PATRIOTIC AND PANICKY. The Madrid correspondent of the Daily Telegraph says: Bull fights have been arranged in all the large towns, the proceeds to be devoted to the national defense fund. It is still asserted that Gen. Weyler will receive com-

DURATION OF THE WAR. Paris, April 23.—The Gaulois publishes an interview with Senor De Bosc, the distinguished Spanish fianancial authority, who declared: "The war between Spain and the United States cannot last more than ten or twelve months, and will not cost over £20,000,000 to £24,000,000—a sum Spain can easily furnish from her own resources."

PANICKY BOURSES. The Madrid correspondent of the London Standard says: A most unpleasant feature of the situation is the panic on the Madrid and Barcelona bourses, and in financial circles all over Spain, despite the energetic efforts of the leading bankers and the remonstrances of the press. The people have begun in Madrid, and even more so in the provinces, to crowd the branch offices of the Bank of Spain, to exchange notes for silver, which has long been the only current coin in Spain. El Imparcial says that in three days 15,000,000 pesetas have thus been drawn in silver from the Bank of Spain at Barcelona. The decline in Spanish funds and all the favorite securities of the native investors have been painful. The Spaniards themselves nowadays hold almost all their consols. Their Cuban debt and other issues have declined from 404 to 270. The tobacco monopoly has fallen from 243 to 190, and Cuban bonds have fallen from 92 to 51, while exchange on Paris has risen 32 to 68, to say nothing of the gold premiums. The Madrid correspondent of the Standard says: "Bank of Spain shares since the last settlement have de-

FEELING IN ENGLAND. London, April 23.-There is scarcely a public man or important newspaper in Great Britain that does not warmly support the United States. At the same time, in private conversation, much criticism of the United States and indorsement of Spain is heard. An editorial in the Chronicle expressed the opinion that the United States fleet was throwing away an excellent strategic opportunity by going to Cuba instead of intercepting the Spanish fleet. The Daily News says that "the Americans hardly know what they are fighting for," and that "it is an open question whether the freedom of Cuba could not be obtained without recourse

The Daily Mail is doing much to atrocities perpetrated by Spaniards, accompanied by pictures of the starving reconcentradoes, under the, heading, "Why America Is Intervening in Cuba," with the Kipling parody, "If blood be the price of liberty, Lord God, we have paid the penalty."

Blanco realizes the danger and has rushed large bodies of troops to Santa Clara battery.

He has sent others in a hurry by railroad to Vedado and Carmelo. The garrisons are weak there, and even with the reinforcements could not last long because the defenses are strong. Troops could be landed there with little more than a skirmish, and it is thought this will be the first place at which the Americans will

Deafness, DISEASES.

Professor J. M. Munyon, in an interview with a reporter, says:—Catarrh is the foundation of two-thirds of people's ailments: hundreds are treated for nervousness, weak lungs, dyspepsia, constitution, etc., when in reality their whole trouble originates from caterrh.

Catarrh in the head is a disease that is more to be dreaded than any other disease of its class known, not only on account of the local and acute trouble, but especially on account of its termination, when neglected or improperly treated. Everyone who suffers from catarrh of the head is usually forewarned by some of the following symptoms, which occur in the early stage of the disease:—There is a continual discharge at the nose, tightness in the head, coryza or watering of the eyes, slight pains sometimes through the head and buzzing at times in the cars, and various other symptoms; as the disease progresses and becomes chronic in form, symptoms such as headache or pain over the eyes, vertugo or dizziness, ringling in the ears, which is soon followed by partial deafness, dropping of mucus into the throat, causing hawking and spitting, especially in the morning, which causes nausea and not infrequently vomiting.

Catarrh left alone or improperly treated soon goes to the bronchial tubes, and gives rise to such troubles as a dry, hacking cough, spitting up small cheesy lumps, which is troublesome at night, loss of appetite, and a disgust for ceretain food, more or less shortness of breath on exertion, low spirits, loss of weight, irritability, and many other symptoms, local and constitutional. Neither is catarrh confined to the head and throat: it often extends to the stomach, causing indigestion (commonly called dyspepsia), constipation, fullness after eating, dizziness, and weak heart, and not infrequently fainting spells, dull, listless, and tired feeling, nervousness, and restlessness and inability to sleep at night. This form of catarrh is often treated for nervousness, when, if the catarrhal condition of the stomach was removed, the other symptoms would entirely disappear.

With Munyon's Remedies and improved methods of treatment we positively cure catarrh. We can refer to thousands in this city and throughout the Dominion whom we have curad. Catarrh in the head is a disease that is

PLAN TO KILL McKINLEY

An Infernal Machine Sent to the White

House-Guards Doubled. Washington, April 23.-An infernal machine was sent to the president yesterday. Fortunately its character was suspected and measures taken to prevent its explosion, and no harm was done. The incident was carefully made to capture the sender. There was nothing to suggest from whom it came and no clue was afforded as to the man who sent it. The machine was inclosed in a harmless-looking cigar box. An ingenious contrivance had been arranged so that when the lid of the box was opened there would be flash of powder which would explode a stick of giant powder sufficient to blow a man to atoms.

Lieut. Cross, in charge of the White House police, to whom the machine was handed, discovered its nature and took precautions to render it harmless He soaked it thoroughly in a tub of water, until the contents were saturated, and then opened it. As a result of this incident additional easures were taken to guard the executive mansion. The police force was doubled, and today it is expected that a detail from the district militia wili form an additional outside guard to the approaches to the White House

Hamilton, April 22 .- "In the midst of life we are in death" is a fact that should impress us deeply—so deeply as to touch the heart of our hearts, the soul of our souls. Women, our mothers, wives, daughters, sisters, have it brought home to them frequently and impressively. The diseases that torture them are legion. Their sufferings never cease. Of late, however, the women of Canada have been able to boast that they possess the means of not only relieving their sufferings, but of curing their diseases. They have made and are making use of the famous Dodd's Kid-

Mrs. Juliana Sandberg, of this city, was a great sufferer from Female Weakness. For three years the disease wrung her soul with agony, despite all the efforts of her physicians, despite all the medicines she used. No pen can ascribe, no imagination can realize what she suffered. There are thousands of her sisters, though who know just what she endured-for they are suffering similar tortures

At length, when it seemed as if there was no help but death for her, she was induced to try Dodd's Kidney Pills. The result was the same as in all cases of Kidney Disease, when Dodd's Kidney Pills are used-a speedy and complete

The information contained in the above is enough for any woman who suffers as Mrs. Sandberg did, She will give Dodd's Kidney Pills a trial, and that is all they need. Port Huron Times: The International League, as is well known, is composed of six clubs, Hamilton, London and St. Thomas, on the Canadian side of the border, and Bay City, Saginaw and Fort Huron in Michigan. It's a good, sound, healthy circuit, and one that smacks loudly of success. The league is under the protecting wings of the National board, a fact which protects us against to the last. There is no question but lists, the Government cannot honestly start, and all that is needed to insure its ultimate success is good, clean ball and plenty of it. Everything is in readiness in this city for the comgo into training. The park has been put in shape for the season's work.

Manager Holman, of the London, purposes carrying out the rules, as laid down by the Brush resolutions, on Tecumseh Park, and has had printed on the admission tickets thereto for this season the information that no spectator or other person must contravene these rules under any consideration on pain of being incontinently ejected from the grounds, and having his money refunded.

BALL PLAYER LOST OR STOLEN St. Thomas Journal: C. Williams, of Cleveland, was one of the pitchers signed by St. Thomas. A week ago he was sent a ticket and $20 advance money. Last Saturday he left Cleveland, and that is the last that has been heard for Power's Athletic Club, of Cleveland, and that he has signed under his right name with the Rock Island club and will play with that team this season.

LONDON HORSES IN DETROIT. The Detroit Free Press has this to say of Thursday evening's horse show programme: Three of the events went to visiting exhibitors after sharp com-petition. Perhaps the most interesting event of the evening was the hunters Batteries—Donovan, Amole, Dineen and hurdlers, which was held until the last. An element of danger always enters into hurdle jumping, though nothing serves so well to bring out the 5 beauty of a horse in full action, or to show up his defects. Six entered the event, and the honors were won by Adam Beck, of London, Ont., with his magnificent chestnut gelding Huntsman, ridden by Willie Wilson. Owing to the fact that Wilson rode two horses over the hurdles. Huntsman was not warmed up for the first trial, and he hit the high hurdle. On the second he jumped clean all the way round, and with splendid action. My Lady, owned by Miss Ottoway, of Hamilton, Ont., won second, being also ridden by Wilson. The yellow ribbon went to Dr. Buchanan's Atalanta, the jumping exceedingly well. Adam won another blue ribbon the event for high steppers, Rarebit, a gelding wth showed fine knee action and plenty of spirit. There were eleven exhibitors, and the event was exceedingly difficult to judge, owing to the fact that the appointments have to be taken into consideration. W. J. Henkel's Dandy

Prof. J. W. Crouter Strongly Recommends Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills for Severe Palpitation.

Anyone who has ever used Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills for such diseases as arise from Disordered Nerves, Weak Heart, or Watery Blood, is so thankful for a cure that he desires to let all sufferers know of their sterling merits.

Prof. J. W. Crouter, the well-known Phrenologist, and author of several advanced scientific works, writes from Penetanguishene, as follows:-"Last October I had an attack of palpitation of the heart, which grew so bad that I was induced to take medicine for it. Occasionally I obtained relief, but was not cured, and the beatings of my heart became more and more intermittent and violent, till I feared the valves of my heart would burst. Incidentally I read of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills in the Globe, and with a feeling bordering on despair I determined to try them. went to Mr. Nettleton's drug store and got a box. I took them regularly for about three days, when the beatings of my heart became quite regular. I continued to use them for about three day's more, and by that time my heart was beating naturally and has continued to

The estimates for the Collegiate Institute in 1897 were: Receipts, $4,000; expenditures, $22,700. For public schools the estimates were: Receipts, $5,280, and expenditures, $61,325. The report of No. 2 committee was read by Dr. English, in which he said that they were unable to complete their estimates for the year, and desired that the board should be informed of the facts. There were three classes occupying temporary quarters in the Collegiate. The council had refused to issue debentures to raise funds necessary to furnish the required accommodation. "By this act of the city council," continues the report, "your committee's hands are tied, as they will be

The trouble lies in the fact that too few women enjoy perfect health and strength of the special womanly organism. A wom-an who is not well and strong locally cannot enjoy good general health. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription cures all weakness and disease of the delicate and important organs concerned in wifehood and mother hood. It is the most perfect and scientific remedy ever devised for the peculiar ailments of women. It restores womanly power, strength and virility. It tones and builds up the nerves which have been shattered by suffering and disease. It corrects all irregularities and derangements and stops exhausting drains. It restores weak, nervous invalids to perfect health. It is intended for this one class of disorders and is good for no other. It is the discovery of Dr. R. V. Pierce, for thirty years chief consulting physician to the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, at Buffalo, N. Y. No other known medicine can take its place. other known medicine can take its place.

"I have been troubled with female weakness that my physician called catarrh of the womb," writes Miss Tean Conner, of Catfish, Clarion Co., Pa. "I doctored for it and did not get better. At last I commenced taking Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. I got better right along and when I had taken four bottles was cured. I recommended the 'Favorite Prescription' to a friend of mine. She has been using it and thinks it mended the 'Favorite Prescription' to a friend of mine. She has been using it and thinks it is wonderful."

than that already available, for the the them from expending more than $500 on permanent improvements at the institute, and it is estimated that it would take at least $2,500 or $3,000 to secure anything like proper conditions for classes. This sum when expended would be virtually thrown away, and further, it would be running a great risk to place classes in the attic on account of danger from fire, etc. students' lives are in danger if the classes are kept in their present locations. If the board of education could authorize the expenditure of $3,000, as above stated, it would mean one-fifth of a mill on the dollar this year, while to grant the $8,000 for the new school would mean about one-fortieth of a mill on the tax rate. Therefore, from an economic point of view, it would be desirable to have the debentures issued. Your committee would recommend that the estimates at the special meeting another effort be made to have the city council comply with the reasonable and necessary request made by the board of education to issue the debentures as per requisition already presented. While it does not come quite within the While it does not come quite within the province of the committee to refer to the attendance at the Collegiate Institute, we desire to refute the statement made by at least one of the aldermen that the school was 'a rich man's institution,' and would give the callings of the parents as they appear on the

Dr. English said that when the de putation from the board went to No. committee of the city council to ask for the $16,000 debentures, the latter allowed the $6,000 for public schools, but would not sanction the expenditure of $10,000 on the Collegiate on the ground that a Normal School would be established here in the near future, and in connection with this a model school would likely be erected, thus drawing a considerable number of the pupils from the Collegiate. Hon. George W. Ross had stated that there would be no model school erected for some time to come, and he (Dr. English) could see no other way than to demand the amount required from the council. Trustee Strong asked if a less elaborate building could not be provided. Trustee Logan said there had been some reduction in the original figures proposed. If a suitable building were not erected, the city would not be keeping pace with the times.

Dr. Teasdall suggested reconsidering the whole matter. As the cottage for the janitor had been thrown over, and $500 knocked off the cost of the propos- | feet. President Taylor thought that they would receive due notice from the government when they were ready, and said they had better await developments. Mr. Essery agreed with Mr. Taylor, stating that the medals were made, and he had heard they would be presented on May 24 or July 1. to proceed with section B of the trunk sewer, a report upon the size and material to adopt could be presented in two weeks. The plans are now sufficiently near completion to decide upon the location of this sewer, and the lands to be purchased along its youte. Now that the main sewers were completed, or under contract, the old sewer system should be thoroughly inspected, repairs made, if necessary, and manholes and flush tanks added where required.

The city engineer reminded the committee of the necessity of altering the gullies on the new system. Canada is enjoying a period of unexampled prosperity.-Detroit Free Press. The adjourned international convention of waiters will be held in Detroit

The molders and printers of Detroit are all busily employed, especially the President Gompers, of the American Federation of Labor, spoke in Toledo last Tuesday. The horseshoers' international con vention will be held in Detr. during the week beginning May 16. Ottawa Trades and Labor Council have appointed a committee to arrange for the Labor Day demonstration. The last issue of the Motorman and Conductor takes strong grounds against the formation of a western federation of labor.

The international unions that have ecently affiliated with the American rederation of Labor are the Brothernood of Bookbinders and the International Building Laborers' Protective Association.

The painters and decorators, garment workers, woodworkers and several other unions of Detroit have so greatly increased their membership of late that they are entitled to additional delegates in the Trades Council.

The 400 employes of the Chippewa Lumber Company's mills at Chippewa Falls, Wis., the largest sawmill in the world, went on strike Tuesday for a ten-hour day. They had been working eleven hours. The mill is shut down. Eighty members of the Chicago Builders' Association have signed the demands of the striking carpenters, tory. The builders, however, say those members of the association who have obs that must be finished by May 1 have been permitted to sign, but that they will yet gain the victory. Theodore J. Shaffer has been elected president of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers, to succeed M. M. Garland, appointed surveyor of the port of Pittsburg. Mr Shaffer is a graduage of the University of Western Pennsylvania, was ordained a Methodist Episcopal minister and filled a number of pulpits, resigning several years ago to become a boss roller in the Monongahela tin plate ed new collegiate building, he suggested | contains about 26,000,000 cubic feet | works. The result has been a sucbe necessary to treat the sewage this cess, and the concern is now one of the largest of its kind in the country.

The American Federation of Labor evidently alarmed over the threat of the west to secede and establish a western federation of labor. In the current issue of the Federationist resident Gompers has a long editorial headed, "Division and Defeat, or Unity and Success-Workers of the West, Which Shall It Be?" John B. Lennon, treasurer of the federation, has a lengthy article under the caption, "Division is Disruption," and there are several short articles, of which the following is a sample: a Western Federation of Labor is advisable, so is a Northern Federation of Labor. Following the proposition logically, it means disintegration, disorganization, non-unionism." The complaint of the west is that, under present inditions, the federation is fall for dress parade and amounts to nothing as a fighting force; that it is monopolized by an official trust which dominates each annual convention and elects officials who are satisfied to do nothing except build up the organization with themselves at the head, and the lastly, that the eastern trades unionists continually vote for men and measures that are antagonistic to the economic principles of trades unionism. Some of the western journals are very bitter. The conference meets in Salt Lake

City on May 2. A Baltimore elergyman in a recent sermon indorsed the union label in the following eloquent words: can be more sacred, more holy, or more deserving of the reverence men or angels than the union label, which signifies that human life has been more highly valued in the production of commodities than the mere profits sought for by greed? The label is an emblem, of justice, of fraternity, of humanity. When you find a label on a garment, or box of cigars, or a loaf of bread, or a piece of printing, you can be sure that neither was made in a sweat-shop. That no little children's fingers were compelled to sew or sort tobacco in the hours of the night intended for childish sleep. When you see this label on any commodity, you can buy it with a clear conscience knowing that in doing so you are not becoming partner to an institution that degrades humanity for the sake of private profit. You can sleep soundalso, and not be worried with thoughts of typhus fever, smallpox or eprosy, which are so often scattered broadcast from Chinese opium joints, penitentiary convicts' cells and tene-ment sweat-shops, where the most degraded specimens of humanity put their life's blood into marketable goods. from which the poor, unsuspecting public suffers all manner of foul and loathsome diseases. The union label is a religious emblem. It is a religious act to buy goods to which this label is attached, an act blessed on earth and honored in heaven, while it is sin to buy a cigar, a piece of clothing, a pair of shoes, or a loaf of bread without this label, for then you do not know but what you are building up the business of some heartless tyrant, who is extracting a fortune from the drudgery and degradation of his tle greatly helped—and two bottles God bless the label! And I hope that fellows at the risk of public health. all of you, as you leave this house all of you, as you leave this house tonight, will carry indelibly impressed upon your minds the pictures of Residence, 239 Dufferin avenue.

Babahoyo, Ecuador, March 23.-For the last two days I have been sailing along the Columbia River of Ecuador. The Guyas is to this country as the Columbia is to the United States. It is and just now, in the rainy season, which lasts here from December until May, it has converted the country for miles and miles into a vast lake. Where we entered it from the Pacific, just opposite the Island of Puna, where wide, and as we sailed up it to Guayaquil we seemed to be passing through an inland sea. The waters were of the color and thickness of pea soup, and upon the fast-flowing flood were patches of green, great trees and other deoris which were floating down from the Andes to the sea. At Guayaquil the river is more than a mile wide, and harbor for the largest of the Pacific Ocean steamers. The river there is filled with shipping, and there are hun-

I am in the city of Babahoyo, or Bodegas, a city which, like Bangkok, is almost all afloat upon the water. The whole land is flooded, and many of the houses are so built that the people live in the second stories and go from one place to another in canoes. The town proper, which contains about 8,000 people, has streets which are now little more than rivers, and in coming from the boat I hired an Indian to carry me to the high lands of the shore rest of the place, and just now the stores are free from water, though in logs and bamboo bridges put across walk to sidewalk. The houses are all of two stories, the ground floors being taken up with the cave-like stores, and the second stories forming the living quarters. There are, of course no pavements nor modern improvements. Babahoyo has not a sewer nor a gutter in it. Its only bathroom is a floating shed upon the wharves of the down into the water, with the serious danger of losing a leg by the nip of an alligator. There is not a fireplace nor a chimney in the whole town. There is not a glass window, for the houses are ventilated on the second floors by means of lattice-work running about the ceiling. The whole front walls of the stores are thrown back in the daytime, and the ground floors are as open as those of Japan. The houses now on and dry. The floor is of cane, and the cracks in it are so many that the women do not need to sweep, the dirt of the household falling through upon the ground or into the water. As to modern conveniences in the way of water closets, these are practically unknown among the natives of Ecuador. Even in the capital, Quito, a city of 50,000 or more, the streets are used by 50,000 or more, the streets are used by boo thatched with palm leaves. Havana is a mystery to the European and the American. The question, "Why do you this and do you that?" is always answered with, "We have always done so; what else would you have us do?" Why the farmers use a crooked stick to plow with, why ladies sit in their carriages while the drygoods clerk brings out rolls of eloth for them to inspect; why dark odor. women and even black women powder their faces until they look as if they had been daubed with flour; why houses are built to a line within two feet of the curbing, so that pedestrians cannot walk two abreast; why the houses are all painted in whatever vivid color pleases the owner most; why an unearthly clangor of bells drives sleep from the city at daybreak; why no one ever keeps an appointment (and never apologizes for the offense), are questions that Havanese and Cubans do not explain or attempt to ex-HOT DURING MIDDAY.

The almost equatorial sun beats down upon the streets with terrific heat during the day, and none but business people and "low people" are seen dur-ing the early and middle day. When the sun sinks, however, the lazy inhabitants turn out, and the life of the night is the lively life of Havana. Then the military band plays in the park, and the senoras and senoritas are seen, with the invariable mantilla. all their glory. Havana girls are seldom seen abroad with their sweethearts, and even the crowds in the park, alhough not the best of society in the town, are very decorous. Courtship is not long drawn out, and flirtations are few. Havana has a population of about 200,000. The city has not been very businesslike under Spanish rule. Most of the men are worthless and dissipated. They lounge the equal of the very best public eating in cafes and look only to pleasure such as the Spaniard delights in-gambling, cock fighting, bull baiting. No thought of the morrow is taken, and the result is that a more improvident population can be found nowhere. The war with the insurgents has made but small difference to Havana. An American traveler who recently visited the town says that the only difference the war has made is the

SUNDAY IS THE HOLIDAY. Sunday is Havana's holiday. There are no bull-fights going on now, as the people are too poor from the war to support them. But there are other amusements, so that Sunday maintains a violent contrast with the rest of the The newspapers are published in edi- equal to that of an American block, tions throughout the day. As for the churches, thousands of women religiously attend. In Cuba the church and her children are a woman's life. She soon loses her husband as her companion in the home. She does not read. She never heard of a new woman. She has her little circle of friends like herself, and some day But she has been faithful to the church, and the most striking thing about a service in the great cathedral is the presence of the women of Havana and the absence of the men. It is said here that most men go to church but three times in their lifewhen baptized, when about to be married and when dead-and the church is as rigid in its requirement of the first two visits as the departed is to be received there at last.

EVERYBODY IS POLITE. All the storekeepers are courteous and unobtrusive. They are so polite that one feels as if he were rudely trespassing in entering their stores to purchase. Money is generally plentiful in Havana, and as there is not a savings bank in the island, and Cubans are born spendthrifts, it is striking to note the general excellence of everything offered for sale. American goods are the favorite. French and German wares are popular, but every-thing is of the highest grade, and a native or Spaniard will never buy anything but the best. A visitor experiences great difficulty in purchasing anything characteristically Cuban in the stores, but that is because Cuba produces only two things -sugar and tobacco-and buys everything she uses-even buys back her

The easiest thing to buy is cigars, and they cost astonishingly less than in the States. There is an experience in buying them, because the great cigar factories of Havana, producing brands that are known to smokers all over the world, are interesting institutions. They occupy buildings so nearly resembling the ordinary dwelling house that they would be mistaken for them by a stranger except for the QUAINT CUBAN HOUSES. The Cuban house of the better class is of the ordinary typical construction. It is enormously heavy, built of adobe soft stone, to withstand earthquakes and to resist heat. The rooms are enormous, with ceiling from fifteen to twenty or twenty-five teet high, all floors, even in the bedrooms, being of stone, and the windows covered with great iron bars. The houses of the lower class look no different from without, but are awful within, and there the cause of Havana's scourges of yellow fever is at once apparent. The city is badly drained. The bay, with no free course of water and com-paratively little tide, is a reservoir, uncleased, of the city's offal. It breeds disease, and in squalor where personal uncleanliness is added to the perils incurred by municipal neglect, the houses of the poor have become the incubators of pestilence.

PARKS AND SQUARES. Havana has many beautiful parks, squares and public places. The squares are all ornamented with royal palms, and here and there an orange or banana tree, and here and there an Indian laurel. The Plaza de Armas, which fronts the palace of the captain-general, and the Parque de Isabella are capital examples of what may be done with the richness and fertility of the soil and the gorgeous climate. Havplaces in any of the great cities of Europe or America. Everyboay takes his meals in the cafe. The food supply is superabundant and very cheap. One can live like a Sybarite on the most modest of incomes. Wine is very cheap and is drunk liberally. The principal playhouses in the city are Tacon Theater, the Albisu Theater, the Circo and the Teatro de Jane.
To go back to the food supply. ence of a larger number of soldiers city in the world is furnished with than ever. But on Sunday Havana is such an abundance and variety of foods as is Havana, with the possible exception of San Francisco. The earth and the sea give to its people all the best of their fruits. FAMED HAVANA MARKET. The great market of Havana is without an equal, surpassing, as it does, week. Every store, nearly, is open. Orleans. This market covers an area one theater which has not succumbed exposed for sale all the fruits of the how so small a town can gather to

AN INDOLENT PEOPLE. The cafes are chiefly used by the permanent residents, visitors preferring the hotels, but the best of the eating is to be had in the cafes. Havana is full of all sorts of devices for enjoyment, much of which is by no means calculated to move men to thrift and industry. There are lounging places, smoking and drinking cafes and resorts catering to every desire of ease and indolence. These facts are seen in the jaded faces of the men who seem to have money enough to satisfy their desire for lazy pleasures, if for no productive industries. The briefest possible time is given in the morning to business, and the rest of the day and the night is devoted to galety. Even the fear of a bombardment or a war with the United States does not seem to make much difference to the Havanese, who could get along quite as well under one flag as another, providing the means for satisfying their desires for a lazy life be not taken from them.

CONDITION OF WOMEN. The population of Havana is mixed and its morale is very low. The condition of its women remind a widely traveled man of the women of the Orient. They are close-kept and live in tropical idleness. Miscegenation is common, and it is no rare matter to find a Cuban family of very good social position and of considerable two nations presented a solid front. For that reason an alliance might be advantageous. be classed as quadroons in America. Havana is a city of grand surprises for the foreign visitor. A political mite as it is in comparison with London, there are slums in Havana that cannot be matched in the metropolis of the world. One of the most amazing sights of the Cuban capital is the manner in which children of both sexes, 10 years old and under, roam about the streets, enter the shops, bazars, churches, and other public places in a state of complete nudity. In no city on earth except Havananot even in Japan-are such matters permitted. But Havana is Havana, and is not in the least discomposed about A PLACE OF RESIDENCE. Havana has infinite charms as a place of residence. Its climate, its vegetation, the cheap rate at which one can buy all the delicacies of the table, the romance in the very air he ease with which a little labor will yield a large return, the proximity of the sea, the middle distance between the invigorating north and the tropical countries of the southern con-tinent, the profusion of its fruits and flowers—all these things make it a most desirable place to live, and there is no doubt that thousands of Americans had been there long ago had it not been for the blighting and repressing rule of Spain—a rule that tends to ruin commerce and enterprise wherever it has sway. Give Cuba her freedom, and it goes without saying that Havana will make great industrial leaps forward. That industrial conquest will give Havana, too, an improvement she needs more than anything else—a good sanitary system.

Delightful as the city is, it is cursed with poor sanitation. This is responsible for the prevalence of disease in the town. The crew of an Atlantic steamer costs about £4.000

Should Join Hands With Britain.

Important Interview With Hon. E. J. Phelps, Ex-Minister to England.

It Would Take 100 Years for the Republic to Reach Britain's Standard -The Mother Country Is Wise and Prudent.

[Chicago Times-Herald.] New Haven, Conn., April 18.—Edward

Phelps, ex-minister to England, is an authority on international law and international relations. While our representative at the court of St. James it was his privilege to enjoy an unusual opportunity to study the real attitude of the Englishman toward the American people. keenly alive to the facts, since his return to this country Mr. Phelps has made a study of comparisons, and it is doubtful if any man is better fitted to speak of the actual attitude of each nation toward the other than he.

Mr. Phelps earnestly believes that if equitable terms can be arranged an alliance with Great Britain would be of much benefit to us. She is the older and we are the younger; both are strong in development. He believes there is much wisdom to be gained from counsel, and that there is no genius so rare that it may not profit through the experience of others. This is the ripened judgment of the scholar and the diplomat, for during Mr. Phelps' term it fell to his lot to be an active agent in the settlement of many important questions. The restfulness that encompasses the man of letters has tempted Mr. Phelps to forsake the ways of politics and bend his energies to the less arduous task of aiding in the development of the student mind. That is why he has become the Kent professor of law at Yale University, and in the historic Humphrey mansion on Humphrey street in New Haven passes his days in the enjoyment of a tranquility that was never vouchsafed him during offi-

DEPENDS UPON TERMS. "The wisdom of an alliance between the United States and England depends upon the terms proposed," said Mr. Phelps. "Anything that will strengthen the brotherly feeling between the two nations should be fos-There is an element in our own country which would oppose any alliance, but in England nothing of the sort exists. I know that we are regarded by Englishmen with fraternal kindliness. "For defensive reasons we need no stances which seem possible. The The only point of view from which we the broad ground of general advis-

"What do you consider the leading reasons in favor of an alliance?" ENGLAND IS WISE.

"It seems to me that there are several reasons, the first and most important being one which I fancy may not meet altogether with the approval of the masses—the benefit England would be to us under such circumstances. She is a far older nation, and therefore more experienced, possessing the calm wisdom that comes with age and the power to judge dispassionately. We should be to her like the young partner to the old one, and, as in the case of such a partnership, the younger always gains the ripe knowledge of his elder. The calm, firm, wise policy of England results in the settlement of difficulty, where often the ephemeral passages of our diplomacy accomplish little or nothing. "Another reason which might weigh n favor of an alliance is the presence of our great neighbor to the north that stretches from sea to sea, Canada. But for the presence of Canada nothing would confront us at home which would make it possible that we might have serious difficulty with England. But no man can foresee what will happen. There are difficulties between nations under such circumstances just as there are between landowners or in business life. Therefore I say that just so long as Canada exists, so long is there a possibility of difficulty which an alliance would be very apt to re-GIVE MORAL STRENGTH. "Again there is the moral strength that we should enjoy through an alliance with England. I mean the moral strength resulting from the effect of such an alliance upon other nations. It is not to be supposed for a moment that any power would attack the United States and England if those

"Then there is another reason that we should by no means forget in considering this question of alliance. This is that it would still further cement the fraternal feeling which now exists. The people of Great Britain are favorably disposed toward the United States. They admire our pluck, our energy, our strength. You know we are all English when it comes to a matter of ancestry, or at least the majority of us are. Hence there is the consanguinity which must ever exist between two nations allied by the closest of all ties—a common blood.

"Still another fact we must consider when surveying the field of reason opened by the question of an Anglo-American alliance is the effect upon commerce. We are not a nation of seamen; England is. Our marine is not developed. Hers has gained with every year. It is as a sea power that she holds her high position. Were it otherwise she would never be able to maintain her dignity and power in all parts of the world. On the sea an alliance would be of unquestioned advantage to us."

NO CREWS FOR AMERICAN SHIPS "Is it not possible for us to place" ourselves on an equality with Great Britain? Can we not build all the ships we need? "Unquestionably we can build the ships. We have as good shipwrights and as good facilities for constructing vessels as could be desired. But how can we man these ships? have more vessels now than we have experienced crews for. You can educate a man in the principle of military duty in a comparatively short space of time, but seamen must be England has been breeding them for centuries. Her mariners are to the manor born. Your true seaman is never a landsman.

"For this reason the land. England is infinitely superior on the ocean. It would take us more than 100 years to bring our marine, our navy, up to her standard."

"Do you regard the British seaman as the superior of the seafaring American?"

"Not to the American sailor who has been bred to his calling. Better seamen than those do not exist anywhere. The men to whom I refer are the ones who follow the sea as a man follows a trade. Your true sailor must love the sea, and not regard it as something to be cultivated as a mat-"Do you believe our navy to be suffering from a lack of genuine sailors?" NOT ENOUGH SAILORS. "Unquestionably. We have enough men to properly man the ships of the navy today. We have very effecient and highly accomplished ers. There are no better anywhere. But we lack seamen, and in consequence it is found necessary to enlist landsmen. Until the time comes when land's powerful navies, be of advantage to us in whatever position we might assume regarding the settle-ment of the Chinese question?" "I would not say that. As I said fore, I do not think that the matter of an alliance can now be intelligently and dispassionately discussed on the basis of an individual case. It is a question of principle, of advisability. and therefore to say that we should rush into an alliance of any sort because of one reason or another is unwise. It is possible that England's support would be of aid to us in the Chinese matter. Certainly the United States cannot assume an attitude of

OUR PACIFIC COMMERCE. "Our commerce, our traffic with the eastern countries, is a possession of San Francisco and the Pacific coast. We must recognize that fact. naval strength of which I spoke. That is not all, however. England retains possessions she secures. She retains them because she colonizes them with her own people. It is an absoassistance from anyone. We can take lute necessity for England to have colonies, for she must provide some babe it exists, but when the home sustion of an alliance with England. I tenance is removed the colony dies. or should not form an alliance so far tory of her colonial possessions, her own career, establishes this fact. "France was once England's enemy, can now consider the matter is on the an enemy to be feared. This is so no longer so far as England is concerned. As for us, the power does not exist that could conquer us at home. I do not consider Germany a formidable opponent in the matter of colonization. She has a certain amount of strength, much more than France, but she not to be compared with either England or the United States. As to Russia, I am inclined to believe that she has the power of securing possessions and maintaining them. Spain is no longer to be considered. Her downfall is complete.

THE "NEW NEW WORLD." "In the consideration of this quesion, then we must look at the matter, not from New York, but from San Francisco, across the untraveled sea to the country that is the oldest and yet the newest-the oldest in point of age, the newest in modern progressthe new new world. Within this territory great commercial centers some day arise. What will be our share in them? This and a thousand other questions must be carefully considered before we can say with entire wisdom and actuated by a sentiment arising from perfect knowledge of that alliance with Great Britain is ad-

Mr. Phelps reiterated his belief that our government, in taking action if the question of alliance should officially arise, ought to avoid permitting itself to be influenced by any single fact. Its decision should be based he believes, on a result of careful study of the situation in all its ramifications. He is sure that ephemeral diplomacy must be avoided to bring about great results. If the velvet glove of diplomacy artistically conceals the hand of mail, and no violent action rends the covering. Mr. Phelps feels positive that we may maintain our dignity, our honor and our standing among the nations of the world, without marring the record with conflict.

Mothers' Clubs of St. Paul

Our locality was by no means a central one, and it was too much to ask of a busy mother to spend an hour or even two on the way to and from each meeting. The matter was fully discussed at a meeting of the board of directors, and It was decided to try to interest representative women to organize independent mothers' clubs in their own localities. This plan was systematically carried out, with the result, in two years' time, of ten new clubs in the city and suburbs, each having from 25 to 100 members. In most of the clubs outsiders are welcomed to club. Opportunity is always given for plainly: "I'm sleepy. Won't somethe meetings, and the average attend-discussion, and we have learned by one, please, put me in my pocket." ance much exceeds the enrolled membership; therefore it will be no exaggeration to say that 500 St. Paul women have already been reached and

helped by the mothers' clubs. Some of the women whose co-operation was asked had for years been interested in the subject, and really awaiting such an opportunity. There was, and is, no lack of enthusiasm among the leaders. Kindergartners and teachers are very generally represented in the clubs, and, in localities where the hard-working mothers are untrained and unaccustomed to speak or write, these public-spirited teachers have taken the leading part. It is evident that the purely literary woman's club can be expected to flourish only in a well-to-do and fairly well educated community. We have found, these lectures the general public is inhowever, that these simple associations of mothers are perfectly adaptable to various social conditions. Organization and the conduct of meetings is more or less formal, as desired, but in no case oppressively so. Readings from approved books, and volunteer talks by doctors, ministers and teachers, obviate the necessity for an original programme. Discussion may be according to parliamentary rules, or it may be as free and informal as at an afternoon tea. Music, recitations and an occasional social gathering are entirely allowable, although one of the largest clubs attributes much of its success to the fact that the element of entertainment has been excluded from the meetings. common aspiration toward an enlightened motherhood forms a new bond between our well-to-do women and those less favorably situated, and there is a helpful interchange of visits. lending of papers, and a general spirit of co-operation, which finds further expression in a "general board" of directors, consisting of two or more representatives from each of the clubs. Pierre didn't take time to walk, but slid down the banisters and darted into the dining-room with his shoes in his hand, while Lillian followed with half her clothes under her arm, both so eager to see what mamma had to show them that they couldn't wait to finish dressing.

Then such shouts of delight as papa stood the puppy on the floor, where he tried his best to walk, but only succeeded in taking two or three steps without tumbling and bumping his little fat nose.

The Gallant

They Again Immortalize Themselves in the Soudan.

MacKenzie Played "Bonnie Dundee, While the Bullets Rained Around Him-Allan Stewart Was Killed.

[New York Journal.] Piper Andrew Mackenzie, of the Seaforth Highlanders, is now honored by the whole British empire as the survivor of the late battle of the Atbara, in the Soudan. There are Scotchmen all over the world, and they will all be thrilled to hear of the heroic conduct of one of their race. Americans know how to honor a brave man, and they, too, will be thrilled by the story of the heroic Mackenzie. There was another piper at the Atbara as brave as Mackenzie, but he was killed, and it is more practical and instructive to spend one's admiration on a living hero. The pipers of the Scottish regiments in the British army have within a few months performed deeds of valor which are the admiration of the whole world. They had a glorious reputation, and they have added new glory to it. On the heights of Dargai, in India last year, Pipers Findlater and Kidd kept on piping after their legs were shot through and through. They sent the British people wild with applause.

of heroism in the Soudan. The piper is the hero of the day in England. Jests upon the bagpipes are no longer tolerated. Music that inspires heroes is music good enough for any man.

Now comes the news of similar deeds

A week ago last Friday the British army fought a decisive battle against the wild Dervish forces of the khalifa on the River Atbara, a tributary of the Nile. The British forces consisted of the Egyptian army, which is offi-cered by Englishmen, and a large detachment of the regular British army. The climax of the battle was a bay-onet charge on the zareba, the Dervish intrenched camp. The Anglo-Egyptian big kitchen apron, where he rolled up damage it had failed to dislodge the and went to sleep.

Several bullets struck him, but he continued to pipe. The Dervishes were clearly aiming at him, and several officers and men begged him to come down, but he still played on.
Once he fell, and arose bleeding from the forehead, and still he played on. Again he fell, this time to rise no Privates Angus and Maclaren ran to his rescue. He died in their arms, crying "Scotland forever" as his countrymen poured into the enemy's fortifications

After the battle it was found that two bullets had struck Piper Mackenzie, of the Seaforths, and four others had passed through his clothing. He was nevertheless practically uninjured. The two bullets which struck him in the thigh and chest had merely grazed the flesh. His escape was miraculous. No other man in the regiment was struck by so many bullets, counting those that only passed

To a correspondent who talked with him Mackenzie said: "The Seaforths are as gallant as the Gordons. There are no soldiers like the Scottish lads.'

There is no doubt that the pipers in the Soudanese battle were tremendously desirable of gaining a reputation like that of the Gordon pipers at Dargai. They succeeded. The battle of the Atbara decided the fate of the Soudan. It will soon be entirely in the hands of the British. who have been fighting for it on and off for fifteen years. A STORY OF GRANT. A Wounded Soldier's Close Study of the Great Commander. 'Oh, it was an intensely interesting study-my study of Grant at close range in the Wilderness!" The speaker was the Rev. Theodore Gerrish, a Maine veteran of the civil war. I repeat his story as I heard him

"Ah! I can never forget that terrible day in 1864, when was fought the first of the two days' bloody battles of the Wilderness," said Mr. Gerrish. "I at the time lay wounded under a tree, close to Grant's headquarters in the field, and hour after hour watched

"While serving as a private in my regiment, I was severely, though not dangerously, wounded, and, like a the rear. I was placed under a small tree, and, as it happened, within a few rods of the spot where the leader of that mighty host of Union warriors was conducting the battle. In fact, I was so near to Grant that I could se every motion he made, and critically study him in the momentous, fearfully trying role he was playing. "And such a study:

"Why, it is not hyperbole to state that it was worth all the pain and disability I endured then and thereafter from the effects of my wounds. "There stood the 'silent man of des-tiny' in front of his little tent, a man plain and unpretentious, holding in his hands not only the fate of his vast army, but the life of our nation as 'one and inseparable,' yet as cool and self-possessed as if he were merely review-ing a brigade of militia on training day. All about him was wild excitement and seeming chaos. In front of him, and for miles in extent, the unceasing roar of artillery mingling and alternating with the rattle of musketry, the bugle calls, the shouts of the contending troops; now nearer and more terrible, now seeming further away; anon the crashing of shell in dangerous nearness. causing a temporary scare in the vicinty of its fall, while, added to the appalling din was the element of uncertainty and intangibility, causing that

DON CARLOS AND THE QUEEN. New York, April 23 .- A dispatch to the World from Brussels, Belgium, says: "I formally decline to hold any communication whatever with the peo-ple of the United States," said Don Carlos to the World correspondent. The pretender to the throne of Spain frowned darkly as he spoke; nevertheless he conversed with courtesy until asked if he had any message to send to the American people. He condemned severely the policy pursued by the queen regent, saying: "She has sacrificed the national dignity by temporizing with America and allowing interference in the domestic affairs of Spain. Mabin considered a moment. "I'll risk it!" she cried at last. "I shan't go to bed at all. I shall sit up I wish you would. We should find out something if you had the strength of mind to do that." Not without a wild beating of the not been relocked, and in which there was no key, Mabin, considering this holding the strange night-watch, without saying a word to Mrs. Dale of her

He had to admire the courage she showed in undertaking a task which was, as she expressed it, "rather shuddery," for when he left her at the gate of The Towers, she was still steadfast in her intention.

It was not until after dinner that evening that Mrs. Dale introduced the young girl to the apartment she was to occupy that night. Mabin was astonished at its dinginess, its gloominess, contrasting so strongly as they did with the fresh prettiness of the room which had been prepared for herself. It was a large square room, with a moldy, old-fashioned wallpaper, on which unnatural pink roses climbed up a succession of thin hop-poles. The pictures were groups of trees done with the pencil in the woolly early Victorian manner, and stiff bouquets, in water-color, of conventional early Victorian flowers. The bed, which was hung with curtains, occupied an undue space; and Mabin felt that, in the weird circumstances of her tenancy room, she would rather have died than sleep in that funereal erection When Mrs. Dale had kissed her and bade her good-night, after receiving Mabin's assurances that she did not feel in the least nervous, the young girl felt a strong inclination to follow her friend out of the room and to implore her to find her some other sleeping-

By a valiant effort, however, she conquered this weakness, and made a careful survey of her surroundings. In the first place, the windows and their fastenings had to be examined. They were carefully secured, and were both so high above the ground that it would have been impossible for an intruder to reach them without a ladder. There were three doors; and at first Mabin was inclined to regard this as a disquieting circumstance. But on finding that two of them were unused. locked and without a key, and that there was a bolt on the door by which | Camps on Many a Threshold-But South she had entered, she began to feel more book, she placed herself in an armchair which stood near the fireplace, which, although shabby was sufficiently ly comfortable, and, putting her can-dles on a small table beside her, settled herself to read. Her book was a novel of excellent type, not too elever to be charming, not so commonplace as to be dull. Much to her own surprise, she got interested, and forgot, or almost forgot, the vague fears which kept her in the armchair instead of in bed. She was in the very heart of the book, and her candles had burnt low in their sockets, when a sound, a very slight sound, behind her back, caused the blood almost to freeze in her veins. It was a soft, stealthy tread. Looking round, half paralyzed with terror, she saw that the door was ajar, and that creeping softly round toward the inside handle was the long, thin hand of a man.

CHAPTER IX.

In the ordinary course of things it conclude, on seeing a man's hand inside her door in the middle of the night, that the intruder was a burglar. But her mind had been rendered more clear, been for the last two days trying to

Instead, therefore, of screaming, or stretching out her hand to the oldfashioned belirope which hung by the "Proper behavior, then, means nice- fireside at a little distance from her right hand, she waited, watched and listened. Apparently she had unconsciously made so slight noise as she turned in her chair to look behind her, for the intruder, whoever he was, intead of entering, waited and listened

There was a pause; and then the hand which had crept so stealthily round the door was slowly and quietly withdrawn. Mabin, fascinated, watched the long, bloodless fingers as they gradually disappeared from her sight, and was sufficiently self-possessed to observe that the hand was that of a gentleman. And upon this discovery there sprang up in her mind a strong

Even while she felt the last remains of fear give place to courage and vivid ricket. I want to tell you something. interest, Mabin, with her wits all sharpened with excitement, wondered at the change in herself. She sprang lightly to her feet; and, with the intention of taking him by surprise, ran Rudolph listened gravely, and there towards the door. But the candles, blown by the draft caused by her light, quickly round on the tips of her toes blown by the draft caused by her light, hanging sleeves, flickered and caused the shadows on the dingy, rose-covered wall to dance and quiver. The mysterious visitor, as much on the alert as the girl was, closed the door softly between her and himself.

Mabin, however, sprang forward and seized the door handle. She heard the sound of rapid footsteps on the other side, and for one moment she hesitated to go in pursuit. With the clearness of intellect which belongs to the night, when there are no sounds of busy life, no distractions of bright light and vivid color to divert the attention, she saw both the dangers on the one hand, the attractions on the other, of a deeper dive into the mystery which surround-

Throwing open the door, which had circumstance as she went, dashed through in pursuit.

It was indeed a daring thing to do, for she was not even mistress of the topography of the house. The room in which she now found herself she had never been in before, and the only light to guide her footsteps came through the window, and was obscured by a yellow-white blind. It was by this light that Mabin knew that the dawn had come, and the knowledge gave her more courage. She could follow the intruder with greater security now that she knew that, if she chased him to the place where he had entered the house, she would see his face in the daylight. As she entered the room the man was in the act of opening a door on the left which led into the corridor. Mabin saw him for a moment against the brighter as the other had done. By the time she had got into the corridor in her turn, she saw the man lisappear down the stairs at the end. She followed still. He reached the hall; he went down the four steps to the drawing-room, through the doorway of $1,400. which he again passed out of her sight. In the midst of the excitement which hurried her on to the drawing-room loor, the young girl felt a chill in her plood as she remembered Mrs. Dale's description of the gloom of the deserted apartment. She had described it as "a damp and moldy mausoleum." Mabin would have avoided the room if she could. The meeting with her mysterious visitor would be more uncanny there than in the warmer, more habitable parts of the house. But she went on. Dashing into the room with impetuosity, all the greater for her vague fears, Mabin found herself in a very long, wide, low-ceilinged oom, the roof of which was supported by two rows of pillars, and the air of which struck a chill into her. [To be Continued.]

The Bread Bylaw Finally Passed-Re Naming of West London Streets at Last Accomplished.

The city council held a special meetwould have been natural for Mabin to ing last night, at which a report was presented by the hospital building committee. The committee was roundly scored by several aldermen for its meher perceptions more acute, by the stimulating mystery which she had ed, thus ratifying the acceptance of the The chairman of the committee, Ald.

Carrothers, submitted a very brief formal report, which simply stated that it had adopted the plans of McBride & Farncombe, and had instructed the architects to prepare specifications, up-on which it was intended to call for tenders. Ald. Graham said that one particular objection to be made against the council then adopting these plans was that they had not been shown any of them. They should not assume the responsibility of something they knew nothing about, and it was unjust of the committee to ask them to do so. He moved that the first and second choice of the plans voted on by the doctors be brought before the council and the different points of advantage pointed

Ald. Greenlees seconded the motion. He said the vote of the doctors had been counted in a most peculiar manner, and one not in accord with fair Some of the doctors gave as their first choice Moore & Henry's plan, and their second choice Mr. McBride's, or vice versa, and the result was that by taking the two choices together, their votes were nullified. He wanted to see the plans, "because," he said, " want to exercise an independent judgment, and I am in the dark altogether." Continuing, he said he thought the employment of an architect was going too far, and he would certainly not vote to ratify the action of the committee until he had obtained further information. Ald. Nutkins was ready to rely or the intelligence of the committee. He took advantage of the occasion to say, however, that he felt aggrieved that he, as a builder, had been slighted in not being on the committee.

Ald. O'Meara claimed that a portion of the council had been ignored in the whole matter. It was the first time that he ever knew of the council being treated in such manner, and he ed her. For a few seconds the impulses struggled against each other, and as any of the alderman. If the committee had nothing to hide, why should board probably as long then curiosity and youthful daring they not report? If steps had been taken, as he understood, to let contracts, and go on and build the hospital, would stop them, "and," he added, "Th get 100 people to back me."

Ald. Winnett supported the committee, but to get over the difficulty moved that before the contracts be let that they first be submitted to the council for ratification. Ald. Taylor said that the time to object to the resolution was when it was made. There was no use beginning to squeal now. The matter had been properly conducted, he thought. Ald. Belton was ready to stand by the committee, and Ald. Stevely said he did not see that they could have reported earlier. Ald. Cooper was very strongly opposed to the contracts being let without being referred to the council.

Ald. Graham denied that his motion was because of any personal objection to Mr. McBride's plans. But he light which came through the windows considered it unjust to ask the council on the east side of the house, and then to adopt certain plans without showing the council the plans first. Ald. Douglass did not approve what the committee had done, either but said that they had gone so far now nothing else could be done. If they did not adopt Mr. McBride's plan they would have to pay him 2 per cent, or

The Spring Suit Problem.

We have a solution. It strikes a happy medium for you. Your experience has proved to you that readymade clothes are generally poorly-made clothes, and tailor-made clothes are generally sold for a fancy price, out of all proportion with their worth. Here's our solution for this dilemma in which you find yourself:

We have no ready-made clothing, but by combining many departments under one roof we economize in our expenses, and buy the best goods at the lowest possible figures. So we can give you a stylish suit-made to order and made to fit-for only a little more than a ready-made suit.

A PRICE HINT:

For $18 we will send you out of our store with the most stylish spring suit to be found in the city. You can have your choice of material from a large assortment of magnificent West of England Tweeds and fine imported Worsted Twills. There are four shades of gray, light and dark, and also black-splendid trimmings-sack or morning coat. Did you ever hear of an offer to equal this?....
