Essential Church Principles.

A leading religious journal, the 'New York Observer,' not long since had an editorial on the subject of the social current of the present day...

Perhaps in no denomination of Christians are these assimilating processes so strikingly developed as among the Methodists.

But after all, Methodism will afford to be a kindly spirit among friendly brethren from whatever source; and these may serve only to make her more vigilant in the maintenance of her essential principles, and more earnest in the prosecution of the great work assigned to her by our Divine Head.

The change that has occurred in the character of our ministry and people in tastes and culture has revolutionized the whole of our sympathies...

The foregoing extract breathes a Christian spirit, and in some respects is complimentary to our denomination; but the ground assumed as regards changes in our ecclesiastical polity, is by no means tenable.

In our judgment, none of the matters referred to as changes involves a departure from old Methodism, but simply affords evidence of a capability in our church-system of adaptation to existing circumstances as Providence may seem to indicate.

ignored by Christian people in the structure of their sanctuaries, that no regard is to be had to what is appropriate, convenient and beautiful?

As to the lay element in our polity, our system has largely admitted this from 9000 Mr. Wesley's days; the only question at any time being the mode of its employment.

The Observer instances the extension of ministerial appointments from two years to three, as preliminary to the abandonment of the itinerant principle; not being aware that the three years term of service was one of Mr. Wesley's own arrangements.

On the subject of the Education of our Ministers it is difficult to understand the Observer. We do not suppose that he sympathizes with the feeling sometimes to be met with of unwillingness that Methodism should keep pace with other churches in real progress.

But after all, Methodism will afford to be a kindly spirit among friendly brethren from whatever source; and these may serve only to make her more vigilant in the maintenance of her essential principles, and more earnest in the prosecution of the great work assigned to her by our Divine Head.

different class was considered and when it was apparent that at least one half must be deferred to another year, the site was purchased for three thousand pounds; the necessary amount was just offered for thirty-five thousand pounds...

In the application from Porteus on the Banffshire Coast, I was personally much interested having been familiar with and taken a part in the religious movement from which it sprang.

In the columns of the Prov. Wesleyan, some four years ago, an account appeared of this extraordinary year of God—the work the reality of which time has confirmed.

In Dundee, as stated in my last communication, a small Church has come over to us on the death of the Pastor—a Church which has been Methodism in doctrine, and indeed in all its name and actual recognition by our Conference.

The Missionary Department to Scotland consist of the President, Rev. James, and G. Smith of the Rev. J. Jenkins in and so highly esteemed as a Missionary in India and is so highly esteemed as a Missionary in India and is so highly esteemed as a Missionary in India...

The removal of Mr. Funtun from London or its neighbourhood is severely commented on. It is said that so public a man as he has become a sort of general representative of Methodism...

Sabbath the 11th inst. Mr. Howater was also highly delighted with our beautiful river, frequently I get familiar faces from your own beloved metropolis. In a few days we expect a great gathering to the Provincial Exhibition.

A deputation of attached and zealous Wesleyans, comprising J. F. Rogers, S. March, M. P. P. Esqr., and the Hon. E. White were to accompany Mr. Brewster, to the principal circuits on the shores of Conception Bay, where Jubilee meetings would be held on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday of last week.

Politicians are obliged to look abroad in order to find topics of interest, for they can find none at home. The people are wonderfully content and tranquil. The old cries of Reform, vote by ballot, of annual Parliaments, and of extension of the franchise, which twenty years ago used to stir up the multitude to enthusiasm can now scarcely command attendants enough at a public meeting to pass a resolution.

On Monday evening the Public Meeting was held. The Rev. G. Butler conducted the opening devotional exercises, and the Chair was taken by Mariner Wood, Esq. His address was short, but expressive of heartfelt sympathy with the Jubilee movement.

Mr. Editor.—I would not like to intrude unnecessarily on your valuable columns, yet as you seek intelligence respecting Methodist and other matters, I feel disposed to ask a little space for some facts and remarks which I trust will be interesting to most of your readers.

Where is American Oratory? One of the most surprising of the phenomena of this wonderful war is the decadence of American oratory. At a few periods of the world's history there have been such grand opportunities for eloquence; but our orators have had, or have uttered only uncertain sounds.

Newfoundland. The Rev. J. Brewster proceeded on the 22nd inst. to St. John's, Newfoundland, according to official appointment to assist in the Jubilee services to be held in that island.

uplifting of the North. The great meeting at Union Square is well remembered; the suspension of business, the crowds, the heroic enthusiasm. But who remembers the speeches? Bull Run hung the heart in mourning, but no orator touched the hearts of the living with the story of the slain. The Fourth of July. It was celebrated with only the usual demonstration, and the speeches were even below the average.

At the close of another year the nation had been in deep straits and peril, but no orator stepped forth; the capital was in danger, but no orator stirred the courage and the energy.

I observe that your last paper has very little from the pens of ministers in our own Conference. I hope a constant reader, has not frightened all our writers from the use of their pen. If so, I think that some of us, if kind words will do, will oblige him, when he writes articles on the communications of his brethren to do it with less severity.

Execution at Dorchester, N. B. The execution of Amos Hicks, charged with the murder of William Hill, took place at Dorchester on Thursday 8th inst. That unhappy boy who has thus at the early age of eighteen paid the extreme penalty of the law, pleaded guilty to the indictment at the Supreme Court, and was sentenced to death.

In vain do we attend the Russian banquet or go to the meetings at the Courthouse to find our lost orators. The witchery of Bradys' brogue is gone. We have no ears for Hiram Wallbridge. All the other orators come from the same third-class shop. None of them have the real ring. The disastrous loss of our speakers tried to express "the nation's gratitude to Grant." How deep the gratitude—how weak the expression!

Loss of the ship "All Serene." Captain Hallett, R. M. Secretary to Lloyd's, has received the annexed despatch from the Foreign Office, respecting the terrible loss of this ship, and the melancholy fate of most of her crew.

BRITISH CONSULATE, PORT LENOX, Feb. 28th, 1864. MY LORD.—I have the honour to report to your Lordship the disastrous loss of the ship "All Serene" on the 26th of February last, by shipwreck, while on her voyage from Vancouver's Island to Sydney.

It is plain that the ship was in perfect safety, and it is perfectly clear that the crew were without any fault or blame. It is plain that the ship was in perfect safety, and it is perfectly clear that the crew were without any fault or blame.

recovering all arrangements which I should have made for the part of the log-book, &c.

ARRIVED. Capt. McGowan, in the brig "The Star," from the St. Lawrence, arrived at Port Lenox on the 22nd inst. The vessel was laden with flour, and other provisions, and was in perfect safety.

The Family.

The Germs of the Beautiful.

Scatter the germs of the beautiful, By the wayside let them fall, That the rose may spring by the cottage gate, And the vine on the garden wall.

Scatter the germs of the beautiful, In the holy shrines of home: Let the pure, and the fair, and the graceful there, Leave not trace of deformity.

Scatter the germs of the beautiful, In the temple of the heart; But gather about its hearth the gems Of Nature and of Art.

Scatter the germs of the beautiful, In the temple of our God— The God who start'd the uplifted sky, And hallow'd the trampled sod.

Scatter the germs of the beautiful, In the depths of the human soul: They shall bud, and blossom, and bear the fruit, While the endless ages roll.

Plant with the flowers of sobriety The portals of the tomb, And the fair and the pure about thy path In Paradise shall bloom.

The Richest Man I ever saw. BY JOHN TODD, D.D. Many years ago, as a steamer went over the broad Delaware, the passengers would gaze with admiration upon a beautiful sight.

Then, in my pilgrimage, I have met with John Jacob Astor, the man who had the sagacity to open the fur trade in the far-off regions of the North-West.

And I have seen the persons and the faces of those now on the stage, who seem to have a grasp that can take in property without any apparent labor, and who only wanted the life of a Methuselah to own the globe.

But the richest man I ever saw was Mr. Phillips. He lived in a little one-story white house, on the hill, among the apple-trees, at the further end of Market-street.

From this he drew something every day, and go to him when you would, you would hear no murmuring, no regrets, or repinings. His face shone as if it had been oiled; and there was a kind of perfume about the house that made you feel that the spices of Arabia must grow near the well.

THE WELL OF PATIENCE. In going to this well you had often to pass over the hill of Difficulty, and there it was many a time that you would be weary, and your feet would be sore, and your hands would be tired.

THE WELL OF SUBMISSION. This was a small, deep well, situated a little back of the others. When one first began to draw it was hard work to get at the water, and even when you got them to your lips they were at first bitter to the taste.

THE EXTENT OF THE EVIL. The fact is, however, that there are thousands of drunkards in Great Britain every year. Notwithstanding, however, this, the number of drunkards does not greatly diminish.

THE WELL OF SUBMISSION. A lecture was recently delivered to the Lambeth Christian Total Abstinence Society, by the Rev. George Maunder. The Rev. L. H. Wiseman presided. We append a few extracts from a report which has appeared in the Weekly Record.

the well of Submission. Now Mr. Phillips went to the well himself, and drank freely, and the water soon lost all its bitterness, and he really loved its taste, and rejoiced in its effects.

THE WELL OF HOPE. This was a beautiful well. It was surrounded by flowers and tall trees. Every flow was beautiful to the eye, and fragrant to the smell.

THE WELL OF SALVATION. This was a marvellous thing. Around it were thick trees and deep shadows. Among these shadows you might see the pictures of patriarchs and prophets, each with his staff, feeling and searching for the well.

around us. What an appalling thought is this! Myriads of young people are in the process of training for all the unwholesome activity, the power of mischief, the unspeakable miseries and the awful doom of the drunkard.

A PORTABLE SEA WATER BATH.

At a Trifling Cost.

Allgood & Tow's Celebrated SEA SALT. This Salt, from the careful manner in which it has been prepared and preserved, contains all the Salts of Iodine and Bromine, together with the Chlorides and Sulphates of Sodium, Magnesium, Potassium and Lime, in a perfect state of preservation.

SEA WATER BATH. Medical men have heretofore refrained from prescribing Sea Bathing, owing to the danger incurred (even in summer) by exposing delicate patients to the drafts of common bathing houses, and in the winter the trouble in obtaining sea water. These difficulties are now removed by the introduction of Allgood's Real Sea Salt, which enables all to enjoy that luxury in the privacy of one's own bath room.
