For Her Sake; —OR—
The Murder in Ferness Wood.

CHAPTER LXIII.

While at Hampt Wood she came in to contact with one who had suffered and come forth from the furnace unscathed, whose heart had been risen by sorrow, and who thus had learned to feel for the sorrows of others.

The Reverend Maurice Biddulph was Rector of St. Mary Magdalene's, Shenstone, near which village Lady Clanronald resided. For some weeks she did not care to go near the church, but her thoughts were drawn to it by reading that it was one of the oldest churches in England, and was dedicated to Mary Magdalene.

As she read the words, the picture in the National Gallery flashed before her mind's eye, and she wondered if there was a stained glass window in the old church in any way resembling it. Even to herself she hardly acknowledged that this simple tink drew her thither.

Wandering one day along the village street she saw the green hill on which the church stood, and decided to visit it. Never was old church more picturesque and beautiful, with square Norman tower and ivy-covered windows of stained glass, on which was told pictorially the story of the Magdalene. It was almost the same figure, with the same beautiful, passionate, sorrowful face, the same veil of gold on hair falling over the shoulders, the same clasped hands and upraised eyes. Round the window ran the words, "Many sins were forgiven her, because she loved much;" and Lady Clanronald read and reread those words until they sunk deep into her heart. Well-nigh every day found her standing before the window; for she had a vague feeling that it brought her nearer to Sir Lisle.

And so she came to know the Reverend Maurice Biddulph. He had noticed her frequent visits, and how she spent hours in the old church, and he called upon her. He soon became a valued friend, and in time she told him the story of her life.

"You are right," she answered. "It is a trouble so great, so bitter, that I dare not put it into words. It is like a cancer eating away my heart; but I can never tell it to any one."

"Can you forget it?" he asked.

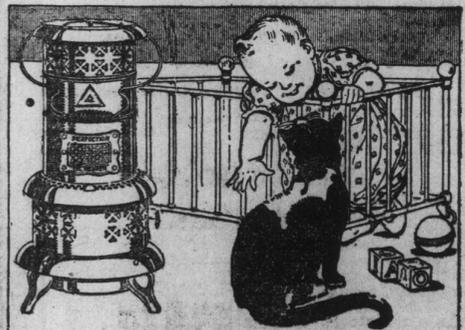

"No," she replied, sadly. "I can never forget it."

"Is it wise," he asked, "to let this trouble darken your life? It is wise to waste a life like yours in morbid brooding?"

"It is not wise; but I cannot help it," she answered.

"The only remedy seems to be to fill your life with other interests, to crush this sorrow down."

And then he opened another world to her. He took her where the poor, the sick, and the suffering led such lives as she had never dreamed of. She learned under his tuition to look on life with tolerant kindness, not to expect perfection from others, not to be dismayed by the crimes, the sins, the follies, and the shortcomings of poor humanity—to take a generous, broadminded view of the mysteries that make up human life, to forget herself, to trample self-love and pride under foot.

When a year had passed, Lady Clanronald was a different woman—her character, ennobled and refined by suffering, her heart purified as though it were by fire. She had no wish to re-enter the great world of fashion; she enjoyed her sweet pure country life filled with good deeds and charity. She grew more content and some of the beauty of her youth came back to her.

One morning—it was in the middle of June, and she was tending some roses that grew on the lawn—a telegram was put into her hands.

"From Sir Royal West, Westwater, to Lady Clanronald, Hampt Wood.—Will you come to me, Diana? The doctor says I am dying, and I desire to see you."

CHAPTER LXIV.

Once more Lady Clanronald traveled over the old familiar ground, but she did not go near Ferness. The mansion was closed, Mr. Cameron and Lady Cameron having gone abroad. Much as the master of Ferness disliked it, he was compelled to go. Lady Cameron had declared that Ferness was haunted, that she saw Lord Clanronald's face at unearthly hours, that she heard his voice; and she grew so pale, thin, and spiritless that Mr. Cameron saw that something must be done. It was his wife who suggested that they should go abroad, hoping that the dreadful tragedy attached to Ferness would be forgotten when they returned. So they went; and the magnificent mansion, with its noble terraces and conservatory, its specious and lofty rooms, all darkened by the shadow of murder and death, was left in the charge of servants.

Lady Clanronald reached Westwater, and found that Sir Royal was no worse, though anxiously expecting her.

The old housekeeper, Mrs. Caton, received her with tears in her eyes. She remembered the days when the impetuous child Diana came galloping over from Ferness, in search of Sir Royal, with a long list of sorrows and joys and a demand for immediate sympathy. Mrs. Caton remembered it all too well! And now the kind, indulgent master who had never spoken one harsh word to a creature under his roof lay dying, and the bright, impetuous girl had given place to a stately woman on whose lovely face sorrow and content seemed to struggle for mastery.

"He is longing to see you, my lady," said the weeping woman. "Every time the door opens he looks toward it as though he were expecting you; and he talks about you so much. If you will pardon the liberty, my lady, even in his sleep it is always 'Diana, Diana!'"

"Is he so very ill?" she asked, earnestly.

"I am sorely afraid he will never recover," she answered. "He has been getting slowly worse for the last five years, always complaining of the pain in his head. Indeed, my lady," she added piteously, "I am not sure but that death is best for him. He has been very strange lately, more strange than I like to see him. He has fancied that people who were nowhere near were in the room, and has talked to them always of you, my lady. You seem," she concluded, with unconscious pathos, "to fill his mind."

"Yet I have not seen him for a long time," said Lady Clanronald. "It seems very strange."

She went to the room prepared for her. How often she had been there before! She took off her travelling attire, drank the tea that Mrs. Caton brought for her, and then went to Sir Royal. How the pale face brightened! What a tender, sunny smile overspread Sir Royal's countenance when he saw her! He held out his white thin hands to her eagerly.

"Diana!" he cried. "Oh, my dear, it does my heart good to see you again!"

She went up to him, and knelt down by his bedside. She kissed the white, trembling hands that lay in hers, and her whole heart went out in loving pity to this old friend of her youth.

"I knew you would come if I sent," he said. "I could not die until I had seen you Diana."

"My dearest Royal, you will not die, I hope. I shall stay with you and nurse you."

"And be my child Diana over again?" he said, trying to smile.

"Ah, no; that can never be, never again!"

"I ought to die, Diana, and you will say so when you hear all that I have to tell. Now, stand up, dear, and let me see what the years have done to you. In my mind I see the happy child with sunshine in her eyes and on her lips, the laughing child who used to quarrel with me and make it up, and fling her arms round my neck in raptures of joy—the child who managed us strong men as adroitly as any grown woman could have done. Do you remember, Diana?"

"Yes," she replied, with a faint smile. "I remember. It seems so long ago—ah, so long ago, Royal!"

"And next," he continued, "I see the tall, slender girl, with the exquisite face whom we called Queen Diana. Do you remember Queen Diana, dear?" he asked.

And Lady Clanronald answered "Yes."

"Then came a Diana who puzzles me," he continued—"Diana with love in her eyes and scorn on her lips—Diana, whose looks tell one story and her lips another, who is bewitchingly beautiful in her caprices, who seems to have given the worship of her soul to one man and married another. Then comes a blank. The Diana who marries that unfortunate man was never known to me. Now stand up, dear, and let me see Diana as she is."

She rose at his command, and stood before him in all her stately loveliness, one of the fairest of women, her beauty refined by sorrow and suffering, patience, almost divine, shining in her clear blue eyes.

"You are just what I thought you would be," he said, slowly. "I—I do homage to you, Diana, my queen."

She knelt down again by his bedside.

"Nay," she said, gently, "rather let me do homage to you, Royal."

He took her hands in his own and held them tightly clasped.

"You will speak frankly to me, Diana," he said, "soul to soul?"

"Yes, I promise you," she replied. "Tell me first, then, whether you are happy."

"I am as happy as I can ever be in this world," she said. "I try to devote my life to good works, and I find my happiness in them."

"Tell me," he pursued—"are you happier now—happier as a widow than you were as a wife?"

The question seemed to pain her. "Must I answer your question, Royal?" she asked.

"Yes," he cried; "tell me the whole truth, nothing but the truth. It was to hear the truth that I wished to see you."

What Jellicoe Told to Sims.

The secret story of the submarine war is begun by Admiral Sims, of the United States Navy. Admiral Sims states that when he arrived in London in April, 1917, at the time when America entered the war, his illusion disappeared. The British Admiralty placed before him facts and figures which had not been given to the Press. These documents, he said, disclosed the astounding fact that Germany was winning the war, and winning it at a rate that in four or five months meant the unconditional surrender of the British Empire.
Admiral Sims, to whom the writer pays a high tribute, handed him a record of tonnage losses for the last few months, and "I was fairly astounded. In my wildest moments I had never imagined anything so terrible," says Admiral Sims. "I expressed my consternation to Admiral Jellicoe. Admiral Jellicoe said that stop these losses, and stop them soon. Jellicoe expected the situation would get worse."
So far as Admiral Sims could learn, there was a general belief in British naval circles that the German plan to clear the sea of shipping in 1917 would succeed. The best authorities calculated that Britain would reach the limit of her endurance about November 1, 1917, unless some method of fighting submarines could be found.
It was the seriousness of the situation, of course, that sent Mr. Balfour and the British Commission to the United States. "At that time," Mr. Balfour afterwards said to Admiral Sims, "it certainly looked as if we were going to lose the war."
"Of all the influential men in the British Government there was only one," states Admiral Sims, "who took an optimistic attitude. This was Lloyd George."

Flickinger, while a private in the 37th (Ohio National Guard), Division, in training at Camp Sheridan, Mass., rescued the woman in a runaway accident. Wednesday he was notified by an agent of the Cohasset Iron and Mining Company that by the woman's will leases of mining rights on lands near Montgomery have been given to him.

A Study of the Charms.

AND SPELLS OF AFGHANISTAN. The charms of Afghanistan have, in most cases, been written by Mullahs or Faqueers, and the people place an unquestioning belief and unfinching trust in them. These charms, spells and divinations seem to show that they are to a great extent the outcome of the religious traditions and beliefs of the country, and, as is only to be expected, a large number are exotic and can be traced to Indian and Persian ideas. No dish of white pudding is ever eaten without Sora "La-ay-laf" being muttered over the dish. This is done to avert the evil of the servants or of any one who may have looked at the food in such a way as to cause disease to those who eat it. If a party in a boat is overtaken in a storm, passages are read from the Koran to appease the fury of the water. On a dark night a woman who finds herself alone has only to mutter a passage from the Holy Book in order to shield herself from all evil, and with a sword in her hand and a Sora on her lips she can travel any distance without the slightest fear of being harmed.
Many people will sit down in meditation before a grave, and, by holding their breath as long as possible, derive inspiration from a saint. Superstitious women select a particular grave in which to make their offerings, and every Thursday night they either take or send a female servant with an earthenware lamp, with a cotton thread as a wick, which they burn at the head of the grave. Often sweets or flowers are taken as offerings, or butter or roghun (ghos) is burnt in a lamp instead of oil; while some show their respect by having the grave sprayed with water during the summer months.

Bringing assistance to ships in distress at sea is the latest duty given to the U.S. Army Air Service.

The formation of a Coast Air Patrol was announced Wednesday at Mitchell Field by Col. Miller, the commandant. The patrol will be maintained by the 5th Aero Squadron, and will have charge of the coast from Mineola, N.Y., to Langley Field, Va. The flights to the Virginia point will be non-stop. Each plane on patrol will be equipped with wireless and news of any ship found in distress will be flashed to the nearest life-saving station.

Will Germany Resist?

Franco-British Military Heads in Discussion -- Peace Treaty Must Go Through -- Mexico Releases Jenkins -- U. S. Senate Still Has Last Word.

BRITISH CHIEF OF STAFF IN PARIS.

PARIS, Dec. 5. Field Marshal Sir Henry Hughes Wilson, Chief of the British Imperial Staff, arrived in Paris to-day.

ALLIES CONTEMPLATING FORCE.

LONDON, Dec. 5. The official announcement that Field Marshal Wilson has gone to Paris in response to an "urgent summons to consult Marshal Foch in connection with the Peace Treaty," is regarded by some morning newspapers as of considerable significance. It is printed alongside of an address made in Glasgow last evening by Andrew Bonar Law in which he said he believed the Allies had the power, and if necessary will exercise it, to insure the ratification of the Versailles Treaty by Germany. It is suggested that steps to exert pressure on Germany may be imminent.

PREPARING NEW NOTE TO GERMAN.

PARIS, Dec. 5. The Supreme Council of the Peace Conference this morning considered the further note to be sent to Germany regarding the signature of the protocol of the peace treaty, but did not complete the document. The participation by Marshal Foch in a secret meeting of the Supreme Council yesterday clearly indicated that the Council considers military action in case Germany should commit any new infraction of the Treaty terms, according to newspapers here.

PRES. WILSON DISCUSSES MEXICAN SITUATION.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5. President Wilson will see Senator Fall, Republican, New Mexico, and Hitchcock, Democrat, Nebraska, at 2.30 this afternoon, to discuss the Mexican situation.

WILL USE FORCE IF NECESSARY.

GLASGOW, Dec. 5. Addressing a political demonstration here this evening, Andrew Bonar Law, Lord Privy Seal and Government Leader in the House of Commons, alluded to Germany's apparent attempt to evade the ratification of the Peace Treaty owing to the delay of the United States Senate in adopting it. Mr. Bonar Law said that he spoke for the Government, and he believed for the Allies, in declaring that they had the power and if necessary would exercise it to insure ratification by Germany of the Treaty.

IS GERMANY BEHIND MEXICO.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5. Mexico has 24 war type airplanes mobilized at Chihuahua city alone and is obtaining additional planes from Germany, according to War Department information to the House Military Committee to-day by Brigadier General Mitchell, chief of operations of the army air service. The Department also has information from sources, General Mitchell said, that former pilots in the German army are arriving in Mexico for service in the army air forces there.

JENKINS RELEASED.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5. The Mexico Embassy notified the State Department to-day that U. S. Consular Agent Jenkins at Puebla has been released.

ITALIAN STRIKE AT END.

ROME, Dec. 5. An order for the discontinuation of the general strike called after the recent disturbance following the opening of Parliament has been generally obeyed. The strikers as a unit have resumed work here and in other towns affected by the strike.

ROUNDING OFF THE DOMINION.

TORONTO, Ont., Dec. 5. In conjunction with the suggested confederation of Newfoundland and the West Indies with the Dominion of Canada, the following has been handed to the Canadian Press by one of the promoters thereof: Harry J. Crowe, recognized as the foremost champion of full confederation for Canada, the British West Indies and Newfoundland, has just left on a special mission to the Ancient Colony, the exact scope and purpose of which is not yet disclosed.

WILSON LEAVES TREATY WITH SENATE.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5. President Wilson has no intention of withdrawing the Peace Treaty from the Senate for the present, Senator Hitchcock of Nebraska announced to-day after his visit to the President. He discussed the Treaty question with the President briefly after the conference on the Mexican situation. The President thinks the failure of the Senate to act on the Treaty at the special session shifted the responsibility in the matter to "other shoulders," Senator Hitchcock said, adding, "he is not going to let it stay where it is at present."

MEXICANS RAID U. S. RANCH.

ZAPATA, Texas, Dec. 5. Mexican bandits last night raided the Clarence ranch on the American side of the Rio Grande, 11 miles South East of here, escaping into Mexico with provisions from a store on the ranch.

THE FLIGHT OF THE KANGAROO.

LONDON, Dec. 5. Capt. G. S. Wilkins, flying in the airplane Kangaroo, which with a crew of four men left Hounslow airfield Nov. 22nd, in an attempt to fly to Australia, arrived at Taranto, southern Italy, on Wednesday.

DECISION REVERSED.

LONDON, Dec. 5. The Judicial Committee of the Privy Council has reversed the decision of the Canadian Supreme Council in the suit involving the sinking of the steamer Empress of Ireland in the St. Lawrence River. The Court gave the passengers of the sunken vessel preference in the distribution of the proceeds from the sale of the Stordad, the collier which rammed the liner. In its decision the Privy Council decided that the Canadian Pacific Company shall share in the proceeds of the sale.

THE COAL STRIKE.

CHICAGO, Ill., Dec. 5. Efforts of Governors of at least ten states to have sufficient coal mined to provide for uses of domestic and absolutely essential industries marked the progress to-day of the strike of the Bituminous coal miners.

NIERE SUBTERFUGE.

VIENNA, Dec. 5. Bela Kun, Hungarian Dictator during the Soviet regime, will under no circumstances be surrendered to Hungary, according to a declaration made by Dr. Karl Renner, Austrian Chancellor, in answering an interpolation as national bail expired when they were surrendered by their counsel at the demand of the Department of Labor. He says that to surrender Bela Kun would be to jeopardize the lives of the Austrians now in Russia.

GERMANY SENDS ANSWER.

PARIS, Dec. 5. Germany's answer has reached Paris, according to the Temps. Reply has not yet been submitted to the Peace Conference delegates assembly to-day.

ST. HELENA WOULD BE BETTER.

NEW YORK, Dec. 5. Alexander Berkman and Emma Goldman, his companion, in thirty years of anarchistic activity were sent from the mainland of the United States to-day probably never to return. They were ordered deported for urging the overthrow of the Government by violence. They were taken by ferry to the Immigration station at Ellis Island, in New York harbor, where they will be held until a ship is available to send them to Russia whence they came.

New Winter Footwear

Winter Models are distinctive

There is much to interest the discriminating woman in the newest models of fashionable footwear, for the style-makers have been alert to produce shoes of character and distinctiveness.

Smart looking footwear is recognized as the one important finishing touch to the costume of the well-dressed woman. And we could say much for the exceptionally attractive styles that will prevail this fall.

Graceful of line and correctly proportioned, the nine-inch boot will doubtless be the favorite. These will come in all-leather of the finer sort, while kid vamps, with cloth tops to match, will find increasing favor.

Really, the showing of new models was never more attractive or comprehensive. Your early inspection is invited.

Side Talk by Ruth C.

THE PICTURES WE MAKE

In a story I was reading today the hero proposes to the heroine coming down in an elevator in an office building.

Rather an unusual place to propose. Heroes, I have noticed lately, show a tendency to propose in new and unconventional places. The conservatory, the moonlit garden, the flap in front of the open fire, the red cross hospital, the elevator car. And in the last one I read before this, the hero proposed in a half-deserted railway station while waiting for the nine-ten.

Of course the activities of the modern heroine are considerably different from those of her predecessor and she hero must go where he is likely to find her if he wants to propose. I say that for myself I rather enjoy the change, though I might be a bit of a return to the conservatory in the course of time.

The Elevator I Always See. But I digress too far. What I started to say was that as I read the description of the proposal in an elevator I suddenly became conscious that I was visualizing a very old-fashioned elevator in an old-fashion-office building on Tremont street in a city many miles from here. I further examined myself and found that whenever I read of an elevator in a story or news item that the elevator I always picture.

Then I asked myself why, and gradually it all came back to me: That is the elevator in which we used to go up to see an old aunt of mine who worked in a millinery shop and whom I always used to call on whenever I went to town in my childhood days.

Styles in Elevators and Proposals Have Changed. That was my first elevator. It had the deepest impression on my mind, and hence it comes into my mind to visualize any reference to an elevator, though styles in elevators have changed as much as styles in

THE PICTURES WE MAKE FOR OURSELVES.

In a story I was reading to-day the heroine proposes to the hero coming down in an elevator in an office building. Rather an unusual place to propose. Heroes, I have noticed lately, show a tendency to propose in new and unconventional places. The conservatory, the moonlit garden, the sea in front of the open fire are deserted in favor of the business office, the red cross hospital, the electric car. And in the last one I read where this, the hero proposed in a half-deserted railway station while waiting for the nine-ten. Of course the activities of the modern heroine are considerably different from those of her predecessor and the hero must go where he is likely to find her if he wants to propose. I must say that for myself I rather enjoy the change, though I might be ready for a return to the conservatory in the course of time.

The Elevator I Always See.

But I digress too far. What I started to say was that as I read the description of the proposal in an elevator I suddenly became conscious that I was visualizing a very old-fashioned elevator in an old-fashioned office building on Tremont street in my city many miles from here. I further examined myself and found that whenever I read of an elevator in a story or news item that is the elevator I always picture.

Then I asked myself why, and gradually it all came back to me: That was the elevator in which we used to go up to see an old aunt of mine who worked in a millinery shop and whom we always used to call on whenever we went to town in my childhood days.

Styles in Elevators and Proposals Have Changed.

That was my first elevator. It had made the deepest impression on my mind, and hence it comes into my mind to visualize any reference to an elevator, though styles in elevators have changed as much as styles in CONSCIENCE.

There is no sorrow quite so keen as that which marks an action mean: No hurts so sharp, as those which fall from angry words we can't recall. How'er by foes we are assailed, There's no disgrace in having failed. So bitter, when the past we scan, As having failed to play the man.

Who once has done a cruel thing Long afterwards shall feel its sting. Who once upon life's changing stage Has wounded, in an hour of rage By blows unfair or deed unkind His fellow man, shall live to find That never more is he to claim His freedom from regret and shame.

Were we to live our lives anew, How many things we would not do, Could we this journey brief remake, How many gains we'd scorn to take, How many joys we'd gladly leave, Rather than pay their bitter price, Man's greatest shame in every test Is having failed to be his best.

Man's conscience is a master stern, As each of us has come to learn, And he who by some thoughtless deed Has caused another's heart to bleed Shall suffer till life runs its course The keenest anguish of remorse. With him its memory long shall live; Self cannot self its wrongs forgive.

A Leader of Men.

Lord Allenby well deserves that honor, for he is as gifted a leader of men as he is fearless and single-minded. His wonderful overthrow of the great Turkish-German Army in Palestine is one of the greatest and most brilliant military triumphs of history, and his subsequent work in all the vast territory wrested from the Turk in Asia, though done in silence and out of the range of the public vision, no less stamps him as one of our greatest men. His organizing skill, and his handling of men of faring creeds and races, have achieved a triumph which may well take rank with the great achievements of a Kitchener or a Cromer. He has reduced chaos into order, and has established the promise of a great future for this cradle of the civilized world, which may lead up to restoration of all and more than all of its ancient glories. So long as our breed can raise such men, the British Empire will never fail to find a leader equal to every emergency. — Birmingham Post.

Important!

Every man starting out in business will have to go over a hard road and find out its turnings for himself. But he need not go over his road in the dark if he can take with him the light of other men's experience.

What are the familiar objects which have woven themselves into the visualization of what you read? Watch yourself sometime and notice just for the interest of it.

Chiffon velvet is ideal for the little crush hats worn with fur coats. Silver slippers are among the most fashionable for evening wear.

A chic overblouse of black taffeta is widely bandied with jet polliettes.

Fashions and Fads.

Buttons are growing larger. Ostrich muffs are Paris novelties. Wraps are gayer than ever in color. The extensive use of fur is still popular.

Bright hued hats are worn with fur coats. Eton tailored suits are prophesied for spring. Skirts for evening wear are generally short.

The Medici collar is favored on the newest suits. Wide hips are not favored for sports skirts.

The high boot lacks its usual winter popularity. The holiday handkerchiefs are in brilliant colors.

The favorite fur for the wrap collar is chinchilla. Batik decoration for negligees is growing in favor.

The newest silhouettes in Paris is known as beetle. It is hinted that the hour-glass figure is returning. Frilly styles of neckwear are in the prettiest vogue.

The most popular outer wrap continues to be the cape. The low French heel has gained enormous popularity.

WALT MASON

I am not very wise or clever, but this seems patent to my eye: The good old virtues live forever; all other living issues die. We hear so much of Vital Issues, which keep us staring for a day, and then, like other fragile tissues they shrivel and are blown away. The transient things are oft alluring, gold bricks in every age have shone; but Thrift is evermore enduring, and Industry still holds its own. Short cuts to wealth, short cuts to honor, short cuts to fame confront all men; but he who takes them is a goner, in fourteen cases out of ten. That road is long the man must travel who'd fairly win the nobler prize, and often he will damp the gravel with tears from worn and weary eyes. Still Perseverance is a treasure, as in the younger days of earth; and Honesty's the truest measure to gauge the mortal pilgrim's worth. And Loyalty and Truth are standing triumphant while the ages roll, the good old virtues, still commanding the homage of the healthy soul. He wastes his time who fools and bothers with fads and fads; he who keeps up to date; the good old virtues of our fathers are all he needs to make him great.

We Always Climb Out.

Last spring we Americans were considerably disturbed over the prospect that our British friends were going to smash with a soviet government. We could see all the big labor organizations there getting together to govern the country under minority rule. But they didn't.

Similarly in the last few weeks the British brethren here in America exercised over the prospect of our reverting to chaos over the same equally disagreeable. The common folk looked to them the end of freedom. But it wasn't.

To-day's Messages.

A FORTUNE FOR SOME ONE.

NEW YORK, Dec. 5. A prize of 1,000,000 has been offered for the invention of an airplane which will rise and land vertically. It was learned here to-day that the offer was by Edmond and Andre Michelin, French tire manufacturers, through the Aero Club of France and was announced by the Aero Club of America. A machine which can take off from the roof of a medium sized house, and land at the same place is desired. It is also specified in the terms that the winning machine must have the greatest possible range of speed up to 184 miles an hour.

WILL FIGHT NEXT YEAR.

LONDON, Dec. 5. C. B. Cochrane, promoter of the Carpenter-Beckett fight, announced to-day that George Carpenter has signed an agreement to fight Jack Dempsey, the American heavy-weight champion, next year. The purse will be 35,000 pounds, the winner taking sixty per cent, and the loser forty.

BRITAIN WAKING UP.

LONDON, Dec. 5. Sir Hamar Greenwood, under Secretary for the home affairs, in an address to-day before the Chamber of Commerce of London, announced that the Foreign Secretary was about to appoint a committee of representative men to inquire into the best method for promoting British Chambers of Commerce in all the cities of the world.

VATICAN IN NATION'S LEAGUE.

BRUSSELS, Dec. 5. The committee of the conference of the Association for the League of Nations decided to-day that the Holy See could not be regarded as a nation, but expressed the view that it was a power, and that there was no important reason for exclusion of the Vatican from representation in the League of Nations. The question was referred to a special committee.

TO WHAT PURPOSE.

BERLIN, Dec. 5. A parliamentary sub-commission, number one, which is to occupy itself with the investigation of pre-war diplomacy, met to-day under the chairmanship of Deputy Dr. Ernst Quarek, representative from Frankfurt-on-Main, for the social democrats, and definitely formulated a series of questions, which are to be submitted in advance to thirty former German Diplomatic, political and military leaders, who later are to be summoned for personal cross-examination. Among these to be questioned are Dr. Von Bethmann Hollweg, former Chancellor, Herr Von Jagow, ex-Foreign Secretary, and Alfred Zimmermann also a former Foreign Secretary.

WILL NOT BE EPIDEMIC.

OTTAWA, Dec. 6. Dr. Amyot, Deputy Minister of the Department of Health, who has just returned from Winnipeg, where he had been investigating an epidemic of so-called sleeping sickness, to-day issued the following statement in regard to the matter. "The Department of Health as a result of its own observation, and information furnished by the provinces reports in reference to the present cases of sleeping sickness occurring in Canada, that the disease is at present largely confined to the Province of Manitoba. Since its appearance, only forty cases have been reported in the Province. It would therefore seem that no such sleeping epidemic has happened or is in the case of influenza, is likely to occur."

CLAGARY HAS IT.

CALGARY, Dec. 6. With four new cases of so-called sleeping sickness, and another death Thursday, outbreak of the wadaly has reached epidemic proportions in Calgary. Up to date, out of ten cases of the disease there have been four deaths.

D'ANNUNZIO PLANNING RAID.

PARIS, Dec. 5. The Jugo Slav delegation in Paris is informed that D'Annunzio, the Italian insurgent leader, is planning to raid Cattaro, Spalato and the territory opposite Ljubljana, according to a statement issued by the delegation to-day. Ten thousand of D'Annunzio's forces will be used in the enterprise, it was said. The delegation announced that it had already notified the Supreme Council that Jugo Slav troops had been ordered to repulse with arms any attack on Jugo Slav territory.

A PLEASANT PROSPECT.

PARIS, Dec. 5. Germany will be called upon, in a rigorous note, which the Supreme Council of the Peace Conference will complete to-day, to yield immediately to the Allied demand that the protocol of the Versailles treaty be signed, according to the "Excelsior". The newspaper says it had reliable information that Washington has advised Berlin to adopt a more conciliatory attitude. If ratification is not completed by December 31, says the Echo de Paris, certain clauses of the pact will be rendered impracticable, and the Allies will be obliged to submit to Germany a new protocol, which would result in still further delay.

CARRANZAS CLOSES OIL WELLS.

HOUSTON, Texas, Dec. 6. President Carranzas threat to close all producing oil wells in Mexico since the decree nationalising petroleum lands went into effect, was made good during the past week, according to advices received from Tampico by the oil weekly, published here. The Mexican Governments action cuts Mexico's oil production by nearly four hundred thousand barrels a day.

The regular meeting of the St. John's Mechanics' Society will be held in their Hall on Monday evening next at 8.30 o'clock. J. A. LEAHY, Secretary.—dec6,11

Old Favourites to Perform.

On Xmas Day afternoon and night, Mr. T. M. White and his company of Old Favourites will revive the celebrated drama, "Con, the Shaughraun." The C. C. C. Band will be present, and the public is assured beforehand of a very enjoyable performance. This amateur theatrical company is an old-time one, well-known in the city for the excellence of its plays, and that a big crowd will see the coming performance is certain.

McMurdo's Store News.

SATURDAY, Dec. 6, 1915. McMurdo's Peroxide Cream is a night as well as a day cream, combining most of the advantages of a cold cream with those of a vanishing cream, and being useful for most of the purposes for which either cream may be employed. Our Peroxide Cream, during the short time it has been on the market, has been steadily increasing in popularity, until it may now be reckoned one of the most sought after creams in the whole list of such articles. It is a light, white, pleasantly perfumed cream that rubs right into the skin, leaving it delightfully soft and smooth, healing abrasions, curing chaps, and feeding the surface generally. A jar of McMurdo's Peroxide Cream at 40c. is a good buy.

Being a man's store, we pride ourselves on expertise in choosing the sort of things that men really appreciate, and want. Such a variety as we show simplifies selection, removes every element of doubt as to style, correctness, quality, utility. BISHOP, SONS & CO., LTD.

He's a Nice Boy.

(From the Detroit Free Press.) The Prince of Wales, in leaving the United States, takes with him the good wishes of Americans for his future welfare. The Prince has won the American heart by his unaffected manner, his democratic ways and his genial good nature. He has the shy, retiring disposition of his father, and the same ability to deliver good speeches in a clear, resonant voice of wonderful carrying power, and to this he seems to add some of the diplomatic tact of his grandfather.

It was the policy of King George and Queen Mary to bring up their children in the most democratic manner possible, and the Prince was sent to a public school where he associated with boys of the middle class to a very great extent, and competed with them in study and in sport. If he had any ideas about kings being "Gods" anointed, he laid them down when he entered the school gates and forgot all about them. The result of such upbringing has been a clean, healthy, normal lad with no nonsense about him. He is a good type of the British youth, the type that may be seen by the thousands at any of the old country universities.

Fads and Fashions.

Rows of stitching in bright colors are chic trimming. Long sleeves continue in favor for all the practical waists. Printed Georgette skirts are said to be a coming novelty. The more subdued the color the richer the fabric must be. Accordion-pleated skirts are good in use.

BOY SCOUTS' COLUMN.

THE MONTH.

The month of December is the month of all months loved by the ancient astronomers, for having no proper instruments this month was by far the best to watch the stars with the naked eye.

The Long Night Moon, as the Indians called it, is the time to study the stars. December is also an excellent month to study evergreens and to collect their twigs and cones. The real month to prepare to raise an entertainment is this month. Incidentally the Gower St. Troop are holding one on the 16th. Good Luck!

SOME SCOUT "STUNTS."

Inter-Patrol Competitions should be always made by an Scoutmaster. We give some good competitions below.

FIND THE NORTH.

Scouts or, better still, patrols, are posted about thirty yards apart. Each boy lays down pointing in some stated direction. The umpire compares them with a compass. The boy nearest to the direction wins the prize (if one be offered).

KIM'S GAME.

I will not go into particulars of this game as it is one which every first class Scout knows, but I merely suggest it for inter-patrol work.

INTER-TROOP COMPETITIONS.

What gave me the idea of inter-patrol work was the following challenge:

Editor Scout Column. Dear Sir,—Would you please publish this challenge in your column: A picked team of six Scouts of the 2nd St. John's Troop (S.B.C.) challenge any other team to a competition in either "Kim's Game," "Find the North," or "Shop Window." The challenged are to appoint the day and place, and the challengers the umpire. Apply to this office. Thank you, Mr. Scout Editor. Yours Scoutingly, R. S. FURLONG, Asst. S.M.

Who will accept? Write me and I will notify the St. Bon's Scouts. Yours Scoutingly, SHEBOYGO.

THE WOLF CUBS.

Editor Boy Scout Column. Dear Sir,—Our meeting was held as usual this week and 42 Cubs were present, our register is now filled as we have 55 on it, 13 more than we should have, packs being complete at 35.

Our routine was as follows: Cub's prayer, physical exercise, signalling, boxing the compass, the game of "this and that," and also indoor baseball. After all this we had a short rehearsal for the concert. We find that we do not have time enough to do one-half of the programme. The Cub movement in Gower Street, is going fine, and we hope to see other packs form up soon. The pack would like to be known as the 1st St. John's Pack.

I am, yours Scoutingly, DONALD LEWIS, Cub Master. (Editor's Note.—It will give us great pleasure to publish an abbreviated account of the convention proceedings at Pictou last summer, but as an additional caution, not too long, please.)

YOUR FLASHLIGHT.

Here is a good way to revive a worn-out battery. Make a hole in each of the cells of the battery with a nail, and then lay them in enough water to cover them and leave them for some time. When you take the battery out it will show a bright light as when you first bought it. Another way is to place the battery in a hot oven for just a few minutes.

THE BOY.

Put me in touch with the heart of the boy. Let me study his doubts and fears; Let me try to show him the way of life, And help him avoid his fears.

For the heart of the boy in his buoyancy Is the one that is pure and free; So put me in touch with the heart of the boy, The heart of the Man-to-be.

HOW THE INDIAN HUNTS DEER.

Chief Thunderbolt, of the Iroquois Indians, Brockville, some time ago visited the Scout Troops and gave the boys lectures on Indian life and customs, which was most entertaining and instructive. His remarks about the way the "Paleface" hunts deer, and the methods the Indian uses, were most illuminating. He said: "The Paleface goes hunting deer in the daytime, which is wrong, for all wild life in the bush likes to sleep and rest in the daytime. The cat sleeps all day and makes noises all night, for instance. Then the Paleface sends out his dogs and they chase the deer a long way from camp, and if the Paleface shoots one deer, he has a long way to bring it into camp."

The Indian goes out with his boy at night not far from his camp. He lights a fire, then another, and still another, till he has fires all in a circle. Then he sits quietly down and waits for the deer to come. When the fire bell rings in the middle of the night, and a big fire breaks out in town, Paleface gets up, puts his clothes on and goes out to see the fire. He likes to see a big fire. He is curious. So, too, is the deer. He sees fire and comes to look. Then the Indian and his boy shoot the deer, or if they only wound it, they can easily get the deer because the light of the fire has dazzled the eyes of the deer, and it cannot see where to go. So the Indians get the deer near to the camp. That is the difference between Paleface, who is so clever, and the poor Indian, who knows nothing."

Supreme Court.

(Before Chief Justice and Mr. Justice Kent.)

Steer Bros. vs. D. A. Costa. McNelly for plaintiff asks that motion for a day be enlarged till Monday.

J. A. Robinson vs. The Daily Star Publishing Co. Howley, K.C., for plaintiff moves for Friday next for trial before a special jury. H. A. Winter consents. It is ordered accordingly.

W. A. Munn, App., vs. George Hawes, Resp. The application made by Mr. Winter on Thursday for a commission to take evidence abroad was refused. Mr. H. A. Winter for applicant is heard on motion that the judgment of Johnson, J., be set aside and that judgment be entered for plaintiff. Court adjourned at 1 p.m.

Maternity Home

Fifth Days Donations to $6633.

The drive for the Maternity Home continued most successfully yesterday. Lady and gentlemen workers on the job early and late and with splendid results, so that the total now amounts to $75,840.

Thursday and Monday yet to go—days; will the objective $100,000 be reached? The team workers say yes; and their friends and porters who have seen their energy and determination during the fortnight believe they will "go over top." The number of subscribers received yesterday was the largest for any single day during the campaign, showing that the collectors have lost none of their keenness are just as determined to root the dollars as they were in the early part of the week. Hon. M. G. Carter was in his place as chairman and at 9 last night and addressed the gathering. He congratulated ladies and gentlemen on their efforts during the day; all had done handsomely and if they continued at the pace to-day and Monday he fully believed the sum aimed at will be realized.

- Mr. Dunbar then took the floor, the following amounts of one hundred dollars or more were announced by the team captains: A. E. Hickman $500.00, Aders, Howell & Co. 400.00, Monroe 250.00, Peep 250.00, Lawrence Flour Mills 250.00, Lawrence Trust Co. 200.00, Whitely 100.00, Rendell 100.00, S. Sellers 100.00, W. W. Maternity Home Campaign.

Fifth Days Donations Amount to $6638.80.

The drive for the Maternity Home continued most successfully yesterday. Lady and gentlemen workers were on the job early and late and with splendid results, so that the grand total now amounts to $75,840.

Saturday and Monday yet to go—how many days will the objective $100,000 be reached? The team workers say yes; and their friends and supporters who have seen their energy and determination during the week firmly believe they will "go over the top." The number of subscribers received yesterday was the largest for any single day during the campaign, showing that the collectors have lost none of their keenness and are just as determined to root out the dollars as they were in the early part of the week. Hon. M. G. Winter was in his place as chairman yesterday at 9 last night and addressed the gathering. He congratulated the ladies and gentlemen on their efforts during the day; all had done splendidly and if they continued at the same pace to-day and Monday he fully believed the sum aimed at will be realized.

Mr. Dunbar then took the floor, and the following amounts of one hundred dollars or more were announced by the team captains:—
A. E. Hickman, $500.00
Messrs. Howell & Co., 400.00
Messrs. Monroe, 250.00
Peep, 250.00
Lawrence Flour Mills, 250.00
Messrs. Trust Co., 200.00
Messrs. Stanley, 100.00

PILE
Do not suffer another day with itching, bleeding, or smarting piles. No surgical operation required.
Messrs. Edmondson, Bates & Co., Limited, 100, South West Street, St. John's, Newfoundland. Sample box free if you mention this advertisement. Enclose 2c. stamp to pay postage.

Mrs. Frank Bradshaw won the divisional flag amidst great applause. Captains Mrs. Clift and Mrs. Ayre also caused no little excitement. They almost tied and the workers clapped their efforts in a most enthusiastic manner.

Mr. Dunbar also announced that during the day he had visited the Reid Newfoundland Co.'s machine shops and work stopped between 1 and 1.30, and he had the pleasure of addressing about five hundred men. Twenty members of the shop committee are in charge of the lists in ten or more departments. They will report on Monday night.

Yesterday was free for all, and an early visit was made by several of the team workers to the various hotels in the city. Mrs. R. G. Winter called at the Cochrane House and received $150.00.

MONDAY IS TAG DAY.

The public are asked to remember that nearly $25,000 are still needed to reach the objective, and consequently they will consent to be tagged early and often. Mrs. Adby, who is in charge has an earnest band of workers assisting her, and they are prepared to stand on the streets all day. To-day was to have been Tag Day, but because of the disagreeable weather, the taggers were called in. Some of Thursday's contributors were:—
Nicholl, Inkpen & Chafe, $100.00
McGuire's Bakery, 100.00
White Clothing Co., 100.00
Mary McNeill, 100.00
R. J. Winter, 100.00

Lost—A Wife.

A laborer residing in the West End, called at the Police station last night and reported that his wife had left him since Monday last, and though he made thorough search for her, the truant wife could not be found. Enquiry from the woman's father, who resides in a nearby outport, failed to elicit any information. The husband informed the police that there was no trouble in the home as far as he knew, and that there was complete harmony between them during their several years of married life.

Shepherd's Pic.

(From an Exchange.)

It was the rush hour in one of those up-to-date, quick-lunch places where you help yourself and use the arm of your chair as a table.
A man called for shepherd's pie, and chose a chair; then, remembering that he wanted coffee, he dashed over to the counter. When he returned with his coffee his chair was occupied by another hurry-up diner.
"Excuse me," said the first man, "but this is my chair."
"How do you know it is your chair?" demanded the occupant, in a surly tone.
"Because I can prove it," stated the first man.
"How can you prove it?" asked the occupier.
"By your clothes," was the reply.
"You are sitting on my lunch!"

Saturday, December 6, 1919.

Still Unproductive.

The bituminous coal miners' strike in the United States is bringing serious results in its train and industrial collapses are becoming of daily occurrence. So severe have become conditions that shut-downs of less essential industries have been ordered, the consequence of which has been to throw two hundred thousand extra men out of work. These added to the already large number of unemployed will make a huge army, and will inevitably tend to add to the troubles and difficulties of an exceedingly complicated situation. The conservation of soft coal will not in any way assist in helping either the men, who have been put out of employment, or their families, and thus the problem of adequately providing for the hundreds of thousands of men, women and children, will be one of the most complex ever presented to the State or Federal Government. For it is obvious that these people cannot be allowed to starve to death. Their care thus becomes a first lien on the State.

But without production how is it possible for the State to look after and feed the armies of industry which are idle through no fault of theirs? With stilled machinery and silent factories, the manufacturing plants cannot turn out the articles of commerce which bring in the revenues necessary to prosperity. The coal mines being, at present, unproductive, have paralyzed every industry which requires steam to turn its engine wheels, and a coal famine stares the northern and border States in the face. Legislation appears to be powerless to arrange an adjustment of the trouble, and legal injunctions have no force, for the law cannot compel a man to work if he is unwilling. "The injunction," says the New York Times, commenting editorially on the matter, "may have ended the coal strike, but it has not produced coal: nor is it likely to, not even if the mandate be broadened to take in individual miners and operators as well. The miners cannot be forced to dig coal under conditions of employment unsatisfactory to them: neither can the mine operators be compelled to sell coal if they are dissatisfied with their costs and profits." And by reason of this the mines are tied up: the miners are unwilling to return to work at former rates of remuneration: a deadlock is brought about, and the public (as invariably) suffers. And yet with singular magnanimity are assisting the families of the dissatisfied men to keep alive.

Knowling's Stationery.

none too good for the laying in of sufficient quantities to tide over the cold months during which ship communication with the Sydneys or Louisburg is next to impossible. Even as it is local restrictions, which were thought to have vanished with the end of the war, have been reintroduced for the purpose of conserving the small stocks of coal available for domestic consumption, and lengthening them out in order that no undue suffering and inconvenience will ensue. A wise provision under the circumstances. And not only in this Dominion are these restrictions placed on coal consumption. The Canadian authorities have awakened to the unprecedented state of existing affairs and have placed the export of coal from Cape Breton under license. In other words, Canada will coal ration all other countries purchasing from the Cape Breton collieries. Newfoundland is included.

And yet there are hundreds of millions of tons of coal in this island. A hidden source of wealth undeveloped to any great extent, but one which would render the Dominion independent of outside supplies for countless years. True some little exploitation and attempts at development have been carried on, but the time has now arrived when every energy, every dollar that can be spared should be directed toward the opening up of the natural resources, in coal as in others, of Newfoundland. Development means progress: progress means wealth: wealth means prosperity and prosperity means independence. Why then should the coal areas of Newfoundland, with their value incalculable, remain so utterly unproductive? If encouragement or assistance or concessions are needed, let not any Government balk at lending the first, giving the second and granting the latter. The reward for such aid will come back tenfold in increased revenue and increased production. The coal fields of Newfoundland must be made of benefit to Newfoundland. The time has now come when we can no longer afford to neglect our opportunities.

Bye-Elections.

A Gazette Extraordinary issued yesterday, contains a proclamation for the holding of bye elections in the Districts of Twillingate, Bonavista, Trinity, Harbor Grace and Fortune. Nomination Day is set for Saturday, 20th, and Polling Day for Tuesday, 30th December. Such elections are being held for members to serve in the House of Assembly in place of Walter B. It goes without saying that the gentlemen named will offer themselves to the districts they were elected to represent, for re-election, and that their acceptance of offices of emolument will be confirmed by their constituents.

The same Gazette contains the appointment of Hon. W. W. Halfyard (Trinity), to be Minister of Posts and Telegraphs, and Hon. Arthur Barnes (Harbor Grace), to be Minister of Education. The new Board of Works is also appointed: The Minister, Chairman (ex-officio), Hons. W. F. Coaker, A. Campbell, W. W. Halfyard, M. Power, Lieut. H. Small, M.H.A., for Burgeo, and Mr. Albert H. Salter.

A Denial.

Mr. Harry J. Crowe, called on the Telegram to-day, and asked us to correct an impression that might be created from reading the Toronto dispatch in the Morning papers that he was here as a Confederation advocate. Mr. Crowe, gave an interview to the Montreal Gazette, in which he made no reference whatever to Newfoundland Confederating with Canada. He did, however, discuss Canadian and West Indian union which has been garbled in a great degree. Mr. Crowe is now in Newfoundland in connection with a big commercial enterprise on the South Coast, where has now several engineers, particulars of which will be furnished later.

The Price of Fish.

We hear of very little change in the market, but there is certainly a very strong undertone, and we would not be surprised to see a steady improvement.

ENGLISH MARKETS.—Telegrams to hand state that there has been an advance of ten shillings per quintal, c.i.f. Liverpool.

Buyers in England have been altogether too low, and we are not surprised to see the first advance there.

PORTUGUESE MARKETS.—Have been completely over stocked, and have had a bad attack of indigestion. Their supplies will be regulated from this out, and give them a chance to recover.

SPANISH MARKETS.—One prediction in last issue have come true quicker than we anticipated. This market now offers European country, and we look for still higher prices if we had proper control of all.

ITALIAN MARKET.—The Consorzio will have to hurry up if they expect to get any choice lots of genuine Labrador codfish this year.

The catch was a very short one and so many cargoes have been lost that there will be very little to be had after this.

Instead of fighting the Consorzio tooth and nail we should endeavour to get some badly needed reforms inaugurated.

In a Nutshell.

Like the sun, the modern gas fire warms solid objects—such as the furniture of a room or its occupants—without appreciably raising the temperature of the intervening air. At the same time the products of combustion in their passage up the chimney flue keep the atmosphere in healthy motion.

That is gas fire science and gas fire hygiene in a nutshell.

Hon. Secretary's Report.

Lady Harris: Ladies—Shortly after our last Annual Meeting (held on Oct. 30th, 1918), the Great War, with many urgent calls on our time and energies, came abruptly and rather unexpectedly to an end. But the work of the Association went on for some time afterwards. The Outports and City Branches knitted and made the wool and materials they had on hand, and supplies of comforts for hospital necessities continued to be sent overseas, until we were notified by the Nfld. War Contingent Association that our contributions were no longer needed. But we still continued to supply the soldier and sailors in the Military Hospitals with comforts, even with fruit, sweets and cigars. No reports have been submitted from the various Departments for this year, as the work done has been of a desultory nature, but Mrs. Job, Treasurer of the Central Work Room, has me to say that the Room reopened last year on Oct. 1st and worked on or less regularly throughout the year, closing at the end of May. It will have done during that time 1230 pairs of socks, 90 pairs of mittens, and a number of garments for refugees. When our Headquarters were removed to the Colonial Building there was not sufficient accommodation for all our workers, and they were obliged to take the work home. The members devoted themselves to relief work—to providing and making clothing out of the large quantity of material on hand, for the destitute populations of the invaded countries. Belgium, France and Serbia, among others, received such help as we could give them. This accomplished, the balance of our stock of material and hospital gauze and cotton was disposed of partly by tender and partly by auction. In March last the W. P. A. moved its Headquarters to the Colonial Building, where an Office had been provided for us, and there the business of the Association has been conducted ever since. At the annual meeting of the Women's Patriotic Association, held in the Presbyterian Hall on Thursday, Dec. 4th, Mrs. W. G. Gosling resigned the position of Hon. Secretary, the duties of which office were faithfully performed for a period of over three years. Prior to tendering her resignation Mrs. Gosling read the following:

Hon. Secretary's Report.

Lady Harris: Ladies—Shortly after our last Annual Meeting (held on Oct. 29th, 1918), the Great War, with its many urgent calls on our time and energies, came abruptly and rather unexpectedly to an end. But the work of the Association went on for some time afterwards. The Outports and the City Branches knitted and made up the wool and materials they had on hand, and supplies of comforts and hospital necessities continued to be sent overseas, until we were notified by the Nfld. War Consignment Association that our contributions were no longer needed. But we still continued to supply the soldier and sailors in the Military Hospitals with comforts and even with fruit, sweets and cigars. No reports have been submitted from the various Departments for this year, as the work done has been of a desultory nature, but Mrs. Job Governor of the Central Work Room, has come to say that the Room reopened last year on Oct. 1st and worked more or less regularly throughout the winter, closing at the end of May. They made during that time 1250 pairs of socks, 50 pairs of mittens, and a number of garments for refugees. When our Headquarters were removed to the Colonial Building there was not sufficient accommodation for all our workers, and they were obliged to take the work home.

At the beginning of this year our members devoted themselves to relief work—to providing and making clothing out of the large quantity of material on hand, for the destitute population of the invaded countries. Belgium, France and Serbia, among others, received much help as we could give them. This accomplished, the balance of our stock of material and hospital gauze and cotton was disposed of partly by tender and partly by auction. In March last the W. P. A. moved its Headquarters to the Colonial Building, where an Office had been provided for us, and there the business of the Association has been transacted ever since. Last Spring brought us our new President, Lady Harris, whose arrival in Newfoundland had hitherto been delayed. Already she has taken up the responsible duties of her office with enthusiasm, and with great advantage to us, and her interest in the Child Welfare Movement, with her practical knowledge of its many problems, will be of inestimable benefit to the Association in its future work. This is the first general meeting to have the presence of our new President, and the W. P. A. extends a hearty welcome to her.

With the decrease of the war work the members found themselves able to undertake other philanthropic activities, and it was inevitable that Child Welfare should be their first thought. Indeed, since 1916, when our President, Lady Davidson, first broached the question of a Children's Hospital and a Maternity Home, the W. P. A. has stood definitely committed to this work. We began it in a small way, in the Spring of this year, when Miss Kendell, the Community Nurse, appealed to the Association for certain help in connection with her work. The matter was taken up with enthusiasm, and a large general committee was formed of ladies willing to assist. Four smaller committees were subsequently organized to deal with different phases of the work. Finance, Food, Clothing and Visiting. A campaign to secure necessary funds was immediately started by the Finance Committee and a handsome sum raised.

The Convenors of these Committees will presently report to this meeting. With a view of placing the matter on a more definite and concrete basis a joint meeting of all the Child Welfare Committees was held recently at which the following Resolution was passed: Resolved, that this Association, with the assistance of the Government and the Municipal Council, undertake the financing of the whole Child Welfare Movement, including the salaries of the three Community Nurses and any incidental expenses in connection with the same; the establishing of a Center and a Milk Station or Stations, together with any further measures that may be deemed advisable to promote the health and welfare of the children of the Colony, in so far as we receive the support of the public. This Resolution will be submitted for your support presently.

It is probable that in the not very distant future our work in the direction of Child Welfare will be considerably extended. A most generous offer has been received from Sir Edgar Bowring, who proposes to turn over Waterford Hall to the W. P. A.

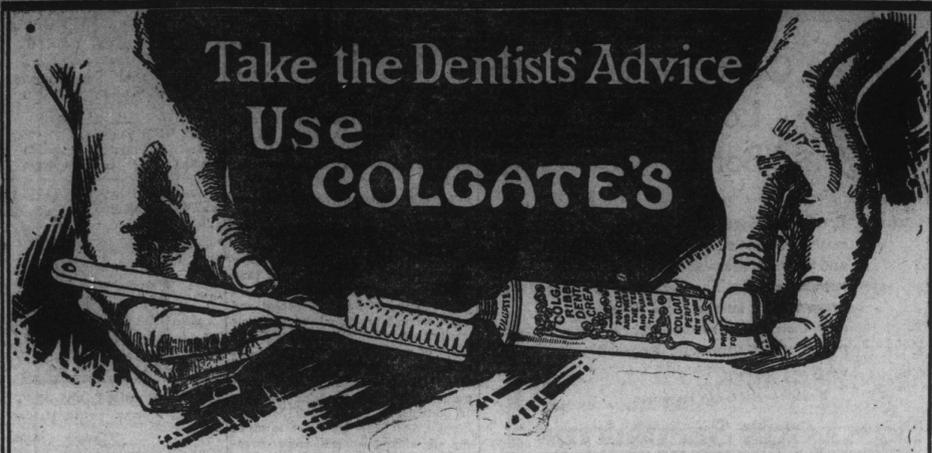

to be used as a Children's Hospital so soon as it shall cease to be required for convalescent soldiers and sailors. After the work of the Community Nurses, nothing is more necessary for the saving of child life than a well equipped, efficiently managed Children's Hospital. Many children in this city are in need of slight surgical operations, and will grow up seriously handicapped in life because there is no place where they can be treated. Further, we learn from the Community Nurses that the lives of many children could be saved if there were a Hospital where they could be taken to receive scientific feeding and care. The Outport Branches have been circled in this new work, and some of them have responded. Already several handsome donations have been received from some of our Outport Branches. It is understood that they are for the most part in entire accord with us, and are ready to co-operate as soon as we have established some definite line of action which they can follow.

It should be distinctly understood that none of the W. P. A. funds have been expended on this work. The money we have used was collected especially for Child Welfare work, and no other moneys have been used for Child Welfare work.

Last Spring, at the request of Dr. Rendell, the W. P. A. agreed to build and furnish a Recreation Hall for Soldiers and Sailors at the Government Sanatorium at Bowcock's Farm, the estimated cost to be $700.00. Nothing further has been done with this, so far as we know.

When our Nfld. V. C. Sergt. Ricketts, returned home from abroad, the Association showed its appreciation of his splendid courage by presenting him with five $50.00 Victory Bonds. The Xmas Gift Committee (Mrs. Mary MacKay, Convenor), sent 176 packing cases of Xmas gifts last October to our men overseas.

No Tag Day in aid of our own funds was held during the year, but the Tag Day Committee, under the skilled management of Mrs. John Angel and Mrs. Angus Reid carried out a most successful day in aid of the Society for the Protection of Animals, adding a thousand dollars to the funds of that deserving charity.

Two Fishermen Lost.

Boston, Dec. 1—Hope has about been abandoned for Walter Brown and Edmund Muse, members of the crew of the fishing schooner Ethel B. Penney, and Thomas Scott, a fisherman from the schooner Athena, who went astray in South Channel during a dense fog one month ago to-day. Their comrades were confident that the missing men had been picked up by other fishing boats. Scott's dory was found capsized some days later by the crew of the schooner Alice M. Guthrie. With no tidings from the men the opinion is now expressed that all three perished. Brown lived in Boothbay Harbor. Muse was a native of Yarmouth, N.S., and Scott belonged to Newfoundland.

Every effort was exerted to keep secret the identity of the prisoner, but those interested in Kaiserwetter learned of his arrest and promptly appealed to the government legal department, which found that England was not entitled to arrest him until peace had been declared. The examination was held in the greatest secrecy and there was no announcement of the ruling. This decision has negatived much of the work the admiral has done in tracing the perpetrators of the more barbarous submarine warfare. In view of the great amount of secret work done on various cases of this kind, the Kaiserwetter ruling came as a bombshell to admiralty officers.

HOW IT WORKED.

In the absence of her husband the fascinating young married woman went motoring with an old admirer. "Ah," sighed the man sentimentally, "if only you had married me instead of Wilkinson!" "Then I should have been with Mr. Wilkinson at this moment, instead of you," said the fascinating girl. "How strangely things turn out!"

A SILENT TRAGEDY.

Sweeping his long hair back with an impressive gesture, the visitor faced the proprietor of the film studio. "I would like to secure a place in your moving picture company," he said. "You are an actor?" asked the filmmaker. "Yes." "Had any experience acting without audiences?" "A flicker of sadness shone in the visitor's eyes as he replied: "Acting without audiences is what brought me here."

HIS REASON.

The new minister was paying a visit. The small boy of the house shook hands very politely. "And now, my little man," the minister said, "what are you going to be when you grow up?" "To the surprise of the assembled family, the child said: "I'm going to be a preacher." "That's good! I am glad to hear you say that," said the minister, taking the boy on his knee. Encouraged by this friendliness, the boy continued: "Yeth, thir, I'm going to be a preacher. I would wather be a lawyer, but I haven't got thanthe enough, and I'll have to be a preacher."

WHAT HURT MOST.

The middle-aged couple sat side by side on the garden-seat, looking as miserable as two lost geese in a hard hail-storm. A neighbour asked why they were so sad, in view of the fact that the sun shone brightly and the birds sang in the adjacent boughs. "Alas!" answered the man. "We have been gardening. Both of us are somewhat absent-minded, and after thinking it over I fear my wife planted the liver pills and I have taken the sweet peas. However, we are not absolutely sure about it, and it is the uncertainty that hurts."

PUT TO THE TEST.

"What are those splendid silver cups there?" inquired the man in the jeweller's shop. "Those, sir, are race cups to be awarded as prizes," replied the jeweller. "Well, if that's the case," said the stranger, taking the biggest one in his hands, "suppose you race me for this one." He started off with the jeweller after him, but the stranger won the race.

NO HOPE.

The young man brought some verses to his father. "Father," he said, "I have written poems." "What! Let me see them instantly." The father read them over carefully, the tears slowly welling to his eyes as he did so. Finishing the last one he threw down the manuscript, folded the boy to his breast, and sobbed: "Oh, my poor, poor son!" "Are they so bad as that, father?" "Bad! They are excellent. They are real poetry. My boy, my boy, you will starve to death!"

SHE WON.

The race for the last word was getting hot. Hubby and wife were running neck and neck. "You did!" he snapped. "I didn't!" she retorted. "You did!" "I did not!" The pace was slowing. "Well," flashed hubby, "one of us two is a very capable liar. But there is one thing which prevents me saying which one." "Modesty, I presume!" retorted wife.

SUSPICIOUS.

"Isn't it glorious here?" she exclaimed, when the waiter in the expensive restaurant had taken their orders. "Do you think so?" replied her fiancé. "It's perfectly lovely. Everything is in such harmony—the fountain, the flowers, the swaying lanterns, the music—everything is ideal. It's like fairyland." "I'm glad you like it." "I'm simply enchanted. Doesn't it make you feel as if you had stepped out of the everyday world into something strange and new?" "Not a bit." "What's the matter? You don't seem to be enjoying yourself!" "Well, my boss is sitting at the third table over there to your left. I can tell by his look that he's wondering how I can afford to eat at a place like this."

Make soap go further.

You can do it this way:

—Insist on getting a soap that is all soap—that is Sunlight Soap.

—You will then be sure of full value in real soap—no impurities.

—For this reason it is easy to economise with Sunlight Soap, because its purity makes it the most economical and, at the same time, the most effective of household soaps.

—Every particle does its work of making your linen clean and fresh.

—Sunlight Soap is guaranteed pure.

—For economy and efficiency insist on SUNLIGHT SOAP.

Travelling in Germany.

(From the Westminster Gazette.)

With regard to travelling in Germany just now, passengers enjoy few, if any, of the comforts of previous days. Unheated carriages in a country where even the trams used to be comfortably warmed must be anything but luxurious in winter, and the lack of window-glass does not make the prospect of a long journey more attractive. Most of the carriage doors, too, are jammed, and male passengers climb in or out by the window-frames, while women have to be lifted through the openings. As for the cold, it must be very severely felt by people used to what we should consider a dangerous excess of artificial heat. Indeed, I have heard of a case in which the stove in the corner of the carriage was guarded by a sheet of metal which itself was red hot, and a country girl sat close by, enjoying the warmth. Distinctions between classes have gone by the board, and the popular retort of a German if asked why he is travelling first-class with a fourth-class ticket is: "Have we had a revolution, or have we not?" Somehow common sense always comes to the rescue of the English-speaking people. They get in a terrible muss—and then climb out. There always are enough level-headed ones on hand to save the situation. It is one of the results of a long tradition of individual initiative and freedom.

A Bit of English History.

Two Sailor Kings Preceded George V.

Before the accession of King George to the throne, in 1910, there have been only two sailor kings in our history, and this was doubtless due to the necessity that the heir to the throne should be trained for the exalted position he would have to fill, rather than for any subordinate profession, however estimable and worthy. It was owing to the death of his brother that King George came to the throne, and similarly, neither of the earlier sailor kings, James II. and William IV., was the eldest son. It has been truly said that the best qualities of these two kings were derived from the training they received at sea. James II. was undoubtedly a capable naval administrator, and perhaps if he had shown the same wisdom and intelligence in regard to the affairs of state which he had previously displayed at the Admiralty he might never have lost his throne. As to William IV., a contemporary estimate of him as a naval officer is forthcoming from no less a person than Nelson, who in 1783 wrote:—"I am certain he will be an ornament to our service. He is a seaman, which you could hardly suppose. Every other qualification you may expect from him. But he will be a disciplinarian, and a strong one. With the best temper, and great good sense, he cannot fail of being pleasing to every one."

It was when we were at war with France in 1779 that Prince William Henry, the third son of the reigning monarch, entered the navy on board the Prince George, a 98-gun ship, flying the flag of Rear Admiral Digby. King George III. showed the keenest interest in his sailor son's first voyage. The latter was then only fourteen years old and within twelve months of joining his ship underwent his baptism of fire in the memorable action between the British squadron under Sir George Rodney, and a Spanish fleet under Don Juan de Langara, which resulted in the relief of Gibraltar. It was on this occasion that when a Spanish admiral paid a visit to Admiral Digby the midshipman prince reported his boat alongside. The Spaniard, astonished at seeing the King's son performing such a subordinate duty, exclaimed: "Well, does Great Britain merit the sovereignty of the seas when princes of the blood royal are content to learn their duty in the humbler stations of her navy." One of the ships captured in this action, by the way was renamed Prince William in honor of the royal midshipman.

In 1785, the prince was made a lieutenant of the Hebe and in the next year of the Pegasus, which vessel, on his being posted in 1786, he commanded in the West Indies. It was during this commission that he had Nelson as his superior officer. In 1787 he was appointed to the Andromeda and in 1790 commanded the Valiant, a 74-gun ship, out of which he was promoted to rear admiral. In May, 1827, four years before he became King, he was created Lord High Admiral, and was the last occupant of this historic and important office. Two of William IV.'s uncles also served in the British navy. One was Prince Edward Augustus, Duke of York, and the other Prince Henry Frederick, Duke of Cumberland. Like George III., they were sons of Frederick, Prince of Wales, the eldest son of George II. In a letter written by the elder Pitt in 1758 to Lord Holderness, the former announces that the King has approved of Prince Edward entering the navy and states that the Lords of the Admiralty had ordered Captain (afterward Lord) Howe "to enter Prince Edward in the ship's books as a volunteer for wages and victuals, and his retinue as part of the allowed complement of the ship." This vessel was the Essex, in which he was present at the capture of Cherbourg and the subsequent disaster at the Bay of St. Cas.

Two years later, after he had been in the service only three years, he was promoted rear admiral of the blue, and actually hoisted his flag on the Princess Amelia as second in command under Sir Edward Hawke, in the Channel. Promotion to the rank of vice-admiral of the blue followed in the same year, and to that of admiral of the blue in 1766. In the meantime, he served for a few months as commander-in-chief of the Mediterranean, but his early death at Monaco in 1767, cut short a career which had he lived, might have been brilliant. His brother, Prince Henry Frederick, joined the service in 1768 as a midshipman in the Venus, and advanced almost as rapidly. Within the year he was posted, having passed over the intermediate ranks of lieutenant and commander. In 1770 he was given rank as rear admiral and he died an admiral of the white at the age of forty-five in 1790.

It may be deduced from the above that advancement at an early age to the rank of captain was not unusual in the Georgian navy, but that in the case of the royal princes they were permitted to hoist their flags without the experience which was deemed necessary in the case of those officers of less exalted position. Like Prince Edward Augustus, Nelson and Howe were captains at twenty years of age, but whereas the prince became a full admiral within seven years, Howe had to serve for thirty-six years to reach this grade, and Nelson was eighteen years a captain and commodore before he attained rear admiral's rank. It may be noted also that the three commoners served an apprenticeship in the navy as youngsters which was not required of the two brothers of George III.

OTHER TABLETS NOT ASPIRIN AT ALL

Only Tablets with "Bayer Cross" are Genuine Aspirin

If you don't see the "Bayer Cross" on the tablets, you are not getting Aspirin—Remember this! Genuine "Bayer Tablets of Aspirin" are now made in America by an American Company. No German interest whatever, all rights being purchased from the United States Government. During the war, acid imitations were sold as Aspirin in pill boxes and various other containers. The "Bayer Cross" is your only way of knowing that you are getting genuine Aspirin, proved safe by millions for Headache, Neuralgia, Colds, Rheumatism, Lumbago, Neuritis, and for pain generally. Handy tin boxes of 12 tablets—also larger sized "Bayer" packages can be had at drug stores. Aspirin is the trade mark (Newfoundland Registration No. 761), of Bayer Manufacture of Monoaceticacid, of Salicylicacid. The Bayer Co., Inc., U.S.A.

Tall Ring Story From Mexico.

JOHNSON'S PLUGGERS USED REVOLVERS.

Not many American scrappers will care to invade Mexico after hearing Marty Cutler tell of the thrills that go with a boxing match in the land of revolutions. Cutler went to Mexico for a fight with Jack Johnson, the former heavy-weight champion who is an exile from his native land on account of a little difficulty he got mixed up in with Uncle Sam. Johnson defeated Cutler, but good-natured Marty was glad to escape with his life. The Mexicans bet big money on all sport matches and as Johnson was the favorite he was heavily backed to win. While the fight was going on Mexicans wagered openly on the outcome and the natives wildly discussed the respective merits of the two men. When Cutler hit Johnson a jolt on the jaw that staggered him, a man who had bet on Cutler started to cheer. Quick as a flash one of the spectators pulled out a revolver, and with deadly aim sent a bullet through the heart of the fellow who was plugging for Cutler. The dead man rolled on the floor and lay there undisturbed until the fight was over, when the spectators carried his body out into the street. Cutler says that he thought he would have to send to Laticonia to get a couple of the cashiers from the mutual machines to count his part of the gate money when he saw the pesos piled high in front of him, but when he got the Mexican money changed into American dollars he did not have enough left to buy a monkey a dancing jacket. "I love excitement," said Marty, "and have enjoyed a bit of it in my day, but, believe me, I do not want any more of Mexico for mine. I would rather be a dishwasher in Chicago than the richest man in Mexico."

King George As a Collector. King George's collection of stamps is estimated to be worth at least $100,000. Of stamp collecting he once wrote to a personal friend, "It is one of the greatest pleasures of my life." A curious hobby of His Majesty in the collection of babies' photographs. But there is no man alive more fond of children than he, and not a better father among all his subjects. As may be imagined the King has little leisure for reading. True, he keeps well abreast with the news of the day, but, apart from that, almost his only literature is books on travel and exploration. He frequently studies

Bringing Up The Lines Forward! March!

Is the cry in our Shirt, Tie and Collar Departments when this trim of excellence marches out under the gaze of hundreds of Xmas buyers, to back up the "KEARNEY FIRST" project.

KEARNEY SAYS:—
"These are my greatest lines. More judgment in selecting effective patterns, lasting colours, popularized styles, cannot be found in any other collection—cannot be found because cannot be made. Because I had my hand on the pulse of the market, because I had men behind me with their goods who would say 'Kearney, goods are going higher next month, we can give you 50 doz. at the old price if you buy NOW!' I saw ahead—to my Victory Xmas. Now I give to you an immensely varied Xmas line for your buying needs."

SHIRTS, TIES, COLLARS—Bound together to wear together. Tested recipe for a sunny Xmas morning face for him:
A SHIRT—Striped to his taste, silk, silkcloth or madras.
A TIE—in glorious Xmas colourings matched to suit the shirt.
A COLLAR—His style, his size. (You don't need to know—we can judge the size.)
The THREE packed in one of our eye-catching Holly Boxes Free. There, that settles your Xmas problem.

The Best Cough Syrup is Home-made.

Here's an easy way to save $2, and yet have the best cough remedy you ever tried.

You've probably heard of this well known plan of making cough syrup at home. But have you ever used it? When you do, you will understand why thousands of families, the world over, feel that they could hardly keep house without it. It's simple and cheap, but the way it takes hold of a cough, without any of the usual annoyances, could buy ready-made for $2.50.

Into a 16-oz. bottle, pour 2 1/2 ounces of Pinex (50 cents worth); then add plain granulated sugar syrup to fill up the bottle. Or, if desired, use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup instead of sugar syrup. Either way, it tastes good, never spoils, and gives you 16 ounces of better cough remedy than you could buy ready-made for $2.50.

This home-made remedy conquers a cough—usually in 24 hours or less. It seems to penetrate through every air passage, loosens a dry, hoarse or tight cough, lifts the phlegm, heals the membrane, and gives almost immediate relief. Splendid for throat tickle, hoarseness, croup, bronchitis and bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, and has been used for generations for throat and chest ailments.

To avoid disappointment, ask your druggist for "2 1/2 ounces of Pinex" with directions and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money refunded. The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

Stole the Regalia.

Messrs. McGraw and McGraw, son and Connors pleaded guilty in the Police Court yesterday, says the Morning Chronicle of Dec. 2, to two charges of burglary—the burglaries of the houses of Jerry O'Dwyer and Frederick Townsend, on Robie Street. They were remanded for sentence. Some more of the stolen property was Botha's Narrow Escape.

The Cape Town correspondent of The London Times says: Botha's death recalls a curious coincidence, not without historical interest, which I am allowed to transmit by Sir David Graaff, one of Botha's most intimate friends and political associates. A few days before the outbreak of war, Botha, who had been visiting Rhodesia, was on his way to Beira, whence he had booked a passage to Delagoa Bay on route to Pretoria. The acting minister in Pretoria had telegraphed to Botha on Saturday that there was no need for anxiety in regard to the European situation, as it was certain England in any case would not be embroiled. As it happened Sir David Graaff had returned from a sojourn at a German watering place to London on the Friday, and thought the British cabinet's final decision had not been taken. He formed the conclusion on the Sunday morning that war with Germany was inevitable, and telegraphed to Botha: "British Government declares war on Germany to-morrow." In fact, the British ultimatum expired on Friday, August 4, midnight.

Sir David Graaff's telegram was received with incredulity in Pretoria but after some hesitation it was retransmitted to Botha. Botha afterwards said that he was puzzled by the apparent contradiction between Pretoria and Sir David Graaff, but concluded that Sir David Graaff was not likely to send so definite a state-

The Author of
"Ingoldsby Legends."

On Saturday, December 6, 1788, Richard Harris Barham was born at Canterbury, the residence of his father, with the same names, being at Tappington Everard in the county of Kent. Tappington Court was celebrated in the Ingoldsby Legends, written by this son, through the murder committed by Sir Giles Tappington.
The author was educated at St. Paul's School, London, and at Brasenose College, Oxford, where, as an undergraduated, he formed a habit of studying till late at night, which he found of use long afterwards, but which once caused him to be questioned by Freddham Hodson, its Principal, who politely asked him to account for his continued absence from morning service in its chapel. "The fact is, Sir," replied Barham, "you are too late for me." "Too late!" repeated the amazed master. "Yes, sir, I cannot sit up till seven o'clock in the morning. I am a man of regular habits, and unless I get to bed by four or five at least, I am really fit for nothing next day."
Perhaps during the day he wasted some time and money, for now and then his college debts were considerable. After he had taken his Bachelor of Arts degree, and was ordained in 1813, and from 1817 held the living of Snargate, in Kent, he was appointed a minor canon of St. Paul's Cathedral in London, and held in succession the City livings of St. Mary Magdalene and St. Gregory, and afterwards that of St. Faith. He was appointed priest in ordinary of the Chapels Royal; and Sydney Smith, the witty canon-resident of St. Paul's, gave to him his own official residence in Amen Corner.
There Barham used by night to write his humorous works after the neighbourhood had settled down into the quietness and darkness of night. In 1840 his youngest son's death caused him great grief, and on June 17, 1845, he himself died, having a few days previously written his pathetic lines,
"As I laye a Thynkyng," with such thoughts as this: "A still small voice said unto me, Thou art so full of misery; were it not better not to be?"
A contrast to his many humorous poems and novels. No English author with the exception of Thomas Hood, has Old Time Amusements.

(From Bailey's Magazine.)
Pugilistic encounters, dog fights, cock fights and similar performances were the ordinary forms of popular pastimes in the early part of the last century. Bull baiting was common; and even this did not afford sufficient amusement to the people in some of the northern towns, and Blackburn and Oldham exhibited a strange depravity by compelling old women to race in sacks!
In the eighteenth century dancing and card playing were the two chief amusements of the court and the fashionable world. Cheating at cards was not only tolerated, but admired as clever and smart.
Fancy dress balls were very popular in the olden days, but they do not appear to have been carried out with as much propriety as in our times.
Every effort was made to confine the audience to "his quality," and to prevent drunkenness and disorder, but without success. As for dancing, it was like cards, "a diversion for grave and gay alike." Men did not stand out half the programme in those days; they were as keen for the dance as their fair partners.
The love of monstrosities, which are usually mere freaks of nature, is still common; but it would appear to have been more popular in the good old times. In the year 1745 crowds frequented the Mitre, Charing Cross, to view "the largest Thames monster, or miraculous man eater, that was ever in the world. As a boy was washing his mop this surprising monster caught hold of it in his mouth, and had very like to pull the boy into the river, but he calling out for help, several men came to his assistance, with great difficulty dragged this monster out, and he lived four hours after on shore."
Then follows a descriptive account of this "strange fish," which, we are assured, "has two very plain hands, eight fingers and two thumbs, and nails on each like a Christian; he has four horns on his head, and other weapons on his back," and so on.
Other wonders were to be seen at the same place, and among these "the curious look of hair cut off a gentle-woman's head, as much approved of that the whole world is challenged for five hundred guineas to produce the like."

"Here They Come!"

It is the cry of the children when a band is heard far down the street. Nearer and nearer it draws until each note becomes clearer and clearer.

To those in the city this is a familiar picture. But to those residing in suburban towns stirring strains of band music are more rare.

The NEW EDISON

"The Phonograph with a Soul" in your home makes it possible for you and your children to have at all times the wonderful march music that has inspired the world.

Wherever you live—on the farm or in town—let the New Edison bring the parade, with all its glamour, into your living room, every instrument, every note as clear as a real band—thanks to the genius of Thomas A. Edison.

We tell a wonderful story about the New Edison in a beautiful book that you should have. It is called

HOW IS THIS?

Long had he worshiped her at a distance, but his shyness prevented him from proposing. Then, one evening, for the sake of sweet charity, a theatrical performance took place, in which the charmer was leading lady and more adorable than ever. Afterward the shy admirer drew near, his love made valiant by the sight of her beauty. "You are the star of the evening," he said as they stood alone in a corner.

"You are the first to tell me so," said the dame with a happy blush.

"Then," he retorted promptly, "may I not claim my reward as an astronomer?"

The lady looked puzzled. "What reward?" she asked.

"Why, the right to give my name to the star I have discovered!"

CALL A SEER.

Debt collector: "I was asked to find out when you would pay this little account." Debtor: "Really, I am unable to enlighten you. However, there is a fortune-teller doing a big business in the next street who reveals the future for a fee of a dollar." Debt collector: "I've no money to waste." Debtor: "Just add the dollar to my account, for to tell you the truth I have considerable curiosity on the point myself!"

A WOMAN'S ART.

Attracting attention and then appearing to be unconscious of the fact is an art with women.

THE COLUMN WRITER.

The column writer has this much on some poor other scribe. No matter if he thinks at all. He still writes what he thinks.

COPING WITH THE BORE PROBLEM.

Lord Fisher has his own characteristic way when at the Admiralty of dealing with the cranks who always beset a man in authority. His staff had strict instructions "to exclude from his presence all save those who had really vital matters to discuss with him, and even the privileged few before being admitted to the room, were handed a printed slip with the injunction, "When you call on a business man state your business in a business like manner, and when you have concluded your business go about your business, and mind your own business."

CURIOUS MOURNING PRACTICE.

When Arabian women go into mourning they stain their hands and feet with indigo for eight days, and during that time they will drink no milk on the ground that its white hue does not harmonize with their mental gloom.

HUBBY PAID FOR IT.

Mrs. Wray—Where did Mr. do Styie get her new hat?
Mrs. Blase—That's a problem. She bought it with the money which her husband borrowed from her uncle, who had won it in a poker game from her brother, to whom she had loaned it shortly after her mother had taken it from her father's pockets and given it to her for a birthday present.

GETTING HIS OWN BACK.

Whistler had a French poodle of which he was extravagantly fond. The poodle was seized with an affection of the throat and Whistler had the audacity to send for the great throat specialist, Sir Morell Mackenzie.

Sir Morell, when he saw that he had been called in to treat a dog, didn't like it much, it was plain; but he said nothing. He prescribed, pocketed a big fee, and drove away.

The next day he sent poste-haste for Whistler, and Whistler, thinking he was summoned on some matter connected with his beloved dog, dropped his work and rushed to Mackenzie's.

On his arrival, Sir Morell said, gravely:
"How do you do, Mr. Whistler? I wanted to see you about having my front door painted."

LOTS OF TIME!

—He: "Good heavens, the clock just struck one, and I promised your mother 'td leave at twelve!"

She (comfortably): "Good! We've eleven hours yet."

A TRANSPARENT MYSTERY.

An Englishman returned from India bringing a native boy with him as a servant. The boy knew nothing about ice, and one winter morning he came running to his master with a large piece of glass in his hand.

"Look, master," he said, "what a large piece of glass I have found."

"His employer said it looked very wet, and jokingly told him to put it on the back of the stove to dry. He did so, and presently came running back with the partly melted ice in his hand.

"Master, it's the queerest glass I ever saw. The more I dry it the wetter it gets."

DOUBLE THUMB GLOVE.

The gloves worn in Iceland are made without fingers, and in order that no time may be wasted in distinguishing between right and left each glove has two thumbs. The hand is thrust into the first glove taken up.

THOSE WERE THE DAYS!

Barbers, in the early days of the Christian era, were not permitted to talk while shaving a patron. Indeed, silence was so much appreciated by persons while under the barber's hands that mutes were preferred for this service.

FOR FUTURE REFERENCE.—Then this," asked James, "is absolutely final?"

"Quite," was Dorothy's calm reply. "Shall I return your letters, James?"

"Yes, please," he answered. "There's some good material in them that I can use again."

THE IMPORTANT THING.

I do not love your handsome face—it isn't.
I do not love your charming ways—they aren't.
I do not love the cash you have—you haven't.
Nor do I think your brain is great—it isn't.

In short I do not know the reason why I love—darned if I do—and yet I do.

Advertising is the grease on which the wheels of business slip easily along.

The choosing of a wife is like unto a canny taking of seals out of a bag, wherein are twenty snakes for one eel.—Sir John Moore.

TO THE SON-IN-LAW: A SONNET.

"After all, despite everything that has been said against him, a son-in-law has his admirable side," admitted Farmer, Grimm, quoted in Judge.

"If you free your mind in full to the hired man and tell him what you think of him and liken him to what he is, he will puff up and demand his pay and quit. If you boss and bully your son too systematically, he will run away. But, just as long as you feed your son-in-law and do not actually beat and maul him, you can say what you please to him, and he will remain faithful."

STRICTLY MILITARY.

"Why did you reject Colonel Pufferaby?"
"Too much military efficiency."
"How was that?"
"His last letter to me started off something like this: 'From Colonel Pufferaby, To Miss Gloria Fifte. Subject, Love.'"

Wedding Bells.

GREEN—GREEN.

A pretty wedding was solemnized in the school chapel at St. Jones Without, T.B., on Thursday, Nov. 27th, by the Rev. G. S. Templeton, when Miss Blanche Green was united in holy matrimony to Mr. Leander Green. The bride, who was given away by Mr. John Green, was very neatly attired for the occasion. The bridegroom who distinguished himself in the Great War, was worthy of a daughter of the land which he fought to save. The bride was the recipient of a number of useful presents. The reception was held at the home of the groom's father, Mr. Mark Green. May the young married couple live long to enjoy many years of wedded happiness.

PARSONS—BROWN.

A very pretty wedding took place on Dec. 4th, when Miss Susie Parsons, of Bauline, and Mr. John Brown, of Trinity, were united in the silken bonds of matrimony by the Rev. Mr. Forbes at Gower St. Church. The bride looked charming in a georgette dress and orange blossoms, with bridal veil. She was attended by her sister, Mrs. Stephen Clarge, while Mr. Stephen Clarge acted as best man. The groom was also supported by Mr. John Parsons, brother of the bride. The reception was held at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. Stephen Clarge, 33 Scott St. The bride received many valuable and useful presents, showing the esteem in which both are held by their friends. We wish them many years of wedded bliss.

The Throstle's Mission.

A STORY FOR CHILDREN.
Throstle—whose other name was song-thrush, sometimes mavis—opened one eye, and took a sleepy peep at the world as viewed from his perch, under the iron-dark branches of the ten-foot hedge. He shut his eye again, more from habit than anything else. Then opened it a second time, and wider than before.
The world he viewed was not the same world he had seen overnight; not the same at all. His drooping eyes had closed upon a world of soft tones and undertones; of greens and silver-greys, of chocolate, and of pigeon-wing blue. He awoke to an unbroken, steady, relentless white gaze, as terrifying in its silence as in its elemental mystery.
But "silence!" I said. Even as the thrush listened under the lowering lead sky, two sounds broke into that petrified white dawn at one and the same moment. The first was the beautiful, mellow ringing, pealing of bells calling the faithful to prayer; the second a peculiar, soft, almost human sound of air being expelled suddenly but quietly through the nostrils.
Now, there are a few occasions in life when it is advisable to act first and think after. This was one. The thrush fell from the perch where he roosted as if he had been shot dead, down, and fled. That was why the cat, with the pink ribbon and the red heart, creeping along the bough only just behind him, simply claved his thigh instead of his head. It was the cat who had made the odd, sniffing noise, by the way. A few cats do when the scent meat; 'tis an eccentricity, I guess.
The thrush, having acted, blundered through the white morning, and in his own little white avalanche fetched up on a laurel bough across the garden. It was then he did the thinking. His right leg would not work, and a warm drop that had fallen from it was slowly widening in a brilliant scarlet dot on the snow where he stood.
Being a bird, he did nothing—only mooped. He stuck his head down into himself, ruffled his feathers to a great "fatness," stood on one leg, and mooped.
By the time Throstle had finished mooping it was high noon—though you would not have guessed it by the semi-dark—and the snow on his perch was scarlet where he stood. But even Fate, it seems, must eat, and a thrush could not go on breathing "Kismet" for ever. Moreover, claw-wounds alone do not kill, as a rule. Accordingly he flew down to a spot at the foot of a maple-tree close by, which he had just seen a wandering wood pigeon vacate. The maple is the warmest tree in all the woods, and the snow about that tree's feet was melting. This the pigeon had noticed, though he had gone there for seeds and beech-mast. The thrush, however, found a sufficiency of food, chrysalis and caterpillars, buried, a little small cemented in—cracked by Throstle on a discarded beer-bottle—and one worm half dead.
True, Throstle had evidently not yet got the hang of negotiating snow on one leg. (One can imagine there are easier means of progression). He did it on his back as often as not; but he had got back his spirit. He even flew up to a branch to sing, but the song was only "inward melody," barely audible a few yards away, and it ended on the wing as he charged down upon another half-frozen song-thrush, who, seeing Throstle's success, made bold to prove the warmth of the maple, too.
The fight that followed was intricate. It is not easy to administer a blow with a short dagger against a foe covered by two shields, which was about the position of the thrushes, with their guarding wings. Wings, be it said, used as clubs, too. Still, it was not all mere fuss, as it appeared to be, that fight. Both birds got in a stab, and each stab left a little blue-red puncture hidden under the feathers.
It was the pink bow that did it. The black cat caught his second right-hand claw in the pink bow as he rushed, and it checked him for just the merest fraction of a second. It was the shortest division possible of time, but was enough—for the wild birds. They parted like sparks, like sparks shot upwards, and like sparks, stopped dead.
The man laughed as he came from behind the tree and took them, very much dishevelled, out of the net; laughed still more at the lack of delay in the amazed cat's departure. The man had removed the snow from the maple's feet to attract the birds, had set his nets all around to catch the birds—for what? For a Christmas pie—all save one.
That one was Throstle, destined to sing in a cage to the man's little crippled daughter—the crippled bird as friend and comforter to the crippled child. He is there now, our Throstle, quite old, but, I think, happy enough.—Answers.

A Great Sporting Event. Anniversary of Halifax Explosion.

A great deal of interest is being manifested in the coming Charity Running Matches to be held in the Prince of Wales Ring on Monday night next. A large number of contestants are nightly practicing at the rink and some closely contested events will be the outcome. Bell, Kavanagh, Walt Robertson, Hill and Hennebury are contestants in the five mile race for the Championship of Newfoundland. There will be a relay race between a City team and one from the Regiment, both teams will run two miles each. The C. C. Band has been engaged for the occasion, and spectators are assured a good night's enjoyment. The following is a list of the entries for the different events:—
8.15, 3 Mile Junior Races: 1, G. B. Burden; 2, Chas. R. Butler; 3, T. Eddy; 4, W. H. Ross; 5, C. Puddister; 6, T. Lynch; 7, D. Oliphant; 8, R. Evans; 9, J. Norris; 10, A. Hennebury.
8.40, 2 Mile Relay Race: CITY—1, J. Bell; 2, J. Kavanagh; REGIMENT—1, E. Robertson; 2, H. Hill; 3, Wm. Wall; 4, A. Hennebury; 3, T. Ring; 4, T. Butler.
9.30, Wrestling Match; Hammond v. Hennebury.
10.00, 5 Mile Championship for Newfoundland:—1, E. Robertson; 2, J. Bell; 3, Wm. Wall; 4, Harris Hill; 5, Ern Spry; 6, T. Ring; 7, T. Butler.
Gold medals for first place and silver medals for second are the prizes to be competed for. These have been kindly donated by Messrs. W. J. Higgins, N. J. Vianicombe, C. J. Fox, and Miss Kitty Furlong.

Obituary.

CORNELIUS O'DRISCOLL.
Mr. Cornelius O'Driscoll, aged 49, passed away at Clarenville, T.B., on Tuesday, Dec. 4th. For nineteen years an invalid, Mr. O'Driscoll suffered greatly from spinal disease, and in the last two weeks of his illness his physical pain was very hard to bear. Mr. O'Driscoll was for many years an employee of the Reid Nfld. Co., having been one of the pioneer railroad men to construct the line across country. It was while putting a bridge across the Exploit's River that he contracted the disease from which he died. Left to mourn him are a wife, three sons, (two of whom served overseas), one sister and three brothers. To them the Telegram extends sincere sympathy.
Families will find it greatly to their interest to deal at THE BEE-HIVE STORE, Charlton St. t.u.h.s.

"LES FRUITS"

Truly, "A Gift of the Gods" which cures Constipation. A FOOD OF FRUITS and LEAVES.

Would not you be interested to know there is a Laxative Food—"Les Fruits"—perfect in its results, and composed only of Arabian Fruits and Leaves, devoid of all drugs and nostrums?

It is most attractive to the taste; really a confection; guaranteed to comply with the Pure Food Laws and endorsed by prominent physicians and laymen.

Equally efficacious, and harmless to child or adult. Nature's answer to the complex question of constipation and sluggishness of the intestinal tract.
