FINLAND'S FIGHT TRIUMPHANT ENDING TO HISTORIC WEEK

THE PEACE IS RESTORED

Czar, on Advice, Signs Manifesto Giving Back the Light of Other Days—St. Petersburg Socialists Call Off Threatened Sunday Demonstration, But Bide Their Time—Much Bloodshed Elsewhere.

St. Petersburg, Nov. 5.—The whole structure of the autocratic regime is falling, and Emperor Nicholas no longer resists. The memorable week which witnessed the abolition of absolutism before a political strike demonstration extending through the confines of the empire and reducing the government to impotency and the birth of a new and popular regime amid scenes of disorder, pillage, bloodshed and worse, ends with a complete surrender to the aspirations of the Finlanders.

The sad story of the "Russification" of Finland began under the regime of Emperor Nicholas' father, with the introduction of the Russian postal system, and attracted the sympathy of the world. One by one the Finnish grand duchy was stripped of ancient privileges by the Russian administration, including the gendarmic and military conscription and the use of the Russian language was introduced. Finally the Finnish Diet became wholly emasculated and was powerless, except to protest. The Finns fought stoutly, but Russian troops garrisoned every town, and hundreds of protestant plumes were driven into exile. Without allies in Russia, political murder and obstructionist only weapons, the Finlanders struck and tied up the railroads over which troops constantly drove out the Russian gendarmes and sent a deputation to Prince John Obolensky, the governor-general, and also one to the emperor, demanding the immediate convocation of the Diet in extraordinary session, and abolition of the whole Russification policy. The situation was so tense that the government was obliged to accede to the demands of the Finlanders and turn the guns of the fort on the city.

On the advice of Prince John Obolensky, Emperor Nicholas has signed the manifesto, not only conceding the Diet, but giving it the right of the budget and authorizing an election law providing for universal suffrage. Another concession was the military and other laws of Russification. These have been despatched by fast train to Helsinki.

A quiet day. Sunday happily passed in St. Petersburg without disturbances. The Social Democrats and revolutionaries had planned a mammoth demonstration in connection with the anniversary of those killed in last week's riots, and had intended to form gigantic processions in the suburbs and flying red flags to beat the city.

On the advice of Prince John Obolensky, Emperor Nicholas has signed the manifesto, not only conceding the Diet, but giving it the right of the budget and authorizing an election law providing for universal suffrage. Another concession was the military and other laws of Russification. These have been despatched by fast train to Helsinki.

ALLEYWORTH'S CHANGE OF HEART

COACHING HIM

One of the first things he had done on becoming a minister was to write a letter putting an end to his connection with the Bell Telephone Company.

So The Globe reports Hon. A. B. Alleyworth in his speech at Newmarket, and yet the honorable gentleman objects to being called a corporation lawyer. One of the highest tributes paid to the memory of the late Christopher Robinson was to his instinctive knowledge of right and wrong. That is the stamp of greatness, and as Mr. Alleyworth belongs to the truly great he also belongs to that knowledge in a marked degree.

Therefore, when we find him arrayed on the side of the corporations against the public it is only fair to assume that his belief is that the corporations are right and the public are wrong. Mr. Alleyworth has a perfect right to this opinion. But the corporations have already friends enough at Ottawa. What is wanted there is a few more men who believe that the corporations are abundantly able to look after their own interests, and that the people have rights that require protection.

With the severance of his connection with the Bell Telephone Company did Mr. Alleyworth undergo a complete change of heart? Did he cast to the winds the beliefs of a lifetime and blossom out as a friend of the people and the enemy of all who would despoil them? It is hard to believe that he did. And it is harder to believe that, if he had, he would have been selected for a cabinet position by a government that has hounded into retirement every minister that ever dared to stand for public rights and public ownership of public utilities.

The man who believes in private ownership is the friend of the corporations, and A. B. Alleyworth has yet to show by one single act that he is in favor of public ownership. His life and his much vaunted abilities have so far been given to the cause of the corporations, and it was not till he needed votes in North York, either to further his ambitions or because he might be more useful to his employers in the cabinet than out of it, that he discovered the deep affection he held for the public.

"Would Mr. McCallum, if elected, be able to bring about a change?" Mr. McCallum might not, but the voice of the people speaking thru the election of Mr. McCallum undoubtedly would. Has not his nomination brought about a change? No sooner had he stood up in the nomination meeting and denounced the salary grab than his opponent, hurrying to get in out of the wet, declares against it. He has not yet spoken, and the next day brings a despatch from Ottawa to the effect that the government would proceed to abolish those pensions at the next session of parliament.

Not satisfied with The Globe editorially announcing that Mr. Alleyworth will use his influence to the full to secure a reconsideration of the indemnity and pension bill, and so words its utterances that the reader would naturally conclude Mr. Alleyworth was opposed to the increased indemnities as well as the pensions, the up to the front time Mr. Alleyworth is defending the indemnity clauses of the bill.

Yes, the goodly Globe may scoff at Archie McCallum, the farmer, as standing on the W. F. Maclean platform, but the farmer, already has one foot on that same platform and the other is still doing its best to get him there with both feet.

But again what can Archie McCallum accomplish? It was Mr. Alleyworth who asked the question, and the answer comes in the form of a bill. The Globe is to be believed his nomination has brought about the reconsideration of the salary grab bill. If his mere nomination can accomplish the much how much more may we expect when that nomination is endorsed by a majority of the electors of North York?

But to return to Mr. Alleyworth. "If an advertisement from a corporation were offered to a newspaper such as I because it would be corporation money that paid for it?" Is it this truly great man justifying the giving of his opinions and abilities to corporations? Were they for sale like the advertising space in a newspaper or on a bill board? Yes, the advertisement would be accepted and put where the public would know it was the corporation that was speaking and not the newspaper. But that newspaper sold its editorial columns to a corporation and the corporation's opinions as its own utterances it would be known and despised as the creature of that corporation. Is there, then, a difference between the editorial "we" and the "we" that united Mr. Alleyworth and the Bell Telephone Company when they appeared in one person before the telephone committee of the Dominion parliament?

And one more thing. "Would Mr. Alleyworth have been selected to appear before the telephone committee if that committee had been a Conservative instead of a Liberal body?" If not, we must conclude that with the Bell Telephone Company Mr. Alleyworth found a market for his influence as well as his abilities. Is it because of that combination of influence and abilities that he was dragged to the surface to-day, at the point where Lewis W. Crawford and William Howard, who have confessed to disposing of the dismembered body of the girl, said they dropped it from the stern of the East Boston ferryboat?

The bag, with its contents, was taken to a Howard-street undertaking establishment, and will be viewed by Medical Examiner Francis A. Harris in the morning. The head was in a good state of preservation, and it is thought by the police that it will be readily recognized as that of Miss Geary.

The police continued their search to-day for Mary S. Dean, who is said to have had charge of the Roxbury home in which Miss Geary died after being removed from the Tremont-street resort, but without success.

Dr. Percy D. McLod, who was arrested in the Back Bay district on Friday for alleged complicity in the case, left town to-day for a few days. He is under bonds of $20,000, and will be given a hearing next Friday.

Big Corporations (in background): Talk more anti-pension and public ownership to 'em, Allan. We've got to win somehow.

Over-Line Universities Are Simpler Organized

Says Schurman of Cornell

President of Cornell is here to help University Commission—Denominational Colleges and Government Control.

There arrived in the city on Saturday afternoon President Schurman of Cornell University, on a Saturday afternoon visit to his friend, Prof. Goldwin Smith. The former drove from the Union Station, and on arrival, met the members of the Round Table Club in the evening. President Schurman is a fine man in the prime of life, with evidences of a strong personality. He was born on Prince Edward Island in the days before the Canadian federation.

"It is fifteen or eighteen years since I was in Ontario last," the president told The World man yesterday. "I went upwards of $300,000 for the College of Arts and in recognition of his services to the state university and elsewhere, where there is a state university the question of denominational colleges never arises, and so matters are much simpler."

President Schurman assured the inquirer that the fact that two of the reviewer's six chambers were empty, it would appear that the young man shot himself twice, a remarkable circumstance, as a single wound of the nature was usually sufficient to cause instant death.

The young man, who was only 20 years of age, was a son of W. McMichael of 101 St. George-street, chief inspector of customs here. Deceased was employed in the local inspection branch.

Party Barriers Are Down In Big Mayoralty Contest

With Three Candidates Confident

Socialists in Austria Had Disorderly Sunday

At Vienna Police Did Not Prevent Agitators Holding Red Flags Over the Reichsrath Buildings—Universities Closed.

Prague, Austria, Nov. 5.—Thousands of socialists held suffrage demonstrations this morning, leading to serious disorders which continued all day long. The morning gathering was at the Wenzels-Platz and the crowds held and eventually fired on the police. After ineffectual attempts to clear the streets it was found necessary to surround troops to disperse the mob.

Rioting was resumed this afternoon. A barricade was erected by the demonstrators, which the troops stormed and destroyed. Mobs drove from one point to another, and the rioting continued in the suburbs until late in the evening. The casualties numbered one killed and 47 severely and slightly wounded, and 30 arrests were made.

Fully 50,000 demonstrators took part in the disorders. Quiet has now been restored and the authorities are resolved to resort to martial law if these disorders are resumed.

At Vienna. The socialist suffrage demonstration in the Ringstrasse today was attended by 50,000 persons. A strong force of gendarmes was stationed along the route, but did not interfere with the demonstration, and the socialists were even permitted to enter the Reichsrath building.

Disorderly demonstrations were reported from Lemberg, Graz, Keigauitz, Brienn, and elsewhere.

The Premier Gauthier Frankenkamp will introduce a universal suffrage bill at the opening of the Reichsrath. As a result of the demonstration today the Reichsrath has been closed until further notice.

Branch Caught in Trigger. A prominent lumberman on Hunting lived only an hour.

Campbellton, N. B., Nov. 4.—Kilgour Shives of the Shives Lumber Company died tonight from the result of a gunning accident, which occurred 22 miles from Campbellton last afternoon.

Mr. Shives was walking thru the woods when he was caught in a branch and set off the charge, the bullet entering the region of the heart. He was found by a neighbor, but he was unable to get away from the branch, and he died in an hour after the accident.

Mr. Shives conducted one of the best of his business in the city of New Brunswick. He was very popular, and greatly esteemed as a citizen.

Canada's Defence Scheme Serves National Ideal

Only Course Which Justifies Asserting Claim to Speak in the Empire's Foreign Affairs.

(Canadian Associated Press Cable). London, Nov. 5.—A despatch from Perth, Western Australia, says in reporting that the colonial office has informed the premier in peremptory terms that the clauses in the Factories Amendment Act, relating to Asiatics, are repugnant to the feelings of nations with which Great Britain is at peace, and must be repealed.

Commenting on articles on the Canadian militia, from its Canadian correspondent, The Morning Post says the attitude of Canada in this respect denotes that she, in common with others of the great self-governing colonies, is fitting herself to undertake the responsibilities attendant on the prosecution of a separate national career; not that Canada is aiming at separation from the empire, but an ideal, formulated by her national aspirations, is in the eyes of her people, paramount, if not superior, to the imperial ideal, or rather, that the latter is valued primarily, at all events, in proportion as it serves the former.

In strengthening the system of national defence, Canada is taking a course which alone can justify her in asserting her claim to a decisive voice in the conduct of her foreign relations.

Mayor Urquhart will visit this evening at a lecture in Simpson-square Methodist Church by Thomas McCallum on "Home People."

Will Health Respondent Ends Life With a Bullet

Reginald McMichael Found Dead Yesterday in His Room at the Walker House.

With a revolver clutched in his right hand, and a bullet wound in the right temple, indicating clearly the cause of death, Reginald McMichael was found yesterday afternoon in his room at the Walker House. The body reclined upon the left side, and was in sleeping attire, but it was evident that the bed had not been slept in, as the covers were in no way disarranged. From the revolver, there still depended the price ticket, which would seem to purchase that the weapon—38 calibre—was purchased with suicidal intent.

Mr. McMichael registered between 10 and 11 o'clock on Saturday night. There was nothing in his manner to create comment, and he entered his name in the book in a bold, firm hand. Shortly before 11 he went to his room, and it was not till 12 hours later, or about the middle of Sunday afternoon, that his non-appearance attracted attention.

Dr. Bruce Blodden, who was at once summoned, remarks that, from the outward aspect of the wound, as well as from the fact that two of the reviewer's six chambers were empty, it would appear that the young man shot himself twice, a remarkable circumstance, as a single wound of the nature was usually sufficient to cause instant death.

The young man, who was only 20 years of age, was a son of W. McMichael of 101 St. George-street, chief inspector of customs here. Deceased was employed in the local inspection branch.

DISEASE IS BENEFICENT IN TO PREVENT INFECTION

Sir Frederick Treves Declares Human Race Would Disappear Were There No Disease.

Edinburgh, Nov. 4.—Sir Frederick Treves, in an address before the Philosophical Society on the subject of disease, pronounced what appears to be a startling paradox. Disease, instead of being, as is generally supposed, a punishment, is really a beneficent force.

The lecturer took examples such as a wound and the suppurating inflammation, which is a process of cure to be initiated in order to prevent the infection of the wound.

LOTS OF SECRECY AND HASTE ABOUT BIG NEW BATTLESHIP

"Dreadnaught" is to Combine Features, Success of Which it is Desired Should Soon Be Known.

London, Nov. 5.—Britain's biggest battleship, the Dreadnaught, now in course of construction at Portsmouth was inspected by the Lords of the Admiralty yesterday, but it was a secret visit, nothing transpiring as to the result.

Heretofore it has been permissible for any British subject to enter the Royal Dockyard and witness the building of a war ship, but quite a new order of things is now ordained by the admiralty.

Extreme secrecy is to mark the building of war ships in the future. A cordon of police surrounds the place where the Dreadnaught is being built, and no one is allowed to enter the respective departments and foremen are allowed to see only such sections of the plans as are necessary for them to consult.

Complete designs have not yet left the office of the director of naval construction at Whitehall, therefore only Sir Philip Watts and his immediate staff know what the Dreadnaught really will be like.

The reason for all this secrecy is that the vessel is to embody many striking developments in battleship design which it is desired to keep as far as possible from foreign naval constructors.

The Dreadnaught will be of 18,000 tons displacement, and is expected to attain a speed of twenty-two knots. She will be driven by turbine machinery of 25,000 indicated horse-power, constituted on the Parsons principle by Harland & Wolff of Belfast.

The armament will be ten 12-inch guns, but nothing is yet known about the armor or its method of distribution, or of the manner in which it will be sought to render it invulnerable against torpedoes.

Considerable speculation has been aroused about the extreme haste with which the keel plate was laid only five weeks ago, more than 4000 tons of the material are already built into position, and the work will be launched in February next.

The reason for all this hurry is easily explained. The Dreadnaught is expected to mark a new era in battleship design, but she is regarded as an experiment, and as her cost will be considerably over £1,500,000 (£7,500,000), more vessels of her class will be laid down than she has been intended to be.

THE WAGES OF SIN.

New York, Nov. 5.—With her skull crushed by a lion bar, the still warm body of Guste Lejcher, a frequenter of "Fenderlin" resorts, was found today in the gutter, where she lived in West 28th-street. The police believe that she was killed by a man with whom she lived in a hotel, caused by her refusal to account to him for all her earnings.

PATIENT KILLED BY WARDEN.

Waterbury, Vt., Nov. 5.—Peter P. Durand, an aged inmate of the state asylum for the insane here, died to-day as the result of an assault which he committed by two male nurses last Tuesday. An autopsy to-day determined that his breastbone and four ribs had been broken.

BANKS AND OTHER MANY BRANCHES HOW THEIR BUSINESS IS GROWING

Within the Year the City and the Country Have Been Dotted with Newly Established Agencies.

The past year has seen a remarkable development in the banking industry throughout the Dominion in general and the Province of Ontario in particular. In no city has this development had greater effect than in Toronto, in which, during the past year, branch banks have sprung up in various busy parts, and as will be seen during the ensuing twelve months, one will hear the cry of "Still they come!"

Albeit, the Canadian bankers view the state of affairs with some alarm, and a resolution, passed by the Dominion government to impose more severe restrictions on the chartering of new banks, has not been able to check the present tide.

On the other hand, there is, unquestionably, a consensus of opinion amongst the bankers of this city that the remarkable increase in the number of banks throughout Ontario of late, while it may be an admittedly, due to increased competition, is, in an important way, a sign of increased prosperity.

From the lips of only one banker did The World man, who has been about the city for some time, hear the remark that the number of banks in Toronto is "rather overdone," were his words.

On the contrary, the prevailing opinion is that the opening of new banks in Toronto, as well as in other cities and in townships that are rapidly becoming agricultural, is a necessary step to meet the needs of the increased number of depositors. The clearing of the returns, and the showing of the contents of the optimist.

Country Requires It.

"I do not believe that the new branches have been and are being opened to meet competition," the manager of the Bank of Montreal, remarked "indeed, the necessity of banking in the rural districts throughout the country is obvious. All the first-class bankers naturally desire to extend their business, and in banking system permits, in my opinion, they would be neglecting a manifest duty if they did not do so."

Take all the large banks in Canada, if they wish to get into the principal markets of the West, the Canadian Pacific and the Canadian railways, it might appear that they are overdoing it; but, then, yet another view is taken, and the necessity of developments of a great country.

"It often happens," however, that the very thing which is being done in one place, is being done in another. The local banker might offer very good business, but the banker in another locality, for other reasons, might be better off if the banks could confer with one another, and in this way, by means of the number of banks in the country, the development of a prosperous country.

It is invidious to make comparisons, but it will generally be conceded that the Canadian banking system is the best in the world. The Canadian Bank of Commerce, with its 127 branches in Ontario, and its branches and chief correspondents and agencies in nearly all parts of the Dominion, and in the principal cities of the United States, is a credit to the Dominion.

Most of our banking houses have their headquarters in Toronto, and in the opening-up during the past few years, the Bank of Commerce has been extending its branches in the West, in the Northwest Territories, branches at Lloydminster, in the Northwest Territories, and in the Northwest Territories, and in the Northwest Territories.

THE RICH MAN

How I Became Richest Man.

London, Nov. 4.—John D. Rockefeller contributes a remarkable article in The Daily Mail to-day over his own signature. It is entitled "How I Became the Richest Man in the World."

For the first time in his life Mr. Rockefeller receives pay for an article contributed to a newspaper, but the sum was paid to him in full.

When he agreed to contribute to The Daily Mail he stipulated that the amount paid to him should be turned over to his son's Bible class in New York.

"If I were to give one reason among many for my success in business, it would be that I had the good fortune to be associated in early boyhood, in church and in school, with good young men. The association in which I found myself in the early days of my life, and in the Young Men's Christian Association helped me more than anything else to make a beginning, and to get a position and an opportunity to begin my life's work."

What a great boon it is to a man to have another man tell him he believes in him, and to have him tell him that he is a happy man because of his association with good young men.

My advice to every young man is to get into the habit of associating with good young men, and to get into the habit of associating with good young men.

DEATH OF STUDENT IN OHIO IS BLAMED ON MURDEROUS INITIATION OF THE FRATERNITY.

Mount Vernon, O., police declare Stuart Pierson, a student, was bound to the rails by Delta Kappa Epsilon, a fraternity of Kenyon College and run over by a train before he could be released.

Three pieces of blood-stained rope and a bit of absorbent cotton have been found near the scene of the tragedy. The police go so far as to state that young Pierson was chloroformed before he was tied to the track. N. L. Peterson, father of the dead boy, accuses his son's death was accidental, and requests the police investigation, including Kenyon College have been summoned before the grand jury, and the case is being investigated by the grand jury.

The prospect of the United Empire Bank of Canada, which is to operate in Ontario, with an office in London, England, was advertised in The World last week, and shows yet another big scheme of the future.

Most of the branches of these representative banks are located on street corners, and are in a position to place branches at corners where passengers can easily alight from the street cars at the stopping places.
