Doughnuts!

Rich and brown—light and tempting—that's the way doughnuts come from dough of Rainbow Flour.

Each taste demands another.

After you've eaten the first one, all the king's horses and all the king's men couldn't drag you from the second.

What makes the nutlike zest?

Mother's knowledge and Rainbow Flour

It's not so surprising that the best flour should make the best doughnuts—is it? So just remember to specify "Rainbow" when you want flour.

In using Rainbow flour for pastry, more water (added slowly) is required and less flour.

CHAPTER XXXVIII.

ALL'S WELL.

So the poor cousins who had shaken the dust of the family mansion in Belgrave Square from their feet were invited to enter it again, and were overwhelmed with joy by the wonderful windfall. And on this visit lingered to call down blessings on the sweet head of their benefactor, blessings which Cynthia received with not a little embarrassment and some pain; but her lips were locked, and she dared not disclose Percy's secret, even when the newspapers lauded to the skies her generosity and unselfish action.

On his collapse at the sale, Josiah Burridge was carried to his aggressively new house, and was confined to his bed for several months. But after a while he recovered sufficiently to be able to move downstairs.

He was quite incapable of attending to business, and it was whispered in the village that "somebody had gone wrong with his mind." Sampson, his son, reigned in his stead.

But it was by no means a satisfactory reign; for the Burridges had shown at the sale their hands too plainly; the innocent, childlike mask had fallen from the old man's face, and revealed his true character too startlingly and distinctly for further concealment; both father and son were regarded by the county with distrust and suspicion.

Distrust and suspicion in his client's mind mean ruin to a solicitor; the business dropped off, dwindled and threatened to disappear altogether; and, of course, Sampson flew to alcohol to console himself.

Once or twice he had been seen in the village in a state of intoxication which not even the easy-going policeman could overlook.

He gave the offender a warning and, for a time, Sampson confined his drinking bouts to his house; but one day he created so great a disturbance in, and out of, the inns that the constable was compelled to summon him; and, to Darrel's annoyance and embarrassment, the next morning Sampson was brought before him charged with being drunk and disorderly.

Darrel instantly left the bench. His fellow magistrates fined Sampson and the painful incident would have been closed by the conviction and the payment of the fine, but Sampson uttered sundry threats as he left the dock, and that evening indulged in another drinking bout.

"I don't know what is to be done," said Darrel to Cynthia and Mr. Drayle. "The fellow appears to be bent on ruining himself; besides, he is upsetting the village—" he added, frowning; you see, it was now his own village again, and therefore

Sampson's misconduct was a personal matter to Darrel.

Mr. Drayle rubbed his eyebrow and glanced at Cynthia, who was looking much distressed.

"I'll step round and have a talk with him," he said.

"And I will go with you," said Cynthia, in a low voice.

They went round to the Burridge's house. Already signs of the ruin Sampson was bringing about so persistently were observable in the once trim place; the garden had been neglected, the windows had not been cleaned for some time, the steps were dirty. Cynthia looked round with a sigh, then laid her arm on her father's arm quickly, for she had caught sight of old Burridge seated in one of the benches. He was leaning forward, his huge hands resting in his stick; his loose mouth was working, his face twisted with a mile of cunning and satisfaction.

"We will speak to him," said Drayle. As they approached, the old man poked up, and shading his eyes, stared at them vacantly; then he rose slowly to his feet and nodded patronizingly.

"How d'ye do? Mr. Drayle, I think, and Miss Drayle, Cynthia Drayle. Glad to see you!" he said, with the catch in the voice peculiar to the sufferer from that most awful visitation—paralysis of the insane. "Come to look round, eh?" he chuckled and waved his stick as if indicating a vast space. "Yes, great changes. Sampson and I have hard work, but we've nearly finished. You see we'd got the plans out long before the crash came. The whole place has been restored. Cost a lot of money, Mr. Drayle, a lot of money! But we'd made up our minds to spare no expense, once the Court was ours. You remember what it was, of course, Mr. Drayle?"

He scarcely paused for a reply, but quavered on, looking about him with an air of pride; and Cynthia gripping her father's arm, gazed at the afflicted man through her tears.

"You remember what it was in Sir Anson's time; and you see what it is now, what we've made of it: a credit to the country, eh? Oh, Sampson's a clever boy, he knows what's what. He'll make a solid place and a name for himself, mark my words. The gentry may look down upon him and ignore him for a bit, but they'll give in and accept him as one of 'em before long. Money's everything nowadays, Mr. Drayle, eh?"

He was quite incapable of attending. Suddenly the smile of satisfaction and triumph vanished, and he shut-ted up to them and caught Mr. Drayle by the coat sleeve.

"But perhaps you've come on business, Mr. Drayle? About the moor, isn't it? Well, now, I'm ready to talk to you; we're still willing to buy; but you must be reasonable—"

At this moment Sampson came from the house. At sight of the visitors, his bloated face grew redder, and he advanced with a blustering air.

"Anything you've got to say to my father, you'd better say to me," he said. "He's not fit for business."

"So I perceive," said Mr. Drayle, with a pitying glance at the huge yet shrunken figure which had sunk on to the seat again. "We shall go into the house, if you will allow me, Cynthia, you had better go home."

But Cynthia shook her head. "I will wait for you here," she said; and she seated herself beside the stricken old man. Half an hour elapsed before Mr. Drayle returned to her; he was alone. He did not speak until they had passed through the gateway. Then he said quietly:

Exit Mr. Josiah Burridge, exit also his son, Sampson.

"You mean—" she asked as quietly, but pressing his arm.

"Yes, I've bought them out," he replied. "They will trouble us no longer. Cynthia, you will do me the justice to admit that I do not often preach, therefore permit me to call your attention to the fact that, notwithstanding his progressive and skeptical age, virtue is still sometimes triumphant and vice consistently punished; also that a certain remark of the psalmist yet holds good: 'The wicked flourish like a green bay tree.' It is not necessary to finish the quotation. In this instance the Burridges have finished it for us. The village—to say nothing of Captain Sir Darrel Frayne, D. S. O.—can now rest in peace."

"Father," said Cynthia, "I have always had a sneaking fondness for you. But at this moment I don't know whether I love you or admire you most."

"Thank you, Cynthia," he responded, dryly. "May you never be able to decide!"

"The END."

ALL FOR LOVE.

CHAPTER I.

RETROTHED BY WILL.

"You heard Philip say that?" exclaimed the Honorable Sir Silas Russell, in a ghastly voice.

"That was just what he said, though I'm sure I don't know what possessed me to tell you of it at this late hour," said the girl in a tone of chagrin. "I expect my unbearable temper has been upset by your letter, and so what was my own secret for ten years has slipped out unawares."

"Tell me about it, Lady Beth," said her father gravely.

"Well, you know, as a kid, I always adored Phil. He was the Beau Brummel, the Sir Arthur of my childish ideals, and I was heart-broken the day I was told he was going to Japan with his father, who had been transferred to that branch of the firm's business. I fled from the sight of everybody, and, being a great tomboy as you doubtless recall, climbed into the old beech at the foot of the garden to have my cry out where no one could see me."

"I had just got myself in hand enough to control my sobs, when Phil and Teddy Armstrong came along the meadow on the other side of the fence—they had been fishing—and stopped directly under the tree. I held my breath, and they could not see me on account of the dense foliage. Of course I'll be no end lonesome without you Phil, but you are a mighty lucky fellow; Ted was saying, 'Lucky?' repeated Phil rather gloomily. 'Yes, with such a chance to see the world during this wonderful trip you're going to have; to say nothing about the fortune that is waiting for you later on.'

"Oh, you refer to the money Miss Eliza has left me—a queer kind of bequest that," said Phil with a short laugh. "I guess you don't know the conditions that go to make up the tail to that glittering kite." "What do you mean?" Ted asked. "Well, old boy, since we've always confided our trials and tribulations to each other, I'll tell you about this, though it is supposed not to be talked of outside the family circle. When Miss Eliza was a girl she fell in love with my father. Her affection was not returned, and she nursed her grief in solitude for years—until after my mother died—when she transferred her fondness to me, and began to take a fresh interest in life."

"She made no end of presents, kept me generously supplied with spending money—greatly to my father's annoyance—and petted me to my heart's content. Of course I grew fond of her, and thought her the greatest woman on earth. When she died, a little while ago, she left a will dividing her fortune equally between Beth Russell—who is her sister's child—and me, provided we would marry when Beth comes of age—that's the tail to the glittering kite, Ted."

"Great Scott! the old girl must still have had a latent spark of romance in her, in spite of her youthful disappointment. It looks, too, as if she had kept it alive by reading those old-fashioned English match-making novels, laughed Ted. But what will happen if you kick over the traces?" "Oh, the whole pile is to be handed over to the Board of Foreign Missions if either of us balk. 'Jingo! that's a corker, isn't it? It makes each responsible for the other—a kind of twin case of being your brother's keeper, eh? You are years older than Beth, too.' 'She is eleven and I am nineteen,' said Phil sulkily. That's hard luck to clip your amorous wings at such an impressionable age," said Ted laughing, "and force a ten-year engagement on you, regardless of whether you and your bridegroom will be congenial to each other at the end of that time. Still, Beth is a bright little thing, and she may develop into a beauty later on—"

"A beauty!" roared Phil in a passion—that freckled-faced little fright with her red hair and pug nose, to say nothing about her absolutely unbearable temper. "Why, Phil, I really thought Beth was a favorite of yours," Ted observed in surprise. "Well, she is nice in many respects, and I have made something of a pet of her; Phil owned reluctantly. "And hectored her unmercifully, too, at times, which may perhaps account for the flashes of temper you so criticize. I think Beth is a trump, for a girl of her age, in spite of the freckles, red hair and pug nose; Teddy shot back at him, and I have adored him ever since for his loyal defence of that wretched little eavesdropper up in the tree." Beth interjected a little catch in her breath.

"Good for you, Ted; guess I'm the one who has lost my temper this time," Phil confessed sadly, "but I reckon you'd kick to be held by a leash of this kind for ten years. It puts a fellow on his honor, too, otherwise the girl will lose her half of the fortune when she should have the whole. If I could make over my share to her and settle it that way, I'd do it mighty quick, and be glad to be free. But come on, or I shall be letting go of myself again, and I must get home to lunch." Phil started on, but Ted stopped to tie his shoe lacing. Suddenly he gave a great start, and cried out, "Jerusalem!" in a queer tone, then sprang to his feet, and ran after Phil.

TWENTY YEARS.

Makes a great difference in most women. They are troubled with "nerves"—they suffer from headache, dizziness, sleeplessness, a sensation of irritability or twitching, hot flashes, dizzy spells, or many other symptoms of female weakness. The local disorder and inflammation should be treated with Dr. Pierce's Lotion Tablets and the irregularity and weakness of the female system corrected and strengthened with Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. The strain upon the young woman or the woman of middle age—upon the nerve and blood forming structures—may be too great for her strength. This is the time to take this restorative tonic and strength-giving medicine and regulator. For over forty years sold by druggists for women's peculiar weaknesses and distressing ailments. The use remedies so perfect in composition and so good in curative effects as to warrant its makers in printing its every ingredient on its outside wrapper. The use remedy which absolutely contains neither alcohol nor injurious or habit-forming drugs.

Following letter selected at random from a large number of similar ones and cited merely to illustrate these remarks: "In the winter of 1902, I became greatly run down and tired," writes Mrs. HENRY SCOTT, of Swan, Cook, Mich., Route 1, Box 26. "I slowly but surely grew worse, and, at last, resolved to apply to the doctor for help. The doctor said I had inflammation, enlargement and location. I was in bed eleven weeks and got no better. The doctor said I would have to have an operation, but that I would not live. My husband purchased two bottles of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. When I started to take this remedy I could not get across the floor, but after I had taken three bottles I could feel myself gaining, so I dropped the doctor and took Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. Only for it I think I would have been dead—I really believe it saved my life. I feel better now than in twenty years."

"Not Fair Horney."

We shall have to apologize when we learn the telegram daily sent to the outposts the public message. It has been rather of late a Government partizan message, relating in effect the triumphal progress of the Premier in Fogo District. It is surely enough for the reader, worried to know how much salt to use on accounts in the newspapers, Government and Opposition, of political gatherings, in order to know the truth, to have to do the same thing in the public message. The public of both parties are, we believe, fair-minded enough to see that it is not the thing for the public message which is paid for out of the revenues contributed by both to be used for Party purposes, and we trust the practice will be discontinued. I do not think there will be some excuse, though not justification, for the Opposition doing the same thing when they come into power. In any case, we are against this production of the public service to party ends.—H. Grace Standard.

Tim Shannahan On Salt.

Delaney is packing his box and bound for Bonne Esperance to prosecute the fishery for the next four months or so. Delaney says, he would rather remain and bask in the Park during the fine warm days but he realizes that a large appetite and empty purse are poor companions in the Fall of the year. Delaney says there is one great inducement about going to the fishery, you'll be the boss and show many times the Fall after the voyage is clewed up, and now that we have four or five parties in the field, all ready to give up their lives for the fishery, the toll that does not get 'saved' this fall will have to lose himself before he returns to the bosom of his family. Delaney would like to throw out one gentle hint before starting o'er the slashing waters, and that is that the merchant send down enough salt to the Labrador and the Straits early in the season. This is a remarkable fact, so Delaney says, that if any large quantity of fish strike in about the middle of August, the next thing we find is that the salt is run out, and our papers are full of information about the great fishery but winds up the glad tidings by a dismal howl about salt being scarce. So Delaney says, let the merchant ought to send down plenty salt and not lose a sheep for a pen'orth of tar.

TIM SHANNAHAN.

Wedding Bells.

BAMBURICK-MOLLOY.
A very pretty wedding took place at St. Mary's in the R. C. Church there on Sunday, May 25th, when Mr. Michael Bamburick, Rector, married with the Municipal Council, St. John's, to the altar Miss Lucilla Molloy, a very popular young lady of that place. The ceremony was performed by Rev. S. O'Driscoll just before Vespers began and the church was thronged with friends of the happy pair. The bride looked charming in a very handsome costume of white silk with ermine hat trimmed with white ostrich plumes and was given away by her brother, Mr. Michael Molloy. The bridesmaid was Miss Margaret Bonis who wore a suit of all over embroidery with hat to match, and the best man was Mr. John Bonis, lumber merchant of St. Mary's. The groom's gift to the bride was a massive gold bracelet, and to the bridesmaid a gold watch chain while the groomsmen were presented a set of gold cuff links. After the ceremony had concluded the wedding party drove to the residence of the bride's mother, Mrs. John Molloy where a reception was held and the health of the newly wedded pair duly honoured. Later all drove to Salmonier where a sumptuous wedding supper was served to a large number of guests at "Seaside" House, the residence of Miss Lizzie Cormack, where the honeymoon was spent. Mr. and Mrs. Bamburick were the recipients of many pretty and valuable presents from residents of St. John's and St. Mary's and Salmonier, one of which was an antique of rare value in the shape of a silver willow dish of great age and peculiar mould presented by their hostess, Mrs. Cormack. The Telegram wishes Mr. and Mrs. Bamburick every happiness and prosperity.

Mr. Morine's Position.

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir.—Enclosed please find a copy of a letter, which I have this day sent to the Herald, with a request for its publication.
Yours truly,
ALFRED B. MORINE.
St. John's, June 2, 1913.

To the Editor of the Herald.
Dear Sir.—On Saturday last, the Herald alleged that several months ago a communication was sent by Mr. Cooker, President of the F. P. U., to the Hon. Sir Robert Bond, leader of the Liberal Party, having reference to a union of their forces. The Herald intimated that Mr. Cooker must have been aided in the composition of the letter in question, and I understood it to insinuate that I was the aider and abettor, or, at least, was suspected of being. If I misunderstood, I shall thank you to set me right.

I take the opportunity, however, to say that I did not compose or help to compose the alleged letter, or any letter to Sir Robert Bond; that I was not consulted about it; that I have never seen or heard of it; and that I have no connection of any kind whatever with any political party in this Colony. My connection with the F. P. U. is purely that of solicitor and client, and Mr. Cooker does not consult me about its politics.

I desire also to repeat a statement made by me several months ago, that I am not in politics here; that I have not at present any intention of entering into the approaching struggle, and that my earnest desire is to be permitted to practice my profession without the distraction of partisanship. I think I may appeal to my reputation for frankness, and ask that my words be taken at their face value.

The Herald speaks of me as one "out of the game." That is true in two senses—I am not a member of any existing party, and I cannot be a candidate. I am in no other sense, however, for I can enter the game except as a candidate, when I like, and I shall likely do so when I feel that duty calls and opportunity offers. In the meantime, may I not fairly ask that the Herald shall not needlessly drag me into the discussion of party matters.

Yours faithfully,
ALFRED B. MORINE.

A Timely Sermon.

Rev. D. O'Callaghan occupied the pulpit in the Cathedral at 10 o'clock Mass yesterday and prefaced his sermon by a reference to the time fixed for burials. This is at 2 p.m. and in future there would be no deviation from this rule. He also referred to persons coming habitually late for Mass on Sundays. If they did not so to a second Mass, he held it would be as well for them to remain away altogether. He then made a powerful arraignment of conditions in the city on that day. He referred to the besetting sin of drunkenness and denounced the Saturnalia of the day preceding the last general holiday and the day itself. Drunkenness, fighting and blasphemy predominated and it was disgusting to walk the streets. He dwelt on the depravity of the drunkard whose church was the barroom, and portrayed the misery and wretchedness of the drunkard's home, wife and family. He also referred to other vices prevalent and the places where nameless vice reigned. He emphasized the necessity of looking after their children and keeping them off the streets at night, and while he was glad to bear witness that most of the St. John's people led virtuous lives, there were yet too many who allowed themselves to be dragged into the vice and he exhorted all who wished to deserve the name of Catholic to frequent the Sacraments and to thereby live better and more Christian lives in the future.

Castle Hill Picnic Projects

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir.—For many years the question of having a big general picnic for the whole general public on the crest of Castle Hill, at Placentia, has been under discussion, and this summer, possibly on June 24th, it is probable that some of our local clubs or societies may carry this excellent idea into effect, and organize such a picnic excursion to the crest of Castle Hill as may include all the public on both sides of the port. The place on the crest of Castle Hill is sufficiently accessible for a picnic excursion and extremely inspiring because of its historical and scenic associations. The Castle Hill picnic should draw hundreds of visitors from St. John's and other districts, and we wish it all success, hoping it will aggregate 2,000 people and then some.

Yours truly,

At Cochrane St. Church.

At Cochrane St. Church, last evening, the Pastor, Rev. C. A. Whitmarsh, M.A., B.D., preached a forceful and practical sermon on the "Problems of City Life." The habitual neglect of the House of God, the liquor traffic, and the smoking of cigarettes by boys under the age allowed by law, were some of the problems dealt with. The Rev. gentleman made an earnest appeal for a clean city and practical measures to be taken, possibly could be taken about the day when the evils spoken of would be banished from our fair city.

MONDAY, June 2nd, 1913.

Notes and Comments.

To-morrow will be observed as a public holiday in honor of His Majesty or the occasion of the 48th anniversary of his birth. The Evening Telegram will not be published. By the King's command, His Excellency the Governor will hold a levee at Government House, at noon. In the afternoon at 4.30 His Excellency and Mrs. Davidson will hold a reception. The Evening Telegram tenders in advance the best felicitations on the happy occasion, and joins with other leiges in wishing the King long life and prosperity.

We observe that Premier Morris went to Trepassay on Saturday. The object of his visit was of course to try and straighten out the tangle which has come about there by the proposed running of the railway across the beach and to get out of the trouble caused by the unpopularity of the selection made of the site of the railway terminus.

Mount Allison University celebrated last Wednesday, the Jubilee of the granting of degrees to its first class of graduates. At the Convocation last week the following Newfoundland candidates were the recipients of diplomas:—Bachelors of Arts (B.A.), Miss Eleanor Hickman Harris of Grand Bank and Miss Marlon Fincock of Carbonear; Masters of Arts (M.A.), Norman M. Guy, (B.A., 1912), Grand Falls; Certificate in Applied Science, Alexander Black, St. John's; Certificates in Theology, Messrs. Thos. Picher and W. H. Stanley Williams, of the Newfoundland Conference. Miss Elsie Tait won distinctions in music.

Wedding Bells.

CULLEN—O'DRISCOLL.

A very quiet wedding was solemnized in the Chapel of Our Lady of Good Council, this morning by the Rev. Father McDermott, the contracting parties being Miss Matilda O'Driscoll, daughter of Mrs. Elizabeth O'Driscoll, and Mr. Stan Cullen. The bride was given away by her elder brother, Mr. Michael O'Driscoll, Miss Mary of Ferryland, cousin of the bride, and Mr. J. Campbell performed the duties of bridesmaid and best man, respectively. After the ceremony the bride and groom drove to Brennock's where the honeymoon will be spent. A large number of valuable presents have been received. The groom is especially popular in athletic circles. The Telegram joins in congratulations extended.

SALMON CAUGHT.—Lieut. Carter, R.N., retired, caught two fine salmon at Barriaway, Friday last, weighing 34 lbs. and 9 lbs. respectively. The fish are now going up the river. Sea trout abound in that locality also and good catches are being made.

The Labor Party Was Sustained.

Special to Evening Telegram.

MELBOURNE, AUSTRALIA, To-day. While the returns of the Federal Election held on Saturday are still far from being complete, the results for the House of Representatives with 73 seats as follows: Laborites 39, Liberals 35, Independent 1. In the Election of 1911 the returns showed the Labor Party 44, Fusionists 29, Independent Liberals 2. The Age estimated the Liberal gain at 11 and the Labor gain at 7. The returns are arriving slowly because the counting was suspended from midnight on Saturday until Monday morning. While the Labor Government will have a decreased majority in the House of Representatives, indications point to a gain in Senate, so far as can be told from the returns. Three women candidates were unsuccessful. Miss Goldstein, Independent candidate in a Victoria district polled 10,000 against 16,000 polled by her Liberal opponent.

Methodist S.S. Institute

The Sunday School Workers connected with the Methodist Churches of the city are looking forward with much interest to the Institute on Wednesday.

At the morning session which starts at 10 o'clock there will be three papers read and discussed—one dealing with Primary Problems, one with the Home Department and Cradle Roll and one with the relation of missions to the Sunday School.

There will also be a short discussion on the relation of worship to the life of the school and session will close at 12.30.

The afternoon session commencing at 2.30 will be very important in some respects the most important and interesting session of all. There will be papers and discussions on Teacher Training—a live modern subject; on the scholar, the teacher and the Superintendent—related; and on the Adult Bible Class movement—Senior boys please note this.

At 4.30 the most interesting part of the programme will be placed on, viz—the Round Table Conference. Forty questions bearing on every place of the work will be printed and distributed, and all present will be invited to take part. This should be a very fruitful session.

Night meeting will be a grand rally for platform service and the Sunday School Room of Gower Street will probably be crowded.—com.

PRESCRIPTION "A"

CURES INDIGESTION & DYSPEPSIA IN ALL ITS FORMS.

It is quite a daily occurrence to hear persons say: "Oh, what a feeling of distress I have after meals, fullness of the stomach, heaviness and headache, I feel too tired to do anything. I have no heart to exert myself, and at times I care for nothing."

I often have a pain in the pit of my stomach, no appetite, my heart beats rapidly on the slightest exertion. I feel just as tired when rising in the morning as when retiring to bed. My sleep is often disturbed and I often awake with a sense of suffocation and a difficulty of again going to sleep. I have to be careful of my food, and my life seems a veritable burden.

Now, it seems a shame and a pity for persons to be suffering like that when it is in their power to get cured by taking a bottle of Prescription "A". A sure cure for persons afflicted with stomach troubles. It can be obtained at

DR. F. STAFFORD & SON, Foot of Theatre Hill STAFFORDS PHARMACY, Trial size, 25c.; postage, 5c. extra. Large size, 50c.; postage, 10c. extra. Prescription "A" is also for sale in every outport. June 2, 11

The King's Birthday at Rossley's.

There is a special programme arranged at Rossley's Theatre by Lorraine Buchanan Company. To-night will be staged one of the best Travesty comedies seen in which the entire company take part; it happened in Reno, a very funny act. Billy Devan will introduce Metcal's Absent; every one who is a lover of good songs and music will enjoy this show. Harry Ingram, the popular young fellow who has so wonderfully impressed his singing will also sing one of his best songs. Cook and Beall will introduce a sketch entitled "A Summer's Frustration"; they will also show some new and novel dances. Miss Beall, the charming child impersonator, has a very fine dance. There are new pictures and the very latest graphics of the King and Queen purchased by Rossley while in London. Prof. Ryall, leader of the Star Orchestra, has some beautiful patriotic selections. The best show ever presented in St. John's for the price.

Personal.

Mr. James Drury, of Montreal, Travelling Representative of the I.T.U., is at present on a visit to St. John's. He is staying at the Crosbie. Mrs. Galway, who was removed to Hospital Friday night and underwent an operation, is now so much improved that she is out of danger.

TWO PROSTRATIONS.—While service was on in St. Andrew's church yesterday there were two prostrations. The persons who became ill were ladies and were looked after by Dr. Fraser, who was in the congregation.

Football on Bell Island

The annual meeting of the Bell Island Football League took place there last week. Mr. E. Proudfoot retired from the Secretaryship after many active years of service. Mr. Lindsay assisted by Messrs. J. M. Greene and B. Butler, as Secretaries, conducted the election of officers, which resulted in the return of the following:— President—Mr. C. F. Taylor. Vice-President—Mr. C. Maine. Sec. Treas.—Mr. E. Butler.

Several important matters were discussed and a lengthy debate ensued in which Messrs. C. F. Taylor, C. Maine, J. M. Greene, B. Butler, Leo Murphy and Dr. H. P. Gouthro took part. It is not yet known how many teams will compete this year, but as Football has of late years become on Bell Island, second only to its popularity in St. John's, it is hoped that many will compete.

How the Olive Was Lost

One of the crew of the lost schr. Olive, arrived here to-day by the Prospero. He says that the Olive, which left here for Nipper's Harbor, in command of Capt. Evans, entered Catalina and Seldom on the way, thence to Fogo and met heavy ice on the night of the 26th, and in coming through it struck one heavy pan, which stove in the stringers and stanchions between the cathead and fore rigging and the water poured into the hull at an alarming rate. The vessel was 10 miles off shore when the accident occurred and all hands manned the pumps in an effort to save her, but it was impossible and when about five miles off Twillingate she sank under them. They left in their boat and could only grab a portion of their clothing. They made the south of Burnt Island and later landed at Twillingate.

Big Demand Low Prices.

The accompanying letter was received from Oporto Saturday:—
"The recent big arrivals coming on the market so close upon one another have caused a bad impression among dealers, who in view of the large quantity now offering are demanding lower prices. The weather has been very unfavorable for agriculture, and in consequence the demand is much below the average for the time of year."

Mr. Antonio Joseph Dead.

Many in the city will regret to learn of the sudden demise of Mr. Antonio Joseph, at North Sydney, on Friday last, the 30th ult. The deceased had been suffering from a complication of diseases, was treated in the General Hospital for a while and improving left for his home at Humbermouth but was there again stricken and went to Sydney where his demise occurred. The deceased was the pioneer of the Syrian Colony in Newfoundland and was a man widely known and highly respected. The remains came across on the Invermore yesterday accompanied by the wife of deceased and will be interred at Humbermouth.

Looking For Next of Kin.

Editor Evening Telegram.
St. John's, Newfoundland.
Dear Sir,—Patrick Fitzgerald died in this district some time ago leaving a considerable sum in Bank. It is known that his father, Edward Fitzgerald, and his mother, Bridget Brady, wife of Edward Fitzgerald, died in Newfoundland a great many years ago.

He had one brother, who died unmarried, and unless there are some collateral heirs of his mother Bridget Brady Fitzgerald, his estate will escheat to the State of California.

If you think the foregoing will interest your readers, perhaps you will summarize it and direct inquiries to be made to me.

Apologizing for troubling you,
I am, faithfully yours,

MADRID, June 1.

General Aznar, chief of King Alfonso's Military Household, tells the following story: As the King was travelling by rail, and passing Utrera, yesterday, two little girls were playing on the track at a grade crossing. One was lying down, apparently asleep, when the train passed. The drivers did not see the children until it was too late to stop. King Alfonso looked from the window of his car to discover why the train was slowing down. Seeing one of the children being struck, he jumped from the window of the still moving train, ran backward and took the child in his arms where she died in a few minutes. The King was tremendously upset. The children were the daughters of the woman in charge of the grade crossing, who had forgotten that the royal train was due, and had not warned them. The King gave her a sum of money.

LONDON, June 1.

Belfast reports that the Ulster Army drilled and ready to resist Home Rule, now numbers 250,000 men, trained by army men and ex-army men in the use of modern rifles. They are practising daily with Morris tube rifles indoors, but only their chiefs know where the stores and weapons are accumulating or how they are coming.

MONTREAL, June 1.

Miss Clouter is the second Friedmann patient to die in this city within a week. Before treatment, one lung was affected, but after the serum the other was attacked. Dr. Grenier of the Bruchesi Institute, says that Dr. Friedmann must now prove that his non-virulent bacilli do not become virulent after a time, as the death of the two patients would seem to indicate.

HAVANA, June 1.

It is probable that Cuba will shortly consent to arbitrating British-German claims aggregating $7,000,000, arising from the revolutions of 1895 to 1898.

KOREA, June 1.

Twenty Koreans have been arrested, charged with a conspiracy with a view to the restoration of the independence of Korea.

NO USE.

It's no use loafing in the summer, unless you know just where you'll eat when Wintertime, which is a hummer, ships in some specialties in sheet. "Twere better far to work like others, endure the backache and the yoke, the toll that galls, the heat that smothers, than face the winter season broke. There is no bread on earth that's sweeter than bread that's earned by sweating men; and happiness pervades the eater, who knows he owes no man a yen. No use to talk of big achievements you contemplate in days to come; they all will end in dark bereavements, your schemes will all be out of plumb. No man who does things advertises his plans ahead for many moons; he gets to work and draws the prizes, and lets the talker take the prunes. To get to work—that is the motto each man should in his honest paste, if he would own his yacht or auto, and have a cash belt round his waist. It is no use to wait on others to do what you should do alone; just glance around—all men and brothers have chores and troubles of their own. Be active, brave and self reliant, and show all men, the sky beneath, that you're no weakling, but a giant, with crimson whiskers on your teeth.

Avalon Battalion, C. L. On returning to their Armoury the Battalion were called to attention and addressed by Lieut.-Col. Rendell who congratulated the lads on the large turnout and excellent appearance. He also announced that the Trinity division were declared the winners of the Stabb Memorial Trophy. HALIFAX, To-day.

The gales which swept the Nova Scotia coast on Friday and Saturday played havoc with the gear of the shore fishermen from Louisburg on the East to Yarmouth on the West. Fully 50 per cent. of the equipment was destroyed. At Green Island there is a small colony of fishermen and of a fleet of nine motor crafts, all were lost save two, and of dozens of crates of lobsters awaiting smack, only two were saved. The same story comes from other points along the coast line. Several schooners are also ashore to Westward, among them an American fishing schooner, Arcadia, at Wolf Cove, partly laden with fish and is a total loss.

S. A. Special Services.

Adjutant Hargrove, the energetic and popular officer in charge of the No. 1 Corps of the Salvation Army in this city, and under whose command the spiritual work of that organization in the West End has made wonderful progress in the past two years, is now arranging for a series of special services extending throughout the month of June.

Yesterday the services were in charge of the songster brigade, and large crowds attended each meeting, and throughout the day many persons expressed their desire to lead a Christian life.

On Tuesday night, June 10th, the Rev. Mr. Thomas, of the Congregational Church, will address the meeting, and on Thursday night, Rev. Mr. Matthews, of Wesley Church, will preach. Every night in the week, and a warm welcome will be extended to all who may attend. We feel that this effort on the part of Adjutant Hargrove is a step in the right direction, and must surely be attended with great results.

Steamer on Holyrood Pond.

Mr. John Bonia, the energetic lumber man of St. John's, this year has done fine with his saw mill at Holyrood Pond. He had a big 'zoo' of men all winter, cut a great number of logs and will have a record cut of lumber. This mill is run by motor power derived from the waters of the river and the engine has a capacity of 75 h.p. Mr. Bonia has a fine steamer of 36 tons running in this remarkable sheet of fresh water, which is 22 miles long by 3 miles wide. The boat is used for towing the cut logs in the fall and winter, and the mill is used for cutting and drying the logs in the spring and summer. The mill is a splendid-forest growth all around the lake.

The Government cruiser Fiona, Capt. E. English, arrived from the West Coast at 10.30 a.m. yesterday. The ship has been up there on fishery and bait protection service and arrived at Trepassy Saturday week, spending a week there. She reports the fishery a failure to date on the West Coast, mostly due to the scarcity of bait. Morris's promises of cold storage depots used the transformation to be wrought by Trepassy, Lord, et al. to the contrary notwithstanding.

Should be Stopped.

People of the city seem to have altogether lost sight of the danger that attaches to the practice of throwing the peels of oranges and bananas along the Water Street sidewalks, and it will be so until a dangerous accident or a death occurs as a result of a party falling and receiving a severe injury.

His arm which came under him was cut and became very much swollen. He barely escaped striking his head and receiving serious injury.

Record Collection.

The collection taken up at the different Catholic Churches yesterday, had gratifying results. It was taken for the benefit of Belvedere and Mr. Carmel's Sisters, and the splendid sum of $1,222.84 was realized, the largest collection of the kind over two hundred dollars more than last year. The exact figures are:

Cathedral	$826.50
St. Patrick's	351.84
St. Joseph's	32.84
Logy Bay	11.56
Total	$1,222.84

Gone to Pieces.

By the Fiona we learn that the s.s. New Glasgow, which went ashore on Trepassy Bay, some weeks ago, and which some believed could be repaired and sent to pieces in the big pile of Friday last. Larder's wrecking tug, the Amphitrite was at the scene of the wreck and salvaged a good deal of the ship's fittings brass work and some of the machinery.

HALIFAX, To-Day.

Colonel Wilkinson, retired, of England, dropped dead in All Saint's Cathedral during the service to-night.

LONDON, June 1.

The Admiralty is now considering an enlarged British programme, necessitated by the Senate's rejection of the three proposed Canadian ships were essential to British Empire security, and also declared if Canada failed the Admiralty must supply the deficiency. Hence Churchill is now being called upon to ignore which pacifists to present the necessary supplementary estimates. The Globe, Chronicle, says we cannot afford to ignore dangers to our Empire which deepen in every part of the world, or delay our preparations to defend the Dominion as well as another country. The Pall Mall Gazette says three ships must be provided in the last resort. We must provide them ourselves. If British emeralds victorious from the constitutional struggle, the profit will be by being able to take over constructions which would have been well advanced, instead of having to start a year or eighteen months late in relation to his policy.

Our Sovereign Lord the King.

Characteristics of George V.

(From an article by Sydney Brooks.)

His Devotion to Duty.
A constant sense of duty is one of the qualities King George owes to, or that was at any rate conferred by, his naval training. He is one of the most conscientious men living. A friend of his, who has travelled thousands of miles with him and has been in daily contact with him for months at a time—a man of great capacities and experience and persistent level-headedness—says: "I can say quite sincerely and without the least exaggeration that there is nothing, absolutely nothing, that the King will not throw overboard at the call of duty. I have served under many men in my time, but I would sooner serve under King George than any of them."

His Retiring Disposition and Simple Tastes.

If he were not the King he would probably choose as the most congenial of all lives that of an English country gentleman. He has never cared for society or show the least ambition to be a leader of fashion. The "smart set" he detests as heartily as he abominates snobs, flatterers, and the butterflies of both sexes that are apt to fit round a court. His home life is as pure, as unpretentious, as much as matter of intimate, homely joys, as that of any household in the land.

His Devotion to Religion.

As for church-going, the King, besides recognising the duty of setting an example of religious devotion, has a genuine and natural vein of piety. It is profoundly shocked both his feelings and his judgment to notice the slackness of religious observance among the British population in India. "Here you are," he said to them, "ruling the most spiritually minded peoples in the world, and you do not even trouble to pay the ordinary tribute of respect to your own faith."

And whenever he travelled, and whatever his surroundings, he made a point of holding a service every Sunday morning at eleven o'clock. The officials and their families had, of course, no option but to attend it. Whatever their motives or their private emotions, they came.

Sportsman and Farmer.

The King is one of the six best shots in the Kingdom, and a first-class and enthusiastic angler. His achievements on the Dee and the Spey are matters of piscatorial history; and as for his skill with the rifle and gun, it is enough to say that he has shot turkey-buzzards in the Argentine, wild duck and teal in Japan, quail and kangaroo in Australia, pheasant and snipe in China, elk, sambar deer and buffalo in Ceylon, tiger in India, and pretty well all the big game that is to be found in Canada and all the small game in the British Isles.

Like most sailors ashore he has developed a taste for farming which he diligently cultivates.

His Political Bias.

The King is a keen politician, much keener than his father, and is much given to getting up on his own account the pros and cons of public questions. Since his accession he has had to face crises that well might daunt a great man, and it is to his lasting credit that in all his actions and words the Throne has lost none of its dignity, but rather has gained in the respect and honour that all Englishmen delight to pay to it.

A Famous Story.

A true story of his youth is told. He, and his elder brother, Prince Eddie, had been misbehaving at table, and the grandmother (Queen Victoria), who was a firm disciplinarian, ordered them both under the table until they learned how to behave themselves. Under their weight and became so silent that Queen Victoria at last became suspicious that the boys were up to some mischief and graciously told them that they might come out and behave themselves.

Imagine her consternation and that of the company when Prince Eddie and Prince George darted out from their temporary prison and began dancing and capering in high glee round the room, stark naked!

The young rascals had improved the period of their detention by divesting themselves of every rag of clothes.

The old Queen nearly had a fit she laughed so heartily, nor could the others preserve their gravity. At last the little wretches were captured and banished to a dressing room, scolded severely, but really triumphant. Whether it was Eddie or George who hit upon the brilliant idea of undressing under the table to get even with Granmamma only the King can tell.

Anxious for International Peace.

When he uncovered the Champlain Monument at Quebec in 1909, King George (then Duke of York) said:—

"We recognize that the presence of representatives of France and the United States among us testifies to the growth of the spirit of friendliness between the nations. On that spirit the progress of humanity largely depends; in it, I hope and believe, true progress will express itself more and more during the years to come. The high ideal of universal peace and brotherhood may be far from realization, but every act that promotes harmony among the nations points the way towards its attainment."

Dominions Beyond the Sea.

George V. is the first British Sovereign proclaimed on his accession as King of the British Dominions beyond the Sea. It is fitting that it should be so, for no other King has ever seen so many of the Dominions beyond the Sea as our Sovereign.

He has been at least thrice to the West Indies, thrice or four times to Canada, twice to Australia and South Africa, twice to Ceylon and once to India and the Far Eastern Colonies. We, in Newfoundland, saw him in 1901.

The King has had to make many speeches in many lands and he has always stuck to the same keynote which Tennyson sounded in his ode on the opening of the Indian and Colonial Exhibition:—

Britons' myriad voices call,
Sons, be welded, each and all,
Into one Imperial whole,
One with Britain heart and soul;
One life, one flag, one fleet, one throne
Britons, hold your own,
And God guard all!

Long May He Reign Over Us!
GOD SAVE THE KING.

BANKER HOME.—The schr. Lilla B. Hirtle, reached Belleoram on Saturday, reporting for 170 quintals of codfish, taken on the Grand Banks.

The Cornet.

By H. L. RANN.

The cornet is a small brass instrument with a high tenor voice and a determined disposition to be heard, regardless of anybody's feelings. On a still summer night, when everybody is trying to sleep except the terrible frog, a new, untutored cornet in the hands of a passionate beginner can be heard nine miles from the country seat.

The cornet is played by forcing long, thin strips of breath through its bronchial tubes. When these strips escape into the crowd they become very pleasing to people who prefer their music without any sharps or flats. The favorite method of playing the cornet is to hold it firmly against the front teeth, tilt the head back as far as it will go, shut both eyes and blow until the veins of the neck can be seen with the naked eye two blocks down the street. This causes the player to assume an enraptured and apoplectic appearance and arouses concern in the minds of all present for fear the cornet will run out of breath and die away in the wrong key.

In hand work the cornet is used to give the pitch to the other instruments. This is one reason why the average brass band seldom hits the same temperature two measures in succession. The leader of a band is always a cornetist who keeps time with his head, which can be waved up and down without affecting the enthusiasm of his utterance.

The cornet is subject to sudden attacks of bronchitis, and in cold weather has to wear a flannel compress around his throat. A thoroughly chilled cornet is about as pleasant to listen to as a hired man sharpening a rip saw. In warm weather the cornet sounds better late at night, practising the tripple-tongue hurdle under the window of some musical enthusiast who can drink in its dulcet tones while swearing in five separate and distinct languages.

The cornet would be more popular if it were not played by so many people who try to see how high they can go and show long they can stay up.

The Pension List.

It is announced that by September next another 400 names will have been added to the Pension List for aged men, the third batch of 400. We should have preferred, had it been at all possible to do so—and we daresay it was—that all of the age of 75 should have received the pension at one and the same time; for "picking and choosing," the other method in vogue, must be regarded with a certain amount of unfair discrimination must provoke heart-burnings and questionings, have given those that had to do with the selection much worry of mind, and tended to make them unpopular with many. We shall be pleased when all men of the age fixed upon shall be on the roll, better pleased when the age is reduced by five years, and still better when the number of needy women not otherwise provided for—of whom every community has more or less—are placed in an equally good position as the men.—Hr. Grace Standard.

Where Animals Score.

There are singular differences in the longevity of the various species of animals. Two such opposites in size as the crocodile and carp live three hundred years; the elephant and whale come next with two hundred years to their credit. The falcon takes the lead in age for birds with one hundred and fifty years, one hundred being the limit of the parrot and eagle. The lion and the rhinoceros live sixty years; the goose, common pike, and pelican, fifty; the bear and vulture, forty; the ass, bull and camel, thirty; the horse, twenty-five; the peacock, from twenty-three to twenty-five; the pig, bear, cow, pigeon, cat, dog, deer, wolf and the fresh water lobster, twenty years. Fifteen years is the average of the duck, nightingale, lark, fox, and pheasant; the canary and the cricket, ten; the rabbit, eight; and the hare and squirrel, seven. There are flies whose span of life is but one day. Insects which undergo changes, however, usually live from one to two years.

What Will Come Next?

BY RUTH CAMERON.

They say the average life of the human being is growing longer. Not being a scientist or a statistician I hadn't noticed that. But being a woman I have noticed that the average life of a gown is growing rapidly shorter.

In our grandmother's day a gown they were flocks then. I believe—was laid away only when it had been turned and made over two or three times, and was unquestionably worn out.

In our mother's day the life of a gown—I believe they were dresses then—was not quite so prolonged. They were seldom made over more than once and were laid away when they became shabby, instead of actually worn out.

In our day a dress is almost never made over, and is laid away because the style has changed slightly or because we think our friends must be tired of seeing it.

In our daughter's day—well, one shrinks from prophesying how long will be the life of a gown then, and for what trivial causes it will be condemned to the rag-bag.

A friend of mine was asking me yesterday if I had seen any pretty afternoon gowns in the shops. "I haven't a thing to wear to the bridge next Friday," she said, "so I must get something ready-made." "Why, where's that blue crepe de chine?" I asked. She turned up her nose in deep disgust. "Everyone must be sick to death of that!" she exclaimed. "Besides these new spring styles make it look so old-fashioned. Oh yes, I did have it in February, but you know there has been a distinct change in style since then. Oh no, it isn't at all worn. You think it's becoming? Well, I liked it myself at first, but since these new styles have come in I don't care so much for it."

Twenty-five years ago that afternoon gown would have lasted at least a year, probably more.

Fifty years ago, it would undoubtedly have been her "best" for two seasons and "second best" for two more.

I have already called your attention to the modern sub-division of labor among gowns. That is, the limiting of the number of occasions to which any one gown is suitable, and the consequent need of more gowns. That is a bad enough condition, but this tendency makes it still worse. Not only must the woman who wants to be considered moderately well dressed have a gown for this, and half a dozen other occasions, but she must have a new one for each of these occasions every season.

Fashions change more rapidly every year. Once on a time there were spring fashions and fall fashions. Today new fashions out the old almost every month.

I believe it is absolutely wrong for a woman to devote her life to a mad scramble to keep up with eternally fleeting fashions; wrong even if she can afford it financially, doubly wrong if she cannot.

Ruth Cameron

Household Notes.

Horse radish should always be grated fresh.

Dry sponge cake may be served smothered in custard.

A wire dish-draining basket should always make part of the dish-washing equipment.

When embroidering, cut a scallop marker out of an old visiting card or a bit of firm cardboard.

In hot weather chloride of lime should be used frequently around sinks, tubs and toilets.

Smooth custard with cut fruit added to it and chilled is a dainty dish for hot weather.

Always remove mildew as quickly as possible—the longer it remains the more difficult it will be.

Pillow cases may be easily ironed by slipping over an ironing board just as you would a skirt.

Pineapple sliced thin, sweetened and garnished with whipped cream, makes an excellent dessert.

Hot baking powder biscuits, broken and well buttered, are delicious with strained honey.

Good pearl buttons with shanks may be made into cuff links for small boys given to losing them.

Strawberries with gelatin preparations furnish an almost unlimited series of wholesome desserts.

A remedy for burns is raw linseed oil and eggs, half and half, beaten together and bound on the burn.

An old fashioned method of removing grass stains is to let molasses stand on the stain for a while.

The family which revels in picnics should have one or more thermos bottles for hot and cold liquids.

Alcohol can often be used instead of a cleaning fluid to remove stains, and it leaves no ring behind it.

A wringer pall is a handy thing for a housekeeper—a pall that squeezes out the mop when you step on the lever.

Meddling With Foods.

(The British Medical Journal.)

During the last five or six years many references have been made to observations and researches tending to show that certain common articles of diet contain minute quantities of substances which are of so much importance in nutrition that their absence may prevent the normal growth of young animals, or lead to actual disease in them or in adults.

The facts ascertained as to the etiology of beri-beri first put physiologists on the track. Observations showed that beri-beri was associated with a diet of polished rice that is to say, rice from which the outer covering was completely removed.

Bradford added the significant observation that the disease did not ensue if the rice was parboiled, before polishing. The characteristic lesion of beri-beri is polyneuritis, and Eijkman showed that birds fed on polished rice developed extensive polyneuritis, and further that this condition proves it, no matter in what form it is served.

To get rid of the ticking of a watch in a sick room, turn a tumbler over the watch.

Pineapple juice is such a digester that it should not be eaten alone on an empty stomach.

Unable to Work for 14 Months

Complete Nervous Breakdown Left Mr. Black an Invalid—Cured by Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

Mr. Henry Black, 31 St. Catherine's street east, Montreal, Que., writes:—

"The wonderful results I obtained from the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food constrain me to write this letter in order that others who suffer from nervous exhaustion and weakness may use this medicine with equal satisfactory results. As the result of overwork I became completely exhausted, and was unable to work for fourteen months. As I am the father of a family, these were sad days for me but after I had used six boxes of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food I had improved so greatly that I continued the treatment until I was completely restored to health and strength. I now work twelve to fifteen hours a day, and keep in excellent health."

could be cured by giving the bird's aqueous extract of rice-polishings. Later it was shown that exclusive diets of various pure carbohydrates induced polyneuritis in birds, and that food-stuffs other than unpolished rice could prevent it, but that their preventive properties were destroyed by heating to 120 degrees Cent.

The general conclusion is that there is removed from rice during the process of polishing a nitrogenous substance which is essential to normal metabolism, especially of the nervous system. It is probably a pyrimidine base, but it exists in such minute quantities and is so easily destroyed during chemical manipulations that its exact nature has not yet been ascertained. The outbreaks of beri-beri which have occurred from time to time among the crews of sailing ships on long voyages have been an epidemiological puzzle. Their investigation in the light of the new knowledge as to tropical beri-beri seems to have proved that they are due to replacing rye bread and peas in the crew's dietary by white bread, and has suggested wider generalizations.

Of even greater immediate practical importance here and now are, perhaps, recent investigations showing that the abstraction or destruction of certain substances present in small amounts in normal or unmodified foods leads to a failure of growth. The composition of these substances has not yet been ascertained, but whatever their nature they appear to possess the power of so stimulating metabolism as to cause growth at the normal rate. It will be seen, therefore, that these observations on beri-beri, on scurvy, and on growth, have opened up a new field of inquiry in dietetics. They serve to show that some modern methods of preserving and preparing food have been "running on wrong lines, that we have been disturbing the balance of nature and that we must hark back to the original scent.
