A WARNING TO FARMERS.

Messrs. Editors.—The now celebrated firm of C. B. Mahan & Co., Empire Agricultural Works, Montreal, which has brought ruin on so many farmers in Quebec and Ontario, has carried its operations into New Brünswick. Some of our Gloucester farmers have been fooled, and as the Agents who visited us last spring intended to follow the coast around to Shediac, it can readily be supposed others are also taken in by the fine tables.

Door farmer named Francois Robillard. of Berthier, is being sued by a certain bank for his note of $434, transferred to it as collateral security by Mahan. The unfortunate man actually wept when he was told he was without recourse, as the payment of his note meant ruin to himselfand family. This is no overdrawn story, we are only stating the bare facts, which can be fully substantiated. Poor Robillard received three ploughs from the Empire Works, but sent them back to depart them unsuitable, and would not buy them. Of course they were accepted by Mahan, but the latter did not think of returning the poor man's note. The Attorney-General, we carnestly and since of produces the mercy of the railway companies. Both the Government and the C. P. R. have kept faith with Winnipeg, and have done much to build it up, and I think it would be sheer ingrative terms of these charters. If the province will set to work and build local railways to work and build local railways to work and build local railways to man and the C. P. R. have kept faith with Winnipeg, and have done much to build it up, and I think it would be sheer ingrative to work and build local railways to man and the contract will be obtaken. P. R. will charge what rates they please, because it is foolish to talk about the collection hank for his note meant ruin to himselfand family. This is no overdrawn story, we are only stating the bare facts, which can be fully substantiated. Poor Robillard. Poor man's note. The Attorney-General,

The above is taken from the Montreal and agents that has ever come to fight, and providing a line for our necessary and providing a line for our necessary and providing a line for our necessary exports and imports at fair rates. TERRIBLE RAILWAY ACCIDENT

THE Intercolonial Railway has been very unfortunate of late, accidents following one after the other in quick a mile or so north of Beaver Brook. The facts, as we have gleaned them, are as follows. On Saturday morning, between the hours of twelve and one o'clock, the express bound south stopped near Beaver Brook to get up so on account of the engine not steaming well. In order to protect the train, Conductor Olive sent out brakemen to place torpedoes, and as soon as steam was raised, the whistle sounded a recall, and the men came in, taking the precaution, however, to leave two of the torpedoes at the furthest point. Apparently there-

Owen McGinty, driver of the express engine, corroborated the statement that the engine would not steam well; the engine stuck when it reached the up grade about two miles north of Beaver Brook, where a stop was made for some ten or fifteen minutes to raise steam. He stated that he heard conductor Olive send his men with signals a red lantern and torpedoes; that when steam was raised he gave the signal of five whistles for the men to return, and started as soon as the conductor gave the signal. The principal part of his evidence is govered in the account already given.
