WHEN LOVE Came Too Late.

CHAPTER XVI.

Bartley Bradstone's Victory.
"Don't be silly," retorted Annie. "Why should she marry Mr. Bradstone if she doesn't want to? You don't suppose that for his money—she, the squire's only daughter and heiress!"

And this argument of Annie's was put forward throughout the county whenever anyone expressed astonishment that Mr. Bartley Bradstone should have carried off the prize which so many had coveted, or ventured to suggest that his money had something to do with his success. Why should she, the daughter of the wealthy Squire of Hawkwood, want to marry money? And this argument was always found unanswerable.

Mr. Bartley Bradstone bore himself very modestly, considering the greatness of his victory. He was a little louder in his speech, perhaps, and there was a look of elation in his small eyes which was pardonable in a man who had snatched the Rose of Hawkwood before the envious eyes of far better men than himself; but his speech toned down and his look of elation diminished when he was in the presence of his betrothed.

He went to the Grange every day, and nearly every day he and Olivia rode or drove out together, accompanied by Aunt Amelia or one or sometimes both of the Penstone girls, and though Olivia was always cheerful and pleasant with him, it was a cold kind of cheerfulness, a forced sort of pleasantness. The paleness which Mary had remarked had not disappeared, and there had come into the dark eyes a far-away look, which might represent the quiet joy of an engaged girl, but was rather sad and unsatisfactory for the man who loved her. And he did love her, more deeply and intensely each day, with an absorption which only the truly selfish man who has set his heart upon gaining an object is capable of.

Three or four times a week he dined at the Grange, his place, as was his right, beside Olivia, and all through the dinner she sat and listened when he spoke, and answered, when a reply was necessary, with the same far-away look in her eyes, the same pallor on her cheeks.

One evening after dinner, when the squire and Bradstone had come into the drawing-room for their tea, which Miss Amelia was dispensing with nods and becks and wreathed smiles, that lady said, suddenly:
"Oh, Edwin! what is this I hear about Bertie? Is it true—it can't be true—that he has gone off suddenly to Australia to shoot lions?"

Olivia was sitting on a low chair beside the open window, a book lying on her lap, page downward, her eyes fixed on the tall elms that lined the drive. For a second a warm flush rose to her face, but for a second only, and her gaze did not falter.

"I shouldn't think it could be true," replied the squire, dryly, "seeing that it is impossible."

"There are no lions in Australia, unfortunately," Miss Vanley, explained Bartley Bradstone, as he carried the cup of tea to Olivia.
"Not Really? How interesting! You are always so well informed."

ELDERLY WOMEN SAFEGUARDED

Tell Others How They Were Carried Safely Through Change of Life.

Durand, Wis.—"I am the mother of fourteen children and I owe my life to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. When I was 45 and had the Change of Life, a friend recommended it and it gave me such relief from my bad feelings that I took several bottles. I am now well and healthy and recommend your Compound to other ladies."
—Mrs. MARY RIDGWAY, Durand, Wis.

A Massachusetts Woman Writes: Blackstone, Mass.—"My troubles were from my age, and I felt awfully sick for three years. I had hot flashes often and frequently suffered from pains. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and now am well."
—Mrs. FRANCES COUENOVRA, Box 229, Blackstone, Mass.

Such warning symptoms as sense of suffocation, hot flashes, headaches, back-aches, dizziness, palpitation of the heart, sparks before the eyes, irregularities, constipation, variable appetite, weakness and dizziness, should be heeded by middle-aged women. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has carried many women safely through this crisis.

Bartley. But is it true that he has gone off to some other dreadful place among wild beasts and savages? she persisted—for to Miss Amelia the whole earth beyond, say, Italy and France, was a ravaging wilderness.

"He has gone out on a hunting and shooting expedition, yes," said the squire, absently.

"Now I do call that so stupid!" exclaimed Miss Amelia. "Why on earth couldn't he be satisfied to remain at home? Why did he go, do you know? Some love disappointment, I suppose!" and she laid her hand on one shoulder and sighed.

"I don't know," replied the squire. "He did not come to bid us good-by; the vessel left suddenly, Lord Carlfield says. I only heard of the boy's departure from Mr. Faradeane—"

Olivia was holding her teacup for some milk, which Bartley Bradstone had brought her, and it slipped suddenly from her fingers, spilling the tea over her pure white frock.

Bartley Bradstone had his handkerchief out, and was on his knees at her side in a moment, but she drew back out of his reach. "It is of no consequence," she said, calmly.

"I'll get you another cup. That pretty dress! Won't you let me wipe it for you?" he pleaded, tenderly.

"No, no, thanks," she returned in a voice of suppressed irritation. "I will go and change it," and she moved to the door; but as she did so, Aunt Amelia exclaimed:

"That delightful Mr. Faradeane, now really!" and Olivia paused to gather up some fancy work from the piano. "He was such a great friend of Bertie's, was he not? And I don't wonder. Such a charming man! I really do wish he were a little more—more sociable. You might ask him to dinner again, Edwin."

The squire rose and shook his head.

"It is no use," he said, "Mr. Faradeane has plainly indicated his desire to be left alone. I asked him yesterday, and several days before, when I met him out riding. I am afraid he has been, and is, ill."

Olivia put her hand upon the door, but still waited.

"Oh, I am so sorry! Fancy how irreparable to be ill and all alone in that solitary spot!" said Miss Amelia. "Poor man! I really think you ought to call, Edwin, and you, too, Bartley. I wonder—with an air of maiden timidity—"If he would think it intrusive or—pushing, if I sent him some beef tea."

The squire laughed quietly.

"Better not, you think, Edwin? Well, perhaps so; one can't be too careful. But I really think you ought to call, Bartley."

"I will, if you like," he said, but not very readily. "Shall I, Olivia?"

She turned her pale face slightly toward him.

"I do not care," she said, and opening the door, went out, and up the stairs to her own room. She stood by the white bed looking dreamily before her for a moment or two, her father's words echoing dully in her ears; then she remembered why she had come upstairs, and was about to ring for her maid, when a great wave of heat seemed to sweep over her.

"I can't go back and listen to them talking of him—not just yet, not just yet!" she murmured, putting her hand to her throat. "He has been ill—but what is he to me?" with a dry sob. Her hat and a fur cloak were lying on a chair, and she took them up absently, and putting them on, went down the stairs on to the terrace.

"Just five minutes alone!" she murmured. "Five minutes to think—no, to forget! Oh, if I could forget!" And she beat her hand upon the balustrade. "It would all be so easy if I could forget."

She stood for a moment or two looking wistfully down into the dusky avenue; then a sudden desire to lose herself in its shade possessed her.

"I'll go and see Bessie," she murmured. She had not been near the girl since the engagement, fearing the scrutiny of the simple, loving eyes more than she had dreaded aught else. "Yes, I'll go and see Bessie!" and she passed down the steps.

As she did so, Bartley Bradstone's commonplace figure came out by the drawing-room window and stood clearly defined against the light.

"Olivia! Olivia!" he called.

She drew back into the shadow and set her teeth; then, as he went in again, evidently to look for her in the house, she glided rapidly into the avenue, and went toward the lodge. She had almost reached it, was within touch of the big gates, when the figure of a woman passed through the open one and stood before her.

Olivia's nerves were strained to their utmost tension, and she shrank back with a low cry of alarm.

"Don't, don't, miss!" she said, in a suppressed whisper, "I've not come to hurt you!"

"Who are you? What do you want?" asked Olivia, trembling a little, but recovering her presence of mind, for it seemed to her that she had heard the voice before.

The woman came nearer, and the light of the lodge window falling on her face, Olivia saw that it was the gipsy who had told their fortunes at the picnic.

"You know me, you remember me, miss," she said, still in a whisper, and with a kind of hurried earnestness.

"Yes," said Olivia, breathing more freely, for there was a sad and weary expression in the woman's face, which called for compassion rather than fear. "Yes, you are the gipsy. What do you want?"

"I want to see you, miss, to speak a few words," replied Liz. "I've been watching for you, waiting for a chance to see you alone; but he's always with you."

"He?" said Olivia.

"Yes—Mr. Bradstone," continued the woman, hurriedly. "To-night I was thinking of sending a message to you by the girl who lives here—"

"Bessie?" said Olivia, wondering.

"Yes, miss, that's her name. I know she loves you, and that she'd be secret. Miss, I'm doing it at the risk of my life—"

Olivia flushed.

"What is it you want? What is it you are doing?" she asked, with a little pant.

The woman's terrible earnestness was telling upon her.

"I've come to warn you, miss," replied Liz, drawing a little closer.

Constant Headaches

When the nervous system gets run down one of the most persistent symptoms is headache. Nervous headache has been described as the cry of the starved brain for more blood.

Because of its remarkable blood-forming and blood-enriching qualities, Dr. Chase's Nerve Food ranks first as a means of overcoming nervous exhaustion, nervous prostration, headache, indigestion, sleeplessness, irritability and all the annoying symptoms of nervous breakdown.

It is not a mere color, but thorough cure for its robbers and reconstructs the wasted and depleted nerve cells.

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food

"To warn me!" repeated Olivia, shrinking back, suspiciously.

"Yes, miss, a solemn warning! Don't treat it lightly; give heed to it, for Heaven's sake. I wouldn't do it for everybody. I wouldn't risk what I'm risking to-night for any other's sake. I'm a fool to do it for yours, but you spoke to me kindly, and—"

She broke off with a glance of terror toward the road.

"I hear nothing," said Olivia, half convinced the woman was mad. "Be quick, please, I—I cannot wait. Of what do you warn me?"

"Is it true that you are to marry Mr. Bradstone, miss?" she asked, earnestly.

Olivia inclined her head.

"Yes."

"Then, for the love of Heaven, and while there's time, draw back. You don't know—"

"Stop," said Olivia. "I cannot listen to you. Say what you have to say against him—for you have something to say—before him. I will not listen," and she moved aside.

The woman caught her arm with a gesture of despairing imploration.

"Wait! wait! For your own sake, lady! For God's sake, listen to me! There's danger—"

Olivia paused, and the gipsy, with a little catch in her voice, as if she were struggling for breath, hurried on: "If you don't believe what I am going to tell you, if you think I'm lying, ask him, ask this Mr. Bradstone, if he knows—"

Her voice dropped, and Olivia, more moved than she knew, bent lower; but at that moment, before the woman could utter another word, a man's voice, thick with drink, and threatening, rose from the other side of the gate:

"Liz! Liz! Where the devil are you?"

The woman shrank, as if she had been struck; then, drawing her shawl over her head, whispered, reproachfully, "Too late!" and crying, "Here I am, Seth!" hurried through the gate into the road.

Lachute, Que., 25th Sept., 1908. Minard's Liniment Co., Limited. Gentlemen,—Ever since coming home from the Boer war I have been bothered with running fever sores on my legs. I tried many salves and liniments; also doctored continuously for the blood, but got no permanent relief, till last winter when my mother got me to try MINARD'S LINIMENT. The effect of which was almost magical. Two bottles completely cured me and I have worked every working day since.

Yours gratefully,
JOHN WALSH.

Your Boys and Girls!
An indoor snow-ball battle will furnish amusement on days when an outdoor one is impossible and it is not as disastrous as it sounds. Put all the furniture in the corners of the room. Then take a quantity of old newspapers and let the children crush them into huge balls. Have them divide into sides. Place them on each side and let the bombardment begin. The side which sends the largest number of balls to the other side in a given length of time wins.

A paper railroad is a quieter form of amusement. The children cut the paper into strips about half an inch wide; then these strips are laid on the floor, end to end, and held in place by pins stuck lengthwise into the carpet. Single or double tracks running over books or hassocks, and little paper houses can be "built" for stations. Groups of these placed at intervals along the railroad, and spool wheels, and the passengers can be paper dolls.

Minard's Liniment Cures Diphtheria.

Spring Suitings!

Have just opened our new Spring Suitings. We were fortunate in securing a splendid range of English Worsteds and Irish and Scotch Tweeds.

Notwithstanding the scarcity of the woollens and the drawbacks in freights, we are able to show as good a selection as before the war. The latest in cut, the best in make. Write for samples and self-measuring cards.

A PRACTICAL HOUSE DRESS.

1759—Percale, gingham, chambray, serge, challie and flannelette are popular materials for this style. The fronts are reversible. They are faced in reverse style to meet the rolled collar. The sleeve may be finished with a band cuff or in loose effect with a facing. The skirt is a 3-piece model, joined to the waist under a belt, and has smart pockets over the fronts. The Pattern is cut in 6 sizes: 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44 inches bust measure. It requires 7 yards of 36-inch material for a 36-inch size. The skirt measures about 3 1/2 yards at the lower edge.

A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 10 cents in silver or stamps.

A SMART BUT SIMPLE GOWN.

1774—This attractive model would be nice for taffeta in a solid color, in stripes or checks. It is also good for linen, batiste, crepe, chambray, gingham and other wash materials. The sleeve and neck frills could be of net, tulle or lace. Contrasting material could be used for the skirt and waist trimming. The sleeve may be finished in wrist length, or in elbow length with a pointed cuff. The Pattern is cut in 6 sizes: 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44 inches bust measure. It requires 7 1/2 yards of 36-inch material for a 36-inch size. The skirt measures about 3 1/2 yards at the foot.

THE COCAINE PERIL.

LONDON, Aug. 7th, 1916.

The new regulations against the sale of cocaine are wholly admirable, provided one forgives the Home Office for not dealing with the evil many months ago, when the restriction of the hours of drinking and the arrival of a number of American soldiers of fortune with the Canadian Expeditionary Force first had the effect of spreading the vice widely in the West End of London—a most unlooked-for result of the Board of Control's liquor restrictions campaign. Reputable druggists are to blame, too, for providing soldiers with these opiates for use when wounded. I have heard that the Germans all carry such pain-killers, and that our men picked them up in great quantities on the ground gaped at Neuve Chapelle and in other early fights. There are, indeed, many causes for that spread of the habit among soldiers. There are no reasons against its suppression. One point, however, will cause some difficulty. As the regulations are drafted no unregistered dentist, which includes most of the large section who are known as "American dentists," will henceforth be able to get any cocaine for painless extraction of teeth, unless he applies for, and obtains a special permit from the Home Office.

BACK TO THE BICYCLE.

It is expected that August 1 will be a notable date in the bicycle trade, for on that day the full force of the petrol restrictions will be felt, and the rush for bicycles will be greater than ever. Already the question of supply is becoming a difficult one. Thousands of men have been called away from the factories to the ranks or to munition work, and though the women and girls who are replacing them are working remarkably well and managing the automatic machines successfully, the shortage of labor is severely felt. First-class firms say that what used to be known as the "cellar trade" is now extinct. This was the manufacture of very cheap machines at such low wages that to make a living even in a cellar the whole family had to take part. The fathers of these families are now earning their £4 or £5 a week in munition factories, and those who formerly bought their bicycles are buying good machines and not grumbling at the still very reasonable price. There has never been such a boom in women's bicycles as now. Every class of woman wants a bicycle. It has been noted that several princesses have lately been seen a wheel, and that ladies from big "country" houses are using their bicycles constantly to save the precious petrol of the car. Thousands of girls now going into the towns to work live in homes which never had to consider convenience of access to City offices. They require bicycles, and so do the girls whose "buses" have been stopped, while the greatest demand of all comes from the munition workers generally. The munition girls are buying enormous numbers of very nice machines.

MISSIONARY INFLUENCES.

As German missions within the British Empire are now practically out of the hands of the Germans, the question is arising whether it is justifiable to allow large bodies of simple races within the Empire to continue under the influence of aliens, although they may be so-called Christian teachers. English mission circles are hoping that the British Government will pursue a firm and definite policy, and remove this anomaly, from which there is little doubt we have suffered during this war. The great German mission in Chota, Nagpur, in which many thousand natives are included, is now in the hands of two English societies—the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel and the Church Missionary Society—and the Government of India are giving them substantial financial help to carry on and develop the work. In other parts of India German missions are now controlled either by Americans or Swedes. In Assam the planters have declared that on no consideration whatever will they allow German missionaries in the future to work among the laborers on their plantations. British influence is already being extended in what was lately known as German South-west Africa and German New Guinea. In the last remaining German colony of East Africa the British missionaries, numbering about 50, have been interested since the war broke out. Little news has been received about them. Many of the native British missionaries are known to be dead.

THE PRICE OF A SUNKEN SHIP.

Many high prices have been paid for prize ships at the Baltic Exchange, but the highest point was reached on July 31st, when a little German steamer which had lain at the bottom of the sea for three months was bought by a British firm for £28,100. The Lome was built in 1888 in Hamburg, and her tonnage is 2,583 gross. The auctioneer announced that for the first time since the war started Italian subjects would be allowed to bid on equal grounds with French and Belgian subjects. An international group of shipowners were the highest bidders. Early in the war the Lome was sunk off the coast of the Cameroons to save her from capture, but a commander of a British naval ship obtained permission to raise her and towed her to London. She is lying in the Surrey Commercial Dock now looking very fit and trim, the wisdom of the British salvage idea being reflected in the price paid for her.

REDUCED LIGHTING AND ACCIDENTS.

Accidents multiplied when the lighting reduction regulations shrouded the streets in semi-darkness. Has the unfortunate subject who has unwittingly sustained bodily injury by collision with sinister stationary objects in the gloom any remedy at law? I am afraid that his chances of obtaining substantial pecuniary compensation are not very great. The House of Lords has just reversed a decision of the Court of Appeal in which the latter gave damages in such a case. It has aroused some interest. The circumstances are these: On a dark and rainy night the driver of a taxi-cab was approaching a railway station. In accordance with the regulations the street lighting was considerably reduced. The taxi-cab ran into a post which had been erected many years ago by the company in the vicinity and afterwards authorised in a private Act of Parliament. The man was injured, and he brought an action against the company based on that allegation that they had failed in their duty to provide protection against such accident. It is a well-known principle of law that when statutory powers are conferred they must be exercised with reasonable care. Had the company exercised their statutory powers with reasonable care? Had they been guilty of any acts or omissions on which negligence could be based? The House of Lords decided that they had not been so guilty. The private Act of Parliament had authorised the leaving of the post as it was, "in the duty or authority," Lord Wrenbury remarked, "he simply not to do an act—merely to leave things as they are—it is impossible to be negligent in not doing anything."

AT HYDE PARK CORNER.

The weather this week-end reminds us all of that roasting Bank Holiday week-end of 1914 which preceded the war. Looking back one can hardly remember in all the strained "hazy" since, another Saturday and Sunday of summer time so perfect, with such crowds in the streets. Everybody has been out of doors. Last Sunday afternoon on the Embankment people stood in a queue 300 yards long to see the captured submarine. Some waited three hours for their turn to pass on to Temple Pier. Hyde Park has been full morning, noon and night. Judging by the military and civilian riders in the Row one would have said this was May, not the verge of August. In the afternoon and evening the multitude surged into the Park, and all the white private cars by hundreds carried splendidly-dressed people past the Achilles statue. Lord French, Lord Derby, Lord Beresford, Countesses, wives of Ambassadors, stars of musical comedy—one saw them all go by. Park Lane is "up" again, and the block in the Park is made ten times worse because the "bus" traffic is diverted through there. Buses, cars, smart horse equipages, staff officers on horseback—all crush through the Municipal Improvements.

Our attention is drawn to the welcome activity which the new Council is displaying by its prompt action in the matter of the typhoid outbreak on the Southside. It has been a regrettable fact in the past that the appearance of even so dangerous a disease has not always attracted from the health authorities and Council the immediate and thorough attention it demands, largely, no doubt, because neither have had the power and the means effectively to deal with it. We are now being supplied with a much improved water service, which will number among its effects a greatly lessened danger of this dread disease. We learn that the Council have at once set about laying the new twelve-inch pipe from the termination of the six-inch line, so that the service will be continued without delay as far as the infected area, which will no longer be dependent for its water upon the wells which are undoubtedly responsible for the outbreak. When the South Side is at length provided with an efficient water service the benefit to the health, comfort and fire protection of that quarter will be inestimable.

We are pleased to note, also, the progress that is being made with the new road surface on Duckworth Street. We do not agree for a moment with those who condemn this experiment on the ground of cost. The streets of St. John's have for years been a disgrace to a city of its size and wealth. Where improvements are really necessary, the question of cost should, within limits, not be considered: if the funds are insufficient they should be increased. This road, when it is completed, promises to be a success. If it is, we shall have at least one first-class street in the city.

and we shall probably find that the heavy initial cost has been economy in the end. The mere existence of such a road has long been desirable if only as a contrast with and example to others of the city. We hope the Council will be able to follow the example in many other places where it is greatly needed.

The Salvation Army.

The good works of this great organization have passed for long as a byword among people of all classes and denominations, but it is not often that one who is not a member has an opportunity of learning how extensive and varied they are. That opportunity was in part afforded to us yesterday when we listened to the address of Commissioner Richards at the College Hall. The simple narrative alone which fell from his lips would have compelled the admiration of the most prejudiced and antagonistic listener. Those who were not included in his audience lost something by their absence. To many, even those most familiar in a general way with the Army's activities, his words were a revelation. Where relief and assistance, practical and spiritual, are most necessary, among the suffering dregs of humanity, there they are most freely and effectively given; witness the Commissioner's stories of the London embankment, the lepers of Java and the miserable deformed beggars of India. What other body or denomination, we may ask without disrespect or invidiousness, could work with such success in fields so diverse, so widespread and so difficult? And the method, as much as the fact, of the Army's success is notable, for it first cures the drunkard of his vice and the beggar of his disease before it imparts to him its own spiritual fervor, which to so many, ignorant of its practical ministrations, is its one distinguishing characteristic. It is no wonder that it wins so many converts from among these afflicted, and finds in them its most zealous disciples. More truly than any other missionary body that we can think of it can adopt as its motto the words that Virgil puts into Dido's mouth—"Non ignara moli miseris succurrere disco." We are not a champion or convert of the Salvation Army, but we are glad of the chance to pay it a deserved tribute. Long may its good work continue.

MORE SOLDIERS RETURNING.—A number of wounded soldiers, Gallipoli and France veterans, are on board the s.s. Scandinavian, due at Quebec in a few days. It is possible for them to reach here on Monday of next week.

Rev. W. D. Stenlake at Wesley Church.

A large congregation attended Wesley Church last evening. The Rev. W. D. Stenlake, a returned hero from the Dardanelles, was the preacher and took for his text the words of the Saviour to St. Matthew, "Follow Me," and preached a very powerful discourse therefrom. His references to the Newfoundland Regiment on the Gallipoli Peninsula were very touching and a tribute of respect paid Private Barrett and Corporal H. Taylor, of Wesley Church, who have made the supreme sacrifice, struck a sympathetic chord in all those present. The rev. gentleman's little talk to the boys and girls on the two great "bullies" of history—Goliath and the Kaiser—was both timely and instructive. The rev. gentleman lectures to-night on his experiences as a soldier.

Boys Arrested and Convicted of Theft.

The police detectives were busy all Saturday last looking for the ones that helped to "clean out" the motor car of Mr. Ralph Bishop. The car was left standing in Bishop's Cove, off Water Street, the previous night when it was raided. Yesterday morning Detective Byrne got the scent of the culprits and after following up the trail for a couple of hours "pinched" two lads of 9 and 18 years old, respectively, and brought them to the lock-up. The accused were arraigned before Judge Morris this morning charged with the larceny of one silver flask, two flash lamps and several other articles. The lads admitted their guilt and in view of the fact that it was their first offence, His Honor let them off on suspended sentence.

Reids' Boats.

The Argyle arrived at Placentia at 4.30 p.m. yesterday.
The Clyde arrived at Lewisporte at 12.30 p.m. yesterday.

Here and There.

Enamelware can be cleaned with soap and whitening rubbed on with a cloth.
CLERGY ARRIVE.—Revs. Canon Bolt and Colley arrived in the city by the local train at noon today.
WEATHER REPORT.—The weather across country is calm and fine, temperature 55 to 60 above.
REACHES MACEO.—The Olinda, Capt. Noseworthy, arrived at Macleo yesterday, 44 days from this port.
THE STEPHANO.—The s.s. Stephano reached Halifax from New York this forenoon and leaves again for this port to-morrow afternoon.
BOWINGS' SHIPS.—The Prospero left Westport at daylight this morning, going north. The Portia sails west on Wednesday.
WITH POOR FARE.—The schr. Conqueror and Young Builders have arrived back at Bonne Bay from the Labrador with 120 and 150 qts. of fish, respectively.
SHIPMENT OF NEW FISH.—The Ida M. Zinck sails to-day for the foreign market, having on board 4,228 qts. of new cured fish from the Smith Co., Ltd.
VISITING HIS HOME TOWN.—Mr. Fred Harvey of North Sydney, but formerly of this city, is a passenger on the incoming express due this afternoon on his annual visit to the city.
AT GIBRALTAR.—The schr. Lowell F. Parks, Capt. Geo. Camp, arrived at Gibraltar this morning and received orders to proceed to Alicante to discharge her cargo of fish. The schr. sailed from Rencontre, Fortune Bay, on Aug. 10th and made the passage in 18 days.
GOES TO HOSPITAL.—Mr. Walter Noseworthy, of Hr. Grace, arrived in town to-day and goes to the hospital for treatment. Mr. Jacob Patten, an old and respected fisherman of Foxtrap, also arrived on the same train and entered the hospital to have an operation performed.
BARQT. E. S. HOCKEN CHANGES HANDS.—To-day we hear of another new purchase in local mercantile marine circles. It is that the barqt. E. S. Hocken has been purchased by Messrs. A. S. Rendell & Co. The Hocken is one of our largest and staunchest fish carriers. She was commanded and owned by Capt. Martyn. She has passed into the hands of her new owners and Capt. Connolly, late of the Dunure, goes in charge of her.

Donations promised of Cakes, Flowers, Candy, Ice Cream, etc., for the Silverton Garden Party, Wednesday, in aid of the Mid-Grenfell Institute, may be left at the Grenfell Institute on Tuesday afternoon on Wednesday morning up to 11 o'clock. If desired, a messenger will call for donations any time Tuesday on receipt of a phone message to Nos. 341 or 60. Further donations as above will be gratefully received.—aug26,if

THE FACIAL EXPRESSION AND AIR.

A woman's facial expression is usually least attractive when she rises in the morning. This is due to the fact that when sleeping the amount of air one breathes is materially reduced compared to the amount consumed when awake and in action.

Upon arising don a heavy dressing gown, and stand before an open window. Indulge in the following breathing exercises which should be practiced every morning.

Begin by inhaling deeply—the length of time consumed for each breath should last from five to fifteen seconds and increase it as one enlarges the air cells and becomes accustomed to inhaling.

Hold the breath as long as you can then exhale—consuming the same amount of time in discharging the air as you did in inhaling it.

This is one of the best exercises for increasing the chest expansion, causing renewed action of the circulation and making one immune to colds, that has been discovered.

The average woman faces her mirror and fusses over the waves of hair on her forehead, and in her absorption she forgets that not even half of her critics will meet her face to face.

A hat may be completely spoiled by not watching the side angle, or by taking heed that the hair fills all awkward hollows.

Just so with hair itself. Not only is the side view important for the sake of those who view us from the side, but the whole structure of the coiffure of the moment depends upon the profile view.

To have a good profile one must be extremely careful as to the pose of the head. If the head is thrust too far forward it makes the chin too prominent, and if the head settles backward too heavily it gives undue prominence to the throat bone.

Noses, which are the last, but most important part of the profile to consider, are the most difficult member to improve. Noses badly made by nature, are distressing, but the fault may be wonderfully improved by massage and the effect also lessened by the proper arrangement of the hair.

Amsterdam, Aug. 23.—Via London—Rumania is preparing for war, according to Dr. Lederer, Bucharest correspondent of the Berlin Tageblatt. A despatch from him dated Sunday, says:

"There is ground for some uneasiness as to the attitude of Rumania. The outward aspect of the city is greatly changed. Gay Bucharest has become a grave city, and all like signs in public indicate that everybody is preparing for eventualities, and that the country is getting ready for war.

"I still believe that Brattiano is playing a game with Russia. In political negotiations at Bucharest Von Hindenburg is now playing the foremost role.

TO-DAY'S Messages.

10.30 A.M.

LONDON, To-Day. An official issued by the War Office to-night concerning the operations around Saloniki says there was only artillery activity on the Struma and Doiran front. Our aeroplanes bombed the enemy camps at Kala, Toplica and Prosenik, about six miles south of Demir Hisar.

SIGNIFICANT CLEMENCY.

BERLIN, To-Day. The following official was issued to-day: "The German Emperor has ordered the postponement until after the war of the execution of all sentences imposed for punishment on French prisoners, both civilian and military, on account of acts committed to Sept. 1 this year."

ON ALL FRONTS.

LONDON, To-Day. Germany and Italy are at last at war. Italy having finally signed the situation that existed for months by declaring that from Monday Italy considers herself the enemy of her former Teutonic ally. Heavy fighting still progresses between the Entente and Teutonic Allies in the Macedonian theatre from the region of Lake Ochrida to the eastward of Kavala on the Aegean Sea, but with results clouded by the variant statements of the Berlin and Paris War Offices. Berlin reports that Bulgarian forces operating west of Lake Ochrida captured the town of Malk in Albania, and that along the Struma King Ferdinand's men are approaching the mouth of the River. Paris admits that the Bulgarians have taken all but one fort at Kavala, but says the newly acquired positions have come under the fire of British warships. Paris says that along the Struma French artillery are bombarding their adversaries, while west of the Vardar, near Lake Ostrovo, the Serbs have put down vigorous attacks by the Bulgars. Berlin says the attacks of the British on Saturday south of Thiepval, northwest of Pozieres and not only nourishes and sustains body and brain, but tastes mighty good.

The sweetness of long-baked whole wheat, blended with the delicate taste of malted barley is a wonderfully delicious flavor.

these provinces and at the same time liberate the Roumanians now under Austrian domination. It recently was reported that Russia had offered Czernovitz to Roumania as a reward if she would unite with the Entente Allies. Roumania also covets Bessarabia, the extreme southwestern province of Russia on the Black Sea, which was taken from her by the Berlin Treaty of 1878.

GERMANS REPULSED AT VERDUN.

PARIS, To-Day. The Germans made several attacks on the French positions at Verdun last night but were repulsed, says today's announcement of the War Office.

ROUMANIA'S DECISION.

PARIS, To-Day. Roumania's decision to enter the war was reached at a meeting of the Crown Council held at Bucharest yesterday morning, says a Havas despatch from Genoa. The Wolff Agency announces that the German Federal Council was convoked immediately after the decision became known.

SHACKLETON'S RESCUE EXPEDITION.

BUENOS AYRES, To-Day. Shackleton left Punta Arenas, Chile, on Saturday on board the ship Yelcho to make the third attempt to rescue the members of his expedition marooned on Elephant Island.

Norman Angell "Convict."

Berlin Reports English Writer Has Eighteen Months Sentence. Berlin, via wireless to Sayville, Aug. 21.—According to the Overseas News Agency, an Italian newspaper has published a report that the English writer Norman Angell has been sentenced to eighteen months at hard labor, after having been under arrest for several months, because he declined to take part in the war.

The report, says Mr. Angell's plea that he had conscientious objections to war service was overruled by an English court.

This unconfirmed report from Berlin is the first intimation that Mr. Angell had become involved in any such difficulties. He is the author of a number of works on war and diplomacy. Mr. Angell spent his youth in the United States. He is best known for his advocacy of international peace.

Mr. Angell has made several visits to America during the war, lecturing on peace at first, but last February he advocated complete preparedness for that country. Most of his lectures were delivered in New York.

RESERVIST WRITES HOME.—In a letter to his mother of July 26th, Reservist A. Cochran, writing on board H.M.S. Columbellia, says that he is well and anxious to hear news from home. He mentions Reservists Albert and Fred. Power as being also in good health.

INEBRIATE INJURES HIMSELF.—After being brought to the lockup Saturday night, a helpless inebriate fell in the cell in which he was put and inflicted such an ugly wound in his head that Dr. Roberts had to insert five stitches to close it. This morning the inebriate had to deposit $6 for his release, $5 for medical services and the remainder to the court.

Young at 47.

By RUTH CAMERON.

Habit is either the best of servants or the worst of masters.

To have brought four children into the world, brought them up carefully, done practically all the work of the house and withal to have exercised for twenty years of married life that unremitting oversight of small expenses which is the price of saving on limited means— isn't that enough to make any woman look old forty-seven?

In our neighbourhood is a woman whose life is described by that paragraph. And she is the freshest, youngest looking woman of her age in the whole neighbourhood.

We were asking her the other day what her secret was.

Her Secret is An Open One.

She laughed at first and disclaimed it. Then she added more seriously: "Yes, I have one little custom that has helped a great deal. Every day, after I get my noon dishes done, no matter how much work I still have to do, I sit down and sleep for fifteen minutes. I can't tell you how much it refreshes me. I don't think I could get along without that nap. That's all the secret I have. You can try it if you like."

"I'd like it all right," said one woman; "but I simply couldn't rest until my work was done."

"And I simply couldn't get to sleep that time," said another.

She Couldn't Do It At First.

"I couldn't at first," said the woman who is young at forty-seven; "but I cultivated the habit until I could."

That's what one good habit has done for a woman.

There is too much said, it seems to me, about the danger of bad habits and too little about the value of good. A good habit is a treasure that will last a lifetime.

It is stowed away in a place where neither moth nor rust doth corrupt, nor thieves break through and steal. You may draw interest on it any day in the year.

Sir Walter Scott Was Grateful.

Sir Walter Scott spent the best years of his youth in the routine of a law office. It would seem to us that that was precious time wasted. But Scott says it was the habit of industry which he acquired then which enabled him to turn out so many thousands of words a day in later life, when, in the cause of honor, he performed tasks which ordinary men would have called impossible.

Charlotte Bronte was brought up by a strict aunt, who kept her at household tasks when she wanted to go writing. Yet Charlotte speaks gratefully of the habits of order which her aunt thereby inculcated.

A good habit is a path of resistance worn in the right direction. We have good reason to be grateful to ourselves or to anyone else who has helped us beat out such a path.

Patriotic Family.

The Brocklehurst family is well represented in this war and Mr. Charles Brocklehurst, of the Colonial Secretary's Office, has four sons now fighting with His Majesty's forces, namely:—George and Stan of the Newfoundland Regiment, and John and Samuel with the Canadians. The last mentioned young man enlisted recently in Montreal with the Irish Rangers and was favourably known in this city. There is no need to fear the Huns while the Empire has such patriots as the Brocklehurst family.

BAD ROADS.

The roads that lead to Hayseed Center make people's tempers warm; in vain, in vain, with voice of Stentor, I clamor for reform. The roads are full of holes and ridges, that bust our costly tires, and there are sway-backed, creaking bridges, together tied with wires. We have a lovely, growing city, at which the tourists shy; and it seems seven times a pity bad roads must black her eye. Our city hall is rich with gilding, we've churches and we've schools, and our large new gymnasium building is fixed with swimming pools. We have a bank and three physicians, and in our public square there is a stand where our musicians play tunes beyond compare. We ought to grow, and yet we're shrunken, because our roads are bad, for folks won't come unless they're drunk—to see our lovely grad. And still we'll foot away our taxes, and have our roads a wreck, till we apply our little axes to some official neck.

Increases Your Weight, Restores Lost Strength, Prevents Hives

Every day come new converts to that great army of men and women who rejoice in new-found health that came to them through the use of that wonderful blood-renewing preparation called "FERROZONE." Very simple how it acts. All you have to do is take two small chocolate-coated tablets with a sip of water at the close of each meal.

Ferrozone is a marvel. It contains just what thin blood lacks—lots of iron your blood is able to absorb. Ferrozone puts life and vim into the blood. Makes it rich, red and nourishing. Naturally the body is better fed and grows stronger day by day.

Of course digestion must be improved, and probably the stomach will require aid as well. Ferrozone serves the purpose admirably. Those who use it, enjoy appetite and digestive powers far beyond the ordinary.

That tired feeling is replaced by the buoyant, joyous sensation of health and vigor. Day by day as your strength increases you feel new energy surging through your veins, and know that a great tonic of great merit is at work.

No remedy more nourishing or uplifting, no treatment so sure to bring lasting health, good spirits and contentment. Ferrozone contains just what run-down folks need; it cures because it supplies more nutriment than you can get in any other way. 50c. per box or six for $2.50 at all dealers, or by mail from The Catarrh-zone Co., Kingston, Ont.

Not for a long time has there been so little of accomplished fact to record on all the fronts, though this is not so much for lack of the facts themselves as because we are not yet permitted to know what they are. Especially is this true of the East front, where the capture of Stanislau by the Russians and the beginning of Von Bothmer's retreat from Tarnopol marked a decisive stage in the Russian operations which it would be idle to suppose is not being pushed further. But since they have taken Jablonitz, one of the isolated and important Carpathian passages, we have had almost complete silence from the Russian headquarters. It is impossible to say whether the simultaneous drive from Brody and Stanislau upon Lemberg is being continued, or whether General Brusiloff is preparing for a serious and thorough invasion of Hungary through the Carpathians.

From the Isonzo, too, we hear almost nothing, though there is a very natural explanation in that case. The Italians must move on Istria along three routes, more or less parallel, from Tolmino in the north to the Carso plateau and the seaboard in the south. Just north of Gorizia the army following the middle route has to take from the Austrians a very strong mountain position, the defence of which is undoubtedly holding up all the operations. It might be easy enough to advance north and south of this point, which is marked by Mount San Gabriele, but to do so would leave a dangerous salient projecting into the middle of the Italian armies and exposing the two inside flanks to attack. We shall expect to hear of heavy fighting at Tolmino before further serious attempts are made to push forward on the Carso plateau; the Italians have a fine opportunity and are confident of success, but they have need to go slowly and methodically.

As if to compensate the standstill on these two fronts, the French and British have made further gains of importance on the Somme and fighting has begun in earnest in the Balkans, while signal success has rewarded the Grand Duke in Armenia. The British made another advance last week north of Thiepval, which seems now to be drawn into a pocket, just as Pozières was. If the British succeed in encircling it much more, it will have to share the fate of that village. The French have done much the same thing at Clerly by their brilliant capture of Maurepas.

on the Somme is well illustrated in the apt comparison of the line to the teeth of a saw. Where a place, such as Thiepval, Guillemont and some others, is too strong to be taken by frontal assault, Joffre and Haig gradually push forward on either side of it, until it can be swept with the cross fire from both directions. It may be said that the British and French salients would find themselves in the same predicament, which is mostly true; but it is noticeable that the flattening out of these indentations has always been in our favour. The Germans can say what they like of our losses and claim that our advance has been stopped; the one fact that stands out as indisputable is that it has not been stopped but embraces nearly every day some important point of vantage or other.

No one will dispute for a moment that the most important front is the West one, either by reason of the size of the forces engaged or the effect that would follow a striking success for either side; but it is for the moment overshadowed in interest by events that are transpiring in the Balkans. So little that is really definite has been reported from Athens or Salonika that it is hard to see exactly what has happened, but the hostile forces are evidently engaged all along the line. While the offensive has come from the Allies, the Bulgarians have, on the flanks at least, anticipated them. On the Eastern end, at Seres and Kavala, they have assumed the aggressive to a degree that bids fair to raise a crisis in Greece with possible political effects which it is not our purpose to consider here. On the Western end they seem to have had some initial success against the Serbians, though we can afford to ignore most of the extravagant claims made by their War Office. Any progress they make in Albania will be of little use to them and will only lengthen on their already extended line. The position will become serious as soon as the great Anglo-French army begins to move north in earnest up the Vardar and Struma Valleys; the other movements are subordinate and cannot have much effect. This advance has not yet begun, and there are probably good reasons for the delay. That they are political ones, concerned with Roumania and Greece, there can be little doubt. The whole situation is doubtful and clouded, but in a very short time now the very force of circumstances may clarify it and show exactly how the land lies.

Commissioner Richards at the College Hall.

The Annual Congress of the Salvation Army is being conducted by Commissioner W. J. Richards, who is well known here. He arrived in town on Saturday's express and received a warm welcome from a large number of Army officers and the Life Saving Guards. The Congress embraces a long and interesting programme, of which the chief item was the address given by the Commissioner at the Methodist College Hall yesterday afternoon. His Excellency being absent, the Hon. J. R. Bennett presided, and with such success as to win from the Commissioner the title of the "cream of Chairmen." The audience completely filled the hall and followed every part of the address and service with the closest attention.

Mr. Bennett introduced the speaker in a short speech, in which he gave some striking figures in evidence of the great work done by the Salvation Army here. Commissioner Richards then spoke for upwards of an hour, which seemed but a few minutes to his interested listeners. He attempted no general description of the work of the Army, which would have been too great a task, but by reference and anecdote succeeded in suggesting it very powerfully. He told a number of stories, all of which touched the hearts of his audience while many of them provoked at the same time their laughter: He told of work well and unselfishly done in London slums, in the Army Island in New Zealand, among the Java lepers and the Colombo beggars, and in Africa among the ignorant and superstitious Zulus. By implication more than direct statement he showed how enormous and world-wide were the activities and influence of the Salvation Army, while in every instance he paid tribute to the spirit of devotion and self-sacrifice that animated the workers. He spoke also of the Army men at the front, numbering some 80,000, and of their influence for good in the trenches. He concluded an eloquent and effective address by reference to the Army's work in Canada and Newfoundland and some words of graceful appreciation of St. John's and its citizens.

The Mayor, Mr. Gosling, in moving a vote of thanks to the Chairman, spoke of the pleasure and privilege it had been to him to be present and hear the Commissioner's address; the vote was heartily seconded by Hon. D. Morrison and carried by acclamation. A collection taken up met with a handsome response. Last night the Commissioner preached a revival sermon, taking as his text "All we like sheep have gone astray." Brigadier Green, of Toronto, was the soloist and sang splendidly. On Thursday the Commissioner will preach at the Citadel on "The Value of a Child."

Presentation

Rupert, son of Mr. I. C. Morris, who is with the present Company of volunteers, was the recipient of a wristlet watch on Saturday evening as a testimony of the esteem in which he was held by his fellow-workers in his father's employ. Mr. D. Willar made the presentation and some happy speeches were made by those present.

MINARD'S LINIMENT FOR SALE EVERYWHERE.

Mr. Galsworthy Looks Forward.

Mr. John Galsworthy concludes a series of articles entitled "And—after" in the Observer, thus: "It will be heart-breaking if from this stupendous cataclysm no lasting good to the world and to Britain can be brought forth. Its horror, even now, few realize who are not at the front. "One who was many months on ambulance duty in the French lines wrote thus: "They talk of the war! Let them come close in! Let them see lying around emaciated heads with no bodies within a couple of hundred yards; let them see the bloody confusion of heads and entrails and limbs which is showered around when a trench is mined; let them see the men driven insane by the sights and sounds of the battlefield, who turn and rend their comrades, and have to be shot down by them; let them come where hundreds of wounded men are lying on contorted ground screaming the whole night through (and not one in a million has heard a man scream!) and then talk of the war!"

What Then?

"If from this horror, fought through and endured, as we believe, for the future of our land and the future of mankind, there is to come no blessing, no advance to freedom and health and justice. . . . What then?"

"Nothing will be easier than to take up again the peace life of Britain as it was, and worse than that, because coarsened by the passions of war and embittered by the strain of a greater economic stress. Nothing will be easier than to give rein to the instincts of greed, pugnacity, and rancour, now hard held in by sentiment and the common peril; to step back and walk blindly in a country where all is faction; where class shuns class and men and women are bitterly opposed; where the youth of the nation is all the time running to seed; where children go hungry and millions throughout the land are miserably housed and fed; where the access to justice is often still beyond the reach of the poor; where helplessness is not yet a guarantee against ill-usage. Once the war-effort is over, nothing will be easier than—from a resolved and united nation—to become a crowd pressing this way and that, without view and without vision, seeking purse and place, or at the best the fulfilment of small, factious policies.

"No one can tell yet what will be the world-sequel of this war—whether it will bring a long peace, or other wars; the enlargement of democracy or the hardening of autocratic rule; the United States of Europe or a congeries of distrustful Powers working for another 'Day.' Only one thing we know, that in our charge will be our own national life, to make or to mar; to prepare against whatever fortune the outer world shall brew, to prepare against the subtle march of inward dissolution. Our future does not lie on the knees of the gods; it lies in our own hands, and hearts, and brains, and the use that we shall make of them.

Shall We Go That Way?

"Swift is the descent to hell, and no wings fly so fast thither as the wings of material success. Shall we go that way? Or shall we, having fixed our eyes on a goal far beyond the finish of this war, quietly, resolutely, in our conduct to the outer world and in our national life, begin at once transmuting into deeds those words: Freedom, Health, Justice for all."

"As a man thinks and dreams, so does he act. It is time to think and dream a little of the future, while the spirit of unity is on us, the vision of our Country with us; so that when we see again the face of Peace we may continue to act in unity, having in our hearts the good of our great Land, and in our eyes the vision of Her, growing ever to truer greatness and beauty."

Rumania is Preparing For War

German Correspondent Says Gay Bucharest Has Become a Grave City.
London, Aug. 23.—The King of Rumania received the German and Austrian ministers to Bucharest in private audience on Monday, according to a Cologne despatch to the Exchange Telegraph Company, by way of Amsterdam. The ministers were received first separately, and afterwards jointly. It was the longest audience ever granted by the Rumanian King to the Teutonic representatives.

ENEMY ARTILLERY ACTIVE.
LONDON, Aug. 27.
British troops took the offensive last night on the Somme front, north of Bazentin-le-Petit, the War Office announcement says, and captured 200 yards of German trenches, taking one machine gun. During the night enemy artillery was active between the Somme and the Ancre. Near Hill 60 the enemy exploded a mine which caused no damage. There is nothing to report from the rest of the front.

Violent Fighting Between Serbs and Bulgarians.

PARIS, Aug. 27.
Violent fighting between Bulgarian and Serbian troops continues on the Macedonian front in the region of Lake Ostrovo, the War Office announced to-day. The Serbians making counter attacks have pushed back the Bulgars. All but one of the forts without the Greek port of Kavla have been occupied by the Bulgarians. Two British monitors and one cruiser bombarded these positions on Friday.

French Repulse Attacks.

PARIS, Aug. 27.
Three attacks against the French positions in Vaux-Chapitre Wood, to the northeast of Verdun, and in Apremont Forest, were repulsed.

Attacks by Prussian Guard Repulsed.

LONDON, Aug. 27.
Heavy attacks made by the Prussian Guard against the British positions near Thiepval on the Somme front were repulsed by the Worcestershire and Wiltshire Regiments, it was officially announced this afternoon. Covered by artillery fire the Prussians in their attacks on Thiepval were also repulsed, ground being gained on both sides of Mouquet Farm, notably to the southwest, where four hundred yards of German trenches along the Courcellette-Thiepval road were captured. The official statement was as follows: The enemy bombarded our first line of trenches along the greater portion of our front, south of the Ancre at various times from seven o'clock last night until nearly this morning. Covered by artillery fire he attacked our positions about Gullément between the Quaruss and Montauban-Gullemond Road. Near Mouquet farm we made further progress both on the east side of the farmstead and also on the southwest where we have taken another 400 yards of the enemy's trenches along the Courcellette-Thiepval road.

British Make Further Progress.

LONDON, Aug. 27.
The following official statement has been issued: During the past twenty-four hours bad weather to some extent interfered with our operations. We have gained ground northwest of Ghinchy. In the afternoon there was considerable artillery activity by both sides, the enemy fire being directed mainly against our support trenches, more especially toward the north of Longueval. Our guns blew up some enemy bomb stores. Between Neuve-Chapelle and Armentières we exploded mines. The enemy blew up two small mines southwest of Anchy to the south of Ypres salient. There were no casualties in either case. Four German officers and 50 men of other ranks were captured south of Ancre last night and this morning.

Italian Successes.

ROME, Aug. 27.
Italian troops have won additional successes in the Alpine regions along the northern part of the Austro-Italian front, the War Office has announced. The advance was made in the Fassa Alps and in the Travinigolo and Rienz Valleys. No special activity in the Gorizia sector is reported.

Serbs Defeated.

SOFFIA, Aug. 27.
The defeat of the Serbians with very heavy losses, is claimed officially by the Bulgarian War Office. The Bulgars claim to have reached the great Aegean Coast.

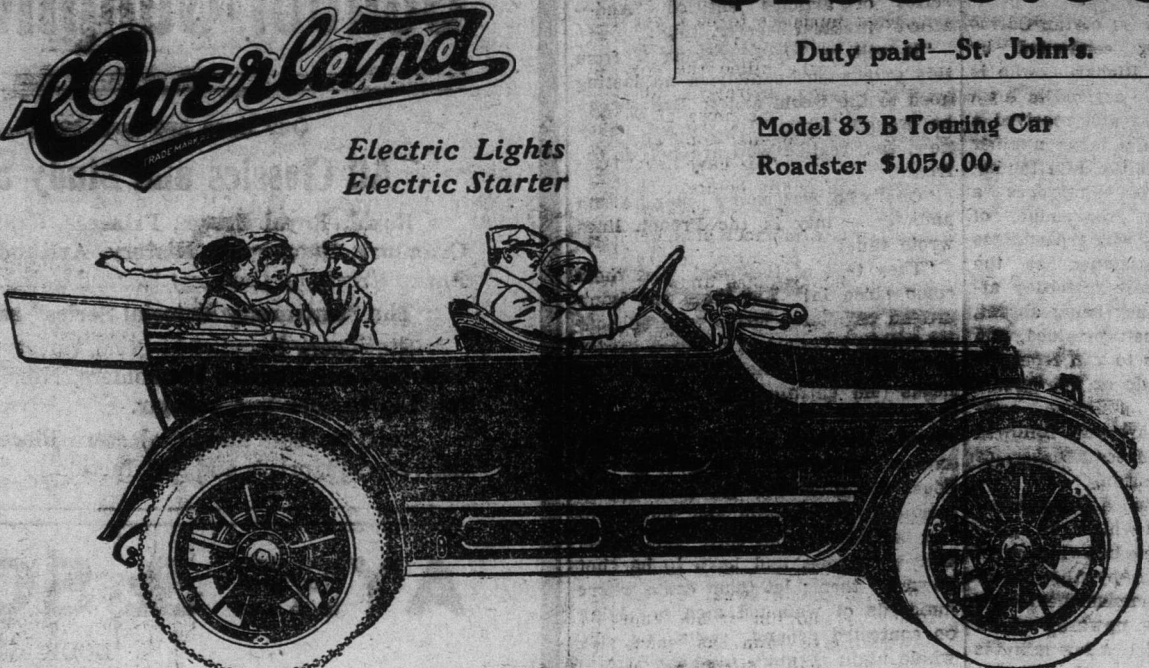

British Auxiliary Cruiser Torpedoed.

LONDON, Aug. 27.
The torpedoing in the North Sea of a British naval auxiliary cruiser with the loss of 25 men is announced officially; 87 men were saved. The torpedoed vessel was the armed boarding steamer Duke of Albany. The announcement follows: The British Russians Further Advance.

PETROGRAD, Aug. 27.
Russian troops in the Carpathians have made further advance in the vicinity of the Hungarian border, the War Office to-day announced, and have captured positions three miles northeast of Koverla mountain on the frontier.

In the Balkans.

LONDON, Aug. 27.
Developments in the Balkans appear to be causing a panic in Austro-Hungary, according to advices received here from Berne, Switzerland. These advices say there is a serious political crisis in Hungary, the opposition leaders having demanded a coalition cabinet, which demand the Emperor has refused to comply with. In addition to all night sittings of the Hungarian Chamber, the despatch adds, the Austrian Cabinet Council sat for eight hours on Thursday and six hours on Friday. The Hungarian Cabinet sat 9 hours on Thursday and ten hours on Friday.

Roumania Still on the Fence.

LONDON, Aug. 27.
According to a Bucharest despatch, the King of Roumania has convened a conference of all representatives of all political parties, former premiers, former presidents of the executive chambers, ministers and government representatives with the idea of ascertaining the views of all sections of public opinion on the present situation.

German Active.

LONDON, Aug. 27.
German troops have made two attempts to enter British lines in front of Bethune to the north of Arras, and German artillery shelled points near Ypres, says the British official. On the Somme front Germans have bombarded Mametz Wood and the trenches north of Delville Wood. Fighting still continues in the region of Mouquet farm.

Situation Unchanged.

LONDON, Aug. 27.
The Russian official says the situation on the western Russian Caucasian front is unchanged.

Bulgars Capture Malik.

BERLIN, Aug. 27.
Bulgarian forces are invading Albania and have captured the town of Malik 10 miles west of the Greek border in North Eastern Greece, continues further and Bulgarian detachments have reached the Aegean Sea. The repulse of a Serbian attack on Moglenica Valley on the western part of the front is announced.

Portia Brings Discouraging Reports

OF WESTERN AND BANK FISHERY.
The S. S. Portia, Capt. J. Keen, returned from the western route yesterday bringing a large freight and these passengers in saloon:—

Messrs. W. Pugh, J. Kerr, K. Garcin, A. K. Chapman, C. Garcin, M. Reddy, C. Ryall, M. Vail, J. J. Dobbin; Mesdames J. Kerr and child, T. A. Garcin, A. K. Chapman, J. B. Dicks, H. Jensen; Misses H. Garcin, S. Tibbo, O'Reilly, M. Burke, White, Sparks, R. Taylor, J. Chate, B. Kearley, T. Cluett, A. Horwood, E. Dulcy, B. O'Rourke and 15 second cabin.

The fishery news brought along by the Portia was not promising. The majority of the fishermen along the coast are engaged at trawling and with very little success, despite an ample bait supply. The outlook for a good shore catch is anything but bright at present.

As regards the bank fishery, with few exceptions the fleet fared badly on their last Grand Bank trip. They are now taking salted squid bait and getting ready to sail for the Labrador on their final trip. From present indications it looks as if the total banking voyage will be behind the catch for 1916.

Incandescent Gas Lighting.

Possibly, the feature of incandescent gas lighting most frequently noted by casual observers is the great ease with which tasks, ordinarily arduous under artificial light may be performed under the Welsbach gas mantle. The light has a peculiarly "soft" quality, difficult to describe, but which is readily recognized by those who have had experience with the gas mantle lamp.

In its general effect upon bodily health and comfort, the use of incandescent gas lighting is decidedly favorable. The currents of air set up by the burning gas improves ventilation, tending to expel the air vitiated by respiration and draw in fresh air to replace it. Harmful or dangerous disease germs are instantly destroyed in the flame. The extent to which this effect takes place may be verified by placing a gas lamp close to a ceiling without any provision for interfering with the up-rushing air currents. The charred particles which collect immediately above the lamp are the remains of dust particles which before passing through the flames were laden with germs and microbes. Actual experiments have shown that the burning of gas lamps in rooms previously containing bacteria, resulted in absolute sterilization of the air.

Contrary to the popular notion the temperature of rooms lighted by incandescent gas lamps is seldom markedly greater than under incandescent electric light, even under unfavorable conditions of ventilation, while in rooms provided with the ventilating facilities required by the demands of hygiene, the temperature in gas-lighted rooms is frequently lower.

The Real Friend in a Large Bottle.

The greatest friend to sick people is the one that helps them toward health. But nearly every human friend had heretofore suggested a different means of regaining lost health due to nervousness, overwork, debility and worry. Now there are dozens of friends right here in your own town who will agree that the best friend to their health is Zoetio—the health tonic. This already famous remedy for "nerves" and their consequent ailments is a combination of glycerophosphates—the actual elements of the human body—with God Liver Oil and delicious tonic wine. A short two weeks of faithful trial will put you fair and square upon the path of bounding health. We know this so absolutely that if you cannot report real progress at the end of that time we will refund the purchase price. You who suffer and suffer and suffer should not delay beyond to-day. Flower Service

In Commemoration of the Faithful Departed.

About fifteen hundred people assembled in the Church of England Cemetery yesterday afternoon to attend the Flower Service in commemoration of the faithful departed. Shortly after 2 p.m. crowds were seen making their way towards God's Acre carrying bouquets of beautiful flowers which were placed on the graves of loved ones. The distributing of the emblems of purity was not alone confined to the resting place of deceased relatives, for many an unknown grave received the kind attention of the liberal-hearted visitors. At 3 o'clock the large congregation met at the southeast corner of the cemetery where the service took place. The officiating clergymen were Rev. Canon Smith, Rev. Dr. Jones, Rev. H. Uphill and Rev. H. L. Pike; Rev. W. E. R. Cracknell, the Church Wardens of the city churches and the Cemetery Committee were also present. Rev. Mr. Pike read the opening prayers and assisted in the reading of Psalm 90: "Lord thou has been our refuge." The concluding prayers commencing with "The souls of the righteous are in the hand of God," and the Collect were said by the Rev. Mr. Uphill. A most inspiring and consoling address was given by the Rev. Dr. Jones, who spoke of the resurrection of the dead and in very touching words referred to the solemn duty we owe the departed. The C. L. B. Band was present and furnished the music for the hymns which were sung in a whole-hearted manner by the large congregation. Just before the Benediction which was pronounced by the Rev. Canon Smith, the Rev. Mr. Uphill in a brief address thanked the members of the C. L. B. Band for their services. Rev. Dr. Jones for his eloquent address and the large congregation for attending, and on behalf of the Cemetery Committee he showed where the Cemetery Chapel and grounds were painted and repaired, but much more needed to be done, but unfortunately the committee lacked the necessary financial help to proceed with the work. The collection plates were placed at the gates and a large sum was realized.

Preaches Farewell Sermon.

Last night at St. Thomas's Church a big congregation were present to hear the parting words of their young Curate, the Rev. W. E. R. Cracknell, on the eve of his leaving for the Old Country. The hymns chosen were all old favourites and very appropriate for the occasion. The preacher chose his text from II. Corinthians 12th chapter, 11th verse: "Finally, brethren farewell," and in a brief address spoke of his two years as assistant Curate of St. Thomas's, adding that when peace is declared he will return to Newfoundland and take over a parish in another part of the Diocese. At the close of the service the Rev. Mr. Cracknell pronounced the Benediction.

Loses Piano When School Burns.

In the big fire that destroyed the Curling Memorial School, Friday afternoon, the Rev. Mr. Pettley, Rector of Curling, lost a magnificent piano. The building, being new, was of the latest design and fully equipped with all modern appliances, and at the time of burning was decorated to receive His Excellency the Governor and Lady Davidson who visited the place on Saturday. A high wind was blowing, and it was only by hard work that the residence of Magistrate March was saved from destruction.

Archbishop Returns.

His Grace Archbishop Roche, accompanied by Rt. Rev. Monsignor St. John, who was on a visitation of Plantilla Bay, returned to town by Saturday night's train. During his absence His Grace administered the Sacrament of Confirmation to hundreds of children. His health looks greatly benefited as a result of the trip.

McMurdo's Store New

MONDAY, Aug. 28th, 1916.
Many children get run down during the hot-weather—the loss of appetite due to the weather conditions, the greater amount of running about the day during the summer months appearing to be the cause—but in any case it is not uncommon for children to complain of feeling weak and languid towards the end of the summer. For this condition McMurdo's Mother's Milk and Cod Liver Oil is an outstanding remedy. This preparation is put for use by one of the largest and best known firms of manufacturing chemists in England, and is equal in quality to any imported. It is quite pleasant to take and is easily digested, and it is also moderate in price. Large sized bottle, 80c.

Two Boys in Motor Boat

Supposed to be Missing.
Two men named Baird and Brit reported to the police last night that a motor boat containing two boys whose names were unknown, was adrift in the fog outside the Narrows. It was last seen in the direction of Blackhead and apparently unable to make the land. The tug D. P. I. Graham was despatched by the Master of Marine in quest of the motor boat and returned this morning after an unsuccessful search. The belief that the supposedly missing craft and its two occupants reached the shore safely during the night when the fog lifted.

Last night at St. Thomas's Church a large congregation were present to hear the parting words of their young Curate, the Rev. W. E. R. Cracknell, on the eve of his leaving for the Old Country. The hymns chosen were all old favorites and very appropriate for the occasion. The preacher chose his text from II. Corinthians 13th chapter, 11th verse: "Finally, brethren, farewell," and in a brief address spoke of his two years as assistant Curate of St. Thomas's, adding that what peace he declared he will return to Newfoundland and take over a parish in another part of the Diocese. At the close of the service the Rev. Mr. Cracknell pronounced the Benediction.

Loans Piano in School Burns.

A large fire that destroyed the Canning Memorial School, Friday afternoon, the Rev. Mr. Petley, Rector of the building, being new, was of the latest design and fully equipped with all modern appliances, and at the time of burning was decorated to receive His Excellency the Governor and Lady Davidson who visited the place on Saturday. A high wind was blowing, and it was only by hard work that the residence of Magistrate March was saved from destruction.

Archbishop Returns.

His Grace Archbishop Roche, accompanied by Rt. Rev. Monsignor St. John, who was on a visitation of Pictou Bay, returned to town by Saturday night's train. During his absence His Grace administered the Sacrament of Confirmation to hundreds of children. His health looks greatly benefited as a result of the trip.

Presentation

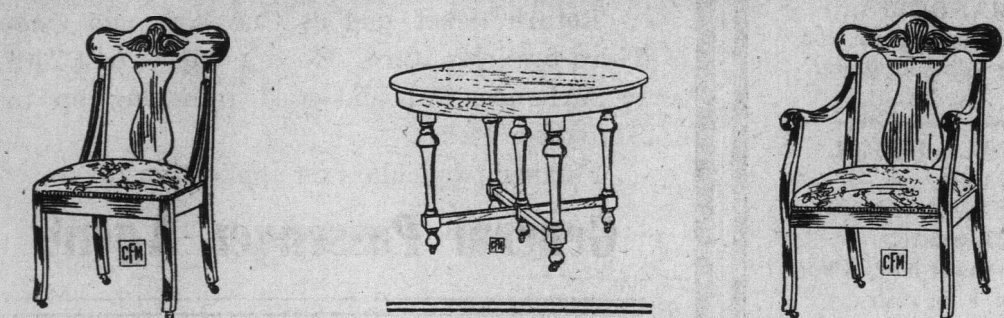

Rev. W. E. R. Cracknell, O. S. A., Saturday evening the representatives of the members of St. Thomas's church called on the Rev. W. E. R. Cracknell and presented him with a purse of gold and an address on the eve of his departure for England. The Rev. Mr. Cracknell was very pleased to receive a suitable reply and thanked the donors for the useful gift, which he greatly appreciated.

Matutua Reported.

AT PETER'S RIVER. With the aid of several wrecking tugs, the lumber steamer Matutua, which was stranded at Peter's River, was successfully refloated last evening. The ship proceeded to St. John's to take on board again her cargo of lumber, after which she will likely come on to St. John's under escort to be dry docked for repairs. Before the ship was refloated temporary repairs were made below the water line by Halifax divers. It will mean the leaving of many thousands of dollars in the country in the event of the ship being repaired here. The Matutua is a six thousand tonner, steel screw and is fitted with a refrigerating plant.

McMurdo's Store News

MONDAY, Aug. 28th, 1916. Many children get run down during the hot-weather—the loss of appetite due to the weather conditions, the greater amount of running about they do during the summer months appearing to be the cause—but in any case it is not uncommon for children to complain of feeling weak and languid towards the end of the summer. For this condition McMurdo's Malt and Cod Liver Oil is an outstanding remedy. This preparation is put up for use by one of the largest and best known firms of manufacturing chemists in England, and is equal in quality to any imported. It is quite pleasant to take and is easily digested, and it is also moderate in price. Large sized bottle, 80c.

Two Boys in Motor Boat

Supposed to be Missing. Two men named Baird and Brien reported to the police last night that a motor boat containing two boys whose names were unknown, was adrift in the fog outside the Narrows. It was last seen in the direction of Blackhead and apparently unable to make the land. The tug D. P. Ingraham was despatched by the Minister of Marine in quest of the motor boat and returned this morning after an unsuccessful search. The belief is that the supposedly missing craft and its two occupants reached the shore safely during the night when the fog lifted.

BIG SCOTCH PERFORMANCE. There will be a very fine Scotch performance by the Rossley Lilliputian Musical Comedy Co., at the British Theatre to-night. The Rossleys established their reputation as first class performers in St. John's by their very first act, and the Scotch act always fills the house. The pupils of Mrs. Rossley have made such progress in the business that it makes the various acts so much more interesting to watch them. Miss Gertrude Edwards will be heard in a beautiful ballad that alone will recompense patrons turning out. Then little Kathleen, the child wonder, will appear and sing two of her best; Miss Clara Squires, as Wee MacGregor, will again give impersonations of Happy Joe Burkhardt who was liked by St. John's audiences. There will be Scotch reels, flings, sword dancing, big singing and dancing numbers, another dainty sketch by Misses Squires and Baird, and Scotch comedy with Jack and Marie Rossley, and one of the finest two-reel hand colored feature pictures that ever came out of filmland.

"Humby's Balloon."

One night Mr. Humby went out for a ramble. The news o'er the wires was sent here from St. Barbe. It is thought that the Kaiser was takin' a gambol. Dressed out in a murderous aeroplane garb.

Near Brig Bay an object took up his attention. He is sure that it wasn't the man in the moon; What he saw 'tis no crime in a ditty to mention; Allow me to tell you 'twas "Humby's Balloon."

The news was despatched to my friend, Mr. Bennett. The genial "John R." when he read 'Tis said that he didn't see anything in it. It looked like a story which "Jaw-lock" would hatch.

It bore a flag made of red, white and yellow. It was thirty feet long, but the man didn't swoon; 'Tis said they'll send Dessart the "boat-catching fellow." To see if he'll capture hold Humby's Balloon. JAMES MURPHY, August 26th, 1916.

GARRETT BYRNE, Bookseller & Stationer.

How Edith Cavell Was Avenged.

The "International News Bureau" publishes what purports to be a verbatim report of the story of Roger de la Marck, the man who killed the spy, Nels de Rode, who betrayed Miss Cavell to the Huns. The news of de Rode's death was published long ago, but the details of the affair have never been given to the public before. The story bears the character of veracity. De la Marck was a member of a Belgian secret society organized for the purpose of punishing spies and traitors, and when it became known that de Rode was a traitor and guilty of Miss Cavell's death, he was selected to carry out the work of vengeance. He tells how he waited at night near the residence of de Rode's parents and at length saw the traitor approaching:

In two minutes I was face to face with the unfortunate object of my night vigilance. Standing within three or four feet of him I informed him of what I was about to do. I told him if he kept silent I would give him as many minutes as he wished during which to make his peace with his Maker. I told him that so long as no one approached us from either direction, so long would I permit him to offer his prayers.

But I had scarcely finished my proposal when he began to scream at the top of his voice for help. Even then, holding my revolver at his breast, I informed him that an entire army could not save his life, and I again urged him.

Now from this distance, this act of mine seems to me rather reckless. I can ascribe this apparently foolhardy act of mine to my utter timidity, or perhaps nervousness. I was younger than my victim by five years, yet he looked just at that horrible moment, like a mere child. I had never taken the life of a fellow man; at the outbreak of the war I was even under military age. Further, I had never in all my life held a revolver in my hand. I did not even know its mechanism.

All that I knew, and all that was necessary for me to know, was to pull the trigger while I aimed its muzzle until its death-dealing contents had been emptied.

I pulled it. He fell and died instantly. I remember it as one remembers a horrible dream. I lifted the dead body of my victim clean from the ground, threw it over my shoulder, here it some distance, and stood him against the door of his father—

The slayer was taken by the Belgian civil police and handed over to the Germans, but no evidence being found against him, he was allowed to go free, the German officer making the significant comment: "Time will obscure the deeds of both good and bad men, but the deed of a traitor is never forgotten." Afterwards de la Marck went to the home of de Rode's father and told of his deed:

I announced my name, but they did not know my name. They only told them, "I killed your son." I was excited, otherwise I would not have announced it so brutally.

I must have been fully insane, or why should I have visited my victim's aged parents? I would not have done such a thing in my sober mind. However, I had not visited the house for the purpose of boasting of my act of murder. Forgetting the gravity of my act, I had visited Major de Rode's house to apologize to him in person for having suspected him of being a traitor like his son. He was not a traitor, and I told him so.

To my utter surprise it was the aged woman who first spoke. She told me that it was not the death of her son that caused their tears; it was the death of the soul of their only child that moved their hearts. "What shame for the dead. What shame for the living ones!" she wept, and the aged Major joined.

I left them abruptly and awkwardly. I found myself speechless. I bowed to the weeping aged woman and was about to leave when Major de Rode told me to wait. He disappeared and in a few moments he returned with an envelope, and handing it to me, he said, "Be gracious enough to take this letter to the addressee." I put the envelope in my pocket and hastened out of the house.

As is well known, the father of de Rode refused to recognize or give burial to his dead son who had proven such a traitor to his country. Three or four others who were connected with the Cavell affair, also suffered death at the hands of the Secret Society to which De La Marck belonged.

The EASTERN TRUST COMPANY

WE GO ON FOREVER.

Just two reasons why the Eastern Trust Company can administer an Estate better than a personal executor or administrator.

1.—It has nearly twenty-four years' experience, and its existence is perpetual, neither does it cost any more to employ the Company than an individual. The Company affords the Estate absolute security. It has a paid-up capital of $1,000,000.00 and a reserve of $250,000.00. The Estates held in trust to December 31st, 1915, amount to $15,026,838.85.

2.—In the event of the death of a personal executor or administrator, your Estate must look around for a substitute. The new administrator is unfamiliar with the business and cohesion is often the result. The death of any officer of this Company does not break the continuity of the policy of administration.

While the Company administers over Fifteen Million Dollars worth of Estates, it also does a very large business in executing Trusts of all kinds and acting as Financial Agents of all descriptions. We can give fullest satisfaction in the collection of rents, interests, mortgages, dividends, etc.
