"Had no strength to walk"

After taking her second bottle of Carnol, Mrs. George Brown says, "I am a new woman and I would not be an hour without Carnol."

The benefits derived from Carnol are in many cases almost miraculous. It has proved of wonderful benefit in cases of weakness and other run-down conditions. Where other remedies have failed to do good, Carnol has given almost immediate relief, as in the case of Mrs. George Brown, who writes: "I am dropping you a few lines to tell you what good results I have received from your Carnol medicine. For three years I could not do my housework. I was weak and I did not have strength to walk across the kitchen. I got so weak that my husband and mother had to lift me about. I tried all kinds of medicines which did not do me any good. I had four doctors, they all said that I would have to go to the hospital and get an X-ray. I read of your Carnol medicine in the St. John Star, and I said to my husband, 'I think I will try it.' Before I had taken the second bottle I felt like a new woman. I would not be one hour without it. I cannot praise it enough for what it has done for me and also for my husband and children. They had colds and in a day they were better. I am telling everybody what a great medicine Carnol is. I don't know what it is to have a day's serious sickness now." — Mrs. George Brown, 42 St. Andrews Street, St. John, N.B. 3-24

The Heir to Beecham Park

CHAPTER XIII.

"Oh, no, sir! He's took Margery with him; and right sorry are we to part with her, I can tell you. She were just a sweet lass. Have you heard that Sir Hubert and my lady ain't coming home, after all, sir? Perhaps that's why Margery went, 'cos she belongs like to her ladyship—don't she, sir?"

Stuart murmured a few vague words in reply, and then passed on. "Good-afternoon," said Carter; and then, as he watched the young man mount the hill, he muttered: "That there fall ain't done the young squire no good; he looks the ghost of hisself."

Vane sat silent as Stuart came toward her; even her cold, calculating heart was touched at the sight of his distress. He took his seat and sunk back against the cushions, looking deathly pale and worn. Vane gathered the reins together, and prepared to turn back to the castle; but Stuart stopped her.

"Drive to Chesterham," he said, in a quiet tone. "I must find out if they went to London."

Without a word she did as he wished, and in silence they sped along the lanes to the town. Vane was by no means comfortable during the drive, for she was beset by disagreeable thoughts. What if the girl, after all, had gone to London only to bid farewell to her adopted father? What more likely? Would she not have taken leave of the neighbors and villagers had she started for so long a journey? What if, on their arrival at Chesterham, they came face to face with her? Vane grew cold and faint at the thought not only of the humiliation, but of such a termination to all her scheming. She set her teeth, and her face grew paler as she pictured his disgust when he learned the truth. It was so hasty, so strange a flight, that Vane, as she sat absorbed in deep thought, could not feel the chances were very much against her.

Stuart did not notice his cousin; he realized only that Margery was gone, his sweet love vanished. The joy of life for him was dead, and his heart was heavy with its pain. Hope now and then revived, but the vague presentiment that had hung over him since first he had learned the news crushed it as it was born.

As they approached Chesterham, Vane began to tremble, and the hands grasping the reins shook with fear. "Draw up for a few minutes, Vane," Stuart said; "here is Bright—perhaps he can tell us something. Andrews said it was through his instrumentality that Morris had gone."

Vane checked the ponies and leaned back, feeling quite unperurbed from the sudden reaction. "Ah, Bright, you are the very man I want to see," exclaimed Stuart, as the farmer rode up, "for you can tell me better than any one what I want to know."

"I shall be glad to oblige you, Mr. Stuart," returned Bright, turning an anxious face to the young man. "Perhaps you've heard about my boy Robert?" he added, full of his own troubles.

"No, I have not. Is anything the matter with him?" asked Stuart, his sympathy at once enlisted.

"It's nigh broke his mother's heart, sir; but he's gone off to Australia, with Reuben Morris all of a sudden, without a word of warning."

Vane felt a thrill of joy pass through her, and her spirits at once began to revive.

"Australia? Why? But they can not have gone yet—they must be in London. It is one thing to say you will start on such a voyage, and another thing to do it. It takes two or three days, Bright, you know, to make the necessary arrangements."

The farmer looked at the young squire's flushed, eager face with a little surprise and much gratitude.

"Thank you, sir. It's like you, Mr. Stuart, always to be kind; but it's no use now, sir. Robert started last night; by this time they're out of the Channel. It's a hard thing to see one's only son took from us, Mr. Stuart, and all along of a bit of a girl."

"A girl!" echoed Stuart, shivering, he scarcely knew why.

"Ay, sir—that lass of Morris', that nameless thing! She just bewitched him, has played the fool with him, said him 'No,' when he'd have made her his wife, and now has took him on again, for they're all gone out together."

"Margery!" exclaimed Stuart, in a dull, startled way. "She—they have gone together?"

"Ay, sir—she've took him from us all with her fooling, and I make no doubt but they'll be married afore they reach the other side. The mother would have welcomed her gladly to keep Robert at home; but she weren't honest enough to do that—she must needs give herself airs like a fine lady, and drag my boy after her."

Vane saw Stuart's jaw set, his face flush, the veins on his forehead swell. After a pause, he said, in a low tone: "And you are sure of this, Bright?"

"I'm just back from London, sir. I've been down to the docks, and there's no mistake; they all remember the girl—her pretty face, they called it. Ah, it will be weary work for us, sir, waiting till Robert comes back! My wife's most distraught."

"Good-by, Bright," Stuart put out his hand, which the farmer grasped. "This is indeed bad news! I am sorry, very sorry for you."

"Thanks, Mr. Stuart." Bright loosened Stuart's hand, and, with a respectful salute to Vane, passed on, something like a tear twinkling in his eye.

Vane looked straight ahead, pretending not to see the quick, hurried way in which Stuart bent his head for a moment. Victory was hers, she told herself—victory! Suddenly Stuart looked up.

"Turn around, Vane, and drive home; it is all over now—so much the better!"

The recklessness of his tone pleased her; it showed her that anger rankled as well as pain, that mortification filled his breast with despair. If this mood lasted, her work would not be difficult.

CHAPTER XIV.

"Margery! Margery!" The light of the setting sun was gliding the branches of the few trees standing in the center of the square garden. A girl was sitting in a bay window in one of the largest and gloomiest of the houses in the square, apparently watching the sunset; but really the sunset had no charm for her. She was so deep in thought that the sweet tones coming from the further end of the room did not reach her.

"Margery!" The girl turned quickly, her musings disturbed by the touch of plaintive wistfulness in the last word. "I beg your pardon, Lady Enid," she said, hurriedly, moving from the window.

"I am sorry to disturb your dreams, Margery," observed Lady Enid, gently, "but I should like to sit up for a while, and no one can help me like you."

She smiled affectionately as she spoke, her beautiful, dark eyes resting with pleasure on the figure of her young companion; she looked so dainty, so frail, yet so lovely, lying back on her cushions, that it was hard to imagine so fair a form was aught but perfect. It was an angel's face, pale and sweet, surrounded by short, wavy locks of rich, dark-brown hair, and lighted by a pair of luminous brown eyes.

Margery bent quickly and took away the silken coverlet from the couch, then, putting her arm under the slight figure, raised it easily into a sitting position; thence, after a moment's pause, she assisted the invalid to a large, luxurious chair drawn close at hand.

"Thank you," said Lady Enid, as she reclined against the well-padded, upright back. "How good you are, Margery! What should I do without you?"

Margery smiled, and, pushing up another chair, seated herself near the speaker.

There's little satisfaction in coaxing customers in one day with the bait of some "scheme" or deal, only to lose them to-morrow, when someone else does the same thing. That's not the kind of customers that make for permanent success of the grocer.

If we have Babbitt's Borax right one day and "almost as good" the next—sold it on a "drive" one day and at the "regular price" the next—there wouldn't be any "regular price"—or quality either.

Duke of Atholl's New Steel House

Can Be Erected at Greatly Reduced Cost. Is Claim—Little for Upkeep—Other Devices for Using Liquid Concrete Also Suggested.

As a result of the assistance provided by the Minister of Health, a number of steel house schemes have been brought from their experimental stage into public light.

Details are being issued regarding what is known as the Atholl steel housing scheme. The Duke of Atholl some time ago co-operated with the firm of Sir William Beardmore in experiments in the construction of steel houses, and the Housing Corporation of Great Britain has associated itself with the scheme.

The essential feature of the Atholl house," said the general manager of the corporation to a press representative, "is that it is a steel house in the strict sense of the word, and not a wood frame house lined with steel. It can be erected at a greatly reduced cost in comparison with the bricks and mortar building."

The walls are constructed of an outer section of Beardmore's pickled sheet steel, 3-16ths of an inch thick, treated on the outside with a special preservative paint, and on the inside with a special thick preservative solution, which is impregnated with granulated cork, the effect of the treatment being to absorb the moisture within the hollow walls.

The inside portion of the wall is fixed at a space of four inches from the outer portion, giving a hollow wall with free air circulation, forming at the same time insulation against outside temperature variations.

The cost of applying the preservative to the outer steel sheets often enough is only 12s. per house per annum.

The Atholl house can be built in a month in various types—three apartments (non-parlor) or bungalow; two apartments, and the ordinary two-storied type.

Messrs. Beardmore have placed their works at Glasgow at the disposal in connection with the scheme. The Government committee which reported on the Weir steel houses has in the draft state a report dealing with the use of concrete for working-class dwellings.

Devices for using concrete in liquid form poured between shuttering and left to solidify and in the shape of blocks have been considered. It has been suggested that more use might be made of local materials.

Transferring the Map of Canada

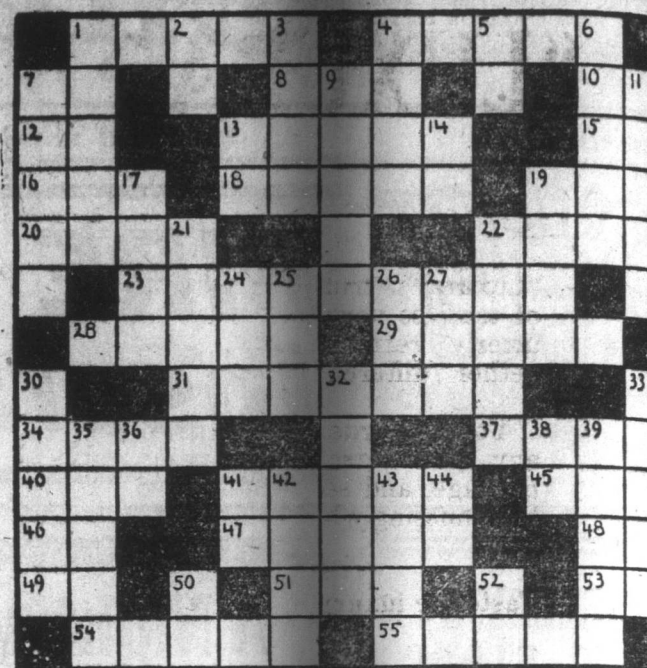

OTTAWA, Ont., Feb. 4. (C.P.)—Aerial photography in Canada has opened a new world to the map maker, A. M. Narraway, controller of surveys, Topographical Survey of Canada, told the association of Dominion Land Surveyors at the 18th annual convention opened to-day. Mr. Narraway outlined the work undertaken by the Department of the Interior in surveying by air. "Inaccessible forest or mineralized areas are now accurately mapped with ease and at a much reduced cost," he said.

Such rapid progress had been made during the past year that over 40,000 square miles had been successfully photographed in various parts of the country from Nova Scotia to Alberta. Maps of the entire areas were in the course of preparation and would be issued early this year.

From the work already completed it was known that so many changes in the shapes of lakes had been discovered and so much additional information had been added that the maps of various parts of Canada, especially those in the forested areas, would be almost completely altered, and an entirely new impression of the country would be revealed.

Full information of the location of rock outcrops, the various types of timber, swamp and muskeg lands, was secured at very low cost. The progress made had placed Canada in the front rank in this work and the development of its resources would be greatly expedited.

PET MILK CO.
[Originators of Evaporated Milk]

In More than a Million Homes

More than two hundred million cans of Pet Milk—the original unweetered, evaporated milk—were used last year in more than a million American homes.

For Babies and Children:—Pet Milk furnishes safe, wholesome, normally nourishing food.

For Cooking:—Pet Milk enriches every dish—gives that "cream and butter" flavor—and costs no more than ordinary milk.

In Place of Cream:—On tables everywhere Pet Milk is used in place of cream—at less than half the cost.

Pet Milk is pure, fresh milk, concentrated—more than twice as rich as ordinary milk—sterilized—made scientifically clean.

For nearly forty years it has been "Milk at its Best."

230 Lose Their Lives in Dortmund Mine Explosion

British Government Will Revert to Gold Standard as soon as Possible.—Provincial Needs Will be Urged at Ottawa by Delegation.—Russia Will Pay $12,000,000 for Canadian Flour Shipment.

MINE DEATH ROLL 136.

LONDON, Feb. 12. An Agency despatch from Berlin this afternoon says 71 bodies have been recovered from Stein Mine, at Dortmund, in which the explosion of fire damp occurred last night. It was officially stated, adding the message, that the death roll totals 136.

DIED FROM GASES.

DORTMUND, Feb. 12. A terrific explosion of fire damp, which occurred in the Stein Mine last night, caused one of the greatest disasters in the history of German mining. The number of dead has gradually mounted until now it is feared the total deaths will reach the neighborhood of 230. Very few of the miners engaged in the work escaped. Many of them were killed outright but the majority are believed to have died from poisonous gases. The cages have been ascending and descending unceasingly all through the day bringing the bodies to the surface and most distressing scenes are being enacted around the pit head. Expert rescuers have been rushed to Dortmund from all over the country. Outside the pit head a police cordon has been drawn around. The crowds numbering thousands have been standing for the past 24 hours silently awaiting news in the vain hope of their bread winners emerging alive.

On some of the bodies notes were found describing the explosion and thus proving that the men did not perish until they were overcome by gases. This also was proved by the fact that coffee jugs were found in several collieries where they had been left by their owners who had evidently fled, only to meet death from the after damp further on. Many of the miners could be recognized only by the identification discs while on others there was no sign of external injury.

PROVINCES SEEKING PROPER RECOGNITION.

HALIFAX, N.S., Feb. 12. At a meeting of representatives of the St. John and Halifax Boards of Trade here this afternoon, it was decided to send a delegation of two members from each Board to Montreal and Quebec early next week for the purpose of enlisting the support of the Boards of Trade in those cities in a scheme to send a delegation of representatives of all Canada if possible, to impress more fully the use and needs of the country and especially the Coast Provinces. Further details will be worked out at a meeting to-morrow.

CANADA'S BIG FLOUR ORDER. NEW YORK, Feb. 12. Canada booked the largest flour order in the history of the world's milling at New York yesterday, and the wheat markets after sleeping on the information, opened nearly five cents above yesterday's close. The purchase, totalling 1,400,000 barrels, was made by the Russian Government through its agents, the Amtorg Trading Co. of New York. The Maple Leaf Milling Company of Canada is to furnish 150,000 barrels and the Western Canada Flour Mills the balance. They will receive cash to the amount of more than twelve millions when the wheat is loaded on the ships at New York.

THE GOLD STANDARD.

LONDON, Feb. 12. Winston Churchill, Chancellor of the Exchequer, replying to a question in the House of Commons, to-day, said the British Government was fully agreed to reversion to the gold standard at the earliest possible moment.

15 INJURED IN NEWSPAPER OFFICE.

CHICAGO, Feb. 12. Approximately fifteen persons were reported to have been injured, some seriously, in an explosion in the engraving room of the Chicago Evening American to-day. Fire followed the explosion.

NEARING IMPRISONED EDITOR.

CAVE CITY, Feb. 12. The limestone room of Floyd Collins' cavern, was reached at the base of the tunnel early this morning at the 45 foot stage, and at any minute the diggers expect to find crevice or cavern which can be opened sufficiently for the rescuers to work their way down to Collins pinioned in a rock vise at the foot of the sand cave.

TWO CHILDREN SUFFOCATED BY FIRE.

WINNIPEG, Feb. 12. Two children were suffocated to death when fire gutted their cottage home in St. Mital, a suburb, late yesterday. The mother, Mrs. Annie Arnold, was down town shopping at the time, and when the firemen broke into the home they found Clifford and Winnie, 4 year old twins, dead.

FIFTY PER CENT. FEWER IMMIGRANTS.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12. Almost a fifty per cent. cut in the number of immigrants admitted to the United States in the present fiscal year as compared to those allowed in the land in the previous fiscal year is predicted by Representative Albert Johnson, Chairman of the House Immigration Committee on the basis of the figures just received from the Labor Department.

MURDER AND SUICIDE.

KENORA, Ont., Feb. 12. Brother Apollinaire Damour, Assistant Principal of the Indian Boarding School here was shot dead and Joe S. Bernicot, a hired man, was severely wounded by Francis Selon, an employee of the institution, early this morning. After his murderous assault, Selon ended his own life with the same weapon.

PASSES ADDRESS WITHOUT AMENDMENT.

OTTAWA, Feb. 12. The address in reply to the speech from the throne was adopted a few minutes after six o'clock in the House of Commons to-night without amendment. Just before adjournment this evening, Sir Henry Drayton asked the Prime Minister when the estimates would be brought down. "They will be tabled to-morrow," was the reply.

Last Night at the Casino

"MOTHER'S IRISH ROSE" BRINGS TEARS AND LAUGHS.

Do you desire a laugh? Then see Miss Arlie Marks in "Mother's Irish Rose." Have you lost the power of tears? Then go to the Casino to-night and let Arlie Marks restore it. This is a play that has all the elements of entertainment and last night's tremendous audience were not slow to appreciate that fact. "Mother's Irish Rose" opens in the home of Mother O'Grady and the scene in the opinion of the writer is the most realistic he has ever witnessed. The character roles in this act are faultlessly taken by Paul Brady and Agnes Stutz as Bullock and Mother O'Grady respectively. Miss Arlie Marks delighted her host of admirers in her characterization of Rosy O'Grady. At times Miss Marks had her audience almost in tears and she would suddenly change the tears to smiles. Charming always, she excelled in this role where she handled her material with consummate deftness. Lindsay Perrin was again seen in straight character, in the role of George Reynolds. Mr. Perrin never misses the finer points of the part as he gives emphasis to the role. Peggy Logan, Merle Scott and Susie McDonald were eminently suited to their roles. W. L. Phillips as Dr. Oakman gave an excellent interpretation of this gentleman, and his acting was indeed realistic. Paul D'Amato as Jim Brand, the big boss in the mill, gave a true to life portrayal. Ray Wamund played well the role of Bushnell Oakman, the Doctor's son. James Daley gave good account of himself as Clancy, the policeman. The climax of the bill is reached in the last act which was so realistically done that it fairly carried away its audience. The writer will not describe this scene as he knows he cannot bring it so vividly before readers as the actors themselves, so you are advised to see the play and you will admit that it is the finest bill you've seen in a decade.

A word about the vaudeville—The Scotch Lads and Lassies appeared in a new review which took the house by storm. Mickey Kane got a big reception by his singing. Susie McDonald and Peggy Logan delighted all by their beautiful renditions. Paul D'Amato and Merle Scott in musical monologue fully deserved the big applause they received, whilst Jas Daley, the Jolly Scot was as popular as ever in his Scotch turn. The same programme will be repeated to-night.

"CORNERED" THE NICKEL'S BIG ATTRACTION.

If you wish to get a glimpse of something usual and something unusual, something very realistic, yet quite romantic, something that reveals with a master study of detail the morbid life of the underworld, yet is the very essence of culture and refinement, see "Cornered," which opened at the Nickel Theatre yesterday.

The leading role is a dual characterization, that of twin sisters. Both sisters live in different worlds, one in poverty and the other in wealth, and each does not know of the other's existence. The story begins to move when the discovery is made by the leading figures of Chinatown that a certain heiress resembles their pal, who is in reality sister to the heiress. Complications arise when the girl of Chinatown is sent to the home of the heiress, who has left the city, to establish herself in the household as the heiress. Then comes the real difficulty, when the girl returns. The heiress is taken for the thief and her sister pretends to be mistress of the house. There is a rousing climax with the discovery that the girls are sisters, and a conclusion that cannot help pleasing the spectator.

William Beaudine, the director of this photoplay, must be given credit for having done a large share in turning out a very superior production. Marie Prevost, as the twins, is at her best in a characterization which seems strangely suited to her. The rest of the cast was also chosen with discretion, since it includes John Roche, Rockcliffe Fellows, Raymond Hatton, Wilfred Lucas and Cissy Fitzgerald.

Bowring Bros. Employees

HOLD ENJOYABLE RE-UNION.

The employees of Messrs. Bowring Bros., Ltd., with the Directors of the firm, held an enjoyable re-union in the Gaiety Hall last night. The affair took the form of a card tournament, concert, supper and dance, and was attended by upwards of 250 people, including a number of guests. The spacious ball room was artistically decorated for the occasion in red and white, the colors of the firm, whilst a red cross which covered the ceiling, with festoons suspended, made a very striking effect. The whole scene was an animated one and reflected great credit on the designers. The dance programme and the supper arrangements were all that could be desired. The music for the dance was supplied by the Prince's Orchestra, while selections were also rendered during the evening by the firm's own Jazz Orchestra.

Fashions and Fads.

Many a spring frock employs a scarf to form its collar. Simple frocks of chiffon are most correct on the dance floor. Kasha and kashmir are both in excellent favor for spring. One notes that the bellless waistline is often slightly fitted. The short capes that match the southern frocks are unfined. For resort wear the two-piece model of crepe or kasha leads. Glittering effects are a whim of fashion for the evening mode.

Gold Trail of '49.

Dustin Farnum came to the Majestic probably his most virile, interesting photoplay in recent years. It is called "Kentucky Days" and was written by John Lanch.

As John Buckner, a young South-obliged to join the California gold rush of '49, leaving his beautiful young bride at the mercy of an un-

Little Jack Rabbit by David Cory

"Goodness me," cried Danny Fox, pulling on his woolen Sox. "Snow is deep and winds are chill on our little rocky hill.

"But the worst of all, I fear, is this weather, cold and drear. Soon will freeze most every thing. That runs on legs or flies on wings."

"Yes, Daddy," cried Mrs. Fox, "our cupboard is like Old Mother Hubbard's. It holds not even a bone." "Well, I must look around," answered the old fox, pulling on his boots and tying a muffler around his neck. "Goodbye," and off he trotted to the woods to find a rabbit if he could.

Sneaking along the old stone wall, he came at last to the lane that led up to the Farmyard. There, in the snow, just ahead, lay a package.

"What's in it, I wonder," thought Danny Fox, sniffing the air. Then cautiously creeping up, he smelt the brown paper wrapping.

"A ham," he whispered, "a nice sugar-cured ham. The farmer must have dropped it on the way from the store. Maybe it slipped out of the sleigh," and without another moment's delay, the old fox picked it up and hurried home.

"Mammy Fox, Mammy Fox!" he shouted, on opening the door, "come see what I've found," and he laid the package on the table, while Slyboots and Bushytail crowded close as he cut the string and undid the paper wrapping.

"A nice sugar-cured ham, just as I thought," exclaimed Danny Fox. "Now we'll have food and enough to spare to fill our old cupboard over there," and he pointed to the open doors of the empty cupboard standing in the corner.

"I'll soon boil it," cried Mrs. Fox, filling the big kettle with water and placing it on the stove. Then she poked the fire and raked out the ashes.

Snipper, snapper, crackle, crack! Went the legs, and up the crack in the chimney rose the smoke. My, it would have made them choke if it hadn't gone up there, Out into the frosty air.

"Set the table, lazy bones, by and by," cried Mrs. Fox to her two little cubs, as she took out the ham and placed it on the platter. "Give Daddy the carving fork and knife and don't drop a plate. Hurry up quick and don't make us wait."

Just then they heard outside the door, somebody scratching with a paw. "Who's there, I wonder?" thought Danny Fox, softly stopping across the room.

"It's Old Sic'em, the Farmer's Dog," he whispered. "He must have seen me carry the package home. Botheration, I wish Jack Frost would nip that old tail of his."

And in the next story you shall hear what happened after that.

Star Movie To-Night

CHARLIE CHAPLIN IN "IDLE CLASS" Charlie Chaplin in "Idle Class." Betty Compton in "Four Faces."

Reference to the ad. on another page will show the popular Star Movie has for to-night a big double attraction, and a show that will no doubt draw big audiences. The one and only Charlie Chaplin, (who only recently married a "baby bride" will be seen in the "Idle Class." "Idle Class" is a First National attraction in two parts and is a riot.

That ever pleasing little actress Betty Compton, will be seen in a melodrama that will grip you with excitement from start to finish. It is a Herbert Brenon production in eight parts entitled "The Woman With Four Faces" and with this and the other side of the entertainment—comedy—we have in this a show that cannot fail to please the most ardent movie critic.

Municipal Council

WEEKLY MEETING.

The Weekly Meeting of the Council was held yesterday afternoon. Mayor Cook presided and Councillors Martin, Outerbridge, Collier, Ryan and Bowden were present.

F. E. Bendell, Church Warden C. of E. Cathedral, thanked the Council for the prompt action in placing a light in the vicinity of the Cathedral, which he stated the members of the parish greatly appreciated.

A communication was tabled from the Inspector General re the clearing of snow from sidewalks, etc., which was deferred for further consideration.

A Thompson applied for position as Inspector. There being no vacancy same was ordered filed.

R. F. Horwood, Esq., Secretary Methodist College Board.

Dear Sir.—At the Girl Guide annual meeting a vote of sincere sympathy was passed to the Nfld. Methodist College Board for the loss of their beautiful Hall. The Girl Guide Association wish to record their thanks for the courtesy and kindness they have at all times received from the Board, and to say how much they will miss the Hall.

Yours truly,
(Sgd.) HELEN REID,
Asst. Island Secretary.

Miss Helen Reid,
Asst. Island Secretary,
Girl Guide Association.

Dear Miss Reid.—I have pleasure in acknowledging your note conveying the expression of sympathy of the Girl Guide Association to the Nfld. Methodist College Board in connection with the loss of the College building, by fire. It will be very gratifying to the Board to have this very kind expression and to know that the College Hall has been of some use to your organization. Let us hope that we will be able to serve you in like manner at no distant date.

Very respectfully yours,
(Sgd.) R. F. HORWOOD,
Secretary.

St. Andrew's Folk Entertain

An enjoyable card party, supper and dance was held by the members of St. Andrew's Society in their rooms last night. The prize winners in the card tournament were Mrs. Conson and E. Hunter, while the "booby" prizes were awarded to Miss T. Power and Bert Carter. Following the cards dancing was indulged in by a large number to the music of the Society's own orchestra. The supper prepared by the Ladies' Auxiliary was done full justice to by the assembly, and the entertainment in every particular was voted a great success.

Another such event as last night's is being looked forward to by the Society in the not distant future.

Electricity in the Past and Now

In view of the amount of discussion which has taken place lately over the electric light business, a word as to its history in St. John's may not be uninteresting.

The first plant began operations about forty years ago, and occupied the site where the Imperial Tobacco Factory now stands. The electricity was generated by means of steam instead of by water power as it is at present, and was used almost exclusively for street lighting purposes. Until 1892 the only buildings lit by electricity were Government House, the Colonial Building, and the Army and Navy Depot on the corner of Cochrane and Duckworth Sts. After the Fire lights were installed in the other public offices, and the first hall to use the system was the Temperance Hall on Victoria Street.

It will be of interest, particularly to the people in Conception Bay, to learn that in those days the burning question as to whether there should or should not be a meter installed did not arise. Householders were given the option of having a meter or a flat rate, and although we are not in a position to speak with certainty, we feel safe in taking it for granted that they chose the latter, even though electric cookers, curlers, toasters, and heaters were unheard of, or at best, simply regarded as new fangled notions.

The meters which were used were somewhat different from the modern type and the unit of measurement was also different, but we are informed by one who is in a position to speak with authority in the matter, the unit corresponded approximately to the kilowatt measurement used to-day, and the charge was about 10 or 12 cents. The old Electric Light Co. continued to operate until the plant was erected in Petty Harbour by the Reid Nfld. Co.

It would perhaps be unfair to make any comparison between the spacious days of the '90's and these strenuous times in which we are compelled to fight in order to live. The price of everything is so exorbitant now that we take heart again when we find that a commodity has been marked down, say from a shilling to eleven, three-farthings. It might have gone up. In fact, it would have surprised us far less if it had!

For the general advance in prices, the increased cost of labour is said to be the main factor. This is not claimed to be such a serious consideration in the production of electricity as in other lines excepting in the initial stages. Mass production, it is claimed, lessens the cost of the unit, and the Light and Power Company contends that in making any comparison between the rates which apply here and those charged in towns like Montreal, Toronto and Halifax, the great difference in consumption should be taken into account.

We admit the force of the contention, but the longer we consider it the sorer we feel for those shareholders in the original Electric Light Company and even for the corporation by which it was succeeded.

About a week ago the Public Utilities Board of Nova Scotia considered a proposed scale of reduction submitted by the Truro Electric Light Company, which suggested cutting the light rate from 14 cents per K.W.H. to 11 cents for the first 100 K.W.H., and for the next 100, from 12 cents to 9. The population of Truro is 7,562! Reckoning on mass production, the Truro consumers should have been anticipating an advance.

The proposed reduction in light rates to take effect in St. John's this month is considerably less than householders had anticipated, but as it is improbable that any other changes are likely to be secured by a further discussion of the matter, we can only trust to the assurance of the Company that the present reduction is but an earnest of their intention to make further cuts during the next five years, and in the meantime, we must possess our souls in patience.

Errata

By the omission of the word "it" in the last paragraph of our article yesterday on the Agricultural Movement, a positive statement was made out of a supposition. It should have read as follows:—

"If it is impossible to obtain here men possessing the necessary technical knowledge, it should not be difficult to select students from among the sons of farmers, who, in the Agricultural College abroad, would soon qualify as instructors."

Cathedral Parishioners Meeting

The Easter meeting of the parishioners of the Cathedral of St. John the Baptist was held in the Synod Hall last night, and was largely attended. The accounts were presented by Mr. F. E. Rendell, and were approved, the meeting being well pleased with the splendid work that had been done, as there were some heavy obligations that had to be met during the past term. The following Committees were appointed:—

Select Vestry—Sir Joseph Outerbridge, Sir W. Horwood, W. N. Gray, J. A. Gould, H. A. Outerbridge, T. Collingwood, G. House, E. M. LeMessurier, W. J. Martin, N. Snow, G. Somerville, T. A. Hall.

Church Warden—L. C. Outerbridge, F. E. Rendell. Cemetery Committee—S. G. Collier, J. Chaffey. General Protestant Industrial Society—J. Bishop, F. E. Rendell. Auditors—W. J. Martin, T. Collingwood. Synod Delegates—Sir W. Horwood, F. E. Rendell. Votes of thanks were passed to the Choir, Organist, Sidesmen and all Church Officials, and a successful year is being looked forward to.

"Ave Maria" by Nfld. Composer

There will be sung at the R. C. Cathedral on Sunday next by Miss Mary Ryan an "Ave Maria," the composer of which is a Nfld. lady, Mrs. M. T. Jones of Hr. Grace. It is already being sung in many of the churches of Massachusetts, U.S.A., where it is receiving very favorable comment.

A Double Bereavement

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Russell, Dartmouth, N.S., has been saddened by a double death in their home circle. It was only on Wednesday that a message was received in the city acquainting friends and relatives of the death of his mother, who passed away peacefully at the advanced age of ninety-eight years. Twenty-four hours later a second message followed conveying the sad intelligence of the death of his youngest daughter Louise, aged eighteen. Mrs. Russell was the wife of Joseph Russell, formerly of Hr. Grace, who later carried on a successful business as a painter and paper hanger in this city. Her husband predeceased her about twenty-eight years ago. She leaves to mourn four daughters Mrs. James Thomas, Allandale Road, Mrs. Alex Barnes, Allandale Road, Mrs. Robert Andrews, Water St. West, and Mrs. George Hill, Truro, N.S., and two sons Edward of Dartmouth, and Charles of Halifax. The late Miss Russell is survived by father, mother, two sisters, Mrs. Wm. Thistle and Mrs. Maher, and two brothers, Constable William Russell, and John, all of this city.

PEPPY BEHIND THE SCENES.

Feb. 12th.—Feeling mighty queer all this morning, so keep my beads, and anon, Blabbs the chitubeen coming to see me, do believe I am sickening for the flu, and bids me stay at home all the day. This I am loth to do, having much work that needs my attention, yet must take no chances with my health, since my poor wife would not know what to do should aught happen to me, and so must take care of myself for her sake. Mrs. Povey coming in this afternoon to see my wife, comes to have discourse with me, and we talk turning to women's suffrage. I did tell her that I cared not a jot whether the women got the vote or not, being that twould be a great relief to have them take the responsibility that formerly rested on the shoulders of men only. Blabbs coming again this night, tells me to-morrow is like to be an un-lucky day, being Friday, the 13th, and needs must we watch me closely for fear that my sickness may grow worse. Indeed, a mighty cheerful fellow, and would have made a better undertaker than chitubeen. Povey coming to see me, tells me how things this day were very dull and no news of any kind, which is methinks, like to be the calm before the storm, since any sensational piece of news is generally preceded by a dull seignight. He tells me how one man is to be charged before the magistrate soon with having obtained 2 bottles of rum on the one day, and speaks of another that when arrested for drunkenness had 2 bottles on his hip.

BRITISH COURT DECIDES COSTS BY TOSsing A COIN.

LONDON, Feb. 13. The annals of the Staid British Courts of Justice furnish no parallel to the incident in the High Court of Chancery yesterday when the question of costs was decided by a toss of a coin. An action between relatives had been settled but it remained to be decided whether the successful plaintiff should receive £300 or £400 costs. The suggestion to abide by the result of tossing a penny was adopted and plaintiff had the luck to receive the largest amount.

Move to Change Style in Dresses

RAISES PROTESTS. PARIS, Feb. 5.—The early spring already is heralded by a number of fashion shows which promise plenty of sartorial excitement during the coming season. The dressmakers are making another attempt to break away from the straight shapeless dress, which has so long found favor in the eyes of women. To this end some are introducing an innocent-looking sash which they drape low at the knees, the chemise tuck with gathered founces falling below it.

Although the straight-line dress itself is left untouched, such an adjunct works a complete transformation in its general aspect. If the Parisians accept this breaking into the straight line, the innovators would consider the thin end of their wedge firmly implanted and might begin to prepare the way for trills, founces, and finally erminolines.

On the other hand one overhears protests on all sides. Women—men too—still fancy the straight and simple lines of the present fashions, and can see no reason for seeming to sacrifice them for the sake of seeming to be new. The argument that the chemise tuck has held its own too long already is met by a reminder that the crinoline has two exactly long innings, one in the eighteenth century that lasted through several generations, and again in the nineteenth century.

One of the features of these earliest spring styles is the splash of Oriental colors in the evening gowns, although the vividness generally is toned down by softening the incrustations. A novelty in feminine equipment for outdoors is a walking stick, generally of vermilion of jade-green galalith, and fitted with a silken tassel concealing a mirror, lipstick and powder puff. Thus equipped, a woman can powder her nose and redder her lips in public without attracting notice, once she has learned discreet manipulation of the stick.

Things to Remember

To improve a skin that is coarse and inclined to blackheads gently rub a little pure, fresh lemon juice into it every night. Leave until morning, then wash off, and dab the face with elder flower water.

To ease soft corns, use a dusting powder of zinc and boric acid mixed, and dust well between the toes. It will be found both cooling and healing.

M. C. L. I. Debate

VERDICT FOR NEGATIVE.

"That the standard of integrity in business and political life is declining" was the resolution debated at the session of the M. C. L. I. last evening. The set speakers for the evening were, for the Affirmative, Messrs. Captain G. Whiteley, B. Edgewood, and Walter Garf, and for the Negative, Messrs. Captain Keen, W. Whitehead and Harold Drover. The Affirmative were inclined to treat the resolution as applying to local conditions and compared the standard of business and public life of the early 70's and 80's with those of more recent years. The old order has passed away. In earlier days a man's word was his bond, to-day an agreement to be binding on either contract or party must be in writing. In years gone by the standing of men was measured by their character and principles; to-day a man's standing and influence in the country is in proportion to his worth in pounds sterling and not in proportion to his worth in sterling qualities; business men and the man who can put his name on the other fellow is looked upon as being smart, efficient, capable, and is respected accordingly. Rightness to-day is more pronounced than ever it was. Referring to political life the Affirmative claimed that the type of the late Sir Frederick Carter, Sir William Whitehead, Captain Charles Dawe and Captain Samuel Blandford would not descend to such depths of political depravity as have dishonoured our public records during recent years. It must therefore, be apparent to every observer, that lack of integrity in business and political life is all too evident.

The leader of the Negative, in his opening remarks very humorously referred to the very difficult and unenviable task which he and those taking part were faced of having to try and convince the Affirmative and all those inclined to support the resolution that they were not quite so bad after all as they would have themselves believe they were. The Negative vigorously maintained that never in the world's history was the standard of integrity in business and political life so high as at the present time, and compared the facilities for doing business to-day with the old-fashioned, jumbled methods of years ago. To-day we have the telephone, the typewriter, adding machine and register and the auditor which almost entirely the thoughtless mistakes inseparable from the old system of doing business. Some would have us believe that all politicians were self-seeking crooks; that all business men were unscrupulous rogues. This is an erroneous and ridiculous conclusion and in the product of diseased, suspicious and jealous minds. Reference was made by the Affirmative to the gross betrayal of public trust on the part of certain Bank directors and an ex-Provincial Treasurer, to which the Negative very effectively replied that the standard of integrity was such that when trepassed upon by those particular individuals the law promptly asserted itself and confined them within the four walls of the Penitentiary for a long period of years. The closing arguments of both leaders were exceptionally good, particularly Captain Keen's, and when the vote was taken it was found the Negative had won the debate by a majority of two votes. Mr. Fred Moore acted as Chairman during the debate.

The subject for discussion on Thursday next, February 19th, is: "Resolved, that belief is more fundamental than conduct." The set speaker will be announced in due course.

War Veterans

HOLD AN ENJOYABLE SMOKER.

A very enjoyable smoker and concert which took place last night at the Grenfell Institute, was attended by a large number of Great War Veterans. President Eng-Com. Howley occupied the chair and opened the proceedings with the usual ceremony of silence in memory of departed comrades, after which a short address was given by the chairman. The following programme was then proceeded with:

Solo—Comrade J. Strang.
 Recitation—Comrade M. Chambers.
 Solo—Comrade G. Macklin.
 Recitation—Comrade H. McNeill.
 Solo—Comrade R. A. Edwards.
 Song—Comrade W. R. Dawe.
 Piano Selection—Bobby McLeod.
 Solo—Comrade R. Herdner.
 Solo—Comrade Mon Nosworthy.
 Robert MacLeod presided at the piano and throughout the evening he was accompanied to many old time marching songs, sung by the gathering. Comrade Barney Butler gave an exhibition which received a great deal of applause. At the close a vote of thanks was given the various contributors, including the pianist, whose splendid work was highly appreciated. It was moved and seconded that a similar event be held after the Lenten season which was carried unanimously. The National Anthem brought a most enjoyable evening to a close.

Looking After War Graves in the East.

Ottawa, Ont.—(By Canadian Press).—Shaded from the scorching sun by the cool, green, swaying branches of native trees, and enclosed within high stone walls that afford access to mourners and sympathizers alone, the remains of Britishers who gave up their lives in the Great War while serving in far-off Macedonia, Greece and the Balkan States, lie tranquilly at rest, while inscribed on each shining headstone above the grass-grown mounds are the words "Their Name Liveth for Evermore."

This was the reassuring picture furnished by Captain A. F. Menzies, deputy director of works, Imperial War Graves Commission, in an interview on his return from Salonica, where since 1921 he has been actively engaged with the Commission. Capt. Menzies, who is an Ottawa man, reached Salonica in the Christmas of 1920 as assistant deputy director of works with the Imperial War Graves Commission. Since that time until his recent return he has been steadily engaged in the work of establishing cemeteries and gathering together the graves of British soldiers who gave up their lives for the cause of world peace and world freedom.

The Memorial to the Missing, on Colonial Hill overlooking Lake Dolran and facing the Grand Couronne in front of which the Allied Forces were held up for a considerable time owing to the inaccessible position held by the German and Bulgarian troops, is to be unveiled about April 12, 1925, when all British cemeteries will be officially opened.

Some idea of the difficulties and hardships that presented themselves to the commission can be gleaned from the fact that when Capt. Menzies arrived at Salonica in 1920 two officers connected with the commission had died from malaria and sunstroke. Added to other difficulties were those encountered in locating the graves throughout such a vast section. In some cases peasants had ploughed up the land which had been used as burial plots during the war. While these conditions were lamentable they were unavoidable as such actions had been perpetrated before the commission reached the areas in which the burial grounds had thus been destroyed. Nevertheless much work had been accomplished and many graves which had been untouched were removed and placed in the concentrating burial plots.

Construction in Greece started during the summer of 1921, but as concentration work in the northern Balkans was still under way construction in that area did not commence until the following summer. In March, 1923, the services of Col. Jarvis were required at London and Capt. Menzies was appointed Deputy Director of Works.

All construction was practically completed by the spring of 1924 in the area about Salonica, and in June Captain Menzies took over from the Gallipoli Commission the construction of three cemeteries on the island of Lemnos. Most of this work has been completed.

The cemeteries are enclosed by a four-foot stone wall, finished off with a 15-inch peaked stone coping, the whole being neatly painted. In the cemeteries of the Salonica district each grave has a headstone with regimental particulars, badge and cross inscribed, while all nurses, sisters and soldiers buried therein are commemorated by the Cross of Sacrifice, executed in Greek marble, and the great war stone bearing the inscription: "Their Name Liveth for Evermore."

Secretary Address
 Hon. W.

The usual weekly meeting of the St. John's Rotary Club, which was held last night at the Hotel de Ville, was presided over by the Hon. Minister of Justice, Mr. J. A. A. Higgins, who in his lucid explanation of the Quebec system of government, pointed out the various methods under which the system is carried out. Higgins' address was a most systematic and logical one, and was well received by the audience.

You are aware that this Colony of Quebec, which is a subject of the British Empire, is a very radical one. The position of the Province of Quebec is a very radical one. The position of the Province of Quebec is a very radical one.

150 Years of Exile
AN HISTORIC TORTOISE.

A great United States naturalist, Dr. William Beebe, is now urging that the huge tortoise of the Galapagos Islands (off Ecuador) should be moved to a desert island near the American coast before they are all killed off by natives. The one point in doubt is whether they would survive the removal.

In this connection the amazing case of the Mauritius Elephant Tortoise may be quoted. In the year 1768 they were discovered in the Seychelles Islands by the Chevalier Marion de Frene, who took five of them to Mauritius, then under the French flag. Here is their wonderful story in a nutshell:

1768—Deported to Mauritius.
 1810—Mauritius came under British flag.
 1898—Three tortoises still alive. No increase of growth since 1810.
 1901—One surviving tortoise remaining.

1914 (about)—Survivor dies.

Sir Hesketh Bell, K.C.M.G., lately Governor of Mauritius, says that the reptile remained on the strength of the garrison until its death. The creature was stuffed and is now a trophy in the Gunners' Mess at Vacuus.

At the time of its death it must have weighed at least 150lb., and its carapace shows the mark of a bullet which a subaltern in his cups once fired at it.

ELSIE'S MISTAKE.

Elsie Swestin sadly hangs there behind the prison gate; as she tolls she doubts on her present dire estate; she the fate of one who wanders from the narrow path and straight Elsie might have lived in honor to her three score years and ten, with the blessings thick upon her of her children, grown to men; but her heart was bad, doggone her, and we see her in the pen. There she'll do the prison washing for some five and thirty years, in a rockbuilt laundry sloshing, with the suds up to her ears, with the turnkeys rudely joshing as they guard the cells and tiers. And she might be calmly sitting by her pleasant cottage door, with her sewing and her knitting, and her children on the floor, smiling while years, a-fitting, brought her honors more and more. But illicit things allured her, she had base dreams of her own, and the wearied gods endured her till her wickedness was known; from the prison, when it's cured her, she will come, a wrinkled crone. She is busy with her wringing, or wringing out the prison clothes, and each moment has its stinger, as it circles her and goes, and each morning is the bringer of a new array of woes. And she might be proudly reigning, in a pleasant home, a queen, might be 'chooning, might be waiting, down the road where trees are green; but she sinned and she is straining, making prison garments clean.

The usual weekly luncheon of the St. John's Rotary Club was held at the Sheraton Hotel yesterday.

The law varied in the Province so that in Montreal and Quebec city license commissioners had powers, while elsewhere licensing powers lay with the Municipal Councils, and a majority of the electors under the prohibitory by-law could prevent the issuing of liquor licenses.

In 1917 further amendments were advocated by Archbishop Roy of Quebec, Bishops Chalfoux, of Sherbrooke, Cloutier of Three Rivers, Bernard, of St. Hyacinthe, Blais of Rimouski and Forbes of Joliette, and amendments to the Quebec Liquor Law were passed reducing the hotel and restaurant licenses in Montreal from 350 to 300, and in Quebec from 50 to 40, reducing licensed grocery stores in Montreal from 520 to 350, and in Quebec from 100 to 75, with limitations on the numbers in other cities and towns.

In the session of 1918 a prohibition measure was introduced, providing for the total abolition of the liquor traffic from May 1st, 1918, and this Bill was passed unanimously on its second reading and ultimately became law, though a strong effort was made to secure a modification which would allow the sale of wine and beer.

Feb. 13, 1925

The law varied in the Province so that in Montreal and Quebec city license commissioners had powers, while elsewhere licensing powers lay with the Municipal Councils, and a majority of the electors under the prohibitory by-law could prevent the issuing of liquor licenses. Then, because of the evils attending the consumption of liquors by soldiers, Archbishop Roy, Conductor to his Eminence Cardinal Bégin, published with the latter's approval, a pronouncement declaring that: (1) The Prohibition movement is serious, profound and irresistible; (2) the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors in the present conditions constitute one of the worst plagues of the country, and (3) the present war furnished an excellent opportunity for the Government and Parliament to intervene and deliver us from a public plague, and to throw off the degrading yoke of the manufacturers and dealers in alcoholic liquors.

Legislation was passed in that year amending the Quebec License Act in various particulars, and notably for the closing of hotels and liquor stores and the preventing of them from selling liquors to soldiers whenever the Minister of Militia issued a Proclamation to that effect. Other provisions forbade the sale of liquor to anyone under 21; selling on Sundays was forbidden, and after May 1st, 1918, all bars were to be replaced by cafes with tables.

In the session of 1918 a prohibition measure was introduced, providing for the total abolition of the liquor traffic from May 1st, 1918, and this Bill was passed unanimously on its second reading and ultimately became law, though a strong effort was made to secure a modification which would allow the sale of wine and beer.

providing the maximum alcohol contained in beer and other malted liquors does not exceed 2.51 per cent. weight measure and provided the maximum of alcohol contained in wine and cider 6.54 per cent weight measure? The Provincial Treasurer, Honourable Walter Mitchell, in his speech on the second reading of this Bill, stated that "on account of the many representations that have been made, on account of the thousands of petitioners and telegrams that we have received from all over the country, we believe that this question is of such paramount importance, and the opinion of the public, that we do not think we should be called upon to speak for the people."

The result of the referendum was as follows: For wine and beer 178,112 and against 48,443, a majority of 129,669. Accordingly, under the terms of the Act providing for the referendum, authorized vendors were appointed for the selling of liquors, and the quantity of beer permitted on one certificate was not to exceed one dozen pints or one half dozen quart bottles. In 1920 the chief development was that under the vendor system for beer and wines much alcohol was sold by illicit dealers now known as "bootleggers," and on February 7th a delegation waited upon the Government, representing the Anti-Liquor League, the Provincial W.C.T.U., the Royal Templars of Temperance, and the Montreal Temperance Union, and presented the view of their organizations as being that, so long as beer and wine were sold for beverage purposes, and alcoholic liquors for other lawful purposes, the proper enforcement of the License Law would prove a failure; that high licenses were conducive to abuse and immorality, because they forced the licensee to push his sales. These organizations, therefore, asked the Government to take over the exclusive ownership of all alcoholic liquors made in or imported into the Province for sale, and to control such sales, either directly or through a Commission. It was only under a Government ownership system, they believed, that an effective educational campaign in the interest of voluntary total abstinence could be carried on.

The Government, however, decided that the Law ought to have a trial of at least 18 months and resolved to make no amendments during the session of 1920.

In 1921 the Quebec Liquor Act, as at present enforced, was introduced. Premier Taschereau and Treasurer Mitchell argued that the movement for prohibition had failed, chiefly because in the city of Montreal, with three-quarters of a million people, the vast majority were opposed to a prohibition act, and that this feeling existed to a certain extent elsewhere throughout the Province, the sentiment of the people being in favour of a measure of Government control. This new law, in effect, created a Commission of five members, with powers similar to those given to our own Liquor Control Board, recently appointed, and it provided that in licensed establishments, hotels, restaurants and taverns, wines and beer could be sold, but that no stronger liquors could be sold except through stores operated by the Commission in the different cities and towns throughout the Province. One of the Commissioners appointed by this Act was Sir William Stavert, who was some 20 years ago manager of the Bank of Nova Scotia in St. John's and the Chief Accountant was Mr. T. S. C. Saunders, who was about the same time assistant manager of the Bank of Montreal's branch here. This Act has since been operating, with what its supporters claim is a general measure of success, and so far as our observation went, there did not seem to be any serious abuses. It is significant, also, that other Provinces of Canada have since abandoned Prohibition for the equivalent of the Quebec Law, and that in Ontario, last September, when a referendum was taken on the question of maintaining the Prohibition regime there the measure was only maintained by a narrow majority of the electors.

Through the courtesy of Senator Casgrain, who, as Mr. Bennett remarked, in his address to you last month, was in Newfoundland 40 years ago as a surveyor on the original line of railway line, Mr. Bennett and I were able to spend an afternoon in the warehouse of the Liquor Commission at Montreal, and to get an intelligent idea of how this new department is operated. The Province of Quebec has a population of about two and a half millions, and being of French extraction, is inclined toward the drinking of wine and beer, as is the habit of Old France. Hence the Commission has to operate on a large scale, the largeness of which can be best realized by remembering a few figures.

In July, 1922, Premier Taschereau said:—
"In the first year of operation $4,000,000 had been turned over to the Treasurer and $15,000,000 worth of alcohol had been sold to a population of 2,500,000. This averaged $6.00 per head per year, or 80 cents per month, or 1 1/2 cents per day. All the alcohol sold did not go to Quebec. There were other provinces that came to see Quebec, and this brought down the average of alcohol in the Province for its citizens to a cent a day per head."

Hon. Jacob Nichol, Provincial Treasurer, in his Budget Speech, on January 22nd, 1923, stated this measure, during its first year of operation, provided a trading profit of over four million dollars.

Out of this profit the Government proposed, he said, to use one million to reduce the debt, another million for better highways, and a third million for education.

Again in its Report for the year ending April 30th, 1923, the Quebec Liquor Commission showed that the increase in sales had reached the sum of $4,436,972. The Commission answered public criticism regarding the prices by the statement that these were due to customs and excise duties, which "show a tendency to increase rather than decrease." The Federal Excise duty and Sales Tax alone on Canadian Alcohol, of 65 over-proof strength, reached $1.88 per Imperial gallon, and on the imported liquor there was the still higher customs duty. For purchasing purposes the Commission maintained an office at Paris. A large increase in the consumption of wine was reported for the year, and a decrease in the sale of liquor. The balance of revenue and expenditure for the year was $4,314,756.

In the above paragraph is embodied the kernel of the liquor policy of the Quebec government. It is to discourage the drinking of hard liquors and to induce the people to drink wines and beers. Accordingly, the prices of hard liquors are very much higher, relatively, than those of wine and beer. The principal warehouse of the Commission is a huge building in the East End of Montreal, where enormous stocks are carried of every kind of beverage which the Commission deals in. Hard liquors and wines are handled there and also beer for shipment to different parts of the Province, but the breweries in Montreal and other large cities are licensed and fill orders direct under permits from the Commission. Whiskey is the intoxicant which is in chief demand, and the Commission has effected an arrangement with many of the Scotch distillers, whereby it is allowed to bottle and label the product of these companies just as if the companies did the business themselves. In other words whiskey is not all imported in cases and sold by the bottle, as with us, but largely in cases, and it is then bottled and labelled, and afterwards wrapped in a special package with the label and seal of the Quebec Commission, without which it is not legal to sell it, and the forgery of this is an offence visited with a heavy penalty. Going through the various stores operated by the Commission throughout the Province, as the numbers show where the liquor is made or any shortage develops, it can be checked. In the same way the price of the contents being on each bottle prevents the possibility of overcharging. The price of every brand varies: thus "Johnny Walker" (black label) sells for $5.40, the same with gold label for $4.50 and 50 cts. It is the same with the other liquors. We were shown in the sample room which sold for $16.00. A special feature of the business of the Commission is the selling of Canadian port wine. This is made from grapes grown in Niagara Peninsula, and I might say that it found a place on the table of Premier McKenzie King on the night he entertained us to dinner at Ottawa; it being the only wine the use of which is permitted in Ontario. This Canadian port sells in Montreal very cheap, and we were told the demand for it was growing rapidly.

The accounting system of the Department is very perfect. Hundreds of accountants, clerks and stenographers are maintained in a section of the warehouse, handling the orders from all over the Province. The scene there is just like one of the big banks in the centre of Montreal city. Every store renders an account daily showing the stocks held and the cash received therefor, and the possibilities of a fraud have been reduced to a minimum. The Commission imports all its supplies of liquor, its bottles, corks, labels, wrappers, etc., and every essential for the carrying on of its work just as a business organization does and sends out shipments of orders just as a business house on Water Street would do with drygoods, provisions or hardware, or anything in which it deals. Yet another feature of the Department is the scientific equipment which the Commission possesses. It has its own analyst and experts for testing the different brands of liquor, and everything which is not of the most perfect quality is rejected. So thorough is the scientific feature of the work that the spirits which saturate the wood of the casks in which the alcoholic liquors are imported, are extracted from the wood after the casks are emptied, and $50,000 worth of spirits were reclaimed last year in this fashion.

The washing, filling and corking are done by machinery and the wrappers are then affixed. On each bottle is an outside label showing a special number and the price of the package. The number is to enable a more effective check on the various stores operated by the Commission throughout the Province, as the numbers show where the liquor is made or any shortage develops, it can be checked. In the same way the price of the contents being on each bottle prevents the possibility of overcharging. In the same way, in a special room in the warehouse, is a sample bottle of every stock of liquor of every kind which the Commission deals in. From time to time, hundreds of bottles each, appropriately labelled, with its analysis, and by this means it is possible to keep a check on the purity and fitness of every ounce of the various "drinks" in which the Commission deals.

Finally, just a word as to the operation of the Act as we saw it.

Hotels—In the hotels only wines and beers are obtainable, and even these cannot be consumed otherwise than at meals. Wines and beers will only be served at bona fide meals. If people want these beverages in their rooms they must bring them themselves from outside, and it is the same way with hard liquors.

Restaurants—Exactly the same regulations apply in restaurants as in hotels.

Taverns—For the convenience of those who do not want to eat in hotels, taverns are licensed. Beer is served to visitors at small tables (with chairs for the use of patrons). I am strongly of the opinion that this facility for obtaining beer goes far to reduce the consumption of strong liquors.

Control Stores—Opposite the Mount Royal Hotel, where we stayed, one of the stores of the Quebec Liquor Commission is located, and we were able to see the system of trading there as it was done from day to day. Not even on New Year's Eve—though New Year is the great French holiday, rather than Christmas—was there any queue or rush for liquor, although the store closed at 1 o'clock. There was, it is true, more activity than on other days, but on ordinary days one would not notice the nature of the place at all. Going into this store one sees three or four wickets with an attendant at each, and those who come in state their needs, and are supplied with what they want and leave again. During the two weeks we were in Montreal—a week before going to Ottawa, and a week after we returned—we scarcely saw a drunken man, and even on New Year's Eve night, with 2,000 people in our hotel for the special supper at midnight to mark the advent of 1925, the number of those under the influence of liquor could be counted on the fingers of both hands.

The Hon. W. J. Higgins was accorded a hearty vote of thanks for his very opportune, practical and interesting address. The guests included P. E. McLeod and G. E. Taylor.

By Ruth Cameron.

THE LET-GEORGE-DO-IT PEOPLE.

What a lot of people there are in the world who believe thoroughly in all sorts of reforms and public movements, who approve heartily of having the host-ess of the community Christmas Tree set up, or the objectionable business kept out of the neighborhood, so long as you remember one thing:

And that one thing is that they mustn't be expected to help in any way.

But Someone Else Should Do It.

They are so glad the college is going to have a decent foundation at last. It is a sin the way those professors have been obliged to get along on wretched salaries all these years. Of course we couldn't expect to have a decent faculty when we paid so little money. And that old recitation hall was a crime. They are so glad something is being done about it at last. But when someone appeals to them to dig down into their pockets or to give their time and energy, they are pained and grieved that it should be expected that someone with as many demands on their money and time as they have, should be called upon. There are plenty of people who can afford it so much better than they. Look at B. and his millions, and Mrs. C. who has no children and a maid and nothing in the world to occupy her time. They are the people who should be called on.

Too Busy That Day.

When we were working for women's suffrage there was in every town a large suffrage society, and within it a small group of suffrage workers. The rest believed that we ought to have woman suffrage, but whenever they were asked to do anything to bring it about they were always too busy that particular day to help. It wasn't that they considered the idea of going out after the suffrage as undignified or thought that it would ever come any other way. They knew it had to be worked for, but they knew that if they didn't do anything someone else would. And of course someone else did. He or she always does.

People like that ought to get together and form a Let-George-Do-It Club. Only I am afraid they would have trouble in finding anyone who would be president. Or maybe someone would be willing to be president if there were no work attached. But who would ever be the secretary or treasurer?

Do You Envy Them?

In a way the inert Let-George-Do-It people get the most out of life. They go on the picnic after someone else has planned and arranged it; they get the benefit of all civil improvements without having lifted a hand for them; they have the joy of seeing the professors paid as they have always said they ought to be without having contributed a penny; they have just as much use of the town hospital when they are ill as anyone who worked for it; surely they are the most enviable, lucky people in the world.

And yet somehow I doubt if any of the little nucleus of people who do work for the things they believe in and want, ever envy them. Don't you?

gather and form a Let-George-Do-It Club. Only I am afraid they would have trouble in finding anyone who would be president. Or maybe someone would be willing to be president if there were no work attached. But who would ever be the secretary or treasurer?

Mr. Mac of Fortune Bay

By REV. D. L. NICHOL.

All the world has heard of "Greenfell of Labrador." Everyone is more or less familiar with his magnificent work among the fishing communities of that inhospitable land. But who outside of Newfoundland, knows of the similar work done by "Mr. Mac" in Fortune Bay? Both the work and the man are worth knowing. The writer recently spent a fortnight in Fortune Bay, and was vastly impressed by what this devoted man and his equally devoted wife have accomplished, and are accomplishing, today.

But where is Fortune Bay? And who is Mr. Mac?

Fortune Bay is a huge indentation on the S.W. Coast of Newfoundland; it is some fifty miles long, and varies in breadth from fifteen to twenty miles. It is itself full of innumerable smaller bays and inlets and fjords, and these fjords running twelve to fifteen miles long, and the scenery is North-western—well, rugged with towering cliffs rising from the water's edge. Sailing in the Government S.S. "St. John's" one wondered where could there be more than one hundred "outports" possibly? There were some could see there were some and precipitous cliffs, but rounding a forbidding headland would enter a little bay, or there we would find a few fishing folk, tucked away in a sheltered spot. The gaily painted houses, the tiny spire of the church pointing to heaven, the view of the cow-bells, as their owners grazed at pasture, all struck sharp contrast with the dreariness we had left just behind.

The settlements consist of three families, and the others are quite small communities, many reaching the size of a busy English village. Their means of communication with the rest of the world, and that is by sea. There is no railway, and there are no roads, and the sea itself is often too stormy to venture upon. In the winter, when the sea is frozen, the loneliness is complete—and "the world forgetting, they are by the world forgot."

The people of the outports are a virile hardy race. They need to be, or they would never survive the hardships and the rigours of their life. They can turn their hands to almost anything. They build their own homes and make much of their furniture; they build their own schooners as well as sail them—and splendid sailors they are; they proved their worth to the Empire by their service in the Navy during the war.

It is in this wild rugged country, and in this stormy bay, and among these hardy people that "Mr. Mac" exercises a rare ministry, so that in the island colony he is known as the "Greenfell of Fortune Bay." His full name is Rev. Hugh MacDermott, but he is invariably known as "Mr. Mac."

ask any fisherman of Fortune Bay if he knows Rev. Hugh MacDermott and you will probably receive a shake of the head; ask if he knows "Mr. Mac," you will get a beaming smile and some story of which "Mr. Mac" is the hero! For twenty years, he and Mrs. Mac have simply given themselves to the people of Fortune Bay. Officially Mr. Mac is the missionary of the Congregational Home Missionary Society of Newfoundland, in charge of a series of mission stations stretching along some thirty miles of coast at the head of the bay. But his real position is much bigger than his official one, and that real position in the regard and affection of the whole bay has been won by twenty years of unstinted and sacrificial service.

Mr. Mac is a minister of the gospel, the pastor of several Congregational Churches, at one or more of which he preaches every Sunday. Primarily and fundamentally he is a preacher of the gospel of Christ, and it is a big gospel he preaches. Judged by the most obvious test he is a successful preacher and pastor. For example, the writer was privileged to conduct divine worship on Sunday in the handsome church at Pool's Cove, where Mr. Mac has his headquarters. We found an evening congregation of one hundred and seventy, or one hundred and eighty people, and the total population is only two hundred! Such a congregation, we were assured, was not exceptional, but usual.

Mr. Mac is the doctor for a wide and scattered district, and what a potent ministry this is, and what a necessary one! Not only is there much sickness (largely due to the hard climate and malnutrition), but accidents to fishermen are frequent; and then there is no one but Mr. Mac to help. He always helps—wherever he is needed he goes. And many a stormy day and still stormier night, when other boats are seeking shelter, the motor boat "John Cunningham," with Mr. Mac aboard, sets out on some errand of healing mercy. The "John Cunningham" is perhaps the best-known boat on the bay—she has to cast anchor in any of the outports and she is immediately boarded by those seeking help for themselves or their families. The tiny cabin of the "John Cunningham" serves many purposes. It is kitchen, dining-room, bedroom and dispensary, and ever some room and dispensary, and even sometimes an operating theatre.

The missionary of Fortune Bay is also a sailor and engineer. He has to be! There is not a better sailor on the Bay than he, none who can handle a boat more skilfully; certainly not a more knowing pilot, for none has such need to know every rock and channel and the entrance to every harbour. Every fisherman knows his own harbour, but Mr. Mac knows them all. Then further, this many-sided man is an architect—he builds churches and preaches in them. He is the champion of the fisherman against the unscrupulous merchant who would try to pay them less than the market price for their catches. Truly he is the pastor of his people, caring for them and watching over them in every possible way.

The latest and not the least valuable development is the industrial work—chiefly knitting, among the women. The Fortune Bay Mission is a very live centre of the Newfoundland Outport Nursing and Industrial Association (known as N.O.N.I.A.), which owes its existence to the initiative and organizing ability of Lady Allardyce, the wife of the Governor. From the central office at St. John's the women of the outports are supplied with wool which they make up into all manner of garments, jumpers, jerseys, socks, cloaks, etc. The women are paid for their work according to a definite scale, and the money thus earned gives them a new self-respect and independence, and at the same time contributes materially to the family exchequer. Much of the work done is of the most beautiful and dainty kind, and specimens may be seen in London at the Offices of the Overseas League. Both Mr. and Mrs. Mac take a keen interest in this branch of activity and discharge all the organizing work of distributing materials, collecting and forwarding the finished articles, as well as keeping the accounts.

For more than twenty years Mr. and Mrs. Mac have been labouring in this little-known and out of the way corner. But it is a work that deserves to be known; and the two devoted workers themselves deserve to be known and honoured. This article is the writer's humble tribute of admiration.

Mr. and Mrs. Mac expect to be in England on a further tour in the near future. We advise the home churches themselves of every opportunity to hear "Mr. Mac of Fortune Bay" at Christian World.

Domestic Heroines in Our Homes

Women who lead a domestic life seem to listen to every call of duty excepting the supreme one that tells them to guard their health. As long as they can drag themselves around women continue to work. Necessity, however, has a way of making itself felt. It is sitting in cramped positions day in and day out often brings on ailments from which women suffer tortures. For fifty years Lydia Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been strengthening women and overcoming such ailments. Sickness and pain vanish under its influence and thousands of women have been benefited by it.

Mineral Possibilities in Newfoundland

The address which follows was given before the Wesley Class on Tuesday last, by Mr. A. K. Stielgrove, of the Mines, Resources Dept., Reid, Nfld. Mr. Stielgrove is qualified as a student of McGill University and from his wide knowledge of geological formation of Newfoundland and his practical experience, he is certain that both the history and the lecturer has given of our mineral possibilities and the industrial development regarding our mineral resources will prove of great interest to a wide circle of our readers. The following is a condensed version of the lecture which will appear to-morrow.

PROBLEM: That Newfoundland offers greater possibilities for mineral development than it does for agricultural development.

The subject of Newfoundland's mineral resources, of which we are to hear this evening, is the result of the study of the Mineral and Agricultural Resources, is one in which I have some time been deeply interested. As a geological student, I have brought me in touch with some of the problems confronting the development, particularly the minerals, and I have already had opportunity to acquire first hand information on a few of the questions involved.

of the affirmative for the purpose of the respective purposes rather than negatively, and content ourselves by showing the greater possibilities offered Newfoundland for Mineral Development rather than by pointing out the factors that militate against agricultural development on a scale commensurate with that made possible by the variety and extent of our Mineral Resources.

To this end, we shall endeavor first to show the significance of the possession of mineral wealth; second to review the history of mining and geological investigation in Newfoundland; third to give a resume of our known Mineral Deposits; fourth to indicate the progress of Metallurgical science in treating ores, and its relation to their utility; and last, to sketch the potential Mineral Resources of Newfoundland.

It is difficult for us to realize fully the significance of mineral wealth, and what its possession may mean to Newfoundland. It has been said that "of all the fundamental necessities for comfort and power nothing is of such importance as the metals. They constitute the basis and foundation of our modern civilization and power over man and nature." Now Nature has been very whimsical in hiding mineral treasure through out the earth. Some countries have been particularly well cared for whilst others are utterly neglected. Trade, of course, is dependant on this unequal distribution of commodities, and commerce is thus born by the attempt of a people to obtain something in exchange for something of which they have more than enough.

From an historical viewpoint: one can hardly fail to be struck by the potency of this factor of mineral wealth in shaping the destinies of countries and peoples. England, for instance, owes much of her progress to possession of coal and iron, which are the backbone of industrial civilization. The truth of Ruskin's definition of wealth as "the possession of the valuable by the valiant" impresses itself on one when the struggles of the past for the domination and monopoly of natural wealth are examined critically. And even in recent times it is an historic fact that the Alsace-Lorraine question was not a sentimental one, but a struggle for one of the greatest iron deposits of Europe and the second largest in the world, which gave Germany her immense growth and power. Our own exports of iron ore from Wabana to Germany since the war, I might say, is an interesting commentary on this situation. Again, it is a well known fact that the disputes between Poland and Germany as to Upper Silesia was not a question of nationality, sentiment or even territory, but concentrated the greatest coal field of Europe, as well as deposits of lead and zinc.

A familiar saying has it that "Minerals attract things." Thus the Pennsylvania coalfields attracted to Pittsburgh the Copper and Iron of Michigan, the glass sand of Missouri and Illinois, the Lead of Wisconsin and the Tin of Dakota. Concomitant, therefore, with development of our own Mineral Resources, a more densely settled Newfoundland would be a logical inference.

Mining in Newfoundland is an industry that is still in a stage of comparative youth. Although our Island was discovered in 1497, such was the attitude of the early fishing "venturers" from Europe that in order to keep our magnificent fisheries in their own hands and thereby extract the largest profits therefrom, they, as we all know, promoted official indifference and repressive laws to such an extent that any permanent settlement was discouraged. When to this obstruction of progress is added the absorbing interest of our early population in the fisheries and their subordination of everything else to it, we have it as but a natural sequence that no serious efforts to exploit our mineral resources were made before 1864, although the first recorded of previous operations dates back as far as 1779, when a mine was opened near Petty Harbor on a vein of Copper.

Even at the beginning of the past century, the importance of geological examination as a preliminary to opening up mineral lands was perceived, and in 1839 our Government employed a noted English geologist named Jukes to make a geological reconnaissance of the country. Systematic geological work, however, was not attempted until 1863 when Murray, a Canadian Government Geologist began his exploration of the island. In this he was later assisted by Howley, who continued the work until 1909, when for some unknown reason the Geological Survey was discontinued. Thanks to the labours of these investigators, we have to-day much important information on our Mineral Resources and also a geological map of the island. The latter is, in the main correct, and is of great value at the present time. The fact remains, nevertheless, that great tracts of land, especially in the interior, are as yet unexamined geologically and are practically unknown.

Coincident with the inception of the Geological Survey under Murray, Copper ore was discovered at Tilt Cove in Notre Dame Bay. Mining operations ensued and their success gave impetus to prospecting in that region, which resulted in the discovery of the Little Bay and Bett's Cove properties. These also became important producers of Copper ore. In addition, numerous other properties such as Bide Verts, Sunday Cove Island, Robert's Arm, The Colchester, Lady Pond, and Whalesback, all in Notre Dame Bay, and later York Harbor on the West Coast, were located, some of which were worked successfully.

It was thus that in the 'eighties Newfoundland became an important mineral country and for some time ranked sixth among the Copper producing countries of the world. With the depletion of the high grade Copper areas in the known properties of this bay, however, the various mines were forced to close down, due to the fact that in these days it was impossible for them to make use of anything but what to-day would be considered extremely rich ore.

Lead is another mineral that has been mined to some extent in Newfoundland in the past. Placentia Bay was for some time the scene of considerable activity, and the LaManche mine has a recorded production of some twenty thousand tons of Lead ore to its credit.

In recent years Iron has taken the most important place in our Mineral statistics. This, of course, is due to the development since 1895 of the famous Wabana Mines, with which history will serve to indicate what has already been accomplished in developing our mineral resources. Some of the factors which I consider as having opposed greater development in the past may be briefly summarized: (1) Inability to utilize the lower grade types of ore of which most of the copper properties are composed, after depletion of the high grade ores; (2) The crude and destructive mining methods often employed; (3) The inefficiency of many of the operators; (4) The intimidation and discouragement of capital by rash and irresponsible promoters; (5) The baneful influence of some Cornish miners in applying methods which whilst effective in developing the tin deposits of their native country, were in many cases entirely unsuited to other types of deposits and conditions, and (6) the restriction of prospecting chiefly to the vicinity of the sea shore.

Sale of Work
AT SPRINGDALE ST. SCHOOL.

The Sale of Work at Springdale St. School yesterday evening was marked by a large attendance, amongst whom were Mrs. White, Revs. Canon Jeeves, A. B. S. Stirling, J. Brinton, and other clergymen, Mrs. H. Outerbridge, Dr. V. P. and Mrs. Burke and Councillor and Mrs. Dowden. His Lordship the Bishop of Nfld. was unable to be present. At 3.30 the sale was declared open by Lady Horwood who spoke of the need of school extension in the West End and pointed out that education will progress through the enthusiasm of the people. In referring to the object of the sale, which was to provide school equipment, she paid a tribute to the great efforts of the Principal, Miss Worrall and her associates in promoting the affair. Last year as a result of the sale a piano and set of desks was provided for one classroom. The display of plain and fancy work, home cookery, etc., was unusually fine, and the goods found ready purchasers so that everything was quickly disposed of. The tables were decorated in valentine design and were most tastefully arranged. The proceeds amounted to about $750.00.

Our London Letter

LONDON—(By Canadian Press)—There is no need to fear that the unsafe state of St. Paul's Cathedral portends a precipitate realization of Macaulay's hickory-headed speculation concerning a New Zealander standing upon a broken arch of London Bridge and sketching the ruins of St. Paul's. (By the way, in which of his writings does Macaulay introduce his New Zealander?) "The Cathedral is safe, but we intend to make it what it is not at present—sound," declared Archbishop Holmes on a recent Sunday evening. Other dignitaries of the Cathedral declare much the same. Nevertheless, the amount of publicity which has been given to the condition of the building has made a goodly number nervous that if they venture inside St. Paul's the same fate may overtake them as overtook the worshippers of Dagon when Samson bowed himself with all his might.

The trouble with St. Paul's is really very simple—and very serious. The mighty dome and the ball and cross surmounting it are supported on eight stone pillars. These pillars have never possessed truth in their inward parts. When Sir Christopher Wren was re-building St. Paul's it is quite likely that he had to keep down his estimates, for there was a power of building to be done in Old London after the Great Fire. Instead of making these pillars of solid stone through-out Wren gave them a mere outer casing of stone and filled the interior with rubble from the ruins of the old Cathedral. It hardly requires an architect to realize that this method of construction was hardly calculated to last as long as London itself endured; that it should have stood for 250 years with the traffic around the Cathedral constantly increasing and with the surrounding undersurface being borrowed for Tube railways and other modern contrivances, is a matter for some surprise.

The city authorities have served the Dean and Chapter of St. Paul's with notice certifying that the Cathedral is, in the legal sense, a "dangerous structure." If no steps are taken within a reasonable time, the council have authority to shore up and secure the premises. The Acts, however, would seem to have had in view outside work only. In the case of St. Paul's, the danger is apparently not to the ordinary public using the streets, at least not immediately—but to the worshippers and visitors of the Cathedral. The Acts do not appear to have contemplated such a case as this, and there is doubt as to whether the Corporation have any power to enter the Cathedral. In any case, if the city fathers proceed to take in hand their own account, the making of St. Paul's secure, they will of a certainty undertake a job which will swallow up such of their surplus wealth. There is little doubt, though, that the generosity of private citizens all over the world will provide the necessary funds for safeguarding the building for posterity.

The South African War is very much a thing of the last generation nowadays. The Great War has captured us all to revise our estimates of happenings within our own lifetime. A considerable amount of interest, however, has been aroused here by the decision to hold a reunion of the City Imperial Volunteers, in commemoration of the 25th anniversary of the founding of the regiment. The C. I. V.'s, as they have always been known, were organized at the end of the "Black Week" of December, 1899, when one Saturday afternoon the War office and the world at large realized that within seven days the British forces in South Africa had suffered three serious defeats. The Government sent out Lord Roberts and Lord Kitchener the following week, Canada organized her first South African contingent, and the City of London organized the C.I.V.s—the first volunteer regiment to leave England for service overseas. Every grade of city worker—from banker to costermonger—was included in its ranks. General Sir Henry Mackinnon commanded the whole regiment, and Col. the Earl of Albemarle, commanded the infantry. About 800 survivors are expected to attend the reunion supper in the Guildhall, over which the Lord Mayor will preside, next month. Many who were privates in the regiment gained the rank of Brigadier in the Great War. The C.I.V.'s were disbanded immediately after their return from South Africa, and there has been no reunion since.

The Law courts are to settle the question of whether there is any right of appeal for a dog condemned to death because the magistrates are satisfied he is dangerous to the public at large. F. E. Edwards, of St. Albans, has a three year old Alredale. The magistrates have ordered that he be destroyed and when Mr. Edwards wished to appeal to the Quarter Sessions he was informed no such form of appeal existed. The matter will be raised in the House of Commons, and the Canine Defence League intends to take the case to the highest court available.

Another incident which has just happened over a dog shows how much generosity there is running around among the British public if only their mind is aroused. A widely-circulated illustrated paper presented a photo of a small boy fondling a dog through the bars of a cage. The caption of the picture stated that the boy was completely at ease with his pet because he had not the money to pay for the license, which has to be renewed at the New Year. Whereupon the newspaper which printed this supposedly pathetic description received postal orders and cheques for seven shillings and sixpence by the dozen. Enquiries showed that the photo was merely a pleasing but a purely life study by an amateur photographer, who had no intention of arousing the sympathies of the public in the manner indicated. It has been impossible to return many of these contributions, as the senders enclosed no name or address.

Arthur Bourchier, the well known actor, is among recent recruits to the Labour Party. He holds the lease of the Strand Theatre, and has put the party on Sunday evenings "for the expression of the ideals of Labor, not only by speech, but by music, drama and art in its highest forms." On certain evenings well known Labor members of Parliament will speak, but good music and some form of art will always be included in the programme. Among Mr. Bourchier's C. P. Trevelyan, late Minister for Education, Tom Johnston, Dundee, Rosslyn Mitchell (who defeated Mr. Asquith), and James Maxton (Clyde leader). Co-operation of well known actors and actresses has been secured.

Handy Tools for the Radio Constructor

Much time can be saved in building radio apparatus if a few simple tools are on hand. To do a really good job in building a radio receiver it is necessary that you have more than the proverbial "screwdriver, pliers and hammer." Thinking that many of our readers will really be interested in turning out first-class sets which will have that commercial finish that most ready-made sets have, we are listing below some of the more important tools which will not only help make a good job, but which will also save many hours unnecessary labor.

You should have a pair of 6-inch or 8-inch side-cutting pliers and a pair of 6-inch Oblique Cutting Pliers. Also a pair of Long Nose Pliers WITHOUT cutters. The pliers without cutters can be used to mash the insulation on small size wire, and are very handy. All these pliers are more or less essential. It particularly pays to buy good tools; it pays not only in long life of the tools, but in the "lifetime" guarantee which goes with most of them. Next, two sizes of screwdrivers. A 6-inch screwdriver with an edge about one-fourth inch wide, and a small driver for tightening set screws in dials will fill the bill.

An electric soldering iron is a very essential and handy adjunct to the constructor's workshop. A good iron with a small tip can be purchased for around five dollars and is worth ten times that much in the time it saves. Be sure to see that the iron you buy will work on the house supply you have.

A set of three Spittite wrenches for tightening the nuts on sockets, binding posts, etc., can be purchased for a dollar and a half. The wrenches can be purchased in a set of three to fit standard hexagonal nuts.

You should have several pounds of RESIN core solder on hand. By NO means use ANY solder which has acid or any flux other than pure RESIN. Many otherwise good sets have been ruined because acid or corrosive pastes were used to solder the connections. Days after the set was lashed, the owner found a nice color on the connections. This corrosion means a great loss in reception and will ruin a set in time.

Next you should have an electric hack saw with blades having teeth; one fine, one medium, one coarse file about 8 inches long, a hand drill with an assortment of drills to give clearance for No. 8 and No. 10 screws and a drill clearance for a ¼-inch shaft.

If you can get an old table to be a good idea to use it as a construction table, avoiding the take of trying to build apparatus on the same table that you have ceiling set used on. At one end of the table you should have a small iron vise and a set of boxes containing the inevitable pieces of wire, etc. Cigar boxes with small brass handles are the thing.

UNITED STATES STEEL.
Investors Have Sold Some Stock on Rise.
(From Boston News Bureau, Feb. 10.)
N. Y.—Floating supply of United States Steel closed at the end of last year, 1,322,113 shares or 62.21% of outstanding issue, was largest since first quarter of 1923 when it stood at 1,333,384 shares.
In quarter from October 1 to Dec. 31, 1924, floating supply increased 77,950 shares. This increase simply means that the usual happened. Investors sold their holdings on the rising market.
The gain of 171,950 shares in floating supply was considerably smaller than might have been expected in view of the advance in the price of the stock in the meantime. Compared with the first quarter of 1923, when brokers' holdings were much the same, the figures indicate that steel investors are not as willing to let go their holdings as they were in the past. In the first three months of 1923 steel did not sell above 112, whereas in the last quarter of last year it reached 161.
Accompanying chart shows fluctuation in price of steel since the Steel Corporation was organized.
It has frequently been pointed out that floating supply of steel always fluctuates in close sympathy with the market price of the stock. At the same time the number of stockholders fluctuates in inverse ratio with market price. Thus in the last quarter of 1924 number of stockholders declined from 26,517 to 26,317, or by 200. But as the years pass, and steel adds to its earning power and assets, as well as to its popularity with the investing public, more investors buy on declines and fewer sell on advances. As a result the trend of stock distribution is upwards and of floating supply downwards.
In the past eight years not only have investors in this country taken a great deal of steel common out of the market but they have absorbed heavy selling from abroad. Foreign holdings of steel common were 1,241,128 shares just prior to the war. At the close of 1924 they had been reduced to 502,632 shares and at the close of 1924 stood at 198,050 shares. Brokers' holdings declined between 1914 and 1924 by 314,833 shares so that total takings of investors here, in the eight years, allowing for some duplications, were around 1,500,000 shares.

HUDSON MOTOR.
January Net Over $1,000,000.
BOSTON—Hudson Motor earnings for January amounted to over $1,000,000, running 50% ahead of the monthly average for the record year 1923. With 29 days of January gone, the company is attaining its full January production schedule of 37,000 cars, the largest month's output in its history. Earnings are running at the rate of $13,000,000 annually or approximately $10 per share on the common stock as compared with $8,078,450 or $6.11 per share in 1923. With the spring motor demand opening up, the company expects to attain its full estimated production of 18,700 cars for February and 30,400 for March, or a total for the first three months of 1925 of 56,700 cars. Total 1923 production was 128,715 cars.

The Age of Agriculture
The Englishman (Calcutta): In India agriculture is still the only natural industry. Though politicians may prate of the uprising of an outraged people, rightly struggling to be free, it must be remembered that 90 per cent. of the population of India lives in the villages and for it politics has no meaning. The villagers care not under whose suzerainty they live, provided there is somebody over them to police the country. To them the one supreme topic of absorbing interest is the coming harvest—one neighbor asking another the inevitable question—how many maunds of paddy he is expecting to obtain. This year from his dankhale (rice-field). If the harvest is good, it means a prosperous year to the average man and woman of India.

France Stirred by War Scourge
Paris, Feb. 4.—An account of a new war scourge said to have been developed by the Germans, is causing a stir in the French press, notwithstanding denials from official quarters.
In the course of a lecture delivered at St. Chamond recently, Deputy Pierre Tuffinages declared that the Germans had secretly perfected a chemical product by the use of which airplanes could annihilate several cities within a few hours. The details of the invention, he added, recently came to the knowledge of the French War Ministry, and experiments by ex-

Brother of Mercy in Boiling Case
OUT ON BOND—BAIL REDUCED.
Rene Francois de Vleschouwer, in religion, Brother Usmar, of the Belgian Brothers of Mercy, who operates the Huberdeau Orphanage, and who is held responsible for the death of 8-year-old Hector Galarnaud, scalded to death at the orphanage on January 21, was released on bond shortly after noon to-day. He had Brother of Mercy, in Boiling Case, been confined at Bordeaux since Wednesday after a Coroner's jury had rendered a verdict of manslaughter against him.
Rev. Father C. E. Lamarche, parish priest of St. Stanislas, of Montreal, supplied the bond in the sum of $2,000. It had been originally fixed at $5,000 by Judge Monet Wednesday afternoon, but upon representation made this morning by Z. Filon, acting as counsel for Brother Usmar, the court consented to reduce the amount to $2,000, which Father Lamarche deposited in the shape of current cash bonds.
Brother Usmar will be called next week to be present in court when the Grand Jury reconvenes on February 18.—Montreal Star, Feb. 4.

What Advertising in The Evening Telegram Can Accomplish

Next to being able to deliver the goods, advertising in The Evening Telegram is the most important thing to you, Mr. Merchant.

You may have the finest goods in the world, but unless you take steps to let the buying public know, your sales must be very disappointing.

The Evening Telegram is read in practically every home in the Island.

During the month of October, 1924, a Manufacturing Firm, of this city, advertised, through the daily papers, for a name for a new product which they intended placing on the market.
Out of 4000 replies received nearly 60 per cent. were on coupons cut from The Evening Telegram, the remaining 40 per cent. being from the other daily papers.

INTER CLUB BILLIARDS.
Institute Players Leading By 291 Pts.
 In last night's inter club billiard tournament only one game was played, J. Angat defeating G. Phillips by one point, the latter picking up splendidly towards the end of the game. The breaks were:—
ANGEL (M.G.C.A.)—300—18, 12, 10, 14, 12, 14, 10, 10—98.
G. PHILLIPS (C.E.L.)—299—11, 10, 11, 10, 13, 10, 13, 23, 12, 13—146.
 The C. E. I. are still leading by 291 points. The final game at the Guards rooms will be played to-night by E. Smith (C.E.L.) and F. Rabbitts (M.G.C.A.).

ENJOYABLE BILLIARD DINNER AT B.I.S. ROOMS LAST NIGHT.
 Arising out of the recent billiard tournament between the members of the Masonic and B.I.S. Clubs, a very enjoyable dinner was held at the B.I.S. rooms last night, when the winning team entertained their Masonic opponents. Covers were laid for about 120 and the number present included many of the city's most prominent men, the special guest being Col. Ross, who is at present doing special work at the General Post Office. The tables were laid out in the Assembly Hall, which was tastefully decorated for the occasion, as were the tables. Before the Chairman was a large Masonic emblem, surrounded by Shamrocks and an Irish harp.

CANADIAN TO HEAD TEX RICKARD'S NEW HOCKEY CLUB.
OTTAWA, Feb. 6.—T. P. Gorman, former manager of the Ottawa Hockey Club, confirmed to-day the despatch from New York City that he would probably be in charge next winter of Tex Rickard's Hockey Club in the New Madison Square Garden. "I have not signed with the New York club and will not be in a position to do so until the close of the current hockey season, as I am still interested financially in the Ottawa Hockey Association and the National Hockey League," said Mr. Gorman, "but the proposition which the New York Club made me is so attractive that I will probably accept. It includes a loan contract and an interest in the New York club."
 Mr. Gorman is going to New York next week to confer with Tex Rickard, Tom Duggan, Colonel Hammond, and others. The new Madison Square Garden rink will cost about $5,000,000 and will have a capacity for hockey games of about 25,000.

 Mr. Gorman said that he did not know anything definite about the proposed formation of an American National Hockey League but added he had been given to understand that it would include New York, Boston, Pittsburgh and Cleveland. If it materializes, players will be in great demand, and a hockey war would probably result, with the usual harvest to the professional puck chasers, Mr. Gorman said.
 Some of the American promoters are strongly in favor of another independent league, owing to the failure of the Boston team this year, Mr. Gorman said. They want to come out in the open and land for the United States cities such hockey luminaries as Joe Simpson, Art Duncan, Howie Morenz, Hooley Smith, George Boucher, Babe Dye, Frank Clancy, and Frank Nighbor. Boston will drop about $50,000 on this season's operations, so the Hub people may also be found in the proposed new circuit.

GORMAN WON RACE BUT LOST TITLE TO FRANCIS ALLEN.
St. John Skater Took 440 Yard Event But Lost Out in Title Race.
SARANAC LAKE, Feb. 6.—Francis Allen, of Chicago, is the International amateur outdoor speed skating champion for 1925.
 By virtue of taking second place to-day in the 440 yard and five mile race, victory yesterday in the three-quarter mile race and first place on Wednesday in the half mile event, Allen took unto himself the crown won last year by Charles Gorman, of St. John, N.B.
 Allen's victories and places gave him a total of 100 points, Valentine Bialis, of Lake Placid, was runner-up with 80 points, and Joe Moore, of New York, was third, with sixty points. Gorman, the defending champion, won the 440 yard race in 40 2-5 seconds, two and two-fifths seconds slower than the time he made last year, when he won the international crown. Allen was second and Leslie Boyd, of New York, was third.

BOXERS SUSPENDED BY N.Y. COMMISSION.
NEW YORK, Feb. 4.—Fred Fulton, Rochester, Minn., heavyweight, his manager, Jack Reddy, and Fred Winger, manager of Tony Fuente, Mexican heavyweigh to-day were barred for all time from connection with the ring game in this State by the New York State Athletic Commission, for their part in the "framed" Fulton-Fuente bout in California early this winter.
 Johnny Dundee, former world's featherweight champion to-day was indefinitely suspended by the New York State Athletic Commission for failing to go through with a contract to box Fred Bretonnel in Paris last month.

Wesley Church Concert and Sociable
RADIO BROADCASTING FEATURE OF ENTERTAINMENT.
 The concert and sociable, held in Wesley Church basement last night, was largely attended, and proved to be a decided success. Mr. Jesse Whiteway occupied the chair and, following a short address to the audience and listeners-in, the programme was commenced. Amongst those who took part were: Mrs. Alex. Mews and Mrs. J. J. Miller; Misses Theresa Power, Barbara Langmead and Eleanor Mews; Messrs. T. P. Halley, Alex. Mews, G. H. Hutton, Arthur Bulley, T. H. O'Neill and H. B. Wardell. The performers acquitted themselves splendidly, and were appreciated, not only by the gathering at Wesley, but by the numerous listeners-in throughout the city, many of whom made telephone calls, asking some of the performers to repeat their solos, which in nearly every case was acceded to.
 During the evening it was announced that Misses Ida Howlett, Gladys Redstone and Margaret Murray were unfortunately unable to take part owing to illness. Before the close Mr. Whiteway made a brief address, and during the course of his remarks warmly congratulated Rev. J. G. Joyce, the pastor, on his progressiveness in installing the radio apparatus and on the results achieved. He also complimented Mr. Walter Vey the operator, and last but not least the talented performers who gave of their best in making the evening so enjoyable. The Ladies' Auxiliary also came in for a share of praise on their excellent catering which was provided. It is the intention of Mr. Gordon Christian L.R.A.M. to broadcast an organ recital from Wesley Church on Wednesday the 25th.

Dr. Roberts Addresses Llewellyn Club

The regular weekly meeting of Llewellyn Club was held last night at Canon Wood Hall and was largely attended. The evening was a most profitable and enjoyable one, all thoroughly appreciating the address delivered by Dr. W. Roberts, whose subject was "Medicine Through The Ages." The speaker was introduced by Rev. J. B. Elliott, President of the Club.
 Dr. Roberts deemed it an honour to address the club, although he did not profess to be a speaker.
 Medicine, he said, comprehends the history of the human race and to know the nature of man is to know all things. Man's age is unknown, it goes back countless ages and so does medicine,—the healing art. The first knowledge of medicine dates back to 1600 years before the Christian era, and the speaker referred to what had been done at this period. The physicians were the church or medicine men who believed that disease came, through spirits. The dawn of reason came in 400 B. C., when Hippocrates discovered the organs of the human body. Aristotle was retrogressive and developed false science and as a result Greece lost her standing and the headquarters were transferred to Egypt. The second century was a discouraging period, and in it came the dogma of superstition. After many years came light and religious discussions took place on the subject, the Arabs beginning to gather crumbs of science. In the sixteenth century the seat of learning was at Paris and anatomy was studied. Later on there was discovered the science of the circulation of blood which was classed as being just as important as the solar system and the discovery of America. It was first discovered by Harvey who as a result of it lost his practice as people thought he was mad.
 The speaker then followed the course of medicine down through the various stages, explaining the use of the microscope, and the discovery of insulin for the cure of diabetes. The various important discoveries in connection with medicine were all explained in a manner that only a man possessed of the ability of Dr. Roberts, could do.
 At the close a vote of thanks was proposed by Mr. L. Colley and seconded by Mr. H. Y. Mott, and on being put by the President, was heartily accorded.
 Tea was then served to the members following which a short musical programme was rendered in which Messrs. McDonald, Green and Colley, contributed items. A vote of thanks to the performers was proposed by Mr. A. G. Carnell; Canon Smart who was present addressed the meeting.
 On next Wednesday evening the annual tea and concert of the club, will take place.

WRONG NUMBER.—In this morning's "News" the winning number of this week's drawing in the Star Sweepstake read 34625. It should have read 34655.

PUBLIC NOTICE.
 Under the Act 10 Edward VII, entitled "An Act Respecting the Discovery of Minerals."
 WHEREAS Andrew Colford, of St. John's, in the Island of Newfoundland, has filed in this Office, accompanied by affidavit, Notice of the discovery of Mineral, situate at Workington, Bay de Verde District, about one quarter of a mile ahead of Mare's Pond, North West of Island Cove about three miles and about one mile and a quarter from Island Pond, on the South West of Workington; the said Mineral being described as Iron Ore;
 AND WHEREAS the said Andrew Colford claims to be the first and original discoverer of the said mineral under the above-named Act;
 I HEREBY GIVE NOTICE that any person disputing the claim of the said Andrew Colford as first and original discoverer of the said Mineral is hereby required to give notice to me in writing, at the Department of Agriculture and Mines, within sixty days from the date of this notice, of any objection to the registration of the said claimant as the first and original discoverer of the Mineral aforesaid; and further, if no notice disputing the said claim is filed within sixty days, the said Andrew Colford will be deemed to be, and registered in this Department as the first and original discoverer of the said Mineral, as provided by the aforesaid Act.

TO YOUNG MEN!

This is specially addressed to the young men who are following the trend of style especially as regards trousers. If you want the bell bottom trousers, with or without cuff, here is the place to get them; we are making and have made recently some splendid examples of this style. This also applies to the straight hanging English trousers hanging free from the hips to the cuff; with plenty of room at knees and bottom.
