NICKEL POLICY IN COCHRANE'S HANDS

Official in His Department Reported to Imperial Authorities.

LITTLE LIGHT GIVEN

Correspondence Does Not Disclose What Protective Measures Were Taken.

By a Staff Reporter. OTTAWA, Feb. 11.—Sir Robert Borden laid on the table of the house this afternoon the correspondence he received the other day regarding measures taken to prevent Canadian nickel getting to the enemy.

The correspondence gives no hint as to what the arrangements really are that were made to prevent nickel getting to the enemy, and second, that the officers who made these arrangements were Graham Bell, controller of the Canadian department of railways and canals, under Hon. Frank Cochrane.

Here are the significant portions of this rather bald correspondence: Correspondence respecting the control and exportation of nickel.

"London, Dec. 10, 1914. "Prime Minister, Ottawa. "Placed your letter regarding nickel before Hopwood last Monday. Have appointment tomorrow in this matter with him.

"Prime Minister, Ottawa. "Hopwood's consent arrangement regarding nickel perfectly satisfactory. "Perley."

"Dear Sir Robert Borden: I duly received your letter of Nov. 29, enclosing copy of a report made by Graham Bell regarding the arrangement for the purpose of preventing the enemy from obtaining nickel, and also copies of other communications on the same subject.

"I at once communicated with Sir Francis Hopwood, chairman of the sub-committee here, for the purpose of curtailing enemies' supplies, and to whom I have previously addressed the same question, and Schouwen Bank. The submarine fired several shells, which damaged the steamer's funnel, compass and upper deck.

"The Laertes when challenged by the submarine made an unsuccessful attempt to torpedo the steamship. The Laertes when challenged by the submarine was proceeding without showing her nationality. When asked to stop the vessel flew the Dutch flag but this did not prevent the Germans according to the ship's officers, from firing on the steamer and attempting to sink her.

"The captain of the Laertes says he flew the Dutch flag in order to save the crew, which consisted of subjects of neutral states, including those of China and Norway.

"HOLLAND WILL INVESTIGATE. THE HAGUE, Feb. 11, via London, 10 p.m.—The Dutch authorities will make inquiry into the attempt of the German submarine U2 to torpedo the steamer Laertes, as it is suggested that the attempt was made inside Dutch territorial waters.

PREMIUM FOR TORONTO LOAN

Municipality Received Better Terms for Bonds Than Ontario Government.

BROUGHT OVER PAR

Twenty-Three Companies Put in Bids for Short Term Issue.

A decided tribute was paid to Toronto's credit and standing among Canada's bondholders yesterday when no less than twenty-three different firms, largely American banking houses, bid for the two new issues of city bonds amounting all to $2,000,000.

The keenness of the competition for the loan is indicated by the following figures showing the bids received from fourteen of the twenty-three concerns: Aemilius Jarvis & Co., Toronto, and the Kissel, Kennicut Company, of New York, and their figure, 100.081, was accepted.

W. Wood, Gundy and A. E. Ames were next, their bid being 99.91, closely followed by Home Smith and Company and A. E. Martens, in the order named.

The Laertes when challenged by the submarine was proceeding without showing her nationality. When asked to stop the vessel flew the Dutch flag but this did not prevent the Germans according to the ship's officers, from firing on the steamer and attempting to sink her.

TRIED TO TORPEDO BRITISH STEAMER

Laertes Hoisted Dutch Flag, But German Submarine Was Undeterred.

HOLLAND IS AROUSED

Attack Believed to Have Been Made in Dutch Territorial Waters.

Canadian Press Despatch. YMUDDIN, Netherlands, Dec. 11, via London, 6.50 p.m.—The German submarine U2 yesterday attempted to torpedo the British steamer Laertes, which arrived here today from Java. The vessel escaped by adroit manoeuvres and fast steaming. When attacked the steamer was flying the Dutch flag.

The attack on the Laertes was made while the vessel was steaming between the Meuse lightship and Schouwen Bank. The submarine fired several shells, which damaged the steamer's funnel, compass and upper deck.

WHITE FOR SPRING SPORT COATS

Tan Also Chic,
But Avoid the Vivid Shades.

It will soon be time to begin "cross-country hikes" over hill and dale in quest of the very first spring flowers. Of course you will need a smart sports coat to wear over your smart sport shirt or shirtwaist and skirt upon these occasions.

There is more practical wear in a sport coat than in any other garment, and your first purchase for your new spring outfit should be one of the sturdiest walking coats on display in all the worthwhile shops. They are made of every modish material in all weights and weaves. Gabardine, corduroy, serge, Shantung silk of a particularly heavy quality, homespun, cheviot or Bedford cord.

Unlike the other coats for spring wear they do not emphasize the Empire line, but are belted loosely at the normal waistline. They do, however, flare from the shoulders, and flare about the lower edge.

This attractive coat of white gabardine should meet all the requirements of a modish, practical sports coat. It is of a becoming length, and possesses all the marks that proclaim it to be an imitation of the spring fashions.

This design fully suggests the Russian blouse with its belt and side fastening. The neck line is finished with a high rolling collar, and the lower sleeves have turned-back cuffs.

The wide box-pleat in front is held in position by the combination skirt and belt. At each side there is a group of inverted pleats which make the coat extremely full at the bottom.

Large, coin-shaped buttons of white pearl ornament the front, belt and cuffs.

Last season there was a decided preference for sports coats in vivid colors. This season the smart coats are either all white or tan. There is a variety in dark blue, brown and gray, but the ultra fashionable coats are white.

The chic hat worn with this coat is of dark blue straw ornamented with a white feather fantasy.

Treating Scars Now a Part of Your Doctor's Practice

By DR. LEONARD KEENE HIRSHBERG
A. B., M. A., M. D. (Johns Hopkins)

DOCTORS come and doctors go, yet great medical schools go on forever. They flourish like green bay trees. There are eminent medical universities, connected with magnificently equipped hospitals, which rather discourage their graduates, even after eight and ten years' elaborate experience, experimentation and practice, from treating the people. They thus silently admit that much remains to be taught and to be learned.

Yet the "experts" and graduates of these best universities somehow become imbued with the notion that what has escaped them is either false, worthless or dangerous. Usually these professors of medicine assume the elevated position that they do not know is either vicious or impossible. Many of them go farther, and assume that what they do not know is impossible, hence to attempt it is immoral!

Needless to say, this is an absurdity. There are many conditions of the living person which do not indicate inflammation or disease. There are also many states, not dignified beyond the bounds or within the confines of health, yet may clearly fall to the open-minded surgeon and consultant for remedial aid and comfort.

This is peculiarly true in the matter of eliminating scars and the removal of pox in the skin. After chicken pox, pimples, smallpox, eczema, psoriasis, and many other ailments, ugly and disfiguring scars are left, which need not be suffered, either by any rules of religion or morals, to mar the face.

Scope of Treatment. These little depressions in the skin may be elevated, or if raised scars, reduced, and the hard, tough, discolored skin can be made soft and restored to its natural state. Individual and peculiar differences call for treatment in the separate instances. The plan and scope of the remedy, however, can be easily made to suit each kind of scar and no less a proud leader than Prof. Paul (Jana of Berlin, Ger., stands sponsor for this.

How It Feels for a GIRL To Be a Little "Movie" BOY

As It Is Experienced Nearly Every Day
By HELEN BADGLEY

THE number of times I've been asked how it feels to play I'm a little boy in the films when I'm really a little girl, makes me think most people never were children at all—or have forgotten about it, and Miss Badgley, "The Thimble Kid," between rehearsals in the big New York studio. "Now when I was four or five years old I used to like to play that I was 'most everything,' all by myself. And playing a little boy for the 'movie' is just dressing up—and playing what I used to play all alone by myself right out for other folks to see.

"I guess that's all there is to it—anyway I think that's all. But some of my girl friends seem to think differently, they're always asking me such a lot of funny questions. They want to know how it feels to do this or to be that, but particularly they want to find out how it feels to play that I'm a little boy and then to see myself as a little boy in the film.

"It's hard work being a 'Movie Boy'—but it's loads of fun, too."

"I've studied a whole lot over that question, and it's funny that I can't think of myself that way. I don't believe I ever thought about 'how I looked' except, perhaps, the very first time. You see I'm always thinking about my acting and trying to do better—and I always see so many things that I ought to have acted better that it's quite discouraging sometimes. Even if I'm only 8 years old, I can see how much better I could be. I think I'm awfully good at playing a little boy just as I am.

"My director, the one who works the hardest with me, likes me, too, and he's very kind to me, but there's one thing I never can understand. You see, he rehearses and rehearses me—sometimes we go over the same thing a dozen times—and then he says: 'Now just be natural!'

"It's hard work—that's what playing a boy is when you're really a little girl. That's how it feels—just like hard work. But it's loads of fun, too."

THE MOST APPRECIATED BIRTHDAY GIFT

UNTIL recently I was a little girl, and I was very much interested in the most appreciated birthday gift. I know how you feel, because when I was 13 years old I was presented with a suit of smart clothes for my birthday instead of the bicycle which I wanted more, but needed less. But that wasn't a circumstance, my mother, when I was 13 years old, was very kind to me, but there's one thing I never can understand. You see, he rehearses and rehearses me—sometimes we go over the same thing a dozen times—and then he says: 'Now just be natural!'

"It's hard work—that's what playing a boy is when you're really a little girl. That's how it feels—just like hard work. But it's loads of fun, too."

"I think they're just too cute. I had insisted, and I'm glad I bought satin bodice slippers for Misses instead of articles I knew I was grown up. And I do wish that just this once they would give me something frivolous—some little trinkets that I can't have any good use of at all except to look pretty for a little while."

"But aunt, dear, I simply couldn't distribute such presents as birthday gifts, could I?" I teased.

"Why not?" asked aunt, somewhat absently. "Of course, you're carrying the argument far, but I assure you that if Uncle Dick had bought me a washing machine my first birthday after we were married instead of my pearl ring I'd have appreciated it immeasurably more, although, of course, I never said so, I want lovely things. But first we must have the helpful, necessary things."

"As a matter of fact, the best present you can give a woman who does her own housework at any season of the year and for any occasion, is some household help. Because, if I'm true, that the majority of women who will ungraciously pay $10 or $12 for a hat that will last only a few months, will declare solemnly that they can't possibly afford to spend the same sum for a household labor saver—even though they know that it will last for years. It's because women haven't been used to buying machinery for the home and only with a comparatively short time that so many splendid labor-saving devices have been marketed."

"But tell me what you buy as a gift—something that will be really appreciated. I know that a gift as well as useful!" I asked.

"Lots of things, even if you want to keep within a limited sum. There are innumerable attractive electric devices—torasters and table irons and egg boilers—that make table service easy for the housewife who has no maid. Then there are attractive accessories and aluminum utensils—saucepans and kettles, etc. And in the smaller bits there are all kinds of attractive knives and forks of every kind—poultry shears and nutcrackers and corn cutters—just a wise choice."

"And take my word for it," concluded aunt, the third housekeeper, "there is beauty in everything that saves her labor, and she'll appreciate it more than the loveliest bonbons you could send."

"Oh, Give Me Some Time to Blow the Man Home"

By WINIFRED BLACK
Copyright, 1918, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

"Blow the man down, sailor, blow the man down—blow the man down." HEARD him singing it in the garden this morning—the old sailor man in California.

Bent and bowed, wrinkled and gray, pottering about in the garden, tying up the white rose, pruning the red, cutting down the rambler, soldering the heliostats for going too much to woody fiber, pulling up the weeds, stirring the black earth with his spade—old man tired and heavy with the burden of years, and yet always something free and bold about him.

Something in his walk that reminds you of rolling decks, something in the way he carries his hands that makes you think of a rustling sail and the wind that follows fast, and something in his blue eyes that speaks so wistfully of the open sea.

"As I was becoming in the tropical seas. Blow the man down, sailor, blow the man down. I whistled all day but in vain for the breeze. Give me some time to blow the man home."

Little Boy Could Understand. What a fine old sea chanty it is. I wish I could go somewhere on a sailing ship and hear them sing it, when the anchor rises from the blue.

"As I was a walking down Rotherby stream. Blow the man down, sailor, blow the man down. A nice little daisy I chanced for to meet. Give me some time to blow the man home."

I couldn't stand it a minute longer, so I went out into the garden to talk with the old sailor man.

"What," said the old sailor man, "tell you about the sea? Why, what could I tell to you?"

"You wouldn't sense what I was trying to say. You ain't never been in a gale, have you? And what will you make of it when I tell you about halibut? Women ain't no truck with such as that."

And the old sailor man took a fresh chew of tobacco and told me that unless we did something very drastic, and did it soon, the smalls would make the garden a regular world's fair for the small family.

Not a word would he tell me of whistling winds and singing seas and countries far to see.

Not a word of rattling palms, or coral sands, or brown natives wreathed in garlands.

Not a word concerning captains and mates, or even of sea cooks. Not a syllable about scarlet fish or pink ones, not a thing about the roll of the surf on a sullen and lowering beach, not a word about the men he had sailed with—Lascars or Greek or Swede or Pole—not even a Chinaman would he mention.

Such affairs were not of my world. Slugs, and bugs, and snails, and cob-

Love and Ideals. I had some brave spirit will arise and tell the truth about matrimony. It is an ideal, not a reality.

And to love one's wife, curiously enough, may be quite different from being "in love" with her. To be in love, I take it, is LEONA DALRYMPLE an all-embracing fever, as different from the simple, tranquil state of loving as a poppy from a rose. "In-loviness" is a virulent intoxication—selfish, unreasonable, violent—a thing of quicksilver and restless indecision. A man is "in love" with his young bride. The strong, fine love which he bears the mother of his children is as different from that first dear foolishness as the later love—a little tired and sated perhaps—which he bears for his wife is different from the robust affection of his middle-age.

Advice to Girls

By ANNIE LAURIE

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE: I have been invited to a dance to which a young man whom I admire very much has also been asked. Now, I am very eager for him to ask me, but I would never be so forward as to request him to accompany me.

Kindly advise me as soon as you can, for I am waiting anxiously for a reply, and the dance is to be soon.

POOR Miriam, what a terribly perplexing situation you are in, to be sure! Will he ask you, or won't he? And if he doesn't ask you to go with him how are you going to make him without your asking him? It really does seem more puzzling than it really is, doesn't it? I am almost sure that your friend has begged the privilege of being your escort long before this, but if he hasn't, isn't that fact sufficient proof for you that he doesn't wish to be? And if he doesn't wish to take you, all your asking him—or not asking him—ain't got to change the situation the least bit. It will only put you in an uncomfortable position.

Now, Miriam, I am going to give you a very simple rule of social conduct, and if you just keep it in mind you will never find yourself in such a perplexing situation again. This is the rule: The only time a lady may ask a gentleman to be her escort is when she is invited some place where he is not, and, furthermore, when she has been requested to accompany him.

For your present perplexity, my dear, there is only one solution. Whether or not your friend asks you to go with him, you must go anyway—so and have as happy a time as you can have. For it would never do to let him see, now would it?

WHERE MEN IMPERSONATE GODS TO "MAKE" RAIN

THE Indians of our American Southwest are very different Indians from those of the plains. While the plains Indians have always been hunters and predatory warriors, the southwestern Indians have always been farmers and more than half-civilized for many generations. Rain is the most important thing in the world to them; therefore it is not strange to find that rain-making feasts hold a prominent place in their religious rites.

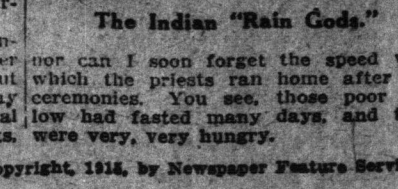

To most of us rain is a natural annoyance, to be taken for granted, but by the spirits of the dead. Children who die young are supposed to attain miraculous maturity in the spirit land, and then assume their part in the production of rain. Therefore, in the lapse of time there have come into spiritual power a vast number of rainmakers, but there are not too many, as the arid climate certainly proves.

The Indian priests, naturally, are foremost in the rain-making ceremonies, and they fast for days before the "rain dance" to make themselves worthy, and then when the great day arrives the Great Father of the gods appears, factually disguised, preceded by a courier, and attended by 10 lesser gods.

In the old days the common people had come down to earth in person, but the college educated Indian of today certainly understands that the active gods are impersonated by the priests.

nor can I soon forget the speed with which the priests ran home after the ceremonies. You see, the poor fellows had fasted many days, and they were very, very hungry.

M'GUTCHEON CASE GOES TO A JURY

Sufficient Evidence to Show Widespread Fraud, Says Magistrate. GOODMAN FOR CROWN

Hartley Dewart, K.C., Wanted Him Included in Charge of Conspiracy. Gordon D. McCutcheon, D. M. McCutcheon, J. H. and C. M. McCutcheon and Marshall A. Cook were sent to trial by Magistrate Denison...

After the evidence had all been submitted and when A. J. Russell Snow, E.C., commenced an argument on behalf of the defendants, Magistrate Denison said: "There is sufficient evidence brought here to show that there has been a widespread fraud all over the place. People have appeared before me and sworn that they have received nothing for their money. It is most extraordinary the way this thing has been done."

When the hearing was continued in the afternoon Dr. Perry B. Clarke, a Toronto dentist, was recalled. Several letters received by the witness from Dr. A. A. Stirling, Dent, were read. In one of them it was pointed out that the Edmonton and Strathcona firms had the Murray Park property to McCutcheon Bros. who sold it to the Mayfair Syndicate, who employed McCutcheon Bros. to dispose of it for them.

When the assessment was mentioned in a tone of astonishment by Crown Attorney Corley, Magistrate Denison observed: "Oh, that can easily be done. Look at the assessments in Toronto."

Cross-examined by Mr. Secord, the witness stated he had attended the first meeting of the directors of the Mayfair Syndicate and had heard a cheque for $75,000 to take over the company, on condition that the McCutcheon Brothers should have nothing to do with it, and did not know until after he had paid $1000 in 1912 and that in 1913 McCutcheon Brothers were in England selling stock.

Magistrate's Remarks. Col. Hunter had a few pointed remarks to make in regard to the case at the morning sitting. At one time he said: "It looks as if the whole business consisted of bogus sales—a sort of endless chain—forming one company to buy a property only in order to raise the price of it, finally selling it at an inflated price to the final party."

It is well always to know where to place one's hand upon a really reliable home remedy for the more frequently occurring ills of life, and we are pleased, therefore, to call attention to the announcement of Dr. Cassell's Tablets, which appears in this issue. These tablets are entirely a British production, made in Manchester, England, and owned exclusively by British citizens. As a remedy for dyspepsia and nervous troubles Dr. Cassell's Tablets have proved so successful that their sale in the old country exceeds that of any other preparation of their class. An ever-increasing Canadian demand has now induced the proprietors to establish an agency in Toronto, from which retailers in all parts of the Dominion will be supplied. The tablets can, therefore, be obtained now from any druggist or chemist. For testimony to the efficacy of Dr. Cassell's Tablets we refer readers to the firm's advertisements, and may add that no testimony is ever published in connection with this medicine until full investigation of the case has been made by experienced representatives of Dr. Cassell's Company.

AMERICAN STUDENTS LEAVING GERMANY

GENEVA, Switzerland, Feb. 11.—The Canadian ends of both the international bridges between this city and Niagara Falls, Ont., were placed under military guard today as a protection against any possible attempts to destroy them. Bridge officials and military denied knowledge of a reported attempt to destroy the bridges, and stated that the protection was prompted by the Vanceboro, Maine, incident.

PARTNERSHIP ENDS WHEN MEMBER DIES

Mr. Justice Lennox Orders Winding-Up of Mutual Stationery Co.

DECISION UPHELD. Sentence of Six Months of J. W. Parrish is Confirmed by Court.

Mr. Justice Lennox at Ostrade Hall yesterday gave judgment in the action of Mrs. James Rymal for the payment of $2,482, his share in the capital of the Mutual Stationery Company, and an accounting of the business from February 1, 1913.

The claim was against Elizabeth Jane Magill and John Alexander Newsome, executor and administrator of the late William Barker Newsome, who was partner in the Mutual Stationery Company with the plaintiff.

William Newsome died on April 5, 1914, and the plaintiff claims that the death dissolved the partnership of the company. By his will Mr. Newsome empowered the defendants to carry on the business until such time as they deemed it necessary to sell, and the defendants denied possession of any assets of the partnership since the death of the company since April 5, 1914.

Mr. Justice Lennox found that the partnership was dissolved on the death of William Barker Newsome and ordered a reference to the master-in-ordinary to take an account of the partnership assets, including any profits made out of the business since April 5, 1914, and for a winding up of the partnership.

In the case of Rex v. Parrish the second appellate court confirmed the sentence of six months of J. W. Parrish for perjury arising out of his action against the Toronto Street Railway Company. The conviction of his wife Rena, who was let go on suspended sentence.

STEEL COMMON LED ADVANCE

Better Trade Conditions Reflected in Renewed Demand for Security.

HELPED GENERAL LIST

Interstate Commerce Decision Favors Transcontinental Railroads.

Canadian Press Despatch

NEW YORK, Feb. 11.—Heavy buying of U. S. Steel common at steady advance was the chief feature of today's stock and bond market.

Stock Jumped Fifty Points on First Sale on Local Exchange.

The entire local stock exchange event has centered the past couple of days in international Petroleum, and the street yesterday was speculating as to a number of investment issues.

Decision Favors Railroads

The decision of the Interstate Commerce Commission regarding freight charges between Missouri, River and Pacific coast points has the effect of revising long haul rates and puts the latter in a better position to meet Panama Canal competition.

Voluntary wage increases to miners in Michigan copper region, together with the restoration of the Calumet and Hecla dividend after a long period of suspension, are the main items in that industry.

London manifested greater interest in steel shares, steel and Canadian Pacific being in request.

U. S. bonds were unchanged on call.

Good Demand Reported From Montreal—Euroe Still After Wheat.

Canadian Press Despatch

MONTREAL, Feb. 11.—A fair amount of business was done in Manitoba spring wheat over the cable today. Cables from London were firm and prices were unsteady.

CITY OF HAMILTON DEBENTURES.

In connection with the tenders for the $200,000 4 1/2 per cent. 20-year school bonds of the City of Hamilton, they received thirteen bids, the highest being from Messrs. A. Hume and Co. brokers, Toronto, at 83 3/4 and accrued interest, yielding about 5 per cent.
