Out of the Depths. From darkest depths of sin and anguish.

From days and nights thro' which I languish, Oh God, to Thee I come ! My heavy heart with doubt is shaken-Why hast Thou thus Thy child forsaken-My Father, take me home !

Oh Thou who knowest each secret sorrow, Dispel my night, reveal the morrow. Help thou my unbelief! Oh let this stubborn heart be broken-Give me of Thy great love some token, To banish sin and grief!

From out Thy heart, divine and tender, Send down one ray of light, and render My darkness bright as day ! Help me to feel that sweet emotion Which comes of pure and deep devotion To Thine appointed Way!

And bless my poor and weak endeavor From sinful doubts my heart to sever-Oh God, give me Thy peace! Remove the weight that bows my spirit; Teach me how, through my Saviour's merit, My soul may win release !

Lo! here I kneel before Thine altar, With prayers and tears, and tones that falter, Acknowledging my sin! Search me and know my heart, my Father; Into the fold thy lost sheep gather-O hide me safe within !

Break Thou the chains of pride and passion,

Thou, Thou alone canst lead and guide me-

One morning her aged servant called to say her mistress was very ill, and wished to see me. I went up the hill to her houss, and found her lying on the kitchen bench in the large open fireplace, on a temporary bed. She was so weak she could scarcely speak, but said,-" I am conversing with my yesterdays, brightening up u evidences for eternity-I have a presentiment that my end is near." As she could not converse. she asked me to pray with her, and my visit was a short one. When I saw her again, she was confined to her chamber, and very much deface from her , and, like Him when on the cross, she was inquiring,— " Why hast Thou forsaken me ?" I was much alarmed, and thought,-" If this aged Christian is to finish her course in this way, what will become of me when I am called to die ?" I knelt at her bed-side, and besought the God of heaven to give her such a clear sense of her acceptance as would enable her to say,

Not a cloud doth arise Or hide for one moment. My Lord from my eyes."

I returned home bowed down as with a heavy burden. That night we had a severe snow storm, and for some days afterwards the road to her dwelling was impassable; but as soon as I could travel, I went to see her again. I shall never forget her smile as she extende her hand to me on my entering the room, and said -My dear.

" Not a cloud doth arise To darken the saies, Or to hide, for a moment My Lord from my eyes."

She added, "I feel there is such an efficacy the blood of Jesus, that, if the sins of the whole world were laid on my soul, it is sufficient wash them away." The Master had paid her a visit in the storm.

" And He had stilled the angry wind, And calmed the surges of the mind."

She thanked me for my friendship, and assur me that every visit had been made a blessing to her. After continuing a few days in a triumphant state, exhorting all who came to see her, to seek the Lord, she entered into rest.

Her death was occasioned by her pricking her finger with a pin. Cold got into the wound and inflammation took place, which ran up her arm and ended in mortification. "At God's command, a fly, a grapestone, or a hair can kill.' Reader, number thy days and apply thine heart unto wisdom. Church Government.

An article in the last Christian Messenger signed "J. M. C.," contains some sweeping assertions with reference to the organiz and government of Christian churches.

"These rights (i. e of the people) and powers are ignored all over Christendom. The people have nothing to do with the government of the Church of Rome or of the Church of England. The Annual Report of our Sunday S. Union. just furnished by Dr. Wise, the corresponding ecretary of the Union, presents the following resting fact, which will be read with interest "The Sunday School Journal reached a circulation of 24,000; increase, 4,500. The maximum circulation of the Sunday School Advocate was 352,500; (156 500 at New York, 101,000 at Cincinnati, 87,000 at Chicago, 7,000 at Toronto); increase 24,000. The average circula relative increase of this little paper is shown by the fact that twelve years ago its circulation was 115,000, or about nineteen per cent. of the num-ber of scholars under our care. Forty-eight requisites. The printing for the department smounted to 574,227,000 pages; the binding to 343,000 books; number of schools, 15.292—increase, 1,446; officers and teachers, 171,695 increase, 9.695; scholars, 1,083 525-102,739; volumes in library, 2,737,734rease, 88,489; number of conversions, 31, decrease, 12,874. The increase in scho teachers, and of scholars, is much greater than in any previous year. The decrease in conversions is an indication that the spiritual growth of our Sunday schools has not kept pace with the numerical progress.

How I Proceed in Revival Work 1. I begin when the time is most favorable whether there are special indications of success or not. To wait for such indications will do for a Calvinist, but not for a Methodist. I oftener religion in the Church, and the fact that sinners

These qualities are always popular, and effectual for good. Delegations of laymer from other Churches I have found an excellent means to inspire the Church and carry forward

I make my Church a sort of hospital, where the sick, lame, and dying are to be treated .-Here I employ a large force, especially of females; some as nurses, some to prepare bandages, some to bring delicacies, some to distribute tracts, and others to sing, pray, and talk I convert the whole neighborhood into a battlefield, where I employ my men on picket duty. as skirmishers and as sharp-shooters, while some are attending the ambulances and bringing in the sick and wounded. And so the battle waxes. I never rest a single day nor night .-Others may get tired and go into their tents, but the general must be on the field, push the enemy, and give him no time to recruit his hinned and broken ranks. He must run or surrender.

5. I receive converts into the Church the fire Sabbath after their conversion, and continue to repeat the opportunity weekly while the revival interest continues. I have been receiving persons on trial every Sabbath since the first of December last. I set the young converts right o work. This course is a preventive to back sliding, develops their talent, induces a habit of activity essential to future usefulness, greatly multiplies the agencies for carrying on the re vival, and inspires the Church with courage and nope. I make the exercises of young converts as to spirit and to brevity an example afte which I urge the older members to copy, while the long-winded, prosy talkers I either shorter up or shut up. I read the General Rules to these young Christians, administer the rite of baptism to those who have not been baptized and give the holy sacrament on the first regular communion Sabbath. I urge upon them the mportance of abandoning all low conduct, evi ociations, vulgar terms, slang phrases, and the use of tobacco. Also, thorough attentio to the culture of self-respect, true manlines and deep piety. I further recommend them each possess a Bible, Hymn Book, Discipline and that they give attention to reading. 6. Now all this is hard work. It makes the gray hairs thicker on my head, and the wrinkles deeper and thicker on my brow. Hard wor to build vessels and see that they are launched furnished, freighted, and put out to sea under the pilotage of Heaven, to endure the voyage of eighty to ninety nights without a single omission in pulpit and altar exercises in a confined and impure atmosphere ; hard work to feel like a pa-Church must to succeed. I am still climbing up the steep scelivity with a burden of responsibility on my shoulders, and tramping the mountains in pursuit of the lost sheep. My principal joy is reserved for the future, when these dear children whom I have begotten through the Gospel" shall be my joy and crown rejoicing in the day of the Lord Jesus." I accompany these efforts with fasting and prayer. I have no sympathy n .y" with those men of sterner stuff-cauti God to give some special indications that he is about to pour out his spirit and revive his work, or that opposes protracted meetings and special efforts with a view of special results. The agonies of Gethsemane, the scenes of Calvary, the rending of the vail, the bursting of the rocky vault, with the rushing mighty wind and tongues of fire on the day of Pentecost, are indications enough for me. In this way and on these principles I have labored for more than a quarter a century; have conducted more than forty revival efforts, some continuing for three months, and, thank God! I have never failed in the past and never expect to fail in the future. I say it to the praise of Him whose " right hand hath gotten him the victory."

The President had simply made a removal on paper ; and the offence charged did not endanger the public we fare, and was therefore marked with no moral turpitude, such as might jus-tity impeachment. Mr. Lincoln found in Denators had sent to Mr. Lincoln a memorial urging him to purge his Cabinet of that officer; and Mr. Lincoln had notified Mr. Blair that his resignation would be accepted. In this way, Mr. Lincoln rid himself of that Cabinet officer; but no such course had any effect on Mr. Stanton. Referring to the question of the trial of the impeachment, he claimed that the President could not have a fair trial in the Senate of the Duited States, and cited the resolution. Any judicial tribunal, he said, which announced beforehand its judgment on a controverted question of the many fact, and afterward undertook to decide the question of law or fact, and afterward undertook to decide the question judicially would make itself infamous the world over; and no respectable prosecuting.

LONDON, March 11th -In the House of Commons last night, John Francis McGuire, Member for Cork, in moving that the House go into Committee on the state of Ireland, said that though Ireland was part of the Empire, and now peaceful, yet the personal liberty of every man in that country was at the mercy of spies, policemen and Government officials; and this state of things existed when reports of the Courts showed there were few cases of ordi-nary crime. He then quoted the statistics of pauperism and emigration, and declared that the country was decreasing and its people in despair. Discontent was a word inadequate Esq., Chester.

To the cross did she cling. And anon did she sing, Of the love that procured her redemption; Thus she followed the Lamb-In the storm ever calm-While from faults there seemed perfect emption.

But death marked her his prey, And the work of decay, Brought her near to the swelling of Jordan Amid weakness and pain, She refused to complain, While she strove to be girt for the fordin'.

Life's spent sands ran out soon, And her sun sat at noon, And that life full of promise soon ended : But her work was well done, And the prize she hath won; To the region of song she ascended.

On the sapphire-paved shore, Of the blest evermore, She appears in a robe of salvation Round that brow fair as day, Golden sunbeams now play, As she triumphs with loud exultation.

Along streets of pure gold, Amid pleasures untold, She is marching 'mid harping and singing, To the mansions of light, Never shaded by night,

With loud anthems divine ever ringing. She has joined the blest throng. And now swells the new song, Which shall wave-like roll onward forever; Neither sorrow nor pain, Shall she e'er know again,

And no foe will life's golden thread sever. This vain world we'll disdain, And we'll haste through the plain, And with gladness escape to the mountain; There we'll great her again. And with Jesus we'll reign,

A Highland Snowstorm. THE WIDOW AND HER SON.

A widow who. I have heard, was much love for her " meek and quiet spirit," left her home in the parish early one morning, in order to before evening, the residence of a kineman who had promised to assist her to pay her rent. She carried on her back her only child. The mountain-track she pursued passes along the shore of a beautiful salt-water loch; then through a green valley, watered by a peaceful stream which flows from a neighbouring lake. It afterwards winds along the margin of this solitary lake, until, near its further end, it suddenly turns into an extensive copse wood of oak and birch. From this it emerges half-way up a rugged mountain side; and, entering a dark glen, through which a torrent rushes amidst great masses of granite, it conducts the traveller at last, by a gigzag ascent, up to a narrow gorge, which is bemmed in upon every side by ing child, that she should not have compassion head all below being dark and gloomy.

From this mountain pass the widow's dwelling was ten miles distant. She had undertaken a long journey, but her rent was some weeks overdue, and the subfactor had threatened to

Beyond his hut there was no shelter; nothing but deep snow; and between the range of rocks, the summit of the pass, the drift lay thickest. There the storm must have blown with a fierce and bitter blast. It was by no means an easy task to examine the deep wreaths which filled up every hollow. At last a cry from one of the searchers attracted the rest, and there, crouched beneath a huge granite boulder, they discovered the dead body of the widow.

She was entombed by the snow. A portion of a tartan cloak which appeared above its surface led to her discovery. But what had become of the child? Nay, what had become of the widow's clothes? For all were gone except the miserable tattered garment which hardly covered her nakedness. That she had been murdered and stripped, was the first conjecture suggested by the strange discovery. But being in a country in which only one murder had occurred within the memory of man, the notion was soon dismissed from their thoughts. She had evidently died where she sat, bent almost double; but as yet all was mystery as to her boy and her clothing. Very soon, however, the mystery was cleared up. A shepherd found the boy alive in are caused more by the variations in the nutria sheltered nook in the rock, very near the spot tive element of their food than by a change of where his mother sat cold and stiff in death. the form in which it is given. The sick man seized him by the hand, as he seated himself beside the bed, and, gazing intently in his face, said, ' Sir, you do not, you cannot recognize me. But I know you and knew your father before you. I have been a wanderer in many lands. I have visited every quarter of the globe, and have fought and bled for my king and country. But as I heard the singing of psalms, went into a seat near the door; then you preached and I heard you tell the story of the widow and ' her son.' Here the voice of the old soldier faltered, his emotion almost choking his utterance ; but recovering himself for a moment, he cried, 'I am that son !' and burst into a flood of tears. A PAIN KILLER it is, in truth, a Family Medicine, and should be kept in every family for immediate use. Persons travelling should always have a bottle of this remedy with them. It is not unfrequently the case that persons are attacked with disease, and before medical aid can be procured, the patient is beyond the hope of recovery. Captains of vessels should always supply themselves with a few bottles of this remedy, before leaving post, as by doing so they will be in possession of an invaluable remedy to resort to in case of accident or sud anattacks of slokness. It has been used in

Severe Cases of the Chelera, and never has failed in a single case, where it was thoroughly applied on the first appearance of the
