The Mystery of Rutledge Hall

—OR—
"The Cloud With a Silver Lining"

CHAPTER XXIII.

It was some time before Sidney dared proceed, and while she knelt by the couch soothing her with word and caress, she began to dread terribly the result of an interview with Frank, thinking sorrowfully to herself that Christie could never live through its intense excitement.

"Tell me, tell me!" Christie murmured, with pale lips; and her eager, pleading eyes repeated the entreaty yet more urgently.

"Sidney told her very simply, almost as if she had been speaking to a little child, suppressing much which she knew could only pain her, telling her of Frank's love for her still and his hope that they should meet—of the steps she—Sidney—had taken to prove his innocence, of the hope she cherished that some day it would be proved, of his intention of going abroad and making a home there and beginning a new life; and Christie listened breathlessly, with great hollow, burning eyes fixed on her friend's face, and her little feeble hands held fast in Sidney's warm clasp; and when the soft, soothing tones died away, the unhappy sister spoke for the first time.

"Sidney, how do you know all this?" she asked, faintly, but eagerly. "Has he written to you? Have you had letters, then?"

"He has written to me once or twice," Sidney answered, gently, "but only little notes."

"Then—then you have seen—"

"Yes, I have seen him, dear."

"Where?" Christie tried to say, but the world died away on her lips.

"He came here one night," Sidney answered, gently. "Nay, dear, you need not tremble; he was disguised, and ran no risk, or very little, and—Yes, cry, dear Christie; do not try to check the tears—they will do you good. I saw him, and he was so well disguised that I—even I, Christie—think of that!—did not recognize him, or rather should not have recognized him had I not known that I should meet him; and there was no risk, dear, because it was night and no one saw him—no one but me. And now he has decided to go away—he can do so in all safety, I think—and make a home for himself in one of those grand countries where hard work and perseverance always succeed; and perhaps by and by, when his innocence is proved, he will come home to us, Christie; or, if it should be the will of Heaven that the stain should not be removed from him here, none will know of it there; and he will be respected and happy. And—perhaps—who knows, Christie, what the future may have for us?—his sister will go calmly on the sofa in the parlour; and leaving Bessie with her, Sidney went to her own room to try to think quietly over her difficulty and summon courage to meet it without arousing suspicion.

As she entered her dressing-room, the first thing which met her eye was the costume she was to wear in the evening, which had just arrived from Paris, and which Bessie had spread out upon the sofa. Stephen himself had chosen the role for her, and had been interested in designing the dress.

"She is so child and white and pure," he said to himself, "that she will suit her to perfection."

And the costume was a triumph of art and beauty, with its rich, shining draperies and exquisite details; the great customer to whom it had been entrusted had done his work well.

"Everything seems to go against me!" Sidney murmured, leaning her head wearily against the window-pane, as she looked out at the falling snow. "Stephen will be so angry; but what can I do? I cannot disappoint them both! It is very hard—oh, so hard, and I am so tired! Will Lloyd Hilner suspect, I wonder? Well, it is the last risk we shall run, and there has been such a hard fate. How will Christie bear it?"

Then she turned away from the window and glanced rather wistfully at the beautiful dress. She would have liked to wear it, she thought; she would have liked to show Stephen that she would only vex him. He would think her not going to the ball was a determination to annoy him, and she would have to bear in silence the grave displeasure and reproach which hurt her so keenly. It was very hard!

All the short winter days she was restless and ill at ease, and the sound of the wheels of her husband's brougham made her heart beat to suffocation; but she ran down-stairs and was in the library, with tea ready, when Stephen and his friend entered, chatting gaily, and pleasantly excited at the thought of the somewhat unusual entertainment in store for them that evening.

Once or twice Sidney glanced furtively over at her husband, as he lay back in a great deep arm-chair, resting luxuriously, but looking somewhat weary and fatigued after the day's work as he sipped his tea. How would she dare to tell him? she wondered; and the thought haunted her persistently as she joined in the pleasant conversation, and poured out the fragrant yellow tea into the quaint dragon cups. Presently the evening letters were brought in—two for Sidney, several for Lloyd Milner, and one for Stephen. As Sidney took hers from the little silver waiter that the servant had presented to her, she felt the color rush into her face. Both were addressed in unknown handwritings and both had the London post-mark; and her fingers trembled so much that she could not open them. She put them on her lap and crossed her hands upon them, as she sat by the little gipsy table.

The two young men were reading their own letters, and did not notice her agitation. Stephen's was a long, closely-written epistle from an old college friend now settled in New Zealand, and Mr. Milner's correspondence, relating to business matters, was very absorbing. Having concluded its perusal, he gathered up the letters and went away to his own room to answer them leaving the husband and wife together.

Sidney's opportunity had come. Stephen had finished his letter, and was staring into the fire with thoughtful eyes, pulling at his beard, as he often did when in deep thought, and he did not see the furtive anxious glance his wife was casting at him. More than once her lips parted, and she had almost said what she wished to say; but the words did not come; and when half past six o'clock they were still unspoken. As the clear simple stroke sounded, Stephen started, glanced at the clock, and said, gaily:

"We had better go and dress, Sidney; it will take rather longer than usual, you know; and I promised the mother—we should be in good time for dinner."

"Yes," Sidney answered, faintly, "I will go directly; but—do not want. I want to speak to Tom before I go upstairs."

Twelve Ounces—One Pound

Tradesmen's Short-Weight Tricks.

The Incorporated Society of Inspectors of Weights and Measures is urging the necessity for legislation to make the giving of short weight a penal offence. Such an alteration has long been wanted, for only in the sale of coal, bread, and tea is it an offence to give short weight.

An old trick is wrapping some commodities in heavy paper, and making the customer pay for that at the price of the contents. Tea, before its sale by net weight became compulsory, was a favourite medium for this form of dishonesty, which, with others, is still practiced to some extent in connection with sugar.

In a prosecution in Lancashire it was shown that the manager of a shop was debited with so much sugar, the paper for wrapping being included in the weight; and he was required to sell at less than the cost to him and yet show a profit.

Swindling Housewives.

Gods, sold in packages, are also commonly under weight. Many nominal pounds are actually only fourteen or even twelve ounces, and the shortage in jars of jam is often three or four ounces to the pound. To manufacturers, with their big output, this represents a great gain in the aggregate. A milk firm was proved to have made an additional profit of $3,402 a year by giving short measure.

Another trade practice causes many customers to get less than their due. If an assistant is given, say, exactly half a hundredweight of butter, he cannot weigh fifty-six separate pounds from it—unless, of course, he works more water into the mass.

Have you ever tested the brakes on your car? Here is a simple method successfully used by police and safety officials.

Select a dry road. Drive at 20 miles an hour. Throw out clutch and apply brakes so as to lock wheels. After the car has stopped, note where each wheel began to "grip" the surface of the road.

If the marks of each wheel begin at the same place, your brakes are equalized. If one mark is longer than the other (note illustration), your brakes are not equal in action and will skid easily. An adjustment should immediately be made. If re-lining is necessary, use

PARKER & MONROE, Ltd., The Shoe Men

—because he has to "turn the scale." But he is sometimes supposed to perform such a feat, as little or no allowance is made for the "turn of the scale," and consequently he is obliged to defraud.

Tricks practiced to deceive customers in some shops were revealed by a trade expert recently. They have been brought to the notice of the National Food Council.

"In some cases," he said, "a tradesman places the article on the scale, holding it with both hands. He lets go, and as he draws one hand away he presses the scale down gently, so that as it sinks he whips the article off with the other hand. If it is really a clever juggling trick, and not one housewife in a hundred could detect it."

Of late years weight frauds have been enormously facilitated by the great increase in the use of complicated instruments. The Board of Trade has withheld its approval from some of these contrivances, on the ground that they could be readily manipulated against the purchaser; but certain types have become common, notwithstanding that some women avoid shops where they are installed.

One trick in using them is to snatch a purchase from the scale before the indicator comes to a standstill and shows the weight, or, at all events, the weight according to the instrument. In this way it is easy to defraud the purchaser of half a pound of chocolates or of two pence or three pence, and when expensive fruit is bought the loss to the customer may be greater still.

Frequently, indeed, the profits gained illegitimately by giving short weight are very serious from the customer's point of view. An analysis of some actual instances shows the following additional gains per pound:

Fish, 5d.; beef, 4d.; butter, 1 1/4d.; 9d. bacon, 1 1/4d.; apples, 3 1/4d. The total overcharge on a log of lamb was more so than most people think. Why is, id., and the difference between the stated and the actual weight of a small joint of beef represented about short weight a penal offence.

Dear as food is, then, it is actually more so than most people think. Why should this scandal continue? The Legislature should make the giving of short weight a penal offence.

Dominions Given Freedom of Action Under Security Pact

Local Option Campaign Being Organized in Great Britain—Greeks and Bulgarians Fight the Result of a Misunderstanding—Italian Freighter Helpless in Mid-Atlantic.

LOCAL OPTION CAMPAIGN IN BRITAIN.

LONDON, Oct. 20. The Locarno Security Pact leaves to all of the British Dominions complete independence of action in connection with the terms of the Treaty. The article reads, "The present Treaty shall impose no obligations upon any of the British Dominions, or upon India, unless the consent of such Dominion or India signifies its acceptance thereof."

FIGHTING UNDER A MISUNDERSTANDING.

ATHENS, Oct. 20. Fighting between Greeks and Bulgarians on the frontier near Demir-Hissar ended to-day, when the Bulgarians hoisted a white flag and explained that the 24 hours' engagement had been the result of a misunderstanding. The Greeks, nevertheless, are strengthening their border forces and investigating Bulgarian strength there.

ITALIAN SHIP HELPLESS IN MID-ATLANTIC.

LONDON, Oct. 20. The United States liner President Harding, reported to-night by wireless, that she was standing by, in mountainous seas in mid-Atlantic, helplessly watching a tragedy in the plight of the Italian liner Ignazio Florio.

which had lost her rudder, and drifting at the mercy of high seas, losing second officer overboard and others suffering injuries. Hopes are entertained that abated seas will permit the rescue of the remaining 37 of her crew to-morrow.

FISTICUFFS IN HUNGARIAN PARLIAMENT.

BUDAPEST, Hungary, Oct. 20. Radical members of the Hungarian Parliament engaged in a fist fight on the floor of the House to-day, one man having his ears nearly torn off before the others seized his aggressor and threw him into a lobby.

MAURETANIA'S PREVIOUS CARGO.

LONDON, Oct. 20. The Cunarder Mauretania, sailing Saturday for New York, will have the biggest load of treasure ever carried across the Atlantic in the form of unprecedented gold shipments, presumably the outcome of recent big sales by the Bank of England.

U.S. LINER STANDS BY.

NEW YORK, Oct. 20. The United States liner, President Harding, reached the side of the sinking Italian freighter, Ignazio Florio, in mid-Atlantic, to-day, and stood by to receive her crew, according to wireless messages which state that the vessel carried 38 persons. No details of her mishap had been received other than those stated yesterday, that the steamer was to be abandoned and that mountainous seas prevailed.

POLAR SHIP REACHES NORWAY.

OSLO, Norway, Oct. 20. The ship Island, of the British Polar Expedition, under command of Frank Worsley and Grettir Algarsson, Canadian explorer, was towed into Thomsen, Norway, by a Dutch steamer. According to last reports the vessel was last reported off Victoria Land, damaged by ice.

Scandals of the Law Courts

MAKING A MOCKERY OF JUSTICE.

At last we are promised drastic alterations in the jury system, the Government intending, it is said, to abolish many evils.

Will the sweeping away of the grievances under which jurymen now suffer be the beginning of numerous legal reforms? (writes our Legal Correspondent).

Some measures should be directed against the piling up of costs—a public scandal against which many solicitors have protested. The simplest application regarding the construction of a will, when the estate is small and there is no opposition, involves a bill for £100 or more.

A case of this kind—one in which the value of the estate was only £40—came before Mr. Justice Astbury who said, "It is monstrous, and it distresses me to think that poor people cannot have a short document constructed for something less than £135."

Who is to blame? Still more expensive is the shortest of trials. If a case takes only half a day to try, the costs are rarely less than £150. Even then a E.C. must be bribed. Higher still, expert evidence must not be required, a special jury must not be indulged in, and the parties and their witnesses must live within omnibus radius of the Law Courts, or the costs will be much greater.

The expenses of other cases are grossly disproportionate to the issues. To recover on a dishonoured cheque for £75 cost one litigant £101, and not long ago £897 had to be distributed among lawyers to enable a suit on a commercial claim to recover £27.

Who is to blame for such grossly excessive costs? Solicitors say they are due to the unreasonable fees of the Bar, and the Bar puts the whole responsibility on solicitors. As a fact, both branches of the law are answerable for piling up costs, because both apply to legal processes the principle of "no duty" some solicitors, by voluminous correspondence and in other ways, do their best to make a mountain out of a molehill, and barristers often follow suit, by spinning out their speeches and cross-examinations.

The Law's Last Word. This system of making work, when it exists, is particularly unjust to provincial litigants, many of whom are made to come to London for what they could get a good deal cheaper at their own doors. Their solicitors, instead of sending cases to the assizes, enter them in the London list, partly to swell costs and that they themselves may have a holiday in town at the expense of their clients.

The most striking instances of how great is brought to the legal mill are seen in the Court of Criminal Appeal. After a long agitation, and finally through the miscarriage of justice in the case of Adolph Beck, this court was established in 1908 for the revision of juries' verdicts where good grounds could be shown for such a course.

It sat weekly for nearly four years before it interfered with a capital sentence, and ever since its formation it has saved from the gallows only about half-a-dozen persons convicted of murder. Very rarely, therefore, does the machinery of justice get out of order.

Actions That are Advertisements. Yet of the late years nearly every convicted murderer with means has appealed, often in grotesque circumstances. Even Mahon of Crumblies notoriety, was no exception to the rule, though he had no more chance of getting the sentence against him quashed than he had of being made Prime Minister.

"Nothing except the fact that this is a capital case," remarked the Lord Chief Justice, in delivering judgment, "prevents me from saying that this is a frivolous appeal, and a waste of the time of the court."

The solemn face is usually prompted by a prisoner's legal advisers, for whom it means more work and more fees. An appeal, in fact, is often recommended just to found off a job and get off it every penny it is worth.

There is, however, another important outcome of what is known in commercial circles as "pushing trade," and that is "frivolous" litigation, which is a nuisance and scandal to the courts, and causes the time of judges and juries to be fooled away.

Much of such litigation is entered into by people who "know things," and whose aim is simply advertisement. Some years ago, for instance, a woman alleged that she had been injured by using a certain proprietary article, and claimed damages from the manufacturer.

There was a good deal of expert evidence on both sides, but the defendants had no difficulty in rebutting the case against them, and the trial, after a three days' hearing, ended in the withdrawal of all imputations. This was strictly according to plan, the whole thing having been prearranged for the sake of publicity.

According to Plan. An action for slander, again, was brought by a company against a certain bearer of a well-known name. In the end—which was a long time in coming—it was given a verdict for £2,000 and costs. But actually it gained nothing directly from the action, because, in addition to foregoing damages and costs, it gave the defendant £500 for his services as dummy.

One of the most remarkable actions of this kind was brought to light by a woman who sought to recover money alleged to be due her for the service she had rendered in connection with it. She had taken part in a scheme to "boom" a play, and, according to her statement, had not been paid the fee promised her for exploiting the law.

But a good deal of "frivolous" litigation is engaged in by people who are badly advised. Either they have no evidence or else the issue is too trivial for the imposing machinery of the law; and yet they are counselled to go to the High Court, or, at any rate, not dissuaded from going there, and thus put to expense for nothing.

A Judge's Rebuke. A judge whose misfortune it was to hear one of these cases recently hit the nail on the head. He expressed the opinion that the action ought not to have been brought, whereupon counsel for plaintiff observed that the parties had been lords and dukes the trial would have lasted eight days, "Lords and dukes," returned the judge, "would have been properly advised, and the action would never have been heard of."

Two preposterous cases of the kind technically classed as "frivolous litigation" came into court almost simultaneously. One was an action over a back-garden snailbait between two women—a "flippant action," the foreman of the jury called it, adding that if people were able to afford expensive litigation they ought to be made to pay jurymen for their lost time.

Wasting The Court's Time. The other case was a petition for a divorce by somebody who was said to have been employed as a gardener. So flimsy was the evidence for the petitioner that the judge said there was none to go to the jury, who at once strongly expressed their agreement. The petitioner, his lordship added, was evidently animated by "mere spite." However this may be, the time of the court was wasted.

In connection with costs alone, then, there is plenty of scope for reform, and many barristers and solicitors would welcome action to that end, if only because the present expense of litigation is killing the goose that lays the golden egg. More and more are disputes being referred to arbitration, with the result that there is a steady falling off in work for the legal profession.—Tit-Bits.

Draperies are apt to be pointed in effect. A great deal of green and blue is seen and many red browns and red violets.

The Best Cough Syrup is Home-made. Here's an easy way to save 12 and get the best cough medicine you ever tried.

You've probably heard of this well-known plan of making cough syrup at home. But have you ever used it? When you do, you will understand why thousands of families the world over feel that they could hardly keep house without it. It's simple and cheap, but the way it takes hold, cough will quickly earn it a permanent place in your home.

Into a 16-oz. bottle, pour 2½ ounces of Pinax; then add plain granulated sugar syrup to fill up the bottle. Or, if desired, use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup instead of sugar syrup. Either way, it tastes good, never spoils, and gives you 16 ounces of better cough remedy than you could buy ready-made for $2.50.

It is really wonderful how quickly this homemade remedy conquers a cough—usually in 24 hours or less. It seems to penetrate through every six passages, loosen a dry, hoarse or tight cough, lifts the phlegm, soothes the membrane, and gives almost instantaneous relief for throat, chest, tickle, hoarseness, croup, bronchitis and bronchial asthma.

Pinax is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, and has been used for generations for throat and chest ailments. To avoid disappointment, ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinax" with directions, and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give relief. Intended for home use only. Refunded. The Pinax Co. Toronto, Ont.

Tobacco Truths. It is not known whether it was Sir Walter Raleigh, Sir John Hawkins, Mr. Ralph Lane (Governor of Virginia), or Captains Amidas and Barlow, who first brought tobacco to this country.

Many authorities have stated that smoking was unknown in England before 1854. But it is certain that, long before this period, herbs, such as cuffs, foot and yarrom, were smoked for medical purposes. Pipes have been found belonging to an earlier date than the sixteenth century.

Good cigarette paper is quite harmless. Actually cigarettes smoked in moderation are less injurious to the smoker than either the cigar or the pipe, for the combustion of the tobacco is more complete and the poisonous tar oils are consequently burned before reaching the smoker's mouth.

Neotino, which in good Virginia tobacco rarely exceeds one per cent, is destroyed by combustion. The harmful products are the tar oils, of which the principal constituent is pyridine.

The simplest way to skin loveliness

SO many girls and women make the mistake of looking to costly beauty treatments for pretty skin.

The most effective treatment of all is this—so simple that it will surprise you.

Just correct cleansing. Powders, rouge, dust from the air—all gather in the tiny pores of your skin, every day. They must be removed if you would keep skin lovely, youthful, alluring.

If permitted to remain they age and deaden the skin. Eruptions, blackheads are the result. Beauty goes.

Do this. Before going to bed, each night, see that your skin is perfectly clean—all the pores. But don't employ harsh soaps. They are dangerous to skin beauty.

That is why millions of women have found Palmolive Soap best. It is a wonderful blend of natural, gently cleansing oils.

Wash well with it each night. Massage the soothing lather well in. Then rinse. Now repeat washing and rinsing. Apply a little cold cream if your skin is dry. And that is all you need do.

A needless risk. It does not pay, in so important a matter, to risk using soaps of which you know little. In Palmolive Soap there are the oils of palm, coconut palm and olive trees—no others. They—and nothing else—give Nature's green color to Palmolive Soap.

And Palmolive is inexpensive. You can well afford to let it do for your whole body—in the bath—what it does for the face.

All dealers have it. Get a cake today. Start your simple treatment tonight. See how remarkable the results—even in one short week!

Trafalgar Day

Today is the 120th Anniversary of the most glorious event in Britain's naval history, The Battle of Trafalgar, an event in which the nation's joy at the most decisive triumph was half forgotten in her grief for Nelson, who fell during the heat of the engagement.

Preserved in the records of the Telegram is a copy of the London Times published on November 7th, 1805. It is a four-page edition measuring 17 by 11 inches, with the matter arranged in four columns. In it are published Vice-Admiral Collingwood's despatches describing the battle and a short account of Nelson's last moments. These, we have reproduced in this issue, and the article which follows is The Times editorial written on that occasion.

The official account of the late naval action, which terminated in the most decisive victory that has ever been achieved by British skill and gallantry, will be found in our paper of today. That the triumph, great and glorious as it is, has been dearly bought, and that such was the general opinion, was powerfully evinced in the deep and universal affliction with which the news of Lord Nelson's death was received. The victory created none of those enthusiastic emotions in the public mind, which the success of our naval arms have in every former instance produced. There was not a man who did not think that the life of the hero of the Nile was too great a price for the capture and destruction of twenty sail of French and Spanish men-of-war. No oblations of popular transport, no demonstrations of public joy, marked this great and important event. The honest and manly feeling of the people appeared as it should have done; they felt an inward satisfaction at the triumph of their favourite arms; they mourned with all the sincerity and poignancy of domestic grief their Hero slain.

To the official detail we are enabled to add the following particulars respecting the death of as great an Admiral as ever wielded the Naval thunder of Britain. When Lord Nelson found that by his skilful manoeuvres he had placed the enemy in such a situation that they could not avoid an engagement, he displayed the utmost animation, and with his usual confidence of victory he said to Captain Hardy, and the officers who surrounded him on the quarter-deck, "Now they cannot escape us; I think we shall at last make sure of twenty of them. I shall probably lose a leg, but that will be purchasing a victory cheaply." About two hours before the close of the action his Lordship received a wound in the shoulder from a musket ball, which was fired from the tops of the Santissima Trinidad, with which ship he was closely engaged. The ball penetrated his breast, and he instantly fell; he was immediately carried below, and the surgeons pronounced his wound mortal. His Lordship received the intelligence with all the firmness and pious resignation to the will of Divine Providence, of which he has given such frequent and signal examples during his brilliant course of peril and glory. He immediately sent an Officer to Admiral Collingwood, the second in command, with his instructions for continuing the action which he had so gallantly commenced, and the melancholy bequest of his last farewell.

During the short interval between his receiving the wound and his final dissolution he remained perfectly collected, displaying in his last moments the heroism that had marked every action of his glorious life. In that trying moment, cut off from nature and from glory's cause, all his anxiety, all his thoughts, were directed to his country and her fame.

A few minutes before he expired he sent for Captain Hardy, when the Captain came he inquired how many of the enemy's ships had struck. The Captain replied that, as nearly as he could ascertain, fifteen sail of the line had struck their colours. His Lordship then, with that fervent piety which so strongly marked his character, returned thanks to the Almighty, then turning to Captain Hardy he said, "I know I am dying. I could have wished to have survived to breathe my last upon British ground, but the will of God be done!" In a few moments he expired.

If ever there was a man who deserved to be "praised, wept, and honored," by his country, it is Lord Nelson. His three great naval achievements have eclipsed the brilliancy of the most dazzling victories in the annals of English daring. If ever a hero merited the honours of a public funeral and a public mourning, it is the pious, the modest, and the gallant Nelson, the darling of the British Navy, whose death has plunged a whole nation into its deepest grief, and to whose talents and bravery even the enemy's he has conquered will bear testimony.

The action appears to have been gallantly contested by the French and Spaniards. Their object in risking an encounter with such a fleet, commanded by such a man, must have been one of imperious necessity at this moment; no less, we suspect, than a bold effort to acquire a complete ascendancy in the Mediterranean. Had they succeeded in liberating that portion of the Spanish Navy which is confined to the port of Cadiz, and by the bare apprehension of an English Squadron, their united forces would have amounted to upwards of fifty sail of line. There are also some ships of Toulon, and the Fouchet squadron, with its usual success, might have perhaps also added its troops to the combined force. With such a port as Toulon to take refuge in, a fleet of this extent, under Commanders of common capacity, must have occupied a very large portion indeed of our naval strength.

We shall anxiously expect the details of this glorious and important victory. We trust that the apprehensions entertained by Admiral Collingwood with respect to the captured prizes may not be realized, and that a few of the French at least may yet be added to the list of the British Navy.

Captain Sykes, of the Nautilus, and Lieutenant Lapentotiere, of the Pickle schooner, arrived at the Admiralty together about half-past one o'clock yesterday. The former did not, as was generally understood, arrive from the scene of action; he fell by accident with the Pickle schooner, and on learning the intelligence proceeded immediately to Lisbon with the information from whence he was sent with dispatches, by Mr. Gambrier, the British Consul, to England, and landed at Plymouth. Lieutenant Lapentotiere made the Port of Falmouth, and by a singular coincidence, met Captain Sykes at the gates of the Admiralty. This active Officer was yesterday promoted to the rank of Commander.

Immediately on the arrival of the dispatches, Lord Barnham rose from his bed to peruse them, and continued at business till five o'clock, when a message was sent off to his Majesty at Windsor.
Admiral Collingwood's conduct has obtained the fullest approbation, and last night dispatches were sent off to Plymouth to be forwarded to him by the Acacia, containing a commission which appoints him to the command of the ships in the Mediterranean with the same powers as Lord Nelson had.

The several ships of the line at Portsmouth and Plymouth are ordered to put to sea without loss of time, to reinforce Admiral Collingwood.
Besides those officers mentioned in the Gazette as having fallen in the action, Mr. Scott, Lord Nelson's Secretary, was killed by a chain shot, which cut him in sunder. There was a partial illumination throughout the metropolis last night. A general one will take place this evening.

CONFEDERATION LIFE.

C. L. A. Annual Sale

The Columbus Ladies Association annual sale of work opened yesterday at 4 p.m. in Columbus Hall and up till closing time last night the affair was crowded with visitors. The sale is being held in the top part of the building. Rev. Dr. Kitchin, Administrator of the Archdiocese, formally opened the sale, making a fine address in which he eulogized the work of the ladies of the association in the cause of education. Present at the opening were Rev. Dr. Carter and Fr. Sullivan, Past State Deputy C. J. Cahill and Mrs. Cahill, Grand Knight, J. G. Higgins and Mrs. Higgins, Mrs. J. T. Power, President of the Association, and Mrs. V. P. Burke. The stalls, well filled with plain and fancy goods moderately priced, are making a fine feature of the tea and supper and ample preparations have been made for the accommodation of patrons. The sale continues this afternoon and closes to-night. To-morrow night the Autumn dance of the association takes place and promises to be an enjoyable affair.

Three Flowers Face Cream To-Night

Last night, the lady visitors received complimentary samples of Three Flowers Face Powder. To-night, generous samples of Three Flowers Vanishing Cream will be presented at ladies holding the complimentary cards. These cards will be given lady visitors on entering the Prince's Rink and are to be presented at the Three Flowers Booth for the samples. All should be sure to receive a sample. The man giving out the complimentary cards should miss you, please ask him for one, for it is desired that every lady should receive a complimentary sample of Three Flowers, the luxurious and aristocratic Vanishing Cream. Oct 21, 11.

Children Interested in the Fair

The Fair is proving a most popular resort for citizens of all ages, and it appears to have a great attraction for the school children who throng the passages in hundreds during the afternoons. This is a pleasing sight and deserving of encouragement. It may be remembered however that the stalls are only temporarily erected and may easily be knocked over and that exhibits are to be looked at and not handled. Further, the running through the building raises a dust which destroys many of the articles on display. The teachers in the schools by a timely word of advice could do much to prevent anything which tends to injure the exhibit or interfere with the pleasure of other spectators, and we feel certain that they will gladly cooperate in this matter.

Wash-out at Seal Cove

SHORE TRAIN HELD UP ALL NIGHT.
Last night a washout occurred at Seal Cove, when, at high tide, the sea swept over the railway tracks and did damage to a portion of the roadbed. The incoming shore train was hung up all night as a result, and the passengers, numbering twenty-five, were conveyed to the city by Marshall's motor bus, at 3.30. Arrangements to this effect having been made by the Railway Management. The line is again in order to-day. The outgoing morning train was passed through without any trouble.

HALIFAX MARATHON SWEEP

The fact that 36 runners having entered for the road race and three of the number having been disqualified owing to physical unfitness, makes it necessary, according to the governing rules, to draw for their time, as well as for entry numbers 37 to 50, both inclusive. This makes $850.00 worth of prizes to be drawn for. Oct 21, 11.

Visit the Industrial Fair Free

To all Men, Women and Children who purchase a pair of Goodrich Rubber Shoes or Boots from Bowring Brothers, Ltd., under the Fair is open, will be given a ticket that will admit them to the Exhibition without payment. The ticket is valid until Oct. 24. The High Street Rubber Footwear is admitted to be the best on the market, and is manufactured by the B. F. Goodrich Company, of Akron, Ohio. Bowring Brothers, Limited, are the Newfoundland Agents, and the above offer will be appreciated by the public, who are particularly requested to view the B. F. Goodrich Rubber Company's products in their stall at the Bank.

PEPPYS BEHIND THE SCENES

Oct. 20th.—Reading this day in an American sheet do find the following which is alleged to be a Riffian song: One Englishman is a sportsman, Two Englishmen is a sportsman, Three Englishmen is a sportsman, One Spaniard is Don Quixote and Three Spaniards is Don Quixote and Sancho Panza.
The weather might colder and a fall of hail stones, turning to rain, which do make me fear that winter approaches. Take care with your coats, me how silly the women now are, that they do have the rims of their evening dresses to match their frocks. Men's frocks that the appropriate wear in evening dresses, would be needless. This night to a committee meeting of the Strollers about the Eastern Dance and variety, determined, among other things, that costumes may be representative of any eastern nation. Anon to the club, where Joe plays inequity to a white, but with poor luck as usual, and me thinks would be well advised to forego the game in future.

'Newfoundland' in Port

S.S. Newfoundland, Capt. S. J. Funnell, arrived from Liverpool at 2 a.m. after a stormy passage. The following are passengers to this port:—A. G. Allen, R. T. Bevan, Mrs. Bevan, Mr. Mendel Elkon, Miss Epstein, Miss G. Gosling, Mrs. W. R. Howley, Mrs. J. H. Kavanagh, P. H. Knowling, A. N. McKie, Mrs. McKie, A. H. Morse, M. J. Murphy, Mrs. Murphy, Hon. Geo. Shea, Mrs. Shea, Mrs. M. S. Sullivan, Stephen H. Watson, Miss Mary Ramsey, Miss Helen Wigh. There are also 25 passengers en route to Halifax and Boston. The ship came on Sunday a tremendous westerly gale on Saturday and Monday without sustaining damage. It was the first test of the steaming qualities of the ship and she behaved admirably. The weather did not moderate until Tuesday. During the storm the ship could make practically no headway. When subsided she came along at full speed. It is expected that the ship will be in Newfoundland, the S.S. Nova Scotia, now being built by Vickers & Barrow, will be ready for service in April. The Newfoundland sails for Halifax and Boston to-morrow afternoon.

Fears for Safety of Boat Bound to St. Mary's

Considerable anxiety is being felt for the safety of the boat Eliza, Capt. W. H. Hearn, which left here on Sunday for Riverhead, St. Mary's. A message stating that the vessel had not arrived at her destination was received to-day by Mr. W. J. Walsh, Minister of Agriculture & Mines. The Minister has had messages of enquiry sent to all the telegraph offices between here and St. Mary's, but failed to locate the vessel. It is possible she may have been driven to sea as there is a report that shortly after leaving here she had lost her forecastle. There is further possibility that she may have harbored in some cove where there is no telegraph communication. At the request of the Minister, a message has been sent to the Caribou, asking that ship to keep a lookout for the vessel. The Eliza has a crew of three or four, the Captain's brother being one of the hands.

Distinctively Fascinating

Of all the exquisite productions of Richard Hudnut, none has more closely suited the cultivated taste in perfumes of the smarter young women than the matchless essence Three Flowers—and none have better satisfied their requirements in the other arts of the dressing table than the delightful preparations carrying that same fragrance. Each Three Flowers preparation is distinctively fascinating. The talc, is so soft and soothing, the face powder so fragrant and appealing, the creams so beautifully blended that the use of each one is a delightful experience. Ladies declare that Three Flowers cosmetics have ushered in a new era for the woman who takes pride in the selection of her toilet tissues. You too, will love the thirty Three Flowers, all of which may now be obtained at local toilet counters.—Oct 21, w.a.t

Regrets Lack of Arms

WHEN HE SEES BEAUTIFUL GIRLS
"Unfortunately," said the Live Life Saver at the Exhibition last night: "Owing to the rush of getting ready, I had to come on the scene without arms, consequently I am unable to take part in any of the dances. I did not mind being without arms very much until I saw these lovely girls dancing last night in the Curling Rink. How I wish I could take part in those dances, but a man without arms, even if he is a LIFE SAVER, is not wanted at dances, although I must admit some of the ladies cast longing eyes in my direction during the dancing and I became quite bashful, especially when one beautiful little girl looked at me and said to her friend: "I simply love LIFE SAVERS and always take one to bed with me."

Magistrate's Court

Two drunks were each fined $1.00 and blacklisted.
A drunk in charge of a horse was fined $10.00.
A labourer, convicted of a breach of Section 24, Sub Section 3, of the Alcoholic Liquors Act, (his second offence under the Act) was fined $200 or in default, 3 months' imprisonment.
A labourer, summoned by the Board of Liquor Control, charged with a breach of section 24, Sub Section 3 (drunk in a public place), was convicted and fined $10.00 or in default 30 days' imprisonment. It was his first offence under the Act.
A labourer was arraigned and charged with damage to property at the Seamen's Institute on the night of 19th October. The Manager of the Institute who lodged the complaint, stating that the defendant entered the building on the night in question, by a door leading to the boiler room, and drained the fireman's absence, and drained the water of the boiler. The first man upon his return to duty, found the boiler room door open and the boiler flooded. The defendant was summoned to appear before the court. The witness who identified the defendant, witness also swore that only a small amount of steam was on at the time, and there was great danger of its exploding and doing injury to himself and damage to the building. The accused had very little to say for his defence, and under the Statutes a fine of $40.00 or 30 days' imprisonment was imposed. He went down. A labourer residing on Stephen St. was summoned before court this morning for non-support of his wife and family. The wife appeared in court against the husband, and stated in her evidence that he has not given anything towards the upkeep of the home for the past six weeks. It appears that he has been working all along at the dry dock, but rather than bring his pay envelope home he would spend the money on himself, and at the same time he would keep the wife informed that there was no work. Judge Morris decided that the only cure for the defendant was to send him down for 10 days.

Fourteen delinquents were summoned for failing to pay their annual Poll-Tax. Twelve made good the amount. Two others who failed to appear when called on will be arrested under warrant.

Opera Comedy
Feature at the Majestic

"BLOW YOUR OWN HORN," WITH AN ALL STAR CAST.

New York stage success "Blow Your Own Horn" that is playing at the Majestic theatre to-night, is an example of what a first-class actor can do with a coring good comedy. From the moment the first scene of this hilarious comedy begins, the audience is held spellbound by the tenderly-raised city boy who, in the person of a young man, James H. Horn, the director, gives us a hilarious succession of chortles, and downright laughter.

There is one especially spectacular scene toward the end of the play which is an example of superb comedy. The heroine and the young actor are trapped in an electrified room, where the radio invention of the latter is located. Their lives are threatened by the selfish stupidity of the girl's father, who, to discourage investors from putting money in the boy's invention, had tampered with the apparatus. As a result, there are electrical sparks and a charged atmosphere surrounds the scene and threaten their lives. Here, chancing to remember that he has seen birds sit on telephone wires and fly away unhurt, scales the hero with a pair of pliers, cuts the wires and swings to safety, unharmed by the tremendous current which is striking through the wire. For physical comedy this scene is the most breath-taking to be shown in a long time. The virile yet whimsical impersonation of the penniless doughboy by James H. Horn, the marvellously humorous characterization of the girl's father by Ralph Lewis, and the dainty and of the newly discovered star, Mrs. Perdue, are outstanding features of this delicious comedy. The cast of the cast, however, is so excellent that it hardly seems fair to single any one for special eulogy.

Trinity College of Music Scholarship

The Trinity College of Music, London, has awarded a Junior Music Scholarship of six guineas, to Mary Smyth, daughter of Mr. Thomas Smyth, King's Bridge Road, and pupil of the Presentation Convent, Cathedral Hill, Liverpool.

The examination held last week, at this candidate scored the highest mark of any candidate in the Island and she had only then completed her year.

Congratulations to the youthful candidate, her parents and her school.

The Battle of Trafalgar.

Despatches of Vice-Admiral Collingwood.

(Taken from an original copy of "The Times," Nov. 7th, 1805.)

Admiralty Office, Nov. 6. Despatches, of which the following are copies, were received at the Admiralty this day, at one o'clock a.m. from Vice-Admiral Collingwood, Commander in Chief of His Majesty's ships and vessels off Cadix:—

Euryalus, off Cape Trafalgar, Oct. 22, 1805.

Sir,—The ever-to-be lamented death of Vice-Admiral, Lord Viscount Nelson, who in the late conflict with the enemy fell in the hour of victory, leaves me the duty of informing my Lords Commissioners of the Admiralty that on the 19th instant it was communicated to the Commander in Chief, from the ships watching the motions of the enemy in Cadiz, that the combined fleet had put to sea; as they hailed with light winds westerly, his Lordship concluded their destination was the Mediterranean, and immediately made all sail for the straight entrance with the British Squadron, consisting of twenty-seven ships, three of them sixty-fours, where his Lordship was informed by Captain Blackwood (whose vigilance in watching and giving notice of the enemy's movements has been highly meritorious—that they had not yet passed the Straights. On Monday, the 21st instant, at daylight, when Cape Trafalgar bore E. by S. about seven leagues, the enemy was discovered about six or seven miles east ward, the wind about west, and very light. The Commander in Chief immediately made the signal for the fleet to bear up in two columns as they are formed in order of sailing; a mode of attack his Lordship had previously directed to avoid the inconvenience and delay in forming a line of battle in the usual manner. The enemy's line consisted of thirty-three ships (of which eighteen were French and fifteen Spanish), commanded in chief by Admiral Villeneuve; the spaniards under the direction of Gravins, were with their heads northward, and formed their line of battle with great closeness and correctness; but as the mode of attack was unusual, so the structure of their line was new; it formed a crescent, convexing the leeward, so that in leading down to the centre I had both their van and rear about the beam; before the fire opened, every alternate ship was about a cable's length to windward of her second ahead and astern, forming a kind of double line, and appeared when on their beam to leave a very little interval between them; and this without crowding their ships. Admiral Villeneuve was in the Bucentaure in the centre, and the Prince of Asturias bore Gravina's flag in the rear; but the French and Spanish ships were mixed without any apparent regard to order of national squadron.

As the mode of our attack had been previously determined on and communicated to the Flag Officer and Captains; few signals were necessary, and none were made except to direct close order as the lines bore down.

The Commander in Chief, in the Victory, led the weather column, and the Royal Sovereign, which bore my flag, the lee.

The action began at twelve o'clock by the leading ships of the column breaking through the enemy's line, the Commander in Chief about the tenth ship from the van; the Second in Command about the twelfth from the rear, leaving the van of the enemy unoccupied; the succeeding ships breaking through in all parts, astern of their leaders, and engaging the enemy at the muzzle of their guns. The conflict was severe; the enemy's ships were fought with a gallantry highly honourable to their officers; but the attack on them was irresistible, and it pleased the Almighty Disposer of all events to grant His Majesty's arms a complete and glorious victory. About three p.m., many of the enemy's ships having struck their colours, their line gave way. Admiral Gravins with ten ships joining their frigates to leeward, stood towards Cadix. The five headmost ships in their van tacked, and standing to the southward, to windward of the British line, were engaged; and the sternmost of them taken; the others went off, leaving to His Majesty's squadron nineteen ships of the line (of which three are first-rates—the Santissima, Trinidad, and the Santa Anna), with three Flag Officers, viz. Admiral Villeneuve, the Commander in Chief; Don Ignatius Maria D'Aliva, Vice Admiral; and the Spanish Rear Admiral, Don Bathasar Hidalgo Cisneros.

After such a victory it may appear unnecessary to enter into encomiums on the particular parts taken by the several commanders; the copiousness says more on the subject than I have language to express; the spirit which animated all was the same; when all exert themselves zealously in their country's service, all deserve that their high merits should stand recorded; and never was high merit more conspicuous than in the battle I have described.

The Achille (a French 74), after having surrendered, by some mismanagement of the Frenchman took fire and blew up; two hundred of her men were saved by the tenders.

A circumstance occurred during the action which so strongly marks the invincible spirit of British seamen, when engaging the enemies of their country, that I cannot resist the pleasure I have in making it known to their Lordships. The Temeraire was boarded by accident or design by a French ship on one side and a spaniard on the other; the contest was vigorous, but in the end the combined English were torn from the poop and the British hoisted in their places. Such a battle could not be fought without sustaining a great loss of men. I have not only to lament in common with the British Navy and the British Nation in the fall of the Commander in Chief, the loss of a hero whose name will be immortal and his memory ever dear to his country; but my heart is rent with the most poignant grief for the death of a friend to whom by many years intimacy and a perfect knowledge of the virtues of his mind, which inspired ideas superior to the common race of men, I was bound by the strongest ties of affection; a grief to which the glorious occasion in which he fell does not bring the consolation which perhaps it ought. His Lordship received a musket ball in his left breast about the middle of the action, and sent an officer to me immediately with his last farewell, and soon after expired.

I have also to lament the loss of those excellent officers Captains Duc, of the Mars, and Cooke, of the Bellerophon: I have yet heard of none others. I fear the numbers that have fallen will be found very great, when the returns come to me; but it having blown a gale of wind ever since the action, I have not yet had it in my power to collect any reports from the ships.

The Royal Sovereign having lost her masts, except the tottering foremast, I called the Euryalus to me while the action continued, which ship lying within hail, made my signals—a service Captain Blackwood performed with great attention; after the action I shifted my flag to her, that I might more easily communicate any orders to, and collect the ships, and towed the Royal Sovereign out to seaward.

The whole fleet were now in a very perilous position, many dismantled, all shattered, in thirteen fathom water off the shoals of Trafalgar; and when I made the signal to prepare to anchor, few of the ships had an anchor to let go, their cables being shot; but the same good Providence which aided us through the night, by the wind shifting a few points, and drifting the ships off the land, except four of the captured dismantled ships, which are now at anchor off Trafalgar, and I hope will ride safe until these gales are over.

Having thus detailed the proceedings of the fleet on this occasion, I beg to congratulate their Lordships on a victory which I hope will add a ray to the glory of His Majesty's crown, and be attended with public benefit to our country. I am, &c.

(Signed) C. COLLINGWOOD.

GENERAL ORDER.

Euryalus, October 22, 1805.

The ever-to-be lamented death of Lord Viscount Nelson, Duke of Bronte; the Commander in Chief, who fell in the action of the twenty-first in the arms of victory, covered with glory, whose memory will ever be dear to the British Navy and the British Nation; whose zeal for the honour of his King and for the interests of his Country will ever be held up as a shining example to a British seaman, leaves to me a duty to return my thanks to the Right Honourable Rear Admiral, and captains, officers, seamen and detachment of Royal Marines serving on board His Majesty's Squadron now under my command for their conduct on that day; but where can I find language to express my sentiments of the valour and skill which were displayed by the officers, the seamen and marines in the battle with the enemy, where every individual appeared an hero on whom the glory of his country depended? The attack was irresistible, and the issue of it adds to the page of naval annals a brilliant instance of what Britons can do when their King and their Country need their service.

To the Right Honourable Rear Admiral the Earl of Northesk; to the officers, officers, seamen, and to the officers, non-commissioned officers and privates of the Royal Marines, I beg to give my sincere and hearty thanks for their highly and meritorious conduct both in action and in their zeal and activity in bringing the captured ships out from the perilous situation in which they were after their surrender among the shoals of Trafalgar in boisterous weather.

And I desire that the respective captains will be pleased to communicate to the officers, seamen and Royal Marines this public testimony of my high approbation of their conduct and my thanks for it.

(Signed) C. COLLINGWOOD.

To the Right Honourable Rear Admiral the Earl of Northesk, and the respective captains and commanders.

GENERAL ORDER.

The Almighty God, whose arm is strength, having of his great mercy been pleased to crown the exertion of His Majesty's fleet with success in giving them complete victory over their enemies on the 21st of this month; and that all praise and thanksgiving may be offered up to the Throne of Grace for the great benefits to our country and to mankind.

I have thought proper that a day should be appointed of general humiliation before God, and thanksgiving for His merciful goodness, imploring forgiveness of our sins, a continuance of His divine mercy, and his constant aid to us in the defence of our Country's liberties and laws, without which the utmost efforts of man are nugatory; and direct, therefore, that be appointed for this holy purpose.

Given on board the Euryalus, off Cape Trafalgar, 22nd Oct. 1805.

(Signed) C. COLLINGWOOD.

To the respective captains and commanders.

N.B.—The fleet having been dispersed by a gale of wind, no day has yet been able to be appointed for the above purpose.

Euryalus, off Cadiz, Oct. 24, 1805.

Sir,—In my letter of the 22nd I detailed to you for the information of my Lords Commissioners of the Admiralty, the proceedings of His Majesty's squadron on the day of the action and that preceding it, since which I have had a continued series of misfortunes, but they are of a kind that human prudence could not possibly provide against or my skill prevent.

On the 22nd, in the morning, a strong southerly wind blew, with equally bad weather, which, however, did not prevent the activity of the officers and seamen; such ships as were most injured from getting hold of many of the prizes (thirteen or fourteen) and towing them off to the westward, when I ordered them to rendezvous round the Royal Sovereign, in tow by the Neptune; but on the 23rd the gale increased and the sea ran so high that many of them broke the tow rope, and drifted far to leeward before they were got hold of again; and some of them taking advantage in the dark and boisterous night, got before the wind, and have perhaps drifted upon the shore and sunk; on the afternoon of that day in the remnant of the combined fleet, ten sail of ships who had not been engaged, stood up to leeward of my shattered and straggled charge, as if meaning to attack them, which obliged me to collect a force out of the least injured ships and form to leeward for their defence; all this retarded the progress of the hulks, and the bad weather continuing determined me to destroy all the leewardmost that could be cleared of the men, considering that progress possession of the ships was a matter of little consequence compared with the chance of their falling again into the hands of the enemy; but even this was an arduous task in the high sea which was running. I hope, however, it was accomplished to a considerable extent; I entrusted it to skilful officers, who would spare no pains to execute what was possible.

I have taken Admiral Villeneuve in this ship; Vice Admiral Don Aliva is dead. Whenever the temper of the weather will permit, and I can spare a frigate (for there were only four in the action with the fleet, Euryalus, Sirius, Phoebe and Nafad; the Melopeme joined the 22nd and the Enrydice and Scot (the 23rd), I shall collect the other flag officers and send them to England with their flags (if they do not all go to the bottom) to be laid at His Majesty's feet.

There were four thousand troops embarked under the command of General Contamin, who was taken with Admiral Villeneuve in the Bucentaure.

I am,

(Signed) C. COLLINGWOOD.

Eve's Apple Tree

Among the many botanical curiosities of Ceylon is a fruit supposed to bear the marks of Eve's teeth!

The tree on which it grows is known by the significant name of "Forbidden Fruit," or "Eve's Apple Tree." The blossom is pleasantly scented, and the fruit is orange in color outside and a deep crimson within. Each fruit has the peculiar appearance of having a piece bitten out of it.

This fact, together with its poisonous quality, led to the belief that it was the forbidden fruit of the Garden of Eden, and serves the useful purpose of warning such as might be tempted by its lovely appearance to imitate Eve and take a bite.

Wizard Manure

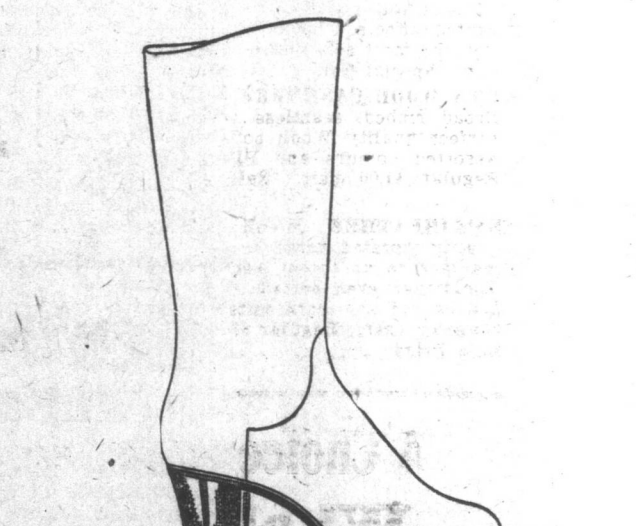

FOR FALL FERTILIZING.

Wizard Pulverized Dry Sheep Manure used now will cause quick action in your ground next Spring and give you better crops. Wizard provides humus to loosen the soil and provides drainage so that the soil will warm up much earlier; the frost and rain will incorporate the manure with the soil and produce favourable growing conditions. Use Wizard Manure now in your garden and you will have better roses, peonies, gladioli, etc., next year. One hundred pound bag of Wizard Powdered Manure equals two box car loads of stable manure, because it is ALL manure. Wizard Manure is free from straw and weeds, it is clean, easily handled and sterile. Spread it now in your vegetable garden, 100 pounds will cover 1000 square feet. For house plants use 1 pound in five gallons of water, then you may water and feed your flowers at the same time. It is ideal for green house use.

Wizard Powdered Dry Sheep Manure in 100 lb. bags 5c. per lb.
In 10 lb. bags, each enough for a 10 x 10 garden 6c. per lb.
In smaller quantities, 1 to 9 pounds 9c. per lb.

Walking on Springs

Leaping through the air like a kangaroo is the exciting sensation offered to children by the recent invention of shoes with springs.

These novel exercising toys are strapped to the feet in the same manner as roller skates, and the wearer can walk, run, jump, or dance on them.

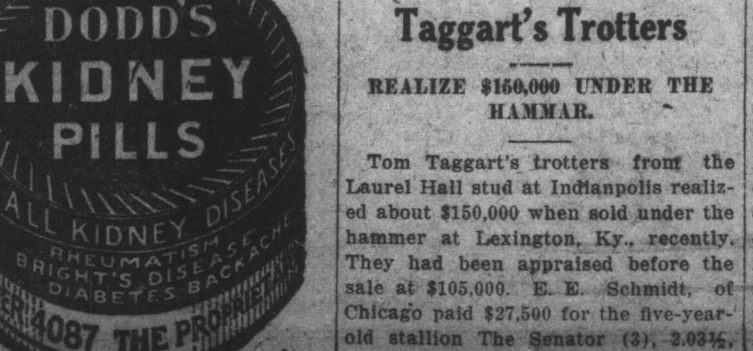

The steel springs, while of unusual strength, are extremely elastic. The effect produced is said to be like walking on air.

Each shoe has two spiral springs (says a writer in "Popular Science"), and the lower end of each is fastened to a sole that prevents the springs from injuring carpets or polished floors. With a little practice, it is said, a child can make enormous leaps.

Taggart's Trotters

REALIZE $150,000 UNDER THE HAMMAR.

Tom Taggart's Trotters from the Laurel Hill stud at Indianapolis realized about $150,000 when sold under the hammer at Lexington, Ky., recently. They had been appraised before the sale at $105,000. E. E. Schmidt, of Chicago paid $27,500 for the five-year-old stallion The Senator (3), 2:03 1/2; winner of the first May Day Sweepstakes for two-year-olds in 1922. It is said that the son of Peter the Great, 2:07 1/2, will be withdrawn from the stud and trained again next year. Fifteen weanlings by him brought $14,700, an average of $980, which is believed to be a record for the offspring of an untried trotting sire. W. H. Gave of New York paid $2,200 for the colt of Atlanta, paid $8,000 for her foal, out of the dam of Rhelinda (4), 2:02 1/2. Peter Pilot (4), 2:05 1/2 another stallion now seven years old by Peter the Great out of Bellewether L., by Axworthy (3), 2:15 1/2, went to R. S. Strader of Lexington for $12,000. Three yearlings by him brought $900, an average of $463. E. H. Harvin, of New York, paid $1,000 for one of them called King. Another went to Lon McDonald for $5,100. Annie Burnett (3), 2:15 1/2, Guy Axworthy (4), 2:08 1/2, topped sale of broodmares. She is the dam of The Senator. Walter T. AT THE FAIR

SECOND DAY DRAWS LARGE CROWD.

Upwards of two thousand people, including a large number from the outports, visited the Mercantile and Industrial Fair at the Prince's and Curling Rink yesterday. Amongst those present were a large number of distinguished citizens, besides many prominent business men and clergy of all denominations. On entering the rink visitors are immediately struck with the artistic layout of the booths, and on going around to pay each a visit it can readily be seen that the greatest pains have been taken to make the most attractive display that has been seen here in years, while those in charge of the various booths are most courteous, and visitors who desire information readily receive it.

The dancing platform in the Curling Rink was well patronized last night. The music rendered was of a very high order, and helped to make the time pass enjoyably for all who attended. The Methodist Guards Band rendered appropriate airs in the Prince's Rink from early evening until close up time, which helped greatly in enlivening the proceedings for the large crowd. A double passage way is laid between the two rinks somewhat similar to the former custom, so that everybody can pass from one to the other freely. All those present last night were loud in their praise of the entire exhibition.

Following the plan carried out last year by the Telegram, we are giving a detailed account of the booths daily until the whole exhibit is covered. The first of these accounts are published below.

ATRE AND SONS.

Booths 1, 2, 3 and 4.
Messrs. Ayre and Sons occupy Booths Nos. 1, 2, 3 and 4, situated near the main entrance in the Prince's Rink where there is on display articles that the firm are sole agents for. One booth represents the Jewellery Department, where a gleaming display of Labradorite set in silver is arranged in a neat show case. A special feature consists of hand bags and pouches made of Nfld. seal skin dressed in England, and among the novelties are a tiny baby seal paper weight and a team of Labrador huskies and komatik.

Hardware.

A second booth is devoted to the well known Kyanite paints and varnishes, Church's "Alabastine"—a cold water preparation, and Furmento and Solitaire polishes. Solitaire Polish is the only polish known that will clean and polish footwear of all colours. It is dustproof and weatherproof. "Spec-fackler" is another new product on the market for cleaning glass.

Dry Goods Dept.

Adjoining the Hardware is a stall devoted to a display of the well known Sharp's Super-Kreem Toilet, Huggins Biscuits, put up both in packages and tins, Wilbury's Cocoa, Ovaltine, a food tonic beverage, and Leslie's Baking Powder, whilst in a show case along side is to be found Westminster Cigarettes, made of Turkish or Virginian tobacco. In addition there are ten different brands of smoking mixtures.

This department specializes in Yardley's toilet requisites of a variety too numerous to mention. The wares manufactured by the well known firm dates back to 1770. An exhibit which receives much favourable attention is the stock of the Ladies' Millinery Department, which displays the latest creations in millinery and hangers that baffle description.

The fourth booth is devoted to the Piano Department, where the well known Estey and Gouley Pianos are on display as well as the Victrola Gramophone of the Victor Talking Machine Company, and Radio sets, representing the Radio Corporation of America, with all kinds of equipment including the Ever-Ready Battery. Mr. Allan Pittman, pianist of repute, has been engaged by the firm for the whole period of the fair, and he will be pleased to play any piece of music desired. The whole display is very attractive, and reflects great credit on the artistic skill of the designers.

MARSHALL BROS.

The enterprising firm of Messrs. Marshall Bros. has a booth showing a dainty assortment of ladies' wares, of silk and crepe de chene and Canton crepes. In the centre is a ladies' hat designed and handworked by Miss Galloway of the Millinery Department. The hat is American shape, trimmed with silk velvet, with a lace scarf to match. This is a fine example of what can be accomplished in this country in the way of home millinery. The feature of the exhibit is a hand painted silk evening dress of beautiful design and colour. The booth has a pretty background, decorated with silk saten of blue and gold colours, and in keeping with the class of goods on display.

In Memoriam

ARTHUR HISCOCK

While October leaves were falling
By the breeze blown here and there;
God upon our friend was calling,
Death lay loitering cold and near.
But he was prepared to meet it,
For his soul no terrors knew;
Brave and truly he did greet it,
For his heart was good and true.

Those who first had claimed to meet him,
On this day their thoughts partake
Memories like when they did greet him
Down by Quidi Vidi Lake.
Ah, what thoughts around them hover
There they spent bright hours of joy
With those far from Terra Nova,
Who shall see his face no more.

We must bear life's tribulations
Which God sends us from on high;
And accept His dispensations
With no murmur, or no sigh.
Such was done by him, our brother
For he knew that God is Love,
Trusting in Him, and no other,
Now he dwells with Him above.

Off in memory we shall view him
When Regatta Day comes round;
Thinking on him, as we knew him,
On the old Regatta ground.
Then, in fancy, we shall wander
To the hours we once enjoyed,
Of the grand deeds we'll grow fonder
Of our dear old friend that died.

—FRIENDSHIP.

St. John's, Oct. 20th, 1925.

F. Fawcett, Sackville, have two booths two into one, and give a splendid display of heating appliances, kitchenware and other household lines. On one side is shown the McClary's stoves and ranges, among which is the famous Kootenay Range for which the Clouston firm is the sole agent. Others which feature in the exhibit are the Fawcett Pipeless Furnace, Fawcett Gas Range Sunbeam Cabinet Heater, and the Royal Quebec for hall heating. A feature of the exhibit is a miniature stove named "Little Coal," used chiefly in schooner's cabins. Another feature of the exhibit which attracted much attention was the Viking Heater, which burns either wood or coal, and the Dandy Cook stove. Included in the exhibits is a line of bake pots, boilers, frying pans, etc., and cast iron Holloware. W. J. Clouston has carried on a successful business for the past forty-four years in the same premises on Water Street.

Salts Fine For Aching Kidneys

When Back Hurts Flush Your Kidneys as You Clean Your Bowels

Most folks forget that the kidneys, like the bowels, sometimes get sluggish and clogged and need a flushing occasionally, else we have backache and dull misery in the kidney region, severe headaches, rheumatic twinges, torpid liver, acid stomach, sleeplessness and all sorts of bladder disorders.

You simply must keep your kidneys active and clean and the moment you feel an ache or pain in the kidney region begin drinking lots of water. Also get about four ounces of Jad salts from any good drug store here, take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine.

This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is intended to flush clogged kidneys and help stimulate them to activity. It also helps neutralize the acids in the urine, so they no longer irritate, thus helping to relieve bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; makes a delightful effervescent lithia water drink which everybody should take now and then to help keep their kidneys clean.

A well-known local druggist says he sells lots of Jad Salts to folks who believe in trying to correct kidney trouble while it is only trouble.

West End Bazaar Opens New Branch

Mr. Alexander Stuart of the West End Bazaar has taken over the business stand known as Henderson's Theatre Hill and will conduct this store in conjunction with his other well known business. The West End Bazaar. The new store will carry a full line of Dry Goods including Millinery. The store will be open for business on Saturday. The Telegram wishes Mr. Stuart success in this enterprising expansion of his business.

"England," said Pitt in November 1805, "has saved herself by her courage, and will save Europe by her example."

C. L. B. Cadets

Yesterday, the Lt.-Col. Commanding, with Major H. Outerbridge, Capt. Sick, A.J., and practically a full staff on duty, the Battalion paraded on time, the companies doing physical drill and gymnastic exercises under their company officers.

Grand Falls Co.

News from Grand Falls is very encouraging. This company has sent in a requisition for kit, which Quartermaster Mott is forwarding on arrival of S.S. Newfoundland, with shipment of new supplies. Drs. McMillan and Brown are giving the lads a course in first aid.

Bay Roberts Co.

Bay Roberts Company reports that a batch of new recruits have passed their exams and are posted to the Co. These lads are Privates E. Bradbury, H. L. Greenland, V. H. Greenland, F. Horward, and J. D. Jones. We are delighted that Captain N. French, formerly of this Headquarters' staff, has rejoined his old Company. We miss him at the Armoury St. John's, but our loss is Bay Roberts' gain. He is a "War Vet" and has been appointed to the responsible position of Postmaster in his home town. Congratulations, Captain French, and the best of luck with the lads at Bay Roberts.

Port Rexton Co.

Port Rexton, Trinity East Company, send as usual a cheerful report. They are looking for their boxing gloves, and punch ball. Evidently there is trouble brewing if these necessary articles are not soon forthcoming.

Mail from Massachusetts contains the news of the marriage, on October 9th, of Mr. Eric Parnell, an old member of Bishop Field College Company. The bride was Miss Mildred Linnea Nelson, and the happy event took place in the St. James' Episcopal Church, Cambridge, Mass. St. John's friends wish the bridal couple every happiness.

The Brigade Major acknowledges with much appreciation letters of "welcome home," from Grand Falls, Bay Roberts, and Trinity East, Port Rexton Companies.

The Brigade Officers' Finance Committee wish to thank the joint C.C.C.-C.L.B. Bands for their contribution of eighty dollars towards C.L.B. funds. Thank you, gentlemen.

The C. L. B. Ladies' Association have been busy lately preparing for their grand annual sale. This has been arranged to take place on Oct. 28th in the C.L.B. Armoury. This affair promises to be a social and a successful affair. The C.L.B. Athletic Association are also busy arranging their big annual boxing and wrestling tournament, on Nov. 13, the day after the holiday. They are hoping to have it more interesting than ever.

The Summer Camp.

The Officers' Finance Committee held a meeting at 8:30 Tuesday evening. It was presided over by Lt.-Col. Rendell. The accounts of Camp expenses were submitted by Captain A. S. Lewis. The report showed an average of 170 lads were fed daily for ten days, at a total cost of one thousand and sixty-four dollars. The officer commanding the Brigade wishes to thank the following ladies and gentlemen for generous special donations to the cost of Camp, Topsail, 1925:—Hon. B. Watson, C. E. A. Jeffrey,

Mrs. H. Carter, Officers' Mess, Bay Roberts, Sir Joseph Outerbridge, Lt. C. Outerbridge, A. Co.'s Mess, W. N. Gray, M. G. Martin, Misses Browning, Lt.-Col. C. O'N. Conroy (C.C.C.), Mrs. W. R. Routine and discipline was excellent, food supplies and service were splendid, and the Brigade feels very grateful for their great personal sacrifice of time and labor in making the summer camp a complete success.

The Headquarters Armoury building has recently been appraised and fire insurance effected to protect the Brigade's interests. The building is free of debt.

Silver Medal

The officers acknowledge with thanks a nicely engraved silver medal presented to the C.L.B. by that kind sportsman, Mr. Charles H. Hayward, of Grand Falls. He has given this for the best C.L.B. marksman in the next shooting competition. Thank you, again, Mr. Hayward, for another gift, as well as for your interest in the training of the young sportsmen of the coming generation.

Are Women 100 Per Cent Efficient

How many women do you know who are one hundred per cent efficient? That means every nerve and sinew of the body pulsating with life and health as nature intended. Do you not know more who are half dead and half alive with aches, pains, nervous, irritable and despondent, making themselves miserable and every one around them? Women in this condition should let Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound rebuild and restore them to a normal healthy condition which will make them one hundred per cent, efficient and life worth living. There are women in every section of this country who testify to its merits.

Last Showing "Sporting Venus" To-Night

FILM PHOTOGRAPHER IN ENGLAND, FRANCE, SCOTLAND AND AMERICA. A GREAT PRODUCTION.

Quite a bit of ground was covered by Marshal Nellan in the making of the picture "The Sporting Venus." Scenes are actual locations in England, Scotland, France and America. "The Sporting Venus" is a story by Gerald Beaumont, with its locale in Scotland, England and France. Nellan, with his entire company, went abroad and shot half the picture in the actual settings, then returned to the studio to film the interiors.

Bianche Sweet attempts a new type of role for her in which there is much subtle comedy, and it is a distinct change from the characters she played in "Teas," "Anna Christie" and other pictures.

Ronald Colman plays opposite Miss Sweet as a young Scottish doctor, and Lady Cody has a picturesque role as an overpowered count whose creditors force him to marry for money.

The supporting cast includes George Fawcett, Josephine Crowell, Kate Price, Edward Martindel, Arthur Hoyt and Hank Mann. Tom Geraghty adapted the story to the screen, and David Kesson is credited with the photography. See Harold Lloyd, the Prime Minister of fun, in his new comedy "His Royal Highness" and forget you ever had any worries.

End Catarrh Germs In Three Minutes

Chronic catarrh, no matter how bad, and cases of bronchial asthma now yield instantly to the amazing discovery of a French scientist. This drugless method called Laxyl eliminates the germs in three minutes. Yet it is positively harmless to the most delicate tissues. Your head and lungs are cleared like magic. Sufferers are relieved in a single night.

To prove it and to introduce Laxyl to ten thousand sufferers in one month, I offer to send a treatment free and postpaid, to any one who will write for it. No obligation. No cost. If it banishes your Catarrh you can repay the favor by telling your friends—if not, the loss is mine. No matter what you have tried, just send me your name and address for this generous free treatment. I will prove that you can be rid of catarrh.

Heart Functions Without Nerves

McGILL PROFESSOR TELLS IM-PORTANT FACTS IN HANDLING DIPHTHERIA.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Oct. 15.—(A.P.)—The heart with all nerve controls cut away will continue not only to function, but will meet the special needs of the body through chemical control of the blood alone.

So declared Dr. Walter B. Cannon, professor of physiology, Harvard University Medical school in a talk yesterday before the Inter-State Post-graduate Assembly of America. If the individual faces danger, if the body becomes cold, if the sugar supply in the blood runs too low, the heart will rise to the occasion and pump faster even though there is no nerve connection left to tell it what to do, he said.

Two important factors in handling diphtheria cases were discussed by Dr. H. B. Cushing, clinical professor of Pediatrics, McGill University faculty of medicine.

One is to administer the toxin as nearly as possible to prevent suffocation from the disease, and the other is to watch and combat the after-effects of the toxin.

These effects, when cared for, never do any permanent damage, Dr. Cushing said.

CONFEDERATION LIFE.

Marine Mountains

HILLS AND VALLEYS, WIDE PLATEAUX AND DEEP BAYNES COMPOSE SOME OF THE WONDERFUL SCENERY UNDER THE SEA.

A Plateau only 150 feet below the surface of the water of the Atlantic Ocean was discovered recently. It is only one of many discoveries made in the last few years which show that our knowledge of the ocean bed is remarkably poor. In many books published a quarter of a century ago it was emphatically stated that the ocean floor is flat, sloping gently here and there, but never broken into ranges like the dry land.

Then, in 1891, the cable ship Britannia discovered a mountain range in the South Pacific which was in every way like a range on the dry land. More recently a range of mountains, known as the Edward VII range, was discovered in the North Atlantic, its highest peaks only a hundred fathoms below the surface. In the Atlantic, too, is Mount Laura Ethel, whose summit towers near the surface.

Several small islands are only the peaks of a mountain range which have broken the surface. The Bermudas rise straight up from a depth of two and a half miles, while St. Helena and Ascension Island are also mountain peaks. Off the Kuril Islands the bottom drops sheer to a depth of five miles, while only a mile or two from the coast of Porto Rico the depth is 27,386 feet.

Wrestling riches from Neptune. It is curious that, although the bottom of the sea has not changed for a million years, man still knows little about it. Many expeditions are now setting out with the object of salvaging some of the £300,000,000 worth of gold which is hidden in the depths, and these expeditions will, no doubt, make many discoveries concerning under-sea scenery.

Diving apparatus invented during the last few months enables man to descend to depths undreamt of ten years ago, but the terrific pressure at great depths is still a great obstacle. Quite as important is the invention of a mercury vapour lamp, which enables him to be taken at great depths. Experiments on a lamp that will illuminate a large area at a great depth are also being made. By means of this the diver will be able to see the hillside covered with olive-green seaweed, which a passing eddy turns into a wind-swept pine forest, mountains towering to the surface, plains, and many other features which are associated with the grandest land scenery.

When it Howls

In sets of more than two valves, when two or more transformers are used in the low-frequency circuit, an uncontrollable howl, sometimes as shrill as a whistle, spoils reception. This is invariably occasioned by two transformers of the same make and type amplifying the same set of frequencies disproportionately, or by a "peak" effect, which can be obviated by reverting connections on the primary side of one. Interconnection causes a low howl. This can be avoided by keeping transformers well separated, but in stubborn cases can only be cured by connecting a 70,000-100,000 ohms resistance between the secondary windings of one and the high-tension supply. A .004 condenser connected across the primary and a .001 across the secondary will often eliminate noise.

Even in the new collar and cap sets we see the "metallic" influence of the mode.

This is undoubtedly a season of colour.

NFLD. TEAM WILL BE ENTER-TAINED.

The Halifax Marathon Sweepstake Committee have arranged a reception for the victorious Nfld. Track Team, which will take place in the Star of the Sea Hall, on Friday night. The Mount Cashel team will be present and a cordial invitation is extended to the public to be present, to join in giving the athletes a real Newfoundland welcome. The team, accompanied by Mr. Robertson, is due by the Rosalind to-morrow morning, when a large number of citizens will be present at the pier to extend the heroes a hearty welcome.

Drawing Of Prizes.

On the night of the reception, a drawing will take place of the numbers in the sweepstake from thirty-seven to fifty and for the three men of the thirty-six who did not compete. The drawing will be conducted by Mayor

Cook, Sir M. P. Cashin, Hon. Jos. Long, Messrs. E. St. C. Churchill, H. J. Wyatt and J. M. Tobin. The public are cordially invited.

CANADIAN RUNNERS INVITED TO ST. JOHN'S.

Arrangements are now on foot to invite John C. Miles, winner of the Halifax Herald Marathon, and James Hawtholdt, who took third place, to visit this city to compete against our local athletes on a date in November to be decided on. The Halifax Sweepstake Committee forwarded two messages yesterday, inviting the eastern stars to come, even offering to pay all expenses, including a trainer. Should this offer be accepted, the sporting public of St. John's are assured of seeing an exciting contest.

HARRY WILLS SIGNS.

Will Meet Floyd Johnson—Dempsey Surprised When Informed of Contract.

LOS ANGELES, Calif., Oct. 13.—Announcement late to-day from New York that Harry Wills had signed to meet Floyd Johnson in a no-decision bout on October 26, came as a surprise to Jack Dempsey. Dempsey said that the articles of agreement between himself and Wills and Floyd Fitzsimmons, promoter of next September's meeting, contained a clause that neither fighter was to meet any person in the ring prior to that time without the consent of the other principal.

JOHN C. MILES WINNER OF 5-MILE RACE TWO DAYS PREVIOUS TO BIG RACE.

ANTIGONISH, Oct. 15.—John C. Miles, Canadian champion five-mile runner, of Sydney Mines, defeated Jimmy Hawtholdt, Maritime title holder, of Westville, in a special five-mile race on the St. F. X. University track this afternoon. The event was arranged originally as a special attraction in connection with the St. F. X. Inter-class Meet scheduled to-day. Owing to the fact that there was a heavy downpour of rain here all day, however, the track meet was indefinitely postponed, but Miles and Hawtholdt decided to take a ducking and those who witnessed the unique struggle in a rain storm saw two of Canada's leading runners engaged in a test of speed and strategy. Miles won the race and perhaps he carried off the honors in strategy also. There is no telling for to-day's contest had an important bearing on the Herald and Mail's 10-mile road race at Halifax on Saturday. Jimmy Hawtholdt, who finished second, ran a beautiful race and appeared to be in the pink of condition.

Radio Results Last Night

Last night at 11:45 a popular radio broadcast in the West End received the message sent out by the U.S. Limer President Harding standing by the disabled Italian freighter, Ignazio Florio. It was broadcasted through W.G.G. and W.T.Z. It stated that in addition to the loss of a seaman on the latter, two life boats were smashed to pieces by the sea and an attempt to launch two other life boats resulted in their being swamped. The message further stated that the freighter would have to be abandoned.

During the evening conditions were perfect and musical programmes were received from W.G.B.U., Fulford by the Sea, Miami Sister City, and from W.M. B.F. Miami Beach. The machine used was the Atwater Kent.

Majestic Theatre TO-DAY

Ghastly streams of fire leaping at her head! Yellow tongues of flame searing her gown!

Death yawning, ghostly, as her slender figure slumped amid the choking smoke!

AND THEN THE RESCUE! A rescue so thrilling, so novel in its method, so tensely dramatic—and so absolutely unexpected that you'll stand up in your seats and shout, acclaiming it the greatest scene ever put on the screen!

"YOU CUT THE WIRE AND KILLED YOUR DAUGHTER!" The prank of a gruff old millionaire—the parted wires ablaze with living flame—the cabin afire with electric currents—the shriek of the imprisoned girl—the choking, biting, searing smoke that sent her toppling in agony to the spark-showered floor!!

AND THEN—THE MIGHTY CLIMAX!

Big Special Matinee Saturday Afternoon With Extra Comedies

Through the misty autumn haze gleams the crimson woodland ways; Golden sunbeams see the leaves All-a-twinkle with the breeze While amid this brilliant crew A tall ash glows in purple hue.

"Ha, ha!" laughed Little Jack Rabbit, as he hopped up the Winding Trail through the Shady Forest, his knapsack bouncing up and down on his back and his red-striped candy cane swinging from his left paw. "Old Mother Nature has been busy with her paint brush."

"No, she hasn't," all of a sudden shouted a hoarse voice, and up flew Professor Jim Crow, his Wisdom Book under a wing and a little black cap on his wise old head.

"Dear me," sighed the little bunny, looking up at the old black bird, who had perched just overhead, "who, then, turned the leaves such lovely colors?"

"She did but not with a paint brush," answered Professor Jim Crow opening his case and placing his spectacles on his beak. Then turning the pages of his Wisdom Book, he cleared his throat and began to read aloud:

"In the autumn, the leaves give up their pulp. Little by little the green color draws in toward the central stem and the brown borders widen. It would seem almost as if the fairies were squeezing the pulp back through the leaf stem into the twig."

"I'd like to see the fairies at work," interrupted the little rabbit, smiling up at the old crow.

"Stuff and nonsense," answered the wise old bird. "The fairies have nothing to do with it. Mother Nature attends to all this. Listen a moment longer," and again the wise old professor bird began to read:

"Each leaf is made of a bud that is growing between its base and the twig. All through the spring and summer the sap that runs up through the tree has helped to feed this little bud; but in the late autumn, when the sap ceases to flow, the careful mother tree takes back the green pulp from the leaves before they fall to the ground. The pulp is stored up in the twig, close to each bud, giving it a food supply to be used in the spring-time to grow new leaves and flowers."

"I guess every tree knows that Jack Frost will soon nip off its leaves," cried the little bunny. "Is that the reason it grows no new ones?"

"Yes, my little curious one," answered the wise old crow. "The little bud is well covered for the cold weather, but when Mistress Spring and the Little Balmie Breezes come tripping over the Sunny Meadow, all the little buds put forth tiny leaves or flowers. They hear her voice and the wind songs, and under the warm smile of Mr. Merry Sun and the gentle rain, they soon cover the trees and bushes. Yes, Mother Nature every year clothes the big old world in beautiful garments of many colors."

"I must hop home to tell Mother what you've taught me," laughed the bunny boy, and away he went, clip-clip clip, back to Lady Love and into the next story.

Not the Writer

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir,—A letter signed "Nix" and purporting to come from Witless Bay criticising the condition of the roads and bridges in that locality appeared in yesterday's Telegram. Several people have spoken to me about same, thinking that I was the writer. I wish to state, Mr. Editor, that I had no connection, either directly or indirectly, with the letter in question. Thanking you for publishing this note.

I remain,

Baby Eczema

Soon Disappears with the use of Dr. Chase's Ointment

Only mothers who have witnessed the suffering of their babies when tormented by eczema fully appreciate the remarkable soothing, healing effects of Dr. Chase's Ointment.

Most babies at one time or another fall victims to skin irritations, chafing of the skin or eczema. For this reason it is a fine habit to always have at hand when bathing baby a box of Dr. Chase's Ointment. You never know when roughness and redness of the skin is going to develop into something more serious. A touch of Dr. Chase's Ointment keeps the skin smooth and velvety and prevents serious skin affections.

There are scores of uses for Dr. Chase's Ointment. Once it finds its way into the home it is soon considered indispensable.

A Milkman Who Takes Water Out!

One of the favorite themes of the jokesmith is the milkman who waters his milk.

Though the joke has little basis in fact, yet you have heard it many times.

But have you ever thought of the milkman who does exactly the opposite—the milkman who takes water out?

That's what the Carnation milkman does—and here's why he does it:

Millions of people, all over the world, use Carnation Milk regularly; it comes to them from some of the finest dairying sections of Canada.

It seems foolish to pay transportation on all the natural water in this milk, so most of the water is removed.

Such removal serves to concentrate and enhance the food values in the milk, making it richer and smoother.

It also explains the satisfaction with which so many people use Carnation

Milk undiluted in place of costly cream, in coffee or on cereals and fruits.

Remember, Carnation is simply pure milk, evaporated, sterilized; nothing is added, no sugar or preservative of any kind.

You can restore it to its original strength and consistency merely by putting back the water that has been taken out.

Order with the groceries—several tall (16 oz.) cans or by the case of 48 cans.

Christian Holtum Again Scores at Star Movie

Christian Holtum, the American Baritone now appearing at the popular Star is undoubtedly making a big hit with his beautiful voice. He possesses a voice that is most unusual, and his delightful and clear enunciation proves he is master of his profession. His interpretation last evening of Kipling's "On the Road to Mandalay," was sung in a way that we have not heard before in this city. He sings in a masterly way that only an accomplished artist is capable of doing. The applause he received was a lengthy one, and to such an extent that he was obliged to respond to an encore. His rendition of Harry Luder's "I Love a Lassie" was a decided hit, and though the Scotch dialect is not an easy one to deliver, yet Mr. Holtum did it in a most pleasing way. There is no doubt but he has now endeared himself to our music loving people, who hope his stay in the city will be a long one. For to-night he has an entire change and will render "Because," another of Harry Luder's numbers, entitled "When I was Twenty One."

There is also a complete change of pictures, the feature being a First National in eight parts entitled "Inez from Hollywood" with Anna Q. Nilsson, Mary Astor and Lewis Stone, a story dealing with the backstage work as seen in Hollywood. It is the life story of the stage, and one that will surely please all.

GORY LITERATURE.

"My life goes on, a dull routine," said James Adolphus Jones; "I toil to earn the good long green, the roubles and the bones. In Quigg & Quiller's Gold Brick store I'm selling chewing gum; each day is like the day before, and like the day to come. All day I'm patient and polite, as gracious as can be; and then I journey home at night, and drink three quarts of tea. I drink three quarts of tea, my boys, and as the glad hours go, I wallow in such gory joys as 'only meek men know'; I read those startling magazines which deal in death and doom, in which the heroes are machines that hand men to the tomb. I read of pirates' long and bank who spread their ebony sails, and make their victims walk the plank, for dead men tell no tales. The grim avengers of the woods, with notches on their guns! They are the stuff, they are the goods, for routine-weary ones. If I were treading forest trails, and leaving blood in pools, I'd doubtless hanker for the tales which treat of Sabbath schools. I'd want to read the sunshine books in which fair dimpled maids hold pincers in the sylvan nooks in moral scenes and glades. But people read that they may roam from drab familiar things, that they may leave their humdrum homes and scrap for fighting kings. To me, the meekest man on earth, night is a happy time; and any tale has little worth that doesn't reek of crime."

WHEN HE WANTS TO BRING COMPANY HOME.

A Letter Friend writes something about the heartless husband, who is always wanting to bring home company, although he knows that with small children and with all the housework to his wife has her hands full, sometimes when she's just aching with tiredness her husband will call from the office and ask if he can bring a man out to dinner, and if she suggests he's likely to be sore about it he pretends to love her. Doesn't she know how hard she works? She can't see what he can be thinking.

Of course she can't. You see she's on the other side of the fence. The only way for her to understand what he's thinking would be for her to be a husband for awhile.

And the only way for him to really know how much he is asking, would be to be a wife for awhile.

Two Questions.
This woman says that her husband is inhuman. He thinks he's invulnerable. She'd like to know how invulnerable he'd be if it meant getting a special dinner and getting the children dressed up nice instead of talking someone to come out and eating at the head of the table and drinking at them.

It's not an unnatural question. Perhaps he might ask in return when his wife would be at work all day long under a bad temper to support a home if he couldn't show his home and his wife and children off to someone once in awhile. Wouldn't she get to wishing she was a bachelor again, if all she got out of it was a chance to pay the bills?

wasn't going to have any company and he needn't think it. Romance in Buck's household was at that stage." One can understand the woman's standpoint but at the same time one is touched by Buck's hopefulness, his probably fearful brooding of the subject and his disappointment.

A Happy Circle For A Victious Circle.
What is the fair way out then? How should the problem be solved? So far as it can be, by reasonableness, by an attempt to understand each other's feelings, on both sides. If the man is willing to help in some way to offset the extra hard work, to help in the housework, by looking after the children, surely the woman will be willing to make an extra effort, and if she does that surely the man will show his appreciation by not being unreasonable and by the words of praise and the little treats that mean so much to a woman. And so for a vicious circle would be substituted a happy circle.

Anzac Day, April 25, Full Holiday

MELBOURNE, Australia, Oct. 15.—The Legislative Assembly of Victoria has passed a bill providing for the observance of "Anzac Day," April 25, as a completed holiday in that state. Anzac Day is historical as the date, April 25, 1915, on which the combined Australian and New Zealand army corps landed at Gallipoli and gave such splendid service to the Allied cause in the war. The initials of the forces of the two sister Dominions were formed into the word "Anzac," which immediately caught the imagination of the people throughout the Empire, and since then the Australians and New Zealanders who fought so valiantly together have been known as the "Anzacs."

French Losses in Syria Total 6,042

PARIS, Oct. 15.—The French losses in Syria, since France took over the mandate of the League of Nations have amounted to 6,042 men killed or wounded up to July 31 last. Premier Painleve made this announcement to the Finance Committee of the Chamber. He said he did not have the casualties of the August and September Suedia campaign before him. The mandate for Syria was assigned to France by the Supreme Council of the Allied Powers April 23, 1920, and was confirmed by the League of Nations July 23, 1922.

42 Nations Are Represented at Montreal Dinner

370 DELEGATES TO INTER-PARLIAMENTARY CONFERENCE GUESTS OF CITY.

(Montreal Star, Oct. 15.)
The city of Montreal was yesterday host to the nations of the world when the 370 delegates of the Inter-Parliamentary Union, representing 42 nations, assembled at the Mount Royal Hotel for a luncheon presided over by Mayor Duquette.

Although French and English were the only languages used in the speech-making which followed the luncheon in the Plaza of the big hotel, during the meal the scene was a replica of the Tower of Babel. Czechs, Slovaks, Bulgarians, Germans, Italians, Spaniards, Chinese, Japanese, Russians, French, and in fact, representatives of every nation in the old and new world talked in their native tongue, discussing the incidents of the tour of the United States and Canada and the conference at Washington and Ottawa.

Over four hundred people sat down to the luncheon, for a number of members of the Canadian Parliament, the diplomatic corps of Montreal, members of the City Council, and representatives of bench and bar and of the business life of the city were invited to meet the distinguished guests.

Arriving in the city at mid-day on a special train of the Canadian National Railway a section of the visitors repaired to Dominion Square, where the French delegation, with appropriate gesture, laid a huge wreath on the cenotaph erected to the memory of the immortal dead who brought us honor and peace, and saluted the heroes of Canada in the name of the French Republic, the Senate, the Chamber of Deputies and the Pollis of France.

The luncheon given in the Plaza room of the Mount Royal Hotel was presided over by Mayor Duquette, and at the outset a telegram was read from Sir Henry Thornton inviting the Parliamentary delegates to it possible prolong their stay beyond Quebec and visit the Maritime Provinces, offering on behalf of the Canadian National Railways to make the necessary arrangements for those who desired to complete the Canadian tour.

Mayor's Greeting.
The Mayor in extending a welcome to the guests said that while Montreal had frequently welcomed distinguished people, it had never been honored with such a large number of distinguished visitors as were comprised in the Inter-Parliamentary Union, and the city was proud to act as hosts to them. He sang the praises of Montreal as a city of beauty and industry and laid particular emphasis on the fact that, with three-quarters of its population French, and the remainder Anglo-Saxon, with colonies of representative countries of the Old World, the utmost harmony and good fellowship prevailed. Montreal was not only a city of liberty in name, but in actual reality, and therefore he could not present them with the keys of the city, for no doors barred their progress, and no key was necessary.

Senator Beaubien, who followed, endorsed in glowing language the welcome of the citizens, and in outlining the attractions of the city made special reference to the illuminated cross on Mount Royal, erected in gratitude by the people for the realization of their dreams of the surmounting of the troubled times the city had gone through in its earliest days. At night this flaming cross was a symbol of hope, and he hoped that, as with the night the mountain of rock disappeared, so might the mountains of prejudice and hatreds throughout the world disappear, and hope and peace reign for ever. He lifted his glass to the prosperity and happiness of the country which each delegate represented and especially for the work to which they devoted the best of their energies—the peace of the world.

Dr. Jaroslav Brabec, a Senator of Czechoslovakia, in responding to the toast in both English and French, said that Czechoslovakia would never forget what she owed to the British Empire and to the United States in the securing in 1918 of her independence.

The delegation had come to the American continent to work for the establishment of peace. They had approached their duties in the spirit of peace, for it was only in this spirit that they could possibly harmonize the different opinions created by the natural conditions of their respective countries and by the historic evolutions of those countries. Working in this spirit they had been able to achieve many good results, and hoped to obtain more. It was necessary that they should create an international parliament, but he realized the difficulties ahead because of language, economic, social and political conditions, but when everyone worked in a spirit of accord and goodwill all things were possible. Senator Brabec concluded with an eulogy of the treatment accorded Czechoslovakians on the North American continent, and said he was going to visit the colony of 200,000 Czechoslovakians in Chicago who still conserved in their hearts the love of their native country and wished to hear through him the heartbeat of Czechoslovakia.

Are Impressed.
Hon. Henri Lafontaine, of Belgium, said the reception everywhere accorded the delegation warmed and developed their hearts, and would accompany them to their respective countries. They had accomplished their work in an atmosphere of cordiality and good fellowship. The Republic and the Dominion had been rivals in the attention and sympathy accorded, and the eyes of the delegation were still visualizing the unforgettable spectacles they had seen from the Hudson to the St. Lawrence, from the Capitol at Washington to the Parliament at Ottawa—everywhere evidence of the strength and vitality of their co-citizens, their nephews and cousins of the new world, a strength and power for which Nature had provided a symbol in the falls of Niagara. They would return heartened by their reception to work which, too often, was indifferent and sceptical. What they had come to this immense and fertile new world to seek was the force that moved mountains. The work that had to be accomplished was formidable, but it was necessary that it should be quickly done. It was said that nothing definite was performed in haste, but speed was a relative term. It was essential that the hopes of the new world should become the realities of to-morrow, and everything that retarded the accomplishment of their great task was a crime against humanity, complicity in a monstrous crime—a new "last war." Millions of people awaited the successful completion of their labors for peace. Magnificent work had been done by the League of Nations, but it had only begun, and every effort must be made to circumvent those who sought to diminish its influence.

John Philip Hill, of Maryland, a member of the U.S. Congress, considered it a significant thing that in ancient Montreal there should be gathered together, for the first time in the history of the new world the parliamentary representatives of 42 nations for the purpose of creating that understanding between those charged with the law-making functions of the various nations of the world, that would wipe out misunderstanding and give to the world that necessary peace which was the object of all government. He recalled that not far from that hotel was the old Chateau de Ramenay, where nearly 150 years ago the commissioners of the United Nations came to ask them to join in a certain experiment in government.

Canada and America had been fortunate to act as hosts to the rest of the world, and he could not but feel that apart from their important conferences such meetings as that made for the understanding which meant peace and friendship and universal prosperity. They had sought a universal language for the language of the Parliamentary Union—out of the dungeons of the old prison of Montreal had come one symbol of a universal language, and he raised his glass containing that symbol in honor of world peace and of the hospitality of Canada.

M. Vladimir Malloff, of Bulgaria, spoke briefly, declaring that while the Balkans were often presented to the world as the trouble centre of Europe they were in fact an agricultural country of pacific tendencies, and in the Peace Congress they would find the Bulgarian delegates working with all their will for the pacification of the world and the cessation of its troubles.

The concluding speech of the afternoon was delivered by M. Falcoz, speaking in the name of the French delegation, who said that Montreal was very dear to the hearts of Frenchmen by reason of the imperishable souvenirs of its history. The harmony that existed between the French and the Anglo-Saxons was a living symbol of what was possible when everybody joined together in liberty and peace and worked under the administration of just laws.

The visitors were afterwards taken for a drive around the city, to McGill University and L'Université de Montreal, as well as to the top of Mount Royal. They left this morning from Bonaventure Station on two special trains of the Canadian National Railway for Quebec, arriving in the Ancient Capital of the province at one o'clock. They will pay a visit to Quebec Bridge, the Citadel, the Legislative Buildings, and Montmorency Falls, afterwards attending a reception at Spencerwood by the Lieutenant-Governor, and being entertained to a farewell banquet at the Chateau Frontenac this evening.

Railway Manager Says Railway Men Few

LONDON, Oct. 15.—(C.P.)—Of recent years there has been less initiative than in the past in railway management, according to Sir Felix Pole, general manager of the Great Western Railway, who expressed himself in an address to students here.

Sir Felix stated that the British Railway Companies were asked recently to name candidates for appointment to the general management of a railway abroad. Only two names were submitted by them and neither man was regarded as suitable for the position.

Sir Felix said that 20 years ago one railway company alone was able to supply general managers for a large number of other railways and have plenty of good men left.
