KUROPATKIN ADMITS LOSS

Russians Abandoned Yangtse Pass—Jap Enveloping Plan.

Russians Were Forced to Withdraw from their Positions One by One.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 3, 3.30 a. m.—The Japanese and Russian reports seem to agree on the main points of the military developments up to Aug. 1, but stop short at the interesting point, namely, what happened on Aug. 2, when it is possible that a decisive struggle was going on east and south of Liao Yang. It is evident that the Russians abandoned Yangtse Pass, falling back on Liandianshan, a strong defensive position in the hills twenty-four miles south-east of Liao Yang. General Kuropatkin admits that there were heavy losses along the Saimatzze Liao Yang road on July 31. The official account indicates that although the Russians withdrew from their advanced posts, Kuropatkin hoped to be able to hold his main positions even in the face of the superior Japanese force, and that he evidently expected heavy fighting along this line, probably about An Ping. This battle possibly was proceeding on Aug. 2.

Meanwhile, a serious enveloping movement of three Japanese divisions was maturing around the Russian left at Hai Cheng, where there already was heavy fighting on July 31.

"To-day the enemy is acting undecidably on the southern front, but a reconnaissance has ascertained a beginning of a turning movement of the left wing of our troops posted at Hai Cheng by at least three Japanese divisions.

"On eastern detachment was engaged until noon to-day in the direction of Samitzze and Liao Yang. It was seen that the enemy was advancing, apparently in small bodies, against the right flank of our rear guard."

YANG-TSU-LING EVACUATED. Liao Yang, Aug. 2.—After a fierce battle the eastern Russian force had evacuated Yang-Tsu-Ling, six miles west of Motien Pass.

GATHERING FOR ASSAULT.

Tokio, Aug. 2.—In the Japanese-Chinese war when the Japanese besieged Port Arthur, Shuang Tai Kow was used by the Japanese as the mustering place of the various battalions of the first division who gathered together on the south side of Shan Tai Kow, or Tai Kow Mountain, situated north of Port Arthur, previous to the assault on the fortress. Shan Tai Kow is situated on the railroad reading from Port Arthur to Kin Chou, and is between Ingentzi Bay and Victoria Bay, but closer to the former than to the latter. Roughly speaking, Shan Tai Kow is about ten miles from the actual fortress of Port Arthur. It is a position of great natural strength, commanding a broad plain leading to Wuchiatun, another strong position on hills, about four miles from the fortress.

CAPTURED SHAN-TAI-KOW. Tokio, Aug. 2, 1 p. m.—It is reported here that after three days of desperate fighting, the Japanese have captured Shan Tai Kow, one of the important defences at Port Arthur.

BATTLE RAGED ALL DAY.

Hai-Cheng, Monday, August 1, 9.40 m.—Delayed.—The battle raged the whole day, July 31, along the southern and eastern fronts. The Japanese advanced with overwhelming forces, flanking the Russians on their right. The losses of the Russians, however, were slight. The Seventh Siberian Regiment drove the Japanese out of one position.

KUROPATKIN REPORTS.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 2, 5.45 p. m.—General Kuropatkin reports that the Japanese have occupied Ikhaveu, east of Liao Yang, and the Yangtse Pass, thirty miles east of Liao Yang.

LAID TO REST

The funeral of Beatrice Helena, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John N. Crow, Bedford Street, took place from their residence to Maple Leaf cemetery on Tuesday afternoon. Miss Crow was one of Chatham's most popular young ladies, and will be sadly missed by all who knew her. She was taken sick in February with pneumonia, which terminated in consumption, from which she suffered for six months. Her funeral was largely attended. Friends coming from a distance. The pall bearers were Patrick Horne, George McRobb, Harvey Gamble, Clyde Lou and Walter Wilcox, all being intimate friends of the deceased. The casket was covered with flowers which were sent from friends including large bouquets from Mr. and Mrs. R. Blackburn, Mrs. J. Combar, Mrs. C. R. Bowers, Mrs. Birkby, Mrs. J. Piony, Mrs. S. Horn, Mrs. W. Horn, Mrs. G. Conbar, Mrs. J. Rice, Mrs. E. Craft, Miss Maggie Emery, Miss L. Besant, and a wreath from the brother and sister of deceased. One brother, of Toledo, could not attend.

BRAVE DOG

Loyal Canine Gave Its Life to Guard the Home of Its Master.

New York, Aug. 3. — Caesar, a mastiff dog belonging to Joseph Armond, of Cliffside, N. J., was found dead in the yard of his home. He was slashed with a knife many times and must have fought valiantly to guard his master's property.

A man, who gave his name as William Gilbert, was arrested later in Hackensack charged with robbery. He is badly bitten in a dozen places, and the police theory is that he had attempted to enter the Armond house and was stopped by the dog.

BODY FOUND

Remains of Missing Man Found Near Walpole Island—Was Not Robbed.

From The Planet Correspondent.

Wallaceburg, Aug. 3.—The body of George Thomas, a cattle buyer from Ridgetown, who last January was reported to be drowned near the ferry at Walpole Island, was found yesterday below the ferry.

Last January he had been on the Island doing business and was re-crossing late in the evening, and the ice was in bad shape, filled with air holes. Mr. Thomas stepped in one of these and was drowned. People on both sides of the bay heard him cry for help, but they could see no one. It was also rumored that he had been murdered, as he carried a large sum of money with him.

An inquest was held at Johnston's school house. Dr. Hay and Dr. Mitchell were present yesterday. The body was in a badly decomposed state. All his money and watch was found on his person. Mrs. Thomas is expected to arrive to-day to take the body to Ridgetown for burial.

IN BALL DRESS

Young Woman's Strange Atlantic Voyage in Society Robes Excites Suspicion.

New York, Aug. 2.—A young woman who made the trip from Antwerp on the Red Star line steamer Kronland in a ball dress and without baggage, is now held on board that vessel awaiting permission of the immigration authorities to land. She gave her name as Mrs. Comstance Phelan, and her last address as Cheltenham, England. The ship officers know nothing of her except that she came aboard at Antwerp followed by two men, each bearing a case of mineral water. She declared that she was going to the hot springs of North Carolina, but had only $1 in money. She said she did not know exactly why she came to America, as she had heard the baths were better in South Africa, and that she would have preferred to go there. Her father, she said, was James Hunter, a prominent chemist of Aberdeen, Scotland, and her mother was an American whose name was Laura Prince. She showed a letter from Kin & Crowther, solicitors, of Lincolnfields Inn, London, which had evidently been written some time, and which declared that the woman had an annuity of 3,000 pounds, and that her debts would be cared for.

SAW GHOSTS

Diver Says Admiral Makaroff Held Mass on the Petropavlovsk at Bottom of Sea.

Paris, Aug. 2.—A diver has just turned up in Paris with a weird story of what he saw when he dropped down into the sea off Port Arthur and explored the wreck of the Russian battleship Petropavlovsk, which was mined by the Japanese. Admiral Makaroff and the famous painter, Vereschagin, were among those who lost their lives.

The superstitious diver says he saw the great admiral with his entire staff and crew holding a sort of submarine mass. He says there was a strange light on the deck where they were gathered. Before an altar stood St. George and Father Alexis, the almoner, who perished on the battleship.

"They made the responses in a kind of chant," says the diver, "and all of them turned their dead eyes on me when I reached the deck of the ship. At last they all disappeared, and I was left alone with Father Alexis. Turning slowly to me he said:

"Mount to the sun, you will tell all you have seen here. We pray that God may give the victory to the Czar and to Russia. And when this revenge takes place the Petropavlovsk, broken and wrecked as it is, will rise from the depths of the water with us all. Admiral Makaroff will review his fleet and will command it to go to the capital of Japan to dictate the conditions of peace to the enemy. Then the fleet will depart of the Russian hymn, and the battleship will sink to the bottom of the sea to remain there till the end of time."

SKRYDLOFF SPINS YARN

Relates Doings of Vladivostok Fleet in Sinking Merchantmen.

Russian Admiral Gives His Version of Sending of Knight Commander to the Bottom.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 2.—In a lengthy telegram to the Emperor, Vice-Admiral Skrydloff relates the doings of the Vladivostok squadron under Rear-Admiral Jessen. With the cruisers Russia, Gromboi and Rurik, Admiral Jessen left Vladivostok July 20. After sinking a small Japanese vessel, the cruisers held up the British steamer, Admiral Jessen. With the cruisers Russia, Gromboi and Rurik, Admiral Jessen left Vladivostok July 20. After sinking a small Japanese vessel, the cruisers held up the British steamer, Admiral Jessen. With the cruisers Russia, Gromboi and Rurik, Admiral Jessen left Vladivostok July 20. After sinking a small Japanese vessel, the cruisers held up the British steamer, Admiral Jessen.

"The Knight Commander only stopped after the fourth shot," the admiral reports. Her cargo being railroad material, "undoubtedly contraband for the belligerent party, and not being able to bring her to the nearest Russian port, owing to her not having enough coal, without manifest danger to the squadron, we sank the Knight Commander, after taking off all her crew and removing her papers."

Two more Japanese schooners, laden with salt, were then sunk. The steamer Schinawa, from Australia for Yokohama, was inspected and released, July 24th the Thes (A German vessel of 934 tons register), with a full cargo of fish from America to Yokohama was stopped. She was regarded as a legal prize and her crew was taken off and the vessel sunk, owing to the impossibility of bringing her to a Russian port."

On July 30, near the northern coast a Japanese third-class cruiser and seven torpedo boats, taking the same course as the Russians, were sighted, while on the western coast near the Tsugaru Straits a coast defence battleship hove in sight.

"All these ships," Admiral Jessen says, "kept far astern of our cruisers and after two hours they turned back. The Russian squadron suffered no loss in men and no damage and there was no loss of life on the vessels sunk or taken."

CALL OF DEATH

A very sad death occurred at half past six o'clock this morning, when Mrs. Geo. Taylor, King Street East, passed away, after an illness of about a week.

Deceased was a Miss Marshall, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Marshall, Queen Street, who are still living. She came to Chatham with her parents, when she was but 10 months old and she has lived here ever since—about 40 years. She was married to Geo. Taylor, who, with a family of nine children, is left to mourn her loss. She comes from one of the oldest and most respected families in Chatham and her death is generally mourned. The family have the sympathy of a large circle of friends. This is the first death in the Marshall family.

The children are Marshall, aged 9, Edward, Clifford, Willie, John, Thos., Margaret, Genevieve and Harry. Four sisters and four brothers survive. They are Mrs. Ed. Taylor, Mrs. Maynard, Mrs. Bruce Reddick, and Mrs. Ed. Fruthomme, Edward, Joseph, William and Frank Marshall, all of Chicago.

Mrs. Taylor, was a very highly esteemed lady and dearly beloved by all who came in contact with her. She had sterling qualities and was a general favorite with everyone. Much sympathy is felt for the bereaved husband, who is at present building a new home and had bright prospects for a prosperous and happy future home.

The funeral will take place on Friday to St. Joseph's Church.

A GOOD RECORD

There was no quorum at the School Board last evening so the meeting was postponed for a week. The members who were on hand, were Chairman McCordie, and Trustees Morley, Clements, Benson and Heyward.

"This is the first time in eight years that there has been no quorum at the School Board meeting. That is a good record and it is excusable this time as the rest of the board are either sick, out of town, or positively unable to be present."

ETHICS OF EMPIRE.

Lord Curzon, governor-general of India, recently eulogized British rule in that country. Where else, he asked, has a race gone forth and subdued a continent peopled not by savages, but by races representing great traditions and ancient civilizations, "subduing them not to the law of the sword, but to the rule of justice, bringing peace and order and good government to nearly one-fifth of the entire human race, and ruling them with so mild a restraint that the rulers are the merest handful among the ruled, a tiny speck of white foam upon the dark and thunderous ocean? I hope I am no rhapsodist, but I will say that I would sooner be a citizen of the country that has wrought this deed than I would be of the country that defeated the Armada, or produced Hampden or Pitt."

The New York Post, a journal not unfriendly to Great Britain, but anti-imperial in its views, looks upon Lord Curzon's claim with a coldly critical eye. England says The Post, has not been driven into India by an inexorable decree from above. "England went into India to make money. For two centuries and more she misruled that prostrate people through a territorial trading company, whose malfeasances she has now, for nearly half a century been slowly repairing."

If Lord Curzon errs on the one side, The Post errs on the other. We all know that the British empire owes its origin to a variety of causes and to a variety of motives, some admirable and some otherwise. It is not pretended by any rational person that all the original traders and conquerors in India had in view, the grand ideal of governing the country through the sagacity and self-sacrifice of a few, for the benefit of the many. On the other hand, it would be unjust to deny that such an ideal has been conceived by some noble minds, and that there is honest endeavor to realize it on the part of thousands of servants of the empire, most of them unknown to fame.

The claim that can justly be made for the British empire is not that it is perfect, or that all of those who have assisted in building it up have been free from the ambition of conquest or for the desire of gain. The British empire, like other communities, is inhabited by all sorts and conditions of men. What can be fairly said for it is that it has a conscience which is never wholly stifled and which always asserts itself with more or less energy. In its colonies and possessions more than in those of any other empire, one finds justice, freedom and the idea of the government for the general good. When there is a departure from these principles there is always a party in England ready to take the part of the oppressed; and to minorities of this kind, however unpopular in their day, the gratitude of all lovers of freedom and justice is due. If they have not always favored the expansion of the empire they have helped to maintain what is still more important, its character for honor and scrupulous good faith.—Toronto World.

"THE WEAKER SEX."

A few days ago a young Toronto girl plunged into the water, swam to the rescue of a boy who was drowning in one of the Muskoka lakes, and lost her life in the attempt at rescue. Yesterday a canoe containing a man and two women capsized in Lake Ontario a mile off Toronto island. The man and two women clung to the canoe, waiting for help. They could be plainly seen from the island. Groups of men stood watching them and discussing the chances of their being rescued before they became exhausted. Boats and canoes were pulled up along the shore, but none of these men thought of taking one of them and going to the rescue. The lake was rather choppy.

But two girls in different parts of the island saw the accident, and their first thought was that something should be done to save these three lives. Miss Rae Peters, when she saw that the men were not going to move, jumped into a canoe and went out into the lake as fast as she could paddle. Another canoe, propelled by Miss Beatrice Cosgrave, approached from another direction. The two girls reached the capsized canoe about the same time, and just in time, for one of the ladies had become so exhausted that she had relaxed her hold on the canoe and had sunk, but had been pulled to the surface by the man and was being held up by him. With much difficulty and some danger the three were taken into the two rescuing canoes and brought to shore. Among those who awaited the rescue party was the owner of the canoe which Miss Peters had taken without asking for permission. This man scowled at Miss Peters when he found that the cushions in the canoe had been wet by the damp clothes of the persons who had been pulled out of the lake.

Such incidents as these suggest the query: Is a change being wrought in the relative characters of the sexes? Certainly in the incident of yesterday it was demonstrated that two young women were of stronger fiber than the men who shrank from incurring danger to rescue life. The men were no doubt average men—probably business and professional men of Toronto who make their homes on the island during the summer. It would be unjust to blame them for being cowards. They cannot help their cowardice. Women used not to be blamed for cowardice, for physical courage was not expected of them. But it would probably be just to class these men as degenerates. Evidently they lack the quality which used to be regarded as a quality peculiar to the male sex, the quality of physical courage, and that quality was manifested in the intrepid conduct of the two girls who achieved the rescue.

Sixty years ago a poet looked forward to the time when the two sexes would resemble each other more closely—"the man be more of woman, she of man." We believe that modern conditions make for this elimination of differences between the characters of the two sexes. The larger freedom which is now allowed women brings independence and self-dependence; these develop courage and other qualities which are regarded as masculine. On the other hand, modern industrial conditions tend to weaken in men the spirit of individual independence, and with the decay of this spirit the moral fiber is sure to become flabby and the male character to grow more effeminate. In another generation or two it will perhaps seem ludicrous to speak of woman as "the weaker vessel."

THE LITTLE CANADIAN IDEA.

Toronto News.

The Globe has announced its defence policy. For land defence we will depend upon the kindness of our good neighbor, Uncle Sam. For maritime defence we already shelter behind the skirts of Great Britain. This is definite, and, of course, carries with it a high spirit and a self-respect eminently suited to young Canada.

AND NOW ITS HOPE IS IN HIM.

Guelph Mercury.

Does his citizenship ever pause to remember the memorable words that brought about the disgrace of his Minister de Witte? "Your majesty pledged your word to evacuate Manchuria, and the world believed you. Russia will now lose all credit, and perhaps not ever gain Manchuria, for your majesty breaks that pledge. War also will follow, and we sorely need peace. Manchuria is useless to us. Therefore, I cannot be a party to this policy." Thus spoke out de Witte. And the Russian court ruffled its feathers and said: "De Witte is arrogant, de Witte is insupportable, de Witte is an autocrat who gives himself the airs of an emperor." And they said a lot more, but Russia, to-day, would wish, on its bended knees, that Russia had followed de Witte's advice last January.

FAREWELL TO DUNDONALD.

Quebec Chronicle.

The departure of the Earl of Dundonald from these shores to his native land, may be fittingly described as a march of triumph, a celebration of moral worth and high character by the masses, and recognition by the people of a soldier who did his whole duty in the department of public life, to the activities of which, in this country, he bore his Sovereign's commission and command. The capital of the Dominion, and our three largest cities, Montreal, Toronto and Quebec, almost rivaled one another in zeal and enthusiasm, to show the esteem in which their citizens held the late major general commanding our forces. No similar honor has ever before been bestowed upon an officer, on his retirement from office. Almost as one man, the country arose and protested against the action of the government in dismissing from his command, the great captain, whose rank in the list of Britain's heroes stands at the very head of the roster. In honoring Lord Dundonald, Canada has been true to herself. The subject of these demonstrations can point with pride to the spontaneous character, and in his heart of hearts, he cannot fail to treasure them, and to hold them in remembrance. "Parting," says the poet, "is such sweet sorrow," and from many lips the phrase was heard in our streets yesterday, as the gallant soldier drove to the wharf to join his ship. All the way down he was cheered by the people, whose salutes he acknowledged, again and again, and the city was enlivened by a monster display of flags, banners, mottoes and streamers. Of such a send-off he may well feel proud. It was a significant and touching tribute of farewell.

A POLITICAL THEORY.

Toronto News.

A publicist of the rank and eminence of Sir Richard Cartwright has laid down the theory that the civil service is a fit means of paying for the dirty work which parties sometimes require.

THE CRAZE FOR SPEED.

Montreal Witness.

If it were possible for automobilists to realize that there are higher factors of speed on country roads than speed it would be an evidence of high civilization than we seem to have reached. If you want more speed take the train, put on goggles and stand on the platform. If you want the beauty of nature and the joy of the air take it on the road, but do not expect aesthetic pleasure going at a rate which makes you a nuisance, as aforesaid. The same is true of the bicycle.

The remains of Arnold Stonehouse, who was killed on the G. T. R. at Burlington last Saturday, arrived yesterday on the 9:45 P.M. train. The body was taken to his late home, 3rd concession, Dawn, where the funeral services were conducted by the Rev. Mr. Moorehouse, of Rutherford. The funeral cortege was one of the largest ever seen in this part of the country. The remains were interred in Blackburn cemetery. The young man had been employed as a fireman on the G. T. R. since last October, and his death is deeply mourned by a large circle of friends in Dawn and the surrounding country.

A memorial service was held at the Methodist church at eight o'clock this morning for the late Rev. Thomas E. Harrison, after which the remains were taken to the Pere Marquette depot, thence to Alliston for interment.

A good game of lacrosse was played last night between the Never Sweats, of Chatham, and the local juniors, resulting in a victory for the locals. The score stood 3-1.

SOUTH AFRICAN CENSUS.

Some Humorous Incidents That the Enumerators Met With in Their Work—Some Speaking Figures.

The mail brings details of the South African census returns, most of which have already been received in summary form by cable.

In 1891 the colony was divided for census purposes into three areas; the first section, the colony proper, did not include Griqualand West, which had been annexed after the date of the previous census in 1875. Griqualand West was, therefore, the second section, and the native territories were the third section. The first section of the present census included Griqualand West, the second section being the native territories, excluding Pondoland, and the third section comprising the territories annexed since 1891—Pondoland and Bechuanaland. It will take about a year or so for a final report to be got out. The census supervisors and enumerators worked remarkably well; and especially was this the case in the native territories. The enumerators responded promptly to the wishes of the Government, and there were instances in which natives had gone back home from long distances to see that their families were properly enumerated. The figures for the Cape proper, which are unadvised, but may generally be taken to be correct, are: Total population, 1,485,634; European or white, 543,926; other than European or white, 936,708. Percentage of total population, European or white, 36.5; others, 63.5.

In 1891 the figures were 1,039,869; 366,608, 673,252, 35.26, and 64.74 respectively. The figures for the native territories (excluding Pondoland) are: Total population, 632,239; European or white, 15,770; other than European or white, 616,469. Percentage of total population, European or white, 2.49; others, 97.51. In 1891 the figures were 487,364, 10,379, 476,985, 2.13 and 97.87 respectively. The figures for the territories annexed (Pondoland and Bechuanaland) since the previous census, 1891, are: Total population, 287,065; European or white, 10,406; other than European or white, 276,599. Percentage of total population: European or white, 3.65; others, 96.35. The grand total for 1904 is: Total population, 2,404,878; European or white, 575,102; other than European or white, 1,829,776. Percentage of total population, European or white, 23.91; others, 76.09. In 1891 the figures were: Total population, 1,527,224; European or white, 376,957; other than European or white, 1,150,237. Percentage of total population was: European or white, 24.68; others, 75.32. The population of the Cape district on April 17, 1904, was 212,319, of which 119,965 were Europeans or whites, and 92,354 other than Europeans or whites; 55.5 of the total population was white, and 44.5 other than white.

The population of the whole division is 49,853, of which 19,703 are Europeans, and the remainder natives and colored. At the last census the population of the division was 21,538, of which 7,197 were Europeans. The present population of the town alone is 24,054, of which 14,039 are Europeans and 10,015 natives and colored. Cambridge, a young and rising suburb of East London, has at present a population of 3,436, of which 2,033 are Europeans.

Port Elizabeth (urban), all races: Males, 18,286; females, 13,982; total, 32,268, made up as follows: Europeans, colored, 12,041; females, 9,463; total, 21,504; colored, males, 4,640; females, 3,865; total, 8,505; natives, males, 1,587; females, 652; total, 2,239.

Walmers (all races): Males 1,090, females 830; total, 1,920, made up of: Europeans, males 467, females 417; colored, males 185, females 194; natives, males 435, females 219.

Including the town and district and the port, the total population of Port Elizabeth is 46,626.

Total of all races in the Kimberley district is 60,045. At the last census it was 48,306, an increase of 11,739. The town population is 34,260; at the last census it was 28,718, an increase of 5,542. Deaconsfield town population is 9,374; at the last census it was 10,478, a decrease of 1,104.

The returns for the City of Grahamstown are just completed, showing a total population of 8,710, made up of 3,449 males and 5,261 females. There are 1,014 natives living in the city. There are 1,346 males under 15 years of age, and 1,284 females ditto, while there are 3,000 males and 3,068 females over that age. There are 1,608 buildings occupied and 54 unoccupied, and 13 in course of erection. The total for the city proper at the last census in 1891 was 7,278, showing an increase this year of 1,432. The city was divided into eight areas, and every area shows an increase. The returns do not include the native locations.

In most of the centres of population increases are also noticeable as under: King Williamstown, 1901, 26,983; 1904, 103,552. Oudtshoorn, 1901, 23,879; 1904, 30,325. Paarl, 1901, 21,303; 1904, 30,349. Uitenhage, 1901, 20,947; 1904, 31,900. In some districts what are apparently decreases are not really so, the explanation being that new fiscal divisions have been created.

To some colored persons, natives particularly, London would appear to stand for the whole of the British Empire, or at least of England, in the matter of religion, for the entry constantly appearing by way of reply to the enumerator's query as to the religion of the inmates was "Church of London." Moreover, this appellation was found to include, in addition to members of the Church of England, Presbyterians, Lutherans, etc.

By certain of the natives the visit of the enumerator was apparently regarded as portending some dire evil, many places being found with all doors and windows nailed up.

Turn Time Backward. Be Young Again.

At last there is hope for the army of young, old and middle-aged men who suffer through early oldness, later weakness or exposure and find themselves lacking in vitality. How many of you are now reaping the harvest of your folly? Have you not seen the realization that nature cannot be deceived, neither does it forget the wrongs done it, whether through ignorance or otherwise, but the punishment must come sooner or later. The doctor has received fourteen diplomas, certificates and licenses from colleges and state boards of medical examiners, and should convince you as to his standing and abilities. He gives you as his assistant a nurse, who should convince you of a case for treatment is equivalent to a cure, as he never sees an incurable case, and should you decide to doctor with him, he will immediately be sent to you free, in a plain, sealed package.

Pay When You Are Cured.

The doctor realizes that it is one thing to make a claim and another thing to back them up, so he has made it a rule not to ask for money unless he cures you, and when you are cured he feels sure that you will willingly pay him a small fee. It would seem, therefore, that it is to the best interest of the doctor at once and confidentially lay your case before him. He sends the method, as well as his booklet on the subject, containing the full diploma and certificate, entirely free. Address him simply Dr. S. Goldberg, 28 Woodward Ave., Room 9, Detroit, Mich., and it will all immediately be sent to you free, in a plain, sealed package.

KING CHARLES' BOUNTY.

Claimed by Canadian Descendant of Brothers Who Saved Merry Monarch's Life.

Romantic and historic interest attaches to a case which will shortly come before the Court of Chancery. The facts are that one of the descendants of the loyal Penderil brothers, who saved Charles II. from the Roundheads after Worcester fight, will endeavor to establish his right to a share of the pension which the "Merry Monarch" granted to his ancestor.

The Penderils, it will be remembered, concealed Charles partly in Boscombe House, and partly in the immortal Royal Oak. After the restoration an annual pension of £100 was granted to each one of the five brothers to be held forever.

The present case has to do with the yearly allowance granted to Richard Penderil, eldest of the five. The descendants of "honest Yeoman Dick" narrowed down about the beginning of the last century to two daughters, who married respectively George of Wolverhampton, McLaren and Withington by name, and left as heirs to the divided royal pension two only sons, James Withington and Robert McLaren.

These men were in due receipt of £50 per annum apiece up to 1859; but having fallen into somewhat needy circumstances, they united in selling their rights for a lump sum to a Mr. Walter Robinson.

Meanwhile Robert McLaren came to London and set up as a cab proprietor; while his cousin, James Withington, left Wolverhampton, and has not been heard of until a few days ago.

On Royal Oak Day, last year, notices were published in the public press, signed by Samuel A. M. Sator, Master in Chancery, summoning—

"Withington, if living, or, if dead, his issue," to appear at the chambers of Justices Eady and Farwell on or before June 30, 1903; or, in default of such appearance to be declared "peremptorily excluded from all right to the pension rights."

Neither Withington nor his heirs

It cures DIARRHCEA, DYSENTERY, CHOLERA, CHOLERA MORBUS, CHOLERA INFANTUM, COLIC, CRAMPS, SEASICKNESS, SUMMER COMPLAINT, AND ALL FLUXES OF THE BOWELS. Its action is Harmless, Reliable and Effectual. Relief is almost instantaneous. Given Up by Doctor and Mother. MRS. MAXWELL BARTER, Grand Casapedia, Que., writes: "I take great pleasure in telling you what Dr. Fowler's Wild Strawberry has done for me and mine. A year ago my little girl, now nearly three years old, was attacked by Cholera Infantum. It was in the hot season and she was teething at the time. The doctor gave her up; in fact, I did so myself. "I finally decided to try Dr. Fowler's Wild Strawberry. I procured a bottle and it did her so much good that I got another bottle and by the time it was finished she was completely cured. As for myself, it has saved me from inflammation of the bowels several times. I always keep a bottle in the house and cannot recommend it too highly."

appeared, and the former was declared legally dead without heirs of his body.

A month ago, however, James Withington, Jun., claiming to be the only child of the pensioner, returned from Canada, where he has been since his birth. He is a man of about forty years of age.

At present Mr. Withington resides at Romford, in Essex, but he is about to settle in London. Seen yesterday by a Mirror representative he said: "The proceedings of last year were, I think, rushed through rather unfairly. I was resident at Sault Ste. Marie, in Canada, and only heard of the notices last winter.

"I at once sold out my ice business, and returned to reopen the matter, if possible."

Mr. Withington has copious evidence of his identity, including his father's will, marriage certificate, etc.—London Daily Mirror.

The Bride's Going-Away Dress.

The suburbanites who go out on the Toronto-Hamilton train every afternoon find the dreary interior of the Union Station enlivened by wedding parties almost every evening during this marrying season, says The Toronto Star. They become quite expert in detecting even those bridal couples who carry about them the faintest signs of their newly acquired happiness. Last night a couple of home-goers, tired and begrimed by their day's work, found themselves sitting opposite a couple of people who, to their practised eyes, looked like the principal actors in a recent wedding. When the train passed through South Parkdale a crowd stood on the platform waving their handkerchiefs, and the conscious look of the pair confirmed this suspicion. The suburbanites' curiosity being aroused as to who they might be, they bethought them of The Star, which they were reading at the moment. Hastily reading the wedding reports, they took a good deal of amusement out of the discovery that from the published description of the going-away gown of one of the brides they could spot the young woman, who, sitting opposite to them, was doing her best to look the conscious of her happiness. "The bride's going-away dress," the paper said, "was a black and white check, with medallions of reseda green."

A Brave Canadian.

Mr. David Ross McCord writes to The Montreal Gazette: "An interesting point in connection with Major William Wood's work on the Wolke campaign is that it is dedicated to his friend, the late Captain T. H. C. Ogilvy, Distinguished Service Order, who was killed while leading a charge at Klipkart, in the Transvaal, December 18, 1901. It is very pleasing that we are producing men to whom the story of noble deeds can be dedicated. Captain Ogilvy was a credit to Canada. Colored Man Received a Rock Hurling in his Face with Serious Result

As the result of a bar-room scrap last Monday night at the Park House a colored man named Siddals, is reported to be in a precarious condition, and the police are looking for his assailant. An eye witness of the affair tells the following: "I was standing inside the bar of the Park House a few minutes before eleven," said he, "and the bar was jammed full of colored men principally. Siddals was standing against the wall talking to some friends. Suddenly the little swing door facing Colborne street was pushed open, and a stout white man, taking deliberate aim at Siddals, threw a rock, as big as a large cannon ball, at him. It struck him right between the eyes, and he dropped like a log, while the crowd made for the doors. The colored man who threw the rock ran outside the hotel and was coming back to finish up on Siddals, as he said, but the crowd held him. Siddals was taken to the hospital. The colored man who threw the rock said that Siddals had kicked him in the stomach, and he wanted to get even. There were all kinds of fights and mixups on Monday night but that one was the worst."

FOUL FIENDS

Robbers Tortured Detroit Woman at Midnight to Gain Booty

Detroit, Aug. 3.—In an encounter with two desperate burglars, Mrs. Difloe, wife of Patrolman Difloe, living at 1300 Joseph Campau Avenue, was brutally beaten and choked to force her to divulge a sum of money which was supposed to be in her possession. When Patrolman Difloe returned from his beat on Grand Ave., he found his wife in a dazed condition, her person bearing marks of violence.

The robbers appeared about one o'clock this morning, entrance having been effected through a side window. They had evidently mistaken the house for that of James Grant, living next door, who is a brother-in-law of Difloe, and is secretary of Court Kerby, Independent Order of Foresters. At the first of each month he usually has a considerable amount in lodge collections.

The burglars secreted themselves in the Difloe house and were prowling around when Mrs. Difloe came down stairs to secure some medicine, as she had been ill for the past few days. She was taken unawares and one of the desperadoes dealt her a blow on the shoulder with a "billy" or similar weapon, feeling her to the floor and rendering her unconscious. When she regained sensibility she found herself bound to a chair with a clothesline and staring into the face of a revolver.

One of the robbers held the gun close to her head while the other ransacked the house, securing $17 in a miniature safe, which he pried open. This did not appease the burglars and they turned to Mrs. Difloe, who was still tied to the chair.
"We want the $200 you collected from the Foresters," demanded one. "We know it is in the house."
"You are mistaken in the house," feebly murmured Mrs. Difloe, who could scarcely speak by reason of the fact that one of the cords circled her throat.

"No, we are sure this is the place. Where is the money?"
"I tell you it is not here," was the reply.

With that the robbers endeavored to force Mrs. Difloe to accede to their demands. They cruelly tightened the rope around Mrs. Difloe's neck.

"Now, will you tell us where the money is?" but Mrs. Difloe could give no audible reply. She was left in this state and another search of the house was made. The noise awakened Benjie Difloe, the 15-year-old son, who came down stairs. The robbers seized him and bound his hands after a struggle. After another search the burglars decamped.

TASTE FOR COMFORT

In this age of hard fact, the house beautiful yields to the house comfortable to a great extent. Perhaps it would be better to say that in this age of nerves and tastes and distaste, the house must be beautiful in order to be comfortable.

This store, at any rate, includes both comfort and taste in its house-furnishing work.

Wish everyone knew how fine a stock of Furniture we have here, subject to your approval. There is, perhaps, just the least bit of enthusiasm in the statement that you can't afford to furnish your home without coming here to see.

It's one of the coldest of facts that the choicest things are always where the power of collection is greatest.

One can afford to miss almost anything—if they want to. But we're not talking of those who just buy things, but to those who shop, who count the cost, weight, qualities, styles, appearances, and all the little round of thinkings that come up at such a time when what you have to look at and live with and be sociable to for years is to the fore

DEAFNESS CANNOT BE CURED

By local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

CHAPTER XXVIII.

TWO days of Alice's visitation passed like a summer breeze. The first day they drove to the old mill and spent the entire forenoon gathering lilies and watching the great wheel that dripped and clattered between its moss grown walls. It was a curiosity to Blanch, for never in her life had she seen one of those old time landmarks, now so rare. That afternoon they drove to the mountain's top and saw the sunset, only to be late home to Aunt Susan's tea biscuit and cold chicken, and having a surprising appetite. The next day they made a picnic trip to another mountain, leaving the horse halfway up and walking the rest of the way. At noon they returned, and beside a cold spring that bubbled beneath a rock they opened their lunch baskets. Then they picked flowers, hunted for wintergreen and decked the horse and wagon with ferns and wreaths of laurel—only simple country pleasures, it is true, but they at least had the charm of newness for two of the party. That evening they sang all sorts of songs from gospel hymns to comic operas, and Blanch showed in so many ways that she admired her new found friend that there was no further restraint.

"I wish you would stay with me until my school begins, Blanch," said Alice at the close of the evening. "If you knew how lonely I am, I am sure you would."

"I might be persuaded to make a longer visit next summer," was the answer, "if you will return this visit next winter. Will you?"

"I won't promise now," answered Alice. "I am afraid I should be out of place in your society. I'm only a country girl, you know."

"I shall feel hurt if you don't," responded Blanch.

"I should like to see that schoolhouse Frank has spoken of several times," she said a little later, "and that barefoot girl he told about."

It was the first allusion to his interest in her that Blanch had made, and Alice colored.

"We will drive by where that girl lives tomorrow," responded Alice, "and, if you like, will call and see her. She is the most original little old woman in my school."

The next morning, when Frank and his sister were alone for a few moments, she said, "I am going to do you a good turn today, Sir Mahomet, and have a headache," and, laughing a little, "if you are wise you will improve your opportunities and persuade your 'Sweet Alice' to go after pond lilies and leave me here."

"I could not think of going after lilies," Alice replied when he proposed the trip, "and leaving your sister alone, and then it is almost too warm to be out in the sun this morning. If she feels better this afternoon we will go there when the sun gets part way down."

Blanch kept quiet all the morning and after dinner was the first to propose another trip to the lily pond. "I am in love with that old mill," she said, "and I want to see it when the sun gets down so it will be shady there."

When they reached the spot she at once developed an unusual interest in the mill and began an animated conversation with the miller regarding it and its history.

"You two go after lilies," she said when Frank had the boat ready, "and leave me here. I'm afraid the sun on the water will bring back my headache."

"All right, only your smiles will be wasted on the miller. He is too old to appreciate them. We won't be gone long," said Alice as she stepped into the boat. And now what spirit of mischief had come over her? She joked and jested on all manner of subjects—the boat, his rowing, Blanch's interest in the mill—and her blue eyes sparkled with roguish intent. She bared one round arm to the elbow and, pulling every bud and blossom she could reach, pelted her cavalier with them.

"Did you learn that stroke at college," she asked when one of his oars slipped, "or is that the way a yachtsman always rows?"

In response to all this he said but little, for he was thinking how best to say what was on his mind. He headed the boat for the shore, and as it came to a stop he said: "Let's get out and sit on the bank, Miss Page. I want to rest."

"Oh, we must not stop. It's almost sundown, and, besides, I want more lilies."

"Won't you get out, Miss Page?" he asked. "I've something I want to say to you and—and it's nice to sit in the shade and talk."

Without a word or even a look she arose and, taking his proffered hand,

"Tell me, Alice," he pleaded, stepped out of the boat. Only a few steps up a mossy bank offered its temptation, and with quick gallantry he drew his coat off and spread it for her to sit upon.

"It's nice and cool here," she said, "but we must not stay long. Blanch will be waiting."

Frank had thought many times of what he would say and how he would say it, but now that the critical moment had come his well chosen words vanished. He had remained standing and for a moment looked at Alice as she sat with hat hidden face, and then his heart-burst came.

"Miss Page," he said in a low voice, "you must know what I want to say, and—and I've come all the way from Maine to say it, and can you—is there any hope for me? Is there just a little?"

He paused, but no answer came, only he head sank a trifle lower, and now even the tip of her chin was invisible beneath the hat. It may be the movement emboldened him, for in an instant he was beside her on the ground and had one hand a prisoner.

"Tell me, Alice," he pleaded, "is there any chance for me? Say just one word—only one! Say 'yes!'"

The prisoner hand was at his lips now, and then she raised her face, and—oh, divine sight!—those blue eyes were filled with tears.

One instant flash of heaven only, and then a change came. She arose quickly and, turning away, said half pettishly: "Oh, please don't speak of that now and spoil our visit. Let us go back to the mill."

But still he held the little hand, and as she tried to draw it away he said pitifully: "Do you mean it, Alice? Is it no? Oh, don't let me go away without one word of hope!"

Then she raised her one free arm and, resting it against a nearby tree, pressed her face upon it and almost whispered: "Oh, don't ask me now! I can't say 'yes,' and I can't say 'no.'"

"I shall believe that your heart says 'yes,'" he responded quickly, slipping one arm around her waist, "and until you do say 'no' I shall keep on loving you just the same."

She drew herself away and, turning a piteous face toward him, exclaimed, "Don't, please, say another word now, or I shall hate myself as long as I live if you do."

For one moment he stood dumfounded, and then it dawned upon him. "Forgive me, sweet Alice, he said softly, "for speaking too soon. I believe I know why you feel as you do, and I shall go away hoping that in time you will come to know my mother better. And since you have said that you can't say 'no,' I shall anticipate that some time it will be 'yes.' Now we will go and gather lilies."

Then, as he led her to the boat, his arm once more stole around her waist, and this time she did not try to escape its pressure.

When, two days afterward, the brother and sister were ready to depart, Blanch put one arm caressingly around Alice and whispered, "Now, remember, you have promised to make me a visit next winter, and you must keep your promise."

And poor Romeo, standing by, had to look the love that was in his heart while he envied his sister her parting kiss.

CHAPTER XXIX.

WHEN Frank and his sister were away from Sandgate she said: "Well, my dear Ben Bolt, did you capture sweet Alice that afternoon? You must have made an effort for she showed it plainly."

"No, I did not," he answered frankly, "but I made a break, and as she didn't take it amiss I feel hopeful. The fact is, sis, she is the most proud spirited girl I ever met, and mother is the ogre that stands in the way. If mother approves of Alice I am all right, but if she doesn't receive her with open arms it's all day with me."

"I could have told you that the day after we arrived there," answered Blanch, "and I am not surprised. Now—with a laugh—"you must court mamma for a few months as well as your pretty Alice. It will do you good, for you never have been over-dutiful."

Frank frowned. "Oh, bother these snicky mothers!" he exclaimed. "Why will they turn up their noses at every poor girl? If Alice had rich parents she would be all right, no matter if she were as homely as a hedge fence."

"Maybe that's so," answered Blanch, "but you can't change mamma, and if you want to win your Alice you must do as I tell you and court mamma. Now, I will tell you what to do, and if you're good to me I'll help you do it. In the first place you must stay in the mountains until we go home, and do all you can to please mother. Take her driving, ask her to play whist with you, and when she makes a good play praise it; carry her wraps for her, be solicitous about her welfare and comfort in all things, and treat her just as if she were Alice instead of mamma. Then when she is well cared for, act downcast at times and depressed. Wait a few days before working the melancholy act, and don't say much to other girls. Dance with Edie and me and say sweet things to mamma for a week. Then some day take her out for a drive and act as if you had lost your last friend. She will inevitably ask what ails you, but don't tell her too quickly. Let her coax you a little, and after awhile make a clean breast of it."

"I would suggest you insinuate the girl has favored your suit, but has practically said 'no' because she is so proud to marry into a rich family. That will do more to pique mamma's interest in the matter than volumes of praise for Alice. Don't say too much, but if she questions you about her answer frankly to the point, but convey the impression that you consider your cause hopeless, and leave the rest to me."

Frank looked at his sister in silent admiration. "I didn't know you had such a wise head on your shoulders," he said at last.

MASS OF SORES

Awful Suffering of a Boy
from an Itching Humour.

CURED BY CUTICURA

Not One Square Inch of Skin on His Whole Body Was Unaffected.

"My little son, a boy of five, broke out with an itching rash. Three doctors prescribed for him, but he kept getting worse until we could not dress him any more. They finally advised me to try a certain medical college, but its treatment did not do any good. At the time I was induced to try Cuticura Remedies he was so bad that I had to cut his hair off and put the Cuticura Ointment on him on bandages, as it was impossible to touch him with the bare hand. There was not one square inch of skin on his whole body that was not affected. He was one mass of sores. The bandages used to stick to his skin and in removing them it used to take the skin off with them, and the screams from the poor child were heart-breaking. I began to think that he would never get well, but after the second application of Cuticura Ointment I began to see signs of improvement, and with the third and fourth applications the sores commenced to dry up. His skin peeled off twenty times, but it finally yielded to the treatment. I used the Cuticura Resolvent for his blood, and now I can say that he is entirely cured, and a stronger and healthier boy you never saw than he is to-day."

Lemons.
The tiny black specks seen on almost every lemon are the eggs of an insect. If the grater rind is used these eggs become an unwholesome element of the dish. Lemons should be dropped into water as soon as they come from the store, then scrubbed with a little brush, dried with a cloth and hung in a net in a cupboard until used.

VERY REMARKABLE CURE OF DIARRHOEA.

"About six years ago, for the first time in my life I had a sudden and severe attack of diarrhoea," says Mrs. Alice Miller, of Morgan, Texas. "I got temporary relief, but it came back again and again, and for six long years I have suffered miserably and agony than I can tell. It was worse than death. My husband spent hundreds of dollars for physicians' prescriptions and treatment, without avail. Finally we moved to Bosque county, our present home, and one day I happened to see an advertisement of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy with a testimonial of a man who had been cured by it. The case was so similar to my own that I concluded to try the remedy. The result was wonderful. I could hardly realize that I was well again, or believe it could be so after having suffered so long, but that one bottle of medicine, costing but a few cents, cured me." For sale by All Druggists.

The rate at which Zulus can travel in an emergency is astonishing. Some will cover as much as fifty miles in six hours. Eight miles an hour is an ordinary pace.
CHOLERA INFANTUM.
This has long been regarded as one of the most dangerous and fatal diseases to which infants are subject. It can be cured, however, when properly treated. All that is necessary is to give Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy and castor oil, as directed with each bottle, and a cure is certain. For sale by All Druggists.

Miniature Mills.
Turkana is said to have fashioned miniature mills "that would run themselves" so minute that a monk could carry one in his sleeve, yet so powerful that they would grind enough wheat in a single day to make bread for eight men.

CURES COLDS IN ONE HOUR.
Many cold cures are dangerous because composed of deadening opiates. But fragrant, healing Catarrhoxone cures colds in one hour and is both harmless and delightful to use. Even the worst colds, sneezing, sniffling colds with running eyes are stopped very quickly when the balsamic vapor of Catarrhoxone is inhaled. Catarrhoxone acts like a charm on colds, kills them outright, prevents their return a few hours later. For colds, catarrh and throat trouble use only Catarrhoxone. Complete outfit $1.00, trial size 25c. at all druggists.

Milk and Bright's Disease.
A physician suffering with Bright's disease and weighing 155 pounds began to restrict himself exclusively to a milk diet, taking one quart at each meal, or three quarts daily. Soon no traces of his former ailment was perceptible. He gained thirty pounds in flesh, and this notwithstanding constant attention to professional duties both day and night.

DIVINE OPTIMISM.
I held it rash, with him who sings To one clear harp in diverse tones, That men may rise on stepping-stones Of their dead selves to higher things.
I sometimes hold it half a sin To put in words the grief I feel; For words, like Nature, half reveal And half conceal the Soul within.
But, for the unquiet heart and brain, A use in measured language lies; The mind mechanic exercise, Like dull narcotics, numbing pain.
In words like weeds I'll wrap me o'er, Like coarsest cloths against the cold; But that large grief which these enfold Is given in outline and no more.
I hold it true, whatever befall: I feel it when I sorrow most; 'Tis better to have loved and lost Than never to have loved at all.
—Alfred, Lord Tennyson.

PERPETUATE CHARTER.
The Ontario Government Purchases the Toronto Medical School Building.

At the last session of the Legislature an act was passed authorizing the Government to purchase for $12,000 the building of the Toronto School of Medicine on Gerrard street, which, since the federation of the universities, is no longer required. Recently an Order-in-Council was put through, taking over the building at the price stipulated, as well as the charter of the Toronto School of Medicine. "There can be now no revival of that school as a rival to the university," said Premier Ross, speaking of the matter. "It is believed that the property can be sold for at least the price we paid for it under the terms of confederation, and probably for more than that. We will sell it as soon as we get our price for it."

The Toronto School of Medicine was incorporated in 1851 by special act of Parliament, the charter being granted to Dr. John Rolph, Dr. Joseph Workman, Dr. W. T. Atkins, Dr. James Langstaff Gavin, Dr. Russell and Dr. T. D. Morrison. The corporation at the time of its merger was as follows: Dr. J. H. Richardson, Dr. Hugh Ogden, Dr. James Thornburn, Dr. W. W. Ogden, Dr. Moses Atkins, Dr. R. A. Reeve and Dr. William Oldright.

A little ceremony took place in the office of the Minister of Education when the charter was formally turned over to the Government. The nominal members of the corporation now are: Hon. R. Harcourt, Mr. J. R. Cartwright, K.C., Deputy Attorney-General; Mr. John Harbar, Deputy Minister of Education; Mr. Thomas Mulvey, K.C., Deputy Provincial Secretary, and Dr. C. A. Hodgetts, Assistant Registrar-General.

The charter of Trinity Medical School was surrendered to Trinity College some time ago, and in the federation was absorbed by the University of Toronto.

OUR PEDAGOGUES.
Provost Macklem Gives Some Good Advice Embury, Teacher.

The closing exercises of the Toronto Normal School were marked by forceful addresses to the students from the Minister of Education and Rev. Dr. Macklem, provost of Trinity University.

Mr. Harcourt dwelt on the importance of inculcating Christian character in the minds of children. Added to this was perseverance, which was the foundation of genius, a high aim and tenacity of aim. The habit of reading should also be inculcated, and the direction of pupils in the selection of literature was most important.

Provost Macklem said that teachers were looked to just as preachers to foster higher ideals and assist in the formation of character. That the Canadian youth required training in manners was hardly open to question. The average boy knows little of respect and nothing of reverence. The Bible Society meeting in Massey Hall, of which they were thoroughly ashamed, proved there was much to be done. The lack of good manners ran like a thread through our whole social system.

"Each of you should become such a book to your pupils that in future life they will keep you on the shelf of memory," said the speaker in referring to the inspiration which each should give to the scholars. "Success was impossible without discipline and true success was achieved easily and naturally and not forced. Tact was the greatest possession, and it was comprised of joy, love, faith, meekness, confidence and moderation."

In conclusion he impressed upon the graduates high ideals, broad sympathies and unflinching hopefulness. Narrowness was always weakness, while broadness meant strength; and they should always keep in touch with the best and greatest in the movements of the world.

A Successful Canadian.
Dr. Adolf Lehmann is a Canadian who has had much success in India. A native of Simcoe County, Dr. Lehmann was graduated from the Ontario College of Agriculture, Guelph, in 1889, and later went to India. Five years ago the Maharajah of Mysore decided that his Government should take up the question of scientific agriculture, and to this end, Dr. Lehmann was appointed to establish the department and to be its head. The appointment was for five years, and when the term elapsed a few months ago he was re-appointed for a similar term and given a year's furlough. The other day he was at the Parliament Buildings renewing acquaintance with Mr. C. O. James, Deputy Minister of Agriculture. Dr. Lehmann said that there were very few Canadians in Mysore, a fact which caused the doctor some surprise. He thought that Canadians would do good work in the Indian Civil Service. The examinations had to be taken in England, but the appointments were very lucrative, ranging from $2,000 a year up to as high as $20,000.

JUSTIFIED IN WHAT HE SAYS
Why J. J. Perkins Owes his Life to Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Doctor Had Given Him up and he was Hopeless and Desperate Before the Great Canadian Kidney Remedy put Him on His Feet.

Tyndall, Man., August 1.—(Special)—When a man has had Kidney Disease: when the doctor has given him up; when that man takes Dodd's Kidney Pills, begins at once to recover and is soon a well man, that man is surely in a position to say that Dodd's Kidney Pills saved his life.

That is the experience of Mr. J. J. Perkins of this place. Speaking of his case Mr. Perkins says:

"For two years I was troubled with my kidneys and at last became so that the doctor who was attending me gave me up and said I was incurable."

"I continued to grow worse. I was unable to work and was becoming destitute when to please a friend I tried Dodd's Kidney Pills."

"The first box did me so much good I felt like a new man and after taking five boxes I was completely cured."

Dodd's Kidney Pills cure the kidneys, and cured kidneys cure Dropsy, Rheumatism, Heart Disease and all other diseases resulting from impure blood.

The Leopard and the Kid.
To illustrate how perfectly he had the animal under control Professor Reeb of Berlin once put a live kid in the cage with a leopard. Then the professor fixed his glittering eye on the savage beast and waited that he should remain quiescent. There was something wrong with the thought transference, for the leopard immediately changed his spots and so did the kid. A bleat, a growl and a crunch, and the illustration was ruined.

BOTH SIDES
WERE WINNERSStrange Situation Results in the Great Council vs.
Church Baseball Game.

Aldermen Generously Allow Presbyterians to Make an Even Break of It—Church as Usual Claim It All.

About 600 pleasure seekers journeyed to Walpole Island yesterday on the First Presbyterian Sunday School excursion. In the crowds could easily be noticed the strut and pompous air of Maple City aldermen, and the aldermen were right there with baseball paraphernalia, out for more scalp. This time the ball team of the church was to be the enemy, and they proved themselves almost worthy of their great church, under the able and eloquent leadership of "Chum" Aitken, which should have "insured" success. All arrived safely at the Indian preserve in first class shape. Ald. Westman had a workout in the engine room getting up steam. "Chum" Aitken was a little worried over this and wanted to go to Marine City to shoot the shoots a few times to get his shoots in working order, but Archie McCoig, parson of the aldermanic aggregation, objected on the grounds that the gate receipts would be lost if the contest was delayed. In the meantime, Purser Cornish was blowing his whistle for procedure. Captain Rourke, of the City, wanted to be goal umpire, but was told to get off the coaching line.

The game ended—well, how it ended is not really known. McCoig says the score was a tie, 9-9. Aitken says 11 to 10. Now, whether the public will take Parson McCoig's word for it or Insurance Man Aitken's remains to be seen. Both to-day are busy telling the tale.

Alderman McCoig says positively the score was 9-9. "Cornish, who umpired the game, was very partial, being a member of the church himself. When we went to bat in the last half the score stood 9-7 against us. There were two out and two men on bases when I went to bat"—he was too modest to finish, but intimated that he made a three-sacker, tying the score.

PRESBYTERIAN STANDPOINT.

One of the most exciting games of baseball took place at Walpole Island yesterday between the First Presbyterian Church and the Aldermen of the City of Chatham. The contest was most spirited from start to finish, and the interest manifested by the large number of spectators tended to give it a metropolitan air, as it were, in the language of baseball.

The alderman with the "Red Hat," otherwise known as Archie McCoig, captained the City Council team, and experienced every stage of the blues for the first five innings. Alderman Westman went into the box and was received enthusiastically by the large band of hitters of the church. At the end of the fourth innings the score stood 8 to 2 in favor of the church. One of the hard hitters of the church hit the ball and put it to the bush, in fact it was the intention to hit clean off the Island. At this juncture the only home run of the game was scored by the church team Archie went up in the air in fact, he took it so hard that a number thought he would change his mind about running for the mayoralty for 1905. Archie was "Silent" on first base. Of course there is a very sympathetic crowd in the First Presbyterian Church, and to give vent to this feeling the church team raised up a little. In the meantime Archie worked in a new battery of professionals from Algonac. It is said that the game must have cost Archie considerable, as these gentlemen don't usually play baseball for the love of it. With this change the score was gradually reversed until matters became even enough for the church to win out with a close decision; in fact, it came so close that a dispute arose, the Council claiming a run that was made as the last man was put out on 3rd. This, of course, according to good baseball, was a questionable practice. However, the Council argued with such rest force that they made quite an impression and it is believed that if Alderman Martin had been present no doubt the game would never have been finished, and the argument would have been going on while the boat would have left in the meantime. However, it will be said that the game was even and possibly, because it was a religious organization, it would be a gentlemanly way to do to make it a tie.

In this very heated discussion Archie did not even mention the high rate of the tax-payers that we might expect for the year 1905—one of Archie's hobbies, with pyrotechnic effect. The score was as follows:—

Foreman Inquest on Death of Dresden Man Disputes Verdict and Causes Sensation.

Hamilton, Ont., Aug. 2.—The inquest on the death of Arnold Stonehouse, the G.T.R. fireman who was fatally injured by being struck by an express train near Burlington, last Saturday night, was concluded to-night. The evidence showed that Stonehouse had been clearing out his engine, which was sidetracked, and, becoming overheated, stepped out on to another track to get cooled off and was struck by the express from Toronto. The jury returned a verdict of accidental death, but the foreman, Wm. Bradt, who is an hostler in a local hotel, created a mild sensation by refusing to sign the verdict, on the ground that the Grand Trunk Railway should be blamed for the fireman's death because there was no asphalt at Burlington, Stonehouse, therefore, being required to get into a position where he became overheated. As the other jurors were all of the opinion that no blame should be attached to the railway company, Coroner Wolverson accepted the verdict of accidental death.

CHURCH CHIMES.

George Perrin's defeat has been "atoned for."

Chum Aitken tried to lose the ball in the bush, securing the only home-run.

The captain of the Red Hat Fame has a new stunt. He does the "bear" act with the base runners, and then accuses them of interference.

Mr. Cornish umpired the game and no doubt had troubles of his own. He admitted that it was the first game he umpired. "Archie" wanted an "impartial" umpire. It's a way he has.

Did you know that Archie holds "That an empire can reverse his decision." Archie made the statement unwittingly, but rather than appear "green" in baseball, he stuck to it and said the "rules were wrong."

Another one of the late rules is that the boundary line extends about ten feet inside the direct line from first base through third. A very fine hit was made inside the foul line and was immediately slated among the fouls. Notwithstanding the pitcher got a strike on this.

Had John Edmondson been present and the aldermen of the second rate class in aldermanic baseball, the Church team feel confident that the drubbing received by the City Council would have been such that baseball would naturally be consigned to a secondary place in aldermanic affairs. Of course the aldermen are beginning to realize that "Four-flushing" does not make baseball players. Grandstand work is not being appreciated as it fails to draw.

Alderman Westman went into the Big Chief's Wigwam (used as a store, for a drink of water, and they charged him five cents for a glass of lemonade. Judging from the impetus exhibited in his playing from this point on to the finish of the game it was generally conceded that the "sny" water in the lemonade would pass under muster as a solid alcoholic beverage. The Big Chief assured him that the water rates were higher on Walpole Island than in Chatham, owing to the very fine brand. Alderman Westman paid under protest.
