from you, to complete arrangements for the working of these coal fields, Lord Herndale, as if there had never been any question of your right to the title. Seeing that I should be risking—but there is no risk—a very large sum of money, I think you will admit that I am giving you the strongest evidence of my own convictions. Examine the papers, the counsel's opinion, Mr. Osborne's admission that he was wrong—he is a very old man, lost to the world, with a mind that is well nigh a blank; and he had forgotten the case or he would have come forward years ago and taken the initiative in clearing your mother's good name and keeping you in your proper place."

While Levison had been speaking, Lashmore had, with a shaking hand, taken up the papers and examined them. Presently he dropped them on the table, sank into a chair, and covering his face with his hands, burst into sobs that shook him from head to foot. Mr. Levison rose noiselessly and, going to the window, stared intently at the opposite houses. Lashmore recovered after a while and raised his head.

"I—I beg your pardon," he said brokenly. "But—but you can understand what this—this means to me. My mother! My poor father! If he were only alive!—Married! I am his son—here—in the sight of the law! I am Lord Herndale. Oh, I can't believe it! You are sure, quite sure? Forgive me, I am grateful, God knows, but—but it is so sudden." He tried to laugh, but the sound broke in his throat. "You are a good man, sir," he said fervently, and he shot out his hand.

Mr. Levison took it in his skinny one and shook it with a quaint mixture of friendliness and respect.

"Yes, you are a good man and a straight! You might—he scarcely knew what he was saying—"you might have gone to Lord Herndale and made terms with him."

"Yes; I might have done so," assented Mr. Levison, not at all offended by the suggestion; "but, as you chance to say, I happen to be an honest man. I am not sure that it is always an advantage; but you must permit me to remind you that if I had not a concession from the gentleman you call Lord Herndale, it would not have been worth the paper it was written on, because he happens not to be Lord Herndale; so I came to you, who are Lord Herndale. Besides, I have a particular fancy for the present holder of the title. He is neither honest nor straight, as I chance to know. He has been spinning a web around a gentleman and his daughter—but that is another business; and as we have plenty on our hands already, we need not go into it, my lord."

Lashmore was pacing up and down the room in a fever.

"No, no!" he said. "I am Herndale—my father's lawful son!"

"Of course, your cousin will fight, my lord," said Mr. Levison. "It will be a hard and long fight, without a doubt. You will want money—at least, I venture to presume so—I should like to say that it will be forthcoming."

"You're a good fellow!" cried poor Lashmore. "Pig! Oh, we'll fight him! Here! I must tell old Forbes."

He was making for the door, but Mr. Levison caught his arm. "One moment, my lord. We must keep quiet for a while. So much depends upon the first move!"

"I must tell Forbes! At any cost," said Lashmore. "I couldn't keep it from him—you don't know what he has been to me."

A Wonderful Help in Keeping the Complexion Youthful and Clear.

Perhaps you wonder how so many women manage to have a complexion that is always fresh and clear, and how you can make your complexion better. Here's the secret:—

This is the Vanishing Cream that softens the skin and gives it that soft, velvety radiance that we all desire. Nyal's Face Cream is not oily or greasy, and it is readily absorbed by the skin, vanishing without leaving any tell tale gloss on skin. The skin welcomes this pleasant, soothing, cooling cream. It makes dry, tight skin soft and pliable. It makes rough skin firm and smooth, and gradually gives to coarse rough skin a finer, more delicate texture.

Gay little silk handkerchiefs are tucked into the pockets of gay little smock blouses.

Blouses are not so fashionable; you should wear a whole frock if you would be in fashion.

One begins to see lay-down collars of white linen, pleated, which are distinctly interesting.

The necessity for economy has given a certain simplicity to fashion which is a great advantage.

There are charming little dresses of white dimity embroidered in a becoming color to the little girl who is going to wear it.

The foulard of blue ground and white satin dots should have a white muslin under-blouse, embroidered.

Very often an evening dress of transparent material will have a bodice contrasting in color with the skirt.

The long black silk coats are being revived and will probably be great favorites on account of their general usefulness.

Cherry, rose brick red or geranium mingled with gray are favored combinations of gray and red.

Are you going to get a New Suit of Clothes for Spring? If so, buy now; as the longer you delay the more you pay. We have a splendid line of Tweeds and Serges of the very finest quality, and our cut and workmanship need no advertising. SPURRELL BROS., 365 Water Street—mar14, eod, f

THE MAN OF GRIEF.

The kaiser's face looks sad and worn; his eyes forever seem to mourn; his features "have a bloodless hue, his hair is white, his whiskers too. He's aged a score of years, they say, since that important, fateful day, when forth he sent his steel and heat, this war machine, his pride and boast. Think of the things that he has done! Who would not age ten years in one? I would not have the kaiser's sleep for all the treasure in the deep; for to that sleep what dreams must come—what shades of victims, dead and dumb! The women lost in sinking ships are there, with white accusing lips; the babies and the graybeards old, rise from the billows blue and cold, come to his couch in voiceless band and at him point their dead, white hands. He's wet the world with blood and tears; and when have passed a thousand years, men still will shudder at his fame, and damn the German butcher's name. He's aged a score of years, they say; he's haggard, nervous, racked and gray. Not for his kingdom would I know the kaiser's load of guilt and woe.

What a Gas Range Means for You, Mrs. Housekeeper.

The gas range is a muscle saver and a step saver. Think of the heavy tons of coal you used in that coal range, and how you have had to handle it all twice; first, carrying it up out of the cellar; then, from the kitchen to the ash barrel.

No more soot to wipe away; no more ashes to cart away; no more wood to fetch; no more coal dust; no more smoke and no more reason why the kitchen cannot be kept as clean and as orderly as the parlor. The gas range means just this.

Saves 50 Per Cent. of Kitchen Cares.

Half of the labor in the house is caused by dust from the coal range. Every time it smokes, no matter how good the draught may be, clouds of ashes rise and settle on the furniture.

It Eliminates Hard Work.

Use a gas range and you will live better, you will play better, and you will work better because the use of the gas range eliminates the drudgery of carrying coal, ashes and the chopping of kindling, as well as the drudgery of cleaning up a lot of dirt and, best of all, for the cook it makes it unnecessary for her to stand over a hot stove from two to three hours a day.

The Australian Elections.

Not only the British Empire but all its Allies will receive with pleasure the news from Australia. The Commonwealth elections have resulted in a victory for the Liberal League over the Labor Party. As far as we have been able to see at this distance the main issue has been the question of conscription, over which Mr. Hughes was defeated by a bare margin at the recent referendum. In any case the result is a moral vindication of his policy. It may be read with the truly wonderful spectacle of the American Republic adopting at the very outset the principle of conscription—intelligent, selective conscription—as showing the recognition among nations the world over of the unfairness and practical defects of the voluntary system. It is another object lesson to us, though we are not likely to profit by it as long as we have politicians. The Laborites opposed bitterly their old leader, who was able to see that narrow visions have no place in these spacious times, and were successful in their opposition. His turn has come and it does his country credit. Whatever else may be predicted of Australia, the elections mean that she is in the way to the last man and the last ounce of her strength. Would that the same could be said of every part of the Empire!

IRELAND.

The Irish situation stands out as the blackest spot in Imperial politics and relations, and as one of the first problems facing the Allies. To-day's messages do not leave the impression that it is any nearer a solution. The promised statement by the Government at Westminster has been postponed another week, which is eloquent enough, and the striking manifesto published by Irish leaders, including prominent men among the clergy of both denominations, shows the anxiety that is felt throughout Ireland over the possible partition of the country. It is not a little surprising, for lately it seems to have been generally agreed on all hands that a practicable settlement cannot lie in the direction of any such partition. If any conviction has emerged from the controversy it has been that, and if it proves unfounded British politics will not have distinguished themselves. But the darkest hour is before the dawn. The manifesto is another proof of a fact that is more fully appreciated every day, that Irishmen of all opinions are

TO COMBAT HUN PIRACY.

WASHINGTON, May 8. Hope is brightening that American inventive genius has found the road that may lead to the freedom of the seas from German subs. A conference of unusual importance was held to-night at the home of Secretary of the Navy Daniels, which was called in order that high officials of the navy might go over with the members of the Naval Consulting Board the experiments already tried and those that are in prospect. Many officials declared the scientists were coming down to "brass tacks," that the period of reaching out after every suggestion was passing, and that definite crystallization of the work upon which the foremost American experts have concentrated was certain to come soon. Reports are also available to-night from Thos. A. Edison, who is at work on a somewhat different line of investigation. After the conference he will continue his experiments with inventions designed to eliminate the menace. I can only say this concerning their work that the plans are no dream. They are very important and very far-reaching.

Thursday Country Store.

Last night the great crowd at Rossley's and more people turned away than was in the theatre, all disappointed, so Mrs. Rossley having so many beautiful things on hand wishes to dispose of them, therefore for adults on Thursday, and children on again Saturday matinees. There are some handsome bedspreads, Battenburg cloths; people were astounded last night to see the costly gifts, but there's even better for Thursday. The act produced by the four clever girls last night had the house in roars. Little Kathleen more than added to her fame last night. Don't miss this act, and reduce the cost of living by attending the Country Store on Thursday night.

Good Fishing Retarded by Bad Weather.

The Board of Trade are in receipt of the late report of the fishery to the westward. The catch of codfish between Connoire Bay and Red Island to date is 4,249 qts., and for the week just ended 20. The report states that prospects are uncertain and nothing was done for a week owing to stormy weather. There is plenty of herring for local bait purposes and 60 dories, skiffs and boats are operating. Between Channel and Fort aux Esques the catch is 8,440 qts., and 31,000 lbs. of halibut. Twenty-two dories and skiffs and 8 boats are fishing. Prospects are poor though there is a good supply of herring. The weather of late has been very cold and freezing hard at nights. About Codroy there is a good sign of fish.

A Farmer on Prices

Dear Sir,—Considering the high prices of everything at the present time both in manures and seeds, the necessities of the community, I do not consider the farmer is to be blamed if he puts extra prices on his produce to try and make ends meet. We cannot sell at the same price now as we did last year, and I trust that the farmers will come together and make their own prices and publish them so that all can see what prices they have to pay. The farmer sells his produce in most cases too cheap to the shopkeeper and he in turn puts up the price and in most cases make 100 per cent. off the consumers, which is hardly fair. If a certain price was known the price each week be published in a daily paper and give all a chance to see what they have to pay and so get the goods as cheap as possible to the consumers.

Come farmers get together and don't let the shopkeeper make all the profit from the sweat of our brows. They won't drop their prices on necessities, why should we drop ours?

Trusting an able pen than mine will come out on this subject, and hoping to hear from Mr. Bayley, our energetic Secretary of Agriculture, I remain,

Yours sincerely,

For Show or Use

By RUTH CAMERON.

RUTH CAMERON

What is the primary use of a house - to impress one's friends with, or establish a home in? Miss, the little stenographer Lady, had been to call on a new acquaintance who is reputed to have a very beautiful house. Yet Miss Mollie was not enthusiastic. "Yes, it was beautifully furnished," she admitted, "but there was something wrong with it. It seemed to me as if it was all for show instead of for use."

That's a good phrase, isn't it? It picks the bubble of that empty unadorned perfection of some houses. I love to see things harmoniously chosen, clean, and in reasonably good order, but I hate to see comfort and homeliness sacrificed to utility completely subordinate appearance.

Pin Cushions As Ornaments.
For instance, it seems perfectly absurd to me to see an elaborate pin-cushion with not a pin in it, and in front of it, like the sacrifice before an altar, a pin tray holding the pins. I always feel a wild desire to plant several pins in the unmarred surface of the sacred pin-cushion. Of course it's all right to put your pins in a pin tray, but why have a pin-cushion?

A lawyer friend told me that while waiting in the library of a newly wealthy client he noticed on the book shelves a book he had long wanted to consult, and started to do so. To his utter astonishment he found that there were no books at all, only paste-board backs. Evidently They Were Only For Show.

THE SELF-STARTER.
The self-starter is a device for cranking an automobile which never works when anybody is looking on. It is a peculiar fact that a new, robust self-starter which will spin the engine one hundred times hand running, in the garage, immediately contracts creeping paralysis the moment it is asked to transact business on a crowded street. There is nothing that will cause the owner of a new car to litter up the landscape with sulphuric language quicker than to have his self-starter stutter on the four corners, and be obliged to dig the crank out from under the back seat and pump on the handle in the presence of a skeptical and unfeeling audience. Yet this happens every day, without any appreciable increase in the mortality tables.

The self-starter is the work of a genius who grew tired of cranking his car and being kicked in the right wrist by the back-fire. After several thousand people had had the same experience and were living cheerfully off their accident insurances, the self-starter was brought out and placed immediately under the right foot, where the driver could step on it while the car was in motion and strip a few cogs out of the fly wheel, at $4 per cog. This caused a number of thoughtful owners to go back to the crank and take out a few new accident policies.

The most popular form of self-starter is operated by electricity, which is fed into it by a storage battery, hung on to the running board, where it can work loose and cause a short circuit in some vital spot. The battery is kept alive by hope and rain-water, and is charged by the engine whenever the speed of the car exceeds forty-two miles an hour. When the battery dies, which usually occurs several miles from a civilized community, it can be recharged by the end of the week, provided a good start is obtained on Sunday.

There are several excellent mechanical self-starters on the market, all of which are operated by the right arm

Dig the crank out from under the back seat and pump on the handle in the presence of a skeptical and unfeeling audience.

and the back of the neck in cold weather they are superior to any other, although lacking somewhat in the insouciant grace peculiar to the electric starter when it is in good health. After all, there is no greater luxury in motoring than to be able to step buoyantly on the starter pedal and feel it take hold with a soothing sound like feeding a pair of duck-hill pliers through a corn sheller. Some day you shall have a starter which grows stouter with age, instead of going into a decline thirty minutes after the contract is signed, and then the motorist's millennium will be in sight.

Fashions and Fads.

Hats are made of organdy or crepe and trimmed with wool embroidery. Some of the prettiest new coats have long broad ties of self-material or taffeta.

Sometimes the only bright color in an entire costume is in chain or waist belt.

The black satin frock embroidered with silver embroidery is one of the prettiest.

Long, loose pockets are more graceful and fashionable than the square ones.

Leghorn hats will be worn at afternoon affairs, and they are often trimmed with narrow black velvet ribbon and one large rose.

Recruiting Statistics

OF PLACES OF A POPULATION BETWEEN 150 AND 175.

The first on this list is Northern Light with a truly magnificent percentage of ten and three-quarters. Well done! Stephenville Crossing, Ireland's Eye and Upper Gullies have all of them offered seven per cent. of their population for King and Country. Little Heart's East nearly reaches seven per cent.; and Hodge's Cove shows six and a half; while Ladie Cove, Old Bonaventure, Crabbes, Highland, Charlottetown have all offered four per cent. Well done!

The strange thing about this list is that there is a long head of excellence and a long tail of indifference. When will the places that have not yet offered a man discover their duty and do it?

Your Boys and Girls.

Whenever it becomes necessary to attend a funeral or ill bedside of a friend or relative, it is best always to leave the children at home. The solemnity of the occasion sometimes leaves the child in a depressed frame of mind, a thing that should never be encouraged.

Every child should be kept from a knowledge of the graver side of life until he is old enough to understand. His little mind cannot always grasp the situation in the right way, and unconsciously he is made morbid over the event. It never adds to the occasion to take the children along so if one can possibly leave them at home in the care of a friend or neighbour it is much better to do so.

FRENCH OFFICIAL.

PARIS, May 8. The war office issued the following statement on the campaign to-night: Northwest of Soissons and Chemin-des-Dames there was no enemy infantry action. During the course of the day German artillery was violent and counter-shelled and bombarded the Cerny-Hurtelise sector and the neighborhood of Craonne. There was grenade skirmishing east of Vauxillon. On the rest of the front, intermittent cannonade occurred. During the period of May 1st to 7th our air pilots had a number of combats with enemy aviators, in the course of which 25 German machines were brought down. Their destruction was absolutely established. In addition, 51 German machines were seriously hit and fell within their own lines, the greater part being probably destroyed. Our pilots in that period added to the number of their exploits. Capt. Cuy-nemer gained his thirty-seventh and thirty-eighth victories. Sub-Lieut Nungesser brought down three, which brings his total of enemy machines destroyed to twenty-four. Sub-Lieut. Dorne brought down his 22nd machine, Capt. Seurteaux his 21st, Lieut. Pinard his 11th and 12th, and Adjt. Hadon his 10th. The prisoners captured by the French between the 16th and 20th April, with the German divisions to which they belonged, numbered 2,333 of the Ninth Bavarian Reserve, 2,319 of the Twenty-first Division, 1,929 of the Fifth, 1,374 of the Forty-Third. These were all taken by one French Army. Another French Army took in the same period 927 of the Nineteenth Reserve Division, 1,134 of the Sixteenth Reserve, 2,139 of the 183rd, 234 of the 25th Landwehr, 343 of the 22nd, 188 of the 45th Reserve, 19 of the 211th, 10 of the 3rd Guards Division, 22 of the First Guards and 112 of various corps. A third French Army captured 3,177 officers and men in the same period. This is in addition to small batches taken in various raids.

TRENCHES LOST AND WON.

LONDON, May 8. The Germans to-day in the neighborhood of Fresnoy succeeded after heavy counter attacks in gaining a foothold in the British trenches north-east of the Village. Later, however, the British in a counter attack, regained the lost ground. This information is contained in the official statement issued this afternoon, which says: The enemy made heavy counter attacks this morning upon our positions in the neighborhood of Fresnoy. In the first of these they succeeded in gaining a foothold in our trenches, northwest of the village. Later in the morning a second attack in force was delivered by two fresh German divisions east of Fresnoy. On the right of the front attacked the enemy's troops were repulsed with heavy casualties and our positions successfully maintained. On the left after fierce resistance, our troops were compelled to withdraw from Fresnoy village and wood. Bombing operations by our airplanes continued yesterday and during the previous night, large quantities of explosives being dropped with good results. During the day seven of our airplanes carried a highly successful attack upon the enemy's observation balloons, seven of which were brought down in flames. Six German airplanes were brought down in air fighting, and two others were shot down by fire from the ground, while seven German machines were driven down out of control. Eight of our airplanes are missing.

WAR REVENUE BILL APPROVED.

WASHINGTON, May 8. The War Revenue Bill, designed to raise $1,800,000,000 by taxation during the coming year, was approved finally by the Ways and Means Committee late to-day by a unanimous vote.

WAR SUMMARY.

NEW YORK, May 8. After five days of extraordinarily heavy fighting between the Canadians and Germans, the little village of Fresnoy, southeast of Lens, and the adjacent woods is again in German hands. In taking these positions, where the Canadians stood for days holding the most advanced salient of the British line projecting towards Douai, the Germans evidently paid a terrible price. Preceded by heavy artillery fire, in which annihilating gas shells also were used, a large number of counter-attacks were launched early this morning. With machine gun and rifle fire the defenders met the Germans. They threw themselves forward, but they would not be denied, and finally penetrated the trenches northeast of the village and even entered the outskirts of the village itself. Their tenure of possession, however, was short lived, for the Canadians soon afterwards returned to the fray and drove out the Germans again and held full sway. Reforming later, reinforced by two fresh divisions, the Germans again made a bid for victory along the entire front before the village and wood. The right wing of the defenders held steadfastly and inflicted heavy losses on the Germans. The left wing, however, despite stubborn resistance, was compelled to give ground and evacuate the village and wood, leaving them in the hands of the Germans. Berlin reports that two hundred prisoners and six machine guns fell into the hands of the Germans. There has been a continuation of violent fighting southward in Bullecourt and Nieuport sectors, but no notable changes in positions have been reported. Although the latest French official statement reports no infantry action starting Tuesday along the line held by the French, in France, the Associated Press correspondent with the French armies tells of a desperate German attack south of Berry-aux-Bac, which was sanguinely repulsed, the Germans leaving behind numerous dead on the battlefield, and 120 prisoners. These prisoners, together with others taken in small raids, have brought the captures by the French since April 16th up to between 29,000 and 30,000. Artillery activity along the entire front in Macedonia continues violent, indicating the possibility of the near approach of a general offensive. Small engagements between Entente forces and Austrian and Turkish troops between Lake Ochrida and Lake Presha, and between Entente and Central Allied troops along the Tera, are reported.

BALFOUR IN THE SENATE.

WASHINGTON, May 8. Introducing Hon. A. J. Balfour to the Senate, Vice-President Marshall expressed the hope that when the war ended the free people of the earth would sit down at their council table and not arise till they have written on the firmament the legend, "I shun only for the wise, and they are not wise who are not just." Balfour declared that Germany blundered when she counted that England and America were afraid to go to war, and estimated the effect as negligible if they did. That will be the wrecking of all their hopes, he said; that is a blunder that will save civilization. I speak with confidence about the issue, said Balfour, a confidence redoubled since you have thrown in your lot. Senators LaFollette and Gronna, who voted against the war resolution and who had refrained from applause before that statement, applauded it and smiled. I see a suggestion, continued Balfour, that Germany, incapable of winning with her arms, is going to win by illegitimate submarine warfare. I do not believe it. I did not minimize the gravity of the submarine menace, I do not wish to minimize it; but after all in two and a half years of war more than one defeat of like magnitude has been met and overcome. Balfour declared the missions of the French and British marked a new epoch in the history of the free countries of the world, and in the alliance thus cemented. In it, he continued, lies some of the greatest hopes, some of the proudest expectations we dare entertain for civilization. The war is not going to be settled by the staking of helpless neutrals or sending women and children to the bottom of the ocean, but by hard fighting, and it will require the combined efforts of every man, and woman on both sides of the Atlantic. At the conclusion of Balfour's address, Senators and visitors in the galleries arose and applauded. The Senators then crowded forward to meet the party. Introductions took ten minutes, and then, escorted by the Committee, the British guests left the Chamber.

TALKING PEACE.

LONDON, May 8. A Copenhagen despatch to the Exchange Telegraph Co., says that in the Reichstag yesterday, Dr. Karl Helfferich, the German Vice-Chancellor, said that peace was necessary for the German people, adding, "We are not yet able to obtain it, and must still fight for it."

ATTACK FAILS.

From Staff Correspondent Associated Press, Great Headquarters of the French Army in France, May 8.—The Germans to-day desperately stormed the positions captured by the French to the south of Berry-aux-Bac, but they made no impression. What was left of the strong attacking waves was forced to retire leaving behind many dead and 120 prisoners in the hands of the French. Further batches of prisoners fell into the French net at other points as a result of various raids, bringing the total number of unwounded Germans taken between 29,000 and 30,000 since April 16. A German wireless message dated May 2, declares the total number of Germans unaccounted for in the battles between April 8 and 20 including dead, wounded and left on the field, and prisoners reached 7,500.

WHEAT SHORTAGE.

WASHINGTON, May 8. In the face of a threatened world shortage, the American weather wheat crop shows the lowest conditions recorded since 1888 and promises a smaller yield than any other since 1904. Winter wheat was planted last autumn on one of the largest acreages ever sown, but met disaster in several important producing States from severe winter conditions, and now promises a harvest of 356,116,000 bushels. That quantity was the forecast to-day by the Department of Agriculture, which based its estimates on the condition of the crop on May 1st.

FINAL ELECTION RESULTS.

MELBOURNE, May 8. The final result of the Commonwealth elections is as follows: House of Representatives—Liberals, 35; Hughesites, 15; Labor, 25. Senate—Liberals, 10; Hughesites, 13; Labor, 13. The National Coalition Ministry thus has majorities of 25 and 10 in the House of Representatives and Senate respectively over the Laborites.

HUNGARY.

AMSTERDAM, May 8. The explanation of the rejection by the Hungarian opposition leaders of Premier Tisza's offer of representation in the Cabinet to Count Julius Andrássy, the leader of the opposition, was declared at a meeting on Sunday of the Constitutional Party.

The offer, it was said, was a caricature of the party's demands for a complete alteration of the present system and ending the regime of absolutism. A message from Budapest states it was certain the struggle both inside and outside of parliament would take a sharper form than hitherto.

STATEMENT POSTPONED.

LONDON, May 8. The Government's statement on the Irish question has been postponed until Thursday of next week, Earl Curzon informed the House of Lords to-day.

SINKINGS.

LONDON, May 8. A substantial decrease in the number of sinkings by submarines the past week will be shown in the forthcoming weekly report of shipping losses. In fact it is stated the report will show the smallest losses in the past three weeks. No reason for this is given out by an official source, but it is plainly intimated that considerable progress has been made in the anti-submarine campaign. There is no guarantee that the weekly losses will not again assume alarming proportions, but the fact that they have been substantially reduced is very encouraging. Those in charge of the campaign believe that the new measures to combat the underwater craft are already showing gratifying results.

KING TINO.

LONDON, May 8. A despatch to the Times from Athens, dated May 2, says the King is already losing his followers. Fifty-seven officers recently left in one day for Salonika, and the stream is continuous.

Telegraphing from Salonika Sunday, Reuter's correspondent says: To-day was a great day in the history of Salonika. Mass meetings proclaimed the position of the King and dynasty. Over forty thousand persons assembled in the principal square which was addressed by various speakers. The people cheered themselves hoarse with shouts of "Long Live Venizelos," "Long Live the National Government," "Down with the King." The Mayor of Salonika presided. He proposed a resolution proclaiming the deposition of the King only, but the crowd insisted that the entire dynasty must be removed. All shops were closed and business suspended. The procession marched through the town and carried out the demonstration before the residence of former Premier Venizelos, and at other points.
