a Wild Burst of Popular Enthusiasm for a Man.

Not since Pretoria night have the streets of Toronto presented such a scene as when Lord Dundonald left

Massey Hall about 9.30 last night at the conclusion of the reception. Massey Hall was emptied in record time, and Victoria-street, where the carriages of the guests were drawn up,

was crowded.

Men as Escorts.

The horses were taken from the vehicle in which his lordship was to reach the train, and athletic human muscles supplied draft power. All classes partook in this street demonstration, and gallant clad women of all ages and condition followed in the crowd, endavoring to gain a clasp of the vanishing hand. The bands played "The Maple Leaf" and the psalm of Goodfellows, "Auld Lang Syne," alternately, and both were taken up justly by the full-throated following.

Route of Procession.

Down Victoria to Richmond, across to Bay, thence to King and westward to York passed the procession. All the way Lord Dundonald with bare head stood and grasped the hands that were thrust out in greeting.

What indescribable thrills dwell in this grasp exchanged between the great and the unknown to kindly ideals and elevated sentiment may be left to the philosophers, but no one who has striven and succeeded will admit that such a grasp is not worth effort.

Got Close Together.

At York a blockade of street cars detained the carriage a few seconds,

and the crowd renewed its friendly im-portunities, while fashionably dressed ladies pressed closer to the wheels.

A multitude had gathered about and around and within the Union Station.

The doors were swept away by the pressure of the crowd, which overflowed along the corridors and down the stairs, and the iron rafters and glass roof echoed more shrilly the cheers of parting than did the roof of Massey

Hall. It was a charge at the double down the platform, and a difficult one at that, but without accident, still shaking hands, imperturbable with friends and with foes, his lordship reached the carriage and at 10.05

the train pulled out for Ottawa.

ROADWAY LEVEL CROSSINGS

Contractor Magann Exhibits Plans That, With the Aid of Bridges, Will Make Travel Between Dufferin-street and the Humber Safe to the Public.

In view of the discussion regarding the application of the Grand Trunk Railway for permission to lay four tracks along the water front at Sunnyside, George P. Magann, the well-known contractor, exhibits plans, which, if carried out, will deal with the level crossings between Dufferin-street and the Humber. The proposed involves a bridge over the tracks from the exhibition grounds to the Humber which will be closed so that all danger from level crossings thru this large number of people think the improvement should be immediately carried out. A bridge over the crossing at Sunnyside-avenue will clear the way for an extension of the city car line along the lake shore. The Indian-road, thence into Humber Park, to connect with the College-street line. This will give a loop for both the College-street and King-street lines.

The great Emperor of Germany was punctuated with cheers as Dr. Potts spoke of the heroes there had been in the history of the empire, men whose names are known to all, and those who, though most deeply deplored it most of all-it was necessary to have an arm and equally necessary to have it well and wisely led.

Every sentence was pointed and punctuated with cheers as Dr. Potts spoke of the heroes there had been in the history of the empire, men whose names are known to all, and those who, though most deeply deplored it most of all-it was necessary to have an arm and equally necessary to have it well and wisely led.

STORY OF JAPANESE DEFEAT IS DISCREDITED AT TOKIO

Correspondent of London Morning Post reports engagement at Port Arthur on July 15.

London, July 15.-The Tokio correspondent of the Times in a despatch filed at 9.45 p.m. July 15 says that the St. Petersburg story of a Japanese repulse with heavy casualties at Port Arthur July 10 is wholly discredited at Tokio, where no such reports have been received. It is believed that the story originated in Shanghai.

LOSSES ON JULY 11.-London, July 15.-A despatch to a new agency from St. Petersburg says the war office announces the receipt of a despatch from Port Arthur containing the report that the Japanese sustained considerable losses on July 11, the exact particulars of which have not yet been ascertained. According to the despatch the Russians captured all the positions lately taken by the Japanese.

FIGHT AT PORT ARTHUR.-London, July 15.-The Shanghai correspondent of the Morning Post, calling under date of July 15, says: "A naval engagement took place today at Port Arthur."

LOSS TO CANADA.-Montreal, July 15.-(Special)-"I think that with the departure of Lord Dundonald, Canada will lose one of the ablest soldiers connected with its militia. I have never met him and am not familiar with all the facts relative to his departure, but I have followed his career closely and it occurs to me that he is a man of high ability, both as a man and as an officer."

There are few officers, said he, "who have had a more enviable experience than Lord Dundonald. His record throughout has been clear. His ability as a military man was widely recognized. Canada should regret his departure."

When asked his views on the probable appointment of a Canadian to succeed Lord Dundonald, he said, "You can hardly expect the blind to lead the blind. I do not mean by this that Canadians are blind or that Canadian officers are sightless, but it seems to me that the experience of a man who has spent all his life in military service, mingling with the most competent officers and studying the military systems of other countries, should scarcely be put in the same class as the experience of an officer born in a colony."

Mr. Magann's plan shows a subway in the Indian road entrance to High Park. Following eastward, the railway will go under the road at Sunnyside-avenue, and the steep grade will be considerably reduced and the line straightened from this point to Dufferin-avenue, where there is to be a bridge over the tracks. Other bridges are located at Jameson-avenue, Dun-

DUNDONALD, MASSEY HALL

Continued From Page 1. he began simply, "Generals get far too much credit. Were it not for those gallant men like the Straiths, Hopes, and other gallant men, generals would be unuseful utterances that went home to the soldiers present. When he spoke of "our country's credit," he referred to the general officer commanding, and a great and independent leader like one of our own purely Canadian officers, he might have been interpreted at Dundonald's.

When Sir William Spoke, Mr. Emmerson had just explained that the completion of the Trent Valley Canal would cost over $8,000,000, and several general remarks were being made on the enterprise when Sir William Mulock made his fatal mistake. He charged the Conservatives with allowing the Trent Valley Canal to be done along for years, and merely used it as a political bait. The Liberals on the other hand were pursuing a vigorous policy of construction and were determined to push work to an early conclusion.

This nettled Hon. John Hagart, and Mr. Hagart said nettled someone else and so very much to Mr. Emmerson's disgust the controversy soon became general.

Mr. Hagart intimated to Sir William Mulock that the Laurier government had not let a single new contract in connection with the Trent Valley Canal, and forsook with the grizzled member from South Lanarkshire, who was speaking with an appropriation of $100,000 for the purpose of pushing to an early conclusion a work that had been finished for less than six million dollars.

Referring to the rejoicing and speech-making that took place at Port Arthur last Saturday, Mr. Hagart said, "I have never met him and am not familiar with all the facts relative to his departure, but I have followed his career closely and it occurs to me that he is a man of high ability, both as a man and as an officer."

fire glowing into the warmth of popular feeling. They were there, he said, as patriotic citizens of Toronto, Ontario, of the Dominion, and of the empire. What he might be thought of was not his business, but he thought most deeply deplored it most of all-it was necessary to have an arm and equally necessary to have it well and wisely led.

Every sentence was pointed and punctuated with cheers as Dr. Potts spoke of the heroes there had been in the history of the empire, men whose names are known to all, and those who, though most deeply deplored it most of all-it was necessary to have an arm and equally necessary to have it well and wisely led.

The reforms introduced at your institution into our militia system have met with the approval of many of the citizens at large and particularly among the members of our various militia regiments. We believe that the important changes which you have inaugurated and the plans which you have made for the militia on a better footing, to bring about organization on reasonable and sensible lines, to improve the system of instruction and to short to make the militia an efficient force admirably adapted to the life of our people, and to the fulfillment of our national duties.

During your residence among us you have not only performed your duties as a soldier but you have also performed the duties of a true national citizen. You have been an inspiration to the youth of our country, as well as in your personal conduct you have set a high standard of citizenship.

There will remain behind you a distinct impression that in all your actions during your term of office you have been guided by an intense devotion to duty and a fine spirit of personal sacrifice in accord with the noblest traditions of the militia.

In leaving you we carry with us the good wishes of all classes. The people of Canada will watch your future career with much eagerness and rejoice in your success. We wish you good luck.

At the conclusion of Lord Dundonald's reply, the cheers of the night were resumed, and again and again did they echo in his glory, while handkerchiefs fluttered like whitecaps on a stormy sea.

Then the band struck up "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow," and everybody gave us the cheer of the night. The band continued in the just as well-known air of "The Red, White and Blue."

The address, executed by A. H. Howard, R.C.A., is engraved on a large scroll of parchment, and is a significant contribution to the history of the militia. The address is the work of Dundonald, and it is a masterpiece of oratory.

Not long ago he rode forty miles on horseback in one day along the line of the Pennsylvania Railroad, and in the town of Elkington, he was the driver of a team of nearly 200 mules, and he felt the same old journey in the saddle no more than that of a cowboy upon a western cattle ranch.
