LOSING A GOLF MATCH. Just a Little Lack of Concentration

GUILL-ADVI (ATE, WATFORD, APRIL 9, 1915

Once Defeated Travers. Writing on golf in the American Magazine, Jerome D. Travers suggests that lack of concentration, particularly with reference to keeping one's eye on the ball, is the greatest cause of bad golf playing. He says that to practice con-centration is very difficult, as he knows from personal experience. He then tells the following story showing how he lost a great match through this fault:

"I know how hard this practice is. I have always thought that but for breaking this cardinal precept I might have had a very good chance to beat Hilton in 1911 at Apawamis-when the English champion carried away our chief amateur trophy. "In the morning round over the first eighteen holes I had been playing badly and finished four down. Every one, in cluding Hilton, considered the match all in and over. But in the afternoon I started with a rush and won the first three holes, leaving myself only one down and well within reach. At the next hole I had an easy two foot put to make to win my fourth straight hole and square the match.

"I have always thought that if I had made that putt the odds would have been in my favor. Now, in putting ! make it a set rule to look at the ball until my club has struck the spot I am looking at. I have been able to do this by constant practice of concentration But on this occasion I had a down hill putt, and I was overanxious. And just before my club struck the ball I looked up, pushed the ball to the right of the cup and missed the shot. This upset me for a moment, and I topped my drive at the next hole, losing it. The combination, coming suddenly, restor-ed Hilton's confidence, which had been ebbing away, and he got going again, with the result that I was beaten three and two."

Mrs. Hannah Fifer, a widow, who earned her living by renting rooms for light housekeeping, had the reputation of being a shrewd manager and much inclined to carry economy to the farthest possible point. She was hardworking withal and seemed never to reach the end of her daily labor. On a certain day Mrs. Castle, one of the "light housekeepers," finding a surplus of time on her hands, kindly offered to help Mrs. Fifer out with her over

From the experience of the workingmen's compensation board for the two months that the act has been in operation, it appears that the amount of the assessment levied on the different groups of industries was higher than would be required to meet the claims that would be made. It is thought the rate will be lowered at the end of the present year.

Don't Kiss Babies

The most frequent cause of infant mortality is improper feeding, and impure milk; the stomach of the new babe is a very small, and a very delicate affair, but it is through the action of this small and delicate organ all growth comes, and the food which Nature has prepared for the babe's stomack is the mother's milk.

The wise mother will insist upon mursing her child not only for the child's sake, but also for her own. The mother-fed child is the one that escapes a hundred dangers to which the bottle-fed babe is exposed : follow Nature and it is well for mother and for child. Nature loves her own, and it is when we stray from her that infant mortality begins. The mother must be well fed if she would feed her child ; make no mistake about this. To-day we have so many food fads, and eat so many things that often the mother's milk is deficient in certain essential elements necessary for the child's growth.

Think of all the elements required, bone, muscle, energy, nerve (we can't live to-day without nerve) the heart, lungs, in fact all thoracic viscera, all the abdominal viscera, the skin, the brain-all must be fed and kept growing ; and the mother must through the food she takes provide for herself and her child.

It is not difficult to understand that a most generous diet is required to meet these demands. Every food stuff should be a part of the mother's daily rations from the time of concoption until the child is weaned.

Cheerfulness

In order to appear pleasant we must be cheerful. This is a duty we owe to others as well as ourselves. The world is on the lookout for all that is bright and gay, and, if we wish to be appreciated in social life, we must appear like a ray of sunlight, rather than a cloud, no matter how beautiful that cloud may

In life we meet with many unpleasant things that have a tendency to make us sad and depressed, but, by sweet smiles and loving words of kindness, we may expel many horrors and make ourselves and many others

MILLS around us feel bright and happy, in-G. CHAMBERS stead of gloomy and sad.

There is much sorrow lurking in the pathway of every one, and in order to avoid becoming despondent, we must ever look on the bright side of life, for the happiest people are those who find pleasure in all things. We should cultivate cheerfulness. If at first it seems unnatural it will after a short time, lose its artificial aspect, and seem entirely natural. A cheerful countenance yields an influential power in winning affection and retaining it after it has been won. One may be ever so beautiful and attractive, and yet wholly incapable of calming the troubled heart, unless he possessions a cheerful disposition.

In Alaska women have full suffrage without opposition.

A Battalion Bank, designed to promote a saving spirit among the men, has been inaugurated by the S3rd Battalion, Can-adian Expeditionary Force, in training at London, Ont.

definite stand on the question of teetotal-ism. In an official announcement His Majesty commands that no wines or spirits shall be used by any of his house-holds after April 6. April 7.—It is still on the Carpathian mountains that the most bitter fighting is in progress. The Russians have crossed the principal chain in the region of the Rostok Pass, and occupied two villages on the slopes on the Hungarian side of the mountains. This claim is made by the Russian war office, which asserts that all along this front the Russians have continued to make progress. The assertions of Petrograd are not borne out by the Austrian official state-ment, which declares that, in conjunc-tion with German forces, the Anstrians have capiured two strong positions on the heights east of the Laborcza Valley, and repulsed strong Russian attacks in nearby sections, capturing 7,570 prisoners. In addition, Vienna says that on the Dneister River two Russian battalions have been annihilated. To the north, in Poland, only desultory fighting is going on in the vicinity of the East Prussian frontier. Unofficial reports reaching London are to the effect that British warships again are bombarding Smyrna. Warmbad, German Southwest Africa, has been taken without opposition by the Union of South Africa forces.

longer for the workmen of Great Britain voluntarily to take up the task of manu-facturing munitions of war necessary for the prosecution of the combat, and has the prosecution of the combat, and has appointed a committee to obtain sufficient labor for this purpose. The French press bureau asserts that trom figures compiled from official Ger-man casually lists it has been ascertained that since the war began the Germans have lost over half of their officers. Of 52 805 officers it is declared that up to March 15, 9,925 had been killed and that 21 531 had been wounded or were miss.

Toronto Toronto Toronto, April 6.--Receipts at the Union stockyards to-day were 61 cars, with 1.002 cattle, 133 calves, 968 hogs and 55 sheep and lambs. There was a fair, steady market at yesterday's prices for practically all grades of butcher cattle. The average quality was poor and nothing of extra quality offering. Three loads of choice heavy cattle sold vesterday afternoon at $8. The top to-day was around $7.85, though very few lots got as high as $7.50, the bulk going around $7 to $7.30. There is an active demand for cows, the choicest selling as high as $6.75. A fairly active demand for stockers and feeders kept butcher cattle buyers a little busier than they otherwise would have been. The prospect of early stock feeding has stimu-lated the stocker demand. Good veal calves steady. Choice yearling lambs firm. Hogs continue firm, quite a few decks selling to-day at $9.25. weighed off cars-

Story of a Heroic Deed

The new biplane had only just left the field in an effort to climb higher into the almost cloudless sky than any aviator had yet ascended. Twice it had circled the aviation course, and each long spiral had carried it a peg upward. 'Already the determined, insistent br-r-r of the motor was softened by distance, and fieldglasses were necessary to as-sure oneself that the little black figure between the canvas parallelograms was actually a human being.

The last man who had touched the biplane-one of the mechanicians who had given the apparatus its final grooming-watched its flight grimly. His face was pale under its coat of tan, and his eyes glittered with some repressed excitement. Presently when somebody touched him lightly he started nervously and pulled himself together with an effort, but he seemed unable to fix his eyes on the tall young man in plaid knickerbockers who had thus startled

The young the whose cap, worn backward after he fashion of aviators, seemed to add keenness to his long, smooth shaven face, kept his hand lightly on the other's shoulder. To the distant spectators they presented noth-ing more startling than the spectacle of a well known air man talking rather familiarly with an unknown mechani cian. Many were watching them and pointing them out to new arrivals with the explanation:

"That's Harriman, you know, away over there across the field-the fellow who made that splendid flight yesterday in the Bleriot."

Harriman's grip tightened a little on the mechanician's shoulder.

"Did you tamper with Clinton's machine before the getaway?" he asked evenly. His voice was low. It failed to reach the group of ten or a dozen other mechanicians gathered around his own machine at a little distance. The man in the blue overalls looked at him and then away again. "What do you mean, Mr. Harriman?"

he demanded sullenly. "Don't lie!" said the other. "Tye been watching you ever since he went up." He dropped his hand from the man's shoulder. "We're rivals in this business, and if anything happens to Clinton it's none of my funeral. But I'd like to know if anything is likely to happen-understand? "If anything happens," he continued, his control of the elevating plane. He gave me my walking papers this morning, but I guess he won't be looking very hard for a substitute. You watch him. When he's done about a dozen of them spirals"-He got no further. Harriman, his face illuminated with angry determina-tion, had turned and gripped him by the wrists. "You low brute!" he exclaimed sharply, raising his voice.

INTE TE WATFOR

The men puttering about the monoplane heard him. They turned quickly, saw the two men struggling together and came up running. The group surrounded the aviator and his captive like a living curtain. "Take this man and give him to the police," said Harriman. "Pick him up as if he were injured. If he makes a fuss injure him. Two of you are enough. The rest of you get my machine in order. And you, Dick, chase across the field and tell the announcer I'm going up. Tell him," he called after the retreating figure, "that I'm going up after altitude." The men stared. They were used to quick action, but this happened a little quicker than usual. Only one of them caught the situation. "You're going to catch Clinton?"

"If I can. He's up there with a tam pered machine, which may fall any minute. He can't be signaled, and there's no use starting a panic in the grand stand." Π.

dered as it saw two men with their burden emerge from the little group, while a third ran across the field toward the announcer, and the others swung the monoplane into line for a start. There was a moment's discussion: then the announcer raised his megaphone and bellowed to the four chine, raised his right hand. Behind him the mechanicians sprang away from the apparatus, the propeller be gan its steady, insistent roar, and the monoplane careered madly across the elastic turf of the field.

Among the aviators and experts on the field the knowledge of Harriman's errand had spread from man to man It had lapped over into the press box and sent an unaccustomed thrill of excitement along the reporters' table Anxious eyes studied the biplane to see if there was yet any sign of defec-tive machinery. Once the machine started as if to settle earthward; then It steadied, and those who knew drew a long breath and told one another that the swerve was due to some up per air current, for the biplane was again climbing. The biplane was on a wooden Indian.-Milwaukee Senbuilt for stability, endurance and cartinel. rying power. The monoplane was contructed for speed first and other things afterward. Again and again it seemed as if Harriman lifted his machine upward by sheer force of will. As the faint buzz of the motor sounded once more directly above the grand stand it was evident that the dragon fly had cut one-third from the distance that separated it from the biplane. It was impossible to estimate its height above ground, but each successive spiral, sometimes carrying the monoplane far out over the river, evidently brought the pursuer nearer the altitude of his quarry. Fifteen minutes, twenty, twenty-five almost half an hour had elapsed since the monoplane started. The two airships were now near together, and field glasses were necessary to follow their evolutions. The band had started another march, but no feet beat time to it. The field had altogether lost its customary air of bustle and prepara-tion. The aviators had drawn together and were looking steadily upward, The mechanicians stood in idle groups watching the airships. The announcer

Then the biplane began to drop. 11 fell slowly to the level of the mono-plane, and for a long thirty seconds the two machines seemed to be coming down together. One of the men at the edge of the field spoke into a telephone, and a mo-ment later a motor driven ambulance came into view from behind the hos-pital tent. It stopped and waited. Inside a couple of white coated surgeons were arranging a stretcher. The chauffeur leaned forward, with his eye fixed on the biplane. But the two airships were again mounting, now almost side by side. Even with the glasses it was impossible to tell what the men in them were doing. But the monoplane, putting on speed, headed in front of the slower craft and then turned and plunged suddenly downward. III.

A quick indrawing of breath ran along the grand stand, a mighty sigh, as if all these thousands of people had responded to a given signal. The band stopped playing, one instrument after another involuntarily silenced by the general feeling of something imminent and terrible.

Up there in the sky Harriman seemed to be performing feats that were no longer amusing, but criminally reckless. It was one thing, people told one another, to see a man take risks, but they had not come there to see a man commit suicide. Three times in succession he drove his machine across the path of the biplane and then dived earthward at an angle that made it seem impossible that he would not be pitched bodily out. But the fourth time the other machine followed, and the two began circling back toward the earth.

And now the race seemed to be re versed. The monoplane led, and the biplane followed. The long, graceful spirals brought them nearer and nearer to the landing place. The band, as if ashamed of its lapse from duty, played louder than ever.

The faint buzzing of the motors grew to a roar as the two airships circled the course not far above the heads of the spectators. Then it stopped abruptly as first one man and then the other shut off his power and swooped to the solid earth. Clinton climbed hastily out of his machine and approached the monoplane, taking off the pads that protected his ears from the noise of his motor and hearing for the first time the thunder of applause that had greeted his landing.

"Well, Harriman," he said, "I suppose this is what you were after with all that pantomime. But what the dickens were you trying to say to me?" "You just look over that machine of yours inch by inch," replied Harriman, climbing stiffly out of his own airship, "and I don't think you'll need to ask questions. Overhaul your elevating plane in particular. Br-r-r-r!" He slapped his arms to restore circulation. "It's a cold place up there without me's leather jacket!"

HIS HEALTH IN A TERRIBLE STATE

"Fruit-a-tives" Healed His Kidneys and Cured Him

HAGERSVILLE, ONT., AUG. 26th. 1913. "About two years ago, I found my health in a very bad state. My Kid-neys were not doing their work and I was all run down in condition. I felt the need of some good remedy. and having seen "Fruit-a-tives" advertised, I decided to try them. Their effect, I found more than satisfactory.

Their action was mild and the result all that could be expected.

My Kidneys resumed their normal action after I had taken upwards of a dozen boxes, and I regained my old-time vitality. Today, I am enjoying the best health I have ever had". B. A. KELLY

"Fruit-a-tives" is the greatest Kidney Remedy in the world. It acts on the bowels and skin as well as on the kidneys, and thereby soothes and enres any Kidney soreness. "Fruit a time?" is sold be all design.

Life in the Trenches

Human pature has marvellous daptability. According to accounts, ife in the trenches at the front in Flanders provides a large and mixed supply of evils. Not only have all kinds of physical hardship to be encountered in the shape of water, mud and cold, but even the least temporary indiscretion in the way of exposure will likely be followed by unpleasant reminders that the enemy is close at hand. Lut even the snipers are not the only danger to the men knee or waist deep in the trenches. They never know when the hail of shrapnel will come or the vastly huger shells that Tommy Atkins has humorously dubbed 'Jack Johnsons," "Black Marias" or 'Coal Boxes,' digging craters in the ground large enough to bury a horse and wagon. Through it all the soldier laughs and is happy.

Vivid as are the descriptions of life under these conditions, it is difficult for the stay-at-homes to realize what it all means. Only actual experience could bring these conditions home, and when habit becomes a second nature it is surprising how soon the first impression fades and how difficult to revive is its memory. More is told in the early letters from the front than can ever be contained when the history of the war comes to be written by the Dry-as-Dusts who will dig into army orders, staff reports and all the other voluminous records that are being piled up by the carload. This war, too, is an entirely novel affair. Nothing like it has ever been witnessed since the world began. The great wonder is the irrepressible good spirits and impregnable courage of the private soldier.

When Charlemagne Took a Bath. Like so many of the European warm springs and bathing places, Baden-Baden was first appreciated by the Romans. The Emperor Caracalla in especial honored it by his patronage and adorned it in various Roman ways. With the fall of the empire and the arrival together of the barbarians and Christianity, bathing and, above all, bathing in warm water, fell into disuse all over Europe as an enfeebling and immoral practice. It was only when Charlemagne, whose name was one to conjure with, dipped his imperial person in the hot springs of Aix-la-Chapelle that bathing, after seven centuries of disuse, became again permissible, if not almost desirable. From that time on, with varying fortunes, Baden Baden was a health and pleasure resort .- Harrison Rhodes in Harper's Magazine.

Military Bands Are a Big Feature In the Russian Army.

OUTDO ALL OTHER NATIONS.

Besides a Brass Band Each Regiment Has a String and Wood Orchestra and a Drum Corps-Even Posts With Only a Battalion Have Full Bands.

One feature of the Russian army which from time to time has been brought to the attention of the world outside of Russia, chiefly by publica-tions concerning themselves with matters appertaining to music, is the un-usual size and number of bands in the military forces of the czar. The Rus-sian soldier has more martial music than any other soldier in the world. There is no regiment in the Russian service without its own band, and at botts where not a regiment but only a battallon is quartered that battallon has its band. And these Russian mili-tary bands are big and impressive musical organizations. Within each is a brass band and an orchestra of string and wood instruments with, of course, the necessary touch of brass and sheep-skin. The result is that, while these military bands play primarily military music, they also adapt themselves to the performance of such music as the American hears at a symphony concert. The regimental band in the United States army consists of thirty-six pieces, and bands on flagships of the navy are smaller. The average Russian army band, or orchestra, has from forty to fifty musicians, and the orchestras of certain guard regiments contain sixty. There are more than 1,000 Russian regiments, and there are in the army about 50,000 bandsmen. Then in the naval and military schools and in the navy there are bands, and if to these are added the twenty to forty musical pupils of a regimental orchestral school and the musical com-panies of battleships and various cadet schools the number of military musicians in the armed service of Russia mounts to the surprising total of approximately 100,000 men, a number greater than the whole enlisted and commissioned personnel in the American army.

Russia takes a commendable pride in its military bands, and the musicians are all competent. The bandsmen are trained in the regimental band schools or in one of the numerous musical conservatories maintained by the government, and each musical com-pany has a conductor and his assistant, both being graduates of one of the national conservatories of music.

The Russian designation of these military and naval bands is musykalnaya kammanda, and they constitute an important factor in the life of the civil population, the government using them for the entertainment of the public as well as for the musical education of the masses very much as the United States uses its military bands at Washington-that is, in providing free concerts for the pe ple. Open air concerts are common in the parks of the larger towns and smaller cities throughout Russia during the summer, and in winter free recitals are given in the barracks and public halls. On Sundays, fete days and national holi-days band concerts and orchestral performances are usual in the well set-tled regions of vast Russia. The Russian military band is con-siderably more than an army institution. The cost of maintaining so many bands is considerable even for so rich a country as Russia, but the government considers them as a profitable investment. The Russian soldier has come to require music and he demands it, and these bands entertain the masses and the classes. These bands cater to the highest musical taste, and the average Russian in the cities knows when music is good and he will have no other. The bands play the new and popular music by composers like Ivanoff, but on all the band programs you will see such names as Liszt, Schumann, Chopin, Tschaikow-sky, Glinka, Strauss and Debussy. The army band spreads its musical influence over Russia in another way. After passing through the regimental band school the bandsman serves three years. Then he passes out of the army, usually returning to his native village. The custom is for him to carry back into civil life with him the instrument he played in the government band. His musical training and accomplishment make of him in his home town a more prominent and important man than he otherwise would be. He often takes up the teaching of music and almost invariably keeps up the practice of his art. Very likely he organizes a vil-lage band or owchestra, and into this come amateur musicians and other military bandsmen whose army service has expired. About 15,000 Russian army musicians annually leave the army and return home to their fami-Res --- Washington Star,
