The Heir of Rosedene

OR,
The Game-Keeper's Hut

"Don't you think Uncle Cyril is the strongest man, excepting Samson, of course, Lord Mersey, that ever lived?" said little Bertie.

They were all sitting cozily in the drawing room—Cyril and Edna at the fire, Cyril outstretched like a great St. Bernard, in the easy-chair, Edna near him, of course, Aunt Martha at her work, and Grace at the piano, playing a soft, enchanting sonata of Schubert's. Lord Mersey was sitting near her, almost touching her, and little Bertie—always his favorite—was leaning against his knees. Lord Mersey smiled.

"Almost, if not quite, Bertie," Bertie nodded, and looked with aapt admiration at the object of his boyish adoration and love.

"Aren't you glad he has come back?—I am! Oh, I am more glad than I can say—and so is Edna—I don't call her Aunt Edna," he put in, quickly, "because she is so young and beautiful; aunts are always so old and cross, excepting Aunt Martha, of course."

"Thank you; any information gladly received," murmured Lord Mersey, stroking the boy's golden hair.

"Yes; everybody is glad—everybody, excepting mamma, but then she is never glad, I think, at anything now. She is sorry, because she says that I shall never be Sir Bertie, of More Park, now—as if I should want to be! Why, there is Uncle Cyril!—fancy anyone being master of More Park excepting him! Papa says it is a good thing that I am not to be Sir Bertie, because of what dear Edna has done. Do you know that she has given me Rosedene and a great fortune—oh, a great deal of money?" and he sighed.

"Well, I know you are grateful, Bertie!"

"Grateful!" echoed the boy with a world of meaning. "As if I didn't love Edna and Uncle Cyril more than all the world. You know I am going to live here almost all my holidays whenever papa and mamma will let me, and that will be a great deal, because I heard Uncle Cyril make papa promise that he would let me come." "That was kind; Uncle Cyril knows that you are happy here."

"He knows that I am never happy anywhere else," said the boy with childish gravity. "Oh, yes, he knows that."

If you are fond of running over to Paris pretty frequently, and happen, as most Englishmen do, to take your after-dinner cup of coffee at the Cafe de l'Europe, you may notice among the frequenters of the place a tall but bent figure with a pale, haggard face, that is always at a certain time in the evening to be seen seated in the third box from the door. The face, with all its pallor and haggardness, bears evidence of having been a handsome one, and there is something about the man's bearing that attracts attention. You will notice for one thing that his hands are white and well shaped, though fearfully thin and emaciated, and that they are never still, always restless, not demonstratively so, but always moving, perhaps fidgeting the paper which he reads and re-reads through each evening, always moving. If your curiosity and interest aroused, you take a seat near this singular individual and address him, he looks up vacantly for a moment, then smiles and bows with a well-bred air, and shaking his head gently, says:

"I loved her, sir, I loved her—that was the great mistake; I lost my hand and threw the cards away. It was my great, I think my only, mistake."

This is his invariable reply to any and every question; it is always accompanied by the faint, mournful smile and the gesture of the hands as of a man who had lost some game of cards.

If you apply to the waiter for information concerning this singular individual, that functionary will shrug his shoulders, and point his bony finger to his no less bony forehead with a significant grin.

"Monsieur wishes to know concerning monsieur in box No. 3? But yes! Monsieur in box No. 3 is well known—is what the English call celebrated. He is an English captain, by name Morton; by family, it is supposed, connected with families most high. Monsieur is, alas! afflicted mentally by reason of an affair of the heart. A young and lovely English miss!—is monsieur provided for? Certainly!—Monsieur recedes!"

The waiter is informed—"certain moneys every month, ample for all monsieur's wants. Monsieur the captain resides in the Rue St. Honore, and is of regular habits—walks so much every day at a certain hour, drives at a certain hour, is served with le petit cafe also at a certain hour, always, as may be seen, at the same table."

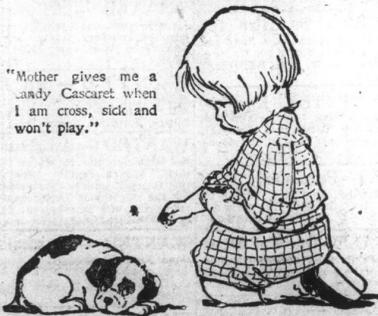

"That is all the waiter knows, but if you ask him if he considers monsieur the captain happy, he will reply, with a shrug:

"Yes, certainment—monsieur does not recollect; he is as the bird in the cage, happy in his way, to the end."

In mercy let us trust that it may be so; for to such a being as the once-brilliant and scheming, but now fallen adventurer, there can be no scourge, no punishment, more terrible than a memory of the past and a full consciousness of the present.

THE END.

Give Candy Cascarets to a Bilious, Constipated Child

"Mother gives me a Candy Cascaret when I am cross, sick and won't play."

TO MOTHERS! Each ten cent box of Cascarets, candy cathartic, contains full directions for dose for children aged one year old and upwards. Nothing else "works" the nasty bile, sour fermentations and constipation poison from the tender little bowels so gently, yet so thoroughly. Even cross, feverish, bilious children gladly take Cascarets without being coaxed. Cascarets taste just like candy. Cascarets never gripe the little bowels, never sicken, never injure, but above all, they never disappoint the worried mother.

The Old Marquis,

OR,

The Girl of the Cloisters

CHAPTER I.

IN THE SUNLIGHT.

"No matter," he rejoined. "Whoever is to blame will have to leave the Abbey. My lord never overlooks or forgives. Even I, who have been here since before you were born, would have to go if I caused such an uproar as this."

"Uproar! It was only the dog's bark and a man's voice," she said, with a half smile.

"The marquis detests noise of any kind," he answered, absently.

"And if, for instance," she continued, more to herself than to him, "or you knocked over the book-ladder, or upset the china or the armor, you and I would have to go. He would treat you, his librarian, as he would treat his groom, grand-papa?"

A faint smile flickered on the old man's face.

"My dear Lela, his lordship wouldn't understand the difference if it were pointed out to him. We are all his dependents, and consequently depend on him. There is no one individual in the world whom he permits to disturb him, not even his own son—"

"Yelp—yelp! Bow, wow!" sounded through the window, cutting short the slow speech of the old man, and causing the girl to step back dismayed.

"Yelp—yelp!" went the dog, then a man's voice rang out like a clarion. "Fetch it, Turk! Come here, boy! Come, Hi! Peters, throw me up that whip. Here, boys, here!" A rush as of half a dozen big dogs dashing along the terrace followed, and then there was silence again.

The old man pushed his book aside, and rose, with knitted brows. "It is Lord Edgar! It is like him! Right under my lord's window, too! Has he gone, Lela? Look and see!"

Lela drew aside the blind and looked out.

"Yes, he has gone," she said, slowly. "I did not know Lord Edgar was at the Abbey, grandpapa. When did he come?"

The old man rubbed his eyes wearily.

"I—did hear. Yes, he was to have come last night. I thought I told you. No? Then I forgot it. I remember now. Yes, he was to come last night."

"And it is evident he has come!" said the girl, with a touch of humor that lit up her dark eyes and wreathed the beautiful lips with a faint smile.

"Yes, yes," he murmured in response. "But he will not stay long, that is certain! It must be years since he was here. Even as a boy he was wild and noisy—too much so for my lord, the marquis. It was he who climbed the tower and fixed the weathercock so that it pointed always to the east. There was always some mad trick! Like boy, like man!"

"Will he climb the tower now, grandpapa?" said Lela, with a thoughtful smile. "I must have been at school then. And he has never been at the Abbey since? He is the marquis' eldest son—"

"His only son," said the old man, absently.

"Then he is the future marquis. What did you call him, grandpapa?"

"Lord Fane. Lord Edgar he is called. Yes, he will be the next marquis if he should live."

"If he should live!" repeated Lela.

"Is he ill? His voice did not sound like an invalid's, grandpapa."

"Ill? No. But he is rash and headstrong—fond of field sports, hunting, and shooting, and traveling. He has been thrown from his horse in the hunting field twice and nearly killed each time. There is no risk too great

"I see," mused the girl. "He must be very much unlike his father, grandpapa"

"The very opposite," answered the old man, absently. "The very opposite. And so they are best apart. Ice and fire will not mix. The fire will melt the ice or the ice quench the fire; it is war to the bitter end. It is—"

Before he could finish his philosophizing the door was burst open and a young man entered, followed by a huge St. Bernard and a fox-hound.

He was a splendid specimen of youth in its first prime; tall, stalwart, with broad shoulders and muscular limbs; he looked like an athlete just stepped victorious from the arena—like one of the ancient Goths invading one of the old Roman libraries—like a young god come straight from Olympus on a shaft of the sun that streamed in after him.

And yet, with all his strength and promise of strength, there was an air of grace and ease that proclaimed the patrician and distinguished him from the healthy plowman with his strong limbs, which he had inherited from his mother's family. He had the clear, clean-cut beauty of face for which the Fanes were famous. The Fane eagle-eye and straight nose, lips with the delicate Fane curves, and the soft, chestnut hair which the Lela and Knellers had loved to portray in the pictures of his ancestors. He was dressed in a suit of cords that set off his almost perfect figure, but would, but for his high-bred look, have given him the appearance of a gamekeeper. His thick boots were splashed with mud; under an arm he held a quivering, excitable black-and-tan terrier, and in his right hand a dog-whip, thick enough to hold even the huge bear at his heels in awe.

As he came into the idm room he paused a moment as if dazed by the want of light, and at that moment, Lela, after one comprehensive glance gazed out of sight into the china-room.

The old man stood staring blankly, as if too bewildered to move, and did not speak or move, when having mastered the want of light, the young man advanced with a swift, clear-spoken apology.

"I beg your pardon; didn't know—hello! Why, it's Mr. Temple, the librarian, isn't it? How do you do, Mr. Temple?" and, flinging the whip to the St. Bernard, who caught it deftly, he strode into the room and held out his hand.

The old man put his thin white fingers slowly into the strong palm, and the young man wrung them heartily. "Didn't know you were here still! Though I might have guessed it. How are you? It's an age since I saw you. But I remember you—oh, quite well! Don't say you've forgotten me or that I've grown—as Palmer, the butler, did! As if he expected to see me in a blue velvet tunic and white linen drawers!" and he laughed so clearly and loudly that the old man flushed and looked around as if he expected to see the painted nymph on the ceiling come toppling down with fright.

"I remember you, my lord—yes, yes. But you have grown. Yes, yes. And—and you came last night?"

HAVE YOU NICE HANDS?

You can have if you use Zam-Buk regularly. Women who do their own housework, and constantly have their hands in water, say nothing equals Zam-Buk for keeping the hands in good condition. Or, if your hands are chapped, one thorough application of Zam-Buk at night will bring ease by morning, and continued use of this balm will heal the cracks and roughness.

Miss Della Martel, of 35 McKay St., Ottawa, says: "For two winters I suffered acutely from cracked and chapped hands. I tried various salves, which seemed to do them good for a time, but as soon as I went out doors my hands would become just as bad as ever. A friend advised me to try Zam-Buk, and it was really wonderful how even the first application of this balm stopped the smarting and drew out the soreness. In a very short time my hands were quite smooth again. Now I rub Zam-Buk on my hands occasionally all through the winter, and never have any trouble from cracks or chaps."

For frost-bite, chilblains, cold sores, eczema, boils, ulcers, blood-poisoning, cuts, burns and scalds, Zam-Buk is equally good. All dealers, 50c. box.

SHOCKING CONDITIONS. STOCKHOLM, March 24. In addition to spotted fever and typhus fever, Petrograd is being ravaged through Helsinki. All the hospitals are crowded and the morgues are overflowing. The bodies of the dead are collected in big wooden cases and emptied into large graves, the cases then being returned to the hospitals and filled again and the process repeated.

THE HUNGARIAN REVOLUTION. LONDON, March 24. The revolution in Hungary caused great excitement in Vienna, but did not surprise those who were aware of the true condition of affairs, says the Vienna correspondent of the Telegraph. He says the communists of Hungary have long been the real masters of the country and have been only awaiting an opportunity to get rid of Count Karolyi, who is considered to have been never more than a figurehead. The correspondent in Hungary there are no elements in Hungary capable of making a stand against the extremists and that even in Czechoslovakia there are strong Bolshevik influences. He points out that experts agree there is very grave danger of Bohemia following the example of Hungary. The situation is attributed by the correspondent to the failure of the Peace Conference at Paris to recognize the seriousness of the situation and occupy Budapest with Entente troops. He says the only way to save the situation is to send British or American forces there, but adds where a battalion would have sufficed formerly, a brigade would be necessary now.

WILL NOT GIVE UP DANTZIG. COPENHAGEN, March 24. (German Polish.)—Germany cannot and will not sign a peace which involves the annexation of Dantzig by Poland, Premier Ebert declared in a speech Sunday, a dispatch from Berlin says. He added that Germany could not give up West Prussia, a part of Upper Silesia, and the meeting called to protest against the annexation of Dantzig by Poland. He declared that Germany was prepared to agree to the neutralization of the Vistula, which would include Dantzig as a free port.

DRIVING BOLSHIEVKS BACK. PARIS, March 24. Siberian troops of the Kolshat Government have successfully begun an offensive west of the Urals, a line from Perm to the trans-Siberian railway. Advances from Omsk say a certain points the Bolshieviks have been driven back more than 100 miles. The Siberians have captured Omsk, fifty miles southwest of Perm.

IMPORTANT CONFERENCES. PARIS, March 24. A conference of the Premiers was called to-day to be held at 10 o'clock this afternoon to arrange for the programme of the Supreme Council session an hour later. The new president of the Council was expected to appear the heads of the Governments to military decisions of the League of Nations. Petrograd Ravaged by Small Pox.

Germany Refuses to Transfer Dantzig-- Demonstration Against Entente Powers -- Bolshevik Activities Increasing in Europe.

SHOCKING CONDITIONS.
STOCKHOLM, March 24.
In addition to spotted fever and typhus fever, Petrograd is being ravaged with smallpox, according to advices through Helsingfors. All the hospitals are crowded and the mortality is increasing daily. The bodies of the dead are collected in big wooden cases and emptied into large graves, the cases then being returned to the hospitals and filled again and the process repeated.

THE HUNGARIAN REVOLUTION.
LONDON, March 24.
The revolution in Hungary caused great excitement in Vienna, but did not surprise those who were aware of the true condition of affairs, says the Vienna correspondent of the Times.
He says the communists of Hungary have long been the real masters of the country and have been only awaiting an opportunity to get rid of Count Karolyi, who is considered to have been never more than a figurehead. The correspondent declares there are no elements in Hungary capable of making a stand against the extremists and that even the Czech Slovaks there are strong Bolsheviki influences. He points out that experts agree there is very grave danger of Bohemia following the example of Hungary. The situation is attributed by the correspondent to the failure of the Peace Conference at Paris to recognize the seriousness of the situation and occupy Budapest by Entente troops. He says the only way to save the situation is to send British or American forces
there, but adds where a battalion
would have sufficed formerly, a brigade would be necessary now.

WILL NOT GIVE UP DANTZIG.
COPENHAGEN, March 24.
(German Press)—Germany cannot not will not sign a peace which involves the annexation of Dantzig by Poland. Premier Ebert declared in a speech Sunday, in a despatch Berlin says. He added that Germany could not give up West Prussia or part of Upper Silesia. Ebert spoke at a meeting called to protest against the annexation of Dantzig by Poland.
He declared that Germany was prepared to agree to the neutralization
of the Vistula, which would include Dantzig as a free port.

DRIVING BOLSHEVIKS BACK.
PARIS, March 24.
Siberian troops of the Kolchak
Government have successfully begun an offensive west of the Urals, on a line from Perm to the trans-Siberian railway. Advice from Omsk say at certain points the Bolsheviki have been driven back more than thirty miles. The Siberians have captured back, fifty miles south-west of Perm.

IMPORTANT CONFERENCES.
PARIS, March 24.
A conference of the Premiers was called to-day to be held at three o'clock this afternoon to arrange for the programme of the Supreme Council session an hour later. The news from Hungary and Poland was expected to spur the heads of the Governments to military decisions of the greatest importance. The League of Nations' Commission will reassemble at 10 o'clock this afternoon with the expectation of virtually concluding the draft of the League's Covenant.

SOLDIERS ARRIVE IN HALIFAX.
HALIFAX, March 24.
The White Star Liners Celtic and Olympic arrived in port this morning from England with returning Canadian soldiers. The Royal George is due this afternoon. The three ships have a total of 10,000 troops. The Celtic docked before noon and most of her passengers have entrained.

There were a number of Nova Scotian soldiers on board, including a party for Cape Breton ports.

ENTENTE SUBJECTS NEED PRO-TECTION.
PARIS, March 24.
The Peace Conference has been advised by Entente agents of the critical situation in Hungary. While the lives of Entente nationals are said to still be safe, it is urged they need protection, which would be afforded by monitors proceeding up the Danube
from Serbian ports.

OPENS HOSTILITIES.
WASHINGTON, Mar. 26.
Despatches to the State Department to-day from Belgrade said the new Hungarian Bolsheviki government had ordered the beginning of hostilities
against the Entente last Friday night.
No information was given as to whether operations had actually been undertaken.

LENINISM IN HUNGARY.
COPENHAGEN, Mar. 24.
At the first meeting of the new Hungarian Government in Budapest
Sunday, a despatch from Berlin says,
a Soldiers' and Workmen's Council
for entire Hungary was appointed.
According to plans entered into with the agents of Lenin, the Council immediately started preparation of a bill for the socialization of all industrial activities.

WARNING FOR ENTENTE.
BERLIN, Mar. 24.
The Berlin press, from the most extreme Radical to the most decided Conservative, sees in the events which are occurring in Hungary a terrible warning for the Entente. This is the view taken for instance by the two extremes, Die Freiheit and the Tages-Zeitung.

FOOD SHIPS SAILED.
BERLIN, Mar. 24.
The German mercantile ships in the harbour of Bremen were still in port to-day, but nine food ships left Hamburg during the day, in compliance with the shipping agreement with the Entente. Among the steamers which sailed were the Auguste Victoria and the Graf Waldersee.

STILL VERY NAUGHTY.
AMSTERDAM, Mar. 24.
A demonstration against the violation of German territory under the "peace treaty" was held in Berlin
Sunday in front of the residence of President Ebert. After the meeting
the crowd went to the Hotel Adlon,
where most of the Entente Commission in Berlin are quartered. Seeing American officers they mistook them for British and shouted "down with the Entente!" The Austrian Central Workers' Council has decided not to join the Hungarian Govt. in introducing a Soviet Govt. in Austria. A message from Vienna says the Council, it is declared, pointed out that such a course was impossible for Austria because it is dependent upon the Entente Powers for food.

FATAL RAILWAY ACCIDENT.
SASKATOON, Sask., Mar. 24.
Three men were killed when the engine, baggage and express cars of Canadian National Railway passenger train number 27, Saskatoon to Gilddet, left the tracks at Ardat, Sask., crashed into a grain elevator and were buried under several tons of grain, shortly after ten o'clock this morning.

BOLSHEVIK MISSIONARY WORK.
BERLIN, Mar. 23.
That the seizure of power by the Hungarian Communists is the result of Russian Bolsheviki missionary work, and the financing of the movement with Russian rubles seems apparent from the history of the movement. Bela Kun, (or Kuhn) the new Foreign Minister, who probably was the man who formulated the Communist proclamation, spent a long time in Russia as a prisoner and made there the acquaintance of Nikolai Lenin and Leon Trotsky. He was originally chosen to organize the Spartan Bolsheviki movement in Germany but went instead to Hungary. The Hungarian Socialists would have nothing to do with Kuhn and he thereupon founded the Communist Party.

THE OPINION OF HERR DEUTCHE.
VIENNA, Mar. 23.
Asked what effect the Hungarian event would have on the political situation in Germany, Herr Deutche, Secretary for Military Affairs said to-day: "If the Entente treats us as it treats Hungary, no one can guarantee what will happen. A people driven to despair loses self-control. The Entente by thoughtless decision might lose a bulwark against Bolshevism, which German-Austria really constitutes.

DEMONSTRATION AGAINST EN-TENTE.
COPENHAGEN, March 24.
The communists of Vienna held a meeting of sympathy with the proletariat dictatorship in Hungary on Sunday morning, according to a Vienna despatch to-day. The demonstration developed into a manifestation against the Entente. There was no disturbance of the peace, however,
the message declares.

CROSSED THE DNIESTER.
LONDON, March 24.
A Bolsheviki army of seventy thousand men has crossed the Dniester River, south of Lemberg, according to a Zurich despatch received in London and forwarded by the Exchange Tel-graph Co. The army is said to be commanded by Major Georg and composed mainly of Hungarians and Bulgarians who were prisoners of war in Russia.

EGYPTIAN SITUATION IMPROVED.
LONDON, March 24.
There has been further improvement in the situation in Egypt, according to Cecil B. Harmsworth, Under Secretary for Foreign Affairs. He stated in the House of Commons today that railway communications between Cairo and Alexandria had been restored after its recent interruption during the disorders.

MAIL PLANE CAPSIZES.
PARIS, March 24.
One of the two airplanes which inaugurated the postal service yesterday between Paris and Bordeaux, capsized over Libourne, about twenty miles northeast of Bordeaux because of engine trouble. The pilot and his passenger, M. Caudillere, an editor of the Havas News Agency, were seriously injured and taken to a military hospital.

BOLSHEVIK RELEASED.
COPENHAGEN, March 24.
Karl Radek, the leading Russian Bolsheviki agent in Germany, who was arrested on Feb. 14, in connection with the Spartacan uprising, has been released by the German Government,
according to a Berlin despatch to-day.
The message reports that Radek was
by the German Spartacans coincident with the Hungarian revolution, and reports that in these circumstances
the release of Radek has created a bad impression.

Man Commits Suicide.
A suicide, the first in the history of
the place, occurred last Thursday morning. Emanuel Murphy was the victim. The unfortunate man had been sick for some months and arrangements were being made for him
to go to St. John's to the sanatorium.
Thursday morning he got up and
shaved, and told his wife that he would be leaving for St. John's by train that day. After breakfast he went out of doors, and shortly returned and commented on the weather
being cold. From then on he acted rather peculiar, passing out and in the house several times. About ten o'clock he went out, and some few minutes later he not returning, his wife sent one of the children to see
where he was. The child returned,
saying that its father was standing
by a tree, a few yards from the home,
but that he would not speak. Mrs.
Murphy then hastened to the scene,
together with some neighbors, and
found the unfortunate man hanging from a tree. His feet, however, were resting on the ground. Edward Edward cut the cord which held the victim of the tragedy, and the doctor was immediately summoned, but it was found that life was extinct. Strangely to say it was but a very slight piece of cord that had been used, and there
could have been little or no struggle,
and it is thought the man must have been suffering from an attack of insanity at the time of the deed.

Mysteries of Kleptomania.
There are persons who possess a craving of great intensity, but of very restricted scope, for one very limited class of objects. There are the true Moptomaniacs, according to Dr. Chas.
Mercier, the famous criminologist.
This craving is so intense that it makes them do things which they know to be wrong; for the mere sake
of doing them.
This is the curious point about kleptomania. The crime appears to be the satisfaction of a peculiar and special appetite, so that when the crime is committed, and the appetite for it appeased, there is an end so far as the criminal's desires are concerned.
Fan Mania.
A woman of good position and ample means used to steal fans. She never stole anything but a fan, but the sight of a fan aroused in her an irresistible cupidity. She never bought a fan, but never missed an opportunity of stealing one. When she had stolen it she took it home, locked it up in a drawer, and, as far as is known, never looked at it again. She certainly never used it. When the discovery was at length made, she had a considerable collection of fans belonging to other people—fans that she had stolen at theatres, concerts, dinner-parties, and so forth, from both friends and strangers.
Irresistible Bacon.
Mr. Justice Walton used to relate the case of a woman who was tried repeatedly before him for stealing.
The peculiarity of her case was that she never stole anything but bacon.
Again and again she was convicted of stealing a small piece of bacon, but she was never charged with stealing anything else, and, as far as was known to the police, she never did steal anything else.
At the Rutland Assizes a few years ago a young man was tried for stealing fowls. He went a considerable distance out of his way to steal
them; he had nowhere to keep them;
he did not attempt to dispose of them. Having got them, he did not know what to do with them. The defence was that he had an irresistible propensity to steal fowls. He had stolen fowls before, and he had never stolen anything else. In other respects his conduct was irreproch-able. And the jury, realizing this, acquitted him.

ward cut the cord which held the victim of the tragedy, and the doctor was

been suffering from an attack of in-
sanity at the time of the deed.

Man Commits Suicide.
A suicide, the first in the history of
the place, occurred last Thursday
morning. Emanuel Murphy was the victim. The unfortunate man had
been sick for some months and arrangements were being made for him
to go to St. John's to the sanatorium.
Thursday morning he got up and
shaved, and told his wife that he would be leaving for St. John's by train that day. After breakfast he
went out of doors, and shortly re-
turned and commented on the weather
being cold. From then on he acted
rather peculiar, passing out and in
the house several times. About ten
o'clock he went out, and some few
minutes later he not returning, his
wife sent one of the children to see
where he was. The child returned,
saying that its father was standing
by a tree, a few yards from the home,
but that he would not speak. Mrs.
Murphy then hastened to the scene,
together with some neighbors, and
found the unfortunate man hanging

MILLEY'S

The Railway Service.

Since the latter part of January,
there has been almost a continual disarrangement of the cross-country tri-weekly express service, and it was a month on Monday past since we had a regular express from St. John's to arrive on the day of her schedule. At one time the mails were two weeks
behind, and now they are a week old.
This disarrangement, so we have been informed, has been more or less due to a succession of storms along the east coast and the heavy snow falls along the eastern portion of the line of railway, and the topsails, which hitherto had been looked upon as the great impediment to the successful operation of the cross-country railroad in mid-winter, has been giving little or no trouble this season, and all or most of the difficulties seem to be in the low lands. The express which left St. John's on Sunday, and due at Bishop's Falls about that time, thus being almost a division behind. And coming up the Exploits Valley she encountered greater snow blockades
and only reached Millertown Junction yesterday at noon. Monday was a stormy day over the Topsails, while in this division it rained, and made much water. The sudden change of wind Monday night followed with a lowering of the temperature, has no doubt had a tendency to make considerable ice along the rails, and it is therefore difficult to say now just what time a train will get through. It is hoped, however, that special efforts will be made to an early resumption of the schedule service.—Western

Evening Telegram

W. J. ... Proprietor C. T. JAMES, ... Editor

TUESDAY, March 25, 1919.

BONNE BAY DETERMINED.

The report of the North-West Coast Reform Movement, publication of which is completed to-day, shows without the shadow of a doubt that the people of Bonne Bay and that portion of the North-West Coast, extending from thence to Flower's Cove, are fully determined to insist on the rights of their demand for a better, improved and more up-to-date system of Coastal Service, a system to which fair play, justice and the importance of this section of St. Barbe entitles it. And not only a Coastal Service, but a railway extension from Deer Lake is the right of this portion of the island. As a matter of fact the Deer Lake-Bonne Bay branch should have been the very first completed after the return of the Morris Government to power in 1909, but because St. Barbe refused absolutely to have Morris candidates represent it in the House of Assembly and flatly and decisively turned down the nominee of the People's Party in 1909 and 1913, its population was deprived of the advantages which such a railway would have given them for nothing else but political spite, and the merchants and fishermen on the stretch of coastline referred to were left to an inadequate, inefficient service, performed even more inadequately by the miniature steam boats on the Straits route. But for this connection with Halifax, one well looked after by the Halifax-Newfoundland Steamship Co., at first with the S. S. Harlaw, then S. S. Seal, though last year with a smaller boat it would have gone badly with the dwellers north of Bonne Bay, and the consequence was that a great portion of the trade, which otherwise would have come to St. John's, had the steam service been anything after the rate, was diverted to Nova Scotia, and business men of that province profited, because half of St. Barbe district was deliberately and callously neglected and fouted.

The Evolution of Aircraft.

In to-morrow's issue will appear the second of the series of articles on Aviation and things aeronautical, written especially for the Telegram by an expert, now in the city. The first, "The Conquest of the Air," while to-morrow's will be on "The Evolution of Aircraft."

After West Coast Trade.

The following news cutting from the Western Star, shows that Halifax interests are by no means inclined to slacken up in their attempt to capture the trade of the North West Coast; and in view of the protest, which Bonne Bay is making, against the treatment accorded that important trade centre, the item referred to is most significant. Unless a change takes place shortly and an improved and more adequate transportation service given the district of St. Barbe, local wholesalers will have to witness a bigger share of their business going to Halifax. Isn't it time that some one got busy and looked after this extensive trade, which should be done from St. John's better than from Nova Scotia, carrying facilities being equal.

Hr. Grace Notes.

The many friends of Mr. Graham Munn, son of Mr. J. G. Munn, were pleased to see him in town yesterday on a visit. "Day" as he was familiarly called by his friends left here for Sydney some seven or eight years ago and has since been employed by a tailoring firm there. It is said he now takes a position with a St. John's firm. Graham was accompanied on his visit here by his sister, Miss Jean Munn.

Queen's Road Congregational Ladies' Aid intend holding a Social in the Lecture Hall of their Church, on Thursday evening, April 3. Particulars later.

Now that the inauguration of the North-West Reform Movement has taken shape, there will be a shaking of the dry bones in the Government Camp unless the legitimate needs of the electors of St. Barbe (North-West Coast) are supplied and their perfectly constitutional demands granted.

House to Open.

To-day's issue of the Royal Gazette will contain a proclamation, calling upon the members of the House of Assembly to meet for despatch of business on Wednesday, next, April 2nd. So closely following the "first" of that month, the time is very appropriate.

Meth. College Banquet.

H. E. the Governor will be present at the banquet to-morrow night in the Methodist College Hall, and will give an address. The banquet is the initial step in the proposed College Extension. Other speakers of the evening will be Revs. Dr. Curtis, Dr. Bond, D. B. Hemmeon, Hons. W. W. Halford and R. A. Squires, Messrs. R. F. Horwood and C. R. Duder. Musical selections will be interspersed throughout. The banquet starts at 6.55. Tickets are still on sale at Messrs. Dicks & Co.

N. P. A. Meeting.

The Nfld. Poultry Association met last night, the President, Mr. H. W. LeMessurier, C. M. G., being in the chair. Arrangements were made for the distribution of a limited number of thoroughbred hatching eggs, and those who require same should avail themselves of the opportunity of procuring same. Mr. Geo. R. Williams read a very interesting paper on "Nfld. Poultry Topics."

The May-Day Dance.

For May Day, the merry, merry May-Day, a dance is being organized by Mrs. Charles Hutton to be held in the C.C.C. Hall, in aid of the Jensen Camp. In what more fitting way can youth and beauty celebrate this truly British holiday than in the old-time dance, especially under the management of one whose name as an organizer stands for success. Remember the May-Day Dance.

His Lordship's Lecture.

His Lordship Bishop White gave a lecture in the Synod Hall last night under the auspices of the C. M. B. C. on "Education."

Lord Morris Loses His "Duds."

Arrested after being under observation of Detective-Insp. for nearly two weeks, Percy W. Playhead, thirty-one, night porter at Durran's Hotel, George Street, W., was committed for trial from Marybone Police Court on charges of stealing six suits of clothes and other property valued at $100, belonging to Lord Morris, Etienne Ledyard, proprietor of the hotel, Alfred Gibson.

Western Notes.

General elections will take place next fall, according to latest advices to hand. Barreled herring were brought to the edge of the ice in Humber Arm on Friday and Saturday from Middle Arm, and hauled to Curling by teams. There was good codfishing off Spruce Point, on Thursday. Pennell jigged about a hundred weight through the ice, and several others made good catches.

Western Notes.

The people of John's Beach are going to build a new church. They have the framing out of the woods and also some logs to make lumber, which they are taking to the mill to be sawed. Herring are plentiful at Middle Arm, and last week big catches were made. The price commenced at $2.00 per barrel and on Thursday went to $2.50. Fleet Co. and Bost are packing at present. We understand that other packers will commence this week.

Holyrood Celebrates St. Patrick's Day.

The celebration of St. Patrick's Day at Holyrood was a decided success. The day was marked by a fine sunshine and sharp crisp air, west winds and good sleight paths, admirably suited to pleasure-seekers to tour abroad to display their Shamrocks and costumes of green and gold. A large congregation assembled in the Star Hall, where Rev. Father Finn P. P., officiated, and preached a learned and instructive discourse on Ireland's great Apostle St. Patrick.

AVIA "Castrol R's" Close Seen by the Telegram reporter last evening. Mr. D. Woods Mason, aeroplane and seaplane pilot, gave many facts concerning matters aeronautical, and we are to-day enabled to pass these on to the readers of the Telegram. Mr. Mason, who is released from service in the Royal Air Force of Great Britain—commonly known as the R.A.F.—is here as the special representative of the Aviation Department of the C. C. Wakefield Co., lubricating engineers, in connection with this and other proposed Transatlantic flights. The Wakefield Co. is in the unique position of lubricating, free of all charge, practically every British machine entered in the flight. The whole of the firm's knowledge and material is being placed at the disposal of all the competitors at absolutely no cost to themselves. The firm wants the best in the world to realize the great necessity of employing experienced engineers in each department of its business. These departments are roughly divided into three: the motor and aviation, locomotive, and general engine lubrication departments. Just at present we are mainly concerned with the aviation department and a brief resume of this great firm's connection with the greatest of modern sciences may prove of interest to our readers. In the early days of aviation high-speed internal combustion engines were lubricated with Castor oil, which was the only lubricating fluid which would in any way stand up to the enormous variations of temperature imposed upon it. Sir Charles Wakefield, the governing director of the firm, realizing that the supply of Castor oil was uncertain in both quality and quantity, employed an expert staff of chemists and engineers, working under his guidance, attempting to solve the difficulties involved. Months of expensive trials on every type of engine were made. During the whole of these trials money was being poured out and no return was being made. Only the faith of Sir Charles in the ultimate success of aircraft, now so obviously justified, caused him to persevere in spite of other lack of faith and their opposition. Before the first meeting, held at Bournemouth, England, took place, Sir Charles Wakefield was able to put before the aviators an oil afterwards known as Castrol R., which was not only as good as Castor oil, but possessed a superiority of every quality essential to perfect lubrication. Castrol R. was used by every aviator who succeeded at this meeting. Also at subsequent meetings held at Doncaster, Blackpool, Scotland and at Herndon, so great being the success of the oil, that every machine competing at those earlier contests demanded Castrol R. Looking back at the names of our familiar aviators, such as Hamel, the first British pilot to loop the loop, Hicks, the well-known Hendon pilot.

"Castrol R's" Close Connection With It.

Seen by the Telegram reporter last evening, Mr. D. Woods Mason, aeronaut and seaplane pilot, gave many facts concerning matters aeronautical, and we are to-day enabled to pass on to the readers of the Telegram. Mr. Mason, who is released from service in the Royal Air Force of Great Britain—commonly known as the R.A.F.—is here as the special representative of the Aviation Department of the C. C. Wakefield Co., lubricating engineers, in connection with the other proposed Transatlantic flights. The Wakefield Co. is in the unique position of lubricating, free of all charge, practically every British machine entered in the flight. The whole of the firm's knowledge and material is being placed at the disposal of all the competitors at absolutely no cost to themselves. The firm was the first in the world to realize the great necessity of employing experienced engineers in each department of its business. These departments are, roughly, divided into three: the motor and aviation, locomotive, and general engine lubrication departments. Just at present we are mainly concerned with the aviation department, and a brief resume of this great firm's connection with the greatest of modern sciences may prove of interest to our readers.

In the early days of aviation all high-speed internal combustion engines were lubricated with Castrol oil, which was the only lubricating fluid that would in any way stand up to the enormous variations of temperature imposed upon it. Sir Charles Wakefield, the governing director of the firm, realizing that the supply of Castrol oil was uncertain in both quality and quantity, employed an expert staff of chemists and engineers, who, working under his guidance, attempted to solve the difficulties involved. Months of expensive trials on every type of engine were made. During the whole of these trials money was being poured out and no return was being made. Only the faith of Sir Charles in the ultimate success of aircraft, now so obviously justified, caused him to persevere in spite of others' lack of faith and their opposition.

Before the first meeting held at Bournemouth, England, took place, Sir Charles Wakefield was able to put before the aviators an oil, afterwards known as Castrol R., which was not only as good as Castrol oil, but possessed a superiority of every quality essential to perfect lubrication. Castrol R. was used by every aviator who succeeded at this meeting. Also at subsequent meetings held at Doncaster, Blackpool, Scotland and at Hendon, so great being the success of the oil, that every machine competing at these earlier contests demanded Castrol R.

Looking back at the names of old familiar aviators, such as Hamel, the first British pilot to loop the loop; Beck, the well-known Hendon passenger pilot; Colonel Coady, better known as "Buffalo Bill," since killed in his machine; and others too numerous to mention, we find that in those records they were staunch adherents to Castrol R. Throughout the war this oil has been supplied to the British Air Board at the rate of from fifty to sixty thousand gallons a month, and it is, in fact, the only proprietary brand of lubricant supplied for aircraft to the British and Allied Governments. It has played a prominent part on every front where aeroplanes have been used. Rolls-Royce, the premier motor and aircraft engine builder, insists that on his engine no other oil is used.

Castrol R. has materially assisted in every British record that has been made. Three of the latest are Capt. Lang's for height, he having flown to an altitude of six and a half miles in a "De Havilland 9" fitted with a Napier "Lion" engine. The endurance record recently made by a semi-rigid airship fitted with Fiat motors, also goes to the Company's credit. This record was 101½ hours of continuous flying, covering a distance of over 5,000 miles. When it is known that the distance across the Atlantic is under 2,000 miles, it will readily be understood what a gigantic journey this was.

Castrol R. again came into prominence when a fully loaded war machine, the Sopwith Snipe, accomplished 156 miles an hour. This machine was fitted with a 360 horsepower A.B.C. engine, and used the Wakefield oil. This speed is the best ever recorded. To be short, every record made in Britain was with Castrol R. The company holds practically every motor car, cycle and boat record made in the British Isles since motor racing commenced.

Sir Charles Wakefield, late Lord Mayor of London, is well known throughout the length and breadth of Britain for his prominent support of all true British sporting efforts. His name is a byword for philanthropy and bigness of heart. We understand that it is the intention of the C. C. Wakefield Co. to appoint a local agency for their products, so that our people will have the opportunity, if they wish, of trying out an article which is truly British and at the same time the best of its kind. That the Company will add to its many laurels by the winning of the London Daily Mail Prize with one of the many competitors, is the hope of the Telegram, and we feel sure that our readers will join with us in wishing the best of success to both the crew of the machine and to the company that is supplying the oil that is so necessary to the accomplishment.

The Buick is always ready to take you anywhere you desire to go—it never falters.

When you press the starting pedal of the Buick, you are assured immediate response—the Delco starter is always on the job to turn over your engine every time you require it.

Buick Cars are luxuriously equipped, and upholstered in genuine black leather—no imitation. Strength of construction is an inherent quality of all Buicks. With the new Sixty Horsepower Valve in Head engine sixty miles an hour is easily accomplished, besides hills are made short work of.

A new and valuable feature is the entirely enclosed valves and engine, thus keeping out all grit and dust and giving longer life to the car, consequently the Engine is noiseless.

We shall be happy to let you look over our 1919 Buick Six which recently arrived—you will be convinced why it is the most envied car once you have examined it.

Plan Aeroplane To Go Straight Up.

English Experts at Work on Secret Device.

London, March 13.—It is understood that experiments with an apparatus destined to be embodied in a helicopter airplane are being secretly carried out by authorities near London.

The helicopter is a type of airplane which is capable of rising and descending vertically and able to hover. This said there is good reason to hope that an airplane completed on the lines of the experiments would not only rise straight up, but also would be able to alight on housetops, or even on barges, and thus the dangers of landing at night or in a fog would be minimized.

An aeronautical authority told a reporter that if perfected the helicopter will be the greatest step yet made toward complete mastery of the air with a heavier-than-air machine.

"Extensive experiments with the helicopter," he said, "are a success. Since the war many notable British aeronautical engineers, at first skeptical, have turned their attention to the problem, which is now well on the way to being solved."

The Battle Cruiser "Repulse."

Of the new ships, built for the British navy during the war, none have created greater interest than the "Repulse" and "Renown." When the war started they were included in the 1914 program of new construction. These two and another ship were intended to form part of the "Royal Sovereign" class, ships of 25,750 tons displacement and 21 knots speed. On the outbreak of war, at the instance of Lord Fisher, a strong advocate of the battle-cruiser, the plans of two of the ships were redrawn on battle-cruiser lines.

Persistent reports of a semi-official character led to the belief that these ships were considerably over 800 feet in length and of 32,000 to 33,000 tons displacement and 33 knots contract speed. If the London Engineer is correct that is an over-statement and the length is slightly under 800 feet and the contract speed was about 31½ knots—the highest speed on trials being 33 knots. The armor is light and disposed on a novel plan, protection against sinking by gunfire and torpedo being assured by an elaborate system of cofferdams and sub-division. They are shapely vessels, in which lofty super-structures have been avoided, the masting, smokestacks, etc., being of moderate height—the target presented to enemy gunfire being thus relatively small for ships of this great size. The displacement being less than 30,000 tons, and the engine power large (reported to be 112,000) the armament is lighter than that of the "Royal Sovereigns" which they superseded. Only six guns are carried in the main battery, viz. four 15-inch forward and two 15-inch aft—the former in two turrets with super-turret fire for the guns of the forward turret of the pair.

A novelty is the adoption of the all-centerline position for the torpedo battery of 18 4-inch guns, which are mounted in three-gun shield mounts, open to the rear. Also the director-fire principle has been applied, all the guns being trained and elevated from a single fire-control station by the fire-control officer. This method has been in use for some years for the main batteries, and this is the first time, as far as we know, that it has been applied to the secondary batteries. The results have given great satisfaction.

The hull of the ship, forward, is marked by a pronounced flaring out of the bows above water—a doubtful advantage as it results in heavy pounding if the ships are driven hard into head seas. It is stated that the vessels have had to be strengthened by extra bulkheads, amidships, to meet the bending stresses.

These two battle-cruisers, built on the Clyde in 17 months, constitute a record for rapid construction of capital ships.—Scientific American.

English Girl Weds "Indian Chief."

Goes Home Sadly Disillusioned.

A strange case of romance mingled with tragedy was brought a few days ago to the attention of patriotic women workers who attend the arrival of returned soldiers at West St. John and care for the soldiers' dependents.

In receiving and conversing with the many English brides who have cast in their lot with Canadian men and who have come to this country to settle with their soldier husbands, their notice was attracted to a particularly distinguished looking young lady, cultured and of fine attainments. On inquiry they learned that this English girl of splendid family had become acquainted with a New Brunswick Indian in the ranks of the army. He presented himself to her imagination as being chief of a great tribe and wielding immense influence over a vast territory. The possibility of being queen of such a realm no doubt appealed to her romantic nature after her quiet life among the peaceful pastoral surroundings of the English country village, and the two were wed.

In her youth she had probably read with many thrills the story of Pochontas and the romantic union of the squaw-girl with John Smith; of the subsequent influence which, between them, they held over the tribe and over many tribes; and of the pride with which many Virginians of today trace their ancestry to this strange marriage.

The young lady's conversation betrayed the castles she had built in the air; how she proposed to govern with queenly grace a great band of Red Skins and how, in her charitable nature, she was planning to improve their "primeval" conditions.

It took but few minutes for the women to realize that the pretty bride had been victimized as much by her own false conceptions perhaps as by misrepresentations, but at the same time they approached with reluctance the task of disillusioning her.

Sympathetically they advised her that she had made a mistake and urged her not to proceed to her husband's home. She insisted, however, that she should go and rule the tribe of which she was chief. As delicately as possible she was told that there were no "big chiefs" now. She was still unmoved, however, interpreting the solicitations of the kind women as advice against adopting the Red Man's life. She still believed her husband was head of a tribe and a big ruler.

Finally the young bride consented that two of the women should accompany her to her husband's home to see if she was satisfied with conditions. Still in good spirits she travelled with the two local women to a place not many miles from St. John, where the Indian had made his abode.

There her romantic vision received a rude jolt. Instead of the encampment that was painted in her imagination she found but a few rude huts and her husband's relatives living in squalor without one relieving touch of romance. The shock was so great that she fainted away.

The next train back to St. John brought the bride of a few weeks and her two guardians. After but a few minutes' visit to what she expected would be her home, she gave up dreams of future glory and incidentally parted from her Indian husband. The next boat took her back to England to rejoin her family.—St. John Telegram.

Later Particulars of "Hush" Ships.

The latest statement of dimensions regarding the so-called "hush" ships built for the British navy during the war, indicate that their dimensions, speeds, etc., as published during the war were greatly exaggerated. Thus, The Engineer gives the following dimensions for the battle-cruisers "Renown" and "Repulse": Length, 794 feet, beam, 90 feet; draft, 30 feet; normal displacement, 28,500 tons; and for the celebrated trio "Furious," "Courageous," and "Glorious," the dimensions given by the same authority are: Length, 786 feet; beam, 81 feet; normal draft, 25 feet; and displacement, 18,600 tons. After the "Furious" was changed to a seaplane carrier, airplanes had no difficulty in landing on her deck after returning from a flight. She is credited with 18 torpedo tubes and with 90,000 horse-power for a speed of 31 knots, which, we are told, was very greatly exceeded in actual service.

Full Face Profile.

By RUTH CAMERON.

Did you ever notice how very different the same person looks when you see him or her profile instead of full face? At the little Inn where I sometimes spend part of my summers, two of us who were sitting on the veranda one day became quite interested in what we took to be a new guest. He was sitting in a corner of the veranda about fifteen feet away. The time was just after dinner of a summer evening, and while there was no bright sunlight, neither had the twilight begun to fall. "Who is that?" we asked each other. "He looks rather nice," we said. And then he turned. And behold, it was (as you have guessed) a young man who had been staying a full week at the Inn. As he sat on the veranda rail, we could see only his profile, and it was so absolutely different from his full face that we had both been deceived.

Her Mother's Profile, Her Father's Face.

Again I recently met a young girl, whose father and mother I used to know, and made this interesting discovery about her. Looked at full face, she was a perfect ingenue type, all innocence, eagerness and sweetness. But when you looked at her in profile you found to your surprise that her nose was aquiline, her chin very determined and the whole effect was one of dominance and aggression. The front face was her father's, a gentle, courteous, unusually sweet tempered and unspoiled person, the profile, her mother, a much more dominating and aggressive society matron.

Two Sides to Every Face.

Another discovery, which you have doubtless already made, is how different the two sides of a face may be. Almost everyone has a good and a bad, or shall we say a good and a better, side. Sometimes one cannot tell just why this is, and again, one can trace the effect to its cause. It may be that the mouth is a bit crooked, and the line is not so good on one side as the other; or it may be that the hair waves more attractively on the right than the left, or the eyes may be different. If you look closely you will be surprised to find how many people have one eye a bit different from the other.

And the Eyebrow is Only a Lesser Feature.

Faces are quite the most interesting thing in the world to me—their infinite variety, their play of expression, their alluring beauty, their fascinating ugliness, their likeness and unlikeness to each other, their vast possibilities when looked at as the indices of character. I can quote understand the lady in Stevenson's essay who said she could wonder herself crazy over the mystery of a human eyebrow. I think a book could easily be written on eyebrows alone. And this is but one of the lesser features of the face!

Household Notes.

Pineapple juice will remove cherry stains from the hands. Reduce the quantity of "leftovers" by carefully planning.

Many people unable to eat other sweets can indulge in honey. Wine dressing poured over fruit salad makes it very delicious.

In boiling vegetables, just enough water to cover is a good rule. Canned consomme can be used for the basis of an excellent gravy.

Save all the discarded neckties—they may be useful for patching. Hold a hot shovelful of varnished furniture to take out white spots.

Never have the firebox of the stove more than three-fourths full. Stand fruitcake batter in the refrigerator overnight before baking.

White pepper is less irritating to the lining of the stomach than black. When cutting layer cake, place a glass over the centre and cut around it.

Sun and cleanliness are two of the best preventatives of moths in woolens. A good paste is made with grated potato and boiling water. Boil till thick.

Though it gives an inferior flavour, lard makes a more tender crust than butter.

An attractive desert is different colored gelatine creams in layers in sherbet glasses. Cold tea used on varnished floors or woodwork of any kind will give it a beautiful lustre.

Try dipping liver in milk before frying. It will fry a nice brown and will not be hard.

COME FIT TO THE TASK.

Come fit to the task, with an eye that can see. The goal in the distance whatever it be. Have your brain at its keenest, your strength at its best. And your glad spirit eager to get at the test. Be ready for service, not weary and glum—Too worn out to battle the trials that come. But, with eyes bright and shining, to duty advance. You can conquer by giving yourself a fair chance.

Don't burn out your strength in life's revelry gay; Too many have gone down to failure. Don't think you can sit up too late in the night. And come to your toll at the top of your might. Don't think that your work doesn't call for your best. Or that yours is a goal you can reach without rest. Neither glory nor fortune await you off there. If unto yourself you are always unfair.

The hand that's unsteady, the eye that is blurred. And the strength that resents when to action it's stirred. Are ever the victims of failure and fear. They are lost when the problems perplexing appear. And the men who succeed are the clear-brained and true. Who are ready for all that life gives them to do. For, the most that success of a man ever asks. Is that he shall be ready and fit for his tasks.

OUR WONDERFUL LANGUAGE.

"Did you call Edith up this morning to breakfast before the fish got cold?" "Yes, but she wasn't down." "But why didn't you call her down?" "Because she wasn't up." "Then call her up now and call her down for not being down when you called her up."

Misleading Names.

There are many mistaken notions that can be accounted for by the misleading names given to various things.

Nothing is more natural than to assume that India ink comes from India but it does not, any more than did Indiarubber. The first originated in, and comes from, China, and should be called Chinese ink, as it is in France, and the latter comes from Central and South America.

Camel-hair brushes are not made from the hair of camels, but from the tails of Russian and Siberian squirrels; and "genuine" French birch-root pipes are not made from the roots of birch, but from the root of a white heath, which reaches a considerable size, and is cultivated in the South of France for pipe-making purposes.

Silkworms are not worms, but caterpillars. Sealing-wax contains no wax; and sweet spirits of nitre do not contain any nitre.

Finally, if you think a centipede has a hundred feet, count them and see. You will not find more than thirty feet on the largest size.

Milady's Boudoir.

THE FRESH AIR TREATMENT FOR BEAUTY.

The only sensible way to make your complexion healthy and pink is to fill your lungs the long day with plenty of fresh air and so destroy all the waste and poisonous tissues.

Make it your business to fit up a small and inexpensive sleeping porch, and sleep out of doors all summer. If you live in the country and your house has a large veranda, turn this into sleeping porches and insist on the whole family sleeping out of doors.

You may have been humoring yourself with the idea that you cannot take cold baths in winter time; the shock is too much for your heart action. If your heart is strong, summer is a good time for you to get used to cold water. Perhaps when you once get accustomed to it you will want to keep it up all year around. It is worth while trying over the summer at least.

Taking cold baths may stimulate the desire for swimming, especially if you have a good natatorium or small lake near you. After you once learn you will find it a delightful sport, and it is as healthy as it is pleasurable.

This is only a small part of your exercise for the summer months. If you are seated all the time or most of the time at your work, you need movement exercise, to energize your muscles. You should count on five miles a day at least, and more when you have a half day off, or are on your vacation.

This will keep you strong of mind no less than of body. To enjoy all the pleasures of walking go in the parks and in the country whenever you can. Do not be thwarted in this desire because you have to take a trolley or a train to get there. You will be liberally compensated by this extra expenditure of energy.

SURE CURES.

There is a cure for every ill that gives your frame a wrench; a porous plaster or a pill, a capsule or a drench. No matter what disease you have, some delegate is nigh, to tell you of a healing s a l v e that makes your anguished fly. Some learned physician has the dope—it costs one buck a throw—that will revive the springs of hope and abrogate your woe. Some ancient dame in humble garb can brew a magic tea, the essence of some mystic yarb, to cure your housemaid's knee. This being true, as true it is, why are we in the soup, with gout and mumps and rheumatism, with rables, itch and croup? Why do we weep and suffer on, and beastly fills endure, when we can buy a demijohn that's guaranteed to cure? Why do we die before our time and fill the boneyard lot when there are remedies sublime, that always hit the spot? I button-holed the village doc, and asked him things like these; for I was full, from neck to hock, of every punk disease. "That's easy," said the doc, "you hick; men's judgment is so poor, they always wait till they are sick before they take the cure."

ENTENTE BLAMED.

LONDON, Mar. 24. (Via Reuter's Ottawa Agency.)—Hungary's adoption of Bolshevism is regarded most seriously as endangering French progress, chiefly as endangering the Entente's effort to build up Rumanian bulwarks against the German advance in Central Europe. All three states are menaced by advancing Bolshevist armies, and the Entente, decided on by the Peace Conference, was intended to make Rumanians desist attacking the Hungarians, while it closed the gap between Rumania and Poland. Following a Vienna despatch, the Entente note, which precipitated the Entente's effort to force a peace, was dated March 19th, and directed the Entente to force a peace, virtually shutting Hungary behind the rivers Theiss, Szamos and Maros, and including the towns of Grosswarde and Debracz, and the whole country behind them. The Entente required the withdrawal of Hungarian troops behind the western boundary of the neutral zone was to be exercised by Hungarians under Allied control, but the important points were to be occupied by Allied troops. Statements issued at Budapest accused the Entente of forcing a peace, but the crisis is more probably due to the occupation of parts of Hungary by Czechoslovaks and Rumanians, while the signs are not wanting that Germany is in collusion with the Bolshevists. Ex-Colonial Minister Dernberg, writing to the Berlin Tageblatt, says that Germany threatened with dishonor instead of security on the west, must turn eastwards to satisfy her needs and realize her future.

NO FOOD UNTIL TERMS ACCEPTED.

LONDON, Mar. 24. (Via Reuter's Ottawa Agency.)—Replying to a question in the House of Commons, Mr. McCurdy, Secretary to the Controller, stated that no food had yet been sent to Germany, except to areas occupied by the Allies. Food would not be sent to unoccupied Germany until the German Govt. had fulfilled the preliminary terms regarding shipping and finance. However, we are already at Rotterdam, in anticipation of the fulfilment of these conditions. About forty-five thousand tons of food stuffs had arrived in Germany-Austria.

IS IT A NEW MOVE.

AMSTERDAM, Mar. 23. (Via Reuter's Ottawa Agency.)—To show that there was no substance in reports that a menace of some sort was hanging over former Emperor William in his retreat in the Von Bentinck Castle here, several of the British Guards continued, however, to perform their duties, although their watchfulness had been somewhat relaxed after the ex-Emperor had stepped back across the draw bridge from his morning trick at log sawing.

LICENSE EXEMPTION.

LONDON, March 24. An order will be issued by the British Government exempting from the requirement of treasury licenses, all issues of securities by companies established in the United Kingdom, in cases where the issuing company certifies that no part of the issue is to be applied for capital purposes outside the Kingdom. It was announced in the House of Commons to-day, by J. Austen Chamberlain, the Chancellor of the Exchequer. Issue by British companies for capital purposes abroad, he added, are still subject to control.

NEW YORK, March 24. NOT PRIZES OF WAR. PARIS, Mar. 25. The American view that submarine cables are not prizes of war was upheld by the Supreme Council late yesterday. The question was presented in a report by a committee covering three main points: First, the committee was unanimous that cables were prizes of war like warships, the British, French and Japanese holding them to be prizes of war, and the United States and Italy taking the opposite view; Third, the committee was unanimous that the United States or other third parties should be consulted on the final disposition of German cables landing on their shores. The Council finally approved the view that cables are not prizes but are subject to the same disposition as other private property.

At seven o'clock this evening, the latest hour when a telegraphic message could be despatched, nothing had occurred to call for the services of the strong guards, which had been established about the castle. The guards continued, however, to perform their duties, although their usefulness had been somewhat reduced by the fact that the Entente had stepped across the draw bridge from his morning trick at log sawing.

Editor Evening Telegram. Dear Sir,—I see by the papers that tobacco has risen in price (not fallen) 25 per cent. As a confirmed smoker for nearly 40 years, I now utter a solemn protest.

Some years ago we got tobacco at a reasonable price—that is about 50 per cent. more than it cost in the United States. Since then we have been throttled by the American Tobacco Trust, and we not only pay exorbitant prices for our smoke but we also give this wealthy Corporation enough profit over its producing price, and also pay probably 50 per cent. more, to enable the Trust to declare a very handsome semi-annual dividend to its foreign shareholders.

How much longer are we to be the victims of this kind of profiteering? Cannot these people see that flagrant profiteering has caused all kinds of evils in the European countries—Bolshevism for one example. History shows—and the despatches in the daily papers prove it now—that the people will stand a great deal of injustice, but they always come to a breaking point. That point has been reached in every country in Europe, and now the people are rising up and demanding that the profiteers be put down.

Since the war the production of cigarette smoking has been in abeyance, cannot the Trust see that their action is bound to revive it? The next campaign will be an anti-tobacco one, and it will not only get the support of the anti-tobacco fanatics but also of the moderate smokers, who have to pay through the nose for the thousands of dollars worth of anti-tobacco taxes that are now distributed to girls and children.

The Trust has well paid officials here. Well, no one objects to that. But when these officials get princely salaries and pickings, they ought to have sense enough not to kill the goose that lays the golden egg. There has been no profiteering in the past since the war, that has caused so much discontent. Now that the war is over and everything including the price of necessities is being brought back to normal, this country appears to be the only one in the world where the profiteers have not been put down. We have to pay the same prices as if the war had just commenced, and we were in the worst of the war-zone, cut off from all commerce with the outside world, instead of being one of the parts of the earth where the war was felt least.

All this profiteering is causing great discontent and dealers would be wise to take notice in time. We are not altogether free from the war in our minds now—as the utterances of some public men and their associates, no reason why—the causes being the same—that the effect here will be different. This outrageous extra tax of 25 per cent. on tobacco is the last straw, and it appears that the time is ripe for the victims to do something to show they won't take it lying down.

Yours faithfully, J. R. BENNETT, Minister of Militia.

As we predicted yesterday, the large attendance at the Majestic last night was delighted with "The Cowardly Way." The brilliant acting of this splendid picture just had to appeal to all present, and the sacrifice of the heart-broken woman, as she viewed her demented husband ended the picture, leaving the full force of the poignancy of her sacrifice impressed on the spectator. This show, with an unusually bright comedy, will be repeated to-night.

The North-West Reform Movement. What Bonne Bay Wants--Important Statements and Petitions.

Mr. Stephen Taylor was the first speaker. He made a strong appeal for a division of the St. Barbe district and pointed out the anomalies of the present system of representation which could not be considered satisfactory from the point of view of any section of these people. It was not conceivable, he said, that a Bonne Bay representative could properly take care of the interests of the people of the north-east coast and vice versa. He urged that the division should be made immediately. On the subject of a Government supported hospital he said he failed to see how the Government could overlook the claims of Bonne Bay; if a hospital was to be built on this coast it should be located at Bonne Bay and not at Curlew. He also criticised the present mail service which had been lessened in value by the latest order reducing the weight of parcel post matter from eleven to five pounds. He assured the meeting that the committee were earnestly endeavouring to secure the reforms described in the documents read by the secretary and mentioned that other matters would receive their early attention. Mr. Taylor's remarks were followed with great interest and attention.

Mr. William Tuff put the fisherman's view of the had result of the summer transport service before the meeting. Both merchants and fishermen suffered by the failure of the Reid steamer to run regularly while the Eagle and Portia troubles were simply intolerable and must never be repeated. He was particularly strong in his condemnation of the failure of the authorities to see that the branch line was made to Bonne Bay and criticised the action of the department which was responsible for "throwing soldiers ashore at Bay of Islands in the late fall and allowing them to find their own way to points along this long stretch of coast." He thought the committee were doing a good work not only for Bonne Bay but for the entire people of the coast and hoped the fishermen would stand by them in the fight they were making to improve the conditions under which along patriotic lines. In these days, he said, they must work not only to improve their own port but the Colony as a whole and the Empire of which it formed part and for which the soldier sons of the west coast had fought. He urged loyalty on the part of the people to the public committee and supported the position they had taken up in relation to the many reforms they desire to see carried out. The movement must in time affect public and official feeling in St. John's and he was satisfied that in the end results would be satisfactory to the people of the west coast.

Mr. A. W. Amberman, in the absence of the Rev. A. H. Boyles, seconded the resolution in a few well chosen remarks. Mr. J. D. Henry, supporting the resolution, spoke chiefly on the subject of the hospital. It was, he said, the opinion of the committee that no proposal would be just and fair unless it set forth the special claims of Bonne Bay for hospital accommodation. These claims were chiefly based on the geographical position and trading importance of Bonne Bay as the centre of a long stretch of coast on which the inhabitants were every winter absolutely without the advantages of hospital and nursing facilities. The question had a great interest for the people at the present time; the people living on the coast felt that the hardships, involving much suffering and loss of life, particularly in the case of young children, had been endured too long, and the committee considered it to be their duty to support the movement for the decentralisation and extension of the present inadequate hospital system started for this purpose of urging the Government to erect and support institutions at a number of important outports. Typical cases of hardship and suffering mentioned by Dr. Grenfell were similar to others known to members of the Committee as having occurred this winter at isolated places north of Bonne Bay. If the Government decided to erect public hospitals to the memory of men who fell in the great war Bonne Bay had special reasons to be considered a suitable centre.

Mr. Henry also associated himself with Mr. Taylor in the appeal for an early division of St. Barbe and urged a strong local support of the committee, whose able and energetic preliminary work he explained and praised. The leading papers of the Colony were supporting the new movement, which promised to be successful, and the people were completely alive to the importance of the task undertaken by the committee. The resolution was then put and enthusiastically carried. Mr. Willton having been thanked for his services in the chair, the National Anthem was sung and the proceedings were brought to a close.

Mid. Scotch Cured Herring.

Newfoundland Scotch cured herring of the fall pack, with its variable, uncertain and generally inferior quality, is still without demand in New York, while offerings continue to persist, some at quotations below the holding prices of large importers, some in accordance with the market levels established on the arrival of the first lots from St. John's. It is doubtful, however, if the trifling business, which is reported in some quarters, has concluded under wholly satisfactory conditions to the seller. The trade has not looked favorably upon Newfoundland herring this season. There has not been any evidence of keenness to purchase it. Therefore they have been obliged to take the initiative as never before. The result of continued offerings, some at lower prices than the trade expected, has been an almost general withdrawal of buyers. There are reports that sales have been made at $24 and $25 for small lots, but there appears to be no confirmation of them; most of the larger importers are asking from $28 to $28 for large lots, and proportionately less for smaller fish, quality and pack determining the asking price. Winter and spring herring are not selling at all, and the market is perhaps at its dullist period. Not in three years, even under the most adverse conditions, has there been such an inactive time at this season. New lots, which are about of the same quality and run as goods received earlier in the season, have not commanded any more attention than the stocks which came two months ago. N. Y. Girls! Have a Mass of Beautiful Hair, Soft, Glossy, Wavy

A small bottle destroys dandruff and doubles beauty of your hair.

Within ten minutes after an application of Danderine you can not find a single trace of dandruff or falling hair and your scalp will not itch, but what will please you most will be after a few weeks' use, when you see new hair, fine and downy at first—yes—but really new hair—growing all over the scalp. A little Danderine immediately doubles the beauty of your hair. No difference how dull, faded, brittle and scraggy, just moisten a cloth with Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair taking one small strand at a time. The effect is amazing—your hair will be light, fluffy and wavy, and have an appearance of abundance; an incomparable lustre, softness and luxuriance. Get a small bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store or toilet counter for a few cents and prove that your hair is as pretty and soft as any—that it has been neglected or injured by careless treatment—that's all—you surely can have beautiful hair and lots of it if you will just try a little Danderine.

Disastrous Floods in America.

On the evening of Easter Sunday, March 23, 1913, a tornado, with accumulated ferocity wrought death and destruction in ten States in America, namely Colorado, Kansas, Dakota, Iowa, Missouri, Illinois, Wisconsin, Nebraska, Indiana, and centred in the city of Omaha. The river Ohio, as far up as Wheeling, West Virginia, was 52 feet above its level, and inundated Yanestown, Hamilton, Columbus, Dayton, and hundreds of the surrounding villages, it being estimated that 5,200 persons were killed, while the damage done amounted to $20,000,000. At Dayton, fire followed flood, and the Becket Hotel, packed with refugees, was burned to the water's edge. Wooden houses, with human freight crying for help, none could give, were swept along by the tide, sometimes lucky striking against the roofs of buildings more firmly established. The National Cash Register Company's building was a vast hospital. On the 29th the flood waters receded, and troops arrived in boats with provisions. Two men, three women, and a baby girl had been for two days in the branches of a tree, lashed to the boughs by a clothes line. They were in plain view of the Ohio State Capitol, only three hundred yards away, but owing to the roaring torrent could not be reached until noon on the 27th, when three men on a raft succeeded in getting them off. Several heroic efforts previously had been made, but the waters swamped every boat that put out from the shore. On the same morning a baby was born in a motorboat as the mother was being taken from her flooded home to the Carmel Hospital. The pilot, who already had his hands full, acted as nurse as best he could, wrapping the infant in his coat. All were drenched to the skin when they arrived at their destination, but mother and child, strange to say, survived the ordeal. A telephone girl, speaking from Yanestown, Ohio, into the offices of a New York newspaper, on the 27th, told them that they had been without food for three days, and that wherever she looked, nothing but dead bodies were to be seen floating in the water, which was 30 feet deep. In most of the towns, as the tornado struck, the houses collapsed as if they were made of paper, while the skies were lit up by a red glare. Afterwards, the meteorologists called attention to the extraordinary differences in the temperature of western and eastern States in the same latitude on the Saturday and Sunday. The thermometer between Chicago and Denver rose as high as 36 deg., while on the Atlantic seaboard, from Portland to Atlantic City, the temperature was around freezing point. Between such extremes, nothing but the wildest hurricane was to be expected.

Port au Port Notes.

Over 50,000 lbs. of fresh frozen smelts have been shipped from this port to the New York market this winter. This fishery opened the first week of December and closed early in February. Codfish have been plentiful in Bay St. George all along the east side of the peninsula of Port au Port from Campbell's Creek to Cape St. George, all winter. With the transportation service due this part of the country, and which has been repeatedly promised, the greater part of the winter's catch could have been marketed in a fresh state which would have given the fishermen a handsome return for their labor. As it is some of them have done very well indeed. Railway extension to this section of the district, either by a deflection of the main line, or a short spur from Stephenville Crossing, is a very live issue here. Fallen into abeyance during the progress of the war, the agitation which a few years ago started for the confirmation of the promise made time and again respecting the extension of the line to Port au Port will now be taken up with renewed vigour. Public opinion here "is not dead but sleepeth." In the following clipping from a Canadian journal, the world may see expressed, the sentiments that animate the people, press and government of the Sister Dominion toward the returned soldier and in the material results already produced thereby, shows that the Canadian veteran is not likely to suffer the "bitterness of disillusionment" that have already marked the return of many Newfoundland soldiers: "The man of the hour in Canada is the returned soldier. The attitude of every citizen towards public affairs should be governed by jealousy of the returned soldier's rights. Because these brown-clad men went out and put themselves between the 'country and the Hun, Canada was spared the worst horrors of war and 'civilization was saved for free and 'exalted growth. For months and 'years they were absent from the customary economic life of their country, sacrificing their chance to grow 'in ability and in wealth. They are 'truly of a superior type. Bay Hospital

Stirring Appeal

In England and America the right of health is regarded very much as a right to life. Hospitals in which the best of treatment can be obtained for even the poorest patient are everywhere looked upon as a luxury. Newfoundland is a full quarter of a century behind in caring for the health of its people—one might say half a century. She has one hospital at the south end of the Island—Newfoundland Hospital for the Insane—available for half the year to a limited part of the country. This hospital has even larger enough for St. John's. The outport voyager suffer and die from long cruel voyages to reach the city. Doctors in the outport are even now told not to send patients along till they know that they can get in. All this could be remedied by proper management at the hospital in the country of very little cost. Bay hospitals could now be reached quickly by motor boats once at all times of the year, and many lives would be saved, much suffering spared, and many capacities reserved which are now lost. These very hospitals could be made as efficient as the present central one. The small hospital units which have done just as good work as the large ones. America has now adopted this method of encouraging new hospitals to be standardized. Newfoundland could and should adopt this method. Without it the public has no way whatever of knowing if any hospital is doing up-to-date work, while it is the very smallest is constantly inspired to improve its results. Hospitals in the North have proved that the men are available if they want to do the work properly and efficiently. To-day Nipper's Harbor and Joseph's Arm are offering twice as much for a doctor as we pay, yet they can't get them, and we can. Good men prefer less money and the means to do the kind of work which satisfies them. That the present system is inefficient, and unfair and uneconomical beyond question—as far as the interests of the community are concerned it is disastrous. The voters of the country are beginning to see this, and the return of our soldiers who have been in hospitals will help them to insist on fair treatment at home. Our returning soldiers will not be content any longer

What would you do with it?

A CONSERVATIVE MAN DOESN'T CARRY a lighted bomb around with him searching for water to put out the fuse. He gets rid of it as quickly and gently as possible and then goes away from there.

Not all of us know that we are packing around with us every day a potential source of trouble that may produce disease or even death. Ninety per cent of human illness is caused or aggravated by a clogging of waste in your bowels.

If you try to blast away that decaying, germ-breeding waste with weakening pills, salts, castor oil, laxative mineral waters, etc., you are like the man with the bomb—carrying it around with you while you hunt for the neutralizer.

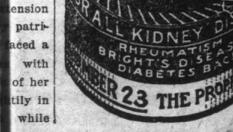

You'll never find one. There isn't any. The thing for you to do is to stick to your schedule of bowel movements as you do to your tooth brush. Get rid of that source of danger before the germs back up through your system and hit you with something you recognize. Nujol has a gentle, absolutely harmless and absolutely thorough cleansing action upon the intestines, and leaves no after-effect but regular habits.

Nujol for constipation

Bay Hospitals.

Stirring Appeal by Dr. Grenfell.

England and America the right health is regarded very much as a right to life. Hospitals in which the best of treatment can be obtained for the poorest patients are no longer looked upon as a luxury, but as an inherent right. Newfoundland is a full quarter of a century behind in caring for the health of her people—one might say half a century. She has one hospital at the extreme south end of the island—hospitals for half the year to a large part of the country. This hospital is even larger enough for St. John's. The outport people suffer and die from long cruel voyages when they are interminable delays when they get to the city. Doctors in the outports are even now told not to send patients along till they know that they can get in. All this could be remedied by proper management at the expense of the country very little if anything more than the one central hospital is now costing.

Bay hospitals could nowadays be reached quickly by motor boats or at all times of the year, and many lives would be saved, suffering spared, and many capacities preserved which are now lost.

These very hospitals could be as efficient as the present central one. The small hospital units in charge did just as good work as the large ones. America has now a splendid method of encouraging all hospitals to be standardized. Newfoundland could and should adopt that method. Without it the public has no way of knowing if any hospital is doing up-to-date work, while it is the very smallest is constantly inspired to improve its results.

Hospitals in the North have proved that the men are available if the means to do the work properly are provided.

Today Nipper's Harbor and Joe's Arm are offering twice as much as a doctor as we pay, yet they can't get them, and we can. Good men get less money and the means to do the kind of work which satisfies them.

That the present system is inefficient, and unfair and uneconomical beyond question—as far as the outports are concerned it is disastrous.

The voters of the country are beginning to see this, and the return of our soldiers who have been in hospitals will help them to insist on fair treatment at home. Our returning officers will not be content any longer with a hospital as far from the place where they work in peace time as North Scotland would have been from the spot where they fought in war time.

Now is the psychological moment to inaugurate Bay hospitals, because any quantity of hospital fittings will be in the market cheap, from the war hospitals in Europe; and because these hospitals will be the best memorial to those who died for our lives and liberty, and many will wish to help with them on this account.

I can probably go to no more authoritative source for the proof of my statements than to the report of the only hospital Newfoundland does provide. This came to us by this mail, and I presume it is endorsed by the Hospital Board, and therefore its statements are to be relied upon. It reflects great credit on the author, Dr. Keegan. The development of the artificial limb department especially fills a need long realized. It shows:

1. That the taxpayers of the whole country have to pay over $100,000 annually, besides the gift of the building, to maintain a free hospital at St. John's. Nearly half of the patients live in St. John's. They have no expensive journey to reach the hospital, no board and lodging away from home to pay while waiting for a chance to get into it. Most of them are wage-earners whose pay goes on when they are ill. On the other hand the outport fishermen earn nothing, while they are at their heaviest expense. In addition, the outport people are the producers of the wealth which keeps St. John's going.
2. Practically everywhere else in the world patients must pay what they can; and there are special beds for those who can afford to pay for more luxuries than are absolutely essential. It has been stated again and again that the people of St. John's are well off, and need no help from outside, and that is very probably true. Why then should their patients not pay anything towards their own hospital? At St. Anthony, poor as we are comparatively, patients pay one-tenth of the expenses of the hospital. Moreover, as St. John's hospital is "absolutely free" our people are not willing to do what they could. Thus, a Canadian patient in St. John's said that he expected a bill of at least $100 after three weeks' treatment, but he was not charged one cent. I can think at the moment of two patients from the South who paid $100 apiece for treatment at St. Anthony hospital.

Objections have been raised to "charity hospitals"; but in a sense our hospitals are less "charity" than St. John's, seeing that our patients are all asked to pay something. The actual facts are that the taxpayers of the outports pay 7/8 of the cost of St. John's hospital, and the population of St. John's itself fills half the beds.

3. Practically the population of St. John's is thirty thousand, that is, less than one-eighth of the total population of the Colony. If patients were to pay half the cost of their treatment, $50,000 a year would be saved, and so $10,000 annually would be available for five bay hospitals, each of which should cost another $10,000 from various sources quite easily. The hospitals then could be delivered from politics, as every hospital must be to do its best work. I venture to say that a memorial gift from the Government to start a hospital in each distant large bay, and a promise of a subsidy of $10,000 a year apiece, would meet a quick response and in a short time work a revolution in the public health of the Colony. Once the people have learned what good hospital treatment means to them, they will see that their bay hospital does not fail. We are assured that they can easily afford to do so.

If the money wasted in this country on quack patent medicines were spent in rational healing, that alone would solve the problem of cost. The use of patent medicines is in inverse ratio to the intelligence of a people. The educational value of bay hospitals would be untold in fighting tuberculosis, and dietetic diseases that kill far more Newfoundlanders annually than the Germans did in the war.

Again, the money spent in passages to St. John's and in boarding patients while there, could be far more responsibly devoted to upkeep of bay hospitals. The Government itself, in St. John's has told us that sufferers come and remain at the expense of the Government, and have even returned home again without even entering the hospital at all.

But beyond all this, there is the heavy economic loss to the Colony caused by loss of life and limb quite unnecessarily, and all because "all the accidents of the outports are treated" and "practically all the surgery of the Colony done" away down in St. John's. We have at this moment a poor little girl whose hip had been out of joint a whole year. Last week I saw a man whose hip, dislocated by a fall when he was a boy, was still out. He, of course, is a pauper on the Government. It would be the easiest thing possible to go round these few districts, and show what terribly poor economy it is to neglect to place the equipment to "in any way carry out modern treatment" within quicker access, and less expenditure, owing to distance, in time and money—just as it was to wait till 1910 to put it in St. John's.

There are also fees to widows, unnecessarily left widows. They are small—indeed, so small that they further burden the Colony with half fed, and half cared for children. The money had far better be saved by, and for, the upkeep of bay hospitals.

There is another problem raised by this authoritative report, namely, the number of Newfoundlanders with no home to which to go, and therefore kept in hospital only for that reason. Dr. Keegan states that an average of ten beds are occupied by such all the year round; 365 days at $2.49 means $8,869.50 cents. Our records and statistics definitely show a similar condition of affairs—only probably proportionately greater. Though we have every year to raise money to meet this tax on our budget, we have been severely criticized for mentioning it. We could not meet it unless we did, and yet those who criticize do not offer to solve the problem for their people in any other way. St. John's considers it legitimate to add this expense to their budget and make the colony pay for it. The pauper Government grants made for our Northern hospital do not pay for one doctor, much less have we any means to raise it locally. Voters cannot want their homeless fellow countrymen turned out to perish the day they are fit to leave hospital. Are they not willing to make provision to meet this expense till a home or some method of sustaining life can be arranged for them? So long as our Association exists it has no doubt about its course of action in this matter.

The St. John's hospital report insists that the trend of modern times in all parts of the world is towards the hospitalization of the sick, because (a) the hospital gives the patient the best, and often the only chance for his life or limb; (b) because the doctor can tell better what is the matter with the patient through its X-ray department, its laboratory, and its other aids to diagnosis, not available in the ordinary bedside practice; (c) because the patient can be watched and studied before the operation and after. Without a hospital doctors in our scattered outports can often only see one patient, once anyhow. In diseases like pneumonia and Spanish influenza, the trained nurse is at present the most valuable part of the treatment; (d) "because only then can dietary or electrical or other special treatments be carried out." How often have outport patients to die, because there are no means to give them the treatment which they could have in America or Canada, or a bay hospital? That is the reason why we built a little string of hospitals, and why, so long ago as 1893, we refused absolutely to return at all to Newfoundland unless we could have a little hospital, trained nurses, and modern means of finding out what the trouble was with our patients. We put in our X-ray outfit in 1893, and our first small laboratory, and brought out trained nurses and two assistant doctors to Labrador. We have kept on improving our methods ever since, adding specialists on eye-work, dental work, orthopedic work, nose and throat work, as we could obtain their services. Not only was this done for the sake of the immediate patient, but for our own sakes, to stimulate us doctors to aim higher, and enable us to do better for those who came for our help.

Dr. Keegan says "the United States has 6877 hospitals." The Dominion of Newfoundland has one. The city of New York, says Dr. Keegan further, has a hospital bed for every one hundred and thirty patients. The Dominion of Newfoundland has a hospital bed for every two thousand, one hundred and ninety-three. He states that "if the St. John's hospital were confined to St. John's patients it would have only one bed for three hundred and ninety-five inhabitants," and "that the St. John's hospital is utterly inadequate to meet the medical and surgical demands of the Dominion, and that he expects it to be less and less so." He states that "it is not perfect." It has no obstetric department, no pediatric department for crippled children, it has to take in contagious or tubercular cases into the general wards, and it has no specialist for surgical work of any kind.

Thus, even Newfoundland's one hospital could only be rated "low" by American standards. The law of the State of Massachusetts compels every thirty thousand of its population to provide a tuberculosis sanatorium. Tuberculosis is our worst enemy in Newfoundland. Provision for mothers and infants of the Colony should be made before, after and during confinement in all cases, by district nurses, public instruction, and hospital beds. They are the very life spring of our country. None whatever is made. Mayor Gosling has made very plain the need by showing that even St. John's has almost the highest infant mortality in the world.

Why have we not had bay hospitals long ago? Dr. Keegan says about this most vital problem of every civilized country that so little attention is paid it by the Government that "not until 1910 was even the St. John's hospital equipped in any way to carry out modern treatment." When I first saw it in 1892, it hadn't even a trained nurse.

Our rich still send their sick to America or Canada for treatment. The poor still use thousands and thousands of dollars worth of patent medicines every year. I have seen hungry families wasting money on remedies like Kidney Pills, when they had no idea what was the matter with them; and a half naked family going without butter, and spending thirteen precious dollars on a perfectly useless "electric belt."

No one-to-day dare deny over his signature the value of bay hospitals. Every doctor realizes what an immense advantage to himself as well as to his patients an accessible hospital would be. Men like Dr. Wood, of Twillingate, and Dr. Fisher, of Bay of Islands, have repeatedly stated this. Why then do we not have them? Is it because we do not care? Or will not take the trouble to organize them? Or are we afraid of the cost?

In war time the Red Cross work is romantic. In peace time the care of the fallen is tedious and prosaic. But a life is a life, and a capacity a capacity in one as much as the other. All our civilian men, women and children, cannot go to France to fight in order to be near a hospital. If the wives and children of our legislators and Executive Council all lived north of Cape John, or in the West Coast, they would soon devise satisfactory

Government Not Doing Its Duty.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir—I had the pleasure not long ago of assisting at an entertainment and reception held at the Catholic Hall, Stephenville Crossing, in honor of the returned veterans of that patriotic settlement, and the enthusiasm manifested on that occasion more than justified the glowing accounts that have from time to time appeared in the public press of the intelligence, public spirit and generosity of the people of that interesting place. The building was packed and the different items of a well selected programme were well rendered and received hearty applause.

The principal object, however, for which the gathering had taken place was to do honour to the brave boys of the settlement, who at an early stage of the war had volunteered their services for the defence of the Empire, and when each of the twelve or fourteen sturdy, handsome fellows, none of whom had been badly wounded, was presented with a well filled purse, generously subscribed to by the few people of the place, one felt that here indeed is the spirit of true patriotism and magnanimity, which runs no risk of corruption from the selfishness and want of public spirit which is so characteristic of certain places.

There is, however, one point of agreement throughout the whole District of St. George's and that is a general condemnation of the Government for the scandalous manner in which it has treated the returned soldier. No doubt every district in the island will have an annual reunion of its ex-soldiers, and if I may suggest I would say that Stephenville Crossing would be an ideal spot for the men of St. George's to hold their meetings.

Yours truly,
A VISITOR.

Long Hours.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir,—We hear a lot on the street and read more in the newspapers of the eight-hour day, which seems to be the standard time set for labour throughout the world. But what of the outport postal telegraph officials of this country who are confined to their offices from nine o'clock in the morning until eight at night, and oftentimes much later? Is the twelve hour a day drudgery still to be exacted of these poorly paid members of the Civil Service while the hours of every other class of labour, whether Government or otherwise, are so limited or curtailed as to permit of exercise and recreation so necessary to health and personal well-being. Most of the postal telegraph officials in this country, it should be remembered, are of the gentler sex, whose weaker constitutions should not be subjected to the severe test of a close, continuous and painstaking application for twelve hours out of the twenty-four, thus allowing no time for needed recreation. It is contrary to all the laws of hygiene and should be remedied without delay. This is a case where the ladies' branch of the N. I. W. A. could, perhaps, do good service.

Yours truly,
March 13th, 1919. OUTPORT.

Floating Tuck Shops.

Navy's Wonderful Eporium.

Stuffed olives and Mrs. Humphry Ward, chiroprody and fountain-pen ink, golf clubs and penny bars of chocolate, a cold storage plant, an electric laundry, a ship's cat, and a wine cellar worthy of the Reform Club.

One does not find these things all in a construction 200ft. long in the ordinary way of business. The war taught us to do business in unusual ways, however and the Grand Fleet had to compress many things into a small compass. So it reduced the Junior Army and Navy Stores to a shop the size of a village grocery, and packed it, with a miniature Smithfield, a complete model laundry, and a pocket edition of Truitts, into a cargo steamer, the Borodino, of the Wilson line, and then took the whole con-traption to its boom in the waters of Scapa Flow and made a pet of it.

The Borodino was one of the Navy's closets attendants. She was fitted out and sent to Scapa at very short notice in December, 1914. The manager in charge of her stores soon saw that he had under-estimated the needs of the Fleet. By telegraph he troubled every order he had given for stores, and twenty-three railway trucks were required to take his new stock to Aberdeen.

Scapa Flow is a dreary, desolate spot with barely so much as a hamlet on its shores. There were nearly 100,000 officers and men in the Grand Fleet, and their wants were extensive and peculiar. But the Borodino managed to fill them all, from attending to the corns of an admiral to supplying the admiral's secretary's secretary with a copy of Mr. H. G. Wells' latest novel.

Public Notice!

Mr. Lewis J. Bartlett has been appointed by the Government in place of the late Mr. E. Whiteway to attend to the movement of patients to and from the various public institutions with headquarters at the Public Health Office, St. John's.

Medical Practitioners, Relieving Officers, and others are hereby notified that patients shall on no account be sent to St. John's without first receiving assurance from Mr. Bartlett that they can be admitted or, in the case of the General Hospital, that cots will be available upon their arrival. It has been brought to the notice of the Government that sick people sent on without authority have been caused much additional suffering and hardship in boarding houses in the city, in some cases with risk of permanent injury to their health, for which of course they themselves or their advisors have been responsible. Cases other than emergency cases coming to St. John's without the proper authority will run the risk of being immediately sent back to their homes, so as to prevent undue suffering, as it is impossible to provide accommodation for all applicants under existing conditions.
